Airmen from 108th ARW deploy overseas

By Tech. Sgt. Barb Harbison, 108th Public Affairs Office

More than 80 members of the 108th Air Refueling Wing left this week for a deployment to Southwest Asia. They are the first half of the deployers who will be spending two months on a refueling mission there.

Wing members from maintenance, flight records, operations, aircraft flight equipment and administration, along with others, will be integrating with the active duty to create a total force said Lt. Col. Martin Ryan who will be working as the Director of Operations when he reaches the deployment station.

"We will be seaming right into what they are already doing," he said. "I am looking forward to getting the mission done."

As the Airmen prepared for the deployment, one place they stopped was the Logistical Readiness Squadron, for a small issue – filters for their protective mask, insecticide for their uniforms, ballistic goggles and tan web gear. Senior Master Sgt. Darlene Bouffard, materiel management specialist, said that the war bags were already in theater, thereby reducing the amount of items and time the Airmen spent processing through the line and baggage to handle.

Another check on the list for deployment was weapons qualification. Saturday of April drill found a group of Airmen gathered in a classroom in LRS learning the intricacies of the M16A2.

Tech. Sgt. Maurice Nelson, from 108th Security Forces, explained how each part worked as the weapon fires and how it should perform for the individual – the seesaw motion of the extractor, alignment of the rings on the bolt, how to load a magazine, clear the rifle when coming off duty and cleaning tips.

The other three instructors, Staff Sgts. Agustin Alvarado and John Wasley, both security force personnel with the 108th Contingency Response Group and Senior Airman Diorca Hernandez, of the 108th SF, floated around the room, helping the Airmen when they had problems.

Monday evening, the Airmen reported to the wing one final time before the KC-135R's transported them off to their new home for the next month.

Tech. Sgt. James Giquinto of Mount Holly has been on a number of other deployments. "I've been to Oman; Istres, France; Oslo, Norway; Adana, Turkey; and Geilenkirchen, Germany," the engine mechanic said.

Why does he go on these deployments? "It's my call of duty," he replied. "The deployments are educational and I get strength, wisdom, self-satisfaction and some character building from them."

The 21-year veteran of the 108th said his wife is very supportive of his career. Giquinto is employed as a production specialist at the Defense Support Center in Philadelphia.

Senior Airman Omar Holt admitted to some nervousness on his first deployment. Most of that, he said, was due to leaving his family behind. But he and his wife had made arrangements for help so she could handle her part-time job and their two young sons during his absence.

Holt, who is part of the Hydraulics shop, works as a locomotive engineer for New Jersey Transit when not wearing his military uniform.

The Milltown resident was looking forward to getting experience in his craft during his time overseas.

There will be a swap out half-way through the two-month deployment with another group of Airmen going over in about a month.

177th Medical Group receives Outstanding Unit Award

The National Guard Bureau has announced that the 177th Fighter Wing Medical Group, New Jersey Air National Guard, has been awarded the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award.

"This prestigious award is a testimony to the outstanding and dedicated service by the men and women of the 177th Fighter Wing Medical Group," said Brig. Gen. Maria Falca-Dodson, Commander, New Jersey Air National Guard. "Your contributions have made the difference – both here and abroad. Congratulations and thank you for your commitment, dedication and resolve to our great state and nation."

This is the second time the Medical Group has received the Award. The first was in 2003 as a subordinate unit of the wing.

"The competition was extremely keen," said Lt. Gen. Harry M. Wyatt III, Director, Air National Guard. "Each winner is commended for having been selected from an outstanding group of nominees."

The Medical Group joins an elite group of 36 Air National Guard units nationwide, ranging the full spectrum of Air Force missions, in receiving the prestigious award. The AFOUA was created in 1954 and is awarded to any Air Force unit which performs exceptionally meritorious service, accomplishes specific acts of outstanding achievement, excels in combat operations against an armed enemy of the United States, or conducts with distinction military operations involving conflict with, or exposure to, a hostile action by any opposing foreign force.

"We are all extremely proud of the Medical Group's hard work and dedication and it's good to see them get the recognition they deserve," said Col. Robert C. Bolton, Commander, 177th Fighter Wing.

The Medical Group received the award for the period from March 30, 2006 to March 30, 2008. During that time, the 177th Medical Group provided extraordinary support for Operations' Noble Eagle, Enduring Freedom, Iraqi Freedom, Jump Start, Arctic Care and Task Force Grizzly. Unit Airmen have supported the State Partnership Program between New Jersey and the Republic of Albania by training numerous Albanian doctors, nurses, and technicians in emergency medical technician certification courses.

In April 2006, the Group deployed to Kunsan Air Base, Republic of Korea in support of the Korea-United States Combined Forces exercise. The unit set up an Expeditionary Medical Support hospital in less than a week, inventoried more than 1,500 items in two days with 100 percent accuracy and provided training to the 8th Medical Group. As a result, the 177th Medical Group received numerous accolades from Pacific Air Force, the 8th Medical Group Commander, and Air National Guard Chief of Medical Plans and Readiness Division.

During Operation Arctic Care 2007, the Air National Guard Surgeon General specifically requested that the 177th Medical Group be the first Air National Guard unit to support the Operation, which is a joint operation involving medical personnel from all branches of the service. The services in turn integrate with local health organizations to provide medical care for native Alaskans. The Operation is centered in Kotzebue, with more than 150 doctors, nurses, medical specialists, and support members giving care to patients in Kotzebue and eleven outlying Inupiat Eskimo fishing villages.

The Medical Group was recognized as the top performing unit in the villages of Selawik and Noorvik. While deployed, the Medical Group Airmen reattached a young girl's finger tip, performed more than 2,000 optometric and dental examinations, and promoted a massive health program involving substance abuse, sex education and preventive medicine to more than 2,000 native Alaskans.

Quotes for the Week

Being too good is apt to be uninteresting.

-Harry S. Truman

Laws too gentle are seldom obeyed; too severe, seldom executed.

- Benjamin Franklin

Wink at small faults; for thou has great ones.

- Thomas Fuller

Politics is war without bloodshed, and war is politics with blood.

- Mao Tse-tung

A learned man has always wealth in himself.

- Latin proverb

In addition to their robust support for national and international operations, the Group also received an "Outstanding" rating during their March 2008 Health Services Inspection – their second consecutive "Outstanding" rating. To add to this accomplishment, they put together an HSI Consultation Team to assist other Air Force units in preparing for these inspections, which are considered among the most difficult inspections in the Air Force. The 177th Medical Group Consultative Team visited four other units; three of which have been inspected and attained either "excellent" or better ratings on their inspections.

"These Airmen are true professionals who have taken an interest in helping out other units and ensuring that they succeed," said Col. Bolton.

Locally, the 177th Medical Group has built relationships with non-military organizations including the Atlantic County Public Health Emergency Preparedness Task Force, Atlantic City Regional Medical Center, and Atlantic County Office of Emergency Management to prepare for future disaster relief efforts.

"The dedication and commitment of the members of these organizations enable the Air National Guard to fulfill its commitment to the missions of peacekeeping, humanitarian relief, domestic improvement, and most important of all – defense of America," said Lt. Gen. Wyatt.

108th Airman named Individual Air Diversity winner for 2008

By Staff Sgt. Brian Carson, 108th Air Refueling Wing

Master Sgt. Ferdie Bautista, Information Manager for the 108th Maintenance Squadron, was the 2008 Individual Air Diversity Award Winner. This award is given to the Air National Guard member who best promoted diversity in his/her workplace and in the community while maintaining the core values of the Air National Guard.

One of the main components of the Air Diversity Award is how the individual is able to best integrate the military with their community while promoting diversity and unity. Bautista is able to do this in a multitude of ways encompassing both his military and community background.

One of the many ways that Bautista promotes diversity is his membership in the Asian Pacific Heritage Foundation.

As chairman of the foundation, Bautista was able to fully integrate Guard and Reserve personnel into an organization that was previously run by active duty members only. He has been instrumental in bringing awareness to the group and getting the foundations message out to the public by coordinating a Luau for the base and community during Asian American/Pacific Islander Heritage month. This consisted of volunteer musicians and dancers from Japan, Thailand, Korea, Singapore, Philippines, and the Hawaiian Islands.

In addition, Bautista volunteers for the annual Unity Day celebration that is held at Fort Dix where he hosts the Asian/Pacific Islander table complete with various cultural food samplings and displays. He has been a participant in this event for the past nine years.

The Asian Pacific Heritage Foundation and the Unity Day event are only two of the ways that Bautista promotes diversity in the workplace; he also acts as his unit's Equal Opportunity counselor and Special Emphasis Program Manager.

"I'm here to assist Airmen with any questions or issues that they might have regarding diversity and equal opportunity related issues," said Bautista. "I try to instill the principle that everyone has something positive to offer, and it doesn't matter what they look like or how different they appear."

Although Bautista is very active in the military with diversity issues and assisting young Airmen, his service does not stop when he changes into civilian clothes. As a member of his local church, Bautista volunteers as a Sunday school teacher and also as an advisor to young men and women when it comes to questions about the military.

"I try to instill in everyone the importance of accepting and learning about the differences in people," said Bautista. "Talents can be found in everyone, and our strength as a people comes from our differences as a whole."

Postage stamp increase goes into effect May 11

By Marilyn Loeser

FedSmith Inc-May 6, 2009-As you're probably aware, it'll cost you 44 cents to send a letter beginning May 11. But if you want to save yourself 2 cents a stamp now's the time to stock up on Forever Stamps which are good indefinitely for the First-Class Mail one-ounce letter price.

First sold in April 2007, Forever Stamps are designed to ease the transition during price changes so that customers won't need to worry about buying additional postage to mail a letter when the cost of stamps changes.

This year customers can also purchase 44 cent stamps before May 11, as they become available. The Purple Heart stamp, Wedding Rings stamp and two-ounce Wedding Cake stamp are currently available. The Simpsons' stamps will be available May 7, and Love: King and Queen of Hearts will be available May 8.

U.S. Flag stamp coils of 3,000 and 10,000 are now available and U.S. Flag stamp coils of 100 will be available May 8.

What do you get when you purchase postage?

The obvious answer is transportation and delivery of your letter or package to any address in the United States, its territories and military APO/FPO addresses around the world.

But there's more; a lot more.

The Postal Service provides universal service — with no hidden surcharges — no matter where you live.

First-Class Mail is forwarded for one year after a customer moves — which adds up to more than 2 billion pieces every year. First Class Mail is always returned to the sender if it can't be delivered for any reason.

Letters are picked up from your mailbox free-of-charge and, when using Carrier Pickup, so are your Priority Mail and Express Mail packages. As long as you have one piece of Priority Mail or Express Mail, the carrier will pick up all your packages even if they're being shipped Parcel Post or Media Mail. Carrier Pickup is requested online at www.usps.com.

Priority Mail and Express Mail boxes and packaging supplies are provided free at Post Offices or can be ordered online from usps.com. There are several different sizes to fit all your shipping needs.

The Inspection Service protects your privacy, investigates mail fraud and is helping educate the public against fraud.

A postmark even documents that a legal brief has been filed by the deadline. Mail-in election mail programs are also in use in more than half the nation's states.

And what you pay is all you pay. The Postal Services is funded completely by the revenue it makes from its sales and services. It doesn't accept use any tax dollars for its operations.

Compared to other price increases we've all seen this past year — from the grocery store to the gas pump — you're getting a lot for your 44 cents!

NJNG museum announces sale of "A Tribute to New Jersey Veterans"

The National Guard Militia Museum of New Jersey announces the publication of "A Tribute to New Jersey Veterans." This beautiful 128 page, historical hard-cover book will be available on July 4, 2009, and includes numerous unpublished photos from the museum's collections, the N.J. National Guard, and personal collections that chronicle the men and women of New Jersey who have protected democracy since the inception of our great country right up to today's conflicts. With photos from over the past 150 years as well as illustrations of the country's early history, this book captures New Jersey's men and women's contributions since the beginning. It is a deserving tribute dedicated to all who have served and sacrificed so much for our country and shows how the state has honored and supported our veterans in the past, and will encourage its citizens to continue their support for our military.

Part of the proceeds from the sale of this book will benefit the museum. If you have any questions, please contact the museum curator, retired Col. Donald Kale, at 609-530-6802.

Employees required to register for MBOS

From the desk of Lisa J. Dandrea, Human Resources, Personnel Assistant

MBOS is the Member Benefits Online System. Through MBOS, employees may review their pension contributions, loan status, health benefits information, update their beneficiary information, apply for retirement, as well as many other applications. It has been encouraged that all employees register for this helpful tool. However Pensions is now working on MBOS being a requirement in order for employees to make certain updates to their personal information.

Effective immediately, in all cases where an employee is eligible to become a member of the Public Employees' Retirement System (PERS), the employer will be required to submit all enrollment information to Pensions via online. Important to note is that the online PERS Enrollment Application does not include the Designation of Beneficiary page. Instead, once the member is enrolled and issued a pension number, they must register for a MBOS account at: www.state.nj.us/treasury/pensions/mbosregister.htm and complete the online Beneficiary Designation form. Until the member completes his or her Designation of Beneficiary, the member's "Estate" will be the beneficiary of record.

Current employees –note, even if you are already enrolled into PERS, if you wish to make any changes to your beneficiary information, you too will need to be registered for MBOS. Members will not be able to submit the Change in Beneficiary Designation paper form since this will no longer be acceptable through the Division of Pensions and Benefits.

Visit the link above for complete instructions to register for MBOS. If you encounter any problems with registration, you may e-mail Pensions and Benefits with your questions/concerns and they can assist you through the process. You may also obtain a tri-fold brochure with MBOS instructions from your Human Resources Office.
