SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board sought determination of whether Smith Lane extension walkway constituted a public walkway within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 and N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3 for purpose of determining remoteness in connection with pupil transportation.

In light of testimony of witnesses and consideration of Commissioner decision in Mangieri, ALJ concluded Smith Lane is a public roadway and Smith Lane extension walkway is a public walkway within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3(b). ALJ found the extension walkway is freely used by the public except it is closed to vehicular traffic; it traverses a residential area; and the Township does maintain it by proper lighting and removal of debris. Therefore, the Board may use Smith Lane and the extension walkway to measure remoteness. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own relying on testimony of Board witnesses and Mangieri. Moreover, citing Nelson, Commissioner found Board was not prohibited from using elementary school driveway to get to and from the extension walkway and as part of measurement in determining eligibility for school busing.

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

On November 29, 1990, petitioner, the Board of Education of the Township of Wayne (Board), filed a petition for declaratory judgment with the Commissioner of Education seeking a determination of whether the Smith Lane extension walkway constitutes a public walkway within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 and N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3 for the purpose of determining remoteness in connection with pupil transportation. Respondents filed their answer on November 15, 1990, and on December 5, 1990, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq

The Board's request for a declaratory judgment is based upon the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, which states:

> Whenever in any district there are pupils residing remote from any schoolhouse, the board of education of the district may make rules and contracts for the transportation of such pupils to and from school, including the transportation of school pupils to and from school other than a public school, except such school as is operated for profit in whole or in part.

The concept of remoteness is further clarified in N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3 as follows:

> (a) The words "remote from the schoolhouse" shall mean beyond $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles for high school pupils (grades 9 through 12) and beyond two miles for elementary pupils (grades kindergarten through eight), except for educationally handicapped pupils.
> (b) For the purpose of determining remoteness in connection with pupil transportation, measurement shall be made by the shortest route along public roadways or public walkways from the entrance of the pupil's walkway to the nearest public entrance of the assigned school.

The sole issue upon which the Board seeks determination is whether the Smith Lane extension walkway may be considered a "public walkway" within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3(b) for the purpose of determining remoteness from the schoolhouse. If the Smith Lane extension walkway constitutes a public walkway, then the Board may include it for purposes of measuring the "shortest route" between pupils' homes and the Schuyler-Colfax Middle School which they attend. The respondents named by the Board in its petition will all be affected by the determination.

If the walkway cannot be used for the purpose of determining remoteness, the Board would be required to provide transportation for approximately 89 pupils who attend the Schuyler-Colfax Middle School, including the children of respondents, and eight pupils who attend Wayne Hills High School. Reimbursement of the school district by the State for this transportation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:58-7 will be adversely affected if the Board excludes the walkway and it is determined by State audit that it should have been included.

The hearing in the matter was held on September 20, 1991, and the record closed on October 22, 1991, following receipt of the briefs submitted by the parties.

REVIEW OF EVIDENCE AND FINDINGS OF FACT

The Smith Lane extension walkway is approximately five to six feet wide and 500 feet long. It extends from the Theunis Dey Elementary School to Smith Lane. Smith Lane intersects with Jackson Avenue, a heavily-travelled thoroughfare of Wayne Township. The walkway is, for the most part, bordered on one side by the rear yards of private homes and by the ballfield of the Theunis Dey School on the other.

The walkway has been officially designated by Wayne Township as one of the 34 school paths which are used by pupils throughout Wayne Township to walk to and from school. It is identified as school path number 22 on the Township's list of school paths. All of the school paths, which are maintained by the Township, are approximately the same widths as the walkway and used daily by the children of the school district. The extension walkway is paved and maintained by the Township.

The Smith Lane extension walkway appears on the official map of Wayne Township. It is marked by dotted lines which, according to the map legend, designates it a private road. The actual ownership of the land on which the walkway is situated cannot be determined from the evidence. The Board denies that it is the property of the school district. The Township does not claim ownership; the walkway is not a dedicated right-of-way. The deeds to the privately-owned property abutting the walkway either specifically convey the land subject to the rights of the public over the 12-foot easement upon which the walkway lies or exclude the walkway site from the land conveyed. Whatever the actual ownership of the strip of land, I FIND that it is subject to permanent unrestricted use by the public.

Respondents claim that Smith Lane itself is a private road since there is a sign posted at its intersection with Jackson Avenue so stating. According to Gary Peatick, the transportation supervisor for the school district, the sign does not prevent public entry to the road; the sign was placed there to discourage its use by motorists to avoid the traffic on Jackson Avenue. Smith Lane is designated as a public road on the official map of Wayne Township. It is paved by the Township and has traffic lines painted by the Township Public Works crew. At the junction between Smith Lane and the Smith Lane extension, there is a metal barrier designed to prevent three-wheeled vehicles from traversing the extension walkway.

The walkway was described by Peatick as a paved asphalt pathway similar to a sidewalk. It has a slight grade and at one point traverses a wooded area. The Township keeps the walkway in repair and removes snow and ice from its surface. At night, the Board of Education provides security by means of security lamps on the Theunis Dey Elementary School which illuminate the walkway from dusk to dawn. Respondents allege that these lamps do not provide sufficient light for safety after dark. However, the major use of the walkway by students is during the daylight; they play there after school hours.

Peatick testified that he has lived in Wayne Township for more than 20 years approximately a mile to a mile and a half from where the Smith Lane extension walkway is located. He used the walkway himself as a young child both on foot and on his bicycle. He testified from his personal experience and his observations as the transportation supervisor that the walkway is as safe and well-maintained as any other public sidewalk in Wayne Township.

Eric Ernst is the assistant transportation supervisor of the district. Prior to holding his present position, he was a maintenance employee assigned to the Theunis Dey Elementary School. In both positions, he has had the opportunity to observe the walkway and its use by children going back and forth to school and for recreational purposes. Ernst testified that children using the walkway can be seen for the majority of the time they are on the walkway. It is his opinion that the cries of a child in distress on the walkway could be heard by the nearest school crossing guard on Jackson Avenue.

Respondents oppose the use of this walkway on the grounds that it is not a public walkway and, therefore, cannot be used to determine the shortest route. In addition, respondents' only witness, Marilyn Mysak, the wife of respondents' counsel, testified that the walkway is not safe for the use of middle-school-aged children.

In order to substantiate the lack of safety, Mrs. Mysak testified to the existence of debris or garbage on the walk. However, she also testified that during the times that she inspected the walkway, the debris differed so that it appears that someone had cleaned and maintained the walkway in the interim between her visits.

As further evidence that this route is unsafe, she testified to the steep grade of the path and the existence of gullies or crevices on the sides of the path. Neither Ernst nor Peatick are aware of such hazards and the photographs taken of the path which were placed into evidence do not indicate the presence of any dangerous conditions. (A videotape of the walkway, filmed and narrated by respondents' counsel, was excluded from evidence because its existence was not disclosed to the undersigned until late in the afternoon of the day of hearing and it would have been impossible to arrange for its viewing at that time.) The existence of a slope does not make the path unsuitable for use; a sloping sidewalk on a main thoroughfare may be used as an appropriate route over which to measure remoteness.

In addition, Mrs. Mysak expressed her concern that parts of the pathway were hidden from public view. The danger allegedly involved in this brief concealment of children using the walkway is largely eliminated by the fact that it is in regular use by the children during and after school hours. Her concern that a child in distress on the walkway could not be heard is inconsistent with her testimony that she regularly hears the shouts of children at play on the walkway from the backyard of her home, which is situated at approximately the same distance from the walkway as is the school crossing guard on Jackson Avenue.

She was also troubled because older children use the secluded areas of the walkway at night to "hang out" and drink beer, but this behavior occurs well after school hours and presents no particular threat to students using the walkway during the day.

Finally, respondents object to the fact that the walkway is not regularly patrolled by school guards. However, no stretch of public road is regularly patrolled except to protect children from the hazards of motor vehicles, and there are no motor vehicles on the walkway. Even though bicycles use the walkway, there is no evidence to show that the possibility of being struck by a bicycle is more of a threat on the walkway than at any other place in the Township.

The forum attaches little weight to the certification of Thomas Huff, assistant superintendent of the district in winter-spring 1989, at the time it was redistricted. He stated in this certification that the walkway was not historically used to determine remoteness and, in his opinion, it should not be used at this time. Huff condemns the proposed use of the walkway to measure remoteness as a change of policy on the part of the Board. There is no reason that a board may not change its policy to accommodate the needs of the school district it administers. The policy change here, if any, is not unreasonable since it appears to be based upon a considered reassessment of the available routes.

I FIND that the Smith Lane extension walkway is a public walkway. It is used freely by the public except that it is closed to vehicular traffic. There is evidence of its status as a public easement in the deeds of the private landowners whose property abuts the walkway and it is maintained by the Township of Wayne as if it were a public walkway; respondents' concerns as to the existence of debris on the walkway, the lighting of the walkway, or the maintenance of the walkway should be addressed to the Township of Wayne, which has assumed the responsibility for its condition.

Based upon all of the evidence, I FIND that the use of the Smith Lane extension walkway presents no greater risk to children walking back and forth to school than does any other sidewalk in the Township. There is nothing on the record, such as police or accident reports, to show that a hazard exists. I FIND that Smith Lane is a public street no matter what the sign at its entrance may say, and it is so designated on the official map of Wayne Township.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

The Board cites Mangieri v. Bd. of Ed. of the Boro. of Cresskill, Bergen Co., OAL DKT. EDU 8927-89 (Nov. 30, 1990), aff'd Comm'r. of Ed. (Jan. 11, 1991), in support of its position. I CONCLUDE that the Smith Lane extension walkway is, if anything, even more open to public use than the easement over the Conrail railroad tracks which was determined to constitute a public walkway in Mangieri. "In sum, there is nothing about the disputed crossing that would preclude its acceptance as a lawful means of providing convenience of access to the school building." Mangieri, Comm'r.'s decision at 15.

The Commissioner noted in Mangieri that even if the actual ownership of a portion of the property over which the walkway passed were private, it would not, in itself, "render the thoroughfare any less public under the circumstances of this case." Mangieri, Comm'r.'s decision at 15. The walkway which is the subject of the present matter is either a public easement granted by deed over private land or on land belonging to the school district or the Township of Wayne. It is even less a matter of private property than was the public walkway in Mangieri.

I CONCLUDE that the rationale of the Bd. of Ed. of Boro. of Fair Lawn v. Bailey, 1984 S.L.D. ___ , Comm'r. of Ed. (June 21, 1984), aff'd State Bd. (Dec. 5, 1984), relied upon by respondents does not apply here. There is no additional risk to which the children are exposed by using the Smith Lane extension walkway than they would meet on any public roadway or walkway in the Township.

For all of the above reasons, I CONCLUDE that Smith Lane is a public roadway and the Smith Lane extension walkway is a public walkway within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3(b). Consequently, I CONCLUDE that they may be used by the Wayne School Board to measure remoteness.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that Smith Lane and the Smith Lane extension walkway may both be used by the Wayne School Board to measure remoteness from the schoolhouse in accord with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WAYNE, PASSIAC COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
ARLENE KRAFT ET AL.,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondents filed timely exceptions pursuant to the applicable provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Board filed timely reply exceptions.

Respondents except to the ALJ's review of the evidence, findings of fact and conclusions of law in this matter, averring the decision to allow a denominated private road on the Wayne Township Official Map to be used for purposes of measuring remoteness in connection with pupil transportation is in violation of N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3(b). Respondents rely on R-7, a letter from the Superintendent of Schools Robert Winter dated November 29, 1988 for support of their contention that in said letter the district acknowledges that middle school children on their way to school have no business in a local elementary school driveway not their own. They claim that what the superintendent perceived as a "short cut in order to avoid providing these students with the needed transportation" (Exceptions, at p. 2, quoting R-7 in evidence), the "[ALJ] has found to be a pathway 'subject to permanent unrestricted use by the public'." Respondents aver that R-7 negates the basis of the Board's contention in this case that reimbursement of the school district by the State for this transportation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:58-7 will be adversely affected if the Board excludes the walkway from its measurement of remoteness. They claim a decision to exclude the walkway would have no adverse consequences because, as long ago as 1988, the district had confirmed that transportation would be subsidized based upon discussions with the County Superintendent.

Respondents also except to the ALJ's determination that Smith Lane is a public street so designated on the Official Map of Wayne Township. Respondents contend it is not a public road at the point where it intersects with the pathway in question, and they rely on the Map of Wayne Township, P-1 in evidence, in support of this contention as well as the Board's Stipulation of Fact that Smith Lane at this location was a private road.

Moreover, respondents except to the ALJ's conclusion that nothing in the record supports that a hazard exists with respect to the safety of the path. Respondents acknowledge that police reports were not introduced into the record, but they claim they did present the sworn certification of Assistant Superintendent of Schools Thomas Huff who stated that the path is unsafe, and that its proposed use would put children "in harm's way." (Exceptions, at p. 3, (R-5) Respondents find "it difficult to understand how a police report could be more compelling or satisfactory as a proof than the account of a school district administrator of sterling reputation." (Exceptions, at p. 4)

Respondents would have the Commissioner consider the testimony of Mrs. Mysak who testified that the path is unsafe, and they further rely on the case captioned Board of Education of the Borough of Fair Lawn v. Bailey and Orlando, 1984 S.L.D. 1156, aff'd State Board 1165 as being squarely on point on the issue of remoteness and safety. Respondents submit Fair Lawn stands for the proposition that children should not be made to walk in secluded areas which expose them to an increased risk to their safety and persons, and for the Commissioner to interpret the remoteness regulation otherwise would contradict the purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1, which is to promote the safety and welfare of children.

Finally, respondents would distinguish the ALJ's reliance on Mangieri v. Board of Education of the Borough of Cresskill, Bergen County, decided by the Commissioner January 11, 1991, because in Mangieri, the particular walkway in question, over railroad tracks, was the subject of a specific easement from the Railroad Company to the school district. Further, they claim, the walkway in Mangieri was patrolled by a crossing guard who supervised the children in negotiating the crossing, which they claim is not the case in this matter.

In sum, respondents claim the Board should not be free to interpret laws, rules and regulations to suit its financial ends. They claim private roads are not public walkways, and it is a corruption of language to decree that they are.

The Board's reply exceptions contend the Superintendent's letter dated November 29, 1988 does not constitute an admission on the part of the Board, which respondents seem to suggest it does, stressing that the letter was not even written by a Board member.

The Board also notes the letter is three years old, with the composition of the Board markedly different now from what it was then, and thus the statements made in the letter are not attributable to the present Board. In particular, the Board contends it cannot be said that it is trying to avoid its responsibility when the very purpose of the instant declaratory judgment action is to determine exactly what its responsibilities are.

In response to respondents' contention that children have no business being on an elementary school driveway not their own, the Board submits respondents are attempting to reargue their case because such issue was not raised below. Nevertheless, the Board asserts it is proper to include a school driveway as part of a measured route to determine eligibility for busing, and relies upon Nelson v. Board of Education of the Borough of Glen Ridge, decided by the Commissioner April 4, 1990, aff'd State Board August 1, 1990, aff'd 246 N.J. Super. 467 (App. Div. 1991) in support of this contention. The Board suggests that case held that the use of the word "public" in N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3 was not intended to exclude school driveways, and that, therefore, driveways can be included in a measurement to determine eligibility for busing.

Thereafter, the Board reiterates the arguments presented at hearing and in its post-hearing submission supporting the ALJ's conclusions in response to respondents' contentions that Smith Lane is a public roadway. It cites Mangieri as supporting its position and that of the ALJ in this regard.

As to respondents' exceptions regarding the safety of the walkway, the Board concurs with the ALJ's attaching little weight to the Huff certification, first because the certification stands in contrast to the testimony of the two Board witnesses, who were cross-examined, and whom the ALJ was able to evaluate in terms of credibility. As to respondents' witness regarding safety, Mrs. Mysak, the Board notes that on cross-examination, she testified that debris was regularly removed, evidence that the pathway is regularly maintained by the Township. The Board concurs with the ALJ that Mrs. Mysak's concern with older children hanging out near the walkway is offset by the conclusion that it is more than likely that such behavior, if it exists, occurs well after school hours.

In response to respondents' reliance on Fair Lawn, supra, the Board contends that case is distinguishable from this matter because in Fair Lawn, there was a problem with snow and ice removal. Further, in Fair Lawn the walkways were not considered by the Park Commission to be public walkways, and third, the park was close in proximity to an urban area, creating a danger of molestation and other dangers. The Board contends this matter is more nearly like that in Mangieri, supra, wherein the walkway connected a residential cul-de-sac to school grounds. In that case the maintenance and safe operation of the pathway were the responsibility of the borough and school district, where there was no urban area nearby. Further, in Mangieri, the pathway was closed to vehicular traffic, the Board contends. In the instant matter, the Board avers the Smith Lane extension walkway traverses through a residential area, is maintained by Wayne Township and has been designated by the Township as an official school path. Its maintenance, the Board adds, includes removal of snow and ice. It is not near an urban area, and is closed to vehicular traffic.

The Board concludes that the ALJ's decision that the Smith Lane extension walkway is a public walkway and that Smith Lane is a public roadway is supported by the facts and case law. Thus, the Board contends the walkway and roadway can be used pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:21-1.3(b) to measure eligibility for busing under N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 and those students within those distances on a measured route which include the Smith Lane extension walkway as well as Smith Lane are not entitled to be bused to school.

Upon a careful and independent review of this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Office of Administrative Law as expressed in the initial decision filed on November 18, 1991. In so finding, the Commissioner notes that those contentions raised in the exceptions filed by respondents merely reiterate those arguments argued at hearing and in their post-hearing submissions.

The Commissioner's perusal of the map of the Township of Wayne comports with the ALJ's that Smith Lane extension walkway is designated by the Township as a private road, while Smith Lane is designated as a public road. Moreover, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that notwithstanding the fact that a sign at the intersection of Smith Lane and Jackson Avenue states that Smith Lane is a private road, it is a public thoroughfare, paved by the Township with traffic lines painted on it by the Township Public Work crews. Further, the Commissioner finds, as did the ALJ that where such public road becomes Smith Lane extension, vehicular traffic is blocked by a metal barrier, thus creating a public walkway, freely used by the public except that it is closed to vehicular traffic other than bicycles. The Commissioner so finds, adopting the credibility determinations of the witnesses in this case, in the absence of transcripts having been provided to the record. See In re Morrison, 216 N.J. Super. 143 (App. Div. 1987).

The Commissioner agrees with the ALJ also, that the certification of Thomas Huff is entitled to little weight. First, such memorandum does not represent an action by the Board, either when the memo was scribed in 1989, or now. Moreover, even if such memo did constitute a Board policy in the past, by its filing the instant Petition for Declaratory Judgment seeking direction from the Commissioner as to its obligation regarding transportation, the Board demonstrates responsible action in exercising its authority to consider changing its past practice or policy. Hence, the Commissioner determines that such certification adds little to respondents' position in this matter.

Rather, the Commissioner is swayed by that testimony elicited at hearing from Board witnesses Peatick and Ernst as to the safety and maintenance of the walkway. The Commissioner adopts their assessment that the walkway in question is as safe and well-maintained as any other public sidewalk in Wayne Township, that is is maintained by the Township, which also removes snow and ice from it, and that the Board of Education provides security lamps on the elementary school which illuminate the walkway from dusk to dawn, albeit that student use is primarily during the day.

In this regard, the Commissioner agrees with the Board that this matter is distinguishable from the facts in Fair Lawn, supra, where snow and ice were not removed, no public thoroughfare linked the pathways in the park to the rest of the community and, thus, said pathways were not deemed by the Park Commissioner to be public walkways, and where the park was near an urban area, creating a potential danger of attack. The record reveals no urban area near the Smith Lane Extension.

As pointed out by the ALJ and respondents, this matter is more closely akin to Mangieri, supra. There was no urban area to contend with in Mangieri or in this case; rather, in Mangieri the walkway linked a residential cul-de-sac to school grounds, over a macadam easement traversing railroad tracks. In this case the path is surrounded by suburban residences, is maintained by the Township and school district, and has been designated as an official school path. The Township takes care of snow removal and debris collection and the area is illuminated to discourage hidden danger points. Thus, the Commissioner adopts those findings and conclusions of the ALJ below regarding safety, as augmented herein.

As to respondents' argument that children have no business being on an elementary school driveway not their own, the Commissioner finds this contention to be without merit. Nothing in statute, regulation or Board policy, for that matter, prohibits the district's children from using the Theunis Dey Elementary School driveway to get to and from the Smith Lane extension walkway. Moreover, as noted by respondents, the Commissioner has held in Nelson, supra, that it is proper to include a school driveway as part of the measurement to determine eligibility for school busing. Hence, the Commissioner finds no merit in respondents' concern regarding the driveway at the Theunis Dey Elementary School.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed by the ALJ, as augmented herein, the initial decision is affirmed, and the Petition of Appeal dismissed. Accordingly, the Board may use the Smith Lane extension walkway and Smith Lane, a public roadway, in measuring remoteness pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.3(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, December 5, 1991

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Alfred T. Sanderson, Esq.

For the Respondent-Respondent, Arlene G. Lutz, Deputy Attorney General (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General)

Kenneth Wolffbrandt (hereinafter "Petitioner"), who was employed in September 1991 as an electrical maintenance employee at Glassboro High School, was disqualified by the Department of Education from continued employment in the State's schools when a fingerprint search conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 et seq. revealed several criminal convictions. The criminal history record check revealed that Petitioner had been arrested for distribution of a controlled dangerous substance in 1974, possession of marijuana in 1977, and armed robbery in 1981. Petitioner sought to overturn his disqualification on the basis of rehabilitation.

In a letter decision dated December 5, 1991, the Commissioner of Education upheld the disqualification, finding that Petitioner had "failed to meet the standard for demonstrating rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1." Noting that Petitioner's parole had not yet expired,[1] the Commissioner concluded that "the seriousness of his offenses coupled with the remaining time to be served on probation militate against a demonstration of rehabilitation." The Commissioner added that "a determination of failure to demonstrate rehabilitation now will not foreclose [Petitioner] from reasserting his claim in the future when his probationary period has expired and he can advance similarly positive letters of recommendation from those who have known of his offenses and rehabilitation since being released from prison in 1986. Until such time, however, Mr. Wolffbrandt is disqualified from service in the schools of New Jersey."

After a thorough review of the record, we reverse the decision of the Commissioner.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 provides, in pertinent part:

> c. Notwithstanding the provisions of this subsection, no individual shall be disqualified from employment or service under this act on the basis of any conviction disclosed by a criminal record check performed pursuant to this act if the individual has affirmatively demonstrated to the Commissioner of Education clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation. In determining whether an individual has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation, the following factors shall be considered:
> 1. The nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold;
> 2. The nature and seriousness of the offense;
> 3. The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
> 4. The date of the offense;
> 5. The age of the individual when the offense was committed;

Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have had the individual under their supervision.

The Commissioner, as noted, concluded that Petitioner had failed to satisfy the standard set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 for demonstrating rehabilitation. Such determination was predicated solely on the fact that Petitioner's parole arising from the robbery convictions had not yet expired. In so doing, the Commissioner misapplied the statutory standard. The language of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(c) does not preclude a finding of rehabilitation solely on the basis of unexpired parole. All pertinent circumstances, including any evidence of rehabilitation, must be adequately addressed. Consequently, the Commissioner erred in failing to consider the factors set forth in the statute and in rejecting Petitioner's claim of rehabilitation simply by virtue of his parole status.

The record in this matter is such that, given our authority as the ultimate administrative decision-maker and fact-finder in school matters, In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Lynn Jenisch Tyler, 236 N.J. Super. 478, 485 (App. Div. 1989), certif. den., 121 N.J. 615 (1990); Dore v. Bedminister Tp. Bd. of Ed., 185 N.J. Super. 447, 452 (App. Div. 1982), we need not remand to the Commissioner for determination of the substantive issue raised. Based upon our careful review of the record, we conclude that Petitioner has demonstrated clear and convincing evidence of his rehabilitation.

The evidence before us indicates that the armed robberies committed by Petitioner took place during a relatively short period in late 1980. The sentencing judge pointed out in his Statement of Reasons for Sentence that Petitioner was the "set-up" man in each case and never had possession of a weapon. He participated in the robberies to support his drug addiction. The court related:

> I would indicate that Kenneth Wolffbrandt may have been a victim of the system. He was in excellent health; however, he did experience a neck injury and experienced a great deal of pain and discomfort as a result of that. This is a recurrent problem. He had earned four varsity letters while playing sports in Glassboro High School. The neck injury was a football related injury obtained in 1973 and he turned from an athlete into a drug addict. In 1970, he had started using marijuana in high school and in 1973 he experimented with other drugs. In 1977 he began using heroin in addition to other drugs. In 1979 he finally developed a heroin habit at approximately $100.00 to $200.00 a day and of course in 1980 he started committing these armed robberies to obtain money....There is no question in the Court's mind that the football injury and the emotional trauma associated with that injury, is what started him on his spree of crime.

Petitioner was sentenced to serve 18 years to run concurrently on these charges. He received his release on parole on December 30, 1986. The conditions of his parole included random urine monitoring, drug counseling and intensive parole supervision.

Petitioner's parole officer, who has been supervising him since his release from prison, indicated in a letter dated October 25, 1991 to the Office of Criminal History Review that:

> [Petitioner] has complied with all rules and regulations of his parole contract. He has been and remains arrest and drug free. He was to participate in an outpatient drug program, which he successfully completed.

> Due to Subject's cooperation, stable lifestyle, and positive adjustment his parole status was advanced. On 5/87 status was advanced from intense to regular, then on 2/88 from regular to quarterly. Then on 5/89 to semi-annual and on 9/90 to annual status, where he presently remains. His termination or max date is 8/15/93.
> I hope you will take into consideration that Mr. Wolffbrandt has worked very hard to attain where he is today. He views this position as a very positive aspect and accomplishment in his life.

Petitioner was 18 at the time of his arrest for distribution of a controlled dangerous substance, for which he received two years probation, 21 when he was arrested for possession of less than 25 grams of marijuana, for which he received a $200 fine, and 24 at the time he committed the armed robberies in 1980. It is evident that his drug dependency led to these robberies, and the record indicates that Petitioner has successfully overcome his addiction and remained drug-free. He completed drug treatment and counseling programs both in prison and following his release as mandated by the terms of his parole.

Petitioner has also actively pursued academic and vocational training. He participated in electrical training programs during his imprisonment, and since his release, Petitioner has successfully completed eight courses in electrical theory, electrical blueprint reading, industrial safety, motor control, residential electrical installations, and mathematics for the apprentice tradeworker as an evening student at Gloucester County Vocational-Technical School. As further evidence of Petitioner's dedication to his rehabilitation, it is noteworthy to us that he has completed one or two night courses nearly every semester over a four-year period since his release. There have been no further arrests.

The Assistant Superintendent of the Glassboro Public Schools, writing on behalf of the Glassboro Board of Education, indicated that the board would like Petitioner to remain in its employ. He praised Petitioner as "a fine man of good character who apparently has worked very hard, and successfully, to rehabilitate himself." The unit manager for Marriott Management Services in the Monroe Township School District, Petitioner's employer prior to his employment in the Glassboro district, characterized Petitioner as an "exceptional individual" who was "very skilled, honest and hardworking." He recommended Petitioner "for any position in the maintenance field," adding that "[i]f a position were available here at Monroe, I would re-hire him without question."

While the gravity of Petitioner's offenses is evident, under the circumstances, we find that further penalization of this individual, who has made great strides in rehabilitating himself, is neither a just result nor warranted under the terms of the statute. Given the uncontradicted evidence in the record, including Petitioner's successful efforts to acquire vocational training and experience and to eradicate the drug dependency which led to his crimes over a decade ago, we conclude that Petitioner has convincingly demonstrated his rehabilitation under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(c). We find no justification in the statute for negating such a conclusion until such time as Petitioner's parole, which has been progressively advanced to an annual reporting status, expires next year. We stress also that Petitioner was disqualified from employment as a school maintenance worker, a position which does not include responsibility for the care, supervision or instruction of students.

Accordingly, in view of our finding that Petitioner has demonstrated clear and convincing evidence of his rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(c), we reverse the decision of the Commissioner to disqualify Petitioner from service in the schools of New Jersey.

Petitioning teaching staff member alleged Board improperly transferred her from Work Experience Career Exploration Program (WECEP) vocational teacher-coordinator position to social studies teaching position for 1990-91 school year.

Initial decision concluded petitioner lacked appropriate certification to serve as a WECEP teacher-coordinator, and thus Board properly transferred her. ALJ noted "primary responsibility" for obtaining appropriate certification belongs to teacher. ALJ found petitioner had ample opportunity to satisfy new certification requirements that took effect when she became a WECEP teacher-coordinator. Since petitioner did not meet the requirements after the 5-year grace period, she could no longer legally continue employment as a WECEP teacher-coordinator until she obtained new certificate. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision. Commissioner emphasized petitioner did not possess appropriate certificate during period she served as teacher-coordinator and thus she failed to meet statutory requirements for tenure acquisition. (N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5) (See Spiewak.) Moreover, factual circumstances of matter did not warrant credit for period of service on equitable grounds since petitioner knew or should have known she lacked proper certification. Settlement agreement in prior matter could not confer such tenure.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal by a teaching staff member who alleges that the board of education violated her tenure and seniority rights by transferring her from a vocational teacher-coordinator position to a social studies teaching position for the 1990-91 school year. Petitioner Paula Jacobs ("Jacobs") contends that she is entitled to preference over other staff members who have less seniority. Basically, the outcome depends on whether Jacobs holds an appropriate certification as a teacher-coordinator under N.J.A.C. 6:11-20.

Procedural History

On July 31, 1990, Jacobs filed her verified petition with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"). Respondent Paterson Board of Education ("Board") filed its answer on October 9, 1990.[1] Subsequently, on October 17, 1990, the Commission forwarded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case.

By certified mail, dated February 7, 1991, petitioner's attorney served written notice of the pendency of this matter on the County Superintendent of Schools and on three individuals whose interests might be adversely affected by this litigation. Neither the County Superintendent nor the individuals moved to participate in these proceedings. Thereafter, the OAL held a hearing on August 2, 1991. Witnesses who testified and documents considered in deciding the case are listed in the appendix. Upon receipt of additional exhibits, the record closed on August 30, 1991. Time for preparation of the initial decision has been extended to November 29, 1991.

Findings of Fact

All the material facts are stipulated or uncontested. I FIND:

In 1976 Paula Jacobs started working for the Paterson school district as a teacher-coordinator of the vocational education program known as the Work Experience Career Exploration Program ("WECEP"), first as a substitute in June and then as a full-time employee in September.[2] Previously, she had served as a substitute teacher in the classroom. At the time of her hiring in 1976, Jacobs possessed an instructional certificate endorsed as a social studies teacher. Her combined duties included teaching the instructional portion of the program in the classroom as well as coordinating the work component in the field. Originally her base of operation was Elementary School No. 6, but later she moved to Eastside High School. Often she visited the various job sites where her students were assigned. An important part of her function was to act as coordinator between the school and the employer.

During the 1976-77 school year, the State Department of Education ("State") revised its licensing standards to require a new certificate for the position of "teacher-coordinator of cooperative vocational-technical education programs." In a memo distributed to the county offices in October 1977, the State advised that "[a]ll persons employed as teacher-coordinators must complete the requirements by June 30, 1980." Admittedly, Jacobs was aware of the change, having received a letter from the State informing her of the new certification. She submitted her application for the teacher-coordinator certificate in May 1977. Requirements for issuance of the teacher-coordinator certificate include successful completion of four vocational courses at the college level.[3] Between fall 1977 and spring 1979, Jacobs took all four courses at Montclair State College in Upper Montclair, New Jersey. However, there is no record that her college transcript was ever filed with the State or County offices. Certainly the transcript could not have accompanied the application filed in 1977, since Jacobs did not complete the last course until two years later in 1979. Meanwhile, in October 1977, the State issued an endorsement to Jacobs as a "teacher of production, personal or service occupations."[4] While this instructional certificate permitted Jacobs to continue in her position until June 30, 1980, it was not the equivalent of the newly created educational services certificate.

[2]WECEP is a type of work-study program for children who receive instruction for part of the day and spend the remainder of the day receiving on-the-job training. Students earn credit for experience on the job. It differs from the Cooperative Industrial Education (CIE) program primarily in terms of student age and skill level. Typically, children enrolled in WECEP are between 14 and 16 years old and have unskilled jobs at department stores, the school lunchroom or local manufacturers. Children in the CIE program are generally above age 16 and are learning skilled trades such as automotive mechanics.

[3]These courses are: (1) Principles and philosophy of vocational-technical education; (2) Problems in organizing and teaching cooperative education programs; (3) Curriculum construction in vocational-technical education and (4) Vocational guidance. See N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.20(c) [formerly N.J.A.C. 6:11-12.24(c).]

State monitors notified the district in April 1990 that Jacobs "does not hold the Teacher Coordinator Certificate for WECEP which authorizes the holder to coordinate WECEP Programs." Consequently, the Board took appropriate action to transfer her to a position as a high school social studies teacher effective September 1, 1990. At the time of the hearing in August 1991, Jacobs had still not obtained the appropriate certificate needed to be a WECEP coordinator. Correspondence from the County Office indicates that the information previously submitted was "inconclusive" on the question of Jacobs' eligibility for the coordinator certificate and that the licensing authority was still awaiting receipt of an official transcript from Montclair State College.

This is not the first time that Jacobs had reason to be aware of her lack of the necessary certificate. Previously, in September 1983, the Board had transferred her from the position as WECEP teacher-coordinator to a position as social studies teacher. Jacobs filed an appeal to the Commissioner of Education. Paragraph No. 5 of her own petition alleges that the position of WECEP teacher-coordinator "requires the holder of said position to possess an Educational Services certificate with an endorsement of Coordinator: Cooperative Industrial Education Programs."

[4] N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)(26) provides that such endorsement "authorizes the holder to teach vocational courses in the areas of his or her State-approved occupational experience in all public schools."

Obviously Jacobs knew or should have known that she did not have such certificate. Nevertheless, she made no effort to correct the situation.[5]

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Jacobs lacks the appropriate certificate to serve as a WECEP teacher-coordinator; and, therefore, that the Board properly transferred her to another position for which she is properly certified.

Teaching staff members must hold an appropriate certificate for the position to which they are assigned. No teaching staff member shall require tenure in any position without "an appropriate certificate for such position . . . in full force and effect." N.J.S.A. 18A:28-4. Employment of teaching staff members who lack an "appropriate"certificate is expressly prohibited. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-2. Teaching staff members are not entitled to salary unless they hold an "appropriate" certificate. N.J.S.A. 18A:29-1.

Ultimately, the "primary responsibility" for obtaining appropriate certification belongs to the teacher. McAneny v. Bd. of Ed. of the Chathams, 1991 S.L.D. _____ (Comm'r May 28, 1991). See also, Jennings v. Highland Park Bd. of Ed., 1989 S.L.D. _____ (St. Bd. Feb. 28, 1989). While local school officials share some responsibility for checking that teaching staff members in their district are properly certified, it is the individual's obligation to obtain any necessary certificates. Sydnor v. Englewood Bd. of Ed., 1976 S.L.D. 113, 117 (Comm'r 1976). Jennings overrules a prior line of authority typified by Saad v. Dumont Bd. of Ed., 1982 S.L.D. 440 (Comm'r 1982), which had recognized retroactive seniority credit based on mere eligibility for a certificate, regardless of whether the actual certificate was ever issued.

[5]The 1983 litigation was ended by a settlement agreement in which Jacobs was restored to her position as a WECEP coordinator. As part of the settlement, the Board acknowledged Jacobs' tenure in the position of WECEP coordinator. Significantly, the agreement makes no mention of the crucial fact that Jacobs did not possess the necessary certificate In any event, the parties cannot privately agree among themselves to authorize a person to hold a position for which she is not properly certified.

Earlier cases had dealt with situations where the delay in acquiring the necessary certificate was "not of [one's] own doing," Givens v. Newark Bd. of Ed., 1974 S.L.D. 906, 908 (Comm'r 1974) or "not attributable to any wrongdoing on anyone's part." Saad, 1982 S.L.D. at 450. Here, however, the failure to obtain the necessary certificate is not attributable to administrative delay or bureaucratic backlog, but rather to Jacobs' own failure to supply the licensing authority with missing information. Hence, the situation is analogous to Nealy v. Roselle Bd. of Ed., 1985 S.L.D. ___ (Comm'r 1985), where a science teacher had completed the necessary course work in May 1984 but "did absolutely nothing about obtaining her official transcripts from Jersey City State until she was again reminded at the end of January 1985." (Slip op. at 22). See also Fischbach v. North Brunswick Bd. of Ed., 1983 S.L.D. 1418, 1429 (Comm'r 1983), aff'd 1984 S.L.D. ___ (St. Bd. 1984), where the delay in issuance of an appropriate certificate was "not caused by the slowness of others, but rather by Fischbach's own willingness to cut corners and ignore regulations."

At the same time that Jacobs became a WECEP teacher-coordinator, new certification standards also took effect. N.J.A.C. 6:11-12.24 [now codified as N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.20]. Proposed 8 N.J.R. 319 (July 8, 1976); adopted 8 N.J.R. 459 (Oct. 7, 1976). Besides creating the new certificate for teacher-coordinator, the regulation also granted a five-year grace period for compliance with the added requirements. Thus, Jacobs had ample opportunity to satisfy the new certification requirements. After the cutoff date, she could no longer legally continue employment as a WECEP teacher-coordinator until she obtained the new certificate.

Order

It is ORDERED that the relief requested by Jacobs is denied.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

PAULA JACOBS,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF PATERSON, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed pursuant to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions are summarized below:

> 1) The clear fact that at no time prior to the events leading to the present litigation did anyone indicate to the petitioner that she lacked proper certification.
> 2) Petitioner has satisfied the education requirements for the Teacher Coordinator certificate. As she indicated, she arranged to have a copy of her transcript forwarded to the County Superintendent of Schools. She was told that this was needed to establish proof of satisfying the requirements. Petitioner did as she was told and, again prior to this matter, was never told that she must do anything more to satisfy her obligations.
> 3) The petitioner's application for certification, dated May 10, 1977, requests a certificate for "W.E.C.E.P. Coordinator." (J-19) The certificate actually issued was for "Teacher of Production Personal or Service Occupations." (J-2) There is no information suggesting that the petitioner was ever told of the difference between the certificate requested and the one actually received or what further action would be necessary other than simply completing some courses. She did as she was told and should not be deemed to have expertise in certification requirements when the people with such expertise at the State, County and local levels never conveyed any information to her.

4) In her prior litigation with the Board, a settlement was reached and approved by the Commissioner of Education. (J-10, 11, 12, 13, 14) This approved settlement includes a stipulation of the Board's acknowledgement that the petitioner is tenured as a W.E.C.E.P./C.I.E. Teacher Coordinator. This is a clear indication that the parties and the Commissioner were unaware of any certification problems or additional requirements. Consequently, the determination in the initial decision that placed the burden of any lack of knowledge on the petitioner is inappropriate.

5) The effect of the conclusions found in the initial decision is to eliminate a significant number of valuable years of service and experience from the petitioner. It is as if the service from 1980 to 1990 no longer exists. This is a harsh, inadequate result under the circumstances of this case. The proper authorities failed to convey information to her. Now, the only person required to suffer is the petitioner. This is an unwarranted result, given the complete lack of attention and communication evidenced by these authorities. The petitioner should be deemed to have acquired the Teacher Coordinator certificate when she completed the educational requirements. That is all she was told to do. (Petitioner's Exceptions, at pp. 1-2)

Upon review of the record including petitioner's exceptions, the Commissioner agrees with and adopts the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge. Notwithstanding petitioner's arguments otherwise, the circumstances in this matter do not indicate that petitioner has been a victim of administrative error relative to her 1977 application for certification as a WECEP coordinator (exhibit J-19). The record is clear that petitioner was not eligible for an educational services certificate as a teacher-coordinator in October 1977. She was, however, issued an instructional certificate for which her training entitled her. (Exhibit J-22) The title of that certificate is plain faced in its wording that it is a teacher certificate and not one for teacher-coordinator. Petitioner never sought to challenge the issuance of only the teacher certificate in 1977, notwithstanding the fact she had applied for a coordinator certificate. Moreover, it is clear that it was not until she completed the required course work at Montclair State College several years later that she became eligible for the educational services certificate for teacher-coordinator of cooperative vocational-technical education programs. (Exhibit J-8)

The settlement agreement reached by the parties and approved by the Commissioner in 1984, which had as a term acknowledging petitioner's tenure and seniority as a coordinator, cannot serve to compel a determination in the instant matter that she actually had such status. Petitioner did not possess the appropriate certificate during her period of service as a teacher-coordinator and thus has failed to meet the statutory requirements for tenure acquisition. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 See also Spiewak v. Board of Education of Rutherford, 90 N.J. 63 (1982). No settlement agreement could confer such a right; only by meeting the precise requirements of law can one achieve that status. Further, the record fails to present circumstances which would lead to a determination that the statutory conditions of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 have been satisfied on equitable grounds.

It was petitioner who bore primary responsibility to ascertain why she was not granted a teacher-coordinator certification in 1977 and to obtain proper certification for the position she held in the Paterson School District.

Accordingly, for the reasons stated in the initial decision, the Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, former pool substitute, sought 60 days' pay in lieu of 60 days' notice of termination from his position. Petitioner had assumed he would be rehired for 1990-91 school year.

ALJ found pool substitute was not a contract teacher and was therefore not entitled to 60 days' salary. Since pool substitutes cannot obtain tenure, petitioner had no reasonable expectation of reemployment until he actually received written notice of rehire. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was transmitted by the Department of Education to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on December 20, 1990, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., following the filing of a verified petition by Charles A. Schultz, formerly employed as a "pool substitute" by the respondent State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey City. Schultz maintained in his petition that he is entitled to be paid a sum equal to 60 days' pay, based upon his 1989-90 salary, by virtue of the respondent Board's failure to inform him prior to August 29, 1990, that he would not be reemployed for the 1990-91 school year.

Following the filing by respondent of an answer denying that petitioner is entitled to relief, the case was transmitted to the OAL and a telephone prehearing conference was conducted by the undersigned administrative law judge with counsel on May 22, 1991. It was agreed at that time that the following issue was to be resolved: "Was petitioner entitled to be paid 60 days' pay in lieu of 60 days' notice of termination?" See, Prehearing Order, May 29, 1991, para. 1(b).

A plenary hearing was conducted by me on October 4, 1991, and posthearing memoranda of law, and reply memoranda, were filed in accordance with an agreed schedule. The following constitutes my initial decision dismissing the verified petition.

FINDINGS OF FACT

At the outset of the hearing, counsel proffered a joint stipulation of facts, with attached exhibits (Exhibits J-1 through J-6 and Exhibits P-1, P-2), as follows:

1. Charles Schultz was employed by the Jersey City School District on January 12, 1989 for the remainder of the 1988-89 school year as a pool substitute.

2. Mr. Schultz was offered employment as a pool substitute by correspondence dated January 11, 1989 from Louis Lanzillo, first assistant superintendent/personnel of the Jersey City Board of Education.

3. Pool substitutes are assigned to one school for the school year, but may be assigned to a different school at any time when the need arises.

4. Mr. Schultz was assigned to Dickinson High School from January 12, 1989 to May 17, 1989, and at Ferris High School from May 18, 1989 to June 1989 and again from September 1989 through June 1990.

5. As a pool substitute, Mr. Schultz substituted for different teachers who were absent at his assigned school or at any other school in the District.

6. Pool substitutes are required to possess a standard New Jersey teaching certificate.

7. Mr. Schultz has a standard teaching certificate with a social studies endorsement.

8. While at Ferris High School, Mr. Schultz substituted for a variety of absent teachers in different subject matters. He also substituted for absent teachers at other high schools and at several elementary schools.

9. Pool substitutes are not covered by the collective bargaining agreement between the State-Operated School District of Jersey City and the Jersey City Education Association.

10. Pool substitute is not a recognized title in [the] New Jersey Administrative Code.

11. The Jersey City School District sometimes uses per diem substitutes in addition to pool substitutes. Per diem substitutes are paid a daily rate and report to work when called by the District.

12. Pool substitutes receive the following salary and benefits: $1,850/month salary, paid hospitalization, life insurance, dental and prescription plans, and one sick day per month for a total of 10 sick days per year which are not accruable.

13. The principal at Ferris High School recommended to the human resources department on or about March 9, 1990 that Mr. Schultz not be rehired as a pool substitute for the 1990-1991 school year.

14. By correspondence dated August 28, 1990, Mr. Robert Schaefer, executive director of human resources, notified Mr. Schultz that he would not be rehired as a pool substitute for the 1990-1991 school year.

15. Mr. Schultz was never given a written contract of employment such as the sample attached as Exhibit J-3.

16. From April 17, 1989 to May 17, 1989, for 21 school days, Mr. Schultz substituted for Mr. Appleman, a social studies teacher at Dickinson High School.

TESTIMONY

In addition to the stipulated facts set forth above, oral testimony was offered at the hearing by the petitioner on his own behalf, and by two witnesses for the respondent, Robert Y. Schaefer, its executive director of human resources since January 1990, and William F. Millevoi, vice principal at Ferris High School.

For Petitioner

According to petitioner, he was told early in 1989 that he would be rehired for the following school year (1989-90) based upon his performance. He was duly rehired and worked as a pool substitute during that school year. When a prescription drug plan card was issued to him in June 1990, which was to be effective until January 1, 1991, Schultz assumed he was going to be rehired for the 1990-91 school year. Thus, his receipt of notice from Schaefer on August 29, 1990 (Exhibit J-5) that he had not been recommended to be rehired came as a surprise to him.

With respect to an incident of alleged insubordination which took place in February 1990, and which led to the issuance to him of the memorandum of March 2, 1990 from Millevoi, and his response of March 21, 1990 (Exhibit J-6), Schultz maintained that he was not made aware that a recommendation had been made by his principal on March 9, 1990, that he not be rehired, and he reiterated that it was not until August 29, 1990, that he first learned that he would not be retained.

On cross-examination, Schultz maintained that he believed he was a "contract employee" since he had signed a pool substitute acceptance form in January 1989 (Exhibit J-1).* Also, although the Board adopted a formal resolution in August 1989 engaging petitioner as a pool substitute for the 1989-90 school year (Exhibit R-1), petitioner could not state positively whether he had ever seen that resolution. Of course, no similar resolution with respect to hiring Schultz for the following school year was ever passed.

Finally, Schultz noted that while working as a pool substitute, he attended teacher workshops and Parents' Night conferences to cover for absent homeroom teachers.

For Respondent

Respondent's two witnesses testified essentially as follows. Schaefer, the executive director of human resources since January 1990, related that prescription drug plan cards are issued automatically to each eligible employee, and they are reissued automatically every six months as long as that employee is listed on the Board's payroll. According to Schaefer, coverage stops only when the personnel office is informed that the employment has ceased.

Schaefer also explained that employment decisions with respect to rehiring pool substitutes normally are made during August of each year, and the individuals involved usually were notified of the decision shortly thereafter. As far as Schaefer was concerned, since pool substitutes can never obtain tenure, Schultz had no reasonable expectation of reemployment until he actually received a written notice of rehire.

On cross-examination, Schaefer observed that employment decisions with respect to pool substitutes were made by him, in consultation with others, and that

*It was stipulated that Schultz was never offered, and therefore never executed, the standard professional employment contract form used in Jersey City (Exhibit J-3).

10 pool substitutes employed during 1989-90, including Schultz, were not rehired for 1990-91.

The second Board witness, William F. Millevoi, vice principal of Ferris High School for the last six years, described the duties of pool substitutes to include filling in where needed to cover all disciplines (regardless of their certification) if a teacher was going to be absent. However, if, upon reporting to work, no classroom assignment was required, the pool substitute would be utilized, as he put it, "in the best way possible" -- such as security or clerical work. Millevoi was the administrator who memorialized the alleged insubordination by petitioner in the memorandum of March 2, 1990, to Schultz (Exhibit J-6).

DISCUSSION

In its posthearing brief, the respondent District raises for the first time a claim that the petition should be dismissed as untimely under the 90-day rule contained in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). Neither the original pleadings nor the prehearing order contain any reference to that defense and, therefore, it will not be addressed herein.

The 90-day rule issue aside, a dispute still exists with respect to what precise issue or issues are to be adjudicated by me. Specifically, as noted, the prehearing order identifies only one "issue to be resolved," as follows: "Was petitioner entitled to be paid 60 days' pay in lieu of 60 days' notice of termination?" Prior to the prehearing conference, I had requested counsel to submit, in writing, what they believed the issues to be.

In response, the Board articulated the issue which eventually was set forth in the prehearing order. However, petitioner's counsel submitted a statement which made reference to the fact that his client had ". . . received no notice from the Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10." In light of that statement, I raised the issue again at the hearing. Although counsel for petitioner was somewhat ambivalent regarding the reference to and reliance upon that statutory provision, I left open to him the opportunity to argue the pertinence of the statute in his posthearing brief, which has been done. Thus, although technically the prehearing order was never amended to provide for that additional issue, it will be addressed herein.

N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 et seq. provides a mechanism whereby nontenured teaching staff members continuously employed by a board since the preceding September 30 must be made aware, in writing, of their employment prospects for the upcoming school year. In particular, the statute mandates that on or before April 30, the board shall give to each such person either a written offer of a contract for employment for the next succeeding school year or a written notice that such employment will not be offered.

N.J.S.A. 18A:27-11 then provides that should a board fail to make an offer of contract for employment or provide notice that such employment will not be offered, then the board shall be deemed to have offered to that teaching staff member employment for the next succeeding school year. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-12 then requires the teaching staff member desiring to accept such employment to notify the Board of such acceptance, in writing, on or before June 1. In the event written acceptance is provided as set forth, then and in that event the employment shall be deemed to continue. In the absence of such notice of acceptance, the provisions of the article shall no longer be applicable.

Obviously, in order to determine whether this statutory scheme applies to petitioner, it is necessary to first identify his precise status, i.e., whether as a "pool substitute" he falls into the class of persons referred to in the statute as "nontenured teaching staff members." According to petitioner, he was a member of that class since he was fully certified and employed as a full-time teacher in the District. In particular, he was required to report to work every day of the school year, taught within the area of his certification, attended workshops and substituted for homeroom teachers on Parents' Nights, received the same medical benefits paid to contract teachers, and received sick leave. Moreover, petitioner was paid an annual salary and not a "per diem rate."

With respect to whether "pool substitutes" nevertheless are in a separate category and not considered to be regular teachers, both counsel have made reference to the decision of the Commissioner in Lowicki v. Board of Education of the City of Jersey City, OAL DKT. EDU 2505-81, Commissioner's Partial Decision, September 16, 1986. The undersigned administrative law judge authored the partial initial decision in the Lowicki case which was reviewed by the Commissioner in the decision cited above.

In my partial initial decision, decided August 4, 1986, I reviewed the evidence which had been set forth in the record before me in order to determine whether the pool substitutes were to be treated at "regular teachers." Following my review of the evidence and applicable case law, I recommended to the Commissioner that pool substitutes were not to be considered as regular teachers. In his partial decision of September 16, 1986, the Commissioner agreed with my recommendation and found that pool substitutes serve on a temporary basis, are not "regular" teachers, and therefore have no expectation of reemployment or tenure, criteria which were set forth by the New Jersey Supreme Court in its decision in Spiewak v. Rutherford Board of Education, 90 N.J. 63 (1982).

Petitioner in this case attempts to distinguish his situation from the Lowicki case by pointing out that in that earlier matter, the issue had to do with enrollment in the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund -- a matter which is of no concern in the present case. In addition, petitioner points out that the Board's method of engagement of pool substitutes which was reviewed in the 1986 decision differs in material respects from the procedure used more recently and under which Schultz was hired and served. Thus, rather than be paid a monthly stipend, Schultz was paid an annual salary. In addition, petitioner notes that there was no reference in Lowicki to whether the pool substitutes in that case received the medical and health benefits provided to Schultz.

Respondent, for its part, relies heavily on the Lowicki decision and argues that the Commissioner's express finding in that case bars a contrary conclusion herein.

Based upon my review and consideration of the evidence in this case, and in light of my initial decision and the affirmance by the Commissioner in Lowicki, I agree with respondent that pool substitutes are not regular teachers and therefore are not entitled to the benefits of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 et seq. As respondent pertinently observes, pool substitutes are utilized in a teaching context to fill in for teachers who are absent. They do not have employment contracts and are not necessarily certified to teach in the various areas that they actually do teach.

Plainly, as I observed in 1986, as the Commissioner confirmed in that same year, and as respondent points out in its posthearing brief, pool substitutes simply have no expectation of reemployment. Thus, I agree with the Board that Schultz, as a pool substitute, does not fall within the class of persons entitled to invoke the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10, and the Board's "failure" to provide him with notice of nonreemployment by April 30, 1990, is irrelevant.*

Finally, as to this issue, petitioner asks why, if N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 et seq. does not apply, respondent gave Schultz and other pool substitutes any notice at all that they would not be rehired. The short answer to that inquiry, of course, is that the provision of notice was a matter of accommodation and the carrying out by the Board of, at the very least, a courtesy to persons who had worked for it during the previous school year.

The remaining issue to be determined, then, is whether, even absent an entitlement to relief under N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 et seq., petitioner was nevertheless entitled to 60 days' pay in lieu of 60 days' notice of nonrenewal. Petitioner's position in this respect seems to be that simply because he was employed as a pool substitute, the Board owed him that, at least. In support of that proposition, petitioner argued that he was a "contract employee" since the Board led him to believe that he would be rehired by reissuing a prescription card to him in June 1990. Since a similar card had been issued in June 1989, and petitioner was hired for the following school year, he was, according to his argument, entitled to rely upon the most recent prescription drug card issuance for the same benefit.

Respondent, of course, vehemently resists that argument and points out that Schultz clearly had no "contract" and, as the Commissioner noted in the Lowicki decision, no expectation of reemployment. Indeed, since petitioner received a notice of reemployment in August 1989, he knew, or should have known, that his employment for 1990-91 required the same action. Under the circumstances, then, the Board argues that petitioner, having no contract or reasonable expectation of reemployment, has no basis in law or in equity to expect to be paid 60 days' pay in lieu of any 60 days' notice.

*Indeed, petitioner never explained why, if the statutory scheme did apply to him, his failure to provide a written offer of acceptance as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:27-12 would not be fatal to his case.

I agree with the position taken by the Board. Schultz's engagement was by Board resolution and at no time was he ever a "contract" teacher. Issuance of the prescription drug card was a ministerial act essentially triggered by his mere presence on the Board payroll during June 1990. There is no basis that I can find either in statute or in Board practice or policy that would provide Schultz with any legitimate claim to be paid 60 days' pay prorated upon his $18,500 annual salary.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Accordingly, in light of the undisputed facts, and for the reasons set forth herein, I CONCLUDE that petitioner, Charles A. Schultz, as a "pool substitute" was not entitled to be paid 60 days' salary in lieu of 60 days' notice of termination. Accordingly, I ORDER that his petition of appeal be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS,
Respondent.

Lewis B. Freimark, Esq., pro se

Arlene G. Lutz, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent
(Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: December 5, 1991 Decided: December 6, 1991

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

There is pending before me in this matter a motion by the respondent to dismiss the petition of appeal for failure to comply with my order of August 19, 1991, requiring petitioner to provide answers to complete interrogatories by September 13, 1991, and to pay $605.20 in costs and expenses incurred by counsel in having to prepare and file two motions seeking to compel discovery.

This case originally was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the State Board of Examiners on January 16, 1991, as the result of an appeal by Lewis B. Freimark from the determination of the State Board to deny his application for certification as a principal. A telephone prehearing conference was conducted by the undersigned administrative law judge on March 20, 1991, and a prehearing order was issued on March 22, 1991. That order provided in paragraph eight that petitioner would have until April 4, 1991, within which to serve answers to outstanding interrogatories previously served upon him by respondent.

In mid-May 1991, respondent moved to dismiss the petition for petitioner's failure to provide answers by the date set forth in the prehearing order. In support of that application, counsel observed that the deadline for service had long past.

No response was made by petitioner to the moving papers. Accordingly, on June 6, 1991, I sent a letter to petitioner and the deputy attorney general setting forth that rather than dismiss the petition under N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4, I had determined to provide petitioner with additional time to make the requested discovery. At my request, an order embodying that determination was submitted by Ms. Lutz, which I signed on June 21, 1991.

Thereafter, in late June 1991, the deputy attorney general renewed her motion to dismiss the petition, setting forth that the complete answers to interrogatories had still not been served. An affidavit in support of that motion was also submitted.

In a letter determination dated July 18, 1991, I advised Mr. Freimark and the deputy attorney general that under all of the circumstances, although dismissal of the petition arguably was justified, I was reluctant to order dismissal in light of the fact that Mr. Freimark related that his lack of diligence stemmed in part from a personal family illness situation. Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.14, I directed that petitioner pay to the State of New Jersey the reasonable costs and expenses incurred by the deputy attorney general in connection with having to make the two motions. I also directed that the outstanding discovery had to be provided. Subsequently, on August 19, 1991, I entered a formal order embodying my determination. Although I denied the motion to dismiss, I directed that complete answers to interrogatories and missing attachments had to be provided to counsel for respondent no later than September 13, 1991. I also ordered petitioner to pay to the State of New Jersey the sum of $605.20, the amount of fees and expenses set forth in Ms. Lutz's affidavit of July 29, 1991. I further provided that petitioner could apply to the director of the Office of Administrative Law for interlocutory relief from the sanctions if he so desired. See, N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10(k). No such motion was made.

In light of the continuing failure by petitioner to comply with the terms of my order, the instant motion to dismiss was made.

In light of the foregoing recitation of the history of this case, and in view of petitioner's continuing failure and refusal to provide discovery despite having been given more than ample opportunity to do so, I am compelled to conclude that dismissal of his petition is distinctly appropriate. Accordingly, for the reasons set forth herein, and in light of petitioner's continuing failure and refusal to provide necessary discovery, it is ORDERED pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(c) that respondent's motion to dismiss the petition, with prejudice, should be GRANTED for failure by petitioner to: (a) provide complete and timely answers to interrogatories; and (b) pay respondent's costs and expenses.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The petition was filed with the Commissioner of Education on July 9, 1990. Respondent's answer was filed on July 26, 1990. CRINCOLI V. STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF JERSEY CITY

STIPULATED TERMS OF SETTLEMENT

1. On April 4, 1990, the position of Medical Director at the State-operated school district of Jersey City was abolished. That decision was based solely on administrative considerations having to due with de-centralization of the school district. Dr. Crincoli is a competent and dedicated physician who is still employed in the district as a school physician.

2. In March of 1990 an evaluation of Dr. Crincoli, as well as all other administrative and supervisory employees of the central office, was undertaken as required by the statutes governing the State takeover of a local school district. Dr. Crincoli was given the right to respond to that evaluation and she took exceptions to several statements made therein. Because a policy decision had been made abolishing the Medical Director's position, the evaluation was not reconsidered by the district in light of Dr. Crincoli's exceptions.

3. The parties have agreed that the evaluation of Dr. Crincoli and her response will be sealed and transferred to the Legal Department of the district for custody and will not be opened without the approval of the Commissioner of Education.

4. The State District Superintendent will write the following letter and place it in Dr. Crincoli's file with a copy to counsel:

"To Whom It May Concern:

On April 4, 1990 the position of Medical Director was abolished in the Jersey City Public Schools. The decision to take this action was in no way based on the performance of the current director Dr. Eugenia Crincoli. It was solely an administrative decision which in no way reflected on the doctor's abilities.

Dr. Crincoli remained in the district's employ where she still serves as a school physician. She is and has always shown herself to be a competent and dedicated physician."

5. Should the position of Medical Director or any other administrative or professional position directly involving medical services be established by the State-operated school district of Jersey City, Dr. Crincoli will be given direct notice thereof, will be considered eligible to apply and if she chooses to apply, will be given due consideration. In the event that Mr. Robert Y. Schaefer is not actively serving as Director of Human Resources for the State-operated school district, Dr. Crincoli is obligated to notify Mr. Schaefer's successor as to the terms of this stipulation so that the school district may be able to provide the notice called for in this section.

6. Dr. Crincoli shall be paid for five (5) unused professional/vacation days which were accrued prior to the abolishment of the position of Medical Director.

CERTIFICATION

I, Eugenia Crincoli, being the Petitioner in this matter, hereby certify that I have reviewed this Stipulation of Settlement, fully understand its meaning and terms, and I enter into this agreement voluntarily.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY,	:	DECISION

Upon review, the Commissioner is able to accept all of the proposed terms of the instant settlement with the exception of Stipulated Term of Settlement No. 3, which reads in pertinent part that "the evaluation of Dr. Crincoli and her response will be sealed and transferred to the Legal Department of the district for custody and will not be opened without the approval of the Commissioner of Education."

Notwithstanding that petitioner disagrees with certain portions of her evaluation document, as set forth in her response thereto, nothing in the within matter warrants the extraordinary measure of asking the Commissioner to take control of access to that document as a condition of settlement; nor will he agree to do so. Moreover, the evaluation in question was specifically required to be undertaken as a matter of law; it therefore cannot be "sealed" and must remain a part of petitioner's file, together with her objections and any further clarifications as to the evaluation's content and history that the parties may accept as part of the instant settlement.

Accordingly, this matter is remanded to the Office of Administrative Law for revision of the settlement terms consistent with the parameters set forth above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: December 3, 1991 Decided: December 4, 1991

BEFORE JAMES A. OSPENSON, ALJ:

The Board of Education of the City of Newark, Essex County, filed on September 4, 1990 and certified on September 25, 1990 tenure charges and specifications of unbecoming conduct, incapacity and other just cause with the Commissioner of the Department of Education against Roger Watson, a tenured teaching staff member. The charges were certified on September 25, 1990, respondent was suspended at that time without pay. On October 24, 1990, respondent filed an answer in general denial with affirmative defenses. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on November 14, 1990 for hearing and determination as a contested case in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. No procedural irregularities under N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1 et seq. were claimed by respondent.

On February 15, 1991, a prehearing conference was scheduled in the Office of Administrative Law and an order entered under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9409-90.

Roger Watson filed a petition in the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the Department of Education on April 11, 1991 challenging action of the Board in failing to rescind a prior retirement notice on December 14, 1990 in accordance with his request of December 21, 1990. The Commissioner transmitted that matter to the Office of Administrative Law on April 11, 1991, where it was assigned OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3721-91.

Before hearing dates assigned, the parties advised the administrative law judge both matters should be consolidated for disposition and both matters together should be dismissed in accordance with a settlement agreement reached between them. On December 3, 1991, the parties filed a consent order for consolidation of the matters and a stipulation of settlement and withdrawal of both cases in accordance with settlement. The Board approved the agreement by its resolution on roll call vote on November 26, 1991.

CONCLUSION

Based on the above, I CONCLUDE as follows:

1. The within matters should be and are hereby consolidated for disposition;

2. The parties have voluntarily agreed to consolidation and settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures on the agreement;

3. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy, is in the interest of parties and public and comports with Cardonick v. Bd. of Ed. Bor. of Brooklawn, 1983 S.L.D. -- (slip op. at 2); and

4. Watson's petition under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3721-91 and the Board's filing and certification of tenure charges under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9409-90 are hereby DISMISSED, being in accordance with settlement pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, subject to effectuation of terms of agreement.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. Paragraph 6, as revised, shall provide as follows:

> On March 12, 1991, Watson filed a Verified Petition with the Commissioner of Education contesting certain action taken by the Board. It is Watson's position that his retirement must be set aside based upon the claim, among others, that he submitted his December 14, 1990 letter upon the advice of his physicians and without the advice of counsel.

The following language shall apply in place of paragraphs 11 and 12 of the consent order:

> The Board agrees to rescind Watson's suspension without pay, which was effective September 25, 1990, and to grant Watson an unpaid medical leave of absence for the period between September 25, 1990 and May 7, 1991 although it is the position of the Board that Watson's health problems are not work related nor compensable.

Paragraph 13 is modified to provide as follows:

> The Board agrees to grant Watson a terminal sabbatical leave beginning May 8, 1991 and ending November 30, 1991 pursuant to the agreement between the Board and CASA, and Board exempts Watson from submitting an application to request the leave.

Paragraph 14, as revised, shall provide as follows:

> Watson voluntarily resigns from his position as principal at the end of that leave and no later than November 30, 1991 for the purpose of retirement, effective December 1, 1991.

Paragraph 16 is hereby deleted.

Paragraph 19, as revised, shall provide as follows:

> The Board has permitted Mr. Watson to apply for the continuation of health coverage retroactive to July 1, 1991 as per the collective bargaining agreement and applicable federal and state laws (COBRA). However, this agreement is not contingent upon or subject to any particular action by any health care provider with respect to Mr. Watson's health coverage.

Paragraph 20, as revised, shall provide as follows:

> Watson, his heirs and assigns, release the Board, its agents, and its employees from any and all claims, present or future including without limitation, any claim relating to Watson's employment by the Board or to the tenure charges filed against him except as provided for in paragraph 22 of this agreement.

Paragraph 21, as revised, shall provide as follows:

> The Board releases Watson, his heirs and assigns from any and all claims, present or future including without limitation, any claim relating to Watson's employment by the board or to the tenure charges filed against him.

Paragraph 27, as revised, shall provide as follows:

> The Board will cooperate with Watson in submitting his retirement application. However, this agreement is not contingent upon or subject to any particular action by the New Jersey Teacher's Pension & Annuity Fund with respect to Watson's retirement.

BOARD OF EDUCATION RESOLUTION

INTRODUCED BY: Eugene C. Campbell, Executive Superintendent

RESOLUTION: Proposed Settlement: Tenure Hearing of Roger Watson and Roger Watson vs. Newark Board of Education II

WHEREAS, the Board of Education of the City of Newark certified tenure charges, including incapacity, against Roger Watson on September 25, 1990; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Watson thereafter petitioned the Commissioner of Education to have his retirement set-aside and to be reinstated with backpay; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Watson offered to settle both cases and resign if the Board granted him a terminal sabbatical leave for a half year at full pay and paid him for his unused sick days pursuant to the collective bargaining agreement with the City Association of Supervisors and Administrators; and

WHEREAS, settling the cases on these terms would require the Board to pay Mr. Watson at least $62,000; and

WHEREAS, the Board approved a settlement on these terms but limited additional salary payments so as not to exceed $41,000; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Watson has requested the Board to change the settlement terms as follows:

a) Rescind his suspension, which was effective September 25, 1990,
b) Grant him an unpaid leave of absence for illness from that date to May 7, 1991,
c) Grant him a terminal sabbatical leave from May 8, 1991 to November 30, 1991, when he shall be resigned from his employment; and

WHEREAS, this settlement remains cost-effective and is in the district's best interest;

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED as follows:

1. General Counsel is hereby authorized to enter into an appropriate agreement with Mr. Watson whereby Mr. Watson agrees to withdraw his petition challenging his retirement;

2. The Board hereby rescinds Mr. Watson's suspension and grants him an unpaid medical leave of absence effective September 25, 1990 to May 7, 1991 (although the Board denies that Mr. Watson's illness is work-related or a compensable injury);

3. The Board hereby grants Mr. Watson a terminal sabbatical leave beginning May 8, 1991 and ending November 30, 1991 with salary provided, however, that the total salary payments not exceed $40,000;

4. The Board hereby accepts Mr. Watson's resignation effective November 30, 1991; and

5. General Counsel is hereby authorized to do all things necessary to implement the settlement agreement and to obtain the Commissioner of Education's approval thereof.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE PINELANDS REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT,	:

TOWNSHIPS OF LITTLE EGG HARBOR, EAGLESWOOD, OCEAN COUNTY, AND BASS RIVER, BURLINGTON COUNTY, AND THE BOROUGH OF TUCKERTON, OCEAN COUNTY,	:	DECISION

Gelzer, Kelaher, Shea, Novy & Carr for Petitioner (Paul J. Carr, Esq.)

Shackleton, Hazeltine & Bishop for Respondent Township of Bass River (Eric J. Miller, Esq.)

Gilmore & Monahan for Respondent Township of Eagleswood and the Borough of Tuckerton (Terry F. Brady, Esq.)

Hiering, Hoffman & Gannon, for Respondent Township of Little Egg Harbor (William T. Hiering, Esq.)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal filed by the Board of Education of the Pinelands Regional Board of Education (Board), which is comprised of four constituents, Bass River, Eagleswood, Little Egg Harbor and Tuckerton. Said petition appealed a $292,000 reduction in its tax levy for current expense for school year 1991-92, restoration of which it contends is necessary for the district to provide a thorough and efficient system of education for its students.

The aforestated reductions were imposed by the governing bodies of the constituent districts (respondents) after consultation with the Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.2(b)2 following the voters' rejection of the Board's proposed budget for current expense on April 30, 1991. The proposed 1991-92 budget and reductions are set forth below:

Proposed Tax Levy Adopted By Board of Education	Amount of Tax Levy Certified By Governing Bodies
Current Expense $6,310,522	$6,018,522
Amount of Reduction in the Budget By Governing Bodies	Amount in Dispute Before Commissioner
Current Expense $ 292,000	$292,000

On June 28, 1991 Little Egg Harbor filed an Answer to the Petition of Appeal, to which the Townships of Bass River and Eagleswood sought and were granted permission to join. Said Answer admitted the amounts as stated above but denied the Board's allegation that such $292,000 reduction in the current expense budget would prevent the Board from fulfilling its constitutional obligations to provide a thorough and efficient education program. Respondents also denied that said reductions of the proposed tax levy and budget were arbitrary and capricious or were based on erroneous findings of fact.

Respondents' reduction is to be accomplished by adjustments to four line items of the budget as proposed by the Board. Line Item 53, Appropriation Balances, was reduced from $533,901.21 to $293,901.21, which amounts to a $240,000 reduction. Account No. 2401, Salaries of School Administrators, was reduced from $1,131,921 to $931,921, which resulted in a $200,000 reduction. Account No. 2503, Transportation, was altered by an addition of $225,000, said amount having been appropriated from Line Item 53. Finally, Account No. 2702, Group Insurance, was reduced from $1,345,302 to $1,248,302, which resulted in a reduction of $97,000.

Both the Board and Respondent Little Egg Harbor filed position statements. The other three respondent districts were granted permission to join in the arguments presented by Little Egg Harbor.

Upon receipt of such documents, the Acting Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes noted two major discrepancies in the resolution and chart accompanying the resolution, Schedule C. The Acting Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes informed the parties by telephonic conference call on November 13, 1991 that respondents would be provided until November 18, 1991 to clarify what appeared to be a arithmetic error in the above-stated documents. Schedule C page 5 of said petition indicates that the total amount of monies in dispute before the Commissioner is $292,000. The "analysis of reduction of tax levy", attached to Resolution $91-091 of the petition, Exhibit C, indicates that $297,000 in reductions are at issue. Respondents were provided an opportunity to clarify the reductions amounts, by line item or account, but would not be permitted to alter the resolution striking the tax levy. The Board was provided two working days from its receipt of respondents' clarification to respond to the Bureau. Such understanding was reduced to writing by the Acting Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes.

On December 13, 1991 respondents filed their response to such directive. Little Egg Harbor, on behalf of the respondents, indicated that first, there is a discrepancy between the adjusted current expense budget figures and the line item reductions enacted by each of the respondent's sending districts. It noted that the resolution adopted by Little Egg Harbor is incorrect in that the current expense budget figure of $6,018,522 is in excess of what it should be when each of the line item reductions are calculated.

Suggesting that the total reduction in expenditures should be $312,000 (not $292,000 as stated on Schedule C), respondents aver that the figure which should be quoted in the resolution is $5,998,522 not $6,018,522. It claims the error is simply one " in calculation and/or transcription." (Letter dated December 12, 1991 from respondent Little Egg Harbor at p. 1) Respondent Little Egg Harbor therefore requests that the Commissioner recognize the revised Pinelands budget current expense allocation as $5,998,522.

Second, respondents acknowledge an apparent "misunderstanding" (Id at p. 2) regarding the line item reductions contained within each of the sending district's explanation with respect to the reductions in expenditures. Little Egg Harbor clarifies by stating:

> There has been a reduction in the line item for appropriations of $240,000.00 (Line Item No. 53). As stated, there is a reduction by the sending districts of $240,000.00. The sending districts also have increased the line item for transportation by $225,000.00 (Line Item No. 2503). It is not the intent of the Township of Little Egg Harbor that the increase in expenditure match the reduction in expenditure from Line Item 53. Moreover, there is no where evident in evidence that it is the intention of the sending districts to have Line Item 53's reduction match Line Item 2503's increase. The $15,000.00 difference which has been noted by the Commissioner is simply intended to be an additional decrease in the overall tax levy. (Id.)

The Board's response first seeks a finding by the Commissioner that because respondents filed their submission nearly a month after imposed by the Commissioner, respondents' letter be declared untimely. The Board formally objects to consideration of said letter due to its belated filing.

Second, the Board finds respondents to be nonresponsive to the Commissioner's directive to clarify inconsistencies in their resolution. The Board finds it insufficient to assert that the difference in line items is simply intended to be an additional decrease in the overall tax levy, because respondents fail to provide the Commissioner with a statement of reasons for all such cuts. The Board thus formally objects to the unsubstantiated cuts it avers the respondents make in their submission of December 12, 1991.

The Commissioner's review of the parties' submissions requires comment at the outset of his review of this case. First, although the Commissioner notes with accord the Board's objection to the late submission of respondents' clarification letter of December 12, 1991, the Commissioner is obliged to review and consider the information contained therein, albeit belated, in order to resolve the budget issues before him. The Commissioner admonishes respondents, however, that their delay penalizes the taxpayers, and ultimately the children of the district to whom they are answerable for their lack of diligence in responding to the Commissioner's directive.

Second, the Commissioner dismisses as inappropriate respondents' attempt to alter the amount certified to the Ocean and Burlington County Boards of Taxation from the Commissioner's directive to clarify discrepancies in the statement of reasons for their reductions. Respondents may not and indeed were not permitted an opportunity to reconsider and recast their certification. The sole purpose of the directive to respondents was to enable the Commissioner to understand the inconsistencies in the figures provided in their resolution and attachments. Accordingly, the Commissioner will not consider respondents' efforts to alter the current expense tax levy certified in the amount of $6,018,555.

The Commissioner takes cognizance, however, of respondents' statement concerning the transfer of $240,000 from the Board's free appropriated balance to be applied to Account No. 2503, Transportation, in the amount of $225,000. Respondents explain in their December 13, 1991 submission that while not clear in the resolution or statement of reasons, they intended the $15,000 difference between the $240,000 reduction in Appropriated Balances and the amount transferred to Transportation, $225,000, to be considered an additional reduction.

Similarly, the Commissioner takes cognizance of the Board's objection to such clarification, suggesting that respondents fail, in so doing, to provide the Commissioner with a statement of reasons for all such cuts. However, taking respondents' statement of reasons already provided as part of the record in their position statement, combined with the clarification of December 13, 1991, the Commissioner rejects the Board's concern that no statement of reasons accompanied the $15,000 reduction.

Having considered individually each of the reductions and the arguments of the parties, the Commissioner notes that the standard of review that prevails in a budget appeal is whether the amount of monies available to the Board as a result of the governing body's action is sufficient for the provision of a thorough and efficient education to the pupils of that school district. Board of Education, East Brunswick Township v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966)

The Board's position statement argues that the proposed reduction of $240,000 from Line Item 53 cannot be accommodated because such amount would completely evacuate the free, unappropriated balance in the surplus account. It claims that, as it is, the district is operating well below the 3% allowable free balance restriction. To reduce the account any more would be a poor educational decision that might have future impact on the thorough and efficient educational process in the district, the Board avers.

Respondents' position statement indicates that the reduction of $240,000 in surplus available is being appropriated toward the increased expenditure to maintain transportation services as noted in Account No. 2503. It claims the budget shows on line 6 a balance appropriation as revenue of $310,000, which leaves an appropriation balance estimate as of June 30, 1992 of $549,398.80, which represents 3.6% of the total budget of $15,315,715. Respondents aver the Board has failed to demonstrate that prior years' emergencies exceeded $306,399, so the governing bodies decided to reduce the amount of surplus by $240,000 to leave an appropriated balance in Line Item 53 of $293,901.21. Respondents reject the Board's assertion that any additional amounts are needed in surplus, and further argue that the Board failed to demonstrate any manner in which a thorough and efficient education could be jeopardized as a result of the proposed reduction. Moreover, respondents' reduction to Line Item 53 was used almost solely for the purpose of maintaining transportation services deemed necessary by the respective governing bodies to ensure the safety of those students going to Pinelands Regional, they claim.

The Commissioner determines that the $225,000 reduction to Line Item 53 for purposes of transportation must be restored. The Commissioner notes from the Board's position statement in reference to Account No. 2503, Transportation, that the amount transferred to Transportation from surplus "represents the total, non-funded gratis to and from student transportation fees originally included by the Board but 'cut' in order to place the 1991-92 budget within the 8% cap." (Position Statement, Exhibit B) The Board's position statement goes on to say that it is "not legally obligated to provide such a service and has established other priority, educational goals for the first year of its new middle school operation." (Id.) The Commissioner agrees with the Board that non-remote busing is not a legal obligation in meeting the state requirement for a thorough and efficient education.

Moreover, the Commissioner notes for the record that there is no provision in law for a governing body to increase a line item or account of a school district's budget. To do so would allow the governing body to substitute its judgment for that of the Board. See Board of Education of the Township of Belleville v. Mayor and Council of the Township of Belleville, Essex County, decided by the Commissioner December 9, 1991. Accordingly, the Commissioner determines that the $225,000 reduction from Line Item 53 shall be restored. In so deciding, the matter of an appropriation of $225,000 to Account No. 2503, Transportation, from Line Item 53 is rejected, and such appropriation is denied.

As to the $15,000 additional reduction amount clarified by respondents as having been intended as an additional reduction from surplus, the Commissioner is convinced that such cut shall be sustained. In so finding, the Commissioner acknowledges respondents' argument that of a total budget as of June 30, 1992 of $15,315,715, the appropriated balance in surplus $549,398.80 was estimated to be 3.6% with the $240,000 reduction included in such appropriated balance. The Commissioner recognizes said amount as within the parameters set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.13. Respondents' attempt to reduce the surplus by $240,000 served to bring the unappropriated balance to barely 2%, which is not sufficient to protect against contingencies. However, with $225,000 restored to surplus, the amount remaining in surplus now, $534,398.80, represents 3.5% of the total budget, a comfortable margin to ensure against unforeseen contingencies. Accordingly, the Commissioner sustains the $15,000 cut contemplated by respondents.

Account No. 2401 - Salaries of School Administrators

The Board charges that the $200,000 proposed reduction to Account No. 2401 - line 1, Salaries, cannot be accommodated. The Board notes that salaries for 1991-92 are guaranteed by way of negotiated agreements between employees and employee groups with the Board. Moreover, the Board claims that it has only six administrators by title and 13 part-time supervisors of instruction. It observes that approximately 30% of Pinelands' professional staff is nontenured and that any reductions in supervisory staff would have a bumping effect within the teaching staff since most, if not all, supervisors are tenured in instructional positions. The Board suggests that approximately six or seven positions would have to be eliminated to provide $200,000 in reductions, amounting to a 50% reduction in supervisory staff. The Board claims such a reduction would directly impact upon the thorough and efficient educational program of the district.

Respondents note that they certified a reduction in this line item from $1,131,921 to $931,921, a $200,000 reduction with a statement of reasons to the effect that the amount appropriated for administrative salaries may be reduced while still providing adequate funds for the purposes of this account. They cite the annual school district budget statement supporting documentation which, respondents aver, states that there are currently five administrators and a total of 19 supervisors and principals in the district. Respondents claim this totals 24 supervisors, which, when correlated with 105 teachers, equals 1 supervisor for each 4½ teachers. Respondents claim the Board was not able to offer any satisfactory explanation as to why 24 supervisors are necessary. They elected not to question the number of teachers employed by the district, but determined instead that given the lack of response by the Board as to the need for 24 supervisors, a reduction of $200,000 in this account could be accommodated.

The Commissioner determines that the reduction in this account shall be sustained. The line item budget reflects the amount noted by respondents as having been allocated in the budget for salaries of school administrators, an amount of $1,131,921. Moreover, the document labeled as "Annual School District Budget Statement Supporting Documentation" comports with respondents' figures, indicating that the district currently employs five administrators and a total of 19 supervisors and principals. Nowhere in the record has the Board advanced proof to support its figures which noted, in its position statement, that the district employs six administrators, not five as respondents contend, and 13 part-time supervisors of instruction compared with the 19 principals and supervisors, combined, that respondents have documented exist. For failure of the Board to meet its burden of persuasion as to why the $200,000 cut in this line item would hamper the provision of a thorough and efficient education, the Commissioner sustains respondents' $200,000 reduction to Account No. 2401.

Account No. 2702 - Employee Benefits (Group Insurance)

Here as well, the Board argues that the $97,000 reduction cannot be accommodated because these monies, like those for the administrators, are guaranteed to staff through negotiated agreements with the Board for payment of group insurance programs. It adds that the New Jersey State Health Benefits Program, of which the Board is a member, advanced a more than 25% increase in premiums for the 1991-92 school year.

Respondents' statement of reasons suggests that Account No. 2702 - line 2, Group Insurance, was reduced from $1,345,302 to $1,248,302 resulting in a reduction of $97,000 because the amount appropriated for health benefits may be reduced while still providing adequate funds for the purpose of this account. Noting the Board's budget projection represents a 63% rise in group insurance costs from last year, respondents aver that submissions by the Board appear to suggest that the increase in group insurance is actually expected to be 35%. Respondents contend there is no satisfactory explanation provided by the Board as to the need for an additional $228,566, which is 28% above the projected cost increase.

The Commissioner determines that although costs already entered into via a duly negotiated agreement ordinarily require restoration in budget appeal matters, the $97,000 reduction in the instant matter must be sustained. The Commissioner finds that the Board has failed to demonstrate that a 63% increase over last year's health benefit costs actually exists. The resulting amount allocated in the account, even with a $97,000 reduction, $1,248,302, represents a 51% increase over last year's allocation of $827,212. Accordingly, the Commissioner sustains the $97,000 cut to this account.

Consequently, the Commissioner restores $225,000 to Line Item 53, Appropriation Balances. The Commissioner sustains the $15,000 reduction in that line item, the $200,000 reduction to Account No. 2401, Salaries of School Administrators, and the $97,000 cut to Account No. 2702, Employee Benefits (Group Insurance).

Accordingly, the Ocean and Burlington County Boards of Taxation are hereby directed to strike a tax rate which shall add an additional $225,000 to the 1991-92 current expense tax levy for the Townships of Little Egg Harbor, Eagleswood and Bass River and the Borough of Tuckerton for budgetary allocations to Pinelands Regional High School District 1991-92 school budget. The aforestated increase shall raise the 1991-92 tax levy for current expense as set forth below:

	Tax Levy Certified By Governing Body	Amount Restored	Tax Levy After Restoration
Current Expense	$6,018,522	$225,000	$6,243,522

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning riffed instructional supervisor claimed Board violated her tenure and seniority rights by employing another teaching staff member in the new position of administrative assistant to the superintendent of curriculum and instruction (AASCI). Petitioner also claimed tenure and seniority as a principal based on a period of service in an acting capacity.

ALJ found petitioner did not possess any tenure or seniority entitlement to the positions of AASCI or elementary school principal, as petitioner had attained tenure solely as a supervisor and the AASCI position was determined by the county superintendent to be an assistant superintendency. Petitioner's appeal was dismissed.

Commissioner affirmed the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law, noting that petitioner's entire service as principal constituted service as a substitute under the facts of this matter and hence could not lead to acquisition of tenure or seniority in that position. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about September 10, 1990, petitioner, Elissa A Kish, filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education alleging that respondent had violated her tenure rights by employing a nontenured teaching staff member in the unrecognized position of administrative assistant to the superintendent of curriculum and instruction. Petitioner requested that the Commissioner reinstate her to the position of administrative assistant to the superintendent of curriculum and instruction. Further, petitioner alleged that she had accrued tenure and seniority as an elementary principal and that respondent's failure to reassign her to a principalship was violative of her tenure rights.

On October 1, 1990, respondent filed an answer to the petition, denying the allegations and alleging that petitioner had failed to state a cause of action upon which relief could be granted. On October 5, 1990, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A telephone prehearing conference was held on February 7, 1991. At that time, the issues were isolated and the hearing was scheduled for June 17 and 18, 1991, at the Office of Administrative Law. On June 18, 1991, a conference with counsel was held. It was determined that the parties could stipulate to most of the essential facts and any necessary testimony taken on July 1, 1991. The hearing was held on July 1, 1991. A briefing schedule was established, and the record closed on December 2, 1991, upon receipt of petitioner's response to respondent's memorandum and respondent's reply thereto.

ISSUE

At issue in the instant matter is whether respondent violated petitioner's tenure and/or seniority rights. More particularly at issue is whether petitioner is entitled to be appointed to the position of administrative assistant to the superintendent of curriculum and instruction (AASCI) or to the position of elementary school principal on the basis of seniority.[1] The issue as stated in the prehearing order as to whether petitioner is barred from relief for failure to comply with the 90-day rule was the subject of a motion to dismiss by respondent. It was denied on June 18, 1991, and the reasons were stated on the record on July 1, 1991.

1. It is to be noted that petitioner's argument that the current holder of the position of AASCI is not qualified to hold said position in that she lacks the appropriate endorsements, while petitioner is so qualified, was first raised after the hearing and the submission of briefs in this matter. It was raised at a point in time after the factual allegations had been heard. Not only was said argument not properly addressed, but in actuality is not the issue here. The issue is petitioner's claim to the position of AASCI based on her tenure and seniority rights. The matter of the lack of appropriate certification by Carol Mulhare, while of import, does not define petitioner's right to the position. Even if Mulhare does not have the proper qualifications for the position, this would not mean that petitioner would be appointed to the position. Further, it is to be noted that the County Superintendent has already determined the requisite certification for the position. For petitioner to attack Mulhare's qualifications, she would have to demonstrate her right to the position.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

The facts necessary to the resolution of this matter are essentially undisputed. The stipulation of facts (J-1 in evidence) is incorporated by reference and constitutes this tribunal's findings of fact.

Petitioner is a tenured teaching staff member who was employed by the respondent Board of Education (Board). She holds certificates as a reading specialist, teacher of speech, arts, and dramatics, elementary teacher K-8, supervisor, principal, and school administrator. Petitioner served under the title of instructional supervisor from the beginning of the 1980-81 academic year through the end of the 1989-90 academic year. (The job description for the position (Exhibit A) indicates her responsibilities.) Petitioner accrued tenure under the title of "supervisor."

Effective July 1, 1990, the Board created a new position: administrative assistant to the superintendent of curriculum and instruction (AASCI). The job description for the position is in evidence as Exhibit B. Said position was approved by the County Superintendent, who determined, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3, that the legal title for said position would be "assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum and instruction."

The position of instructional supervisor (i.e., the petitioner's position) was abolished effective June 30, 1990.

The teaching staff member appointed by the Board to fill the newly-created position is one whose prior service was as a vice principal (from December 1, 1984 to July 1, 1990, the effective date of her current appointment). The Board's appointee has accrued tenure as a vice principal.

With respect to the other position at issue, that of elementary school principal, the holder thereof is a teaching staff member whose only accrued tenure is as an athletic director and supervisor. Petitioner grounds her claim to this position on her past work experience. Petitioner was directed by the former Superintendent of Schools to perform the duties of elementary principal from March 2, 1988 through June 30, 1988, on account of the regular principal's absence due to illness. There was no Board approval of this directive. It was stipulated that the directive was given pursuant to the petitioner's job description as an instructional supervisor. (See, Job Description, Instructional Supervisor, para. 20 of the "Performance Responsibilities" and Job Description, Instructional Supervisor Multi-Discipline, para 15. of the "Performance Responsibilities"). The petitioner's job description as an instructional supervisor required her to "assume other responsibilities which may from time to time be assigned by the assistant superintendent of schools or the superintendent. . . ." Id.

It was stipulated that, as an instructional supervisor, petitioner had a responsibility to supervise certain specific subject areas: mathematics, science, business, computer education, industrial arts, music, art, foreign language, and home economics. It was only over the foregoing subject areas that the petitioner had any district-wide responsibilities. In contrast, it was stipulated that "Performance Responsibilities 1 through 12 of an AASCI encompass all subject areas in the curriculum district-wide." In addition, it was stipulated that "Performance Responsibilities" 13 through 24 of said position were not part of the responsibilities of an instructional supervisor. Rather, in the past, those special education duties were performed by an administrative assistant (a position which was also abolished by the Board). It was further stipulated that the curriculum development responsibilities previously charged to instructional supervisors are now being given to teachers by appointed committees.

Lastly, petitioner does not challenge the Board's right to abolish the position of instructional supervisor, nor does she challenge its right to create the new position of AASCI.

In addition, testimony was given by Elissa Ann Kish, petitioner, and Dr. Carole Lee Mulhare, presently serving as AASCI. The facts necessary for determination here may be summarized as follows: Elissa Kish testified that as supervisor of instruction, she observed special education personnel. She went into the special education classrooms, observed the teaching, and wrote narratives, comments, and suggestions. She gave her observation to the Superintendent's office. The evaluation was written by Mr. Fedor, administrative assistant to the superintendent. Noting that she had a role in implementing instruction for special education, she stated that on occasion, she was asked to review the IEP to determine if the curriculum was suitable to the child. She observed that the special education program in the district was limited.

On cross-examination, she indicated that the teachers she observed in special education classrooms were only teaching special education children in that classroom. She contended that she began to observe special education classes in 1982, but admitted that she mainly observed non-special education teachers. She indicated that she is responsible for special education curriculum when a special education student takes a curriculum of core courses for which she is responsible. She explained that the core curriculum for which she had responsibility was utilized if the Child Study Team felt it was appropriate and it became a part of the IEP for certain classified students. On further questioning, she indicated that she believed ESL and the gifted and talented are part of special education. She admitted that she did not develop IEPs and was not part of the Child Study Team.

Next to testify was Dr. Carole Lee Mulhare, who discussed her special education functions. She pointed to the job description for AASCI and noted that her special education functions consisted of numbers 13 to 24 (exhibit B). She indicated that she devotes two-thirds of her time to these duties.

On cross-examination, she stated that she earned a doctorate in educational administration and supervision in 1985 and holds a principal and supervisor's certificate. She is presently awaiting an administrator's certificate, and she contended that she was eligible for the certificate three years ago. She does not have a certificate for pupil personnel services or guidance counselor. Referring to her special education responsibilities, she noted that she sits as the chairperson of the Child Study Team, directing and supervising the work of the team, responsible for seeing that the guidelines are followed. She evaluates special education personnel, 15 to 20 teachers, who only teach special education, six Child Study Team members, and three secretaries. She evaluated the 15 to 20 teachers based on her observations. She explained that she meets with the Child Study Team on a daily basis, discusses students, reads reports, and signs off on the IEPs. She has parent conferences and talks to DYFS. She also makes budget recommendations for special services.

Referring to the job description, she indicated that she develops and implements procedures for referral, securing medical reports, psychological examinations, and placement of special education students. She explained that the Child Study Team members wrote the procedures and submitted them to her, and that she would correct them. She had working sessions with the Child Study Team members during which they wrote the procedures. She did not write the procedures on her own. Although there is a transportation coordinator, she is involved in transportation as necessary as part of an out-of-district placement. She further explained that curriculum work in the district is done by teachers and principals.

DISCUSSION

I. Entitlement to the position of AASCI

In the case at bar, petitioner is asserting a tenure and seniority claim to the position of AASCI. In essence, petitioner argues that, as an instructional supervisor, she performed substantially the same duties which are now contained in the job description of the AASCI. Petitioner argues that the Board should not be able to compromise a teaching staff member's statutory rights by merely juggling titles and assignments. Petitioner contends that while the positions of instructional supervisor and AASCI may be separate categories for tenure and seniority purposes, the circumstances of the present case show that they are substantially the same. As such, petitioner argues that by virtue of her past service as an instructional supervisor, she has tenure and seniority entitlement to the newly-created position.

A. Tenure entitlement to the position of AASCI

The statute governing the acquisition of tenure by teaching staff members, such as petitioner, is N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. In relevant part, that statute provides as follows:

> The services of all teaching staff members including all teachers, principals . . . vice principals, superintendents, assistant superintendents . . . and such other employees as are in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners, serving in any school district or under any board of education . . . shall be under tenure . . . after employment in such district or by such board for:

> (a) three consecutive calendar years, or any shorter period which may be fixed by the employing board . . .; or
> (b) three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or
> (c) the equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years;

Applying the above statute to the petitioner's employment history shows that petitioner accrued tenure only as a supervisor (teaching staff member), i.e., she did not serve the requisite period of time in any of the other enumerated positions, including principal and assistant superintendent (which, as indicated earlier, is the legal title assigned to the position of AASCI by the County Superintendent pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.3).

In the instant matter, petitioner's employment as an instructional supervisor was terminated when the Board abolished that position effective June 30, 1990. As noted above, petitioner does not contest the Board's right to abolish said position. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, which governs reductions in force (RIFs), provides that:

> Nothing in this title or any other law relating to tenure of service shall be held to limit the right of any board of education to reduce the number of teaching staff members, employed in the district whenever, in the judgment of the board, it is advisable to abolish any such positions for reasons of economy or because of reduction in the number of pupils or of change in the administrative or supervisory organization of the district or for other good cause upon compliance with the provisions of this article. [Emphasis added.]

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 provides for the reemployment of persons, such as the petitioner, who have been the subject of a RIF. In pertinent part, that statute provides as follows:

> If any teaching staff member shall be dismissed as a result of [a RIF], such person shall be and remain upon a preferred eligible list in the order of seniority for reemployment whenever a vacancy occurs in a position for which such person shall be qualified and he shall be reemployed by the body causing dismissal, if and when such vacancy occurs. . . . [Emphasis added.]

As will be shown, substantial differences exist between the position of instructional supervisor and that of AASCI. In addition, petitioner did not accrue seniority with respect to the sought-after position. In light of the foregoing, it appears that petitioner's reemployment rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 were not infringed upon when the Board failed to appoint her to the position of AASCI. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12, petitioner would be entitled to placement upon a preferred eligibility list for reemployment as an instructional supervisor were that position ever to be reinstated.

More particularly, contrary to the petitioner's allegations, the instant matter does not involve a "mere juggling of position titles by the Board." As previously indicated, there are substantive differences between petitioner's former position and that which she now seeks. To begin with, there are some, albeit minor, differences between the qualifications for being an instructional supervisor and those for being an AASCI. For example, while at least three years of classroom teaching experience are required for the former position, five years of such experience are required for the latter. In addition, while the former requires advanced graduate work in the areas of "curriculum development, supervision and/or instructional practices," the latter position also lists the area of "administration."

The substantive diversity of the two positions is more clearly manifest in their respective "Performance Responsibilities," or duties. It was stipulated that the only district-wide responsibility held by the petitioner, as an instructional supervisor, was that of supervising certain specific subject areas, i.e., only those subject areas which were assigned to her for a given period of time. In sharp contrast, "Performance Responsibilities" 1 through 12 of an AASCI cover all subject areas in the curriculum on a district-wide basis. Further, "Performance Responsibilities" 13 through 24 of an AASCI, which pertain to special education, are not responsibilities which had been previously assigned to instructional supervisors. Rather, in the past, those duties were performed by an administrative assistant, which is also a position which has since been abolished. In addition, some of the duties previously performed by instructional supervisors are now performed by persons other than the AASCI. For example, the curriculum development responsibilities previously charged to instructional supervisors have now been charged to teachers by appointed committees.

Moreover, Dr. Mulhare testified that she spends at least two-thirds of her time discharging the special education Performance Responsibilities (13-24 of the job description) of the position of AASCI. Petitioner's testimony attempting to establish special education responsibilities akin to those of AASCI failed to accomplish this. Petitioner made certain observations of special education teachers, and Child Study Team members may have consulted with her about certain areas of the core curriculum assigned to petitioner as an instructional supervisor in considering the appropriateness of incorporating such subjects into a classified student's IEP. Her involvement with special education certainly did not rise to the level of those of the AASCI, who sits as chairman of the Child Study Team.

In light of the foregoing, the situation at hand cannot be viewed as analogous to that in Viemeister v. Bd. of Ed. of Prospect Park, 5 N.J. Super. 215 (App. Div. 1949). In that case, the Appellate Division ordered reinstatement of a tenured principal whose position had allegedly been abolished by the board. The board had argued that the position of principal had been abolished, and that a new position of "teaching principal" had been created. In determining that the position of principal had never really been abolished, the Appellate Division stated that it looked to substance rather than to form. Viemeister, 5 N.J. Super. at 218.

Upon reviewing the stipulated facts in the case, the court concluded that the principalship had not been abolished; rather, its functions had merely been transferred to another teaching staff member acting under a new job title. As shown above, the instant matter does not involve such a wholesale transfer of duties to another teaching staff member with a mere title change in position. Consequently, petitioner's tenure in the position of instructional supervisor cannot be used to support a tenure claim to the position of AASCI. See also, Dennery v. Passaic Valley Regional High School Bd. of Ed., District No. 1 (A-1298-90 T2), wherein the court held that petitioner had tenure rights to the newly created position of class supervisor since that position encompassed a substantial amount of the work performed by petitioner while she served as a tenured guidance counsellor.

Similarly, Walldov v. East Brunswick Bd. of Ed., OAL DKT. EDU 6540-84 (March 25, 1985), modified by the Comm'r. (May 10, 1985), aff'd by the State Bd. (Nov. 6, 1985) is inapposite to the instant case. In Walldov, the Commissioner held that if a board changes the qualifications for positions which are essentially the same as those which existed previously, in such a way as to displace tenured persons, its action would be deemed arbitrary and capricious. The instant matter does not involve a mere change in the qualifications for a position which remained basically the same in all other respects. As indicated above, the newly-created position of AASCI, in addition to having qualification requirements slightly different from those previously set for instructional supervisors, also has duties which differ substantially from those previously performed by such supervisors. Moreover, in Walldov, the board did not transfer any duties of the "old" positions to other positions. In the instant case, it was stipulated that the curriculum development duties previously performed by instructional supervisors are currently being performed by teachers selected by appointed committees.

Petitioner's reliance upon DeCarlo v. Bd. of Ed. of South Plainfield, OAL DKT. EDU 6111-87 (June 20, 1988), aff'd by the Comm'r. (Aug. 4, 1988), is also misplaced. In that case, the issue was whether the petitioner could lay claim to the position of assistant principal, whose duties were claimed to be indistinguishable from those of a general supervisor, which was the position held by the petitioner in the past. One of the factors considered by the Commissioner, in rendering a decision against the petitioner, was the county superintendent's earlier determination approving use of the unrecognized title of general supervisor and assigning said position to the category of "supervisor" for seniority purposes. Based upon that determination, the Commissioner found that the petitioner had accrued tenure solely as a supervisor, which he found to be a position separately tenurable from that of an assistant principal under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

In the instant matter, the County Superintendent also approved of the Board's newly-created position of AASCI and assigned to it the legal title of "assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum and instruction." Applying the Commissioner's reasoning in DeCarlo to the instant matter leads one to conclude that the petitioner acquired tenure solely as a supervisor, which likewise is a position separately tenurable from that of assistant superintendent under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. The reasoning in DeCarlo might have supported the petitioner's claim had the County Superintendent assigned the legal title of "supervisor" to the newly-created position of AASCI.

In addition, petitioner grounds her tenure claim upon two 1987 Appellate Division decisions. Capodilupo v. Bd. of Ed. of West Orange, 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987) involved a claim by a tenured secondary school physical education teacher to a similar position at the elementary level, which was being occupied by a nontenured employee. The petitioner therein, who had never taught at the elementary level, had been the subject of a RIF. In deciding the petitioner's claim, the court held that a tenured teacher seeking reinstatement within the endorsements on his/her certificate (as was the petitioner there) is entitled to preference in a RIF as against a nontenured applicant with the same certification. Capodilupo, 218 N.J. Super at 515.

In Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Ed., 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1987), certif. denied 110 N.J. 512 (1988), it was held that a tenured elementary school art teacher, who had been the subject of a RIF, held a tenure entitlement to a full-time position at the secondary level notwithstanding the fact that that position's nontenured occupant had more experience (seniority) at that level than did the petitioner.

As was true of the other cases relied upon by the petitioner, both Capodilupo and Bednar are inapposite to the instant matter. To begin with, the positions sought by the petitioners in those cases were held by nontenured persons. In the case at bar, the Board's appointee to the position of AASCI is a tenured teaching staff member, albeit she is tenured as a vice principal. Moreover, petitioners in those cases were tenured in the positions' sought, whereas, in the instant matter, petitioner is not tenured in the position sought.

B. Seniority entitlement to the position of AASCI

The state regulation governing the determination of seniority is contained in N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10. In pertinent part, that regulation states that:

> (b) Seniority . . . shall be determined according to the number of academic or calendar years of employment, or fraction thereof, as the case may be, in the school district in specific categories as hereinafter provided.

Under N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10, seniority is calculated in terms of actual service rendered in specific categories of employment. In other words, seniority is measured by years of employment in specific job categories, which are usually narrower than the subject fields which are endorsed on teachers' certificates. Bednar, supra, 211 N.J. Super. at 242. The specific job categories relevant to the case at bar are listed under N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(l):

> 4. Assistant superintendent (each assistance superintendency shall be a separate category);
>
> . . .
>
> 11. Elementary principal;
> 12. Supervisors (each approved supervisory title shall be a separate category. . . .)

In the instant matter, petitioner has never rendered any service as an "assistant superintendent," which, as previously noted, is the legal title assigned to the position of AASCI by the County Superintendent. Save for the brief period in which petitioner served as an acting principal, her service has been rendered as an instructional supervisor. As such, any seniority accrued by the petitioner has been in the category of "supervisor," which is a category entirely separate from that of "assistant superintendent" for seniority calculation purposes. N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(i), which is also relevant to the instant matter, provides that

> Whenever any person's particular employment shall be abolished in a category, he or she shall be given that employment in the same category to which he or she is entitled by seniority. . . . [Emphasis added.]

Given the absence of any service as an assistant superintendent per se, and the fact that the newly-created position of AASCI is not merely a continuation of the petitioner's former position as instructional supervisor, it may be readily concluded that petitioner did not possess any seniority entitlement to the position of AASCI. Rather, under N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(i), petitioner would be entitled to reemployment as an instructional supervisor if that position were ever to be reinstated by the Board.

In sum, because petitioner did not possess any tenure or seniority entitlement to the newly-created position of AASCI, no such rights of the petitioner were violated upon the Board's failure to appoint the petitioner to said position.

II. Tenure or seniority entitlement to the position of elementary school principal

Petitioner argues, in the alternative, that if she does not possess a tenure and/or seniority entitlement to the position of AASCI, she should be found to have seniority entitlement to the position of elementary school principal. The petitioner grounds her claim principally upon her past work experience. From March 2, 1988 through June 30, 1988, at the direction of the former Superintendent, the petitioner performed the duties of an elementary school principal who was absent due to illness. (The petitioner's four months as an acting principal were followed by two more years of service in the district as an instructional supervisor.)

Petitioner argues that under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6, N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10, and the principles enunciated in Meyer v. Bd. of Ed. of Wayne, 1983 S.L.D. 1099, aff'd by the State Board (March 5, 1986), aff'd by the Appellate Division (A-3175-85T6, Sept. 24, 1987) (unreported), she acquired both tenure and seniority as an elementary school principal.

A. Tenure in the position of elementary principal

Petitioner relies upon N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 to support her claim of tenure acquisition in the position of principal. In pertinent part, that statute provides that:

> Any such teaching staff member under tenure or eligible to obtain tenure under this chapter, who is transferred or promoted with his consent to another position covered by this chapter . . . shall not obtain tenure in the new position until after:
>
> (a) the expiration of a period of employment of two consecutive calendar years in the new position unless a shorter period is fixed by the employing board for such purpose; or
>
> (b) employment for two academic years in the new position together with employment in the new position at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or

> provided that the period of employment in such new position shall be included in determining the tenure and seniority rights in the former position held by such teaching staff member, and in the event the employment in such new position is terminated before tenure is obtained therein, if he then has tenure in the district or under said board of education, such teaching staff member shall be returned to his former position. . . . [Emphasis added.]

Petitioner's reliance upon N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 is misplaced for several reasons. First, while that statute does govern tenure acquisition in a "new" position, the scope of the statute is clearly limited. It only applies in cases where a teaching staff member is "transferred or promoted with his consent." In the instant matter, the "new" position must be deemed to be the elementary principalship which the petitioner assumed for four months in 1988. In light of the method by which the petitioner was placed in that position, it is doubtful whether N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 is even applicable in the instant matter. The method by which "transfers" are to be made is explicitly prescribed by statute. N.J.S.A. 18A:25-1 provides that

> No teaching staff member shall be transferred, except by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education by which he is employed.

The method by which "appointments" to positions are to be made is likewise explicitly prescribed by statute. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1 provides as follows:

> No teaching staff member shall be appointed, except by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education appointing him.

In the matter at hand, neither of the above procedures were utilized when petitioner was placed in the position of elementary school principal in the latter half of the 1987-88 academic year. Rather, it was stipulated that the Superintendent's directive to the petitioner was given pursuant to the latter's job description as an instructional supervisor. Moreover, it was stipulated that there was no Board approval of this directive. (The job description of an instructional supervisor requires the supervisor to assume "other responsibilities which may, from time to time, be assigned by the assistant superintendent . . . or the superintendent. . . .") As such, it cannot be concluded that the petitioner was "transferred or promoted with [her] consent" to the position of elementary school principal, within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.

Even assuming the applicability of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6, the petitioner served as an elementary school principal for only four months (March 2, 1988 through June 30, 1988). As such, she failed to serve in the "new" position for the requisite period of time prescribed by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 for the acquisition of tenure in new positions. Consequently, she did not acquire tenure in the position of principal as a result of her past service in that position.

The only benefit inuring to petitioner under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 is that her period of service as an elementary school principal may be included in seniority and tenure determinations with respect to her position as an instructional supervisor. The statute provides, in relevant part, that the period of employment in the new position (elementary school principal, in the instant matter) "shall be included in determining the tenure and seniority rights in the former position (instructional supervisor)." N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6. However, the period of employment afterward in the former position is not included in determining tenure and/or seniority rights in the newer position from which termination occurred.

Petitioner may not argue that her service as an instructional supervisor, subsequent to her service as an acting principal, was service rendered in a "new" position for purposes of applying N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 to credit her with tenure and seniority rights in what would then be her "former" position, i.e., elementary principal. Such an argument misconstrues N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6. That statute is primarily concerned with the acquisition of tenure in new positions. In the instant matter, by the time of the petitioner's service as an acting principal, she had already acquired tenure as an instructional supervisor. Thus, even if one were to assume that the two years of service as a supervisor, rendered subsequent to the service as a principal, was service rendered in a "new" position, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 would be of no help to petitioner.

Given the fact that the petitioner did not gain tenure in the position of elementary school principal, any reliance by her on the Capodilupo or Bednar decisions, supra, would be misplaced. Those decisions involved claims by petitioners who were tenured in the positions sought. As discussed above, petitioner did not accrue tenure in the position sought, i.e., elementary school principal.

B. Seniority entitlement to the position of elementary school principal

Support for petitioner's claim of a seniority entitlement to the position of elementary school principal may be gleaned from N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(h). That section provides:

> Whenever a person shall move from or revert to a category [i.e., one of the employment categories enumerated under N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(l)], all periods of employment shall be credited toward his or her seniority in any or all categories in which he or she previously held employment.

It may be argued that when petitioner returned to her position as an instructional supervisor, following her service as an acting principal, she "revert[ed] to a category" within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(h). As such, it may be contended from the language of the regulation that the two-year period of employment, following the petitioner's service as an acting principal, could be credited toward her seniority in both the categories of supervisor and elementary principal. The accrual of seniority in both those positions would be supported under the regulation, for both would be "categories in which [the petitioner] previously held employment" at the time of her "reversion" to the category of supervisor. Under such a construction, it may be argued that the petitioner may have possessed a seniority entitlement to the position of elementary school principal.

However, in light of the facts in the instant case, it appears that such an application of N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(h) would be inappropriate. As previously noted, petitioner served as an elementary school principal at the directive of the former Superintendent of Schools, who ordered her to take the place of the regular principal, who was absent due to illness. It was stipulated that this directive was given by the Superintendent pursuant to the job description for the petitioner as an instructional supervisor. As indicated earlier, one of the duties or "performance responsibilities" of an instructional supervisor had been that of "assum[ing] other responsibilities which may, from time to time, be assigned by the assistant superintendent of schools or the superintendent. . . ."

In light of the foregoing, it appears that although the petitioner may have been performing all of the duties of a regular elementary school principal from March 2, 1988 through June 30, 1988, she was in fact continuing to function as an instructional supervisor. In other words, given the method by which petitioner was made to assume the principalship in 1988 and the basis for the Superintendent's directive, it appears that when the petitioner undertook that task, she was merely carrying out her duties as an instructional supervisor. As such, it cannot be said, within the meaning of N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(h), that petitioner was "move[d] from" the category of supervisor when she was given the principal assignment. Consequently, it also could not be said that she "revert[ed] to a category" when her service as an acting principal came to an end. As such, N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(h) would not serve to credit petitioner with seniority in the category of elementary principal.

Moreover, the case law cited by petitioner in support of her seniority claim to the position of elementary school principal is of no avail. Schienholz v. Bd. of Ed. of Ewing, OAL DKTS. EDU 5959-88 and 5961-88 (May 4, 1989), modified by the Comm'r. (June 19, 1989), modified by the State Bd. (Feb. 7, 1990), aff'd by the Appellate Division (A-2905-89T3, Nov. 19, 1990) (unreported), essentially reiterated the holdings in Capodilupo and Bednar, supra, by holding that the petitioners therein, who were tenured principals, could lay claim to the position of high school principal, which was being occupied by a nontenured employee selected by the board to fill a vacancy. The holding was not affected by the fact that the petitioners had acquired tenure solely at the elementary level, i.e., they had no experience as secondary principals. However, for the same reason that Capodilupo and Bednar, supra, are inapposite, so too is Schienholz. All three cases involved claims by petitioners who were tenured in the positions which they sought. As shown above, petitioner in the instant matter did not acquire tenure in the position currently being sought, i.e., principal.

In addition, Meyer, supra, is of no help to petitioner. Meyer involved the construction of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1, which contains an exception to tenure acquisition for periods of employment wherein a teaching staff member is filling in for a temporarily absent regular teacher (as opposed to filling a permanent vacancy). In Meyer, it was established that because the statute is silent with respect to seniority credit for such temporary employment periods, the teaching staff member is entitled to such credit for such employment periods. Meyer held that the petitioner therein, a tenured elementary school principal, who had served as an acting principal for one year following a RIF, was entitled to have that year of temporary service credited to her overall seniority in the category of elementary principal.

Clearly, the primary focus of Meyer was the construction of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1. It did not address N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 nor N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10, which form the basis of petitioner's seniority claim to the position of elementary principal. The issue addressed by Meyer, as indicated above, was whether the tenure acquisition exception statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1, precludes the accrual of seniority for service which, under the statute, would be excluded for tenure acquisition purposes. Meyer does not stand for the principle which petitioner appears to be ascribing to it -- that employment periods following a period of temporary service which was rendered in a seniority category different from that in which one is tenured can be added to such temporary service so as to give a person tenure and seniority rights in the category of temporary service.

CONCLUSION

Petitioner did not possess any tenure or seniority entitlement to the positions of administrative assistant to the superintendent of curriculum and instruction (AASCI) or elementary school principal. Consequently, no such rights of the petitioner were violated by the respondent Board's failure to appoint the petitioner to either of these positions.

ORDER

For the foregoing reasons, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's appeal is DISMISSED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF ELMWOOD PARK, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Exceptions by petitioner and replies by respondent Board were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and are briefly set forth below.

In her exceptions, petitioner reiterates her prior arguments, contending that the ALJ accorded too much emphasis to the differences between her abolished position and the new position of Administrative Assistant to the Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction (AASCI), and not enough emphasis to her tenure rights. Petitioner's tenure may be limited to the position of supervisor, she avers, but only because of the way the Board elected to categorize her prior position. The Board cannot be permitted to simply recast her old position under a different title and thereby defeat her statutorily conferred tenure rights. Moreover, petitioner is better qualified than the current incumbent in the AASCI position (Dr. Carole Mulhare), as she holds a more suitable certificate (reading specialist, an educational services endorsement) for the position's pupil personnel duties.

Petitioner further reiterates her claim and arguments regarding her right to a principalship in the event she is found not to be entitled to the AASCI position, alleging that the ALJ's analysis of this claim wrongly relies on N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 rather than on N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 which properly controls in this situation. Moreover, the Board's current appointee to the principalship is nontenured, so that the court's consistent directives to construe tenure laws liberally in favor of tenured staff over nontenured are being ignored.

In reply, the Board contends that stipulated facts and undisputed testimony speak for themselves with respect to the lack of similarity between petitioner's prior position and the AASCI position, so that the case law relied upon by petitioner is wholly inapposite as found by the ALJ. The Board further endorses the ALJ's handling (Initial Decision, at p. 2) of petitioner's charges regarding Mulhare's certification, noting the county superintendent's determination of the requisite certificate and adding that even if petitioner had standing to challenge it, her claim would have been filed out of time. With respect to petitioner's claim to the principalship, the Board essentially reiterates its prior arguments and those of the ALJ reaching the conclusion that N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 (tenure upon transfer) is inapplicable and that petitioner has no tenure, and hence no seniority as principal.

Upon careful review of this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has entitlement to neither the AASCI nor the principal position to which she lays claim.

It is clear from the record that petitioner has attained tenure, and therefore seniority, which flows exclusively from tenure right, solely as a supervisor, as all of her tenurable service was under this certificate and title. Given that the county superintendent has determined the AASCI position to be an assistant superintendency, a separately tenurable position under 18A:28-5, neither petitioner nor Mulhare has entitlement to the position under Capodilupo, supra, and Bednar, supra, both of which deal with the rights of staff tenured in their positions to other positions within the same tenure category. Nor does Dennery, supra, alter this determination with respect to petitioner, as the positions at issue in that case (guidance counselor and class supervisor) were substantially similar notwithstanding their different titles, while the positions at issue herein are significantly different, as correctly found by the ALJ. As for petitioner's allegations regarding Mulhare's qualifications, so long as Mulhare holds the requisite certificate as determined by the county superintendent, her appointment is not subject to challenge by petitioner absent any legal entitlement to Mulhare's position.

Finally, as all of petitioner's service as a principal was in an acting capacity and constituted service as a substitute under the facts of this matter, in contrast to the facts of case law relied upon by petitioner to support her claim, petitioner has no basis for any kind of entitlement to tenure or seniority rights in a principal position. Spiewak v. Rutherford Board of Education, 90 N.J. 63 (1982); Sayreville Education Association v. Board of Education of Sayreville, 193 N.J. Super. 424 (App. Div. 1984)

Accordingly, petitioner's exceptions are deemed to be without merit and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the instant Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 16, 1992

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Lake & Schwartz (Robert M. Schwartz, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Matthew P. DeMaria (Glenn T. Leonard, Esq., of Counsel)

The decision of the Commissioner of Education is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein. We add, with regard to our rejection of Petitioner's claim to an assistant superintendent position, that tenure is achieved within a "position," Howley v. Bd. of Ed. of Ewing Township, decided by the Commissioner of Education, 1982 S.L.D. 1328, aff'd by the State Board of Education, 1983 S.L.D. 1554, and tenure protection as against nontenured individuals following a reduction in force extends only to assignments within that tenured position for which the individual is qualified by virtue of his or her certification. Div. 1992). See Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Ed., 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den., 110 N.J. 512 (1988); Capodilupo v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den., 109 N.J. 514 (1987); Herbert v. Board of Education of the Township of Middletown, decided by the State Board of Education, August 1, 1990, aff'd, Docket #A-318-90T1 (App. Div. 1991). Such protection does not extend to assignments within the purview of other separately tenurable positions in which the staff member has not achieved tenure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 or 18A:28-6. Kaprow, supra. As found by the Commissioner, Dennery v. Passaic Valley High Sch., 251 N.J. Super. 144 (App. Div. 1991), certif. granted, ____ N.J. ____ (1992) is distinguished in that the duties and responsibilities of Petitioner's abolished position and the new administrative assistant to the superintendent of curriculum and instruction position are significantly different.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured Speech Correctionist, alleged Board, in violation of her tenure and seniority rights, abolished her position and contracted with the Monmouth County Educational Services Commission (ESC) for identical services she had provided.

Initial decision found RIF was proper and that there was no statutory bar to contracting with an ESC for speech correctionist services because of economic reasons. (Hunterdon Central State Board decision) Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner affirmed findings and determination in initial decision. The Board acted in good faith on basis of economic reasons to abolish petitioner's position under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. No restrictions in education law were found to exist (Hunterdon Central) since an ESC, while not a board of education, is a creation of boards of education, and speech correctionists are not members of a basic child study team except in limited circumstances. Moreover, no allegation was made that the ESC speech correctionist did not have an identifiable apportioned commitment to the Shrewsbury Board or that he/she is not available during hours that pupils are in attendance. Record Closed: October 4, 1991 Decided: November 4, 1991

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Gillian Impey (petitioner) claims the Shrewsbury Board of Education (Board) improperly abolished her speech correctionist position and contracted out services, identical to those she performed, to the Monmouth County Educational Services Commission, in violation of her tenure and seniority rights.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was held, by telephone, on June 6, 1991. Among other things it was agreed that the matter would be heard on November 1, 1991 and that any motion for summary judgment would be filed by September 16, 1991. The parties timely moved and cross-moved for summary judgment. All submissions were made by October 4, 1991.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The parties submitted the following joint stipulation of facts and documents:

1. Petitioner Gillian Impey, holds certification as a Speech Correctionist from the Department of Education, State Board of Examiners, initially issued in July, 1970 and reissued March 1976.

2. Petitioner Gillian Impey was hired by the Shrewsbury Board of Education (hereafter "Board") as part-time Speech Correctionist effective March 1, 1970 through June 30, 1990.

3. By correspondence dated July 5, 1990 from David A. Winter, Board Secretary to Gillian Impey, the Board notified petitioner that the Board would discuss at a special meeting scheduled for Tuesday, July 10, 1990 the possibility of abolishing the position of Speech Correctionist. Exhibit A.

4. At the Board's special meeting of July 10, 1990, the Board voted to abolish the position of Speech Correctionist for the 1990-91 school year. Exhibit B.

5. At the Board's special meeting of July 10, 1990, the Board also adopted a resolution terminating the employment of the petitioner as a result of the abolishment of position and reduction in force. The Board further placed petitioner on a preferred eligibility list for re-employment in her area of seniority. Exhibit B.

6. By correspondence dated July 11, 1990 from Dr. Wayne A. Cochrane, Superintendent to Gillian Impey, the Board advised the petitioner that at the special meeting of the Board held on July 10, 1990, the Board adopted a resolution terminating her employment effective with the Board action as a result of abolishment of position and reduction in force. Additionally, petitioner was advised that based upon her tenure and seniority rights, she had been placed on a preferred eligibility list for recall to the position of Speech Correctionist. Exhibit C.

7. At the board's special meeting of July 10, 1990, the Board approved a contract with the Monmouth County Educational Services Commission to provide speech services for the school district for the 1990-91 school year for two days per week at a stipend of $20.00 per hour for five hours x two days per week for a total cost of $8,000.00 per year. Exhibit B.

8. The Monmouth County Educational Services Commission is a duly established agency organized in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-51 with the purpose of carrying on programs of educational research and development and providing to public school districts such educational and administrative services as may be authorized pursuant to the Rules of the State Board of Education. At the meeting of the State Board of Education held on June 2, 1982, the Monmouth County Educational Services Commission was approved to provide special education services to public school districts pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-51 and, 63 and 69. Exhibit D.

9. The Board's decision to abolish the position of Speech Correctionist and to contract with Monmouth County Educational Services Commission for speech services has had no adverse impact on the program needs of the school district for such speech services.

10. Petitioner's compensation for the 1989-90 school year was based upon Guide 5, Step 14 pro-rated as set forth in the Master Agreement between the Shrewsbury Education Association and the Shrewsbury Board of Education, resulting in a salary in the amount of $19,965.00 together with pro-rated longevity in the amount of $360.00 for a total salary of $20,325.00. Petitioner's salary for the 1990-91 school year is yet undetermined due to unsettled negotiations.

11. The use of the Educational Services Commission has resulted in a savings to the School District of Shrewsbury in the amount of at least $12,325.00 for the 1990-91 school year and for each year thereafter in which it participates in this contract arrangement.

12. The Shrewsbury School District is a K through 8 School District consisting of a total school enrollment in the amount of 375 students. The total school enrollment for the 1989-90 school year was 331 and for the 1990-91 school year the total was 358. The total number of students involved in the speech program for the 1989-90 school year was 37. The total number of students involved in the speech program for the 1990-91 school year was 37. The number of students involved in the speech program for the 1991-92 school year is 40.

13. During the 1989-90 school year, in addition to a Speech Correctionist, the Board employed a Learning Disability Teacher Consultant, School Psychologist and School Social Worker, and for the 1990-91 school year the Board employed a School Psychologist and School Social Worker.

14. In Monmouth County, the following school districts utilize the Monmouth County Educational Services Commission for special education services by having one or more members of the Child Study Team exclusively supplied in a contractual arrangement by the Commission: Avon, Spring Lake Heights, Neptune City, Shrewsbury and Deal.

I adopt the foregoing as FINDINGS OF FACT herein.

ARGUMENTS

Petitioner's Arguments

The petitioner asserts that the Board violated her tenure rights by failing to employ her as a speech correctionist in the district for the 1990-91 and subsequent school years. She enjoyed tenure as a teaching staff member and was a member of the district's Child Study Team (CST). The Commissioner of Education consistently has upheld the rights of teachers under tenure in the context of a reduction in force (RIF). Dedrick v. Hammonton Bd. of Ed., 1977 S.L.D. 1043; McKay v. Redbank Bd. of Ed., 1972 S.L.D. 606. These cases and many others stand for the proposition that tenured employees must be retained if positions for which they are qualified exist in the district and are held by persons with lesser or no seniority. The petitioner argues that it is irrelevant that her replacement was employed through a subcontracting relationship with the Monmouth County Educational Service Commission (ESC). The Board may not do by indirection that which it cannot do by direction.

Political subdivisions of the State, such as boards of education, are limited to powers granted by the Legislature either expressly or by necessary implication. See, e.g., Fair Lawn Ed. Ass'n v. Fair Lawn Bd. of Education, 79 N.J. 574 (1979); Wagner v. Newark, 24 N.J. 467 (1957). The Supreme Court has refused consistently to read powers into statutes giving political subdivisions of the State, including school boards, authority beyond that set forth on the face of a statute. In re Jamesburg High School Closing, 83 N.J. 540 (1980). In Jamesburg, the Commissioner ordered tenured teachers employed at a closed high school transferred to the Monroe and Spotswood High Schools where the Jamesburg pupils were sent. He relied on N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 and his action was affirmed by the State Board of Education. The Court, however, held the statute provided only that when a school is closed and the pupils are sent by agreement with another board of education to such other district, then the teaching staff members from the closed school who had tenure shall be employed by the board of the other district in the same or nearest equivalent position.

In construing statutory enactments, the controlling factor is the intendment of the Legislature. Matawan Borough v. Monmouth Cty. Tax Bd., 51 N.J. 291 (1968). The intent must be garnered from the plain language of the statute being reviewed. Witt v. Witt, 98 N.J. Super. 590, 595 (Ch. Div. 1967), and the words and phrases are to be read in context and given their generally accepted meaning according to the proved usage of the language. N.J.S.A. 1:11-1. When more than one statute is implicated, the statutes must be viewed in pari materia and the intent of the language used in each must be considered together. State Bd. of Med. Examiners v. Warren Hospital, 102 N.J. Super. 407 (Cty. Ct. 1968), aff'd 104 N.J. Super. 409 (App. Div. 1969). Statutes relating to the same subject matter must be construed so as to give each as much effect as possible. Bergen Cty. Bd. of Taxation v. Bor. of Bogota, 104 N.J. Super 499 (Law Div. 1969).

With all this in mind, the petitioner suggests that, as a general rule, a board is not permitted to provide professional services to its pupils by means of nonemployees. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1 provides:

> Each board of education, subject to the provisions of this title and of any other law, shall employ and may dismiss a secretary or a school business administrator to act as secretary and may employ and dismiss a superintendent of schools, a treasurer of school moneys, when and as provided by section 18A:13-14 or 18A:17-31, and such principals, teachers, janitors and other officers and employees, as it shall determine, and fix and alter their compensation and the length of their terms of employment.

Other sections of the Title authorize employment of other professional educational personnel; e.g., N.J.S.A. 18A:17-16 authorizing appointment and removal of assistant superintendents. Nowhere does the statute authorize nonemployees to perform educational services for pupils.

Administrative code provisions recognize a board's limited right to use nonemployees to perform professional duties for its pupils by providing:

N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.1(b):

> A child study team shall consist of a school psychologist, a learning disabilities teacher-consultant and a school social worker. For pupils ages 3 to 5, the study team shall include a speech correctionist or speech-language specialist. All members of the child study team shall be employees of a district board of education, have an identifiable, apportioned commitment to the local school district and shall be available during the hours pupils are in attendance. [Emphasis added by petitioner.]

N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1(f):

> Each district board of education, independently or through joint agreements, shall employ child study teams, speech correctionists or speech-language specialists and other school personnel in numbers sufficient to ensure provision of required programs and services pursuant to this chapter.

The petitioner also asserts that N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.3(f) [sic] provides:

> Prior approval by the Office of the County Superintendent of Schools and the Bureau of Special Education and Pupil Personnel Services shall be obtained for the purchase by any local school district of services of eligible, approved diagnostic clinics; agencys; or professionals in private practice representing basic child study team discipline to supplement members of the basic child study team. When such approval is granted to a local school district for the purchase of external diagnostic or professional services, the local school district's basic child study team shall develop and coordinate the appropriate individualized education program. [Emphasis added by petitioner.]

The petitioner urges that this limited exception permits an outside agency to supplement, but not supplant a board's own basic child study team. Although "supplement" is not defined in the Administrative Code, the courts have defined the word. In Jersey City v. Borst, 90 N.J.L. 454 (Sup. Ct. 1917), the court stated:

> [N]ow the ordinary meaning of the word "supplement" doubtless is a supplying by addition of what is wanting. Rahway Savings Institution v. Mayor, etc., of Rahway, 53 [N.J.L.] 48 [Sup. Ct. 1890].

The petitioner asserts that the Board cannot claim, after eliminating her two-day-a-week position as a teacher speech correctionist through a RIF, that an outside agency is needed "to supply by addition what is wanting." If there is a wanting or a need for supplementation, the cited statutes and regulations mandate that any needed additional work be performed by the basic child study team.

Cochran, et al . v. Watchung Bd. of Ed., 4 N.J.A.R. 163 (1983), aff'd St. Bd. of Ed. (Dec. 4, 1985), aff'd App. Div. (Dec. 22, 1986, A-2327-85T7) (unreported), held that a child study team had been improperly RIFed to part-time while transferring their abolished duties to an outside contractor.

The State Board decision made clear that a RIF may be reviewed to determine whether the position ostensibly abolished has not in fact been abolished, but merely transferred to another in violation of the incumbent's tenure and seniority rights. In its conclusion, the State Board said:

> The CST was intended by regulation to represent a multi-disciplinary approach to identifying, evaluating, and planning suitable educational programs for children with learning difficulties. N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.3(d)[1982].* The basic CST consisted of school psychologist, a learning disabilities teacher-consultant and a social worker, all of whom were expected to be employees of the local board of education. N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.3(a). Outside contractors were authorized in limited circumstances by N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.3(f), only with prior approval of the County Superintendent, and only for the purpose of supplementing existing team members. General CST work was still intended to be performed by employees of the local board. Nevertheless, in the instant case, the board set out to abolish full-time CST positions and replace them with half-time positions fully recognizing that more general CST contracting would be necessary because of anticipated case load. See, Affidavit of Joseph Sabo, at para. 3.
> Hence, the Board's intention was not an actual abolishment of positions, but a mere reorganization and transfer of duties to a less expensive provider. Under these circumstances the Board action taken here falls squarely within the prohibition of Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Ed., supra. The Commissioner and the ALJ correctly concluded that the integrity of the reduction in force decision was vitiated by the virtually contemporaneous decision to contract for additional CST services that the team, as originally constituted, would otherwise have performed. That being the case, the reduction in force decisions were properly voided, the full-time positions reinstated, and Petitioners ordered restored to those positions. [Slip opinion at 5-6.]

*Citation will be to the New Jersey Administrative Code as it existed in 1982. A major revision and recodification in 1984, effective July 16, 1984, made changes not relevant here.

The petitioner argues she functioned as a speech correctionist in the Shrewsbury Borough district for 20 years prior to the Board's decision to terminate her employment in July 1990. She was advised that based upon her tenure and seniority rights, she had been placed on a preferred eligibility list for recall to the position of speech correctionist.

On July 10, 1990, the Board approved a contract with the ESC to provide speech correctionist services for two days per week in the 1990-91 school year to pupils in the district. The individual speech correctionist assigned by the ESC pursuant to contract provided the same speech correctionist services that the petitioner provided during her prior years of employment. The Board's decision to enter into the ESC contract was motivated solely by a desire for a more cost-effective relationship, saving the district thousands of dollars a year.

For the reasons set forth in Cochran, above, the petitioner asserts her tenure rights were ignored by the Board when it failed to employ her for the 1990-91 school year and succeeding years to perform the same duties she had performed for over two decades.

If the Board's conduct is permitted to stand, the concept of tenure will be forever eviscerated in this State. Boards of education will be permitted to eliminate all tenured certified teaching personnel by entering into similar ESC relationships or by entering into other contractual arrangements with private teaching services.

Board's Arguments

The Board argues that it possesses the managerial prerogative to abolish the petitioner's position and to contract with the ESC for the district's speech correctionist services. Tenured employees' positions may be abolished. In re Maywood Bd. of Education, 168 N.J. Super. 45 (App. Div. 1979), certif. den. 81 N.J. 292 (1979); Jamison v. Morris Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ., 198 N.J. Super. 411 (App. Div. 1985).

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 authorizes a board to reduce the number of tenured teaching staff members for reasons of economy, because of reduction in the number of pupils, because of a change in the administrative or supervisory organization of the district, or for other good cause. Other statutes allow reduction of tenured janitorial and secretarial employees.

Despite the petitioner's objection to the Board's reasons behind implementation of the RIF, the law specifically sets forth that economy in operation is a valid and legal good faith, good cause justification for Board action. It is also well established that a public employer's decision to contract or subcontract for required services is a non-negotiable managerial prerogative. In re I.F.P.T.E. Local 195 v. State, 88 N.J. 393 (1982). A board of education has the legal authority to contract with many outside entities to provide needed services. N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.7, together with other statutory and regulatory provisions, permits a board of education to contract with an ESC for speech services. It was the Board's clear and absolute managerial prerogative both to abolish a position pursuant to law and to subcontract for the district's speech correctionist services.

In Hunterdon Central High School Ed. Ass'n v. Hunterdon Central High School Bd. of Ed., (N.J. App. Div., June 28, 1989, A-5036-87T2) (unreported), the Appellate Division determined that 21 tenured custodians, terminated because the Board decided to subcontract its custodial work to an independent contractor, were properly released notwithstanding that each enjoyed tenure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. In the present matter, it is undisputed that the Board's decision to abolish the speech correctionist position and contract for speech services with the ESC resulted in a more economical delivery of services. The provision of speech services through the ESC has had no adverse effect on the district's program. Therefore, as a matter of fact and law, the Board's action was a permissible exercise of its statutory authority notwithstanding the petitioner's tenure status at the time.

The Board also argues that it had express authority to contract for the speech services in question. N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.7 states that a board may contract with an educational improvement center, an educational services commission or another public or private agency, provided approved by the Commissioner and not church-affiliated, for provision of examination, classification and speech correctionist services. This statute has been addressed by the courts.

In Remedial Educ. & Diag. v. Essex Cty. Educ. Serv., 191 N.J. Super. 524 (App. Div. 1983), the ESC contracted with public school districts to provide auxiliary and remedial services for classified pupils. The ESC then subcontracted with a private organization to furnish the services and programs. The court analyzed the enabling legislation, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-51 et seq., and determined that the ESC was brought into existence for the purpose of providing educational services to the public school districts. In this case, the court found no authority for the ESC to subcontract.

However, the court went on to analyze N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.7 and found it expressly provided that, as to securing services for handicapped children, a board "may contract with an educational improvement center, an educational services commission . . . for the provision of examination, classification and speech correction services required by this act." The court knew of no reason why the Legislature differentiated between the powers granted to a local board and to an ESC. Nevertheless, the Legislature must have had a reason:

> [N]evertheless, . . . a reasoned basis for the distinction exists. In the case of a local board, the number of pupils in need of a particular auxiliary or remedial service could well be so small that the interests of teaching efficiency and economy would be better served by contracting on a per pupil basis with a private agency rather than by enlarging its facility to provide the needed services directly. An educational services commission, on the other hand, under contract with a large number of school districts and therefore serving a large pupil population, would probably experience a lower per pupil cost by providing services directly rather than through subcontracts with private agencys. 191 N.J. Super. at 528.

The petitioner's reliance on N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1 and other provisions of the administrative code for the proposition that a district's speech correctionist must be an employee of the board is contradicted by the specific statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.7, together with the court's interpretation of that statute in Remedial Education above.

Even if the various administrative code provisions cited do not support the position that speech correctionist services in a public school district must be provided by a speech correctionist employed by the district, N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.3 identifies three positions constituting the basic child study team, none of which is a speech correctionist. The enabling statutes, N.J.S.A. 18A:46-1 et seq., do not require districts to employ even these members of the basic child study team as employees of the district. N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 clearly permits boards to provide child study team services separately or jointly with one or more boards of education or approved state agencies. N.J.S.A. 18A:46-14 is consistent in that it enumerates various facilities and programs which are required to be provided by the local district for special education pupils. The facilities and programs include, in addition to special classes in the district, classes in hospitals, convalescent homes or other institutions, classes in public schools of another district, joint facilities to be provided by agreement between one or more school districts, a jointure commission and several other options. To the extent that administrative code is in conflict with the enabling statute, the statute must control. Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Ed., 221 N.J. Super. 239

(App. Div. 1987), certif. den. 110 N.J. Super. 512 (1988). In Bednar, above, the Appellate Division held that an administrative regulation promulgated by the State Board of Education was in direct conflict with the enabling statute and, therefore, was unenforceable. The threshold issue involved balancing the concepts of tenure and seniority. The court noted that the State Board attempted to fairly resolve a tension it perceived between tenure and seniority. The State Board's solution was to rule that tenure does not permit a teacher to claim an assignment in a job category in which he has no seniority against a nontenured teacher with experience in the category. However, the court noted that the State Board's approach was in error because the statute does not authorize regulatory dilution of tenure rights by affording a nontenured teacher seniority. The tension the State Board perceived between tenure and seniority is one the Board created. The rights conferred by tenure statute may not be dissolved by implementing regulations. The State Board's approach may or may not represent sound educational policy. Nevertheless, it erodes tenure rights that "appear plain on the face of the statute, which we are bound to recognize and which can be removed only by the Legislature." Id. at 242-243.

In light of this clear analysis, to the extent that N.J.A.C. 6:28 conflicts with N.J.S.A. 18A:46, the statutes must prevail. The legal authority given to a school district under N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.7 to contract for special education services may not be diluted or eroded by conflicting regulations requiring a board to provide speech services only through its own employee(s).

The Board further argues that even under the administrative code regulations addressing a speech correction, speech is specifically categorized as a related service, similar to transportation, physical therapy, occupational therapy, etc. Related services can be contracted for by a school district. A school district is not required to employ any one or more of the properly licensed personnel needed for each specific related educational service.

In N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.3, speech-language services are among the defined related services. Not only is there express permission to contract for speech -related services, N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.7, but the applicable provisions of the statute and administrative code do not require that a provider of speech-language services be a district employee.

The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), 20 U.S.C. §1400 et seq., formerly known as the Education of the Handicapped Act (EHA), provides federal moneys to assist state and local education agencies to provide educational services to handicapped children. Handicapped children, as defined by the IDEA, are those having specific impairments and who, because of those impairments, require special education and related services. 20 U.S.C. §1401(1). As a condition of receiving federal funds, each state must comply with an extensive set of goals and procedures to ensure that all handicapped children have access to a free, appropriate public education (FAPE). State plans must include a description of facilities, personnel services and the timetable for making such education available, assurances that each local education agency will develop an individualized educational program (IEP) for each handicapped child, and the establishment of procedural safeguards to protect the rights of children, parents and guardians.

Just as the State is responsible for assuring compliance with the provisions of the IDEA, local school districts seeking funds under the IDEA must submit an application to the state education agency. The pertinent federal regulation, 34 C.F.R. §300.1, states in pertinent part:

> The purpose of this part is
> (a) To insure that all handicapped children have available to them a free appropriate public education which includes special education and related services to meet their unique needs.

34 C.F.R. §300.13(a) states:

> As used in this part the term related services means transportation and such developmental, corrective and other supportive services as are required to assist a handicapped child to benefit from special education, and includes speech pathology and audiology, psychological services, physical and occupational therapy, recreation, early identification and assessment of disabilities in children, counseling services, and medical services for diagnostic or evaluation purposes. The term also includes school health services, social work services in schools, and parent counseling and training. [Emphasis in original.]

34 C.F.R. 300.13(a)(12) states:

> Speech pathology includes:
> (i) Identification of children with speech or language disorders;

(ii) Diagnosis and appraisal of specific speech or language disorders;

(iii) Referral for medical or other professional attention necessary for the habilitation of speech or language disorders;

(iv) Provisions of speech and language services for the habilitation or prevention of communicative disorders; and

(v) Counseling and guidance of parents, children, and teachers regarding speech and language disorders.

The State of New Jersey has complied with the Federal Act. It has adopted policies and procedures to meet the standards of the IDEA by statutes and by regulations promulgated by the State Board as well as through the state plan submitted to and approved by the federal government. Acceptance of federal funds under the IDEA makes provisions of the Act binding upon the State.

Considering all fact and law presented in this argument, there can be no question that the threshold determination of whether the action by the Board to subcontract speech correction services with an ESC violated the election laws must be answered in favor of the Board. The Board had discretion to implement a reduction in force and to abolish the speech position for economic reasons. The Board has specific authority to contract with an ESC for specific related services that include speech correction. There is nothing in federal or state law that mandates employment of a speech correctionist by a school district. Rather, the district is required to ensure that speech services are made available to those pupils in need of them. The Shrewsbury Board of Education had the legal right to contract with the ESC for speech services, much the same way it contracts with other outside agencies for the provision of transportation, occupational therapy, physical therapy, counseling, psychiatric assessment and medical services for diagnostic or evaluative purposes. Notwithstanding the protections of the tenure statute, the exercise of authority invested in the Board in this matter should be sustained.

DETERMINATION

Code Provisions

Under general provisions, N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1(f) requires that

> Each district board of education, independently or through joint agreements, shall employ child study teams, speech correctionist or speech -language specialists and other school personnel in numbers sufficient to ensure provisions of required programs and services pursuant to this chapter

This rule distinguishes child study teams from speech correctionists or speech-language specialists. It also recognizes that these services may be provided independently by the board or through joint agreements.

Concerning parental notice, consent, participation and meetings, N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.3(h) provides:

> Meetings shall be conducted to determine eligibility and to develop, review and revise the basic plan of a pupil's individualized education program.
> 1. Each meeting shall include the following participants:
>
> i. The parent(s);
> ii. Teacher(s) having knowledge of the pupil's educational performance;
> iii. The pupil, where appropriate;
> iv. At least one member of the child study team;
> v. Referring certified school personnel, the school principal or designee and other appropriate individuals if they choose to participate; and > vi. A curriculum consultant from the Department of Human Services, for those pupils classified as eligible for day training.

A speech correctionist or speech-language specialist, although such person could be involved, is not required by this rule to be involved in formulation, review and revision of IEPs.

N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.1(b) states:

> A child study team shall consist of a school psychologist, a learning disabilities teacher-consultant and a school social worker. For pupils ages three to five, the study team shall include a speech correctionist or speech-language specialist. All members of the child study team shall be employees of a district board of education, have an identifiable, apportioned commitment to the local school district and shall be available during the hours pupils are in attendance.

According to this rule, all members of the child study team shall be employees of a district board of education, have a recognized percentage of their time committed to the local school district and shall be available during normal school hours. The rule does say that for pupils ages three to five, the CST shall include a speech correctionist or speech-language specialist. About this, more below.

Concerning evaluation, N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.4(d) provides:

> An initial evaluation shall consist of the following:
>
> 5. For children ages three to five, a speech and language assessment shall be the responsibility of a speech correctionist or speech-language specialist employed by the district board of education. The assessment shall include observation of the pupil, communication with the parent(s) and an evaluation and analysis of speech and language development.

N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.4(f) provides:

> Evaluation by additional specialists may be required as listed in N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.5(c).

That reference, N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.5(c) dealing with determination of eligibility, states in pertinent part:

> Classification of pupils determined to be eligible for special education and/or related services shall be determined collaboratively by the child study team, parent(s) and, if they choose to participate, the school principal and referring staff members. Classification according to the following definitions shall be based on all evaluations conducted:
> 1. "Auditorily handicapped" . . . . Evaluations by a specialist qualified in the field of audiology and a speech and language evaluation by a certified speech correctionist or speech-language specialist are required.

2. "Autistic" . . . . An evaluation by a certified speech correctionist or speech-language specialist and an evaluation by a physician trained in neurodevelopmental assessment is required.

3. "Chronically ill" . . . . Evaluation by the school physician or his or her review and written acceptance of the medical report of another physician is required. The school nurse shall assist in the accumulation of the data necessary to determine eligibility.

4. "Communication handicapped" . . . . A evaluation by a certified speech correctionist or speech-language specialist is required.

5. "Emotionally disturbed". . . . An evaluation by a psychiatrist experienced in working with children is required.

7. "Multiply handicapped" . . . . Evaluations by all specialists required in this subsection for the separate handicapping conditions being considered for the determination of "multiply handicapped" are required.

8. "Neurologically or perceptually impaired" . . . .

   i. "Neurologically impaired". . . . An evaluation by a physician trained in neuro-developmental assessment is required.

10. "Orthopedically handicapped" . . . . An evaluation by a physician qualified to conduct an orthopedic evaluation is required.

11. "Socially maladjusted" . . . . If determined necessary by the child study team, an evaluation by a psychiatrist experienced in working with children is to be obtained.

12. "Visually handicapped" . . . . An evaluation by a specialist qualified to determine visual disability is required.

All of the above show the clear intent to match expertise with a suspected handicap. Obviously, virtually no school district is going to employ all of the specialists these rules refer to.

Concerning individualized education program, N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.6 states:

> (c) The basic plan of the individualized education program shall be developed with the participation of the parent(s) and members of the district board of education child study team who have participated in the evaluation and any additional persons required to attend a meeting according to N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.3(h) [above].
> (d) When a pupil has been classified as eligible for speech-language services or the school physician has determined an educationally handicapped pupil needs home instruction, the individualized program meeting shall be as follows:
> 1. For pupils classified as eligible for speech-language services, the meeting shall be attended by the parent(s) and, when appropriate, the pupil. The speech correctionist or speech-language specialist shall attend.

N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.8 speaks to related services. See, 34 C.F.R. §300.13, above. The New Jersey code requires, among other things, that counseling services for educationally handicapped pupils be provided within the public schools during the school day by certified school psychologists, social workers or guidance counselors; that occupational and/or physical therapy be provided by educationally certified therapists; that recreation be provided by certified school personnel and that a district board of education may contract with approved clinics and agencies for the provision of occupational and/or physical therapy. At N.J.A.C. 6:28-4.3, the code goes on to provide:

> (a) Supplementary instruction and speech-language services provided to educationally handicapped pupils shall be in addition to the regular instructional program and shall meet the following criteria:
> . . .
> 5. Speech-language services shall be provided by a certified speech correctionist or speech-language specialist.

Nothing in the rules suggests that related speech-language services must be provided by an employee of the district board of education.

Discussion

The rule the petitioner cites concerning county superintendent approval of professionals in private practice to supplement the basic CST, N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.3(f), was deleted from the administrative code effective August 3, 1983. 15 N.J.R. 1470 (Sep. 6, 1983). See, now, N.J.A.C. 6:28-5.1(d).

The statute the Board cites, N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.7, does give legal authority to contract with many outside entities to provide needed services. However, N.J.S.A. 18A:46-19.7 is part of Article 14A of Chapter 46 and is restricted to remedial services for handicapped children in nonpublic schools. See, L. 1977, c. 193.

The petitioner properly points out that political subdivisions of the State are limited to powers granted by the Legislature, either expressly or by necessary implication. The petitioner concededly enjoyed a tenured status. The question to be answered, then, is whether the Board has the authority to purchase the services the petitioner rendered from an ESC and RIF the petitioner, notwithstanding her tenured status. For the reasons that follow, the answer is yes.

There is no broad prohibition on subcontracting in the education laws. Hunterdon Central, above, State Board decision at 11. And, as in Hunterdon Central, no statute directly bars contracting for speech correction services. Cochran, above, was subject to restriction and, therefore, is distinguishable from the present case. N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 provides:

> Each board of education and State operated program shall separately or jointly with one or more boards of education or State agencies provide for basic child study services. The basic child study team shall consist of a school psychologist, a learning disability teacher consultant and a school social worker, ...

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 provides:

> Nothing in this title or any other law relating to tenure service shall be held to limit the right of any board of education to reduce the number of teaching staff members, employed in the district whenever in the judgment of the board, it is advisable to abolish any such positions for reasons of economy or because of reduction of the number of pupils or of change in the administrative or supervisory organization of the district or for other good cause upon compliance with the provisions of this article.

The article referred to was Article 3 of Chapter 8, "Effect of reduction of force upon persons under tenure." The article includes N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 through 18A:28-14. The plain meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 is that a RIF, if done for reasons of economy, is within the authority of the board. Jamison v. Morris School Dist. Bd. of Educ., 198 N.J. Super. 411 (App. Div. 1985).

The Board has the authority to reduce force for economic reasons and there is no statutory bar to contracting for speech correction services. There is nothing in the record that even suggests a Board motive other than economy. Therefore, the petitioner's termination by the Board did not contravene her rights under the education laws notwithstanding that she enjoys tenure. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. That statute and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 require only that the Board's decision to abolish the position and to contract for the services be made in good faith. In consideration of the record, I FIND that the termination complained of herein was a legitimate reduction in force for economic reasons. I also FIND no statutory bar to contracting with an ESC for speech correction services. I further FIND no evidence of an ulterior motive; the impetus was economic.

Chapter 28 of N.J.A.C. Title 6 echoes the federal requirements. A fair reading of the appropriate C.F.R. indicates the emphasis is that services be provided by qualified personnel rather than on how they are provided. As is readily seen from the rule excerpts, each board of education must employ child study teams, speech correctionist or speech-language specialists and other school personnel in numbers sufficient to ensure that required programs and services are delivered. N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1(f) says that boards must provide required programs and services independently or through joint agreements. Even reading this most favorably to the petitioner, it remains that there is no statutory bar to providing these services on a contracted basis. The petitioner's strongest support appears to be at N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.1(b), which says, among other things, that for pupils ages three to five, the CST shall include a speech correctionist or speech-language specialist. This language is echoed in

N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.4(d)5, which requires for children ages three to five that a speech and language assessment shall be the responsibility of a speech correctionist or speech-language specialist employed by the district board of education. But N.J.A.C. 6:28-5.1, dealing with approved clinics and agencies, says at subsection (c):

> Services which may be contracted shall be restricted to the following:
> 1. For public school pupils:
>
> i. Independent child study team evaluation and /or child study team diagnostic services to supplement existing local district services; and > ii. The related services of occupational therapy and physical therapy.

Boards of education may purchase the listed services, obviously including speech correction services, provided they secure prior written approval through the county office of the Department of Education. If the Board here has not already secured that approval, it is DIRECTED to request it forthwith. N.J.A.C. 6:28-5.1(d).

Again, in the words of the State Board in Hunterdon Central, above, the education laws do not prohibit subcontracting. Rather, those laws recognize the authority of a district board to contract for materials, supplies and services. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 et seq., the Public Schools Contracts Law. The exercise of authority to contract may be limited by other provisions of the education laws. However, the petitioner has identified no law that would prohibit contracting for speech correction services.

N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 provides:

> Each board of education and State operated program shall separately or jointly with one or more boards of education or State agencies provide for basic child study team services. The basic child study team shall consist of a school psychologist, a learning disability teacher-consultant and a school social worker, and for the purposes of evaluation and classification shall include pertinent information from certified school personnel making the referral. This information shall be considered in the evaluation and classification process as defined in N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1 et seq.
> The referring certified school personnel and the school principal, or his designee, may attend the classification conference as defined in N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1 et seq. and participate in the classification decision.

This statute does not limit the power of a district board of education to contract for speech correction services. Other statutes give the Commissioner several opportunities to prescribe rules. N.J.S.A. 18A:46-6 authorizes uniform rules prescribed by the Commissioner for the identification of children who because of handicaps cannot properly be accommodated through regular school facilities. Similarly, the Commissioner promulgates rules concerning identification of children between the ages of three and five who require and would be benefited by special education. The Commissioner has other rule making powers, express and implied. However, no administrative rule may contravene a statute.

N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2(c) defines contracts for the purposes of the public school contracts law as meaning contracts or agreements for the performance of work or the furnishing or hiring of services, materials or supplies as distinguished from contracts of employment. The same statute defines professional services as those services rendered or performed by a person authorized by law to practice a recognized profession and whose practice is regulated by law and the performance of which services requires knowledge of an advanced type in a field of learning acquired by a prolonged formal course of specialized instruction and study as distinguished from general academic instruction or apprenticeship and training.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-51 et seq. creates Educational Services Commissions and defines their powers. An ESC operates much in the same manner as a district board of education. Among its powers is the sale of services, pursuant to contract, to school districts whether member districts of the Commission or not. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-51(f).

The sales of these services being expressly authorized by the Legislature, they cannot be thwarted by an administrative adoption.

In consideration of the foregoing, I FIND:

1. The Shrewsbury Borough Board of Education abolished the part-time position of speech correctionist for the 1990-91 school year at its special meeting of July 10, 1990. Stipulation 4.

2. The Board also terminated the petitioner's employment as part-time speech correctionist for the 1990-91 school year at that meeting and placed her on a preferred eligibility list. Stipulation 5.

3. The Board contracted with the Monmouth County Educational Services Commission to provide speech correctionist services to the district at the rate of $20 per hour for five hours a day, two days per week, a total of $8,000 per year. Stipulation 7.

4. The sole motive of the Board's actions was economic.

5. There is no legal impediment to the purchase of speech correction services, as opposed to employment of one or more speech correctionists, by a board of education.

6. The decision to contract out work or to subcontract is an area where managerial interests dominate. Unless in violation of law or patently uneconomical, the locus of the decision should remain with the public employer. In re IFPTE, above.

I CONCLUDE the Board's decision to purchase speech correction services, which resulted in the petitioner's termination, was for good cause and not inconsistent with the law.

The Board's action having been a lawful exercise of its legislatively invested powers, I ORDER the present petition of appeal DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

GILLIAN IMPEY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF SHREWSBURY, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION

Petitioner's exceptions aver that the ALJ ignored her tenure rights, seniority rights and re-employment entitlements in rendering his recommended decision. As to this, petitioner contends, inter alia, that there was no legitimate reduction in force effectuated by the Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, but merely a reorganization and transfer of the duties of a tenured teaching staff member to a less expensive provider through the mechanism of contracting out speech correction services to the Monmouth County Educational Services Commission (ESC). Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Ed., 5 N.J. Super. 215 (App. Div. 1949)

Petitioner also avers that the ALJ erred in failing to conclude that the relevant statutes and regulations relating to child study team operations in New Jersey require the employment of an in-district speech correctionist exclusively unless there is a need to supplement services performed by tenured personnel. In support of this, she reiterates those regulatory citations which she believes fully substantiate her tenure and seniority contentions in this matter; namely, N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1, 1.1(f), 3.1, 3.4, 5.1 in general and 5.1(c)2ii and 5.1(d) in particular. See Petitioner's Exceptions at pages 11-14.

Petitioner further maintains that the ALJ totally ignored the relevance of the State Board of Education and Appellate Division decisions in Cochran, supra, avowing, inter alia, that, if anything, her case is far stronger than the case on behalf of the petitioners in that matter because her job was totally eliminated and she was replaced by a nontenured contracted speech correctionist. She also maintains that the Appellate Division and Supreme Court decisions relied upon in part by the ALJ are totally inapplicable to the instant matter, namely, Remedial Educational, supra, and In re IFPTE Local 195, supra. More specifically, petitioner argues that in the former matter, the court merely states educational services commissions did not have the authority to subcontract or delegate to a private agency its obligations to provide remedial services even in a supplemental context and in the latter case, the Supreme Court stated in part that its decision did not leave public employees vulnerable to arbitrary or capricious substitutions of private workers for public employees.

In summary, petitioner avers that:

> In the instant matter, for all the reasons set forth in this Brief and in the Summary Decision Brief annexed to these Exceptions, it is averred that there are critically important statutes and regulations governing the tenure, seniority and > re-employment rights of school district personnel, such as speech correctionists, that clearly would be abrogated if a local Board of Education was permitted to terminate the employment of tenured personnel only to replace said personnel with Educational Services Commission employees. In addition, based upon the regulations previously summarized in Point II, it is clear that there are preemptive regulations specifically referring to supplemental services that could be contracted for to assist existing child study teams that strongly substantiates the legal contentions of the Petitioner in this case. More specifically, those regulations mandate the employment of speech correctionists, as Board of Education employees, except under certain delineated circumstances that are clearly inapplicable to the instant matter; i.e. Boards of Education could in non-public school pupil situations employ speech correctionists in a supplemental capacity. (emphasis in text)

The Board's reply exceptions point out that on page 20 of the initial decision the ALJ references the requirement for prior written approval through the county superintendent for purchase of outside speech services. It provides a copy of the written approval issued by the Monmouth County Superintendent, Milton Hughes, on November 18, 1991, which was apparently obtained as a result of the directive of the ALJ to secure such permission if it had not already been done. The Board further urges that the ALJ's decision be affirmed because it confirms several essential tenets of education law, namely that

1. A board of education has the explicit statutory authority to implement a good faith, good cause reduction in force for economic reasons.

2. A board has the explicit statutory authority to contract with outside approved agencies for certain related services.

3. These statutory powers may be exercised at a board's discretion when exercised in good faith and in the absence of specific countervailing statutory and regulatory prohibition.

The Board also avers that petitioner distorts the ALJ's opinion as well as its actions in asserting that her tenure, seniority and employment rights were ignored. It maintains that careful review of the initial decision reveals that the ALJ is fully cognizant of the rights and entitlements of petitioner and liberally cited its requirements to abide by same. The Board also contends that petitioner's reliance on Viemeister, supra, is misplaced because in the instant matter it has been stipulated by the parties that the abolishment of position was done in good faith. Moreover, the ALJ correctly concluded that a district may provide for speech services by contracting out with an ESC in that N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 clearly sets forth that a board may provide for such services separately or jointly with one or more boards of education or approved state agencies. The Board also relies upon N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1 and 5.1 to support that there is no prohibition for contracting speech correction services and it further avers that statute does not require speech correctionist services as part of the basic child study team. As to this latter point, the Board maintains that to the extent that the administrative code exceeds the statute, it is invalid and unenforceable. Bednar, supra

As to petitioner's contention that the ALJ ignored Cochran, supra, the Board asserts that the ALJ did properly consider that decision and correctly determine that the prohibition set forth in Cochran on the subcontracting rights for services of a basic child study team (school psychologist, LDTC and school social worker) did not apply to speech correctionists. In similar vein, the Board also urges that the ALJ properly relied on In re IFPTE, supra; Hunterdon Central, supra; and Remedial Education, supra.

In summary, the Board argues that:

> In conclusion, Judge Campbell's initial decision confirms and reaffirms basic education principles as they are plainly set forth in statutes, administrative code provisions and developed precedent case law. The decision by the Shrewsbury Board of Education in this matter was clearly authorized by the relevant and applicable Federal and State statutes. The Board's management prerogative to contract for speech services is based upon established precedent and authority. The parties' stipulated record sets forth that the reduction in force and abolishment of petitioner's position were implemented in good faith. There is a clear absence of specific legal prohibition on the Board's contracting rights for the particular services in question. Judge Campbell's decision that the Board's decision to purchase speech correction services, which resulted in the petitioner's termination, was for good cause and not inconsistent with the law[,] was legally proper and should be sustained. (Board's Reply Exceptions, at p. 4)

Upon review of the record in this matter, including the exceptions filed by the parties, and the statutes and regulations pertinent to this matter, the Commissioner agrees with and adopts the ALJ's recommendation to dismiss the Petition of Appeal for the reasons set forth below.

The ALJ is correct in recognizing that the issue to be decided herein is whether the Board has the authority to purchase the speech correctionist services petitioner had rendered to the Shrewsbury school district from an ESC and RIF her, notwithstanding her tenured status in the district. (Initial decision, at p. 18) The ALJ is further correct in citing the State Board of Education decision in Hunterdon Central, supra, wherein it is determined that there is no broad prohibition in education laws against a board of education subcontracting for the delivery of services, even those provided by tenured staff. In that decision the State Board also ruled, however, that while there is no blanket prohibition on subcontracting, such authority may be limited by other provisions of education law. In the Hunterdon matter no such limitation on subcontracting custodial services of tenured staff was found to exist. In contrast, the State Board found in Cochran, supra, that the board's action therein "involved contracting that was subject to regulatory restriction." (Hunterdon State Board, Slip Opinion, at p. 12)

In the instant matter, the ALJ correctly recognized that no restrictions in education law limited the Shrewsbury Board of Education's authority to subcontract speech correction services.

N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1(f) requires that

> (f) Each district board of education, independently or through joint agreements shall employ child study teams, speech correctionists or speech-language specialists and other school personnel in numbers sufficient to ensure provision of required programs and services pursuant to this chapter.

N.J.S.A. 18A:46-5.1 provides that

> Each board of education and State operated program shall separately or jointly with one or more boards of education or State agencies provide for basic child study team services. The basic child study team shall consist of a school psychologist, a learning disability teacher consultant and a school social worker, and for the purposes of evaluation and classification shall include pertinent information from certified school personnel making the referral. This information shall be considered in the evaluation and classification process as defined in N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1 et seq.
> The referring certified school personnel and the school principal, or his designee, may attend the classification conference as defined in N.J.A.C. 6:28-1.1 et seq. and participate in the classification decision.

While an education services commission is not a board of education, it is a creation of two or more local boards of education and the ESC's board of directors is comprised of representatives of each member board of education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-52 through 55 Further, a speech correctionist is not a member of a basic child study team except in matters involving children ages 3-5, N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.1(b); thus, the instant matter is distinguishable from Cochran, supra, which involved the subcontracting of basic child study team services. More importantly, however, N.J.A.C. 6:28-5.1 which petitioner relies so heavily upon sets forth the types of programs and services which may be subcontracted by a board of education for public and nonpublic school students through clinics and agencies, not educational services commissions which are regulated by subchapter 7 of N.J.A.C. 6:28. Finally, there is no allegation that the ESC speech correctionist does not have an identifiable apportioned commitment to the Shrewsbury Board or that he/she is not available during the hours pupils are in attendance. N.J.A.C. 6:28-3.1(b)

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth in the initial decision and herein, and having found petitioner's remaining exceptions to be without merit, the Commissioner dismisses the Petition of Appeal.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Unsuccessful candidate for seat on school board alleged violations of statutorily prescribed procedures which affected the outcome of the election.

ALJ concluded that irregularities and deviations from the election laws occurred and were sufficient to have caused the will of the people not to have been fairly expressed, particularly in view of the closeness of the election results. ALJ ordered conduct of a special election pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-15(d).

Commissioner affirmed the initial decision of the ALJ and further directed that a copy of the final decision be forwarded to the Camden County Prosecutor's Office.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN CHESILHURST SCHOOL DISTRICT, CAMDEN COUNTY,

William C. O'Brien, Jr., Esq., for the petitioner, Debra Barney

Harvey C. Johnson, Esq., for the respondent, Board of Education, Chesilhurst School District

Record Closed: September 12, 1991 Decided: December 10, 1991

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This is a petition by Debra Barney (petitioner), an unsuccessful candidate in the annual school board election held for seats on the Board of Education, Chesilhurst School District (Board or respondent). The petitioner pursues an inquiry under N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12. She alleges violations of statutorily prescribed procedures which affected the outcome of the election.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

An election was held on April 30, 1991, to fill two seats on the Board of Education of the Chesilhurst School District. The petitioner was an unsuccessful candidate. On May 1, 1991, the petitioner requested an inquiry be conducted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-63.12 by the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner). On May 6, 1991, the Commissioner granted the petitioner's request for an inquiry and transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on May 14, 1991, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

The hearing commenced on June 14, 1991, at the Municipal Courtroom, Waterford Township Municipal Building, Atco, New Jersey. The hearing continued on June 17, 1991, at the same location. A telephone conference was held between the parties on July 8, 1991. The hearing was scheduled to continue on July 11, 1991; however, on July 9, 1991, the respondent requested the hearing be adjourned as the Board president and Board secretary were not available on that date. This request for an adjournment was granted, and the hearing was rescheduled. The hearing continued on July 29, 1991, at the Municipal Courtroom, Berlin Township Municipal Building, West Berlin, New Jersey. The hearing continued on July 31, 1991, August 2, 1991, and August 14, 1991, again in Atco, New Jersey. The record remained open at the conclusion of the hearing at the respondent's request in order to afford the parties the opportunity to submit written summations and briefs. I received the petitioner's brief on August 26, 1991. I received the respondent's brief on September 4, 1991, and I received the petitioner's reply brief on September 12, 1991, and the record closed at that time. On November 18, 1991, the Commissioner granted an extension of time for the filing of this initial decision pursuant to P.L. 1978, c. 687, §8 (c), and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The petitioner, Debra Barney, and LeRoy Berry were incumbent members of the Chesilhurst School Board who sought reelection. Mrs. Barney had been a member of the Chesilhurst Democratic Club and her husband had been a municipal councilman and is the local fire chief.

The president of the Chesilhurst School Board, Lawrence B. James, is a Camden County Democratic committeeman and is chairman of the Chesilhurst Democratic Party. Mr. James decided to attempt to unseat Mrs. Barney and Mr. Berry, and he solicited Ethel Dixon, the wife of Democratic Club vice president Nathan Dixon, and Norman Robinson to run for the School Board. Mr. James assisted the organization of the Dixon/Robinson campaign and organized support for his ticket. He was assisted by Elaris Robinson, president of the Chesilhurst Democratic Club and Borough Council. A campaign flier supporting the election of Dixon and Robinson was mailed using the Democratic Club's postal permit (P-5).

Approximately a week before the election, Mr. James telephoned Harry L. Cooper, manager of the R&M Guest Home.[1] The R&M Guest Home is a state-licensed residential health care facility. It houses residents with mental deficiencies. The residents come to R&M Guest Home from state institutions such as Ancora State Psychiatric Hospital and Lakeland Developmental Center and private hospitals such as Our Lady of Lourdes. R&M Guest Home is considered to be one level above institutionalization in the state residential health care system. The residents are on medication which includes Thorazine, Novane, Coget, Prolixin, Stellazine and Diazazen. Some of the residents get injections. The purpose of the drugs is to control their behavior.

Mr. James requested that Mr. Cooper allow him to bring Mrs. Dixon and Mr. Robinson to the Guest Home and allow them to speak to the residents. Mr. Cooper granted this request.

On the Saturday before the election, Mr. James brought Mr. & Mrs. Dixon and Mr. Robinson to the Guest Home. The candidates brought soda and cookies to the Guest Home for the residents. Mr. Cooper announced over the public address system that all residents were to come to the dayroom. Upon gathering all of the residents, Mr. Cooper announced that two candidates had come to speak to them.

At that point a few residents departed but most remained. Between 40 and 50 residents were in attendance. Mr. James introduced himself as the Board president, said a few words, and then introduced the candidates. The candidates then addressed the residents. At the conclusion of the talk, a campaign flier was distributed to the residents (R-3). The campaign flier was written by Mr. James, and he was the author of the Dixon/Robinson campaign slogan: "the two in the middle" (referring to their ballot positions).

Numerous residents of the R&M Guest Home testified that Mr. Cooper had them register to vote. Mr. Cooper routinely tells residents whom to vote for and transports them to the polls on election day.

[1] Mr. Cooper is a member of the Chesilhurst Democratic Club, but he is not an active member.

On election day Mr. Cooper, Elaris Robinson and Ed Bryant drove residents from the R&M Guest Home to the polls to vote. At the polls, Mr. Cooper took numerous residents into the voting booth and assisted them in voting. The election board workers did not administer an oath to any of the residents and did not inquire as to whether the residents were unable to read or write, were blind or had other physical disabilities which would make them unable to mark their ballots without assistance. The judge of the election, Pauline Peters, automatically granted any request by Mr. Cooper or a resident to allow Mr. Cooper to enter the voting booth with a resident. Mr. Cooper signed his name on a piece of paper indicating whom he assisted; however, this piece of paper cannot be located. Delia Henson, an election board worker who has served as the election judge in prior elections, was responsible for checking registrations and signatures in the registration books. She also verified that she did not know if any of the residents needed assistance in voting, that the residents were not asked why they needed assistance, that no oath was administered, and that no inquiry was made by the election board. She did however, indicate that she was concerned about one person, Mr. Cooper, helping so many people vote; however, she made no official inquiry into the practice. The election board merely let Mr. Cooper enter the voting booth whenever he desired.

At one point a resident yelled out from the voting booth "Now what do I do? Who do I vote for?" Mr. Clarence Covington, an incumbent School Board member who was not up for reelection this year and whose wife is on the Borough Council and is a member of the Democratic Club, heard Mr. Cooper yell back, "You vote for the two in the middle." Mrs. Barney also testified to this occurrence. Mrs. Henson also heard the response, "vote for the two in the middle," however, she could not identify who said it.

Mrs. Barney remained at the polls for most of the day as an observer. She testified that several R&M Guest Home residents shouted out from inside the voting booth, "we vote for the two in the middle, right Mr. Cooper?" and Mr.Cooper responded "yes." One woman yelled from the voting booth, "Mr. Cooper, I don't know who to vote for and who did you say to vote for?" and Mr. Cooper then entered the voting booth. Mrs. Henson also testified to this occurrence. While residents were standing in line waiting to vote, some residents would say "do we vote for the two in the middle, Mr. Cooper?" and Mr. Cooper responded, "the two in the middle, right." Mrs. Peters also heard residents asking Mr. Cooper whom they should vote for and heard him respond, "you know who to vote for." At one point, Mrs. Henson asked Mr. Covington if, as a School Board member, he could stop the people from shouting out whom to vote for or what to do; however, Mr. Covington believed he had no authority over the election and told her he could do nothing.

Numerous residents of the R&M Guest Home testified in this proceeding. Deborah Earp indicated that on election day Mr. Cooper placed her in the car to go to the polls. She did not even know it was election day. She indicated that she is not from the area and did not know whom to vote for. Mr. Cooper entered the voting booth with her and told her for whom to vote. Mr. Cooper tells her whom to vote for, and she generally follows his suggestions. She does not solicit Mr. Cooper's advice; he just gives it to her. She thought she was voting to elect teachers to teach in the school not School Board members.

Florence Clifford testified that Mr.Cooper took her to the polls on election day. Prior to leaving for the polls, Mr. Cooper told her whom to vote for. Mr. Cooper gave Ms. Clifford a piece of paper indicating whom to vote for. He also entered the voting booth with her. Inside the voting booth, Mr. Cooper again told Ms. Clifford for whom to vote. Ms. Clifford indicated that Mr. Cooper tells her whom to vote for in other elections also, and she does what he says. Ms.Clifford volunteered, as did Ms. Earp, that she voted for herself (exercised her own judgment). These statements were blurted out and were not in response to any question. Upon further examination, Ms. Clifford admitted that prior to testifying, Mr. Cooper had instructed her to say that she had voted for herself. Mr. Cooper instructed her to testify that she had signed her own name and that she had voted for whom she wanted. Ms. Clifford testified that she believed she was voting to elect the principal of the school, not School Board members. Ms.Clifford's responses on cross-examination that she made up her own mind whom to vote for, had not been threatened, and always voted her own free will appeared to be rehearsed, and based upon her direct examination, I do not believe she exercised her own independent judgment when she voted.

Elizabeth Wells testified that Mr. Cooper told her that she had to go vote and gave her a piece of paper indicating whom to vote for. He then took her to the polls. Mr. Cooper told her to vote for the people on the paper. Ms. Wells volunteered, as did Ms. Clifford and Ms. Earp, that she voted on her own and made her own selection. She did hear someone say vote for the "two in the middle" while she was standing in line at the polling place. She believed she was voting to elect school teachers and she voted for the only school teacher who was running.[2]

Beverly Jones remembered the campaign party and the free sodas. She did not know Mrs. Dixon or Mr. Robinson but Mr. Cooper said to trust them. They were his friends. Mr. Cooper took her to the polls and Mr. Cooper told her for whom to vote. She stated that Mr. Cooper would not have taken her to the polls if she did not vote for the two candidates who had come to the Guest Home. Ms. Jones testified that Mr. Cooper told her to say that he had not told her whom to vote for. He instructed her to testify that she voted for whom she wanted. She testified that Mr. Cooper rewards them if they are good. She indicated she believed she was voting to elect a principal and a vice principal of the school, not School Board members.

Celestine Collins remembered the campaign party and initially testified that she selected whom to vote for herself based upon the party. Mr. Cooper took her to the polls and entered the voting booth with her. She did not request any assistance from anyone. In the car she had the piece of paper Mr. Cooper had given her indicating for whom to vote;however, she denied taking the paper into the voting booth. This piece of paper only had two names on it. Initially, she testified that Mr. Cooper only showed her how to use the voting machine; however, at one point, she admitted that Mr. Cooper told her the names to vote for inside the voting booth, and she voted for those candidates. She also stated that prior to testifying, Mr. Cooper had instructed her not to testify that he had told her to vote or told her for whom to vote.

Andrew Chamberlain was transported to the polls by Mr. Cooper. Mr. Chamberlain does not recall receiving or reading any literature or other papers concerning the School Board election. Mr. Cooper did talk to him about the election in the car on the way to the polls. As he had forgotten his glasses, Mr. Chamberlain requested assistance form the election board workers. Mr. Chamberlain did not request Mr. Cooper to assist him; however, Mr. Cooper entered the voting booth with him. Prior to entering the voting booth, Mr. Chamberlain had no idea for whom to vote. Upon entering the voting booth, Mr. Cooper showed him for whom to vote and which levers to pull. Mr. Chamberlain has no idea for whom he voted.

2 Mrs. Dixon was a school teacher.

Daniel McLaurin was also transported to the polls by Mr. Cooper. Both Mssrs. Cooper and James had given him papers indicating for whom to vote. Mr. Cooper entered the voting booth with Mr. McLaurin, showed him how to operate the voting machine, and then departed the voting booth.

Lucille Flacco was also transported to the polls by Mr. Cooper. She testified that Mr. Cooper tells residents whom to vote for at elections. On the way to the polls, Mr. Cooper mentioned the names of the people to vote for and stated "you know who I told you to vote for." She stated that residents usually do what Mr. Cooper says; however, she voted for whom she wanted. She stated Mr. Cooper was persistent regarding for whom to vote. She felt offended because she did not know if she had the right to vote for her own choices. She indicated that residents are afraid of Mr. Cooper, and that he threatens to place them in Ancora if they do not comply with his wishes. She had never voted prior to moving to the R&M Guest Home. Mr. Cooper told her she was going to register to vote and assisted her in registering. Ms. Flacco, however, does not remember a ballot configuration similar to the sample ballot in this case (P-1).

Lucille Harflinger at first could not remember much. She appeared to be extremely fidgety and nervous. She first indicated that she knew whom she was going to vote for and that she voted Democratic.[3] She then indicated that Mr. Cooper told her whom to vote for in the car when being driven to the polls.

Russell Alston was also transported to the polls by Mr. Cooper. Mr. Alston did not ask for any assistance, yet Mr. Cooper entered the voting booth with him. Inside the voting booth, Mr. Cooper showed Mr. Alston which levers to pull. Mr. Cooper pointed at the names, and Mr. Alston pulled those levers. Mr. Alston stated that prior to entering the voting booth he did not know for whom to vote. Once inside the voting booth, Mr. Cooper told him for whom to vote and showed him the names. Mr. Alston does not know for whom he voted. He believes he voted "straight Democrat."

Several other residents of R&M Guest Home testified that Mr. Cooper had transported them to the polls, but did not testify to anything which could be considered an election irregularity.

3 School Board elections are nonpartisan elections.

Voters were asked to elect two of the four candidates. The official results of the election are as follows:

1. Ethel Dixon - 117 votes
2. Norman Robinson - 114 votes
3. LeRoy Berry - 113 votes
4. Debra Barney - 112 votes

During the hearing, a meeting was held at Mr. James' home concerning testimony in the case. Present were Mr. Jones, Abdi Gass (board secretary and vice president of the Democratic Club), Mr. Cooper, Mr. Poindexter (the mayor of Chesilhurst), and Mr. Johnson and his associate. Curiously, when subpoenas were served upon the residents of the Guest Home, Mr. Cooper telephoned Mr. James (who is not an attorney) to determine if the subpoenas were in proper order. Mr. James then went to the Guest Home to inspect the subpoenas before they were distributed.

I FIND the above Factual Discussion as FACT.

DISCUSSION

This case involves an attempt by rival factions in both the Chesilhurst Democratic Club and the Chesilhurst Volunteer Fire Department to gain control of the Chesilhurst Board of Education. A loosing candidate, an incumbent, seeks to have the election set aside. To set aside school board elections, it must be shown that "the will of the electorate . . . has been thwarted." In re Annual School Election Held in the Greater Egg Harbor Regional School District, 1978 S.L.D. 11, 20. This rule was developed by adapting the standard from Title 19.

"Election laws are to be liberally construed so as to effectuate their purpose. [citation omitted] They should not be construed so as to deprive voters of their franchise or so as to render an election void for technical reasons." Kilmurray v. Gilfert, 10 N.J. 435, 440 (1952). Accord, Stone v. Wyckoff, 102 N.J. Super. 26, 33 (App. Div. 1968), certif. den., 52 N.J. 254 (1968). The theme of liberal construction of election laws to prevent disenfranchisement of voters is found repeatedly in the case law.

Procedural laws are generally considered to be "directory, unless a non-compliance with their terms is expressly declared to be fatal. [citations omitted] Elections should never be held void unless they are clearly illegal." In re Wene, 26 N.J. Super. 363, 376 (Law Div. 1953), aff'd sub nom. Wene v. Meyner, 13 N.J. 185 (1953). Additionally, irregularities which may be "sufficient to challenge the right to vote at the polls, are not sufficient to set aside an election. . . . " In re Petition of Hartnett, 163 N.J. Super. 257, 265-266 n. 3 (App. Div. 1978).

There must exist a connection between the alleged election irregularities and the election results.

> The rule in our State is firmly established that if any irregularity or any other deviation from the election law by the election officials is to be adjudged to have the effect of invalidating a vote or an election, where the statute does not so expressly provide, there must be a connection between such irregularity and the result of the election; that is, the irregularity must be the producing cause of illegal votes which would not have been cast or of defeating legal votes which would have been counted, had the irregularity not taken place, and to an extent to challenge or change the result of the election; or it must be shown that the irregularity in some other way influenced the election so as to have repressed a full and free expression of the popular will. [Wene, 26 N.J. Super. at 383]

This language was adopted by the Commissioner in In re Garfield, 1977 S.L.D. 771, 775-776. Accord, Magura v. Smith, 131 N.J. Super. 395, 401 (Law Div. 1974); In re Application of Abbott Low Moffat, 142 N.J. Super. 217, 224 (App. Div. 1976), certif. den. sub nom. Princeton Tp. v. Bleiman, 71 N.J. 527 (1976). The burden of proof is on the contestant. Abbott Low Moffat, supra at 224.

Before election results can be overturned, there is a requirement that malconduct or fraud exists on the part of election officers which results in the thwarting of the free expression of popular will. Wene v. Meyner, supra at 196.

When adopted by the Commissioner of Education for N.J.S.A. Title 18A school election cases, the thwarting of the will standard was accepted. "However, it is well established that an election will be given effect, and will not be set aside unless it is shown that the will of the people was thwarted, was not fairly expressed, or could not properly be determined." (citations omitted) In re Annual School Election Held in the Madison Tp. School District, 1974 S.L.D. 744, 751.

Similar to the Title 19 decisions, the Commissioner has stated that absent fraud or deviations which actually led to a result different from that which would have occurred absent the fraud, the election results will not be overturned:

> It has been held by the courts of this State that gross irregularities, when not amounting to fraud, do not vitiate an election. [citations omitted] It is clear that irregularities and deviations from election laws by election officials provide insufficient grounds for voiding an election if the will of the people has been fairly expressed and determined and has not been thwarted. [citations omitted] It is only when the deviations from statutory procedure are so gross as to produce illegal votes which would not have been cast or to defeat legal votes which would have been counted, so as to make impossible a determination of the will of the people, that an election will be set aside. [In re Election Inquiry in the Borough of S. River School District, 1974 S.L.D. 1040, 1048]

Accord, Greater Egg Harbor, 1978 S.L.D. at 20.

It is the clear intent of the law that elections are to be given effect whenever possible. It has been held by the courts of this State that gross irregularities, when not amounting to fraud, do not vitiate an election. Love v. Board of Chosen Freeholders, 35 N.J.L. 269 (Sup. Ct. 1871); Stone v. Wyckoff, 102 N.J. Super. 26 (App. Div. 1968). It is clear that irregularities and deviations from election laws by election officials provide insufficient grounds for voiding an election if the will of the people has been fairly expressed and determined and has not been thwarted. Petition of Clee, 119 N.J.L. 310 (Sup. Ct. 1938); In re Livingston, 83 N.J. Super. 98 (1964). It is only when the deviations from statutory procedure are so gross as to produce illegal votes which would not have been cast or to defeat legal votes which would have been counted, so as to make impossible a determination of the will of the people, that an election will be set aside. In re Garfield, 1977 S.L.D. 771, 775-776.

Acts and omissions to act on the part of local election officers may render them liable to indictment. Yet, absent malconduct, fraud or corruption, the election result is unimpeachable. Wene v. Meyner, supra at 196. Irregularities pleaded must be sufficient, if established by proof, to warrant the relief sought. Proofs must operate per se to disqualify a nominee or alter the result of the election. Id. at 197-198.

However, when an election result is very close, and "irregularities (or the absence of regularity) infected the contest," it has been held that the full and free expression of the popular will had been subjected to interference. In re Klayman, 97 N.J. Super. 295, 305 (Law Div. 1967). In Klayman, the irregularities involved write-in voting procedures. The County Board of Elections failed to follow a statutory directive to inspect each machine following each vote. The write-in names were obliterated by stickers, confusing the results of the balloting. The court found no fraud or collusion in the obliteration of the names on the ballot, and found that the election dispute was the result of failure to inspect the machines after each vote. However, it also determined that the election result was prejudiced, because voters for the write-in candidates were deprived of an opportunity to express their will. Id. at 305. Because the election result was only one vote apart, the court found the full and free expression of the popular will had been subjected to interference. Ibid.

There must be concrete evidence that the will of the people has been suppressed, rather than speculation that improved conditions would have afforded a different result. In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the Borough of Ringwood, Passaic County, 1974 S.L.D. 591. What must be established is the real intent of a voter. The expression of intent is to be read in light of the surrounding circumstances proven by reliable evidence. In re Fifteen Registered Voters, City of Sussex, 129 N.J. Super. 296, 300-301 (App. Div.1974). Absent a prima facie case that the will of the electorate has been thwarted and the outcome of the election changed, the election will not be overturned. See, In re Clee, 119 N.J.L. 310 (Sup. Ct. 1938). (Broad and vague allegations of fraud and illegal conduct, including unauthorized assistance in ballot preparation and electioneering at polling places, is not sufficient to vitiate the election results, absent any allegation that invalidating the illegal votes would change the result of the election. Irregularities on the part of the election boards having no effect upon the voting, etc., will never vitiate an election. Id. at 329. It is the duty of the court to uphold an election unless it clearly appears that it was illegal. Public policy so ordains. Id. at 330.)

The Appellate Division held in Application of James T. Murphy:

> [T]hat in such circumstances an election may not be voided, as it was here, merely on a showing that the successful candidate's majority was smaller than the number of illegal votes cast, without any attempt by the contestant to show for whom the illegal votes were cast.
> When, as here, an election is contested on the sole ground that "illegal votes have been received * * * at the polls sufficient to change the result," N.J.S.A. 19:29-1(e), the contestant has not only the burden of showing that illegal votes were cast in number sufficient to change the result if they had in fact been cast for the contestee, but also the burden of showing, to the extent possible under the circumstances, for whom the illegal votes were cast.

> Such is the rule not only of the New Jersey cases but also of the weight of authority elsewhere. [Citations Omitted] [Application of James T. Murphy, et al., 101 N.J. Super. 163, 167 (App. Div. 1968)]

The holdings of Lehlbach v. Haynes, 54 N.J.L. 77 (Sup. Ct. 1891), and its progeny have application in this case. It is clear that not all situations are amenable to direct proof on how the person cast his vote. In that instance circumstantial evidence on the issue is admissible. Murphy, at 170. Such evidence can be the party affiliation of the voter, the relation between the voter and the candidate, "or between him and others actively interested in advancing the cause of certain candidates." (citation omitted; emphasis added) Murphy, at 170.

In this case, the activities of Harry Cooper and Lawrence James show a unity of purpose from the beginning of the election procedure where the candidates were hand-picked by Mr. James to election day when Mr. Cooper and Mr. Robinson were busing the residents and entering the voting booth with Mr. Cooper instructing residents for whom to vote. These gentlemen were certainly a connection between the R & M Guest Home voters and the candidates, and were certainly active in the campaign of the two successful candidates.

Circumstantially, it can be shown that the persons for whom some of the R & M Guest Home voters cast votes were other than Mrs. Barney and Mr. Berry and that such occurred to the extent that it affected the outcome of the election.

Similar to Title 19 decisions, the burden of proof is on the petitioner to "demonstrate that there is a connection between the irregularity charged and the results of the election . . . . A presumption of correctness reposes in the incumbents." (citation omitted) In re Annual School Bd. Election, Lakewood Tp., OAL DKT. EDU 2729-84 & 2730-84 (July 16, 1984) at 2, adopted, Comm'r of Educ. (Aug. 30, 1984). Exceptions as to who has the burden of proof exist when the violations are so gross as to make the task "impossible." In re Annual School Election Held in Tinton Falls Borough School District, 1979 S.L.D. 872, 873, rev'g, 1978 S.L.D. 344.

The standard of review used in N.J.S.A. Title 18A school election cases is a difficult standard to meet. It was adopted to protect the will of the people, through both preventing the arbitrary setting aside of election results and ensuring that fair results expressing the electorate's actual will are achieved.

N.J.S.A. 18A:14-101 prohibits impeding or interfering with the voter:

> No person shall by abduction, duress or any forcible or fraudulent device or contrivance whatever, impede, prevent or otherwise interfere with the free exercise of the elective franchise by any voter at any election; or compel, induce or prevail upon any voter either to vote or refrain from voting at any election, or to vote or refrain from voting for any particular person or persons at any election.

Electioneering is prohibited under two statutes. The first, N.J.S.A. 18A:14-72, states:

> If a person shall on any day fixed for any election tamper, deface or interfere with any polling booth or obstruct the entrance to any polling place, or obstruct or interfere with any voter, or loiter, or do any electioneering within any polling place or within 100 feet thereof, he shall be a disorderly person and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $500.00 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

The second, N.J.S.A. 18A:14-81, states:

> If a person shall distribute or display any circular or printed matter or offer any suggestion or solicit any support for any candidate, party or public question, to be voted upon at any election, within the polling place or room or within a distance of 100 feet of the outside entrance to such polling place or room, he shall be a disorderly person.

In In the Matter of the Annual School Election Held in the School District of Point Pleasant Borough, OAL Docket No. EDU 2007-80, irregularities near the polls included, inter alia, the distribution in the parking lot of the polling place, of a card endorsing two candidates. The administrative law judge cited the rules of law established in Wene and Garfield, and found that the incident was not sufficient in scope to conclude that the will of the electorate was thwarted (at 4).

A case involving electioneering similar to the case at hand is In the Matter of the Annual School Election held in the School District of the City of Passaic, Passaic County, OAL Docket No. EDU 2598-88 (May 17, 1988). The facts of Passaic show that an individual was found to be electioneering as he stood behind the voting booth calling out names and numbers from the back of the machine. Further, this individual was found to be advising people how they should vote while standing near the machines. The court found these actions constituted improper electioneering. Id. at 23.

Further, there was factual evidence that on several occasions in Passaic, voters accompanied other voters into the polling booths. There was no demonstration or request of assistance, as required by Title 19. (Title 19 specifies that assistance may be rendered to a voter who demonstrates an inability to read or write, blindness or other physical disability which prevents him from casting his vote without assistance.)

The court determined in Passaic that the irregularities did indeed occur, but there was no showing that because they occurred, a determination of who received the majority of the legal votes could not be ascertained with the "reasonable certainty" the law requires. Id. at 26. The court quoted Sharrock v. Keansburg, 15 N.J. Super. 11, 18 (App. Div. 1951), stating:

> The right of suffrage in a government of and by a free people must always be regarded with jealous solicitude. To overthrow the expressed will of a large number of voters for no fault of their own and solely because of some harmless irregularity would in many cases defeat the paramount object of the election laws. . . .

The administrative law judge ordered that a copy of the initial decision be made available to the Passaic County Prosecutor in view of the testimony regarding electioneering activities. Passaic at 31.

The electioneering in the case at hand was more potent than written endorsements or instructions handed to voters walking into the polling place. The disputed voters were orally instructed whom to vote for as they entered the polling booth, and, in some instances, orally reminded once they were inside the booth. The sanctity of the voting booth was thus violated.

There were numerous election irregularities in this case; some of them technical, and some amounting to voter fraud. The election board workers admitted that they did not know if any of the residents needed assistance, and contrary to statutory requirements, the workers did not administer any oaths nor make any inquiries. Residents of R & M Guest Home shouted out from the voting booth requesting guidance or instruction on whom to vote for and Mr. Cooper responded "vote for the two in the middle." Also, while standing in line residents questioned Mr. Cooper about whom to vote for. Mrs. Henson was concerned about Mr. Cooper entering the voting booth with so many people, but she took no action to curb these activities. She was also concerned about voters shouting out for whom to vote. She took no action to stop these activities other than request Mr. Covington's assistance; however, Mr. Covington had no legal authority to intervene. It is clear that the activities of Mr. Cooper in the polling place amounted to electioneering.

The activities of Mr. Cooper inside the voting booth are most troubling. His presence and influence in the voting booth with several voters is questionable. In addition, it appears that Mr. Cooper attempted to influence the testimony of several residents in this proceeding. But due to the extreme closeness of this election, one need look no further than to the testimony of Mssrs. Chamberlain and Alston . Mr. Cooper assisted both of these voters. Neither knew for whom to vote prior to entering the voting booth. In both cases, Mr. Cooper showed them for whom to vote and which levers to pull. Neither man knows for whom he voted. Relying upon Lehlbach and Murphy, it can be determined that based upon the activities of Mr. Cooper, Mssrs. Chamberlain and Alston, as well as other residents of the Guest Home, voted for Mrs. Dixon and Mr. Robinson.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

As a result of these activities, I CONCLUDE that the will of the people was thwarted, was not fairly expressed, and cannot be properly determined. I further CONCLUDE that the irregularities and deviations from the election laws in this case are sufficient grounds to void the election, as the will of the people has not been fairly expressed and determined and has been thwarted. The deviations in this case are so gross, and the election results are so close, as to make impossible a determination of the will of the people.

This case is distinguishable from Passaic, as only one vote separates the winning second place nominee from the losing third place nominee and only two votes separate the winning second place nominee from the losing fourth place nominee. Therefore, I CONCLUDE in this case, a determination cannot be made with reasonable certainty of who received the majority of the legal votes.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the election held on April 30, 1991, to fill two seats on the Board of Education of the Chesilhurst School District be set aside. IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL	:
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH	:	DECISION
OF CHESILHURST, CAMDEN COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The Board of Education's request for an extension of time in which to file exceptions was made beyond the period for such requests permitted by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8(b) and was denied on that basis.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record, including transcripts of hearings, the Commissioner affirms the decision of the ALJ as well founded in fact and correct in law. The factual recitation of the ALJ is fully supported by the transcripts of testimony, and the Commissioner finds no basis therein to question the ALJ's assessment of credibility or weighing of evidence. Further, the ALJ's discussion reflects a fair and complete consideration of the parties' positions and relevant law with respect to his ultimate conclusion that a new election was warranted. Indeed, the Commissioner fully concurs with the ALJ that "[t]he deviations in this case are so gross, and the election results are so close, as to make impossible a determination of the will of the people." (Initial Decision, at p. 15)

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law ordering a new election pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-15(d) is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein. Such election shall take place forthwith, but no later than 60 days from the date of this decision.

Further, the Commissioner directs that a copy of this decision shall be made available to the Camden County Prosecutor in view of the testimony within regarding violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:14-72, 18A:14-81 and 18A:14-101 as discussed at pages 12-15, ante.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BOONTON, PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF BOONTON AND BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF MOUNTAIN LAKES, MORRIS COUNTY, RESPONDENTS.	:	DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board of Boonton Township sought to end its more than 100-year-old sending-receiving relationship with Boonton Town in order to enter into new relationship with Mountain Lakes. Township contended termination would not produce substantial negative financial, educational, or racial impact.

In light of feasibility study, revised feasibility study and testimony of financial experts and in consideration of relevant cases such as Englewood Cliffs and Jenkins, ALJ found Township must be granted severance because Town failed to demonstrate any substantial negative financial, educational or racial impact (N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13).

Commissioner adopted findings of fact and conclusions of law of ALJ as his own. As to financial impact, Commissioner adopted ALJ's findings and conclusions stressing Town's own financial expert conceded there would be no substantial negative financial impact to any district involved, which testimony Town's exceptions were unable to overcome. As to educational impact, Commissioner determined new contract between Township and Lakes provided thorough and efficient education for Township's pupils. Finally, no substantial negative impact on racial balance was demonstrated. Thus, Commissioner granted severance of the relationship.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

I. Statement of the Case

This case involves an application by a sending district, Boonton Township Board of Education ("Township"), which seeks to terminate its existing relationship with its receiving district, Boonton Town Board of Education ("Town"), and to enter into a new relationship with a rival district, Mountain Lakes Board of Education ("Mountain Lakes"). Overall, the process implicates a mixture of fact-finding, legal interpretation and, ultimately, of policy-making at the level of the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") and State Board.

Local school districts too small to support high school facilities of their own may enter into financial arrangements with another district to educate their children at the other's high school Once such a sending-receiving relationship has been established, it cannot be dissolved "except upon application made to and approved by the [C]ommissioner." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13. A recent amendment has revised the statutory standards guiding the Commissioner's deliberations. L. 1986, c. 156 (effective Nov. 24, 1986).

Relieved of the express requirement under the prior law to prove "good and sufficient reasons" for withdrawal, the sending district contends that it is entitled to relief because termination of the current relationship would not produce "substantial negative impact" in any of the three areas of quality of education, financial condition or racial composition. Even if a substantial negative impact would occur, the sending district maintains that the Commissioner must still "balance the equities" and determine whether the anticipated benefits from termination outweigh any likely detriments.

For its part, the receiving district has assumed the burden of showing that termination would result in substantial negative impacts, not only for the remaining students at the present high school but for the sending district's students as well. Consideration of all of the circumstances also entails an examination into the underlying reasons for the proposed move, reasons which the receiving district charges are "spurious" and "rooted in misconceptions" about what makes a good high school, about what programs will actually be available at the new school and about how much it will cost.

II. Procedural History

On December 28, 1989, petitioner Township filed its petition with the Commissioner, naming both the present and proposed receiving districts as parties. Respondent Town filed its answer and counterclaim on January 30, 1990. Cross-respondent Mountain Lakes filed its answer on February 8, 1990. Subsequently, on February 9, 1990, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case.

The OAL conducted a prehearing conference on May 4, 1990. Prior to any hearings, the parties engaged in extensive discovery, including on-site studies of each other's facilities and depositions of expert witnesses. Originally the Lincoln Park Board of Education ("Lincoln Park"), another small district which also sends students to the Town's high school, had been permitted to intervene in the proceedings, but eventually it was dropped as a separate party because its interests and objectives were represented to be "identical with those of the Town."

Thereafter, the OAL held 15 days of hearing commencing on November 26, 1990 and ending on January 14, 1991. The parties submitted their initial briefs by March 5, 1991 and reply briefs by March 19, 1991. Upon receipt of the last paper to be filed, the record closed on March 19, 1991. An appendix to this decisions contains a witness list and an exhibit list updated by the parties during the course of the hearings. Time for preparation of the initial decision has been extended to October 31, 1991.

III. Findings of Fact

A. Background Characteristics of the Three Communities

Located in Morris County some 30 miles west of New York City, the municipalities of Boonton Town, Township and Mountain Lakes are primarily suburban and residential in character. In terms of physical size, the Township, occupying an area over 8 square miles, is bigger than either the Town or Mountain Lakes, each less than 3 square miles. But in terms of population, the Town, with 8,500 inhabitants reported in the 1980 Census, is considerably larger than the Township, with 3,400, or Mountain Lakes, with 3,900.

By the usual measurements, the Township is more affluent and has a better educated populace than the Town. Average household income for a family of four in the Township during 1988 was twice that of the Town ($90,500 compared to $45,000). College graduates comprised 31% of the Township's population in 1980, twice as many as the Town, which had only 14%. Mountain Lakes is even wealthier and more highly educated, with three times the Town's average household income ($148,300) and a college-educated population of 60%.[1] Generally, the Town may be regarded as a predominantly "blue collar" community and the Township as "middle class." Mountain Lakes has been described as attracting "business executives, college professors, doctors, and other professional people as well as many managerial level business leaders."

Current enrollment in the Township's public school system as of October 15, 1990 totaled 310 students, including 79 Township residents who attend Boonton High School. Due to its comparatively low enrollment, the Township operates a K-to-8 only district and has a single elementary school. In comparison, the Town has a total resident enrollment of 1,011, of which 316 attend high school. It has been able to maintain two elementary schools as well as the high school. With a secondary-level enrollment of 322 residents, Mountain Lakes also has two elementary schools and one high school. Over the last several years, both Boonton High School and Mountain Lakes High School have experienced a continuing decline in enrollment.[2]

Interestingly, the greatest number of students now at Boonton High School come not from either Town or Township, but from the other sending district, Lincoln Park. Broken down by district, the distribution of students at Boonton High School is roughly 46% from Lincoln Park, 43% from the Town and the remaining 11% from the Township. Lincoln Park, which closely resembles the Town in income and education levels, presently sends 335 students to Boonton High School.

B. Historical Overview

Town and Township have been joined in a sending-receiving relationship for almost 100 years. Although the last formal contract memorializing this arrangement expired more than 20 years ago, the relationship continues by operation of law. Over the past several years, many Township residents have become increasingly unhappy about what they perceive to be the Town's lack of responsiveness to the needs of their children and to the concerns of local taxpayers. This dissatisfaction "seems to come to a boiling point" every four or five years, and has been a recurrent theme in Township school elections. Not everyone in the Township shared this view, as indicated by outgoing board president Carl Allieri, father of five, who was pleased with his children's education and had "very good communications with the high school." In the election in April 1990, however, a slate of candidates pledged to ending the existing relationship won seats by a wide margin.

[2]Enrollments at Boonton High School have declined about 19% from a base of 933 in 1985 to 755 in 1989. During the same five-year period, enrollments at Mountain Lakes High School declined by about 7.2% from 374 to 347.

Meanwhile, in late 1988, the Township had retained the services of Dr. Robert Savitt and his educational consulting firm of Guidelines, Inc. to prepare a feasibility study on the possibility of withdrawal.[3] Dr. Savitt submitted his report to the Township in mid-February 1989. Township board members visited the two high schools and a third high school also under consideration. On June 29,1989, the Township adopted a resolution declaring its intent to terminate its relationship with the Town and authorizing its representatives to negotiate a new agreement with Mountain Lakes. Ensuing negotiations culminated in the signing on December 7, 1989 of an executory contract with Mountain Lakes, subject to removal of "all barriers to implementation." On the same date, the Township passed a resolution instructing its attorney to initiate this litigation.

C. Reasons for Termination of the Existing Relationship

There is a dispute not only as to the adequacy of the Township's reasons for seeking termination but also as to the legal relevance of this question. While the Town contends that petitioner's actions are "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable," the Township counters that the amended statute no longer permits inquiry into whether severance is justified by "good and sufficient reasons." Factual disagreements among the parties will be addressed at this juncture (Section III) and the legal arguments will be deferred until later (Section IV).

Township witnesses advanced numerous reasons why the present impasse had been reached. Basically, the reasons all centered on poor communication and lack of cooperation. Town, Township and Lincoln Park had established a tri-district "liaison committee" or "task force" comprised of the superintendents and at least two board members from each district. James Bolan, the Township's superintendent of schools for the last 23 years, recalled that past tri-district meetings had served no useful purpose and that the group was on the verge of disbanding. Two years ago, in June

[3]Before filing an application with the Commissioner, "the district seeking to sever the relationship shall prepare and submit a feasibility study, consisidering the educational and financial implications for the sending and receiving districts, the impact on the quality of education received by pupils in each of the districts, and the effect on the racial composition of the pupil population of each of the districts." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13.

1989, the group decided to meet more frequently and succeeded in drawing up a list of common priorities. Continuity was hampered by shifting membership resulting from changes in the Town's composition and the resignation of the Town's superintendent. Newer members forgot or ignored the priorities on which earlier members had agreed. Eventually, tri-district meetings degenerated into arguments among its members. Even when the group was able to come to a consensus, Bolan's experience was that "nothing ever happened anyway."

Similarly, Bolan vented his frustration at his inability to obtain necessary information about Boonton High School. Although he had maintained close personal and telephone contact with the Town's former superintendent,James Swalm, Bolan's rapport with Dr. Swalm's successor and other Town administrators was much less satisfactory.[4] In particular, Bolan complained that the high school principal, Robert Kane, did not always return his telephone calls. Kane himself admitted that he talks with the Lincoln Park superintendent "at least a hundred times a year" but with the Township superintendent "maybe two or three times a year." In his dealings with Kane, Dr. Savitt, the Township's educational consultant, sensed what he described as an "irritation" about efforts by parents and school administrators to gain more information.

Bolan also charged that school business administrator Joy Northrop failed to respond to his "numerous calls and letters" asking for important budgetary information. Letters which Bolan sent to Swalm seeking assistance in furnishing documents lend support to Bolan's version. Swalm verified that Bolan did not feel he was getting the information he required. Sometimes Swalm would have to intercede personally to "see if the information couldn't be provided."

One bone of contention is the inaccessibility of data broken down by individual district. Understandably, the sending district wanted to know its own children's scores on standardized tests and their post-graduation plans. Town records lumped such information together for the entire student body, obscuring exactly how well the Township students as a group were faring. The Town did not regularly begin to keep separate records until after the Township had voted to terminate the relationship. Town witnesses did not deny this fact. Indeed, the Town argues that it was educationally beneficial to collect information only for the whole school rather than "for three separate entities." Such argument, however, confuses two different issues. Certainly it is a good thing that teachers at Boonton High School don't know or care which district a student happens to come from. As Dr. Savitt noted approvingly in his study, Township students attending Boonton High School appear to be totally integrated into the student body and "there was no evident labeling of these students as being from outside the district." But this does not relieve the Town of the responsibility to collate data for statistical purposes, so that Township residents can evaluate the appropriateness of the education received by their sons and daughters.

Another source of dissatisfaction is poor "articulation" or the insufficient coordination of curriculum between the upper and lower grades. Articulation of what is taught at the elementary and high school levels is important to provide continuity in instruction and to minimize unnecessary duplication. As far back as October 1986, Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools ("Middle States"), a non-governmental accreditation agency for secondary schools, had identified the need for greater articulation in the high school science department. Township consultant Dr. Robert Savitt faulted the Town for cooperating "only the most limited way in carrying out joint curriculum development and other articulation projects with the sending districts' elementary schools." Mountain Lakes' expert, Dr. Ronald Hyman, a professor at Rutger's Graduate School of Education, cited a recent example in which English teachers at a Boonton High School faculty meeting expressed "dismay" that some of the feeder elementary schools had already covered Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet in their classes. Dr. Hyman was "shocked" that these teachers were only now beginning to realize the need for articulation, when it seemed to him "to be kind of late to start talking about articulation."

Genuine efforts to improve articulation have been few and far between. Ten years ago, in 1981, the three districts sent representatives to a summer session to develop curriculum goals and guidelines. In 1983, the districts conducted a joint summer workshop on writing skills. In 1986, the districts held a successful summer workshop to revise the mathematics curriculum. Since then, however, the districts have stopped holding summer workshops, largely because they could not agree on a suitable topic. Very little has changed with respect to the science curriculum since Middle States rendered its report in 1986. Dorothy Allen, head of the science department at Boonton High School, had never seen her school's 1990 progress report to Middle States, which contains the modest claim that "sharing of pertinent information is being developed." Although the high school administration has invited Township teachers to attend in-service training lectures and to participate in regular departmental meetings, it failed to make any concerted attempt to involve them in revising the curriculum.

Township parents are justly concerned about the performance of Boonton High School students on college entrance exams and achievement tests. Many institutions of higher learning use student scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test or SAT as a predictor of how well a particular individual is likely to do in college. Boonton High School students achieved a verbal mean score of 429 and a math mean score of 471 in 1989, compared to Mountain Lakes High School students' verbal mean of 507 and math mean of 566. Out of 22 high schools in Morris County, Boonton ranked near to the bottom at 18th on the verbal scale and 20th on the math scale. SAT scores for Boonton High School in 1988 were 461 verbal and 515 math, compared to Mountain Lake's 469 verbal and 544 math.

Much spirited debate revolved around the validity of using SAT scores to make generalizations about the quality of instruction offered at a particular school. Dr. Craig Richards, an associate professor at Columbia Teacher's College who served as the Town's educational consultant, testified that outside factors, such as family income and family education, "appear to have a significant influence on the test scores of students." To the extent that families in Mountain Lakes have higher incomes and are more highly educated, one might expect their children, in the aggregate, to do better on normed tests. School districts which encourage widespread participation by all students will generally fare less well than those districts in which only college-bound students take the test.

New Jersey's Education Department adopts a cautious approach to the problem, endorsing the position of the Educational Testing Service that SAT average scores "should not be used as a single indicator to compare or to rank districts, schools or teachers" while, at the same time, supporting public release of SAT data

"when they are among a number of indicators of school performance." (Emphasis added). New Jersey School Report Card (Nov. 1989). Insofar as the SAT has value in predicting a student's potential for college achievement, the Department points out that the "richness and depth of a school's curriculum as well as the quality of instruction help to develop students' readiness for higher education." Ibid. Even Dr. Richards, the Town's expert, recognized SAT scores as a valid measure of academic excellence in a separate study he prepared for another district.

Moreover, the Town cannot explain away its lower SAT scores simply by reference to socioeconomic differences. Other less affluent school districts, such as Pequanock High School, managed to achieve substantially higher scores. While clearly not dispositive on the quality issue, comparative SAT scores are one objective measure of the results that a particular school system is achieving.

Graduation requirements for high school students include passing of a state-mandated test, the High School Proficiency Test or HSPT, designed to measure mastery of minimum basic skills.[5] Unlike the SAT which is geared to college admissions, the HSPT has the more modest goal of testing what every high school student should know. On the whole, Boonton's success rate on the HSPT is unimpressive. Boonton's total test passing rate for ninth graders was less than 89% in 1989 and less than 93% in 1988, compared to Mountain Lakes' 100% passage rate in both years. County-wide, in 1989 Boonton ranked last of all 22 high schools.

Another area of disagreement involved the Township's perception that the Town failed to seek its input in major decision-making, especially with respect to school finances. On the other hand, the Town tended to portray the issue in terms of the Township's "adamant" opposition to paying its fair share of the reasonable costs of running the schools. During the mid-1980's, the two districts had engaged in protracted litigation about whether certain expense items were "current expenses" included in tuition rates charged to the Township, or "capital outlay" excluded from tuition rates. Although the law suit was never adjudicated on its merits, ultimately the parties entered into a settlement whereby the Town agreed to "refund" overcharges totaling more than $106,000.

More generally, the Township had a long-standing complaint that the estimated tuition rates would consistently understate the actual rates after final audit by the State, so that the Township unexpectedly "would wind up owing a great deal of money." School superintendent Bolan also resented the fact that the Town had sought tuition payment for a foreign exchange student temporarily residing in the Township, contrary to the common practice of not charging for foreign exchange students.

Against this backdrop of financial bickering, the Town embarked on an ambitious project of renovations to the high school physical plant, as outlined in a 1984 facilities study, which included: refurbishing several science laboratories; replacing the old roof on the building; providing handicapped access by the installation of chair lifts and elevators; completing work on sidewalks and curbing; upgrading an obsolete heating and ventilating system; and revamping damaged student lockers. All interested parties seem to agree on the necessity for these improvements. Lincoln Park, in fact, wanted the Town to add more science classrooms than originally planned. Nevertheless, the Township again complained that its residents had been denied any meaningful participation in the planning process. Township officials first learned of the renovation proposal by reading about it in local newspapers or in minutes of Town board meetings. At one point, Township board members walked out of a joint meeting, at which the architects described the details of proposed project, because the information was given "after the fact" and "they felt they should have been consulted during the input phase."

Initially, the project was to be funded by sale of bonds. In October 1987 Town voters approved a bond referendum, which included $1.9 million for renovations to the high school. At that time, receiving districts could include a proportional part of interest costs in tuition rates, but not any part of the principal payments. Afterwards, state regulations were amended so that a few receiving districts which derive a majority of their enrollment from other districts might pass along a portion of the principal as well.[6] In an effort to take advantage of this change in the law, the Town held a second referendum to "decertify" the bond approval and launched a series of meetings with the other districts about the proposed switch to a lease purchase method of financing.

Predictably, the sending districts were outraged at what they regarded as the Town's "unilateral" decision to renege on the bond referendum which the voters had already approved. Even supporters of a continuing relationship, such as Lincoln Park's superintendent Robert Vitacco, acknowledged that it would "probably be an understatement" to say he was angry about lease purchase . Opposition to lease purchase was so strong that ultimately the Town decided to abandon the idea altogether and pay for most of the renovations without contribution from the sending districts. The Town's argument that the Township's net cost for both principal and interest would have averaged less than $30,000 per year for ten years cuts both ways. Given the past antagonisms and mutual distrust, it tells much about the Town's approach to dealing with its partners that it would risk increased resentment to save such a comparatively small sum.

I FIND that the Township has cogent reasons for wanting to terminate the existing sending-receiving relationship with the Town. Most of these reasons relate to the breakdown of good will and lingering mistrust between the parties. Specifically, they include: (1) poor communications among the two districts's respective board members, school administrators and teaching staff; (2) a persistent lack of cooperation and communication, extending to articulation of curriculum, textbook selection and exchange of information; (3) an absence of adequate consultation or involvement of the Township in the making of major decisions which affect Township children; (4) continuing financial disagreements, which implicate

D. Benefits of a New Relationship with Mountain Lakes

Numerous benefits make Mountain Lakes High School an attractive alternative for Township students. Undeniably, Mountain Lakes offers its students a rigorous academic preparation for higher educational opportunities. As noted, its students perform exceedingly well on standardized measures of academic ability and accomplishment. Nearly 98% of the graduating class in 1989-90 went on to four or two-year colleges. That same year, not a single student at Mountain Lakes dropped out of high school. Mountain Lakes' administration appreciates that a great deal of what happens in school "cannot be easily measured" by test scores alone. Besides success in the classroom, the school achieves a high rate of student participation in a variety of extracurricular activities, including interscholastic athletics, student publications, language clubs, theater productions and musical events. Mountain Lakes also has a fine reputation for its availability of services for hearing impaired youngsters.

Equally important is the ethos or "tone" of Mountain Lakes High School, characterized by Dr. Hyman as a "commitment to excellence" amid surroundings that are "warm, cheerful and inviting." Dr. Hyman conducted a qualitative survey of tuition-paying Township students currently attending Mountain Lakes High School, who, after all, are the consumers of educational services. Incoming students "felt good about being welcomed" at Mountain Lakes and had a sense of being "totally accepted by resident students." One pupil praised the intimate family-like atmosphere, where "teachers know who you are even if you are not in their classes." Another liked that "[y]ou can go up to a teacher and just talk about things that are on your mind." Teachers take a personal interest in each individual's progress, and students believe that "[w]e do well here because the teachers don't let us fail." Others remarked that "[i]t's o.k. to be smart and do well in your subjects" and "you're not considered a nerd if you get all A's here."

Any successful sending-receiving relationship depends on trust and good will more than on paper promises or formal guarantees. Local districts joined together in such cooperative venture want a smooth working relationship and not the right to sue each other for breach of contract. Nonetheless, in an effort to avoid future misunderstandings and promote open lines of communication, the Township and Mountain Lakes have entered into a written ten-year agreement carefully spelling out each parties' rights and responsibilities in the event that the Commissioner should approve a new sending-receiving relationship.

Many of the concerns which the Township has regarding its current relationship with the Town are addressed in this comprehensive document. Illustratively, the agreement provides for adequate prior notice of all "decisions and actions potentially affecting the high school or the Boonton Township students;" establishes annual "joint planning sessions" to coordinate program articulation between the two districts; and ensures that curriculum development and review will be "conducted by members of the administration, teaching and guidance staffs from both sending and receiving schools[.]" Mountain Lakes agrees to implement reasonable program changes to meet Township pupils' instructional needs and seeks to anticipate potential areas of need, such as an expansion of guidance services and business course offerings.

The agreement goes so far as to give the Township a non-voting seat on the Mountain Lakes Board of Education, membership on the high school textbook selection committee, and a voice in filling any vacancies which might occur in Mountain Lakes superintendency or high school principalship. As an added incentive, Mountain Lakes also offers a discount on tuition rates for the initial six years.[7] Instead of charging the actual per pupil costs as determined by state formula, tuition would be 20% less than actual costs for the first year, 15% less for the second year, 10% less for the third year, 5% less for the fourth year and $200 less per pupil for the fifth and sixth years. Thereafter, the no discount applies and the rates are set at actual per pupil costs.

[7]Interestingly, the economics of this arrangement would be mutually advantageous to both districts. State statute places a ceiling but no floor on the amount of tuition which may charged for pupils attending public schools in another district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-19 allows the receiving district to charge a maximum amount not in excess of "the actual cost per pupil." Since Mountain Lakes already incurs high fixed costs to educate its own children, the marginal cost of educating one more child is less than the average per pupil cost. Many school districts are scrambling to fill up their empty seats.

I FIND that the Township would derive many genuine benefits from the proposed linkage with Mountain Lakes. Among such benefits are a top notch academic program, a supportive and nurturant school culture, a wide array of extracurricular activities, greater responsiveness to the interests of the sending district, a willingness to listen on the part of Mountain Lakes officials, and, at least temporarily, a savings from the actual costs of educating Township students.

E. Projections of Future Enrollment

Accurate enrollment projections are important in assessing the impact of the proposed withdrawal on educational quality and financial condition. Expert witnesses differed in their estimates of the expected loss of students at Boonton High School if severance were granted. Not surprisingly, the Township's demographic expert projected a smaller loss and, hence, a lesser impact, whereas the Town's expect projected a somewhat larger loss and a greater impact. While both sides used a similar methodology, they made different underlying assumptions about what historical data to use.[8] Five years into the future in September 1995, the expected loss would be a total of 40 Township students under the Township's assumptions or 82 under the Town's assumptions, leaving a remaining student enrollment of 672 or 608, respectively, at Boonton High School.

Dr. Emmanual Averbach, who performed the Township's enrollment projections, has much more experience than Dr. Richards, who made the Town's calculations. Dr. Averbach has done about 75 demographic studies for school districts, while Dr. Richards has worked on only two such studies, one of which was predicated on enrollment projections supplied by others. Differences in their projections result from differences in their assumptions. Although Dr. Averbach actually made three sets of calculations using from two to five years of historical data, his "best estimate" is based on three years of data or two ratios to obtain a [8]Both sides employ the "cohort survival ratio" method, which predicts future enrollment by tracking the historical progression of the same class of students from grade to grade.

"trend."[9] Dr. Richards used five years of historical data or four ratios. In making his projections, Dr. Averbach used the most recent figures showing actual enrollment as of October 1990, while Dr. Richards relied on older data from 1989. Lastly, both experts assume that any severance would be phased-in over a four year period, but Dr. Averbach starts with the entering ninth grade class in September 1991 while Dr. Richards starts with September 1990.

Forecasting of future enrollment patterns is an art as much as an exact science. No recognized standard exists on how many years of historical data must be utilized, although both experts agree that enrollment projections are traditionally based on at least five years of past data.[10] Dr. Richards acknowledged, however, that issue of how much data to use is "complicated," and that where to draw the line is "a judgment call." Each expert presented plausible arguments for why his choice best approximates current population trends. In particular, Dr. Averbach defended his selection of three years of data by reference to the declining birth rate and a slump in residential housing market, which translates into an expectation of less population growth than during the "ebullient psychology" of the mid-1980s.

Significantly, Dr. Richards did not contradict Dr. Averbach's assertion that the "go-go" economic conditions of last decade "are not likely to be seen again for a substantial period of time." Yet, Dr. Richards believes that it is "fairly risky" to project more years into the future than the number of past years of data, especially when dealing with very small numerical samples. When enrollment in a particular [9]Additionally, the Township's educational consultant, Dr. Savitt, made a rough enrollment estimate, using a different technique described as the "push up" method. While the details of his methodology are somewhat vague, he "did not go through the whole process of cohort survival," but looked only at how many children attending the Township public schools would be phased out in the next four years. Even though he predicted a greater loss than did either of the two other experts, a total of 100 students by September 1993, he still opined that the negative impact of the Township's withdrawal would not be substantial.

[10]N.J.A.C. 6:3-3.1(a), dealing with the analogous situation of withdrawal from a limited purpose regional school district, requires submission of projected enrollments "based" on growth factors using averages percentages for the last three school years. However, the Department's cohort survival worksheets have room for seven years of data or six ratios.

grade is unusually low, a loss of only a few students in any one year has a "disproportionate influence" on future projections. As examples of what he termed "unusual events" or "anomolies," Dr. Richards pointed to the loss of nine out of 27 Township students in the entering ninth grade class of 1990, which produces a survival ratio of .67, or the loss of three out of 15 students in the entering ninth grade class of 1989, which produces a ratio of .80. Because of such "statistical aberrations," Dr. Richards believes that the use of three years of data distorts the true picture in the long-run.

Dr. Richards is on shaky ground when he speculates that the recent "sharp drop" in Township students attending Boonton High School might be due to "[adverse] publicity surrounding the conflict between the two school systems" and that some "very sharp" parents may be pulling their children out of Boonton in anticipation of the Township winning this litigation.[11] To the contrary, the impression conveyed by the record as a whole is that the declining enrollment within the last two years is a symptom rather than a cause of parental dissatisfaction. Notably, Bolan testified that many Township parents "feel [their children] will get a better education going elsewhere" and are exploring other alternatives, such as private or parochial schools, as well as Mountain Lakes.

Additionally, Dr. Richards contends that "errors" in the use of the 1990 actual enrollment data contaminate Dr. Averbach's results. It turns out that the single "error" was a reversal or transposition of the number of "shared students," so that the total number from Lincoln Park is understated by 28 students and the number from the Town is overstated by a corresponding amount. [12] At one point, Dr.

[11]In actuality, there is no incentive for doing so. If severance is granted, it would be phased-in prospectively over four years, starting with future ninth graders. Any student currently assigned to Boonton High School would remain through graduation, unless his family is willing to pay to send their child somewhere else. Parents who jump the gun by sending their children to Mountain Lakes would not derive any financial advantage. In other words, parents who remove their children prematurely do not achieve any priority over parents who do not.

Richards was unable to say whether this error would serve to minimize or magnify any potential negative impact. At another point, he conceded that the numbers "counterbalance" each other. In any event, he agreed that Dr. Averbach utilized the correct 1990 actual figures for the Township enrollment and for total enrollment from all three districts. While the transposed numbers may affect predictions of the allocation of tuition costs between the Town and Lincoln Park, they have no bearing on projected losses resulting from the Township's withdrawal.

I FIND that Dr. Averbach's approach of using the latest three years of data most accurately mirrors current housing patterns, vital statistics and parental choices. Dr. Richards failed to consider the best available data and assumed a continuation of earlier–conditions less likely to be repeated in the foreseeable future. His trivialization of the decline in enrollment for the last two years as an "abberation" betrays an unrealistic expectation of the direction in which future enrollment is heading.

F. Substantial Negative Impacts of Termination

(1) Impact on Quality of Education

Two aspects of the educational impact of the withdrawal must be examined: first, the impact on Town and Lincoln Park students who would remain at Boonton High School; and, second, the impact on Township students who would move to Mountain Lakes.

Presently, Boonton High School offers a menu of course selections in all types of subjects and at all achievement levels. In 1989-90, for example, Boonton offered 289 separate classes or sections, comparable to districts with twice its enrollment. Programmatic reductions at Boonton High School which might be necessitated by withdrawal of the Township would be felt most heavily in low enrollment courses, where there is less student demand. Dr. Richards endeavored to quantify the possible impact by looking at classes of 15 or less students and arrived at the dire prospect that some 39 courses, including advanced placement, high honors, foreign language, and fine arts selections, will be "entirely eliminated" if 82 Township students are allowed to leave by 1995. In the worst case scenario, Dr. Richards predicted that "as many as 71 sections would be lost." Even in Dr. Richards' pessimistic outlook, only one-third of the anticipated reduction in course offerings would actually be due to the withdrawal of Township students and two-thirds will occur due to normal attrition, regardless of whether the Township stays or leaves.

In addition to inflated enrollment projections, Dr. Richards' report contains other flaws which greatly exaggerate the negative effect of the Township's withdrawal. In the first place, Dr. Richards uses 15 students as the cutoff point for keeping a class, whereas the Town's own documents disclose that its practice has been to discontinue classes only when enrollment drops below eight. Important enough classes have been offered for less than eight students. Professor Hyman of Rutgers University regards a cutoff point of 15 as "highly questionable" and criticizes Dr. Richards for giving "no rationale for using this number." Looking at actual enrollments, Dr. Hyman determined that "if all the Boonton Township 9th grade students were to withdraw as of the 1990-91 school year, the only course to fall below 8 would be General Math, which is already averaging below 8 and did so last year, 1989-90, as well." Dr. Hyman concluded that "[i]n all other courses selected by 9th grade Boonton Township students, the withdrawal would not leave fewer than 15 students remaining, let alone 8 students."

Moreover, Dr. Richard's predictions rely on the false premise that Boonton Township students are now the constituent core of the enrollment of these courses. However, enrollment losses are unlikely to be concentrated in any one particular course because, as reported by guidance counselor Lois Branch, Township students are evenly distributed throughout all ability levels. Dr. Hyman posits that complete withdrawal of all Township students "represents a fairly insignificant portion of these [low enrollment] classes," except for high honors algebra and Spanish IV. This assessment is consistent with interviews of Town teachers, who confided to Dr. Hyman that "since Township students have a range of abilities and achievements, no special classes would be affected [by a withdrawal.]" Independently, two groups of teachers told Dr. Hyman that the only probable impact is "We would lose about 90 students. That's all." They foresaw no significant loss in curricular offerings.

Curiously, the major thrust of the Town's proofs on this issue dealt not with its own interests, but with the supposed adverse impact on other people's children. Dr. Richards argues that Township students would suffer from "significantly fewer academic and vocational opportunities" at Mountain Lakes High School.[13] Couched simplistically in terms of course listings, the differences between the two high schools actually stem from differing educational philosophies. Booton follows a "leveling" or ability grouping approach, offering regular, honors and high honors sections for students with varying academic capabilities and motivation. Mountain Lakes places greater emphasis on strong college preparation and has a fewer number of choices for vocational or business-oriented students.

Both Dr. Savitt and Dr.Richards engaged in "course counting." Purely in terms of numbers, Boonton High School comes out ahead. By Dr. Savitt's count, Boonton High School offered a total of 148 full year courses in 1988-89, while Mountain Lakes offered only 59. Likewise, Dr. Richards counted courses taught in 1989-90 and found that Boonton had two-and-a-half times as many English and social studies courses, twice as many mathematics and music courses, one-and-a half as many science courses, seven times as many art courses and five times as many industrial arts courses. In highly specialized areas, Boonton offers electives for which Mountain Lakes has no equivalent, such as Italian, jazz ensemble or psychology. Clearly the number of course offerings is no guaranty of successful learning. Notwithstanding Dr. Richards' calculation that Boonton offers a greater number of advanced placement classes, Mountain Lakes students are more successful in earning advanced placement college credits.

Meaningful comparison of programs based on titles or brief course descriptions is exceedingly difficult. Within the confines of their limited studies, neither expert attempted to evaluate the scope or adequacy of course content. Skills or subjects covered under one title in one district may be covered under a different title in the other, such as "banking and finance" which Boonton treats as a separate entity and Mountain Lakes includes as part of its "business mathematics" course. Douglas Lyons, Mountain Lakes' superintendent, expressed confidence that his district incorporates the same range of intellectual functioning in a fewer course selections. Comprehensiveness, in the modern sense that Dr. Lyons uses that term, means teaching communication and computation skills which have "transfer value," regardless of whether the students "choose college or trade school or employment."

[13]Concern about the breadth of Mountain Lakes's curriculum is not new. As early as 1980, Middle States recommended that Mountain Lakes "explore ways of relating its curriculum to less able students." Initially, Dr. Savitt harbored his own reservations about the comprehensiveness of Mountain Lakes' program and the need for "additional specialized courses" to accomodate the non-college bound student. In his updated report, however, Dr. Savitt was satisfied with Mountain Lakes' eagerness to expand its course selections for the benefit not only of Township students but its own residents as well.

Philosophically, Dr. Lyons is critical of what he regards as excessive "tracking" of students by Boonton. For instance, Boonton identifies five separate "levels of rigor" for American Literature, as opposed to Mountain Lakes which offers only one regular and one honors section. Dr. Lyons believes that Boonton's "fine-tuned" distinctions result in labeling children as "deficient" and in restricting upward mobility. Children stuck in lower tracks are consigned to "far less stimulating" learning environments. Overly rigid tracking also deprives more able students of the opportunity for valuable social interaction with classmates of differing talents. Even if Mountain Lakes had a larger enrollment base, Dr. Lyons would still resist unnecessary stratification.

Point by point, Dr. Lyons refuted the charge that Mountain Lakes' existing curriculum is unsuited for the Township's more diverse student body. Since the Town's attack focused on opportunities for non-college bound students, Dr. Lyons paid particular attention to industrial arts, business education and home economics offerings.- Only 8 Township students now at Boonton are taking industrial arts courses, most of whom have elected basic courses like mechanical drawing or woodworking which are also available at Mountain Lakes.[14] Sixteen Township juniors or seniors are enrolled in business courses, the majority in first-year accounting which is taught at Mountain Lakes as well. Mountain Lakes wants to broaden its business offerings for resident students, and Dr. Lyons divulged that "one of the reasons why the introduction of another population is attractive to us, is because . . . with increased numbers there well be increased elective opportunities for all kids, including our own." Similarly, sixteen Township students take home economics subjects at Boonton, primarily a "foods course" also given at Mountain Lakes.

Dr. Lyons also rebutted the charge that large numbers of single course offerings at Mountain Lakes would cause scheduling conflicts for Township students. School guidance counselors, assisted by an outside computer company, generate a matrix which maximizes students' first choices. Qualified students never miss out on advanced placement courses, although some individuals may have to choose a different elective.

I FIND that Township students are widely distributed among different classes at Boonton and their departure, phased over a four-year period, would not have a substantial negative impact on the Township's continuing ability to offer its students a wide variety of courses. Dr. Hyman's assessment that few, if any, courses are genuinely threatened is more reliable than Dr. Richards' alarmist view.

Mountain Lakes and Boonton are both good schools, capable of delivering a thorough and efficient education to their students. Each has its particular virtues and strengths. Mountain Lakes has an especially strong academic program, while Boonton has more vocational and career opportunities. However, Mountain Lakes presently meets the needs of all its students, including those less academically motivated, and is sincerely willing to add additional courses to accomodate Township students. Nothing on the record indicates that Mountain Lakes would be unable to provide educational benefit to all types of students. In the final analysis, the Township community, through its elected representatives, must decide which philosophical approach is best suited for the majority of its residents.

(2) Impact on Financial Conditions

Both sides presented testimony by equally knowledgeable experts in the field of school finance. The Town called Vincent B. Calabrese, retired assistant commissioner of education who was the state official directly responsible for supervision of school financial matters. The Town called Ronald E. Burgess, a licensed attorney who works for a certified public accounting firm specializing in municipal and school audits. Although the experts applied a similar methodology to project future high school costs and municipal tax bases, they came to ~~strikingly~~ different conclusions about the tax impact on the average homeowner. Neither expert, incidentally, felt comfortable about expressing any opinion on the probable effect of Quality Education Act of 1990, popularly known as "QEA." Thus, the financial impact analysis has an air of unreality about it, since no one was prepared to say definitively whether the affected districts will be losing state financial aid and, if so, whether local taxpayers will be expected to make up the difference.[15]

Taxpayers are interested in the bottom line, as measured by the total annual increase in taxes. Under Calabrese's calculations, the yearly tax bill for the average homeowner in the first full year of implementation (1994-95) would increase by $112 for a Town resident and $80 for a Lincoln Park resident. Burgess' calculation for the same year is about half as much, or $69 for a Town resident and $41 for a Lincoln Park resident. Their differences are attributable to variations in their underlying data, primarily the use of different enrollment projections. Calabrese relied on the less accurate four-ratio projections of Dr. Richards, while Burgess adopted the more trustworthy two-ratio projections of Dr. Averbach. Also, Calabrese used "assessed valuation" in his computations, while Burgess used "net valuation taxable" which resulted in slightly higher ratables because it included the value of a telephone company installation in Boonton Town.

Assuming the correctness of his own figures, Calabrese was forced to concede, nevertheless, that the financial impact of the anticipated loss of tuition would be minimal. During his deposition, Calabrese admitted that his predicted loss of $246,000 in comparison to a budget totaling $12.6 million would produce no impact

[15]Shortly after the last hearing date, the Legislature amended the school funding law by enactment of legislation dubbed "QEA II." L. 1991, c. 3230 (effective March 14, 1991). The revised law reduced appropriations to the 30 special needs districts, earmarked certain revenue for property tax relief and put new limitations or caps on local school spending. Further refinements to the school funding mechanism are likely to follow. See Bird, Abbott Lawyer Set to Challenge QEA Overhaul, 127 N.J.L.J. 811 (March 28, 1991).

"statistically." In fact, he went on to indicate that any impact would be largely "emotional," because taxes might have to be raised. Subsequently, he tried to rehabilitate his position by explaining that the largest portion of any school budget consists of fixed costs which are difficult to cut. Candidly, however, he acknowledged that, "I can't sit here and tell you it's [referring to the tuition loss] of major significance in cost." At the hearing itself, Calabrese reiterated that a loss of some $300,000 out of ten or twelve million "would not be significant" in terms of the total budget.

Importantly, Calabrese failed to consider potential cost-savings to the Town which could be realized from no longer having to educate Township children. Contrary to the Town's other expert, Dr. Richards, who had predicted a drastic cutback of course offerings, Calabrese saw no immediate reduction in teaching staff and "little, if any, impact on the educational program." Based on 40 years of practical experience, Calabrese testified that "it is highly unlikely with the small number of students leaving a high school that there would be major reductions[.]" For his part, Dr. Richards also did not make any allowance for cost- savings, although in another case study he had envisioned savings of $64,000 in teachers' salaries from a loss of about 60 students.

Proponents of severance argue that the Town could "absorb" any negative financial impact by expending the accumulated surplus in its current expense budget. Testimony differed radically as to the magnitude of the Town's budget surplus at any particular moment, with Burgess talking about a surplus of $577,714 at the end of June 1990 and Calabrese about $287,883 at the start of July 1990. As a rule of thumb, both financial experts agreed that it is reasonable for a local school district to maintain at least 3% of its expense budget in a contingency fund for emergencies or unexpected expenses. If Calabrese's recent information is correct, then the Town's surplus is well within 3% of its 1990-91 current expense budget. In any case, Burgess' proposition that surplus could be exhausted to cushion any negative impact is highly dubious, since it would be a one-shot answer and not a permanent solution.

At the conclusion of petitioner's proofs, the Town made a big point of the Township's alleged failure to quantify future tuition costs for sending students to Mountain Lakes.[16] Contending that the temporary discount "masks" the real costs of Mountain Lakes tuition rates, the Town accuses the Township of having failed to make an informed judgment on the financial implications of the move. On behalf of the Town, Calabrese calculated that by 1994-95 tuition rates will be $13,854 at Mountain Lakes versus $11,083 at Boonton, which translates into an additional $183 on the average Township homeowner's tax bill. Once more, Calabrese relied on Dr. Richard's inflated enrollment projections in performing his calculations.

Admittedly, Burgess was never asked by his client to explore Mountain Lakes future tuition rates or analyze the impact on Township taxes. However, Dr. Savitt's feasibility study contains a chart purportedly showing that Mountain Lakes' actual tuition rates were lower than the Town's rates in two out of three past years. Dr. Savitt used the best figures available at the time, which were the tentative or unaudited rates for the two later years. Calabrese used more recent cost reports and state-certified rates for all but the last year, and recalculated that Mountain Lakes' rates were higher in all three prior years, by $720 in 1989-90; by $307 in 1988-89; and by $379 in 1987-88.

I FIND that the negligible tax increases due to severance would not have a substantial negative impact on the financial condition of any affected district. Because Calabrese's long-range extrapolations are tainted by his acceptance of Dr. Richards' enrollment figures, Burgess' estimate of the probable tax impact on Town and Lincoln Park is closer to the truth. But even if Calabrese is right, the small increase for an average homeowner by 1994-95, amounting to less than 31 cents per day for the Town and 22 cents per day for Lincoln Park, is minuscule in relation to a (Emphasis added). multi-million dollar budget. Viewed sympathetically, Calabrese's testimony does not support any other finding.

Per-pupil tuition rates may be somewhat cheaper at Town than at Mountain Lakes, but the difference must be considered in terms of value received for each educational dollar spent. Township leaders are justified in concluding that they would get more for their money at Mountain Lakes. Unequivocally, the Township would obtain the benefit of below-cost tuition rates for the next six years.

(3) Impact on Racial Composition

Enrollment reports for October 15, 1990 record that Boonton High School has 22 African American students, 26 Hispanic students and 49 Asian students out of a total enrollment of 729. Together, African American and Hispanic students constitute about 6.5% of the total student population. If the 49 Asian students at Boonton are also counted, the percentage of minority students is 13%. On the same date, Mountain Lakes High School reported 2 African American students and 19 Asian students in a total school population of 412. Accordingly, African Americans constitute less than half of one percent of the student body and the entire minority population is about 5%. Bluntly, as Mountain Lakes acknowledged in its brief, "both districts are racially segregated."

Withdrawal of the Township's virtually all white block of students would, under Dr. Richards' overblown projections, increase Boonton High School's minority population to just over 14% by 1994. Without withdrawal, Dr. Richards projects that Boonton High School's minority population would remain at around 12% by 1994. No one, not even Dr. Richards, contends that this difference has any real significance. During direct examination, Dr. Richards testified that, in his estimation, the slight change would not have a substantial negative impact on racial balance at Boonton High School.

Again, the Town places greater emphasis on departing Township children than on remaining Town and Lincoln Park children. Unable to find any substantial racial impact at the home school, Dr. Richards ventured the opinion that Township students would encounter increased "racial isolation" at Mountain Lakes. Apart from the obvious fact that smaller numbers of minority students attend Mountain Lakes, Dr. Richards does not provide any supporting research for his conclusion, such as a comparison of racial attitudes at the two schools or proof that minority students are more readily accepted and better integrated at predominantly white Boonton High School.

Between the two districts, the evidence suggests that Mountain Lakes is more keenly conscious of its limitations and has taken greater measures to teach its students respect for other ethnic groups and the value of racial understanding. Aware of the need for cooperative learning experiences, Mountain Lakes has inaugurated a voluntary activity, known as "The Paterson Connection." Mountain Lakes students and their teachers participate in an exchange program with an urban sister school system in the City of Paterson, involving visits to each other's schools, jointly planned field trips and attendance at social functions. Recently, Mountain Lakes students were guests at a school for the performing arts in Paterson. Inner city students from Paterson also recently spent a day at Mountain Lakes High School. Interest in the program is growing in both communities, and new friendships are beginning to be forged.

I FIND that race is simply not a major factor in whether or not to allow severance. Both high schools have large white majorities and will continue to do so, whatever the outcome of this case. The Town presented no expert evidence of any substantial negative impact on the racial composition of Boonton High School. While the evidence is hardly conclusive, what little does exist indicates that Township students at Mountain Lakes would benefit from the enlightened leadership which takes a more active role in promoting social interchange, by minimizing artificial divisions within the school itself and by encouraging broader contacts with the outside world.

IV. Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the requested change in designation of the receiving district will not result in any substantial negative impact and, therefore, should be granted.

Existing sending-receiving relationships at the high school level cannot be "changed or withdrawn . . . except upon application made to and approved by the [C]ommissioner." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13. See Merchantville Bd. of Educ. v. Pennsauken Bd. of Educ. 204 N.J. Super. 508 (App. Div. 1985). Effective November 24, 1986, the governing statute was amended to modify the standard to be applied by the Commissioner when considering requests to alter or terminate sending-receiving relationships.

As noted in Englewood Cliffs Bd. of Educ. v. Englewood Bd. of Educ., 12 N.J.A.R. 566, 622, adopted (Comm'r July 11, 1988), modified (St. Bd. April 4, 1990), appeal docketed No. A4912-89T5 (N.J. App. Div. May 17, 1990), the amendment to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 deleted language of the predecessor statute, which had conditioned the Commissioner's approval upon a showing of "good and sufficient reason. " In its place, the new statute substituted a provision that the Commissioner "shall grant the requested change . . . if no substantial negative impact will result therefrom." The amendment also added a new statutory standard:

> The [C]ommissioner shall make equitable determination based upon consideration of all the circumstances, including the educational and financial implications for the affected districts, the impact on the quality of education received by pupils and the effect on the racial composition of the pupil population of the districts.

Case law has begun to interpret the meaning of this new language as applied to specific factual situations. In Englewood, the State Board observed that " the Legislature, however, further altered the statute so as to require the Commissioner to grant termination if he finds, after consideration of all circumstances, including the effect of severance on the racial composition of the pupil populations of the districts, that 'no substantial negative impact will result therefrom.' " (Emphasis in the original). 12 N.J.A.R. at 664, n. 1.

At first, it appeared that a finding of substantial negative impact in any one of the three areas enumerated in the statute would be enough to preclude severance. Thus, in Belmar Bd. of Educ. v. Asbury Park Bd. of Educ., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3773-87 (April 14, 1989), adopted No. 171-89 (Comm'r June 29, 1989), appeal docketed No. 42-89 (St. Bd. June 28, 1989), the Commissioner rejected the argument that the new statute requires a balancing of the three separate factors. Instead, the Commissioner ruled that "the presence of any one such factor, if found to be significantly negative, constitutes cause for denial of the application." (slip op. at 96-97). However, the ruling was never put to practical use, since the Commissioner actually found substantial negative impacts in two of the three areas.

The latest and most authoritative interpretation of the new legal standard arose in the context of an interlocutory appeal to the State Board from an evidentiary ruling on burdens of proof. Recently, in Merchantville Bd. of Educ. v. Pennsauken Bd. of Educ., No. 78-89 (St. Bd. Sept. 7, 1990), the State Board backed away from the Commissioner's single-impact test and moved in the direction of a balancing test. "While requiring that termination be granted where there will be no substantial negative impact, the terms of the statute do not mandate that the Commissioner deny termination where the proceedings establish that a negative impact, even a substantial negative impact, will result. Thus, termination may be granted where negative impact will result in some area but such impact is outweighed by the benefits that will result from the change sought." Merchantville, at 4.

Since the advent of the new statute, the sending district no longer must show a good and sufficient reason for termination. Merchantville, at 3. Nevertheless, it deserves mention that the Township did not act arbitrarily and unreasonably in seeking a change of its designated receiving district. Unfortunately, the primary impetus for the switch came when the Town started to take the Township for granted and ignored its requests for a more equal partnership.

Legislative declarations embodied in N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-2 provide for "citizen involvement in educational matters" and for a public school system "which guarantees and encourages local participation." Receiving districts must be attuned to the legitimate interests of the sending districts which they serve. After all, the receiving district does not possess "a statutory right to continue as the receiving district for a particular sending district indefinitely or to perpetuity." Cranbury Bd. of Educ. v. Lawrence Bd. of Educ., No. 95-85 (St. Bd. April 1, 1987) (at 9), appeal dismissed, No. A-4253-86T1 (N.J. App. Div. 22, 1988). Accord, Washington Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. Upper Freehold Bd. of Ed., No. 178-89 (Comm'r June 27, 1989). This is important because sending districts lack direct representation on the corporate body in control of the high school. Citizens of the sending district do not vote for members of the school board which operates the high school, as they would in a typical Type II elected school district, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-11; or for the mayor who appoints the board members, as they would in a Type I appointive school district, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-7; or for members of an apportioned board of education, as they would in a regional school district, N.J.S.A. 18A:13-10. They must depend entirely on the good will and responsiveness of school board members whom they do not elect.

Under the revised statute, the outcome turns on an analysis of the negative impacts. What makes this case unique is the Town's heavy emphasis on the supposed harm to the withdrawing students. There is a hollow ring to the Town's assertion that it knows better about the educational needs of other people's children and about saving other people's tax dollars. Absent unusual circumstances or overriding social policy, it is preferable in a democratic society to let local people decide for themselves how their children should be educated and how their tax money should be spent. Ordinarily, one would expect the receiving district to come forward with proofs that the harm to those left behind would outweigh the anticipated benefit to those who leave. Here the Town took the opposite tack and unsuccessfully tried to show that Township children would suffer if forced to attend Mountain Lakes' excellent public high school.

Even in more conventional terms, the Town does not make a convincing case for denial of severance. Educational impact on the Town would not be appreciably worse than in Cranbury, where the loss of some 90 students scattered throughout different classes was deemed to have no impact on the number of future course offerings, or Washington Twp., where the courses had sufficient enrollment "to continue even if Washington Township withdrew all at once." (slip op. at 21). Boonton is not in any risk of being abandoned by white students and relegated to permanent minority status, as distinguished from Englewood and Asbury Park where termination was disallowed in order to preserve racial balance. Some increased costs as a result of withdrawal may be unavoidable, but the Town's own expert acknowledged that the additional tax burden would not be substantial. Furthermore, the statutory scheme was never intended to create a revenue source for receiving districts or protect them from tax increases. Washington Twp., at 47. Balancing of the equities is superfluous, there being nothing to tip the scales in favor of the existing relationship. In short, the Town has failed to establish any substantial negative impact, so the case falls into the category where the Commissioner must grant the requested change.

Order

It is ORDERED that the Township is hereby authorized to terminate its existing sending-receiving relationship with the Town, subject to the following two conditions:

(1) The Township must enter into a contract for a new sending-receiving relationship with Mountain Lakes for a minimum duration of five years; and,

(2) Withdrawal shall be phased-out over a four year period, starting with the incoming ninth grade class in September 1992, the 10th grade class in September 1993, the 11th grade class in September 1994 and the 12th grade class in September 1995.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 1092-90

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF BOONTON,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWN OF BOONTON AND BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF MOUNTAIN LAKES, MORRIS COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have reviewed. The Town of Boonton (hereinafter Town) filed timely exceptions pursuant to the applicable provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Township of Boonton (hereinafter Township) and the Borough of Mountain Lakes (hereinafter Lakes) filed timely reply exceptions.

Town cites five exceptions to the initial decision, the first of which claims that Township failed to address, in both its feasibility study and in its proofs, the financial impact of withdrawal from its sending-receiving relationship with Town, Lakes and Lincoln Park, (hereinafter Park), thus requiring that termination should be denied. In the alternative, petitioner seeks a remand of the matter to the ALJ to determine financial impact on all the districts in a quantitative manner.

Because Town's first exceptions raise a fundamental procedural issue relating to the burdens of persuasion and proof in this sending-receiving termination matter, the Commissioner will consider it before proceeding to the other exceptions. The State Board of Education in the case captioned Board of Education of the Borough of Merchantville v. Board of Education of the Township of Pennsauken, Camden County v. Board of Education of the Borough of Haddonfield, Camden County, Decision on Motion by the Commissioner of Education, November 13, 1989, decision of State Board of Education, September 5, 1990 has clearly delineated the shifting burdens of production in such cases as the one at bar. Therein the State Board made plain that N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13 requires as a prerequisite to applying for termination that the petitioning district, in this case Township, prepare and submit a feasibility study which considers, inter alia: "2) the financial implications of termination  of each district involved." (Slip Opinion, at p. 4) (emphasis supplied)

The State Board further explained that " it is crucial that the record produced by the proceedings provide a sufficient basis upon which the Commissioner can arrive at his substantive determination and upon which we can review that determination if the Commissioner's decision is appealed to us." (Id., at p. 5) Thereafter the State Board continues,

> Obviously, the feasibility study must address, at a minimum, all of the areas specifically set forth in the statute, and petitioner must establish in the proceedings the factual basis underlying the study so as to withstand challenge by the party contesting termination. Once the petitioning board has met its initial burden of production, the burden shifts to the party contesting termination to go forward with > evidence that termination will result in a negative impact.

> The allocation of the burden of production delineated above does not shift the ultimate burden of persuading the Commissioner that termination is mandated or warranted. That burden remains on the petitioning party. However, where a petitioner has met its initial burden of production in proceedings under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-13,  the claim by the respondent that termination will have a substantial negative impact is in the nature of an affirmative defense. Thus, it is appropriate that the party asserting that claim bear the burden of showing that a negative impact outweighing any positive benefits of termination will result. (Id., at pp. 5-6)

The Commissioner notes that the ALJ properly assessed the burdens assigned in a sending-receiving termination case wherein he states at page 2 of the initial decision:

> For its part, the receiving district [Town] has assumed the burden of showing that termination would result in substantial negative impacts, not only for the remaining students at the present high school but for the sending district[s'] students as well.

However, Town's exception, which first raised the issue of the sufficiency of the feasibility study as a Motion to Dismiss at the conclusion of petitioner's case in chief, again suggests that Township failed to meet its burden of proof on the issue of financial impact on all the districts involved because neither the feasibility study nor petitioner's case in chief presented the factual basis necessary to withstand challenged on the matter of tax impact on Boonton Township.

The parties acknowledge that no Township tax analysis per se was made a part of the feasibility study prepared by Dr. Savitt, Township's consultant in school administration and management and author of its feasibility study and updated feasibility study.

Rather, petitioner contends that tax impact can be "inferred" (Tr. VII-8 (12/11/91)) by the analysis conducted by Dr. Savitt regarding tuition payment differentials. The ALJ denied the Motion to Dismiss, suggesting:

> THE COURT: All right I'm going to deny the motion to dismiss at this stage of the case. Mr. Carroll properly set forth the general standards which apply here; namely, that all reasonable inferences must be drawn in favor of the party opposing dismissal. And Mr. Carroll was also correct that at this point my concern is with the sufficiency of the proofs and not with the weight. So anything my ruling expresses no views whatsoever on the weight of the testimony to this point.
> I'm satisfied from the proofs this far that a prima facie case has been made out. Mr. Kalac was correct that Dr. Savitt did testify that since there is no financial impact on the Town it's implicit that there is no financial impact on the Township as well. That alone is sufficient to defeat the motion.
>
>
> And it seems to me that the rationale behind 18A:38-13 is an attempt to protect the interests of the receiving district as well. And certainly in looking at the financial condition, that's of greatest concern.
>
> That is not to say that the financial impact on the sending district is not a part of the case, but I think it's a less important part of the case. Since the petitioner's Board of education is evidently willing to pay the price. And feels that the bargain it wants to enter into is a good one.
>
> For these reasons I am going to deny the motion at this point. Again I want to emphasize that I'm expressing no views at all on what weight [is] to be given to these various factors, but merely as to whether or not a prima facie case has been proven and in my view clearly, there has been a prima facie case presented.

Although the statute in question, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13, is silent as to what must actually be included in the feasibility study to assess negative financial impact, the Commissioner believes that such study should include in the financial impacts section, but not be limited to, an analysis of not only tuition costs for the current receiving district, but also changes in tuition costs for the sending districts and tax rates for all communities involved. (See, N.J. Department of Education Internal Memorandum to County Superintendents, March 9, 1988 at p. 4, Exhibit R-26.) However, petitioner may not have had access to the criteria suggested in such exhibit at the time it developed its feasibility study, insofar as the memorandum is addressed to county superintendents, merely suggesting that they discuss such elements with local superintendents at a round table discussion. However, even if they had access to the memorandum, it does not carry the weight of law to the extent of requiring dismissal.

Consequently, in reviewing the instant matter, the sufficiency of proofs related to financial impact is reduced to an investigation of whether, despite the absence of a tax analysis of financial impact on Township in the feasibility study, the Commissioner can conclude from the record before him, that there is "sufficient basis" developed in the "case in chief" (see Merchantville, supra) for him to fulfill his statutory responsibility to assess whether there is substantial negative financial impact to any or all districts involved. In this case, the Commissioner is persuaded by the evidence in the record that a conclusion can be reached that no substantial negative financial impact befalls any of the districts involved.

The Commissioner so finds notwithstanding Town's correct observation made in exceptions that the comment made by the ALJ in denying the motion earlier in the hearing was erroneous; the testimony regarding financial impact made by Dr. Savitt related to Lincoln Park, not Boonton Township. However, the Commissioner's review of the record finds that there was adequate testimony adduced from Mr. Calabrese, the Town's expert, on financial impact on Boonton Township to withstand both a dismissal for failure to meet the statutory standard of review and also to avoid a remand for further findings on tax impact on Boonton Township. See Tr. XIII-64-164 (1/9/91) and R-57.

From Mr. Calabrese's testimony and study of the financial impacts of the proposed withdrawal (Exhibit R-57) the Commissioner has reached the same conclusions as did the ALJ below, that the 1994-95 tuition rates will be $13,854 at Mountain Lakes as compared to $11,083 at Boonton Town, which translates into an additional $183 on the average Township homeowner's tax bill. The Town's exceptions can hardly fault Mr. Calabrese's calculation of financial impact of the change on the Township; Calabrese is Town's own financial expert. Instead, Town challenges the ALJ's statement that because Mr. Calabrese relied on inflated enrollment projections of Dr. Richards, Town's consultant on school administration and management, his cost projections are, if anything, higher than Mr. Burgess'. Town suggests that Mr. Calabrese relied primarily upon Mountain Lakes' own enrollment figures not Richards' in calculating the impact on Mountain Lakes, citing R-57, Table 8, Column Notation: Tr. XIII-56 (1/9/91) Town submits that Calabrese only used Richards' figures for determining the number of students coming from Boonton Township.

The ALJ refers to Richards' inflated enrollment figures as a component of Calabrese's calculations only begrudgingly in comparing what the ALJ believed were Mr. Calabrese's higher figures regarding tax impact to make the point that the increase for an average homeowner in Town or Lincoln Park is small in relation to a multimillion dollar budget. The Commissioner's review of the testimony comports with the ALJ's conclusion and that of Town's own expert, that the tax rate increases, to any or all of the districts, are not significant in light of the total budgets at play herein, ranging from 10 to 12 million dollars. See Tr. XIII-130-132 (1/9/91). See also Initial Decision, at pp. 23-27.

The conclusion is reached notwithstanding Town's exception to the ALJ's conclusion at page 26 of the initial decision concerning Township's tax rate impact wherein the ALJ concludes that "the negligible tax increases due to severance would not have a substantial negative impact on the financial condition of any affected district." Petitioner challenges such conclusion in exceptions by suggesting that if Dr. Averbach's (Township's consultant in demography and enrollment projections) lower projections for Township high school age students are used, the Mountain Lakes Average Daily Enrollment (ADE) would be lower, resulting in the per pupil tuition being higher, not lower, as the ALJ suggests. Thereafter, petitioner elaborates by offering a series of calculations with and without Township students attending Mountain Lakes High School. Town arrives at the conclusion that a substantial financial difference in cost exists, a difference of which the Township Board was "ignorant" (Exceptions, at p. 10) in deciding to sever its relationship with Boonton. The Commissioner observes a shortcoming in Town's calculations in that it maintains as a constant the "historical rate of cost increases," whether the number of students attending Mountain Lakes High School rises or falls. Although Town's financial expert, Mr. Calabrese, promotes cost as a constant (See Tr. XIII-128-9), to do so artificially inflates the total tuition costs, because by virtue of serving fewer students, at some point cost factors must decline. Thus, while it is true that if Averbach's lower enrollment projections for Township high school age students are used, the Lakes ADE would be lower, the rate of cost increase would also be reduced, minimizing or perhaps even negating tuition cost increases.

Accordingly, the Commissioner dismisses Town's argument that Township was "ignorant" of a "substantial financial difference in cost" (Exceptions, at p. 10) and observing, as did the ALJ, that based on the Savitt figures, Mountain Lakes' actual tuition rates have been lower than the Town's rates in two out of the three past years. Coupled with the discount rates the Township would reap for the next six years by sending its students to Mountain Lakes, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that, even if per pupil rates may be somewhat cheaper at Town than at Mountain Lakes, the difference can be offset by consideration of value received for educational dollars spent. Consideration of value received, where there is no substantial financial, educational or racial negative impact, is a judgment to be made by the withdrawing district. With the conclusion made that no substantial financial impact inures to any of the districts involved in this litigation, based on the reasoning of the ALJ, as augmented herein, the Commissioner will now consider the other exceptions raised by the Town related to educational and racial impact.

Exception II posits that Mountain Lakes High School is not a comprehensive high school, and the narrowness of its curricular offerings will have a substantial negative impact on Township students. The Town avers the ALJ erred in limiting his consideration of educational impact on the testimony of Dr. Lyons, Lakes' superintendent, while nearly dismissing out of hand the course comparisons of Savitt and Richards who concluded Lakes' current program is inadequate to serve the Township's student population. The Town excepts to the ALJ's conclusion based on Dr. Lyon's testimony that Lakes "currently" offers a comprehensive high school program. (Town's Exceptions, at p. 13, emphasis in original) Town cites Township's own expert, Dr. Savitt, in his preliminary feasibility study, wherein he concluded that the current Lakes' program was not sufficiently diverse to meet the needs of Boonton Township students and that there would be a substantial negative impact on Township students if Lakes did not make changes in its program, citing Tr. VIII-52-53 (12/5/90) in support of its position regarding course inadequacies at Lakes.

Town bolsters its position by citing the 1989 Middle States Visiting Committee Report, (R-42), as well as the 1985 and 1989 Lakes' progress reports for the point that Lakes' priorities lie in educating the "elite college bound students" to the detriment of less able students. (Exceptions, at p. 18) It claims that as recently as 1990 it may be stated that by any standard, Town's curricular offerings dwarf those available at Lakes in all achievement areas, and in all types of subject, and that Town is better able to provide for the deficiencies in programming that Dr. Savitt recognized in preparing his original feasibility study (P-19).

Town thus rejects the ALJ's criticisms of Town's experts' "course counting" (Exceptions, at p. 21 and Initial Decision, at p. 21) and rejects the ALJ's accepting Dr. Lyons' definition of "comprehensiveness." Town finds the Lyons' definition unsupported in the record by any expert testimony or written report, citing Dr. Lyons' testimony at Tr. IX, (1/2/91) in support of this position.

Averring that the factual and opinion evidence from experts before the ALJ was overwhelming that Lakes does not currently offer an appropriate educational program for Township students, Town submits the Commissioner must address the issue of how much Lakes is going to expand offerings and programs, noting that the ALJ did not make any specific findings on this issue because he was convinced that Lakes' existing curriculum was appropriate for Township's more diverse student body. Town avers that the promises as to what courses Lakes is going to add are generalized, leaving much discretion to the Lakes Board. Citing the transcript at Tr. VIII-46-47 and 51-54, (1/2/91), Town submits Dr. Lyons could not identify at the time of hearing a single course the Board was going to add to make Lakes a comprehensive high school, nor was he able to identify a threshold number of students that would be needed to warrant adding a course, citing Id., at pp. 59-60 for this point.

Town finds Lakes' reliance on the availability of shared time vocational program at the County Vocational Technical School for meeting the needs of the non-college bound students "very restrictive and limiting." (Exceptions, at p. 28) It claims such approach fails to recognize the different needs served by in-house courses in these allied areas, the latter of which serve all students at Town, it claims.

Town submits that cost, inertia and the small size of Lakes militate against the expansion of any course offerings at Lakes. Town proffers that this is the first sending-receiving case in which there have been serious questions raised about the adequacy of breadth of the program at the new sending district. In this case, Town argues, the Commissioner is being asked to approve a withdrawal on the basis of unknown curricular changes which might be made at Lakes. Town submits that such a finding is too speculative to support withdrawal, where the experts agree that the current program is inadequate for the Township's student population.

Township's reply exceptions find it "incredible" (Petitioner's Reply Exceptions, at p. 8) that Town argues about alleged substantial negative impact on Township students while not mentioning whether there is a substantial negative impact on its own school, as the "district left behind." (Id.) Township claims that because it makes no mention of impact on itself, Town must agree with the ALJ's determination that there is no substantial negative impact on the educational program at Town upon termination. In response to Town's allegation that Township is incapable of knowing what is in its students' best interests, Township summarizes the testimony of Dr. Savitt, Mr. Bolan, Township's superintendent, and Dr. Lyons, Superintendent at Lakes, suggesting that Township's negotiations with Lakes resulted in contract provisions that would assure it obtained the best educational opportunity for all its students. Township cites P-20 and Tr. 1/21 pp. 152-53 in support of this position.

Citing Dr. Lyons' reports (Cr-2&3), Township rebuts Town's argument that Township students do not fit Lakes programs, stating that with a few exceptions like Italian, Township students would have the same core opportunities at Lakes as they enjoy at Town, and cites Tr. 1/21:18. Of the specialized courses, in which few Township students participate, petitioner adds, Lakes substantively offers most of these courses. For students desiring more extensive vocational or business opportunities, which Township avers involved only one Township student in 1990-91, citing CR-5, Lakes, like Town, participates in the shared time program with Morris County Vocational Technical. Township cites CR-14 in support of this proposition. Township claims that Town's championing individual Township students' ability needs and interests is "too little, too late" (Petitioner's Reply Exceptions, at p. 12) and self-serving.

Lakes' reply exceptions mirror Township's position that the similarity of the student bodies of Township and Lakes makes an excellent educational fit, noting that approximately 80% of Township's graduates go on to college while Lakes sends in excess of 90% of its graduates to college each year.

The Commissioner's review of the record concerning educational impact and his consideration of the ALJ's discussion -- amplified by petitioner in reply exceptions -- that Town emphasized the supposed harm to withdrawing Township students, convinces him that some further discussion of the burdens of proof in a sending receiving withdrawal case is warranted.

> There is a hollow ring to the Town's assertion that it knows better about the educational needs of other people's children and about saving other > people's tax dollars. Ordinarily, one would expect the receiving district to come forward with proofs that the harm to those left behind would outweigh the anticipated benefit to those who leave. Here the Town took the opposite tack and unsuccessfully tried to show that Township children would suffer if forced to attend Mountain Lakes' excellent public high school.

As noted earlier, the State Board in Merchantville, supra, has painstakingly clarified the shifting burdens of production in a sending-receiving severance matter. Once the petitioning board has met its initial burden of production, the burden shifts to the party contesting termination to go forward with evidence that termination will result in a negative impact. (Slip Opinion, at pp. 5-6)

Plainly, Town's burden might include arguments related to alleged hardship upon other than its own population upon severance because the receiving district's burden is to convince the Commissioner that termination will result in negative impact to any and all districts involved. Hence, the Commissioner is not as critical as the ALJ and petitioner and Lakes appear to be, of Town's "tack" (Initial Decision, at p. 31) in attempting to demonstrate that Township children would suffer if they were to attend Lakes. However, in so stating, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that Town is unsuccessful in meeting its burden of establishing that substantial negative educational impact will befall Township by withdrawing from its sending-receiving relationship with Town, for the reasons expressed by the ALJ.

First, the Commissioner notes that Dr. Savitt's preliminary feasibility study, upon which Town relies for the proposition that additional Lakes' course offerings would have to be added if Boonton Township pupils were to attend, was revised after consultation between Lakes and Township. Such negotiations led Savitt to conclude that all concerns addressed in the preliminary Feasibility Study (P-18) regarding comprehensive curriculum offerings for students of all ability levels had been addressed and satisfied. See, P-21 in evidence, at pp. 3-4. See also, testimony of Savitt Tr. IV-29 (12-4-90) wherein Dr. Savitt testified:

> Q: With respect to the educational impact, did you have an opinion as to whether there would be a substantial negative impact, educationally, by the withdrawal?
> A: [O]ur conclusions were that the withdrawal of those young people from Boonton Township to some other high school would not have a substantial negative educational effect on Boonton Township and in fact, we saw a possibility that that withdrawal might, instead, have some positive implications for the school.

Further, Mr. Bolan and Dr. Lyons, the Superintendents of Township and Lakes, respectively, credibly testified before the ALJ that Township students' schedules (see CR-5) and post-graduate profiles (P-36) closely match those of Lakes, and further that students who seek extensive vocational or business opportunities will have at their disposal the shared time program with Morris County Vocational-Technical School. (See CR-14, the academic requirements and course descriptions of Lakes High School for 1990-91.) The Commissioner's review of the record leads him to conclude that Lakes has been forthcoming, willing and able to accommodate whatever curricular modifications are indicated in accepting Township students, as evidenced by the contract negotiations that lead to the accord reached between the two towns in anticipation of Township's being permitted to withdraw from Town. (See P-21, at pp. 2-4, 7-15.) Moreover, it bears noting that no law or regulation requires a district to develop a vocational program equivalent to or surpassing the county vocational program, as Town suggests.

Certainly, the Commissioner must discount as being without merit Town's suggestion that the ALJ's reliance on testimony from the superintendents was inappropriate because neither was deemed an educational expert. In no manner may it be concluded that the ALJ was limited in assessing the proof in this case to that testimony adduced from the parties' expert witnesses. Moreover, as suggested by counsel for Township, the superintendents of these two communities' schools are learned educators with many years experience in the field of public education. See Tr. I-35-36 (11/26/90). See also Tr. IX-89-90 (1/2/91). Their testimony and opinions are worthy of great weight in the Commissioner's opinion.

Like the ALJ, the Commissioner finds that while Mountain Lakes High School and Boonton High School are both good schools, capable of providing a thorough and efficient education to their students, nothing in the record provided convinces him that Lakes would be unable to provide a thorough and efficient education to all types of students. Thus, it is the Commissioner's conclusion that Boonton Town has failed to demonstrate substantial negative impact on any of the districts involved. The Commissioner so finds for the reasons expressed in the initial decision.

In so deciding, the Commissioner notes Town's third exception concerning the enrollment projections adopted as findings of fact by the ALJ, which Town avers are seriously flawed and should not be accepted by the Commissioner in assessing educational and financial impact. Town avers Averbach's sharply lower enrollment figures, suggesting that only 45 Township high school students would enroll at Lakes in 1994 and 40 by 1995 (P-24, Table B-15; Tr. III-103-4 (12/3/90), must be rejected because they are so radically different from those of the other two experts, Dr. Savitt and Dr. Richards. Town also finds Averbach's enrollment projections flawed because they project a high school population that is half of that of 1990, despite K-8 enrollments in the feeding district which have remained constant. Town claims Averbach's results do not make sense because the K-8 populations are constant in the sending towns, thus suggesting that the high school population over the next few years would also be stable as these elementary age students move into the high school, absent new housing patterns, which, Town avers, Averbach conceded are only a factor in Lincoln Park, citing Tr. III (12/3/90) in support of Averbach's conceding this point.

Town avers that Averbach's analysis violates the guiding principle in the cohort survival method, namely, the assumption that "the ratio of students moving from one grade to another as a result of promotion [is] fairly constant over extended periods of time." (Exceptions, at p. 35, citing Tr. III-97 (12/3/90)) Town's concern is that Township's proofs and the ALJ's analysis ignore the ability of Lakes to expand its curriculum with new students because Lakes is relying on the expectation of 100 to 130 new Township students to make the necessary curriculum expansions. Town posits that if there are only 40-45 new Township students, a question arises as to whether it will realistically be able to make curriculum adjustments. Town avers Township cannot have it both ways, using low Township enrollment projections to minimize the supposed impact on Town and the remaining districts, while using high enrollment projections to "prop up a case that [Lakes] will be able to significantly expand its curriculum with the advent of larger numbers of Township students." (Exceptions, at p. 37)

Finally, Town suggests Averbach's projections must be rejected because of significant errors in his 1990 base year data, which errors, Town submits, were not denied by the other side. Town cites a comparison of R-33 and Tr. III-83-112 (12/11/90) to R-31 and R-32 with P-24 in support of this claim. Town suggests the ALJ noted such errors too and attempted "to explain them away." (Exceptions, at p. 37) Town claims it was incumbent on Township to present revised or rebuttal expert testimony to either correct the errors and projections or to explain why the projections remain valid, despite the errors in the data. The ALJ is in error, Town claims, when he states that these numbers only impact on the percentage of tuition paid by Township and Lincoln Park. Town submits they also significantly influence the cohort survival ratios, and the cohorts in turn impact on enrollment projections.

Town's position is that the Commissioner should reject Averbach's enrollment projections for all districts in favor of Dr. Richards'. Adoption of Richards' projections in turn require the rejection of Burgess' financial projections in favor of Calabrese's, since the only significant difference in their analyses was the use of different enrollment projections, Town adds. At the very least, Town claims, the Commissioner should remand this matter because it is clear that the data on which the termination impacts were based are seriously in error.

In regard to the enrollment projections, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ in the first instance that Dr. Averbach's expertise as a demographer exceeds Dr. Richards, who has limited experience preparing enrollment projections and in serving as an expert in severance of sending-receiving relationships. Compare Tr. III-95 to Tr. VII-27 and Tr. VII-29. See also, initial decision at pp. 16-17. Moreover, it may not be ignored that Dr. Averbach's projections were based on the most recent figures available showing actual enrollment as of October 1990, while Dr. Richards relied on data from 1989. While Town would charge Township with responsibility for correcting alleged errors in Averbach's 1990 base year data, Town would ignore its own responsibility to come forward with updated projections to rebut Township's obviously more weighty projections made so by their recency. Dr. Richards admitted in testimony that he failed to update his projections to include the 1990-91 data in his four-year trend because he did not have time. (See Tr. VII-157)

Rather, Town attempts to bolster its older data by attacking Township's expert's use of a two-year trend/three-year base in arriving at his enrollment projections instead of the more usual five or six years of enrollment history, which Dr. Richards suggests is standard procedure in preparing cohort survival ratios. Apparently, Dr. Averbach would agree that the latter procedure is usual in such situations to provide a stable platform of conditions for projecting future enrollment. (See P-24, at p. 10.) (See also Tr. III-124.) However, in the instant matter, such lengthy history, in his professional judgment, did not provide such stable base, thus requiring a determination, again, based on his professional judgment, where the line for base years should more correctly be drawn. P-24 and Tr. III-101 indicate that a narrow spread would result from use of the standard methodology; accordingly, Dr. Averbach reasoned that it was unreasonable to assume that the last five years' growth patterns would continue in the next five years, due primarily to current economic factors.

The Commissioner concludes that nothing obliges an expert to employ the five to six year historical data advocated by Dr. Richards and that moreover, Dr. Averbach's projections must be assigned more credibility in determining student population projections in all districts at issue herein based on his professional judgment that the two-year trend/three-year base was more reliable. See Englewood Cliffs v. Englewood, decided by the Commissioner, July 11, 1988, affirmed in part with modification and reversed in part by State Board decision of April 4, 1990, at pp. 102-103, of Commissioner's decision wherein the Commissioner and ALJ agreed that the enrollment projections in that case, which were similarly based on a two-year trend/three-year base were a "realistic and accurate assessment of enrollment," citing N.J.A.C. 6:3-3.1, which requires three years of enrollment history in assessing enrollment projections in regionalization studies.

Finally, concerning any errors in the 1990 base year data, the Commissioner rejects as being without merit Town's attempt to fault the ALJ for chastising Dr. Richards for not doing a study to correct and determine the impact of any such error in Township's 1990 actual enrollment data. The Commissioner agrees that even in exceptions, Township was unable, as noted by the ALJ, to suggest what, if any effect any such errors would have on potential negative impact. While Town argues that the ALJ erred when he stated that the alleged errors in the data only impact on the percentage of tuition paid by Township and Lincoln Park, Town presents no counter information to justify its contention that the ALJ's explanation was erroneous. Accordingly, such arguments regarding the lack of validity of Dr. Averbach's enrollment projections are dismissed as being without merit, and the Commissioner accepts for the reasons expressed in the initial decision the findings and conclusions of ALJ Springer regarding the absence of any significant negative financial and educational impact based upon his acceptance of Dr. Averbach's more reliable enrollment projections.

Town's Fourth Exception avers the withdrawal of Township students would negatively impact on racial balance, albeit that Town concedes in exceptions, as it submits it did at hearing "the impact of the withdrawal on racial balance at BHS is not significant." (Exceptions, at p. 39) With such concession, Town reiterates the argument presented at hearing that withdrawal will result in "increasing racial isolation of Township students." (Id.) Acknowledging the absence of evidence comparing racial attitudes at the two schools, which Town avers is not presented because to do so would have run directly counter to the State Board's rejection of such an approach in Englewood Cliffs v. Englewood, State Board decision dated April 4, 1990, at p. 37, Town posits instead that New Jersey's strong policy of racial balance as expressed in Jenkins v. Morris, 58 N.J. 483, 498, 499 (1971) does not require proofs. It claims "racial isolation itself is condemned, without the necessity for proving psychological or other damage or poor racial attitudes in each individual case." (Exceptions, at pp. 40-41)

Moreover, Town finds the ALJ's reliance on Lakes' "Paterson Connection" (Initial Decision, at p. 28) is insufficient to overcome the day-to-day racial isolation that termination would bring about for Township students, suggesting the contact is too limited to be of value. Town submits that the Commissioner "should be loath to allow an all white suburban community to pull its kids out of school which is truly multi-racial and multi-ethnic to attend a school so racially isolated as Mountain Lakes." (Exceptions, at p. 41)

Town's own enrollment figures as set forth in R-34 reveal its population to be 86.6% Caucasian, 6.7% Asian, 3.5% Hispanic and 3% African American. The Commissioner takes official notice that the total minority population at Boonton High School which housed 755 students in 1989 is 13.3%. The total minority population at Lakes which housed 347 students in 1989 is 5.1%. Plainly, then, this case does not represent a case of "white flight" as was the concern addressed in Jenkins, supra. Notwithstanding the Commissioner's accord with Town's mentioning New Jersey's strong policy of racial balance, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's point that in the presence of two essentially racially segregated districts, but where racial minorities exist in similar percentages, Lakes has demonstrated more effort than Town in adopting measures to teach the value of racial understanding through its "Paterson Connection." Like the ALJ, the Commissioner finds no conclusive evidence presented suggesting substantial negative impact on the racial composition and thus concludes as did the ALJ that Town has failed to meet its burden in this regard for the reasons expressed in the initial decision.

Town's last exception is a listing of miscellaneous exceptions addressing its position regarding Township's alleged reasons for seeking severance including:

1. Poor communication;
2. Lack of cooperation, specifically including articulation between districts;
3. Lack of adequate consultation or participation in decision-making, particularly related to tuition setting and lease purchase; and
4. Unsatisfactory output factors, most especially related to SAT scores.

Town argues in exceptions against the ALJ's finding of fact regarding each of these areas.

The Commissioner notes that each of the arguments raised by Town under these headings in exceptions reiterates the contentions argued and briefed before the ALJ. The Commissioner's consideration of the record agrees with the conclusions of the ALJ regarding each of the claims averred by Town in these miscellaneous exceptions, but some further comment is in order regarding each.

First, as to poor communication, the Commissioner found the testimony offered by Mr. Bolan, Township's superintendent, not only credible but persuasive on the trials of trying to communicate with Town through the Tri-District Task Force, in acquiring budgetary information and in day-to-day operations. See, Tr. II-26, 28, 88 and 89. The Commissioner finds that despite repeated attempts, communication and cooperation between Town and Township were poor, and constituted a reasonable basis for seeking withdrawal.

Further, the Commissioner is persuaded that although the issue of choosing between lease purchase or severance of the sending-receiving relationship has been a "bone of contention" among the districts herein for some time, Mrs. Nyman's (Boonton Township Board Member) testimony was convincing that Township was not concerned solely for the cheapest district, but rather held the educational benefits for its children foremost in choosing which route to pursue. See, Tr. III-38 (12/3/90). See also Tr. II-177-188 (11/28/90).

As to output indicators, the Commissioner agrees that SAT scores, are at best, one indicator of a district's success in providing a thorough and efficient education. Town stresses the importance of SES (Socio Economic Status) data in understanding not only the communities and who is seeking to group with whom, but also for purposes of comparing standardized test scores. Town avers the ALJ and Township have used SAT scores to compare Town with Lakes, and it claims the ALJ's conclusions made in reliance on such scores are a gross misuse of data that is disapproved by every expert in the field and by the Department of Education.

More particularly, Town avers the ALJ erred in ranking the districts at bar by SAT scores on a comparative and a county basis. It claims the Commissioner should disapprove such simplistic and erroneous rankings claiming only like SES districts should be comparatively ranked.

In this regard, it bears noting that the ALJ considered SAT scores among other "output predictors," such as the four districts' HSPT scores, in assessing whether Township's concern to secure the best education for its children was reasonable. A review of the record supports such concern. The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that Town cannot "explain away" (Initial Decision, at p. 11) its lower SAT scores by merely referring to socioeconomic differences or manners of interpreting such socioeconomic ratings. Regardless of number manipulation, it is clear that Township's lack of satisfaction with its standardized test scores was reasonable especially when other surrounding districts such as Pequannock, which is rated an H, have higher scores on the SATs (see R-22 and Tr. XI-30 (1/7/91) and Town's pass rate, county-wide, on the HSPT was last of all 22 high schools. (See Initial Decision, at p. 11.) Accordingly, Town's exceptions related to comparative test scores are dismissed as being without merit.

Finally, Town challenges the ALJ's factual conclusions regarding board level communications, superintendent level communications, requests for information on Township students, school to parent/parent to school communications, the alleged lack of communication and coordination, the atmosphere at Lakes, and lastly, the input on decision particularly related to financial disagreement.

In reviewing the individual exceptions under these broad headings, the Commissioner notes that the standard of review in a sending-receiving severance case does not require petitioner to demonstrate good and sufficient reasons for the withdrawal. See N.J.S.A. 18A:38-13. Town notes correctly in exceptions, however, that a district's reasons for seeking withdrawal are subject to challenge as being arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. See Washington Township Board of Education v. Upper Freehold Regional Board of Education et al. decided by the Commissioner June 27, 1989.

In this matter, however, the Commissioner disagrees with Town that the ALJ's treatment of the evidence in the areas listed above are too one-sided. Upon consideration of the arguments cited in exceptions, none of which represents new evidence or novel arguments to those raised below, the Commissioner determines that such contentions must be dismissed as being without merit. The ALJ's consideration of the rationales which compelled Township to seek withdrawal were entirely reasonable and justified. The Commissioner so finds after an exhaustive review of the record below. He finds the ALJ's analysis of those rationales to have been tempered by fairness and objectivity. Accordingly, he adopts those findings and conclusions of the ALJ below concerning communications and rationales underlying Township's decision to seek termination of its sending-receiving relationship with Town.

In so finding, the Commissioner in mindful that there is not universal unanimity on the part of all community members wanting the change. The Commissioner notes that testimony was taken from Township residents who sincerely believe that the best educational interests of its students lie in remaining a part of the current relationship with Town. See Tr. IV-6-17, 18-34 and 71 (1/10/91). However, the duly elected Board of Education of Boonton Township, which, by law, bears responsibility to make decisions for the District, also sought to sever the relationship and absent the statutory finding of substantial negative impact, the Commissioner has no choice but to grant the severance request.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision, as augmented herein, the Commissioner grants the requested severance sought by Boonton Township from its sending-receiving relationship with Boonton Town, subject to the Township's entering into a new sending-receiving relationship with Mountain Lakes for a minimum duration of five years; and that withdrawal shall be phased-out over a four-year period, starting with the incoming ninth grade class in September 1992.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS OF THE COUNTY OF BERGEN,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT,	:
AND	:
RALPH ROSSI,	:
INTERVENOR.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured teacher at vocational school, alleged Board violated his tenure and seniority rights when it reduced his position and that of tenured teacher Boles to 3/7th positions while retaining Intervenor Rossi in the remaining full-time position. All three teachers had approximately 19 years of service. Petitioner sought reinstatement to full-time position with back pay due to his having worked in the summer of 1971.

Initial decision found petitioner's summer work was entirely voluntary even though he was compensated for additional services. Thus, he did not gain seniority credit for such optional summer employment. Moreover, ALJ found Board did not have to structure programs or positions solely to accommodate employee rights and Board did demonstrate valid educationally based reason for staffing pattern. Finally, ALJ found petitioner possessed no legally enforceable right to teach a class in adult evening school since teachers in adult evening school need not be certified and are thus not tenure eligible. ALJ concluded Board properly applied tenure and seniority laws in reducing staff. (N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9) Petition was dismissed.

In light of record including transcripts, Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is an appeal by a tenured teacher who alleges a violation of his seniority rights when his employment was reduced from full to part-time for the 1990-91 school year. In addition, Polo asserts a tenure claim to an evening school job. Basically, the dispute involves competing seniority claims of three long-time teachers, all of whom have been district employees for nearly two decades. Due to programmatic changes, the Board of Education of the Vocational Schools of Bergen County ("Bergen Vo-Tech") decided to reduce its tenured teaching staff in carpentry. Its most recent seniority list credits petitioner Anthony Polo ("Polo") with 19 years of service, intervenor Ralph Rossi with 19 years, and a third individual, Thomas Boles, with 18.9 years. Accordingly, Bergen Vo-Tech reduced Polo and Boles to a 3/7th position each and kept Rossi in the one remaining full-time position.

Polo's challenge raises three separate issues: (1) Whether Polo's starting date for employment was August rather than September 1971, giving him additional seniority credit for work performed during the summer and putting him ahead of Rossi; (2) Whether Bergen Vo-Tech must rearrange its class schedule so that Polo receives a 6/7th position and Boles, who admittedly has less seniority, gets nothing; and (3) Whether Polo is entitled to a preference over nontenured teachers for teaching assignments at the district's adult evening school.[1]

Procedural History

On June 27, 1990, Polo filed his verified petition, seeking reinstatement to a full-time position and back pay, with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"). Respondent Bergen Vo-Tech filed its answer on August 6, 1990.

[1]At the hearing, Polo also claimed an entitlement to teach a "warehousing course" presently taught by an untenured teacher with an emergency certificate as a teacher of production skills. Counsel later notified the OAL, however, that Polo had decided to "withdraw any claim to the production skills position."

Subsequently, on August 15, 1990, the Commissioner forwarded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case.

By certified mail, dated November 7, 1990, petitioner's attorney served written notice of the pendency of this matter on six other teachers whose interests potentially might be adversely affected by the outcome, including Ralph Rossi and Thomas Boles. Rossi promptly moved to intervene in the proceedings and presented testimony at the hearing. Boles and the others, however, did not apply to be heard and failed to attend the hearing. On January 18, 1991, petitioner sent notice by certified mail to three additional individuals who teach evening courses.[2] None of them sought to intervene.

Thereafter, the OAL held hearings on April 29 and 30, 1991. Witnesses who testified and documents considered in deciding this case are listed in the appendix. Polo, Rossi and Bergen Vo-Tech submitted legal briefs by June 7, 1991, on which date the record closed. Time for preparation of the initial decision has been extended to December 13, 1991.

[2]A prehearing order, entered on December 26, 1990, required that proof of service of notice on all those over whom Polo claimed employment preference must be filed with the OAL no later than January 21, 1991. Belatedly, on or about February 28, 1991, petitioner attempted to add nine more teachers by sending them written notice. Insofar as Polo wanted to pursue a generalized claim to teach trades in which he does not hold any endorsement, such as plumbing or building mechanics, the OAL sustained Bergen Vo-Tech's objections that such evidence is untimely and beyond the scope of the pleadings. Polo's petition is limited to the areas of carpentry, brick and stone masonry, and vocational skills/science.

Findings of Fact

Most of the material facts are undisputed, although their legal significance is hotly contested. I FIND:

(1) General Background Facts

Bergen Vo-Tech is in charge of a county vocational school system which, in 1971, operated a number of facilities at three locations, including a vocational high school and separate adult job training center in Hackensack; a satellite school or technical education center in Norwood; and another satellite school, as well as a special education facility for children with learning disabilities, in Paramus. Since 1971, the Norwood satellite school has closed and a new satellite school, with adjacent special education facility, has opened in Teterboro. Enrollment at the two remaining satellite schools consists of "shared students," who take academic courses at their local high schools and receive part-time vocational instruction at one of the county sites. Both the vocational high school and the special education facilities offer full-time programs for students.

Depending on whether or not summer work is counted, Polo started working for the county vocational system either on August 9, 1971 or at the start of the school year in September. He later graduated from Montclair State College in 1978 and has prior job experience in construction work. At the time of initial hire in 1971, he held only an emergency teaching certificate. After one year, in August 1972, he obtained an instructional certificate as a teacher of skilled trades.[3] Ten years later, in January 1982, he obtained specific skilled trade endorsements as teacher of carpentry, of brick and stone masonry and of vocational related subjects. Meanwhile, in August 1978 he acquired another endorsement as teacher of industrial arts. Also, in June 1979, he obtained an educational services certificate as coordinator of cooperative industrial education.

[3]This endorsement authorizes the holder to teach skilled trade courses in the area of his or her state-approved occupational experience in all public schools. N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)(27).

During the 1971-72 and 1972-73 school years, Polo was assigned to the Norwood satellite school, where he designed and taught a course in building mechanics, covering "virtually anything that would be done in home construction." Next year, in 1973-74, he taught "carpentry," a broad course which also included some plumbing and home decorating. Then he transferred to the satellite school in Paramus, teaching construction trades or building mechanics for one year in 1974-75. Since 1975-76, he has taught a narrower "carpentry" course, which covers carpentry only.

Ralph Rossi started working for the district in September 1973, two years later than Polo. However, he has two years of military credit added to his 17 years of actual teaching experience.[4] Consequently, Bergen County Vo-Tech treats both Polo and Rossi as having equal years of service, each with 19 years as of June 1990. Throughout his entire career in the district, Rossi taught carpentry. For all but one year, Rossi was assigned to the vocational high school in Hackensack. Rossi holds an instructional certificate as teacher of skilled trades, without endorsement in any specific trade, and a second certificate as a teacher of industrial arts.

Thomas Boles, third contender for the single full-time carpentry position, began employment with the district in September 1973, the same year as Rossi. All parties have stipulated that Boles is entitled to 1.9 years of military service credit, resulting in a total of 18.9 years of service, or less than the 19 years of Polo and Rossi

[4]Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-11.1, teachers who fulfill certain requirements of military service in the armed forces of the United States "shall be entitled to receive equivalent years of employment or seniority credit for that service" up to a maximum credit of four years. See also, N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(c). It is undisputed that Rossi is entitled to two years of military service credit for seniority purposes.

respectively. Thus, the amount of Boles' military credit is not factually in dispute.

In or about April 1990, Bergen Vo-Tech decided to abolish one carpentry position by reducing two of its three positions from full to part-time. None of the parties has challenged the good faith of that determination. Because the Board erroneously regarded all three carpentry teachers as having equal seniority rights, it felt justified in choosing among the three. Initially, it awarded the full-time position to Boles and offered 3/7th positions to Polo and Rossi. Together with a lunch period, the two 3/7th positions added up to a full-time position.

After Polo had filed the present appeal, Bergen Vo-Tech acknowledged that that Polo and Rossi have greater seniority than Boles. It reduced Boles from full-time to 3/7th time for the 1990-91 school year. Instead of giving the full-time position to Polo, however, it gave the full-time position to Rossi, split between mornings at Teterboro and afternoons at Hackensack. Boles's part-time assignment was in the afternoon at Teterboro and Polo's in the afternoon at Paramus.

Bergen Vo-Tech presented valid educationally-based reasons for scheduling two part-time teachers at different locations in the afternoon rather than retaining a second full-time position. Due to declining enrollment and concern about the appropriateness of the curriculum, the Board opted to reduce its carpentry offerings. Existing arrangements with sending districts involved introductory carpentry courses for ninth and tenth graders in the morning and advanced carpentry courses for eleventh and twelfth graders in the afternoon. Since the Board intended to phase out the program, it did not want to introduce a new batch of morning students to a course sequence about to be discontinued. Thus, legitimate educational needs of the district dictated one full-time position, given to Rossi, and two part-time afternoon positions, shared by Polo and Boles. The fact that the Board also may have readjusted Rossi's schedule for personal considerations is irrelevant, since he had equal seniority to Polo and greater seniority than Boles.

(2) Summer Work

Prior to commencement of the 1971-72 school year, Polo was hired by Bergen Vo-Tech to help plan and establish the new program at the satellite school about to open in Norwood. In spring and early summer, Polo met with Stephen Fong, head of the Norwood facility, who asked him if he could start work a month early. At a meeting on July 20, 1971, Bergen Vo-Tech passed a resolution authorizing the employment of newly appointed Norwood teachers "to work during the month of August 1971. . . for curriculum development and shop set-up, with pay prorated from their ten-month contractual salary." On August 11, 1971, Dr. Neil Perkins, the district superintendent, sent Polo a letter confirming his appointment to a teaching position at the new Norwood satellite school. In addition, the letter advised that "[a]ny time that you can devote to working with Mr. Fong in preparing for your new teaching assignment will be eligible for payment based on your contract salary."

Board minutes for September reflect that Polo was appointed to a teaching position at a ten-month salary of $10,700 on the "effective date" of August 9, 1971. Nevertheless, Polo's written contract refers to a ten-month position "from September 1, 1971 to June 30, 1972" and contemplates the Polo would "begin duties on September 1, 1971." Similarly, district personnel records indicate that Polo is a ten-month employee and shows September 1, 1971 as the "date employment began." The teachers' collective agreement for 1971-72 is silent on the terms and conditions of summer employment.

Polo actually did preparatory work during the last three weeks of August 1971. His hours were 8:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. In anticipation of the arrival of students, he wrote a course outline, prepared lesson plans, ordered tools and equipment, built a storage crib and arranged furniture and equipment in the shop. Such work was voluntary, in the sense that the district's teaching staff is not required to work over the summer. Compensation for this extra effort was a proportional amount of Polo's annual salary, rather than a stipend or per diem rate.

Apparently Rossi also worked during the summer months, although the details are vague and unsubstantiated by any official documents. According to Rossi's recollection, he taught a carpentry apprentice class at night in the summer of 1973, a summer adult course on some other unspecified occasion, and another summer course for juvenile delinquents in 1989. As best as he can remember, he was paid at an hourly rate.

(3) Adult Evening School

Apart from its day program for high school students, Bergen Vo-Tech operates an adult evening school. Teachers at the evening school are not required to hold state teaching certificates. They are represented by a separate bargaining unit from the day teachers and are covered under a different collective agreement. Students at the evening school do not earn credit toward a high school diploma. Bergen Vo-Tech has not maintained seniority lists for the evening school for the last twenty years. Evening school positions are posted annually and interested individuals have an equal opportunity to apply. Previously, Polo had taught a carpentry class at the evening school for some indefinite period starting in or about 1974-75. No evidence suggests that Polo applied for an evening school position for 1990-91.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Bergen Vo-Tech properly applied the tenure and seniority laws in determining Polo's legal rights.

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 authorizes a board of education to reduce its teaching force for reasons of economy, declining enrollment, administrative reorganization or other good cause. Seniority provides a mechanism for ranking all tenured teaching staff members so that reductions can be effected in an equitable fashion and in accord with sound educational policies. Capodilupo v. West Orange Bd. of Ed , 218 N.J. Super. 510, 514 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den. 109 N.J. 514 (1987). Accord, Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Ed., 221 N.J. Super. 239, 242 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den. 110 N.J. 512 (1988). A cutback in hours of employment is regarded as a "reduction in force." Popovich v. Wharton Bd. of Ed., 1975 S.L.D. 737,745 (Comm'r Oct. 7, 1975). Tenured teachers are accorded preference for the remaining job openings on the basis of seniority standards developed by the Commissioner of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10,-11 Standards established by the Commissioner "shall classify insofar as practicable the fields or categories of administrative, supervisory, teaching or other educational services[.]" N.J.S.A. 18A:28-13. Additionally, the Commissioner "may, in his discretion, determine seniority upon the basis of years of service and experience within such fields or categories of service as well as the school system as a whole, or both." Id.

Pursuant to this statutory grant of rule-making authority, the Commissioner has promulgated N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10, which establishes standards for determining seniority. Subsection (b) of the rule provides that seniority shall be determined "according to the number of academic or calendar years of employment, or fraction thereof . . . in specific categories[.]" (Emphasis added).[5] Subsection (c) says that, "[i]n computing length of service for seniority purposes full recognition shall be given to previous years of service within the district[.]" Finally, subsection (f) adds that "[f]or purposes of calculating seniority entitlement, there shall be no distinction between academic years and calendar years." It is unclear from this language whether a 10-month employee like Polo can earn seniority credit only for the academic year or fraction thereof, or whether such employee can also earn seniority credit for work performed beyond the ten months of the academic year.

Neither the statutes nor the regulations directly address the issue of seniority credit for summer work. However, it is the well-settled policy of the Commissioner that a teacher may not gain seniority credit for optional summer employment. This policy is expressed in a long line of reported administrative decisions dealing with the subject. Illustratively, in Reeves v. Westwood Bd. of Ed., 1981 S.L.D. 1051 (Comm'r Sept. 25, 1981), the Commissioner declined to count the services of a speech correctionist performed during the summer preceding her initial hiring for the regular school year. Even though the speech correctionist had virtually identical duties, used the same teaching materials, had essentially the same class size, and worked the same number of hours as in her regular teaching assignment, the Commissioner held that her summer employment was "temporary" and, therefore, "not creditable" toward seniority. 1981 S.L.D. at 1068.

Similarly, in Blitz v. Bridgeton Bd. of Ed., 1980 S.L.D. 825 (Comm'r July 21, 1980), aff'd (St. Bd. Feb. 4, 1981), the Commissioner ruled that service for a single summer school session, being only "temporary" and "part-time," cannot be equated with regular teaching for calculation of seniority rights. In arriving at the result, the

[5]Title 18A defines "academic year" as "the period between the time school opens in any school district or under any board of education after the general summer vacation until the next succeeding summer vacation." N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1

Commissioner observed that summer teachers normally receive lower pay, are prohibited from contributing to any pension or enhanced life insurance plans, and do not accrue additional sick days or receive other customary benefits given regular teachers. See also, Mihatov v. Woodcliff Lakes Bd. of Ed., 1977 S.L.D. 1, 9 (Comm'r Jan. 5, 1977), where the Commissioner refused to recognize "voluntary summer work performed by a teacher in preparation for the important duty of teaching in the ensuing academic year."

Teaching a class at summer school is arguably distinguishable from Polo's summer activities, which he contends were "intimately related" to his assignment during the rest of the year. If similarity to one's usual duties is an important consideration, however, Rossi's summer carpentry class is much closer to his regular teaching assignment than Polo's preparations for "setting up shop." Here the proofs demonstrate that Polo's summer work was entirely voluntary, in that his academic-year employment was not conditioned on acceptance of summer work and he received extra compensation for his additional services. Thus, the situation is substantially different from that in Flood v. Jersey City Bd. of Ed., 1984 S.L.D. __ (Comm'r Jan 17, 1984), where a school administrator "was required to work during August 1982 as part of his regular duties and did not receive any additional remuneration outside of his usual salary." Indeed, the petitioner in Flood did not seek any tenure credit for other summer work when such "summer employment was clearly above and beyond his regular duties." (slip op. at 76).

Further support for Bergen Vo-Tech's position derives from Schmidt v. New Providence Bd. of Ed., 1984 S.L.D. 2015 (N.J. App. Div., July 30, 1984), where the Appellate Division noted that "there is nothing in the statutes or regulations to suggest that for seniority purposes an employee who works for longer than an academic year in any one calendar year should be given more than one year of credit." 1984 S.L.D. at 2017. Schmidt involved a seniority contest between two tenured elementary school principals, one of whom had been employed under a 10-month contract and the other under a 12-month contract. As a result of the court's ruling, a full academic year of employment is treated as the equal of a calendar year. At that time, a specific regulation provided that "not more than one year of employment may be counted toward seniority in any one academic or calendar year." N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(e). Although that particular language has since been omitted, the current rule continues to draw "no distinction between academic and calendar years." N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.109(f). Absent a clear expression of intent to alter preexisting law, an agency's consistent interpretation of its own regulations is entitled to great deference. In re Glen Rock, 25 N.J. 241(1957); In re Plainfield-Union Water Co., 57 N.J. Super. 158 (App. Div. 1959).

Cases on which Polo relies are inapposite. Lichtman v. Ridgewood Bd. of Ed., 93 N.J. 362 (1983) involves tenure eligibility for part-time employment during the academic year as opposed to a temporary summer job. Old Bridge Ed. Ass'n v. Old Bridge Bd. of Ed., 1985 S.L.D. __ (Comm'r June 11, 1985) deals with a teacher whose continuity of service was interrupted by maternity leave.

Next, Polo argues that Bergen Vo-Tech must readjust its student schedules to maximize his hours of employment. Boards of education need not structure programs or positions solely to accommodate employee rights. Eftychiou v. Bergenfield Bd. of Ed., 1990 S.L.D. __ (Comm'r July 19, 1990) (Slip op at 20). Illustratively, in Klinger v. Cranbury Twp. Bd. of Ed., 190 N.J.Super. 354 (App. Div. 1982), a school board abolished the full-time positions of two physical education teachers, both of whom "taught the same classes at the same time," 190 N.J. Super. at 356, and offered them part-time positions. Even though one teacher had been employed for 21 years and the other, in her third year, had no tenure, the Appellate Division held the school board was not under any legal obligation to offer a full-time job to the senior teacher, since the nontenured teacher had "received no better treatment." (at 358). "So long as petitioner was not treated inferiorly upon reduction in force, he has no legitimate complaint." Id. See also, Wendelken v. Demarest Bd. of Ed., 1984 S.L.D. __ (Comm'r May 3, 1984), upholding the reduction of a tenured school librarian from full to half-time, while allowing an nontenured librarian to retain a half-time position. A fortiori, Polo has no right to relief against another tenured teacher, with nearly as much seniority, who did not receive any preferential treatment.

Bergen Vo-Tech has demonstrated valid educationally-based reasons for its staffing pattern, namely the desirability of scheduling afternoon classes for shared students at two locations. Ordinarily, the Commissioner will not try to second-guess such an administrative judgment call, unless the supposed educational advantages are found to be sham or nonexistent. Thus, the present case differs significantly from Lingelbach v. Hopatcong Bd. of Ed., 1984 S.L.D. __ (St. Bd. May 2, 1984), aff'd

No. A-4783-83T7 (N.J. App. Div. May 17, 1985), where the need for services actually increased and the purported staff reduction was a subterfuge designed to replace tenured employees with cheaper hourly wage-earners. It is also unlike Bartz v. Greenbrook Bd. of Ed., 1987 S.L.D. __ (St. Bd. Aug. 5, 1987), where no program reduction was anticipated and the senior teacher could just as easily have been assigned a full-time teaching load, or Miles v. Watchung Bd. of Ed., 1984 S.L.D. __ (Comm'r June 14, 1984), aff'd (St. Bd. Dec. 7, 1984), where a tenured teacher could have been assigned to full-time duties without any disruption of the academic program.

Last, Polo argues that he should have been given the opportunity to teach a carpentry class in the adult evening school. Interestingly, he does not claim that persons assigned to evening instruction in this district are, in fact, tenured, but merely that the failure to offer him an evening position is "grossly unfair." Prior to Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63 (1982), courts had construed Title 18A as not evincing any legislative intent to confer tenure at adult evening schools, relying in part on the statutory distinction between "required" and "optional" educational programs. Capella v. Camden Cty. Voc. Tech. Sch. Bd. of Ed.,145 N.J. Super. 209 (App. Div. 1976). Spiewak undercuts the continued viability of Capella by cautioning against the creation of judge-made exceptions to the tenure statute and by expressly overruling other cases on which Capella relied for support. Nonetheless, Spiewak also acknowledges that "the Capella court did act correctly in examining the various tenure provisions in the current statute to determine whether the Legislature intended to grant tenure to teachers in adult evening school programs," 90 N.J. at 79, thus leaving it somewhat ambiguous as to how much of Capella still survives.

School law decisions subsequent to Spiewak recognize the possibility of achieving tenure in a full-time adult day school, as distinct from a part-time adult evening school, Rabolli v. Bergen Cty. Vo-Tech. Schs. Bd. of Ed., 1983 *S.L.D.*__ (Comm'r March 18, 1983), and of transferring seniority rights accrued in an adult evening school setting to an equivalent position in the regular day school. Williams v. Englewood Bd. of Ed., 1987 S.L.D. __ (Comm'r June 29, 1987), aff'd 1989 S.L.D. __ (St. Bd. July 6, 1989). Both Rabolli and Williams presuppose that the teacher satisfies the statutory criteria for tenure entitlement, which Spiewak succinctly summarizes as follows: "[A]n employee of a board of education is entitled to tenure if (1) she works in a position for which a teaching certificate is required; (2) she holds the appropriate certificate; and (3) she has served the requisite period of time." 90 N.J. at 74.

Proofs in this case establish that Bergen Vo-Tech does not require teaching certificates for its adult evening school. As recently as February 1988, the County Superintendent of Schools confirmed that teachers in the adult evening school "need not be certified." Therefore, the first test for tenure is not met, and the position of adult evening school teacher is not tenure-eligible. Without tenure protection in that position and the seniority which accompanies it, Polo possesses no legally enforceable right to teach a class in the adult evening school. While the Board must certainly give honest consideration to any application Polo might make for the job, it is not obliged to offer him an evening school position in connection with its reduction in force.

ANTHONY POLO,	:
PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS OF THE COUNTY OF BERGEN,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT,	:
AND	:
RALPH ROSSI,	:
INTERVENOR.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed in accordance with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions set forth the following issues to support his position that the ALJ's decision should be reversed:

1. The Administrative Law Judge erred in failing to recognize that Polo's tenure extended to the full-time position of industrial arts and that he was entitled to that position over an untenured incumbent.

2. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(b) and N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(c), petitioner is entitled to full recognition of his entire length of service at the Bergen County Vocational/Technical School. As such, Polo's seniority should be calculated to have begun on August 9, 1971 when he actually commenced employment.

3. Alternatively, petitioner is entitled to a preference over Mr. Rossi for the full-time position because of Polo's earlier starting date.

4. The Board's actions in creating two 3/7th positions and affording one to the less senior Boles was improper. Polo's greater seniority entitles him to the combined 3/7th positions.

5. The ALJ erred in failing to permit any evidence that Polo's "Skilled Trades" endorsement (without restriction) entitled him to any skilled trades position in which he had experience.

Upon review of the initial decision and record in this matter, including the transcripts which are part thereof, the Commissioner concurs with and adopts the recommendation of the Administrative Law Judge to dismiss the Petition of Appeal essentially for the reasons stated in the initial decision.

Upon review of the transcript of April 29, 1991, the Commissioner finds correct the ALJ's determination not to consider evidence regarding petitioner's alleged right to other skilled trades positions to which he believed he was entitled and his refusal to consider evidence relative to petitioner's entitlement to a nontenured industrial arts position. While these issues were not specifically addressed in the initial decision, pages 17-37 of the April 29, 1991 transcript demonstrate that the ALJ did consider the legal arguments raised by parties relative to these issues and he did determine not to allow testimony with respect to same because petitioner failed to set forth claims to such positions in his petition and further he failed to raise such claims by way of the prehearing order or amendment to the petition. See Tr. (4/29/91) 33-37 in particular.

As to petitioner's argument relative to greater seniority due to his commencing employment in the District on August 9, 1971, the record fails to support any claim that service rendered prior to September 1, 1971 must be included in the calculation of petitioner's seniority. Petitioner's contract with the District indicates a starting date of September 1, 1971 (Exhibit P-9) and the superintendent's letter to petitioner dated August 11, 1971 (Exhibit P-8) fails to demonstrate that petitioner was required as part of his teaching duties to work during August 1971, albeit that he was paid on pro rata teacher salary basis for service he did choose to engage in to prepare for his new assignment.

Further, the Commissioner finds meritless petitioner's arguments that the ALJ erred in determining that the Board did not violate his tenure and seniority rights when not combining Boles' part-time position with petitioner's so as to maintain petitioner's full-time employment. The ALJ's analysis is well-reasoned and his conclusion that the Board had a bona fide educational reason to maintain two part-time positions is appropriate under the factual circumstances of this matter.

Accordingly, the Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed for the reasons set forth in the initial decision and herein.

PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS OF THE COUNTY OF BERGEN, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT,	:
AND	:
RALPH ROSSI,	:
INTERVENOR.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, January 30, 1992

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak (Robert A. Fagella, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Philip Scalo, Esq.

For the Intervenor, Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen (Randi Doner, Esq., of Counsel)

Anthony Polo (hereinafter "Petitioner"), a tenured teaching staff member, alleged violation of his tenure and seniority rights when his employment as a teacher of carpentry was reduced to part-time in 1990-91 as the result of a reduction in force ("RIF"). The Board abolished one carpentry position by reducing two of its three carpentry positions from full-time to part-time. The Board's seniority list credited both Petitioner and Ralph Rossi (hereinafter "Intervenor") with 19 years in the applicable category, and Thomas

Aug. 5, 1992

Boles, another tenured teacher, with 18.9 years. Petitioner and Boles were reduced by the Board to 3/7 positions, and Intervenor was retained in the one remaining full-time position.

The issues, as stated by the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ"), were:

> 1) Whether Polo's starting date for employment was August rather than September 1971, giving him additional seniority credit for work performed during the summer and putting him ahead of Rossi; (2) Whether Bergen Vo-Tech must rearrange its class schedule so that Polo receives a 6/7th position and Boles, who admittedly has less seniority, gets nothing; and (3) Whether Polo is entitled to a preference over nontenured teachers for teaching assignments at the district's adult evening school.

On December 13, 1991, the ALJ rejected Petitioner's arguments and recommended dismissal of the petition.

The ALJ concluded that Petitioner was not entitled to seniority credit for the services he performed in August 1971. As found by the ALJ, Petitioner was employed for three weeks prior to commencement of the 1971-72 school year to help plan and establish the new program at a satellite school opening in Norwood. The Board had earlier passed a resolution authorizing the employment of newly appointed Norwood teachers "to work during the month of August 1971...for curriculum development and shop set-up, with pay prorated from their ten-month contractual salary." Id. at 7. Petitioner's contract referred to a ten-month position "from September 1, 1971 to June 30, 1972" and contemplated that he would "begin duties on September 1, 1971." Id. Stressing "the well-settled policy of the Commissioner that a teacher may not gain seniority credit for optional summer employment," id. at 9, the ALJ concluded that the summer work performed by Petitioner was entirely voluntary in that his academic year employment was not conditioned on acceptance of summer work and he received extra compensation for his additional services.

The ALJ also rejected Petitioner's assertion that he should have been given a full-time position, concluding that the Board had demonstrated legitimate educational needs for retaining one full-time position, which was assigned to the Intervenor, a tenured staff member with the same seniority as Petitioner, and creating two part-time afternoon positions, which were assigned to Petitioner and Boles. Finally, the ALJ concluded that since teachers in the adult evening school were not required to possess certification, they were not eligible for tenure. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Consequently, Petitioner could have no tenure or seniority rights to such an assignment.

On January 30, 1992, the Commissioner of Education adopted the recommended decision of the ALJ. The Commissioner, recognizing that Petitioner's contract with the district indicated a starting date of September 1, 1971, found that he had failed to demonstrate that he was required as part of his teaching duties to work during August 1971.

The Commissioner rejected the Petitioner's assertion that the ALJ had improperly failed to consider evidence relative to Petitioner's alleged entitlement to other skilled trades positions and to an industrial arts position. The Commissioner observed that while these issues were not specifically addressed in the initial decision, the ALJ had considered the legal arguments raised by the parties at hearing and had determined not to allow testimony with regard thereto in that Petitioner had failed to allege entitlement to such positions in his petition or to raise such claims by way of prehearing order or amendment to the petition.

Petitioner has appealed to the State Board of Education from the Commissioner's decision.

After a thorough review of the record, we reject the Commissioner's analysis with regard to Petitioner's claim to seniority credit for services rendered to the district in August 1971, but affirm his ultimate determination to dismiss the petition.

Seniority is determined "according to the number of academic or calendar years of employment, or fraction thereof, as the case may be, in the school district..." N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(b). N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 defines "academic year" as the "period between the time school opens in any school district or under any board of education after the general summer vacation until the next succeeding summer vacation." "For purposes of calculating seniority entitlement, there shall be no distinction between academic years and calendar years." N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(f). See Schmidt v. Board of Education of the Borough of New Providence, 1984 S.L.D. 2015 (App. Div. 1984).

Petitioner was first employed under contract for the academic year commencing September 1971. There is no indication that his status as an academic year employee was altered by the services he provided for three weeks in August 1971 in preparation for his teaching position. The seniority regulations, as noted, stress that there is no distinction between academic and calendar years for purposes of calculating seniority. Thus, it is evident that an academic year employee may not receive seniority credit in excess of one academic year on the basis of services provided in augmentation of his or her ten-month employment.[1] It is therefore of no moment under the facts of this case whether or not the services Petitioner rendered to the district in August 1971 are deemed to have been "required" by the Board as part of his teaching position.

On all other points of appeal before us, we affirm the Commissioner's decision for the reasons expressed therein. We concur with the Commissioner's determination not to consider Petitioner's belated claims to positions not set forth in his petition. The petition specifically alleges entitlement only to the positions of teacher of skilled trades/carpentry, teacher of skilled trades/bricks and stone masonry and teacher of vocational skills/science. Our review of the petition indicates that no other positions are claimed, even by implication. As indicated in the transcripts, the ALJ notified the parties during the prehearing conference that the pleadings would have to be amended if claims were sought to other positions. Tr. 4/29/91, at 34. Despite such instructions, no amendments were made by the Petitioner. Consequently, under the circumstances, we find that the ALJ and Commissioner acted properly in limiting this matter to the claims specifically raised in the petition.

We therefore affirm the Commissioner's ultimate

[1] We note that if, as Petitioner argues, he is entitled to seniority credit for August 1971, he would be able to assert superior seniority for that 11-month period (11/10 or 1.1 years) over a calendar year employee who provided services for 12 full months during a single calendar year (12/12 or one year). Such a result is contrary to the clear language of the regulations.

determination to dismiss the petition, as modified and clarified herein.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, citizen and board member, challenged the actions of respondent regarding employment contract between Board and Intervenor, dated January 26, 1989, claiming Open Public Meetings Act violation (OPMA). Said challenge relied on a letter dated March 16, 1989, which petitioner avers he became aware of on February 5, 1990, suggesting that such letter constituted voidable board action relative to the contract extension. Board argued that the March 16, 1989 letter did not represent formal board action and denied that the letter is a part of Intervenor's contract. By Motion to Dismiss, Board sought dismissal of Petition of Appeal as untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(b) claiming that because the March 16, 1989 letter did not represent a final board action, the petition, filed on April 16, 1990 was out of time from the date when the board formally acted to ratify Intervenor's contract extension, January 26, 1989.

ALJ granted Motion to Dismiss finding petition untimely. ALJ found that the letter of March 16, 1989 was ultra vires and did not have legal effect of amending, modifying or changing any of the terms and conditions of the 1988-89 employment contract; thus, the filing of the appeal far exceeded the 90-day limitation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(b). Petition of Appeal was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted as his own the findings and conclusions of the ALJ for the reasons expressed in the initial decision.

Record Closed: December 5, 1991 Decided: December 13, 1991

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ:

This matter involves a challenge by petitioner to the actions of respondent with respect to an employment contract between respondent and intervenor which petitioner claims to be illegal, invalid, and executed in violation of the Open Public Meetings Act. The petition was filed on April 16, 1990 (C-3). Following certain proceedings before the Commissioner of Education, the answers of both respondent and intervenor were filed on September 21, 1990. On October 2, 1990, petitioner made a motion to annul the answers of respondent and intervenor on the basis that doubt existed as to the authorship of both answers because of the similarity and the identity of portions thereof, and on the further basis that respondent's answer was legally invalid because it was not authorized by respondent.

The matter was then transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 11, 1990, for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. On December 26, 1990, the undersigned Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) entered an Order Denying Petitioner's Motion to annul the answers of respondent and intervenor. Thereafter, a telephone prehearing conference was scheduled for February 27, 1991. On that date, attorney for intervenor filed a Motion to Dismiss the petition (Exhibit C-1) as having exceeded the time limits set forth in N.J.S.A. 10:4-15(a) and N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(b). As a result, further proceedings were held in abeyance until a decision was rendered on that motion. After submissions were received from petitioner (Exhibit C-27) and attorney for respondent (Exhibit C-26), the ALJ scheduled the matter for oral argument on April 9, 1991. An Order Denying Intervenor's Motion to Dismiss was entered on May 24, 1991.

An in-person prehearing conference was held on June 20, 1991, and a Prehearing Order was entered on June 24, 1991, settling the procedures to be followed in this matter.

The matter was scheduled for hearing to commence on December 5, 1991. On that date, the hearing commenced, and at the close of petitioner's case, attorney for intervenor moved to dismiss, which motion was hereby granted.

DISCUSSION OF STANDARD APPLICABLE TO MOTION

Intervenor's motion to dismiss at the close of petitioner's case is the same as a motion for judgment of involuntary dismissal in a court of law. The test is identical to that applied in the judiciary, and is whether all of the evidence together with the legitimate inferences therefrom could sustain a judgment in favor of the party opposing the motion. All evidence supporting the party defending against the motion must be accepted, and that party is to be accorded the benefit of all inferences which can be reasonably and legitimately deduced therefrom. If reasonable minds could differ, the motion must be denied. See, R. 4:37-2; Dolson v. Anastasia, 55 N.J. 2 (1969).

After reviewing the pleadings and other submissions of the parties in connection with intervenor's earlier motion to dismiss, certain facts were found to be undisputed as follows:

Petitioner is a property owner and taxpayer of the Township of Scotch Plains and is a member of the respondent Board of Education, having been elected in April 1989. Prior to his membership on the Board, petitioner filed an earlier petition with the Commissioner of Education in June 1988 (Exhibit C-4) contesting the legality of a Memorandum of Understanding between respondent and intervenor, which was approved by respondent on April 4, 1988 (Exhibit C-5). The subject matter of this earlier petition became moot as a result of an order of the Superior Court entered on December 19, 1988 (Exhibit C-6), voiding the action of respondent in relation to the 1988/1989 contract extension and the Memorandum of Understanding because of violations of the Open Public Meetings Act. As a result, this first petition was dismissed on January 26, 1989, by Initial Decision, OAL DKT. EDU 5146-88, AGENCY REF. NO. 182-6/88.

On January 19, 1989, respondent authorized the execution of a Contract Extension with intervenor covering the period from July 1988 to June 1989. Pursuant to this authorization, a Contract Extension dated January 26, 1989 (Exhibit C-19), for the year 1988/1989, was executed by respondent and intervenor. Paragraph 1 of this Contract Extension reads:

> 1. The annual salary shall be $99,000.00. As additional compensation, the Board of Education shall provide as a salary continuation plan, a whole life insurance contract on the life of Dr. Robert J. Howlett, with an annual premium of $10,000.00.

Petitioner alleges that he made an inquiry by letter dated February 21, 1989 (Exhibit C-8), concerning the details of the salary continuation plan, but he received no response. Petitioner did not challenge the legality or validity of the Contract Extension of January 26, 1989 (C-7).

Since petitioner had become a member of respondent Board, in preparation for the negotiation of the extension of the Superintendent's contract for the 1990/1991 school year, he received on February 5, 1990, a copy of the Superintendent's contract together with its extensions (Exhibits C-19, C-20, and C-21) and a letter appended thereto, dated March 16, 1989 (Exhibit C-22). Petitioner asserted that this was the first knowledge he had of the existence of the March 16, 1989 letter, and neither respondent nor intervenor challenged this assertion by petitioner.

The second paragraph of the letter of March 16, 1989, states:

> It is my understanding that the benefit provided to you concerning the payment of a whole life insurance premium in the amount of $10,000.00 per annum as a salary continuation plan is a benefit that will not be granted in excess of an additional four years even if you continue to be employed by the Scotch Plains-Fanwood Board of Education after that date. It is my further understanding that you have agreed that commencing the 1993-1994 contract that this benefit will not be requested by you and will not be part of said contract.
> It is hereby requested that you sign a copy of this letter indicating your consent to the removal of this benefit in the 1993-1994 contract and that a copy of this letter be placed in your personal file.

The first paragraph of the letter also states that it "is written to confirm the intentions" of the Board and the Superintendent, "as a result of the negotiations that took place with regard to" the 1988/1989 contract of employment.

Paragraph 5 of the 1988/1989 Memorandum of Understanding (Exhibit C-5), which was ruled invalid by the Superior Court, states:

> It is further agreed by the parties hereto that the sole obligation of the Scotch Plains-Fanwood Board of Education shall be to deposit to the aforesaid plan the amount of $10,000.00 per annum on or before June 1 of each contract year for a maximum of five (5) years commencing on June 1, 1989.

Paragraph 7 of the invalidated Memorandum of Understanding states:

> This Agreement has been entered into and executed as an inducement to Robert J. Howlett to remain employed in the Scotch Plains-Fanwood Regional School District as Superintendent of Schools. . . .

Petitioner acknowledges that on January 19, 1989, respondent met and approved the contract extension for services to be rendered by intervenor during school year 1988/1989, and petitioner received a copy of same. Petitioner points out that this contract extension differs from the original that was voided by the Superior Court action since it contained only a salary-continuation plan involving a whole life insurance contract with an annual premium of $10,000.00. Petitioner asserts that he did not challenge the contract extension of January 26, 1989, because it had been modified and it did not contain either a five-year limit on the benefit or the requirement that the intervenor remain in the employ of respondent, as did the original.

Petitioner acknowledges that respondent, by formal motion, granted a contract extension for the 1989/1990 school year (C-20) in February 1989, and that it continued the same $10,000.00 per year benefit. Petitioner also acknowledges that respondent, by formal motion, granted a contract extension for the 1990/1991 school year (C-37) on April 19, 1990, and that it, too, continued the same $10,000.00 per year benefit.

Petitioner states that he received a copy of the March 16, 1989 letter on February 5, 1990. Petitioner acknowledges that his filing of the petition on April 10, 1990, was made 64 days after the letter of March 16, 1989, became known to him on February 5, 1990.

At the commencement of the hearing on December 5, 1991, and prior to the commencement of petitioner's case, attorney for intervenor made a motion to dismiss the petition on the basis that the letter of March 16, 1989 has no legal force and effect as an amendment to the Contract Extension of January 26, 1989. He argues that, as a result, the petition was filed approximately one year after the expiration of the 90-day time limit specified by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(b). Attorney for respondent took no position on the motion, but pointed out that certain affidavits submitted by petitioner (Exhibits C-29, C-30, and C-31) establish that the letter of March 16, 1989, was not authorized by any formal action of respondent. In response to these arguments, petitioner indicated that he intended to produce evidence at the hearing to show that the letter of March 16, 1989, is, in fact, an amendment to the contract extension of January 26, 1989. Based upon this representation by petitioner, intervenor's motion at the commencement of these proceedings was denied.

After the denial of intervenor's motion, petitioner presented the testimony of Richard J. Marshall, secretary to respondent, and submitted two documents in evidence. The first document consisted of the minutes of the regular public meeting of respondent on March 16, 1989, to which was attached a bills and claims list, a voucher, a billing statement, and an invoice (Exhibit P-1). This exhibit was submitted by petitioner for the purpose of establishing that on March 16, 1989, the sum of $10,000 was paid to Evlico for a salary continuation program for intervenor.

The second document submitted by petitioner was the affidavit of Richard J. Marshall (Exhibit P-2), the purpose of which was clarified by the testimony of Mr. Marshall. Mr. Marshall confirmed the statements contained in the affidavit that negotiations for the the contract extension for the 1988-89 school year approved on January 19, 1989 did not appear as an item in the notice of any meetings or in the minutes of any meeting of respondent. In addition, he confirmed that the letter of March 16, 1989, regarding intervenor's contract of employment, has never appeared as an item on any notice of any meetings or in the minutes of any open meetings.

On cross-examination, Mr. Marshall testified that he was aware that the prior contract between respondent and intervenor had been declared void by a Superior Court judge, and he indicated that his affidavit (Exhibit P-2) referred to the letter of March 16, 1989 (Exhibit C-22).

Mr. Marshall also indicated that under the provisions of the Sunshine Law, the forwarding of an annual notice makes it unnecessary to itemize individual agenda items.

On redirect, Mr. Marshall testified that the contract extension dated January 26, 1989 (Exhibit C-19), is the contract extension he was referring to in paragraph 1 of his affidavit (Exhibit P-2).

At the conclusion of Mr. Marshall's testimony and the presentation of the two additional documents in evidence (P-1 and P-2), petitioner indicated that he had no further witnesses to produce and no further evidence to present, except on rebuttal. After explaining to petitioner that this meant that he was resting his case, petitioner indicated that he wished to make no further presentation of any testimony or documentary evidence, except on rebuttal, and that he simply wished to present his arguments in this matter. It was again explained to the petitioner that this would mean that he had concluded his case. At that point, attorney for intervenor made a motion for involuntary dismissal in this matter.

In support of his motion, attorney for intervenor asserted that the letter of March 16, 1989, has no legal effect, that it was not authorized by formal action of respondent, and that it does not amend the terms of the contract of employment between respondent and intervenor. While again not taking a position on the motion in accordance with the instructions of his client, attorney for respondent repeated that the affidavits of the members of respondent board submitted by petitioner (Exhibit C-29, C-30, and C-31) and the affidavit of Richard J. Marshall (Exhibit P-2) make it clear that respondent never took any formal action authorizing the letter of March 16, 1989, and that under these circumstances it cannot have any legally valid or binding effect as an amendment to the employment agreement between respondent and intervenor. Attorney for respondent takes the position that the letter of March 16, 1989, is not the product of action by respondent.

In his response to intervenor's motion, petitioner argued that the letter of March 16, 1989, amends the originally negotiated terms of the contract extension of January 26, 1989, by imposing a five-year limitation on the payment of this benefit. Petitioner also argued that the March 16, 1989 letter amends the contract extension by changing the $10,000 payment from being "additional compensation" (C-7) to being a "benefit" (Exhibit C-22). Petitioner also points to correspondence authored by the attorney for respondent on March 9, 1990 (Exhibit C-32) and on April 23, 1990 (Exhibit C-33), to support his contention that there were negotiations or discussions which occurred, and which led to the letter of March 16, 1989. Because there is no official record of any negotiations having occurred, petitioner argues that these negotiations were part of a secret agreement between respondent and intervenor, and that the letter of March 16, 1989, corroborates the existence of this secret agreement. Petitioner also argues that because the contract extension, when taken together with the letter of March 16, 1989, is virtually identical to the original agreement which was voided by the Superior Court action, this was a complex plan devised to thwart additional litigation in this matter.

DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

I have previously discussed the standard applicable to a motion for involuntary dismissal. Accordingly, there is no need to reiterate this discussion at this point.

This matter presents a set of circumstances which are clearly out of the ordinary. The board of education and its Superintendent have entered into an employment agreement whereby the board has agreed to provide, as a salary continuation plan, a whole life insurance contract on the life of the Superintendent with an annual premium payment of $10,000 (C-19). Petitioner did not challenge this agreement. Following the execution of this agreement, a letter signed by the president of the board of education, directed to the Superintendent (C-22), confirmed the understanding of the board president that the payment of the $10,000 annual premium will not be granted in excess of an additional four years even if the Superintendent continues to be employed by the board after that date. The letter further indicates that the Superintendent has agreed not to request a continuation of this benefit commencing with his 1993-1994 contract and that this benefit will not be part of that contract. The letter requests that the Superintendent sign a copy of the letter indicating his consent to the removal of this benefit in the 1993-1994 contract, and he did so.

The intervenor now argues in support of his motion to dismiss that this letter does not have any effect upon the 1988-1989 contract of employment between the board and the Superintendent. Attorney for respondent board, while taking no position on the motion, refers to documentary evidence which supports this argument, and indicates that petitioner's own evidence establishes that no formal board action authorized the execution of this letter. Petitioner also takes the position that the letter is invalid since it attempts to resurrect the original agreement between the intervenor and respondent which was declared to be invalid.

What is curious about this whole situation is that the petitioner and intervenor appear to agree that the letter of March 16, 1989, is invalid, and respondent does not challenge their assertions. If the letter of March 16, 1989, is invalid, intervenor will not be bound by the five-year limitation on the payment of the $10,000 per year premium for his salary continuation plan. Thus, the position of the intervenor that the March 16, 1989 letter has no legal effect is understandable.

What is less understandable, however, is that the board of education does not contest the assertion by the intervenor that the letter has no legal effect. In fact, the attorney for respondent points out that the records of respondent reflect that no formal action was ever taken by respondent authorizing the execution of the letter of March 16, 1989. While attorney for respondent did not come out and make the argument, it appears clear from his statements that the letter is ultra vires since it was action taken by the board president without authorization by the board membership.

The positions of respondent and intervenor are consistent with their pleadings. In its answer to the petition, respondent, while admitting the existence of the letter of March 16, 1989, denied that the letter is a part of the Superintendent's contract or that it contains any terms and conditions of the contract. In his answer, intervenor also denied that the letter is a part of intervenor's contract.

In addition, there is a legal basis for concluding that the letter is invalid if it is considered to be an amendment to intervenor's employment contract. It is clear, based upon the specific provisions of the employment agreements and annual extensions entered into between the board and the Superintendent, that these agreements are renewed between the parties on an annual basis. Thus, the determination as to the appropriate salary to be paid to the Superintendent, and the decision as to whether to include in the employment agreement the payment of an annual $10,000 premium toward a salary continuation plan, is a matter which is to be negotiated and decided at the time of each annual renewal. The letter of March 16, 1989, by its terms, deals with the 1993-1994 contract. However, since a board of education is a noncontinuous body, Skladzien v. Bd. of Ed. of Bayonne, 12 N.J. Misc. 602 (Sup. Ct. 1934), any alleged agreement that is proposed to be entered into by a current board of education to bind a board of education in some future year is invalid as a matter of law.

Based upon the foregoing, I FIND that the letter of March 16, 1989 is ultra vires, invalid, and does not have the legal effect of amending, modifying, or otherwise changing any of the terms and conditions of the 1988-1989 employment contract between respondent board of education and intervenor-Superintendent. Accordingly, I FIND that the letter of March 16, 1989, does not amount to a final order, ruling, or other action by respondent. As a result, I CONCLUDE that the filing of the petition by petitioner on April 16, 1990, challenging the contract extension of January 26, 1989, far exceeded the 90-day limitation set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(b) and should be DISMISSED.

In addition, since the letter of March 16, 1989, is ultra vires, invalid, and does not have the legal effect of amending, modifying, or otherwise changing any of the terms and conditions of the employment contract between respondent and intervenor, I FIND that petitioner's challenge to the 1988-1989 employment contract also fails since it far exceeds the 45-day limitation set forth in the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-15(a) and should be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that intervenor's motion for involuntary dismissal at the close of petitioner's case on the basis that the petition was filed out of time under the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(b) and N.J.S.A. 10:4-15(a) is hereby GRANTED and petitioner's appeal is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF SCOTCH PLAINS-FANWOOD, UNION COUNTY,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
RESPONDENT,	:	DECISION
AND	:
ROBERT J. HOWLETT,	:
INTERVENOR.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner filed timely exceptions pursuant to the applicable provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Board and Intervenor filed timely reply exceptions thereto. Petitioner's reponses to the Board's reply exceptions are not considered in that there is no provision in law providing for replies to reply exceptions. Similarly, a letter submitted by the current Board president on behalf of the members of the Board dated January 17, 1992 has not been considered in the disposition of this matter insofar as the Board membership is represented by its counsel. Thus, independently filed remarks are not appropriate and are not provided for in law.

Petitioner requests that the initial decision be rejected as the crucial issue was decided solely by the testimonial position advanced by the Board's attorney, which position he finds was not that of the Board. Said attorney's position should also be rejected as the evidence clearly shows the Board attorney acted in concert with the "Board majority" (Exceptions, at p. 8) and intervenor to deceive the public, concerning the negotiated terms for intervenor's contract extension for the 1988-89 school year, when the Board majority approved it on January 19, 1989. Petitioner further charges that as a result of the Board attorney's "complicity in this deception" (Id.), the position he gave may be self-serving, although it shows he contributed to the creation of an ultra vires instrument for an unknown reason.

Petitioner states in footnote that he disagrees with the ALJ's statement that both "[he] and intervenor appear to agree that the letter of March 16, 1989, is invalid." (Initial Decision, at p. 9) Rather, petitioner states he does not contest the March 16, 1989 letter's legality and does not claim it is invalid. Rather, he charges that the letter was never made public, that it was done secretly by the Board of Education to avoid challenge on the merits of the premium payments, and indeed he has made every effort to show the letter to be an action of the Board, albeit a voidable one. Thus, he disagrees with the ALJ and intervenor that the letter is invalid.

Petitioner's further submits that the dismissal, as untimely, was not made on statutory grounds. Citing N.J.S.A. 10:4-15 of the Open Public Meeting Act (OPMA), petitioner claims that the date that a challenge to the letter of March 16, 1989 would be out of time "45 days after the action has been made public." (Exceptions, at p. 5, quoting N.J.S.A. 10:4-15) Citing Exhibit P-2, petitioner claims the letter of March 16, 1989 was never made public up through the time of the filing of his petition on April 10, 1990. Similarly, petitioner claims N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 requires that "something must be done 'by the district board of education' to start the clock running on the 90 day time limit." (Exceptions, at p. 5, quoting N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2) Petitioner avers the Board did none of the things specified in the code or under the OPMA to bring knowledge of the March 16, 1990 letter to one's attention. Since both laws require an act by respondent to initiate the measurement of the time limits for filing a petition, and because the Board did not do so, petitioner claims the time limits specified do not come into play.

Petitioner further requests that the initial decision be rejected because his request that estoppel be invoked was not addressed in any manner by the Office of Administrative Law. His claim is that the two parties in this case, the Board majority and the Board attorney, claim they did not have the authority to implement their act, to prevent adjudication of the act itself.

Finally, petitioner requests that the initial decision be rejected in this matter as the OPMA issues were not resolved because of the finding that his petition was untimely.

The Board's reply exceptions aver petitioner apparently misunderstands the position taken by the Board in this matter. It claims its position on intervenor's Motion to Dismiss has been consistent throughout. The Board indicated to its counsel that it would take no position on the Motion to Dismiss petitioner's case on a procedural basis, because the majority of the members of the Board would like a decision on the merits. Thus, the Board claims, it did not join in the motion with intervenor to dismiss the case. The Board clarifies in reply exceptions its understanding of what the merits of this case entail, namely the legality of the payment of $10,000 to intervenor by the Board. The Board has never suggested or required that its attorney misrepresent, conceal or deliberately change any facts in this matter, it claims, and its attorney adds that had the Board made such a request, he would not take such an action.

The Board notes any arguments relating to the OPMA are procedural, and that any facts that need to be proved or made known to the Court in order to decide that procedural issue should be accurate and correct. Regarding petitioner's exception referring to whether the Board or a majority of it could have met in violation of the OPMA "by not inviting all members over for coffee, for example." (Reply Exceptions, at p. 4) The Board's attorney, speaking for the Board, states emphatically that if such situation occurred or something similar, he is not aware of any such meeting.

Further, he states that petitioner's proofs failed to prove that such a meeting took place, but rather, indicate that there was no Board meeting authorizing the letter of March 16, 1989. The Board refers to C-29, C-30, C-31 and P-2 in evidence in support of this contention. Conceding that if such meeting took place, it would have been in violation of the OPMA, and it would have required Board's attorney to so advise the Board, the Board notes that petitioner chose not to call either the Superintendent of Schools or a former Board member from 1989, Louis C. Jung, who were both present at the hearing of this matter, to testify in support of petitioner's case.

Additionally, the Board contends that the affidavit of Richard J. Marshall, the Board Secretary, paragraph 2, indicates that the letter of March 16, 1989 does not appear in any notice of meeting or in any minutes of any open meeting to date or in the minutes of any closed meeting prior to February 5, 1990. As attorney for the Board, Mr. Boehm states in reply exceptions that he cannot represent that the Board or a majority of the Board met with regard to the issuance of the letter of March 16, 1989 when he knows of no such meeting.

Finally, the Board restates its stance that it takes no position on the motion filed by intervenor to dismiss petitioner's petition on procedural grounds, and it participates in the discussion on the motion to insure that facts considered by the ALJ and the Commissioner of Education are truthful and accurate.

Intervenor's reply exceptions aver petitioner's exceptions are without merit. He claims petitioner obfuscates the simply fact that his appeal far exceeded the 90-day and 45-day time limitations of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(b) and N.J.S.A. 10:4-15(a), respectively.

It is Intervenor's contention that petitioner filed his petition on April 16, 1990. Intervenor further argues that in an effort to circumvent the time limitations set forth in statute and code, petitioner relied on a letter dated March 16, 1989, that he purportedly discovered in February 1990, suggesting that the letter constituted Board action. It is intervenor's position that petitioner's proofs only substantiated intervenor's position that the March 16, 1989 letter did not constitute Board action.

Intervenor agrees with the ALJ that the March 16, 1989 letter did not amount to a final order, ruling or other action by the Board. Thus, it is intervenor's position that petitioner's challenge to the January 26, 1989 contract was untimely filed, thus rendering the ALJ's decision to dismiss the petition correct. Such determination was proper also because petitioner failed to introduce any testimony or to advance any argument to rebut Intervenor's Motion to Involuntarily Dismiss the matter as untimely, argues intervenor. Intervenor contends the exceptions are an attempt to move the actual time of Board action from January to March 1989, which intervenor claims has no basis in law or fact.

At trial, Intervenor Dr. Howlett avers, petitioner introduced Exhibits C-29, C-30, C-31 and P-2 into evidence, all of which are affidavits from Board members and/or employees which prove that the letter of March 16, 1989 did not constitute Board action. Dr. Howlett notes the testimony and affidavit of Mr. Marshall suggesting that the letter in question never appeared as an item on any notice of any meeting, open or closed, or in the minutes of any open meeting to date, or in any closed meeting prior to February 5, 1990. Intervenor cites Exhibit P-2 in support of this contention. He reiterates the ALJ's observation that Exhibits C-29, C-30 and C-31, affidavits of Board members, all state that the March 16, 1989 letter was never noted to them for information, discussed at any meeting, nor did it appear on the agenda for any public meeting or executive session of the Board. Intervenor thus claims that the letter did not constitute Board action, but rather, the Board action on the contract which is the subject of the within petition was taken at a public meeting on January 26, 1989. Thus, intervenor contends, the Petition of Appeal, filed on April 16, 1990 is untimely. Moreover, intervenor concurs with the ALJ that insofar as petitioner offered no other evidence to rebut the motion to dismiss, it was correct for the ALJ to find that the letter did not constitute a final order, ruling or other action by the Board. Dr. Howlett cites Township of Bernards v. State, Dept. of Community Affairs, 233 N.J. Super. 1 (App. Div. 1989) and the State Board Decision in Kaprow v. Board of Education of the Township of Berkeley, Ocean County, decided by the Commissioner November 29, 1989, aff'd with modification State Board January 9, 1991. Intervenor cites Kaprow as being similar to this matter because in that case the State Board rejected the petitioner's argument that a letter constituted board action, and dismissed the appeal as being beyond the 90-day time limit of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this matter, and the exceptions and reply exceptions of the parties, the Commissioner affirms the findings and determinations of the Office of Administrative Law for the reasons expressed therein.

The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner's proofs fail to demonstrate that the Board formally acted to ratify the contents of the March 16, 1989 letter at any time. See Exhibits P-2 and C-29, C-30 and C-31, the affidavits from Board members and the Board Secretary. Consequently, such letter is without legal or binding effect on the Board's employment agreement with intervenor which was properly ratified earlier on January 26, 1989. (Exhibit C-19) Thus the Commissioner concludes, as did the ALJ that the letter of March 16, 1989 does not constitute a final order, ruling or other action by the Board. Accordingly, petitioner's April 16, 1990 Petition of Appeal challenging the final action of the Board in ratifying the contract extension of January 26, 1989, is untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 Additionally, the Commissioner finds and determines that no basis appears in the record to relax the strict dictates of the 90-day rule made in reliance on petitioner's having only belatedly "discovered" such letter of March 16, 1989 during February, 1990, insofar the letter bears no legal significance.

The Commissioner reaches these conclusions noting petitioner's exception that it was his purpose to convince this forum that the March 16, 1989 letter was in fact, valid, and thus a voidable action under the OPMA. However, such understanding of petitioner's position in this regard is of no moment in resolving this case. As noted by the ALJ,

> The letter of March 16, 1989, by its terms, deals with the 1993-1994 contract. However, since a board of education is a noncontinuous body, Skladzien v. Bd. of Ed. of Bayonne, 12 N.J. Misc. 602 (Sup. Ct. 1934), any alleged agreement that is proposed to be entered into by a current board of education to bind a board of education in some future year is invalid as a matter of law.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed by the ALJ as amplified herein, the initial decision below is adopted as the Commissioner's own and the Petition of Appeal is dismissed, with prejudice, as untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(b).

IN THE MATTER OF THE CAP WAIVER APPEAL FOR THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF HILLSBOROUGH TOWNSHIP, SOMERSET COUNTY.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION DECISION

Under the particular circumstances presented to us by this appeal, the State Board of Education reverses the Commissioner's determination which reduced by $83,392 the District's cap waiver for 1992-93. The Commissioner reallocated that amount apparently on the basis of an anticipated reduction in the contribution to the Public Employees Retirement System (PERS) due from the District for fiscal year 1991-92. The record in this matter shows, based on the certified bill of December 16, 1991 from the State of New Jersey's Division of Pensions, that the District's obligation for its contribution is as of this date $160,918, which includes the $83,392 that the Commissioner reallocated as anticipated savings. Consequently, the District having met the conditions set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-28, we grant its request for a cap waiver in the amount of $765,896.

In that we have not found oral argument necessary in arriving at our conclusion, we deny the District's request for oral argument in this matter.

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the petition filed by Juno Delano, the petitioner, alleging the improper docking of her salary. The petitioner requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on July 18, 1990, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

After several adjournments, a telephone prehearing conference took place on March 28, 1991, at which time the parties agreed that the issues in this matter are:

1. Whether the respondent, Trenton Board of Education, improperly docked the petitioner's salary for the time used by her to go for medical treatments, and if so, what is the appropriate remedy?

2. Whether the petition was filed in a timely matter.

The hearing was adjourned several times while the parties were attempting to settle the matter. The parties have now agreed to a settlement and the terms of this settlement are contained in the attached signed stipulation, which is incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of the settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily signed the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply wit the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded. I further note that the parties have agreed to waive the right to file exceptions and cross-exceptions.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

RE: Juno Delano

Dear Mr. Kenny:

This letter is to follow up our discussion from the meeting with Dr. Gadson and Dr. Delano on March 25, 1987. I have discussed the issue of whether Dr. Delano may attend doctor's appointments for her claimed work related injury during working hours with Mrs. Jean Pearson who is acting director of the Personnel Department for the Trenton Board of Education. She has advised me that so long as Dr. Delano is seeing a physician recommended by Lawrenceville Professional Center it is permissable for her to attend these appointments during working hours. As we discussed in the meeting, in order to avoid any further problems kindly ask Dr. Delano to advise Dr. Gadson of the scheduled appointments in advance.

If you have any further questions kindly contact me.

Very truly yours,

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE RIVER DELL REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY,	:
PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BRENDA CANAL ET AL.,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, February 18, 1992

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Joseph & Feldman
(Edward Paul Alper, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Bucceri & Pincus
(Louis P. Bucceri, Esq., of Counsel)

This is an appeal by the Board of Education of the River Dell Regional School District from a Commissioner's decision dismissing its petition on the grounds that he lacked jurisdiction over the subject matter of the dispute. In reaching this conclusion, the Commissioner found that the threshold inquiry was whether unaccredited courses could be used as a basis for advancement on the District's salary guide. He determined that due to enactment of the Teacher Quality Employment Act, issues of guide placement which do not implicate that Act are now within the purview of the collective bargaining process and outside of his jurisdiction.

We have reviewed the petition filed by the district board in this case. The substance of that petition asserts that the salary of certain teachers employed by the District had been previously increased in error and that any future salary increases otherwise due them should be withheld to the extent of the increases previously granted. In its brief in support of this appeal, the Board is more specific, characterizing the relief it seeks as a declaration that its action in withholding increments was for "good cause" under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14.

The respondent teachers argue that because N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 gives teachers the right to contest an increment withholding and does not give the district board the authority to bring such a suit, that statute does not give the Commissioner jurisdiction over the Board's claim and, further, that the issue presented is one of contractual interpretation outside the Commissioner's jurisdiction.

Despite the apparent confusion of all involved here, the Board has in fact raised a question under the education laws, i.e., whether a determination on its part that contractual conditions have not been met constitutes "good cause" for it to withhold salary increments under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. The Teacher Quality Employment Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:29-5.1 et seq., in no way deprives the Commissioner of the jurisdiction to answer that question. Nor does the fact that interpretation of a contract might be required in order to resolve a question arising under the education laws divest the Commissioner of his jurisdiction to decide such controversies. E.g., Paladino v. Board of Education of the Township of Lacey, decided by the State Board, February 1, 1989.

We therefore remand this matter to the Commissioner for his determination. We emphasize that our ruling is limited to the question of whether the Commissioner has the jurisdiction to entertain this matter, and we do not resolve any other questions that may affect the justiciability of the case. We, however, can not avoid making the observation that although initiated as a contested case pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2, the matter appears to be more properly the subject of a declaratory judgment as provided for under N.J.A.C. 6:24-2.1.[1]

Decision on motion by the Commissioner of Education, March 27, 1992

For the Respondent-Respondent, Ashley & Charles (Thomas R. Ashley, Esq., of Counsel)

On November 13, 1990, the Board of Education of the City of Orange Township (hereinafter "Board") certified tenure charges against Philip O. Sheridan (hereinafter "petitioner"), a tenured teaching staff member, for unbecoming conduct and suspended him without pay.[1] At the time, petitioner was serving as chairperson of the Science Department, a position he had held in the district since 1972.

---

[1] N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 permits suspension without pay for the first 120 days following certification of tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education.

SEPT. 7, 1994

While those tenure charges were still pending before the Commissioner of Education, the Board undertook a reorganization in which it abolished and restructured its existing departments. In so doing, it reduced the number of departments from 11 to 7. On July 24, 1991, as a result of such reorganization, petitioner's position as chairperson of the Science Department was eliminated, and he was reassigned to a teaching position.[2] The Board subsequently employed a non-tenured individual as chairperson of the newly-created Department of Math and Natural Science.

On November 20, 1991, petitioner filed the instant petition of appeal with the Commissioner, contending that the Board had violated his tenure rights in failing to appoint him as chairperson of the Math and Natural Science Department. Petitioner sought reinstatement to such position, along with back pay and emoluments.

On February 6, 1992, the Commissioner, finding that the tenure charges against petitioner had been demonstrated by a preponderance of the credible evidence, dismissed him from his tenured employment as of that date, a decision subsequently affirmed by the State Board of Education. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Philip Sheridan, decided by the Commissioner, February 6, 1992, aff'd by the State Board, June 3, 1992.

Thereafter, in a letter decision dated February 18, 1992, the Commissioner dismissed the instant petition, concluding that this matter had been rendered moot by his decision of February 6. The Commissioner explained that, "[a]s that decision ordered

[2] We note that petitioner remained on suspension as a result of the pending tenure charges.

Sheridan's removal from tenured employment in the district, no claim can now be made by him on the basis of tenure entitlement. There are, therefore, no grounds on which the present matter may proceed."

Petitioner thereupon filed a motion with the Commissioner requesting reconsideration of the February 18 decision, arguing that his petition had been improperly dismissed on mootness grounds. The petitioner maintained that, irrespective of the February 6 decision dismissing him from his tenured employment, he would still be entitled to back pay and emoluments for violation of his tenure rights during the period between July 24, 1991, when his position was abolished, and February 6, 1992, when he was dismissed from his employment for unbecoming conduct.

On March 27, 1992, the Commissioner denied the motion for reconsideration, finding "no clear showing of error or other compelling basis, consistent with established law, to reconsider my prior dismissal of petitioner's claim."

Petitioner has filed the instant appeal to the State Board, contending that the Commissioner erred in dismissing his petition as moot.

We agree. Notwithstanding the tenure charges which were then pending against petitioner or his subsequent dismissal from his employment as the result of those charges, petitioner remained under tenure at the time his position was abolished in July 1991 and was entitled to all the rights and protection attending such status. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 provides that "[n]o person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation...if he is or shall be under tenure...except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, and then only after a hearing held...by the commissioner..."

Moreover, it is now well established that a tenured teaching staff member subject to a reduction in force pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 has entitlement by virtue of tenure to an assignment within the scope of his or her certificate as against non-tenured individuals. Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Ed., 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den., 110 N.J. 512 (1988); Capodilupo v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., decided by the State Board of Education, September 3, 1986, aff'd, 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den., 109 N.J. 514 (1987). Consequently, regardless of the ultimate disposition of the tenure charges, the Board could not act in contravention of petitioner's statutory rights during such time as he remained under tenure.

The fact that petitioner was subsequently dismissed did not render such a claim moot. A tenured staff member is entitled to his or her full salary until a determination is made of pending tenure charges, except for the first 120 days following certification of those charges. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. In this case, petitioner was suspended without pay upon certification of the tenure charges in November 1990. His position as chairperson of the Science Department was not abolished until July 1991, more than eight months later. He was subsequently dismissed from his employment in February 1992. As a consequence, while petitioner would have no right to reinstatement in this instance, he may be entitled to back pay and emoluments if he can demonstrate that the Board, in effectuating the reorganization, violated his statutory rights prior to his dismissal.

We therefore reverse the Commissioner's decision to dismiss the instant petition as moot. Since the record before us does not permit a determination of the merits of petitioner's claim,[3] we remand this matter to the Commissioner for further proceedings in order to provide the petitioner with the opportunity to demonstrate that the Board violated his tenure rights as a result of the reorganization in 1991. In so doing, we stress that we make no findings herein as to whether any such violation occurred.

Margaret M. Bennett abstained.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

MARCO VAN VELSEN,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE INTERSCHOLASTIC ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENT.	:

This matter has come before the Commissioner of Education by way of Petition of Appeal and Motion for Emergent Relief, accompanied by a brief in support of the application for interim relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5, seeking a stay of the decision dated December 20, 1991 of the Eligibility Appeals Committee (hereinafter EAC) of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) denying petitioner participation in interscholastic basketball for Cherry Hill High School East (hereinafter Cherry Hill East) for the 1991-92 basketball season, due to a violation of Article V, Section 4K(6) of the NJSIAA Bylaws which states:

> Any evidence of a transfer for athletic advantage shall subject the athlete to a prompt determination of eligibility by the Eligibility Appeals Committee and may subject the school and the athlete to appropriate disciplinary proceedings as set forth in Article X herein. A transfer for athletic advantage is defined as, but not limited to:
> (a) seeking a superior athletic team;
> (b) seeking relief due to a conflict with the philosophy or action of an administrator, teacher or coach relating to sports;

(c) seeking a team consistent with the student's athletic abilities; or
(d) seeking a means to nullify punitive action by the previous school. (NJSIAA Handbook, at 46)

Petitioner acknowledges that the matter heard before the EAC also included a request for waiver of Article V, Section 4E of the NJSIAA Bylaws, a rule which requires the successful completion of 27.5 credits in the previous academic year, which he admittedly lacked in transferring for his senior year to Cherry Hill East from his native country, the Netherlands. Petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief and Petition of Appeal do not challenge that finding of the EAC denying such waiver. Accordingly, the Commissioner notes for the record that petitioner is ineligible to play interscholastic basketball until at least February 1, 1992 due to his having failed to satisfy Article V, Section 4E. Petitioner seeks participation after that date, the beginning of the second semester at Cherry Hill East.

Petitioner avers in his Motion for Emergent Relief that he was denied due process because the EAC did not afford reasonable notice to him that its hearing would include resolution of the athletic advantage issue, and thus that the decision of the EAC was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Petitioner seeks to have the Commissioner stay the decision of the EAC and to order that petitioner is eligible to participate in interscholastic basketball for Cherry Hill East beginning on February 1, 1992 through the remainder of the basketball season pursuant to Article V, Section 4E(2) of the NJSIAA Bylaws.

Petitioner's brief in support of his Motion for Emergent Relief cites Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) as representing the standards for consideration for pendente lite restraints, and avers he has met each of the requirements, the first of which is a reasonable probability of success on the merits of his claim. Petitioner avers that the findings of the EAC, among them that petitioner is obviously an outstanding college basketball prospect, with club basketball experience in Holland, who signed a letter of intent for a basketball scholarship at Temple University, are arbitrary because there was no testimony in the record with regard to any advanced basketball skill level on his part. Petitioner cites the testimony of Mr. Rose, counsel in this matter and also the Temple University alumnus and Cherry Hill resident with whom petitioner resides, who stated that petitioner is not a "blue chipper" or on any list of college basketball prospects in the United States or Europe. (Brief in Support of Motion for Emergent Relief, at p. 13, quoting Tr.57) Petitioner avers the EAC did not inquire into his skill level but rather made unfounded inferences based upon his height and the fact that he signed a letter of intent to accept a scholarship at Temple University. He argues instead that the scholarship was offered him as a result of the recommendation of Yan Post, a fellow Hollander who played basketball at Temple, and the evaluation by Coach Chaney, the head basketball coach at Temple, based upon a home visit, interview and "shoot around" pursuant to NCAA Rules and Regulations. (Brief, at p. 13, quoting Tr.48)

In response to the EAC's conclusion that principles of fairness of competition would be undermined and that a member of the Cherry Hill East student body would be displaced by petitioner were he allowed to participate, petitioner claims no member of the EAC questioned the Cherry Hill East coach with regard to his skill level or inquired as to whether he would displace a present member of the Cherry Hill East student body or have any impact on the number of individuals who would participate in the Cherry Hill East basketball program. Petitioner claims a transfer student-athlete, such as he, will displace a member of the student body in any situation and therefore, it is irrational to use this as a basis for finding athletic advantage. He further avers that he will not take a scholarship away from any individual presently on the Cherry Hill East Team because he has already accepted a scholarship offer.

Petitioner distinguishes Dam Jin Koh and Hong Jun Kim v. NJSIAA, a transfer for athletic advantage case decided by the Commissioner February 3, 1987, from this matter. Unlike that fact pattern, in this situation, there is no evidence in the record that petitioner left his country to improve his basketball skills or that the basis for the transfer was on the availability of a high school basketball program, petitioner submits.

Petitioner suggests the only other case on point, Felicia Blake v. NJSIAA, decided by the Commissioner June 2, 1982, was one of first impression, and a unique case for which the Commissioner entered a modified penalty of 45 days of ineligibility. In the event that the Commissioner does not stay and reverse the EAC's decision, petitioner herein seeks a penalty of 45 days of ineligibility from the EAC determination of ineligibility, which would expire on or about February 2, 1992.

On the standard of demonstrating irreparable harm, petitioner claims that if the Commissioner does not grant the stay, he will not be afforded an opportunity to be heard on the merits of the case until after the basketball season has terminated. He claims that such event would result in his suffering irreparable harm because participation in high school athletics is an important aspect of the educational experience.

On the standard of balancing the equities, petitioner claims the harm to him in the absence of the requested relief is greater than the potential harm to NJSIAA, which he claims will not suffer any harm whatsoever. Petitioner claims the Cherry Hill East basketball team currently has two wins and eight losses, and therefore, will most likely not be eligible for the NJSIAA Post Season Tournament. Thus, he claims, any harm to NJSIAA or other member schools or any other party, is minimal. Therefore, he avers, the equities clearly weigh in his favor.

Finally, petitioner submits that the role of the EAC is to interpret NJSIAA's Constitution, Bylaws, Rules and Regulations, not to create its own rules and regulations. Petitioner claims his situation does not fall squarely within any of the proscriptions envisioned under the athletic advantage rule. He further contends that it is widely known that other states have enacted legislation to impose a waiting period and/or to deny athletic eligibility to foreign transfer students. If such legislation is NJSIAA's objective, petitioner submits it should become a uniform rule through the proper legislative process and not through the ad hoc decisions of the EAC that are not based on the language of its own rules.

Accordingly, petitioner seeks emergent relief to afford him the opportunity to play basketball through the remainder of the 1991-92 season.

On January 27, 1992 NJSIAA filed its Answer and Brief in Opposition to petitioner's motion. Said Answer denies, inter alia, that the conclusion that petitioner transferred for athletic advantage is not supported by the evidence in the record and is arbitrary and capricious. Instead, NJSIAA argues in affirmative defenses that the EAC determination was based upon substantial credible evidence in the record, which revealed that petitioner, a 6'9" tall basketball player who had played for clubs at his home in the Netherlands, transferred to Cherry Hill High School East for one year, in anticipation of accepting a scholarship to play basketball at Temple University. NJSIAA further claims petitioner's transfer and living arrangements were all initiated by Temple University's basketball staff, acting in cooperation with the Cherry Hill East High School basketball coach and a Temple alumnus. It states additionally in affirmative defenses that petitioner signed a national letter of intent to play basketball at Temple beginning in the fall of 1992 and accepted a basketball scholarship to that school.

NJSIAA further avers that petitioner was afforded complete due process through the procedures employed by the EAC, after a complete hearing at which petitioner was represented by counsel, presented witnesses and documentary evidence and was allowed to argue his case and cross-examine witnesses. Further, NJSIAA contends petitioner was given three opportunities to postpone the EAC hearing with respect to his transfer for athletic advantage, but he elected to proceed with the hearing, thereby waiving his right to claim that he was prejudiced by having to proceed with the hearing on short notice.

NJSIAA's Brief in Opposition to the Motion for Emergent Relief cites the Findings of Fact of the EAC, which are incorporated herein by reference, as part of its statement of facts. Its legal argument addresses the Crowe v. DeGioia, supra, standards, contending first that there is an absence of irreparable injury. NJSIAA cites Burnside et al. v. NJSIAA et al., unpublished decision of the Appellate Division, November 15, 1984, Docket No. A-625-84T7, cert. den. 101 N.J. 236 (1985) for the proposition that no student has a constitutional right to participate in interscholastic sports. NJSIAA claims there is nothing preventing petitioner from continuing his academic work at Cherry Hill East and practicing with the basketball team, however.

Second, NJSIAA argues that there is no substantial likelihood of success on the merits of petitioner's claims. It submits that petitioner's request that "the Commissioner substitute [his] own judgment for that of the EAC and reverse their decision" (emphasis in text) (Brief in Opposition, at p. 9, quoting Petitioner's Brief, at p. 4) is "precisely what the Commissioner may not do in reviewing a case like this." (Brief in Opposition, at p. 9). It cites Dam Jin Koh and Hong Jun Kim, supra, for the standard of review in NJSIAA cases; specifically, if due process has been granted, and there is an adequate basis for the decision reached by the NJSIAA committees, the Commissioner will not substitute his judgment, even when he would decide otherwise in a de novo review. NJSIAA cites two additional cases in support of this proposition, B.C. v. NJSIAA, decided by the Commissioner October 4, 1991 and R.D. v. NJSIAA, decided by the Commissioner October 17, 1991.

In response to petitioner's allegation that he did not have adequate notice that the EAC was investigating charges that he transferred for athletic advantage, NJSIAA responds that the transcript shows at pp. 14, 16 and 17 petitioner was afforded no fewer than three opportunities to postpone the hearing to allow him more time to prepare, and that it was petitioner and his counsel who elected to proceed with the hearing. (Tr.19) It further argues that the charge regarding athletic advantage was prepared and sent to petitioner as soon as the Association became aware that it was an issue, the day after it was published in U.S.A. Today. NJSIAA avers that by agreeing to go forward with the hearing and waiving the opportunity to adjourn the hearing, petitioner can not be heard to say that the proceeding prejudiced his due process rights.

Also, in rebuttal to petitioner's arguments on the likelihood of success on the merits, NJSIAA states it was neither arbitrary nor capricious for the EAC to conclude that a student who has been evaluated and recruited by the Temple basketball coach, and who has signed a national letter of intent to play on a basketball scholarship at that university, is not an outstanding basketball prospect. NJSIAA finds petitioner's contention that EAC has "legislated" (Brief in Opposition, at p. 12) beyond its authority by declaring petitioner ineligible, and that through "ad hoc" (Id.) decision-making, EAC seeks to deny athletic eligibility to foreign students to be without merit. It claims foreign transfers are welcome to play interscholastic sports when they have transferred to the school for non-athletic reasons, but claims that is not petitioner's situation. NJSIAA avers the record demonstrates that he transferred for athletic advantage. NJSIAA submits the EAC is charged with the responsibility to investigate "the circumstances surrounding a student athlete's eligibility when 'any evidence of a transfer for athletic advantage' is discovered." (emphasis in text) (Brief in Opposition, at p. 13, citing NJSIAA Handbook, at 46) Thus, NJSIAA argues that petitioner is not likely to succeed on the merits of his petition before the Commissioner.

Finally, on the standard of demonstrating relative hardship to the parties in granting or denying relief, NJSIAA submits because petitioner will continue to have every opportunity to pursue his academic studies at Cherry Hill East to better prepare himself for the rigors of his college career, he will suffer no hardship as a result of the Association's actions. On the other hand, NJSIAA contends Cherry Hill East, its students, and member schools of NJSIAA could suffer greatly if petitioner prevails in playing in this year's basketball season first because the eligibility rules and guidelines of NJSIAA provide that if any member school's interscholastic team uses an ineligible player, it must forfeit a contest. It cites NJSIAA Handbook at 67 and Northern Burlington Regional High School Bd. of Ed. v. NJSIAA et al., decided by the Commissioner November 16, 1984 in support of this position.

Further, NJSIAA claims adverse impact upon opposition schools if petitioner is allowed to participate because to allow a promising athlete to become a part of the Cherry Hill East basketball team through the placement efforts of a college basketball program would disserve the basic objectives of amateur competition. To do so would undermine the principles of fairness of competition with other member schools and would, it claims, displace a present member of the Cherry Hill East student body who would otherwise have had the opportunity to participate in basketball during the 1991-92 basketball season. NJSIAA claims, therefore, that the extraordinary relief sought herein would undermine public policy.

Accordingly, NJSIAA requests that the Commissioner deny emergent relief and dismiss the petition on its merits.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this matter, which includes, inter alia, the transcript of the hearing below before the NJSIAA EAC, as well as the final decision of that body, the Commissioner finds and determines that the Motion for Emergent Relief in this matter is denied for failure to meet the standards for the extraordinary relief of pendente lite restraints set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, supra.

First, petitioner has failed to demonstrate irreparable harm if the Motion for Emergent Relief is not granted. The courts have plainly stated that participation in interscholastic sports is a privilege, not a right. See, Burnside, supra, wherein the Appellate Division has stated, "Participation is subject to eligibility requirements or other preconditions" and that "[such] requirements are within the control of the NJSIAA subject to review and approval of the Commissioner of Education." (Slip Opinion, at p. 6) As such, petitioner's argument that he will be irreparably harmed if the stay is not granted through a hearing on the merits of this matter must fail insofar as participation in high school athletics is not an entitlement in the provision of a thorough and efficient education.

Similarly, petitioner has not made a showing that he is likely to succeed on the merits of his claim. On the matter of the provision of due process, the Commissioner agrees that NJSIAA is charged with the responsibility of investigating any allegation of athletic advantage alleged in a student's participation in interscholastic athletics. See NJSIAA Handbook, at 46. Albeit that petitioner himself had sought a hearing before the EAC on the question of a waiver of the 27.5 credit rule, as a prospective candidate for participation in interscholastic sports for a member of NJSIAA, he was subject to a review of his eligibility under any grounds set forth in the Association's Constitution, Bylaws, Rules and Regulations. Although notice to him may have been less than he would have preferred, the notice to the Association of petitioner's potential ineligibility on the basis of seeking athletic advantage came before the Association, apparently, shortly before the start of the basketball season through his own action of signing an intent to accept a basketball scholarship for Temple University. Petitioner does not deny that he so signed such intent on November 13, 1991. (See Brief in Support of Petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief, at p. 8.) NJSIAA's Brief states the charge that petitioner had transferred for athletic advantage was prepared and sent to petitioner the day after U.S.A. Today published announcement of petitioner's signing the letter of intent which was on December 5, 1991. (See NJSIAA's Brief in Opposition, at p. 11.) That such letter took four days to reach petitioner, as he claims, is not an unreasonable length of time and cannot, in the Commissioner judgment be a basis for suggesting that he was in any manner denied notice of due process particularly in light of the fact that he was provided the option of postponing his defense of the matter at hearing, which he chose not to do. See Tr.14, 16, 18-19.

Moreover, the likelihood of petitioner's demonstrating that he did not transfer for athletic advantage, but rather that the "primary purpose of his transfer to Cherry Hill East was to prepare himself academically, integrate himself into the social culture of the United States prior to attending college in the United States" (see Petition of Appeal, at p. 3) is belied by his readily admitting that before he even sought to leave his school in the Netherlands, he was in contact with a member of the Temple basketball team, Mr. Post, that the Temple University coaches contacted Cherry Hill East about housing and schooling him, that he in fact currently resides with a Temple University alumnus, and that he continued contact with the Temple basketball coaches through the time when in November 1991 he signed a letter of intent to accept a basketball scholarship at Temple University. (See Petitioner's Brief in Support of the Motion for Emergent Relief, at pp. 6-8.) The Commissioner thus concludes, that on the Motion for Emergent Relief, petitioner has failed to demonstrate a likelihood of success on the merits of his claim.

Finally, the Commissioner finds that petitioner has failed to demonstrate that the relative hardship that would be visited upon him were the stay denied is greater than the hardship which the Board would suffer were the stay granted. The Commissioner finds that because petitioner will continue to have every opportunity to pursue his academic career, he suffers little or no privation of his rights as compared to the hardship which would befall those students of Cherry Hill East and throughout the State who are members of NJSIAA were the stay denied. The laudable purposes of promoting evenhandedness and uniform application of the rules and regulations of the Association would be compromised if the extraordinary relief sought by petitioner herein were granted in the absence of a preliminary showing of privation of his rights to due process or a thorough and efficient education. See, Burnside, supra.

Accordingly, petitioner's request for emergent relief is denied. The matter is to proceed on the merits expeditiously with any additional briefs to be filed by petitioner by February 5, 1992. NJSIAA will have until February 12 for a reply brief on the merits.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning high school student sought a stay of the decision of the Eligibility Appeals Committee (EAC) of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) which denied petitioner participation in interscholastic basketball for the 1991-92 season. Petitioner contended that the EAC erred in determining that he transferred for athletic eligibility, that he was an outstanding college basketball prospect with club basketball experience in Holland, and that it was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable for the Association to have drawn any conclusions about his basketball skill level because there was no testimony in the record with regard to any such advanced skills. Petitioner also argued that the fact that he signed a letter of intent to accept a basketball scholarship with Temple University did not support the finding of EAC that he transferred for athletic advantage.

The Commissioner adopted as his own the conclusions and recommendations of the EAC. The Commissioner found the record supported the EAC's findings that the purpose of petitioner's transfer to Cherry Hill East was to attend high school in the United States in anticipation of enrollment at Temple to play basketball and thus, was for athletic advantage which was in violation of NJSIAA rules. Petition of Appeal was dismissed.

This matter came before the Commissioner of Education by way of Petition of Appeal and Motion for Emergent Relief, accompanied by a brief in support of the application for interim relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.5, seeking a stay of the Eligibility Appeals Committee (hereinafter EAC) decision dated December 20, 1991 of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) denying petitioner participation in interscholastic basketball for Cherry Hill High School East (hereinafter Cherry Hill East) for the 1991-92 basketball season, due to a violation of Article V, Section 4K(6) of the NJSIAA Bylaws, prohibiting transfer for athletic advantage. Said petition was accompanied by a brief in support of the Motion for Emergent Relief elaborating on the standard for pendente lite restraints as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). Petitioner's Motion sought a stay of the NJSIAA claiming that the Association did not provide him due process because the EAC did not afford reasonable notice to him that its hearing would include resolution of the athletic advantage issue, insofar as he had sought a hearing on a waiver of the 27.5 credit rule as a result of his having transferred to Cherry Hill East from his native country, the Netherlands, without having satisfactorily completed his junior year credits in the Netherlands. Said argument was dropped on appeal to the Commissioner.

Petitioner also contended on Motion that the EAC erred in determining that he transferred for athletic eligibility, that he was an outstanding college basketball prospect with club basketball experience in Holland, and that it was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable for the Association to draw any conclusions about his basketball skill level because there was no testimony in the record with regard to any such advanced skills. Petitioner also argued he was irreparably harmed by the EAC determination because participation in high school athletics is an important aspect of the educational experience. Finally, petitioner contended on Motion that the fact that he had signed a letter of intent to accept a basketball scholarship with Temple University in November 1991 did not support the finding of the EAC that he transferred to Cherry Hill for athletic advantage.

On February 3, 1992, having reviewed the papers submitted by petitioner and the responsive papers submitted by NJSIAA, the Commissioner denied the Motion for Emergent Relief finding petitioner had failed to demonstrate a showing of irreparable harm in that there is no entitlement to play in scholastic sports, citing Burnside et al. v. NJSIAA et al., unpublished decision of the Appellate Division, November 15, 1984, Docket No. A-625-84T7, cert. den. 101 N.J. 236 (1985). The Commissioner also found petitioner failed to demonstrate a likelihood of success on the merits stating first that on the matter of the provision of due process, NJSIAA was timely in providing notice to petitioner of the athletic advantage question, that is, as soon as the Association learned of his having signed a letter of intent. Further, on the matter of whether petitioner transferred for athletic advantage, the Commissioner found that because petitioner was in contact with a former member of the Temple Basketball team from the time before he sought schooling in America, that the Temple University coaches contacted Cherry Hill East about housing and schooling him, that he currently resides with a Temple University alumnus, and that he continued contact with the Temple coaches through the time when he signed his letter of intent, petitioner failed to demonstrate a likelihood of success on the merits.

Finally, the Commissioner determined that petitioner failed to demonstrate that the relative hardship that would be visited upon him were the stay denied was not greater than the hardship which the Board would suffer were the stay granted because petitioner would continue to have every opportunity to pursue his academic career, would suffer no privation of his rights and because the laudable purposes of evenhandedness and uniform application of the rules and regulations of the Association would be compromised if the extraordinary relief petitioner sought were granted. Thus, the Commissioner denied the Motion and directed that the matter proceed on the merits upon the filing by February 5, 1992 of any additional brief by petitioner and until Feburary 12, 1992 by NJSIAA.

Thereafter, by faxed transmission on February 5, 1992, petitioner submitted a brief in support of his petition of appeal incorporating all of the statement of facts and arguments contained in his Memorandum of Law in Support of Application for Emergent Relief, which are incorporated herein by reference. Said arguments are summarized in pertinent part as follows:

> It is respectfully submitted that when the facts are viewed from a positive and optimistic perspective regarding this matter, it is uncontroverted in the record and clear that the Petitioner became aware of the opportunities and experiences available in the United States through his relationship with Jon Post ("Post) his hometown friend. As a result, Post was the natural person for the Petitioner to turn to for guidance and assistance in coming to the United States. In turn, it was natural for Post to ask the coaches to assist him in an effort to find an appropriate high school for the Petitioner. Post was only at Temple for two years and therefore, as a result of his participation on the basketball team, it was natural for him to turn to the coaching staff for assistance.
> The EAC further characterized the facts to be that the coaching staff at Temple sought out Cherry Hill East and Leon H. Rose as a result of their "placement" efforts. The EAC makes innuendos with regard to the fact that Mr. Rose is a Temple alumnus, when in fact his only relationship to Temple University is that he graduated from their law school. Mr. Rose has never had any involvement or relationship with the coaching staff or basketball program at Temple University. Moreover, the record is clear that Cherry Hill East was one of four different high schools that were contacted as a result of the fact that they met the criteria of having an excellent academic reputation as well as many foreign students attending their school.
> Moreover, the Association recognizes in the interpretive guidelines for same that the desire to participate in interscholastic sports may be one of a number of considerations involved in a transfer, in addition to facts such as finances, academic, religious training, social and transportation. The primary reason for the transfer must be for athletic advantage in order for there to be a violation of this Section. (Interpretative Guidelines at page 65). The > uncontroverted evidence in the record reflects that the primary purpose of the transfer of the Petitioner was not for athletic advantage.

> For all of the foregoing reasons, it is respectivefully submitted that the Commissioner reverse the decision of the EAC, and order that the Petitioner immediately be permitted to participate in interscholastic basketball at Cherry Hill East.

On February 7, 1992, NJSIAA registered its continuing opposition to the petition, maintaining that petitioner's transfer was for athletic advantage, in violation of NJSIAA rules. In so stating NJSIAA relies on it's previously submitted answer and affirmative defenses, brief in opposition to the motion for emergent relief and the written decision of the EAC. Respondent NJSIAA requests that the petition be dismissed and the ruling of the EAC, based as it was on substantial credible evidence, be upheld.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner adopts as his own those conclusions and recommendations of the EAC, in this case. Said determination found, inter alia, and the Commissioner's review of the record concurs, that Mr. Van Velsen transferred to Cherry Hill High School East (Cherry Hill East) from his native country of the Netherlands, for athletic advantage, in violation of Article V, Section 4K(6) of the NJSIAA Bylaws. Such conclusion was predicated upon a finding that petitioner consulted with a former basketball player at Temple, who placed him in touch with Temple University basketball personnel, and a Temple University alumnus who would house him during his senior year of high school in the United States, following contact by Temple University basketball coaching personnel with the Cherry Hill East basketball coach. It was further found by the EAC that petitioner was evaluated by the Temple basketball coach and offered a basketball scholarship, which petitioner accepted, along with his signing a national letter of intent to play basketball at Temple.

The Commissioner's review of the evidence proffered in this matter, comports with that of the EAC that based on the credible evidence brought to bear, petitioner's purpose in transferring to Cherry Hill East was to attend high school in the United States in anticipation of enrolling at Temple the following year to play basketball. Thus, the Commissioner finds that EAC's determination that petitioner's transfer was for athletic advantage in violation of the NJSIAA rules was not arbitrary or unreasonable. See for example Dam Jin Koh and Hong Jun Kim v. NJSIAA, decided by the Commissioner February 3, 1987 (Standard of review in NJSIAA cases holds that if due process has been granted, and there is an adequate basis for the decision reached by the NJSIAA Committees, the Commission will not substitute his judgment, even if he would decide otherwise in a de novo review.)

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed by the EAC, as well as those embodied in the Commissioner's Decision on Motion in this matter dated February 3, 1992, the instant Petition of Appeal is dismissed, with prejudice.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, PETITIONER, V. STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

FEBRUARY 6, 1992

MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, PETITIONER, V. STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY, RESPONDENT.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

Carol Zylbert, Esq., for Petitioner

Charlotte Kitler, Esq., for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner by way of a notice of intent to appeal filed by the City of Jersey City on May 13, 1991. Upon receipt of the aforesaid notice, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes conducted a telephone conference call with the parties at which time a schedule was established for the filing of the papers to be considered in this matter.

Subsequent to the establishment of the schedule for filing, the Petitioner, the City of Jersey City, requested a delay for filing pending the outcome of matters before the Division of Local Government Services of the Department of Community Affairs relating to the capacity of the City of Jersey City to assume the tax burden required by its legal obligations (N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52B).

Upon agreement of the State-operated School District of Jersey City (District), the requested delay was granted.

In light of the delay granted for filing in this matter, a formal Petition in this matter was not filed by the City until August 23, 1991. On September 27, 1991 the District filed its Answer to the Petition. Subsequently, the parties filed position statements on October 30, 1991 and reply briefs on November 12 and 13, 1991. Summary papers were filed by the City on November 20, 1991 and by the District on November 21, 1991. The record was formally closed on November 25, 1991 when Dr. Maureen Keller, Acting Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, rejected the City's request for further extension of time within which to examine the District's Audit Report and directed that the papers filed by the City on November 20, 1991 be considered its final summary of position.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a) the State Superintendent of a State-operated School District is required "...[to] fix and determine the amount of money necessary to be appropriated for the ensuing school year and ... certify the amounts to be raised by special district tax for school purposes ... to the county board of taxation and the ... amounts so certified shall be included in the taxes assessed, levied and collected in the municipality or municipalities comprising the school district." Unlike other budget appeal processes in the State of New Jersey, it is the municipality which must appeal the determination of the amount necessary to be raised for school purposes setting forth those specific line items which it believes can be reduced without obstructing the district's ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

Based upon the statutory language summarized above, the City proposed the following tax levy reduction:

Appeal by City of Jersey City of the Budget of the State-operated School District of Jersey City

I. CITY'S REASONS AND POSITION

By way of general argument the City contends that it has identified approximately $11.6 million dollars in over expenditures in the District budget. It further contends that the District will have a free balance of $8.6 million dollars at the conclusion of the 1990-91 school year and would therefore be required to appropriate $4.5 of such unappropriated free balance to reduce the local tax levy by that amount.

The City contends that a comparison of historical expenditures to the 1991-92 budgeted amounts demonstrates that the District has overestimated its spending. Further, the City contends that the District may be encumbering 1990-91 accounts to pay summer salaries and 1991-92 supplies. The City contends that accounts should be encumbered in the 1991-92 budget and the 1990-91 unexpended funds should be permitted to lapse into surplus. In the alternative, the City argues that the 1991-92 budget be reduced by the amounts of 1991-92 supplies and salaries paid for out of 1990-91 funds.

The City provides the following specific reduction recommendations in support of its position:

Account 130 - Other Administrative Expenses

Budgeted	Proposed Reduction	Revised Amount
$882,349	$105,000	$777,349

The City contends that the increase recommended for 1991-92 represents 20% over the 1990-91 level and 24% over the 1989-90 level without reasonable explanation as to why such increases are necessary. It likewise contends that the District has a history of overbudgeting in this account.

Further, the City contends that the District spent an additional $76,738 in June over the figures given in May 1991. This amount it believes represents purchases for the 1991-92 school year using funds left unspent and budgeted for in 1990-91. Thus, it believes its request for a $105,000 reduction in this account is appropriate.

Accounts 211-216 - Instructional Salaries

		Budgeted	Proposed Reduction	Revised Amount
211	Principals' Salaries	$ 6,375,319	$ 560,000	$ 5,815,319
212	Supervisors' Salaries	3,187,176	700,000	2,487,176
214	Other Inst. Salaries	10,031,536	1,600,000	8,431,536
215	Secretarial Salaries	3,596,066	270,000	3,326,066
216	Other Salaries	5,278,557	500,000	4,778,557
		$28,468,654	$3,630,000	$24,838,654

In these accounts the City contends that the District by its own admission intends no new principal or supervisory hiring nor any additional hiring in the area of Other Instructional Salaries. Nevertheless, its budget request for 1991-92 calls for 28% and 45% increases respectively for principals and supervisors. Despite reductions in the number of persons in the 214 account from 178 to 173 the amount budgeted for 1991-92 is increased by 3.16%. The tendency to overbudget, contends the City, is illustrated by the 214 Account in that almost $2,000,000 was transferred from the 214 Account in 1990-91.

Insofar as secretarial salaries are concerned, the City points out that despite the fact that the District contemplates no additional principals, 8 fewer supervisors, 81 fewer teachers and 5 fewer Compensatory Education Guidance Counselors, it has budgeted for five additional principals' secretaries.

Finally, the City contends that spending after 11 months in the 216 Account was only $3,632,036 out of $5,027,194 budgeted, yet the 1991-92 budget calls for an increase of $251,363.

Account 220 - Textbooks

$1,648,379	$475,000	$1,173,379

In 1990-91 the City points out that only $690,384 was spent in this account out of an original $2,275,668 while nearly $1,400,000 was transferred out. The City argues that expenditures over the last four years have been approximately $1,000,000 per year.

Account 230 - Library Books and A/V

$521,686	$300,000	$221,686

The City contends that the amount budgeted is not consistent with the amount spent over the past four years. The City points out that $331,896 was transferred out of this account in 1991 and no reason is given to support the large increase in the amount budgeted for 1991-92 over the amount actually expended in 1990-91.

Account 240 - Teaching Supplies

$3,842,444	$560,000	$3,282,444

The City points out that the District expended only slightly over $1,400,000 in 11 months of 1990-91 out of an original budget of $3,279,759 and transferred $1,790,429. Encumbrances of $479,319 as of May 31, 1991 even if spent are likely for supplies to be used in 1991-92 thus justifying a reduction in the 1991-92 amount budgeted. The City points out that the district has averaged expenditures of less than $2,000,000 per year in teaching supplies over the past four years, yet budgets $3.8 million for 1991-92.

Account 250 - Other Instructional Expenses

$1,061,217	$550,000	$511,217

Spending patterns over the last four years, the City contends, bear no resemblance to the $1,040,534 budgeted in 1990-91 and the $1,061,217 budgeted in 1991-92. It is the City's position that the District itself acknowledges the overbudgeting in this account by virtue of its transfer of $471,845 from this account during the 1990-91 school year.

Account 260 - Professional/Technical Services

$50,000	$50,000	$0

None of the monies in this account ($11,000) were expended in 1990-91 and no explanation is provided for why the line item should be increased.

Account 310 - Salaries-Attendance

$592,418	$90,000	$502,418

The City contends that this account was overbudgeted by $101,710 in 1990-91, yet was increased in 1991-92 despite no apparent increase in staffing levels. It also points to current spending for 11 months of only $437,259.

Account 410 - Salaries-Health

$2,336,539	$475,000	$1,861,539

Despite transfers of $344,720 from the original amount budgeted the balance of $1,841,095 exceeds the actual expenditures of $1,427,836 for 11 months. The City acknowledges that the District contemplates three new positions in this area including a physician but finds the increase projected for 1991-92 to be excessive and sufficient to pay each employee $11,787 more than the average estimated salary of $27,815.

Account 420 - Other Expenses/Health

$418,142	$175,000	$243,142

The City argues for the above reduction based upon the historic spending pattern of the District contending that the 1991-92 budget exceeds by many times the amounts spent in the past. The City points to the availability of funds in the 1990-91 budget which were unused.

Account 430 - Consultants

$104,500	$55,000	$49,500

With the increase of three health positions, the City contends the request for additional consultant services is excessive. The District, it avers, plans to spend more than twice its 1990-91 revised budget in this area. The City deems the increase available despite the fact that the intended reduction is sufficient to provide the necessary services.

Account 520 - Contracted Services

$6,606,550	$1,100,000	$5,506,550

The City points out that the District by virtue of transfers during 1990-91 has left just under $6,000,000 in this account and spent less than $4,700,000 over 11 months. Since the City contends the entire account is for the transportation of students, there should be no anticipation of large increases. Despite a history of underspending the amount budgeted, the District continues to increase its budgeted amount yearly as illustrated by a summary contained on page 12 of the City's Petition and incorporated herein by reference.

Account 530 - Replacement of Vehicles

$36,252	$36,252	$0

The City points out that the District has in previous years budgeted monies in this account only to transfer all or most of the funds out of the account without expending any monies for the purposes budgeted. It therefore believes that past experience justifies the total reduction in this account.

Account 550 - Other Transportation Expenses

$14,980	$9,000	$5,980

The City contends that no explanation has been provided to explain why a budget of $14,980 is necessary when only $4,025 was spent in 1990-91. Therefore, it contends the reduction is justified.

Account 640 - Utilities

$3,189,819	$200,000	$2,989,819

The City points to a history of alleged overbudgeting in 1989-90 and 1990-91 based upon transfers of $442,000 and $493,997 respectively. Based upon the past history, the City contends its recommended reduction is reasonable.

Account 650 - Operational Supplies

$454,402	$35,000	$419,402

The City contends that the District has averaged expenditures of only $322,000 for three years and spent only $363,392 for 11 months in 1990-91 out of $437,303 budgeted. It therefore contends that the District has failed to justify why it needs an increase to $454,402 in 1991-92. The City contends that it has permitted a 6% increase for inflation within its reduced amount.

Account 710 - Maintenance Salaries

$3,823,520	$200,000	$3,623,520

The District budget document indicates a reduction of three positions in this account yet calls for a 13% increase over current spending after transfers from this account. The amount remaining after the reductions recommended is sufficient, according to the City, to ensure raises of $5,795 per employee.

Account 730 - Purchase Instructional Equipment

$1,430,371	$200,000	$1,230,371

The City points out the District's expenditure level over the years from 1987-88 to 1990-91 has been reduced from $1,555,588 to $747,923. The District transferred more than $1.9 million dollars out of this account in 1990-91 yet it requests a budget almost twice its actual expenditures in 1990-91. The amount remaining after the recommended reductions in this account will leave the District with a sufficient increase to improve its position relative to equipment.

Account 810 - Employee Retirement Contributions

$4,996,397	$600,000	$4,396,397

The City has made the above-recommended reduction based upon its independent analysis of the District's pension and Social Security requirements. The City points to a history of transfers from this account indicating what it believes to be overbudgeting.

The City contends that Social Security rates, as well as maximum taxable salaries, have increased only slightly over the past few years and were largely offset by the reduction of the number of positions subject to FICA. The City points out that the total 1990-91 spending in this account, even assuming the entire amount budgeted is expended, is still $33,000 greater than the spending of three years ago, less than a 1% increase in cost.

Based upon the foregoing reasons and the fact that the number of positions in the District has been decreased by 142 positions, the City contends its reductions are reasonable.

Account 820 - District Insurance

$18,794,182	$950,000	$17,844,182

While recognizing the difficulty in budgeting for insurance, the City once again justifies its reduction based upon past spending levels. The District has expended $19,209,984 for 11 months as of May 31, 1991 yet its 1991-92 budget is up over 20% for the City's projected annualized insurance spending. The City contends that based upon its own experience the District's projected increase of 27.8% for hospitalization is excessive.

The City also challenges the District's contention that an increase is necessary to meet judgments yet $405,599 budgeted in 1990-91 for such purpose was never expended. The City contends that the 1991-92 budget projects an increase over the 1990-91 budget yet 1990-91 spending fails to approach the amount originally budgeted.

Account 830 - Rent

$2,700,000	$500,000	$2,200,000

The City points out that spending for rental space has ranged from between $1,874,162 and $2,016,420 over the past four years yet $2,700,000 is requested for 1991-92 despite falling enrollment. The City argues that better use of existing space should be undertaken rather than renting outside facilities.

The City further contends that the District has failed to provide sufficient information to justify a $700,000 increase in this account over actual expenditures.

Account 870 - Tuition

Budgeted	Proposed Reduction	Revised Amount
$9,654,693	$1,500,000	$8,154,693

The City describes the following pattern of spending in this account:

1987-88	$5,851,511
1988-89	6,400,331
1989-90	7,222,817
1990-91	4,856,509	(11 months)

While the City recognizes that a large portion of the tuition payments for 1990-91 will have occurred in June, it points out that the District's own projections for 1990-91 are only $6,630,807; thus, the 1991-92 budgeted figure of $9,654,693 represents a 45% increase over the actual anticipated expenditures for 1990-91.

The City further points out that the number of placements have decreased over the years and no projection has been provided for 1991-92. Notwithstanding the City's recognition that reductions in this account must be conservative since placements can occur at any time during the school year, the City contends its recommended reduction is reasonable and will not hamper the District.

Revenues - Free Balance

The City contends that its recommendation that $4,500,000 be appropriated from free balance will not harm the District based upon its estimate of a projected free balance as of June 30, 1991 of $8.6 million. The District funded the 1989-90 school year with a $17,630,855 free balance and encumbrances in the May 31, 1991 Statement of Expenditures are not likely to be expended by June 30, 1991. Further, the City contends that the District will likely accrue greater revenues than originally anticipated as well as additional funds from cancellation of orders. As proof of this likelihood, the City offered the following listing:

	Excess Revenues	Unexpended Budget	Cancelled Orders
1987-88	$1,567,201	$2,342,365	$ 935,677
1988-89	2,404,541	2,106,433	1,843,754
1989-90	2,484,114	1,812,496	2,193,866

The City argues that despite two charges to the free balance of $7 million in 1991 offsetting excess revenues, unexpended balances and cancelled orders will result in an approximately $8.6 million free balance as of June 1991.

The City contends that the appropriation of $4.5 million in free balance will leave the district with a free balance of approximately $4.1 million equivalent to 2% of its current expense budget of $209.7 million after the reductions recommended here. (1.9% if no reductions are upheld) This ratio of free balance to the total budget is sufficiently close to the 3-5% accepted guidelines and does not harm the District's ability to provide a thorough and efficient system of education.

II. DISTRICT'S POSITION

The District's general position is that the City has grossly exaggerated its estimate of the District's fund balance and has made its recommended reductions solely on the analysis of financial data without consideration of educational matters.

The District contends that the burden of proof in this case rests upon the City to demonstrate that its proposed reductions will not impair the presentation of a thorough and efficient system of education. This reversal of the burden of proof for that which normally applies in budget appeals is based not only upon matters of procedure since the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a) require the City to be the petitioning party, but also upon the fact that the Jersey City School District is one which has failed its educational mission and has been put into the hands of a State Superintendent. Therefore, the District contends that the proper inquiry for the Commissioner is not whether the reductions herein will prevent the continuance of a thorough and efficient system of education, but whether the reductions will prevent the District from making progress toward the provision of such a system of education.

Further, the District argues that Jersey City is a special needs district which must begin to increase its expenditures in 1991-92 to meet the constitutional requirements of substantial equivalence of expenditures with affluent districts within five years as mandated by the New Jersey Supreme Court in Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990). To meet this requirement, contends the District, the Legislature passed the Quality Educational Act, P.L. 1990, c. 52, as amended by P.L. 1991, c. 62 for the purpose of ensuring the mandate of the Court. This act, argues the District, requires special needs districts to increase their expenditures each year over five years beginning with 1991-92 to reach a level of per pupil expenditures equal to the average of the wealthier districts. The Act, contends the District, also provides for a minimum tax levy which must be maintained as the local share to support the budget.

The District therefore argues that as a poor urban district, it is required to increase its budgetary expenditures in order to address the special needs of an urban population and thus makes obsolete the pattern of spending which the City relies on in recommending reductions. Finally, the District argues that its total budgetary increase over 1990-91 is only 2.02% as indicated on page 23 of its Budget Document and the J-1 Current Expense portion of its budget has increased only by 4.55% as indicated on page 22 of the Budget.

Account 130 - Other Administrative Expenses

The District argues that the City's position is predicated on only 11 months of expenditures. The final unaudited 1990-91

figure for 1990-91, $809,090, is just $52,823 less than the $861,913 amount budgeted in this account. The amount budgeted for 1991-92, $882,349, is only 9.05% over the 1990-91 actual and within the District's budget spending cap of 9%.

The District argues that the major increase in this account is for the cost of data processing services for district operations and new software for the Human Resources Department to assist in computerizing personnel records currently maintained by hand.

The data processing services are necessary to modernize operations of the second largest school district in the state.

Accounts 211-216 - Salaries

(a) Account 211 - Principals' Salaries

The District rebuts the contention of overbudgeting of the Principals' Salary Account (211) from 1987-88 to 1990-91 by contending that collective bargaining negotiations were ongoing with principals throughout those years so that sufficient funds had to be available to meet a settlement agreement. Settlement was reached in the 1990-91 school year.

Further the District argues that the figure used by the City for 1990-91 actual expenditures represents expenditures for 9 months and not 11 as contended since the City's figures did not include encumbrances for the 2 summer months in which principals are employed. It contends that its actual expenditures for the full 12 months of 1990-91 in the 211 Account are $6,081,651 and thus the amount budgeted in 1991-92 ($6,375,319) represents an increase of only 4.8% over 1990-91.

The District points out that its settlement with the principals extends only through August 31, 1991 and thus it is in the process of negotiating a successor agreement. The amount budgeted over the actual 1990-91 provides for a modest 5% increase for 1991-92 and is entirely needed to pay a minimal increase over current salaries.

(b) Account 212 - Supervisors' Salaries

The District points out that the City's recommendation for reduction which was based upon expenditures in this account for past years once again fails to consider that the supervisors are members of the same bargaining unit as the principals and thus were without a contract until the 1990-91 school year. As indicated in Account 211, the District contends that adequate funds had to be budgeted in prior years in order to meet any contract settlement that might have been reached.

The District acknowledges that the total expenditure in this account for 1990-91 was $2,717,308 substantially lower than the $3,711,405 budgeted; however, the District claims that this is attributable to vacancies in positions during 1990-91 and the District's decision to eliminate overtime pay for supervisors attending night meetings and working on curriculum.

While the amount budgeted in 1991-92 represents an increase of $469,868 over actual expenditures for 1990-91, the District contends this amount represents the actual salaries for 47 positions (down from 55) plus a 5% anticipated negotiated raise. Further, the District points out that it intends to employ a limited number of supervisors who are 10-month employees over the summer at a cost of approximately $90,000 as eight special education supervisors who will work on student placement and transportation for the 1991-92 school year. An additional $250,000 has been earmarked for Compensatory Education Department Chairpersons for new duties to be assumed in supervisory staff at the District's high schools.

It is the District's contention that these funds are necessary to improve the effectiveness of the instructional supervision.

(c) Account 214 - Other Instructional Salaries

The District claims that the City's financial analysis is flawed as it relates to this account and that its actual expenditures for the 12 months of 1990-91 were $8,215,611. Even this figure, argues the District, is not a true reflection of the District's needs for the 178 positions in this account since there were 16 vacancies during the course of the year which, had they been filled, would have resulted in a much higher level of expenditure.

The District points out that this account covers librarians, guidance counselors and child study team members whose necessity is not questioned by the City. It is the District's contention that the amount budgeted for 1991-92 represents the salaries for the 173 positions plus a 5% increase which it deems to be modest considering the contract covering these employees for 1991-92 has not been settled.

(d) Account 215 - Secretarial Salaries

The District contends that the amount budgeted in this account represents the actual salaries of 133 secretaries plus five additional positions increased by 5%. In response to the City's questioning of the need for the additional positions, the District indicates that these positions are being added to support the 23 district high school vice principals in handling the paperwork associated with "house plans" established in the schools. Vice principals under such plans head teams of guidance counselors, attendance officers, substance abuse coordinators and other support staff in providing continuity of services to students and parents. The secretaries will be assigned to relieve vice principals of ministerial tasks.

(e) Account 216 - Other Salaries

These salaries are for teacher aides (300) in regular classrooms, special education classes, compensatory education classes and bilingual and library classes. They do not, according to the District, represent new positions. Actual expenditures in this account for 12 months were $4,851,588. This total indicates the District does not reflect the salaries for all 300 aides since there were eight unfilled positions at the start of the 1990-91 school year.

The District points out that the City does not question the need for these positions. It is the District's position that the amount budgeted for 1991-92 represents the actual salaries for the full 300 positions plus a modest 5% raise.

The District contends that the City's analysis in this area is based upon an inaccurate statement of 1990-91 actual expenditures. The actual expenditures in 1990-91 in this account were $994,106. This entire amount was utilized to replace textbooks lost, stolen or damaged and to purchase texts necessary to bring textbooks into conformity with the existing curriculum.

The District contends that actual expenditures in 1990-91 were lower then the budgeted amount because of the District's program of curriculum revision in health, music, mathematics, language arts and social studies which caused a delay of purchases until the revision was completed and an inventory of textbooks in the district could be completed. This program of revision of curriculum and updating of textbooks was a outgrowth of the findings which led to the stated takeover of the Jersey City School District.

The District argues that the process of curriculum revision resulted in the adoption of new textbooks in music and health during 1990-91. These new adoptions were charged to the 1989-90 balance in the 220 Account and thus no expenditures were made in the 220 Account for new adoptions in 1990-91.

The District contends that $1.2 million dollars out of the $1,648,379 in the 1991-92 budget have been allocated for the replacement of lost and damaged textbooks. Since additional revisions in curriculum have occurred in language arts, foreign language and social studies and textbooks have been purchased as a result of these revisions, the District contends that $350,000 of the amount allocated for textbooks in 1991-92 has been committed leaving only $100,000 for the purchase of mathematics textbooks upon completion of the curriculum revision in that subject.

The District argues that the delay which the District experienced in completing its curriculum revision during 1990-91 does not provide a justification for reducing the 1991-92 textbook budget.

Account 230 - Library and A/V Materials

The District again argues that the City has understated actual expenditures for 11 months in this account. The District contends that actual expenditures for the full 12 months of 1990-91 were $396,049.

While the 1991-92 budget of $521,686 exceeds the actual expenditures of 1990-91 by $125,637, the District contends that $98,698 of this increase has been set aside to update library media resources which has not been undertaken for several years. The District contends that the total amount budgeted also includes $90,000 to enhance materials in career education, business studies, computer technology, home economics and industrial arts for the purpose of preparing students for modern workplace entry.

Account 240 - Teaching Supplies

Actual expenditures in this account for 1990-91, which provides basic materials and supplies such as paper, chalk, pencils, crayons, tests and other printed materials and workbooks, were $2,318,484 out of $3,279,759 budgeted.

The District contends that the $3,842,444 budgeted for 1991-92 includes the following new items:

a.	$116,000	for inflation
b.	$200,000	Early Warning Tests
c.	$200,000	Math Supplies to prepare for HSPT
d.	$100,000	Computer Software
e.	$750,000	Materials and supplies to accompany new textbooks and for music, visual and performing arts, science, health, gifted and talented and alternative education
f.	$165,000	purchase of new standardized test
g.	$ 50,000	purchase of supplies for pre-K (5 classes).

The District contends that reducing this account would deprive children of basic materials necessary to give them a full opportunity to learn.

Account 250 - Other Instructional Expenses

The District argues that the amount actually expended in 1990-91 for 12 months, $777,776, is greater than the expenditure level indicated by the City in its Petition. The District contends that the amount budgeted in this account for 1991-92 is $283,441 greater than the actual expenditures in 1990-91 of which $180,000 is intended for staff development activities in all subject areas and $138,000 allocated for Child Study Team expenses necessary to carry out their responsibilities to review placements and educational improvement plans.

Thus, the District contends the increase is warranted.

Account 260 - Purchased Professional/Technical Education Services

These funds are for the purpose of hiring consultants to train staff and parents to implement the Site-based Management pilot program in eight schools. The $50,000 budgeted in this account is to cover the cost of $6,000 at each of the eight schools involved in the pilot with an additional $2,000 earmarked for training materials.

The specialized nature of this project cannot be conducted by the District's own staff.

Account 310 Salaries - Attendance

The District charges the City with understating the actual expenditures in this account for 1990-91 possibly due to a failure to consider expenditures for attendance counselors for bilingual and compensatory education programs. The District contends that actual expenditures in the 310 Account for 1990-91 were $572,328 which was above the $564,208 budgeted during that year.

The District argues that the amount budgeted for 1991-92 represents only a 3.5% increase over 1990-91 without any decrease in the number of positions, thus being barely enough to maintain these positions which the District believes are essential.

Account 410 - Health Salaries

The District points out the City's underestimation of actual expenditures in this account was due to failure to recognize that amount encumbered for summer payments through August 1991. The District contends that the actual total of expenditures for the entire year was $1,892,638 which it acknowledges as being short of the $2,185,815 budgeted in this account.

The District attributes the difference between the amount budgeted and the amount expended to vacancies in eight budgeted positions during the 1990-91 school year. The District contends that its appropriated amount $2,336,539 for 1991-92 was calculated based upon the actual salaries of the full complement of nurses plus a 5% raise and the cost of three new positions: one school physician, one occupational therapist and one physical therapist.

The physician is projected as being needed to provide medical examinations and referring students for treatment in an environment in which student needs are growing in volume and complexity. The other two positions are justified by the District as being necessary to reduce the costs of hiring independent contractors to perform the services required by handicapped pupils.

Account 420 - Other Expenses for Health

The District disputes the allegations of the City in its Petition that funds in this account went unexpended in 1990-91. Actual expenditures, it contends, were $281,534 more than the $143,000 budgeted.

The District points out that of the $418,142 budgeted in 1991-92, $200,000 is for health clinics at Snyder and Dickinson High Schools which are operated in conjunction with the Jersey City Medical Center which charges for its services. Part of the $200,000 will be used to defray the costs of services billed to students who have no health insurance. The remainder is to pay the salary of a full-time Substance Abuse Counselor for the two clinics. Excluding the $200,000 for the purposes outlined above, the District argues that its remaining amount would be less than actually spent in 1990-91.

Account 430 - Consultants

The District argues that the $104,500 budgeted in this account is for purposes of hiring the services of neurologists, psychiatrists and ophthalmologists on a consulting basis. These specialists are required to provide services to educationally handicapped students.

The District contends that the specialized services required in this area are required by law and are outside the expertise and competency of the three new positions being added.

Account 520 - Contracted Services, Transportation

The District disputes the contention of the City that it has had a history of overbudgeting in this account. The District contends that its actual expenditures for 1990-91 were $5,954,792 which is very close to the $6,035,243 budgeted for that year.

The District argues that since the services involved in this account are subject to the public bidding process it has no control over prices. For the 1991-92 school year the District contends that it budgeted a 10.9% increase over 1990-91 actual expenditures to anticipate increased costs arising from the public bidding process. The District cites the fact that the number of students requiring transportation in 1991-92 is expected to increase to 3,150 as opposed to the 2,700 transported in 1990-91, a 17% increase. It further argues that the 10.9% increase budgeted may prove to be inadequate.

Account 530 - Replacement of Vehicles

The District admits that it expended only $475 in 1990-91 out of a total amount budgeted of $35,000. The District contends that its decision not to expend the amount budgeted on a diesel fueled bus was based upon its finding that the amount saved in diesel fuel was not sufficient to warrant the expenditure for a new bus.

The $36,252 budgeted for 1991-92, argues the District, is consistent with its approval of expending funds only where genuinely needed. In this instance, the District contends that there is a current need for two mini-vans to transport students to field trips and academic competitions. The purchase of the vans would reduce costs by precluding the necessity of hiring the services of contractors.

Account 550 - Other Transportation Expenses

The District admits that it only expended $4,025 out of the $13,775 budgeted in 1990-91. It does, however, argue that past years' experience cannot be used as a guide for future expenditures since repairs to vehicles are essential for safety purposes and it must guard against extraordinary expenses particularly since the District's fleet includes vehicles dating to 1984.

It argues that the $14,980 budgeted in this account represents only a 8.75% increase over 1990-91 and well within the 9% budget cap permitted by the state.

Account 640 - Utilities

The District points out that actual expenditures in this account for 1990-91 were $3,104,128 which is slightly above the amount of $3,081,200 budgeted. Since the amount budgeted for 1991-92 represents an increase of only 2.76% over 1990-91 actual expenditures and only a 3.53% increase over the amount budgeted for 1990-91, the District argues that such a reasonable increase cannot be reduced and remain prudent.

Account 650 - Operational Supplies

The District contends that the City's objections in this account are based upon a review of expenditures over 11 months and do not take into account amounts encumbered for expenses not paid as of May 31, 1991.

The District contends that actual expenditures in 1990-91 were $488,334, an amount actually in excess of the $437,303 budgeted. It further points out that the 1991-92 amount budgeted is 6.95% lower than actual 1990-91 expenditures.

The District points out that despite the inaccuracy of the City's figures on actual expenditures in 1990-91, the City does acknowledge the reasonableness of a 6% increase over 1990-91 actual expenditures and since its 1991-92 budgeted amount is actually less than 1990-91 expenditures, no reduction is justified without impairing the District's ability to keep its schools clean.

Account 710 - Maintenance Salaries

The District argues that its failure to expend the entire amount budgeted in 1990-91 in this account is attributable to six vacancies which it experienced in 1990-91. It contends that despite reducing its number of positions in this area from 99 to 96, a reduction in expenditures in this account cannot be made without adversely affecting its ability to pay its carpenters, electricians, mechanics, painters, plumbers and laborers. The District claims that the amount budgeted for 1991-92 is based upon the actual salaries of the 96 employees plus a 6% increase provided for in its negotiated agreement with AFSCME for 1991-92.

Account 730 - Purchase of Instructional Equipment

While it acknowledges that the amount expended in this account for 1990-91 ($1,226,721) was substantially less than budgeted for that year ($2,146,316), the District argues that its budgeted amount for 1991-92 is lower than the 1990-91 budgeted amount and only $203,650 more than 1990-91 actual expenditures.

The District contends that the vast amount of the funds budgeted for 1991-92 is for computers both for improving district operations and enhancing student opportunities. The District contends the computers will be used to teach computer literacy, business operations and to enrich accelerated courses. Computers will also be purchased for modernization of the District's payroll system ($150,000), a new security system ($249,680) and for a new system of student accounting and scheduling ($150,000).

The District contends that the above-cited expenditures are above and beyond the normal cost of equipment replacement. The District argues that the expenditures indicated are necessary to modernize the District's operations and to enable Jersey City students to obtain familiarity with computers and their operation in the field.

Account 810 - Employee Retirement Contributions

This account covers the employer's share of the employee retirement systems and Social Security. The 1991-92 budgeted amount in this account is $4,996,397, a 13.8% increase over total actual expenditures of $4,390,152 in 1990-91. The District contends that spending in this account fluctuates every year depending upon a variety of factors. The District points out that it has frequently received retroactive bills due to adjustments made by the Division of Pensions during or after the close of the year. As an example of such retroactive adjustments, the District cites a $301,221 adjustment applied retroactively for the 1988 school year, a copy of which it submits as Exhibit 1 of its Answer. The District argues that while it has received no notice of retroactive bills for 1989 and 1990, it believes it probable that such bills might be received and therefore the budgeted amount for 1991-92 includes $300,000 for each of those two years as a contingency against such an adjustment.

Account 820 - Insurance

The District argues that the City's position relative to this cut is inexplicable since it is based upon expenditures for only 11 months. It is the District's position that its expenditures for insurance in 1990-91 amounted to $16,484,520 which is more than $2.5 million above what had been budgeted.

The amount budgeted in 1991-92 is 14% over 1990-91 actual expenditures. It is the District's contention that health insurance will increase in 1991-92 by 27.8% and despite the City's protestation the increase is based upon receipt of notification of such increase from the State Health Benefits Program. (See Exhibit 2 of the District's Answer.)

While agreeing with the City as to the unfortunate nature of such increases, the District maintains that such costs are beyond its ability to control.

The District also responds to the City's contention that its estimate as to judgments is excessive by pointing out that a summary of its potential liability is $4.6 million exclusive of workers' compensation claims.

Account 830 - Rent

The District contends that its budgeted amount for 1991-92 of $2,700,000 is necessary to cover rental increases. In response to the City's questioning of the need for rental space in an era of declining enrollment, the District points out that the predominant source for its rental needs are three school sites (P.S. #42, P.S. #17 Annex and Academic High School) which have been in operation for years. The District argues that a further source for rental expenditures is the rent for the District's administrative offices.

Account 870 - Tuition

The amount of expenditures in 1990-91 for tuition for out-of-district placement of special education students was $6,716,869 out of a budgeted amount of $7,077,669. The District argues that the $9,654,693 budgeted in this account for 1991-92 is predicated upon tuition increases in effect for 271 special education placements out-of-district amounting to $6,483,891. (See pages 104 to 106 of the District Budget.) Additionally, the District contends it has received a bill for payment of $3,170,802 in 1991-92 for placement of Jersey City children in State facilities. (See Exhibit 4 of District's Answer.) These costs, it is argued, leave no room for reduction.

Revenues - Fund Balance

The District acknowledges that it had a fund balance of $17,630,855 at the conclusion of the 1989-90 school as audited. It argues, however, that it appropriated $7 million of that amount into the 1990-91 budget and an additional $7 million to offset a cut of that size in the tax levy imposed by the Department of Community Affairs. The District argues that $1,684,443 is restricted for use in the Regional Day School and special schools for adult education. A further appropriation of $1 million, it is contended, is to be made to offset cost of operating expenditures in 1990-91.

The District contends that its free fund balance for 1990-91 will be $946,412 and not the $8.6 million contended by the City. The City's estimate, it is argued, is based upon a belief that there will be excess revenues, unexpended budget items and cancelled orders. The District denies such likelihood and instead points out that it will have to appropriate $1 million to meet 1990-91 expenses as indicated above.

The District further points out that it anticipates little surplus from cancelled orders and even if such amount as estimated by the City were achieved, it would still leave the District with a fund balance of only $1,946,412. This amounts to less than 1% of the District's current expense budget, an amount considerably lower than the estimated 3% necessary.

The District further points out that the City upon application to the Department of Community Affairs was successful in having the City's local school tax levy reduced by $11 million dollars. Despite recognition of this tax levy reduction, the City requests a reduction in the District's fund balance knowing that any such balance will be wiped out by the $11 million cut in local tax revenues. The District argues that the City's request for an appropriation of $4.5 million is "...frivolous [and] lacking in good faith."

The District's final general agreement raised by way of an Affirmative Defense is that the Quality Education Act, P.L. 1991, c. 62, section 21 requires a "Special Needs District" to meet its Local Fair Share. This minimum tax levy for Jersey City has been calculated by the Department of Education to be $76,780,872 for 1991-92. Thus, it is the District's argument that any reductions imposed by the Commissioner cannot reduce the tax levy below that level.

III. COMMISSIONER'S DECISION

In rendering his determination in this matter the Commissioner takes note of the respective legal arguments of the parties as set forth in their position statements. He notes the argument put forth by the City that the State-operated School District of Jersey City has overestimated its expenditures in the 1991-92 budget by approximately $11.5 million and has failed to appropriate $4.5 million dollars from its free balance which it estimates at $8.6 million.

In making such request of the Commissioner, the City relies upon a comparison of historical spending with the spending allocations for the 1991-92 school year. While acknowledging that increases in spending in and of themselves should not be a basis for reduction, the City argues that expenditure increases should be documented and justified. Further, the City believes its budgetary analysis raised the question of whether the District has encumbered 1990-91 accounts to pay summer salaries and purchase supplies actually payable in fiscal 1991-92. The City takes the position that these accounts should be encumbered in the 1991-92 budget and the unexpended portions of the 1990-91 budget be allowed to lapse into surplus or, in the alternative, the amount of such encumbrances should be deducted from the 1991-92 budget. On the contrary, the City alleges that the District uses such end-of-the-year expenditures to justify higher expenditures for the 1991-92 school year.

The Distirct uses its position statement to present its legal argument that the City as the petitioning party in this matter, not the District, bears the burden of demonstrating that the amounts budgeted are not required to provide a thorough and efficient system of education. This burden, argues the District, must be borne by the City, not only as a procedural matter but because of the District's status as a district requiring state operation for failure to meet its educational obligations to the pupils and citizens of Jersey City.

In addition to pointing out that the Jersey City School District has been determined by the State to have failed in its mission to provide a thorough and efficient system of education, the District likewise points out that it is classified as a Special Needs District pursuant to the New Jersey Supreme Court's Decision in Abbott v. Burke, supra, which requires that such districts increase their budgeted expenditures within the next five school years to reach a level of per pupil expenditures which is equal to the average per pupil expenditures of the most affluent districts. The District points out that pursuant to such decision the Legislature passed the Quality Education Act of 1990, (QEA), supra, which requires the increased expenditures determined by the Court to be necessary to meet the state constitutional mandate of providing a thorough and efficient system of education.

The District argues that in evaluating the City's proposed budgeting reductions in this case the Commissioner should consider that the District is required to increase its expenditures to address the educational disadvantages arising from years of educational neglect. Such requirement, in the District's view, negates the City's reliance upon previous patterns of expenditures.

Notwithstanding its obligations under law to increase its expenditure level, the District argues that its total budget for 1991-92 has increased by only 2.02% and its J-1 Current Expense budget has increased by only 4.55% over the comparable J-1 budget of 1990-91. The District further argues that the amendments to the QEA have significantly reduced the state aid which it had anticipated and required it to severely reduce personnel from its 1990-91 level.

The Commissioner notes that the City, in rebuttal to the District's position, contests the District's assertion that it bears the burden of proof in this matter. Instead, it urges the Commissioner to conduct an independent review of the necessity for the line item expenditures which the City has challenged. In so doing, the City calls to the Commissioner's attention the New Jersey Supreme Court's admonishments in Board of Education of East Brunswick v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of the Township of Deptford v. Mayor and Council of Township of Deptford, 116 N.J. 305 (1989) that deference be given to the municipality if the municipality's determinations do not override or jeopardize the right to a thorough and efficient system of education.

The City argues that no deference is due the decisions of the State-operated School District but that such status requires even closer scrutiny by the Commissioner since there exists no citizen control over the expenditures of such a district in that there is neither a true electoral or appointed board nor an opportunity for the voters to pass on the budget either by direct vote or through their elected representatives. It further argues that the mere finding of deficiency on the part of the Jersey City School District does not justify unsubstantiated budget increases.

The City also challenges the District's interpretation of Abbott v. Burke, supra, in that the City argues that Abbott's purpose was to redirect financial resources for wealthy districts to special needs districts where municipal overburden prevented those districts from raising sufficient funds to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. In defense of this position, the City points out that the plaintiffs in Abbott have returned to court alleging that the QEA as amended has not sufficiently reallocated funding from wealthy districts to special needs districts to release the overburden on the municipal tax levies.

The City argues that not only does Abbott mandate increases in special needs district appropriation for education, it also mandates the State of New Jersey provide the financing that Jersey City and its sister special needs districts cannot afford.

Finally, the Commissioner takes note of the final summations presented by the parties. The District's final summation alleges the ineffectiveness of citing previous years' expenditures as a basis of judging the relevancy of 1991-92 budgetary requests since the very reason for the State takeover of the Jersey City School District was predicated upon the deficiencies of the District's operation under its previous board of education and administration.

The District argues that the City's analysis is founded upon incomplete financial data which is presently available in the form of 1990-91 audit report and its failure to recognize the need for additional expenditures to improve the Jersey City school system.

The District asserts that any reference to 1990-91 expenditure figures must bear in mind that revenues to support the J-1 Current Expense budget fell short as indicated by Exhibit A-3 of the audit report and that $3.8 million dollars in budgeted expenditures were withheld to avert a deficit.

The District argues that under the amended QEA both the amount of budgeted expenditures, as well as state funding, were to increase for special needs districts while local revenues were, pursuant to P.L. 1991, c. 62, section 21, to be maintained at a minimum at the levels of 1990-91 funding. The District argues, however, that despite a $28.5 million increase in state funding, half of such increase was negated by a need to appropriate $14 million from free balance to offset revenue losses imposed by reduction of the 1990-91 tax levy originally established by the State Superintendent at $87,993,944 but actually totaling only

$76,287,907 as a result of a decision of the Department of Community Affairs and property re-evaluation appeal. (See 1991-92 Budget, at p. 114.)

Prior to rendering his decision on a line-item-by-line-item basis, the Commissioner finds it necessary to dispose of the legal arguments raised by the parties in this matter. Initially, the Commissioner notes that the Legislature has vested in the State Superintendent of a State-operated School District the authority to certify a tax levy deemed necessary to the provision of a thorough and efficient system of education. The Legislature has also vested the right to appeal such determination of the State Superintendent with the municipal authorities. Thus, the Commissioner finds and determines that the City in this matter bears the burden of proof that the certification of the State Superintendent is in excess of that required to provide for a thorough and efficient system of education. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a)

N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a) further requires that the Commissioner shall determine the amount necessary for the district to provide a thorough and efficient educational program to its students; thus, the focus of the Commissioner's review in this budget appeal is on determining what amount of funds must be provided for the District to meet the educational needs of its students. This determination is made independent of any action which may have been taken by the Director of the Division of Local Government Services who by law has been granted the authority to review, determine and certify the amount of revenues which can be raised locally to support the budget of the State-operated school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(b) and (c) Given the provisions of this statute, it is the Director who examines and determines municipal tax burden for state-operated school districts, while the Commissioner focuses on the amount of local revenues necessary for a thorough and efficient education.

Very importantly in regard to this bifurcation of responsibility with respect to local revenues in state-operated school districts, the Legislature itself has provided a mechanism in law which dictates what must occur if there is a difference between what the Commissioner determines to be the amount of local revenues necessary for a thorough and efficient education and the amount of revenues the Director has certified the municipality can raise locally to support the District's budget. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(c) reads in pertinent part:

> Any difference between the amount which the director certifies and the total amount of local revenues required by the budget approved by the Commissioner shall be paid by the State in the fiscal year in which the expenditures are made, subject to the availability of appropriations.

Further, while the Commissioner agrees with the urging of the City that no special deference should be accorded the actions of state-operated school districts and that its individual line item expenditures should be subject to independent analysis, he cannot escape considering the fact that the State-operated School District of Jersey City, in addition to its failing status, is also a Special Needs District under the provisions of QEA which both the Supreme Court and our Legislature have mandated be provided with additional resources to enable it to provide its pupils with similar educational opportunities as those afforded to pupils in the state's most affluent districts.

Lastly, the Commissioner determines that he must be guided by the District's overall final financial status as of June 30, 1991 as determined by the official statutorily required audit. In so concluding, the Commissioner notes that possible underexpenditure from the amount budgeted in any single account becomes less meaningful when one recognizes that the final audit as indicated in Exhibit A-3 of such audit reveals that anticipated revenues for 1990-91 fell short by approximately $3.9 million and the total district general fund free balance was only $1,854,454. Therefore, in light of the foregoing free balance situation, the City's recommendation that the tax levy be reduced by way of a $4.5 million appropriation from free balance is rejected. Further, the Commissioner must conclude that such a precarious free balance situation for a school district the size of Jersey City with a total budget of $241,326,789 likewise must of necessity preclude too stringent a standard when reviewing individual line items. In so concluding, the Commissioner notes that no budget or proposed line item appropriation within a budget can be regarded as being an iron-clad guarantee as to expenditure. Were it to be so regarded, the Legislature in its wisdom would not permit transfer of funds from one account to another. The final analysis in determining whether a district has deliberately overbudgeted must be the bottom line and the relationship between overall appropriations and overall expenditures.

Account 130 - Other Administrative Expenses

$882,349	$105,000	$777,349

The Commissioner notes that the final level of expenditure in 1990-91 in this account was $809,089 out of $861,913 budgeted. The District's contention that its 1991-92 budgeted amount includes $200,000 for upgrading its personnel records system by computerizing them, as well as an anticipated increase for inflation, appears reasonable particularly in light of the fact that such computerization will not only increase efficiency over handling entirely by hand but will result in a reduction of employees in the personnel office. Further, a reduction of $105,000 as proposed by the City would reduce this account below that of the actual expenditure level of 1990-91. A disparity of $52,824 between actual expenditures and the amount budgeted in this account hardly justifies a $105,000 reduction. The recommendation of the City is denied.

Account 211 - Principals' Salaries

$6,375,319	$560,000	$5,815,319

In reviewing the arguments of the parties presented relative to this account, the Commissioner finds correct the City's contention that summer salaries for principals should not be encumbered in the 1990-91 salary accounts but should rightfully be attributed to the 1991-92 fiscal year when such salaries are earned. Therefore, the Commissioner determines that the 1991-92 principals' salaries account may be reduced by $560,000.

Account 212 - Supervisors' Salaries

$3,187,176	$700,000	$2,487,176

The Commissioner notes that the reduction recommended by the City would reduce the monies available for supervisors' salaries to less than the $2,904,040 which the audit indicates was actually expended. If one were to multiply the aforesaid amount by a minimal 5% raise as indicated by the District and add the additional costs of $90,000 for summer work, as well as the $250,00 contemplated for the creation of Department Chairpersons' positions, the amount required exceeds the $3,187,176 budgeted. Therefore, the Commissioner determines the amount budgeted to be reasonable and rejects the City's recommended reduction.

Account 214 - Other Instructional Salaries

$10,031,536	$1,600,000	$8,431,536

The Commissioner finds unpersuasive the District's argument explaining the difference between the 1990-91 budget allocation and expenditures as being partially attributable to 16 vacancies in librarian and counselors' positions. He agrees with the City that if such positions were necessary they should have been filled. The Commissioner does, however, accept as valid the need to assume the cost of compensation for Child Study Team members working during summer months when such costs had previously been met through a grant and the need to provide replacements for persons on paid sabbatical leaves.

In arriving at such a conclusion, the Commissioner finds it difficult to believe that a $1.5 million discrepancy between appropriations and expenditures can be accounted for by 16 unfilled positions. At the same time, the Commissioner is sensitive to the needs of a district such as Jersey City to have full complement of librarians and guidance counselors to meet the special needs of urban children and he therefore will defer to the District's judgment relative to the requirement for the 16 positions unfilled during 1990-91. In so concluding, however, the Commissioner deems a $600,000 reduction as being capable of being sustained without injury to the District's plans in this area.

Account 215 - Secretarial Salaries

$3,596,066	$270,000	$3,326,066

Having carefully considered the actual expenditures in 1990-91 for secretarial salaries ($3,194,312) and a 5% increase anticipated upon conclusion of the negotiations for a new contract taken against the actual expenditures for 1990-91, the Commissioner finds the amount budgeted for 1991-92 a reasonable estimate if one includes five new positions as contemplated by the District. In reviewing the District's rationale for such positions, the Commissioner finds the need justified by the importance of freeing the vice principals from the burden of paperwork so that they are able to spend more time in supervising student behavior. The City's recommended reduction is rejected.

Account 216 - Other Salaries

$5,278,557	$500,000	$4,778,557

The District's argument that the disparity between the budgeted amount in 1990-91 and actual expenditures was due to eight vacancies is likewise unpersuasive since these vacancies were, if filled, not sufficient to account for a disparity of $135,360 between the budgeted amount and the amount expended. On the other hand, the City's recommended reduction of $500,000 would result in a smaller amount than actually expended in 1990-91. Therefore presuming a 5% increase upon the amount actually expended in 1990-91 ($5,136,426) and an average salary of $15,000 for eight additional aides positions unfilled last year ($120,000) equals potential expenditure of $5,256,426. Such figure being close enough to the amount budgeted to preclude reduction of the amount budgeted in this account for 1991-92, the City's recommended reduction is rejected.

Account 220 - Textbooks

$1,648,379	$475,000	$1,173,379

The Commissioner notes that the actual expenditure for textbooks in 1990-91 was only $994,105 out of $2,275,668 budgeted. He also notes the District's explanation for failure to expend the full amount budgeted is based upon a delay in completing the project of curriculum updating. Had the overbudgeting in 1990-91 resulted in a significant surplus, the requested reduction by the City would be entirely reasonable. Under the present circumstances with the District's free balance at such a precariously low status as indicated in its annual audit, the amount budgeted for textbooks in 1991-92 appears to be reasonable given the unquestioned need of the system to upgrade its curriculum and ensure uniformity of textbooks for all schools and all grade levels. The City's recommended reduction is denied.

Account 230 - Library Books and A/V Materials

$521,686	$300,000	$221,686

Expenditures for 1990-91 were almost $300,000 less than the amount budgeted which is precisely the amount by which the City seeks to reduce this account. Since the District seeks to expend much less in 1991-92 than the amount budgeted in 1990-91, a reduction of the size requested by the City would allow the District only $221,686 to upgrade its audio visual and library resources, an amount $174,363 less than actually expended in 1990-91. Clearly such a reduction would prevent the District from carrying out its ambitious plan for expanding its library and media resources. Under the circumstances, the $125,637 increase over 1990-91 expenditures does not appear unreasonable. The Commissioner therefore rejects the City's recommended reduction.

Account 240 - Teaching Supplies

$3,842,444	$560,000	$3,282,444

The Commissioner notes the significant disparity in the amount expended in 1990-91, $2,318,623, and the amount budgeted $3,279,759. Presuming the amount of $2,318,623 as expended in 1990-91 to be a reasonable base for normal replacement of consumable teaching supplies, the plans for carrying out the improvements detailed in the District's position statement and summary account for $1,381,000 for a combined total expenditure of approximately $3.7 million. The Commissioner therefore determines that a reduction of $100,000 in this account can be effectuated without any damage to the District's ability to provide the supplies required to meet its responsibilities.

Account 250 - Other Instructional Expenses

$1,061,217	$550,000	$511,217

The Commissioner notes that a reduction of $550,000 as prepared by the City would reduce the amount available to the District by more than $250,000 less than actually expended in 1990-91. Such a reduction in a district desperately in need of improvement and opportunity for its students would be unconscionable. The Commissioner therefore rejects the proposed reduction of $550,000 but does approve a reduction of $50,000.

Account 260 - Purchased Professional/Technical Services

$50,000	$50,000	$0

Notwithstanding the failure of the District to expend any of the $11,000 budgeted in this account in 1990-91, the $50,000 budgeted for training principals, teachers and parents in how to implement a process of site-based management is an essential expenditure in a District where dramatic initiatives are required to involve the community in the improvement of the educational process. The reduction recommended by the City is rejected.

Account 310 - Salaries - Attendance

$592,418	$90,000	$502,418

Given the fact that there has been no decrease in the number of positions in this account and the expenditures for 1990-91 exceeded the amount budgeted, the City has failed to advance any reasonable argument as to why any reduction should be required. The City's recommendation is rejected.

Account 410 - Health Salaries

$2,336,539	$475,000	$1,861,539

The Commissioner notes that the actual expenditures for 1990-91 were $290,712 less than the amount budgeted. The District seeks to account for this discrepancy by indicating the existence of eight vacancies which they were unable to fill. It further indicates its intention to create and fill three new positions; one physician, one occupational therapist and one physical therapist.

Given the circumstances described by the District and the significant need in an urban special needs district for sufficient support staff in the area of providing health care for students, the budget allocations for the 1991-92 school year do not appear to be excessive. Since the City has advanced no convincing argument to justify its recommended reduction, the Commissioner rejects such reduction.

Account 420 - Other Expenses for Health

$418,142	$175,000	$243,142

The Commissioner notes that expenditures in this account for 1990-91 even excluding the $80,000 for consultants now budgeted in Account 430 were significantly higher than the amount budgeted. Given the increase of $200,000 required to fund two new school-based clinics in Dickinson and Snyder High Schools, the budgeting increase provided by the District is reasonable. The Commissioner finds no merit in the City's attempt to reduce this account through its analysis of spending in previous years. There exists no valid argument that the previous board's efforts in this area were sufficient nor can the need for on-site health care clinics be denied in the atmosphere in which urban school districts are required to function. The City's recommended reduction is rejected.

Account 430 - Consultants

$104,500	$55,000	$49,500

Given the reason for the amount budgeted in this account, namely the employment of consultants in the fields of neurology, psychiatry and ophthalmology to provide special education services, and the fact that such services were obtained in 1990-91 for $80,000 as indicated in Account 420, a $20,000 reduction in this account appears justified.

Account 520 - Contracted Services

$6,606,550	$1,100,000	$5,506,550

The 1990-91 audited expenditures in this account show expenditures exceeding the budgeted amount by over $100,000. (See District's Final Summary, at p. 19.) Given the unchallenged increase of the number of students requiring transportation from 2,700 to 3,150 and the fact that the increase projected over last year's expenditures is approximately 7%, the Commissioner holds that the City has failed to meet its burden that the amount budgeted in this account can be reduced without impairing the District's ability to meet its obligations. The recommended reduction is rejected.

Account 530 - Replacement of Vehicles

$36,252	$36,252	$0

The City has provided convincing argument that the District has over the years failed to utilize the amounts budgeted in this account for the purposes stated. The Commissioner approves a reduction of $36,252 in this account.

Account 550 - Other Transportation Expenses

1991-92 Budgeted	Proposed Reduction	Revised Amount
$14,980	$9,000	$5,980

Based upon the record of previous expenditures in this account, the Commissioner finds that the City has provided a reasonable basis for the reduction requested. The Commissioner grants the reduction of $9,000 recommended by the City.

Account 640 - Utilities

The City has withdrawn its recommended reduction in this account.

Account 650 - Operational Supplies

$454,402	$35,000	$419,402

Based upon actual expenditures which exceeded the amount budgeted as indicated by the District's year-end official audit, the Commissioner finds that the City has failed to meet its burden of demonstrating overbudgeting. The Commissioner rejects the recommended reduction.

Account 710 - Maintenance Salaries

$3,823,520	$200,000	$3,623,520

Upon examination of the actual expenditures in this account for 1991-92 and considering the newly completed 6% salary contractual agreement with the union representing the maintenance workers, the Commissioner concludes that the $200,000 reduction recommended by the City can be sustained without impairing the District's ability to provide a cushion for overtime work. Multiplying the actual expenditures for 1990-91 times the negotiated 6% increase, which includes the three positions eliminated by the District, the resultant amount available is $3,480,498 which is still less than the amount available to the District after subtracting the $200,000 reduction. The Commissioner therefore approves the reduction of $200,00 imposed by the City in this account.

Account 730 - Purchase of Instructional Equipment

$1,430,371	$200,000	$1,230,371

While noting the disparity between the amount budgeted in 1990-91 ($2,146,316) and the amount actually spent as indicated by the District's audit ($1,226,728), the Commissioner does find the District's explanation plausible for a reduction of orders in this account because of a potential deficit indicated by the final audit. Under the circumstances and considering that the budgeted amount for 1991-92 is considerably less than that for 1990-91 and close to actual expenditures in that year, the Commissioner finds no basis for depriving the District of the opportunity to purchase computers for purposes of upgrading its instruction in that vital area. The City's recommended reduction is rejected.

Account 810 - Employee Retirement Contributions

$4,996,397	$600,000	$4,396,397

The Commissioner finds the reasoning of the District to be persuasive regarding the necessity for maintaining a reserve in this account to guard against unanticipated adjustments as have occurred in the past. A reduction of the size recommended by the City would leave the District in a very precarious position given the absence of any significant free balance. The recommended reduction is rejected.

Account 820 - Insurance

$18,794,182	$950,000	$17,844,182

A review of 1990-91 expenditures in this account reveals that the amount spent as indicated by the District's annual audit was more than $2.5 million greater than the amount budgeted. This coupled with a $3.3 million (27.8%) increase in medical insurance costs as documented by Exhibit 2 in the District's Answer more than justifies the amount budgeted for 1991-92. To impose a $950,000 reduction as recommended by the City would place the District in a precarious financial position. The recommended reduction in this account is rejected.

Account 830 - Rent

$2,700,000	$500,000	$2,200,000

While the Commissioner finds no merit in the City's argument that required rental space can be replaced by District-owned facilities given the fact that the rentals involved are for three separate school facilities and the District central office. Notwithstanding the fact that a rental increase is anticipated for central office facilities, the approximate $767,000 increase over the 1990-91 expended amount ($1,932,813) seems excessive in light of past years' expenditures. The Commissioner therefore directs a reduction in this account of $200,000 which should enable the District to absorb the rental increases anticipated without overbudgeting.

Account 870 - Tuition

$9,654,693	$1,500,000	$8,154,693

Based upon the number of pupils to be placed out of the district in special education classes as indicated on pages 104 and 106 of the Budget and the bill presented for payment for children placed in State facilities (Exhibit 4 of the District's Answer), the need for the total amount budgeted in this account has been well documented. The City offers no justification for its recommended reduction other than what it perceives to be a historic decline in the number of pupils requiring placement. Consequently, the City's recommended reduction in this account is rejected.

Revenues - Fund Balance

The Commissioner has already dealt with this recommended reduction of $4.5 million in the tax levy by the City which had anticipated an $8.6 million unappropriated free balance. Since the audit has demonstrated no such surplus exists, the Commissioner has earlier rejected the City's recommendation.

Summary of Reductions Approved by the Commissioner

Account			Reduction
211	-	Principals' Salaries	$ 560,000
214	-	Other Instructional Salaries	600,000
240	-	Teaching Supplies	100,000
250	-	Other Instructional Expenses	50,000
430	-	Consultants	20,000
530	-	Replacement of Vehicles	36,252
550	-	Other Transportation Expenses	9,000
710	-	Maintenance Salaries	200,000
830	-	Rent	200,000
		TOTAL	$1,775,252

In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner finds and determines that for the 1991-92 school year the Jersey City Public School District is in need of $77,486,791 in local revenues for Current Expense purposes in order to provide a thorough and efficient system of education. In reaching such determination, the Commissioner reiterates that N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(c) provides that "[a]ny difference between the amount which the director certifies and the total amount of local revenues required by the budget approved by the commissioner shall be paid by the State in the fiscal year in which the expenditures are made, subject to availability of appropriations."

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Carol Zylbert, Esq., for Petitioner

Charlotte Kitler, Esq., for Respondent

This matter was opened before the Commissioner by way of a filing of Notice of Motion for Stay by respondent State-operated School District of the City of Jersey City seeking a stay of the budget reductions set forth in the Commissioner's decision rendered on February 6, 1992 which is currently pending on appeal before the State Board of Education, claiming error and inconsistencies in said decision since the Commissioner recognized that the District experienced a $3.8 million shortfall in revenues and could not expend all of its 1990-91 monies. Petitioner, City of Jersey City, submitted its affidavit opposing the stay on February 24, 1992.

The basis for the request for stay by respondent is set forth in an affidavit by the Superintendent of the State-operated School District, Dr. Elena Scambio. The superintendent avers, inter alia, that because the $1,775,252 in reductions effectuated by the Commissioner would come mid-year, they would have to be compressed over the short time span remaining in the fiscal year and the effect of initiating budget reductions at this time would have an adverse impact upon direct services to students.

The superintendent further avers that the Commissioner's decision was released after the State Legislature had passed a supplementary appropriation in January 1992 to provide revenues to the District cut by the Department of Community Affairs and, thus, appears contradictory and misleading. Moreover, the superintendent avers that the District's financial condition, including its free balance, is extremely weak as recognized in the Commissioner's decision.

The basis for the City's opposition to the stay is set forth in an affidavit by its Assistant Director of Finance, Paul Soyka, which reads in pertinent part:

> 3. While it is true that this reduction occurred in the middle of the school year, the District was aware of the pendency of the City's petition. The City petitioned for a reduction in the District's 1990-91 budget in May of 1990, and the Commissioner's decision was not received until December 1990. The District should reasonably have anticipated that portions of its 1991-92 budget might have been reduced at mid-year. Moreover, the City's analysis of past spending patterns and of proposed staffing levels demonstrated that the District could not justify large spending increases in certain accounts. The information provided by the District did not show that the District had actual plans to spend those sums.
> 4. The District's receipt of $11 million in state aid appropriated in January 1992 should greatly improve its financial condition.
> 5. Because the school year is half over, if the District does not implement the budget cuts recommended by the City and approved by the > Commissioner of Education, the City will be irreparably damaged. I have reason to believe that any unspent funds remaining at the end of the 1991-92 school year will be encumbered during the last month of the year for expenditures properly chargeable to 1992-93. Large amounts of funds were encumbered during the month of June 1991. For this reason, to grant the District a stay at this time will be to deny any relief to the City.

> 6. The City of Jersey City has filed a cross-appeal in this matter. The City asks that the entire amount of its proposed budget reductions be implemented, less $200,000. The City's proposed reductions were the product of many hours of analysis of data provided by the District. Based on current staffing levels and historical spending patterns, I believe that the City's proposed reductions are fully justified, and that no harm to the students will result.

The total proposed current expense and capital outlay budget for 1991-92 in the State-operated School District of Jersey City was $241,326,789. Of that, $221,667,796 was for current expense purposes. The amount by which the budget was reduced in the Commissioner's decision, $1,775,252, represents .7% of the total budget and .8% of the current expense budget.

The governing body sought reduction to the current expense budget in the amount of $16,295,252. The Commissioner's decision denied $14,520,000 of the reductions sought by the governing body which represents denial of 89% of the reductions requested.

The District has contended that the $1.7 million reduction is inconsistent with the fact that the Legislature restored $11 million by which the Department of Community Affairs reduced the tax burden of the City. It should be noted that the $11 million allocation by the Legislature has no bearing whatsoever on what the appropriate school budget should be since the Department of Community Affairs does not review the budget for adequacy, but rather examines the requested tax levy to determine the ability of the City of Jersey City to bear the tax burden set by the superintendent of the state-operated school district. The matter of the adequacy of the budget for a thorough and efficient education lies solely within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52 It must also be borne in mind that notwithstanding that Jersey City is a state-operated school district, it is by law subject to the same standard of review as all other school districts appealing a budget to the Commissioner. Namely, the Commissioner is obligated to review the reductions of the governing body in light of the evidence and supportive documentation submitted by the parties to determine if the governing body has met its burden of proof that the reductions will not jeopardize a thorough and efficient education in the district. Board of Education of East Brunswick v. Township Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966) and Board of Education of the Township of Deptford v. Mayor and Council of Township of Deptford, 116 N.J. 305 (1989)

Because of the District's claims of error and inconsistencies, the Commissioner shall now review the nine accounts reduced in his decision of February 6, 1992 to ascertain if the District has demonstrated a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of an appeal. Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982)

Account 211 - Principals' Salaries

1991-92 Amount Budgeted	Reduction Sought	Amount of Reduction Denied	Amount of Reduction Sustained
$6,375,319	$560,000	$-0-	$560,000

The District allocated $6,375,319 for principals' salaries for the 1991-92 school year which represents the amount needed for the same number of principals as the prior year plus 5%.

The $560,000 in dispute is the amount for the salaries of summer school principals for the summer of 1991. That amount had been encumbered in the 1990-91 budget even though payment thereof occurred during the 1991-92 budget year. Since the District had already encumbered the $560,000 in its 1990-91 budget, the requested reduction to the 1991-92 budget allocation must be sustained.

The appropriation in the account after reduction, $5,815,319, is deemed sufficient as it represents the salaries for the same number of principals as last year, plus 6%, one percent more than the District's allocation was based on. Thus, it is determined that the District has not shown a likelihood of prevailing on an appeal as to this account.

Account 214 - Other Instructional Salaries

$10,031,536	$1,600,000	$1,000,000	$600,000

The City claimed that this account was overbudgeted given that in the 1990-91 school year the District had appropriated $9,723,805 yet expended only $8,215,611, a difference of $1,508,194. Thus, an allocation of $10,031,536 was, according to the City, an excessive increase over actual expenditures from the prior year. The District countered this argument by stating that 16 necessary positions went unfilled during the 1990-91 school year. It further pointed out that it had actually reduced the number of budgeted positions for the 1991-92 school year from 178 to 173. The monies allocated for the 173 positions included the 16 unfilled positions from the 1990-91 school year. The District further argued that the $10,031,536 allocated for 1991-92 represents the money needed for 173 positions, plus 5%.

If you multiply the actual expenditures for 162 positions filled in 1990-91 ($8,215,611) by the 5% increase sought by the District, a total of $8,626,391 is yielded. This amount leaves in the account $1,405,145 for the 11 additional positions budgeted by the District for 1991-92 or $127,740 per position. A $600,000 reduction would still allow $73,195 per position for the newly filled positions.

Based on the above, it is again concluded that a $600,000 reduction from $10,031,536 can certainly be sustained by the District because the amount which remains in the account totals $9,431,536. That level of expenditure can fund:

- The 157 positions (162 minus 5 abolished positions) remaining from last year;
- A 5% increase for those positions; AND
- More than enough monies for the 16 unfilled positions from 1990-91.

It should be noted that the Commissioner's decision clearly acknowledged the importance of the state-operated school district to have the full complement of librarian, guidance and child study team positions it believed necessary.

The decision, thus, deferred to the District's judgment as to the necessity for filling the 16 positions left vacant in 1990-91, notwithstanding the sustaining of a $600,000 reduction out of the $10,031,536 budgeted. It is, therefore, determined the District has failed to demonstrate a likelihood of prevailing on an appeal for this account.

Account 240 - Teaching Supplies

$3,842,444	$560,000	$460,000	$100,000

The City in this account argued overbudgeting, pointing to the discrepancy between the $2,318,484 actually expended in 1990-91 versus the $3,279,759 budgeted for that year. The District never set forth an explanation for the difference between the amount budgeted and expended last year. It did argue that the $3,842,444 budgeted for 1991-92 included $1.6 million in new materials necessary for a thorough and efficient education, plus inflation. (See page 22 of Commissioner's February 6, 1992 decision.)

A review of the arguments of the parties continues to support a reduction of $100,000 in the teaching supply account because such a reduction provides for all new materials sought by the District, including the amount of $116,000 estimated by the District for inflation over and above last year. Even with reducing the $3,842,444 budget allocation by $100,000, the $3,742,444 which remains represents a 61.4% increase over actual expenditures last year. Thus, it is concluded that the District has failed to demonstrate any likelihood of prevailing on an appeal of this account.

Account 250 - Other Instructional Expenses

$1,061,217	$550,000	$500,000	$50,000

The City claimed overbudgeting in this account as exemplified by the District's transfer of $262,166 from that account last year. The District failed to set forth why such transfer was necessary. However, it did argue that it needed $1,061,217 in order to provide for new expenditures for staff development ($180,000) and child study team travel ($138,000).

A review of the record demonstrated that only $778,368 of the $1,040,534 budgeted last year was expended. A $50,000 reduction in this account is still deemed reasonable given that the amount remaining for 1991-92, $1,011,217, represents a 29.9% increase over last year's expenditures. Therefore, it is determined that the District has failed to show a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of an appeal for this account.

Account 430 - Consultants

$104,500	$55,000	$35,000	$20,000

The City claimed that the District planned to spend in 1991-92 more than twice its 1990-91 expenditures for special health consultants. The District contended it needed the amount budgeted for 1991-92 because of the increased costs for the services of neurologists, psychiatrists and ophthalmologists for the evaluation of special education students.

The record did not bear out the City's claim because $80,000 was expended last year out of another account for the services of such specialists. However, the 30% increase requested by the District, i.e., the difference between $104,500 and $80,000, is deemed excessive absent specific data being provided to justify such an increase.

The $4,500 increase contained in the Commissioner's decision represents a 5.6% increase over last year's expenditures which is deemed consistent with the District's own 4.55% increase in current expense from 1990-91 to 1991-92.

The District's own reply brief acknowledges the fact that the $104,500 budgeted for 1991-92 is not for additional services but is for compensating the same number of consultants as in 1990-91 whose services they obtained for $80,000. Also, the 5.6% increase after the reduction is entirely consistent with the 5% increase in compensation afforded to other members of the professional staff in the proposed budget. Thus, it is determined the District has failed to demonstrate a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of an appeal for this account.

Account 530 - Replacement of Vehicles

$36,252	$36,252	$-0-	$36,252

The City claimed that in previous years the District has failed to expend any monies in this account. The record demonstrated that the District expended only $475 out of a $35,000 allocation budgeted last year and that in 1989-90 it also expended only $475 out of a $40,000 allocation despite an $8.6 million surplus that year.

The District sought $36,252 this year to purchase two mini-vans to transport students on field trips and academic competitions.

Given the fact that the District for at least two consecutive years budgeted a like amount as 1991-92 without making the intended purchases and it has failed to provide to the Commissioner any explanation whatsoever as to why it did not expend said monies, it is once again concluded that the City has met its burden of demonstrating the $36,252 is not necessary for a thorough and efficient education.

Merely saying there is a need to purchase two mini-vans does not constitute sufficient basis for overturning the City's requested reduction. Had the District told the Commissioner how many vehicles it owns, their age and condition and its past experience in transporting students for the intended usage, he would be in a far better position to sustain the $36,252 allocated by the District even though it failed to spend the budgeted amounts the past two years. Given that (1) the District made the same assertions of need in the past two years and it failed to expend such monies and (2) no explanation was provided to the Commissioner as to why it did not or could not spend the monies allocated, it is determined that the District has failed to demonstrate a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of its appeal for this account.

Account 550 - Other Transportation Expenses

$14,980	$9,000	$-0-	$9,000

In reviewing the history of expenditures by the District in this account, namely $6,422 in 1989-90, $4,106 in 1990-91, the approximately $6,000 ($5,980) remaining in the account after a $9,000 reduction was deemed to be consistent with previous years expenditures, absent further justification by the District to explain why and how it arrived at its budgeted figure of $14,980.

The City relied upon the past expenditures to demonstrate that the $14,980 is in excess of the District's need. The District argued that the difference between the $14,980 and the $4,106 it expended in the previous year is intended for unforeseen problems as opposed to regular maintenance. Absent a demonstration of unforeseen problems arising in prior years and given the fact that the amount allocated represents an increase of more than 300% over last year's expenditure, rejecting the City's requested reduction was not supportable. The $5,980 which remains in the account represents an increase of 45.6% over last year.

Further, it needs to be pointed out that the $45,252 in reductions made in the two transportation accounts (530 and 550) come from a total transportation budget of more than $6.9 million. Thus, the two reductions are minimal (.6%) and inevitably are absorbable under either expenditures in the transportation area or in the budget as a whole. Therefore, it is determined that the District has failed to demonstrate a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of its appeal to the State Board for this account.

Account 710 - Maintenance Salaries

$3,823,520	$200,000	$-0-	$200,000

The City argued that the District's budget documents indicated a reduction of three positions for 1991-92 (from 99 to 96). Yet, the District allocated 13% over last year's expenditures and transfers had been made from this account.

The District argued that its failure to expend the amount allocated last year was due to six vacancies it did not fill. It agreed it reduced the overall number of positions this year over last year by three. It further claimed the amount budgeted for 1991-92 is based upon the actual salaries of the 96 employees plus 6% provided in the contract negotiated with the union.

Last year the District allocated $3,655,290 and expended $3,283,489 which represents $371,801 less than the amount allocated. To accept the District's argument that this differential represented six unfilled maintenance salaries would have to assume that each of those individuals earned in excess of $60,000 ($61,966) - a conclusion that stretches credulity. Thus, it is once again concluded that a $200,000 reduction can reasonably be justified and still provide a thorough and efficient education given that the $3,623,520 which remains in the account represents at least a 10% increase over actual expenditures last year. That amount is deemed sufficient to bear the cost of the 96 positions it intends to fund this year. It is, therefore, concluded that the District has failed to demonstrate a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of its appeal for this account.

Account 830 - Rent

$2,700,000	$500,000	$300,000	$200,000

The City argued that the $2,700,000 allocated for 1991-92 was excessive in that spending for rental space has ranged from $1,874,162 to $2,016,420 over the past four years, particularly since the District has a declining enrollment.

The District rebutted the City's argument by pointing out that the $2,700,000 is necessary to cover estimated rental increases. It further pointed to the fact that the primary source of rental focuses on three school rental sites which have been in operation for years.

Last year the District budgeted $2,284,755 and expended $1,932,813 for rentals, a difference of $351,942. For 1991-92 the amount budgeted for rentals, $2,700,000 represents a 39.6% increase over actual expenditures for 1990-91. The District did not budget for the rental of any new space for 1991-92.

It provides documentation regarding one school site, the administrative office and the Teen-age Expectant Mothers Program which, when cast in the most favorable light, accounts for $1,976,639. However, there is absolutely no documentation as to what the rental costs have been, or were projected to be, for the remaining two school sites.

$723,361 is presumably needed for the other two rental sites but no data whatsoever was submitted by the District relative to the rental of the other two sites; thus, it is impossible to weigh the reasonableness of, or need for, that amount. Given this fact, a reduction of $200,000 requested by the City remains reasonable in that the $2,500,000 which is left in the account is sufficient to provide an average increase of 29% over last year's expenditures. Therefore, it is determined that the District has failed to demonstrate a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of its appeal of this account item.

The Commissioner has reviewed the arguments of the parties with respect to the Motion for Stay in light of the standards for the grant of injunctive relief set forth by the New Jersey Supreme Court in Crowe v. DeGioia, supra, and determined that although the State-operated School District has failed to demonstrate a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of its appeal to the State Board, the potential does, nonetheless, exist for irreparable harm to be experienced by the students of the District should the State Board determine that the monies reduced were necessary for a thorough and efficient education. Thus, it is determined that a stay shall be granted to avoid any possibility of harm to the District through maintenance of the status quo relative to the budget set by the superintendent. This conclusion is reached upon a heavy weighing of the fact that the District is a State-operated District which has been determined by the state to have extraordinary special needs.

Further, it is determined that in weighing the equities of the matter, greater harm would be experienced by the District and its students if a stay is denied and the Commissioner's decision is reversed on appeal than to the City, given that the Department of Community Affairs has already acted to protect the interest of the City's taxpayers by setting the local tax rate at the level the municipality is able to bear.

Now, therefore, it is ORDERED that the Motion for Stay is GRANTED this 10th day of March 1992.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY,

PETITIONER-CROSS/APPELLANT,

V.

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY, RESPONDENT-APPELLANT.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, February 6, 1992

For the Petitioner-Cross/Appellant, Carol Zylbert, Esq.

For the Respondent-Appellant, Charlotte Kitler, Esq.

This matter was initiated by the City of Jersey City (hereinafter "City") by appeal to the Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a). By its action, the City sought reductions in the 1991-92 budget of the State-operated School District of the City of Jersey City (hereinafter "District") plus a $4.5 million appropriation from the District's free balance. The Commissioner declined to appropriate any of the District's free balance and rejected $11,595,252 of the line item reductions sought by the City. However, he directed $1,775,252 in reductions to the District's budget, which, as certified by the State District Superintendent, totaled $241,326,789. The District appealed and the City cross-appealed.

The statutory framework under which the budget of a State-operated school district is established differs from that applicable to other school districts. In contrast to other districts, the budget of a State-operated school district is set under N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-50, -51, and -52, which provide for current year funding and require that, after comment and recommendation by the district board and public hearing, the State district superintendent shall fix the amount necessary to be appropriated and raised. Moreover, challenges to the education budget established by the district differ from budget appeals under other provisions of Title 18A in that N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a) provides that the municipal governing body rather than the district board must initiate any appeal to the Commissioner, and the governing body must prevail in that appeal before any budget reductions may be effectuated.

In further contrast to the law applicable to other school districts, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(b) grants the municipal governing body the right to apply to the Director of the Division of Local Government Affairs within the Department of Community Affairs (hereinafter "Director") for relief from the amount of the tax levy required to support the school district's budget, and N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(c) provides that any difference between the tax levy required to support the budget approved by the Commissioner and the tax levy established by the Director of the Division of Local Government Affairs is to be paid by the State, subject to the availability of appropriations.

In this case, the District's budget was fixed under N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a) at $241,326,789, an amount which would have required $79,321,960 in local revenues to support it. The City appealed the amount of the education budget to the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(a) and also applied to the Director of the Division of Local Government Affairs pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-52(b) for a determination that the tax levy required to support the budget adopted for the State-operated school district would result in an unreasonable tax burden. By decision of August 19, 1991, the Director determined that the local share of revenues necessary to support the education budget certified by the State District Superintendent would create an unreasonable tax burden.

Again, as stated above, any difference between the amount to be raised by the City and the funds required to support the education budget as established by these proceedings is to be made up by the State. Consequently, as the Commissioner emphasized in his decision, our concern is with the amount necessary for the school district to provide a thorough and efficient education rather than with the funding of that amount.

Given the statutory framework applicable here, we concur with the Commissioner that the proper standard for reviewing the reductions sought by the City of Jersey City is whether the City has demonstrated that the certification of the State Superintendent is in excess of that required to provide for a thorough and efficient education. After applying that standard of review to the record before us and having considered the arguments of counsel, we find that the City has failed to show that any of the amounts included in the District's budget as certified by the State District Superintendent are in excess of those required by the District to provide a thorough and efficient education. Therefore, for the reasons expressed by the Commissioner, and given that the record shows that anticipated revenues fell short for 1990-91 so that the District's free balance as of June 30, 1991 was only $1,857,454, we affirm the Commissioner's determination to reject appropriating $4.5 million from the District's free balance. We also affirm the Commissioner's determinations to reject reductions in the line item accounts as delineated in his decision. However, as follows, we reverse the Commissioner's determinations to make line item reductions in nine other accounts.

Initially, we find, as did the Commissioner in his decision, that this matter must be assessed on the basis of the District's financial status as of June 30, 1991. Moreover, given this district's history of educational inadequacy and fiscal mismanagement which resulted in our decision to order the creation of a State-operated school district, McCarroll v. Board of Education of the City of Jersey City, decided by the State Board, October 4, 1989, we find that the historical spending patterns of this particular district can not be used to conclude that amounts in its 1991-92 budget have been over-budgeted. Rather, in reviewing this district's budget, we must be particularly attentive to whether the District's financial resources will be sufficient to enable it to meet the educational needs of its students. Accordingly, we must review the reductions sustained by the Commissioner with great care.

Having done so, we reject the Commissioner's determination that Principals' Salaries (Account 211) be reduced by $560,000. This determination was based on the Commissioner's conclusion that monies paid during the summer of 1991 to principals employed on a ten-month basis but paid on a 12-month basis should be attributed to the 1991-92 fiscal year and, therefore, the 1990-91 salary accounts should not be encumbered by these expenses. This conclusion is in error, contradicting N.J.S.A. 18A:29-3, which provides that:

> Whenever persons employed for an academic year by a board of education shall indicate in writing their desire to participate in a summer payment plan, and such board of education approves such participation, then, and thereupon, the proper disbursing officer of the board of education, under such rules as may be promulgated by the commissioner with the approval of the state board, is hereby empowered and directed to deduct and withhold an amount equal to 10% of each semimonthly or monthly salary installment, from the payments of the salaries made to such employees as shall participate in such plan and the accumulated deductions for any academic year shall be paid to the employee or his estate under such rules as may be established by the board of education in one of the following ways: (1) at the end of the academic year; (2) in one or more installments after the end of the academic year but prior to September 1; (3) upon death or termination of employment if earlier. Such deductions may be deposited by the board of education in an interest bearing account in any financial institution having its principal office in the State of New Jersey.
> Any board of education which had in effect, prior to January 1, 1980, any payment plan which permitted funds to be raised in the next fiscal year is hereby authorized to continue to raise funds in this manner.

Thus, the statute requires, except in cases where the district had a plan in effect prior to 1980 to raise summer funds the next fiscal year, that summer payments are to be deducted from salaries paid during the preceeding academic year and are to be attributed to the budget for that year. Even for districts falling within the exception, the statute is permissive rather than mandatory. Therefore, it was in error for the Commissioner to order a reduction in the 1991-92 budget for the purpose of offsetting the summer salaries already paid by the District in 1990-91.

We also reject the Commissioner's determination to reduce Other Instructional Salaries (Account 214) by $600,000. This determination was based on the Commissioner's agreement with the City that if 16 vacant positions not filled "were necessary, they should have been filled." Commissioner's decision, at 41. We reject this view. The fact that a position has not yet been filled in no way shows that the services attending that position do not need to be provided so as to establish that the position is not needed. Moreover, we find this reduction arbitrary in that there is no basis in the Commissioner's decision to ascertain how he arrived at this particular amount for reduction. For the same reason, we reject the Commissioner's reduction of $50,000 in Other Instructional Expenses (Account 250).

We also reject the $20,000 reduction to Consultants (Account 430). Quite simply, the fact that a reduction "appears" justified does not provide a sufficient basis to reduce the education budget. Moreover, the fact that $80,000 was expended for services in this category in 1990-91 does not demonstrate that the District does not need the amount it budgeted for 1991-92. For the same reason, reductions of $36,252 to Replacement of Vehicles (Account 530) and $9,000 to Other Transportation Expenses (Account 550) must also be rejected.

We also reverse the Commissioner's determination to reduce by $200,000 Maintenance Salaries (Account 710). The District has demonstrated that the Commissioner's calculation does not accurately reflect costs for 1991-92 in that he based his calculation on 1990-91 expenditures and did not take into account that the reduction in the number of employees effectuated by the District for 1991-92 necessitated budgeting a higher amount for overtime. Similarly, the Commissioner's reduction of $200,000 in Rent (Account 830) does not take into consideration the impact of the District's rent increase for its central offices which will occur in 1991-92, and especially in view of the "precariously low" free balance remaining to the District, see Commissioner's decision, at 39, this reduction must be rejected.

In sum, for the reasons stated, we reverse the line item reductions made by the Commissioner in the amount of $1,775,252 and direct that these amounts be reinstated into the District's education budget.

HEARING OF PHILIP SHERIDAN, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY : DECISION OF ORANGE TOWNSHIP, ESSEX COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

Tenured teacher was charged with unbecoming conduct for using profanity, and sexist and racist innuendo while in the presence of students in his classroom. He asserted the affirmative defense that the charges did not constitute conduct unbecoming a teacher, but rather inefficiency, and that the Board had not met the statutory prescriptions set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 before bringing such charges. He further argued that the conduct in question did not warrant dismissal, particularly in view of mitigating factors.

ALJ dismissed respondent from his teaching position for unbecoming conduct, as he engaged in profanity, made sexual, sexist and racist innuendoes and comments and regularly slept in class, all of which was found to be antithetical to his function as teacher and role model for students. ALJ also concluded that nothing in the charges brought by the Board spoke of inefficiency and that mitigation was unwarranted.

Commissioner affirmed the ALJ's decision that respondent teacher be dismissed from his tenured teaching position in the school district of Orange Township. He further directed that the matter be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)1.

OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10364-90
AGENCY DKT. NO. 368-11/90

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF PHILIP SHERIDAN, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF ORANGE TOWNSHIP, ESSEX COUNTY

Ronald C. Hunt, Esq., for petitioner (Ashley & Charles, attorneys)

Wayne J. Oppito, Esq., for respondent Philip Sheridan

Record Closed: November 15, 1991 Decided: December 23, 1991

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

On November 14, 1990, petitioner, the City of Orange Township Board of Education (Board), certified tenure charges against respondent, Philip Sheridan (Sheridan), to the Commissioner of Education. Respondent filed his answer to the tenure charges on December 7, 1990, and on December 13, 1990, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

After notice to the parties, a prehearing conference was held on February 21, 1991, at which it was determined that the following were the issues to be resolved:

1. Is respondent guilty of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member?

   a) Do certain of the charges brought by the Board constitute inefficiency rather than unbecoming conduct and do these charges fail to meet the statutory prescriptions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11?

2. What sanctions, if any, should be imposed against respondent?

The specifications of the disciplinary charges brought against respondent as certified to the Commissioner are as follows:

> Philip Sheridan in his capacity as a teaching staff member has engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher in that:
> 1. Mr. Sheridan was a tenured employee in the Orange School District during the academic year 1989 to 1990.
>
> 2. On or about June 5, 1990, Mr. Sheridan used gross profanity while in the presence of students in his classroom.
>
> 3. On or about June 5, 1990, Mr. Sheridan verbally harassed students in his classroom by making insulting and derogatory remarks about women.
>
> 4. On or about June 5, 1990, Mr. Sheridan verbally harassed a female student in his classroom by insinuating that she was involved with other teaching personnel and/or himself in a sexual manner.
>
> 5. During the course of the 1989-1990 academic year, Mr. Sheridan used profanity toward and in the presence of the students in his classroom on numerous occasions.
>
> 6. During the 1989-1990 academic year, Mr. Sheridan performed the duties of a teacher in an unsatisfactory manner by not educating the students on a daily basis.
>
> 7. During the academic year 1989-1990, Mr. Sheridan neglected his duties as a teacher by regularly falling asleep during class sessions.
>
> 8. During the 1989-1990 school year, Mr. Sheridan engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher by using derogatory and profane language toward members of the faculty while in the presence of the students.
>
> 9. During the 1989-90 school years, Mr. Sheridan engaged in conducted unbecoming a teaching staff member by making sexually explicit remarks about [T.S.] while in the presence of her fellow classmates.
>
> 10. During the 1989-90 school years, Mr. Sheridan engaged in conducted unbecoming a teacher by referring to a faculty member as incompetent in addition to derogatory language in the students' presence.
> 11. Sometime during the academic year 1989-1990, Mr. Sheridan spewed racial slurs at a student in his classroom.

In his answer to the charges, respondent asserted the affirmative defense that the charges do not constitute conduct unbecoming a teacher but, rather, inefficiency and that the Board did not meet the statutory prescriptions set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 before bringing such a charge.

The hearing was held on October 15, 17, and 18, 1991. The record closed on November 15 following receipt of the final submission from the parties.

Sheridan resigned from his employment with the Orange Township School District and is planning to retire as of January 16, 1992. He argues in his brief that this retirement renders the tenure charges moot and, consequently, no initial decision is required. This position is incorrect for several reasons. The first is that a teacher may not escape the consequences of tenure charges merely by submitting his resignation from the school district. The second is that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)1, where a contested case results in loss of tenure or dismissal of a teacher on charges, the Commissioner must forward the matter to the State Board of Examiners for determination of the possible revocation or suspension of his certification. I therefore CONCLUDE that there is no merit in respondent's position and an initial decision is required.

The facts leading to the tenure charges against Sheridan came to the attention of the district beginning June 5, 1990.

T.S., a student in Sheridan's junior Biology A class, was a fifth-year senior in a special program because she had given birth in the first half of the 1989-90 school year. Her pregnancy was a difficult one. She suffered from toxemia and pneumonia, and her baby had to be delivered by caesarean section. Because of her illness, she was out of school for about four to five months. The reasons for her absence were known to the school administration, and she was given a tutor to help her keep up in her work until she could return to school. T.S. was scheduled to graduate in June 1990.

In the first half of the 1989-90 school year, she had a biology teacher who died during the fall semester, so that when she was ready to return to classes at the beginning of 1990, she was placed in Sheridan's Biology A class.

T.S. was absent from Sheridan's class more than the number of times permitted by Board policy with the knowledge of her guidance counselor and letters from her mother and her physician. On June 5, 1990, T.S. came to class late and was told by another student that Sheridan had just announced to the whole class before she arrived that she was going to fail the course because of her absences and there was nothing she could do to remedy the situation.

T.S. was distraught and went to the office of guidance counselor Gaye Johnson. She told Johnson what Sheridan had said. Johnson was aware of T.S.'s problems and her program, designated a "contract," that had been worked out by the district, T.S., and her parents to enable her to complete her high school education. Johnson believed that Sheridan was aware of this contract also. She accompanied T.S. back to Sheridan's classroom to remind him that T.S. was scheduled to graduate in June and asked him to refrain from taking any action until the next day when T.S.'s grandmother could come to school. Johnson left T.S. in the classroom and returned to her office.

James Sherman, acting principal, recalled that T.S. was crying on that day when she walked past his office on her way to Johnson's office. She walked by again with Johnson; Johnson returned alone and seemed upset. Within 10 minutes, T.S. walked past his office, crying again.

When T.S. returned to Johnson's office, she told her that Sheridan had cursed Johnson out in front of the class when she left the room. According to the testimony of T.S., Sheridan announced to the class that he "didn't give a f - - - what Johnson said. She wasn't going to do a goddamn thing to him."

Upon hearing what T.S. had to say, Johnson went to Sherman's office. Sherman had her bring T.S. to him.

Sherman asked T.S. to write out her description of the incident on a piece of paper. In response to his request, T.S. wrote the following:

> After Mrs. Johnson brought me back to my class I sat down and he sat there for a minute than he started saying that he didn't give a fuck and that they're not going to do a god damn thing to him. He also use to tell us that women has no rights. He nodds off in class. He has a very negative against women.

Sherman testified that he had received complaints about Sheridan previously but all of them were hearsay and he "took them with a grain of salt -- everyone complains." It is not his practice to take complaints seriously which are not put into writing. When he read what T.S. wrote, he was concerned with the seriousness of the accusation.

He asked Johnson to check with Sheridan's other students since it was his experience that students who are failing their courses make the kinds of accusations made by T.S. When Johnson inquired, other students confirmed that Sheridan had made the statement. At approximately 4:10 p.m., Sherman went to Sheridan's classroom and suspended him from his position immediately. He confirmed the suspension by letter the next day.

Sheridan taught two junior biology classes: Biology A and Biology B, the honors class. When the students in these two classes heard about Sheridan's suspension, almost all of them came to Johnson, individually and in groups, to complain about him. They asked Johnson why she was so upset by what he had said about her since he said those kinds of things to them all of the time. After hearing the students complain, she asked them if they were willing to give written statements They were afraid but agreed to do so if they were assured that there would be no repercussions.

On June 11, 1991, Sheridan's students were placed in a conference room and asked to write a paragraph about Sheridan. None of the school administrators remained in the conference room and the door was left open so that a secretary could observe that there was no discussion among them. Johnson gave them each a piece of paper, and Sherman came in and assured them again that there would be no repercussions and that they were free to leave and did not have to give statements if they did not wish to. They were then left to complete their paragraphs. Eight of the students' paragraphs, including that of T.S. mentioned above, have been placed into evidence.

Sherman noted that the students' paragraphs confirmed the incident of June 5, 1991 as described by T.S. They also reported that Sheridan almost always fell asleep in class, that he spoke in a derogatory way about women and said they had no rights, that he overtly and improperly observed the bodies of the female students in his classes and commented on them to the class, and that he openly suggested that T.S. was having a sexual relationship with him.

At the end of June or the beginning of July 1990, Sheridan was called to a meeting attended by Dr. Maxine J. Pijeaux, Superintendent of Schools of the district, Sherman, and Johnson. Sheridan was accompanied by an association representative who advised him not to say anything. At that meeting, Sheridan was given copies of all of the students' paragraphs, including those that were introduced into evidence at this proceeding. Johnson herself never confronted Sheridan concerning the incident of June 5, 1991. However, it was fully described by students in their paragraphs.

Upon reflection, Sherman was concerned that it might be believed that undue influence had been exerted on the students at the time they prepared these paragraphs, so he developed a questionnaire based upon the students' statements, which was mailed to each of them at home after the school year was over. At the beginning of the questionnaire, the students were given the following direction:

> We are trying to ascertain whether there is an extensive problem with Mr. Sheridan's teaching and behavior or if this recent classroom situation was an isolated incident.
> Please respond, briefly, to the following questions: Be aware that we are dealing with a person's livelihood and that this information may be used in a court of law.

At the end of the questionnaire, the students certified the information given and the parents signed them to indicate that they had given permission to their child to respond to the questions. In addition, the students were informed that they could respond to the questionnaire and mail it back to the school strictly on a voluntary basis. Some were completed and mailed back; four of these were introduced into evidence by the Board.

Based upon the investigation conducted by Sherman, Dr. Pijeaux certified tenure charges of conduct unbecoming a teacher against Sheridan to the Commissioner of Education on November 14, 1990.

The specifications of the charges that Sheridan engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher are listed above and will be dealt with separately.

Use of Profanity

Although Johnson testified at hearing that T.S. told her on June 5, 1990 that Sheridan did not give a "damn" about what she said, it appears that she "cleaned up" his statement for purposes of the hearing. According to Sherman, she told him on that date that Sheridan used the word "f - - -," and this is supported by the testimony of students who were present, their written paragraphs, and answers on the questionnaires.

Sheridan does not recall using this word in front of the class. He recalled that on June 5, 1990, he was angry with Johnson because, as a colleague, she was not supporting him in enforcing the school's policy on absences or disciplining T.S. for leaving his classroom without permission.

D.E., a male student who was a junior in Sheridan's Biology A class during the 1989-90 school year, recalled an incident where Sheridan used profanity to him. D.E. was absent and brought an explanatory note with him when he returned to class. Sheridan, without reading the note, asked him why he was out. When D.E. suggested that he read his note, Sheridan said, "I don't give a f - - - about the note. Why were you out?" D.E. did not report this conversation to anyone but his mother at the time because Sheridan was a teacher and D.E. was afraid that he would not be believed. D.E. was offended by Sheridan's use of profanity.

M.M. was a female student in Sheridan's Biology B honors class during the 1989-90 school year, when she was a junior. She testified that Sheridan used the word "bitch" almost every day when addressing female students in the class. For example, if a female student entered the classroom late, he would ask her for a pass and say, "Why are you late, bitch?" J.L. and M.A. were two female students in the same biology class with M.M. They were in their sophomore year of high school at the time. Both related an incident in which Sheridan sent M.M. to the office, audibly calling her a "bitch" as she left. M.M. did not hear the comment but was told about it by the other two girls. J.L. thinks that M.M. might have called Sheridan a "bastard" before she left the room but expressed her opinion that even if M.M. had done so, he had no right to call M.M. a "bitch."

Sheridan denied using the word "bitch" except to refer to a female dog. He did not deny that he used it when referring to M.M. but believed that he had said it under his breath or to the wall; he did not mean to direct the expression to M.M. or to the class.

D.E. testified that he frequently heard Sheridan call female students "bitches." This was also reported by C.B. and J.M. in their written paragraphs.

D.V., another student, reported in his questionnaire that he once heard Sheridan tell a girl to "get the hell out" of the classroom because she had argued with him about her absences.

Based upon the above, I FIND that Sheridan was guilty of using profanity in the presence of his students in his classroom during the 1989-90 school year.

Derogatory Remarks About Women

Sheridan's Biology A class had approximately five male and 12 female students. His Biology B class was made up of about three male and 18 female students.

All of the witnesses testified that Sheridan used the term "bimbo" or "bimbette" to refer to female students. According to Sheridan, he used the term as an equivalent to "airhead" and said that he got it from watching Archie Bunker on the television show All in the Family. He claims that he did not realize that it could be an offensive term until he heard the testimony of the students at the hearing. He explained that he was trying to be flip and humorous, but his slang is out-of-date and the word was not taken by the students in the way that he meant it. He further denied that he ever called his female students "bimbos" but that he said they were acting that way -- that is, in an empty-headed fashion -- when he was attempting to modify their behavior.

Sheridan also claims that used the term "bimbo" as opposed to the term "fox" during a biology lesson in genetics on sex-linked characteristics. A normal female was a "fox" and an afflicted female was a "bimbo." Dr. Sharon Brendzel, who was his supervisor and evaluated him during the 1989-90 school, observed this biology lesson and wrote a memorandum to Pijeaux on April 2, 1990, expressing her disapproval because the term "bimbo" was offensive to some of the students. A conference was held with Sheridan, Pijeaux, and Brendzel, at which Pijeaux directed him not to use the term "bimbo" in his lessons anymore and not to direct it at his students. He claims that he did not use it again after this conference, but that he "may have slipped once."

None of the students who testified or gave statements understood that Sheridan used the word either as a genetic term or to mean an empty-headed woman. To D.E., a "bimbo" meant a slut. To J.T., it was a prostitute, a woman of low values. M.A. never thought about its meaning since Sheridan used it so frequently that it became just another word. N.S. responded in her questionnaire that Sheridan's use of the term "bimbo" led her to believe that he thought a woman was only needed "to have sex with." D.H. believed that the person he called a bimbo was "cheap," meaning that she was some sort of a "hoe" (whore). D.E. and D.V., two male students, took it to be an insulting reference to women. Only T.S. thought it meant that "we couldn't make our own decisions; we were dizzy." All of the students uniformly were offended by the term whether or not it was addressed to them.

J.L. testified that she heard Sheridan say more than one time that women have no rights. This was also the testimony of M.A., L.S., M.M., and T.S. It appears in the paragraphs written by T.S., D.V., C.B., D.H., K.L., J.M., and S.G. It is also found in the responses on the questionnaires prepared by some of these students.

Sheridan would also make statements to female students like "woman, sit down." M.S. wrote on her questionnaire that when she asked him a question about biology, instead of explaining the work to her, he told her how nice she looked and asked her if she had anything to tell him that he wanted to hear.

He also referred to women, including the students in his class, as "bitches," as set forth above, which was interpreted by his students to be degrading to women in general.

I FIND that Sheridan made insulting and derogatory remarks about women in general and specifically about and to the female students in his classes. It is no excuse that he believed his slang to be out-of-date; the term "bimbo" is derogatory no matter what its meaning and should not have been used even with the meaning he intended. It should certainly not have been used by him without ascertaining what it meant within the contexts of the students in his classes. His repeated reference to women as "bitches" is indefensible. The meaning of his statements that women have no rights was unambiguous since he apparently followed them up with consistent statements and actions.

Sexual References

D.E. testified that he heard Sheridan make references about T.S.'s body in front of the class. One day before class, only he and Sheridan were in the room when T.S. came in and her pencil fell to the floor. As she bent over to pick it up, Sheridan made a "comment about her behind." He said, "Could you drop the pencil again, please?" D.E. estimates that Sheridan referred to parts of T.S.'s anatomy in front of the whole class on at least 20 occasions.

J.L. testified to similar conduct by Sheridan in regard to the female students in the honors biology class. She said that he looked at the girls' "body parts" and made "references." In particular, there was one girl in the class with large breasts. If she went to ask Sheridan a question, he would stare at her chest until the girl felt uncomfortable. J.L. felt uncomfortable just watching his behavior.

T.S. testified that Sheridan tried to act like one of the boys in his class and she repeated this exchange between Sheridan and one of the male students: Boy: "She has a big butt." Sheridan: "Oh, do she!"

According to T.S., she was subjected to comments from Sheridan about her anatomy. Specifically, her "butt" and her breasts. He made this type of remark about her on more than one occasion to the class from his desk in front of the classroom. It embarrassed her badly.

Because of her health problems, T.S. was absent from class more than eight times between January and June 1990. The rest of the class was curious about why she was passing the course since they did not know anything about her medical history. Sheridan explained to the class that T.S. was passing the course because she did "special assignments" for him after school. The tone of voice in which this was said and the accompanying facial expressions and gestures made it clear that he was implying that she was having a sexual relationship with him. The students who testified and/or completed the student questionnaire who are in the same class with T.S. agreed that the term "special assignment" referred to Sheridan having sex with T.S.

T.S. did not take this as a joke. Sheridan made her feel self-conscious and that she was somehow "leading him on." She felt "nasty" and was angry about the impression that his statements created upon her fellow students.

Sheridan denied any sexual content in his reference to "special assignment." He testified that he was actually referring to participation by T.S. in the Oasis Program, an after-school program in which students who were absent could make up work which they missed. He said that he had several students on special assignment. Although he previously claimed that he did not know that T.S. was in a contractual program with the guidance office with respect to the number of her absences at the time that he announced his intention to fail her for the year, he now testified that he had this contractual arrangement in mind when he announced to the class that T.S. was participating in "special assignments."

Based upon the above, I FIND that Sheridan was guilty of making improper sexual references to the body parts of female students in his classes and inferring that he was carrying on a sexual relationship with one of these students to his classes.

Sleeping in Class

Every single student who testified or prepared a statement for the Board referred to Sheridan's sleeping in class. It appeared that it was his habit to place the assignments for the class on the blackboard and then fall asleep at his desk, leaving the students to their own devices.

According to L.S., who was in his honors biology class, the students used the opportunity to talk to their friends or do the homework assignment on the board. J.L., a classmate of L.S.'s, said that when Sheridan fell asleep, which was quite often, the students would talk or stare at him and call his name. M.A. used Sheridan's honors biology class in order to do her algebra homework. M.M. said he slept in class almost every day.

D.E., a student in his Biology A class, testified that Sheridan fell asleep almost every day in that class also. When T.S., who was in the same class as D.E., asked Sheridan why he fell asleep in class, he told her that he worked at a bar at night and was involved with a lot of women and therefore did not get enough sleep.

Apparently, Sheridan explained the notes which he placed on the board at the time he wrote them but refused to answer any student's questions in reference to the material. In fact, he apparently refused to discuss the subject matter with the students at all until the final weeks of the course, when he had to prepare them to take their final examinations.

M.A. testified that she was able to recall the incidents that went on in Sheridan's class because "there was no teaching going on, so if something went on, everyone paid attention." When Sheridan wrote on the blackboard before the final examination that he was not allowed to speak to them, the class laughed because "he never spoke to us anyway."

Sheridan testified that he may have nodded off in class because he was under extreme physical and mental stress during the 1989-90 school year. He was suffering from back, elbow, and shoulder problems, working at two jobs, in the process of getting a divorce, and dieting. At hearing, he produced a one-paragraph report from Gerald H. Rozan, M.D., a psychiatrist who stated that Sheridan was suffering from intense stress and "his type A behavior was involved with low self-esteem which gave him significant problems with anger and made him vulnerable to depression." Dr. Rozan was attempting to modify Sheridan's behavior and reduce his stress.

Sheridan was also being treated by Joseph J. O'Connor, M.D., an orthopedist, for low back pain and pain over the right shoulder and right elbow. His condition was being significantly aggravated by his "occupational activities as a bartender." Sheridan testified that his arm and shoulder pain meant that he could not write comfortably on the blackboard in class. He also admitted that he had difficulty staying awake whenever he was reading or writing. He never sought a leave of absence for either his psychiatric or orthopedic problems. He said that he could not afford to because of his financial condition.

I FIND that Sheridan fell asleep regularly in class. The fact that he suffered from various conditions of which he was aware must work to his detriment, not to his advantage. If he was unable to provide the teaching services which his students needed and he was being paid to deliver, he should have taken steps to remove himself from the situation. Instead, he remained in the classroom, thereby demonstrating a low opinion of his students and their ability to learn. His attitude conveyed the message that it did not matter if they did not have a teacher since they were not worth teaching. I therefore FIND that Sheridan's falling asleep in class demonstrated an attitude of contempt for his students.

Racial and Ethnic Slurs

Orange High School has a student body which is between 95 and 97 percent minority. In addition to African-American and Hispanic students, there are also Vietnamese, Haitians, and Greeks. Sheridan is white.

J.L. is of Haitian descent. She was born in the United States, but her mother was born in Haiti. Sheridan occasionally made reference to her national origin.

According to M.M., J.L. generally objected to the way Sheridan was teaching the honors biology class, so she asked a lot of questions. On one occasion, she was told by Sheridan, "If you wanted to learn that, why didn't you stay in Haiti?" or, "Why don't you go back to Haiti?" J.L. testified that Sheridan told her to get on a "banana boat" and go back to her country. M.A., who is also Haitian, was a witness to these ethnic slurs and was insulted.

J.L. recalled that Sheridan also told two Vietnamese sisters, Y.T. and C.T., to go back to Vietnam if they did not like what was going on.

All of these remarks were made in front of the entire class.

T.S., who was in the other biology class, testified that Sheridan "doesn't like black people." He did not say it outright but, according to T.S., made racist jokes. She did not give any specific incidents.

T.S.'s allegations as to Sheridan's attitude are supported by the testimony of Gaye Johnson. She testified that in 1989, there were problems at the school between the African-American and Haitian students. A council meeting was called to find ways to neutralize the relationship between the two groups. While waiting for this meeting to begin, Sheridan suggested to her that they should "just give them all machetes and let them take care of it themselves." Another time she was asked by a student in reference to Sheridan what could be done when a teacher referred to the students as "little monkeys."

Sheridan denied being prejudiced. He did not recall saying anything to Johnson about giving the students machetes, but he added that if he did, he was only being sarcastic. He does not deny what he is alleged to have said to J.L. or to the Vietnamese students but does not recall it and thinks that they may have taken his statements out of context.

I FIND that Sheridan is guilty of making ethnic slurs and racist remarks to the students in his biology classes during the 1989-90 school year.

SHERIDAN'S DEFENSES

Sheridan defended his conduct in several ways. He referred to the condition of his health and the chaos in his private life and submitted the reports of Drs. Rozan and O'Connor to support his contentions. A review of these reports indicates nothing in either of them that could serve to justify his conduct. If he were affected as badly as he claims, he was obligated to remove himself from the classroom.

In his defense, Sheridan points to his prior excellent record as a teacher. There is nothing in evidence indicating his performance in the 1989-90 school year except the report of a classroom observation by his supervisor, Brendzel, between 9:25 and 10:04 a.m. on December 8, 1989 of a tenth-grade biology class in which Sheridan was very highly rated by Brendzel in all respects. No formal evaluation of Sheridan was conducted during this school year and, therefore, only this observation report and Sheridan's professional improvement plan developed with Joseph Moore, the prior principal, is available. The only thing demonstrated by the observation report is that Sheridan was capable of doing a good job of teaching. It is a shame that he did not feel that his students were worth his best efforts and he did not teach them as well as he was capable of doing.

Sheridan also claims that no one complained about his performance until Johnson brought the incident of June 5, 1990 to the attention of acting-principal Sherman. Therefore, he argues that the Board must be resting its allegations entirely upon this one incident in his entire otherwise excellent teaching history.

The failure of the administration of the high school to take note of Sheridan's conduct is explained by the history of the school administration.

Before Sherman became principal of Orange High School between May 15 and 27, 1990, he was the principal of the Park Avenue Elementary School. He was called upon by the Board to replace James Moore, who was summarily removed by the Board at the end of his third year of service in the district approached so that the district would not have to grant him tenure in the position. Sherman was brought in against his wishes by the Board to close out the high-school year in an orderly fashion.

According to Johnson, who has been acting assistant principal of the high school since September 1991, complaints about Sheridan's behavior were made to Moore, who took no action with respect to them. She herself reported Sheridan's remarks about giving the students machetes without Moore taking any action.

J.L. testified that she did not complain to Moore because "he was having trouble also at the time." When she mentioned to another science teacher that she was not learning anything in her biology class, he said, "Oh, you have Mr. Sheridan?" She decided from the attitude of other faculty members and members of the school administration that everyone knew what Sheridan was doing and condoned his behavior. L.S. testified that she never complained because she felt that there was not much that would be done. D.E. never told anyone but his mother what he had observed because he did not feel that he would be believed. T.S. told her social worker about the abusive remarks Sheridan was making to her but nothing changed.

J.L. and M.M. went directly to Moore after Sheridan called M.M. a "bitch" in front of the class. As a result of their complaint, Moore came to Sheridan's class and called each of the students individually to a table in the back of the room and asked them about the incident and also about Sheridan's racial remarks to M.M. J.L. testified that they did not tell Moore about Sheridan's ogling the bodies of his female students. No action was taken against Sheridan as a result of Moore's investigation.

In addition to the perceived attitude of indifference on the part of the administration and other staff members at the high school, the students were also intimidated by Sheridan's position as chairman of the science department and his attitude that he could do anything he wanted without consequence. Many of the students became inured to his behavior and accepted it as something which they were forced to put up with.

The status quo might have been maintained until Sheridan had safely retired from teaching except for a fortunate confluence of circumstances: Moore's contract to continue as principal was not renewed by the district and Sherman was appointed to the position; Sheridan's abusive behavior so upset T.S. that she went to directly to Gaye Johnson; and Johnson, who had previously heard unsubstantiated complaints about Sheridan, now herself became the butt of Sheridan's abuse. Her report to Sherman received a very different response than the one she had gotten from Moore.

In an exercise of firm and responsible leadership, Sherman immediately conducted a thorough and fair investigation of the allegations and acted immediately to remedy the situation. The students, used to the prior administration, came forward timidly and reluctantly at first, fearing administrative inaction which would leave Sheridan free to retaliate against them. They eventually responded to Sherman's assurances that they would not be subject to reprisal and they cooperated with the investigation.

The facts set forth above were the results of Sherman's investigation. No one listening to the testimony of the students and observing their demeanor could believe that they were telling anything but the whole truth as they experienced it. The outrage of M.M., J.T., and M.A., the disappointment and resignation of D.E. and L.S., and the sheer anguish of T.S., who had been singled out by Sheridan for special abuse, were apparent in every word and gesture.

I FIND, contrary to Sheridan's assertions that the charges against him were based upon one incident that occurred on June 6, 1991, that he engaged in an ongoing course of abusive and demeaning conduct towards his students during the 1989-90 school year. His conduct makes his claims that his students just objected to his strict enforcement of disciplinary rules and his attempts to implement the policy of the district on student absences a travesty of his duty as a teacher in the district and the chairman of the science department in the high school. One who is intent on strictly enforcing guidelines for student behavior does not consistently sleep through their behavior. One who is intent on improving the conduct of his charges does not freely indulge in egregious conduct in front of them.

PROCEDURAL DEFENSES

Sheridan raised several procedural defenses to the tenure charges brought against him by the Board.

The first is that the charges should be dismissed because the Board failed to comply with discovery requests. I FIND that although the Board might have failed to provide timely responses to Sheridan's interrogatories, he was not injured in the conduct of his case. He was provided with copies of the paragraphs written by the students at a meeting held approximately one month after he was suspended from his teaching duties at which he was accompanied by his association representative. Respondent received answers to his interrogatories from the district somewhat out of time. However, he sought no prompt relief from the forum with regard to the delayed discovery. In addition, on the day of hearing he was given the opportunity to again review petitioner's documents before proceeding with his defense.

Sheridan also alleges that the tenure charges should be dismissed because the district failed to comply with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 that the charges be served upon him "within three working days of the date they were filed with the secretary of the district." The Board has represented that the apparent discrepancy in dates was the result of a typographical error on the letter transmitting the charges rather than a genuine failure to observe the required time limit. I FIND that there was no procedural reason based upon this allegation for dismissing the charges against Sheridan and, given the outrageous nature of his conduct, a technical infraction of the rules by the Board, if any, should not be considered on balance.

CONCLUSIONS

Sheridan has been charged by the district with conduct unbecoming a teacher. I CONCLUDE that it has proved by a preponderance of the credible evidence that during the 1989-90 school year, he engaged in conduct directly antithetical to his role as a teacher and as a role model for the students in his classes. He insulted them, demeaned them, exposed them to racial and ethnic prejudice, and refused to provide them with the benefits of his acknowledged teaching skills. I CONCLUDE that this unequivocally constitutes conduct unbecoming a teacher.

Respondent has attempted to argue that the tenure charges brought by the district in fact constitute allegations of inefficiency which failed to meet the statutory prescriptions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11. I CONCLUDE that nothing in the charges brought by the Board bespeaks inefficiency on the part of Sheridan. Inefficiency implies an inability to perform the job; the only relationship between inefficiency and Sheridan's actions is that not much learning could be expected to result from either.

PENALTY

Sheridan's attempts to excuse or explain his conduct on the basis of his personal problems or the state of his health cannot be given much weight; his conduct is indefensible under any circumstances whatsoever. I CONCLUDE that there are no mitigating circumstances in this case which would warrant consideration in regard to any penalty imposed.

Under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, a tenured teacher may be dismissed or reduced in compensation for unbecoming conduct. Sheridan has been found guilty of unbecoming conduct and the acts constituting this conduct are of such a nature that his continued employment by the district is unsupportable. I therefore CONCLUDE that the only appropriate penalty is this matter is that Sheridan be removed from his position. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.4.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that Philip Sheridan be removed from his teaching position in the school district of the City of Orange Township, Essex County.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey

08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF PHILIP SHERIDAN, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY : DECISION OF ORANGE TOWNSHIP, ESSEX COUNTY. :

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by respondent pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and are briefly set forth below.* The Board's reply was filed out of time and is not considered herein.

In his exceptions, respondent (hereinafter "Sheridan") initially submits that the ALJ erred in not dismissing the charges against him because of the Board's failure to serve them within three days of their being sworn to by the superintendent and because of the Board's failure to timely comply with discovery requests. (Exceptions, at pp. 1-2)

Sheridan further asserts that the ALJ erred in assuming that Gaye Johnson "cleaned up" her testimony regarding Sheridan's language; rather, the testimony should have been taken exactly as stated, namely that Sheridan said "damn" rather than "f---," which is also how the incident is reported on student statements P-2 and P-4. (Exceptions, at pp. 2-3)

Also in error, according to Sheridan, was the ALJ's decision to permit into the record, and then rely on, statements from students who did not testify and were hence not subjected to cross-examination. The error is compounded by the fact that the narrative statements (P-1 through P-8) were "collaboratively authored by unsupervised students" and the questionnaire responses (P-9 through P-12) were "totally unsubstantiated" and unclear in their origin, with Ms. Johnson attributing them to Principal Sherman and vice versa. (Exceptions, at p. 3)

Sheridan next contends that the ALJ erred in placing her own judgment of his teaching methods above that of the certified administrators and supervisors whose reports and other documentation constitute the only legitimate evaluation of Sheridan's teaching performance on the present record. All of these documents indicate that Sheridan was a good teacher, and no evaluator or administrator testified to the contrary. (Id.)

The ALJ further erred, Sheridan avers, in finding that the Board had proven the charges against him by a preponderance of the evidence. No administrators other than Mr. Sherman testified. Witnesses gave conflicting or inconsistent testimony (e.g. "damn" vs. "f---" as discussed above); much credance was given to a student (T.S.) who was absent for over half the school year in question; and Sheridan's use of "bitch" and "bimbo" was clearly explained by him. Altogether, the testimony on which the ALJ based her decision was insufficient to prove the charges she ultimately sustained. (Id., at pp. 3-4)

Finally, Sheridan argues that the ALJ erred in failing to accord due weight to his twenty-year service record and the effect of his health and personal problems during the period in question. Had she done so, she would have properly concluded that any unbecoming conduct in the 1989-90 school year was an aberration deserving a penalty less severe than dismissal. (Id., at p. 4)

Upon careful and independent review of the record, including complete transcripts of hearings, the Commissioner finds Sheridan's exceptions to be without merit and affirms the initial decision of the ALJ.

Initially, the Commissioner rejects Sheridan's contention that the charges against him should be dismissed on procedural grounds. With regard to failing to serve the charges "forthwith," the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that even if Sheridan's factual contentions are true, a period of five working days does not constitute so great an extension of "forthwith" as to warrant dismissal of such egregious charges on procedural grounds alone. Neither was there any demonstration that Sheridan's case was prejudiced by the Board's admitted lateness in responding to interrogatories; indeed, Sheridan was acquainted with the students' written accounts of his behavior, which are clearly indicative of the bases on which the Board would be proceeding against him, long before the date of hearing. Nor does the Commissioner accept that the ALJ erred in placing these written accounts into evidence and referencing them in her findings, as she relied on them primarily as corroboration of behaviors consistently noted by witnesses whom she found to be fully credible.

The Commissioner further finds no basis in the record to dispute the determination of the ALJ with respect to the credibility of the witnesses who testified in this matter, including Sheridan himself, or the validity of student statements which were clearly taken in a manner designed not to permit collaboration or coercion. This being so, the overwhelming thrust of credible evidence amply supports the Board's contention that Sheridan routinely used profane and abusive language (whether a particular utterance included "damn" or "f---" is of no import whatsoever when the comment's general tone was consistently reported and effectively admitted by Sheridan), denigrated women and foreign students, made sexual innuendoes by word and gesture, and routinely slept in class.

Finally, the Commissioner finds no merit whatsoever in Sheridan's contention that the ALJ substituted her opinion of Sheridan's teaching performance for that of certified supervisors and administrators. Sheridan's professional capability is not at issue herein, his behavior is. Sleeping in class and using foul or abusive language are not matters of efficiency or teaching style, but of conduct befitting a teaching staff member. The conduct attributed to Sheridan in the course of these proceedings is reprehensible notwithstanding any indication that he could, and apparently did, teach satisfactorily when he so chose.

The Board's charges having been sustained in all instances, there remains only the question of the penalty to be imposed. The Commissioner is unpersuaded by Sheridan's argument that the 1989-90 school year, on which the present charges focus, constituted an "aberration" in an otherwise stellar teaching career brought on by personal and health problems which must militate against dismissal.

To the contrary, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that indications instead show habits of speech and attitude that were apparently allowed to exist, and therefore in the minds of students were sanctioned by authorities, well before the incidents of the school year in question. Moreover, as the record pertaining to 1989-90 shows, Sheridan was capable of acceptable, even good, performance during the very period when his behavior was most egregious, so that the Commissioner is less inclined to view past good performance as indicative of overall fitness to teach.

Accordingly, for the reasons well stated by the ALJ in her initial decision, the Commissioner affirms that Philip Sheridan shall be dismissed from his tenured teaching position in the school district of Orange Township as of the date of this decision. He further directs that this matter be forwarded to the State Board of examiners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)1 for action against Sheridan's certificate as the Board deems appropriate.*

IT IS SO ORDERED.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

* The Commissioner notes that Sheridan submitted his resignation to the district on October 25, 1991 (one week after the close of hearings in this matter), to take effect in January 1992. The record is unclear, however, as to whether the resignation was accepted (it had not been at the time of post-hearing briefs), and in any event, as the ALJ properly notes at p. 3, resignation cannot be used to escape the consequences of tenure charges which have been duly certified and against which respondent has defended him or herself.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured teaching staff member, claimed to have acquired tenure status as a cooperative education coordinator. Petitioner sought reinstatement to that position which was filled by nontenured coordinator for 1990-91. All parties agreed that no reduction in force occurred.

Citing Ellicott Appellate Division decision, ALJ concluded petitioner acquired tenure status in position of cooperative office education under her educational services certificate pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and could not be removed from that position except as provided by law. Petitioner was ordered reassigned to position of part-time cooperative office education while retaining her part-time position under her instructional certificate.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own with slight modification. Commissioner found petitioner had acquired tenure in position of educational services under educational services certificate (Ellicott State Board decision) and could not be removed absent rif or dismissal under Tenure Employees Hearing Act. Petitioner was ordered reinstated to her tenured educational services position.

v.

Respondent.

Philip H. Shore, Esq., for respondent (Shore & Zahn, attorneys)

Record Closed: December 4, 1991 Decided: December 23, 1991

BEFORE DANIEL B. McKEOWN, ALJ:

Petitioner, who otherwise has acquired a tenure status as a teacher in the employ of the Spotswood Board of Education (Board), claims to have also acquired a tenure status as a cooperative education coordinator. She alleges that despite her tenure as the cooperative education coordinator, the Board improperly and in violation of her tenure employed a nontenured cooperative education coordinator (or Coordinator) for 1990-91. Petitioner demands reinstatement to the position of Coordinator . After the Commissioner transferred the matter January 10, 1991 to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., a hearing was scheduled and conducted September 6, 1991 at the South Brunswick Municipal Building. Thereafter, the parties filed letter memorandum in support of their respective positions. The record remained opened until a conference call was attempted December 4, 1991 for clarification of a filed stipulation of fact.

STIPULATED FACTS

At the hearing the parties agreed that because they could stipulate all relevant and material facts, testimony was not necessary. Consequently, the parties reached the following stipulation of fact at that time which was later memoralized in writing. The facts as stipulated and as memorialized in writing on September 10, 1991 are as follows:

1. Petitioner has an instructional certificate with five endorsements, four of which she obtained in 1978 and one of which she obtained in 1981. The endorsements obtained in 1978 for the teaching of bookkeeping and accounting, general business studies, typing and data processing. The endorsement petitioner acquired in 1981 is for teaching of secretarial studies.

2. In addition to an instructional certificate, petitioner has also acquired an educational services certificate in 1983 as a teacher-coordinator of cooperative vocational-technical education-business education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.20(a).

3. Petitioner was first employed by the Spotswood Board in 1978 under her instructional certificate.

4. Between 1983 through June 1990 petitioner taught three courses under her instructional certificate in addition to teaching one period per day, five days per week, in cooperative office education and having two daily periods, five days per week, of field pupil supervisory periods.

5. Cooperative office education in part allowed petitioner to teach the cooperative office education course and to act as liason between the school and cooperating employers training stations (places of employment).

6. Near the end of 1989-90 the school administration considered the elimination of cooperative office education courses.

7. During June 1990 the very same school administration determined not to eliminate cooperative office education courses but did assign petitioner's cooperative office education courses to another tenured teacher who, while properly certified, never taught cooperative office education.

8. Petitioner presently is in a position of employment with the Board for which she is properly certified.

9. Salary is not in issue in this dispute.

10. Cooperative office education duties are non supervisory of other teachers.

Three other points are noted regarding the stipulation of fact. One, it was agreed between counsel to the parties that the supervisor of vocational education supervises cooperative education. Two, it was also agreed that the Board also has cooperative education in marketing and cooperative education in industrial education. Three, petitioner's employment now and in prior years has been on a full-time basis.

PETITIONER

Petitioner claims, quite simply, she acquired "* * * tenure pursuant to an educational services endorsement [and] may not be involuntarily transferred back to an instructional position." (Petitioner's letter memorandum) In support of that basic position, petitioner relies upon Childs v. Union Township Board of Ed, 1980 S.L.D. 1134, aff'd St. Bd. 1988 S.L.D. 1401. Petitioner also cites Horun v. Watchung Hills Regional High School, 1981 S.L.D. 360, aff'd St. Bd. 1982 S.L.D. 1982 S.L.D. 1518. Petitioner seeks an Order compelling the Board to immediately reassign her to the part-time position of teacher/coordinator of cooperative vocational technical education-business education.

The Board notes that petitioner's tenure status is not in issue because neither she nor her replacement as cooperative office education teacher has tenure in that position and neither suffered a salary reduction nor termination of employment. In this regard, the Board relies upon an unreported decision of the Appellate Division in Stegemann v. Board of Education of the Township of Union, N.J. App. Div., Oct. 7, 1981, A-4737-79 - T2 (unreported), cert. den., 89 N.J. 437 (1982). It is noted that the Board also acknowledges that a subsequent decision of the Appellate Division, again unreported, in Childs v. Union Township Board of Ed., (N.J. App. Div., July 19, 1982, - -) (unreported), cert. den., 91 N.J. 550 (1982) is contrary to Stegemann. Nevertheless, the Board points out that the State Board of Education in a recent decision, Ellicott v. Frankford Township Board of Ed., 1990 S.L.D. - (Nov. 19, 1990), appears to conflict with the opinion in Childs.

Next, the Board contends that petitioner is not entitled to the position of cooperative office education coordinator by virtue of seniority for the simple reason that no reduction in force has occurred under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. The Board notes that seniority has been declared to provide a mechanism for ranking all tenured teaching staff members when a reduction in force occurs for re-employment rights and cites Lictman v. Ridgewood Board of Education, 93 N.J. 362, 368n. 4 (1983), that seniority declares only the rights inter sese of tenured teachers in a reduction in force citing Bednar v. Westwood Board of Education, 221 N.J. Super 239, 243 (App. Div. 1987). In short, the Board maintains that seniority has relevance only where a reduction in the employment force is necessary and for no other purpose.

In this case, the Board contends that it has the right and the duty to assign teachers to particular grades and subjects and to deploy personnel in the manner which it considers most likely to promote the overall goal of providing all students with a thorough and efficient education and cites Ridgefield Park Education Association v. Ridgefield Park Board of Education, 78 N.J. 144, 156 (1978). Thus, the Board concludes that in the absence of any legally and enforceable right petitioner has to the position of cooperative office education its determination to reassign her from that employment may not be disturbed.

Petitioner's claim to have acquired a tenure status in the position of cooperative office education must be upheld and her separate acquisition of tenure as a teacher must be honored for the following reasons. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 provides "The services of all teaching staff members including all teachers * * * and such other employees as are in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners * * * shall be under tenure * * *" upon the assumption the individual serves the statutory requisite period of time. In this instance, petitioner has served the statutory period of time of more than three consecutive academic years to have acquired tenure as a teacher in the traditional sense. That is, petitioner is employed and assigned by the Board under an instructional certificate to perform teaching duties.

But between 1983 through June 1990 petitioner was also in a position, cooperative office education, which required her to hold an appropriate certificate issued by the board of examiners which is the educational services certificate, with an endorsement of teacher-coordinator of cooperative-vocational-technical education, N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.20. Petitioner, having acquired tenure as a teacher pursuant to an instructional certificate and tenure as a cooperative office education teacher under a separate educational services certificate, with an appropriate endorsement, may not under law be "* * * dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, or conduct unbecomming such a teaching staff member or other just cause * * *."

It is recognized N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 authorizes board of education to initiate reduction-in-force, or the elimination of certain teaching positions, and that if teachers with tenure are to be dismissed as a result, seniority determines which of the tenure teachers shall have their employment terminated. However, in this case it is agreed that no reduction-in-force occurred. What did occur is that petitioner, having served the requisite period of time and being properly certificated to have acquired tenure in the position of cooperative office education, was simply removed from that position by school administrators, without her consent, and reassigned full-time to another position. That petitioner suffered no salary reduction nor reduction in any other employment emoluments does not justify the removal of a tenured employee from the position in which tenure was acquired for mere transfer to another position. If such an administrative transfer could occur in this case, it could occur in the case where a school prinicpal has simultaneously acquired tenure as a teacher and as a principal, and having last acquired tenure as a principal, be reassigned from the principalship back to a full-time classroom position with no loss of salary or employment emoluments. Such is not the intent of the tenure statute. While it is acknowledged a school principal may be assigned to teach certain classes, there is no authority for a transfer from a tenure principal position to a full-time teaching position.

In the decision referenced by the Board regarding the State Board of Education, that decision has since been affirmed by the Appellate Division. See Ellicott v. Board of Education of the Township of Frankford, -N.J. Super - (App. Div., Oct 24, 1991) Judge Havey, writing for the court in a opinion approved for publication, discussed tenure and its acquisition in the following manner:

> Tenure is conferred by statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18, which "should be liberally construed to achieve its beneficent ends." Spiewak v. Board of Educ. of Rutherford, 90 N.J. 63, 74 (1982). N.J.S.A. 18A:28:5 defines with specificity the conditions under which teaching staff members are entitled to the security of tenure. It provides that the services of "all teaching staff members including ... teachers ... and such other employees as are in positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners," shall be under tenure upon satisfying one of the requisite statutory probationary terms set forth in the staute. (Emphasis added). Thus, tenure is achieved by a teaching staff member who serves the probationary period either in a specifically designated "position," such as a teacher, or in "positions which require them to hold appropriate certificates...." While "position" is not defined by the act, "teaching staff member" is defined as a staff member who holds "office, position or employment" which requires that he or she "hold a valid ... certificate...." N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1. (Emphasis added). Also, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-4 provides that "[n] o teaching staff member shall acquire tenure in any position ... who is not the holder of an appropriate certificate for such position...." (Emphasis added).
> As the State Board properly observed, what is clear from the statutory scheme is that tenure is achieved in a specific "position," and the scope of the tenured position is initially limited by the "certificate" the teaching staff member must hold to satisfy the prerequisite of qualifications for his or her employment. The statute does not require service of the probationary term under a specific "endorsement." Because the legislative will is expressed by the plain language of the statute, we will "not engage in conjecture or surmise which will circumvent the plain meaning of the act." In re Closing of Jamesburg High School, 83 N.J. 540, 548 (1980).

The State Department of Education regulations provide for three types of regular certifications: instructional; administrative, and educational services. N.J.A.C. 6:11-2.3. The Board of Examiners may issue for each teaching, administrative or educational services position a "special endorsement" under the appropriate certificate. Id. Under each certification there are numerous "special endorsements" required for teaching staff member assignments in specific fields. For example, N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.3 to 11.20 enumerate various endorsements under the educational services certificate, including LDTC and speech correctionist. A teaching staff member holding an educational services certificate is qualified to serve in any assignment under that certificate for which he or she holds the requisite endorsement. Also, teachers holding an instructional certificate are authorized and qualified for service under the certificate for which the member possess the appropriate endoresement. N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.1 to -8.7. Thus, unlike the statutory language under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, which predicates tenure to a particular "position" upon the acqusition of a "certificate," the regulations enumerate endorsements under the certificates which, if acquired, qualify the teaching staff member to be assigned to the endorsement position.

We have already upheld a State Board determination, in a different setting, that a teaching staff member has tenure in all positions for which his instructional certificate qualified him. In Capodilupo, the State Board distinguished seniority rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 (which provides a mechanism for ranking tenured teaching staff members so that reductions can be effected in an equitable fashion) from tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. N.J. Super. at 514-15. See also Lichtman, 93 N.J. at 368, n.4. We endorsed the State Board's determination that a tenured teacher is entitled to retention as against a nontenured teacher regardless of seniority, in the event of a RIF. Capodilupo, 218 N.J. Super. at 514-15. We held that "a tenured teacher seeking reinstatement within the endorsements on his or her certificate is entitled to preference in a RIF as against a non-tenured applicant with the same certification." Id. at 515 (emphasis added). This was so despite the fact that the tenured teacher had no "demonstrable experience" under the endorsement. Id. at 513. See also Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Educ., 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1987), certif. denied, 110 N.J. 512 (1988) (the Tenure Act "surely does not contemplate use of the concept of seniority to justify retaining a non-tenured teacher in a position within the certificate of a dismissed tenured teacher"). 221 N.J. Super. at 242 (emphasis added). The State Board's determination here is entirely consistent with the Capodilupo and Bednar holdings.

The Local Board urges that even if Capodilupo and Bednar properly define the scope of a teacher's tenure protection under an instructional certificate, the reasoning of the decisions should not apply to teaching staff members employed under an educational services certificate. It argues that Capodilupo and Bednar "[do] not logically apply to endorsements held under the [e]ducational [s]ervices certificate, because those endorsements constitute separate categories of jobs rather than distinct subject areas, as is the case with instructional certificate endorsements."

The short answer to this argument is that the statute and attendant regulations make no such distinction. What is apparent from the statutory language is that the Legislature left it to the State Board to promulgate specifications concerning the categories of "certification," and we cannot intervene unless the State Board's decision is palpably arbitrary. Shelton College v. State Bd of Educ., 48 N.J. 501, 517-18 (1967). The regulations defining the parameters of each certificate are accorded a presumption of reasonableness. In re Amendment of N.J.A.C. 8:31B-3.31 and N.J.A.C. 8:31B-3.51, 119 N.J. 531, 544 (1990). We must presume that the State Board, applying its expertise, cataloged the numerous endorsements, including speech correctionist and LDTC, under the single umbrella of the educational services certificate for sound administrative and educational reasons. See id. at 543; see also In re Amendments to N.J.A.C. 6:11-8.4, 249 N.J. Super. 52, 57 (App. Div. 1991). Indeed, comparing the pertinent endorsements here, it becomes clear that there exists integrated and overlapping functions and duties under the speech correctionist and LDTC endorsements. As petitioner points out, both participate in child study teams and in presenting specialized remediative services to school district children. See N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.9 and N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.13. Moreover, any differences among the endorsements, in the context of tenure rights, become less significant since the teaching staff member asserting a tenure right under the certification must still qualify for the particular position by securing the pertinent endorsement.

Lastly, the Local Board argues even if petitioner had tenure entitlement to the LDTC position, it had "sound educationally-based reasons" for its decision to employ a nontenured person rather than petitioner. In Capodilupo, we observed in dictum that:

> We recoginze that, in upholding the [Local] Board's decision to retain [a nontenured teacher], the State Board also made a finding that the Board's obligation to consider tenure in a RIF could be balanced by "sound educationally based reasons for its decision to retain a non-tenured teacher."

218 N.J. Super. at 515-16. However, we found it "both unnecessary and inappropriate" to address the merits of this portion of the State Board's opinion because the Local Board had advanced "no educationally based reasons" to retain the nontenured teacher, beyond his experience, as an elementary teacher. Id. at 516.

> We now question whether, at least in the context before us, there can be any "sound educationally based reasons" for retaining a nontenured over a tenured teaching staff member in the event of a RIF, once the statutory right ot tenure is fixed. Indeed, in Bednar, the State Board had concluded that tenure did not permit a teacher to claim an assignment in a job catergory against a nontenured teacher who had seniority in that category. 221 N.J. Super. at 242. We held that while the State Board's approach may or may not represent "sound educational policy," it erodes tenure rights "which appear plain on the face of the statute, which we are bound to recognize and which can be removed only by the Legislture." Id. at 243...

Even if the tenure law allows for "sound educational policy," there is no evidence in the case before me that petitioner was removed from the cooperative office education position in which she had tenure for such reasons. Rather, the evidence discloses that school administrators simply declared they were to discontinue the program only to reverse that proposed action at a subsequent time while simultaneously removing petitioner from that position. In short, the Board does not claim that there was a reorganization or other just cause for the complained of action.

Based on the facts in this case, together with the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has under law acquired a tenure status in the position of cooperative office education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and that, as a result, she may not be removed from that position except as provided by law. Therefore, petitioner is to reassigned to the position of part-time cooperative office education, while retaining her part-time position under her instructional certificate, as soon as is practicable following the final decision in this matter.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF SPOTSWOOD, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and petitioner's reply thereto were timely filed under the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

The Board's exceptions aver that petitioner's tenure rights are not implicated in the instant matter as she has been neither dismissed nor reduced in compensation and that a mere transfer is neither a demotion nor a dismissal.

The Board also excepts to the ALJ's determination that petitioner can acquire tenure within endorsements on educational certificates. It avers that Ellicott, supra, upon which the ALJ relied, stands for the exact opposite to his determination that petitioner acquired tenure in the position of cooperative office education under her educational services certificate and that the instant matter is distinguishable from Ellicott because it involved the rights of a tenured teacher against a nontenured teacher where there had been a reduction in force.

Further, the Board excepts to the ALJ's determination that it may not reassign petitioner within the scope of her certificates and endorsements in that the initial decision's effect wrongfully denies it the right to do that.

Upon review of the record and the parties' exceptions, the Commissioner fully concurs with the ALJ's legal conclusions, finding his analysis of the issues and pertinent law both well-reasoned and accurate with one modification as set forth below. The ALJ states on page 9 of the initial decision that petitioner acquired tenure in the position of cooperative office education. However, the State Board's decision in Ellicott, supra, indicates that staff members who serve under educational services certificates achieve tenure in the position of "educational services."

Thus, contrary to the Board's arguments otherwise, petitioner by virtue of her service under an educational services certificate acquired tenure in the position of "educational services." See State Board's November 19, 1990 decision in Ellicott, supra, at pp. 7-8.

Consequently, petitioner could not be removed from her tenured educational services position absent a reduction in force or dismissal under the Tenure Employees Hearing Act. Childs, supra; Ayoub v. Bd. of Ed. of South Plainfield, decided by the Commissioner May 24, 1988 The fact that she was not dismissed or reduced in salary does not alter this determination.

Moreover, the Board's claim that this determination robs it of its right to transfer within the scope of petitioner's certificates and endorsements is without merit. Petitioner by virtue of her service in the Spotswood School District under her instructional certificate has acquired tenure in the position of teacher. As determined herein, she has also acquired tenure under her educational services certificate. The Board is in no way prohibited by this decision from transferring petitioner within the scope of her instructional certificate and endorsements for that portion of her full-time employment which is a teaching position. Nor is the Board prohibited from transferring or reassigning petitioner within the scope of her educational services certificate for that portion of her full-time employment which is an educational services position.

Accordingly, the initial decision is affirmed. Petitioner is, therefore, ordered reinstated to her tenured educational services position.

This matter was opened by way of Notice of Motion for Stay by the Spotswood Board of Education (Board) dated February 27, 1992 and filed with the Commissioner on March 2, 1992 seeking a stay of his decision in this matter issued on February 6, 1992. Said decision is currently pending before the State Board of Education.

The Board seeks a stay of the Commissioner's decision on the basis of the fact petitioner is employed full time by it and is currently assigned under her instructional certificate. The Board avers that should it be required to reassign her as ordered on February 6, 1992 by the Commissioner, it would have to remove another tenured teacher from an educational services position in the middle of the year which would, in the Board's judgment, be disruptive to the educational program and to students, as well as contrary to a thorough and efficient education.

On March 16, 1992 petitioner filed an affidavit in opposition to the Motion for Stay. The affidavit was, however, untimely filed pursuant to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:2-2.2.

Upon review of the Board's request for a stay and the arguments contained therein, the Commissioner denies said stay due to the failure of the Board to meet the standards for the granting of injunctive relief set forth by the New Jersey Supreme Court in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982). This determination is reached based on the fact that the Board has not demonstrated that irreparable harm would result absent the granting of injunctive relief. Nor has the Board demonstrated a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of its appeal nor that the public interest compels granting a stay.

Accordingly, it is ordered this 1 day of April 1992 that the stay be DENIED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JACKSON, OCEAN COUNTY, PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
GUSTAVO ACEVEDO, JR., RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board of Education sought declaratory judgment with respect to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 as to whether a conflict of interest existed, requiring respondent to withdraw his civil lawsuit against the Board for accident to son on monkey bars, or forfeit his seat on the Board.

ALJ found that a board member who filed a lawsuit against the board, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2, must forfeit his or her seat as he was in receipt of monetary judgments. ALJ ordered Board member be removed as he was in conflict of interest.

Commissioner affirmed in part and rejected in part the initial decision. Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that respondent's claim against the Board, which had been lodged at time he ran for Board seat, constituted a substantial and material conflict of interest that would have required respondent's disqualification. However, Commissioner found contrary to ALJ, that because the lawsuit was settled on October 24, 1991 and because there were no allegations that respondent exercised influence over Board regarding the litigation that was the subject of the instant petition, or that he would exercise influence in the future, or be enriched in the future, respondent had no longer a conflict of interest, and thus there remained no current impediment to his serving on the Board. Remedy was declared moot.

Eward F. Liston, Esquire, for the respondent (Liston and Pinizzotto, attorneys)

RECORD CLOSED: November 9, 1991 DECIDED: December 19, 1991

BEFORE: LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Board of Education of the Township of Jackson (Board) seeks a declaratory judgment with respect to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 as to whether a conflict of interest exists which requires Gustav Acevedo, II, (respondent) to either withdraw his civil lawsuit against the Board or forfeit his seat on the Board. Respondent contends, among other things, that the legal action against the Board is being prosecuted by his wife on behalf of their son and, therefore, his claim in the matter is merely a tangential per quod claim and not such as would create a conflict of interest which could not be cured by his abstaining from any actions having to do with his claim. Respondent further contends the matter has been settled for a monetary sum and that it is his understanding the matter was to be dismissed.

MOTION

The Board now moves for Summary Decision in its favor asserting, among other things, that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 1:1-12.5.

Having carefully considered the criteria for summary judgment established by our Supreme Court in Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67(1954) and, having carefully considered the entire record before me; I CONCLUDE that the instant matter is ripe for summary decision.

ISSUE

The sole issue to be determined by this tribunal is whether a conflict of interest exits, as prohibited by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2, which requires respondent to either withdraw his civil lawsuit against the Board or forfeit his seat on the Board?

THE STATUTE

The statute which is in controversy in this matter, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2, states in pertinent part, as follows:

> No member of any board of education shall be interested directly or indirectly in any contract with or claim against the board .....

UNCONTESTED FACTS

Respondent, as the result of the April 30, 1991 annual school election, was elected to the Jackson Township Board of Education and was seated as a member at the Board's organization meeting on May 7, 1991. Respondent is one of three plaintiffs in a civil lawsuit, Docket No. OCN-L-5116-89, against the Board and three employees for injuries to his son, Gustavo Acevedo III, who fell from the monkey bars at a Jackson Township school in which his son was enrolled as a pupil. Respondent acknowledges in paragraph 2 of the Fourth Count of the Complaint that he and his wife are "responsible for the debts, care and maintenance of, and are entitled to the services and society" of their son. The civil action lawsuit sought damages on behalf of respondent's son for his pain and suffering and on behalf of respondent, individually, and on behalf of his wife, individually, for deprivation of their son's society and services, compensatory damages for the cost of his son's medical treatment, and pecuniary loss of an unspecified amount for being prevented from continuing their regular duties and occupations while seeking medical care for their son.

On October 24, 1991, judgment was entered in behalf of respondent's son against the Board in the amount of $30,000.

DISCUSSION OF THE LAW

The determination of whether a board of education member who has filed a lawsuit against his board has a conflict of interest that requires him or her to either drop the claim or else forfeit his or her seat on the board focuses on the nature of the board member's interest at stake in the claim. If the goal of the lawsuit is to vindicate the public's interest, as, for example, in an action challenging a contract issued by the board to the school district superintendent, then the board member may retain his or her seat but must abstain from participating in any discussion or vote regarding the litigation. Scotch Plains-Fanwood Bd. of Ed. v. Syvertsen, Comm'r decision (June 13, 1990). In contrast, if the lawsuit seeks compensatory or punitive damages that will accrue to the benefit of the board member personally, then there likely exists a substantial and material conflict of interest requiring either withdrawal of the claim or forfeiture of board membership. Tp. of Holmdel Bd. of Ed., Monmouth County v. O'Connell, Comm'r decision (May 10, 1990).

The statue prohibiting board members from having an "inconsistent interest or office," N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2, reads in pertinent part: "No member of any board of education shall be interested directly or indirectly in any contract with or claim against the board . . . ." (emphasis added). The decisions interpreting N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 fall into two categories of cases: 1) those in which the alleged conflict of interest arises when a board member (or the member's spouse or close relative) enters into a contract (commercial or employment) with the board, and 2) those in which a board member lodges a legal claim against the board.

In an often-quoted, though not education-related, case dealing with a contract-based conflict of interest, Aldom v. Borough of Roseland, 42 N.J. Super. 495 (App. Div. 1956), the court emphasized the fiduciary duty a council member as public officer owes the citizens of his community. Declaring that "[t]he law tolerates no mingling of self interest "but rather"demands exclusive loyalty," id. at 500, and that citizens "have the right to expect that in everything that appertains to their business or welfare, [the public officer] will exercise his best judgment, unaffected and undiluted by anything which might inure to his own interest as an individual," id. at 501, the court invalidated a zoning ordinance on a taxpayer challenge because a councilman who was a twenty-three-year employee of the corporation seeking the zoning change had participating in the vote.

The Aldom court addressed the assertion that the councilman, as a middle-management employee, would not directly benefit economically from the zoning change. It pointed out that the "interest which disqualifies is not necessarily a direct pecuniary one, nor is the amount of such an interest of paramount importance. It may be indirect; it is such an interest as is covered by the moral rule: no man can serve two masters whose interests conflict." Id. at 502. Consequently, the decision to disqualify a public officer on the grounds of conflict of interest must depend on the facts and circumstances of each particular case. Id. at 503. The Aldom court thus set out the overarching policy considerations to be weighed in conflict of interest cases involving public officers. (It is interesting to note that the Aldom court cited with approval the "Public Officers Law of New York," proscribing "'any interest, financial or otherwise, direct or indirect, . . . which is in substantial conflict with the proper discharge of [their] duties in the public interest," Id. at 502. The identical phrasing was incorporated into the 1971 New Jersey Conflicts of Interest Law at N.J.S.A. 52:13D-23(e)(1).)

"Contract with" cases under N.J.S.A. 18A.:12-2

Narrowing the discussion to conflict of interest cases decided pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2, the "contract with" branch of decisions focus on whether the conflict of interest is substantially and materially sufficient to disqualify the board member from his or her seat. This standard was imported by the State Board of Education from the general New Jersey Conflicts of Interest Law, which requires that the "standards of conduct [adopted by state agencies pursuant to the general principles in the statute] should separate those conflicts of interest which are unavoidable in a free society from those conflicts of interest which are substantial and material, or which bring government into disrepute." In re Bayless, 1974 S.L.D. 595, rev'd St. Bd. of Ed., 1974 S.L.D. 603, 605 (quoting N.J.S.A. 52:13D-23(e)(8)). Thus, in Bayless, the State Board, in reversing the Commissioner, held that the board member was not barred from her seat simply by virtue of her being married to a long-term board employee. Since it saw the board member's statutorily created right to hold public office, N.J.S.A. 10:1-1, being abridged on the basis of marital status, the State Board used an equal protection-strict scrutiny analysis and found that the board member did not have such a direct and continuing interest in her husband's employment contract that her disqualification from the board could be a compelling state interest. The State Board held the remedy of abstention adequate, but, echoing the Aldom court, cautioned that its holding was limited to the facts and merits of the case before it. Id. at 605-06.

The Bayless approach was subsequently applied in Elms v. Mt. Olive Tp. Bd. of Ed., Morris County, 1977 S.L.D. 713, where the Commissioner found no conflict of interest in the employment by the board of a board member's spouse or close relative , id. at 721, or in a board member's being a teacher in an adjoining school district. Id. at 722. The Commissioner did, however, condemn as a conflict of interest in contravention of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 the board's entering into a business transaction with a close relative of a board member. Id. at 722.

Although the respondent in the case at bar cites Salerno v. Old Bridge Tp. Bd. of Ed., Middlesex County, 6 N.J.A.R. 405 (1984) in support of his contention that any conflict of interest arising from his tort claim against the board can be cured by abstention, Salerno (holding that board members who negotiated contracts with employee bargaining units in which some of the board members' relatives were participants were not in a conflict of interest and, in fact, were not required to abstain from voting on such contracts although they had taken the precaution of doing so) comes from the "contract with" branch of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 decisions. The remedy of abstention as applied in "claim against" cases is discussed below.

"Claim against" cases under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2

In the "claim against" category of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 conflict of interest decisions, the pivotal issue is whether the board member's claim is intended to vindicate the public's interest or instead will accrue to the board member's personal benefit. When the claim is made on behalf of the public's interest, the board member is not subject to disqualification, but he or she may be required to abstain from any discussions or votes regarding the litigation. Scotch Plains-Fanwood Bd. of Ed. v. Syvertsen, Comm'r decision (June 13, 1990); Bd. of Ed. of Newark v. Brown, 1984 S.L.D. 671, aff'd St. Bd., 1984 S.L.D. 683; Bd. of Ed. of Borough of Barrington, Camden County v. Heins, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 1272-86 (March 21, 1986), remanded by Comm'r for analysis of cases and issues (Apr. 24, 1986).

In Scotch Plains-Fanwood, the board member had lodged a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education in which he challenged the propriety of a contract his board had made with the school district's superintendent. The board argued that N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 gave it an implied right to exclude the claimant-board member from executive sessions wherein the litigation was to be discussed. The Commissioner found in favor of the board, but he did not find it necessary to stretch

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 to cover exclusion as well as disqualification. Instead, he grounded his decision on the New Jersey Open Public Meetings Act, which does allow the public, and, it follows, the board member, to be excluded in order to protect the attorney-client privilege between the board and its counsel. N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b)(7).

In Newark, the claim the board asserted must disqualify the newly elected board members was their appeal to the Appellate Division from the dismissal of the suit filed under the Open Public Meetings Act, as well as their claim under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-20 for reimbursement of the legal costs of defending against the disqualification action. The Commissioner dismissed the board's argument that N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 required automatic disqualification for "any" claim against a board of education as inconsistent with the statute and with case law, citing Hogan v. Kearny Bd. of Ed., 1982 S.L.D. 329, adopted Comm'r of Ed., 1982 S.L.D. 354, aff'd St. Bd., 1982 S.L.D. 356 (while suit for reimbursement of legal fees was a claim against board within purview of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2, such claim does not automatically disqualify board member, and abstention doctrine as applied in Bayless would be appropriate if board were to vote on fees voucher). He applied the test set forth in Bayless; i.e., that the claim against the board allegedly giving rise to the conflict of interest, under the circumstances of the particular case, must promise "substantial and material" benefit to the claimant before it can result in disqualification, and found that the board members were indeed pursuing a claim in the public interest rather than "personal aggrandizement and enrichment." Newark, 1984 S.L.D. at 680. Alluding to the finding of the Aldom court, which recognized that the personal interest that could create a conflict of interest did not necessarily have to be pecuniary, the Commissioner nevertheless concluded that whatever political advantage the board member may have been seeking by bringing suit was unproved and likely unprovable in the context of a vigorous election campaign. Id. at 681.

The Barrington case is troublesome as a precedent because the case was withdrawn after the Commissioner remanded it for an explanation of the rationale for the initial decision but before such further action was taken by the administrative law judge. Thus, while it is not clear whether the claim against the board in Barrington, which sought retraction of the board's resolution of censure and a public apology, amounted to a conflict of interest requiring disqualification under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 (the administrative law judge had held that it did not), the Commissioner did call attention to the Newark test for determining a conflict of interest, i.e., whether in light of the particular facts and circumstances, the claim was likely to substantially and materially benefit the claimant. Barrington, Comm'r decision (April 24, 1986) at 9.

When, as in the case at bar, the board member is a party to a suit against the board seeking monetary damages, whether compensatory or punitive, the finding of a conflict of interest sufficient to disqualify the board member seems inevitable because the material and substantial benefit to the claimant-board member is clear. That the board member's claim is per quod does not erase the personal financial benefit he will reap if the underlying suit is successful.

In a recent case, Tp. of Holmdel Bd. of Ed., Monmouth County v. O'Connell, Comm'r decision (May 10, 1990), the Commissioner again applied the Newark analysis and determined that a board member who was a named plaintiff in a suit seeking compensatory and punitive damages for alleged negligence and intentional torts committed by agents and employees of the board against the member's son, and asking as well for compensation for tuition and transportation expenses incurred when the son enrolled in another school, was "by operation of [N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2]," id. at 10, precluded from further service as a board member. The Commissioner observed that "it cannot seriously be argued that such claim is insubstantial" or that, if the board member won on his claim, that there would not result "a material gain to him personally." Id. Neither the language of the statute nor the legislative history nor case law interpreting the statute supported the board member's narrow construction of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 as targeting only conflicts of interest arising from claims based on the simultaneous holding of conflicting public offices. Id. at 10-14. Second, the statute did not limit causes for removal to those delineated in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-1 (sitting board member ineligible for appointment to paid position required to be filled by board) and section 12-3 (sitting board member removable if ceases to be resident of district, becomes mayor or member of governing body of a municipality, breaches the attendance requirement, is disqualified as a voter, or is convicted of false swearing); rather, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 is an additional source of cause for removal, i.e., disqualification for conflicts of interest. Id. at 14.

The Commissioner in Holmdel also quoted extensively from a State Board of Education decision applying N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 in a case wherein a board member who had been sued by the board to recover monies allegedly paid him improperly counterclaimed against the board for compensation and punitive damages. Woodstown-Pilesgrove Regional Bd. of Ed., Salem County v. Ketas, 1979 S.L.D. 353, rev'd St. Bd., 1989 S.L.D. 1563. The State Board's conclusion in Woodstown-Pilesgrove that the Commissioner particularly emphasized in Holmdel, and which is apropos to the case at bar, was the following: "[The Respondent is] actively suing the Board for compensatory and punitive damages. Obviously Respondent's conflict with the Board is strong and persistent. In this situation the law requires a person to choose between sitting on the Board and litigating his claims against it. So long as the litigation over the counterclaim continues, the Respondents lacks eligibility to be a member of the petitioning Board." Holmdel at 13, quoting Woodstown-Pilesgrove at 1564.

CONCLUSIONS

I CONCLUDE that a member of a board of education who files a lawsuit against the board on which she or he sits will be required, under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2, to forfeit his or her seat if it is found that the claim would, if successful, bring the board member substantial and material personal benefit.

I CONCLUDE that respondent Gustav Acevedo, II, was in receipt of a monetary judgment, per quod, against the Jackson Township Board of Education and, therefore, is in conflict of interest pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2.

I CONCLUDE, under the facts and circumstances of this matter, that respondent Gustav Acevedo, II has forfeited his seat on The Board of Education of the Township of Jackson.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that summary decision be and is hereby entered on behalf of the Jackson Township Board of Education and Declared that respondent Gustav Acevedo, II is in conflict of interest with the Board.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that respondent Gustav Acevedo, II immediately be removed as member of the Jackson Township Board of Education by operation of law.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JACKSON, OCEAN COUNTY, PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
GUSTAVO ACEVEDO, JR., RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent filed timely exceptions pursuant to the dictates of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Board filed timely reply exceptions. However, the Board's reply to petitioner's reply exceptions was not considered in that there is no provision in law providing for such submission.

Respondent's exceptions are tersely stated and are therefore recited verbatim:

> 1. The conclusion that a member of a board of education who files a lawsuit against the board on which she or he sits will be required, under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2, to forfeit his or her seat if it is found that the claim would, if successful, bring the board member substantial and material personal benefit.
> 2. The conclusion that respondent, [Gustavo Acevedo, Jr.], was in receipt of a monetary judgment, per quod, against the Jackson Township Board of Education and, therefore, is in conflict of interest pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2.
> 3. The conclusion that under the facts and circumstances of this matter, that respondent, [Gustavo Acevedo, Jr.], has forfeited his seat on The Board of Education of the Township of Jackson.

4. The Order that respondent, [Gustavo Acevedo, Jr.], immediately be removed as a member of the Jackson Township Board of Education by operation of law.

5. Gustavo Acevedo, [Jr.] did not personally benefit by the lawsuit against the Board and, nevertheless, the issue in this case was rendered moot as a result of the settlement of the personal injury lawsuit filed in favor of Gustavo Acevedo III pursuant to an Order for Judgment and Order for Deposit which was entered on October 24, 1991 by the Honorable Bernard A. Kannen, J.S.C. A conflict of interest does not exist under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 which would require Gustavo Acevedo, [Jr.] to be removed as a member of the Jackson Township Board of Education. Further, any potential or alleged conflict of interest can be cured by Gustavo Acevedo, [Jr.] abstaining from any activities or votes involving the claim of his son, Gustavo Acevedo III against the Board. (Exceptions, at p. 2)

The Board's reply exceptions support the ALJ's conclusions for the reasons expressed therein, citing the Township of Holmdel Board of Education, Monmouth County v. Stephen O'Connell, decided by the Commissioner May 10, 1990 as being dispositive of this matter, because the facts in the Holmdel case are virtually identical to those in the instant matter. The Board's other reply exceptions are as terse as those presented by respondent, and are thus also set forth herein, verbatim:

2. The conclusion that respondent was in receipt of a monetary judgment, per quod, against the Jackson Township Board of Education is factually correct. It is admitted by respondent in Exception number 5 that the lawsuit causing disqualification was settled for a monetary sum. It is immaterial to the existence of a conflict as to whether the settlement payment was characterized as payable directly to respondent or only to his minor son, since the statute prohibits even an indirect interest. This settlement caused petitioner to benefit materially and substantially. In accordance with > the Commissioner's decision in Holmdel, respondent was disqualified from membership on the Board.

> The ALJ's decision was made in accordance and in compliance with NJSA 18A:12-2, which provides for the disqualification of board members and removal for conflicts of interest.
> 3. The ALJ properly concluded as a matter of law under the facts and circumstances of this matter, that respondent has forfeited his seat on the Board of Education of the Township of Jackson. The ALJ fully supported his decision by citing the applicable statutes and case law, which establishes that forfeiture is proper under the circumstances.
>
> 4. The order that respondent be immediately removed as a member of the Jackson Township Board of Education by operation of law is fully supported by the applicable statutes and case law.
> 5. Respondent did personally benefit by the lawsuit in question, which he filed against the Board. He reaped the monetary benefits of the settlement award as guardian for his infant son. Under the rule of prior case law and most pointedly the decision in Holmdel, the issue is rendered moot only if the lawsuit causing the conflict of interest and disqualification is withdrawn and not if the lawsuit is settled, resulting in a material gain [to] the board member or his family. (Reply Exceptions, at p. 2)

The Board claims no remedy other than forfeiture is appropriate because respondent has remained on the Board pending administrative review and has reaped the benefit of his conflict of interest with the Board through monetary gain, which it claims is prohibited by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2. To decide otherwise would frustrate the statutory intent, and thus the Board seeks affirmance of the initial decision.

Upon a careful and independent review of the instant matter, the Commissioner adopts as his own that part of the initial decision which determined that a member of a board of education who files a lawsuit against the board on which he or she sits is in conflict with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 if the claim brings the board member substantial and material personal benefit. Holmdel, supra The Commissioner also concurs with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ below, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision, that respondent herein was in fact in conflict of interest with the Board of Education herein at the time he was seated as a Board member on May 7, 1990 due to his having been a plaintiff in a civil lawsuit, Docket No. OCN-L-5116-89, against the Board and three employees for injuries alleged against his son, which sought damages, compensatory damages and pecuniary loss of an unspecified amount of money. See, Woodstown-Pilesgrove Regional Bd. of Ed. v. Ketas, 1979 S.L.D. 353, rev'd St. Bd. 1980 S.L.D. 1563 wherein it was stated

> [The Respondent is] actively suing the Board for compensatory and punitive damages. Obviously Respondent's conflict with the Board is strong and persistent. In this situation the law requires a person to choose between sitting on the Board and litigating his claims against it. So long as the litigation over the counterclaim continues, the Respondent lacks eligibility to be a member of the petitioning Board.

See also Holmdel, supra, wherein, upon finding a conflict of interest between respondent and the Board existed "since no doubt exists that such a claim indeed has been lodged by respondent against the Board," (Slip Opinion, at p. 15), the Commissioner directed that respondent either withdraw his claim against the Board or forfeit his seat on the Board.

Such case, however, requires that the Commissioner reject the conclusion of the ALJ below that respondent must now forfeit his seat on the Board. Made a part of the record of this matter is a letter from respondent's attorney indicating that Acevedo's case against the Board was settled on October 24, 1991. Such Order for Judgment and Order for Deposit renders the matter resolved between the parties, without recourse to further levels of appeal.

Consequently, the State Board language of Woodstown-Pilesgrove emphasized above makes plain that the respondent is no longer in conflict with the Board by virtue of the settlement of his case, with no avenue of appeal open to him. Accordingly, the Commissioner must reject the finding of the ALJ below that the respondent must forfeit his seat on the Board. Instead, he finds the issue of remedy is now moot. As there are no allegations that respondent exercised influence over the Board regarding the litigation that was the subject of the instant petition, or that he would exercise influence in the future, or be enriched in the future, the Commissioner finds and determines that no further remedy is available that he has authority to grant.

Accordingly, the initial decision is affirmed in part and rejected in part. The Commissioner finds and determines that while respondent was in fact in substantial and material conflict of interest with the Board of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 at the time he was seated, the impediment to his service on the Board has been eliminated by virtue of the settlement of his claim against the Board on October 24, 1991. Woodstown-Pilesgrove, supra The remedy sought by the Board herein, disqualification, is thus rendered moot. Summary Judgment on the merits is granted for the Board, but the remedy sought is found and determined to have been rendered moot.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

NEW JERSEY STATE INTERSCHOLASTIC ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board sought reversal of decision for NJSIAA Executive Committee which affirmed Controversies Committee's determination holding Camden Board responsible for melee instigated by Camden fans at the Group IV semi-final basketball championship game between Camden High School basketball team and Trenton Central High School's basketball team on March 7, 1991 held at Monmouth College. Petitioner sought reversal of decision and resulting penalties which included a $1,000 fine, $1,500 in restitution for damage to the college facility and that the Camden basketball program be placed on probation for two years, during which it would be ineligible to participate in the state championship tournament for at least one year, and would be required to submit various game reports to NJSIAA. Executive Committee affirmed findings and determinations of Controversies Committee finding exclusion from championship games is a penalty permitted under the Association rules and regulations for unsportsmanlike conduct which extends to fan behavior as well as team behavior. Further, individual boards of education, as members, are responsible for crowd control due to need for security at, and integrity of, interscholastic sport competitions.

Having reviewed record including testimony of eyewitnesses and documentary evidence, Commissioner found conduct at game to have been instigated by Camden fans, to have been an extremely serious breach of good sportsmanship as established by Article IX of the NJSIAA Handbook, and the result of poor fan control by Camden security, in violation of the NJSIAA rules and regulations. Thus, findings of Committees were deemed to be proper and penalties reasonable. Request for Emergent Relief which accompanied Board's Petition of Appeal was denied for failure to demonstrate irreparable harm and success on the merits of the case, which Commissioner considered fully. Petition was dismissed.

For Petitioner, Clifford L. Van Syoc, Esq.

For Respondent, Picco, Mack, Herbert, Kennedy, Jaffe & Yoskin (Michael J. Herbert, Esq., of Counsel)

This matter has come before the Commissioner of Education by way of Petition of Appeal and Motion for Emergent Relief filed by the Petitioning Board (Camden) on December 12, 1991 seeking a stay of the determination by the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) Executive Committee dated September 17, 1991, which affirmed the decision of the Controversies Committee dated June 26, 1991, involving an incident which occurred on March 7, 1991, following the conclusion of a basketball game between the Camden High School basketball team and the Trenton Central High School basketball team in the Group IV, semi-final basketball championship, held at Monmouth College gymnasium. The parties acknowledge that the game itself proceeded without incident into double overtime, and was ultimately won by Camden by a score of 87 to 85. There are no allegations of unsportsmanlike conduct committed by any of the athletes during the game. Rather, the crux of this dispute challenges the NJSIAA determination which found Camden responsible for a melee at the site which NJSIAA finds was instigated by Camden fans resulting in several injuries and the destruction of Monmouth College property. The Association assessed Camden Board of Education a $1,000 fine, $1,500 in restitution for damage to the College facility and placed Camden basketball program on probation for two years, during which time it would be ineligible to participate in the state championship tournament for at least one year, and would be required to submit game reports to NJSIAA on all security measures taken, all efforts made to educate its fans as to proper standards of conduct, and all accounts of unsportsmanlike conduct.

On December 13, 1991 the Acting Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes notified counsel for Camden that because the action complained of occurred by decision of the Executive Committee three months before the Board filed its petition with the Commissioner, any suggestion of urgency was defeated. The Acting Director stated that, upon further receipt of an Answer and response to the Motion, the Commissioner would decide if the Motion for Emergent Relief and the merits should be decided simultaneously, in which event an accelerated schedule for briefing would be established. Thereafter, on December 30, 1991, NJSIAA filed its Answer and Document Index and Table of Items regarding the record below. By letter dated January 3, 1992 the Acting Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes directed the parties to submit briefs on the merits of their claims followed by a five-day period in which to submit reply briefs. It was further determined by the Acting Director that upon receipt of all submissions, the Commissioner of Education would decide the emergent relief motion and the merits of the case simultaneously, on an accelerated schedule, in that the basketball championship is to be held on Friday, February 14, 1992. The record was expected to close on January 21, 1992.

However, by letter faxed January 15, 1992 to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, Camden sought an extension to file its submission, due to a change of counsel. Said request was granted with submissions from petitioner due January 27, and February 3, 1992 and respondent's reply brief due also on February 3, 1992.

All submissions were received timely by February 3, 1992. Camden notes that its brief in support of the petition also serves in reply to respondent's brief in opposition filed on February 3, 1992.

Petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief for stay of enforcement of the penalties imposed by NJSIAA pending final adjudication of the merits cites Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) as articulating the standards for the granting of pendente lite restraints. Before presenting its legal argument petitioner submitted the following version of the facts following the game:

> The game was attended by approximately 1,000 to 1,500 fans, who were seated in spectator areas on both sides of the court. Spectators and fans attending the game were free to sit anywhere in the spectator areas, although one side was designated for each respective school. Other than the general designation of each side of the seating area there was no way for anyone to determine where any particular spectator would be seated.
> During the contest, there was obviously fan involvement, consisting of normal and expected cheering and displays of support and > encouragement. On at least two occasions, fans on the site of the court designated for Camden were asked to return to their seats, which they did. There were no claims of any unsportsmanlike activities committed during the game by fans, spectators, students or the teams, except that certain Trenton High School students were admittedly taunting Camden students during halftime.

> After the game had concluded a disturbance occurred amongst the spectators and fans who had attended the game. During this disturbance chairs were thrown into the stands which had been designated as the Trenton side, and chairs were also thrown back from the stands onto people remaining on the floor area. At the time this disturbance occurred the entire Camden High School Basketball Team, their coaches and support personnel, had already left the court and entered the locker room area.
> While it was clear that a disturbance did occur, there was never any identification of the persons involved. The disturbance also admittedly involved only a small number of persons. There were no persons associated with, or specifically identified as coming from Camden High School, be they teachers, students, administrators, athletes or employees who were involved in the disturbance that occurred after the game.
> (Petitioner's Brief in Support of Motion for Stay received December 12, 1991, at pp. 2-3)

Petitioner's Reply Brief dated January 27, 1992, added 18 pages to its version of the facts with transcript citations which are incorporated herein by reference. Because the Motion for Emergent Relief was belatedly submitted, at the same time that the Commissioner will consider the Motion for Stay under the standards articulated in Crowe, supra, for pendente lite restraints, he will also decide the merits of the matter under the standard of review articulated by the Courts in reviewing an appeal from NJSIAA. That standard holds that the Commissioner will not substitute his judgment for that of the Association, even if he were to decide differently in a de novo hearing, where due process has been provided and where there is an adequate basis for the decision reached by the NJSIAA Committees. See, e.g., Dam Jin Koh and Hong Jun Kim v. NJSIAA, decided by the Commissioner February 3, 1987.

Camden appeals the basis for the Controversies Committee's determination, alleging the findings of fact and conclusions were both unreasonable and not supported by substantial, competent credible evidence; that the penalty imposed was arbitrary and capricious; that the determination was the subject of geographic bias and that an injustice and violation of the constitutional rights of Camden High School and its basketball players would result were the penalty not reversed.

Petitioner observes that the Association states at page 19 of its Handbook a provision of N.J.A.C. 6:29-6.4(b), that where athletic facilities are used which are not owned by the Board, the owner of the facility is required to provide adequate safeguard to players and spectators. Petitioner also notes that one of the objectives of the Association as set forth in Article II, Section 4 of its Constitution is "to promote uniformity in the arrangement and control of contests" (Petitioner's Brief, at p. 3, quoting page 22 of Handbook). Petitioner submits that despite this being an objective of the Association, NJSIAA has never promulgated or even suggested guidelines for the provision of security at contests, nor published recommendations as to the number of security personnel required for a specific crowd size or methods of crowd control and suggested practices. It claims the Association has no rule prohibiting spectators from coming onto the gym floor after the game in celebration so as to preclude potential altercations as occurred in this matter.

Camden also argues violations of due process, contending that it was prevented from presenting all of its evidence, including evidence regarding the impact of an adverse ruling on its players. It claims that the hearing examiner at the proceeding before the Controversies Committee limited to one day the testimony to be heard, and that any witnesses who did not appear on that day or who had not provided the Committee with written statements prior to the hearing would be barred from testifying. Camden claims the Association arbitrarily limited its ability to put on any more witnesses purportedly "in fairness to Trenton which produced all of its witnesses' statements." (Petitioner's Brief, at p. 5, citing Tr.272)

Camden also objects to the hearing's purpose being cast as intending "to consider whether or not the Camden High School Basketball Team acted in an unsportsmanlike manner at the March 5, 1991 Group IV Semi-Final Basketball Championship held at Monmouth College on that date." (emphasis in Brief) (Id., at p. 4, citing Tr.12) Camden charges that by allowing Trenton to proceed first at the hearing, it had the advantage of twelve witnesses; by the Association's unilateral imposition of procedural obstacles, unfounded in its Constitution, Bylaws, Rules, and Regulations, Camden was limited to the testimony of only nine witnesses.

Also in regard to due process, Camden avers the basketball team members themselves never received notice that their individual interests were potentially to be affected, nor notice that there was a specific charge of misconduct by any specific individual which could result in "group punishment." (Petitioner's Brief, at p. 21) Thus, Camden claims, the players were unaware that the potential punishment barring participation in the 1991-92 championship play-offs was contemplated, or that any such punishment would be based on an allegation that there was any specific prescribed standard of conduct which had been allegedly violated involving fans taking the floor after the game.

Camden avers that such violations of due process warrant the imposition of a stay against the Association's ruling. It suggests that even if the Commissioner were to find no irreparable harm would result to Camden if the stay were denied, under the Crowe standard, this does not mean that the Camden basketball players who, it claims, conducted themselves in the 1991 basketball play-offs in an exemplary fashion, and have conducted themselves properly since the time of the events at question herein, would not suffer irreparable injury. Camden claims the New Jersey courts have not addressed in any published decision the issue of whether a child's interest in participating in interscholastic athletics is of constitutional dimension. Citing Florida High School Activities Association, Inc., v. Thomas, 409 So. 2d 245 (Fla. App. 1982), Camden claims even if the Commissioner rejects the argument that the individual athletes do not have a constitutional right to participate such that the right to participate is deemed a privilege, "all concerned must concede that this 'privilege' is an essential part of the American educational mosaic, such that it cannot be dispensed with arbitrarily or irrationally." (Petitioner's Brief, at p. 20) Camden cites cases from Tennessee and Minnesota among others for the proposition that in similar circumstances courts have held that the deprivation of the privilege or right to participate in interscholastic athletics requires that the proceeding conform to the minimal standards of due process, including notice and the right to be heard. Camden claims the Minnesota case, Behagan v. Inter-Collegiate Conference of Faculty Representatives, 346 F. 2d 602, 604 (D. Minn. 1972) stands for the proposition that "athletics in high school are a 'total part of the educational process,' and that high school students' interest in participation in athletics is so substantial it cannot be impaired without proceedings which comply with the minimum standards of due process." (Petitioner's Brief, at pp. 21-22)

Camden claims that even though the children on the team were not provided notice of the hearing below nor were their interests directly represented during the course of the hearing, the impact of the Association's decision upon them should be considered by the Commissioner in his capacity as the key state officer controlling the circumstances under which educational benefits are to be denied to innocent students. Petitioner further summarizes its due process argument by suggesting that the right to participate in high school championship athletic contests is one which has been recognized around the United States as being of sufficient significance, particularly in the context of the ability of an economically underprivileged child to obtain a college scholarship, that monetary damages could not possibly redress deprivation of the interest at stake. It claims that irreparable harm will in fact result were the stay to be denied.

Camden adds that the standard announced by the Association's committee chairman at the beginning of the hearing was that of "fairness and equity." (Petitioner's Brief, at p. 24, citing Tr. (4/25/91) 9 Such standard it claims clearly does not militate in favor of punishment to be imposed upon the Camden team by reason of any unsportsmanlike conduct by others. Camden cites a U.S. Supreme Court case involving criminal activities for the point suggesting that "guilt is personal" Scales v. United States, 367 U.S. 203, 224-25. Petitioner avers that when the "group punishment" sought to be justified by respondent is considered in the context of the concession by Trenton's Mayor that only a few of the spectators from the Camden site of the gymnasium engaged in misconduct, the proposed denial of the players' substantive due process rights by having to suffer punishment when they were not even a part of the "group" that engaged in misconduct cries out for relief, Camden avers. It claims it would be hard put to complain if this matter were an appeal from a decision barring Camden and Trenton spectators from attending the 1992 championship games, which it avers would be punishment specifically directed against those allegedly demonstrating unsportsmanlike conduct, because this sanction would recognize and protect the rights of the innocent athletes. The decision below, Camden contends, though, is beyond that necessary to accomplish the goals of the Association. Camden submits it has established that the legal rights sought to be protected and upon which this appeal and request for stay are based are well settled and favor Camden's position.

Further, Camden argues that a stay is appropriate because the punishment to be imposed is overly broad. It claims it is not controverted that the team members and coaching staff were well behaved and observed all applicable standards of sportsmanlike conduct during the season, during the subject game, and at every single contest thereafter, up to and including the present. It claims, therefore that it has a probability of success on the merits insofar as the extent and reasonableness of the punishment is concerned.

On the factor under Crowe, supra, concerning relative hardship to the parties in the event the stay is granted, Camden submits the punishment in this matter, to insure that Camden and all other schools similarly situated demonstrate sportsmanlike conduct, both by teams and by spectators, has been and could be accomplished through the imposition of a probationary sentence. It submits that even if the Commissioner should determine that the team's suspension from the play-offs is necessary, the punitive impact of such a finding will be the same were the team barred from participating in next year's play-offs. On the other hand, Camden avers, staying the decision until such time as Camden's right to appeal to the the Courts has been protected will in no way adversely impact upon the ability of the Association to conduct its business. It reiterates that the hardship to the individual athletes of Camden from a denial of the stay is obvious. It claims students will be denied exposure to college scouts, denied the opportunity to benefit from college scholarship offers, and in all probability, based on the socio-economic environment in which Camden students exist, prevented from attending higher levels of education. Camden thus claims that on balance, justice favors the individual athletes of Camden, and the stay should be denied.

Camden's second legal argument is that the Commissioner should reverse or modify the penalty imposed by the Association, claiming its decision is not supported by substantial competent credible evidence. Instead of that standard of review, however,

Camden submits that the proper standard is that the review must focus on the reasonableness of the action taken in relation to the interests of the public, the Association, and the individual students involved, citing Garrow v. Elizabeth General Hospital, etc. 79 N.J. 549, 401 A. 2d 533, 541 (1979) as the case embodying this more "flexible standard." (Petitioner's Brief, at p. 27)

Camden avers the penalty imposed was based upon a selective evaluation of the evidence, and was apparently predicated upon a finding of "geographical credibility." (Id., at p. 27) Petitioner submits that the Association accepted the factual contentions of Trenton "wholesale." (Id.) None of the alleged findings of credibility were based on demeanor, Camden argues, but rather rested entirely upon alleged inconsistencies and contradictions in the testimony of the Camden witnesses, despite the fact that the independent and Trenton witnesses' testimony suffers from the same lack of consistency and thoroughness.

Camden charges even NJSIAA's emphasis on Camden's failure to discipline any of the participants in the melee does not support its penalty considering that it is conceded by all that no individual student was identified as a participant on either side, so that no individual sanction could be imposed. Moreover, petitioner claims, Camden's failure to discipline children involved in the melee pales in comparison with Trenton's failure to do anything about the individual arrested by the police at the gym, which person was armed with a gun, as described by Patrolman Austin. Camden avers that the lack of an evenhanded approach to the evidence in terms of credibility and emphasis compels the conclusion that the Association decision was unreasonable and not supported by substantial credible competent evidence.

Further, Camden contends that in analyzing whether the decision below was reasonable under the Garrow, supra, standard, the Commissioner is required under New Jersey's Constitution to provide a thorough and efficient education, with a modicum of variety and a chance to excel. It cites Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990) in support of this proposition. It argues that the decision below would deprive the students of Camden the opportunity to excel and to escape from their "environment of violence, poverty and despair." (Petitioner's Brief, at p. 29, quoting Abbott) Instead, Camden sees the decision as an after-the-fact attempt to justify a punitive decision already reached. In particular, Camden objects to the Committee's Finding of Fact No. 19, which states the violence that occurred was:

> both foreseeable and could have been prevented had Camden officials taken the stronger precautionary measures. As Trenton had done, all of Camden security personnel should have been placed between the Camden spectator area and the gym floor, and specific instructions should have been given that no fans were allowed onto the gym floor after the game. (emphasis in original)
> (Petitioner's Brief, at p. 30)

Camden avers that this finding of fact ignores the fact that never before had any similar act of violence occurred, and further ignores the fact that it is traditional that the winning team's fans will take the floor to celebrate. Camden claims this is confirmed by the testimony of multiple witnesses and is consistent with the Trenton Mayor's testimony, whom Camden states, conceded that had his team won, they would have taken the floor.

Camden further avers that the filing below ignores the fact that the violence is claimed to have started when fans interacted with Trenton team players. Camden submits that had Trenton followed the same prudent practice as Camden security personnel in "hustling" the players to the locker room instead of permitting them to remain on the floor "sulking," the subsequent melee would never have occurred. (Id.)

Camden also avers Trenton had the advantage of a physical barricade which enhanced their ability to keep the majority of the Trenton fans separated from the Camden fans. Thus, Camden submits, it was criticized primarily for failing to anticipate an unprecedented act of violence, failing to have prevented a rational response to a championship victory by taking the floor, and failing to have enforced a rule which the Association itself has never enacted, adopted, announced or even suggested, and in failing to have the benefit of physical barricades. Thus, Camden claims Finding of Fact No. 19 cannot be supported.

Similarly, Camden finds Finding of Fact No. 20 deficient. In that finding, Camden claims it was criticized for the failure of its investigative report to include the fact that among those injured by the flying chairs was the Camden Dean of Students. Camden notes that the Dean testified, without contradiction, that the chair with which he was struck came from the Trenton spectator area, not the Camden side.

Camden avers the same finding of fact also condemns Camden for not disciplining any of its students, despite the fact that not one single participating student was ever specifically identified by anyone, that not one Trenton student was disciplined in any manner as a result of this incident, that Trenton fans threw chairs in "self-defense" (id., at p. 31), and that one Trenton person not only drew a firearm in the gym, but was taken into custody. Camden complains it is not clear how the "1988 Camden High School drop-out," who was not "specifically identified" by name or otherwise, was to have been identified and apprehended by Camden. It claims it had no monopoly on the ability to do so, and should not be punished because of its inability to apprehend him.

Noting that this was a public event, Camden states there was no method of identifying the residence of the spectators. Thus, it claims, attributing responsibility to Camden for the conduct of fans is not based on any real ability to control those individuals, but instead is based merely on the fact that they chose to sit in the area designated for Camden fans. Moreover, it claims there is not one iota of evidence to suggest that anyone involved in Camden security had any warning that the incident was about to occur. Camden submits there is undisputed testimony that the incident occurred spontaneously and was over within one or two minutes. Camden suggests the findings of the Association appear to be based on 20/20 hindsight, with no clear indication made as to how the act of violence was to have been anticipated and prevented.

Further, Camden objects to conclusion No. 3, which found that the unsportsmanlike conduct was that "of a large portion of the Camden crowd," (Petitioner's Brief, at p. 33), in direct contradiction to all the testimony, including that of the Mayor of Trenton, who established that it was only a few members of the Camden-side spectators who participated in the acts complained of. Similarly, Camden avers that although the Association claims that similar incidents would be repeated in the future unless a severe sanction was imposed upon Camden, that conclusion has no support in the record. Camden states emphatically that the record is clear that such conduct has never occurred in the past at any Camden games and has not occurred since. Thus, Camden finds the Association's conclusion at No. 3 is an unreasonable finding. Relying on the definition of unsportsmanlike conduct articulated in its Handbook and discussed on the second page of the Association's supplemental memorandum of January 15, 1992, Camden avers there appears to be no basis for the finding that Camden alone should be singled out as the "sole scape-goat" in this incident. (Id.) It claims Trenton fans taunted, used obscene gestures, profane and provocative language, and threatened action toward Camden spectators. Thus, Camden submits the determination of the Association as to penalty is overly broad, arbitrary and unreasonable. Further, it claims the Handbook of the Association at Article IX, Section 3, pp. 50-51 places responsibility upon the administration of a member's school, and not the team, to prevent unsportsmanlike conduct. Thus, it claims that while Camden believes that the restitution and penalty should have been imposed on both school administrations if imposed upon either, it is more reasonable that the administration should be the one punished, whether through fines, restitution or otherwise, instead of the children.

In conclusion Camden submits that the determination of the Association barring Camden from 1991-92 basketball championship play-offs is unreasonable, is not supported by the facts, and fails to take into account contributory fault or conduct of the Trenton fans.

Camden further summarizes by claiming the decision below ignores the disadvantages the Camden security personnel had in terms of the lack of a crowd barrier, and ignores the undisputed tradition that the winning team's crowd takes the floor in celebration of victory. Camden also avers that NJSIAA ignored the fact that there was no advance warning of any potential act of violence, and also ignored the fact that order was quickly restored within one to two minutes of the outbreak of violence.

Under all circumstances, and considering the interests of all parties involved, the penalty should be reversed or modified so as to permit Camden to participate in the play-offs even if the Camden fans are to be barred from the gym in which the play-offs occur.

NJSIAA's reply brief objects to petitioner's application for interim relief and to its petition on the merits. Respondent submits petitioner's statement of facts does not accurately depict the background of this matter, but instead takes quotes out of context, mischaracterizes the testimony below and completely ignores the significant documentary evidence which was made part of the record. NJSIAA contends the voluminous record refutes petitioner's contentions, and it replies to some of what it contends are inaccuracies articulated by petitioner:

> * Petitioner claims that the hearing officer prevented Camden from presenting witnesses. (PB 5). In fact, a fair reading of the transcript shows that all of the witnesses which Camden presented were allowed to testify, and the hearing was even extended to an extra day to allow Camden to complete its case. On the other hand, Trenton was not permitted to bring in a witness who had failed to appear and who would have supported Trenton's version of the events. (T275). Significantly, Mr. Vogelson, the Camden attorney, did not object to this procedure. (T 271-275).
> * Petitioner claims that Joan Martin, the Monmouth College Site Manager, could provide "no observed facts" to support her opinion that Camden caused the melee. (PB 6-7). In fact

> Miss Martin's report stated that Camden fans had taunted Trenton supporters; 20 chairs from the Camden side were found on the Trenton side after the gym was cleared; and that lack of direction, support and proper guidelines from the Camden authorities had contributed to the problem. (Exhibit T-11).
>
> * Petitioner claims that Trenton players "sulked" and exhibited unsportsmanlike behavior (PB 12, 30) because some players fell to the floor following their defeat. In fact, the players had just played their hearts out and lost an exhausting, tension-packed, double-overtime contest. The players laid on the floor in "exhaust and agony." (Exhibit T-12D).
>
> * Petitioner claims that because of its failure to hustle its players off the floor, Trenton, not Camden, caused the ensuing violence. (PB 30). In fact, the hostility of the Camden fans and Camden's ineffective crowd control caused the violence.
>
> * Petitioner claims that Robert Coward, a neutral site official, expressed "no opinion" as to who caused the disturbance. (PB 8). In fact, Mr. Coward reported that Camden's spectators "stormed the court" and that Camden's "celebration of cheering and hanging from baskets turned ugly when these spectators gathered to the front of the Trenton spectators and began to taunt and demean them." (Emphasis in original, Exhibit T-10).
>
> * Petitioner claims that one Trenton witness, Trenton Principal Charlie Ramsey was a liar (PB 18) and another, Mercer County Prosecutor's Office investigator Ernest McNeil, exhibited "bias and hostility" towards Camden. (PB 10). In fact, Petitioner demeans its case by attacking the personal integrity of these witnesses.

NJSIAA rebuts each of Camden's legal arguments as well. On the issue of the Controversies Committee hearing, NJSIAA states the transcript comprises 375 pages, encompassing 25 witnesses who testified under and were subject to cross-examination. Respondent notes again that the hearing was extended a second day specifically to allow Camden to present witnesses who had not been heard, and both Camden and Trenton were prohibited from presenting additional witnesses. It cites the Transcript at page 275 in support of this contention. NJSIAA observes that 31 exhibits were presented and admitted at the hearing, but that while NJSIAA and Trenton presented virtually all of its exhibits to Camden well in advance of the hearing, Camden did not do so. Nevertheless, it avers, over the objection of Trenton, the hearing officer admitted documents proffered by Camden even though they had not been submitted beforehand. It cites the Transcript at pages 17-21, and 120 in support of this point. NJSIAA submits the hearing officer applied the rules evenly to both sides, and no objection or exception was taken to his ruling by the attorney for Camden.

As to participating in interscholastic sports, NJSIAA submits that contrary to petitioner's position, there is no constitutional right to participate in interscholastic athletics. It cites, among a number of cases on this point, Burnside et al. v. NJSIAA et al., A-625-84T7, decided November 15, 1984, N.J. Superior Court Appellate Division, cert. den. 101 N.J. 236 (1985); B.C. v. Bd. of Ed. of the Cumberland Regional School District et al. and NJSIAA, decided by the Commissioner May 19, 1986, aff'd Appellate Division September 23, 1987. It claims additionally that the New Jersey District Court and the Third Circuit have specifically held that the "right" (Respondent's Reply Brief, at p. 4) to participate in high school athletics did not rise to the level of a specific constitutional guarantee, citing Moreland v. Western Pa. Interscholastic, Etc., 572 F.2d 121 (3rd Cir. 1978); and Palmer v. Merluzzi, 689 F. Supp. 400, 408-409 (D. N.J. 1988), aff'd 868 F.2d 90 (3rd Cir. 1989) in support of this position. It further claims that the requirement that New Jersey schools offer a thorough and efficient education does not impart any great significance to interscholastic sports that the Courts have mentioned above, citing Burnside wherein at page 5 it is stated:

> It is not disputed that extracurricular activities, including interscholastic athletics, play an integral part in satisfying the breadth of programs requirements of "T&E." While they are important factors toward a sound and comprehensive academic education, each pupil does not have a right to participate in interscholastic athletics.

On the question of the penalty imposed by NJSIAA, the Association avers that upon a determination that Camden violated the Association's rules, it had the power, had it chosen to expel Camden from the Association. Instead, it fashioned a remedy which allowed Camden players to participate in the 1991-92 basketball season but disqualified the team from participating in the season-ending tournament. It adds that it even permitted Camden to travel out of the country to play two games during the season in St. Croix, Virgin Islands. Moreover, it submits that Article X, Section 2A allows the Controversies Committee to "determine than an offending school may not participate in championship contests in the sport in which the violation occurred." It claims that N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3 requires that this regulation be "deemed to be the policy of the Board of Education." Thus, NJSIAA argues, the Camden Board of Education has adopted this rule as its own and cannot now claim that imposition of a penalty which it has adopted was improper or overly broad.

Concerning Camden's claim of impact on its students, respondent avers Camden's argument that due process was denied because individual players did not receive notice from the Association that their individual interests were potentially to be affected, or that there would be "group punishment," misconceives the nature of NJSIAA. It cites B.C., supra, as stating that NJSIAA is a "voluntary association of public and non-public schools formed for the purpose of promoting and regulating interscholastic sports activities." (Respondent's Reply Brief, at p. 5, quoting B.C., at p. 217) (emphasis in brief) NJSIAA claims no individual student has been rendered ineligible. Rather, the Camden basketball team has been disqualified from participating in basketball championships. It notes that application for such championships are made each year by member schools and school boards, not by individual students.

Moreover, NJSIAA claims it has no duty to notify every Camden basketball player of the hearing, citing a case relied upon by petitioner to make this point, Kelly v. Metropolitan County Bd. of Ed. of Nashville, 293 F. Supp. 45, 496 (MD Ten., 1968) wherein it is stated:

> In cases of possible group misconduct on the part of students, due process is satisfied if notice and opportunity to defend are afforded to a responsible person whose position requires him to represent and speak for the entire group. A school principal occupies such a position. (Emphasis added.)
> (Respondent's Brief, at p. 6, quoting Kelly)

The Association claims its regulations agree that a principal shall be the final authority responsible for athletic activity of that school at whatever level of competition in which the school is engaged, and cites Article IX, Section 1 of the Handbook at p. 49 in support of this proposition. It also cites Article VI, Section 1 of the Handbook for the proposition that "The principal of the school is responsible to the State Association for all matters pertaining to the athletic relations of his/her school...."

The Association claims that its notification on March 8, 1991 to the Camden High School principal stating that the events of the previous evening would be investigated by the Controversies Committee on April 15, 1991 (Exhibit T-1) constituted complete and adequate notice under the Association's rules of due process. It claims that such notice did not violate the students' rights, citing Burnside, supra, at p. 8 wherein the Court stated that "Appellants' suggestion that there must exist proof of actual notice of the new rule to each individual appellant student-athlete and his parent or parents in order for it to be effective as to them is without merit. Such requirement is not mandated by law."

As to Petitioner's contention that punishing the team for the actions of others is unconstitutional, NJSIAA notes again that its Bylaws specifically allow the Association to preclude a team from participating in a championship tournament, that the students have been granted the opportunity to participate in the rest of the season, and further that students have no constitutional right to participate in athletics.

NJSIAA claims of even greater significance is that the Courts, which have addressed the issue of penalizing teams for violation of an association's rules by other individuals, have determined assessing such penalties is proper, and it cites among other cases Justice v. NCAA, 577 F. Supp. 356,370 (D. Az 1983) in support of this proposition wherein it is stated:

> The fact that the plaintiffs are innocent of the wrongdoing that led to the imposition of sanctions is truly unfortunate, but it does not in itself elevate the interest at stake to the level of a substantive constitutional right protected by the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment.

Last, in regard to petitioner's argument concerning student exposure to scouts, scholarship offers, and attending higher levels of education, NJSIAA avers such contentions are pure speculation on petitioner's part. It claims approximately 100,000 students participate in 31 sports sanctioned by NJSIAA each year. By the very selective nature of post season team championships, the majority of even the superior athletes do not participate in championship contests. Thus, NJSIAA claims petitioner's argument lacks merit because the students will miss only a limited number of games. Moreover, NJSIAA finds petitioner's argument surprising, because it serves to perpetuate the myth that the sole way an urban youngster can succeed is through sports, when the Board of Education is charged with educating these students.

NJSIAA also rebuts petitioner's second argument pertaining to the penalty imposed by the Association. First, NJSIAA denied the allegation that there was a geographic bias in the Controversies Committee's determination, suggesting instead it was fully supported in the record. It claims there is no reason why the Committee should be biased insofar as both Trenton and Camden are members of the Association. It further states that petitioner suggests no rationale for any such bias. It posits that both sides presented evidence, cross-examined witnesses, and argued their cases. Neutral witnesses testified, but in the end the Committee found Trenton's case to be more compelling and its witnesses more credible. It submits the neutral witnesses supported Trenton's version of the facts. It submits that in light of the seriousness and potential danger of the events under review, the Committee's ultimate decisions were not only fair, but restrained.

Petitioner's reliance on Garrow, supra, is inapposite, NJSIAA argues, stating that legions of cases have held that the Commissioner sits in review of NJSIAA determinations, but will not substitute his judgment, absent arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable action on the part of NJSIAA. It cites B.C., supra, and Dam Jin Koh, supra, as examples of the cases bespeaking this standard of review. The Association contends Garrow deals with an appeal from a nonpublic adjudication in which full due process was not required. Further, NJSIAA contends Garrow provides a "looser" (Respondent's Brief, at p. 9) standard of review, one which, if accepted, would permit the Association's rulings to stand so long as they were merely based on "'sufficient reliable evidence,' rather than 'competent credible evidence.'" (Id., citing Garrow, at 565)

Additionally, NJSIAA argues that petitioner, throughout its brief, makes the recurrent and baseless argument that it should not be held responsible because there was no identification of the specific individuals responsible for the violations. The facts, NJSIAA submits, show otherwise; and it cites the following examples:

> * Signs directed fans to either the Trenton or Camden side of the gym. (T 35).
> * The game had to be stopped several times because the Camden crowd was spilling out onto the floor. (Exhibit T-8).
>
> * Officials were forced repeatedly to take the microphone and implore the Camden fans to be calm. (Exhibit T-11b).
>
> * The overtime periods were delayed because Camden fans would not take their seats. (Exhibit T-11b).
> * Despite being told repeatedly to take their seats, Camden fans insisted on standing between press row and the stands. (Exhibit T-11b).

* When the game ended, Camden fans ran onto the floor, climbing over tables and chairs as they went. (Exhibit T-11b).

* Approximately 20 chairs were thrown by the Camden crowd into the Trenton crowd. All of the displaced chairs were later found on the Trenton side. (Exhibit T-11b).

* Camden fans climbed onto the rims of the baskets, damaging the equipment. (Exhibit T-11b).

* A Trenton basketball player was struck by a Camden fan and his tooth was knocked out. (Exhibit T-11b, T-12n).

* Trenton officials risked their own safety by forming a human barricade to keep the melee from becoming a full-scale riot. (Exhibit T-126; Tr. 157-158).

* Two neutral witnesses laid the blame for the incident at Camden's fans. (Exhibit T-10, T-11b).

* Camden Athletic Director McPherson acknowledged in his report that a Camden fan had attacked a Trenton player. "A 1988 Camden dropout punched #20 in the mouth and both sides started throwing chairs." (Exhibit C-2, p. 2).

(Respondent's Reply Brief, at pp. 10-11)

NJSIAA charges that Camden's argument is "unfortunate" (id., at p. 11) because rather than assuming responsibility for a series of events which overwhelming evidence shows that Camden fans instigated, the Board has attempted to blame NJSIAA and Trenton High School for its problems. NJSIAA rules require, and common sense dictates, that a school be responsible for the conduct of its fans, the Association argues, citing Article IX, Section 3 of the Handbook, at pp. 50-51.

Upon a careful and independent review of this matter, the Commissioner affirms those findings and determinations rendered by the Committees of NJSIAA, including the penalty assessed against the Camden Board of Education. In so finding, the Commissioner would first place the matter under review in perspective, both in terms of the legal standard of review under which the Commissioner considers such cases, and also, in terms of factual circumstances under which the events in question took place.

At the outset, the Commissioner observes that his review of an NJSIAA determination is an appellate one. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3 Thus, in considering appeals after the exhaustion of the internal appeals mechanisms of the Association, the Commissioner will not substitute his judgment for that of the NJSIAA, if due process has been granted, and there is an adequate basis for the decision reached by the Association. See, Dam Jin Koh, supra. Similarly, in reviewing any penalty assessed by the Association, the Commissioner is constrained by the same standard of review. He rejects as being inapposite petitioner's suggestion that Garrow, supra, provides a preferable standard of review for this matter. The Commissioner may not impose an ad hoc condition in considering one case as opposed to all others. Moreover, in evaluating evidence in matters arising before the Commissioner in this quasi-judicial forum the standard has been determined to be based on substantial credible evidence in the record. See Dore v. Bedminster Tp. Bd. of Ed., 185 N.J. Super. 447, 453 (App. Div. 1982). To adopt petitioner's stance, based on Garrow, that sufficient reliable evidence is adequate and more "flexible" in deciding this case would, as respondent notes, permit the Association's rulings to stand so long as they met such lesser standards. Such approach cannot be condoned, and petitioner's argument concerning the standard of review extant in these proceedings is rejected as being without merit.

It also bears clarifying that the Courts in this state, have adjudged, contrary to petitioner's contention, that participation in the interscholastic sports is not a constitutional right. See Burnside, supra, wherein the Appellate Division has stated:

> It is not disputed that extracurricular activities, including interscholastic athletics, play an integral part in satisfying the breadth of programs requirements of "T&E." While they are important factors toward a sound and comprehensive academic education, each pupil does not have a right to participate in interscholastic athletics.
>
> Participation is subject to eligibility requirements and other preconditions.

See also, Palmer, supra. The Third Circuit Court of Appeals case held in Palmer that participation in extracurricular activities was not a fundamental right, and upheld the District Court's determination that under New Jersey law, student's interest in participating in extracurricular activities did not rise to the level of a property interest protected by procedural due process. Accordingly, the Commissioner dismisses as being without merit those arguments suggesting that irreparable harm will befall the Camden basketball team if a stay is not granted in this matter.

Moreover, the Commissioner rejects petitioner's argument that the individual members of the team were denied due process because they did not each receive notice from the Association that their individual interests might be affected by the assessment of a group penalty. As noted by respondent, no individual student has been rendered ineligible as a result of the NJSIAA determination herein; rather, the team has. Under the Constitution, Bylaws, Rules and Regulations of the Association, to which petitioner is bound by its membership in the Association, the principal and Board of Education are answerable and responsible to it for matters pertaining to the athletic relations of his/her school and for athletic activity of such school at whatever level of competition in which the school is engaged. See, Article IX, Section 1, NJSIAA Handbook, at p. 49 and Article VI, Section 1, NJSIAA Handbook at p. 47. See also, Burnside, supra, wherein the Appellate Division held, in regard to individual notice of eligibility standards that "[a]ppellants' suggestion that there must exist proof of actual notice of the new rule to each individual appellant student-athlete and his parent or parents in order for it to be effective as to them is without merit. Such a requirement is not mandated by law." (Burnside, at p. 8) Accordingly, the Commissioner rejects petitioner's due process argument as being without merit.

Similarly, the Commissioner must reject petitioner's argument that by denying Camden's team participation in the basketball play-offs for 1991-92, that the student-athletes will be denied exposure to college scouts, scholarship offers and potentially, be prevented from attending higher levels of education. As noted earlier, the Courts have determined that no property right exists to participation in interscholastic sports. While the Commissioner is fully mindful of the importance interscholastic sports plays in the lives of our students in New Jersey, he cannot sanction an argument that suggests that the only means by which an urban pupil might progress onward to post-secondary education is through sports. As noted by the Association in its Handbook at page 13 under its "A Philosophy of Athletic Education for Secondary Schools:"

> ATHLETICS CONTRIBUTE TO EDUCATION when their existence can be justified by the contributions they make to the educational objectives through proper guidance and controls. If athletics are > to serve educational ends, they must be wisely guided, developed, and administered as a vital and effective aspect of education. The policies under which they are conducted will determine whether the athletic program is directed for the development of students or for spectator entertainment. While responsibility for development of ideas is shared with the home, the church, and the community, the development of constructive educational policies rests primarily with the local school district, which responsibility cannot be shirked or taken lightly.

> Participation in sound and wholesome athletic programs contributes to health, physical skill, instructional maturity, social competencies, and moral values. Cooperation and competition are both important components of American life; therefore, the experience of playing athletic games should be a part of the education of all youth who attend our secondary schools. (emphasis supplied)

The Commissioner finds that petitioner's contentions regarding denial of the opportunity to benefit from college athletic scholarships or education are merely speculative, at best, and misguided as to the purpose of interscholastic sports in the educational process at worst, and are thus dismissed, as being without merit.

Last in the way of predicates to a review of the facts underlying this matter, the Commissioner must reject petitioner's claim that the Controversies Committee Hearing was deficient in that the Committee was subject to a "geographic bias," that the hearing officer prevented testimony from being taken from all witnesses and that he failed to apply the rules evenly to both sides. The Commissioner finds that petitioner offers no support in the record for his allegation that the Controversies Committee was geographically biased. Rather, the Commissioner's review reveals an evenhandedness in the proceeding, as evidenced by the fact that the hearing was extended a second day to allow Camden to present witnesses, and that Camden's attorney at the time, voiced no objections at the hearing to the rulings on who was to testify from either side. The transcript reveals that both Camden and Trenton were precluded from presenting additional witnesses. In fact, at the end of the first day of hearing, Camden's attorney agreed to submit the report of Mr. Curtis, one of his witnesses, in lieu of his live testimony. See Tr.274. Further, it was a Trenton witness who was declined to be heard, with no further objection from either attorney voiced. (Id., at 275). Further, as noted in its reply exception, the hearing officer admitted documents proffered by Camden even though they had not been submitted beforehand. See Tr.17-21 and 120. Finally, even after the determination precluding further testimony was made at the end of the first day, after some 15 or 20 witnesses had been heard, four more Camden witnesses were presented on May 22, 1991. Thus, the Commissioner rejects petitioner's contentions regarding the due process afforded Camden at hearing as being without merit.

In considering the underlying facts of this matter, the Commissioner again notes the need for perspective. Interscholastic high school competition at the play-off level bespeaks the very best our able student-athletes can achieve.

Concomitantly, approximately, 1,000 fans packed the gym at Monmouth College in support of their respective teams, in the event in question, such a volatile situation is frought with the potential for extremely high zeal, and thus is equally fraught with potential for danger. One need only look to the recent tragic event in New York where lives were forfeit to an out-of-control crowd to understand fully the absolute requirement of the schools to assume that championship games spawn crowd control hazards and safety dangers. To prepare thoroughly for all conceivable hazards is, thus, an absolute requirement of each participating school district.

It is the Commissioner's judgment, upon careful consideration of the record that the substantial credible evidence indicates the violent melee that ensued at the end of the play-off semi-final basketball game between Camden High School and Trenton Central High School on March 7, 1991 was both foreseeable and preventable had Camden officials taken better and stronger security measures, both precautionary and as the events unfolded. He finds that the weight of the credible evidence demonstrates that approximately 20 chairs were thrown from the Camden side fans into the Trenton side crowd, and that the fact that all of the displaced chairs were later found on the Trenton side (Exhibit T-11b) supports the testimony of the two neutral witnesses that blame for the violence must lie with the Camden fans. See Exhibits T-10 and T-11b. See also Tr.44, 52-60.

Further, the Commissioner finds that Camden must be found liable for damage resulting from the chair-throwing as well as the damage to the facility, including but not limited to the rims of the baskets, as observed by neutral witnesses. See Exhibit T-11b and Tr.58-59.

Additionally, the Commissioner finds and determines that Camden's security force, comprised of two uniformed security officers, three plainclothed security officers and several volunteer detectives who accompanied the spectators into the stands as spectators (See Tr.282, 287, 288-9 and 293) with a total of five paid Camden security personnel was inadequate in number in light of the high potential for danger extant that evening. Moreover, the Commissioner finds such Camden security personnel were inadequately supervised, and trained for the potentialities. Detective Stevens, one of the two uniformed security officers indicated that while he was in charge, he was not the other Detective's supervisor for that evening, suggesting there was a lack of clear lines of authority. See Tr.295. Moreover, while Detective Stevens indicated it was his duty to move the students to the locker room, his first duty was to "get myself out of that, first of all, before I got hit with a chair and, you know, try to get the kids calm down on our side and everybody to the buses and get out of there." (Tr. 286) On examination by Mr. Stubbs, a member of the Controversies Committee, Detective Stevens further elaborated:

> MR. STUBBS: I'm not clear about one thing. When you saw these chairs flying, you thought your job was to get everybody out and avoid getting hit with a chair?
>
> MR. STUBBS: Yet, you were paid security. Was it your job or someone else's job to try to get to these people who are throwing chairs and stop that action from occurring?
> MR. STEVENS: Before you can get to anybody that's throwing chairs, you have to step back and see who's throwing chairs and avoid being hit by the chairs.

Further testimony adduced at hearing makes plain that not only did Detective Stevens accompany the team to the locker room, but all the designated security personnel plus the principal, head coach and perhaps the dean of students left the gym as well. See Tr.185, 190, 311. See also Committee Finding of Fact No. 17 at p. 20. While the administration's concern with the students' safety is appropriate and their actions in removing them from harm's way correct, Camden's security lacked organization, depth of manpower and good judgment in abandoning the gym floor.

By stark contrast, the eight designated Trenton security officers, and other volunteer security personnel from Trenton, risked their own safety during the chair-throwing melee by forming a human barricade in what was termed "no man's land" (Tr. 55-56) to prevent the two spectator crowds from making substantial contact, thereby preventing more injuries and further violence. See for example Tr.126, 157-158.

Finally, in regard to the episode that evening, the Commissioner is troubled indeed by the testimony of Camden Patrolman Austin, one of Camden's volunteer security officers, wherein he testified that a man in a "green sweatsuit" drew a gun in the gym, and that said man returned to the gym to challenge him, to a fight "one-on-one." The Patrolman testified that he drew his firearm. See Tr.249-254. He commends the Association for its resolve in directing its attorney to report the episode of drawing weapons to the Division of Criminal Justice. Such reports as this and the similarly very serious reports of injury to both Patrolman Austin "I got smashed with a chair  [o]n the right side of my head" (Tr.249) and to the Camden Dean of Students Jenkins who was also struck by an airborne chair, lead the Commissioner to the inescapable conclusion that Camden's response to the extraordinarily serious incident at question was totally inadequate, warranting severe sanction.

As stated earlier, when a board of education in New Jersey chooses to join NJSIAA it adopts the Association's Bylaws, Rules and Regulations as its own. One such Bylaw states at Article X, Sec. 2A of the Handbook at p. 52 that a school may be required to forfeit championship rights as determined by the Controversies Committee as a penalty for violation of the Association's Rules and Regulations. The record before the Commissioner makes plain for the reasons expressed above, that Camden must bear responsibility for the aggressive and violent behavior of its fans. NJSIAA Regulations hold the school responsible for the conduct of its fans. See Article IX, Section 3, NJSIAA Handbook at pp. 50-51. Therein it states:

> SPORTSMANSHIP RULE/POLICY
> HIGH STANDARDS OF COURTESY, FAIR PLAY AND SPORTSMANSHIP MUST FEATURE ALL ASSOCIATION COMPETITIONS.
>
> (While this rule is a general statement and one which may be difficult to reduce to objective standards in terms of enforcement, it is the heart of the entire Association program. Good sportsmanship, respect for rules, respect for others, and fair play, are basically the motives through which an interscholastic athletic program is justified and defended.)
>
> It shall be the responsibility of each member school to insure that all individuals employed by or directly associated with the athletic program, including its student-athletes, comport themselves in a sportsmanlike manner when representing their school, especially at interscholastic events.
>
> Unsportsmanlike conduct shall subject the individual to disciplinary action. The member schools with which the individual is associated may also be subject to disciplinary action if it is found that the member school's policies, actions, or failure to act, substantially contributed to the individual's conduct.
>
> Unsportsmanlike conduct shall include but not be limited to the following:
> a. Any person (athletic department, staff member, student-athlete or a fan or spectator associated with a member school) who strikes or physically abuses an official, opposing coach, player, or spectator.

b. Any person (athletic department, staff member, student-athlete or a fan or spectator associated with a member school) who intentionally incites participants or spectators to violent or abusive action.

c. Any person (athletic department, staff member, student-athlete or a fan or spectator associated with a member school) who uses obscene gestures or profane or unduly provocative language or action towards officials, opponents, or spectators.

d. Any school or athletic staff member who is publicly critical of any game official, opponents and/or opposing coaches/players.

e. The administration of a member school will be responsible for the unsportsmanlike conduct of that school's fans or spectators. (emphasis supplied)

Further, by virtue of Camden's having voluntarily agreed to participate in the 1991-92 tournament, NJSIAA Regulations further require that the participating school accept all relevant tournament rules and abide by the sportsmanship standard set by the Association. The tournament regulations, 1991 NJSIAA Boys and Girls Basketball Tournament Regulations, at p. 6, provide

CONDUCT OF PARTICIPANTS

The Executive Committee reserves the right at any time to withdraw the right to compete in the preliminaries, or finals, if an individual or team is guilty of misconduct or unsportsmanlike conduct while the guest of the NJSIAA.

Schools will not be permitted to enter the tournament, even though the teams qualify if the SECURITY/CROWD CONTROL RESPONSIBILITY OF COMPETING SCHOOLS FORM IS NOT SIGNED AND FILED IN THE CENTRAL OFFICE BY THE DATE INDICATED ON THE FORM.

All schools entered in the annual basketball tournament will be completely responsible for the conduct of their coaching staffs, players, cheerleaders, students, and spectators. Member schools cannot expect the NJSIAA to assume responsibility for such conduct at tournament games.... (emphasis in original, underlining added in Respondent's Brief, at p. 28).

The Commissioner concurs with the conclusion of the Association that when a high school's fans behave in a life-threatening manner, it must act to protect the integrity of its tournament play and penalize the school responsible for such destructive and dangerous behavior for failing to adequately address the situation. Petitioner's argument that the team must be saved harmless from the conduct of Camden's fans must fail in the face of the compelling public interest to ensure safety, and the Camden Board's adopting the Rules governing the membership of the Association of which it is a part, as well as the regulations governing tournament play that it voluntarily accepted. Furthermore, in the face of a record demonstrating Camden's inadequate security force, the Commissioner cannot find it unreasonable or arbitrary for NJSIAA to levy a penalty befitting the offense, that is, that the school not be permitted to participate in the tournament the following year. The Commissioner so finds.

While the Commissioner is sympathetic to the anguish the student-athletes of Camden must feel in light of their exemplary behavior on the evening in question, he would be remiss, indeed, to suggest that anything less than swift certain action must be taken by the Association to deter any notion that aggression at sporting events will be tolerated. He thus finds and determines that the penalties meted by the Association were assessed in the best interests of students, parents, administrators and the public alike and were reasonable considering the potential harm that could have been visited upon the event. In so finding, the Commissioner must reject petitioner's alternative recommendation that fans from Trenton and Camden be barred from attending this year's basketball championships. While appealing at first blush, such recommendation is unenforceable, insofar as each member of the public would have in some way to identify him or herself as a spectator for either team. Moreover, because it is not known which schools from within the state will face one another during any given game, to ban all spectators from watching the competition would penalize all schools whom either Camden or Trenton might face in competition. Such an alternative would wrongfully punish those school communities and would debase interscholastic competition.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed in the Controversies Committee's report, the Executive Committee's Decision, and herein, the Commissioner finds and determines that Camden has failed to demonstrate irreparable harm. Moreover, for the same reasons, the Commissioner finds that petitioner has failed to demonstrate by the substantial credible evidence in the record that the determination of, and penalities assessed by, NJSIAA was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Thus, the Commissioner adopts as his own those findings and conclusions of the Executive Committee and Controversies Committee in this matter and dismisses the Petition of Appeal, with prejudice.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent of high school student, R.F., challenged suspension of daughter three times for alleged use of foul language and fighting with fellow students and staff members.

Initial decision concluded R.F. clearly defied authority within meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2b on October 15, 1990. Thus, suspension was appropriate. Further, the Board's actions to suspend R.F. in December 1990 and in April 1991 were also appropriate as discipline for fighting incidents. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

R.F.,
Petitioner,
v.
DAVID BRYAN, VICE PRINCIPAL AND BOARD OF EDUCATION OF MAINLAND REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL, ATLANTIC COUNTY,
Respondent.

R.F., petitioner, pro se
Louis J. Greco, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: November 19, 1991 Decided: January 2, 1992

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner challenges the authority of the Board of Education of the Mainland Regional High School District (Board) to suspend his daughter from school on three occasions asserting, among other things, that the Board's action was without just cause, arbitrary and contrary to school law regarding the discipline of pupils.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on February 14, 1991, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.SA. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference order was issued on June 17, 1991, followed by a hearing held on October 2, 1991. The parties requested and were granted leave to submit post-hearing memoranda. The last submission was received on November 19, 1991, which constituted the hearing record closing date.

ISSUES

The issues to be resolved by this administrative tribunal and as agreed upon by the parties, are these:

1. Whether there was good cause to suspend pupil R.F. from school by its Vice Principal under the control of the Board of Education of the Mainland Regional High School District?

   a. Whether the suspensions were arbitrary, capricious and/or unreasonable?

BURDEN OF PROOF

Petitioner carries the burden of proof to affirmatively demonstrate that the Board's actions to suspend R.F. were arbitrary, capricious and/or unreasonable, by the standard of a preponderance of the credible evidence.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the testimony and other evidence proffered at the hearing, and having given fair weight thereto, the following constitutes my FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter:

OCTOBER 15, 1990

During the 1990-91 school year, petitioner's daughter was enrolled in the Board's school in the tenth grade. The first incident which resulted in R.F.'s suspension from school for three days occurred on October 15, 1990, during the school lunch period. R.F. testified that she and a friend waited in line to use the girls lavatory which was supervised by Ms. Judy Goins, Language Arts Teacher. R.F. testified that she went to the front of the line, passing up other girls waiting to use the facility. Ms. Goins instructed R.F. to return to her place in the line. R.F. testified that she "had to go," therefore, she went into the lavatory ahead of the rest of the girls waiting in line.

Ms. Goins' written statement, dated October 29, 1990 (R-1), asserts, in part, that:

> [R.F.] walked past me toward the bathroom and I said, "Excuse me, where are you going?" Never turning around [R.F.] replied, "I have an emergency." I then said, "Excuse me, what > is your name?" Still, never turning around [R.F.] replied, "Don't argue with me." I then followed [R.F.] into the bathroom and firmly said, "I want your name." She told me. I then walked out of the bathroom and asked Ms. Connolly, who was standing outside the bathroom, to cover my duty while I went to get Mr. Bryan (assistant principal). Ms. Connolly told me moments after I left, [R.F.] walked out of the bathroom alone and looked at Ms. Connolly and said, "that Bitch." (R-1).

R.F. admits that she called Ms. Goins a "bitch" when R.F. left the girls lavatory. Subsequently, R.F. was summoned to appear at the assistant principal's office at which time R.F. was advised she would be suspended from school for three days for unacceptable language directed at a staff member and defiance of authority. Thereafter, R.F.'s father arrived at the assistant principal's office and contested his daughter's suspension. R.F. testified on this hearing record she thought she would be disciplined with Saturday detention. However, she was just a bit happy she could miss three days of school; sleep late; make-up any tests she missed and do her homework at her leisure.

Mr. F. followed his oral complaint with the assistant principal with a written complaint to the Superintendent of Schools, dated October 16, 1990 (R-1). In his written complaint, Mr. F. summarized his impressions of the incident of October 15, 1990, and opined, among other things, that the action to suspend R.F. was highly improper, an abuse of authority and lacking a basic courtesy to withhold bathroom privileges from a pupil. Mr. F. also alleged that due process was absent, i.e., facing your accuser and substantiating facts from witnesses (R-1).

In a follow-up letter to the Superintendent, dated November 16, 1990, Mr. F. opined that he did not believe that Ms. Goins or any other staff member had the authority to deny anyone what he believed to be a fundamental civil right. He also asserted that he intended to appeal (the decision to suspend R.F.) to the Board. Mr. F. further opined that R.F.'s conduct was appropriate for the situation (R-1). Mr. F. lost his appeal to the Board.

R.F. testified that she and another female pupil exchanged heated and foul words in the school's lunch room. The two girls were extremely angry with the other. As a consequence, a teacher escorted the girls to the assistant principal's office. Assistant principal David Bryan's written report states that two teaching staff members had the impression that there was going to be a fight between R.F. and K.R. (R-3).

Assistant principal Bryan reports he had a long discussion with R.F., making her aware of the consequences of fighting, even though the fighting does not occur on school grounds (R-3). R.F. reported to Bryan that she would not fight in school but that a fight would probably occur. R.F. asserted to Bryan that K.R. had accused R.F. of scheming with K.R.'s boyfriend. R.F. also asserted that K.R. constantly called R.F. names whenever K.R. sees R.F. R.F. stated to Bryan that she did not want to fight nor did she know how to fight. Nevertheless, R.F. was stubborn and unwilling to change her attitude toward K.R. R.F. mentioned to the assistant principal that she would get her friends to fight her battles (R-3).

Assistant principal Bryan reports that K.R. was called into his office for a conference where K.R. claimed that R.F. had been threatening K.R. for some time. K.R. asserted that R.F.'s friends would do the fighting for R.F., although K.R. did not want to fight. K.R. indicated that a large number of R.F.'s friends would be at the fight, if there was a fight.

Assistant principal Bryan and Mr. Richard Edel, Behavior Modification Counselor, conducted four separate conferences with the two female pupils on December 20, 1990, during school hours.

School dismissed at 2:44 p.m. on December 20, 1990. Approximately one-half hour later, a group of approximately 20 pupils gathered at the Student Parking Lot area. Assistant principal Bryan circulated in the area and the pupils dispersed, only to regroup at the Linwood Park. R.F. testified that a girl by the nickname of "Peaches" struck R.F. on the back of R.F.'s head and R.F. fell to the ground. This testimony was corroborated by the testimony of pupil J.L.G., a friend of R.F.'s who witnessed the fracas. J.L.G. testified she did not see R.F. strike anyone. J.L.G. asserted that everyone knew there was going to be a fight after school. She observed K.R. and K.R.'s friends run away after R.F. had been struck by "Peaches."

Assistant principal Bryan's written report states, among other things, that he held a conference with pupil D.E. a/k/a Peaches, and D.E.'s mother subsequent to the altercation. D.E. admitted she struck R.F. but denied she kicked or punched R.F. when R.F. had fallen to the ground. Assistant principal Bryan suspended D.E., K.R. and R.F. three days each for fighting (R-3).

APRIL 2, 1991

An altercation between R.F. and another female pupil, D.D. occurred on April 2, 1991, which resulted in R.F.'s suspension from school for one day.

Assistant principal Bryan was unaware of the incident until April 3, 1991, when D.D. and a male pupil, D.W., appeared in Bryan's office at approximately 7:45 a.m. to report that D.D. and R.F. had engaged in a fight the previous afternoon. D.D. reported to Bryan that at approximately 3:15 p.m. on April 2, 1991, she and R.F. had a confrontation at the Linwood Park, off of school property. D.D., who is the mother of an infant child, reported that R.F. had called her baby a "scum bag" and referred to D.D. as a "slut." D.D. asserted that R.F. made peace signs in front of D.D.'s face, hitting D.D. in the nose while making the signs. R.F. pushed her friends in between herself and D.D. (R-2).

D.D. admitted she was upset with R.F. and finally punched R.F. D.D. then turned to leave; however, the Linwood Police were present and placed both girls in patrol vehicles and transported them to the Linwood Police Department Headquarters.

R.F. testified that the Linwood Police took photographs of the injuries to her face caused by D.D. Thereafter, the police took R.F. to the hospital for treatment of her injuries. R.F. further testified that the matter was subsequently prosecuted at the municipal court level where D.D. was required to pay R.F.'s medical bills.

On April 3, 1991, R.F. appeared at assistant principal Bryan's office at approximately 8:05 a.m., immediately after D.D. and D.W. had left. R.F. immediately asked Bryan, "Am I suspended?" After which, Bryan took R.F. into his office where R.F. showed Bryan her swollen lip. Bryan also observed a hospital bracelet on R.F.'s wrist which indicated to him that R.F. had recently spent some time in a hospital (R-2).

R.F. indicated to Bryan that after school on April 2, 1991, R.F. left school and went across the street to her usual gathering spot in the parking lot. R.F. asserted that D.D. and her friends generally gathered at the opposite end of the parking lot. R.F. asserted to Bryan that D.D. and her friends yelled at R.F. asking why R.F. called D.D.'s baby a "scum bag." R.F. stated she replied, "Let's call peace, I don't want to fight." When Bryan asked R.F. about R.F.'s peace moves, R.F. demonstrated how she used her hands in front of D.D.'s face. R.F. admitted to Bryan that she called D.D. a "slut." R.F. asserted that she may have called D.D.'s baby a "scum bag," however, she asserted she could not recall (R-2).

Bryan's written report states that when he assigned R.F. a one day suspension, R.F. commented, "You're only giving me one day? That's not enough - this Easter vacation was only a tease" (R-2).

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Petitioner contends, among other things, that under the applicable statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2, the suspension of his daughter on three occasions was inappropriate and denied her access to an education. The cited statute provides as follows:

> Any pupil who is guilty of continued and willful disobedience, or of open defiance of the authority of any teacher or person having authority over him, or of the habitual use of profanity or of obscene language, or who shall cut, deface or otherwise injure any school property, shall be liable to punishment and to suspension or expulsion from school.
>
> Conduct which shall constitute good cause for suspension or expulsion of a pupil guilty of such conduct shall include, but not be limited to, any of the following:
> a. Continued and willful disobedience;
> b. Open defiance of the authority of any teacher or person, having authority over him;
> c. Conduct of such character as to constitute a continuing danger to the physical well-being of other pupils;
> d. Physical assault upon another pupil;
> e. Taking, or attempting to take, personal property or money from another pupil or from his presence, by means of force or fear;
> f. Willfully causing, or attempting to cause, substantial damage to school property;
> g. Participation in an unauthorized occupancy by any group of pupils or others of any part of any school or other building owned by any school district, and failure to leave such school or other facility promptly after having been directed to do so by the principal or other person then in charge of such building or facility;
> h. Incitement which is intended to and does result in unauthorized occupation by any group of pupils or others of any part of a school or other facility owned by any school district;
> i. Incitement which is intended to and does result in truancy by other pupils;

Petitioner argues that none of the above causes for R.F.'s suspension from school existed. Rather, he argues, assistant principal Bryan exceeded his authority and arbitrarily imposed the penalty of suspension to R.F. Any attempt to define Bryan's ability to suspend a pupil as a matter of internal school policy is spurious. Mr. Bryan cannot impose his judgment in place of that of the New Jersey Legislature and the rulings of the court. The State statutes take precedence over school policy and school policy must conform to the law.

Petitioner observes that on October 15, 1990, R.F. was suspended for three days ". . . for unacceptable language directed at a staff member and defiance of authority." Petitioner asserts that the points of agreement were that R.F. needed to use the girls lavatory and that she had "an emergency." Petitioner now attempts to introduce new evidence through his brief which was not demonstrated by any of the witnesses nor revealed through documents, either prior to or during the hearing. Petitioner now contends that the "emergency" was the need for R.F. to change a sanitary napkin that was about to leak and cause her great embarrassment. This "emergency" was not revealed to Ms. Goins, the teaching staff member in charge at the time. Nor did R.F. or any of her witnesses at the hearing express this reason for R.F.'s "emergency." Rather, R.F. testified before this tribunal that she "had to go."

Further, R.F. admits that without an explanation to Ms. Goins, R.F. proceeded to the head of the line and, in defiance of Ms. Goins, entered the girls lavatory without permission. Petitioner argues, that under the circumstances, R.F.'s behavior and conduct was appropriate. I disagree.

There is no question nor doubt that R.F. demonstrated "open defiance of the authority of [a] teacher" on October 15, 1990. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2b. This open defiance was in the presence of other pupils and staff members. R.F. offered no explanation for her "emergency" or reason she "had to go" to Ms. Goins. Rather, she defiantly placed herself in the front of the line of other female pupils waiting to use the lavatory and then proceeded to enter the lavatory without permission.

I CONCLUDE that R.F.'s conduct on October 15, 1990, was clearly defiant of authority within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2b.

With regard to the "fighting" incidents which occurred on December 21, 1990 and April 2, 1991, petitioner contends, among other things, that both events took place after school hours and off school grounds. Petitioner misinterprets the holding in the matter of R.R. v. Bd. of Ed., Shore Reg. H.S., 109 N.J. Super. 337, where he cites the headnote, which reads as follows:

> 1. Schools and school districts (key) 177
> Public school officials cannot exercise power to expel or suspend a student where activity which is subject of proposed suspension or expulsion does not materially and substantially interfere with requirements of appropriate discipline in operation of the school. (Id. at 337).

Petitioner is cautioned to consider the subsequent language of the Court where it said:

> In New Jersey public school officials have the authority to suspend or expel students for events happening out of school hours. Palmyra Board of Education v. Hansen, 56 N.J. Super. 567, 571 (Law Div. 1959); N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2. This court is unable to find a New Jersey decision holding that school officials have the right to expel or suspend a pupil for conduct > away from school grounds, but the better view is that school authorities have such a right where such is reasonably necessary for the student's physical or emotional safety and well-being, or for reasons relating to the safety and well-being of other students, teachers or public school property. . . Id. at 344.

The R.R. court continued to hold at 347, that:

> Where public school officials have reasonable cause to believe that a student, by virtue of activities after school hours and off school property, presents a danger to himself, to others or to school property, they may temporarily suspend the student for a short period of time . . .

Petitioner is also reminded of the statute at N.J.S.A. 18A:25-2, which provides, in pertinent part, as follows:

> A teacher or other person in authority over such pupil shall hold every pupil accountable for disorderly conduct in school and during recess on the playgrounds of the school and on the way to and from school.

Thus, R.F.'s conduct which resulted in fights between herself and other female pupils after school hours and off school property were subject to disciplinary action by the school authorities. R.F. admits that her conduct which resulted in the fighting carried over from her in-school activities concerning the other two girls.

As the Commissioner said in the matter of Gustave M. Wermuth, et al v. Bd. of Ed. of Twp. of Livingston, 1965 S.L.D. 121 at 129:

> . . . unacceptable behavior must be restrained and discouraged and when necessary appropriate deterrents and punishments must be employed for purposes of correction and to insure conformity with desirable standards of conduct.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that R.F.'s suspension from school for three days in December 1990 and one day in April 1991, were in accordance with the applicable statutes and case law. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-2; N.J.S.A. 18A:25-2; R.R., supra.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to carry his burden of proof to affirmatively demonstrate that the Board's action to suspend R.F. was arbitrary, capricious and/or unreasonable.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the herein Petition of Appeal be and is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, former 12-month teacher-coordinator of industrial arts, alleged Board violated his rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, 28-6, and 6-10 et seq. by removing him from his teacher-coordinator position and reassigning him to 10-month industrial arts teaching position. Petitioner contended he was terminated prior to the abolition of the position. Board admitted that it did not formally abolish the 12-month position pending enrollment figures for 1991-92 school year. However, it argued it acted in good faith and that while imperfect, the resolution passed on April 25, 1991 was tantamount to formal notice of abolition of position.

Citing Wexler and Hyun, Commissioner determined, although defective, the Board demonstrated its clear intent to effectuate a RIF despite its technical failure to formally do so at its meeting of April 25, 1991. Board did notify petitioner of his changed assignment in April 1991. Commissioner found Board provided notice to petitioner that his 12-month position was abolished and his new employment with Board would be a 10-month teaching position in industrial arts commencing on September 1, 1991. Petition was dismissed.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF FRANKLIN, SOMERSET COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENT.	:

For Petitioner, Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella and Nowak
(Richard A. Friedman, Esq., of Counsel)

For Respondent, Kenney, Gross & McDonough
(Mark S. Tabenkin, Esq., of Counsel)

This matter has come before the Commissioner of Education by way of Petition of Appeal filed on July 17, 1991, alleging that the Board violated petitioner's rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 and N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. by removing him from his tenured position as a teacher-coordinator of industrial arts. Petitioner seeks compensation commensurate with his twelve-month position as a teacher-coordinator from June 30, 1991, the date he avers he was terminated from such position, through August 12, 1991, the date he avers the Board acted by resolution to abolish the position. Petitioner's prayer that he be reinstated to such position was apparently dropped in the filing of his Motion for Summary Decision on December 18, 1991.

On August 8, 1991, the Board filed its Answer to the Petition of Appeal accompanied by its own Motion for Summary Judgment. By way of affirmative defenses, the Board acknowledged, inter alia, that petitioner had served in a twelve-month position as an industrial arts teacher-coordinator and noted that at a meeting held on April 25, 1991 the Board approved a resolution to reassign petitioner to a full-time industrial arts teaching position, a ten-month position, for the school year commencing September 1, 1991 due to the low enrollment in the Cooperative Industrial Education (CIE) program. The Board also averred by way of affirmative defenses that only one instructor with greater seniority than petitioner was reappointed to the position of CIE teacher-coordinator.

The Board's affirmative defenses acknowledge that by letter dated April 26, 1991 the Board informed petitioner of his assignment as a ten-month industrial arts teacher for the 1991-92 school year. It also stated that the Board did not abolish the twelve-month position pending enrollment figures for the 1991-92 school year. Said Answer also admitted that the Board intended to adopt a resolution formally abolishing petitioner's position of CIE teacher-coordinator at its August 12, 1991 meeting. The Board contended in its Answer that its planned action to abolish the position was in good faith in the exercise of its right as provided in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 to reduce the number of teaching staff members because of reductions in the number of pupils. The Board also cited Mildred Wexler v. Bd. of Ed. of the Borough of Hawthorne, Passaic County, 1976 S.L.D. 309, aff'd State Board 314, and Sherman v. Bd. of Ed. of North Plainfield, decided by the Commissioner October 13, 1981 and [Outslay] 1977 S.L.D. at 1038-39 for the proposition that while not the preferred procedure, the Board's action on April 25, 1991 is identical to that which has been held legal in other instances. Citing Hyun v. Bd. of Ed. of the Borough of Wharton, Morris County, 1976 S.L.D. 763, the Board also claims that any defect in its action of April 25, 1991 is insufficient to render its action null and void.

The Board's Answer requested that the Commissioner dismiss the petition with prejudice.

Thereafter, on November 7, 1991 the parties submitted a joint stipulation of fact establishing the following:

> 1. Richard English is a tenured teaching staff member presently employed by the Franklin Township Board of Education.
> 2. Prior to the 1990-91 school year, the Franklin Township Board of Education (the "Board") operated a Cooperative Industrial Education ("CIE") program, a work-study program overseen by one or more teacher-coordinators who arrange for the employment of the students in the program and supervise them at their various work-sites.
>
> 3. Petitioner served as an industrial arts teacher-coordinator in the CIE program, a twelve-month position, commencing on or about September 1, 1972, through the 1990-91 school year.
>
> 4. Over the last several years, student enrollment in the CIE program has declined markedly.
>
> 5. During the 1990-91 school year, due to the under-enrollment in the CIE program, the Board temporarily assigned petitioner to a supervisory position elsewhere in the district, in addition to his regular teaching duties, thereby retaining his status as a twelve-month employee.
> 6. During the 1990-91 school year, enrollment in the total CIE program has continued to decrease. For the 1991-92 school year, enrollment declined to a total of approximately 34 students. These 34 students are divided into two separate instructional groups of approximately 19 and 15 students each.

7. At a meeting held on April 25, 1991, the Board approved a resolution to re-assign petitioner to a full-time industrial arts teaching position, a ten-month position, for the school year commencing on September 1, 1991. This appointment was due to the continuing extremely low enrollment in the CIE program. Petitioner was not re-appointed to the twelve-month position as a teacher-coordinator of the CIE program. Only one instructor, with greater seniority than petitioner, was re-appointed to the position of CIE teacher-coordinator.

8. By letter dated April 26, 1991, the Board informed petitioner of his assignment as a ten-month industrial arts teacher for the 1991-92 school year. However, the Board did not abolish the twelve-month position pending enrollment figures for the 1991-92 school year.

9. Enrollment figures for the CIE program failed to improve during the period of April 25, 1991, to August 12, 1991.

10. At a regularly scheduled meeting held on August 12, 1991, the Board adopted a resolution formally abolishing petitioner's position of CIE teacher-coordinator based on the continuing under-enrollment in the CIE program.

On December 19, 1991, petitioner filed a brief in support of his Motion for Summary Judgment seeking compensation for the period from July 1, 1991 until August 12, 1991, as if he were assigned to the teacher-coordinator position, until it was abolished by the Board on the latter date.

Petitioner cites Kathi L. Savarese v. Board of Education of the Borough of Bernardsville, (Savarese II), decided by the Commissioner November 15, 1990 for the proposition that unless his/her tenured position is actually abolished or he/she is dismissed after tenure charges, a tenured teaching staff member shall not suffer removal from such position. Petitioner believes the facts in Savarese are similar to those in this case, claiming that while he held a tenured twelve-month position as an industrial arts teacher-coordinator from which he was reassigned on June 30, 1991 to a teaching position, shortening his work year from twelve months to ten, his twelve-month position was not abolished.

Citing Sherman, supra, petitioner concedes that a Board has statutory authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 to effect a reduction in force by abolishing a full-time teaching position and establishing in its place a part-time position. However, petitioner contends that because his twelve-month position was still in existence at the time he was reassigned, he could not validly have been removed from that position, and therefore his compensation was reduced.

Petitioner would distinguish the Board's reliance upon Wexler, supra, and Hyun, supra, first because they predate Savarese, which he claims is now the controlling law. Second, petitioner would distinguish the facts of those cases from this one. Here, he claims the Board removed him from his twelve-month position before it decided to abolish that position. In Wexler and Hyun the decisions to abolish were made, but the resolutions were not in perfect form. In this case, the Board acted to reassign him to the ten-month position before the Board decided to effect the reduction in force. Also, petitioner adds, in Wexler and Hyun a tenured position was reduced in part, but not eliminated, but in this matter the entire position was abolished.

The Board's brief, submitted on December 20, 1991, contends that although the Board's action in reducing petitioner's work year without formally abolishing his twelve-month position was not the preferred procedure, the statute which governs RIF's effected under school law, specifically N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, does not impose any requirement of a formal board resolution as a condition precedent to finding the existence of a RIF, nor has the Commissioner imposed such a requirement as a matter of case law. The Board cites Board of Education of the Township of Madison v. Madison Township Education Association, 1974 S.L.D. 488 for the proposition that despite the absence of a formal resolution, in a case involving the abolition of two teaching staff positions by a local board, the Commissioner held that the board in substance had abolished the positions. The Board also cites Riemann v. Board of Education of the Township of Edison, 1980 S.L.D. 636, 641-42 as being in accord with Madison.

The Board also reiterates its contention that Wexler, supra, and Hyun, supra, as well as another, Margot Outslay v. Board of Education of the Borough of Midland Park, 1977 S.L.D. 1033 are dispositive of the Motion for Summary Judgment. The board in Outslay initially neglected to formally abolish a tenured teacher's full-time position, but instead adopted resolutions which effectively abolished those positions or at least evidenced the Board's intent to do so, primarily by reducing a full-time position to a part-time one. In each of those cases, the Board submits, the Commissioner held that the defect of failing to formally abolish was insufficient to invalidate the Board's action.

Thus, the Board contends that its action was not so defective as to render its action null and void and that consequently, summary judgment must be granted in favor of the Board, dismissing the Petition of Appeal with prejudice.

Petitioner's reply brief, submitted on January 9, 1992, contends the facts in Madison, supra, Wexler, supra, and Hyun, supra, are distingishable from this matter. Petitioner claims that unlike the facts in Madison, at the time the Board removed him from his twelve-month position, the Franklin Board had not demonstrated an intent to abolish the position, whereas in Madison the funds for the two nontenured positions had been eliminated from the budget before the petitioners were advised that they would not be returning to those positions. Petitioner claims the twelve-month position and the monies allocated as compensation for the position at question remained in existence at the time he was transferred to the ten-month position.

Similarly, in Wexler and Hyun the resolutions, while defective, demonstrated a clear intent to effect a RIF, petitioner avers, because the boards decided to reduce teaching staff in accordance with reductions in student enrollment before they notified the petitioners that their positions were being reduced in part to accommodate a RIF. In Outslay, petitioner contends, the board decided to reduce the hours of several librarians and school nurses, including petitioner's. However, the board failed to formally abolish the full-time positions and create new part-time positions. However, petitioner contends, in this case, the Franklin Board did not decide to effect a RIF until after it removed him from his tenured position.

Petitioner reiterates his contention that Savarese, supra, is dispositive of this case wherein the issue is whether a RIF actually took place before the Board's resolution of August 12, 1991. Petitioner claims the Board's argument is erroneous that the Savarese case dealt with whether there had actually been a RIF in the number of teaching positions available through an action by the Board. He faults the Board's position that Savarese is different from this one because unlike in Savarese, in this case there was a reduction in the actual number of coordinator positions. However, petitioner submits that the Board in this matter took no steps to reduce the number of coordinator positions until August 12, 1991, almost two months after he was removed from his tenured position. Accordingly, petitioner requests that the Commissioner grant him the compensation which he was denied as a result of the Board's improper termination of him as a teacher-coordinator.

The Board's reply brief argues it gave petitioner timely notice in April 1991 that his employment was being reduced from a twelve-month position to a ten-month position with a corresponding reduction in compensation. Accordingly, the Board submits, petitioner's argument that he is entitled to be compensated at the rate for his twelve-month salary until the formal abolition of the twelve-month position must be rejected.

Further, the Board claims petitioner's reliance on Sherman, supra, and Sarah Armstrong v. Board of Education of the Township of East Brunswick, 1975 S.L.D. 112, aff'd in part/rev'd in part State Board 177, aff'd New Jersey Appellate Division 1976 S.L.D. 1104 are inapposite. The Board contends, Sherman applied to the compensation of a tenured teacher in rescission of contract cases, under circumstances where a contract for full-time employment, offered to a tenured teacher who accepted it, is subsequently rescinded by the Board. In such cases, the teacher is entitled to additional compensation but the present case is not a rescission of contract matter, and hence petitioner's reliance on Sherman is misplaced, the Board argues. Moreover, petitioner herein has never argued that the notice of ten-month employment provided to him by letter dated April 26, 1991 was untimely or inadequate in any way.

Further, the Board argues that Sherman, supra, relied on Armstrong, supra. It contends Armstrong awarded 60 days additional compensation to a nontenured teacher, pursuant to a contractual 60-day cancellation clause, because she received untimely notices of nonrenewal pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10. Thus, the Board finds Armstrong, like Sherman, inapplicable to the facts of this case in that N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 applies to notices provided to nontenured teachers. Also, the Board avers petitioner has not argued that the notice of ten-month employment provided to him by letter dated April 26, 1991 was untimely or inadequate in any way.

The Board thus submits that the cases on which petitioner relies in support of his compensation argument fail to support a claim for any additional compensation on the facts of this case, and his claim must be rejected.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner determines that this case falls among those cases such as Wexler, supra, and Hyun, supra, wherein, although defective, the Board demonstrated its clear intent to effectuate a RIF, despite its technical failure to formally do so on April 25, 1991. The record makes plain that the Board's failure to so act to formally abolish Mr. English's position was acknowledged readily by the Board, but was an omission in good faith; it forestalled such action in the hope that enrollment in the CIE course might swell sufficiently, despite pessimistic projections, to permit the Board to maintain a second CIE Industrial Arts teacher/coordinator. See Stipulation of Fact No. 8.

While the Commissioner concurs with petitioner that pursuant to such cases as Savarese, supra, unless the Board acts to formally abolish a position, a tenured teaching staff member shall not suffer removal from such position, in the instant matter it would be to place form over substance to suggest that the Board's actions of April 25, 1991 failed to provide petitioner adequate notice that his twelve-month position was being eliminated. Its action of that date resolved that petitioner be reassigned to a ten-month industrial arts position beginning on September 1, 1991 due to low enrollment in the CIE program. By letter dated April 26, 1991 the Board so informed petitioner of his changed assignment. See Stipulation of Facts Nos. 7 and 8.

In Wexler, supra, Outslay, supra, and Hyun, supra, the boards' intention, albeit flawed in execution, was unquestionably to announce the abolition of full-time positions. On the other hand, in Savarese, the Commissioner held the action of the board was not intended to effectuate an abolition in the position in question, but instead represented a mere transfer because the same number of positions existed after the Board's action as existed before. In Wexler, Outslay and Hyun, the number of positions available were in fact, reduced, which petitioner concedes. Hence, Savarese is distinguishable from the instant matter because there was no actual RIF. In Wexler, Outslay and Hyun, although defective, the boards' actions were determined to have been taken in good faith, in an attempt to abolish the full-time positions in question, and were found to be merely less than fatally defective in the attempt. Accord, Madison, supra, and Rieman, supra.

Similarly, in this case, the Board's act was not one "of subterfuge or designed to compel a resignation." (Wexler, at 313) Rather, the Board provided what notice it could to petitioner that his twelve-month position was abolished and that his new employment with the Board would be a ten-month teaching position in industrial arts commencing on September 1, 1991.

Whether the contract in question ran from July 1 to June 30 or from September 1 to August 31, is, in the Commissioner's view, a "red herring." Instead, the crux of this decision involves the adequacy of the Board's actions in April, which the Commissioner deems to have been tantamount to the declaration of a RIF, because it carefully explained in resolution respondent's status and provided reasons for so acting to reduce petitioner to a ten-month position. Notwithstanding this conclusion, however, the Commissioner would note that to have acted correctly, the Board should have formally abolished the position in April, and if enrollment were sufficient to support the second position as the new school year approached, to recreate or reestablish the second slot.

Because there is no allegation that the remaining teacher-coordinator of industrial arts has less seniority than petitioner, the Commissioner finds and directs that no relief is due or owing petitioner under the facts of this case, and accordingly he dismisses the Petition of Appeal, with prejudice.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

NEW JERSEY STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS,	:
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the State Board of Examiners, December 5, 1991

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 15, 1992

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Talaya Yvette Stoddard, pro se

For the Respondent-Respondent, Marlene Zuberman, Deputy Attorney General (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General)

By letter of December 6, 1991, the State Board of Examiners notified Appellant that it had voted to deny her issuance of elementary certification because of her "conviction for theft by deception from the Mercer County Board of Social Services."

Appellant challenged this determination by petition to the Commissioner. By letter decision of May 15, 1992, the Commissioner dismissed the matter for lack of jurisdiction, finding that the State Board of Education's regulations direct that final decisions of the Board of Examiners must be appealed directly to the State Board of Education.

Appellant then filed an appeal to the State Board of Education, arguing that she had not been convicted of any crime. In support of her appeal, she filed letters from the Trenton Chief of

SEPT. 2, 1992

Police and the Manager of the Department of Education's Office of Criminal History Review indicating that their respective checks did not show any convictions.

Before the merits of Appellant's appeal can be decided, the question of who has jurisdiction over the matter must be settled. We have reviewed the relevant regulations and find that they fail to support the Commissioner's conclusion that he does not have jurisdiction.

N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.7 directs appeal to the State Board of Education from decisions of the State Board of Examiners revoking certification and does not alter the Department of Education's appeal structure so as to give us jurisdiction to hear appeals directly from Board of Examiner's determinations to deny issuance of certification. In re Masiello, 25 N.J. 590, 607 (1958). Nor is there any indication that it was our intent to do so when we adopted the section. See 22 N.J.R. 1873(a) (June 18, 1990).

Accordingly, we reverse the Commissioner's decision that he does not have jurisdiction, and, because the appeal is not properly before us, we remand the merits of this matter to the Commissioner.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF RONNIE GOULD, SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF NEWARK,	:	DECISION
ESSEX COUNTY.	:

On February 24, 1992 the Commissioner of Education granted Summary Judgment in favor of the Board of Education of the City of Newark, finding Respondent Ronnie Gould guilty of conduct unbecoming a tenured teaching staff member and other just cause (excessive absenteeism). Mr. Gould had failed to respond to the tenure charges levied against him by the Board, for whom he had been employed as a teacher at South Seventeenth Street School. Said decision dismissed Mr. Gould from his tenured position in the district's employ as of the 25th of February, 1992.

Thereafter, by letter filed with the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on March 23, 1992 the Board of Education's General Counsel requested that this matter be reopened and the Commissioner's decision rescinded as a result of the following:

> 1. Mr. Gould was reported as being absent without leave by the administrators at South Seventeenth Street school at the beginning of the 1991-1992 school year.
> 2. A letter was sent to Mr. Gould on September 24, 1991 advising him of his A.W.O.L. status and threatening tenure charges. A second letter was sent on September 30, 1991 advising Mr. Gould of his continued A.W.O.L. status. Both letters were sent regular and certified mail. Only the certified mail was returned.

3. Sometime during mid-September 1991, Mr. Gould changed his address with the Board, but this change was not immediately processed. Therefore said letters and subsequently the tenure charges were forwarded to an invalid address.

4. Tenure charges were filed against Mr. Gould in November 1991, and the matter was opened before the Commissioner on December 4, 1991.

5. The Commissioner also sent numerous notices to Mr. Gould via certified and regular to the invalid address that was supplied by the Board.

6. On February 24, 1992, summary judgment was granted to the Board wherein Mr. Gould was to be dismissed from his tenured position as a teacher.

7. An employee status form was sent to Mr. Gould (at the new address). Mr. Gould came in and informed us that he reported to work two days late.

The administrators of the school failed to notify the appropriate staff that Mr. Gould had reported to work. In the same instant, Mr. Gould's new address was not immediately processed and recorded. Such unfortunate and inexcusable errors, resulted in the above referenced tenure charges. (Letter, at pp. 1-2)

Based on the error in the record as relayed by the Board's counsel, the Commissioner rescinds his directive that Ronnie Gould be dismissed from his tenured employ with the Newark Board of Education. In so doing the Commissioner strongly admonishes the Newark Board of its obligation to ensure that procedures are implemented to avoid what it admits is an unfortunate and inexcusable series of errors on its part that resulted in these tenure charges having been filed before the Commissioner of Education.

By copy of this Amended Decision, the Commissioner notifies the New Jersey State Board of Examiners of his determination to rescind his earlier decision in this matter.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF LINCOLN PARK, PETITIONER-APPELLANT,
V.	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOROUGH COUNCIL OF THE BOROUGH OF LINCOLN PARK, MORRIS COUNTY, RESPONDENT-CROSS/APPELLANT.	DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, June 18, 1992

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Peggy M. O'Dowd, Esq.

For the Respondent-Cross/Appellant, Scangarella & Feeney (John F. Feeney, Esq., of Counsel)

In January 1992, the Board of Education of the Borough of Lincoln Park (hereinafter "Board") submitted, aside from its proposed current expense budget submitted for approval as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27,[1] a request to the County Superintendent for a budget cap waiver (hereinafter "cap waiver") in the amount of $994,601.00 under the criteria of N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e).[2] Specifically, utilizing the form prescribed by the Commissioner, the

1 N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27 provides that:

> Annually, on or before February 1, local boards of education shall submit to the commissioner a copy of their proposed budgets for the next school year. The commissioner shall review each item of appropriation within the current expense and capital outlay budgets and shall determine the adequacy of the budgets with regard to the annual reports submitted pursuant to section 11 of P.L. 1975, c 212 (C. 18A:7A-11) and such other criteria as may be established by the state board.

2 N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e) provides that:

> A board of education of a school district which: (1) for the two years prior to the prebudget year, has had an annual average increase in the district's resident enrollment which is greater than two percent; or (2) between the prebudget year and

DEC. 2, 1992

District requested $742,788 due to annual average increases in resident enrollment and $251,813 for increased costs for special education pupils. 1992-93 CAP REVIEW FACT SHEET, Appellant's Brief, Exhibit A.

By letter of Feburary 28, 1992, the Commissioner approved a cap waiver in the amount of $240,496 for increased special education costs under the criteria of N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e). Commissioner's Letter of 2/28/92, Appellant's Brief, Exhibit C. He rejected $754,105 of the $994,601 requested "due to budget reallocations, reductions, and/or errors in the calculations in the amount ...which were identified during the review process." Id. Finally, the Commissioner advised the District that its maximum permitted net budget would be $11,170,532 for tax levy purposes and that this amount excluded "requests to exceed the expenditure limitation which will be submitted to the voters or board of school estimate." Id.

By letter of March 4, 1992, the County Superintendent notified the District that its current expense budget for 1992-93, which included the amount waived by the Commissioner for increased special education costs, was "approved for advertisement." County Superintendent's Letter of 3/4/92, Appellant's Brief, Exhibit D.

the year prior to the prebudget year, has had an increase in the district's local cost for special education pupils which is greater than five percent; or (3) during the 1990-91 school year but prior to April 1, 1991, has entered into a lease purchase agreement, may apply to the Commissioner of Education for a waiver of the expenditure limitation established pursuant to this section. A board of education of a school district that sends pupils and pays tuition to a special needs district may apply to the Commissioner of Education for a waiver of the expenditure limitation established pursuant to this section. Any waiver granted by the commissioner pursuant to this subsection shall not be included in the question on excess expenditures which is to be submitted to the voters of the district pursuant to subsection f. of this section.

By that same letter, she also notified the District that it was authorized to advertise a budget cap waiver proposal for $299,035 for specific line items which she determined were "approved T & E amounts." Id. She, however, advised the District that while the remainder, another $330,124, could be included in the cap waiver proposal, this amount was not included in the "conditional approval" and therefore was not eligible for appeal with the Commissioner if the cap waiver proposal was rejected by the voters. Id.

In accord with the above, the District's budget, including the amount over cap approved by the Commissioner under N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e), was submitted to the voters. At the same time, but as a separate question, a proposal for a cap waiver in the amount of $629,159 was also submitted to the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f).[3]

[3] In contrast to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e), N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) provides:

> Any school district may submit a proposal to raise the amount of tax levy necessary to exceed the maximum permissible net budget permitted by this section to the legal voters of the district for type II school districts without a Board of School Estimate and to the Board of School Estimate for those school districts with a Board of School Estimate as required during the school budget approval process pursuant to chapters 22 and 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes and section 13 of P.L.1971, c.271 (C. 18A:46-41). The proposal to raise additional tax levy to exceed the maximum permissible net budget shall be in addition to the amounts required to be approved for each school district in accordance with chapters 22 and 54 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes and section 13 of P.L. 1971, c.271 (C. 18A:46-41). In the event that a school district's proposal to raise the tax levy to exceed the maximum permissible net budget is not approved in accordance with the budget approval process set forth in chapter 22 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes to type II districts and for type I districts, chapter 54 of Title 18A of the New Jesey Statutes for county vocational school districts and section 13 of P.L. 1971, c.271 (C. 18A:46-41) for county special services school districts, that disapproval shall be deemed final and shall not be subject to further review of appeal.

The voters approved the current expense budget proposed by the Board, but defeated the cap waiver proposal submitted to them under N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f).

The District Board appealed to the Commissioner of Education naming the governing body as respondent pursuant to direction from the Department of Education's Bureau of Controversies and Disputes.[4] In its petition, the Board challenged the action of the County Superintendent in not granting "conditional approval" of the full amount of $629,159 requested for waiver and alleged that a thorough and efficient system of schools could not be conducted without inclusion of the full amount of the waiver request.

The municipality answered the petition although objecting that it could not properly be named as respondent. It also moved for dismissal of the Board's petition arguing that the Commissioner was barred by the express language of the statute from considering any portion of the waiver proposed to and defeated by the voters under N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(e).

The Commissioner acted on the Borough's motion to dismiss, determining that he had the authority to consider that portion of the cap waiver request which the County Superintendent had previously determined to be necessary for T & E, but dismissing that portion of the cap waiver which had not been "conditionally approved."

[4] By letter of May 26, 1992, which is included in the record, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes apparently provided respondent with a copy of a memorandum to all County Superintendents regarding procedures relating to cap waiver appeals. While that memorandum is not included in the record, a letter from the Director dated June 8, 1992, indicates that all districts were required to name their governing bodies as respondents and to proceed in accord with N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.5 et seq.

The Board appealed to the State Board asserting that the Commissioner had the obligation to consider the full amount of its waiver request. The Borough cross appealed arguing that the Commissioner has no authority to consider any portion of a cap waiver request submitted to the voters and that hearing the matter under procedures not codified in regulation denies them due process.

The starting point for resolving this matter is arriving at a proper appreciation of the Commissioner's obligation to assure that each school district has sufficient fiscal resources to provide a thorough and efficient education to its students. Robinson v. Cahill 69 N.J. 449, 463 (1976) (Robinson V); Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990). This obligation is an integral part of the Commissioner's responsibility for assuring that the State's constitutional mandate is fulfilled and it is of such importance as to vest in the Commissioner the authority to direct an increase in a district's budget beyond those amounts approved by the district's voters. In re Upper Freehold Reg'l School District, 86 N.J. 265 (1981). Given the nature of the responsibility entrusted to the Commissioner, we have no doubt that the authority to fulfill it must embrace the power to direct an increase in a district's education budget in any case where such increase is necessary to satisfy the constitutional mandate, including a case where voters have defeated a proposal to exceed its statutory budget limitation. See Administrative Agency Advice (AAA) 91-0036 (July 8, 1991).

However, the power to direct such increase may properly be exercised only where an increase is necessary to enable the district to provide a thorough and efficient education. Upper Freehold, supra. Further, any increase must be limited to those amounts the district needs in order to provide a thorough and efficient education. Id. Consequently, it is necessary to assess the adequacy of the budget as advertised and to determine whether it is possible to reallocate amounts within that budget before directing any increase. See AAA 91-0036, supra, at 6.

The record before us in this matter does not provide a sufficient basis upon which we can make these determinations. In point of fact, there is nothing in the record to indicate that the possibility of reallocation within the budget passed by the voters was considered at any point following defeat of the District's cap waiver proposal and appeal to the Commissioner.

Again the record is sparce. While the record made before the Commissioner includes a Financial Status Summary Report as of June 30, 1992, this is the only document in the record reflecting or relating to the entirety of the budget approved for advertisement and proposed to the voters. As previously indicated, the limited documentation relating to the budget approval process was not part of the record below, but was provided as attachments to the Board's brief on appeal. That documentation shows only that, by her letter of March 4, 1992, the County Superintendent "approved" the District's budget for advertisement. She also authorized the District to advertise a cap waiver proposal which included certain line item amounts designated as "approved T & E amounts" and others as "not approved T & E amounts." The District was advised that it was required to appeal the "approved T & E amounts" in the event that the proposal was rejected by the voters, but that it could not appeal those designated as "not approved T & E amounts."

Given the limited record here and the lack of regulatory criteria relating to the budget approval process by which the County Superintendent "approved" the District's budget for advertisement,[5] we are unable to determine whether and, if so, what additional amounts are necessary in order for the District to provide a thorough and efficient education to its students. Therefore, we have no recourse but to remand this matter to the Commissioner.

In remanding this matter, we can find no basis to treat those amounts designated by the County Superintendent in her March 4 letter as "approved T & E amounts" differently from those designated in the same letter as "not approved T & E amounts" so as

5 See N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-27. The only regulatory provision relating to the budget approval process is codified at N.J.A.C. 6:8-4.2(10), which specifies that for monitoring purposes:

> The financial element of the district shall be rated acceptable upon documentation of performance in six indicators as follows:
> i. The chief school administrator shall present to the district board of education accurate and timely fiscal and statistical reports of the district pursuant to law and rule.
> ii. The fiscal and statistical reports of the district shall be accurate and timely in transmittal to county, State and Federal offices pursuant to law and rule.
> iii. The annual budget for the district shall be developed, approved and presented to the public pursuant to law and rule.
> 1. The district board of education shall submit a proposed budget to the county superintendent of schools on or before January 15 in an authorized budget format.
> 2. The proposed budget shall be reviewed and approved by the county superintendent of schools prior to its advertisement.
> iv. The district shall have an annual audit of accounts and financial transactions pursuant to law and rule and State audits as determined by the Commissioner of Education.
> 1. Within 30 days of receipt, the district board of education shall accept and discuss the annual or State audit at a regularly scheduled board meeting.
> 2. The district board of education shall implement the recommendations cited in the annual or State audit and shall report such implementation to the Commissioner of Education.

to exclude those amounts designated as "not approved T & E amounts" from review by the Commissioner. In this respect, we emphasize that in seeking agency advice from the Attorney General, this agency asked the specific question of whether section 19(f) of the Quality Education Act (now codified at N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f)) precluded the Commissioner from ordering an increase in a local budget if such an increase is necessary for the district to have a constitutionally sufficient budget. AAA 91-0036, supra, at 1. Careful review of the written agency advice responding to that question on behalf of the Attorney General shows nothing which would insulate any amounts included in a cap waiver proposal presented to the voters pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f) from the Commissioner's review where the district has asserted that such amounts are in fact necessary for it to provide a thorough and efficient education. See AAA 91-0036, supra.

Nor can we identify any other provision of law which would insulate the County Superintendent's determination from review.[6] Perhaps, as suggested by the Commissioner, it would be better for boards of education to raise their challenges to a county superintendent's determination such as that challenged here prior to the election at which the waiver is to be presented to the voters. Commissioner's decision, at 5. However, no such procedures were in place at the time that this matter arose. To the contrary, the procedures followed here, while not codified in regulation, were those specified by the Department of Education. We find nothing in the circumstances here which would justify depriving the Board of the opportunity to demonstrate that the funds at issue are necessary, in whole or in part, for it to provide a thorough and efficient education to its students.

6 Although not raised as an issue in this case, we note that the Board of Education filed its appeal on May 4, 1992, well within 90 days of the County Superintendent's determination of March 4. N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2.

However, we emphasize that it is the District which has the responsibility to convince the Commissioner that reallocation within the budget approved by the voters is impossible. AAA 91-0036, supra, at 6. In this respect, although the proceedings in this matter subsequent to defeat of the District's budget cap waiver proposal have been styled after those applicable to controverted cases, in resolving this matter, the Commissioner essentially is required to apply his expertise to a set of facts and figures and determine whether the amounts at issue are necessary, in whole or in part, to enable the district to provide a thorough and efficient education to its students. East Windsor Reg'l Bd. of Ed. v. State Bd. of Ed., 172 N.J. Super. 547, 551-52 (1980).

Moreover, in contrast to those cases in which a municipal governing body has acted pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37 to establish the amount necessary for a thorough and efficient education following voter defeat of the budget proposed by the district board of education, the municipal governing body has no statutorily prescribed role where, as here, the budget proposed to the voters was approved and the governing body was not called upon to "determine the amount necessary to be appropriated, for each item appearing in such budget, to provide a thorough and efficient system of schools in the district." N.J.S.A. 18A:22-37. Further, we find no indication that this agency would be precluded from affording complete relief to the District if the Borough Council were not joined as a respondent in the proceedings, and we do not find under the circumstances here that the Borough Council is an indispensable party to these proceedings. Eg., Allen B. Dumont Laboratories, Inc. v. Marcalus Mfg. Co., 30 N.J. 290 (1959); Garnick v. Serewitch, 39 N.J. Super. 486 (Ch. Div. 1956). However, while the governing body is not an indispensable party and might not even be entitled to standing as a party as a matter of law, see, e.g., N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.1; Capra v. Board of Education of the Borough of Eatontown, decided by the State Board, November 4, 1987, we fail to see on the basis of the papers submitted by the parties how affording the governing body the opportunity to participate on a voluntary basis would deprive it of due process.

In sum, based on the foregoing, the State Board of Education reverses the Commissioner's decision and remands this matter to him with the direction that he determine whether each of the items for which the District proposes to allocate the additional $629,159 is necessary in order for the District to provide a thorough and efficient education to its students, and whether or to what degree the budget adopted can be reallocated so as to include those amounts.[9]

Date of mailing DEC 04 1992

[9] In arriving at our conclusion, we have not considered exceptions submitted by Respondent on November 16 in that exceptions were due on November 6. N.J.A.C. 6:2-1.17.

Record Closed: December 23, 1991 Decided: January 7, 1992

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On or about December 21, 1990, the Board of Education of the city of East Orange certified charges of incompetency and incapacity against respondent, Patricia Wilson, a teacher of English as a second language at East Orange High School. On January 28, 1991, respondent filed an answer denying the charges and requesting that the tenure charges be dismissed. On January 30, 1991, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A telephone prehearing conference was held on May 9, 1991, at which time the issues were isolated. The hearing was scheduled for October 2, 3, and 4, 1991, at the Office of Administrative Law. As a result of a settlement conference held on September 6, 1991, a tentative settlement was reached and the hearing was adjourned to February 10 and 11, 1992. The settlement was based on respondent's application for a disability pension to be effective January 1, 1992.

A Stipulation of Settlement was filed on November 19, 1991, outlining the terms of the settlement. On December 16, 1991, the undersigned was advised that respondent had been approved for an ordinary disability pension effective January 1, 1992; that being so, the settlement could be effectuated. A notice of determination from the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund was filed with the undersigned on December 23, 1991.

The parties have prepared the attached Stipulation of Settlement and letters of December 13, 1991 and December 23, 1991, from counsel for respondent, outlining the terms of the settlement. Those documents are attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms, and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be and are hereby concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Notice of Determination

Dear Ms. Wilson:

The Board of Trustees, Teachers' Pension & Annuity Fund at its meeting of December 5, 1991 approved your application for Ordinary disability under Maximum effective January 1, 1992.

Your retirement allowance as a disability retirant under age 60 is subject to adjustment if your earnings from employment after retirement exceed the difference between the pension portion of your retirement allowance and the salary attributable to your former position

It is noted that you elected to receive benefits under Maximum. You have the right to change this election to another type of retirement payment provided you file an amended application within 30 days from the date of Board approval; otherwise, retirement will stand as approved and may not be changed for any reason whatsoever thereafter.

The statute permits the Board of Trustees to require a disability retirant who is under 60 years of age to undergo annual medical examinations to determine if he continues to be totally and permanently disabled and therefore eligible for continued receipt of his disability retirement allowance.

Your first retirement check cannot be disbursed until a minimum of 30 days has elapsed from the date of Board approval or your effective date of retirement, whichever is the later date.

Sincerely,

Michael Weik
Secretary
Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund

LITTLE SILVER BOARD OF EDUCATION,
Respondent.

Arnold M. Mellk, Esq., for petitioner (Wills, O'Neill & Mellk, attorneys)

Robert E. Murray, Esq., for respondent (Murray, Murray & Corrigan, attorneys)

Record Closed: January 13, 1992 Decided: January 14, 1992

BEFORE BRUCE R. CAMPBELL, ALJ:

Rita Bross appealed the Little Silver Board of Education's decision to withhold her employment and adjustment increments for the 1990-91 school year.

Bross' petition of appeal was filed with the Commissioner of Education on June 27, 1990 and timely answered by the Board. It was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. This judge held a prehearing conference on September 28, 1990, at which procedures were settled and the matter was set down for hearing on March 3 and 4, 1991. The matter was rescheduled once because of an attorney scheduling conflict and then placed on the inactive list for six months by Order dated June 25, 1991 because the parties agreed to submit the matter to binding arbitration.

Prior to expiration of the inactive period, the judge wrote to counsel and requested a status report. Counsel supplied the Opinion and Award of Robert L. Mitrani, arbitrator, dated July 1, 1991. Letters of January 8, 1992 from Mr. Mellk and Ms. Maxwell.

There no longer being a controversy, the matter is moot. The parties seek nothing of the Commissioner and, therefore, of this tribunal. I DETERMINE the matter to be WITHDRAWN and direct the Clerk of the Office of Administrative Law to return the case file to the Department of Education.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, candidate for Educational Media Specialist Certificate, alleged improper denial of said certificate by New Jersey State Board of Examiners.

ALJ found petitioner did not meet requirements of N.J.A.C 6:11-11.17 as she needed 21 semester hours of professional education courses and a semester of supervised student teaching. ALJ concluded petitioner did not submit sufficient evidence to permit substitute education or experience for the requirements she lacked. ALJ affirmed denial of petitioner's application.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 1190-91
AGENCY DKT. NO. 9-1/91

DIANE G. CAIROLI,
Petitioner,
v.
NEW JERSEY STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS, DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION,
Respondent.

Diane G. Cairoli, petitioner, pro se
Arlene Goldfus Lutz, Deputy Attorney General, on behalf of the respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: November 28, 1991 Decided: January 10, 1992

BEFORE ROBERT W. SCOTT, ALJ:

CASE STATEMENT AND HISTORY

Sometime prior to September 13, 1990, the petitioner submitted an application to the Department of Education for an Educational Media Specialist Certificate. On September 13, 1990, the respondent heard the petitioner's application and on October 18, 1990, denied the petitioner's request. On October 30, 1990, the petitioner was notified of the respondent's denial and on January 14, 1991, she submitted a petition requesting that the matter be considered a controversy under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. On January 30, 1991, the respondent filed an answer to the petitioner's petition. On February 5, 1991, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case. A hearing was held on September 30, 1991 and the record was closed after the Deputy Attorney General submitted a post-hearing argument in writing.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The governing regulation in this matter is N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.17. That code provision sets forth the requirements for the certification of Educational Medical Specialist. Those requirements are as follows: 1) a Master's degree from an accredited institution; 2) a standard New Jersey Teacher's certificate or Associate Educational Media Specialist Endorsement; 3) one year of teaching or one year experience as an Associate Educational Media Specialist; and 4) completion of a graduate curriculum or a minimum of 30 hours semester credit of post graduate studies.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24, the respondent exercises supervisory authority over the issuance of teaching certificates and may substitute alternate education and/or experience for the above requirements.

It is not disputed by the petitioner that she fails to meet one of the requirements set forth above, that being a standard New Jersey Teacher's certificate or an Associate Educational Medial Specialist Endorsement. Under the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:11-7.3 to be eligible for a teacher's certificate an applicant is required to have 30 semester credit hours of professional education courses and, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-7.3(e), complete a semester of supervised student teaching.

UNDISPUTED FACTS AND ISSUE

The respondent does not dispute that the petitioner has completed nine credit hours in professional education courses. The respondent also does not dispute that through education and experience the petitioner has completed what is referred to as the subject matter component (Educational Media) for qualification of a teaching certificate. Further the petitioner has also completed the National Teacher's Examination. The issue in this matter is whether or not the petitioner's education and experience demonstrates the equivalant of 21 semester hours in professional education courses and a semester of supervised student teaching.

In Exhibit P-1, the petitioner has set forth a complete statement concerning her education and employment experience. The petitioner has also shown that she holds a Public School Teacher's Certificate in the State of New York for a School Media Specialist (Library). In that state, she also holds a Public Librarian's Professional Certificate. In Pennsylvania, she holds a certificate of Public Librarianship and in this state she holds a Professional Librarian's Certificate.

What follows is a summary of Exhibit P-1 and the petitioner's testimony. In 1980, the petitioner received a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Art History from the University of Notre Dame. In 1983, she received Masters of Science Degree in Library Service from Columbia University. The next school year the petitioner was employed as a School Library Media Specialist. From September 1984 through the present the petitioner has been a School Librarian at the junior and senior high school level. The petitioner testified that while she was taking a media course at Columbia University she student taught at the "Dalton School (First Program)." She observed various classes and prepared and taught her own lesson plans. She met regularly with the supervisor of the school and her Columbia University instructor about teaching methods in classroom instruction. The petitioner argues that this experience meets the requirements of a semester of student teaching.

As to her lack of professional education courses, the petitioner argues that the following experience makes up for the lack of 21 semester hours of these types of courses. Over the past seven years as a School Librarian the petitioner has conducted orientation classes and taught library skills to what I would refer to as junior and senior high school students. She has prepared lesson plans, work sheets, handouts, etc. and has prepared testing material. She has also worked with classroom teachers in planning student research papers. She has helped teach and lecture students on journalistic and public speaking skills. She has done those things which teachers do in public schools such as attend faculty meetings and conduct inservice programs, workshops, and conferences.

When an application is submitted to any professional board and that professional board has taken action considerable weight must be given to that decision because of the Board's expertise. In this particular case, the respondent has considerable expertise in educational matters and especially in issuing certificates to individuals who teach and are employed in our public schools. As in any administrative determination, the respondent's action should only be overturned if it appears that the Board acted capricious, arbitrary or unreasonable. The undersigned claims to have no particular expertise in professional education. The undersigned has a Bachelor of Science Degree as well as a Juris Doctorate degree. I have also completed 15 hours in a Masters Degree Program. I have also been a college instructor for three semesters. Again, I do not feel that this particular education and experience provides me with any expertise in professional education. However, upon examining Exhibit P-1 and listening to the testimony of the petitioner I find myself agreeing with the decision of the respondent. In other words, there is not substantial evidence to show that the respondent acted arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable in not accepting the petitioner's experience for professional education and student teaching. What the petitioner is basically asking for is the acceptance of her experience for approximately seven courses in professional education. The undersigned is of the opinion that her experience has not reached that level. Further what she has described as her student teaching experience is not compatible with what the undersigned believes to be the normal student teaching experience for a semester.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the evidence before me I FIND that the petitioner has received a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Art History and a Master of Science Degree in Library Service. For the past year seven years the petitioner has been a School Librarian at the junior and senior high school level. For a year prior to this she was a School Library Media Specialist. She holds a School Media Specialist (Library) and a Public Librarian's Professional Certificate in New York. She has a Certificate of Public Librarianship from Pennsylvania and in this state she holds a Professional Librarian Certificate. The petitioner has completed nine hours of Professional Educational courses. The petitioner has not completed a Supervised Student Teaching Program for one semester. The petitioner however, has passed the National Teacher's Examination. The petitioner has taught high school students journalistic, library and public speaking skills. The petitioner has participated in curriculum committees, faculty meetings, inservice programs, workships and conferences. Her experience however is not equivalent to 21 semester hours of Professional Education courses.

CONCLUSION

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not met the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.17 for the certificate she seeks nor has she submitted sufficient evidence for the respondent to permit substitute education or experience for her failure to meet the requirements of this regulation. I therefore AFFIRM the action of the respondent in denying the petitioner's application.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured teaching staff member, alleged Board violated her tenure and seniority rights by reducing her full-time employment to part-time for 1989-90 school year and by riffing her in 1990-91 school year. Intervenors Greene and Goldstein contended petitioner's assignments were proper.

Initial decision found petitioner was entitled to full-time position of Teacher of Tools for Life as she was more senior than Intervenor Goldstein by virtue of comprehensive business endorsement. (N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10) Moreover, petitioner was entitled to mitigated compensation. Petitioner's claim of superior entitlement to teach business mathematics and consumer math taught by Intervenor Greene was rejected as Greene properly possessed general business endorsement.

Commissioner affirmed in part and rejected in part the initial decision. Commissioner concurred with ALJ's evaluation of Intervenor Greene's entitlement to position of business mathematics and consumer math. Commissioner reversed ALJ's finding that Edgar School was in elementary category for seniority purposes because it was "historically" an elementary school. Commissioner found instead that instruction provided fell into secondary category pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(1)19 because all grades at Edgar School including 6th grade were departmentalized. Commissioner remanded this matter for further findings of fact and conclusions of law as to whether Board knew the Edgar School was departmentalized and thus in secondary category for seniority purposes as it is not possible to determine whether the Board made the proper reduction in force decisions based on the seniority determinations in the matter. Commissioner further directed that on remand should it be determined that the Board knew the instruction at Edgar School was departmentalized and thus in the secondary category, the ALJ is to address Board's allegations relative to Tools for Life not being a full-time assignment and to assess petitioner's right to full-time employment.

Record Closed: September 13, 1991 Decided: January 10, 1992

BEFORE DANIEL B. MC KEOWN, ALJ:

Marlene Unterberger (petitioner) claims the Metuchen Borough Board of Education (Board) violated her tenure and seniority rights with respect to its reduction of her full-time employment as a teacher to part-time employment for the 1989-90 year and, by separate Petition of Appeal consolidated herein, she claims it also violated her tenure and seniority rights with respect to the elimination of her employment by way of a reduction-in-force for 1990-91. Alternatively, petitioner seeks monetary relief for 1989-90 upon the assertion the Board failed to give her timely notice of the reduction of her full-time employment. The Board denies the allegations raised by petitioner and is joined by Elaine B. Goldstein and Paula Greene (intervenors), teachers in the Board's employ who have a substantial interest in the outcome of the matter, in its assertion that its assignments of petitioner for 1989-90 and for 1990-91 are lawful and proper in all respects.

After the matters were transferred on separate dates to the Office of Administrative Law as contested cases under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., a telephone prehearing conference was conducted during which all parties agreed the matters should be consolidated for purposes of adjudication. Thereafter, the parties agreed that all relevant and material facts could be stipulated and that the matter should be decided by way of cross-motions for summary decision. However, a hearing eventually was held to resolve the issue whether, as petitioner asserts, the Board's Edgar School, grades 6 and 7, is a "middle school" with grade 7 being secondary as a consequence of departmentalization or, as the Board asserts, the school is elementary as a consequence of a reorganization. The parties did file briefs in support of their respective positions. An extension of time was requested and granted for the preparation of this initial decision.

FACTS AND STIPULATION OF FACTS

The parties did file a stipulation of fact, together with an amended stipulation of fact, which includes reference to certain exhibits. The facts stipulated by the parties shall be presented, as submitted, while the exhibits referenced therein and the facts established by those exhibits shall be discussed when appropriate and as noted in brackets, thusly [].

1. The Respondent in this matter is the Metuchen Board of Education.

2. Petitioner, Marlene Unterberger, claims tenure and/or seniority rights to teach the following courses in the Respondent's school district as a result of certifications:

   A. Business Mathematics;

   B. Consumer Mathematics;

C. Tools For Life.

The syllabus of each course is attached to this Stipulation as Exhibit "A" (Business Mathematics), Exhibit "B" (Consumer Mathematics) and Exhibit "C" (Tools for Life).

> [According to the syllabi, BUSINESS MATH is designed to provide students with 'experience' in percentages, fractions, interests, discounts, salary and wage computation and related office and marketing mathematical functions met in 'typical jobs settings' where students "work" for small businesses. Subject areas covered in this course are integers, common fractions, percentages, mixed numbers and decimals ostensibly emphasizing the four basic mathematical processes of addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division; buying problems in regard to sales tickets, credit card sales, sale taxes, cash handling, and reconciling cash drawers; special buying problems regarding fractions of a unit; trade discounts and cash discounts; establishing retail prices with regard to mark-ups and mark-downs; and, payroll. The text used is Business Mathematics, published by McGraw Hill. CONSUMER MATHEMATICS, a half-year course, relies on the same text as business math and emphasizes the subject areas of commissions, manufacturing cost control including depreciation, business organization of single proprietorship, partnership, and corporate forms of ownership including stocks and dividends, measuring business progress, and banks and banking services. Consumer mathematics then emphasizes the purchase of food, clothing, transportation, home expenses, life and health insurance, money management, and personal money records. TOOLS FOR LIFE is identified as an "interdisciplinary course" for sixth and seventh graders who, the course intends, will acquire study skills, skills in personal financing including banking, household economics, comparison shopping, and will learn about income taxes, insurance, the need for community participation, and career planning. This course does not rely upon the text, Business Math; rather, two texts are assigned, Strengthening of Skills and It's Your Future.]

3. Business Mathematics and Consumer Mathematics are taught at Metuchen High School, a secondary school, and contained in the Practical Arts Department.

4. Tools For Life is a program under the immediate supervision of the principal and assistant superintendent and is taught at the Edgar School to 6th and 7th graders. Grades 6 and 7 at the Edgar School are departmentalized. Petitioner asserts that the Edgar School is a middle school and grade 7 is secondary as a result of the departmentalization of the school.

Respondent asserts that Edgar School is an elementary school as a result of the reorganization of the district in June of 1988. Respondent further asserts that as a consequence of the Resolution of June, 1988 (Exhibit "I") and the Assistant Superintendent's memorandum (Exhibit "J") that Edgar School is classified as an elementary school.

[Exhibit I is not a "Resolution" adopted by the Board; rather, it is an excerpt of an agenda for a board meeting held June 28, 1989. The relevant portion shows that a motion was to be made to house grades kindergarden through seven in three elementary schools with the grade configuration of K-2, 3-5, and 6-7. Exhibit J is apparently an excerpt from an unidentified document in which the assistant superintendent states that as of September, 1989, the district's three elementary schools are to be reorganized in the following manner: primary grades will be served at

> Moss elementary, intermediate grades at Campbell elementary, and middle grades at Edgar elementary. The excerpt also states that the assistant superintendent reported "two new practical cycle courses in the 6-7 program, Tools for Life, which grades were assigned to the Edgar School which is also identified as an 'elementary school.']

Petitioner denies that the Resolution or memorandum results in classification of Edgar School as an elementary school and asserts that the Tools For Life course is a practical arts offering as set forth in the assistant superintendent's memorandum (Exhibit "J").

> [The testimony of Assistant Superintendent Marcia Holtzman establishes that the Edgar School contained for many years kindergarden through fifth grade, then for several other years kindergarden though sixth grade, then kindergarden through seventh grade, and since 1989-90 grades six and seven. Grade eight is part of the high school. When the Board's three elementary schools were reorganized as of 1989-90, there was no Board resolution to determine which grade levels were to be assigned to which of the three elementary schools. Rather, the grade levels were decided administratively. Nevertheless, the Edgar School is, I am persuaded, considered by its history to be an elementary school while both grades, grades six and seven, are departmentalized and have been since September 1989.]

5. The Respondent, Board of Education, has not established any requirement with respect to endorsements for the teaching of Tools for Life. The Board has not submitted the course to the county superintendent of schools for determination of the appropriate endorsement to teach that course.

6. Petititioner holds, and held at all times during her employment, an instructional certificate with a comprehensive business endorsement. The personnel record of petitioner is annexed hereto as Exhibit "H". Her employment history in the district is as follows:

1984-85	full-time	Typing 1 - 3 sections Typing II - 1 section Shorthand I - 1 section
1985-86	4/5	Typing I - 3 sections Shorthand I - 1 section
1986-87	3/5	Typing I - 2 sections Typing II - 1 section
1987-88	full-time	Accounting I - 2 sections Accounting II - 1 section Keyboarding - 1 section Business Math - 1 section
1988-89	full-time	Keyboarding - 1 section Accounting 1 - 2 sections Accounting II - 1 section Business Math - 1 section
1989-90	3/5	Accounting 1 - 2 sections Accounting II - 1 section

[A comprehensive business endorsement on an instructional certificate authorizes the holder to teach business education subjects in all public schools. According to the rule, N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2, included in the comprehensive business education endorsements are the subject areas of bookkeeping and accounting, secretarial studies, general business education, business math, business English.]

[Based on petitioner's stipulated employment service with the Board, she acquired a tenure status under N.J.S.A. 18A: 28-5 and, as of June 30, 1989 she also acquired 4.4 years seniority which, under N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10 (L) (19) is generally in the secondary category. It is noted that petitioner's seniority in accounting, keyboarding and business math is not as great as 4.4 years but the amount of seniority in specific subject areas is not critical in this case. It will suffice to note she has 4.4 years seniority generally in the secondary category.]

7. Paula Greene holds an instructional certificate with endorsements as teacher of general business studies, and teacher of secretaries studies. Her employment history in the district has been as follows:

1983-84	3/5	Typing I - 2 sections Business Math - 1 section
1984-85	3/5	Typing I - 3 sections
1985-86	3/5	Typing I - 2 sections Typing II - 1 section

1986-87	full-time	Typing I - 3 sections Typing II - 1 section Shorthand - 1 section
1987-88	full-time	Typing I - 3 sections Typing II - 1 section Shorthand - 1 section
1988-89	full-time	Typing I - 3 sections Typing II - 1 section Shorthand I - 1 section
1989-90	full-time	Typing I - 3 sections 8th Grade Typing - 1 section Business Math - 1 section

8. Consumer Math, commencing January 26, 1990, has been taught by Paula Greene.

[Under N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2, the general business endorsement on an instructional certificate authorizes the holder to teach general business studies in all public schools. The rule provides that general business studies normally include business law, economic geography, economics, social business studies, consumer education sales, retailing, and advertising. The rule also authorizes the holder of an endorsement for secretarial studies to teach shorthand, typewriting, office procedures, business machines, business English.]

[Intervenor Greene, by virtue of her employment with the Board, acquired a tenure status and, as of June 30, 1989, she acquired 4.8 years seniority under N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(l) in, generally, the secondary category. As with petitioner, intervenor Greene's seniority in the specific subjects of shorthand, eighth grade typing, and business math was not as great as 4.8 years on June 30, 1989 but it is not crucial to this decision other than to note her 4.8 years generally in the secondary category.]

9. Elaine Goldstein holds an instructional certificate, with an endorsement as an elementary teacher, grades K-8. Her employment history has been 1985-86 school year through 1988-89 school year - 6th grade teacher, full-time at Campbell School. For the school year 1989-90, she has been the teacher of Tools For Life, grade 6 and 7, at the Edgar School. The personnel record and employment history of Elaine Goldstein is set forth on Exhibit "K" annexed hereto.

[Intervenor Goldstein acquired a tenure status in the employ of the Board by virtue of her employment service. As of June 30, 1989 she acquired 4.0 years senioity under N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(l)(20) in the elementary category.]

10. Petitioner, because of her tenure and seniority status, asserts that she should have been assigned to the following courses:

A. Business Mathematics: Petitioner assets that Paula Green is not certified to teach Business Mathematics and, therefore, acquired no tenure or seniority rights as a teacher of Business Mathematics.

B. Consumer Mathematics: Petitioner asserts that Paula Greene is not certified to teach Consumer Mathematics.

In support of her position that Business Mathematics and Consumer Mathematics should have been assigned to her, petitioner relies on the scope of endorsements as established under the Administrative Code.

C. Tools For Life: Petitioner asserts that she is more senior than Elaine Goldstein and is certified to teach Tools For Life.

Respondent asserts that Paula Greene is certified to teach both Business Mathematics and Consumer Mathematics for the following reasons:

A. The matrix furnished to the respondent by the county and prepared by the New Jersey State Department of Education is annexed hereto as Exhibit "G" and permits teachers of General Business Studies to teach Business Mathematics. Petitioner objects to the introduction of this document and also asserts that the issue is controlled by the applicable regulations rather than the matrix. Respondent asserts Consumer Mathematics is a basic mathematics course which is also within the certification of a teacher of General Business Studies.

B. Tools for Life is an interdisciplinary elementary course which does not require any specific endorsement, nor would it be a course which would normally be within the discipline taught by Petitioner.

11. Petitioner claïms that she was not given 60 days notice prior to her reduction to 3/5ths employment (by Respondent), that she was entitled to such as a tenured teacher under the school laws, and, therefore, that she is entitled to 60 days full time, under the case of Sherman v. North Plainfield Bd. of Ed. Commissioner of Education (decided October 13, 1981). Respondent submits the following documents D1 through D6 which it alleges are relevant to this issue:

D1- Minutes of Board Meeting June 27, 1989;
D2- Evaluation of Petitioner dated April 1989;
D3- Letter from Superintendent of Schools to Petitioner dated May 16, 1989;
D4- Letter from Superintendent of Schools to Petitioner dated May 30, 1989;
D5- Letter from Assistant Superintendent of Schools to Petitioner dated June 9, 1989;
D6- Letter from Superintendent of Schools to Petitioner dated June 15, 1989.

Petitioner asserts that Respondent acted by formal Resolution on June 27, 1989 to formally abolish Petitioner's position and reduce her to 3/5ths employment. Respondent asserts that a full time business position was abolished on June 27, 1989 and a new position of a 3/5ths teacher of business was created.

[D1, minutes of a board meeting held June 27, 1989, shows in part that the Board acted to abolish one full-time position of teacher of business education because of a decline in course enrollment in the business department and that the Board determined petitioner had the least seniority. D1 also reveals that the Board simultaneously created a part-time teacher of business education and determined to offer that position of employment to petitioner effective September 1, 1989. D2 is an evaluation of petitioner's performance as a teacher for 1988-89, which evaluation is highly positive, while simultaneously advising petitioner that because of declining pupil enrollments she would not be offered a 'contract' for 1989-1990. D3 is a memorandum of May 16, 1989 from the superintendent to petitioner confirming that more likely than not her employment would be on part-time basis for 1989-90 but that that status could change to full-time or less than the part-time employment then being anticipated. D4 is a letter from the superintendent to petitioner on May 30, 1989 advising that the Board had not yet acted on her 1989-90 employment status; that whatever her status would be for 1989-90 would be probably less than was earlier anticipated; and, the Board would probably act on her employment at one of two conference sessions scheduled in June and one of two public meetings scheduled for June 'as the case may be.' D5 is a letter dated June 9, 1989 from the assistant superintendent to petitioner confirming that the Board intended to discuss her employment for 1989-90 at a conference session scheduled for June 13. The assistant superintendent also advised that part-time status would now go back to the originally scheduled level of employment communicated by the superintendent in his May 16 memorandum (D3). D6 is a letter June 15, 1989 from the superintendent to petitioner advising her he recommended a 2/5 reduction of one position in the business department and that he may recommend her employment in a 1/5 or 2/5 assignment for 1989-90. The superintendent also attached a proposed resolution he was to recommend for adoption to the Board for the creation of a 3/5 position in place of the full-time position slated for elimination].

12. Petitioner asserts that the information with regard to the abolition of the position and the creation of a 3/5ths position were communicated to her by two documents, Exhibits "E" and "F" attached. Exhibit "E" is dated July 26, 1989 and Exhibit "F" is dated August 4, 1989 advising Petitioner of her schedule for 1989-90 school year and that it is reduced to 3/5ths. Petitioner further asserts that the first notice of her reduction to 3/5ths employment was as contained on Exhibit "F".

Petitioner acknowledges receipt of an evaluation on May 9, 1989 which advises:

> "Unfortunately due to the uncertain status of position vacancies at this time, a contract for the 1989-90 school year cannot be offered to Mrs. Unterberger. However, it should be noted that depending upon student enrollments, every effort will be made to retain her services, at least in a part-time capacity."

This evaluation is annexed hereto as Exhibit "D-2"

Petitioner asserts that this evaluation and the language contained therein did not constitute an abolition of her position.

13. Although the parties disagree as to the resolution of these issues, the issues in this matter involve:

A. Whether Petitioner is entitled, by virtue of tenure or seniority rights, to additional classes in Business Mathematics, Consumer Mathematics, and/or Tools For Life.

B. Whether Petitioner, assuming that she is not entitled to a full-time position, is entitled to an additional sixty (60) days pay for full-time position (minus the pay received for a 3/5 position) based upon the Sherman decision.

By way of an amended Stipulation of Fact which addresses petitioner's challenge to the absence of employment by the Board for 1990-91, the parties stipulate the following facts:

1. Respondent in this matter is the Metuchen Board of Education.

2. Petitioner Marlene Unterberger claims tenure and seniority rights to teach the following courses in the respondent's school district as a result of certifications:

A. Business Mathematics;

B. Consumer Mathematics;

C. Tools for Life.

3. Respondent Board of Education on April 24, 1990, abolished the position of three-fifths business teacher and provided petitioner with notice that a contract [employment] would not be offered to her for the school year 1990-1991 on April 25, 1990.

4. Respondent is not offering during the 1990-1991 school year Business Mathematics nor Consumer Mathematics.

5. Petitioner contemplates that Tools For Life will be offered in the Edgar School, grades 6 and 7 during the 1990-91 school year and will be taught by Elaine Goldstein.

6. Petitioner claims for reasons as set forth in the Stipulation of Facts, that she is entitled to teach Tools for Life.

7. Although the parties disagree as to the resolution of the issues, the issues in this companion matter involve whether petitioner is entitled, by virture of tenure or seniority rights, to teach the Tools for Life class in the Edgar School.

Keeping in mind that there are two reductions-in-force in this dispute, it is well to note that petitioner, as well as each intervenor, had acquired a tenure status by the time of the first reduction-in-force which occurred June 27, 1989. The second reduction-in-force occurred April 24, 1990 when the Board determined to abolish petitioner's part-time position as teacher of business. But, because each of the three principals had acquired tenure prior to the time of the first reduction-in-force whatever relief petitioner is entitled to must be based on seniority, not tenure.

In regard to petitioner's claim to the position Tools for Life which had been given to intervenor Goldstein, petitioner's comprehensive business endorsement, N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)(4)(i), to the instructional certificate she possesses entitles her to have been assigned to tech Tools for Life. This is so for the Board admittedly created the course without assigning a specific endorsement to an instructional certificate for the selected teacher to possess. Consequently, petitioner was qualified to teach the subject. The petitioner, at the time of the first reduction-in-force June 27, 1989, to be effective for 1989-90, had acquired 4.4 years of seniority in the Board's employ while intervenor Goldstein had only acquired 4.0 years seniority. Therefore, the conclusion must be reached that petitioner Greene had an entitlement to be appointed to the full-time position of teacher of Tools for Life as against intervenor Greene for 1989-90. It was not necessary for petitioner to have had taught Tools for Life in order to have had a seniority claim thereto in 1989-90 because the Board, when it allowed any certificate or endorsement to be the basis for appointment, eliminated the need for specific subject matter experience.

Petitioner's claim of superior entitlement to the subject Business Mathematics and Consumer Math as taught by intervenor Greene on the basis that Greene is not properly certified to teach that course is rejected. Intervenor Greene possesses a general business endorsement under N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(4)(ie), to her insturctional certificate which authorizes her > * * * to teach general business studies in all public schools. General business studies normally include: business law, economic geography, economics, social business studies, consumer education sales, retailing, advertising[.]

According to the syllabus for business Math and the syllabus for consumer math both courses rely upon the four basic mathematical processees of addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division for which the holder of general business clearly is entitled to teach. It is recognized that Consumer Mathematics also treats depreciation, business organization of single proprietship, partnership, and corporate forms of ownership, including stocks and dividends. One who possesses a general business endorsement is qualified to teach business law, economics, consumer education sales, retailing, and advertising. It can hardly be said that one who possesses a general busniess endoresement is not authorized to teach consumer mathematics as that course has been designed by this Board.

Therefore, for 1989-90 I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioner had a valid claim to be assigned a full-time position of Tools for Life as held by intervernor Green by virtue of having greater seniority in the Board's employ and because she was authorized by virtue of her comprehensive business endorsement to teach the course Tools for Life in view of the fact the Board elected not to assign a specific endoresement as a pre-requisite for appointment as the teacher of that course.

In regard to the second reduction-in-force which occurred April 24, 1990 to be effective for 1990-91, it logically follows that if petitioner has a superior seniority claim to the full-time position of teacher for Tools for Life in 1989-90 as against intervenor Goldstein, then that superior claim would follow into 1990-91. Therefore, I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioner did in fact and under the seniority rules, N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10, have a superior seniority claim to the position of teacher of Tools for Life for 1990-91 as against intervernor Goldstein. It is noted that the parties stipulated neither business mathematics nor consumer mathematics was offered by the Board during 1990-91.

CONCLUSION

I CONCLUDE that the seniority rights of preference acquired by petitioner Marlene Unterberger were violated by the Board for 1989-90 and 1990-91 when it failed to appoint her to the full-time position teacher for Tools for Life rather than the part-time position to which it did appoint her for 1989-90 and the termination of her employment for 1990-91. Therefore, Marlene Unterberger is entitled to receive the difference between what she earned as a part-time teacher during 1989-90 compared to what she should have received as a full-time teacher, together with all benefits and emoluments of such employment, and she is entitled to the compensation she would have received as a full-time teacher for 1990-91 had her employment not be terminated in violation of her seniority rights. Such compensation, together with all other benefits and emoluments of employment, shall be mitigated by whatever earnings Marlene Unterberger did receive during 1990-91. In light of the foregoing conclusions, there is no need to address petitioner's alternate claim of 60 days pay for an asserted failure of the Board to have afforded her timely notice of the 1989-90 reduction-in-force.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

		DECISION
RESPONDENT,	:

INTERVENORS.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner and the Board filed timely exceptions. Petitioner also filed timely reply exceptions.

Petitioner agrees with the ALJ's conclusion that the Board violated her seniority rights by not appointing her to a full-time position as teacher of Tools for Life for the 1989-90 and the 1990-91 school years. However, petitioner excepts to the ALJ's failure to order her reinstated to the position retroactive to the date of the termination of her employment.

Petitioner also excepts to the ALJ's conclusion that the Board did not violate her seniority rights by assigning the business mathematics and consumer math courses to Intervenor Greene. Petitioner contends that because she holds a comprehensive business endorsement whereas Intervenor Greene holds only a general business endorsement, Intervenor Greene was not qualified to teach those courses, and also that she, petitioner, has greater seniority in those courses. In support of these contentions, petitioner relies on her post-hearing submission at pages 9-16. Petitioner goes on to say that if the Commissioner affirms the ALJ's decision on the issue of Tools for Life, she recognizes that her entitlement to back pay and benefits as if employed on a full-time basis in the Tools for Life position would subsume any compensation entitlement for the business courses.

Thus, petitioner urges the Commissioner to modify the ALJ's decision and order her reinstated to that position together with back pay and benefits and emoluments for the 1989-90, 1990-91 and current school years. She also urges modification of the initial decision to grant her the consumer math and business mathematics classes over Paula Greene.

The Board's exceptions first posit that it is inappropriate for the initial decision to conclude that a business teacher in the high school, namely, petitioner, would be entitled to pick up two additional courses in the Edgar School, held to be an elementary school by the initial decision, over Intervenor Goldstein, who was teaching four periods of Tools for Life and two special duty periods.

Further, the Board avers in its amended stipulation of facts that the Board indicated it was contemplating that Tools for Life would be offered during the 1990-91 school year and would be taught by Intervenor Goldstein. Thus, the Board argues, it was improper for the initial decision to conclude that Intervenor

Goldstein would only teach Tools for Life and that, therefore, petitioner was entitled to the entire position held by Intervenor Goldstein. The Board claims there is no basis in law or fact for such conclusion.

Further, noting that petitioner's 3/5ths position as a business teacher in 1990-91 was abolished while Intervenor Goldstein was still at the Edgar Elementary School teaching four periods of Tools for Life, one period of social studies and one special duty period, the Board finds it to be "inconsistent with sound educational practice to now conclude that Petitioner should have the right to teach the four periods of Tools for Life." (Board's Exceptions, at pp. 2-3)

The Board claims petitioner had never taught nor gained experience in the Tools for Life course. It cites Kathi Savarese v. Board of Education of Bernardsville, Somerset County, decided by the Commissioner July 24, 1989, aff'd State Board January 3, 1990 for the proposition that no seniority accrued in family life education as it is not a specific category under N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10, and thus, Intervenor Goldstein in this case had a legal entitlement to teach the Tools for Life course, without seniority rights, "by virtue of the 'factual circumstances'" (Board's Exceptions, at p. 3), that is that she was qualified and had taught the course in question.

Moreover, the Board suggests that Tools for Life is an interdisciplinary program requiring no specific endorsement, and thus, the Board contends, petitioner has accrued no seniority rights in Tools for Life by virtue of her comprehensive business endorsement. It claims that seniority allows a teacher to demand to teach courses in which a teacher has gained experience, citing Dullea v. Board of Education of the Borough of Northvale, Bergen County, 1978 S.L.D. 638, 641, 1979 S.L.D. 823 (App. Div.). It thus avers that petitioner had no experience in Tools for Life or the elementary curriculum.

The Board further argues that the conclusion that Intervenor Goldstein was the full-time teacher for Tools for Life for 1989-90 and 1990-91 is misplaced. The Board contends the record did not establish the allocation in each of the two years in question (1989-1990 and 1990-91) of the teaching responsibilities of Intervenor Goldstein. "The thrust of the claims of Petitioner as perceived by Respondent was with respect to the claims under the Business Mathematics and Consumer Mathematics certification, and the positions held by Intervenor Greene." (Board's Exceptions, at p. 4)

Noting that Intervenor Goldstein holds an instructional certificate with an endorsement as an elementary teacher grades K through 8, the Board contends petitioner has failed to prove that she would have been entitled to teach all the positions then taught by Intervenor Goldstein during the two years in question, and it therefore avers the initial decision is erroneously based on facts not now in the record. The Board contends that if petitioner's argument were followed, it would then find a high school business teacher holding an instructional certificate with a comprehensive business endorsement teaching in an elementary school with departmentalized grades 6 and 7. The Board submits there is no basis in law or in fact for such a conclusion.

For such reasons, the Board submits that the ALJ's conclusion is unfounded and unsupported by the stipulated facts. It avers, in creating a course without assigning a specific endorsement for an instructional certificate for the selected teacher to possess, the Board created the opportunity for petitioner to teach the subject.

The Board claims that if the initial decision is followed, the result is that a tenured teaching staff member with four years of seniority in the elementary school, and two years in a Tools for Life position, would be replaced by a tenured teaching staff member with seniority in a business educational area and with no elementary or Tools for Life experience.

Apart from these exceptions, the Board concurs with the conclusion of the ALJ with respect to a rejection of petitioner's claim with regard to seniority rights for the business mathematics and consumer math courses taught by Intervenor Greene.

Finally, the Board submits that if the initial decision is affirmed, petitioner is obligated not only to demonstrate earnings received, but earnings that she should or could have obtained for the period in question.

For the foregoing reasons, the Board submits that that portion of the initial decision finding in favor of petitioner with regard to seniority rights be rejected.

By way of reply exception, petitioner contends that there is no evidence in the record, or demonstration in the exceptions, that the Tools for Life classes were not in the secondary category, 7th grade departmentalized, or that she was not appropriately certified for the two special duty periods. Similarly, petitioner submits there is nothing in the record or exceptions which suggest that the four periods of Tools for Life and one special duty period taught by Intervenor Goldstein during the 1990-91 school year were not correctly found to be within the scope of Petitioner Unterberger's seniority status. Thus, petitioner claims, the ALJ correctly concluded that she was entitled to the four periods of Tools for Life and to the two special duty periods for the 1989-90 school year, and to the four periods of Tools for Life and the one special duty period for the 1990-91 school year.

Alternatively, petitioner suggests in reply exceptions that even if she were entitled only to some, not all, of the Tools for Life and business classes, it is well established that in a RIF, a more senior staff teaching member is entitled to classes assigned to less senior teaching staff members, unless the Board can demonstrate that such assignment would unduly interfere with its educational program. She cites Panarotto v. Emerson Bd. of Ed., Bergen County, decided by the Commissioner July 8, 1986, rev'd State Board April 6, 1988, aff'd Superior Court Appellate Division May 22, 1989, cert. den. 118 N.J. 182 (1989) among other cases, in support of this contention. Consequently, she claims, even if she were not entitled to a full-time position, she was entitled to those classes assigned to less senior teachers, such as Intervenor Goldstein, in the absence of any evidence that such assignment would significantly interfere with the respondent's educational program.

In response to the Board's contention that Tools for Life was an interdisciplinary program requiring no specific endorsement, and that therefore petitioner had no seniority rights to that class, petitioner cites Lewis et al. v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Trenton, Mercer County, decided by the Commissioner December 10, 1990, among others, for the proposition that when a course exists for which a board of education has required no specific endorsement, all teachers holding instructional endorsements may assert seniority rights to that course. Thus, petitioner contends, the Board's claim that she did not have enforceable seniority rights to the Tools for Life class is wrong. She claims the law is precisely the opposite.

In response to the Board's contention that the Edgar School was an elementary school is irrelevant and wrong, petitioner submits. She contends that respondent never passed a resolution classifying the newly reorganized school, and thus, its past classification or characterizations are irrelevant. More significantly, she asserts that N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(1)(19) makes clear that for seniority purposes, grade 7 departmentalized is in the secondary category, so she has an enforceable seniority claim to the position.

On the issue of mitigation of damages, petitioner claims the Board has confused the current status of the matter, and the applicable burden of proof. She claims mitigation and damages are not presently in the record or before the Commissioner. Moreover, petitioner claims it is not her burden to demonstrate what she could have earned, but instead mitigation is an affirmative defense, the burden of proof lying with the wrongdoer, Respondent Board. She cites Goodman v. London Metals Exchange, Inc., 86 N.J. 19, 40-41 (1981), among other cases in support of this contention.

In sum, petitioner again asserts that the Commissioner should affirm the ALJ's decision with the modifications requested in her original exceptions.

Upon a careful and independent review of this matter, the Commissioner must remand it for further fact-finding and conclusions to be derived therefrom.

In reviewing the arguments of the parties, the Commissioner first considers the seniority entitlements among the petitioner and intervenors relative to the course entitled Tools for Life, which, it is not contested, is taught at the Edgar School to 6th and 7th graders. The gravamen of arriving at such determination involves deciding first into what seniority category the instruction at Edgar School falls, either elementary or secondary. N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(1)19 states that the "secondary" category for assessing seniority among tenured employees > shall include grades nine through 12 in all high schools, grades seven and eight in junior high schools and grades seven and eight in elementary schools having departmental instruction.

N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(1)20 specifies:

> Elementary. The word "elementary" shall include Kindergarten, grades one through six and grades seven and eight without departmental instruction. (emphasis supplied)

It is undisputed that the 6th grade at Edgar School is departmentalized. See Exhibit I. See also Stipulation of Facts, at page 4. Hence, an anomaly exists: a departmentalized 6th grade is not provided for in the seniority regulations. Because the elementary category precludes departmentalization and given that the secondary category includes two elementary grades that are departmentalized, i.e., grades 7 and 8, and based upon the fact that the Board admits that the 6th grade classes at Edgar School are departmentalized, the Commissioner finds and determines that the instruction provided therein falls under the secondary category for seniority purposes.

In so concluding, the Commissioner rejects the ALJ's conclusion, as found on page 5 of the initial decision, that because of its "history" as an elementary school, the seniority category should, therefore, be elementary. Similarly, the Commissioner observes but rejects the argument raised by petitioner that because the Board failed to pass a resolution classifying Edgar School as an elementary school, for some reason it cannot be in the elementary category for seniority purposes. Such argument misses the mark. How the school itself is designated is not relevant to this matter which deals with assessing seniority rights pursuant to a RIF. The seniority regulations operate independently of any designation of a school since it is the type of instruction that dictates the seniority categories. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9, N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10 Thus, even if the Board had acted to designate or classify the Edgar School as elementary, the seniority category for instruction provided therein as prescribed by N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(1)(19) is secondary. The Commissioner so finds.

Having so determined, the next inquiry must be whether the Board knew that departmentalized instruction was to be provided the pupils at Edgar School at the time of the RIF it effectuated in June 27, 1989, which event triggered its evaluating the seniority rights of those to be affected by such RIF. Because the record before the Commissioner provides no proof as to whether the Board was cognizant of the departmentalization of the 6th and 7th grades, it is not possible to determine whether it made the proper reduction in force decisions based on the seniority entitlements of the parties in this matter. Thus, the Commissioner must remand this matter for further findings of fact and conclusions of law as to whether the Board knew the Edgar School was departmentalized, and therefore the instruction to be provided therein was to fall in the secondary category for seniority purposes.

In so directing, the Commissioner notes that if the Board was aware of the departmentalized nature of the 6th and 7th grades at Edgar School, it follows that petitioner's seniority in the secondary category would have entitled her to the position as instructor of Tools for Life, which position was assigned to Ms. Goldstein for both the 1989-90 and the 1990-91 school years. In this regard, the Commissioner is puzzled by the ALJ's conclusion drawn at page 5 of the initial decision that Edgar School is an elementary school, thus implying that he concluded that it was likewise in the elementary category for seniority purposes, when compared to his conclusion at pages 15 and 16 of the inital decision stating that petitioner's 4.4 years of seniority accrued in the secondary category and proceeded to order her reinstatement to a position deemed to be in the elementary category. Perhaps part of the confusion can be addressed by what appears to be some typographical confusion in the names of the parties. On page 15, petitioner was referred to as "Petitioner Greene" and in the same sentence, Intervenor Greene's name is used when referring to the teacher of Tools for Life, who was Ms. Goldstein, not Ms. Greene. Similarly, on page 16, Intervenor Greene is named rather than Intervenor Goldstein, as the teacher of Tools for Life, the position petitioner was entitled to hold. Again, the record makes plain that Intervenor Greene never taught Tools for Life, and the Commissioner is convinced that on remand, the ALJ can clarify such apparent typographical errors.

Finally, in remanding the matter for further fact-finding, the Commissioner observes that following the first RIF in 1989-90, petitioner was reduced to a 3/5ths position teaching business at Metuchen High School, while Intervenor Goldstein remained in the Board's full-time employ teaching four periods of Tools for Life and two special duty periods. Should it be determined on remand that the Board was aware of the departmentalization of instruction at Edgar School and thus that it erroneously denied petitioner a position in the secondary category, then the ALJ is to address the Board's allegations relative to Tools for Life not being a full-time assisgnment and to assess petitioner's right to full-time employment.

Last, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's evaluation of Intervenor Greene's entitlement to the positions of business mathematics and consumer math for the reasons expressed at page 15.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed herein, the initial decision is affirmed in part and rejected in part. The matter is remanded for further action consistent with this decision.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF METUCHEN, MONMOUTH COUNTY, : DECISION ON REMAND

RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured business teacher whose position was reduced to part-time and then totally eliminated, claimed Board violated her tenure and seniority rights. Commissioner remanded matter for further findings of fact and conclusions of law as to whether Board knew Edgar School was departmentalized for 6th and 7th grades, which would result in use of secondary category for seniority purposes.

On remand, testimony showed Board knew Edgar School was departmentalized. ALJ thus found secondary seniority applied due to fact that the school was departmentalized in the 6th and 7th grades. Therefore, Board retained wrong person as petitioner had been entitled to positions in 1989-90, 1990-91 and 1991-92. Board was ordered to reinstate petitioner to 2/3rds position in Tools for Life program for 1992-93 with mitigated back pay. If petitioner did not work during those years, back pay should not be mitigated.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision on remand. Commissioner added that requirement of mitigation includes not only what a petitioner earned from outside employment, but what could have been earned with reasonable and diligent efforts. BEFORE DANIEL B. MCKEOWN, ALJ:

This matter is on remand from the Commissioner of Education on an initial decision which issued January 10, 1992. Petitioner Marlene Unterberger had claimed that the Metuchen Borough Board of Education (Board) violated her tenure and seniority rights regarding its reduction of her full-time employment as a teacher to part-time employment for 1989-90 and the elimination of the part-time employment at the conclusion of that school year. Competing claims were filed against petitioner's allegation by teachers Elaine B. Goldstein and Paula Green, both of whom were granted intervention status, N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.1 et seq. After the matter was transferred March 10, 1992 a hearing was scheduled and conducted June 3, 1992 at the Metuchen Borough Hall. The record closed July 21, 1992 upon receipt of a copy of transcript of earlier proceedings conducted September 12, 1991.

BACKGROUND FACTS

The facts earlier stipulated by the parties and as set forth in the original initial decision are incorporated herein as if set forth in full. For purposes of this proceeding, however, it is noted that petitioner, as well as each intervenor, acquired a tenure status in the employ of the Board. As of June 30, 1989 when the first of two reductions-in-force were ordered by the Board which directly affected petitioner's employment, their respective seniority time and category of each teacher was as follows:

Petitioner Unterberger	4.4 years	Secondary category
Intervenor Greene	4.8 years	Secondary category
Intervenor Goldstein	4.0 years	Elementary category

Petitioner Unterberger is in possession of an instructional certificate with a comprehensive business endorsement. Throughout her employment, petitioner has taught business and business related courses. Intervenor Greene possesses an instructional certificate with endorsements as a teacher of general business studies and as a teacher of secretarial studies. While during the course of her employment, intervenor Greene was assigned to teach predominantly typing, she also has been assigned to teach business mathematics, and shorthand. After the first reduction-in-force by the Board effective for 1989-90, intervenor Greene was also assigned to teach consumer math. Intervenor Goldstein possesses an instructional certificate with an endorsement as an elementary teacher, grades K-8. Goldstein had been assigned to teach sixth grade at the Campbell School. During the 1989-90 year, Goldstein was assigned to teach a program known as 'Tools for Life", at the departmentalized grade six and seven level at the Boards Edgar School. Tools for Life, the parties agree, as created by the Board does not require specific endorsement. The course is designed to provide sixth and seventh graders with study skills, skills in personal financing including banking, household economics, comparison shopping, income taxes, insurance, and the need for community participation and career planning.

When the Board ordered the 1989-90 reduction-in-force, petitioner's full-time employment as a teacher assigned to the Board's high school was reduced to 3/5ths of full-time employment. Intervenor Greene, during 1989-90, retained full-time employment teaching four sections of typing and one section of business mathematics,[1] while intervenor Goldstein was employed full-time and assigned to teach Tools for Life, grades six and seven, at the Edgar School.

Petitioner claims that the 1989-90 reduction-in-force and her subsequent reduction of full-time to part-time employment violated her seniority rights because she should have been assigned to teach business mathematics upon the assertion that intervenor Greene was not properly certified to teach the course and hence acquired no tenure nor seniority thereto. Petitioner also complained that intervenor Greene was not certified to teach consumer mathematics to which she had also been assigned as of January 26, 1990 during the course of 1989-90 year. Finally, petitioner complained regarding the 1989-90 reduction-in-force that she is properly certified to teach Tools for Life and, because she is more senior than intervenor Goldstein, she should have been afforded the opportunity to retain full-time employment, rather than intervenor Goldstein, by being assigned the full-time position of teaching Tools for Life.

On or about April 24, 1990 the Board instituted a second reduction-in-force and advised petitioner her part-time 3/5ths teaching position was being completely eliminated and that she would not be reemployed for 1990-91. As part of the second reduction-in-force for 1990-91, the Board did not offer business mathematics nor consumer mathematics. It did offer Tools for Life in 1990-91 at the departmentalized sixth and seventh grade levels at the Edgar School and intervenor Goldstein continued full-time to teach that course.

Petitioner repeats her claim that because she is properly certified to teach Tools for Life, and that because she has greater seniority than intervenor Goldstein, she has a superior claim to that assignment over any claim which intervenor Goldstein may have.

1 Testimony adduced at the hearing on remand and as reported post, establishes that full-time employment since at least 1989-90 consisted of at least six assigned periods which may be a combination of academic and/or duty periods.

In the original initial decision, the conclusion was reached in regard to the first reduction-in-force for 1989-90 that because the Board did not identify a specific endorsement a teacher assigned Tools for Life was expected to possess, petitioner held an appropriate endorsement to be assigned that possession. Therefore, because petitioner had more seniority as of June 30, 1989 than intervenor Goldstein, petitioner had a superior claim for appointment in 1989-90 to this full-time position over intervenor Goldstein.

Petitioner's claims regarding intervenor Greene not being properly certificated to teach business mathematics or consumer mathematics were rejected upon the finding that Greene was properly certified to be assigned either teaching position.

In regard to the second reduction-in-force instituted by the Board for 1990-91, the conclusion was reached that because petitioner had a superior seniority claim for the full-time position as teacher of Tools for Life in 1989-90 as against intervenor Goldstein, that superior claim followed into 1990-91.

The Commissioner reviewed the recommended initial decision and reached independent findings and conclusions.

The Commissioner found and determined that for purposes of seniority the instruction provided by the teacher assigned Tools for Life at the departmentalized sixth and seventh grades at the Board's Edgar School is in the secondary category and cites N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(1)(19).

The Commissioner then found the factual record insufficient to determine "whether the Board knew that departmentalized instruction was to be provided the pupils at Edgar School at the time of the RIF it effectuated in June 27, 1989, which event triggered its evaluating the seniority of those to be affected by such RIF." (Slip opinion, at p.27) The Commissioner concluded:

> [I]f the Board was aware of the departmentalized nature of the 6th and 7th grades at Edgar School, it follows that petitioner's seniority in the secondary category would have entitled her to the position as instructor of Tools for Life, which position was assigned to Ms. Goldstein for both the 1989-90 and the 1990-91 school years.
> Id., at p.28

The Commissioner then remanded the matter for "further findings of fact and conclusions of law as to whether the Board knew the Edgar School was departmentalized; and therefore the instruction to be provided therein was to fall in the secondary category for seniority purposes." The Commissioner also directed that if the Board was aware of the departmentalization of instruction at the Edgar School then the Board's allegations regarding Tools for Life not being a full-time assignment must be addressed and, in the circumstance, petitioner's right to full-time employment. It is noted that the Board had not earlier argued before this judge that the Tools for Life was not a full-time assignment.

Finally, it is noted that the Commissioner affirmed the findings and conclusion reached in the initial decision in regard to petitioners allegations that intervenor Greene was not properly certified to teach business mathematics or consumer mathematics.

HEARING ON REMAND

Marcia Holtzman, the assistant superintendent for the past three years and who had been the curriculum coordinator for 16 years, testified at the remand hearing. Her testimony, uncontroverted, establishes the following facts.

Ms. Holtzman regularly attends all Board meetings and has done so for many years. Since at least 1985-86, the Board had knowledge that the 6th and 7th grades at the Edgar School were and are departmentalized. No one, however, had ever given the Board advice that departmentalization has an impact on seniority. The Board was not aware that teachers who provided instruction at departmentalized 6th or 7th grade levels would accumulate seniority in the secondary category under N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(1)(19).

The testimony of Ms. Holtzman establishes as fact that during 1989-90 intervenor Goldstein taught four classes of Tools for Life and was also assigned a lunch duty period and a preparation period. The testimony of Ms. Holtzman establishes as fact that since at least 1989-90 full-time teachers at Edgar School were assigned six periods which consisted of a combination of academic and duty periods. Consequently, intervenor Goldstein who was assigned to teach four classes of Tools for Life, a lunch duty period, and a preparation period was a full-time teacher in a full-time assignment during 1989-90.

During 1990-91, the testimony of Ms. Holtzman establishes as fact that intervenor Goldstein was assigned to teach four classes of Tools for Life, one social studies period, and one lunch duty period. Consequently, intervenor Goldstein was employed full-time during 1990-91 by the Board at the Edgar School. During 1991-92, intervenor Goldstein taught four classes of Tools for Life and two classes of social studies. Consequently, intervenor Goldstein was employed full-time during 1991-92. Tentatively, intervenor Goldstein's schedule for 1992-93 is the same as it was for 1991-92.

Ms. Holtzman acknowledges that it was she who prepared a seniority list regarding teachers of business for the 1989-90 reduction-in-force and she assumed that Tools for Life was not a business course.

FINDINGS OF FACT ON REMAND

In response to the Commissioner's directives, the following facts are found based on a preponderance of credible evidence as follows:

1. The Board had knowledge that departmentalized instruction was to be provided pupils at Edgar School at the time of the first reduction-in-force on or about June 27, 1989.

2. There is no proof in this record that the Board was aware at the time of the first reduction-in-force or at the time of the second reduction-in-force that instruction provided at a departmentalized 6th or 7th grade level would be classified under the secondary category for seniority purposes.

3. Consistent with the Commissioner's directive in his slip opinion on page 28, because the Board was aware of the departmentalized nature of the 6th and 7th grades at Edgar School petitioner's seniority in the secondary category entitled her to the position as instructor of Tools for Life, which position was assigned to intervenor Goldstein for both the 1989-90, 1990-91, and 1991-92 school years.

4. Intervenor Goldstein was employed full-time during 1989-90, 1990-91, 1991-92, and is expected to be employed full-time for 1992-93. Her initial assignment in 1989-90 was to teach four classes of Tools for Life, one duty period, and one preparation period. Her assignment for 1990-91was to teach four classes of Tools for Life, one social studies class, and one lunch duty. In 1991-92 as well as 1992-93, intervenor Goldstein's assignment was and shall be to teach four classes of Tools for Life, and two classes of social studies.

5. Intervenor Goldstein has been employed full-time each year since 1989-90, though all full-time assignments have not been limited to Tools for Life.

Having reached the fact that the Board had knowledge of departmentalization of instruction in its own schoolhouse, and having applied that finding to the Commissioner's conclusion that petitioner's seniority in the secondary category would have entitled her to the position as instructor of Tools for Life which position was assigned to intervenor Goldstein for 1989-90, 1990-91 and 1991-92, the issue which remains on remand is the Board's assertion that Tools for Life is not a full-time assignment and, in that context, what is petitioner's enforceable claim to resume full-time employment.

Intervenor Goldstein's seniority at the commencement of 1989-90 when the first reduction-in-force occurred was limited to the elementary category. N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10(L)(20T0). Petitioner's seniority at that time was 4.4 years, all in the secondary category. According to the Commissioner's conclusion in the decision on remand, instruction provided in the departmentalized sixth and seventh grade at Edgar School generates seniority in the secondary category. Petitioner had greater seniority in the secondary category than did Goldstein. Therefore, petitioner was entitled to continued full-time employment as against intervenor Goldstein and should have been assigned the full-time position of employment held by Goldstein which required instruction in the secondary category.

Recalling that petitioner's employment was reduced to 3/5ths for 1989-90, she was eligible and had a superior claim to the full-time employment enjoyed by intervenor Goldstein. Petitioner was properly certificated to maintain the assignment of four classes for Tools for Life, a lunch duty, and a preparation period during 1989-90. Petitioner is certified to teach Tools for Life by virtue of her possession of an instructional certificate, not because Tools for Life is or is not a business course. In similar manner, petitioner was certified to be assigned lunch duty and a preparation period. Consequently, petitioner is entitled for 1989-90 to the difference between the salary she should have received as a full-time teacher compared to the salary she did receive as a part-time teacher, together with other benefits and emoluments to which she was entitled as a full-time teacher.

During 1990-91, petitioner's employment with the Board was eliminated. However, petitioner was qualified for and had a superior claim to 5/6ths of the full-time assignment granted intervenor Goldstein. Goldstein was assigned to teach four periods of Tools for Life, one lunch duty, and one social studies class. Petitioner is properly certified to teach Tools for Life and to be assigned lunch duty. Consequently, petitioner is entitled to the difference in salary she would have received as a 5/6ths teacher during 1990-91, together with all other benefits and emoluments as a 5/6ths teacher she would have received. Petitioner does not have an enforceable claim to teach social studies in a departmentalized setting because she does not possess the appropriate endorsement for such an assignment. See N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.2(a)(21).

For 1991-92 petitioner had a superior seniority claim to teach four periods of Tools for Life as against intervenor Goldstein and, consequently, she must receive the salary she would have earned as a 2/3rds of a full-time teacher's salary. Petitioner has no enforceable claim to the remaining two social studies classes, or back pay therefrom, because she is not in possession of the appropriate endorsement to teach social studies.

To the extent that the Board, through Ms. Holtzman, anticipates intervenor Goldstein's schedule and assignment for 1992-93 would have been identical to her assignment for 1991-92, then petitioner is to be reinstated to her employment on a 2/3rds basis teaching four classes of Tools for Life because she has a superior seniority claim for that assignment as compared with intervenor Goldstein. Petitioner may not claim the two additional social studies periods at the departmentalized level because she is not properly certificated for such an assignment.

This record is absent any evidence that assigning petitioner to teach Tools for Life in 1989-90 through 1992-93 would unduly interfere with the Board's educational program. In fact, the only evidence in this record is that the Board erroneously did not consider petitioner's seniority at the time of its first reduction-in-force for assignment to teach Tools for Life because it did not consider a teacher with seniority in the secondary category could have an enforceable claim to a teaching position in its Edgar School.

A final matter remains. On page 28 of the Commissioner's slip opinion he expresses puzzlement over a finding contained within the initial decision compared to a conclusion which was also set forth in that decision. The finding with which the Commissioner apparently disagrees that Edgar School is an elementary school was stated solely because the parties argued the point. At best, it was and is, an innocuous finding in light of the emphasis that grades six and seven at Edgar School are departmentalized. Next, the Commissioner points out certain typographical errors on pages 15 and 16 of the initial decision. So that the record is clarified, petitioner's surname is Unterberger; intervenor Goldstein taught Tools for Life; and, intervenor Green has not at anytime taught Tools for Life.

In summary, petitioner Unterberger is entitled relief in the form of back pay, benefits and emoluments as stated above for 1989-90, 1990-91, and 1991-92. Back pay shall be mitigated by the amounts petitioner earned through outside employment in which she may have engaged during the same years and during the hours of the day she otherwise could not have been engaged in such employment had her claim to greater employment not been violated by the Board. If petitioner did not engage in outside employment during the same years for which she now receives relief, then back pay shall not be mitigated.

Finally, petitioner Unterberger is to be reinstated to her employment on at least at 2/3rds basis for 1992-93 as the teacher of four classes of Tools for Life at the Board's Edgar School, departmentalized grades six and seven, absent lawful Board action which would prohibit such assignment.

It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

MARLENE UNTERBERGER,	:
PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF METUCHEN, MONMOUTH COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON REMAND
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision on remand have been reviewed. Both petitioner and the Board filed timely exceptions pursuant to the applicable provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. petitioner also filed timely reply exceptions. Intervenor's exceptions were untimely filed, and the Board's reply to petitioner's reply exceptions are not considered in the review of this matter insofar as no provision exists for the submission of replies to replies.

Petitioner's exceptions concur with the ALJ's decision on remand except to note that if petitioner is not reinstated before the beginning of the 1992-93 school year, the initial decision should be modified to provide that she is entitled to back pay and benefits for that period of the 1992-93 school year between the start of the school year and her actual reinstatement by the Board.

The Board's exceptions are essentially a reiteration of those arguments raised before the Office of Administrative Law and thus need not be recounted herein.

The Board does concur, however, with the findings set forth in the initial decision regarding the rejection of petitioner's claim concerning seniority rights for the business and consumer math courses taught by Intervenor Greene.

The Board also raises the issue of mitigation claiming that should the initial decision be affirmed, the Board asserts that the requirement for mitigation is not only what petitioner earned from outside employment but also what she could have earned with reasonable and diligent efforts on her part.

The Board asks that that portion of the Initial Decision on Remand finding in favor of petitioner with regard to seniority rights be rejected.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, and the exceptions and replies filed by the parties, the Commissioner adopts as his own the findings and conclusions of the Office of Administrative Law as found in the ALJ's thorough and cogent Initial Decision on Remand. The Commissioner finds that the ALJ has fully discussed and disposed of those arguments the Board raised at the hearing on remand and posed again in its exceptions.

As to the ALJ's discussion of mitigation as found on page 9 of the Initial Decision on Remand, the Commissioner would add that the requirement of mitigation includes not only what a petitioner earned from outside employment, but what could have been earned with reasonable and diligent efforts. See West Orange Supplemental Instructors Association et al. v. Board of Education of the Township of West Orange, 1991 S.L.D. 1, State Board aff'd in part/rev'd in part/remanded April 1, 1992.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision on Remand is adopted for the reasons expressed by the Office of Administrative Law in said decision dated August 21, 1992.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Remanded by the Commissioner of Education, February 28, 1992

Decision on remand by the Commissioner of Education, November 13, 1992

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak (Richard A. Friedman, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Borrus, Goldin, Foley, Vignolo, Hyman & Stahl (James E. Stahl, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Intervenors, Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen (Sanford R. Oxfeld, Esq., of Counsel)

This matter involves an appeal and cross-appeal of a decision made by the Commissioner of Education on November 13, 1992. The Commissioner found that petitioner had to be retained in a 2/3 assignment as Instructor of Tools for Life because she had seniority in that assignment and directed her reinstatement therein with back pay for 1989-90, 1990-91, and 1991-92. The district Board appealed that determination.

The Commissioner also found that petitioner was not entitled to assignment to certain Business Math courses. Petitioner appealed that aspect of the decision.

August 3, 1994

On January 13, 1993, at the request of the parties, the matter was placed in abeyance so that they could attempt to arrive at an amicable resolution.

On October 18, 1993, the parties made their first submission to the State Board, seeking dismissal of their respective appeals on the basis of that submission. Our Legal Committee's review of that document identified a potential infirmity therein and it so informed the parties. In additional submissions to us, both parties advised that they were aware of this, but that they were both satisfied with the agreement they had achieved.

We have reviewed the parties' most recent submission. From that review, it is apparent that any potential deficiency in their agreement is theoretical. Therefore, and because the public interest is not implicated, the State Board is willing to consent to the request of both parties that we dismiss this matter.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent, on behalf of her daughter S.G., a middle school student, appealed three-day suspension due to S.G.'s alleged use of profanity in class against music teacher who denied her permission to leave the room to use lavatory. Petitioner contended suspension interrupted S.G.'s constitutional right to a free public school education and was racially motivated.

Initial decision determined that suspension of S.G. was proper in light of Parent/Student Handbook that clearly stated use of profanity to staff shall result in out-of-school suspension. Further, S.G. was afforded due process prior to suspension which was in accord with N.J.S.A. 18A:37-1 and 2. Moreover, petitioner did not produce competent evidence that suspension was racially motivated. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own.

RECORD CLOSED: January 27, 1992 Decided: February 4, 1992

BEFORE DANIEL B. McKEOWN, ALJ:

In a petition of appeal filed to the Commissioner of Education, pro se petitioner J.G., on behalf of her daughter S.G., appeals a proposed three day suspension from school to be imposed upon S.G. for her use of profanity in class to teacher Weintraub. Petitioner alleges that the teacher provoked her daughter's use of profanity and that the Board, its agents, officers, or employees, denied her daughter due process of law. After the Commissioner transferred the matter on December 4, 1991 to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case under N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., a hearing was scheduled and conducted January 24, 1992 at the Lakewood Municipal Court, Lakewood.

Findings are reached in this initial decision that S.G. did use profanity which was specifically directed at teacher Weintraub during class. The conclusion is reached that a three day suspension is proper and appropriate to be imposed by school authorities upon S.G.

New Jersey Is An Equal Opportunity Employer

FACTS

The facts of the matter are not in dispute betwen the parties and they are as follows. S.G. is 14 years of age. She is enrolled in the eighth grade of the Lakewood Middle School. She also attended the Middle School for the seventh grade during 1990-91. During each year, S.G. received a Parent/Student handbook (R-1) which contains information intended to help the students and parents become familiar with the policies by which the Middle School is operated. The evidence in this case shows that these handbooks are sent to each pupil's home prior to the commencement of the particular school year. S.G. admits she has never read the contents of the handbook nor did her mother, petitioner, read the contents of the handbook.

Sometime during October 1991 S.G. had just arrived at the music room for her third scheduled academic period of the day. The Lakewood Middle School is departmentalized so that pupils move from classroom to classroom for various subjects. S.G. had just completed math class which is located on the other side of the school. Students have three minutes to change class at the end of each period. Pupils are encouraged to use the lavatory facilities during the class change. The music class which was about to begin was taught by David Weintraub. At the commencement of music instruction, S.G. had requested of teacher Weintraub permission to go the the girls' lavatory. Weintraub had just started all pupils in vocal music instruction. Weintraub assessed the situation as not being an emergency for S.G. to leave the room at that time to go to the bathroom so he asked her to sing for two more minutes with the rest of the class and then go the the bathroom. As the class was singing, but before the song was over, S.G. slammed her music folder on the floor and indicated she refused to sing anymore. Teacher Weintraub then said to S.G. she did not have permission to leave the classroom to go to the bathroom. S.G. turned to a friend sitting next to her and, in a voice loud enough for teacher Weintraub to hear and for students to hear, exclaimed "Fuck him". It is noted that when S.G. testified at hearing she claimed she could not really recall whether she said "Fuck him" or merely said "F him". In either case, however, S.G. was candid when she explained that the referenced 'him' was intended for teacher Weintraub. Teacher Weintraub immediately filled out a disciplinary referral form, handed it to S.G., and directed her to go the vice-principal's office immediately. S.G. accepted the form, left the classroom, went to the lavatory, then to the vice-principal's office. At the vice-principal's office, S.G. acknowledged she did utter the expletive, "Fuck him", reported on the disciplinary form by teacher Weintraub. S.G. acknowledged at hearing that she was not at all embarrassed by the circumstance because, in her view, Weintraub should have allowed her to go to girls' lavatory when she wanted to go.

S.G. acknowledges the use of such language is improper although she did intend Weintraub to hear and she acknowledges that students heard her exclamation. Nevertheless, S.G. acknowledges that teacher Weintraub never before refused her permission to go to the bathroom and she now complains that no one ever explained the rule regarding bathroom use to her. However, S.G. fully explained the bathroom rules at hearing which provide that pupils are encouraged to use the bathroom facilities during the change of class and, is that is not possible, then they are to get the individual teacher's permission prior to leaving the classroom. S.G. also acknowledges that at the time she requested permission to use the bathroom facility, another pupil had already been out of the classroom at the facility and that she was obligated to wait for that pupil to return.

Later on that day, after S.G. had returned home, S.G.'s mother, petitioner, was notified by the Middle School principal through a telephone call that S.G. was to be suspended for three days because of the use of profanity to the teacher in the classroom. Petitioner demanded, and was granted, a hearing before the superintendent of schools who affirmed the decision of the Middle School principal to suspend S.G. for three days. Petitioner then demanded a hearing before the full board of education, which was granted, and it affirmed the determination to suspend S.G. for three days. When petitioner filed the petition to the Commissioner, the Board agreed to stay the suspension pending this disposition.

Petitioner's testimony, though she is not a fact witness, is that her daughter should not be suspended for merely saying "Fuck him" because she did not say to teacher "Fuck you". The difference petitioner sees in either profanity escapes this judge particularly in light of the fact S.G. readily acknowledges that the 'him' was intended for teacher Weintraub and the communication was understood in that manner by Weintraub. Petitioner also complains that her daughter's constitutional right to a free public school education may not be interrupted by a three day out-of-school suspension and that suspension was racially motivated. Petitioner demands relief.

There is no doubt that S.G. has a right to a free public school education. However, this right is not absolute. The exercise of the right is subject to S.G.'s adherence with the rules and regulations of the school. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-1. The referenced statute provides in full as follows:

> Pupils in the public schools shall comply with the rules established in pursuance of law for the government of such schools, pursue the prescribed course of study and submit to the authority of the teachers and others in authority over them.

Furthermore, N.J.S.A. 37-2 provides, in part, as follows:

> Any pupil who is guilty of continued and willful disobedience, or of open defiance of the authority of any teacher or person having authority over him, or of the habitual use of profanity or of obscene language  shall be liable to punishment and to suspension or expulsion from school.
>
> Conduct which shall constitute good cause for suspension or expulsion of a pupil guilty of such conduct shall include, but not be limited to, any of the following:
>
> a. Continued and willful disobedience;
> b. Open defiance of the authority of any teacher or person having authority over him ***

The Parent/Student Handbook (R-1) for the Lakewood Middle School clearly states that the use of profanity to staff shall result in out of school suspension. Therefore, had S.G. or petitioner taking the time to read the handbook they would have known that the use of "Fuck him" directed at a teacher and intended to be for that teacher's ears as well as the ears of fellow and sister students constitutes profanity and open defiance of the lawful authority of a teacher having control over the pupils in the class.

Pupils who are to be suspended for misconduct from a public school are entitled to due process of law. Due process of law takes on various meanings depending on the circumstance. A three day suspension is considered a short-term suspension for due process considerations. S.G. is entitled to give her side of the story and the school authority is entitled to exercise his/her discretion whether in all the circumstances a short-term suspension is warranted. If the determination is reached that a short-term suspension is warranted, that is a suspension of less than 10 days, then the suspension may be imposed.

In this case, S.G. received more due process than that to which she is constitutionally entitled because not only was S.G. given the opportunity by the vice-principal to state her side but the superintendent of schools granted petitioner and S.G. a hearing as did the Board of Education. In each instance , S.G.'s justification for uttering the expletive was rejected. So too, here. S.G.'s justification to exclaim "Fuck him" in a classroom under the direct supervision of a teacher, in a voice loud enough to heard by pupils and the teacher, is wholly rejected. Her request to leave class for the girls' lavatory was not made out of any emergency nor is it unreasonable for the teacher to have told her to finish the singing for two minutes and then leave. The defiance of the teacher's authority manifested by "Fuck him" is conduct not to be tolerated in an educational setting such as a public school.

Finally, petitioner presented no competent evidence, nor was any offer made to produce competent evidence, that the three (3) day suspension in these circumstances was racially motivated.

In light of the facts of this case, neither petitioner nor S.G. are entitled to any relief. It was noted earlier that the suspension was stayed pending determination here. Because this matter has been kept alive since October 1991, a three day suspension to be presently imposed would continue to bring about the beneficial result of assisting S.G. learn such conduct shall not be tolerated.

Therefore , the petition of appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the matter, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the Office of Administrative Law that the Board's action in assessing a three-day suspension against S.G. for use of profanity addressed at Teacher Weintraub during music class was a reasonable extension of its authority, and reasonable under the circumstances. Consequently, the Commissioner determines petitioner and S.G. are not entitled to any relief and accordingly, the instant Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

This matter came before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case following transmittal from the Department of Education. The petitioner appealed from action taken by the Board of Education following an alleged illegal "sick out" on June 8, 1990. As a result of the absence of various members of petitioner's organizations on that date the school board withheld one day's compensation from principals, vice-principals, supervisors and department heads who purportedly engaged in the "sick out." However, petitioners contended that their absences on that date were legitimate and allowable under applicable statutory and contractual provisions and that the Board's action was illegal.

Following transmittal of this contested case to the OAL, a prehearing conference was held before Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin. Subsequently, hearing dates were established, with the case scheduled to begin on December 5, 1991. At that time, the parties, cognizant of the substantial hearing time necessary for complete presentation of the proofs in the matter and desirous of avoiding substantial counsel fees and expenses of litigation, entered into a Stipulation of Settlement, which document is attached hereto and made a part hereof. Pursuant to the terms and conditions of the Stipulation, the parties have agreed that each member of the association who did not receive compensation on June 8, 1990 will have added to his or her personnel records a personal or sick day in accordance with Exhibit "B" annexed to the Stipulation and hereto. Additional terms and conditions of the settlement agreement, including an agreement by the parties that this stipulation is not to be construed as any admission of wrongdoing and/or fault on the part of either party, are set forth in the Stipulation.

Based upon the facts and circumstances of this case, and the representations of counsel, I FIND that the parties have voluntarily entered into this agreement which fully disposes of the matters in issue between them. I FIND that the settlement is within the confines of law and should be accepted. The parties are therefore ORDERED to comply with the terms and conditions of the settlement. The contested case is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

THIS MATTER having been amicably resolved between the parties, it is agreed as follows.

1. The Petition filed on behalf of Petitioners is dismissed with prejudice.

2. The within settlement is not intended to nor shall it be construed as any admission of wrongdoing and/or fault on the part of either party to this action. The matter is being resolved in order to eliminate ongoing counsel fees and expenses of litigation. The parties represent and agree to each other that as a condition of this settlement, this settlement and the terms of same are not to be utilized by either party during any ongoing or future negotiations. The parties further agree that the settlement shall not be intentionally released to any newspaper or public media source, but shall be available in the normal course of events as a public document.

3. PETITIONER	:
V.	:	COMMISIONER OF EDUCATION
JOSEPH ZACH, OCEAN COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS,	:	DECISION ON MOTION
RESPONDENT.	:

For Petitioner, Martin J. Anton, Esq.

For Respondent, Arlene G. Lutz, DAG (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey)

WHEREAS, this matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal with Motion for Emergent Relief filed by the Board of Education on March 16, 1992; and

WHEREAS, said petition appealed as ultra vires two directives of respondent County Superintendent regarding petitioner's proposed budget, the first of March 6, 1992 advising the Board that if the municipal governing body should reduce its school budget following defeat by the voters, or if voters should reject the cap waiver question upon which conditional budget approval has been granted by respondent, the district must appeal those reductions to the Commissioner; and the second of March 12, 1992 advising the Board that its proposed budget was now final in as much as a detailed review for cap waiver purposes had led to the conclusion that no item could be deleted or reallocated without compromising the budget's thoroughness and efficiency (T&E); and

WHEREAS, the Board moved for emergent relief on the basis that irreparable harm would result if restraints were not granted, as there would be no opportunity for the Board to receive and act upon public input in time to meet the statutory deadline for pre-election budget adoption, thus depriving the Board and the public of their right to an open, informed budget hearing; that it had a likelihood of success on the merits due to clear decisional law stating that "it does not automatically followthat because the Commissioner has determined that a reallocation of resources within the permissible level of spending would be insufficient to accomplish [T&E], the entire budget is cast in stone," Board of Education of the Borough of South River v. Mayor and Council of the Borough of South River, Middlesex County, Commissioner's decision of November 20, 1986, and due to regulatory provisions which provide for county superintendent review of reductions to defeated budgets agreed upon by a board and municipality, N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.3(e), contrary to respondent's contention that any reduction to petitioner's budget must automatically be appealed; and that sustaining the County Superintendent's position would render N.J.S.A. 18A:22-13 meaningless and tempt districts to seek cap waivers in the hope of eliminating public objection to their proposed budgets; and

WHEREAS, on March 20, 1992 respondent filed an Answer admitting his actions as embodied by the directives in question but denying that those actions were improper, taken in bad faith or otherwise violative of applicable law; and

WHEREAS, together with said Answer was filed a reply to the Motion for Emergent Relief, said reply arguing that petitioner had failed to meet the criteria for granting of emergency restraints in that its challenge to any directive to appeal a defeated budget and/or cap waiver was not ripe for adjudication in view of the fact that no such defeat had yet occurred; in that it cannot suffer irreparable harm by merely being reminded of action that the constitution requires it to take, irrespective of any directive from respondent; in that it is unlikely to prevail on the merits insofar as settled law requires a district which certifies, as petitioner herein already has, that its budget is inadequate for T&E purposes to seek a cap waiver and appeal any defeat of it or the budget from whence it arose, the Board of Education of the Township of Deptford v. Mayor and Council of the Township of Deptford, Gloucester County, 116 N.J. 305, 316 (1989), accord, the Board of Education of the Township of East Brunswick v. the Township Council of the Township of East Brunswick, Middlesex County, 48 N.J. 94, 108 (1966), and insofar as petitioner's budget was carefully scrutinized for possible reallocations prior to respondent's determination, in accordance with the Quality Education Act (QEA, P.L. 1991, c.62) and the Commissioner's obligation thereunder as set forth in an Opinion of the Attorney General dated July 8, 1991, that $1.8 million of an $8,537,558 cap waiver request was essential for T&E purposes, so that any reallocations subsequently effectuated by petitioner would be inherently impermissible as a violation of constitutional requirements; and

WHEREAS, the Commissioner of Education has designated his authority to hear and decide this matter to Deputy Commissioner John C. Woodbury pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33; and

WHEREAS, the Deputy Commissioner has carefully considered the arguments of the parties as well as the standards for appropriate grant of pendente lite restraints as set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) and its progeny; and

WHEREAS, the Deputy Commissioner finds the actions complained of herein to have been fully in accord with the Commissioner's constitutional obligation, delegated in the instance of budget review to county superintendents of schools, to ensure that all districts provide sufficient resources for T&E, even in the wake of public disapproval; and that the directives from which petitioner seeks relief are nothing more than statements of the district's constitutional obligation given that its budget has been, through the QEA conditional approval process, specifically found to be inadequate absent provision of all allocations itemized therein together with designated cap waiver items totaling $1.8 million, a circumstance which critically distinguishes this matter from the general rules upon which the Board bases its claims; and

WHEREAS, having so found, the Deputy Commissioner sees no basis for grant of petitioner's one remaining prayer for relief, a request for additional time in which to adopt a budget in view of its having thus far not done so; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED this 23rd day of March 1992 that petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief is DENIED and that the Board is directed to adopt a budget on or before March 26, 1992 in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:22-32. It is further ORDERED that, all prayers for relief having been disposed of by the within decision, the Petition of Appeal is hereby DISMISSED without further proceedings.

Shackleton, Hazeltine & Bishop for Respondent Township of Bass River (Eric J. Miller, Esq.)

Gilmore & Monahan for Respondent Township of Eagleswood and the Borough of Tuckerton (Terry F. Brady, Esq.)

Hiering, Hoffman & Gannon, for Respondent Township of Little Egg Harbor (Brian E. Rumpf, Esq.)

This matter has come before the Commissioner by way of petition to appeal the voter rejected cap waiver of the school budget in petitioner's district for the 1991-92 school year filed by faxed transmission on October 15, 1991. Petitioner claims its budget at the cap level is not sufficient to provide a thorough and efficient education and that it is necessary for the Commissioner to order an increase in the budget in the amount of $637,332, more particularly detailed as follows:

Student Transportation	$225,000
Summer School	$ 50,000
Athletics and Equipment	$ 53,000
Professional/Support Staff	$213,000
Co-curricular Programs	$ 30,000
Staff Benefits	$ 66,332
TOTAL	$637,332

The Board alleges that said budget was conditionally approved by the Ocean County Superintendent of Schools contingent upon a cap waiver, and that an informal opinion rendered by the Attorney General of the State of New Jersey dated July 8, 1991 (91-0036) does not preclude the Commissioner's review of this cap waiver appeal.

On November 18, 1991 counsel for the Borough of Tuckerton acknowledged receipt of notice from the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes that respondents had not answered the petition as required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1 et seq., and requested permission to adopt the answer and position of co-respondent Little Egg Harbor Township, thus rendering its further participation unnecessary. By letter dated December 19, 1991 Bass River Township made the same request. By letter dated November 20, 1991 the Township of Eagleswood made the same request, which asked to adopt Little Egg Harbor's position. All three such requests were acknowledged and granted by letter from the Acting Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on December 24, 1991. Another letter from the Bureau dated December 6, 1991 apprised the respondents that if the answer were not received within ten days, the Commissioner would deem each count of the petition to be admitted, whereupon he would decide the matter on a summary judgment basis.

Thereafter, by faxed transmission dated December 16, 1991, the Mayor and Township Committee of the Township of Little Egg Harbor filed its answer stating, inter alia, that the rejection of petitioner's cap waiver proposal by the voters of the Pinelands Regional school system sending districts does not deny the students in the Pinelands Regional school system a thorough and efficient education. The Answer also raised the affirmative defense that pursuant to L. 1991, c. 62, Sec. 19(f), petitioner is not permitted to appeal the rejection of a voter decided cap waiver proposal, and that as a result, said appeal is precluded pursuant to state statute.

Thereafter by letter dated December 23, 1991, the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes apprised the parties that the matter would be decided in a manner consistent with the procedures for budget appeals as set forth at N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.8. On January 13, 1992 respondent Little Egg Harbor sought an extension to submit its position, which request was granted by letter dated January 15, 1992. The Bureau's letter of that date apprised petitioner that its position statement would be due on the same date, Tuesday, January 21, 1992.

Respondent Little Egg Harbor (respondent) filed said position statement on January 21, 1992, as did petitioner. On January 30, 1992, respondent filed a response to petitioner's position statement. Petitioner filed no response to respondent's position statement. Further, neither party filed a final summation of its position within five days of the parties' receipt of the other's response to the written position statement. Consequently, the record closed on February 6, 1992.

Petitioner's position statement first presented an overview of the Pinelands Regional school district, averring that such overview reflects related costs and issues involved with the start-up year of its two facilities, the first of which opened in 1979, the second in September 1991. Thereafter petitioner addressed each of the rejected cap waiver items, stating its position on each by submitting to the record the cap waiver question appeal as follows:

> On September 4, 1991 the Pinelands Regional School District opened a new 800 student capacity middle school. Approved via a lease/purchase transaction, the facility's tax impact was dramatically reduced when the Board of Education capitalized interest payments during the two budget years of building construction. However, this school year reflected the first "principal" payment of almost $700,000. Additionally, staffing requirements for the new school as well as operational allocations amounted to another $500,000. New middle school costs (beyond annual district budgetary increases) exceeded $1.2 million dollars.
> Faced with the dilemma of an 8% CAP ceiling, enormous cuts in expenditures and programs were required. From these cuts the Board and administration fashioned a CAP waiver question seeking approval for a reinstatement of approximately 60% of expenditure cuts. Unfortunately, the question was defeated and this places the school district in an untenable position as it attempts to provide a thorough and efficient education for its student body. Specifically:
>
> Amounting to almost half of the money requested, the unavailability of these funds has created a situation in the district where overcrowded classrooms, inefficient student supervision, less student time on task, and less than acceptable student performance are quickly becoming a reality. The school district was previously categorized as Level II (monitoring) and worked diligently to overcome its deficiencies. Lack of sufficient staff will lead to a return to a less than thorough and efficient educational program.

Summer School/Athletics/Co-Curricular Programs - $133,000.00

Categorized as extensions of our regular instructional program, a lack of funding in these budgetary areas had directly impacted upon the continuity of our educational program. A regional school district with little, if any, community recreational facilities, the district has been expected to provide students with activities outside the classroom. Major cutbacks in these areas are reflected in fewer students enjoying supplementary and complementary activities that are designed to broaden their knowledge, expand their horizons and provide meaningful interaction with peers and adults alike. Once again, the geographic location of the district, its regional design, as well as an enormous lack of other recreational facilities makes inclusion of these budgetary items a "must" for a thorough and efficient educational process.

Student Transportation - $225,000.00

The location of this school district places more emphasis on this budgetary area than might be expected. A regional school district in very rural New Jersey, the students no longer bussed face a very perilous and dangerous walk to school each day. The area is without sidewalks, is surrounded by major county or state roadways and is confronted by local township attitudes that reflect a "blame the Board of Education" philosophy. Such attitudes are reflected in the lack of sidewalks, a "deaf ear" to possible township funding of these transportation routes and a lack of genuine interest in the welfare of the young citizens of the community. Less than 100% student transportation will result in unacceptable higher rates of student absenteeism and unsafe conditions for those students walking to and from school each day.

Petitioner also submitted to this record a report of budget cuts it claims are necessary to get to the maximum permitted current expense budget as well as explanations for each such budget cut. Said "cap waiver question appeal statements" and the amounts they recite as budget amounts necessary to secure the maximum permitted current expense budget are recited herein verbatim:

Said documents constitute the entire record submitted by petitioner in this cap waiver appeal.

Respondent's position statement first objects to Attorney General Opinion No. 91-0036, as applied to the facts in this matter, claiming that its use "overtly obliterates the clear statutory dictate as set forth at N.J.S.A. 18A:7D-28(f)." (Respondent's Position Statement, at p. 2) It cites that portion of the Attorney General Opinion that suggests that the authority to appeal cap waivers "...only extends to those limited situations where such action is essential to meet the constitutional requirement only after the exhaustion of other administrative remedies and may not be exercised to ease budget requirements where the constitutional standard is being met." (Id.) Respondent contends an examination of the individual line items for which the cap waiver is sought emphasizes the fact that the funds from the cap waiver will not alter the constitutional standard of the provision of a thorough and efficient education if said funds are not applied to the current expense budget for the 1991-92 school year.

Respondent thereafter evaluates each item presented in petitioner's Notice of Appeal, which arguments are summarized, in pertinent part, below.

Student Transportation - $225,000

Respondent avers that the advertised budget statement reveals that for 1991-92 there remains $773,250 in the student transportation line item without the $225,000. It also notes that petitioner has engaged a private bus company to reduce the cost associated with student transportation for the first time. Thus, it concludes not only is there an additional cost savings not reflected in the publicized budget, but there may be additional proceeds from the sale of the existing fleet of buses which petitioner has begun selling to outside parties. Respondent further notes that the Board's own position in its budget appeal decided by the Commissioner January 14, 1992 acknowledged that it is "...not legally obligated to provide such a service (student transportation was cut to meet the State mandated cap) and has established other priority, educational goals for the first year of its new middle school operations." (Respondent's Position Statement, at p. 4, quoting Board's Position Statement in budget appeal) Relying on the Commissioner's decision, which agreed that non-remote busing is not a legal obligation in meeting the state requirement for a thorough and efficient education, respondent contends there is no dispute that failing to grant a cap waiver for an additional $225,000 for student transportation does not operate to negate a constitutionally sufficient budget for Pinelands.

Summer School - $50,000

Quoting petitioner's Budget Cut Explanation Sheet that summer school "includes all monies for the summer school and driver education programs," respondent avers petitioner has failed to demonstrate the manner in which summer school is necessary for the district to provide a thorough and efficient education. (Id.) It claims further that petitioner has also failed to delineate the manner in which all other administrative remedies have been exhausted to redirect the appropriation of money to the summer school program in the event petitioner believes summer school to be a vital ingredient in meeting the Board's constitutional mandate.

Further, respondent contends that in the two previous years of budget appropriations and expenditures, Line Item 1411 for summer school contained a subtotal of $35,282.01 and $36,100.00 respectively for each of the two preceding years. Inasmuch as petitioner has a newly restored budget surplus balance estimate at Line 53 of $549,398.80, respondent contends the Board clearly has surplus funds available without erasing the comfortable margin of surplus to ensure against unforeseen contingencies. Respondent claims that if the Board were to expend $50,000 from said surplus for summer school, its budget surplus would still represent 3.26% of the total budget, which it claims is a comfortable margin. Thus, respondent contends the Board has failed to demonstrate how the rejection in the proposed cap waiver of $50,000 for summer school impairs the provision of a thorough and efficient education.

Athletics and Equipment - $53,000

Respondent cites the Board's Budget Cut Explanation Sheet, wherein petitioner describes the $53,000 as "monies from various items in the athletic program." (Respondent's Position Statement, at p. 5). Respondent avers the Board does not include in its appeal the amount budgeted for athletics and equipment without the addition of $53,000 sought in the proposed cap waiver. Claiming that the Board does not contend that the athletic programs have been abandoned, and further does not demonstrate the inability of the Board to appropriate other funds for athletics or equipment or to make concessions while not disrupting the provision of a thorough and efficient education, respondent suggests petitioner has failed to meet its burden in asking for $53,000 for athletics and equipment.

Respondent claims petitioner has failed to demonstrate that failure to have a middle school specialist and an additional middle school maintenance person would be a deprivation sufficient to cause an impairment in the provision of a thorough and efficient education, claiming there are other staff who may be able to fulfill the responsibilities of the proposed added media service specialists and media service maintenance person.

Respondent notes further that the Board also seeks the addition of one custodian in this aspect of its cap waiver appeal. It cites the current expense appropriation budgets submitted by the Board stating there is currently $620,106 provided for salaries at Line Item 2502 (operation/maintenance). Respondent claims petitioner has made no showing that the existing custodial staff is insufficient to handle the need of the physical plants and further has failed to show how the loss of a new custodial position will impair the provision of a thorough and efficient education. Respondent claims the same is true regarding the reduction of a food service person. It claims there is currently $146,841 budgeted for salaries in the food service Line Item 2504. Respondent claims the Board has not shown how the absence of one food service person will effect the quality of education received by the children within the district in any fashion.

In response to the Board's seeking a cap waiver for the addition of an attendance clerk at the middle school, respondent contends at Line Item 2109 for attendance services, $78,526 is budgeted in appropriations for this school year, as contrasted with $70,590 for the year before. Of that amount, respondent claims, $73,436 is for salaries. Respondent avers the Board has not provided any reason which would suggest an inability to use the existing salaried personnel to accommodate the needs of the new middle school. It further claims that the existing budget also provides for an increase in salary expenditure of $7,741.

As to the Board's request for a special education aide in its cap waiver, respondent counters that there are numerous line items in petitioner's advertised budget which may constitute special education and must provide for salaries beyond that contained within the overall instructional salaries set forth for each school. It offers as examples, that there is $95,391 budgeted for salaries for the emotionally disturbed at Line Item 1206, and that there is budgeted: $37,438 for salaries in Line Item 1209 for the multiply handicapped, $80,261 at Line Item 1210 for the neurologically impaired and $235,617 at Line Item 1212 for the perceptually impaired. Respondent further suggests that there is an additional $331,158 budgeted at Line Item 1405 for salaries for preventative/remedial programs. Respondent claims the Board has failed to demonstrate that the lack of appropriation of one additional special education aide will impair the provision of a thorough and efficient education.

Moreover, respondent further argues against petitioner's allegation that the reduction in professional support staff expenditures due to the denial of the cap waiver request will preclude the provision of money for a science teacher. Respondent claims the Board did not reduce Line Items 1104 and 1105, and thus cannot seek the reinstatement of any monies for those line items for instruction in this cap waiver request. It claims that there appears to be no basis to support the Board's request that a science teacher be added to the grant of the cap waiver. It claims the same is true with respect to the student co-op worker in district offices. Respondent avers there is no basis for the request to allow a cap waiver in order to pay a student to work in the district offices, claiming experience may be more properly gained through a voluntary position in a like capacity.

In response to petitioner's contention that to meet the cap a high school assistant principal's position cannot be filled, respondent replies that inasmuch as the Board functioned during the 1990-91 school year with five administrators and a total of 19 supervisors and principals totaling 24 supervisors, the need for an additional assistant principal at the high school clearly has not been justified. Respondent notes that the Board has made no showing that there is no other qualified person to continue assuming the duties of the assistant principal while that post is left vacant, and likewise has failed to show how the termination of the Clerk of the Works position will jeopardize the provision of a thorough and efficient education of the Pinelands Regional pupils, and refers to Line Item 2502 which respondent claims has a $620,106 appropriation for the 1991-92 budget for salaries for operation and maintenance. It claims also that the Board has failed to show that existing personnel were not adequately able to fulfill the functions of the position of Clerk of the Works.

Co-Curricular Programs - $30,000

Respondent contends that while the Board has admitted in its Budget Cut Explanation Sheet that half of all clubs will be able to function with paid staff despite the rejection of the cap waiver proposal, it does not state whether it has been unable to gain volunteer advisors to assist with co-curricular programs or whether paid staff members are unavailable. Respondent also claims the Board has failed to show whether it has explored more cost effective ways of coordinating co-curricular programs to reduce the size of paid personnel in assisting with such programs. Respondent submits that the fact that at least half of the co-curricular programs continue to exist shows that the children in the district are not being deprived of a thorough and efficient education by the reduction in this paid staff expenditure.

Staff Benefits - $66,332

Respondent contends that by not employing such professional support staff as sought in this cap waiver appeal, the Board automatically assumes the benefit of saving the $66,332 in staff benefits which must exist as a corollary to the professional support staff mentioned.

Respondent concludes its position statement by averring that the Attorney General Opinion states that cap waiver appeals to the Commissioner are only permissible where there would clearly be a deprivation of the constitutionally required provision of a thorough and efficient education should the cap waiver not be permitted. Respondent submits that such is not the case in this appeal, and that petitioner's appeal of the voter rejected cap waiver should be denied.

Respondent's response to petitioner's position statement on the voter rejected cap waiver portion of the budget for 1991-92 adds that petitioner fails to address the six cap waiver items in which additional funding was sought through a cap waiver proposal presented to the public in 1991, and failed to adequately address the manner in which the voter rejected cap waiver results in a deprivation of funds needed to provide a constitutional thorough and efficient education to the students in the district. It claims the $637,332 is simply not necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient education.

It notes more specifically that the $225,000 which petitioner seeks for student transportation has already been provided by the respondents herein, due to the fact that respondents inappropriately added this amount to the 1991-92 budget of the district. The remaining line items which petitioner seeks to bolster through the addition of funds rejected by the voters in the cap waiver request were simply not necessary as there are sufficient services already in place to compensate for rejection of these funds which exceed the 8% cap waiver, respondent claims.

Respondent thus submits that the Board has failed to demonstrate in any manner why the statutory dictate precluding a petition of appeal of a voter rejected cap waiver should not apply. Respondent asks that the appeal be dismissed.

No other submissions were brought to the record by the parties.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this budget appeal, the Commissioner must first address the procedural argument posted by respondent regarding review of this cap waiver appeal. At the outset, it bears noting that just as in a budget appeal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.1 et seq., the standard of review in this cap waiver appeal is whether the amount of monies available to the Board in the absence of a cap waiver is sufficient for the provision of a thorough and efficient education to the pupils of that school district, as is required under our state constitution. See Quality Education Act ("QEA") L. 1991, c. 62, Sec. 19(f). See also, Attorney General Informal Opinion (91-0036) dated July 8, 1991. It is the case in this cap waiver appeal that the county superintendent conditionally approved the budget at the time of its presentation to the voters on April 30, 1991. Under such circumstances and upon requests from the individual boards, filed pursuant to the dictates of N.J.A.C. 6:24-7.1 et seq., the Commissioner must examine those items for which a cap waiver is sought, along with the arguments of the parties regarding whether granting such waiver is essential to meet the constitutional requirement to determine whether to exceed the cap and grant such amounts sought by the district.

In this regard, the Commissioner rejects respondent's argument that this cap waiver appeal is not among those envisioned as appropriate for the Commissioner's review because such amounts as sought by petitioner herein are not necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient education. Such a determination cannot, in the Commissioner's judgment, be made as a preface to a thorough and independent review of each line item amount and justification sought by the Board, weighed against those arguments advanced by the Mayor and Council or Board of School Estimate in opposition to such waiver. Accordingly, respondent's argument advanced at the outset of its statement of position that the instant matter is not appropriately before the Commissioner is dismissed as being without merit.

As to the merits of this case, the Board first seeks a cap waiver in the amount of $225,000 for student transportation. The Commissioner observes that the same amount was sought in its budget appeal for the same service, and that therein the Board admitted that such amount

> "represents the total, non-funded gratis to and from student transportation fees originally included by the Board but 'cut' in order to place the 1991-92 budget within the 8% cap." (Position Statement, Exhibit B)
> (Commissioner's decision, dated January 14, 1992, at p. 8)

The Commissioner's decision stressed that "non-remote busing is not a legal obligation in meeting the state requirement for a thorough and efficient education." (Id.) While the district benefitted in its budget appeal by a restoration of $225,000 said amount was the result of a procedural error on the Mayor and Council's part. See respondent's comment in its reply statement to petitioner's position statement to the instant cap waiver, wherein the Mayor and Council admitted that the Commissioner directed respondent to "certify an additional tax levy of $225,000.00 due to the fact that respondents inappropriately added this amount to the 1991/1992 budget of Pinelands Regional." (Respondent's Reply Statement, at p. 4)

Accordingly, the Commissioner must reject petitioner's cap waiver request for a $225,000 increase for student transportation on the face of the district's failure to advance proof that such busing is necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient education.

As to petitioner's request for a $133,000 cap waiver for the provision of summer school programming, athletics and co-curricular programs, the Commissioner must reject such application for want of a demonstration of actual need. The sole justification brought to the record before the Commissioner regarding the need for such amounts is embodied in one paragraph of the cap waiver question appeal and one sentence addressed to each line item in the budget cut explanations. The Commissioner remains uninformed as to whether the summer school program in question involves remediation required by T&E, whether the athletic equipment is to replace old, or unsafe equipment or whether any such funds are necessary for mandated curricular instruction as compared to extracurricular or club activities. Moreover, the record is devoid of references from the Board as to what amounts exist in the budget currently for such expenses or what has been spent in the past. Petitioner's statement in its cap waiver question appeal, in fact, militates against a finding of necessity of such funds for the provision of a thorough and efficient education in its statement that it seeks such monies for "activities outside the classroom" and by explaining that "cuts in these areas are reflected in fewer students enjoying supplementary and complementary activities." (Petition of Appeal, Exhibit C) Moreover, driver education is not mandated by statute or regulation as necessary for the provision of a thorough and efficient education, and the district makes absolutely no showing of same. Accordingly, the Commissioner rejects the cap waiver request for $133,000 sought for summer school/athletics, co-curricular programs and driver education.

The last broad grouping of monies sought in this cap waiver address professional and support staff and benefits in the amount of $279,332. Broken down into more discreet categories, the Board seeks $213,000 for professional/support staff and $66,332 in staff benefits.

Although the Board said that the amount it seeks in this appeal before the Commissioner for these categories represents almost half of the monies requested in its cap waiver appeal which was defeated by the public, the Board proffers in its budget cut explanations that such monies include the following new or existing staff positions: 1) a middle school media specialist; 2) a middle school maintenance position; 3) one custodian; 4) one food service position; 5) a middle school attendance clerk; 6) a special education aide; 7) a science teacher; and 8) a student co-op worker in the school district offices, as well as leaving vacant a high school assistant principal's position and the termination of the Clerk of the Works position as of June 30. (Petition of Appeal, Budget Cut Explanations)

However, here again, the Commissioner is at a loss to assess the need of such positions without more extensive budgetary data. Respondent has provided some helpful information such as what amounts are appropriated for the current school year in the line item budget for each position for which the district seeks a cap waiver. Moreover, the Commissioner's decision of January 14, 1992 dealt with a request for restoration of $200,000 to Account No. 2401, Salaries of School Administrators, which might help analyze the need addressed in this cap waiver to fill a vacancy in a high school assistant principal's position, but in said Commissioner's decision such $200,000 was sustained as a cut in the budget for the Board's failure to meet its burden of persuasion as to why the $200,000 reduction would hamper the provision of a thorough and efficient education. A terse statement that failure to provide monies for these various positions might result in "a return to a less than thorough and efficient educational program" (Exhibit C) is hardly sufficient demonstration of how each such position's elimination would impact on the provision of the constitutional requirement of a thorough and efficient education. On the other hand, neither has respondent provided persuasive argument as to its position that other line items or individuals may well be able to fulfill the responsibilities of those positions sought in this category of employees.

However, the Commissioner likewise believes that the extent of the reduction sought by respondent does raise the specter of leaving the Board with an insufficient amount of money to meet its obligation for providing a thorough and efficient education in the instructional areas regarding the science teacher, educational media specialist and special education aide. Thus, it is the Commissioner's assessment in reviewing the arguments presented herein concerning these three professional/support staff positions that it is appropriate to grant the Board a total amount of $90,000 for salary for the positions of science teacher, educational media specialist and special education aide.

Further, the Commissioner finds and determines that given the Board's failure to demonstrate that the staff positions sought are necessary to meet the constitutional mandate of a thorough and efficient education, except for the three positions discussed above, the Board has failed to justify the necessity of staff benefits in the amount of $66,332. However, $25,000 is deemed necessary for employee benefits associated with the three positions set forth above. The Commissioner so finds.

The Commissioner emphasizes that in presenting its request for a cap waiver in this matter, the Board has provided a litany of projected cuts it envisioned were necessary to stay within its budgetary cap. However, because the Board has failed to demonstrate that such projections were actually carried out, or that its assertion of needs are founded by producing hard evidence such as prior spending patterns, demonstration that reallocation of funds is impossible or actual staffing reductions, the Commissioner has no choice but to agree with the governing bodies that the amounts sought are unnecessary for a thorough and efficient education, except for the professional/support staff positions of science teacher, educational media specialist and special education aide.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed herein, the Commissioner directs the Ocean and Burlington County Boards of Taxation to strike a tax levy which shall add $115,000 to the 1991-92 current expense tax levy for the Townships of Little Egg Harbor, Eagleswood and Bass River and the Borough of Tuckerton for budgetary allocations for Pinelands Regional High School District's 1991-92 school budget.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HOWELL, MONMOUTH COUNTY, PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BEN SUCHCICKI, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board sought ruling declaring respondent unqualified for election and respondent's nominating petition invalid, null and void because he was employed by said Board as a custodian/grounds keeper. Board sought order removing respondent's name from April 7 ballot.

ALJ concluded that respondent's employment by the Board was inconsistent with the clear prescriptions of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 and 14-10. Therefore, respondent was not legally qualified for election to Board; his nominating petition was invalid, null and void; and his name was to be removed from the ballot.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision, reminding Board of its obligation to promptly pursue problems relating to qualification of candidates so they can be resolved prior to preparation of ballots.

Ben Suchcicki, respondent, pro se

Record Closed: March 26, 1992 Decided: March 26, 1992

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Respondent, Ben Suchcicki, an employee of the petitioner Board of Education of the Township of Howell ("Board") and an official of the union which represents Board employees, has filed a nominating petition for the purpose of election to the Board.

The Board seeks (1) a ruling declaring the respondent unqualified for election, (2) a ruling that the respondent's nominating petition is invalid, null and void, and (3) an order removing the respondent's name from the ballot for the upcoming election.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On March 20, 1992, the Board's petition and affidavit of verification were filed with the Commissioner of Education. See N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") where, on March 23, 1992, it was filed as a contested case and assigned a date for hearing. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq.; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.; N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.1; and N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6. On March 26, 1992, the case was heard in the OAL's Trenton (Hamilton Township) office.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

During the hearing of this matter, the parties stipulated and agreed that the following FACTS are not in dispute:

The respondent is employed by the Board as a "custodian/grounds keeper" and he is an official of the union which represents Board employees.

On or about February 7, 1992, the respondent filed a nominating petition for the purpose of qualifying as a candidate for election to the Board in its April 7, 1992, election.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Public policy demands that one who holds public office discharge his duties with undivided loyalty and from this policy the concept of "incompatibility" has evolved. Consistent with this concept, one may not hold two public offices, each of which has an interest which competes with the other, and one cannot hold two public offices where his performance in one office would be subordinate to the other, or subject to its control, or requires him to choose the obligation of one office over another. In such circumstances, it is not enough for the office holder to abstain from participation when an area of conflict arises; holding both the public offices is prohibited. See Jones v. MacDonald, 33 N.J. 132 (1960); Dunn v. Froehlich, 155 N.J. Super. 249 (App. Div. 1978); Kaufman v. Pannuccio, 121 N.J. Super. 27 (App. Div. 1972); and Visotcky v. City Council of City of Garfield, 113 N.J. Super. 263 (App. Div. 1971).

Consistent with the concept of "incompatibility," N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 provides that "[n]o member of any board of education shall be interested directly or indirectly in any contract with or claim against the board." Also, a nominating petition, such as that filed by the respondent, must state that the proposed candidate "is legally qualified to be elected" to the board and must be accompanied by a certificate signed by the proposed candidate that "[h]e is qualified to be elected." N.J.S.A. 18A:14-10. (Emphasis added.)

Surely the respondent's employment contract, if not his union responsibilities, give him the kind of "interest" which N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 speaks of. Compare Visotcky v. City Council of Garfield, supra, wherein it was decided that holding the position of teacher is "incompatible" with membership on the board of education in the same school district and where membership on the board would be invalid in such circumstances.

During the hearing, the respondent represented that it was and is his intention, conditioned upon his election, to resign as an employee and union representative. However, as quoted above, in N.J.S.A. 18A:14-10, the Legislature speaks in the present tense of legal qualification for election to the Board, i.e. there must be qualification at the time of execution of the petition and its accompanying certificate. (This is a reasonable and practical condition intended to assure that a candidate will not later reconsider and decide not to give up his disqualifying employment, etc.) Therefore, I FIND and CONCLUDE that, despite the respondent's petition's statement and accompanying certification wherein he is described as "qualified," he was and is not qualified.

During the hearing, the respondent also stated that he was unaware of his lack of qualification. This statement is somewhat inconsistent with the respondent's representation that he intended to resign his position as a Board employee if elected, but, in any event, it is the proposed candidate's responsibility to learn applicable laws before certifying his qualification for election. See Graham v. N.J. Real Estate Comm'n, 217 N.J. Super. 130, 138 (App. Div. 1987), and In re Krah, 130 N.J. Super. 366 (App. Div. 1974), for the proposition that everyone is conclusively presumed to know the law, statutory and otherwise, and, in the absence of statutory or constitutional requirements, an agency is not required to give actual notice of the law.

Given the above facts and circumstances, I FIND, CONCLUDE and DECLARE as follows: (1) The respondent is not legally qualified for election to the Board; (2) The respondent's nominating petition is invalid, null and void; and (3) The respondent's name as a candidate for election to the Board must be removed from the ballot relative to the April 7, 1992, election.

ORDERS

Consistent with the above, I ORDER the respondent's name removed from the ballot.

It is further ORDERED, given the April 7, 1992 election date, that any exceptions to this decison be filed with the Commissioner of the Department of Education by March 31, 1992. See N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.3(a) and R. 1:1-2.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

On or before March 31, 1992, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF HOWELL, MONMOUTH COUNTY, PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BEN SUCHCICKI, RESPONDENT.	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exception to this decision was taken by respondent.

Upon review, the Commissioner endorses the decision of the Administrative Law Judge for the reasons expressed therein. The law is clear, unequivocal and well-established in its prohibition of district employees serving as members of the board of education by which they are employed.

The Commissioner notes, however, that he is somewhat perplexed by the Board's delay in seeking to have respondent's name removed from the ballot, as Board agents must have known when respondent filed his nominating petition on February 7, 1992 that he was an employee of the district and consequently barred from candidacy. The Commissioner therefore reminds board secretaries of their obligation to promptly pursue problems of this type so that they can be resolved prior to, and without needless complication of, the preparation of ballots.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is affirmed and respondent's name is to be removed from the ballot for the April 7, 1992 school election by reason of his lack of legal qualification for board membership.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

HEARING OF CHRISTINE PELLAGATTI,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning State District Superintendent sought removal of tenured teacher on charges of incapacity due to illness and chronic and excessive absenteeism.

ALJ found that teacher had an extensive history of absenteeism due to illness, resulting in a negative impact on continuity of instruction and concerns being expressed about respondent's attendance and tardiness in performance evaluations and other documents dating back to the early 1980s. He further found that teacher was on several occasions incapacitated during school hours by abuse of prescription drugs and that her refusal to submit to drug testing was an act of insubordination and unbecoming conduct notwithstanding that she later agreed to such testing. ALJ found continued employment unsupportable and recommended dismissal.

Commissioner concurred with the findings and determination of the ALJ and dismissed respondent from her tenured employment. He further referred the matter to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate as deemed appropriate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)1.

Record Closed: December 19, 1991 Decided: February 10, 1992

BEFORE JAMES A. OSPENSON, ALJ:

The state district superintendent of the state-operated school district of Jersey City, Hudson County, filed and certified to the Commissioner of the Department of Education tenure charges against Christine Pellagatti, a tenured teaching staff member, sounding in incapacity due to illness and chronic and excessive absenteeism, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-34, et seq., which if found true warranted respondent's removal or reduction in compensation, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. A certificate of determination together with supporting statement of evidence was filed with the Commissioner on March 5, 1991. Respondent's answer in general denial was filed there on April 2, 1991. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on April 11, 1991, for hearing and determination as a contested case in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. and was assigned OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3722-91.

Subsequently, on April 16, 1991, further tenure charges against respondent sounding in unbecoming conduct, incapacity and insubordination as a teacher, contrary to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq., were filed and certified by the state district superintendent, which, if proven, warranted respondent's removal or reduction in compensation. Respondent's answer in general denial was filed on May 23, 1991. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on May 28, 1991, for hearing and determination in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., and was assigned OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5300-91.

The two matters were consolidated by consent order of the administrative law judge on July 16, 1991, at prehearing conference, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-17.1 et seq. As provided in the prehearing order, at issue in the consolidated matters were (1) whether the state-operated district shall have proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence tenure charges and specifications against respondent sounding in chronic and excessive absenteeism, incapacity, insubordination and/or unbecoming conduct; and (2) if so, whether respondent should be removed from her employment or suffer reduction in compensation or other sanction. No procedural irregularity in filing of tenure charges was alleged under N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1.

Hearing was conducted in the Office of Administrative Law on November 13 and 14, 1991, and was concluded. Thereafter, time for posthearing submissions having elapsed and such submissions having been filed, the record closed.

PRELIMINARY FINDINGS OF FACT
(OAL DKT. NO. EDU 3722-91)

Tenure charges against respondent under this docket number specified, in charge no. 1, that respondent had been incapacitated due to illness to the extent she was chronically and excessively absent from her duties as a teacher, which resulted in significant adverse impact on the school children through incapacity. In a second charge, her chronic and excessive absences over a ten-year period from 1980-81 through 1990-91, despite repeated counseling and cautions, were alleged to have had a significant deleterious impact upon welfare of her students.

From documented attendance records for the ten-year period, Exhibits A 1 through A-11, I FIND respondent was absent for the following periods:

1980-81	25 absences
1981-82	41 absences
1982-83	28 1/2 absences
1983-84	48 and 1/4 absences
1984-85	17 absences
1985-86	45 absences
1986-87	51 absences
1987-88	46 1/2 absences
1988-89	31 1/4 absences
1989-90	71 absences (including 20 that involved a suspension with pay)

The records also indicated that from October 26, 1989 until her suspension on charges respondent was late in reporting for her teaching duties 39 times. Exhibits A-22, 25.

Respondent's absences in the early 1980's were recognizably occasioned by her suffering from a chronic illness known as lupus erythematosus, said to be a skin disease of unknown cause characterized by red, scaly patches that tend to produce scars, sometimes affecting connective tissue and involving the kidneys, spleen, etc. Her husband also died during that period. The District counseled her and approved leaves of absence but cautioned her to improve her attendance and avoid further latenesses. Well-documented District concern for her deteriorating attendance records was reflected in her annual written performance reports and PIPs from 1981 through 1985. Exhibits A-76 through A-80. In February 1980 her principal advised the personnel director of the District that he was requesting a review of respondent's records because of her excessive latenesses, absences and inability to function to her fullest capacity. Exhibit A-28. On March 9, 1990, the personnel director advised respondent by letter that "in 11 plus years you have been a teacher in the Jersey City Public Schools you have been absent for personal illness more than two full school years," that is to say, some 406 and 1/2 days. A-26.

On May 11, 1990, respondent was observed in an incapacitated condition while seated at a table with her head down. She was sent home. Exhibit A-23. On May 18, 1990, the state district superintendent suspended respondent with pay for the rest of the school year, urging her to file for disability retirement. Exhibit A-20, 21. On September 26, 1990, respondent was assigned to grade three in school no. 38, effective November 28, 1990. Exhibit A-16. When she returned to work on November 30, 1990, she continued to have problems with attendance and lateness, being absent six days and late five times in less than two months. She was cautioned about the excessiveness. Exhibits A-13, 14. The adverse effect on students was noted by the principal on January 29, 1991. Exhibit A-12.

(OAL DKT. NO. EDU 5300-91)

Charges of unbecoming conduct, incapacity and insubordination were the subject of OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5300-91. On February 7, 1991, respondent's principal received a phone message from a concerned parent of a child in respondent's class, who feared respondent might fall asleep in class. Exhibit B-1 On February 19, 1991, two school luncheon aides asked the school nurse to observe respondent, who seemed to be "falling asleep standing up." Exhibit B-2. Later that day, respondent, who was not in her classroom and whose class was being monitored by a teacher from the next classroom, was found in the teachers' room rocking up and down, nodding in and out of what appeared to be a stupor and acting strangely. Exhibit B-4. The principal saw respondent having difficulty walking that same day. Exhibit B-5. Respondent was suspended with pay on February 21, 1991. Exhibit B-6.

Specification of respondent's alleged insubordination resulted from her failure and refusal to submit to a directive from the state district superintendent to submit, during working hours, to medical testing by Health Net. Exhibits B-6 to 8. In a letter to respondent on February 20, 1991, the state district superintendent noted a report submitted to her by respondent's principal and reports of the school nurse indicating suspected drug use. The state district superintendent suspended respondent with pay pending a physical examination and directed her to go with the school nurse to Health Net. It was expressly stated that "failure to submit to this drug testing at this time shall be considered insubordinate action and subject to further disciplinary action." Exhibit B-6. The principal reported to the state district superintendent by memorandum later that day that respondent "chose not to go to Health Net" as indicated in [the] letter of suspension." Exhibit B-8.

EVIDENCE AT HEARING

I

Testimony at hearing corroborated documentation in the record. Kathleen Hudak, a luncheon aide employed by the District, testified that on February 19, 1991 she went to the second floor, where other teachers had said respondent did not look well and her class seemed unruly. Hudak said respondent in her classroom was standing swaying with her hands on the ledge of a window. Children in her class were eating lunch and were indeed unruly. Hudak reported to the principal what she saw. She next saw respondent in the company of a vice principal and the school nurse: respondent's eyes appeared "tired." Hudak graduated from nursing school as an LPN in 1989.

Mary Ertle has been employed as school nurse by the District at school no. 38 for 13 years. She is an RN and holds educational certification as a New Jersey school nurse. Her experience includes work as emergency nurse at Jersey City Medical Center, handling trauma, orthopedic and psychiatric injuries and overdoses. Sixty-five percent of her work there was drug-related. Her reports on the incidents of February 19 and 20, 1991 are Exhibits B-2 and B-4. On February 19, 1991, she saw respondent experiencing difficulty standing still, difficulty with her gait and experiencing difficulty in keeping her eyes open. Respondent appeared drowsy, saying merely she had taken Contac for a cold. On February 20, 1991, Ertle was called to the second-floor teachers' room by the principal. Respondent's actions appeared the same. Her pupils were restricted; her respiration was slow and steady. She appeared to be in a stupor. In Ertle's opinion, respondent, who wanted to leave school at the time, was unable to drive or walk by herself. Ertle stayed with respondent about an hour at the school. Respondent said her lupus was in remission. In Ertle's opinion, based on her experience and observations, respondent was under the influence of drugs. About 2:45 p.m., an investigator arrived from District offices with a letter order from the superintendent to respondent to attend

Health Net with the school nurse for a drug screen. Respondent refused to go, saying she wanted to call her union or a lawyer. She left at dismissal time at 3:15 without complying with the directive. She still appeared unsteady, almost drunk, and swaying.

Under the circumstances, there appeared ample reasonable grounds for suspicion that respondent was under the influence of a controlled substance or alcohol and thus a reasonable basis for ordering her to undergo drug testing at Health Net.

Marie Morrissey, principal of school no. 38 and formerly assistant principal for 14 years, has known respondent as a third-grade teacher since November 1990. From December 1990 until February 1991, she said, respondent was late to school six times, and three times more than one hour late. Morrissey said latenesses by teachers affect students because classes must still be covered during school hours. Substitute teachers cannot do as well as regularly assigned teachers for lack of teaching continuity. Morrissey and principal Koval had both received parental complaints concerning respondent's latenesses and absences during December 1990 until January 1991. Discipline had become a problem with no effective teaching. On February 20, 1991, said Morrissey, she too noticed respondent's dazed and glazed condition. She was present when the investigator arrived with the directive. Respondent called her NJEA representative about 2:45 p.m. She then refused to go to Health Net in compliance with directive.

James Richardson, legal investigator for the District, testified to his delivery of the District directive to attend Health Net. He affirmed respondent's refusal. Exhibit B-7.

Robert Y. Schaefer, executive director of human resources for the District, testified that his letter to respondent of March 9, 1990 noted her ten-year record of absences for personal illness totaled more than the equivalent of two full school years: 406 and 1/2 days in 11 plus years. Exhibit A-26. Her situation was so extreme that he had by letter of May 16, 1990 suggested a disability retirement. Exhibit A-21. Schaefer noted too the report of excessive latenesses by respondent from principal Daniel R. Cupo on May 14, 1990. It had been necessary to deduct $362.89 from respondent's salary for them. Ultimately, he said, respondent was suspended with pay on May 15, 1990 pending results of a medical examination. Exhibit A-20. Schaefer directed such an examination on August 16, 1990. Exhibit A-18.

A medical report of September 26, 1980 from Dr. S. Tobias said respondent could return to work. Exhibit A-17. She was reinstated for work in the latter part of November 1990. Exhibit A-16. Her reinstatement was coupled with an express warning, however, to improve her absenteeism. Exhibit A-15.

Catherine Coyle, who is principal of School No. 27 and who is author of a letter to Schaefer of May 11, 1990 (Exhibit A-23), noted she had seen respondent on May 11, 1990 with her head down, apparently asleep, and disoriented on being waked. At the time she should have been on assignment with her students according to school scheduling. She had seen respondent in that condition on other occasions. All concerned assumed respondent's condition of lupus erythematosus was responsible for her absences and conduct. No one had an inkling, she said, that respondent was on methadone or engaged in any illegal drug use. Her most recent annual performance report and PIP, dated April 24, 1990, explicitly indicated attendance and tardiness as performance areas needing improvement. Exhibit A-75.

After February 20, 1991, when respondent had refused the District order to attend Health Net for drug testing, she did submit to such testing. By report dated March 1, 1991, National Health Laboratories, Cranford, reported respondent tested positive for methadone.[1] That was the first time the District knew of respondent's involvement in methadone programming, according to Schaefer. Exhibit A-74.

II

Respondent Christine Pellagatti, who holds a B.S. in elementary education, testified she began work in the District in September 1972 as a second-grade teacher. She is a widow; her husband died September 11, 1989 and had been ill since 1981. He had been a teacher employed by the District for 17 years. She said her physical condition was that of remission from lupus erythematosus, from which she suffered since November 1981. Symptoms are enlarged heart, damage lungs, lesions on face and body, with general malaise. Her physician had prescribed the drug Prednisone and other drugs over the years; she now takes no drugs for the remissive lupus. But she is presently on methadone, and has been since May 1990, following addiction to drugs of Percodan and Percocet,[2] to which she had become addicted by usage between May and July 1990. The drugs had been prescribed for her husband, she said, but she began taking them. Her doctor suggested a methadone program in response to her addiction about August 1990. She denied ever taking any "street drugs" or ever having injected herself. Her methadone program involves monthly urine testing and counseling if testing fails. There is daily attendance for dosage of methadone, or five-day dosage with none on weekends if clear on urinalysis.

[1]Under the New Jersey Controlled Dangerous Substances Act, N.J.S.A. 24:21-1, 6, methadone is a Schedule II controlled dangerous substance with high abuse potential, current accepted medical use in treatment or currently accepted medical use with severe restrictions, abuse of which may lead to severe psychic or physical dependence.

Respondent declared her observations and evaluations (R-1 through R-11) were uniformly without unsatisfactory markings and contained no cautions about her attendance record. She began to teach basic skills in 1990 and said she felt her students were all succeeding. On the October and May tests, her students always showed improvement on New York and California achievement tests.

She admitted she was suspended in May 1990 for attendance improvement, placed on leave of absence and was okayed by her doctor for reinstatement and return to work at school no. 38 in November 1990. Her reasons for absences in December 1990 and January 1991 included personal business, sickness from a cold, sickness because of a bad back from an accident, another cold and, on January 29, 1991, a doctor's appointment at the methadone clinic. She admitted she was late once when a friend was arrested in Newark, but she said she always called if she expected to be late--except once when she overslept.

[2]Percocet is a trade name for medication containing oxycodone that can produce drug dependency of the morphine type, which has, therefore, potential for abuse with risk of psychic dependence, physical dependence and tolerance, subject to prescription and administration under doctor's orders, according to Physicians' Desk Reference, 46th Ed., 1992, at 950-1.

On February 19, 1991, she said, she was very sick. She had taken Contac and that caused her to be drowsy. She felt she was capable of teaching that day and, in fact, did so. On February 20, 1991, she was sick again. At lunch she was feverish and put her head down. In the afternoon she asked another teacher to take her class. She wanted to go home, but the nurse came in during a free period. She was on methadone at the time, she said, when the investigator came with orders to take a drug screening. She was afraid to do so because she feared the repercussions. Eventually, however, she said, she did take such a drug test. Her methadone clinic is Spectrum Health Clinic, 461 Frelinghuysen Avenue, Newark.

DISCUSSION

Respondent argued generally that District evidence in the cause failed preponderately to demonstrate her numerous absences over the years had deleterious effect on her students since all students had successfully passed periodic achievement testing, that respondent's increment had never been withheld by the District on the ground of excessive absenteeism and that the vice of excessive absence had never sufficiently been conveyed to her. Rm 2-10. She urged as well "there was not one shred of evidence that the District produced to prove [she] was incapacitated due to any condition or illness." Rm 11. As to the charge of insubordination, respondent contended, she refused drug screen testing only because she feared ramification once the District learned she was "on" methadone, refusal being in any case only a single isolated instance. Rm 11-13. Respondent urged dismissal of charges without disciplinary sanction because the District had put in place no standard or policy by which teaching staff members could be guided as to when or under what circumstances they would require District concern. Rm 14. Because respondent had no prior warning, she should not now, suddenly, be jeopardized. With regard to incapacity or allegedly being in a stupor, respondent thought no evidence had been adduced by the District to support the charge, the incident of February 20, 1990 being only a single day when she was not up to standard and on that day she excused herself from class. Rm 14-15.

District arguments were sharply to the contrary. It urged that respondent had been excessively absent from her duties for the past ten years, that she averaged 40 absences a year, that she had been counseled, warned and given "one last chance," with little or no improvement. Damage to the educational interests of the students was clear. Respondent had been cautioned often and continuously. A-12, 13, 14, 16, 20, 21, 25, 28, 75, 76-80. That is so, said the District, even where absences were for medical reasons like incapacity from or treatment for the disease lupus, for which she had been generously accommodated by the District in the past through medical leaves of absence. Pm 8-14. On this issue, in my view, District arguments have by far greater accuracy and cogency.

It has been declared pointedly by the Commissioner that chronic absenteeism seriously disrupts continuity of instruction in the classroom:

> Such absenteeism consistent with a long line of precedential authority is sufficient for removal . . . The rationale remains the same even where absences were medically legitimate.

See, Board of Ed., Township of Pequannock v. Malley, 1986 S.L.D. -- (Commissioner's decision, December 29, 1986), affirmed State Board (April 3, 1987). See also, In the Matter of Tenure Hearing of Sheila Green, State-operated School District of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, 1991 S.L.D. -- (Commissioner's decision, July 31, 1991, slip op. at 15-20).

The conclusion is inescapable here that respondent's chronic and excessive absenteeism, despite an affliction now in remission, seriously disrupted continuity of the instructional process in her classroom. The degree and repetitiveness of such absenteeism of itself is sufficient ground for removal. Cf., Tenure Hearing of Williamson, School District of the City of Trenton, 1986 S.L.D. -- (May 28, 1986). See also, Trautwein v. Board of Ed., Bound Brook (New Jersey App. Div., April 8, 1989, A-2773-78 unpublished), cert. den. 84 N.J. 469 (1980); and Tenure Hearing of Edna Booth, 1985 S.L.D. -- (May 13, 1985), affirmed, State Board, 1986 S.L.D. --; affirmed, App. Div., unpublished opinion, November 13, 1987, Dkt. No. A-3985-86T8 (slip op. at 5-6). A conclusion of incapacity to perform duties assigned is a necessary corollary to a long record of excessive absenteeism. See, Tenure Hearing of Nancy Bacon, 1978 S.L.D. 776, 778.

District charges of insubordination and unbecoming conduct are interrelated; consideration of them prompts serious concern. That school districts must be free from exposing students to the ministrations of drug-addicted teachers merely states the obvious. That districts must be empowered promptly to detect ravages of drug abuse in teaching staff members is self-evident. Thus, when districts are given reasonable, individualized grounds to suspect addiction and abuse, they are well within fulfillment of sensitive obligations to students and the public to insist upon instantaneous, immediate testing measures. Random testing of public employees like teachers absent some reasonably individualized suspicion of abuse or addiction may be unconstitutional under the Fourth Amendment. See, Fraternal Order of Police v. City of Newark, 216 N.J. Super. 461, 476 (App. Div. 1987). But once there arises an apparent, reasonable, individualized suspicion, such as the suspicion engendered here from observations by coworkers and a school nurse on February 19 and 20, 1990, the need for quick, decisive testing becomes necessary in order that, should testing be positive, the teacher be immediately separated from the classroom and the risk of danger to students obviated. It follows necessarily, it seems to me, that any equivocation or refusal of what was a clear, written, direct, personally served order by her district superintendent constituted even in a single instance an egregiously insubordinate act. In face of such an order, respondent in equivocating risked loss of continued employment. That she feared "ramifications" is neither excuse nor extenuation.

That her disobedience was unbecoming is also plain. She refused testing in order to conceal not only methadone programming but illicit Percodan abuse that preceded it. Insubordination was a self-serving act of concealment; its vice is deception.

CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing, I FIND all tenure charges against respondent have been fully and fairly sustained by documentary and testimonial evidence adduced by the District. I FIND respondent's absences in the degree and repetitiveness indulged, despite an acknowledged and accommodated illness, were inexcusable in face of consistent prior warning. I FIND respondent's insubordinate and unbecoming conduct in refusing a direct order to submit to drug screening was not extenuated by her later submission to testing, the need for prompt obedience being necessary for detection accuracy. Because refusal was admittedly and deliberately for the purpose of concealing substance addiction from her public employer, it was especially egregious; no rehabilitory accommodation of her condition may be indulged. Respondent's testimony and arguments in extenuation may not be credited. Her continued presence on the employment rolls of the District is insupportable. She is removed from her teaching staff position as of date of final agency decision herein.

The matter is referred to the State Board of Examiners under N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(1) for such further action as thought appropriate.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF CHRISTINE PELLAGATTI, STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by respondent, as were replies thereto by the Board of Education.

In her exceptions, respondent avers that the ALJ made several critical factual errors in his decision, all of which conspire to paint the worst possible picture of respondent. Specifically, respondent points to (1) a memo about her absences purportedly dated February 1980, when it was actually dated February 1990, thus making it appear that action was taken against her much sooner than it really was; (2) the ALJ's comment that she was "sent home" from school on May 11, 1990, thus inferring wrongdoing on her part, when the truth was that she excused herself; (3) the ALJ's comment about a lack of effective teaching, which is belied by an excellent evaluation report dating May 7, 1990 (Exhibit R-11); (4) erroneous comments about use of her husband's Percodan, engagement in 5-day rather than 7-day methadone treatments and lateness due to the arrest of a friend in Newark; and (5) refusal of drug testing being related to an attempt to conceal Percodan use when the refusal was actually related to enrollment in a methadone program. In reply, the Board notes that the letter challenged by respondent (Exhibit A-28) does in fact date from 1990, but judges this and the other objections raised (none of which, it is noted, are supported by citations to transcripts of testimony) to be trivial in view of the overwhelming evidence supporting the Board's position and the findings of the ALJ that are not excepted to by respondent.

Upon careful review, the Commissioner fully concurs with the detailed and well-reasoned decision of the ALJ. Like the Board, the Commissioner finds no merit in respondent's exceptions and notes that even assuming arguendo that her allegations of factual error were correct in their entirety, they would in no way serve to alter the overwhelming balance of evidence in this matter. That evidence, the vast majority of which is undisputed, clearly and unequivocally demonstrates that respondent's continued employment as a teaching staff member is unsupportable for the reasons set forth by the ALJ. The Commissioner moreover finds this so notwithstanding that respondent may have been able, when present and not incapacitated by illness or drug use, to conduct acceptable, even successful classes.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing respondent from tenured employment from the date of this decision is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein. This matter is further referred to the State Board of Examiners for action against respondent's certificate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)1 as the Board may deem appropriate.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF CHRISTINE PELLAGATTI,	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	DECISION ON MOTION OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY,	:
HUDSON COUNTY.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 30, 1992

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Murray, Murray & Corrigan
(David F. Corrigan, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Brown & Brown
(Raymond A Brown, Esq., of Counsel)

By decision of March 30, 1992, the Commissioner of Education sustained tenure charges of incapacity and of absenteeism against Appellant Christine Pellagatti (hereinafter "Appellant"). On May 14, 1992, Appellant filed a notice of appeal from that decision with the Appellate Division. On July 8, 1992, the Appellate Division dismissed the appeal on motion made on behalf of the State Board of Education that Appellant had failed to exhaust her administrative remedies. Appellant now moves to appeal to the State Board nunc pro tunc.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, appeals to the State Board must be taken "within 30 days after the decision appealed from is filed" (emphasis added). In contrast to the period for filing petitions to the Commissioner of Education, see N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2; N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.17, the time limit within which an appeal must be taken to the State Board is statutory, and, given the jurisdictional nature of the statutory time limit, the State Board lacks the authority to extend it. E.g., B.W., a minor child by his parents, J.W. and B.W. v. Board of Education of the City of Brigantine and Safety Bus Service, decided by the State Board, November 4, 1987.

In this case the Commissioner's decision was rendered on March 30, 1992, and mailed to the parties on that date. Under the applicable regulations, the Commissioner's decision was deemed filed on April 1, 1992, and, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-28, Appellant was required to file notice of appeal with the State Board by May 4, 1992. As stated, Appellant did not file her appeal with the State Board. Rather, she filed with the Appellate Division on May 14.

Appellant's counsel certifies that Appellant filed her appeal in the Appellate Division on his advice. He further certifies that this advice was based on his misreading of New Jersey Court Rule 2:2-3.[1] Although not timely filed under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6, Appellant's appeal was timely filed under R. 2:4-1, which is the rule applicable to appeals to the Appellate Division made under R. 2:2-3.

Given that the appeal was timely filed with the Appellate Division under the rule of limitation applicable in that forum, and given that Appellant's counsel's certification convinces us that his error in choice of forum, while not excusable, was not an attempt to avoid our rule of limitation, we find that dismissal of this appeal is not the proper response. c.f. Kohlbrenner Recycling v.

1 R. 2:2-3(a) provides in pertinent part that appeals may be taken to the Appellate Division as of right "... to review final decisions or actions of any state administrative agency or officer,...".

Burlington Cty., 228 N.J. Super. 624, 629 (Law Div. 1987). We therefore grant Appellant's motion and direct that she file her brief in support of her appeal 20 days from the date of this decision.

Record Closed: February 25, 1992 Decided: February 26, 1992

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

Procedural History

This is the proposed final resolution of ongoing litigation in which the parties have been engaged for more than a decade. In February 1981, Frank Bybel, a tenured high school teacher was hospitalized with a diagnosis of a treatable mental condition. The Englewood Board of Education ("Englewood") granted him a medical leave through the end of the school year. Initially, Bybel sought to resume teaching in September 1981, but Englewood imposed conditions, including medication which allegedly may have harmful side effects. Meanwhile, Bybel obtained another teaching position in New York for 1982-83.

In May 1983, Bybel appealed to the Commissioner of Education, culminating, after years of litigation, in a refusal by the New Jersey Supreme Court to disturb the school board's right to set "reasonable" conditions. Apparently, no finding was ever made whether the particular conditions set in this case were reasonable. Although in April 1986 Bybel indicated his willingness to abide by the conditions, he allegedly failed to submit requested medical records to the school board. Not much happened until January 1988, when Bybel requested a local hearing but again purportedly did not supply requested medical records.

After an interval of two years, in April 1990 Bybel indicated his readiness to return to work in September 1990. When Englewood denied his request, in November 1990 Bybel appealed to the Commissioner of Education seeking reinstatement and damages. On December 20, 1990, the Commissioner transmitted the case, (EDU 10638-90) to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL"). Separately, on February 11, 1991, Englewood certified tenure charges, alleging that Bybel had abandoned his position and, alternatively, that he is medically incapacitated. Bybel filed his answer on March 4, 1991, denying the charges and raising various statutory and constitutional defenses. Subsequently, on March 12, 1991, the Commissioner transmitted the tenure case (EDU 2491-91) to the OAL for a hearing. At Bybel's request, the OAL entered an order consolidating the two cases for hearing.

The OAL has scheduled a two-day hearing on the abandonment issue for April 9 and 10, 1992. If Bybel prevails on that issue, there will be an opportunity for additional discovery and the matter will be continued for a hearing on the incapacity issue sometime in October 1992 at the earliest.

Both parties have agreed to a proposed settlement, subject to approval by the Commissioner of Education. In accordance with the decision of the State Board of Education in Cardonick v. Brooklawn Bd. of Ed., 1983 S.L.D. _____ (St. Bd. April 6, 1983), the record of any proposed settlement must include:

> . . . the nature of the charges, circumstances justifying the settlement, consent or authorization by the board of education and the teacher to the proposed agreement, [and] the Administrative Law Judge's findings that the teacher entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his rights, and that the agreement is consistent with the public interest.

On February 19, 1992, the OAL held a public hearing on the issue of whether or not the proposed settlement should be accepted. Counsel for both parties set forth on the record the reasons why settlement would be in the public interest. Bybel testified that he fully understood and voluntarily agreed to the terms of settlement. Russell Major, Englewood Board member, who is familiar with this protracted dispute since its inception, expressed his view that the settlement would be in the best interest of the district and its students. In addition, the parties prepared the various settlement documents which are attached and fully incorporated as part of this decision.

Findings of Fact

Based on my review of the pleadings and the record, I FIND that the proposed settlement is consistent with the public interest for the following reasons:

1. The endless litigation has consumed the energies of both parties and it is clearly in the interest of all concerned to put this matter behind them. Both parties acknowledged this fact. As Bybel stated, he would like "to get on with [his] life." Similarly, Englewood complains that the litigation "keeps popping up" every few years and is a recurring drain on its financial resources.

2. Admittedly, Bybel suffered an incapacitating illness while employed by Englewood as a tenured teacher in the high school. None of the tenure charges against Bybel involve allegations of intentional wrongdoing or dishonest conduct. He has never been convicted of any crime.

3. Under the terms of the proposed settlement, Bybel will resign as a teaching staff. Further, the parties have executed general releases which will end this litigation once and for all.

4. In exchange, Englewood will make a lump sum payment of $24,000 to Bybel in satisfaction of any and all claims. This amount represents approximately six months of salary for a teacher of Bybel's qualification and experience. Both parties agree that this is a fair and reasonable amount.

5. If Bybel is successful in his suit against the Board, he would be entitled to damages, including back pay and fringe benefits, commencing in September 1990. Even if Bybel loses the suit, he may still assert a claim under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 for salary from September 1991 to the disposition of the tenure charges.

6. It will take at least another month until this case is reached for hearing.

7. In the event that it becomes necessary to litigate Bybel's medical fitness, the parties will present conflicting expert testimony. The Board's medical report is at least 18 months old and the information is outdated. Consequently, the Board will have to incur the additional expense of arranging for a current medical examination. Both sides will want to depose each other's medical experts in preparation for the hearing. These preparations will add to the costs of litigation.

8. Before deciding to enter into this agreement, Englewood considered the various risks and pitfalls of litigation, including the possibility that Bybel might be restored to his teaching position. Bybel fully understood his rights and had adequate opportunity to consult with legal counsel.

9. Bybel is aware that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a), the Commissioner may refer this matter to the State Board of Examiners for any action which it may deem appropriate.

I CONCLUDE that the terms of settlement are in the public interest.

It is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that the proceedings are hereby concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

This Agreement is made this 19 day of February, 1992, by and between the School District of the City of Englewood, with offices at 12 Tenafly Road, Englewood, New Jersey 07631, hereinafter referred to as the "Board",

AND

Frank X. Bybel, residing at 181 Woodland Avenue, Yonkers, New York 10703, hereinafter referred to as "Bybel."

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS the Board and Bybel are parties to actions pending before the Commissioner of Education/Office of Administrative Law bearing captions and docket numbers as follows:

(a) Frank X. Bybel v. Englewood Board of Education, Agency Ref. No. 366-11/90, O.A.L. Docket No. EDU 10638-90N; and,

(b) In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frank X. Bybel, School District of the City of Englewood, Bergen County, Agency Ref. No. 28-2/91, O.A.L. Docket No. EDU 2491-91; and,

WHEREAS, Bybel has indicated a willingness to tender his resignation from employment with the Board, upon certain terms and conditions to be stipulated in this Agreement, and to withdraw his claims for reinstatement as set forth in the Verified Petition referred to above that was filed on his behalf; and,

WHEREAS, in lieu of proceeding with the tenure charges it certified to the Commissioner of Education in accordance with the Tenure Employees' Hearing Law, and in recognition of the fact that the tenure charges do not involve moral turpitude and it is in the public interest that there by a settlement of these matters, the Board desires to enter into an agreement stipulating the terms of Bybel's separation from his employment with the Board as a teacher.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises of the parties and in exchange for the consideration more particularly noted below, it is agreed:

1. As evidenced by the attached, Bybel has submitted an irrevocable letter of resignation from all employment with the Board effective at the close of business on the day that the Commissioner of Education approves the stipulation of settlement in these matters. The Board will, by separate resolution, be permitted to accept this resignation at its next regularly scheduled Board meeting, or at a special meeting held prior to the regular meeting.

2. The Board agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, the tenure charges of incapacity and abandonment from position which it certified in the matter bearing Agency Ref. No. 28-2/91 and O.A.L. Docket No. EDU 2491-91.

3. Bybel agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, all claims relating to reinstatement to a tenured position of employment which he filed in the matter bearing Agency Ref. No. 366-11/90 and O.A.L. Docket No. EDU 10638-90N.

4. The Board shall pay to Bybel the sum of Twenty Four Thousand Dollars ($24,000.00) as a full and complete settlement in lieu of litigation of the matters referred to above. This amount shall be paid as a lump sum without any payroll or other deductions taken from this sum.

5. The lump sum set forth in Paragraph 4 above shall be paid to Bybel immediately following the approval of this Stipulation of Settlement by the Commissioner of Education.

6. Pending the review and approval of this Stipulation of Settlement by the Commissioner of Education, the Board agrees that it shall continue to provide Bybel with all insurance coverages presently provided to other teaching staff members in the Englewood School District. The insurance coverages involved herein are set forth in the current collective negotiations agreement between the Board and the Englewood Teachers' Association.

7. Upon Bybel's separation from employment (the effective date of his resignation) and consistent with his rights under the Consolidated Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1986 ("COBRA"), Bybel shall be able to purchase, at his own cost and expense, the insurance coverages presently provided to other teaching staff members in the Englewood School District. The insurance coverages involved herein are set forth in the current collective negotiations agreement between the Board and the Englewood Teachers' Association.

8. It is understood that Bybel shall not receive any other benefits or emoluments of employment specified in the present collective negotiations agreement except as otherwise provided for in this Stipulation of Settlement.

9. Each party agrees that they shall be responsible for their own counsel fees and costs incurred in connection with this matter and any prior actions between them.

10. The Board and Bybel agree to exchange general releases releasing one another from all claims or actions which either may have against the other as a result of these actions, any prior actions, or anything else that occurred during Bybel's period of employment with the Board, subject only to the condition that neither party shall release any claims based upon enforcement of this Stipulation of Settlement. Bybel agrees to execute an Indemnification Agreement with respect to liability to any tax authority for withholdings.

11. The Board and Bybel acknowledge that the terms of this Agreement are contingent upon the review and approval of both the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. In the event that either agency disapproves of the terms of settlement, this Agreement shall be null and void and the parties shall return to the same positions which they held prior to this settlement.

12. The parties recognize that each has been represented by legal counsel of his or its own choosing and that each signs this Agreement as their own voluntary act and deed, and that they fully understand the duties and obligations enumerated herein.

13. This Agreement shall be subject to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

14. All terms of this Agreement are deemed material. This document may not be altered, amended or modified or revoked except by an instrument executed in writing by the parties.

Re: Letter of Resignation

Dear Board of Education Members:

SYNOPSIS

State-operated school district certified charges of chronic and excessive absenteeism and incapacity against respondent, tenured basic skills teacher of mathematics.

Initial decision determined even though respondent was a good teacher, his absentee record prevented him from properly serving his students. ALJ concluded excessive or chronic absenteeism of a tenured teacher, even if related to legitimate medical or health problems, has been held to constitute "incapacity," "unbecoming conduct," and/or "just cause" within meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 so as to warrant dismissal from employment. Thus, ALJ ordered respondent removed from his position.

Commissioner concurred with findings and determination by ALJ that respondent was aware of Board's concern about his abysmal attendance record and the detrimental effect of his absences on continuity of instruction for his students. Thus, charge of conduct unbecoming due to excessive absences was proven true and dismissal was warranted. Matter was referred to State Board of Examiners for further action.

Record Closed: January 10, 1991 Decided: February 21, 1992

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On or about May 4, 1990, the state-operated school district of Jersey City certified charges of chronic and excessive absenteeism and incapacity against respondent, Vincent Pellecchio Respondent filed an answer on June 11, 1990, denying certain of the allegations, asserting that the action by petitioner was arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable, and requesting that the charges be dismissed.

On June 14, 1990, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

After notice to all parties, a telephone prehearing conference was held on October 9, 1990. At that time, the issue was clarified and a hearing was scheduled for April 4, 5, 8, and 9, 1991, at the OAL, 185 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey 07102. The April 4 and 5 hearing dates were adjourned at the request of attorney for petitioner because witnesses were unavailable due to closure of the school on those dates. In addition, the April 8 and 9 hearing dates were adjourned and were rescheduled for June 20 and 25, 1991.

At the request of respondent, whose father was ill, the matter was rescheduled to September 16 and 23, 1991. The hearing was held at that time. Witnesses who testified and exhibits received into evidence are listed in the attached appendix. The record closed on January 10, 1991, the date set for the submission of all briefs.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

It became clear at the hearing that a number of facts were essentially undisputed. The parties entered into a stipulation of facts (JJ-1) as to respondent's absentee record and, in addition, it is clear that the background facts are essentially not at issue. The undisputed facts are incorporated here and constitute this tribunal's findings of fact. They may be summarized as follows:

1. Pellecchio, a basic-skills teacher, teaches mathematics. He has been employed by petitioner for 14 years.

2. A basic-skills student is one that falls below the minimum level of proficiency in reading, math, or writing skills. A basic-skills student needs remediation in any or all of these areas.

3. The 1991-92 school year represents Pellecchio's tenth year at No. 38 school, where Jack Koval is principal and Marie Morrissey is assistant principal.

4. Pellecchio's record of absenteeism reveals the following:

Academic Year	Total Days absent
1981-82	25.5
1982-83	39.0
1983-84	11.0
1984-85	22.0, plus 2.5 hours of sick time
1985-86	17.0
1986-87	28.0
1987-88	49.0, plus 2.5 hours of sick time
1988-89	22.0
1989-90	29.0, plus 2.0 hours of sick time

5. Pellecchio's evaluations have been satisfactory. There is no doubt that he is a good teacher and that he is conscientious and works well with the students.

6. Koval authorized the instructional annual performance report dated June 1, 1990. It showed the strengths and weaknesses of Pellecchio, but did not mention his absences.

7. Koval admitted that the instructional annual performance report dated April 9, 1990, the evaluations he did during that year, the instructional annual performance report dated June 16, 1989, the evaluation dated April 14, 1989 (the annual evaluation), the teacher evaluation dated March 16, 1998, the instructional annual performance report for that year, the teacher evaluation report dated March 26, 1987, the instructional annual written performance report dated June 1985, the teacher evaluation dated March 27, 1985, and the teacher evaluation for 1982-83 similarly did not refer to Pellecchio's absences. There was no mention of concern about attendance on any of these reports. No evaluations except for June 1987 and June 16, 1989, make any mention of attendance problems.

8. Pellecchio was never required to be examined by petitioner.

9. It is undisputed that Pellecchio was advised by letter dated June 20, 1988, that it was the intent of the school to recommend to the Board of Education that his employment increment be withheld for the school year 1988-89 because of excessive absenteeism. There is a letter by Louis Lanzillo advising of the Board meeting of June 30, 1988. Subsequently, on June 30, 1988, Pellecchio's increment was withheld by the Board of Education. The parties were unable to locate a Board resolution rescinding the action and restoring the increment. There is no letter in the file of the Board action of June 30, 1988, and the increment was never withheld.

10. Pellecchio was never denied an increment.

11. By contract, teachers are allowed to be absent 14 personal illness days and two personal business days.

TESTIMONY

In addition to the above undisputed facts, testimony was adduced from Marie Morrissey and Vincent R. Pellecchio. In addition, the parties stipulated as to the transcript of the deposition of Jack Koval. The testimony of the witnesses in substantial measure is summarized below.

First to testify was Marie Morrissey, assistant principal of No. 38 school for 14 years. Ms. Morrissey has known respondent for eight or nine years. Familiar with respondent's absentee record, Morrissey testified that it is unsatisfactory. She testified that respondent was absent more than 15 to 20 days and sometimes up to 49 days each year. She stated that as a basic-skills remedial teacher, the children whom Pellecchio instructs need his services more than the average child. His absence impacts negatively on students, interrupting the services that they receive. Although she stated that she discussed his attendance record with him over the years, she could not be specific as to when. She recalled that Pellecchio had indicated that his absences were all legitimate, but there was no improvement after these discussions. She noted that she had evaluated respondent, and she agreed that he is a good teacher.

On cross-examination, Morrissey alleged that she spoke to respondent during the 1989-90 and 1990-91 school years regarding his absences. She recalled that in January or February 1990, when Pellecchio was out on leave, she discussed his absenteeism with him. He indicated that he had suffered an asthma attack. She noted that it was part of her duty to speak to him but that she did not write a memo to him or recommend action against him. She indicated that she was concerned when a teacher was out one day. Mr. Koval addressed a pattern of absences. No particular number of days triggered this; it was based on a teacher's record. He sent letters to teachers advising of the number of days out. Morrissey indicated that of the 900 students in school, 130 are basic-skills students. She did not have the results of the standardized test and thus could not compare the results of respondent's students on the test versus other students, but she stood by her testimony that respondent's students (he had 30 to 40 each year) did less well.

Jack Koval was employed by respondent as a teacher in 1961. He served in that capacity for nine years and then served as assistant principal for six years. For the last 15 years, he has been the principal at No. 38 school. As a principal, it is his obligation to maintain the attendance record of the employees. Any time a teacher has an absence on his attendance record, it is not satisfactory because it has an adverse effect upon pupils' learning. There is a special significance to the attendance issue as it pertains to a basic-skills teacher.

Koval opined that Pellecchio was aware of his concern regarding his absenteeism and promised to improve it. He stated that in 1983-84, he gave Pellecchio a memo indicating the number of days that he had been absent during that school year. He discussed his attendance record with him at that time and the issue of improving his attendance. Pellecchio responded positively that he would try to improve his attendance. Questioned as to whether he believed that Pellecchio recognized that his attendance was unsatisfactory, Koval indicated that he "would say yes."

On March 14, 1985, Koval sent a note to Pellecchio indicating the significance of improving teacher attendance and discussed it with him. Pellecchio gave his ill health as the reason for his attendance record. Koval stated that Pellecchio's absences were supported with doctor's documentation and he had no reason to doubt at that time that Pellecchio's reasons were not legitimate. Koval indicated that, based upon what Pellecchio had told him, the doctor's annotations, notes from the doctor, and indications on his leaves of absence, he opined that from 1984 through 1990, Pellecchio's illnesses were caused by his asthma.

Koval further testified that he wrote to Pellecchio, by memo dated December 13, 1985, because Pellecchio had not notified the school at an appropriate time that he would be absent for classes on that day. He did not believe that this was common and stated that Pellecchio generally called in when he was going to be absent. Koval identified other documents in which he dealt with the issue of Pellecchio improving his attendance and recalled other discussions with Pellecchio, who responded positively that he would attempt to improve. He further identified a document dated April 26, 1988, in which he recommended that Pellecchio's increment be withheld. He sent it to Pellecchio, Pellecchio received it, and he advised Pellecchio that he was going to make that recommendation because of the excessive absenteeism.

Pellecchio responded that he understood. Koval did not believe, however, that Pellecchio's increment was ever withheld but had no idea why. It was referred to the personnel director, Mr. Lanzillo. He identified a document dated February 20, 1990, which he had sent to Pellecchio regarding improving his attendance. Pellecchio admitted that his attendance was unsatisfactory and that it was due to his illness. He indicated that he would try to improve it.

On cross-examination, questioned as to the absenteeism policy of the Board of Education, Koval indicated that the written policy in existence as long as he could remember is that if a teacher is absent "x" number of days during the course of a school term, charges could be brought or a recommendation brought for the withholding of an increment. He did not remember the number of days. He admitted that there is a proviso in the contract that if a teacher is absent beyond the limit of the contract, they get partial pay. He agreed that there is a Board policy that certain absences beyond the 16, upon approval by the Board, are paid for. Koval could not give a definitive answer as to whether any of the days that Mr. Pellecchio was absent were paid for by the Board.

Koval indicated that as far as he knew, the form required by him every time Pellecchio was absent had been supplied to the Board. He did not know of any leave of absence requested by Pellecchio that had ever been denied by the Board of Education. He further indicated that he did not recommend that charges be brought against Mr. Pellecchio. They were brought by the Board of Education and not with his recommendation. Asked who counseled Pellecchio concerning his absences, he indicated that he had, as had the assistant principal. Koval indicated that the annual performance reports and evaluations pertained to the evaluations of a teacher in a classroom.

Next to testify was Vincent R. Pellecchio. He alleged that he had not received notice of the Board meeting (his father signed the return receipt), had not seen the Board resolution of June 30, 1988, and had not had his increment withheld. In further testimony, he indicated that he believed that the students he taught were more proficient than the other students. He based this on their report cards and the fact that most of his students passed their math courses. Koval got upset if a teacher was absent over one day and would so advise the teacher. He recalled that he had had a conversation with Mr. Koval regarding improving attendance but had no conversation regarding his increment being withheld or loss of tenure. He had no recollection of a conversation with Marie Morrissey regarding his absenteeism. While on sick leave, Pellecchio received one-half salary. He opined that he qualified for partial pay and it was not questioned.

On cross-examination, he admitted that Mr. Koval told him he was upset about his attendance. He received notification of his absences and the need for improvement in 1983 and 1984 (J-19, J-20) and made an effort to do so. He admitted that there was no improvement. He received notice on March 14, 1985 (J-21), stating that his attendance needed improvement. He tried to improve it and failed.

Respondent explained that he suffers from chronic lung disease, which began when he was 13 years old, and his doctor thinks that he should have a lung machine in his home. He stated that he was out for other reasons as well as for his lifelong illness. He admitted that on March 16, 1988, he received another notice to improve his attendance (J-25) and made an effort to improve. He opined that it might have improved that year.

Respondent admitted that he had received notice from Jack Koval dated April 26, 1988, informing him that Koval was recommending that his increment be withheld due to his excessive absenteeism (J-26). He stated that although he had received notice of the increment being withheld, the nurse had told him not to worry about it. He did not know what the Board of Education did and admitted that he had not filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education regarding his increment being withheld. He admitted, however, that those students in a basic-skills class have a special need for a teacher and that the students benefit more when the basic-skills teacher is in the classroom. When the teacher is not there, they remain with their regular teacher.

He admitted that he wrote a letter to Dr. Scambio, dated April 5, 1990, indicating that he intended to improve his attendance. He admitted, however, that during the 1990-91 school year, he requested a leave to take care of his father, who died in 1991, and was absent more than 40 days.

On redirect examination, he recalled that he had requested a leave of absence on April 15, 1991, which was not granted. He has a civil rights action pending against the Board alleging that he was entitled to a 90-day leave to take care of a family member. He stayed out after the Board denied his leave. Although he contended that he had been out of work for eight or nine days prior to his request for a leave, he admitted that he was actually absent 30 days until April 15, 1991. On redirect, he indicated that all the days he was absent in 1990-91 were not related to his present medical condition.

DISCUSSION

Essentially, petitioner filed tenure charges of conduct unbecoming a teacher and incapacity as a teacher against the respondent, Vincent Pellecchio, employed by the district as a basic-skills teacher. The aforementioned charges are predicated upon the respondent's alleged excessive or chronic absenteeism, supported by his absentee record.

Based upon the current record, it appears that the respondent is a long-time sufferer of chronic severe asthma and it appears that most of the respondent's absences were attributable to that condition. There is still a question as to whether the respondent's condition is now under control.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, which governs dismissals of tenured teachers, such as the respondent herein, provides in relevant part that:

> No person shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation,
>
> (a) if he is . . . under tenure of office, position or employment during good behavior and efficiency in the public school system of the state. . . .
> except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause . . . [emphasis added].

A survey of the relevant case law indicates that chronic or excessive absenteeism has been found to constitute both "incapacity" and "unbecoming conduct," within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, such as to warrant dismissal from employment. It has also been held that chronic and excessive absenteeism amounts to "just cause" under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 such as to warrant dismissal from employment. Trenton Bd. of Ed. v. Williamson, OAL DKT. EDU 7335-85 (Apr. 14, 1986), aff'd by Comm'r (May 28, 1986).

In In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Reilly, 1977 S.L.D. 403, the Commissioner of Education affirmed the dismissal of a teacher, on grounds of incapacity and conduct unbecoming a teacher, whose absences ranged from five to 149 days a year over a 10-year period, notwithstanding the claim that most of the absences were in connection with a physical ailment plaguing the teacher. See also, Malley v. Bd. of Ed. of Pequannock Township, OAL DKT. EDU 1858-86 (Nov. 19, 1986), aff'd Comm'r (Dec. 29, 1986), aff'd State Bd. of Ed. (April 1, 1987); In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of DeKrafft, 1981 S.L.D. 1308, aff'd State Bd. of Ed. 1982 S.L.D. 1470, aff'd (N.J. App. Div., May 4, 1983, A-4641-81T2) (unreported).

With respect to determining what constitutes chronic or excessive absenteeism, it must be pointed out that the ALJ in In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Sheets, 1980 S.L.D. 1536, rev'g 1979 S.L.D. 790, held that "the point at which absenteeism is judged to be chronic falls within the prerogative and discretionary authority of the Board [of Education] subject to a determination by the Commissioner of Education in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:65-9 [which provides the Commissioner with jurisdiction to hear and determine all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws]."

The rationale underlying the principle that chronic or excessive absenteeism is conduct which warrants dismissal has been articulated in various ways. The ALJ in Trenton Bd. of Ed. v. Williamson, supra, in rather conclusive fashion, held that "there is no question that repeated and excessive absenteeism of regular teachers poses a threat to the integrity of the educational process." Williamson at 4, citing Angelucci v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 1980 S.L.D. 1066.

In Reilly, supra, the rationale was more fully set forth by the Commissioner. "Frequent absences of teachers from regular classroom activity disrupt the continuity of the instructional process. The benefit of regular classroom instruction is lost and cannot be entirely regained, even by extra effort, when the regular teacher returns to the classroom. Consequently, many pupils who don't have the benefit of their regular classroom teacher frequently experience great difficulty in achieving the maximum benefit of schooling. The regular contact of pupils with their assigned teachers is vital to this process." Reilly, 1977 S.L.D at 414.

Moreover, chronic or excessive absenteeism may be found to warrant removal even where the absences in question were for legitimate medical or health reasons. Malley, supra, at 14, referring to Trautwein v. Bd. of Ed. of Bound Brook (N.J. App. Div., April 8, 1980, A2773-78) (unreported), certif. denied 84 N.J. 469. See, also, Reilly, supra, wherein the dismissal was affirmed notwithstanding a claim that the teacher had been suffering from chronic respiratory ailments during most leaves of absence, and Sheets, supra, in which the dismissal was affirmed despite the teacher's claim of having suffered from bronchitis, anxiety and depression, and/or hypertension during the periods of absence in question.

In Angelucci, a case dealing with the withholding of salary increments on account of chronic or excessive absenteeism, the Commissioner offered an explanation for this seeming indifference to the problems of teachers: "The Commissioner can only sympathize with teachers who suffer from debilitating illness but cannot agree that the continued absence of any teacher has no effect on the pupils. If such be true, the Commissioner is constrained to wonder the need for the presence of the teacher at all, which wonderment reduces to a legal absurdity." Angelucci, supra, 1980 S.L.D. at 1078. In light of the foregoing, it appears that the respondent in the case at bar may not rely on the fact that most of his absences were due to a physiological ailment as an argument in mitigation of the penalty of dismissal.

In sum, excessive or chronic absenteeism of a tenured teacher, even if related to legitimate medical or health problems, has been held to constitute "incapacity," "unbecoming conduct," and/or "just cause" within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, so as to warrant dismissal from employment.

CONCLUSION

In the instant case, I have considered the evidence and am of the view that dismissal is warranted. While it is true that Mr. Pellecchio, a basic-skills teacher, is not only a satisfactory teacher but a good, conscientious teacher who works well with the students, it is necessary for him to be present in order to properly serve the students. His record of absences does not allow him to do so.

While I am of the view that his absences were, in fact, caused by his asthma-related problems and were, in fact, attributable to that condition, the important factor here is the effect that his illness and resulting absenteeism has on the students. In that regard, I have considered several factors. Pellecchio is a basic-skills teacher of mathematics. I am convinced from the testimony adduced that basic-skills students actually need respondent's services more than the average child. This is not to say that the average child should be deprived of a teacher's presence, but simply to point out that if Mr. Pellecchio is not present, his students remain in their regular classes and do not reap the benefit of his expertise, so necessary to their education.

There is no doubt that there is a special significance to the attendance issue as it pertains to a basic-skills teacher. In any event, Mr. Pellecchio had been advised during a number of years, as is indicated in the record, that his absenteeism did not properly serve the district. Although he was aware of the concern of the district and indicated his willingness to improve his attendance, his record does not reflect the necessary improvement for the continued success of his students. While it may be that his increment was not withheld, he was advised on a continuing basis that his attendance was of concern and needed improvement.

I am not indifferent to Mr. Pellecchio's problems, but am compelled to stress that a teacher's purpose is to benefit the pupils. It is, thus, the effect on those pupils that must be considered. I therefore believe that Mr. Pellecchio, unable to improve his attendance, can no longer serve the needs of the district in the necessary manner. That being so, I CONCLUDE that his chronic and excessive absenteeism warrants his dismissal from petitioner district.

ORDER

Based upon the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, I ORDER that respondent be removed from his position as a basic-skills teacher, a tenured position, with petitioner.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF VINCENT PELLECCHIO,	:
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY,	:	DECISION
HUDSON COUNTY.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Respondent filed timely exceptions and the Board submitted timely reply exceptions.

Respondent's exceptions are a nearly verbatim recitation of those arguments advanced in his post-hearing submission. He argues essentially that the Board's attendance policy provides no standard by which teaching staff members can be guided as to when and under what circumstances he or she is incurring the concern of the Board regarding absences. He claims further that he had no warning that his absences were of sufficient concern to the Board that his tenure was in jeopardy, and notes that neither of his supervisors recommended that tenure charges be filed. Citing withholding case law such as Vonita Smith v. Board of Education of the City of Trenton, Mercer County, decided by the Commissioner April 18, 1989, respondent further argues that the Board at no time conveyed its concern about his absences prior to its taking action to terminate him. Finally, respondent contends no mention was made to him about the Board's or the principal's concern for the alleged lack of continuity of instruction.

The Board's reply exceptions counter that respondent's absence record was excessive for years, that he was warned both orally and in writing of the need to improve, and that he never did improve his record of absences. The Board avers that respondent's claims that the Board did not advise him of its concerns and that his absences were not excessive are belied by the record. The Board reiterates its stance that the needs of the pupils are paramount, and it advances the position that an absent teacher cannot effectively teach. Citing its earlier briefs, the Board submits that the tenure charges should be upheld.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this matter, which includes a review of the deposition of testimony taken of the principal, the Commissioner concurs with the findings of fact and conclusions of law advanced by the ALJ below in this tenure matter charging conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member due to excessive absenteeism. The Commissioner notes in particular his accord with the ALJ's conclusion that respondent was aware of the Board's concern about the effect his absences were having on the continuity of instruction for his pupils. (See Exhibits J-19 through J-27 and Tr. 14-21.) The facts extant in this tenure case lie in marked contrast to those brought to the record in the case captioned In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Patricia Marsden, School District of Toms River Regional, Ocean County, 1985 S.L.D. 1572, aff'd State Board November 4, 1987 wherein the Commissioner found excessive absenteeism, but that insufficient measures had been taken by the administration "to counter respondent's deplorable attendance pattern." (Marsden, at 1596) Thus, the Commissioner did not remove Ms. Marsden from her tenured employment but rather reduced her salary. In the case at bar, respondent was apprised in letters from the principal in June of 1984, March of 1985, and December of 1985 that his attendance was negatively affecting the continuity of instruction to his pupils. He also discussed his attendance record and the withholding of his increment in meetings with the principal. (See Tr. 14-15, 19-23, 42 and 44.) Moreover, although never actually carried out, respondent herein was noticed that his increment would be withheld in April 1988 for excessive absenteeism. Thereafter, in February 1990 respondent was again made aware by the principal, in writing, that his attendance was unsatisfactory and that his absences were impairing the continuity of instruction for his pupils. Respondent does not deny such notices having been sent him and he even admits to having written the State-operated Superintendent of his own attempts to improve his attendance, but to no avail. (See Initial Decision, at p. 8.) Thus, the Commissioner rejects respondent's contentions that he was unaware of the Board's concern with his excessive absences and its concern for the pupils' educational continuity.

Moreover, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that dismissal is warranted in this matter, because the Board has demonstrated respondent has been unable to improve his attendance despite repeated notice to do so, and it has also demonstrated that respondent's chronic absenteeism affects the pupils' educational continuity. Accordingly, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision as amplified herein, the Commissioner directs that respondent be dismissed from his tenured employment with the Board and that the matter be referred to the State Board of Examiners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)1 for further action as it deems appropriate.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF VINCENT PELLECCHIO,	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	DECISION
OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY,	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, April 2, 1992

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Murray, Murray & Corrigan
(David F. Corrigan, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Feintuch & Porwich
(Philip Feintuch, Esq., of Counsel)

For the reasons expressed by the Administrative Law Judge and the Commissioner, the State Board of Education finds that, while respondent's absenteeism as litigated in these proceedings does not establish incapacity, his chronic and excessive absenteeism was such as to warrant his dismissal. We therefore affirm the decision of the Commissioner.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, Teacher-Coordinator of Cooperative Business Education terminated by Board, sought summary judgment on her claim that Board violated her rights by assigning Third-Party Respondent Riemann, who had neither tenure nor seniority as coordinator, to serve in coordinator position. Petitioner further contended that Respondent Riemann, who had been riffed from her tenured supervisory position, should have been placed in other available supervisory positions rather than in the coordinator position from which she "bumped" petitioner.

Commissioner concurred with petitioner that the statutory requirements governing effectuation of RIF's were misapplied and that petitioner's rights were violated by placement of Riemann in the position of Teacher-Coordinator of Cooperative Business Education. (Capodilupo, Bednar, and Schienholz) Commissioner determined Respondent Riemann was entitled by tenure to, and should have been placed in, available supervisory position and directed that petitioner be restored to her former coordinator position. Petitioner's request for interest was denied as Board did not act in bad faith. Petitioner was ordered restored to coordinator position with mitigated compensation.

For Petitioner, Richard A. Friedman, Esq. (Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella and Nowak)

For Respondent Board of Education, R. Joseph Ferenczi, Esq.

For Third Party Respondent, Wayne J. Oppito, Esq. (New Jersey Principals and Supervisors Association)

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal with request for summary judgment filed on June 24, 1991 and subsequently amended on July 22, 1991. In her original filing, petitioner alleged that respondent Board of Education had violated her tenure and seniority rights by terminating her employment as teacher-coordinator of cooperative business education (hereinafter "coordinator") while assigning Respondent Riemann, who had neither tenure nor seniority as coordinator, to serve in the coordinator position. Petitioner's amended filing further noted that other supervisory positions, to which Riemann was entitled by virtue of her tenure as supervisor, were available (i.e., held by nontenured persons) at the time when Reimann's supervisory position was eliminated, so that Riemann should have as a matter of law been assigned to one of these positions rather than to the coordinator position from which she "bumped" petitioner. Petitioner sought summary judgment based on her belief that no facts were in dispute and her claim could be decided as a matter of law.

By way of answer, both the Board and Riemann claimed that Riemann had acquired tenure and seniority as a coordinator. The Board further claimed that Riemann had no entitlement to available supervisory positions, and that no violation of law or petitioner's rights occurred through Riemann's assignment to a coordinator position. Respondents further concurred that the matter was amenable to summary judgment and agreed to proceed accordingly.

On January 3, 1992, a jointly executed stipulation of facts was submitted to the Commissioner. Briefs and replies ensued, the last of which was filed on February 5, 1992, at which time the record of this matter was deemed closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The following have been stipulated to by the parties and are hereby adopted as the Commissioner's Findings of Fact in this matter.

1. Petitioner Carol Brown is a teaching staff member employed by Respondent. She holds an instructional certificate with endorsements as a teacher of business and data processing, an administrative certificate with endorsement as a supervisor, and an educational services certificate with an endorsement as teacher coordinator of cooperative business education.

2. Petitioner Carol Brown's employment history is as follows: 1968-69 through 1979-80 school years, teacher, assigned under instructional certificate-business endorsement; 1980-81 school year, leave of absence; 1981-82 through 1983-84 school years, teacher under instructional certificate business endorsement on a .6 basis, 1984-85 school year, same on full-time basis; 1986-87 through 1990-91 school years, teacher coordinator of cooperative business education assigned under said endorsement (on educational services certificate) at Edison High School.

3. Third Party Respondent Angela Riemann is a teaching staff member employed by Respondent.

4. Third Party Respondent Riemann holds the following certificates and endorsements: instructional certificate with endorsements as teacher of business education, social business studies, secretarial studies and data processing. Angela Riemann also holds an administrative certificate with a supervisory endorsement, and an educational services certificate with an endorsement as a teacher-coordinator of cooperative business education.

5. Third Party Respondent Riemann's employment history in the district is as follows: September 1, 1959 through October 31, 1964 and April 24, 1973 through June 30, 1973, teacher, serving under business endorsement; 1973-74 through 1978-79 school years, teacher of business, except that assignments for 1976-77 and 1977-78 were on .8 basis; 1979-80 school sabbatical; 1980-81 and 1981-82 school years, teacher of business; 1982-83 and 1983-84 school years, teacher coordinator of cooperative business education assigned under said endorsement to Edison High School; 1984-85 through 1990-91 school years, Department Head at Edison High School, serving under authority of supervisor endorsement; 1991-92 school year, reassigned by respondent to position of teacher-coordinator of cooperative business education under said endorsement at Edison high school.

6. Ms. Brown and Ms. Riemann have both been properly certified for each assignment that each of them has held.

7. Effective July 1, 1991, respondent abolished two positions of Department Chairperson - Business Education at Edison High School and John P. Stevens High School and reassigned the duties to the Supervisor of Related Arts. The abolished positions of Department Chairperson were supervisory positions requiring an administrative certificate with supervisory endorsement.

8. As a consequence of said reduction in force, respondent determined that Angela Riemann would be assigned to the position/category of teacher-coordinator (see paragraph 6), based upon her prior service therein, and consequently, assigned her to the teacher-coordinator position which had been held by Carol Brown for the 1990-91 school year.

9. Because of said assignment, respondent riffed Carol Brown and terminated her employment, but subsquently recalled her and assigned her to a teaching position, at a lesser salary than the salary she would have received if assigned as a teacher-coordinator.

10. Effective July 1, 1991, Angela Riemann was assigned to the position of teacher-coordinator, the position she held immediately prior to the abolished position of Department Chairperson - Business Education. At the time of this reassignment, there were four supervisory positions in the school district in which the incumbent had not attained tenure as a supervisor; Supervisor - English, Supervisor - Foreign Language, Supervisor - ESL/Bilingual and Department Chairpersons - Health/Physical Education, Mathematics, and Science.

11. Carol Brown filed this Petition of Appeal on June 24, 1991. By letter dated July 19, 1991, she requested that the Petition be deemed amended on the basis that in addition to the violation of her tenure and seniority rights as she alleged occurred from Ms. Riemann's assignment, that the statutory RIF and recall scheme required that Ms. Riemann be assigned on the basis of her tenure status to a supervisory position held by a non-tenured supervisor.

12. Said Petition also sought all salary and emoluments denied or reduced as a consequence of Ms. Brown's assignment as a teacher, rather than as a teacher coordinator.

13. For the 1990-91 school year, Carol Brown's salary was $64,156.00 in the teacher-coordinator position. For the 1991-92 school year, she is being compensated at the salary of $58,351.00 as a teacher. If she was assigned as a coordinator for the 1991-92 school year, she would be compensated at the salary of $64,156.00.

14. For the 1990-91 school year, Angela Riemann's salary was $60,889.00, as Department Head. For the 1991-92 school year, she is receiving the salary of $63,538.00 as a teacher-coordinator. The supervisory salary will be increased when there is a settlement of the collective bargaining agreement for Department Heads, retroactive to 1989.

PETITIONER'S POSITION

Petitioner asserts that at the time of her termination, she had acquired tenure and five years' seniority in her position as coordinator, having served therein from 1986-87 through 1990-91. Riemann, on the other hand, after eleven years of service a teacher, served as coordinator for two years (1982-83 and 1983-84) and thereafter (1984-85 through 1990-91) served in a position (department head) requiring a supervisory certificate.

Petitioner initially claims that because Riemann was tenured as a supervisor, the Board was required by the statutory scheme governing reductions in force to assign Riemann to another supervisory position when her own position was abolished. It is now well-established, petitioner argues, that in a RIF situation, before seniority even becomes relevant, a district must first fill positions by application of tenure status; indeed, a riffed teacher need not even apply for the position to which he or she is entitled. A tenured staff member whose position is abolished or reduced must be appointed to any other like tenure position over nontenured staff. Only after that procedure is followed does seniority come into play. Herbert v. Bd. of Ed. of Middletown, Superior Court App. Div. unreported, Docket No. A-318-90T1, decided May 22, 1991; Capodilupo v. West Orange Board of Education, 218 N.J.

Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987); Bednar v. Westwood Regional Bd. of Ed., 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1987); Mirandi v. Bd. of Ed. of West Orange, State Board of Education, decided April 5, 1989; Schienholz et al. v. Bd. of Ed. of Ewing Township, unreported Docket No. A-2905-89T3 Appellate Division November 19, 1990 Thus, in the present matter, the district should have assigned Riemann to a supervisory position held by a nontenured person and should have kept petitioner in, and must now restore her to, her coordinator position.

Alternatively, petitioner argues, Riemann never acquired tenure as a coordinator and therefore her displacement of petitioner violated petitioner's tenure and seniority rights. In order for Riemann to have obtained tenure as a coordinator, the plain terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 require that she have served for two academic years together with employment at the beginning the next succeeding academic year, a requirement which Riemann did not satisfy. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6 also provides that a teaching staff member transferred to a new tenure-eligible position who does not serve in that position long enough to acquire tenure is to be returned to his or her former position with all service in the new position counting toward tenure and seniority in the former position. It neither envisions nor permits someone in Riemann's situation to tack service in a third position, in which she acquired tenure, onto service in the second position so as to reduce the tenure acquisition time for that position.

RESPONDENTS' POSITION

The Board and Third-Party Respondent Riemann argue that Riemann was in fact tenured as a coordinator and had greater seniority in that position than petitioner. She acquired such tenure, they aver, on the first day of her new position as department head, because time in that position is to be included in determining tenure and seniority rights in her former position of coordinator by operation of the clear language of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6. Respondents further rely on Van Wagner v. Board of Education of the Borough of Roselle, Union County, 1973 S.L.D. 488; Alan R. Sitek v. Board of Education of the Southern Regional High School District, Ocean County, decided November 15, 1988, aff'd State Board March 1, 1989; and Virginia Euell v. Board of Education of the Princeton Regional School District, Mercer County, 1978 S.L.D. 666, aff'd State Board 1979 S.L.D. 825, aff'd Appellate Division 1980 S.L.D. 1489, to demonstrate that the law is settled with respect to interpretation of the controlling statute.

The Board further argues that notwithstanding Riemann's undisputed tenure in her particular department head position, it was not required to place her in a supervisor or department head position held by a nontenured person for the 1991-92 school year. This is so, the Board contends, because Riemann does not qualify for the "available" positions (listed in Stipulated Fact No. 10). In the district's organizational scheme "supervisors" are placed above department heads, so that petitioner's argument would result in Riemann's being able to "bump up" to a position of higher rank than that in which she acquired tenure. The only available department head positions, on the other hand, entail teaching duties for which Riemann does not hold proper endorsements. Therefore, Riemann was not entitled to displace any of the nontenured incumbents in these positions and was properly reassigned to her former position of coordinator.

Riemann disagrees with the Board's assessment of her right to a supervisory position, instead endorsing petitioner's arguments on this issue. She requests, in the alternative to a finding that she has tenure and greater seniority than petitioner in the position of coordinator, that the Commissioner find her entitled to one of the supervisory positions now held by nontenured staff.

COMMISSIONER'S DETERMINATION

The Commissioner concurs with petitioner that the statutory requirements governing effectuation of RIFs were misapplied in this instance and that petitioner's rights were violated as a result.

It is clear from the undisputed employment history of Third-Party Respondent Riemann (Stipulated Fact No. 5) that she has obtained tenure in the position of supervisor as the department head position required her to function under a supervisory certificate. Therefore, for purposes of tenure entitlement, she is tenured in the position of supervisor notwithstanding that the supervisory positions to which her tenure entitles her have Board- established organizational placements or subject endorsement requirements that are not encompassed within her experience and instructional certification. As both petitioner and Riemann observe, it is now well-established that organizational and subject endorsement requirements cannot be used to defeat tenure rights, so that proper operation of the statutory scheme would necessarily have resulted in appointment of Riemann to one of the supervisory positions held by nontenured staff. South River Education Association v. Board of Education of South River, State Board decision of November 4, 1987, aff'd Superior Court Dkt. No. A-1695-87T8, April 16, 1990; Herbert, supra; Schienholz, supra Had Riemann been so appointed, petitioner would not have been bumped from her position as coordinator, as there would have been no need for Riemann to revert to a former position to preserve her rights. Therefore, as she claims, petitioner's tenure rights were violated by the Board's effectuation of its July 1991 RIF, and the appropriate remedy lies in restoring her to her former position.

Having so found, the Commissioner declines to reach the issue of Riemann's tenure and seniority status with respect to the coordinator position, as there is no need for application of those rights in view of the availability of supervisory positions to which Riemann is entitled by tenure. He further notes petitioner's request for pre- and post-judgment interest and finds with respect to pre-judgement interest that there is neither allegation nor evidence herein that the Board's actions were taken in bad faith or in deliberate violation of law, while any request for post-judgment interest is premature at this juncture. Petitioner therefore fails to meet the criteria for awarding of interest set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(c). Finally, he notes that the appeal herein seeks relief for petitioner and that directives as to the specific employment of Third-Party Respondent Riemann are inappropriate in this context, apart from a reiteration that Riemann's entitlement to a supervisory position held by a nontenured employee is inherent in the within decision, in the absence of Riemann's having filed a petition or counterclaim on her own behalf.

CONCLUSION

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that Carol Brown was, through misapplication of the statutory scheme governing RIFs, improperly removed from her position of Teacher-Coordinator of Cooperative Business Education and replaced by Third-Party Respondent Angela Riemann. He consequently directs the Board of Education of the Township of Edison to restore Brown to her position as if she had not been removed therefrom, with all back pay, benefits and emoluments of employment, less mitigation, lost as a result of the Board's actions.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE REVOCATION	:
OF THE TEACHING CERTIFICATE OF	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
PHILIP SHERIDAN BY THE STATE	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EXAMINERS.	:

Decided by the State Board of Examiners, July 16, 1992

For the Petitioner-Respondent, David Powers, Deputy Attorney General (Deborah T. Poritz, Attorney General of New Jersey)

For the Respondent-Appellant, Wayne J. Oppito, Esq.

On February 6, 1992, the Commissioner of Education, finding that tenure charges of unbecoming conduct certified against Philip Sheridan (hereinafter "respondent"), a tenured teaching staff member, had been demonstrated by a preponderance of the credible evidence, dismissed the respondent from his tenured employment, a decision subsequently affirmed by the State Board of Education. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Philip Sheridan, decided by the Commissioner, February 6, 1992, aff'd by the State Board, June 3, 1992. Those charges alleged that respondent had used profanity and made sexist and racist remarks in the presence of students and had slept in class. The Commissioner directed that the matter be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners (hereinafter "Board") pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(1) for appropriate action with respect to respondent's teaching certificates.

On April 2, 1992, the Board issued an order to show cause based on the Commissioner's decision. Respondent filed an answer and brief in response to that order. Thereafter, by order dated July 16, 1992, the Board directed that respondent's certificates be suspended for the period from July 1, 1992 through July 16, 1997. The Board stated:

> At its meeting of July 16, 1992, the State Board of Examiners reviewed the brief from the respondent including letters from medical doctors and other appended documentation and found no basis or evidence to refute the findings of fact and recommendations adopted in the Commissisoner's [sic] Decision of February 6, 1992.
>
> Based on the foregoing, the State Board of Examiners FINDS and CONCLUDES that the appropriate action in this matter is suspension of the respondent's certificates...for a period of five years with reinstatement based on his physical and psychological fitness to teach.

State Board of Examiner's Decision, slip op. at 2.

Respondent filed the instant appeal to the State Board of Education.

After a thorough review of the record, we find it necessary to remand this matter to the State Board of Examiners for further proceedings.

The education laws confer upon the State Board of Examiners the authority to revoke certificates "under rules and regulations prescribed by the State Board." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38. All actions of the Board of Examiners must be taken in accord with such rules. N.J.A.C. 6:11-2.2.

The procedures established by the State Board for revocation or suspension of certificates are set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6. Section (a)(1) thereof, requiring the Commissioner to forward cases to the Board of Examiners which result in dismissal of a teaching staff member as the result of tenure charges, provides for the issuance of an order to show cause by the Board upon determination that the offense as proven is of such a nature as to warrant consideration of revocation or suspension of certificates. The certificate holder may then file an answer thereto within 20 days. That regulation further provides that:

> After an answer has been filed on behalf of the certificate holder, the board shall refer the case to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act (N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.). Where no answer is received to the allegations set forth in the Order to Show Cause, the State Board of Examiners shall proceed to a decision as to the revocation or suspension on the basis of the evidence before it. (Emphasis added.)

In this case, following his receipt of the order to show cause, the respondent filed a timely answer contesting revocation or suspension of his certificates. We reiterate that, in acting to revoke or suspend certificates, the Board of Examiners is obligated to act in accord with regulations prescribed by the State Board. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38; N.J.A.C. 6:11-2.2.

Those regulations require the Board to refer a case in which revocation or suspension is contested to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") "for a hearing in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act."[1] N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(1). That

[1] We note that a letter dated April 10, 1992 from the Acting Secretary of the Board of Examiners expressly acknowledged such obligation, advising respondent that "[a]fter your Answer has been received, this matter will be forwarded to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act."

We note further that in his answer to the order to show cause, counsel for respondent requested that the Board "not revoke or suspend Sheridan's certificates or alternatively, refer this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for a determination that extenuating circumstances renders revocation or suspension of the certificates to be too harsh a penalty." Answer to Order to Show Cause, at 2.

act provides that "opportunity shall be afforded all parties [in contested cases] to respond, appear and present evidence and argument on all issues involved." N.J.S.A. 52:14B-9(c). "Any party in a contested case may present his case or defense by oral and documentary evidence, submit rebuttal evidence and conduct such cross-examination as may be required, in the discretion of the administrative law judge, for a full and true disclosure of the facts." N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(a).

The Administrative Procedure Act further provides that "[n]o agency shall revoke or refuse to renew any license unless it has first afforded the licensee an opportunity for hearing in conformity with the provisions of this act applicable to contested cases....Any agency that has authority to suspend a license without first holding a hearing shall promptly upon exercising such authority afford the licensee an opportunity for hearing in conformity with the provisions of this act." N.J.S.A. 52:14B-11.

In this instance, the Board did not refer this contested case to OAL for such proceedings, and the only opportunity it provided respondent prior to suspending his certificates was to file a brief and appendix.[2] Given the State Board of Examiner's

2 We note that the scheduling of a "hearing" before the Board "based entirely on written submission of evidence," see letter to respondent dated May 19, 1992 from the Acting Secretary of the Board of Examiners, did not satisfy the express requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(1) for a hearing in OAL in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act. See N.J.S.A. 52:14B-9 and 14B-10. There is no indication in the record that the "hearing" afforded respondent consisted of anything more than the Board's review of respondent's brief and appended documentation at its July 16, 1992 meeting. See id; State Board of Examiner's Decision, slip op. at 2.

failure to comply with its mandated procedure, we are compelled to reverse its decision in this matter and remand to the Board with direction that it transmit this case to OAL.

We emphasize that revocation or suspension of certificates serves a different purpose and involves a different consideration than removal of a staff member from a tenured position. Consequently, the responsibilities of the Commissioner under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 are distinct from those of the Board of Examiners under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38. Cox v. State Board of Examiners, Docket #A-3527-81T3 (App. Div. 1983), slip op. at 2-3.

We have previously held that revocation or suspension of certification is not automatic following the dismissal of a staff member from tenured employment pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. In the Matter of the Revocation of the Teaching Certificates of Michael Gwaley, remanded by the State Board of Education, August 5, 1987, decision on remand by the State Board of Examiners, September 24, 1987, aff'd by the State Board of Education, January 6, 1988; In the Matter of the Revocation of the Teaching Certificates of John Ahern, remanded by the State Board of Education, August 5, 1987, decision on remand by the State Board of Examiners, September 24, 1987, aff'd by the State Board of Education, January 6, 1988.

In so holding, we emphasized that the responsibility imposed upon the State Board of Examiners under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38 is a significant one both because revocation is not automatic and because the Board's decision to revoke or suspend certification precludes employment as a teacher in any school district in this state. Gwaley, supra, at 4; Ahern, supra, at 3. We therefore concluded that in considering whether to revoke or suspend the certification of an individual dismissed from employment as the result of tenure proceedings, the State Board of Examiners is required to make an independent determination as to whether that individual should be precluded from employment in other districts, and that the determination must be based on all of the evidence relating to such question. Gwaley, supra, at 3-4; Ahern, supra, at 4. We further held that the decision of the Board of Examiners should reflect that it gave reasonable consideration to the relevant evidence and provide the basis upon which it reached its conclusion. Gwaley, supra, at 4; Ahern, supra, at 4.

In this case, the Board of Examiners did not indicate the basis for its conclusion that suspension of respondent's certificates for five years was warranted beyond the fact of the conduct established in the tenure proceedings. Moreover, rather than making an independent determination to preclude respondent from employment in other districts based upon its consideration of all the relevant evidence, the Board predicated its decision entirely upon its determination that respondent had failed to refute the findings of fact and recommendations adopted in the Commissioner's decision in the tenure proceedings as set forth in the show cause order.

In sum, given the Board's failure to transmit this contested matter to OAL for hearing, we reverse the Board's determination to suspend respondent's certificates and remand to the Board. In addition, as set forth above, we remind the Board of its obligation to provide the basis for determinations to suspend or revoke certificates reflecting that it considered the relevant evidence.[3] We do not retain jurisdiction.

SYNOPSIS

Candidate for school psychologist endorsement lacking six credit hours in the educational foundations area appealed denial of certificate to Commissioner of Education.

ALJ concluded that petitioner had not made a sufficient showing that her training and experience were an appropriate alternative to the credit requirements in question. ALJ found petitioner to be lacking the six semester hours in educational foundations which were necessary for receipt of a school psychologist certification. Therefore, the decision of the State Board of Examiners denying certification as a school psychologist was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

Commissioner affirmed the determination of the ALJ dismissing the Petition of Appeal and upholding the determination of the State Board of Examiners.

BEFORE MARYLOUISE LUCCHI-McCLOUD, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter concerns petitioner's request to receive a school psychologist endorsement from the State Board of Examiners of the New Jersey Department of Education. Petitioner was denied such an endorsement by the State Board of Examiners and requested an appeal through the Commissioner of Education on June 23, 1990. The matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law on February 28, 1991, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A hearing in the matter was held on December 17, 1991 at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) in Newark. The record remained open until January 14, 1992. Both sides have concurred that although the applicable regulations were recodified in October 1990 the recodification does not affect the issues in this case. Both sides agree that the changes were minor and do not affect the issues and that the former regulations apply to this case since the matter was heard by the Board of Examiners at its September 13, 1990 meeting prior to the recodification. A copy of the regulations then in effect were supplied to this ALJ by counsel by way of posthearing submission.

STIPULATIONS OF FACT

Prior to the beginning of the hearing both sides entered into certain stipulations of fact in this case. They are as follows:

1. Roth was employed by the Pearl River school district from February 16, 1984 through June 21, 1985 as a school psychologist. (J-1).

2. Roth was employed by the Bedminster, New Jersey Board of Education from February 2, 1987 through June 1987 as a school psychologist-consultant. (J-2).

3. Roth was employed by the Bedminster, New Jersey Board of Education from September 1987 through December 1988 as a school psychologist. (J-2).

4. Roth possesses a New York permanent certificate as a school psychologist effective September 1, 1988. (J-3).

5. Roth was awarded a masters degree from Pace University in 1982. (J-4).

6. Roth completed 63 credits as part of her masters program. (J-4).

7. Roth completed 19 courses as part of her graduate program at Pace. (J-5). The respondent does not agree to the distribution of courses on J-5, merely with the list of courses.

8. Roth completed three undergraduate education courses at Pace during the last two years as an undergraduate. (J-6).

9. Roth applied for New Jersey certification as a school psychologist in May 1987.

10. Roth's application for New Jersey certification was denied because she lacked six credits in educational foundations. See, N.J.A.C. 6:11-12.14(b()2)(i).

11. Roth applied to the State Board of Examiners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.23 to substitute her experience and/or education for the six credits she lacked in educational foundations.

12. The State Board of Examiners reviewed the packet she provided as a certification credentials review summary. (J-7 and J-1, J-2, J-3, J-4, and J-6). Roth did not appear at the meeting at which her credentials were reviewed.

13. After reviewing her packet the State Board of Examiners denied her application for certification. (J-8).

14. Roth was given credit for six credits of educational foundation courses. She was given three credits for her graduate course in School Field Experience (EDU 601) and three credits for her graduate course in Administration of Special Education Services. (EDU 628).

As these facts have been stipulated to by the parties, I FIND them to be operational facts of this case.

TESTIMONY

John T. Eckstine, Jr. testified on behalf of the respondent. He is a principal examiner for the State Board of Examiners and reviews credentials for people applying for certification. It is part of his job to look at transcripts and apply them to the regulations and compare to see whether or not one qualifies for any particular certification. He indicated at the time of the hearing that he has done this type of work for eight years. He is acquainted with the school psychologist certification and a person with such a certification can work as a child psychologist in a school and as part of a child study team.

He stated that in order to qualify for a school psychologist certification it requires 60 graduate semester credits divided into a variety of areas. He stated that he reviewed the credentials for Joan Roth, the petitioner, and found her to be six credits short in the "educational foundations" area. As a result her application was denied.

Subsequent to this denial she then applied for consideration on the basis of her work experience. The items included for their consideration in the packet consisted of those items which were marked as joint exhibits 1, 2, 3, 4, 6 and 7 at the time of the hearing.

The cover sheet of the application outlines the requirement when using alternate experience as the criterion for applying for the certification. A column on the sheet is available for anything that the person wishes to present to the Board of Examiners. After a review of the application the State Board found that petitioner did not have the equivalent of six hours of educational foundations. He explained that a three credit course was the equivalent of 40 to 45 clock hours of class time He did credit petitioner for six credits of educational foundation courses which included three credits for a graduate course in School Field Experience numbered EDU 601 and three credits for a graduate course in Administration of Special Education Services numbered EDU 628. He stated that his review did not reveal other courses which were suitable to fill the portion of educational foundation. He stated that she received credit for an internship but that did not satisfy the requirement of educational foundation. He also stated that a course of Psychology 627 which involved learning disabilities diagnosis and remediation theory and practice was not accepted as filling an education foundation either. He indicated that all people in the program must do some form of internship but that those internships are not educational foundations.

The witness also indicated that it was not necessary for the petitioner go back to the institution where she had gained the majority of her credits in order to accomplish those courses which were still required. The witness explained the distribution of credits using J-5 in evidence. Of those courses allotted in that particular exhibit EDU 602 which dealt with the exceptional child, field experience and seminar was allotted to a category of education of the handicapped. He also indicated that a course listed as Psychology 617 Learning and Behavior Theory was allotted to personality behavior although it had been the request of the petitioner that these two course filled three credits each of educational foundations. These were the only courses in which disagreement occurred.

The witness acknowledged that for Psychology 605 and 606 which were the school psychology internships and seminars levels 1 and 2, he had allotted four credits each however those went in a category other than that in dispute.

The witness explained that education of the handicapped which is the category to which he assigned education 602 exceptional child field experience and seminar was a specialized course and geared toward exceptional children and not the foundations of education which were broad and general in nature. He based this determination on the title of the course and the description from the course catalog.

The witness explained foundations of education type course as courses such as Introduction to Education, History of Education and courses of a broad and general nature. The witness was shown P-1 in evidence which was the course descriptions. He acknowledged that he did not have this document with him when he did the evaluation.

Joan Roth-Loft also testified at the time of the hearing. She stated that after notification of the denial based upon the lack of courses in educational foundation she contacted both Rutgers and Kean College two years ago. She stated that she was told if she was not matriculated she could not take those courses for credit. She indicated she had also called three or four months prior to the hearing. She was told both by Kean College and by Rutgers University that no one could take courses for credit if not matriculated in the school itself.

According to the witness these would be the only schools which she get to geographically without having to stay overnight in order to take course.

The witness described the Pace University course description which was marked P-1 in evidence and stated that although it was a current description of the courses and she had gone to school there approximately ten years ago the description was approximately the same as the courses which she took at that time. She did acknowledge that the requirements are now different. At that time she was told that she was required to have Education 628 which according to J-5 in evidence is Administration and Supervision of Special Education.

According to the witness Pace University had accepted several undergraduate foundation courses at a graduate level for her.

She had worked as a school psychologist-consultant two days a week at Bedminster and did the same thing as a psychologist although not certified at that time. She later applied for an emergency certificate. She never saw it but thought she had received it.

The witness acknowledged that educational foundations are general introductory courses. According to her the Exceptional Child Field Experience and Seminar was more specific however was general with respect to dealing with exceptional children.

She stated that she had taken History of Education as an undergraduate and that Pace University gave her credit for taking that course. She further stated that the Learing and Behavior Theory that she took consisted of one-half of the content which would have fulfilled a requirement of educational foundation. She did acknowledge she was given credit for that course in a different category when the review was done.

Ms. Roth stated that in her senior undergraduate year she took two foundations courses that were not taught by the graduate department teachers. One was Principle and Problems of Education and the other was Analysis and Statics of Teaching. She also stated that she took a course in Drug Education and Youth. She used these as electives for credit in the graduate department and in her opinion these fulfilled the foundations requirement.

DISCUSSION

The only question presented in this case is whether the evidence provided by the petitioner shows either that she has met all the listed qualifications and a standard certificate in the appropriate field from another state, currently in full force and effect, the appropriate degree required for certificate by New Jersey regulations and preparation equivalent in total semester hours but not necessarily in specific content to the minimum standards outlined in the New Jersey Education Services Supplement to the standards for state approval for teacher education. This would be pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-11.2(a)(4).

Alternatively, the petitioner attempts to show that there has been an appropriate substitution of alternative educational background and/or experience sufficient to cause the granting of a school psychologist certificate by the state of New Jersey.

It should first be pointed out that the petitioner's allegation that she is unable to take those courses necessary because of geographical limitations does not in any lessen the mandate of the regulation. That having been said it is necessary to turn to the substantive arguments.

In order to receive a school psychologist endorsement it is necessary pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-12.14 that an individual meet the following requirements:

1. A bachelors degree from an accredited college with a minimum of 30 semester hour credits distributed in at least three of the following fields: English, social studies, science, fine art, mathematics, and foreign languages;

2. An advanced program of at least 60 semester hour credits in graduate courses in an accredited and approved college or university program or its equivalent as approved by the Secretary of the State Board of Examiners with the following distributions:

    i. Educational foundations - 12 semester hour credits selected from the following courses or their equivalence:

        1. Modern school practices
        2. Principles of curriculum construction
        3. Philosophy of education
        4. History of education

5. Education sociology
6. School administration and/or supervision
7. School community relationships
8. Principles of education methods of teaching

The other requirements for endorsement go on and are not at issue here. The only question is whether or not the educational foundations requirement has been met. It is clear from the testimony above that the two courses in dispute, those being the Exceptional Child, Field Experience and Seminar EDU 602 and Learning and Behavior Theory Psychology 617 are not general and fundamental in nature. They do not fit any of those courses listed in N.J.A.C. 6:11-12.14(b)2(i)1 through 8. As a result the petitioner is clearly lacking in six credits of the 12 required semester hour credits.

It should be noted that although these classes were not credited to her in the area of educational foundations she received credit for EDU 602 under Education of the Handicapped and credit for the Learning and Behavior Theory class Psych 617 under Personality and Behavior. Petitioner's second claim is that she has alternative education and/or experience that forms an adequate substitute for the six semester hours in educational foundation which were found lacking by her transcript review. It is petitioner's contention that although the requirements were not strictly met the fact that they were "almost met" is important in considering this remaining claim. While petitioner has, as shown by the stipulation of facts obtained work experience the question remains whether or not that is an adequate substitute for these educational foundation courses. Petitioner also points out that she took courses which would have been of a general nature as an undergraduate and later received credit for them and was able to pursue her degree without taking similar graduate level courses. To see whether that will suffice it is important to look back at the requirements. Under N.J.A.C. 6:11-12.14, the requirements were a bachelors degree from an accredited college with a minimum of 30 semester hour credits distributed in at least three of the listed fields and an advanced program of at least 60 semester hour credits in graduate courses (emphasis added) in an accredited and approved college or university program or its equivalent as approved by the Secretary of the State Board of Examiners with the descriptions and distributions as outlined above. Those undergraduate courses do not rise to the level of graduate education even though the petitioner was permitted to continue on without taking similar graduate level courses. There is no doubt that they were undergraduate in level and do not meet the wording of the regulation.

The petitioner has both academic and vocational background however does not qualify under the New Jersey regulations for a certificate as a school psychologist. There is no question that she has field experience which formed a part of the curriculum however she does not provide sufficient evidence that she has alternative training which would suffice.

While under N.J.A.C. 6:11-2(a)(4) the petitioner has the essential elements of three years of out of state experience in the field, a current standard certificate in the field from another state, an appropriate masters degree it is clear that the preparation equivalent to the total semester hours required although not necessarily specific content must meet the minimum standards set forth in the regulations the petitioner has not made a sufficient showing that the actions of the Board of Examiners in reviewing her request for certification erred in their findings nor has she made a sufficient showing at the time of the hearing that her field experience should cause those particular provisions to be waived. As a result I FIND the petitioner to be lacking in six semester hours of educational foundations necessary for the receipt of a school psychologist certification. I further FIND that petitioner has no demonstrated adequate alternative experience necessary.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the decision of the State Board of Examiners, New Jersey Department of Education, denying a certification as a school psychologist to the petitioner, be and hereby is affirmed.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSISON OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

Petitioner's exceptions were filed beyond the thirteen-day period permitted by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, having been received on March 17, 1992 in response to an initial decision mailed on March 3, 1992. Consequently, they are not considered herein.

Upon review, the Commissioner affirms the determination of the ALJ for the reasons expressed by her in the initial decision. Petitioner has not borne her burden of demonstrating that any element(s) of her training and experience are equivalent to the two additional graduate-level courses in educational foundations she needs to successfully complete requirements for certification as a school psychologist.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal and upholding the determination of the State Board of Examiners is adopted as the final decision in this matter.*

* Respondent submitted a letter urging affirmance of the ALJ's initial decision, but noting that the ALJ erred at p. 9 in stating that petitioner had completed her out-of-state service requirement, as petitioner's out-of-state experience (in Pearl River, NY) totalled only sixteen (16) months and all remaining experience was in-state. Because the decision of the State Board of Examiners from which appeal is taken herein does not raise this issue, citing insufficient coursework as the Board's basis for refusing to issue petitioner her certificate, the Commissioner declines to make a finding as to petitioner's fulfillment of the out-of-state service requirement.

IN THE MATTER OF THE REVOCATION	:
OF THE TEACHING CERTIFICATES OF	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
CHARLES VITOLA BY THE STATE	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EXAMINERS.	:

Decided by the State Board of Examiners, July 16, 1992

For the Appellant, Thomas L. Murphy, Esq.

For the Respondent, David Powers, Deputy Attorney General
(Deborah T. Poritz, Attorney General of New Jersey)

On December 5, 1991, the State Board of Examiners (hereinafter "Board") issued an order to Charles Vitola (hereinafter "respondent") to show cause why his certificates should not be revoked or suspended. The show cause order was based on a notice of conviction indicating that respondent had been convicted on April 12, 1991 on charges of theft by deception. Respondent filed an answer in response to that order and was also given the opportunity to submit a brief for the Board's consideration. Thereafter, by order dated July 16, 1992, the Board directed that respondent's certificates be suspended for the period from July 16, 1992 through July 16, 1997. The Board stated:

> At its meeting of July 16, 1992, the State Board of Examiners reviewed the brief received from the respondent and all appended documentation.
> The Board finds insufficient evidence presented by the respondent to support the arguments set forth on his behalf that the behavior he engaged > in, while criminal, was not engaged in while he was employed as a teacher. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.7 makes clear that a certificate may be revoked or suspended by the State Board of Examiners "for inefficiency, incapacity, conduct unbecoming a teacher, or other just causes." The Board finds the evidence presented by the Division of Criminal Justice to be compelling and based on the foregoing, the State Board of Examiners FINDS and CONCLUDES that the appropriate action in this matter is suspension of the respondent's certificate for a period of five years with reinstatement based on submission of sufficient evidence of rehabilitation to resume teaching.

State Board of Examiner's decision, slip op. at 2.

Respondent filed the instant appeal to the State Board of Education.

After a thorough review of the record, we find it necessary to remand this matter.

Revocation or suspension of a certificate is not automatic. The express language of the education laws confers upon the State Board of Examiners the authority to revoke certificates "under rules and regulations prescribed by the State Board [of Education]." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38. All actions of the Board of Examiners must be taken in accord with such rules. N.J.A.C. 6:11-2.2.

The procedures established by the State Board for revocation or suspension of certificates are set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6. Section (a)(2) thereof provides for the issuance of an order to show cause by the Board following the criminal conviction of the certificate holder, who may then file an answer thereto within 20 days. That regulation further provides that:

> After an answer has been filed on behalf of the certificate holder, the State Board of Examiners shall refer the case to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing, in accordance with > the Administrative Procedure Act (N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.). (Emphasis added.)[1]

In this case, following his receipt of the order to show cause, the respondent filed a timely answer contesting revocation or suspension of his certificates on the basis of mitigating circumstances. On May 19, 1992, respondent was advised by the Acting Secretary of the State Board of Examiners that a "hearing in the matter of your New Jersey certificates will proceed before the State Board of Examiners on or about July 16, 1992. The hearing will be based entirely on written submission of evidence." Respondent thereupon filed a brief and supporting documentation contending that he could not be disqualified from teaching on the basis of a conviction of theft by deception and that he had been rehabilitated.[2]

We reiterate that, in acting to revoke or suspend

1 We note that the regulation providing for the filing of a petition "by any person" for revocation or suspension of a certificate provides that upon the filing of an answer by the certificate-holder, "the board [of examiners] shall determine whether the matter is a contested case" and, if so, refer it to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing. N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(3) and (b). In contrast, the provisions of that regulation governing the procedure to be followed in cases brought to the Board of Examiners by reason of loss of tenure, N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(1), or conviction, N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(2), require the Board to refer such matters to the Office of Administrative Law after an answer has been filed. This distinction was retained when the regulations were amended and recodified in 1990. 22 N.J.R. 1873(a), 22 N.J.R. 3240(a).

We note further that as a result of such recodification, N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(b), formerly codified at N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.7(b)(1)(iii)(2), detailing the procedures to be followed upon the filing of a petition "by any person," was, apparently in error, separated from N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(3).

2 We note that the documentary evidence submitted by respondent included recent letters from school officials attesting to his character.

certificates, the State Board of Examiners is obligated by statute to act in accord with regulations prescribed by the State Board of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38; N.J.A.C. 6:11-2.2. Those regulations permit the subsequent inclusion of new findings and require the Board to refer a case in which revocation or suspension is contested to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") "for a hearing, in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act."[3] N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(2). That act provides that "opportunity shall be afforded all parties [in contested cases] to respond, appear and present evidence and argument on all issues involved." N.J.S.A. 52:14B-9(c). "Any party in a contested case may present his case or defense by oral and documentary evidence, submit rebuttal evidence and conduct such cross-examination as may be required, in the discretion of the administrative law judge, for a full and true disclosure of the facts." N.J.S.A. 52-14B-10(a).

The Administrative Procedure Act ("APA") further provides that "[n]o agency shall revoke or refuse to renew any license unless it has first afforded the licensee an opportunity for hearing in conformity with the provisions of this act applicable to contested cases." N.J.S.A. 52:14B-11.

In this instance, the respondent filed an answer to the show cause order in which he contested revocation or suspension of his teaching certificates and offered mitigating circumstances as to why such action should not be taken. See In the Matter of the Revocation of the Teaching Certificate of Thadeus Pawlak, Docket

[3] We note that a letter sent by the Acting Secretary of the Board of Examiners to respondent with the show cause order expressly acknowledged such obligation, advising respondent that "[a]fter your Answer has been received, this matter will be forwarded to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act."

#A-3298-87T7, slip op. at 9 (App. Div. 1989). Upon receipt of such answer, however, the Board did not refer this contested case to OAL for a hearing in conformity with the provisions of the APA applicable to contested cases.[4] Instead, the Board scheduled its own "hearing," expressly limited to the "written submission of evidence," and the only opportunity it provided respondent prior to suspending his certificates was to file a brief.[5] Given the State Board of Examiner's failure to comply with its mandated procedure, we are compelled to reverse its decision in this matter and remand to the Board with direction that it transmit this case to OAL for a hearing.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

[4] To the extent that the State Board of Examiners has the authority to determine whether a particular case instituted under N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(2) is "contested," see N.J.S.A. 52:14F-7, so as to require that a hearing be conducted in conformity with the provisions of the APA applicable to contested cases, there is no indication in the record that the Board made such a determination in this instance. See Quad Enterprises v. Paramus Bor., 250 N.J. Super. 256 (App. Div. 1991). Moreover, it is evident that respondent contested revocation or suspension in this case and asserted mitigating factors based upon specific factual circumstances. See Hills Development v. Bernards Tp., 229 N.J. Super. 318 (App. Div. 1988).

[5] Even to the extent that the Administrative Procedure Act might provide authority for the State Board of Examiners to conduct its own hearings in contested cases, see N.J.S.A. 52:14F-8, we note that the scheduling of a "hearing" before the Board "based entirely on written submission of evidence," see letter to respondent dated May 19, 1992 from the Acting Secretary of the Board of Examiners, did not satisfy the requirement of N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)(2) for a hearing in conformity with the provisions of the APA applicable to contested cases. See N.J.S.A. 52:14B-9 and 14B-10. There is no indication in the record that the "hearing" afforded respondent consisted of anything more than the Board's review of respondent's brief and appended documentation.

M.B., ON BEHALF OF S.B.,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF PASSAIC, PASSAIC COUNTY,
Respondent.

Fayth A. Ruffin, Esq., for petitioner

Matthew J. Michaelis, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: February 10, 1992 Decided: February 24, 1992

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

Petitioner, M.B., is the grandmother of S.B., a minor. Petitioner is a resident of the city of Passaic, Passaic County, New Jersey. In March or April 1991, petitioner attempted to register S.B. in the Passaic school district. A dispute arose between petitioner and respondent, the Board of Education of the city of Passaic (Board), concerning S.B.'s residency.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, respondent requested verification of petitioner's domicile and certain other information pertinent to the domicile, custody, and support of S.B. Petitioner responded by submitting an affidavit. Upon review of the document, the Board determined that petitioner's affidavit did not comply with the mandates of N.J.S.A 18A:38-1. Thereafter, the Board advised petitioner of its determination, but permitted S.B. to enroll in the Passaic school district.

On April 27, 1991, petitioner requested a hearing before the Commissioner of Education to determine whether she had complied with the statutory mandates regarding S.B.'s residency and the child's right to attend the Passaic school district. On May 20, 1991, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A plenary hearing was scheduled before the undersigned on December 17, 1991, at the OAL at 9:00 a.m.

At the commencement of the September 1991 school year, petitioner removed S.B. from the Passaic school district and informed the Board that she was sending her granddaughter to another school outside the Passaic school district.

On December 5, 1991, respondent moved for a dismissal of this matter. Respondent argues that since petitioner's grandchild is no longer in the Passaic school district, the question of whether the documents submitted by petitioner complied with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 is moot. Therefore, respondent requested that the matter be dismissed.

On December 17, 1991, the parties appeared before the undersigned for the evidentiary hearing. Petitioner appeared pro se and requested that the matter be adjourned. She had recently retained counsel to represent her in these proceedings and also to respond to respondent's motion to dismiss. Petitioner's motion for an adjournment was granted.

On January 7, 1992, Fayth A. Ruffin, Esq., filed an appearance on behalf of petitioner. Counsel also requested that copies of all correspondence and documents filed in this proceeding be forwarded to her attention. In response, on January 24, 1992, counsel for respondent forwarded the requested documents to Ms. Ruffin. Petitioner was given until February 10 to respond to respondent's motion to dismiss.

On February 11, 1992, the undersigned initiated a telephone conference call with counsel. The parties were informed that I would rule on respondent's motion to dismiss prior to the evidentiary hearing scheduled for February 28, 1992. Further, respondent was directed to submit an Order to the undersigned. Petitioner filed no response.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), a summary decision is appropriate > if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.

Summary decision in administrative proceedings parallels summary judgment in the courts, which is > designed to provide a prompt, businesslike and inexpensive method of disposing of any cause which a discriminating search of the merits in the pleadings, depositions and admissions on file, together with the affidavits submitted on the motion clearly shows not to present any genuine issue of material fact regarding disposition at a trial.

> Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954).

This purpose of this administrative proceeding is to determine whether petitioner submitted appropriate documentation in compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 with regard to enrolling her granddaughter in the Passaic school district. However, petitioner subsequently withdrew her granddaughter from the Passaic school district and, as such, removed from this proceeding the need to determine whether or not she was in compliance with the statute. Consequently, the matter is ripe for summary decision as there no longer exists any issues to be resolved.

Having reviewed the whole of the record, I CONCLUDE that the issue of whether petitioner's affidavit complied with state law, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, is no longer in controversy.

It is therefore ORDERED that respondent's motion for a summary decision to dismiss this matter be GRANTED. It is further ORDERED that the evidentiary hearing scheduled for February 28, 1992, before the undersigned be adjourned for the reasons set forth in this decision.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

M.B., on behalf of S.B.,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF PASSAIC, PASSAIC COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner filed timely exceptions and the Board filed timely reply exceptions pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner's exceptions object to the ALJ's having dismissed this matter by granting summary judgment to the Board. Petitioner claims there was a misunderstanding between her counsel and the ALJ regarding when the attorney's response to the Board's Motion to Dismiss was to have been submitted. Petitioner's counsel claims she understood her reply brief to the Board's Motion to Dismiss was due on February 13, 1992, and claims that during a telephone conference between her and the ALJ on February 10, 1992 she was informed that the deadline was that same day.

Thereafter, petitioner's exceptions advanced her position on the merits of her claim in this matter, which involved whether her granddaughter is entitled to a free public education in the City of Passaic, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. Among said arguments on the merits of her claim, petitioner advanced the information that she removed her granddaughter from the Passaic school system, but averred that she did so only to avoid having her granddaughter evaluated by the child study team, which she claimed the district required be done by its own team rather than by outside evaluation as she preferred. Petitioner's exceptions averred additionally that she was coerced into agreeing to the removal of her granddaughter who continues "to suffer with health problems that she didn't have before they kept ostracizing her and kicking her out of the Passaic School system." (Exceptions, at p. 5)

The Board's reply exceptions consist of a certification of the Director of Pupil Personnel Services of the Passaic Board filed by the Board's attorney addressing petitioner's arguments on the merits of the case at bar. In particular, the Board objects to petitioner's including any exceptions relative to the matter adjudicated by settlement by the Office of Adminsitrative Law as DKT. No. EDS 5488-91, under the provisions for special education due process matters. (N.J.A.C. 6:28-2.7 and N.J.A.C. 1:6A-1 et seq.) The Board claims such matter is not relevant to the within matter and should not be made a part of this case. Rather, the Board submits that the instant initial decision dismissing the case should be affirmed and no further action taken for the reasons expressed in the initial decision of the Honorable Mumtaz Bari-Brown. The Board affixed a copy of EDS 5488-91 to its reply exceptions because petitioner made reference to the matter in her exceptions.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner must dismiss the instant matter for failure to state a cause of action for which relief can be granted. The record of this case demonstrates that, in fact, petitioner herein "in lieu of consenting to an evaluation by the child study team, states she [would] transfer the child, S.B., to a private school, commencing with the school year September 1991-1992," as part of a settlement to a due process matter under the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:28 in a matter docketed as OAL Dkt. No. EDS 5488-91 and captioned City of Passaic Board of Education v. S.B., a minor, issued by the Office of Adminsitrative Law June 21, 1991. The Commissioner has no authority over such special education matters in that such decisions of the Office of Administrative Law are final pursuant to 20 U.S.C.A. sec. 1415(e)(1) and 34 C.F.R. sec. 300.509 (1989) and are appealable by filing a complaint and bringing a civil action either in the Superior Court of New Jersey or in a District Court of the United States, pursuant to 20 U.S.C.A. sec. 1415(e)2 and 34 C.F.R. sec. 300.511. Hence there is no relief to be granted petitioner in this forum.

In so stating, the Commissioner notes that even if petitioner's reply brief to the Motion to Dismiss had been submitted and reviewed by the ALJ in this matter, the ultimate conclusion to be reached by the Honorable Mumtaz Bari-Brown would have compelled granting the Board's Motion to Dismiss in the face of the undisputed fact that petitioner's granddaughter had been removed from the Passaic school district as part of a settlement agreement in a special education due process matter. This is so because the Commissioner's authority does not extend to allegations of coercion alleged to have been underlying a settlement agreement to which petitioner was a party under said due process regulations. See N.J.A.C. 1:6A-18.3.

Accordingly, the instant Petition of Appeal is dismssed, with prejudice.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Gregory T. Syrek, Esq., for respondent
(Bucceri and Pincus, attorneys)

Record Closed: February 13, 1992 Decided: February 27, 1992

BEFORE ELINOR R. REINER, ALJ:

On or about March 6, 1991, the State District Superintendent of Schools of the State-Operated School District of Jersey City certified charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent, Michael Bogart, a tenured teacher employed in the district. On March 25, 1991, respondent filed an answer denying the charges and requesting that the tenure charges be dismissed.

On April 11, 1991, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

On January 25, 1991, Michael J. Bogart filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education indicating that he had been notified in writing on January 10, 1991, by the State District Superintendent that he was suspended without pay effective immediately. He contended that his suspension without pay was arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable. He further maintained that the suspension was void, in that respondent had not certified tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, and that he was not the subject of an indictment within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3. He requested that the action of the State District Superintendent in suspending him without pay be declared null and void.

On or about March 6, 1991, the State-Operated School District of Jersey City filed an answer to the verified petition alleging that tenure charges had been filed against petitioner and were currently pending before the Commissioner of Education. On April 11, 1991, the Department of Education, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held on June 10, 1991. At that time, the two cases were consolidated for purposes of hearing, the issues were isolated, and a hearing was scheduled for October 21 through 24, 1991, at the Office of Administrative Law.

On May 16, 1991, Michael Bogart filed a motion for summary decision regarding his suspension without pay prior to the certification of tenure charges. On July 30, 1991, the undersigned judge, after having considered the pleadings and affidavits of the parties submitted in support of and in opposition to the motion, ordered that respondent's suspension of petitioner without pay be declared null and void and respondent pay petitioner back pay from January 10, 1991 to March 4, 1991, based on the salary rate received by petitioner immediately prior to the suspension. It was further ordered that respondent not pay interest to the petitioner on the back pay, there being no adequate proof of bad faith by respondent.

On August 9, 1991, counsel for Michael Bogart moved to resume respondent's salary effective September 1, 1991, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. The consent order, dated September 19, 1991, signed by the undersigned, ordered that petitioner resume the payment of full salary to respondent effective September 2, 1991. The hearing scheduled for October 21 through 24, 1991, was adjourned at the request of Mr. Bogart due to illness. It was rescheduled to December 16, 17, 19, and 20, 1991, at the Office of Administrative Law.

As a result of settlement conferences held between the parties on the dates of the hearing, a settlement was reached on or about December 19, 1991, and the hearing dates were adjourned. The parties have prepared a memorandum of agreement, which document is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT

This Agreement is made this 18th day of December, 1991, by and between the State Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, with offices at 346 Claremont Avenue, Jersey City, New Jersey 07305, hereinafter referred to as the "District,"

AND

Michael Bogart, residing at 90 Mitchell Street, West Orange, New Jersey 07052, hereinafter referred to as "Bogart."

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, Bogart is a tenured teaching staff member employed in the State Operated School District of the City of Jersey City; and

WHEREAS, on January 23, 1991, a tenure charge of conduct unbecoming a teacher was filed against Bogart; and

WHEREAS, the tenure charge was certified to the Commissioner of Education on March 4, 1991; and

WHEREAS, in lieu of proceeding with the tenure charges in accordance with the Tenure Employees' Hearing Law, the District and Bogart desire to enter into an agreement stipulating the terms of Bogart's separation from his employment as a teacher with the District.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises of the parties and in exchange for the consideration more particularly noted below, it is hereby agreed:

1. Bogart will submit an irrevocable letter of resignation from all employment with the District effective at the close of business on January 15, 1992. This letter of resignation will be accepted by the District.

2. The District agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, the tenure charge of conduct unbecoming a teacher bearing Agency Docket No. 53-3/91 and O.A.L. Docket No. EDU 03716-91N.

3. The District agrees to continue to pay Bogart his full salary through the effective date of his resignation, January 15, 1992.

4. All continued salary payments made to Bogart between the date of this Agreement and January 15, 1992 shall be paid in the normal course of business, net of normal payroll deductions for State and Federal income taxes and pension contributions.

5. Until February 15, 1992, the District agrees to continue to provide Bogart with all health insurance coverages presently provided to other teaching staff members in the District. The insurance coverages involved herein are set forth in the current collective negotiations agreement between the District and the Jersey City Education Association.

6. Upon Bogart's resignation and consistent with his rights under the Consolidated Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1986 ("COBRA"), Bogart shall be able to purchase, at his own cost and expense, the insurance coverages presently provided to other teaching staff members in the District. The insurance coverages involved herein are set forth in the current collective negotiations agreement between the District and the Jersey City Education Association. As noted in paragraph 5, the District will provide insurance coverage through February 15, 1992 and Bogart's rights under COBRA will commence at that time.

7. The collective negotiations agreement between the District and the Jersey City Education Association provides for reimbursement for unused accumulated sick leave upon resignation. Bogart retains his right to such reimbursement and his rights will be determined by the express requirements of the collective negotiations agreement.

8. The District and Bogart agree that the settlement of the charge brought by the District is justified for the following reasons:

(a) The charge made by the District against Bogart represents a single, isolated incident in the course of a teaching career in the District of approximately twenty (20) years;

(b) The January 15, 1992 resignation of Bogart will result in an economic saving to the District in that Bogart's salary will terminate at that point. If the charge was fully litigated, Bogart would be entitled to salary until at least the issuance of the decision of the Commissioner of Education. Applying the normal timetable for such matters, the Commissioner's decision would not be issued until at least March, 1992.

(c) The parties will not be required to undergo the time and expense of further litigation.

(d) If fully litigated, this case would require the testimony of parents and children, both for the District and for Bogart. Such testimony would disrupt the educational process for the children involved.

(e) The public interest would best be served by resolving the present controversy.

9. Bogart is aware that, as a result of the charge brought against him, this matter may be referred to the State Board of Examiners. However, the State District Superintendent of Schools for Jersey City, Elena J. Scambio, recommends to the Commissioner of Education that such referral not take place under the circumstances of the present case. As previously noted, the charge represents an isolated incident, not a recurring problem in a twenty (20) year teaching career in the District.

10. The District and Bogart acknowledge that the terms of this Agreement are contingent upon the review and approval of both the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. In the event that either agency disapproves of the terms of settlement, this Agreement shall be null and void and the parties shall return to the same positions which they held prior to this settlement.

11. The parties recognize that each has been represented by legal counsel of his or its own choosing and that each signs this Agreement as their own voluntary act and deed, and that they fully understand the duties and obligations enumerated herein.

12. This Agreement shall be subject to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

13. All terms of this Agreement are deemed material. This document may not be altered, amended or modified or revoked except by an instrument executed in writing by the parties.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals the date and year aforesaid.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF MICHAEL J. BOGART,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	DECISION
OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY,	:
HUDSON COUNTY.	:

The record and initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

The Commissioner approves the settlement terms as they comport with the Cardonick standard for review of settlements in tenure matters and adopts the settlement as the final decision in this matter. (In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983) In this regard, the Commissioner's review of the record placed great weight upon the recommendation of the Superintendent of the State-operated school district that this matter not be referred to the State Board of Examiners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6 under the circumstances which she states "[represent] an isolated incident, not a recurring problem in a twenty (20) year teaching career in the District." (Settlement, at p. 4)

Accordingly, the matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

BEFORE KEN R SPRINGER, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

This is a claim by a tenured high school principal who was suspended without pay in connection with his criminal indictment for possession of illegal drugs. While the indictment and related tenure charges against him were still pending, petitioner voluntarily resigned from his tenured teaching position. After his acquittal at trial on all criminal charges, petitioner sought back pay up to the date of his resignation, other job-related benefits and pre-judgment interest.

Several issues are raised by the pleadings, including: (1) Whether petitioner is entitled to back pay upon acquittal on the underlying criminal charges; (2) Whether any back pay award should include a retroactive salary increment; and (3) Whether petitioner should be allowed pre-judgment interest.

Procedural History

Originally, on February 13, 1990, Charles Driggins ("Driggins") filed suit for damages in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division, Middlesex County. By order entered on October 26, 1990, Superior Court Judge Charles Villanueva transferred the matter to the appropriate state administrative agency, with instructions that petitioner "file said complaint with the Commissioner of Education." Accordingly, on November 19, 1990, Driggins filed his petition of appeal, alleging violation of his tenure rights, with the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"). Respondent Newark Board of Education ("Board") filed its answer on December 4, 1990.

On his own motion, the Commissioner asked the parties to submit written argument on the timeliness of the petition under the 90-day rule, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. Subsequently, on January 11, 1991, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for full proceedings on the merits. The OAL held a hearing on September 11, 1991. Witnesses and exhibits are listed in the appendix. Both sides filed post-hearing briefs, the last of which was received by the OAL on October 15, 1991. Time for preparation of the initial decision has been extended to February 27, 1992.

Findings of Fact

All of the relevant facts are undisputed. I FIND

Charles Driggins, age 57, is married and has three adult children. He holds a master's degree in school administration from Seton Hall University. Driggins has worked for the Newark public schools for nearly seventeen years. Starting in September 1971, he served the district in various administrative capacities, first as a curriculum specialist, later as a vice principal and, for many years, as a high school principal. For his last seven years in the district, he was the principal of an adult evening school. Before the arrest which led to his suspension from his duties, he had no prior involvement with the criminal justice system.

In the late afternoon of Saturday March 12, 1988, local police arrested Driggins and a male companion in a car parked in a driveway in the City of New Brunswick, New Jersey. Reportedly, Driggins and his companion were "nude from the waist down." A search of the vehicle and clothing uncovered "suspected cocaine and drug paraphernalia."

Shortly after the arrest, the Board acted to relieve Driggins of his responsibilities. On March 15, 1988, the Board notified him by letter that he was "suspended, with pay, from all duties and assignments" pending the outcome of the controlled dangerous substance charge. (Emphasis added). On June 3, 1988, a Middlesex County Grand Jury returned a single-count indictment against Driggins for unlawful possession of a controlled dangerous substance. In the interim, on May 24, 1988, the Board had already certified tenure charges of "unbecoming conduct" to the Commissioner and, in connection therewith, had directed that Driggins "be immediately suspended, without pay." (Emphasis added). Driggins received his last paycheck at the end of May 1988. Ordinarily, Driggins' salary would have resumed on the 121st calendar day following certification of the tenure charges, as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. Due to the intervening indictment, however, the Board continued to suspend his salary on the theory that the criminal charge supersedes any immediate right to payment.

At the end of the school year, the Board voted on July 26, 1988 to withhold Driggin's salary increment and adjustment for the upcoming 1988-89 academic year.

The stated reason was that the increment withholding "is based upon your suspension during the 1987-88 academic year." Until his arrest, Driggins' annual performance ratings had always been satisfactory. Driggins, who was still awaiting trial on the criminal charges as well as a tenure hearing, did not file a timely appeal of the Board's action to the Commissioner.

Subsequent events made the tenure proceeding moot. On February 28, 1989, Driggins voluntarily tendered his written resignation from employment, "effective March 1, 1989." This document made no mention of any claim for back pay or other benefits. However, it was accompanied by the standard form in which the Board certified to the State Division of Pensions that Driggins' date of termination was "March 1, 1989" and that he had been previously suspended "from May 24, 1988 to the present."

Upon receipt of Driggins' resignation, the Board wrote to the OAL purportedly "withdrawing" its tenure charges. Once tenure charges are brought, however, only the Commissioner has the legal authority to dismiss them. Administrative Law Judge John Tassini issued an initial decision recommending withdrawal of the tenure charges and referral of the situation to the licensing board for possible revocation of Driggins' certificates. On May 1, 1989, the Commissioner issued a final decision adopting Judge Tassini's recommendations.

Ultimately, Driggins was acquitted of the original criminal charge. After a nonjury trial in Middlesex County held on October 31, 1989, Superior Court Judge Joseph Messina rendered a judgment of not guilty. Driggins' lawyer promptly advised the Board that his client was "now claiming all pay and employment benefits . . .from the date of his suspension without pay until his retirement date." Board counsel took the position that "the circumstances surrounding Mr. Driggin's retirement precludes him from receiving any additional compensation."

Both parties have stipulated the amount of lost salary and other benefits during the period of suspension. Without the 1988-89 salary increment, Driggins' salary loss totals $46,230. With the increment, his loss totals $50,489. On the date of his resignation, Driggins had 236 accumulated sick days and 3 personal days. Article VII of the collective negotiating agreement provides compensation for 1/4 of these unused days at the time of retirement, amounting to an additional $20, 279.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Driggins is entitled to recover back pay, calculated without the 1988-89 increment or adjustment; that he is also entitled to contractual benefits for accumulated sick days and personal days; and that pre-judgment interest should be denied.

School boards have the acknowledged right to discontinue the salary of employees who are under current criminal indictment. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 impliedly confers such authority:

> Any employee or officer of a board of education in this State who is suspended from his employment, office or position, other than by reason of indictment, pending any investigation, hearing or trial or any appeal therefrom, shall receive his full pay or salary during such period of suspension, except that in the event of charges against such employee brought before the board of education or the Commissioner of Education pursuant to law, such suspension may be with or without pay or salary as provided in chapter 6 [which includes the Tenure Employees Hearing Law] (Emphasis Added).

In contrast, an unindicted school employee subject to a tenure charge is entitled to resumption of full salary after expiration of 120 calendar days from certification of the charge, unless he has requested a delay of the tenure hearing. "Should the charge be dismissed, the person shall be reinstated immediately with full pay from the first day of such suspension." (Emphasis Added). N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14. Confusion arises because N.J.S.A. 18A:6-8.3 lacks similar express language restoring lost salary after acquittal on the criminal charges. Many similar statutes dealing with suspension of indicted public employees do contain specific language which requires reimbursement of back pay for those vindicated after criminal trial. E.g., N.J.S.A. 40A:14-23 (fire fighters); N.J.S.A. 40A:14-149.2 (police).

Recently, in what is described as a case "of first impression," the Commissioner was called upon to decide whether a suspended teacher should receive back pay following acquittal of criminal charges. Beatty v. Newton Bd. of Ed., 1991 S.L.D. __ (Comm'r June 25, 1991) (slip op at 8). In Beatty, the school board suspended a teacher on the basis of an indictment alone. The Beatty board did not institute its own tenure charges until after the teacher was acquitted "of all charges in all counts." (slip op at 2). Acknowledging that N.J.S.A. 8A:6-8.3 is silent with respect to back pay, the Commissioner held that "fundamental fairness" dictates that the teacher be granted back pay, including sick pay and vacation pay, "given that a trial by jury yielded a verdict of not guilty on the indictment." In support of that conclusion, the Commissioner emphasized, "At the present time, petitioner has not been found guilty of any wrongdoing and the indictment upon which the suspension is based has been disposed of in his favor." (slip op. at 8). Moreover, the Commissioner distinguished an earlier ruling in Pawlak v. Hopatcong, 12 N.J.A.R. 25 (St. Bd. June 1, 1988), aff'd No. A-5083-87T2 (N.J. App. Div. July 16, 1989), where there was no favorable disposition of the criminal charges, but merely successful completion of a pretrial intervention program.

Here Driggins was exonerated at the criminal trial and has not been adjudicated to have committed any wrongful act as a result of a tenure proceeding. Thus, he stands in essentially the same posture as the teacher in Beatty. The major distinguishing feature is that the Board brought its tenure charges before the criminal trial, whereas the Beatty board waited until after the trial. That circumstance does not justify different treatment of back pay claims by two individuals, both of whom were tried and found innocent of any crime.

Although the Board seems to think that it was tricked by Driggins' voluntary resignation, it did not necessarily have to withdraw its tenure charges. If it had wanted, the Board could have asked for the tenure charges to be held in abeyance and, after the outcome of the criminal trial, have established its tenure charges by the lesser civil burden of proof. See, Ott v. Hamilton Twp. Bd. of Ed., 160 N.J. Super. 333 (App. Div. 1978), certif. den. 78 N.J. 336 (1978). In re LaTronica, 1983 S.L.D. __ (Comm'r Sept. 6, 1983). Of course, that route might have exposed the Board to potentially greater damages, in the event that it should be unable to sustain its charges at the tenure hearing. One advantage of the Board's acceptance of Driggins' resignation is that it cuts off any claim for future relief.

A much closer question is whether Driggins should receive the salary increment he might otherwise have earned had he not been suspended. As a general rule, "a fully vindicated employee must be made whole." Eaddy v. Dept. of Transp., 208 N.J. Super. 156, 162 (App. Div. 1986). Some authority exists for the proposition that a prevailing teacher in a tenure case would be entitled to restoration of retroactive salary increments, although that suggestion is only dicta since the particular matter had not yet been fully resolved on its merits. In re Eberly, 1987 S.L.D. __ (St. Bd. March 2, 1988). But the better approach is that a salary increment is not an automatic entitlement for which a teacher qualifies simply by showing up for work. Rather, an annual increment "is in the nature of a reward for meritorious service to the school district." North Plainfield Ed. Ass'n v. North Plainfield Bd. of Ed., 96 N.J. 587, 593 (1984); Bernards Twp. Bd. of Ed. v. Bernards Twp. Ed. Ass'n, 79 N.J. 311, 321 (1979). Unaccrued increments are nothing more than expectancies, because "tenured employees have no vested right in any future increases in salary." Williams v. Plainfield Bd. of Ed., 176 N.J. Super. 154, 162 (App. Div. 1980), certif. den. 87 N.J. 306 (1980). Increments are designed to reward "only those who have contributed to the educational process," and a suspended teacher has no entitlement to an "automatic raise" while litigation is in progress. In re Castaldo, 1986 S.L.D. __ (St. Bd. July 2, 1986) (slip op. at 8- 9). See also, DeMarco v. Glassboro Bd. of Ed., 1981 S.L.D. 1034 (Comm'r 1981), aff'd 1982 S.L.D. 1471 (St. Bd. 1982). Since Driggins has no legally enforceable right to the increment, it is not a proper element of his damage claim.

Driggins urges that he should receive his gross rather than his net back pay, but cites no legal basis for such procedure. Instead, his argument is based solely on tax planning considerations. Any award to which he is entitled constitutes compensation for lost salary, as distinguished from a lump sum settlement, Cf. In re Castaldo, or a recovery for personal injury or pain and suffering. As such, the award is subject to the normal deductions which the Board applies to the pay checks of all its employees. Otherwise, the Board might incur legal liability for failure to comply with tax withholding laws. Should excess tax withholding occur, Driggins may obtain a refund from the appropriate tax authorities.

Additionally, Driggins wants the Board to certify pension credit for the period of his suspension. Jurisdiction over questions about the extent of any retirement allowance rests exclusively with the Board of Trustees of the Teacher's Pension and Annuity Fund ("Trustees"), rather than the Commissioner of Education. Bd. of Trustees v. La Tronica, 81 N.J. Super. 461 (App. Div. 1963), certif. den. 41 N.J. 587 (1964); Taylor v. Westfield Bd. of Ed., 2 N.J.A.R. 350 (Comm'r Dec. 8, 1980). Hence, the Commissioner cannot determine whether or not Driggins is entitled to further pension credit. Nevertheless, the Commissioner can and should order the Board to revise its earlier certification to the Division of Pensions to reflect that Driggins has been acquitted and that his back pay has been restored.

Finally, Driggins seeks pre-judgment interest accruing from the date of his resignation. Unquestionably the Commissioner possesses the power to fix pre-judgment interest in appropriately egregious cases, although, when the debtor is a government agency, "a showing of overriding and compelling equitable reasons must be made in order to justify the award." Newark Bd. of Ed. v. Levitt, 197 N.J.Super. 239, 244 (App. Div. 1984). Standards for the exercise of the Commissioner's discretionary power are codified at N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16(c), which provides that pre-judgement interest should be awarded only if "the denial of the monetary claim was taken in bad faith and/or has been determined to have been taken in deliberate violation of statute or rule." Until recently, the salary rights of an indicted school employee after acquittal were a matter of unsettled law. As noted, the statute itself is silent on the question and Beatty, decided long after Driggin's resignation, was a case "of first impression." Regardless of the ultimate outcome here, the Board appears genuinely to have believed that Driggin's resignation ended their relationship and that, afterwards, neither one had any continuing obligation to the other. Under these circumstances, Driggins has not met the extremely heavy burden of demonstrating bad faith or contemptuous conduct by the school board.

Order

It is ORDERED that the Board pay to Driggins the sum of $46,230 in back salary and $20,279 for unused sick and personal days, minus the usual deductions and mitigation for any monies earned during the suspension period.

It is further ORDERED that, in the event that the Board fails to satisfy the award within 60 days of the date of the final agency decision, post-judgment interest shall accrue in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16.

It is further ORDERED that the Board shall submit a revised certification to the Division of Pensions as soon as the award has been paid.

And it is further ORDERED that Driggins' remaining claims are denied.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Timely exceptions were filed by respondent pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Upon review of respondent's exceptions and careful scrutiny of the record herein, the Commissioner finds that there remains sufficient question on the threshold issue of timeliness to warrant further consideration of that issue before reaching any determination on the merits.

Although application of the 90-day rule was identified, apparently without objection, as an issue in the prehearing order, and although respondent argued the question of timeliness in its post-hearing brief, the ALJ apparently did not address the issue in his initial decision because he believed that the Commissioner had disposed of the matter in petitioner's favor prior to forwarding the case for hearing.

While the Commissioner did direct the parties to submit briefs on the timeliness issue prior to transmittal and subsequently determined to forward the matter to OAL, notwithstanding pre-transmittal correspondence and agency transmittal papers which concededly invited a contrary interpretation, the Commissioner did not conclusively resolve the time bar question or envision that his decision to transmit would necessarily foreclose further argument on that issue. Indeed, a review of the record clearly indicates the need for a more fully developed exposition in this area.

Specifically, the Commissioner seeks further argumentation and recommendations from the ALJ as to when petitioner's cause of action arose; whether his claim was exclusively within the Commissioner's jurisdiction or whether, as petitioner asserts, he had a choice of concurrent forums; and whether petitioner's filing in Superior Court absolved him from complying with, or warranted relaxation of, the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. Should the Commissioner determine, after review of the ALJ's findings, that the matter herein is not time barred, he will make a final determination on the merits of petitioner's substantive claims.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is remanded for consideration, consistent with the above directives, of whether petitioner's claim is time barred pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, tenured high school principal who was acquitted of drug charges, sought back pay and compensation up to date of his resignation. Commissioner had remanded matter for consideration of whether petitioner's claim was time barred pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2.

On remand, Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found suit was timely filed since original date of filing with Superior Court was within 90 days of the Board's action denying the claim. Matter was returned to Commissioner for review together with initial decision of February 27, 1992, wherein ALJ found that since petitioner was exonerated at criminal trial, he was entitled to pay withheld during indictment notwithstanding that he had since resigned from district. (Beatty) District was ordered to pay back salary less mitigation.

Commissioner affirmed findings and determination of ALJ both on remanded issue of timeliness and on merits of case.

Statement of the Case

This is a remand by the Commissioner of Education for consideration of whether the petition should be dismissed for failure to comply with the ninety-day rule, N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2.

Procedural History

Previously, on February 27, 1992, the Office of Administrative ("OAL") issued an initial decision, designated Dkt. No. EDU 0694-91, on the underlying merits of this dispute. By order entered on April 9, 1992, the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") remanded the case to the OAL for further proceedings regarding the timeliness of the filing of the petition. Specifically, the Commissioner directed that the administrative law judge hear further argument and make recommendations.

> . . . as to when petitioner's cause of action arose; whether his claim was exclusively within the Commissioner's jurisdiction or whether, as petitioner asserts, he had a choice of concurrent forums; and whether petitioner's filing in Superior Court absolved him from complying with, or warranted relaxation of, the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. (slip op. at 15).

On or before November 4, 1992, counsel furnished the OAL with copies of their legal briefs which had previously been filed with the Commissioner. On November 18, 1992, counsel for petitioner submitted a supplemental legal brief. Counsel for the Newark Board of Education ("Board") elected not to file any supplemental brief. The OAL held oral argument on December 21, 1992. Exhibits are listed in the appendix to Dkt. No. EDU 0694-91.

Findings of Fact

Most of the material facts are set forth in Dkt. No. EDU 0694-91 and are incorporated here by reference. In addition, I FIND as follows:

At the very earliest, Driggins's cause of action for back pay and other job-related benefits did not arise until October 31, 1989, the date on which he was acquitted of any criminal charge by the Middlesex criminal court. Three days later, on November 3, 1989, petitioner's counsel notified the Board of the outcome of the criminal trial and demanded payment of all back pay and benefits (Exhibit P-12). On January 23, 1990, the Board counsel responded in writing that "the circumstances surrounding Mr. Driggins' retirement preclude him from receiving any additional compensation." (Exhibit P-13). Both parties regard this letter as notice of the Board's denial of Driggins' claim.[1] Within three weeks, on February 13, 1990, Driggins filed a complaint against the Board in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division, Middlesex County, seeking damages resulting from the denial of his claim (Exhibit P-15). Thereafter, on April 27, 1990, the court entered an order changing the venue from Middlesex to Essex County. At the Board's request, the court in Essex County determined that the matter "should be transferred to the Commissioner of Education" and entered an order on October 26, 1990 directing that the action be "remanded" to the Commissioner and that the "plaintiff file said complaint with the Commissioner[.]" (Exhibit P-16). In compliance with this order, Driggins filed a petition,seeking essentially the same relief, with the Commissioner on November 19, 1990.

Since virtually all of the facts necessary for disposition on the merits were stipulated, the Board concedes that Driggins' delay in filing the petition with the Commissioner has not hindered its defense.

Conclusions of Law

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the date of filing with the Commissioner relates back to the original date of filing with the

[1]Actually, the letter itself is ambiguous. In the first paragraph, Board counsel asks petitioner to provide her with "the authority upon which his claim is based," thus leaving open the possibility that the Board might be willing to reconsider its position. In any event, the Board "assumes, for purposes of this brief only, that petitioner's claim for back pay did not accrue until January 23, 1990." (Respondent's Brief, at 6.)

Superior Court and, since the pleadings were filed within ninety days of the Board's action denying the claim, the suit is timely.

N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(b), as it existed in 1990, provided that, "[t]he petitioner shall file a petition no later than 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing."[2] Driggins promptly filed his complaint in the Superior Court within three weeks of notice of the action from which he is appealing. Ultimately, the court transferred the matter to the appropriate state agency for exhaustion of administrative remedies. Although the Board has not suffered any prejudice, it urges that the ninety-day period of limitation must be "strictly" applied.

Regardless of whether the judicial and executive branch possess concurrent jurisdiction over the subject matter of this controversy, it would have been preferable if Driggins had initiated his appeal before the state administrative agency. Generally, available and appropriate administrative remedies should be fully explored before judicial action is sanctioned. Abbott v. Burke, 100 N.J. 269, 296 (1985). It is clear that the Commissioner has fundamental and indispensable jurisdiction over all disputes and controversies arising under the school laws. Theodore v. Dover Bd. of Educ., 183 N.J. Super. 407, 412-413 (App. Div. 1982). While it is arguable that this dispute involves "only legal questions" and, hence, that the doctrine of exhaustion of remedies does not apply, Abbott, 100 N.J. at 298, the better approach is to require review by the Commissioner of an issue so intimately connected with tenure proceedings, which fall squarely within the the Commissioner's recognized area of expertise. See, for example, In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967), interpreting the Tenure Act as conferring on the Commissioner the duty of conducting tenure hearings. Indeed, it must have been such considerations which led the trial court to defer to agency expertise and transfer petitioner's claim to the Commissioner.

It does not follow, of course, that the Commissioner should now dismiss the appeal on procedural grounds. Certainly that does not appear to have been the intent of the trial judge. If the judge had wanted to dismiss the suit as untimely, he could easily have done so directly. Moreover, the New Jersey Court Rules governing transfer of actions expressly preserve the continued viability of law suits which are timely filed in the wrong forum. R. 1:13-4(a) states, in pertinent part:

> . . . if any court is without jurisdiction of the subject matter of an action or issue therein . . . it shall, on motion or on its own initiative, order the action, with the record and all papers on file, transferred to the proper court, or administrative agency, if any, in the State. The action shall then be proceeded upon as if it had been originally commenced in that court or agency. (Emphasis added.)

Proper application of the rule is illustrated by Townsend v. Great Adventure, 178 N.J. Super. 508 (App. Div. 1981), where an employee brought suit against his employer in the Superior Court rather than in the Division of Workers' Compensation where the suit belonged. Holding that the dismissal of the suit against the employer was improper, the Appellate Division declared:

> [E]ven though appellant filed in the wrong forum, his complaint against Great Adventure should have been transferred, not dismissed. This is particularly true because a dismissal caused his claim to be barred without an adjudication on the merits, certainly a result not to be favored since his claim, though in the wrong forum, was timely brought. Townsend, at 518.

Cases on which the Board relies are readily distinguishable. In Bernards Twp. Bd of Educ. v. Bernards Twp. Educ. Ass'n, 79 N.J. 311 (1979), the New Jersey Supreme Court held that disputes concerning the withholding of a teacher's salary increment may be submitted to intermediate advisory arbitration, but cautioned that the teacher should also file a petition with the Commissioner to preserve the right of appeal to the final decision-making authority. Nothing in Bernards Twp. speaks to the question of timeliness when a litigant in good faith selects the wrong forum. Similarly, in Riely v. Hunterdon Cent. High Sch. Bd. of Educ., 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980), an untenured teacher who chose to proceed to binding arbitration under the contractual grievance procedure could not revive her unsuccessful claim afterwards by filing with the Commissioner. Understandably, the appellate panel was reluctant to give her a second bite of the apple. As the opinion notes, "It is evident to us that she gambled on a favorable arbitration award and, having lost, then decided to seek further relief at the hands of the Commissioner. By then, her petition was out of time." Riely, at 114. In the instant case, however, the Superior Court never reached the substantive issues of Driggins' complaint.

Both West New York Bd. of Educ. v. Gilmartin, 1990 S.L.D. 619 (Comm'r April 20, 1990) and Rutherford Bd. of Educ. v. Karabaic, 1987 S.L.D. 1989 (Comm'r Sept. 18, 1987) involved situations in which a board of education filed suit in the Superior Court well beyond the ninety-day limitation period. In each case, the court transferred the matter to the Commissioner, who dismissed the claim as untimely. These cases stand for the proposition that the doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies "can neither enlarge nor confer jurisdiction in the Commissioner." Karabaic, at 1997 Significantly, in Karabaic the Commissioner looked to the date of filing in the Superior Court and found that suit was not filed until "eight months after the Board's cause of action arose." Id. Here, of course, Driggins filed suit in the Superior Court promptly after the Board notified him of its denial of his claim.

In light of the fact that Driggins' suit was properly filed within the ninety-day time limit, it is unnecessary to consider whether there exist sufficient circumstances to justify relaxation of the rule.

Order

It is ORDERED that Driggins's petition is not time-barred under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2

And it is further ORDERED that this matter be returned to the Commissioner for review together with the recommendations made in EDU 0694-91

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION ON REMAND
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this remanded matter and the initial decisions of the Office of Administrative Law, both on the remanded issue of timeliness and the earlier decision on the merits incorporated by reference therein, have been reviewed. Although no exceptions were filed to the ALJ's decision on remand, the Commissioner takes note of the Board's March 12, 1992 exceptions to the initial decision on the merits, which, in addition to pursuing the question of timeliness, reiterated the Board's argument that petitioner lost any entitlement to back pay upon resigning from the district.

Upon careful review, the Commissioner concurs with the analysis and conclusions of the ALJ with regard to both the timeliness and the merits of petitioner's claim.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is affirmed for the reasons expressed in both the decision on remand and the February 27, 1992 decision on the merits incorporated therein. The Board is directed to pay Driggins the sum of $46,230 in back salary and $20,279 for unused sick and personal days, minus deductions and mitigation for monies earned during suspension, subject to post-judgment interest pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16 in the event that the Board fails to satisfy its obligation within 60 days of the date of this decision.

For Petitioner, Wayne J. Oppito, Esq.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education by way of a Petition of Appeal filed by the Brielle Board of Education on December 23, 1991. Said petition alleged that respondents had repeatedly failed to answer district requests for documentation to support their claim that the children of Respondent Farrell, a resident of Neptune, New Jersey, were living with Brielle resident Respondent Travis and supported by her gratis as required by law in order for the children to have entitlement to a free public education in the Brielle school district. The Board requested the Commissioner to direct respondents to provide the necessary information, and if such were found not sufficient to establish the Farrell children's entitlement to free education, that tuition be assessed for the time of their attendance at Brielle schools retroactive to September 1, 1990.

In reply to notices from this office requesting an answer to the petition, the attorney identified as representing respondents advised by letter that she had not finally been retained and that respondents would be answering on their own behalf. Shortly thereafter, in a telephone conversation on or about February 4, 1992, Respondent Farrell confirmed the attorney's position and advised that an answer would be filed by herself and Ms. Travis directly.

When no answer was received by March 9, 1992, respondents were advised by letter sent regular and certified mail that should no answer be forthcoming within ten (10) days, the Commissioner would deem the Board's allegations admitted and decide the matter on a summary basis. The return receipt for the certified letter indicated that it was accepted by Respondent Travis on March 11, 1992. As of this date, no answer or other communication has been received from respondents.

Accordingly, the Board's allegation that Farrell's children do not reside in the district is deemed admitted and the Board is hereby authorized to assess respondents tuition for the attendance of said children in the Brielle school district pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b).

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parents challenged Board's denial of son's (Petitioner Hook) admission to National Honor Society. Board contended Petitioner Hook had not met required character rating of 4.0.

Initial decision determined Board did not act in bad faith nor did the result of its assessment process constitute an abuse of discretion. ALJ found faculty council's process of assessing character and submitting its decision to principal for final approval was in accord with recommendation of National Honor Society. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Commissioner added that faculty council's delegating responsibility for computing character rating to faculty advisors was a mere ministerial function that did not adversely affect faculty council's responsibility to assess candidates and to make selections.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioners, Craig Hook and his parents, Alan Hook and Yvonne Hook, as Guardians ad Litem, appeal the determination by the respondent, Board of Education of the Borough of South Plainfield, denying Craig Hook admission into the South Plainfield High School chapter of the National Honor Society. This matter having been transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case proceeding pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., a prehearing conference was conducted by telephone on December 3, 1991. At that conference it was determined that the sole issue to be determined in this proceeding was whether respondent's procedure for assessing the character component for admission to the National Honor Society was violative of the National Honor Society's guidelines for procedures on admission selection. It is undisputed that Craig Hook was denied admission to the South Plainfield chapter of the National Honor Society solely on the basis of his score for character.

At the prehearing conference it was agreed that the facts in this matter are not in dispute and were capable of being set forth in a joint stipulation with accompanying exhibits. The parties agreed to proceed in this matter by way of cross-motions for summary decision. The joint stipulation having been filed, and the cross-motions and accompanying briefs having been received by the undersigned on February 19, 1992, and a reply by petitioner having been received on March 2, 1992, the record was closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

During the 1990-91 school year, Craig Hook was a senior at South Plainfield High School and by virtue of his grade point average was among the students eligible for admission to the school's chapter of the National Honor Society. Eligibility criteria for membership and election of new members to the local chapter of the society is the responsibility of a faculty council in the South Plainfield School District. This faculty council consists of five faculty members appointed annually by the principal. The council must follow the requirements for admission for eligibility set by the National Honor Society handbook and as implemented in the student/parent handbook, subject to the principal's agreement. The student/parent handbook is distributed or made available to all students, faculty members and parents.

The procedures utilized by the faculty council to evaluate the character of a candidate for admission are as follows. A character evaluation rating sheet is sent to all faculty members. Faculty members rate a student's character on a scale of 1 to 5 and submit the rating sheet to the faculty council. The faculty council advisor reviews the forms and computes a character rating for each candidate. In accordance with the guidelines published in the student/parent handbook, a student must receive a minimum rating of 4.0 to meet the character requirement.

When the faculty council computed Craig Hook's average character rating, his rating was 3.85, .15 less than the 4.0 standard. In calculating this rating, Craig Hook's score was adjusted by disregarding one evaluation where he received a score of "2" and interpreting one questionable marking as a score of "5". Had the council not counted the questionable "5" rating and not disregarded the score of "2", Craig Hook's average rating would have been 3.70. Craig Hook's parents were advised by the principal of the high school that Craig Hook was not admitted to the National Honor Society because his character rating was less than the 4.0 required in the student/parent handbook.

These facts were succinctly set forth in the joint stipulation submitted and they are found as fact for purposes of this proceeding.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

It is well established in school law decisions that the Commissioner has jurisdictional authority to determine disputes over admissions to the Honor Society. See J.B.A. and A.M.A. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Bernardsville, 4 N.J.A.R. 136, 145; D.W. v. Board of Education of Pompton Lakes, 1977 S.L.D. 12, 40; Moore v. Board of Education of the City of Vineland, 1975 S.L.D. 290; Tiffany v. Board of Education of Cinnaminson, 1974 S.L.D. 87. However, the Commissioner has maintained in matters brought before him in this area that his review is limited. The Commissioner has not and will not intervene in a determination regarding Honor Society eligibility unless the local board's action has been shown to be arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. See J.B.A. and A.M.A. v. Bernardsville Board of Education, 4 N.J.A.R. at 152 (" ... It is not [the Commissioner's] desire or intention to substitute his judgment for that of local board of education, administrators or teachers carrying out the responsibilities in the many selection processes in which they are continually engaged".)

The Commissioner's decision in J.B.A. was one instance in which the Commissioner did become involved in a decision regarding eligibility for National Honor Society because of the particular factual pattern presented. In that instance, the Commissioner found that the factual circumstances contrasted dramatically with the facts in Tiffany, Moore and D.W. where reasonable bases were presented by the boards to support their decision not to admit an individual to a local Honor Society chapter. In J.B.A., the local board failed to present, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, a reasonable basis > "for the stated reasons for the negative votes cast against [the student] by the eight members who voted against her ... This abuse was precipitated by the unfortunate, ill-advised and unwarranted umbrage taken by certain members of the teaching staff against a reported comment by A.H.A.'s parent about a grammatical error in the school's written English course of study."

In the initial decision, the ALJ who heard the case found the Board's decision to be inappropriately tainted, arbitrary, capricious, and deserving of being set aside. In reviewing the matter, the Commissioner first found fault with the Board's refusal to provide the petitioners in that case with a simple statement of reasons for the non-admission to the National Honor Society in violation of the directives of the National Honor Society. Further, the Commissioner agreed with the ALJ that the reasons eventually provided by the Board were so lacking in specificity as made it impossible for petitioners to refute them to correct the alleged deficiencies. No specific examples of conduct that was described as constituting "rudeness, arrogance and disregard for school rules" were presented by the Board.

The J.B.A. case stands in marked contrast with the issue presented herein. It is described in some detail because of the need to clearly demark what so disturbed the Commissioner in J.B.A. as to warrant the unusual step of interfering with a Board's decision not to admit a student to the National Honor Society. What was significant in J.B.A. was that the Board first refused to provide reasons for the non-admission and then, when required to do so as a result of legal action, provided reasons that were imprecise and lacking in specific support that they could not be found to have a reasonable basis in fact.

In the instant matter, the issue sharply posed by the parties goes not to the subjective quality of the decision made by the school district regarding the assessment of Craig Hook's character, but rather the method used for evaluating the character of a student eligible for admission. The petitioners have pointedly challenged the character portion of the admission procedure as constituting a "polling" of the entire faculty, which they argue, is consistent and impermissible under National Honor Society rules. In support of this argument, petitioners cite to Appendix 2 of the National Honor Society's recommended selection procedure (J-7 in evidence), which provides as a recommended selection procedure the following:

> 4 (Optional). If additional faculty input would be beneficial, all faculty members could be invited to make comments on candidates. However, the actual selections must be made by the five appointed members of the faculty council. It is no longer permissible to take an entire faculty vote. [Emphasis added].

With this instruction from the National Honor Society in mind, review of the procedure followed by the South Plainfield Board of Education acting through its principal and faculty council, lead me to conclude that no such faculty vote occurred in this instance.

Based upon the undisputed facts, the faculty council distributes to all faculty members an attached list of the juniors and seniors qualifying for the National Honor Society based on their grade point average. Their assistance is solicited in the evaluation of these students' character. The direction to the faculty member quotes a portion of the handbook of the National Honor Society which instructs on those aspects of character which an evaluator may want to consider and provides a description of the "student of character" which is taken directly from the National Honor Society handbook. Importantly, faculty members are given the following direction:

> Please rate only those students with whom you have had sufficient contact to make a judgment. Please use the following scale for rating:
>
> 5: Outstanding
> 4: Above average
> 3: Average
> 2: Below average
> 1: Negative
> (J-4 evidence)

The above language is highlighted because I found this direction to the faculty to be telling on the issue of whether the South Plainfield School District was engaging in a faculty vote on a student's eligibility. I find that this instruction to the faculty member to only comment on students with whom they feel they can make an assessment on this very important aspect of admission to the National Honor Society to be an adequate safeguard to reasonably insure that comments are received by faculty members who felt they had enough contact with the student to offer an opinion on character.

Nor am I persuaded by petitioners' argument that the use of numerical categories for grading a student's character constitutes an impermissible polling of faculty. The council could have merely solicited narrative responses by knowledgeable faculty members, but instead, chose to regularize the responses by describing an ideal "student of character' and asking for faculty member's assessment of a particular student against that standard. The assessments were further refined to identified descriptors, to which numerical grades were assigned and averaged. This process of attempting to regularize a somewhat subjective assessment is not the equivalent of a vote by the faculty - which would be impermissible under National Honor Society guidelines. Importantly further, these evaluations by number category were submitted to the faculty council which reviewed them and made discretionary assessments as to whether or not they should all be accepted. Indeed, it is undisputed in the record in this matter that one low score of 2, the only score of 2 which Craig Hook received, was disregarded in the assessment. And further, a questionable marking of 5, the highest rating, was included in his score. Despite this personalized review of the responses by the faculty council, in which the discretion of the council was exercised in favor of Craig Hook, he still did not obtain the 4.0 average which this school district requires for membership in its local chapter of the National Honor Society. I find no reason to disturb that judgment. Indeed, the National Honor Society handbook instructs that > "In the absence of specific evidence to the contrary, however, the principal must assume that the members of the council are exercising their discretion in a legitimate manner and with the good faith expected of them".

In this instance, the principal reviewed this matter and determined to uphold the decision of the faculty council. I agree with the determination of the principal. I find nothing invalid with the process itself in terms of its assessment of character. Indeed, I am hard pressed to criticize a faculty council for soliciting additional information from teachers who may have had more contact with a student, in order to evaluate the somewhat subjective assessment of a student's character. It is difficult to imagine that a five member faculty council in any high school could, without reaching beyond its membership, be able to satisfactorily assess a student's character. In this instance, the faculty council did reach out to other faculty members, asking first if they could express an opinion on the student's character, and then to rate the student's character based upon a scale established by the council with instruction directly from the National Honor Society handbook as to what attributes the student of character should exhibit. This process was not done in bad faith, nor did its result constitute an abuse of discretion.

In conclusion, I am persuaded by the arguments of the Board that petitioners have failed to state a claim upon which relief should be granted, and therefore, the petition of appeal in this matter is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioners filed timely exceptions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. No reply exceptions were filed.

Petitioners' exceptions first posit that the ALJ's perception of the initial character rating procedure in this National Honor Society selection challenge is erroneous. Petitioners suggest that the two faculty chapter advisors compute, average and adjust any and all of the character evaluations, not the faculty council, as the ALJ set forth in the initial decision. Petitioners suggest the faculty council does not receive the character evaluation forms but only the final average score. Thus, they claim, the character evaluations are not subject to discussion by the faculty council. Relying on Appendix 2, National Honor Society's selection procedures at paragraph 4, which states that "the actual selections must be made by the five appointed members of the faculty council" (emphasis in text) (Exceptions, at p. 2), petitioners contend that the use of the two faculty advisors to calculate the scores of the character rating averages "usurps the faculty council's obligations and responsibilities as recommended by the National Chapter of the National Honor Society." (Id.)

Additionally, petitioners except to the ALJ's finding that the use of numerical categories for grading a student's character is a permissible procedure. It is petitioners' contention that "standardizing" (id., at p. 3) the character evaluation forms by using a numerical scale fails to reach the larger and most damaging issue in this matter, that is, that any faculty member may rate a student's character without any requirement or commentary on the depth or length of the faculty member's knowledge of a candidate he or she is asked to rate. Petitioners aver that this anonymous and subjective rating system further deprives the faculty council from exercising its responsibilities.

Thus, petitioners submit that the use of the rating scale and what they claim is an entire faculty vote violates the procedures established by the National Honor Society. They seek Craig Hook's admittance to the South Plainfield Chapter of the National Honor Society forthwith.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this case, the Commissioner affirms the initial decision for the reasons expressed therein.

Petitioners' exceptions cast a slightly different light on their contentions from those raised before the ALJ as to the calculation of the character ratings. However, their newly argued premise that because the faculty advisors may have calculated the character ratings and allegedly submitted only the average score to the faculty council fails in suggesting that this procedure violates the procedures of the National Honor Society or "usurps" the faculty council's obligation as recommended by the National Chapter of the National Honor Society.

First, it must be noted that the Joint Stipulation of Facts signed by petitioners states at paragraph 10 "When the faculty council computed Craig Hook's average character rating, his rating was 3.85, .15 less than the 4.0 standard." (emphasis supplied) (Stipulation of Facts, at p. 3) Thus, while petitioners argue in exceptions that the faculty council does not calculate the average character ratings, they have stipulated as a fact not in dispute that the faculty council did compute Craig Hook's average character rating. See also petitioners' reply brief wherein they state "the Faculty Councilcalculate[s] the average character rating." (Id., at p. 3) However, because paragraph 6(iii) of the Stipulation of Facts seems to contradict paragraph 10 in stating "The faculty council advisor reviews the forms and computes a character rating for each candidate," (at p. 2), further investigation of this new allegation advanced by petitioners need be undertaken.

In so doing, it is observed that the National Honor Society's own "Commentary on the Constitution" (Exhibit J-1, at p. 10) speaks to the faculty advisor's duties. Therein it states in pertinent part:

> the advisor promotes chapter activities, stimulates positive action by members, and > provides information on local and national policies regulating chapter activities. In addition, the advisor approves chapter activities and attends all meetings and functions. The chapter advisor shall be an ex-officio, non-voting, sixth member of the faculty council.

Said "Commentary on the Constitution" further clarifies the role of the chapter advisor in the next paragraph wherein it describes the faculty council:

> The advisor works with the faculty council in selecting or dismissing members. The faculty council shall consist of five voting faculty members appointed annually by the principal. No principal or assistant principal may be on the faculty council. The advisor and the faculty council cooperate in developing and periodically reviewing selection and dismissal procedures not expressly provided for in the Constitution. (emphasis supplied) (Id.)

It is not debated and is, in fact, incorporated in the district's student/parent handbook (Exhibit J-2) that the faculty council selects new members, and that it acts in a screening capacity. (at p. 15)

The Commissioner's consideration of these provisions finds no inconsistency with the faculty council's delegating to the faculty advisor, under the clear provision of the National Constitution of the National Honor Society mentioned above that provides for such delegation, the preliminary task of reviewing the character forms submitted by faculty members and computing a character rating for each candidate.

It is the Commissioner's judgment that insofar as the advisor works with the faculty council in selecting members of the local chapter of the Society, the calculation of such character ratings for each candidate is a mere ministerial function that in no manner compromises the council's duty to consider each candidate's qualification for membership and to make its selections, which are then subject to one final authority, the principal, who according to the National Honor Society Handbook has final say in selection matters. (J-3, at p. 31) Indeed, petitioners do not challenge the fact that the faculty council does in fact review each candidate's rating under the other established criteria for admission. See stipulation of Fact No. 7. Accordingly, the Commissioner rejects petitioners' argument raised in exceptions that because the faculty advisors calculate the character ratings submitted by faculty members, the faculty council's obligations and responsibilities are compromised as being without merit.

As to petitioners' second exception regarding the use of numerical categories for grading a student's character, the Commissioner finds that the ALJ fully and fairly considered such argument and concluded correctly that such process was not conducted in bad faith, nor did its result constitute an abuse of discretion. The Commissioner so finds for the reasons expressed by the ALJ at pages 6 and 7 of the initial decision. He notes in particular ALJ's point that "the evaluations by number category were submitted to the faculty council which reviewed them and made discretionary assessments as to whether or not they should all be accepted." (Id. at p. 6) It is further observed that the decision of the faculty council in the case of Petitioner Hook was affirmed by the principal, who according to the National Honor Society's recommendations is the final authority in such selection matters. A review of the mechanism by which faculty input was secured in respondent's district leads the Commissioner to conclude that the process did not involve an entire faculty vote by virtue of the fact that faculty were instructed only to assess those students known to them and also by virtue of the discretionary assessments made by the council as to whether any such faculty gradings of students known to the individual faculty members were to be accepted or rejected. Moreover, the Commissioner finds that the discretion of the council, through its delegation of the computation of the faculty scores submitted to the faculty advisors in regard to Petitioner Hook's candidacy, was exercised in his favor, but that he failed to obtain the 4.0 average which respondent requires for membership in its local chapter of the National Honor Society.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision as amplified herein, the Petition of Appeal is dismissed, with prejudice.

Record Closed: January 31, 1992 Decided: March 11, 1992

BEFORE DIANA C. SUKOVICH, ALJ:

On May 22, 1991, Miguel De Brito (petitioner) filed a petition with the Department of Education (Department) requesting a ruling that Peter E. Carter (respondent), the Essex County Superintendent of Schools, improperly denied certification for graduation to petitioner on approximately April 8, 1991. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department on June 11, 1991, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

New Jersey is an equal opportunity employer

A hearing was scheduled for February 19, 1992. By letters dated August 16, 1991 and October 17, 1991, the presiding judge advised the parties of the scheduled hearing date and requested that petitioner provide a telephone number where he could be reached so that a telephone conference could be conducted prior to the hearing. Petitioner never did so. By letter filed on January 15, 1992, counsel for respondent forwarded to the judge a letter dated December 30, 1990, which had been sent to her by petitioner. In that letter, petitioner stated that he was not able to continue his appeal and was no longer interested in pursuing the matter. On January 16, 1992, counsel for respondent filed a motion to dismiss the matter for failure by petitioner to respond to interrogatories. By letter dated January 24, 1992, this judge, referencing petitioner's December 30, 1991 letter, requested that he advise me within seven days as to whether or not he intended to withdraw his request for a hearing. Petitioner was also advised that, alternatively, he should file any reply to the previously filed motion to dismiss within seven days.

Petitioner did not file replies to the January 24, 1992 letter of this judge, nor any response to respondent's motion to dismiss. The record was therefore closed on January 31, 1992, and the previously scheduled hearing was adjourned. No further communications have been received from petitioner.

Based upon the foregoing, I FIND that petitioner is deemed to have withdrawn his request for a hearing and has failed to prosecute this matter. I therefore CONCLUDE that petitioner's petition of May 22, 1991 should be dismissed. It is hereby ORDERED that the petition filed by petitioner with the Department on May 2, 1991 be and hereby is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

On May 6, 1991, Ana P. Duarte (petitioner) filed a petition with the Department of Education (Department) contesting a determination by Peter E. Carter (respondent), the Essex County Superintendent of Schools, made on or about April 8, 1991, denying petitioner's certification for graduation from East Side High School. The Department transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on July 18, 1991, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

New Jersey ... Opportunity Em...

Counsel for respondent subsequently filed a motion to dismiss petitioner's petition on January 24, 1992. Petitioner did not file a reply to this motion, and the record was deemed to have closed on February 3, 1992, the expiration of the applicable 10-day period for the filing of responsive papers to a motion. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.2(c).

Based upon a review of the motion papers filed on behalf of respondent, as well as the case file, I FIND the following to be FACTS.

By letter dated August 20, 1991, this judge advised the parties that a hearing was scheduled for February 20, 1992, and requested that petitioner provide a telephone number where she could be reached so that a telephone conference could be conducted prior to the hearing date. The February 20, 1992 hearing date was subseqently adjourned at respondent's request. By letter dated November 13, 1991, counsel for respondent advised this judge that communications mailed by her to petitioner had been returned, with an indication that petitioner had moved and left no forwarding address. Counsel requested that the presiding judge attempt to contact petitioner and also requested that a prehearing conference be scheduled. By letter dated November 19, 1991, this judge again requested that petitioner provide a telephone number at which she could be reached. This letter was returned by postal authorities with an indication that the addressee had moved and left no address. By letter dated December 12, 1991, this judge advised the parties that an in-person conference was scheduled for 3:00 p.m. on January 16, 1992, advised petitioner that if she were not present or represented at the conference, her request for a hearing might be dismissed, and requested that counsel for respondent have her client review his records to determine if there were any other addresses indicated for petitioner or any other means by which to contact her. This letter was sent certified mail, return receipt requested. The receipt indicates that it was accepted, albeit apparently not by petitioner. Counsel informed this judge by letter dated December 19, 1991 that the only address available for petitioner was the one to which all correspondence had been sent. In addition to communications from this judge and counsel for respondent to petitioner, the OAL sent several notices to both parties. The OAL issued a notice of filing on July 24, 1991; a notice of plenary hearing scheduled for February 21, 1992 on October 30, 1991; and a notice of prehearing conference for January 16, 1992 on December 12, 1991.

Based upon the above findings of FACT, I CONCLUDE that the petition filed by petitioner with the Department on May 6, 1991 should be DISMISSED because of a failure to prosecute by petitioner. It is hereby ORDERED that the petition filed by petitioner with the Department on May 6, 1991 be and hereby is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, riffed German teacher with certification in English who submitted notice of retirement upon learning that his position would be abolished, claimed Board violated his tenure and seniority rights when he was not notified about an available English teaching position for which he was duly certified. Board contended petitioner's resignation extinguished his tenure credit.

Initial decision determined under the circumstances of this case the Board had no duty or responsibility to notify petitioner in May 1990 or thereafter that an English teaching position for which he was certified would be open for school year 1990-91 as petitioner's retirement was accepted in October 1989. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner modified findings and determination in initial decision. Commissioner found that English position claimed by petitioner resulted from one-year maternity leave of tenured teacher who intended to return to duty and was therefore not a vacancy for purposes of tenure entitlement. (Lammers State Board decision) Thus, even accepting petitioner's contention that his retirement was conditionally based on there being no available position for him in 1990-91, there was in fact no vacancy to which he was entitled or about which the Board should have notified him upon abolishment of his German position. Commissioner thus found petitioner to have no cause of action and dismissed claim on that basis. Commissioner stressed, however, that boards are obliged to notify riffed teachers who have not severed their relationship with the district through resignation or retirement of any vacancy which arises within their tenure entitlement subsequent to RIF. SUMMARY DISPOSITION

AGENCY DKT. NO. 292-8/90

STEPHEN G. MURRAY,

Petitioner,

v.

NORTHERN HIGHLANDS REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL BOARD OF EDUCATION,

Respondent.

Harold N. Springstead, Esq., for petitioner

James L. Plosia, Jr., Esq., for respondent
(Sills, Cummis, Zuckerman, Radin, Tischman, Epstein & Gross, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 21, 1991 Decided: March 4, 1992

BEFORE GEORGE PERSELAY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed a verified petition, dated August 10, 1990, with the Commissioner of Education, which petition was received August 14, 1990. The petition seeks an order directing the respondent (1) to immediately employ petitioner in an appropriate teaching position; (2) to retroactively compensate petitioner for all salary and/or benefits lost by petitioner as a result of its actions, with interest; (3) to retroactively credit petitioner for any and all seniority credit lost as a result of the respondent's actions; and (4) to provide such further relief as the Commissioner deems appropriate and just.

The respondent filed an answer dated August 23, 1990, which was received by the Commissioner of Education on August 24, 1990.

The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. The matter was marked filed at the OAL September 19, 1990. The matter was set for hearing on January 4, 1991, which was adjourned to allow the completion of discovery. The matter was rescheduled for March 20, 1991.

On February 19, 1991, the respondent filed an original and three copies of a respondent's brief in support of a motion for summary judgment, which briefs were received at the OAL on February 21, 1991. The petitioner filed a brief and appendix in opposition to the motion for summary judgment on March 11, 1991. Respondent filed a reply to petitioner's answering brief on March 21, 1991.

The matter has progressed on the basis of a motion for summary judgment, but no such motion has been received by the OAL to the best of the writer's information and belief. Both parties and this Administrative Law Judge have treated the matter as a pending motion for summary judgment.

The relevant facts are not in dispute. There is no genuine issue as to any material fact and the matter is ripe for summary disposition.

The undisputed facts in this case are as follows:

1. Petitioner joined the respondent high school staff as a German teacher in the fall of 1970.

2. He continued as a full-time teacher through the 1986-1987 school year.

3. Commencing September 1984 through the spring of 1987, the petitioner taught a total of four classes in Latin. The petitioner's certifications are in German, Latin, and English. The petitioner never taught an English class at the respondent high school between 1970 and June 30, 1990.

4. The respondent determined to eliminate German as a foreign language offering and the petitioner's full-time German teaching position was reduced to a four/fifth's position for the 1987-1988 school year. The four/fifth's position was reduced to a two/fifth's teaching position for the 1988-1989 school year.

5. At a meeting held February 13, 1989, the respondent board determined that it would no longer offer instruction in German but agreed to offer one final combination three/fourth's German class during the 1989-1990 school year and created a one/fifth teaching position in German, which was offered to the petitioner and which the petitioner accepted.

6. By letter dated September 25, 1989, the petitioner wrote to the Superintendent of Schools of the respondent as follows:

> Due to the fact that my position is being eliminated next year, I hereby give notice of my intent to retire, effective as of the end of this school year (1989-1990).

7. The board of education at its regular meeting on October 10, 1989 passed a resolution accepting with regret the resignation of the petitioner as a teacher of German, effective June 30, 1990. The vote was unanimous.

8. At the board's regular meeting of May 14, 1990, the board abolished a one-fifth teacher of German position and terminated the employment of Steve Murray, the petitioner, in that position, effective June 30, 1990.

9. By letter dated May 15, 1990, the Superintendent of Schools wrote to the petitioner advising that the board had abolished the position of one/fifth teacher of German. The Superintendent further advised that the petitioner would be placed on a preferred eligibility list relative to the abolished position and that the petitioner would have recall rights in the event there would be a future opening. The petitioner was further advised that he would be notified in writing should the German language program be reinstituted.

8. The board at its public meeting held April 30, 1990, appointed the petitioner as a special two-day per week substitute teacher, May 1, 1990 through June 30, 1990. The purpose of this appointment was to qualify the petitioner for the State Health Benefits Program upon his retirement. Petitioner had made inquiry of the New Jersey Education Association (NJEA) as to his entitlement to State health benefits upon his retirement. In a letter dated April 18, 1990, the Director of Research and Economic Services of the NJEA advised the petitioner that because his hours had been reduced to under 20 hours per week, he was placed in the COBRA Program and continued to receive health benefits, but such extended coverage was to terminate on April 30, 1990. The letter further stated that it was necessary for the petitioner to be enrolled in the State health plan on his last day of employment and that the only means to preserve his benefits was for the respondent board to increase the petitioner's hours to 20 or more hours per week and to enroll the petitioner in the State plan at board expense. By appointing the petitioner for the period stated above, the petitioner qualified for the State Health Benefits Program, without any cost to petitioner, in his retirement.

9. The collective bargaining agreement in existence between the professional teaching staff and the respondent board of education provides that notice of intent to resign, if given to the respondent board prior to October 1 of any school year, would entitle the intended retiree to receive payment for unused sick leave upon retirement. In the instant case, the amount of the petitioner's unused sick leave was $4,780, which balance he received in full or in part upon his retirement.

10. Petitioner asserts in his argument that the stated provision for payment of unused sick leave placed pressure upon him in stating his intention to retire prior to October 1, 1989 (Interrogatory 16).

11. Petitioner states that because of the State health plan predicament, he had to retire directly upon termination of employment or lose the benefit he had obtained by the board appointing him a substitute teacher. "Since I have no position and since the outcome of this proceeding was several months down the road, I had no choice but to proceed with the retirement. Were it not for the fact that I would have lost the health insurance benefit - which is the primary reason I chose to take the early retirement - I would have considered rescinding my notice of intent (Answer to Interrogatory 22).

12. L.R., a tenured English teacher, was on a maternity leave of absence and was not going to be available for the 1990-1991 school year. By resolution dated June 11, 1990, the Board hired D.Z., a nontenured English teacher, who had been previously hired as an English teacher by the respondent to fill the position of L.R. The Board anticipated that L.R. would return from maternity leave for the 1991-1992 school year.

13. By letter dated February 1, 1989, the petitioner wrote a letter to parents of students in the German program. In that letter, he advised that the respondent would offer one section of German for "next year." He advised the parents that the Board wished to make clear that 1989-1990 will be the final year for German at Northern Highlands. The letter contains the following paragraph:

> I am very pleased that the Board has seen fit to allow the eight or nine students involved to more adequately complete their German studies. I am also grateful that I will have the opportunity to see the program through to its end, as next year will also be my 25th - and final - year of teaching.

DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

The petitioner argues that he should be permitted to rescind his notice of intent to retire which will give him the opportunity to fill an available English teaching position, for which he is duly certified. The petitioner recognizes that when a teacher submits a voluntary and unconditional letter of resignation, which is accepted by the Board, the individual has no automatic right to rescind the resignation. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8 requires a tenured teaching staff member to give the employing board of education at least 60 days written notice of his/her intention of desiring to relinquish his/her position. The board may approve a release on shorter notice.

Petitioner seems to argue that there was no known waiver of his tenure rights and that he was available between October 10, 1989 and June 30, 1990 to fill the English teaching position. Petitioner has not moved, at any time, to rescind or extend his resignation, effective the end of the school year 1990. That date is June 30, 1990.

The petitioner, in the absence of a request to extend the date of his retirement or a request to rescind his intent to resign, confuses his continued tenure position with the timing of his resignation.

The petitioner's resignation was accepted on October 10, 1989. The date and time of that resignation was the end of the school year 1989/1990.

The petitioner takes the position that in the event the position of English teacher is offered to him, he will tender back the benefits he received from the board.

Petitioner argues in Point II that the respondent was under a duty to advise the petitioner of his right to teach English in the event of an available position. Under this point of argument, the petitioner imposes a requirement to submit the notice of intention to retire in order to receive the sum of $4,780 in unused sick days. The petitioner has failed to cite any authority for the respondent to notify the petitioner that his English certification could be used to teach English and that there was a position open. The petitioner argues that the respondent [sic] should be permitted to rescind his resignation (Page 9 of petitioner's brief). It is obvious that petitioner has misidentified the resigning party. The answer to this argument is that the petitioner has never requested to rescind his resignation. His petition does not contain a prayer for such relief.

Thirdly, the petitioner argues that the issue of damages cannot be determined in a motion for summary judgment. This Administrative Law Judge agrees that on the facts as they presently exist in the record, damages have not been fully set forth. The question of damages does present a fact issue. Unfortunately, the question of damages does not arise nor survive the motion for summary judgment.

It is apparent that if the respondent's motion for summary judgment is granted, then the question of damages need not be determined.

In support of its motion for summary judgment, the respondent argues that the petitioner's resignation extinguished his tenure credit. It is well-settled that a teacher's resignation tendered and accepted, effectively terminates his previous tenured employment with a board of education and bars any claims to subsequent tenure or seniority entitlement. See Solomon v. Bd. of Ed. of the Princeton Regional School District, Mercer County, 1977 S.L.D. 650, 655-656, aff'd State Board of Ed. 1977 S.L.D. 657; see also Mishkin v. Mountainside Bd. of Ed., 84 S.L.D. 1975 (App. Div.); Bartz & Burke v. Greenbrook Bd. of Ed., Aug. 7, 1987 (State Board of Ed.); Pfeiffer v. Bellmawr Bd. of Ed., 83 S.L.D. 534; Misek v. Willingboro Bd. of Ed., 80 S.L.D. 98; Commins v. Woodbridge Bd. of Ed., 1967 S.L.D. 11.

A teaching staff member has tenure in all positions for which his instructional certificate qualifies him. A tenured teacher is entitled to retention as against a nontenured teacher regardless of seniority, in the event of a RIF. Ellicott v. Bd. of Ed., Twp. of Frankford, Sussex County, (N.J. App. Div., A-2286-90T5, October 24, 1991 (unreported).

Accordingly, had the petitioner not resigned and retired, he would have had tenure to teach the English course.

The respondent further argues that it had no duty to notify the petitioner of the available English teaching position and states that no law requires a board of education to notify a teacher who is RIF'd of his tenure protection rights to a teaching position in a certification area in which he has no seniority. For reasons to be stated later in this decision, the duty to notify the petitioner of the English teaching position opening, if any such duty exists, is negated by the actions of the petitioner, including his early pronouncements of retirement, his opting to seek the benefits of the collective bargaining agreement, and his failure to provide any indication of an intention to extend the date of his resignation or the rescission of his intention to resign.

The respondent has submitted substantial argument regarding petitioner's claim for compensatory damages. Because I shall make a determination upholding the petitioner's resignation, no discussion as to damages need be reviewed in this decision.

The facts in this case disclose an intention on the part of the petitioner to complete 25 years of teaching, to maximize his benefits, and to resign at the end of the 1989-1990 school year. His verified petition is dated August 10, 1990. The record is empty as to any communication between the petitioner and the respondent relating to the termination of this one-fifth German teacher on May 14, 1990; his placement on a preferential rehiring list if the German program was reinstated; objection to the hiring of a nontenured teacher to teach English on June 11, 1990 nor any request to teach English. The record does not contain any assertion of his right, tenured or otherwise, to such English teaching position, nor any request or notice to extend his date of retirement or rescind his notice of resignation. No communication was tendered relating to a withdrawal of his request for unused sick time nor was there any requesting the English teaching assignment or challenging the events as they enfolded.

This Administrative Law Judge places great importance as to the petitioner's state of mind on February 1, 1989 when he directed a letter to the parents of students enrolled in the German program. The letter contained the following:

> I am also grateful that I will have the opportunity to see the program through to its end, as next year will also be my 25th - and final -year of teaching. (Emphasis supplied)

Therein lies the petitioner's mindset. When it came time to submit his intention to resign, under the terms of the collective bargaining agreement, petitioner opted for the quid pro quo, of receiving the sum of $4,780, for unused sick time.

The advantages of the collective bargaining agreement relating to notice of intent to retire were most recently discussed in Hall v. Bd. of Ed. of Jefferson Twp., 125 N.J. 299, 305 (1991). I have not had the privilege of reading the provision of the agreement in this case. Such lack of opportunity is of no matter since the petitioner has not opted to extend, rescind or in any way modify the retirement effective June 30, 1990. Both Hall, supra, and Evaul v. Bd. of Ed., City of Camden, 35 N.J. 244 (1961) involve attempts to undue the results of voluntary resignations by school personnel, a teacher in one and a secretary in the other.

This case lacks such action on the part of the petitioner.

In the instant case, there is no such issue. It is also extremely significant that the petitioner will only consider rescinding his resignation and tender back the emoluments he received pursuant to collective bargaining agreement by his action prior to October 1, 1989 only if he is tendered the English teaching position.

This Administrative Law Judge interprets the failure to seek the extension of the effective date of his resignation as most significant. Judging by the documents included in the motion for summary judgment on behalf of both sides, I am certain that any communication between the petitioner and the respondent board of education between the dates of May 14, 1990 and June 30, 1990 would have been submitted, as well as any between July 1, 1990 and August 10, 1990.

In the absence of such documentation, I must CONCLUDE that no such documents exist. The absence of such documents lead me to believe that the issue as presented is less than bonafide. The simple timing of the filing of the petition, the timing of response to the petition and the early setting of January 4, 1991 as a date for this hearing, all preclude the reality of the petitioner serving in such teaching position, if the board of education sought to meet petitioner's demand. In the eyes of this Administrative Law Judge, the issues here involved have become academic.

In reliance on the petitioner's notice of intent to resign and the respondent's acceptance of his resignation, the respondent gratuitously granted the petitioner's request to increase his working hours to enable him to qualify for the Sate health benefits program, at no cost to petitioner, during his retirement. Judging by the NJEA letter of April 18, 1990, the action of the respondent increasing petitioner's hours, allowed a suggested savings of over $8,000 per year if petitioner was to obtain Blue Cross/Blue Shield coverage on an individual contract. I have little doubt that the respondent's action in this regard was in recognition of the petitioner's outstanding contribution to the educational progam over 20 years of dedicated and devoted service.

I do not criticize respondent's action in this regard, but I recognize the respondent's change in position in reliance on petitioner's stated intention to retire on June 30, 1990.

Together with the petitioner's failure to request any change in his intent to retire, the respondent's action to provide the benefits of the State Health Benefits Program to petitioner and his family mandates that the petition should be dismissed.

CONCLUSIONS

Based upon the foregoing findings of fact and discussion, I CONCLUDE:

1. The issues presented in this matter are ripe for summary judgment.

2. The petitioner's notice of intention to retire, dated September 25, 1989, was consciously and intentionally delivered to obtain the appropriate benefits under the collective bargaining agreement.

3. The notice of intent to retire was accepted by the respondent on October 10, 1989.

4. The petitioner's retirement was effective on October 10, 1989, the date of said retirement being June 30, 1989.

5. The petitioner has not sought to extend, rescind, or in any way modify the date of his retirement.

6. In the absence of any stated authority, the respondent was, under the circumstances of this case and the dates as set forth in the discussion, under no duty or responsibility to notify petitioner in May 1990 or thereafter that an English teaching position, for which he was certified, would be open for the school year 1990-1991.

7. Respondent's reliance and change in position to accommodate petitioner's request to qualify for the State Health Benefits Program on his retirement would preclude any action by petitioner to seek a change in his retirement date or in his intention to retire.

8. On the facts herein presented, the respondent is entitled to a summary judgment on all matters in issue in this case.

ORDER

I hereby ORDER summary disposition in favor of the respondent.

I further ORDER that the petition be DISMISSED, with prejudice.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

STEPHEN G. MURRAY,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE NORTHERN HIGHLANDS REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, as were respondent's replies thereto.

In his exceptions, petitioner argues that the ALJ should have reached to the issues of whether, in view of the Board's being put on notice through filing of the within petition that petitioner would rescind his retirement if offered a position, the Board was obliged to notify petitioner of his legal right to teach English, and whether petitioner had waived his tenure rights by submitting his resignation without knowledge of them. Had these issues been properly addressed, petitioner contends, the matter would have been decided in his favor.

In reply, the Board urges affirmance of the ALJ's decision, noting that petitioner never attempted to rescind his resignation, that there is no basis to compel an acceptance of such rescission in that the Board had no affirmative duty to counsel petitioner as to the possible implications of retirement, that the Board acted in reliance on petitioner's resignation in granting him sick time benefits and making special accommodation for his health insurance, and that even if arguendo petitioner were found to have a cause of action, he had no damages and therefore is not entitled to relief.

Upon careful review, the Commissioner finds that petitioner's appeal must be dismissed because there was no vacancy to which he was entitled either at the time of his resignation or upon his retirement.

As well stated by the State Board of Education in its decision of June 5, 1991 in the matter of Catherine Lammers v. Board of Education of the Borough of Point Pleasant, Ocean County, a position unoccupied by a person on approved leave who contemplates a return to duty is not a vacancy for tenure entitlement purposes:

> N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 provides that:
> > If any teaching staff member shall be dismissed as a result of such reduction, such person shall be and remain upon a preferred eligible list in the order of seniority for reemployment whenever a vacancy occurs in a position for which such person shall be qualified and he shall be reemployed by the body causing dismissal, if and when such vacancy occurs....(Emphasis added.)
>
> In Mirandi v. Board of Education of the Township of West Orange, decided by the State Board of Education, April 5, 1989, we recognized that that statute also controls reemployment by virtue of tenure of a teaching staff member dismissed in a RIF.
> It is well established, however, that an assignment which is temporarily unoccupied by an absent teaching staff member does not constitute a "vacancy." That distinction was made clear in

Sayreville Educ. Ass'n v. Board of Educ., Etc., 193 N.J. Super. 424 (App. Div. 1984), construing N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1, which authorizes district boards to "designate some person to act in place of any officer or employee during the absence, disability or disqualification of any such officer or employee..." The court stated:

> We construe the authorization of this provision [N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1] as applying when the services of a substitute teacher are required because of the temporary absence, even if protracted, of a regular teacher whose return to duty is contemplated. We do not construe it as authorizing the use of a substitute to fill a vacant position on a long-term basis....If that other employee has, however, terminated his employment, then the place which the appointee is filling is not the place of the other but rather a vacant place, and the statute ordinarily does not apply....Again the implication is clear that the place for which the temporary substitute teacher was hired is not vacant but only temporarily unoccupied by its incumbent. (Emphasis added.)
> Sayreville, supra, at 428

It is undisputed in this case that Anthony was assigned to act in place of a teacher on an approved maternity leave. Thus, the place for which Anthony was employed was not vacant but only temporarily unoccupied by its incumbent, whose return to duty was contemplated. Since N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 expressly limits reemployment rights for teaching staff members on preferred eligibility lists to "vacancies occurring in positions for which such person is qualified" (emphasis added), Petitioner would have no entitlement under this statute to employment in an assignment in which she would be filling the place of a regular teacher who was temporarily absent, nor has she cited any other provision of the school laws that would give her such entitlement. The fact that the controverted assignment was for a full academic year is of no moment. Although Sayreville makes it clear that a vacant position cannot be filled by use of a substitute on a long-term basis, there is no such constraint on a position which is filled as the result of the temporary absence, even if > protracted, of a regular teacher whose return to duty is contemplated. (emphasis in text) > (Lammers State Bd. Slip Opinion, at pp. 3-5)

In the matter herein, it is undisputed that the English "vacancy" claimed by petitioner was the result of a one-year leave of absence by a teacher who contemplated a return to duty, and papers submitted by the parties reveal no dispute over, or specified claim to, other positions held by nontenured staff. Thus, when petitioner stated his intention to retire as a result of his impending RIF, there was no position in which the Board failed to place him or about which the Board failed to notify him.

Moreover, even granting arguendo petitioner's contention that the Board should have advised him of the full potential scope of his tenure rights, at the time of petitioner's resignation (September 1989) it had not yet been clearly established that teachers' tenure protection extended to all endorsements on the instructional certificate, including those under which a teacher had never served. Joseph Grosso v. Board of Education of the Borough of New Providence, State Board decision, March 7, 1990. Under petitioner's own terms, then, the Board violated no known duty owed to petitioner.

Even under the interpretation most favorable to petitioner, that his retirement might have been deemed conditional because it was based on the presumption of an impending RIF, petitioner was not prejudiced by his lack of knowledge regarding the theoretical scope of his tenure rights. While Grosso had been decided by the time petitioner's position was actually abolished, there was no vacancy to which the Board could appoint him or about which it should have informed him as a result. Indeed, events transpired exactly as they would have if petitioner had known or been informed about the possibility of an English entitlement sometime in the future: petitioner's German position was slated for elimination and there was no other position available to him by tenure right; because he had no prospect for teaching in 1990-91, he elected to retire and proceeded to resign, collect benefits and do all other things consistent with his stated intentions; an "opening" was created by an English teacher's 1990-91 maternity leave, but no vacancy existed and petitioner therefore had no entitlement to claim the position of the absent teacher or receive any notice from the Board as to its existence; petitioner's retirement duly took effect and his relationship with the district was severed. Thus, even with every inference granted to him, petitioner has no basis upon which to seek relief.

While the Commissioner fully concurs with the Board that it has no affirmative duty to act as "counselor" to retiring or resigning employees, he does note a potential for confusion in certain statements in the initial decision which could be read to imply that boards are not obliged to notify riffed tenured teachers who have not severed their relationship with the district through resignation or retirement when positions to which they are entitled by tenure right become available subsequent to RIF. To the contrary, the Court has specifically held that districts are so bound by the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12, even when the position arises several years after RIF. Maurice S. Kaprow v. Board of Education of Berkeley Township, decided by the Appellate Division March 25, 1992, A-3362-90T2.

Accordingly, for the reasons stated herein, the Commissioner affirms the recommendation of the ALJ that petitioner's appeal be dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE NORTHERN HIGHLANDS REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, April 23, 1992

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Springstead & Maurice (Harold N. Springstead, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Apruzzese, McDermott, Mastro & Murphy (James L. Plosia, Jr., Esq., of Counsel)

Stephen G. Murray (hereinafter" petitioner"), a tenured teaching staff member, had been employed by the Board of Education of the Northern Highlands Regional High School District (hereinafter "Board") as a teacher of German since 1970. The Board determined to eliminate German as a foreign language offering at the end of the 1989-90 school year. On September 25, 1989, petitioner, citing the impending abolishment of his position, gave the Board notice of his intent to retire, effective at the end of the 1989-90 year. The Board accepted his "resignation" on October 10. On May 14, 1990, the Board abolished petitioner's position effective June 30 and terminated his employment therein.

On June 11, 1990, the Board approved an unpaid child care leave in 1990-91 for an English teacher in the district. The Board employed a non-tenured individual to act in her place during her absence. Petitioner, who held an endorsement in English, filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education alleging that the Board had violated his tenure rights in failing to appoint him to such assignment.

On March 4, 1992, an administrative law judge ("ALJ") recommended dismissing the petition. The ALJ stressed that petitioner had not sought to extend, rescind or modify the date of his retirement and that the Board had been under no duty to notify him that an assignment teaching English would be available in 1990-91.

On April 23, 1992, the Commissioner of Education dismissed the petition, concluding that petitioner had no entitlement by virtue of tenure to the position of the absent teacher. The Commissioner, in reliance upon the State Board's decision in Lammers v. Board of Education of the Borough of Point Pleasant, decided by the State Board, June 5, 1991, found that there was no "vacancy" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 to which petitioner was entitled either at the time of his resignation or upon his retirement.[1] The Commissioner, citing Lammers, stressed that an assignment unoccupied by a staff member on approved leave who contemplated a return to duty was not a vacancy for tenure entitlement purposes.

1 N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 provides, in pertinent part:

> If any teaching staff member shall be dismissed as a result of such reduction [in force], such person shall be and remain upon a preferred eligible list in the order of seniority for reemployment whenever a vacancy occurs in a position for which such person shall be qualified and he shall be reemployed by the body causing dismissal, if and when such vacancy occurs....

Observing that the assignment claimed by petitioner in this case was the result of a one-year leave of absence by a teacher who contemplated a return to duty, the Commissioner dismissed the petition. He asserted that since no vacancy existed, petitioner had no entitlement to claim the assignment of the absent teacher or to receive notice from the Board as to its existence. He also noted that petitioner's retirement duly took effect and his employment relationship with the district was severed.

The petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board.

While this appeal was pending, the Appellate Division reversed the State Board's decision in Lammers, which formed the basis for the Commissioner's decision in this matter. That decision, however, was subsequently reversed by the state Supreme Court, which reinstated the decision of the State Board. Lammers, supra, rev'd, Docket #A-5494-90T1 (App. Div. May 12, 1992), decision on reconsideration, Docket #A-5494-90T1 (App. Div. Nov. 17, 1992), rev'd, 134 N.J. 264 (1993).

After a thorough review of the record in light of the Supreme Court's decision in Lammers, we affirm the decision of the Commissioner.

Petitioner herein claimed entitlement to an assignment held by a teacher on an approved one-year maternity leave. In Lammers, the Supreme Court settled that a one-year leave of absence does not create a vacancy or temporary vacancy under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 so as to provide a tenured teacher whose position has been abolished as the result of a reduction in force with a statutory entitlement to the assignment of the absent teacher. As related by the Court, case law has established "that the word 'vacancy' is commonly understood to mean an unoccupied position for which an incumbent does not intend to return, as contrasted with a leave of absence that 'connotes continuity of the employment status.'" Lammers, supra, 134 N.J. at 272. Consequently, the approved leave herein did not create a "vacancy" to which petitioner could claim entitlement under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12.

Nor has petitioner established his entitlement to be placed on a preferred eligibility list for reemployment when a vacancy does occur for which he is qualified. As pointed out by the ALJ, petitioner has not requested to extend, rescind or modify his retirement. Rather, he maintains that his retirement was "forced" since he had not been made aware that his tenure rights would extend to assignments teaching English and that he should, in fairness, be placed on a preferred eligibility list pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. We find nothing in the education laws that would authorize such a result. Nor has petitioner indicated any provisions thereof that would provide him with such an entitlement.

Accordingly, as indicated herein, we affirm the decision of the Commissioner to dismiss the instant petition.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

Petitioner, Adult Diagnostic & Treatment Center ("ADTC") and the Department of Corrections ("DOC"), and Respondent, Barbara Legutko, desire to enter into the following settlement agreement in the public interest:

1. WHEREAS, Respondent, Barbara Legutko, a tenured teacher, has been employed by the DOC as an Art Instructor at ADTC since 1978; and

2. WHEREAS, Respondent has never been subject to any disciplinary proceedings in the course of that employment; and

3. WHEREAS, on June 19, 1990 DOC advised Respondent that the DOC was referring tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"), and in accordance with DOC Personnel Bulletin 84-17, the following charges were specified: 1) Subsection D, Safety & Security Precautions 7. Violation of administrative procedures and regulations involving safety and security; 2) Subsection E., General 1. Violation of rules, regulations, policy, procedure, order or administrative decision; and 3) Subsection D, Safety and Security Precautions, 5. Failure to report loss of tools and equipment or articles; and

4. WHEREAS, beginning June 26, 1990 prior to certifying the charges to the Commissioner, the DOC suspended Respondent without pay for a 120-calendar day period; and

5. WHEREAS, on July 3, 1990 Respondent Legutko filed a Petition with the Commissioner of Education alleging that the DOC violated tenure laws by making a final determination to suspend her prior to filing written charges with the Commissioner of Education; and

6. WHEREAS, on July 20, 1990, the DOC filed written charges with the Commissioner requesting dismissal or reduction in salary of Respondent; and

7. WHEREAS, on October 11, 1990, then Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes acknowledged in writing that both parties in this matter concurred that copies of certain supporting documents filed with the Commissioner were not provided to Respondent or her representative until October 4, 1990; and

8. WHEREAS, Respondent was not employed elsewhere during the course of her 120-calendar day suspension; and

9. WHEREAS, on October 23, 1990 at ADTC's request, Respondent returned to work from her 120-calendar day suspension; and

10. WHEREAS, Respondent has been working at ADTC as an Art Instructor without interruption and without incident since her return to work on October 23, 1990; and

11. WHEREAS, on October 1, 1991, new Policy and Procedures for the Art Program were put into effect which included guidelines for Art Program participation, attendance policies, program activities and scheduling, and which established security procedures for Art Room tools and equipment, thereby structuring the Art Program so as to insure greater security; and

12. WHEREAS, on January 16 and 22, 1992, tenure hearings began before Administrative Law Judge Steven Reback, and additional hearing dates were scheduled for March 10 and April 15, 16 and 23, 1992; and

13. WHEREAS, it was determined that the DOC's evaluations of Respondent's performance in her teaching duties were more than satisfactory;

IT IS THEREFORE AGREED that the DOC will withdraw the tenure charges against the Respondent subject to the approval of the Commissioner; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that the DOC will pay the Respondent a lump sum of $4,000.00 subject to approval of this settlement by the Commissioner of DOE; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that the DOC will not deduct funds from the $4,000.00 lumps sum and makes no representation concerning what Federal or State taxes, if any, said lump sum may be subject to: and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that nothing in this settlement shall be deemed to be an admission of liability on behalf of either party.

HOWEVER, should the Commissioner of DOE or the State Board of Education refuse to approve the withdrawal of said tenure charges by the DOC or by Respondent, any such refusal shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue the matter further.

THE REASONS FOR ENTERING INTO THIS AGREEMENT ARE AS FOLLOWS:

(a) The costs of continuing to prosecute the tenure claims against the Respondent, as well as defending against the Respondent's Petition, are expected to be substantial; and

(b) In view of the revisions in Art Program policy and procedures, the opportunity for security violations is reduced. The revisions in Art Program policy are compatible with appropriate instruction; and

(c) Respondent is waiving her right to receive any back salary and attorney fees other than the $4,000.00 lump sum; and

(d) Even if Petitioner were to sustain its burden of proof, there is a question of penalties, since Respondent was suspended prior to filing of charges, and further proof of service of the charges and supporting documentation was not made till near the expiration of the 120-calendar day suspension.

The announced results of the balloting for three members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each at the annual school election held April 7, 1992 in the School District of the Borough of Sea Bright, Monmouth County were as follows:

	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-15c, because of a tie vote for membership on the school board, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the Office of the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the ballots cast for the two candidates receiving the same number of votes. The recount was conducted on April 16, 1992, at the Office of the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools on only the write-in votes cast, which were recorded on the paper roll from the voting machine used and placed in the sealed election envelope of the school district.

At the conclusion of the recount, the tally stood as follows:

	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Carol Salomon	47	0	47
Anne Marie Sundberg	51	0	51
Harriet Primack (write-in)	11	0	11

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts as his own the findings set forth above.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that Carol Salomon, Anne Marie Sundberg, and Susan Feiring were elected to full terms of three years each on the Board of Education of the School District of the Borough of Sea Bright.

NORTHERN BURLINGTON COUNTY REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, Respondents.	SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

Petitioners residing at 11 Hockey Drive, Columbus, Mansfield Township, Burlington County, New Jersey and the Respondents whose address is Mansfield Township, Burlington County, New Jersey hereby enter into the following settlement to the above captioned controversy.

The Respondents, Northern Burlington County Regional School District, will afford the Petitioner, Dennis G. Pontani, the opportunity to complete all courses begun on the home bound program which includes Computer Programming, Physical Education and Health, Keyboarding, Sociology and English IVB. Each course carries a semester credit of 2.5 credits, with the exception of Physical Education and Health which is graded quarterly. The Petitioner has already been credited 1.25 credit hours for previous completion of the health requirement and therefore after satisfaction of the physical education portion, an additional 1.25 credit hours will be posted to the Petitioner's transcript. After satisfactorily completing these courses, Petitioner will be credited a total of 11.25 credits to his transcript.

The settlement provides that the Petitioner's instructors will solely decide how much work needs to be completed to receive the credit and if further work is needed, said work will be provided and/or further instruction will be provided to the Petitioner, Dennis G. Pontani, so that he is given the opportunity to complete each course. If the instructor is satisfied that the Petitioner has fulfilled all course requirements, the appropriate credit will be automatically applied to the student's transcript.

Petitioners will dismiss their Petition for Emergent Relief and appeal of the School Board's actions to the Commissioner in consideration of this settlement.

APRIL 24, 1992

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL :
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH : DECISION OF LAUREL SPRINGS, CAMDEN COUNTY. :

The announced results of the balloting for three members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each at the annual school election held on April 7, 1992, in the School District of the Borough of Laurel Springs, Camden County, were as follow:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Bryan Rodilosso	188	3	191
Andrew M. Seder	187	2	189
Michael J. Caccia	186	2	188
Veronica Mulhearn	187	1	188
Robert Thomas	171	0	171
Gina R. Solimeo	150	1	151

As there was a tie between two candidates for the third seat on the Board of Education, the Commissioner of Education directed an authorized representative to conduct a recount of the ballots cast pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-15c. The recount was conducted on April 16, 1992 at the Voting Machine Warehouse, South Jersey Port Corporation, Camden, New Jersey. The absentee ballots were also recounted by the Camden County Board of Elections on April 16, 1992.

At the conclusion of the recount, the tally stood as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Bryan Rodilosso	188	3	191
Andrew M. Seder	187	2	189
Michael J. Caccia	186	2	188
Veronica Mulhearn	187	1	188
Robert Thomas	171	0	171
Gina R. Solimeo	150	1	151

As there were no changes on recount, the tie for the third member was not broken and the results remain the same as those derived from the balloting of April 7, 1992. Therefore, it is recommended that a special election be held to decide the winner for the third seat on the Board of Education. This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts its findings as his own.

Accordingly, pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-15c, the Commissioner directs the conduct of a special election to be held within sixty (60) days of April 7, 1992 and restricted to the two candidates receiving the same number of votes for the third Board seat as indicated above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

FINDINGS

1. Cynthia F. Stichman ("Petitioner") filed a Petition of Appeal dated September 13, 1991 alleging that the Board of Education of the Morris School District ("Respondent") withheld Petitioner's increments for the 1991-92 school year for reasons that were arbitrary, capricious, and without good cause.

2. On September 24, 1991 Respondent filed an Answer to the Petition denying all allegations of the Petition.

3. On October 1, 1991, this matter was transferred as a contested case to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL").

4. The parties wish to resolve their differences amicably without a hearing and therefore, have entered into this Stipulation of Settlement and Withdrawal of Request for a Hearing ("Stipulation").

STIPULATION

NOW THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY STIPULATED AND AGREED THAT:

5. Upon the approval by the Commissioner of Education of the within Stipulation, Petitioner shall be deemed to have irrevocably resigned her tenured teaching staff position and her current assignment as Librarian/Media

Specialist at the Woodland School in the Morris School District and her employment by the Respondent shall terminate effective as of the last day of the 1992-93 school year.

8. In the event any prospective employer contacts Respondent regarding Petitioner's employment in the Morris School District, Respondent shall follow its practice with regard thereto.

9. Petitioner hereby withdraws her administrative hearing request for OAL Docket No. EDU-9286-91. Petitioner shall notify OAL of this withdrawal within ten (10) days after receipt of this executed Stipulation by filing a copy with the Honorable Joseph F. Martone, Administrative Law

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon a review of the terms of the settlement, the Commissioner must reject the accord reached between the parties because there is no demonstration in the record that petitioner is sick and therefore able to call upon her bank of sick leave "[u]pon the approval by the Commissioner of Education of the within Stipulation until the expiration of the 1992-93 school year." (Proposed Stipulation of Settlement, at paragraph 7)

Additionally, the Commissioner notes the absence of explanation as to what constitutes the Board's policy in regard to disclosure of information to prospective employers as mentioned at paragraph 8 of the settlement's terms. Insofar as the stipulation indicates at paragraph 8 "[i]n the event any prospective employer contacts Respondent regarding Petitioner's employment in the Morris School District, Respondent shall follow its practice with regard thereto" (emphasis supplied), the Commissioner is obliged to note that such information must conform to the requirements of law as set forth in such cases as John Salsberg v. Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, Morris County, decided by the Commissioner May 11, 1989.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed herein, the instant settlement is rejected and remanded to the Office of Administrative Law for further action consistent with this decision.

BEFORE JOSEPH F. MARTONE, ALJ

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

In this matter, petitioner challenges the withholding of her salary increments for the 1991-1992 school year and also seeks other relief based on other allegations. In this matter, which previously had OAL DKT. EDU 9286-91, the parties agreed to settle, and they prepared a stipulation of settlement indicating the terms of settlement.

By initial decision dated March 17, 1992, the stipulation of settlement was approved. However, by decision dated April 30, 1992, the Commissioner of the Department of Education rejected the settlement and remanded the matter to the OAL on May 27, 1992, for further proceedings, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

Prior to the scheduling of further proceedings in this matter, the parties agreed to settle this matter and entered into a Stipulation of Settlement and Withdrawal of Request for Hearing. This Stipulation of Settlement was submitted to the OAL on June 16, 1992.

The decision of the Commissioner of Education on remand rejected the prior settlement reached between the parties because there was no demonstration in the record that petitioner was sick and therefore able to call upon her bank of sick leave. There is annexed to the stipulation of settlement in this matter attachments indicating that petitioner is sick and has been under treatment since May 1990.

In addition, the Commissioner's decision on remand noted the absence of an explanation as to what constitutes respondent's policy with regard to disclosure of information to prospective employers of petitioner. Since this paragraph has been eliminated and since the Commissioner's decision notes that such information must conform to the requirements of law of as set forth in such cases as John Salsberg v. Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, Morris County, decided by the Commissioner on May 11, 1989, this requirement shall be deemed to be imposed upon the parties.

Accordingly, I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or signatures of their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the terms of settlement and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Re Ms. Cynthia Stichman

This will certify that Ms. Cynthia Stichman has been using my services for consultation and treatment since May, 1990. The diagnosis (DSM-III-R): 309.89 Post-traumatic Stress Disorder. Her condition will require continued treatment for an indeterminate time.

Therefore, I believe that a leave of absence for the 1992-1993 school year is both necessary and appropriate.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, riffed high school business teacher, alleged Board violated her tenure and seniority rights by retaining the services of a less senior teacher (intervenor) in a middle school computer skills position.

Initial decision dismissed petition as untimely based upon petitioner's failure to comply with provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) the 90-day rule. (Gordon; North Plainfield) ALJ found petitioner waited 18 months from notice of RIF before filing petition.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Moreover, Commissioner noted Superior Court recently addressed same arguments on 90-day rule in Kaprow. Petition was dismissed as untimely.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW , ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Jeanne Sasse, who was subject to a reduction in force (RIF), avers that the action of the Board of Education of the Borough of Point Pleasant (Board) to retain the services of a teacher with less seniority than petitioner to perform teaching functions on a full-time basis, contravenes petitioner's tenure and seniority rights. Petitioner seeks, among other things, to be assigned to the controverted teaching position together with retroactive compensation for all salary and other benefits commencing with the 1990-91 school year, with interest. The Board denies petitioner's allegations and sets forth four affirmative defenses asserting, among other things, that: petitioner's Petition of Appeal is untimely and violates the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2; petitioner is not certified to teach the position she seeks; petitioner is guilty of laches; petitioner has never been employed by the Board under her certificate of teacher of data processing, therefore, petitioner has no seniority rights thereto.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et. seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et. seq.

Intervenor Helen Phillips was granted the right to fully participate, as a party in interest, by way of an Order, dated May 14, 1991, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.1 et. seq.

The hearing was held on December 16, 1991, at the South Toms River Municipal Court. The parties requested and were granted leave to submit post hearing memoranda. The last submission was filed on February 18, 1992, which constitutes the close of the hearing record.

ISSUES

The issues to be resolved by this tribunal, and agreed upon by the parties, are these:

1. Whether petitioner's tenure and seniority rights were violated by the failure of the Board to employ her to a Computer Skills position at its Middle School?

2. Whether petitioner's Petition of Appeal is untimely filed and violates the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2?

3. Whether petitioner is certified to teach the position she seeks?

4. Whether petitioner is guilty of laches?

5. Whether petitioner has ever been employed by the Board in the capacity using her certificate as a teacher of data processing?

   a. If not, whether she has a legitimate claim of seniority rights to the position?

STIPULATED FACTS

The parties executed a Stipulation of Facts, with exhibits attached, which are included herein and made a part hereof, and are hereby adopted as FINDINGS OF FACT as follows:

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the testimony and other evidence adduced at the hearing; and having given fair weight thereto, I FIND the additional FACTS in this matter:

14. Pursuant to Board Policy No. 6130, the Board has organized its schools, in part, as follows:

Elementary - Grades Kindergarten through five
Middle - Grades six through eight (elementary organization)
High - Grades nine through twelve

(R-3)

15. On or about July 1, 1987, Roy W. Feldman, Principal of the Board's Memorial Middle School, wrote a letter to Joseph E. Zach, Ocean County Superintendent of Schools, concerning the use of Intervenor Phillips in the Middle School Computer Program. (R-1)

16. On or about July 27, 1987, Ocean County Superintendent Zach addressed a letter to the Board's Superintendent of Schools, to acknowledge receipt of the letter from Principal Feldman and to advise the Board's Superintendent that the assignment of Intervenor Phillips to the Middle School Computer Program was approved. Superintendent Zach continued to state:

> ... Her [Phillips] New Jersey certification as an Elementary School Teacher, K-8, is the proper and correct certification for this job assignment. (R-2)

17. Petitioner was given notice of her RIF by way of letter dated April 14, 1989. Petitioner's Petition of Appeal before the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) is dated November 5, 1990, and was received by the Commissioner on November 13, 1990.

TESTIMONIAL EVIDENCE

Petitioner testified, among other things, that after she had been advised of the abolishment of her teaching position and RIF in April 1989, she inquired of her school principal concerning the Computer Assisted Learning Computer Lab, (CALCL) position in the Board's Middle School held by Intervenor Phillips. Petitioner testified that Mr. Leo Baranowski, the High School Business Education Supervisor, also supervised Phillips' data processing course in the Middle School. Petitioner asserted that the high school principal told her "you did not understand these things" when petitioner inquired as to Phillips' seniority status. Petitioner did not appeal her RIF in April 1989, after receipt of the notice from the Superintendent of Schools; her discussion with her high school principal and representatives of the local teachers' association.

Petitioner testified that in or about July 1990, she received information from the president of her union that the computer program was still being offered at the Middle School and that petitioner should pursue litigation as a consequence of her

RIF. As set forth in the herein Findings of Fact, petitioner's appeal was filed before the Commissioner on November 13, 1990.

Superintendent George Kane testified, among other things, that the Board adopted Policy No. 6130 which organized its Middle School under an elementary school organization with grades 6 through 8. Grades 7 and 8 are semidepartmentalized and the teaching staff members possess elementary teaching certificates. Superintendent Kane asserted that Mr. Baranowksi did not supervise nor evaluate Ms. Phillips in the conduct of CALCL nor did he supervise or evaluate any Middle School teaching staff members. Nor was the Middle School CALCL program under the supervision of the High School. The Middle School principal was and is responsible for the supervision of the CALCL and the evaluation of Intervenor Phillips.

Intervenor Phillips testified about the CALCL program, among other things. There are 32 Apple computers in the laboratory for laboratory and classroom work. The program is organized to offer eight (8) fifth grade sections and eight (8) sixth grade sections where the basic use and care of computers is taught. There are seven (7) periods during the school day and Phillips teaches two of those periods. The seventh and eighth grade pupils have no specific computer course. Rather, the computer laboratory is used in conjunction with regular classroom instruction and activities; i.e., reading, writing, mathematics, science, social studies, among others. Petitioner asserted that the regular classroom teacher is generally present when the pupils are engage in laboratory work. The pupils are assigned to the computer laboratory once every five weeks for every course taken.

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

I

The Timeliness of Petitioner's Petition of Appeal and Whether it Violated the Provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2?

The following represents a summary of the legal arguments of the parties:

Respondent Board's Position

The Board relies upon and cites N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c) which provides that:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education ... which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

The Board observes that the parties have stipulated the Board adopted a resolution on April 13, 1989 which abolished petitioner's teaching position thereby effectuating a RIF. The parties also stipulated that petitioner was advised by letter, dated April 14, 1989, of such RIF affecting petitioner's employment and her placement on a preferred eligible list in order of seniority for her reemployment. (J-1)

The Board observes that the Petition of Appeal in the instant matter is dated November 5, 1990, more than 18 months subsequent to the Board's resolution, which is the final action that is the gravamen of the petitioner's claim. Petitioner was given notice of the RIF on or about April 14, 1989. The herein Petition of Appeal was filed before the Commissioner more than 18 months subsequent to petitioner's receipt of said notice.

The Board further observes that the Commissioner has the authority to relax the rules in connection with the determination of controversies and disputes, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15. It argues that the time bar for filing a petition should not be relaxed where the delay is so egregious as in the instant matter. The Board's research revealed few cases where the rule was waived subsequent to the State Board of Education having adopted the 90-day rule in 1976. Those cases cited by the Board, where a few post-rule cases survied lack of compliance, can readily be distinguished from the instant matter where petitioner herein filed her action almost 18 months after the official Board action and notice to petitioner and failed to explain her lack of compliance with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2.

The Board argues that time limitations for the assertion of claims, whether based on rule or statute, or whether based in equitable doctrines such as laches, serve salutary purposes which should not be regarded lightly. It cites the matter of Flammia v. Maller, 66 N.J. Super. 440 (1961), where the Appellate Court said:

> The rationale of the doctrine of laches is said to be the policy which requires, for the peace of society, the discouragement of stale demands. 19 Am. Jur.,

> Equity, §492, p. 340 (1939). It is the equitable counterpart of statutes of limitation. The adjudicated cases "proceed on the assumption that the party to whom laches is imputed has knowledge of his rights, and an ample opportunity to establish them in the proper forum; that by reason of his delay the adverse party has good reason to believe that the alleged rights are worthless or have been abandoned; and that, because of the change in condition or relations during this period of delay, it would be an injustice to the latter to permit him now to assert them." Galliher v. Cadwell, 145 U.S. 368, 372, 12 S. Ct. 873, 36 L. Ed. 738 (1891)
> Id. at 453

The Board observes that the 90 day rule is based solely on chronological computation, regardless of any other factor, including the absence or presence of prejudice to opposing parties by reason of the delay. The authority of the Commissioner to waive the application of the rule, under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, is a safety valve available to avert the harsh results that strict enforcement of a rule based exclusively on time elapsed might cause in some cases; e.g., Shokey v. Board of Education of the Township of Cinnaminson, 1978 S.L.D. 919, a mere 22 days past the filing deadline. In the instant matter, however, petitioner is guilty not only of late filing per the 90 day rule, but also of laches, since her delay has worked to the prejudice of the Board and Intervenor. In the case of Borough of Park Ridge v. Salimone, 36 N.J. Super. 485 (1955), aff'd 21 N.J. 28, the Appellate Bench observed, at 494-495, that:

> The courts have long recognized the need for prompt action by public employees in seeking judicial review of their discharge. The reason is obvious. It is important that public duties be carried on without interruption or with as little interruption as possible. A governing body must be allowed to fill the employment in the public service with all necessary dispatch free from unnecessary risk of double payment of wages. (citations omitted)

The Board requests, therefore, that the instant matter be dismissed for the failure by petitioner to comply with N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2.

Intervenor's Position

Intervenor similarly argues, among other things, that the herein Petition should be dismissed grounded upon petitioner's failure to assert her claim in a timely manner under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. Intervenor contends the instant matter is controlled by the Supreme Court's decision in North Plainfield Education Association v. North Plainfield Board of Education, 96 N.J. 587 (1984), where it held that N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 applied to the denial of salary increments under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-11 and that the withholding did not constitute a continuing violation which would give rise to a new cause of action each year.

Intervenor observes that matters involving tenure and seniority rights are also subject to the 90 day rule. In the matter of Gordon v. Passaic Township Board of Education, 1985, S.L.D. 1929 (3/6/85), aff'd. (App. Div. Dkt. No. A-3294-84T7 (5/27/86) (unreported), aff'd. 105 N.J. 534 (1986), the Appellate Court held that the time limitations in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 applied. In that case, the State Board held that tenure and seniority rights of teachers, like salary increments in North Plainfield, were predicated on the rendering of a teacher's services. 1985 S.L.D. at 1931. Accordingly, the State Board held that the statute of limitations in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 applied to claims which alleged the violation of tenure or seniority rights. Id. The State Board also concluded that, consistent with case law, the 90 day rule is to be strictly applied and must be measured from the time when the cause of action accrued. Id.

In Gordon, the local board abolished petitioner's instrumental music position in April 1980. In December 1982, the petitioner became informally aware that the Board had created a new vocal/instrumental position. On May 17, 1983, more than four months after he became aware that the board had created a new position, petitioner filed his appeal with the Commissioner of Education asserting a violation of his tenure and seniority rights. The State Board held that petitioner's cause of action accrued in December 1982 when became informally aware that the board had created a new position. Id. at 1932. Because the petition was filed almost four months later, the State Board held that the petition must be dismissed and he was not entitled to retroactive or prospective relief. Id.

The Appellate Division affirmed the State Board of Education's decision (Slip op. at 4). The Court agreed with the reasoning of the State Board of Education that a reduction in force has a relationship to the services to be rendered by a teacher. The Court therefore agreed that the time limitations of the regulation applied. (Slip op. at 8).

It is Intervenor's position that petitioner's cause of action accrued in April 1989 when she was formally notified of the RIF. Because petitioner failed to comply with the time constraints in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2, her petition should be dismissed.

Petitioner's Position

Petitioner, among other things, sets forth three arguments that her claims are not time barred by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2. She contends: (1) that the 90 day rule was not properly promulgated by the State Board of Education; (2) that the 90 day limitation period is inapplicable to the statutory claims made by petitioner; and, (3) that her Petition of Appeal was timely filed.

First, petitioner argues extensively that statutes of limitations enacted by the State Legislature and related interpretive common law (no time was fixed for the bringing of an action) constitute the exclusive body of law which the Legislature intended to apply to petitioner's tenure rights and, therefore, notwithstanding the Legislature's delegation of any other powers to the State Board, the State Board is preempted from acting in the limitations area. Petitioner contends, among other things, that the promulgation of the 90 day rule by the State Board was unauthorized by the Legislature and, therefore, is ultra vires.

Second, petitioner argues that the 90 day limitations period is inapplicable to her asserted tenure/seniority rights. She observes that in Lavin v. Hackensack Board of Education, 90 N.J. 145 (1982), the Supreme Court held that the statute of limitations should not be applied to a statutory benefit. In Lavin, the Court held that "where the benefit is not directly related to the employment service, but is being awarded for a totally unrelated reason, the recipient is truly the beneficiary of a statutory entitlement quite apart from the employment as such." 90 N.J. at 150.

Petitioner observes that in North Plainfield Education Association v. Board of Education, 96 N.J. 587 (1984), the Supreme Court considered the statutory entitlement concept to determine whether the 90 day limitation would bar future statutory claims to credit on the (salary) scale for time spent on sabbatical. In North Plainfield, the Supreme Court distinguished its facts from those in Lavin by virtue of the fact that in Lavin the benefits accrued because of time spent in the military service without regard to performance as a teacher, whereas in North Plainfield, the benefit was subject to annual evaluation of teacher performance.

Petitioner cites Polaha v. Buena Regional School District, 212 N.J. Super. 628 (App. Div. 1986), where the Court found that case to be similar to North Plainfield and distinguishable from Lavin, by reasoning, among other things, that "the rehiring decision necessary to confer tenure is undoubtedly carried out based on the evaluation of teacher performance, behavior and efficiency." 212 N.J. Super at 634.

Petitioner contends that in the instant matter, the Board has consistently averred that petitioner was terminated pursuant to a valid reduction in force. Clearly, for a reduction in force to be valid, it must be bereft of any motivation or consideration relating to a tenured employee's job performance. Similarly, a "Riffed" employee's rights to reinstatement is established by statute without any additional evaluation of his or her prior performance. Accordingly, a tenure employee's rights to reinstatement subsequent to a RIF is, in its purest sense, unrelated to teacher performance, behavior and efficiency. Thus, petitioner's tenure and seniority rights, in this context, constitute a statutory entitlement that is not subject to the time constraints set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (b).

Third, petitioner contends that her Petition of Appeal should be determined to be timely filed and cites N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15, Relaxing of Rules,, which states:

> The rules herein contained shall be considered general rules of practice to govern, expedite and effectuate the procedure before, and the actions of, the Commissioner in connection with the determination of controversies and disputes under the school laws. They may be relaxed or dispensed with by the Commissioner, in his or her discretion, in any case where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice. (emphasis supplied by petitioner)

Petitioner argues, given the above language, that each case should be evaluated on its merits before any conclusion is reached with regard to the issue of whether a Petition of Appeal is timely filed. Petitioner contends there are a series of factors that must be considered by this tribunal that mandate a conclusion that her Petition of Appeal, filed on November 5,1990, was timely in accordance with the appropriate administrative regulations. The factors to be considered, according to petitioner, are these:

One. In view of petitioner's reemployment rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12, she is entitled to reemployment with the Board at any time a vacancy arises in a position for which she is properly certified.

Two. That Intervenor Phillips does not possess the appropriate endorsements to teach the computer skills course, and, therefore, is not qualified.

Three. Petitioner is qualified to teach the computer skills course at issue.

Four. Petitioner immediately made inquiry about the computer skills course upon receipt of her RIF Notice in April 1989. Based upon incorrect information to the Board received from the Ocean County Superintendent of Schools, petitioner was advised she had no claim to the position at issue. Therefore, the Board does not have "clean hands" because it misled petitioner and advised her she did not possess the appropriate certification or endorsements to teach the course at issue.

Five. There must be a balancing of the "equities" in applying the prescriptions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (b) and N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.15 to the facts in this case and that the Board's and Intervenor's timeless contentions must be rejected.

Six. That the start of every new academic year concerned with petitioner's claim triggers a new 90 day period for the filing of a Petition of Appeal.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

The threshold issue to be determined is whether petitioner filed her Petition of Appeal before the Commissioner in a timely fashion. The Board and Intervenor contend she did not and rely upon the 90 day rule, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c) which provides that:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

The record is clear that the Board took official action to abolish petitioner's position at a duly constituted Board of Education meeting on April 13, 1989. Petitioner was subsequently advised of her RIF by way of letter dated April 14, 1989. The record is also clear that petitioner's Petition of Appeal is dated November 5, 1990, approximately 18 months subsequent to petitioner having been in "...receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education"... N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c).

Petitioner argues, among other things, that the State Board of Education's promulgation of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2, specifically subsection (c); commonly referred to as the 90 day rule, was unauthorized by the Legislature and, therefore, is ultra vires. I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioner's arguments are without merit.

Chapter 24 of the Title 6 of the Administrative Code, "Controversies and Disputes" derives its authority from N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, which provides that:

> The commissioner shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine, without cost to the parties, all controversies and dispute arising under the school laws. ... or under the rules of the state board or of the commissioner.

N.J.S.A. 18A:4-15, provides the Legislative authority to the State Board to make and enforce rules. The statute states that:

> The State board shall make and enforce, and may alter and repeal, rules for its own government and for implementing and carrying out the school laws of this State under which it has jurisdiction.

In the matter of Luba v. Newark Board of Education, 23 N.J. 364 (1957), our Supreme Court said:

> R.S. 18:3-14 [now, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9] provides that the State Commissioner shall decide all controversies and disputes under the School Laws; that the facts shall, if required by the Commissioner, be made known to him by the parties by written statements verified by oath; and that his decision shall be binding "until a decision thereon is given by the state board on appeal." While the statutory language leaves much to be desired it sufficiently evidences the legislative purpose to set up a comprehensive system of internal appeals with broad powers vested in the administrative tribunals to insure that controversies are justly disposed of in accordance with the School Laws. Absent specific > legislative direction, The administrative tribunals may mold their own procedures so long as they operate fairly and conform with due process principals. (citations omitted). (Emphasis supplied). Id. at 381-382.

Petitioner has failed to cite a "specific legislative direction" which supports her argument that the State Board's promulgation of the 90 day rule was done so without legislative authority. Too the contrary, the statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:4-15, clearly vests authority with the State Board to make and enforce rules consistent with the legislative purpose of N.J.S.A 18A:6-9. The Legislature has authorized jurisdiction to the Commissioner to hear and determine School Law matters. The State Board, on the other hand, is authorized to make and enforce rules and regulations in order for the Commissioner to carry out this jurisdictional duty. Consequently, the State Board promulgated Chapter 24 of Title 6 of the Administrative Code. Section 1.2 (c), the 90 day rule is just one part thereof.

The Commissioner and the courts have recognized the validity of N.J.AC. 6:24-1.2 (c). See Board of Education Bernards Township vs. Bernards Township Education Association, 79 N.J. 311 (1979); Riely v. Hunterdon Central High Board of Education, 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980); North Plainfield, supra; Gordon, supra; Mooreland v. Passaic Board of Education, 3 N.J.A.R. 276 (November 26, 1980); Scotch Plains Association v. Scotch Plains Board of Education, 5 N.J.A.R. 175 (August 1, 1980). And, the 90 day rule has been applied in circumstances similar to the matter sub judice. In Gordon, supra., the Passaic Township Board of Education abolished Gordon's position as teacher of instrumental music in April 1980 and he was then subject to a RIF. Gordon was certificated as "Teacher of Instrumental Music" and was eligible for the comprehensive certificate as a "Teacher of Music." However, he did not possess the latter certification. In December 1982, Gordon became aware that the Board created a new vocal/instrumental music position. Gordon was subsequently issued a "Teacher of Music" certificate on January 10, 1983. On or about May 17, 1983, more than four months after he became aware that the Board had created the new position, Gordon filed his Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner asserting a violation of his tenure and seniority rights.

After an OAL hearing, the administrative law judge recommended, which the Commissioner adopted, that Gordon's delay in instituting proceedings should only bar him from retroactive relief for the 1982-83 school year and that he be reinstated to the new position of "Teacher of Instrumental and Vocal Music." On appeal by the Board, the State Board held that Gordon's cause of action accrued in December 1982, when he informally became aware that the Board had created the new position. The State Board, accordingly, reversed the Commissioner and held that Gordon's petition must be dismissed under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 and that he was barred from both retroactive and prospective relief. Subsequently, the Appellate Division of Superior Court, in a per curiam opinion, affirmed the determination of the State Board substantially for the reasons stated in its decision of March 4, 1985.

In the instant matter, as in Gordon, a tenured teaching staff member, subsequent to a RIF, becomes aware of a teaching position to which she/he might be eligible to fill. Neither teacher immediately acts to make a claim for the position under N.J.S.A 18A:28-9 et. seq. and pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c). Rather, there is a protracted delay in the filing of their respective Petition of Appeal (Sasse, 18 months; Gordon four months). As the Appellate Bench said in Gordon:

> There is no dispute that the petition was filed more than 90 days after petitioner learned of the hiring of someone to perform the work for which he claims entitlement and more than 90 days after the Township Board formally denied his application for appointment as teacher of vocal and instrumental music.
> We therefore hold that N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 is applicable in this case. We further conclude that the State Board did not act arbitrarily or unreasonably in declining to enlarge or relax the 90 day period embodied in the regulation. See N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.9. See also Campbell v. Civil Service Department, 39 N.J. 556, 562, (1963); Dore v. Bedminister Township Board of Education, 185 N.J. Super. 447, 453 (App. Div. 1982).

Based upon petitioner's failure to comply with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2 (c), I CONCLUDE that her Petition of Appeal must be DISMISSED. Gordon, supra; North Plainfield, supra.

I FURTHER CONCLUDE that the beginning of each new academic year does not constitute a continuing violation of petitioner's claim to the controverted teaching position. North Plainfield, supra;

ORDER

Having arrived at this determination , I CONCLUDE it is unnecessary to address the remaining issues and the herein matter is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and Intervenor Helen Phillips' reply were timely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Reply exceptions by the Board were untimely filed and are not considered below.

In her exceptions, petitioner reiterates the arguments of her prior submissions, which are summarized by the ALJ in his initial decision and need not be restated herein. Petitioner further argues that notwithstanding his finding of untimeliness, the ALJ erred in not reaching to petitioner's statutory entitlement to the middle school computer assistant learning lab position, as sustaining petitioner's arguments on the point of proper endorsement for the position would necessarily entail removal of Intervenor Phillips, thus creating a vacancy to which petitioner would be entitled by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. In reply, in addition to reiterating her contention that she is in any event properly certified for her position, Intervenor Phillips endorses the ALJ's conclusion that the petition was untimely filed and that the rule barring its consideration on those grounds fully applies to tenure and seniority claims.

Upon careful consideration, the Commissioner affirms the recommendation of the ALJ for the reasons stated by him in his initial decision. It is clear that even granting every legitimate inference to petitioner as to when her cause of action arose, the petition was filed beyond the 90-day limitation period set by regulation. Moreover, no justification for relaxation was set forth beyond the claims, which the Commissioner deems to be entirely without merit, that petitioner's cause of action arose on the first day of the school year in which the contested appointment took effect, and that petitioner's legal position is so strong as to warrant relaxation on that basis alone.

The Commissioner further finds no merit to petitioner's contention that the ALJ should have gone on to reach her theoretical entitlement to the disputed position, as this would merely have been a "back-door" approach to litigating the very claim found to be barred as out of time. If a vacancy in middle school computer skills should again arise and the Board not appoint petitioner thereto, petitioner would be free to file a timely claim on the same grounds as the present claim; for purposes of challenging intervenor in her present appointment, however, petitioner has lost her opportunity through delay in asserting her rights.

Finally, the Commissioner notes that subsequent to the date of the initial decision in this matter, the Superior Court addressed virtually the same arguments on the 90-day rule as were raised by petitioner herein and disposed of them in a way that comports entirely with the reasoning of the ALJ above. Maurice S. Kaprow v. Board of Education of Berkeley Township, decided by the Appellate Division March 25, 1992, A-3362-90T2

Accordingly, the initial decision of the office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal as untimely filed is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.*

The record and initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parent alleged her daughter was subjected to harassment at school and on the school bus which resulted in her daughter becoming extremely upset and physically ill. Parent withdrew her daughter for a period of time from school demanding that school officials send her daughter's books home in order to keep up with the work and requiring the Board to provide appropriate environment in the Board's or some other school district.

Initial decision concluded that the Board was responsible for providing petitioner's daughter with an appropriate education and environment. ALJ granted petitioner's demand for appropriate environment in school and the Board's demand for the daughter's continued attendance in school.

Commissioner adopted the recommended orders of the ALJ stated in initial decision. The Commissioner noted that if circumstances change and either side seeks to vacate the orders, a new petition of appeal must be filed. Petition was dismissed.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10905-91
AGENCY DKT. NO. 395-10/91

SHARON VENEZIA,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF OCEAN,
Respondent-Counterclaimant.

Sharon Venezia, petitioner, pro se

Peter Shebell, Esq., for the Board of Education of the Township of Ocean (Shebell & Schibell, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 11, 1992 Decided: March 17, 1992

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner and her ten-year-old daughter reside in Ocean Township, where the respondent Board of Education operates the public school system.

The petitioner alleges that, on the Board's school buses and in the Board's schools, other students subjected her daughter to harassment such that her daughter became "extremely upset and physically ill." The petitioner then withdrew her daughter from school for a period of time and demanded orders (1) requiring the school officials to send her daughter's books home "so she can keep up with her work" and (2) requiring the Board to provide an "appropriate" environment in the Board's or "some other school district."

The Board (which sent the books to the petitioner during the period when she was keeping her daughter at home) submits that, since the parties have complied with my decision and orders for emergent relief entered on December 10, 1991, the petitioner's daughter has not experienced the alleged harassment. The Board also counterclaims for an order requiring the petitioner to continue her daughter's attendance in school and to cooperate with its (the Board's) efforts to assure her safety.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about October 24, 1991, the petitioner's petition was filed with the Commissioner of Education; on November 8, 1991, the Board's answer and counterclaim were so filed; and on December 3, 1991, the petitioner's "response" to the counterclaim was filed. See N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 and N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.1 et seq. The Commissioner forwarded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") where, on December 4, 1991, it was filed as a contested case. See N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq.; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.; and N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.1. The parties' papers were treated as motions for emergent relief which were heard on December 10, 1991, and, on that day, I entered a decision in that regard wherein I (1) dismissed (as moot) the petitioner's demand for her daughter's books; (2) granted the petitioner's demand for an "appropriate" environment, with monitoring, etc., to assure the safety, etc., of petitioner's daughter; and (3) granted the Board's demand for an order requiring the return of petitioner's daughter to school. The parties complied with my order, which was affirmed by the Commissioner of Education in a January 10, 1992, written decision, and on March 11, 1992, a plenary hearing was held in the case.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the testimony of the witnesses, whose credibility I have evaluated, and the exhibits indicated, the following are assumed as FACTS for purposes of this decision:

The petitioner and her ten-year-old daughter reside in Ocean Township, Monmouth County, New Jersey.

Beginning in May 1991, in the petitioner's former apartment complex, a number of juveniles who are students in the Board's school system subjected the petitioner and her daughter to hateful and obscene name-calling and gestures, as well as other disturbing conduct. See P-1, P-2 and P-3.

Before September 1991, when the petitioner's daughter was scheduled to begin attending the Board's intermediate school, the petitioner discussed with William Galatro, assistant principal of that school, her fear for her daughter's safety and the need for protection for her daughter.

Despite the petitioner's request for intervention by Mr. Galatro and Robert J. Mahon, superintendent of the Board's school system, during September 1991 the petitioner's daughter suffered further abuse by the same juveniles on the Board's school bus, when changing classes and in the lunch area.

By early October 1991, the petitioner's daughter was so distraught that she became physically ill and felt she could no longer take the bus to school.

During October, November and December 1991, the petitioner allowed her daughter to remain at home and the Board complied with the petitioner's request that it send to petitioner her daughter's school books, so that she could attempt to keep up with her schoolwork. The petitioner did not allege that an education equivalent to that provided in class could be provided at home.

As noted in the "procedural history," on December 10, 1991, the case was heard relative to the parties' motions for emergency relief; the petitioner named certain juveniles who have subjected the petitioner and her daughter to name-calling and other harassment; and I entered orders requiring that the Board monitor the the situation to assure the safety, etc., of petitioner's child. Thereafter, the petitioner returned her child to school and the parties complied with the emergency orders and it has not been shown by sufficient competent and credible evidence that after December 10, 1991, during times when the Board was responsible for her safety, the petitioner's child has suffered any further harassment. See N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5(b).

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Consistent with N.J. Const. (1947), Art. VIII, § IV, par. 1, every parent having custody and control of a child between the ages of 6 and 16 years shall cause such child regularly to attend the public schools of the district or a day school in which there is given instruction equivalent to that provided in the public schools for children of similar grades and attainments or to receive equivalent instruction elsewhere than at school. See N.J.S.A. 18A:38-25. See also N.J.S.A. 18A:38-26.

Reasonably, however, this parental duty is conditioned on the safety of the child while traveling on a public school bus and while in school. Cf. Everson v. Bd. of Ed. of Ewing Twp., 133 N.J.L. 350, 355 (E. & A. 1945), aff'd, 330 U.S. 1 (1946), where three exceptions to the compulsory education statutes are described: physical disability of the child, mental disability of the child and adequate private teaching.

In this case, a remedy must be ordered which provides the petitioner's daughter with an appropriate education, while continuing to protect her from the above-noted harassment.

Given the above facts and law, I FIND and CONCLUDE that I must grant both petitioner's demand for an "appropriate" environment in school and the Board's demand for an order requiring the petitioner's daughter's continued attendance in school.

ORDERS

Consistent with the above findings and conclusions, I ORDER the following:

1. The Board will pick up and transport the petitioner's daughter to and from school in a motor vehicle other than a motor vehicle used to pick up and transport those students in the Board's school system who were previously named as having subjected the petitioner and her daughter to name-calling, etc., (or the petitioner may transport her daughter to school in her motor vehicle).

2. Superintendent Mahon will designate a specific teacher or teacher's aide who will be advised of the names and identities of those students alleged to have harassed the petitioner's daughter; who will observe the petitioner's daughter when she arrives at school and travels to her class, when she changes classes and during lunch period; who will confer with the petitioner's daughter at the close of each school day to confirm whether the petitioner's daughter alleges any harassment during that day; who will observe the petitioner's daughter as she travels to the bus to go home from school; and who will keep records and report to Superintendent Mahon relative to any harassment alleged or observed.

3. Superintendent Mahon will investigate and take appropriate disciplinary action against any student who has engaged in harassment of the petitioner's daughter.

4. The petitioner will continue her daughter's attendance in the Ocean Township public school system, consistent with the above safeguards.

Also, consistent with the above, I ORDER the following:

(1) The petitioner's demand for her daughter's books is DISMISSED as moot.

(2) The petitioner's demand for an "appropriate" environment in the Board's school system is GRANTED as provided above.

(3) The Board's demand for an order requiring the return of petitioner's daughter to school is GRANTED as provided above.

Upon the motion of either party, upon a showing of changed circumstances other good cause, these orders may be vacated.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PISCATAWAY, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, nonrenewed industrial arts teacher, claimed to have acquired tenure and seniority rights.

Initial decision determined that petitioner did not acquire tenure as he had served initially as a substitute teacher for Mr. Abbamont. Notwithstanding that in March 1988 Abbamont applied for unemployment benefits which he was granted on appeal in August 1988, Board had proven that no vacancy in the position held by Abbamont existed until after June 30, 1988. Thus, petitioner's service between March and June 1988 could not be counted toward tenure because his service was that of a substitute and petitioner did not meet precise conditions of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 to have acquired tenure. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own. Commissioner stressed that petitioner failed in his burden of persuading the Commissioner that the Board recognized the existence of a vacancy insofar as Board continued Mr. Abbamont's employment through June 1988. Commissioner also noted that absent tenure, petitioner may not assert a seniority claim and the Commissioner need not reach the question of whether petitioner was properly certified for the position.

Record Closed: February 5, 1992 Decided: March 20, 1992

BEFORE DANIEL B. McKEOWN, ALJ:

Charles Mills (petitioner), formally employed by the Piscataway Township Board of Education (Board) as a teacher, claims to have acquired tenure and seniority. He alleges that when the Board terminated his employment following a reduction-in-force on May 21, 1991, those rights were violated because the Board continued to employ nontenure, non-certificated, or less senior teachers. The Board denies the allegations and asserts petitioner failed to serve the requisite period of time by law to have acquired tenure and, consequently he has no claim to seniority. After the Commissioner of Education transferred the matter on August 7, 1991 to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., a hearing was scheduled and conducted January 3, 1992 at the Middlesex County Court House after which the parties filed letter memorandum in support of their positions.

The finding is reached in this initial decision that petitioner did not serve more than three academic years as a teacher in the Board's employ. The conclusion is reached that petitioner did not acquire tenure and he failed to establish by a preponderance of credible evidence in the record that he is entitled to relief resulting from his termination of employment.

FACTS

The basic facts are not in dispute between the parties, except as otherwise noted, and they are as follows. On March 1, 1988 petitioner filed an application (R-1) as a substitute teacher with the Board 's Director of Staff Personnel , Gordon H. Moore. Petitioner reported he was certified as a teacher of industrial arts and that he preferred teaching metals, woods, drafting, and photography at grades 6 through 12. The then regularly employed teacher who had been assigned to teach metals at the Board's Quibbletown Middle School, Joseph Abbamont, was in his third year of employment with the Board. However, from on or about February 2, 1988 forward Abbamont failed to appear for duty although he had not tendered a resignation from his employment. Director Moore testified at hearing that during that time he could not contact Abbamont because Abbamont lived in Holland, Pennsylvania and commuted to his employment with the Board. Moore further explained that while he now knows Abbamont eventually claimed his absences were due to metal shop conditions which caused him respiratory illness, he is not certain he had such knowledge of that claim at the actual time of Abbamont's absences from work.

Petitioner was approved by the Board as a "substitute teacher" on March 21, 1988 (R-2) although he actually began substitute teaching specifically for Abbamont on March 9, 1988 at the Quibbletown Middle School. Each day that petitioner reported to substitute for Abbamont he registered his appearance on a Substitutes' Time Sheet, the dates, and the teacher for whom he was substituting. These time sheets were then submitted to the personnel office at the end of each pay period. It is noted that for services rendered, petitioner was paid at the rate of $103 per day which, petitioner says, was a higher rate than that paid a regular substitute. Petitioner claims his employment was that of a permanent substitute, as is stated on the "Substitutes' Daily Record" (R-6), specifically employed for the asserted vacancy caused by Abbamont's consistent absence from his duties. In this regard, petitioner notes that Abbamont had applied for unemployment compensation on March 13, 1988 upon which date he was disqualified from such benefits. That ruling was subsequently reversed on August 19, 1988 by the New Jersey Department of Labor Appeal Tribunal on the basis that petitioner "* * *did not live his job voluntarily without good cause attributable to such work." However, Abbamont did not notify the Board of any specific intention to terminate his third year employment contract before, or after, March 8, 1988.

Petitioner says that as Abbamont's substitute teacher, he knew "what was going on with Abbamont" from the Quibbletown Middle School principal. Petitioner says the principal commented on or about April 25, 1988 that Abbamont was not to be reemployed by the Board for 1988-89. In fact, by letter (R-3) dated April 26, 1988 Director Moore advised Abbamont as follows:

> Consistent with the recommendation of the Superintendent of Schools, the Board of Education has taken action at the public meeting on April 25, 1988 to terminate your employment, effective June 30, 1988 [the expiration of his third year employment contract].
> Please consider this letter to be formal notice of this Board's action, as well as notice that employment will not be offered in the 1988/89 school year. The reasons for this recommendation and action have been communicated to you in my previous letter and in the summary evaluation documents submitted by your principal * * *

This letter followed the referenced summary evaluation prepared March 24, 1988 on Abbamont's performance by the Middle School principal. The principal relates that he could not evaluate Abbamont's performance during his third probationary year because of Abbamont's extended absence from February 3, 1988 through the date the evaluation was prepared.

After having been notified of his employment would not be continued, Abbamont requested the reasons in writing. He also requested, and was granted, the opportunity to be heard by it. See N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2.

In the meantime, petitioner was employed full-time as a teaching staff member assigned to teach metal working for 1988-89, 1989-90, and 1990-91. During April, 1991 the Board reduced the number of teachers effective for 1991-92. The Board determined petitioner had not acquired tenure nor seniority. Thus, petitioner's employment was not continued.

Nevertheless, petitioner notes that in answers to interrogatories served and answered in a subsequent civil suit filed against it after June 30, 1988, the Board admits Abbamont 'voluntarily abandoned his employment' as a defense to his application for unemployment compensation. Thus, petitioner seeks to have that answer support his claim that the Board knew, or should have known, no later than March 8, 1988 Abbamont abandoned his employment and that a vacancy therefore existed.

The Board says to the contrary that that answer may not be viewed in a vacuum. The Board explains that by the time the civil suit was filed against it and its answers to interrogatories were served, the employment relationship with Abbamont was severed and then a vacancy was created. The Board says that after June 30 it then confidently knew Abbamont was not longer in its employ and when this one insert is seen in the context of other answers to interrogatories if filed in the same civil case, its filed answers support its position in this case.

Answers filed by the Board in a civil suit, to the extent relevant here on when it knew or should have known a "vacancy" existed because Abbamont either quit or abandoned his employment, are as follows:

> 18. State specifically and in full factual detail all facts upon which you shall rely in support of the sixth paragraph of the Answer to the Complaint denying the allegations of the fourteenth and fifteenth paragraph of the complaint.

>
> (a) State specifically and in full factual detail all facts upon which you shall rely in support of your denial that on or about February 3, 1988, plaintiff did not return to work due to his pulmonary condition.

On February 3, 1988, the plaintiff did not explain any absence.

(b) State specifically and in full factual detail all facts upon which you shall rely in support of your denial that plaintiff informed the administration that he could return to work if he was placed in a properly ventilated room or if his shop's ventilation was fixed and there was an air quality report verifying that the room was safe to operate machinery.

Mr. Abbamont made no attempt to return to his employment.

(e) Mr. Abbamont did not communicate the reason for his absence.

State whether it is the Board's position that Mr. Abbamont's employment was terminated at a public meeting on April 25, 1988.

Yes, effective at the close of the school year.

* * *

(b) State in detail the position of defendant when it challenged the plaintiff's request for employment benefits.

Mr. Abbamont had voluntarily abandoned his employment.

(c) At the Unemployment hearing in which plaintiff's right to unemployment benefits were challenged, describe in detail the statements made by Mr. Moore and/or his representative concerning whether or nor plaintiff was actually terminated from his employment.

Mr. Moore stated that Mr. Abbamont could have returned to work at any time prior to the end of the 1987/88 school year.

ARGUMENTS

Petitioner says when Abbamont filed for unemployment compensation benefits on or about March 8, 1988 that that act, coupled with his continuing absence, provided the Board sufficient notice he abandoned his employment with it. As such, petitioner says, Abbamont's employment contract was terminated and a vacancy existed. Petitioner reasons that because the Board knew such vacancy existed, and the fact he was employed as a permanent substitute assigned to Abbamont's class for the remainder of that school year, it may not now say that that time served does not count for the acquisition of tenure. This is so, petitioner says, because under Sayreville Education Association v. Sayreville Board of Education, 193 N.J. Super 424 (App. Div. 1984) boards of education may not employ a teacher who is fully certificated and assign that person as a "substitute teacher" to an existing vacancy which the board knows will exist for a "substantial balance" of the school year.

The Board contends it had no knowledge that Abbamont abandoned or voluntarily terminated his employment until it determined on April 25, 1988 not to renew his contract for 1988-89. The Board says the only knowledge it had at the time was that Abbamont was absenting himself from duty and that it could not communicate with him. Furthermore, the Board points to the fact that once it gave Abbamont notice of non-reemployment for 1988-89 he demanded, as is his right, to a statement of reasons for non-renewal and the opportunity to be heard. Consequently, the Board concludes that at the time the events were unfolding it neither had knowledge or reason to believe Abbamont abandoned, terminated or otherwise quit his employment. Thus, the Board asserts no vacancy in the position held by Abbamont existed until after June 30, 1988. Therefore, it says petitioner's service between March and June 1988 may not be counted for tenure because his status was that of a substitute in the teaching position held by Abbamont until June 30, 1988.

The Board notes that petitioner applied for the position of "substitute teacher" and that is the employment relationship created when, thereafter, he was engaged as a substitute for Abbamont. The Board says it had to manage the situation with Abbamont on a week-to-week basis because it had no knowledge of Abbamont's intentions.

The Board asserts that even if the Middle School principal commented on or about April 25, 1988 that Abbamont was not to reemployed for 1988-89, the legal fact remains that Abbamont did not vacate, nor was he removed from his position until June 30, 1988 which then created the vacancy to which petitioner was properly appointed as of September 1, 1988.

Finally, the Board maintains that its one answer to interrogatories served on it during the civil suit must be seen in the context of other related answers. Moreover, the Board reminds that the answer relied upon by petitioner was given after June 30, 1988 when it then had knowledge, due to its own action, that a vacancy existed.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

Service as a substitute teacher does not count towards service time necessary to acquire tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. In order to acquire tenure as a teaching staff member as petitioner seeks here, one must meet the precise conditions of the statute. Unless one is employed on a 12 month calendar basis, the statute requires more than 30 months service as a teacher within either three consecutive academic years or within four consecutive academic years. In order to be appointed as a teaching staff member, a board of education must first have a vacancy in the position of teaching staff member to make a lawful appointment.

No more than one individual may be appointed to one teaching staff member position. Boards of education, however, may not employ a fully certificated teacher as a substitute, assign that person to an existing teaching vacancy but as a substitute, in order to avoid the effect of the tenure statute. Here, petitioner has an acknowledged 30 months service as a teaching staff member within three consecutive academic years. He needs one more day of service as a teaching staff member to have acquired the legislative status of tenure and hence seniority.

If, in this case, while petitioner was employed by the Board as a substitute teacher a vacancy existed in the position to which he was assigned exclusively, then the inquiry would focus on the Board's motive for such an assignment. If, to the contrary, a vacancy did not exist in Abbamont's position at the time petitioner was employed as a substitute teacher, then this case need not proceed further because petitioner would not have acquired tenure and, hence, he would not have acquired seniority rights.

Based on an analysis of the facts in this case, I conclude that no vacancy existed in Abbamont's position until June 30, 1988 when, by force of the Board's conduct, the employment relationships with Abbamont was terminated. There is no evidence to show Abbamont ever revealed his intention to the Board to abandoned his position, to voluntarily quit his position, or in any manner to sever the employment relationship. Rather, the evidence and the facts do show that Abbamont believed he became ill as the result of working conditions within the school. Therefore, he absented himself from his duties but without communicating any intention to resign, quit, terminate or abandon his employment.

That Abbamont did not voluntarily terminate the employment relationship is evidenced by the fact when the Board advised him of its intention not to renew his employment for 1988-89, he demanded reasons for the non-renewal and the opportunity to heard. The Board's answers to interrogatories filed in the civil suit brought against it by Abbamont do not support petitioner's position that he filled a vacancy between March through June 1988. Rather, what is revealed by the answers to interrogatories reproduced here is that the Board simply had no knowledge as to Abbamont's intentions at the time the events were unfolding. The answers do not show that the Board knew, at the time, Abbamont had abandoned his position. Moreover, the facts reveal Abbamont did not abandon his position; rather, the Board did not continue his employment into 1990-91.

Consequently, having concluded that no vacancy existed in Abbamont's position until June 30, 1988, time served by petitioner as a substitute for Abbamont through June 30, 1988 may not be counted as service time for the acquisition of tenure. Therefore, petitioner has failed to meet the precise conditions of the statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, to have acquired tenure. Petitioner, not having acquired tenure, does not have enforceable seniority rights.

Therefore, the Petition of Appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

CHARLES MILLS,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PISCATAWAY, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner filed timely exceptions pursuant to the applicable provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner excepts to the ALJ's conclusion that he is not tenured, citing the decision of the Appeals Examiner from the Disability Insurance Appeals Tribunal dated August 19, 1988 and thereby suggesting that "[it] is axiomatic that an employer/employee relationship ceases to exist when the employee asserts, as Abbamont did, that he has been terminated and is, thus, eligible and obtains unemployment insurance." (Exceptions, at pp. 3-4) Petitioner claims that one cannot, at the same time, claim to be employed and claim to be unemployed, and thus be eligible for unemployment compensation. Petitioner submits that on March 13, 1988 when Abbamont made application for unemployment benefits, the Board had to know that Abbamont was publicly declaring that he was no longer an employee. Petitioner further contends that because the Board actively participated in the unemployment proceedings, including the appeal hearing before the Appeals Examiner, principles of collateral estoppel compel the conclusion that Abbamont was unemployed as of March 13, 1988, when he made application for unemployment benefits. In this regard, petitioner cites Valasquez v. Franz, 123 N.J. 498 (1991).

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner adopts as his own the conclusions reached by the Office of Administrative Law.

As the Board notes in its post-hearing submission, petitioner bears the burden of persuasion in this matter by a preponderance of the credible evidence. To bear such burden petitioner must demonstrate that he filled a vacancy in March 1988 for a teacher who ceased to appear for work commencing in February 1988. Those documents brought to the record do not, in the Commissioner's considered opinion, demonstrate that the Board was aware, at any given time before June 10, 1988 that Abbamont had filed for unemployment compensation. Notwithstanding the Board's appearance on June 10, 1988 at the appeal of Abbamont's having been denied unemployment compensation as reflected in Exhibit P-1 and notwithstanding the Board's admission in interrogatories that its position at said appeal was that Abbamont abandoned his position (see Exhibit P-2) in applying for such benefits, the Board nonetheless maintained his employment status through June 30, 1988. The record demonstrates that the Board did not declare a vacancy until April 28, 1988, effective June 30, 1988, and provided Abbamont the opportunity to be heard on the reasons for his nonrenewal sometime following June 30, 1988. (See Exhibits R-3 and R-14.) By conforming to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2, the Board successfully rebutted any inference to be drawn from petitioner's evidence in the form of after-the-fact interrogatories which attempted to reconstruct the state of mind of the Board and Abbamont during the period from March 13, 1988 through June 30, 1988 regarding whether a vacancy existed. Accordingly, the Commissioner finds, as did the ALJ, that the record herein is devoid of actual evidence to show that Abbamont made known his intention to the Board to abandon his position.

Consequently, because petitioner has failed to meet his burden of persuading the Commissioner that a vacancy existed in Abbamont's position until June 30, 1988, that time served by petitioner as a substitute for Abbamont through June 30, 1988 may not be counted as service time for the acquisition of tenure, and he thus fails to meet the statutory condition for the acquisition of same pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Absent tenure, he thus may assert no seniority claim.

In so deciding, the Commissioner need not reach the question of whether petitioner was properly certified to teach in the position to which he would have been assigned commencing September 1, 1991.

Therefore, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision as amplified herein, the Petition of Appeal is dismissed.

PETITIONER-APPELLANT,	:
V.	:	STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF PISCATAWAY, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.	:

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 6, 1992

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Klausner, Hunter, Cige & Seid (Stephen E. Klausner, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Rubin, Rubin, Malgran & Kuhn (David B. Rubin, Esq., of Counsel)

Charles Mills (hereinafter "petitioner") filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education alleging that the Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway (hereinafter "Board") had violated his tenure and seniority rights when it abolished his position at the end of the 1990-91 school year as the result of a reduction in force. The Board countered that petitioner had not satisfied the statutory conditions for the achievement of tenure and therefore had no tenure rights. Specifically, this case turns on whether petitioner's service during the 1987-88 school year was creditable for purposes of tenure achievement under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5.

The basic facts herein are not in dispute. Petitioner began his service with the Board as a "substitute teacher" of industrial arts in March 1988. The regular teacher who had been assigned to teach industrial arts, Joseph Abbamont (hereinafter "Abbamont"), failed to appear for duty after February 2, 1988, although he did not tender a resignation from his employment or otherwise expressly notify the Board of any intention to terminate his employment.[1] The record indicates that Abbamont applied for unemployment compensation benefits on or about March 13, 1988, which application was initially denied on the ground that he had left his employment voluntarily without good cause attributable to such work.

On April 25, 1988, the Board acted to terminate the employment of Abbamont, who had not yet achieved tenure, effective June 30. On June 10, 1988, the Board was represented at a hearing before the State Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance in which Abbamont appealed the denial of his unemployment benefits. The Board contested his entitlement to such benefits, contending that Abbamont had voluntarily abandoned his position.[2]

Petitioner continued to serve as a teacher of industrial arts for the remainder of the 1987-88 year. He was thereafter employed by the Board as a full-time teaching staff member during the 1988-89, 1989-90 and 1990-91 school years. On or about May 21, 1991, the Board, in effectuating a reduction in force, terminated petitioner's employment effective June 30, 1991, concluding that he had not yet achieved tenure.

1 We note that there is also no indication that Abbamont had requested or been granted a leave of absence from the Board.

2 The initial denial of Abbamont's claim for unemployment compensation benefits was reversed on appeal and he was granted benefits retroactive to March 13, 1988.

On March 20, 1992, an administrative law judge ("ALJ") recommended dismissing the petition. The ALJ stressed that service as a substitute teacher was not creditable towards the achievement of tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and that, in order to serve as a "teaching staff member" eligible for tenure, there must have been a position "vacancy." The ALJ concluded that no vacancy existed in Abbamont's position until June 30, 1988 when, by force of the Board's conduct, the employment relationship was terminated. The ALJ found no evidence to indicate that Abbamont "ever revealed his intention to the Board to abandoned [sic] his position, to voluntarily quit his position, or in any manner to sever the employment relationship. Rather, the evidence and the facts do show that Abbamont believed he became ill as the result of working conditions within the school. Therefore he absented himself from his duties but without communicating any intention to resign, quit, terminate or abandon his employment." Initial Decision, slip op. at 8. Having found that no vacancy existed in Abbamont's position during 1987-88, the ALJ concluded that petitioner's service during that year could not be credited for tenure achievement purposes.

On May 6, 1992, the Commissioner adopted the conclusions of the ALJ and dismissed the petition. The Commissioner asserted that, notwithstanding the Board's appearance on June 10, 1988 at Abbamont's unemployment compensation hearing and its contention at such hearing that Abbamont had abandoned his position, a vacancy did not arise until June 30, 1988, the effective date of the Board's action terminating his employment.

Petitioner filed the instant appeal to the State Board.

After a thorough review of the record, we affirm with modification the decision of the Commissioner.

"[T]he word 'vacancy' is commonly understood to mean an unoccupied position for which an incumbent does not intend to return, as contrasted with a leave of absence that 'connotes continuity of the employment status.'" Lammers v. Bd. of Educ., 134 N.J. 264, 272 (1993). "An absence exists when the missing teacher is scheduled ultimately to return to the position." Id. at 268.

Thus, it is necessary to determine whether, under the particular facts in the record, the Board was on notice during the 1987-88 school year that the incumbent, Abbamont, did not intend to return to his position.[3] Such notice, however, need not necessarily have been an express termination of the employment relationship by Abbamont, as the Commissioner's decision would appear to indicate.

The undisputed facts in this case reveal that Abbamont applied for unemployment benefits in March 1988 and that the Board was on notice of such application by June 10. At that time, the Board took the express position in opposing such benefits that Abbamont had abandoned his position. However, as pointed out by the Commissioner, there is no indication in the record that the Board was aware of petitioner's application for unemployment benefits prior to June 10, 1988. Nor does the record establish that the Board was otherwise on notice that Abbamont did not intend to return. Inasmuch as service in a vacant position commencing on [3] We note that Abbamont's failure to appear for duty after February 2, 1988 did not in and of itself create a "vacancy." See Driscoll v. Board of Education of Clifton, 165 N.J. Super. 241 (App. Div. 1977), aff'd o.b. 79 N.J. 126 (1979).

June 10, 1988 would not provide petitioner with employment in a teaching staff position for the probationary periods delineated in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 by the time the Board acted to reduce its staff in May 1991,[4] we need not determine for purposes of deciding the instant appeal whether a "vacancy" arose on that date.

We therefore conclude that petitioner was not tenured at the time of the RIF and affirm the decision of the Commissioner as modified herein.

Record Closed: March 18, 1992 Decided: March 20, 1992

BEFORE JAMES A. OSPENSON, ALJ:

The Board of Education of the City of Hackensack, Bergen County, filed and certified on May 28, 1991 four tenure charges against John Lydon, a tenured teaching staff member, with specifications of unbecoming conduct Certification thereof was made to the Commissioner of the Department of Education on June 27, 1991; respondent was suspended without pay from his employment on May 28,

New Jersey is an Equal Opportunity Employer

1991. (Count V of tenure charges was not certified by the Board.) In answer filed in the Department of Education on June 20, 1991, respondent denied the charges generally, alleged the charges were unlawful retaliation for his pursuit of a workers compensation claim currently pending unheard and contended, as to Count IV, the charge and specification, to the extent it alleged and specified inefficiency, should be dismissed for failure of compliance with N.J.A.C. 6:24-5.1(c). The Commissioner of the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on July 12, 1991, for hearing and determination as a contested case in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

On September 23, 1991, a prehearing conference was scheduled in the Office of Administrative Law and an order entered under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 6806-91.

John Lydon filed a petition in the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the Department of Education on September 6, 1991 challenging action of the Board in withholding his adjustment increment for 1991-92. The Commissioner transmitted that matter to the Office of Administrative Law on September 30, 1991, where it was assigned OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9178-91.

The two matters were consolidated for hearing by order dated October 31, 1991.

After hearing commenced on March 2, 1992, the parties advised the administrative law judge the matters at issue had been amicably resolved, subject to approval by the Board, the administrative law judge and the Commissioner of the Department of Education. The Board approved resignation and agreement, filed here on March 18, 1992, at its regularly scheduled meeting on March 10, 1992.

CONCLUSION

Based on the above, I CONCLUDE as follows:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures on the agreement;

2. Settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy, is in the interest of parties and public and comports with Cardonick v. Bd. of Ed. Bor. of Brooklawn, 1983 S.L.D. -- (slip op. at 2); and

3. Lydon's petition under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9178-91 and the Board's filing and certification of tenure charges under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 6806-91 are hereby DISMISSED, being in accordance with settlement pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, subject to effectuation of its terms.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE:	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION/OFFICE OF
HEARING OF JOHN LYDON, :	ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE :	AGENCY REF. NOS. 241-6/91 and 337-9/91
CITY OF HACKENSACK, :	O.A.L. DOCKET NO. EDU-06806-91 and EDU 9178-91N
BERGEN COUNTY. :
	SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

John Lydon, (hereinafter "Mr. Lydon") residing at 50 Euclid Avenue, Apt. 3F, Hackensack, New Jersey 07601, and The Board of Education of the School District of the City of Hackensack (hereinafter the "Board") with offices at 355 State Street, Hackensack, New Jersey 07601-5510, hereby stipulate and agree as follows:

WHEREAS, John Lydon is the subject of tenure charges certified by the Board on May 28, 1991; and,

WHEREAS, Mr. Lydon has served as a teacher in Hackensack since March, 1960, more than 30 years; and,

WHEREAS, during his service, he has, on repeated occasions, contributed his time and energies beyond the regular school day in such areas as community service and assisting students in trouble; and

WHEREAS, during the period from on or about 1988 to 1991, Mr. Lydon was afflicted with severe health problems as well as enormous emotional stress due to unavoidable difficulties in his personal life; and,

WHEREAS, the allegations forming the basis for the charges in this matter arise during this latter period in his career; and,

WHEREAS, although the factual position of the parties differs as to whether each and every particular aspect of the pending charges actually took place, and as to Mr. Lydon's motivation and intent, the parties do agree that the further litigation of these charges, no matter what their outcome, would make it impossible for Mr. Lydon to return to the Hackensack school system in the future as a teacher; and,

WHEREAS, further litigation of these charges would necessitate the disruption of the Board's educational program due to the necessary absence of numerous teachers and administrators for testimony at the hearing; and,

WHEREAS, it would be necessary for additional young people to be compelled to appear by subpoena to testify, against their will, resulting in great emotional distress to them and to their families; and,

WHEREAS, further litigation of these charges, regardless of outcome, might also result in considerable distress in the Hackensack community at large due to the sensitive and volatile issues involved; and,

WHEREAS, the Board would incur substantial financial costs by continuing this litigation and it is probable that said costs would significantly exceed the cost of this settlement; and,

WHEREAS, Mr. Lydon was suspended without pay on or about May 28, 1991, and his suspension with pay resumed on or about September 25, 1991. Mr. Lydon is a veteran who served during the time of the Korean War. He will be 60 years old in June, 1992; and,

WHEREAS, in lieu of proceeding with the tenure charges in accordance with the Tenure Employees' Hearing Law, the Board and Mr. Lydon desire to enter into an agreement stipulating the terms of Mr. Lydon's separation from his employment as a teacher with the Hackensack school district;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises of the parties and in exchange for the consideration more particularly noted below, it is hereby agreed:

1. Mr. Lydon hereby resigns his position of employment with the Board, together with all tenure and seniority rights effective June 30, 1992, subject only to approval of this Agreement by the Board and by the Office of Administrative law and the Commissioner of Education. Mr. Lydon submits his resignation knowingly, voluntarily and irrevocably, free of coercion or duress, after consulting with counsel and receiving advice as to its ramifications.

2. The Board agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, the tenure charges bearing Agency Docket No. 241-6/91 and O.A.L. Docket No. EDU 06806-91, subject to the approval of this Agreement by the appropriate agencies.

3. The Board agrees to continue to pay Mr. Lydon his full salary through the effective date of his resignation, June 30, 1992.

4. All continued salary payments made to Mr. Lydon between the date of this Agreement and June 30, 1992, shall be paid in the normal course of business, net of normal payroll deductions for State and Federal income taxes and pension contributions.

5. Until June 30, 1992, the Board agrees to continue to provide Mr. Lydon with all health insurance coverages presently provided to other teaching staff members in the employ of the Board. The insurance coverages involved herein are set forth in the current collective negotiations agreement between the Board and the Hackensack Education Association.

6. If this Agreement is approved by the appropriate agencies, as of July 1, 1992, and consistent with his rights under the Consolidated Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1986 ("COBRA"), Mr. Lydon shall be able to purchase, at his own cost and expense, such insurance coverages presently provided to other teaching staff members as he may require, for no more than 18 months. The insurance coverages involved herein are set forth in the current collective negotiations agreement between the Board and the Hackensack Education Association and include dental insurance.

7. The collective negotiations agreement between the Board and the Hackensack Education Association provides for partial reimbursement for unused accumulated sick leave upon retirement. Mr. Lydon retains his right to such reimbursement and his rights will be determined by the express requirements of the collective negotiations agreement. Said monies will be paid to him upon his retirement, provided that no payment shall be made until this Agreement is approved by the appropriate agencies.

8. The litigation known as John Lydon v. Bd. of Ed., Hackensack, Agency Docket No. 337-9/91 and O.A.L. Docket No. EDU 09178-91N, which was consolidated with the tenure charges, is hereby settled as follows:

(a) The Board will retroactively restore Mr. Lydon's full 1991-92 salary increment;

(b) Mr. Lydon hereby agrees to withdraw and dismiss the aforementioned suit, with prejudice;

(c) Such retroactive monies which may be due shall be paid to Mr. Lydon as soon as possible, after normal payroll deductions are taken, provided that this Agreement has first been approved by the appropriate agencies.

9. In return for compliance with this Agreement, the Board will retroactively pay Mr. Lydon a sum equal to the gross salary withheld from him during the period of his suspension without pay (from on or about May 28, 1991 to on or about September 25, 1991). Said back pay shall be subject to normal payroll tax and pension deductions and shall be reported as such to the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund, representing pay due in June and September, 1991. Said sum shall not be paid until this Agreement is approved by the appropriate agencies.

10. Mr. Lydon is aware that, as a result of the charges brought against him, this matter may be referred to the State Board of Examiners for review regarding certification revocation proceedings.

11. The Board and Mr. Lydon acknowledge that the terms of this Agreement are contingent upon the review and approval of both the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. In the event that either agency disapproves of the terms of settlement, this Agreement shall be null and void and the parties shall return to the same positions which they held prior to this settlement.

12. The parties recognize that each has been represented by legal counsel of his or its own choosing and that each signs this Agreement as their own voluntary act and deed, and that they fully understand the duties and obligations enumerated herein.

13. This Agreement shall be subject to the laws of the State of New Jersey.

14. All terms of this Agreement are deemed material. This document may not be altered, amended or modified or revoked except by an instrument executed in writing by the parties.

15. For all of the previously noted reasons, the parties agree that this settlement is in the public interest, as well as the best interests of the parties.

16. Mr. Lydon waives any and all other claims he has, or could have, against the Hackensack Board of Education, its agents and representatives, including, but not limited to, claims for: attorneys' fees; Age Discrimination under the NJLAD or ADEA; Employment Discrimination under State or Federal Law; Contract, Tort or Constitutional Violations. Excluded from this wavier are actions by either party to specifically enforce the terms of this Agreement or to pursue their respective rights in any pending workers' compensation proceeding. The parties shall execute and exchange mutual releases in the forms attached hereto as Schedule 'A' and 'B.' The originals of each party's release shall be held in escrow by the party's attorney. The escrow shall be released and the executed release shall be transmitted to opposing counsel upon approval of this settlement by the appropriate agencies. If the settlement is not approved, the releases shall become null and void and shall be destroyed.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals the date and year aforesaid.

JOHN LYDON,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF HACKENSACK, BERGEN COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner cannot agree with the parties and the ALJ that the proposed settlement satisfies the standards of In re Cardonick, supra. The charges upon which the tenure proceedings herein were initiated, primarily arising from alleged overt and offensive racial, sexist, ethnic and sexual comments made to numerous students repeatedly over a significant period of time, are sufficiently serious, if true, to preclude any resolution allowing respondent to resume his teaching career outside the district. While the Commissioner could attempt to address such concern through referral of this matter to the State Board of Examiners, the fact remains that a hearing would be necessary in either event and, in the absence of plenary proceedings before the Commissioner in which the Board must fully participate, the record able to be developed by the Board of Examiners may be insufficient to make any judgment as to suspension or revocation of respondent's certificate. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Harold Kenner, School District of the City of Passaic, Passaic County, Commissioner's decisions of May 30, 1990 and February 22, 1991; In the Matter of the Certificate of Harold Kenner, State Board of Examiners decision, May 2, 1991

Should the Commissioner consent to the within settlement, then, it is entirely possible that respondent would be able to continue teaching not withstanding conduct which, if it actually did occur, the Commissioner cannot tolerate, let alone condone by acceptance of a settlement judged, by the very act of acceptance, to be in the public interest. While it is regrettable that supporting its allegations may prove sensitive, time-consuming and costly for the Board and difficult for district students and staff, the Commissioner must first and foremost be guided by his obligation to ensure that unfit teachers do not continue to serve in New Jersey's classrooms. He therefore cannot permit the Board to lay down its burden of demonstrating that the purported conduct occurred as alleged in the absence of a willingness on respondent's part to accept a revocation of certificate without opposition.

Accordingly, the Commissioner remands this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for revision of the proposed settlement to indicate either that respondent does not oppose revocation of his certificate or that, if he does, the Board will refer its charges to, and diligently prosecute them before, the State Board of Examiners. Should such revision not be acceptable to the parties, notwithstanding any agreement that may be reached as to settlement of respondent's increment withholding claim, the within tenure charges are to proceed to a full hearing on the merits.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

JOHN LYDON,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF HACKENSACK, BERGEN COUNTY,
Respondent.

Mark J. Blunda, Esq., for Hackensack Board of Education
(Sills Cummis Zuckerman Radin Tischman Epstein & Gross, attorneys)

Louis P. Bucceri, Esq., for John Lydon
(Bucceri & Pincus, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 16, 1992 Decided: July 17, 1992

BEFORE JAMES A. OSPENSON, ALJ:

This matter is on remand by the Commissioner of Education who, in a decision of May 7, 1992, questioned terms of a settlement agreement between the parties, dated March 9, 1992, which, in turn, called for respondent's resignation as a teaching staff member in the district effective June 30, 1992 and a dismissal of tenure charges against him. An administrative law judge approved the settlement in an initial decision on March 20, 1992 and forwarded it to the Commissioner of Education for final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

The Commissioner's remand expressed concern that should he consent to the settlement, it remained possible that respondent would "be able to continue teaching notwithstanding conduct which, if it actually did occur, [he] cannot tolerate. . ." Specifically, the Commissioner remanded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law "for revision of the proposed settlement to indicate either that respondent does not oppose revocation of his teaching certificate or that, if he does, the Board will refer its charges to, and diligently prosecute them before, the State Board of Examiners." Commissioner's decision, May 7, 1992, at 4-5.

The Commissioner's remand was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on May 15, 1992 in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act and was assigned OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3627-92.

Acting on the letter and spirit of the remand, the parties have agreed to modification of the settlement agreement, evidenced by respondent's attorney's letter to the administrative law judge dated July 13, 1992 (R-1) and by a resolution of the Board of Education on June 9, 1992 as follows:

> Now therefore be it resolved that said settlement agreement be revised to include that the respondent, Mr. John Lydon, does not oppose revocation of his certification or, if he does, that the Hackensack Board of Education will refer and diligently prosecute its charges before the State Board of Examiners. [P-1.]

CONCLUSION

It may be of some assistance to recall that settlement by the parties was reached only after two and one-half days of testimony from eight witnesses, introduction of 16 documentary exhibits into evidence and the marking of eight more in identification. The Board's prima facie case on tenure charges against respondent was largely complete; the record of proceedings exists and may, if necessary, be of assistance to the State Board of Examiners should the matter be referred to it on decertification. Negotiations were led by the parties' attorneys of record and were conducted, as it were, in facie curiae.

It may also be of assistance to note the district's reporting responsibility to the State Board of Examiners under N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.5, a regulatory obligation recognized by respondent himself in paragraph 10 of the settlement agreement:

> In cases in which teaching staff members accused of misdemeanors, crimes or conduct unbecoming which might warrant revocation or suspension, resign or retire from their positions, either before tenure proceedings have been brought or prior to the conclusion of such proceedings, it shall be the responsibility of the chief school administrator of that district to notify the State Board of Examiners of the alleged conduct pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.6(a)2. Should the Board of Examiners issue an order to show cause, it shall be the responsibility of the district which reported the conduct to cooperate with the Board of Examiners in ascertaining and presenting the facts underlying such obligations.

The regulatory obligation, it may be suggested, would of itself supervene any agreement of the parties that sought to evade it.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE as follows:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to settlement and modification thereof in accordance with the remand of the Commissioner of May 7, 1992, as evidenced by acceptance of the Board's resolution of June 9, 1992;

2. Settlement as modified fully disposes of all issues in controversy, is in the interest of the parties and public and comports with Cardonick v. Board of Ed., Borough of Brooklawn, 1983 S.L.D. -- (slip op. at 2); and

3. Lydon's petition under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9178-91 and the Board's filing and certification of tenure charges under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 6806-91 are hereby DISMISSED, being in accordance with settlement pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, subject to effectuation of its terms, and being in accordance with remand.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

PETITIONER,	:

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CARLSTADT-EAST RUTHERFORD REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board member appealed Board's action in offering contract to music teacher not recommended for renewal by district superintendent.

Initial decision found superintendent recommended Board not rehire teacher stating his reasons including her refusal to teach summer music program and other difficulties. Board, however, influenced by parents and by excellent evaluations, determined to renew her contract. ALJ determined Board acted within scope of its authority in personnel matters upon the recommendation of its chief school administrator (CSA) as it did consider his recommendation. (Brescia) Moreover, the teacher's rehire was approved by recorded roll call majority vote of full membership of Board. (N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1) Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner set aside ALJ's determination noting ALJ relied on Brescia, holding Board was obliged to consider CSA's recommendation but was not bound by it. Commissioner reversed noting that under regulatory scheme and attendant State policy CSA controls flow of candidates from which employees are chosen. Board cannot act to employ any person not finally recommended by CSA, whether on first consideration or after the Board's rejection of other candidates or of the CSA's initial recommendation not to rehire. Therefore, Board's action in renewing contract was deemed ultra vires and thus null and void.

Dennis A. Maycher, Esq., for respondent (Maycher and Molinelli, attorneys)

Record Closed: February 13, 1992 Decided: March 23, 1992

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

Petitioner, Joyce Rotondo, is a member of the respondent Board of Education of Carlstadt/East Rutherford Regional High School District, Bergen County (Board). On August 9, 1991, she filed a petition with the Commissioner of the Department of Education appealing the Board's action in offering a contract of employment to Mary K. Schneider as a teacher of music in the district, contrary to the recommendation of the district superintendent, Dr. Samuel Feldman.

The Board filed its answer to the petition on August 22, 1991, and on August 28, 1991, the Department of Education transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

New Jersey is an Equal Opportunity Employer

During a conference with the parties, the undersigned determined that the material facts could be stipulated and the matter could proceed to resolution without the necessity for a hearing. A joint stipulation of facts was submitted by the parties followed by briefs. The record was closed on February 13, 1992, at the time the last submission was received.

STIPULATED FACTS

The following facts were stipulated by the parties, and I FIND these FACTS to be uncontested.

On April 13, 1989, Mary K. Schneider (Schneider) was hired by resolution of the Board as a nontenured teacher of music through June 30, 1990. The duties of the position are set forth in the job description, which is part of the record. Schneider was rehired for the position from September 1, 1989 through June 30, 1990, pursuant to the same job description.

On May 3, 1990, Schneider was hired by a resolution of the Board as the director of the summer music program at the rate of $22 an hour. The job description of the summer music program director is also part of the record in this hearing.

On March 20, 1991, Dr. Samuel Feldman (Feldman), superintendent of the Carlstadt/East Rutherford Regional High School District, recommended to the Board that it not offer employment to Schneider as a nontenured music teacher for the 1991-92 school year.

At a Board work session on April 3, 1991, Feldman continued to recommend that Schneider not be offered a contract. On April 10, 1991, the Board voted publicly not to award her a teaching contract for the 1991-92 school year. On April 11, 1991, Feldman notified Schneider of the Board action. Schneider requested a statement of reasons for the nonrenewal of her contract on April 17, 1991.

On May 8, 1991, at a public meeting of the Board, there was a public outcry against the Board's decision not to rehire Schneider. An executive session of the Board was held, at which it decided to reconsider its nonhire decision.

On May 16, 1991, Feldman responded to Schneider's request for the statement of reasons for nonrenewal of her contract. She requested an informal hearing before the Board on May 21, 1991.

The informal hearing was held on June 12, 1991. The Board reviewed all of her teacher evaluations, which were excellent, and interviewed her evaluator, Mr. Walter Siri. The attorney for the Board advised it that the Board had final decision on hiring and did not have to abide by the superintendent's recommendation. On June 14, 1991, Feldman notified Schneider that the Board had not changed its prior decision not to renew her contract.

At a special meeting of the Board on June 26, 1991, the Board reversed its decision and voted to hire Schneider. Seven of the nine Board members voted in favor of her rehiring. Two Board members, including petitioner, were absent from the meeting.

It appears from a review of the minutes of the executive Board meeting of April 1991 in the record that Feldman conceded that Schneider's classroom work was excellent and that he had received no complaints about her. However, he felt that she should not be rehired because he believed that the district had an understanding with Schneider that she was also to teach the summer music program. When questioned by Board members at the public meeting held in May 1991, Feldman would not say that teaching the summer music program was part of Schneider's job. A Board member, Mrs. Joewono, asked Feldman whether or not Schneider had an option as to whether to teach the summer music program, but he did not respond directly to her inquiry. He expressed his opinion that the district could get a better music teacher than Schneider and refused to recommend her. The minutes of the executive meeting of April 1991 record that Feldman stated that Schneider ran the summer music program in the summer of 1990 and "ruined" it by her lack of enthusiasm.

According to the minutes, the Board did not refuse to recommend Schneider at its June 12 meeting. It listened to the evidence of her job performance, including the statement of her evaluator, Walter Siri, and placed the matter on its next agenda for official action. At its meeting of June 26, 1991, it decided to offer her a teaching contract. Rotondo, who was absent from the meeting, filed a petition objecting to the Board's action as contrary to the recommendation of the superintendent.

THE APPLICABLE LAW

The law governing the appointment of teaching staff members is set forth in N.J.A.C. 6:8-4.3(a)6vii:

> The chief school administrator shall recommend to the district board of education formal appointment of all teaching staff members.

The Commissioner of Education interpreted this regulation in the following manner:

> In the Commissioner's view, the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.12(f) and more particularly N.J.A.C. 6:8-4.3(a)6vii, which defines one of the criteria which must be met by a district in order to be deemed certifiable in the area of staffing, make it imperative that a board of education act in personnel matters upon the recommendation of its chief school administrator. While a board pursuant to the above-cited regulation is within its legal right to reject such nomination, it may not arbitrarily act in the absence of a nomination from such chief school administrator. Brescia v. Bd. of Ed. of the Tp. of Pemberton, Burlington Co., Decision of the Comm'r, p. 12 (April 12, 1991).

Consequently, although the Board is obligated to consider the recommendation of the superintendent, it is not bound by his recommendation. In fact, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1 provides that no teaching staff member, tenured or nontenured, shall be appointed except by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education appointing him or her.

The undisputed record shows that in this case, the superintendent recommended to the Board that Schneider not be offered a teaching contract for the 1991-92 school year and stated his reasons, including the fact that she refused to teach the summer music program as anticipated. The Board also had the opportunity to review Schneider's teaching evaluations, which were found to be excellent, and to question her evaluator. In addition, it was influenced by a significant demonstration of parental support for the reappointment of Schneider to the position of music teacher in the district.

I FIND the Board's decision to offer Schneider a contract to be reasonable in light of the teaching skills demonstrated by Schneider and the loyalty which she apparently engendered in the parents of her students, in spite of the fact that she would not conduct the summer music program.

Consequently, I CONCLUDE that the Board fulfilled its obligation under Brescia, supra, to "act in personnel matters upon the recommendation of its chief school administrator." It considered his recommendation, made its own investigation of Schneider's qualifications, and drew its own conclusions based upon its review of both sides of the question.

To require the Board to rigidly follow the recommendation of the superintendent would infringe its power to appoint teaching staff members as delegated to it by N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1. See, DeFerrari v. Bd. of Ed. of the Town of Secaucus, Hudson Co., Comm'r of Ed. decision (Aug. 30, 1979).

The rehiring of Schneider was approved by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the Board as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1. Seven of the nine Board members present for the vote were in favor of rehiring Schneider. The absence of Rotondo and another Board member did not affect the majority approval of the contract.

CONCLUSION

Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that the Board operated within the scope of its authority when it approved the appointment of Schneider for the 1991-92 school year contrary to the recommendation of the superintendent, and its decision to rehire her was not arbitrary or capricious.

I therefore CONCLUDE that petitioner is entitled to no relief in this matter and that summary decision should be GRANTED in favor of the Board.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the petition of Joyce Rotondo be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

JOYCE ROTONDO,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CARLSTADT-EAST RUTHERFORD REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT, BERGEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions were untimely filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and are not addressed herein. Reply exceptions by the Board, urging affirmance of the ALJ and relying upon prior submissions, were timely filed.

Upon careful consideration, the Commissioner reverses the determination of the ALJ for the reasons set forth below.

The ALJ bases her analysis on the premise that a local board, which has the ultimate authority to hire staff pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1, is obliged to consider the recommendation of its chief school administrator (CSA) but is not bound thereby. In so concluding, the ALJ relies on the Commissioner's decision in Brescia v. Board of Education of the Township of Pemberton, Burlington County, April 1, 1991.

Brescia, however, held that a board is free to reject a nomination brought forward by the CSA and to request presentation of another nominee, a process which might occur several times before a candidate is chosen; it did not hold that the board could consider the CSA's recommendation(s) and then appoint someone other than the person(s) recommended. To the contrary, Brescia was consistent with the Commissioner's view that, while boards of education are specifically authorized to ultimately select the persons who are employed in the district, the flow of candidates from which they choose is controlled by the CSA. This is so by virtue of the regulatory framework promulgated by the State Board through N.J.A.C. 6:11-9.3 (formerly codified as N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.12(f), powers and duties of the CSA) and N.J.A.C. 6:8-4.3, the monitoring standards currently in abeyance pending development of new regulations growing out of the Quality Education Act (P.L. 1990, c. 52), but still valid as an index of State policy on many operational issues, including the role of the CSA in staff decisions.*

In effect, then, a board cannot act to employ any person who has not finally been recommended by the CSA, whether on first consideration or after rejection of other candidates by the board. In the case of renewal of nontenured teachers, a board's rejection of the CSA's recommendation not to renew is tantamount to such action, as contracting a teacher not recommended for reemployment would result in the hiring of a person not acceptable to the CSA contrary to the regulatory scheme and State educational policy.

* The Commissioner notes that the case primarily relied upon by the Board, Patricia DeFerrari v. Bd. of Ed. of the Town of Secaucus, Hudson County, 1979 S.L.D. 494, pre-dated these regulations.

While the Board has the ultimate authority to hire, in the case of nontenured contract renewal as in all other personnel decisions, the parameters within which the Board may act are controlled by the professional judgment of the CSA.*

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is reversed for the reasons expressed herein. The Board's action in renewing the contract of Mary Schneider is deemed ultra vires and therefore null and void.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

* Nor do these parameters impinge upon the rights of affected teachers, who have no entitlement to reemployment (absent, of course, decisions made on statutorily or constitutionally proscribed bases) and who retain the ability to appear before the Board pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.20 to argue for reconsideration of decisions not to reemploy. Indeed, such an appearance was made by the affected teacher in the present matter with the result that the Board directed the CSA to reconsider his recommendation, although he elected not to alter his original determination.

For Movant-Respondent Board of Education, Dennis A. Maycher (Maycher & Molinelli)

For Respondent-Petitioner, Joyce Rotondo, Pro Se

Whereas, the above-captioned matter was decided by the Commissioner of Education on May 8, 1992, with a ruling holding that the Board of Education could not renew the contract of a nontenured teacher in the absence of an affirmative recommendation from the chief school administrator and that the Board's action in so doing was ultra vires hence null and void; and

Whereas, on June 17, 1992, the Board moved to request a stay of the Commissioner's decision pending appeal to the State Board of Education, arguing that the affected teacher had worked during the pendency of prior proceedings and had acquired tenure, so that she would be severely prejudiced by the Commissioner's decision, as would staff and students whose orderly scheduling of class assignments would suffer if the Commissioner's decision were reversed on appeal; and that the basis for the superintendent's reservations related to a summer music program that is now handled by another individual, so that no argument can be made of prejudice to students by retention of the affected teacher; and

Whereas, on June 26, 1992, petitioner replied to said motion, arguing that the Board would have the entire summer to appoint someone to the affected teacher's position for the coming academic year, thus avoiding a disruptive mid-year staff change if the Commissioner's decision is upheld; that allowing the teacher to remain on staff only compounds the Board's error of employing her for the entire 1991-92 school year; and that the superintendent believed the teacher's remployment not to be in the best interest of the district, so that students and staff would not benefit from her continued presence; and

Whereas, the Commissioner has considered the arguments of the parties and finds no basis on which a stay would be warranted, as the affected teacher can be made whole if the Commissioner's decision is reversed on appeal, and stability and continuity of operations can be maintained by prompt appointment of other staff to the affected position; now therefore

IT IS ORDERED this 9TH day of July 1992 that the Board's motion for stay is DENIED and that the Commissioner's decision in this matter shall stand unless and until reversed on appeal.

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 8, 1992

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Joyce Rotondo, pro se

For the Respondent-Appellant, Maycher & Molinelli
(Dennis A. Maycher, Esq., of Counsel)

The Board of Education of the Carlstadt-East Rutherford Regional High School District ("Board") seeks a stay, pending disposition of its appeal to the State Board of Education, of the Commissioner of Education's decision in this matter dated May 8, 1992. In his decision, the Commissioner concluded that the Board could not act to employ or renew the employment of any person not recommended by its chief school administrator, and that the Board's action in renewing the contract of a teacher contrary to the recommendation of its district superintendent was therefore ultra vires.

In support of its motion, the Board argues that denial of a stay pending final determination by the State Board would work a severe prejudice on the orderly scheduling of its staff and classroom instruction.

Inasmuch as we find that the Board's application fails to meet the standards that would entitle it to relief under Crowe v De Gioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), we deny its motion for a stay. Under the circumstances, we find no necessity for a stay in this instance.

Therefore, we deny the Board's motion for a stay of the Commissioner's decision in this matter dated May 8, 1992. In so doing, we stress that we do not address or determine the merits of the underlying appeal.

MAY 8, 1992

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL :
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE BOROUGH : DECISION OF ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, MONMOUTH : COUNTY. :

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL

Marjorie Osborn	354	7	361
Michele Rast	355	5	360
Dalton Carhart	312	6	318
Dorothy Conn	222	6	228

Pursuant to a letter request from Michele A. Rast dated April 12, 1992, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the Office of the Monmouth County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the machine ballots cast. The recount was conducted on April 27, 1992, at the Voter Machine Warehouse, 300 Halls Mills Road, Freehold, New Jersey.

At the conclusion of the recount, the tally stood as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Kathleen Masterson	419	7	426

Michele Rast	355	5	360
Dalton Carhart	312	6	318
Dorothy Conn	222	6	228

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts it as his own. The Commissioner notes that Ms. Rast's letter request indicated that she was also pursuing a recount of absentee ballots through Superior Court, but that no indication has been received of such recount having actually been undertaken. The totals given above therefore reflect the count of absentee ballots as originally reported following the election and will stand unless and until changed by the result of any absentee ballot recount requested by Ms. Rast but not yet conducted or reported on.

Accordingly, subject to the above proviso, the Commissioner finds and determines that Kathleen Masterson, Helen Marchetti and Marjorie Osborn were elected to full terms of three years each on the Board of Education of the School District of the Borough of Atlantic Highlands.

The record of this emergent matter, which seeks payment of the Fieldsboro school district's state aid allotments directly to petitioner due to the likelihood of Fieldsboro not being able to timely meet contractual tuition obligations for petitioner's education of Fieldsboro students pursuant to a sending-receiving agreement, and the tape-recorded oral initial decision and written order of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful consideration, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to meet the criteria for emergent relief set forth in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) in that no demonstration of imminent harm to students was made and any financial harm to petitioner can be averted by expedition of this matter on its merits; in that petitioner's right to effectively claim precedence over Fieldsboro's other creditors and obligations is not sufficiently settled for purposes of granting extraordinary relief; and in that the weighing of equities in this matter would most properly focus on students, whose well-being was not shown to be in any immediate jeopardy.

The Commissioner further concurs that while this matter is not amenable to emergent relief, it does demand significantly expedited proceedings on the merits, and he endorses the ALJ's plan to begin such proceedings at once.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law denying emergent relief and directing immediate scheduling of expedited proceedings on the merits is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.*

Record Closed: March 23, 1992 Decided: March 31, 1992

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education as a contested case on September 4, 1991, as the result of the filing by Thomas Marshello of a petition of appeal challenging the May 2, 1991 decision of the State Board of Examiners, which denied petitioner's application pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24 et seq. for approval of certain of his work experience as a substitute for required academic course work in connection with petitioner's eligibility for a school business administrator's certificate.

Marshello's application to the State Board of Examiners in February 1991 set forth that he lacked the requisite number of semester hour credits in the following areas:

(a) School business administration;
(b) School buildings;
(c) School finance;
(d) School law;
(e) Organization and administration of public education; and
(f) Curriculum of public schools.

After reviewing Marshello's application, the State Board of Examiners determined to credit him with equivalent work experience as a substitute for course work in two of those six areas -- "school finance" and "school law." However, it rejected his contention with respect to the areas of "school business administration," "school buildings and organization," and "administration of public education." Marshello had made no claim that his work experience entitled him to approval with respect to "curriculum of public schools."

Following transmittal of the case to the OAL, a telephone prehearing conference was conducted by Administrative Law Judge Edith R. Klinger on November 19, 1991. At that conference, it was agreed that the issue to be determined was whether, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6:11-3.24 et seq., the refusal by the State Board of Examiners to credit petitioner for his work experience in lieu of courses was arbitrary and capricious. A plenary hearing was conducted before the undersigned administrative law judge on March 2, 1992, and the record closed on March 23, 1992.

DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS OF FACT

Testimony was presented at the hearing by Marshello and one witness on his behalf, Vincent B. Calabrese. Following the conclusion of his case, petitioner was briefly called as a witness by respondent.

At the outset of the hearing, the record before the State Board of Examiners was marked into evidence as "Joint Exhibit 1." The documents included Marshello's application for certification with attachments (his resume, letters of support, a job description for the position of Auditor General in the Newark Public Schools, a position which he held from 1976 to 1984, and a credentials review summary sheet). Also marked into evidence as "Joint Exhibit 2" was the May 2, 1991 decision of the State Board of Examiners from which the instant appeal was taken.

Marshello testified that he is amply qualified to obtain approval for his work experience insofar as the areas of school business administration, school buildings, and organization and administration of public education are concerned. He pointed out in this respect that his work experience included the following: (a) from 1967 to 1973, he was an accountant with Touche Ross & Company; (b) from 1973 to early 1976, he was a supervising accountant in the Division of Budget and Accounting, New Jersey Department of the Treasury; and (c) most particularly, from early 1976 to March 1984, he served in the statutorily created position of Auditor General for the reorganized Newark school system. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:17A-9 and 17A-10 (Laws 1975, Chapter 169, Sections 9 and 10).

In connection with his eight plus years of service in Newark as Auditor General, Marshello emphasized that he was the State's fiscal monitor in the school district and therefore fully responsible for oversight authority in connection with all of the essential aspects of the operation and administration of the State's largest school system insofar as its fiscal affairs were concerned. Areas over which he exercised such authority included, he said, such critical elements as budgeting and accounting, capital construction, personnel fiscal matters, and many other activities associated with the business of carrying out the legislative mandate for Newark's school system.

With respect to the three specific areas in which the State Board of Examiners determined that Marshello failed to demonstrate equivalent work experience, petitioner maintained that he had as much, if not more, experience than any other school business administrator would have with respect to each of them. His experience in the area of "school business administration" was, he said, almost self-explanatory. With respect to "school buildings," he maintained that he was involved in vital decision-making with respect to repair and maintenance, custodial staffing, and capital construction, including development of contracts, funding, and planning. With respect to "organization and administration of public education," he pointed out that he was a member of the Governor's Task Force whose report led to the creation of the new Newark school district in 1975, and his appointment to the critical statutory position of Auditor General reflected the substantial involvement which he had.

Basically, Marshello's main point was that his involvement as fiscal monitor in Newark for more than eight years required him to become familiar with and to engage in all aspects of the district's business affairs, aside from purely academic matters, and to say that such valuable experience did not qualify him for approval in the areas for which he sought the same was completely untenable. In short, it was his job, as the State's fiscal agent, to make sure that the school system operated efficiently, and he served successfully in that capacity.

Marshello also called Vincent B. Calabrese as a witness on his behalf. Calabrese had submitted a letter in connection with petitioner's application for the school business administrator's certificate, which was a part of Exhibit J-1. In it, Calabrese noted that between September 1975 and December 1988, he had served as Assistant Commissioner of Finance in the Department of Education and that Marshello was responsible through his office to the Commissioner of Education. According to Calabrese, petitioner was responsible as Newark's Auditor General for a variety of activities, including performance and compliance reviews of all areas involved with the financial operations of the district. Those reviews were intended, he said, to improve effective control over revenues, expenditures, property control, and the accounting of other assets, including the effective use of supplies and equipment. Marshello, he said, also was responsible for assuring that an adequate system of internal controls was in place and operating effectively.

Calabrese's testimony at the hearing amplified on his letter. He noted that the requirements imposed upon the Newark school system, except for size, were the same as those which were in place in every other district in the State and, as he put it, after serving just a few months in Newark, one could probably handle the same activities in any other district. The reverse would not be true. While Marshello did not have "hands-on" experience in all aspects of the business operation, he did have involvement with many areas as the result of his fiscal oversight functions.

With respect, however, to two of the areas of which the Board found Marshello deficient -- "school buildings" and "organization and administration of public schools," -- Calabrese was less than enthusiastic about petitioner's credentials. Thus, with respect to "organization and administration of the public schools," he observed that Marshello's functioning as Auditor General did not necessarily provide experience in those important aspects which involved academic considerations As to "school buildings," Calabrese felt that petitioner's knowledge depended upon his degree of involvement, and while he may have had input into maintenance and finance, there was little indication of any actual experience in the planning aspect.

On cross-examination, Calabrese noted there was no indication that petitioner was experienced in various matters which normally fell within the jurisdiction of the school board secretary, whose functions often were combined with that of the school business administrator. For example, oversight of school election matters clearly was absent.

The respondent then called Marshello as its witness. Essentially, Marshello's testimony revealed that he had little experience with respect to the academic side of school business operations. For example, although he was familiar with fiscal aspects of the "school buildings" element, he was not involved in any planning from an academic viewpoint. On the other hand, Marshello maintained that the most important consideration in school business operations is the "bottom line," and that 85 percent of most school budgets are taken up by salary, a distinctly fiscal matter.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon my review of the testimony and the documentary evidence, I herewith make the following findings of fact:

1. Petitioner, Thomas J. Marshello, was employed as an accountant for Touche Ross Company from 1967 to 1973.

2. From 1973 to early 1976, petitioner was employed as a supervising accountant in the Division of Budget and Accounting, Department of the Treasury. In that capacity, he served as a staff person in support of the activities undertaken by Special Agent Walter Wechsler at the direction of Governor Byrne to develop a system of fiscal reforms attendant to the reorganization of the Newark school system.

3. In early 1976, petitioner was appointed Auditor General for the Newark school system, a position established pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:17A-9 and 17A-10. The duties and responsibilities of that position were set forth in the statute as follows:

> In districts in cities of the first class with a population over 325,000 the commissioner shall appoint an auditor general, who, subject to the rules and regulations of the State board, shall:
> a. Perform post or concurrent audits of such transactions and accounts kept by or for the district as he may deem necessary;
> b. Perform management analysis of such transactions and activities of the district as he may deem necessary in order to improve the efficiency, productivity and performance of the district and to disclose and prevent inefficiency in the district;
> c. Conduct financial, operational and compliance reviews to improve effective control over income, expenditures, funds, property and other assets;
> d. Determine whether the financial transactions of the district have been consummated in accordance with laws, regulations or other legal requirements, and whether adequate internal financial control over operations is exercised;
> e. Keep and maintain such records as may be necessary to enable him to accomplish the duties of the office as in this act provided;
> f. Organize the office as he shall determine appropriate with the approval of the commissioner;
> g. Subject to the approval of the commissioner, appoint, employ, and with the limits of funds appropriated therefor, fix the compensation of such assistants and employees as the commissioner shall determine to be required to perform the duties and functions of the office;
> h. Report at least annually to the commissioner on the operations of the office;
> i. Perform such other duties as shall be directed by the commissioner.

4. Petitioner served as Newark's Auditor General until March 1984. In that capacity, he carried out all of the duties and responsibilities of the position as set forth in the statute.

5. Petitioner's work experience provided him with the equivalency of required course work in the areas of "school finance" and "school law."

6. Petitioner successfully carried out all of the obligations placed upon him under N.J.S.A. 18A:17A-9 and, in addition, successfully performed all of the duties and responsibilities set forth in the job description for the position.

7. Although, as part of his duties and responsibilities as Auditor General, the petitioner was involved, to some extent, in the area of "school buildings," his experience did not include certain of the essential aspects of that element. For example, he had little if any experience with respect to the development of plans for construction of new buildings or additions, and was not involved, at all, in consideration of the academic aspects of school building design.

7. Petitioner did not while serving as Auditor General engage in many of those activities which would normally be involved in the elements of "school business administration" or "organization and administration of public education." For example, acting as fiscal monitor for the school district did not require nor include participation in the vital substantive academic oriented decision-making which takes place during the budget process.

9. Petitioner conceded that he does not have equivalent work experience adequate to justify approval in lieu of course work for the element of "curriculum of public schools."

DISCUSSION

As counsel for respondent aptly observed, the elevated standard of review which applies to a matter of this sort makes it very difficult for a petitioner to establish a case sufficient to set aside a decision by the Board of Examiners. As set forth in the prehearing order, unless the Board's decision can be characterized as "arbitrary" or "capricious," and not "a reasoned exercise of [its] discretionary authority," the decision must be affirmed. See, Babicz v. State Board of Examiners, 1978 S.L.D. 937, 940, aff'd State Board, 1979 S.L.D. 816. It simply is not within the province of an administrative law judge to substitute his or her judgment for the agency's determination. See also, Siefring v. N.J. State Board of Examiners, OAL DKT. EDU 6196-86, decided by the Commissioner June 2, 1987; Stoolmacher v. State Board, 1975 S.L.D. 951.

Based, then, upon my review and consideration of the documentary evidence and the testimony, I do not believe that petitioner has carried the substantial evidentiary burden placed upon him. Although he performed well as Newark's Auditor General, a substantial portion of his activities in that position were oriented strictly to the "fiscal side" and he had very little involvement in those aspects of school business operations which necessarily involve academic considerations and decision-making. While Marshello appears to have competently carried out the duties of Auditor General, that experience, while valuable, is not an adequate substitute for the required course work in those areas which the Board deemed petitioner to be deficient. Under the circumstances, the Board's exercise of the discretion given to it must be upheld.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth herein, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to carry his burden of proof and I ORDER that the petition of appeal should be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has not met his burden of demonstrating that the decision of the State Board of Examiners in this matter was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. To the contrary, the Board has properly exercised its sound discretion in determining that petitioner's experience was not a sufficient substitute for the academic course work required for eligibility for a school business administrator's certificate.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

Pursuant to a letter request from the South Hunterdon Regional High School Board of Education dated April 14, 1992, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the Office of the Hunterdon County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the ballots cast. The recount was conducted on April 16, 1992 at the Old City Jail, Lambertville, Stockton Municipal Building, and West Amwell Municipal Building.

At the conclusion of the recount, it was determined that the original count was sustained.

The tally stood as follows:

	AT POLLS		ABSENTEE		TOTAL
	YES	NO	YES	NO	YES	NO
CURRENT EXPENSE QUESTION	299	413	1	3	300	416
CAPITAL OUTLAY QUESTION	444	247	4	0	448	247

There was a discrepancy between the Combined Statement of Result and the votes cast indicated on the front of the machines. It was noted that a total of 297 ballots were recorded for the YES vote for the Current Expense Question on the Combined Statement while 300 ballots were rendered on the machines. The Poll List and Authorization Slips were checked by all present and showed there was a total count of 300 ballots cast for the YES vote for the Current Expense Question. Also, upon checking the voting machines, it was noted that Machine #172706, Lambertville and Machine #172681, West Amwell had the Capital Outlay as Question #1 and Current Expense Question as #2 but on the SAMPLE BALLOTS it read Current Expense Question as #1 and Capital Outlay Question as #2 and was listed this way on Machine #172711, Lambertville and Machine #172712, Stockton.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

Pursuant to a letter request from Mark Fiedorczyk dated April 10, 1992, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the Office of the Sussex County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the ballots cast. The recount was conducted on April 28, 1992 at 1:30 P.M. at the Sussex County Board of Elections.

At the conclusion of the recount, the tally stood as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Mark Fiedorczyk	308	11	319
Janet Grace	314	7	321
G. Nolan (Write-In)	1	0	1
Bill Thorp (Write-In)	1	0	1
Markey Ramone (Write-In)	1	0	1
Eugene Williams (Write-In)	1	0	1

There were 696 ballots, 696 coupons and 696 signatures in the election book (one signature designated as a replacement ballot). Four ballots were not counted because votes were cast for both candidates (Exhibits 4,5,6,7). One ballot was replaced and not counted due to write-in names not being punched (Exhibit 2) and one ballot was voided and not counted due to the person changing his/her vote (Exhibit 1). One vote was added to Mark Fiedorczyk's total (increase from 318 to 319) due to a ballot being marked and not counted by the computer (Exhibit 3). Several ballots, while valid, did not include votes for the one-year seat at issue herein and are therefore not reflected in the tallies given above. Absentee ballot counts are given as reported by the Board Secretary on the Regular/Combined Statement of Result.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts it as his own.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that Janet Grace was elected to a one-year term on the Board of Education of the School District of the Town of Newton.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board secretary alleged Board illegally terminated her in July 1991 violating her tenure rights. Board contended petitioner did not acquire tenure as her employment before October 1988 was part-time.

In light of definition of full-time in N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2, initial decision determined petitioner did not acquire tenure since she did not serve full-time for three consecutive years. Petitioner failed to prove Board acted improperly or unlawfully in terminating her employment. Petition was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision as his own stressing that boards of education determine what constitutes full-time employment for a board secretary.

Respondent.

Barbara E. Riefberg, Esq., for the respondent (Jeffrey I. Baron, attorney)

Record Closed: March 2, 1992 Decided: March 27, 1992

BEFORE AUGUST E. THOMAS, ALJ:

Petitioner served as a board secretary for the Board of Education of Laurel Springs (Board), and was terminated by notice dated July 29, 1991. Petitioner seeks reinstatement in her position, asserting that she is a tenured board secretary. This matter was filed with the Commissioner of Education on August 21, 1991, and was thereafter transferred to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

ISSUE

The issue is whether or not petitioner acquired tenure as a board secretary.

The record shows that petitioner's employment began on July 1, 1977 and has been continuous through September 27, 1991, more than enough time to acquire a tenured status. However, the Board asserts that petitioner's employment for most of these years was part-time; that the relevant statute confers tenure only for full-time board secretaries; and that her full-time employment was less than three consecutive years.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

1. Petitioner commenced employment as a board secretary on July 1, 1977, at a salary of $3,500. The contract contained a clause allowing for termination of the contract by either party notice in writing. Petitioner did not have an office in the school building, she worked out of her home a few blocks away. A full-time secretary and a superintendent were in the school building on a regular basis at that time.

2. Petitioner received similar contracts until July 1, 1982.

DISCUSSION

Petitioner asserts that the resolution of this matter involves the factual question of the definition of "full time" as set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2, which reads as follows:

> a. Any secretary . . . of a board of education of any school district who has or shall have devoted his full time to the duties of his office and has or shall have served therein for three consecutive calendar years . . .
> shall hold his office, position or employment under tenure during good behavior and efficiency and shall not be dismissed or suspended or reduced in compensation, except for neglect, misbehavior or other offense and only in the manner prescribed by subarticle B of article 2 of chapter 6 of this title.

Petitioner contends that the Board has designated the work hours constituting full time as 8:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and that no such designation can be found in any statute or rule. She asserts that she was initially employed with the Board's and her understanding that she would work the number of hours necessary to carry out the duties of board secretary. None of her contracts mention part-time employment; neither do any of the Board minutes until petitioner's daytime hours were established by the Board in 1988, defining the number of hours that are required daily to be considered full time. The fact that her office was in her home was both accommodating to the Board and convenient to petitioner. Petitioner states that she devoted her "full-time to the duties of the office"; therefore, she carried out entirely the duties and responsibilities of the board secretary as set forth by the statute. Petitioner asserts that respondent is placing form over substance in this matter.

The Board argues that petitioner was a part-time employee initially, and as such could not meet the requirements of the statute which would confer tenure. In this regard the Board submitted in evidence a document prepared by petitioner (R-1) purportedly showing that her salary was based on the percentage of time required of the position. Likewise R-2 indicates an understanding that petitioner's sick days were prorated according to a part-time position; that is, for example, 6 days annually for a half-time position; 9 days for a 75-percent position and 12 days for a 100-percent position.

The record shows also that petitioner, while employed by the Board, gained employment as acting board secretary for the Merchantville School District for the years 1985, 1986 and 1987. It was her testimony that she worked 50-55 hours per week, i.e., 15 hours per week for Merchantville and 35-40 hours for the Board. She testified that Merchantville wanted her to work extra hours but that she could not do it because of her primary employment as board secretary in Laurel Springs.

Petitioner testified that from at least the 1982-83 school year, she was working at least 30-35 hours per week for the Board. A former Board president testified in her behalf that the percentages set forth in Exhibit R-1 were a rationale for increasing petitioner's salary and had nothing to do with the hours she worked. The former Board president testified that the Board expected petitioner to work whatever number of hours it took to carry out the duties of the board secretary.

Notwithstanding the above, at its meeting of July 29, 1991, the Board acted to terminate petitioner's employment in a manner consistent with the 60-days'-notice clause contained in her contract for 1991-92. The Board asserts that petitioner had not yet served the required time as full-time board secretary to attain a tenured status since her full-time employment did not commence until on or about October 17, 1988.

Her original contract salary for 1988-89 was $18,846. At its September 1988 meeting, the Board acted to increase the board secretary's time to full time effective October 15, 1988. A 10-percent salary increase was initially approved. Petitioner was to be moved into the school building as soon as office space could be made available and regular hours of 8:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. were established for the first time.

Shortly after the September 1988 Board meeting, petitioner requested that the Board consider an increase larger than 10 percent since she considered that her previous compensation was based on 79 percent of a "full-time" salary. She provided the Board with a chart to support this calculation. Based upon her protestations, her salary subsequently was increased for that year on a prorated basis to $23,710. Petitioner commenced working in the school building on a full-time basis on or about October 17, 1988.

Contracts were issued to petitioner for the next several years recognizing the position as full time. The contract for 1989-90 was for $25,962 and the contract for 1990-91 specified an annual salary of $28,000. The 1991-92 contract was for $34,880. This contract was for the period July 1, 1991, through June 30, 1992, and contained a clause, as did every contract between petitioner and the Board of Education, that permitted the contract to be terminated by either party on 60 days' notice.

The Board argues that petitioner's initial salary was established considering that it would be based on 50 percent of the salary of a full-time 12-month employee. Further, she received half the sick days normally given to full-time 12-month employees, i.e., 6 as opposed to 12. This arrangement continued until July 1, 1982. Each increase in her salary until the 1981-82 school year was based on 50 percent or half of the full-time salary. For example, in the 1981-82 school year the "full-time" salary was established at $14,400, whereas petitioner's salary was $7,200. For the school years 1982-83 and 1983-84, petitioner's employment increased to 75 percent of "full-time." Her sick days were also prorated. In contracts for the school years 1984-85 through 1987-88, petitioner's compensation was calculated at 79 percent of the "full-time" salary. Petitioner's contract for the 1988-89 year was also based on 79 percent of "full-time" until the Board acted at its September 1988 meeting to increase the position to full-time effective October 15, 1988. After negotiations, petitioner's salary was established at $23,710.

Subsequent contracts for 1989-1990 and 1990-1991 recognized the position as full-time. Based on this history, the Board concluded that petitioner's full-time employment lasted from October 15, 1988, through September 27, 1991, when she was terminated. Since this is less than a three-consecutive-year period, the Board concludes that petitioner has not acquired tenure and that she was terminated pursuant to the 60-days' clause in her contract.

 During 1985, 1986 and 1987, petitioner also worked as board secretary for the Merchantville School District 15 hours per week plus evening meetings.

FINDINGS OF FACTS

Based on a review of the documents in evidence and the testimony offered at hearing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner was initially employed to a part-time position and continued as such until the Board voted to establish a full-time position effective October 15, 1988 (R-6). I FIND no difference between a job which requires employment full time for two or three days per week and one which requires services five days per week for a portion of each day. Both are part-time.

The evidence leading to this conclusion follows:

1. The Job Description for the board secretary position states:

   Work Day: The normal work day for the part-time position will commence and conclude at times agreed upon between the appointee and the Board. R-4; emphasis added.

2. Regarding the above document, petitioner conceded under cross-examination, "that's how I was hired" (to a part-time position).

3. Petitioner testified further that for a period of two or three years she worked simultaneously for the Laurel Springs Board of Education, the Merchantville Board of Education, and H & R Block, and was self-employed in her home as a typist (R-3).

4. Petitioner testified that the superintendent's secretary performed some Board duties, including typing his agenda for Board meetings.

5. Petitioner testified that her initial employment required about 20 hours of her time each week. This time gradually increased until the Board voted to establish a full-time position.

6. Each of petitioner's contracts contained a termination clause. At some point she would have acquired a tenure status making further contracts unnecessary,

7. Petitioner prepared a document establishing that her salary was based on a portion of the work week (R-1).

8. Petitioner prepared a document establishing that her sick leave benefit was prorated as that of a part-time employee (R-2).

9. Petitioner requested increased salary based on the increase in time required by her job (R-1, R-2).

10. Petitioner's full-time employment began on October 15, 1988, and she was terminated on September 27, 1991, a period of time less than the three calendar years required to acquire tenure (N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2).

Based on my review of the documentary evidence and the testimony, I CONCLUDE that both litigants understood at the time of petitioner's initial employment that the position required part-time service and provided part-time compensation, including the part-time sick leave.

Although petitioner contends, correctly, that she devoted her "full time" to the duties" of her office, the small, single-building, K-6 elementary school district with a pupil population between 180 and 200 simply did not require the hours necessary for full-time employment.

Accordingly, petitioner was employed part-time until October 15, 1988, and did not serve the time necessary to acquire tenure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2.

Board Vote for Termination

The vote to terminate petitioner's employment was three yes; one no; and four abstentions. Petitioner asserts that although there is no state law which requires a recorded majority vote of the full membership of the Board to terminate the board secretary, the Board is bound by its own policy, number 200-7.5.4, which requires a majority vote of the members present to approve such a termination. She asserts, therefore, that her termination is improper and must be set aside.

Contrary to petitioner's argument, five assenting affirmative votes of the Board were not necessary to carry out the motion to eliminate petitioner's position. The four abstentions must be counted as affirmative votes. A quorum was present and the law has been established by the Commissioner who held in Farmer v.

Camden City Board of Education, 1967 S.L.D. 287, 290, quoting Mount v. Parker, 32 N.J.L. 341, 342 (Sup. Ct. 1867), that

> It being the well established law, that where no specified number of votes is required, but a majority of a board regularly convened are entitled to act, a person declining to vote is to be considered as assenting to the votes of those who do. ***

See also Jeanne Golden v. Board of Education of Manville, Commissioner of Education (April 22, 1985). Consequently, there is no impediment in the Board's vote to terminate petitioner pursuant to the terms of her contract.

Having considered the facts in this matter, together with the arguments of counsel and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed her burden of persuasion to demonstrate that the Board acted improperly or unlawfully in regard to its determination to terminate her employment.

Accordingly the petition of appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

DORIS A. WALSH,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF LAUREL SPRINGS, CAMDEN COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner filed exceptions and the Board filed reply exceptions pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4.

Petitioner avers in exceptions that the ALJ failed to define the meaning of a "FULL-TIME" (Exceptions, at p. 1) Board secretary and as such erroneously ruled on whether petitioner was tenured. Petitioner reasserts her claim that the issue in this case in not the label placed on the position but the number of hours worked and the number of hours which constitute full-time employment under N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2. In deciding the matter, petitioner contends the ALJ's conclusion that she was not a full-time employee in the Board's employ placed form over substance. In support of this proposition, petitioner contends her testimony stated that the level of her salary at the beginning of her employment and until the office was moved to the school took into consideration convenience to the Board of Education in having no place to put the Board of Education office and convenience to petitioner in having the office at her home.

Petitioner further argues that the determination as to whether she was part-time or full-time cannot be made by using salary charts (R-1) alone. Relying on former Board President Ivans, who stated Walsh's salary had nothing to do with hours worked, petitioner claims that considering there were other factors that affected her salary, the only reasonable way to determine whether her salary was full-time is by analogy to N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.13 which defines how much time is required per day for a teacher to be considered full-time. That regulation states:

> The period of time in each day required for full-time employment shall be the number of hours prescribed by the district board of education but shall be not less than four clock hours.
> (N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.13)

It is petitioner's position that were the reasoning of the ALJ and the Board followed, and the Board of Education office remained in Ms. Walsh's home, even if she continued to work 30 to 40 hours per week including Board meetings, she would never acquire tenure unless the Board labeled her full-time. Petitioner finds this conclusion fundamentally unfair and contrary to the basic tenets of tenure acquisition which are based upon the duties performed and the time served in a position. In support of this contention petitioner again cites Robert F.X. Van Wagner v. Board of Education of the Borough of Roselle, Union County, 1973 S.L.D. 488 and Juanita Zielenski v. Board of Education of the Town of Guttenberg, 1971 S.L.D. 664.

The Board's reply exceptions reiterate its position that Ms. Walsh did not serve as a full-time Board secretary for the requisite time period to attain tenure because she did not begin full-time employment until October 17, 1988, and was terminated as of September 27, 1991. It claims that such termination was therefore proper.

The Board's position is that whether she worked in the school building or at home is not the critical issue herein. Rather it is whether she was employed as a full-time Board secretary. The Board relies on the documents prepared by Ms. Walsh herself to demonstrate that she considered herself to be a part-time employee, and refers to R-1 and R-2, the charts she submitted for the Board's consideration of her employment in support of this position. The Board further claims that the fact that petitioner asked for and received a substantial salary increase after having her hours increased in October 17, 1988 further establish that she was a part-time employee before that date. The Board avers that the ALJ did not simply accept a label placed upon the position by the Board, nor did he accept the label proffered by Ms. Walsh, but rather carefully and thoroughly reviewed the evidence in deciding the matter.

The Board would distinguish those two cases upon which petitioner relied to establish that she was actually full-time. It claims in both Grimm v. Board of Education of Hamilton, decided by the Commissioner April 19, 1945 and DePhillips v. Fairview Borough Board of Education, 1939-49 S.L.D. 102, the board secretaries in those cases were admittedly full-time employees in school positions. Those cases centered on whether their part-time outside employment precluded their attainment of a tenured status, the Board argues. By contrast, the Board contends this matter does not present a situation wherein petitioner was prohibited from working for other employers. Rather, it claims the issue in this matter is whether petitioner was employed part-time or full-time, and toward a determination of that issue, the amount of time she spent in other employment is probative. It claims that the extensive nature of petitioner's outside part-time employment prior to October 1988 strongly supports the conclusion reached that petitioner was not employed in a full-time capacity before that date. In this regard the Board refers to R-1 and R-2, the charts petitioner prepared and submitted to the Board showing that she considered herself part-time before October 17, 1988.

The Board queries if petitioner were working the same number of hours at home before being moved into the school and having a regular schedule imposed upon her, why did she so vehemently demand additional compensation? The Board's response is that the October 17, 1988 change did amount to an elevation of the position from part-time to full-time and that the Board recognized this when it increased her compensation substantially.

The Board seeks affirmance of the ALJ's determination.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner affirms the findings and conclusion of the ALJ for the reasons expressed in the initial decision.

It is within the Board's discretion and, indeed, is its responsibility to define what constitutes full-time employment for its teaching staff members. See N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.13. See also Middlesex County Educational Services Commission Education Association v. Board of Directors of the Middlesex County Education Services Commission, Middlesex County, decided by the State Board January 7, 1987, at p. 18. However, the position of board secretary is not one requiring a teaching certificate, and therefore, falls outside of the prescriptions of N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.13 because a board secretary is not a teaching staff member. Although N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.13 does not apply to board secretaries, who are not teaching staff members, the fact remains that full-time versus part-time positions are defined by the Board. It is further clear from the record of this matter that in 1988 the Board acted to create a full-time position. See R-6. See also R-1 and R-2. That the Board failed to modify the job description in September 1988 to indicate that the new position was no longer part-time, but rather was full-time is de minimus. The issuance of yearly contracts, and the marked rise in petitioner's salary to $23,710 prorated for school year 1988-89, makes plain that petitioner's employment was part-time until October 1988. The Commissioner so finds and from such determination also concludes that she did not, serve the time necessary to acquire tenure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:17-2.

Moreover, the Commissioner's review of the arguments of the parties pertaining to the second issue in this matter, that is the Board's vote for termination, comports with those findings and conclusions of law mentioned in the initial decision at pages 7-8.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed by the ALJ as amplified herein, the initial decision is affirmed, and the instant Petition of Appeal dismissed, with prejudice.

AMERICAN ATHLETIC INCORPORATED,
Petitioner,
v.
WEST DEPTFORD TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION and EARTHWORKS, INC., Respondents.

This matter was commenced by American Athletic Incorporated on March 9, 1992, with the filing of a Petition of Appeal and an application for temporary emergent relief. West Deptford Township Board of Education and Earthworks, Inc., filed Answers and papers in opposition to the application, and oral argument on the emergent application was heard on March 13, 1992, by Daniel B. McKeown, the administrative law judge then assigned to the matter.

A temporary restraining order was issued against respondents by Judge McKeown on March 17, 1992, and was affirmed by the Commissioner of Education on April 10, 1992.

It now appears clear, upon further consideration of the applicable law, that petitioner lacks standing to assert the claims set forth in the Petition; specifically, petitioner, as an unsuccessful bidder, may not now challenge the legality of the specifications pursuant to which respondent school board awarded the contract to respondent Earthworks, Inc., the low bidder. *Camden Plaza Parking v. Mr. King	1	0	1
Kardillo	1	0	1
A. Capone	1	0	1
Felix Slean	1	0	1
Hill	1	0	1

The following ballots were not counted for the three-year term:

1. Two votes for Capone with no first name or initial.

2. A write-in for Kathy Slawson whose name was printed on the ballot as a candidate.

3. A ballot with four votes, one printed candidate checked and three write-ins listed.

4. A ballot with votes for Richard Feldman and Kathy Slawson where the checks next to their names had been erased. The checks were still visible but obviously erased.

With the recount votes as listed, these ballots not counted would not have changed the results of the election if the votes were tallied.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts as his own the findings set forth above.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that the results of the election as announced are confirmed by the recount. Kathy Slawson, Richard Feldman, and Sharon Wescoe are the three winning candidates for seats on the Washington Borough Board of Education in Warren County.

The announced results of the balloting for three members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each at the annual school election held April 7, 1992 in the School District of the Township of Medford, Burlington County, were as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Robert Criss	382	4	386

Trudy Cole	823	3	826
Claude Doak	755	4	759
Constance L. Stewart	635	3	638

Pursuant to a letter request from Constance L. Stewart dated April 13, 1992, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the Office of the Burlington County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the machine ballots cast. The recount was conducted on April 30, 1992 at the Burlington County Board of Election Office, 49 Rancocas Road, Mount Holly, and the Burlington County Superintendent of Elections Office, Eayrestown Road, Lumberton, New Jersey. Absentee ballots were recounted by the Burlington County Board of Elections.

At the conclusion of the recount, the tally stood unchanged and was as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Robert Criss	382	4	386
Kenneth S. Domzalski	655	4	659
Trudy Cole	823	3	826
Claude Doak	755	4	759
Constance L. Stewart	635	3	638

One thousand three hundred and twenty-eight voters cast ballots as indicated by both the public counter and protective counter numbers of the six voting machines used in the school election. At the time of the recount, the sealed election packets received from the school district were individually opened to compare the number of both the voting authorities issued and voter names appearing on the poll lists to the number of ballots cast. This comparison was made for each polling place. There were no irregularities noted. The following summarizes the comparisons made of the protective and public counter, poll lists and voting authorities:

Polling Place	Protective and Public Counters	Poll List	Voting Authorities	Voided Voting Authorities
I. Allen School	132	132	132	0
II. Cranberry Pines Sch.	490*	490	490	0
III. Haines School	246	246	246	0
IV. Taunton Forge Sch.	257	257	257	0
V. Medford Leas	202	203	203	1

The above comparison notes that one (1) voting authority was voided at the Medford Leas location. An examination of the contents of the sealed packet for Medford Leas revealed that voting authority number 003 was attached to a note stating that "Virginia Anderson signed the book, then left before she voted. Here is her voting authority." The note was signed by Claire Chilkotowsky, judge of election, and Marion M. Getsinger, inspector of election. The Commissioner's representative reviewed the poll list; Anderson's name appeared as the third name on the list with voting authority number 003 recorded beside Anderson's name and address. Therefore, the voting authority was properly accounted, and no discrepancies were found to exist.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts it as his own.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that Trudy Cole, Claude Doak and Kenneth S. Domzalski were elected to full terms of three years each on the Board of Education of the School District of the Township of Medford.

The announced results of the balloting for three members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each at the annual school election held April 7, 1992 in the School District of the Township of Hainesport, Burlington County, were as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Shirley H. Powell	295	3	298
Raymond Hall	358	13	371
Carole Clark	314	14	328
John C. Bradley	333	13	346
Bill Evans	319	4	323

Pursuant to a letter request from William Evans dated April 10, 1992, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the Office of the Burlington County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the ballots cast. The recount was conducted on April 30, 1992 at the Burlington County Board of Elections Office, 49 Rancocas Road, Mount Holly, and at the Burlington County Superintendent of Elections Office, Eayrestown Road, Lumberton, New Jersey.

At the conclusion of the recount, the tally stood as follows:

Raymond Hall	358	13	371
Carole Clark	314	14	328
John C. Bradley	333	13	346
Bill Evans	319	4	323

Six hundred four voters cast ballots as indicated by both the public counter and protective counter numbers on the voting machine. At the time of the recount, the sealed election packet received from the school district was opened to compare the number of both the voting authorities issued and voter names appearing on the poll lists to the number of ballots cast. Two irregularities were notes as follows:

1) There were no voting authorities enclosed in the sealed election packet.

2) Six hundred five names appeared on the poll list, one more than than the number indicated by the voting machine counters.

On May 1, 1992, a memorandum and a sealed envelope were delivered to the Commissioner's representative at the Burlington County Superintendent of Schools Office from the Hainesport Board of Education Secretary. The board secretary stated in her memorandum (Exhibit A) that "I am enclosing in a sealed envelope the voter authorities which were not includes in the package from the election workers."

While the contents of the envelope were examined by the Commissioner's representative, the voting authorities were not found to be maintained on a string, in the order of issuance. Furthermore, the voting authorities were not placed under the proper controls immediately following the school election as required pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:14-61 and 18A:14-62. Due to the lack of control exercised immediately following the election, the voting authorities could not be considered here.

Although there exists a disparity between the number of names appearing on the poll lists (605) and the number of ballots cast (604), it appears that one prospective voter did not cast a ballot.

Additionally, a review of all of the poll lists revealed one name without a voting authority number recorded. The statement of result of school election, Form A33, (Exhibit B) notes that 604 ballots were counted and one (1) ballot was voided. The voided ballot (voting authority) would account for the disparity noted at the time of the recount; however, the voting authorities are not being considered for the aforementioned reason. Nevertheless, the election workers have certified the results of the school election at the polls, and it appears that this irregularity can be attributed to a clerical oversight.

Additionally, sufficient mechanical controls exist within the confines of the voting machine which provide for two separate voter counts which, in this instance, did not exceed the number of names appearing on the poll lists.

While irregularities did exist in this matter, they are not of such a magnitude to have caused the will of the electorate to be thwarted.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts as his own the findings set forth above.

The Commissioner therefore finds and determines that Raymond Hall, John C. Bradley and Carole Clark were elected to full terms of three years each on the Board of Education of the School District of the Township of Hainesport, Burlington County.

Pursuant to a letter of application from Fred Zalewski dated April 16, 1992, the Commissioner of Education directed his representative from the Office of the Bergen County Superintendent of Schools to conduct a recheck of the votes cast on the voting machines. This recheck was conducted on April 27, 1992, at the Counting Voting Machine Warehouse, Carlstadt, New Jersey.

At the conclusion of the recheck of the votes cast on the voting machines, the tally stood as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Joseph C. Smith	700	31	731
Anna Maciag	598	31	629
John L. Rebeckyino	577	5	582
Fred Zalewski	546	29	575
George J. Blumenshein	498	3	501
Anthony Janiec, Jr.	461	8	469

We call your attention to the Public Counter count for machine #93785. The count was 810, yet the Protective Counter reflected a count of 142. When a member of the Voting Machine Warehouse staff was questioned concerning this discrepancy, he replied that there was an irregularity, yet he further added they were experiencing trouble with this machine, but he was of the opinion that the votes cast for the candidate were accurate.

There was no request known to the County Superintendent for a recount to Superior Court of the absentee ballots.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts as his own the findings set forth above.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that Joseph C. Smith, Anna Maciag and John L. Rebeckyino were elected to serve as school board members in the district of the Borough of Wallington at the school election held on April 7, 1992.

In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Douglas Heil New Jersey State Department of Corrections and New Jersey State Prison	)	BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OAL Dkt No. EDU 11219-91 S SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

Petitioner, New Jersey State Prison ("NJSP") and the Department of Corrections ("DOC"), and Respondent, Douglas Heil, desire to enter into the following settlement agreement in the public interest:

1. WHEREAS, Respondent, Douglas Heil, a tenured teacher, has been employed by the DOC as the Supervisor of Education at NJSP since March 1985; and

2. WHEREAS, Respondent has been employed in the Education Department for NJSP since September 1972; and

3. WHEREAS, Respondent has never previously been subjected to any disciplinary proceedings in the course of that employment; and

4. WHEREAS, on October 1, 1991, the DOC advised Respondent that it was referring tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"), and in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 et seq., the following charges were specified; 1) insubordination, 2) conduct unbecoming a teacher; and

5. WHEREAS, on November 18, 1991, the DOC filed written charges with the Commissioner requesting dismissal or reduction in salary of Respondent; and

6. WHEREAS, on November 22, 1991, the Acting Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes acknowledged in writing that the DOC properly certified the charges to the Commissioner; and

7. WHEREAS, Respondent filed his answer on December 10, 1991; and

8. WHEREAS, Respondent has not been suspended, but was on a voluntary leave of absence without pay; and

9. WHEREAS, there is an available Teacher Level I position at Mountainview Correctional Facility for a teacher of mathematics; and

10. WHEREAS, Respondent wishes to return to the position of teaching mathematics, and Petitioner is eager for him to return; and

11. WHEREAS, said position will have no supervisory responsibilities; and

12. WHEREAS, tenure hearings are scheduled before Administrative Law Judge Daniel B. McKeown for June 17 through June 30, 1992.

IT IS THEREFORE AGREED that the DOC will withdraw the tenure charges against the Respondent, subject to the approval of the Commissioner of DOE; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that the DOC will transfer Respondent to Mountainview Correctional Facility as a tenured Teacher Level I in mathematics with a corresponding reduction in annual salary to $45,910.92 which is the maximum salary for said position effective upon the approval of this settlement by the Commissioner of DOE; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that Respondent agrees to be reassigned to the Mountainview Correctional Facility as a teacher of mathematics and the corresponding reduction in salary, after consultation with an attorney, subject to approval of this settlement by the Commissioner of DOE; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that by this settlement, Respondent does not waive his rights, if he is subject to a reduction in force, to employment in any category he is entitled to by seniority.

HOWEVER, IT IS ALSO AGREED that if he is subject to a reduction in force, Respondent will not apply to a Supervisor position within DOC, subject to approval of this settlement by the Commissioner of DOE; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that pursuant to N.J.A.C. 4A:6-1.5(b), Respondent will reimburse the DOC for 26.75 hours from which he owes the State of New Jersey for deficits in his sick/vacation/administrative leave fund which occurred during his voluntary leave, subject to approval of this agreement by the Commissioner of DOE; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that Respondent's personnel file will remain intact subject to approval of this agreement by the Commissioner of DOE; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that none of the allegations giving rise to these charges will form the basis for later disciplinary action against Respondent, subject to approval of this agreement by the Commissioner of DOE; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that in response to inquiries regarding Respondent's personnel history, Petitioner will report only that Respondent served in the position of Supervisor of Education until he was transferred to the position of Teacher I, unless the Respondent authorizes the release of other information, subject to approval of this agreement by the Commissioner of DOE; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that this agreement, its contents and its terms do not constitute precedent of any kind to be used against the DOC; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that both parties waive the right to file exceptions and cross-exceptions; and

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that nothing in this settlement shall be deemed to be an admission of liability on behalf of either party.

HOWEVER, should the Commissioner of DOE or the State Board of Education refuse to approve any terms of this settlement, including the withdrawal of said tenure charges by the DOC or by Respondent, any such refusal shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue the matter further.

THE REASONS FOR ENTERING INTO THIS AGREEMENT ARE AS FOLLOWS:

(a) The costs of continuing to prosecute the tenure claims against the Respondent are expected to be substantial;

(b) In view of the reduction to Teacher Level I and the transfer to Mountainview Correctional Facility, the opportunity for continuing violations is reduced;

(c) The charges did not involve abuse of students, inappropriate physical contact or any allegations of moral turpitude.

(d) Both parties after consultation with counsel, fully endorse the agreement and are anxious to implement said terms.

CERTIFICATION

I, Douglas Heil, hereby certify that I have reviewed the Settlement Agreement attached hereto and fully understand the meaning and terms of said agreement. I have discussed this matter at some length with my representative and I am satisfied with my representation. IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF DOUGLAS HEIL,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF	:	DECISION
CORRECTIONS AND NEW JERSEY	:
STATE PRISON.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law in the form of a joint stipulation of settlement have been reviewed. A careful and independent review of the proposed terms reached by the parties requires rejection of the settlement and remand of this matter for further action before the Office of Administrative Law.

At page 4 of the settlement it is stated, inter alia,

> IT IS FURTHER AGREED that in response to inquiries regarding Respondent's personnel history, Petitioner will report only that Respondent served in the position of Supervisor of Education until he was transferred to the position of Teacher I, unless the Respondent authorizes the release of other information, subject to approval of this agreement by the Commissioner of DOE;

While the Department of Corrections is not specifically required to provide publicly the reasons for separation in its reasons for adopting the settlement terms, it must make such information available upon request, pursuant to Executive Order No. 11 (1974), which states, in pertinent part, that the following information be public:

a. An individual's name, title, position, salary, payroll record, length of service in the instrumentality of government and in the government, date of separation from government service and the reason therefor; and the amount and type of pension he is receiving;

b. Data contained in information which disclose conformity with specific experiential, educational or medical qualifications required for government employment or for receipt of a public pension, but in no event shall detailed medical or psychological information be released. (emphasis supplied)

Moreover, the Commissioner cannot sanction terms in a settlement that would infringe in any way on the right of the Board to be fully forthcoming in responding to any inquiries that might arise concerning respondent's employment with the Department of Corrections. See, e.g., John Salsberg v. Board of Education of the Town of Boonton, Morris County, decided by the Commissioner May 11, 1989.

Thus the Commissioner rejects the instant settlement terms and remands the matter for further action consistent with this decision.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF DOUGLAS HEIL, NEW : STATE BOARD OF EDUCTION JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF : DECISION
CORRECTIONS AND NEW JERSEY :
STATE PRISON. :

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, May 18, 1992

For the Respondent-Appellant, Lisa Morowitz, Esq. (Steven P. Weissman, General Counsel)

For the Petitioner-Respondent, Allan C. Roth, Deputy Attorney General (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General)

This is an appeal from a decision of the Commissioner rejecting a settlement in this matter. Although the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) had approved the settlement, the Commissioner found that one of the terms, specifically that pertaining to the release of information regarding Respondent's personnel history, contravened Executive Order No. 11 (1974). We reverse.

Executive Order No. 11 provides in pertinent part that:

> 2. Except as otherwise provided by law..., an instrumentality of government shall not disclose..., personnel or pension records of an individual, except that the following shall be public:
>
> a. An individual's name, title, position, salary, payroll record, length of service in the instrumentality of government and in the government, date of separation from government service and the reason therefor; and the amount and type of pension he is receiving;...

The question in this appeal is whether provision 2(a) of Executive Order No. 11 applies to the matter before us so as to preclude the Board from agreeing that

> ...in response to inquiries regarding Respondent's personnel history, Petitioner will report only that Respondent served in the position of Supervisor of Education until he was transferred to the position of Teacher I, unless Respondent authorizes the release of other information subject to approval of this agreement by the Commissioner of DOE...

The matter arose when the Department of Corrections filed tenure charges of insubordination and unbecoming conduct against Respondent, who was serving as Supervisor of Education at the New Jersey State Prison. Before hearing, the parties agreed that, rather than proceed on the charges, they would resolve the matter by transferring Respondent to a non-supervisory position teaching mathematics at Mountainview Correctional Facility with an attending reduction in salary.

The parties embodied their agreement in a Stipulation of Settlement which, as required by law, they submitted for the approval of the Administrative Law Judge. The ALJ found that the agreement was consistent with law and recommended that the Commissioner accept it. However, as set forth above, the Commissioner rejected the agreement because he found that the term at issue contravened Executive Order No. 11 (1974). The Commissioner further concluded that he could not "sanction terms in a settlement that would infringe in any way on the right of the Board to be fully forthcoming in responding to any inquiries that might arise concerning respondent's employment with the Department of Corrections." Commissioner's Decision, at 5.

Initially, we find that Executive Order No. 11 can not be read in isolation. Executive Order No. 11 was promulgated to limit the effect of Executive Order No. 9 (1963), which provided that all personnel records were deemed not to be public records and therefore would not, as would otherwise be the case under the Right to Know Law, N.J.S.A. 47:1A-1 et seq., be subject to inspection and examination. As this indicates, Executive Order No. 9, in turn, created an exception to the Right to Know Law. The reason for creating this exception was the need to balance the right of the public to know against the risk of unintentional harm or injustice to individuals that might be occasioned by the indiscriminate exposure of certain records containing data of a sensitive or personal nature. Trenton Times Corp. v. Bd. of Ed. of Trenton, 138 N.J. Super. 357 (App. Div. 1976). The reason given in Executive Order No. 11 for restricting the scope of Executive Order No. 9's exemption of personnel records was that > ...disclosure of the name, title and position of persons receiving pensions and of the type and amount of pension being received is an insignificant invasion of privacy outweighed by the public's right to know who it is employing, what jobs they are filling and the identities of those receiving government pensions.

Thus, as set forth above, Executive Order No. 11 mandated that the date of an individual's "separation from government service and the reason therefor" are public.

Quite simply, the settlement agreement here does not provide for Respondent's "separation from government service." Rather, the agreement provides that Respondent will continue to be employed by the same government agency, albeit in a different position. Consequently, Executive Order No. 11's exemption mandating that the "date of separation from government service and the reason therefor" shall be public does not apply. At the point at which Respondent ultimately does sever his employment by retirement or otherwise, the public will be entitled to know "the reason therefor."

No other provision of law would permit disclosure of even those documents in Respondent's personnel file which would otherwise be defined as "public records" under N.J.S.A. 47:1A-2. Executive Order No. 11, therefore, would prohibit disclosure except

> ...when essential to the performance of official duties or when authorized by a person in interest... to anyone other than a person duly authorized by this State or the United States to inspect such information in connection with his official duties...

Nor do we find that the agreement limits the Board's ability to respond appropriately to inquiries concerning Respondent's employment with the Department of Corrections. In this context, Respondent's privacy interest outweighs any interest of the public in the circumstances surrounding Respondent's transfer from a supervisory position to a teaching position. Cf. Rice v. Union Cty. Reg. High School Bd. of Ed., 155 N.J. Super. 64 (App. Div. 1977).

Therefore, for the reasons stated, we reverse the Commissioner's decision and direct that she accept the settlement in this matter.

Corinne M. Mullen opposed.

Pursuant to a letter request from Donald K. Shaw dated April 13, 1992, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the Office of the Salem County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the paper ballots cast. The recount was conducted on May 1, 1992, at the Office of the Salem County Superintendent of Schools.

At the conclusion of the recount, the tally stood as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Guy M. Griscom	797	21	818
John E. Halstead	648	15	663
Donald K. Shaw	575	10	585
Roger A. Shaw	582	14	596
Howard Stern (Write-In)	1	0	1
Ric Flair (Write-In)	1	0	1

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Randy Savage (Write-In)	1	0	1
Nina Fue (Write-In)	1	1	2

Four ballots were not counted (Exhibits C-1 through C-4), three because of misplaced or unclear markings and one because four candidates were voted for instead of three. The number of ballots counted (954) matched the number of voters on the poll list, so that the slight discrepancies in candidate tallies on recount, which did not affect the outcome of the election, appear to have been due to minor error in the original count. *Absentee ballot totals are given as reported in the Regular/Combined Statement of Result.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts it as his own.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that Guy M. Griscom, John E. Halstead and Roger A. Shaw were elected to full terms of three years each on the Board of Education of the School District of the Township of Pennsville.

* The Commissioner notes that the Board Secretary listed one ballot as voided on the Regular/Combined Statement of Result, and thhat the Statement did not list the single write-in votes cast for media personalities Howard Stern, Ric Flair and Randy Savage. The Commissioner therefore concludes that the Board Secretary voided, while the county office duly recorded on recount, a single ballot casting one vote for each of these three persons.

The announced results of the balloting for three members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each at the annual school election held in the school district of Hamilton Township, Atlantic County, on April 7, 1992, are as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
William B. Carll	317	3	320
Jeri-Lynn Gatto	401	3	404
Peter E. Fraleigh	445	3	448

Larry Fatcher (Write-in)	24	1	25
Harvey Kessalman (Write-in)	2	0	2
20 Write-In With One (1) Vote Each	20	0	20

Pursuant to a written request from write-in candidate Janet Smith, dated April 10, 1992, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the Office of Atlantic County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the ballots cast. The recount was conducted by the Atlantic County Superintendent of Schools on May 1, 1992, at the Atlantic County Voting Machine Warehouse, in Northfield, New Jersey.

As a result of the recount, the announced results were as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
William B. Carll	317	3	320
Jeri-Lynn Gatto	401	3	404
Peter E. Fraleigh	445	3	448
Janet Smith (Write-in)	226	3	229
John Lenhart (Write-in)	186	0	186
Joseph G. Marshello, Jr. (Write-in)	73	0	73
Larry Fatcher (Write-in)	23	1	24
Harvey Kessalman (Write-in)	2	0	2
Additional Write-In Votes, One Name Each	23	0	23

There were 102 votes invalidated during the recount. They were invalidated for the following reasons: multiple votes in the same write-in space = 97; votes for the same person three times in all three of the available write-in spaces = 2; votes for a published (petition) candidate in the write-in space = 2; use of the initials "J.S." in the write-in space = 1.

The recount resulted in the following changes: Janet Smith - 5 additional votes; John Lenhart - 2 additional votes; Joseph G. Marshello, Jr. - 2 additional votes; Larry Fatcher - 1 less vote; one name each - 3 additional votes.

It is my determination that William B. Carll, Jeri-Lynn Gatto and Peter E. Fraleigh were elected to full three-year terms on the Board of Education of the Hamilton Township School District at the annual school election held on April 7, 1992.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts as his own the findings set forth above. Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that William B. Carll, Jeri-Lynn Gatto and Peter E. Fraleigh were elected to full three-year terms on the Board of Education of Hamilton Township, Atlantic County, at the annual school election held April 7, 1992.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH BRUNSWICK, MIDDLESEX COUNTY, PAUL PAVONE, CRAIG ROSEVEAR AND ALAN DZWILEWSKI,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENTS.	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning citizens of the Township of North Brunswick claimed that because members of the Board's negotiating subcommittee were required to negotiate in opposition to the interests of their spouses, those Board members were placed in positions of conflict of interest and should not have participated in either the negotiating process or the vote on approving the negotiated Agreement. Petitioners also contended that adequate notice was not given for the special meeting at which the Agreement was approved, thus rendering the agreement null and void.

The ALJ concluded that no Board member whose spouse is employed by the Board and is a member of the Association, is by that fact alone in conflict of interest for purposes of negotiating a collective Agreement or in voting to approve or reject the Agreement. ALJ further concluded that there was no violation of the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6. The Petition of Appeal was dismissed.

Commissioner affirmed the initial decision of the ALJ for the reasons expressed therein.

BEFORE DANIEL B. McKEOWN, ALJ:

INTRODUCTION

On or about June 19, 1991, petitioners filed a Complaint in Lieu of Prerogative Writ in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Chancery Division, Middlesex County and applied for injunctive relief to restrain the North Brunswick Township Board of Education (Board) from ratifying or implementing a collectively negotiated agreement with the North Brunswick Township Education Association (Intervenor) which was to be effective as of July 1, 1991. On June 25, 1991 the Honorable Erminie S. Conley denied petitioner's application for injunction relief and ordered the matter transferred to the Commissioner of Education under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. On June 27, 1991 the Appellate Division affirmed the decision of Judge Conley.

Petitioners filed a four count Petition with the Commissioner on July 18, 1991 along with an application for emergency relief seeking a temporary restraint against the Board from continuing to implement the Agreement. That application was denied, after which the Commissioner of Education transferred the matter August 19, 1991 to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case under the provisions of N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. On September 25, 1991 oral argument on an application to intervene by the North Brunswick Education Association was heard and granted. In addition, it was determined at that time that the Board would file a motion for summary decision on the merits and that the Intervenor Association would be considered as having joined in the application. The Board did move for summary decision on the merits to which petitioner responded in opposition thereto. The record closed on the motion March 7, 1992 after having received from the Board an application that Requests for Admissions served upon petitioner on or about November 22, 1991, but not properly answered within the allowable time of 15 days under N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4(c), should be deemed admitted. No response to this application has been received by petitioner. The application shall be addressed post.

This initial decision concludes that the Board and Intervenor Association are entitled to summary decision on the merits and that the Petition of Appeal must be dismissed for failure to state a cause of action. The record on the motion consists of the pleadings filed in Superior Court, those pleadings redrafted for the filing of and answer to a Petition of Appeal before the Commissioner, affidavits, exhibits attached thereto, together with briefs and/or letter memoranda filed by the parties in support of their respective positions.

REQUESTS FOR ADMISSIONS

The Board's motion to consider as admitted all statements of fact within a Request for Admissions served on petitioners November 22, 1991, is based on N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4(c) which, in part, provides:

> (c) No later than 15 days from receipt of a notice requesting discovery, the receiving party shall provide the requested information  > or in the case of a notice requesting admissions, each matter therein shall be admitted unless within the 15 days the receiving party answers, admits or denies the request or objects to it pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4(d).

N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4(d) provides avenues of relief to a party who chooses to object to a discovery notice, or who wishes to compel a response to a discovery notice, or wishes to object to a response received. The Board acknowledges it received a response to its Request for Admissions from petitioner's counsel on February 28, 1992. Its motion was filed here March 6, 1992.

It is clear that petitioner's reply to the Board's request was beyond the time allowable by N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4(c) with respect to requests for admissions served. No response to the Board's motion has been received from petitioner. Therefore, the statement of facts contained within the Request for Admissions shall be and is deemed admitted.

THE COMPLAINT

Petitioners, in their four count petition, claim that the negotiating process which culminated in a tentative agreement was impermissibly tainted because Board member Pavone, as a member of the Board's subcommittee, was negotiating on behalf of the Board while his spouse was a member of the Association with whom he was to have been negotiating. Moreover, petitioners say that Alan Dzwilewski as the Board's asserted labor negotiator, was negotiating for the Board while his spouse was also a member of the Association.

Petitioners contend that in addition to the process being tainted, the tentative agreement approved at a meeting held May 6, 1991 by a five-four vote, must be declared void because Board members Pavone and Rosevear voted in the affirmative despite the conflict of interest they had by virtue of their spouses' membership in the Association.

Next, petitioners complain that the Board meeting conducted May 6, 1991 was held in violation of the Open Public Meetings Act which, in turn, renders all action taken at the meeting voidable under law. Finally, petitioners complain that the local governing body had scheduled a meeting with the Board for May 8, 1991 in order to determine reductions in the Board's 1991-92 current expense budget which was defeated by the voters at the annual school election. Because the Board held its ratification meeting on May 6, 1991 it individually, jointly, and severally breached the absolute fidelity it owes the public and the meeting and actions taken are, therefore, violations of public policy.

FACTS

While a formally executed Stipulation of Fact has not been submitted by the parties, relevant facts for purposes of the motion can be discerned from the record as well as from the party's respective view of what the facts are. Therefore, I find from a review of the pleadings, affidavits, exhibits, and Request for Admissions the following relevant facts to exist for purposes of this motion:

1. Petitioners Hahn and Lombardo are residents of North Brunswick Township.
2. Respondent Paul Pavone and Craig Rosevear are sitting Board members. Pavone had been a member of the Board since April 1988, while Rosevear has been a member of the Board since April 1990.
3. Respondent Pavone's wife, Janice, is employed by the Board as a teacher and, as such, is a member of the Association.
4. Since July 1989 respondent Rosevear's wife, Carol, is employed by the Board as an administrator of special projects and community services. As such, Carol Rosevear is a member of the administrators' and supervisors' collective negotiating unit. Prior to her appointment in this position in July 1989, Carol Rosevear had been employed by the Board as a teacher. In this former position, Carol Rosevear was a member of the North Brunswick Education Association. She has not been a member of the Association since her appointment as an administrator.
5. Alan Dzwilewski, an attorney, but not a board member, was engaged by the Board as a professional labor consultant. His wife is employed by the Board as a teacher and, as such, is a member of the Intervenor Association.
6. Board member William Tibbett is a sitting member of the Board as is Allan Sherman. Sherman is Board President. While Board member Tibbett's wife is employed by the Board as a teacher and is a member of Intervenor Association, Tibbett voted against the subject Agreement.

7. During late November 1990, the Board appointed a subcommittee as a negotiating team in regard to the Agreement for July 1, 1991 forward.
8. The negotiating team was comprised of Board members Pavone and Sherman. While respondent Dzwilewski was not nor could he properly be a member of the Board's subcommittee, he was engaged in his role as a labor consultant for the two board members who were on the subcommittee, and ostensibly for the entire Board.
9. The Board called a special meeting to commence 8:00 p.m., Monday, May 6, 1991 to consider a tentative Agreement with the Association. This meeting was attended by all nine members of the Board.
10. Written notice of the meeting was prepared May 2, 1991 and posted at the Office of the Board and in each schoolhouse. Written notice of the specially called meeting was also sent on May 2, 1991 to The Star Ledger, The Home News, and The North Brunswick Post, the official newspapers of the Board and all of which are circulated within the district. On May 3, 1991, written notice of the meeting was posted at the North Brunswick Township Municipal Building at 9:05 a.m.
11. The Notice was not published by May 6 in any of the newspapers to which it had been submitted.
12. Earlier, the Board's proposed current expense budget for 1991-92 had been defeated by the electorate at the annual school election held April 30, 1991. The governing body, as the law requires, had scheduled a meeting for May 8, 1991 to meet with the Board to discuss reductions, if any, to the proposed current expense budget which had been defeated.
13. At the special meeting held May 6, 1991, at 8:00 p.m., the Board approved the tentative Agreement with the Association by five to four vote. Board members Pavone and Rosevear voted in favor of the tentative Agreement, while Board member Tibbett voted in opposition.
14. Thereafter, the Board held another special meeting on May 28, 1991 during which a motion was made to reopen negotiations with Intervenor Association for purposes of renegotiating salary increases contained within the tentative Agreement. The motion was rejected four to three, with Board member Pavone abstaining.

15. All terms of the Agreement approved by the Board May 6, 1991 apply with equal effect to all employees in the collective negotiating unit similarly situated.

SUMMARY DECISION MOTION
BOARD/INTERVENOR ASSOCIATION

The Board argues it is entitled to summary decision because the relevant facts are not in dispute and that upon those facts Board member Pavone does not have a substantial and materially sufficient conflict of interest to have prohibited him from participating in the negotiating process or to have voted on the subject Agreement. Moreover, the Board says that it is clear Board member Rosevear is not in any conflict of interest regarding the subject Agreement because his spouse is not a member of the Association and has not been a member since July 1989. Consequently, his voting on the Agreement can not be considered a conflict of interest. Furthermore, the Board points out that it is uncontroverted that written notice of the special meeting it held May 6, 1991 was mailed its official newspapers on May 2, 1991; that written notices of the scheduled meeting were posted in its office as well as in schoolhouse throughout the district on may 2, 1991; and, that the clerk of the municipality posted a notice of the scheduled meeting May 3, 1991. Consequently, the Board concludes that no violation of the Open Public Meetings Act occurred because it did provide adequate notice of the special meeting.

Intervenor Association joins in the Board's argument for summary decision on the facts and on the law in this case.

Petitioners oppose the motion for summary decision on the grounds that they say material facts are in dispute and, as such, under Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Company of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67(1954), summary decision is inappropriate particularly where, as here, the Board and intervenor failed to clearly show no genuine issue of material fact is in dispute. Petitioner suggests that the record does not address factual issues which are vital to disposition of the merits of the case.

In this regard, petitioner recites that a public officer has a duty to the public and that abstention or disqualification are remedies for a conflict of interest which were available, but not used, by the Board here. Petitioners say that prior administrative decisions of the Commissioner of Education have recognized that a conflict of interest on the part of a board member is always a possibility when one spouse is a board member and the other is employed by that board. Petitioners state that no prior administrative decision has held that a conflict is not possible in the context of the negotiation of a collectively negotiated agreement between the board and teachers' association.

Petitioners recite that the issue of a conflict of interest is fact specific and they assert the facts in this case disclose the following:

> [C]ertain board members have significant personal or private interests that different from those held by the general public whom they have been entrusted to represent. The potential conflicts are as follows: Paul Pavone's wife is a teacher in elementary school in North Brunswick; Bill Tibbett's wife is a teacher in North Brunswick; Ann Petrocelli [a board member] is a science teacher in Franklin Township; Craig Rosevear's wife taught in North Brunswick and was recently promoted to a supervisory position; and Jerry Parillo's [board member] wife is a teacher at East Brunswick Vo-Tech.
>
> Based on the law in this area, it seems that certainly Paul Pavone, Bill Tibbett and Craig Rosevear had substantial and materially sufficient conflicts that should have resulted, at a minimum, in their abstention from voting on the contract in question in the instant case or, alternatively, that they be prohibited from holding the office of board member.

Finally, petitioners assert that because members of the board's negotiating subcommittee were required to negotiate directly in opposition to the interests of their spouses and, as a logical extension, themselves, those board members were placed unavoidably in positions of conflict of interest and, therefore, should not have participated in either the negotiating process or the vote on approving the Agreement May 6, 1991. No argument is presented why petitioners conclude that Alan Dzwilewski, in his role as labor consultant or negotiator, somehow tainted the entire process by virtue of the fact his wife is employed by this Board as a teacher.

Petitioners contend that because notice of the May 6, 1991 meeting was not published in any of the three newspapers to which it was sent, adequate notice of the special meeting was not given thereby rendering approval of the tentative Agreement voidable.

ANALYSIS
CONFLICT OF INTEREST

N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 provides that no board member shall be interested directly or indirectly in any contract with or claim against the board. As of this writing, there are no judicial opinions which apply this statute to a situation in which spouses of board members are in the board's employ. However, there have been a number of administrative decisions issued by the Commissioner which deal with the subject.

In Elms v. Mt. Olive Bd. of Ed., 1977 SLD 713, the Commissioner held that the existence of a collective bargaining agreement did not present a conflict of interest to those board members with close relatives employed by the Board. However, the Commissioner did recognize a distinction between a commercial contract which provides a specific benefit to an individual and a collectively negotiated agreement which benefits an entire class of employees. Therefore, in In re Bayless, 1974 SLD 595, rev'd St. Bd., 1974 SLD 603 the State Board of Education held that before a conflict of interest by a board member can be declared unlawful, it must be shown that there is a substantial and material conflict. In Bayless, the State Board found no unlawful conflict even though board member Bayless' husband was a board employee. In Salerno v. Old Bridge Bd. of Ed., 6 N.J.A.R. 405, a board member sought an order declaring that certain other board members were in a conflict of interest when they negotiate contracts with employee negotiating units since they have relatives in those negotiating units. The Commissioner held at 412-413:

> The negotiated labor agreement between a board and its employees obviously has an effect on all employees whether they be related to board members or not. However, as stated by the Commissioner in Elms it is not a commercial contract that would bestow special economic advantage on an individual. Rather, it affects all employees in a bargaining unit as a direct outgrowth of their statutory right to bargain collectively.
> Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that there has been no violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 or of policy of the Old Bridge Bd. of Ed. Potential conflicts of interests were averted when certain Board members abstained from voting. It appears, however, that their abstention from voting on a collective bargaining agreement was overly cautious. Under the ruling in Elms, above, their participation in that vote would have been proper.

In Larsen v. Woodbridge Twp. Bd. of Ed., 1985 SLD -, Larsen was taxpayer who sought an order setting aside a collectively negotiated agreement between the Woodbridge Board and the teachers' negotiating unit or, alternatively, directing a new vote on the agreement. Larsen complained that a conflict of interest existed because the spouses of two board members were employed by the Board as teaching staff members. The Commissioner concluded that the Board members who had spouses employed by the board were not in conflict of interest by that fact and that fact was no bar to the board members from voting on the ratification of the agreement reached between the board and the association.

The gravamen of the complaint here is that Board member Pavone whose spouse is employed by the Board as a teacher and who is a member of the Association, should not have participated in the negotiating process nor in the vote to ratify the agreement on May 6, 1991. In light of the prior administrative decisions, the fact that the spouse of a board member is employed by that board as a teacher and is a member of the teachers' association is no bar to the board member from participating in the negotiating process or in the vote to ratify the agreement reached. The essence of the complained of conflict is the employment of Board member spouses. If there is no essential conflict of interest on the part of the Board members because their spouses are employed by the Board, then there can be no basis upon which the Board members violated their duty to the public nor is there be any basis for the members to have abstained or disqualified themselves from participating in the process or approving the Agreement. Therefore, I CONCLUDE Board member Pavone is not in a conflict of interest by virtue of the fact his spouse is employed as a teacher and is a member of the Association. That being so, I also CONCLUDE that no other board member whose spouse is employed by the Board as a teacher and who is a member of the Association, or who is employed by the Board and is a member of some other negotiating unit, or board member whose spouse may be employed as a teacher in another school district, is in a conflict of interest for purposes of negotiating the Agreement or in voting to approve or reject the agreement.

In regard to the assertion that the Board failed to give proper notice of the special meeting it conducted May 6, 1991 and therefore, the meeting was held in violation of the Open Public Meetings Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6, et seq., the material facts in this case show that the Board complied with the law in all respects. Advance written notice was sent May 2, 1991, to three official newspapers circulating within the municipality, and notices of the meeting were posted in the municipal building, schoolhouses, and the Board's offices.

In part, N.J.S.A. 10:4-9 provides that no public body shall hold a meeting unless adequate notice thereof has been provided to the public. "Adequate notice" is defined at N.J.S.A. 10:4-8(d) to mean >  written advance notice of at least 48 hours, giving the time, date, location and, to the extent known, the agenda of any regular, special, or rescheduled meeting, which notice shall accurately state whether formal action may or may not be taken and which shall be (1) prominently posted in at least one public place reserved for such or similar announcements, (2) mailed, telephoned, telegrammed, or hand delivered to at least two newspapers which newspapers shall be designated by the public body to receive such notices because they have the greatest likelihood of informing the public within the area of jurisdiction of the public body of such meetings, one of which shall be the official newspaper  and (3) filed with the clerk of the municipality ***

It is recognized that in Worts v. Mayor and Council of Upper Township , 176 N.J. Super 78 (Chan. Div. 1980), it was held that although actual publication of the notice is not required, the transmittal of notice to a newspaper to at least 48 hours before a meeting is not enough to satisfy the requirements of the Open Public Meetings Act if the public body knew or reasonably could have ascertained that the newspaper's publishing schedule prevented it from printing the notice 48 hours in advance of the meeting. However, under Bernnards Tp. v. Dept. of Com. Affairs, 233 N.J. Super 1, 26 (App. Div. 1989) it was held

> The statute [N.J.S.A. 10:4-9a which requires adequate notice of a meeting] only requires 'adequate notice' to the public of a meeting; and N.J.S.A. 10:4-8d defines the term 'adequate notice' as giving written notice to newspapers at least 48 hours before the meeting. Unlike N.J.S.A. 40:55D-12a (required publication under the Municipal Land Use Law), and N.J.S.A. 40:53-2 (publication generally of public notice by municipalities), N.J.S.A. 10:4-9 and 10:4-8 do not require that notice be published by the newspapers, only that it be sent to the newspapers 48 hours before the meeting. See also Worts

v. Upper Tp., 176 N.J. Super 78, 81 (Ch. Div. 1980). (emphasis in original)

When one considers the Introductory Statement of the Assembly Report on the Act, N.J.S.A. 10:4-6, et seq., which states that adequate notice normally means 48 hours advance notice must be prominently posted, filed with a certain officer of the public body, and provided to two newspapers, the Bernard Tp. opinion is persuasive that so long as the public body provided notice to at least two newspapers 48 hours before the meeting, the requirements of the law have been met.

Therefore, in this case I CONCLUDE that the Board is entitled to summary decision on the allegation of an Open Public Meetings Act violation because the facts clearly show adequate notice of the meeting on May 6 was afforded by the Board.

Having found that the Board is entitled to summary decision on the issues raised regarding a conflict of interest and on the issue of the Open Public Meetings Act, the Petition of Appeal is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. JOSEPH HAHN AND SALVATORE LOMBARDO, PETITIONERS, V. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH BRUNSWICK, MIDDLESEX COUNTY, PAUL PAVONE, CRAIG ROSEVEAR AND ALAN DZWILEWSKI, RESPONDENTS.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION DECISION

The record of this matter and the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that there was no conflict of interest in the actions of the named Board members solely by fact of their spouses' employment in the district and membership in the bargaining unit(s) affected by the negotiations and contract votes at issue herein. He further concurs that the Board committed no violation of the Open Public Meetings Act in advertising the special meeting where the disputed contract vote actually took place.

Accordingly, the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the instant Petition of Appeal is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Philip Feintuch, Esq., for Barry Tekirian
(Feintuch, Porwich & Feintuch, attorneys)

Record Closed: April 22, 1992 Decided: April 24, 1992

BEFORE STEPHEN G. WEISS, ALJ:

This tenure matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law by the Department of Education on December 4, 1990. It concerns charges of incapacity and chronic and excessive absenteeism certified against respondent, Barry Tekirian, in August 1990, by Dr. Elena J. Scambio, State District Superintendent of the State-operated School District of the City of Jersey City.

An in-person prehearing conference was conducted by Administrative Law Judge Christopher R. Dietz on May 8, 1991, and the matter was scheduled for hearing by him on October 7, 1991. Shortly thereafter, Judge Dietz was nominated to be a judge of the Superior Court and in June 1991 was confirmed in that position. As a result, the file was reassigned to the undersigned administrative law judge.

Because of my own calendar constraints, the case could not be rescheduled for hearings until March 1992. Subsequently, and as a result of discussions between counsel, I was advised that the case had been settled. A settlement agreement has been submitted to me for review and recommendation for approval to the Commissioner.

Based upon my review and consideration of the file in this matter, and in light of the nature of the charges, I believe that the terms of the settlement are fair and reasonable, are in the public interest and should be approved. Essentially, in light of Tekirian's greatly improved record of attendance during the 1991-92 school year, the Board has determined to withdraw the charges of incapacity and chronic and excessive absenteeism rather than proceed to a lengthy and potentially costly hearing. Tekirian, for his part, has agreed no longer to contest the withholding of his 1990-91 increment because of his excessive absences.

Accordingly, having reviewed the file and the terms and conditions of the proposed settlement, I FIND that:

1. The parties voluntarily have agreed to the terms of the settlement as evidenced by the signatures of the parties and/or counsel which appear on the settlement agreement; and

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy, is in the public interest and is consistent with law.

I therefore CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and, accordingly, I approve the settlement and ORDER that the parties comply with the terms and that these proceedings be CONCLUDED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT TO RESOLVE PENDING TENURE CHARGES INVOLVING BARRY TEKIRIAN AND THE JERSEY CITY PUBLIC SCHOOLS
(DKT. NO. EDU 09948-90N)

(1) This Agreement is being entered into to resolve the tenure charges filed by the Jersey City Public Schools against Barry Tekirian. These tenure charges were filed on August 14, 1990 and alleged charges of incapacity and chronic and excessive absenteeism.

(2) Mr. Tekirian's increment was withheld for the 1990-1991 school year because of his excessive absenteeism. As part of the settlement in this matter, Mr. Tekirian agrees to accept this penalty for his excessive absenteeism.

(3) For the 1991-1992 school year (as of this date), Mr. Tekirian has been absent four (4) times. Because of this improvement in his attendance, the Jersey City Public Schools agrees to withdraw the pending tenure charges.

(4) Mr. Tekirian recognizes that the District remains concerned about his attendance record and understands that the District expects Mr. Tekirian's attendance to continue to improve. Mr. Tekirian understands that the District will continue to monitor his attendance and will file tenure charges for excessive absenteeism in the event circumstances warrant it.

(5) Mr. Tekirian further recognizes that the District is concerned about his lateness record and his leaving school unexcused during the 1991-1992 school year. Mr. Tekirian understands that nothing contained in this Agreement bars the District from taking any action regarding these instances.

(6) The parties recognize that this Agreement is subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Education and the State Board of Education of the State of New Jersey.

Record Closed: April 15, 1992 Decided: April 16, 1992

BEFORE STEVEN C. REBACK, ALJ:

Following an order issued by my office on August 27, 1991, the parties in the matter were directed to consult with one another and advise me in respect to scheduling the case for further proceedings. Pursuant to my directions, my secretary was able to obtain the agreement of Deputy Attorney General Lutz to a variety of dates for a telephone conference. Repeatedly, telephone calls were placed to Mr. Middleton's office on March 11, March 17 and March 20, 1992, seeking to obtain cooperation from him in respect to attempting to schedule this matter at a time convenient to him. On none of these occasions did Mr. Middleton's office respond to these requests. Consequently and following repeated frustrations, my office was constrained to advise Mr. Middleton by letter of March 23, 1992 of the following:

> After repeated telephone calls placed by my secretary to Mr. Middleton's office, and her inability to get a convenient date to reschedule the telephone conference in the above matter, I have scheduled the matter for April 8,1992, commencing at 4:00 p.m. [Letter Administrative Law Judge to Counsel, March 23, 1992.]

Following sending the foregoing letter, my office did not hear anything further from Mr. Middleton until his secretary telephoned my office on the scheduled conference date at 12:40 p.m. At that time she requested of my secretary that the matter be adjourned for the scheduled conference and also that the matter be placed upon the inactive list for a period of five months. I advised my secretary that I would not entertain either request unless and until the deputy attorney general acquiesced and, even then, I would have to take it under advisement. This information was communicated to Mr. Middleton's office. No further communication from him was received on that date.

At 4:00 p.m., a telephone call was placed to Deputy Attorney General Lutz who indicated that she unequivocally opposed any further adjournment of the conference in this matter. She indicated that she had spent several hours in preparation for the conference by studying the substantive nature of this appeal and, since the case had previously been adjourned at Mr. Middleton's request, she believed that his request to postpone it again, coming as it did on the very date of the conference, was unreasonable. She also indicated that to the best of her knowledge no one from Mr. Middleton's office contacted her in respect to the requests which were directed to my office.

Following this telephone conversation and as a courtesy to Mr. Middleton, my secretary called his office, advised him that I would dismiss his appeal based upon the circumstances described above and that should he wish to oppose that he was to fax a letter to my office, copy to the Deputy Attorney General, immediately. To date, I have heard nothing further from Mr. Middleton in any regard.

Consequently, Mr. Middleton has abandoned his appeal rights in these proceedings. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the appeal of the petitioners in this matter be and are hereby DISMISSED with prejudice for failure to prosecute.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL :
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
CONSTITUENT DISTRICT OF STAFFORD : DECISION TOWNSHIP, SOUTHERN REGIONAL : SCHOOL DISTRICT, OCEAN COUNTY. :

The announced results of the balloting for one member of the Board of Education for a full term of three years, and for one member for an unexpired term of two years, at the annual school election held in the constituent district of Stafford Township, of the Southern Regional school district, Ocean County, on April 7, 1992, were as follows:

(1) THREE-YEAR TERM

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
William Power	407	16	423
Daniel Taylor	394	13	407

(1) UNEXPIRED TWO-YEAR TERM

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Carol Warr	398	12	410
Susan Olson	292	19	311

Pursuant to a letter request from Candidate Susan K. Olson dated April 8, 1992, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the Office of the Ocean County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the ballots cast. The recount was conducted on April 30, 1992 at the Ocean County Voting Machine Warehouse, Dover Township, by the Ocean County Superintendent of Schools.

At the conclusion of the recount, the announced results were changed as follows:

(1) THREE-YEAR TERM

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
William Power	407	16	423
Daniel Taylor	394	13	407

(1) UNEXPIRED TWO-YEAR TERM

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Carol Warr	398	12	410
Susan Olson	357	19	376

The discrepancy resulted from the failure of the election official at the Stafford Intermediate School polling place to correctly read the results on voting machine number 145268. The election officials read this machine as having no votes for Candidate Susan Olson, whereas the recount showed 65 votes for this candidate. Accordingly, Candidate Susan Olson's total tally at the polls increased from 292 to 357, and her total tally increased from 311 to 376. The correction of this error did not change the final results of the election for the unexpired two-year term.

Absentee ballot tallies are given as reported on the Regular/Combined Statement of Result.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts it as his own.

The Commissioner finds and determines that William Power was elected to the full three-year term and Carol Warr was elected to the unexpired two-year term on the Southern Regional Board of Education from the constituent school district of Stafford Township at the annual school election held on April 7, 1992.

The announced results of the balloting for two members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each at the annual school election held in the school district of Eagleswood Township, Ocean County, on April 7, 1992, were as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL

Jan Blum	0	1	1

Pursuant to a letter request from Linda D. Blum dated April 10, 1992, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the Office of the Ocean County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the machine and paper ballots cast. The recount was conducted on May 5, 1992 at the Ocean County Voting Machine Warehouse, Dover Township.

At the conclusion of the recount, the announced results were changed for one of the seven candidates. Accordingly, the recount tally stood as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
John L. Woodland	86	1	87
Alvin Gaupp	54	2	56
Linda Blum	44	0	44
Gerry Kasavage	21	0	21
Denise Cervetto	1	0	1
Joyce Burgess Bartlett	1	0	1
Jan Blum	0	1	1

Absentee ballot tallies are given as reported on the Regular/Combined Statement of Result.

The one voting machine at the sole polling place became inoperative shortly after the opening of the school election. The single candidate whose name appeared on the machine ballot received 6 votes on the machine counter, but also received 6 votes as a write-in candidate on the voting machine. Five other candidates received a total of 19 votes as write-in candidates. Paper ballots were used for the remainder of the school election, with numerous votes for the three major write-in candidates. The final tally represents a total of the ballots cast by machine, paper ballot and absentee ballot.

Although the recount resulted in altered tallies for the votes cast at the polls, the final results were not sufficiently different to change the outcome of the election.

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MAPLE SHADE, BURLINGTON COUNTY.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

The announced results of the balloting for three members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each at the annual school election held April 7, 1992 in the School District of the Township of Maple Shade, Burlington County, were as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Claire Volpe	806	10	816
Joseph Walters	689	12	701
Constance Gillespy	692	10	702
Charles Ansert	726	10	736
Dawn Krohn (Write-In)	1	0	1

Pursuant to a letter request from Joseph T. Walters dated April 15, 1992, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the Office of the Burlington County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the machine ballots cast. Absentee ballots were recounted by the Burlington County Board of Elections. The recount was conducted on April 30, 1992, at the Burlington County Board of Elections Office, 49 Rancocas Road, Mount Holly, and at the Burlington County Superintendent of Elections Office, Eayrestown Road, Lumberton, New Jersey.

At the conclusion of the recount, the tally stood unchanged and was as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Claire Volpe	806	10	816
Joseph Walters	689	12	701
Constance Gillespy	692	10	702
Charles Ansert	726	10	736
Dawn Krohn (Write-In)	1	0	1

One thousand two hundred and fifty-seven voters cast ballots as indicated by both the public counter and protective counter numbers of the eight voting machines used in the school election. At the time of the recount, the sealed election packets received from the school district were individually opened to compare the number of both the voting authorities issued and voter names appearing on the poll lists to the number of ballots cast. This comparison was made for each polling place. The following summarizes the comparisons made of the protective and public counter, poll lists and voting authorities:

Polling Place	Protective and Public Counters	Poll List	Voting Authorities	Voided Voting Authorities
I. Yocum School	227	227	227	0
II. Steinhauer School	480	718	480	0
III. Maple Shade H.S.	382	382	382	0
IV. Fox Meadows	168	168	168	0

The above comparison notes that 718 voter names were counted for the Steinhauer School location which served polling districts 2A and 2B. A discrepancy was noted for polling district 2B in that four (4) loose-leaf pages with 238 names thereon were included in the election packet along with a booklet marked poll lists for the same location. The booklet identified as the poll list had 237 names entered which corresponds to both the voting machine protective and public counter readings (237) and the number of voting authorities issued (237). The board secretary of the Maple Shade Township School District explained at the time of the recount that prospective voters were asked to sign their names to the loose-leaf pages in addition to signing the poll list; the loose-leaf pages were then compared to the signature copy register provided by the Burlington County Superintendent of Elections. In comparing the total entries on the poll list (237) to those on the loose-leaf pages (238) the result is a difference of one (1).

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

Record Closed: April 13, 1992 Decided: 4/23/92

BEFORE ARNOLD SAMUELS, ALJ:

This matter was initiated on October 18, 1990, when the petitioner, State-Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, certified tenure charges with the Commissioner of Education against respondent. The charges alleged incapacity and chronic and excessive absenteeism warranting dismissal of the respondent from her tenured employment as a teaching staff member.

On January 16, 1991, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing and determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held on April 8, 1991, fixing hearing dates, providing for discovery and dealing with other procedural matters in preparation for the forthcoming hearing. In January 1992, counsel advised that the hearing would no longer be necessary because the respondent would be resigning from her teaching position as of June 19, 1992. In the interim, a second set of tenure charges against respondent were filed with the Commissioner of Education. These charges alleged further incapacity and chronic and excessive absenteeism. The respondent denied the allegations in her answer and raised certain procedural defenses. This second matter was also transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law, on December 17, 1991 for consolidation with the earlier matter.

The parties entered into a written settlement agreement, a copy of which was filed in the Office of Administrative Law on April 13, 1992. The agreement contained the respondent's resignation from her position and provided for remuneration until the effective date of her resignation, at the end of the 1991-92 school year, June 19, 1992. A copy of the agreement is attached hereto and made a part hereof.

Having reviewed and considered the nature of the dispute and the respective positions of the parties, together with the settlement as set forth in the attached documents, it is CONCLUDED that the settlement is fully dispositive of all issues in controversy; and it ORDERED that the same be approved and the appeal DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Three petitioning teaching staff members in the East Brunswick elementary and secondary schools claimed their tenure rights were violated when respondent Board failed to appoint them to summer school teaching positions. Petitioners applied to teach in summer of 1991 and were bypassed in favor of nontenured teaching employees or non-employees of the district. Each petitioner claimed qualification for appointment and each averred he or she had taught summer school in the past. Responding Board claimed that summer employment was viewed as temporary and that failure to appoint would not diminish petitioners in any way.

ALJ concluded that tenure laws did not limit Board's discretion in hiring summer school teachers, as summer school employment in New Jersey is considered temporary and part-time. Petition of Appeal was dismissed.

Commissioner adopted as his own the findings and conclusions reached by the ALJ.

Record Closed: March 9, 1992 Decided: April 21, 1992

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of petitioners' complaint that their tenure rights have been infringed in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 et seq. The Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq The parties have now filed cross-motions for summary decision. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5

The question presented is whether respondent's failure to appoint petitioners to summer school teaching positions violated their tenure rights.

The facts are undisputed. Petitioners are tenured teachers employed by respondent in its elementary and secondary schools. Respondent offers summer school courses at both the elementary and secondary levels to in-district students at no cost if taken for remedial purposes or for a fee if taken for enrichment purposes, and to out-of-district students on a tuition basis. Petitioners separately applied for appointments to teach in the summer of 1991 and were bypassed in favor of non-tenured teaching employees or non-employees of the district. Petitioners are each qualified for appointment and each has taught summer school in the past. This is the substance of the record.

Petitioners rely on a line of cases which protect tenured employees from diminishment in their positions as against non-tenured employees. Dennery v. Passaic Valley Regional High School Board of Education, 251 N.J. Super. 144 (App. Div. 1991); Capodilupo v. West Orange Tp. Ed. Bd., 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den. 109 N.J. 514 (1987); Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Ed., 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1987), certif. den. 110 N.J. 512 (1988). In each of these cases, tenured employees were protected from loss due to reorganization, reduction in force, or reduction from full-time to part-time status. None of these cases are authority for the proposition advanced here. As respondent points out, summer employment is viewed as temporary, and the failure to appoint them did not diminish petitioners in any way. Strangia v. Jersey City Bd. of Educ., Comm'r of Educ., Dkt. # 101-84 (April 9, 1984), aff'd State Board of Educ., Dkt #40-84 (October 3, 1984); Blitz v. Bridgeton Bd. of Ed., 1980 S.L.D. 825, aff'd State Board of Educ., 1981 S.L.D. 1394; Reeves v. Westwood Reg. Bd. of Ed., 1981 S.L.D. 1051. In each of these cases the commissioner refused to consider summer school employment in the calculation of time necessary to achieve tenure, or seniority rights. Petitioners' brief does not seek to distinguish this authority.

The precedents cited by respondent lead me to conclude that the tenure laws do not limit respondent's discretion in hiring summer school teachers, and it is ORDERED that these consolidated petitions be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

ROSANN DORAN, DIAN PERKEL, AND NORMAN SCHWARTZ,	:
PETITIONERS,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF EAST BRUNSWICK, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION
RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioners filed timely exceptions pursuant to the applicable provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the Board filed timely reply exceptions.

Petitioners' exceptions are a nearly verbatim reiteration of their post-hearing brief. In arguing that failure to appoint them to summer school positions violated their tenure rights, petitioners add to their post-hearing contentions that the ALJ's reliance on Strangia v. Jersey City Bd. of Education, decided by the Commissioner April 9, 1984, aff'd State Board October 3, 1984; Blitz v. Bridgeton Board of Ed., 1980 S.L.D. 825, aff'd State Board of Education 1981 S.L.D. 1394; and Reeves v. Westwood Regional Bd. of Education, 1981 S.L.D. 1051, was misplaced. Petitioners aver Strangia stands for the proposition that summer service will not be included in the academic year and thus, will not be included in the calculation for tenure. Blitz, they argue, stands for the proposition that summer school teaching cannot negate the seniority of full-time teachers. Finally, they submit, Reeves stands for the proposition that a teacher may not gain credit for summer school teaching either for seniority purposes or tenure purposes. Thus, petitioners submit, none of the cases cited by the ALJ in support of his decision are on point with the instant matter. Rather, they suggest, the Capodilupo v. West Orange Tp. Bd. of Ed., 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987), cert. den. 109 N.J. 514 (1987) line of cases are apposite, and they contend their rights were violated when nontenured and/or non-employees of the Board were appointed to the summer school positions to which they had applied. Petitioners seek reversal of the initial decision

The Board's reply exceptions advance the position that the ALJ's decision is correct. The Board argues that petitioners can point to no holding or dicta in any of the Capodilupo, supra, line of cases which talk about or refer to summer school. Instead, the Board concurs with the ALJ's reliance on cases like Strangia, Blitz and Reeves, because they all specifically address summer school employment. It also points to a case entitled Barber v. Board of Education of the Town of Kearny, 1977 S.L.D. 125, arguing that the petitioner therein was not entitled to summer school employment as a matter of right. The Board submits that it has no policy of preferential hiring for summer school, thus leaving the temporary employment decision within its discretion.

The Board summarizes its reply exceptions by stating that petitioners in this matter have no right by any policy nor by any status they hold during the school year, to any summer school employment. The Board seeks affirmance of the ALJ's decision granting the Board's Motion for Summary Judgment.

Upon careful and independent review of the record of this matter, the Commissioner adopts as his own the findings and conclusions reached by the Office of Administrative Law in this case. As mentioned by the ALJ, summer school employment in New Jersey is considered temporary, part-time employment, and as such is not within the intendment of the protections afforded by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, 18A:28-6, 18A:28-13 or N.J.A.C. 6:3-1.10. See Blitz, supra, at 830. See also Barber, supra. (Commissioner found no justiciable issue in petitioner's seeking summer school employment as a matter of right or because nonappointment was for improper reasons.) Thus, by its very nature, summer school employment is not employment subject to application of the principles set forth in Capodilupo, supra, and its progeny which establishes that tenured employees shall be hired for academic year positions or full-year employment over nontenured employees.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed by the Office of Administrative Law summary judgment is granted the Board and the Petition of Appeal is dismissed, with prejudice.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

MAY 29, 1992

IN THE MATTER OF THE ANNUAL :
SCHOOL ELECTION HELD IN THE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWN- : DECISION SHIP OF PISCATAWAY, MIDDLESEX :
COUNTY. :

The announced results of the balloting for three members of the Board of Education for full terms of three years each at the annual school election held April 7, 1992 in the School District of the Township of Piscataway, Middlesex County, were as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Donna Rumelhart	862	6	868
Theodore Kruse	932	5	937
Paula Van Riper	961	6	967
Thomas R. Renahan	888	6	894
Dominic Ciardi	889	7	896

Pursuant to a letter request from Thomas R. Renehan dated April 13, 1992, an authorized representative of the Commissioner of Education from the Office of the Middlesex County Superintendent of Schools was directed to conduct a recount of the ballots cast. The recount was conducted on April 16, 1992 at the Voting Machine Warehouse, Edison, New Jersey.

At the conclusion of the voting machine recount by the County Superintendent of Schools, there was no change in the vote reported by the Board Secretary on the Regular/Combined Statement of Result of School Election.

The absentee ballot counts were reported as provided by the Board of Education on the Regular/Combined Statement of Result of School Election.

The tally stood as follows:

CANDIDATE	AT POLLS	ABSENTEE	TOTAL
Donna Rumelhart	862	6	868
Theodore Kruse	932	5	937
Paula Van Riper	961	6	967
Thomas R. Renahan	888	6	894
Dominic Ciardi	889	7	896

This concludes the report of the Commissioner's representative.

* * * *

The Commissioner has reviewed the report of his authorized representative and adopts as his own the findings set forth above.

Accordingly, the Commissioner finds and determines that Dominic Ciardi, Theodore Kruse and Paula Van Riper were elected to full terms of three years each on the Board of Education of the School District of the Township of Piscataway. In so determining, it is noted for the record that Terence G. Van Dzura, attorney for Thomas Renahan, filed an Order to Show Cause in Superior Court, return date April 21, 1992, seeking a recount of the absentee ballots cast in the school election held in the School District of the Township of Piscataway. On May 26, 1992 Mr. Van Dzura provided the Commissioner the results of such absentee ballot recount, which results were unchanged.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, riffed business education teacher, alleged Board wrongfully failed to appoint her to guidance counselor position for which she had appropriate certification. Petitioner claimed sexual harassment led to her not being appointed to said position.

Initial decision dismissed petition concluding petitioner did not file within 90-day limit set by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). ALJ found since petitioner chose to file before the Commissioner (instead of Division on Civil Rights), she had to abide by 90-day limit of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) instead of 180-day limit of N.J.S.A. 10:5-18 (under Law Against Discrimination). Moreover, petitioner failed to produce any specific facts showing a genuine issue in this matter. Further, ALJ found Commissioner had no authority to award pre-judgment and post-judgment interest.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision dismissing petition as untimely. Commissioner stressed, however, that he does have the authority under certain circumstances to award pre-judgment and post-judgment interest under N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16.

THERESA E. WARD,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BRIDGEWATER-RARITAN SCHOOL DISTRICT, SOMERSET COUNTY,
Respondent.

Sanford R. Oxfeld, Esq., for petitioner (Balk, Oxfeld, Mandell & Cohen, attorneys)

Daniel C. Soriano, Jr., Esq., for respondent (Soriano & Gross, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 16, 1992 Decided: April 23, 1992

BEFORE EDITH KLINGER, ALJ:

Petitioner, Patricia E. Ward, alleges that the Board of Education of Bridgewater-Raritan School District (Board) wrongfully failed to appoint her to a vacant position as a guidance counselor during the spring of 1990 and subjected her to a reduction in force (RIF) at the end of 1990-91 school year even though she is a tenured teacher and had the appropriate certification. Petitioner contends that the Board failed to appoint her and subjected her to the RIF because she had rejected the sexual advances of various individuals who are members of the building administration of High School East in the district.

Petitioner filed her appeal with the Commissioner of Education on October 2, 1991. The Board filed its answer on October 29, 1991. On November 4, 1991, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B 1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

New Jersey is an Equal Opportunity Employer

At a prehearing conference held on December 17, 1991, the Board raised the following issues which it argued made the matter appropriate for summary disposition:

1. Petitioner did not file her petition within the 90-day limit set by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

2. The Commissioner of Education has no jurisdiction to award damages for emotional upset and pain and suffering resulting from the alleged sexual advances, comments, and unsolicited touchings.

3. Petitioner is barred by the Workers' Compensation Act from pursuing a claim against the Board for emotional distress. A claim of this type cannot be heard by the Commissioner.

The Board was directed by the undersigned to move for summary decision at the earliest possible time. The record closed on March 16, 1992, when the final submission was received from the parties.

THE MATERIAL FACTS

There is no dispute as to the material facts in this matter. The facts as set forth by petitioner are as follows:

1. Petitioner, Theresa Ward, was first employed by respondent in September 1972 as a business education teacher. At that time, Ward possessed a Comprehensive Business Education Certificate.

2. In January 1987, petitioner's husband died. Petitioner avers that at the funeral the principal of the high school approached her and, instead of offering his sympathy, rubbed against her in a suggestive manner. Later that year, the head of the guidance department grabbed her and kissed her.

3. In February 1989, Ward obtained certification as a guidance counselor. She applied for a vacant guidance counselor position in the spring of 1990; however, it was given to an individual named Terry McDonald, who was not from within the district.

4. In May 1991, Ward received notice that due to a RIF, her full-time job would become two-fifths for the 1991-92 school year. It is her contention that had it not been for her refusal to acquiesce to the suggestions made by the principal and the head of the guidance department, she would have received the guidance position in 1990 and would not have been subject to the RIF in 1991. Both of these individuals were involved in the selection process for the guidance position in 1990.

5. Ward filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education on October 2, 1991.

As part of its motion for summary decision, the Board supplied the following facts which were uncontested by petitioner in her response.

1. By letter dated April 4, 1990 to the assistant superintendent of the district, Ward applied for the guidance counselor position and submitted her resume. By letter dated and mailed on June 4, 1990, the assistant superintendent notified Ward that she had not been selected for the position.

2. By letter dated May 29, 1991, the assistant superintendent notified Ward that the Board had abolished her full-time position as teacher of business education for the 1991-92 school year and that the Board was offering her a part-time position as a teacher of business education. The letter was delivered to Ward's school mailbox by means of the internal school district mail system no later than May 30, 1991.

3. There is a required procedure of the personnel department that when an employee exercises the right to review his or her personnel file, the employee must sign and date the file under the heading "Folder Review." Ward's personnel file reveals that she reviewed the file on December 16, 1991. There is no indication on the personnel file that Ward reviewed it during the three years immediately preceding that date.

Ward alleges only two specific incidents of sexual harassment or improper sexual conduct. Both occurred in 1987 and are described above. There was no subsequent incident alleged after December 1987.

THE POSITION OF THE PARTIES

Petitioner does not dispute that her petition of appeal, filed with the Commissioner on October 2, 1991, was not filed within the 90-day limit set by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). She argues, rather, that her petition is brought within the Commissioner's jurisdiction under the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (LAD), N.J.S.A. 10, Chapter 5 and, therefore, the limitation of N.J.S.A. 10:5-18 applies. This statute requires that any complaint filed pursuant to the LAD must be filed within 180 days after the alleged act of discrimination. Since the last act of discrimination occurred on May 29, 1991 and her petition of appeal was filed with the Commissioner on October 2, 1991, Ward is well within the 180-day limit of the LAD. Respondent argues that since Ward's complaint was brought before the Commissioner of Education rather than the Division on Civil Rights, it is the 90-day limit of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) instead of the 180-day limit of N.J.S.A. 10:5-18 which applies.

Respondent has moved to dismiss the third count of Ward's complaint in which she alleges that due to the "sexual advances and comments, and unsolicited touchings," she has "suffered tremendous emotional upset, together with pain and suffering." She also alleges that her personnel file was altered and documents favorable to her were removed from it. For these reasons, she seeks damages and a cease-and-desist order preventing this type of conduct "from occurring to petitioner or anyone else in the district in the future."

The Board argues that this count should be dismissed for two reasons. The first is that the Commissioner of Education is not empowered to grant the relief requested by Ward. The second is that she is barred by the Workers' Compensation statute of the State of New Jersey from pursuing a claim against her employer for bodily injury, including emotional distress, arising out of and in the course of her employment.

In her responding papers, Ward, relying upon Balsley v. No. Hunterdon Bd. of Ed., 117 N.J. 434, 443 (1990), argues only that the Commissioner should determine the merits of her claim and then the matter should ultimately proceed to the Division on Civil Rights which may determine and resolve claims for additional relief. It appears from this argument that petitioner is not seeking damages for her emotional upset or pain and suffering in this forum but intends to pursue them at a future time with the Division on Civil Rights. Because petitioner's brief indicates that she seeks relief in this forum on the third count of her petition as to liability only, there is no need to address this matter in great detail.

The legal authority supports respondent's position that the Commissioner of Education is not authorized to award punitive damages or costs (Winter v. Bd. of Ed. of the Tp. of No. Bergen, 75 S.L.D. 236 (1975), prejudgment and postjudgment interest, and Bd. of Ed., City of Newark v. Levitt, 197 N.J. Super. 239, 246 (App. Div. 1984)) or reimbursement for legal fees (Balsley, supra). Since petitioner does not take issue with the Board's position, I CONCLUDE that, in this forum at least, the third count of petitioner's complaint does not state a cause upon which the relief sought can be granted by the Commissioner of Education.

I therefore CONCLUDE that the third count of petitioner's complaint should be dismissed as to damages. Insofar as the petitioner seeks a cease-and-desist order from the Commissioner preventing the conduct named, I CONCLUDE that this would be futile since no act of sexual advance, comments or unsolicited touchings was alleged by Ward after December 1987. I therefore CONCLUDE that no relief should be granted to her in this regard either.

THE APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

It appears that the only issue requiring discussion is whether the 180-day limit of N.J.S.A. 10:5-18 or the 90-day limit of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) applies to Ward's petition. This determination will resolve the question of whether the merits of the petition should be reached at all.

It is clear from the petition and the documents submitted by respondent that if this were a matter solely involving questions arising under the education law presented before the Commissioner of Education, Ward's petition is out of time and should be dismissed. She was notified on June 4, 1990 that she would not be given the position as guidance counselor in the district. She was notified on May 29, 1991 that she would be subject to a RIF. She had not inspected her document file for three years prior to December 16, 1991 to discover documents missing. Her petition of appeal was not filed with the Commissioner until October 2, 1991, beyond the 90-day limit required by N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c). I therefore CONCLUDE that insofar as any of the allegations of the complaint are brought under the education laws, N.J.S.A. Title 18A, they are out of time and should be dismissed. I therefore CONCLUDE that respondent would be entitled to summary decision dismissing all of these claims.

With regard to the claims brought under the New Jersey LAD, petitioner essentially argues that since the Commissioner of Education and the Director of the Division on Civil Rights have concurrent jurisdictions, the same limitation should apply to both forums. This position is not supported by the LAD itself. N.J.S.A. 10:5-18 specifically states:

> The Attorney General shall establish rules of practice to govern, expedite and effectuate the foregoing procedure and his own actions thereunder. Any complaint filed in the division or in any municipal office pursuant to this act must be so filed within 180 days after the alleged act of discrimination. [Emphasis added.]

Since this matter was brought neither in the Division nor in any municipal office, there is no statutory authority for applying the 180-day rule to the present matter.

The Commissioner of Education and the Division on Civil Rights are vested with concurrent jurisdiction to hear complaints charging violations of the LAD in a number of areas, including employment discrimination and gender discrimination in public school courses of study and curricula. If the discrimination alleged by Ward involved public school courses of study and curricula, it would have to be heard by the Commissioner since "the educational interests of complainants, which cannot be disassociated from their discrimination grievances, can best be addressed by the Commissioner." Hinfey v. Matawan Regional Bd. of Ed., 77 N.J. 514, 532-533 (1978). A complaint involving employment discrimination, however, may be brought in either forum. Gilchrist v. Bd. of Ed. of Haddonfield, 155 N.J. Super. 358, 366 (App. Div. 1978).

The present matter clearly involved employment discrimination based on sex. Petitioner charges that she was sexually harassed in 1987 by various school administrators, refused these advances, and, as a result, she was denied the position of guidance counselor in 1990 and subsequently subjected to a RIF. There is no exclusive jurisdiction in the Commissioner of Education to hear this matter. See, Hinfey, supra, at 528. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner could have filed her appeal either in the Division on Civil Rights or with the Commissioner of Education. I therefore CONCLUDE that Ward had the opportunity to choose the forum and is bound by the limitation appropriate to her forum of choice.

The 90-day period of limitation of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c) applies to all claims filed with the Commissioner of Education, including those alleging violation of the LAD. I therefore CONCLUDE that it applies to the petition filed by Ward on October 2, 1991.

Where civil rights are involved, the LAD recognizes an exception to the time limitations where "continuing violations" are involved. If the discriminatory conduct can be characterized as a continuing violation, the complaint may be timely even if the discrimination began well beyond the statutory time period. Terry v. Mercer Co. Freeholders Bd., 173 N.J. Super. 249, 253 (App. Div. 1980). There is no allegation of a continuing violation here, nor do the facts alleged in the complaint support one, and I CONCLUDE that this exception does not apply. The last alleged act of discrimination occurred on May 29, 1991, 125 days before the petition was filed. This is in excess of the 90-day limitation of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

The 90-day limitation is generally strictly construed. Riely v. Hunterdon Central H.S. Bd. of Ed., 173 N.J. Super. 109 (App. Div. 1980). This rule may be relaxed in the discretion of the Commissioner where strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate, unnecessary, or may result in injustice. I CONCLUDE that nothing in petitioner's allegations justifies such a relaxation of the rule. Ward complained of two specific, isolated incidents of alleged sexual harassment The first involved the principal and occurred in January 1987. The second involved the guidance counselor and occurred prior to the end of December 1987.

In her reply brief, petitioner merely reiterated these two instances and supplemented them with additional detail. She alleged that these two events resulted in her being denied the position of guidance counselor in June 1990. However, she did not appeal this action at that time. She was subject to a RIF on May 29, 1991, but did not appeal that action of the Board for 125 days, 35 days later than the time allowed for appeal. I CONCLUDE that there is no reason to relax the limitation of N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.2(c).

Petitioner has failed to produce any specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue here which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding as required by

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). Consequently, for all of the above reasons, I CONCLUDE that the Board is entitled to summary decision in this matter.

It is therefore ORDERED that the petition of Theresa E. Ward be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. Petitioner filed exceptions pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 on May 11, 1992. However, by telephonic communication from the Board's counsel, Daniel Soriano, Esq., to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes on May 20, 1992 it was made known that the Board was not served a copy of said exceptions. Said information was confirmed through a postscript at the end of the exceptions which indicates that a copy of said exceptions was forwarded by petitioner's counsel only to petitioner and to NJEA. It is determined that petitioner failed to conform to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(a) and therefore such exceptions are not considered in the Commissioner's review of this case.

Upon a careful and independent review of the record of this case, the Commissioner adopts as his own those findings of fact and conclusions of law set forth in the initial decision, which established that the 90-day rule strictly applies to matters raised before the Commissioner pursuant to his authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, and that no facts exist in the instant record to compel relaxation of such rule, notwithstanding that the Commissioner enjoys concurrent jurisdiction to hear matters arising under the Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq.

Moreover, the Commissioner concurs that the issue of timeliness was the only matter properly brought before him in this matter insofar as the Commissioner is without authority to award punitive damages, costs or reimbursement of legal fees. See Initial Decision, at page 5. However, the Commissioner would note a technical correction in the ALJ's statement found on page 5, wherein she states that the Commissioner is without authority to award pre-judgment and post-judgment interest. In fact the Commissioner is embued with such authority "in any circumstance in which a petitioner has sought such relief and has successfully established a claim to a monetary award." See N.J.A.C. 6:24-1.16. However, under the facts of this case the Commissioner does not reach the merits of petitioner's claims under any authority vested in him, and thus it is inappropriate to consider the issue of either pre- or post-judgment interest.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed in the initial decision, the Commissioner adopts as his own the recommendation of the Office of Administrative Law dismissing the instant Petition of Appeal in its entirety, with prejudice.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, executive secretary terminated by Board for abandonment of position following sick leave, sought accrued vacation pay. Petitioner contended that under provisions of collective bargaining agreement she was entitled to said vacation pay.

Initial decision concluded agreement was ambiguous on question of whether a tenured employee was entitled to payment for accrued vacation time. Moreover, in past practices Board paid such time to employees who retired. Therefore, ALJ ordered Board to pay petitioner for accrued vacation time.

Commissioner rejected initial decision finding petitioner did not resign (no letter of resignation, no Board action on resignation) and further finding petitioner failed to provide medical documentation for extended absence. Thus, because absence without leave is not a resignation as contemplated by such case law as Hall, it could not be construed as basis for providing benefits contemplated for those who resign from their employment as opposed to those terminated by Board for being absent without leave. (Bates) Petition was dismissed.

Record Closed: March 17, 1992 Decided: April 27, 1992

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Joanne Lowe, seeks accrued vacation pay at the time of her termination from employment in November 1990. Respondent, the Board of Education of Orange (Board), argues that petitioner is not entitled to accrued vacation time because she was terminated for abandonment of her position.

On May 14, 1991, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A hearing was held on March 13, 1992, and at the conclusion of the hearing, the parties were given an opportunity to submit documents referenced in the testimony. The record closed on March 17, 1992.

The sole issue to be resolved in this matter is whether pursuant to Board policies and practices, petitioner is entitled to accrued vacation pay at the time of her termination in November 1990.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon a review of the relevant testimonial and documentary evidence, including the stipulation of facts by the parties, I FIND the following as FACT:

1. Petitioner was employed with the Board since 1970 and held the position of executive secretary from 1986 to the time of her termination.

2. The position of executive secretary is not part of the bargaining agreement (J-1). However, all the terms of employment contained in the bargaining agreement are applied to and enjoyed by the executive secretary title, e.g., sick leave, vacation time, and salary.

3. In June 1989, petitioner commenced a sick leave which continued until November 1990.

4. On November 14, 1990, the Board terminated petitioner for abandonment of position effective April 24, 1990 (J-2).

5. On November 26, 1990, petitioner requested accrued vacation pay (J-3).

6. Petitioner accrued 34 vacation days, or $3,978 (R-1).

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Petitioner argues that under the provisions of the collective-bargaining agreement between the Orange Education Secretaries Association and the Board of Education of Orange (Agreement), she is entitled to accrued vacation time notwithstanding the reason for her termination. Moreover, there is no express language in the Agreement or written Board policy denying an employee vacation time on termination for abandonment. Consequently, she is entitled to the undisputed accrued 34 vacation days.

The Board argues that petitioner is not entitled to accrued vacation because she failed to provide notice of leave as required by the Agreement. Further, the Board's policy is that no accrued vacation time shall be paid to any employee who is terminated for abandonment.

It is stipulated that the Agreement applies to petitioner. Consequently, the terms and conditions set forth in the Agreement determine whether petitioner is entitled to receive her accrued vacation pay. The Agreement provides for the payment of vacation pay as follows:

> RESIGNATION: An employee who is resigning from her/his position shall give the minimum thirty (30) days' notice.
> Earned vacation shall be paid according to the proportion of full months worked to the total contract year, unless proper notice has not been given. (Exhibit J-1, at 17.)

The Board has interpreted the above provision to allow an employee resigning from her position to collect accrued vacation time provided that 30 days' notice is given. However, the Agreement is silent on the ability of the terminated employee to receive accrued vacation pay. Consequently, the Board maintains that under its policy, it properly denied petitioner accrued vacation time because she was terminated for abandonment. To resolve the ambiguity in the Agreement concerning payment of accrued vacation to employees who resign and those who are terminated, an interpretation of the terms and conditions of the Agreement must be made.

The ultimate purpose of a collective-bargaining agreement is a common understanding of the terms and conditions of employment. Adams v. Jersey Central Power and Light Co., 21 N.J. 8 (1956). The intent of the parties must be made by considering the attendant circumstances and the relation and objectives of the parties. Id. at 13. Additionally, the agreement should be accorded a reasonable construction, and the provisions should be construed collectively so as to comport with the probable intention of the parties. Kennedy v. Westinghouse Electric Corp., 16 N.J. 280 (1954). In construing the terms of an agreement, past practices of the parties in like situations is accorded great weight. Id. at 294.

An employee is granted vacation time based upon years of employment (J-1, at 27). Once the employee earns the vacation time, it cannot be forfeited or taken away except when the employee resigns from her position without giving 30 days' notice (J-1, at 17). It can reasonably be inferred that forfeiture of accrued vacation time upon failure to provide 30 days' notice for resignation was designed to prevent employees from leaving on short notice or no notice. When an employee leaves on short notice, it disrupts the work environment and may result in the employer incurring additional costs for temporary help during the search for replacement personnel. Therefore, it is reasonable for the Board to withhold accrued vacation pay from an employee who resigns on anything less than 30 days' notice.

However, the same rationale is not applicable to employees who are terminated. It would be an unreasonable interpretation of the Agreement to deny the benefits of accrued vacation pay to employees who are terminated. When an employer terminates an employee, it knows in advance the date of termination. Consequently, it has adequate time to find and prepare for the replacement of the employee. Moreover, the Agreement expressly limits the withholding of vacation pay only in instances where the employee resigns without 30 days' notice. To the contrary, there is no express condition withholding accrued vacation pay from employees who are terminated and, based upon the facts presented here, such condition cannot be implied.

CONCLUSION

Based on the above, I CONCLUDE that the Agreement is ambiguous on the question of whether a terminated employee is entitled to payment for accrued vacation time. In past practices, the Board has paid accrued vacation time to employees who terminated employment on the basis of retirement, although no express language is provided in the Agreement. In light of the Board's past practices and principles of reasonable construction, I CONCLUDE that the Board must pay the employee for accrued vacation time.

It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 225 West State Street, CN 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

JOANNE LOWE,	:
PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,	:	DECISION

The record and initial decision rendered by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. No exceptions were filed by the parties. For the reasons expressed below, the initial decision is reversed.

Initially, the Commissioner notes that his consideration of this matter deals solely with whether, according to Board policies and practices, petitioner, an executive secretary whose employment was terminated on November 14, 1990, effective April 24, 1990, is entitled to vacation pay. See transmittal to the Office of Administrative Law May 14, 1991. See also Petition of Appeal filed on April 3, 1991 and Answer filed May 8, 1991. As noted by the ALJ in the initial decision, certain facts in this matter are uncontested, among them that the position of executive secretary is not part of the bargaining agreement between Orange Education Secretaries Association and the Board, and that notwithstanding that fact, all the terms of employment contained in the bargaining agreement are applied to and enjoyed by the executive secretary title, e.g., sick leave, vacation time and salary. (See Initial Decision at p. 2, Finding of Fact No. 2.) Further, the Commissioner notes that nowhere is an issue of tenure status raised by petitioner in these proceedings.

The Commissioner is cognizant that as a general proposition his authority pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 does not extend to consideration of controversies over the interpretation or enforcement of a collectively bargained employment contract. See, for example Michael Larsen v. Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, Middlesex County, decided by the Commissioner February 18, 1982, rev'd State Board October 6, 1982. However, interpreting the express language of a collective bargaining agreement is not called for in this matter, contrary to the suggestion of the ALJ. Indeed, petitioner is not a member of a collective bargaining unit. Rather her claim to the fringe benefit of accrued vacation time is controlled instead by a board policy which holds that the terms of employment contained in the bargaining agreement are applied to and enjoyed by the executive secretary title, more specifically that payment of vacation is available to any employee who resigns, having given thirty (30) days' notice.

However, in determining whether the Board's policy as stated above applies to petitioner's circumstances, a threshold issue must be decided; that is, whether petitioner in fact resigned, and if not, if she may lay claim to accrued vacation pay. In the Commissioner's judgment, the record supports a finding that petitioner did not resign in that no evidence is brought to the record that she submitted a letter of resignation, that the Board received it or that it acted upon any such resignation, as required by such case law as Anne Hall v. Board of Education of the Township of Jefferson, Morris County, decided by the Commissioner on Remand October 20, 1988, rev'd State Board May 3, 1989, aff'd Superior Court May 25, 1990, rev'd/remanded New Jersey Supreme Court July 30, 1991, 125 N.J. 299 (1991).

On the contrary, the record is plain that despite repeated notices from the Board asking petitioner to provide medical documentation for her extended absence from her duties, petitioner failed to comply with her employer's directives. See Exhibits R-5, R-6, R-7, R-8, R-9, R-10 and J-2. The Commissioner concludes from a careful review of such documents that it would be ludicrous to suggest that petitioner's refusal to specify when she would return to work or to provide medical verification does not constitute absence without official leave warranting termination of petitioner's employment with the Board. Because absence without leave is not a resignation as contemplated by such case law as Hall, supra, it cannot be construed as a basis for providing the benefits contemplated for those who resign from their employment as opposed to those terminated by the Board for being absent without leave. See In the matter of the Tenure Hearing of Robert C. Bates, School District of Lower Camden County Regional High School District No. 1, Camden County, decided by the Commissioner of Education March 28, 1985, affirmed with modification December 3, 1986, aff'd Superior Court November 16, 1987.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed above, the Commissioner rejects the initial decision and dismisses the instant Petition of Appeal with prejudice.

PETITIONER-APPELLANT,

V.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,

RESPONDENT-RESPONDENT.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

DECISION

Decided by the Commissioner of Education, June 10, 1992

For the Petitioner-Appellant, Zazzali, Zazzali, Fagella & Nowak (Paul L. Kleinbaum, Esq., of Counsel)

For the Respondent-Respondent, Ashley & Charles (Ray Hamlin, Esq., of Counsel)

Petitioner in this case was terminated by the Board of Education of the City of Orange (hereinafter "Board") from her position as Executive Secretary for abandonment of her position on November 14, 1990, effective April 24, 1990. On November 26, 1990, petitioner, while not contesting her termination, requested accrued vacation pay from the Board. In the absence of a response, petitioner sought relief by Petition of Appeal filed with the Commissioner of Education.

It was petitioner's position that she was entitled to payment for accrued vacation time under the Board's policy as embodied in the terms of the collective negotiations agreement between the Secretaries Association and the Board (hereinafter "Agreement"). The Board concurred that pursuant to Board policy, the terms of the Agreement applied to petitioner although she was not a member of the collective negotiations unit. It countered, however, that she was not entitled to payment for her accrued vacation time because she had failed to give 30 days' notice to the Board that she was resigning from her position as provided by the Agreement. The Board further contended that it was its policy not to pay accrued vacation time to any employee who was terminated for abandoning her position.

Oct. 6, 1993

The ALJ found that because the parties had stipulated that the Agreement applied to petitioner, petitioner's entitlement to receive accrued vacation pay was controlled by its terms and conditions. He further found that the Agreement was ambiguous because it expressly required 30 days' notice by an employee who was resigning in order for that employee to be entitled to payment for accrued vacation, but was silent with respect to employees who were terminated. He therefore based his interpretation of the terms and conditions of the Agreement on general principles of contract construction applicable to collective agreements.

Inferring that the provision providing for forfeiture of accrued vacation time upon failure to provide 30 days' notice of resignation was designed to prevent employees from leaving with little or no notice, the ALJ found that the same rationale did not apply to employees who were terminated. Emphasizing that the forfeiture provision was expressly limited to those situations where an employee had resigned without giving 30 days' notice and that there was no express condition concerning employees who were terminated for cause, the ALJ found that such condition could not be implied. Based on the Board's past practice of paying accrued vacation time to employees who had retired and his reasonable construction of the Agreement, the ALJ concluded that the Board was required to pay petitioner for her accrued vacation time.

Before examining the merits of the matter, the Commissioner expressed his recognition that his authority did not extend to "consideration of controversies over the interpretation or enforcement of a collectively bargained employment contract," Commissioner's decision, at 8, and observed that his consideration of the matter before him was limited to whether petitioner was entitled to vacation pay under the Board's policies and practices, specifically the policy providing that payment for accrued vacation time is available to any employee who resigns having given 30 days' notice.

On this basis, the Commissioner found that the threshold issue was whether petitioner had resigned. Based on his examination of the record, the Commissioner determined that petitioner had not resigned, but had been terminated by the Board for being absent without leave. Finding that absence without leave was not a resignation, and that "it cannot be construed as a basis for providing the benefits contemplated for those who resign from their employment," the Commissioner rejected the ALJ's determination and dismissed the petition. Commissioner's decision, at 9.

Petitioner appealed to the State Board, arguing that the fact that she had been terminated rather than having resigned was not determinative of whether she was entitled to payment for accrued vacation. Rather, she argued that because she was terminated, the provision relating to resignation did not apply to her at all. Consequently, that provision could not be used to deprive her of payment for vacation accrued under the Board's policy prior to the absence which resulted in her termination. We agree.

Initially, we find that the Commissioner erred in relying on In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Robert C. Bates, decided by the State Board, December 3, 1986, aff'd, Docket #A-2700-86T7 (App. Div. 1987) to resolve this dispute. The central issues in that case involved whether the respondent was guilty of tenure charges of abandonment and whether termination was the appropriate penalty for the conduct of which we found him guilty. Although not central to resolving the matter, in our decision in that case, we also reversed the Commissioner's determination that respondent was entitled to apply his accumulated sick leave to the period of absence which had resulted in the tenure charges or to accumulate sick leave during that period.

Obviously, the case now before us does not involve any questions relating to the propriety of petitioner's termination. Nor does it involve her entitlement to or the application of sick leave. Moreover, petitioner concedes that she did not accrue any vacation during her period of absence and does not question the Board's denial of her request to use accrued vacation as sick days so as to extend her sick leave. Rather, in these proceedings, petitioner merely seeks payment for those vacation days which she earned during her employment.

In contrast to sick leave, the education laws do not include any statutory provisions pertaining to vacation. Consequently, this particular case is to be resolved under the Board's policy as embodied in its written agreement with the Secretaries Association. Under the terms of the Board's policy, 12-month employees receive earned vacation on a specific schedule as follows:

> All employees hired prior to June 30, 1971 shall be granted 22 working days of vacation per year.
>
> All employees hired after June 30, 1971 shall be granted vacation according to the schedule outlined below:
>
> 10 working days after first year
> 10 working days after second year
> 15 working days after third year
> 15 working days after fourth year
> 20 working days after fifth year and thereafter

Article XVII (E)(6).

In contrast to the specific provision for terminal pay for unused sick days, which provides a schedule for discounted payment upon termination of employment, Article XVII (E)(4), the Agreement makes no provision for payment for "earned" but unused vacation days, although under the employment procedures specified by Article IX of the Agreement, failure to provide 30 days' notice of resignation results in forfeiture of "earned" vacation. Article IX (B). Further, the record indicates that it is the practice of the Board to make full payment for unused vacation to employees upon retirement although the Agreement does not make any express provision for such payment.

Given the terms of the Board's policy and its past practice of making payment for earned vacation to employees who retire, we agree with the ALJ that petitioner is entitled to payment for accrued vacation under the Board's policy. We reject the Board's contention that she is not entitled to such payment because it is the Board's policy not to pay accrued vacation to any employee terminated for abandonment. In point of fact, there is no indication in the record of such policy on its part, either by virtue of the Agreement or otherwise. Moreover, although petitioner is not contesting the validity of her termination and while the record indicates that she was in fact absent without leave, the record does not establish whether or not petitioner "abandoned" her position in the technical sense. See Bates, supra. The record, however, does show that petitioner requested to apply her unused vacation to the period of her sick leave so as to extend her sick leave and that the Board expressly denied this request. See R-8, R-9 and R-10.[1]

We find that under the circumstances here and given the Board's policy as embodied in its Agreement, petitioner is entitled to payment for vacation accrued during her employment, and for the reasons stated, we reverse the Commissioner's decision.

Attorney exceptions are noted.

[1] The record establishes that petitioner was absent without leave after her sick leave expired, but does not show that she abandoned her position. In response to the Board's exceptions, we note that, as indicated above, there is a legally significant distinction between whether an employee abandoned her job or was terminated for being absent without leave. See Bates, supra. In that the question of whether petitioner in this case in fact abandoned her job was neither litigated nor decided in these proceedings, the issue involved here was whether an employee who was terminated by the Board for cause was entitled to payment for vacation accrued under the Board's policy.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF CHARLES COURTNEY,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:	DECISION
NEWARK, ESSEX COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

Board certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct involving six separate incidents of corporal punishment within three years, verbal abuse of students and excessive absenteeism against respondent, industrial arts teacher.

Initial decision concluded Board sustained all charges except excessive absenteeism against respondent and that the appropriate penalty was dismissal. Citing Redcay, ALJ found unfitness for a position in school system may be shown by single incident but is "best shown by numerous incidents." Respondent was dismissed from his tenured teaching position.

Commissioner adopted findings and determination in initial decision. Commissioner determined ALJ properly found that most of the alleged incidents were proven to have occurred, that they constituted corporal punishment within meaning of controlling statute and case law, and that the several proven instances of corporal punishment and verbal abuse demonstrated respondent's unfitness for teaching. Respondent was dismissed from his employment as of date of Commissioner's decision and matter was referred to State Board of Examiners for appropriate action.

BEFORE KEN R. SPRINGER, ALJ:

(A) Incident On November 28, 1990

The most recent incident occurred on November 28, 1990, on which date Courtney was accused of attempting to restrain a young female student, S.W., from leaving his classroom and of pushing her in the chest area. At the time, S.W., an eighth grader in one of Courtney's hop classes, was only 14 years old, slightly taller than five feet in height, and weighed less than 125 pounds. Now a year older and in high school, she still looked like a little girl at the time of her testimony. More to the point, she did not look like someone whom it would be necessary to restrain by means of force.

Admittedly, S.W. had been making noise in class that day, and when Courtney dismissed the rest of the students he told S.W. to remain behind. As S.W. and another student approached the doorway, Courtney put his hand on the door and allowed the other girl to pass. S.W. asked her classmate to wait outside for her. Courtney acknowledges that he stood in the doorway to block S.W.'s path.

Testimony differs on who initiated actual contact. According to S.W., Courtney pushed her in the chest area "at least two or three times." She said that the touching occurred "above but not on [her] breast" and that it felt "like he was poking me." She experienced "no pain" and the contact left "no marks on [her] body." On the other hand, Courtney insisted that S.W. first "tried to nudge [him] our of the way with her shoulder" and that he "put his arm up and pushed her back."

Statement of the Case

This is a teacher tenure proceeding under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. Tenured teaching staff members hold employment in the public school system "during good behavior and efficiency." Specifically, the Newark Board of Education ("Board") accuses respondent Charles Courtney ("Courtney") of engaging in a pattern of corporal punishment, involving six separate incidents within three years; of using inappropriate, and, occasionally, profane language toward his students; and of excessive absenteeism, totaling 65 days within years. The issue is whether the facts justify dismissal or reduction in compensation of a tenured teacher on the grounds of "unbecoming conduct" or "other just cause."

Procedural History

On February 8, 1991, the school administrators filed tenure charges and sworn statements of supporting evidence with the Board and served copies on respondent. At its meeting on February 26, 1991, the Board determined that there existed probable cause to credit the supporting evidence and that the charges, if true, warranted some type of disciplinary action. Accordingly, the Board voted to certify the tenure charges to the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner") and immediately to suspend Courtney, without pay. One week later, on March 6, 1991, the Board filed the tenure charges with the Commissioner. Courtney filed an answer, denying the charges, on March 14, 1992.

Subsequently, on March 21, 1991, the Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case. The OAL held hearings on September 19,20 and 24, 1991. Witnesses and exhibits are listed in the appendix. Both sides filed legal briefs by October 25, 1991. Time for preparation of the initial decision has been extended to April 23, 1991.

Findings of Fact

General Background Facts

The background facts are undisputed. Charles Courtney has been employed as an industrial arts teacher in the Newark public school system for almost eleven years. He has tenure as a teacher in the district. In the course of his career, he has taught at six different schools, starting at Camden Middle School in 1980-81, next at First Avenue School in 1985-86, then as an itinerant teacher at Martin Luther King and Cleveland Schools in 1986-87 and 87-88, and at Hawthorne Avenue and South 17th Street Schools from 1988-89 until his removal in late February 1991. As early as March 1988, Courtney received warnings about his excessive use of physical force, including a written reprimand in which he was "strongly urge[d]" to develop disciplinary procedures "which do not involve the use of corporal punishment" and to "[r]efrain from the use of profane or unsavory remarks to [his] students."

For convenience, the specific charges and evidence will be grouped under three headings: (1) corporal punishment; (2) verbal abuse of students; and (3) excessive absenteeism.

(1) Corporal Punishment

(A) Incident on November 28, 1990

The most recent incident occurred on November 28, 1990, on which date Courtney was accused of attempting to restrain a young female student, S.W., from leaving his classroom and of pushing her in the chest area. At the time, S.W., an eighth grader in one of Courtney's shop classes at Hawthorne School, was only 14 years old, slightly taller than five feet in height, and weighed less than 125 pounds. Now a year older and in high school, she still looked like a little girl at the time of her testimony. More to the point, she did not look like someone whom it would be necessary to restrain by means of force.

Admittedly, S.W. had been making noise in class that day, and when Courtney dismissed the rest of the students he told S.W. to remain behind. As S.W. and another student approached the doorway, Courtney put his hand on the door and allowed the other girl to pass. S.W. asked her classmate to wait outside for her. Courtney acknowledges that he stood in the doorway to block S.W.'s path.

Testimony differs on who initiated actual contact. According to S.W., Courtney pushed her in the chest area "at least two or three times." She said that the touching occurred "above but not on [her] breast" and that it felt "like he was poking me." She experienced "no pain" and the contact left "no marks on [her] body." On the other hand, Courtney insisted that S.W. first "tried to nudge [him] our of the way with her shoulder" and that he "put his arm up and pushed her back." About one week after the incident, Esther Elliott, the building principal, interviewed the other girl, who had seen the happening and corroborated that Courtney had pushed S.W. "in the chest area." Courtney gave the principal a different story difficult to reconcile with his later testimony, denying that he had any physical contact "at all" with S.W. However, he explained to the principal that S.W. had been "mouthing off to him" and that he "wasn't going to stand for it." Prior to this incident, S.W. had liked Mr. Courtney and had never been a disciplinary problem in his class.

I FIND that Courtney did intentionally push or poke S.W. in the chest area to prevent her from leaving the room and that, under the circumstances, such conduct constitutes the use of excessive force. A male teacher has no right to touch a pubescent female student for this purpose. No indication appears that use of force was justified to quell a disturbance, to obtain possession of weapons, for the purpose of self-defense, for the protection of persons or property, or for any other legitimate reason.
