ECLIPSES for the Year 1786.

Five times this Year will the luminaries of heaven be eclipsed, namely, three times the Sun, and twice the Moon, to wit,

THE first is of the Moon, January the 14th, in the morning, beginning 6h. 35m. but the Moon setting 16 minutes past 7, we shall see only the beginning of it.

The second is of the Sun, January 29th, about 10 o'clock in the evening, invisible.

The third is of the Moon, July 11th, in the morning, and will be total, beginning 4h. 5m. but the Moon setting 41 minutes past 4, we cannot see the greatest obscuration of it.

The fourth is of the Sun, July 25, about 4 o'clock in the morning, invisible.

The fifth will be also of the Sun, December 20th, in the forenoon, and likewise invisible.

On the STOCKING LOOM.

This Machine (this wonderful Machine I may call it) for weaving of Stockings, &c. was the Invention of a disappointed Lover; he was in Love with a Stocking-Knitter, who slighted his Offers, and the following Lines were wrote upon the first Weaving Machine that extraordinary Mechanic made.

OF all the Arts that human wit can boast,
Conceiv'd by labour, or improv'd by cost,
None can unto the judging world appear,
More wond'rous than the Frame depicted here;
Six thousand pieces does the whole contain,
Th' unwearied talk of one poor Lover's brain,
Who, in revenge to female flights, was mov'd
To spoil the Knitting of the Dame he lov'd.
May each desponding Lover pensive grow,
And, when disdain'd, the like resentment shew!

ORIGINAL HINTS.

WHO would be surpris'd at any thing, while the perfidy of the human heart, and the caprice of the human brain, account for all the contradictions that have happened, that will happen, or can happen in the moral world?

Peace is desirable, because it confers pleasure, plenty and freedom. These are things without which life itself is a curse.

JANUARY. First Month.

A MORAL REFLECTION

On the end of the year 1785.

Seventeen hundred eighty-five

Is now for-ever past :

Seventeen hundred eighty-six

Will fly away as fast,

But whether life's uncertain scene

Shall hold an equal pace ;

Or whether death shall come between,
 And end my mortal race :
 Or whether sickness, pain or health,
 My future lot shall be,
 Or whether poverty or wealth,
 Is all unknown to me.
 One thing I know, that needful 'tis,
 To watch with careful eye,

Since every season spent amiss
 Is register'd on high.
 Too well I know, what precious hours
 My wayward passions waste:
 And oh! I feel my mortal powers
 To dust and darkness haste.
 Earth rolls her rapid seasons round,
 To meet her final fire;

D. H.			BE MET WITH.
1	10	21	2	27	3	I WAS the other day peeping into a book of Conundrums, and among other things found the following assertion: " Among the things difficult to be met with, three are chiefly reckoned; a ' good Melon,' a ' good Wife,' and a ' good Friend.'" There are few people who love a Melon better than myself, though I acknowledge it to be very rare to meet with a good one. However, I shall not enter into the merits of this matter, but leave it to the determination of epicures. A good wife is indeed a " rara avis in terrâ," which is very scarce to be met with; but, that your readers may be assisted in their researches after one, permit me to describe the necessary accomplishments to form such a character. She must love no man so well as her husband, whose inclinations and pleasure she must constantly study. She must never speak in the positive, but always in the submissive tone; and, above all, carefully avoid never to let her tongue run too fast. She must think her own home preferable to the most

Verfes written on a Pane of Glafs in a Quaker Meeting-houfe, in Edinburgh.

APPROACH this place, with reverence come,
Serve God, tho' each tongue should be dumb.
Experience that mysterious art,
To feel his prefence at thy heart,
And hear his whispers foft and kind,
In holy filence of the mind;

 Beyond where time and nature end,
 And reach those heights, that bless'd abode,
 And meet the kindest smiles of God!

S O N N E T.

THE rose had been wash'd, just wash'd in a shower,
That Mary to Anna convey'd,
The plentiful moisture encumber'd the flower,
And weigh'd down its beautiful head.

The cup was all fill'd, and the leaves were all wet.
And it seem'd to a fanciful view
To weep for the buds it had left with regret
On the flourishing bush where it grew.

I hastily seiz'd it, unfit as it was,
For a nosegay, so dripping and drown'd,
And swinging it rudely, too rudely, alas!
I snapp'd it—it fell to the ground.

And such, I exclaim'd, is the pitiless part
Some act by the delicate mind,
Regardless of wringing and breaking a heart
Already to sorrow resign'd.

 Whilst nearer prospects pleasure yields

RESIGNATION.

THE darts of adverse fortune are always levelled at our heads.
Some reach us; some graze against us, and fly to wound our neighbours. Let us, therefore, impose an equal temper
on our minds, and pay, without murmuring, the tribute which we owe to humanity. The winter brings cold, and we must freeze. The summer returns with heat, and we must melt.
The inclemency of the air disorders
our health, and we must be sick. Here we are exposed to wild beasts, and there to men more savage than the beasts; and if we escape the inconveniencies and dangers of the air and the earth, there are perils by water and perils by fire. This established course of things is not in our power to change;
but it is in our power to assume such a greatness of mind as becomes wise and virtuous men; as may enable us to encounter the accidents of life with fortitude,

AUGUST. Eighth Month.

Th' echoing horn from yonder grove,
With rapture strikes the ear;
Its shrillest note my passions move,
And crush each boding fear.

Mere bustling care and anxious thought
Are now in silence laid;
Each restless passion seems forgot.
Or buried deep in shade.

SEPTEMBER. Ninth Month.

The peasant homeward bends his way,
His breast does calmly glow,
T' enjoy the labours of the day,
Earn'd by the sweat of brow.

Whilst blithsome nymphs and swains agree
The evening to improve,
And thun the rural plains with glee,
To sing and talk of love.

Some Account of the Treatment and Condition of Women in former Times.

[From Dr. Alexander's History of Women.]

FROM the subversion of the Roman empire to the fourteenth or fifteenth century, women spent most of their time alone. Almost entire strangers to the joys of social life, they seldom went abroad, but to be spectators of such public diversions and amusements as the fashions of the times countenanced.—Francis I. was the first who introduced women on public days to court; before his time, nothing was to be seen at any of the courts of Europe,

A Gentleman who has been long afflicted with the Gout in his head and stomach, hearing of Sutton's method of treating the small-pox, was determined to try a similar remedy; therefore, when he had the complaint in his stomach, he drunk ice-water, and that drove it immediately to his feet; and when he had it in his head, he thereto applied cold wet cloths, which instantly removed it. He threw off all his wrappers of flannel, and got on horseback, or into a coach, and walked greatly as soon as he was able.

HIS Prussian majesty always admits any of his officers to his table to sup, and then every person, without restraint, gives his opinion with the freedom he pleases.

The king was observing to the company, that he was writing a history of the late war, and that he was a little divided in his mind about giving the character of Lentullus; "for," says he, "it is an astonishing circumstance, when we consider that this general has been raised from the paltry profession of a taylor."—"True," replied the general.

general; but your majesty will also allow, *that the profession of a taylor is more honourable than that of a potter.”
 “ Well hit, Lentullus, says the king; but what is still more to be wondered at, this general made, in the course of his military services, 250,000 ducats.” “ I agree to that too, replied Lentullus; but your majesty cannot forget that you have robbed me of 150,000 of them.”

To cure the Itch. The best medicine yet known for the Itch is sulphur, which ought to be used externally and internally. The parts affected may be rubbed with an Ointment made of flour of sulphur two ounces, crude sal ammoniac, finely powdered, two drams; hogs lard four ounces; half a dram of the essence of lemon. About the bulk of a nutmeg may be rubbed upon the extremities, at bed-time, thrice a week.
