school students met or exceeded expectations on the PARCC English assessment, and 5 percent met or exceeded expectations in math. By 2018-19, those scores rose to 33 percent for English and 21 percent in Math. Additionally, graduation rates were close to 75% in the 2014-15 school year and rose to 81% in 2018-19. With the exception of absenteeism, Lakewood has also met all of its Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA) accountability targets. Additionally, while some of the educational opportunities at Lakewood have suffered cuts, including programs in industrial arts and auto mechanics, Lakewood still offers a range of classes and programs. Lakewood offers all of the required classes for graduation, and also offers a gifted program beginning in elementary school, along with high school Advanced Placement (AP) classes across several subjects, including calculus, English, Physics I and II, Spanish, and U.S. History. Lakewood offers art and music programs at every level, including elementary school. Specifically, the district offers band, chorus, and orchestra, as well as music lessons beginning in fourth grade. Furthermore, computer skills and library skills classes are offered beginning at the elementary level, and guidance counselors are available at all grade levels.[6] While Lakewood only offers Spanish as a foreign language, it does provide opportunities for students to study other foreign languages online. Although Lakewood does have a high rate of teacher turnover and the student-teacher ratio in Lakewood's schools is higher than the State average, Lakewood did meet its ESSA facility accountability targets, with the exception of the middle school.

When considering the standards articulated in Abbott and Bacon, the Commissioner finds that the education provided by the Lakewood school district meets the constitutional threshold as students are prepared for college, career, and life under the NJSLS.

[6] Additional programs that are offered at Lakewood through Perkins or Title 1 grants include robotics, coding, horticulture, culinary, fashion and apparel, graphics design, photography and film, video technology, business data entry, and a technology classroom that has 3D printers, Apple TV, and a Mac Air Cart.

The following excerpt from Abbott II demonstrates the degree of deficiencies necessary to declare a failure to provide T&E:

> In an elementary school in Paterson, the children eat lunch in a small area in the boiler room area of the basement; remedial classes are taught in a former bathroom. In one Irvington school, children attend music classes in a storage room and remedial classes in converted closets. At another school in Irvington a coal bin was converted into a classroom. In one elementary school in East Orange, there is no cafeteria, and the children eat lunch in shifts in the first 1 floor corridor. In one school in Jersey City, built in 1900, the library is a converted cloakroom; the nurse's office has no bathroom or waiting room; the lighting is inadequate; the bathrooms have no hot water (only the custodial office and nurse's office have hot water); there is water damage inside the building because of cracks in the facade; and the heating system is inadequate.
> [Abbott II, 119 N.J. at 363.]

In evaluating the totality of the evidence, the Commissioner finds that while Lakewood may be struggling to provide its students with the premiere level of education that many have come to expect in New Jersey, these deficiencies do not rise to a constitutional deprivation. The record reflects that standardized test scores are below State averages, but the district is showing slow but steady improvement in that area. Lakewood offers a selection of educational programs, including multiple AP classes, as well as programs in music and art that begin at the elementary school level, which are more comprehensive and wide-ranging than those offered in the Abbott and Bacon districts. While some programs have suffered cuts, students still have a diverse array of educational course opportunities. The Commissioner acknowledges the lack of experience in Lakewood's teachers, however, in consideration of recognized teacher shortages, the improvement that the district has shown in test scores and graduation rates, together with the district's diverse curriculum, the Commissioner cannot conclude that Lakewood's students are not receiving T&E.

Because petitioners failed to meet the threshold inquiry of establishing Lakewood's failure to provide T&E, the Commissioner need not reach the issue of the constitutionality of the SFRA.[7] Nevertheless, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ, for the reasons thoroughly set forth in the Initial Decision, that the SFRA is constitutional as applied to Lakewood.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of OAL is rejected in part and adopted in part for the reasons set forth above. The petition is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[8]

BEFORE SUSAN M. SCAROLA, ALJ (Ret., on recall):

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioners, who included parents of children who attend Lakewood Township's public schools, filed a petition of appeal against respondents Commissioner of Education, the New Jersey Department of Education (DOE), and the New Jersey State Board of Education (collectively respondents), in which they allege that the funding formula under the School Funding Reform Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-43 to -70 (SFRA), is unconstitutional as applied to Lakewood Township's (Township) public school students, such that the Lakewood Board of Education (Lakewood, BOE or district)[6] does not receive sufficient funding under the SFRA to provide its public school students with a thorough and efficient education (T&E) because the SFRA does not take into account the extraordinary costs

[3] Mr. Lang is also a teacher in the Lakewood public school district.
[4] Mr. Grossman, who was assisting Mr. Lang, was permitted to withdraw as co-counsel on January 10, 2019.
[5] Ms. Prapas participated in the hearing but, sadly, passed away before the completion of this matter.
[6] The Lakewood Township Board of Education and the Lakewood school district are referred to as Lakewood, BOE or district; the geographic entity of Lakewood Township is specifically referred to as Lakewood Township or Township.

that the district incurs to provide transportation and special education services to a large number of students who attend private schools.

Respondents contend that Lakewood's students are, in fact, receiving T&E, as measured by the New Jersey Student Learning Standards; that respondents have, over the years, taken extraordinary actions, including the appointment of State monitors in Lakewood and the provision of advance State aid payments to Lakewood to ensure that the district's students receive T&E; and that the district's financial difficulties are due to reasons other than the SFRA.

The issue is whether the children who attend public school in the district are receiving a constitutionally-required T&E and, if not, whether the reason for such deprivation is, in significant part, because the district receives insufficient funding under the SFRA to deliver T&E to its students. The school years at issue are 2014-2015 through 2018-2019.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The original Petition of Appeal was filed with the Commissioner on June 24, 2014.[7]

On September 2, 2014, the respondents filed a motion to dismiss in lieu of an answer. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on September 4, 2014, as a contested case.[8] N.J.S.A. 52:14B-

[7] The petition asked the Commissioner for a declaratory ruling that all of Lakewood's students are entitled to the same services to which students similarly situated elsewhere in New Jersey are entitled, and to foreclose the possibility of a remedy that disparately impacts the children of Lakewood or that forces them to forego their rights and privileges under the current law.

[8] N.J.A.C. 1:1-2.1 defines a "contested case" as "an adversary proceeding, including any licensing proceeding, in which the legal rights, duties, obligations, privileges, benefits or other legal relations of specific parties are required by constitutional right or by statute to be determined by an agency by decisions, determinations, or orders, addressed to them or disposing of their interests, after opportunity for an agency hearing." Moreover, "[t]he required hearing must be designed to result in an adjudication concerning the rights, duties, obligations, privileges, benefits or other legal relations of specific parties over which there exist disputed questions of fact, law or disposition relating to past, current or proposed activities or interests" and "[c]ontested cases are not informational nor intended to provide a forum for the expression of public sentiment on proposed agency action or broad policy issues affecting entire industries or large, undefined classes of people." Ibid.

1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The motion was opposed by reply filing on October 22, 2014.

On January 14, 2015, Paul L. Tractenberg, Esq., filed a motion on his own behalf for leave to participate in the proceedings pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.6 and in opposition to the motion to dismiss.[9] On March 11, 2015, the Hon. John Kennedy, ALJ, granted Professor Tractenberg's motion to participate.

Following the submission of briefs on the motion to dismiss and oral argument held on June 9, 2015, Judge Kennedy denied the motion to dismiss on July 24, 2015. He concluded that the petitioners had standing to challenge the SFRA and that the matter was appropriately brought in the OAL.

On or about February 19, 2016, the petitioners filed a motion for summary decision contending that a hearing was not necessary, as all data necessary to rule on the matter was in the public record. On April 14, 2016, the respondents filed opposition to the motion, and sought to join Lakewood BOE as a necessary party. The BOE voted to not participate in the action. On July 19, 2016, the Hon. Solomon A. Metzger, ALJ, t/a, issued an order denying the motion for summary decision. He noted that "Lakewood's demographics pose[d] singular problems for the public school budget, but that that fact alone was not sufficient on its face to establish a constitutional level of deprivation."

On October 4, 2016, the BOE filed a motion to participate, which was granted on November 21, 2016.

In May 2017, the petitioners filed a motion for emergency relief related to the district's 2017–2018 budget deficit. Respondents filed opposition on May 23, 2017.[10] That motion was withdrawn when the budget deficit was resolved through a State aid advance.

[9] Professor Tractenberg is Professor of Law Emeritus Board of Governors Distinguished Service Professor at Rutgers University. He established the Education Law Center, the Institute on Education Law and Policy, and the Center for Diversity and Equality of Education.

[10] The matter was re-assigned from ALJ Metzger to ALJ John Schuster. After he retired, the matter was reassigned to me in June 2017.

On October 9, 2018, the BOE'S motion to intervene as a party was denied prior to the commencement of the hearing.[11]

The hearing commenced on February 5, 2018, and continued on February 7, 12, 13, and 22, 2018. After petitioners rested their case on February 22, 2018, respondents indicated that they wished to file a motion to dismiss. Following the last hearing date, the parties attempted to enter into some stipulations of fact but were unsuccessful. Following a March 27, 2018, conference on the record, the outstanding evidentiary issues were addressed, and a briefing schedule was set for the respondents' motion.

Respondents filed their motion to dismiss the amended complaint on April 30, 2018. Petitioners and participants opposed the motion. Before it was decided, the petitioners moved to re-open their case to present the testimony of another witness, which was opposed by respondents. Following oral argument, the petitioners were ordered to file an amended petition to clarify the relief they were seeking; respondents were permitted to file an answer. Petitioners were permitted to re-open the record to allow the witness to testify, and the motion to dismiss was held until the amended pleadings and answer were filed and the witness was permitted to testify.

On September 4, 2018, the petitioners filed their second amended petition which respondents answered on September 18, 2018.[12]

On December 18, 2018, the petitioners rested their case.

[11] The Lakewood BOE had originally taken the position that it did not want to be included as a necessary party; however, the BOE's counsel had changed since the commencement of these proceedings. No appeal was taken from the denial of the motion to intervene as a party.

[12] The second amended petition asked the Commissioner to determine: 1) That the SFRA as applied to the Lakewood School District does not provide sufficient funding to enable the school district to deliver the core curriculum content standards and extracurricular and cocurricular activities necessary for T&E; 2) That the consequential reliance upon discretionary advance State aid payments pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-56 to provide funding for T&E does not provide T&E funding in any given school year that is certain and predictable; 3) That the constitutional imperative regarding T&E requires sufficient funding that is not discretionary; and 4) That the Commissioner recommends that this matter be remedied by the Legislature.

On January 8, 2019, the respondents' motion to dismiss was denied, and the matter continued with hearing dates on July 9, 10, 21, and 22, 2019.

On July 29, 2019, the parties were asked, as part of their post-hearing briefs, to jointly stipulate, to the maximum extent possible, certain information relating to the district for each school year at issue in this matter (2014–2015 through 2018–2019), which should have been available to them as a matter of public record.[13]

On August 28, 2019, the respondents declined, stating that they would stipulate to all documents already admitted into evidence at the hearing, but would not stipulate to any additional data to be part of the record without context for its consideration.

On September 4, 2019, the petitioners provided an itemization of the information that had been requested.[14]

The record closed on November 28, 2019, after submission of post-hearing summations.[15, 16]

On December 17, 2020, participant district submitted additional documents. The DOE objected to the consideration of these documents, so they were excluded from the record.[17]

Witnesses for petitioners:

Dr. Ross Haber, a demographic consultant with a background in education, was qualified to testify as an expert in demographics. He has a doctorate in educational administration from Teachers College, Columbia University. He has conducted 300 studies in different districts regarding enrollment projections, redistricting, facility utilization, and transportation efficiency analysis. He is not an expert in finance, and has no background in accounting, finance, or statistics. He is not a certified government financial analyst.

Dr. Haber was retained by petitioners to provide an enrollment-projection report on public and non-public schools in Lakewood Township. For his report, he relied on certain DOE data and he used the cohort survival method of projections, including United States census projections, housing construction, and births to arrive at his conclusions.[18]

Dr. Haber's report included several tables of information. Table 1 was an enrollment comparison using data from the DOE, although he was not aware that non-public schools self-report enrollment information to the DOE and are not audited. Non-public school students may include students coming in from out of the district or out of state and may be counted without their parents paying taxes to the municipality.

Using the information obtained from the Application for State School Aid (ASSA) filed by the district, Dr. Haber examined school enrollment, school facilities, and student transportation. In 2011–2012, there were 25,006 school-age children, 5,229 in public school and 19,777 in non-public school.

In Haber's Table 2, he used the cohort survival method, which used the average number of students as they progress from grade to grade, and also used the migration ratio. The projections were reliable for five years. For kindergarten, he looked at live-births rates and used that data plus residential housing growth. Haber thought growth looked to be about 5,000 more students by 2021–2022.

Haber used Table 1 to predict Table 2. He said the information came from the DOE website although no sources were provided. Table 1 relied on public school ASSAs from the DOE website. He agreed that if the underlying data were not reliable, then his conclusions were not reliable. He built upon enrollment projections to predict aid, but he is not an expert in finance or State aid.

Table 2 was a comparison between public and non-public schools and was the template for Table 3, but no source was given for historical data.

Table 3 was a projection of public school students but did not include data from pre-kindergarten. Haber listed 38,841 non-public school students for 2018–2019, but his Table 4 said 33,841 non-public school students. He said this was because of a typographical error on Table 2.

New Jersey has over six hundred school districts, but no other school district has a disparity between the numbers of public school and non-public school students as Lakewood Township does. Lawrence and Hewlett, New York, also have large numbers of students attending sectarian schools, but those towns have no outnumbering of the public school students by those attending the sectarian schools.

Haber's reports project substantial change in the district. He did not report any possible sources of funding. He did not remember whether he considered that Lakewood Township had one of the lowest equalization rates. He did not consider that Lakewood Township has one of the lowest school-tax rates. He did not consider that voters could approve paying for non-public school transportation costs.

Table 5 showed a projected expense of $38 million for transportation in 2021–2022, up from $18 million in 2015–2016. This was an estimate based on transportation eligibility, as a percentage increase in enrollment would be commensurate with an increase in transportation expenses.

For school year 2017-2018, the adequacy budget to educate the public school students in Lakewood was $117,325,784. Tuition for enrolled public school students not actually going to the public schools, such as for special education, was $37,587,808. Transportation was $38,294,730, for a combined total of $75,882,538.

Haber said Table 5 transportation expenses could be reduced if the non-public schools were built closer to homes, or if bus routes were shared. With fewer children riding on buses the cost would be less. He did not consider things that did not exist, such as a bridge over Route 9. The tuition and transportation costs in Table 5 came from the Lakewood district and the user-friendly budget. His tuition numbers were off by $3 million for 2015–2016, and he agreed that his numbers did not match up. Two-thirds of the cost of special education should be included in tuition. He agreed it was possible he was double counting tuition and services, and that he had worked with petitioners' attorney while doing his analysis.

The tuition column in tables 5 and 6 showed $28,457,996, which correlated to school year 2015–2016, but the revised column was not the actual expense. The Table 5 history and projection of tuition contained an error, perhaps in typing, and a year was missing. While the Table 5 adequacy budget that was projected was an assumption, he did not detail his method of producing adequacy amounts or the source. He held adequacy flat through 2022, but it changed year to year as the state population changed.

Table 6 concerned the adequacy amount for tuition, transportation, and other required services such as occupational therapy (OT), physical therapy (PT), speech, and other related services. He carried over the numbers.

Haber's projections were based on trends for 2018–2019, 2019–2020, and 2020–2021. He applied a percentage of the increase to a weighted number. For example, if six children in class increased to ten, that might not mean one more bus, but 54 more children might mean another bus. He applied the growth to expenditures and economies of scale. The methodology was not explained. Haber also used residential-construction approvals in his calculations but did not include that. At some point, population growth should be capped because of space.

On Table 6, it was an error where his comment said Table 4, when he meant it should be Table 6. The tuition numbers did not match up. Adequacy and transportation matched to Table 5, but the tuition did not match the actual budget. Haber assumed that part of special education was included in the adequacy budget. Table 6 showed services such as OT, PT, and speech, but speech was entirely funded. Table 6 separated the costs for services from adequacy, but Haber did not know if this was included in funding.

Table 7 was extra aid available for public school students, but he did not include extra aid in his considerations. He did not know if the State provided technology aid or security aid.

The budget included equalization aid, which was $15 million in school year 2015–2016, special-education categorical aid, extraordinary aid, categorical security of $2 million in 2015–2016, Perkins grants, and other aid of $3 million in 2016–2017. The local-tax-levy contribution was not included, but it was $90 million in 2015–2016 and was one of the lowest in the state. He did not include federal aid available to the district under federal Titles II and III, or available under Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) aid.[19] The State provided preschool aid, Chapter 192 and 193 services, and nonpublic school textbook aid, nursing aid, vocational-technical aid and security aid.[20] Some services and tuition were included in the adequacy budget.

[19] Title II grants to the states provide funds for supplemental activities that strengthen the quality and effectiveness of teachers, principals, and other school leaders. The purpose of this is to provide low-income and minority students greater access to effective teachers, principals, and other school leaders. Title III funds help ensure that English Learners (ELs) attain English language proficiency and meet state academic standards.

In Table 8, his conclusions were that enrollment was growing, and that over the next five years, the number of non-public school students would increase. At the same time, the number of students in the public schools was growing, but not as fast. Ninety percent of public school students were in need; 88% were from non-English-speaking or partial-English-speaking homes. The percentage of special-education students in the Lakewood public school district is higher than the State average. Everyone agreed that there was a relationship between finances and education. Lakewood Township ranked 555 out of 564 communities in per-capita income.

In Table 9, the tuition costs did not match, and the transportation costs did not match. The projections for school year 2020–2021 were missing. The adequacy numbers did not match other tables and budget numbers. The most accurate year was 2015–2016. He came to his conclusions by taking the average from 2015–2016 and 2016–2017, but the number was wrong. And his conclusion was based on data that did not match historical data from Table 6. The total needed in Table 4 did not match Table 7's total needed. In certain areas the data did not match up or the data was missing, or no sources were cited.

A percentage of the district's budget is a loan from the State. Transportation and special-education expenses are $60 million in the budget, leaving only $80 million when the adequacy budget says that $117 million is necessary. The SFRA law never anticipated such a disparity with transportation and special-education expenses. The district cannot properly educate public school children over next five years; their needs cannot be met in Lakewood.

[20] Chapter 192 programs provide nonpublic school students with auxiliary services such as compensatory education, English as a second language, and home instruction. Chapter 193 programs provide nonpublic school students with remedial services such as evaluation and determination of eligibility for special education and related services, supplementary instruction, and speech-language services.

The law mandated that transportation was paid to and from school only for certain non-public school students, but not all. Non-public school students were not required to get transportation unless, from kindergarten to grade eight, they lived farther than two miles from the school, and in grades nine through twelve, farther than two and a half miles from the school. Students who lived closer were not entitled to transportation. Courtesy busing for those who lived closer than those distances was not required unless the Lakewood BOE decided to provide it.

Haber did not include in his report the $16 million that Lakewood received in Chapters 192 and 193 aid in 2015–2016. Haber's report did not mention Chapter 192–193 aid that Lakewood received every year. Lakewood Township's non-public school students received Title I aid for economically disadvantaged students from the federal government.[21] Haber did not mention IDEA funding in his report.

The State provided textbook aid for non-public school students. Haber did not know if the State provided other aid, such as nursing aid or home instruction.

The user-friendly budget matched up tuition and transportation, but some of the numbers did not match for 2016–2017. He was not sure if he omitted one year from his calculations and was not sure if he had the right draft.

Haber was not familiar with the DOE definition of adequacy as used in the Formula for Success (FFS). The FFS equalization is the adequacy budget minus what the township raises (local fair share), plus categorical aid, plus other aid and Chapter 192 and 193 funding. The adequacy budget is a theoretical concept of the cost estimate necessary to provide a T&E.

Haber did not know for certain whether tuition for public school students in out-of-district placements was included in the adequacy budget for public school students and said that this might represent a possible double counting of tuition. No sources were provided for the data he used for the tuition cost or transportation cost. Any projections could only be as accurate as the data used.

Haber made an assumption of enrollment increase, but not whether the adequacy budget would change. He did not consider the impact on the district if the Lakewood School Transportation Authority (LSTA)[22] program expired. He agreed that if the LSTA program were to expire, it would cost the district more money to transport students. He did not consider whether costs could be saved if Lakewood Township built a bridge over Route 9 so more students could safely walk to school and avoid a hazardous condition. Haber did not consider a raise in the school-tax levy, or whether busing children to schools closer to their homes, or whether a growing population would mean more equalization aid. If enrollment increased 10 percent, he assumed that expenditures would increase 10 percent and that the adequacy budget would go up based on enrollment, but this was not considered in his calculations.

The source of his historical transportation information was the Lakewood business office, which provided him with district summary forms. He had no idea whether they were accurate.

Haber could not predict how costs might change if the law changed. And the estimates were based on a formula that did not match up. He did not consider a bridge over Route 9 because it did not exist. Nothing showed that the private schools were located closer to where their students resided. Ninety-eight percent of students attending sectarian schools did so in certain sects and gender-specific schools.

He did not consider the factors on State aid, as he was only looking at how much it cost to educate children. He did not go to how the cost was derived. He did not consider revenue, just expenditures.

[22] The LSTA was created pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1d, which became effective in 2016. That law "establish[ed] a three-year nonpublic school pupil transportation pilot program" under which "a board of education of an eligible district [with more than 5,000 students attending a remote nonpublic school] shall disburse to [a] consortium [of nonpublic schools] an amount equal to the aid in-lieu-of transportation amount for each nonpublic school pupil who is attending a nonpublic school which is a part of the consortium and who is required to be transported by the eligible district pursuant to N.J.S.18A:39-1."

Haber considered factors not mentioned in his report and added what was needed. He concluded that Lakewood did not have the financial means to conduct a thorough and efficient education. He did not consider a public question about raising taxes or the ability of the people of Lakewood Township to raise taxes. He looked at the per-capita income of people employed and because Lakewood Township had a low employment rate, he assumed it had less ability to raise taxes, not that it might mean a large under-age population.

Haber looked at the growth of public school and non-public school students and saw how Lakewood Township is unique with non-public school students. He looked at income, growth, and a large transient population. He rejected some factors not included in his report, such as growth of population, racial/ethnic origins, the number of free- and reduced-lunch students, and the number of special-education students.

He was not able to consider the ability of the town to expand, as he did not know the master plan and had no way to determine it. He used some census data but had no federal data. He did not consider the effect that bringing the out-of-district special-education students back to the district would have; rather, he looked at the budget as a whole, and did not break it down.

Dr. Laura Winters has been the superintendent of Lakewood public schools since 2012.

In 2018, Lakewood had 6,092 enrolled public school students: one high school with grades nine to twelve; one middle school with grades six to eight; five elementary schools—two with kindergarten and first grade, and three with grades two through five; one preschool for special-education children ages three and four, and one for general-education students age four. The middle school has from twenty-eight to thirty-two students per class when it should be twenty-four. All schools operate at full capacity. The graduation rate is 75%, up from 69%, but the state average is 90.1%. The district is 8.1% Black and 86% Latino.

The district includes many students who have limited English proficiency (LEP) and require ESL (English as a second language) instruction, which is provided for forty minutes per day in the elementary and middle schools. For school year 2015–2016, there were 1,630 ESL students; for school year 2016–2017, there were 1,426 ESL students; and for school year 2017–2018, there were 1,538 ESL students (or about 25% of the student population).

For school year 2017–2018, 100% of the students received free or reduced lunch paid for by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Winters's role in the development of the district's budget was to provide educational input and to describe the programs or facilities that are needed for the students. In 2017 the district initially proposed an expansion of four classrooms and an addition to the cafeteria, but this was eliminated at the final budget.

For school year 2018–2019, the district budget process commenced in January with a projected budget that had a $17–20 million shortfall just to maintain what they had, with nothing new added. If the projected shortfall were not covered, they would have to cut teachers for the fourth year in a row. In 2017, they sent out 140 reduction-in-force letters and lost 78 teachers either to their resigning in anticipation of layoffs, or because they had found employment elsewhere.

In 2017-2018, the budget was down $14 million. The district asked for $10 million in aid and received $8.5 million in aid from the State. The State also deferred a $1.5 loan payment that was due. This contributed to the ability to rehire some teachers and to avoid some of the budget cuts.

The Township also contributed $1.1M to have a sports program which would have been lost in the budget ($557,000 for public school sports, $600,000 for non-public school students). The Township has indicated that no funds will be forthcoming for the 2018-2019 school year. Lakewood Township, not the district, pays for courtesy busing.

For school year 2016–2017, the district paid $32,766,776 for out-of-district placements for 400 students who were registered as students in the public schools.[23] This is projected to increase to approximately $36–38 million in 2017-2018. The child study team has determined that there is insufficient space in the district for all special-education students, so many out-of-district placements are necessary.

Each year, the district generally conducts 500–600 evaluations for entry into its preschool program. There are 500 kindergarten students. The district features an academically gifted program in elementary school and a guidance counselor is present in the middle and high schools.

The biggest challenge to the budget is that the district cannot hire new teachers, and teachers are resigning because morale is low. The teachers' union prepares for reductions in force (RIF's), and the children are worried about sports. The district has too much professional turnover. The district spends about $2.7 million per year in professional development. It trains new teachers and then they leave, especially the ones without tenure, and find employment elsewhere. During the last year the district had fifty-three first-year teachers, forty-eight second-year, and thirty-six third-year. The district is always behind because it has new teachers who are not high-impact teachers or highly effective teachers. The average teacher in the district has only four to five years of experience.

The district is making progress in test scores, although they are well below where they should be. Twenty-seven percent of students are meeting expectations, and 73% are not, although 24% are approaching expectations. Lakewood is below the state average, although the students and teachers are working hard. The district keeps getting loans and issuing RIF's and it has become a cycle. The students' homes are not stable, and the schools are not stable. Lakewood has no industrial-arts programs; wood shop and auto mechanics were given up years ago. The gym is beautiful but has been there forever.

[23] Counting these students, total district enrollment is 6,492 students. Approximately 30,000 more school-age children reside within the Lakewood district but attend non-public schools.

Pursuant to statute, the district must certify that its budget provides a thorough and efficient education. And she certified the budget. But no one could tell her what a thorough and efficient education was: she did not know if it was counselors, libraries, or educational curriculum and instruction. As for facilities, the BOE could put the issue to the voters by special questions to seek additional funding.

As for Partnership for Assessment of Readiness for College and Careers (PARCC) testing, Lakewood is trying to raise PARCC scores. They have seen slow and steady growth with incremental progress. They have met Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA)—the successor to No Child Left Behind—accountability in all targets but for absenteeism. ESSA facility accountability targets were met except for the middle school, which is overcrowded. Lakewood High School is considered a priority school because of its low test scores.

Graduation requirements are set in the regulations and require twenty credits in language arts, and fifteen in mathematics, algebra, and geometry. The district has all courses to meet graduation requirements for its students.

Lakewood has planned a response intervention reading program and career academics in high school (learning cohorts). The middle school has robotics, coding, horticulture, and journalism. It also has new technology classrooms and Apple TV. In foreign languages, only Spanish is taught in school, and that is what all students have chosen, but other languages could be taken online, although educationally it would be better to have a teacher in a classroom.

The library is open three days per week and a paraprofessional is in charge. The school provides remedial work and a homework club, and some advanced placement and honors classes in English, math, and Spanish.

For vocational-technical education the school has some in-house career programs and sends some students to the Ocean County Vocational Technical School (OCVTS) and career field. It is difficult to get into the OCVTS program, as it requires good grades and has a strict attendance policy. Some students do not want to leave the district high school. Lakewood does not have the money for its own vocational-technical program.

Lakewood offers graphic design and fashion through Perkins grants; the school has a culinary and TV classroom (Title I and MAC rooms[24]), recording arts and media and data entry, plus an ROTC program. Other offerings include computer classes; library skills; art and music; chorus; band; and orchestra. Title I was cut this year and some after-school programs were cut.

Lakewood's athletic director was cut; now they have a part-time athletic director who is not an employee of the district. The New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) says there should be a full-time athletic director and secretary, but both were cut from the budget.

Winters identified Lakewood's problem as not having enough highly qualified teachers, because of low salaries and high turnover.

Lakewood was always in need of Title I assistance. The high school was a priority school, but this year they received only $3 million in Title I funding, which paid for training, professional development, computers, reading, and materials.

The 2017 New Jersey Quality Single Accountability Continuum (NJQSAC) report showed that Lakewood passed in personnel and operations, and had less than 80% in instruction and programming, governance, and fiscal compliance. Instruction failed because it was based on the PARCC scores, which were low. Fiscal compliance failed because the budget has a deficit. The county reconfigured the budget and told them to apply for an equivalency waiver.

Robert Finger testified that he has been Lakewood's interim assistant business administrator since October 2017. He had previously been employed as business administrator and Board secretary in Lakewood from February 2008 to November 2010.

[24] Title I provides a grant for educational services for low income students, and MAC is a computer application that aids learning.

He worked for the DOE for fourteen years as an auditor, was county business administrator in Hudson and Essex counties, and served as tax auditor for the New York Department of Labor.

Finger left Lakewood in 2010 when there were no fiscal monitors in place and the audit showed a $5 million surplus. The fiscal monitor appointed by the State arrived in 2014.

Finger reviewed Lakewood's annual audits and budgets from 2013 to the present. Starting in 2013–2014, Lakewood was going into a deficit, which was then about $6.5 million. For 2016–2017, it was $4.3 million. For 2017–2018, Lakewood received a $8.6 million State aid advance. The hope is to spend less to bring down the deficit. He did not know if other districts received loans to meet their budgets.

As of December 31, 2017, Lakewood had more revenue than expenditures, but had the potential for another deficit. He looked at revenue and tuition and went through special-education and out-of-district costs. In some cases, students had not been accurately counted, and there were more than appeared enrolled.

The DOE relies on information received from the districts and reconciles this with the actual student count. Each year, the DOE issues bills to the districts for the estimated tuitions that the boards of education paid as tuition. Sometimes deficiencies showed up later and then the district would get re-billed. Lakewood received re-bills for 2016–2017 of almost $2 million, for which Lakewood must reimburse the state within two years.

Finger reviewed the 2017–2018 school year budget. He noted that the budget includes "undistributed expenses" which are, for the most part, expenses paid for public school students who go to special-education out-of-district placements, and for support services. When the budget was done for 2017–2018, Lakewood needed a $8.6 million advance State aid payment, plus $1.6 million from Lakewood Township toward sports and courtesy busing and related services. He did not know if Lakewood Township had a budget surplus.

For transportation, Lakewood gives the State the mandated amount for the LSTA program, and if the cost of transportation is less, the district pays $1,000 per student as aid in lieu for each student bused by the LSTA. The LSTA program will be reviewed in 2019, as he thinks it should.

For 2017–2018, Lakewood budgeted $20.2 million for the LSTA program. Enrollment in October 2017 was 6,090 on the public school rolls, plus another 361 who had been placed in private schools, 17 sent elsewhere, 173 received from elsewhere, and 6 in State facilities, for a total of approximately 6,600 students in the public school system. The general-fund operating expenses for 2017–2018 was $143,455,116; $27,600,000 was for transportation, with $20.2 million going to the LSTA. Lakewood pays for special-education services even for those who are sent out of district. The budget showed $31,963,753 for special-education expenses, but that might not have included some extraordinary services.

The budget process starts in mid-March when the proposed budget is advertised; in April-May, they have hearings; and if the budget is approved, it becomes final.

Lakewood Township has approximately 37,000 children who attend school; 6,000 are in the public schools, and the rest are not. The financial situation in the Lakewood public school district is unsustainable due to these unique demographics. It is a 6,000-to-30,000 disparity. In Teaneck it was 4,200 public to 2,200 non-public. Lakewood Township has five times the number of students in non-public schools as in public schools. This has a major effect on transportation, as the district pays $1,000 for each bused child.

Finger compared Lakewood to nearby school districts located in Freehold Borough, Jackson Township, Toms River Township, and Brick Township. Looking at these four, the cost of transportation and tuition for out-of-district students averaged about 4–7% of the budget. In Teaneck, with many students attending sectarian schools, it was 9%. Special education tuition and transportation could be 8–14% of the budget, but in Lakewood it was 38%, and the projected amount for 2018-2019 is 40%. These expenses—transportation for public school and non-public school transportation, tuition for out-of-district placements for special-education placements—are mandated by the State.

This is unsustainable, because next year tuition is going to increase $7–8 million, plus another $3–4 million for transportation. Districts are permitted a 2% tax-rate increase, and for Lakewood 2% is about $2 million. For 2018-2019, without tax increases and more revenue, $17–23 million in additional funds would be needed without full funding of the SFRA or in extraordinary aid. This does not even include raises for district teachers or the $2.2 million the DOE has deferred for paying back previous loans, so there could be a $19–25 million shortfall. Even if the SFRA were fully funded according to the formula for public school students, the district would still be underfunded for its expenses.

Finger analyzed the cost of special education and transportation costs. About 35–36% of the budget is for special-education costs. For 2016–2017, the operating budget included $52 million for special education. The total in 2017–2018 was $52,438,739, and for 2018–2019 it was $58,622,034. Additional students are coming into Lakewood Township constantly, sometimes three per day, or fifteen to twenty per week.

The transportation aid received for school year 2017–2018 was $4,199,793. This was calculated by the State based on 2,336 public school students, 730 special-education students, and 19,174 non-public school students, for a total of 22,240 students. Mandated non-public school transportation is $1,000 per student. In 2017–2018, $28.7 million was spent on transportation. The State reimburses about $10 million per year for transportation, so the transportation budget is about $18 million.

For 2017–2018, the combined cost of transportation and special education was $49.4 million plus $28 million, for a total of $78 million out of the total budget of $144 million. More than 52% of the district's budget goes for special education and transportation. For 2018–2019, the projected costs for special education and transportation are a total of $88 million.

Every year Lakewood Township is adding 2,500–3,000 non-public school students who are eligible for transportation. He hopes the monitors are aware of these expenses. Next year's deficit is projected at $17–23 million. The district is trimming at the edges to get the numbers down. This budget goes up about 10% per year. The anticipated 2017–2018 budget showed that tuition and transportation had gone up.

The district has a revenue problem. The State-aid funding formula works well for 99% of the state. It does not work for Lakewood because the district cannot contribute to its adequacy budget because wealth and ratables are taken into account when calculating aid. The district gets some equalization aid. Lakewood has a base of 36,000 students, where one-sixth of the students are in public school and five-sixths are not. The tax levy is not determined just by the 6,000 attending the public schools, but by Lakewood Township's population and ratables. There is a bigger pot of money in Lakewood Township. The tax levy generated $96.9 million this year based on property taxes.

Finger was not aware that Lakewood Township's school tax rate was one of the lowest in the state based on equalization value and reassessment. The Lakewood BOE set the tax rate within a 2% levy cap. Although revenue is restricted to the 2% hard cap, a legislative determination, Lakewood Township voters could exceed the cap if they wanted to pay for things such as transportation costs as long as the money was not for mandated expenses. In 2016 voters rejected a proposal to exceed the tax cap to cover courtesy busing. If busing is provided for public school students, then it must be provided for those attending non-public schools. The budget does not pay for courtesy busing.

Until now, the State has deferred payback of advance aid, but David Shafter, a State monitor, told him Lakewood will have to pay back $2.8 million in 2018–2019, and the State has been recouping it since September.

In projecting the 2018–2019 budget, Finger understood that the LSTA would still be in place, but it would be up to the Commissioner to continue it and to include it in the budget.

The count from the District Report of Transported Resident Students (DRTRS) was 19,174 students effective October 15, 2016. If there were more students, the district would receive more transportation aid.

The district received $4.2 million in transportation categorical aid and was reimbursed that year for mandatory expenses: the State reimburses $290 to get to $1,000 per student. Basically, the district pays the first $710 per student and the State picks up the next $290. If the LSTA were abolished, he did not know if the district would be able to run buses for less than $710 per student, because it would depend on who provided the buses, the bids, etc.

If Lakewood is receiving less money because the State is taking money back from the loans, cash flow will suffer. There is a line on the budget for all revenue from all sources, including DOE State-aid advances. They work with the state monitors and would be seeking $17–20 million in aid for the next school year.

Malka Spitz-Stein is the supervisor of STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math) for Lakewood and she oversees Sections 192 and 193 grants. She entered the district in 2007 and has been in Lakewood for ten years. Before that, she was a teacher in Long Branch for seven-and-a-half years. She supervises seven schools in the district as curriculum supervisor of math and science to make sure the curriculum is implemented correctly in class.

Spitz-Stein works on curriculum; writes lessons; gives professional development; and visits classrooms and gives feedback. Some districts have superintendents for grades six to twelve, but Lakewood has had no assistant superintendent in this area since it eliminated the position five or six years ago. Spitz-Stein is involved in the hiring process for science and math teachers and in the evaluation of teachers. After teaching, the focus is on the curriculum and strategies. As teachers progress, they are trained.

A tenured teacher is rated. More experienced teachers are better for students. It takes about four years to have actual professional development and to be able to implement a program. At the five-year mark, a teacher gets to know students and understand them.

In the high-school mathematics department, four teachers out of thirteen are tenured. Sixty percent of high-school math teachers are non-tenured. Teachers who are non-tenured have less experience; they need training; they do not yet have methods to reach individual students. Teachers need to differentiate with their students.

This year there were three first-year teachers (new) due to turnover in the math department; two second-year teachers; and three teachers who are nearing four years of experience.

Spitz-Stein has concerns about holding on to teachers. If teachers are not confident that they will have a job at the end of the year, it leads to teacher instability and the school is not stable. The median teacher salary is $52,046. When teachers leave Lakewood, they are receiving salary increases of $10,000–15,000 per year.

Lakewood has had twenty new hires in math since 2011. Teachers new to the district have been certified by the DOE and could have experience in other districts. Only two teachers have received tenure since 2011, and two already had it. Lakewood complies with New Jersey tenure law: in 2015-2016, only 2 out of 396 teachers were rated not effective, and in 2014–2015, only 2 out of 304.

In the spring of 2017, only 7% of high-school students were tested as proficient in math, and students are in need of teachers to get them to learn algebra 1. In the sixth and seventh grades, there are twenty to thirty students in math and science classes.

PARCC target benchmarks showed that in math, at the sixth-grade level, 12–13% of the students were proficient; at the seventh-grade level, 14%; and at the eighth-grade level, under 20%. Twelfth grade proficiency was under 10%. The high school did not meet its target level, but the elementary school did.

Statewide PARCC results were 54% for elementary students and 23% for high-school students. In Lakewood, elementary grades three to five showed that 20–25% met their target, as compared to statewide, where in the same grades, 47% did. Judging from the PARCC results, the students are not on grade, although performance improved in school years 2015–2016 and 2016–2017. Grades three to five showed significant improvement in math.

The State sets the target; the district did not reach a target in math for middle school. Students in science and math are not on grade level. Based on scores from the State, math is showing a downward trajectory; they need to make sure that elementary students have their needs met and that these projections are addressed.

Five or six years ago Lakewood had more than twenty interventionists who would provide services (four were for math but the math ones were eliminated). It would help students to have them back. English/language arts teachers were also cut. Readiness is a computerized intervention program that was used last year and was reliable.

In technology and English, students have computers to use from elementary school. In middle school, one quarter of students are enrolled in robotics, which is paid for by Title I. Success in high-school algebra is a predictor of graduation, but students in algebra 1 are not on grade level.

Teaching in kindergarten through grade 12 is based on the State Learning Standards. She writes curriculum and lessons consistent with State standards. Teachers never receive education in these standards, so they need to learn on the job. At Stage 1 for the PARCC, standards are addressed for the children's level; at Stage 2, they are rolled out to teachers who were trained on what to say and how to get kids to use generalized knowledge; and at Stage 3, classes are observed and teachers receive feedback. Stage 3 is the most critical, as everything must be done at grade level and get implemented. At elementary school, every teacher must be observed for any needed follow-up and feedback. They want proficiency in every child, and Lakewood was performing well below standard.

Marcy Marshall testified that she is in her fifth year as principal of Lakewood High School. She entered the district in 1996, and worked as assistant principal, director of guidance, counselor, and teacher. She has two master's degrees in administration and education. The student population of the Lakewood public schools is 85% Latino, and less than 5% Caucasian; the rest are African-American. One hundred percent of the student body receives free or reduced lunch.

The high school has lost programs in the past eight years, including auto mechanics, graphic arts, and metal shop. The rooms were repurposed for other uses, and BOE offices are now located there. They now have culinary, photography, and fashion design, among other programs, funded by Perkins grants. Federal funding in 2016–2017 was $1.5M; for 2017–2018, it was $183,000. As a consequence of the financial loss, teachers' stipends and programs were cut; after-school programs were affected; twilight academy (a program from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. with math consultants) and college visits were cut.

School starts at 7:00 a.m. for the 1,200 students in the high school (350 freshmen, 320 sophomores, 280 juniors, and 220 seniors). (Prior to the 2016–17 school year, school started at 7:15 a.m.) It is early, and it is a problem. Many students have jobs after school, and when they start school early, their attendance is affected; they have chronic attendance problems because of their jobs. The buses come at 6:15 a.m. Some students come to school late. The school has eight security guards plus metal detectors. Incidents of violence are mostly fighting. The high school building dates from the 1970's.

The State graduation rate is around 90%; the rate has slowly been rising in Lakewood from 74.8% to 75.4%. The dropout rate was about 4%, although some students drop out and then return. Ten to 12% of the students go to a four-year college and 40% go to a two-year college.

The school has successful athletic programs and about 400 student athletes. In the fall, they have volleyball, football, field hockey, and tennis; in the winter, bowling, basketball, and track; and in the spring, softball, baseball, track, and tennis. Lakewood Township, not the BOE, funded athletics this year. Before this it was in the school budget and comparable to what is being presently offered. The school has full-time coaches who are teachers who coach after school, and a part-time trainer. The athletic director is a teacher of physical education and health who receives a stipend as the athletic director. Prior to this, the school had a full-time athletic director and trainer who were part of the budget. The athletic program is important for students, as it provides a safe place after the school day ends. Athletics gives them a sense of family and something to do.

For foreign languages, Spanish is funded by the district. When Marshall started, German was taught, and many years ago, they had French.

Marshall reviewed the New Jersey School Performance Report for school year 2016–2017, which is put out by the State in October or November. The data comes from the reporting districts and the schools and includes the graduation rate, absenteeism, and shared instructional time.

About 120 students at most went to the vocational-technical school during junior and senior years. There is a charge to Lakewood for this that is paid from the district budget.

Most teachers started right out of college, but each one is certified by the DOE and qualified by the BOE. For school year 2017–2018, the high school had eighty-four teachers, of whom approximately thirty to forty were non-tenured. (Nine were first-year teachers, ten were second-year, and fifteen to twenty were third-year.) Fourteen teachers left last year, some tenured and some not, for stability and better pay. This year seventy teachers stayed. Lakewood is one of the lowest-paid districts in the county. Monmouth County pays higher salaries. Teacher retention is a problem, as teachers want stability in their careers.

Marshall spends her summer trying to find experienced teachers, but mostly she gets new ones, which negatively affects the students, who need consistency and stability. Teachers must be rated in the evaluation system used by the State, and Lakewood is in compliance. In school year 2015–2016, only two were rated as non-effective.

The district has four curriculum supervisors: STEM, ELA (English Language Acquisition) & social studies; ELL (English Language Learner) and ESL; and special education. When she started there were more, and the areas of supervision were very content specific. When these positions were lost, the impact was apparent, as she could see the difference because she did not know specific content. She can tell good teaching, but it helps to know content. They do not always have a content specialist to do the review. The STEM supervisor will observe the non-tenured teachers.

In 2007, there were one or two assistant superintendents who helped with curriculum and instruction; now there are none.

Seventy-five percent of the student body comes from non-English-speaking families; less than 15% are non-English speakers. ESL has one teacher, and the district funds a newcomer program for twenty students.

Every other district has remediation and intervention specialists where students get extra support, but Lakewood does not have this program. They do have a class for remedial math in ninth grade. Lakewood is struggling with attendance, language, and test scores.

Lakewood has twelve to thirteen special-education teachers who teach eighty to eighty-five students with IEP's, for in-class support and resource pull-out, but they do not have teachers in all areas of specialization. There are about seven students to a teacher. They have in-class support for language arts (LA), and resource pull-out in math and LA (every grade), and for science and social studies (ninth and tenth grades). They need extra teachers. If a student is classified in LA, they need support in other classes. But funding is why they do not have them.

PARCC scores were improving. Lakewood High School applied for an equivalency review for its PARCC assessment scores in its next improvement plan and has been identified as a priority school. Other than chronic absenteeism, it has met its ESSA accountability goals.

Perkins grants are provided for vocational-technical education. Lakewood does not have an in-house vocational program, but Jackson does, and Toms River will open a career center in September. The high school offers two art classes, TV production, MAC labs, media center, photography, and recording arts.

Lakewood offers courses in all requirements for graduation: twenty English courses; fifteen math, geometry, algebra, and pre-calculus courses plus advanced placement (AP) courses (eleven students); fifteen science, chemistry, physics, AP physics 1 (twenty-five to thirty students) and AP physics 2 (nine to ten students) courses; and fifteen social studies, United States and world history, and AP United States history (fifteen to twenty students) courses. The high school also offers financial and entrepreneurial skills; online language; Spanish; AP English language and composition; AP English literature (thirty to fifty students); AP Spanish (ten to twelve students); New Careers academy program; STEM, business, 2 pathways; Oceans 1 and 2—marine studies; horticultural and greenhouse; music, film, and performance ensembles; and band, choir, and orchestra. No student is presently taking an online program offered by and paid for by the district. The BOE pays for choir and music programs, and art classes. Students have a fine-arts requirement for graduation, and the foundation class is the one that most students take.

In the AP courses, students received grades of 3's and below; none passed the AP physics course. For AP college credit, colleges require grades of 4 or 5. One student received a 4 or 5 in AP Spanish, and one did well in AP physics.

Danielle Farrie, Ph.D., has been the research director for nine years at the Education Law Center (ELC) and works to enforce the rights of public school students. She is responsible for data analysis. Dr. Farrie has a doctorate in sociology from Temple University. She did analysis for the New Jersey Supreme Court in Abbott XXI, for the 2011 fiscal year, about the impact of the budget on students, and her report was accepted by the Court. She prepared a report at the request of the petitioners. She has never been to Lakewood Township.

The ELC prepares a school funding report annually. Dr. Farrie does research and writing on school funding and has worked with Professor Baker on school funding and educational outcomes. She worked with another author on a book chapter tackling school-funding equity around the country; her chapter was "From Rodriguez to Abbott." She wrote about the SFRA and Abbott. A separate report identified disadvantaged students in markets. A 2016 report discussed school funding, from resources to educational outcomes.

Dr. Farrie holds no degree in accounting or public funding, and she is a researcher, not an educator or a business administrator. Her dissertation was on school choice and economic segregation. She previously worked in the Institute for Public Affairs which does not deal with financing. She began working on school funding when she started work at the ELC. She has no experience in developing educational policy or implementing policy. She does not do professional analysis and does not put together a school budget.

She has testified in court before and was accepted as an expert in educational funding.

Dr. Farrie is familiar with the SFRA standards, which are linked to a weighted formula. The SFRA determines the level of funding to provide students an educational curriculum. It is the base cost for regular education plus additional funding for special education, at-risk students, and poor students. The funding level is divided into the local share and the State share (called equalization aid). The adequacy budget is the local fair share and the State equalization aid. The adequacy budget is supplemented by categorical aid paid by the State to cover the costs of transportation, security, and special education.

For special education, the SFRA pays one-third of the cost through categorical aid, and two-thirds as equalization aid. The local fair share is based half on income and half on the equalization of property values in the district.

Dr. Farrie studied Lakewood's school funding through the State aid notice. The base amount per pupil is $11,042 and is the same for all students. Those at-risk students receive the base plus 57% more. There is also a geographic cost adjustment.

The SFRA uses a census-based formula; it assumes an average classification rate for special education of 14.92%, and Lakewood is funded as if it had an average classification rate. If the district has a greater percentage of special-education students, then the district is underfunded. Speech is funded separately from special education; the state average is 1.63%.

Dr. Farrie was not sure how the average classification rate was calculated. If the average were determined by the district, then Lakewood would be higher.

The State calculates how much a district needs to raise as local revenue to meet its adequacy budget. The local fair share is how much residents are willing to pay to fund the local schools. Equalization aid is adequacy budget minus local fair share.

Special education is paid at one-third categorical aid and two-thirds from the local fair share. For security aid, low-income districts receive more. Transportation is also paid as categorical aid. It is based on population and non-public school students, plus aid in lieu based on enrollment in the district and the length of bus routes.

SFRA funding was phased in as State aid for one year; it was reduced in the second year, was cut in the third year, and has been flat-funded since. Most districts have not received SFRA aid.

CAP adequacy is defined as the adequacy budget plus other categorical expenses.

Titles I, II, and III funding do not have any bearing on SFRA, and SFRA does not include federal funding or non-public funding. The SFRA was declared constitutional. However, Lakewood Township is unique, as its public school population is not reflective of the school-age population. The majority of Lakewood Township's students attend non-public school.

For special education, a similar demographic is present. The adequacy budget is based on district enrollment and special education is funded on a percentage basis. Lakewood is different because special education and transportation are mandated costs for the district. Classified students receive services through IEP's. There are three reasons behind Lakewood's higher special-education costs: a large population of special-education students; a large number of students with the highest cost of disabilities; and higher-than-average out-of-district placements, which are more expensive.

The special-education student population differs from the general-education population. The comparison is to the school-age population with race and age, as compared to special education. White students are more likely to be classified, which suggests that some white students opt into the public school setting in order to get special-education services.

Lakewood's classification rate is above the state average, but those decisions are made by the school district. Some districts are even higher than Lakewood because the statewide 14.92% classification rate is an average. She did not remember if the district provided mandated special-education services, nor was she familiar with the State funding them through Sections 192 and 193.

The State rate is based on the average number of classified students, an average number of high-cost disabilities, and the average cost of school. Lakewood places more students in private placements, so its special-education costs are higher.

Transportation gets paid per pupil. Lakewood's transportation costs exceed what the formula provides for the district. Lakewood had a pilot program for transportation, the LSTA, but funding did not capture the total cost.

New Jersey has one of the best educational funding systems in the United States. It is a state with high funding for low-income districts. The New Jersey is fair and is second in the nation in school funding. Her report was a State report, not a local one.

The SFRA is a national model of school funding, but Lakewood is an extreme case; this has caused constant fiscal distress, with transportation and special education eating up the budget, so the money must be taken from other areas. The decline in academic performance correlates with it. The district is academically performing in the lowest 5% of all districts across the state in nearly every tested area, a significant decline in relative performance. The SFRA does not dictate how money should be spent, but some costs are mandated, such as special education and transportation. These two areas get their funds first and the rest of the budget has to support all other education expenses. Lakewood spends far less on regular education than the formula suggests is adequate. Compared to districts with 3,500 children or more, Lakewood spends about 50% less than other districts in classroom-instruction costs.

Changes are necessary in the funding structure: it must take into account that the Lakewood school population is not reflective of the number of students who live in the district and attend non-public schools. The funding is not adequate for Lakewood, especially in special-education costs. Lakewood spends about $40 million more than a district its size should spend due to special-education and transportation costs.

Based on Dr. Farrie's analysis, the State does not pay enough because it is per-pupil aid in theory, but not in practice. The district received $4.5 million in 2017 for extraordinary aid for special education, and received $4.1 million in 2016, and $3.1 million in 2015. It was 2.4% of the State's extraordinary aid in 2016, and 1.9% in 2015.

New Jersey has 1.4 million public school children. Lakewood has 6,000, representing one-half of 1% of the state population, but the district received 2.4% of State extraordinary aid for special-education students. Dr. Farrie believes special-education aid should be based on the percentage of children in special education. Students placed in out-of-district placements are enrolled in the public school system. These students are counted for equalization aid, categorical aid, special-education aid, and extraordinary aid. When she said Lakewood was underfunded, she considered extraordinary aid.

The SFRA provides for transportation per pupil, which is mandated under the SFRA based on distance from school. The formula provides the same amount, but the district does not spend that amount. Lakewood was forced to pay for transportation for non-public school students, money that it could be spending on public school students. She was not familiar with Lakewood spending money on public school transportation. She was not familiar with the Bacon cases in particular. Lakewood had been spending too much on courtesy busing and non-public school transportation. Dr. Farrie stated that Lakewood's transportation cost exceeded the State formula, but it was contingent on local funding and that was included in the adequacy budget.

She had no idea if Lakewood could raise additional funds. The State does not restrict local fundraising, but there is a 2% annual cap on how much the municipality can raise through taxes, and so it has limited ability to raise funds. She was not familiar with whether Lakewood Township had attempted to raise funds through special questions on the ballot.

Dr. Farrie's report stopped analyzing scores in 2014; she did not dispute that PARCC scores were improving, but it would not have affected her opinion.

Dr. Farrie concluded that the SFRA cannot address Lakewood's conditions, and that changes to the SFRA formula were necessary to ensure that Lakewood Township's public school students received a thorough and efficient education. Changes were needed to the SFRA as it functions in Lakewood. Working to reduce out-of-district special-education placements would help address Lakewood's budget, although she wants students in their proper placements. Working to make the walk to school safer in the Township might save some costs of hazardous-route busing.

She believed that the Lakewood school district was an outlier, although she had not studied other districts in detail.

David Shafter is a state monitor in Lakewood. He has a bachelor's degree and a master's degree in accounting; he is a certified public accountant and a certified school business administrator. He later worked in Willingboro, New Jersey; he then became a state monitor in Beverly, New Jersey. He has also worked in Camden for two years as interim business administrator, then worked in fiscal compliance.

Shafter is employed by the DOE to go into distressed school districts to monitor them. He has worked in Lakewood since 2014 as a fiscal monitor with Michael Azzara, who arrived there first. Shafter reports to Glenn Forney in the DOE, who is responsible for all state monitors.

The State uses NJQSAC evaluations of school districts for determining performance and to see if a district is below level. Lakewood is in a deficit.

As a state monitor in Lakewood, Shafter attends board meetings, and is involved in finances, budgets, purchasing, and grants. He approved the school year 2016–2017 and 2017–2018 budgets, prepared with the assistance of an able business administrator. At the time of this hearing, the 2018–2019 budget was being worked on with the business administrator.

When Shafter was first placed in Lakewood in the fall of 2014, there were concerns with record keeping and finances. There had been poor record keeping and there were issues with purchase orders. Financial records were not accurate, and the budget was about 50% accurate. There was a lack of purchase orders for out-of-district placements. Monthly records were not closed timely and ran three to four months behind. On other purchase orders, when a line item was at its limit, items were charged elsewhere. Lines were over-encumbered, and a report would show negatives. The records could not be relied upon; the position-control roster was not reconciled with the names of staff. This presented problems for tracking expenditures.

Corrections to the budget started during the 2015–2016 school year, and this affected planning. The budget was then 90–95% accurate, as it was corrected by 2016–2017 with correct purchase orders and funds allocated for anticipated expenses. He has not discovered any expenditures that were not legitimate. Over $1 million in extraordinary aid was found and corrected.

When he first arrived, the Comprehensive Annual Financial Report (CAFR) findings showed the numbers were off. Ideally, what is wanted are no findings in the CAFR. Having twenty-three to twenty-four findings in a CAFR is a high number. Since he has been the monitor, the number of CAFRs has gone down. This year it was reduced to eight, which was a definite improvement. The issues he identified have been improved.

Also, when he first arrived, some special-education students had not been counted correctly, and some students placed in-district had not been included as special education students. Some students had been eligible for additional financial aid but as no application had been made for financial assistance for them, money had been left on the table. That problem was also corrected.

Also, when he first arrived, Lakewood provided courtesy busing, but that has now stopped. Now Lakewood provides non-public school busing through the LSTA. The District pays a per-pupil amount of $1,000 per year. Prior to formation of the LSTA, the cost per pupil was $650. The cost has gone up under the LSTA for two reasons: the actual cost increased from $650 to $710 in the first year, and the number of students being transported increased.

The first budget he worked on was for school year 2015–2016 and was extremely responsible. No deficit was apparent at first, but in October/November, they realized there would be a deficit for the rest of the year concerning transportation. Bids went out and were supposed to save money, but they did not.

The referendum to fund courtesy busing had been defeated and the DOE directed Lakewood to continue it. The State advanced $4.5 million in aid for this. It would have been dangerous to stop busing for the children because of traffic and some hazardous routes, so that was the reason to cover the transportation deficit.

For the 2016–2017 budget, they realized they had a deficit, and that for the first time there would be layoffs. The budget was $5 million short, so the State loaned Lakewood $5.4 million to avoid layoffs and increases in class size. Without the loan, teachers would have been released. Courtesy busing was eliminated.

Lakewood was short of funds because of increases in the costs of programs, the 2% tax cap, and mandated costs for special-education placements. Transportation costs increased for the LSTA. Those costs had been less than the cost assigned to the LSTA and was more than tax increases could sustain. The budget was cut as much as possible, an assistant principal was let go, and anything that could be taken from the budget was done, such as leasing textbooks. Leased/purchased buses brought some transportation into the district.

Transportation for 2016–2017 was very efficient, and the budget was approved by the monitor. They started tiering (starting school at different times) and filling the buses. Lakewood High School started at 6:45 a.m. and provided breakfast before school; 7:45 was the second tier, and 8:30 was the third.

The 2017–2018 budget was never passed. It was approved by the monitor in May/June (usually submitted in March and approved by May). The budget was not approved by the Board because "it did not provide the services they wanted."

The 2017–2018 budget had some deficit, but by March the deficit was $13.5 million. After the budget was approved, the superintendent did not recommend the budget and the first draft was not approved. (It included cuts to guidance, cutting 80–100 teachers, and cutting the library, extracurriculars, and athletics.) Class size would be in the thirties in elementary school, and in the forties in the middle school. The budget was finally adopted after negotiations with the DOE, with $11 million cut and $2 million for paybacks of previous loans waived for one year. Some cuts remained, some athletics were cut, some co-curricular activities were cut, and some other reductions were made in non-public school-related services. After the State's loan of $8.5 million, the budget was acceptable in its bare-bones form.

The district cannot cut any more from special education or transportation, so cuts come from regular education and administration. New Jersey has been a model for class size. The average in grades K–1 is twenty-one students; in grades 2–8, twenty-two students; and in grades 9–12, twenty-three students. But in Lakewood, it is twenty-four to twenty-five in grades K–1, and twenty-eight to twenty-nine in grades 2–8. The effect is an increase in class size, and this affects education, administration, libraries, media, etc. They do not want to cut security.

Lakewood does not have a spending problem; it has a revenue problem. Shafter goes over the budget carefully; he makes sure the budget is correct; he looks at projections. He believes that on the expense side, the budget is not an issue.

Some special-education classes have been opened in Lakewood, with additional classes for special education and pre-school disabled. In 2018-2019 the pre-school-disabled class will be expanded, and it is in the budget. Instead of spending for out-of-district schools, keeping students in the district (first graders) will save money. That program started this year. Beyond first grade, the district looks for least restrictive environment. It is hard to bring students back from previous out-of-district placements. By the district starting programs for younger students, a long-term solution is provided.

Comparing Lakewood to Abbott districts, Shafter noted that he had previously worked in Trenton and Camden. Camden is urban and Lakewood is not considered urban. Camden has a large public school population and a smaller non-public school population. Camden had no problem matching expenditures to revenue—it was easy to balance its budget. One hundred percent of both Lakewood and Camden school students are entitled to free breakfast and lunch.

Lakewood has a unique situation in its student population. Usually the number of public school students in any district is greater than the number of non-public school students. For example, Camden has 13,000 public school students, but only a small percentage of students attend non-public schools. East Windsor has the same situation. But in Lakewood there are 6,000 public school students and 30,000 non-public school students.

The challenge is that when taxes were raised, they covered public schools and State aid was increased. But now, in Lakewood Township, the number of public school students stays about the same, while the non-public school student population goes up about 10% per year. This affects the budget in transportation, because Lakewood has to pay the LSTA $1,000 per student per year, which actually comes to about $710 per student after State aid is factored in. Usually taxes and State aid are sufficient for most communities to cover this expense, but in Lakewood, even with categorical aid and equalization aid, it is not enough because the equalization aid and the categorical aid are frozen. It is not enough because increased taxes do not cover the costs.

In 2016–2017, an additional 2,000 non-public school students needed transportation. The number for 2017–2108 was not then known. Out of the increased number of children living in the district, some will enroll in public school and need placement and transportation. There are over 100 non-public schools in Lakewood that are not calculated into categorical aid.

For 2017–2018, Lakewood received a $8.522 million loan. Two million dollars was for deferred repayment. One million dollars was received from the Township to pay for athletics.

The budget for 2018–2019 was then in preliminary stages and showed a potential deficit of $17 to $23 million. If nothing changed from the 2017–2018 budget, and no salary increases were included, plus $3.2 million to be paid for increased benefits, plus $5.9 for out-of-district tuition, plus $2.283 million for transportation, plus charter-school costs of $728,000, the total projected deficit was $23,290,988. The district already owes the State DOE $8.5 million, plus $4.5 million, plus $5 million, for a total of $18 million. Loans given by the State must be paid back within ten years, and a state monitor must be in the district as long as the debt is outstanding.

On February 5, 2018, a letter was sent to the acting Commissioner indicating that Lakewood did not want to fire teachers. The monitor has the power to fire teachers, and it is part of his role, if necessary. The budget must be completed by the end of March, and the district has two options: to leave the budget unbalanced and to write to the DOE for more assistance, or to reduce the budget line by line the way they did the previous year. As for the first option, they can ask the State for more aid to balance the budget. The DOE refers the budget to the county business administrator, who reviews it. By law, the budget must be balanced. In 2017, he made suggestions. The letters for a reduction in force went out. There is time yet to resolve issues, so those letters may be sent and retracted later. He had no opinion yet of what he would do for school year 2018–2019. Each year stands on its own.

The local fair share in SFRA is broken down into two categories by weighted enrollment. The cost factor is how much it costs to educate each student. The adequacy budget is the local fair share without equalization value times a percentage of gross income. State aid is supposed to make up the difference. Adequacy has nothing to do with local fair share. All educational aid is controlled by the Legislature. Categorical aid is frozen; it is set by the Legislature's annual appropriation budget. The amount of equalization aid, the 2% tax cap, and the LSTA are all controlled by the Legislature. Lakewood Township has no ability to raise taxes and is at the 2% cap. One special question on the ballot to raise taxes failed by a huge margin.

Shafter has not spoken with Lakewood Township about contribution to the school budget. One thousand dollars is the State-aid amount in lieu paid to parents of non-public students not transported. A bid is rejected if it costs more. The $1,000 is calculated with the first $710 from the local district; the amount from $884 to 1,000 comes from the State.

Courtesy busing for students in K–8 is one-half to 2 miles and for grades 9–12 it is one-half to 2.5 miles. Courtesy busing now costs Lakewood Township $1.3–1.5 million per year, but if it were eliminated, there was no guarantee that Lakewood Township would provide the funds to the Lakewood public schools. Courtesy busing could be reduced if sidewalks were added, crossing guards were increased, and hazardous routes were reduced. In summer 2016, a Lakewood consultant met with officials to plan to increase sidewalks, and there was some discussion about this.

The budget is very tight and has no room for cutting. Lakewood needs increases in revenue, either increases in State aid to full funding or increases in taxes. Lakewood Township could use its surplus, or a formula so that some portion of those non-public school students could be counted in the adequacy budget.

If Shafter had more money, he would balance the budget: he would pay for the transportation, health insurance, and charter school expenses that are required.[25] He would fund new facilities for Lakewood, especially for the middle school, so that special education could be offered in-district which would save the district money. Class size could be reduced, and languages could be offered. More money might be needed in the beginning, but savings would be afforded over time.

Michael Azzara started working for the DOE in 1978 and is the leading New Jersey state monitor. There are about ten monitors in the State. He was appointed by the Commissioner to be the state monitor for Lakewood, where he served for four years prior to April 2018. He oversees finances in the district and reports to the Commissioner through Glenn Forney.

He has forty years of experience in education and was the director of fiscal policy in Paterson, a state-operated school district, as an assistant superintendent. Previously he worked in Jersey City, Camden, and Newark. All were state-operated school districts. He has a bachelor's degree in business, and a master's degree in education.

Lakewood has a revenue problem, not a spending problem. They have made every reduction possible to maintain education. The budget is what is needed to get the county to sign off on it, and it really cannot be cut any more. Special-education expenses cannot be cut. Security cannot be reduced. A deficit is anticipated this year.

The State set up the LSTA and paid $1,000 per student. Transportation was brought in house and it is efficient. Courtesy busing was put out for a $6.2 million referendum to pay for it, but that expense was rejected by 98% of the voters the following January. After that, courtesy busing was eliminated by the district; it is not on the table. They used a tiering system, but the bids were so high, they could not do it for the following year. So, the Legislature created the LSTA consortium for busing.

One referendum passed in the district which was for a building roof repair and an HVAC system.

Monitors have proposed ballot questions, but the Lakewood BOE has rejected them. Consequently, they did not bother to spend money on a referendum.

Lakewood Township was not considered an Abbott district, such as Newark, Jersey City, and Paterson, but shared some characteristics, such as free lunches, etc. The Abbott District Factor Groups (DFGs) were generally classified as district factor A and B.[26] Lakewood was not included as an Abbott district because it was not considered poor. The Abbott rulings were supposed to permit poorer districts to have sufficient financial support to meet district factor I-J standards, but there was not enough money in the state budget to ever meet the I-J standard. Abbott was abandoned in the SFRA.

The problem with the budget is that the school-funding formula is frozen. The non-public school population (30,000 children) is growing, and this puts stress on the budget, particularly on the costs of special education. The SFRA uses census data and calculates that approximately 15% of enrolled students require special education, but in Lakewood the percentage is so much greater. The Orthodox children attend non-public school yeshivas, but generally, if they have a learning disability, or need special education, they are enrolled in the public school district.

Lakewood spends about $30 million for special education but is funded for only about half the classified students in the district. This puts a strain on the taxpayer, as the township has to support public school services. Other municipalities would not put the same strain on taxpayers.

[26] The DFGs represent an approximate measure of a community's relative socioeconomic status. The classification system provides a tool for examining student achievement and for comparing similarly-situated school districts in other analyses. Subsequent to the Abbott IV court ruling, the DFGs were also used to define the group of school districts on which Abbott v Burke parity remedy aid would be based. District factor groups range from A (the poorest) to J (the wealthiest) districts.

This municipal overburden puts a strain on the tax base and the State needs to develop a budget that takes that into consideration. Thirty thousand non-public school students put a burden on the district, as that kind of population creates expenses that are not addressed by the SFRA school-funding formula.

Student enrollment drains the adequacy budget. The local fair share of $102 million would not change, but the adequacy share could improve. Lakewood needs more revenue, whether it comes from the Legislature or Lakewood Township residents, but Lakewood is capped at what it can raise, although it has a large tax base. The amount of aid appropriated is controlled by the Legislature. The levy cap is also controlled by the Legislature.

When Azzara came into the district as monitor, he was familiar with aid in lieu of transportation. But after two years, he discovered that the district was sending money directly to non-public schools by checks and not to the parents. Lakewood did not own its own school buses in 2015, just a couple of vans. They saved money for the district by purchasing buses and doing some transportation in house.

The Legislature determines school financial aid based on municipal income and property wealth, which equates to an ability to pay for the local schools. But aid is also a product of how much the State has available to it to assist the local districts. The per-capita income of Lakewood Township is low at $15,000, and less than half of the state average, but the median age of the population is also very low.

Melvin Wyns testified that he worked in the NJ DOE Division of Finance for thirty-one years. For thirteen years until his retirement from the DOE in 2001 he was director of the Office of School Financing, where he was responsible for all twenty-seven major school-aid programs in New Jersey designed to provide a thorough and efficient education. He reviewed school-aid applications, insured that payments were timely made, and conducted audits. While he worked in the DOE, there were many major court decisions affecting school funding.

Following his retirement from the State, he went into consulting, until his final retirement in 2017. In his consulting firm, he has worked for municipalities and school districts on school-funding issues and regionalization issues. He has testified on the SFRA and regionalization and is considered an expert in Abbott XX and Abbott XXI for the Special Education Law Center.

In Abbott XX and Abbott XXI, the plaintiffs challenged the constitutionality of the SFRA, and the Supreme Court delegated those matters to a special master, Hon. Peter Doyne, J.S.C. In Abbott XXI, the third year of SFRA, the law was underfunded. Wyns testified as an expert in that case.

Wyns has continued to follow school funding since his retirement and has testified as an expert following his retirement. He had a consulting agreement with Lakewood from January through June 2018.

Wyns was accepted as an expert in school funding.

Wyns started with Lakewood in July 2003 and was a consultant to the BOE. From 2003 to 2018 he had various consulting contracts with Lakewood covering six to eight years. The tax levy was repeatedly voted down, and then the BOE would have to go to the township for funds. He was supposed to be an intermediary, but it did not work out that well. He is not now under contract with Lakewood.

After the SFRA was enacted in 2008, Wyns identified earlier problems that had not been resolved with the new law. The school-funding formula created problems for the Lakewood school district because of its unique distribution of sectarian to non-sectarian students.

Wyns reviewed the May 7, 2018, letter written to the Lakewood superintendent by Forney in which the State approved $28 million in advance State aid for the 2018–2019 school year to balance the budget. This aid provided additional revenue to Lakewood as an advance (loan) for the purpose of enabling Lakewood to provide a thorough and efficient education to its students beyond SFRA funding. The State could only do this because Lakewood has a fiscal monitor in place. The revenue request must be certified by the State BOE to the state treasurer before the money can be released.

The May 7 letter was sent on the budget-cycle deadline for Lakewood to have its budget approved for the 2018–2019 school year. Absent this revenue, Lakewood would have had a shortfall and would have had to cut staff.

Wyns reviewed the letter of October 26, 2018, which indicated that when the Appropriations Act was passed, Lakewood's funding was reduced by $1,566,821 million, creating a shortfall. Lakewood was notified that it could not raise taxes; it could either cut the budget or apply for emergency aid for districts in financial distress. The letter approved the emergency request so the budget would remain sound. A total of nearly $30 million in funding was provided to Lakewood by the State to provide a thorough and efficient education.

Wyns reviewed Commissioner David Hespe's letter dated June 23, 2016, to the state treasurer, in which Hespe asked for $4.5 million in order to a provide thorough and efficient education for 2016–2017 school year. He also noted a similar request for 2016–2017 sent to the acting state treasurer requesting $5.4 million in order to provide a thorough and efficient education for Lakewood's public school students.

He reviewed the letter dated November 9, 2017, in which former Commissioner of Education Harrington asked for $8.522 million for State aid for the 2017–2018 school year, again certifying that without it, the school could not provide a thorough and efficient education for Lakewood's students.

All these letters showed that the four advances in State aid (loans) were made to assure that the students received a through and efficient education.

Lakewood needed the loans because the SFRA is not working in Lakewood and does not provide adequate resources to Lakewood. The DOE has been able to intervene because Lakewood has a fiscal monitor and the State has intervened to provide a through and efficient education.

The statute provides that the State-aid advances of $4.5, $5, $8 and $28 million must be repaid within a ten-year period out of future State aid; thus, money will be taken away from future students to serve present ones. This is money that must be paid back; this year they paid back $3 million to the State from the money they received.

In school years 2004–2005, 2005–2006, 2006–2007, and 2007–2008, Lakewood received aid from the State for about four years through budget footnote language and received about $1 million in grants from the State. There have been special appropriations for Lakewood in previous years. Then-Commissioner Librera was convinced that Lakewood had school-funding issues. They understood the problem, and they had to convince the governor and Legislature that Lakewood had a problem. The advances were not paid out of the goodness of their heart; it was because of Lakewood Township's unique demographics.

Wyns has written papers for Lakewood relating to Lakewood's unique demographics. He wrote in 2008 about the SFRA and pointed out problems with Lakewood's demographics that continue. These problems pre-dated the SFRA and remain. The SFRA is not working in Lakewood, as is seen in the May 7 letter regarding the increased amount of aid. The situation is worsening, and worsening quickly, under the SFRA.

Lakewood Township's demographics show a rapid population increase. The public school population is below 6% of total population; typically, it is about 16%. Lakewood has a large non-public school population. Forty-one percent (41%) of the township population is below the age of eighteen; on a statewide basis, it is 22%. Lakewood Township is double the average. Lakewood Township has had a large increase in property value and income, which, because it is disproportionate to the growth in the rest of the state, negatively impacts the public schools.

The largest calculation in State aid is equalization aid, which is based on property value and income. Lakewood's equalization aid is disappearing because of its increase in property value, and Wyns predicts that it will soon be zero. This is a consequence of recent amendments to the SFRA: adjustment aid and equalization aid will be gone, and only categorical aid of special education and security aid will be left.

In his opinion, more money is needed. Next year, $43–45 million will be needed. Lakewood will need $30 million just to sustain this year's level without any enrollment changes, or additional demand because of non-public school students requiring special-education services.

The only thing the State can offer is advances; it has no ability to provide grants. It is a non-sensical cycle leading to disaster because the amount to be paid back will become most of the aid Lakewood receives.

Funding will be reduced in the new statute. Lakewood now owes about $40 million. Averaged over ten years, it is about $4 million per year. It is in the budget now at about $3 million per year. In a couple of years, $70 million will be needed to be paid back.

The loans were made because the SFRA is not doing what it is supposed to be doing, providing adequate revenues for the district to provide a through and efficient education for its students. It is possible mathematically that if this process continues, all the State aid that is supposed to be used for providing children with a thorough and efficient education will be used to pay back the loans. The SFRA cannot provide revenues for a thorough and efficient education. The SFRA is supposed to provide funding for districts to provide a thorough and efficient education. It is a question of how long the State allows this process to continue.

State aid is not going to grow. Two things occurred after May 7, 2018, that negatively impacted State aid to Lakewood: first, the Appropriations Act language for the 2018–2019 school year reduced aid by $1.5 million (which is why Lakewood received emergency aid); and second, adjustment aid was eliminated for school districts for 2018–

2019. Chapter 67 removed adjustment aid permanently, and there will be no more adjustment aid in the future. (The State-aid cap was also removed, but this would have no impact on Lakewood.)

Based on recent legislation, Lakewood's equalization aid will disappear next year or the year after and will not be offset by any State-aid advances. If the loan process continued for three years, Lakewood would owe $140 million, and most of the State aid advanced would be money owed back to the State. The larger the property value and income, the lower the school aid from the State, relative to the public school population, and not to the total number of students in the district. The relative wealth per public school student because of the growth in population and the increase in property value and income causes Lakewood's local share in the school-aid equalization-aid formula to be too large, because the district appears to be disproportionately wealthy relative to the small public school population. The demographics attached to property value, income, and special-education enrollment all must be addressed. The formulas and their components must be tweaked by the Legislature to help Lakewood.

Lakewood Township cannot just raise taxes, because of the 2% tax-levy increase cap. Lakewood has been doing this, but it cannot have a referendum except for things not required for a thorough and efficient education, as the law does not permit Lakewood Township to do this.

Lakewood requires legislative action; there is nothing the DOE can do administratively except to provide the advances. The DOE is doing everything it can do.

Wyns understood that the SFRA was designed to meet the constitutional mandate to provide a thorough and efficient education. The previous act relied on discretionary action, which was ruled unconstitutional. Funding for a thorough and efficient education is the continuing obligation of the State. It should be predictable for appropriate budget planning; it should be formulaic and not discretionary. It is unconstitutional if State-aid advances are unpredictable and subjective and not continuing until a decision is made. The intention in Abbott was to have a unitary funding formula to enable all districts to provide a thorough and efficient education, and it is not happening in Lakewood.

Witnesses for Respondent:

Kevin Dehmer has been with the DOE since 2007 and is the assistant commissioner of the Department of Education, assigned to the Division of Finance. As assistant commissioner, he has broad responsibilities, overseeing school facilities, grants, management, state monitors, and non-public and choice schools. He is acting commissioner in the event the commissioner is absent.

Since 2008, Dehmer has worked with the SFRA, a formula passed by the Legislature for school funding. The law considers enrollment as the main input to the formula. This feeds into the adequacy budget for the State and local districts, as well as into the categorical funding available for specific items. The state has 577 school districts. The adequacy budget does not count non-public school students.

The adequacy budget is calculated based on enrollment, with different factors weighing in costs for ESL students, needy students, speech-only services, and special-education services multiplied by a base amount. The local component is the local fair share: it equalizes property value and income and applies a rate which determines the dollar amount each district can pay to support the local schools. The State component is the equalization aid, which is the State's contribution to school funding. Two-thirds of special education is equalization aid, and one-third is for categorical funding, plus transportation aid and security aid (which is based on the number of students and the number of at-risk children).

On March 15, 2018, the Governor's budget message was sent out to all school districts providing a detailed outline of the calculation for the district following the funding formula and how the proposed aid was calculated. Lakewood received that notice. On July 13, 2018, notice was provided to the district to show the changes to the proposed funding amount after the Appropriations Act was modified. The adequacy budget was calculated on enrollment in public schools, and transportation for non-public school students was counted as required by the SFRA. The adequacy-budget calculation considered lack of English proficiency and low-income students (who receive free or reduced lunch) in its weighted formula. Some districts spend over or under their adequacy budgets.

The local fair share takes into account property valuation and district income. The data comes from other State agencies like the Department of Community Affairs and the Department of Taxation. The local fair share is a calculation in the school-aid formula and considers the local tax levy. There are restrictions as to how much a district can raise. It is a 2% cap raise, but some exceptions were included in that law such as an allowance for increased enrollment and health-care costs. Districts can bank their cap. The levy cap can be exceeded, but districts must have ballot initiatives to increase the levy over the cap.

There are two types of State aid: equalization and categorical. Transportation categorical aid includes regular-education students and special-education students who do not require special services for transportation as one category. For special-education students who require an aide, a higher level of categorical funding is provided. The totals were $11,144,460 for the first category and $2,312,507 for the second.

Special-education categorical aid takes the district's total enrollment multiplied by 14.92% (statewide average classification), so using the $17,343 per-pupil amount and adjusting that for the geographical cost, it is multiplied by one-third. Since two-thirds is already included as equalization aid, it is multiplied by one-third, for a total of $5,007,392. The reason for the two-thirds, one-third split is to ensure that each district receives some aid for special-education costs. Security aid is calculated by the total number of students in the district, and also takes into account the concentration of low-income students in the district. Security aid and low-income aid totaled $2,722,718.

Special-education extraordinary aid is outside these calculations; there is a formula for this. Extraordinary aid covers a portion of special education to cover both in-district and out-of-district placements, and is reimbursement based on the cost and the prior-year expenditure. Separate spending is included for non-enrolled students, but it is not included in the SFRA.

During the 2011–2012 grant year, the district received the most nonpublic school IDEA basic funding in the state. Lakewood received $4 million, approximately 18% of total state non-public IDEA basic funding; the next district received $700,000, a fifth of what Lakewood received. A recommendation had been made in 2014 for the district to determine whether other IDEA-approved programs or services could potentially benefit a greater population of non-public school students with disabilities and be a better use of the aid received.

The approximately 31,000 non-public school students in Lakewood Township make up approximately 25% of non-public school students in New Jersey. In 2017, Lakewood received 2.33% of total State aid, even though its share of total public school enrollment was less than 0.5%. Out of 577 school districts in New Jersey, Lakewood received a total of 21% of other non-public school aid. In 2017, the State provided approximately $62 million in total aid for public and non-public school students to Lakewood Township.

Dehmer noted that Lakewood's tax-levy history showed it was consistent, but only started to increase in 2015. In the early years, Lakewood was taxing a little above fair share, and was very close starting in 2014, but from 2014 to 2018 they were below local fair share. Lakewood's school-tax rate for K–12 districts with 5,700 to 6,300 students compared to the statewide average showed that Lakewood was below the state average and was below other districts.

Lakewood has had a fiscal monitor since 2015. The monitor must remain with the district until the State-aid loan advances are repaid. Districts must meet benchmarks. Dehmer does not communicate frequently with the monitor. The monitor has authority to override the local BOE and adopt a budget with a tax increase, but it is limited to the 2% tax levy, with some exemptions.

Lakewood received State-aid advances in 2015–2016, 2016–2017, 2017–2018, and 2018–2019. Funding for Lakewood increased in 2018–2019. Loans were requested to balance the budget and to provide a thorough and efficient education, but he was not involved in that decision.

The commissioner is the authority who requests the supplemental-aid advances in funding: it is not determined by the formula or by the number of children in the district. He or she determines the amount based in part on the recommendations of his office. There are no negotiations. It is based on the recommendations of the monitor, office, and district. It is based on need, and a thorough and efficient education is the benchmark.

Some of the money received by the district is necessary for the paying back of old loans. The $28 million loan would have to be repaid, so some of it had to be used to pay back the State. The Commissioner recommended aid advances, which are generally paid back over ten years. The advances take into consideration not just the budget deficit, but also the need to repay previous aid advances.

The problem is an unbalanced budget. Local revenues must be maximized. High past non-mandatory expenditures can cause an unbalanced budget. The state monitor has been in Lakewood for five years. Dehmer reviews the budget plan set by the monitor: the monitor has plans to move the district ahead, Dehmer approves expenditures and plans to lower expenditures. Lakewood needs to do a more strenuous job of planning.

The SFRA adequacy budget is the school-funding formula that estimates what is necessary for a thorough and efficient education. It has nothing to do with Sections 192 and 193 aid. The loans are not based on a formula, they are determined based on the budget submitted by the district and items indicated to the DOE by the monitor. Dehmer does not know the exact expenditures, or tuition paid to schools outside the district. The loan is based on getting to a balanced budget and local control with the monitor, who reports to Glenn Forney.

Dehmer did not recall the months the advance aid loans were made to the district. Most districts start budget planning well in advance, as it is a statutory process. The districts are notified of the Governor's budget proposal, but do not know what it entails until the budget is signed. Lakewood needed more money in its adequacy share and has received the largest State advance. Ultimately, they are all trying to get to a balanced budget, and, with State-aid advances, the district can provide a thorough and efficient education.

Dehmer had no day-to-day knowledge of the district. He just looks at expenses and revenue. The SFRA is funded every year according to the annual Appropriations Act but is not as fully funded as it could be.

Christopher Soleau testified that he has been employed by the Office of Legislative Services as a principal auditor since 2001. He is a field supervisor and assists in conducting investigations. He has a Bachelor of Arts degree in accounting.

As a trained auditor, he audits state agencies and programs with the goals of improving accountability, efficiency and the effectiveness of public spending. He has personally been involved with audits in Trenton, Asbury Park and Lakewood.

An audit is comprised of three phases: planning (meeting with personnel, reviewing records, reports and data); testing (reviewing documents and verifying processes and control; and reporting (compiling the audit, drafting a report, and obtaining approvals).

The site investigation in Lakewood commenced in January 2013 and ended in June 2014. The auditors found a general fund deficiency and the district was placed on an audit plan.

The audit report was issued in August 2014. It noted a few issues involving financial transactions that were not consistent with government auditing standards, a projected deficit, a lack of control environment leading to a lack of stability, and a growing population with flat property taxes which affected the budget and created a deficit. The report made recommendations for long-term goals.

The review noted that state and federal grant programs under Title I that were provided to low income students, showed that reconciliation procedures were lax. Title I waivers lacked supporting documentation. The board had approved contracts without review, and other expenses were questionable.

Programs (under Sections 192 and 193) provided for auxiliary services, compensatory education, ESL and home instruction, and remedial and speech-language services. Lakewood received $13.9 million in fiscal year 2012, and $14.8 in fiscal year 2013. Other areas of concern in the report included: compensatory education, speech-language instruction, home instruction, school visits, legal costs, purchasing procedures, lease agreements, information technology, business continuity, special education tuition, payroll and personnel, criminal history background checks, final leave balance payments, salary allocations, employee contracts and salary increases, leaves of absence, observations, and the IDEA program.

After his report was issued, it went to the district and some of the identified problems were fixed.

Catherine Anthony is a dispute resolution specialist with the DOE. She opens mediation and due process files and is assigned special projects. Files are retained for twenty years and a data base is used to track cases from filing through outcomes.

Anthony researched agreements that Lakewood had reached on special education due process matters appealed to the OAL and found that 75 special education settlements had disenrolled those students from the district between 2013 and 2018.[27] The total cost to the district for these 75 students was $10,176,771.[28]

Raymond J. Zirilli, Jr., has been a senior transport specialist at the DOE for almost twenty years. His primary role is to gather data for paying state aid and regulating student transportation; he has other duties as well.

[27] One student was disenrolled in 2013; 26 in 2016; 37 in 2017; and 11 in 2018. Other years were not provided. This is not the total number of special education students in the district.

[28] These settlement agreements were reached between parents acting on behalf of their children and the district, approved by the monitor, and then submitted to an ALJ in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:46-14(h).

In 1999 an audit was performed in Lakewood to see how efficiently the district was transporting students and their particular transportation needs. For example, if the district was running separate male and female buses, they would be running buses with fewer students and thereby running more buses than necessary. More efficient districts staggered bell times, and he needed to know if Lakewood was coordinating these. These concerns were shared with the district.

Zirilli noted that Lakewood's non-public school students were receiving courtesy busing. Courtesy busing is busing provided at the discretion of the local board of education and at local taxpayers' expense; it was not paid by the state as the state just pays for mandated busing which is two miles for elementary students and 2.5 miles for high school students.

Zirilli referred to the District Report of Transported Students (DRTS) which is the data collection to process state aid for transportation. The data consists of mandated transported students with sub-categories of actually transported and aid in lieu (AIL) which is the payment provided to parents equal to a maximum statutory amount that changes with each budget year to arrange for their own transportation. Aid is paid to the parents in lieu of the district providing transportation. The amount was $1,000.

After 2015-16, New Jersey established the Lakewood School Transportation Authority (LSTA) with aid in lieu. The district paid the AIL to the LSTA to provide mandated transportation services for non-public students. By comparison, in 2009-2010, the district transported 8,914 students and provided AIL for 156; by 2016-2017, the number went to 8 transported students and 15,919 transported by the LSTA.

Robert Ortley testified that he was employed as a manager of the New Jersey State Aid Audit Unit for nineteen years until he retired after 38 years with the State. The unit reviews and evaluates a school district's compliance with the requirements of the State division of finance to ensure that school aid is properly calculated by comparing the district's data to that on file with the state. The standard methodology is to compare lists of data submitted with accounting records, purchase orders, and other documents to see if the district's calculations were accurate.

An audit was conducted in Lakewood at the request of various government officials, and the final report was submitted on May 19, 2014. The audit used information as of October 14, as the statute required the last enrollment data on or before October 15 of that audit year. The purpose of the audit was to determine the accuracy of the data based upon enrollment records and accounting records of the school district for State aid reporting purposes.

The Application for State School Aid (ASSA) is an annual report filed by every district in the state to report the number of students enrolled. Deficiencies in the audit impact the amount of state aid a district receives or has to refund to the state. The linchpin for all reporting is the official New Jersey school register which is a contemporaneous and continuous document which indicates daily attendance and absence for the school year. The official New Jersey school register reflects daily attendance for the entire school year as compiled by the Office of Fiscal Accountability and Compliance (OFAC). If there is a difference, it can impact State aid. The audit showed that Lakewood had a disparity in student enrollment of about 84 students.

Within the resident enrollment count, the number of students who have limited English proficiency and those who are eligible for free or reduced meals is significant because the base id factor of the funding formula provides extra aid for these at-risk students. In various subset categories that can provide for additional finding and impact funding, the results were also disparate. The number of students eligible for free or reduced meals showed a disparity of 207; for Limited English Proficiency a disparity of 96 students; and for transported students in regular and special education a disparity of 326.5. These audit exceptions were reported in September 2013 and the State worked with the district to reduce them. Ultimately some adjustments were made.

These students represented approximately $2,308,500 that the district could have lost had the district been fully funded under SFRA. Recommendations were made to the district to ensure that future state aid would be calculated accurately. With such a high volume of data, they met with the district to review a draft so that the district could see the volume and magnitude of the findings.

Generally, the district's time to respond to the OFAC report is 75 days. The district can accept the report, appeal the report, or appeal specific findings in the report. Lakewood formulated a corrective action plan (CAP) to ensure the accuracy of its reporting which was submitted to the agency and shared with others in the DOE in finance and field services. Lakewood was advised by letter that its CAP was approved by the state. Follow-up meetings with the administrators were held and some adjustments were made. The final State aid recovery was reduced to about two million dollars.

According to the fiscal year report ending in 2018, $2,305,605 was owed to the state due to this audit if the district had been fully funded under SFRA but it had not been. Ultimately, for that budget cycle, it was recommended that the district reimburse the state for one-fifth of that total amount to be recovered by the DOE. However, Lakewood still owed the State $17,198,843 in outstanding loans as of 2018.

Accepting the DOE's numbers as correct as far back as 2011, Lakewood Township then had 5,248 students in the public school system and was transporting 13,676 students, more than 50% of the student population.

Glenn Forney is the deputy assistant commissioner of finance for the DOE. He has significant experience in budgeting and financing for school districts of the state. He is the Commissioner's designee for recruiting and placement of state monitors. He follows the statute that permits the appointment of monitors and which defines their authority in a district. Forney reports to Dehmer.

The DOE reviews the CAFR's of each district, analyzes them and reviews the qualifying elements for placement of a monitor. The DOE identifies districts that have qualifying elements that could result in the placement of a monitor. If a district just has one or two elements, the solution is remediation or a budget manager. If a district cannot remediate, then a monitor is placed. If it is in a deficit and can pay its bills, it gets help. If a district is in a deficit and cannot pay its bills, then a monitor is placed. A monitor is someone with a fiscal or superintendent's background. The DOE has found that having a monitor in place generally provides a better rate of success for those districts with issues.

Lakewood has had a monitor since 2014 after a district audit was conducted in 2011. At that time, Lakewood's deficit was approximately $6.4-6.5 million. Currently, eleven districts have monitors, but not all receive state aid advances. The goal is to help fix the district and then to exit. The monitor remains in place until the situation is remediated which is determined when it has a stable administration, the CAFR findings are cleaned up and the loans (advance state aid) have been paid back. Monitors are paid by the district.

Forney does all the recruiting and day-to-day operations involving the monitors with whom he communicates as often as needed. He oversees them, prepares their contracts, oversees hiring, etc. Lakewood presently has one monitor, but at one point there were three. Monitors have helped. The deficit balance is going down and the number of CAFR findings is getting better. But it will be a long hard road to fix past damage.

The growth in the number of non-public school students far out paces the number of public school students which is not seen in any other district. It is also a by-product of zoning, and the town council appoints the zoning board. The district is responsible for transportation of non-public school students, Child Find and IEP teams. State aid provides Sections 192 and 193 funding and federal aid helps with the IDEA funding.

The financial stressors on the Lakewood public school district are for transportation for non-public school students and special education.

Transportation is mandated for 21,000 non-public school students, and the DOE cannot limit the number. Students in grades K-12 who live beyond a two-mile limit and students in grades 9-12 who live beyond 2.5 miles get bused. The district cannot choose which school the non-public school students attend and must pay mandatory transportation costs. The cost for this runs about $20-22 million per year.

Lakewood gets transportation aid for mandatory busing; the formula sets the amount. It comes from State appropriations funded by taxpayer revenue.

The cost of special education is another stressor in the district. These students are registered with the public school district and as public school students, they get IEP services. These students are counted in State aid. Extraordinary aid is paid for special education students with out-of-district placements where costs exceed the threshold. The State pot is divided up and Lakewood receives this aid as well.

Lakewood Township has been growing. He reads the CAFR and statistics show its population growth. The district gets it from the DCA. Lakewood Township has new construction; its ratable balance is growing. School taxes go to the township, and first year tax payments stay with the township. The school levy is set by the school board. The township does not have to go above the levy to give money toward education. Ratables are the assessed value of property and are recorded in the county schedule of ratables and in CAFR.

Forney looks for trends and analyses. The tax rates in Lakewood Township have been decreasing; as the ratables go up, the tax rate goes down.

The SFRA determines local fair share by considering town wealth and property values. The DCA provides the data about income, wealth and property value. The district contributes to the local fair share; it is what the township can pay toward school funding. The district is not required to tax up to the local fair share but it can do it. Lakewood is not raising enough for its local fair share. The levy struck by school board is less than total fair share. The tax cap restricts it to 2% and Lakewood capped out at 2%.

Forney looked at Ocean County. Lakewood is in middle of the pack of tax rates. The tax rate is the by-product of tax levy. The tax levy in Lakewood had been stagnant, then it decreased, and it is now increasing. Lakewood Township's population is growing, not stagnating.

In 2015, the levy went up 9.2%. The monitor struck the tax levy that year and they raised taxes to the maximum amount. That tax levy increase in 2015 did not fix the problem because they had a deficit from previous years and costs were rising. The tax levy cap can be overcome to cover increased cost of medical insurance; enrollment; pension and government duties to another entity.

N.J.S.A. 18A:22-40 provides that a district such as Lakewood can raise funds for the general fund deficit and is not limited to the cost of a thorough and efficient education. Other districts have used this statute to raise more revenue. Lakewood Township put out a referendum, but it did not pass. The monitor cannot direct the township to raise taxes.

Voter approval could bring in more funds for the district to cover non-T&E items. Funding comes from the tax levy, federal aid and state aid. State aid comes through the Appropriations Act. Lakewood was frozen in the past and was getting the same amount as prior years. The Appropriations Act did the freezing and it could cause an issue, but school districts can plan for that. The State aid process starts in November and December and is based on what the district is receiving. The governor's budget is prepared in February and March and state aid letters go out March 20 when the budget is due. Once the Appropriations Act is passed, the districts get the aid.

School districts must have a balanced budget; revenue must equal expenses. In some years, Lakewood's budget was balanced with a state aid advance which is a loan. This is all part of the school funding scheme; other statutes permit districts to raise funds. The DOE does not have the funds itself; it must request them from the state treasurer. They want to make sure a district gets the right amount of aid. Forney works with the monitor, county offices, etc., to calculate the true cost for expenses and to compare those costs to the district's costs. Streams of revenue are ascertained and if there is a gap, an advance of state aid is provided. They rely on the school superintendent for educational experience. They look at any costs or efficiencies. The district provides the data and the state looks at aid.

State aid advances are not determined by formula but rather they are given at the discretion of the Commissioner and the Treasurer. The State works with the district to determine need. The State needs correct numbers before it can determine amount of aid for the district. The funding formula recognizes the number of public school students. State aid advances started in 2015 and filled the gap between spending and what the district had available to spend. Once the state is confident that the amount requested is correct, the Commissioner requests funds from the state Treasurer.

On June 15, 2015, the treasurer approved $4.5 million requested by Hespe for Lakewood; on June 23, 2016, $5,640,183 requested by Hespe; on November 9, 2017, requested by Harrington, $8,522,678. That year they had problems getting data from Lakewood, so the State recreated what the dollar amount would be. On May 7, 2018, Forney advised Winters that Lakewood would receive $28,182,090 for that fiscal year. But Lakewood had some banked cap rate it could have used to avoid some of these advances. In 2016-17 there was still a shortfall, and the budget was as low as possible. In 2017-18, State aid was $8.5 million, and the budget was balanced with the loan. The advance State loan was paid on May 17, 2018. Any loan can only be for ten years; he has not seen that loans can be forgiven.

The deficit is the amount that the district is short after it pays its bills, including the loan payback. At the end of the year, the short fall is the deficit. Lakewood's annual deficit is dropping but aid to it is increasing. Some payments have been made to the outstanding balance. Lakewood has a general fund deficit of $3.8 million down from $12 million that would free up money in the budget. Lakewood must repay these state advances starting the following year. No interest is paid, and the advance is deducted from aid in future years. Lakewood could ask Lakewood Township for more money.

Reductions in force are something to be avoided. But revenues must equal expenditures. The district could go out in November to ask voters for extra aid; the district could reduce expenditures or raise funds if there is a deficit. He works with Shafter on the budget. Forney was not aware if Azzara said that Lakewood has a revenue problem, not a spending problem. But the budget must be balanced either with advances on state aid, or by reductions ordered by the monitor to get to the balanced budget.

Forney consulted with Shafter about the 2018-19 budget as adequate to meet the district's needs. The tax levy increased. SFRA and State aid were locked in and Lakewood needed another advance. The State must help Lakewood achieve a balanced budget every year.

The monitor can override the board as long as there is a fiscal nexus. If the board does not take action, the monitor can strike the tax levy. Taxes can be raised by the 2% tax cap.

State aid is not provided for non-thorough and efficient education items. In 2016, the state monitor ordered the school board to put to a voter referendum a tax increase for courtesy busing, a non-T&E item; however, the Lakewood Township voters defeated the proposal for payment of courtesy busing by approximately 7,000 to 100.

Seventy-three to eighty percent of the budget is salaries. Forty million dollars is for tuition. Lakewood has significant out-of-district special education costs which put a strain on the budget. Transportation costs are a major contributor to cost increases at $710 per child. The 2014 monitors noted that the cost for transportation and out-of-district special education expenses were going up and trending higher.

The SFRA was developed for school funding and was approved by the New Jersey Supreme Court. A state monitor is required to get a State aid advance. Lakewood still meets the qualifications for the presence of the monitor due to deficit, internal control issues, federal funds refund, and CAFR findings. The monitor stays in the district at the discretion of the commissioner until the condition has been remediated. Lakewood has $46 million outstanding.

The annual budget process needs to address economies and efficiencies. Lakewood's CAFR in June showed a $3.1 million deficit due to operations, $11 million in total, due to late State benefits as June payments were late. The district is made whole in June or July as State aid is paid out two times per month. The SFRA is not fully funded. The year by year approach is working. The plan with CAFR is to have the monitors fix the district and get out.

FINDINGS[29]

Much of this case is about numbers and statistics: the SFRA funding formula, Lakewood's revenues and expenditures, demographics, test scores, course offerings, graduation rates, and more. Many of these numbers and statistics are a matter of public record, are not in dispute, and have been explained and contextualized by witness testimony.

For "testimony to be believed, it must not only come from the mouth of a credible witness, but it also has to be credible in itself." In re Estate of Perrone, 5 N.J. 514, 522 (1950). A credibility determination requires an overall assessment of the witness's story "in the light of its rationality or internal consistency and the manner in which it hangs together with other evidence." Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). Also, "'[t]he interest, motive, bias, or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify the [trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony.'" State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div. 1952)(citation omitted).

Upon consideration of the public documents, exhibits, and witness testimony relevant to this matter, I FIND the following as fact:

In 2000, Lakewood Township had a total population of about 60,000 people. In 2019, the estimated population was roughly 106,000, which represents a seventy-six percent population increase over nearly two decades. This rapid population growth is largely attributed to the burgeoning Orthodox community in Lakewood Township.

A large percentage of Lakewood Township is composed of persons under the age of eighteen, or school-age children. Among the school-age children in Lakewood Township, there is a stark dichotomy between attendance at public schools and attendance at private or sectarian schools. For the 2008-2009 school year, approximately 4,900 students attended the public schools, while 14,460 attended non-public schools, which meant that about twenty-five percent of the school-age population was then in public school. However, as of 2019, the public school population increased to about 6,000 students, while the private school population had grown to more than 30,000 students.

[29] The facts have been gleaned from the rather disjointed testimony, the evidence presented by the parties, and certain publicly available information and data from DOE's website. Unfortunately, the parties could not jointly stipulate to facts.

This means that, currently, only sixteen percent of Lakewood Township's students attend public school while eighty-four percent attend private or sectarian schools. This statistic is so deviant from the average in New Jersey as to be an outlier. The non-public school students in Lakewood Township make up approximately 25% of all non-public school students in New Jersey, and the private school population will continue to outpace the public school population at a geometric rate.

The petitioners' witnesses testified credibly about the effect the rapid growth in private school attendance has had on the district's finances. In particular, Finger, Shafter, and Azzara credibly described Lakewood's on-going budgetary issues arising from the costs borne by the district in accordance with State law for the transportation and special education of students attending private schools.

Finger credibly testified and I accept as fact that when he first left Lakewood's employ in 2010, the district had a budget surplus. Since his return in 2017, the district has needed significant financial help from both the State and the Township to balance its budget. The district's financial issues can be attributed in large part to the extraordinary cost the district bears for its legal mandate to pay for transportation for private school students and for tuition for special education students the district places in out-of-district private schools. For instance, for the 2017-2018 school year, these transportation and special education costs consumed more than half of the district's budget, or $78M out of a total budget of $144M. However, in neighboring districts such as Toms River, Brick, Jackson, and Freehold, the average transportation and special education tuition costs make up only 4-7% of their budgets.

Because Lakewood started going into a deficit in 2014, a State monitor was appointed to the district to supervise financial operations and to ensure accountability for the expenditure of public funds. In 2013-2014, the deficit was approximately $6 million. For 2016-2017, it was approximately $4.3 million.

Shafter and Azzara, the State monitors, echoed Finger's sentiments about the correlation between Lakewood's private school expenses and its budget problems. Since their placement in Lakewood in 2014, these monitors have rectified several issues with recordkeeping and financial waste in the district. To avoid teacher layoffs, increased class sizes, and program cuts, and to balance the annual budget, the district has borrowed millions of dollars from the State in the form of advance SFRA aid.

Lakewood received $4.5M in advance aid in 2015; $5.6M in 2016; $8.5M in 2017; and, $28M in 2018, for a total of nearly $50M. As noted by several of the witnesses for both parties, advance aid is essentially a loan from the State with money from future SFRA aid. Lakewood must repay these loans out of future aid, creating an unsustainable cycle of borrowing and repayment that will be difficult for Lakewood to break. Only districts with State monitors are eligible for advance aid, and State monitors cannot be removed unless and until a district repays the advance aid it receives.

With Lakewood's budget issues as a backdrop, Winters, Spitz-Stein, and Marshall provided valuable insight into the characteristics of Lakewood's student body, teachers, and programs, and credibly described Lakewood's efforts to deliver T&E to public school students.

The socioeconomic makeup of the district's public school students is 94% Latinx and Black; 100% percent of the student body is eligible for free or reduced-price lunch based on household income. Lakewood also has a high percentage of ESL and LEP students.

The district's course offerings meet the State's requirements for graduation, with twenty English classes, and fifteen classes each in Math, Science, and Social Studies. The district also has AP classes in English and Spanish, and several classes in music, art, and computers. However, over the years the district has cut programs for industrial arts and auto mechanics, and the only foreign language study offered in-district is Spanish. Also, the district has a special education preschool program for three- and four-year-old students, but only offers general education preschool for four-year-old students.

Winters, Spitz-Stein, and Marshall also credibly discussed relevant characteristics of Lakewood's teachers. Teacher turnover is significant in Lakewood, where the average teacher salary is below the State average. The average teacher in Lakewood has between only four and five years of experience, and Lakewood must spend significant money on teacher development and training. Marshall and Spitz-Stein bemoaned the lack of remediation/intervention specialists in the district who can provide students the extra educational support they require in their areas of struggle or deficiency.

Lakewood lags well behind other districts in terms of per pupil classroom instruction spending and classroom salaries. For example, according to the DOE's Taxpayers' Guide to Spending 2018, Lakewood spent $7,427 per pupil on classroom instruction for 2016-2017, which ranked as the second lowest amount among the ninety-eight K-12 school districts with more than 3,500 pupils.[30] And, for the same school year, Lakewood spent $6,906 per pupil on classroom salaries, which also ranked as the second lowest among comparably-sized school districts.

Winters and Spitz-Stein also testified about how standardized test scores and other educational benchmarks are improving but are still well below State averages, and their testimony is supported by publicly available information compiled and disseminated by the Department of Education.[31]

For the 2014-2015 school year, only twenty-three percent of high school students met or exceeded expectations on the PARCC assessment for English, placing them in the twenty-third percentile in the State, while only five percent of high school students met or exceeded expectations on the PARCC assessment for Math. On the New Jersey Biology Competency Test (NJBCT), only thirty-two percent of high school students were proficient, while sixty-eight percent were partially proficient.

On the SAT, only six percent of students scored above the benchmark of 1550, placing Lakewood High School in the thirteenth percentile in the State and well below the Statewide target of forty percent. Moreover, only twelve percent of Lakewood high school students were enrolled in at least one AP/IB course, well below the State average of thirty-six percent. And a mere twelve percent of students scored a three on an AP test or a four on an IB test, while the State average was seventy-two percent.

Finally, for 2014-2015, the graduation rate was seventy-four percent, or the sixth percentile in the State, where the Statewide target was seventy-eight percent; the dropout rate was nearly four percent, or double the Statewide target of two percent; and, only forty-four percent of students were enrolled in either a two- or four-year postsecondary school, compared with seventy-eight percent across the State.

For the 2015-2016 school year, twenty-three percent of high school students met or exceeded expectations on English assessments, or the twenty-third percentile in the State, while seven percent of high school students met or exceeded expectations on Math assessments, or the thirteenth percentile in the State. And on the Biology assessment, only twenty-two percent were proficient, compared with a forty-one percent State average.

On the SAT, twenty-three percent met the College Readiness Benchmarks on the reading and writing portion, compared with seventy-one percent Statewide, and on the math section, eleven percent met the benchmarks, compared with fifty-three percent Statewide. And only fourteen percent of students were enrolled in at least one AB or IB course, compared with thirty-nine percent across the State.

Finally, the graduation rate was seventy-five percent, or the ninth percentile in the State, where the Statewide target was eighty-one percent; the dropout rate was nearly three percent, while the Statewide target was one percent; and, only thirty-seven percent of students were enrolled in either a two- or four-year postsecondary school, compared with seventy-seven percent across the State.

In 2016-2017, only twenty-five percent of students met or exceeded expectations on state English assessments, and only eighteen percent met or exceeded expectations on state Math assessments. Lakewood also suffered from chronic absenteeism, with thirteen percent of students absent for ten percent or more of days enrolled. Finally, for 2016-2017, the four-year graduation was seventy-five percent in Lakewood, while the State average was ninety percent, and the rate of college enrollment (two- and four-year programs) in Lakewood was forty-four percent, while the State average was seventy-six percent.

In 2017-2018, some of the metrics improved slightly: twenty-eight percent of students met or exceeded expectations on state English assessments, and twenty percent met or exceeded expectations on state Math assessments. Chronic absenteeism increased slightly over the previous year, with a rate of sixteen percent. The district's graduation and college enrollment rates still fell below the State average (eighty-two percent versus ninety percent) and (forty-one percent versus seventy-eight percent). Finally, the district's AP and dual enrollment (college courses taken by high school students) rates were also well below State averages (seventeen percent AP enrollment versus a State average of thirty-five percent and zero percent dual enrollment versus a thirteen percent State average).

In 2018-2019, some of the metrics continued to improve, but they still fell well short of State averages. Thirty-three percent of students met or exceeded expectations on state English assessments, and twenty-one percent met or exceeded expectations on state Math assessments. Chronic absenteeism decreased from the previous year, with a rate of nine percent, which was below the State average of eleven percent. The district's graduation and college enrollment rates continued to fall below the State average (eighty-one percent versus ninety percent) and (forty percent versus seventy-eight percent). Finally, the district's AP and dual enrollment rates were also well below State averages (twenty-one percent AP enrollment versus a State average of thirty-five percent and zero percent dual enrollment versus a nineteen percent State average).[32]

[32] The DOE website provides a statistical analysis of all school districts in the state if comparison is necessary.

Another measure of whether a school district is providing its students with T&E, the NJQSAC, also provides evidence of the education situation in Lakewood. The NJQSAC measures a district's effectiveness in five performance areas, including instruction and program, fiscal management, governance, operations, and personnel, with a score of less than eighty-percent in any category necessitating improvement activities.[33] For example, for the 2016-2017 school year, Lakewood scored at fifty-four percent in instruction and program, which measures such things as student performance and progress on state assessments, graduation rates, and alignment of curriculum to state standards.

Several witnesses discussed the SFRA in general and as applied to Lakewood. The SFRA formula bases the calculation for state aid on the number of students in the public school system and not the total number of students or school-age children residing within the district. The core of the SFRA is the adequacy budget, which is a State calculation of the amount of money a district needs to provide its students with T&E.

A school district contributes to school funding through the local fair share, which is determined by equalizing property value and income in a district and calculating the dollar amount each district can pay to support the local schools. The State component is the equalization aid, which is the State's contribution to school funding.

The funding formula includes transportation aid and special education aid. The transportation and special education aid that Lakewood receives under the SFRA does not cover its actual transportation and special education costs. Dr. Farrie credibly noted that Lakewood spent about $40 million more than a district its size should spend due to special education and transportation costs.

The following table provides the relevant SFRA numbers for Lakewood for school years 2014-2015 through 2018-2019, rounded to the nearest million:

[33] See NJQSAC User Manual, available at https://www.nj.gov/education/qsac/manual/.

Year	Adequacy Budget	Local Fair Share	General Fund School Levy	Equalization Aid	Transpo. Aid	Spec. Ed. Categorical Aid
2014-2015	$109	$85	$85	$13 (fully funded); $15 (actually appropriated)	$9 (fully funded); $4 (actually appropriated)	$4 (fully funded); $3 (actually appropriated)
2015-2016	$119	$97	$90	$12 (fully funded); $15 (actually appropriated)	$10 (fully funded); $4 (actually appropriated)	$5 (fully funded); $3 (actually appropriated)
2016-2017	$119	$93	$94	$10 (fully funded); $15 (actually appropriated)	$12 (fully funded); $4 (actually appropriated)	$5 (fully funded); $3 (actually appropriated)
2017-2018	$110	$102	$97	$8 (fully funded); $15 (actually appropriated)	$13 (fully funded); $4 (actually appropriated)	$5 (fully funded); $3 (actually appropriated)
2018-2019	$114	$112	$101	$2 (fully funded); $15 (actually appropriated)	$13 (fully funded); $3 (actually appropriated)	$5 (fully funded); $3 (actually appropriated)

The Department of Education provided the following chart of Lakewood's tax levy and local fair share history under the SFRA:

Fiscal Year	Previous Year Tax Levy	Local Fair Share	Difference	Levy as % of Local Fair Share
2011	$71,593,625	$64,019,995	$7,573,630	112%
2012	$71,593,625	$64,019,995	$7,573,630	112%
2013	$70,238,004	$65,400,388	$4,837,616	107%
2014	$70,630,210	$71,198,357	-$568,147	99%
2015	$77,097,641	$85,419,632	-$8,321,991	90%
2016	$84,693,837	$96,735,200	-$12,041,363	88%
2017	$90,350,168	$92,974,112	-2,623,944	97%
2018	$94,088,028	$102,034,106	-$7,946,078	92%

Dehmer credibly noted that Lakewood's tax levy history showed it was consistent, but only started to increase in 2015. In the early years of the SFRA, Lakewood was taxing a little above fair share, but from 2014 to 2018 it was below local fair share. Lakewood's school tax rate for K–12 districts with 5,700 to 6,300 students compared to the statewide average showed that Lakewood was below the state average. In 2016, Lakewood put to a public vote a referendum to increase the school tax levy to raise more than $6M to help pay for transportation costs; that measure was defeated by Lakewood Township voters by a margin of 99% to 1%.[34]

As is clear from the record and testimony, the two major budgetary stressors for the Lakewood district are the cost of transportation and special education placements for children who attend private school.

The following table shows Lakewood's special education tuition expenditures for private school tuition for school years 2014-2015 through 2018-2019:

School Year	Number of Students	In State	Out of State	Total Tuition
2014-2015	207	21,056,687	65,240	21,122,137
2015-2016	260	25,083,549	125,476	25,209,025
2016-2017	299	27,891,730	281,215	28,172,945
2017-2018	296	29,305,180	593,975	29,899,155
2018-2019	343	33,232,478	72,900	33,305,378

Dr. Farrie credibly testified that the reasons for Lakewood's high special education costs are a large population of special education students, a large number of students whose disabilities carry high costs, and higher-than-average out-of-district placements, which are more expensive. She posited that fewer out-of-district special education placements could help reduce Lakewood's special education costs.

The following is a table of the district's transportation expenditures:

[34] Clearly the local voting populace has not demonstrated enthusiasm for an increased tax levy.

School Year	Public School Students	Private School Students	Aid in Lieu of Transp.	Total Transported(Non Spec Ed)	Total Cost
2014-2015	2,052	13,832	462	16,346	$23,235,597
2015-2016	2,038	15,982	286	18,316	$26,343,391
2016-2017	2,163	15,919	1,050	19,132	$25,732,995
2017-2018	2,336	8	19,166	21,510	$29,739,226
2018-2019	2,285	84	20,147	22,516	$31,155,570

Although Lakewood has stopped directly paying for courtesy busing of children who live close enough to school such that they do not qualify for publicly-funded transportation, Lakewood's transportation costs continue to rise. Testimony indicated the need for more sidewalks, crossovers of Route 9, and crossing guards to reduce the number of hazardous walking routes in Lakewood.

In or about 2009, the Department of Education issued a "Lakewood Needs Assessment" in response to a State Board of Education directive arising from litigation first brought in the late 1990s by several then-rural and property-poor school districts, known as the Bacon districts and including Lakewood. See Bacon v. Dep't of Educ., 398 N.J. Super. 600 (App.Div.2008). In that case, the State Board ruled that several of the Bacon districts (not including Lakewood) were unable to provide T&E under the statutory funding scheme in place at the time. Bacon v. Dep't of Educ., 2006 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 108 (Jan. 4, 2006). However, due to a jurisdictional lack of "authority to direct that additional resources be provided to any school district in New Jersey," but acknowledging the need for some remedy, the State Board directed the Commissioner of Education to conduct a "needs assessment" for all of the Bacon districts, including Lakewood. Id. at *96.

The purpose of the needs assessments was to "assess[] the adequacy of the educational inputs and programming currently being provided" and to "identify the unique educational needs of the students in those districts requiring additional programs to address them." Id. at *103. According to the State Board, "an assessment of the educational needs and the identification of approaches that will successfully address those needs is a prerequisite to ensuring that adequate resources, including fiscal resources, are provided and appropriate accountability for their use is guaranteed." Id. at 97-98.

In the Lakewood Needs Assessment, the Department made several observations, conclusions, and recommendations. The Department noted a large percentage of Lakewood Township's public school students were "at-risk (defined as being at or below 185% of the federal poverty guidelines)," and that "[a]lthough public school enrollment is stable, the nonpublic population increases by close to 1,000 students each year."[35] The Department remarked that a large part of Lakewood's budget was directed toward transportation and special education costs associated with private school students.

On the issue of transportation costs, the Department stated that "[t]he district is aware that the high cost of transportation, due to increased numbers of nonpublic students, staggered start times and its courtesy busing policy [under which the district opted to spend during the 2008-2009 school year $4M on busing private school students who did not live remote from their schools], is a significant financial drain." As for special education costs, the Department found that "[a]nother large budget expenditure is for out-of-district special education placements, which includes transportation for those students."

The Department concluded that Lakewood, "while facing significant challenges, could do significantly more with the funds currently available to it" and "find ways to ensure that its resources are directed to meet the instructional needs of its students." The Department recommended that Lakewood reconsider its courtesy busing policy and "continue to develop strategies to educate more of its special education students in-district." The Department acknowledged that "[t]here are many areas which Lakewood needs to improve in terms of student performance," including proficiency on English assessments, but stated that "the district also has significant resources to address those needs." The Department recommended that one "successful strategy for improving student performance is to provide a high-quality preschool program as required by the SFRA."

[35] An underestimate of the increase in non-public school students to be sure.

Lakewood was also the subject of a State audit that revealed issues with the district's spending on transportation and special education. As Soleau credibly testified at hearing, in 2014, the Office of the State Auditor issued a report on its audit of Lakewood for the period of July 1, 2011, to December 31, 2013. The purpose of the audit was "to determine whether financial transactions were related to the school district's programs, were reasonable, and were recorded properly in the accounting systems." The auditors found that "financial transactions . . . were not always reasonable or properly recorded in the accounting system" and that the district had a projected budget deficit of $5M for FY 2014, and that "[i]ncreases in student transportation costs for public and nonpublic school students and special education tuition account for $2.6 million of this projected deficit."

On transportation costs, the auditors noted that "[b]ecause of significant student population growth within the municipality, transportation costs had increased to $19.6 million for the 2012-2013 school year," which included the cost of "provid[ing] non-mandated (courtesy) busing to public and nonpublic school students who would otherwise walk along the numerous hazardous routes identified in the township." The auditors suggested that "transportation costs of the district could be reduced with the implementation of certain initiatives," including the following:

- The majority of the nonpublic school bus routes in the district are segregated by gender. Since most of these schools have a 9:00 a.m. start time, the demand causes increased pricing by the vendors. Separately tiering the bell times for the girls and boys' nonpublic schools could save the district up to $6.7 million. For example, starting school at 8:30 a.m. for girls and 9:15 a.m. for boys would enable the busing contractors to bid on tiered routes which would reduce the overall number of buses needed and create more competitive route pricing.

- Currently, there are separate buses for each nonpublic school. Savings of approximately $750,000 could be achieved if routes were developed by school locations, not specific schools. This would result in shorter bus routes and fewer buses.

- Currently, nonpublic schools could have two starting times and as many as five ending times which creates inefficiencies and the need for one-way routes. Providing transportation to nonpublic schools based on a single opening and closing bell schedule for each school building could save the district up to $1.2 million. This initiative has been presented to the board's transportation committee.

- [And] tiering the bus routes could reduce the savings of other proposed initiatives.

And in terms of special education costs, the auditors found a lack of "proper approval, tuition documentation, and attendance records . . . for students placed in unapproved nonpublic schools."

The auditors recommended that "the district, in coordination with state and local officials, develop long-term goals that will address the costs associated with the rapid growth in the district."

In response to the auditors' findings regarding special education costs, Lakewood indicated that "no additional students will be placed in private programs without the approval of the Commissioner of Education," and in reply to the findings on transportation costs, Lakewood stated that the district was "piloting a staggered nonpublic school schedule for 7 of the largest nonpublic schools during the 2014-2015 school year based on the premise that all nonpublic schools will go to a staggered school schedule in the 2015-2016 school year, which is expected to greatly reduce transportation costs." Yet special education and transportation costs have continued to increase.

In sum, based on the foregoing testimony, exhibits, and publicly available information and data, I FIND that Lakewood Township has experienced a population boom that has had a profound impact on the municipality's private and public schools. The overall population growth in Lakewood Township over the past twenty years has been accompanied by an almost proportional rise in attendance at the municipality's private schools. Many of the private school students, who now number more than 30,000, are, by law, entitled to transportation to and from school at public expense. In addition to the significant transportation costs associated with private school students, the Lakewood Public School District also spends tens of millions of dollars in tuition each year to send a few hundred special education students to private schools. SFRA aid covers only a portion of these costs.

The school district's transportation and special education costs have strained its annual budgets and have led the school district down an unsustainable path of borrowing millions upon millions of dollars in the form of advance SFRA aid. The school district's financial difficulties have negatively affected its public school students, teachers, and programs. This is evident from a narrowed breadth of course offerings, relatively low per pupil classroom instruction spending and classroom teachers' salaries, and marked teacher turnover.

The 6,000+ public school students, nearly all of whom are Latinx and come from low-income homes where English is not the primary language, have fared poorly in terms of performance on English and Math assessments, graduation and dropout rates, and college enrollment.

In the past decade or so, the school district has been given recommendations by both the DOE and the State auditor for reigning in transportation and special education costs, and the Commissioner of Education has appointed a State monitor to oversee the school district's financial operations and to operate with a balanced budget. The continuation of State aid advances as an unreliable source of funding, and the obligation to reimburse the State over time, have contributed to the situation, as the school district's financial problems persist, and unrestrained growth continues in the Township.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The petitioners make the following arguments:

Point I.

The SFRA is unconstitutional as applied to LPSD [Lakewood Public School District] because it does not assure sufficient funds for the district's public school students to achieve a constitutionally required T&E.

A. LPSD's unique demographics make the SFRA formula an inapt and insufficient mechanism for assuring that LPSD has adequate funding for its public school students.

B. Neither the SFRA funding formula nor the adequacy budget related to the SFRA formula contemplate a demographic situation such as Lakewood's and make adequate provision for LPSD's unique demographics.

Point II.

The addition of periodic uncertain, unpredictable and discretionary funding, whether in the form of so-called state advance aid, which is effectively a state loan to LPSD, or of a year-end addition to the state budget by a legislative footnote, cannot cure SFRA's constitutional defect inconsistent with a thorough and efficient system of public schools.

A. To meet constitutional T&E requirements, funding must be formulaic, certain and not discretionary, predictable and transparent to adequately enable a school district to provide its public school students with T&E.

i) Funding must be pursuant to a discernable plan that correlated funding to T&E

ii) Funding must be guaranteed and not discretionary

iii) Funding must be predictable in order for a district to plan ahead and for the district to know how much it should spend on T&E

iv) Funding must be transparent so that the public and Legislature understand the needs of the district.

B. To meet constitutional T&E requirements, funding must be adequate to enable LPSD to provide its public school students, many of them requiring additional funding to address their at-risk status, with a meaningful opportunity to meet the NJ Student Learning Standards.

i) The uncertain discretionary funding of LPSD is inadequate to serve the educational needs of Lakewood's disadvantaged students.

ii) LPSD student outcomes fall far short of NJSLS standards.

C. The statute under which advance state aid is provided was not intended to apply to a situation such as LPSD's annually recurring fiscal shortfall.

i) The statutory advanced State aid provision and its substance suggest that advance State aid was an adjunct to the State monitors' role and a means to deal with short-term emergent circumstances brought on by fiscal mismanagement, not a mechanism for curing long-term structural problems with the SFRA funding formula.

ii) The Commissioner's annual certification pursuant to the statute does prove, however, that LPSD's regular SFRA funding is insufficient to provide its students with a T&E education.

D. Because advance state aid is a loan that must be repaid out of future state aid, it exacerbates LPSD's fiscal situation and burdens it with increasingly great obligations.

i) The Supreme Court of a sister state found that the state's use of loans to meet a district's ordinary operating expenses violated the though and efficient clause of its constitution.

ii) This problem is compounded by the fact that, after 2018-2019, LPSD will receive as state aid only transportation and categorical aids and not equalization aid, thus resulting in total state aid at best holding constant in future years, if not decreasing, and making repayment of LPSD's burgeoning debt to the state increasingly difficult.

iii) Advance state aid for ordinary expenses violates the efficiency standard of T&E.

iv) Advance state aid is available only to districts with state monitors in place.

Point III.

The presence in LPSD of as many as three monitors continuously since 2014 assures that the district is spending available funds appropriately.

Point IV.

Even if, arguendo, advance state aid and other forms of uncertain discretionary funding could be deemed to satisfy part of the state's obligation to assure that T&E is adequately funded, the facts in evidence demonstrate that LPSD still lacks adequate funding.

A. Funding is inadequate to prepare students for their roles as citizen and competitors in the labor market.

B. Funding is inadequate to serve the special educational needs of Lakewood students.

The respondents make the following arguments:

Point I.

The SFRA has been found to be constitutional.

Point II.

Petitioners have not shown that Lakewood is failing to provide them with a thorough and efficient education.

Point III.

The financial condition in Lakewood is the result of factors outside of the SFRA

A. The district has a history of mismanaging funds and has made choices against the interest of the public school students.

B. Local choices in the municipality contribute to the current financial conditions in Lakewood.

C. There is legislation outside of the confines of the SFRA that has affected the district.

Participant Trachtenberg argues:

Point I.

The SFRA of 2008 fails to provide the Lakewood School District with adequate funds to enable it to provide its approximately 6,000 public school students, most of them low-income Latino and Black, with the constitutionally required thorough and efficient education.

Point II.

Assuming it does not, then a constitutionally acceptable way in which the State can provide the LSD with sufficient supplemental non-SFRA funding must be determined.

Point III.

The state's arguments fail because that ignore or obfuscate the State's singular constitutional responsibility for assuring all state students, especially those who are at risk, receive a thorough and efficient education.

Participant Lakewood Township Board of Education argues:

Point I.

The Lakewood Township Board of Education public school district is not adequately funded, and the current state funding formula does not allow the Lakewood Township Board of Education to provide a thorough and efficient education to its public school students. A permanent statutory remedy is required.

Under the New Jersey Constitution, "[t]he Legislature shall provide for the maintenance and support of a thorough and efficient system of free public schools for the instruction of all the children in the State between the ages of five and eighteen years." N.J. Const. art. VIII, § 4, ¶ 1. Historically, the Legislature has sought to satisfy this constitutional mandate by passing various school funding statutes and by delegating certain powers and duties to the State Department of Education, the Commissioner of Education, the State Board of Education, and local school boards. Robinson v. Cahill, 69 N.J. 449, 458, 461 (1976); Bd. of Educ. v. City Council of Elizabeth, 55 N.J. 501, 505-6 (1970); Bd. of Educ. of Twp. of E. Brunswick v. Twp. Council of E. Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94 (1966).

Over the years, the Supreme Court has assessed the constitutionality of those legislative efforts through a series of opinions and orders known as the Abbott v. Burke litigation. The overarching theme of those judicial decisions is that "more severely disadvantaged pupils require more resources for their education" and that the legislative and executive branches must devise "a funding formula that . . . provide[s] all children, including disadvantaged children in poorer urban districts [commonly referred to as Abbott districts], with an equal educational opportunity as measured by the Constitution's thorough and efficient clause" and "a set of educational program standards." Abbott v. Burke, 199 N.J. 140, 144 (2009) (Abbott XX) (citing Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287, 374, 384-86 (1990) (Abbott II)); Abbott v. Burke, 136 N.J. 444 (1994) (Abbott III). According to the Court, "[a]t its core, a constitutionally adequate education [is] an education that will prepare public school children for a meaningful role in society, one that will enable them to compete effectively in the economy and to contribute and to participate as citizens and members of their communities." Abbott v. Burke, 149 N.J. 145, 166 (1997) (Abbott IV).

The State's current funding framework to provide New Jersey's public school children with a thorough and efficient education (T&E) is the School Funding Reform Act of 2008 (SFRA), N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-43 to -70, which was originally enacted in 2008, P.L. 2007, c. 260 (eff. January 13, 2008), and most recently amended in 2018, P.L. 2018, c. 67 (eff. July 24, 2018). In the SFRA, the Legislature made several pronouncements about every public school pupil's right to a constitutional education and the means by which that right may be realized. N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-44.

The SFRA recognized that "[t]he State, in addition to any constitutional mandates, has a moral obligation to ensure that New Jersey's children, wherever they reside, are provided the skills and knowledge necessary to succeed" and that "[a]ny school funding formula should provide the resources in a manner that optimizes the likelihood that children will receive an education that will make them productive members of society." N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-44(b). The SFRA also acknowledged that "[a]lthough the Supreme Court of New Jersey has held that prior school funding statutes did not establish a system of public education that was thorough and efficient" for Abbott districts, "the Court has consistently held that the Legislature has the responsibility to substantively define what constitutes a thorough and efficient system of education responsive to that constitutional requirement." N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-44(c).

The SFRA defines its funding formula as "an equitable and predictable way to distribute State aid that addresses the deficiencies found in past formulas as identified by the Supreme Court" by "accounting for the individual characteristics of school districts and the realities of their surroundings, including the need for additional resources to address the increased disadvantages created by high concentrations of children at-risk" and "provid[ing] adequate funding that is realistically geared to the core curriculum content standards (CCCS), thus linking those standards to the actual funding needed to deliver that content." N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-44(h) and (i).

The SFRA declared that "[e]very child in New Jersey must have an opportunity for an education based on academic standards that satisfy constitutional requirements regardless of where the child resides, and public funds allocated to this purpose must be expended to support schools that are thorough and efficient in delivering those educational standards." N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-44(d). Thus, "school districts must be assured the financial support necessary to provide those constitutionally compelled educational standards" and "[a]ny school funding formula should provide State aid for every school district based on the characteristics of the student population and up-to-date measures of the individual district's ability to pay." Ibid.

The SFRA included a "formula an expanded high-quality preschool program for all children who qualify for free and reduced price meals in all districts" because "[i]t is appropriate for the formula to acknowledge that at-risk children do not always receive the same educational exposure at an early age as their peers and to provide the additional resources necessary through high-quality preschool to prepare every child to learn and succeed." N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-44(k).

The SFRA directed the State Board of Education to "review and update the core curriculum content standards every five years . . . to ensure that all children are provided the educational opportunity needed to equip them for the role of citizen and labor market competitor," and stressed that the SFRA needed to "work in conjunction with the key school accountability measures that have been enacted in recent years to promote greater oversight, transparency, and efficiency in the delivery of educational services," including the New Jersey Quality Single Accountability Continuum, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-10, and the School District Fiscal Accountability Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-54 to -60. N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-46; N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-44(o).

In Abbott XX, 199 N.J. 140, the Supreme Court held that, through the SFRA, "[t]he legislative and executive branches have enacted a funding formula that is designed to achieve [T&E] for every child, regardless of where he or she lives" because the "SFRA is designed to provide school districts in this state, including the Abbott school districts, with adequate resources to provide the necessary educational programs consistent with state standards." Id. at 175, 147. In other words, the Court determined that "[t]he State [had] constructed a fair and equitable means designed to fund the costs of [T&E], measured against delivery of the CCCS."[36] Id. at 172.

In that case, the Court analyzed the various parts of the funding formula. As the Court explained, the "SFRA allocates state resources to school districts, while also requiring certain levels of funding at the local level" through a "weighted school funding formula." Id. at 152. The formula starts with a "base per pupil amount," which is "the cost per elementary pupil of delivering the core curriculum content standards and extracurricular and cocurricular activities necessary for [T&E]." Ibid; N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-45. The formula then accounts for increased education costs associated with higher grade levels, and impoverished, limited-English proficient, and special education students. Abbott, 199 N.J. at 152.

The SFRA funding formula includes an Adequacy Budget, which "is based on the community's wealth and ability to provide funding through local resources;" equalization aid, which "is State-provided aid to support the Adequacy Budget by funding the difference between a district's Local Fair Share (LFS) and its Adequacy Budget," and, categorical aid, which covers certain special education costs. Id. at 153-155.

The Court explained that "[a] district's LFS is the amount it is required to contribute in support of the Adequacy Budget" through taxes and "is determined by adding a district's equalized property wealth and its equalized income wealth." Id. at 155. A district is generally limited in its ability to raise taxes from year to year, N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-38, but "[a] school district may submit to the voters at the annual school election, or on such other date as is set by regulation of the commissioner, a proposal or proposals to increase the adjusted tax levy by more than the allowable amount," N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-39(c).

And with respect to special education costs, "one-third of special education is funded on the basis of Categorical Aid, 'regardless of the community's wealth,' while the other two-thirds of the special education funding is wealth equalized." Id. at 156. In addition, the SFRA provides Extraordinary Aid by which "[t]he State reimburses ninety percent of the costs over $40,000" for in-district special education programs, while "the State reimburses the districts seventy-five percent of the costs exceeding $55,000" for private, out-of-district special education placements. Id. at 157.

The SFRA also includes Transportation Aid for a district's busing costs associated with public and nonpublic school children entitled to transportation services in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 (providing transportation for children who live remote from school) and N.J.S.A. 18A:46-23 (providing transportation for special education students). N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-57.

In sum, the Court has described the SFRA as "a weighted formula, of many parts and layers" that "was carefully constructed to account for the myriad needs and cost considerations relevant when devising a permanent formula to perennially provide school districts with predictable amounts of sufficient resources that should permit the provision of educational services sufficient to enable pupils of all types everywhere to master the CCCS." Abbott XXI, 206 N.J. 332, 351-52. However, the Court has cautioned that the "SFRA will remain constitutional only if the State is firmly committed to ensuring that the formula provides those resources necessary for the delivery of State education standards across the State." Abbott XX, 199 N.J. at 170.

The State standards by which T&E is measured are now known as the New Jersey Student Learning Standards (NJSLS), which are designed to prepare students for college, career, and life. N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-46; N.J.A.C. 6A:8-1.1 to -5.3. The NJSLS specify expectations in nine academic areas (English; math; arts; health and PE; science; world languages; technology; 21st century life and careers). N.J.A.C. 6A:8-1.1. School districts are required to "align their curriculum and instructional methodologies to assist all students in achieving the NJSLS and to prepare all students for college and career" and "[p]rogress toward meeting the NJSLS [is] measured by the Statewide assessment system at grades three through 12[.]" N.J.A.C. 6A:8-1.2(c) and (d).

The state regulations governing the NJSLS set forth requirements that districts must meet in terms of curriculum and instruction, the statewide assessment system, and graduation. N.J.A.C. 6A:8-3.1 to –5.3. First, school districts must "ensure that curriculum and instruction are designed and delivered in such a way that all students are able to demonstrate the knowledge and skills specified by the NJSLS and shall ensure that appropriate instructional adaptations are designed and delivered for students with disabilities, for ELLs [English Language Learners], for students enrolled in alternative education programs, and for students who are gifted and talented." N.J.A.C. 6A:8-3.1(a).

Second, school districts "shall, according to a schedule prescribed by the Commissioner, administer the applicable Statewide assessments, including the following major components: the elementary assessment component for grades three through five; the middle school assessment component for grades six through eight, [and] the high school end-of-course PARCC assessments." N.J.A.C. 6A:8-4.1(c). These assessments test a student's achievement or proficiency in the areas of English, math, and/or science. Ibid.

The Department of Education "shall review the performance of schools and school districts by using a percent of students performing at the proficient level as one measure of AMO [annual measurable objectives] and incorporating a progress criterion indicative of systemic reform," N.J.A.C. 6A:8-4.4, and school districts "shall provide appropriate instruction to improve skills and knowledge for students performing below the established levels of student proficiency in any content area either on the Statewide or local assessments," N.J.A.C. 6A:8-4.3(c).

Finally, "[f]or a State-endorsed diploma, district boards of education shall develop, adopt, and implement local graduation requirements that prepare students for success in post-secondary degree programs, careers, and civic life in the 21st century[.]" N.J.A.C. 6A:8-5.1(a).

The Department of Education also has "rules to implement the New Jersey Quality Single Accountability Continuum (NJQSAC) system, as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-3 et seq., for evaluating and monitoring all school districts in the State." N.J.A.C. 6A:30-1.1. Through NJQSAC, "school districts are evaluated in five key component areas of school district effectiveness -- instruction and program, personnel, fiscal management, operations, and governance -- to determine the extent to which school districts are providing [T&E]." Ibid. Further, "[t]he standards and criteria by which school districts are evaluated will assess actual achievement, progress toward proficiency, local capacity to operate without State intervention, and the need for State support and assistance." Ibid.

If a school district "satisfies at least 80 percent of the weighted quality performance indicators in each of the five key components of school district effectiveness," the Commissioner shall designate the district as 'high performing' and the State Board, upon the Commissioner's recommendation, may "certify, for a period of three years, the school district as providing a thorough and efficient education." N.J.A.C. 6A:30-4.1. However, "[s]chool districts that satisfy less than 80 percent of the weighted quality performance indicators in one or more of the key components of school district effectiveness shall commence improvement activities[.]" N.J.A.C. 6A:30-5.2.

Another important component of the state education system's T&E mandate are regulatory and statutory fiscal accountability, efficiency, and budgeting procedures for school districts. First, state rules "assure the financial accountability of district boards of education through enhanced State monitoring, oversight, and authority, and [...] ensure [that] each district board of education adopts an annual budget that provides adequate resources to meet the State Constitution's mandate for a thorough and efficient system of free public schools for all children" and "ensure the efficient expenditure of budgeted funds in a manner consistent with a school district's approved annual budget." N.J.A.C. 6A:23-1.1.

In addition, and particularly relevant to this matter, is the School District Fiscal Accountability Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-54 to-59. Under that act, "the Commissioner of Education shall have the authority to appoint a State monitor and additional staff, as necessary, to provide direct oversight of a board of education's business operations and personnel matters if: the school district receives an adverse or a disclaimer of opinion by its independent auditor in the annual audit required pursuant to N.J.S.18A:23-1" or other fiscal circumstances. N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-55(a). Once appointed, "[t]he State monitor shall provide oversight in the school district until the commissioner determines that all remedial actions required under the plan have been implemented and the necessary local capacity and fiscal controls have been restored to school district operations." N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-55(e).

Finally, the Act makes possible the receipt of financial loans for school districts with a State fiscal monitor. Specifically, "[t]he Commissioner of Education shall recommend to the State Treasurer whether an advance State aid payment should be made to a school district for which a State monitor has been appointed." N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-56(a). The act states that "[t]he commissioner's recommendation shall be based on whether the payment is necessary to ensure the provision of a thorough and efficient education." Ibid.

If a school district receives such aid, "[t]he advance State aid payment shall be repaid by the school district through automatic reductions in the State aid provided to the school district in subsequent years" and "[t]he term of the repayment shall not exceed 10 years, but may be for a shorter term as determined by the State Treasurer." N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-56(b).

While the Court has a lengthy history of assessing the constitutionality of various school funding statutes as applied to poor, urban school districts, the Court has yet to address whether a particular school funding statute, as applied to other school districts, has failed to provide T&E. Specifically, as the Court has noted: "[w]hile substandard educational conditions – perhaps of constitutional dimension – may exist in districts other than those that have been designated as Abbott districts, this Court has never stipulated any remedy, nor even found a constitutional violation, for children in non-Abbott districts."[37] Abbott v. Burke, 206 N.J. 332, 371 (2011) (Abbott XXI).

This is precisely the issue raised by petitioners in this matter. They allege that the SFRA's funding formula is unconstitutional as applied to Lakewood, a non-Abbott district, such that Lakewood does not receive sufficient funding under the SFRA to provide its public school students with T&E because the SFRA does not take into account the extraordinary costs that Lakewood incurs to provide transportation and special education services to a large number of students attending private schools in the district.

The Court has instructed that "[w]hether a statute passes a constitutional challenge 'as-applied' to any individual school district at any particular time must be determined only in the factual context presented and in the light of circumstances as they appear." Abbott XX, 199 N.J. at 235 (citing Robinson, 69 N.J. at 455). The Court has also cautioned that "[i]t is well recognized that legislative enactments enjoy a presumption of validity," and that "[w]henever a challenge is raised to the constitutionality of a statute, there is a strong presumption that the statute is constitutional." Ibid (citations omitted).

To prevail in this case, petitioners have the burden of showing that (1) Lakewood's public school children are not receiving T&E and (2) the reason for the deprivation of their constitutional right to T&E is the SFRA. Specifically, whether the SFRA is unconstitutional as applied to Lakewood "turn[s] on proof that plaintiffs suffer educational inequities and these inequities derive, in significant part, from the funding provisions" of the SFRA. Abbott v. Burke (Abbott I), 100 N.J. 269, 296 (1985). As part of their proofs, petitioners must show that Lakewood "has done all it can do with statutorily available resources and improvement mechanisms, yet still cannot provide T&E because the statutory funding scheme generates insufficient monies for this purpose." Bacon v. Dep't of Educ., 2003 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 1195, *15 (Comm'r, Feb. 10, 2003).

Importantly, "the Court has repeatedly acknowledged and approved the administrative handling of educational controversies that arise in the context of constitutional and statutory litigation" because "ultimate constitutional issues are especially fact-sensitive and relate primarily to areas of educational specialization." Id. at 300.

As such, this matter, which implicates fact-sensitive constitutional issues in the educational context, is appropriately before the Commissioner of Education, who transmitted the controversy between petitioners and respondents to the OAL for a hearing. The OAL has been tasked with "conduct[ing] a thorough hearing" for the "development of a complete and informed record, which will reflect determinations of appropriate administrative issues as well as the resolution of factual matters material to the ultimate constitutional issues." Id. at 303. And "in order to discharge this responsibility in a way that makes sense, the first-instance decision makers, the ALJ and the agency head, must fully address such constitutional issues raised as are necessary to the decision, and resolve them in principled fashion by their best lights, subject, of course, to judicial review. Jones v. Dep't of Cmnty. Affairs, 395 N.J. Super. 632, 636-37 (App.Div.2007) (citing Roadway Express, Inc. v. Kingsley, 37 N.J. 136, 14-42 (1962)).

I. Is Lakewood delivering T&E to its public school students?

In order to prevail on their claim that the SFRA is unconstitutional as applied to Lakewood because the SFRA provides insufficient funding for Lakewood to provide its students with T&E, petitioners must first show that Lakewood's public school students are not receiving T&E. For the following reasons, I CONCLUDE that petitioners have met their burden of showing that Lakewood's students are not receiving T&E.

As noted above, the State standards by which T&E is measured are the NJSLS, which are designed to prepare students for college, career, and life. School districts are required to "align their curriculum and instructional methodologies to assist all students in achieving the NJSLS and to prepare all students for college and career" and "[p]rogress toward meeting the NJSLS shall be measured by the Statewide assessment system at grades three through 12[.]" Thus, the NJSLS include requirements for curriculum and instruction, the statewide assessment system, and graduation.

Indeed, the Court has previously pronounced that whether a school district's children are receiving T&E can be measured by such educational outputs as "their test scores, their dropout rate, [and] their attendance at college[.]" Abbott II, 119 N.J. at 391. Other indicia of T&E include educational inputs such as "teacher-student ratios and the education and experience level of the professional staff, as well as facilities to accommodate appropriate class sizes, science labs, media centers and libraries, and the availability of advanced placement courses and programs for gifted students, art and music programs and quality physical education programs." Bacon v. Dep't of Educ., 2006 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 108, *62.

By most of these measures, the education received by Lakewood's students is constitutionally inadequate and they are not being sufficiently prepared for college, career, and life. First, while Lakewood's curriculum aligns with the NJSLS requirements for graduation, and the district offers courses in AP English and Spanish, and several classes in music, art, and computers, the district has cut programs for industrial arts and auto mechanics, and the only foreign language study offered in-district is Spanish. Moreover, the district offers general education preschool to four-year-olds, but not three-year-olds.

While these deficiencies alone do not suggest that Lakewood's students are not getting T&E, there are other factors indicative of a lack of T&E. Chief among those proofs are standardized test scores in the district. While there was testimony at hearing of improving test scores, the data show that Lakewood's test scores are woeful when considered in isolation and when compared to other districts.

For the 2014-2015 school year, only twenty-three percent of high school students met or exceeded expectations on the PARCC assessment for English, placing them in the twenty-third percentile in the State, while only five percent of high school students met or exceeded expectations on the PARCC assessment for Math. On the Biology assessment, only thirty-two percent of high school students were proficient, while sixty-eight percent were partially proficient.

On the SAT, only six percent of students scored above the benchmark of 1550, placing Lakewood High School in the thirteenth percentile in the State and well below the Statewide target of forty percent. And a mere twelve percent of students scored a three on an AP test or a four on an IB test, while the State average was seventy-two percent.

For the 2015-2016 school year, twenty-three percent of high school students met or exceeded expectations on English assessments, or the twenty-third percentile in the State, while seven percent of high school students met or exceeded expectations on Math assessments, or the thirteenth percentile in the State. And on the Biology assessment, only twenty-two percent were proficient, compared with a forty-one percent State average.

On the SAT, twenty-three percent met the College Readiness Benchmarks on the reading and writing portion, compared with seventy-one percent Statewide, and on the math section, eleven percent met the benchmarks, compared with fifty-three percent Statewide.

In 2016-2017, only twenty-five percent of students met or exceeded expectations on state English assessments, and only eighteen percent met or exceeded expectations on state Math assessments. This means that three-quarters or more of Lakewood's students did not meet expectations on English and Math assessments. And in 2017-2018, the scores improved only slightly: twenty-eight percent of students met or exceeded expectations on state English assessments, and twenty percent met or exceeded expectations on state Math assessments. Finally, in 2018-2019, some of the scores continued to improve, but still fell well below State averages. Thirty-three percent of students met or exceeded expectations on state English assessments, and only twenty-one percent met or exceeded expectations on state Math assessments.

Other T&E measurements are equally troubling. The district's chronic absenteeism rates were well above or close to the State average during the 2016-2017, 2017-2018, and 2018-2019 school years. In 2014-2015 and 2015-2016, the district's dropout rates were much higher than the Statewide targets for those years.

Lakewood's graduation rate improved somewhat from close to 75% in 2014-2015, 2015-2016, and 2016-2017 to 82% in 2017-2018 and 81% for 2018-2019, yet still fell well under the State average of about 90%. Lakewood also suffers from a low rate of college enrollment: 44% versus a State average of 78% in 2014-2015; 37% versus a State average of 77% in 2015-2016; 44% against a State average of 76% in 2016-2017; 41% versus 78% in 2017-2018; and, 40% versus 78% in 2018-2019. And the district's students fared no better in terms of AP enrollment, with rates of 17% and 21% in 2017-2018 and 2018-2019, for example, as opposed to State averages of 35% during those same years.

Finally, under another measurement of whether a school district is providing T&E – NJQSAC – for the 2016-2017 school year, Lakewood scored at 54% in the category of instruction and program, which measures such things as student performance and progress on state assessments, graduation rates, and alignment of curriculum to state standards, well below the benchmark of 80%.

Thus, when viewed alone or when compared with other districts, the educational output data show that Lakewood's students are receiving an education that falls short of T&E.

In a district in which 100% of the student body is eligible for free or reduced price lunch based on household income and which has a high percentage of ESL and LEP students, Lakewood undoubtedly faces obstacles in its attempt to deliver T&E to its pupils. However, there is evidence to suggest that Lakewood is not providing certain educational inputs to help the district meet its constitutional obligation to its students.

In terms of teachers, teacher turnover is significant in Lakewood; the average teacher in Lakewood has between only four and five years of experience; Lakewood must spend significant money on teacher development and training. There is also a lack of remediation/intervention specialists in the district to give struggling students extra educational support.

Lakewood also struggles in terms of per pupil classroom instruction spending and classroom salaries. For example, Lakewood spent $7,427 per pupil on classroom instruction for 2016-2017, which ranked as the second lowest amount among the ninety-eight school K-12 districts with more than 3,500 pupils. And, for the same school year, Lakewood spent $6,906 per pupil on classroom salaries, which also ranked as the second lowest among comparably-sized school districts.

Finally, Lakewood lacks a comprehensive preschool program that includes general education preschool for three-year-old children, and instead only offers general education preschool for four-year-olds and special education preschool for three- and four-year-olds. However, as the DOE noted in its Lakewood Needs Assessment more than a decade ago, a "successful strategy for improving student performance is to provide a high-quality preschool program as required by the SFRA."

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE petitioners have shown by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Lakewood's students are not receiving a thorough and efficient education as required by the New Jersey Constitution. The statistics sadly indicate that Lakewood's students are not prepared for college, career, or life due to a constitutionally inadequate education. In other words, petitioners have offered sufficient "proof that [Lakewood's students] suffer educational inequities."

II. Is the SFRA unconstitutional as applied to Lakewood?

However, to succeed on their claim that the reason Lakewood cannot provide T&E is the SFRA, such that the SFRA is unconstitutional as applied to Lakewood, petitioners must also prove that the educational "inequities derive, in significant part, from the funding provisions" of the SFRA. This is a heavy burden because "it is well recognized that legislative enactments enjoy a presumption of validity" and "[w]henever a challenge is raised to the constitutionality of a statute, there is a strong presumption that the statute is constitutional." For the reasons that follow, I CONCLUDE that petitioners have failed to carry their burden.

Petitioners contend that the SFRA's funding formula is unconstitutional as applied to Lakewood Township's 6,000+ public school students, such that Lakewood does not receive sufficient funding under the SFRA to provide its public school students with T&E because the SFRA does not take into account the extraordinary costs that Lakewood incurs to provide transportation and special education services to a large number of nonpublic school students, who total more than 30,000.[38]

[38] N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1 requires Lakewood to provide transportation at public expense for public and nonpublic students who live remote from school; Lakewood is also "responsible for providing a system of free, appropriate special education and related services to students with disabilities age three through 21," services which must "[b]e provided at public expense, under public supervision, and with no charge to the parent." N.J.A.C. 6A:1-1.1; N.J.S.A. 18A:46-1 to -55.

In their second amended petition, petitioners submit that the large sum Lakewood spends on mandatory transportation and special education for private school students "consume[s] about 40% of the [district's] budget" and means that the money then available for public school students is "substantially less than SFRA's adequacy budget" for Lakewood. Petitioners allege that "[t]he Commissioner of Education and the State Treasurer have formally recognized [between 2015 and 2018] that SFRA funding is inadequate to provide [Lakewood] public school students with a T&E education by providing, in dramatically increasing amounts, 'advance state aid' or 'emergency loans.'"

However, petitioners maintain that continued receipt of these loans is not only unsustainable, but also unpredictable, and that due to the inexorable rise of nonpublic school students and the associated transportation and special education costs, the district needs sufficient and predictable funding through the SFRA to provide the public school students with T&E. As such, petitioners urge that "the Commissioner recommends that this matter be remedied by the Legislature."

In response, respondents contend that Lakewood's financial difficulties are not the result of the SFRA, but instead due to other reasons. These other reasons, according to respondents, include (1) Lakewood's history of fiscal mismanagement (2) community choices (3) and legislation other than the SFRA.

These reasons proffered by respondents shall be considered in turn and, together with other factors to be discussed, lead to the conclusion that the SFRA is not unconstitutional as applied to Lakewood because the lack of T&E in Lakewood is not due, in significant part, to the SFRA. Put another way, petitioners have failed to prove that, even if Lakewood had taken certain actions within its powers and discretion, the SFRA would still not provide Lakewood with adequate funding to deliver T&E.

Fiscal mismanagement by Lakewood

Respondents persuasively argue that a significant reason for additional unavailable funds for the provision of T&E is choices Lakewood made with respect to the tax levy authorized under the SFRA. Respondents note that, while there is a tax levy cap, Lakewood chose not to raise the levy to the cap for several years. In particular, "from 2011-2014, as the non-public student population was rapidly increasing in the Township, the District decided to keep the levy stagnant." And although the state monitor, once installed in 2014, required Lakewood to increase the levy, respondents correctly assert that the decision not to increase the levy during the previous years "means that the District is now not taxing up to its local fair share" and that "not only was the District not generating money that it could have been during that time period, but that any additional revenue from increasing the levy would have compounded." This is additional revenue that could have gone to support Lakewood's obligation to provide and fund T&E to its public school students.

Community choices

Respondents also point to other reasons for Lakewood's financial struggles separate and apart from the SFRA funding formula, including "local choices" such as "zoning for private schools; expansive new construction allowing for an influx of new residents; determinations to send children to non-public schools that mandate transportation due to distance; and the community's determination not to pass referendums for additional funding pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-40 or a second question [under N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-39]."

While municipal and community decisions regarding zoning, new construction, and selection of private schools may play roles in Lakewood's extraordinary transportation and special education costs, respondents did not provide expansive evidence on these subjects, and thus no findings of fact were made regarding those issues.

However, both respondents and petitioners did present certain evidence regarding Lakewood's efforts, or lack thereof, to raise taxes as permitted under N.J.S.A. 18A:22-40 and N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-39. Under N.J.S.A. 18A:22-40, a school district may "raise additional sums of money, over and above the amount fixed and determined in the last annual school budget, by special district tax, for general fund expenses," and under N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-39, a school district "may submit to the voters at the annual school election, or on such other date as is set by regulation of the commissioner, a proposal or proposals to increase the adjusted tax levy by more than the allowable amount authorized pursuant to [N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-38]" and, if approved by the electorate, may be used to finance non-T&E programs or services.

The only instance in which Lakewood availed itself of its powers and discretion under N.J.S.A. 18A:22-40 and N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-39 between school years 2014-2015 and 2018-2019 was in 2016, when Lakewood put to a public vote a referendum to increase the school tax levy to raise more than $6M to help pay for transportation costs. While that measure was defeated by Lakewood Township voters by a margin of 99% to 1%, N.J.S.A. 18A:22-40 and N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-39 at least present opportunities for Lakewood to ameliorate its financial difficulties.

Other legislation

In addition to N.J.S.A. 18A:22-40 and N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-39, respondents point out that there is other legislation outside of the SFRA that has affected Lakewood financially. N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-38 places a tax levy cap on school districts by preventing a school district from seeking "an increase in its adjusted tax levy that exceeds . . . tax levy growth limitation calculated as follows: the sum of the prebudget year adjusted tax levy and the adjustment for increases in enrollment multiplied by 2.0 percent, and adjustments for an increase in health care costs, increases in amounts for certain normal and accrued liability pension contributions." That restriction may be overridden through voter approval under N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-39, as discussed above.

And the annual Appropriations Act also affects the amount of money Lakewood receives through the SFRA. Under the Appropriations Clause of the New Jersey Constitution, "[n]o money shall be drawn from the State treasury but for appropriations made by law." N.J. Const. art. VIII, § 2, ¶ 2. Pursuant to this constitutional clause, "the power and authority to appropriate funds is vested in the Legislature," Burgos v. State, 222 N.J. 175, 206 (2015), and "[o]ur Constitution firmly interdicts the expenditure of state monies through separate statutes not otherwise related to or integrated with the general appropriation act governing the state budget for a given fiscal year." City of Camden v. Byrne, 82 N.J. 133, 162 (1980).

Thus, although the Governor makes budget recommendations to the Legislature, and the SFRA requires that, within two days of the Governor's budget message to the Legislature, the Commissioner "shall notify each district of the maximum amount of aid payable to the district in the succeeding school year . . . and shall notify each district of the district's adequacy budget for the succeeding school year," the amount of aid a district actually receives is dictated by the Legislature's annual Appropriations Act. N.J.S.A. 52:27B-20; N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-5(a). As a result, for the 2018-2019 school year, for example, Lakewood would have received roughly $13M in transportation aid if fully funded, but only received $3M through the Appropriations Act; and for the same year, Lakewood's special education categorical aid was supposed to be $5M, but the Legislature instead appropriated $3M in such aid.

All of the above supports the conclusion that petitioners have not shown that the SFRA is solely or significantly to blame for Lakewood's inability to provide its public school students with T&E. And there are other reasons, separate from the SFRA, that further support this conclusion.

These reasons include a lack of a comprehensive preschool program and Lakewood's transportation and special education spending, issues that were first identified and highlighted more than a decade ago in the Lakewood Needs Assessment issued by DOE. The purpose of the needs assessment was to "assess[] the adequacy of the educational inputs and programming currently being provided" and to "identify the unique educational needs of the students in those districts requiring additional programs to address them" as "a prerequisite to ensuring that adequate resources, including fiscal resources, are provided and appropriate accountability for their use is guaranteed."

Then, as now, a large portion of Lakewood's budget was devoted to transportation and special education costs. On transportation costs, the Department stated in the needs assessment that "[t]he district is aware that the high cost of transportation, due to increased numbers of nonpublic students, staggered start times and its courtesy busing policy [under which the district opted to spend during the 2008-2009 school year $4M on busing private school students who did not live remote from their schools], is a significant financial drain." The Department recommended that Lakewood reconsider its courtesy busing policy to cut its transportation costs.

In the many years since that assessment, not much has changed. To be sure, Lakewood has taken some steps to reduce some of its transportation costs. For instance, the record shows that Lakewood stopped providing courtesy busing at its own expense in 2016, several years after the Department issued the needs assessment. Also, in response to the 2014 State audit recommendations for reducing transportation costs, Lakewood assured that it would be "piloting a staggered nonpublic school schedule for 7 of the largest nonpublic schools during the 2014-2015 school year based on the premise that all nonpublic schools will go to a staggered school schedule in the 2015-2016 school year, which is expected to greatly reduce transportation costs."[39] The Legislature also provided help to the district through the LSTA pilot program, N.J.S.A. 18A:39-1d, through which the Legislature subsidized the busing of remote nonpublic school children in Lakewood for school years 2016-2017, 2017-2018, and 2018-2019.

Despite these measures, Lakewood's transportation costs have continued to increase annually, from $23M in 2014-2015 to $31M in 2018-2019. Yet there is an absence of evidence in the record to indicate that these rising costs are totally attributable to the rising number of nonpublic school students, and that Lakewood has done everything it can to rein in its transportation costs in order to free up more funds for T&E for its public school students.

As with its transportation costs, Lakewood's special education costs have continued to consume a huge portion of the district's budget in the years since the needs assessment. Then, as now, Lakewood has a "large budget expenditure is for out-of-district special education placements, which includes transportation for those students." In the needs assessment, the Department urged Lakewood to "continue to develop strategies to educate more of its special education students in-district." However, the record in this matter is short on evidence of the steps Lakewood has actually taken to save money by educating more of its special education students in a district-run program.

[39] It is unclear from the record whether all nonpublic schools actually staggered their schedules for the 2015-2016 school year, or any other school year.

The record shows that in 2018-2019, for example, Lakewood sent 343 special education pupils to private school placements at a total cost of $33M in tuition. That is an average of nearly $100,000 in tuition per student. Petitioners presented scant evidence of the district's efforts to educate more of these children in-district, which could save Lakewood substantial sums and result in more aid. Indeed, the SFRA provides Extraordinary Aid by which "[t]he State reimburses ninety percent of the costs over $40,000" for in-district special education programs, while "the State reimburses the districts seventy-five percent of the costs exceeding $55,000" for private, out-of-district special education placements. That is a substantial difference.

Petitioners may argue that these 343 students could not possibly be educated in-district due to the nature of their disabilities. Even if true, under the SFRA:

> A school district may apply to the commissioner to receive additional special education categorical aid if the district has an unusually high rate of low-incidence disabilities, such as autism, deaf/blindness, severe cognitive impairment, and medically fragile. In applying for the aid the district shall: demonstrate the impact of the unusually high rate of low-incidence disabilities on the school district budget and the extent to which the costs to the district are not sufficiently addressed through special education aid and extraordinary special education aid; and provide details of all special education expenditures, including details on the use of federal funds to support those expenditures.
> [N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-55(g).]

Petitioners did not present any evidence that Lakewood was ineligible for or tried to avail itself of this statutory option for additional special education aid.

In their amended petition, petitioners themselves suggested another possible avenue for Lakewood to bolster its in-district program by asking the Commissioner to "fully finance the building of an in-district facility for students with extraordinary special education needs pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:7G-5(k)" in order to cut down on special education costs associated with private placements.[40] Yet there is no evidence Lakewood has applied to the Commissioner for approval of any such project.

Finally, aside from insufficient evidence of adequate efforts by Lakewood to either raise additional revenue or reduce transportation and special education spending in order to provide T&E to its children, another way in which Lakewood could increase its chances at delivering T&E is through a comprehensive preschool program for at-risk children. As the Department suggested in its Needs Assessment one "successful strategy for improving student performance is to provide a high quality preschool program as required by the SFRA." Certainly, the Legislature recognized through the SFRA that "at-risk children do not always receive the same educational exposure at an early age as their peers" and sought to provide "additional resources necessary through high-quality preschool to prepare every child to learn and succeed." Nonetheless, Lakewood's superintendent testified at hearing that the district offers preschool to three- and four-year-old special education students, but only offers general education preschool to four-year-old, and not three-year-old, children. Petitioners have also not provided any evidence that Lakewood has attempted to or is ineligible for any State financing under N.J.S.A. 18A:7G-5 for a preschool facility to accommodate more at-risk, non-special education children.

In light of all these reasons for Lakewood's lack of additional revenue or additional savings that could buttress the district's efforts to deliver T&E, reasons separate from the SFRA funding formula as applied to Lakewood, I CONCLUDE that petitioners have failed to carry their heavy burden to show that the SFRA is the substantial or a significant reason Lakewood cannot provide T&E such that the SFRA is unconstitutional as applied to Lakewood.

However, the fact remains that petitioners have shown that, for the years at issue, Lakewood's children did not receive T&E, and that deprivation cannot go unremedied. For their part, respondents assert that the Commissioner has gone to great lengths to assist Lakewood in its obligation to deliver T&E, including the installation of a State monitor to help with district finances and through the many millions of dollars in advance State aid that Lakewood received between 2015 and 2018. Nonetheless, these measures have not ensured that Lakewood's students receive T&E. Moreover, Lakewood's continued receipt of advance state aid is unsustainable and only serves to exacerbate Lakewood's financial difficulties by requiring Lakewood to repay these loans with future state aid.

As discussed above, there are many steps Lakewood could potentially take to help itself in its quest to provide T&E: develop a comprehensive preschool program for at-risk children; find ways to cut transportation costs so more money may be devoted to educating public school students; improve and expand the in-district special education program to reduce expensive private school placements. Unfortunately, Lakewood has either been unwilling or unable, on its own, to take all necessary steps to deliver T&E to the public school populace. Lakewood needs more help.

That is why, as in Bacon v. Dep't of Educ., 2006 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 108, in which the State Board of Education recognized that "the mandate of the New Jersey Constitution and [the State Board and Commissioner's] statutory responsibility for the general supervision and control of public education in this state require that we exercise our authority . . . to ensure that the educational deficits shown by the record . . . are addressed" through a needs assessment, I hereby CONCLUDE and RECOMMEND to the Commissioner that she conduct another needs assessment for Lakewood similar to the one conducted under the auspices of Bacon.

The purpose and goal of a new needs assessment would be the same as the needs assessment conducted over a decade ago: "an assessment of the educational needs and the identification of approaches that will successfully address those needs is a prerequisite to ensuring that adequate resources, including fiscal resources, are provided and appropriate accountability for their use is guaranteed." Through a needs assessment, the Commissioner would be able to deploy from within the Department of Education policy experts in the areas of school transportation, special education, and preschool education who could assist Lakewood in identifying approaches and strategies that need to be implemented to ensure that Lakewood can maximize its resources in order to deliver the thorough and efficient education to which Lakewood's public school students are constitutional entitled.[41]

ORDER

The petitioners' application to declare that Lakewood cannot provide a though and efficient education to its public school students is GRANTED; the petitioner's application to declare the SFRA unconstitutional as applied to Lakewood is DENIED. However, based on the record presented, it is hereby RECOMMENDED to the Commissioner that a current Needs Assessment regarding the ability of Lakewood to deliver a thorough and efficient education to its public school students be undertaken with appropriate recommendations to the district.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

[41] The petitioners seek a legislative remedy to be proposed by the Commissioner. The Needs Assessment can assist in that regard.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

J.B., on behalf of minor child, R.B.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Bergen County Vocational Technical School District, Bergen County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

In this matter on remand, pro se petitioner filed an appeal in July 2019 on behalf of R.B., alleging that his daughter's religious practices prevented her from competing academically with her classmates and that the respondent Board failed to make accommodations for those religious practices, in violation of Board policy. Further, petitioner alleged his daughter's guidance counselor made a statement to R.B. that constituted a violation of the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act (ABRA), and that the respondent Board failed to investigate these allegations, in violation of the Act. The Board filed a motion to dismiss in lieu of an answer. Following transmittal of the matter to the OAL, an Initial Decision was issued in November 2019, dismissing the petition as untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). In December 2019, the Commissioner determined that the record did not contain sufficient information to render a decision, and the matter was remanded to the OAL for supplementation of the record.

On remand, the ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no genuine issues of material fact here, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; R.B. graduated in 2018 and is now a full-time college student; the incidents at issue here occurred during the 2016-17 school year; petitioner submitted complaints in October 2017 regarding R.B.'s grades which were based on alleged conflicts with religious practices and lack of religious accommodation, and were not HIB complaints; the Board granted in part and denied in part the grade appeals in a November 2017 final decision; in July 2018, petitioner attempted to recast his grade appeals as HIB complaints, claiming that he had referenced harassment in the grade appeals; petitioner alleged that R.B.'s guidance counselor had harassed her when he asked, "What's more important to you, your religion or your schoolwork?"; the Superintendent however informed petitioner by letter dated August 6, 2018 that the complaint of harassment against the guidance counselor was found not to be an HIB complaint; petitioner's appeal was not filed until July 16, 2019. The ALJ concluded that the petition was untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i); accordingly, the Board's motion for summary decision was granted and the petition was dismissed.

Upon review, the Commissioner, inter alia, concurred with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ in this matter, and found petitioner's exceptions to be unpersuasive. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

J.B., on behalf of minor child, R.B.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Bergen County Vocational Technical School District, Bergen County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed by the petitioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. The Board's reply was untimely and will not be considered.

In July 2019, petitioning parent filed an appeal alleging that his daughter's religious practices prevented her from competing academically with her classmates and that the respondent Board failed to make accommodations for those religious practices, in violation of Board policy. Further, petitioner alleged his daughter's guidance counselor made a statement to R.B. that constituted a violation of the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act (ABRA), and that the respondent Board failed to investigate these allegations, in violation of the Act. Following transmittal of the matter to the OAL, an Initial Decision was issued in November 2019, dismissing the petition as untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). In December 2019, the Commissioner determined that the record did not contain sufficient information to render a decision, and the matter was remanded to the OAL for supplementation of the record.

On remand, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that the two complaints petitioner submitted to the district in October 2017 were appeals regarding his daughter's grades – based on alleged conflicts with religious practices and a lack of religious accommodations – and not HIB complaints. The Board issued a final decision on the grade appeals on November 10, 2017. The ALJ found that eight months later, in July 2018, petitioner attempted to recast his grade appeals to the Board as HIB complaints, claiming he had referenced harassment in the grade appeals. Petitioner alleged that R.B.'s guidance counselor had harassed her the prior year when he asked, "What's more important to you, your religion or your schoolwork?" By letter dated August 6, 2018, the Superintendent informed petitioner that the complaint of harassment against the guidance counselor was determined not to be an HIB complaint, but the counselor was nevertheless removed from working with R.B. On August 20, 2018, the Superintendent reiterated that the complaint regarding the guidance counselor was determined not to be an HIB complaint; rather, it was investigated in accordance with the school's affirmative action policies and procedures.

The ALJ found that the August 6, 2018 letter was notice of the final action regarding the HIB complaint. The ALJ concluded that, as the petition challenging the district's handling of the HIB complaint was not filed until July 2019, it was filed outside the 90-day limitations period set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). The ALJ also found that petitioner's correspondence with district officials following this final notice – including the Board attorney's April 16, 2019 letter stating that petitioner's complaints were not subject to HIB policies as they were never reported as such – did not toll the statute of limitations. As such, the ALJ dismissed the petition as out of time.

In his exceptions, petitioner argues that the Board's final determination was the April 16, 2019 letter following his Board hearing, and not the August 6, 2018 letter from the Superintendent. Petitioner maintains that his petition was not out of time because he was required to pursue all avenues before appealing. Petitioner contends that it would have been premature to file a petition before he met with the superintendent and the Board. Petitioner also argues that it is unfair that he is being held to strict deadlines when the Board could file a late motion for summary decision. Additionally, petitioner maintains that summary decision was improper as there are genuine issues of disputed fact – such as whether the guidance counselor's statement constitutes harassment and whether a reasonable accommodation was provided – and that the Board never responded to discovery requests. As such, petitioner urges the Commissioner to reject the Initial Decision.

Upon review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that this matter should be dismissed as untimely as it was filed outside the 90-day limitations period set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). First, the Commissioner finds that the complaints filed by petitioner in October 2017 were grade appeals, and not HIB complaints. Despite the use of the word harassment, the subject matter of those complaints was a challenge to R.B.'s grades and the argument that she was not provided with an accommodation for schoolwork due to her religion. Petitioner referred to those complaints as grade appeals, not HIB complaints, and the final determination on those grade appeals was on November 10, 2017, which petitioner did not challenge. Accordingly, to the extent that petitioner makes any arguments regarding religious accommodations or R.B.'s grades, such arguments are out of time.

Petitioner contacted the school eight months later – in July 2018, after R.B. had graduated and turned 18 years old[1] – to protest that his harassment complaint against the guidance counselor was not investigated in accordance with school policy. The Commissioner finds that the Superintendent's responses on August 6 and August 20, 2018 informed petitioner that the complaints against the guidance counselor were not investigated as HIB but rather were investigated in accordance with affirmative action policies and procedures. Accordingly, petitioner received final notice in August 2018 that any potential HIB complaint petitioner purports to have submitted was not investigated as such. Subsequent communications with the Superintendent or the Board attorney – which reiterated the district's position on how petitioner's complaint regarding the guidance counselor had been handled – did not toll the statute of limitations because petitioner had already received notice of a decision. Nevertheless, the Commissioner further finds that this petition, which was filed more than a year after R.B. graduated, would be hers to pursue – and not petitioner's – as R.B. had reached the age of majority by the time of the filing. See N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(a)(2).

The Commissioner does not find petitioner's exceptions to be persuasive. As explained above, a petition would not have been premature following the Superintendent's August 2018 notice (provided it was filed by the appropriate petitioner) because that was the date of the final determination. To the extent that petitioner finds the 90-day deadline to be unfair, the Commissioner notes that filing deadlines are established by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) and apply uniformly to all petitioners.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

(ON REMAND EDU 10790-19)

J.B. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD R.B.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS IN THE COUNTY OF BERGEN,

Respondent.

J.B., petitioner, pro se

William C. Soukas, Esq., for respondent (Nowell, P.A., attorneys)

Record Closed: March 26, 2021 Decided: April 19, 2021

BEFORE BARRY E. MOSCOWITZ, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On August 6, 2018, respondent notified petitioner that it did not investigate his grade appeals as harassment complaints under the New Jersey Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13, et seq. (ABRA). On July 16, 2019, petitioner appealed the handling of his complaints. Did petitioner file his appeal timely? No. Under N.J.A.C.

6A:3-1.3(i), a petitioner shall file a petition no later than 90 days from the date of receipt of final action about the subject of the case.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 16, 2019, petitioner, J.B., filed a petition with the Department of Education, Office of Controversies and Disputes, on behalf of his daughter, R.B., against respondent, the Board of Education of the Vocational Schools in the County of Bergen. In his petition of appeal, petitioner alleges that his daughter's religious practices prevented her from competing academically with her classmates, and that respondent failed to make religious accommodations for those practices in violation of Board policy. In addition, petitioner alleges at least two specific instances in which an accommodation was not made for those two assignments. Moreover, petitioner alleges that a response to his entreaties by his daughter's guidance counselor, a Mr. Natelli, constitutes a violation of the ABRA, which petitioner further alleges respondent failed to investigate in violation of the Act.

On August 5, 2019, respondent filed a motion to dismiss instead of an answer under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5.

On August 7, 2019, the Office of Controversies and Disputes transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case under the Administrative Procedure Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, and the act establishing the Office of Administrative Law, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -23, for a hearing under the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6.

On November 12, 2019, I granted the motion to dismiss.

On December 17, 2019, the Commissioner of Education remanded the case for further fact finding.

On January 25, 2021, respondent filed a motion for summary decision; on February 5, 2021, petitioner filed his opposition; and on March 26, 2021, respondent filed its reply.

Significantly, respondent filed its motion with supporting affidavits from which further facts could be found, whereas petitioner filed his opposition with no affidavits from which genuine issues of fact could be shown.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Given the papers submitted in support of and in opposition to the motion for summary decision, I FIND the following as FACT for purposes of this motion only:

I.

A. Petitioner filed grade appeals on October 11, 2017.

On October 11, 2017, petitioner wrote a letter to respondent. It was addressed to the supervisor of academics, Michelle Pinke. In his letter, petitioner appeals a grade his daughter received in a science class from the previous school year. In the reference line, petitioner wrote, "Grade Appeal—Letter of Request—Protein Profiler Lab and Related Biotech Binder." Ostensibly, the reason for the appeal was alleged conflicts with religious practices: "Last year [my daughter] was unable to complete all school assignments for reasons that . . . relate to religious practices . . . ."

When petitioner specified, however, he also noted other conflicts: "[My daughter] missed [a] few labs in Biotech during the last semester due to conflicts between class schedule and junior meeting (March 29), PARCC exam (April 19), Jewish holidays (May 31 & June 1), and CEE college trip (June 13–15). [My daughter] managed to complete most labs, with the exception of the protein profiler lab. Since one lab was missing, the binder could not be completed." Thus, of the seven conflicts, only two were related to religious practices.

In an attachment to the letter, entitled "Conflict Between School Work and Religious Practices," petitioner wrote about other potential conflicts between his family's religious practices and respondent's school policies. Petitioner's letter is nearly two pages long; his attachment is fully two pages long. Buried in the second page of the two-page attachment in the body of the document is the word "harassment." That is the only appearance of the word in these four pages; it is not set out in any of the headings or in any of the subject lines.

In the attachment, petitioner explains how his daughter is an Orthodox Jew who observes the Sabbath, which means she refrains from doing any schoolwork from Friday evening until Saturday evening. His argument is that this puts his daughter at a "significant disadvantage" compared to other students. He adds that she must also miss about ten school days for numerous Jewish holidays. Under the heading, "Other Jewish Students in [Bergen County Academies]," petitioner concludes that his daughter's religious practices should have been accommodated.

Meanwhile, under the subheading, "Counseling and Guidance at School," petitioner alleged that a guidance counselor, a Mr. Natelli, responded to his entreaties with the remark, "What's more important to you, your religion or your schoolwork?" This is what petitioner characterizes as harassment: "We believe that this statement by Mr. Natelli constitutes harassment." Thus, it is this word and this characterization that petitioner would later argue brings this case under the ambit of the ABRA.

On the same date, petitioner wrote another letter to respondent. It was also addressed to Pinke. In this letter, petitioner appeals another grade his daughter received in another class from the previous school year. This letter is nearly identical to the first. In the reference line, petitioner wrote, "Grade Appeal—Letter of Request—Anatomy and Physiology—Digestive Lab Assignment." Again, the reason for the appeal was alleged conflicts with religious practices: "Last year [my daughter] was unable to complete all school assignments for reasons that . . . relate to religious practices . . . ." This time, petitioner notes that his daughter handed in her binder to her guidance counselor during the last week of school, but for some reason her science teacher never graded it.

Petitioner's letter is just one page long; it does not mention the word "harassment"; and his attachment is the same document he attached to his previous letter.

Thus, no genuine issue of material fact exists that petitioner's October 11, 2017, letters were grade appeals based on alleged conflicts with religious practices and a perceived lack of religious accommodations by the high school during the previous school year.

B. Petitioner received notice of final action about the grade appeals on November 10, 2017.

On November 10, 2017, Pinke emailed petitioner granting in part and denying in part the grade appeals. In particular, Pinke wrote that the grade appeal for Anatomy and Physiology was denied, but that the grade appeal for Biotech was granted in part and denied in part. More specifically, the Protein Profiler Lab would be allowed to be made up with the lab report considered timely, but the rest of the notebook would still be considered late. Her email is reproduced below in its entirety:

> Dear [Mr. B.],
>
> The committee met to review the two grade appeals that you submitted on behalf of your daughter, [R.M.].
>
> For the grade appeal for Anatomy and Physiology, the committee concludes that the student had adequate time to complete and hand in the lab notebook and no additional time should be granted. The assignment was due in May and the student attempted to submit it on June 20, which was four days after the end of the trimester and one day after final grades were due for the trimester.
>
> For Biotech, there were two issues in question. The first issue is that the student's lab notebook was submitted late. The second issue is that the student missed the Protein Profiler Lab due to an absence for a field trip and then missed the make up for the lab because she met with her guidance counselor.
>
> Regarding issue one, the lateness of the lab notebook, the committee concludes that the lab notebook could have been submitted on time without the Protein Profiler Lab.
> Regarding issue two, the missing Protein Profiler Lab, the committee concludes that the lab notebook requires opening > perishable reagents, which are costly. Therefore, this lab can only be done when the whole class is doing the lab. The committee concludes that the student should have one, and only one, opportunity to make up the lab on December 6, 2017, which is the next time the lab will be done in a class setting. The lab report should be completed and submitted to Mrs. Scott by December 13, 2017. The lab should not be graded late; however, the rest of the notebook is still considered late. If the lab is not submitted by December 13, 2017, the lab report should not be accepted for credit.

> Please let me know if you have any further questions.
>
> Thank you,
> Michelle Pinke

> [Ex. E to the Certification of William Soukas, Esq., dated January 25, 2021.]

Even if Pinke was mistaken about the nature or subject of the October 11, 2017, letters, Pinke's November 10, 2017, email makes clear that she interpreted the October 11, 2017, letters as grade appeals, not as harassment complaints, and that she had concluded the matter on behalf of respondent as of November 10, 2017.

Thus, no genuine issue of material fact exists that November 10, 2017, is the date petitioner received notice of final action about his grade appeals.

C. Before petitioner filed his grade appeals, he asked respondent for advice about how to file them, and before he received notice of final action, he asked respondent about their status.

On October 4, 2017, before petitioner filed his grade appeals with Pinke, petitioner emailed Pinke to ask her about the process for grade appeals, and in response, on October 4, 2017, Pinke provided petitioner with the Board policy on grade appeals. She also advised petitioner to file his grade appeals with her by October 9, 2017. On October 8, 2017, the day before the deadline, petitioner emailed Pinke that he and his wife had previously informed respondent of their desire to file grade appeals, and that they wanted more time to file them. Accordingly, on October 9, 2017, Pinke granted petitioner an extension to file his grade appeals.

On November 8, 2017, before petitioner received notice of final action about his grade appeals, petitioner asked Pinke, by his own admission, about the status of his grade appeals:

> Dear Mrs. Pinke,
> I'm following up to know the status of the grade appeals we filed.
>
> [R.B.] is in the process of applying to colleges and the result of the grade appeals impact[s] the college application process.
>
> The 30 days for making a determination will end this week, and considering that school is closed tomorrow and Friday, we would like to know the determination as soon as possible.
>
> Thank you for your cooperation.
>
> [J.B.]
> [Ex. E to the Certification of William Soukas, Esq., dated January 25, 2021.]

Thus, no genuine issue of material fact exists that petitioner intended to file, and respondent expected to receive, grade appeals, not harassment complaints, by October 13, 2017, and even if respondent was mistaken about the nature or subject of the October 11, 2017, letters, Pinke's November 10, 2017, email makes clear that she interpreted the October 11, 2017, letters as grade appeals, and that she had concluded the matter on behalf of respondent as of November 10, 2017.

II.

A. Petitioner recasts his grade appeals as discrimination and harassment complaints on July 5, 2018.

Nearly eight months later, 237 days to be precise, on July 5, 2018, petitioner wrote another letter to respondent. In his letter, petitioner renewed his grade appeals but recast them as "discrimination and harassment complaints." To wit, in the reference line, petitioner renamed his grade appeals, "Religious Discrimination and Harassment Complaints." Petitioner also delineated that the school "discriminated" against his daughter on the basis of her religion; that the school "did not provide her with a fair opportunity to succeed"; that her guidance counselor "harassed" her; and that his "harassment complaint" was not investigated and processed according to school policy. Moreover, petitioner included the attachment from his grade appeals, but renamed it "Complaints for Religious Discrimination and Harassment," and he added in the body what he thought the guidance counselor had said ("What's more important to you, your religion or your schoolwork?") and his belief that it constituted not only "harassment," but also "intimidation."

In addition, petitioner wrote in this letter that he had complained about the results of the grade appeals and the lack of religious accommodations a month earlier to the school principal, Russell Davis, who replaced the guidance counselor, Mr. Natelli, but allegedly responded, "If this school does not fit you, you have the choice to go to a different school," which petitioner deemed unacceptable:

> In June 2017, we met with Mr. Russell Davis, the principal at BCA. We complain[ed] about the harassment by [R.B.'s] guidance counselor. Mr. Davis agreed to replace [R.B.'s] guidance counselor; however, he did not condemn or criticize the statement made by Mr. Natelli. Mr. Davis explained to us the school provides no accommodation for religious observances.
> We explained that the situation our daughter was put into by the school does not allow her to practice her religion and complete her school work. Mr. Russell's response was: "If > this school does not fit you, you have the choice to go to a different school."

> This statement by the principal is unacceptable.
> [Ex. F to the Certification of William Soukas, Esq., dated January 25, 2021.]

Petitioner continued in his letter that he disagreed with Russell's value judgment and with the school's policy regarding religious accommodations:

> We felt after this meeting with the principal that the school indeed expect[ed] that we choose to between our religion or go to a different school. It seems that Mr. Natelli's statement was not just a poor wording incident, but it actually represents the school policy. We were horrified.
> We also believe that, as a matter of policy, the school should accommodate students in situations when their abilities to perform [are] limited due to reasons beyond their control. Whether the limited ability is due to medical disability or due to religious observance, or other protected right, the school must make adjustments and concessions to accommodate the student and give him/her a fair and equal opportunity to succeed in school.

Finally, petitioner cited the denial of his grade appeals as examples of this lack of religious accommodation:

> [R.B.] was unable to complete some work assignments and was later in submitting several other school assignments. For example, on one assignment, [R.B.] submitted the work late by two days and her grade was reduced by 30%. We filed a grade appeal and explained the specific situation of [R.B.], however the grade appeal committee did not put any weight for our considerations and the 30% reduction remained.
> On a different assignment, [R.B.] submitted her work later by two or three days, however the teacher refused to grade her work due to the lateness and the grade for that assignment was zero. We filed a grade appeal and explained the specific situation of [R.B.], however the grade appeal committee did > not put any weight for our considerations and the grade remained at zero.

Thus, no genuine issue of material fact exists that petitioner had not lodged a new complaint or complaints about "discrimination" or "harassment" or "intimidation" on July 5, 2018. He had simply renewed his grade appeals based on alleged conflicts with religious practices and a perceived lack of religious accommodations by the high school during the previous school year. In addition, petitioner had simply expressed his disappointment in and disagreement with the final action. Finally, petitioner voiced his objection to what he understood was school policy regarding religious accommodations.

B. Petitioner received notice of final action about the so-called discrimination and harassment complaints on August 6, 2018.

On August 6, 2018, the superintendent, Howard Lerner, responded. In his letter, Lerner explained what steps the school district had taken concerning the grade appeals, including the so-called discrimination and harassment complaints. Lerner stated that discrimination and harassment based on religion is strictly prohibited in the school district, that the school district promptly investigated the complaint, and that it removed Mr. Natelli as R.B.'s guidance counselor. More significantly for purposes of this motion, Lerner explained that the grade appeals were not considered as complaints for harassment, intimidation, or bullying (HIB), because they were more properly understood as grade appeals based on religious accommodations.

Lerner continued that he believed the school district was responsive to petitioner's concerns; that it was not true that the school district does not accommodate religious practices, because it does provide religious accommodations; and that it did so in this case. To be sure, Lerner noted that the school district provided R.B. with the opportunity to make up schoolwork during the summer of 2017, the opportunity to retake the Biotech class during the following school year, and the opportunity to spend up to fifteen hours a week in school to complete her schoolwork. If any doubt had still existed about the nature or subject matter of petitioner's grade appeals, respondent had made its position even clearer, and in doing so, restated its final action.

Thus, no genuine issue of material fact exists that August 6, 2018, is the date petitioner received notice of final action about his so-called discrimination and harassment complaints.

C. Petitioner did not appeal the final action within the next 90 days.

On August 9, 2018, petitioner wrote another letter to Lerner. In this letter, under his subheading, "Accommodations in School on the Basis of Religious Observance," petitioner wrote that he wanted to understand better the school policy concerning religious accommodations, and under his subheading, "Handling of the Harassment Complaint," petitioner wrote that he wanted to know better how his complaint was processed. Although his daughter had already graduated from the high school and was about to enter the University of Pittsburgh for college in the fall, petitioner still wanted to continue the dialogue.

On August 20, 2018, Lerner responded to petitioner once more. In his letter, Lerner explained that whether accommodations are reasonable and proper for any given student is a fact-sensitive inquiry and is determined on a case-by-case basis. In addition, Lerner explained that petitioner's so-called discrimination and harassment complaints were investigated and processed according to the school's policy concerning affirmative action. Parenthetically, one of the purposes of the affirmative-action program is "to identify and eliminate discriminatory practices and other barriers to achieving equality and equity in educational programs." District Policy, 1140, Affirmative Action Program, August 2016. Ultimately, petitioner filed his appeal with the Commissioner of Education on July 10, 2019.

So, even if this later letter is considered final action by the school district—because Lerner further explained that petitioner's grade appeals were processed as discrimination complaints under the district's affirmative-action program—no genuine of material fact exists that petitioner still failed to appeal that final action by the school district within the next 90 days.

Accordingly, the final section that follows merely chronicles the future dialogue between the parties.

III.

A. Petitioner continues to disagree with respondent and continues to fail to file an appeal with the Commissioner of Education.

On September 4, 2018, petitioner wrote to Lerner yet again. In his letter, petitioner repeated that he disagreed with the religious accommodations the high school provided his daughter the previous school year and with how the high school processed his so-called discrimination and harassment complaints. This letter is seven pages long. The first four and one-half pages concern his disagreement with the accommodations and why he thought they were insufficient. The final three pages concern his disagreement with the way his grade appeals were processed and why he thought they should have been processed as harassment complaints.

In fact, petitioner asserts for the first time that he filed such a discrimination and harassment complaint at a meeting on June 15, 2017.

Whether or not petitioner filed such a discrimination and harassment complaint on June 15, 2017, does not matter, because petitioner received the final action about the grade appeals on November 10, 2017, and the final action about the so-called discrimination and harassment complaints on August 6, 2018.

The legal effect of these dates notwithstanding, what is clearer is what petitioner ultimately seeks from his entreaties: disciplinary action against Mr. Natelli, a condemnation from the school or an apology from Mr. Natelli, and an investigation by the school district under the ABRA.

B. Respondent demurs that the parties will have to agree to disagree.

On September 14, 2018, Lerner responded that the parties would have to agree to disagree about the final action that respondent took about the grade appeals and the so-called discrimination and harassment complaints, but that these appeals gave respondent pause to reflect on its policy for the future:

> Dear Mr. [B.],
> Thank you for your 9/4/18 email. As I have explained before, I believe BCA provided or offered reasonable accommodations to your daughter for her religious observance during her time there, as required by Board Policy. It appears that your expectations and the district's understanding of its role in accommodating individual students are unlikely to align.
> I regret that you feel your dialogue with the school and with district administration has not addressed your concerns. Please know, however, that your engagement with the school and with me has been the catalyst for valuable in-house reflection and discussion about this issue.
>
> I am glad that your daughter is attending such an esteemed university for her undergraduate education, and I wish her much success.
>
> Sincerely,
> Howard Lerner, Ed.D.
> Superintendent
> Bergen County Technical Schools
>
> [Ex. K to the Certification of William Soukas, Esq., dated January 25, 2021.]

C. Petitioner recasts his grade appeals as HIB complaints.

On November 13, 2018, petitioner restarted the dialogue once again. In an email to the school district's business administrator, John Susino, petitioner, incredulously, again asks for the status of his so-called discrimination and harassment complaints. In doing so, petitioner recast his grade appeals, which he had previously recast as discrimination and harassment complaints, as "HIB complaints." The following day, on November 14, 2018, Susino restated that respondent had processed the grade appeals as discrimination complaints:

> Dear Mr. [B.],
>
> I have received your November 13, 2018, email requesting information as to when the HIB complaint involving your daughter was reported by Dr. Lerner to the Board of Education.
>
> It is my understanding that your complaint was not originally reported as an HIB matter to school administration. As I believe Dr. Lerner previously advised you, the complaint was investigated as a discrimination matter. Therefore, your daughter's matter was handled by school administration and is not required by law to be formally reported to the Board of Education.
> It is also my understanding that you are meeting with Dr. Lerner on December 10, 2018, to further discuss this matter.
>
> Sincerely,
> John Susino
> Business Administrator/Board Secretary
> Bergen County Technical and Special Services School Districts
> [Ex. M to the Certification of William Soukas, Esq., dated January 25, 2021.]

Immediately thereafter, on November 15, 2018, in a reply email to Susino, petitioner reasserted that his grade appeals from the previous year were not just grade appeals but also harassment complaints, and on December 10, 2018, respondent agreed to perform an administrative review as a courtesy, not according to any Board policy. To be sure, this was not a new inquiry by petitioner, and it was not a new investigation by respondent. It was an administrative review as a courtesy, and Lerner agreed to provide a response by early February 2019.

As promised, the administrative review was completed by early February 2019, which Lerner memorialized in a letter dated February 5, 2019. In his letter, Lerner wrote that after his meeting with petitioner, he assigned the head of the school district's Human Resources Department, Gary Hall, to interview staff and provide a full report. Lerner wrote that Hall interviewed ten staff members, had conversations with school administrators, and reported his findings. Based on that investigation, together with the information petitioner had provided, Lerner determined the following:

First, Lerner wrote that during R.B.'s junior year, when she was having academic difficulties in some of her classes, R.B. never asked any of her teachers to adjust her coursework or her deadlines for religious observance.

Second, Lerner wrote that the teachers in the three classes in which R.B. seemed to have particular difficulty made repeated and reasonable efforts to help R.B. keep up and catch up with her classwork.

Third, Lerner wrote that R.B.'s guidance counselor, Mr. Natelli, did not say or suggest that R.B. had to choose whether school or religion was more important to her, and that R.B. must have misunderstood what Natelli had said and what he had meant during their conversation about time management.

Fourth, Lerner wrote that he did not agree with petitioner's assertion that R.B. was unable to meet expectations, because she was able to meet expectations in all her other classes during her entire four years at the high school.

Fifth, Lerner wrote that petitioner's request for additional time at the end of R.B.'s junior year for her to complete unfinished work was properly understood as just that, a request for additional time to complete unfinished work, and not as a complaint of discrimination or harassment, intimidation, or bullying.

Sixth, Lerner wrote that petitioner's assertion that the school district has no policy for religious accommodation is a misunderstanding of what the school administration had communicated to him. Lerner was specific. Indeed, Lerner noted that not only did the school district have such a policy, but that R.B. benefited from it:

> The Board does, in fact, have a policy . . . . I believe that the dialogue BCA administration had with you . . . illustrat[ed] how [R.B.] was offered flexibility by the teachers of the courses she struggled with throughout her junior year and then opened the door to additional flexibility for [R.B.] to complete additional missing work during the summer.

Finally, Lerner wrote that he could not and would not change R.B.'s high-school transcript or her final grades because it would be inaccurate and misleading.

On February 21, 2019, petitioner emailed Susino that he was disappointed with the outcome of the administrative review, and that he wanted to renew his complaints before the Board. Significantly, petitioner wrote that he wanted to renew his complaints as detailed in his letter to Lerner from September 4, 2018, more than five months earlier. In addition, petitioner attached a letter detailing his disagreement with the outcome of the administrative review. On February 26, 2019, Susino emailed petitioner that the next Board meeting was scheduled for March 26, 2019.

On March 26, 2019, petitioner attended the Board meeting and addressed the Board at the end of the meeting during its public session.

After the meeting, on that same date, petitioner emailed Susino, stating that he was unable to complete his presentation, and asked to present his complaint to the "Chairman of the Board Committee."

On April 16, 2019, counsel for respondent wrote a letter to petitioner. In his letter, counsel explained that the Board had considered his position concerning his complaints about his daughter's grades, her counselor, and the administrative investigation, and that the Board had determined that the school's handling of his complaints was "prompt, thorough, and responsive, in all respects." Counsel further explained that petitioner's request to make a presentation before the "Chairman of the Board Committee" was denied for many reasons. First, counsel explained that the complaint against Natelli was not subject to the school policy concerning harassment, intimidation, and bullying because it was never reported as such.

Second, counsel explained that a presentation to the "Chairman of the Board Committee" is not a recognized procedure.

Third, counsel explained that further review was not warranted because of the most recent administrative investigation, which was provided as a courtesy by the superintendent, not under any Board policy:

> Please be advised that your request for further Board review of the same complaints you have already brought to the Board does not appear to be warranted in light of the administrative and Board-level reviews of the situation that have already been conducted. As a courtesy to you and in light of your continuing concerns, the Board consented to consider your complaints relating to the recent administrative investigation authorized by Dr. Lerner. The Board has now considered your complaints and found that they were addressed properly by school administration. As such, no need exists for further Board review of these matters.

Fourth, counsel explained that since R.B. had already graduated from high school and had attained the age of majority, the Board did not believe that petitioner had standing to pursue the matter.

Finally, counsel explained once more that the superintendent had held an extensive meeting with petitioner and authorized, not in keeping with any Board policy but as a courtesy, an administrative investigation of his complaints, which resulted in the determination that the Board had handled his complaints properly.

On July 16, 2019, petitioner finally filed his appeal with the Commissioner of Education.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

A party may move for summary decision upon all or any of the substantive issues in a contested case. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(a). Summary decision may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that no genuine issue of material fact exists, and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). When motions for summary decision are made and supported, an adverse party, to prevail, must respond by affidavit setting forth specific facts showing that genuine issues of fact exist which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. Ibid.

In this case, petitioner did not respond by affidavit setting forth specific facts showing that genuine issues of fact exist which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. This failure notwithstanding, the record is clear. No genuine issue of material fact exists that petitioner received notice of final action on November 10, 2017, concerning his grade appeals, which were processed under Board policy concerning grade appeals, and notice of final action on August 6, 2018, concerning his so-called discrimination and harassment complaints, which were processed under Board policy concerning affirmative action. Since no genuine issue of material fact exists concerning these dates of receipt, respondent is entitled to prevail as a matter of law for the reasons stated below.

Under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), a petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling, or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency that is the subject of the case. As case law makes clear, such a time limitation confers due process, is both meaningful and reasonable, and provides finality in education matters. Kaprow v. Bd. of Educ. of Berkeley Twp., 131 N.J. 572, 583–88 (1993). As such, this time limitation has long withstood challenge. See, e.g., Nissman v. Bd. of Educ. of Long Beach Island, 272 N.J. Super. 373, 381–82 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 137 N.J. 315 (1994) (where the court stated that the time limitation is not inherently arbitrary or capricious, and to rule otherwise would deprive district boards of education the security of the rule). Moreover, negotiations do not toll this time limitation. See, e.g., Giannetta et al. v. Bd. of Educ. of Egg Harbor, No. #147-05, Comm'r Decision (April 25, 2005), https://www.nj.gov/education/legal/commissioner/ (where the Commissioner of Education explicitly stated, citing Kaprow, 131 N.J. at 588, that attempts to resolve a claim through negotiation with a board of education do not negate receipt of adequate notice or toll the running of the time limitation).

In this case, the incidents that petitioner argues violate Board policy and State law occurred during the 2016–17 school year. Petitioner complained about them after the close of the 2016–17 school year, and the date of receipt of final action was November 10, 2017, at the earliest, and August 6, 2018, at the latest, all of which place the current petition, which was filed on July 12, 2019, well outside the proscribed 90 days for filing such appeals. As I found above, the final action by the Board regarding the grade appeals was received on November 10, 2017, and any other decision that could have been construed as some final action about separate harassment complaints could only be said to have been received on August 6, 2018, when Lerner explained that the complaints were more properly processed as complaints about religious accommodation, or even on August 20, 2018, when Lerner further explained that they were processed as discrimination complaints under the district's policy concerning affirmative action. To underscore, these grade appeals were not HIB complaints.

Petitioner is sophisticated, and his filings are extensive. If petitioner had truly intended to file his grade appeals as HIB complaints, he would have done so, but petitioner intended to file grade appeals based on alleged conflicts with religious practices and a perceived lack of religious accommodations by the high school during the previous school year. More pointedly, if petitioner truly believed that Natelli harassed, intimidated, or bullied his daughter in violation of the ABRA, then petitioner would have filed not only his HIB complaints with respondent, but also his appeal for the failure of respondent to have investigated them under the ABRA in a timely manner. In short, petitioner did not do so because he was pursuing grade appeals, not harassment complaints, which he later recast as HIB complaints after his grade appeals were denied.

For me to conclude otherwise would mean that anytime a parent or student questions a final determination, the finality of that determination is somehow negated, and the statute of limitations is somehow reset. Such a conclusion would contravene not only case law but also common sense. It would also chill dialogue between students and schools and between parents and administrations.

This is not to say that petitioner was unreasonable in refusing to accept the outcome of his grade appeals or the way his grade appeals or so-called harassment complaints were processed; rather, it is his failure to appeal their final actions within the statute of limitations that was unreasonable.

As a result, I CONCLUDE that the petition of appeal in this case is outside the statute of limitations, that the motion for summary decision should be granted, and that this case should be dismissed.

Since I have concluded that this case is outside the statute of limitations and should be dismissed, I need not address the issues of standing or mootness, which respondent argues as additional reasons to dismiss this case.

ORDER

Given my findings of fact and conclusions of law, I ORDER that the motion for summary decision is GRANTED and that this case is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified, or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify, or reject this decision within forty-five days, and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Shira Lieberman,

Petitioner,

v.

New Jersey State Board of Examiners,

Respondent.

Synopsis

In October 2019, petitioner appealed the June 2016 determination of the respondent State Board of Examiners (SBE) that she had not met the requirements for issuance of a school administrator's certificate of eligibility (CE). Petitioner contended that she had met the requirements for the school administrator CE, or their equivalent; further, petitioner brought up the issue of her application for a principal CE in 2019, which occurred subsequent to the filing of the instant petition and was denied. The SBE filed a motion to dismiss in lieu of an answer.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no issues of material fact in this case, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), petitioner's appeal is time-barred as it was filed well out of the 90-day time limit, and circumstances do not warrant relaxation of the rule; regarding the principal CE denial, that issue was not properly pending before the OAL and could not be addressed. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision and dismissed the petition. However, because there was confusion regarding whether the principal certificate denial was "incorporated into" the existing appeal of the school administrator denial, the ALJ recommended that the petitioner should be permitted to file a petition of appeal regarding the principal certificate denial within 90 days of the date of the Initial Decision.

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the petition of appeal regarding the administrator certificate denial is time-barred by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i); additionally, the Commissioner agreed that the principal certificate denial was not properly pending before the OAL, as the matter transmitted to the OAL was limited to the administrator certificate denial; no petition was ever filed regarding the principal certificate denial, nor was the original petition of appeal amended to include that issue; and because the ALJ did not have jurisdiction over the principal certificate denial, she lacked the authority to order any relief regarding that denial. The Commissioner concluded that the ALJ's recommendation that petitioner be permitted to file a petition of appeal regarding the principal certificate denial was not appropriate. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted with modification, and the petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Shira Lieberman,

Petitioner,

v.

New Jersey Department of Education,
Office of Certification and Induction,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the exceptions filed by respondent pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 have been reviewed and considered.[1]

Petitioner applied for a school administrator certificate of eligibility in 2015. Her application was denied by the State Board of Examiners (Board) on June 9, 2016 (administrator certificate denial). In October 2019, petitioner filed a petition of appeal regarding the administrator certificate denial. Following transmittal of the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), petitioner applied for a principal certificate of eligibility, and the Board denied her application on May 14, 2020 (principal certificate denial). Petitioner did not file a petition of appeal regarding the principal certificate denial. The ALJ ruled that summary decision was appropriate and the petition of appeal challenging the administrator certificate denial was barred by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), because it was filed well outside of the 90-day time limit, and the circumstances did not warrant relaxation of the rule. The ALJ also held that the principal certificate denial was not properly pending before the OAL and could not be addressed. Notwithstanding this conclusion, the ALJ recommended that because there was confusion regarding whether the principal certificate denial was "incorporated into" the existing appeal of the school administrator denial, petitioner should be permitted to file a petition of appeal regarding the principal certificate denial within 90 days of the date of the Initial Decision.

In its exceptions, the Board argues that the OAL had no jurisdiction over the principal certificate denial and, therefore, the recommendation allowing petitioner to file a new appeal challenging that denial was improper. The Board also contends that N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) should be strictly applied to bar any new petition of appeal, because it has been more than 90 days since the date of the principal certificate denial.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the petition of appeal regarding the administrator certificate denial is time-barred by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), for the reasons detailed in the Initial Decision. The Commissioner also agrees with the ALJ that the principal certificate denial was not properly pending before the OAL. The matter transmitted to the OAL was limited to the administrator certificate denial. No petition of appeal was ever filed regarding the principal certificate denial, nor was the original petition of appeal amended to include the principal certificate denial.[2] Because the ALJ did not have jurisdiction over the principal certificate denial, she lacked the authority to order any relief regarding that denial, and [2] While the ALJ found that there was confusion regarding whether the principal certificate denial was "incorporated into" the existing appeal of the administrator certificate denial, there is no basis for this finding. The Board's May 14, 2020 decision, which referenced the administrator certificate denial, did so only in reviewing the history of the various proceedings before the Board, and it did not in any way suggest that the matters were consolidated or should otherwise be heard together at the OAL. Moreover, petitioner has been represented throughout the proceedings by counsel, who should have been aware that a petition of appeal that comports with *N.J.A.*C 6A:3 is required to challenge any action by the Board, and that matters are not transmitted to the OAL in the absence of appropriate pleadings.

the Commissioner concludes that the recommendation that petitioner be permitted to file a petition of appeal regarding the principal certificate denial was inappropriate.[3]

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter, as modified herein. Respondent's motion for summary decision is granted, and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[4]

ACTING COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Mailing: July 20, 2021

[3] For this same reason, the Commissioner declines to rule on the timeliness of any petition of appeal regarding the principal certificate denial. The Commissioner notes that petitioner has filed such a petition of appeal, which has been assigned Agency Dkt. No. 89-6/21 and is currently under review. Any issues of timeliness that the Board wishes to raise in that matter will be addressed in the Commissioner's decision therein.

[4] This decision may be appealed to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1. Under N.J.Ct.R. 2:4-1(b), a notice of appeal must be filed with the Appellate Division within 45 days from the date of mailing of this decision.

SHIRA LIEBERMAN,
Petitioner,
v.
NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF CERTIFICATION AND INDUCTION,
Respondent.

Michael I. Inzelbuch, Esq., appearing for petitioner

Aimee Blenner, Deputy Attorney General, appearing for respondent (Gurbir S. Grewal, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: October 14, 2020 Decided: April 26, 2021

BEFORE SUSAN M. SCAROLA, ALJ (Ret., on recall):

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Shira Lieberman, appeals the 2015 denial of her application for a school administrator's Certificate of Eligibility (CE) by the respondent, the New Jersey

State Board of Examiners (Board), alleging that she has the necessary qualifications for the certificate, or has met their equivalency.

She also raises the issue of the denial of an application for a principal's CE by the Board in 2020, subsequent to the filing of this appeal.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On March 13, 2015, the petitioner applied for a school administrator's CE. After contacting the petitioner to obtain additional supporting documents for her application, the Board denied the application on June 9, 2016. This application consequently expired on March 6, 2017.

On October 3, 2019, the petitioner sent a demand requesting the production of documents, seeking information regarding her 2015 application. On or about October 11, 2019, the petitioner appealed. On October 31, 2019, in lieu of an answer, the Board moved to dismiss the appeal because no action for school administrator was then pending; the appeal failed to state a claim on which relief could be granted; and the appeal had been filed well out of time. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on November 12, 2019. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The petitioner contends that after her appeal was filed, the parties agreed in December 2019 that she could apply for a principal's CE. This application was first deemed incomplete on or about February 7, 2020. After a "credentials review" committee convened on February 28, 2020, the Board denied the petitioner's application for a principal's certificate on May 14, 2020.[1]

The decision of the Board issued on May 19, 2020, contains the following language in a footnote:

[1] No record of an appeal from that determination has been received, although the petitioner argues it should be included in this appeal.

> [The petitioner] initially sought to appeal both the denial of a school administrator certificate as well as the principal CE, but later indicated via electronic mail that she no longer wished to have the Board consider an appeal of the denial of the school administrator certificate.

The petitioner appears to have incorporated the denial of the principal's CE into the October 2019 appeal of the denial of the school administrator CE without filing a separate appeal of that denial to the Board or without a subsequent transmittal being sent from the Board to the OAL.

The motion to dismiss the appeal of the denial of the school administrator's CE is being considered as a motion for summary decision. The petitioner filed a response on September 8, 2020; the Board filed a reply on October 6, 2020; and the petitioner filed a sur-reply on October 14, 2020, at which time the record closed.[2]

FACTS

The procedural history sets forth the basic facts that are pertinent to this appeal. On March 13, 2015, the petitioner applied for a school administrator's CE. On March 27, 2015, the Board considered that the application was incomplete and requested additional information and supporting documents from the petitioner in support of her application. This included official transcripts from the university she attended and verification of program completion. The petitioner was advised that her application would be considered "incomplete" until the items were presented.[3] Numerous email exchanges occurred regarding the documents provided, with the last dated June 9, 2016, with an indication that some information remained lacking and that she "should go for a credentials review" as noted in the email chain. Nothing further occurred after that and the application consequently expired on March 6, 2017.

[2] This Initial Decision is filed in accordance with Governor Phillip Murphy's Executive Order 127, issued April 14, 2020, created by the COVID-19 emergency, which provided that deadlines for filing of a recommended decision pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c) in any non-emergent contested case were extended by the number of days of the Public Health Emergency declared in Executive Order No. 103 (2020) plus an additional 90 days.

[3] The application allegedly lacked proof that the petitioner had completed a master's degree in educational leadership or that she had completed an appropriate course of graduate study, as required by N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-12.4.

Then, in October 2019, the petitioner, through counsel, sent a demand requesting the production of documents, seeking information about the 2015 application. On or about October 11, 2019, the petitioner appealed the denial of the school administrator's CE. In lieu of an answer, the Board filed a motion to dismiss, alleging that the appeal had been filed out of time. The matter was then transmitted to the OAL, where it was filed on November 12, 2019.

While the matter was pending in the OAL, settlement discussions commenced. The petitioner proposed that she be granted either a school administrator's certificate or a principal's certificate to resolve the matter. In December 2019 she filed an application for a principal's certificate with the Board that was denied on May 14, 2020. The petitioner appears to have filed no appeal of that denial, under the assumption that the appeal of the principal's certificate has been incorporated into this appeal of the school administrator's certificate denial.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

Summary decision is appropriate when "the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). Summary decision is analyzed in accordance with the principles set forth by the Supreme Court in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995). Nat'l Transfer v. N.J. Dep't of Envtl. Prot., 347 N.J. Super. 401, 408–09 (App. Div. 2002). Determination of whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary decision requires the judge to consider whether the evidence presented, viewed in favor of the non-moving party, is sufficient to permit the fact finder to resolve the dispute in favor of the non-moving party. Brill, 142 N.J. at 540. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." Ibid. (citation omitted).

Here, no facts are in dispute.

Timeliness of appeal; 90-day rule

The initial issue that must be determined is whether this petition is time barred pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). In relevant part, this regulation reads:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling, or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, that is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.

In the leading case of Kaprow v. Berkeley Township Board of Education, 131 N.J. 572, 582 (1993), the Supreme Court of New Jersey upheld the 90-day limitations period, as it "provides a measure of repose, an essential element in the proper and efficient administration of the school laws. It stabilizes the relationship between the teachers and the administration . . .. The limitation period gives school districts the security of knowing that administrative decisions regarding the operation of the school cannot be challenged after ninety days." Due to these cited reasons, the 90-day rule is strictly applied.

Additionally, the Court explained that "[a]dequate notice must be sufficient to inform an individual of some fact that he or she has a right to know and that the communicating party has a duty to communicate." Kaprow, 131 N.J. at 587 (citing Burns v. West Am. Corp., 137 N.J. Super. 442, 446 (Dist. Ct. 1975)). Adequate notice must be sufficient to further the twofold purpose of the 90-day rule: first, "to stimulate litigants to pursue a right of action within a reasonable time so that the opposing party may have a fair opportunity to defend, thus preventing the litigation of stale claims," and, second, "'to penalize dilatoriness and serve as a measure of repose' by giving security and stability to human affairs." Ibid. (citations omitted).

Finally, Kaprow held that an attempt to resolve the claims through negotiations is irrelevant and does not toll the running of the limitations period. Id. at 588 (citing Riely v. Hunterdon Central Bd. of Educ., 173 N.J. Super. 109, 413 (App. Div. 1980)). The 90-day rule is triggered "once notice of the final order, ruling or other action is given, and not when the injury is felt by the petitioner." See Ciamillo v. Ridgefield Bd. of Educ., EDU 1805-04, Initial Decision (July 15, 2005) (citing Nissman v. Long Beach Island Bd. of Educ., 272 N.J. Super. 373, 379–81 (App. Div. 1994), adopted, Acting Comm'r (August 31, 2005), aff'd, State Bd. (January 4, 2006), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/).

This matter relates only to petitioner's application for a school administrator's certificate, even though petitioner's arguments also pertain to the principal's certificate applied for in December 2019. The petitioner's application had become dormant and she took no action to activate it. Accordingly, the application was considered denied. No appeal was timely filed.

In 2019, years after the 90-day time period had expired, she sent a demand for production of documents filed in this appeal. The petitioner argues that as part of an agreement, she filed for a principal's certificate in December 2019, and that due to its denial, the 90-day limitation is inapplicable. It is well-settled law that the dispute must be resolved through litigation; other avenues such as negotiation do not toll the 90-day rule. Taylor v. Hardyston Bd. of Educ., EDU 1049-05, Initial Decision (September 13, 2005) (citing Wise v. Trenton Bd. of Educ., 2000 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 462), adopted, Comm'r (October 27, 2005), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/ (where the ALJ held that the petitioner's attempt to change his employment contract by asking the board to change some terms did not toll the 90-day rule); see also Pacio v. Lakeland Reg'l High Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ., 1989 S.L.D. 2060, 2069 (where the Commissioner clarified that requests to a board for reconsideration of its final decision did not toll the 90-day rule); Kaprow, 131 N.J. at 588 (where the Court held that an attempt to resolve a dispute through negotiation with the board was irrelevant, as it did not negate the fact of receipt of adequate notice and did not toll the running of the time limit). Similarly, filing an untimely appeal and then a separate application for a different certificate after the appeal had been filed cannot act to toll the 90-day time limitation.

The petitioner does not dispute that she had adequate notice that her application for a school administrator's certificate had been denied. Rather, she argues that her claim was not time-barred because the claim implicated an instance in which the 90-day rule should be relaxed.

Relaxation of 90-day rule

If the 90-day rule is triggered, it should be waived only due to a recognized exception such as public interest. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16 provides that when rules such as the 90-day rule "do not reflect a specific statutory requirement or an underlying rule of the OAL, they may be relaxed or dispensed with by the Commissioner, in the Commissioner's discretion, in any case where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice."

However, the 90-day rule is strictly construed and applied almost without exception. In Riely v. Hunterdon Central High School Board of Education, 173 N.J. Super. 109, 113 (App. Div. 1980), the court noted that a teacher who proceeded to arbitration was not thereby relieved from compliance with the 90-day filing requirement. Generally, the 90-day rule is mandatory and begins to run on the date that notice is received of the action taken. Millford Bd. of Educ. v. Dep't of Educ., EDU 738-05, Initial Decision (March 3, 2005), adopted, Deputy Comm'r (June 2, 2005), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/; see also Wynne v.Tillery, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 995; Portee v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 381.

"[T]he authority to relax or waive the rule is rarely invoked and is generally unsuccessful unless strict adherence would be inappropriate, unnecessary or where injustice would occur." Coles v. Bayonne Bd. of Educ., EDU 10535-06, Order on Emergent Relief (November 2, 2006), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/, adopted, Comm'r (December 8, 2006), https://www.nj.gov/education/legal/decisions/, aff'd, State Board (April 4, 2007), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/ (citing DeMaio v. New Providence Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 449, 453). Further, three circumstances that may be exempt from the 90-day rule include: 1) those involving important and novel constitutional questions, 2) informal or ex parte determinations of legal questions by administrative officials, and 3) important public, rather than private, interests which require adjudication or clarification. Brunetti v. Borough of New Milford, 68 N.J. 576, 586 (1975).

Extraordinary relief to relax this rule is granted sparingly. "It will be relaxed only where there is some compelling reason for the same, such as the presence of substantial constitutional or other issue of fundamental public interest beyond that of concern only to the parties themselves." Portee, 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) at 384 (quoting Bogart v. E. Orange Bd. of Educ., EDU 6245-82, Initial Decision (January 26, 1983), adopted, Comm'r (March 14, 1983)); see also Graves v. In addition to a substantial constitutional issue or a matter of significant public interest, "[t]he 90-day time limitation has been relaxed to resolve a dispute or delay attributable to the Board of Education . . .." > Obviously, every time an otherwise meritorious claim is time barred, for whatever reason, there is, in a general sense, an "injustice." . . . The point to be made is that there will always be an arguably harsh result when the 90-day rule is applied. But the cases which have interpreted and applied the rule teach that this is no reason not to use it. Indeed, if the rule was relaxed simply because the result would be harsh if applied, then the rule might as well be ignored in its entirety on nearly every occasion.

Here, the petitioner argues that "during the pendency of this action she re-applied and was rejected [for a principal's certificate] in May 2020, rendering the 90-day limitations period inapplicable." The petitioner argues that using the 90-day rule was arbitrary and capricious, and denied her the right of appeal. But Bogart clearly set the standard that the 90-day rule will be relaxed only for a compelling reason that is beyond that of concern only to the parties themselves.

The petitioner had adequate notice of the decision on her school administrator CE on June 9, 2016. She could have pursued her pending action or appealed the denial of the certificate that was then available to her for 90 days. The petitioner's demand for the production of documents and her appeal filed in October 2019 did not render the 90-day limitation period inapplicable.

Further, the petitioner has not asserted compelling reasons, such as the presence of a substantial constitutional or other issue of fundamental public interest beyond that of concern only to the parties, nor did she demonstrate that strict adherence to the time limitation would possibly result in an injustice. See Portee, 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) at 384. There is no explanation for the years-long delay to the appeal. Petitioner argues that "to require [her] to refile yet another application for certification, just to be denied again, and only for her to file this exact appeal, would be a waste of judicial resources and would be futile as was demonstrated . . . ." However, this is not a recognized or compelling reason to relax the time requirements.

The petitioner contends that discretion can be used to relax the 90-day time requirements; however, that discretion is not used haphazardly, but only in certain compelling instances. The facts of this matter do not warrant that discretion to relax the time requirements.

Appeal of denial of principal's certificate

The petitioner contends that because she has been denied the principal's certificate while this appeal was pending, a relaxation of the 90-day rule should be permitted. But that argument is not compelling.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-3.1 provides that actions are commenced in the state agencies:

> (a) A contested case shall be commenced in the State agency with appropriate subject matter jurisdiction. A contested case may be commenced by the agency itself or by > an individual or entity as provided in the rules and regulations of the agency.

> (b) A request for a contested case hearing may not be filed with the Office of Administrative Law by the individual or entity requesting the hearing, except as set forth in N.J.A.C. 1:4B-3.1.

The procedural rule is clear: although the application for a principal's certificate was denied while this appeal of the school administrator's certificate was pending in the OAL, no appeal of that denial was filed directly with the agency and no appeal of that denial was transmitted to the OAL for determination. No individual can file an appeal directly with the OAL.

The petitioner contends that the principal's certificate issue is ripe for determination. While that issue may be ripe, the matter is not in the OAL for determination. Thus, the issue of the denial of the principal's certificate is not properly pending within the OAL and cannot be addressed.

Withdrawal of appeal of denial of school administrator's certificate

The determination of the Board in the decision regarding the appeal of the denial of the principal's certificate noted:

> [The petitioner] initially sought to appeal both the denial of a school administrator certificate as well as the principal CE, but later indicated via electronic mail that she no longer wished to have the Board consider an appeal of the denial of the school administrator certificate.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.2 provides for the withdrawals of matters pending in the OAL:

> (a) A party may withdraw a request for a hearing or a defense raised by notifying the judge and all parties. Upon receipt of such notification, the judge shall discontinue all proceedings and return the case file to the Clerk. If the judge deems it advisable to state the circumstances of the withdrawal on the record, the judge may enter an initial > decision memorializing the withdrawal and returning the matter to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition.

> (b) When a party withdraws, the Clerk shall return the matter to the agency which transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law for appropriate disposition.
> (c) After the Clerk has returned the matter, a party shall address to the transmitting agency head any motion to reopen a withdrawn case.

Here, it appears that while the petitioner may have indicated that she wished to withdraw her appeal of the denial of the school administrator's certificate, she failed to notify the judge or the OAL. Had this desire to withdraw that appeal been conveyed sooner, the matter would have been dismissed earlier and returned to the agency.

However, due to the misunderstanding and confusion as to whether the denial of the application for a school principal's certificate was incorporated into this appeal of the denial of the school administrator's certificate, given the footnote in the decision of the Board on May 19, 2020, in which the Board acknowledged that it was aware that the petitioner wished to appeal the denial of the principal's certificate, I recommend that if the petitioner still wishes to appeal the Board's denial of a principal's certificate, she be permitted to formally file her appeal within 90 days of this initial decision, or it will be deemed abandoned.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, the Board's motion for summary decision of the denial of the school administrator's certificate is granted. The appeal was filed well out of time and no compelling reasons were provided to justify why the 90-day rule to file an appeal of an adverse determination should be relaxed.

However, due to the misunderstanding and uncertainty as to whether the denial of the application for a school principal's certificate was incorporated by the Board, without a formal transmittal, into this appeal of the denial of the school administrator's certificate, I recommend that if the petitioner wishes to pursue that matter, she be permitted to file an appeal of the denial of the principal's certificate within 90 days of this initial decision, or it will be deemed abandoned.

ORDER

I ORDER that the Board's motion for summary decision regarding the denial of the school administrator's certificate of eligibility is GRANTED. The appeal is DISMISSED.

I further ORDER that the petitioner be permitted to formally file an appeal of the denial of the principal's certificate within 90 days of this initial decision, or it will be deemed abandoned.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Final Decision

In the Matter of the Suspension of the Teaching Certificates of Craig Smith, Board of Trustees of the Marion P. Thomas Charter School, Essex County.

Synopsis

The petitioning Board sought the suspension of the teaching certificates of respondent – a non-tenured Science teacher – following his resignation without providing the notice required under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8. Respondent submitted a letter on September 10, 2019, informing the Board that he intended to resign from his position sixty days from the date of the letter. The next day, the school sent respondent a letter advising that pursuant to his contract he would be released from the contract upon completion of the sixty days, on November 10, 2019, or sooner if the school was able to find a replacement. Subsequently, three weeks prior to that date – on October 19, 2019 – respondent stopped coming to work and abandoned his position. Respondent contended that there were mitigating circumstances which compelled him to resign due to the difficult work environment.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: respondent intentionally and deliberately failed to provide the requisite sixty days' notice prior to resigning and abandoning his position; justifications offered for respondent's failure to complete his contractual obligations were without merit as respondent made no effort to provide evidence of mitigating circumstances or compelling reasons for his actions, aside from making unsupported personal attacks on the school administration; respondent made no effort to assure a smooth transition for the school, thereby negatively impacting the education of 120 seventh and eighth graders; respondent's certificates should be suspended pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8 because he resigned without providing the Board with the requisite statutory notice; and a one-year suspension is the appropriate penalty for such unprofessional conduct. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered that respondent's certificates be suspended for a period of one year.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusion for the reasons outlined in the Initial Decision. Accordingly, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter. Respondent's certificates were suspended for one year from the filing date of this decision, a copy of which has been forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for implementation of the suspension.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

Final Decision

In the Matter of the Suspension of the Teaching Certificates of Craig Smith, Board of Trustees of the Marion P. Thomas Charter School, Essex County.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the exceptions filed by respondent Craig Smith pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 have been reviewed and considered.[1]

The Board filed an Order to Show Cause seeking the suspension of respondent's teaching certificates for resigning from his teaching position without providing the required 60-day notice. Following a hearing, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) concluded that respondent failed to provide the required notice and also failed to present any mitigating circumstances or compelling reasons justifying his actions, other than making unsupported personal attacks on the school administration. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered that respondent's teaching certificates be suspended for one year.

In his exceptions, respondent reiterates arguments made below, indicating that he was fearful that there was an intentional attempt to discredit and disgrace him through complaints from and interactions with students, parents, and the school's administration.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) – for the reasons outlined in the Initial Decision – that the respondent's certificates should be suspended pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8 because he resigned without providing the Board with the requisite statutory notice. The Commissioner is also in accord with the ALJ's determination that a one-year suspension of the respondent's certificates is the appropriate penalty. The Commissioner does not find respondent's exceptions persuasive, as they merely reiterate arguments that the ALJ, who was in the best position to assess all of the testimony, found not to be credible.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The respondent's teaching certificates are suspended for a period of one year from the filing date of this decision, a copy of which shall be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for implementation of the suspension.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[2]

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. EDU 09789-20
AGENCY DKT. NO. 45-2/20

IN THE MATTER OF THE SUSPENSION OF THE TEACHING CERTIFICATES OF CRAIG SMITH, BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE MARION P. THOMAS CHARTER SCHOOL.

Thomas O. Johnston, Esq., for petitioner (Johnston Law Firm, LLC)

Craig Smith, respondent, pro se

Record Closed: May 13, 2021 Decided: June 9, 2021

BEFORE ERNEST M. BONGIOVANNI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, the Board of Trustees of the Marion P. Thomas Charter School, (petitioner or School) seeks the suspension of the teaching certificates of Craig Smith, (respondent or Smith) for his failure to provide a 60-day notice of resignation to the District. Respondent contends there were mitigating circumstances and that he was compelled to resign due to the difficult work environment. On or about December 4, 2019, the Board filed with the Commissioner of Education of the State of New Jersey (Commissioner) a verified application for an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) as to why the teaching certificates of respondent Smith should not be suspended, contending that he resigned from his teaching position with inadequate notice. The Order to Show Cause was issued by the Commissioner on December 13, 2019, and was personally served on respondent on February 17, 2020. The Commissioner transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing, where it was filed on October 9, 2020. A hearing was held via "ZOOM" recording on April 21, 2021. The record was left open for receipt of briefs until May 13, 2021 at which time the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The underlying facts are largely uncontroverted, and FIND the following to be the FACTS: On May 10, 2019, Smith executed his second one year employment contract as a non-tenured seventh and eighth grade Science teacher, to commence August 19, 2019 and to end June 30, 2020. (P-1). The contract specified that Smith could terminate the contract "upon Sixty (60) days written notice to the School..." On September 10, 2019 Smith sent the School a letter resigning his position effective sixty days from that date. The letter gave no specific reason for Mr. Smith's quitting other than "under the current conditions" he "[would] not be able to carry out [his] responsibilities to the best of [his] abilities." He thanked the administration for "all [their] support for all the time" that he had been there. (P-2)[1] On the next day, Mindy Weidman, the School's chief talent officer sent Smith a letter advising that pursuant to his contract and school policy he would be released from the contract upon completion of the sixty days, on November 10, 2019, or sooner if the School was able to find a replacement.

However, on October 19, 2019, three weeks prior to his date of termination, and without further notice, Smith stopped coming to work and, as admitted by him in his testimony abandoned his position. He did however return to the school sometime after October 23, to return his keys and computer and conduct an exit review. However, both prior to Mr. Smith leaving the school abruptly one day and never returning to class, and after Mr. Smith never wrote to the school or Ms. Weidman, about his complaints.

[1] The exhibits by petitioner were pre-marked A through E, but were designated when entered by the Court as P-1 through P-5 to properly note which party submitted the document and for uniformity in written decisions.

According to Ms. Weidman's testimony, unrefuted by Smith, the School had no coverage for him, which was particularly problematic because science teaching, particularly for the graders who are required to take a science, is a hard to fill position. The result of Smith's abrupt early termination prior to the expiration of 60 days, resulted in the students having a period of those to three months where they had to be taught by less qualified and uncertified teachers. Also, according to Ms. Weidman, other students suffer when a teacher leaves abruptly and without proper notice as they become fearful that other teachers will abandon their posts, thus abandoning them Finally according to Weidman, and undisputed by Smith, the school's continued existence as a public charter school depends on exceeding public schools performance standards. Therefore, from the School's perspective, Smith's abandonment of his position three weeks before he was permitted under his contract to leave certainly negatively impacted the School's 120 students and the continued viability of the School. Smith did not argue to the contrary.

Rather, Smith attempted to justify his actions because a student called him a "pervert." As a result, Smith was forced to physically bat this student from his classroom. Sometime after that Smith was called to the principal's office to learn that a parent had brought in her son, another student to complain about this accusation made by the other student. the result of which was a complaint made by the student's parent. Smith believed he was being set up for a criminal complaint. Also, according to Smith, the parent who had complained about him was a member of the Board of Directors of Brick Network, a management group for School. Further he had, with another teacher complained about the level of competency of one or some of the presenters of professional development meetings. One presenter was a female, who, according to Smith, accused him (and the other teacher, also, like Smith, a male) of "harassment." As a result, according to Smith the principal advised him not to attend further professional development meetings. Also, Smith, the parent who had complained about what Brick Network, a management group, for the administration of charter schools that had done since having "taken over" the management of the School after 2018-2019. According to Smith, the entire previous administration had resigned or not been offered contracts for 2019-2020, as a result of Brick Network's "unscrupulous practices", as summed up by Smith, in his post hearing brief/commentary. Ms. Weidman disputed that the level of resignations and non-renewals of the administrators of the schools was as high as Smith Claimed. I FIND these statements by Smith concerning "unscrupulous practices" by Brick Network to be to be unsupported by any competent evidence presented and coming from a disgruntled ex-employee with a serious stake in the outcome of the present controversy to be otherwise not credible. Further I FIND his story about being targeted by the School for the student's accusation and the parents' complaint to be unfounded and because of the harassment accusation to be not credible. I note that there was a complete absence of Smith documenting these concerns to the School and prior to the litigation commencing, was consequently not mentioned in his letter of resignation. Further, no explanation for not calling any witnesses, such as the other teacher, was with Smith when the so called complained of "harassment" occurred. Nor did he attempt to call any ex-employees or document anything about ex-employees to support his claim about the "unscrupulous practices by Brick Network Further I find that Smith's own testimony that the principal told him after learning of the interaction between the presenter and Smith to simply not go to any further professional development classes because he was leaving in a few weeks to be a perfectly reasonable resolution to that "problem" if indeed it was a problem. I do not see why any school should offer professional development classes to any teaching that is leaving in a few weeks.

According to Smith, he had no self-interested, reason for leaving the School, but his actions were completely motivated by his fear of being set up for punitive actions for being accused of being a "pervert" and a harasser. I find it not credible that Smith thought he was facing any punitive action and indeed there is no evidence that the School was doing anything but following normal procedure to discuss any complaint by a parent There is also no evidence the school to the complaint seriously. As for having to put up with the student who made the unjust accusation, Smith admitted he barred the student from his classroom. Moreover, it also would have been unreasonable for Smith to quit because a presenter said she was harassing him concerning his complaints he made over the presenter's competence. Even if the "harassment" comment by the presenter had been made, which I doubt, as the only evidence of it comes from the self-interested respondent, there was no evidence that an "harassment" investigation was undertaken.

Smith impressed me as a strong, and strong willed individual unlikely to be pushed around or one who is particularly sensitive to outrageous claims because of being highly strung or emotionally delicate. Therefore, Smith's story seems on balance an after the fact justification for quitting when it suited him to quit. Moreover, in November 2019 he began an interview process which resulted in his commencing, in January 2020, his new position as a middle school teacher at another Charter School. (P-5).

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The issue presented here is whether respondent's teaching certificates should be suspended for up to one year for failure to perform his duties prior to the expiration of the employment period, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10, which provides in pertinent part that

> [a]ny teaching staff member employed by a board of education . . . who shall, without the consent of the board . . . , cease to perform his duties before the expiration of the term of his employment, shall be deemed guilty of unprofessional conduct, and the commissioner may, upon receiving notice thereof, suspend his certificate for a period not exceeding one year.

The procedure by which a teaching staff member must provide notice of resignation is set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8, as follows:

> Any teaching staff member, under tenure of service, desiring to relinquish his position shall give the employing board of education at least 60 days written notice of his intention, unless the board shall approve of a release on shorter notice and if he fails to give such notice he shall be deemed guilty of unprofessional conduct and the commissioner may suspend his certificate for not more than one year.

By using the term "may" and not "shall," the Legislature did not intend for there to be an automatic suspension, rather, it determined to invest the Commissioner with discretion predicated on the facts and circumstances individual to the case. Thus, the Commissioner may suspend, in his or her discretion.

The purpose of these statutes is "to provide notice to the school so that a suitable replacement can be hired without adversely impacting students," and thereby protect students. Penns Grove-Carneys Point Bd. of Educ. v. Leinen, 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 405, 407. The decision as to whether to suspend a teaching staff member's certificate is a discretionary determination vested in the Commissioner, and historically all attendant circumstances specific to each case have been evaluated. Generally, this evaluation results in suspension of certificates for the maximum one-year period, especially when the facts demonstrate that "individuals violated the sixty-day notice requirement for strictly personal reasons, putting their own self-interest above the interests of students and their professional obligation to provide adequate notice to the Board." In re Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Capshaw, EDU 12318-06, Initial Decision (April 30, 2007), modified, Comm'r (June 12, 2007), https://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/; see also Bd. of Educ. of Alpine v. Yuz, EDU 1116-06, Initial Decision (July 17, 2008), adopted, Comm'r (September 23, 2008), https://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/, stating that, generally, a full one-year suspension of a teaching certificate for leaving a district without adequate notice is imposed, with the rare exception of compelling reasons.

The Commissioner imposed a three-month suspension in In re Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Rogers, 1989 S.L.D. 1962 (May 16, 1989), adopted, 1989 S.L.D. 1968 (June 21, 1989), where a non-tenured teacher of the handicapped resigned to take a position in a State facility, switching employment for more "noble" reasons, to work with more severely handicapped children. Another matter in which less than a one-year suspension was imposed is In re the Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Borden, School District of Edison, Middlesex County, Commissioner Decision 247-16, where a non-tenured teacher resigned following a debilitating injury that left her unable to drive or climb stairs. The Commissioner determined that while Borden's conduct was unprofessional within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:26-10, her resignation was motivated by a medical crisis, supported by medical records, and not personal gain, and imposed a three-month suspension.

In In re the Teaching Certificate of Burgess, 1983 S.L.D. 183, adopted, 1983 S.L.D. 195, the board accepted a two-week resignation predicated on its plan to find a replacement by Burgess's termination date. The board failed to follow through on its promise, and so the Commissioner declined to impose a suspension.

In Board of Education of Black Horse Pike Regional School District v. Mooney, 1984 S.L.D. 810, adopted, 1984 S.L.D. 821, a teacher made considerable efforts to assist the board with a smooth transition; developed a program through the end of the year; met with her successor to put the program in place; and left final grades. The Commissioner determined to impose no suspension.

In the matter In re Suspension of the Teaching Certificate of Savino, EDU 11688-04, Initial Decision (July 28, 2005), modified, Comm'r (August 30, 2005), affirmed, State Bd. (February 3, 2006), https://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/, Savino asserted that she was uncomfortable being reassigned from elementary school to middle school, and felt "unfit" to teach middle school even though she was fully certified to do so. The superintendent had warned her that the process for suspension would be commenced, as here, should she not comply with the advance-notice requirement. While the ALJ concluded that Savino's fear of unfitness constituted a mitigating factor warranting a shorter suspension, the Commissioner disagreed, and reversed the proposed sixty-day suspension in favor of a one-year suspension. No mitigation was found, nor were compelling reasons, unlike in Mooney and Rogers. Indeed, the compelling reasons found in Rogers nevertheless resulted in the imposition of a three-month suspension. See also In the Matter of Teacher Certificates of Erin Davidoe, Board of Education of Long Hill Township EDU 01563-20, Initial Decision (August 31, 2020).

It is clear and undisputed that Smith, intentionally and deliberately failed to provide the requisite sixty days' notice prior to resigning. At the hearing Smith defiantly took the stance that his actions were completely justified because of his fear of persecution as a result of what was admittedly a baseless complaint by a parent based on a frivolous or malicious action of a pupil. However, as noted by the School, Smith never documented any dispute over the Administration's handling of the complaint and Smith admitted in testimony the school had an obligation to investigate the complaint. Further, Smith's concern about the "harassment" statements made by the presenter at a professional development were unreasonable and not credible. Smith made no effort to offer any mitigating circumstances or compelling reasons for his actions, other than by making unsupported personal attacks on the school administration.

As such, Smith is guilty of unprofessional conduct as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8. Undoubtedly, Smith knew the consequences of his actions to leave his position at the School in violation of the Notice requirement of his contract. He did not refute that science teachers for students of this age are difficult to obtain. The issue, therefore, is what constitutes an appropriate term for the suspension of respondent's certificates. The penalty assessed in many similar matters is a one-year suspension. There have been situations where less than a one-year suspension was deemed appropriate due to mitigating circumstances. Here, the respondent's letter of resignation alluded to circumstances which made it impossible to fulfill his duties to the best of his abilities but said nothing about any urgency in his leaving. As stated I find his claims about his fears of prosecution or persecution to be not credible. Further he provided a motive for leaving the School in the lurch and quitting early, by his unhidden expressions of his disdain of the current Administration. Not surprisingly, considering his convictions, he made no effort to to ensure a smooth transition for the School. As a consequence, the education of 120 students were negatively impacted by Smith's self-centered conduct. Further this particular chartered School, the petitioner, was unfairly disadvantaged in its ongoing obligation to retain its own charter, while Smith pursued another position at another charter school. Finally, even if respondent were to be completely believed as to the issues the way he presented them, there were no dire circumstances or compelling reasons which caused him not to continue at the school another three weeks to complete his contractual obligation.

CONCLUSION

There is no dispute that respondent failed to provide the requisite timely notice of resignation, by failing to continue to report to work for the required sixty days after serving the School with Notice, and therefore is guilty of unbecoming conduct as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8. As there are no compelling reasons for Smith's conduct nor any mitigating circumstances, I CONCLUDE that a one-year suspension is appropriate.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that respondent's teaching certificates be and hereby are suspended for a period of one year commencing June 9, 2021 and ending on June 8, 2022.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. Re: M.M. and L.M., on behalf of minor child, A.M. v. New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association, Agency Dkt. No. 112-7/21.

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the materials filed in connection with the petition of appeal and motion for emergent relief filed by M.M. and L.M in the above-captioned matter. Upon review of the submissions, I have determined that this matter is not properly before me.

M.M. and L.M. are attempting to appeal the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) rule governing the transfer of a student-athlete from one secondary school to another (Transfer Rule), addressed in Article V, Section 4(K) of the NJSIAA Bylaws.

Article V, Section 4(K)(2) of the NJSIAA's Bylaws states:

a. A student-athlete transferring from one secondary school to another, without a bona fide change of residence by that student's parent or guardian, shall be ineligible to participate for a period of thirty (30) calendar days or one half of the maximum number of games allowed in the sport by NJSIAA rules (ineligibility period) from the beginning of the regular schedule, whichever is less, in any sport in which the student has previously participated at the varsity level.

CL1: Since the thirty (30) days or one half the maximum number of games allowed in a sport by the NJSIAA rules ineligibility period (whichever is less) is intended to serve as a deterrent for students transferring from one school to another without a bona fide parental/guardian change of residence and is one of the most lenient penalties in the United States, appeals will not be heard, regardless of reason.

The NJSIAA rules clearly state that no appeals of the Transfer Rule will be heard. Further, under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-7.1(c), "[t]he Commissioner shall summarily dismiss any petition seeking to appeal a determination of the NJSIAA in an area that is expressly designated as not appealable by the NJSIAA constitution, bylaws or rules and regulations as adopted by member schools pursuant to law." Therefore, I am precluded from adjudicating this matter.

Accordingly, the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.[1]

Sincerely,

Angelica Allen-McMillan, Ed.D.

Decision

B.M., on behalf of minor child, C.M.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Bergen County Vocational Schools, Bergen County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Pro se petitioner disputed the respondent Board's finding that her son, C.M., committed an act of harassment, intimidation or bullying (HIB) against a fellow student pursuant to New Jersey's Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13.2 et seq (the Act). After an investigation by the school's anti-bullying specialist, the Board determined that C.M. had committed an act of HIB when he approached a female classmate from behind and grabbed her buttocks. Petitioner claimed, inter alia, that C.M. was "discriminated against" in the course of the HIB investigation, causing him academic and emotional harm. The Board filed a motion for summary decision, contending that the HIB investigation was properly conducted and that the Board was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable in making the determination that C.M.'s conduct constituted HIB.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: an action by a board of education is entitled to a presumption of correctness unless it is proven to be arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable; under the Act, "harassment, intimidation, or bullying" is broadly defined as any gesture, any written, verbal, or physical act, or any electronic communication that is reasonably perceived as motivated by any actual or perceived distinguishing characteristic, such as race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, or a mental, physical, or sensory disability, that takes place on school property and substantially disrupts the orderly operation of the school; in the instant case, the record reflects that C.M. did not deny touching his classmate's buttocks, but characterized the physical contact as a "poke" rather than a "grab"; petitioner does not dispute that C.M. committed the act, nor that the school district was required under the HIB statute to report, investigate, make findings, and decide consequences based upon C.M.'s conduct; and petitioner has neither alleged nor shown that the district's handling of the HIB complaint against C.M. was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. The ALJ concluded that the Board's determination of HIB was appropriate as C.M.'s uninvited touching of a fellow student violated the Act; further, petitioner presented no genuine issue of material fact, and the overwhelming weight of the evidence in this case has been presented by the Board. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision and dismissed the petition.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the Board did not act in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner in rendering its HIB determination pursuant to the Act. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

Final Decision

B.M., on behalf of minor child, C.M.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Bergen County Vocational Schools, Bergen County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

In this matter, the Bergen County Vocational Schools Board of Education determined that C.M. committed an act of harassment, intimidation and bullying (HIB) when he grabbed a female student's buttocks. Upon review, the Commissioner agrees with the Administrative Law Judge that the Board did not act in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner in rendering its HIB determination, pursuant to the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13 et seq.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the petition is hereby dismissed.

BEFORE LESLIE Z. CELENTANO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, B.M. on behalf of C.M., filed a Petition of Appeal to the Commissioner of Education in which B.M. disputes the finding of respondent Bergen County Vocational Schools Board of Education that her son C.M. committed an act of harassment, intimidation, or bullying (HIB) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13.2 et seq.

The Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on July 7, 2020. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Respondent filed a motion for summary decision and petitioner made multiple submissions thereafter.[1] The record remained open for respondent to submit a reply once petitioner filed her final submission.[2]

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

At an off-school-grounds Halloween gathering in 2019, C.M., a male junior at the Bergen County Academy for Visual and Performing Arts (AVPA), approached a female classmate and acquaintance, N.L., from behind, and without invitation "grabbed her buttocks with both of his hands," she reported later to a school counselor. (Sheridan Cert. at ¶ 5.) The report was corroborated by another student, who told the school's anti-bullying specialist (ABS) that she saw "C.M. come up behind N.L. and touch and 'jiggle' N.L.'s buttocks with two hands." (Resp't's Letter Br. at 5.) As N.L. described the incident, "[C.M.] grabbed my arm and waist and pulled me around harshly, . . . made sex noises in my ear and rubbed his front side up against mine in the middle of us speaking. He came up to me from behind and jiggled my butt. He followed this action by calling me 'thicc' [sic] and cornering me with his body invading my space . . . ." (Resp't's Ex. A at 23.)

N.L. also reported that two days prior to Halloween, after she and C.M. were dropped off at his house after a play rehearsal and he told her his parents were not home, he tried to force her to touch his genitals, "pinned her down and mounted her, and sexually harassed her the entire evening despite her repeatedly telling him to stop." (Sheridan Cert. at ¶ 5.) N.L. alleged a two-year history including disturbing and unwelcome physical and verbal acts by C.M. against her and others, including several incidents of C.M. touching her breasts without permission, at least once in school. (Resp't's Ex. A at 17–18.) She also said C.M. often made racial, anti-Semitic, and anti-gay remarks and called people "fat." (Id. at 20.) N.L. reported "that she is frightened of C.M. and doesn't feel safe or comfortable in his presence." (Sheridan Cert. at ¶ 5.)

School officials reacted quickly to N.L.'s HIB complaint. On November 4, 2019, the day of her report, the counselor verbally reported her complaint to the vice principal of the Bergen County Academies, a magnet high school housing the AVPA program that is overseen by the Board of Education of the vocational schools in the County of Bergen. The complaint was also reported to the district's ABS. The parents of N.L. and C.M. were notified that day that N.L. had filed an HIB report against C.M. (Resp't's Cert., Ex. A, at 2.) Meetings were held with each student, their parents, the Academies' vice principal, and the ABS, who initiated an HIB investigation. (Resp't's Ex. A at 3.) N.L.'s allegations were also transmitted by the district to the school resource officer with the Bergen County Sheriff's Department, which later reported that the report was investigated but no juvenile or criminal charges would be brought. (Id. at 4.)

On November 6, 2019, a written HIB report was signed by the vice principal. (Id. at 1B.) Ten school days after N.L.'s initial report, on November 18, the ABS's investigation, including interviews with N.L., C.M., and eight witnesses, was completed. (Id. at 3.)

In his interview with the ABS on November 13, 2019, C.M. said he never intended to "harass, intimidate, or bully anyone and does not believe any of his actions had this impact." (Resp't's Ex. A at 9–10.) The student acknowledged that he touched N.L. at the Halloween gathering, but stated that he was "just trying to get [N.L.] to turn around" as the group stood together at an overlook, and the touch was not "in the way he is being accused of." (Ibid.) He stated that N.L. turned around and asked him, "'Did you poke me?'" C.M. said he responded "yes," and N.L. replied, "oh, ok." (Ibid.)

In the interview, C.M. "admitted that at the beginning of sophomore year, he did 'flip' the breast of his friend/classmate," and said "it only happened 2–3 times . . . ." (Ibid.) C.M. also stated that starting with freshman year, "joking and comments about each other were part of the culture of their group," and "it was their way of responding/dealing with" hatred, "to give it less power[.]" (Resp't's Ex. A at 9.) C.M. expressed a belief that no one was offended by his behavior, and said, "other people have engaged in the same conduct and comments and that it is the culture among his friend and peers," although he told the ABS that in freshman year, classmates told him his jokes went "too far" and they bothered them. (Ibid.)

The ABS's Final Report and HIB Intervention Plan were completed on November 21, 2019. (Sheridan Cert. at ¶ 11.) The report found that C.M.'s actions met the elements of an HIB violation. The ABS concluded that C.M.'s behavior was motivated by a "distinguishing characteristic" of N.L.—in this case, race, sexual orientation, and weight of the victim, categories enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:37. (Resp't's Ex. A at 2.) The ABS determined that the incident "substantially disrupted or interfered with the orderly operation of the school or rights of other students and insulted or demeaned a student or group of students," which are also elements of HIB. (Resp't's Br. at 3–4.) She noted, "C.M. did not seem remorseful nor wrong [sic] for any of the comments or actions he has made." (Resp't's Ex. A at 2.)

As a result of the HIB determination, consequences were imposed on C.M. aimed at separating N.L. and him and preventing contact between them, "to ensure that N.L. felt safe while at school." (Sheridan Cert. at ¶ 14.) C.M. was excluded from that fall's school play to avoid interaction with N.L., who also was in the play. He was removed from classes shared with N.L., including his theater classes, and given individualized theater instruction by the same teacher. His schedule was changed to eliminate potential contact with N.L., and he was excluded from the spring play and a class trip to London. (Ibid.)[3] He was suspended for five days as "a matter of student discipline relating to C.M.'s conduct with other students[.]" (Sheridan Cert. at ¶ 15.) The suspension was later removed from C.M.'s records at his and his parents' request. (Ibid.)

The vice principal notified C.M.'s parents about the consequences on November 26, 2019. (Resp't's Ex. B.) On December 10, 2019, the district superintendent reported the HIB case to the Board of Education at its scheduled public meeting. (Resp't's Ex. C.)

[3] None of these consequences were actually suffered by C.M., as the shutdown of the district due to COVID-19 resulted in the cancelation of the class trips and spring play and all other in-person activities.

The next day the superintendent wrote to both students' parents regarding the HIB investigation results and his report to the Board. (Ibid.) He told the families they had a right to a hearing before the Board. (Resp't's Ex. D.)

C.M.'s parents requested the Board hearing to appeal the HIB finding against their son, and on January 28, 2020, the hearing was conducted in executive session. (Resp't's Ex. E.) There, Board attorney William Soukas explained that the family had a right to appeal to the Board, and that the hearing was "not to be adversarial," and informed the Board that it would hear from district witnesses and the family, according to the meeting minutes. (Ibid.)

B.M. told the Board that her son "advised her that he had merely poked [N.L.], rather than grabbed her buttocks." She stated that "there is a culture in (the school) that is 'touchy feely' and that this incident is nothing more than an extension of that conduct . . . ." (Ibid.) She stated that C.M. and N.L. were close friends prior to the incident, and she described her son as "the victim of a 'me-too' movement which resulted in harsher treatment because of his male gender." (Ibid.)

Petitioner was informed on February 10, 2020, that the Board had affirmed the HIB finding against C.M. (Resp't's Ex. F), and of certain consequences the district had imposed on C.M. for the remainder of the school year, including his removal from performing arts classes, and rescheduling to reduce contact with N.L. (Ibid.) C.M. was to continue to receive individualized study for theater. The Board affirmed that he would not be permitted to participate in the spring play or the London trip. (Ibid.)

The Board also determined that C.M. could participate in certain extracurricular and curricular activities during junior year with appropriate district measures to minimize or eliminate interaction with N.L. (Resp't's Ex. F.) Fall-play auditions were rescheduled from spring to fall in order to accommodate C.M. (Ibid.)

The petitioner expressed her displeasure with the Board's decision to school officials (Ibid.), and on or about March 18, 2020, filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education, alleging that C.M. was "discriminated against" in the course of the district's HIB investigation, causing him academic and emotional harm.

THE PARTIES' ARGUMENTS

While the touching that triggered the HIB allegation against C.M. is acknowledged and undisputed by the pro se petitioner, petitioner takes issue with the district's determination that C.M.'s behavior constituted HIB, and with the consequences imposed on C.M. In correspondence submitted, petitioner B.M. argues that C.M.'s physical behavior with N.L., and the language he used with her and others, should be viewed within the context of what petitioner claims is a school culture of permissive physical and verbal expression, and of the long, friend/classmate relationship of N.L. and C.M.

Petitioner contends that the consequences were "grossly unjust," and that C.M. was "disciplined on unproven allegations" by school officials, whose actions isolated him and made him a "target to be . . . abused," and who "did nothing to intervene when we raised the concerns of abuse toward him." B.M. states that she and C.M. were never "told by the school that there was a problem" with his behavior, and that C.M. "was never given a chance to correct this and in fact had no ability to understand that this was wrong since how he communicated was demonstrated by most of the students in the program."

Petitioner B.M. acknowledges that the Board "removed some of the disciplinary actions" initially imposed, but claims that her son was "denied the education he deserved" and was traumatized by his treatment. In one letter she writes, "We know that we can't undo the damage but given our experiences we felt it necessary to pursue appeals." In another, apparently referring to the Board's summary-decision motion, B.M. states, "We remain concerned that there are efforts to dismiss this case and silence us." B.M., who appeals pro se, acknowledges administrative deficiencies in her filings with the OAL, but pleads lack of knowledge of the legal system and procedures.

The Board argues that summary decision should be granted on several counts: 1) Petitioner has failed to show any genuine issue of material fact that would preclude summary decision and dismissal of the petition, and instead has expressed "dissatisfaction with, and continued disbelief that C.M.'s behavior towards N.L. was found to constitute HIB or merited consequences of any sort." (Resp't's Br. at 3.) The Board contends that petitioner's "dissatisfaction" was "always clear and undisputed," and "does not constitute any material issue of fact precluding summary decision." (Ibid.) 2) Petitioner failed to follow administrative procedure under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) by submitting the typewritten letters in response to the Board's summary-decision motion instead of the statutorily required affidavit setting forth "specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding." The court can grant summary decision "where appropriate" for failure to submit the affidavit, the Board notes. 3) The Board's HIB finding against C.M. and imposition of consequences were "correct and proper," and "[n]othing . . . reflects" that its "handling of the matter was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable." (Resp't's Br. at 2.)

Citing the case record, including N.L.'s statement (Resp't's Ex. A) reflecting that she "feared being in C.M.'s presence" and that there was "a history of this type of improper, sexually charged behavior by C.M. towards N.L.," the Board contends that "allegations of HIB filed by student N.L. against C.M. were promptly acted upon, being reported and investigated as required by the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act . . . ." (Resp't's Br. at 3.)

The Board states that the district properly found that C.M.'s uninvited touching of N.L. on Halloween of 2019 met the elements of HIB and violated the Act. The Board argues that "there is no credible dispute" that the consequences imposed on C.M. "were proper and narrowly tailored to address this particular situation, namely, to avoid interaction between N.L. and C.M., in interests of protecting each student." (Resp't's Br. at 4.)

The Board also notes, in its letter brief of January 13, 2021, that, "Ultimately, C.M. was unaffected by these consequences" because of the COVID-19 pandemic and resulting shutdown of the school district in March 2020. "No students went on any class trips and no Spring Plays or other in-person activities were conducted." The Board rejects petitioner's claim that the District did not intervene to assist C.M., noting that "supportive action," including parent contact, follow up, individual counseling, and other assistance, was provided or recommended. (Resp't's Br. at 6.)

The Board argues that the District conducted a prompt, thorough investigation adhering to the procedural requirements of the HIB statute, that it imposed appropriate consequences that were intended to keep C.M. and N.L. from interacting at school, and that there is no credible question that the Board here acted properly and in good faith, not in any arbitrary way. For these reasons, the Board argues, summary decision should be granted and the district's HIB findings should be affirmed.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The summary-decision analysis is essentially the same as that of summary judgment, and under the New Jersey Rules of Court a party may move for and be granted summary judgment if "the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law." R. 4:46-2(c). "An issue of fact is genuine only if, considering the burden of persuasion at trial, the evidence submitted by the parties on the motion, together with all legitimate inferences . . . favoring the non-moving party, would require submission of the issue to the trier of fact." Ibid.

Under the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, summary decision may be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). "When a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. . . . If the adverse party does not so respond, a summary decision, if appropriate, shall be entered." Ibid.

In Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995), the New Jersey Supreme Court clarified the framework for deciding a summary-judgment motion. The judge must "consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party." Summary judgment must be granted if the evidence is "so one-sided that [the moving party] must prevail as a matter of law." Ibid.

Here, the Board has filed a motion for summary decision, supporting it with letter briefs and certifications, including the victim's written statement, the school counselor's report of what N.L. told her, the anti-bullying specialist's report on her investigation of N.L.'s allegation and her interview notes, the minutes of the Board's executive-session hearing at which C.M.'s parents presented their concerns, and other documentation.

Petitioner has not filed the reply affidavit that is required under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) as the vehicle for setting out "specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding." But the critical issue here is not whether petitioner filed an affidavit, but whether petitioner has shown any genuine issue of material fact that, in light of the evidence and with legitimate inferences favoring petitioner as the non-moving party, require that issue to be heard by the factfinder.

Petitioner's submissions consist of several letters reiterating petitioner's displeasure at the Board's findings and the consequences imposed on C.M., along with allegations of abuse and isolation allegedly inflicted on C.M. by the district. The submissions repeat the family's view of C.M.'s behavior, contending that his actions should be understood in the context of student and school culture and the long friendship between C.M. and N.L. "This is a program that deals with mature themes," B.M. says of the theater program. "There is a physicality to their performance work. The group often laid around on the floor with each other and blankets during class and they demonstrated a lot of affection for each other (hugging, etc.), which . . . we have photos to show. The photographic evidence clearly disputed the accounts and fears that N.L. expressed. It was ignored."

It is also irrelevant. Photographs of teenaged theater students dramatizing social issues and hugging each other are unrelated to the district's determination—unchallenged by C.M.'s petition of appeal—that on Halloween of 2019 C.M. violated the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act by touching N.L. in a sexually charged manner, in front of at least one witness, without N.L.'s consent. Photographs of students hugging and text messages between C.M. and N.L. that petitioner submitted to indicate a friendship are irrelevant to whether C.M.'s behavior was improper, and whether it disturbed and frightened N.L.

Petitioner clearly is aggrieved by the HIB finding against C.M., and by the consequences the district imposed. The letters from B.M. repeated petitioner's desire to appeal and be "heard." But petitioner does not dispute that C.M. committed the act for which the district was required, under the HIB statute, to report, investigate, make findings, and decide consequences. Importantly, petitioner has neither alleged nor shown that the district's handling of N.L.'s complaint was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. That is the standard, established by the Commissioner of Education, that must be met by a party seeking to overturn a school board's decision. In fact, petitioner's submissions do not make clear exactly what she is appealing or what remedy she seeks.

The petitioner accuses the district of treating C.M. harshly and unfairly, despite the evidence showing that the Board attempted to protect both students, accommodated C.M.'s academic and extracurricular needs, and offered other assistance. Petitioner does not allege that the Board failed to follow the law or acted improperly. There has been no showing that based on competent evidentiary materials viewed in a light most favorable to petitioner, a reasonable factfinder could resolve the disputed issue in petitioner's favor. No genuine issue of material fact has been presented here, and the overwhelming weight of the evidence in this case has been presented by the Board. Logically, its summary decision motion must prevail.

The Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act (ABR Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13 to -47, is designed "to strengthen the standards and procedures for preventing, reporting, investigating, and responding to incidents of harassment, intimidation, and bullying of students that occur in school and off school premises." N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13.1(f). The Act defines HIB as > any gesture, any written, verbal or physical act, or any electronic communication, whether it be a single incident or a series of incidents, that is reasonably perceived as being motivated either by any actual or perceived characteristic, such as race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, or a mental, physical or sensory disability, or by any other distinguishing characteristic, that takes place on school property, at any school-sponsored function, on a school bus, or off school grounds . . . . that substantially disrupts or interferes with the orderly operation of the school or the rights of other students and that:

Respondent's Board of Education Policy 5512.1, Harassment, Intimidation and Bullying, also defines HIB as "unwarranted, aggressive behavior" that may involve "a real or perceived power imbalance." (Resp't's Br. of January 13, 2021, at 10.)

The framework for addressing school bullying and responding to HIB allegations is set forth in the ABR Act and in the New Jersey Administrative Code, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. Each school district is required under the statute to adopt its own policy prohibiting HIB. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15(a). District policies must include (1) a statement prohibiting HIB; (2) a definition of harassment, intimidation, or bullying that at least meets that of N.J.S.A 18A:37-14; and (3) consequences and appropriate remedial action for the HIB offender. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15(b); N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.7.

The policy must also detail procedures for quick investigation of HIB allegations, informing parents, and reporting results of the school's inquiry to the district superintendent and local board of education. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15(b)(5)–(6). The board then decides whether to affirm, reject, or modify the superintendent's decision. Parties can appeal the board's finding, by petition, to the Commissioner of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-5(b)(6). The Commissioner is empowered to "hear and determine, without cost to the parties, all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.

The filing of the petition, which must state the basis for appeal and the relief sought, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.4(a), initiates a contested case, as noted in a New Jersey Department of Education publication available on the agency's website, Guidance for Parents on the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act, at 42. Under the Administrative Procedure Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq., the parties must have an opportunity "to respond, appear and present evidence and argument on all issues involved." N.J.S.A. 52:14B-9(c).

The Commissioner of Education has established the "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable" standard as central to ALJ fact-finding in contested cases. An ALJ's determination of whether the school officials properly followed the anti-bullying statute is made under the "arbitrary, capricious" standard, and the Commissioner will not overturn a school-board decision unless its actions are found to meet it. T.B.-M. v. Moorestown Bd. of Educ., EDU 02780-07, Initial Decision (February 6, 2008) (citing Thomas v. Morris Twp. Bd. of Educ., 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd, 46 N.J. 581 (1966)), adopted, Comm'r (April 7, 2008), https://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/.

Agency determinations are generally presumed to be correct. In Thomas, the Appellate Division upheld a school-board decision in an employment dispute. Citing Education Department decisions dating to1960, the court noted:

> We are here concerned with a determination made by an administrative agency duly created and empowered by legislative fiat. When such a body acts within its authority, its decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be upset unless there is an affirmative showing that such decision was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. The agency's factual determinations must be accepted if supported by substantial credible evidence.
> [Thomas, 89 N.J. Super. at 332.]

In 2015, a school board found by an ALJ to have acted in an arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable manner in not finding HIB in a sexual-harassment case argued that "its determination was entitled to deference and the ALJ had no authority to modify it by granting summary decision to the petitioners sua sponte." T.R & T.R. ex rel. Minor Child E.R. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Bridgewater-Raritan Reg'l Sch. Dist., Somerset Cty., EDU 10208-13, Comm'r's Amended Decision (May 6, 2015), https://www.nj.gov/education/legal/. The Commissioner reiterated, "It is well established that when a local school board acts within its discretionary authority, its decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be upset unless there is an affirmative showing that the decision was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable." Ibid. (citing Thomas, 89 N.J. Super. at 332). "The fact that the substance of this case involves a challenge to the Board's HIB determination and the application of the Act does not impact the customary standard of review." Ibid.

To prevail in a challenge to an HIB decision, a petitioner "must demonstrate that the Board acted in bad faith, or in utter disregard of the circumstances before it." G.H. & E.H. ex rel. K.H. v. Bd. of Educ. of Franklin Lakes, EDU 13204-13, Initial Decision (February 24, 2014) (citation omitted), adopted, Comm'r (April 10, 2014), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/. A school board's decision may also be overturned if it violates the legislative policies expressed or implied in the governing act. J.A.H. ex rel. C.H. v. Pittsgrove Bd. of Educ., EDU 10826-12, Initial Decision (March 11, 2013) (citing Campbell v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 39 N.J. 556, 562 (1963)), adopted, Comm'r (April 25, 2013), http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/.

A review of the record in this matter shows that the Board followed the protocols set out by the ABR Act in promptly responding to N.L.'s complaint and launching an investigation, and implemented a plan reasonably aimed at reducing or eliminating interaction between C.M. and N.L. The fact that the Board modified some of the original consequences it imposed on C.M., removed his suspension from his school record, and accommodated him by moving the fall-play auditions to fall 2020, when he would be permitted to participate, reflects an effort to work with his family and listen to their concerns. The Board's intervention plan included discussions with his parents, and offers and recommendations that he receive counseling.

The Board properly found that C.M.'s uninvited touching of N.L. on Halloween violated the ABR Act, as it was "reasonably perceived as being motivated either by any actual or perceived characteristic," and because "a reasonable person should know" that the behavior would "have the effect of physically or emotionally harming" N.L. or placing her "in reasonable fear of physical or emotional harm," and had "the effect of insulting or demeaning" her.

Petitioner has provided no legitimate evidence that the Board's actions in this matter were arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable, and as such petitioner cannot meet the standard established by the Commissioner for disturbing the Board's HIB finding or consequences.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Based upon all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the Board's motion for summary decision should be granted, and petitioner's appeal dismissed, because petitioner has failed to show that there is any genuine issue of material fact that can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding, and because the Board adhered to the requirements of the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act in its reporting and investigation of N.L.'s complaint and in imposing consequences, and its actions were not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. Without such a showing, and based on the record made by the parties, the Board's motion for summary decision is GRANTED and the petition is hereby dismissed in its entirety.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

A.M., on behalf of minor child, A.S.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, Union County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Pro se petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that A.S. resides in Hillside with her father, J.S., and is therefore not eligible to receive a free public education in the Elizabeth public schools. The Board sought out-of-district tuition reimbursement for A.S.'s attendance. A.M. contended that A.S. has always resided with her in Elizabeth, but that due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the concomitant switch to remote education, COVID-19 in the family, and A.M.'s work schedule, A.S. attended Elizabeth's remote learning at J.S.'s home in Hillside so that he could provide childcare and assist A.S. with homework and the technology required for remote learning.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: during the 2020-2021 school year, A.S. was enrolled as a kindergartner in the Elizabeth School District; due to the COVID-19 pandemic, instruction was conducted remotely from September 8, 2020 to the week of April 19, 2021; A.S.'s father, J.S., resides in Hillside, and has joint custody of A.S. with A.M.; A.S. participated in remote learning from her father's house in Hillside while A.M. worked, because no one at the Elizabeth address was available to provide childcare and assist A.S. with remote-learning technology; there is no dispute that A.S. resides with A.M. during the school year; petitioner's testimony was highly credible, while the testimony of the Board's witnesses was not; petitioner provided substantial documentary evidence that her legal domicile is in the city of Elizabeth; and the Board's failure to accept A.M.'s reasonable explanations for A.S.'s presence in Hillside for childcare, remote learning, and quarantine purposes during the Covid-19 pandemic was unreasonable and callous. The ALJ concluded that A.M. met her burden of proof that she and A.S. are domiciled in Elizabeth, and that A.S. was therefore entitled to a free public education in the Elizabeth school district; further, the Board is not entitled to any tuition reimbursement under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(2).

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the petitioner sustained her burden of demonstrating that she was domiciled in Elizabeth from October 29, 2020 to the present. Accordingly, the minor child, A.S., was entitled to a free public education in the District's schools during that time. The Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the Board's counterclaim for tuition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

A.M., on behalf of minor child, A.S.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, Union County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon review, the Commissioner agrees with the Administrative Law Judge that petitioner sustained her burden of demonstrating that she was domiciled in Elizabeth from October 29, 2020 to the present. As such, the minor child, A.S., was entitled to a free public education in the District's schools during that time.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons expressed therein. The Board's counterclaim for tuition is dismissed.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 242-12/20

A.M., ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD, A.S.,
Petitioner,
v.
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY,
Respondent.

A.M., petitioner, pro se

Christina M. DiPalo, Esq., for respondent (La Corte, Bundy, Varady & Kinsella, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 15, 2021 Decided: June 16, 2021

BEFORE SARAH H. SURGENT, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner A.M., on behalf of her minor child, A.S., challenges the Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, Union County's (Board's) residency determination that

A.S. resides in Hillside with her father, J.S., and is therefore not entitled to be enrolled in the Elizabeth school district. The Board seeks out-of-district tuition reimbursement accordingly. A.M. maintains that A.S. has always resided with her in Elizabeth, but that due to the COVID-19 pandemic, concomitant remote education, COVID-19 in the family, and A.M.'s work schedule, A.S. attended Elizabeth's remote learning at J.S.'s home in Hillside, so that he could provide childcare and assist A.S. with homework and the technology required for remote learning.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

A.M.'s pro se petition of residency appeal was timely filed with the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) on November 20, 2020. (P-2). It was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) and docketed on December 15, 2020, to be heard as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -23. On January 15, 2021, it was assigned to this Administrative Law Judge (ALJ). After three telephonic conferences on February 11, February 26, and March 11, 2021, a remote plenary hearing commenced via videoconference on April 21, 2021, due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Due to an emergency in this ALJ's family, the continuation of that hearing was carried sua sponte from April 23, 2021, when J.S. was expected to testify, to May 18, 2021, when A.M. then reported that J.S. was unavailable to testify because he had been hospitalized early that morning. The hearing was concluded on that date and the record remained open for post-hearing submissions until June 15, 2021. The Board's written summation was received on May 20, 2021. A.M.'s written summation was received on June 15, 2021, and the record closed on that date.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

Sharon Calixto (Calixto), A.S.'s Elizabeth kindergarten teacher, and William Buteau (Buteau), Investigator for the Board's legal department, testified for the Board. A.M., A.M.'s sister, A.A., and A.M.'s grandmother, M.V., testified on A.M.'s behalf. These salient points are undisputed. I therefore FIND the following FACTS:

A.S. is five years old. During the 2020-2021 school year, A.S. was enrolled as a kindergartner in the Elizabeth School District. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, instruction was conducted remotely from September 8, 2020 to the week of April 19, 2021. A.S.'s father, J.S., resides in Hillside, and has joint custody of A.S. with A.M. A.S. participates in remote learning from her father's house in Hillside while A.M. works, because no one at the Elizabeth address is available to provide childcare and assist A.S. with remote-learning technology. A.M.'s grandmother and sister reside in Elizabeth. There is no dispute that A.S. resides with A.M. during the school year. The issue is whether A.M., and thus A.S., are domiciled in Elizabeth or Hillside.

TESTIMONY AND EVIDENCE

Calixto

Calixto testified that she has been a kindergarten teacher for the Board for seventeen years, and that A.S. was one of her students for the 2020-2021 school year. During the 2020-2021 school year, all students were taught remotely due to the COVID-19 pandemic until in-person learning resumed the week of April 19, 2021. During the remote-learning phase, parents who could pick up learning materials during school hours would do so, and for parents who could not pick up those materials due to their own work schedules, Calixto would deliver the materials to the students' homes. "Sometime" in October, Calixto went to the home in Elizabeth to drop off supplies for A.S. She obtained the Elizabeth address from "Power School," which is a database with all students' addresses on file.

Calixto testified that on that day, she called A.M. and asked her if she was home, and that A.M. said "yes." Calixto said "I'm outside," and A.M. purportedly said, "I don't live there, I live a block away." Calixto asked for the correct house number, and A.M. put her on hold. When A.M. came back on the line, A.M. purportedly said "I got nervous. I don't live there. I live . . . in Hillside." A.M. purportedly said that she had not had time to change her driver's license and requested that Calixto leave the materials at the door to the Elizabeth address where A.M.'s grandmother resides. Calixto left the materials with a note to A.S. that said, "I hope you feel better." According to Calixto, A.M. did not indicate that her change of address was a temporary situation. The next day, Calixto reported to the school principal that A.M. was living in Hillside.

Calixto stated that while she was teaching A.S. remotely, the only parent she ever saw remotely was A.S.'s father, and that A.S. was learning remotely from the same location every day and wore "mostly pajamas." Calixto had no personal knowledge as to whether A.S. slept at that location. Calixto stated that A.S. was absent from remote learning "quite often," for medical reasons, and that A.S. was never considered to be truant. Indeed, A.S. was not "in school" for the entire week of Calixto's visit to the Elizabeth address, due to what Calixto described as a "pandemic-related illness," which A.M. had informed Calixto of. Calixto did not explain why she attempted to have physical contact with A.M. or A.S., knowing that A.M. and A.S. were both ill with a highly infectious and dangerous disease, and that A.S. would not be attending remote learning that week, and therefore did not need the school supplies.

Buteau

Buteau has been an investigator in the Board's legal department for approximately three and one-half years. Prior to that he was an Elizabeth police detective. He is responsible for student residency investigations. He checks public records, does residency checks, and conducts surveillance, if necessary, to determine whether students reside in Elizabeth. He conducted a residency investigation of A.S. and prepared an investigation report and an amended (updated) investigation report of his findings. (R-1; R-7). He did not testify from memory, and constantly referred to and read from his updated report to refresh his recollections. (R-7).

On October 29, 2020, he commenced the investigation based on Calixto's claim that A.M. and A.S. were living in Hillside. (R-7 at 2). Although Calixto testified that A.S. was never truant, Buteau's report indicates that "[t]he investigation was initiated because of truancy," and the report references an attendance officer whose referral and testimony were not offered by the Board. Ibid. Buteau stated that he ran an Accurint public records check on A.M., which revealed both the Elizabeth and Hillside addresses at issue. The Hillside address was also associated with A.S.'s father, J.S. Ibid.

Buteau visited the Hillside address on [Friday][1] October 30, 2020, at an unspecified time. J.S.'s car was in the driveway, and A.M.'s car was not. Ibid. No one answered the door, and he noted that the mailbox had both J.S.'s and A.M.'s names on it. He photographed the house and the mailbox. (R-2 dated 10/30/20).

Because A.M.'s name was on the Hillside mailbox, a Notice of Initial Determination of Ineligibility dated October 30, 2020 (Initial Determination) was sent to A.M. at the Hillside address via UPS with tracking. (R-3). Buteau surmised that A.M. signed for the delivery, because someone had written "11/2/20 signed by [A.]" on the tracking slip. (R-3 at 3). Notably, there is no actual signature on the tracking slip, and the Board did not provide any copy of A.M.'s signature related to that delivery.

The Initial Determination states: "We have determined that your family is not domiciled in the city of Elizabeth. . . . Therefore, we have concluded that in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(A), your child is NOT entitled to attend in the Elizabeth Public School District." (R-3 at 1). A.M. did not request a hearing before the Board. However, contrary to his report, Buteau neglected to mention that on November 3, 2020, A.M. emailed a completed residency verification form and provided copies of her New Jersey driver's license, an envelope from the New Jersey Department of Labor and Workforce Development, a printout of unemployment, a letter from Chase bank, a CapitalOne credit card statement, and a lease dated August 1, 2020. (R-7 at 1). None of those documents were provided by the Board to this Tribunal.

[1] Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(b), I have taken Judicial notice of the days of the week which correspond to Buteau's report and testimony, as indicated in brackets.

Buteau conducted further surveillance at the Hillside address on [Monday] November 9, 2020, at 11:45 a.m., and saw both J.S.'s and A.M.'s cars in the driveway. (R-7 at 2; R-2 dated 11/9/20). J.S.'s car was registered to the Hillside address and A.M.'s car was registered to the Elizabeth address. (R-7 at 2). Buteau testified that he spoke with J.S., who confirmed that A.S. was present, but further explained that he was watching A.S. while A.M. was at work, and that A.S. did not reside with him, she resided in Elizabeth with A.M. and A.M.'s grandmother. Ibid. Contrary to his report, Buteau neglected to testify that upon informing J.S. that A.M. "said she lived in Hillside," J.S. explained that "there was a big misunderstanding," and that "three weeks ago [A.M., A.S., and J.S.] had COVID and didn't want to spread it to [A.M.'s] grandmother because she is 92 years old so [J.S.] let [A.M. and A.S.] stay with him during that time but they're back in Elizabeth." Ibid.

As a result of that visit, a Notice of Final Ineligibility (Final Determination) dated November 13, 2020 was sent to A.M. at the Hillside address, stating "YOUR DOMICILE/RESIDENCY IS NOT IN THE DISTRICT. OUR INVESTIGATION REVEALS THAT YOU RESIDE OUTSIDE OF ELIZABETH." (R-4 at 1) (emphasis in original). Buteau's report states that that notice was signed for by "DD," (R-7 at 1), but no proof of delivery was supplied by the Board. Contrary to his report, Buteau failed to mention that in response to that notice, on November 19, 2020, A.M. contacted the Office of the Assistant Superintendent to voice her concerns, and also emailed the school Principal. (R-7 at 2). The Board did not present that email to this Tribunal. Buteau's report also notes that on an unspecified date in December 2020, A.M. contacted the Board's legal department and advised someone there that she would be filing an appeal of the residency determination. (R-7 at 1).

Notwithstanding the November 13, 2020 Final Determination, Buteau continued his surveillance, and returned to the Hillside address on [Thursday] November 19, 2020, at 6:15 a.m. (R-7 at 2). Both A.M.'s and J.S.'s cars were in the driveway and covered with frost. (R-7 at 2; R-2 dated 11/19/20). On [Tuesday] January 12, 2021, at 6:30 a.m., Buteau returned to the Hillside address and again noted that both A.M.'s and J.S.'s cars were in the driveway. (R-7 at 3; R-2 dated 1/12/21). On [Thursday] January 14, 2021, at 7:00 a.m., Buteau returned to the Hillside address and again noted that both A.M.'s and J.S.'s cars were in the driveway. (R-7 at 3; R-2 dated 1/14/21). At 8:15 a.m., A.M. drove out of the driveway. Buteau tried to follow her but could not keep up due to traffic conditions. (R-7 at 3). At 8:45 a.m., Buteau went to the Elizabeth address, knocked on the door, and got no answer. Ibid.

On [Thursday] January 21, 2021, at an unspecified time, Buteau again went to the Elizabeth address and A.M.'s grandmother, M.V., answered the door. She did not speak English and yelled for someone to come to the door. Buteau stated that an unidentified young male came to the door and purportedly explained that A.S. had "just left with her mother to get some groceries. He then called [A.M.] and put her on speaker. [A.M.] told [Buteau] she was at work and [A.S.] was at [J.S.'s] house because [A.M.'s] grandmother could not take care of [A.S.]." (R-7 at 3; R-2 dated 1/21/21). On [Tuesday] February 16, 2021, at 7:00 a.m., Buteau returned to the Elizabeth address and noted three cars in the driveway, none of which were A.M.'s. (R-7 at 3; R-2 dated 2/16/21).

On [Monday] March 22, 2021, at 7:00 a.m., Buteau returned to the Hillside address. (R-7 at 3). J.S.'s car was parked in the driveway, A.M.'s car was parked on the street in front of the house, and each car was covered with frost. (R-7 at 3 and photo dated 3/22/21). On [Monday] March 29, 2021, at 7:05 a.m., Buteau returned to the Hillside address and noted that A.M.'s car was parked in the driveway, and that J.S.'s car was absent. (R-7 at 3 and photo dated 3/29/21). On [Tuesday] April 6, 2021, at 11:22 a.m., Buteau returned to the Hillside address and both A.M.'s and J.S.'s cars were parked in the driveway. (R-7 at 3 and photo dated 4/6/21). On [Wednesday] April 7, 2021, at 6:15 a.m., Buteau returned to the Hillside address and both A.M.'s and J.S.'s cars were parked in the driveway. (R-7 at 3 and photo dated 4/7/21). Buteau testified that throughout his surveillance, he never saw A.M.'s car at the Elizabeth address.

The Board's 2020-2021 Tuition Rates for Out-of-District Students Attending Elizabeth Public Schools indicates that the per diem tuition rate for a kindergartner is $69.68. (R-5). Notwithstanding the Board's residency determination, A.S. is still enrolled in the Elizabeth school district, pending the final outcome of this appeal. The Board is therefore seeking tuition reimbursement from A.M. for the period of October 29, 2020 to present, and for each school day thereafter while A.S. is enrolled in Elizabeth. The Board's 2020-2021 school calendar indicates that as of the May 18, 2021 hearing date, 101 school days had occurred, and that the school year ends on June 25, 2021. (R-6).

On cross-examination, Buteau contradicted his report about A.S. having been truant, and stated that the truancy officer is a liaison between the Principal and the Board's legal department. He agreed that the issue of truancy does not apply to this case. He also stated that UPS does not provide copies of signatures, and merely provides information about who signed for a delivered package. However, I note that on the proof of delivery, someone typed in "Received By [A.]," and that the empty signature box below that notation says, "Signature is not available at this time." (R-3 at 4) (emphasis in original). Buteau had no personal knowledge about who wrote "11/2/20 signed by [A.]" on the shipping receipt. (R-3 at 3).

A.M.

In her pro se opening statement, A.M. relied upon and incorporated on the record her signed, notarized version of events, entitled "RE: LETTER PETITION; NOTICE OF FINAL INELIGIBILITY," dated November 20, 2020, which was sent to the Board's Legal Department. (P-1). That document states, in relevant part:

> What happened:
> I, [A.M.], find myself writing this petition to clarify this confusion with my daughter [A.S.], Student ID#[]. On October 9, 2020, I tested positive for [C]ovid-19. I followed guidelines and had my family tested as well. Including my daughter's father, [J.S.]. He tested positive as well. My grandmother went to get tested and she tested negative[.] SINCE my 88 year old grandmother tested negative the reasonable thing to do was stay away from her while we got better. Since [J.S.] tested positive we quarantined at his house. During our quarantine process, [A.S.'s] teacher Mrs. Calixto called me telling me she was outside of my home and she just wanted to drop off a dry erase board and also say hi to my daughter. (I was confused at first because I found it unsettling how there was no questions or previous suggestion as to if it were okay to pop up at my home and even so, in who's right mind goes to a persons house knowing they are [C]ovid-POSITIVE) might I mentioned my daughter wasn't attending class either due to our main symptom being headaches. Either way I informed her I wasn't quarantined at home and she could leave it with my grandmother who was home. She proceeded to ask me where I was and I didn't find an issue in letting her know where I was being that it was a temporary stay. Resuming to my first day back to my normal living, we were already back at home & while at work I received an email stating to send in my proof of address, which I did, I sent in all the paperwork the same day. I figured it was a procedure since it's [A.S.'s] first year there. A week later [J.S.] tells me a guy from the board of education popped up at his door asking if [A.S.] was here, which she was since it was 11:30am and she was attending her virtual class in his house while I was at work. I tried many times to reach out to the legal department as it said on the paper "if I had any questions" but wasn't successful since I didn't receive any answer. Exactly a week later, a certified letter was delivered again to [J.S.'s] stating it was a final notice and that they made the decision [A.S.] didn't reside in the school district. Which is where I became baffled with the conclusion since I never had spoke to anyone to explain anything. Never had an investigator come to my ACTUAL home inspect and see the actual truth. In this week I was finally able to get a hold of the legal department and they asked me to follow procedures and if I oppose to file the appeal form. For these reasonings is why I have to appeal to this wrongful decision.

Actual Facts:
[J.S.] and I have a very good co-parenting relationship/agreement. We both share custody of [A.S.] but she lives with me. Due to the obvious conditions we are currently facing I have found it nearly impossible to find a babysitter/tutor for [A.S.]. Coincidentally, as many people in the world [J.S.] was furloughed from his work and since he has been home since before school started, he has been doing school with her at his home while I am at work. He remains with her until I end my shifts from work and when I end my shifts, I head straight to his house to pick her up and head on to my home . . .[in] Elizabeth . . . . This is a daily schedule. There has been a night or so out of the week where > she might sleepover his house because he is her father and also it's a little brake from our daily schedule, allowing them to sleep in a tad bit longer but she does not live with him. There also may have been a night where I may have spent the night as well but that's my personal life, I don't see why one or two nights may change my actual address or why my night out may affect my daughter's school. I usually take my daughter while she's asleep since its in the early hours of the morning, with that being said I leave her school lab-top at [J.S.'s] house since her homework and school work is completed by the time I pick her up. I don't find it necessary to have the lab top back and forth. All that's occurring is due to how school is being handled, the school being virtual baby sitters are charging double from the usual, my grandmother cannot understand or even handle doing the virtual learning with [A.S.] and her father playing his father, babysitter & tutor role is what is working for us. I would have no benefit at all in lying about where I reside, I have been in this location for 12 years. If [A.S.] gets put out of this school, where can I possibly place her if my address and all proofs remains the same which is [the Elizabeth address]. I had also requested to have an investigator come to our actual home to clarify any confusion but again have been unsuccessful.

> In conclusion, I just needed to clarify on my behalf since I haven't been able to. I have attached the appeal form requested from me if I disagreed and also for your records I have attached copies of my proof of address along with my license and anything else that may be useful to this situation. Thank you in advance for the opportunity of explaining our situation and hope we can reach a resolution sooner rather than later.

In her Pro Se Residency Appeal form, A.M. added, "[A.S.] goes to [J.S.'s] house daily due to me working fulltime. He does virtual learning with her along with homework and watches her while I work. Once I'm done with my work I head to his house to pick her up & we repeat the same routine everyday!" (P-2) (emphasis in original).

In addition to those documents, A.M. submitted as proof of her Elizabeth residency copies of the following:

A.M.'s sister A.A.'s Month-to-Month Elizabeth lease dated August 1, 2020, naming the relatives of A.A. authorized to occupy the premises, including A.M., her children A.S. and A.W., and A.M.'s grandmother, M.V., (P-3);

A.M.'s New Jersey Driver's License issued April 25, 2017, with an expiration date of April 30, 2021, depicting the Elizabeth address, (P-4);

A.M.'s Car Finance Loan billing statement dated November 5, 2020, addressed to the Elizabeth address, (P-5);

A.M.'s New Jersey Auto Insurance Identification Card effective August 1, 2020, depicting the Elizabeth address, (P-6);

A.M.'s Mastercard credit card statement with a payment due date of October 24, 2020, addressed to the Elizabeth address, (P-7);

A.M.'s CreditOne credit card statement with a payment due date of November 17, 2020, addressed to the Elizabeth address, (P-8);

A.M.'s CapitalOne credit card statement with a payment due date of November 24, 2020, addressed to the Elizabeth address, (P-9);

A.M.'s Chase checking account statement for period of October 6, 2020 through November 4, 2020, addressed to the Elizabeth address, (P-10);

A.M.'s T-Mobile cell phone bill with a payment due date of November 6, 2020, addressed to the Elizabeth address, (P-11); a notarized affidavit by A.M.'s sister, A.A., attesting to A.M.'s and A.S.'s Elizabeth residency, (P-13);

a notarized affidavit by A.M.'s grandmother, M.V., attesting to A.M.'s and A.S.'s Elizabeth residency, (P-14); and an email from A.M. with an attached Time Frame of relevant events, (P-15).

In her testimony, A.M. stated that when they tested positive for COVID-19, she reported it to the school. She did not realize that she had to report where she was staying during quarantine. A.M. and her sister, A.A., decided it would be more convenient for A.M. to quarantine away from the Elizabeth address and stay with J.S. in Hillside, because he was COVID positive as well. A.M. stated that she and A.S. live with her grandmother, her sister, and her brother, who had returned home from college.

During their quarantine in Hillside, Calixto called A.M. and asked A.M. if she was home, A.M. said "yes," not realizing that Calixto was outside the Elizabeth residence. Calixto said that she had something to drop off for A.S., and A.M. was surprised and confused because she'd never had a teacher "pop up" at her house before. Calixto had previously told A.M. that her family would have to pick up materials for A.S. at the school, which they did. The Elizabeth residence is two blocks away from A.S.'s school.

A.M. then told Calixto that she was not at home, she was at [A.S.'s] dad's house, and she did not know that she had to report that. Calixto replied that that was "okay," and that she was just there to drop off something, so A.M. asked Calixto to leave it with A.M.'s grandmother. Calixto asked for the address where A.M. was at the time, and A.M. gave her J.S.'s address, which was also listed in the school address system as A.S.'s father's address in Hillside. A.M. thought that Calixto would then go to the Hillside address because A.M. assumed that Calixto wanted to see A.S. in person, which A.M. found to be "odd," because A.M., A.S. and J.S. were all still positive for COVID-19. A.M. had called and face-timed with Calixto "first thing" on the morning of Monday October 19, 2020, and advised her that she, J.S., and A.S. had all tested positive for COVID-19 on Friday October 16, 2020, so A.S. would not be attending school that week. I note that A.M. was uncertain of some exact dates and bemoaned that she did not have a calendar in front of her during her testimony.

Calixto "popped up" at the Elizabeth address the following day, Tuesday, October 20, 2020, with the above-described supplies. On Thursday, October 22, 2020, Calixto "followed up," by calling A.M. and asking "how everything was going." On October 26, 2020, J.S. told A.M. that someone "popped up" at his house in Hillside at 11:00 a.m., while A.S. was "in school," and asked if A.S. was there. A.M. reached out to the legal department to ask about the reason for their request for residency paperwork, but she assumed that it was merely a routine practice because it was [A.S.'s] first year in that school, and A.S.'s brother, A.W. had been in that school since he started school nine years ago. The school had previously asked for similar paperwork regarding A.W. on two occasions, and there were no problems. A.M. timely complied with the Board's request for paperwork related to A.S.'s residency.

As stated in her written submission, (P-1), A.M. never denied spending some nights at J.S.'s house. A.M. testified that she would spend two or three nights per week at J.S.'s house, and that is how she and J.S. "managed [their] relationship, because it worked out better than living together," which they previously did in Elizabeth. A.S. was doing remote learning with J.S. because A.M. was working at the time. On March 15, 2021, A.S. became very ill with MIS-C,[2] and was hospitalized in an Intensive Care Unit (ICU) for five days. A.M. had lost her job "right before" that.

A.S. was discharged from the hospital on March 19, 2021, and again quarantined for two weeks at J.S.'s residence. During that time, A.M. did not move her car from J.S.'s residence. As a result of A.S.'s illness and complications, she has seen numerous medical specialists since her MIS-C quarantine ended, and she was unable to attend in-person kindergarten instruction which commenced on April 22, 2021, due to her still-delicate health. At the time of the hearing, A.S. was still doing remote learning and undergoing further medical treatment until her doctors give her clearance to return to the physical classroom. A.M. posited that if the pandemic had not occurred, "we wouldn't be in this predicament right now." A.M. noted that A.S. attended two years of public preschool in Elizabeth prior to the pandemic.

As to Buteau's surmising that A.M. signed for the Initial Determination letter at J.S.'s home, A.M. insisted that she never signed for anything, and that she was not at J.S.'s home for that delivery or for the delivery of the Final Determination letter. A.M. explained that J.S. had advised her that when he went to his front door, he saw the UPS envelope with the Initial Determination from the Board had been slipped under the door. He picked up the envelope and sent A.M. a picture of it, and A.M. gave him permission to open it. J.S. told A.M. that he had not signed for the letter.

A.M. emphasized that her grandmother could not assist A.S. with remote learning because she does not speak English, does not understand computers, and requires the assistance of an aide who watches over her when A.M. and A.A. are not at home. A.A. is too busy to watch her grandmother because she is running a business. The only person available to help A.M. with A.S. is J.S.

On cross-examination, A.M. disputed Calixto's testimony that A.M. stated that she had moved to Hillside and had not had time to update her driver's license. A.M. stated that she had not mentioned moving or her driver's license — at all. She conceded that she and J.S. had recently become closer and resumed a romantic relationship during the pandemic. She stated that J.S. has lived at the Hillside address for approximately three years.

A.M. stated that she has never resided at the Hillside address. She agreed that her name is on the Hillside address mailbox, along with J.S.'s name, and explained that she has all of her packages delivered to Hillside because her grandmother has trouble with her knees and "cannot walk all the way outside, and if it's something heavy . . . and J.S. is always home." She stated that when she picks up her children or goes to visit J.S., she picks up her packages at his home. She also noted that packages have disappeared from the Elizabeth address, which I note is part of a duplex home, (R-2 dated 1/12/21). J.S. had given A.M. permission to ship her packages to his address, and J.S. added her name to his mailbox. A.M. stated that none of her mail goes to J.S.'s address, and that she has never used that address for anything but package deliveries.

A.M. admitted that she and her children spend "a few nights a week" with J.S. at the Hillside address, meaning two to three nights per week, but that there is no set schedule. They stay a combination of school nights and weekends, but "mostly weekends," to coincide with A.M.'s days off from work. On school days, A.M. would drop her children off in Hillside very early in the morning, or J.S. would pick them up, so that A.M. could drive straight to work. A.M. stated that from April 5, 2021 to April 14, 2021, she and J.S. and the children went on a vacation and she left her car parked at J.S.'s address the entire time.

On the first hearing date, A.M. was at the Elizabeth address with her sister, A.A., and her grandmother, M.V. When asked by the Board why A.M. had not called J.S. as a witness, A.M. stated that J.S. was in Hillside with A.S. helping her with remote learning. A.M. conceded that J.S. could have testified remotely from his Hillside residence, but that had not occurred to her prior to the hearing. As two hearing dates were scheduled, I gave A.M. the opportunity to have J.S. testify on April 23, 2021, but that date was carried sua sponte to May 18, 2021, at which time A.M. informed us that J.S. was hospitalized at 2:00 a.m. that morning and was too ill to speak. I offered to carry the hearing until J.S. was well enough to testify, but A.M. declined, and indicated that she was overwhelmed by these proceedings[3] and a lack of closure, by numerous ongoing family medical emergencies, and by the April 29, 2021 death of her father, and her subsequent ongoing efforts to maintain his business in New York. Contrary to the Board's urging, I therefore draw no negative inference from the absence of J.S.'s testimony, particularly in light of J.S.'s November 9, 2020 statements to Buteau, which were favorable to A.M., not to the Board.

[3] A.M. also indicated that subsequent to the Board's Final Determination concerning A.S.'s residency, the Board initiated separate residency and tuition reimbursement proceedings against her for her son, A.W., which has caused her further distress. That appeal, if any, is not before me.

According to the timeline that A.M. submitted at my request at the conclusion of the first hearing date, (P-15), on October 16, 2020, A.M., A.S., and J.S. all tested positive for COVID-19. On March 15, 2021, A.S. was hospitalized and diagnosed with MIS-C. On March 19, 2021, A.S. was discharged from the hospital, and began another quarantine in Hillside. On March 23, 2021, J.S. went on a business trip. On April 3, 2021, A.S.'s quarantine ended and A.M. and A.S. returned to the Elizabeth address. On April 5, 2021, A.M., J.S., and the children went on a vacation, and returned on April 14, 2021.

A.A.

A.M.'s sister, A.A., completed and signed a notarized affidavit dated February 22, 2021, noting that she is a waitress/owner of a restaurant, and stating, in relevant part:

> I, [A.A.], Swear or affirm:
>
> 1. I am [A.M.'s] sister. [A.S.] & [A.W.] Aunt.
>
> 2. That in January 2009 we moved into this residency located . . . [in] Elizabeth . . . . Previously resided at . . . [in] Elizabeth . . . for 2 years. We have been part of this district for well over a decade.
>
> 3. [A.M.], [A.S.] & [A.W.] has always and continues to live with our grandmother and myself at our current household.
>
> 4. There are a couple of nights out of the week where [A.M.] sleeps out of the house.
>
> 5. Her current child care/tutor is [A.S.'s] father [J.S.] due to me running a business and our grandmother [M.V.] not being able to manage or understand online schooling.
> [(P-13) (sic passim).]

In keeping with her affidavit, A.A. testified as follows. She is a restaurant owner. She is A.M.'s sister and A.S.'s aunt. In January of 2009, A.A. moved to the Elizabeth address with her grandmother M.V., A.M., and A.W. I note that A.S., who is only five, obviously was born after they moved in. A.S. does her remote learning at J.S.'s residence in Hillside because A.A. is very busy with her work and M.V. is elderly and does not understand English or how to use a remote-learning system.

In October 2020, A.M. and A.S. did not stay at the Elizabeth address after they tested positive for COVID-19, to protect M.V., who is in delicate health. A.M. and A.S. stayed with J.S. in Hillside to quarantine and convalesce. The only other time A.M. and A.S. also stayed with J.S. for an extended period was when A.S. was hospitalized and in the ICU, and after she was discharged, because A.S. was still in frail health and A.A. is "always in contact with customers," which posed a risk to A.S. A.M. has never moved out of the Elizabeth address. A.M. and A.S. have never resided with J.S. in Hillside. A few nights a week, "like two or three," A.M. and A.S. sleep at J.S.'s Hillside residence. There is no set schedule – "it's random." A.S. has her own bedroom in Elizabeth. A.A. had no knowledge as to whether A.S. had a bedroom in Hillside.

M.V.

A.M.'s grandmother, M.V., with the aid of a Spanish interpreter, completed and signed a notarized affidavit dated February 22, 2021, which states, in relevant part:

> "I [M.V.], grandmother of [A.M.], great-grandmother to [A.S.] & [A.W.] would like to state that we all live in the same household and there has never been any change to that. [A.S.] does the school with her father at his house because I am not capable of keeping up with the classes or how to even manage a computer. I am also in and out of doctor's appointments. To be clear, I even have an aid who watches over me and does mostly everything for me when my grand-daughter isn't home. In October of 2020, [A.M.] tested positive for Covid-19 and as I heard her ([A.M.]) and my other grand-daughter ([A.A.]) talk they discussed it was best for her to stay at [A.S.'s] father house to avoid getting me sick. Finally, once [A.M.] and the kid's tested negative again they came back home to our home which is . . . [in] Elizabeth, NJ."

With A.M.'s assistance as M.V.'s Spanish interpreter, M.V. testified as follows. She has been living at the Elizabeth address for "a lot of years." She was born in 1932. She believes that she is eight-nine years old. She reported that she does not have memory problems, and she knew that her birthday is April 30, "which is the end of this month." She was able to identify the current President of the United States as "Joe," but did not know his last name. She lives with A.M., A.S., A.W., and A.A. She remembered that A.M. was staying elsewhere when A.S. was in the hospital. She recalled that there were times when A.M. "stayed out" with A.S. because of school and because M.V. does not understand English and therefore cannot assist A.S. with schoolwork. She stated that there were other times when A.M. and A.S. "sleep out" of the house, "about two times."

She stated that A.S. does her remote learning with J.S. in Hillside, and that some days A.S. does not return to the Elizabeth address. She stated that A.S. sleeps at J.S.'s house two to three times per week. M.V. goes to bed between 9:00 p.m. and 10:00 p.m., and A.S. returns to Elizabeth before M.V. goes to bed "more or less." M.V. normally wakes up at 7:00 a.m., but sometimes she wakes up earlier and sees A.S. leave to go to J.S.'s residence. When asked directly if A.M. has always lived with her at the Elizabeth address, M.V. replied, "Of course. She lives here. This is where she lives, in this house." When asked if A.S. lives with her in Elizabeth, M.V. replied, "Of course. Both kids live here." She confirmed that both A.S. and A.W. were born and raised in Elizabeth and have lived there all their lives.

J.S.

Although J.S. was unavailable to testify on May 18, 2021, due to his hospitalization, I FIND that his hearsay statements recorded in Buteau's report are admissible under the residuum rule, as there is legally competent evidence to support findings of fact "to an extent sufficient to provide assurances of reliability and to avoid the fact or appearance of arbitrariness." N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5(b). In this case, J.S.'s hearsay statements were recorded in Buteau's report, which was heavily relied upon by Buteau, and admitted into evidence in its entirety.

According to Buteau's report, on November 9, 2020, he went to J.S.'s residence and spoke with J.S. directly. (R-7 at 2). J.S. confirmed that A.S. was present, but further explained that he was watching A.S. while A.M. was at work. Ibid. J.S. stated that A.S. does not reside with him, and that she resides in Elizabeth with A.M. and A.M.'s grandmother. Ibid. When Buteau informed J.S. that A.M. had purportedly "said she lived in Hillside," J.S. explained that "there was a big misunderstanding," and that "three weeks ago [A.M., A.S., and J.S.] had COVID and didn't want to spread it to [A.M.'s] grandmother because she is 92 years old so [J.S.] let [A.M. and A.S.] stay with him during that time but they're back in Elizabeth." Ibid. J.S.'s hearsay statements are corroborated by other competent credible evidence of record, including the testimony of A.M., A.A., and M.V., and J.S.'s reported statements give added probative force to that testimony.

CREDIBILITY DETERMINATIONS AND FURTHER FINDINGS OF FACT

I.

I must weigh the credibility of the witnesses to determine the ultimate issues. Credibility is the value that a factfinder gives to a witness's testimony. An ALJ's findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony may not be rejected or modified unless the record demonstrates that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, or not supported by sufficient, competent, credible evidence in the record. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

"Credibility involves more than demeanor. It [contemplates] the over-all evaluation of testimony in the light of its rationality or internal consistency and the manner in which it hangs together with other evidence." Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). "'Testimony to be believed must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness but must be credible in itself. It must be such as the common experience and observation of mankind can approve as probable in the circumstances.'" State v. Taylor, 38 N.J. Super. 6, 24 (App. Div. 1955) (quoting In re Perrone's Estate, 5 N.J. 514, 522 (1950)).

A fact finder is expected to base credibility decisions on their common sense and life experiences. State v. Daniels, 182 N.J. 80, 99 (2004). Credibility is not dependent on the number of witnesses who appeared, State v. Thompson, 59 N.J. 396, 411 (1971), and a fact finder "is not bound to believe the testimony of any witness, in whole or in part," State v. Muhammad, 182 N.J. 551, 577 (2005) (internal quotation marks omitted). Rather, they "may reject what in their conscientious judgment ought to be rejected and accept that which they believe to be credible." Ibid. "The interest, motive, bias, or prejudice of a witness may affect [their] credibility and justify the [trier of fact] . . . in disbelieving [their] testimony." State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div. 1952) (internal quotation marks omitted).

Having heard the witnesses' testimony and observed their demeanors and spontaneity, or lack thereof, I FIND that Calixto's testimony was illogical, incomplete, less than credible, and contradicted by a preponderance of more competent credible evidence, including A.M.'s testimony and documentary evidence. I FIND that Buteau's testimony was selective and misleading, particularly with respect to truancy, A.M.'s signature, A.M.'s responses to the Initial and Final Determinations, and J.S.'s explanation as to why A.M. and A.S. had stayed with him in Hillside while they all had COVID-19.

I FIND that A.M.'s testimony was candid, spontaneous, and highly credible. It was replete with details to which she testified from memory. Although some of the dates in her testimony do not align with Buteau's report, (R-7), she testified without the aid of a calendar, and understandably struggled to identify certain dates from memory. At my request, she later produced a timeline of events, (P-15), which I take to be more reliable, as it is supported by J.S.'s November 9, 2020 statement to Buteau that he, A.M. and A.S. had come down with COVID-19 "three weeks ago." Similarly, I FIND that A.A.'s and M.V.'s testimony was candid, spontaneous, and highly credible. Their testimony "hung together" with A.M.'s testimony and J.S.'s recorded statements to Buteau.

II.

Based upon the foregoing credibility determinations and the competent, credible evidence of record, I further FIND the following FACTS:

A.M. and A.S. are domiciled in Elizabeth with A.A., M.V., and A.W. The family has resided at the Elizabeth address since January 2009. J.S. resides in Hillside. But for the COVID-19 pandemic and the remote learning necessitated by it, A.S. would have physically attended kindergarten in Elizabeth, at the school which is two blocks from her house. She attended public preschool in Elizabeth for two years prior to kindergarten. Due to remote learning, A.S.'s tender years, and her medical conditions, she required childcare and adult assistance with remote learning, and her father was the only adult available to assist her, because hiring a babysitter/tutor was not economically feasible, A.M.. and A.A. both worked during the day, and M.V. was incapable of assisting A.S. due to M.V.'s advanced age and language and technology barriers.

A.M., A.S., and J.S. were all diagnosed with COVID-19 on October 16, 2020. They continuously quarantined together at J.S.'s home in Hillside for the requisite two weeks, to protect M.V. from the ravages of that deadly virus. A.M. and J.S. have a cooperative co-parenting relationship, and have resumed a romantic relationship, but choose to live in separate houses for the health of their relationship. Two to three random nights per week, A.M. and her children stay overnight with J.S. to further their relationships and for their convenience. There is no credible evidence that A.M., and thus A.S., have moved from Elizabeth to Hillside. Although J.S. placed A.M.'s name on his mailbox, that was solely for the purpose of receiving package deliveries, as all of A.M.'s documentary evidence demonstrates that her permanent address is in Elizabeth. (P-1 through P-14).

To cast Calixto's testimony in a most favorable light, she misunderstood and overreacted to: (1) A.M.'s surprise and confusion that she would "pop up" at A.M.'s Elizabeth residence knowing that the family was infected with COVID-19; and (2) A.M.'s statements about staying in Hillside during their quarantine. To cast Buteau's testimony and report in a most favorable light, he stated that he conducted surveillance on eleven separate occasions: nine times at J.S.'s residence, and two times at A.M.'s Elizabeth address. He did not clarify whether he conducted surveillance on any other dates or on weekends.

On Friday October 30, 2020, at an unspecified time, Buteau visited J.S.'s residence, and only J.S.'s car was in the driveway. On Monday November 9, 2020, at 11:45 a.m., he observed both J.S.'s and A.M.'s cars in the Hillside driveway, and J.S. confirmed that A.S. was there doing remote learning, but that she resided with A.M. in Elizabeth. Buteau did not inquire about or establish A.M.'s whereabouts, and he had no knowledge of why A.M.'s car was parked in the driveway, or whether, when, or how she commuted to work. On Thursday November 19, 2020, at 6:15 a.m., Tuesday January 12, 2021, at 6:30 a.m., and Thursday January 14, 2021, at 7:00 a.m., he observed both J.S.'s and A.M.'s cars in the driveway. He did not contact either of them for any explanation.

On Thursday January 21, 2021, at an unspecified time, Buteau visited A.M.'s address in Elizabeth and spoke with A.M. by telephone. A.M. advised him that she was at work and that A.S. was at J.S.'s house because M.V. could not take care of A.S. On Tuesday February 16, 2021, at 7:00 a.m., A.M.'s car was not parked at her Elizabeth address. No evidence was adduced as to where A.M.'s car was.

On Monday March 22, 2021, at 7:00 a.m., Buteau returned to J.S.'s residence in Hillside and observed J.S.'s car in the driveway and A.M.'s car parked in the street. That was during the period of A.S.'s second quarantine at J.S.'s home while she was recovering from MIS-C, from March 19 to April 3, 2021. The same is true of Buteau's Monday March 29, 2021 7:05 a.m. observation of A.M.'s car at J.S.'s residence. On Tuesday April 6, 2021, at 11:22 a.m., and Wednesday April 7, 2021, at 6:15 a.m., Buteau observed both A.M.'s and J.S.'s cars in J.S.'s driveway, while they were away on vacation with the children from April 5 to April 14, 2021.

In sum, of the nine surveillance visits to J.S.'s residence that Buteau reported, A.M.'s car was absent from J.S.'s address on one occasion, present on four scattered occasions, from November 9, 2020 to January 14, 2021, present on two separate occasions while A.S. was quarantined and convalescing from MIS-C in March 2021, and present on two separate occasions while the family was away on vacation in April 2021. The first and last four observations are therefore not dispositive in any way as to A.M.'s domicile, particularly in light of the fact that Buteau made no effort to speak with A.M. on those dates.

Of the four scattered occasions from November 9, 2020 to January 14, 2021 when Buteau observed A.M.'s car at J.S.'s residence, only two of those observations were made during the same week, on January 12 and January 14, 2021, which supports A.M.'s, A.A.'s, and M.V.'s testimony that A.M. only stays at J.S.'s house two to three nights per week, at most, and that A.M. and A.S. reside in Elizabeth. While Buteau's observations and photographs of A.M.'s and J.S.'s cars were accurate, he drew the wrong ultimate conclusion by failing to speak with A.M. directly for an explanation. If he had, he would have learned that A.S. lives with A.M. in Elizabeth for the majority of the school year, as four to five nights per week in Elizabeth constitutes the majority of a seven-day calendar week.

Calixto's, Buteau's, and the Board's choice to turn a blind eye and deaf ear to A.M.'s reasonable explanations for A.S.'s presence in Hillside for childcare, remote learning, and quarantine purposes during the worst pandemic this world has seen in more than a century was callous, to put it mildly. We have all had to make unforeseen, creative adjustments during this pandemic, and A.M. deserves credit, not punishment, for finding coping mechanisms that work for her family.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

A student is eligible to attend a public school free of charge if the student is domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1a; N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a). "A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose domicile is located within the school district." N.J.A.C. . 6A:22-3.1(a)1. "Domicile" has been defined as the place where a person has their true, fixed, permanent home, and to which, whenever they are absent, they have the intention of returning. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 250 (1955). A person may have multiple residences, but only one domicile. Id. at 251.

> When a student's parents or guardians are domiciled within different school districts and there is no court order or written agreement between the parents designating the school district of attendance, the student's domicile is the school district of the parent or guardian with whom the student lives for the majority of the school year. This subparagraph shall apply regardless of which parent has legal custody.

Based upon the law, the evidence of record, and my factual findings, I CONCLUDE that A.M. has met her burden to prove by a preponderance of the competent credible evidence that she and A.S. were domiciled in Elizabeth, and that A.S. was therefore entitled to a free public education within the Elizabeth school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1a. I therefore further CONCLUDE that the Board is not entitled to any tuition reimbursement under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b(2).

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that the Board's determination that A.M. and A.S. were not domiciled in Elizabeth and that A.S. was not eligible for a free education in Elizabeth is hereby REVERSED; and it is further ORDERED that the Board is not entitled to any tuition reimbursement.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." New Jersey Commissioner of Education

In the Matter of the Certificates of Rita O'Malley, State Board of Examiners,
New Jersey Department of Education.

Order of Revocation by the State Board of Examiners, December 10, 2020

For the Respondent-Appellant, Victoria A. Lucido, Esq.

For the Petitioner-Respondent, State Board of Examiners, Amna Toor, Deputy Attorney General (Andrew J. Bruck, Acting Attorney General of New Jersey)

The Commissioner has reviewed the record and the papers filed in connection with appellant Rita O'Malley's appeal of the Order of the State Board of Examiners (Board), dated December 10, 2020, revoking her Teacher of Social Studies, Teacher of the Handicapped, and Learning Disabilities Teacher-Consultant (LDTC) certificates. Following the issuance of an Order to Show Cause by the Board and a hearing at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that appellant's conduct was neglectful and evidenced incompetence, and imposed a three-year suspension, with a requirement that appellant complete an educational program on testing procedures and educational evaluations to be approved by the Board.[1] The ALJ reasoned that revocation was not the appropriate penalty because appellant had already been sanctioned for her conduct through the loss of her tenure and her former teaching position, and her previous record was clear. Thereafter, the Board adopted the Initial Decision but modified the penalty to revocation of appellant's certificates.

[1] In its exceptions to the Initial Decision, the Board argued that it does not have the authority to require this type of remedial program. This issue was not addressed in the Order of Revocation, presumably because the Board altered the penalty from a suspension to revocation, making the issue moot. As the Commissioner herein affirms the Order of Revocation, the question of a remedial program remains moot. Nonetheless, the Commissioner notes that N.J.A.C. 6A:8B-4.5 does not include a provision whereby the Board may order the completion of a remedial program as a requirement for reinstatement following a suspension.

On appeal, appellant argues that the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable manner when it modified the three-year suspension recommended by the ALJ to a penalty of revocation. According to appellant, the Board improperly relied on evidence regarding allegedly fraudulent mileage reimbursement vouchers that the ALJ determined to be unsubstantiated.[2] Appellant also contends that the cases relied on by the Board to support the penalty of revocation all involved willful conduct, which are distinguishable because the ALJ found that appellant's conduct was neglectful and evidenced incompetence, not that appellant's faults constituted conduct unbecoming a teacher. Appellant urges the Commissioner to adopt the Initial Decision and the ALJ's recommendation of a three-year suspension, based on the fact that appellant's record prior to this matter was clear and she has already been sanctioned through the loss of her tenure.

In reviewing appeals from decisions of the State Board of Examiners, the Commissioner may not substitute her judgment for that of the Board so long as the appellant received due process and the Board's decision is supported by sufficient credible evidence in the record. Further, the Board's decision should not be disturbed unless the appellant demonstrates that it is arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1(a). With regard to reviewing a sanction imposed by the Board, the Appellate Division has defined the standard as determining whether the "punishment is so disproportionate to the offense, in light of all the circumstances, as to be shocking to one's sense of fairness." In re Certificates of Benjamin Norton, 2016 N.J. Super. Unpub. LEXIS 2291, *6-7 (internal citations and quotations omitted).

[2] Appellant requests that, if the mileage submissions continue to be used by the Board to support a harsher penalty than that imposed by the ALJ, appellant be permitted to introduce evidence from a handwriting expert to rebut that evidence. As detailed herein, the Board did not rely on evidence of alleged fraud to support its decision, and the Commissioner accepts the ALJ's finding that appellant did not submit fraudulent mileage reimbursements. Therefore, the Commissioner finds it unnecessary to reopen the record to receive additional evidence on this topic.

The Commissioner first notes that the Board's decision does not modify any findings of fact or legal conclusions of the Initial Decision. Additionally, appellant does not contest those findings or conclusions on appeal, and, in fact, urges the Commissioner to adopt the Initial Decision. Accordingly, the Commissioner accepts the findings and conclusions reached by the ALJ in the Initial Decision. Specifically, the Commissioner finds that appellant failed to administer tests, incorrectly scored tests, and incorrectly reported test results, as thoroughly detailed in the Initial Decision. Appellant's failures involved eleven students, a number of whom experienced more than one issue. Additionally, the Commissioner accepts the ALJ's finding that appellant's supervisor was credible regarding the tests that should have been administered, and that appellant was less credible regarding this topic. The Commissioner further finds that the record as a whole does not show that appellant submitted false mileage reimbursement requests, that appellant was credible that she did not hold herself out as having a doctorate, that the evidence did not prove a pattern of tardiness to warrant a negative finding, and that appellant's request to use vacation time instead of personal days was inadvertent. Finally, the Commissioner concludes that appellant's conduct was neglectful and evidenced incompetence.

The question of the appropriate penalty is the only area in which the Board differed from the ALJ, and the only one that appellant seeks to overturn on appeal. While appellant argues that the Board improperly relied on evidence of allegedly fraudulent mileage reimbursements that the ALJ found to be unsubstantiated, the Commissioner's review of the Board's decision demonstrates that it was not based on any evidence of fraud. Appellant seems to be confusing arguments made by the Deputy Attorney General during the proceedings at the OAL and in exceptions to the Initial Decision – which are summarized in the Order of Revocation, along with arguments made by appellant – with the basis for the Board's decision. Contrary to appellant's arguments, the Board did not rely on evidence of fraud in assessing the penalty. In fact, the Board specifically noted that the Board found appellant's conduct was "egregious and careless, if not intentionally fraudulent." This statement, combined with the Board's acceptance of the ALJ's findings of fact and legal conclusion, and the Board's multiple references throughout the section of the decision analyzing the appropriate penalty for appellant's "errors" and "failures" – rather than fraud – clearly demonstrate that the Board did not find appellant's conduct to be fraudulent or base its decision on alleged fraud. Therefore, the Commissioner finds appellant's argument unavailing.

Appellant also argues that revocation is not warranted because her conduct was not willful. However, the Commissioner concurs with the Board that, even if not willful, appellant's errors were so significant and pervasive, demonstrating a pattern of conduct that the Board found to be egregious and careless, that revocation of her certifications is appropriate. The ALJ noted that appellant's "conduct was not an isolated incident but rather a pattern of significant errors in the performance of her duties as an LDTC." As the ALJ noted, the testing and evaluation done by an LDTC are critical to determining whether a student receives special education services, as well as the nature, frequency, duration, and other specifics related to the delivery of those services. It was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable for the Board to conclude that appellant's repeated failures to live up to these critical responsibilities warranted revocation of her certificates, nor does the Commissioner find that this penalty shocks one's sense of fairness.

Finally, appellant argues that her loss of tenure and previous good record should mitigate her penalty. The Commissioner notes that N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.5(a) specifically contemplates that, following a teacher's loss of tenure or employment, the Board may initiate proceedings to suspend or revoke the teacher's certificates. Accordingly, the possible consequences of incompetence or unbecoming conduct may be both loss of tenure/employment and revocation of certificates, and the former does not mitigate the latter. Furthermore, while the Commissioner acknowledges appellant's prior good record, that alone does not suffice to mitigate a pattern of conduct that involved multiple errors, omissions, and failures relating to eleven different students.

Accordingly, the decision of the State Board of Examiners is affirmed. Appellant's Teacher of Social Studies, Teacher of the Handicapped, and Learning Disabilities Teacher-Consultant certificates are hereby revoked.[3]

IN THE MATTER OF	:	NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
THE CERTIFICATES OF	:	STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS
RITA O'MALLEY	:	ORDER OF REVOCATION
_____	:	DOCKET NO: 1516-178

At its meeting of April 14, 2016, the State Board of Examiners (Board) reviewed information it received regarding Rita O'Malley. O'Malley was employed by the Woodbridge Township School District (Woodbridge). Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.5, the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) referred to the Board the tenure matter captioned In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Rita O'Malley, Dkt. No. 358-11/15 (Commissioner's Decision, January 6, 2016).

Woodbridge certified tenure charges against O'Malley alleging unbecoming conduct. In the tenure charges, which are incorporated herein by reference, Woodbridge alleged that O'Malley had submitted inaccurate and potentially fraudulent student educational evaluation reports. According to Woodbridge, those reports were deficient because O'Malley had inserted false test scores for subtests that had not been administered, included incorrect test results for subtests that had been completed, misplaced or failed to complete protocols, prepared write-ups regarding subtests that were not administered, failed to include test results for subtests that were completed and failed to administer subtests and complete an educational evaluation report. O'Malley also allegedly submitted false mileage reimbursement vouchers and received monetary payment for funds to which she was not entitled.

O'Malley failed to respond to the charges against her and in his decision the Commissioner deemed the allegations to be admitted. He found that the charges of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member had been proven and warranted O'Malley's dismissal from her tenured employment. The Commissioner granted summary decision to the district and dismissed O'Malley from her tenured position in Woodbridge. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the Board for its review.

O'Malley currently holds a Teacher of Social Studies certificate, issued in February 1979, a Teacher of the Handicapped certificate, issued in July 1988 and a Learning Disabilities Teacher-Consultant certificate, issued in April 1995. After reviewing the above information, at its April 14, 2016 meeting, the Board voted to issue an Order to Show Cause (OSC) to O'Malley as to why his certificates should not be revoked.

The Board sent O'Malley the OSC by regular and certified mail on April 20, 2016. The OSC provided that O'Malley must file an Answer within 30 days. On May 13, 2016, O'Malley submitted an Answer. In that Answer, O'Malley denied the allegations in the tenure charges. O'Malley acknowledged that Woodbridge filed tenure charges but during the pendency of those charges she submitted a letter of resignation.

Since there were material facts in dispute, on July 20, 2016, the Board transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case. On August 31, 2020, Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Patricia M. Kerins issued an Initial Decision in the case. In the Matter of the Certificates of Rita. O'Malley, Dkt. No. EDE 10769-16 (Initial Decision, August 31, 2020).

After reviewing the record, ALJ Kerins found that the Board successfully demonstrated O'Malley failed to administer tests to students and her test scoring and evaluation reports contain discrepancies or other inaccuracies. (Initial Decision, slip op. at p. 19). Further, the record demonstrated that O'Malley's conduct was not an isolated incident but more "a pattern of significant errors in the performance of her duties as an LDTC." Id. at p. 19-20. As a result of her findings, ALJ Kerins found that O'Malley had already been sanctioned for the conduct through loss of her tenured position and she demonstrated years of unblemished work as an LDTC. Accordingly, the appropriate penalty would be a three (3) year suspension along with "successful completion of an educational program on testing procedures and educational evaluations to be approved by petitioner." Id. at p. 20.

In the Exceptions, O'Malley argued that she "made mistakes along the way" but that the witnesses in this matter also made errors. (Exceptions at p. 3.) Additionally, she argued that there was no evidence that students were denied special education services as a result of the errors. Id. O'Malley states that the initial decision erred by "placing more credibility on Ms. Gricko's testimony." Id. at p. 5. She points to concerns regarding Gricko's testimony being based upon her knowledge as an LDTC rather than other authority. O'Malley then reviewed the testing issues for several students individually, noting in each instance whether she believed there was a discrepancy or typographical errors, the requirement/necessity for the test; O'Malley consistently argued that no student was denied special education services. Id. at p. 5-11. O'Malley admits to several of the errors, indicating in one instance that there was "sloppy work that probably should have been corrected when Respondent was reviewing her report." Id. at p. 8.

The DAG filed reply exceptions which argued that the ALJ's credibility assessments should not be disturbed and that the appropriate penalty in this matter is revocation. Id. at p. 2 and 5. The DAG argued that Gricko testified with consistency and that the ALJ found her testimony to be credible and found her to be knowledgeable, direct, and articulate. Id. at p. 4. Specifically, the ALJ did not find O'Malley to be credible because she was not confident in her command of the Woodcock-Johnson II tests and appeared confused at times when questioned. Id. at p. 4-5.

The DAG also argued that prior case law supports revocation in situations where a teacher submits fraudulent material and that O'Malley's conduct here is no less egregious. Id. at p. 6. Further, the DAG argued that O'Malley falsified learning-disabled student tests results and presented them to parents and teacher in her educational evaluations. Id. at p. 6. O'Malley's conduct "clearly demonstrate that Respondent neglected her duties and exhibited gross incompetence, thereby providing other just cause for the revocation of her certificates." Id. at p. 7.

The DAG further argued that O'Malley acknowledges many of her errors, omissions, and discrepancies but seeks that the Board overlook it because students were not denied special education services. Id. at p. 21. O'Malley's pattern of falsifying test results supports the finding of unbecoming conduct and revocation of her educator certificates. Moreover, O'Malley submitted fraudulent mileage reimbursement vouchers, and defrauded Woodbridge out of funds that could have been used for educational purposes.

The Board must now determine whether to adopt, modify or reject the Initial Decision in this matter. At its meeting of December 10, 2020, the Board reviewed the Initial Decision and the Exceptions and Reply Exceptions. After full and fair consideration of the Decision and submissions, the Board voted to adopt the Initial Decision, but modify the penalty in this matter.

The ultimate issue in this matter is the nature and degree of the unbecoming conduct. As noted above, ALJ Kerins found that O'Malley's conduct is unbecoming of a teacher, but she determined that in light of her loss of tenure and her prior good record, she should receive a suspension as opposed to a revocation.

After reviewing the entire record, the Board agrees with the ALJ's assessment regarding O'Malley's unbecoming conduct but disagrees with the appropriate resultant penalty. O'Malley's unbecoming conduct occurred several times and involved several students. O'Malley admits to many of the errors and omissions, in one instance indicating the errors were sloppy. Moreover, her testimony was found not to be credible as she appeared confused before the ALJ.

The Board does not find it is appropriate to mitigate the penalty because students were not denied special education services or that O'Malley lost her tenure, thus having been penalized for her unbecoming conduct by the employing district. O'Malley's failures are significant and pervasive; these errors were not isolated or limited but demonstrate a pattern of conduct that the Board finds to be egregious and careless, if not intentionally fraudulent. An LDTC bears great responsibility in ensuring an appropriate educational program for special education students. In light of that, O'Malley's failures here are so significant that the Board finds revocation to be the appropriate penalty.

Accordingly, on December 10, 2020, the Board voted to adopt the Initial Decision and ordered a six-month suspension of O'Malley's certificates. On this 22nd day of January 2021, the Board formally adopted its written decision to adopt the Initial Decision in this matter and it is therefore ORDERED that Rita O'Malley's Teacher of Social Studies certificate, issued in February 1979, a Teacher of the Handicapped certificate, issued in July 1988 and a Learning Disabilities Teacher-Consultant certificate, issued in April 1995 are hereby REVOKED, effective immediately. It is further ordered that O'Malley return her certificates to the Secretary of the State Board of Examiners, Office of Certification and Induction, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625-0500 within 30 days of the mailing date of this decision.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Atif Nazir,

Complainant,

v.

Nitang Patel, Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, Middlesex County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner, a community resident and former member of the Piscataway Board of Education, alleged that respondent, a then-current member of the Piscataway Board of Education, violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), (f) and (g) of the School Ethics Act when he included his name, picture, and a reference to his position on the Board of Education on a political flyer that was distributed during a primary election in 2019. The flyer, which did not include a disclaimer to indicate that respondent's position only represented his personal views and not that of the Board, referred to "a radical group under the leadership of [complainant] that wants to take over our township government." The School Ethics Commission (SEC) recommended a penalty of censure.

The case was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination of the appropriate penalty in this matter. Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the penalty recommendation of the SEC, finding that a censure is the appropriate penalty for respondent's failure to include a disclaimer while referencing his position on the Board in a targeted political mailing. Accordingly, the respondent shall be censured as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Atif Nazir,

Complainant,

v.

Nitang Patel, Board of Education of the Township of Piscataway, Middlesex County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed by respondent and complainant's reply thereto.

The SEC found that respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), (f) and (g) when he included his name, picture, and a reference to his position on the Board of Education on a political flyer that was distributed during a primary election in 2019. The flyer, which did not include a disclaimer to indicate that respondent's position only represented his personal views and not that of the Board, referred to "a radical group under the leadership of [complainant] that wants to take over our township government." The SEC recommended a penalty of censure.[1] Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), the SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty.

In support of its recommendation for a penalty of censure, the SEC relied on four cases. First, in Kwapniewski v. Curioni, Lodi Board of Education, Bergen County, SEC Docket No. C70-17, decided December 18, 2019 (Curioni), aff'd Commissioner January 23, 2020, the board member received a six-month suspension after repeatedly personally attacking a teacher on blog posts over a two-month period by posting inaccurate information about her salary, questioning her teaching qualifications and honesty, calling her names, and posting a picture of the street where she lives. Despite inclusion of a disclaimer, the board member repeatedly referenced his status on the Board. Here, the SEC noted that while respondent only endorsed a single political flyer rather than a series of blog posts, the significance of his failure to include a disclaimer while referencing his position on the Board cannot be ignored, and a censure is the appropriate penalty.

[1] The Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law recommended a penalty of reprimand, finding that respondent only violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) and not N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) or (g).

Second, in Dunbar Bey v. Brown, Camden Board of Education, Camden County, SEC Docket No. C25-11, decided December 21, 2011 (Brown), the SEC recommended a penalty of censure after a board member failed to remove the superintendent's picture which had appeared under his Facebook post referencing local terrorists; the Commissioner, however, found a reprimand was more appropriate given the lack of prior violations. In the instant matter, the SEC explained that the respondent's conduct was more deliberate and egregious than the action in Brown and warrants a penalty of censure.

Third, in Fleres v. Zhong, West Windsor-Plainsboro Board of Education, Mercer County, SEC Docket No. C17-18, decided May 3, 2019 (Zhong), a board member disclosed confidential information about an incident involving a student to his immediate family, and the information then spread. The SEC recommended a penalty of censure for the first-time offense, and the Commissioner agreed. The SEC noted that, as in Zhong, a penalty greater than a reprimand is appropriate for the first-time offense in this case.

Finally, in I/M/O Christopher T. Treston, Randolph Township Board of Education, Morris County, SEC Docket No. 71-18, decided April 27, 2021 (I/M/O Treston), the SEC recommended a penalty of censure, finding that a board member used an insufficient disclaimer in an Op-Ed that targeted a candidate for the Board and endorsed another because he made multiple references to his position on the Board. While the Commissioner has not yet issued a decision on the penalty in Treston, the SEC notes that the facts are similar to the within matter.

While respondent did not file an appeal to the Commissioner of the underlying finding of a violation, he did file exceptions to the recommended penalty. In his exceptions, respondent argues that the Commissioner should reduce the penalty from a censure to a reprimand because he had no prior infractions and his conduct was not severe enough to warrant a censure. Respondent contends that the cases the SEC relied upon do not support a penalty of censure. He maintains that the conduct in Curioni, supra, is so severe that it cannot be compared to the present matter, and that petitioner's conduct does not rise to the same level of indecency. He also notes that the penalty in Treston, supra, is not final as it is pending before the Commissioner. Respondent argues that the disclosure of information concerning a minor in Zhong, supra, was much more egregious than his conduct; therefore, while a penalty of censure was justified for a first-time infraction in Zhong, it is not justified here. Finally, respondent contends that this matter is most analogous to Brown, supra, where the final penalty was a reprimand, and that his actions were even less egregious than in that case, because the flyer was only sent to a group and not posted to social media. Accordingly, respondent urges the Commissioner to reduce the penalty to a reprimand.

In reply, complainant agrees with the SEC that a penalty of censure is appropriate in this circumstance, and the case law supports such a penalty. Complainant emphasizes that the flyer was inflammatory and Islamophobic because, as the flyer was translated into Gujarati and sent to Hindu homes, it exploits the divide between Muslim Pakistani and Hindu Gujarati Indian communities.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the SEC that censure is the appropriate penalty. Respondent attached his name to a political flyer and deliberately chose to indicate that he was a member of the Board, without including any disclaimer to indicate that his views were not those of the Board. His violations were not inadvertent; he purposefully referenced his position on the Board to support his political agenda. The Commissioner does not find respondent's exceptions to be persuasive. Instead, the Commissioner agrees with the SEC that, like Zhong, supra, respondent's violations warrant a penalty of censure for a first-time offense. Additionally, respondent's actions were more egregious than those in Brown, supra, because he intentionally used his status as a Board member on a political flyer without any type of disclaimer. As such, the Commissioner finds that a censure is the appropriate penalty for respondent's failure to include a disclaimer while referencing his position on the Board in a targeted political mailing.

Accordingly, the respondent shall be censured as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

Final Decision

Andrew Meehan,

v.

Board of Trustees of the College Achieve Central Charter School, Union County, and Nadia Bennett, Respondents.

Synopsis

Pro se petitioner filed an appeal objecting to a post on the website of College Achieve Central Charter School by the school's chief executive officer which petitioner found offensive. The post in question was an image and a statement in support of the Black Lives Matter movement following the death of George Floyd in May 2020. Petitioner sought an investigation into the posting, removal of the post, and an apology to the community for the posting, as well as punitive measures against the respondents. The Board filed a motion to dismiss, contending that petitioner failed to state a claim upon which relief may be granted under the school laws.

Upon review, the ALJ found, inter alia, that: pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.10, the Commissioner may dismiss a petition if the petitioner has advanced no cause of action, which is the case in this matter; petitioner has, in fact, cited no violation of any law in his petition, but simply asserts his objection to the image and the statement on the school's website; further, any allegations of violation of the School Ethics Act must be initiated by filing a complaint with the School Ethics Commission, and petitioner has not filed such a complaint. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision, and the matter was dismissed.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the petitioner has failed to advance a cause of action. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the petition was dismissed.

BEFORE BARRY E. MOSCOWITZ, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Andrew Meehan, objects to an image and a statement respondent, Nadia Bennett, the chief executive officer of respondent, College Achieve Central Charter School Network, posted on the school's website.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On September 3, 2020, petitioner filed a petition of appeal with the Department of Education, Office of Controversies and Disputes. In his petition, petitioner objects to an image and a statement Bennett posted on the College Achieve Central Charter School Network website. Petitioner seeks an investigation into their posting, their removal, and an apology to the community for their posting. Finally, Petitioner seeks punitive measures against respondents.

On October 1, 2020, respondents moved to dismiss the petition instead of answering it under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5.

On October 10, 2020, the Office of Controversies and Disputes transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case under the Administrative Procedure Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, and the act establishing the Office of Administrative Law, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -23, for a hearing under the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6.

On April 19, 2021, the case was assigned to me for hearing.

On June 7, 2021, petitioner filed his opposition, and on June 16, 2021, respondents filed their reply.

FINDINGS OF FACT

On June 23, 2020, petitioner, Andrew Meehan, witnessed an image and a statement respondent, Nadia Bennett, the chief executive officer of respondent, College Achieve Central Charter School Network, posted on the school's website.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Commissioner may dismiss a petition if the petitioner has advanced no cause of action:

> At any time prior to transmittal of the pleadings to the OAL, in the Commissioner's discretion or upon motion to dismiss filed in lieu of answer, the Commissioner may dismiss the petition on the grounds that the petitioner has advanced no cause of action even if the petitioner's factual allegations are accepted as true or for lack of jurisdiction, failure to prosecute or other good reason.

In this case, petitioner has advanced no cause of action in his petition. In fact, petitioner has cited no violation of any law in it. In short, petitioner has only asserted his objection to the image and the statement on the school's website.

If petitioner now believes, as he writes in his opposition to the motion, that respondents are in violation of the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 to -34, then petitioner should file his complaint before the School Ethics Commission under N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29. As respondents note, alleged violations of the School Ethics Act are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the School Ethics Commission, and this tribunal has no jurisdiction to address those alleged violations without a transmittal from that agency. Accordingly, this petition must be dismissed.

ORDER

The petition and this case are hereby dismissed in keeping with the findings of fact and conclusions of law above.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified, or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this case. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify, or reject this decision within forty-five days, and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

The Patrick School,

Petitioner,

v.

New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner, The Patrick School, appealed the determination of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) Executive Committee that it does not currently qualify to be a member of the NJSIAA because it is in violation of a NJSIAA rule that requires that no member school may have any team that operates outside of NJSIAA's jurisdiction in any NJSIAA-sanctioned sport. The NJSIAA found that The Patrick School did not comply with this provision and cannot be a member of the NJSIAA because it sponsors multiple basketball teams that do not comply with NJSIAA rules. The Patrick School sought a stay and/or reversal of the revocation of its membership.

Upon review, the Commissioner determined that she lacks jurisdiction over this matter as The Patrick School is not a public school. In making her determination, the Commissioner found that: N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3 governs voluntary associations which regulate certain student activities between and among their members, such as the NJSIAA; the statute provides, inter alia, that in matters involving public school districts, appeals involving NJSIAA rules and regulations shall be made to the commissioner and thereafter to the Superior Court; however, in non-public school matters involving NJSIAA rules and regulations, appeals shall be made directly to the Superior Court. The Commissioner noted that while she is mindful that this matter was originally filed in Superior Court and was dismissed in order to afford The Patrick School an opportunity to pursue this matter before the Commissioner, the Superior Court Judge's decision to dismiss the matter does not confer jurisdiction to the Commissioner when it is expressly precluded by the governing statutory provision. Accordingly, the petition was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction.

Agency Dkt. No. 33-3/21

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

The Patrick School,

Petitioner,

v.

New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association,

Respondent.

For Petitioner, The Patrick School, Hassen Ibn Abdellah, Esq.

For Respondent, New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association, Stephen P. Goodell, Esq. and Scott T. Miccio, Esq.

This case involves an appeal of a decision of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) Executive Committee determining that The Patrick School does not qualify to be a member of the NJSIAA at this time as it is in violation of the NJSIAA Rules and Regulations, Specific Sports Regulations, Note 3, Clarification 3. Clarification 3, which was adopted by the Executive Committee on June 3, 2020, provides that "[a]ll NJSIAA member school athletic teams are bound by NJSIAA rules" and requires that "[n]o member school may have any team that operates outside of NJSIAA's jurisdiction in any NJSIAA sanctioned sport." The NJSIAA found that The Patrick School did not comply with this provision and cannot be a member of the NJSIAA because it sponsors multiple basketball teams that do not comply with NJSIAA rules.

On appeal, The Patrick School seeks a stay and/or reversal of the revocation of its membership. Petitioner previously filed an Order to Show Cause and Verified Complaint in the Superior Court of New Jersey seeking emergent relief and an order overturning the Executive Committee's decision. The judge denied the motion and dismissed the case without prejudice so that The Patrick School could pursue an appeal before the Commissioner. Accordingly, The Patrick School filed the instant petition.

Upon review, the Commissioner finds that he lacks jurisdiction over this matter as The Patrick School is not a public school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3 governs voluntary associations which regulate certain student activities between and among their members, such as the NJSIAA. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3, the "constitution, bylaws, and rules and regulations" of the association must be approved by the Commissioner and "enforced first by the internal procedures of the association." The statute further provides that when a party appeals a determination of the association, "[i]n matters involving only public school districts and students, faculty, administrators and boards thereof, appeals shall be to the commissioner and thereafter the Superior Court." N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3 (emphasis added). The statute specifies that "[i]n all other matters, appeals shall be made directly to the Superior Court." Ibid. Therefore, because The Patrick School is not a public school district the appropriate forum for its appeal of the NJSIAA's determination that it violated Specific Sports Regulations, Note 3, Clarification 3 is Superior Court.

When considering the basic rules of statutory construction, it is well-known that "[t]he Legislature's intent is the paramount goal when interpreting a statute and, generally, the best indicator of that intent is the statutory language." DiProspero v. Penn, 183 N.J. 477, 492 (2005). Statutory words are ascribed their ordinary meaning and are viewed in the context of the legislation as a whole. Ibid. As such, when the Legislature uses the word "may," it is ordinarily permissive, while the word "shall" has a mandatory meaning. Aponte-Correa v. Allstate Ins. Co., 162 N.J. 318, 325 (App. Div. 2000).

In enacting N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3, the Legislature clearly and unambiguously made a distinction in the procedure between public and non-public schools for challenges involving voluntary associations, such as the NJSIAA. Appeals of matters involving public school districts "shall" be to the Commissioner, and all other matters "shall be made directly to the Superior Court." N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3. The plain meaning of the statutory language is clear, and therefore the Commissioner has no discretion by which to exercise jurisdiction in this matter, as it does not involve a public school.

The Commissioner is mindful that this matter was originally filed in Superior Court and was dismissed in order to afford The Patrick School with an opportunity to pursue this matter before the Commissioner. However, the Superior Court Judge's decision to dismiss the matter does not confer jurisdiction to the Commissioner when it is expressly precluded by the governing statutory provision.

Accordingly, the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed for lack of jurisdiction.

The FLORENCE TOWNSHIP BOARD OF EDUCATION, BURLINGTON COUNTY NEW JERSEY

and

KATELYN HUTCHISON,

RESPONDENT

BEFORE: Ira Cure, Esq.
Arbitrator

APPEARANCES

For the Petitioner School Petitioner:
Geoffrey N. Stark, Esq.
Sanmathi Dev, Esq.
Capehart & Scatchard, P.A.

For the Respondent:
Nicholas J. Repici, Esq.
Lenox, Socey Formidoni et al.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A., 18A:6-16, as amended by P.L. 2012, c. 26 and P.L. 2015, c. 109 ("TEACHNJ"), the tenure charges brought by the Petitioner Florence Township Board of Education, Burlington County ("Petitioner") against Katelyn Hutchison ("Respondent") were referred to me for a hearing and decision. The charges were filed with the New Jersey Department of Education ("DOE") on March 9, 2021. The charges allege that the Respondent: 1) neglected her duty; 2) failed to report to work; 3) abandoned her position; 4) engaged in conduct unbecoming her position; 5) was incapacitated; and 6) provided other just cause. An answer was filed by the Respondent with the DOE on April 13, 2021. On April 15, 2021, Jennifer Killough-Herrera, the DOE's Director of the Office of Controversies and Disputes, appointed me to hear this dispute. The Petitioner is represented by the firm of Capehart and Scatchard, by Geoffrey N. Stark, Esq. and Sanmathi Dev, Esq. The Respondent is represented by the firm of Lenox, Socey Formidoni, Giordano, Lang, Carrigg & Casey by Nicholas J. Repici, Esq.

FINDINGS

1. Respondent was a tenured Payroll Clerk, a non-certificated position.
2. The Commissioner of Education certified the charges against the Respondent.
3. On August 4, 2021, the Respondent notified the petitioner that she was resigning from her position effective immediately.
4. On August 4, 2021, counsel for the Respondent notified me of the Respondent's resignation and stated that the tenure charges are moot and do not require adjudication.
5. The Petitioner formally accepted the Respondent's resignation at a meeting of its Board on August 9, 2021.
6. On August 10, 2021, the Petitioner requested withdrawal of the tenure charges.
7. As a result of the Respondent's resignation, the tenure charges are moot.
8. The Respondent understands that by resigning from her position, she has given up all tenure rights and the right to rehire.

9. Because Respondent is not a teaching staff member, no referral to the New Jersey State Board of Examiners must be made.
10. The Parties agree that this tenure matter is resolved.
11. The Parties agree that the above stated circumstances justify the withdrawal of the tenure charges.

Based on the above, I render the following:

ORDER

The undersigned Arbitrator having been designated pursuant to N.J.S.A., 18A.6-17.1(c), and AAA Labor Rule no. 27 hereby issues, and ORDERS as follows:

A. The tenure charges brought by Petitioner Florence Township Board of Education, Burlington County against Respondent Katelyn Hutchison are withdrawn.

INTRODUCTION

The underlying dispute over this dismissal action by the 'Roselle School District' arose from a single incident purportedly emanating from, the Tenured Teacher's posting action on her personal "Facebook" account [hereinafter, 'website' or 'web account'], occurring during the 2019-2020 school year. There was no dispute that the 'posting' occurred on May 29, 2020, leaving only inquiries in dispute regarding the technicalities over 'how' the incident happened and, the Teacher's motive(s) or intention behind an incident which caused significant and deleterious effects upon her School District community and the larger external community.

Significant investigation into the incident transpired over many months, with each side ostensibly represented by individuals identified as: "Roselle Education Association president Rosemary Longo... there to represent Ms. Coleman's interests." [Teacher Brief, Pg. 7] and, "District decided to retain an outside third-party independent investigator" [Board's Brief, Pg. 9]

Outlined extensively hereunder, both during and after that investigatory process, the parties engaged in disputes ranging from procedural to substantive, including the weight of the evidence, credibility determinations and burden of proof. Added to the above considerations were mitigating or aggravating factors considered.

While there were issues raised concerning adherence to District Policies [i.e., prohibiting certain actions and behaviors] and, whether or not the 'posting', and /or its content was protected 'free speech' [i.e., 1st Amendment rights], there are overarching principles at stake here. As each Party defined during the Hearing, the Issue for decision here will be determined based upon the factual analysis of the Teacher's actions, i.e., whether or not this Teacher engaged in 'Conduct Unbecoming', Insubordination and other elements of the just cause standard.

The District, believing it had satisfied the just cause requirements needed to do so, filed "Tenure Charges" [by the 'Board'] on/ about January 26, 2021 against Tenured Teacher Donna Coleman [hereinafter, 'Teacher'] with the NJ DOE, as referenced herein. Despite questions raised by the 'Teacher's Response to the Charges' [on / about February 10, 2021], the evidence demonstrates this Teacher being charged with causing a message [deemed by the District as inappropriate] to be 'shared' on her social media account.

The content of the post [alleged to be 'inflammatory, insensitive and racially charged'], including its motive, manner and the methods employed to have 'shared' that post are at issue here. The negative characterization of the 'shared' message was shaped by a plethora of negative comments [exceeding 200] which were posted and/ or received by the School District (and/or in reply to the Teacher's account), subsequent to the Teacher's May 29, 2020 posting.

The gist of the responsive commentary was detrimental in nature, specifically directed against both the Teacher and the School District, for continuing to employ her. Hence, hundreds of people in the community of, in and around the Roselle School District [Bergen County, NJ] commented negatively regarding the incident.

The gravamen of the underlying disciplinary action against the Teacher began with the interception of the offending message by another teacher in the School District. That teacher reported her views to School District authorities who took immediate steps, discussed hereunder, in efforts to contain, control and / or remediate the situation, especially with regard to the onslaught of negative feedback from the external community. Thereafter, the District moved to a formal investigation as more complaints were received. Investigation led to 'Charges' being filed against Teacher and finally, the procedural steps leading to a 'Dismissal'.

In summary presentation, further chronological background events are abridged here and expanded in greater detail under the Background, Facts. and Party Positions below this section. [*underlining for emphasis has been added by the Arbitrator throughout this document]

May 29, 2020; the date of a [Facebook] 'post' at issue here appeared.

Each party hereunder commented extensively regarding the 'post'. By the 'Teacher': "The events of May 29, 2020 occurred four days after the death of George Floyd when racial tensions, unrest and protests were prevalent across the United States." [Teacher's Brief, Pg. 6; citing Exhibit J-1, at page 5]

Further, "Ms. Coleman testified that she believed on May 29, 2020, and ... still believes, that an individual, or individuals, that witnessed the first post that she had deleted found a second image which was similar in nature and made it appear as if it was her post. T 292, 12-20. As a result of this second post in question, Ms. Coleman began receiving comments and messages directed to her and/or about her, some of which were threatening in nature. See, Exhibit R-3". [Teacher Brief, Pg. 6]

The 'District', commenting upon the intentional nature of the Teacher's actions: "30. Dr. Fischer concluded that Respondent intentionally made the Post on May 29, 2020. Specifically, he testified (and illustrated an example), that posting something on Facebook requires a two-step process (the second step being the opportunity that you do, in fact, wish to post what you are about to post. T-1, 192:14-22; 200:1-201:14" [Board's Brief, Pg. 9; citing Superintendent's testimony]

June 01, 2020; "...Director of HR, Ms. Marshall-Simmons, was tasked ... with investigating the Post. T-1, 58:9-13." Further, "...Marshall-Simmons met with Respondent on June 1, 2020. When asked about the genesis of (it), Respondent initially asserted "I saw the post and what it said. It came up on my feed and I did not share the post. There is a fake account with my name. I would never share anything derogatory on my page." [Board's Brief, Pg. 8; citing J-2, Ex. E (Ex. A); T-1, 63:9-15]

Further by the Board, "Respondent then asserted that her account had been hacked and proceeded to represent that she would obtain a police report indicating same. Id. [Board's Brief, Pg. 8]

By the Teacher, "On June 1, 2020, a virtual meeting was held in which Bernice Marshall Simmons, Ms. Coleman, Assistant Superintendent Lissette Gonzelez Perez and Roselle Education Association president Rosemary Longo, who was there to represent Ms. Coleman's interests. T 59, 6-25; T60, 1-6; Exhibit A, attached to Exhibit D, of Exhibit J-2. Ms. Simmons testified that at the time of the meeting, no school district policies had been identified as having been potentially violated by Ms. Coleman. T 77, 6-10. [Teacher Brief, Pg. 6]

June 3, 2020; "...Ms. Coleman made a report to the Bedminster Police Department of what it characterized as "cyber harassment." Exhibit C, page 1, Exhibit J-2. Ms. Coleman reported to police that "[s]omeone cut photos from her Facebook account . . . and pasted the photos under a new account with her name and attached derogatory/racist comments to it." Exhibit C, page 2, of Exhibit J-2. Ms. Coleman did as was requested and provided the police report to Ms. Simmons. T 66, 7-15; T 79, 17-25. [Teacher Brief, Pg. 8]

January 26, 2021; the District's Tenure Charges against Teacher Donna Coleman are filed with NJ DOE citing, among other contentions, that the post was, "...racially charged, racially offensive, racially motivated." Further that, "...district argues that its ability to provide public services was disrupted because it [had... received daily phone calls, emails" [Motion, Oral Arg.,Tr. 25]] Related arguments followed the underlying evidentiary hearings. [Board Brief, Pgs.12, 14] Pertinent sections of the 'Charges' are reproduced hereunder [see Findings, below]

February 10, 2021; in reply to the Tenure Charges, Teacher's contentions included,

"...this entire prosecution is frivolous. Ms. Coleman isn't accused of harassing students, insulting students, discriminating students, using students, anything like that. In a nutshell she's being prosecuted because something was said on Facebook that some people didn't like" [Teacher's Motion for Dismissal, Tr. 16, Oral Arg.] Related arguments followed the underlying evidentiary hearings. [Teacher's Brief]

February 12, 2021; this Arbitrator appointed to the matter by the NJ State Board of Education.

March 15 and 23, 2021; by mutual request in writing followed by oral argument conducted in a virtual Hearing, the Teacher's "Motion for Summary Decision", and District, "Petitioner's 'Opposition Brief', are argued in a procedural effort to adjudicate the matter prior to a full evidentiary hearing [prior scheduled hearings held in abeyance were re-scheduled]

March 26-30, 2021; upon review of 'procedural' transcript and pleadings, Arbitrator issues an, "Interim Ruling", dismissing, "Motion for Summary Decision", without prejudice. Evidentiary hearing(s) re-scheduled to May 10 and 11, 2021.

May 5, 2021; District request for conference call to address, 'Motion' for a witness to appear virtually (prior scheduled, 'live'), due to medical necessity; no objection by Teacher's Counsel. Both advised all witnesses will receive instruction for testimony decorum.

May 10 and 11, 2021; During two (2) hearings scheduled by agreement between Counsel, each side had full and fair opportunity to present written exhibits, sworn testimony, including time for cross-examination and rebuttal. The Tenured Teacher was present during both evidentiary Hearings [Day 1 and 2], given opportunity to and did testify in her own behalf. Each Party agreed to written closings and to protocols for those submissions.

May 26, 2021; the transcribed record of hearing was received.

July 6, 2021; by agreed upon schedule [after extension] to file closing briefs electronically to one another and Arbitrator; thereafter mailing same with cited materials, both briefs [+ materials] were received. Each Party cited from an extensive array of prior arbitration and judicial decisions [30 & 20]. The Hearing record was declared closed at this juncture. All evidence, including the arguments and positions adopted by each party prior to, during and post-hearing were thereafter considered at length, however not all were afforded the same significance for determination, as discussed hereunder.

August 29, 2016; decision rendered to each side and filed with the NJ Commissioner of Education.

ISSUE

During the evidentiary hearings, each Party's Counsel was afforded opportunity to state the issue believed to be before the Arbitrator. Absent consensus, the Arbitrator reserved the right to adjust the 'issue' for determination appropriate to the evidence. [Arbitrator, Tr. 9]

While the parties could not agree per se to each other's statement, they came close.

By the District: "...whether or not the board did, in fact, have just cause to seek the termination of Ms. Coleman." [District's Opening, Tr. Pg. 10]

By the Teacher: "whether or not the post was shared intentionally, and if that rises to the level of conduct unbecoming. And further, if it does, whether termination is warranted. [Teacher's Opening, Tr. Pg. 22]

As the parties subsequently enhanced their respective arguments to take account of the statements above, it is deemed more relevant to state the issue as:

"Whether the District had just cause to dismiss Tenured Teacher Coleman? If not, what should be the remedy?"

BACKGROUND, FACTS and PARTY POSITIONS

As learned, the Tenured Teacher had taught, "...English... at Abraham Clark High School in Roselle,... where she has been employed for 17 years. T 260, 20-24. She was assigned to the high school for the entirety of her career with the Roselle Public Schools District, though she also provided instruction in the District's alternative school and home instruction programs. T 261, 16-24. In addition to her normal teaching duties she was involved in multiple extracurricular activities and programs including, but not limited to: the JROTC Marine Corps program; the teen arts program; the intergenerational day program; the school newspaper; the school literary magazine. T 261, 25; T 262 1-8; see also, Exhibit J-3, Respondent's Statement of Position, at pages 1-2; Exhibit J-4, Respondent's Answer, at page 2. She also served as the school's senior class adviser for a number of years. T 262, 8-9; Exhibit J-3, at page 2; Exhibit J-4, at page 2. [Teacher's Brief, Pg. 4]

Of further note is that her lengthy employment was discipline free, "Further, Ms. Coleman's performance evaluations had been uniformly positive, and the record reveals no prior history of discipline. T 183, 9-10; see also, Exhibits R-1 and R-2." [Teacher's Brief, Pg. 4]

The above facts concerning 'Teacher's' employment history were undisputed. Discussed below, each party adopted differing positions regarding its effect on the outcome here.

Each side's well documented post-hearing briefs contained their respective view-points, i.e., positions. In a preliminary statement the District contended: "...Board has proven, by a preponderance of the evidence, that Respondent, Donna Coleman ("Respondent"), is guilty of unbecoming conduct, insubordination and/or other just cause warranting her dismissal from employment with the Roselle Board of Education". [Board Brief, Pgs. 4, 12 -14]

Preliminarily, the Teacher argued, "Petitioner Roselle Board of Education (hereinafter "Petitioner" or "the Board") failed to meet its burden of proving the tenure charges against Respondent Donna Coleman ("Respondent" or "Ms. Coleman") by a preponderance of the relevant evidence. [Teacher's Brief, Pg. 3]

The District's post-hearing arguments urged findings in favor of charges against this Teacher alleging, 'criminal misconduct', and being, '...unfit to remain a tenured teaching staff member', having, '...intentionally shared and then lied about a racially charged (...) post', [or] being, 'grossly negligent', ...and that her, 'post [i.e., of May 29,2020] created a great deal of disruption' and finally that her post, '... is not protected speech under the First Amendment' [Board Brief, Pgs. 2, 4, 5, 9, 10, 11, 12, 14, 16, 28]

Maintaining the charges supported the standard of 'just cause' argued preliminarily, the District urged [post-Hearing] that any conclusions reached include that, "Respondent should be dismissed from her tenured position based on the egregiousness of her criminal misconduct [and] "...notwithstanding any consideration of her prior record of employment." [District Brief, Pgs.2, 26, 27].

Moreover from the District's [post-Hearing] 'Preliminary Statement' regarding 'credibility', it also argued as rationale for dismissal that, "...the testimony of Respondent illustrates a lack of remorse [which] suggests a likelihood of future misconduct of a similar or more severe nature." [District Brief, Pg. 5]

Reiterating similar themes in concluding remarks, the District summarizes by claiming:

"... it is evident that...Respondent has failed to satisfy the standards of a profession predicated on public trust and respect. She has betrayed that trust and breached the high standard enunciated by the Commissioner of Education. Moreover, Respondent's lack of remorse is illustrated by her failure to recognize why members of the Roselle community were upset and offended by her actions, coupled with her constant effort to curry sympathy related to the fallout with which she has had to deal as a result of her misconduct. Indeed, the only remorse articulated by Respondent concerns the impact of her actions upon her own career (i.e., the anger directed towards her by those whom she so deeply offended) and not the damage it has done to this school District, her reputation and her ability to still serve as an effective educator. Notably missing from Respondent's testimony and/or pre-hearing submissions is any statement of apology directed towards the students and the school district she let down. In any case, it's simply unfathomable to imagine a scenario where the Superintendent of Schools has to place the Respondent back in the classroom and explain same to the parents who are now uncomfortable ...with having their children around her. Respondent's misdeeds were not mere oversights, nor simple mistakes. Rather, her misconduct, as well as the manner in which she handled herself after sharing the Post, go to the heart of her character and unfitness to continue to serve as a public-school teacher. Respondent must be dismissed." [District's Brief Pgs. 28-29]

The Teacher's primary arguments address multiple categories, including the burden of proof, factors in mitigation of remedy and the effect of the alleged posting: " Petitioner has failed to meet its burden that Ms. Coleman failed to share any post, racially insensitive or not, intentionally. Assuming even arguendo that Ms. Coleman did share the post intentionally, the Board cannot show that her intent was to disparage or demean any student, parent, staff member or any member of the Roselle community in general sufficient to support a charge of conduct unbecoming. [Teacher's Brief, Pg. 18]

Speaking to the remedy and notwithstanding culpability it contends further that, "It is Ms. Coleman's position that the Board has not met its burden in showing that she committed the alleged offenses, and even if it has, it is precluded from taking any disciplinary action against her under the First Amendment. However, should the arbitrator find that the District has met its burden and finds that Ms. Coleman did engage in conduct unbecoming and her speech is not protected by the First Amendment the offenses are de minimis in nature and do not warrant the stripping of her tenure. [Teacher's Brief, Pg. 22]

Moreover, argues the Teacher: "...should the arbitrator find that the District has met its burden in proving that Ms. Coleman engaged in conduct unbecoming, an intermediate penalty such as a Corrective Action Plan ("CAP") or increment withholding would be a more appropriate remedy. Revoking Ms. Coleman's tenure under these circumstances would constitute an excessive, draconian penalty, which should be reserved for only the most egregious offenses." [Teacher's Brief, Pg. 24]

Further, "Even if one or more of the charges are sustained, there is significant mitigating evidence – including but not limited to Ms. Coleman's unblemished work performance and lack of disciplinary record, along with her lack of malicious intent – that militates against the imposition of severe discipline. Moreover, the allegations in the charges, even if accepted as true, are not sufficiently flagrant to warrant termination and the Board failed to implement progressive discipline. [Teacher's Brief, Pgs. 3-4]

Thus the overarching positions from each party are:

"Board has proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Respondent is guilty of conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member, insubordination and/or other just cause warranting dismissal. " [District Brief Pg.4]

By the Teacher: "the Board failed to meet its burden of proving the allegations contained in the tenure charges by a preponderance of the relevant evidence. Consequently, the charges must be dismissed with prejudice and Ms. Coleman made whole for all emoluments withheld during the pendency of this proceeding. Even if Ms. Coleman is found guilty of conduct unbecoming, the substantial mitigating evidence presented in this case militates against the imposition of severe disciplinary action." [Teacher's Brief, Pg. 27]

Further, at the 'Conclusion' of Teacher's Brief, "...PETITIONER DID NOT MEET ITS BURDEN IN PROVING THAT MS. COLEMAN WAS INSUBORDINATE OR UNTRUTHFUL. Ms. Coleman is charged with lying to the District's investigators and being insubordinate. However, the record proves quite the contrary. [Teacher's Brief; Pg. 20]

FINDINGS AND OPINION

A careful review of all evidence presented, including all documents submitted into the record and transcribed notes of testimony occurred. This take into account the positions taken and arguments advanced by both parties.

Pertinent portions of the District's 'Tenure Charges' [January 26, 2020] as filed against the Teacher are:

I. Unbecoming Conduct and/or Other Just Cause, Including Insubordination. (Intentional Public Sharing and Lying About a Racially-Charged Facebook Post)
II. Unbecoming Conduct and/or Other Just Cause, Including Insubordination. (Grossly Negligent Misconduct in Publically Sharing a Facebook Post)
III. Unbecoming Conduct and/or Other Just Cause, Including Insubordination. (Causing Disruption in the District/Effect on Ability to Continue To Serve)
IV. Unbecoming Conduct and/or Other Just Cause, Including Insubordination. (Violations of District Policy)

Relevant portions of NJ statutory sections which the Parties mutually acknowledged being bound to were cited by each side and are deemed relevant without further recitation here. The statues impose a, "just cause" standard for dismissal and also grant school districts the right to issue reasonable rules, orders and regulations that are not conflicting. There has been no challenge to the statutory standards for discipline by either side.

While challenges to several Board policies cited in the Tenure Charges dealing with 'Conduct' were raised by the Teacher, the allegations dealt with de minimis changes to them which, upon examination at hearing when raised, demonstrated that the policy language in question, while edited several months after the underlying incident [May 29, 2020], were edited with language having nothing to do with the content of this matter. Thus the Teacher's contentions that, "Ms. Coleman can't violate a policy retroactively." is moot and deemed irrelevant.

As alleged by the District, "Further, an inspection of District Police 3281-Inappropriate Staff Conduct was edited in September of 2020, subsequent to the events at issue. 1. [District's Brief, Pgs. 6, 13]

1. Board Policy 3281, Inappropriate Staff Conduct, states, in relevant part, that [t]he Commissioner of Education has determined inappropriate conduct by a school staff member outside their professional responsibilities may be considered conduct unbecoming a staff member...Therefore, school staff members are advised to be concerned with such conduct which may include, but are not limited to, communications and/or publications using e-mails, text-messaging, social networking sites, or any other medium that is directed and/or available to pupils or for public display." This Policy further states that "[a] school staff member is always expected to maintain a professional relationship with pupils and to protect the health, safety and welfare of school pupils."[1] J-2, Ex. G

Analysis; Overview

At the core of the issue stated above was whether a 'just cause' dismissal occurred and whether the penalty was too harsh or instead, proper under the principles and precedents espoused by both parties. The overriding principle at arbitration of any disciplinary proceeding

[1] "Note that this Policy shows that it was edited in September 2020, following the incident at issue. However, as testified to by the superintendent of schools, that the only new language is the language in bold. All other language existed in the Policy on May 29, 2020. T-1, 168:21-169:11." is whether a good faith showing of just cause existed and whether it was properly enforced. Both sides' extensive post hearing briefs exhaustively explored these principles.

The issue stated above is clear, succinct and forms the basis for the underlying decision. As moving party, the School District has the burden to prove its charges against the Teacher. Taking all manner of evidence and argument by both sides into consideration, the overwhelming weight of the evidence favors sustaining the charges for dismissal.

Moreover, another sub-issue involving whether this Teacher had a constitutional [1st Amendment] right of 'free speech' to have uttered, transmitted and/or shared the referenced May 29, 2020 'post' was raised as a defense in this dispute. Counsel for each Party engaged in substantial arguments surrounding that issue. While 'free speech' contentions are important and deserving attention in many settings, the facts of this case demonstrated there were overriding considerations in issue here. This Teacher's self-imposed actions and behaviors here created highly publicized racial discord and community conflict which, in the context of her employment could not allow the 'free speech' arguments to take precedence.

Regardless of whether the Teacher had a constitutionally protected 'right' to have shared the post in question, her behavior and actions in doing so and her shifting excuses thereafter for having done this thing [whether intentionally, accidently or negligently] amounted to 'Conduct Unbecoming', for any public school 'Teacher'. Regardless of motive or intent, her lack of good judgement exhibited by allowing the 'post' to be shared was confirmed and compounded by her statements and testimony. When confronted by overwhelming evidence that the 'post' was received by numerous offended community members, this 'Teacher' was also unrepentant and unremorseful.

Notwithstanding 'how or why' the posting occurred, the Teacher's lack of remorse when confronted with probative evidence of the hundreds of negative community responses received by her and/ or the District was revealing and instructive. This unrepentant attitude was displayed during investigation and was evident during her testimony at Hearing.

The rationale for propriety in the education of the public's children is at the core of this matter. While constitutional rights of free speech are important, there was an overriding concern raised by this Teacher's posting action and subsequent behaviors after the incident which became a superseding set of factors leading to her being dismissed. Those concerns involved the effects of that behavior on this School District and the external community as well. As a result of the racially hostile posting of the Teacher, the District had lost the faith and trust in this Teacher she had accumulated over a substantial [approx. 17 years] period of time.

Moreover and of greater significance is that Teacher Coleman herself acknowledged during the investigation over the incident that, based upon the tone and content of numerous negative texts, emails and postings received, she was fearful of returning to work. "Coleman began receiving comments and messages directed to her and/or about her, some of which were threatening in nature. See, Exhibit R-3. [Teacher's Brief, Pg. 6]

Shared by the District, its concern over community 'outrage' was yet another factor in the rationale for its dismissal decision. "Respondent's conduct severely damaged the reputation of the Board and has subjected it to an unremitting onslaught of public outrage. [District Brief, Pg. 38]

Thus the factors superseding 'free speech' considerations were found to be related to the appropriate operation of a school district, public safety and the well-being of the community.

Indisputable facts established that the Teacher's version of events shifted, starting out with her assertion that her 'computer' [or, other web based device] had been hacked. Ostensibly, that defense might have supported her initial contention that she had no involvement in any way, shape or form with the posting of the message to a social media [believed to be 'Facebook'] website. However, the Teacher thereafter changed that version or explanation for the posting.

As detailed hereunder, that 'shifting' of events allegedly causing the 'posting' to occur, changed dramatically during the disciplinary proceedings during the District's investigation of the matter. The Teacher had many opportunities to explain her version of events involving the 'posting' at varying times during those proceedings and during two (2) days of Hearing.

Despite all efforts provided by experienced and competent Counsel on her behalf, both the Teacher and a supporting witness [her adult daughter] provided little evidence to assist her or explain any version of how this Teacher was not responsible for the 'posting' to have occurred. Thus the essence of the School District's rationale for dismissal is clear.

The propriety of this Teacher's behavior is measured by such factors as trustworthiness, dependability, integrity and forthrightness. While all employers have the need to depend on every employee to be engaged in a trustworthy and dependable manner for the common good and success of any enterprise, there is an enhanced need for these factors in a public employment-relationship setting. Today's headlines are filled with stories about such requirements, and range from public safety, health and by no means the least, public education. This school district, as any other, must have unequivocal faith and trust in each and every employee, but especially those employees having direct contact with the children entrusted to its care. That faith and trust was broken in this case, by this Teacher.

Paradoxically as this Teacher had a substantial and otherwise clear record, she also had the obligation and clear duty to have thoughtfully and carefully considered the ramifications and potential result, before engaging in her 'posting' actions of May 29, 2020. The undisputed facts are clear that she did not take that care. Whether it was mistake or negligence, her actions broke the faith and trust between her and her employer, the Roselle School District. Moreover, she displayed no remorse for her actions, instead blaming unidentified others for her actions.

Accordingly, the primary basis for the underlying decision is the effect of her behavior on the Teacher-Student and Teacher-School District relationship(s). Consistent with the indisputable facts presented, these effects extended as well to the School's external community. Further analysis below here leads to the decision at the end hereof.

Burden of Proof

Every matter involving employee disciplinary action places the burden upon the employer [here, Petitioner, Roselle School District] to prove it had just cause to take the action of dismissal including that the penalty was appropriate under the attendant circumstances. Here, the Tenured Teacher challenged that the, "Board failed to meet its burden of proving the allegations contained in the tenure charges by a preponderance of the relevant evidence."

The District's evidence tracked the four major 'points' (Unbecoming Conduct and/or Other Just Cause, Including Insubordination) outlined above, including specific sub-categories and directly related to the evidence presented at the hearing(s). As detailed hereunder, the preponderance of that evidence was met. Using the factors below here, it was persuasive that the evidence satisfied the standard of review.

Under the procedures of the Department of Education, State of New Jersey, the appointed Arbitrator must determine the weight and credibility of the evidence presented. It is conclusive and thus persuasive that the 'Unbecoming Conduct' of this Teacher was inappropriate. The District has met its burden of proof for this Tenured Teacher's dismissal.

Just Cause

Just cause required that the elements of a fair disciplinary proceeding were necessary before the final step of dismissal could be imposed by the District on the Tenured Teacher in this matter. This included a full and fair investigation of the charges and careful consideration of any mitigating and/or aggravating circumstances, which occurred.

Despite the diligence of Teacher's Counsel which assured she was well represented, the overwhelming facts herein were not in her favor. A preponderance of the evidence against her was substantially more damaging than any defenses available to her or brought.

Primarily, the Teacher's testimony was found wanting. Instead, the evidence confirmed the documentary proof of her having shared the post shared to her social media page. Her statements thereafter served to authenticate the documentary material and worse, were vague, evasive and shifting, which irreparably damaged her credibility and thus contributed to finding that the remedy of dismissal was necessary.

Teacher Coleman could not explain inconsistencies between the varying statements she proffered during investigatory interviews, including versions to explain what happened, how it happened or especially, why it happened that her internet social media account page suddenly contained an unwarranted and abusive message, deemed racially insensitive by a multitude of her school's external community members. Those failures, both in causing the post to be shared and thereafter, in compounding her rationale for doing it by vague and evasive explanations occurred during an extensive investigation and contributed to the just cause determination against this Teacher. She availed herself of representation during the investigatory process and was afforded ample opportunity to clarify [by Mr. Klein, for the District] several versions of her own account, i.e., being 'hacked' or, some other technical variation to exculpate herself from responsibility.

While the District cited customary elements of the just cause standard in its brief, arbitrators may be guided by those elements but are not bound to them as an absolute standard. In this case it has been determined and is thus persuasive that this Teacher was, by virtue of her extensive period of employment [17 years], on notice of multiple District policies prohibiting inappropriate conduct, and therefore, also to the consequences of her actions. Regardless of the content of any written policy, her acknowledgement of the overwhelming student body being black and Latino [Teacher's Brief, cited above] should have given her pause to think before 'sharing' such a message which she posted on May 29, 2020.

Other elements of just cause established by the District include that the Teachers actions caused serious disruption in the District's operations and its community relations. Further, that its need to contain the resultant disorder is reasonably related to its need for 'business efficiency' and that the detrimental consequences described hereunder did occur. Thus, the after effects cited by the District preclude the Teacher's continued service.

Thus the probative evidence demonstrates the District's investigation was full, fair and conducted in a manner that allowed the Teacher ample opportunity to demonstrate or explain her rationale for how the 'post' shared to her social media page got there. Those attempts by her instead appear as a squandered opportunity, due to the changing descriptions previously addressed. Therefore, substantial efforts were made before dismissal action was taken which determined that the Teacher was properly charged.

Accordingly, there was just cause for the charges brought against Teacher for her actions on and after May 29, 2020 relating to a racially charged statement 'shared' to her social media account and negatively commented upon by people in both her school and external community. Moreover and subsequent to the posting, the Teacher's behavior and actions in attempting to explain what had occurred amounted to a tangled web of excuse, not reason, and included fabrication or negligent rationalization for her poor judgement.

Under the circumstances addressed, the penalty of dismissal imposed was reasonably related to the seriousness of the Teacher's 'Tenure Charges' and included consideration of her past record. Thus the District's Tenure Charges were appropriate and therefore it is persuasive that the Teacher's dismissal is proper as supporting just cause.

Conduct Unbecoming and Insubordination

The preponderance of the evidence found in this record determined this Teacher was culpable of the charge, "Conduct Unbecoming". Her fabrication of certain details and proposing shifting versions for how the content of the post came to and left from her telephone device encompassed the requisite elements necessary for the District to conclude this Teacher had engaged in behavior and conduct which it deemed as no longer trustworthy.

In addition to the internet posting of a racially insensitive message shared with the community, her behavior in compounding that action by being evasive during investigation of the posting was appropriately found to be, 'Conduct Unbecoming'. The separate charge of insubordination was less about defiance in the face of authority and more analogous to her evasive conduct in lieu of being forthcoming. Thus the characterization of the Teacher's behavior as being insubordinate was more identifiable as 'Conduct Unbecoming'.

An employee engaging in abusive communications may come under the broadest definition of insubordination but the charges and evidence of this charge do not rise to the level of typical insubordination where an employee is given a direct order and intentionally defies authority by failing to perform that specific order. Thus, insubordination is not found here.

The distinction between a justifiable communication and one that is not may occur in the context of the message as well. A simple example is in the context of someone who yells "Fire!" perhaps foolishly to raise alarm, but in an outdoor area with few people around. While such an example might be uncalled for or rude, it is not per se abusive. Yet the very same action of yelling "Fire!", in a darkened movie theater crowded with people is the very definition of an unwarranted and abusive communication. In the context of the present case the Teacher's posted communication was unjustified and abusive, but only as 'Conduct Unbecoming', sustained here.

The explanations offered by District witnesses regarding the effects caused by the Teacher's posting to her social media page were deemed credible as supporting the charge of Conduct Unbecoming. Each account described how the District's investigation included processing and follow-up to a multitude of telephone calls, emails and other communications by and between administrative personnel of the District and community members that included parents (and other family members) of school students. The communications received [including copies of emails made a part of the record] were overwhelmingly negative, some threatening and, directed at the continued employment of this Teacher by the District.

While the community's reaction to an internal disciplinary matter at this School District is not a determinative factor for consideration of the outcome here, the cause and effect of the posting upon the District's ability to operate efficiently, maintain order and proper decorum within its boundaries of operation are determinative. Based upon a preponderance of the evidence in this record, it is persuasive that the District's version of the cause and effect of the May 29, 2020 posting formed an appropriate rationale for it to conclude that the Teacher's actions in sharing the post and behaving evasively thereafter amounted to a finding of 'Conduct Unbecoming'

Whether or not the Teacher was attempting to exercise some perceived right to have shared this post, she ultimately took no responsibility for her actions and additionally, ignored requests to forthrightly participate in the interview process during investigation. Thus Conduct Unbecoming was charged to this Teacher and is properly within the finding of just cause.

Credibility

There was overwhelming evidence of this Teacher compounding her mistake in posting (regardless of whether deliberately done, thoughtlessly, or through negligence), by also being less than candid when questioned about her actions during the District's investigation. As a highly experienced teacher with 17 years of service including extra-curricular roles, she was constructively on notice of prohibited conduct, appropriate behaviors and in particular, the need to be forthcoming when called upon. Despite the above and being represented during these proceedings, she was less than forthcoming to her employer and evasive: "Specifically, Respondent's version of events has changed from, the Post was accidently shared; to the Post was purposefully shared; to she was hacked; to she was cloned and mirrored; to she actually shared a different Post." [Board's Brief, Pg. 12]

Thus the totality of the Teacher's evidence is lacking in credibility. The arguments concerning the Teacher's evasiveness during investigation were evident, continuing as well during the Teacher's testimony before this Arbitrator. Notwithstanding the District's characterizations of her statements as 'bizarre', it is conclusive that the Teacher's credibility is lacking and thus a contributing factor in determining that just cause was present for her dismissal.

Unsupported vs. Corroborated Evidence

There is no basis for the defense that the evidence provided by the District was unsupported by the proofs. The Teacher's testimony [the changing versions regarding the posting], coupled with that of her adult daughter (Antoinette Coleman; regarding the lengthy time period of Teacher's internet usage/ experience) contributed to a finding that the Teacher was responsible, solely, for the posting. Thus the Teacher's disingenuous attempts to distance herself from the responsibility for her actions were not supported by the Teacher's evidence.

Instead, the totality of the evidence corroborated the District's findings regarding the Teacher's culpability. Taking all manner of evidence and argument into consideration thus provided a basis for finding that the 'unbecoming conduct' described hereunder and included in the charges against this Teacher were corroborated and proven by a preponderance of the evidence presented.

Clearly established, the evidence demonstrated that the Teacher violated basic notions of the faith and trust required between every employee and employer. It should have been self-evident to any public school teacher with 17 years' experience that regardless of any 'written' rules prohibiting specific conduct, certain behaviors are proscribed by common sense. Formal notice prohibiting violence or possessing a weapon on school property are examples.

The injudiciousness of this Teacher's 'mistake in sharing' the underlying post, compounded by her poor judgment in not being forthcoming, instead being evasive about it, operated to undermine the faith and trust required between her as a Teacher and this School District. Thus the District's Tenure Charges were supported and corroborated by the evidence.

Incompetence; alleged 'Criminal Behavior'

There was no express showing of incompetence per se, in this matter. While arguably incompetent to have demonstrated the behavior exhibited by the Teacher under the facts here, it is not included in this opinion or otherwise affecting the decision below.

Further, despite use of the term 'criminal behavior', as alleged by the District below, the term was never explored in greater detail nor specifically attributed to any underlying factual scenario.

As such, there is no basis for attributing any degree of 'criminal behavior' to the underlying findings, or in the decision following.

Mitigating vs Aggravating Circumstance

The Teacher's Brief contained multiple references to factors in mitigation of the charges and severity of penalty. One example requiring attention was that: "Even if Ms. Coleman is found guilty of conduct unbecoming, the substantial mitigating evidence presented in this case militates against the imposition of severe disciplinary action. [Teacher's Brief, Pg. 27]

While correct that 17 years of discipline-free service typically deserves consideration, the facts here circumvent that argument. Arguably, a one-time mistake in conjunction with a lengthy and otherwise discipline free record might be factors in mitigation, except for the presence of overwhelming aggravating factors. Stated hereunder, this Teacher's extensive background and experience should have served her to behave more prudently. Had she applied even a marginal degree of wisdom gained from her lengthy experience, it is likely she might have comprehended the probable consequences of sharing the post, in advance of her mistake. Failing to consider the implications of a racially insensitive internet posting to her social media page, within days after the murder of George Floyd, was an overwhelming aggravating factor in this matter, and not one to be considered in mitigation of the dismissal penalty.

Additional aggravating factors included the consequences of the posting to the School District [discussed above]. There was evidence, not refuted, that this Teacher was threatened, or felt threatened, by negative and repeated external communications from community members. The potential effect of those circumstances were additional factors cited by the District as reasons why the District felt it had no choice but to move for the Teachers dismissal. Thus these aggravating factors are also persuasive in concluding there was just cause for termination.

Perhaps more consequential to the just cause standard here was the evidence of this Teacher's total lack of remorse during the investigation and again, demonstrated at Hearing. As stated above, "...the testimony of Respondent illustrates a lack of remorse [which] suggests a likelihood of future misconduct of a similar or more severe nature." [District Brief, Pg. 5]

Therefore it is persuasive to consider the Teacher's demonstrated lack of remorse or regret, if not to her School than to the external community and thus, as a possibility of repeat behavior. Considering all circumstances discussed, any potential for returning this Teacher to a workplace environment where the charges addressed are deemed reliable, risks a potential for ongoing and continued conduct of the same or similar nature. Therefore and without attributing mitigation, the above factors add to the finding of just cause for dismissal. Thus it is determined here that the majority of charges filed by the District were appropriate. Moreover, the penalty of dismissal is warranted under all the attendant circumstances found here.

Also argued by the Teacher but not found to be in mitigation of penalty was the contention that a dismissal in this case would have a potential negative effect upon her pension rights or future education career, including the possibility of a proceeding against her for certificate revocation. While the potential for these were considered, it is notable that this case did not involve any criminal proceedings nor was any criminal behavior established.

Furthermore, there were neither accusations nor suggestions made involving any acts of moral turpitude or inappropriate conduct toward a child at issue here. Hence, unlike a case involving mental or physical abuse toward a child (not present here) nothing in this matter suggests even a hint of moral turpitude that should cause concern for or damage to one's expectations for employment in a school setting.

The fact pattern here involves a singular incident of wrongdoing, punishable as directed.

Conclusions

In summation after careful consideration of all evidence and arguments in support thereof, it is conclusive that the Tenured Teacher was dismissed for just cause. The preponderance of the evidence warrants a finding that the majority of charges against this Teacher were proper.

At Hearing(s) in the matter, both Parties were afforded full and fair opportunity to present evidence and argument in support of their respective positions. The evidence conclusively demonstrates that on May 29, 2020, this Teacher caused a message to be 'shared' on her social media account, the content of which included an inflammatory, insensitive and racially charged statement adversely received by and commented on by hundreds of people in the community of, in and around the Roselle School District, Bergen County, NJ.

Moreover, the content of the posting was not the sole reason for the District's determining 'Charges' against her. Other factors also became the focus of this disciplinary matter.

Initially it was the Teacher's mistake in sending a message she either knew or should have considered before sending, which had the likelihood of exacerbating the sensibilities of an already raw community only days after the death of George Floyd. The second and overriding element involves the Teacher's compounding of her initial mistake by engaging in somewhat 'bizarre', but still less than forthcoming accounts regarding how the posting occurred, all discussed at length hereunder. The net result of these compounded behaviors acted to severely undermine her trustworthiness as a teacher by the School District.

Arguments and positions framed by each Party persuasively demonstrated that the District's investigation of the matter was thorough and fair. The Tenured Teacher was represented during the investigatory process and gave her version of events preceding, during and subsequent to posting.

During the investigation, the Teacher gave several versions of what led up to the posting process, initially stating that her social media account had been "hacked, cloned or mirrored", i.e., that the posting was, allegedly, not within her discretion or control.

Notwithstanding the initial disclosures, the Teacher subsequently volunteered another version of the posting process, this time declaring that the 'sharing' event had occurred accidentally, i.e., while not intending a posting yet, the post was discovered on her electronic device as showing the message had been shared. Teacher's latter rationale, during testimony, was that it was sent to her social media account by an improper keyboard manipulation or, inadvertent stroke of the keypad.

Despite the above stated versions by the Teacher, School Superintendent Dr. Fisher gave highly convincing rebuttal testimony. Dr. Fisher demonstrated using a similar internet connected telephone to the one utilized by the Teacher, and that an accidental or inadvertent 'stroke of the keypad' version was nearly impossible to achieve. Dr. Fisher demonstrated credibly that the act of sending (i.e., 'sharing' a post) involved a two-step process whereby the device's software required the user to reconsider the send command after an initial request was entered, but prior to sending.

Consequently, Dr. Fisher educated all those present in the hearing room, and convincingly to this Arbitrator that the Teacher's version of events preceding the 'sharing' or 'posting' was at best a fiction or, under a worst case scenario, a deliberate act. Thus the testimony offered by the Teacher in this regard was a vital contributing factor in assessing her credibility and, confirmed other necessary elements for finding just cause existed in the District's dismissal action.

Moreover to the above, Dr. Fisher gave convincing testimony concerning the effects upon the District when it concluded that the incident had caused serious, negative and lasting damage to the Roselle School District community environment. He emphasized the deleterious effects caused by this Tenured Teacher having provided no plausible explanation to justify her actions and her failure to show any remorse for her hurtful behavior.

Accordingly, the Tenure charges filed against this Teacher and her subsequent removal must be sustained. The evidence is clear as detailed hereunder that all appropriate elements required for a just cause dismissal were present in this case.

Despite Teacher seeking progressive discipline as an alternative remedy, the mitigating factors necessary were not found here, as discussed. Moreover, the very fact of her extensive tenure serving in this community should have operated as an early warning for her to have first considered the consequences of her actions, before sending the 'post'.

Taking all manner of evidence, argument and positions of the Parties into full consideration here, there is clear evidence that just cause was served by the District's dismissal action.

Accordingly, the decision in this matter follows.

AWARD

The Teacher's 'Answer' to the Tenure Charges filed against her in this matter, is denied. The District had just cause to dismiss Tenured Teacher Coleman.

In view of the above, the District's imposed penalty of dismissal for this Tenured Teacher is sustained.

No other remedies apply.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND MUTUAL RELEASE

This Settlement Agreement and Release (hereinafter referred to as the "Agreement") is entered into this _____ day of May 2021 between Petitioners C.E. and F.E. on behalf of minor child S.E. ("Petitioners"), and Respondent, Plainfield Board of Education ("Board") (collectively the "Parties").

WHEREAS, Petitioner S.E. is a student of the Respondent School District; and

WHEREAS, the Board is a body corporate and politic responsible for the administration and operation of the public schools in Plainfield, New Jersey; and

WHEREAS, Petitioner S.E. was involved in altercations on October 8th and 16th, 2019 ("October Incidents"), for which she was subsequently suspended; and

WHEREAS, the Parties have been engaged in certain litigation involving the October

Incidents including, inter alia, claims related to N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13 et seq., specifically a harassment, intimidation, and bullying ("HIB") investigation ("Litigation"); and

WHEREAS, the Parties, wishing to avoid the time, effort and expense of litigation and desiring to reach an equitable resolution, have reached a mutual agreement to settle the above Litigation with prejudice; and

NOW WHEREFORE, in consideration of covenants, agreements and representations contained herein, the Parties hereto, subject to the terms and conditions hereof and intending to be legally bound, hereby, agree as follows:

1. TERMS:

a) The Board will remove all references to the October Incidents from Petitioner S.E.'s file including, without limit, all references to the related suspension and discipline. b) The Board will lift the ban prohibiting Chinelta Edwards from entering Plainfield High School and property.

c) Upon request, Respondent shall provide Petitioner with a written recommendation to a specific college.

d) Petitioner shall withdraw, with prejudice, the Litigation pursuant to the terms outlined herein.

2. COMPLETE RELEASE.

In further consideration of the settlement contained herein and to the extent permitted by law, Petitioners, their heirs, assigns and agents (hereinafter referred to collectively as "Releasors") voluntarily enter into this Agreement, and certify that Releasors have not been threatened or coerced into signing this Agreement, on the terms which follow:

a) Except for the right to enforce any and all terms of this Agreement, Releasors hereby release, waive and discharge the Board, its affiliated members, agents, employees, successors and assigns (hereinafter collectively referred to as the "Releasees") from each and every claim, demand, cause of action, obligation, damage, complaint, expense, compensation or action or writ of any kind, nature, character or description that Releasors had, now have, or may in the future have against the Releasees including those that were, or that could have been, asserted in the Litigation. This complete release includes, but is not limited to, any claim, demand, cause of action, obligation, damage, complaint, expense, compensation, or action or writ of any kind, nature, character or description arising out of or under Federal, State or municipal statute or ordinance and any other law (whether such be common law, decisional law or statutory law), rule, regulation, executive order or guideline, and any and all claims for attorneys' fees and costs arising from the above acts ("Complete Release").

b) Releasors shall not hereafter, seek money damages against the Board or the Releasees in any matter lodged within any Federal, State or local court or agency which has been settled herein. Nothing herein shall be construed as limiting any individual's right to file a charge of discrimination should they feel that they were a victim of unlawful discrimination.

If Releasors violate this Complete Release by filing any claim, charge or complaint on account of, or arising out of, the Litigation as prohibited herein, Releasors agree to pay all costs and expenses of defending against the suit incurred by the Board and/or the Releasees, including reasonable attorneys' fees. To the extent that any claims are not covered by complete release, the Parties agree to refer them to binding arbitration.

It is expressly understood that the arrangement herein shall not be construed to represent any policy or procedure of the Board except as may be otherwise provided herein. 3.

NON-ADMISSION.

This Agreement is executed, and all consideration is given in, final settlement of disputed claims related to the Litigation, and is not intended to be, nor shall it be construed as an admission of any allegation, or of liability, by the Parties. Any such obligation or liability is expressly denied by the Board.

4. NO DISPARAGING STATEMENTS.

Petitioners agree that they will not make any statement(s) whether verbal or in writing, or cause or induce others to make any statement(s), relating to the subject matter of this Litigation that has, have or can be expected to have the effect of disparaging the Board or any of its representatives, agents and employees.

5. CONFIDENTIALITY

Petitioners shall keep the terms and conditions of this Agreement completely and strictly confidential, unless the disclosure is mandated by a court order, subpoena, or enforcement of this Agreement. Neither the terms or conditions of this Agreement nor the fact of its existence shall be disclosed by the Parties to any person or entity, legal or natural, except for members of Petitioners' attorneys, if any.

6. STIPULATION OF DISMISSAL WITH PREJUDICE.

Within five (5) days of receipt of the execution of this Agreement by all parties, the Board's counsel shall provide Petitioners with a stipulation of dismissal, with prejudice. Petitioners agree to execute and return to the Board's counsel such stipulation within five (5) days of receipt of same. The Board's counsel shall thereafter promptly file the stipulation with the Court on notice to Petitioner.

7. NON-ADMISSION OF LIABILITY.

The execution of this Agreement and the settlement made hereunder shall not be construed as an admission of liability by any party in the Litigation. Nor is this document admissible as evidence in any proceeding other than for enforcement of the provisions of this Agreement.

8. CONSULTATION WITH ATTORNEY.

Petitioners, proceeding in this Litigation pro se, represent and warrant that they had the opportunity to consult with an attorney with respect to this Agreement.

9. COMPLETE AGREEMENT.

This Agreement contains the entire agreement between Petitioners and the Board, and each of them, with respect to the subject matter and supersedes all prior agreements or understandings dealing with the same subject matter. There is no agreement on the part of the Board to do anything other than as is expressly stated in this Agreement. This Agreement shall in all respects be interpreted, enforced, and governed by the Laws of the State of New Jersey without respect to conflict of law principles.

10. MODIFICATION.

No modification or amendment of this Agreement will be enforceable unless it is in writing and signed by the Party or Parties to be charged.

11. SEVERABILITY.

Should any provision of this Agreement be declared or determined by any court of competent jurisdiction to be illegal, invalid or unenforceable, the legality, validity, and enforceability of the remaining parts, terms, or provisions shall not be affected thereby and said illegal, unenforceable or invalid part, term, or provision shall be deemed not to be a part of this Agreement.

12. PETITIONERS ATTEST.

Petitioners represent and warrant that they have carefully read each and every provision of this Agreement and that they fully understand all of the terms and conditions contained in each provision of this Agreement. Petitioner represents and warrants that they enter into this Agreement voluntarily, of their own free will, without any pressure or coercion from any person or entity including, but not limited to, the Board and the Releasees.

13. GOVERNING LAW.

This Agreement and all provisions hereof shall be governed by, and construed under, the laws of the State of New Jersey.

14. EFFECTIVE UPON APPROVAL OF THE PLAINFIELD BOARD OF EDUCATION.

This Agreement is subject to the final approval of the Board of Education and will only become effective upon the final approval of the Board of Education. Any disapproval by the Board of Education shall not interfere with the rights of either party to pursue this matter. NOW THEREFORE, the Parties sign below, intending to be legally bound hereby.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

J.L., on behalf of minor child, J.L.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Upper Freehold Regional School District, Monmouth County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Pro se petitioner filed an appeal on behalf of his son, J.L., challenging the respondent Board's removal of J.L. from three national honor societies following a finding that J.L. had committed plagiarism on a homework assignment in October 2020. Petitioner sought immediate reinstatement via a motion for emergent relief, which was denied in April 2021. The underlying petition remained pending before the OAL.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: subsequent to the denial of emergent relief, both parties participated in a telephone prehearing conference on May 6, 2021, during which the parties agreed to a schedule for prehearing discovery; that schedule was subsequently adopted pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4; under the schedule, the respondent was to serve discovery requests on the petitioner no later than May 7, 2021, and the petitioner was to respond to those requests no later than May 21, 2021, but failed to do so; in a subsequent telephone conference, petitioner indicated that he no longer wished to pursue this matter and provide discovery to the Board, but he did not want to withdraw either; the Board indicated that they would file a motion to dismiss based on petitioner's failure to provide discovery. The ALJ concluded that the petitioner effectively abandoned his claim in this matter; further, petitioner's refusal to provide discovery impaired the respondent's ability to properly prepare and present a defense to the petitioner's claims, and such conduct justifies dismissal of the petition due to these procedural deficiencies. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion to dismiss with prejudice.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's determination that the petition of appeal should be dismissed due to petitioner's failure to respond to the Board's discovery requests. Accordingly, the Board's motion to dismiss was granted, and the petition of appeal was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

Final Decision

J.L., on behalf of minor child, J.L.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Upper Freehold Regional School District, Monmouth County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed and considered. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge that the petition of appeal should be dismissed due to petitioner's failure to respond to the Board's discovery requests.[1] Accordingly, the Board's motion to dismiss is granted, and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

Date of Mailing: September 1, 2021

[1] The Commissioner also notes that petitioner's child turned 18 following the filing of the petition of appeal. Once the child has reached the age of majority, any claim is his – and not petitioner's – to pursue. See N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(a)(2). The record does not include any authorization from petitioner's child permitting petitioner to pursue this matter on the child's behalf.

J.L., petitioner, pro se

Patrick J. Madden, Esq., for respondent (Madden & Madden, P.C., attorneys)

Record Closed: June 29, 2021 Decided: July 27, 2021

BEFORE DAVID M. FRITCH, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, on behalf of his son, J.L., initiated the present action by filing a pro se petition of appeal with the State of New Jersey Department of Education, seeking relief on an emergent basis against respondent, the Board of Education of Upper Freehold Regional School (BOEUFRS), seeking immediate reinstatement of his son into three national honor societies following the respondent's removal of J.L. from these honor societies upon finding J.L. committed plagiarism on a homework assignment he submitted in October 2020.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petition for emergent relief was received by the New Jersey Department of Education on March 4, 2021. The matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on March 30, 2021. N.J.S.A. 52:14F-5(e), (f), and (g) and N.J.A.C. 1:6A-1 through 18.5. The emergent relief motion was heard on April 5, 2021, and the motion was denied in a recommended order dated April 6, 2021. That recommended order denying emergent relief was adopted by the New Jersey Commissioner of Education in an order dated April 27, 2021.

Following the denial of emergent relief, the underlying petition to appeal BOEUFRS' action remained pending before the OAL. A telephone prehearing conference was held with the parties on May 6, 2021, where the parties agreed to a schedule for prehearing discovery which required the respondent to serve discovery requests on the petitioner by May 7, 2021, and for the petitioner to provide responses to the respondent's discovery requests by May 21, 2021. At the request of the respondent, a subsequent telephone prehearing conference was held with the parties on June 4, 2021, to address discovery issues. At that conference, the respondent indicated that it had not received discovery responses from the petitioner. The petitioner did not deny failing to respond to the respondent's discovery requests and indicated that he may not wish to proceed further with the matter but did not wish to withdraw his petition at that time. The respondent indicated that, if the petitioner did not withdraw his petition, it would be filing the present motion to dismiss the petition. On June 9, 2021, the respondent filed the present motion to dismiss the petition for failure to respond to discovery. The motion was served on the petitioner via mail and email on June 9, 2021. The petitioner filed opposition to the respondent's motion on June 23, 2021. The respondent filed a reply brief in further support of their motion on June 29, 2021, and the record on the motion closed on that date.[1]

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

A summary of the pertinent facts is undisputed and largely procedural, and I FIND the following FACTS:

1. The petitioner's motion for emergent relief was denied on April 6, 2021. Following denial of his emergent relief motion, both parties to this matter participated in a telephone prehearing conference with the undersigned on May 6, 2021.

2. During the telephone prehearing conference on May 6, 2021, the parties agreed to a schedule for prehearing discovery which was subsequently established by the undersigned pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4.

   a. Under that schedule, the respondent was to serve discovery requests on the petitioner no later than May 7, 2021, and the petitioner was to respond to those requests no later than May 21, 2021. (Madden Cert. at ¶ 3.)

   b. Consistent with this schedule, the respondent served discovery requests on the petitioner on May 7, 2021. (Id. at ¶ 4. See also id. at Ex. 2.)

3. The respondent did not receive a response to its discovery requests from the petitioner. (Id. at ¶ 5.) Counsel for the respondent contacted the petitioner on May 25, 2021, to address the petitioner's failure to respond to the outstanding discovery requests. (Id. at ¶ 6. See also id. at Ex. 3.)

4. The respondent is not delinquent in any of its discovery obligations. (Id. at ¶ 15.)

[1] Although, pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.2(b), the petitioner's response was due no later than ten days after receipt of the moving papers, which would have been June 21, 2021, the respondent did not object to receipt of the petitioner's untimely response to their motion, and filed a reply brief in further support of their motion on June 29, 2021.

5. On May 25, 2021, the respondent contacted the undersigned to request a telephone conference to address the discovery issues pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4(d). (Id. at Ex. 1.)

6. On June 4, 2021, a telephonic status conference was held with the parties. (Id. at ¶ 10.) During that conference, the petitioner did not contest the claim that he had not responded to the respondent's discovery requests nor did he file any timely objections to the respondent's discovery requests with the OAL pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4(d). The petitioner indicated that he did not wish to further pursue this matter and provide discovery responses to the respondent, however, he did not want to withdraw the matter either. (See Pet. Resp. (stating "at this time there is really no point in moving forward with this matter").) On that conference, the respondent indicated that it wanted to file a motion to dismiss the petition due to the petitioner's failure to respond to discovery. (Madden Cert. at ¶ 11.)

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Discovery requests must be responded to within fifteen days of notice and service, and discovery must be completed no later than ten days before the first scheduled evidentiary hearing or by such date ordered by the judge. N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4. Here, the respondent served discovery requests on the petitioner on May 7, 2021. (Madden Cert. at ¶ 4. See also id. at Ex. 2.) It is factually undisputed that these requests were not responded to in a timely manner, which is the basis for the present motion. While the petitioner, in his response brief, attempts to characterize the respondent's discovery requests as "a mountain of discovery which had nothing at all to do with proving or denying whether [the respondent was] right or wrong" (Pet. Resp. Br.), it is undisputed that the petitioner did not file any timely objections to the respondent's discovery requests within ten days of receiving them as required by N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.4(d). To raise such vague objections in their response to the present motion is untimely and justifies denying the petitioner's present objections to the respondent's discovery requests. Id.

An ALJ may dismiss a petition for a party's failure to comply with procedural requirements under N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.14(a)(1). J.G. v. Paramus Bd. of Educ., 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 30030, *9 (D.N.J. April 11, 2008). While dismissal should be imposed sparingly in the case of discovery rule violations, it is nonetheless appropriate where a party's "ability to defend his case is seriously impaired." Zaccardi v. Becker, 88 N.J. 245, 253 (1982). In his petition seeking emergent relief on this matter, the petitioner made a number of factual assertions including a claim that there were other students in J.L.'s class who committed offenses "much more severe and worse" but were allowed to join the school's honor societies. (Id.) The petition further asserted that the respondent's actions placed J.L.'s "total academic future in peril," as J.L. was seeking "to go to an Ivy League School or other prestigious university next year" and that if the respondent's actions were not reversed, the outcome would "affect that as well as future scholarships, internships, jobs, etc." (Pet. Statement of Facts to Accompany Pro Se Petition of Appeal. See also Madden Cert. at ¶ 18.) The petition also assures that the petitioner "can supply documentation to back up" the claims made in the petition. (Id.) Among the discovery sought by the respondent was information regarding the petitioner's college admissions and scholarships applied to. (Id.) In the absence of the petitioner's discovery responses, the respondent claims that it "cannot adequately address the factual bases of the [petitioner's p]etition." (Id. at ¶ 19.) The respondent further avers that it is "prejudiced by [the p]etitioner's failure to respond to discovery. (Id. at ¶ 17.)

As the underlying charges of plagiarism and violation of the school's Code of Conduct and Honor Code are not factually disputed in this matter (see April 6, 2021, Order Dismissing Petition for Emergent Relief at 5), the crux of the petitioner's case is that the respondent's actions in response to these violations were "inconsistent, discriminatory, and FAR TOO EXCESSIVE." (Pet. Statement of Facts to Accompany Pro Se Petition of Appeal (emphasis in original).) The discovery being sought in this matter is directly relevant to the petitioner's claims and the respondent's ability to form a defense to those claims. It is uncontested that the petitioner failed to answer the respondent's discovery requests and, based upon the petitioner's representations during the June 4, 2021, telephonic status conference, and in his subsequent response to the respondent's motion, it is clear that the petitioner's failure to respond to the respondent's discovery requests is not a mere oversight or neglect. Savoia v. F.W. Woolworth Co., 88 N.J. Super. 153, 160 (App. Div. 1965). (See Pet. Response Br. (acknowledging failure to respond to "a mountain of discovery" from respondent and that "a dismissal may be warranted" but seeking dismissal of matter without prejudice).) I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the petitioner has effectively abandoned his claim in this matter. Such dilatory conduct from the party who initiated the claim as an emergent matter constitutes behavior that "thwarts persistent efforts to obtain the necessary facts" and justifies a claim's dismissal with prejudice. Abtrax Pharmaceuticals, Inc. v. Elkins-Sinn, Inc., 139 N.J. 499, 515-16 (1995). I FURTHER CONCLUDE that the petitioner's refusal to provide discovery in this matter impairs the respondent's ability to properly prepare and present a defense to the petitioner's claims, and such conduct justifies dismissal of the petition due to these procedural deficiencies. J.G., 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 30030 at *11. See also H.F. obo Minor Child D.F. v. Bd. of Educ. of Teaneck, Bergen County, EDU 20234-15, Initial Decision, (September 28, 2016) http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, the respondent's motion to dismiss the petition is GRANTED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

ARBITRATION PROCEEDINGS
BEFORE ARBITRATOR GARY T. KENDELLEN

In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing Gregory Janicki School District of the Township of Washington, Gloucester County Agency Docket No. 52-2/20	ARBITRATOR'S OPINION AND AWARD

COUNSEL:

For the District	Joseph F. Betley, Esq. Capehart Scatchard, P.A.
For Gregory Janicki:	Matthew B. Wieliczko, Esq. Zeller & Wieliczko, LLP

INTRODUCTION

On February 3, 2020, the School District of the Town of Washington, Gloucester County, ("the District") served Gregory Janicki ("Respondent" or "Janicki"), a tenured Music Teacher in the District at its High School, with Tenure Charges ("Tenure Charges" or "T/C") and a Statement of Evidence alleging eight counts of unbecoming conduct and other just cause in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. On February 21, 2020, Janicki served upon the District a Written Response to the Tenure Charges, a certified Statement of Position and a certified Statement of Evidence. On February 26, 2020, the District filed with the Commissioner a Certificate of Determination crediting the evidence in support of the Tenure Charges and suspended Janicki for 120 days with pay in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.[1] On March 12, 2020, Janicki filed with the Commissioner a Written Response to the Tenure Charges, along with his Statement of Position and Statement of Evidence.

On March 20, 2020, the Undersigned contacted counsel for the District and Janicki and advised that on March 17, he had been referred the instant matter by the Commissioner's Office of Controversies and Disputes ("Office") and convened a conference call on April 3 to discuss procedural issues including the impact of New Jersey Governor Phil Murphy's executive stay at home order due to the Covid-19 health crisis.

[1] Since the expiration of Janicki's 120 day suspension with pay, he has been and continues to be on a suspension with pay.

On July 24, 2020, Janicki produced his responses to the District's Interrogatories and served his Request to the District for Answers to his Interrogatories.

Various pre-hearing motions were filed by the parties, including motions by Janicki to preclude the District from presenting Washington Township Education Association ("WTEA") representatives as witnesses; to preclude the District from supplementing its evidence with an April 1, 2020 grievance arbitration decision by Arbitrator Arnold H. Zudick ("Zudick Award");[2] and to quash the balance of a subpoena issued by the District seeking certain evidence from Janicki, including recordings made by him.

On August 24, 2020, the Undersigned issued his Determinations of these Pre-Hearing Disputes. The parties and the Undersigned also returned to their attempts to schedule Hearing dates in the context of Covid-19 and its impact upon the Hearing process. During these efforts, Janicki sought to have the proceeding delayed until such time as an in-person hearing could be safely conducted and objected to remote Hearings; on September 25, 2020 the Undersigned issued his Response and Determinations to Reject Janicki's Demand to Hold In-Person Hearings. Thereafter, Janicki sought relief under the Family First Coronavirus Response Act (FFCRA) as to the scheduling of particular Hearing dates; on October 14, 2020, the Undersigned issued his Determination Re: Janicki's employee status under the FFCRA.

Hearings

On October 16 and 19, 2020, the Undersigned issued Orders and Notices of Hearings by Zoom remote videoconference.

On October 20, 2020, Janicki produced his List of Potential Witnesses with Summaries of their Testimony, along with evidence that may be relied upon at the time of the arbitration hearing.[3]

[2] I.e., after the Commissioner had forwarded this matter for arbitration and the District had forwarded Janicki its Statement of Evidence.

[3] Produced separately via email on October 23, 2020 to District counsel and the Arbitrator, but within the 10 day timeframe as provided by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), was the audio file of the January 21, 2020 voicemail message of Superintendent Bollendorf to Respondent Janicki.

Thereafter, Janicki sought that the Zoom Hearings be public and the District asserted the preclusive nature of the Zudick Award, subjects that on December 1, 2020, the Undersigned resolved in his Determinations thereon.

Following the Covid-19 related delays, and because of Covid-19, remote Hearings were held via Zoom on November 6, 12, and 13 and December 2, 9, 11, and 15, 2020. Thereafter, additional scheduled hearing dates of January 21 and 28, 2021 were adjourned because the District filed Amended/Supplemental Tenure Charges.

The Amended/Supplemental Tenure Charges

On December 21, 2020, the District certified Amended/Supplemental Tenure Charges, and transmitted them to the Commissioner. On December 28, the Commissioner's Office issued a Notice of Filing of Amended/Supplemental Tenure Charges in Agency Dkt. No. 256-12/20 ("A/STC 256-12/20"). On January 11, 2021, Janicki filed a Motion to Dismiss the Amended/Supplemental Tenure Charges (MTD) in A/STC 256-12/20 and on February 8, the Office referred the amended charges and pending MTD in A/STC 256-12/20 to the Undersigned; it further advised the parties that following receipt of Janicki's MTD in A/STC 256-12/20, the District's filing in A/STC 256-12/20 had been reviewed and deemed sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary, subject to the Undersigned's decision on the MTD therein. On March 25, 2021, the Undersigned granted Janicki's MTD in A/STC 256-12/20.

Court Order

On February 12, 2021, based upon an earlier filing by the District of a Verified Complaint and Order to Show Cause in the Superior Court of New Jersey Chancery Division,[4] Judge Robert Becker, J.S.C., issued an Order to Confirm Arbitration Award (Court Order) in which the Judge (1) granted the District's application to confirm the Zudick Award; (2) precluded Janicki from repudiating, rejecting, disclaiming, renouncing, contesting and/or challenging the factual findings, credible findings and determination of just cause in Arbitrator Zudick's Award, either through direct examination, cross examination, offering of documentary evidence or arguments of counsel, in the pending tenure arbitration hearing or any other subsequent administrative, judicial or arbitration proceedings;[5] and (3) ordered the Undersigned to give preclusive effect to the Zudick Award in the instant proceeding.

Resumed Hearings in T/C 52-2/20 and Post-Hearing

The tenure hearings in T/C 52-2/20 resumed on May 12, 2021 for presentation of Janicki's case therein, at which Hearing he reported his decision not to testify. Accordingly, the Hearing herein closed.

On May 27, 2021, the Undersigned issued his Determination of the parties' dispute regarding tape recordings assertedly made by Mr. Janicki that the District had subpoenaed.

Briefs were submitted by the parties on July 2, 2021.[6] Therein, the District asserts that Janicki was guilty of all of the Tenure Charges it filed against him and should be dismissed, whereas Janicki asserts that the Tenure Charges must be dismissed because the District failed to meet its burden of proving just cause for any discipline and, even if the underlying allegations were proven, the penalty of removal from his tenured position was disproportionate to the alleged conduct.

INITIAL CONSIDERATIONS

District Contentions

Impact of Court Order

As the Undersigned reported in Fn. 5, the District accompanied its brief with Appendix I in which it listed "Items to be stricken from the record pursuant to Judge Becker's February 16, 2021, Order." Accordingly, in the District's brief, it first asserts that based upon the Court Order, significant portions of the record, particularly the cross examination of certain Board witnesses,

[5] In connection therewith, the District accompanied its brief herein with an Appendix I in which it listed "Items to be stricken from the record pursuant to Judge Becker's February 16, 2021 Order."

[6] On July 27, 2021, the District submitted a Reply Letter in which it provided a report on a post-brief case, Kluge v. Brownsburg Community School Corp., 2021 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 129122 (D. In., July 12, 2021) ("Kluge"), that it considers relevant to its tenure charges. The District also requested the Undersigned's leave to offer a response to three points of concern it had with Janicki's brief and Statement of Material Facts.
On July 28, Janicki objected to the District's Reply Letter, arguing that it should not be considered in that the parties' agreement reached at Hearing and the Undersigned's directive issued concerning post hearing submissions were that the issue of reply briefs was to be addressed by the Undersigned, if requested by the parties and deemed necessary by him, whereas the District's Reply Letter brief was unilaterally submitted without leave.
The Undersigned finds, in accord with Janicki's argument, that the District's Reply Letter was submitted in the absence of the District obtaining the Undersigned's determination that the parties would be permitted to file post-brief replies. Accordingly, the District's Reply Letter will not be considered herein.

and certain documents offered into evidence or otherwise filed by Janicki, must be stricken in that he is prohibited from "repudiating, rejecting, disclaiming, renouncing, contesting and/or challenging the factual findings, credible findings" rendered in the Zudick Award. Therefore, the District further asserts, Janicki cannot challenge the factual underpinnings of his own prior discipline and the findings made by arbitrator Zudick when that discipline was put before him, nor can Janicki's counsel conduct much of the cross examination in which he engaged because they were all prohibited under the Court Order. As a result, the District argues, the Undersigned must give those portions of the cross examination, and of the evidence, pleadings, and exhibits, no probative weight and strike them from the record, as well as give preclusive effect to the Zudick Award. To wit, the District notes, Janicki's counsel devoted significant portions of his cross examination on issues covered in the Zudick Award, including the March 2016 reprimand letter issued by Business Administrator/Board Secretary Margaret Meehan; Janicki's April, 2019 failure to attend the Gay Straight Alliance[7] ("GSA") faculty meetings; and the live-shooter (lock-down) drill in June 2019 during the testimony of Principal Jonathan Strout, Assistant Principal John Savarese and Superintendent Joseph Bollendorf - all of which were matters already resolved against Janicki in the Zudick Award. In addition, the District further argues, Janicki attempted to put documents into the record that he believed vindicated his actions and made statements in his responses to the Tenure Charges that contradict findings in the Zudick Award, all of which the Court Order has since prohibited him from doing. As a result, the District asserts, the Undersigned must give those portions of the cross examination, and of the evidence, pleadings, and exhibits, no probative weight and strike them from the record.

Impact of Janicki's Refusal to Testify

The District next argues that Janicki's refusal to testify or present any witnesses on his behalf in support of his case is fatal to his defense to the Tenure Charges or to any claim to a lesser penalty. The District points out that Janicki acknowledged under oath on the last day of the hearing that he understood that the Undersigned will make credibility judgments and assess the testimony of the District's witnesses and proofs without having the ability to hear from Janicki. Accordingly, the District argues, in circumstances in which the employee and/or union has called no witnesses in defense, arbitrators have upheld the disciplinary action based on the employer simply making out a prima facie case to support the discipline, shifting the burden to the accused employee to rebut the employer's proofs. If unsuccessful in this rebuttal, the disciplined employee must accept the consequences. Here, the District argues, Janicki knowingly accepted the risk of his decision.

Accordingly, the District argues, given the decision by Janicki not to testify in his own defense nor present any witnesses in rebuttal of the Tenure Charges, as well as the appropriateness of the penalty, the documentary evidence and testimony presented by the Board's witnesses are unrefuted and establish just cause for Mr. Janicki's termination as a tenured teacher. The District asserts it has not only met its burden of establishing a prima facie case in support of all eight of the Tenure Charges by a preponderance of the evidence, but has also shown that Janicki has continuously engaged in unprofessional and discriminatory behavior and, moreover, shows no evidence of interest of changing his intolerant attitude toward gay and transgender students and colleagues.

The District next argues that Janicki's failure to present testimony in support of his case has a further negative impact on his defense: there is nothing in the record to support the assertions and denials that Mr. Janicki made in his Statement of Position in response to the Tenure Charges, and in his Statement of Evidence with exhibits, and that the entire Statement of Position is inadmissible hearsay, since the representations are coming from a piece of paper and not from a witness testifying at the hearing with the opportunity to judge credibility, and whose perception, memory and truthfulness as to the document cannot be tested and who has not offered testimony about the documents he provided as attachments to his Statement of Evidence; more importantly, has provided it no opportunity to cross examine him about said documents and the denials asserted therein. Further, the District argues, absent any testimony from Janicki, the claims in his Statement of Position amount to nothing more than bald assertions wholly lacking in probative value, denials the District asserts that should not be considered by the Undersigned.

Janicki's Comments

The Undersigned notes that in the Statement of Facts and the Brief filed by counsel for Janicki, much reliance was placed upon, inter alia (1) disputing events and testimony relating to matters covered by the Zudick Award and (2) Janicki's statements in his February 21, 2020 sworn Statement of Position and sworn Statement of Evidence with related Exhibits.

In addition, the Undersigned further notes, in the Brief filed by counsel for Janicki, he noted that the Court Order arose from a proceeding in which the WTEA and he had prepared and filed a motion to dismiss the District's Verified Complaint and Order to Show Cause and after oral argument by the parties, after which a motion for reconsideration of that Order was filed by counsel, that was denied. As recited by counsel for Janicki, the Court Order precluded Janicki from challenging the factual findings, credibility determinations, and determination of just cause of the Zudick Award.

Zudick Award

In Arbitrator Zudick's Award, he found that the District had just cause to withhold Janicki's 2019 increment because Janicki:

- was disciplined in Ms. Meehan's March 2016 letter of reprimand for conduct that included animus towards LGBTQ[8] students;
- skipped the April 2, 2019 faculty meeting that included a presentation from the GSA student club on LGBTQ topics;
- walked out of a make-up meeting on April 4, 2019, for the portion of the meeting delivered by an administrator that dealt with a LGBTQ presentation;
- showed lack of respect for LGBTQ rights in the April 2019 events that was directly related to Ms. Meehan's March 2016 letter of reprimand and in sync with progressive discipline;
- ignored Mr. Bollendorf's request to submit a written acknowledgement of his obligation as a public school teacher to attend all training sessions, no matter what the content, and respect LGBTQ students and staff; and
- was untruthful with Mr. Strout and Mr. Saverase regarding his instructions to his students during the lockdown drill on June 6, 2019

Arbitrator Zudick also found Mr. Bollendorf and Mr. Strout to be credible witnesses under their direct and cross examinations.

Discussion and Determination

The Undersigned finds valid the District's arguments that, as a consequence of the Court's Order to Janicki, he was required to not challenge the factual underpinnings of his prior discipline and the findings made when that discipline was put before arbitrator Zudick, as well as not make use of the related cross examination herein, because both were prohibited under the Court Order which clearly prohibited him from "repudiating, rejecting, disclaiming, renouncing, contesting and/or challenging the factual and credible findings in the Zudick Award." In that regard, the Undersigned notes that the Court Order arose from a proceeding in which Janicki participated and argued and, following the issuance of the Order, in which he filed a motion for reconsideration of the Order, that was denied.

In those regards, the Undersigned further notes that in Janicki's Brief, he notes all of the above-described information without offering a position or argument as to the impact of the Order upon this proceeding. Therefore, in the absence of any argument by Janicki against the application of the Order in the manner sought by the District, the Undersigned grants the District's request to apply the Court Order to the record evidence herein. As a result, the Undersigned shall not consider any materials presented in Janicki's Statement of Facts and his Brief as to matters determined in the Zudick Award.

In addition, as to other issues raised in Janicki's Statement of Facts and his Brief, in view of his decision not to testify herein, the Undersigned shall consider the materials presented in his Statement of Facts and his Brief that rely upon his Statement of Evidence or his Statement of Position from the perspectives of the absence of testimony by him and the facts that there is nothing in the record evidence herein to support the assertions, denials or other pronouncements in his Statement of Position in response to the Tenure Charges or in his Statement of Evidence with exhibits and that his submissions therein have not been tested by his testimony as to such or by the District having an opportunity to cross examine him regarding his testimony or his submissions.

THE TENURE CHARGES

In the District's brief, it summarized its eight Tenure Charges[9] as follows:

> CHARGE 1 - DISTRIBUTION OF DOCUMENT #3[10] IN THE WORKPLACE ON OCTOBER 15, 2019
>
> CHARGE 2 - EXHIBITING A CONTINUOUS PATTERN OF INTOLERANCE AND/OR ANTAGONISM TOWARD INDIVIDUALS BASED ON THEIR SEXUAL ORIENTATION AS WELL AS GENDER IDENTITY OR EXPRESSION
> CHARGE 3 - INTENTIONAL MISREPRESENTATIONS TO ADMINISTRATION DURING INVESTIGATIVE INTERVIEWS
>
> CHARGE 4 - DEFIANCE AND NON-COOPERATION IN LEGITIMATE ADMINISTRATIVE INVESTIGATIONS
>
> CHARGE 5 - ILLEGAL TAPING OF PRIVATE CONVERSATION AMONG ADMINISTRATION AND COUNSEL
>
> CHARGE 6 - RETALIATION AND INTIMIDATION OF WITNESSES
>
> CHARGE 7 - POSTING RELIGIOUS REFERENCES IN LESSON PLANS
>
> CHARGE 8 - COMMENTS TO STUDENTS

TENURE CHARGES 1 AND 2

District's Evidence and Arguments

The District describes its Charge 1 as alleging that on October 15, 2019, Janicki surreptitiously and without authority placed Document #3 in the 11-12 Main Office of the High School in which he taught, next to the frequently visited and highly accessible teacher sign in sheet, creating the false impression that it was an official District handout.

Charge 2 incorporates the events set forth in Charge 1, the District reports, as part of an alleged continuous pattern of intolerance and/or antagonism toward the rights of LGBTQ individuals by Janicki, combined with not being able to separate his personal religious beliefs from his duties as a public school teacher. The District notes further that Charge 2 also references the [9] The District, of course, described each Charge more fully, along with the District's Preliminary Statement and Statement of Facts in support of Tenure Charges, when it provided the Tenure Charges to Janicki and forwarded them to the Commissioner.

[10] Document #3 is a document regarding which Janicki denied involvement throughout these proceedings. As to the document itself, the parties stipulated to its conflict with the District's policies and the inappropriateness of both its and presence and its title within the District's premises, as well as to the exclusion from this proceeding of its title because of its provocative nature. Accordingly, the document was designated as Document #3 throughout this proceeding and will be solely described as such by the Undersigned herein.

previous disciplinary actions taken against Janicki - the March 2016 Meehan letter of reprimand and the increment withholding based in part on not attending the April 2019 GSA faculty meetings dealing with LGBTQ issues, as well as his failure to reaffirm in writing his commitment to attend mandatory training on LGBTQ issues, as described in the Zudick Award, upon which the District relies as support for its assertions.

In that regard, the District notes the Zudick Award's description of Janicki being disciplined in Ms. Meehan's March 2016 letter of reprimand for conduct that included animus towards LGBTQ students; skipping the April 2, 2019 faculty meeting that included a presentation from the GSA student club on LGBTQ topics; walking out of a make-up meeting on April 4, 2019, for the portion of the meeting delivered by an administrator that dealt with the LGBTQ presentation; and ignoring Mr. Bollendorf's request to submit a written acknowledgement of his obligation as a public school teacher to attend all training sessions, no matter what the content, and respect LGBTQ students and staff, all of which Arbitrator Zudick found to be a direct line in progressive discipline and that Janicki did not "get the message" regarding his professional duty to respect the LGBTQ rights of students and staff.

The District asserts that in October 2019, just months after Janicki's increment withholding was put in place, he answered Arbitrator Zudick's question - whether Janicki had gotten the message - when his actions centered on Document #3, and other material it asserts he introduced into the workplace, climaxed his pattern and caused the last step of progressive discipline in the Tenure Charges.

Tenure Charge 1

Regarding Charge 1, the District asserts that it has proven it by a preponderance of the evidence through the testimony of High School Executive Principal Jonathan Strout, Business Administrator/District Affirmative Action Officer Janine Wechter, and Superintendent Joseph Bollendorf, as well as the surveillance videos of the High School 11-12 Main Office incident on October 15-16, 2019, which show that Document #3 was placed on the counter by Janicki at 2:37 pm on October 15 and that on the morning of October 16, starting at 6:13 am, when staff started to come in, Document #3 was uncovered. The District asserts that the videos depict a premeditated, deliberate plan by Janicki to furtively leave copies of the Document #3 article in the 11-12 Main Office for staff to see and hopefully take and mistakenly think it was an official District communication.

In that regard, the District asserts, first, that Janicki's explanation to Mr. Strout that he, Janicki, saw Document #3 in the faculty room and it was left there by the psychology department, after first claiming he never saw the document before, was false on its face - there is no psychology department nor any psychology teachers at the High School.

Second, the District asserts, when Janicki first entered the 11-12 Main Office, he initially looked around to see that no one else was there, whereas he had no reason to put the stack/folders of papers in his hands down on the counter to check his mailbox, since he could easily see he had no mail from where he was at the counter, a distance of several feet, and manipulated his fingers and eyes as he carefully picked up the stack and left the copies of Document #3 on the counter from the only papers in his hands that are loose and not in a manila folder.

The District cites Mr. Strout's testimony as to his conclusion, after viewing the video, that Janicki's actions were intentional:

> I believe they were left intentionally for a number of reasons. You know, I'm not sure why he - when you come in, you can see, he looks at the mailboxes, he never actually took anything out of his mailbox, so why he put stuff down to go over to the mailbox is peculiar.
> And when he comes back and he kind of looks down to see that he's pulling everything up that he had placed down and he turns and he walks out with everything but the stack of documents that was underneath the folders that he had.

The District further asserts that the timing of the appearance of Document #3, as well as its location, further supports the finding of calculated design: as Mr. Strout noted in his testimony, minutes before Janicki left Document #3 in the 11-12 main office, the High School finished a professional development session on the District's Student Transgender policy that Document #3 undermines. Mr. Strout further explained that putting copies of Document #3 next to the teacher sign-in sheet also was intended to spread Janicki's misinformation to as many staff members as possible:

> It's placed in the most highly visible area, an area that pretty much every staff member walks by that morning. And one could reasonably and most appropriately assume that documents that are left there are really approved by administration; they're documents that, you know, we want our staff to take and they're placed there because of their high level of importance. Teachers, when they enter, they sign in in a book. It was left directly next to the book in plain sight of anyone who signs in each day and signs out each day, it was left in that exact spot. A far more visible place, quite frankly, than documents that were left in the faculty lounge where people may or may not enter. This particular location was the primary spot that everybody has to cross paths with at the start of the day.

The District next notes that the video depicts several staff members unknowingly picking up Document #3 in the normal course of their professional duties, as if it were something left by administration, and Mr. Strout's testimony in which he notes that several staff members at the High School were part of the LGBTQ community and were disturbed, upset and crying upon being exposed to Document #3, which was corroborated by the testimony of Teacher Kristen Meares regarding her experience finding Document #3 that morning, which she said disturbed and upset her, leading her to research the American College of Pediatricians listed thereon as the source, as well as the testimony of Teacher Brittany Mason as to her being very upset in finding the document in the Main Office, all within the context of her personal experiences as a teacher of Humanitarian Studies and Social Justice and having a sister who is part of the LGBTQ community and of knowing students who do not identify with their gender assigned at birth.

The District also notes Mr. Strout's testimony that it did not matter if no student saw Document #3 - the damage to the school environment was paramount and did not make any difference in determining Tenure Charges:

> Even if they weren't in the LGBTQ, just the level of just, you know, tearing down the climate and culture of the school, the intent to do that was the issue. And it didn't matterifa student saw it. It doesn't matter ifanybody saw it, really, because it had the potential to upset and offend people, create a hostile work environment, and staff members did see it, and they were upset.

Mr. Strout further testified that he believed that the repeated unprofessional behavior from Janicki was beyond remedial measures:

> The concern was with the nonstop intent to be insubordinate and act in a way that was completely unprofessional and unacceptable. I just - I had enough. I just couldn't continue to tolerate this anymore. Well, it's yet another example, quite frankly, of insubordination for Mr. Janicki to come and leave a document minutes after I had just delivered required professional development and a review of a Board-approved policy. And to leave it in the manner in which he left it was a purposeful attempt to completely undermine the work that we're doing and the requirements of my position as a leader in the building. I mean content aside, he specifically left something minutes after professional development that was exactly contrary to the professional development that was delivered and left it in a place where it was highly visible and could be perceived by whoever picked it up to have been supported and approved and left there by administration. It was absurd.

The District next notes that Mr. Bollendorf directed Administrator/District Affirmative Action Officer Janine Wechter ("AA Officer") to investigate the incident because the sensitive nature of the documents deserved the attention of the AA Officer. Ms. Wechter issued a December 20, 2019 Investigation and Recommendation ("Wechter Report") wherein she outlined the second interview of Janicki held on November 13, 2019 in which he responded substantively to the allegations of leaving Document #3 in the 11-12 Main Office and her initially asking him if it was still his position that he did not leave Document #3, as he had previously told Mr. Strout and Janicki's Yes response, at which point Gerald Taraschi, the WTEA President, interjected his own question of whether it was true that Mr. Janicki also previously told Mr. Strout that Mr. Janicki had never seen Document #3 before, to which Mr. Janicki also said Yes. Following these two confirmations, Ms. Wechter showed Janicki the video; she testified he replied:

> And then Mr. Janicki said that he could - he said he didn't leave them, but then he said I guess I could have picked them up by mistake in the faculty room and then mistakenly left them on the counter. I don't know.

Ms. Wechter, who watched the video several times, testified her view was that Janicki's explanation was a lie:

> I just felt that if you watch the video - like I said, I watched it a number of times. I think that his actions are deliberate. I think that they were thought out. You know, and the document was left during a time where the school had announced LGBTQ Coming Out Day. There was recently a faculty meeting about a new transgender policy that, you know, we had to put into place. In the past, my investigation showed that he wasn't truthful when he was asked questions. He, you know, was uncooperative.

> Because at - well, as he enters the main office, he's kind of looking around and even looks up at the camera. And he doesn't actually sign out of the sign-in book. He puts down his - the documents next - or his folders he was carrying next to the sign-out book, but leans over to - takes a couple of steps over to check his mailbox. There's nothing in his mailbox. And then when he comes back to get his folders, he kind of looks to the side and picks up everything but the papers that were left.

The District notes that in the Wechter Report, Ms. Wechter recited her conclusions:

> I find Mr. Janicki's initial denial to Mr. Strout of leaving Document 3 in the 11/12 office, and his subsequent explanation to me that he may have inadvertently picked up the material and then inadvertently left it behind, to be totally incredible. I also find that Mr. Janicki's initial refusal to answer my questions during the November 4, 2019 interview Mr. Janicki is in violation of District Policy 3281, Inappropriate Staff Conduct. My reasoning is as follows:
> It must be noted that several days prior to [Document #3] being introduced into the 11/12 main office, and Document I and Document 2 were found in the faculty room, the High School publicly acknowledged "LGBTQ Coming Out Day." Subsequent to this announcement, Mr. Janicki is seen on the video from the security camera in the main office entering the office with a stack of folders under his arm. He first looks around the office. He places the folders next to the staff sign in sheet on the counter and then moves off camera to the left, presumably to check his mailbox. The first question I have is why Mr. Janicki had to put the stack of papers down on the counter to check his mailbox?
> Putting that aside, Mr. Janicki returns to the counter after a few seconds to pick up the stack of papers. As he does this he leans over and looks at the side of his pile, and then inserts his hand toward the bottom of the stack of folders and documents so that he ends up leaving behind the document that the staff members uncovered the next day. Based on the above, Mr. Janicki's actions were deliberate and premeditated, and may have been done in reaction to the High School's celebration of LGBTQ Coming Out Day. No matter what the motive, Mr. Janicki put the stack of papers on the counter with the specific intent to leave behind the material from [Document #3]. His initial defensive posture with Mr. Strout, his denial, and then his story that this was all a mistake, are not worthy of belief.

The District argues that the Wechter Report and Ms. Wechter's testimony establish that Janicki violated numerous District policies: 1) Policy 5756, Transgender Students; 2) Policy 1140, Affirmative Action Program; 3) Policy 1530, Equal Employment Opportunities; 4) Policy 3281, Inappropriate Staff Conduct; 5) Policy 3211, Code of Ethics; and 6) New Jersey Department of Education, Transgender Student Guidance for School Districts.

In the Wechter Report, Ms. Wechter recommended to Mr. Bollendorf that he consider disciplinary action up to and including Tenure Charges based upon Janicki's insubordination, untruthfulness and creation of a hostile work environment and violation of the affirmative action policy and other District policies, citing repeated violations of its policies and New Jersey statutes protecting gay and transgender students, noting that the March 2016 Meehan letter of reprimand and the increment withholding in 2019 were partially based on not attending the LGBTQ faculty meeting presentation, as well as the offensiveness of the message from Document #3:

> Well, I thought, first and foremost, that the purpose of the investigation was, you know, that incident because it was reported by staff members who were upset. So, I did determine that he did leave the document on the counter and where he left it was - it was left next to a staff sign-in book so it was in a place where staff would see it. And, also, as you could tell from the video, in that area on the counter, that's where administration tends to leave things out that they want the staff to see or pick up, you know, especially if it's, you know, a half-day schedule or an assembly schedule something that they would need for that day. So, it was left out as if, you know, it could be perceived as District documents that were left out.
> And type of document that was left out, in - in my opinion, could have left the District open for somebody filing a hostile work environment claim or - and then again staff members were rightfully upset and - and that's what basically what led to the investigation.

The District notes that Mr. Bollendorf echoed these concerns:

> Because anybody who found this, not knowing where it came from, finding it on the counter of our 11-12 Main Office could have incorrectly deduced that it came from the District, and certainly had the very strong potential for creating a hostile work environment, particularly by those that are protected - a protected class in this area, and/or those that are extremely sensitive to those in that protected class.

Mr. Bollendorf accepted the Wechter Report and testified that as a previously long-term Principal of the High School who knew the 11-12 Office well, he had concluded that Janicki had an intentional design to leave the papers in that office:

> The mailbox location to the right where you walk into that room has a large counter right below it. Some papers are kept on that counter, things like professional day forms,you know, personal day forms. There is a lot of room on that counter. The notion that somebody who was simply coming in to do a visual inspection of their mailbox having to take a pile of papers > and lay them on the counter across from the mailbox next to the sign-in book to me defies logic. If you're doing a visual inspection, there is no reason to put the papers down at all. You walk over, you look in your mailbox. If something is there that you need to reach in and get, there is a counter directly there right under your mailbox. You set the papers down, you reach your hand in, you take your mail, you pick up your papers and you go. I think it was very calculated that those papers were left on that counter directly next to the sign-in book where they would be left. And I think it's also apparent when he picks the papers back up, that he visually inspects what he's picking up and visually sees what was left behind. There is no doubt in my mind that was done intentionally.

Mr. Bollendorf met with Janicki on January 16, 2020 and informed him of the findings in the Wechter Report and gave him the opportunity to explain his actions, but reports that Janicki sat in silence and did not speak.

Tenure Charge 2

As to Tenure Charge 2, the District asserts that Janicki was motivated to continue his pattern of intolerance and antagonism toward LGBTQ issues when he left Document #3. In that regard, the District notes that Arbitrator Zudick described Janicki's discipline in Ms. Meehan's March 2016 letter of reprimand for conduct that included animus towards LGBTQ students; skipping the April 2, 2019 faculty meeting that included a presentation from the GSA student club on LGBTQ topics; walking out of a make-up meeting on April 4, 2019, for the portion of the meeting delivered by an administrator that dealt with the LGBTQ presentation; and ignoring Mr. Bollendorf's request to submit a written acknowledgement of his obligation as a public school teacher to attend all training sessions, no matter what the content, and respect LGBTQ students and staff, all of which Arbitrator Zudick found to be a direct line in progressive discipline and to show that Janicki did not "get the message" regarding his professional duty to respect the LGBTQ rights of students and staff.

The District also notes that Janicki's October 2019 Document #3 actions followed only months after his increment withholding and, in its view, answered Arbitrator Zudick's question - whether Janicki had gotten the message - when his actions regarding Document #3 served as a climax of his earlier pattern of conduct and caused the last step of progressive discipline in the Tenure Charges.

Janicki's Evidence and Arguments

Janicki asserts that the District failed to establish through the testimony of its witnesses and proofs that he engaged in conduct unbecoming a teacher on October 15, 2019 in that neither the District's witness testimony nor the video evidence presented supported the District's allegation that Janicki "distributed" the document or that he purposely left the document in the 11-12 Main Office at the High School to create the false impression that it was an official District handout.

In those regards, Janicki argues that it is uncontested that no District witnesses testified that they thought it was an "official District handout" and there was no testimony to support that the alleged leaving of the article in the Main Office caused any significant disruption to school operations. To the contrary, Mr. Strout testified that the security video depicted only a few staff members taking a copy of the article at issue within the one hour and thirty nine minutes the documents were in the Main Office and both he and Mr. Bollendorf testified that there was no evidence of any students seeing the document, nor was the document distributed to staff, other than the few individuals who picked it up. Further, Janicki notes, Ms. Mears testified that the stack of papers looked like a pile of copies someone had made and inadvertently left behind and Ms. Mason that there is not a past practice of documents or notices from the principal being left next to the sign-in sheet, that it is "not a place where there would be important information." Ms. Mason testified "[T]ypically, there's no documents next to the sign-in sheet," and when asked if the counter is a normal place where official documents or notices from the principal or School District are left, she responded, "Not typically. usually we get either an email...it's distributed through some type of portal like that. So, it's typically not a place where there would be important information."

Janicki further notes that Mr. Taraschi testified, with regard to Document 3, that "to my knowledge at least, [the District] never conclusively proved that it was left there by Mr. Janicki," based upon Mr. Taraschi's review of the video. Janicki also notes that Ms. Wechter testified that if it was a mistake that Document 3 was inadvertently left, there would be no violation of District policies. Mr. Bollendorf testified with regard to individuals placing personal material on the main office desk in a temporary fashion, "[I]t would be fair to say that people have set things down on the counter, sure."

Accordingly, Janicki asserts that, as he stated in his sworn Statement of Position at ¶31, the documents were left behind unknowingly and inadvertently, in conjunction with his checking a personal mailbox, placing a stack of documents and material on a tabletop and then retrieving that same stack of documents and material, inadvertently and unknowingly leaving several pages behind. The District has failed to prove that he left the document in the Main Office, or that the article was left for the purpose of distribution to staff and/or students in violation of District policy and referenced authority.

Janicki also asserts that the District's failure to present evidence that he "distributed" the document and/or that he purposely left the document to create the false impression that it was a District-issued handout also means it has not established that he violated policies 1140 Affirmative Action Program; 1530 Equal Employment Opportunity; 3211 Code of Ethics; 3233 Political Activities; 5756 Transgender Students; and 2260 Affirmative Action Programs for School and Classroom Practices or violated of the New Jersey Department of Education Guidance on Transgender Students; the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq.; the New Jersey Administrative Code, N.J.A.C. 6A:7-1 et seq.; and/or Title IX of the Education Amendmentsof 1972 as alleged.

Tenure Charge 2

As to Charge 2, in which the District alleges that Janicki repeatedly exhibited a continuous and ongoing pattern of intolerance and/or antagonism toward individuals based on their sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, he asserts that it has failed to set forth any evidence of his purported intolerance or antagonism of individuals in the LGBTQ community in his role as a public school teacher and that while the District has made the sweeping allegation against him that he is "incapable of complying with his duties as a public educator to be impartial, supportive and respectful to all students and staff members regardless of their sexual orientation or gender identity," it has not produced one instance of his exhibiting an outward animus toward a student or other staff member due to their sexual orientation or evidence in support of this alleged "pattern" for the time when Mr. Strout was employed elsewhere, whereas there is an undisputed history of animosity between Mr. Strout and Janicki. In addition, the District has not established that Janicki is incapable of complying with his duties as a public school teacher to be impartial, supportive and respectful to all students and staff members.

Discussion and Determinations - Tenure Charges 1 and 2

The Undersigned finds that the District has supported its Tenure Charges 1 and 2 with the overwhelming preponderance of the record evidence provided by the parties.

Tenure Charge 1

The District's first Tenure Charge is focused upon its assertion that Janicki was responsible for placing Document #3 on the counter in the 11-12 Main Office during the afternoon hours on October 15, 2019 such that staff noted it on the next morning upon their arrival at work and entry into the 11-12 Main Office area. As noted earlier, the inappropriate and provocative nature of Document #3 in the District workplace was stipulated by the parties, based upon which the Undersigned determined at Hearing that it should receive the neutral designation in the record as "Document #3." Accordingly, the only disputed issue in this proceeding is whether Janicki was responsible for the document being placed where it was found.

The District's investigation of Document #3 was initiated because of the document's discovery by staff on the morning of October 16, 2019 and started with a review of the video recording of the preceding evening events in the same area. That review showed Janicki in the vicinity, which led to his being interviewed, initially by Mr. Strout and then by Ms. Wechter. As a result, the Undersigned further notes, a second issue arose beyond the first - Tenure Charge 1's question of whether Janicki was responsible for the document - the second issue being Tenure Charge 3's concerns about his conduct during the interview process.

The interview process started with a review of the video recording showing Janicki's appearance in the 11-12 Main Office on the afternoon of October 15, 2019 for several minutes, during which he placed some papers on the counter at 2:37 pm. During Janicki's interviews with the District's witnesses, they report that Janicki changed his reports of his actions at around 2:37 pm on October 15 a number of times, from at first, with Mr. Strout, ignorance of the papers - "he never saw the document before" - to speculation about the papers - it was left in the faculty room by the psychology department. Then, with Ms. Wachter, who initially asked Janicki whether it was still his position that he did not leave Document #3 - as he had previously told Mr. Strout - and received Janicki's Yes response.[11] Following these two confirmations, Ms.

[11] At which point Mr. Taraschi interjected his own question: was it true that Janicki also previously told Mr. Strout that Janicki had never seen Document #3 before - to which Janicki also said Yes.

Wechter showed Janicki the video and testified he replied "he could - he said he didn't leave them, but then he said I guess I could have picked them up by mistake in the faculty room and then mistakenly left them on the counter. I don't know."

In Janicki's arguments he notes that leaving the article in the Main Office did not cause any significant disruption to school operations and there was no evidence of any students seeing the document, nor was the document distributed to staff, other than the few individuals who picked it up. Further, Janicki notes, the stack of papers looked like a pile of copies someone had made and inadvertently left behind and there is not a past practice of documents or notices from the principal being left next to the sign-in sheet, that it is "not a place where there would be important information and usually employees get either an email or a distribution through some type of portal like that. Janicki also notes that Mr. Bollendorf testified with regard to individuals placing personal material on the main office desk in a temporary fashion, "[I]t would be fair to say that people have set things downon the counter, sure."

Accordingly, Janicki asserts that as he stated in his sworn Statement of Position at ¶31, the documents were left behind unknowingly and inadvertently, in conjunction with his checking a personal mailbox, placing a stack of documents and material on a tabletop and then retrieving that same stack of documents and material, inadvertently and unknowingly leaving several pages behind.

The Undersigned notes the extensive and detailed analyses of the video - and Janicki's responses - that the District's witnesses, which also included Mr. Bollendorf, provided in their testimony, analyses that the Undersigned, also after his own many extensive reviews and careful studies of the video recordings, fully adopts. The witnesses and the Undersigned analyses leave no doubt that Janicki left Document #3 on the counter in the 11-12 Main Office and did so intentionally and deliberately, notwithstanding Janicki's protestations that the District's evidence is insufficient to so establish.

In addition, the Undersigned notes that he agrees with the District that whether Document #3 was ever seen by a student or otherwise received wide distribution or caused any significant disruption to school operations are not the material issues herein in that a failure to accomplish student viewing or wide distribution or significant disruption does not excuse or mitigate an effort to accomplish those goals. Similarly, lack of success in having employees pick up papers by putting them in an unusual location is not the test of the propriety of making an effort to get the employees to pick up those papers. Accordingly, the Undersigned concludes that Janicki's assertion that his sworn Statement of Position at ¶31 - that the documents were left behind unknowingly and inadvertently - carries negligible weight and is not persuasive, compared to the evidence provided by the District's witnesses to the contrary.

Therefore, in the absence as well of any testimony by Janicki that offered any alternative explanations of his actions and/or his intent during the afternoon on October 15 in the 11-12 Main Office, the Undersigned concludes that the evidence provided by the District that Janicki intentionally and deliberately left Document #3 on the counter is sufficient to establish support for its Tenure Charge 1.

Tenure Charge 2

In Tenure Charge 2, the District asserts that Janicki acted in continuance of his pattern of intolerance and antagonism toward LGBTQ issues when he left Document #3 and in furtherance of his prior conduct that, as found in the Zudick Award, included animus towards LGBTQ students; skipping the April 2, 2019 faculty meeting that included a presentation from the GSA student club on LGBTQ topics; walking out of a make-up meeting on April 4, 2019, for the portion of the meeting delivered by an administrator that dealt with the LGBTQ presentation; and ignoring Mr. Bollendorf's request to submit a written acknowledgement of his obligation as a public school teacher to attend all training sessions, no matter what the content, and respect LGBTQ students and staff, all of which showed that Janicki did not, as Arbitrator Zudick said, "get the message" regarding his professional duty to respect the LGBTQ rights of students and staff. In the District's view, Janicki's actions centered on Document #3 climaxed his earlier pattern of conduct.

Janicki responds that the District has not produced one instance of his exhibiting an outward animus toward a student or other staff member due to their sexual orientation or evidence in support of its alleged pattern and has not established that he is incapable of complying with his duties as a public school teacher to be impartial, supportive and respectful to all students and staff members.

However, notwithstanding Janicki's assertions that the District has not produced one instance of his exhibiting an outward animus toward a student or other staff member due to their sexual orientation, the Undersigned finds that Janicki ignores the Zudick Award findings recited above and, of course. precede the Undersigned's findings herein as to Janicki's role in Document #3. Accordingly, the Undersigned instead concurs with the District's assertions that Janicki's role in Document #3 showed a continuing pattern by Janicki of intolerance and antagonism toward LGBTQ issues and constituted another example of that conduct. Part of the reasons for the Undersigned's conclusion is how futile, self-destructive and poorly executed Janicki's actions were regarding Document #3, as well as his conduct during his interviews over it, all of which contribute to the Undersigned's conclusion that Janicki was motivated to continue his pattern of intolerance and antagonism toward LGBTQ issues with Document #3 by his outrage and his out-of-control zeal to respond to the recent High School announcement of a LGBTQ Coming Out Day and a faculty meeting about a new transgender policy that Ms. Wachter noted in her Report. The Undersigned finds Janicki's actions were futile in that, as soon as Document #3 was seen, it was removed, not circulated, a totally foreseeable outcome, and self-destructive and poorly executed because he ignored the fact that his actions in the Main Office would be recorded, leading investigators quickly to him seeking an explanation for them. Janicki's conduct during his interviews were similarly futile, also reflecting his poor planning regarding his Document #3 exploit. Therefore, in the view of the Undersigned, Janicki's response of leaving Document #3 manifested his deep and ongoing hostility to the recognition that the announcement of a LGBTQ Coming Out Day and the new transgender policy were receiving from the District, based upon his self-destructive and poorly executed actions arising nearly mindlessly out of that hostility. Accordingly, the Undersigned also concludes that the evidence provided by the District that Janicki intentionally and deliberately left Document #3 on the counter, combined with his earlier pattern of intolerance and antagonism toward LGBTQ issues found in the Zudick Award, is sufficient to establish support for its Tenure Charge 2 - that he repeatedly exhibited a continuous and ongoing pattern of intolerance and/or antagonism toward individuals based on their sexual orientation, gender identity or expression.[12] [12] The District also asserted that Janicki was involved in additional Documents #1 and #2 that further supported its Tenure Charge 2. However, in view of the Undersigned's findings as to Document #3, he finds it unnecessary to determine the significance herein of the additional Documents #1 and #2.

District's Evidence and Arguments

The District describes its Charge 3 as alleging that Janicki engaged in unbecoming conduct by repeatedly making intentional misrepresentations to administration when conducting investigations in order to hide and/or mitigate his misconduct and first cites the references in the Zudick Award to his being untruthful with Mr. Strout and Mr. Saverase regarding his instructions to his students during the lockdown drill on June 6, 2019, as well as the testimony of Mr. Strout, Mr. Saverese and Ms. Wechter during the investigation of Document #3.

In support of the District's assertion, it first notes that Mr. Strout conducted his second interview with Janicki during the investigation of Document #3 on October 22, 2019 after, during Mr. Strout's first interview with Janicki on October 16, Mr. Strout testified that Janicki stared at Mr. Strout and refused to answer questions. On October 22, Janicki responded, but, the District asserts, his answers were lies. Mr. Strout's testimony in this regard is that:

> So as I always do in interviewing someone, whether it's a staff member or a student, I start it open ended. He was not forthcoming, he was not honest in his responses in my opinion. So I continued to craft my questions in such a way to give him a change to come clean. And, you know, even in his answers in that moment when he finally met and agreed to answer the questions, there was dishonesty even in all of that.
> It was: No, I never saw this document. And then it's: Oh, yeah, I did see it. I think it's something from the psychology department. So it was just another example of Mr. Janicki being dishonest.
>
> Q Did you ask him specifically whether he left document number three in 11-12 Main Office counter?
>
> A. Yes.
>
> Q. What did he say about that?
>
> A. First he said he had never seen it. Then he said that it was something that he had seen, but he said no, he did not leave it in the 11-12 Main Office.
> Q And then you referred to some type of interaction about the word "purposely." Couldyou tell us more in detail about that? How did that communication arise and who said what?

> A. Yeah I actually backed the word "purposefully" out. I said, you know, did you purposefully leave these documents? And then, you know, I had seen the video, I knew he left them. So I took the word "purposefully" out and specifically stated to him and said: Let me clarify by removing the word purposefully, did you leave this document in the 11- 12 Main Office? Whether purposefully or not, did you leave it there? And his response was no.

The District asserts that Janicki's dishonesty continued during his interview with Ms. Wechter on November 13, 2019, outlined in Charge 1, and regarding which she noted that his untruthfulness was inviolation of Policy 3211, Code of Ethics that mandates District educators "believing in the worth and dignity of each human being, recognizes the supreme importance of the pursuit of truth, devotion to excellence, and the nature of democratic principles." The District notes that Ms. Wechter also highlighted in her testimony and in her Report the changing stories by Janicki, that went from not leaving Document #3, then, to maybe seeing it in the faculty room by the Psychology Department that does not exist, then back to not leaving the document, then confirming Mr. Taraschi's interjection that he previously told Mr. Strout he never saw Document #3, and then, after seeing the video, claiming he picked up the copies by mistake and left them by mistake.

Mr. Bollendorf agreed:

> Well, [Janicki] continued with the story that he had no idea where the papers came from. And then all of a sudden the notion that oh, well, maybe I picked them up accidentally in the faculty work room and then left them behind accidentally emerges is inconsistent and not credible. You know, now we're changing our story. That's, you know, that's a tell sign there that we're not being honest about the events.
> What changed is initially indicating that he had no knowledge of the document, didn't recognize the document. And then when the question was rephrased and removed the word "purposeful," he indicated that he had seen the document in the faculty room and, in fact, it was left there by the psychology department. So he went from not being familiar with the document, not having seen it, to now having seen it, having knowledge of it and, in fact, the knowledge was acute that he knew what department it came from.

In short, the District asserts, Janicki has lied to every administrator who has interviewed him as part of an investigation for misconduct.

Janicki asserts that the District has failed to produce sufficient evidence in support of its allegation that he repeatedly made intentional misrepresentations to administration when conducting investigations in order to hide and/or mitigate his misconduct in its allegation that he "repeatedly lied" to administration regarding his leaving the referenced document in the 11-12 Main Office at the High School.

Moreover, Janicki notes, the District has already imposed discipline through withholding of his increment based on prior lying allegations. Therefore, Janicki asserts, the District is seeking duplicative and punitive punishment through the filing of Tenure Charges, based only on the new assertion that Janicki allegedly lied about leaving a document in the 11-12 Main Office. Janicki asserts that the only allegation which was not considered in conjunction with the increment withholding action is that Janicki "lied" during the District's investigation into the documents found in the Main Office and this remaining allegation does not give rise to a basis for termination from his tenured employment. See In re TenureHearing of Barbara Emri, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 457-00, Agency Dkt. No. 18-6/00, 2002 WL 31042788, initial decision (Aug. 30, 2002), 2002 WL 32590922, Comm'r. decision (October 21 2002 discipline final decision (Dec. 5, 2003);)(racially inappropriate comments andmultiple acts of inappropriate behavior involving students, colleagues and parents, insubordination, failure to follow progressive discipline).[13]

Janicki next notes that he has shown compliance with his 2016 discipline by completing the required training and that, with the limited exception of the 11-12 Main Office investigation, the allegations set forth in Tenure Charge 3 have all been addressed in the context of the increment withholding proceeding in a decision which was not issued until after the Tenure Charge process was initiated. Therefore, Janicki asserts, Tenure Charge 3 should be dismissed - the District has failed to produce evidence that Janicki has made intentional misrepresentations to administration. Furthermore, termination would be disproportional to the District's allegation that Janicki made intentional misrepresentations in conjunction with the District's investigation.

[13] Janicki's additional arguments regarding progressive discipline and its impact upon the District's determination to dismiss him are discussed herein under Penalty.

Discussion and Determinations - Tenure Charge 3

The Undersigned finds that the District has supported its Tenure Charge 3 with the overwhelming preponderance of the record evidence provided by the parties.

The Undersigned first notes that the record herein is rife with examples of Janicki's intentional misrepresentations to administration, in addition to those found in the Zudick Award. For example, the Undersigned notes that in the discussion above of Tenure Charge 1, the evidence presented by the District's witnesses established that, the Undersigned now finds, Janicki was not forthcoming or truthful in his responses to the District's witnesses during the Document #3 interview process. In that regard, the Undersigned also notes as to that process, Mr. Bollendorf's summary of what Mr. Strout and Ms. Wachter had encountered while interviewing Janicki: Janicki continued with the story that he had no idea where the papers came from, then all of a sudden, well, maybe he picked them up accidentally in the faculty work room and then left them behind accidentally, changing from initially indicating he had no knowledge of the document and didn't recognize the document. Mr. Bollendorf continues: when the question was rephrased to remove "purposeful," Janicki indicated that he had seen the document in the faculty room and, in fact, it was left there by the psychology department - so he went from not being familiar with the document, not having seen it, to now having seen it, having knowledge of it and, in fact, the knowledge was acute that he knew what department it came from. Ms. Wachter's encounter was that Janicki repeated that he never saw Document #3, and then, after seeing the video, claimed he picked up the copies by mistake and left them by mistake.

Once more, the Undersigned is compelled by the record evidence to find that Janicki's assertions - that the District has failed to produce sufficient evidence in support of its allegation that he repeatedly made intentional misrepresentations to administration when conducting investigations in order to hide and/or mitigate his misconduct in its allegation that he "repeatedly lied" to administration regarding his leaving the referenced document in the 11-12 Main Office at the High School - are not supported. Rather, the Undersigned instead again concurs with the District's assertions - that Janicki repeatedly made intentional misrepresentations to its administrators when they were conducting investigations of his conduct - as evidenced in the Zudick Award, and again during the District's investigation of Document #3, with Mr. Strout and Ms. Wechter, as recited above by the Undersigned.

Accordingly, the Undersigned also once more concludes that Janicki's assertion that his sworn Statement of Position at ¶31 - that he left the documents behind unknowingly and inadvertently - carries negligible weight and is not persuasive, compared to the evidence provided by the District's witnesses to the contrary in their recitations of his shifting stories during their investigations.

Further, again, in the absence as well of any testimony by Janicki that offered any alternative explanations as to the reasons for his shifting stories during the District's investigations of his actions and intent during the afternoon on October 15 in the 11-12 Main Office, the Undersigned concludes that the evidence provided by the District's witnesses supports the conclusions they made that Janicki repeatedly made intentional misrepresentations to them when they were conducting their investigations. Accordingly, the Undersigned concludes that the evidence provided by the District is sufficient to establish support for its Tenure Charge 3.

District's Evidence and Arguments

The District describes its Charge 4 as alleging that Janicki engaged in conduct unbecoming by displaying defiance in not responding to legitimate questions by administration during investigative interviews surrounding his leaving copies of Document #3 in the 11-12 Main Office, in particular in the Wachter Report's summary:

> Mr. Janicki has been defensive and non-cooperative through this process. Mr. Strout and I spent a significant amount of time trying to prepare for meetings with Mr. Janicki only to have him either call out sick or refuse to answer the questions. Both Mr. Strout and I explained the purpose of our investigations and that he did not have the right to refuse to answer. He was warned that such action would be considered insubordination.

Mr. Strout added:

> That meeting was - that was, you know, that was unlike any other meeting I had ever had with him because there seemed to be this refusal to answer questions. When I say that he stared at me for a period of about a minute multiple times when I asked him a question, I literally mean a minute, I mean 60 seconds. It was incredibly bizarre and disturbing ...
> Yeah, they asked for a recess, if we could step out. Mr. Savarese and I could step out so they could speak privately and I gave them that opportunity. When I came back, I even remember rephrasing the > question, like did you purposely leave them, leave any documents? And he-you know, again this staring, as if looking through me, which was incredibly disturbing.

> I have never been involved in an interview like that where there was complete and utter refusal to answer questions. And furthermore, like if someone doesn't understand a question, they'll say can you repeat that or they'll say I'm not comfortable answering that until I talk to my representative. This was very different. This was staring at - just staring at me.

Mr. Bollendorf reported similar behavior during his meeting with Janicki on January 16, 2020, which Ms. Wechter described as disrespectful and unprofessional.

Janicki's Evidence and Arguments

Janicki denied the allegation by the District alleged that he engaged in conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member in that he repeatedly exhibited defiance and did not cooperate with legitimate administrative investigations by refusing to answer questions posed to him and staring blankly at administration when asked to offer explanationsfor his conduct. Respondent Janicki's Statement of Position, ¶43.

Janicki notes that it is uncontested that he never refused to attend a meeting with administration. In one instance, with the acknowledgment and approval of administration, Janicki's union representative attended on his behalf and in following the advices of his union representative, he at times did not provide substantive responses given pending grievances and pending arbitrations and not wanting to prejudice his position in conjunction with them.

Janicki also denied the "staring blankly" characterization, explaining that there were instances where he would look ahead or to the side, and not offer a substantive response, given the advices that he received concerning not wanting to prejudice his ongoing contest of disciplinary action being taken against him, which was the basis of his grievance and a pending arbitration. Respondent Statement of Position ¶44.

In several instances, Janicki reports he deferred answering based on advices of legal counsel and reported that on advice of his personal legal counsel he would rather not answer the question at that time. Respondent Statement of Position, ¶44. Invocation of the Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination is not per se conduct unbecoming a teacher. See Laba v.

Newark Board of Education, 23 N.J. 364 (1957). See also Lowenstein v. Newark Bd. of Education, 35 N.J. 94, 99 (1961). Accordingly, Janicki argues that Charge Four should be dismissed as the District has failed to produce evidence that he exhibited defiance and/or did not cooperate by refusing to answer questions.

Discussion and Determinations - Tenure Charge 4

The Undersigned finds that the Janicki conduct cited by the District during its witnesses' testimony does not rise to the level of defiance and non-cooperation to an extent that the conduct would support Tenure Charge 4. The Undersigned agrees that the District's investigative interviews were legitimately conducted and included high levels of frustration with Janicki. Nonetheless, the instances of conduct by Janicki cited by the District were so intertwined with his right to representation and his assertions thereof, as well as his reliance upon counsel's advice, and with what the Undersigned finds may have been normal reactions to his receiving negative news that, while uncomfortable and unpleasant for all involved, and while certainly at times impeding his ability to cooperate with the investigatory process, that Janicki's conduct during those interviews did not rise to a level that it should be considered defiance. Accordingly, the Undersigned concludes that the evidence provided by the District is not sufficient to establish support for its Tenure Charge 4.

TENURE CHARGE 5

District's Evidence and Arguments

The District describes its Charge 5 as alleging that Janicki engaged in conduct unbecoming on November 13, 2019 when he intentionally tape recorded a private conversation between Ms. Wechter and Assistant Superintendent of Curriculum and Instruction Jack McGee, as well as their conversation with counsel.[14] The District contends that the Charge is supported by the testimony of Supervisor Casey Corigliano in which he reported that Janicki had reported to Mr. Corigliano that he had taped meetings with administration in the past, particularly meetings with Mr. Strout. In addition, Janicki reported to Mr. Taraschi that Janicki had left a recording device in the room with Ms. Wechter and Mr. McGee while talking to counsel, with Janicki and Mr. Taraschi waiting outside. In addition, on November 14, 2019 Janicki communicated to Mr. Corigliano that Janicki had secretly taped the private conversations among Ms. Wechter, Mr. McGee and the District's counsel while Janicki was out of the interview room on November 13, 2019. In that regard, Mr. Corigliano described Janicki as first approaching him as a friend, long-time colleague and confidant with the conversation starting with Janicki stating "I don't know if I can trust you," indicating, the District asserts, that Janicki was about to reveal inculpatory information to a trusted friend that he did want anyone else to know about. Mr. Corigliano testified that Janicki went on to state "I got it all right here" as he patted his pocket to indicate a cell phone/recording device to indicate he had hard evidence of the District targeting him, smiling the whole time. The District concedes that Janicki did not utter the word "intentional" during this admission, nor did he indicate the recording was inadvertent, but argues that Mr. Corigliano believed Janicki was expressing that the recording was purposeful.

> I was left with the idea, based upon the conversation that we had, based upon the action of Mr. Janicki, that he had secretly recorded the conversation between Ms. Wechter and Mr. McGee.
> Q. That was your impression? So is that your answer now, sir, that your impression and your takeaway was that he did it intentionally, but he never said that?
> A. The way in which all - you put all of the evidence together, that's what my impression was, yes.

After some admitted confusion, the District notes, as to whether Mr. Corigliano heard "inadvertent" or "intentional," when questioned, he cleared up the ambiguity by testifying that he had "every reason to believe that Mr. Janicki left the - knowingly left his phone in the room when he and Mr. Taraschi were asked to leave. That's my impression." T 1111, lines 24-25 and 1112, lines 1-2, and

> Based upon how his - and I believe I testified to this on day one, on the demeanor which he said to me "I got it all right here," he had a smile on his face about it, was patting his pants pocket. And then also the other - you know, the history that he has told me in the past that he has recorded meetings. I had every reason to believe that he knew full well what he was doing. T. 1112 lines 6-13.

As to Janicki's claim that the tape recording of the Wechter/McGee/Counsel discussion was inadvertent, the District argues it is belied by the undisputed record that he is experienced in surreptitiously tape recording investigative meetings with administration. The District further notes that even if recording the private conversation among Ms. Wechter, Mr. McGee and counsel by Janicki was unknowing at first, his failure to correct an alleged mistake, admit to the recording, and hand over the tape and copies, continue the path of non-disclosure and cover-up, which establishes that he is guilty of unbecoming conduct on those bases.

Janicki's Evidence and Arguments

Janicki asserts that the District has failed to meet its burden of proof that he engaged in conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member by allegedly tape recording a private conversation between Administration in which he was not a party during an investigative interview on November 13, 2019 and that he did not willfully record any private conversations and had no intention to record others when asked to leave the room where the investigation was being conducted, but inadvertently left his phone behind. Respondent Janicki's Statement of Position, ¶46. As to Mr. Corigliano's testimony, it was only his "impression" that Janicki had secretly tape recorded the conversation and that Janicki never used the word "intentionally." "It was my understanding, yes, it was my understanding that he left the phone there inadvertently." T. 1109:1-11.

Discussion and Determinations - Tenure Charge 5

The Undersigned finds that the District has provided sufficient evidence that Janicki engaged in conduct unbecoming on November 13, 2019 when he intentionally tape recorded a private meeting by leaving his recording device behind, and operating, when he left the meeting for the known purpose of the remaining participants in the meeting consulting with counsel before resuming the meeting. In that regard, the Undersigned finds that Mr. Corigliano's explanations during his testimony of the reasons he so concluded sufficiently support his determinations, in the absence, once more, of an alternative explanation by Janicki as to the meanings that Mr. Corigliano placed upon the exchanges that Mr. Corigliano described with Janicki about the recording. Mr. Corigliano's testimony made clear that when Janicki said he "got it all right here," smiled and patted his pants pocket, given Janicki's history - he had told Mr. Corigliano in the past that he had recorded meetings - Mr. Corigliano had every reason to believe that Janicki knew full well what he was doing.

While Janicki attempts to parse Mr. Corigliano's use of the word "impression" in Janicki's assertions that Mr. Corigliano's testimony is unreliable, the Undersigned finds that Janicki's failure to provide explanations of his actions, upon which Mr. Corigliano relied, leaves Mr. Corigliano's explanations persuasive. Moreover, the transcript excerpt relied upon by Janicki as to whether Mr. Corigliano testified that Janicki acted intentionally was superseded by Mr. Corigliano's later testimony clarifying that he did find Janicki's actions intentional. Accordingly, the Undersigned concludes that the evidence provided by the District is sufficient to support its Tenure Charge 5 that Janicki intentionally tape recorded the November 13, 2019 administrators' meeting with counsel, an action that clearly constituted conduct unbecoming.

TENURE CHARGES 6, 7 AND 8

District's Evidence and Arguments

The District describes its Tenure Charges 6, 7 and 8 as intrinsically intertwined and arising from events that unfurled on January 21, 2020, after Janicki's meeting with Mr. Bollendorf on January 16, when the latter advised Janicki of the findings of the Wechter Report and that tenure charges will be pursued by the District, followed the next day by Janicki's receipt of the formal notice from Mr. Bollendorf.

The District first notes that at Janicki's January 16, 2019 meeting with Mr. Bollendorf, Janicki did not provide any explanation for his behavior or rebuttal to the charges and simply stared back in silence; further, it notes that the information in the Wechter Report, as to the earlier admission by Janicki to Mr. Corigliano of Janicki's tape recording of the private conversation on November 13, 2019 with administration and counsel, was provided byMr. Corigliano.

Tenure Charge 6

In connection with Tenure Charge 6 re: retaliation and intimidation of witnesses, the District notes that on Tuesday, January 21, 2020, the next day back to school after Janicki's January 16, 2019 meeting with Mr. Bollendorf, Janicki engaged in intimidating conduct toward Mr. Corigliano, having been informed that Mr. Corigliano had told administration of the admission Janicki had made to Mr. Corigliano of the secret tape recording and that a referral was made to the Washington Township Police Department, as well as Janicki's engaging in intimidating conduct during his interaction with Washington Township Police Officer Thomas DiTullio, the High School's School Resource Officer.

As to the District's assertion that Janicki intimidated Mr. Corigliano, it notes that Mr. Janicki went to Mr. Corigliano's office unannounced, stared at him for a few seconds from the doorway, backed up, then came forward again, looked at Mr. Corigliano again, and then sarcastically said, "Thanks" and walked away, an encounter Mr. Corigliano described as:

> The manner in which he came into my office, again unannounced, and then the way in which he was looking at me and also looked like he had more words to say, but only said thanks and walked away very dejected looking, you know. There was a - it was - it left me with a very uneasy feeling.
> Q. Could you tell us why you felt intimidated by the actions of Mr. Janicki on January 21,2020?
>
> A. Because of the history that had been happening, knowing that there were some concerns about his professionalism, there had been ongoing, you know, meetings with administration and then for the simple fact that I knew at some point the memo that I wrote in November would come to his information as part of that whole proceeding. You know, having him appear in my office unannounced and the way in which he carried himself made me feel the way I felt that day. T 1028.
>
> Q. Why did you feel intimidated?
> A. Given the demeanor, given the reports that he had been depressed, given that he has had a history of, you know, discipline issues that were ongoing, and, you know, whether it's relevant or not, unfortunately pre-Covid we live in a world that school violence was on the forefront of our minds and mental health was on the forefront of our minds. And it was that basis and the basis of which he came into my office and acted in the manner in which he did that led me to that feeling of being intimidated. T 1114.

The District further notes that although Mr. Corigliano admitted during cross examination that he believed that Janicki would not attempt to intimidate him because of their friendship and long standing working relationship, Mr. Corigliano remained steadfast that Janicki's actions in coming to his office unannounced, staring him down and sarcastically saying, "Thanks" was an act of intimidation.

A. When you put all of that together, in that particular case I did feel that was an act of intimidation.

A. In the moment I felt intimidated, yes.

A. That was in the moment how I felt.
T. 1055.

As to the District's assertion that Janicki intimidated Officer DiTullio, it notes testimony that Janicki approached his office, stared for 20-30 seconds and asked - "Do I have you to thank for this?"in reference to the Wechter Report that a referral to local law enforcement was in place for a possible violation of the wiretapping laws. The District concedes that Officer DiTullio was not physically threatened, but notes that he felt the need to stand up and address Janicki, who appeared angry.

Tenure Charge 7

In connection with Tenure Charge 7 re: the posting of religious references in lesson plans, the District alleges, via the testimony of Mr. Strout and Mr. Corigliano, that Janicki engaged in unbecoming conduct by posting religious references in quotes from Dr. Martin Luther King in his lesson plans on January 20, 2020 that had no relevance to instruction in the classroom, actions Mr. Strout found bizarre and out of character.[15]

Tenure Charge 8

In connection with Tenure Charge 8 re: comments to students, the District alleges that Janicki, in his third period music theory class, made a comment to students that his supervisor "snitched" on him, as supported by the testimony of Mr. Strout, Mr. Corigliano and Mr.

[15] The District argues that what Mr. Strout described as Janicki's bizarre and out of character posting of religious references in quotes from Dr. Martin Luther King in his lesson plans on January 20, 2020 - that had no relevance to instruction in the classroom - is relevant herein in that the posting corroborates some testimony of Mr. Bollendorf as to Janicki's religious beliefs and his role as a public school educator; the District also concedes that since Janicki did not testify, it can only speculate and make observations about these issues. The Undersigned also notes that in Janicki's reference in his response to Tenure Charge 7, he cites Mr. Bollendorf's testimony that there were not any quotes Mr. Bollendorf was concerned with and that he was not overly concerned about these quotes.
Accordingly, under the totality of the circumstances described to this point with regard to Tenure Charge 7, the Undersigned finds that the District's admittedly speculative observations as to Janicki's posting of religious references in quotes from Dr. Martin Luther King in his lesson plans on January 20, 2020 do not have a material role to play in this proceeding. Therefore, the Undersigned declines to consider the matters involved in Tenure Charge 7 further.

Bollendorf, after Janicki found out via the Wechter Report that his admission to Mr. Corigliano of the tape recording was reported up the chain of command to the administration, and, while he was teaching, held his head down in his hands and told his students that he was depressed and that he may not be teaching past February, his supervisor snitched on him, conduct that the District asserts was "highly inappropriate," whether framed as "betrayed" or "snitched."

Janicki's Evidence and Arguments

Janicki argues that the evidence offered by the District re: retaliation and intimidation of witnesses is insufficient to support the allegation that he "engaged in conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member by engaging in retaliation and intimidation of potential witnesses on January 21, 2020 by confronting the Washington Township High School SRO (School Resource Officer) and Mr. Corigliano, after [he] became aware of a referral to law enforcement...." in that the testimony of Officer DiTullio and Mr. Corigliano does not support the allegation that Janicki "confronted" either individual. Statement of Position of Gregory Janicki ¶51.

Janicki notes that Mr. DiTullio testified that he did not feel threatened and was not concerned for his safety when Janicki stopped by his office and that he invited Janicki into his office to talk and he did "not at all" feel intimidated during their "perfectly cordial conversation," consistent with Janicki's representations that he has known Officer DiTullio for years and they have had prior discussions on all types of topics. Given the representations in the District's Affirmative Action report of "investigation by law enforcement of possible criminal activity," it is not inconceivable that Janicki would seek out the advice of a known colleague who is a law enforcement officer.

Likewise, Janicki notes Mr. Corigliano's testimony on cross examination that he believed Janicki's statement that he "would never attempt to intimidate or retaliate against him for any reason." T. 1051:25-1052:3, 1053:2-3. Janicki further notes that Mr. Corigliano testified to his office open door policy and noted that it did not come as a surprise that Janicki came to his office on that particular day. On these bases, Janicki argues that Mr. Corigliano's testimony that he was somehow "intimidated" by his longtime colleague is inconsistent with his agreement that Janicki did not raise his voice and seemed dejected and defeated during their exchange. Accordingly,

Janicki argues that the first hand testimony provided by the actual individuals involved in these exchanges with Janicki does not support the District's allegation that Janicki engaged in "retaliation and intimidation of potential witnesses."

Tenure Charge 8

Janicki argues re: comments to students that the District has alleged that he engaged in conduct unbecoming by relaying to his students that his supervisor, Mr. Corigliano "snitched" on him and that Janicki told his students that Mr. Corigliano "snitched" on him, further speculating "by telling administration of Mr. Janicki's admission to Corigliano that Mr. Janicki secretly tape recorded the private Wechter/McGee/Solicitor conversation." Again, Janicki asserts, the District is seeking to sustain tenure charges on assumptions without supporting evidence and offered no first hand testimony of this alleged incident, relying solely on the testimony of Mr. Corigliano and Mr. Bollendorf. Janicki also asserts that while both witnesses testified to student(s) report of the word "snitched," limited context was provided. Therefore, Janicki argues that the District has failed to present sufficient evidence in support of this de minimus allegation and accordingly, Charge Eight should be dismissed.

Discussion and Determinations - Tenure Charge 6, 7 and 8

Tenure Charge 6

As to the District's intimidation and retaliation assertions in its Tenure Charge 6, the Undersigned finds the District's arguments overreach the record evidence.

In the District's own arguments, it concedes Officer DiTullio was not intimidated and that Janicki provided no reason for Officer DiTullio to be intimidated.

Mr. Corigliano testified on cross examination, as Janicki argues, that he believed Janicki would never attempt to intimidate or retaliate against him for any reason and that it did not surprise him that Janicki came to his office on that particular day and did not raise his voice and seemed dejected and defeated during their exchange. In that regard, the Undersigned compares Mr. Corigliano's testimony on direct examination in response to indisputably leading questions by District counsel,[16] Mr. Corigliano responded with extensive explanations that lasted 175 words, until finally himself saying the word "intimidated," in view of all the preceding considerations he had just discussed.[17]

[16] Q. "Could you tell us why you felt intimidated by the actions of Mr. Janicki on January 21, 2020?" and Q. "Why did you feel intimidated?"

The Undersigned next notes that being or not being intimidated is a personal response, whereas the basis for whether one might be found to have been intimidated by events is somewhat subject to reasonable analysis. Based upon all of the above considerations, the Undersigned finds that the factual context surrounding the conversation between Janicki and Mr. Corigliano, as described by Mr. Corigliano in his testimony and Janicki in his arguments, was more conducive to a conclusion that Janicki's somewhat muted actions did not provide Mr. Corigliano with reasonable bases to be intimidated, given Mr. Corigliano's testimony on cross examination as to his belief that Janicki would never attempt to intimidate or retaliate against Mr. Corigliano for any reason. Accordingly, the Undersigned concludes that the evidence provided by the District is not sufficient to establish support for its Tenure Charge 6.

Tenure Charge 7

In Footnote 15, the Undersigned reported his bases for declining to consider the matters involved in Tenure Charge 7.

Tenure Charge 8

The Undersigned agrees with Janicki's description that his allegedly inappropriate snitched and or betrayed comments to his students on January 21, 2020 were de minimus, especially within the parameters of comparison involved in the numerous other matters under consideration herein. In addition, as Janicki argues, his comments to students were reported based upon hearsay by Mr. Strout and Mr. Corigliano without context. Accordingly, the Undersigned concludes that the evidence provided by the District in support of its Tenure Charge 8 does not provide material bases for finding merit to a Tenure Charge.

Penalty for Meritorious Tenure Charges

The District

The District urges dismissal for Janicki and argues that the record is replete with examples of him failing to comply with applicable laws, regulations, and school policies, and lying about it afterwards. Whether based upon some of the individual Tenure Charges that would independently warrant termination, or as a group, the District argues that they demonstrate conduct unbecoming under the applicable legal standards and just cause for Janicki's dismissal, more particularly because he continues to engage in conduct in the workplace that is antagonistic and discriminatory toward students and coworkers in the LGBTQ community, causing turmoil with staff members, and putting the District at risk for violating state and federal anti-discrimination laws and directives from the US and New Jersey Departments of Education.

The District cites the dismissal standard in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 as inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause, with unbecoming conduct being any conduct which adversely affects the morale or efficiency of the [government unit]... [or] which has a tendency to destroy public respect for municipal employees and confidence in the operation of municipal services Karins v. Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532,554 (1998), i.e., a teaching staff member's fitness to discharge the duties and functions of one's office or position Laba v. Newark Bd. Of Educ., 23 N.J. 364, 384 (1957), predicated not upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct. Bound Brook Bd. Of Education v. Ciripompa, 228 N.J. 4, 19 (2017) quoting In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960); unbecoming conduct is generally recognized as behavior adversely affecting morale or weakening respect for the teaching profession. Karins, supra. The District further notes that outrageously inappropriate behavior, combined with lack of remorse or contrition and a likelihood of repeating the behavior are facts that may be taken into account in assessing a penalty. I/MIO Lesley Etheridge and Passaic County Vocational School District, Agency Dkt. No. 120-6/15 (Denenberg, 2016).

From the record herein, the District then first cites the Zudick Award as confirming its prior disciplines of Janicki, and points to a quote from the cross examination of Mr. Bollendorf as to why the District believed Janicki's dismissal was warranted.

I have a responsibility to ensure the integrity of what we do in a public education setting and, you know, obviously through these circumstances I've grown very concerned about, you know, where he's at with regard to his ability to do that. He's not demonstrated an abilityto separate his personal feelings towards his responsibilities as an educator. That doesn't change my opinion of his qualities as a guitarist and his ability to teach guitar to kids. It certainly doesn't change my opinion of him as a human being. I have no personal animus towards Mr. Janicki. I know he's a good father and he's a good family man and I don't have any issue with that.
This is a question of whether or not he can divorce himself of those convictions that he has to be able to do the job that he's paid to do in a public education setting.

Q. And in that regard, you reached the conclusion that he was unable to divorce himself, is that correct?

A. I wouldn't say unable. In fact, he's demonstrated an unwillingness through his actions.

Q. An unwillingness in his actions related to leaving document three in the main office?

A. Yes.

Q. And his unwillingness related to not attending the April 2 faculty meeting and the makeup April 4 faculty meeting?

A. Yes.

Q. And his unwillingness related to the incident identified in the homeroom by Ms. Meehan in 2016?

A. I don't know that that was an unwillingness, that was an action that he committed on the spur of the moment. I don't think that fits into unwillingness. I think the one major aspect that you haven't asked me about, if I can, is -

Q. The unwillingness component of it, we detailed that for you the unwillingness component of it, what you relied upon in making that determination that he was just simply unwilling to separate himself from his own belief was that he left this document in the main office and that he didn't attend the faculty meetings on April 2nd and April 4th. Is there anything else?

A. Yes. His unwillingness to agree in writing to me that he understood his obligations as a public educator and his need to attend any and all trainings. That would have prevented the increment withholding. That would have stopped the gradual discipline in this particular case in its tracks at that particular point in time. He had an opportunity at that moment to take control of the situation and indicate his understanding of his responsibilities and do so.

And I think that if that had occurred, had he come to that understanding and been willing to admit to that and do that, we would probably not be here today. And more importantly,you know, this latest incident that led to the filing of the tenure charges was not as a result of something he was being asked to do by the District. There was no training that he was refusing to go to. He, in the absence of any of that, decided to carry, you know, what I can only describe as his mission to address his concerns as related to the goings on of public education and the recognition of an LGBTQ environment and an LGBTQ curriculum and LGBTQ students and staff members that worked in that building. He was not -you know, he was not reacting to anything he was asked to do, he took that upon himself to do that.

Q. Okay. So we got three things then.

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. So the unwillingness. Your conclusion that tenure charges, as you said, is that you're at the point of no return, is that it was clear to you that Mr. Janicki was unwilling to separate his personal beliefs from his ongoing duties and responsibilities as a public educator?

A. Correct.

Q. An unwillingness related to him purposely leaving documents, document number three specifically, not attending the faculty meetings on - or the portions of the faculty meetings on April 2 and April 4 relating to diversity training and also his unwillingnessto give you a written document representing that he would continue to go to training, diversity training, in lieu of taking an increment?

A. Correct.

Q. Accurately summarized?

A. For the most part. where you're, you know, doing incremental discipline, this all begins with the initial write-up and the comment that was made in the homeroom. That becomes step one and is directly related to the LGBTQ > and the District's initiatives to recognize and have those kids and staff feel comfortable in our school setting.

>
> That comment by him as it relates to his religious feelings regarding that population was not appropriate and he was written up. And a write-up is a write-up. And, you know, any intended discipline is always with the intention of helping someone understand and hoping that they'll do better moving forward, not that you want to start laying the groundwork for something.
>
> At that moment in time it was an isolated incident that had not happened before and the hope was that there was something valuable to learn from it. The letter is in your file and nothing more comes of it if somebody does, in fact, learn something positive and does nothing more.
> But when something else happens, you go to the next level. Clearly something wasn't understood as a result of the first write-up and now we move on to something else. And then you apply incremental discipline as it relates to that case. And that's what led to the increment withholding, which was still within his control to do away with and he elected not to. And then eventually the incident involving the leaving behind of the transgender - anti-transgender material in the office. And it was to me a clear demonstration on his part that he was not going to abide by the District's initiatives and what it is that we were trying to do. And it wasn't enough that he could just live in his own classroom and not worry about it and not feel like he had to do anything about it, but now he was going to take his feelings, his thoughts to others in the building by leaving those documents behind - it shifted the whole dynamic. T. 1659-1664.

The District further argues that, with Document #3, Janicki's discriminatory behavior toward a protected class was unfettered and getting worse, as well as intentional and accompanied by his continued false claims of inadvertence, the kind of unprofessional, divisive, disrespectful and discriminatory conduct directed toward gay and transgender students that Ms. Meehan first cited in her March 2016 letter of reprimand and repeated during the increment withholding proceedings. In the District's view, there was no sign of remorse, no apology or defense, but simply incorrigibility that could not be rehabilitated by workshops, professional development courses, corrective action plans or interventions and as Arbitrator Zudick noted, Janicki did not learn any lessons from Ms. Meehan's letter of reprimand, the sensitivity workshop he had to attend, Mr. Strout's letters that threatened tenure charges if his misconduct continued, the efforts of conciliation and mitigation offered by Mr. Bollendorf, the withholding of his increment, and the language of the Zudick Award itself.

The District argues that there is no disciplinary action other than dismissal available to a school district after a letter of reprimand and the withholding of increment. Here, the District asserts, Janicki has revealed an inability to adhere to fundamental standards of professional conduct required within a public educational institution and has no intention of complying with any future mandatory training on LGBTQ issues and will likewise be non-compliant with new legislation (N.J.S.A. 18A:35-4.35 et. seq.; P.L.2019, c.6) that specifically requires a board of education to provide instruction on the political, economic, and social contributions of persons with disabilities and LGBTQ individuals in an appropriate place in the curriculum of middle school and high school students as part of its implementation of the New Jersey Student Learning Standards. Janicki never submitted any statement of assurance to Mr. Bollendorf in response to his offer as outlined back on May 15, 2019. Therefore, the District argues, the Undersigned can infer from Janicki's lack of response to Mr. Bollendorf's invitation for written assurance, Janicki's continued silence during the arbitration hearing on the increment withholding, and Janicki's muteness in these proceedings, that the assurance will never be given.

The District also points to examples in Tenure Charge 3 of Janicki's repeated dishonesty that erodes the requisite bond of professional trust in the employer-employee relationship, such that his return to his teaching position poses an unacceptable risk of harm to the District based upon his continuous intentional disregard of the basic duty of honesty and good faith dealing with his employer, which strikes at the heart of the employment relationship. In addition, the District considers Janicki's tape recording of the private conversation between administrators that was protected by privacy concerns, wiretap laws and the attorney client privilege, to be inexcusable, whether intentional or not, as was his disdain toward Mr. Corigliano because he did his supervisory duty of reporting the admission of illegal taping.

Janicki

Janicki denies that any of the Tenure Charges herein has merit and urges that all be dismissed because the District has failed to meet its burden of proving just cause for any discipline and, even if the underlying allegations were proven, the penalty of removal from his tenured position is disproportionate to the alleged conduct. Nonetheless, above, in the preceding sections of this Opinion, the Undersigned has found merit to what are clearly the four most serious and substantive of the eight Tenure Charges. Under that circumstance, the Undersigned turns to arguments made by Janicki in the course of arguing the merits of the Tenure Charges even if they were meritorious.

Janicki notes that in matters under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, the fact-finder in a tenure hearing involving allegations of misconduct should consider the nature and gravity of the offenses under all the circumstances involved, any evidence as to provocation, extenuation or aggravation, and any harm or injurious effect which the teacher's conduct may have had on the maintenance of discipline and the proper administration of the school system when determining the appropriate remedy. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 422 (App. Div. 1967). In addition, the impact of the penalty on [the respondent's] teaching career; the respondent's teaching record and teaching ability; and whether the respondent had been disciplined in any manner by the board prior to the date of the incident[s] involved in [the] charges are other factors to be considered. Id.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2(d), the board of education shall have the ultimate burden of demonstrating to the arbitrator that the statutory criteria for tenure charges have been met based upon a preponderance of the credible evidence. Pugliese v. State-OperatedSchool District of the City of Newark, Essex County, 2016 N.J.AGENLEXIS 19, 9 citing In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. 550 (1982). See also Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962). The evidence must be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to the given conclusion. Bornstein v. Metro. Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263, 275(1958). The preponderance may also be described as the greater weight of credible evidence in a case, not necessarily dependent on the number of witnesses, but having the greater convincing power. State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47 (1975). Tenure was designed to protect employees from dismissal for unfounded, flimsy or political reasons. Wright v. Bd. of Educ. of E. Orange, 99 N.J. 112, 118 (1985) (quoting Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65, 71 (1962) cert. denied 371 U.S. 956, 83 S.Ct. 508 (1963).

In that context, Janicki noted that he has shown compliance with his 2016 discipline by completing the required training and that, with the limited exception of the 11-12 Main Office investigation, the intentional misrepresentations allegations set forth in Tenure Charge 3 have all been addressed in the context of the increment withholding proceeding in a decision which was not issued until after the Tenure Charge process was initiated. Therefore, Janicki asserts, Tenure Charge 3 should be dismissed as the District has failed to produce evidence in support thereof; further, termination would be disproportional to the District's allegation that Janicki made intentional misrepresentations in conjunction with its investigation. Therefore, Janicki argues, the District is seeking duplicative and punitive discipline through the filing of Tenure Charges based on new assertions herein that do not give rise to a basis for termination from his tenured employment. See In re Tenure Hearing of Barbara Emri, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 457-00, Agency Dkt. No. 18-6/00, 2002 WL 31042788, initial decision (Aug. 30, 2002), 2002 WL 32590922, Comm'r. decision (October 21 2002 discipline final decision (Dec. 5, 2003);)(racially inappropriate comments and multiple acts of inappropriate behavior involving students, colleagues and parents, insubordination, failure to follow progressive discipline).

Janicki further argues that progressive discipline is a foundational principle of public sector discipline in New Jersey. West New York v. Bock, 38 N.J. 500, 522 (1962). The District, through the filing of these Tenure Charges, has failed to afford Janicki the opportunity to correct the alleged problematic behavior before increasing the sanction for failing to do so. In that regard, Janicki notes that the increment withholding decision was issued on April 1, 2020, after Janicki had been served with the Tenure Charges herein. Therefore, Janicki argues, the discipline of discharge is too harsh a penalty relative to the alleged offense. See In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Joseph Archible, Lenape Regional High School District, Burlington County, Dkt. No. 25-21, decided 1/29/2021 ("Archible") (holding "The fact that Respondent had his increment withheld once does not require that any discipline that may be issued to the teacher in the future - no matter how many years may pass - must be termination... Just Cause requires the corrective action of progressive discipline in all but the most egregious circumstances. As a consequence, just cause requires that management exercise judgment-under-the-specific-circumstances to determine whether discipline could reasonably be relied upon to correct an employee's conduct or performance." Here, as in Archible, Janicki asserts, he has a long record of good performance and has expressed a strong interest in continuing his role as a guitar teacher.

Discussion and Determinations - Penalty for Meritorious Tenure Charges

Parties' Arguments

The parties have presented accurate descriptions of the standards under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.2(d) and numerous relevant cases for the Undersigned's determinations herein. However, the Undersigned finds that he cannot accept Janicki's assertions that under those standards, the District has failed to meet its burden of proving just cause for any discipline and, even if the underlying allegations were proven, the penalty of removal from his tenured position is disproportionate to the alleged conduct.

As the Undersigned has already noted just above, he has found in the preceding sections of this Opinion merit to the four most serious and substantive of the District's eight Tenure Charges. As a result, we turn then to Janicki's alternative argument - that even if the underlying allegations were proven, the penalty of removal from his tenured position is disproportionate to the alleged conduct. In that regard, the Undersigned also finds that the District's arguments to the contrary are far more persuasive and that it has established that the penalty of dismissal is appropriate.

In those regards, the Undersigned rejects as unpersuasive Janicki's argument, that his removal is disproportionate to his conduct, in that the District's proofs have established that, contrary to Janicki's assertions, he has not shown compliance with his earlier found Zudick Award disciplines. Rather, the District's evidence has established that Janicki has, as it argues, failed to comply with applicable laws, regulations, and school policies; compounding his misconduct, he then lied about it afterwards, to extents that he has demonstrated conduct unbecoming under the applicable legal standards and just cause for his dismissal. Moreover, as the District also argues and the Undersigned has found, Janicki continued to engage in conduct that is antagonistic and discriminatory toward students and coworkers in the LGBTQ community, causing turmoil with staff members, and putting the District at risk for violating state and federal anti-discrimination laws and directives

The Undersigned also rejects Janicki's arguments that the District failed to afford him the opportunity to correct the alleged problematic behavior before increasing the sanction for failing to do so in that the Zudick Award's increment withholding decision was issued on April 1, 2020, after Janicki had been served with the Tenure Charges herein. Therefore, Janicki argues, the discipline of discharge is too harsh a penalty relative to the alleged offenses in the earlier issued Tenure Charges. In that regard, Janicki argues that Archible's holding should be applied:

> The fact that Respondent had his increment withheld once does not require that any discipline that may be issued to the teacher in the future - no matter how many years may pass - must be termination... Just Cause requires the corrective action of progressive discipline in all but the most egregious > circumstances. As a consequence, just cause requires that management exercise judgment-under-the-specific-circumstances to determine whether discipline could reasonably be relied upon to correct an employee's conduct or performance."

Therefore, Janicki asserts that, as in Archible, he has a long record of good performance and has expressed a strong interest in continuing his role as a guitar teacher.

However, the Undersigned finds, Archible, by its own terms, involves applying discipline based upon a years ago increment withholding without the District exercising "judgment-under-the-specific-circumstances to determine whether discipline could reasonably be relied upon to correct an employee's conduct or performance," while clearly also providing termination for just cause in the most egregious circumstances. Herein, the Undersigned notes, the District followed progressive discipline, and yet, merely months, not years, later, found itself with Janicki nonetheless relentlessly dedicated to continuing his misconduct: being hostile to ideas with which he disagreed; lying about such; and surreptitiously taping an administrators' meeting with counsel, about which he boasted to a co-worker - egregious circumstances each. The Undersigned also finds that whether Janicki did so before or after receiving the Zudick Award issued is immaterial. Until receiving the Award, Janicki was on notice from the District as to its policies and its disciplining of him for violating them. If Janicki chose to continue violating those policies prior to possibly being vindicated by Arbitrator Zudick in his Award, Janicki did so strictly at his peril and cannot complain about his lack of knowledge that Arbitrator Zudick would rule against vindicating Janicki.

Accordingly, the Undersigned finds that Janicki's arguments against a dismissal penalty are of no merit herein.

Impact of Tenure Charges

The Undersigned next notes that while he has rejected four of the District's eight Tenure Charges, each of the rejected Charges is of modest or no material significance, compared to the four substantive and most serious Tenure Charges to which he has found merit. The Undersigned's determinations above as to the four Tenure Charges he found meritorious describe them and their outcomes fully and do not require repetition here. Accordingly, the Undersigned turns next to reporting his agreement with the District's description, in its discussion of the appropriate penalty, that with Janicki's involvement with Document #3, his Zudick Award-found discriminatory behavior toward a protected class got worse, instead of better, as well as clearly intentional, and that it was also accompanied by his making false claims of inadvertence, which indicated no sign of remorse or apology by him, but simply incorrigibility as to the seriously concerning conduct involved. The Undersigned also agrees with the District, that Janicki's conduct - motivated by his out-of-control zeal and outrage, in responding to the recent High School announcement of a LGBTQ Coming Out Day and a faculty meeting about a new transgender policy that Ms. Wachter noted in her Report by attempting to distribute Document #3 - demonstrates that he could not be rehabilitated by workshops, professional development courses, corrective action plans or interventions. Or, as the District aptly describes: as Arbitrator Zudick noted, Janicki did not learn any lessons from Ms. Meehan's letter of reprimand, the sensitivity workshop he had to attend, Mr. Strout's letters that threatened tenure charges if his misconduct continued, the efforts of conciliation and mitigation offered by Mr. Bollendorf, or the withholding of his increment.

The Undersigned also finds Mr. Bollendorf's concluding comments regarding his analysis of Janicki's final serious misconduct telling:

> And [Document #3] was to me a clear demonstration on [Janicki's] part that he was not going to abide by the District's initiatives and what it is that we were trying to do. And it wasn't enough that he could just live in his own classroom and not worry about it and not feel like he had to do anything about it, but now he was going to take his feelings, his thoughts to others in the building by leaving those documents behind - it shifted the whole dynamic.

CONCLUSION

As a result of all the considerations discussed herein, the Undersigned finds the District's determination compellingly correct: Janicki's incorrigibility required it to move beyond its rehabilitation efforts to severance of its employment relationship with Janicki.

AWARD

The District had just cause to issue its Tenure Charges 1, 2, 3 and 5.

The District's Tenure Charges 4, 6 and 8 were not supported by sufficient evidence and Tenure Charge 7 did not have a material role herein.

The District's Tenure Charges 1, 2, 3 and 5 were of sufficient seriousness that the District had just cause to dismiss Gregory Janicki.

Final Decision

Robin Scheffler,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Trustees of the Sussex County
Charter School for Technology, Sussex County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner – formerly employed by the respondent Board as a non-tenured teacher – filed an appeal on September 11, 2020 in which she challenged the non-renewal of her employment and alleged violation of tenure rights. The Board contended that petitioner's appeal was untimely and should be dismissed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3; alternatively, the Board argued that petitioner never attained tenure. Petitioner asserted that her appeal is not untimely because her claim was not ripe until the end of the school year, on June 23, 2020, and argued that she was entitled to streamline tenure. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue in this case, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; petitioner became employed by the Board as a teacher on September 1, 2015 and remained employed under annual employment contracts through the 2019-2020 school year; in March 2020, petitioner was verbally advised by the superintendent that she would not be recommended for renewal for the 2020-2021 school year; on May 12, 2020, petitioner was served with a written notice of non-renewal; petitioner continued teaching through the end of the 2019-2020 school year; pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), a petition must be filed no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order or action that is the subject of the appeal; there is no dispute that petitioner was verbally notified in March 2020 that she would not be offered a contract for 2020–2021, nor that petitioner was served with a written notice of non-renewal on May 12, 2020, which clearly stated that her employment would not be renewed. The ALJ concluded that petitioner received adequate notice on May 12, 2020 that she was not being offered a contract for the 2020–2021 school year; the fact that the notice of non-renewal came during her fifth year is immaterial, as her status upon receipt of the notice was still that of a non-tenured teacher; and petitioner did not timely file her appeal. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision and dismissed the petition.

Upon comprehensive review of the record, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the petition of appeal was untimely and that summary decision is appropriate. In so deciding, the Commissioner noted that the Appellate Division's decision in Nissman v. Bd. of Educ. of Twp. of Long Beach Island, Ocean Cty., 272 N.J. Super. 373 (1994) is controlling. In that case, the court rejected the same argument petitioner made here, that her appeal could not be filed earlier because she did not acquire tenure until the completion of the required years of service; the court in Nissman ruled that the 90-day limitations period begins to run on the date of the board's action, not on the date when a petitioner claims that a substantive right accrued. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the petition was dismissed.

BEFORE KELLY J. KIRK, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Robin Scheffler, a teacher, appeals the non-renewal of her employment by respondent, the Board of Trustees of the Sussex County Charter School for Technology, Sussex County (Board or SCCST), alleging violation of tenure rights.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about September 11, 2020, Scheffler filed a Petition of Appeal (Petition) with the Interim Commissioner of Education. On or about September 29, 2020, the Board filed Respondent's Answer to Petition of Appeal and Separate Defenses (Answer). The Office of Controversies and Disputes of the Department of Education (Department) transmitted the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on October 6, 2020.

On January 27, 2021, with the intention of filing cross-motions for summary decision, the parties submitted a joint Stipulation of Facts with nine exhibits. On March 12, 2021, petitioner and respondent filed cross-motions for summary decision. Petitioner's motion was accompanied by a brief. Respondent's motion was accompanied by a letter brief and Certification of Patricia Melia, Esq., with two exhibits. On April 1, 2021, petitioner filed a reply letter brief. On April 2, 2021, respondent filed a reply brief.

Per the Joint Stipulation of Facts, the parties have stipulated to the following pertinent FACTS:

On or about September 1, 2015, Robin Scheffler (petitioner) became employed by the Sussex County Charter School for Technology (respondent) as a teacher.

Petitioner worked for respondent as a teacher from September 1, 2015, until the last day of school in June 2016.

On or about December 1, 2016, petitioner and respondent entered into an employment contract for the 2016–2017 academic year. (Joint Exhibit A.)

Petitioner worked for respondent for the 2016–2017 academic year as a teacher.

On or about April 10, 2017, petitioner and respondent entered into an employment contract for the 2017–2018 academic year. (Joint Exhibit B.)

Petitioner worked for respondent for the 2017–2018 academic year as a teacher.

On or about May 7, 2018, petitioner and respondent entered into an employment contract for the 2018–2019 academic year. (Joint Exhibit C.)

Petitioner worked for respondent for the 2018–2019 academic year as a teacher.

On or about April 8, 2019, petitioner and respondent entered into an employment contract for the 2019–2020 academic year. (Joint Exhibit D.)

Petitioner worked for respondent for the 2019–2020 academic year.

The last day of school for the 2019–2020 school year was June 16, 2020.

In or about March 2020, petitioner met with superintendent Noreen Lazariuk (superintendent), at which time petitioner was verbally advised that the superintendent would not be recommending that her employment be renewed for the 2020–2021 academic year.

On or about May 12, 2020, petitioner was served with a written Notice of Non-Renewal by way of email and certified mail, return receipt requested. (Joint Exhibit E.)

Petitioner did not request a statement of reasons.

Petitioner did not request a Donaldson hearing.

On April 6, 2020, the Board voted on a list of employees approved for reappointment for the 2020–2021 academic year. Petitioner's name was not included in the Board's list of reappointments for the 2020–2021 school year. (Joint Exhibit F.)

On or about August 13, 2020, New Jersey Education Association field representative John Ropars (Ropars) requested from the Board specific information and documentation relating to petitioner's employment and non-renewal. (Joint Exhibit G.)

On or about August 27, 2020, counsel for respondent answered Ropars' request for specific information. (Joint Exhibit H.)

On September 1, 2020, counsel for respondent received correspondence (dated August 27, 2020) from petitioner's counsel. (Joint Exhibit I.)

Petitioner did not report for work for Teacher In-Service on September 1, 2020, and she did not report for work for the students' start of school on September 8, 2020.

On or about September 11, 2020, petitioner filed the instant appeal with the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner).

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

The Board argues that Scheffler's appeal is untimely and should be dismissed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3, and alternatively argues that Scheffler did not attain tenure. Conversely, Scheffler argues that her appeal is not untimely because her claim was not ripe until the end of the school year on June 23, 2020,[1] and argues that she was entitled to streamline tenure.

N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-1 to -18 is known as the "Charter School Program Act of 1995" (the Act), and pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-18, the State Board of Education adopted rules and regulations pursuant to the "Administrative Procedure Act" necessary to effectuate the provisions of the Act, which are codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:11-1 et seq. A charter school is a public school operated under a charter granted by the Commissioner, which is operated independently of a local board of education and is managed, supervised, and controlled by a board of trustees. N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-3(a). Unless exempted by the Commissioner, a charter school operates in accordance with its charter and the laws and regulations that govern other public schools. N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-11(a).

To initiate a contested case for the Commissioner's determination of a controversy or dispute arising under the school laws, a petitioner must prepare a petition of appeal conforming to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.4 and serve it upon each respondent, together with any supporting papers. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(a). N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) provides as follows:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling, or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, that is the subject of the requested contested case hearing. This rule shall not apply in instances where a specific statute, regulation, or court order provides for a period of limitation shorter than 90 days for the filing of a particular type of appeal.

On or before May 15 in each year, each non-tenured teaching staff member continuously employed by a board of education since the preceding September 30 shall receive either a written offer of a contract for employment from the board of education for the next succeeding year or a written notice from the chief school administrator that such employment will not be offered. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10. An employee whose employment contract is not renewed has the right to a written statement of reasons for non-renewal and to an informal appearance before the board. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(b); see also N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2. The purpose of the appearance shall be to permit the staff member to convince the members of the board to offer reemployment. Ibid.

There is no dispute that in March 2020 Scheffler was verbally notified by Superintendent Lazariuk that she would not be offered a contract for 2020–2021, or that on April 6, 2020, the Board voted on the list of teacher contracts for the 2020–2021 school year, and Scheffler's name was not on the list. Further, there is no dispute that Scheffler was served with a written Notice of Non-Renewal by way of email and certified mail, return receipt requested. The May 12, 2020, Notice of Non-Renewal states:

> Please be advised that you will not be offered reemployment for the 2020–2021 school-year. Please be advised that you have a right to request a statement of reasons for your nonrenewal within fifteen (15) days of your receipt of this notice, as well as the right to an informal appearance before the Board for the purpose of trying to convince the Board to offer you reemployment. If you are inclined to request a statement of reasons or an informal appearance before the Board, please communicate your request in writing to me at the above address.

Accordingly, Scheffler had notice sufficient to trigger the ninety-day time period. Ninety days from May 12, 2020, would have been August 10, 2020, but Scheffler did not file her appeal until September 11, 2020, a full month late.

Petitioner argues that Scheffler "had no reason to know that SCCST would continue to employ her until she earned tenure, or release her from employment early so that she did not earn tenure"; that SCCST "could have reconsidered its decision or opted to terminate Scheffler, thus depriving her of her tenure rights"; and that "[i]f SCCST had terminated her any time before that and issued a termination date before the last day of school, there would have been no wrongful act as to her tenure rights, notwithstanding any wrongful act as to the notice of termination." Petitioner further argues that her "claim only became ripe and subject to a petition once the school year had ended and the Board failed to recognize Scheffler's entitlement to tenure." However, the applicable statute references "receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling, or other action by the district board of education," and does not specify the end of the school year as an operative date.

Scheffler could have requested a statement of reasons for the non-renewal after receipt of the non-renewal notice, but she did not do so. Scheffler likewise could have appeared before the Board to try to convince the Board to offer her reemployment, at which time she could have presented her argument that unless terminated she would acquire tenure at the end of the school year, but she did not do so. Further, if petitioner did not wish to alert the Board to her argument until after the last day of the school year, she still could have filed her petition after the end of the school year, but still within ninety days of the non-renewal notice, but she did not do so.

The Board argues that Scheffler "initially "challenged" her non-renewal on or about July 30, 2020, when she contacted counsel for the Board complaining that the Board had breached her employment contract for the 2019–2020 school year by terminating her employment "without 60-days' notice," and that "[f]or the first time, on August 27, 2020 (107 days after petitioner was provided written notice of her non-renewal), through correspondence written by her counsel, petitioner began asserting that she had received tenure as a teaching staff member," which correspondence was received by the Board on September 1, 2020.

In Kaprow v. Board of Education, 131 N.J. 572, 583 (1993), the New Jersey Supreme Court discussed the ninety-day limitation period and determined that such period "represents a reasonable procedural requirement," provides "finality in education matters," and has withstood tangential review. Additionally, the Court opined:

> Adequate notice must be sufficient to inform an individual of some fact that he or she has a right to know and that the communicating party has a duty to communicate. Moreover, adequate notice under the regulation must be sufficient to further the purpose of the ninety-day limitations period. A limitations period has two purposes. The first is to stimulate litigants to pursue a right of action within a reasonable time so that the opposing party may have a fair opportunity to defend, thus preventing the litigation of stale claims. The second purpose is "'to penalize dilatoriness and serve as a measure of repose'" by giving security and stability to human affairs.

Kaprow attempted to resolve his claim through negotiations with the Board. However, the Supreme Court found that such attempt did not negate that he had received adequate notice on a date certain, nor did it toll the running of the limitations period. In the present matter, Scheffler contends that the matter was "not ripe for adjudication" until the last day of the school year because that was when she acquired streamline tenure. However, she received adequate notice on May 12, 2020, that she was not being offered a contract for the 2020–2021 school year, and her attempts to resolve her dispute did not toll the running of the ninety-day limitations period within which she was permitted to file a petition. Had Scheffler been issued the exact same notice of non-renewal in a prior year, there is no question that the operative date to file a petition would have been the date of her receipt of the notice of non-renewal. The fact that the notice of non-renewal was during her fifth year does not change that, as her status upon receipt of the notice was still that of a non-tenured teacher and she did not timely appeal.

On point is Nissman v. Board of Education of Long Beach Island, Ocean County, 272 N.J. Super. 373 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 137 N.J. 315 (1994), wherein Nissman entered into a contract with a local board to serve as an elementary-school principal for a term of three years. In March and April of the third year of her contract, meetings were held by the board with Nissman and her attorney for the purpose of determining whether Nissman would be offered a contract for the subsequent year. Nissman conceded that she was not tenured in her position as principal at the time of the meetings. In compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10,[2] the board adopted a resolution on April 23 resolving that Nissman's employment contract expiring August 31 would not be renewed, and she would not be offered a new contract or granted tenure. Nissman received the resolution on or about April 27 and continued working until August 31. On August 31, Nissman's attorney faxed correspondence to the board, stating, inter alia, that Nissman had "served in the position for three consecutive calendar years, she has acquired tenure"; "asserts her right to the position of principal"; and "will report to the principal's office on . . . September 4 . . . to resume her duties." 272 N.J. Super. at 375. In response, the board faxed correspondence to Nissman's attorney stating, inter alia, that Nissman "does not have tenure"; "the Board took formal action at its meeting on April 23"; and that she was "duly notified of this action" and "should not report to work." On September 21, Nissman filed a petition alleging that she acquired tenure on August 31, and that her employment was terminated on September 4.

In Nissman, the court determined that it was not necessary to decide whether the board acted correctly, and that what was important was that "the Local Board had the right to know within 90 days whether its action was going to be challenged" because it would undoubtedly have to contract with another principal to replace Nissman. Id. at 380. The court inferred that "April 30" was selected by the Legislature to provide "sufficient time for a local board to fill vacant positions, and for the terminated teaching staff member to secure other employment," and, citing Kaprow, stated, "[t]o allow a teaching staff member . . . to file a claim after the commencement of a new academic year in these circumstances defeats the principle of 'repose, an essential element in the proper and efficient administration of the school laws.'" Ibid.

Although petitioner argues that "the court in Nissman did not address the ripeness doctrine and how it related to Nissman's claim for tenure," the court in fact rejected Nissman's argument that her petition could not have been filed earlier because she did not acquire tenure until August 31, and specifically stated that such argument "ignores the Rule's provision that the 90 days begin on the date on which the final action of the Local Board took place . . . not the date on which petitioner claims that a substantive right accrued." Id. at 381.

Summary Decision

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), summary decision "may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." Further, "[w]hen a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding." Ibid. This standard is substantially similar to that governing a civil motion under R. 4:46-2 for summary judgment. E.S. v. Div. of Med. Assistance & Health Servs., 412 N.J. Super. 340, 350 (App. Div. 2010); Contini v. Bd. of Educ. of Newark, 286 N.J. Super. 106, 121 (App. Div. 1995).

In Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co., 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995), the New Jersey Supreme Court set forth the standard governing a motion for summary judgment:

> [A] determination whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to > the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not . . . to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial."

The parties cross-moved for summary decision. Inasmuch as there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged, I CONCLUDE that this matter is appropriate for summary decision. On May 12, 2020, Scheffler received adequate notice that her contract would not be renewed, but she failed to file a petition until September 11, 2020, a month after the applicable ninety-day limitations period had expired. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that Scheffler's Petition of Appeal was untimely filed and should be dismissed. As such, the alternative issue of tenure is not addressed herein.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that summary decision is GRANTED in favor of the Board, and that Scheffler's Petition of Appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Robin Scheffler,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Trustees of the Sussex County Charter School for Technology, Sussex County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the exceptions filed by petitioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the Board's reply thereto, have been reviewed and considered.

Petitioner was employed by the Board as a teacher beginning in the 2015-2016 school year. On May 12, 2020, petitioner was served with a written notice of non-renewal. On September 11, 2020, petitioner filed a petition of appeal, arguing that the Board had violated her tenure rights. Following cross-motions for summary decision, the ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision, finding that the petition of appeal was untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i), because it was filed more than 90 days after petitioner was served with the notice of non-renewal.

In her exceptions, petitioner argues that she earned tenure after five years of employment, on the last day of the 2019-2020 school year, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:11-6.2(a). Petitioner contends that her claim did not accrue and was not ripe for review until she earned tenure on that date, and that her petition of appeal was timely because it was filed within 90 days of that date. Petitioner claims that tenure is obtained by operation of law at the completion of the statutory period and that a non-renewal notice cannot circumvent that law.

In reply, the Board argues that the ALJ correctly determined that the petition of appeal was untimely. According to the Board, the ALJ was not required to address the question of whether petitioner earned tenure because the petition was untimely. Furthermore, the Board contends that petitioner did not earn tenure on the last day of the school year, because the statute provides that tenure is earned "after" five years of employment, meaning that the teacher must be reemployed following the completion of five years of service.

Upon a comprehensive review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the petition of appeal was untimely. The Appellate Division's decision in Nissman v. Bd. of Educ. of Twp. of Long Beach Island, Ocean Cty., 272 N.J. Super. 373 (1994) is controlling.[1] In that matter, the board of education voted in April not to renew Nissman's contract. Nissman continued to work through the expiration of the contract on August 31, at which time she had been employed in the position for three years, the applicable time period required for her to earn tenure. Thereafter, she filed a petition of appeal alleging violation of her tenure rights. The board argued that Nissman's petition was untimely because it was filed more than 90 days after she had received the April notice that her contract would not be renewed; she countered that her cause of action did not accrue until she completed three years of work on August 31. The ALJ and the Commissioner agreed with Nissman, finding that by failing to terminate the contract before the three years expired, the tenure statute applied by self-

[1] The decisions cited by petitioner for the proposition that her claim was not ripe until the end of the school year involve differing factual scenarios, while the facts in Nissman are substantially similar to the facts here. Furthermore, the cases cited by petitioner are Initial or Commissioner decisions, not appellate decisions. Therefore, petitioner's reliance on those cases over the on-point holding by the Appellate Division in Nissman is not persuasive.

effectuation, and Nissman's claim was not time-barred because she challenged the denial of her tenured status and not the non-renewal. The State Board of Education[2] disagreed and reversed the Commissioner's decision, concluding that the only action by the board of education was the termination of her employment in April and the fact that the termination became effective on August 31 did not change the date on which the action was taken, constitute board action, or give rise to a separate cause of action. The Appellate Division affirmed the State Board of Education's decision, finding that it was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. Id. at 379. The court found that Nissman knew in April that she was not going to be offered a new contract, would be required to serve out the remaining time on her existing contract, and would complete three years of service, and that, nonetheless, the board had voted not to grant her tenure. Ibid. The court found that it was not necessary to decide whether the board had acted correctly in not renewing the contract, indicating that what was important was that the board had the right to know within 90 days of passing its resolution whether its action was going to be challenged. Id. at 380.

While petitioner argues that the Nissman decision did not address ripeness, the Commissioner does not find this argument persuasive. Nissman argued that her claim could not have been filed earlier because she did not acquire tenure until the completion of the required years of service – the same argument that petitioner makes here. The court rejected that argument, stating that the 90-day limitations period begins to run on the date of the board's action, not on the date when a petitioner claims that a substantive right accrued. Id. at 381. Moreover, the court found that an "agency regulation that focuses on the date of the employer's wrongful act as the accrual date for the cause of action, rather than the date on which the consequences of the act is directly felt by the employee (termination), is not inherently arbitrary or capricious." Ibid. While the court did not use the term "ripeness," it specifically indicated that Nissman could have filed her petition within 90 days of receiving her notice of non-renewal, prior to the date on which she would complete the service required for tenure. Ibid. This finding directly contradicts petitioner's ripeness argument, which is based on the premise that she could not have filed the petition until she completed the required service.

Like Nissman, petitioner characterizes her appeal as arising not from the Board's action of non-renewing her contract, but from the denial of her alleged tenure status. Applying the Nissman holding, it is clear that petitioner was required to file her petition on or before August 10, 2020, 90 days after she received notice of her non-renewal. She did not file her petition of appeal until September 11, 2020, more than a month later. Therefore, her petition was untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i).[3]

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The Board's motion for summary decision is granted and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

C.O., on behalf of minor child, J.S.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of Lenape Regional High School District, Burlington County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Pro se petitioner, a resident of Medford, New Jersey, challenged the determination of the respondent Board that his nephew, J.S., a non-resident student, is not eligible to attend school within the Lenape Regional High School District (LRHSD). Petitioner C.O. and his sister, M.L. – a resident of Sioux City, Iowa – filed affidavits in support of J.S.'s application for enrollment in the LRHSD as a non-resident student. Prior to February 2021, J.S. resided in Iowa with his mother, M.L. The Board filed a motion for summary decision, contending that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:1-1 et. seq., J.S. did not meet the eligibility criteria to attend the LRHSD as an affidavit student; further, the Board sought tuition reimbursement for the period of J.S.'s ineligible attendance.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue here and the case is ripe for summary decision; children aged five to twenty years are entitled to a free public education in the district in which their parent or guardian is domiciled; the domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home, to which – whenever absent – he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving; in this case, J.S.'s mother, M.L., stated in her affidavit that she was sending her son to New Jersey to complete his education, that he would return to Iowa upon graduation, and that she has the economic means to support him in Iowa; petitioner failed to establish that M.L. is incapable of supporting or providing care for J.S. due to family or economic hardship, and further failed to establish that Iowa is not J.S.'s permanent home. The ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to satisfy his burden of proof that J.S. is legally domiciled with petitioner at his Medford address and is not entitled to a free public education in the LRHSD. Accordingly, the ALJ granted summary decision in favor of the Board and ordered petitioner C.O. to pay tuition in the amount of $99.44 per day for each day during the 2020-21 school year on which J.S. was enrolled in the LRHSD.

Upon review, the Commissioner, inter alia, concurred with the ALJ that petitioner failed to establish that his nephew, J.S., was a domiciliary within the LRHSD and that J.S. met the criteria to be enrolled as an affidavit student. The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that J.S. was, therefore, not entitled to a free public education in the District's schools, and that C.O. is responsible for the payment of tuition for the period of J.S.'s ineligible attendance. As the Commissioner was unable to discern the number of days that J.S. attended LRHSD during the 2020-21 school year, the matter was remanded to the OAL for calculation of tuition pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b).

SUMMARY DECISION

OAL DOCKET NO. EDU 02698-21

AGENCY REF. NO. 31-3/21

C.O. on behalf of minor child J.S.,

Petitioner,

v.

LENAPE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DISTRICT BOARD OF EDUCATION, BURLINGTON COUNTY,

Respondent.

C.O. on behalf of minor child J.S., petitioner, pro se

R. Taylor Ruilova, Esq., for respondent (Comegno Law Group, P.C., attorneys)

Record Closed: May 27, 2021 Decided: July 21, 2021

BEFORE TRICIA M. CALIGUIRE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF CASE

Petitioner C.O. on behalf of J.S. challenges the decision of respondent, Lenape Regional High School (LRHS) Board of Education, Burlington County (Board) that minor child J.S., a non-resident student, is not eligible to attend school within the LRHS District (District), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, and its accompanying regulations, N.J.A.C. 6A:1-1 et. seq.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On January 29, 2021, petitioner filed a petition with the Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A 18A:6-9. On March 12, 2021, respondent filed a motion to dismiss in lieu of an answer. This motion was not decided by the Commissioner and was transmitted with the petition on March 16, 2021, to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

By letter dated April 30, 2021, a briefing schedule was issued and on May 28, 2021, petitioner responded to the motion to summary decision. On June 8, 2021, respondent submitted a reply brief and the motion is now ripe for review.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

The material facts in this matter are not in dispute. Based on the statements made by C.O and M.L. in their affidavits supporting J.S.' application to attend LRHS District as a non-resident student, the statements of C.O. in the petition he filed to appeal the Board's decision to deny J.S.' application, C.O.'s May 28, 2021 letter, and the certification of Matthew Webb, I FIND the following FACTS:

1. LRHS District is a regional public school district serving eight towns in Burlington County, New Jersey. The District operates four high schools, including Shawnee High School, Medford Township (Shawnee HS).

2. C.O. is a resident of the District, residing in Medford Township.

3. J.S. is C.O.'s fifteen-year old nephew. Prior to February 3, 2021, J.S. resided with his mother, M.L., in Sioux City, Iowa.

4. On February 4, 2021, C.O. submitted an application to respondent for J.S. to attend Shawnee HS in the LRHS District as a non-resident pupil ("affidavit student"). Br. In Support of Respondent's Motion for Summary Disposition (March 15, 2021), Ex. A [LRHS District Affidavit Application of C.O. on behalf of J.S. (January 28, 2021)]. In this application, C.O. stated that J.S. would reside with him in the District for the duration of the calendar year and "indefinitely [sic]." Id., Ex. A at 2, 4.

5. M.L. submitted an affidavit in support of J.S.'s application in which she stated that J.S. would remain in C.O.'s home "until completion of high school," and would return to her home upon graduation. Id., Ex. B [LRHS District Affidavit of M.L., Non-Resident Parent, on behalf of J.S. (January 29, 2021), at 1, 3].

6. In her affidavit, M.L. states that J.S. is not residing with her due to "schooling, behavior, counseling." Id., Ex. B at 1, 2. Further, she states that she is able to support her son economically. Id., Ex. B at 2.

7. On February 9, 2021, during a telephone conversation with District Assistant Superintendent Matthew Webb (Webb), C.O. stated that in school in Iowa, J.S. was "falling through the cracks"; that school in Iowa was still all-remote [due to COVID-19 emergency measures]; J.S.' Iowa teachers had not kept him up-to-date, he had fallen behind in school and was at risk of repeating ninth grade; and C.O. wanted J.S. to have a good education in New Jersey. Certification of Matthew Webb in Support of Respondent's Motion for Summary Decision (March 12, 2021), at ¶¶ 12, 13.

8. In a letter to the undersigned, C.O. elaborated on the reasons J.S. left his mother's home in Iowa to live with C.O. and his family in New Jersey, stating that J.S. "is not here for an education, [rather J.S.] is here to be held accountable to get an education." Ltr. of Petitioner in Opposition to Respondent's Motion to Dismiss (May 27, 2021) (by electronic mail only).[1] Further, by living with C.O., J.S. will get "the discipline he needs to thrive." Ibid.

[1] It is noted here that the regulations require an affidavit in response to a motion for summary decision, N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), and that the regulations permit the judge latitude to take "actions as are necessary for the . . . fair conduct of the . . . proceeding." N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.6(p). C.O.'s undated, unsigned letter in lieu of an affidavit does not prejudice respondent here as the non-corroborated hearsay statements in C.O.'s letter do not raise issues of material fact that must be determined in an evidentiary proceeding.

9. During the February 9, 2021 telephone conversation, Webb informed C.O. that he would not recommend approval of J.S.'s application as he did not meet the legal requirements for eligibility as an affidavit student. Webb Cert., at ¶ 15. In response, C.O. asked Webb to ignore relevant law. Id. at ¶ 16.

10. C.O. requested and was provided a phone conference with District Superintendent Dr. Carol Bimbohm (Dr. Bimbohm). During a telephone conversation on February 10, 2021, Dr. Bimbohm stated that her administration would recommend that J.S. was not eligible as an affidavit student and explained to C.O. the process for appealing the Board's final decision on the matter. Id. at ¶ 25.

11. To date, C.O. has not provided respondent (or this tribunal) proof that he and/or his wife, L.O., have been named temporary or permanent guardian(s) for J.S. by court order.[2] Id. at ¶ 28. C.O. stated that it is his intention to assume full legal custody of J.S. and that he would meet with an attorney on June 1, 2021, to begin the legal process. Ltr. of Pet'r, at 1.

12. On February 17, 2021, the Board adopted the recommendation of the District administration and denied C.O.'s application for J.S. to attend Shawnee HS as an affidavit student and, on February 18, 2021, formal written notice of this decision was sent to C.O. Webb. Certif., Ex. E.

13. The Board's February 18, 2021 notice included the statement that C.O. is responsible to pay tuition for J.S. for any period of ineligible attendance, including the duration of an appeal of the Board's decision. Ibid. Further, C.O. was notified that the approximate rate of tuition at the District's schools for the 2020-2021 school year is $99.44/day. Ibid.

[2] After his telephone call with Dr. Birnbohm, C.O. submitted to respondent a temporary guardianship agreement signed by M.L. on February 12, 2021. Webb Cert., ¶ 26; Br. of Resp't, Ex. C.

14. On February 23, 2021, C.O. filed an appeal with the Commissioner of Education. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, this appeal was filed within twenty-one days of the Board's decision and therefore, J.S. is currently attending Shawnee HS.

15. In this matter, C.O. asks the Commissioner to permit J.S. to attend Shawnee HS as an affidavit student. In his petition, he acknowledged the statements of his sister, M.L., and in his letter to the undersigned, C.O. states his understanding that M.L. "may have worded the affidavit for the school incorrectly." Ltr. of Pet'r., at 1.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

Standard for Deciding Motion to Dismiss

Respondent's motion was filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.5(g), which permits the filing of a motion to dismiss in lieu of an answer. Respondent argued that the "Board is entitled to summary disposition as a matter of law," and then presented arguments for an order granting summary decision under N.J.A.C 1:1-12.5(b). Br. in Support of Respondent's Motion for Summary Disposition (March 12, 2021), at 6. Therefore, respondent's motion to dismiss was treated as a motion for summary decision under N.J.A.C. 1-12.5(b), and petitioner was provided references to the OAL website for guidelines on preparing a response.

Standard for Deciding the Motion for Summary Decision

It is well-established that if there is no genuine issue as to any material fact, a moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. Brill v. The Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995). The purpose of summary decision is to avoid unnecessary hearings and their concomitant burden on public resources. Under the Brill standard, a fact-finding hearing should be avoided "when the evidence is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law." Brill guides as follows:

> [A] determination whether there exists a 'genuine issue' of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party.

In explaining the standard to be applied in summary motion practice, the Brill Court explained:

> The same standard applies to determine whether a prima facie case has been established by the party bearing the burden of proof in a trial. . . . If a case involves no material factual disputes, the court disposes of it as a matter of law by rendering judgment in favor of the moving or non-moving party.

As discussed above, I CONCLUDE that the parties raise no dispute with respect to material facts and the following issues can be decided as a matter of law:

1. Whether J.S. is eligible to attend Shawnee HS as a non-resident affidavit student, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

2. Whether the District is entitled to tuition reimbursement from C.O. for the costs of J.S. attending school in the District and if so, the amount due.

C.O. contends that J.S. is entitled to a free education in the District under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, which provides that public schools shall be free to persons over five and under twenty years of age who are "domiciled within the school district." See, V.R. ex rel A.R. v. Hamburg Bd. of Educ., 2 N.J.A.R. 283, 287 (1980), aff'd, State Bd., 1981 S.L.D. 1533, rev'd on other grounds sub nom., Rabinowitz v. N.J. State Bd. of Educ., 550 F. Supp. 481 (D.N.J. 1982) (New Jersey requires local domicile, as opposed to mere residence, in order for a student to receive a free education). J.S. is fifteen years old and, therefore, I CONCLUDE he meets the age requirements to be entitled to a free public education.

A person who meets age requirements and is domiciled within a school district may attend its public schools free of charge. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). A person may have many residences but only one domicile, and a child's domicile is normally that of his or her parents. Somerville Bd. of Educ. v. Manville Bd. of Educ., 332 N.J. Super. 6, 12 (App. Div. 2000), aff'd, 167 N.J. 55 (2001). The domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving. In re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374 (Law Div. 1991), aff'd, 311 N.J. Super. 589 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 157 N.J. 541 (1998), cert. denied, 526 U.S. 1051 (1999).

The acts, statements and conduct of the individual, as viewed in the light of all the circumstances, determine a person's true intent. Collins v. Yancey, 55 N.J. Super. 514, 521 (Law Div. 1959). The parent, or in this case, petitioner C.O., has the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2).

Here, the evidence as to J.S. being domiciled in the District is mixed. J.S. has moved, physically, from Iowa to Medford, and is currently attending Shawnee HS. J.S.' mother and C.O. took steps to register J.S. in the District, including the completion of registration documents and affidavits to support J.S.' enrollment in the District. C.O. is adamant that he and his wife always intended for J.S. to completely transfer his domicile to New Jersey and from the beginning, C.O. has taken that position. But, prior to June 1, 2021, C.O. did not start the process required to obtain legal temporary or permanent custody of his nephew (even though he had notice of this requirement since February 2021).

On the other hand, however, J.S.'s mother does not appear to intend for her son to stay in New Jersey indefinitely. In her sworn affidavit, M.L. stated that she was sending her son to New Jersey to complete his education, that he would return to Iowa upon graduation, and that she has the economic means to support him in Iowa. Even in the temporary guardianship document M.L. signed after learning of the deficiencies in her original affidavit, M.L. states that she is giving legal custody of J.S. to C.O. both "from December 31, 2020 to graduation" and "for as long as necessary." Br. of Resp't., Ex. C (emphasis added).

In this regard, N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.2, provides in pertinent part as follows:

> (a) A student is eligible to attend the school district pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.b if he or she is kept in the home of a person other than the student's parent or guardian, and the person is domiciled in the school district and is supporting the student without remuneration as if the student were his or her own child.
> 1. A student is not eligible to attend a school district pursuant to this provision unless:
>
> i. The student's parent or guardian has filed, together with documentation to support its validity, a sworn statement that he or she is not capable of supporting or providing care for the student due to family or economic hardship and the student is not residing with the other person solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education; and > ii. The person keeping the student has filed, if so required by the district board of education:
> (1) A sworn statement that he or she is domiciled within the school district, is supporting the child without remuneration and intends to do so for a time longer than the school term, and will assume all personal obligations for the student pertaining to school requirements[.]

M.L. gave a sworn statement that she is capable of supporting J.S. and noted no economic or family hardship that keeps her from caring for him. While she did not call the education J.S. would receive "free," M.L. essentially swore that she was sending J.S. to New Jersey for the education he would receive. While C.O.'s intention to care for his nephew is clear, including offering J.S. a permanent home, to date C.O. has failed to provide sufficient proof that J.S. is domiciled in the District and/or was so domiciled at the time he was first registered in the District. Petitioner failed to establish that M.L. is incapable of supporting or providing care for J.S. due to family or economic hardship, notwithstanding C.O.'s criticism of M.L.'s parenting. Petitioner failed to establish that Iowa is not J.S.'s permanent home, the place where his mother resides and where he intends (and she expects him) to return.

Accordingly, in light of all of the facts and circumstances, I CONCLUDE that J.S. is not entitled to a free public education in the LRHS District. I CONCLUDE petitioner failed to satisfy his burden of proof that J.S. is domiciled with petitioner at his address in the LRHS District. I CONCLUDE that summary decision in favor of respondent is appropriate.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1) provides that when the evidence does not support the claim of the resident, the resident shall be assessed tuition:

> [F]or the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the school district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced.

The record reflects that the actual cost of J.S.'s attendance in-District was $99.44 per day for the 2020-2021 school year, and that J.S. enrolled at Shawnee HS on or about February 23, 2021. Neither party presented evidence of the exact date on which J.S. enrolled or the last day of the 2020-2021 school year, which has certainly passed, and respondent appears to rely on the tribunal to calculate the total number of days for which C.O. will be assessed tuition. See, Ltr. Reply Br. in Support of Respondent's Motion for Summary Disposition (June 8, 2021), at 7-8.

N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.3(a) provides that,

> Tuition assessed pursuant to this section shall be calculated on a per-student basis for the period of a student's ineligible enrollment, up to one year, by applicable grade/program category and consistent with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-17.1. The individual student's record of daily attendance shall not affect the calculation.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioner is responsible to pay tuition for J.S.' attendance at Shawnee HS in the amount of $99.44/day from the date on which such attendance began, for each day school was in session without regard for days on which J.S. may have been absent, through the end of the 2020-2021 school year or the last day of J.S.' enrollment, whichever is later.

ORDER

I ORDER that the motion of respondent LENAPE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL BOARD OF EDUCATION for summary decision in its favor is GRANTED and the pro se residency appeal of petitioner C.O. on behalf of J.S. is DISMISSED.

Further, I ORDER that petitioner C.O. shall pay respondent LENAPE REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL BOARD OF EDUCATION tuition in the amount of $99.44/day for each day during the 2020-2021 school year on which J.S. was enrolled in the Lenape Regional High School District.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration. This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this initial decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

C.O., on behalf of minor child, J.S.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of Lenape Regional High School District, Burlington County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) findings that petitioner failed to sustain his burden of establishing that his nephew, J.S., was a domiciliary of a municipality in the Lenape Regional High School District (District), and that J.S. met the criteria to be enrolled as an affidavit student. The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that J.S. was, therefore, not entitled to a free public education in the District's schools during that time.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, the Commissioner shall assess tuition against petitioner for the time period during which the minor child was ineligible to attend school in the district. The statute specifically provides that the Commissioner may order tuition "computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance." N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b (emphasis added.) The record reflects that the cost of tuition in the district is $99.44 per day, but is devoid of any evidence of the number of days of ineligible attendance. Furthermore, the lack of any evidence in the record of the date on which J.S. began attending school in the district, or any findings by the ALJ on that topic, make it impossible for the Commissioner to compute the number of days of ineligible attendance.

Accordingly, this matter is remanded to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings to calculate the number of days of ineligible attendance, as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b.

Board of Education of the Village of Ridgewood, Bergen County

Respondent.

The record of this emergent matter and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to the standards enunciated in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL denying petitioner's application for emergent relief is adopted. This matter shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and the ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.

Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth, Union County, and National Vision Administrators, LLC, Respondents.

The record of this emergent matter and the recommended Order of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to the standards enunciated in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

It is well established that irreparable harm is the type of harm that "cannot be redressed adequately by monetary damages." Crowe, supra, 90 N.J. at 132-33. In addition, the irreparable harm standard contemplates that the harm be both substantial and immediate. Subcarrier Communications, Inc. v Day, 299 N.J. Super. 634, 638 (App. Div. 1977). As any harm petitioner will suffer can be recovered monetarily, the Commissioner finds that petitioner has failed to demonstrate that it will suffer irreparable harm absent emergent relief. As petitioner must demonstrate all four Crowe factors in order to warrant emergent relief, the Commissioner need not make a determination on the remaining three factors.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL, denying petitioner's application for emergent relief, is adopted. This case shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and the ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.

BEFORE GAIL M. COOKSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

EyeMed Vision Care (EyeMed) alleges that the Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth's (Board) award of its vision health insurance contract to respondent National Vision Administrators, LLC (National Vision) for service to employees effective July 1, 2021, was in violation of the New Jersey Public Schools Contract Law and that injunctive relief in its favor must be granted immediately pending a full hearing on the merits.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 12, 2021, a unanimous resolution was passed by the Board awarding a combined vision and prescription health insurance contract to National Vision for the fiscal year July 1, 2021, through June 30, 2022, for its several thousand employees. For over a decade prior thereto, EyeMed had been the contract service provider of vision health insurance to the Board.

On July 1, 2021, EyeMed filed a petition with associated exhibits and a motion for emergency injunctive relief and a stay with the Department of Education to enjoin the Board from entering into and initiating services with National Vision. On July 6, 2021, the Department of Education transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) under the Administrative Procedure Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, and the act establishing the office, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -23, for a hearing under the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6, and the rules of procedure established by the Department of Education to hear and decide controversies and disputes arising under school laws. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1 to -1.17.

After a short consensual delay, oral argument was heard via Zoom technology on July 14, 2021; however, because EyeMed submitted a certification on the morning of the argument, I gave leave for the Board to submit responsive certification(s) no later than July 26, 2021. With the consent of all parties, I ruled that that interim period would not be considered a prejudicial period of delay by EyeMed in bringing this application. The parties had previously agreed to similar treatment of the accommodation of counsel in the scheduling of the oral argument before me. A date of August 13, 2021 was scheduled for a continuation of the oral argument if I found, in my sole discretion, same to be necessary. After submittal of the Board's further certifications, EyeMed requested the opportunity to use August 13, 2021, for the taking of testimony from all certifying persons. I denied that request, cancelled the continuation of the oral argument that I determined in my discretion was no longer necessary, and closed the record on the emergent application. The motion is now ripe for determination.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Approved by a Board Resolution dated May 12, 2021, the Board contracted for vision care health insurance effective July 1, 2021, for its more than 4,000 employees for the next four years with National Vision. It is not disputed that EyeMed had provided these services for approximately eleven years prior to this summer.

EyeMed presented its Petition and several exhibits in support of its motion for an emergent stay of the award to National Vision. EyeMed set forth that it was initially asked during December 2020, because of Covid-related delays, to extend its current contract by one year to December 31, 2021, and to offer a discount. EyeMed reduced its rates to $5.76 per member per month, or a 1.5% rate reduction. [Petition ¶¶ 8-9.] It was later informed that the Board intended to undertake a solicitation process to procure a new vision care contract that would coincide with the fiscal year commencing July 1, 2021. [Petition ¶¶ 10-11.] It averred that it had been excluded from competing for the new vision benefits contract. [Petition ¶ 16.]

Following a review of the pricing information submitted by National Vision on or about May 11, 2021, which formed the basis of the Board's termination notice of its services, EyeMed's Jaime Fry presented a proposal by email dated May 18, 2021, reducing its prior rates to $4.62 (Select Network) and $4.52 (Advantage Network). She also requested that the Board's insurance broker, Christopher L. Brazzano, seek independent prescription coverage proposals that could be paired with EyeMed. [Motion, Exh. C.] Yet, it is undisputed that the Board Resolution authorizing the procurement of insurance coverage with National Vision was approved on May 12, 2021.

Christopher L. Brazzano submitted a Certification (Brazzano Cert.) on behalf of the Board in opposition to EyeMed's emergent application. Brazzano is the Regional Vice President for Acrisure, LLC, an insurance brokerage and consultation firm for public entities. In October 2020, Brazzano advised Courtney Ruth, Account Manager of EyeMed, that the Elizabeth Board of Education would like to enter into a six-month extension contract to get a common effective date of July 1, 2021, for all employee benefits. EyeMed was not willing to write a six-month contract. It was agreed that EyeMed would provide vision care insurance for a discounted monthly per member rate of $5.76, where the previous year was $5.85. [Brazzano Cert. ¶¶ 5-6.] While it was referred to as an annual contract extension, Brazzano stated that no agreement was formalized.

Brazzano also stated that respondent National Vision submitted a proposal that starting on July 1, 2021, they would provide equal to or better benefits at $5.40 per member per month. In addition, its prescription service "BeneCard," which was already the Board's prescription carrier, would provide additional savings to the Board and employees of the prescription rate with a proposed 1.65% discount over the four years for the National Vision contract. Thus, in addition to a lower rate for vision benefits, employees would be offered a lower rate for prescription coverage. [Brazzano Cert. ¶ 7.] Brazzano set forth that he provided EyeMed the opportunity to bid on this configuration of combined health insurance products in the fall of 2020, but EyeMed was unable to do so. [Brazzano Cert. ¶ 8.]

Harold E. Kennedy, Jr. also presented a Certification (Kennedy Cert.) in opposition to the relief sought herein by petitioner and in support of the processes used by the Board and its broker to procure, review, evaluate, and present the proposals received for a new four-year health insurance contract. In light of the reasons set forth below, the details of his certification need not be laid out at this time.

On the morning of the oral argument on the within motion, EyeMed filed the Certification of Jaime Fry (Fry Cert.). Therein, Fry set forth that the EyeMed account manager with whom Brazzano dealt during the 2020 renegotiation, Courtney Ruth, had left the firm on or about February 19, 2021. [Fry Cert. ¶ 6.] Central to the within dispute,

Fry stated that she searched the communications between the parties and found that neither Ruth nor anyone at EyeMed had received any request after December 2020 to submit a proposal for the contract period commencing July 1, 2021. [Fry Cert. ¶¶ 12-14.] Fry set forth that neither she nor the new account manager had any emails from Brazzano until the May 11, 2021, notice that another vendor was being accepted. She requested the opportunity to expeditiously submit a proposal, which she said was consented to, and did so with the May 18, 2021, email detailed above. [Fry Cert. ¶¶ 23-24.]

As stated, I permitted the Board to supplement the record on this emergent application with certifications responsive to the Fry Cert. that they had only just seen and disputed. Principally, that second Certification of Christopher L. Brazzano (Brazzano Supp. Cert.) filed on July 26, 2021, countered that EyeMed had been provided with all proposals he had received from other carriers on the four-year contract plan on November 3, 2020, while they were also negotiating the short renewal. [Brazzano Supp. Cert. ¶¶ 10-11.] Brazzano asserted that Ruth acknowledged that EyeMed could not provide a quote on a combined vision-prescription contract. They then continued the EyeMed coverage without a contract with its offer of a slight rate reduction. [Brazzano Supp. Cert. ¶¶ 15-17.]

The Board also submitted another Certification of Harold E. Kennedy, Jr. (Kennedy Supp. Cert.) detailing the steps taken to assure a smooth transition for Board employees on July 1, 2021, and again countering EyeMed's assertion of potential violations by the Board in the procurement process.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The present matter concerns the prospective award of a four-year vision health insurance services contract for the fiscal year that commenced July 1, 2021. EyeMed filed this emergency application on that same date seeking to enjoin the new service provider National Vision and the Board from implementing it until there can be a plenary hearing on whether its rights were violated by allegedly not being invited and/or permitted to submit a proposal for the forthcoming contract period, and other public school contract provisions. The Board opposes the emergent application of EyeMed on grounds that it delayed seeking relief, was factually not excluded from the procurement process, and that the public harm of granting this belated application is greater than any private harm to it. National Vision joins in the Board's papers.

It is well established that where the subject matter of the controversy is a particular course of action by a district board of education or any other party subject to the jurisdiction of the Commissioner, the petitioner may include with the petition of appeal, a separate motion for emergent relief or a stay of that action pending the Commissioner's final decision in the contested case. N.J.S.A. 6A:3-1.6(a); N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6(a). A motion for a stay or emergent relief shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the following standards to be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982):

> 1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
> 2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
>
> 3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
>
> 4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.
> [N.J.S.A. 6A:3-1.6(b).]

Further, it is the moving party who bears the burden of proving all of these elements by clear and convincing evidence. See Advance Elec. Co., Inc. v. Montgomery Tp. Bd. of Educ., 351 N.J. Super. 160, 165 (App. Div. 2002). For the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that EyeMed Vision has failed to satisfy the required proofs set forth in Crowe.

Here, the parties do not dispute that a school district's health insurance services contract is deemed to be an "extraordinary unspecified service" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5(a)(10) and has been prior to this fiscal year when EyeMed provided those services for the preceding decade. Local 1081 of Commc'ns Workers of Am., AFL-CIO

v. Essex Cnty., 255 N.J. Super. 671, 680 (App. Div. 1992). N.J.S.A. 18A:18A:4.1 authorizes boards of education to use competitive contracting in lieu of public bidding as follows:

> Notwithstanding the provisions of any law, rule or regulation to the contrary, competitive contracting may be used by boards of education in lieu of public bidding for procurement of specialized goods and services the price of which exceeds the bid threshold, for the following purposes:
>
> h. At the option of the board of education, any good or service that is exempt from bidding pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5;

N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5 sets forth multiple exceptions to the requirement for advertising, including that "[a]ny contract, the amount of which exceeds the bid threshold, shall be negotiated and awarded by the board of education by resolution at a public meeting without public advertising for bids and bidding therefor if the subject matter thereof consists of professional services. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5(a). The board of education must in such instance state supporting reasons for its action in the resolution awarding each contract and shall forthwith cause to be printed once, in an official newspaper, a brief notice stating the nature, duration, service and amount of the contract, and that the resolution and contract are on file and available for public inspection in the office of the board of education. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5(a)(1). There is no dispute that this latter requirement was delayed, but for purposes of this application, I do not consider that to be a major violation of EyeMed's rights necessitating some version of an automatic injunction.

EyeMed asserts herein that its rights under this aspect of settled law were violated because it was not invited or permitted to submit a proposal. Critical factors in my determination that it has failed to support the requested emergent relief are twofold: (1) EyeMed's delay until July 1, 2021, in bringing this petition and motion well after the Board's award of same on May 12, 2021, by which date the National Vision contract had been implemented throughout the district; and (2) genuine and material factual disputes about the opportunities provided to EyeMed to submit a proposal on the new contract.

I CONCLUDE that the first of these two factors is supported by the undisputed timeline. The second factor is also plainly evident on the face of the parties' submissions. There are several important issues of both credibility and documentation on "who knew what when" that must abide a period of discovery and a plenary hearing on EyeMed's petition. Finally, while I need not reach this issue in light of petitioner's failure to carry its burden under Crowe on the emergent and irreparable nature of its potential harm caused in large part by its own delay, I CONCLUDE that petitioner might struggle to prevail on the merits, based only preliminarily on the limited submissions in this current record. The delay between May 12 and July 1, 2021, attributable wholly to EyeMed, means that the public harm to the Board and its thousands of employees that would be caused by a stay now outweighs the potential harm to the petitioner, and I so CONCLUDE.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that EyeMed Vision Care's application for emergency relief is and the same is hereby DENIED. The underlying petition will be scheduled for case management and an evidentiary hearing.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified, or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who is authorized by law to make the final decision in this case. The final decision shall be issued without delay but no later than forty-five days from the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify, or reject this order within those forty-five days, this recommended order shall become the final decision on the issue of emergency relief under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Final Decision

Michael Conway,

Petitioner,

v.

New Jersey State Board of Examiners,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent State Board of Examiners (SBE), denying his application for teacher and principal certificates based upon Conway's alleged conduct unbecoming a teacher. Petitioner maintains that the SBE's decision was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no issues of material fact in this case; the petitioner's professional conduct assessment and explanations for his unbecoming conduct which were sent subsequent to the SBE's decision are irrelevant here as that information was not before the SBE to consider at the time of its decision, and there is no evidence that the petitioner availed himself of potential opportunities to present that information via a motion for reconsideration before the SBE; further, there is no impediment to petitioner reapplying for the certificates he seeks, at which time he could present mitigating evidence explaining the conduct at issue and his subsequent job performance; however, based on the present record, the matter is ripe for summary decision; pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.1, the SBE may refuse to issue an applicant's certificate for conduct unbecoming – notwithstanding that a candidate may meet all requirements for certification – if it determines based on the record before it that the candidate is not suitable for employment as a teaching staff member for reasons set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.4; it is well settled that teachers are held to a high standard of conduct because of the influence they exercise over students; teachers and principals are professional employees entrusted with the care of school children, and this duty requires a high degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior not always required in other types of employment; in this case, petitioner has not met his burden to prove by a preponderance of credible evidence that the SBE's denial of teaching and principal certificates to him was arbitrary, capricious, or contrary to law; and petitioner's conduct was sufficiently flagrant to warrant the denial of teaching and principal certificates based upon his alleged conduct unbecoming. Accordingly, the ALJ granted summary decision in favor of the SBE, and the petition was dismissed.

The Commissioner concurred with the findings and determination of the ALJ as comprehensively detailed in the Initial Decision. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed and considered. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge, for the reasons set forth in detail in the Initial Decision, that petitioner has failed to meet his burden of demonstrating that the Board of Examiners' decision denying petitioner's application for teaching and principal certifications was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

Accordingly, the Board of Examiners' motion for summary decision is granted, and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

NEW JERSEY STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS, Corinne M. Mullen, Esq., for petitioner (The Mullen Law Firm, attorneys)

Sydney Finkelstein, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Andrew J. Bruck, Acting Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: July 20, 2021 Decided: August 5, 2021

BEFORE SARAH H. SURGENT, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Michael Conway (Conway) appeals from respondent New Jersey State Department of Education (NJDOE), State Board of Examiners' (Board) denial of his application for teacher and principal certificates based upon Conway's alleged conduct unbecoming a teacher. He maintains that the Board's decision was arbitrary, capricious, and unlawful, which the Board denies.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about May 12, 2020, Conway submitted his application for teacher and principal certificates to the NJDOE. By letter dated August 11, 2020, the Board denied Conway's application. On August 26, 2020, Conway timely filed a pro se petition of appeal, and subsequently retained private counsel. On August 28, 2020, the Department of Education, Office of Controversies and Disputes, transmitted this case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -23, and resolution of Conway's motion for emergent relief, (R-A).

On September 4, 2020, a telephonic status conference was conducted with the parties, and a briefing schedule was set, with an emergent hearing to be held on September 9, 2020. At the request of both parties, the emergent hearing was adjourned to September 24, 2020. On September 24, 2020, oral arguments on the emergent motion were heard remotely via videoconference due to the COVID-19 pandemic (pandemic), and the record closed. On September 28, 2020, I denied Conway's motion for emergent relief, (R-C), which I incorporate herein by reference. After four telephone conferences concerning protracted discovery production delays, the matter was scheduled for remote oral arguments on the parties' cross-motions for summary decision. Oral arguments were heard via videoconference on July 20, 2021, and the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

These salient points are not in dispute. I therefore FIND the following FACTS.

Conway was a teacher for approximately twenty-four years in Arizona, before relocating to New Jersey in 2020 to become a teacher at the Beloved Community Charter School (Beloved) in Jersey City. (P-B; R-F). He has been employed by Beloved as a teacher's assistant since the fall of 2020. (P-B; R-F). His contract has been renewed for the 2021-2022 school year, (P-A), and he is said to be doing very well, (P-E), teaching eighth-grade students both in person and remotely, due to the pandemic, (P-B; P-C; R-H).

While still residing in Arizona, Conway was instructed by the Board to submit his New Jersey teaching and principal certificate applications electronically due to the pandemic. (P-B; R-G). In his emailed submissions to the Board, Conway included his photographs of a requisite criminal/offense information form dated May 12, 2020, which plainly depict his legs and lap, clothed only in underwear, and containing outlines of his genitalia. (P-B; P-D; R-I).

Conway has poor eyesight, is not "tech-savvy," and did not realize that the photographs he sent contained inappropriate content, as he only checked the "thumbnails" of his photographs before he submitted them. (P-B; P-D; P-G; P-H; R-F; R-G). He was busy preparing and packing for his transition from Arizona to New Jersey, his house was in disarray, and there were boxes "everywhere." (P-B). He and his partner agreed that they would disrobe upon entering their home due to the pandemic and his partner's asthma. Ibid. He chose to take the photographs on his lap because the kitchen table was "filled with boxes." Ibid. He takes full responsibility for his "error." (R-A).

By letter dated August 11, 2020, the Board denied Conway's applications, stating, in relevant part:

> The photograph[s] of the criminal history information form you submitted to the Board via email contained inappropriate content. Specifically, the image[s] contained male anatomy in underwear. Upon receipt of the image[s], the Board sent an email permitting you to provide an explanation. Your response to the request was that you were "sorry the emailed version has inappropriate content." There was no explanation for the content or how the image[s] [were] sent with the content.

> Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.2, "Notwithstanding that a candidate may meet all requirements for certification, the Board of Examiners may refuse to issue a certificate to that candidate if, based on the record before it, the Board of Examiners determines that, for reasons set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.5, the candidate is not suitable for employment as a teaching staff member in the public schools." One of the reasons stated in N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.5 for the revocation of a teaching certificate, or, in this case, the refusal to issue one, is "conduct unbecoming a teacher."
> In reviewing your application, the Board considered, among other factors, your lack of judgment and/or carelessness in submitting an image with such content. Such poor judgment and/or carelessness is conduct unbecoming an educator. Accordingly, the Board finds that the level and nature of your conduct provide sufficient reason to block your application for certification. Thus, at its July 30, 2020 meeting the Board of Examiners voted to block your application for a Teacher of Social Studies and Principal certificate.

Conway maintains that when the Board asked him via email about the inappropriate content of his emailed photographs, he did not understand what the Board was referring to, and assumed that it must have been a reference to a 2011 driving under the influence conviction. (P-B; R-A; R-I). He only understood the issue at hand after he received the Board's denial letter and checked the actual photographs which he had emailed to the Board. (P-B).

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

The Board argues that its motion for summary decision should be granted because it is undisputed that Conway submitted inappropriate images to the Board with his applications for certifications, that the conduct was unbecoming a teacher or principal, whether intentional or not, and that granting him the certificates would not be in the best interests of students or the public. It also argues that Conway's subsequent "excuses" and a subsequent recommendation by a teacher at Beloved do not mitigate Conway's admitted conduct and are not genuine issues of material fact with respect to the Board's decision at the time it was made.

Conway argues that his cross-motion for summary decision should be granted, and the Board's motion denied, because the Board's decision was arbitrary, capricious, and "prudish[ly] unlawful[]," and because Beloved "strongly [disagrees] with the knee-jerk reaction to deny a competent teacher employment based on an innocent mistake committed during a world-wide pandemic." Conway maintains that the Board's failure to consider the circumstances underlying his conduct, whether his conduct was intentional, and his subsequent successful conduct at Beloved, was "prudish, ill-informed, and completely unexamined." Alternatively, Conway argues that "[a]s a result of the arbitrary, capricious, and unlawful manner in which the Board has chosen to interpret . . . Conway's unintended and entirely accidental actions, the material facts and substantive issues surrounding this case are indeed a matter of great dispute. As such, the motion[s] for summary decision should be denied," and the matter should be set down for a plenary hearing.

I.

A summary decision "may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). That rule is substantially similar to the summary judgment rule embodied in the New Jersey Court Rules. See R. 4:46-2; Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954).

In Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co., 142 N.J. 520 (1995), the New Jersey Supreme Court addressed the appropriate test to be employed in determining the motion:

> [A] determination whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not . . . to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial."

In evaluating the merits of the motion, "[a]ll inferences of doubt are drawn against the movant and in favor of the opponent of the motion." Judson, 17 N.J. at 75. However, "[w]hen a motion for summary decision is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

Having reviewed the parties' submissions and heard their oral arguments, I CONCLUDE that no genuine issues of material fact exist which require a plenary hearing to determine whether the photographs which Conway admittedly took and sent were inappropriate and conduct unbecoming, and if so, whether the Board's July 30, 2020 decision to deny him teaching and principal certificates was arbitrary, capricious, or contrary to law. I further CONCLUDE that Conway's professional conduct assessment and explanations for the photographs which were sent subsequent to the Board's decision are entirely irrelevant—that information was not before the Board to consider at the time of its decision, and there is no evidence that Conway availed himself of any potential opportunities to present that information by filing a motion for reconsideration before the Board. See, e.g., N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.15.

The Board and I are unaware of any impediment to Conway reapplying for the certificates, at which time he might present mitigating evidence explaining his conduct at issue and his subsequent job performance, but on the issues presently before me, I cannot consider it. This matter is therefore ripe for summary decision.

II.

The Board of Examiners is entrusted with the issuance and revocation of certificates to teach pupils and to serve as principals in public schools. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-38. N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.1 governs the Board's authority to refuse to issue certificates, and provides:

> Notwithstanding that a candidate may meet all requirements for certification, the Board of Examiners may refuse to issue a certificate to the candidate if it determines based on the record before it that the candidate is not suitable for employment as a teaching staff member in the public schools for reasons set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.4.
> [N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.1 (emphasis added).]

Thus, the Board may refuse to issue an applicant's certificate for "conduct unbecoming." N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.4. Conduct unbecoming includes a broad range of behavior that impacts an applicant's ability to perform their duties or otherwise renders them unfit to have the responsibility for the care of children. See State Bd. of Exam'rs v. Charlton, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDE) 18; In re Certificate of Fargo, 91 N.J.A.R.2d (EDE) 1. Although "conduct unbecoming" a teacher, principal, or other public employee is not defined by statute or regulation, it has been described as an "elastic" phrase that includes "conduct which adversely affects the morale or efficiency" of the public entity or "which has a tendency to destroy public respect for . . . [public] employees and confidence in the operation of [public] services." In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960) (internal quotation marks omitted). The touchstone of the charge is an applicant's fitness to discharge the duties and functions of their position. See Laba v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 23 N.J. 364, 385-88 (1957).

"That the school authorities have the right and the duty to screen the officials, teachers, and employees as to their fitness to maintain the integrity of the schools as a part of ordered society, cannot be doubted." In re Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13, 30 (App. Div. 1974) (internal quotation marks omitted). Unfitness to hold a position in a school system may be demonstrated by a series of incidents or a single incident, if sufficiently flagrant. Redcay v. State Bd. of Educ., 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct. 1943), aff'd, 131 N.J.L. 326 (E. & A. 1944).

It is well settled that "teachers are held to a high standard of conduct because of the influence they exercise over the students." Charlton, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDE) 18, 21. Teachers "hold positions demanding public trust, and in such positions they teach, inform, and mold habits and attitudes, and influence the opinions of their pupils." In re Tenure Hearing of Tordo, 1974 S.L.D. 97, 98-99. They "are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of . . . school children," and "[t]his heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment." In re Tenure of Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321. Those principles apply with as much if not more force to school principals, who are high-ranking administrators entrusted with providing educational leadership, directing and supervising all school operations, and evaluating staff, including teachers. N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-12.3(b).

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1:

> (a) In determining appeals from decisions of the State Board of Examiners . . . , the Commissioner shall ascertain whether the decision is supported by sufficient credible evidence in the record and shall not disturb the decision unless the appellant has demonstrated the State Board of Examiners . . . acted in a manner that was arbitrary, capricious, or contrary to law.
> [N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1(a).]
> Arbitrary and capricious action of administrative bodies means willful and unreasoning action, without consideration and in disregard of circumstances. Where there is room for two opinions, action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration, even though it may be believed that an erroneous conclusion has been reached.
> [Bayshore Sewerage Co. v. Dep't of Envtl. Prot., 122 N.J. Super. 184, 199 (Ch. Div. 1973).]

In this case, Conway has not met his burden to prove by a preponderance of credible evidence that the Board's denial of teaching and principal certificates was arbitrary, capricious, or contrary to law. There is no evidence of any "willful and unreasoning action, without consideration and in disregard of circumstances." Indeed, the Board gave Conway the opportunity to explain the inappropriate content of his photographs, and without bothering to ascertain what that content was and offer his explanations and the circumstances under which the photographs were taken and submitted, Conway merely replied that he was "sorry the emailed version has inappropriate content."

Conway's failure to investigate and appropriately respond to the Board's inquiry, in addition to his "poor judgment and/or carelessness" in photographing and submitting the admittedly "inappropriate content," merely bespeaks of further poor judgment and carelessness on Conway's part. Moreover, Conway's choice to point his camera at his scantily clad lap while taking photographs to be submitted to the Board is the epitome of poor judgment and carelessness. Surely, he could have chosen to put on pants, or to photograph his criminal history form on the top of a moving box, or even on the floor, but he chose not to do so. "While teachers are sensitive to the same emotional stresses as all other persons, their particular relationship to children imposes upon them a special responsibility for exemplary restraint and mature self-control." In re the Tenure Hearing of Ostergren, 1966 S.L.D. 185, 186 (internal quotation marks omitted). Conway's conduct fell far short of the mark, even in the midst of our global pandemic.

Under these facts and circumstances, I CONCLUDE that Conway has not met his burden to prove that the Board's decision was arbitrary, capricious, or contrary to law. I CONCLUDE that the totality of Conway's conduct was alarming conduct unbecoming which raised grave doubt about Conway's fitness to discharge the duties and functions of teaching and principal positions. I further CONCLUDE that Conway's subsequent explanations to this Tribunal that he was busy, is not "tech-savvy," and has poor eyesight mitigate against him, as he is still teaching remotely, and another episode of such poor judgment and carelessness could have grave social and psychological consequences for the pupils in his virtual classroom, as well as undermine the public's trust and confidence in him and in the school. I therefore CONCLUDE that Conway's conduct was sufficiently flagrant to warrant the Board's denial of teaching and principal certificates based upon his conduct unbecoming.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that the Board's motion for summary decision is hereby GRANTED and its denial of teaching and principal certificates is hereby AFFIRMED; and it is further

ORDERED that Conway's motion for summary decision or a plenary hearing in the alternative is hereby DENIED; and it is further ORDERED that Conway's petition is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the Judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Monika Vakulchik,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Dunellen, Middlesex County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner, a Speech Language Pathologist employed by the respondent Board from October 2016 through the 2019-2020 school year, received a summative performance report completed on May 1, 2020 by the school district's Director of Special Services which included a statement recommending that petitioner not be renewed for the 2020-2021 school year. Petitioner subsequently filed the within appeal, alleging that the Board failed to provide her with proper notice pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 that her non-tenured teaching staff position was recommended for non-renewal for the 2020-2021 school year. Based on her claim that she did not receive proper statutory notice of termination, petitioner requested that she be deemed renewed and issued a new employment contract. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue in this case, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; despite the fact that the District failed to address why there was not strict compliance with the statutory requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10, the Board substantially complied with the statutory notice requirements for non-renewals; the petitioner was not prejudiced by receiving notice through her summative performance report rather than from the superintendent, as she acknowledged receiving the recommendation and asserted her rights to a statement of reasons and a Donaldson hearing; further, the Board's 4-3 vote to renew petitioner's contract following the Donaldson hearing failed because it did not constitute a majority vote of the full membership of the Board, which would consist of five out of nine votes. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision and dismissed the petition.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that summary decision is appropriate but disagreed with the ALJ that the Board substantially complied with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10. In so doing, the Commissioner found, inter alia, that the doctrine of substantial compliance requires, among other things, that the defaulting party provide a logical explanation for why there was not a strict compliance with the statute; here, the Board failed to provide written notice from the superintendent that petitioner's employment would be terminated and offered no explanation as to why this occurred, in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10. Therefore, by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-11, petitioner's employment contract for 2020-2021 was renewed upon the same terms and conditions of her 2019-2020 contract. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was reversed; petitioner's motion for summary decision was granted ; and the Board was directed to reinstate petitioner to her position and to pay her the salary that she was entitled to for the 2020-2021 school year, subject to mitigation. The petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Monika Vakulchik,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Dunellen, Middlesex County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the exceptions filed by petitioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the Board's reply thereto, have been reviewed and considered.

Petitioner was employed by the Board as a Speech Language Pathologist beginning on October 4, 2016. On May 1, 2020, her summative performance report, which had been completed by the district's Director of Special Services, included a statement that recommended that her contract not be renewed. On May 4, 2020, petitioner emailed the superintendent and the Board, indicating that she was notified of her non-reemployment for the 2020-2021 school year and requesting a written statement of reasons. On May 5, 2020, the Board voted on the superintendent's recommendations for renewals, and petitioner's name was not on the list of renewed staff. On May 18, 2020, petitioner wrote to the Board and superintendent, indicating that – because she had not received written notice from the superintendent of her non-renewal by May 15 – she was accepting the Board's offer of employment for the 2020-2021 school year. The superintendent responded and indicated that petitioner was aware that her contract was not being renewed, and he subsequently provided a statement of reasons. Petitioner then requested a Donaldson hearing,[1] after which the Board voted, with four members in favor of renewing her employment and three against; one member abstained, and one seat was vacant. The Board informed petitioner that the action did not pass, and petitioner appealed.

Following cross motions for summary decision, the ALJ found that the Board substantially complied with the statutory notice requirements for non-renewals and that petitioner was not prejudiced by receiving notice through her summative performance report rather than from the superintendent, as she acknowledged receiving the recommendation and asserted her rights to a statement of reasons and a Donaldson hearing. The ALJ further found that the Board's 4-3 vote to renew petitioner's contract failed because it was not by a majority vote of the full membership of the Board, which would consist of five out of nine votes. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision.

In her exceptions, petitioner argues that the Board cannot prevail based on the doctrine of substantial compliance because it has failed to provide any explanation for its noncompliance with the statutory requirements, and the fact that she was not prejudiced is due solely to her own diligence in following up and is insufficient on its own to support a finding of substantial compliance. Petitioner claims that it would be reasonable for her, or other teaching staff members in similar circumstances, to interpret a recommendation in an evaluation as solely a recommendation and not a notice of non-renewal, and that the loss of time to seek new employment that would result from such an interpretation has a great possibility for prejudice. Petitioner also contends that the statute does not require a majority vote of the full membership of the Board following a Donaldson hearing.

In reply, the Board argues that the purpose of the statutory scheme is to provide teachers with timely notice that they are not going to be reemployed so that they may seek other employment, and so they can seek a statement of reasons and a Donaldson hearing. The Board contends that the reason it did not strictly comply with the written notice requirement was that petitioner was clearly aware that her employment was not being renewed, as she wrote to the superintendent stating as much when she requested a statement of reasons. According to the Board, sending petitioner a letter informing her of something she already knew would be illogical. The Board also notes that petitioner's arguments regarding the voting requirements merely restate arguments raised below and properly addressed and rejected by the ALJ.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that summary decision is appropriate but disagrees with the ALJ that the Board substantially complied with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10. The doctrine of substantial compliance requires, among other things, that the defaulting party provide "a reasonable explanation why there was not a strict compliance with the statute." Bernstein v. Bd. of Trustees of Teachers' Pension & Annuity Fund, 151 N.J. Super. 71, 76-77 (App. Div. 1997). Here, the Board failed to provide any explanation throughout the proceedings,[2] until a conclusory assertion in its reply to petitioner's exceptions that it would be "illogical" to provide written notice to petitioner when she already was apparently aware of the non-renewal. The Board is not permitted to introduce new evidence in its reply to petitioner's exceptions, and this statement is therefore inappropriate.[3]

[2] As the ALJ noted, "the District has not addressed why there was not strict compliance with the statute." Initial Decision, page 12.

[3] The statement does not even rise to the level of evidence, as it is unsupported by any documentation, testimony, or certification or affidavit.

Moreover, even if the Board's late explanation were to be accepted, the Commissioner does not find the Board's explanation to be reasonable. While the Board claims that petitioner was on notice of her non-renewal prior to the statutory deadline, petitioner's characterization of the recommendation in her evaluation as a notice of non-renewal is not the determining factor for whether that notice was sufficient. The requirements of a notice are clearly set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10, and they include that the notice be "from the chief school administrator" and indicate that "employment will not be offered." A mere recommendation from an individual other than the superintendent meets neither of these criteria, and it would not be "illogical" for the Board to follow the evaluation with a formal notification that provided definitive information and was compliant with the statute. Nor should petitioner's diligence in requesting a written statement of reasons and a Donaldson hearing be used to her detriment. In enacting the notice statute and establishing renewal as the Board's failure to comply with it, the Legislature chose to place the burden of notification on the Board, not on teaching staff members.

Another requirement of the substantial compliance doctrine is that the defending party took a series of steps to comply with the statute. Bernstein, supra. The ALJ found that the Board met this requirement because it provided petitioner with her summative report and held a virtual meeting to discuss the report. But the requirement of the statute is written notice from the superintendent, and these steps do not demonstrate any attempt to comply with the statute.

The cases cited by the ALJ and the Board to the contrary are distinguishable. Both Nissman v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Long Beach Island, Ocean Cty., 272 N.J. Super. 373 (App. Div. 1994), and Jordan v. Bd. of Educ., 2017 N.J. Super. Unpub. LEXIS 1865 (App. Div. 2017), address the question of what notice is sufficient to trigger the 90-day time limitation for a non-renewed employee to file a petition of appeal. In both matters, the court notes that the test is when the employee knew or should have known that she was not going to be offered a new contract. Nissman, supra, at 379; Jordan, supra, at *6-7. Any reliance on this proposition to support the Board's position in this case is misplaced. The standard for determining whether notice is sufficient to trigger the limitations period is distinct from notice sufficient to comply with the Board's statutory obligations. Contrary to a long history of cases about the filing limitations period that discuss the "knew or should have known" standard – which was applied in Nissman and Jordan because they were both about the limitations period – there is no comparable case history, nor anything in the notice statute, that suggests that petitioner's knowledge is in any way relevant to whether the Board has met its burden of providing notice.

The Commissioner further notes that the facts of these two cases are distinguishable, as Ms. Nissman received notice that complied with the version of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 that was in effect at the time, and the alleged technical defect in the notice provided to Ms. Jordan was only that it was signed by the district's director of human resources. However, it was written on the superintendent's letterhead, advised Ms. Jordan that at the upcoming board of education meeting, the superintendent would recommend that the board not renew her employment, and stated that her employment would terminate effective June 30. The form and substance of this notice are significantly closer to the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 than the "notice" petitioner received here, which was a short statement at the end of her summative evaluation stating that she was recommended for non-renewal, signed by the district's Director of Special Services. Petitioner's evaluation does not purport to be issued by the superintendent. It does not indicate to petitioner what recommendation the superintendent would make to the Board. It does not provide an end date for petitioner's termination.

Accordingly, the Commissioner concludes that the Board is not entitled to the same finding of compliance as in Jordan.

Because the Board failed to provide the required written notice from the superintendent, by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-11, petitioner's employment contract for the 2020-2021 school year was renewed upon the same terms and conditions of petitioner's 2019-2020 contract, with any increases in salary as may be required by law or policies of the board of education. [4]

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is reversed, and petitioner's motion for summary decision is granted. The Board is directed to reinstate petitioner to her position and to pay to petitioner the salary to which she would have been entitled during the 2020-2021 school year, subject to mitigation from other earnings.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[5]

Angelica Allen-McMillan, J.d.D.
ACTING COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Decision: September 16, 2021
Date of Mailing: September 16, 2021

[4] Because the Commissioner has concluded that the contract was renewed by operation of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-11, it is unnecessary to reach the issue of whether the Board's vote following petitioner's Donaldson hearing was effective.

[5] This decision may be appealed to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1. Under N.J.Ct.R. 2:4-1(b), a notice of appeal must be filed with the Appellate Division within 45 days from the date of mailing of this decision.

MONIKA VAKULCHIK,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF DUNELLEN, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,

Respondent.

Craig A. Long, Esquire, for petitioner (Zazzali, Fagella, Nowak, Kleinbaum & Friedman, attorneys)

Marc H. Zitomer, Esquire, for respondent (Schenck, Price, Smith & King, LLP, attorneys)

Record Closed: May 10, 2021 Decided: June 22, 2021

BEFORE DEAN J. BUONO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Monika Vakulchik ("Vakulchik") alleges that respondent Dunellen Board of Education (the "Board") failed to provide her with proper notice pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 that her non-tenured teaching staff member position was recommended for non-renewal for the ensuing school year. Accordingly, because Vakulchik claims that she did not receive proper statutory notice, she asks that she be deemed renewed and offered a new teaching contract. Vakulchik further argues that, even if this court finds that she received sufficient notice of non-renewal, the Board subsequently voted to reemploy Vakulchik by a vote of 4-3, with one abstention, and one vacancy, on a nine-member board. Accordingly, Vakulchik argues that a plain reading of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-11 requires the Board to reemploy her and issue a new contract of employment. At issue is whether (1) Vakulchik's summative performance evaluation signed by Dunellen's Director of Special Services constituted proper written notice by the "chief school administrator" that Vakulchik's employment would not be offered for the following school year, and if so, whether (2) the Board's vote of 4-3 to reemploy Vakulchik was effective to reemploy Vakulchik, when there was one abstention, and one vacancy on the nine-member board at the time of the vote.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed the instant petition with the New Jersey Commissioner of Education, which was received on July 17, 2020,by the Division of Controversies and Disputes, Department of Education (Department). The matter was transmitted as a contested case on September 16, 2020, to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL).

After several telephone conferences the parties represented that the matter was ripe for decision on a motion for summary decision. The parties filed motions and cross-motions for summary decision. The parties did not request oral argument as the written submissions were sufficient to dispose of the matter.

STIPULATIONS OF FACT

The parties agreed to certain facts that could be stipulated. As such I FIND AS FACT the following:

1. Respondent Dunellen Board of Education ("Board") is a pre-K to 12 District located in Middlesex County, New Jersey.

2. Petitioner Monika Vakulchik (hereinafter "petitioner") commenced employment with respondent on or about October 4, 2016, in the position of Speech Language Pathologist, and served in that position until June 30, 2020.

3. On May 1, 2020, petitioner was given her 2019-20 Summative Performance Report signed by Amanda Lamoglia, Director of Special Services for Dunellen Schools. The overall score on said report was 3.333. (Exhibit A.)

4. The summative report concluded with the following statement, "Recommended for Dismissal/Non-renewal. The teacher has failed to make progress on a Corrective Action Plan, or the teacher consistently performs below the established standards, or in a manner that is inconsistent with the school's mission and goal." Id.

5. On May 1, 2020, petitioner submitted a response to the summative evaluation report which is incorporated therein. Id.

6. On May 1, 2020, petitioner participated in a virtual meeting over Google Meet, in which she, the Director of Special Services and her Principal, together with a union representative, discussed her summative evaluation.

7. Petitioner signed the aforesaid Summative Performance report on May 8, 2020. Id.

8. On May 4, 2020, petitioner emailed Mr. Mosley, Superintendent of Schools, and copied the Board of Education. In that email she stated, "On 05/01/2020, I was notified of non-reemployment for the 2020-2021 school year. I am requesting a written statement of reasons for non-reemployment". (Exhibit B).

9. On May 5, 2020, the Board voted on the Superintendent's recommendations for staff renewals for the 2020-21 school year. Petitioner's name was not on the list of staff which was renewed. (Exhibit C).

10. Petitioner was not provided with written notification from the Superintendent by May 15, 2020, that her contract was not being renewed for the 2020-21 school year.

11. On May 18, 2020, petitioner wrote to the Board and copied the Superintendent and stated, "Insofar as I have not received notice from the chief school administrator in accordance with N.J.S.A. l8A:27-l0; 27-11 that employment for the succeeding school year will not be offered, I hereby accept your offer of employment." (Exhibit D).

12. On May 18, 2020, the Superintendent emailed petitioner and stated, "You are well-aware that your contact was not renewed as evidenced by your email to the Board on May 4, 2020 where you stated, 'On 05/01/2020, I was notified of non-reemployment for the 2020-2021 school year.' This was well-before the May 15, 2020 date set forth in the statute that you cited. You will receive my response to your request for a statement of reasons for my decision shortly. However, to be clear, you do not have a contract for the 2020-2021 school year and your name did not appear on the May 7, 2020, Board of Education meeting agenda renewal motions. I trust that I have clarified any confusion on your part." (Exhibit E.)

13. On May 28, 2020, the Superintendent provided petitioner with a statement of reasons for her non-renewal. (Exhibit F.)

14. Based upon the Superintendent's assertion that petitioner was not renewed, she asserted rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2 and N.J.A.C. 6A:32-4.6 and requested an appearance before respondent ("Donaldson hearing"), which took place at the June 15, 2020, Board meeting.

15. At its meeting held on June 15, 2020, the Board, which, due to a vacancy, consisted of eight members, voted four members in favor of renewing petitioner's employment; three members opposed; and one member abstaining.

16. On June 16, 2020, the Board informed petitioner in writing that "the Board's action to reinstate you following your Donaldson hearing last evening did not pass[,]" and that petitioner's employment would end on June 30, 2020. (Exhibit G.)

17. Board Policy 3142 governs the non-renewal of teaching staff members. (Exhibit H.)

18. Respondent acknowledges that petitioner has reserved her rights to bring separate claims independently of, and unrelated to, the claims at issue in this proceeding, including but not limited to retaliation, wrongful termination, and discrimination. It is understood that petitioner is not making the aforesaid claims in this matter. Respondent reserves its rights to present evidence in those proceedings that petitioner's non-renewal of employment was premised on legitimate non-discriminatory business reasons.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

The following facts are derived from the parties' respective submissions. Some of the facts are repetitive from the Stipulations of Fact but are necessary for continuity of the explanation of the case and as such, I FIND them to be the FACTS of the case:

The Board is a pre-K to 12 District located in Middlesex County, New Jersey. Vakulchik commenced employment with the Board on or about October 4, 2016, in the position of Speech Language Pathologist, and served in that position until June 30, 2020. On May 1, 2020, Vakulchik was given her 2019-20 Summative Performance Report (the "Summative Report") signed by Amanda Lamoglia ("Lamoglia"), Director of Special Services for Dunellen Schools. The Summative Report reflected an overall score of 3.333 and concluded with the following statement, "Recommended for Dismissal/Non-renewal. The teacher has failed to make progress on a Corrective Action Plan, or the teacher consistently performs below the established standards, or in a manner that is inconsistent with the school's mission and goal."

On May 1, 2020, Vakulchik submitted a response to the Summative Report and participated in a virtual meeting over Google Meet, in which she, the Director of Special Services and her Principal, together with a union representative, discussed her Summative Report.

On May 4, 2020, Vakulchik emailed Mr. Mosley, Superintendent of Schools, and copied the Board of Education. In that email she stated, "On 05/01/2020, I was notified of non-reemployment for the 2020-2021 school year. I am requesting a written statement of reasons for non-reemployment." She signed the Summative Report on May 8, 2020.

In the interim, on May 5, 2020, the Board voted on the Superintendent's recommendations for staff renewals for the 2020-2021 school year. Vakulchik's name was not on the list of staff which was renewed. However, she did not receive a separate written notification of her nonrenewal from the Superintendent by May 15, 2020.

On May 18, 2020, Vakulchik wrote to the Board and copied the Superintendent and stated, "Insofar as I have not received notice from the chief school administrator in accordance with [N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 and 18A:27-11] that employment for the succeeding school year will not be offered, I hereby accept your offer of employment." On the same day, the Superintendent responded to Vakulchik by email and stated, "You are well-aware that your contact was not renewed as evidenced by your email to the Board on May 4, 2020 where you stated, 'On 05/01/2020, I was notified of non-reemployment for the 2020-2021 school year.' This was well-before the May 15, 2020, date set forth in the statute that you cited. You will receive my response to your request for a statement of reasons for my decision shortly. However, to be clear, you do not have a contract for the 2020-2021 school year and your name did not appear on the May 7, 2020, Board of Education meeting agenda renewal motions. I trust that I have clarified any confusion on your part." On May 28, 2020, the Superintendent provided Vakulchik with a statement of reasons for her non-renewal.

Based upon the Superintendent's assertion that Vakulchik was not renewed, she asserted rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2 and N.J.A.C. 6A:32-4.6 and requested an appearance before the Board ("Donaldson hearing") pursuant to Donaldson v. Board of Educ. of North Wildwood, 65 N.J. 236, 240-41 (1974). Vakuchik's Donaldson hearing took place at the Board's June 15, 2020, meeting. At the time of that meeting, due to a vacancy, the Board consisted of only eight members. The vote regarding renewal of Vakulchik's employment, was four members in favor of renewal; three members opposed to renewal; and one member abstaining.

On June 16, 2020, the Board informed Vakulchik in writing that "the Board's action to reinstate you following your Donaldson hearing last evening did not pass[,]" and that petitioner's employment would end on June 30, 2020.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

In the case at bar, both sides seek relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, which provides that summary decision should be rendered "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." The regulation mirrors R. 4:46-2(c), which provides that "[t]he judgment or order sought shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law." I FIND there is no issue of material fact in dispute with regard to the foregoing matter and I CONCLUDE the matter is ripe for summary decision.

Under the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6, "[a] party may move for summary decision upon all or any of the substantive issues in a contested case." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(a). Such motion "shall be served with briefs and with or without supporting affidavits" and "[t]he decision sought may be rendered if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). When the motion "is made and supported, an adverse party in order to prevail must by responding affidavit set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding." Id.

Determining whether a genuine issue with respect to a material fact exists requires consideration of whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am. 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995).

I. The Board's motion for summary decision should be granted because the Board substantially complied with the notice requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10; although the Summative Report was not signed by the Superintendent, it provided Vakulchik with timely and adequate notice of non-renewal, and Vakulchik was not prejudiced.

The Board's motion for summary decision should be granted because there is no genuine issue of material fact with respect to whether the Board provided Valkuchik with timely, adequate notice that her contract would not be renewed for the 2020-2021 school year.

N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 provides that [o]n or before May 15 in each year, each non-tenured teaching staff member continuously employed by a board of education since the preceding September 30 shall receive either:

> a. A written offer of a contract for employment from the board of education for the next succeeding year providing for at least the same terms and conditions of employment but with such increases in salary as may be required by law or policies of the board of education, or > b. A written notice from the chief school administrator that such employment will not be offered."
> [emphasis added.]

When interpreting a statute, "we begin with its plain language, which is the "best indicator" of legislative intent." State v. Rodriguez, 238 N.J. 105, 113 (2019). A statute's plain language "must be construed 'in context with related provisions so as to give sense to the legislation as a whole.'" Id. (quoting Spade v. Select Comfort Corp., 232 N.J. 504, 515 (2018)). Unless the statutory language is "inconsistent with the manifest intent of the legislature, or 'another or different meaning is expressly indicated,' we ascribe to the Legislature's words and phrases 'their generally accepted meaning, according to the approved usage of the language.'" Finkelman v. Nat'l Football League, 236 N.J. 280, 289 (2019) (quoting N.J.S.A. 1:1-1).

Consequently, if the plain language "leads to a clear and unambiguous result, then our interpretive process is over." Johnson v. Roselle EZ Quick LLC, 226 N.J. 370, 386 (2016) (quoting Richardson v. PFRS, 192 N.J. 189, 195 (2007)). However, "if there is ambiguity in the statutory language that leads to more than one plausible interpretation, we may turn to extrinsic evidence, 'including legislative history, committee reports, and contemporaneous construction.'" DiProspero v. Penn, 183 N.J. 477, 492-93, 874 (2005).

Here, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10(b) specifically requires that the "chief school administrator" provide written notice, on or before May 15, to the non-tenured teaching staff to inform them that employment will not be offered for the succeeding school year. "Chief school administrator" is defined in N.J.A.C. as "the superintendent of schools or the administrative principal if there is no superintendent." N.J.A.C. 6A:10-1.2. Further, the superintendent of schools has consistently been described as "the chief school administrator for the district." See e.g., Lenape Reg'l High Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ. v. Lenape Dist. Support Staff Ass'n, 2010 N.J. Super. Unpub. LEXIS 304, *6.

Here, Vakulchik received the Summative Report on May 1, 2020, which was signed only by Lamoglia, the Director of Special Services. This Summative Report concluded with the following statement, "Recommended for Dismissal/Non-renewal." The first written notice that Vakulchik received directly from the Superintendent was on May 18, 2020, three days after the May 15 deadline, when the Superintendent responded to Vakulchik's email reiterating that her contract would not be renewed for the subsequent school year. When the Board voted on the Superintendent's recommendations for staff renewals for the 2020-2021 school year on May 5, 2020, Vakulchik's name was not on the list of staff that were renewed. However, the lack of inclusion on a "renewal list" of teaching staff members approved by the Board for reemployment at a regularly scheduled meeting is not determinative of a teacher's status with respect to employment for the following school year, nor is it sufficient notice of non-renewal to satisfy the statute. See Aitken v. Manalapan Twp. Bd. of Educ., 1974 S.L.D. 207, 210-12.

However, even if I find that the statute's technical requirements were not met, the doctrine of "substantial compliance" should nonetheless allow the Board to succeed on its motion for summary decision. The equitable doctrine of substantial compliance "has deep roots in English common law and has received repeated recognition in [New Jersey's] own cases as well as in cases elsewhere." Galik v. Clara Maass Med. Ctr., 167 N.J. 341, 353 (2001) (internal citations omitted). Its purpose "is to avoid the harsh consequences that flow from technically inadequate actions that nonetheless meet a statute's underlying purpose." Anske v. Borough of Palisades Park, 139 N.J. Super. 342, 347 (App.Div.1976). It is a doctrine "based on justice and fairness, designed to avoid technical rejection of legitimate claims." Zamel v. Port of N.Y. Auth., 56 N.J. 1, 6 (1970).

In order to successfully invoke the doctrine, a party must demonstrate (1) lack of prejudice to the defending party; (2) a series of steps taken to comply with the statute involved; (3) a general compliance with the purpose of the statute; (4) a reasonable notice of petitioner's claim, and (5) a reasonable explanation why there was not a strict compliance with the statute. See Bernstein v. Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund, 151 N.J. Super. 71, 76 (App. Div. 1977).

The failure to provide notice in compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10, and N.J.S.A. 18A:27-11 did not prejudice Vakulchik. For example, under different circumstances, if a non-tenured staff member is unsure as to whether they have been recommended for non-renewal by the Superintendent, the staff member might fail to exercise their rights to an informal proceeding under N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 or might do so untimely. Here, however, Vakulchik was not prejudiced. On May 1, 2020, the day she received the Summative Report, she e-mailed the Superintendent, and copied the Board, confirming that she was notified that she would be recommended for non-renewal for the 2020-2021 school year and requested a written statement of the reasons. The Superintendent provided her with a statement of the reasons on May 28, 2020. Finally, she asserted her rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-3.2 and N.J.A.C. 6A:32-4.6 and requested a Donaldson hearing before the Board, which took place at the June 15, 2020, Board meeting. Vakulchik was clearly put on notice that she would be recommended for non-renewal, was able to fully assert her rights, and was not prejudiced.

As to the second factor, the Board took a series of steps to comply with the statute. It provided Vakulchik with the Summative Report, signed by Lamoglia, the Director of Special Services, which included the specific language "recommended for non-renewal." Vakulchik also participated in a virtual meeting over Google Meet, in which she, Lamoglia, and her principal, together with a union representative, discussed her Summative Report.

The District was in general compliance with the purpose of the statute. The primary purpose is to provide teachers with timely notice when they are not going to be reemployed so that they may seek other employment. See Wachstein v. Burlington County Bd. of Educ., 1 976 S.L.D. 928, 931; see also Armstrong v. East Brunswick Twp. Bd. of Educ., 1975 S.L.D. 112, modified, St. Bd., 1975 S.L.D. 117 (modified to adjust amount of termination pay granted by Commissioner), aff'd., App. Div., 1976 S.L.D. 1104. The statute also works to ensure that a teacher has notice of a recommendation of non-renewal and can timely request a statement of reasons and a Donaldson hearing.

Here, while the notice Vakulchik received from the Superintendent was after the May 15 deadline, Vakulchik was nonetheless on notice that her contract would be recommended for non-renewal, as evinced by her May 4, 2020, email. As such, while the Board's actions did not conform to the technical requirements set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10, the primary purpose of the statute was met—Vakulchik was aware that her contract would be recommended for non-renewal, took the appropriate steps to request a list of the reasons and a Donaldson hearing, and had adequate time to seek alternate employment. The District gave Vakulchik "reasonable notice" and she was timely able to assert her rights. As to the final factor, curiously however, the District has not addressed why there was not strict compliance with the statute.

Where, as here, a staff member does not receive "[a] written notice from the chief school administrator that such employment will not be offered[,]" N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10, but the district has "substantially complied" with the underlying purpose of the statute, the staff member should be deemed to have received sufficient notice. For this reason, it is appropriate to grant the Board's motion for summary decision and find that Vakulchik received timely notice of the Superintendent's recommendation for non-renewal. The failure of the District to comply with the technical requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 should not be deemed an offer of continued employment for the next succeeding year (N.J.S.A. 18A:27-11) where, as here, the requirements were substantially met and the District's actions conformed to the statute's underlying purpose.

In Nissman v. Bd. of Educ. of the Township of Long Beach Island, 272 N.J. Super. 373 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 137 N.J. 315 (1994) the Court discussed the notice requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10 and determined that whether the employee "knew or should have known that [he or] she was not going to be offered a new contract for the following academic year" factored into whether or not a letter that the petitioner had received from the Board was a "final action." Id. at 379. The Board used Nissman to support its contention that, even if the Superintendent had not timely notified Vakulchik in writing that her contract would not be renewed, the fact that she was aware that her contract would not be renewed, as evinced by her May 4, 2020, email, is enough to meet its statutory burden.

While the facts in Nissman differ slightly from the facts of this case, the overarching purpose of the statute remains the same: to give a teaching staff member timely and adequate notice of non-renewal so they can seek new employment elsewhere. In Nissman, petitioner challenged the Board's resolution not to offer the petitioner a new contract or grant her tenure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27:10. The statute at the time of decision required notice from the local board of non-renewal, rather than the chief school administrator. Petitioner had timely and appropriately received the local board's adoption of a resolution that the petitioner's employment contract, expiring in August of that year, would not be renewed and that she would not be offered a new contract or granted tenure. Petitioner received the resolution and continued to work in her position as principal up to and including the last day of her contract. While the Court never questioned whether the notice requirements had been met, the question the Court answered was whether the board resolution operated as a "final action." The petitioner's knowledge that her contract would not be renewed was a primary factor in that calculus.

The Board also cited Jordan v. Board of Educ., 2017 N.J. Super. Unpub. LEXIS 1865, *6-7, 2017 WL 3091782 to support its position that the Summative Report that Vakulchik received, while not technically in compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:27-10, was nonetheless adequate. In Jordan, the petitioner received a May 8, 2014, letter on the Superintendent's letterhead, signed by the Director of Human Resources at the high school where she taught,, informing her that at the local board meeting scheduled for May 13, 2014, the Superintendent would recommend that the board not renew petitioner's employment for the 2014-2015 school year. The letter further stated that petitioner's employment would terminate effective June 30, 2014. The Court held that the plain language of a May 8 letter simply did not support petitioner's interpretation that the letter merely advised her of the possibility that she would not be offered a new contract. Id. The Court found that "the letter clearly qualifies as written notice that plaintiff's employment will be terminated and [that] she will not be offered tenure." Id.

Similarly, here, Vakulchik was unambiguously aware that she was being recommended for non-renewal to the Board. Not only did her May 4, 2020, email reveal as much, but she also met with Lamoglia and her principal, together with a union representative, to discuss the Summative Evaluation, and signed it on May 8, 2020. As such, I CONCLUDE that Vakulchik had proper notice.

II. The Board's 4-3 vote in favor of renewing Vakulchik's contract failed and thus does not require the Board to issue a new contract of employment.

Since I found that Vakulchik did in fact receive proper notice, the Board's vote of 4-3 in favor of renewing Vakulchik's contract did not operate to renew her contract pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 because the vote was not by a majority vote of the full membership of the Board. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(b) states:

> A board of education shall renew the employment contract of a certificated or non-certificated officer or employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school > administrator and by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board. The board shall not withhold its approval for arbitrary and capricious reasons. A nontenured officer or employee who is not recommended for renewal by the chief school administrator shall be deemed nonrenewed. Prior to notifying the officer or employee of the nonrenewal, the chief school administrator shall notify the board of the recommendation not to renew the officer's or employee's contract and the reasons for the recommendation. An officer or employee whose employment contract is not renewed shall have the right to a written statement of reasons for nonrenewal pursuant to section 2 of P.L.1975, c.132 (C.18A:27-3.2) and to an informal appearance before the board. The purpose of the appearance shall be to permit the staff member to convince the members of the board to offer reemployment.

When all seats are filled in Dunellen, the Board is comprised of nine members. The majority of the full membership of the Board is five, regardless of the number of members who attend the meeting. However, the statute does not directly state whether a vote from the full membership of the Board after an informal appearance is required to offer reemployment to an employee whose contract is deemed not renewed by the chief school administrator.

Valkuchik argues that, save for N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1, none of the provisions cited by the Board that require a vote of the majority of the full membership of the Board (see Respondent's Brief at 8-9) contain the differentiating clause that permits the Board to conduct a vote following an "informal appearance" by the affected staff member. She argues that here, the Legislature declined to specify the number of votes required following an "informal appearance." In contrast, she argues, other scenarios cited by the Board require "the majority of the full membership" of the Board.

As discussed in Section II, the first step in statutory interpretation is to look to the plain language of the statute—if the plain language "leads to a clear and unambiguous result, then the interpretive process should end, without resort to extrinsic sources." State v. D.A., 191 N.J. 158, 164 (2007). Only when the meaning of a statute is not self-evident on its face—"when it is subject to varying plausible interpretations, or the strict application of the words will lead to an absurd result or one at odds with public policy or an overall statutory scheme—"is it appropriate for the Court to "turn to extrinsic sources, such as legislative history." Farmers Mut. Fire Ins. Co. of Salem v. New Jersey Property-Liability Ins. Guar. Ass'n, 215 N.J. 522, 536 (2013).

It is a fundamental rule of statutory interpretation that "no clause, sentence or word [in a statute] shall be superfluous, void, or insignificant." State v. Lefante, 12 N.J. 505, 517 (1953) (quoting Shack v. Dickenhorst, 99 N.J.L. 120 (1923) (emphasis added)). Therefore, a reviewing court should assume that the Legislature did not use "any unnecessary or meaningless language." Patel v. N.J. Motor Vehicle Comm'n, 200 N.J. 413, 418-19 (2009), and should instead "try to give effect to every word of [a] statute . . . [rather than] construe [a] statute to render part of it superfluous," Med. Soc'y of N.J. v. N.J. Dep't of Law & Pub. Safety, Div. of Consumer Affairs., 120 N.J. 18, 26-27(1990) (citations omitted). Every word of a statute must be given full effect. Serio v. Allstate Ins. Co., 210 N.J. Super. 167, 171 (App. Div. 1986)(citation omitted).

N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 clearly states that "[t]he purpose of the appearance shall be to permit the staff member to convince the members of the board to offer reemployment." The Legislature did not qualify this statement to indicate that anything less than a majority vote by the full membership would be sufficient.

Further, "statutes are considered to be in pari materia when they relate to the same person or thing, to the same class of persons or things, or have the same purpose or object." Marino v. Marino, 200 N.J. Super. 315, 330. Statutes "in pari materia are to be construed together when helpful in resolving doubts or uncertainties and the ascertainment of legislative intent." In re Return of Weapons to J.W.D., 149 N.J 108, 115 (1997). However, before undertaking an in pari materia analysis to discern legislative intent, courts "must first decide whether the two statutes in question actually 'concern the same object.'" 2B Sutherland on Statutory Construction § 51:3 (7th ed. 2008). Considerations include whether the statutes are "designed to serve the same purpose and objective." Id.

N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1 states that "[n]o teaching staff member shall be appointed, except by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education appointing him." This aligns with N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(a) and (b), which state that a board may appoint or renew an employee "only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator and by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board." In sum, both N.J.S.A. 18A:27-1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 relate to the same purpose—personnel appointments by board approval—both with and without the recommendation of the Superintendent. Both require a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board and should be read in harmony with one another.

Vakulchik cites Matawan Regional Teachers Ass'n v. Matawan-Aberdeen Regional School Dist. Bd. of Educ., 223 N.J. Super. 504, 507 (App. Div. 1987) to stand for the proposition that where a statute "is silent with respect to the number of votes necessary to adopt rules and to govern and manage the district . . . [i]t must be assumed that by its silence the Legislature intended the common-law rule to apply." Id. More specifically, Vakulchik contends that "a majority vote of the members of the board constituting a quorum shall be sufficient."

However, the statute at issue in Matawan, N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1, is completely devoid of any discussion with respect to the number of board votes necessary to adopt rules and to govern and manage the district. Here, the statute is not silent. The entirety of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 (b) addresses the board's renewal votes based upon the recommendation or non-recommendation of the Superintendent—these votes require a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board.

Further, the differentiating characteristic of an informal appearance before the board is that it is not "an adversarial proceeding," but rather, takes place for "[t]he purpose of . . . provid[ing] the staff member the opportunity to convince [the] board . . . to offer reemployment." N.J.A.C. 6A:10-8.1(c) and (i). The non-tenured staff member may present witnesses on their behalf, who do not need to present testimony under oath and will not be cross-examined by the board. N.J.A.C. 6A:10-9.1. The differentiating aspect is not that it does not require a majority vote of the full membership board, but that it is an informal, non-adversarial appearance.

Finally, "[a]n absurd result must be avoided in interpreting a statute." Gallagher v. Irvington, 190 N.J. Super. 394, 397 (App. Div. 1983). Allowing an interpretation that permits the Board to renew a staff member against the recommendation of the Superintendent with a simple majority vote, while requiring five yes-votes of the full nine-member Board if the renewal recommendation comes from the Superintendent is untenable. A non-tenured staff member could be renewed with only three votes of a five-member quorum against the recommendation of the Superintendent but would require five votes if the recommendation comes from the Superintendent. See Negron v. Board of Educ., 2012 N.J. Super. Unpub. LEXIS 2634, *12. In Negron, the local board was faced with the vote on the reemployment of the Superintendent pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:11-11. Because it was the Superintendent up for the vote, it did not require the Superintendent's recommendation. The Court nonetheless determined that the re-employment decision required a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education. The Court noted that it "would indeed be an anomaly in a board of education's powers if a superintendent's contract could be extended for one or two years without an affirmative vote of the full board membership when so many employment decisions require such a majority vote." Such is the case here. I CONCLUDE that the Board's vote of 4-3 in favor of renewing Vakulchik's contract did not operate to renew her contract pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1 because the vote was not by a majority of the full membership of the Board.

AWARD APPROVING SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

On March 16, 2020, pursuant to the New Jersey Tenure Employees Hearing Law ("TEHL"), N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et. seq., Petitioner Trenton Public Schools Board of Education (the "Board') certified sworn tenure charges against Respondent Iain Partridge ("Mr. Partridge") to the New Jersey Commissioner of Education (the "Commissioner"). Those charges were properly served upon Mr. Partridge, who filed an Answer with the Commissioner, opposing such charges. On May 7, 2020, the charges were referred by the Commissioner to the undersigned Arbitrator, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16. The Commissioner provided to the undersigned Arbitrator copies of the Tenure Charges and accompanying Statement of Evidence certified by the Board, together with Mr. Partridge's Answer.

On September 1, 2021, the parties submitted a document to the undersigned Arbitrator entitled "Settlement Agreement," by which the Board and Mr. Partridge (collectively, the "Parties") have voluntarily resolved the above-captioned tenure charges. The Parties request that the undersigned Arbitrator review and approve the Settlement Agreement, pursuant to his authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 to "hear and make a final determination on a controversy and dispute arising under subarticle B of article 2 of chapter 6 of Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes (C.18A:6-10 et seq.)."

The undersigned Arbitrator, pursuant to that authority, and further pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, having reviewed the Tenure Charges, Statement of Evidence, and Answer; the terms of the aforesaid Settlement Agreement, and the Board Resolution approving the Settlement Agreement, finds that the terms and conditions of the Settlement Agreement, a copy of which has been provided the Commission which is incorporated by reference herein, meet the standards established by the State Board of Education in the matter entitled In re Cardonick, State Board decision of April 6, 1983 (1990 School Law Decisions (S.L.D.) (842, 846), and set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6.

Accordingly, the settlement is hereby approved and the tenure matter is dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

CONSENT AWARD

Accordingly, I approve the terms of the Settlement and memorialize its terms and conditions in a Consent Award.

Final Decision

R.H. and M.H., on behalf of minor child, A.H.,

Petitioners,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Sayreville, Middlesex County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

In this consolidated matter, petitioners appealed two harassment, intimidation and bullying (HIB) findings by the respondent Board involving their daughter, A.H.– an 8th grader at Sayreville Middle School at the time of the incidents discussed here. In the first appeal, petitioners challenged the Board's determination that AH committed an act of HIB pursuant to the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13 et seq., when she created a social media post depicting a friend with a mud mask on her face with the caption, "When he says he's only into black girls." In the second appeal, petitioners challenged the Board's determination that A.H. was not the victim of HIB after incidents in which A.H. alleged that she had been called a racist by other students at school. The Board contended that its actions were proper and aligned with the Act and the school district's HIB policy.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the threshold requirement for a finding of HIB is that the conduct is reasonably perceived as motivated by an actual or perceived characteristic enumerated in the Act or another distinguishing characteristic, and that the conduct substantially disrupts or interferes with the rights of other students or the orderly operation of the school; it is well settled that when a Board acts within its discretionary authority, its decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be disturbed unless it is found to be patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives; here, A.H.'s conduct in creating a social media post that any reasonable person should know would have the effect of insulting or demeaning African American students, together with the substantial disruption it created in the operation of the school and the fact that A.H. was aware of the racist nature of the post when she created it, met the criteria for a finding of HIB; regarding A.H.'s claim that her classmates bullied her and called her a racist, the Board's subsequent HIB investigation found no evidence to support these allegations. Accordingly, the ALJ affirmed the decisions of the Board in both of these consolidated matters and dismissed the petition.

Upon comprehensive review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the Board did not act in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner in rendering its HIB determinations in these consolidated cases. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

Final Decision

R.H. and M.H., on behalf of minor child, A.H.,

Petitioners,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Sayreville, Middlesex County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed by the petitioners pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the Board's reply thereto.

In this matter, petitioners challenge the Board's determination that their daughter committed an act of harassment, intimidation and bullying (HIB), as well as the Board's determination that their daughter was not a victim of HIB. This case stems from A.H.'s February 11, 2017 social media post of a picture of a friend with a mud mask on her face with the caption, "When he says he's only into black girls."[1] After several students complained to the school, an HIB investigation was conducted, and the Board determined that A.H. had committed an act of HIB; a one-day suspension was imposed, and A.H. was removed from student council. Thereafter, petitioners filed an HIB complaint, claiming that A.H. was being called a racist after an incident in her multicultural class in which she glanced up after students were asked to put their heads down and raise them if they had witnessed racism in their home. She also alleged that she was teased in math class when she was asked if she "liked chocolate" – a reference to whether A.H. dated black boys. The Board found that these incidents did not constitute HIB. Following a hearing, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that even though the social media post occurred outside of school, it constituted HIB because the post caused a substantial disruption at school and met the other requirements of the HIB statute. The ALJ also affirmed the Board's finding that A.H. was not the victim of HIB in the second complaint filed by petitioners.

In their exceptions, petitioners argue that the Board violated A.H.'s first amendment rights to free speech. Petitioners explain that the seminal case involving student speech, Tinker v. Des Moines Independent Community School District, 393, U.S. 503, 506 (1969), protects student speech except when it "substantially interferes with the requirements of appropriate discipline in the operation of the school." Petitioners argue that A.H.'s social media post did not cause a substantial disruption sufficient to overcome her first amendment rights because it only offended students and the school simply had to monitor the cafeteria to make sure there were no physical altercations. Petitioners also discuss a Supreme Court of the United States opinion that came out the day before the Initial Decision, Mahanoy Area School District v. B.L., 594 U.S. ____ (2021), in which the Supreme Court found that a school district violated a student's first amendment rights when it disciplined her for an off-campus Snapchat post criticizing the school's cheerleading squad that used vulgar language and gestures. In that case, the Court did not find evidence of a substantial disruption to the school as "the record shows that discussion of the matter took, at most, 5 to 10 minutes of an Algebra class 'for just a couple of days' and that some members of the cheerleading team were 'upset' about the content of B.L.'s Snapchats." Id. at 10. Petitioners argue that, similar to Mahanoy, the impact of A.H.'s posts on the school did not rise to the level of "substantial disruption."

Petitioners also contend that A.H.'s posts had no nexus to school as the post was made off-campus, on a weekend, and did not mention any student or employee of the school or any classes or school activities. Petitioners explain that in Mahanoy, the Court discussed that three factors distinguish a school's efforts to regulate off-campus speech from its ability to regulate on-campus speech: (1) a school will rarely encroach on parental responsibility by standing in loco parentis (in place of a student's parents when parents are unable to discipline the student) with off-campus activities; (2) when a school attempts to regulate speech for 24-hours of the day, a student cannot engage in protected speech at all; and (3) schools have an interest in protecting unpopular expression as part of the "marketplace of ideas." Petitioners argue that, here, the school was not acting in loco parentis because the speech occurred outside of school and was unrelated to school. Petitioners also contend that by punishing A.H. instead of educating her about how such speech could be interpreted by others, the school is failing its mission of building a "marketplace of ideas." Accordingly, petitioners urge the Commissioner to reject the ALJ's conclusion that A.H. committed an act of HIB.

Petitioners also argue that the ALJ erred in finding that A.H. was not the victim of HIB when classmates targeted her as a racist because the conduct meets the definition of HIB. Petitioners explain that the comment about "chocolate" was motivated by race as it is a reference to African Americans. Petitioners further maintain that the conduct happened in class, violated A.H.'s right to be free from racial discrimination at school, and created a hostile environment for A.H. – so much so that she chose to leave the District. Petitioners, therefore, request that the Commissioner reject the affirmance of the Board's denial of A.H.'s HIB claim.

In reply, the Board argues that the ALJ properly upheld the Board's HIB determinations. The Board maintains that the photo in "black face" with the caption "When he says he's only into black girls" is offensive and A.H. admitted during the investigation that it was racial in nature. The Board further argues that the social media post caused a substantial interference and disruption to the school environment. The school principal testified that three students who came into the main office were very upset about the racist content in A.H.'s post – as well as a separate racist post by another student – and planned on confronting the students who created the posts. Further, multiple students approached her in the cafeteria in the days following these posts, requiring her to spend a lot of time speaking with them regarding the serious nature of the incident; many teachers also reported that students had come to them expressing concerns about the posts. Additionally, despite the recent Mahanoy decision, the Board maintains that its actions passed constitutional muster. With respect to A.H.'s HIB complaint, the Board contends that A.H.'s rights were not violated when she was asked if she "liked chocolate." Additionally, the Board argues that any opinion of A.H. that students may have had was a result of her prior conduct and was not motivated by an actual or perceived characteristic. Accordingly, the Board urges the Commissioner to adopt the Initial Decision.

Upon review, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that, based on the evidence in the record, petitioners did not establish that the Board acted in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner in finding that A.H. committed an act of HIB, nor did the finding that A.H. was not a victim of HIB demonstrate arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable action on the part of the Board. The Commissioner will address both of the HIB determinations beginning with the Board's finding that A.H. committed an act of HIB.

The Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act (the Act) defines HIB as follows:

> [A]ny gesture, any written, verbal or physical act, or any electronic communication, whether it be a single incident or a series of incidents, that is reasonably perceived as being motivated either by any actual or perceived characteristic, such as race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, or a mental, physical or sensory disability, or by any other distinguishing characteristic, that takes place on school property, at any school-sponsored function, on a school bus, or off school grounds as provided for in section 16 of P.L. 2010, c.122 (C.18A:37-15.3), that substantially disrupts or interferes with the orderly operation of the school or the rights of other students and that:
>
> a. a reasonable person should know, under the circumstances, will have the effect of physically or emotionally harming a student or damaging the student's property, or placing a student in reasonable fear of physical or emotional harm to his person or damage to his property;
>
> b. has the effect of insulting or demeaning any student or group of students; or
>
> c. creates a hostile educational environment for the student by interfering with a student's education or by severely or pervasively causing physical or emotional harm to the student.
> N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14.

Therefore, a finding of HIB requires three elements. First, the conduct must be reasonably perceived as motivated by any actual or perceived enumerated characteristic or other distinguishing characteristic and, second, the conduct must substantially disrupt or interfere with the rights of other students or the orderly operation of the school. The third condition is that one of the three criteria enumerated in the Act regarding the effect of the conduct must also be satisfied. Wehbeh v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Verona, Essex County, Commissioner Decision No. 51-20 (decided February 4, 2020). The statute also requires that the conduct take place on school property, at any school-sponsored function, on a school bus, or off school grounds as provided for in N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15.3.

Regarding the first element, in defining HIB as an action "that is reasonably perceived as being motivated either by any actual or perceived characteristic . . .", N.J.S.A.

18A:37-14 (emphasis added), the statute requires an analysis of how the actor's motivation is perceived and whether that perception is reasonable. It does not require an analysis of the actual motivation of the actor. Wehbeh, supra. Here, it was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable for the Board to conclude that a reasonable person would consider A.H.'s social media post depicting a white person in "black face" to be motivated by the distinguishing characteristic of race.

Regarding the second element, there is ample evidence in the record that the social media post caused a substantial disruption to the orderly operation of the school. The school principal testified that three students came into the office very upset about the racist picture posted by A.H., as well as a second offensive post by another student; these students wanted action to be taken immediately and planned to confront those involved in making the posts. The principal further testified that she had concerns that there could be an altercation in a crowded hallway since matters can escalate very quickly with 1,300 students in the building. The principal explained that because of the tension in the school, she had monitored the 8th grade lunch period on that day and for weeks after so that she could prevent matters from erupting in the cafeteria. She testified that multiple students approached her in the cafeteria concerned about racism in the school and wanting to know what was going to happen to the offender. The principal testified that A.H.'s post with the "black face" picture spread through the school, there were murmurings in the hallway, and teachers heard students talking about the matter. The Commissioner finds that – given the social media post spread throughout the school, causing many students to become angry and upset, and resulting in the principal changing her schedule to be present among students to calm the situation and prevent an altercation – the Board was certainly not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable in finding a substantial disruption of the ordinary operation of the school.

Regarding the third element, an act of HIB is one that "a reasonable person should know, under the circumstances, will have the effect of physically or emotionally harming a student," "has the effect of insulting or demeaning a student," or "creates a hostile educational environment . . .". N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14(a) (emphasis added). There is no doubt here that a reasonable person would know that A.H.'s social media post involving a "black face" photograph would cause emotional harm and insult or demean black students because it is inherently racial in nature, such that the Board was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable in reaching that conclusion.

Finally, regarding where the conduct occurred, the Act sets forth that conduct may be considered HIB when it takes place on school property, at any school-sponsored function, on a school bus, or off school grounds as provided for in N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15.3, and that otherwise satisfies the remaining elements of HIB. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15.3 indicates that HIB policies adopted by boards of education shall include provisions for responses to HIB that occurs off school grounds when a school employee is made aware of such actions. Additionally, N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.5(b) requires that school authorities respond to HIB that occurs off school grounds. Accordingly, the Board is required to investigate HIB complaints even if they occur outside of school. Here, the Board received an HIB complaint involving a social media post that occurred outside of school hours, so it was required to investigate the allegations. As A.H.'s social media post was viewed by many students who attended Sayreville Middle School and caused a disturbance at the school, the Board was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable in investigating the conduct that occurred off school grounds and finding that it met the definition of HIB.

The Commissioner does not find petitioners' exceptions to be persuasive. Despite their arguments as to why Mahanoy prevents the Board from regulating her speech, A.H.'s social media post caused a substantial disruption to the school. While the disruption in Mahanoy only consisted of a short 5 to10 minute discussion in Algebra class, the social media post at issue here resulted in students becoming very upset and emotional, creating the potential for altercations such that the principal had to monitor lunch hour for weeks to ensure student safety and to curtail the effects of the students talking about the post throughout the school. Additionally, while petitioners argue that the post had no nexus to school, it is clear that the post was made on a platform that enabled many Sayreville Middle School students to see the picture, thus bringing it into the school, where the post caused a substantial disruption. Additionally, the Board was not attempting to stand in loco parentis; rather, the staff was seeking to maintain order in the school following a social media post that caused interference with the school's regular operations. Moreover, the speech involved here is distinct from the type cited in Mahanoy, i.e., speech expressing disagreement or criticism; instead, the speech here was a racist photograph and remark which a reasonable person would perceive as offensive to black students. Accordingly, the impact of the social media post on the school violated the HIB statute and is within the school's authority to regulate.

With respect to the second HIB matter in which the Board found that A.H. was not the victim of HIB, the Commissioner finds that the Board was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable in its determination. When a local board of education acts within its discretionary authority, its decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be disturbed unless there is an affirmative showing that the decision was "patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives." Kopera v. W. Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). Furthermore, "where there is room for two opinions, action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration[,]" and the Commissioner will not substitute his judgment for that of the board. Bayshore Sewerage Co. v. Dep't. of Envtl. Prot., 122 N.J. Super. 184, 199 (Ch. Div. 1973), aff'd, 131 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1974). Interviews with student witnesses found that other students did not perceive the comment at issue as malicious. While it may have been inappropriate, the comment did not substantially disrupt the school or the rights of A.H. As such, the record contains sufficient credible evidence to support the Board's decision that the HIB allegation could not be substantiated and therefore did not constitute an HIB violation. The Commissioner does not find petitioners' exceptions regarding this HIB allegation to be persuasive.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[2]

BEFORE SARAH G. CROWLEY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This case involves two harassment intimidation and bullying (HIB) claims involving A.H., who was an eighth grader at the time. The first matter involves a Snapchat post by A.H. of a girl with a mud mask on her face with the following comment, " when he says he's only into black girls." After an investigation, the School District (District) found A.H. violated the HIB statute. This decision was affirmed by the Board of Education (Board). The second matter involved a claim by A.H. that she was bullied by fellow students. This claim was not sustained after an investigation and the Board affirmed the finding of no HIB. A.H. has challenged both findings.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

An appeal was filed by the parents of A.H. to both of the findings of District which were affirmed by the Board. The decision in the first HIB matter was issued on March 7, 2017, and the second issued on June 13, 2017. A.H.'s parents filed an appeal in both of the matters, and they were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as contested matters. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. The matters were consolidated with the consent of both parties and were heard via Zoom on January 7, 2021. The record was closed after post-hearing submissions by the parties on June 2, 2021.

STATEMENT OF ISSUES

The facts in the first HIB matter are essentially undisputed. A.H. admitted to posting a girl with a mud mask on with the caption "when he says he only into black girls" on her snapchat account. The first issue is whether such a posting can reasonably be perceived as being motivated either by any actual or perceived characteristic, such as race. The other determinations in the first matter is whether there was a sufficient nexus to the school, and whether the conduct caused a sufficient disruption to the school to satisfy the statute. Any determination by the District will only be disturbed if it is found to be arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. The District found that the posting constituted HIB, and their finding was affirmed by the Board. The second HIB matter involves a determination of whether A.H. was bullied by other students. A.H. alleged that she was called racist and teased about whether she liked chocolate, meaning did she date black boys. The District investigated the allegations and were unable to substantiate any of the allegations by A.H. and found no HIB. The Board affirmed this decision.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

R.H. is A.H.'s father and testified on her behalf. He testified that his daughter was thirteen years old at the time of the incident. She reposted something that one of her friends had posted on Snapchat. R.H. testified that A.H. had two separate Snapchat accounts and one was her "finsta" account, which had a smaller following. A.H. had approximately 250 followers and many school friends on the account in question. It was her fun account and she did not mean to offend anyone. R.H. testified that A.H. told him about an incident in her cultural diversity class where the teacher told them to put their heads down on the desk and raise them if they had witnessed racism in their home. After she raised her head a little to see what others were doing, everyone called her a racist. There was another incident in her math class when some students asked her if she liked chocolate, implying did she like black boys.

R.H. testified that A.H. was very happy and doing very well in school before this incident happened. She was on student council and loved school. However, after all this happened, she did not want to go to school anymore, and she was bullied by her classmates. They did not report any problems until after the posting, but the incident in the cultural diversity class happened before the posting. He testified that she had never been in trouble and had a lot of friends. Following the finding of HIB, they suspended her and removed it from the student council. A.H. was unable to attend a student government class trip as a result of the suspension and the removal from the student council. Ultimately, they transferred her to another school because she was so unhappy.

A.H. was sworn with the consent of her parents who were present with her on the Zoom hearing. She is now a senior in high school. She was questioned by her attorney about being under oath, and she testified that she understood that she had to tell truth. She testified that she reposted the Snapchat of a friend in the shower with a mud mask on. A.H. read the caption which stated, "when he says he's only into black girls." She testified that she thought it was funny and reposted it on her own finsta Snapchat account. She did not think it was racist and thought it was funny. A.H. testified that prior to this posting there was an incident in her multicultural class where the teacher asked everyone to put their heads down on the desk and to raise them if they had witnessed racism in their home. She lifted her head a little to see what others were doing and people started calling her a racist. Another incident happened in math class when they had a substitute, and someone asked her if she liked chocolate. She knew this meant does she like or date black boys. She tried to just ignore it, but she was taunted for being a racist. A.H. used to like school, but things got bad, and she did not want to go to school anymore. She was removed from student counsel and could not go on the student counsel trip due to HIB finding related to the posting. A.H. said she had never been in trouble in school before. However, on cross-examination she conceded that she was disciplined in sixth and seventh grade for behavior issues. When she was questioned about whether she thought the post was racist, she said no. She further testified that sitting here today, she still did not think the post was racist.

Donna Jakubik (Jakubik), was the principal at Sayreville Middle School at the time this incident with the posting occurred. She said that several students came to see her and were very offended by the mud face posting by A.H., and another one by a friend of A.H. who posted someone wearing a Klansman hood. The kids said they were going to confront A.H. about the posting because they were so offended. Ms. Jakubik advised them not to and initiated an investigation. She had to monitor the lunchroom after the posting to make sure there was no trouble following the complaint. She interviewed several students including A.H. in connection with the investigation. She called A.H. to her office to ask her about the posting. A.H. acknowledged that she posted the mud mask with the comment. She said she re-posting of something from her friend had posted with her own comment "HAHAHAHA LOVE HERR" with some emojis. A.H. advised Ms. Jakubik that she had been reluctant to post it because she knew it was racist, but she did anyway. Because there were several students very upset by the post, Ms. Jakubik had to intervene to make sure there was no trouble. Due to the racist nature of the post, she felt the one-day suspension was appropriate. She also felt that removal from the student council was appropriate as they did not feel she was someone who should be representing the student body. Ms. Jakubik testified that this was not the first time A.H. had been in trouble and thought and that she had been disciplined in sixth grade for a fight and in seventh grade for waiving her bra around on the school bus. She also thought that A.H. knew the post was racist and offensive and she did it anyway. She said the one-day suspension and the removal from the student council were an appropriate punishment.

Ms. Jakubik is familiar with the investigative process for HIB allegations. She followed all the proper protocols and interviewed other students and prepared a report. She made her recommendation to the superintendent. There was a hearing before the Board of Education, and they considered all appropriate factors in deciding that it was HIB and what discipline to impose. She indicated that they do not share the results of their investigation with others of what the discipline was. There were several students who wanted to know what was being done, but they did not share any information about the investigation and the resulting discipline.

Ms. Jakubik was also in charge of the other HIB matter, which was filed by A.H.'s parents after the first HIB incident. A.H.'s father reported that A.H. was being bullied after the investigation was commenced into the posting. He claimed that she was being taunted for being a racist and asked if she liked chocolate. He also reported that here was an incident in the multicultural class where the teacher had asked the kids to put their head down on the desk and raised them if anyone in their household made any racist comments Apparently, A.H raised her head and was called racist by the other children. Ms. Jakubik interviewed several other students in the class and could not corroborate that she had been called a racist by anyone. She also investigated the other incident in the math class where students kept asking her if she liked chocolate—meaning did she like black boys. None of the allegations of bullying against A.H. were corroborated during her investigation. A report was prepared and the recommendation to the superintendent of a finding of no HIB went to the Board, where it was affirmed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The resolution of the claims made by the petitioner requires that I make a credibility determination regarding certain facts. The choice of accepting or rejecting the witnesses' testimony or credibility rests with the finder of fact. Freud v. Davis, 64 N.J. Super. 242, 246 (App. Div. 1960). In addition, for testimony to be believed, it must not only come from the mouth of a credible witness, but it also must be credible. It must elicit evidence that is from such common experiences and observation that it can be approved as proper under the circumstances. See, Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546 (1954); Gallo v. Gallo, 66 N.J. Super. 1 (App. Div. 1961). A credibility determination requires an overall assessment of the witnesses' story considering its rationality, internal consistency and the way it "hangs together" with the other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718,749 (1963). A fact finder is free to weigh the evidence and to reject the testimony of a witness, even though not directly contradicted, when it is contrary to circumstances given in evidence or contains inherent improbabilities or contradictions which alone, or in connection with other circumstances in evidence, excite suspicion as to its truth. In re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514. 521-22 (1950). See, D'Amato by McPherson v. D'Amato, 305 N.J. Super. 109, 115 (App. Div. 1997).

Having had an opportunity to carefully observe the demeanor of the witnesses, and to weigh the evidence before me, it is my view that A.H. was not credible. I found the testimony of Ms. Jakubik credible and consistent with the documentary evidence and other testimony. I specifically found her testimony regarding her conversation with A.H. very credible. She testified and documented that after her initial discussion with A.H. that she acknowledged that she was reluctant to repost the picture due to it being racist. I found that A.H.'s father was sincere and credible regarding his concern for his daughter but had no direct or firsthand knowledge of the facts that were relevant to a finding of HIB on either claim. I found Ms. Jakubik's testimony regarding the investigation of bullying against A.H. and the inability to corroborate any of the allegations to be credible. I found A.H.'s testimony that she did not think the post was racist then or now not be credible.

Accordingly, I FIND the following as FACT:

1. On February 11, 2017, A.H. posted a picture of a friend with a mud mask on her face with the comment "when he says he is only into black girls" on her Snapchat account.

2. A.H. was aware of the racist nature of the post.

3. Although the post was made on a Saturday, A.H. had many followers, including fellow students at Sayreville Middle School.

4. Several students complained to the school, and a HIB investigation was conducted.
5. An investigation was conducted and a report finding HIB against A.H. was issued. The Board of Education affirmed the finding of HIB.

6. All of the procedural requirements of the anti-bullying statute were followed by the District in both of the investigations.

7. Several students were very offended by the post and wanted to confront A.H.

8. The District had to monitor lunch and keep a close eye on things due to the fear that these students might confront A.H.

9. Although the post was done outside of school, due to the impact on the students at Sayreville Middle School, and the followers of her account from Sayreville, there is sufficient nexus between the post and school.

10. There was a sufficient disruption to the school as a result of the post by A.H.

11. The decision of the Board affirming this decision was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

12. After the issuance of the HIB finding by the District, R.H. filed an HIB action on behalf of A.H. claiming that she was called a racist and was being bullied at school.

13. An investigation was conducted, and students and staff were interviewed and no substantiation of the claims of HIB against A.H. were found.

14. There is no credible evidence that A.H. was bullied.

15. The decision of the District was supported by the evidence, or rather lack thereof and the affirmance by the Board was not arbitrary, unreasonable or capricious.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

With regard to speech that constitutes harassment, intimidation or bullying, the New Jersey Legislature enacted the Anti-Bullying Bill of Rights Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13.2, et seq., to "strengthen the standards and procedures for preventing, reporting, investigating, and responding to incidents of harassment, intimidation, and bullying" occurring both on and off of school grounds. N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13.1(f). Each school district in New Jersey is required to "adopt a policy prohibiting harassment, intimidation or bullying on school property," which includes notification of the "consequences and appropriate remedial action for a person who commits an act of harassment, intimidation or bullying," "a procedure for reporting an act of harassment, intimidation or bullying, including a provision that permits a person to report an act of harassment, intimidation or bullying anonymously," and "a procedure for prompt investigation of reports of violations." N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15. "The policy adopted by each school district . . . shall include provisions for appropriate responses to harassment, intimidation, or bullying . . . that occurs off school grounds, in cases in which a school employee is made aware of such actions." N.J.S.A. 18A:37-15.3.

N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14 defines "harassment, intimidation or bullying" to mean:

> [A]ny gesture, any written, verbal or physical act, or any electronic communication, whether it be a single incident or a series of incidents, that is reasonably perceived as being motivated either by any actual or perceived characteristic, such as race, color, religion, ancestry, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, or a mental, physical or sensory disability, or by any other distinguishing characteristic, that takes place on school property, at any school-sponsored function, on a school bus, or off school grounds as provided for in section 16 of P.L.2010, c. 122 (C.18A:37-15.3), that substantially disrupts or interferes with the orderly operation of the school or the rights of other students and that:
>
> a. a reasonable person should know, under the circumstances, will have the effect of physically or emotionally harming a student or damaging the student's property, or placing a student in reasonable fear of physical or emotional harm to his person or damage to his property;
>
> b. has the effect of insulting or demeaning any student or group of students; or
> c. creates a hostile educational environment for the student by interfering with a student's education or by severely or pervasively causing physical or emotional harm to the student.

The threshold requirement is that the conduct be reasonably perceived as motived by actual or perceived enumerated characteristic or other distinguishing characteristic, and that the conduct substantially disrupts or interferes with the right of other students or the orderly operation of school. It is well settled that a Board decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and may not be disturbed unless they are found to be decisively flawed. Kopera v W. Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super 228 (App. Div. 1960). When a Board acts "within its discretion authorly, as it did here, its decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be disturbed unless there is an affirmative showing that the decision was patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives." Id. Neither the undersigned nor the Commissioner is permitted to "substitute her judgment for that of the board." Bayshore Sewar Company v. Dept of Envtl. Prot., 131 N.J.S. Super 37 (App. Div. 1974).

The petitioner has argued that since the conduct did not occur on school property on school hours that it fails to meet the requirement of HIB. However, our statute specifically recognizes activity that occurs off school property if it causes a substantial disruption at school and meets the other requirements of the statute. The petitioner further argues that this conduct did not cause a substantial disruption to school activities. However, the testimony of Ms. Jakubik, whom I found credible was that many students were very upset and she had to monitor activities in school due to a threat by students that they were going to confront A.H. Finally, the District findings were neither arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. The allegations of HIB by A.H. were investigation and none of her allegations could but substantiated after a HIB investigation was conducted. The decision of the District and the Board was neither arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

Accordingly, I conclude that the Snapchat posting by A.H., which occurred after school hours on a social media account caused a substantial disruption with the operation of school. Many students were upset, they complained, an investigation was conducted, and activities surrounding the student had to be monitored following the event to ensure her safety. I further conclude that not only should a reasonable person know that this post had the effect of insulting or demeaning African American students, I found as fact, that A.H. was aware of the racist nature of the post when she posted it. Accordingly, I conclude that the requirements of N.J.S. A. 18A:37-14 have been satisfied, and the finding of HIB by the District is affirmed. As to the allegations of A.H. that she was called a racist and bullied, the District investigated these claims, and found no one to support these allegations. I have also found no credible evidence to support this claim. Accordingly, giving the deference I am required to give to the District, the decisions of the Board on both claims are hereby affirmed.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that the decision of the Board finding HIB in the first claim is AFFIRMED and the appeal of A.H. is DISMISSED. It is also ORDERED that the decision of the Board finding no HIB against A.H. is AFFIRMED, and the appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

J.M., on behalf of minor child, J.S.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Wayne,

Passaic County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Pro se petitioner challenged the respondent Board's determination that J.S. is not entitled to attend Wayne Valley High School (Wayne Valley) because she is not residing within the attendance zone for that school. Petitioner sought to have J.S. reassigned from Wayne Hills High School (Wayne Hills) to Wayne Valley – both of which are operated by the Wayne Township school district – contending that the Board should exercise its discretionary powers under Policy #5120, which allows that the superintendent may assign a pupil to a school other than the one designated by the attendance area when such an exception is justified by circumstances and/or is in the best interests of the pupil. Petitioner asserted, inter alia, that safety concerns regarding J.S.'s commute to school at Wayne Hills – which will require J.S. to traverse busy roads on the walk home from school – as well as logistical issues related to J.M.'s role as a single working mother which prevent her from transporting J.S. home from school each day require that the district reassign J.S. to Wayne Valley for high school.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: a school board has discretionary power to determine which school students will attend within its district, so long as the decision is not contrary to law; the Board applied its Policy #5120 in an even-handed manner; the Board considered whether attendance at Wayne Valley was required in the best interests of the pupil and determined that J.S. is a good student who will do well in either school; and J.S. would be entering her first year of high school whether at Wayne Hills or Wayne Valley. The ALJ concluded that the Board did not act in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner when it denied petitioners' request to allow J.S. to attend Wayne Valley while the family resided in the attendance zone for Wayne Hills; and recommended that the petition be dismissed.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusion for the reasons well stated in the Initial Decision. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

Final Decision

J.M., on behalf of minor child, J.S.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Wayne, Passaic County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that that Board did not act in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner when it denied petitioner's request to allow her minor child to attend Wayne Valley High School while the family resides in the attendance zone for Wayne Hills High School.

According, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WAYNE, PASSAIC COUNTY,

J.M., on behalf of J.S. petitioner pro se

John G. Geppert, Jr., Esq., for respondent Wayne Township Board of Education (Scarinci Hollenbeck, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 29, 2021 Decided: August 9, 2021

BEFORE GAIL M. COOKSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

J.M. (petitioner) appeals the Board of Education for the Township of Wayne's (Board) determination that her daughter, J.S., is not entitled to attend Wayne Valley High School because she is not residing within that attendance zone. Petitioner claims that she has extenuating personal circumstances that warrant waiving the attendance policy for J.S.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about January 10, 2021, J.M. sent via email a formal request to the Board requesting that her daughter be given permission to attend the Wayne Valley High School instead of Wayne Hills High School, which is the assigned school for her address. The Board notified petitioner of its determination on February 12, 2021. [R-5.] J.M. filed her petition of appeal directly with the Commissioner of Education on March 4, 2021. The Board filed its answer on March 24, 2021, and the matter was then transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case on March 30, 2021. The matter was assigned to me on or about April 19, 2021. Thereafter, the hearing was scheduled and held on July 29, 2021, through the use of Zoom remote technology because of the continued New Jersey State of Emergency for the coronavirus pandemic. Insofar as the petitioner was not represented by counsel and the case was presented thoroughly by both sides, I determined that I did not need post-hearing submissions and I closed the record at the end of the hearing.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon due consideration of the pleadings and the testimonial and documentary evidence presented, and having had the opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses and assess their credibility, I FIND the following facts:

Petitioner testified that she is single mother to her two daughters, with no family network of support. Her daughters are 3.3 years and four grades apart; S.S. has graduated. She has lived in Wayne for seventeen years. Petitioner works in Roseland, Essex County, so she is unable to pick up her daughter at the end of the school day. Her job does give her the opportunity to drive J.S. to school at the beginning of the day. Wayne does not offer busing at the distances involved.

Petitioner detailed that she is facing some hardships and/or concerns that she feels warrant the Board granting J.S. an exception in order to be able to attend Wayne Valley High School. She stated that some aspects of her support system and circumstances have changed recently, making this request more important for J.S.'s upcoming tenure in high school. Those include that her mother is no longer well enough to help with the girls, as she did when the older daughter was in high school, and some personal medical issues coming up for her that will necessitate having J.S. sleep at a friend's home at times. Also, in her family, Covid made their lives easier when they were all remote from school or work, but now real commuting considerations come into back play. Petitioner is very worried about the safety of her daughter walking home from Wayne Hills, where traversing busier streets is required. Moreover, her older daughter suffered some serious behavioral and mental health issues when she was required to attend Wayne Hills without her friends from middle school, and petitioner does not want the same to happen to her younger daughter.

This winter, petitioner anticipated her younger daughter's entry into high school in the fall and filed her request that she be permitted to remain with her friend S.J., whose mother has also been a critical component of J.M.'s support network, from the Wayne Valley attendance zone. Petitioner explained that J.S. has become very close friends with S.J. and she has become good friends with that child's mother T.J. T.J. provides significant help to petitioner by transporting J.S. to activities both girls are engaged in, allowing J.S. to study after school, and letting her sleep over if petitioner has a medical issue. For high school, S.J. will be attending Warren Valley.

On cross examination, petitioner acknowledged that J.S. has been a good student and has had little need for interaction with her guidance counselor or the principal there.

T.J. also testified on behalf of petitioner, in addition to submitting a Certification. She detailed many of the same ways in which she helps J.M. and J.S. T.J. and her husband have a strong belief in helping others and place a very high value on that as well as on education. She has always had a nanny or babysitter in their home for hours every day as additional childcare. While she cannot commit to picking up J.S. from Wayne Hills, T.J. did assert that she will still help petitioner and J.S. in as many ways as she is able.

Donna Reichman testified on behalf of the Board. She has been an employee with the Wayne district for eighteen years as a teacher, principal, and now Assistant Superintendent, which latter position she has held for the last five years. Reichman reviewed the history of the petitioner's request and the Board's response, that were largely delegated to her, especially after Covid when everyone was overwhelmed with the "new normal" and an excessive number of personal requests by staff and pupils.

With respect to the reasons provided by petitioner, Reichman explained that Policy #5120 supported the Board's decision to deny the request to place J.S. as a freshman at the high school outside her attendance zone. Policy #5120 specifically, and in pertinent part, states:

> Pupils shall generally attend the school located in the attendance area of their residence. The Superintendent may assign a pupil to a school other than that designated by the attendance area when such an exception is justified by circumstances and/or is in the best interests of the pupil.

Reichman focused on the fact that the Board has been very consistent in applying this policy to the multiple requests they receive each year. When questioned about the frequency with which the Board has granted exceptions under Policy #5120, Reichman stated that out of a student population of over 7500, there had been approximately three who were granted it because they were in their final year and three who were granted it because of IEP implementation issues.

With respect to J.M.'s concerns that her younger daughter would experience emotional difficulties similar to those her older daughter encountered when forced to attend Wayne Hills, Reichman stated that J.S.'s guidance counselor and middle school principal were consulted for that very reason and both supported her going to the assigned school. She further testified to the after-school social options that she has observed from both high schools.

On cross-examination, Reichman expressed sympathy for J.M.'s personal circumstances. She described that Covid and its related consequences have also caused many families in Wayne into difficult circumstances. As a result, the Board has opted to bring on four mental health professionals this school year, as well as offering transition plans for children who need them in order to adjust to an unexpected school setting. Nevertheless, Reichman detailed that she has a responsibility to adhere to the policy, which also has derivative impacts on staffing and forecasting enrollment.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The issue in this matter is whether J.S. should have been granted an exception to the attendance policy in order to be able to attend Wayne Valley High School, notwithstanding that she and her mother reside in the Wayne Hills zone, albeit pretty close to the dividing line. Specifically, petitioner seeks a determination herein that the Board should exercise its discretion under its Policy #5120 to allow J.S. to attend Wayne Valley because of her sincere dependence on T.J. for transportation, after-school supervision, and occasional, medically necessitated, overnight stays.

As set forth above, Policy #5120 states:

> Pupils shall generally attend the school located in the attendance area of their residence. The Superintendent may assign a pupil to a school other than that designated by the attendance area when such an exception is justified by circumstances and/or is in the best interests of the pupil.

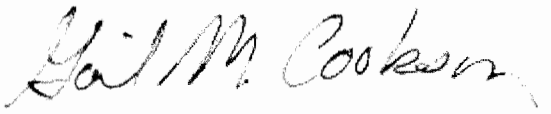
Based on the preponderance of the credible evidence, I CONCLUDE that J.S. is residing in the attendance zone of Wayne Hills High School. I further CONCLUDE that the Board has properly applied its Policy #5120 and did so herein in a fair, reasonable, and nonarbitrary manner. The evidence clearly demonstrates that the Board has applied Policy #5120 in an even-handed manner. The Board also carefully considered whether attendance at Wayne Valley High School was required in the best interests of the pupil and determined that J.S. was not in need of special services and that she was likely to succeed there.

I CONCLUDE that the Board was correct and entirely consistent with its policy and past cases in deciding that petitioner's circumstances do not come within the school assignment policy exceptions. Reichman was empathetic to J.M.'s circumstances and agreed to help informally where the school can (crossing guard, ride-share information etc.). I, too, feel for J.M.'s tough situation, having been a single mother myself, and I recognize that economic or other hardships which befall parents often have unintended consequences for their child(ren). Nevertheless, these events happen in life and we all have to adjust within the system that governs all similarly situated pupils.



ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is ORDERED that the petition of appeal of J.M. on behalf of J.S. should be and is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. This Agreement is made as of April _____, 2021, by and between Petitioner, Somerville Board of Education ("the Board" or "Petitioner"), and the Respondent, Marlene O'Brien, o/b/o J.O.

RECITALS

WHEREAS, in or about January of 2019, Petitioner Somerville Board of Education determined, based on the results of a residency investigation, that minor student J.O. was not domiciled in the Somerville School District ("District") and thus not entitled to a free, public education in the District; and

WHEREAS, the Board thereafter passed a resolution ordering the Respondent to pay tuition for the period of J.O.'s ineligible attendance in the District; and

WHEREAS, the Board thereafter commenced this administrative action to recoup alleged tuition costs; and

WHEREAS, this administrative action is captioned Somerville Board of Education v. M.O. o/b/o minor child J.O., and is presently pending before the Commissioner of Education in the Office of Administrative Law and docketed as OAL Dkt. No. EDU 7954-19S, Agency Dkt. No. 92-5/19 ("the Litigation"), the allegations of which are detailed more fully in the Petition of Appeal served and filed in the Litigation; and

WHEREAS, in order to avoid the expense, inconvenience, distractions and inherent uncertainties associated with continuation of this dispute, and the fees and expenses that inevitably would result therefrom, the Parties, by this Agreement, herein agree to adopt a full and final settlement of any and all claims, lawsuits, complaints, and/or disputes between Petitioner and Respondent in connection with any and all damages and losses arising from the Litigation; and

WHEREAS, by this Agreement, Petitioner will voluntarily dismiss the Litigation with prejudice, without costs to any party as against the other;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of good and valuable consideration, the sufficiency and adequacy of which is acknowledged, the parties to this Agreement agree as follows:

1. Petitioner shall pay the Board the sum of Three Thousand, Five Hundred Dollars ($3,500.00), representing back tuition due and owing for the period of the student's ineligible attendance in the District as determined by the Board and as set forth in the Petition, which shall constitute a full and final settlement of the claim for back tuition asserted against Respondent by the Board of Education in the Litigation.
2. The amount of $3.500.00 is to be paid as follows: Within fifteen (15) days after approval of the Agreement, Respondent, by and through her counsel, shall make payment in the full amount due and owing in the form of a check made payable to the "Somerville Board of Education." Respondent, by and through her counsel, may deliver the check to the attention of Joseph L. Roselle, Esq., Petitioner's counsel, at Schenck, Price, Smith & King, LLP, 220 Park Avenue, Florham Park, NJ 07932, or cause the check to be delivered or mailed to the office of Bryan Boyce, School Business Administrator/Board Secretary, at the District Administration office, 51 West Cliff Street, Somerville, NJ 08876. Upon approval of this Agreement, counsel for Petitioner and Respondent will discuss and agree on the method for distribution of the amount due hereunder.

3. The Board, in consideration of this Stipulation of Settlement and Release, and in full, final, and complete settlement of the matter, hereby agrees to a withdrawal and/or dismissal, with prejudice, of the Petition of Appeal in this matter.
4. Respondent understands and agrees that, if she fails to make a payment in accordance with this Agreement, such failure shall constitute a default.
5. In the event of a default, Respondent further agrees to indemnify the Board for any and all costs, including court costs and attorney's fees, associated with any action instituted by Petitioner to enforce the terms of this Agreement should Respondent breach the Agreement and/or fail to adhere to the agreed-upon payment plan.
6. The terms of this Agreement shall in no way constitute acceptance or assent by the Board that J.O., nor any other child of Respondent, as may be applicable, is automatically entitled to a free public education in the District at any point in the future, and the Parties understand and agree that the Board reserves the right to investigate any student's residency status in the District at any time should same become necessary to do so, in order to determine whether or not Petitioner and/or her child(ren) remain domiciled in the District.

7. This Agreement is subject to approval by the Somerville Board of Education. If approved, the Board President, Superintendent and/or Business Administrator, as indicated, is fully authorized to execute this Agreement on behalf of the Board.

8. In exchange for the above consideration, Petitioner, Somerville Board of Education agrees to release Respondent from any and all claims, cross-claims, counterclaims, demands, liabilities, damages, indebtedness, costs, attorneys' fees, actions or obligations of any nature, which solely arise out of or are related in any way to this Litigation, through the date of this Agreement and agrees to the withdrawal/dismissal of any pending claim for tuition payments, through the date of this Agreement.

9. This Agreement shall not constitute an admission of wrongdoing by any party and no party shall be considered to be a prevailing party for any purpose.

10. This Agreement is to be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey.

11. Respondent hereby represents that she is freely entering into this Agreement, that he was advised of her right to obtain counsel of her choosing and has consulted with her attorney regarding the effect of this Agreement.

12. This Settlement shall be subject to the approval of the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education prior to becoming effective.

13. This Agreement shall be binding upon all parties hereto, and shall inure to the benefit of each of them, as well as their respective estates, heirs, legal representatives, successors, predecessors, parent companies, subsidiaries, affiliates, owners, directors, officers, shareholders, members, employees, agents and assigns.

14. This Agreement constitutes the entire understanding and agreement by the parties with respect to the subject matter of this Agreement, and there are no agreements, undertakings, restrictions, representations or warranties as between the parties other than those set forth herein. This Agreement supersedes all previous arrangements or understandings, whether written or oral, and contains the entire agreement of the parties with respect to its subject matter. This Agreement may be modified or amended only by written agreement jointly executed by the Petitioner and Respondent.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have executed this Agreement, consisting of five pages, effective on the day and year first above written.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Charlotte Jones and Lisa May,

Petitioners,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Winslow, Camden County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioners – tenured teachers employed by the respondent Board who received evaluation ratings below the "effective" range and were subsequently placed on Corrective Action Plans (CAP) for the 2019-2020 school year – appealed a determination by the respondent Board to withhold their salary increments for the 2020-2021 school year based upon "partially effective" summative ratings. Petitioners contend that the Board's actions contravened the Governor's COVID-19 Executive Order No. 103 and related guidelines issued by the New Jersey Department of Education (NJDOE), which mandated that as tenured teachers on a CAP, petitioners were entitled to receive Not Evaluated (NE) ratings for the 2019-2020 school year because of school closures due to the COVID-19 public health emergency. The Board maintained that its decision was made in accordance with Board policy and its managerial prerogative to award salary increments based upon effective service. The parties filed opposing motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue in this case, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; it is well settled that a salary increment is a reward for meritorious service, not an entitlement; any board of education may withhold, for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment of any staff member in any year; a local school board's decision to withhold a salary increment is a matter of management prerogative and is entitled to a presumption of correctness; however, in this case, the Board improperly disregarded the Governor's Executive Order and related Guidelines when it issued "partially effective" summative evaluations to petitioners; the Board therefore acted arbitrarily in using these improper evaluations as the basis upon which to withhold petitioners' salary increments. Accordingly, the ALJ granted summary decision in favor of the petitioners and directed that the Board restore petitioners' salary increments for the 2020-2021 school year.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions in this matter and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision for the reasons thoroughly expressed therein. The Board was directed to restore petitioners' increments for the 2020-21 school year.

OAL Dkt. No. EDU 08392-20
Agency Dkt. No. 182-8/20

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Decision

Charlotte Jones and Lisa May,

Petitioners,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Winslow, Camden County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.[1]

In this matter, petitioning tenured teachers who are employed by the Winslow Township Board of Education (Board) are challenging the Board's decision to withhold their increments for the 2020-2021 school year. Due to evaluation ratings below the "effective" range, petitioners were both placed on Corrective Action Plans (CAPs) for the 2019-20 school year. During that school year, petitioners each had two evaluations before the school closure caused by the COVID-19 pandemic. Jones received an "effective" rating on one evaluation and "partially effective" rating on the other, while May received two "partially effective" ratings on her evaluations.

After Governor Murphy declared a public health emergency in March 2020, the Commissioner of Education issued a "Notice of Rule Waiver/Modification/Suspension Pursuant to Executive Order 103 (2020)," effective April 3, 2020, modifying certain requirements regarding annual summative ratings for educators due to the extended school closures and cancellation of State assessments. In pertinent part, the rule modification found:

> Educators working under a CAP for the 2019-2020 school year will receive a NE [not evaluated] code. These individuals should continue to receive support for the remainder of the 2019-2020 school year and the CAP shall remain in effect at the start of the 2020-2021 school year in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.5(l).
> [Petitioners' Exhibit A.]

The Department also issued guidance on its website entitled "Educator Evaluation During Extended School Closure as a Result of COVID-19," which indicated the following regarding certificated staff who were on a CAP:

> a. Chief School Administrators have the discretion to produce a summative rating for an educator currently on a CAP who had been progressing towards an Effective or Highly Effective rating (as shown by observation scores issued up to this point in the year) and who will be moved back into good standing by the issuance of a summative rating. Please apply the guidance provided for nontenured teachers to develop a summative rating for educators described here.
>
> b. All other educators on a CAP will receive a Not Evaluated (NE) rating for the 2019-2020 school year.
>
> c. Coaching should continue for the remainder of the 2019-2020 school year.
>
> d. The current CAP will be in place for the start of the 2020-2021 school year.
>
> e. At the start of the SY 2020-2021, the educator and supervisor should collaboratively review the CAP and amend it to reflect the educator's assignment and context.
>
> [Petitioners' Exhibit B (emphasis added).]

Despite this guidance, both petitioners received summative ratings of "partially effective." The Assistant Principal's notes on May 6, 2020 regarding May state:

> Summative Completed. Ms. May was advised of the following in addition to it being recorded as part of her summative:

> "As a result of receiving an overall score of Partially Effective (2.47), as well as the continued findings listed in the above summative, Ms. May is being recommended for a pay increment withholding for the 2020-2021 school year. Ms. May will continue to be on a Corrective Action Plan for the 2020-2021 school year."
>
> [Petitioners' Exhibit D.]

Similarly, the Assistant Principal's notes on May 6, 2020 regarding Jones state:

> Summative Completed. Ms. Jones was advised of the following in addition to it being recorded as part of her summative:
>
> "As a result of receiving an overall score of Partially Effective (2.54), as well as the continued findings listed in the above summative, Ms. Jones is being recommended for a pay increment withholding for the 2020-2021 school year. Ms. Jones will continue to be on a Corrective Action Plan for the 2020-2021 school year."

Thereafter, counsel for the Winslow Township Education Association (WTEA) wrote a letter to the Board in advance of a Board meeting regarding petitioners' increments. Counsel argued that there is no basis by which to withhold their increments because, based on the Department's guidance, they both should have received "NE" ratings, and accordingly they cannot be subject to performance-based increment withholdings. In response, the Board attorney acknowledged the guidance, but indicated that the guidance did not prohibit increment withholdings for inefficiency or other good cause, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. At its meeting on June 24, 2020, the Board approved the Superintendent's recommendation to withhold petitioners' increments for the 2020-21 school year.

The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that the Board improperly disregarded the Executive Order and Guidelines when it issued "partially effective" summative evaluations to petitioners, and therefore acted arbitrarily when it used those improper evaluations as the basis to withhold their increments. Specifically, the ALJ explained:

> Respondent framed the issue as whether the Guidance regarding the evaluation of tenured staff on a CAP precluded the Board from withholding Jones' and May's salary increment as a matter of law. I disagree with respondent's framing of the issue. The issue is much narrower. As articulated in petitioners' cross-motion for summary decision, the issue is whether the basis for Jones' and May's salary withholding was their summative ratings of "Partially Effective" in violation of the Executive Order and Guidelines. As there is no dispute that the salary withholding was based on the summative ratings of "Partially Effective," I CONCLUDE that the Board's actions violated the Executive Order and Guidelines and thus, were improper. To determine otherwise would be to condone the Board's decision to disregard the COVID-19 Executive Order and Guidelines.
> [Initial Decision at 8.]

Accordingly, the ALJ ordered that petitioners' increments be restored for the 2020-21 school year.[2]

Upon a comprehensive review of the record, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that the Board acted unreasonably when it withheld petitioners' increments based on the fact that they received "partially effective" summative ratings; both petitioners should have received "NE" ratings in accordance with Department guidance and the rule modification. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, a board may withhold "for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment, or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year." Teachers are not entitled to salary increments; instead, they are a reward for meritorious service. North Plainfield Education Association v. Board of Education of the Borough of North Plainfield, 96 N.J. 587, 593 (1984). The decision to withhold an increment for teachers who have not performed well is a management prerogative. Ibid. As such, when challenging an increment withholding, a teacher has the burden to demonstrate that the board acted arbitrarily, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. Board of Education of the Town of West Orange, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960).

[2] The ALJ also found that the Board treated petitioners as nontenured teachers when it chose to apply the summative rating of "Partially Effective," rather than the correct rating of "NE" as instructed by the guidance. The Commissioner finds that it is not clear from the record that the Board treated petitioners as nontenured teachers; however, the reason why the Board chose to disregard the guidance and issue summative ratings is not pertinent to this decision.

This matter involves a unique set of circumstances under which petitioners have met their burden of demonstrating that the Board acted arbitrarily and unreasonably. It is clear from the record that the Board completed petitioners' summative ratings for the 2019-20 school year. Copies of the summative reports are in the record, accompanied by the Assistant Principal's note that "[a]s a result of receiving an overall score of Partially Effective . . . as well as the continued findings listed in the above summative, [petitioners are] being recommended for a pay increment withholding for the 2020-2021 school year." (Petitioners' Exhibit D). This language leaves no doubt that the sole basis of the Board's withholding of their increments was their summative ratings. Furthermore, the Board attorney's June 10, 2020 letter – in response to the WTEA counsel's letter that challenged the Board's authority to make performance-based increment withholdings – also stated that petitioners' evaluations in the 2019-20 school year "resulted in a score of 'Partially Effective.'" (Petitioners' Exhibit H).

The Department's rule modification changed the procedures regarding educator evaluations due to the COVID-19 public health emergency and indicated that educators working under a CAP in the 2019-20 school year "will receive a 'NE' code." The Department also issued guidance which reiterated that those teachers will receive a "NE" rating. The fact that the Board disregarded the instructions that it received from the Department regarding summative ratings, issued "partially effective" summative ratings to petitioners despite specific guidance to the contrary, and then used those ratings as the basis for their increment withholdings is troubling, unreasonable, and arbitrary. While the Board has argued that the underlying performance of petitioners – and not their summative ratings – was the true reason for the increment withholding, the record is clear that the reasoning behind the increment withholdings was the "partially effective" summative ratings, which rightfully should have been rated "NE."

Finally, the Commissioner need not address the broader issue of whether performance-based increment withholdings were prohibited for the 2020-21 school year due to the rule modification and guidelines, because the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that the issue here is much narrower and hinges on whether the basis for petitioners' salary withholdings was their "partially effective" summative ratings in violation of the rule modification and guidelines, which has been discussed in detail above.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The Board is directed to restore petitioners' increments for the 2020-21 school year.

IT IS SO ORDERED. [3]

BEFORE KATHLEEN M. CALEMMO, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioners Charlotte Jones (Jones) and Lisa May (May) appealed the determination by the respondent Winslow Township Board of Education (Board) to withhold their salary increments for the 2020-2021 school year. Petitioners submit that the Board's actions contravened the COVID-19 Executive Order No. 103 by Governor Murphy and Guidelines issued by the New Jersey Department of Education (NJDOE). As tenured teachers on a Corrective Action Plan (CAP), petitioners were entitled to receive Not Evaluated (NE) ratings for the 2019-2020 school year. Instead, respondent assigned "Partially Effective" summative ratings and used the ratings as the justification for withholding their salary increments. Respondent maintained that its decision was made in accordance with its Policy 3152 and the Board's managerial prerogative to only reward effective service. (R-Exhibit F.) Respondent further submitted that the Executive Order and NJDOE Guidance does not alter the Board's ability to award or withhold salary increments based on job performance.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arose with the filing of a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education ("the Commissioner") on August 26, 2020. The Board filed its answer on September 4, 2020. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") as a contested case on October 20, 2020. The Board filed a Motion for Summary Decision on April 19, 2021. Petitioners opposed the Motion via brief and certification and filed a Cross-Motion for Summary Decision on May 10, 2021. The Board replied to the opposition and opposed the cross-motion on June 2, 2021. Petitioners replied to the Board's opposition on June 8, 2021. At respondent's request, I held oral argument, via telephone conference, on June 21, 2021 and closed the record.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

The salient facts are uncontroverted, and I FIND:

Jones and May are tenured teaching staff members employed by respondent as teachers with twenty and nineteen years of employment respectively with Winslow Township Public Schools (Winslow). For the 2019-2020 school year, Jones and May were on Corrective Action Plans (CAPs). (R-Exhibit B.) The CAPs were imposed because Jones' and May's scores on the Teacher Composite Score Reports were not in the "Effective" range during the evaluation cycle for the 2018-2019 school year. (R-Exhibit C.) During the 2019-2020 school year, prior to the school closures caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, Jones and May had two classroom observations. Jones' first observation was on October 23, 2019; she received an "Effective" overall rating. Jones' second observation was on January 16, 2020; she received a "Partially Effective" overall rating. (R-Exhibit D.) May's first observation was on October 23, 2019; she received a "Partially Effective" overall rating. May's second observation was on January 24, 2020; she received a "Partially Effective" overall rating. Id.

On March 9, 2020, in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, Governor Murphy issued Executive Order 103 and on April 17, 2020, he issued Executive Order 117. In response thereto, the Commissioner of Education issued a Notice of Rule Waiver/Modification/Suspension Pursuant to Executive Order 103, effective April 3, 2020, which provided in pertinent part:

> Current Department regulations specify rules that school districts must follow to formulate and issue an annual summative rating for educators. The rules identify who must be evaluated, specific components that must be included in evaluations (observations and measures of student growth), and dates by which educators must be notified of the components and the percentage weight associated with each component. The disruption caused by the extended public health-related school closures, and the subsequent cancellation of State assessments, make it impossible to develop some components and render others less reliable as measures of educator effectiveness. Therefore, it is necessary to redefine the components and associated weights, and to notify educators of the changes. In these unprecedented times, school districts also need to direct resources to locally established priorities.

> Educators working under a CAP for the 2019-2020 school year will receive a NE [Not Evaluated] code. These individuals should continue to receive support for the remainder of the 2019-2020 school year and the CAP shall remain in effect at the start of the 2020-2021 school year in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:10-2.5(l).

> [P-Exhibit A]

In March 2020, the NJDOE issued Guidance on its website entitled Educator Evaluation During Extended School Closure as a Result of COVID-19[1]. The pertinent section in the Guidance, "Teachers, Principals, APs, VPs, and other Certificated Staff Currently on a Corrective Action Plan (CAP)" provided as follows:

> 1. Chief School Administrators have the discretion to produce a summative rating for an educator currently on a CAP [corrective action plan] who had been progressing towards an Effective or Highly Effective rating (as shown by observation scores issued up to this point in the year) and who will be moved back into good standing by the issuance of a summative rating. Please apply the guidance provided for nontenured teachers to develop a summative rating for educators described here.
> 2. All other educators on a CAP will receive a Not Evaluated (NE) rating for the 2019-2020 school year.
>
> 3. Coaching should continue for the remainder of the 2019-2020 school year.
> 4. At the start of the SY 2020-2021, the educator and supervisor should collaboratively review the CAP and amend it to reflect the educator's assignment and context.

The NJDOE also released a PowerPoint presentation entitled COVID-19 School Closures: Amended Guidance for Evaluating Educators (Amended Guidance) which reiterated the above Guidance with respect to certificated staff on a CAP. (P – Exhibit K.)

On May 6, 2020, Winslow's Assistant Principal, Shane Ruben (Ruben), noted that May's annual summative score was completed. (P-Exhibit D.) Ruben recorded as part of May's summative, the following:

> As a result of receiving an overall score of Partially Effective (2.47), as well as the continued findings listed in the above summative, Ms. May is being recommended for a pay > increment withholding for the 2020-2021 school year. Ms. May will continue to be on a Corrective Action Plan for the 2021-2021 school year. Id.

Similarly, for Jones, Ruben recorded the following statement as part of Jones' summative:

> As a result of receiving an overall score of Partially Effective (2.54), as well as the continued findings listed in the above summative, Ms. Jones is being recommended for a pay increment withholding for the 2020-2021 school year. Ms. Jones will continue to be on a Corrective Action Plan for the 2021-2021 school year. Id.

On May 8, 2020, Jones and May received RICE[2] Notices from Winslow informing them that the superintendent would be making a recommendation regarding the status of their employment for the 2020-2021 school year at the May 13, 2020 Board meeting. (P-Exhibit E.) Due to postponements, this meeting did not occur until June 24, 2020. Subsequent RICE Notices were given each time the meeting was postponed.

In response to the May 8, 2020 notice, counsel for the New Jersey Education Association (NJEA) on behalf of Jones and May, wrote a letter to the Board to reiterate the NJDOE Guidance that required Jones and May receive a rating of NE. As expressed, it would be improper for the Board to entertain discussion about withholding salary increments based on unsatisfactory performance. (P-Exhibit F.) On June 10, 2020, counsel for the Board responded that it was proceeding in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 that permitted a Board to withhold a salary increment for "inefficiency or other good cause." (P-Exhibit H.)

On June 25, 2020, the Superintendent for Winslow issued letters to Jones and May advising them that the Board approved the Superintendent's recommendation to withhold Super. 64, 73 (App. Div. 1977), the Appellate Division held that a public body was obliged to give affected employees adequate notice of any discussion intended for closed session, so that they would have the opportunity to prepare and present an appropriate request for a public discussion in writing. These notices are commonly referred to as Rice Notices.

their increments for the 2020-2021 school year. On behalf of the Board, the Superintendent expressed their hope and expectation that Jones' and May's performances would improve. (P-Exhibit-J.)

Because the District evaluated Jones and May prior to the COVID-19 closures, it used the evaluation scores that rated them as "Partially Deficient" as the basis to withhold their salary increments. The Board maintained that it withheld petitioners' salary increment due to their subpar performance.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

A motion for summary decision shall be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

A determination whether a genuine issue of material fact exists that precludes summary decision requires the judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." Brill, 142 N.J. at 540 (citing Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. 242, 249 (1986)). When the evidence "is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law," the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. at 252. I CONCLUDE that this matter is ripe for summary decision.

It is well settled that a salary increment is a reward for meritorious service, not an entitlement. N. Plainfield Educ. Ass'n v. Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J. 587, 593 (1984). Any board of education may withhold, for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment, or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year. N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. A local school board's decision to withhold a salary increment is a matter of management prerogative and is entitled to a presumption of correctness. Fogerty v.

State-Operated Sch. Dist. of the City of Jersey City, 97N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 439 Kaska v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Trenton, 95 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 55.

When challenging an increment withholding, the teacher has the burden of proof to show that the board of education acted arbitrarily without rational basis or was induced by improper motives. Kopera v. W. Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294. (App. Div. 1960.) In the absence of clear and convincing proof that a board of education acted unreasonably or in a cursory manner in withholding an increment, the Commissioner will not substitute his judgment for the board of education's judgment. Id. at 296. A board of education must simply be able to demonstrate that the recommendation to withhold is factually supported by observation reports or other reliable evidence. Id. at 296-97.

Thus, by statute, among other things, a board of education can withhold an increment for inefficiency or other good cause.

Notwithstanding the above, the exigencies of the COVID-19 pandemic intervened and caused Governor Murphy to issue Executive Order No. 103 (2020) effective April 3, 2020, to reduce the "regulatory burden related to the evaluation of educators." (P-Exhibit A.) One of these measures provided that tenured teachers on a CAP receive a NE rating for the 2019-2020 school year. The NJDOE's guidance further stated that only tenured teachers who had been progressing towards an "Effective" or "Highly Effective" rating, as shown by observation scores could be moved back into good standing using summative ratings. All other tenured educators on a CAP would receive a NE rating. (P-Exhibit B.) Jones and May were entitled to a NE rating for the 2019-2020 school year.

I CONCLUDE that respondent's argument herein must fail because when it applied the summative rating of "Partially Effective" as opposed to the correct rating of NE, it treated Jones and May as if they were nontenured educators. Looking at the NJDOE's Guidance regarding nontenured teachers, it was the same methodology used by the Superintendent and Board when they determined that Jones and May deserved "Partially Effective" ratings. The Guidance for nontenured teachers provided as follows:

1. There must be a minimum of two observations.
2. Observations must have been conducted before the district closed.
3. They must receive a summary conference.
4. No measures of student learning will be included in the summative rating.

[P-Exhibit B]

The District and the Board disregarded the Guidance and the Executive Order that required Jones and May to receive a NE rating and instead treated Jones and May as nontenured teachers. I CONCLUDE that the Board acted in an arbitrary way when it made the determination not to follow the Guidance and Executive Order No.103 and treat Jones and May as nontenured teachers.

The Board's reasoning that the Guidance did not address the Board's discretionary authority to withhold salary increments was not persuasive justification for its actions, herein. Mainly, because the Board offered no other basis for its action. It repeatedly argued that salary increments are not used to reward subpar performance and maintained that petitioners' performances were subpar. However, the Board could not contradict that the basis for the subpar performances were the improper summative ratings. Under the Guidance, summative ratings were improper when applied to tenured teachers on a CAP.

Respondent framed the issue as whether the Guidance regarding the evaluation of tenured staff on a CAP precluded the Board from withholding Jones' and May's salary increment as a matter of law. I disagree with respondent's framing of the issue. The issue is much narrower. As articulated in petitioners' cross-motion for summary decision, the issue is whether the basis for Jones' and May's salary withholding was their summative ratings of "Partially Effective" in violation of the Executive Order and Guidelines. As there is no dispute that the salary withholding was based on the summative ratings of "Partially Effective," I CONCLUDE that the Board's actions violated the Executive Order and Guidelines and thus, were improper. To determine otherwise would be to condone the Board's decision to disregard the COVID-19 Executive Order and Guidelines.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Board's action in disregarding the Executive Order and Guidelines was improper and its decision to withhold petitioners' salary increments was arbitrary and without basis.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED that respondent Winslow Township Board of Education's Motion for Summary Decision is DENIED. It is further ORDERED that petitioners Charlotte Jones and Lisa May's Cross-Motion for Summary Decision is GRANTED. Accordingly, petitioners' increments should be restored for the 2020-2021 school year.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Final Decision

Board of Education of the Township of Sparta, Sussex County,

Petitioner,

v.

M.N., on behalf of A.D.,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the exceptions filed by respondent pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the Board's reply thereto, have been reviewed and considered.

The Respondent's child, A.D., is a special education student who attended school in Sparta. Respondent withdrew A.D. from the district in March 2019. In April 2019, A.D. was issued a high school diploma by the State of New Jersey after he achieved the required Statewide standard score on the General Education Development test (GED). A series of dis-enrollments by the district and reenrollments by respondent followed, with the district ultimately informing respondent in May 2021 that A.D. was no longer entitled to receive services from the district because he had met New Jersey graduation requirements.

Following the filing of the Board's motion for summary decision, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) concluded that A.D. received a State-issued high school diploma that is fully aligned with State standards, not merely a (GED) diploma, and therefore he is no longer entitled to be enrolled in the district's schools. The ALJ further concluded that respondent was not entitled to written notice of the change in A.D.'s placement because it came about through his own actions.[1]

In her exceptions, respondent argues that the diploma A.D. received is not a regular high school diploma. Respondent notes that A.D. did not attend high school for four years and that the 120 course credits required for graduation from a district does not compare with studying at home for a month and barely passing GED tests. Respondent also contends that she should have received notice when the district decided to discontinue services and unenroll A.D.

In reply, the Board argues that respondent's exceptions merely reiterate arguments made below. The Board notes that students are permitted to obtain State-issued diplomas through non-traditional pathways and contends that such a diploma is a not a lower credential and should not be considered differently simply because a student who obtains it is classified. The Board argues that the lack of a regulatory distinction between diplomas awarded by a district board of education and diplomas awarded by the Commissioner demonstrates that the State Board of Education did not intend to create different categories of credentials. Finally, the Board notes that it neither discontinued services nor disenrolled A.D., who had in fact been withdrawn from the district by respondent.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that A.D.'s diploma is a "regular high school diploma" that is fully aligned with State standards and, therefore, A.D. is no longer entitled to a free education in Sparta or any other New Jersey school district. The record reflects that the diploma awarded to A.D. was issued by the State of New Jersey Board of [1] This matter was filed concurrently with a special education due process petition docketed as Agency Dkt. No. 2021-32852, OAL Dkt. No. EDS 05384-21. The ALJ determined not to consolidate the two matters and denied the portion of the Board's motion for summary decision pertaining to the due process petition. The Commissioner's jurisdiction does not extend to due process petitions, which fall exclusively within the purview of the Department's Office of Special Education Policy and Dispute Resolution. N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.7. Accordingly, any issues relating to the due process petition will not be addressed herein.

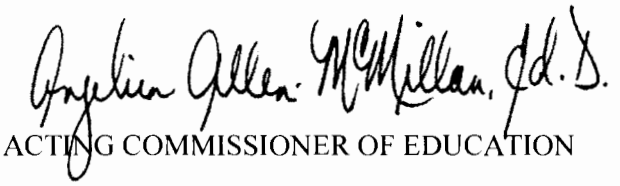
Education, signed by the Commissioner of Education, and indicated that A.D. has satisfied in full the statutory and regulatory requirements of the State for a high school diploma.



The Commissioner has previously noted that a diploma "signifying attainment of the skills and knowledge deemed necessary by the State of New Jersey for its students to be successful in their careers and daily lives" can be earned by completing the requirements of N.J.A.C. 8A:5-1.(a) associated with traditional high school coursework, or, among other things, by achieving the required scores on the GED. B.A. and J.H., on behalf of minor child, M.A.A. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Somerville, Somerset Cty., Commissioner Decision No. 201-09 (June 22, 2009). The Commissioner further indicated that "through its acceptance of alternative measures" to obtain a diploma, "particularly the GED program," "the State has implicitly recognized that means other than course/credit/assessment completion as contemplated by N.J.A.C. 6A:8-5.1(a) can legitimately evidence acquisition of an education sufficient to satisfy the statutory and constitutional mandate and warrant issuance of a State-endorsed diploma so as to end a student's entitlement to attend the public schools of a district." Ibid.

Furthermore, there is no distinction in N.J.A.C. 6A:8-5.2 between a district-issued diploma and a State-issued diploma, such that both diplomas demonstrate that the student has completed an education that is fully aligned with State standards. The State Board of Education, in implementing alternate pathways for students to obtain diplomas, has recognized that students may complete their education in non-traditional ways. A State-issued diploma simply reflects such an alternate pathway and is in no way a lesser credential. Accordingly, having obtained a State-issued diploma, A.D. is no longer entitled to a free education in the district's schools.[2]

[2] The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's conclusions regarding the Board's obligation to provide notice to respondent, for the reasons detailed in the Initial Decision.

Accordingly, the Board's motion for summary decision is granted, and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

BEFORE THOMAS R. BETANCOURT, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed a Petition for Declaratory Ruling with the Office of Controversies and Disputes in the New Jersey Department of Education (DOE) on June 11, 2021.

The Acting Commissioner declined the request pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-8 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-2.1(a)1, and directed that the matter proceed as a petition of appeal pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1 et seq.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on July 9, 2021.

A prehearing conference was held on this matter, and a companion case (EDS 05384-21), on July 13, 2021, with a prehearing order entered on the same date. The matters were not consolidated.

Petitioner filed a Motion for Summary Decision dated July 23, 2021. Respondent submitted a reply brief on August 6, 2021. Petitioner filed a response thereto on August 13, 2021. The record closed on August 13, 2021.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The following relevant, material facts are not in dispute:

1. A.D. initially enrolled in the District at the start of the 2018-2019 school year. He was a transfer from the Ramapo Indian Hills School District.

2. A.D. was provided an IEP and attended school in District.

3. A.D. was provided home instruction commencing on March 11, 2019.

4. On March 25, 2019, A.D. was withdrawn from the District by his parent. (Exhibit E, Lorentz Affidavit)

5. A.D. was issued a high school diploma by the State of New Jersey on April 29, 2019. (Exhibit F, Lorentz Affidavit)

6. The parent requested that A.D. be reenrolled in the District sometime in mid-April 2019, and A.D. was reenrolled.

7. By letter dated May 22, 2019, the high school principal, Michael Lauricella, advised respondents that A.D. was no longer entitled to receive services from the District as he had met New Jersey graduation requirements. (Exhibit G, Lorentz Affidavit)

8. Thereafter, A.D. was permitted to reenroll in the District for the 2019-2020 school year. (Exhibit H, Lorentz Affidavit)

9. A.D. attended school in District at the start of the 2019-2020 school year. In March of 2020 in person instruction was halted due to the COVID-19 pandemic. A.D. was issued a Chrome book for remote learning.

10. On June 8, 2020, A.D. was again disenrollment from the District. (Exhibit J, Lorentz Affidavit)

11. On September 9, 2020, the parent again sought to reenroll A.D. in the District. The reenrollment did not occur as A.D. decided to join the Army. (Exhibit K, Lorentz Affidavit)

12. A.D. obtained a medical discharge from the Army on December 16, 2020. (see page 19 of brief in opposition)

ISSUE

Does obtaining a GED, and a State issued high school diploma, preclude A.D. from reenrollment in the District.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

Standard for Summary Decision

A motion for summary decision may be granted if the papers and discovery presented, as well as any affidavits which may have been filed with the application, show that there is no genuine issue of material fact and the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). If the motion is sufficiently supported, the non-moving party must demonstrate by affidavit that there is a genuine issue of fact which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding, in order to prevail in such an application. Ibid. These provisions mirror the summary judgment language of R. 4:46-2(c) of the New Jersey Court Rules.

The motion judge must "consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party . . . , are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. " Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995). And even if the non-moving party comes forward with some evidence, this forum must grant summary decision if the evidence is "so one-sided that [the moving party] must prevail as a matter of law." Id. at 536 (citation omitted).

In the instant matter there are no disputed relevant material facts, and the matter is ripe for summary decision.

A.D. obtained a New Jersey issued high school diploma, dated April 29, 2019. Prior to that, A.D. obtained a GED.

N.J.A.C. 6A:14-2.1(a) states: Prior to receiving a high school diploma, a student with disability age 16 through 21 who voluntarily leaves a public school program may reenroll at any time up to and including the school year of his or her 21st birthday.

34 C.F.R. §300,102(a)(3)(i) provides that the obligation to provide FAPE does not apply to "children with disabilities who have graduated from high school with a regular high school diploma."

However, 34 C.F.R. §300,102(a)(3)(iv) states: "As used in paragraphs (a)(3)(i) through (iii) of this section, the term regular high school diploma means the standard high school diploma awarded to the preponderance of students in the State that is fully aligned with State standards, or a higher diploma, except that a regular high school diploma shall not be aligned to the alternate academic achievement standards described in section 1111(b)(1)(E) of the ESEA. A regular high school diploma does not include a recognized equivalent of a diploma, such as a general equivalency diploma, certificate of completion, certificate of attendance, or similar lesser credential."

The District argues that what A.D. received from the State of New Jersey is "fully aligned with the State's academic standards." Citing B.A. and J.J. o/b/o Minor Child M.A.A. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Somerville, Somerset County, 2009 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 24, Commissioner of Education, #201-09, June 22, 2009.

In B.A. and J.J. o/b/o Minor Child M.A.A. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Somerville, Somerset County, the Commissioner succinctly set forth an analysis that is, in my mind, dispositive of the matter herein, as follows:

> "To properly establish the context of petitioners' claim, it is also necessary to consider that: 1) the Legislature and State Board of Education have provided for implementation of the constitutional mandate through a K-12 delivery system, a student's successful progression through which culminates in receipt of a State-endorsed high school diploma, NJ.S.A. 18A:7C-1 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6A:8-1.1 et seq.\ 2) a general education student's entitlement to access this system terminates either upon graduation through receipt of a State-endorsed diploma - which in the normal course of events occurs at the end of 12th grade, but may occur sooner or later under certain circumstances - or upon reaching the age of 20 without having so graduated, NJ.A.C 6A:8-5.2(a), NJA.C. 6A:8-5.2(b) and N.J.A.C 6A:8-5.2(d); 3) a State-endorsed high diploma - the credential signifying attainment of the skills and knowledge deemed necessary by the State of New Jersey for its students to be successful in their careers and daily lives - can be earned not only by completing the specific course, credit and assessment requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:8-5.1(a), but also by demonstrating academic skills and knowledge equivalent to such requirements through alternative means, specifically, by performing at proficient levels in all areas of the High School Proficiency Assessment (HSPA) and completing 30 general education college credits, NJ.A.C. 6A:8-5.2(d), or by > achieving the required scores on the General Educational Development (GED) test of the American Council on Education, N.J.A.C. 6A:8-5.2(c); 6:30-1.3."

What A.D. obtained is a State endorsed diploma. This comports with the requirement of 34 C.F.R. §300,102(a)(3)(iv) which requires the diploma to be "fully aligned with State standards".

Respondent argues that A.D. did not receive a "regular" high school diploma. This argument fails as what A.D. received is, in fact, a State issued high school diploma that is "fully aligned with State standards." A.D. did not merely obtain a GED.

Respondent further argues that A.D. was entitled to written notice regarding a change in his placement. This argument is misguided. The change in placement was at A.D.'s own doing: the receipt of the State issued high school diploma. He was not enrolled in the District at this time. In fact, he voluntarily dis-enrolled in the District. At that point the District had no obligation to provide an education, or notice, to A.D.

Respondent cites Letter to Cort, United States Department of Education, May 14, 2010, as support for the claim that A.D. has a right to FAPE and a right to re-enroll and obtain a regular high school diploma. While guidance from the United States Department of Education is helpful, it does not carry the weight of law. Further, Respondent fails to note that A.D. voluntarily disenrolled from the District and obtained a State issued high school diploma that is "fully aligned with State standards."

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that Petitioner's Motion for Summary Decision regarding the within matter (EDU 05866-21) be GRANTED.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that Petitioner's Motion for Summary Decision is GRANTED as follows:

1. The diploma issued to A.D. by the State of New Jersey is a "regular" high school diploma terminating his entitlement to enroll in a public school in the State; and

2. The diploma issued to A.D. by the State of New Jersey is a "regular" high school diploma terminating his prospective entitlement to receive a free and appropriate public education.

That portion of Petitioner's motion requesting that Respondent's due process petitioner (filed as the petitioner in the companion case, EDS 05384-21) is DENIED. The undersigned determined not to consolidate that matter with the instant matter. Accordingly, EDS 05384-21 shall proceed to hearing on August 24, 2021.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

S.B., on behalf of minor children, J.B., L.K., and S.K.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Barrington, Camden County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Pro se petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that her minor children were not domiciled within the Barrington School District from March 8, 2021 until the end of the 2020-21 school year and were therefore not eligible to receive a free public education in the Barrington public schools. The Board filed a motion for summary decision and sought reimbursement of tuition for the period of J.B., L.K., and S.K.'s ineligible attendance.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue in this case, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; petitioner's minor children were enrolled in Barrington schools during the 2019-2020 school year as Affidavit Students based on S.B.'s claim that the children were residing with their grandmother in Barrington due to a family or economic hardship; petitioner was notified by the Board in March 2020 that the documentation she submitted in support of this claim was insufficient to enroll the children as Affidavit Students; before the children could be removed from the District, all New Jersey schools were ordered closed due to the COVID 19 epidemic, and the children were permitted to remain enrolled remotely; in February 2021, the Board notified petitioner that her children had been determined to be ineligible for continued enrollment in its school district because the grandmother and children were no longer residing in Barrington and S.B. was found to be living in Magnolia, New Jersey; pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), petitioner has the burden of proof in a determination of residency; petitioner has offered no competent proof that she and her minor children were domiciled in Barrington during the period from March 8, 2021 through the end of the 2020-21 school year; petitioner has in fact admitted that she has not resided in the District since 2018, and now resides in Haddon Township. The ALJ concluded that the minor children were not entitled to receive a free public education in Barrington schools during the period at issue; accordingly, the respondent Board is entitled to reimbursement in the amount of $8,924.40 for tuition costs during the period of ineligible attendance.

Upon review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusion. The Initial Decision was adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the petitioner was ordered to reimburse the Board for tuition in the amount of $8,924.40. The petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

S.B., on behalf of minor children, J.B., L.K., and S.K.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Barrington, Camden County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) finding that petitioner failed to sustain her burden of establishing that she was a domiciliary of Barrington from March 8, 2021 to the end of the 2020-21 school year. The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that the minor children were, therefore, not entitled to a free public education in the District's schools during that time.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, the Commissioner shall assess tuition against petitioner for the time period during which the minor children were ineligible to attend school in Barrington. Therefore, the Board is entitled to tuition reimbursement in the amount of $8,924.40 for the for the time period from March 8, 2021 through the end of the 2020-21 school year, during which time petitioner's three minor children were ineligible to attend.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Petitioner is directed to reimburse the Board in the amount of $8,924.40 for tuition costs incurred during the time period in which J.B., L.K., and S.K. were ineligible to attend school in Barrington. The petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 03003-21

AGENCY DKT.NO. 34-3/21

S.B. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILDREN J.B., L.K. AND SK.,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE BOROUGH OF BARRINGTON, CAMDEN COUNTY

Respondent.

S.B., on behalf of minor children J.B, L.K. and S.K. petitioners, pro se

Mark G. Toscano, Esq., for respondent (Comegno Law Group, attorneys)

Record Closed: June 24, 2021 Decided: July 12, 2021

BEFORE JEFFREY R. WILSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, S.B., on behalf of her minor children J.B, L.K. and S.K., challenges the determination made by the respondent, Borough of Barrington Board of Education (Board), that she, her family, and children do not, and have not for some time, resided within the Barrington School District. The respondent argues that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), the Superintendent may apply to the Board of Education for the removal of the students, and the Commissioner may assess tuition against the students' parent or guardian if the students are deemed ineligible. The respondent seeks payment of tuition and costs for the number of days J.B, L.K. and S.K. attended school in the Barrington School District while ineligible to do so.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The matter was filed at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 26, 2021, as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and 14F-1 to 13. On May 25, 2021, the respondent filed a motion for summary decision. The petitioner filed a response in the form of two emails, on June 24, 2021, and the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The following facts of this case are not in dispute; therefore, I FIND as FACT:

1. On March 4, 2020, it was determined by the District that the petitioners, who were residing with their grandmother at XXXX Clements Bridge Road, Apartment XXX, Barrington New Jersey, were ineligible for enrollment in the Barrington School District as Affidavit Students. A formal letter notifying of this determination, was hand delivered to S.B. on March 4, 2020.

2. The Board determined that there was insufficient proof that the children's' mother, S.B., was incapable of caring for the petitioners due to a family or economic hardship. The documentation submitted by S.B. also indicated that the children would only be residing with their grandmother in Barrington until the end of the 2019-2020 school year.

3. Despite S.B.'s indication that an appeal would be filed following the Board's March 4, 2020, letter, no appeal was filed challenging the Board's determination that the petitioners did not qualify for enrollment as Affidavit Students.

4. Before the children could be removed from the District, all New Jersey schools were ordered closed by the Governor as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic and remained closed through the end of the 2019-2020 school year. The children were permitted to remain enrolled in the District during the period of ordered closure, and during the period in which the District attempted to re-open for in-person instruction.

5. In December 2020, the Board learned that the children's grandmother no longer resided within the Barrington School District.

6. On February 25, 2021, the District sent S.B. a Notice of Ineligibility letter.

7. The February 25, 2021, letter detailed new information discovered by the District. The District learned that the children's grandmother, and the children themselves, were no longer residing at the XXXX Clements Bridge Road, Apartment XXX address.

8. Around this time, the Board also learned that S.B. has not resided within the Barrington School District, and in fact, is residing at the XXX E. Evesham Avenue address in Magnolia, New Jersey.

9. In the February 25, 2021, letter, the Board determined that the children were ineligible for continued enrollment in the Barrington School District because neither the children, their grandmother, nor S.B. were residing at XXXX Clements Bridge Road, or at any other address within the Barrington School District.

10. The Board held a meeting on March 8, 2021, wherein S.B. appeared. The Board found that the children were ineligible to continue to attend school free of charge in Barrington. For the reasons set forth in the February 25, 2021, letter as well as S.B. admitting that she left the Magnolia School district due to issues with the District, the Board made this determination of ineligibility.

11. During the March 8, 2021, Board meeting, S.B. alleged to the District, for the first time, that there was previously a family crisis incident relating to domestic violence. S.B.

alleged that this domestic violence incident occurred in the Spring of 2020 and was the impetus for S.B. and the children to no longer reside at the XXX E. Evesham Avenue address. Prior to the March 8, 2021, meeting, the District had not been informed of any such alleged family crisis incident.

12. Despite repeated requests from the Board, S.B. has failed to provide any documentation supporting her claim that a family crisis incident occurred which required the children to relocate out of the Magnolia School District.

13. However, even assuming that S.B.'s allegations of a family crisis actually took place, the petitioners would still not be entitled to attend the Barrington School District free of charge. If anything, the petitioners would have been allowed to remain enrolled in the Magnolia School District during the family's relocation period.

14. Following the March 8, 2021, meeting, the Board issued a letter on March 15, 2021, outlining their determination that the children are ineligible to continue attending Barrington Schools.

15. S.B. has admitted to the Board that neither she, the children, nor the children's grandmother presently reside within the Barrington School District.

16. The petitioners filed an appeal on March 2, 2021.

17. S.B admitted during the May 10, 2021, telephone prehearing conference in this matter, that she presently resides at XXXXB Grant Ave, Haddon Township, NJ 08107, (with J.B., L.K. and S.K.), which residence is not located within the attendance area of the District.

18. S.B listed XXX E. Evesham Avenue, Magnolia NJ 08049 as her address on the Residency Appeal form filed on March 24, 2021. The Magnolia residence is similarly not located within the attendance area of the District.

19. To date, S.B. has provided no further information demonstrating her residence in District, or otherwise demonstrating J.B.'s, L.K.'s. and S.K.'s eligibility to attend the District's schools.

20. The Board's daily tuition rate for the 2020-2021 school year was $44.44 per day per child. Therefore, the Board is owed tuition from S.B. in the amount of $8,924.40 for J.B.'s, L.K.'s and S.K.'s attendance from March 8, 2021, through the end of the school year.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) provides that a motion for summary decision may be granted if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. See also Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co., 142 N.J. 520 (1995). The opposing party must submit responding affidavits showing that there is indeed a genuine issue of material fact, which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding, and that the moving party is not entitled to summary decision as a matter of law. Failure to do so, entitled the moving party to summary judgment. Id. at 520. Moreover, even if the non-moving party comes forward with some evidence, the courts must grant summary judgment if the evidence is "so one-sided that [moving party] must prevail as a matter of law." Id. at 536. If the non-moving party's evidence is merely colorable, or is not significantly probative, summary judgment should not be denied. See Bowles v. City of Camden, 993 F. Supp. 255, 261 (D.N.J. 1998).

In view of the standard for summary decision, the petitioner's Residency Appeal Petition fails and must be dismissed in its entirety based on S.B.'s own admission that she does not live within the Board's attendance area. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 provides that "Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under 20 years of age: a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district. . . " N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1) makes clear that "A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose domicile is located within the school district."

> . . . If the superintendent or administrative principal of a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district and the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the superintendent or administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child. The parent or guardian shall be entitled to a hearing before the board and if in the judgment of the board the parent or guardian is not domiciled within the district or the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection.

Here, S.B. has failed to show that she resides within and/or been domiciled within the District. In fact, she has admitted within her Petition and during the initial hearing in this matter, that she presently resides (with J.B., L.K. and S.K.) at XXXXB Grant Ave, Haddon Township, NJ 08107, (with J.B., L.K. and S.K.), which residence is not located within attendance area of the District. S.B. further admits that she has not lived within the District since 2018. S.B. has failed to provide any subsequent proofs that she resides within the District's attendance area. As a final matter, S.B. herself has provided this tribunal with a Haddon Township address to receive mail and service in this matter, further proving that she does not reside within the District's attendance area.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE there are no genuine facts in dispute and that summary decision is warranted.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent's motion for summary decision be GRANTED. Based upon he the Board's daily tuition rate for the 2020-2021 school year of $44.44 per day per child, it is further ORDERED that the Board is owed tuition from the Petitioner in the amount of $8,924.40 for J.B.'s, L.K.'s and S.K.'s attendance from March 8, 2021, through the end of the school year.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified, or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Crystal Saylor,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Town of West New York, Hudson County,

Respondent.

This matter involves the petitioner's challenge to the Board's termination of her employment, in which she alleged that she had earned tenure as a secretary and was entitled to statutory tenure protections. The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that petitioner had not earned tenure because she was not employed in a secretarial position for the requisite time to earn tenure, and her most recent position as Administrative Assistant to the Superintendent was no longer secretarial. In a decision dated September 26, 2019, the Commissioner agreed with the ALJ that petitioner was not employed as a secretary when she held the position of Administrative Assistant to the Superintendent, and therefore did not have tenure rights when she was terminated. Petitioner appealed the Commissioner's decision, and on May 12, 2021, the Appellate Division reversed and remanded the matter, finding that petitioner earned tenure as a secretary based on her employment in secretarial positions – including her position as an Administrative Assistant to the Superintendent – and she was therefore improperly terminated without the certification of tenure charges.

On remand, in accordance with the Appellate Division's May 12, 2021 decision, the Commissioner finds that petitioner is entitled to reinstatement and back pay, together with all benefits and emoluments of her employment. To the extent that any disputes arise regarding the calculation of back pay, such issues can be addressed in a new petition.

STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS DKT. NO. 1819-237
AGENCY DKT NO. 4-3/21A

IN THE MATTER OF THE	:
REVOCATION OF THE CERTIFICATES	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
OF JOSHUA ROSENBAUM BY THE	:	DECISION
STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS.	:

Order of Revocation by the State Board of Examiners, July 30, 2020

For the Respondent-Appellant, William P. Hannan, Esq.

For the Petitioner-Respondent State Board of Examiners, Sadia Ahsanuddin, Deputy Attorney General (Andrew J. Bruck, Acting Attorney General of New Jersey)

The Commissioner has reviewed the record and the papers filed in connection with appellant Joshua Rosenbaum's appeal of the State Board of Examiners' Order of July 30, 2020, revoking his Teacher of Elementary School in Grades K-8 Certificate of Eligibility and his Teacher of Elementary School in Grades K-8 certificate. The Board found that the appellant engaged in unbecoming conduct warranting the revocation of his certificates based on tenure charges filed against him in which it was alleged that the appellant: physically assaulted students in his class on more than one occasion; failed to properly manage classroom behavior; was chronically absent; and had poor performance ratings.

On appeal, the appellant maintains that the Order of Revocation entered by the Board violates his dues process rights because it was made without him receiving adequate notice of the proposed action against his certificates. Specifically, the appellant argues that the facts demonstrate that the Board mailed the Order to Show Cause (OTSC) and subsequent correspondence to an address that he has not resided at nor been associated with in any way for ten years. The OTSC and all other correspondence from the Board were sent to 82 Richelieu Place, Newark, New Jersey 07106; the appellant contends that he has not lived at that address since 2009, and that his current address is 87 Elm Street, Montclair, New Jersey 07042. Therefore, the appellant did not receive the OTSC that was mailed to the Newark address on November 7, 2019, nor did he receive the subsequent mailings from the Board that were likewise sent to the Newark address.

The appellant maintains that once he discovered that the Order of Revocation was entered against him, he immediately contacted the Board to inform that he had never received notice of the OTSC and as such never had an opportunity to respond before his certificates were revoked.[1] Therefore, the appellant maintains that the Board's decision to revoke his certifications should be reversed and the Commissioner should remand this matter to the Board to afford him the opportunity to respond to the Order to Show Cause.

In reply, the Board agues that it followed the appropriate procedure for service of process in administrative actions. The OTSC and all communications were sent to the appellant's Newark address via certified mail and regular mail. The regular mail copies were not returned as undeliverable and the certified mail copies were all "unclaimed." The Board gave the appellant an opportunity to contest the allegations in the OTSC, which he failed to do. Thus, the allegations were appropriately deemed admitted and summary decision was appropriate. Moreover, the appellant's claim that he had no notice of the proceedings is unavailing because he has not provided proof that he actually moved from Newark to Montclair or that he had no connection to the Newark address. The Board also argues that the appeal is untimely because N.J.A.C. 6A:4-2.2 requires an appeal to be filed within 30 days of the Board's decision. Here,

[1] On May 13, 2021, the Board voted to deny the appellant's request to vacate the Order of Revocation and the Motion to Stay the Order.

the Order of Revocation was mailed to the appellant on August 12, 2020 and his appeal was not filed until March 5, 2021, well beyond the 30-day limitation period. Therefore, the Commissioner should affirm the Order of Revocation and dismiss the appeal.

In reviewing appeals from decisions of the State Board of Examiners, the Commissioner may not substitute her judgment for that of the Board so long as the appellant received due process and the Board's decision is supported by sufficient credible evidence in the record. Further, the Board's decision should not be disturbed unless the appellant demonstrates that it is arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1(a). After a comprehensive review of the record and all submissions, the Commissioner finds that the appellant was not afforded the requisite due process before his certificates were revoked.

There is no dispute that all of the correspondence sent from the Board to the appellant in this matter, including the OTSC and the Order of Revocation, were mailed to the Newark address. In reaching the determination that the appellant did not have an adequate notice of the OTSC, the Commissioner emphasizes that the sworn statement of evidence in support of the tenure charges filed against the appellant by the East Orange Board of Education in 2018, upon which the OTSC was based, included exhibits that indicated appellant resided at the Montclair address. More specifically, the East Orange School District, in both 2013 and 2014, mailed correspondence regarding his performance and attendance to the appellant at the Montclair address. In the absence of any indication from the Board as to why the OTSC and other correspondence were mailed to the Newark address instead of the Montclair address, the Commissioner is compelled to find that the appellant did not receive adequate due process prior to having his certificate revoked. The Commissioner is also not persuaded by the Board's assertion that the appeal was untimely filed. If the appellant did not receive notice of the OTSC nor the Order of revocation that was mailed to the Newark address, it would follow that he was not aware of any action against his certificates that would mandate an appeal within 30 days of the mailing of the Order of Revocation under N.J.A.C. 6A:4-2.2.

Accordingly, this matter is remanded to the State Board of Examiners to give the appellant an opportunity to respond to the Order to Show Cause.[2]

At its meeting of September 19, 2019, the State Board of Examiners (Board) reviewed a tenure decision regarding Joshua L. Rosenbaum, a tenured teacher in the East Orange Board of Education (East Orange). Rosenbaum was a teacher in East Orange who, after receiving tenure charges, resigned his position as a result of the allegations of unbecoming conduct in the charges. Pursuant to the tenure charges, which are incorporated herein by reference, East Orange alleged that Rosenbaum physically assaulted students in his class on more than one occasion, failed to properly manage classroom behavior, was chronically absent, and had poor performance ratings.

Specifically, East Orange alleged that on January 24, 2012, Rosenbaum knocked a student down, causing him to hit his head on a wall after the student allegedly did not stop talking while trying to line up to exit the classroom. On May 13, 2016, Rosenbaum attempted to take a student's bag from the desk and the student pulled the bag back. Rosenbaum then allegedly twisted the student's wrist, put his hands around the student's neck and choked the student while pushing him to the floor as the desk fell over. On June 4, 2018, Rosenbaum allegedly told a student to leave the classroom and when the student did not, Rosenbaum grabbed the student causing him to fall to the ground and then started "throwing punches." The District also alleged that Rosenbaum was inefficient and ineffective in performing his duties because he sent student(s) out of the classroom for misbehavior, failed to display student work in compliance with directives of his superiors, did not attend a mandatory staff meeting, was chronically absent and received several poor evaluations.

Rosenbaum currently holds a Teacher of Elementary School in Grades K-8 Certificate of Eligibility and a Teacher of Elementary School in Grades K-8 certificate. After reviewing the above information, at its November 1, 2019 meeting, the Board voted to issue an Order to Show Cause to Rosenbaum as to why his certificates should not be revoked.

The Board sent Rosenbaum the Order to Show Cause by regular and certified mail on November 7, 2019. The Order provided that Rosenbaum had 30 days to respond. The certified mail receipt was "unclaimed" and returned and the regular mail copy was not returned. Rosenbaum did not respond. On December 13, 2019, the Board sent Rosenbaum another notice by certified and regular mail providing him an additional 15 days to respond to the Order to Show Cause. The certified mail copy was returned as "Unclaimed" and the regular mail copy was not returned. Rosenbaum did not file a response.

Thereafter, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.6(e), on January 29, 2020, the Board sent Rosenbaum a hearing notice by regular and certified mail. The notice explained that the allegations in the Order to Show Cause were deemed to be admitted as a result of his failure to file an Answer. Thus, Rosenbaum was offered an opportunity to submit written arguments on the issue of whether the conduct addressed in the Order to Show Cause constituted conduct unbecoming a certificate holder, as well as arguments with regard to the appropriate sanction in the event that the Board found just cause to take action against his certificates. It also explained that, upon review of the charges against him and the legal arguments tendered in his defense, the Board would determine if Rosenbaum's offense warranted action against his certificates. Thereupon, the Board would also determine the appropriate sanction, if any. Rosenbaum was also offered the opportunity to appear before the Board to provide testimony on the sanction issue. The certified mail receipt was "unclaimed", and the regular mail copy was not returned. Once again, Rosenbaum did not file a response.

The threshold issue before the Board in this matter is whether Rosenbaum's conduct constitutes conduct unbecoming a certificate holder or other just cause. Since Rosenbaum failed to respond to the Order to Show Cause, the allegations therein are deemed admitted. N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.6(c). Consequently, at its meeting of June 26, 2020, the Board considered only the allegations in the Order to Show Cause. The Board concluded that no material facts related to Rosenbaum's offense were in dispute since he never denied that he had engaged in the conduct alleged. Thus, the Board determined that summary decision was appropriate in this matter. N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.6(h). After reviewing the allegations, the Board found that Rosenbaum had engaged in unbecoming conduct.

The Board must now determine whether Rosenbaum's conduct, as set forth in the Order to Show Cause, provides just cause to act against his certificates pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.4. The Board finds that it does.

The Board may revoke or suspend the certification of any certificate holder on the basis of demonstrated inefficiency, incapacity, conduct unbecoming a teacher or other just cause. N.J.A.C. 6A:9B-4.4. "Teachers... are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of ... school children. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment." Tenure of Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321. Moreover, unfitness to hold a position in a school system may be shown by one incident, if sufficiently flagrant. Redcay v. State Bd. of Educ., 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (1943), aff'd, 131 N.J.L. 326 (E & A 1944). Rosenbaum's actions, which led to his resignation from East Orange, clearly demonstrate conduct that is unacceptable for any adult, especially one who is ostensibly a role model. The Board therefore concludes that the only appropriate response to his breach is a revocation of his certificates.

Accordingly, on June 26, 2020, the Board voted to revoke Joshua L. Rosenbaum's Teacher of Elementary School in Grades K-8 Certificate of Eligibility and his Teacher of Elementary School in Grades K-8 certificate. On this 30th day of July 2020 the Board voted to adopt its formal written decision and it is therefore ORDERED that Rosenbaum's certificates are hereby revoked, effective immediately. It is further ORDERED that Rosenbaum return his certificates to the Secretary of the State Board of Examiners, Office of Certification and Induction, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625-0500 within 30 days of the mailing date of this decision.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

In the Matter of Christopher Treston,
Board of Education of Randolph Township, Morris County.

This matter involves an appeal of the School Ethics Commission's (Commission) April 27, 2021 decision that appellant Christopher Treston, a member of the Randolph Township Board of Education (Board), violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) of the School Ethics Act (Act) by publishing an Op-Ed, in advance of a Board election, that endorsed certain candidates and advocated against another candidate. Having carefully reviewed the Commission's decision and the record in its entirety, the Commissioner finds that the Commission's decision finding that appellant violated the Act is supported by sufficient, credible evidence, and that appellant failed to establish that the decision is arbitrary, capricious, or contrary to law. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1.1(a). However, the Commissioner concludes that the appropriate penalty is reprimand.

Appellant published an Op-Ed wherein he endorsed four candidates for an upcoming Board election – while also advocating against the election of Eliza Schliefstein – in what he admitted was an attempt to influence voters. In so doing, appellant used a disclaimer that stated, "The author is writing this endorsement on his own personal behalf. His opinions are his own." Appellant did not seek the approval of the Board or its counsel before publishing the Op-Ed. Thereafter, Schliefstein filed a complaint against appellant with the Commission. The Commission granted appellant's motion to dismiss some of the allegations; found probable cause that appellant violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f); and transmitted those allegations to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). Following a hearing at the OAL, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) concluded that appellant violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) and recommended a penalty of reprimand.[1] In its April 27, 2021 decision, the Commission adopted the ALJ's findings of fact and legal conclusions but modified the recommended penalty to a censure.

In his appeal and exceptions, appellant argues that the disclaimer included with his Op-Ed was sufficient to identify his endorsement as his personal view and that the Op-Ed was a permissible exercise of his fundamental right to free speech. According to appellant, since he stated that he was making the endorsement on his own behalf and that his views were his own, requiring additional language indicating that his views were not those of the Board would be superfluous. Appellant further contends that the substance of the Op-Ed does not violate the Act, because expressing his personal opinions does not have the potential to compromise the Board and does not provide any advantage to his endorsed candidates. Appellant claims that it was reasonable for his Op-Ed to include references to his experience as a Board member and that doing so does not render his disclaimer unclear or insufficient. Finally, appellant argues that, if he is found to have violated the Act, the appropriate penalty is reprimand as recommended by the ALJ – for reasons similar to those outlined in the Initial Decision.

In reply, the Commission argues that its decision that appellant violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) was reasonable and supported by the record.

[1] The ALJ also concluded that the Commission failed to establish that appellant violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(f), and the Commission adopted that conclusion in its April 27, 2021 decision.

The Commission reiterates that appellant's disclaimer was insufficient, because the content of the Op-Ed created the appearance that appellant's endorsements were also those of the Board, due to multiple references to his position and Board matters generally, as well as usage of the terms "we" and "our" throughout his writing. The Commission notes that while appellant has a right to free speech to express his own opinion, he must not convey the impression that his opinion is the Board's opinion. The Commission also contends that, in light of the proliferation of this type of electronic publication, a penalty of censure is appropriate and necessary to underscore that board members speaking as private citizens must do so clearly and unambiguously.

Upon a comprehensive review of the record, the Commissioner finds that the decision of the Commission that appellant violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) is supported by sufficient credible evidence, and appellant has not established that the Commission's decision is arbitrary, capricious, or contrary to law. The purpose of a disclaimer is to prevent board members from compromising the board of education by causing reasonable confusion among the public about whether the board member's statement is made as a private citizen or as a public official. Here, while appellant's disclaimer noted that his views were his own, he failed to make clear that the views expressed were not those of the Board. The Commissioner disagrees with appellant that such language would be superfluous. While the precise language of a disclaimer is in the board member's discretion, the SEC has indicated that disclaimers must make clear that the opinions are not those of the board. See SEC Advisory Opinion A03-07, April 2, 2007 (statements should indicate that they are "neither authorized by nor written on behalf of the board"); A36-14, October 29, 2014 (publications endorsing candidates for election to a board of education "must include a disclaimer, making it clear that your endorsement is as a private citizen and not as a member of the Board or on behalf of the entire Board.").

The Commissioner notes that in addition to appellant's disclaimer, which appears at the beginning of the Op-Ed, the publication also includes a disclaimer at the end, stating, "The opinions expressed herein are the writer's alone, and do not reflect the opinions of TAPinto.net or anyone who works for TAPinto.net. TAPinto.net is not responsible for the accuracy of any of the information supplied by the writer." Viewed in combination, it would not be unreasonable for a member of the public to conclude that the first disclaimer, written by appellant, was meant to distance the website – not the Board – from appellant's endorsements. Furthermore, a clear indication that a statement is not made on behalf of the Board provides clarity to the public when the substance of the statement repeatedly references appellant's position on the Board, and Board matters in general.

As detailed by both the ALJ and the SEC, because the Op-Ed created the appearance that the entire Board endorsed certain candidates and opposed others, appellant's actions conferred an unwarranted advantage upon the candidates he endorsed. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b). Additionally, appellant's actions were outside the scope of his duties as a Board member, and they had the potential to compromise the Board. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(e); N.J.A.C. 6A:28-6.4(a)(5).[2]

In support of its recommendation for a penalty of censure, the SEC relied on four cases. First, in Kwapniewski v. Curioni, Lodi Board of Education, Bergen County, SEC Docket No. C70-17, decided December 18, 2019 (Curioni), aff'd Commissioner January 23, 2020, the board member received a six-month suspension after repeatedly making personal attacks against a teacher on blog posts over a two-month period by posting inaccurate information about her salary, questioning her teaching qualifications and honesty, calling her names, and posting a picture of the street where she lives. Despite inclusion of a disclaimer, the board member repeatedly referenced his status on the Board. Here, the SEC noted that while appellant only authored one Op-Ed rather than a series of blog posts, the appearance that the Board advocated against Schliefstein was impactful on the public, and appellant was well aware of his impact.

[2] Appellant argues that the ALJ incorrectly found that his actions had the potential to compromise the Board because they were outside the scope of his duties. While appellant is correct that these are individual criteria, and both must be proven to find a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:24.1(e), the Commissioner finds that both criteria have been proven here.

Second, in Dunbar Bey v. Brown, Camden Board of Education, Camden County, SEC Docket No. C25-11, decided December 21, 2011 (Brown), the SEC recommended a penalty of censure after a board member did not remove the superintendent's picture which had appeared under a Facebook post referencing local terrorists, but the Commissioner found a reprimand was more appropriate due to the lack of prior violations. Here, the SEC explained that appellant's conduct was more deliberate and egregious than the action in Brown and warrants a penalty of censure.

Third, in Fleres v. Zhong, West Windsor-Plainsboro Board of Education, Mercer County, SEC Docket No. C17-18, decided May 3, 2019 (Zhong), a board member disclosed confidential information about an incident involving a student to his immediate family, and the information then spread. The SEC recommended a penalty of censure for the first-time offense, and the Commissioner agreed. Here, the SEC noted that, like in Zhong, a penalty greater than a reprimand is appropriate for a first-time offense.

In a recent matter that also involved the use of disclaimers, a board member attached his name to a political flyer and deliberately chose to indicate that he was a member of the board of education, without including any disclaimer to indicate that his views were not those of the board. Atif Nazir v. Nitang Patel, Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Piscataway, Commissioner Decision No. 164-21SEC (August 12, 2021). His violations were not inadvertent; he purposefully referenced his position on the board to support his political agenda. In that matter, the Commissioner agreed with the SEC that censure was the appropriate penalty, despite the fact that it was a first offense, because the board member's actions were more egregious than those in Brown, supra.

Upon review of appellant's actions, the Commissioner disagrees with the SEC that censure is the appropriate penalty in the instant matter, and instead concurs with the ALJ that a reprimand is the appropriate penalty. While appellant's disclaimer was insufficient, the record demonstrates that he did attempt to represent his views as his own. The Commissioner finds that appellant's behavior does not rise to the same level as that of the board member at issue in Nazir, supra, and, accordingly, a lesser penalty of reprimand is appropriate.

Accordingly, appellant is hereby reprimanded as a school official found to have violated the School Ethics Act.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

Final Decision

In the Matter of Christopher T. Treston,
Randolph Township Board of Education, Morris County,
Respondent

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from a Complaint that was filed on November 8, 2018, by Eliza Schleifstein (Complainant), alleging that Christopher T. Treston (Respondent), a then member of the Randolph Township Board of Education (Board), violated the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq. More specifically, the Complaint alleges that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) in Count 1; N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g) in Count 2; and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(h) in Count 3. In brief, the Complaint alleges that Respondent's Op-Ed, which was published on October 30, 2018, endorsed four (4) candidates for the then upcoming Board election; the Op-Ed did not endorse Complainant (and, in fact, openly advocated for her non-election); and the Op-Ed adversely affected Complainant's ability to be elected to the Board. Initial Decision at 1.

At its meeting on March 26, 2019, and after considering the parties' submissions, the School Ethics Commission (Commission) adopted a decision granting Respondent's Motion to Dismiss in Lieu of Answer (Motion to Dismiss) as to all allegations except for the alleged violations of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) in Count 1; N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) in Count 2; and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) in Count 3). On April 15, 2019, Respondent filed an Answer to the remaining allegations, and the above-captioned matter was docketed for the Commission to make a determination regarding probable cause.

Subsequently, and at a special meeting on June 19, 2019, the Commission adopted a decision finding probable cause for the remaining allegations in the Complaint. Based on its finding of probable cause, the Commission transmitted the within matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a plenary hearing and, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.9(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.7(b) through (e), the attorney for the Commission (Petitioner) was charged with prosecuting the allegations in the Complaint for which the Commission found probable cause to credit.

At the OAL, the above-captioned matter was assigned to the Honorable Leslie Z. Celentano, Administrative Law Judge (ALJ Celentano). Initial Decision at 1. Prior to the first hearing, which was scheduled for February 13, 2020, Respondent filed a "motion to bar witness testimony," and Petitioner filed a reply brief arguing, among other things, "the substance of the motion was really one for summary decision, not a motion in limine." Id. at 2. On February 13, 2020, the scheduled hearing date was converted, with consent from the parties, to oral argument on the motion, but was later adjourned due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Id. at 2-3. On August 26, 2020, the parties agreed to convert Respondent's motion to one for summary decision, and Petitioner was granted twenty (20) days to file a response. Id. at 3. Ultimately, and as authorized by the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules and other precedent, "to assist in the efficient disposition of" this matter, ALJ Celentano converted Petitioner's response to the "motion to bar witness testimony" as "a cross-motion for summary decision," and found the above-captioned matter ripe for summary decision. Id. at 3-5. In ALJ Celentano's estimation, "the papers and discovery that have been filed show there is no genuine issue as to the material facts and no facts that need to be found." Id. at 8.

On January 27, 2021, ALJ Celentano issued an Initial Decision detailing her findings and legal conclusions, and the Commission acknowledged receipt of same; therefore, the forty-five (45) day statutory period for the Commission to issue a Final Decision was March 15, 2021.[1] Prior to March 15, 2021, the Commission requested a forty-five (45) day extension of time to issue its final decision. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8, and for good cause shown, the Commission was granted an extension until April 29, 2021.

On February 19, 2021, and after receiving an extension, Petitioner filed Exceptions to the Initial Decision. On February 26, 2021, Respondent filed Exceptions to the Initial Decision and a response to Petitioner's Exceptions, but the filing was only accepted as a response to Petitioner's Exceptions.

At its meeting on March 23, 2021, the Commission considered the full record in this matter. Thereafter, and at its meeting on April 27, 2021, the Commission voted to adopt ALJ Celentano's findings of fact; adopt the legal conclusion that Respondent's insufficient disclaimer and statements in the Op-Ed violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:24.1(e) of the Code of Ethics for School Board Members (Code); adopt the legal conclusion that Petitioner failed to establish a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) of the Code; and to modify the recommended penalty of reprimand in favor of censure.

II. Initial Decision

After converting Respondent's "motion to bar witness testimony" to a motion for summary decision, and converting Petitioner's response to a cross-motion for summary decision, ALJ Celentano found the following non-exhaustive facts, based on the papers and discovery, to be relevant to ruling on the matter:

1) In the October 30, 2018, Op-Ed, Respondent used a disclaimer that stated, "The author is writing this endorsement on his own personal behalf. His opinions are his own." Complaint, Exhibit 1.

2) In the October 30, 2018, Op-Ed, and regarding Ms. Schleifstein, Respondent stated:

[1] Forty-five (45) days after January 27, 2021, is, technically, Saturday, March 13, 2021.

> ... Ms. Schleifstein's signature theme has been her experience as an expert communicator. That experience was not in evidence earlier this year. First, there was a very bitter – and very well-documented – exchange with [the Ridgewood Education Association (REA)] president ... . In that single incident, Ms. Schleifstein positioned herself at odds with virtually the entire teaching staff. For a board that is working hard to improve relations with the REA, Ms. Schleifstein's election would be a serious impediment. The April meeting was then followed by an objectively poor interview for an appointment to [a former Board member's] seat. To me, a genuinely skilled communicator would not fall victim to outbursts of emotion, or to poor advance preparation. An elected board member should not, either. Complaint, Exhibit 1.

3) Respondent admitted that he did not seek approval from the Board or its counsel before writing the Op-Ed. Initial Decision at 12.

4) Respondent admitted that the endorsement in his Op-Ed was an attempt to influence the voters. Id. at 12.

5) Overall, Respondent has "in the record admitted to almost all of the elements of the alleged violations," except whether his endorsement resulted in an unwarranted privilege or advantage to the endorsed candidates, whether the endorsement had the potential to compromise the Board, and whether he (Respondent) attempted to use the school to acquire some benefit for himself, a member of his immediate family, or a friend." Id. at 12, 17-18.

With the above in mind, ALJ Celentano concluded that Respondent's "insufficient disclaimer and statements in the [O]p-[E]d were made outside the scope of his duties as a Board member" and "had the potential to compromise the Board" in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:24.1(e). Initial Decision at 12. ALJ Celentano further concluded that because Respondent's disclaimer "was insufficient to convey that he was expressing his personal opinion, largely due to his multiple references to his position on the Board and Board matters generally," Petitioner established a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b), "as there was an 'unwarranted' advantage to the candidates [R]espondent endorsed by virtue of the appearance that they were receiving a Board endorsement." Id. However, ALJ Celentano concluded that Petitioner failed to establish a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f). Id.

After concluding that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) of the Code, ALJ Celentano turned to the issue of penalty. While acknowledging that the Commission has "historically imposed a censure either alone or with a suspension when a board member's violation is severe enough to warrant public notice of the violation and its penalty," ALJ Celentano determined that, after reviewing "comments by other ALJs and the Commission when recommending particular penalties as showing the purpose of imposing a penalty of censure versus reprimand," the penalty of reprimand "is in keeping with the Commission's past actions." Id. at 14-16. In support of this position, ALJ Celentano juxtaposed Respondent's conduct with the conduct of other individuals disciplined by the Commission, and also noted that Respondent had resigned his position with the Board. Id. at 16.

III. Exceptions

Petitioner's Exceptions

Petitioner filed exceptions on February 19, 2021, with consent from its adversary, arguing that, "the record does not support the ALJ's recommended penalty of reprimand" for the violations found in Count 1 and Count 2, and also does not support the conclusion that the allegations in Count 3 "were ripe for summary decision."

As to the recommended penalty of reprimand, Petitioner "[r]espectfully" disagrees, and argues that the "ALJ was mistaken." Petitioner asserts, "A robust body of case law suggests that a censure is warranted for Respondent's actions here," and cites many examples to support this assertion; as such, the Initial Decision should be modified to reflect the appropriate penalty of censure for the violations of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e). According to Petitioner, the evidence "overwhelmingly shows" that Respondent's conduct did not meet the standards set forth for Board members, he violated the public trust by abusing his official position, and he secured unwarranted privileges for those he endorsed. Petitioner maintains that Respondent also "exceeded the scope of his authority as a Board member by taking private action that had the potential to compromise the Board" when he "wrote and published the [O]p-[E]d that used plural pronouns, such a 'we[,]' 'our[,]' and 'us' on numerous occasions and also discussed Board matters." Petitioner maintains that the case law cited in the Exceptions supports a penalty of censure for "equivalent or lesser conduct." Therefore, and to "further guide board members regarding actions involving endorsement of candidates," Petitioner argues the appropriate penalty is "clearly" censure.

Regarding ALJ Celentano's legal conclusion that Count 3 "was ripe for summary decision," Petitioner argues this conclusion "should be rejected as arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable." Petitioner argues that, based on allegations in the Complaint as well as "the certification of [] [C]omplainant, Petitioner sufficiently identified material facts in dispute with regard to" a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) in Count 3. In this regard, the Commission "previously found in this matter that a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) may be established if evidence is presented that the endorsement in the Op-Ed was an attempt to influence voters and thereby to 'stack' the Board with individuals aligned with his own personal agenda, and that such efforts would result in a benefit to him, a member of his immediate family, or a friend." Petitioner further notes that Respondent "admitted that he attempted to influence voters with the endorsements in the Op-Ed, that he knew his Op-Ed may influence voters, and that he voted 'no' to a renewal of the Superintendent's contract in July 2018." However, Respondent denies that the "Op-Ed endorsed certain individuals because those candidates expressed a desire to seek non-renewal of the Superintendent's contract." According to Petitioner, and contrary to ALJ Celentano's finding that Respondent denied that he attempted to "stack" the Board, Respondent's "denial alone does not warrant summary decision," especially considering that the Complaint and the certification of Complainant "claim otherwise."

Furthermore, Petitioner argues that Respondent's "denial" that he attempted to "stack" the Board, "must inherently abide credibility determinations of his testimony and other witnesses, as well as a full review of the documentary evidence at a hearing." Petitioner notes that despite her attempt to "present additional facts for the factfinder's consideration through witness testimony," namely that Respondent's Op-Ed was an "attempt to influence voters and stack the board with individuals aligned with his own personal agenda," the ALJ "failed to acknowledge that there were material facts in dispute ... which contradicted [] Respondent's denials of the allegations." Petitioner further notes that the Complaint alleged Respondent was displeased with the Superintendent; Respondent was the only Board member to vote against the Superintendent's contract; Complainant certified as to her relationship with the teacher's association and the related vote of no confidence, which supports Complainant's allegation that Respondent was attempting to "stack" the Board; and Complainant notified Respondent that she supported the Superintendent and that Respondent "made inappropriate hand gestures towards Complainant during a candidate question and answer session." Therefore, Petitioner asserts that "there were genuine issues of material fact, with regard to the allegation in [C]ount 3, as to whether Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) ... ." Based on this information, Petitioner asserts that the ALJ's "determination that there was no issue of material fact to be decided was arbitrary and capricious and not supported by the record." As such, Count 3 should be "remanded for adjudication on the merits."

In summary, Petitioner maintains that the ALJ's Initial Decision should be modified to indicate that a penalty of censure is warranted for the violations of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), and the allegations in Count 3 "should be remanded for adjudication on the merits," and should not have been decided by summary decision.

Response to Petitioner's Exceptions

Although Respondent's filing on February 26, 2021, was submitted as both Exceptions to the Initial Decision and as a response to Petitioner's Exceptions, the Commission advised the parties that the filing would only be accepted as a response to Petitioner's Exceptions. The basis for the Commission's determination is that Respondent's papers were filed beyond the thirteen-day deadline permitted by N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and Respondent never requested an extension to file his own Exceptions.

As to Petitioner's recommendation of censure, Respondent argues this penalty is "neither necessary nor appropriate in these circumstances." Respondent maintains that Petitioner's reliance on "dated case law concerning conduct of other Board members which was in blatant violation of the Code and the Act" does not apply to this matter, and is misplaced. Furthermore, Petitioner's citation to In re Doris Graves, C47-05 (May 27, 2008), "is not even remotely comparable" to Respondent's behavior. Respondent further maintains that he included "various disclaimers throughout his [O]p-[E]d," and "did not attribute any opinion or statement in his Op-Ed to any other Board member." Respondent claims he also used language such as "I have chosen ...," "As fellow citizens ...," and "To me ...," which indicate that he was expressing his own opinion. According to Respondent, although ALJ Celentano found that the disclaimers were "insufficient" and that Respondent's statements were "outside the scope of his duties as a Board member," she did not conclude this behavior warranted a censure. Respondent further claims he did not "blatantly ignore the Department's guidance," and he is no longer a Board member; therefore, censure is not the appropriate penalty. Moreover, Respondent contends that Petitioner did not provide a "compelling argument" to support a censure.

Regarding a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f), Respondent asserts that ALJ Celentano correctly concluded that Petitioner failed to provide sufficient facts that he (Respondent) "attempted to influence the voters to 'stack' the Board with those who would help [R]espondent achieve his personal agenda, or that [R]espondent attempted to use the schools to acquire some benefit for himself, his family or a friend." Moreover, Petitioner's Exceptions fail "to set forth facts that have been alleged in the Complaint or found by the [Commission] to support a conclusion that Respondent's preferred candidates would deliver a benefit to him, a member of his immediate family or a friend." Respondent argues that Petitioner did not provide any evidence, or a witness who could confirm that Respondent "attempted to 'stack' the Board," and Respondent's "alleged dissatisfaction with the performance of the Superintendent or an allegation of 'inappropriate hand gestures towards [] [C]omplainant during a question and answer session'" do not support a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f). Respondent further argues, "it is undisputed that" Complainant was "against the teacher's association vote of no confidence in the Superintendent," and that Respondent "was the only Board member to vote against the Superintendent's contract renewal." Therefore, witness testimony was not needed and, even if those assertions were not "certified to in the record, they would have been assumed as true for the purposes of a motion for summary decision." In addition, Respondent argues that whether he made a "hand gesture" toward Complainant at a Board meeting "is not a fact material to the alleged violation," and the Complaint does not provide any evidence to support that any of the witnesses testimony would "offer anything relevant beyond confirming ... facts already assumed to be true ... ."

IV. Analysis

Upon a careful and independent review of the facts and evidence set forth in the record, the Commission adopts ALJ Celentano's findings of fact; adopts the legal conclusion that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) as well as N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e); and adopts the legal conclusion that Petitioner failed to establish a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f).

In finding violations of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), ALJ Celentano, cited various decisions and advisory opinions issued by the Commission, and noted important parameters regarding the conduct of school officials with regard to disclaimers, all of which the Commission finds are worthy of reiteration here. In this regard:

> Members of ... local boards of education are held to the same standards as other municipal officials regarding any conflicts of interest. ... And, a high standard was intended, as seen in the legislative findings and declarations of the Act, which is concerned with preventing violations of the public trust, or even [a] "justifiable impression among the public that such trust is being violated." ...
> The purpose of a disclaimer is to prevent board members from compromising the local boards of education by causing reasonable confusion among the public whether the board member's statement is made as a private citizen or as a public > official. ... Officials should be clear [not to] hold themselves out as a board member when attempting to engage in private actions to "ensure the public would be notified that the board member's [writing] was written in the board member's role as a private citizen." In order to not hold oneself out as a board member, the official should identify themself as a board member, but also indicate that they are writing "in their role as a private citizen and that the letter is neither authorized by nor written on behalf of the board." ... This disclaimer will not impact the official's First Amendment rights, and will also fulfill the Legislature's intent behind the Act. ...

> ... The most clear on what the [Commission] would consider to be a sufficient endorsement is from Advisory Opinion A36-14 (Oct. 29, 2014).
>
> In this opinion, while the [Commission] stated that it would leave it to the board members' discretion what language should be used in a disclaimer, the [Commission] repeatedly used a phrase which indicates it may have the specific language necessary to qualify as a sufficient disclaimer. The disclaimer is: "this endorsement is [Board Member's Name] personal one, and not as a member of the [Township] Board of Education, nor is the endorsement on behalf of the entire Board." Because this language is used so frequently, and clearly disclaims the board member's status in relation to the statement—as one made not in their official capacity, and not on behalf of or in relation to the board on which they sit—this phrase therefore appears to be a requirement in order to comply with the [Commission's] disclosure requirements before a board member endorses a candidate in an election. ....
>
> Having a disclaimer, even if it appears to be sufficient, may not be enough if the substance of the statements may reasonably lead the public to believe the official is speaking, and representing themself as a member of the board. ...
> Initial Decision at 8-11.

Based on the standards set forth above, and after reviewing the Commission's Probable Cause Notice, ALJ Celentano concluded that because Respondent's disclaimer was "insufficient to convey that he was expressing his personal opinion, largely due to his multiple references to his position on the Board and Board matters generally," and "there was an 'unwarranted' advantage to the candidates [R]espondent endorsed by virtue of the appearance that they were receiving a Board endorsement," Petitioner established a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b). Id. at 12. In addition, Respondent's "insufficient disclaimer and statements in the [O]p-[E]d were made outside the scope of his duties as a Board member, and thus violated" N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e) because "they had the potential to compromise the Board." Id. However, ALJ Celentano concluded that Petitioner failed to establish a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f) because the Complaint did not set forth any facts to "support a conclusion that establishes either that [R]espondent attempted to influence the voters to 'stack' the Board with those who would help [R]espondent achieve his personal agenda, or that [R]espondent attempted to use the schools to acquire some benefit for himself, his family, or a friend." Id. In light of, among other things, Respondent's resignation from the Board, the Commission agrees with ALJ Celentano's legal conclusions and the basis therefor.

The Commission is also compelled to note that there are more current cases, which provide similar direction on the use of disclaimers. For example, in Melnyk v. Fiel, which resulted in the dismissal of a complaint because the initiating party failed to present sufficient facts which could support a finding that the school official violated the cited provision of the Code, the Commission discussed how failure to include a disclaimer can lead to the belief that the statements made by a school official, even if attempted to be made in their personal/private capacity, can be viewed as those of the Board. Highlands Borough Board of Education, Monmouth County, Commission Docket No. C64-18 (C64-18). More specifically, and although Respondent Fiel argued that the statements attributed to her by Complainant Melnyk "were not made in her capacity as a Board member, and [did] not relate to her Board membership or to Board actions," the Commission found that "the statements on her Facebook page [were] clearly linked to her Board member (and candidacy)," her social media page did not have a disclaimer noting that the statements made were her own and unrelated to the Board, and that, as a result, "it [was] reasonable for a member of the public ... to perceive the statements as being made by Respondent in her capacity as a Board member." C64-18 at 4. In a footnote, the Commission also addressed the kind of disclaimer that could have avoided the issue altogether, to wit:

> A prominent disclaimer (caps/bold), such as, "THE FOLLOWING STATEMENTS ARE MADE IN MY CAPACITY AS A PRIVATE CITIZEN, AND NOT IN MY CAPACITY AS A BOARD MEMBER. THESE STATEMENTS ARE ALSO NOT REPRESENTATIVE OF THE BOARD OR ITS INDIVIDUAL MEMBERS, AND SOLELY REPRESENT MY OWN PERSONAL OPINIONS," may have avoided the appearance – actual or perceived – that the statements were made in Respondent's capacity as a Board member. The Commission additionally notes that, even if an appropriate disclaimer is used, the substance of a post/statement can, nevertheless, render the disclaimer meaningless.
> Id. (emphasis added).

In addition, in Kober v. Langevin, Complainant Kober asserted that Respondent Langevin violated the Code when she, among other things, promoted the approval of a ballot issue/question on her personal Facebook page. Ho-Ho-Kus Board of Education, Bergen County, Commission Docket No. C07-19 at 2-3 (C07-19). In defense of this allegation, Respondent Langevin countered that she included a disclaimer on her social media page stating, "I am a member of the [Ho-Ho-Kus Board of Education (HHK BOE)], however the views expressed here are my own and not expressed on behalf of the HHK BOE." Id. at 3. Although the Commission ultimately dismissed the matter, and of relevance here, the Commission averred:

> Notwithstanding the determination as set forth herein, the Commission feels compelled to note that, as it has stated previously, Board members do not abdicate their state and federal constitutional rights upon being sworn-in. Although Board members, unlike other citizens, are bound by and must adhere to the provisions of > the Act, the facts as alleged in the Complaint do not rise to the level of a violation. Without any suggestion that Respondent and/or other members of the Board utilized or expended taxpayer dollars to advocate only one side of the issue, or any suggestion that Respondent – in her capacity as a Board member – endorsed the issue, the Commission is restrained by the provisions of the Act, and its implementing regulations. The facts in the Complaint relate to actions taken by Respondent in her capacity as a citizen, community member, and taxpayer, and do not implicate her standing as a Board member. In addition, whenever Respondent actually endorsed the issue ..., as opposed to discussing the logistics of posting a sign or dropping off a sign at another community member's request, Respondent did include a disclaimer noting that her opinion was as a private citizen, and did not reflect the position of the Board (or her standing as a Board member).

> Id. at 7-8.

As such, and as a supplement to those cited by ALJ Celentano, there is a robust body of decisions and advisory opinions which school officials can utilize to determine when, and how, a disclaimer must be used on social media (and other online/electronic publications) when speaking in their personal/private capacity in order to avoid running afoul of the Act. These decisions and advisory opinions also make clear that the use of a disclaimer does not give a school official carte blanche to then discuss Board business and/or matters in a way that is, or appears to be, on behalf of the Board. In this way, it is the substance of the writing, and not the disclaimer itself, that will dictate whether the school official has rendered a disclaimer meaningless.

V. Decision

For the reasons more fully detailed above, the Commission adopts ALJ Celentano's findings of fact; adopts the legal conclusion that Respondent's insufficient disclaimer and statements in the Op-Ed violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:24.1(e); and adopts the legal conclusion that Petitioner failed to establish a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f).

VI. Penalty

Based upon the conclusion that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), ALJ Celentano recommended a penalty of reprimand. Following its review of the facts and evidence set forth in the record, the Commission modifies the recommended penalty of reprimand in favor of censure. In modifying ALJ Celentano's recommended penalty, the Commission finds three (3) prior decisions to be most instructive, namely Kwapniewski v. Curioni, Lodi Board of Education, Bergen County, Commission Docket No. C70-17 (C70-17); Dunbar Bey v. Brown, Camden Board of Education, Camden County, Commission Docket No. C25-11 (C25-11); and Fleres v. Zhong, West Windsor-Plainsboro Board of Education, Mercer County, Commission Docket No. C17-18 (C17-18).

First, in C70-17, Respondent Curioni, a board of education member, made "multiple" references to Complainant Kwapniewski, a teaching staff member, on his personal blog over a period of two months. C70-17 at 4. In particular, the posts on Respondent Curioni's blog contained inaccurate or misleading information about Complainant Kwapniewski's salary; referenced Complainant Kwapniewski in a negative manner; depicted a picture of the street where she (Complainant Kwapniewski) lives; undermined her credibility with members of the local education association; questioned her qualifications for her teaching position; implied she received her position through patronage; questioned her salary and honesty; and referred to Complainant Kwapniewski as a "greedy bastard" and "union bully." Id. Importantly, and although Respondent Curioni had a "disclaimer" on his blog purporting to indicate that he was writing in his capacity as a private citizen, the ALJ determined that, based on his repeated reference to his status as a Board member, the blog "indisputably represents him as a Board member." Id. at 6. As a result, the ALJ found that Complainant Kwapniewski had proven that Respondent Curioni's conduct violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g), and recommended a penalty of suspension for no less than six months. Id.

Although the Commission agreed that Complainant Kwapniewski had established violations of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(c), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e), and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g), it rejected the determination that Respondent Curioni had violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d). Id. at 7-8. In terms of penalty, the Commission agreed with the ALJ that Respondent's deliberate, unnecessary, and repeated attacks on Complainant Kwapniewski, her qualifications, her salary, and her general employment, justified a harsh penalty, and, consequently, recommended a six month suspension. Id. at 8-9. The Commission also noted that, but for its rejection of the conclusion that Respondent Curioni violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d), the Commission would have recommended a suspension for a much longer duration, and possibly removal. Id. at 9.

Upon review, the Commissioner agreed with the Commission's recommended penalty of suspension for six months, citing "the severity, willfulness, and frequency of respondent's inappropriate conduct ...," and imposed same. Kwapniewski v. Curioni, New Jersey Commissioner of Education, Agency Docket No. 334-12/19.

While Respondent here did not engage in a series of posts, but rather only authored one Op-Ed, the substance of the Op-Ed, and the import of his failure to include an appropriate disclaimer on that Op-Ed must be carefully scrutinized. More specifically, while offering public support for four (4) named candidates, Respondent also publicly opposed Ms. Schleifstein's candidacy. In this Op-Ed which, again, was not appropriately disclaimed as being made in his personal/private capacity and thus was made in his capacity as a Board member and/or on behalf of the Board, Respondent stated:

> ... Ms. Schleifstein's signature theme has been her experience as an expert communicator. That experience was not in evidence earlier this year. First, there was a very bitter – and very well-documented – exchange with [the Ridgewood Education Association (REA)] president ... . In that single incident, Ms. Schleifstein positioned herself at odds with virtually the entire teaching staff. For a board that is working hard to improve relations with the REA, Ms. Schleifstein's election would be a serious impediment. The April meeting was > then followed by an objectively poor interview for an appointment to [a former Board member's] seat. To me, a genuinely skilled communicator would not fall victim to outbursts of emotion, or to poor advance preparation. An elected board member should not, either. Complaint, Exhibit 1.

In short, and in one single post, Respondent – a member and representative of the Board – publicly denounced Ms. Schleifstein's stated prowess as an effective and "genuinely skilled" communicator; indicated that she had "positioned herself at odds" with the entire teaching staff, thus broadcasting to the community that Ms. Schleifstein would be unable to establish or foster a meaningful relationship with "the entire teaching staff"; and proclaimed that her election would be a "serious impediment" to a productive relationship between the Board and the REA. Although it is impossible to determine whether the Op-Ed, in and of itself, was the reason that Ms. Schleifstein was not successful in her bid for election, the power of Board-backed public non-endorsement of a candidate cannot be denied. Moreover, Respondent specifically admitted that he wrote the Op-Ed to "influence the voters" – as a sitting Board member, Respondent was well aware how impactful his words could be to the public. Initial Decision at 12.

Second, in C25-11, the Commission found that Respondent Brown, a board of education member, violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(i) when he posted a message on his Facebook page ("Now if we could only do something about our local terrorists that destroy dreams and burn futures"), the Superintendent's photo came up as a result of the post, and he did not remove it. C25-11 at 4, 6-7. In finding a violation, the Commission stated, "when a sitting Board member makes such a judgmental proclamation, it is likely to be credited far more than a statement offered by an ordinary citizen"; therefore, the Commission recommended a penalty of censure. Id. at 7. In recommending censure in this matter, which it termed one of "first impression," the Commission stated, "the Commission takes this opportunity to impress upon this Respondent, as well as other Board members, that in using social media, the affirmative duties within the Code of Ethics for School Board Members may not be overlooked." Id. at 8. Consequently, the Commission found that censure was "an appropriate sanction to convey this message." Id.

Upon review, the Commissioner found that, due to the absence of prior violations by Respondent Brown, reprimand was the more appropriate penalty. Dunbar Bey v. Brown, New Jersey Commissioner of Education, Agency Docket No. 365-12/11.

Finally, in C17-18, Respondent Zhong, also a board of education member, received a message from a parent within the school district about an incident, which resulted in the discipline of a high school student. C17-18 at 2. Respondent Zhong forwarded the message via WeChat to a group of people solely consisting of members of his immediate family. Id. Thereafter, one of Respondent Zhong's immediate family members forwarded the message to "countless" others, and it eventually made its way to the student who was the subject of the initiating message. Id. Following her review, the ALJ determined that Respondent Zhong had violated the confidentiality provision of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g), and recommended a penalty of reprimand. Id. at 1. The basis for the ALJ's recommended penalty was that Respondent acknowledged that he made a mistake, and indicated that he did not intend to disclose the information to anyone outside of his immediate family. Id. at 4.

While the Commission agreed that Respondent Zhong's conduct violated the confidentiality provision of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(g), it rejected the recommended penalty of reprimand in favor of censure. Id. In finding that a more severe penalty was appropriate, the Commission stated, "Respondent seems to overlook the fact that confidential information, which is shared with him because he is a Board member, should not be shared with anyone, including members of his own family until, at the very least, the information is no longer confidential." Id. As such, and "in order to impress upon Respondent the fundamental importance of safeguarding confidential information," the Commission recommended a penalty of censure. Id.

Of note, and following review, the Commissioner concurred with the penalty of censure for Respondent Zhong. Fleres v. Zhong, New Jersey Commissioner of Education, Agency Docket No. 105-5/19 (emphasis added).

Taken together, C25-11 and C17-18 recognize that, in certain circumstances, which the Commission finds applicable here, a penalty greater than reprimand is warranted even when a school official has not previously been found in violation of the Act and/or has not otherwise been sanctioned for same. Although, in C25-11, the Commissioner downgraded the Commission's recommended penalty of censure in favor of reprimand because there was an absence of prior infractions, the conduct at issue in that case (C25-11) was far less egregious, deliberate, and purposeful than Respondent's actions here. In addition, in C25-11, the Commission appropriately recognized the potential pitfalls associated with the use of social media by school officials and attempted, at that time, to send a cautionary warning to the field. Now, more than a decade later, when use of social media and online publications has become commonplace, prolific, pervasive, and often times divisive, and given that there has been a significant influx in the number of complaints filed with the Commission regarding use (or non-use) of disclaimers in electronic publications (not just on social media), it is now more critical than ever to underscore and emphasize that when Board members want to speak as private citizens, they must include an appropriate disclaimer that makes the capacity in which they are speaking clear and unambiguous. In addition, even if an appropriate disclaimer is used, a school official must never negate the import of the disclaimer by proceeding, under the purported protection of a disclaimer, to discuss or comment on Board business or matters in a way that leads a member of the public to believe that the individual is speaking on behalf of, and as a representative of, the Board. Finally, it is of no moment to the Commission that Respondent resigned his seat from the Board, and this fact should not mitigate or otherwise reduce a penalty to any degree. To the extent resignation affords a school official the ability to avoid the imposition of a harsher penalty, the force and effect of the Act becomes diminished.

For all of the aforementioned reasons, the Commission recommends that Respondent be censured for having violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e).

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) for review of the Commission's recommended sanctions. Parties may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's findings of violations of the Act; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction and an appeal of the Commission's findings of violations of the Act.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanctions of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's findings of violations may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended sanctions to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction." A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's findings of violations must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4, et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanctions will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the findings of violations on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's brief on appeal.

Resolution Adopting Decision in Connection with C71-18

Whereas, at a special meeting on June 19, 2019, and in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.9(c) and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.7(b) through (e), the School Ethics Commission (Commission) voted to transmit the remaining allegations in the matter docketed as C71-18 to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a plenary hearing; and

Whereas, at the OAL, the attorney for the Commission (Petitioner) was responsible for prosecuting the remaining allegations; and

Whereas, at the OAL, and after converting certain of the parties' filings, the Honorable Leslie Z. Celentano, Administrative Law Judge (ALJ Celentano) determined the matter was ripe for summary decision, and issued an Initial Decision dated January 27, 2021; and

Whereas, in her Initial Decision, ALJ Celentano found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24(b) and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(e); Respondent did not violate N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(f); and recommended a penalty of reprimand; and

Whereas, on February 19, 2021, Petitioner filed Exceptions to ALJ Celentano's Initial Decision, and Respondent filed a reply to Petitioner's Exceptions on February 26, 2021;

Whereas, at its meeting on March 23, 2021, the Commission reviewed and discussed the full record in the above-captioned matter; and

Whereas, at its meeting on March 23, 2021, the Commission discussed adopting the findings of facts; adopting the legal conclusions; and modifying the recommended penalty of reprimand in favor of a censure; and

Whereas, at its meeting on April 27, 2021, the Commission reviewed and voted to approve the within decision as accurately memorializing its actions/findings from its meeting on March 23, 2021; and

Now Therefore Be It Resolved, the Commission hereby adopts the within decision.

Re: Board of Education of the City of Paterson, Passaic County v. New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association, Agency Dkt. No. 185-9/21, Commissioner Decision No. 209-21E.

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the materials filed in connection with the petition of appeal and motion for emergent relief filed by the Paterson Board of Education (Paterson) in the above-captioned matter. Paterson is appealing the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association's (NJSIAA) determination that S.V. is required to sit out four football games this season, as well as 30 days of basketball, based on the fact that he transferred from Manchester Regional High School to Eastside High School without a bona fide change of address. The Transfer Rule is addressed in Article V, Section 4(K)(2) of the Bylaws and states:

> a. A student-athlete transferring from one secondary school to another, without a bona fide change of residence by that student's parent or guardian, shall be ineligible to participate for a period of thirty (30) calendar days or one half of the maximum number of games > allowed in the sport by NJSIAA rules (ineligibility period) from the beginning of the regular schedule, whichever is less, in any sport in which the student has previously participated at the varsity level.

Under the Transfer Rule, S.V. would be required to sit out a portion of both the football season and the basketball season because he played both sports while he attended Manchester Regional High School. However, the NJSIAA indicated through the transfer portal that S.V. could "sit 30 days or 4 games in football, or 30 days or 13 games in basketball." Based on that language, Paterson maintains that S.V. believed he had the option of choosing to sit out either part of the football season or part of the basketball season, and therefore he decided to sit out part of the basketball season and he participated in this season's football games. Once the NJSIAA became aware that S.V. had played in three football games, S.V. was directed to sit out the next four football games. Recognizing the ambiguity in its initial notice, the NJSIAA did not impose any penalty on the Eastside football program for playing an ineligible student.

Upon review of the submissions, I have determined that this matter is not properly before me as the NJSIAA rules clearly state that no appeals of the Transfer Rule will be heard. Article V, Section 4(K)(2) of the Bylaws states:

> CL1: Since the thirty (30) days or one half the maximum number of games allowed in a sport by the NJSIAA rules ineligibility period (whichever is less) is intended to serve as a deterrent for students transferring from one school to another without a bona fide parental/guardian change of residence and is one of the most lenient penalties in the United States, appeals will not be heard, regardless of reason.

Further, under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-7.1(c), "[t]he Commissioner shall summarily dismiss any petition seeking to appeal a determination of the NJSIAA in an area that is expressly designated as not appealable by the NJSIAA constitution, bylaws or rules and regulations as adopted by member schools pursuant to law." Unfortunately, despite the fact that the NJSIAA's notice of the specific sit-out requirements in this case was erroneous, I am precluded from adjudicating this matter because the Transfer Rule is not appealable. However, given the fact that the NJSIAA clearly made a mistake and that S.V. has already been forced to sit out two football games through no fault of his own, I strongly encourage the NJSIAA to reconsider its position for the remaining two football games that S.V. is being directed to miss.

Accordingly, the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.[1]

Sincerely,

Angelica Allen-McMillan, Ed.D.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

V.L., on behalf of minor children, N.D. and D.D.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Island Heights, Ocean County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that her minor children were not entitled to a free public education in the Island Heights School District during the 2020-2021 school year. Petitioner had registered her children in July 2020, stating that the family would be residing with petitioner's mother indefinitely at her home in Island Heights. The Board contended that a subsequent residency investigation revealed that petitioner and the children consistently entered and exited the children's father's home in Toms River and were not living at petitioner's mother's home in Island Heights. The Board filed a counterclaim for tuition for the children's period of ineligible attendance.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the issue in this case is whether petitioner's children were entitled to enrollment in Island Heights schools for the purpose of receiving a thorough and efficient public education free of charge pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1; any child between the ages of five and twenty years old is entitled to a free public education in the school district in which he or she is domiciled, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a); here, petitioner acknowledged that she and her children did not live in Island Heights for the period of September 8, 2020 through October 30, 2020; and their intent to move to Island Heights is not consistent with the regulations which require that petitioner and her children be currently domiciled within the school district. The ALJ concluded that petitioner and her children were domiciled in Toms River with the children's father from September 8, 2020 to October 30, 2020, and that the Board is entitled to reimbursement of tuition costs for that period in the total amount of $8,526.44.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. The petitioner was ordered to reimburse the Board for tuition in the amount of $8,526.44 for the period from September 8, 2020 to October 30, 2020. The petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

V.L., on behalf of minor children,
N.D. and D.D.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Island Heights, Ocean County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the exceptions filed by petitioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 have been reviewed and considered.[1]

Petitioner enrolled her children in the Island Heights school district in July 2020, stating that she and her children would be residing at her mother's home indefinitely. A residency investigation conducted by the district demonstrated that petitioner and the children consistently entered and exited the children's father's home in Toms River, and never entered or exited petitioner's mother's home in Island Heights. The district sent petitioner a notice of removal, and she filed a petition of appeal. Following a hearing, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) concluded that petitioner and her children were domiciled in Toms River from September 8, 2020 to October 30, 2020, and that the Board is entitled to reimbursement of tuition costs for that period.

[1] The Board did not file a reply to petitioner's exceptions.

In her exceptions, petitioner argues that the Initial Decision failed to acknowledge petitioner's claims that the Board selectively enforces residency rules on the basis of race and/or disability. Petitioner also takes issue with several alleged inaccuracies in the Initial Decision, including the location and dates of the investigation. Finally, petitioner requests that any calculation of tuition reflect that the period of ineligibility included virtual and half days.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's finding that petitioner failed to sustain her burden of establishing that she was a domiciliary of Island Heights from September 8, 2020 through October 30, 2020. Petitioner acknowledged that she and her children did not reside in the district during that time, and their intent to move there is insufficient to establish domicile. In K.L. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Kinnelon, 2010 N.J. Super. Unpub. LEXIS 11 (App Div. January 4, 2010), the Appellate Division found that although the petitioners in that case had purchased a home in Kinnelon, they did not reside in the district, as they could not occupy the home during renovations. The court explained:

> We think it obvious from these general principles that petitioners and their children were never domiciled in Kinnelon. While they may have possessed a present intention to reside there when the renovations were complete, it is undisputed that petitioners and their children never did reside in the district during the 2007-2008 school year. As such, their intention to do so is irrelevant. They had never established an "actual and physical . . . abode" in Kinnelon, and therefore they lacked the "necessary concurrence of physical presence and an intention to make that place one's home" upon which the legal concept of domicile rests.
> [Id. at *13-14 (quoting In re Unanue, 255 N.J. Supra. 362, 376 (Law. Div. 1991), aff'd, 311 N.J. Super. 589 (App Div.), certif. denied, 157 N.J. 541 (1998), cert. denied, 526 U.S. 1051 (1999)).]

Following this principle, petitioners' argument that they "intended" to live in Island Heights, while actually living in Toms River, lacks merit. Whether or not petitioners hoped to move into Island Heights does not change the fact that they had not taken up an actual and physical abode in the district. While petitioner's move was allegedly delayed due to the failure of the former tenant of the home to vacate the premises, rather than the need for renovations that was at issue in K.L., the Commissioner does not find that this distinction warrants a different conclusion.

Additionally, as the ALJ found, petitioner and her children were not displaced from the Island Heights address, because they did not live there until November 1, 2020. The inability of petitioner's mother to evict the former tenant due to the Covid-19 eviction moratorium does not equate to a displacement. Accordingly, petitioner has not met the requirements for a finding of family crisis that would permit them to attend school in Island Heights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.1. Because petitioner was not domiciled in Island Height or experiencing a family crisis, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that the children were not entitled to a free public education in the district's schools during that time.

Petitioner's exceptions briefly refer to her allegations regarding discrimination by the Board, without further explanation. Having reviewed the pleadings below – in which petitioner claimed that students who are not members of a racial minority reside out of district but have been permitted to enroll in the district – the Commissioner does not find them persuasive. Petitioner acknowledged that she and her children did not reside in the district until November 1, 2020, making the children ineligible for a free public education in the district's schools during that time as a matter of law. The possible treatment of other students by the Board is irrelevant to the conclusions reached herein. Furthermore, the alleged inaccuracies in the Initial Decision listed in petitioner's exceptions are minor and do not change the application of the residency rules or the outcome of this matter.

Finally, the Commissioner concludes that there is no basis for a reduction in the tuition reimbursement based on the fact that the school days at issue may have been virtual and/or half days. Calculation of tuition reimbursement is governed by N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, and the Commissioner has no discretion to alter that calculation. Moreover, the Commissioner notes that a typical school year often includes a number of half days, a fact of which the legislature was surely aware when it chose not to include any different calculation for half days in the statute.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, the Commissioner shall assess tuition against petitioner for the time period during which the minor children were ineligible to attend school in the district. Therefore, the Board is entitled to tuition reimbursement in the amount of $8,526.44 for the period from September 8, 2020 through October 30, 2020,[2] during which time petitioner's minor children were ineligible to attend school in Island Heights.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Petitioner is directed to reimburse the Board in the amount of $8,526.44 for the period from September 8, 2020 through October 30, 2020, for tuition costs incurred during the time period in which N.D. and D.D. were ineligible to attend school in Island Heights. The petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[3]

V.L. on behalf of minor children N.D. and D.D.,
Petitioner,
v.
BOROUGH OF ISLAND HEIGHTS BOARD OF EDUCATION, OCEAN COUNTY,
Respondent.

Matthew J. Lang, Esq, for petitioner

Danielle Panizzi, Esq., for respondent (Cleary, Giacobbe, Alfieri, Jacobs, LLC, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 16, 2021 Decided: August 30, 2021

BEFORE MARY ANN BOGAN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner V.L. on behalf of her two children, N.D. and D.D. challenges the decision of respondent, Borough of Island Heights Board of Education, Ocean County (Board), that minor children N.D. and D.D., were non-resident students, and were not eligible to attend school within the Island Heights District (District), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, and its accompanying regulations, N.J.A.C. 6A:1-1 et. seq. from September 8, 2020 to October 30, 2020. Respondent requests tuition for the days D.D. and N.D. attended the district as non-resident students.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On October 28, 2020, V.L. filed a petition with the Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A 18A:6-9. On or after November 30, 2020, respondent filed a motion to dismiss in lieu of an answer. This motion was not decided by the Commissioner and was transmitted with the petition on February 11, 2021, to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. At the request of the parties a settlement conference took place. Thereafter the hearing took place on July 16, 2021, and the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

The following facts were undisputed, and I therefore FIND the following FACTS:

1. On or about May 6, 2020, petitioner, V.L. parent, posted on Facebook, "[d]oes anyone know if there is any administration at the elementary school? I want to get my kids on the out of town waiting list, but when I go to the website, I only see a registration packet not a[n] application. Does anyone know if this is what I would fill out?" (J-1.)

2. On or about July 22, 2020, petitioner submitted an application for enrollment for her children N.D. and D.D. at Island Heights Grade School which stated they reside at [redacted to maintain privacy] Island Heights, and included a letter from her mother, J.L., which states, "This letter is to inform my daughter V.L. and her two sons' D.D. and N.D. will be residing in my home at [redacted to retain privacy], indefinitely as their main residence." The packets also indicated the children's father resided at Bark Street in Toms River. (J-2, J-3, J-4.)

3. The Board initiated a residency investigation which included surveillance of residences at Bark Avenue, Toms River and the Island Heights address. (J-6, 7, 8.)

4. The investigation indicated that N.D. and D.D. consistently entered and exited the home at Bark Street in Toms River during the residency investigation and neither the petitioner nor D.D. or N.D. were observed entering or exiting the home located in Island Heights.

5. On September 22, 2020, the Board issued a preliminary notice of ineligibility and removal to petitioner based upon the results of the residency investigation. (P-9.)

6. On October 14, 2020, the petitioner and the Board participated in the formal residency hearing as to petitioner's residency in the Borough of Island Heights.

7. Petitioner's Jersey Central Power and Light utility bill and a job work order lists the Island Heights home as petitioner's address. (R-11, 12.)

8. Petitioner's New Jersey Department of Motor Vehicle Commission issued driver's license lists a P.O. Box in Island Heights as petitioner's address. (P-13.)

9. On October 15, 2020, the Board issued a Final Notice of Ineligibility stating that D.D. and N.D. are not domiciled in Island Heights and are not eligible for a free public education. (J-14.)

10. On or around November 9, 2020, petitioner submitted to the Board an affidavit that states as of November 1, 2020, petitioner and her children N.D. and D.D. are residing at a home in Island Heights. (J-16.)

11. On August 24, 2020, Ocean County Health Department wrote to petitioner at Bark Street setting forth guidelines for managing the onset of COVID. (J-17.)

12. The per diem rate of tuition for general education students enrolled in the respondent's school district is $112.19.

13. N.D. and D.D. were ineligible for thirty-eight days of school between September 8, 2020 and October 30, 2020.

TESTIMONY

Timothy Rehm, Superintendent Principal, stated that the District takes at "face value" any and all documents submitted on behalf of incoming students who are registered to attend school in Island Heights. Here a letter submitted on behalf of N.D. and D.D. stated that the students would be living in Island Heights "indefinitely" by the start of the school year. The concern for N.D. and D.D.s' residency started after the school year began when the students and also parent V.L. made statements indicating that they lived outside of the District. An investigation commenced in and around September 17, 2020 and determined that the family did not live in Island Heights. Thereafter the petitioner admitted that the family did not live in Island Heights until November 1, 2020. Mr. Rehm explained the entry in the investigation report dated August 17, 2020, is a typo[1] and should be September 17, 2020. The administrator conducting the investigation did not work in August, and the District did not have a concern about the students' residency as it was not known at that time that there was a question about where they lived.

For Petitioner

Patrick Ferraro is a former subtenant at the Island Heights house from approximately October 2019 to June or July 2020. He entered into a month-to-month lease agreement with the tenant, "Nicole." He stated the owner of the home asked him to move out in the summer 2020 so that V.L. and her children could move in. V.L. and her children did not live in the home during the time that he lived there.

[1] The District's residency determination letter indicates that the investigation took place between August and September 2020.

V.L., mother of N.D. and D.D. testified that the family lives in Island Heights in a home that has been in her family for thirty-four years. She previously lived in Toms River. She wanted to move to Island Heights so that her sons could attend a smaller school. Her mother suggested she could "come home" and live in the home. At that time, "Nicole" a family friend lived there. In and around June or July 2020, V.L.'s mother notified "Nicole" that she could live there until the end of August 2020, so long as she allowed renovation work to take place in the home. The other tenants were notified to leave by July 2020.

V.L. explained that she intended to return to her childhood home in time for the school year. She relied on a work order dated August 27, 2020 and an electric bill for services at the Island Heights home dated July 15, 2020 in her name, to demonstrate her intent to live there. Near the end of August 2020, she learned that "Nicole" refused to leave the home by the end of the month. The move was also delayed because at the beginning of August 2020 she was diagnosed with COVID-19.

She never suspected a residency issue until in and around mid-September when she learned that her son was "interrogated" about where he lived. Then on September 22, 2020, she received a letter of ineligibility from the District. That same day, she asked Mr. Rehm if she could have thirty days to get the tenant to leave the home. She also asked the tenant to allow her to move in and sublet rooms, but the tenant did not agree.

V.L. acknowledged that she began living in Island Heights on November 1, 2020. She informed the District that she had no intention of changing her driving license or mailing address that has the Toms River address because she does "not have time," it is "easier" to get the mail in Toms River because otherwise she would need to "track" her mother down to get the Island Heights mailbox key, and she had "no intention" of severing ties with her Toms River home. The delay in moving to Island Heights was caused by the tenant. She "planned" to live there, she bought supplies to renovate the property and she arranged for furniture delivery.

She acknowledged that her Facebook posts states "I am in Silverton with Dan and the kids. Looking for home in Island Heights but could not find a pool not necessary but want to find my own home." She also posted that she bought the house for a "steal" and was reluctant to purchase because of the price. She continues to look for new homes "all the time."

Petitioner thinks she completed the "Choice" paperwork application, but the school did not have seats in the grade her son was attending.

J.L., mother of V.L., owns the home in Island heights where her daughter currently resides with N.D. and D.D. In the beginning of June 2020 she started talking about V.L. moving in. At that time a tenant named "Nicole" lived in the home along with two subtenants, she later learned. "Nicole" paid $1,000 per month plus utilities. At that time she told Nicole that she needed to go back home and they needed to leave, by September 1, 2020 so her daughter could live in the home by September. There was some "push back" and then she learned that due to COVID "my hands were tied." She could not evict the tenant and V.L. could not gain access to the home by the start of the school year.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

The issue is whether petitioner's children N.D. and D.D. were entitled to be enrolled in the Borough of Island Heights School District for purposes of receiving a thorough and efficient public education free of charge pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. If not, should the respondent's request for tuition reimbursement for thirty-eight days at the beginning of the 2020-2021 school year be granted.

Any child between the ages of five and twenty years old is entitled to a free public education in the school district in which he is domiciled. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a); N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a). See, V.R. ex rel A.R. v. Hamburg Bd. of Educ., 2 N.J.A.R. 283, 287 (1980), aff'd, State Bd., 1981 S.L.D. 1533, rev'd on other grounds sub nom.; Rabinowitz v. N.J. State Bd. of Educ., 550 F. Supp. 481 (D.N.J. 1982) (New Jersey requires local domicile, as opposed to mere residence, in order for a student to receive a free education).

The domicile of an unemancipated child is that of his parent, custodian or guardian. Somerville Bd. of Educ. v. Manville Bd. of Educ., 332 N.J. Super. 6, 12 (App. Div. 2000), aff'd, 167 N.J. 55 (2001); P.B.K. o/b/o minor child E.Y. v. Board of Ed. of Tenafly, 343 N.J. Super 419, 427 (App. Div. 2001). A child may also be considered domiciled in a school district if he lives with an adult domiciled in that school district, as long as the child is financially supported by that adult as if he were their own child, upon submission of a sworn affidavit to the board of education. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1).

The acts, statements and conduct of the individual, as viewed in the light of all the circumstances, determine a person's true intent. Collins v. Yancey, 55 N.J. Super. 514, 521 (Law Div. 1959). The parent, or in this case, petitioner V.L., has the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2).

When a local board determines that a child is not properly domiciled in its district, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2) provides a right of appeal for the parents as follows:

> The parent or guardian may contest the Board's decision before the Commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the Commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this section.

A student's "domicile" is where the student's parent or guardian has a permanent home in the school district such that "the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere." N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1); State v. Benny, 20 N.J 238, 250 (1955); In re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374 (Law Div. 1991), aff'd, 311 N.J. Super. 589 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 157 N.J. 541 (1998), cert. denied, 526 U.S. 1051, 119 S. Ct. 1357, 143 L. Ed. 2d 518 (1999).

When a person arguably has more than one residence, there are factors to consider in determining his or her domicile: the physical characteristics of each place; the time spent and the things done in each place; the other persons found there; the person's mental attitude towards each place; and whether or not there was an intention, when absent, to return to that address. Mercadante v. City of Paterson, 111 N.J. Super. 35, 39–40 (Ch. Div. 1970), aff'd, 58 N.J. 112 (1971). "[A] choice of domicile by a person, irrespective of his motive, will be honored by the court, provided there are sufficient objective indicia, by way of proofs, supporting the actual existence of that domicile." In re Unanue.

In the within matter, petitioner acknowledged that she and her children did not reside within the Borough of Island Heights during the period of September 8, 2020 through October 30, 2020. Their intent to move into Island Heights is not consistent with the regulation which requires that the petitioner and her children be currently domiciled in the District and when absent intend to return to the home located in the District. Moreover, intention when absent to return to the home located in the District that was once a childhood home does not satisfy the regulatory requirement even when the home is owned by a petitioner's parent.

Based on N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1) and the analyses in State v. Benny, and In re Unanue, if the Toms River address is where petitioner returned to on a daily basis, and where petitioner resided with her husband, as well as with her two children, then petitioner was domiciled in Toms River from September 8, 2020 to October 30, 2020. As unemancipated children, N.D. and D.D.'s domicile would be the same as their parents. Somerville Bd. of Educ. v. Manville Bd. of Educ., Petitioner's assertion that the COVID-19 pandemic caused the family to be displaced because they were unable to evict the tenant from the property due to Governor Murphy's Executive Order prohibiting the eviction of a tenant from residential property is unconvincing. The regulation addressing displaced families is inapplicable to the facts herein. In accordance with

> (h) a student who is not considered homeless...and who moves to a new school district during the academic year as a result of a family crisis shall be permitted to remain enrolled in the original > school district of residence for the remainder of the school year without the payment of tuition.

> 1. For purposes of this subsection, "family crisis" shall include, but not be limited to:
>   iii. An unplanned displacement from the original residence such as fire, flood, hurricane, or other circumstances that render the residence uninhabitable.

Here the family was not "displaced" from the home located in the Borough of Island Heights because they were not domiciled in that home.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE by a preponderance of the credible evidence that petitioner and her children N.D. and D.D., were domiciled in the Borough of Toms River from September 8, 2020 to October 30, 2020. Therefore, N.D. and D.D. were ineligible to receive a free public school education in the Borough of Island Heights during that time period.

The respondent Board of Education asserts that it is entitled to be reimbursed for tuition for the period of N.D. and D.D.'s ineligible enrollment in its school. When, as here, the evidence does not support the petitioner's claim for a free public education, the Commissioner of Education is authorized to assess tuition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2(a), which provides as follows:

> If in the judgment of the Commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the resident, he shall assess the resident tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the school district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the Commissioner are enforced.

N.J.S.A. 18A: 38-1(b) similarly requires that tuition be calculated on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance.

Out-of-District tuition for N.D. and D.D.'s attendance at Island Heights School District was $112.19 per day, for thirty-eight days, for a total of $8,526.44.

Based upon the facts and the legal principles cited above, I CONCLUDE that respondent is entitled to reimbursement for the costs of tuition in the amount of $8,526.44.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that respondent's determination that petitioner's children were ineligible for a free education in the Borough of Island Heights for the time period of September 8, 2020 through October 30, 2020, is hereby AFFIRMED.

It is ORDERED that petitioner, V.L., pay to respondent, the Board of Education of the Borough of Island Heights, tuition in the amount of $8,526.44, for the time period of September 8, 2020 through October 30, 2020.

Petitioner's appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

N.S., on behalf of minor child, S.S.-B.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Magnolia, Camden County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Pro se petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that N.S. no longer resides in Magnolia – the family having relocated in April 2020 to North Carolina at the beginning of the COVID 19 pandemic – and, therefore, S.S.-B. was not eligible to receive a free public education in the Magnolia public schools during the 2020-2021 school year. The Board filed a motion for summary decision and sought tuition reimbursement for the period of S.S.-B.'s ineligible attendance.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue in this case, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; during the 2020-2021 school year, S.S.-B. remained enrolled in the Magnolia school district and attended school remotely despite the fact that the family had relocated to North Carolina in April 2020; petitioner and his family are living out of state with S.S.-B.'s grandmother, and are not homeless; and petitioner has indicated that S.S.-B will not return to the Magnolia residence until such time as there is a "safe" COVID 19 vaccine for children. The ALJ concluded that S.S.-B. was not entitled under N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a) to attend school in Magnolia during the 2020-2021 school year. Accordingly, the ALJ granted summary decision to the respondent and ordered that petitioner reimburse the Board $18,599.40 for tuition costs associated with the attendance of S.S.-B. in the Magnolia Township school district for the 2020-2021 school year.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter. In so doing, the Commissioner directed – pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b – that petitioner reimburse the Board in the amount of $18,599.40 for tuition costs incurred during the 2020-2021 school year, when S.S.-B. was not eligible to attend school in Magnolia.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

N.S., on behalf of minor child, S.S.-B.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Magnolia, Camden County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) finding that petitioner failed to sustain his burden of establishing that he was a domiciliary of Magnolia during the 2020-2021 school year. The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that the minor child was, therefore, not entitled to a free public education in the District's schools during that time.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, the Commissioner shall assess tuition against petitioner for the time period during which the minor child was ineligible to attend school in the District. Therefore, the Board is entitled to tuition reimbursement in the amount of $18,599.40 for the 2020-2021 school year, during which time petitioner's minor child was ineligible to attend school in Magnolia.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Petitioner is directed to reimburse the Board in the amount of $18,599.40 for the 2020-2021 school year, for tuition costs incurred during the time period in which S.S.-B. was ineligible to attend school in Magnolia. The petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 01430-21
AGENCY DKT. NO. 15-1/21

N.S. ON BEHALF OF MINOR CHILD,
S.S-B.,
Petitioner,
v.
BOROUGH OF MAGNOLIA BOARD OF EDUCATION, CAMDEN COUNTY,
Respondent.

N.S., on behalf of minor child, S.S.-B., petitioner, pro se

William C. Morlock, Esq., for respondent (Parker McCay, P.A., attorneys)

Record Closed: August 20, 2021 Decided: August 26, 2021

BEFORE CATHERINE A. TUOHY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner N.S., the father of minor child S.S.-B., appeals the determination by the respondent Borough of Magnolia Board of Education, Camden County (the "Board") that S.S.-B. did not reside within the Borough of Magnolia School District since April of 2020, and that tuition reimbursement is required. The Board alleges that the minor child S.S.-

B. was not residing at the address provided by the petitioner and seeks repayment of tuition. At issue is whether S.S.-B. was entitled to be enrolled in the district for purposes of receiving a thorough and efficient public education free of charge for the 2020-2021 school year, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

By letter, dated January 8, 2021, the Board notified N.B. that S.S.-B. was ineligible to continue to attend school within the district as they were no longer domiciled in the District consistent with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. The petitioner filed a pro se residency appeal on or about January 25, 2021. The Board filed an answer and counterclaim for tuition on February 2, 2021. The Department of Education Office of Controversies and Disputes transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where it was filed on February 4, 2021 as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Several telephone conferences were conducted, and discovery was exchanged. The Board filed a motion for summary decision on June 22, 2021. An email was sent to the parties confirming the filing of the summary decision motion and advising petitioner that any opposition would need to be filed by July 12, 2021. A follow-up email was sent to the parties on August 20, 2021. Petitioner has not filed any opposition to the summary decision motion.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

The facts are not in dispute, and I FIND:

Petitioner and S.S.-B. were residing in Magnolia Township until the family left the Township in approximately April 2020 and "fled" to North Carolina due to COVID-19 as the cases were fewer there compared to New Jersey. (See April 14, 2020, email from S.S.'B.'s mother to district employee Ms. Augustine, attached to Certification of Counsel as Exhibit E.) Petitioner still maintains a lease in Magnolia although they have not resided there since the family left for North Carolina in April 2020. The petition, as well as answers to interrogatories (attached to Certification of Counsel as Exhibit B) indicated that S.S.-B. is a cancer survivor with a heart condition who is susceptible to air- borne illness and the residents of their apartment building were not adhering to all safety protocols. Petitioner further indicated that since the pandemic he had been having difficulty getting a job. S.S.-B.'s grandmother lives in North Carolina and offered them financial assistance and took them in. Petitioner's residency appeal was notarized by a notary in Mecklenberg County, North Carolina on January 25, 2021. Petitioner N.S. has since obtained employment in North Carolina with the State of North Carolina. (See April 16, 2021, email of William Morlock to S.S.-B.'s parents attached to Certification of Counsel as Exhibit C.) S.S.-B. has not slept in their Magnolia, N.J. residence since the family left for North Carolina in approximately April of 2020. Petitioner has indicated that S.S.B. will not return to reside in Magnolia until there is a safe COVID vaccine for children. (See answer to interrogatory #10, Exhibit B to Certification of Counsel.) Petitioner responded to a request for admissions on May 24, 2021, and admitted that they are not homeless. (Exhibit A to Certification of Counsel.)

I also FIND as fact that the per pupil tuition rate for the Magnolia Township Board of Education for the 2020-2021 school year was $103.33 a day and that there were 180 school days in the 2020-2021 school year, amounting to annual tuition of $18, 599.40 for the 2020-2021 school year. (See annexed Certification of Greg Gontowski, Business Administrator.)

I further FIND as fact that S.S.-B. was not domiciled in the district during the 2020-2021 school year.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

A motion for summary decision shall be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

A determination whether a genuine issue of material fact exists that precludes summary decision requires the judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." Brill, 142 N.J. at 540 (citing Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. 242, 249 (1986)). When the evidence "is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law," the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. at 252. I CONCLUDE that this matter is ripe for summary decision.

The issue in this appeal is whether S.S.-B. had been a domiciled student in the Magnolia School District during the 2020–2021 school year. It is clear from the record that he has not, since he and his family relocated to North Carolina in April of 2020.

Public schools are required to provide a free education to individuals between the ages of five and twenty years in certain circumstances, including individuals who are domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). Domicile has been defined as the place where a person has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 250 (1955). The domicile of an unemancipated child is the domicile of the parent, custodian, or guardian. P.B.K. ex rel. minor child E.Y. v. Bd. of Educ. of Tenafly, 343 N.J. Super. 419, 427 (App. Div. 2001). Thus, a child would routinely attend school in the district where his or her parents live. The petitioner has the burden of proof in a determination of residency eligibility. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2).

From the evidence submitted, it is clear that S.S.-B. has not been domiciled in the district while attending school there. On April 14, 2020 S.S.-B.'s mother sent a text message to a district employee, Ms. Augustine, confirming their relocation to North Carolina. N.S. has since obtained employment with the State of North Carolina. The family has been residing in North Carolina since April 2020, to the present time. It is clear that petitioner's domicile is now in North Carolina where they have been residing for more than one year. Petitioner's employment with the state is further evidence that he intends for it to be his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, has the intention of returning.

N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1) provides as follows:

> A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose domicile is located within the school district.

S.S.-B. was not domiciled in the district during the 2020-2021 school year. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that respondent is entitled to summary decision that S.S.-B. was not entitled to attend school in the district and receive a free public education there during that time frame pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a).

A school board is entitled to recover tuition from a parent or guardian of a child found ineligible to attend a school in its district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). S.S.-B. was not entitled to a free public education in the Magnolia Township district based upon the above. Tuition for school year 2020-2021 was $18,599.40 (180 school days x $103.33 per pupil tuition rate per day.) Therefore, I further CONCLUDE that respondent is entitled to summary decision on its counterclaim for reimbursement from N.S. for the cost of providing an education to S.S.-B. in the sum of $18,599.40 for the 2020-2021 school year.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that respondent's motion for summary decision is GRANTED; that the petition of N.S. o/b/o S.S.-B., is hereby DISMISSED; and that respondent's counterclaim be GRANTED. It is further ORDERED that N.S. reimburse respondent the total sum of $18, 599.40 for tuition costs associated with the attendance of S.S.-B. in the Magnolia Township school district for the 2020-2021 school year.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Howard Walker,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the City of East Orange, Essex County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner has been employed as a principal in the respondent Board's school district since the 2004-2005 school year, initially at the Garvin Elementary School from July 2005 through the end of the 2015-2016 school year. Petitioner was subsequently transferred to the position of principal at the Healy Middle School (Healy). Due to a "partially effective" evaluation of his performance for the 2016-2017 school year at Healy, petitioner was placed on a Corrective Action Plan (CAP) and his increment was withheld for the 2017-2018 school year. Subsequently, his increment for the 2018-2019 school year was also withheld, based again on a "partially effective" performance evaluation. Petitioner filed an appeal challenging the withholding of his increment for the 2018-19 school year, contending that the evaluation process was not proper and that the decision to withhold his increment was arbitrary and capricious.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: The Board was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable in withholding petitioner's increment; further, the Board acted in an unfair and prejudicial manner when it placed the petitioner on a CAP almost immediately after transferring him to Healy – a lower performing school that had been identified as in need of comprehensive support; and petitioner was not given clear and transparent direction regarding what was expected of him in his new assignment as principal at Healy. The ALJ concluded that the District's Assistant Superintendent, who served as petitioner's evaluator, was subjective rather than objective in her evaluations of petitioner, and that the petitioner is a "good educator," despite "personal traits that make him appear that he is better or smarter than those around him." As such, the ALJ reversed the Board's withholding of petitioner's increment for the 2018-19 school year.

Upon review, the Commissioner found, inter alia, that: the Board was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable in withholding petitioner's increment for the 2018-19 school year; pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, a board may withhold "for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment, or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year."; in this case, there is sufficient evidence in the record to support the Board's decision to withhold petitioner's increment for the 2018-19 school year based on performance. The Commissioner disagreed with the ALJ's finding that petitioner was not given clear direction regarding job expectations in his position at Healy, as Dr. Walker had more than 10 years of experience as a principal and should have been well aware of the expectations of that position, regardless of his school assignment. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was rejected and the petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

OAL Dkt. No. EDU 15251-18
Agency Dkt. No. 202-8/18

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Decision

Howard Walker,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the City of East Orange, Essex County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed by the respondent Board in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and petitioner's reply thereto.

Petitioner is a principal employed by the Board of Education of the City of East Orange (Board). He has worked for the school district since 1989, rising to the rank of principal in the 2004-05 school year. Petitioner served as principal of Garvin Elementary School from July 2005 through the end of the 2015-16 school year, at which time he was transferred to the position of principal of the Healy Middle School (Healy). Due to a "partially effective" performance evaluation for 2016-17, petitioner was placed on a Corrective Action Plan (CAP) and his increment was withheld for the 2017-18 school year. At the end of the 2017-18 school year, Assistant Superintendent Deborah Harvest recommended that his increment be withheld again for the 2018-19 school year. Petitioner filed an appeal challenging the withholding of his increment for the 2018-19 school year.

Following a hearing, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that the Board was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable in withholding petitioner's increment. The ALJ concluded that Dr. Harvest was subjective, rather than objective, in her evaluations of petitioner, and that petitioner is a "good educator," despite "personal traits that make him appear that he is better or smarter than those around him." (Initial Decision at 12). The ALJ further found that it was unfair and prejudicial of the Board to place petitioner on a CAP almost immediately after transferring him to Healy, without a "clear and transparent directive... about what was expected of him." Ibid. As such, the ALJ reversed the Board's withholding of petitioner's increment for the 2018-19 school year.[1]

In its exceptions, the Board argues that it acted in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 when it withheld petitioner's 2018-19 increment due to performance issues. The Board argues that the ALJ improperly found that the Board did not give petitioner adequate time to adjust when he was transferred to Healy before placing him on a CAP. The Board cites to Nortiza Andino, et al. v State Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, Commissioner's Decision No. 388-98 (September 4, 1998) for the proposition that being transferred to a new position does not make an increment withholding arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. In that case, one teacher was transferred from third to first grade only a few days before being evaluated. While the ALJ found that her increment should not be withheld because the teacher had not received training in the position, the Commissioner upheld the increment withholding, finding that her performance had been found to be below the acceptable level for an elementary teacher on two occasions and that evaluations "go to the very core of her job as a teacher, irrespective of the grade she is responsible for teaching." Id. at 31. As such, the Board argues that petitioner's evaluations go to the core of his job as a principal, regardless of what school he is overseeing. Additionally, the Board points out that petitioner was evaluated three times during the 2017-18 school year as a result of his CAP – twice by Dr. Harvest and once by another administrator – and he received the "partially ineffective" rating due to his scores, justifying his increment withholding. Accordingly, the Board urges the Commissioner to reject the Initial Decision.

In reply, petitioner argues that the ALJ correctly reversed the 2018-19 increment withholding because Dr. Harvest based her evaluations of his performance on unclear criteria and overlooked his efforts to improve Healy. Petitioner points out that such efforts resulted in the removal of Healy from "comprehensive" status (i.e., lower performing schools that the Department of Education has identified as needing comprehensive support) in January 2019. Petitioner argues that Dr. Harvest conducted her evaluations of petitioner in bad faith as she failed to give him any credit for improvements he had made at Healy. Petitioner agrees with the ALJ that Dr. Harvest failed to provide clear direction about what was expected of petitioner, so the increment holding was unjust, unfair, and arbitrary. As such, petitioner asks the Commissioner to adopt the Initial Decision.

Upon a comprehensive review of the record, the Commissioner finds that the Board did not act in an arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable manner when it withheld petitioner's increment for the 2018-19 school year. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, a board may withhold "for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment, or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year." Teachers are not entitled to salary increments; rather, increments are a reward for meritorious service. North Plainfield Education Association v. Board of Education of the Borough of North Plainfield, 96 N.J. 587, 593 (1984). The decision to withhold an increment for teachers who have not performed well is a management prerogative. Ibid. As such, when challenging an increment withholding, a teacher has the burden to demonstrate that the board acted arbitrarily, without rational basis or induced by improper motives. Kopera v. Board of Education of the Town of West Orange, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960).

Here, there is sufficient evidence in the record to support the Board's decision to withhold petitioner's increment for the 2018-19 school year based on performance. Petitioner had three evaluations during the 2017-18 school year – two by Dr. Harvest and one by another administrator – which resulted in a summative rating of 2.65, or a performance ranking of "partially effective." The evaluations use a rubric with scores of "ineffective," "developing," "effective," or "highly effective" for a variety of domains. In examining all three of his evaluations, petitioner received a combination of "developing" and "effective" ratings, with one "ineffective" rating and no "highly effective" ratings. The rubric scores were supported with notes from the evaluators justifying the rating and providing guidance on how to improve. The evaluators conducted site visits of the school prior to completing the evaluations. Dr. Harvest testified that the purpose of the site visit is to go through the building and visit classrooms to gain a visual perspective on what is occurring in the school and how that relates to the domains in the principal's evaluation. For example, during her site visit on February 20, 2018, Dr. Harvest conducted a walk-through of the building and classrooms, and testified that:

> [T]his was the worst that it has ever, ever been. Just room to every single room that I went in I was not able – it was just totally mind boggling. I did not observe any instruction at all in about 6 or 7 rooms. The kids were absolutely out of control. And not only were they out of control, the teachers weren't doing anything. It was like they were just sitting there and just letting it happen. So halfway through it, his assistant principal joined me. And so, she was there, after room after room after room that we visited. I > wasn't able to observe instruction because there were extreme discipline concerns. And we spent about 15 minutes in one teacher's classroom, who had two teacher assistants in there with her. And that classroom was tote – I had to take over the classroom. It was totally out of control. Totally.

> [Testimony of Deborah Harvest, T2 at 195-96, December 16, 2020.]

What Dr. Harvest witnessed on the site visit was reflected on petitioner's subsequent evaluation, as petitioner was rated "ineffective" with respect to the school's learning environment and a note describing what Dr. Harvest observed during her school walk-through of the classrooms appeared beneath the rating. Accordingly, upon consideration of the comprehensive evaluations, which included justifications for the ratings that resulted in a "partially effective" final summative assessment, the Commissioner cannot find that the Board was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable in its decision to withhold petitioner's increment for the 2018-19 school year.

The Commissioner disagrees with the ALJ's conclusions. The ALJ focused on the limited amount of time available to petitioner to become acclimated to his new assignment at Healy before he was evaluated. The Commissioner agrees with the Board that, as in Nortiza Andino, et al. v State Operated School District of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, petitioner's duties and responsibilities as a principal remained the same, regardless of which school he was assigned to lead. With petitioner's more than ten years of experience as a principal, this position was not new to him and he was aware of his job expectations. The Commissioner also notes that the increment at issue in this matter was based on petitioner's performance in the 2017-18 school year, which was his second year assigned as principal at Healy.

The ALJ also found that petitioner "never received a true explanation of what criteria were being utilized to evaluate his work at Healy." The Commissioner finds that, with respect to his evaluations, petitioner had been a principal since the 2004-05 school year and had been evaluated in that role for many years. As such, he should have been well aware of the criteria used in evaluations of principals. Additionally, the ALJ insinuates that a personality conflict between Dr. Harvest and petitioner contributed to Dr. Walker's poor evaluations; however, the Commissioner notes that one of petitioner's evaluations was conducted by another administrator, whose ranking of petitioner was similar to that of Dr. Harvest. With respect to his CAP, there is ample evidence in the record that petitioner had many meetings to develop and discuss his CAP, and that he only completed 63% of his demonstrable goals. However, regardless of whether Dr. Walker understood the CAP or completed the CAP, the Commissioner notes that Dr. Harvest testified that the CAP was not the reason petitioner's increment was withheld; rather, that determination was made based on Dr. Walker's evaluations. (T2 at 118, 206-207).

The ALJ also discusses that petitioner made efforts to improve the school, which resulted in Healy being removed from the "comprehensive" list in January 2019. Additionally, the ALJ notes that following the 2017-18 school year, superintendent Dr. Kevin West was assigned as petitioner's evaluator, and his evaluations improved. The Commissioner notes that while it is positive news that the school was removed from the "comprehensive" list, improvements in petitioner's evaluations conducted by Dr. West in 2018-2019 and the fact that school operations had improved by January 2019 could not have impacted the Board's increment decision at the end of the 2017-18 school year because these improvements had not yet occurred. As such, those factors have no bearing on whether the Board was arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable in deciding in June of 2018 to withhold petitioner's increment for the 2018-19 school year. Finally, the ALJ found that petitioner is a good educator who is dedicated to improving the performance of students and the community. While that may be true, the Commissioner notes that petitioner's good intentions fail to demonstrate that his actual performance during the 2017-18 school year did not warrant the withholding of his increment for the 2018-19 school year.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is rejected for the reasons expressed herein. The petition is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED. [2]

HOWARD WALKER,

Petitioner,

v.

CITY OF EAST ORANGE, BOARD OF EDUCATION, ESSEX COUNTY,

Respondent.

Robert M. Schwartz, Esq., petitioner, (Schwartz Law Group, attorneys)

Erdal Turnacioglu, Esq., for respondent (Keenan and Doris, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 10, 2021 Decided: July 16, 2021

BEFORE ANDREW M. BARON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner Dr. Howard Walker contests the 2018 withholding/denial of his annual salary increment in in connection with his employment as a principal by the East Orange School District at the conclusion of the 2018 school year. Among other things, he also contests the manner in which the evaluation process was handled, and the decision to withhold the increment which he contends was arbitrary and capricious.

On or about August 21, 2018, petitioner filed an appeal with the Department of Education regarding the decision by the East Orange School District to withhold his annual salary increment.

On October 5, 2018, East Orange filed an Answer to the petition.

The petition alleges that respondent acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner by withholding Dr. Walker's annual increment at the end of the 2017-18 school year.

The Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for a determination as a contested case. Hearings were conducted on December 3, 2019, and December 16 and 17, 2019. Final submissions were filed on March 5, 2020 and March 10, 2020, then Covid ensued. Oral argument was held on March 10, 2021.

TESTIMONY AND DISCUSSION

Based upon a review of the documentary and testimonial evidence presented and having had the opportunity to observe the demeanor and assess the credibility of the witnesses who testified, I FIND the following pertinent FACTS and accept as FACT the testimony set forth below.

Petitioner has been employed by the East Orange School District, starting out as In 2004, as a math supervisor since 1989. In 1996, petitioner was promoted to serve as Director of Secondary Education.

While serving in this position, petitioner was then appointed to serve as principal of the Truth Middle School. Shortly after, he became the permanent principal, serving in that position for a year, until he was reassigned to serve as principal of the Garvin Elementary School, where he remained until 2017.

While at Garvin, virtually all of his annual reviews were favorable, and he received normal salary increments each year, until the 2015-16 school year. His review that year was conducted by Assistant Superintendent Deborah Harvest, who had risen through the ranks of administrative positions within the district with Dr. Walker, and now served as Assistant Superintendent. These personnel recommendation accepted by the East Orange Board of Education at its June 17, 2017 meeting. However, the day after the Board acted on Dr. Walker's recommendations, he testified he was called into a meeting with Dr. Harvest and another assistant superintendent. At this meeting, he was told that a recommendation was being made to withhold his increment for the 2017-18 school year due to what Dr. Harvest characterized as "less than effective performance."

Dr. Harvest also determined that for the first time in his long career in East Orange, Dr. Walker should be placed on a Corrective Action Plan, otherwise known as CAP for the coming school year. It should be noted here that during her testimony, Dr. Harvest gave a somewhat evasive answer on why this decision was made, for which Dr. Walker had no means of appeal, and even after he completed the Corrective Active Plan, which included several seminars, her view of his performance did not change. According to Dr. Walker, when he would frequently ask Dr. harvest for feedback or some indication of how he could meet her expectations, he either got silence or little if anything in return to indicate if she viewed his performance as having improved.

One thing which is undisputed, is Dr. Harvest left Dr. Walker little time to adjust to his new surroundings, including all new staff and parents, in one of the lowest performing schools in the district prior to the time Dr. Walker was re-assigned there.

Despite his frustration with how he was being treated by the Administration, and particularly Dr. Harvest, Dr. Walker testified he set out to do what he was asked to do, which is make Healy a better school. After his personnel changes were accepted, he created a school newspaper, the Hart Herald, which was designed to let students, parents and faculty know what was going on at Healy and make the school more a part of the community. (This was also done to overcome one of the criticisms by Dr. Harvest that Dr. Walker needed to do a better job of promoting the mission of the school.).

Also important here and something which stood out during the proceeding which was not noted anywhere by Dr. Harvest is the fact that Dr. Walker testified that when he noticed a student out of the school for an extended period, not knowing if it was truancy or illness, he would actually get in his car and visit the child's home and the parents after school hours to see if he could improve the overall attendance at the school.

Thus, it seems clear that while both Dr. Walker and Dr. Harvest are both dedicated educators who had worked their way up the ranks in the East Orange School District. When Dr. Harvest became Dr. Walker's evaluator, it changed the dynamic of their professional relationship in a dramatically negative way.

Other actions Dr. Walker said he took during the 2017-2018 school year while serving as principal of Healy was to develop a school improvement plan because Healy was what the State refers to being in Comprehensive status, provide more in service and professional development programs for Healy's teachers, conduct walkthroughs of all classrooms to obtain a better understanding of how teachers and students were performing, and train teachers in how to develop new lesson plans.

None of these changes were noted by Dr. Harvest as part of Dr. Walker's yearend review in which she gave him a low score of "2" in 24 out of 31 areas and an increment withholding.

Dr. Harvest is a veteran educator, who like Dr. Walker, spent a majority of her years in education working her way up the ranks of administration with the East Orange School District. Having achieved the position of Assistant Superintendent, among her duties was to evaluate principals throughout the district, monitor their progress and make recommendations on how it improve performance.

Dr. Harvest said she had been Dr. Walker's evaluator since 2010, most of the time being when he was the principal at Garvin. Dr. Harvest earned a Doctorate in Educational Leadership and had been employed by the district for thirty-seven (37) years.

According to Dr. Harvest, State law requires a principal to be placed on a Corrective Action Plan, when part or all of their performance is deemed "partially effective." At the end of the 2016-17 school year, because of this evaluation that she prepared, Dr. Walker was required to complete a CAP. Dr. Walker said following her evaluation for that year, she forwarded a document to Dr. Walker entitled; "Areas of Concern Dr. Howard Walker." She said the purpose of the document was to provide Dr. Walker with a roadmap as to the areas that were in need of improvement for the next school 2017-18 school year.

In describing the document further, Dr. Harvest testified that she asked him to focus on at least three areas to improve, including but not limited to: Mission, Vision and Core Values, Ethics and Professional Norms, and Curriculum, Instruction and Assessment of the teachers at Healy.

It is undisputed that with Healy being one of the lowest performing schools in the district, Dr. Harvest's decision to place Dr. Walker in a CAP, did not account for the fact that he was new to the school, nor was he given additional time before she arrived at the conclusion that he was now performing at lower than acceptable standards in these areas.

Not taking well to the criticisms which he felt were unjust and unfair, Dr. Walker said he started to document everything, at times sending multiple emails the same day to Dr. Walker. Dr. Walker, who felt she was being harassed, asked the board attorney to get involved because she felt Dr. Walker was interfering with her responsibility of assessing his performance which was within her duties and responsibilities.

She said this pattern of what she deemed "over documenting" every exchange between them by Dr. Walker continued through the Summer of 2017, into the start of the new school year, when two weeks after school started, Dr. Harvest said Dr. Walker resisted efforts to comply with the CAP on the basis of his belief that her evaluation was "too vague" to comply with the CAP.

In early October 2017, Dr. Harvest commenced site visits to Healy so in her words, "she could get a feel for what was going on in the classrooms" where Dr. Walker was serving as principal. One area she noted was lacking was posting recent student work on bulletin boards, as well as student data on State standardized tests know as PARCC.

Instead of complying with the areas of improvement as outlined in the CAP, Dr. Harvest was of the view that Dr. Walker increased the adversarial nature of her supervisory relationship over him by including a union representative in their meetings who was being copied on all correspondence. Among other things, she assigned him a book on "body language" but did not explain in detail why it was being assigned. In her testimony, Dr. Harvest candidly stated that she believed although she and Dr. Walker worked their way up the administrative ranks in East Orange, together, he resented her supervisory role, and felt Dr. Walker felt his knowledge and experience should not be challenged. (This was evident throughout the proceeding by Dr. Walker's demeanor, method of speaking, and by virtue of his refusal to meet with Dr. Harvest as requested towards the end of October 2017, when the CAP was due to expire.) Though he came across at times as having a superior attitude, it also came across they he is very dedicated to his job, and has the best interests of his students, parents and teachers in mind as he implemented certain changes at Healy once he reluctantly accepted the decision to reassign him there.

There is no dispute that the conflict in the relationship between Dr. Harvest and Dr. Walker continued through the end of the 2018 school year. The record indicates that Dr. Harvest prepared another memorandum in February 2018 regarding her site visit to Healy, and another memorandum on April 5, 2018 summarizing her meeting with Dr. Walker the previous day, as to what areas of the CAP he had successfully completed, and which areas still needed improvement. Despite fulfilling certain CAP criteria, she warned him "it did not necessarily mean his increment for 2017-18 would be awarded.

In fact, on April 9, 2018, Dr. Harvest informed Dr. Walker that the recommendation was for another increment withholding due to "gaps in leadership and inability to take responsibility for his own learning." In early May 2018, as the school year was nearing completion, Dr. Walker was served with a third evaluation, essentially giving him a 2.65 rating, resulting in a finding of being partially effective, placing him on CAP status for the next 2018-19 school year, and generating a "Rice" notice which meant the Board of Education would be discussing his employment status with the East Orange School District at an upcoming meeting.

Concerned for his reputation, and his status within the district as well as another salary increment withholding, Dr. Walker asked for and was granted a new evaluator, Dr. Kevin West, who was the Superintendent of Schools. Dr. West, who had already served as superintendent in another district, as well as assistant superintendent in Newark, and as a principal in Irvington, came across as a veteran educator who better understood and appreciated the challenges Dr. Walker faced when he was moved from his position as principal at Garvin, to becoming principal at Healy. And it appears from Dr. West's testimony that during the two years that Dr. Walker was in charge of Healy while simultaneously being placed on CAP status by Dr. Walker, Healy, the school where Dr. Walker had been reassigned over his objection was starting to improve. Among other things, during the 2018-19 school year, with Dr. Walker at the helm, Healy was removed by the State from "comprehensive status" to "Focus status" still in need of improvement, but showing better results for the teachers, and, of course, the students.

During this period, teacher and student attendance improved, student misconduct decreased, and better communication between parents and the school was noted by virtue of Dr. Walker's home visits and efforts to make Healy more of a "community."

These achievements were noted in a letter written to Dr. West dated January 31, 2019, from the Commissioner of Education taking Healy, which had been in the bottom 5 percent performing school in the State for almost eighteen (18) years and removing it from comprehensive status only two and a half years into Dr. Walker's tenure at the school. (Interesting, it is also undisputed that in the same letter, Garvin, the school which Dr. Walker was transferred from to take over Healy, was now lowered to comprehensive status, which was not the case while Dr. Walker was there).

When asked about the January 2019 letter from the Commissioner of Education, upgrading Healy's status out of comprehensive, Dr. Harvest minimized Dr. Walker's role in the improvement, attributing most of it to the former principal Ms. Coleman, who was replaced by Dr. Walker over two years earlier. While Dr. Harvest came across as a dedicated educator, one of the things that seemed inconsistent and did not make sense in her testimony was her statement that "student achievement is not the primary goal of the evaluation process." If that were the case, I FIND Dr. Walker never received a true explanation of what criteria were being utilized to evaluate his work at Healy, which in and of itself is arbitrary and capricious.

As a result of the noted improvements at Healy by the State and Dr. West, the new evaluator, the CAP which Dr. Harvest had put into effect for two school years shortly after Dr. Walker was reassigned to Healy was removed.

Viewed and evaluated from the eyes of an equally experienced educator, whose testimony came across as more objective than Dr. Harvest, also a dedicated educator but perhaps stricter in her assessments, without more guidance and direction from Dr. Harvest or other district officials about what was expected of him upon being transferred to Healy, and without giving Dr. Walker an extended period of time to demonstrate a turn around at a low performing school, the increment withholding was unjust and unfair to Dr. Walker.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Petitioner Howard Walker is a veteran educator with over thirteen years of experience serving as a school principal in the East Orange School District.
2. Prior to the 2016-17 school year, he served as principal of the Garvin School.
3. At the beginning of the 2016-17 school year, Dr. Walker was transferred to serve as principal of the Healy School, one of the lowest performing schools in the East Orange School District, which was on comprehensive watch by the State Education Department.
4. At the time of the transfer, which Dr. Walker objected to, he did not know any of the staff, parents or students who were part of the Healy community.

5. Part of Dr. Deborah Harvest's duties and responsibilities was to evaluate the performance of principals with the school district.
6. Both she and Dr. Walker knew each other and had worked their way up the ranks of administration within the East Orange School District.
7. As Assistant Superintendent, Dr. Harvest was responsible for evaluating Dr. Walker after he was transferred to become principal at Healy.
8. No adjustments were made to the evaluation process for Dr. Walker, who was now the principal at one of the lowest performing schools in the district.
9. After a brief period at Healy, Dr. Harvest placed Dr. Walker on a Corrective Action Plan CAP, which required him to make several adjustments and meet certain criteria before he could be removed from this status.
10. Almost immediately after being placed on the CAP, Dr. Walker and Dr. Harvest clashed, thereby causing a breakdown in communication and lack of trust between them.
11. To her annoyance, Dr. Walker started documenting everything he did, which only made the situation between them worse.
12. At the end of the 2017-2018 school year, Dr. Harvest recommended that Dr. Walker's salary increment be withheld, as in her opinion, he had not met the criteria of the CAP, which he continued on during the next school year.
13. The Board of Education adopted Dr. Harvest's recommendation and withheld the increment, from which this appeal was filed.
14. Frustrated with the way he was being treated. Dr. Walker asked for, and was granted a new evaluator, Dr. Kevin West, who served as the Superintendent of Schools.
15. In January 2019, Dr. West received a letter from the Commissioner of Education removing Healy from comprehensive status and noting the improvement at the school. Without naming Dr. Walker, it is clear from this letter from the State, that Dr. Walker had started to achieve improvement at Healy, which though not expressed directly was the reason why he was reassigned there.
16. Dr. West determined that the Corrective Action Plan which Dr. Harvest created for Dr. Walker should be terminated.
17. No increment withholding was recommended by Dr. West.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

In this matter, petitioner was employed as a principal by the East Orange school district for thirteen years. The pivotal issue concerns the propriety of a series of evaluations by his supervisor, an assistant superintendent who had been a colleague, to withhold a salary increment for the 2017-18 school year, place petitioner on a Corrective Action Plan, CAP, and compel petitioner to take classes, read books and do other remedial things, shortly after the district reassigned petitioner to one of the lowest performing schools in the district.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, the Commissioner of the Department of Education has jurisdiction to hear and determine, without cost to the parties, all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1 to 1.17. sets forth the rules of procedure for the filing of petitions with the Commissioner of Education to hear and decide controversies and disputes arising under school laws in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1(a).

The procedure for withholding salary increments in an educational setting are set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, which applies to situations where an employee is considered inefficient or for other good cause shown.

A school employee challenging such a decision has the burden of showing by a preponderance of the evidence that the action was arbitrary and capricious or lacks a rational basis. Mullennaphy v. Bd. of Ed. of Twp.of Marlboro, A-0052-18T3, 2019 WL 5788326 (App. Div. November 6, 2019).

Increment withholding "is a matter of essential managerial prerogative which has been delegated by the legislature to the board" See Bernards Twp. Bd. of Ed. v. Bernards Twp. Educ. Ass'n, 79 N.J. 311 (1979). Notwithstanding that policy, a board of education cannot withhold a salary increment from a tenured employee without providing that employee with minimum procedural due process. See: Basile v. Bd. of Ed. of Elmwood Park, 1 N.J.A.R. 199 (Dept. of Ed. 1980).

In determining whether a decision to withhold a salary increment in an educational setting was arbitrary and capricious and without rational basis, it a court should examine whether the underlying facts made by the evaluator were correct and whether it was unreasonable for the evaluator to reach the conclusion that the increment should be withheld, bearing in mind their expertise. Without something more, a board's action in this regard is entitled to a presumption of validity, absent a showing of bad faith, illegal motive or lack of rational basis. See: Quinlan v. Bd. of Ed. 73 N.J. Super, 40 (App. Div. 1962), And see: Raimondi v. Westwood Reg'l Bd. of Ed. EDU 5904-04 Initial Decision Sept. 25, 2005, aff'd State Bd. of Ed. (June 7, 2006).

The Petition requests that the undersigned set aside the Board's adoption of a salary increment withholding for the 2017-18 school year, and to determine that the assistant superintendent Dr. Deborah Harvest acted in an arbitrary capricious and discriminatory manner in placing him on a CAP for two consecutive years and for withholding his salary increment.

"School Law vests the management of the public schools in each district in the local boards of education, and unless they violate the law or act in bad faith, the exercise of their discretion in the performance of the duties imposed upon them is not subject to interference or reversal."

Boards have broad discretionary authority to decide whether a teacher, or in this case a principal should or should not be re-engaged. Donaldson v. N. Wildwood Bd. of Educ., 65 N.J. 236 (1974). No obligation exists on the part of board to renew non-tenured teachers. Wyckoff Twp. Bd. of Educ. v. Wyckoff Educ. Ass'n, 168 N.J. Super. 497 (App. Div. 1979).

There are some limits and procedural safeguards afforded to school employees when their employment status is due to be considered. A board of education is required to send a "Rice notice" any time it has placed on its agenda any matters involving the employment, evaluation appointment, evaluation of performance or discipline. N.J.S.A. 10:4-12(b)(8). This provides the affected employee with an opportunity to decide whether they desire a public discussion and prepare and present an appropriate request in writing. See Rice v. Union Cty. Reg' High Sch. Bd. of Educ., 155 N.J. Super. 64 (App. Div. 1977).

There was little, if any information about the extent to which the recommendation to withhold Dr. Walker's increment was discussed prior to adoption, and who made the presentation. But assuming the board relied just on Dr. Harvest's evaluation, and her report that Dr. Walker had not completed his CAP, then there was nothing put before the board about the status of Healy itself, that over his objection Dr. Walker had been reassigned to Healy purportedly to improve performance in a low performing school, or how little time he had been given to change the culture at Healy.

Despite Dr. Harvest's long and dedicated career, I CONCLUDE that in this case, her evaluation and recommendation for increment withholding was subjective, not objective, and, as such was done in an arbitrary and capricious manner.

I FURTHER CONCLUDE that while Dr. Walker may present some personal traits that make him appear that he is better or smarter than those around him, (which at times he exhibited during the hearing), that does not mean he is not a good educator, dedicated to improving the performance of his students, and the community around him.

I ALSO CONCLUDE, that the decision to almost immediately place him on CAP status, shortly after he was reassigned to Healy, without a clear and transparent directive from the Administration about what was expected of him, was unfair and prejudicial to his ability to do the job the district had placed him in.

I THEREFORE CONCLUDE that there was no rational basis for the increment withholding and that Dr. Walker has met his burden that the decision to withhold his increment at the conclusion of the 2017-18 school year was arbitrary and capricious and should be REVERSED.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the East Orange Board of Education's determination as to the increment withholding filed against petitioner is deemed void, and it is further ORDERED that the decision by the East Orange Board of Education, the result of which was to withhold petitioner's increment for the 2017-2018 school year, is REVERSED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who/which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If (title of agency head) does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

R.G. on behalf of minor child, N.G.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of East Brunswick, Middlesex County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that his minor child was not entitled to a free public education in the East Brunswick School District for the 2020-2021 school year. The Board contended that N.G. was registered to attend East Brunswick schools using a Milltown, New Jersey home address. However, the Board discovered in October 2020 that N.G. had been living in Carteret, New Jersey since the end of the prior school year. The Board filed a motion to dismiss the petition, and a counterclaim for tuition for N.G.'s period of ineligible attendance.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), if a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending school in the district is not domiciled in the district, the superintendent or administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child; here, it is undisputed that, for the entirety of the 2020-2021 school year, R.G. and his family, including N.G., were residing in Carteret, New Jersey; further, it is undisputed that the last known residence of R.G. and his family within the geographic boundaries of the East Brunswick school district was occupied by and deeded to another family who enrolled their child in the District at the beginning of the 2020-2021 school year, utilizing this address to establish domicile within the District. The ALJ concluded that: petitioner failed to carry his burden of proof that N.G. was domiciled in the District during the 2020-2021 school year; and N.G. was therefore not entitled to attend school in the District free of charge during that time, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion to dismiss as well as the counterclaim for tuition in the amount of $16, 314.00 for N.G.'s ineligible attendance in East Brunswick schools during the 2020-2021 school year.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. The petitioner was ordered to reimburse the Board for tuition in the amount of $16.314.00 for the 2020-2021 school year. The petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

R.G., on behalf of minor child, N.G,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of East Brunswick, Middlesex County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) finding that petitioner failed to sustain his burden of establishing that he was a domiciliary of East Brunswick during the 2020-21 school year. The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that the minor child was, therefore, not entitled to a free public education in the District's schools during that time.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1b, the Commissioner shall assess tuition against petitioner for the time period during which the minor child was ineligible to attend school in East Brunswick. Therefore, the Board is entitled to tuition reimbursement in the amount of $16,314.00 for the entire 2020-21 school year, during which time the minor child was ineligible to attend school in East Brunswick.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Petitioner is directed to reimburse the Board in the amount of $16,314.00 for tuition costs incurred during the time period in which N.G. was ineligible to attend school in East Brunswick. The petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[1]

BEFORE DAVID M. FRITCH, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner is challenging the residency determination made by the Township of East Brunswick Board of Education (Board) with regard to a minor child, N.G. N.G. was, for the 2020/21 school year, a tenth-grade student enrolled at East Brunswick High School (EBHS). N.G. was enrolled at EBHS utilizing a home address in Milltown, New Jersey. In October 2020, the Board learned that N.G. had been living in Carteret, New Jersey since the end of the prior school year. The Board contends that, because N.G. was not domiciled in the Township of East Brunswick during the 2020/21 school year, he was not entitled to a free, public education from the Township of East Brunswick School District (District). The petitioner challenges the Board's residency determination. The Board further counterclaims seeking reimbursement from the petitioner for tuition, based on a per diem tuition rate, for N.G.'s period of ineligible attendance at EBHS.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On January 28, 2021, the Board issued a Final Notice of Ineligibility and Removal to the petitioner, seeking N.G.'s disenrollment from EBHS and seeking reimbursement based on a per diem tuition rate for N.G.'s period of ineligible attendance at EBHS. The petitioner's appeal of this action was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on March 16, 2021, for resolution as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1. The respondent filed a motion for summary decision on July 21, 2021. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), the record remained open for twenty days to permit the petitioner to file a response showing that there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary hearing. When no response was filed by the petitioner within this twenty-day period prescribed by N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), the record closed on August 10, 2021, leaving the respondent's motion in this matter unopposed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

A summary of the pertinent facts is undisputed and I FIND the following FACTS:

1. N.G. was a tenth-grade student at EBHS during the 2020/21 school year. (Giuliana Cert. at ¶ 1.)

    a. In enrolling N.G. for the 2020/21 school year, the petitioner indicated that his address was 48 Louise Drive, Milltown, New Jersey 08850. (Id. at ¶ 3.)

2. At the outset of the 2020/21 school year, another family registered for attendance in the District utilizing the 48 Louise Drive, Milltown, New Jersey address. (Id. at ¶ 4.)

    a. The other family produced a deed to the 48 Louise Drive, Milltown, New Jersey address as proof of their residency within the geographic boundaries of the District. (Ibid.)

3. Representatives from the District contacted the petitioner by telephone to inquire about their residency. (Id. at ¶ 5.) In October 2020, the petitioner confirmed to a representative of the District that his family was residing in Carteret, New Jersey. (Id. at ¶ 6.)

    a. The petitioner confirmed in a follow-up email to representatives of the District that he and his family left their residence at 48 Louise Drive, Milltown New Jersey "at the end of last school year." (Id. at Ex. A.) He explained that he and his family were staying with his mother in Carteret to "take[] care of her through covid." (Ibid.) The petitioner indicated that his "goal is to move back [to East Brunswick] by November or December 2020 at the latest." (Ibid.)

4. On October 29, 2020, the respondent sent the petitioner an invoice for N.G.'s attendance at EBHS for the 2020/21 school year for the period between September

8, 2020 and November 30, 2020. (Id. at Ex. B.) This invoice sought a payment from the petitioner of $4,882.78. (Ibid.)

5. The petitioner contacted the District's finance department to obtain a payment plan for N.G.'s tuition. On November 10, 2020, the District's finance department presented the petitioner with a payment plan option for the outstanding tuition bill. (Id. at Ex. C.) This plan would have allowed the petitioner to pay $3,000 up front with the balance of the tuition due November 30, 2020. (Ibid.) The petitioner would also be obliged to restore residency in East Brunswick in December 2020, or pay additional weekly tuition for EBHS until he re-establishes residency in the District. (Ibid.)

6. The District did not receive any tuition payments from the petitioner, and on December 2, 2020, the District contacted the petitioner via email. (Id. at ¶ 11.) This email communication informed the petitioner that, because he and his family did not reside in East Brunswick, the District was requiring N.G. to be withdrawn from EBHS. (Id. at Ex. C.) Although the District had attempted to make arrangements for N.G. to continue as a tuition student, because the District had not received any payments or a signed agreement from the petitioner to pay the outstanding tuition, the District was seeking N.G. to withdraw from EBHS and enroll in school in Carteret as he was currently living in Carteret, New Jersey. (Ibid.)

7. On December 18, 2020, the District sent the petitioner a Preliminary Notice of Ineligibility. (Id. at ¶ 12; Id. at Ex. E.) This notice informed the petitioner that, because his son, N.G., was no longer domiciled in the District, he was no longer eligible to obtain a free public education from the District. (Ibid.) The notice also notified the petitioner that he could challenge this decision at a hearing before the Board. (Ibid.)

8. On January 7, 2021, a formal residency hearing was held before the Board. (Id. at ¶ 13.) The petitioner appeared at this hearing and offered testimony on his own behalf. (Id. at Ex. F.) At this hearing, the petitioner admitted that he and his family have resided in Carteret, New Jersey for the entirety of the 2020/21 school year. (Ibid.)

9. On January 11, 2021, Dr. Victor Valeski, Superintendent of the East Brunswick Public Schools, contacted the petitioner in writing. (Id.)

a. This letter informed the petitioner that, in order for N.G. to remain enrolled in a District school for the remainder of the 2020/21 school year, the petitioner was required to provide "proof of residency via certified lease agreement or deed dated no later than February 1, 2021 to re-establish domicile within the Township of East Brunswick." (Id. (emphasis in original).)

b. The letter also sought payment of the outstanding tuition for N.G.'s attendance at EBHS for the 2020/21 school year. (Id.) The District sought payment for N.G.'s ineligible attendance at EBHS at the per diem rate of $90.63 for each day of ineligible attendance. (Id.) For the period between September 8, 2020, and January 31, 2021, the outstanding tuition balance sought by the District was $8,598.59. (Id.) The District sought payment of the outstanding tuition in full no later than January 21, 2021.

c. If the petitioner did not meet the two requirements of providing proof of residency in the Township of East Brunswick by February 1, 2021, and remitting payment in full for the $8,598.59 back tuition, the Board would vote at its next meeting on January 21, 2021, on "whether to permanently remove [N.G.] from the East Brunswick Public School District." (Id.)

10. On January 21, 2021, the Board met and found N.G. ineligible for a free public education from the District because he and his family resided in Carteret, New Jersey for the entirety of the 2020/21 school year. (Id. at Ex. G.)

11. On January 28, 2021, the Board issued a Final Notice of Ineligibility and Removal to the petitioner informing him of the Board's decision and his rights to appeal the Board's determination. (Id. at Ex. G.)

12. The cost of tuition for tenth-grade general education students enrolled in the District for the 2020/21 school year is $16,314. (Id. at ¶ 17.) The per diem rate is $90.63 per day. (Id. at ¶ 18.)

13. The cost for tuition for N.G.'s attendance at EBHS for the 2020/21 school year, from September 8, 2020, through June 23, 2021, is $16,314. (Id. at ¶ 19. See also Id. at Ex. H.)

14. To date, the petitioner has not made any payments to the District for N.G.'s tuition for the 2020/21 school year. (Id. at ¶ 20.)

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Public schools are free to persons over five and under twenty-five years of age who are domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a) and N.J.A.C. 6A:22.3.1(a), which sets forth the right of a student to a free public education, states in pertinent parts:

> Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under twenty years of age:
> a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district[.]

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1), a student is eligible to attend a school district if he or she is domiciled within the school district, and a student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is the child of a parent or guardian whose domicile is located within the school district.

> "Domicile" is defined as "the place where [a person] has his [or her] true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has an intention of returning." T.B.W. ex rel. A.W. v. Bd. of Ed. of the Township of Belleville, Essex County, 1998 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 122, Agency Dkt. No. 159-5/96, 1998 WL 668678 (N.J. Adm. June 18, 1998). As the court noted in Collins v. Yancey, 55 N.J. Super. 514, 520–21, 151 A.2d 68 (Law Div. 1959), a person may have several residences or places of abode, but only one domicile at a time. Id.
> [D.L. v. Bd. of Educ. of Princeton Reg'l Sch. Dist., 366 N.J. Super. 269, 273–74 (App. Div. 2004).]

A child's domicile is normally that of his or her parents. Somerville Bd. v. Manville Bd., 332 N.J. Super. 6, 12 (App. Div. 2000), aff'd, 167 N.J. 55 (2001). The domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving. In re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374 (Law Div. 1991), aff'd, 311 N.J. Super. 589 (App. Div. 1998), certif. denied, 157 N.J. 541 (1998), cert. denied, 526 U.S. 1051 (1999). The acts, statements and conduct of the individual, as viewed in light of all circumstances, determine a person's true intent. Collins v. Yancey, 55 N.J. Super. 514, 521 (Law Div. 1959). A choice of domicile by a person, irrespective of his motive, will be honored "provided there are sufficient objective indicia, by way of proofs, supporting the actual existence of that domicile." In re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374 (Law Div. 1991).

If a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending school in the district is not domiciled in the district, the superintendent or administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). The parent or guardian is entitled to a hearing before the board and if, in the judgment of the board, the parent or guardian is not domiciled within the district, the board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. Id. The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the Commissioner within twenty-one days of the date of the decision and is entitled to a hearing. Id.

In challenging the findings of a board regarding a child's eligibility to attend school in the district, parents have the burden of establishing domicile in the school district by a preponderance of the evidence. Y.E. ex rel. E.E. v. State-Operated Sch. Dist. of the City of Newark, No. A-6009-06T3, 2008 WL 2492258, at *9 (App. Div. 2008); N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)2. A student is a resident of a school district if his parent or guardian has a permanent home in the district such that "the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere." N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1).

It remains factually undisputed on the record in this matter that, for the entirety of the 2020/21 school year, R.G. and his family, including N.G., were residing in Carteret, New Jersey. (Giuliana Cert. at ¶ 6. Id. at Ex. A.) It is further factually undisputed on this record that the last known residence of R.G. and his family within the geographic boundaries of the District was occupied by and deeded to another family who enrolled their child in the District at the beginning of the 2020/21 school year utilizing this address to establish domicile within the District. (Id. at ¶ 4.) Although the petitioner has indicated that his "goal is to move back [to East Brunswick] by November or December 2020 at the latest" (id. at Ex. A), there is no evidence on this record presented to indicate that the petitioner has done so and the petitioner has produced no evidence that they possess a permanent home within the geographic boundaries of the District to return to at some future date. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a). In the absence of any evidence that they possessed a permanent home in the District during the 2020/21 school year, the petitioner has failed to establish that N.G. was domiciled within the geographic boundaries of the District for that school year. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that R.G. has failed to carry his burden of proof that N.G. was domiciled in the District during the 2020/21 school year. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that N.G. was not entitled to attend school in the District and receive a free public education there during that time pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a).

In its counterclaim, the Board seeks tuition for the period of ineligible attendance. A school board is entitled to recover tuition from a parent or guardian of a child found ineligible to attend a school in its district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). The Commissioner of Education is authorized to assess tuition prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district, and tuition is computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per-pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2).

The applicable per-pupil cost for the 2020/21 school year for attendance at EBHS was $16,314. (Giuliana Cert. at ¶ 19.) This amount calculates to $16,314/180 = $90.63 per day. Because N.G. moved out of the District and remained domiciled outside the District for the entirety of the 2020/21 school year, the total amount of tuition for N.G.'s ineligible attendance at EBHS totals $16,314. In view of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner should pay to the Board tuition in the amount of $16,314 for the period of N.G.'s ineligible attendance at EBHS during the 2020/21 school year. I FURTHER CONCLUDE that N.G. should be disenrolled from the East Brunswick Public Schools.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED that the respondent's motion to dismiss the petition is GRANTED and the petitioner's Petition of Appeal be and hereby is DISMISSED.

It is FURTHER ORDERED that R.G. pay to the Board tuition in the amount of $16,314 for the period of his son's ineligible attendance at the East Brunswick public schools during the 2020/21 school year and that N.G. be disenrolled from the East Brunswick Public Schools.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

M.O. and H.O., on behalf of minor children, Z.O., A.O., J.O. and E.O.,

Petitioners,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Tenafly, Bergen County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that their children are not entitled to a free public education in the Tenafly School District. Petitioners and their children moved from Maryland to Alpine, New Jersey, in December 2020, residing with family and enrolling the children in the Alpine school district for the remainder of the 2020-2021 school year. Petitioners subsequently purchased a home in Tenafly in March 2021 but did not move in immediately as the home needed substantial renovations, estimated to take six to eight months to complete. Petitioners attempted to register the children in the Tenafly district for the 2021-2022 school year but were denied as they were not yet living in the Tenafly house. Petitioners argue that they are legally domiciled in Tenafly and that domicile was established, inter alia, by the purchase of the home, the payment of the mortgage and utility bills on the property. The Board contended that it is the policy of the district that residency is not established until a family is physically domiciled in the home and filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue here, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; the sole issue is whether petitioner's children are eligible to attend respondent's public schools free of charge in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1; established case law has addressed the issue not only of intent to move to a location as evidence of domicile, but also the necessity of having already lived at the new location; the burden of proof is on the petitioner to show that they are legally domiciled in Tenafly; nothing in the petitioners' legal argument effectively counters the necessity that for domicile to be established, there must be an "actual and physical taking up of an abode". The ALJ concluded that: at no time relevant to this action were petitioners domiciled in Tenafly; the decision to deny enrollment of the children was not an unreasonable exercise of the Board's discretion; the children are not currently entitled to a free public education in Tenafly and will remain ineligible as long as they remain domiciled in a municipality other than Tenafly. The Board's motion for summary decision was granted, and the petition was dismissed.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. The petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

M.O. and H.O., on behalf of minor children, Z.O., A.O., J.O., and E.O.,

Petitioners,

v.

Board of Education of the Borough of Tenafly, Bergen County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

In this matter, petitioners are challenging the Board's determination that they were not domiciled in Tenafly and their minor children were therefore ineligible to attend school in the district. Petitioners purchased a home in Tenafly in March 2021 but were unable to move in as the home needed substantial renovations which were estimated to take six to eight months to complete. When petitioners attempted to enroll their minor children in the district in May 2021, the Board denied their request on the basis that they did not yet live in Tenafly. The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that petitioners did not meet their burden of demonstrating that they are residents of Tenafly because at no time relevant to their appeal were they domiciled in that municipality. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that the minor children were not eligible to attend school in the district, and the Board was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable in failing to admit the children under the policy that gives the Board the discretion to admit nonresident students.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ, for the reasons thoroughly set forth in the Initial Decision, that petitioners are not domiciled in Tenafly and the minor children are therefore ineligible to attend school in the district. The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ that the Board did not abuse its discretion by refusing to enroll the minor children.

Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter, and the petition is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[1]

BEFORE: MATTHEW G. MILLER, ALJ

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioners, M.O. and H.O., the parents of minor children Z.O., A.O., J.O. and E.O., (Petitioners or family) have challenged the determination made by the respondent, Board of Education of the Boro of Tenafly, Bergen County, that their children are not entitled to a free public education in Tenafly because Petitioners and their children were not domiciled in the Tenafly School District (Respondent or District).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On or about May 26, 2021, Respondent notified Petitioners that their four children, Z.O., A.O., J.O. and E.O. (the children), were ineligible to receive free educations in the Tenafly due to non-residency. The Petitioners filed a Residency Appeal with the Department of Education on or about June 14, 2021. On or about July 6, 2021, respondent filed a Motion to Dismiss in Lieu of Answer. The Department of Education transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on July 13, 2021, for hearing as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

An initial conference was held on August 4, 2021 and it was agreed by the parties that this matter could be resolved by summary decision and at that time, per N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, the Motion to Dismiss was converted to a Motion for Summary Decision. The record remained open for the submission of additional documentation and legal argument, which was received on August 7, 2021 and August 11, 2021. Following oral argument on August 23, 2021, the record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The facts of the case are not in dispute:

1. On December 3, 2020, Petitioners, who had been residing and were domiciled in Maryland sold their only home and moved to Alpine, New Jersey into a home where H.O.'s parents resided. The children were enrolled in the Alpine school district and remained enrolled there through the conclusion of the 2020-21 school year.

2. On March 23, 2021, Petitioners purchased a home located at 11 Stanton Road in Tenafly. (Exhibit P-1). Petitioners' Residency Appeal certified that this is the address where the family is "located". (Exhibit P-2). This property is the only "home" owned by Petitioners.

3. Since purchasing the property at 11 Stanton Road, Tenafly, the children have registered in Tenafly-based youth sports programs, the family is paying utility bills for the Tenafly property and both H.O. and M.O. listed the Tenafly address on their newly issued New Jersey driver's licenses. Smoke detector and carbon monoxide alarm compliance certificates have also been issued for the property. (Exhibits P-3, P-4, P-5, P-6)

4. However, the home itself has "needed extensive renovations and was not habitable" and the family continues to reside in Alpine. (Petitioner's brief at 3). Per an email supplied to the District on or about May 11, 2021, it was estimated that the renovations "will take around 6-8 months to complete" from the time of the issuance of all necessary permits. (Exhibits P-7 and P-8).

5. On or about May 6, 2021, Petitioners reached out to the District expressing interest in enrolling the children in the Tenafly school system. In reply, the Interim Registrar of the Tenafly Public Schools responded that "district policy is firm in requiring that students be physically residing in Tenafly before they can be registered", given the circumstances, a further review would be undertaken. She requested that more specific information be provided, including information from the contractor as to a start date for the work and an estimated completion date and their current residential address. (Exhibits P-9 and P-10).

6. Tenafly School District Policy 5111 covers the "Eligibility of Resident/Nonresident Students". (Exhibit R-1).

7. After a substantial amount of back-and-forth between Petitioners and the Board, on May 12, 2021, Petitioners were advised by Shauna C. DeMarco, Superintendent of the Tenafly School District, that because they were not domiciled in Tenafly and since "there is no exception for a future residents (sic) who are renovating a home they have not lived in", the children would not be registered in the District until they were actually living at 11 Stanton Road. A follow-up email from Ms. DeMarco on May 13, 2021, noted that she had consulted with the Board attorney prior to making her decision. (Exhibits P-11 and P-12).

8. The colloquy between Petitioners and the District continued and on May 26, 2021, Jocelyn Schwarz, the President of the Tenafly Board of Education, wrote to Petitioners and advised them that on May 24, 2021, the Board "affirmed the Superintendent's denial of your request" and that "Policy 5111 does not permit your children to enroll in the District under the circumstances presented". (Exhibit P-13).

9. The parties have stipulated that there are only 2 issues in dispute;

    a. Whether the family was domiciled in Tenafly for the purposes of the children receiving a free public education.
    b. If the answer to a. is "no", then whether the District abused its discretion in failing to admit the children to the Tenafly public schools per Policy 5111.

LEGAL ARGUMENTS

Petitioners

Domicile

Petitioners argue that given the totality of the circumstances, they are legally domiciled in Tenafly and that domicile was established by the purchase of the home at 11 Stanton Road, the payment of a mortgage on the property, their payment of utility bills, the issuance of New Jersey driver's licenses with the Tenafly address, the hiring of the contractor and the registration of their children in Tenafly-based sports activities. They also emphasize their roots in the community, with H.O. having been raised in Tenafly and attended District schools and that it is their intent to move into the home as soon as renovations are completed and to raise their children in Tenafly.

First and foremost, however, Petitioners argue that they are domiciled in Tenafly, citing to A.M.S. ex rel. A.D.S. v. Board of Educ. of City of Margate, 409 N.J. Super. 149 (App. Div. 2009) and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1, citing the following paragraph;

> N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1) HN9 provides that students "over five and under 20 years of age" are "eligible to attend school in a district if the student is domiciled within the district" and sets forth various living arrangements from which a student's domicile may be established, including:
> 1. A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is living with a parent or legal guardian whose permanent home is located within the school district. A home is permanent when the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere.

Petitioners argue that case law supports their contention that so long as the home is owned by them and they intend to live there, they should be considered domiciled in Tenafly. This is particularly true when N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.3(a) states that a student's eligibility for a free public education in a particular district "shall not be affected by the physical condition of an applicant's housing" or if they were displaced "from the original residence...(due to occurrences) such as fire, flood, hurricane, or other circumstances that render the residence uninhabitable." N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.2(h(1)(iii).

Abuse of Discretion

Assuming, arguendo, that it is found that Petitioners are not domiciled in Tenafly, it is argued that Respondent abused its discretion by failing to admit the children as permitted by Policy 5111, citing to the following passage;

> The admission of a nonresident student to school free of charge must be approved by the Board. No student otherwise eligible shall be denied admission on the basis of the student's race, color, creed, religion, national origin, ancestry, age, marital status, affectational or sexual orientation or sex, social or economic status, or disability. The continued enrollment of any nonresident student shall be contingent upon the student's maintenance of good standards of citizenship and discipline.

Petitioners also point to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-2.2, which, under a headnote that reads "Discretionary admission of nonresident students", states;

> Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to limit a district board of education's discretion to admit nonresident students, or the ability of a nonresident student to attend school with or without payment of tuition with the accepting district board of education's consent, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3(a).[1]

In addition, they cite to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1)(i)(ii)(1), which discusses the domicile of a student whose parents/guardians are located in different school districts and how it is determined.

Petitioners also reference the difficulties that the COVID-19 pandemic has effectuated not only on their children, but also on the educational system as a whole. Petitioners supplied multiple citations to publications from the New Jersey Department of Education, the New Jersey School Boards Association and like organizations detailing

[1] N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3(a). Any person not resident in a school district, if eligible except for residence, may be admitted to the schools of the district with the consent of the board of education upon such terms, and with or without payment of tuition, as the board may prescribe.

"strategies to support student engagement", how to enhance remote and hybrid learning experiences and how to avoid chronic absenteeism. Emphasized was a quote from the State's return to school plan, The Road Back, Restart and Recovery Plan for Education[2], in which it is noted that schools must be "prepared to accommodate students' unique needs during this unprecedented time". Id. at 8.

Continuing in that vein, Petitioners supplied a May 22, 2021 letter from a psychiatrist and a May 23, 2021 letter from a Licensed Social Worker, both of whom argue that not being permitted to enroll in the Tenafly schools would cause "unnecessary consequences" and has already "precipitated great angst and anxiety" and that given the "trauma" the children have suffered over the past year, the "mental health of these children" must be considered when considering whether they should be permitted to start the school year in Tenafly or have to transfer there later in the year. (See, 5/22/21 letter of Barry L. Feinberg, M.D. and 5/23/21 e-mail of Gwen Crystal, L.S.W., attached hereto as Exhibits P-9 and P-10).[3]

Petitioners also point to various circumstances, including their long-term affiliation with Tenafly, the affirmative steps that they have taken to demonstrate that they intend to move to Tenafly as soon as possible as well as the effects of the pandemic on both the educational system and their children in particular.

They further point to a variety of what they deem to be administrative errors made by Respondent in its denial of admission, including;

1. That the May 26, 2021, notice of ineligibility was deficient.
2. That statements made by the President of the Tenafly Board of Education were "false and misleading" concerning the definition of "domicile".

[3] Please note that these documents were not presented as "expert reports" and will not be considered as such. There is no indication that either of these licensed professionals conducted an examination of any family members, reviewed any documents or expressed their opinions to within a reasonable degree of probability. Further, neither of them cited to any academic or scientific support for their conclusions. See generally, Vitrano by Vitrano v. Schiffman, 305 N.J. Super. 572 (App. Div. 1997)

3. That the Superintendent "misled" the Petitioners concerning appellate timeframes.

It was argued that these administrative deficiencies, while not sufficient to warrant a finding of domicile or to compel the Respondent to be compelled to admit the children, are evidence that it failed to consider all relevant circumstances in denying admission and that it abused its discretion in doing so.

Respondent

Domicile

Respondent asserts that the case law is crystal clear that Petitioners are not domiciled in Tenafly since they have never lived in the 11 Stanton Road home. Without having lived there, they "are missing a necessary element of domicile; residence in Tenafly". (Respondent's brief at 3).

In support of its position, Respondent cites to In re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 263 (Law Div. 1991), 311 N.J. Super., 589 (App. Div. 1998), certif. denied, 157 N.J. 541 (1998), cert. denied sub. nom., Unanue-Casal v. Goya Foods, Inc., 526 U.S. 1051, 119 S. Ct. 1357, 143 L. Ed. 2d 518 (1999).

Respondent further cites to K.L. and C.L. o/b/o N.L. v. Board of Educ. of Freehold, AOL Dkt. No. EDU 441-01 (Initial Decision June 26, 2001), adopted (Comm'r Aug. 13, 2001) and Board of Educ. of Twp. of Livingston v. H.L. and D.L. o/b/o K.L. and J.L., OAL Dkt. No. EDU 11593-96 (Initial Decision Apr. 3, 1998) where it was determined, in general, that since a house was not habitable during the school year, the family could not be considered to domiciled there.

Abuse of Discretion

Concerning Petitioners' "abuse of discretion" position, Respondent noted that;

> The Board denied (the) request based on a plain reading of the Policy, which disallows enrollment to nonresidents except those expressly contemplated therein. The Policy does not make exception for people who have purchased a house in Tenafly, but who have not yet moved into it due to it being uninhabitable, i.e., incapable of living in. Certainly, the Board's decision, rooted in the plain language of the Policy, had a legitimate, rational basis.
> [Respondent's brief at 11.]

Respondent argues that case, administrative and statutory law all strongly support the position that a District has broad discretionary authority in deciding when to admit out-of-district students and that the considerations cited by it clearly demonstrate that the decision to deny admittance to the children was not "patently arbitrary", "without rational basis" or "induced by improper motives". Parsippany-Troy Hills Educ. Ass'n v. Board of Educ. of Parsippany-Troy Hills, 188 N.J. Super. 161, 167 (App. Div. 1983) (cit. omitted).

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

Summary decision may be granted "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). The OAL summary decision rule is essentially the same as the summary judgment rule under the New Jersey Court Rules, which states:

> The judgment or order sought shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law. An issue of fact is genuine only if, considering the burden of persuasion at trial, the evidence submitted by the parties on the motion, together with all legitimate inferences therefrom favoring the non-moving party, would require submission of the issue to the trier of fact.

[R. 4:46-2(c).]

The New Jersey Supreme Court has modified and clarified the analysis required when considering a motion for summary decision/judgment. In Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995), the Court adopted the summary judgment standard utilized by federal courts:

> Under this new standard, a determination whether there exists a "genuine issue" of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational factfinder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." [Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. 242, 249, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2511, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202, 212 (1986).] . . . If there exists a single, unavoidable resolution of the alleged disputed issue of fact, that issue should be considered insufficient to constitute a "genuine" issue of material fact for purposes of Rule 4:46-2. Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 250, 106 S. Ct. at 2511, 91 L. Ed. 2d at 213. The import of our holding is that when the evidence "is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law," Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 252, 106 S. Ct. at 2512, 91 L. Ed. 2d at 214, the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment.
> [Id. at 540.]

The burden is on the moving party to exclude all reasonable doubt as to the existence of any genuine issue of material fact, and all inferences of doubt are drawn against the moving party and in favor of the non-moving party. Saldana v. DiMedio, 275 N.J. Super. 488, 494 (App. Div. 1994). The critical question therefore is "whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require [a hearing] or whether it is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law." Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 533 (citation omitted). If the non-moving party's evidence is merely colorable, or is not significantly probative, summary judgment should not be denied. See, Bowles v. City of Camden, 993 F. Supp. 255, 261 (D.N.J. 1998).

The sole issue in dispute is whether Petitioner's four children are eligible to attend respondent's public schools free of charge in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

Any child between the ages of five and twenty years old is entitled to a free public education in the school district in which he is domiciled. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a); N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a). See V.R. ex rel A.R. v. Hamburg Bd. of Educ., 2 N.J.A.R. 283, 287 (1980), aff'd, State Bd., 1981 S.L.D. 1533, rev'd on other grounds sub nom.; Rabinowitz v. N.J. State Bd. of Educ., 550 F. Supp. 481 (D.N.J. 1982) (New Jersey requires local domicile, as opposed to mere residence, in order for a student to receive a free education).

Per N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), the resident "shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education". See, generally, D.L. v. Board of Educ. of Princeton Regional School Dist., 366 N.J. Super. 269 (App. Div. 2004).

A student is domiciled in a school district if his parent or guardian has a permanent home in the district such that "the parent or guardian intends to return to it when absent and has no present intent of moving from it, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere." N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1); State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 250 (1955); In re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374 (Law Div. 1991), aff'd, 311 N.J. Super. 589 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 157 N.J. 541 (1998), cert. denied, 526 U.S. 1051, 119 S. Ct. 1357, 143 L. Ed. 2d 518 (1999).

The domicile of an unemancipated child is that of his parent, custodian or guardian. Somerville Bd. of Educ. v. Manville Bd. of Educ., 332 N.J. Super. 6, 12 (App. Div. 2000), aff'd, 167 N.J. 55 (2001); P.B.K. o/b/o minor child E.Y. v. Board of Ed. of Tenafly, 343 N.J. Super. 419, 427 (App. Div. 2001). A child may also be considered domiciled in a school district if he lives with an adult domiciled in that school district, as long as the child is financially supported by that adult as if he were their own child, upon submission of a sworn affidavit to the board of education. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1).

This case hinges, obviously, on the definition of domicile, and this was addressed in tremendous detail in In re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362 (Law Div. 1991), aff'd 311 N.J. Super. 589 (App. Div. 1998), certif. denied, 157 N.J. 541 (1998), cert. denied sub. nom., Unanue-Casal v. Goya Foods, Inc., 526 U.S. 1051, 119 S. Ct. 1357, 143 L. Ed. 2d 518 (1999). While Unanue concerned a probate case, the concept of domicile was key to the dispute between the potential heirs to Goya Foods, Inc., a sizable food manufacturer and distributor. Ironically, the case also involved Tenafly and a question as to whether the decedent, Prudencio Unanue, was domiciled there or in Puerto Rico.

The Court provided a comprehensive review of the law, noting;

> When a man has acquired a domicile in a particular place, that place remains his domicile until he acquires another domicile". In re Dorrance, 115 N.J. Eq. 268, 274, 170 A. 601 (Prerog.Ct.1934), aff'd 13 N.J. Misc. 168, 176 A. 902 (Sup.Ct.1935), aff'd 116 N.J.L. 362, 184 A. 743 (E & A 1936), cert. den. 298 U.S. 678, 56 S.Ct. 950, 80 L.Ed. 1399 (1936), reh den. 298 U.S. 692, 56 S.Ct. 957, 80 L.Ed. 1410 (1936). In considering whether a change of domicile has occurred, three elements must be considered: 1) whether there had been an actual and physical taking up of an abode in a particular state; 2) whether the subject had an intention to make his home there permanently or least indefinitely; and (3) whether the subject had an intention to abandon his old domicile. The court must evaluate all of the facts of the case to determine the place in which there is the necessary concurrence of physical presence and an intention to make that place one's home. Lyon v. Glaser, supra, 60 N.J. at 264-265, 288 A.2d 12. See also, Mercadante v. The City of Paterson, 111 N.J. Super. 35, 39-40, 266 A.2d 611 (Ch.Div.1970), aff'd o.b. 58 N.J. 112, 275 A.2d 440 (1971).
> [Unanue, supra, 255 N.J. Super. at 376.]

The Court in Lyon, supra addressed the issue not only of intent to move to a location as evidence of domicile, but also the necessity of having already lived at that location;

> A very short period of residence in a given place may be sufficient to show domicil, but mere residence, regardless of its length, is not sufficient. It has been said that concurrence, even for a moment, of physical presence at a dwelling place with the intention of making it a permanent abode, effects a change of domicil. And once established, the domicil continues until a new one is found to have been acquired through an application of the same tests. In re Fisher, supra; Cromwell v. Neeld, 15 N.J. Super. 296, 300-301 (App. Div. 1951); In re Dorrance, 115 N.J. Eq. 268, 274-275 (Prerog. Ct. 1934), aff'd per curiam sub nom. Dorrance v. Thayer-Martin, 13 N.J. Misc. 168 (Sup. Ct. 1935), aff'd o.b. 116 N.J.L. 362 (E. & A. 1936); Slater v. Munroe, 313 Mass. 538, 48 N.E. 2d 149 (1943); State ex rel. Orr v. Buder, 308 Md. 237, 271 S.W. 508 (1925); In re Appleby's Estate, 106 N.Y.S. 2d 294 (Sur. Ct. 1951), aff'd mem. 279 App. 993, 112 N.Y.S. 2d 493 (1952); Schillerstrom v. Schillerstrom, 75 N.D. 667, 32 N.W. 2d 106 (1948); 25 Am. Jur. 2d Domicil, §§ 16, 17, pp. 13-15 (1966); Restatement (Second) of Conflicts of Laws, §§ 15-19, pp. 61-79 (1971). Since the concept of domicil involves the concurrence of physical presence in a particular State, and an intention to make that State one's home, determination of a disputed issue on the subject requires an evaluation of all the facts and circumstances of the case.

Along those lines, the Court in In re Fisher's Will, 13 N.J. Super. 48 (App. Div. 1951) put it very succinctly;

> It is also settled that to effect a change in domicile "* * * the residence at the place chosen for the domicile must be actual; to the factum of residence there must be added the animus manendi; * * *." Harral v. Harral, 39 N.J. Eq. 279, 285 (E. & A. 1884). In other words, in order to acquire a new domicile there must be a union of residence and intention. Residence without intention, or intention without residence, does not effect a change of domicile. See also Rinaldi v. Rinaldi, 94 N.J. Eq. 14, 20 (Ch. 1922); In re Gilbert, 18 N.J. Misc. 540, 548 (Essex Cty. Surr. Ct. 1940).

The case at bar practically mirrors the factual scenario in K.L. v. Board Educ, 2010 N.J. Super. Unpub. LEXIS 11 (App. Div. 2010). In K.L., the plaintiffs purchased a home in Kinnelon, New Jersey in May, 2007 and "anticipated establishing residency (there) as of October, 2007". The Kinnelon Board of Education had established a policy which permitted a student to enroll "not greater than 5 weeks prior to the anticipated date of residency" in the town when the family "has entered a contract to buy, build or rent a residence" in the district." Id.

When the Board requested "an update on [their] home renovations" in early October and advised that it would be charging monthly tuition beginning on October 15, the plaintiff filed the petition which led to a referral to the Office of Administrative Law. Id. at 1-2.

In the underlying OAL matter, the judge detailed a factual scenario similar to that in the case at bar.

a. Family lives outside of district.
b. Family buys home in district.
c. Family does not move into home due to need for renovations.

The judge determined that, largely because the family had never moved into the home (nor eaten in, slept in or entertained in it), even though they intended to do so in the future, that it was not domiciled in Kinnelon, and a summary decision was entered on behalf of the district. See, K.L. and K.L. on behalf of Minor Child M.L. v. Bd. of Educ. of Kinnelon, EDU 1191-08, Initial Decision (April 24, 2008).[4]

The judge's decision was upheld by the Commissioner of Education, largely for the reasons expressed in the underlying decision. Of, note, however, is that the Commissioner distinguished the case of A.P., Sr., on behalf of minor child D.K. v. Board of Education of the Bordentown Regional School District, Burlington County, EDU 541-06, OAL Initial Decision (December 5, 2006), Comm'r Decision (January 18, 2007). In A.P., there was evidence that the petitioner had purchased and lived in the same home located in the district, had moved out when extensive damage had been done to it while he was away on duty in the National Guard and that he and D.K. had moved back into the home three (3) months after the school year had begun and while construction was ongoing. The Commissioner emphasized that in K.L.;

> By way of contrast, petitioners in this case had never lived in Kinnelon before the 2007-2008 school year and do not appear to have lived in Kinnelon at any time during that school year. They lived in Butler and could have sent their children to the Butler public schools without payment of tuition. In short, the Commissioner finds petitioners' arguments concerning domicile to be unpersuasive.
> See, K.L. and K.L. on behalf of Minor Child M.L. v. Bd. of Educ. of Kinnelon, EDU 1191-08, Comm'r Decision (July 23, 2008) at 7.

The court upheld the Commissioner's decision, citing to Unanue;

> Although not a case involving education law, Unanue, is instructive on the general issue of "domicile" as a legal concept. "'In a strict legal sense, the domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving.'" Unanue, supra, 255 N.J. Super. at 374 (quoting Kurilla v. Roth, 132 N.J.L. 213, 215, 38 A.2d 862 (Sup. Ct. 1944)); accord D.L. v. Bd. of Educ. of Princeton Regional School Dist., 366 N.J. Super. 269, 273, 840 A.2d 979 (App. Div. 2004).
> > In considering whether a change of domicile has occurred, three elements must be considered: 1) whether there had been an actual and physical taking up of an abode in a particular state; 2) whether the subject had an intention to make his home there permanently or least indefinitely; and (3) whether the subject had an intention to abandon his old domicile.

> The court must evaluate all of the facts of the case to determine the place in which there is the necessary concurrence of physical presence and an intention to make that place one's home.
> [Unanue, supra, 255 N.J. Super. at 376 (citing Lyon v. Glaser, 60 N.J. 259, 264-65, 288 A.2d 12, (1972)) (emphasis added).

[K.L. v. Board of Educ., supra at 4.]

The court found it "obvious" that the family was "never domiciled in Kinnelon" and that while "they may have possessed a present intention to reside there when renovations were complete", there was no dispute that they "never did reside in the district". It concluded;

> They had never established an "actual and physical abode" in Kinnelon, and therefore they lacked the "necessary concurrence of physical presence and an intention to make that place one's home" upon which the legal concept of domicile rests.

The cases cited by the Petitioners in their brief are either clearly distinguishable [A.P. v. Lower Merion Sch. Dist., 389 F. Supp. 3rd 322 (E.D.Pa. 2019) (domicile case where the petitioners were 'living' part-time in 2 different school districts)] or are entirely consistent with the cases cited above. For example, in S.H. and C.H. o.b.o Minor Children, C.H., S.H. and S.H. v. Township of Alloway Board of Education, Salem County, OAL Initial Decision (February 11, 2019), Comm'r Decision (March 26, 2019), the court largely adopted language from Unanue, supra and V.R. ex rel A.R., supra and includes the "intention of returning" language, while the facts of that case involved whether the plaintiffs had moved back to a residence where they had formally resided.

Further, concerning the aspect of Petitioner's argument that her roots in Tenafly should be considered in determining domicile, while not entirely on point (since the case involved a person who had moved away from her old hometown, but maintained a home

"so she could see her few remaining friends in New Jersey, when she wished"), the court in Lyon, supra, held, that;

> A mere sentimental attachment does not hold an old domicile.
> Lyon v. Glaser, 60 N.J. 259 at 272, cit., District of Columbia v. Murphy, 314 U.S. 441, 456, 62 S. Ct. 303, 86 L. Ed. 329, 338 (1941).

With that final finding, it is clear that nothing in the Petitioners' legal argument effectively counters the clear necessity that for domicile to be established, there must be an "actual and physical taking up of an abode". Unanue, supra, 255 N.J. Super. at 376.

That simply has not been established by Petitioners here.

Abuse of Discretion

The law is clear that a student may attend school in a district in which he is not domiciled, with or without payment of tuition, at the discretion of the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3(a); N.J.A.C. 6A:22-2.2. A superintendent or administrative principal may also have a non-domiciled student removed from that school, on application to the board of education. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2).

Tenafly has adopted a specific policy concerning this issue, which reads as follows;

> Nonresident Students
>
> Effective December 6, 2004, the Board generally ceased accepting new nonresident tuition-paying students. This restriction does not apply to the special education program for autism, pre-school disabilities or language learning disabilities self-contained program, for students who successfully apply to the program.
> A. Exceptions to paying tuition by nonresident students may occur under the following situations:

1. Nonresident School Faculty and Staff. Children of full time Board of Education employees who work a minimum of 35 hours a week in one particular position may attend Tenafly schools at no tuition cost providing such accommodations place no hardships on school district resources such as, but not limited to personnel, facilities and program expenses. All stipulations and conditions listed above in this policy shall be applicable to the children of nonresident school faculty and staff seeking to attend or actually attending the Tenafly Public Schools. If such hardships should evolve, the student shall no longer be granted a waiver of tuition. Application for admission must be made to the Superintendent of Schools at least sixty calendar days prior to the anticipated enrollment dates. A new application must be submitted for each school year.
2. Special Students. American Field Service students and other students approved by the National Association of Secondary School Principals may be admitted at no tuition cost at the discretion of the Superintendent.
3. High School Seniors. A student who is a senior and whose family moves from Tenafly or a sending school district after January 1, may be allowed to complete the senior year without further tuition payment.

B. Annual Board of Education – Superintendent of Schools Review of Policy.

The Superintendent of Schools and the Board of Education will annually review the practical results of policy 5111 for the year in progress and discuss implementation of the policy for the coming school year. Particular attention will be given to anticipated enrollments, space and staffing needs. This annual review will be so scheduled that any conclusions reached may be appropriately reflected in the school budget for the coming school year.

The admission of a nonresident student to school free of charge must be approved by the Board. No student otherwise eligible shall be denied admission on the basis of the student's race, color, creed, religion, national origin, ancestry, age marital status, affectational or sexual orientation or sex, social or economic status, or disability. The continued enrollment of any nonresident student shall be contingent upon the student's maintenance of good standards of citizenship and discipline.

[Exhibit R-1 at 8-9.]

When a local board determines that a child is not properly domiciled in its district, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2) provides a right of appeal for the parents as follows:

> The parent or guardian may contest the Board's decision before the Commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the Commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this section.

Similar policies have been upheld as within the discretion of school boards. See, M.M. and V.M. ex rel R.M. v. Bd. of Educ. of Hillsborough, EDU 6744-98, Initial Decision (Oct. 19, 1998), adopted, Comm'r (Oct. 29, 1998).

The Respondent also points to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-2.2, which is brief and to the point;

> Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to limit a district board of education's discretion to admit nonresident students, or the ability of a nonresident student to attend school with or without payment of tuition with the accepting district board of education's consent, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3.a.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-3(a) reads;

> Admission for nonresident of school district; parent on active duty
>
> a. Any person not resident in a school district, if eligible except for residence, may be admitted to the schools of the district with the consent of the board of education upon such terms, and with or without payment of tuition, as the board may prescribe.
>
> b. Any person not resident in a school district, if eligible except for residence, and if that person previously was a resident of the district, shall be admitted to the schools of the district without payment of tuition if that person's parent or guardian is a member of the New Jersey National Guard or a member of the reserve component of the armed forces of the United States and has been ordered into active military service in any > of the armed forces of the United States in time of war or national emergency, resulting in the relocation of the student out of the district. A school district admitting a student pursuant to this subsection shall not be obligated for transportation costs.

While Petitioners argue that the District abused its discretion in failing to admit the children, the burden it faces in attempting to demonstrate same is daunting. As noted in K.L. and K.L. on behalf of Minor Child M.L. v. Bd. of Educ. of Kinnelon, EDU 1191-08, Initial Decision (April 24, 2008);

> Although there is no explicit authority for a public school district to contract with parents to enroll their children within the district, neither is there explicit authority that denies them this authority. Local boards do possess this authority since they are given a great deal of discretion in determining whether to enroll out-of-district students.

When combined with the statutory and administrative laws detailed above, it is clear that the District has the discretionary power to admit or deny admittance to a non-resident student.

The issue of discretion was discussed at length in Parsippany-Troy Hills Educ. Ass'n v. Board of Educ. of Parsippany-Troy Hills, 188 N.J. Super. 161 (App. Div. 1983), where the Court held;

> These statutory provisions and implementing code regulations leave little doubt that the choice of which courses to offer and, necessarily, the content of those courses, is a discretionary decision left to the local boards of education, subject only to the periodic review of the Commissioner and State Board of Education. In such a case "the decision is entitled to a presumption of correctness and will not be upset unless there is an affirmative showing that such decision was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable." Thomas v. Morris Tp. Bd. of Ed., 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App.Div.1965). An "action > of the local board which lies within the area of its discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary, without rational basis or induced by improper motives." Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App.Div.1960).

> [Id. at 167-68.]

In explaining the decision not to discretionarily admit the children, Ms. DeMarco noted that Policy 5111 "makes clear that you must be residing in you Tenafly home prior to registering your children for school (and) that owning a home in Tenafly and paying taxes on it does not result in the right to enrollment in our schools." She emphasized the difference between a resident that had been forced to move out of a temporarily uninhabitable residence where they had already been living and "future residents who are renovating a home they have not lived in". (Exhibit P-11)

Ms. DeMarco also advised Petitioners that she consulted the Board attorney prior to making her decision;

> Kindly note that I did consult with the Board attorney prior to my recent response to you to be sure there were no avenues for enrollment that I was overlooking in my review of your documents. It was his shared interpretation that the highly strict enrollment policy in Tenafly did not support your children's enrollment at this time based on the information you have shared with us. To assist President Schwarz with your appeal, I share (sic) the attorney's opinion on this matter with her.
> [Exhibit P-12.]

Respondent further argues that if the Board were to make an ad hoc exception to the non-resident student policy, it would "lose integrity" and that it would be "opening the door" to additional non-resident children being enrolled "based on circumstances outside the Board's control". The integrity of the policy itself, "is a legitimate, rational basis to deny Petitioners' request".

I agree with Respondent. The decision to not enroll was clearly not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. The policy itself was very narrowly written, with an expressed position that since December 2004, "the Board generally ceased accepting new nonresident tuition-paying students". Then, it very carefully reviewed the Petitioners' situation, acknowledging that "(w)hile our district policy is firm...we recognize that your particular situation suggests further review". (Exhibit P-10).

It is clear from the correspondence with Ms. DeMarco that the matter was taken seriously, leading to a review not only by her, but by the Board attorney, whose opinion was shared with the Board of Education prior to its final decision to deny enrollment. Even assuming that Petitioners' allegations that there were some technical deficiencies in how the decision and subsequent filing deadlines were communicated are true, there is no basis to even suggest that the District's decision was arbitrary or capricious. Further, while a rational person may disagree with the decision to deny enrollment, that alone is certainly no indication that the decision was unreasonable.

As noted above, the policy was very narrowly written, with three limited exceptions, which themselves are limited by the language contained within the exceptions clauses. None of these exceptions can be said to apply to Petitioners' situation even tangentially (unlike Kinnelon's policy in K.L. and K.L. on behalf of Minor Child M.L., supra, where a five week "move-in window" was included). The decision to deny enrollment by the District was consistent with the policy elucidated in Policy 5111 and, even after considering the detailed factual scenario presented by Petitioners, was not unreasonable.

CONCLUSIONS

Given the totality of the evidence, I CONCLUDE that at no time relevant to this action were/are Petitioners domiciled in Tenafly.

I further CONCLUDE that in addition to being neither arbitrary nor capricious, the ultimate decision to deny enrollment to children was not an unreasonable exercise of discretion.

Given the above, I therefore further CONCLUDE that the children are not currently entitled to a free public school education in the Tenafly Boro School District.

I further CONCLUDE that Petitioner's children will continue to be ineligible to receive a free education in the Tenafly Boro School District as long as they remain domiciled in a municipality other than Tenafly, New Jersey.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, Respondent's determination that petitioner's children re ineligible for a free education in the Tenafly Boro School District is hereby AFFIRMED.

It is hereby ORDERED that summary decision be ENTERED on behalf of respondent and that the Petitioner's appeals are DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Final Decision

In the Matter of James Anderson,
Somerdale Park Board of Education,
Camden County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely file Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements ("Disclosure Statements") in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC advises that respondent ultimately filed the Disclosure Statements after the issuance of its Order to Show Cause. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty, nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon school officials by law. Accordingly, respondent is hereby reprimanded for violating the School Ethics Act.

Before the School Ethics Commission
Docket No.: D04-21
Decision for Failure to File Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements

---

I/M/O James Anderson,
Somerdale Park Board of Education, Camden County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "school official" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act for failing to file Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements (Disclosure Statements) as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1.

In the OTSC that was served on July 27, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised Respondent that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when the material facts, as here, are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and local school administrators. By virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees and administrators.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(a), all school officials must file, on forms prescribed by the Commission, Disclosure Statements with their local board secretaries or charter school designees, and must do so on or before April 30th of each year. In addition, all newly elected board members or board members appointed to fill vacancies, newly appointed members of a board of trustees of a charter school, and administrators appointed to fill a vacancy must file their Disclosure Statements within thirty (30) days of appointment or taking office. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(c), N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(d), N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(e), and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(f).

If a school official fails to file the required Disclosure Statements, the Commission is authorized, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(b), to issue an Order to Show Cause. Moreover, failure to timely file the required Disclosure Statements "shall constitute a violation of the ... Act and may result in the reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of a school official pursuant to the recommendation of the Commission as acted upon by the Commissioner [of Education]." N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a).

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission (e-mail) only.

With the above in mind, Respondent is a returning school official and, therefore, was required to file Disclosure Statements by April 30, 2021. Despite this fact, and even though Respondent received reminders as further detailed below, Respondent failed to file Disclosure Statements within the statutorily required timeframe.

More specifically, throughout the months of June and early July, the Commission's staff sent repeated messages to the Board Secretary advising that Respondent had not yet filed Disclosure Statements. The electronic correspondence to the Board Secretary further advised that if Respondent failed to file Disclosure Statements, the Commission had the authority to issue an OTSC, find Respondent in violation of the Act, and recommend a penalty up to and including removal for non-compliance.

In addition, by electronic correspondence dated July 19, 2021, July 21, and July 23, 2021, Respondent was reminded that his Disclosure Statements had not yet been filed. Respondent was further advised that continued failure to file Disclosure Statements would result in the Commission issuing an OTSC, and recommending a penalty, up to and including removal.

When Respondent failed to file Disclosure Statements as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1, an OTSC was issued by the Commission at its meeting on July 27, 2021. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent filed his Disclosure Statements, but did not dispute that his filing was untimely, or otherwise submit anything explaining why a penalty should not be imposed.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

Based on the record as set forth above, and at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1 because he did not timely file Disclosure Statements. Although Respondent ultimately filed his Disclosure Statements, the filing was several months late, and submitted only after multiple reminders were sent reiterating his statutory obligation to file Disclosure Statements.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that Disclosure Statements are filed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to nine (9) school officials throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to file Disclosure Statements. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, it may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed on the school official. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of reprimand.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended penalty of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[2] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's brief on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Noel Cruz,
City of Orange Township Board of Education,
Essex County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely file Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements ("Disclosure Statements") in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of censure.[1] Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty, nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Decision for Failure to File Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements

I/M/O Noel Cruz,
City of Orange Township Board of Education, Essex County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "school official" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act for failing to file Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements (Disclosure Statements) as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1.

In the OTSC that was served on July 27, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised Respondent that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when the material facts, as here, are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and local school administrators. By virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees and administrators.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(a), all school officials must file, on forms prescribed by the Commission, Disclosure Statements with their local board secretaries or charter school designees, and must do so on or before April 30th of each year. In addition, all newly elected board members or board members appointed to fill vacancies, newly appointed members of a board of trustees of a charter school, and administrators appointed to fill a vacancy must file their Disclosure Statements within thirty (30) days of appointment or taking office. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(c), N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(d), N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(e), and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(f).

If a school official fails to file the required Disclosure Statements, the Commission is authorized, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(b), to issue an Order to Show Cause. Moreover, failure to timely file the required Disclosure Statements "shall constitute a violation of the ... Act and may result in the reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of a school official pursuant to the recommendation of the Commission as acted upon by the Commissioner [of Education]." N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a).

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission (e-mail) only.

With the above in mind, Respondent is a returning school official and, therefore, was required to file Disclosure Statements by April 30, 2021. Despite this fact, and even though Respondent received reminders as further detailed below, Respondent failed to file Disclosure Statements within the statutorily required timeframe.

More specifically, throughout the months of June and early July, the Commission's staff sent repeated messages to the Board Secretary advising that Respondent had not yet filed Disclosure Statements. The electronic correspondence to the Board Secretary further advised that if Respondent failed to file Disclosure Statements, the Commission had the authority to issue an OTSC, find Respondent in violation of the Act, and recommend a penalty up to and including removal for non-compliance.

In addition, by electronic correspondence dated July 19, 2021, July 21, and July 23, 2021, Respondent was reminded that his Disclosure Statements had not yet been filed. Respondent was further advised that continued failure to file Disclosure Statements would result in the Commission issuing an OTSC, and recommending a penalty, up to and including removal.

When Respondent failed to file Disclosure Statements as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1, an OTSC was issued by the Commission at its meeting on July 27, 2021. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent still failed to file Disclosure Statements, or to otherwise respond to the OTSC.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

Based on the record as set forth above, and at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1 because he did not timely file Disclosure Statements.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that Disclosure Statements are filed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to nine (9) school officials throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to file Disclosure Statements. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, it may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed on the school official. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of censure.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended penalty of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[2] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's brief on appeal.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

In the Matter of Oliverto Agosto,
City of Orange Township Board of Education,
Essex County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely file Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements ("Disclosure Statements") in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of censure.[1] Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty, nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[2]

Date of Mailing: October 7, 2021

[1] Although it was not indicated in the SEC's decision, it appears that respondent is no longer a member of the Board of Education. Therefore, while the penalty for failure to file Disclosure Statements is typically removal, the Commissioner is limited in these circumstances to a penalty of censure.

[2] This decision may be appealed to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1. Under N.J.Ct.R. 2:4-1(b), a notice of appeal must be filed with the Appellate Division within 45 days from the date of mailing of this decision.

Docket No.: D06-21
Decision for Failure to File Complete Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements

---

I/M/O Oliverto Agosto,
City of Orange Township Board of Education, Essex County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "school official" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act for failing to file complete Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements (Disclosure Statements) as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1.

In the OTSC that was served on July 27, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised Respondent that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when the material facts, as here, are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and local school administrators. By virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees and administrators.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(a), all school officials must file, on forms prescribed by the Commission, Disclosure Statements with their local board secretaries or charter school designees, and must do so on or before April 30th of each year. In addition, all newly elected board members or board members appointed to fill vacancies, newly appointed members of a board of trustees of a charter school, and administrators appointed to fill a vacancy must file their Disclosure Statements within thirty (30) days of appointment or taking office. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(c), N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(d), N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(e), and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(f).

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission (e-mail) only.

When it is determined that a school official's otherwise timely filed Disclosure Statements are incomplete, the filing shall be returned to the school official, and he shall have twenty (20) days from receipt of the returned filing to complete the Disclosure Statements, and to resubmit them to the local board secretary or charter school designee. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.4(a). At the expiration of the twenty (20) days, or upon receipt of a filing which continues to fail to provide the information required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25 and/or N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, the Commission shall issue an Order to Show Cause, directing the school official to show cause as to why the Commission should not impose a sanction. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.4(b). If the school official fails to submit a response within twenty (20) days, or if the response is returned indicating that the school official refuses to properly file, the "Commission may conclude that a school official's incomplete filing is in effect a failure to file and the Commission shall proceed ... pursuant to the procedures set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3." As set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a), failure to timely file the required Disclosure Statements "shall constitute a violation of the ... Act and may result in the reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of a school official pursuant to the recommendation of the Commission as acted upon by the Commissioner [of Education]." N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a).

With the above in mind, Respondent is a returning school official and, therefore, was required to file complete Disclosure Statements by April 30, 2021. Although Respondent filed Disclosure Statements on June 29, 2021, his filing was rejected. Even though Respondent received reminders as further detailed below, Respondent failed to file complete Disclosure Statements.

More specifically, throughout the months of June and early July, the Commission's staff sent repeated messages to the Board Secretary advising that Respondent had not yet filed complete Disclosure Statements. The electronic correspondence to the Board Secretary further advised that if Respondent failed to file complete Disclosure Statements, the Commission had the authority to issue an OTSC, find Respondent in violation of the Act, and recommend a penalty up to and including removal for non-compliance.

In addition, by electronic correspondence dated July 19, 2021, July 21, 2021, and July 23, 2021, Respondent was reminded that he did not file complete Disclosure Statements. Respondent was further advised that continued failure to file complete Disclosure Statements would result in the Commission issuing an OTSC, and recommending a penalty, up to and including removal.

When Respondent failed to file complete Disclosure Statements as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1, an OTSC was issued by the Commission at its meeting on July 27, 2021. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent still failed to file complete Disclosure Statements, or to otherwise respond to the OTSC.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

Based on the record as set forth above, and at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1 because he did not file complete Disclosure Statements.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that Disclosure Statements are filed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to nine (9) school officials throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to file Disclosure Statements. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, it may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed on the school official. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of censure.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended penalty of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[2] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's brief on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Jacquelyn Lake,
The Gray Charter School, Essex County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely file Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements ("Disclosure Statements") in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent filed the Disclosure Statements before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty, nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Decision for Failure to File Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements

---

I/M/O Jacquelyn Lake,
The Gray Charter School, Essex County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "school official" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act for failing to file Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements (Disclosure Statements) as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1.

In the OTSC that was served on July 27, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised Respondent that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when the material facts, as here, are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and local school administrators. By virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees and administrators.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(a), all school officials must file, on forms prescribed by the Commission, Disclosure Statements with their local board secretaries or charter school designees, and must do so on or before April 30th of each year. In addition, all newly elected board members or board members appointed to fill vacancies, newly appointed members of a board of trustees of a charter school, and administrators appointed to fill a vacancy must file their Disclosure Statements within thirty (30) days of appointment or taking office. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(c), N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(d), N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(e), and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(f).

If a school official fails to file the required Disclosure Statements, the Commission is authorized, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(b), to issue an Order to Show Cause. Moreover, failure to timely file the required Disclosure Statements "shall constitute a violation of the ... Act and may result in the reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of a school official pursuant to the recommendation of the Commission as acted upon by the Commissioner [of Education]." N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a).

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission (e-mail) only.

With the above in mind, Respondent is a returning school official and, therefore, was required to file Disclosure Statements by April 30, 2021. Despite this fact, and even though Respondent received reminders as further detailed below, Respondent failed to file Disclosure Statements within the statutorily required timeframe.

More specifically, throughout the months of June and early July, the Commission's staff sent repeated messages to the Charter School Lead advising that Respondent had not yet filed Disclosure Statements. The electronic correspondence to the Charter School Lead further advised that if Respondent failed to file Disclosure Statements, the Commission had the authority to issue an OTSC, find Respondent in violation of the Act, and recommend a penalty up to and including removal for non-compliance.

In addition, by electronic correspondence dated July 19, 2021, July 21, and July 23, 2021, Respondent was reminded that her Disclosure Statements had not yet been filed. Respondent was further advised that continued failure to file Disclosure Statements would result in the Commission issuing an OTSC, and recommending a penalty, up to and including removal.

When Respondent failed to file Disclosure Statements as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1, an OTSC was issued by the Commission at its meeting on July 27, 2021. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent still failed to file Disclosure Statements, or to otherwise respond to the OTSC.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

Based on the record as set forth above, and at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1 because she did not timely file Disclosure Statements.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that Disclosure Statements are filed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to nine (9) school officials throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to file Disclosure Statements. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, it may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed on the school official. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of removal, with such removal to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education. However, if Respondent files Disclosure Statements before the Commissioner of Education adopts a final decision (which will be forty-five (45) days after the mailing date of the within decision), then the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education, in lieu of removal, impose a thirty (30) day suspension, with such suspension to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended penalty of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[2] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's brief on appeal.

In the Matter of Franklin Pachay,
The Gray Charter School, Essex County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act (the Act) for failure to timely file Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements ("Disclosure Statements") in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent filed the Disclosure Statements before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty, nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[1]

Docket No.: D08-21
Decision for Failure to File Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements

---

I/M/O Franklin Pachay,
The Gray Charter School, Essex County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "school official" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act for failing to file Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements (Disclosure Statements) as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1.

In the OTSC that was served on July 27, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised Respondent that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when the material facts, as here, are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and local school administrators. By virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees and administrators.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(a), all school officials must file, on forms prescribed by the Commission, Disclosure Statements with their local board secretaries or charter school designees, and must do so on or before April 30th of each year. In addition, all newly elected board members or board members appointed to fill vacancies, newly appointed members of a board of trustees of a charter school, and administrators appointed to fill a vacancy must file their Disclosure Statements within thirty (30) days of appointment or taking office. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(c), N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(d), N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(e), and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(f).

If a school official fails to file the required Disclosure Statements, the Commission is authorized, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(b), to issue an Order to Show Cause. Moreover, failure to timely file the required Disclosure Statements "shall constitute a violation of the ... Act and may result in the reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of a school official pursuant to the recommendation of the Commission as acted upon by the Commissioner [of Education]." N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a).

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission (e-mail) only.

With the above in mind, Respondent is a returning school official and, therefore, was required to file Disclosure Statements by April 30, 2021. Despite this fact, and even though Respondent received reminders as further detailed below, Respondent failed to file Disclosure Statements within the statutorily required timeframe.

More specifically, throughout the months of June and early July, the Commission's staff sent repeated messages to the Charter School Lead advising that Respondent had not yet filed Disclosure Statements. The electronic correspondence to the Charter School Lead further advised that if Respondent failed to file Disclosure Statements, the Commission had the authority to issue an OTSC, find Respondent in violation of the Act, and recommend a penalty up to and including removal for non-compliance.

In addition, by electronic correspondence dated July 19, 2021, July 21, and July 23, 2021, Respondent was reminded that his Disclosure Statements had not yet been filed. Respondent was further advised that continued failure to file Disclosure Statements would result in the Commission issuing an OTSC, and recommending a penalty, up to and including removal.

When Respondent failed to file Disclosure Statements as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1, an OTSC was issued by the Commission at its meeting on July 27, 2021. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent still failed to file Disclosure Statements, or to otherwise respond to the OTSC.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

Based on the record as set forth above, and at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1 because he did not timely file Disclosure Statements.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that Disclosure Statements are filed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to nine (9) school officials throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to file Disclosure Statements. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, it may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed on the school official. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of removal, with such removal to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education. However, if Respondent files Disclosure Statements before the Commissioner of Education adopts a final decision (which will be forty-five (45) days after the mailing date of the within decision), then the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education, in lieu of removal, impose a thirty (30) day suspension, with such suspension to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended penalty of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[2] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's brief on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Jennifer Metzger,
Franklin Township Board of Education,
Gloucester County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely file Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements ("Disclosure Statements") in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent filed the Disclosure Statements before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 60 days.[1] Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty, nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon school officials by law.

[1] The SEC's decision does not indicate why the alternative penalty is a 60-day suspension, when the penalty under similar circumstances is routinely a 30-day suspension. In the absence of specific information in the record before the Commissioner that would support an increased penalty, the Commissioner finds that the appropriate alternative penalty is a 30-day suspension.

Accordingly, as of the date of this decision, respondent is hereby removed from the board for violating the School Ethics Act.

Docket No.: D10-21
Decision for Failure to File Complete Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements

---

I/M/O Jennifer Metzger,
Franklin Township Board of Education, Gloucester County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "school official" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act for failing to file complete Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements (Disclosure Statements) as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1.

In the OTSC that was served on July 27, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised Respondent that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when the material facts, as here, are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and local school administrators. By virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees and administrators.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(a), all school officials must file, on forms prescribed by the Commission, Disclosure Statements with their local board secretaries or charter school designees, and must do so on or before April 30th of each year. In addition, all newly elected board members or board members appointed to fill vacancies, newly appointed members of a board of trustees of a charter school, and administrators appointed to fill a vacancy must file their Disclosure Statements within thirty (30) days of appointment or taking office. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(c), N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(d), N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(e), and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(f).

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission (e-mail) only.

When it is determined that a school official's otherwise timely filed Disclosure Statements are incomplete, the filing shall be returned to the school official, and she shall have twenty (20) days from receipt of the returned filing to complete the Disclosure Statements, and to resubmit them to the local board secretary or charter school designee. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.4(a). At the expiration of the twenty (20) days, or upon receipt of a filing which continues to fail to provide the information required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25 and/or N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, the Commission shall issue an Order to Show Cause, directing the school official to show cause as to why the Commission should not impose a sanction. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.4(b). If the school official fails to submit a response within twenty (20) days, or if the response is returned indicating that the school official refuses to properly file, the "Commission may conclude that a school official's incomplete filing is in effect a failure to file and the Commission shall proceed ... pursuant to the procedures set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3." As set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a), failure to timely file the required Disclosure Statements "shall constitute a violation of the ... Act and may result in the reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of a school official pursuant to the recommendation of the Commission as acted upon by the Commissioner [of Education]." N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a).

With the above in mind, Respondent is a returning school official and, therefore, was required to file complete Disclosure Statements by April 30, 2021. Although Respondent filed Disclosure Statements on June 22, 2021, her filing was rejected. Even though Respondent received reminders as further detailed below, Respondent failed to file complete Disclosure Statements as required by law.

More specifically, throughout the months of June and early July, the Commission's staff sent repeated messages to the Board Secretary advising that Respondent had not yet filed complete Disclosure Statements. The electronic correspondence to the Board Secretary further advised that if Respondent failed to file complete Disclosure Statements, the Commission had the authority to issue an OTSC, find Respondent in violation of the Act, and recommend a penalty up to and including removal for non-compliance.

In addition, by electronic correspondence dated July 19, 2021, July 21, 2021, and July 23, 2021, Respondent was reminded that she did not file complete Disclosure Statements. Respondent was further advised that continued failure to file complete Disclosure Statements would result in the Commission issuing an OTSC, and recommending a penalty, up to and including removal.

When Respondent failed to file complete Disclosure Statements as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1, an OTSC was issued by the Commission at its meeting on July 27, 2021. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent still failed to file complete Disclosure Statements, or to otherwise respond to the OTSC.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

Based on the record as set forth above, and at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1 because she did not file complete Disclosure Statements.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that Disclosure Statements are filed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to nine (9) school officials throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to file Disclosure Statements. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, it may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed on the school official. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of removal, with such removal to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education. However, if Respondent files Disclosure Statements before the Commissioner of Education adopts a final decision (which will be forty-five (45) days after the mailing date of the within decision), then the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education, in lieu of removal, impose a sixty (60) day suspension, with such suspension to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education. The Commission is recommended a longer period of suspension due to the fact that Respondent was previously reprimanded in connection with I/M/O Jennifer Metzger, Franklin Township Board of Education, Gloucester County (Docket No. T21-19).

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended penalty of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[2] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (schoolethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's brief on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Andrea Maldonado, Jersey City Board of Education,
Hudson County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely file Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements ("Disclosure Statements") in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of censure.[1] Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty, nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "school official" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act for failing to file Personal/Relative and Financial Disclosure Statements (Disclosure Statements) as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1.

In the OTSC that was served on July 27, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised Respondent that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when the material facts, as here, are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and local school administrators. By virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees and administrators.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(a), all school officials must file, on forms prescribed by the Commission, Disclosure Statements with their local board secretaries or charter school designees, and must do so on or before April 30th of each year. In addition, all newly elected board members or board members appointed to fill vacancies, newly appointed members of a board of trustees of a charter school, and administrators appointed to fill a vacancy must file their Disclosure Statements within thirty (30) days of appointment or taking office. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(c), N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(d), N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(e), and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1(f).

If a school official fails to file the required Disclosure Statements, the Commission is authorized, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(b), to issue an Order to Show Cause. Moreover, failure to timely file the required Disclosure Statements "shall constitute a violation of the ... Act and may result in the reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of a school official pursuant to the recommendation of the Commission as acted upon by the Commissioner [of Education]." N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a).

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission (e-mail) only.

With the above in mind, Respondent is a returning school official and, therefore, was required to file Disclosure Statements by April 30, 2021. Despite this fact, and even though Respondent received reminders as further detailed below, Respondent failed to file Disclosure Statements within the statutorily required timeframe.

More specifically, throughout the months of June and early July, the Commission's staff sent repeated messages to the Board Secretary advising that Respondent had not yet filed Disclosure Statements. The electronic correspondence to the Board Secretary further advised that if Respondent failed to file Disclosure Statements, the Commission had the authority to issue an OTSC, find Respondent in violation of the Act, and recommend a penalty up to and including removal for non-compliance.

In addition, by electronic correspondence dated July 19, 2021, July 21, and July 23, 2021, Respondent was reminded that her Disclosure Statements had not yet been filed. Respondent was further advised that continued failure to file Disclosure Statements would result in the Commission issuing an OTSC, and recommending a penalty, up to and including removal.

When Respondent failed to file Disclosure Statements as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1, an OTSC was issued by the Commission at its meeting on July 27, 2021. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent still failed to file Disclosure Statements, or to otherwise respond to the OTSC.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

Based on the record as set forth above, and at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-25, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-26, and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.1 because she did not timely file Disclosure Statements.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that Disclosure Statements are filed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to nine (9) school officials throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to file Disclosure Statements. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, it may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed on the school official. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-3.3(a); N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of censure.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended penalty of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[2] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's brief on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Annette Beasley,
Irvington Board of Education,
Essex County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC advises that respondent completed training after the issuance of its Order to Show Cause. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

---

I/M/O Annette Beasley,
Irvington Board of Education, Essex County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, and also served on July 27, 2021, via electronic mail.[1] The OTSC directed Annette Beasley (Respondent), a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1.

In the OTSC served on July 27, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC. Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and local school administrators. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 require every board member to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA).

Respondent is a member of the Irvington Board of Education (Board), located in Essex County. As a result of her position on the Board, and in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, Respondent is required to complete a mandated training program on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any board member may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 2 training program by March 31, 2021.[2]

On or about May 17, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those board of education members who failed to complete mandated training by March 31, 2021, and the list provided included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or Business Administrator about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In light of Respondent's failure to complete mandated training, an OTSC was issued by the Commission, and served on Respondent, via electronic mail, on July 27, 2021.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete her required training by March 31, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent completed her training requirement on August 9, 2021. In correspondence to the SEC, Respondent stated, "My failure to complete [training] was simply an oversight ... There was never any ill intent to disregard the training requirement ... With all that has been going on with the COVID 19 [p]andemic, it was simply an oversight."

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. Respondent received repeated notifications of her training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, she failed to complete training as required. Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to three (3) board of education members (April election) throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of reprimand.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Docket No.: T02-21
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

---

I/M/O Marcos Garciga,
Cliffside Park Board of Education, Bergen County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, and also served on July 27, 2021, via electronic mail.[1] The OTSC directed Marcos Garciga (Respondent), a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1.

In the OTSC served on July 27, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC. Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and local school administrators. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 require every board member to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA).

Respondent is a member of the Cliffside Park Board of Education (Board), located in Bergen County. As a result of his position on the Board, and in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, Respondent is required to complete a mandated training program on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any board member may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 3 training program by March 31, 2021.[2]

On or about May 17, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those board of education members who failed to complete mandated training by March 31, 2021, and the list provided included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the Business Administrator about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In light of Respondent's failure to complete mandated training, an OTSC was issued by the Commission, and served on Respondent, via electronic mail, on July 27, 2021.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete his required training by March 31, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent completed his training requirement on July 30, 2021, but did not respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why he did not complete training by March 31, 2021.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. Respondent received repeated notifications of his training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, he failed to complete training as required. Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to three (3) board of education members (April election) throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of reprimand.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Letizia Pantoliano, Cliffside Park Board of Education,
Bergen County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC advises that respondent completed training after the issuance of its Order to Show Cause. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Docket No.: T05-21
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

---

I/M/O Letizia Pantoliano,
Cliffside Park Board of Education, Bergen County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, and also served on July 27, 2021, via electronic mail.[1] The OTSC directed Letizia Pantoliano (Respondent), a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1.

In the OTSC served on July 27, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC. Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and local school administrators. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 require every board member to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA).

Respondent is a member of the Cliffside Park Board of Education (Board), located in Bergen County. As a result of her position on the Board, and in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, Respondent is required to complete a mandated training program on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any board member may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 2 training program by March 31, 2021.[2]

On or about May 17, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those board of education members who failed to complete mandated training by March 31, 2021, and the list provided included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or Business Administrator about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In light of Respondent's failure to complete mandated training, an OTSC was issued by the Commission, and served on Respondent, via electronic mail, on July 27, 2021.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete her required training by March 31, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent completed her training requirement on August 24, 2021. In correspondence to the Commission following the issuance of the OTSC, Respondent advised that she had been having ongoing technical issues, specifically, "The web-site continues to be a challenge," and "I have been trying many times in many ways for many months."

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. Respondent received repeated notifications of her training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, she failed to complete training as required. Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to three (3) board of education members (April election) throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of reprimand.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Neil Abadie,
Learning Community Charter School,
Hudson County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Ultimately, respondent completed the training after the SEC's August 30, 2021 decision. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law.

Accordingly, as of the date of this decision, respondent is hereby suspended from the board for 30 days for violating the School Ethics Act.

Docket No.: T06-21
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

I/M/O Neil Abadie,
Learning Community Charter School, Hudson County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of *N.J.S.A.*18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of the Learning Community Charter School, located in Hudson County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of his position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 1 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete his required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent failed to respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why he did not complete training by June 30, 2021, and also failed to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of his training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, he failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of removal, with such removal to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education. However, if Respondent completes training before the Commissioner of Education adopts a final decision (which will be forty-five (45) days after the mailing date of the within decision), then the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education, in lieu of removal, impose a thirty (30) day suspension, with such suspension to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Adrienne Doyle,
River Edge Board of Education, Bergen County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law. Accordingly, as of the date of this decision, respondent is hereby removed from the board for violating the School Ethics Act.

Docket No.: T07-20
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

---

I/M/O Adrienne Doyle,
River Edge Board of Education, Bergen County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, and also served on July 27, 2021, via electronic mail.[1] The OTSC directed Adrienne Doyle (Respondent), a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1.

In the OTSC served on July 27, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC. Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and local school administrators. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 require every board member to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA).

Respondent is a member of the River Edge Board of Education (Board), located in Bergen County. As a result of her position on the Board, and in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, Respondent is required to complete a mandated training program on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any board member may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 2 training program by December 31, 2020.

On or about May 17, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those board of education members who failed to complete mandated training by December 31, 2020, and the list provided included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the Business Administrator about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communication efforts undertaken by the NJSBA, the Bergen County Office of Education (County) also communicated with the Respondent regarding her failure to complete the mandated training requirement. More specifically, in mid-May 2021, the Commission's staff notified the County that Respondent was identified as a school official who failed to complete training by December 31, 2020. As a result, the County sent correspondence to Respondent, with a copy to the Business Administrator, advising that Respondent remained delinquent in completing training. Notwithstanding this correspondence from the County, Respondent did not complete training as directed.

As a final warning, the Commission sent a letter to Respondent dated June 10, 2021, via electronic mail, advising her that the Commission requires completion of the training to avoid the issuance of an OTSC for non-compliance. This final warning letter provided instructions to Respondent on how to complete training. Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was served on Respondent, via electronic mail, on July 27, 2021.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete her required training by December 31, 2020, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent failed to respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why she did not complete training by December 31, 2020, and also failed to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. Respondent received repeated notifications of her training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, she failed to complete training as required. Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to five (5) board of education members throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of removal, with such removal to become effective immediately upon issuance of the Commissioner of Education's decision. However, if Respondent completes training before the Commissioner of Education adopts a final decision (which will be forty-five (45) days after the mailing date of the within decision), then the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education, in lieu of removal, impose a thirty (30) day suspension, with such suspension to become effective immediately upon issuance of the Commissioner of Education's decision.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[2] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

In the Matter of Adrienne Doyle,
River Edge Board of Education, Bergen County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Respondent neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

The Commissioner issued a decision on October 14, 2021, removing respondent from the board. Respondent filed a motion for reconsideration, in which she indicated that she had not received notifications from the SEC. Because respondent therefore did not have an opportunity to respond to the SEC's Order to Show Cause or decision, the Commissioner granted the motion for reconsideration. Respondent subsequently notified the Department of Education that her term expired on December 31, 2021. Respondent did not complete the required training.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the SEC's conclusion that respondent failed to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law. Because respondent is no longer a member of the Board, the penalty that may be imposed is limited to censure. Accordingly, respondent is hereby censured for violating the School Ethics Act.

Docket No.: T09-20
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

---

I/M/O Colm Fidgeon,
Somerdale Board of Education, Camden County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, and also served on July 27, 2021, via electronic mail.[1] The OTSC directed Colm Fidgeon (Respondent), a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1.

In the OTSC served on July 27, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC. Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and local school administrators. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 require every board member to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA).

Respondent is a member of the Somerdale Board of Education (Board), located in Camden County. As a result of his position on the Board, and in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, Respondent is required to complete a mandated training program on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any board member may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 4 training program by December 31, 2020.

On or about May 17, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those board of education members who failed to complete mandated training by December 31, 2020, and the list provided included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the Business Administrator about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communication efforts undertaken by the NJSBA, the Camden County Office of Education (County) also communicated with the Respondent regarding his failure to complete the mandated training requirement. More specifically, in mid-May 2021, the Commission's staff notified the County that Respondent was identified as a school official who failed to complete training by December 31, 2020. As a result, the County sent correspondence to Respondent, with a copy to the Business Administrator, advising that Respondent remained delinquent in completing training. Notwithstanding this correspondence from the County, Respondent did not complete training as directed.

As a final warning, the Commission sent a letter to Respondent dated June 10, 2021, via electronic mail, advising him that the Commission requires completion of the training to avoid the issuance of an OTSC for non-compliance. This final warning letter provided instructions to Respondent on how to complete training. Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was served on Respondent, via electronic mail, on July 27, 2021.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete his required training by December 31, 2020, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent failed to respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why he did not complete training by December 31, 2020, and also failed to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. Respondent received repeated notifications of his training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, he failed to complete training as required. Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to five (5) board of education members throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of removal, with such removal to become effective immediately upon issuance of the Commissioner of Education's decision. However, if Respondent completes training before the Commissioner of Education adopts a final decision (which will be forty-five (45) days after the mailing date of the within decision), then the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education, in lieu of removal, impose a thirty (30) day suspension, with such suspension to become effective immediately upon issuance of the Commissioner of Education's decision.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[2] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

I, Vincent DeLucia, of full age hereby certify as follows:

1. I am an employee of the New Jersey School Boards Association and the Director of Training/Educator in Residence. I am responsible for working with NJSBA staff to assure accuracy of board of education member and charter school trustee mandatory training records.

2. As part of my responsibilities, I assure the accuracy of the reports given to the New Jersey School Ethics Commission (NJSEC) regarding board of education members and charter trustees who do not complete the annual mandatory training.

3. On July 1, 2021, NJSBA delivered the Report of school board members who are elected in November of each year who had not completed their mandated training for year 2020 to the NJSEC, due by December 31, 2020.

4. Prior to preparing the July 1, 2021 report, NJSBA communicated with district Business Administrators (BAs) about mandated training through an email on December 8, 2020, December 18, 2020, December 22, 2020, February 23, 2021, March 4, 2021, April 16, 2021 and April 22, 2021.

5. Prior to preparing the July 1, 2021 report, NJSBA communicated with school board members about mandated training through an email to all board members to those out of compliance on November 18, 2020, December 7, 2020, December 16, 2020, December 24, 2020, January 22, 2021, February 10, 2021, March 4, 2021, March 24, 2021, April 15, 2021 and April 22, 2021.

6. On March 11, 2020, Colm Fidgeon was registered to take Governance 4 training and an email with the link was sent to their registered email address. An additional email was sent to all board members about mandated training on November 18, 2020.

7. On December 7, 2020, NJSBA sent an email to Colm Fidgeon, a board member of the Somerdale Board of Education, advising that they had not completed Governance 4 for 2020 and provided a link to the online training module.

8. An additional notice was sent to the Somerdale Board of Education Business Administrator on December 8, 2020, December 18, 2020, December 22, 2020, February 23, 2021, March 4, 2021, April 16, 2021 and April 22, 2021, advising that Colm Fidgeon had not completed the Governance 4 training. Phone calls were also made the week of April 8th, 2021.

9. On March 4, 2021, March 24, 2021, April 15, 2021, and April 22, 2021 NJSBA communicated through email with Colm Fidgeon with the link and instructions for completing Governance 4. Phone calls were also made the week of April 28th, 2021.

10. All members and Business Administrators received information about mandated training requirements in the weekly update on December 15, 2020, January 4, 2021, January 11, 2021, January 18, 2021, January 25, 2021, February 1, 2021, February 8, 2021, February 15, 2021, February 22, 2021, March 1, 2021, March 8, 2021, March 19, 2021, April 12, 2021, April 19, 2021, May 3, 2021, May 17, 2021, June 7, 2021, June 14, 2021, June 21, 2021, and July 12, 2021.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

In the Matter of Keith Davis,
Dr. Lena Edwards Academic Charter School,
Hudson County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC advises that respondent completed training after the issuance of its Order to Show Cause. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[1]

Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

I/M/O Keith Davis,
Dr. Lena Edwards Academic Charter School, Hudson County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of *N.J.S.A.*18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of the Dr. Lena Edwards Academic Charter School, located in Hudson County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of his position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 1 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by

---

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission only.

the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete his required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent completed his training requirement on July 29, 2021, but did not respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why he did not complete training by June 30, 2021.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of his training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, he failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

[2] Again, due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, this communication was also sent via electronic transmission.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

In the Matter of Gary Yedman,
Seaside Park Board of Education,
Ocean County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC advises that respondent completed training after the issuance of its Order to Show Cause. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law. Accordingly, respondent is hereby reprimanded for violating the School Ethics Act.

Docket No.: T10-20
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

I/M/O Gary Yedman,
Seaside Park Board of Education, Ocean County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, and also served on July 27, 2021, via electronic mail.[1] The OTSC directed Gary Yedman (Respondent), a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1.

In the OTSC served on July 27, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC. Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and local school administrators. N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 require every board member to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA).

Respondent is a member of the Seaside Park Board of Education (Board), located in Ocean County. As a result of his position on the Board, and in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, Respondent is required to complete a mandated training program on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any board member may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 4 training program by December 31, 2020.

On or about May 17, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those board of education members who failed to complete mandated training by December 31, 2020, and the list provided included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the Business Administrator about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communication efforts undertaken by the NJSBA, the Ocean County Office of Education (County) also communicated with the Respondent regarding his failure to complete the mandated training requirement. More specifically, in mid-May 2021, the Commission's staff notified the County that Respondent was identified as a school official who failed to complete training by December 31, 2020. As a result, the County sent correspondence to Respondent, with a copy to the Business Administrator, advising that Respondent remained delinquent in completing training. Notwithstanding this correspondence from the County, Respondent did not complete training as directed.

As a final warning, the Commission sent a letter to Respondent dated June 10, 2021, via electronic mail, advising him that the Commission requires completion of the training to avoid the issuance of an OTSC for non-compliance. This final warning letter provided instructions to Respondent on how to complete training. Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was served on Respondent, via electronic mail, on July 27, 2021.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete his required training by December 31, 2020, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent completed his training requirement on July 29, 2021, but did not respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why he did not complete training by December 31, 2020.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. Respondent received repeated notifications of his training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, he failed to complete training as required. Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to five (5) board of education members throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of reprimand.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[2] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Joseph DiFeo,
Dr. Lena Edwards Academic Charter School,
Hudson County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC advises that respondent completed training after the issuance of its Order to Show Cause. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law. Accordingly, respondent is hereby reprimanded for violating the School Ethics Act.

I/M/O Joseph DiFeo,
Dr. Lena Edwards Academic Charter School, Hudson County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of *N.J.S.A.*18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of the Dr. Lena Edwards Academic Charter School, located in Hudson County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of his position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 4 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete his required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent completed his training requirement on August 16, 2021, but did not respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why he did not complete training by June 30, 2021.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of his training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, he failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

[2] Again, due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, this communication was also sent via electronic transmission.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Leah Fabian,
The John P. Holland Charter School,
Passaic County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC advises that respondent completed training after the issuance of its Order to Show Cause. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

I/M/O Leah Fabian,
The John P. Holland Charter School, Passaic County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of The John P. Holland Charter School, located in Passaic County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of her position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 1 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by

---

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission only.

the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete her required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent completed her training requirement on August 4, 2021, but did not respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why she did not complete training by June 30, 2021.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of her training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, she failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

[2] Again, due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, this communication was also sent via electronic transmission.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Karen Flores,
Red Bank Charter School,
Monmouth County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Ultimately, respondent completed the training after the SEC's August 30, 2021 decision. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law.

Accordingly, as of the date of this decision, respondent is hereby suspended from the board for 30 days for violating the School Ethics Act.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Tracye Gilliam,
The Pace Charter School,
Mercer County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act (the Act) for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Docket No.: T13-21
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

---

I/M/O Tracye Gilliam,
The Pace Charter School, Mercer County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of *N.J.S.A.*18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of The Pace Charter School, located in Mercer County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of her position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 1 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by

---

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission only.

the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete her required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent failed to respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why she did not complete training by June 30, 2021, and also failed to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of her training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, she failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of removal, with such removal to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education. However, if Respondent completes training before the Commissioner of Education adopts a final decision (which will be forty-five (45) days after the mailing date of the within decision), then the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education, in lieu of removal, impose a thirty (30) day suspension, with such suspension to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Charles Hall,
The Gray Charter School,
Essex County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Ultimately, respondent completed the training after the SEC's August 30, 2021 decision. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law.

Accordingly, as of the date of this decision, respondent is suspended from the board for 30 days for violating the School Ethics Act.

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Final Decision

In the Matter of Lori Henderson-Manning,
Bergen Arts and Science Charter School,
Bergen County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC advises that respondent completed training after the issuance of its Order to Show Cause. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Docket No.: T16-21
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

I/M/O Lori Henderson-Manning,
Bergen Arts and Science Charter School, Bergen County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of *N.J.S.A.*18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of the Bergen Arts and Science Charter School, located in Bergen County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of her position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 4 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by

---

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission only.

the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete her required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent completed her training requirement on July 31, 2021, but did not respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why she did not complete training by June 30, 2021.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of her training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, she failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

[2] Again, due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, this communication was also sent via electronic transmission.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Tamour Kousha,
Community Charter School of Paterson,
Passaic County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act (the Act) for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law. Accordingly, as of the date of this decision, respondent is hereby removed from the board for violating the Act.

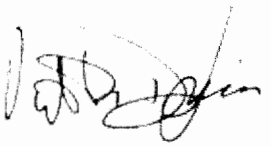
3. On July 1, 2021, NJSBA delivered the Report of charter school trustees who had not completed their mandated training for year 2020-2021 to the NJSEC, due by June 30, 2021.

4. Prior to preparing the July 1, 2021 report, NJSBA communicated with district Business Administrators (BAs) and charter school trustees about mandated training through an email to all charter school trustees and BAs on June 11, 2021, June 17, 2021, June 28, 2021, July 7, 2021, and July 15, 2021.



5. Tamour Kousha has not been registered to take Governance 4 training.

6. An additional notice was sent to the Community Charter School of Paterson Business Administrator on June 11, 2021, June 28, 2021, July 7, 2021, and July 15, 2021 advising that Tamour Kousha had not completed the Governance 4 training.

7. On June 17, 2021, June 28, 2021, July 7, 2021 and July 15, 2021, NJSBA communicated through email with Tamour Kousha with the link and instructions for completing Governance 4.

8. All charter members received information about mandated training requirements in the weekly update on December 15, 2020, January 4, 2021, January 11, 2021, January 18, 2021, January 25, 2021, February 1, 2021, February 8, 2021, February 15, 2021, February 22, 2021, March 1, 2021, March 8, 2021, March 19, 2021, April 12, 2021, April 19, 2021, May 3, 2021, May 17, 2021, June 7, 2021, June 14, 2021, June 21, 2021, and July 12, 2021.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Jacquelyn Lake,
The Gray Charter School,
Essex County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act (the Act) for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Docket No.: T20-21
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

I/M/O Jacquelyn Lake,
The Gray Charter School, Essex County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of *N.J.S.A.*18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of the Gray Charter School, located in Essex County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of her position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 2 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by

---

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission only.

the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete her required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent failed to respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why she did not complete training by June 30, 2021, and also failed to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of her training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, she failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of removal, with such removal to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education. However, if Respondent completes training before the Commissioner of Education adopts a final decision (which will be forty-five (45) days after the mailing date of the within decision), then the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education, in lieu of removal, impose a thirty (30) day suspension, with such suspension to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. of Education adopts a final decision (which will be forty-five (45) days after the mailing date of the within decision), then the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education, in lieu of removal, impose a thirty (30) day suspension, with such suspension to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Minzhi Liu,
Princeton Charter School,
Mercer County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act (the Act) for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Docket No.: T23-21
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

---

I/M/O Minzhi Liu,
Princeton Charter School, Mercer County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of *N.J.S.A.*18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of the Princeton Charter School, located in Mercer County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of her position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 1 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by

---

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission only.

the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete her required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent failed to respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why she did not complete training by June 30, 2021, and also failed to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of her training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, she failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of removal, with such removal to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education. However, if Respondent completes training before the Commissioner of Education adopts a final decision (which will be forty-five (45) days after the mailing date of the within decision), then the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education, in lieu of removal, impose a thirty (30) day suspension, with such suspension to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Minzhi Liu,
Princeton Charter School,
Mercer County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Respondent neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

The Commissioner issued a decision on October 14, 2021, removing respondent from the board. Respondent filed a motion for reconsideration, in which she indicated that she had not received notifications from the SEC. Because respondent did not therefore have an opportunity to respond to the SEC's Order to Show Cause or the subsequent decision, the Commissioner granted the respondent's motion for reconsideration. Respondent's motion also indicated that she had completed the required training, which was confirmed by the SEC.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law. Accordingly, respondent is suspended from the board for 30 days for violating the School Ethics Act. Because respondent has not acted as a member of the board since the issuance of the prior decision on October 14, 2021, and more than 30 days have passed since that date, the Commissioner deems respondent's 30-day suspension to have been previously served. Respondent may resume the duties of a member of the board immediately.

Docket No.: T24-21
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

---

I/M/O Felise Matlock-Brown,
Englewood on the Palisades Charter School, Bergen County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of *N.J.S.A.*18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of the Englewood on the Palisades Charter School, located in Bergen County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of her position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 3 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by

the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete her required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent completed her training requirement on July 30, 2021, but did not respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why she did not complete training by June 30, 2021.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of her training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, she failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

[2] Again, due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, this communication was also sent via electronic transmission.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Mayokun Oshin,
Achievers Early College Prep Charter School,
Mercer County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC advises that respondent completed training after the issuance of its Order to Show Cause. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

I/M/O Mayokun Oshin,
Achievers Early College Prep Charter School, Mercer County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of *N.J.S.A.*18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of the Achievers Early College Prep Charter School, located in Mercer County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of his position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 2 training program by June 30, 2021.

the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete his required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent completed his training requirement on July 30, 2021, but did not respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why he did not complete training by June 30, 2021.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of his training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, he failed to complete training as required.

As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of reprimand.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Respondent is a trustee of the Soaring Heights Charter School, located in Hudson County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of her position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 2 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by

the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete her required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent completed her training requirement on August 12, 2021, but did not respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why she did not complete training by June 30, 2021.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of her training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, she failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

[2] Again, due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, this communication was also sent via electronic transmission.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Nikil Puri,
Learning Community Charter School,
Hudson County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC advises that respondent completed training after the issuance of its Order to Show Cause. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law. Accordingly, respondent is hereby reprimanded for violating the School Ethics Act.

Learning Community Charter School, Hudson County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of the Learning Community Charter School, located in Hudson County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of his position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. the NJSBA included Respondent. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete his required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent completed his training requirement on August 1, 2021, but did not respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why he did not complete training by June 30, 2021.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. Final Decision

In the Matter of Elizabeth Rainey-Goka,
University Heights Charter School,
Essex County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act (the Act) for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law. Accordingly, as of the date of this decision, respondent is hereby removed from the board for violating the Act.

Respondent is a trustee of the University Heights Charter School, located in Essex County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of her position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 3 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete her required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent failed to respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why she did not complete training by June 30, 2021, and also failed to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of her training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, she failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of removal, with such removal to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education. However, if Respondent completes training before the Commissioner of Education adopts a final decision (which will be forty-five (45) days after the mailing date of the within decision), then the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education, in lieu of removal, impose a thirty (30) day suspension, with such suspension to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

SEC Dkt. No. T31-21
Agency Dkt. No. 165-8/21

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

In the Matter of Elizabeth Rainey-Goka,
University Heights Charter School,
Essex County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Respondent neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

The Commissioner issued a decision on October 14, 2021, removing respondent from the board. Respondent filed a motion for reconsideration, in which she indicated that she had not received notifications from the SEC. Because respondent did not, therefore, have an opportunity to respond to the SEC's Order to Show Cause or decision, the Commissioner granted the motion for reconsideration. Respondent subsequently completed the required training.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law. Accordingly, respondent is suspended from the board for 30 days for violating the School Ethics Act. Because respondent has not acted as a member of the board since the issuance of the prior decision on October 14, 2021, and more than 30 days have passed since that date, the Commissioner deems respondent's 30-day suspension to have been previously served. Respondent may resume the duties of a member of the board immediately.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Leslie Rosen,
The John P. Holland Charter School,
Passaic County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act (the Act) for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Docket No.: T32-21
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

---

I/M/O Leslie Rosen,
The John P. Holland Charter School, Passaic County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of The John P. Holland Charter School, located in Passaic County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of her position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 2 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by

---

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission only.

the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete her required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent failed to respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why she did not complete training by June 30, 2021, and also failed to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of her training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, she failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of removal, with such removal to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education. However, if Respondent completes training before the Commissioner of Education adopts a final decision (which will be forty-five (45) days after the mailing date of the within decision), then the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education, in lieu of removal, impose a thirty (30) day suspension, with such suspension to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

In the Matter of David Serede Asige, Jersey City Community Charter School,
Hudson County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act (the Act) for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Docket No.: T33-21
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

I/M/O David Serede Asige,
Jersey City Community Charter School, Hudson County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of *N.J.S.A.*18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of the Jersey City Community Charter School, located in Hudson County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of his position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 4 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by

---

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission only.

the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete his required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent failed to respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why he did not complete training by June 30, 2021, and also failed to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of his training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, he failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of removal, with such removal to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education. However, if Respondent completes training before the Commissioner of Education adopts a final decision (which will be forty-five (45) days after the mailing date of the within decision), then the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education, in lieu of removal, impose a thirty (30) day suspension, with such suspension to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC advises that respondent completed training after the issuance of its Order to Show Cause. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete her required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent completed her training requirement on July 28, 2021, but did not respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why she did not complete training by June 30, 2021.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. Final Decision

In the Matter of Tara Tymann,
Learning Community Charter School,
Hudson County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Docket No.: T36-21
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

I/M/O Tara Tymann,
Learning Community Charter School, Hudson County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of the Learning Community Charter School, located in Hudson County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of her position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 1 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by

---

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission only.

the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete her required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent failed to respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why she did not complete training by June 30, 2021, and also failed to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of her training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, she failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of removal, with such removal to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education. However, if Respondent completes training before the Commissioner of Education adopts a final decision (which will be forty-five (45) days after the mailing date of the within decision), then the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education, in lieu of removal, impose a thirty (30) day suspension, with such suspension to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (schoolethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Lily Zou,
Princeton Charter School,
Mercer County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act (the Act) for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC recommended a sanction of removal effective upon the adoption of the decision by the Commissioner. Alternatively, if the respondent completed the required training before the issuance of the Commissioner's final decision, the SEC recommended that respondent be suspended for 30 days. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law. Accordingly, as of the date of this decision, respondent is hereby removed from the board for violating the Act.

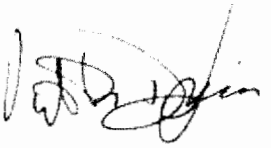
3. On July 1, 2021, NJSBA delivered the Report of charter school trustees who had not completed their mandated training for year 2020-2021 to the NJSEC, due by June 30, 2021.

4. Prior to preparing the July 1, 2021 report, NJSBA communicated with district Business Administrators (BAs) and charter school trustees about mandated training through an email to all charter school trustees and BAs on June 11, 2021, June 17, 2021, June 28, 2021, July 7, 2021, and July 15, 2021.



5. On July 28, 2021, Lily Zou was registered to take Governance 3 training and an email with the link was sent to their registered email address.

6. An additional notice was sent to the Princeton Charter School Business Administrator on June 11, 2021, June 28, 2021, July 7, 2021, and July 15, 2021 advising that Lily Zou had not completed the Governance 3 training.

7. On June 17, 2021, June 28, 2021, July 7, 2021 and July 15, 2021, NJSBA communicated through email with Lily Zou with the link and instructions for completing Governance 3.

8. All charter members received information about mandated training requirements in the weekly update on December 15, 2020, January 4, 2021, January 11, 2021, January 18, 2021, January 25, 2021, February 1, 2021, February 8, 2021, February 15, 2021, February 22, 2021, March 1, 2021, March 8, 2021, March 19, 2021, April 12, 2021, April 19, 2021, May 3, 2021, May 17, 2021, June 7, 2021, June 14, 2021, June 21, 2021, and July 12, 2021.

9. Lily Zou did not complete Governance 3 training.

Resolution Adopting Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner
Docket No.: T39-21

Whereas, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, all charter school trustees, including Respondent, are subject to the provisions of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq.; and

Whereas, Lily Zou (Respondent) is a charter school trustee of the Princeton Charter School; and

Whereas, the Act requires Respondent to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis; and

Whereas, Respondent failed to complete her Governance 3 training program by June 30, 2021; and

Whereas, at its meeting on July 27, 2021, the School Ethics Commission (Commission) issued an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) directing Respondent to show cause as to why she failed to complete her mandatory training by June 30, 2021, as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a); and

Final Decision

In the Matter of Lily Zou,
Princeton Charter School,
Mercer County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act (the Act) for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. Subsequent to the issuance of the SEC's decision, the Commissioner received information demonstrating that respondent has not been a member of the Board of Trustees of the Princeton Charter School since 2019. Accordingly, respondent was not required to complete board member training in 2021. Therefore, the Commissioner concludes that respondent has not violated the School Ethics Act. The decision of the SEC is hereby reversed; and therefore, no penalty is imposed.

Docket No.: T39-21
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

---

I/M/O Lily Zou,
Princeton Charter School, Mercer County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find her in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that she had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of *N.J.S.A.*18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of the Princeton Charter School, located in Mercer County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of her position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 3 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by

the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete her required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent failed to respond to the Commission's OTSC as to why she did not complete training by June 30, 2021, and also failed to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of her training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, she failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of removal, with such removal to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education. However, if Respondent completes training before the Commissioner of Education adopts a final decision (which will be forty-five (45) days after the mailing date of the within decision), then the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education, in lieu of removal, impose a thirty (30) day suspension, with such suspension to become effective immediately upon adoption by the Commissioner of Education.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

Final Decision

In the Matter of Roger Lai,
Environment Community Opportunity
Charter School, Camden County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC advises that respondent completed training after the issuance of its Order to Show Cause. Respondent filed exceptions to the recommended penalty, indicating that he relied on information from the school business administrator that his required training has been completed and that he then completed the training immediately upon receiving the Order to Show Cause and realizing that that information was mistaken. Respondent further indicates that he does not dispute that he failed to complete the training by the deadline but asks the Commissioner to reconsider the sanction.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the penalty recommended by the SEC for respondent's failure to timely honor an obligation placed upon board members by law. Respondent's exceptions do not provide a basis for modifying the recommended penalty when respondent does not dispute that he failed to complete the training in a timely manner. Accordingly, respondent is hereby reprimanded for violating the School Ethics Act.

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of *N.J.S.A.*18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of the Environment Community Opportunity Charter School, located in Camden County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of his position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 3 training program by June 30, 2021.

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission only.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete his required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. After having been served with the OTSC, Respondent completed his training requirement on July 28, 2021.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of his training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, he failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

[2] Again, due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, this communication was also sent via electronic transmission.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

In the Matter of Sam Mikhail, Beloved Community Charter School,
Hudson County.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this matter and the decision of the School Ethics Commission (SEC), finding that respondent violated the School Ethics Act for failure to timely complete board member training in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33 and N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1. The SEC's decision was forwarded to the Commissioner for final determination on the recommended penalty pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c). The SEC advises that respondent completed training after the issuance of its Order to Show Cause. Respondent has neither filed exceptions to the recommended penalty nor instituted an appeal of the SEC's underlying finding of violation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-1 et seq.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[1]

Docket No.: T26-21
Decision for Failure to Complete Mandatory Training Requirement in a Timely Manner

---

I/M/O Sam Mikhail,
Beloved Community Charter School, Hudson County

I. Procedural History

This matter arises from an Order to Show Cause (OTSC) that was issued by the School Ethics Commission (Commission) at its meeting on July 27, 2021, directing Respondent, a "board member" as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23 of the School Ethics Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21 et seq., to show cause as to why the Commission should not find him in violation of the Act, for failing to complete training as required by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a).

In the OTSC that was served on July 28, 2021, the Commission notified Respondent that he had twenty (20) days to respond to the OTSC, and further advised that failure to respond would be deemed an admission of the facts set forth in the OTSC.[1] Respondent was also notified that, upon receipt of the response or upon expiration of the twenty (20) day time period for so filing, the Commission may proceed to a determination of a violation on a summary basis (i.e., without a hearing or further proceedings) in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:28-1.6(c), which so permits when material facts are not in dispute.

II. Analysis

The Act was enacted by the New Jersey State Legislature to ensure and preserve public confidence in members of local boards of education and in local school administrators. By virtue of *N.J.S.A.*18A:12-23.1, the breadth of the Act was expanded to include charter school trustees.

Respondent is a trustee of the Beloved Community Charter School, located in Hudson County. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-23.1, the provisions of the Act were made applicable to administrators and members of a board of trustees of a charter school. As a result of his position as a charter school trustee, Respondent is required, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a), to complete a training program prepared and offered by the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA) on an annual basis. For convenience and ease, the training is offered online so any charter school trustee may complete it at any time, from anywhere. Respondent was required to complete the Governance 2 training program by June 30, 2021.

On July 1, 2021, the NJSBA provided the Commission with the names of those charter school trustees who failed to complete mandated training by June 30, 2021, and the list provided by

---

[1] Due to the ongoing Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, service of process was effectuated by the Commission through electronic transmission only.

the NJSBA included Respondent. Prior to this time, multiple communications about mandated training were sent to Respondent from the NJSBA through a variety of means, including targeted e-mail messages and postings in School Board Notes. More specific information detailing the outreach efforts of the NJSBA to communicate with Respondent and/or the charter school lead about mandated training is set forth in the attached Certification from the NJSBA. See Exhibit 1. Notwithstanding all of these communications, Respondent did not complete mandated training.

In addition to the communications from the NJSBA, the Commission's staff also sent electronic correspondence to all charter school leads on July 2, 2021, and July 21, 2021, advising that charter school trustees who failed to complete training prior to the Commission's meeting on July 27, 2021, would be the subject of an Order to Show Cause.[2] Again, notwithstanding this correspondence, Respondent did not complete the required training. As a result, an OTSC was issued by the Commission on July 27, 2021, and served on Respondent thereafter.

To date, there is no dispute that Respondent did not complete his required training by June 30, 2021, and did not complete the training prior to the issuance of the Commission's OTSC. However, after being served with the OTSC, Respondent did complete training on July 29, 2021. In addition, in correspondence to the Commission thereafter, Respondent stated, "Unfortunately, I was unable to complete my second year training by June 30, 2021. As with many others in the State, the COVID-19 pandemic had a significant impact on my family. In addition to my professional obligations, I invested so much time in my family's health and well-being and I lost focus on my training obligation." Of importance, Respondent did not deny that he did not complete training in a timely fashion.

III. Decision/Penalty Recommendation

N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.2(d) provides that school board members and charter school trustees who fail to comply with their training mandate shall be considered in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33. Based on the record as set forth above, at its special meeting on August 30, 2021, the Commission found that Respondent violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-33, as well as N.J.A.C. 6A:28-4.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-3.1(a). Respondent received repeated notifications of his training requirement, and had ample opportunity to complete the mandated training in a timely fashion; nonetheless, he failed to complete training as required.

In addition, the Commission readily acknowledges and is sympathetic to the fact that the Coronavirus (COVID-19) has had a significant impact on the daily lives of all people, and believes that reasonable accommodations and extensions of deadlines are appropriate and warranted in certain circumstances. However, the Commission notes that training is completed annually, can be completed from any computer or device with an internet connection, and that the Commission was only required to issue an OTSC to thirty-six (36) charter school trustees throughout the State for failure to comply with the statutory obligation to complete training. As such, there is no reasonable basis for Respondent, based on the current record, to have failed to comply with this mandate.

Where a violation of the Act is found by the Commission, the Commission may recommend to the Commissioner of Education that a penalty be imposed. The recommended penalty can include a reprimand, censure, suspension or removal of the school official. N.J.A.C. 6A:28-10.12. For the reasons set forth above, the Commission recommends that the Commissioner of Education impose a penalty of reprimand.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-29(c), this decision shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Education for review of the Commission's recommended penalty. Respondent may either: 1) file exceptions to the recommended sanction; 2) file an appeal of the Commission's finding of a violation; or 3) file both exceptions to the recommended sanction together with an appeal of the finding of a violation.

Parties taking exception to the recommended sanction of the Commission but not disputing the Commission's finding of a violation may file, within thirteen (13) days from the date the Commission's decision is forwarded to the Commissioner, written exceptions regarding the recommended penalty to the Commissioner. The forwarding date shall be the mailing date to the parties, as indicated below. Such exceptions must be forwarded to: Commissioner of Education, c/o Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Comments on Ethics Commission Sanction."[3] A copy of any comments filed must be sent to the Commission (school.ethics@doe.nj.gov) and all other parties.

Parties seeking to appeal the Commission's finding of violation must file an appeal pursuant to the standards set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:4:1 et seq. within thirty (30) days of the filing date of the decision from which the appeal is taken. The filing date shall be three (3) days after the date of mailing to the parties, as shown below. In such cases, the Commissioner's review of the Commission's recommended sanction will be deferred and incorporated into the Commissioner's review of the finding of violation on appeal. Where a notice of appeal has been filed on or before the due date for exceptions to the Commission's recommended sanction (thirteen (13) days from the date the decision is mailed by the Commission), exceptions need not be filed by that date, but may be incorporated into the appellant's briefs on appeal.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Decision

Board of Education of the Township of Lakewood, Ocean County,

Petitioners,

v.

New Jersey Department of Education, and Kathleen Ehling,

Respondents.

Synopsis

This matter involves the determination of the New Jersey Department of Education (DOE) that the Lakewood Board of Education must set aside 15% of its Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) funding for the 2021-2022 school year for comprehensive coordinated early intervention services (CCEIS) in order to address significant racial disproportionalities with respect to the Board's identification, placement, and discipline of special education students. This determination came after an analysis of data showing that Lakewood had exceeded the 3.0 percent risk ratio threshold set by the DOE for three consecutive years in five different areas. The Board appealed, arguing that in making this determination, DOE failed to include data on Lakewood's large population of private school students and that if required to set aside funds, it should only be required to set aside a percentage of the IDEA funds allocated to public schools. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the DOE complied with the IDEA as written, and the Board's disagreement with the outcome here does not make the DOE's interpretation of the IDEA arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable; the State is not required to consider nonpublic students, so failing to do so is not arbitrary and capricious; in fact, making an exception solely for Lakewood in this matter would be arbitrary and capricious, with no statutory or administrative support for such a decision; the Board does not have authority over the nonpublic schools or their students to the extent necessary to address disproportionate identification, placement, or discipline of disabled students; further, including the large number of white nonpublic students in the calculation may prevent the uncovering of disproportionalities, which is the purpose of the CCEIS funds; and the IDEA does not provide for subdividing the total funding into public and nonpublic allocations when calculating the amount of CCEIS funds to be set aside. The ALJ held that the DOE's determination of a 3.0 percent risk ratio is not arbitrary, as the same ratio is used by 20 other states. The ALJ concluded that while the facts support the Board's claim of the unintended application of the regulation for Lakewood, that conclusion is insufficient to support judicial intervention in the allocation, which is solely at the discretion of the Commissioner. Summary decision was granted in favor of DOE.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusion herein but disagreed that the Commissioner has discretion to reduce the amount of CCEIS funds that the Board is required to set aside. Accordingly, summary decision was granted in favor of the DOE and the petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

New Jersey Commissioner of Education

Final Decision

Board of Education of the Township of Lakewood, Ocean County,

Petitioner,

v.

New Jersey Department of Education, and Kathleen Ehling,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the exceptions filed by the Lakewood Board of Education (Board) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and respondents' reply thereto, have been reviewed and considered.

This matter involves the New Jersey Department of Education's (DOE) determination that the Board must set aside 15% of its Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) funding for the 2021-2022 school year for comprehensive coordinated early intervention services (CCEIS) to address significant racial disproportionalities with respect to the Board's identification, placement, and discipline of special education students. Through a data analysis, the DOE determined that Lakewood exceeded the 3.0 percent risk ratio threshold set by the DOE for three consecutive years in five areas: identification of white students for autism, intellectual disabilities, and all eligibilities; placement of white students in separate settings; and disciplinary removals of Black students. The Board appealed, arguing that the DOE should have included data regarding Lakewood's large population of private school students[1] and that, if required to set aside funds, it should only be required to set aside a percentage of the IDEA funds allocated to public schools.[2]

Following cross-motions for summary decision, the ALJ found that the DOE did not violate the Board's right to procedural due process, as there is no requirement that the DOE provide early notification to a district prior to it being identified as significantly disproportionate, and Lakewood was not entitled to attend the stakeholder meetings held by the DOE as part of setting the risk ratio thresholds. The ALJ also held that the Board does not have any substantive due process rights because, on the facts of this matter, the IDEA does not afford a fundamental due process right to a school district.

The ALJ concluded that the DOE complied with the regulations and requirements of the IDEA as they are written, and while the Board takes issue with the outcome as it applies to their school district, this does not make the DOE's interpretation or application of the IDEA arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. The ALJ found that the State is not required to consider nonpublic students, so failing to do so is not arbitrary and capricious; in fact, the ALJ noted that making an exception solely for Lakewood would be arbitrary and capricious, with no statutory or administrative support for such a decision. The ALJ indicated that the Board does not have authority or control over the nonpublic schools or their students to the extent necessary to address disproportionate identification, placement, or discipline of disabled students; further,

[1] According to the parties' stipulation of facts, more than 85% of the students in Lakewood attend nonpublic schools chosen by their parents, and less than 15% of students attend Lakewood Public Schools. Approximately 7,683 students with disabilities attend nonpublic schools (of whom 99.8% are white), and 1,669 students with disabilities attend public schools (of whom 84% are non-white).

[2] Lakewood IDEA funding for the 2020-2021 school year is $9,619,588. Of those funds, approximately $7.7 million is allocated to nonpublic schools and $1.8 million is allocated to public schools. 15% of the total funding equals $1,442,938. 15% of the public school funding equals approximately $270,000.

including the large number of white nonpublic students in the calculation may prevent the uncovering of disproportionalities, which is the purpose of the CCEIS funds. The ALJ found that the IDEA does not provide for subdividing the total funding into public and nonpublic allocations when calculating the amount of CCEIS funds to be set aside. The ALJ also noted that, while the Board implied that it will be unable to provide a free appropriate public education (FAPE) to its public school students if it is required to set aside 15% of its total IDEA funding, the Board is not prohibited from allocating some of the CCEIS funds toward other students and groups if it is necessary to ensure that all public students are receiving FAPE. The ALJ held that the DOE's determination of a 3.0 percent risk ratio is not arbitrary, noting that the same ratio is used by 20 other states. The ALJ concluded that while the facts support the Board's claim of the unintended application of the regulation for Lakewood, that conclusion is insufficient to support judicial intervention in the allocation.[3]

In its exceptions, the Board argues that it is seeking to have Lakewood treated the same as every other district in New Jersey by having the majority of its entire student population included in the disproportionality calculations. According to the Board, by failing to do so, the DOE is treating Lakewood differently and, therefore, its actions are arbitrary and capricious, as well as a violation of the Board's due process rights. The Board alleges that basing the disproportionality calculations on only 15% of Lakewood's total student population – its public school students – makes the resulting calculations inaccurate and unreliable, and the only way to treat Lakewood fairly is to include nonpublic school students in the calculations.[4]

[3] The ALJ noted that any relief falls in the discretion of the Commissioner.

[4] The Board offers that the formula could be changed for all school districts, and that any impact resulting from the change on other districts would be minimal because of the relatively small percentages of nonpublic school students in districts other than Lakewood.

The Board also argues that the DOE failed to demonstrate that the districts included in stakeholder meetings were representative of the population. According to the Board, the DOE advised districts that they would be provided notice if they were at risk for significant disproportionality, and that since Lakewood did not receive such notice, and in fact at one time received notice to the contrary, it was reasonable for the Board to believe that it was not at risk. The Board takes exception to certain statements in the Initial Decision regarding the lack of nonpublic school data, noting that data is available regarding identification and placement, and is only unavailable regarding discipline. According to the Board, the ALJ erroneously held that Lakewood cannot know whether its disproportionality is due only to the number of parents who choose to send their children to nonpublic schools, because this phenomenon is well-known, including to the DOE.

Finally, the Board argues that the Commissioner should exercise her discretion to reduce the CCEIS amount to be set aside by Lakewood based on its unique status. The Board contends that its disproportionality cannot be solved by the allowable and mandatory uses of CCEIS funds, because the parent choice phenomenon is the sole factor contributing to the district's disproportionality. The Board notes that if it is required to set aside $1.4 million, it would be left with less than $400,000 to supplement the special education needs of its students.

In reply, the DOE argues that the plain language of federal regulations refers to students enrolled in the district and that it therefore properly excluded students enrolled in private schools from its calculations. The DOE notes that all data used in its calculations came from Lakewood, such that the Board should have been aware of the possibility that the district would be found to be significantly disproportionate. The DOE contends that the Board's procedural and substantive due process rights were not violated, for the reasons outlined in the Initial Decision. Finally, the DOE argues that it has no discretion in determining the amount of funds that must be set aside.

In addition to its exceptions, the Board filed a motion to supplement the record, seeking to include: 1) documents related to a training session that the DOE hosted for school districts in July 2021; 2) discipline data recalculated by the Board following the training session; 3) Board resolutions identifying its action plan to resolve issues raised during these proceedings; and 4) email correspondence between the parties in July and August 2021, scheduling a meeting to discuss the topics at issue in this matter. The Board contends that these materials are relevant to this matter, were not available prior to the issuance of the Initial Decision, and will not prejudice the DOE if they are included in the record.

In response to the motion to supplement the record, the DOE argues that the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules (UAPR) preclude the admission of evidence after the record is closed. The DOE further notes that portions of the Board's exceptions which rely on documents that were not a part of the record before the ALJ should be disregarded.

The Board's motion to supplement the record is denied. There is no provision in either the UAPR or N.J.A.C. 6A:3 allowing for the filing of such a motion or the acceptance of evidence outside of the record following an Initial Decision. Furthermore, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(c), "[e]vidence not presented at the hearing shall not be submitted as part of an exception, nor shall it be incorporated or referred to within exceptions." Accordingly, the certifications and documents attached to the Board's motion to supplement were not considered, nor were they considered to the extent that they were relied upon in the Board's exceptions.

Upon review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that the DOE was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable – and accordingly did not violate the Board's substantive due process rights – in setting the risk ratio for disproportionality at 3.0 percent or in applying a uniform methodology statewide and determining not to make an exception for the specific circumstances of Lakewood's private-school population. Portions of the Board's exceptions consist of information that was outside the record and was therefore not considered.[5] The remaining portions of the exceptions reiterate arguments made below that were addressed by the ALJ, and the Commissioner does not find them persuasive, for the reasons thoroughly detailed in the Initial Decision.

The Commissioner concludes that the DOE was not obligated to deviate from its chosen calculation methodology to address Lakewood's private school population. As the ALJ found, the DOE complied with the federal regulations and requirements of the IDEA as they are written, and the fact that the Board disagrees with the outcome as it applies to its school district does not make the DOE's interpretation or implementation of the law arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. While the Board argues that the federal regulations permit the DOE to include private school students in the disproportionality calculations, the Board does not point to any provision that requires the DOE to do so, and the Commissioner finds no such requirement in the applicable law. Moreover, 34 C.F.R. §300.647, which sets forth how to determine whether significant disproportionality exists, repeatedly refers to students "enrolled in the LEA"[6] or "within the LEA," supporting the DOE's decision to include only public school students in the disproportionality calculations.

[5] For purposes of clarity, the arguments that the Commissioner has determined are based on information outside the record, and which were therefore not considered, are summarized as follows: The Board argues that the DOE's calculations were inconsistent, based on data received in April 2021, following the close of the record. The Board also contends that the DOE failed to include in its calculations public school students who were placed in out-of-district schools, based on Exhibit 9 to its exceptions, which was not a part of the record on summary decision. The Board alleges that the DOE incorrectly calculated disciplinary removals by incident, rather than by student, and performed calculations for disciplinary removals of Black students even though the number of students involved was below the DOE-set minimum threshold, based on training materials from a DOE webinar in July 2021, following the close of the record. Finally, the Board argues that it can develop targeted policies to address disproportionality in discipline at a lower cost than $1.4 million, based on information from July 2021, after the close of the record. While the Commissioner has not considered these arguments, she does note that the Board filed a cross-motion for summary decision, in which it represented that there were no material facts in dispute.

[6] Local education agency (LEA) is defined by 34 C.F.R. §300.28(a) as a public board of education or other public authority for the administrative control or direction of public elementary or secondary schools.

The Board asserts – and alleges that the DOE knows – that the root cause for Lakewood's disproportionality is that many white parents in Lakewood send their white children to private schools. However, while the DOE is aware of those demographic circumstances, it does not necessarily follow that the demographics are the root cause of disproportionality among Lakewood's public school students. The purpose of calculating significant disproportionality and setting aside CCEIS funds is to identify and address contributing factors, 34 C.F.R. §300.646, and the Commissioner does not agree with the Board that an assumption based on Lakewood's demographics sufficiently analyzes or addresses possible causes. Moreover, with regard to some of the areas of disproportionality, such as discipline, it would be illogical to include private school students, whom the district is not responsible for disciplining, in a risk calculation to determine whether the district is disproportionality disciplining students. The DOE reasonably determined to evaluate Lakewood's disproportionality based on Lakewood's own actions, and not those of private schools.

The Commissioner further concludes that the DOE's actions did not violate the Board's procedural due process rights. The essential requirements of procedural due process are notice and an opportunity to be heard. Cleveland Bd. of Educ. v. Loudermill, 470 U.S. 532, 546 (1985). Here, there is no dispute that the DOE issued a notice to the Board when it was found to be significantly disproportionate, and while the Board argues that it should have received notice in advance of that finding, as the ALJ noted, there is no such requirement in the regulations.[7] Furthermore, as it is currently participating in the administrative law process to contest the DOE's finding, the Board clearly has been afforded an opportunity to be heard. The Board's opportunity to be heard does not entitle it to participation in the stakeholder meetings the DOE held as part of determining the risk ratio threshold, as there is no fundamental or property right implicated by attendance at such meetings. Additionally, the federal regulations have no specific requirements regarding how many or what kinds of school districts must be included in stakeholder meetings, such that the DOE has discretion to invite participants.

The Commissioner further concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that the proper implementation of the finding of significant disproportionality results in requiring the Board to set aside $1,442,938 – 15% of its total IDEA grant funds – to CCEIS programs at Lakewood's public schools. However, the Commissioner disagrees with the ALJ that any relief from the set-aside requirement is in the discretion of the Commissioner. Pursuant to 20 U.S.C.S. §1418(d)(2), in the case of a determination of significant disproportionality, a state shall require the district to reserve the maximum amount of funds to provide CCEIS (emphasis added). Pursuant to 20 U.S.C.S. §1413(f)(1), the maximum amount of funds is 15% of the amount the district receives under the IDEA. These provisions do not afford the Commissioner any discretion to reduce the amount of CCEIS funds that the Board is required to set aside.

Accordingly, the Board's motion for summary decision is denied, the DOE's motion for summary decision is granted, and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.[8]

Record Closed: March 18, 2021 Decided: July 20, 2021

BEFORE JOSEPH A. ASCIONE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

In this matter arising under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, 20 U.S.C. §§ 1400 to -1482 (IDEA), the issue is whether respondent New Jersey Department of Education's (Department or NJDOE) properly required petitioner Lakewood Township Board of Education (District or Lakewood) to set aside certain federal funds for early intervention services to address a significant racial or ethnic disportionality with respect to Lakewood's identification, placement, and/or discipline of special education students.

The IDEA attempts to ensure that students with a disability are provided with a free appropriate public education (FAPE) that is tailored to their individual needs. To help achieve this goal, the federal government provides the States, including New Jersey, with grants, which are then allocated to the LEAs. In exchange for federal assistance, the IDEA requires, for instance, States to determine if there is "significant disportionality based on race and ethnicity" in terms of "the identification of children as children with disabilities," "the placement in particular educational settings of such children," and disciplinary actions in any LEA within a State. 20 U.S.C. § 1418(d). If a State finds any such significant disportionality in a particular LEA, the State may require the LEA to "reserve the maximum amount of funds . . . to provide comprehensive coordinated early intervening services to serve children" in the LEA. Ibid.

In the present case, Lakewood is due to receive $9,619,588 in federal funds for the 2021–22 school year. Of those funds, approximately $7,800,000 goes to private schools and $1,800,000 goes to the District's public schools. The Department identified the District for significant disproportionality for the 2020–21 school year. As a result of that determination, approximately $1,433,000 would be required to be taken from the funds received and allocated to specific programs in the public schools to address the disproportionality. The District maintains that this allocation, itself, is disproportionate, as the District does not control the funds going to the private schools. The District maintains that the allocation is arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 1, 2020, Lakewood filed a Verified Petition with the Commissioner of Education. On August 26, 2020, the NJDOE's Bureau of Controversies and Disputes transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-8.2. On August 13, 2020, an answer was filed by the NJDOE and Commissioner Ehling. On March 4, 2021, the NJDOE filed a motion for summary decision in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. On or about March 18, 2021, petitioner filed a cross-motion for summary decision. The OAL had previously scheduled hearing dates for April 16, 21, and 30, and May 3, 2021. The scheduled hearings were cancelled to consider the within motion and cross-motion. The tribunal held oral argument by Zoom © on May 19, 2021.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The parties have provided a Joint Stipulation of Facts containing sixty-six paragraphs which are set forth below. I accept those statements and therefore FIND as FACT:

1. More than 85% of the students in Lakewood attend parent-chosen nonpublic schools, with less than 15% attending Lakewood Public Schools. Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 10.

2. With respect to special education, approximately 9,352 children are identified as having a disability. Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 12.

3. Approximately 7,683 of these students attend nonpublic schools, while approximately 1,669 attend public schools. Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 13.

4. With respect to racial and ethnic demographics, Lakewood's nonpublic-school population is predominantly white (a conservative estimate is that upwards of 95% of nonpublic school students are white), with nearly all of Lakewood's minority students attending public schools. Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 15.

5. Of all students with disabilities placed by their parents in nonpublic schools, approximately 7,527 (or 99.8%) are white. Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 18.

6. Accordingly, less than 5% of Lakewood's total public-school population are white students with disabilities and less than 20% of Lakewood's public school students with disabilities are white students. DOE81.

7. Of the roughly 5,900 students who attend public schools in Lakewood, 1,669 of them have disabilities, of whom approximately 84% are non-white.

8. The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), 20 U.S.C. § 1400, et seq., is a federal statute that, among other things, is intended to improve special education services in schools. See 20 U.S.C. § 1400.

9. The IDEA creates a mechanism for providing federal funding to states that must be distributed to eligible school districts to be used to supplement special education services within those districts. See, e.g., 20 U.S.C. § 1411.

10. For the 2020–21 school year, Lakewood's Basic and Preschool IDEA grant is $9,619,588. This grant is based on the total number of students with disabilities in both the public and nonpublic schools in Lakewood. See 20 U.S.C. § 1411(f)(1)(B).

11. This grant is then allocated by the State between public and nonpublic schools, with approximately $7.8 million allocated to nonpublic schools and $1.8 million allocated to public schools. Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 23.

12. One of the requirements for receiving IDEA funding is that states must analyze whether there is overidentification or disproportionate representation by race and ethnicity of children with disabilities. 33 U.S.C. § 1412(a)(24).

13. The overrepresentation of specific racial and ethnic minority groups in special education is a national issue, with rates of overrepresentation steady across states. Rb1–2; 2007 Memorandum from Director, Exhibit A to Respondents' SD Motion.

14. This is an issue because minority children have continuously been identified for special education services at a higher rate than would be expected based on the percentage of minority children in the general school population. Rb2; 2007 Memorandum from Director, Exhibit A to Respondents' SD Motion.

15. As minority children continue to comprise an increasing percentage of public school students, the federal government has taken steps to respond to the growing needs of an increasingly diverse society. Rb2; 2007 Memorandum from Director, Exhibit A to Respondents' SJ Motion.

16. Disproportionality refers to the phenomenon that occurs when there are more individuals from a particular group who are experiencing a given situation than one would expect based on that group's representation in the general population. Rb2.

17. Disproportionality is considered "significant" in the context of classification of students for special education services when overrepresentation of a group exceeds a risk ratio threshold, which is set by each individual state. 34 C.F.R. §§ 300.647(a)(7) and (b)(1)(ii); Rb2.

18. A risk ratio is the measure of a specific racial or ethnic group's risk, as compared to all other children, of receiving special education and related services. Rb2.

19. The United States Department of Education (USDOE) has promulgated regulations which guide a state's analysis of whether disproportionality exists and the consequences of such a finding. See 33 C.F.R. § 300.646, 647.

20. Under the Regulations, states have an obligation to collect and examine data to determine whether significant disproportionality based on race or ethnicity is occurring in LEAs of the state. 20 U.S.C. § 1418(d); 34 C.F.R. § 300.646; Rb4.

21. The Regulations set forth fourteen categories of analysis in which the state must calculate risk ratios to determine whether significant disproportionality exists. 34 C.F.R. §§ 300.647(b)(3) and (4); Rb6.

22. In December 2016, the USDOE amended the IDEA Regulations and imposed new requirements regarding acceptable methods for calculating risk ratios used to determine whether significant disproportionality exists (the "2016 Amendments"). Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 34.

23. The 2016 Amendments required states to use risk ratios to analyze disparities across racial and ethnic groups, while providing each state with the discretion to determine the appropriate risk ratio threshold that would be used to determine significant disproportionality. 81 Fed. Reg. 10968, 34 C.F.R. § 647(a)(6); Rb7.

24. The 2016 Amendments took effect on January 18, 2017; however, the USDOE set the compliance date for the states at July 1, 2018, to "provide states time to plan for implementing these final regulations, including to the extent necessary, time to amend the policies and procedures necessary to comply." 81 Fed. Reg. at 92378; Rb7.

25. There were delays throughout the nation in the implementation of the 2016 Amendments for various reasons, including litigation over the regulations and concerns that they would encourage districts to implement de facto quotas. Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 34.

26. In February 2018, the USDOE issued a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking proposing to "postpone the compliance date [of the 2016 Regulations] by two years, from July 1, 2018 to July 1, 2020." Assistance to States for the Education of Children with Disabilities; Preschool Grants for Children with Disabilities, 83 Fed. Reg. 8396 (Feb. 27, 2018); Rb8.

27. Citing concerns that the 2016 Amendments would create an incentive for LEAs to establish de facto quotas, the USDOE issued its final rule postponing the compliance date of the 2016 Regulations by two years. Final Rule Delaying Compliance Date Regarding Assistance to States for the Education of Children with Disabilities; Preschool Grants for Children with Disabilities, 83 Fed. Reg. 31306, 31308 (July 3, 2018); Rb8–9.

28. This permitted the states to choose whether to implement the methodology from the 2016 Amendments or to continue to choose their own methodology for identifying significant disproportionality. 83 Fed. Reg. at 31309; Rb9.

29. On July 12, 2018, the Council of Parent Attorneys & Advocates, Inc. (Council) filed suit against the USDOE requesting that the Delay Regulations be enjoined, arguing that the Delay Regulations would reduce the number of LEAs identified as significantly disproportionate and that the 2016 Amendments would provide a more accurate calculation. Council of Parent Attys. & Advocates, Inc. v. Devos, 365 F. Supp. 3d 28, 37 (D.D.C. 2019). The court found in favor of the Council, stating that the argument that the 2016 Amendments could not be implemented because it would incentivize LEAs to use racial quotas did not have adequate support in the record. See page 48. As such, the court held that the Delay Regulations should be vacated and that the 2016 Amendments would take effect immediately, on the date of its March 7, 2019, decision. See pages 55–56.

30. Pursuant to the Regulations, the states were directed to calculate whether disproportionality existed in numerous different areas, including, based on seven different racial categories, as applied to seven different special education categories, and seven different special education settings. 34 C.F.R. § 300.647(b)(2)–(4).

31. The Regulations permit a state to use different ratios, data or formulas for the various calculations. See 34 C.F.R. § 300.647.

32. The Regulations required states to schedule, set up and conduct stakeholder meetings with school districts in their states to provide input and recommendations to assist the states in determining these various flexibilities. 34 C.F.R. § 300.647(b)(1).

33. In preparation for the implementation of the 2016 Regulations, NJDOE held meetings with stakeholders on May 18, 2017, and October 19, 2017, to discuss the appropriate number at which to set the risk ratio threshold, as required by 34 C.F.R. § 300.647(b)(1)(i)(a). Rb7; Certification of Kathleen Ehling (Ehling Cert.), dated February 17, 2021, at ¶ 7.

34. At both meetings, NJDOE conducted discussions on appropriate risk ratio thresholds.[1] Ehling Cert., ¶7.

35. NJDOE also consulted with federal technical assistance centers such as the IDEA Data Center, the National Center for Systemic Improvement, and the Center for IDEA Fiscal Reporting. Ehling Cert. at ¶7; Rb8.

36. The stakeholder committee was directed to focus on making recommendations about: thresholds for each of three components (identification; placement; and discipline), minimum cell size and n-size.[2]

37. The stakeholders were also asked to make recommendations for the "threshold for each category." DOE408.

38. At the stakeholder meetings, NJDOE provided examples of ratio calculations. DOE413–419.

39. The October 19, 2017, Stakeholder Meeting Presentation included slides asking the stakeholder group to provide feedback regarding their experience in using comprehensive coordinated early intervention services (CCEIS) funding, including their "successes and challenges in utilizing CCEIS funds to address significant disproportionality." Certification of Aimee Rousseau (Rousseau Cert.), dated February 17, 2021, at Ex. G.

[2] Minimum cell size is "the minimum number of children experiencing a particular outcome, to be used as the numerator when calculating either the risk for a particular racial or ethnic group or the risk for children in all other racial or ethnic groups." 34 C.F.R. § 300.647(a).

Minimum n-size is "the minimum number of children enrolled in an LEA with respect to identification, and the minimum number of children with disabilities enrolled in an LEA with respect to placement and discipline, to be used as the denominator when calculating either the risk for a particular racial or ethnic group or the risk for children in all other racial or ethnic groups." Ibid.

40. Respondents invited Collingswood, Elizabeth, Jersey City, Manasquan, Montgomery, Moorestown, Ocean City, Princeton, Swedesboro, West Windsor Plainsboro, Riverbank Charter School of Excellence, and Brookfield to participate in the stakeholder meetings. Ex. C, Stakeholder List; Ex. D, Stakeholder Sign-in Sheet.

41. The attendees of the May 18, 2017, and October 19, 2017, stakeholder meetings discussed New Jersey's implementation of the 2016 Amendments and the decisions to be made to implement those revisions, including the numerous ratio thresholds and minimum data sizes. Ehling Cert. at ¶ 7; Rousseau Cert. at Ex. F (May 18, 2017, Stakeholder Meeting Presentation); Ex. G (October 19, 2017, Stakeholder Meeting Presentation); DOE350, 5/18/17 Meeting Agenda.

42. At both meetings, meeting participants discussed the updates to the calculation of significant disproportionality and were afforded the opportunity to ask questions about its application and to give recommendations for New Jersey's risk ratio thresholds. Ehling Cert. at ¶ 7.

43. Stakeholders provided feedback regarding the topics discussed, which was compiled and analyzed by respondents. 5/18/17 Feedback.

44. At the May 18, 2017, meeting, the State acknowledged that it had numerous flexibilities in applying the disproportionality regulations, including to "select a reasonable threshold," "select reasonable minimum cell size," and "select a reasonable minimum n-size." The State further acknowledged that it was to make these determinations for "each of the 14 measures" of disproportionality that it was required to measure under the Regulations. Rousseau Cert. at Exhibit F (May 18, 2017, Stakeholder Meeting Presentation) at DOE381.

45. Following the stakeholder meetings, NJDOE decided that the risk ratio threshold for every category would be 3.0. Similarly, the State also decided that the minimum cell size (numerator) would be 10 and the minimum n-size (denominator) would be 30. Ehling Cert. at ¶ 8; Rousseau Cert. at Ex. H (State Application for IDEA Funding) at DOE612–625; R-1 at 8.

46. States were required to set a "reasonable" risk ratio, pursuant to 34 C.F.R. § 300.647(b)(1)(i)(A). The USDOE explained that: Reasonable means a sound judgment in light of all of the facts and circumstances that bear upon the choice. When choosing a risk ratio threshold, a state may consider its unique characteristics, such as the racial and ethnic composition of the state and LEAs, enrollment demographics, and factors correlated with various disabilities or disability categories. See Freeman Cert. at Ex. T (Significant Disproportionality Questions and Answers) at DOE88.

47. On March 9, 2020, Lakewood received a notice from the NJDOE advising that new IDEA regulations had been implemented and that as "a result of the new calculation, districts will be identified for significant disproportionality that had not been identified in previous years." Freeman Cert. at Ex. H (3/9/20 Letter).

48. On April 6, 2020, Lakewood received notification from the NJDOE ("April 6 Notice") that "[b]ased upon a data analysis, your district has been identified for Significant Disproportionality for the 2020–21 school year." Pursuant to the breakdown attached to the notification, respondents advised that, for the past three years, Lakewood's risk ratios exceeded the State threshold of 3.0 in five categories:

> Category NJDOE Risk Ratio (2019–2020)
> White—Autism 6.85
> White—Intellectual Disability 13.87
> White—All Eligibilities 3.35
> White—Separate Settings 14.38
> Black—Total Disciplinary Removals 8.42
> [Freeman Cert. at Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 28, Exhibit A (April 6 Notice).]

49. On April 6, 2020, Lakewood was advised that it would be "required to set aside 15% of [its] IDEA Basic and Preschool Grant" for CCEIS. Freeman Cert. at Exhibit A (Petition) at ¶ 30.

50. After issuing the April 6 Notice, Lakewood was invited to attend training sessions: A session called "Significant Disproportionality" which would provide technical assistance and was scheduled for April 28, 2020; a session called "Cultural Responsiveness" which would help districts create better policies and practices to address cultural responsiveness on April 30, 2020; and a session called "Learning Strategies to Support the Needs of Diverse Learners" which would help districts improve classroom engagement skills for all learners on May 6, 2020. DOE111–162, 4/27/20 Training PowerPoint; DOE468–498, 4/30/20 Training PowerPoint; P-3 at ¶ 4; P-4; P-5.

51. At the April 28, 2020, session, an employee for Lakewood submitted a question about whether the 15% CCEIS deduction should be for both public and nonpublic allocations. Weisz Cert. at ¶ 5. Respondents' response was that "CCEIS is included within the public budgeted amount and is intended to be used to address the needs of the public students . . . ." Weisz Cert. at ¶ 6; Freeman Cert. at Ex. R (Q&A from April 28 Training).

52. On May 13, 2020, Lakewood employee and supervisor Devorie Stareshefsky sent an e-mail to Director Ehling, with questions regarding how the State calculated Lakewood's disproportionality ratios, including which data was used. On May 20, 2020, Director Ehling responded to the e-mail. Lakewood 92–97, 5/20/20 Email.

53. The first four categories for which Lakewood was identified as significantly disproportionate involve identification of students with special needs (autism, intellectual disability, and all eligibilities) and placement in special settings. Freeman Cert. at Ex. A (Petition).

54. The fifth category for which Lakewood was identified as significantly disproportionate relates to discipline and removals of black students with disabilities. See generally Freeman Cert. at Ex. A (Petition).

55. Following respondents' April 6 Notice, Lakewood retained Sue Gamm, Esq., to analyze Lakewood's student population as well as respondents' findings of disproportionality. Freeman Cert. at Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 38.

56. After analyzing relevant facts and data provided by Lakewood, Ms. Gamm issued a report on June 1, 2020, in which she calculated Lakewood's ratios, using data from public and nonpublic schools. Freeman Cert. at Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 41, Exhibit C (Sue Gamm Report).

57. Ms. Gamm also calculated the disciplinary removal ratios based on data provided by Lakewood. Since Lakewood nonpublic schools do not maintain data related to disciplinary removals, Mr. Gamm was unable to recalculate the ratios utilizing data from Lakewood's entire student population.

58. Shortly after receiving Ms. Gamm's report, Lakewood reached out to Director Ehling on June 4, 2020, to advise of Ms. Gamm's findings and calculations; to request that the NJDOE reevaluate its conclusions as to Lakewood; and to request that the NJDOE request IDEA Data Center's assistance to reevaluate its conclusion. Freeman Cert. at Ex. K (6/4/20 Email).

59. Having received no reply to the June 4 letter, Lakewood sent a follow-up letter to Director Ehling on June 12, 2020. Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 70.

60. On June 17, 2020, Director Ehling responded and provided her explanation for the decision to use only public-school data for respondents' analysis. Freeman Cert. at Ex. M (6/17/20 Letter); Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 71.

61. On June 24, 2020, respondents sent an e-mail to Lakewood providing the raw data used by respondents to calculate the disciplinary removal findings. Lakewood 000160–000161.

62. On June 28, 2020, petitioner sent another letter to Director Ehling, responding to her June 17, 2020, letter and requesting additional information from respondents regarding the disproportionality finding and its consequences. Lakewood 000162–165.

63. Lakewood submitted its IDEA funding application on June 12, 2020, prior to the June 28, 2020, deadline. Freeman Cert. at Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 73; see also Lakewood 40–41, May 7 Notice re IDEA grants, Lakewood 42–70, Grant Awards by District, Lakewood 166, Lakewood Grant Allocation.

64. Based on the disproportionality finding, Lakewood was required to allocate 15% of its IDEA grant towards CCEIS. Freeman Cert. at Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 74.

65. On June 22, 2020, NJDOE approved Lakewood's IDEA grant application for the 2020–2021 school year, as submitted and described above. Freeman Cert. at Ex. A (Petition) at ¶ 75; Lakewood 71–72, Substantially Approvable, Lakewood 73, Approved.

66. The purpose of CCEIS is to ensure that students receive appropriate services needed to reduce behavioral and academic challenges, ultimately obviating the need for their referral for special education services. Rb5.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Summary decision, or as it is known in judicial matters, summary judgment, is a well-recognized procedure for resolving cases in which the facts that are crucial to the determination of the matters at issue are not actually in dispute and the application to that set of material facts of the applicable law and standard of proof lead to a determination of the case without the necessity of a hearing at which evidence and testimony need be taken. The procedure is equally applicable in judicial and executive-branch administrative cases. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5.

The standards for deciding motions for summary decision are contained in Judson v. People's Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74–75 (1954). The Supreme Court later elaborated on the motion and its standard in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995). Under the Brill standard, as in Judson, a motion for summary decision may only be granted where there is no "genuine issue" of "material fact." The determination as to whether genuine issues of material fact exist is made after a "discriminating search" of the record, consisting as it may of affidavits, certifications, documentary exhibits, and any other evidence filed by the movant and any such evidence filed in response to the motion, with all reasonable inferences arising from the evidence being accorded to the opponent of the motion. In order to defeat the motion, the opposing party must establish the existence of "genuine" issues of material fact. The facts upon which the party opposing the motion relies to defeat the motion must be something more than "facts which are immaterial or of an insubstantial nature, a mere scintilla, 'fanciful, frivolous, gauzy or merely suspicious.'" Judson, 17 N.J. at 75 (citations omitted). The Brill decision focuses on the analytical procedure for determining whether a purported issue of material fact is "genuine" or is of an "insubstantial nature." Brill, 142 N.J. at 530. Brill concludes that the same analytical process used to decide motions for a directed verdict is used to resolve summary-decision motions. "[T]he essence of the inquiry in each is the same: 'whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require submission to a jury or whether it is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law.'" Brill, 142 N.J. at 536 (quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 251–52 (1986)).

In searching the proffered evidence to decide the motion, the judge must be guided by the applicable substantive evidentiary standard of proof, that is, the "burden of persuasion" that would apply at trial on the merits, whether that is the preponderance-of-the-evidence standard or the clear-and-convincing-evidence standard. If a careful review under this standard establishes that no reasonable fact finder could resolve the disputed facts in favor of the party opposing the motion, then the uncontradicted facts thus established can be examined in the light of the applicable substantive law to determine whether or not the movant is clearly entitled to judgment as a matter of law. However, where the proofs in the record are such that "reasonable minds could differ" as to the material facts, then the motion must be denied and a full evidentiary hearing held. Id. at 535.

As a condition of receiving federal funds through Part B of the IDEA, each state and the LEAs within the state must collect and examine data to determine if there is a significant disproportionality in the identification, placement, or discipline of students in the state based on their race and ethnicity and/or their category of disability. 34 C.F.R. §

300.646(a) (2020). Any LEA that is identified as significantly disproportionate according to the state's standards must reserve the maximum amount of funds required under 20 U.S.C. § 1413(f) in order to provide CCEISto address the factors contributing to the significant disproportionality. This requires the LEA to set aside 15 percent of the funds received under this Act toward providing CCEIS. 20 U.S.C. § 1413(f)(1). The purpose of the CCEIS fund allocation is for the LEA to identify and address any factors that are contributing to the significant disproportionality, including addressing any policies, practices, or procedures the LEA identifies as contributing to the issue. 34 C.F.R. § 300.646(d)(1) (2020).[3]

Whether there is significant disproportionality is determined by the risk ratio threshold, minimum cell size, and n-size established by each state, 34 C.F.R. § 300.647(b)(1)(i) (2020). The standards must be based on advice from stakeholders and are subject to monitoring and enforcement by the U.S. Department of Education's Secretary according to 20 U.S.C. § 1416. 34 C.F.R. § 300.647(b)(1)(iii) (2020). Each state must report all risk ratio thresholds, minimum cell and n-sizes, and the standards for measuring reasonable progress (if this flexibility option is chosen by the state), along with the rationales for each of these standards to the U.S. Department of Education. 34 C.F.R. § 300.647(b)(7) (2020). A risk ratio threshold is reasonable based on "sound judgment in light of all of the facts and circumstances that bear upon the choice." 34 C.F.R. § 300.647(b)(1)(i)(A) (2020).[4] A state may consider its unique characteristics (e.g., racial and ethnic composition of the state and its LEAs) and other facts that correlate with disabilities or disability categories.

Only when an LEA exceeds the established risk ratio threshold for a specific racial or ethnic group in disability category for three consecutive years will that LEA be identified as having a significant disproportionality, at which point the state must notify the LEA of the disproportionality. If a state has chosen to implement the flexibility option of reasonable progress, then an LEA will not be identified as having a significant disproportionality even if it has exceeded the risk ratio threshold for three consecutive years, as long as the LEA demonstrated reasonable progress in decreasing the risk ratio (or alternate risk ratio) for that group and category in the two prior consecutive years.

Here, there is not a factual dispute about the mathematical calculations, rather the dispute is over whether students placed in private schools should be considered in computing the ratio to determine disproportionality. Petitioner also questions the reasonableness of including the total amount of grants going to private schools when determining the percentage of the grant funding to be designated for CCEIS. Petitioner argues a lack of procedural due process, a lack of substantive due process, and that the Department's actions are arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable.

Fifteen percent of the total $9,619,588 grant funding equals $1,442,938. It is this latter amount that the regulations require be allocated to CCEIS programs, as a result of the finding of disproportionality. Application of the regulation to Lakewood is disproportionate to the grant sums allocated to the public schools in Lakewood. The regulations provide the states discretion in the application of the provisions of the regulation. The regulations do not consider the negative implications to Lakewood as a result of the extensive allocation of the grant funds to private schools. The regulations do not provide for the separate calculation of grant funds only designated to public-school application, nor the negative impact on Lakewood, as a result of the entire inclusion of grant funds in the application of the disproportionality designation of the amounts to be used for CCEIS.

A. Procedural Due Process

The U.S. Supreme Court has held that the essential requirements of due process are notice and an opportunity to be heard. Cleveland Bd. of Educ. v. Loudermill, 470 U.S. 532, 545–46 (1985). A hearing satisfies the latter requirement by providing "[t]he opportunity to present reasons, either in person or in writing, why [the] proposed action should not be taken." Id. at 546. Due-process standards require the right to "timely and adequate notice detailing the reasons" for the agency action, and "an effective opportunity to defend by confronting any adverse witnesses" and to present the appellant's own arguments and evidence. Goldberg v. Kelly, 397 U.S. 254, 267–68 (1970). This requires a right to notice, reasonably calculated under all the circumstances, to inform the parties of all issues against them. Alfonso v. Bd. of Review, 89 N.J. 41, 43 (1982).

However, if after considering the "practicalities and peculiarities of the case," the requirements of notice and an opportunity to be heard are reasonably met, then the requirement of procedural due process is satisfied. Mullane v. Cent. Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 339 U.S. 306, 314–15 (1950). "The criterion is not the possibility of conceivable injury but the just and reasonable character of the requirements, having reference to the subject with which the statute deals." Id. at 315. Because due process is flexible, what protections are required depends on the situation; due process does not require that "the procedures used to guard against an erroneous deprivation . . . be so comprehensive as to preclude any possibility of error." N.S. v. AmeriChoice of New Jersey, Inc., 2005 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 496 at *8 (September 12, 2005).

Lakewood alleges they were not given early notice that they had exceeded the risk ratio thresholds prior to being identified as significantly disproportionate. There is no requirement for early notification since an LEA is only significantly disproportionate after three consecutive years of exceeding the state's established risk ratio threshold. The State did provide Lakewood with notice of the change in risk ratio thresholds and that it had a risk ratio over 1.5 for both identification/placement and discipline in October 2018. See Petitioner's Ex. I. That Lakewood chose not to follow up with the State or to look at the data it was submitting annually to the State and perform its own calculations does not mean that the State failed to provide adequate notice to the LEA.[5]

Lakewood was not entitled to attend the stakeholder meetings the State held to determine the risk ratio thresholds and minimum n-size or cell-size. The due-process requirement of notice and opportunity to be heard applies when a fundamental right or [5] Since the method for calculating risk ratios is widely available online, and the data used to calculate the risk ratios is publicly available on the State's Department of Education website, Lakewood could have proactively discovered that it would be identified as significantly disproportionate based on its data trends.

property right may be lost. While Lakewood may have unique socio-demographic circumstances compared to other New Jersey school districts, that does not entitle them to attend a stakeholder meeting. There are requirements for who must be included in the stakeholder meetings, including state and local education officials, but there are no other specific requirements regarding how many or which kinds of LEAs must be included in the State Advisory Panel. 20 U.S.C. § 1412(a)(21)(B); 34 C.F.R. § 300.647(b)(1)(iii) (2020). Lakewood has provided no indication of evidence that the State acted unreasonably when it determined which LEAs to invite to the stakeholder meeting. The Department did not include Lakewood (even with its unique characteristics) as one of the 574 school districts that was invited.[6]

B. Substantive Due Process

Generally, unless fundamental rights are involved, "a state statute does not violate substantive due process if the statute reasonably relates to a legitimate legislative purpose and is not arbitrary or discriminatory." United Prop. Owners Ass'n of Belmar v. Bor. of Belmar, 343 N.J. Super. 1, 27 (App. Div. 2001). Substantive due process requires "only that a law shall not be unreasonable, arbitrary or capricious, and that the means selected shall bear a rational relation to the legislative object sought to be obtained." Joseph H. Reinfeld, Inc. v. Schieffelin & Co., 94 N.J 400, 413 (1983).

Lakewood has argued that the State's interpretation and application of the IDEA requirements, as they pertain to Lakewood, are arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable, and therefore violate Lakewood's substantive due-process rights. The "thorough and efficient" education clause in New Jersey's constitution does provide for publicly-funded education for all students. See Robinson v. Cahill, 62 N.J. 473, 513 (1973); Abbott v. Burke, 119 N.J. 287 (1990). However, this claim is brought primarily under the federal law, where there is no applicable fundamental right. The IDEA provides for certain protections for children, and the parents of children, with disabilities, but these protections likewise do not invoke a fundamental right of due-process analysis for the facts of this matter. See 34 C.F.R. §§ 300.500 to -300.520 (2020). Since there is no fundamental right for the Lakewood School District at issue, the determination must look at whether the IDEA regulations, as interpreted and applied by the State, are arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

C. Arbitrary, Capricious, and Unreasonable

In general, the standard of review of an agency decision is substantial credible evidence. Similarly, the interpretation of a statute by the agency charged with its enforcement is also entitled to substantial weight. Klumb v. Bd. of Educ. of Manalapan-Englishtown Reg. High Schl. Dist., 199 N.J. 14, 28–29 (2009); State v. Council of N.J. State College Locals, 153 N.J. Super. 91 (App. Div. 1977); In re Hackensack Board of Educ., 184 N.J. Super. 311, 319 (App. Div.). The agency's determination must be given substantial deference and should only be reversed if it is plainly unreasonable. Patel v. N.J. Motor Vehicle Comm'n, 200 N.J. 413, 420 (2009); Oberhand v. Dir., Div. of Taxation, 193 N.J. 558, 568 (2008); see also In re Hackensack Bd. of Educ., 184 N.J. Super. at 319 (court not bound by interpretations that are clearly wrong).

An action is determined to be arbitrary and capricious based on four inquiries: 1) was the action in violation of the State or Federal Constitution; 2) did it violate any express or implied legislative policies; 3) does the record contain substantial evidence to support the findings on which the agency based its action; and, 4) when applying the legislative policies to the facts, did the agency clearly err in reaching a conclusion which couldn't have been made on a showing of the relevant factors. Brady v. Bd. of Review, 152 N.J. 197, 210–11 (1997): see also In re Proposed Quest Acad. Charter Sch. of Montclair Founders Grp., 216 N.J. 370, 385–86 (2013). Consequently, the challenging party bears the burden of proving that the agency action was arbitrary, capricious, and unreasonable by the preponderance of the credible evidence. J.P. & M.P. v. Bd. of Educ. of South Brunswick, Middlesex Cty., 2002 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 952 at *10–12 (December 17, 2002). N.J. Soc'y for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals v. N.J. Dep't of Agriculture, 196 N.J. 366, 385 (2008); In re Freshwater Wetlands Prot. Act Rules, 180 N.J. 415, 432 (2004); N.J. State League of Municipalities v. Dep't of Cmty. Affairs, 158 N.J. 211, 222 (1999); In re the 1999–2000 Abbott v. Burke Implementing Regulations, 348 N.J. Super. 382, 395 (App. Div. 2002).

According to the record and the undisputed facts by the parties, the State has complied with the regulations and requirements of the IDEA as they are written. While Lakewood takes issue with the outcome as it applies to their school district, this does not make the interpretation or application of the IDEA arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. While the IDEA accounts for providing services and funding to students with disabilities attending nonpublic schools, the primary focus of the IDEA is toward public-school students, since the government has limited control over the management, policies, procedures, and practices of nonpublic schools.

The Department's decision in excluding nonpublic students in the computation of the risk ratio threshold is not arbitrary and capricious. The legislation did not contemplate that a significant majority of an LEA's student population would attend private schools. It did not require the states to consider that population, as the legislation focused on the location where most recipients of IDEA services would be located, i.e., public schools. As there is no requirement that the State consider private-school students, to do so would make an exception for only Lakewood. That would be arbitrary and capricious, with no statutory or administrative support for such a decision.

It would be unreasonable to require the State to decide whether Lakewood is complying with the risk ratio thresholds. Lakewood acknowledged in their briefs and exhibits that it does not have data necessary to calculate the risk ratio or alternate risk ratios for all the necessary groups and categories. See Petitioner's Brief in Support of Petition at 12 (cannot calculate discipline rates for all schools in the LEA as this data is neither collected nor reported by the nonpublic schools).

Lakewood is correct in claiming that its risk ratios in the identified categories would drastically decrease if it could count data from the nonpublic students. This is because the comparison group (i.e., the denominator) would in effect remain the same while the target group (i.e., the numerator) would increase exponentially. But Lakewood does not have authority or control over the nonpublic schools or their students to the extent necessary to address disproportionate identification, placement, or discipline of disabled students. By including the large number of white nonpublic students who in comparison have significantly less disabled students than the public-school students, Lakewood may prevent itself or the parents in the LEA from uncovering over- or under-identification of special-education students.

Lakewood implies that by the State requiring that the mandatory 15 percent of the IDEA funds be allocated toward CCEIS, Lakewood will be unable to provide FAPE to the rest of the students in its public schools. As an initial matter, the funds allocated toward CCEIS may be used to serve students who are not currently identified as needing special-education services, but need additional support to succeed in a general-education environment, as well as students who are currently identified as needing special-education services.[7] 20 U.S.C. § 1413(f)(1); 34 C.F.R. § 300.646(d)(2) (2020). Lakewood may spend these funds to serve the groups that were particularly significantly overidentified through the risk ratio calculations, but the IDEA states that it may not exclusively use the CCEIS funds for these groups. Therefore, Lakewood is not prohibited from allocating some of the CCEIS funds toward other students and groups, if it is necessary to ensure that all public students are receiving FAPE. See 20 U.S.C. § 1413(f)(2). Lakewood is only required to reserve the CCEIS funds until it can decrease the risk ratio threshold for the identified categories. Lakewood contends that this can never be achieved because of its racial and ethnic demographics and the choices of the parents.

Lakewood claims that the reason for the disproportionality is that a substantial portion of students residing in Lakewood attend nonpublic schools, thus affecting the public-school ratios. The data shows that the schools Lakewood has control over are disproportionality identifying white students over non-white students. Uncovering the factor(s) causing the discrepancy is the purpose of the CCEIS fund allocation. Lakewood cannot know without an actual investigation into the underlying facts whether the over-identification is due only to the number of parents who choose to send their children to nonpublic schools.

[7] IDEA Data Center, A Comparison of CCEIS and CEIS.

The IDEA requires that the funds reserved for CCEIS must come from the total amount of the subgrants the LEA receives, there is nothing providing for the subdivision of these funds into the public/nonpublic sections before calculating the 15 percent. See U.S. Dep't of Educ., Office of Special Educ. Programs, OSEP QA 21-03, Questions & Answers on Serving Children with Disabilities Placed by Their Parents in Private Schools, at 42–43 (Dec. 2020), https://sites.ed.gov/idea/files/qa-parentally-placed-private-schools-12-2020.pdf (providing that an LEA must calculate the proportional share for nonpublic students and the CCEIS from the total grant amount received).

Finally, Lakewood posits that the determination of a 3 percent risk ratio is arbitrary. An analysis of thirty-three states provides the following risk ratio thresholds: 3.0 (twenty-one states), 2.0 (six states), and 2.5 (six states). U.S. Dep't of Educ., 2020 Part B FFY 2018 SPP/APR Indicator Analysis Booklet, at 89–90, https://sites.ed.gov/idea/files/PartB-IndicatorAnalysis-FFY2018.pdf. It cannot be said that the 3 percent risk ratio is arbitrary. See also Rationale from New Jersey's stakeholder meeting on choosing the risk ratio threshold and general explanation of significant disproportionality. N.J. Dep't of Educ., Office of Fiscal & Data Services, Significant Disproportionality (2019), at 13–16, https://www.nj.gov/education/specialed/CEISTraining1.pdf.

CONCLUSION

After reviewing the papers and arguments of petitioner and respondents and considering the documents and certifications submitted:

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has not shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the Department has acted unreasonably, arbitrarily, or capriciously in setting the risk ratio of disportionality at 3 percent, nor unreasonably in determining not to make an exception for the specific circumstances of the District's private-school population.

I CONCLUDE that the proper implementation of the finding of significant disproportionality results in the requirement that Lakewood allocate $1,442,938 of the IDEA grant funds to CCEIS programs at the public schools of Lakewood.

I CONCLUDE that the facts do support petitioner's claim of the potentially unintended application of the regulations to the allocation of the IDEA grant funding for Lakewood.

I CONCLUDE that the previous conclusion is insufficient to support judicial intervention in the allocation; that relief falls entirely in the discretion of the Commissioner of Education.

I CONCLUDE that the Department of Education has shown by a preponderance of the evidence that the Department is entitled to prevail in its application for summary disposition in this matter.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's request for summary disposition is DENIED.

It is further hereby ORDERED that respondent's motion for summary disposition is GRANTED.

It is further hereby ORDERED that the allocation of the IDEA grant funding to CCEIS programs be in an amount as directed by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." The record of this matter, the proposed Stipulation of Settlement (Agreement), and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed.

Several paragraphs within the Agreement reference certain actions to be taken by the parties on specific dates. Some of the time frames referenced in the Agreement have preceded the consideration of the settlement by the Commissioner of Education. The parties are reminded that a settlement of litigation before the Commissioner is not binding until the Commissioner approves the settlement.

In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter, provided that the parties have already implemented the settlement terms or have agreed upon mutually satisfactory alternate dates for the effectuation of the terms of the Agreement. Assuming same, the matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

R.C., appearing pro se

Record Closed: September 8, 2021 Decided: September 22, 2021

BEFORE WILLIAM T. COOPER, III, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner filed this action against respondent, the New Jersey Board of Education (BOE), as an emergent-relief request and petition. The petition alleges certain action of the BOE to be in violation of (N.J.S.A.) Title 18A and seeks emergent relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 by stating;

> "I am filing an EMERGENT petition asking for relief on behalf of my minor child NG and all the children in New Jersey. The school year will be starting in a little over a week and I am in fear for the children to attend their public-school buildings. They have all suffered emotional, psychological, and harmful treatment due to the NJ STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION. This is deprivation of children's rights. Allegations of factual violations, supporting documents, and evidence are attached."

The BOE contends that petitioner has failed to meet the necessary criteria required for the granting of emergent relief.

BACKGROUND AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On August 27, 2021, the petitioner filed a "Pro Se Petition of Appeal" seeking emergent relief with the Department of Education. The Commissioner of Education transmitted the matter as "emergent" to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on September 1, 2021. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On September 8, 2021, respondent submitted both opposition to the emergent relief request together with a Notice of a Cross Motion seeking dismissal of the underlying petition for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted and improper venue.

Oral argument was held on September 8, 2021. Petitioner requested and was granted additional time to respond to the opposition submitted, accordingly petitioner had until close of business on Friday September 10, 2021, to submit a response. On September 10, 2021, Adam Elias, Esq. advised the court of his entry into the case on behalf of the petitioner and requested additional time to provide a response, DAG Czarnecki consented, and a ten-day extension was granted. Petitioner had until Monday September 20, 2021, to respond to the opposition filed by respondent.

On September 17, Mr. Elias advised he was no longer representing the petitioner and he was directed to file a formal motion to withdraw.

Petitioner did not provide any further response, and the record closed on September 20, 2021.

FACTS

After carefully reviewing all the materials and exhibits submitted, I FIND the following FACTS: Petitioner is the mother of N.G., a minor who will be attending first grade in the Township of Chesterfield public school district (school district). Petitioner attached several documents to the petition that include copies of pages from an unnamed textbook that may be used in the Lawrence Township school district. These pages exhibit anatomically correct drawings of people that would be appropriate in a physical health class to show the physical differences between men and women, as well as how the bodies age over time. The pages also exhibit individuals in bed in what appear to be a sexual scenario. Petitioner claims these materials are used in a fourth-grade health studies class but did not provide any proof beyond her unsupported claim.

Petitioner alleges that actions by the BOE violated N.J.S.A. 18A:35-4.6 and 4.7 "when the New Jersey State School Board voted the new learning standards and core curriculum into regulation-without any option for parents or guardians to opt out. The material from the unidentified textbook was submitted as proof of this alleged violation. In addition, the petitioner alleges that N.J.S.A.18A:36-36 was violated when respondent implemented the "model of equity in public school buildings resulting in prejudice reduction curriculum and hindering all children to meet a political agenda of equity". Petitioner also provided materials from the school district pertaining to the "Comprehensive Equity Plan" and documents from the "Affirmative Action Team" in support of this alleged violation.

Petitioner believes the foregoing violations are a "deprivation of rights, harmful and abusive school setting, clear violations of Title 18A". As a result, petitioner seeks the following relief;

1. The N.J. State School Board to amend their current unlawful policies, curriculum content.
2. N.J. State School Board to undergo a full audit and investigation into their implementation of district equity plans, N.J. Learning Standards that were voted into place in 2020 and the decisions made on implementing the new core curriculum standards.
3. N.J. State School Board to beheld lawfully accountable, and legally and civilly liable for their negligence when caring for children, and power revoked for knowingly causing detrimental long-term harm and pain to the children they were to protect. For using children for experimentation like "lab rats" to produce and collect data for political purposes such as equity.
4. A parental Committee for community members to volunteer and rotate having a seat at the table for the public portions of every N.J. State School Board meetings.
5. Voting Rights to elect who sits on the N.J. State Board of Education and term limits.

Respondent denies petitioner is entitled to emergent relief as she fails to meet any of the criteria necessary to prevail on such a claim. Respondent further argues that petitioner fails state a claim upon which relief could be granted and that the requested relief is beyond the venue of this court.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

I. Emergent Issues

The standards which must be met by the moving party in an application for emergent relief in a matter involving "a district board of education or any party subject to the jurisdiction of the Commissioner" are embodied in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b), "an application for emergent relief shall address the following standards to be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126, 132–34 (1982):

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;

2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;

3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and

4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

The moving party has the burden to prove each of the above standards by clear and convincing evidence. Brown v City of Paterson, 424 N.J. Super 176, 183 (App. Div. 2012); Waste Mgmt. of N.J. v Union Cty. Utils. Auth., 399 N.J. Super 508, 520 (App. Div. 2008).

Accordingly, each of the standards of the statute must be analyzed:

1. Whether petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the application is not granted.

One of the principles for emergent relief is that relief should only be ordered to prevent irreparable harm to the petitioner. Crowe, 90 N.J. at 132–33. Harm is irreparable when it cannot be addressed with monetary damages. Ibid. This standard contemplates that the harm also be both substantial and immediate. Subcarrier Commc'ns, Inc. v. Day, 299 N.J. Super. 634, 638 (App. Div. 1997). "In certain circumstances, severe personal inconvenience can constitute irreparable injury justifying issuance of injunctive relief." Crowe, 90 N.J. at 133. "Pecuniary damages may be inadequate because of the nature of the injury or of the right affected." Ibid.

Petitioner's minor child N.G. is only in the first grade and as such is not yet of an age wherein "physical health" would be included in his curriculum, thus he will not be taking a course wherein the objectionable materials will be used. Petitioner does not limit this claim to only her child as she alleges that "no children of the fourth grade in New Jersey should not be shown materials of an explicit nature" but provides no evidence as to what if any harm could be caused. Petitioner's chief complaint expressed during oral argument was that the materials do not support abstinence in violation of State statute.

In this matter, petitioner makes broad claims of statutory violations with no factual or legal support for same and more importantly that would prove irreparable harm will in fact be suffered.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has failed to sufficiently demonstrate that irreparable harm will be suffered by ether her son or any student if the emergent relief is not granted.

2. Whether the legal right underlying petitioner's claim is well settled.

Petitioner alleged that the BOE violated N.J.S.A. 18A:35-4.6 the "Parents Rights to Conscience Act of 1979", and 18A:35-4.7 "Parent's statement of conflict with conscience" in allowing the use of certain materials in physical health course and not allowing any option for parents or guardians to opt their children out. No proof was offered to verify this claim and the BOE in both its moving papers and oral argument affirmatively indicated that the parents still enjoy the benefits enumerated in N.J.S.A. 18A:35-4.7.

The BOE further argued that the State legislature enacted legislation requiring school districts incorporate instructions on diversity and inclusion beginning in the 2021-2022 school year. N.J.S.A. 18A:35-4.36a(a) requires instruction "to highlight and promote diversity, including equity, inclusion, tolerance and belonging in connection with "gender and sexual orientation". As such, the BOE is required by the legislation to promote the diversity and inclusion of all persons in the state regardless of their gender or sexual orientation in school curriculums, and the BOE is permitted to use their expertise and superior knowledge of its field to implement any such legislative requirements. N.J. Div. of Youth & Family Servs. v. T.B., 207 N.J. 294, 301 (2011).

Petitioner also alleged a violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:36-36 "Pupil information, certain, classroom materials; rules." In section (a) the statute reads "a pupil in a public school shall not be required to supply information regarding the pupil's race, ethnicity, migrant status or economically disadvantaged status on any materials distributed in class." In section (b) the statute prohibits the distribution of materials that would include obvious indicators of a student's race, ethnicity, migrant status or economically disadvantaged status. Lastly section (c) specifically delegates to the BOE the ability to promulgate rules to effectuate the intent of the act. Petitioners has failed to demonstrate that the respondent is in violation of this statute.

Petitioner has failed to provide any support that would demonstrate the alleged statutory violations enumerated in the petition. Conversely, the BOE is promulgating policies that implement the laws properly enacted by the legislature.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has failed to establish that her claims are well settled.

3. Whether petitioner is likely to be successful on the merits of its claim.

Petitioner must demonstrate at the emergent hearing that she is likely to prevail on the merits. A pleading must allege sufficient facts that give rise to a cause of action, mere conclusions are inadequate. Glass v. Suburban Restoration Co. 317 N.J. Super. 574, 582 (App. Div. 1985). Here, petitioner's claims lack specificity and/or clarity that are necessary to show her claims are more than just bare conclusions. In addition, there is doubt as to the ability of this tribunal to grant any of the relief petitioner is requesting.

The first item of relief requested for the BOE to "amend their current unlawful policies, curriculum content" lacks any specificity as to what policies are "unlawful" and more important, why they are unlawful. This request seemingly ignores N.J.A.C. 6A:6-4.1 which affords an interested party the ability to petition the BOE to "adopt or amend or repeal" an existing rule. Petitioner provides no explanation as to why she has not availed herself of as this process or what specific rule she would "amend, or repeal".

The second item of relief requested that the BOE "undergo a full audit and Investigation" into their "implementation of policies voted into place in 2020 and decisions made on implementing the new core curriculum standards." Hereto, the petitioner fails to provide any factual or legal basis that would support an order for such relief. Moreover, the request ignores the well-established process by which the BOE implements policies and curriculum standards. Without any factual claims to support how that process may have been flawed no relief can be granted.

The third item of relief requests civil liability against the BOE and alleges negligence without any detail as to what actions may give rise to civil liability. Claims against governmental entities is already addressed under the N.J. Tor Claims Act N.J.S.A. 59:1-1 et seq. The last part of this item of relief suggests a Revocation of the BOE's "power" and broadly alleges "knowingly causing detrimental long-term harm and pain to the children" and "using children for experimentation" without any indication of what actions may give rise to such claims.

The fourth item of relief requests envisions the creation of a "voluntary committee of community members to have a "seat at the table" of every BOE meeting. Here, such relief that is well beyond this tribunal's authority, and ignores the fact that the BOE is an established governmental entity and any proposed changes to it must be made through the legislative process.

Lastly, petitioner seeks to have "voting rights" to elect who sits on the BOE. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-4 the Governor is responsible for the appointment of BOE members, and this tribunal is without authority to amend or overturn this power.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE petitioner is not likely to be successful on the merits of these claims.

4. Whether the petitioner will suffer greater harm than respondent if the requested relief is not granted.

The court must weigh the relative hardship of the parties and balance the equities. Petitioner is a concerned mother whose is taking action to protect her son, fortunately he is not yet of an age wherein he will be required to attend sex education and thus will not be exposed to the materials complained of herein. Further, to grant her the requested relief would require the BOE to invalidate all of the physical health education curriculums in in all of the school districts in the state.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE the equities in this matter are with respondent.

After weighing the statutory standards, the petitioner has failed to prove by clear and convincing evidence that she is entitled to emergent relief. Accordingly, the request for emergent relief must be DENIED.

ORDER

The Petitioner having failed to meet the standards of N.J.A.C., the application for emergent relief is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified, or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who is authorized by law to make the final decision in this case. The final decision shall be issued without delay but no later than forty-five days from the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify, or reject this order within those forty-five days, this recommended order shall become the final decision on the issue of emergency relief under N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Order on Emergent Relief

R.C., on behalf of minor child, N.G.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the Township of Chesterfield, Burlington County,

Respondent.

The record of this emergent matter and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to the standards enunciated in Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL denying petitioner's application for emergent relief is adopted. This matter shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and the ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

BEFORE JEFFREY N. RABIN, ALJ:

---

[1] Petitioner is not the sole parent of N.G.; she is separated from his father and opted to file this without N.G.'s father being a party to this litigation.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner has challenged the school mask mandate imposed by the respondent Township of Chesterfield Board of Education (Board or Chesterfield) effective August 9, 2021, and a medical examination of minor child N.G. by the school nurse from April 2021, claiming these violate Title 18A of the New Jersey statutes.

The within motion for emergent relief was filed by petitioner on August 27, 2021, with the New Jersey Department of Education (DOE), Office of Controversies and Disputes (OCD). The motion for emergent relief was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 1, 2021. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Due to the Covid-19 pandemic, an emergent hearing in this matter took place via Zoom on September 8, 2021. Neither party indicated that there would be any issues remaining once the within issues for emergent relief were resolved, and therefore there would be no need for a full due process hearing.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on petitioner's Petition for emergent relief and respondent's Answer, and the documentation and testimony proffered by both parties, and solely for the purpose of deciding this emergent appeal, I FIND the following to be the undisputed facts:

1. On March 12, 2021, Chesterfield advised petitioner that it would be conducting its annual student "Universal health screenings," to measure height, weight, body mass, blood pressure, vision and hearing. Petitioner replied by email that she was opting to forego N.G. receiving such screening, and would provide the same data from his last private doctor's visit. On April 27, 2021, Chesterfield conducted a universal health screening of N.G. Petitioner confirmed to the school that she had not consented to N.G. receiving a universal health screening.
2. New Jersey Governor Philip Murphy instituted a mandate that all public school students must wear masks indoors in schools due to the Covid-19 pandemic, with certain exemptions, by way of Executive Order #251, effective August 9, 2021. Respondent Chesterfield adopted the Governor's mandate effective August 9, 2021.

3. Petitioner, R.C., is one of the parents of minor child, N.G., who was scheduled to begin first grade at Chesterfield Elementary School on September 8, 2021. Because petitioner felt N.G. should have been exempted from the school's mask requirement, R.C. opted to keep N.G. home from school on September 8, 2021.

TESTIMONY

For petitioner:

R.C. served as her own counsel and as a witness. She testified that learning was difficult for her son, N.G., during the 2020-21 school year due to changes caused by the Covid-19 pandemic. Excessive time in front of a screen led to migraine headaches, resulting in the school implementing a 504 accommodation plan for N.G. N.G.'s migraines were made worse by wearing a mask and he had issues wearing a mask in hot weather. Mask-wearing and social distancing affected N.G.'s ability to socialize with his peers. N.G. was not happy about going to school because teachers forced him to wear a mask and this led to sleep and bladder issues. Wearing a mask went against R.C.'s religious beliefs as a Christian and her moral beliefs; she believes in "freedom."

Her testimony was not credible. R.C. spoke of N.G. suffering migraines and sleep and bladder issues without proffering any medical evidence or medical testimony. All the unsubstantiated medical issues raised by R.C. were from the school year before the mask mandate of August 9, 2021, and thus predated the mask mandate she was challenging. Petitioner offered no evidence except her personal opinion that masks were harmful or failed to be effective in preventing the spread of Covid-19. Although R.C. claimed N.G. could not go to school because of his issues with masks, it was R.C. who voluntarily kept her child home from school. Respondent acknowledged that there was an exemption from the mask mandate for health reasons, but petitioner had never submitted medical notes from doctors requesting that N.G. be exempted from the mask mandate. Finally, her claims of harm to N.G. did not jibe with the fact that the first day of school subsequent to the mask mandate was to be on September 8, 2021, but R.C. testified that she had chosen to keep N.G. home from school on September 8, 2021, and therefore there was no actual harm befalling N.G. as a result of the mask mandate dated August 9, 2021.

For respondent:

Respondent counsel, Kasi Marie Gifford, Esq., presented the Board's case, with assistance from the Chesterfield Superintendent of Schools, Scott Heino. Unlike petitioner, respondent addressed the four-pronged test for emergent relief set out in N.J.A.C. 6A: 3-1.6 and Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), as set out below. Gifford stated that there could be no irreparable harm because the mask mandate had just gone into effect and the school year was just beginning. Further, the Board was simply complying with Governor Murphy's August 9, 2021, mask mandate. As set forth in respondent's Answer, the Board had no discretion to ignore Governor Murphy's Executive Order #251, per N.J.S.A. 18A:11-1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(a). Respondent further asserted in its Answer that funds to the District could be withheld by the Commissioner of Education if a local school board ignored its statutory duties, per N.J.S.A. 18A:55-2.

Gifford stated that there were medical exemptions to the mask mandate, but that petitioner never requested an exemption and failed to provide any medical documentation in support of a medical exemption, and therefore should be precluded from emergent relief because she failed to pursue all administrative remedies. There was no exemption for religious or moral beliefs.

The law in New Jersey was settled in favor of a mask mandate because Governor Murphy issued an Executive Order, which had the effect of law. Accordingly, there was no likelihood that petitioner would succeed in overturning a school board mask mandate effectuated pursuant to a governor's Executive Order.

Finally, regarding the fourth prong, the balancing of equities, Gifford stated that the Chesterfield Board of Education was responsible for the health, safety and welfare of all students in the district, not just student N.G.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

The issue is whether petitioner has proven by a preponderance of the evidence that she has met the standard for emergent relief, and that she is entitled to relief.

Petitioner has alleged that the Board committed the following violations of New Jersey law:

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1, alleging that the Board employed corporal punishment by forcing students to wear masks to prevent the spread of Covid-19;

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-1.1, alleging the forced wearing of masks was akin to forcing students to take experimental drugs or medications;

N.J.S.A. 18A:11-8, alleging the Board violated its own dress code by requiring masks, and imposing such requirement without public hearings or input from parents, or an opt-out option for parents;

N.J.S.A. 18A:35-4.6 and 4.7, alleging the Board's mandate of mask-wearing went against the statute prohibiting parents from being forced to behave in a manner that conflicts with their conscience. Petitioner, R.C., opposed masks because they conflicted with her moral and religious beliefs;

N.J.S.A. 18A:35-4.8, alleging the Board conducted a medical examination of N.G. even though petitioner R.C. had specifically denied consent and refused such examination for her son;

N.J.S.A. 18A:36-20, alleging the Board discriminated against N.G. by denying him the right to attend school without fear of retaliation;

N.J.S.A. 18A:37-14, alleging the Board committed acts of harassment, intimidation or bullying (HIB) against N.G. by enforcing the mask-wearing mandate and mocking and bullying students into conforming with the mask mandate;

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-5.1, alleging the mask mandate violated her right of religion, creed, and religious and moral beliefs; and N.J.S.A. 18A:40-12.3, alleging the mask mandate violated the statute permitting students to self-administer medications, because she had not consented to N.G. wearing a mask.

The relief sought by petitioner is for the Board to reverse its current mask policy or amend it to give parents the option to "opt-out" of the requirement; for there to be an audit and investigation of how the Board handled the Covid-19 pandemic over the last two years; that the Board be held liable for negligence based on detrimental long-term harm caused to students by the way it cared for students; that a voluntary parent committee be formed to oversee day-to-day operations of the school district alongside the superintendent of schools, and that the committee have a seat alongside the Board at monthly school board meetings; and that the Board acknowledge that it is in violation of open public meeting acts/"Sunshine" laws by not holding in-person school board meetings.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9 authorizes the Commissioner of Education to consider controversies between a parent and a school board. OAL is the appropriate venue for hearing an appeal of a school board findings and OCD properly forwarded this matter to OAL for this emergent appeal to be heard.

As stated above, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A: 3-1.6 and the case of Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), a petitioner must show by a preponderance of the evidence that four prongs/prerequisites have been met in petitioner's favor in order to be eligible for emergent relief. The form of Petition executed and filed by petitioner on August 27, 2021, contained a Section VI clearly setting forth petitioner's obligation to demonstrate that the four prongs have been met, and providing petitioner with the four-prong test and legal citations to the regulatory code section and Crowe.

A petitioner bears the burden of proving the four prongs for emergent relief. B.W. ex rel. D.W. v. Lenape Reg'l High Sch. Dist., OAL Dkt. No. EDS 06933-05, Agency Ref. No. 2006-10522E, at 8 (N.J. Adm); see also J.G. ex rel. Q.B. v. Bd. of Educ. of Lakewood, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 10073-03, Agency Dkt. No. 466-12/03, at 6 (N.J. Adm); R.D. ex rel. C.D. v. Willingboro Bd. of Educ., 95 N.J.A.R.2d 190, at 2.

Per N.J.A.C. 6A: 3-1.6 and Crowe, emergent relief may be granted if the judge determines from the proofs that the following four prongs have been met:

i. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;

ii. The legal right underlying the petitioner's claim is settled;

iii. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and

iv. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

Section VI of the Pro Se Petition of Appeal filed by petitioner required that a petitioner's appeal be accompanied by a memorandum addressing the four-pronged Crowe standard for relief. Petitioner attached a list of statutory violations to her petition; however, petitioner failed to address the Crowe standard for emergent relief. There was no mention of the Crowe test, nor were any of the four prongs raised at all. Further, despite being reminded of the importance of the Crowe test at the within hearing, petitioner failed to offer legal arguments proving that she met the Crowe prerequisites for emergent relief.

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted.

Petitioner failed in her filings and at the hearing to offer any evidence of irreparable harm to N.G. resulting from the Board's imposition of the mask mandate on August 9, 2021, or to result if this court does not overturn the Board's mask mandate. In fact, the school year was to begin on September 8, 2021, the date of the within hearing, and petitioner did not explain how N.G. could have suffered irreparable harm before the school year even began; petitioner testified that she was not allowing N.G. to go to school on September 8, 2021, and therefore no irreparable harm could have yet been suffered by N.G.

Petitioner failed to prove that the wearing of masks to prevent the spread of Covid-19 met the legal definition of "corporal punishment." She failed to assert any irreparable harm suffered by her child due to wearing a mask at school pursuant to the mask mandate of August 9, 2021, and failed to produce any medical evidence or testimony showing any medical issues from wearing a mask the previous school year, and no medical evidence or testimony indicating irreparable harm which might occur in the current school year if the mask mandate would not be overturned. She failed to prove that the wearing of masks to prevent the spread of Covid-19 was the same as forcing someone to take experimental drugs or medication or that, if it was the same, N.G. had suffered any irreparable harm from wearing a mask. She failed to demonstrate what the current dress code was and how the mask mandate violated that code, and failed to demonstrate that school policy or State statutes, regulations or caselaw required public hearings specifically regarding amendments to a dress code. She also failed to allege any irreparable harm caused by any perceived changes to the dress code. Petitioner stated that masks went against her conscience, morals and religious beliefs, without asserting what the moral issue was or what her religion was or what her religious beliefs were. Upon questioning, petitioner revealed that she is a Christian and that she believes in "freedom," but she failed to show how wearing a mask to prevent a contagious disease went against those beliefs, or what irreparable harm was caused by the perceived violations of her conscience, morals or beliefs.

While it appears clear that the Board conducted a universal health screening in April of 2021, in contravention of R.C.'s wishes, petitioner failed to assert what irreparable harm was caused by said screening, and failed to prove that she had complied with the exception to the universal health screening dictate by failing to provide evidence that she submitted screening results to the Board for N.G. from N.G.'s personal physician.[2] The fact that this issue arose more than four months ago also indicated that any possible relief would not be available on an emergent basis.

Petitioner failed to offer any proof that the Board discriminated against N.G. by denying him the right to attend school without fear of retaliation; no dates were given for any retaliatory behavior, no examples of acts of retaliation by the school were offered by petitioner, nor were any examples of mocking, bullying or intimidation offered by petitioner with any evidence to support such allegations. Further, even if such HIB acts had taken place, no evidence was provided that such acts were specifically against N.G., and no claims of specific irreparable harm tied to such alleged acts were cited.

Petitioner offered no scientific or medical evidence—no expert testimony, scientific materials, or doctors' reports from examinations of N.G.—to show that N.G. had been harmed by wearing a mask or suffered irreparable harm by the imposition of the mask mandate. Conversely, the Board asserted that its mask mandate was imposed in order to comply with Governor Murphy's mask mandate in order to protect the health, safety and welfare of the students in its school district.

Neither side provided evidence regarding the effectiveness of wearing masks. Regardless, I FIND that masks may be a valuable tool in stopping or limiting the spread of a contagious disease like Covid-19, based on the guidelines promulgated by the Center for Disease Control (CDC), American Academy of Pediatrics, and Dr. Anthony S. Fauci, Director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID) and Chief Medical Advisor to President Donald J. Trump and President Joseph R. Biden. Preventing death and debilitating disease is the opposite of irreparable harm; it is a life-affirming benefit.

[2] When confronted with the fact that there was no way to go back in time and undo the school's universal health screening of N.G. from April 2021, R.C. acknowledged that there was no relief that this court could provide her. Petitioner wanted to be clear for any future screenings, however, that she continues not to consent to the school conducting those screenings of N.G.

Additionally, petitioner failed to explain why she did not seek to take advantage of the exemptions to the Governor's mask mandate. Respondent stated that there was a medical exemption to the mask mandate, but that petitioner never requested an exemption and failed to provide any medical documentation in support of a medical exemption. There was no exemption for religious or moral beliefs. There was also an exception for wearing masks in excessive heat and during "rigorous activity" in gym class, but petitioner provided no evidence that heat and gym activity had caused irreparable harm. Petitioner discussed social distancing in the school playground, but that was not a location covered by the Governor's or respondent's mask mandate.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner failed to show that this first prong of the Crowe test for emergent relief had been met in favor of the petitioner.

2. The legal right underlying the petitioner's claim is settled.

Petitioner did not address the legal right underlying her claim in neither her Petition and accompanying documentation nor during the hearing, except to allude to two "dress codes" cases that did not involve masks. Petitioner did not state any legal grounds for her position that the Board's imposition of the Governor's mask mandate was improper and should be overturned. She acknowledged that New Jersey courts had not yet settled the propriety of mask mandates.

Mask mandates are a new and unique issue, resulting from the current Covid-19 pandemic. This is a case of first impression before this court, and neither party offered any precedential caselaw setting out legal guidelines concerning mask mandates. Petitioner failed to proffer any caselaw which supports her position or which purports to show that this matter is settled with regards to schools in New Jersey. Until the legal rights underlying petitioner's claims regarding mask policies in schools are settled, relief cannot be provided on an emergent basis.

Regarding petitioner's claims that Governor Murphy's mandate, which respondent was enforcing, violated the Constitution, it appeared that the law was settled in favor of the Governor. According to Article V of the State Constitution, the Governor of New Jersey can declare a Public Health Emergency and State of Emergency to "protect the health, safety and welfare of the people of New Jersey," which is what Governor Murphy did first through his first Executive Order (Executive Order #103). While he ended the State of Emergency this summer, it was pursuant to the New Jersey Constitution that Governor Murphy issued his mask mandate via Executive Order #251 on August 9, 2021.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner failed to show that the second prong of the Crowe test for emergent relief had been met in favor of the petitioner.

3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim.

Petitioner did not address her likelihood of prevailing on the merits of her underlying claims. She offered no evidence to support her claim or to show a likelihood of success in a full due process hearing. She set out no caselaw showing that this matter has been decided elsewhere in New Jersey in such a way as to serve as precedent in the within manner. Petitioner offered no caselaw, statute or regulation demonstrating that a school board has discretion to ignore its governor's emergency actions, or that Governor Murphy himself acted in an improper or illegal manner when setting forth a mask mandate. In fact, it has long been held that local governmental entities have a great deal of discretion when taking action to promote the health, safety and welfare of its citizens.

It must also be noted that, although petitioner offered a list of statutes she alleged had been violated as a result of the respondent's mask mandate, she failed to meet her burden of proving that each of those education statutes had in fact been violated. Unsupported allegations do not show a likelihood of success in a full due process hearing; in fact, allegations unsupported by evidence show that there is a likelihood that petitioner would not prevail on the merits of the underlying case.

Although it appears undisputed that the universal health screening was conducted without R.C.'s consent, petitioner failed to prove that she supplied an examination report from N.G.'s own physician addressing the elements of the universal health screening, which was the requirement sent by the school to R.C., if she had wished to opt out of the screening. Without such evidence, there is an argument that the school acted properly in administering the universal health screening.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner failed to show that the third prong of the Crowe test for emergent relief had been met in favor of the petitioner.

4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

Petitioner failed to address this fourth prong of the Crowe test. She claimed that wearing a mask interfered with N.G.'s ability to socialize with his peers, but she failed to argue that such an issue would outweigh any harm to respondent.

Most difficult in conducting this balancing test without input from the petitioner is that petitioner, in her formal Petition, set out a list of desired relief which cannot legally or reasonably be provided by this court.

For instance, this court has no legal authority to appoint a committee to serve alongside a superintendent of a school district. There are statutes and regulations which guide the hiring of a superintendent of schools, none of which were provided to this court by petitioner. In balancing petitioner's prayer for relief against the potential harm to respondent, there is a much greater likelihood that a school district and its student body would suffer greater harm by having unqualified citizens running the day-to-day operations of an entire school district. Certainly, there must be guidelines for how school board meetings are conducted, but none were provided by petitioner to this court. There was also no evidence provided as to violations of any open public meetings law by respondent, nor did petitioner provide citations or caselaw covering open public meetings. Further, violations of open public meetings by respondent were not the transmitted cause of action in this matter and, therefore, are outside the purview of this emergent matter. This court has no authority to require a school board to publicly acknowledge alleged violations that are not before this court, and which have not been proven.

Without medical evidence of harm since implementation of the mask mandate by the Board on August 9, 2021, the within balancing test is therefore between a student's and parents' liberties and moral and religious beliefs, versus the public health and welfare, in particular the spread of a contagious disease which has killed over 600,000 Americans, and for which there is not yet a vaccine for those age twelve and under. Petitioner failed to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the mask policy and enforcement of same by the respondent caused specific irreparable harm to her son, N.G.

Conversely, prevailing medical guidelines are for masks to be worn by unvaccinated people in order to stop the spread of Covid-19. Of the millions of people who have contracted Covid-19, more than 600,000 Americans have lost their lives. Balancing the saving of students' lives against one student's vague and unspecified beliefs and unproven claims of harm, the balancing clearly leans in favor of the respondent Board's position. As the current scientific opinions are that wearing masks and receiving vaccines are the way for our society as a whole to defeat the scourge of Covid-19, allowing parents to violate a mask policy for unvaccinated minor students, without proof of irreparable harm, would most likely cause harm to the entirety of the Chesterfield School District.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner failed to show that the fourth prong of the Crowe test for emergent relief had been met in favor of the petitioner.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioner failed to show by a preponderance of the evidence that she met any of the four prongs of the Crowe test for emergent relief. I CONCLUDE that petitioner failed to prove that she was entitled to emergent relief in this matter.

ORDER

The petitioner's motion for emergent relief is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the City of Newark, Essex County,

Respondent.

Synopsis

This matter involves a challenge by the petitioner to the respondent Board's attempt to exercise its right of reversion regarding the Maple Avenue School – one of several properties that were transferred from the respondent Board to the Newark Housing Authority (NHA) under the terms of a 2016 site disposition and development agreement (Agreement) in which the NHA agreed to convey the buildings to third parties for the benefit of the Board and the City of Newark. Petitioner purchased Maple Avenue School from a third party in March 2020 and is developing it as a public charter school. In April 2020, the Board filed suit in Superior Court against the NHA, seeking to exercise its right to reversion based on the argument that NHA had failed to complete a site project and that the property was not being used for one of the Agreement's permitted uses. Petitioner subsequently filed the within matter, alleging that the Board was not authorized to file the Superior Court complaint and had failed to comply with facilities regulations.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the issues for determination herein are whether this matter arises under the school laws and whether the appeal was timely filed; the fact that school buildings were sold by the Board to NHA does not make the purpose of the Agreement a school facility project; under N.J.A.C 6A:3-1.3(i), a petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling, or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency that is the subject of the case; petitioner herein was put on notice of the Superior Court action when it was served with the amended complaint on May 4, 2020. The ALJ concluded that the Agreement is not a school facilities project and therefore this matter does not arise under the school laws; further, the petition of appeal was untimely because petitioner filed its appeal in April 2021, which was not within ninety days of becoming aware of the Superior Court complaint in May 2020. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision and dismissed the petition.

Upon independent review of the record, the Commissioner denied the Board's motion for summary decision and remanded the matter to the OAL for further proceedings. In so doing, the Commissioner found, inter alia, that: the petition was timely; the ALJ overlooked the specific school laws which petitioner alleges the Board has violated; and the ALJ erred in concluding, as a matter of summary decision, that this matter is not a school facilities project.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

Final Decision

Friends of Team Charter School, Inc.,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the City of Newark, Essex County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the exceptions filed by petitioner pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4, and the Board's reply thereto, have been reviewed and considered.

This matter involves the transfer of twelve school buildings from the Board to the Newark Housing Authority (NHA), pursuant to a 2016 site disposition and development agreement (Agreement) in which the NHA agreed to convey the buildings to third parties for the benefit of the Board and the City of Newark. The Agreement provided that any sites conveyed to the NHA would be subject to a right of reversion, which the Board could exercise if the NHA had not developed a site project or demonstrable plans for a site within three years of the Agreement. The NHA sold one of the sites – the Maple Avenue School – to a third party in 2017, and that party sold the property to petitioner, which is developing the property as a public charter school.

On April 6, 2020, the Board filed a complaint against the NHA in Superior Court, seeking to enforce its rights to reversion of the Maple Avenue School property on the grounds that a site project had not been completed and the property was not being used for one of the Agreement's permitted uses. Petitioner was served with an amended complaint, adding petitioner as a defendant, on May 4, 2020. In December 2020, petitioner's motion to dismiss was denied by the Superior Court.

On January 21, 2021, petitioner filed Open Public Records Act (OPRA) requests with the Board, seeking Board resolutions authorizing the filing of the Superior Court complaint. The Board responded on March 5, 2021, indicating that no such documents were maintained. Petitioner made a second OPRA request on April 7, 2021, seeking facilities applications to the Department of Education (DOE). The Board responded on April 21, 2021, indicating that no such applications exist.

On April 13, 2021, petitioner filed the petition of appeal in this matter, alleging that the Board was not authorized to file the Superior Court complaint and had failed to comply with facilities regulations. The ALJ granted the Board's motion for summary decision, concluding that the Agreement is not a school facilities project and that the petition of appeal was untimely because petitioner did not file within ninety days of becoming aware of the Superior Court complaint in May 2020.

In its exceptions, petitioner argues that it did not – and could not have – become aware that the Board had not authorized the filing of the Superior Court complaint or submitted facilities applications to the DOE until it received the Board's response to its OPRA requests. Petitioner therefore contends that the Board's OPRA response provided the notice to petitioner that triggered the 90-day limitations period, and the petition of appeal was timely because it was filed within 90 days of that date. Petitioner also claims that, because the Board is seeking to acquire property through the Superior Court lawsuit, it constitutes a school facilities project, and that the Board has failed to comply with school facilities regulations. Finally, petitioner argues that there are disputed issues of material fact, particularly regarding the Board's intentions for the property, that preclude summary decision.

In reply, the Board argues that the action triggering the 90-day limitations period was service of the amended Superior Court complaint on petitioner. The Board notes that the OPRA requests were not filed until January 15, 2021, 256 days after petitioner was on notice of the Superior Court complaint, and that the Board's meeting minutes were publicly available on its website in time for petitioner to investigate and file a timely petition of appeal. The Board also contends that the Commissioner lacks jurisdiction over this matter because a lawsuit does not constitute a school facilities project. Finally, the Board argues that summary decision was appropriate because the Board's potential future plans for the property are immaterial and the Board will comply with any applicable school facilities regulations if and when it undertakes such projects.

Upon review, the Commissioner disagrees with the ALJ that the petition was untimely. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(d), the 90-day period for appeal to the Commissioner begins when the affected individuals have received adequate notice. In order for the notice to be adequate, the individuals must have been alerted to the existence of facts which give rise to a cause of action. Kaprow v. Bd. of Educ. of Berkeley Twp., 131 N.J. 572, 586-587 (1993). By characterizing the subject of the case as the filing of the Superior Court complaint, and focusing on the date of service on petitioner, the ALJ overlooked the specific school laws which petitioner alleges the Board has violated: failure to authorize the complaint, and failure to comply with school facilities regulations.

Regarding the alleged failure to authorize the complaint, while the Board points out in briefing that its meeting minutes were publicly available on its website, no evidence has been presented to demonstrate that fact.[1] Moreover, due to the onset of the Covid-19 pandemic shortly before the Superior Court complaint was filed, minutes reflecting the Board's actions were broad and vague, and it is not unreasonable for petitioner to have been uncertain about whether the complaint was authorized by the Board, particularly when the complaint itself indicates it was filed by the Board. Additionally, payment for legal services for the Superior Court litigation is presumably ongoing, and if petitioner is correct that those payments are being made in violation of school laws, each one could give rise to a new cause of action.

Regarding the alleged violation of facilities regulations, the Commissioner can discern no way for petitioner or any member of the public to know, without an OPRA request, that the Board had not filed paperwork with the DOE related to school facilities projects. Additionally, the Board's failure to file paperwork – if petitioner is correct that such filing is required – is an ongoing failure.

It was not until the receipt of the Board's responses to the OPRA requests that petitioner had the information that led it to believe that the complaint had not been authorized and that the Board had violated facilities regulations. As the petition of appeal was filed within 90 days of those responses, the Commissioner concludes that it was timely.

The Commissioner further finds that the ALJ erred in concluding, as a matter of summary decision, that this matter is not a school facilities project. The ALJ noted that the purpose of the Agreement is not a school facility project solely because the properties sold were school buildings. However, this finding mischaracterizes the issue. While the Agreement itself is not a school facilities project, the Board's pursuit of litigation to exercise the right of reversion contained in the Agreement could constitute land acquisition and/or a school facilities project, [11] Petitioner has also indicated in briefing that the Board's minutes reveal that the Board did not take any action regarding the property. However, this statement contains no indication of when those minutes were posted and demonstrates only that they were posted at the time of briefing.

subject to applicable statutes and regulations. At minimum, petitioner has raised sufficient issues of material fact to preclude summary decision on this topic.

The Commissioner does not reach the issues of jurisdiction, standing, or whether the Board has violated any school laws, as the record is insufficient at this stage to reach any such conclusions. Accordingly, the Board's motion for summary decision is denied. The matter is remanded for further proceedings consistent with this decision.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Matthew J. Tharney, Esq., for respondent, (Sattiraju & Tharney, LLP, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 14, 2021 Decided: July 23, 2021

BEFORE KIMBERLY A. MOSS, ALJ:

This matter having been opened before the Office of Administrative Law by Matthew J. Tharney Esq., attorney for respondent on motion for summary decision on May 3, 2021, in lieu of an answer to the petition. Petitioner filed opposition to the motion on June 23, 2021. Respondent filed a reply to the opposition on July 14, 2021.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

By way of background, in April 2016, Newark Board of Education (Board or NPS or respondent) entered into a site disposition and development agreement (Agreement) with the Newark Housing authority (NHA). The Board agreed to transfer twelve school buildings to NHA. NHA agreed to convey those buildings to third parties for the benefit of the Board and the City of Newark.

There is also a provision in the agreement that states Article 5.2 which states "Any sites conveyed to the NHA shall be subject to a right of reversion exercisable by NPS (Newark Public Schools) if and to the extent the NHA has not developed a site project or demonstrable plans for such site within three years from the date of execution of this agreement.

The agreement clearly states in Article 5.4(1) Site Projects that NHA shall work diligently to investigate and identify feasible housing, redevelopment and economic development opportunities at each site project.

Maple Avenue School was included in the agreement. The Board transferred title of Maple Avenue School to NHA on June 30, 2016.

Petitioner alleges that on November 16, 2017, the Board executed and delivered a second Bargain and Sale deed to the property with a covenant against Grantor's acts which states that it has done no acts to encumber the property. Petitioner also states that an affidavit of title dated November 16, 2017, stated that the Board has not allowed any interest to be created which affects its ownership and use of the property and that there are no other legal obligations that can be asserted against the property. Petitioner did not include the bargain and sale deed or the affidavit of title in the opposition or the petition.

On or about December 27, 2017, NHA sold the Maple Avenue School property 33 Maple Avenue Urban renewal LLC (33 Maple LLC). On March 12, 2020, 33 Maple LLC sold the property to petitioner. Petitioner is developing the property as a public school.

On April 6, 2020, the Board filed a complaint in Superior Court Chancery Division Essex County titled Newark Board of Education v. Newark Housing Authority Docket No ESX-C 67-20. The Complaint is for breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing, tortious interference with contract, and unjust enrichment. The Board sought to enforce its rights to reversion to the Maple Avenue School on the grounds that a site project had not been completed and the property was not being used for one of the agreements permitted uses.

On April 27, 2020, an amended complaint was filed naming plaintiff as a defendant. The amended complaint was served on plaintiff on May 4, 2020. The Board filed a second amended complaint on August 31, 2020. Plaintiff filed a motion to dismiss the Superior Court Complaint on October 2, 2020. That motion was denied on December 20, 2020. Petitioner alleges that the filing of the Complaint and amended complaint were not duly authorized by the Board, because it was not listed in the Board's minutes from July 1, 2019, to January 15, 2021. Petitioner alleges that there were no resolutions authorizing the complaint. Petitioner filed this matter with the New Jersey Department of Education on or about April 13, 2021.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

Respondent seeks to summarily dismiss petitioner's claim. The rules governing motions for summary decision in an OAL matter are embodied N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. These provisions mirror the language of Rule 4:46-2 and the New Jersey Supreme Court's decision in Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Company of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954).

Under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), the determination to grant summary judgment should be based on the papers presented as well as any affidavits, which may have been filed with the application. In order for the adverse, i.e., the non-moving party to prevail in such an application, responding affidavits must be submitted showing that there is indeed a genuine issue of fact, which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. The Court in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995), set the standard to be applied when deciding a motion for summary judgment. Therein the Court stated:

> The determination whether there exists a genuine issue with respect to a material fact challenged requires the Motion Judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party . . . are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party.

N.J.S.A. 18a:6-9 provides:

> The commissioner shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine, without cost to the parties, all controversies and disputes arising under the school laws, excepting those governing higher education, or under the rules of the State board or of the commissioner. For the purposes of this Title, controversies and disputes concerning the conduct of school elections shall not be deemed to arise under the school laws.

The issue is whether this matter arises under school laws. Count One of the petition states school district expenditures must be approved by a school board. There is a question of fact as to whether this matter arises out of school laws.

N.J.A.C. 6A: 26-1.2 defines school facility project as:

> "School facilities project" means the acquisition, demolition, construction, improvement, repair, alteration, modernization, renovation, reconstruction, or capital maintenance of all or any part of a school facility or any other personal property necessary for, or ancillary to, any school facility. School facilities project includes, but is not limited to, fixtures; furnishings and equipment; site acquisition; site development; services of design professionals such as engineers and architects; construction management; legal services; financing costs; and administrative costs and expenses incurred in connection with the project. To qualify as a school facilities project, the project must be new construction to meet the housing needs of > unhoused students, or rehabilitation to keep a school facility functional for its original purpose or for a new purpose accomplished within the gross square footage of the original building. Maintenance projects intended solely to achieve the design life of a school facility and routine maintenance do not constitute school facilities projects.

In this matter, the Site Disposition and Development Agreement between the Board and NHA states the purpose of the agreement is for NPS to realize expense savings and generate revenue for capital improvement, while also increasing the tax ratables for the City and enhancing job and employment opportunities for city residents. The fact that school buildings were sold by NPS to NHA does not make the purpose of the agreement a school facility project. The agreement clearly states in Article 5.4(1) Site Projects that NHA shall work diligently to investigate and identify feasible housing, redevelopment and economic development opportunities at each site project. The Agreement also has a reversion of property to NPS "if and to the extent the NHA has not developed a site project or demonstrable plans for such site within three years from the date of execution of this agreement." The Board wants to enforce this provision in the superior court case. The Board by its Complaint in Superior court is attempting to enforce a term of the agreement with NHA.

I CONCLUDE that this matter is not a school facilities matter.

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) requires that:

> The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.
>
> Such a rule represents a fair and reasonably necessary requirement for the proper and efficient resolution of disputes under the school laws and falls within the scope of authority granted to the Commissioner. Kaprow v. Bd. of Educ. of Berkeley Twp., 131 N.J. 572, 582 (1993). The limitation period gives school districts the security of knowing that administrative decisions regarding the operation of the school cannot be challenged after ninety days. Ibid. Its purposes are to stimulate litigants to pursue a right of action within a reasonable time so that the opposing party may have a fair opportunity to defend and to penalize dilatoriness and serve as a measure of repose by giving security and stability to human affairs. Id. at 587.

The ninety-day requirement is to be strictly construed and is mandatory. Wise v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Trenton, EDU 160-00, Comm'r (September 11, 2000), aff'd, State Bd. of Educ. (January 3, 2001), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>. A petitioner must file a petition within ninety days from a notice of adverse action and not within ninety days of her exhaustion of other avenues and mechanisms she might have employed in seeking renewal of employment. Id. Informal attempts to resolve a dispute do not serve to toll the statute of limitations. See Kaprow supra at 588. Also, the ninety-day period for filing a petition of appeal commences when a petitioner learns of facts that would enable her to file a timely claim. Id. at 587. "Adequate notice must be sufficient to inform an individual of some fact that he or she has a right to know and that the communicating party has a duty to communicate." Ibid. (citation omitted).

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.13 states:

The rules in this chapter shall be considered general rules of practice to govern, expedite and effectuate the procedure before, and the actions of the Commissioner in connection with, the determination of controversies and disputes under the school laws. Where such rules do not reflect a specific statutory requirement or an underlying rule of the OAL, they may be relaxed or dispensed with by the Commissioner, in the Commissioner's discretion, in any case where a strict adherence thereto may be deemed inappropriate or unnecessary or may result in injustice.

Petitioner was put on notice of the Superior Court action when it was served with the amended complaint on May 4, 2020. Petitioner knew of the Superior Court matter and filed a motion to dismiss the superior court matter on October 2, 2020. Petitioner 's belief that the Superior Court complaint was not filed does not negate the fact that petitioner was notified of the action and did not file a petition with the Department of Education within ninety days of May 4, 2020.

I CONCLUDE that the petition was not timely filed.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED that the Motion of the Board for summary decision is GRANTED. Because the petition was not filed timely, it is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified, or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify, or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

DAWN MARIE TURPIN – AUGUST 17, 2021

PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

This proceeding takes place pursuant to P.L. 2012, Chapter 26 of the laws of the State of New Jersey. The Respondent, John Toland, hereinafter referred to as Mr. Toland/Respondent, is a tenured health and physical education teaching staff member in the School District of the City Atlantic City, Atlantic County. The Petitioner School District is hereinafter referred to as the Board/District. The Respondent is assigned has a Certificate of Completion for Lifeguarding/First Aid/CPR/AED.

On January 14, 2019, an incident occurred in the pool at the High School involving a special needs student. The Respondent was the assigned teacher of record. A special needs student K.S. was in the pool and lost consciousness requiring cardiopulmonary resuscitation and the use of a defibrillator to regain a pulse. K.S. was transported to a local hospital for treatment. The Respondent acknowledges that a camera is located within the pool area of the High School.

On January 14, 2019, the respondent submitted an incident report concerning the issue that had occurred with K.S.

On July 3, 2020, Tracy Riley, Esq. on behalf of the Petitioner, filed with the Commissioner of Education six (6) tenure charges with various specifications against the Respondent. Included with the Tenure Charges was a Certificate of Determination prepared by Superintendent, Barry Caldwell. On August 19, 2020, Arnold Mellk, Esq. on behalf of the Respondent submitted answers to the Tenure Charges.

Incorporated in the various documents submitted to the Commissioner's Office by the Petitioner was a USB drive (See exhibit 8) which is a video of the January 14, 2019 pool incident. The video is identified as Exhibit 13H, and the Respondent has challenged the admissibility of the video.

On August 24, 2020, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16, the Commissioner of Education (Controversies and Disputes) referred the charges to the undersigned.

On September 2, 2020, a conference call with counselors Riley, Mellk and the arbitrator was held to discuss scheduling for the instant matter. It was agreed that hearings were to be scheduled for November 30, December 1-4, 2020

On November 18, 2020, in conformance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), Mr. Toland submitted his statement of evidence to the District. That statute states:

> "Upon referral of the case for arbitration, the employing board of education shall provide all evidence including, but not limited to, documents, electronic evidence, statements of witnesses, and a list of witnesses with a complete summary of their testimony to the employee or the employee's representative. The employing board of education shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing, except for purposes of impeachment of witnesses. At least 10 days prior to the hearing, the employee shall provide all evidence upon which he will rely including, but not limited to, documents, electronic evidence, statements of witnesses, and a list of witnesses with a complete summary of their testimony to the employing board or its representative. The employee shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing, except for purposes of impeachment of witnesses."

On November 23, 2020, the Respondent, John Toland, moved in limine to "prohibit the Petitioner, Atlantic City Board of Education, from proffering the testimony of any witness not properly identified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3). Mr. Toland further moves to prohibit the consideration of admission into evidence of any documents or other evidence likewise not identified and provided to Mr. Toland in conformance with that statute."

On November 25, 2020, the Petitioner (District) submitted its arguments to set aside Mr. Toland's Motion in Limine position.

POSITIONS OF THE PARTIES

Motion in Limine

For the Petitioner

The Petitioner strongly argues that, based upon the severity of the charges against the Respondent, the Motion in Limine should be denied. Moreover, on May 28, 2020, "Mr. Toland received a copy of the filed Tenure Charges by regular and certified mail. Contained within those tenure charges is specific allegations and evidence that the District would be relying upon to present those charges to the Board. Those charges went unanswered."

Furthermore, on "July 3, 2020, a Certification and Statement of Charges and Specifications, certificate of determination by Supt. Barry Caldwell, along with evidence the District would rely upon to present those charges were served on John Toland, the Respondent. Those charges and specifications were answered by Mr. Toland."

The Petitioner contends that the "intent of the legislation listed above to provide the opposing party with a list of witnesses, is to provide a reasonable opportunity and notice of the identity of the witnesses and the nature of their knowledge as it relates to a particular matter. The Petitioner asserts that a party may call another party to testify as a party. The Petitioner intends to call the Respondent to testify." In support of this position, the Petitioner argues they" can call the opposing party to testify as parties are fully aware of the charges and evidence supporting the case, all communicated via the notice of tenure charges as indicated above. Included within the evidence supplied by the Board is a written statement prepared by Mr. Toland. The Respondent has been aware of the contents of the allegations and supporting evidence for over six months."

For the above stated reasons, the Board asks that the Motion in Limine be denied.

For the Respondent

The Respondent argues that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), is controlling and states: the Board "shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing, except for purposes of impeachment." Mr. Toland strenuously argues that "other than the tenure charges and documents submitted", the Petitioner did not submit a list of witnesses and a summary of their testimony as the statue requires.

Additionally, the statue in question "is strictly construed, and self-executing and absent contrary legislative intent, statutes are to be given their plain meaning."

This case "was referred to an arbitrator on August 24, 2020, therefore, the Board was notified and aware that this was the referral date. The term referral in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) does not include a hard date, i.e., a specific number of days after referral of the case to arbitration for the Board to furnish its witness list. The statute does, however, contain a hard date-10 days - with respect to the employer's providing his witness list. The Respondent further argues that "it would be an absurd interpretation of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) to allow the employer to identify new witnesses after the employee is statutorily foreclosed from doing so."

The Respondent contends that N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) is a statute that requires mandatory adherence to its clean language. It is not permissive. "If the Board had wished to provide the required witness lists and summaries of testimony, it had every opportunity to do so. The allegations in this case date back to January 2019:

they are nearly two years old." Moreover, Mr. Toland has only the limited window between referral, and hearing, to set forth his defenses. "The statute cannot and does not permit a board of education to shrink that window by failing to adhere to the strict timelines of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3. To do so would eviscerate the procedure which has been implemented to protect the Due Process rights of teaching staff members defending tenure charges."

For the foregoing reasons, the Respondent, John Toland, asks that his Motion in Limine be granted.

Decision on Motion in Limine

On November 27, 2020, I rendered my decision on the Respondent's Motion in Limine as set forth below:

> "I reviewed all 6 charges and accompanying specifications submitted by the Petitioner. Those charges and specifications do show what the Petitioner will use for its case in chief. The only named Board employees found on the Charges, Specifications and Certificate of Determination are Barry Caldwell, Superintendent of Schools, Angela Brown, Board Secretary, Sherry Yahn, Assistant Superintendent, and Diane Saunders, Director of Human Resources. I can infer that Superintendent Caldwell, because of his intimate knowledge of the Charges and Specifications, may very well testify
>
> What is missing from the Petitioner's exhibits is a list of witnesses with a complete summary of their testimony. Contrast that omission with the Respondent's Statement of Evidence dated November 18, 2020. The Respondent complied with all requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3).
>
> That omission was addressed in DOE 267-9/14, Marie Ebert vs. the State-Operated School District, City of Newark, by arbitrator Tia Schneider Denenberg. In that case, based upon the specific language of the above cited statute, the Respondent submitted a motion to have the tenure charges dismissed.

Arbitrator Denenberg determined that "the Respondent's motion to dismiss the charges is granted on the basis of the District's substantial and unexplained failure to meet the timeliness mandate in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3)." The arbitrator determined that the "dismissal is without prejudice to the District's right to file charges again."

The Petitioner's response to the Motion in Limine falls short of full compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) due to the lack of a witness list with a complete summary of their testimony. The language of the statute is clear and unambiguous, and not subject to varied interpretations that the Petitioner would have me accept.

Hearings in the matter at bar are scheduled to start on Monday, November 30, 2020, and continue to December 4, 2020. The Respondent has not made a motion to dismiss as was done in the Ebert case, supra.

The purpose of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) is to guarantee that a tenure teacher is guaranteed due process when tenure charges are filed against that individual. Part of due process is compliance with a specified time frame. In this matter, the Petitioner was required to submit its witness list and summary of their testimony no later than November 20, 2002. They failed to do so and I have no recourse other than to adhere to the language of the statue. I do not have the authority to state that the Petitioner complied with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3) in spirit.

The specifics of the Legislative intent do not grant me leave to ignore the requirements of the statute. The language in question is specific not general and must be given its full force and weight.

The Respondent's Motion in Limine to bar the testimony of previously undisclosed witnesses is granted."

Additional arguments presented by the Petitioner and Respondent will be addressed below.

A court reporter was present at each hearing and I received a copy of the transcripts. Reference to the transcripts will be as follows: March 22, 2021, TR 1, April 23, 2021, TR 2, August 17, 2021, TR 3

Motion To Dismiss The Tenure Charges With Prejudice.

For the Petitioner

The Petitioner continues to assert that Exhibit 13H, the video is admissible for 2 reasons. Mr. Toland's statement (see Exhibit 13e) is in evidence, and that Superintendent Caldwell can testify about the video because it was presented to him as part of the tenure charges. More importantly, he is a "non-voting member of the Board and as the person who put forward these charges, that reviewed the evidence to put forth these charges, he has the ability to testify what happened in the pool area based upon his review of all the evidence."[1] Additionally, "it is not the law that he had to physically be there to testify about it. It's not the law."[2]

The District strenuously argues that "they have the right to call the Respondent as a witness because he is a party to this case."[3] The Petitioner acknowledged that it was always their intent to call the Respondent as a witness.

The Petitioner contends that: "both Caldwell's testimony and Toland's own incident report and response to the charges, which were admitted as admissions, not as business records, are competent evidence that the arbitrator should have used to both substantiate the charges and authenticate the video."

Moreover, the Board offers in support of its position in the matter at bar that rules of evidence do not apply in administrative agency proceedings. DeBartolomeris v. Bd. Of Review, 341 N.J. Super. 80,83 (App.Div. 2001) "Even if New Jersey's evidence

[1] TR 2 – 68:18-23
2 TR 2 – 68/69: - 25/1

[3] TR3 – 84/85: 24-25/4-6

rules are to be applied strictly, however, there is more than sufficient evidence that the videotape is an accurate reproduction of that which it purports to represent and the reproduction is of the scene at the time the incident took place." State v. Loftin, 287 N.J. Super. 76, 98 (App. Div. 1996)

The Petitioner asserts that "when the videotape in question purports to represent a contemporaneous recording of the actual events, like the videotape in the present case showing what occurred as it was occurring, the proponent of the evidence need not comply with the four-part test set forth in Balian, nor does admission require the testimony of an actual eyewitness to the event in question." Balian v. General Motors, 121 N.J. Super. 118 (App. Div. 1972)

In furtherance of its position, the Petitioner reaffirms that the rules of evidence of relaxed in arbitration, the arbitrator properly ruled that Superintendent Caldwell could offer hearsay testimony based upon information about the incident he had received, and then immediately prevented him from offering this exact type of testimony. The Petitioner relies on N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17 and N.J.A.C. 1:15.5 concerning the use of hearsay evidence and the weight accorded too same.

The Board incorporates all of its previous arguments that have already been briefed at length as to "whether parties to an arbitration must be disclosed in order to call them as witnesses, and Barry Caldwell's capacity to authenticate the videotape as issue, without repeating them at length."

For the foregoing reasons, the Board has "met its burden to substantiate the tenure charges. Therefore, the Board is seeking the termination of John Toland."

For the Respondent

The Respondent strongly argues that "in the absence of any competent testimony, and the absence of any authenticated video evidence, there is simply no competent evidence standing for the proposition that Mr. Toland engaged in any conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member." Additionally, "arbitrators in TEACH NJ Tenure cases have not hesitated to dismiss tenure charges when this burden is not met."

The arbitrators November 27, 2020, Motion in Limine has not been modified and is still controlling in the matter at bar. The District did not comply with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), and as such there is no credible evidence to support and/or prove the tenure charges filed against Mr. Toland.

Since the District never supplied a witness list and a summary of their testimony. Mr. Toland cannot be a witness for the Petitioner. The statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), establishes that the employing board of education shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing, except for purposes of impeachment of witnesses. Most importantly, the video footage found on the USB Drive (see Exhibit H) cannot be used a weapon for the Petitioner. Mr. Toland objects to the playing of the video because "there has been no foundation laid whatsoever for its authenticity. We do not know who operated it, we do not know the conditions under which it was operated. This witness (referring to Superintendent Caldwell) has no firsthand knowledge of what occurred at the pool." Superintendent Caldwell "did acknowledge that the video was silent and he couldn't hear what people were saying.

Mr. Toland contends that "[I]n order to constitute competent, admissible evidence, video footage must be properly authenticated". State v. Wilson, 135 N.J. 4, 17 (1994). The Board has "failed to furnish any evidence which would permit it to meet its burdens vis-à-vis the authentication requirements as set forth in Wilson supra."

The Respondent stresses that *"[N]*either Mr. Toland's answer, nor his purported statement, confirm the creation, compilation or preservation of the subject video footage. Mr. Toland's statement (see Exhibit 13) is just that, a statement that was not subject to any direct or cross examination. Nor were there any facts established as to how that statement was drafted.

The Respondent argues "that New Jersey recognizes and applies the residuum rule. It is settled New Jersey Law that finding of fact made in administrative proceedings must be supported by some residuum of competent, non-hearsay evidence. In Weston v. State, 60 N.J. 36,51-52 (1972) the New Jersey Supreme Court set forth the requirement that agency factfinding be supported by some measure of competent evidence." The court also said that "to sustain an administrative decision, which affects the substantial rights of a party, there must be residuum of legal and competent evidence in the record."

The Respondent further argues that a tenure hearing, which takes the form of an arbitration, requires such competent evidence as established by the residuum rule.

For the foregoing reasons, Mr. Toland contends that the tenure charges should be dismissed with prejudice, and the Arbitrator should enter an Award granting him back pay, benefits and other emoluments and otherwise make him whole.

DISCUSSION AND OPINION

The Petitioner acknowledges and accepts the mandates set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3). Nevertheless, the District believes that based upon their post hearing briefs citing case law, testimony and commentary at the hearings, both Mr. Toland and Superintendent Caldwell can be called as witnesses for the District.

Quite frankly, normally a respondent may be called as a witness by a petitioner unless a fact pattern unique to a specific case exists that would preclude such testimony. The matter at bar is an example of specific circumstances that will prevent the testimony of Mr. Toland.

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), mandates that the "employing board of education shall provide all evidence including, but not limited to, documents, electronic evidence, statements of witnesses, and a list of witnesses with a complete summary of their testimony to the employee or the employee's representative." The statute also requires that the "employing board of education shall be precluded from presenting any additional evidence at the hearing, except for purposes of impeachment."

All of the above enumerated items including a witness list must be presented to the Respondent prior to the start of a hearing. To do otherwise relegates the tenure hearing process to nothing more than trial by ambush, which is anathema to the statute.

Yet there was no witness list or a summary of their testimony presented to the Respondent, and the record is devoid of any such list.

Counsel for the Petitioner stated that it was always her intent to call Mr. Toland as a witness. (see footnote 3) However, that must be done in accordance with the statutory requirement for witnesses.

On a two-prong test for admissibility of Mr. Toland's testimony, because a required witness list was not submitted by the Petitioner, the Respondent cannot be called as a witness. The second prong allows Mr. Toland to be called as a rebuttal witness. For this to occur Mr. Toland would be testifying in rebuttal to the record set forth by the Respondent. However, counsel for Mr. Toland did not call any witnesses and rested. The Arbitrator asked the Respondent's counsel if he was going to call Mr. Toland as a witness. He answered by stating "that trial strategy discussions with Mr. Toland are attorney client privilege and not subject to this matter." He is correct, and I have no authority to pierce attorney client privilege.

The Petitioner also strongly argues that Mr. Toland's written statement (See Exhibit 13e) can authenticate that statement. However, there is no competent evidence in the record to establish the foundation for that exhibit. For example, where was it written, who was present when it was drafted, did anyone suggest a modification or revision, did anyone proof the statement. Did Mr. Toland submit the statement of his own volition or was he asked to submit the statement?

Mr. Toland cannot be called as a witness to authenticate the video of the pool incident on January 14, 2019, because N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), was not complied with.

The issue of the USB drive, Exhibit H must be addressed. At the March 22, 2021, hearing Jennifer Killough-Herrera, Director of the Office of Controversies and Disputes, of the DOE testified that tenure charges are sent to the Commissioner of Education and are then submitted to her office. She further testified that the USB drive is evidence in this case and that evidence is transmitted to the Arbitrator. In this case due to COVID the USB was not submitted to the Arbitrator and the parties were to send a USB directly the Arbitrator. Additionally, Ms. Killough-Herrera testified that she "should have indicated that the parties should have provided the Arbitrator with a copy.[4] On March 23, 2021, I received a letter from Ms. Killough-Herrera with the USB attached.

Superintendent Caldwell could not authenticate the video because he was not a witness to the January 14, 2019, incident at the High School pool. He testified that he received the video from Mr. Atiba Rose, the District's Director of Operations.

Yet there was no proof offered that Mr. Rose was an eyewitness to the January 14, 2019, incident at the High School pool.

The Petitioner argues that Superintendent Caldwell is a non-voting member of the Atlantic City Board of Education and as such is a party to these proceedings, which allows him to testify. Unfortunately, the statue does not reference party or non-voting member of the Board, it specifically states employer or employee. Superintendent Caldwell is an employee of the Board, he is not the employer. Following that logic simply means that any member of the Atlantic City Board of Education can offer testimony to authenticate the video in question. If that individual was present at the high School pool on January 14, 2019, and observed the incident in question, that person, if listed on a Petitioner witness list, can certainly offer testimony

On July 3, 2020, Superintendent Caldwell signed a Certificate of Determination, against the Respondent. Within the twelve (12) cited points, there is no reference that Superintendent Caldwell was an actual eye witness to the January 14, 2019, pool incident at the high school. Compare that to 18A:6-17.3 section 2 which requires any Superintendent of schools to file inefficiency charges against a teacher who for two (2) consecutive years receives a partially effective or ineffective evaluation. For exceptional circumstances a Superintendent may defer the filing of tenure charges until the next annual summative evaluation.

In the evaluative scenario, a Superintendent does not have to be a witness to any shortcomings in a classroom, and absent any exceptional circumstances, tenure charges must be filled. Here, the Petitioner seeks to have Superintendent Caldwell offer his evaluation or insight into the video.

Had Superintendent Caldwell been listed as a witness for the Petitioner and a summary of his testimony provided to the Respondent, he would have started his testimony subject to any potential objections that may have been raised.

[4] TR 1 – 76:4-17

However, to get to the potential objection phase he had to have been listed as a witness for the Petitioner. Again, that did not happen.

The Petitioner offers New Jersey court decisions to bolster its argument that Superintendent Caldwell was improperly denied the opportunity to offer testimony about the video in question.

Balian (1972) supra was a product liability, civil action in which the "party offering the film was attempting to implement the testimony of an expert witness by filming an experiment for the purpose of submission of the film to a jury." Contrast that with the Toland matter where there is no expert witness and there is no experiment. (emphasis supplied)

Wilson (1994) supra, was a criminal case. On March 3, 2020, Mario Formica, Deputy First Assistant Prosecutor, Atlantic County Prosecutor's Office, sent an email to the Petitioner's counsel in which he indicated that "we reviewed the matter some time ago and determined that no action (or inaction) on the part of the lifeguard or gym teacher rose to criminal conducts under a probable cause standard." The Toland matter was not pursued by the Atlantic County Prosecutor's Office. Nevertheless, the N.J. Supreme Court in Wilson said that "because the videotape is relevant only if based on its representation of the positions of the witnesses at the time of the crime, only a witness to the actual crime can properly authenticate that the video accurately represents the scene of the crime."

Balian, and Wilson were pre-N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), which was approved on August 6, 2012. In her closing arguments, counsel for the Petitioner referenced post

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3), cases and stated: "In light of the fact that our Courts merely require a prima facie showing, neither absolute certainty nor conclusive proof is required to authenticate a video. Any person with knowledge of the facts represented in the video may authenticate it, through evidence that it is an accurate depiction of what is purports to represent and (sic) the scene at the time of the incident in question." The Court decisions referenced do not eliminate the absolute requirement for a witness identification list and a summary of their testimony as specified in the above cited statute.

Under the residuum rule, competent evidence must be presented to sustain the charges against the Respondent. Superintendent Caldwell testified that he received the video from Mr. Abita and that Mr. Rose was at the pool on January 14, 2019, at the time of the incident.[5] In light of that testimony one would expect that Mr. Rose would have been on the Petitioner witness list with a summary of this testimony or was a rebuttal witness. Mr. Rose could not be called as a rebuttal witness because the Respondent never put on its case-in-chief. The record clearly and unequivocally establishes that no proof was offered that Mr. Rose was a witness to the January 14, 2019, pool incident at the high school.

Other than the reasons offered above, the Petitioner did not present any rationale for the lack of non-conformance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3). Any further discussion by me would be highly speculative. Arbitrators are not privy to trial strategy nor should we be. If arbitrators become involved with trial strategy, then that becomes the new norm for the definition of the word neutral. For the foregoing reasons, and having duly heard the proofs and allegations of the parties, I Award the following:

AWARD

The Respondent's motion to dismiss the tenure charges filed against John Toland is granted due to the district's failure to follow the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-17.1(b)(3). John Toland shall be returned to work with full back pay, health benefits, seniority and any other emoluments he lost while serving a 120 days suspension. The District shall reimburse Mr. Toland for any personal and/or family medical expenses he may have incurred while on suspension.

IN THE MATTER OF TENURE BETWEEN

Harold Booker

- And –

Willingboro Board of Education

Agency DKT. NO. 61-4/21

Arbitrator: Kinard Lang

Hearing Date: September 24, 2021

Hearing Location: Willingboro School District Offices

PARTIES: William C. Morlock, ESQ. – Willingboro Board of Education

James K. Grace, Esq. – Harold Booker

ISSUE: Is the Settlement Agreement facilitated by the Arbitrator on September 24, 2021, and finally ratified by the parties on October 4, 2021, in conformance with the standards established in the matter entitled In re Cardonick, State Board decision of April 6, 1983 (1990 School Law Decisions (S.L.D.) 842, 846.

Based upon the facts in this case adherence to the following Cardick Standards is evaluated:

1. "Accompaniment by documentation as to the nature of the charges".
   The record in this matter contains detailed documentation of charges against the Respondent.

2. "Explication of the circumstances justifying settlement or withdrawal"
   The following extract from the Board's "Agenda Item Details" conveys an understanding of the circumstances warranting the Settlement:
   > "...the Board has fully considered the terms and conditions of the Settlement Agreement and finds them to be acceptable in all aspects and in the best interests of the school district and the public..."

3. "Consent of both the charged and charging parties"
   The Settlement Agreement contains the signatures of the Respondent and President of the Willingboro Board of Education, showing their acceptance.

4. "Indication the charged party entered into the agreement a full understanding of his or her rights"
   Respondent and Willingboro School Board President, Debra Williams signed the Settlement Agreement, respectively, on September 27, 2021 and October 4, 2021; item 8. of the Settlement Agreement says:
   > "...The parties further acknowledge that each party fully understands the Terms of this Agreement, and that each party is signing this Agreement Freely and voluntarily, without any coercion, duress or pressure from the other party." (Emphasis added)

5. "A showing the agreement is in the public interest"
   See 2. Above.

6. "If the charged party is a teaching staff member, a showing the teaching staff member has been advised of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation certificate.

Respondent did not suffer a "loss of position", as I understand the intent of that language; he was:
"...demoted from Assistant Principal back to his previous position as a physical education teacher..."
I find the parties have conformed to the provisions of the Cardonick Standards relevant in this matter, hence, the following Award.

AWARD

The Settlement Agreement in Agency Docket Number 61-4/21 satisfies the Cardonick Standards.

Final Decision

Sara Sparano,

Petitioner,

v.

Board of Education of the City of Garfield, Bergen County,

Respondent.

The record of this matter, the proposed Settlement Agreement and General Release (Agreement), and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed. Paragraph 3 of the Agreement references an action taken by the parties which preceded the consideration of the settlement by the Commissioner of Education. The parties are reminded that a settlement of litigation before the Commissioner is not binding until the Commissioner approves the settlement.

In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter, provided that the parties have already implemented the settlement terms or have agreed upon mutually satisfactory alternate dates for the effectuation of the terms of the Agreement. Assuming same, the matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Record Closed: August 24, 2021 Decided: August 30, 2021

BEFORE GAIL M. COOKSON, ALJ:

On September 4, 2020, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case.

The parties have agreed to an amicable resolution of the matter and submitted the attached Settlement Agreement and Stipulation of Dismissal with Prejudice and Without Costs. The Board's resolution is not needed.

Having reviewed the record and the settlement terms, I FIND as follows:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or the signatures of their representatives.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the parties comply with the settlement terms, and it is FURTHER ORDERED that the proceedings in this matter be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. 1. Releasor and Releasees: This SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT and GENERAL RELEASE (the "Release" or "Agreement"), is given by the releasor(s). The Releasor(s) is SARA SPARANO, referred to as "I", "Me", or "My". The Releasees, hereinafter referred to as "Releasees" or "You", are the BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF GARFIELD, BERGEN COUNTY, and all of its respective departments, divisions, agencies, officials, employees and agents, past and present.

2. Release: I release and give up any and all claims and rights which I may have against You. This releases all claims, demands, damages, causes of action, or suits which have been or could have been brought related to the events that gave rise to the Petition filed in the above-captioned matter, including claims for attorney's fees and costs; any claims of which I am not aware; and any claims not mentioned in this Release. This Release applies to claims resulting from anything which has happened from the first date of my employment with You up through the present date. This Releases and encompasses all claims resulting from or arising out of:

i. My employment relationship with You; including claims for breach of contract or promise, real or implied; claims for fraud, misrepresentation, physical or personal injury, emotional distress, libel, slander, defamation, tortious interference, and similar or related claims; claims for wrongful termination; claims for discrimination, harassment or retaliation of any kind (including any claim of retaliation for reporting a work-related injury or filing a workers' compensation claim); claims arising under the Fair Labor Standards Act and state wage and hour laws, the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (except for vested ERISA benefits), the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, the Older Workers Benefit Protection Act, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Civil Rights Act of 1991, the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Rehabilitation Act, the Reconstruction Era Civil Rights Acts, including 42 U.S.C. § 1981 and 42 U.S.C. § 1983, the Equal Pay Act and any similar state laws, the Family and Medical Leave Act and any similar state laws, the Fair Credit Reporting Act and any similar state laws, all New Jersey state wage and hour laws, the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act, and any amendments to any of the above laws; and claims under any constitution, common law or any other federal, state or local law, including those not specifically listed above which were the subject of an action captioned Sara Sparano v. Board of Education of the City of Garfield, Bergen County, venued in the State of New Jersey Office of Administrative Law, OAL Docket No. EDU 08418-20, Agency Ref. No. 171-8/20, or which claims could have been raised in that proceeding.

ii. Any and all claims and/or liens, past current and/or future arising out of this litigation or asserted against the proceeds of the settlement and I agree that such claims and/or liens are to be satisfied by Me, including but not limited to any Medicare or Medicaid claims and/or liens, Worker's Compensation claims and/or liens, Social Security claims and/or liens, hospital/healthcare insurer claims and/or liens, physician or attorney claims and/or liens, or any of the statutory, equitable, common law or judgment claims and/or liens.

iii. I further release all claims which might otherwise have been brought in the future by My Estate or My family members under Mauro v. Raymark Industries, 116 N.J. 126 (1989) and Alfone v. Sarno, 87 N.J. 99 (1981) for past, present, or future losses, damages, or injuries. This includes all possible future claims for wrongful death.

iv. I further agree to return any property owned by Releasees by providing it to my counsel, who shall then return it to Anderson & Shah, LLC, 457 Haddonfield Road, Suite 120, Cherry Hill, NJ 08002.

3. Terms: Upon approval of this Agreement by the Board of Education of the City of Garfield, Bergen County, the Terms of this Agreement are as follows:

In consideration of my releasing the claims enumerated in this Release, You have agreed to pay Me, in full satisfaction of all of My claims, including My claims for costs and attorney's fees, a total of $30,000 within 30 days from when You approve this Agreement. I acknowledge that this is consideration to which I am not otherwise entitled. This sum represents full payment, including all attorney fees, costs, and expenses. I agree that I shall not seek anything further from You. Payment shall not be made unless counsel for Releasees has received this Release signed by Me and notarized, W-9 and 1099 forms, a Charlie Jones search, a Medicare lien search, and a signed Stipulation of Dismissal with Prejudice. A check shall be remitted by the Releasees' insurance carrier and be payable as follows:

i. $30,000 for Sara Sparano issued in a check made payable to Sara Sparano.

4. Taxes: I shall be solely responsible for the payment of appropriate taxes on this settlement, if any, and I agree and understand that the Releasees have not made any representation to Me regarding the tax treatment of the sums paid pursuant to this Release. In the event a claim for such taxes, and/or penalties and interest, is assessed by any taxing authority, I agree to, and do hereby hold the Releasees harmless and indemnify Releasees against any and all tax liability, interest and/or penalties due from Me.

5. Liens: I shall be solely responsible for the payment of any claims or liens that may be asserted against the proceeds of this settlement. In the event a claim or lien for such payment is asserted by anyone, including Medicare and/or Medicaid, I agree to make those payments and to defend and indemnify Releasees against any such claim or lien, including the payment of any fines, charges, and attorney's fees. Failure to satisfy any such lien shall constitute a breach of this Release and I agree to pay all costs, interest and attorney's fees associated with any such claim or lien.

6. Attorney's fees: This Release includes all claims for attorney's fees and costs.

7. No Admission of Liability/Future Precedent: Releasees expressly deny the validity of My disputed claims, and nothing contained herein may be used or viewed as an admission of liability by Releasees. Further, nothing contained herein shall be construed as setting any precedent relative to the resolution or compromise of any future claims involving Releasees.

8. Dismissal of Lawsuit: I hereby authorize and instruct my legal counsel of record to sign a Stipulation of Dismissal with Prejudice and Without Costs and Attorney Fees as to all claims and all Releasees named in the matter referenced above and to provide same to counsel for Releasees at the time of execution of this Release. The Stipulation of Dismissal shall be filed by counsel for Releasees upon receipt of the settlement check as outlined above by my attorney.
