Mr. Bettle having received a majority of all the votes cast, was declared by the President pro tempore duly elected President of the Senate for the ensuing year, and was conducted to the Chair by Messrs. Taylor and Conover.

Upon taking the Chair the President addressed the Senate as follows :

To express to you, Senators, my sincere appreciation of this renewed mark of your confidence in being called a second time to preside over the deliberations of this body, may seem merely words of course, and a compliance with established usage. I beg you not to so estimate it. I do acknowledge the honor fully, gratefully, and with an earnest intention so to fulfil the duties of the high place assigned me that your kind partiality may not impeach your sound judgment.

I would again invoke to my aid as your presiding officer the courteous forbearance and cordial co-operation which during the session of last year you so generously extended toward me.

We meet again according to the requirements of the Constitution, to perform our legislative duties, and enact those measures which will tend to the preservation of public order, to the development of our industrial resources, and to promote that liberal and progressive policy which has placed our honored state in the foremost rank of her sister commonwealths. The objective point of all true statemanship is the realization of that wise legislation which fosters and gives life to honorable enterprise, which extends the sheltering requirements of the law to the humblest and poorest citizen, which gives to capital an organized power, to labor a just protection and a fair reward, and which exemplifies and adorns an enlightened and Christian community.

To this beneficent consummation I trust our earnest efforts will be directed. We meet for the first time in this elegant and spacious chamber, which, in its general plan, convenience of internal arrangement, and architectural beauty, amply justifies the wise selection of the three commissioners named in the act of last year, to whose judgment, energy and taste, in conjunction with the experienced architect, we are indebted for its fair proportions. From various causes much of the daily care and oversight devolved upon Mr. Thomas J. Stryker, of this city, and we owe much to his constant and faithful supervision. While we may be pardoned for a lingering regret in severing forever the associations and memories that clustered round the old hall, yet, if in this "new departure" we leave behind whatever suspicion of impurity, of hasty legislation, or of unwise partizanship may have attached to the past, right gladly may we welcome the change.

Public attention has been seriously awakened by the startling evidences of wide-spread corruption and flagrant violations of trust, so recently and continuously developed, and an honest and healthful determination evinced to hold public servants of all grades to a strict and rigid accountability. Fully impressed with the responsibility which attaches to our official acts, be it our high and earnest resolve so to legislate that the close of the present important session may be bright with the consciousness of duty well performed, and we merit the approving verdict of "well done, good and faithful servants."

It is gratifying evidence of the growth and prosperity of New Jersey, that while some of the old Thirteen States which constituted the original Union, have, within the last decade, either not materially increased or actually declined in population, we are entitled by the returns of the late census, upon the basis proposed by Congress, to two additional Representatives in our Congressional delegation. To redistrict the State in compliance with the requirements of law, will be one of our important duties.

But, with that commendable brevity which is said to be the soul of wit, and in order that we may proceed to that prompt dispatch of business which, I trust, will characterize this present session and justify public expectation, while again thanking you for this renewal of your confidence, I now declare the Senate ready for the transaction of its further business.

A message was received from the House of Assembly by the hands of their Clerk, announcing that the House of Assembly had passed the following concurrent resolutions:

Be it Resolved by the General Assembly of the State of New-Jersey, (the Senate concurring), That we cordially approve the recommendations of His Excellency, the President of the United States, in favor of a thorough reform of the civil service; we earnestly desire that the corrupt maxim that "to the victors belong the spoils," and which has been so corrupting in practice, be utterly repudiated, and that (henceforth) merit, and not partisan service, be made the test of appointment to and continuance in office in the cases recommended by the civil service commission, and by the President; and that our Senators and Representatives in Congress be and they are hereby earnestly requested to use their utmost efforts and influence to carry out the wise and patriotic recommendation of the President by appropriate legislation.

And be it Resolved, That the gross abuses of the franking privilege, and the greatly increased expenses which it occasions in the transportation of the mails, and the publication of enormous numbers of books and documents, have made it odious to the people, who, without distinction of party, demand its repeal. This conferring of special privileges on particular classes is hostile to the spirit of our institutions, and while it has been abolished in Great Britain, so that even the Queen pays her own postage, it should not be continued here. If abolished, there would not only be a very large saving in the printing department of the government, but the expense of transporting the mails would be so diminished that single letter postage could be reduced to two cents, which of itself would be a great boon to the people, and at the same time the post office department be made self-sustaining. We hereby approve the earnest and persevering efforts of Hon. John Hill to abolish this crying abuse, and we would earnestly request our Senators and Representatives in Congress to use their utmost efforts and influence in favor of its total repeal.

And be it Resolved, That His Excellency, the Governor, be requested to forward a certified copy of these resolutions to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress.

In which the concurrence of the Senate was requested.

Which was read, and the further consideration of the bill and amendment was postponed for the present.

Mr. Taylor moved that in accordance with the request of the House of Assembly, the following Concurrent Resolution be returned to it :

Be it Resolved by the General Assembly of the State of New-Jersey, (the Senate concurring), That we cordially approve the recommendations of His Excellency, the President of the United States, in favor of a thorough reform of the civil service; we earnestly desire that the corrupt maxim that "to the victors belong the spoils," and which has been so corrupting in practice, be utterly repudiated, and that (henceforth) merit, and not partisan service, be made the test of appointment to and continuance in office in the cases recommended by the civil service commission, and by the President ; and that our Senators and Representatives in Congress be and they are hereby earnestly requested to use their utmost efforts and influence to carry out the wise and patriotic recommendation of the President by appropriate legislation.

And be it Resolved, That the gross abuses of the franking privilege, and the greatly increased expenses which it occasions in the transportation of the mails, and the publication of enormous numbers of books and documents, have made it odious to the people, who, without distinction of party, demand its repeal. This conferring of special privileges on particular classes is hostile to the spirit of our institutions, and while it has been abolished in Great Britain, so that even the Queen pays her own postage, it should not be continued here. If abolished, there would not only be a very large saving in the printing department of the government, but the expense of transporting the mails would be so diminished that single letter postage could be reduced to two cents, which of itself would be a great boon to the people, and at the same time the post office department be made self-sustaining. We hereby approve the earnest and persevering efforts of Hon. John Hill to abolish this crying abuse, and we would earnestly request our Senators and Representatives in Congress to use their utmost efforts and influence in favor of its total repeal.

And be it Resolved, That His Excellency, the Governor, be requested to forward a certified copy of these resolutions to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress.

A message was received from His Excellency, the Governor, by the hands of his Private Secretary, as follows:

STATE OF NEW-JERSEY,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
TRENTON, February 20, 1872.

To the Senate:

I return to the Senate, where it originated, Senate Bill, No. 57, with my objections.

This bill appoints three persons, named therein, as commissioners, to act for three years, and vests in them the power to borrow money to purchase land and build a public school house in the School District therein named, and to provide for the raising of the money so expended by taxation.

I object to this bill because it nullifies, in respect to the District in question, a provision of the General School Law, which prohibits the expenditure of money for the purposes contemplated, unless the voters of the district, at a meeting convened on notice of the object, decide so to do. By the provisions of the bill the people of this district are not allowed the privilege that other School Districts in the State enjoy of deciding for themselves whether they will be taxed for a local object in which they alone are interested. If the people of the District named in the act wish to build a new school house at a new location, and are willing to tax themselves for that purpose, they can accomplish the object under the General School Law, without the aid of special legislation. The District Trustees are elected by the people to attend to such business as this bill contemplates, provided the people so instruct them. Where a General Law is full and explicit, every locality should come under its provisions. No reasons appear why the School District named in this bill should be an exception.

JOEL PARKER.

The President laid before the Senate the following opinion of the Attorney General :

STATE OF NEW-JERSEY,
ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OFFICE, March 6.

To the Senate :

The resolution of the Senate requesting me to examine Senate Bill, No. 239, entitled " A further supplement to an act entitled 'An act concerning Inns and Taverns,' " and to advise the Senate whether in my opinion, the provisions of the bill are or are not constitutional, was received by me on the evening of Friday, the 1st inst. But, having before received unofficial information of it, I had examined and considered the question.

I should have made my reply during Monday, the 4th inst., had I not received a communication from the State Temperance Alliance, asking an interview to-day at Jersey City, but which from my engagements here I was obliged to request to be had here. I have not been waited upon by any one, on behalf of the Alliance, and will therefore proceed to give to the Senate my opinion upon the bill submitted to me.

The bill, after providing for elections every year, in every town, city, borough and township in the State, at which the voters of the locality are to determine by vote whether licenses shall be granted to sell certain liquors in the town, &c., enacts that in any town, &c., the voters of which have determined that licenses shall not be granted, it shall not be lawful to sell such liquors, and that any person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined from $50 to $100, and not less than $100 for every subsequent offence.

It will be observed that the offence defined by this act cannot be committed unless the voters of the town have determined that licenses shall not be granted. Wherever and whenever the validity of a statute, which makes an act of the citizen an offence only on condition that the people of the locality or of the State, should have voted that it was their will that the act should or should not be licensed to be done, has been called in question, and it has been held unconstitutional.

It has been so held in Pennsylvania, Iowa, Indiana, Michigan, Delaware and Rhode Island.

The ground upon which its unconstitutionality has been put in these States is that an offence cannot be created by any statute which is to take effect according to the will of any other body or individual or individuals than the body vested with the power of making laws. Statutes may take effect according to any condition which the Legislature may prescribe, unless that condition is the will of some other body or individual or people. I speak not of grants nor contracts made in the form of statutes. The reason of this is that human laws from their nature must be enacted by human will. When, therefore, (as in this State) by the Constitution it is declared that all legislative power shall be vested in the Senate and General Assembly, no part of it is vested elsewhere. No bill can become a law unless it is enacted by the will of the Senate and General Assembly. If the bill declares that the will of any mass of individuals shall be of force equal to the will of the Legislature, and be as its will is,—law,—it is plain that the Legislature thereby proposes to subject its will to the will of the mass of individuals. It is true the Legislature means that its will in such cases shall be the same as the will of the individuals, but as it does not know what the will of the individuals will be, it is plain it does not know, when it gives the sanction of its legislative power to the bill, what its own will is, or what its own will will be.

It gives up its own will; or, having no will at all, gives to another power to declare its will, and as the whole function of making a law is declaring what the will of the Legislature is, it is plain it gives away its legislative power.

It is admitted on all hands that legislative power cannot be delegated, though some judges have thought it was in a measure delegated when a city was incorporated. But charters of incorporation to cities have always been considered grants, and in England were granted by the Crown. As the Crown was not the Legislature, it is plain that the incorporation of a city was never considered at the common law as an act of legislation. Our Legislature grants these charters in the form of laws, not because the grant is an exercise of legislative power; but the State Legislature, unlike the National Legislature, having all power not given to other departments of the State government, or reserved to the people—exercise all their powers, whether legislative or not, by means of acts, resolves and laws. The State grants its lands by law, but that is no more an exercise of legislative power than the grant by a farmer of his land is an exercise of legislative power by him.

Because such statutes are not made in the exercise of legislative powers, it is that laws creating cities, counties, &c., and a multitude of other laws, though submitted to the people, are perfectly valid. The Legislature, in passing such laws, does not declare its legislative will, but its consent as the representative of the sovereignty of the people to make a grant of the power of local government, nor is a grant of the power of local government, in its nature, an exercise of legislative power. The Crown, though not the Legislature, could always grant this ; and all the American colonies were created corporations by the Crown's charter alone. Though powers of local government are granted, legislative power is not assigned. The acts and resolves of a city are not laws : they are by-laws, which are open to the supervision of the Courts, and can be declared void for mere unreasonableness. This shows that they are not laws. A law cannot be declared void for unreasonableness, but any act or resolve or by-law of any corporation which is erected for local government may. For this reason our own Supreme Court, though citing without question the Pennsylvania case, which declared a case like this void, has held that voters may always determine whether a charter or any amendment to it, or any power of government, or local regulation shall be accepted or be in force. It is a grant, and so may be submitted to the people for their acceptance.

It gives no power to make laws, and so also it may be submitted to the people to accept it.

So, if this law gave power to the towns and cities to regulate the liquor traffic and submitted to the people, whether they should accept this power or not, it would be a perfectly valid law. It would be no transfer of legislative power, for laws could not be made under it. Whatever act, resolution or ordinance was framed under such a law so submitted to the people, and so accepted, would not be a law, for it could be declared utterly void by the courts, if unreasonable.

None of the decisions denying the constitutionality of laws like this, deny the validity of a statute which is really a grant of land, or a grant of franchise, or a grant of powers of local government, including the power to provide for education, though it is submitted to the grantee for acceptance, whether that grantee be an individual or many individuals ; the people of a hamlet, school district, town, city or county. Indeed, all of the decisions denying the validity of laws like this affirm the perfect constitutionality of the others.

The bill in question is without doubt, founded upon a doctrine that was suggested in the New-York school cases, by one or two of the judges—that it is ouly a law which is to operate over the whole State, and is submitted to the people of the whole State—that is unconstitutional. And as this bill has a local operation, and is to go into effect by virtue of votes in each town, city, &c., it is supposed it is not obnoxious to the same objection that a law general in its operation would be. But the Pennsylvania law was a local option law, as this is. Yet that did not save it from being declared unconstitutional.

In truth, the doctrine was merely suggested in New-York, and has never been the basis upon which the Court has acted in declaring laws valid which were submitted to the people. The true ground upon which the decisions declaring laws submitted to the people valid were made, was that taken by our Supreme Court in the case of the Paterson charter: that the laws were grants, and though the grant was made in and by the form of law, it could properly be submitted to the people for acceptance; and that all powers of government, given by such laws, were not powers to make laws, but by-laws. The latter we know are subject to the supervision of the Courts; the former must be obeyed by the Courts.

The proposed law is beyond all doubt without warrant in, and plainly interdicted by the Constitution of the State.

ROBERT GILCHRIST,
Attorney General.

To the Honorable, the Members of the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New-Jersey :

The subscribers, your petitioners, residents and tax-payers of the County of Hunterdon, in the State of New-Jersey, believing that experience has demonstrated that the offices of State and County Superintendents of Public Schools have proven to be positions of profit to the incumbents, without a corresponding benefit to the people, and take from the School Funds a large amount of money belonging to the people, to sustain these sinecures ; and further believing that said offices have signally failed to accomplish the objects of their creation, but that on the contrary they have been and still are productive of great and growing evil to the Public School system ; most respectfully petition your honorable bodies to repeal so much of the Public School Laws as creates said offices, and in lieu thereof provide by enactment for a Public School Superintendent, as heretofore, in each township, incorporated town and city throughout the State.

And your petitioners further pray your honorable bodies to so change and alter said School Laws that each township, incorporated town and city shall have the full use of all moneys raised by taxation within its respective limits for school purposes.

And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, etc.

Dated January, 1872.

Mr. Moore, Chairman of the Committee on Commerce and Navigation, reported

Assembly Bill, No. 68, entitled

An act to repeal the act entitled " An act to authorize the drainage of marsh and swamp lands," approved March seventeenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy.

With the following recommendation :

The Committee on Agriculture, to whom was referred Assembly Bill, No. 68, entitled Supplement to an act entitled "An act to authorize the drainage of marsh and swamp lands," approved March seventeenth, one thousand eight hundred and seventy, would report :

That after careful consideration of the subject matter, and hearing the parties interested, it is their judgment that the same ought not to pass.

It would seem reasonable that the legal reservation of the right of repeal or alteration of corporate rights, was intended for cases of fraud, and should be exercised with due regard to the protection of parties who have acted in good faith.

The scheme for public benefit, incorporated in the act to create "the Driggs Drainage Company," has been duly proceeded with, at great expense, under careful judicial supervision ; and that of eminent and trustworthy commissioners, valuable rights are vested through it, and in faith of its execution.

To pass the proposed bill under the circumstances of the case would, in their opinion, be an unwarrantable exercise of the power of repeal, even if constitutional.

Respectfully submitted,

WM. MOORE,
SAMUEL HOPKINS, } Committee.

My objections to this bill are because the first and fourth sections deprive the Governor of the power to return to the Legislature for reconsideration any joint resolution, however unconstitutional, unjust or injurious to individuals or the public its provisions may be.

Personally, I do not covet the labor and responsibility of examining and deciding upon the action of the Legislature, but I would be recreant to the trust reposed in me, should I willingly part with any power now vested in the Executive branch of the government which I deem beneficial to the people.

JOEL PARKER.

Upon the question, shall this engrossed bill pass, notwithstanding the objections of the Governor thereto ? it was decided as follows:

In the affirmative, were

In the negative, were

Under the direction of the President, the Secretary carried said bill to the House of Assembly, and informed them that the Senate had passed the same, notwithstanding the objections of the Governor thereto, and requested their concurrence therein.

A message was received from the House of Assembly, by the hands of their Clerk, announcing that the House of Assembly had refused to concur in the amendments made in the Senate to

Assembly Bill, No. 179, entitled

An act to alter the boundary line between the town of Orange and the township of East Orange, in the County of Essex.

And also, that the House of Assembly had passed sale of the interest of the State in the Stevens' Battery. Many other joint resolutions of equal importance might be cited, but those above referred to are sufficient to prove that the power of the Governor to return joint resolutions to the Legislature for reconsideration should not be taken away, but that the same safeguard should be applied as in case of a bill.

The Constitution of the State requires that all joint resolutions shall be read three times in each House before the final passage, and that no joint resolution shall pass unless a majority of all the members of each House agree thereto, and the yeas and nays of the members voting on such final passage shall be entered on the Journal. It will be observed that the same form of procedure is required as in the case of the passage of a bill. If a joint resolution did not have the effect of law, why require such solemn deliberation ?

Previous to 1844, neither bills or joint resolutions were signed by the Governor. He was a member of the Council, and his signature was not required. All bills and joint resolutions were published in the book of laws as "passed," instead of "approved." In the year 1845, for the first time, bills and joint resolutions were presented to the Governor for his action. No difference was made between them. This proves, that after the adoption of the Constitution, and before the law of 1846, it was considered that the presentation of joint resolutions to the Governor was required. But the act of April 17, 1846, which this bill, if it become a law, will repeal, made it imperative to deliver to the Governor all joint resolutions, and the Governor, if he approve of the same, must deliver them to the Secretary of State. Ever since that time all joint resolutions have been presented to the Governor, and he has signed all that he approved. Governor Ward, during his administration, vetoed a joint resolution.

I do not object to the third section of the bill, which authorizes an Assistant Secretary to act in the absence of the Secretary of State. Nor are my objections founded upon the second section. The Constitution of the United States, which is the supreme law of the land, provides for the ratification of amendments thereto by the Legislatures of the several States, and although, in this State, resolutions for that purpose have been delivered to the Governor, such action seems unnecessary, because neither the Constitution of the United State or the laws of Congress, which govern in this exceptional case, require it.

by nearly every Legislature that has convened in the State. But supposing that the Legislature has no constitutional right to appropriate money in this way, still there is other important legislation which may be accomplished by joint resolutions and which should come before the Executive for his approval or disapproval.

Time will not permit reference to many of the joint resolutions passed by former Legislatures, but your attention is called to a few of these, for the purpose of showing that they embrace subjects of the highest importance. Their validity has never been questioned or doubted, and if former Legislatures had the right to pass them, the present or future Legislatures will have the right to pass others of similar import. To go back only thirty years, I find that in 1842 the Council and General Assembly, by joint resolution, authorized and directed the Treasurer of the State to receive from the New-Jersey Railroad and Transportation Company eight cents for every passenger, and twelve cents for every ton of goods, transported between New-Brunswick and Jersey City, which should be in full of all claims of the State for tax or transit duty against said company for the space of five years, and after that time, in addition to transit duty, he should collect yearly and every year, from said company, a tax of one quarter of one per cent. and after ten years a tax of one half of one per cent. on the capital stock of said company. No more important subject came before the Legislature at that session, and yet it was embraced in a joint resolution. Ten years afterwards, a joint resolution was passed authorizing the Delaware and Raritan Canal and Camden and Amboy Railroad Company to subscribe for capital stock of the Belvidere Delaware Railroad Company, and the Flemington Railroad Company.

In 1853 and 1854, the Joint Companies were empowered by joint resolution to enclose the bonds of the West Jersey Railroad Company, the Flemington Railroad Company, the Belvidere Railroad Company, the Camden and Pemberton Railroad Company, and the Freehold and Jamesburg Agricultural Railroad Company.

In 1870, the Riparian Commissioners were authorized by means of a joint resolution, to covenant on behalf of the State to accept the capital sum, of which the annual payment is the interest for lands under water, and make conveyance of the lands in fee simple. In 1871, a joint resolution authorized the law, nor by act of the Legislature. I am not aware that there is any decision of our Courts upon the subject. We are left to the opinions of elementary writers, and to the long usage of legislative bodies, to ascertain what kind of legislation may be effected by means of joint resolutions. The following concise definition of their nature is found in Cushing's treaties on the elements of the law and practice of legislative assemblies :—

"This form of legislation is recognized in most of our constitutions in which, and in the rules and orders of our legislative bodies, it is put on the same footing and made subject to the same regulations with bills properly so called. In Congress, a joint resolution, which is the name given in that body to this kind of legislation, is regarded as a bill."

From this it appears that legislation that can be had by bill may also be by joint resolution. But the best evidence of the nature and legal effect of joint resolutions in New-Jersey will be found in the use that has been made of them. So far as I have had the opportunity to examine the laws, scarcely a Legislature has convened since New-Jersey has been a State, that did not pass joint resolutions. They were used for a variety of purposes. In the absence of judicial decision to the contrary, the presumption is that the different legislatures did not exceed their power in passing them. This unbroken usage, without question in the courts, is conclusive that in New-Jersey joint resolutions operate as a species of law. The most solemn acts of legislation have been accomplished through them. For the last half century scarcely a year has passed in which money was not appropriated by joint resolution. If money can thus be appropriated at all, it can be done to an unlimited extent, and the Executive check in this regard is of the utmost importance.

I know that the right of our Legislature, since the adoption of our present constitution, to appropriate money except by bill, has been doubted. The legislators contemporaneous with the formation of the constitution, had no doubt of their power so to do. By reference to the laws of 1845, it will be seen that the first Legislature that assembled after the constitution took effect (some of the members of which had been delegates to the Constitutional Convention) by means of a joint resolution authorized the printing of certain laws, named the person to do the work, made an appropriation to meet the expenses, and directed the Treasurer to pay the money. From that time to the present, money has been appropriated by joint resolution relative to the office of Secretary of State and Register of the Prerogative Court,' " approved April seventeenth, one thousand eight hundred and forty-six, with my objections thereto.

This bill provides that upon the passage or adoption of any Joint Resolution by both Houses of the Legislature, the presiding officer of the House wherein such Joint Resolution shall have originated, shall deliver the same to the Secretary of State, who shall file and keep the same in his office, with the Laws and Joint Resolutions of the same session. It also, in express terms, repeals all acts and parts of acts inconsistent therewith.

This bill repeals the law now existing, that requires joint resolutions adopted by the Legislature to be delivered to the Governor for his approval. Should this bill become a law, it will prevent the transmission to the Executive of all joint resolutions, and will deprive him of the opportunity of objecting to them, and returning them to the Legislature for reconsideration. In New-Jersey, the power of the Governor to return bills and joint resolutions, commonly called the veto power, is very limited in its operation and effect. It cannot prevent the passage of any measure which a majority of the members of each House determine shall be passed, but it operates as a check upon unconstitutional, unwise or hasty legislation, and gives opportunity for further deliberation. In the limited time given for legislation, and amid the press of business, especially toward the close of the session, bills and joint resolutions are sometimes passed without due consideration, and the Legislator often desires the opportunity to change his vote thereon.

The qualified veto given to the Executive is therefore beneficial to the people, and should not be encroached upon. The power to return to the Legislature joint resolutions, as well as bills, for reconsideration, should be vested in the Governor, and therefore I object to this bill.

If by a joint resolution the Legislature could do nothing except to express a mere opinion or sentiment of that body, it would not be important to have it come to the Executive for approval. But important legislation on a variety of subjects affecting seriously the interests of the State and of individuals can be had by means of joint resolutions, and the same guards should be thrown around such legislation as exist in reference to bills.

What can be done by joint resolutions? The difference between a bill and joint resolution is not defined in our organic turning House Bill, No. 392, with his objections thereto, pending a call of the roll on a motion to adjourn, which developed the fact that there was less than a quorum present at the time.

The message was received, and the return of the bill was treated as a valid return; but the reading of the message being called for, "the speaker decided that, inasmuch as the vote first taken disclosed the fact that there was no quorum present, it was not in order to consider the message at this time, and consequently that it could not now be read." See Journal of House of Representatives of U. S., 1st sess., 33d Congress, p. 1339.

Your committee are clearly of opinion that the bill in question was duly returned to the Senate by the Governor, with his objections thereto, and, in order to become a law, must pass both houses notwithstanding his objections, pursuant to the Constitution.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN W. TAYLOR, Chairman.
W. H. CONOVER, JR.,
HENRY J. IRICK.

Dated March 30, 1872.

On motion of Mr. Jarrard, the usual number of copies was ordered to be printed for the use of the Senate.

Senate Bill, No. 346, entitled

A further supplement to "An act to establish a system of public instruction," approved the twenty-first day of March, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven.

Was taken up and read a third time.

Under the direction of the President, the Secretary carried return should have been made in such manner as the circumstances would permit. It should, at all events, have left the bill and message beyond the Executive control, and, if need be, in the immediate custody of some person who would be likely to deliver it to the Senate, at the first opportunity. The best return that the circumstances would admit, would, in our judgment, be a proper return. The maxim, "lex non cogit ad impossibilia," would be applicable to such a condition of affairs. We know of no other rule, either, upon which the clear right of the Governor to make the return to the Senate, can be reconciled with the equally clear right of the Senate to be in recess at the time. (Harpending v. Haight, 39, California Reports, 189.)

Your committee have quoted extensively from the foregoing opinions, because they are able and interesting, as well as authoritative expositions of the constitutional provision, in question, and found in our National, as well as in most of our State Constitutions; and, also, because of the great dearth of authority and precedent on this subject.

The meeting of the Senate on Friday, when the message was transmitted, adjourned in pursuance of a standing order to the following Monday, and was the last daily session of the Senate prior to the expiration of the time limited for the return of the bill.

If there was less than a quorum, it matters not how much less, whether ten or one. To do business (except to adjourn from day to day, and to compel the attendance of absentees) required at least eleven members; but the reception of a bill from the Governor, with his objections thereto, can hardly be called an act of business; nor does the admission of the messenger therewith require or suppose a motion for that purpose. It is a matter of constitutional obligation to receive him, and of constitutional right in the Governor to have him received and the message delivered.

The Constitution does not require that the message or objections shall be immediately read and acted on, thereby implying a necessity for a quorum for action thereon. It requires only that the bill and message be delivered or returned to the house, to be read and acted on when a quorum shall appear.

On the third day of August, 1854, a message was received by the House of Representatives of the United States from President Pierce, by Sidney Webster, his private secretary, re-

So the supreme court of California, in a case involving the construction of a similar clause in the constitution of that State, use the following language: "We think that there can be no doubt that when the executive messenger arrived at the Senate Chamber, and found that the Senate had adjourned for the day, he might have delivered the bill and message into the hands of the lieutenant governor, president of the Senate, the secretary, or other officers of the Senate, or to one of the senators, or to any proper person connected with, or engaged in the service of the Senate, to be called to its attention as soon as an opportunity might thereafter offer; and that such delivery would have been sufficient, in law, as though it had been delivered to the presiding officer or secretary of the Senate in open session. It was the duty of the messenger to communicate to the Senate the message which he bore from the executive, on that occasion.

This was to be done in the most direct manner that circumstances would permit. It was impossible for him to immediately announce it to the Senate, for that body was not in session. It had a right to be in recess, if it desired so to be, and it was not in the power of the Executive or his messenger to recall it to its sittings. But its right to be in recess was no greater or higher than was the right of the Executive to return the bill in question for its reconsideration; nor is there any reason why the free exercise of these admitted rights upon the part of the Senate and Governor, respectively, should bring them into collision. The Senate has the unqualified constitutional power to adjourn for three consecutive days. It must often happen that these three days will include the last day allowed the Executive for the exercise of the veto power against the passage of a particular Senate bill. Now, if the mere fact of the recess of the Senate, thus constitutionally taken, does operate to defeat, in a measure, the exercise of the veto power conferred on the Executive by the Constitution, then we have the strange spectacle of an irreconcilable conflict between the several clauses of that instrument itself, by which the Senate, by the mere exercise of its own admitted constitutional authority to adjourn, violates the equally clear constitutional right of the Executive to have it kept in session. We are of opinion that the adjournment of the Senate on March 31st did not curtail the veto power of the Executive over the bill in question, nor should it even have embarrassed him in its exercise. The munications between the town houses, by message, can and ought to have but little influence on the determination of the question before us, which is one of constitutional, rather than parliamentary law, and peculiar to our American Constitutions.

The Constitution of this State (ubi supra) provides that if the Governor shall not approve a bill, "he shall return it, with his objections, to the house in which it shall have originated," and allows to him "five days (Sundays excepted), after it shall have been presented to him," within which to return it, unless the Legislature, by their adjournment, prevent its return.

The adjournment of only one house, much less the absence of a quorum, is not, (it would seem), a constitutional bar to its return.

The Governor has the same right to the full period of five days, for the return of a bill, as either house has to adjourn for not more than three days, without the consent of the other, or to fall below a quorum.

The constitution of New Hampshire, as to the return of a bill by the Governor, with his objections, is essentially like ours, with scarcely a verbal difference.

The supreme court of that State, in an opinion given to the Legislature, upon the constitutionality of a bill called the "Soldier's voting bill," (45 N. H. Reports, 607,) say, "if the Governor returns the bill to the house in which it originated, and the house is properly notified that it is a message from the Governor, neither the house nor the speaker can prevent its effect by refusing to receive it. The duty of the Governor is performed when he returns the bill, with his objections, to the house in which the bill originated, and gives them proper notice whether it is received or not. Nor are we by any means prepared to say that the legislative day was ended, necessarily, by the adjournment of the house, even though it might have been at the usual hour in the afternoon, or that the return of the bill at any convenient time during the day, to the speaker, although after the house adjourned for the day, would not have been sufficient. The provision of the constitution, in relation to this subject, should receive a reasonable construction, and it can hardly be supposed that the time limited for the return of the bill has expired, because that branch of the Legislature in which the bill originated has adjourned for the day, if the five days limited by the constitution have not expired."

less the Legislature, by their adjournment, prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law."

The bill in question was presented to the Governor on Monday, the 18th day of March, 1872, and, together with his objections thereto, was transmitted by him, through his private secretary, to the Senate, while sitting without a quorum (only the secretary and one senator, presiding as president pro tempore, being present), on the following Friday. Both the president pro tempore and the secretary declined to receive the message (though transmitted within the time limited by the Constitution), not deeming the transmission of the document to the Senate without a quorum, as a valid "return" thereof to that body, within the meaning of the Constitution. The Governor's secretary thereupon laid the same upon the desk of the secretary of the Senate and departed. No facts being in dispute, the question is one of constitutional and parliamentary law.

By article IV., section 4, clause 2, of the Constitution, it is ordained that "a majority of each [house] shall constitute a quorum to do business, but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner, and under such penalties, as each house may provide."

By Rule 10 of the Senate, it is provided that "whenever a less number than a quorum shall convene at any regular meeting, they are hereby authorized to send the sergeant-at-arms, or any other person or persons by them authorized, for any or all absent senators."

Although it is well settled, as a matter of parliamentary law, that "a message from one house to the other cannot be received by the house to which it is sent unless a quorum is present;" (Cushing's L. & P. § 817;) yet a message from the king, communicated by the "usher of the black rod," to the House of Commons, must be received and obeyed, whether a quorum is present or not; (Id. § 817, note 9, § 875; May's P. L. 6th Ed. 1868, p. 211.) Besides, as regards messages received by one house from the other, though the messenger is ordinarily received, as a matter of course, yet a motion is always made and a question put, or supposed to be so, for calling him in; a matter which requires a quorum for its transaction. (See Cushing's L. & P. § 814.)

force upon the minority a pecuniary liability, which ought not to be imposed, except for an adequate governmental purpose. Indeed, a liability for such risks ought to be entirely a matter of private contract.

Any exaction compelled by law which is not to be applied to advance a definite public purpose, is not a tax. The very essence of the right of taxation is the public character of the object.

No one can be obliged to risk his property in an enterprise which in its nature is purely private. So far as the Legislature compels a public corporation, even with the assent of a majority, to engage in an entirely private enterprise, it attempts to change its character and makes it a private corporation. This cannot be done without the consent of the individuals concerned.

I think this bill proposes to do by law what cannot be done by the exercise of legislative power or any other power that the Legislature possesses.

That the Courts have not the power to decide such a law unconstitutional, must be only because they have not the means or faculties for making the inquire whether the purpose is public or not. And this entitles the minority only the more to the considerate and careful protection of the Legislature.

ROBERT GILCHRIST,
Attorney General.

The communication was read and laid on the table.

On motion of Mr. Taylor, the Senate then adjourned.

MONDAY, April 1,1872.

At eight o'clock P. M. the Senate met.

The session was opened with prayer by the Rev. Mr. Pearn.

Under the direction of the President, the Secretary called cise by the enactment of such a law would be a breach of trust, it would also, of course, be a violation of the Constitution which creates the trust, and the citizen would be entitled to have it rejected as unconstitutional, though the Courts, after it is passed, may have no power to declare it so.

In advising the Legislature before the enactment of such a measure on its constitutionality, the question is not what the Courts would declare, but whether the grant of the authority to tax is in fact for a public and governmental purpose. This act, it seems to me, authorizes taxation for a purpose which is really not governmental; and yet, I think, the Courts would hesitate to decide that it came within any present constitutional prohibition. The reason is, they have not ordinarily the means to determine the question of fact whether the purpose is public or not.

The construction of highways of all descriptions—including railroads and canals, the improvement of rivers, the making of water-basins, docks, &c, even the building of mills for grinding corn in the infancy of a settlement—have been held public purposes; and to justify the grant of the power of eminent domain and the exercise of the power of taxation.

The object of this act, as represented in its title, is to encourage manufacturing in a township.

The special objects for which taxation is authorized is buying land and erecting buildings for manufacturing purposes, and renting and selling them.

The method by which the buying of these lands and the erecting of these buildings, and the renting and selling of them, is to accomplish any public purpose, is not obvious.

I have been attended by Mr. Arms, one of the town committee of Landis, who informs me that a public purpose is to be accomplished by offering the manufactories built under this act to a manufacturer of shoes on a large scale—rent free for three years—and thereby open a market for unemployed labor at Landis and invite population there. It seems to me that this would be a perfect legitimate purpose for the incorporation of a private company; but to authorize the majority in a town to carry on an enterprise in all its essential elements so eminently of a business character, and a matter of trade and perhaps of speculation, is to compel the minority to enter into trade with all its hazards. To require them to submit to all the taxation necessary to carry out such a business enterprise, is to

It gives the charge of these lands and buildings to the town committee, and permits the committee to rent or sell the lands and buildings. To raise the money necessary for these purposes, abounding power is given, and a power to tax the inhabitants and assessable property in the township.

Most constitutional questions are, in their nature, political; but our system of government was based upon the idea of making as many of these as could be dealt with by the judiciary—judicial. It is admitted that many, though arising upon our written Constitutions, are even yet purely political. Nearly all are, while under the consideration of the Legislature, political. The question presented by this bill is, whether the purpose for which this tax is authorized, is a public purpose.

This is a question which depends largely upon political considerations, and Courts have always felt themselves so embarrassed in dealing with these that the doctrine—that the Legislature is the sole judge of what is a public use—has been frequently assented to by Judges and Courts of the highest respectability, though the Courts of equal respectability have in some cases denied the doctrine. All the constitutional powers of the Legislature are governmental, and therefore a bill which proposes to accomplish a purpose which is not governmental, transcends the power of the Legislature and violates the Constitution, though the Courts may not be able to declare it unconstitutional after it is passed. If the Legislature should authorize the taking of private property for a use which was of so trifling advantage to the public that it would be an abuse of the power, the Leglslature would violate the Constitution. In short, every abuse of legislative power is an unconstitutional exercise of it, though the Courts may not have the power to declare the act unconstitutional.

So many constitutional questions are determinable by the Courts that the function of the Legislature to pass upon the constitutionality of laws which the Courts cannot pass upon, has been lost sight of; and the corresponding duty of the Legislature has very much fallen into disuse.

The power of taxation possessed by the Legislature is unlimited in terms, because the emergencies of the State are unlimited. But if, under such an unlimited power, a law is proposed to tax the citizen for no real public emergency or purpose, it may be justly impugned before the Legislature as unconstitutional. The power is given upon trust. As its exer-

STATE OF NEW-JERSEY,
ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OFFICE,
TRENTON, March 13, 1872.

To the Senate :

I have received the resolution of the Senate, referring to me Senate Bill, No. Three, entitled "An act to encourage manufacturing in the township of Landis, in the County of Cumberland," for my opinion upon its constitutionality.

There, perhaps, is no doubt of the power of the Legislature to encourage manufacturing, and perhaps it may be done by calling into requisition the power of taxation. This bill proposes to encourage manufacturing by authorizing the township of Landis to purchase lands and erect buildings thereon, or hire buildings to be used for manufacturing purposes.

a liberal construction might authorize a monument to the New-Jersey dead, and he thinks that it would be better to have additional legislation.

There are now buried in this cemetery the remains of four thousand six hundred and seventeen Union soldiers. Of these about fourteen hundred are unknown, and, as it is impossible to ascertain how many of these were citizens of the respective States, it is proposed to apportion equally among the States interested this class of dead whom the monument is especially designed to commemorate.

Under these circumstances I direct the attention of the Legislature to the subject, and recommend that so much of the aforesaid unexpended balance as will defray New-Jersey's proportion of the expense of erecting the proposed monument on the battle-field of Antietam, be appropriated for that purpose.

STATE OF NEW-JERSEY,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
TRENTON, March 20, 1872.

Gentlemen of the Senate and General Assembly :

On the fourth day of April, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, a joint resolution was passed, authorizing the Governor to appoint a trustee to represent New-Jersey in the establishment of a cemetery at Antietam, and to secure the removal and deposit therein of the remains of all soldiers of this State who were interred on or near that battle-field, provided the expense to the State should not exceed the sum of five thousand dollars. Under a law of the State of Maryland, incorporating the Antietam National Cemetery, New-Jersey united with several of her sister States in this patriotic work, and has removed and reburied her dead soldiers, at an expense of two thousand eight hundred and forty-six dollars and forty cents, leaving in the Treasury an unexpended balance of two thousand one hundred and fifty-three dollars and sixty cents.

The law passed by the Legislature of Maryland provided for the erection of a monument by the States that should join in the establishment of the cemetery. The monument is contracted for, and will be placed in position during the present year. To aid in defraying the expenses of the monument, the authorities of New-Jersey have been called upon for the balance of the appropriation.

The Comptroller of this State, doubting if the joint resolution of eighteen hundred and sixty-six authorizes the payment of monies for the erection of a monument, submitted the question to the Attorney General, who has given an opinion that it is advisable to have further authority from the Legislature.

I herewith transmit letter of the Comptroller, the reply of the Attorney General, the correspondence with officers of the Cemetery Association, and a photographic design of the proposed monument. It is evident that the trustees of the Antietam Cemetery contracted for the monument under the impression that each of the States that joined in the establishment of the cemetery intended that part of the monies appropropriated should be expended on a monument. The peculiar phraseology of the joint resolution passed in New-Jersey, in the opinion of the Attorney General, does not clearly authorize the expenditure of money for a general monument, although

Mr. Hopkins, on leave, presented a petition from citizens and property owners in Westville School District, Number Fourteen, of the County of Camden, urging the passage of the act entitled "An act for the better preservation of the peace in the District of Westville."

Which was read and laid on the table.

Mr. Cutler, on leave, presented a petition from the legal voters of Chester Township, in the County of Morris, relative to a bill before the Legislature, authorizing the trustees of the First Congregational Church of Chester to sell certain real estate.

Which was laid on the table.

Mr. Cutler asked the unanimous consent of the Senate to withdraw from its files the said bill:

Senate Bill, No. 272, entitled

An act to authorize the trustees of the First Congregational Church, in Chester, to sell and convey certain real estate.

Which was granted.

The President laid before the Senate the following communications:

STATE OF NEW-JERSEY,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
TRENTON, March 25, 1872.

To the Senate:

I have delivered Senate Bill, No. 141, to the Secretary of State, to be filed in his office, without signing the same.

This bill creates a new office. In this instance it is created for a useful purpose. But after the first year the duties of the Superintendent of Weights and Measures will occupy but little of his time, and I think the compensation should be reduced. Upon assurance that a supplement will be introduced, providing for a reduction of the salary after the first year, I have filed the bill in the Secretary's office.

Mr. Wiley offered the following :

Whereas, The Legislature is about to adjourn, and it is eminently proper that this Senate should express its sentiments as to the manner in which its officers have discharged the trusts reposed in them ; therefore,

Resolved, That the Hon. Edward Bettle, by the zealous, faithful and conscientious performance of the duties devolving upon him as presiding officer of this body ; by the strict impartiality and even-handed justice of his ruling ; by his firm but courteous enforcement of the rules, by his prompt and accurate despatch of business, and by his intelligent and watchful consideration of the public interests, has established a fresh claim to the regard of this Senate and to the confidence and appreciation of the people of the State.

Resolved, That while we desire, at the conclusion of his six years of eminent service to the State, to place upon record our high appreciation of the manner in which he has discharged his official duties, we claim also the privilege of expressing the sense of warm personal regard and esteem which has been inspired by his uniform courtesy and kindness, and invoke upon his future a full measure of the Divine favor.

Resolved, That the Secretary be directed to have these resolutions properly engrossed, and cause the same to be presented to our retiring President.

Mr. Conover said: In seconding these resolutions, permit me to say that it is not as a mere matter of form. I in reality second them; and I know in doing so I speak the sentiments certainly of the minority of this Senate, as well as the majority. It is a remarkable fact in the history of this session, that not a single decision of the President of this Senate has been appealed; but, by his fairness, his justice, his courtesy, yes, his kindness to all, by the faithful discharge of the duties of his office, not only as President, but in caring for the interests of the State, he has won not only our confidence and esteem, but our respect and our love. Singularly combining promptitude, decision and energy, with courtesy and affability, he could not but endear himself to every member of this Senate; he could not but make for himself a reputation throughout the State. It was my privilege to be a member of the House of Assembly during a portion of the time that the President has been in this Senate. It was my privilege to co-operate with him in some of the attempted reforms in this State, and I have never changed the opinion then formed, that, for the combination of earnestness of purpose, with a proper appreciation of the feelings of others, in the seeking of his purposes, the President of the Senate has no superior. Therefore, Mr. President, without delaying the time of the Senate any further, I desire most heartily to second the resolutions of the Senator from Union.

Mr. MacPherson—In rising also to second the resolutions of the Senator from Union, I have simply to say that I would be doing injury to my whole feelings, as well as injustice to our presiding officer, if I failed to express my thanks for the uniform kindness and courtesy exhibited by our worthy presiding officer to the political minority upon the floor. And, sir, for the kindness and courtesy shown me individually, coming here as I did a stranger to you all, and more particularly to our worthy President, I am exceedingly thankful. In short, for his kindness and courtesy exhibited to us, I take the liberty of expressing to him my thanks and my gratitude, with a thankful heart. It is owing to the uniform courtesy and the firmness of his rulings, that the business of the Senate has gone on so well, and that each of us can bear witness that all of his rulings have been prompted by the impulses of a generous spirit.

Mr. Hewitt—I cannot but add a few words to the testimony which has already been given to the eminent fitness of these resolutions. And while all of the Senators will, I am sure, unite in the adoption of the resolutions, yet I feel that the new Senators, those of them, at least, who had, like myself, very little legislative experience, will especially appreciate the resolutions before us. Ways that were difficult to them have been made smooth by the President's kindness ; he has worthily performed the arduous duties of his place ; and they can unite with the rest in high testimony to his untiring faithfulness, to his unwavering courtesy, to his prompt and at the same time just decisions. The memory of our intercourse with him upon this floor will be among the most pleasant recollections connected with our associations in this Senate.

Mr. Taylor—I wish to say that I very heartily concur in all that has been said. It is not necessary for me to say how much I esteem our presiding officer. To his natural fitness, his aptitude in parliamentary law, his knowledge of the business of the Senate, his skill in its technicalities, and his complete comprehension of all that relates to it, to his extreme fairness and justice, to say nothing of that courtesy, uniform and great, which he has exhibited in that chair, I think there is no Senator in this chamber but will bear abundant testimony.

Mr. Cutler—I know the Senate will excuse me for saying that, while as a young member of the Senate I came here a stranger to almost all the Senators, except it might be three or four from North Jersey, the pleasure I have enjoyed as a member of this Senate has been in a great measure due to the kindness which I have received at the hands of our President. Ever prompt to recognize every member of the minority of this Senate, preserving the rights of that minority clearly and fairly against the majority, I would be recreant to my own sense of justice if I did not rise to second these resolutions, and add my own personal thanks and esteem for the manner in which he has made the present session so pleasant to myself, as well as to all the members of this minority.

Mr. Williams—I only rise to express my real feelings with regard to the President of the Senate. I know the feelings I entertain toward him are unabated. They have been feelings of respect, and regard, and of love ; and I hope those feelings thus entertained will ever remain with me. I also hope that our President entertains these feelings towards me, and towards his brother Senators. The uprightness of our President is not excelled in any degree, or by any quality, except it be by his firmness of character ; his courtesy and gentlemanly conduct are not surpassed in any respect, except it be by his knowledge of parliamentary law, so well evidenced in presiding over our deliberations for the last two years. The correctness of his decisions is not excelled by any quality in my judgment, except it be by his love for justice, for truth, and for right. These qualities, truly, sir, have endeared our President to all of us. These qualities could not do otherwise. And now, as we are about to separate, brother Senators, let us remember these great and excellent qualities of our President ; and when we shall cease to meet as we have daily met for some time past, face to face, in our deliberations over matters having reference to the past, we shall have thankful and kindly feelings, not only for our President, but for each other. And when we take each other by the hand and say good by ! good by ! that love will well up in our hearts, never to be forgotten ; no, never !

Mr. Banghart added a few words in the same strain of compliment and of kindly feeling to President Bettle, closing with the remark that he and his colleagues of the minority would carry with them the best feelings toward their brother Senators and the officers of the Senate.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted, after which Mr. Bettle rose and said :

I would it were within my ability to convey to you, Senators, my grateful sense of the appreciation of my service as your presiding officer, which the resolutions so generously express. One commendation I have indeed earnestly desired to merit, that of impartiality and fairness in the discharge of the duties of my official position. I trust no Senator has had occasion of complaint in these particulars. And permit me here most sincerely to thank you for your unwavering courtesy, for the faithful discharge of your duties and earnest desire to legislate for the best interests of the State. Nearly 800 bills and joint resolutions have been presented for our consideration and action, and to the credit of this Senate be it said that on almost every day during the entire session of thirteen weeks our calendar has been entirely cleared, and all business disposed of which by parliamentary usage or our own rules could possibly be acted on or considered. Nor was this creditable dispatch the result of hasty or reckless legislation. Perhaps at no preceding session has there been more careful scrutiny or thorough investigation of both public and private acts. And while we have differed in judgment as to the policy or justice of proposed enactments, no injurious recriminations, no harsh accusations, no personal malignity has marred our fair record.

Senators have accorded to one another that which each claimed for himself, a differing judgment, but an earnest and conscientious intention to promote sound and just legislation, and to follow the command "Let all things be done decently and in order."

And now, my brethren, one word of personal allusion. With the present session terminates, on my part, six years of consecutive service as a member of this Senate. Of all those who answered at the roll-call with me six years ago, none but myself remain. Some have retired to the enjoyment and duties of private life, some have been gathered by that solemn and have had placed upon their record the unchangeable seal of eternity.

"Reaper whose name is Death,"

"'Tis sad to think upon
Those faces glad and gay
Which we have loved; some smile no more
Around us as they did of yore,
And some have turned away."

I stand here alone—and in this hour of parting, which to me is final and forever as regards official position in this Senate, my heart is indeed rich in emotion, but poor in utterance.

I pray you now, Senators, brethren and friends, to cast over whatever of mistake or of short-comings may have been mine during these six long years, the mantle of your charity and forbearance, and to believe that I have at least striven to do my duty as I understood it, without fear, favor or reward, for the best interests of my constituents, my party, and my State.

Among the friendships that have been engendered and cemented by the daily intercourse of legislative life, some of the strongest have been with those opposed to me politically in the Senate. I shall always recall them with pleasure, forming, as they do, the pleasant counterpart to much that is unpleasant and distasteful in legislative life. I would earnestly hope that the separation of to-day will leave them inviolate.

And, my friends, now at this moment of farewell, may I indulge the hope that some kindly and pleasant memories may in the future be recalled by the recollection of your Presiding Officer? With kindness toward all and malice toward none, may God bless you, and farewell.
