Meeting with Assemblyman Diegnan

February 4, 2014

Coalition of Statewide Advocates for People with Disabilities:

Safety of People with Disabilities Who Live in the Community:

- There are 114,000,000 households in the United States.
- Of these 114,000,000 households, there were 362,000 fires in 2009 the last recorded year of the study (Exhibit A)
- The overall risk of a fire is 1 in 307 in residences, nationwide. (Exhibit B)
- Fires involving instances in which a human factor contributed to ignition was 506,000 (Exhibit C, Page 1).
- Of that 506,000 there were 3,629 (1%) in which POSSIBLE mental disability may have contributed to the ignition (Exhibit C, Page 8).
- Of that 3,629 (1%) only 87 (2% of the 1%) occurred in a facility which houses people with developmental disabilities (Exhibit C, Page 6).
- This means that our facilities are thousands of times safer than ordinary residences.
- But even if we were only twice as safe, it would be discriminatory to impose special requirements upon our residences without a justifiable basis (Exhibit D – See letter to DCA explaining discriminatory impact).
- Why are our residences safer than ordinary residences?
    - Most fires occur at night (Exhibit E). We have awake overnight supervision
    - We already have strict standards that we have to comply with (Exhibits F and G).
- Would sprinklers be effective?
    - In 93% of mental health or substance abuse facilities, the fires were too small to activate the sprinklers (Exhibit H).

Unintended Inequality:

- We currently rehabilitate one and two-family residences: The retrofit to these buildings would require far more in terms of engineering, demolition, approvals, and construction than would otherwise be the case. It drastically increases the need to go through a planning board hearing, as opposed to simply obtaining permits for rehabilitation work. The increased cost would eliminate numerous locations.

- Condominiums built after the mid 1990's have sprinklers. Townhouses and co-ops do not. The installation of retrofit sprinklers in these multi-family dwellings would make many of them poor choices for housing because of:

    - The increased costs of implementation. The DHS/DDD budget uses $25,000.00 as the average cost of adding fire suppression systems – a figure significantly higher than the figures used by fire safety officials;

    - The cost of engineering and dealing with the Township; but

    - Most importantly, the cost of dealing with the community associations, educating them with respect to the Fair Housing Amendments Act and dealing with whether they agree that it is a "reasonable accommodation" under the Act can drastically increase costs. The legislation will not pay for the legal costs and time needed to handle such issues. The decisions as to whether such types of housing are suitable will undoubtedly be affected by this legislation.

- Funding:

    - We cannot afford to the funds from this Bill to come from the moneys that our members /clients use to live normal lives in the community. There has been barely a cost of living adjustment in the last 5 years. The budgets are cut to the bone. Further cuts are coming with managed care.

    - If the Bill is, in the opinion of Division of Fire Safety, necessary to save lives, then the Division should have the funds necessary for the legislation to operate efficiently come from its budget.

- Compromise Measures:

    - The Bill should be for new construction only.

    - Funds for the program should come from line items associated with fire safety, such as the fees and penalties from the Uniform Fire Safety Act, or fees associated with the Fire Prevention Contractor Certification Program, so as not to interfere with funding earmarked for staffing in the DHS budget or housing costs (capital or rental vouchers) for special needs in the DHS and DCA budgets.

Dear Senator Sarlo and Senate Budget and Appropriations Committee Members:

Thank you for this opportunity to provide testimony on behalf of the 180 members of the New Jersey Association of Mental Health and Addiction Agencies, or NJAMHAA, whose 98,000 employees provide treatment and support services to more than 500,000 of New Jersey's children and adults with mental health and substance use disorders.

The passion and dedication of our workforce enable them to see the value in every life, even when those they serve are overshadowed by disease and despair. When individuals, like John, Mary and Vanessa, become lost in the quagmire of addiction, a battle with mental illness, or both, the community based workforce is there providing services that save lives.

Unfortunately, only 30 percent of New Jersey's adults with serious mental illnesses and just 6 percent of those with substance use disorder receive treatment annually. In 2011, of an estimated 165,217 children and youth with SED in New Jersey, only 27,500, less than one in five, were enrolled in the Children's System of Care (CSOC). According to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Office of Adolescent Health, annually, four percent of 12 to 17 year olds in the state, over 28,000, will need but not receive treatment for alcohol use; an identical number will need but not receive treatment for other substance use.

We thank you for recognizing the value of the services our members provide by maintaining mental health and substance use treatment funding levels and for increasing funding for Drug Court treatment services, Involuntary Outpatient Commitment and the Children's System of Care.

We ask that you continue to recognize not only the intrinsic value of these services, but also the return on investment they provide to the state - by preventing costly hospitalizations, criminal justice and child welfare involvement, unemployment, medical complications and other costly outcomes.

Increasingly, community based providers are addressing the chronic physical conditions of those they serve through integrated care. Individuals with serious mental illness have a 25 year shorter lifespan, often attributable to chronic medical conditions, such as heart disease or diabetes, that go untreated. Those living with co-occurring disorders, meaning they have both a mental illness and a substance use disorder, can expect to live 37 years less than the general population.

The trend toward integrated care comes at a time when the Medicaid and Drug Court expansions, Health Insurance Marketplace, parity laws and the continued emotional aftermath of Hurricane Sandy are all contributing to an increase in demand for mental health and substance use treatment and support services. In the midst of these rising demands, the state is moving from a contract funded system to a fee for service system for adult services.

It cannot be overstated that reimbursement rates under a fee for service system must not only be adequate to ensure the continued viability of community based organizations, but must also support their growth to meet increased demand. This is true for Medicaid rates as well, which are among the lowest in the nation, and must be increased to support the delivery of services to children and adults.

Traditional Medicaid rates do not cover the full cost of services and impose tremendous challenges for providers. All costs related to delivering services must be incorporated into fee for service reimbursement rates. These costs include, but are not limited to: utilities, building maintenance and repairs, compliance-related activities, health insurance for staff, overhead costs and new and/or increased costs that will be incurred under managed care. Of course, these are in addition to the actual costs of providing care to children and adults.

Both Medicaid and fee for service rates must be sufficient to maintain high quality treatment services while maximizing the tax-saving capacity of non-profit community based providers. It has been well documented that these providers save New Jersey's taxpayers $1 billion a year. Taxpayer savings could be increased by deploying evidence-based behavioral supports to reduce the cost of other chronic diseases, and to help consumers learn illness management, help-seeking and wellness skills necessary for improved health.

Those savings depend on a dedicated workforce in the non-profit community based system, a workforce that has become increasingly difficult to recruit and maintain due largely to the ever-widening compensation gap between our providers and the state. A one-time one percent upward contract adjustment effective January 1, 2014 was included in the FY 2014 State Budget for community providers. The State should build on this investment and provide a full 3% cost of living adjustment in FY 2015.

NJAMHAA

This is critical. The value of the non-profit community based provider system as an economic engine should not be lost to a lack of recognition of the value of its workforce.

And the productivity of that workforce is evidenced in lives saved and restored, like those of John, Mary and Vanessa, whose stories you can find in our advocacy piece in your packet. They have once again found the value in their lives. We thank you for joining us in also valuing those lives.

Sincerely,

Dear Commissioner Constable and Members of the Interagency Council on Homelessness:

Thank you for this opportunity to illustrate challenges providers face and best practices they use in serving the homeless population.

First, I would like to share two powerful examples of how providing housing leads to many other positive changes in people's lives. These quotes are from clients in Greater Trenton Behavioral HealthCare's Housing First program.

"Once you have housing, then you can move forward. I went to school and got a Certified Nursing Assistant license, and I'm about to start a job," Margaret said. She was also continuing with substance abuse treatment and about to obtain a driver's license.

Catherine was not sure she would survive her homelessness. She said, "That's how depressed I felt. Once I got my own home, then I had a sense of self-respect and dignity." At the time, she had earned a certification to work as an addictions counselor and was close to completing a degree in social services. "Nothing's going to stop me. Housing First literally saved my life," she said.

Margaret and Catherine are two of many examples of how the Housing First model is saving lives. And other models are also effective. However, several challenges impede providers' efforts to serve this population.

NJAMHAA

Probably the greatest challenge is obtaining identification. Another challenge is the long wait times for receiving decisions on Social Security applications.

One of the biggest obstacles is obtaining emergency shelter or short term housing for individuals who are not eligible to be placed by Social Services in their counties. When Social Services staff says a person is on the "do not place" list or that the person has exhausted their days of shelter, there are typically few, if any, other options for emergency shelter.

Even when individuals are deemed eligible for social services, they often cannot secure affordable housing because very few units exist. In Atlantic County, for example, residents typically wait for more than two years.

Lack of communication among system employees is another significant challenge. For example, they do not always share information about clients, which prevents providers from meeting their needs. The location of services and scarce transportation resources impose additional barriers.

If these obstacles were eliminated, providers would be able to serve individuals in need – ideally by using best practices, such as outreach and supportive housing, which have been proven to be effective. We recommend that the Council undertake initiatives to ensure sufficient funding to enable providers to consistently implement these best practices and improve individuals' lives.

Outreach is one example of a best practice. Providers must be able to meet clients where they are – literally and figuratively – in order to develop trust. We recommend establishing Collaborative Community Outreach and liaisons in order to link clients to needed services, such as welfare and medical care, as quickly as possible. Without such a system, clients frequently do not access services or they are unlikely to accept services when they become available.

Sufficient funding and ample time are needed to engage homeless individuals. The fee-for-service reimbursement rates that are being established for use with the Administrative Services Organization must cover these essential activities.

Another best practice is to offer choices to individuals about the services they will receive. For example, many people will request assistance with obtaining identification before accepting services. By allowing this choice, trust will likely be established. That trust, in turn, would lead to conversations with the clients about meeting their other needs.

Of course, clients' basic needs must also be met. In addition to clothing, food and health care, homeless individuals need bridge funding to obtain temporary shelter. We also strongly urge that minimal initial requirements be enacted at shelters in order to give clients opportunities to develop long-term plans for addressing their needs. In addition, staff at shelters should be able to coordinate and host services.

Supportive housing programs are essential as they foster individuals' progress toward sound health – mental and physical – and other goals, such as education and employment. Numerous supportive housing providers reported that clients accept services to meet their health needs and they have been able to obtain Social Security Disability income – all following the provision of stability through housing and support services.

To meet all of these needs, many believe the Housing First model is ideal. By not requiring participation in mental health and substance abuse treatment programs in order to obtain housing, clients' willingness to accept these services is actually enhanced. The following comments from clients in Greater Trenton Behavioral HealthCare's Housing First program illustrate this point:

"Getting a place to live healed me. It makes you want to go up the ladder instead of going around in a circle." At the time Alex shared his experience, he had been in the program and in recovery from substance use for three years and was volunteering at a senior citizen housing program.

By working together to overcome challenges and reinforce providers' ability to serve individuals using best practices, we would see many more individuals achieve successes like Alex, Margaret and Catherine have been able to do.

Thank you for your time today and for your ongoing support.

Best regards,

Shauna Moses
