BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on December 7, 1987, seeking sanctions against the respondent's casino license and casino key employee license as provided for in N.J.S.A. 5:12-129 for alleged violations of the Casino Control Act. More specifically, the Division alleges that the respondents violated the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27 by granting or extending credit to one casino patron with full knowledge that the gaming chips obtained through that extension of credit were used by another casino patron whose credit privileges were suspended for further gaming, and violated the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-102m, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.2 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.9 by falsely recording as a complimentary a payment of a fee or commission for allowing a player whose credit privileges were suspended to continue to play on credit.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed a complaint with the Commission on December 7, 1987, seeking sanctions against the respondents for the above-alleged violations of the Casino Control Act. By answer dated January 6, 1988, and received by the Commission on January 13, 1988, the respondents denied the allegations and requested a hearing. On January 19, 1988, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was received on February 2, 1988, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held on the matter before me on April 18 and 22, 1988. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Is the conferring of money or anything of value from one gaming patron to another gaming patron, wherein the conferrer has received the fund for the conferring of said money or thing of value from casino credit, violative of the Casino Control Act, specifically section 5:12-101 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(b) and 19:45-1.27, assuming a casino licensee has knowledge of the conferring of said money or thing of value, has knowledge that the conferee is a person who may not receive casino credit because of an overdrawn credit account and has received said funds for the purpose of continuing his gaming activities?

B. Did the Tropicana or Robert James or any person acting on behalf of or under any arrangement with the Tropicana or Robert James provide or allow to any person any credit or advance of anything of value or which represents value with the knowledge that Harry K. Kim was thereby enabled to take part in gaming activity as a player while the credit privileges of Harry K. Kim were suspended as required by N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27 in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101a or N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(b)?

C. Did the Tropicana or Robert James or any person acting on behalf of or under any arrangement with the Tropicana or Robert James accept a counter check from Young N. Kang, Keum Y. Shin, Keum Hong Lee or Kyung Hui Paik with the knowledge that another person, to wit, Harry K. Kim, whose credit privileges had been suspended as required by N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27, was enabled to take part in gaming activity as a player in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101b and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(b)?

D. Does a casino licensee or one of its employees violate the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(b) and 19:45-1.27 by extending a credit to a gaming partnership wherein one of the partners has been suspended from receiving casino credit while the other partner has drawn on casino credit, thus allowing the partner who has been suspended from receiving casino credit to continue play with the funds received through casino credit by his gaming partner?

E. Did either respondent violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-102m and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.2 by reporting and recording as "miscellaneous good will" a $5,000 payment to Kyung Hui Paik, which payment is alleged to have been a commission, fee, or discount against her debt for the purpose of compensating, rewarding or encouraging Kyung Hui Paik to provide to Harry K. Kim gaming chips with the intent of allowing Harry K. Kim to continue to be a credit player at the Tropicana while his credit privileges were suspended?

F. Did either respondent violate N.J.S.A. 5:12-102m and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.9 by issuing as a complimentary a payment of $5,000 to Mrs. Kyung Hui Paik for a purpose not authorized by statute or regulation?

G. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-129 and 5:12-130, what is the appropriate penalty for each of the violations of statute and regulation proven?

A timetable for the submission of prehearing briefs was also set at the prehearing.

By letter dated May 10, 1988, and received by me on May 12, 1988, the respondents' attorney requested that issue "D" contained in the prehearing order be amended. On May 16, 1988, a telephone conference was held with all parties to discuss this request. By letter dated May 17, 1988, and received by me on May 20, 1988, the respondents' attorney submitted specific language for a revised issue "D." responded to the respondent's request. On May 26, 1988, a second telephone conference was held with the parties to discuss this issue. At that time, I granted the respondents' request and confirmed my order in a follow-up letter, dated June 7, 1988. The revised issue "D" is as follows:

D. Does a casino licensee or one of its employees violate the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(b) and 19:45-1.27 by extending credit to a gaming patron who thereafter forms a gaming partnership with another patron who is a person who may not receive casino credit because of an overdrawn credit account?

Also on May 26, 1988, I granted the Division's request for an extension of time to submit its prehearing brief. I received the Division's prehearing brief on May 31, 1988, and I received the respondent's response brief on June 28, 1988. Several telephone conferences were held throughout the summer on a variety of procedural issues.

A hearing was commenced on September 14, 1988, at the Municipal Courtroom, Galloway Township Municipal Building, Absecon, New Jersey, and continued into September 15, 1988. Late in the afternoon on September 15, 1988, the parties agreed to settle this matter. The hearing was adjourned, and the record remained open in order to afford the parties the opportunity to enter into a written settlement agreement. I received the written settlement agreement on October 3, 1988, and the record closed at that time. On October 4, 1988, I issued an Initial Decision approving the settlement.

The Commission considered my Initial Decision and heard oral arguments from the parties at its public meeting held on November 23, 1988. The Commission next discussed this matter at its public meeting held on January 19, 1989. Thereafter, by Order Number 89-3-14, issued on January 31, 1989, the Commission rejected my Initial Decision and remanded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings.

In its rejection of my Initial Decision and remand of the matter, the Commission indicated several areas to be explored. The Commission first indicated that the original record left it with considerable uncertainty as to precisely what conduct constituted the admitted violations of section 101b of the Act and sections 1.25(b) and 1.27 of the regulations. For example, the Commission indicated it was not clear from the parties' stipulation whether the essence of the violations agreed to is that Adamar extended credit to individuals knowing that they would not participate in gaming activity as players, or whether it was Adamar's knowing extension of credit to an individual whose credit privileges had been revoked that merits the proposed sanctions.

Second, the Commission felt that the original stipulation did not resolve the issue under section 101a of the Act, namely, whether Adamar wrongly extended credit to one or more of the casino patrons named in the complaint with knowledge that the proceeds of this transaction were to be directed to the patron named Harry K. Kim. The Commission questioned whether or not the extension of credit to Ms. Paik, for example, was an arrangement to extend credit to permit Kim to gamble that was not authorized by the Act or Commission regulations.

Finally, the Commission felt that the original stipulation failed to resolve whether or not the $5,000 cash payment to Kyung Hui Paik violated the Act and the regulations. The Commission indicated that the parties may choose to explore whether the $5,000 cash payment constituted an illegal cash complimentary in violation of section 102m, or whether it might be regarded, not so much as an illegal cash complimentary, but as a payment to Ms. Paik for her part in assisting the casino to provide credit to Mr. Kim. The Commission noted that if it is established that the $5,000 payment was given for the purpose of subverting the regulatory process, rather than as a complimentary made an account of Ms. Paik's gaming losses, then the payment might well reveal far more culpable conduct by the respondents than the $25,000 penalty and a letter of reprimand would suggest.

On February 1, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was received on February 6, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A telephone conference was held with the parties on February 15, 1989, in order to determine the issues in the matter and to schedule a hearing date. A hearing was scheduled for April 24, 1989, at the Municipal Courtroom, Somers Point City Hall, Somers Point, New Jersey. At this hearing, the parties entered into extensive settlement negotiations. The hearing was adjourned, and the record remained open in order to afford the parties the opportunity to enter into a written settlement agreement. By letter dated July 20, 1989, the Deputy Attorney General forwarded me and opposing counsel a draft of a proposed settlement agreement. Further negotiations were conducted throughout the summer. By letter, dated September 5, 1989, the Deputy Attorney General forwarded me and opposing counsel a proposed stipulation of settlement which had been approved by the Director of the Division of Gaming Enforcement. On October 20, 1989, I received a written settlement agreement which was signed by both parties. A hearing regarding the settlement agreement was held on November 27, 1989, at the Municipal Courtroom, Absecon City Hall, Absecon, New Jersey, and the record closed at that time.

The parties have agreed to a settlement of all issues in dispute and have prepared a stipulation indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of the settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I further CONCLUDE that this matter is no longer a contested case. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

7. WHEREAS, $100,000 in value of gaming chips obtained from Adamar in exchange for the counter checks and front money withdrawals of Mr. Kang were transferred by Mr. Kang to Harry K. Kim at the gaming tables of Adamar for Harry K. Kim's use at the gaming tables of Adamar, and

8. WHEREAS, on July 19, 1986, Keum Y. Shin of New York, New York renewed an application for a credit account with Adamar and was granted an approved credit limit of $20,000 on that date which credit account limit was increased to a total of $200,000 on March 7, 1987 and again increased to $350,000 on March 27, 1987, and

9. WHEREAS, on March 7, 1987, Keum Y. Shin to Harry K. Kim for the use of Mr. Kim at the gaming tables of Adamar and on March 27, 1987, Keum Y. Shin issued a series of counter checks drawn upon her credit account with Adamar in the total amount of $320,000 and exchanged said counter checks for gaming chips of Adamar which gaming chips were transferred by Ms.

Shin to Harry K. Kim for the use of Harry K. Kim at the gaming tables of Adamar, and

10. WHEREAS, on February 7, 1987, Adamar established a credit account in the name of Keum Hong Lee of Bogota, New Jersey with a credit limit in the amount of $50,000 which credit limit was increased to $100,000 on February 11, 1987, and

11. WHEREAS, on March 7, 1987, Keum Hong Lee issued a total of six counter checks drawn on his credit account with Adamar in the total amount of $125,000, which did not exceed his credit limit due to repayments being made during that day and, on March 8, 1987, Keum Hong Lee issued a total of three counter checks drawn on his credit account with Adamar in the total amount of $100,000, which also did not exceed his credit limit due to repayments from the previous day, and, in exchange for said counter checks, Keum Hong Lee received gaming chips of Adamar of which gaming chips $50,000 in value of gaming chips was transferred by Keum Hong Lee to Harry K. Kim for Harry K. Kim's use at the gaming tables of Adamar, and

12. WHEREAS, on April 3, 1987, Adamar established a credit account in the name of Kyung Hui Paik of New York, New York with an approved limit of $100,000, and

13. WHEREAS, on April 3, 1987, Kyung Hui Paik was issued a counter check drawn on her credit account in the amount of $100,000 and obtained gaming chips in exchange therefore. The gaming chips were transferred to Harry K. Kim by Kyung Hui Paik in the presence of Robert James for Harry K. Kim's use at the gaming tables of Adamar, and

14. WHEREAS, all of the chip transfers identified in paragraphs 7, 9, 11 and 13 of this Stipulation, supra, occurred while the credit privileges of Harry K. Kim with Adamar were suspended. At the time of Robert James' observation on April 3, 1987, as described in paragraph 13 of this Stipulation, supra, Robert James was aware that Harry K. Kim was gaming with Ms. Paik's chips with knowledge that the credit privileges of Harry K. Kim had been previously suspended and not reinstated, and

15. WHEREAS, Harry K. Kim engaged in gaming activities as a player at Adamar utilizing the gaming chips obtained from the credit accounts of other persons as identified in paragraphs 7, 9, 11 and 13 of this Stipulation, supra, and

16. WHEREAS, on April 3, 1987, Adamar gave to Kyung Hui Paik a "cash paid out" in the amount of $5,000 which was noted as "Misc. Customer Good Will" and which has been explained by Adamar in its Answers to Interrogatories as "made for the purpose of assuring the good will of a patron who had just lost $100,000 at the Tropicana" notwithstanding that the player rating records of Adamar revealed no gaming activity by Ms. Paik, and

17. WHEREAS, at the time of the issuance of the "cash paid out" described in paragraph 16 of the Stipulation, supra, Respondents Adamar and Robert James knew that the patron who had lost the money was Harry Kim and the $5,000 cash paid out was turned over to Harry Kim by Ms. Paik upon her receiving same from the cashier's cage of the casino, and

18. WHEREAS, subsequent to the chip transfers identified in paragraphs 7, 9, 11 and 13 of this Stipulation, supra, Adamar conducted its own internal investigation of the circumstances regarding certain credit patrons apparently utilizing their credit accounts without gaming at the Tropicana, which investigation revealed and confirmed that the monies obtained through the issuance of credit as set forth above were being utilized for gaming purposes by Harry K. Kim. Specifically, the documentation prepared to record and memorialize Adamar's internal investigation revealed the following:

a) by memorandum of April 7, 1987, John Copriviza, Casino Cage Manager/Assistant Casino Controller, advised Lester Brzozowski, Vice President of Finance, that, on April 3, 1987, a "$5,000 paid-out" was paid to Ms. Paik. Mr. Copriviza further advised Mr. Brzozowski that Ms. Paik's player rating documentation reflected no gaming activity. This information raised a concern as to whether Ms. Paik had "walked with the chips." Exhibit A annexed hereto.

b) Lester Brzozowski, Vice President of Finance, brought the above information to the attention of John M. Gallaway, President and General Manager, and an internal investigation was commenced. The internal investigation focused on the potential that "chips had walked" from the casino, i.e., that patrons had obtained chips by issuing counter checks from lines of credit and cashing those chips without playing at the casino, thereby obtaining an interest-free loan. By memo dated April 21, 1987, Lester Brzozowski prepared a preliminary evaluation of "the pattern of betting behavior/chip transfers to Mr. Kim." Exhibit J-5-W as marked at the hearing and annexed hereto.

c) by memo dated April 22, 1987, John M. Gallaway, President and General Manager, directed Robert James and Lester Brzozowski to prepare a joint report with their conclusions regarding the "credit issuance" investigation relative to Harry Kim and various other Oriental players. Exhibit J-5-V as marked at the hearing and annexed hereto.

d) by memo dated April 28, 1987, Leanor A. Mazzeo, Casino Collections Manager, reported to Lester Brzozowski the details of her research into the potential "chip walking" of various Oriental players, which revealed that there was no "chip walking" but that Harry Kim had gambled with the chips obtained through the issuance of credit to others. Exhibit J-5-Z as marked at the hearing and annexed hereto.

e) Adamar's internal investigation into "chip walking" confirmed that "chip walking" had not occurred but that Harry K. Kim had played with chips obtained from the issuance of credit to, and the taking of counter checks by, other Oriental patrons. Exhibit J-5-Z as marked at the hearing and annexed hereto.

f) the details of the relationships of Harry K. Kim with the other Oriental patrons was revealed as Adamar's

g) that Harry K. Kim had essentially been extended credit by the extension of credit to the other Oriental patrons was finally confirmed by the memo of John Lee, dated May 7, 1987, which revealed that Harry K. Kim acknowledged liability to the casino for the credit debts of the other patrons. Exhibit J-5-AA as marked at the hearing and annexed hereto.

h) the activities of Harry K. Kim and the other casino patrons were summarized in a joint report, as requested by John M. Gallaway, and provided to Mr. Gallaway by memorandum of May 12, 1987, from Lester Brzozowski and Robert James. Exhibit J-5-BB as marked at the hearing and annexed hereto, and

19. WHEREAS, the memoranda and reports of the Tropicana of its internal investigation as described in paragraph 18 of this Stipulation, supra, were provided to the Division of Gaming Enforcement (hereinafter "Division") by officials of Adamar to advise the Division of the situation, and

20. WHEREAS, the Division conducted its own investigation of the gaming activities of the persons identified at the Tropicana which investigation confirmed the "passing of chips" from certain credit patrons of the Tropicana to Harry K. Kim while the credit privileges of Harry K. Kim were suspended and identified a lack of oversight by casino personnel of these activities, the effect of which activities was to allow Harry K. Kim, whose credit privileges had been suspended, to continue to gamble at Tropicana utilizing credit issued to other persons, and

21. WHEREAS, at the hearing before the Office of Administrative Law held in this matter, described below, John Lee, who at the time of the happening of the events which were investigated and give rise to the Complaint in this matter was Vice President of Oriental Marketing for the Tropicana, testified that, although it was common knowledge amongst the employees of the Tropicana that Harry Kim would gamble with gaming chips obtained from other patrons, (Tr 9/14/89 67:3) neither John Lee nor Robert James had direct knowledge or were ever informed by Harry Kim that the credit being issued by Tropicana to the credit applicants identified in paragraphs 6, 8, 10 and 12 of this Stipulation, supra, was for the sole purpose of allowing Harry Kim to continue to gamble on credit at the Tropicana while his credit privileges had been suspended. (Tr 9/14/89 72:20, 94-25). This testimony was in direct contravention to the testimony of John Lee at a sworn interview conducted by the Division on October 9, 1987 during the Division's investigation of this matter. (Tr Sworn Interview 10/9/87 48:16 et seq.) Based in part upon the irreconcilable contradictions in the testimony of John Lee during these proceedings, the Division filed an objection to the renewal of the casino key employee licensure of John Lee, which renewal was denied by the Commission; and

22. WHEREAS, John Lee is presently beyond the jurisdiction of the Commission since the denial of his license renewal application and he is presently a resident of, and employed in, South Korea, and

23. WHEREAS, Robert James has failed to renew his casino key employee licensure and has allowed same to expire and is no longer employed in the casino industry in New Jersey. Upon representation of his counsel, Mr. James has indicated that he does not intend to return to New Jersey to work in the casino industry, and

24. WHEREAS, from the evidence presented at the hearing before the Office of Administrative Law and from the information gathered through its own internal investigation of the matter, which includes the testimony of Sharon Altman Eisenberg, who testified that on April 3, 1987 Harry Kim, Kyung Hui Paik, Sharon Altman Eisenberg and Robert James had dinner together at the Tropicana (Tr 9/14/88 125:10) and, upon finishing the meal, Sharon Altman Eisenberg and Ms. Paik completed the credit application of Ms. Paik (128:19) and thence Sharon Altman Eisenberg observed Harry Kim at a gaming table playing with the gaming chips obtained from the issuance of a counter check to Ms. Paik in the presence of Robert James (129:24 et seq.) and John Lee's testimony that it was well known to the employees of the casino that Harry Kim would gamble with gaming chips obtained from other patrons and the player rating records and other records of the casino and observations by the casino employees of Harry Kim and the gaming patrons referred to herein and the memoranda and advices provided by John Lee that

Harry Kim would be responsible for the credit debts of, inter alia, the four credit patrons identified herein, Respondent, Adamar of New Jersey, Inc., acknowledges that it should have known that the issuance of credit to Kyung Hui Paik on April 3, 1987, and to the other patrons referred to herein, was for the purpose of enabling and allowing Harry Kim to gamble on credit while his credit privileges had been suspended, and

25. WHEREAS, Respondents Adamar and Robert James acknowledge that Mr. James failed to properly supervise and oversee the issuance of credit and the operations of the casino for which he was responsible, which negligence resulted in the casino issuing credit to the four patrons whose purpose was to allow Harry Kim to gamble on credit while his credit privileges were suspended, and

26. WHEREAS, on December 7, 1987, the Division filed with the Commission the complaint in this matter and, subsequently, the matter being determined to be a "contested case" and being transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law and, thereafter, a hearing commenced on September 14, 1988 before the Honorable Steven Carnes, A.L.J., and the Judge having received into evidence certain exhibits and having heard the testimony of certain witnesses and, on September 15, 1988, during the pendency of the hearing, the parties, through counsel, having conferred and reached a proposed resolution of the matter, and

27. WHEREAS, on January 18, 1989, the Commission voted to reject the proposed Stipulation of Settlement of the parties and to remand the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for further proceedings and, on April 24, 1989, the parties, through their attorneys, conferred with the Hon. Steven L. Carnes, A.L.J., and having reached a proposed resolution of the matter, and 28. WHEREAS, N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(a) provides that:

> Except as otherwise provided in this section, no casino licensee or any person licensed under the act, and no person acting on behalf of or under any arrangement with a casino licensee or other person licensed under this act, shall:
>
> (1) Cash any check, make any loan, or otherwise provide or allow to any person any credit or advance of anything of value or which represents value to enable any person to take part in gaming activity as a player; or
> (2) Release or discharge any debt, either whole or in part, or make any loan which represents any losses incurred by any player in gaming activity, without maintaining a written record thereof in accordance with the rules of the commission.

Thus, the Act prohibits any extension of credit for gaming purposes by licensed entities or persons unless, inter alia, the requirements of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(b) are complied with and non-compliance with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(b) is, ipso facto, a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(a), and

29. WHEREAS, N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(b) provide that checks can be accepted by a casino licensee to enable a person to take part in gaming activity as a player upon certain conditions, inter alia, that there is compliance with all credit regulations, including that the credit privileges of the patron not be suspended, and

30. WHEREAS, Respondent, Adamar of New Jersey, Inc., acknowledges that it violated the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(b) and, therefore, N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(a) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-

1.25(b) and 1.27(j) by accepting the counter checks of Kyung Hui Paik and the other patrons referred to herein under circumstances that Adamar should have known that Harry Kim was thereby enabled to take part in gaming activity as a player upon credit while his credit privileges were suspended, and

31. WHEREAS, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.2(c) requires that a casino licensee maintain records of the providing of complimentary services or items including "the name of each person provided with complimentary services", and

32. WHEREAS, Respondents, Adamar and Robert James, maintained and caused to be maintained by this casino licensee inaccurate records of the providing of complimentary services or items in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.2(c) in that the records of the $5,000 cash paid out to Harry Kim on April 3, 1987, identified Kyung Hui Paik as the recipient of the complimentary, and

33. WHEREAS, this being the agreement of the parties and the parties hereby request the Commission to accept and approve this Stipulation of Settlement;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT STIPULATED AND AGREED by and between the parties hereto that the factual statements set forth in the Preamble hereto are accurate and admitted by the parties, and

THAT, Adamar and Robert James violated the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(b), N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(a), N.J.A.C. 19:41-1.25(b) and 1.27(j) by accepting the counter checks from Kyung Hui Paik and the other patrons referred to herein thereby enabling Harry Kim to participate in gaming activities as a credit player

while his credit privileges were suspended pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(j) and the Respondents Adamar and Robert James, under the circumstances, should have known that Harry Kim was thereby enabled to participate in gaming as a credit player while his credit privileges were suspended pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(j), and

THAT, Adamar and Robert James violated the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.2(c) by issuing a complimentary service or item, to wit $5,000 cash, to Harry Kim while maintaining records of that complimentary service or item which identified Kyung Hui Paik as the recipient thereof, and

THAT, the parties hereto agree and recommend to the Commission that a civil penalty in the amount of $25,000 be imposed on Adamar of New Jersey, Inc. for its violations of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(a) and (b) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(b) and 1.27(j) and a civil penalty in the amount of $15,000 be imposed on Adamar of New Jersey, Inc. for its violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.2(c) and the Commission issue a letter of reprimand to Robert James to be placed in his permanent license file for his violations of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(a) and (b) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(b), 19:45-1.27(j) and 19:45-1.2(c).

SUBJECT CREDIT ISSUANCE

In our meeting held today with the three of us and Steve Bolson, it appears that the conclusion we came to in last Friday's meeting (4/17) was substantiated regarding the play of various Oriental player which confirms that effectively a great deal of our credit monies did not walk but was played and lost by Harry Kim.

Lester's memo implied that $917,275 walked which, as mentioned, apparently, did not happen although our rating system gives that appearance.

So that our records are clarified and in order, would the two of you please make up a joint report summarizing your conclusions and the information not shown on the rating system which leads you to the conclusions we discussed that, in effect, no significant monies walked from the Tropicana during these transactions.

It is extremely important that you do this as quickly as possible to insure our records are accurate.

SUBJECT: KOREAN PLAYERS: MEETING WITH S. ALTMAN

On April 27, 1987 I met with S. Altman, Director of Casino Credit at your request to discuss the items in my memo dated April 20, 1987. The following are her comments regarding each player:

Patron A: Hee Man Lee

Ms. Altman stated it was coincidence that the patron (Lee) and Mr. Kim were in the same day, these two patrons do not know each other. In reality Mr. Lee gave his chips to Mr. Dong Hyok Joo (#320129). When reviewing the ratings for this patron during the time period 1/3/87 the individual only had $2,000. chip play.

Patron B: Harry Kim

It was noted during our discussion that the majority of Mr. H. Kim's potential walk ($220,000) was given to Keum Y. Shim for her to make a payment. But this $220,000 was already factored into the calculation for Ms. Shin's walk, therefore, if we reduce Harry Kim's potential walk we would have to increase Mr. Shin's walk to $501,700. It was also noted that Ms. Altman stated that Mr. H. Kim's chip play was inflated.

Patron C: Young N. Kang

Ms. Altman stated that she agreed to the information reported and that the patron drew the counter checks in the amount of $100,000. and remitted the chips to Mr. Harry Kim.

Patron D: Keum Y. Shin

Ms. Altman stated that a portion of the potential walk factor which accounting calculated ($281,700), $220,000 was remitted to Harry Kim and $50,000 was remitted to Mr. Sung Woon Eun. Ms. Altman also stated that the patrons Win/(Loss) as evidenced in the player rating system is under stated. On 3/7/87 Mr. Sung Woon Eun (#327698) had both cash and chip play of $18,700.

INTEROFFICE MEMORANDUM

Patron E: Keum Hong Lee

Through discussion it was learned that $50,000. was given to Mr. H. Kim and an additional $50,000 was taken to Trop West for gaming usuage.

Patron F: Kyung Hui Paik

Through discussion it was agreed that the entire $100,000. in counter checks drawn by the patron (Paik) was remitted to Harry Kim.

SUBJECT CASINO CREDIT

October 1986 a meeting took place between Bob James and myself to discuss my goals for 1987. It was decided my department would produce 17 million from November 1986 through December 1987. As you know, from November through April, I achieved 4.5 million towards my 1987 goal.

Certain individuals have raised questions regarding a large "walk" factor on the account of Mr. Harry Kim of which I am in total disagreement. I will however, provide a payment schedule for Mr. Kim's outstanding balance. Mr. Kim presently owes $100,000 on Mr. Young Kang's account, $100,000 on Mrs. Kyung Paik's account, $220,000 on Mrs. Keum Yul Shin's account and $50,000 on Mr. Keum Hong Lee's account. Mr. Kim will pay the total of $470,000 on these accounts by the end of August 1987. The balance of $1,340,000 owed on Mr. Kim's account will be paid by the end of this year. Once paid, Mr. Kim's available credit will be reduced to zero.

Mr. Dong Lee presently owes the Tropicana $1,524,500 and proposes to pay $500,000 by the end of August 1987, with the balance of $1,024,500 paid by the end of this year. Once paid, Mr. Lee's available credit will be reduced to zero.

On the account of Mr. Don Y. Lee, legal proceedings have begun to collect on his balance of $550,000.

Besides the above mentioned accounts, the available credit will be reduced to zero on 12 additional credit players as they pay on their balance owed and I am not looking to establish any new credit accounts for the year 1987. The following patrons represent $1,935,000 in credit dollars:

Hee Man Lee (Paik)	$300,000
Keum Hong Lee	$100,000

SUBJECT CREDIT ISSUANCE

Per your memo dated April 22, 1987, this memo will serve as clarification on credit transactions including Harry Kim and other related players during the December thru April 1987 periods.

With regard to credit issuance to K. Shin, Keum Yul Shin, Keum Hong Lee, Young Kang and K. Paik, the following transactions occurred on days when Harry Kim was also playing at Tropicana. The transactions listed reflect only those trips when the above players and Harry Kim were here simultaneously.

On December 26, 1986, $20,000 in Counter Checks were issued to K. Shin. Of this $20,000, a total of $18,500 in chips were transferred to Harry Kim. There is no walk associated with this transaction.

On January 2, 1987, $50,000 in Counter Checks were issued to K. Shin. Of this $50,000, a total of $49,600 in chips was transferred to Harry Kim. There was no walk associated with this transaction.

On March 7 & 8, 1987, $650,000 in Markers were issued to Keum Yul Shin, Keum Hong Lee and Young Kang. However, these three individuals made payments throughout the two day period and after a detailed analysis by Lynn and Sharon, $248,000 in chips were actually available to play. This $248,000 plus $75,000 in cash deposits was transferred to Harry Kim. Recorded losses per player rati for Harry Kim amounted to $266,800. This results in a balance of $56,200. Of this amount $30,000 was used to pre-pay markers in Keum Yul Shin's account. After this occurred, Shin lost $7,100; Lee won $11,000; Kang lost $1,000 and $20,000 was transferred from Trop West (two days later) for payment at Trop Eas The total potential walk for this group on the above dates was $9,100.

On March 27 & 28, 1987, $320,000 in Counter Checks were issued to K. Shin. Of this amount, $220,000 was transferred several times between K. Shin and Harry K This chip transfer resulted in a overstatement of chip play in our rating syste The net transaction on the above two days indicates that the $100,000 in credit (chips) was transferred to Harry Kim. The potential walk was $2,000.

On April 3 & 4, 1987, K. Paik was issued $100,000 in Counter Checks and given a $5,000 Cage Payout for this transaction. Harry Kim received $96,300 of this credit/chips. There was no walk related to these transactions.

INTEROFFICE MEMORANDUM

In summary, chips were being transferred from various players to Harry Kim while at the same time, Harry Kim's account (owed $1,340,000) was suspended. The total walk for the above transaction was $11,100. I should also note that K. Shin owes $356,500; Keum Hong Lee owes $60,000; Young Kong owes $100,000 and K. Paik owes $100,000. The total amount owed for this group is $1,956,500.

We would like to propose that the Credit Committee Agenda be expanded to include discussions on new credit lines established over $50,000, and player ratings of accounts over $50,000 with activity in the two weeks prior to the Credit Committee meetings.

Record Closed: January 4, 1990 Decided: March 28, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter concerns the application of the petitioner for licensure as a casino employee, which would permit her employment in a licensed casino as a teller. By letter report to the Casino Control Commission dated November 16, 1988, the Division of Gaming Enforcement objected to the petitioner's licensure, based upon her alleged commission of the offense of theft by deception in the 3rd degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. These are the issues:

1. Has the petitioner committed acts which constitute the offense of theft by deception in the 3rd degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which would be a disqualifier from licensure pursuant to sections 86c(1) and 90e of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), even if such conduct was not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this state, as permitted by section 86g of the Act.

2. If the petitioner has committed acts which constitute an otherwise disqualifying offense pursuant to section 86c(1) of the Act, has she affirmatively established her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, pursuant to section 90h of the Act.

3. Has the petitioner established by clear and convincing evidence that she possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

By letter dated January 2, 1989, the petitioner requested a hearing concerning her license application. On February 7, 1989, the Casino Control Commission transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A telephone prehearing conference was scheduled to be held on April 11, 1989. However, the petitioner was not at home when the telephone conference call was placed. The matter was thereafter rescheduled and a telephone prehearing conference was held on May 5, 1989.

The hearing in this matter was originally scheduled to be held on August 29, 1989. However, the petitioner did not appear for the hearing until more than an hour after the hearing was to commence. By that time, counsel for the Division has already been excused. The hearing was then held as rescheduled on January 4, 1990. The record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Many of the material facts in this matter are not in dispute. The petitioner is a 32-year-old resident of Woodbine, New Jersey. She and her four children live with her mother. The petitioner's husband lives elsewhere and the petitioner has a divorce action pending. She is a high school graduate and has had three years of college.

It was the petitioner's testimony that she has never worked in the casino industry and she has never held a casino licensing credential. Since early 1989, the petitioner has been employed by the Ames Department Store as a front end supervisor. In this position, the petitioner trains new cashiers and handles large sums of money. Prior to her employment at the department store, the petitioner worked for about a year at a Rite Aid drug store. Prior to that employment and beginning in 1985, the petitioner was a homemaker and she received public assistance. At the moment, she is able to support her children and pay her mother $50 per week.

The petitioner testified at the hearing concerning the conduct which was the subject of the Division's objection to her license application. She stated that she had applied for and was receiving unemployment benefits in 1981. At the time she applied for the benefits, the petitioner was not working. At some point later in 1981, the petitioner was hired as a nurse's aid at the Rainbow Nursing Center (now the American Medical Nursing Center) in Bridgeton, New Jersey. However, the petitioner continued to receive unemployment benefits.

A claimant's benefit payment and employment record of the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance (Exhibit R-3) indicates that the petitioner initially applied for benefits on September 2, 1981. The record further indicates that the petitioner began her employment with the American Medical Nursing Center on October 15, 1981. According to the petitioner, this employment continued through September 1982. On October 28, 1981, the petitioner signed a record of claim interview and determination (Exhibit R-1). In this record, the petitioner stated that she had looked for work and had made personal contacts but that there were no openings. She further stated that she had a car for transportation and was willing to travel for either day or nighttime work. The record concludes with the petitioner's statement, "I have not worked, refused any work, or had any earnings since reopening my claim. I am ready, willing, (and) able to work full time."

It was the petitioner's testimony that she received a letter from the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance around February of 1982. This letter informed her that she had received an overpayment of unemployment benefits because she had been working. By notice dated April 29, 1983 (Exhibit R-5), the petitioner was informed of her right to a hearing on the allegation of the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance that she had received unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled. According to the petitioner, she did not participate in such a hearing and a judgment was eventually entered against her. A certificate of debt in the amount of $2,779 was entered against the petitioner in the Superior Court record of docketed judgments in July 1983 (Exhibit R-2). According to the petitioner, she agreed to pay back the overpayment of benefits at $50 per month. However, she was only able to make a few payments because she was having difficulty paying the mortgage on her home.

A computer printout from the New Jersey Department of Labor revealed that the petitioner had a remaining balance on her debt of $2,885, including interest, as of June 21, 1988 (Exhibit R-6). Six payments had been made, of which three were applied from State income tax refunds. The petitioner explained that although she had agreed to repay the debt, her husband had been using drugs and took the household money to buy them. She left her husband and he provides no support.

According to the petitioner, she filed for bankruptcy in 1983. No payments were made on her house in Cedarville, New Jersey, since that year. The bankruptcy proceeding was subsequently dropped, and the bank holding the mortgage on the Cedarville house allowed the petitioner the option of putting the house up for sale prior to a bank foreclosure. The house has been for sale since the summer of 1989.

A warrant for satisfaction filed with the clerk of the Superior Court on April 26, 1989, was admitted into evidence as exhibit P-1. This warrant indicates that the petitioner's indebtedness to the Department of Labor, Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance, was completely satisfied. According to the petitioner, she did not pay this debt and she has no idea who did. The first she learned that the debt had been paid was when she received a copy of the warrant of satisfaction in the mail.

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

The factual dispute in this matter concerns whether the petitioner timely reported her earnings from employment to the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance. As noted above, the petitioner acknowledged that she had been receiving unemployment benefits before she was hired at the nursing center. She testified at the hearing that when she started her job, she wrote on an unemployment insurance form that she had been hired. Nevertheless, she continued to receive benefit checks, so she thought that she was entitled to them. The petitioner stated that she first realized that she was not entitled to the benefits when she received a letter to that effect from the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance in February 1982. The petitioner acknowledged that her circumstances had not been great and that she did need the money, but she maintained that she had not intentionally taken benefits to which she was not entitled.

The petitioner's testimony at the hearing contrasts sharply with the signed statement which she gave to the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance on October 28, 1981 (Exhibit R-1). It is undisputed that she was working as a nurses aid at the nursing center at the time she gave the statement. In her statement she expressly denies having worked and denies having any earnings since reopening her benefit claim. This statement was false. In addition, the petitioner's benefits thereafter continued unreduced while she maintained her employment. If she had reported her earnings, it should have been apparent to her that the report had been ignored. Nevertheless, she did nothing until the Division of Unemployment informed her that she had received an overpayment of benefits. These events, taken together with her false statement on October 28, 1981, prevent me from believing the petitioner's uncorroborated testimony that she reported her earnings from employment in 1981. Consequently, I further FIND AS FACT that she did not, and that she intentionally received unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled in the amount of $2,399 between October 17, 1981, and February 27, 1982.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to section 80a of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), it is the affirmative responsibility of each applicant and licensee to establish by clear and convincing evidence her individual qualifications. Sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act require an applicant for a casino employee license to demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence her good character, honesty and integrity.

The Act also sets forth grounds for disqualification. Section 90e incorporates the disqualification criteria set forth in section 86 of the Act. Pursuant to 86c(1) and 86g, the Casino Control Commission can deny a casino employee license to any applicant who has committed an offense specifically identified as a disqualifier from licensure, even if such conduct was not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this state.

Between October 1981 and February 1982, the petitioner received unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled. She was able to do this by intentionally failing to disclose to the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance that she had earnings from employment. By this deception, the petitioner received an overpayment of benefits in the amount of $2,399.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, a person is guilty of theft if he purposely obtains property of another by deception. Since the petitioner's act of deception resulted in her obtaining benefits to which she was not entitled, I CONCLUDE that she has committed the offense of theft by deception. Since theft of an amount in excess of $500 but less than $75,000 constitutes a crime of the 3rd degree, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2)(a), I further CONCLUDE that the petitioner has committed a theft constituting a crime of the 3rd degree. This is an offense specifically listed under section 86c(1) of the Act as a disqualifier. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner is subject to denial of her application for a casino employee license on the basis of her conviction of a disqualifying offense.

Section 90 of the Act provides that the petitioner shall not be denied a casino employee license on the basis of her otherwise disqualifying offense, provided that she has affirmatively demonstrated her rehabilitation. In determining whether rehabilitation has been affirmatively demonstrated, the following factors under N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h shall be considered:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counselling or psychiatric treatment received, acqusition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

The license which the petitioner seeks would permit her employment on the floor of a casino as a teller. She has similar employment at the moment outside of the casino industry as a front end supervisor at the Ames Department Store. She apparently holds this employment without incident. The petitioner, who is a high school graduate and has had three years of college, is now 32 years old and is the mother of four children.

When the petitioner was 23 years old, she received unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled. This occurred between October 1981 and February 1982. As a result of her failure to report earnings from employment, the petitioner improperly received unemployment benefits of $2,399. Although the petitioner contended in her testimony at the hearing that she had reported her employment to the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance and that she had not intentionally received benefits to which she was not entitled, I have found the facts in this matter to be to the contrary.

The petitioner's offense occurred over a period of approximately four months. The record in this matter does not reveal that the petitioner has any record of arrests or convictions. Notwithstanding her conduct between October 1981 and February 1982, the petitioner was never charged with theft by deception. The credible evidence in the record reveals that the petitioner's commission of theft by deception occurred while she was experiencing a difficult financial situation. Although the petitioner subsequently agreed to repay her overpayment of benefits, she was able to make only several payments. In addition, three State income tax refunds were applied to her debt. Curiously, the entire debt has been repaid and a warrant for satisfaction has been filed with the clerk of the Superior Court. The petitioner does not know how the debt was repaid.

With the unexplained repayment of her debt, the petitioner's financial situation has improved somewhat. In addition, she has been able to maintain employment for approximately two years. Given the substantial period of time which has passed since her commission of theft by deception, it would seem that the foregoing factors could arguably support a conclusion that the petitioner is rehabilitated. Unfortunately, I am unable to reach that conclusion. This is so because I believe the petitioner was not telling the truth during the hearing concerning her commission of the disqualifying theft by deception offense. While it was her testimony that she had not intentionally received benefits to which she was not entitled, the credible evidence in the record proved the contrary. This lack of candor constitutes significant evidence that the petitioner has not achieved rehabilitation.

Based upon the foregoing discussion, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has failed to establish her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, as required by section 90h of the Casino Control Act. Also based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has failed to establish her good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence, within the meaning of sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act. Thus, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner is disqualified from licensure as a casino employee for the reasons identified above.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the application of Valerie D. Allen for a casino employee license permitting her to work in a licensed casino as a teller be DENIED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the revocation of Sonny Andrews' casino hotel employee registration no. 46123-40, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91 and N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1). The Division sought revocation of the respondent's registration by reason of its contention that the respondent had been convicted of a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), and therefore, he is disqualified from registration, pursuant to section 91b. The respondent contended that he was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 91d.

The respondent had obtained a casino hotel employee registration from the Commission so he could be employed as a kitchen worker at Trump Castle Hotel and Casino. By complaint to the Commission, filed June 22, 1989, the Division objected to the respondent's continued registration, asserting that the respondent had been convicted of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) with the intent to distribute, which is the predecessor statute of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a(1), which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1). Based upon the complaint, the Commission notified the respondent on June 29, 1989, that he had the right to a hearing, and that failure to respond within 15 days could result in his registration being revoked. By application dated July 18, 1989, which was received by the Commission on July 20, 1989, the respondent requested a hearing. On July 21, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on July 26, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before Administrative Law Judge Lillard E. Law on October 3, 1989. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether respondent was convicted of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, to wit: N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1), possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute which is analogous to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5.

B. Whether respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to Section 91d of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was held on January 30, 1990, in the Municipal Courtroom, Egg Harbor Township Municipal Building, Bargaintown, New Jersey, after which the record was closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

On November 11, 1986, the respondent, Sonny Andrews, was driving his car in Atlantic City. Howard Hayes and William Bullock were passengers in the car. Officer Thomas of the Atlantic City Police Department saw a beer bottle being thrown from the car. After calling for additional support, Officer Thomas stopped the car being driven by the respondent. Upon approaching the car Officers Ricketts and Knight, who had responded to assist Officer Thomas, saw Mr. Hayes reach into his pocket.

The officers removed Mr. Hayes from the car, searched him and found three plastic bags containing a total of one and one-half grams of cocaine and three plastic bags containing a total of three grams of marijuana. The officers asked the respondent for permission to search his car, which he granted. In the trunk, the officers found 32 plastic bags containing a total of 105 grams of marijuana, four large plastic bags containing a total of 109 grams of marijuana, and $150 in cash. The officers also found a weighing scale in the glove compartment. The respondent was arrested and transported to the Atlantic City Police Department. Prior to being placed in a jail cell, the respondent was searched. Two plastic bags were found in his pocket. One bag contained cocaine and one bag contained methamphetamine. [P-3]

On December 4, 1986, the respondent was indicted in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division (Criminal) by the Atlantic County Grand Jury in indictment no. 86-12-2433-D. He was charged with: Count Three, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(1); Count Four, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine) in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(1); Count Five, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana over 25 grams) in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(1); Count Six, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) with the intent to distribute in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1); and Count Seven, conspiracy to facilitate the commission of the crime of possession of a controlled dangerous substance with the intent to distribute in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-24. [P-1]

On January 20, 1987, the respondent entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment. On March 4, 1987, the respondent retracted his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to count six of the indictment, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) with the intent to distribute in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1). On March 27, 1987, the respondent was sentenced to be incarcerated for 60 days in the Atlantic County Jail, to be placed on probation for two years, to pay a $30 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty, and to forfeit $161. The remaining counts of the indictment were dismissed. [P-2]

The respondent has one prior arrest resulting in a conviction. On January 18, 1986, fire investigators were investigating a fire in the respondent's apartment house. In the respondent's apartment, the investigators found a large bag containing marijuana, 16 small envelopes containing marijuana, six small plastic bags containing marijuana and three viles containing assorted pills. The respondent was arrested and was charged with count one, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana over 25 grams) in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(4) and count two, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) with the intent to distribute in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1). On April 4, 1986, the respondent entered a plea of guilty to the reduced charge of count one, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana under 25 grams). The respondent was sentenced in the Atlantic City Municipal Court to pay a $25 fine, $25 in court costs, and a $30 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty. Count two of the complaint was dismissed. [P-4]

The respondent also has three prior arrests for which there is no disposition indicated in evidence. On June 19, 1981, the respondent was arrested for possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana under 25 grams), on August 31, 1984, the respondent was arrested for possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana under 25 grams), and on November 27, 1985, the respondent was arrested for possession of marijuana over 25 grams. [P-4]

The respondent was born in St. Thomas, Virgin Islands on July 23, 1928. He was 58 years old at the time of the last offense, and he is currently 61 years old.

The respondent submitted three letters in his behalf. The first, written by Gene B. Solomon, job developer, Atlantic County Supported Work Program, dated July 26, 1989, provides:

> Sonny Andrews was enrolled in the Supported Work Program from October 16, 1987 until April 4, 1988. He was assigned to a building maintenance crew which cleaned Atlantic County Offices and other facilities. Mr. Andrews attendance, punctuality and attitude were equivalent to that of employees in the private sector. He was placed in a job as a kitchen worker at the Trump Castle Hotel and Casino. [R-1]

The second, written by Eddie Lamberty, cafeteria shift manager, Trump Castle Hotel and Casino, dated July 21, 1989, provides:

> Sonny Andrews has been an employee of Trump Castle since April of 1987. Sonny has been a model employee since he's been here. He's never missed a day and is always willing to help out wherever he is needed. He is truly a pleasure to work with, always on time and ready to work. I, as his Supervisor for the past year vouch for his integrity and loyalty. I'm looking forward for a few more years of working together. [R-2]

Finally, in a letter dated July 19, 1989 (R-3), Arthur Train, the respondent's probation officer indicated that while on probation the respondent completed all conditions of probation and was released from probation early because of improvement, on April 29, 1988.

APPLICABLE LAW

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86, Casino License - disqualification criteria, provides in pertinent part:

Failure of the applicant to provide information, documentation and assurances required by the act or requested by the commission, or failure of the applicant to reveal any fact material to qualification, or the supplying of information which is untrue or misleading as to a material fact pertaining to the qualification criteria;

c. The conviction of the applicant, or of any person required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license, of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be:

1. Any of the following offenses under the "New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice," P.L. 1978, c. 95 (Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes) as amended and supplemented:

. . . .

N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5 (manufacturing, distributing or dispensing a controlled dangerous substance or a controlled dangerous substance analog which constitutes a crime of the second or third degree);

. . . .

N.J.S.A. 5:12-91, Registration of casino hotel employees, provides in pertinent part:

a. No person may commence employment as a casino hotel employee unless he has been registered with the commission, which registration shall be in accordance with subsection f. of this section.

b. Any applicant for casino hotel employee registration shall produce such information as the commission may require. Subsequent to the registration of a casino hotel employee, the commission may revoke, suspend, limit, or otherwise restrict the registration upon a finding that the registrant is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of P.L.1977, c. 110 (C. 5:12-86).

d. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection b. of this section no casino hotel employee registration shall be revoked on the basis of a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria or the commission of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of section 86 of P.L.1977, c. 110 (C 5:12-86), as specified in subsection g. of that section, provided that the registrant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation. In determining whether the registrant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:

1. The nature and duties of the registrant's position;

2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

4. The date of the offense or conduct;

5. The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) establishes that registration under the Casino Control Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual . . .registrant." N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1) provides for the revocation of the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his . . . registration." The Division contends, that the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a(1), and that the respondent was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1), possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) with the intent to distribute which is the predecessor statute of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a(1), which constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), and that, accordingly, he is disqualified from continued registration.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1)

Section 86c(1) mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends that the respondent's possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) with the intent to distribute in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, which, under the circumstances, disqualifies the respondent from continued registration.

N.J.S.A. 24:21-19, Prohibited acts A. - Manufacturing, distributing, or dispensing - Penalties, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Except as authorized by this act, it shall be unlawful for any person knowingly or intentionally:
>
> (1) To manufacture, distribute, or dispense, or to possess of have under his control with intent to manufacture, distribute, or dispense, a controlled dangerous substance; or
>
> . . .
>
> b. Any person who violates subsection a, with respect to:
> (3) Any other controlled dangerous substance classified in Schedules I, II, III or IV is guilty of a high misdemeanor and shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than 5 years, a fine of not more than $15,000.00, or both; . . . .

N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, Manufacturing, distributing or dispensing, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Except as authorized by P.L. 1970 c.226 (C. 24:21-1 et seq.), it shall be unlawful for any person knowingly or purposely:
> . . .
> b. Any person who violates subsection a. with respect to:

> (10) Marijuana in a quantity of five pounds or more including any adulterants and dilutants, or hashish in a quantity of one pound or more including any adulterants and dilutants, is guilty of a crime of the second degree;
> (11) Marijuana in a quantity of one ounce or more but less than five pounds including any adulterants and dilutants, or hashish in a quantity of five grams or more but less than one pound including any adulterants and dilutants, is guilty of a crime of the third degree except that, notwithstanding the provisions of subsection b. of N.J.S. 2C:43-3, a fine of up to $15,000.00 may be imposed;

The Division established that the respondent knowingly possessed marijuana. The Division further established that the respondent was convicted in Superior Court of possession of at least one ounce (31.103 grams) of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) with the intent to distribute. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a(1) and that the respondent was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a which is the predecessor statute of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(11), the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offense committed by the respondent is a disqualifying offense under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). The respondent is therefore disqualified from continued registration, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d

A registrant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against continued registration by affirmatively demonstrating his or her rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

1. The nature and duties of the registrant's position;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

4. The date of the offense or conduct;

5. The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;

6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work- release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Sonny Andrews is a casino hotel registrant and is employed as a kitchen worker. As such, he does not have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities and does not come in contact with casino patrons.

Second, the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a(1), possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) with the intent to distribute, prior to being employed in the casino industry. Because the offense is a listed disqualifier under section 86c(1) and because it is a drug offense, it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in its appropriate context. The respondent had in his possession a large quantity of marijuana. Some of it was contained in large plastic bags, and some of it had been divided into numerous small plastic bags for apparent sale and distribution. Apparently, the respondent was a drug dealer. Such conduct is extremely serious, and the admission of such persons into the casino industry would threaten the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations.

Fourth, the respondent's misconduct occurred in November 1986, when it ceased.

Fifth, the respondent was 58 years old at the time of the last offense. I do not believe immaturity was a factor in this case.

Sixth, the respondent's misconduct was not isolated in nature. He was convicted in 1986 of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana), and he has three other prior arrests for possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana).

Seventh, there do not appear to be any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct.

Eighth, the respondent submitted virtually no evidence of rehabilitation. He has been employed in the casino industry as a kitchen worker for nearly two years. His performance has been satisfactory. He was also released early from probation supervision for good behavior.

The Commission has recently addressed the weighing of the rehabilitation factors vis-a-vis the position applied for. In the Application of Brian Stiteler, argued before the Commission at the public meeting of August 5, 1987, Commissioner Armstrong stated:

> I would note that the rehabilitation criteria are identical for registrants and casino employees, but these factors can be weighed differently depending on the nature and duties of the position of the individual who is appearing before us and whether the disqualifying offense was an isolated or repeated incident, and I think that there are two prior Commission cases[1] in which we have given weight and emphasis to the nature and duty of the petitioner, and that's a significant factor in assessing rehabilitation.

In this case, the respondent is a kitchen worker. He has no responsibility for any casino gaming activity, and does not have contact with casino patrons. Considering the nature of the position he holds, the respondent's work record in the industry, the fact that he possessed a large quantity of drugs with the intent to distribute, the repetitive nature of his offense, his lack of involvement in the community, and his lack of evidence of rehabilitation, when weighed against the eight rehabilitative criteria:

I CONCLUDE that the respondent has not established, by clear and convincing evidence, his rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d.

1 I believe the decisions referred to by Commissioner Armstrong are: Benjamin Waters, OAL DKT. NO. CCC 7470-86 (April 30, 1987), and Mark Bisciotti, OAL DKT. NO. CCC 5240-86 (April 9, 1987), both matters having been decided at the Commission's public meeting of June 3, 1987

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division against the respondent is SUSTAINED and that registration no. 46123-40 be revoked.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: September 21, 1989 Decided: November 6, 1989

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) alleges, among other things, that John M. August (petitioner) committed acts of obtaining Controlled Dangerous Substance (CDS) by fraud and deceit and unlawfully possessed CDS which automatically disqualifies him from holding a casino employee license under section 86c of the Casino Control Act (Act) despite the fact that petitioner was not criminally prosecuted for the acts, as provided by section 86g of the Act. The Division, therefore, objects to the issuance of a casino employee license to petitioner. In addition, the Division seeks a judgment to revoke petitioner's casino hotel employee registration.

PROCEDURAL ASPECTS

The Division filed its objection letter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on May 16, 1989. On June 28, 1989, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. On August 8, 1989, a prehearing conference was held at which, among other things, the issues to be determined and a hearing date were set. The Division was also granted leave to amend its pleadings to include a complaint against petitioner's casino hotel employee registration. The Division's complaint was filed before the Commission on August 21, 1989 and on August 30, 1989, it was transmitted to the OAL with instructions to consolidate it with petitioner's application for a casino employee license.

The hearing was held on September 21, 1989, at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The record closed on that date.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this tribunal and as agreed to by the parties at the prehearing conference are these:

A. Whether petitioner engaged in conduct which constitutes a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: Unlawful Possession of Controlled Dangerous Substance (CDS), comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10; and, Obtaining CDS by Fraud and Deceit, comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-13.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2)?

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to sections 90h and 91d of the Casino Control Act (Act)?

UNDISPUTED FACTS

Petitioner is employed by Central Credit of New Jersey (CCNJ), a subsidiary of the Casino Association of New Jersey (CANJ). CCNJ is a company established by licensed casinos in Atlantic City to check and report credit of gaming patrons and to act as a clearinghouse for credit information of patrons. At some point in time, not specified on the record, the Commission determined that key employees of CCNJ must be licensed pursuant to the statutory standards for key employees under section 89 of the Act. The Commission's determination has been interpreted to extend to all CCNJ employees. Therefore, petitioner has applied for a casino employee license, pursuant to section 90 of the Act.

Petitioner is presently 31 years of age. In June 1981, he graduated from the University of Pennsylvania and awarded a Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree at the age of 23 years. After his graduation, he moved to New York City and worked in Columbia Presbyterian hospital for approximately six months. Subsequently, he changed jobs and was employed at the New York University Medical Center (NYUMC) in its intensive care unit (ICU).

During this initial employment with NYUMC, petitioner worked the night shift and was generally unsupervised. He had access to the ICU's drug locker where he would remove prescription drugs or CDS for administration to his patients. Between July to October 1983, petitioner removed certain of the CDS from the ICU drug locker for his personal use; i.e., morphine and meperidine (Demerol). Petitioner's scheme was to remove the narcotic from the drug lockbox by signing the drug out for a patient and not enter the information onto the patient record. Petitioner therefore made a false entry into the drug log in order to acquire the drugs. Petitioner's activity was discovered by a supervisor after at least 80 occasions of his making false entries into the drug log. Petitioner did not deprive any patient of drugs when he took them for his own use nor did he falsify a patient's chart to show that drugs had been administered when they had not.

Petitioner was neither arrested or charged criminally for the offenses. Rather, he admitted to the conduct and he was adjudged administratively by the New York State Board of Regents, Office of Professional Discipline, to have been in violation of New York Public Health Law, Article 33, with the imposition of a civil penalty of $1,200 and the suspension of his license. The license suspension was subsequently stayed and petitioner was placed on probation for two years. Petitioner subsequently satisfied the $1,200 civil penalty.

Petitioner was terminate by NYUMC and from about January 1984 through January 1986, he was employed elsewhere in nursing related activities. In or about February 1986, petitioner was reemployed by NYUMC, the only employee ever to be rehired under circumstances which lead to his termination. In November 1986, it was discovered that petitioner was again falsifying drug records to acquire CDS for his personal use. Petitioner's license was under probation during this period of his employment with NYUMC. Subsequent to the discovery of his second drug abuse offense, NYUMC placed petitioner on medical disability leave until March 6, 1987, when he resigned. Thereafter, on June 24, 1988, petitioner admitted to the offense and at an administrative hearing was fined $5,000 in civil penalty of which $4,500 was waived if petitioner committed no further violations of the Public Health Laws within a five year period. Petitioner's license was suspended and he is presently appealing that order.

Prior to the discovery of petitioner's second offense at NYUMC, he was engaged in a voluntary counseling and treatment program for his drug addiction at the Botybl clinic in Marlton, New Jersey. At this time, petitioner and his wife resided in Marlton and petitioner commuted to New York City to his job at NYUMC. Subsequent to the second offense, petitioner continued his treatment at the Botybl Clinic for approximately nine months with a clinical psychologist specializing in drug and alcohol rehabilitation. The psychologist was satisfied with petitioner's drug rehabilitation, however, he was concerned about petitioner and his wife's relationship and recommended that the couple seek counseling by an expert in marriage and substance abuse. Petitioner is presently with Roy Shirley, a professional counselor and therapist at Life Resource Associates, Glenside, Pennsylvania.

Petitioner has been employed by CCNJ for two and one-half years during the firms initial stages of operation. He worked as an administrative assistant to Ronald Gottardi, vice president and chief operating officer (CEO) of CCNJ. Later, petitioner was moved to the position of data programmer trainee and presently he is the firms personal computer coordinator (PCC).

Thomas D. Carver, president of the Casino Association of New Jersey asserts that petitioner performs his work duties at CCNJ in an excellent manner. Mr. Carver also opines, among other things, that petitioner is a caring, decent and fine young gentleman who reminds Carver of his own son. He expressed that he is very proud of petitioner. Mr. Gottardi asserted, among other things, that petitioner is a model citizen who possesses good character, honesty and integrity.

CONTESTED FACTS

Petitioner asserted that it was the stress of his job in the ICU which contributed to his drug abuse. He stated, among other things, that he worked the night shift at NYUMC and that his patients were the most ill who needed life support to keep them alive. Most of the patients, approximately one-half, did not survive which added to his stress. Those patients who did survive tended to be in a great deal of pain and needed to be sedated with narcotic drugs. When petitioner withdrew a prescribed drug from the drug locker for a patient, he took an extra measure for himself. Petitioner believed he could handle the drugs, which he took intravenously, without any serious consequences.

On the second occasion, petitioner asserts that he was living in Medford, New Jersey and commuting to NYUMC each of four work days. Petitioner was spending between 14 and 16 hours each day in work and travel. He asserted that he was tired and sleep-deprived with very little time for his marriage or a social life. The officials of NYUMC were aware of petitioner's skills and his former difficulties with CDS, nevertheless, placed him in a position where he had access to narcotics with very little supervision. Petitioner commenced to use drugs from his assigned area in the same manner as he had on the first occasion. After he had been under the influence of the drugs for a short period of time, petitioner's wife noticed the change in petitioner's behavior. She challenged petitioner where the two of them determined that petitioner should report his conduct to his supervisor at NYUMC. The officials at NYUMC discovered the shortage of drugs at the institution before petitioner was able to make his report. When confronted with the evidence of the shortfall, petitioner readily admitted to the offense.

There being no evidence proffered to the contrary, I FIND the above recital to be true, in fact, and hereby adopt and incorporate such facts as FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Disqualifying Offenses Under Section 86c of the Act

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8), it is established that licensure under the Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." Section 129(1) of the Act provides for the revocation of or other sanctions against the license held by a person "for the commission of any other offenses or violation of this Act which would disqualify such person from holding his license."

Section 86c(1) of the Act mandates that a person who has been convicted of any of the enumerated offenses under Title 2C of the New Jersey statutes shall be disqualified from holding a casino license. Section 86g of the Act provides that "even if such conduct has not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State, "the Commission shall deny a license to any person who has committed any offense under section 86c of the Act.

The Division contends that petitioner's violation of New York Health Law, Article 33, was, under his admitted circumstances, comparable to violations of New Jersey statutes of possession of CDS and obtaining CDS by fraud and deceit. N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10 and N.J.S.A. 2C:35-13 respectively. Petitioner admits that he obtained CDS while employed at NYUMC by falsification of records which misrepresented the legitimate use and dispersement of the drugs. N.J.S.A. 2C:35-13 provides, in pertinent part, that:

> It shall be unlawful for any person to acquire or obtain possession of a controlled dangerous substance or controlled substance analog by misrepresentation, fraud, forgery, deception or subterfuge. ... A violation of this section shall be a crime of the third degree. ...

Section 35-13 of the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice is one of the specific enumerated offenses under section 86c(1) of the Act. The commission of such an offense, albeit not prosecuted in the courts of this State, constitutes grounds for automatic disqualification for licensure in the casino industry.

I CONCLUDE , therefore, that the Division has met it's burden, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that petitioner is disqualified from holding a casino employee license by virtue of his commission of the offense of obtaining CDS by fraud. N.J.S.A. 2C:35-13.

Rehabilitation, Under Sections 90h and 91d of the Act

An applicant, licensee or registrant in a disciplinary proceeding faced with the existence of one or more section 86 disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against continued licensure or registration by affirmatively demonstrating his rehabilitation, N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h; N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d. These sections set forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination for rehabilitation is to be made:

1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
4) The date of the offense or conduct;
5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;
6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
7) Any social condition which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or who have had the applicant under their supervision.

First, petitioner is an applicant for licensure as an electronic data processing (EDP) employee with CCNJ. The work station for this position is outside of any casino and petitioner will have no direct contact with the gaming tables or with casino patrons.

Second, the offense of obtaining CDS by fraud, which petitioner committed in the State of New York, is a serious crime of the third degree in the State of New Jersey where a fine of up to $30,000 may be imposed. N.J.S.A. 2C:35-13.

Third, petitioner committed the offenses while he was unsupervised and under stress from his job as a nurse in a ICU ward. He was also having difficulty in his marriage and his relationship with his wife. Petitioner believed he could use CDS without any adverse consequences. Petitioner was wrong.

Fourth and fifth, the offenses were committed during two different years; i.e., 1983 when petitioner was 25 years of age and 1986 when he was 28 years old.

Sixth, the offenses were repeated where, in 1983, petitioner falsely took CDS from the ICU drug locker some 80 times over the period of July to October. Subsequently, in 1986, petitioner committed the same offense on at least 10 occasions."

Seventh, there were no social conditions which contributed to petitioner conduct.

Eighth, petitioner has changed his profession from nursing to data processing. He is well respected by his employers in his new profession and has experienced changed duties and responsibilities in the two and one-half years of employment at CCNJ. He has a promising future in his new found profession.

Petitioner has been and is presently under the guidance of a professional counselor, Roy Shirley. Mr. Shirley has no doubts about petitioner's future behavior and that petitioner will refrain from substance use and abuse. In addition, petitioner and his wife have been involved in their church and, in particular, with a support group which uses the 12-step approach of Alcoholic Anonymous.

Having carefully considered all of the factors enumerated in sections 90h and 91d of the Act, and having given fair weight thereto, I am persuaded that petitioner has met his burden and affirmatively established his rehabilitation. Notwithstanding the fact that he violated a trust when he was rehired by NYUMC and then committed the same offense for which he had earlier been terminated and fined; the record demonstrates that petitioner has been free from substance abuse for three years. He has changed professions and will not be tempted to use CDS in the work place as he did in the past. In addition, the prospects that he will ever engage in such abusive behavior in the future are nil.

Accordingly, I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioner is rehabilitated and will refrain from the illegal use of CDS in the future.

Good Character, Honesty and Integrity as Required by Section 89b(2) of the Act

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated within section 90b of the Act, petitioner is required to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979) at 8; Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985); In re Boardwalk Regency Corp. Casino License, 90 N.J. 361 (1982). When, as here, the Division raises the issue as to the licensee's good character, honesty and integrity, it is incumbent upon the licensee to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which this tribunal may reach a reasonable conclusion. Boardwalk Regency, supra ; In the Matter of the Application of Boardwalk Regency Corp. and the Jemm Company for Casino License, Casino Control Commission (November 13, 1980). In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of the licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure.

Clear and convincing, as a standard, falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here, the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the fact alleged is true; i.e., that petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity. The standard requires more than a mere balancing of probabilities, but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (L. Div. 1974); Germann v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466 (App. Div. 1969).

Petitioner produced four witnesses each of whom testified as to petitioner's good character and honesty. The record demonstrates that petitioner has never attempted to hide the fact that he abused dangerous substances. He freely admitted to his transgressions when confronted with the allegations that he filed false drug reports while employed by NYUMC. He has been characterized as a caring, decent young man who is a model citizen with good character, honesty and integrity.

I observed petitioner as he testified at the hearing and find he was candid and credible. He spoke the truth and did not hesitate to answer questions addressed to him by the Deputy Attorney General, his own counsel or the court. In Re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514, 522 (1950).

I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioner has met his burden and has clearly and convincingly established his good character, honesty and integrity as required by section 89b(2) of the Act.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the Division's complaint seeking the revocation of petitioner's casino hotel employee registration be and is hereby DISMISSED.

It is further ORDERED that the Division's objection to the Commission's issuance of a casino employee license is also DISMISSED.

Therefore, it is hereby ORDERED that the casino employee license no. 79959-21 be issued to John Mark August as soon as practical.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Yvette A. Bailey, pro se

Charles F. Kimmel, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: January 12, 1990 Decided: February 5, 1990

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

Yvette A. Bailey applied to the Casino Control Commission for licensure as a casino employee with a position designation of maintenance and cleaning. By letter of June 13, 1989, the Division of Gaming Enforcement ("Division") advised the Casino Control Commission ("Commission") that it objected to licensure. The basis for its objection was the allegation that Ms. Bailey had been convicted of shoplifting, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-11, in the Egg Harbor Township Municipal Court on May 2, 1983, and that at the time of filing out her Personal HIstory Disclosure Form in connection with the application for licensure, she failed to disclose the arrest and conviction. The Division contended that this failure to disclose material information required denial of licensure under the terms of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b.

Ms. Bailey requested a hearing and the matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was held before Administrative Law Judge Lillard E. Law on October 3, 1989. Judge Law issued a Prehearing Order of that date. The hearing was held before Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin on January 12, 1990, at the Office of Administrative Law in Atlantic City.

ISSUE

The issue for resolution at the hearing was defined in the Prehearing Order as whether the petitioner, with specific reference to her record of arrest, has failed to reveal any facts material to qualification for her casino employee license within the meaning of section 86b. In addition, whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

Evidence at the hearing was limited to the testimony of Yvette A. Bailey and Agent Patrick B. Hickey of the Division of Gaming Enforcement. Ms. Bailey, who is 25 years old, unmarried with no dependents, testified that she filled out her Personal History Disclosure Form at home sometime in December 1988. At the time, she saw the question concerning arrests, which is on page 15 and reads:

> 16. For the purpose of this question, the word 'arrest' includes any detaining, holding, or taking into custody by any police or other law enforcement authorities in order to answer for the alleged performance of any 'offense' in this or any other state or foreign county: The word 'charge' includes any indictment, complaint, information, summons, or other notice of the alleged commission of any 'offense' in this or any other state or foreign country; and the word 'offense' includes all high misdemeanors, felonies, misdemeanors, disorderly persons offenses and juvenile violations.
> Have you ever been arrested or charged, even if not convicted, with any felony, crime, misdemeanor, disorderly persons offense, juvenile offense or other offense (other than a traffic violation) in New Jersey or anywhere else? If yes, complete the following chart:
> _____ yes; _____ no

In response to the above question, Ms. Bailey checked the "no" line and wrote under the columns requesting the nature of the charge or arrest and the other applicable information that they "do not apply." She initialed the bottom of the page as is required for each page, of the application.

Ms. Bailey initially contended that she had "made a mistake" and then immediately added that she "felt she wouldn't get a license." She indicated that the offense itself involved a pair of sun glasses which she had been looking at in a store and had put into her pocket.

On cross-examination, Ms. Bailey first said that she did not understand that shoplifting was to be listed. She was aware that she had been fined as a result of the offense and had paid some of the fine, although she still owed $140.

Agent Patrick B. Hickey of the Division of Gaming Enforcement testified that he was assigned to investigate Ms. Bailey's license application. After reviewing the application and learning from other sources information that she had in fact been arrested, Hickey called her on the telephone. He read the entire question 16 to her and she responded "no," but then admitted that she had been arrested and said that she was afraid that she would not get licensed.

DISCUSSION

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(b) reads:

> The Commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of any of the following criteria:
>
> b. Failure of the applicant to provide information, documentation and assurances required by the act or requested by the Commission, or failure of the applicant to reveal any fact material to qualification, or the supplying of information which is untrue or misleading as to a material fact pertaining to the qualification criteria;

The evidence presented herein makes it abundantly clear that Yvette A. Bailey did not list her arrest because she was fearful that doing so might cause her to be denied a license. Although she spoke during the hearing of a "mistake" and also mentioned that she did not understanding that shoplifting was to be listed, I do not believe that her reason for not noting the arrest was quite so innocent. Ms. Bailey's testimony included several references to her fear of denial. Although there may have been some confusion on her part, I am completely satisfied that the reason for her failure to list was purposeful. Unfortunately, although there is no assurance that she would have been denied licensure had she listed the arrest and conviction, her purposeful failure to do so violates N.J.S.A. 5:1286(b) and requires that her license be denied.

The failure of Ms. Bailey to list her arrest reflects adversely upon her honesty and integrity. Although she may have feared that disclosure would defeat her attempt to gain licensure, this fear gave her no license to lie. She has failed to meet her burden of affirmatively establishing her good character, honesty and integrity by the requisite clear and convincing evidence, N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b, incorporating 89b(2).

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Ms. Bailey is disqualified from licensure. Her application must therefore be denied. It is so ORDERED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

8. On or about June 23, 1988, at approximately 2:00 p.m., Detective Joseph McGovern, of the New Jersey State Police, Casino Response Unit, Division of Gaming Enforcement, observed two (2) males at BJ Table 2A-201, who appeared to be under the age of 21 years, playing Blackjack on the casino floor of Bally's. Upon questioning the two males, Detective McGovern ascertained their names, Mitchell Scott Dickman and Matthew Hayden Rosenblum, and their ages, eighteen (18) and seventeen (17), respectively. Both males were then arrested and processed. A true and correct copy of the New Jersey State Police Arrest Report of Mitchell Scott Dickman is attached hereto and made a part hereof as Exhibit A. A true and correct copy of the New Jersey State Police Arrest Report of Matthew Hayden Rosenblum is attached hereto and made a part hereof as Exhibit B. A true and correct copy of the investigation memorandum by Detective Joseph McGovern is attached hereto and made a part hereof as Exhibit C.

9. N.J.S.A. 5:12-119(b) was effective at all times referenced herein and provides in pertinent part:

> "Any licensee or employee of a casino who allows a person under the age at which a person is authorized to purchase and consume alcoholic beverages to remain in a casino room is a disorderly person..."

10. By permitting Mitchell Scott Dickman and Matthew Hayden Rosenblum, two (2) underage persons, to enter the casino and to gamble in the casino, as set forth more fully in paragraphs seven (7), eight (8), and nine (9), Respondent, Bally's, violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-119(b).

IT IS THEREFORE AGREED AND STIPULATED by and between the parties that, in recognition of the foregoing, this Stipulation shall be subject to the approval and acceptance of the Casino Control Commission, and shall be null and void if it is not approved and accepted by the Casino Control Commission.

The undersigned consent to the form and entry of this Stipulation of Facts.

CASINO GAMING SECTION

MEMORANDUM

TO: Captain Fred V. Morrone, Supervisor, Casino Enforcement Section

FROM: Det. J.J. McGovern #3796, via DSFC. Barry J. Rover, Supervisor, Atlantis Casino

SUBJECT: UNDERAGE GAMBLERS (JUVENILE & ADULT)

DATE: July 12, 1988

On June 23, 1988 the undersigned observed two subjects playing Blackjack at Bally's Park Place Casino. Both appeared to be underage so identification was requested by this writer. The subjects stated they were 21, however could not prove it. Subjects were taken to the D.G.E. office where they admitted they were 18 & 17 years old. Subjects were arrested and processed. During processing false licenses and identifications were found on their possession therefore, they were also charged with that offense. The following confirmed information was received from the accused.

MITCHELL SCOTT DICKMAN
17 Glenn Drive
Woodbury, NY
DOB: 6/8/70, 18 yrs.

MATTHEW HAYDEN ROSENBLUM
96 Belmont Circle
DOB: 12/18/70, 17 yrs.

The subjects were questioned as to which entrance they used to come in, how long were they gambling and did they use their false ID's to enter the casino. The reply was they entered through the Park Place Street entrance. They just sat down to play and only played approx. two hands of BJ. Dickman had $95.00 in checks and Rosenblum had $25.00 in checks. The subjects further stated they did not use their false ID to enter the casino, because the guard did not check.

This writer checked the schedule for security at the casino and learned that the guard on duty at 2:00PM which is the approx. time the accused stated they entered the casino, was S/O Lawrence Borski Lic. #13641-21. S/O Borski was interviewed and stated that he did not remember seeing the subjects enter the casino through his post.

Interviews of all personnel at BJ Table 2A-201 were conducted by Det. J. Cordy. The following employees were questioned about the incident. Floorperson John Falco stated, he did not notice the subjects before the incident. Dealer Nemesia Ledford Lic. #62365-21, stated, she remembers the incident, but not the two individuals involved. There were two empty spots on the table and she really didn't look at their faces.

R. Lane Stebbins, Deputy Attorney General, for petitioner (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Alfred J. Bennington, Jr., Esq., for respondent (Bennington and Williams)

Record Closed: February 8, 1990 Decided: February 13, 1990

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of a complaint filed by petitioner with the Casino Control Commission seeking revocation of respondent's casino employee license pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. Respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A hearing was conducted on January 29, 1990, and the record closed on February 8, 1990, after the receipt of information previously unavailable.

The questions presented are whether respondent engaged in conduct which constitute the offenses of conspiracy, N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2, and theft by unlawful taking, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, automatic disqualifiers under the Casino Control Act even if unprosecuted, N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, g; whether his continued licensure would be inimical to the policy of the Act and to casino operations; whether respondent can establish good character by clear and convincing evidence, N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b, and if the charges are founded, whether he has been rehabilitated, N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

Certain facts are undisputed. This matter concerns an ongoing scheme to steal gaming cheques at the Tropicana Hotel and Casino which involved one or more dealers, floor persons and pit bosses. Simply enough, a dealer would drop a purple cheque, valued at $500, onto the floor and a floor person would pick it up and secret it in his jacket. The proceeds were later divided. Investigatory authorities received a tip concerning this scheme on May 27, 1988, and thereafter surveilled the table and pit in question until June 21, 1988, when the fact of the investigation was prematurely disclosed. Respondent does not appear on any of the video tapes taken during this period. The only evidence linking him to this scheme results from a statement given by Robert D. Delaney, a dealer, after his arrest in connection with this matter on June 22, 1988. Detective Sergeant John Burns who conducted the interview was informed by Delaney that respondent was involved in this operation on one occasion, sometime in April 1988. Delaney also gave testimony before the Grand Jury to the same effect. During this testimony he acknowledged a drug and alcohol abuse problem. Mr. Delaney had a small amount of cocaine in his possession when he was taken into custody. Delaney also implicated other individuals, and the parties appeared to agree that Mr. Wayne F. Fairfield, a dual rated pit boss, created the scheme. Respondent's license is presently suspended.

Respondent testified in his own behalf. He is 32 years old and is now a door person at Harrah's. He has lived in the Atlantic City area for some 15 years and has worked in various hotels since the inception of casino gambling. Other than this incident, no disciplinary proceedings have ever been brought against him, nor has he ever been accused of a crime. He has had good evaluations from supervisors over the years. Respondent denied any involvement in this scheme, and testified that the episode has derailed his career and caused him to suffer personally.

Respondent testified that as a floor person he supervised Mr. Delaney many times and had difficulty with him. At times it appeared that Delaney was under the influence of drugs and he reported this to his superiors. Mr. Delaney did eventually enter a 90-day drug rehabilitation program.

Respondent testified that he accepted pretrial intervention upon the advice of counsel because of the expense of a trial, and because it was not an admission of guilt. He performed 100 hours of community service at his church. He was never asked to testify against any of the others involved in this offense.

Respondent presented a series of character witnesses who testified as to his reputation for honesty and integrity in the local community and in the casino industry. This is the substance of the record.

Petitioner's entire case rests on the hearsay statement of Mr. Delaney which came into evidence through Sergeant Burns and in the record of Grand Jury proceedings. Mr. Delaney was an admitted conspirator, a drug user and someone who from this record, may have had motive to implicate respondent. While hearsay is admissible in these proceedings without the usual residuum requirement, St. Dept. of Law & Public Safety v. Merlino, 216 N.J. Super. 579 (App. Div. 1987), aff'd 109 N.J. 134 (1988), findings must nevertheless be supported by evidence "upon which responsible persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs, . . ." N.J.S.A. 5:12-107a(6). The quality of evidence presented does not meet this standard, and petitioner has not established its charge by a preponderance of the credible evidence. I take no inference from the fact that respondent undertook a program of pretrial intervention as it appears that no admission of involvement was required of him. See, R. 3:28, Guideline 4. Respondent himself was credible and he denied any role in the incident. Based on this denial and on an unblemished record both prior to and since the incident, as well as upon the character testimony of numerous persons who have worked with him and known him over many years, it is my CONCLUSION that he has established that he continues to possess the good character, honesty and integrity which first caused the Commission to license him. I do not proceed to a discussion of rehabilitation, and it is ORDERED that respondent's license be reinstated.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that any existing agreements, whether written or unwritten, between Bayshore Rebar, Inc. and any casino licensee or applicant or employee or agent acting on behalf of a casino licensee or applicant be terminated within fifteen (15) days of the date of this order; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Joseph N. Merlino and Phyllis Mistie Merlino are prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any other license, registration, qualification or approval required under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

IN THE MATTER OF THE APPLICATION OF BAYSHORE REBAR, INC., FOR A
CASINO SERVICE INDUSTRY LICENSE

Francis J. Hartman, Esq., and Charles H. Nugent, Jr., Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: November 21, 1988 Decided: December 20, 1988

BEFORE RICHARD J. MURPHY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

At issue is whether Bayshore Rebar, Inc., a reinforced concrete construction ("rebar") company operating primarily in Atlantic City, is disqualified under the Casino Control Act, L. 1977, c. 110; N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq., from doing business with casino applicants and licensees because of the allegedly inimical association of its officers with a member of organized crime contrary to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86f, and whether it should be denied a license as a casino service industry pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-92c and N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.1 et seq. Both sides see this as a case of family ties: the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) alleges that the respondent has an inimical association with the crime family of Nicodemo Scarfo through one of its members, Lawrence Merlino, a/k/a Lawrence "Yogi" Merlino, who is the father of Bayshore's vice-president and former president as well as ex-husband of its current president; Bayshore Rebar, Inc. (Bayshore), claims that its only association with Lawrence Merlino is purely incidental to constitutionally protected family bonds formed through blood and marriage and that these alone may not provide a basis for disqualification or denial of a license under the Casino Control Act and Commission regulations.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its initial complaint in this matter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on January 6, 1987, alleging various connections between Bayshore and its officers and owners and Lawrence Merlino, an admitted career criminal offender and a member of a career offender cartel headed by Nicodemo Scarfo. Joseph Merlino, former president of Bayshore, requested a hearing on February 11, 1987, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on March 5, 1987, for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. The Division filed an amended complaint with the Commission on May 6, 1987, seeking to disqualify respondent Joseph N. Merlino from vendor registration under N.J.S.A. 5:12-104b because of his indictment on March 17, 1987, in Atlantic County on charges of aggravated assault, aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, and possession of a deadly weapon for unlawful purposes. These criminal charges are still pending. The parties initially agreed to hold proceedings on the amended complaint in abeyance pending resolution of the criminal charges, but, as these charges were not rapidly resolved, it was determined to be more advisable to proceed to hearing on the allegations of the original complaint, and a prehearing to this end was held on November 17, 1987, with a prehearing order issued the next day. Decision on the unrelated criminal charges was deferred, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86d, during the pendency of that charge. The hearing on the original complaint was scheduled for January 7, 1988, but this date was adjourned at the respondent's request due to the unavailability of counsel. The hearing was conducted on March 14, March 29 and March 31, 1988. After the completion of the hearing, additional documentation was submitted by respondent on April 7, 1988, with a ten-day reply period allowed to the Division. Before expiration of the time period for submission of an initial decision, the Division advised that it intended to move to reopen and supplement the record by submission of a sworn affidavit by Thomas A. DelGiorno. Bayshore filed a letter brief in opposition on July 5, 1988. On July 22, 1988, the record was reopened and the Division was ordered to produce Thomas A. DelGiorno for testimony; the respondent was directed to have Lawrence Merlino testify. Because of a pending federal criminal matter in which both men were involved, this could not be arranged and it was determined, on August 19, 1988, to admit the proposed affidavit from Thomas DelGiorno. Bayshore was also given an opportunity to submit an opposing affidavit from Lawrence Merlino, and did so.

On July 29, 1988, Bayshore applied to the Commission for licensure as a casino service industry pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-92c and N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3 et seq. The Division objected and argued that the applicant was disqualified on the grounds of its association with Lawrence Merlino, as well as the indictment of Joseph N. Merlino and by what the Division characterizes as misrepresentations by the applicant's principals in the course of the hearing in this matter. The matter of the application was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case with a request that it be consolidated with the pending matter in OAL DKT. CCC 1445-87. Consolidation was granted and the parties rested on the evidence introduced in the previously-filed casino control matter, which had been heard in March.

On September 7, 1988, Bayshore submitted an affidavit by Lawrence Merlino, responding to that previously submitted by Thomas DelGiorno. On September 21, 1988, the Division submitted an affidavit of Division Agent Barbara Friese and excerpts from reports of the Pennsylvania Crime Commission. On November 4, 1988, Bayshore forwarded sections of a transcript from a trial in United States District Court, Eastern District of Pennsylvania, entitled United States of America v. Nicodemo Scarfo, et al; in which the testimony of Thomas DelGiorno as to Bayshore and Lawrence Merlino was featured. The Division submitted a responsive argument on November 21, 1988, and the record as to the consolidated matter was closed on that date. The matter of the indictment pending against Joseph Merlino remains to be determined through criminal proceedings and is not dealt with in this decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The following material facts are not in dispute. Bayshore stipulated that Lawrence Merlino is a career criminal offender within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86f and N.J.A.C. 19:48-1.1, as well as an associate of career criminal offenders and a member of a career criminal offender cartel. Specifically, Lawrence Merlino is an associate of Nicodemo Scarfo, the acknowledged head of an organized crime family operating out of Philadelphia in southern New Jersey and the Atlantic City area. Official notice is taken that, on November 19, 1988, Lawrence Merlino was convicted on a number of federal criminal charges in the matter of United States of America v. Nicodemo Scarfo, et al., U.S. District Court Criminal No. 88-003. Also convicted were Lawrence Merlino's brother Salvatore Merlino; his nephew, Phillip Leonetti; Nicodemo Scarfo, and others. The Merlino brothers are known to be members of the Scarfo crime family, with Salvatore Merlino functioning as an underboss, and Lawrence Merlino and Phillip Leonetti serving as soldiers within that organization. Lawrence Merlino's association with Nicodemo Scarfo goes back to at least 1979 when the two, along with Phillip Leonetti, were charged with the murder of Vincent Falcone, an Atlantic City cement contractor. The three were subsequently acquitted. Lawrence Merlino also has worked as president and part owner, of Nat Nat, Inc., a construction company in Atlantic City. He has also worked for Scarf, Inc., a construction company owned by Nicodemo Scarfo's nephew, Phillip Leonetti.

Because of his status as a career offender and an associate of a career offender, Lawrence Merlino was barred from casino premises by the Commission and this exclusion was affirmed. See, State v. Lawrence Merlino, 216 N.J. Super. 579 (App. Div. 1987), affirmed, State v. Merlino, 109 N.J. 134 (1988). Lawrence Merlino is currently incarcerated in Pennsylvania awaiting trial on other charges.

There is also no dispute that Lawrence Merlino was president of Nat Nat, Inc., a reinforced steel construction company, at the time of the incorporation of Bayshore Rebar in December of 1985. He had incorporated a company called Bayshore Rebar, Inc., in Florida prior to that time, which corporation was involuntarily dissolved on November 1, 1985, for failure to file its annual report (P-32). Prior to 1985, Nat Nat operated out of offices at 28 North Georgia Avenue, Atlantic City, which was the same address used by Scarf, Inc., a construction company headed by Phillip Leonetti, nephew of Nicodemo Scarfo and a career offender, as discussed above. The operations of Nat Nat were later moved to a home located at 15 North Decatur Avenue in Margate, which Lawrence Merlino had purchased for his former spouse and children. Lawrence Merlino did not at any time reside at that address but occasionally visited his children there, as well as to check on the affairs of Nat Nat, which were being handled by his daughter, Kimberly.

Joseph N. Merlino is the son of Lawrence Merlino and is currently 21 years old. At the time of the filing of the Division's original complaint, he was designated as president and sole owner of Bayshore Rebar, Inc. By the time of the hearing in this matter he no longer held that office, which had been assumed by his mother, although he was still vice-president and was principally employed by it in the construction rebar business. His ownership share had also been reduced to twenty-five percent, with his mother holding the rest. The "rebar" business involves the placing of steel rods at building contruction sites prior to the pouring of concrete so that the building cement structure will be reinforced with steel. Bayshore has worked on a number of casino sites in Atlantic City. Lawrence Merlino holds no office in the company and there is no evidence that he holds any interest in it or that he has been employed by it in any capacity. There is also no evidence that Lawrence Merlino has received any monies from Bayshore or, for that matter, from Joseph Merlino or Phyllis Mistie, his former spouse and the mother of his five children. The Division also has offered no evidence showing any payments by Bayshore or Joseph Merlino to Nicodemo Scarfo, Salvatore Merlino, Phillip Leonetti or anyone else associated with the reputed Scarfo crime family, nor has any other evidence been offered to demonstrate business or personal dealings between Bayshore or its principals and Scarfo, Leonetti, and Salvatore Merlino, beyond Joseph Merlino's prior employment with Scarf, Inc., and Nat Nat, Inc.

There is no dispute as to the above facts and I so FIND.

The Division offered an affidavit signed by one Thomas Albert DelGiorno, an acknowledged former member of the Scarfo crime family who has testified against its members, including Lawrence Merlino, in a number of proceedings (See, P-48). DelGiorno states in his affidavit, which I set forth in full, that:

> 1. I am currently in protective custody in an undisclosed location. I currently face criminal charges for various criminal offenses and have testified for the federal government and the States of New Jersey and Pennsylvania in various criminal matters of which I have knowledge. It is my understanding that I will be provided no favorable treatment as a result of the information provided in this affidavit, nor have I been provided any other inducement for the provision of this information, such as a reduced sentence, defferal or dismissal of charges, or any other promised act in my benefit.
> 2. I first met an individual known as Lawrence Merlino in 1972. Lawrence Merlino was also known to me and others as Lawrence "Yogi" Merlino. Since that time, I have met with, and engaged in matters of mutual interest with Lawrence Merlino on numerous occasions. To my knowledge, Lawrence Merlino is currently in a Pennsylvania jail awaiting trial.
> 3. I was a fully-initiated member of an Organized Crime family headed by an individual known as Nicodemo Scarfo. I was initiated into this organization in January 1982. Furthermore, I also know that Lawrence Merlino is a fully-initiated member of the Scarfo Organized Crime family. Lawrence Merlino was initiated in the Scarfo Organized Crime family in the spring of 1980. Lawrence Merlino was promoted to the rank of captain in the Scarfo Organized Crime family in 1982.

4. During the approximate period 1982 through 1986, Lawrence Merlino spoke with me directly and personally on numerous occasions concerning various developments in certain business interests held by Lawrence Merlino, including the construction activities of certain rebar companies operating in Atlantic City, New Jersey. Lawrence Merlino is the father of an inidividual known as Joseph Merlino of Atlantic City. Lawrence Merlino informed me of a rebar company operating in the Atlantic City area by the name of Bayshore Rebar, which was the first mention of that company I heard.

5. With regard to rebar construction contracts, Lawrence Merlino informed me that it was his practice to obtain various rebar jobs in and around Atlantic City and to utilize Bayshore to actually perform the work and to receive payment for the work. Lawrence Merlino also informed me that he shared the money obtained from the Bayshore Rebar operations with Bayshore.

6. Lawrence Merlino informed me that he conducted operations in the above-described manner with Bayshore because he, Lawrence Merlino, felt he could not operate in his own name in Atlantic City due to his reputation as a member of Organized Crime. Lawrence Merlino informed me that he believed the authorities would never allow him to operate directly with casinos and other companies due to his reputation as a member of Organized Crime. For this reason, Lawrence Merlino also believed that he could not operate in the name of his own company, Nat-Nat, Inc. For these reasons, Lawrence Merlino told me he utilized Bayshore Rebar.

7. I make this affidavit at the request of the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement, which agency I understand has charged that Lawrence "Yogi" Merlino is associated with Bayshore Rebar, Inc., and persons within that company. It is my testimony here that Lawrence "Yogi" Merlino is associated with Bayshore Rebar, Inc., as I have set forth above (emphasis added. [P-50]

Bayshore submitted an opposing affidavit from Lawrence Merlino, which is also set forth in full:

1. I have read the affidavit of Thomas Albert Del Giorno in support of the Division of Gaming Enforcement's application for suspension of Bayshore Rebar, Inc., and make this affidavit in response to the allegations contained within Mr. Del Giorno's affidavit.

2. In regards to the allegation of Mr. Del Giorno that I discussed with him a rebar company operating in the Atlantic City area by the name of Bayshore Rebar, Inc., I had never discussed such company with Thomas Del Giorno. Further, I never informed Mr. Del Giorno that it was my practice to obtain various rebar jobs in and around Atlantic City, nor did I inform Mr. Del Giorno that I actually utilized Bayshore Rebar to actually perform the work and to receive payment for the work. Also, I have never received or shared in any monies obtained by Bayshore Rebar operations with Bayshore or Joseph Merlino.

3. Nor have I ever informed Mr. Del Giorno that I conducted operations using Bayshore Rebar because I felt that I could not operate in my own name due to my reputation.

4. Those allegations of Mr. Del Giorno regarding Bayshore Rebar are not true, and I submit this affidavit in response to the affidavit of Mr. Del Giorno. I further disavow and deny any association with Bayshore Rebar, Inc., other than that Joseph Merlino is my natural born child (emphasis added). [R-2]

At the recent trial in the matter of United States of America v. Nicodemo Scarfo, which resulted in the conviction of Lawrence Merlino, Salvatore Merlino, Phillip Leonetti and Nicodemo Scarfo on various federal criminal charges, Thomas DelGiorno testified on behalf of the government and was questioned concerning the above affidavit. The following excerpt of transcript is taken from the cross-examination of Thomas DelGiorno:

Q Mr. DelGiorno, I return to you the affidavit that I asked you to read yesterday, did you have an opportunity to read it yesterday before we broke for the day?

A Yes.

Q I had started to ask you some questions with respect to the procedure and the circumstances under which you took this affidavit. You may be repeating some answers, but woul you please tell the members of the jury, under what circumstances it came about that you were asked to take this affidavit and how was the affidavit formulated?

A It's whoever they are from the State of New Jersey —

Q I'm sorry. Could you speak a little clearer.

A I said, whoever took this from the State of New Jersey asked me about Larry's involved in Nat-Nat.

Q Well, let me see if I understand something and correct me if I'm wrong. Somebody from the State — and you've already told us that you were escorted by Federal authorities to a meeting with some people from the State of New Jersey; is that correct?

A Correct.

Q And those people, whoever they are, was it one person or more than one person?

A I think there was more than one.

Q They interviewed you and asked you to tell them what you knew about Larry, meaning Lawrence Merlino, correct?

A Right.

Q Involvement with a company in Atlantic City by the name of Nat-Nat, that Lawrence Merlino had something to do with; is that correct?

A Correct.

Q Okay, and you told them, I gather from the answer that you gave me, that you told them information about what you knew about Lawrence Merlino's involvement with Nat-Nat; is that correct?

A Correct.

Q Did they ask you any specific questions or did they just say tell us what you know about Nat-Nat? How did it come about? What were the questions, if you recall?

A I can't recall.

Q Well, the affidavit was notarized in June of 1988. I can read it, see, the June 25th, that's about three or four months ago, is it your testimony that you can't recall today what you were asked three or four months ago?

A This looks like a summary of it.

Q It looks like a summary of it?

A Yes.

Q Is it signed?

A Yes.

Q Didn't you read it before you signed it?

A Yes.

Q All right. Now, before I asked you any more questions, I want you to read the affidavit to the jury.

A Why don't you read it? There's a lot of big words there I can't pronounce.

Q Okay, fine. All right. I'll read it and if I misstate anything — I didn't mean to embarrass you but If I —

A You didn't embarrass me. It's just that it will be faster that way.

[The affidavit is read into the record.]

Q In that affidavit, and as I understand by your testimony that you read this before you signed it; is that correct?

A Yes.

Q Did you actually dictate the words or was it after a conversation that you had with whoever from the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement, that they prepared the affidavit and brought it back to you for your signature?

A They prepared it and brought it back.

Q Now, you told us that — the members of the jury, a few moments ago, in response to one of my questions, that they, whoever the representatives were from the State of New Jersey, asked you about Nat-Nat; is that correct?

A Yes, yes.

Q Well, this entire affidavit is about Bayshore, isn't it?

A Yes.

Q Would it surprise you — now, did you also understand from the people from the State of New Jersey who spoke with you, that the reason they wanted this affidavit is so that Bayshore Construction, Bayshore Company, the company of Joseph Merlino, the son of Lawrence Merlino, could not engage in casino construction, did they tell you that's the reason?

A They said to me, I explained to them that Larry had this place Nat Nat and he used other companies to get work down the shore, and that's all I explained to them. Okay.

Q Well, did they explain to you, as paragraph seven suggests, that the reason they wanted to talk to you, I mean, this wasn't really a law enforcement agency, in that nature of that word, that they were investigating Bayshore —

A Excuse me, I thought they were a law enforcement agency.

Q Okay. All right. They were a law enforcement agency. I'll agree with you, that their purpose was to get you to take an affidavit that Lawrence Merlino was somehow involved with Bayshore and was somehow getting money from Bayshore so that Joseph Merlino, the owner of Bayshore, could not engage in business with the casino industry, did they explain that to you?

A No, they didn't explain it that way.

Q Did you understand that?

A No. They didn't explain it to me that way.

Q They didn't explain that to you.

A I told them, as far as I knew, Joseph Merlino, Larry's son, had nothing to do, except was a worker, when I knew them. I don't know what he does now.

Q Well, is it the —

A That's what I explained to them.

Q Would you agree that this entire affidavit —

A They came back with this.

Q — and your indication in there, that you had spoken with Lawrence Merlino from 1982 through 1986, leaves one who reads it to believe that it has to do with Lawrence Merlino's involvement with Bayshore? [The Court rules on an objection.]

Q Somebody wrote the affidavit and you signed it?

A Yes.

Q Did you make any attempt to correct any of it?

A When I gave — [The Court rules on another objection.]

THE WITNESS: I explained that — again, I'll explain that I only knew what Larry did. I had no knowledge of what Joseph Merlino did. The only think I knew about Joseph Merlino is that he worked in a company. When I read this affidavit, to me it doesn't say that Joseph Merlino did anything wrong. It says, that Larry was involved in construction and that's what I thought I was signing, Larry. Joseph Merlino, as far as I know, worked in a rod company. He was a young kid and he never did anything wrong. I don't know what that's supposed to mean. I know what I took it to mean.

Q Well, did you know — did you tell them that you knew about Bayshore from 1982?

A No, I said that he used various companies. I said, one of the companies he used was a brother-in-law, an ex-brother-in-law and I didn't remember the name. And they said, was it Bayshore? I said, it could be Bayshore. I wasn't sure. Again, I said, I did not know what Joseph Merlino did and this doesn't say that Joseph Merlino did anything.

Q Is it your testimony then, that the name Bayshore Construction Company was a name that was sort of foreign to you and was suggested in response to a question from the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement? Was it the Bayshore you said it could have been?

A I said, it could have been, yes.

Q And then you signed the affidavit where it says, Bayshore, doesn't it?

A Yes.

Q Well, did you say to them, hey, I'm not sure it was Bayshore?

A I read this affidavit and to me this affidavit doesn't accuse him of anything only that he was in the Rebar business, and I don't even know it was Rebar. I though it was ironwork business.

Q Whatever your thoughts were as to whether it accused anyone of anything, did you believe that when you signed the affidavit, which you took under oath, that what was conveying in the affidavit, that you signed and it was notarized in your presence, was completely 100 percent the truth?

A As far as I'm concerned it was the truth, yes.

Q You just said that you didn't even know the name Bayshore until it was suggested to you, didn't you?

A No, I didn't say that. I said that he used other companies and they said was one of them Bayshore? I said it sounds like one of them, yes. Okay. Again, I signed the paper, still — it still to me doesn't say that he did anything wrong in this paper.

Q Okay, that's your feeling. Would it surprise you to know that Bayshore, the company in this affidavit, wasn't incorporated until December of 1985? [Objection ruled on by the Court.]

Q All right. Do you know Bayshore was incorporated?

A No, I don't.

Q Do you know whether or not from the time that you — during the period of time that you say that you had occasion to speak with Lawrence Merlino, whether Bayshore ever obtained a construction job with the casino industry or even more so, ever received any funds from the casino industry?

A Bayshore was incorporated when I spoke to Larry Merlino. Larry Merlino was under me in early '86 and he had to explain to me what jobs he had and how he was getting them. So, Bayshore was incorporated at the time I was speaking to him. So, when the guy said to me, is it Bayshore? I said, it could be. Larry was supposedly reporting the job that he was doing through me in early of '86. So, yes, if it was incorporated in '85 then I heard it in '85. I didn't know when it was incorporated.

Q But did Larry have to report to you when he got money from those jobs too?

A As far as he told me, he never got no money from the jobs.

Q Well, that's not what you said in the affidavit?

A He didn't get no money from the jobs when I was — when he was reporting to me. Larry didn't give me any money from the jobs.

Q Well, will you look at paragraph five of this affidavit, Mr. DelGiorno, just look at it? Do you want me to read it to you again?

A No, I'm reading it.

Q Does it say in there that Lawrence Merlino — [Objection ruled on by the Court.]

[The Court admonishes the attorneys]

Q All right. I apologize, Mr. DelGiorno, but does it take a bright person to read something and understand that it's not 100 percent accurate?

A Yes. . . . (emphasis added). [R-3]

As indicated, Lawrence Merlino and the other defendants were convicted on November 19, 1988, of all charges in the above federal matter. The federal government was unwilling to release Thomas DelGiorno for testimony in this matter. Lawrence Merlino did not testify in the federal criminal trial.

Based on DelGiorno's testimony in the matter of U.S. v. Nicodemo Scarfo et al., I FIND as a matter of fact that Thomas DelGiorno spoke to Lawrence Merlino after December of 1985 and was advised by him that he used various companies in Atlantic City to obtain construction jobs. I further find that there is insufficient believable evidence to find that Lawrence Merlino specifically mentioned Bayshore Rebar in his conversations with DelGiorno and also find that there is no evidence whatsoever that Lawrence Merlino received payments from Bayshore or its principals. Bayshore initially objected to the admission of DelGiorno's affidavit on the grounds that he was a "self-proclaimed murderer, perjurer, drug-dealer, racketeer and all around criminal" (Bayshore's letter brief of June 30, 1988, at 1). Although that may be an accurate statement of DelGiorno's resume, Bayshore also offered DelGiorno's testimony on cross-examination as set forth above. In that testimony, DelGiorno, while unsure as to whether Lawrence Merlino had specifically mentioned Bayshore, did recall with sufficient clarity that Merlino had stated that he used various construction companies to get jobs in Atlantic City and that he spoke to Merlino in early 1986 after Bayshore was incorporated. I therefore FIND that DelGiorno's statements on cross-examination in the Federal matter are, read together with his affidavit, sufficiently credible to support the above finding of fact.

The current president and 75-percent owner of Bayshore is Phyllis Mistie, a former spouse of Lawrence Merlino. The couple had five children, separated approximately 14 years ago and is now divorced. Lawrence Merlino purchased the home at 15 North Decatur Avenue in Margate in response to Phyllis Mistie's request that he provide a place for her and the children to live. She stated that he sometimes visited the children at that address and she acknowledged that Nat Nat, Inc., was operated from the family home. Lawrence Merlino also obtained work for his eldest son, Joseph Merlino: first, five years ago, a summer job in construction with Scarf, Inc.; and later, regular full-time employment with Nat Nat, Inc. Ms. Mistie also testified that her daughter Kimberly worked as a secretary for Nat Nat at the 15 North Decatur Avenue address and that Lawrence Merlino transferred Nat Nat's business to that address from 28 North Georgia Avenue in Atlantic City after Kimberly had a child. Phyliis Mistie claimed that she had a difficult time at first living in Atlantic City with her former husband and that she was something of a "nervous wreck" (1T,148). She stated that Joseph Merlino decided to go into business for himself; he incorporated Bayshore Rebar, Inc., and began to operate the business out of the 15 North Decatur address. She acknowledges that Bayshore and Nat-Nat use the same insurance agent, C.J. Adams, and she conceded that Lawrence Merlino had paid phone bills for the 15 North Decatur address, including calls made for Bayshore, on several occasions (1T,153,164). Phyllis Mistie claims that prior to July 1986, she worked briefly as a secretary for Bayshore but held no office or interest (1T121, 6-25). Although Ms. Mistie appeared to understand the nature of the company's business in a general sense, she was uncertain as to details of the work and unfamiliar with the scope of the company's involvement in at least one rebar job being done on a bridge (1T 119). Ms. Mistie also claims that she had no indication that Lawrence Merlino was exercising any influence over Bayshore or Joseph Merlino, and stated that ". . . my son wouldn't listen to anything he says. His son knows more than his father" (1T151, 22-23).

Joseph Merlino concedes that his father did get him a summer and weekend job five years ago with Scarf, Inc., which is owned and operated by the nephew of Nicodemo Scarfo, Phillip Leonetti. Joseph Merlino also admits that he later worked for Nat Nat, Inc., which was operated by his father and formerly by his uncle, Salvatore Merlino, who is reputed to be the underboss of the Scarfo crime family. In the course of working for Nat

Nat, Joseph Merlino met Nat Nat foreman Rocco Bunodono and Nat Nat's bookkeeper, Joseph Golatto and both of these men later provided professional services to Bayshore. Even after Bayshore had been established in December 1985, Joseph Merlino continued to receive payments from Nat Nat. On or about March 10, 1986, he received a $15,000 check from Lawrence Merlino, president of Nat Nat, which check was characterized as a 1985 bonus check (P-40). In 1984, he had also received another bonus of approximately $37,000 from his father for work performed for Nat Nat (P-39). In March 1986, Joseph Merlino purchased a condominium in Margate from Lawrence Merlino, a condominium which Nat Nat had previously purchased from Scarf, Inc. (P-34 to P-39). Joseph Merlino discussed this purchase with his father and claims that he sought to acquire the condominium for investment and tax shelter purposes (2T 226). There is no evidence that this condominium played any part in the operation of Bayshore or that the purchase of the property was in any way improper or irregular. There is also no evidence of any further bonuses paid to Joseph Merlino from Lawrence Merlino and Nat Nat subsequent to 1986. Joseph Merlino also claimed, and the Division did not dispute, that some of the bonus monies were used by him to repay existing loans from Nat Nat (2T 239), and that part of the 1986 bonus was applied to the down payment for the condominium. After leaving employment with NatNat in 1985, Joseph Merlino worked as a general foreman in construction with the United Carpenters of Glennside, Pennsylvania, and later for G&H Steel and M&M Construction.

Bayshore Rebar, Inc., of New Jersey was incorporated on December 13, 1985, listing Joseph N. Merlino as incorporater and Director, and it was located at 15 North Decatur Avenue in Margate (P-29). Joseph Merlino's sister Kimberly also worked for Bayshore when the company was located at 15 North Decatur Avenue. Since that time, the company, as well as the family, has moved to a ventnor address which was purchased by Joseph Merlino and in which Lawrence Merlino has no proven financial interest. Joseph Merlino is also no longer president of the company but continues to serve as vice-president and part owner. He claims that this change was necessary to enable him to receive his journeyman papers. At the time of hearing, Phyllis Mistie was functioning as Bayshore's president. Rocco Bunodono, formerly a foreman for Nat Nat and a long-time friend of Lawrence Merlino, has been Bayshore's foreman since March 1986 and has played an instrumental role in the company, including filing an application for a construction contractor's license on its behalf in September 1986 after Joseph Merlino's application had been rejected because of his comparatively tender age (P-10).

Joseph Merlino testified and confirmed his mother's account of the origins and operation of Bayshore, as well as his prior experience with Scarf, Inc., and Nat Nat, Inc. Neither Phyllis Mistie nor Joseph Merlino contest the factual allegations set forth in the Division's complaint of January 6, 1987, although they claim, and the Division does not dispute, that Bayshore has since moved its operations and changed its officers, as discussed above. In a statement given to the Division on November 20, 1986, Joseph Merlino acknowledged that he had occasionally consulted with Lawrence Merlino as to Bayshore matters and, in particular, had asked him whether a contractor named Feriozzi, with whom Bayshore was doing business, was a "nice guy" who "pays his bills" and is "a good payer" (P-31 at 22, 23, 26). Joseph Merlino denies that Lawrence Merlino has gotten any jobs for Bayshore and the Division offers no direct evidence proving otherwise, with the exception of the above testimony of Thomas DelGiorno.

Phyllis Mistie further denied that the company had received any loans from Lawrence Merlino or made any payments to him. She stated that the family moved some eight months ago to a house in Ventnor which Joseph Merlino purchased and from which Bayshore now operates. Nat Nat continues to operate from the 15 North Decatur address and Kimberly Merlino is still employed in that business. Ms. Mistie testified that she became president and 75 percent owner of Bayshore approximately six months before the hearing in this matter because Joseph Merlino wanted to qualify as a journeyman and felt that he was precluded from doing this while serving as president. She stated that he was still serving as vice-president, as of the hearing (1T 115). She also claimed that an additional motive for her assuming the presidency of Bayshore was to qualify the company for minority work under affirmative action guidelines (T1 116). An insurance agent for C.J. Adams, Deborah Wehran, who handled insurance for both Bayshore and Nat Nat, testified that she had discussed Nat Nat with Phyllis Mistie whenever her daugther was absent or otherwise unavailable and noted that Phyllis was listed as a contact for Nat Nat (2T 207 - 19)(P-25). She also claimed that Phyllis Mistie had explained that she was not employed by or part of Nat Nat.

Neither Phyllis Mistie nor Joseph Merlino disputes the allegations made by the Division in its complaint. Joseph Merlino denied that the name Bayshore Rebar, Inc., which had previously been used by his father to incorporate a Florida company, was adopted at Lawrence Merlino's suggestion.

One of the first construction jobs obtained by Bayshore was from cement contractor Joseph Feriozzi, who was involved in construction of a parking garage at Resorts International Hotel and Casino in 1986. Ferriozzi was one of the two big contractors in Atlantic City at the time. Bunodono was working on the job, which was being performed by C.J.S. Co., a structural construction firm. Because C.J.S. was not a rebar company and consequently was having some difficulties adequately manning the job (1T 66; 2T 100-02), Feriozzi was unhappy with its performance on the job. Joseph Merlino claims that he became aware of C.J.S.'s problems on the job through Feriozzi's complaints to a "street man," who was responsible for recruiting workers on construction projects. Joseph Merlino asked Feriozzi if Bayshore could take over the job. Rocco Bunodono was present when this request was made. Feriozzi agreed and Merlino asked Bunodono, whom he had known from working with Nat Nat, Inc., to serve as foreman on the completion of the Resorts parking garage. Feriozzi agreed to pay Bayshore on a bi-monthly basis, which was a somewhat usual arrangements but Feriozzi consented because Bayshore was a relatively new company (2T 83,6-25). Bayshore offered a certification from Feriozzi, who also testified, which stated the following:

> 8. Bayshore Rebar has been the low bidder on a number of projects including Bally's Park Place and the Tropicana Hotel and has done sub-contracting work on these projects for L. Feriozzi Concrete. Additionally, Bayshore Rebar has sub-contracted at Resorts International Garage after the default of another contractor.
> 9. The hard work, diligence and quality of work exhibited by Joseph Merlino and Bayshore Rebar is exceptional.
>
> 10. I have found, through my dealings with Bayshore Rebar, that Joseph Merlino is a dedicated and sincere individual. He is a person of good character, honesty and integrity.
> 11. I have no perception or belief that respondent, Bayshore Rebar, or its President, Joseph Merlino, is in any way > involved or associated with organized criminal activity or Lawrence Merlino.

Feriozzi also certified that he has not been the subject of any charges, indictments or accusations in his forty years of doing construction business in Atlantic City. Nat Nat had been previously employed by Feriozzi on a variety of casino jobs. This working relationship was interrupted in 1979 when Lawrence Merlino was accused, along with Leonetti and Scarfo, of murdering a cement contractor named Vincent Falcone. Upon learning of the murder charges against Lawrence Merlino, Feriozzi stated that he was a "sick pup," and did notknow what to do or what he had gotten himself into (2T 95,16-20; 96). Merlino, Scarfo and Leonetti were later acquitted of the charge and Nat Nat subsequently performed more work for Feriozzi. In 1986, when Joseph Merlino asked if he could take over the C.J.S. job at the Resorts parking garage, Feriozzi asked him if Lawrence Merlino was his father. Ferriozzi testified that he felt concerned that Lawrence Merlino might become involved (2T 117, 124-25). Feriozzi also expressed to Joseph Merlino his desire that he not have anything to do with Nat Nat, but later became confident that Joseph was working on his own. Feriozzi denies having been contacted by Lawrence Merlino, or anyone else other than Joseph Merlino, concerning Bayshore's request for work. Rocco Bunodono's presence as foreman also gave confidence to Feriozzi, because of Bunodono's reputation as an effective foreman who knew how to get a job done (2T 98,11-25). After agreeing to work as foreman on the Feriozzi job, Bunodono also assisted Joseph Merlino by completing an application for a construction contractor's license on September 11, 1986, and listing himself as the company's superintendent. Joseph Merlino had previously applied but had been rejected because of his age and relative inexperience. Joseph Merlino denies having asked his father for any help in obtaining work with Feriozzi at the Resorts garage job or at any other location, but acknowledges that he asked Lawrence Merlino who Feriozzi was and that he wanted to know if he was reliable with payments (P-31 at 22 to 26, 168).

Rocco Bunodono testified that his function as foreman for Bayshore is to "see that the job runs smooth" and indicates that he has known Joseph Merlino since the latter was a small child (1T 40,6-22). Bunodono has also known Lawrence Merlino for over twenty years: they grew up in the same neighborhood, and Merlino was the best man at his wedding. He claims that he saw little of Lawrence Merlino for some ten years after he left Philadelphia and before Lawrence Merlino became active in construction in Atlantic City. When they renewed their acquaintance, Bunodono worked as foreman for Nat Nat for a least six months while completing a rebar job on the Ocean Club, and thereafter worked with G & H Construction, as well as with M & M Construction, a minority contractor. Lawrence Merlino, as president of Nat Nat, visited G & H job sites on occasion to talk to his son and a nephew employed by that company. The Division offered surveillance photographs taken by lieutenant Edward Hepburn of the Atlantic City Prosecutor's Office showing Lawrence Merlino and Rocco Bunodono together at various construction sites including the Taj Mahal Casino project (P-1). Lieutenant Hepburn testified that he conducted surveillance after receiving a report that the M & M Company (allegedly a minority outfit) was actually being run by Lawrence Merlino. The photos were taken in April 1985 and show Lawrence Merlino and Rocco Bunodono on the construction site (P-1 through P-4). The photographs also show Lawrence Merlino on the steel at a hotel/casino. Lieutenant Hepburn had no knowledge as to any involvment of Joseph Merlino in his father's reputed criminal affiliations with the Scarfo crime family. Bunodono denies that Lawrence Merlino visited him at job sites, other than those involving Nat Nat. He concedes that Lawrence Merlino visited him when he was working for M&M, but states that he has never seen Lawrence Merlino on a job with Bayshore and that he has no knowledge of any contact between him and his son's company.

The Division also offered copies of a mortgage and residential loan application in connection with the purchase of the Ventnor property from which Bayshore now does business, which states that Joseph Merlino was married at the time of application in 1987. This was not the case. Joseph Merlino denies having made such a representation in connection with the mortgage application, but concedes that he signed the loan application forms containing the false statement (3T 35,1-4).

There is no dispute as to the above facts, except as indicated, and I so FIND.

ISSUES

The issues to be resolved are:

(1) whether the Division of Gaming Enforcement has proven by a preponderance of the believable evidence that Bayshore is associated with a career offender or a career offender cartel in such a manner as to create a reasonable belief that the association is of such a nature as to be inimical to the policy of the casino control act in the gaming operations within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86f so as to disqualify Bayshore from holding a vendor registration or casino service industry license;

(2) whether Bayshore Rebar, Inc., has established its eligibility by clear and convincing evidence for a casino service industry license pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:41-3.2(a)2, including the requirement that it establish its reputation of good character, honesty and integrity pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3(c), and that of its officers pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.14.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

(1) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86f (Inimical Association)

The state of New Jersey extends strict regulation through the Casino Control Act to all persons, locations, practices and associations related to the operation of licensed casino enterprises and to all related service industries. See, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6). The legislative findings underlying the Act also provide that:

> [l]egalized casino gambling in New Jersey can attain, maintain and retain integrity, public confidence and trust, and remain compatible with the general public interest only under such a system of control and regulation as insures, so far as practicable, the exclusion from participation therein of persons with known criminal records, habits or associations. . . . N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(7).

Moreover, participation in casino operations is deemed to be a revocable privilege conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of individual licensees or registrants. The New Jersey Legislature also declared that:

> [s]ince casino operations are especially sensitive and in need of public control and supervision, and since it is vital to the interests of the State to prevent entry, directly or indirectly, into such operations or the ancillary industries regulated by this act of persons who have pursued economic gains in an occupational manner or context which are in violation of the criminal or civil public policies of this State, the regulatory and investigatory powers and duties shall be exercised to the fullest extent consistent with the law to avoid entry of such persons into the casino operations or the ancillary industries regulated by this act . . . . N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(9).

This paramount concern with sealing off, to the extent possible, the casino industry and the vital service industries that serve it from infiltration and domination by organized crime is effectuated by the criteria established for disqualification of applicants seeking casino licenses:

> The Commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis on any of the following criteria . . . .
> > f. The identification of the applicant or any person who is required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license as a career offender or a member of a career offender cartel or an associate of a career offender or career offender cartel in such a manner which creates a reasonable belief that the association is of such a nature as to be inimical to the policy of this act and to gaming operations. For purposes of this section, career offender shall be defined as any person whose behavior is pursued in an occupational manner or context for the purpose of economic gain, ultilizing such methods as are deemed criminal violations of the public policy of this State. A career offender cartel shall be defined as any group of persons who operate together as career offenders; N.J.S.A. 5:12-86f [emphasis added].

The Casino Control Commission has defined the phrase "inimical to the interest of the State of New Jersey or of licensed gaming" to mean "adverse to the public confidence and trust in the credibility, integrity and stability of casino gaming operations and in the strict regulatory process created by the Casino Control Act." N.J.A.C. 19:48-1.1.

At issue here is whether the Division has proved that Bayshore Rebar or its officers are associated with a career offender or career offender cartel in such a manner as to create a reasonable belief that the association is of such a nature as to be inimical to the policy of the Act and to gaming operations and thereby is disqualified. The above provision concerning inimical associations was considered by the Appellate Division of the Superior Court of New Jersey in a 1985 case where a number of members of a union in Atlantic City were found to be inimically associated with Nicodemo Scarfo, within the meaning of the act. See, In the Matter of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union Local 54, 203 N.J. Super. 297 (App. Div. 1985), certif. denied 102 N.J. 352 (1985), cert. denied 475 U.S. 1085 (1986). In the Local 54 case, the Appellate Division upheld the Commission's finding of disqualification under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86f, where the Division had produced evidence illustrating the association between union employees and Scarfo. That evidence consisted of:

(1) a telephone list seized from Scarfo after his arrest for the murder of Vicent Falcone which contained names and addresses of several Local 54 employees, some listed in code;

(2) a note found in Scarfo's dresser drawer on the same occasion indicating Scarfo's interests in the activities and control of Local 54;

(3) the fact that the bail for Scarfo, Leonetti and Lawrence Merlino in the Vincent Falcone murder matter was paid by union employees and their relatives;

(4) the fact that one of the unibn employees put his house up as property bail in connection with those arrests;

(5) the immunized testimony of Joseph Salerno in the trial of Scarfo, Leonetti and Lawrence Merlino for the murder of concrete contractor Vincent Falcone as to the fact that Salerno had overhead Scarfo say that he had control of unions and had obtained union positions for certain persons. Salerno's testimony did not refer to any conversations between Scarfo and union employees which specifically referred to Local 54 by name;

(6) evidence of connections between Local 54 business dealings and persons or firms tied to Scarfo (e.g., the same insurance broker and real estate agent; the hiring by Local 54 of a firm that had put up bail for Scarfo, Leonetti and Lawrence Merlino; use of the same car rental company). See, 203 N.J Super. at 310 to 316.

The Appellate Division rejected the argument that the Division had failed to prove the exertion of any actual influence over union affairs by Scarfo and found that ample circumstantial evidence of such influence had been introduced to support the conclusion that the association was inimical and thus disqualifying. 203 N.J. Super. at 321. The New Jersey Supreme Court has also affirmed that the Commission may act to prevent possible inimical influences on licensees or applicants and need not wait until such influence is exerted. See, In re Application of Boardwalk Regency, 90 N.J. 361,372 (1982). The Appellate Division also went on to reject the First Amendment freedom of association claim made by the Local 54 employees and upheld the "inimical" criterion against the charge that it was void for vagueness.

The Local 54 case did not involve family relationships between licensees and career offenders. That issue was dealt with by the Appellate Division in the racing case of Niglio v. New Jersey Racing Commission, 158 N.J. Super. 182 (App. Div. 1978). In Niglio, the Appellate Division upheld a decision by the Racing Commission suspending the racing license of a person married to another person who was disqualified from participating in racing because of criminal connections. Because of evidence submitted of the spouse's extensive association with the person disqualified, as well as of her financial dependence, the disqualification was based on the association and financial dependence, not on the fact of marriage. 158 N.J. Super. at 186.

Another case dealing with family ties is D'Ascenso v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 2 N.J.A.R. 92 (1980), by the Honorable Joseph Fidler, ALJ, in which he concluded that a cocktail waitress licensed by the Commission was not disqualifed under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86f by her father's status as a career offender, because she had had only infrequent and insignificant contacts with him since in her childhood. Given the nature of her cocktail waitress function at the casino, this minimal association was seen to pose no appreciable threat to the proper functioning of legalized gambling. D'Ascenso's relationship with a live-in boyfriend who was also engaged in criminal activities was found to present no bar to her licensure and in light of the fact that the boyfriend did not exercise any significant influence or control over her and, to the contrary, as it appeared that she had some beneficial and restraining effect on him, as occasionally happens in these matters. 2 N.J.A.R. at 95. There is no evidence of such a beneficial effect on Lawrence Merlino.

The Division argues in this case that it has shown an inimical association with Lawrence Merlino sufficient to disqualify Bayshore and its principals. In particular, the Division asserts that the affidavit and testimony of Thomas DelGiorno's provides direct (albeit hearsay) evidence of Merlino's intention to use Bayshore to get construction business in Atlantic City. The Division argues that DelGiorno's statements are credible, despite his background in crime, a background which rivals and probably exceeds that of Lawrence Merlino. It notes that no promises were made to DelGiorno in exchange or as a condition for this testimony.

Apart from DelGiorno's statements as to Lawrence Merlino's involvement, the Division conceded that there was "no smoking gun", to use a phrase that DAG Steven Cirillo borrowed from another context, but it argued that there is an accumulation of factors (as in the Local 54 case) adding up to an inimical association of a non-familial nature. The Division first notes that Lawrence Merlino has long been associated with the rebar field and has owned and worked with several companies, including Nat Nat and the Floridian version of Bayshore Rebar, Inc. It notes that Lawrence Merlino's interests in the New Jersey Bayshore is a natural extension of his prior activities and argues that he has been seen on various construction sites visiting Rocco Bunodono, who is foreman and superintendent for Bayshore and who was formerly a forman with Nat Nat, as well as a personal friend of Lawrence Merlino for many years. The Division notes that Bayshore initially operated rent-free from a home located at 15 North Decatur Avenue in Margate, which home was owned by Lawrence Merlino and out of which Nat Nat also operated and continues to operate. The Division notes that the family phone and utility bill for the 15 Decatur Avenue address were occasionally paid by Lawrence Merlino. The Division also emphasizes the business dealings between Joseph Merlino and Lawrence Merlino, including the purchase of a condominium formerly owned by Nat Nat and Scarf, Inc., which purchase was partly made possible through DelGiorno's bonuses provided by Merlino and Nat Nat. The Division also notes that Bayshore, in addition to adopting the same name used by Lawrence Merlino for another company, relied on the same insurance agency, C. J. Adams, and also utilized the services of the same bookkeeper and foreman, who had previously worked for Nat Nat. The Division cites evidence that Phyllis Mistie Merlino was, on some occasions, involved in the business dealings of Nat Nat while living at the 15 North Decatur address. Also noted is the fact that Joseph Merlino's sister Kimberly runs the operations of Nat Nat during her father's incarceration. The Division argues that the relocation of the Merlino family does not negate the various connections between Bayshore and Lawrence Merlino and Nat Nat in that the inimical association between Bayshore and Lawrence Merlino has not been severed, although it may have been better hidden and disguised. Considering DelGiorno's affidavit as well as and all of the circumstantial evidence, the Division contends that it has met the standard set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86f for disqualification of Bayshore.

Counsel for respondents, Francis Hartman, Esq., sees the Division's case as not only lacking a smoking gun but also consisting largely of smoke. He argues that the State has, on the most tenuous of factual allegations, sought to darkly cloud the blood relationship between Joseph Merlino and his father and imply an inimical business association between them which has no basis in fact. Counsel for respondent argues, first (and the Division does not dispute), that the State has shown no de jure relationship between Bayshore and Lawrence Merlino in that the latter holds no stock or office in and has not received any payments from Bayshore. As to the rest of the underlying de facto aspects of the Division's evidence, respondent admits that Joseph Merlino worked briefly as a laborer for Scarf Inc., when he was 16 and argues that he had no further connection with that company. As to Joseph Merlino's latter job with Nat Nat, respondent claims that there is nothing unusual about a son working for his father and that the sins of the father should not fall upon his children. It is also not unusual, respondent argues, for a person to start a business from his or her home, as Joseph Merlino did at 15 North Decatur Avenue. Respondent notes that Lawrence Merlino did not at any time live in the home, and that the fact that he may have occasionally paid for the phone and utility bills is only incidental to the fact that his family and former spouse lived in the home and he chose to shoulder some of their financial obligations. Respondent notes that Nat Nat was not originally located at 15 North Decatur, but operated out of 28 North Georgia Avenue in Margate and was moved to the Margate address only for the convenience of Kimberly Merlino, who was one of its principal employees. As to Phyllis Mistie Merlino, respondent notes that she had only minimal involvement in the affairs of Nat Nat and does not have an amicable relationship with Lawrence Merlino. Concerning Joseph Merlino's efforts to get casino work, respondent argues that there is no evidence that Lawrence Merlino at any time did anything to get work for Bayshore. It characterizes Joseph Merlino's efforts to establish a business as the product of a young man's desire to succeed on his own and describes the opportunity to do so given by Joseph Ferriozzi as a legitimate business transaction in which Ferriozzi decided to give the young man a chance. Respondent also notes, and the Division does not dispute, that, beyond the criminal charges that are not dealt with in this decision, no criminal charges have ever been brought against Joseph Merlino. Joseph Merlino's purchase of property from Nat Nat, respondent argues, an arm's-length financial transaction which was in no way unlawful an improper, and which played no role in the operation of Bayshore's business. Respondent also raises and dismisses the possibility that Joseph Merlino was given bonuses and allowed to purchase property in order to shield money belonging to Lawrence Merlino or Nat Nat from possible forfeiture under RICO, the federal law pertaining to racketeer-influenced corrupt organizations. Counsel for respondent also deems DelGiorno's affidavit as unworthy of belief and argues that it is further weakened by DelGiorno's statements on cross-examination in the matter of United States v. Scarfo, et al.

As to DelGiorno's statements, I note that hearsay is admissable in this proceeding and may provide the residuum of proof required. See, N.J.S.A. 5:12-107a(6); State v. Merlino, infra. DelGiorno's affidavit, as clarified by his testimony, is credible. Similiar immunized testimony was found to constitute part of the inimical association in the Local 54 case discussed above. Although DelGiorno's testimony in this case was uncertain as to whether Bayshore was specifically mentioned by Lawrence Merlino, Salerno's testimony in the Local 54 case also did not contain any recollection of a specific reference to Local 54 by name. See, 203 N.J. Super. at 318.

Beyond DelGiorno's statements, there is ample evidence of association between Lawrence Merlino and Bayshore Rebar, Inc., and its officers and foreman. Bayshore was formed shortly after a company of the same name owned by Lawrence Merlino was dissolved in Florida, and this similarity of names is more symbolic than coincidental given the rest of the connections. Joseph Merlino, who was Bayshore's initial president and owner, cut his teeth in the construction business with Scarf, Inc., which has ties to Nicodemo Scarfo through its owner Phillip Leonetti, and he later worked at his father's side at Nat Nat, Inc. While it is quite common for sons and, more recently, daughters, to follow their father's footsteps into business, the connection between Nat Nat and Bayshore was, at least at the outset of Bayshore's operation, quite close. The company shared the same residential office space, the same insurance agency, the same bookkeeper, and Bayshore relied heavily on Rocco Bunodono, who had formerly worked with Nat Nat, as its foreman. The importance of Bunodono's extensive role in this matter as a connection between Lawrence Merlino and Bayshore is further emphasized by the photographic evidence of the two men together at construction sites. Bunodono was also instrumental in obtaining Bayshore's initial license from Atlantic City, as well as one of its first substantial construction jobs from Joseph Feriozzi, who testified that Bunodono's presence reassured him that the job would run smoothly. Feriozzi also testified that he had felt fear, at least for his business if not for himself, when he had earlier learned of charges lodged against Lawrence Merlino for the murder of Vincent Falcone, an Atlantic City cement contractor. While there is no evidence that Lawrence Merlino intervened to get business for Bayshore, Feriozzi was concerned with his possible involvement. Joseph Merlino denies having generally discussed Bayshore business matters with his father, but he admits that he asked him whether Feriozzi was "a good payer." Joseph Merlino thus demonstrated that he turned to his father for advice on at least that occasion and it is not unlikely, given their prior working relationship, that he did so on other occasions. But this case does not rest on that sort of speculation. The facts show that Joseph Merlino consulted with and dealt with his father in other financial matters, such as the purchase of the Margate condominium, which was made possible by substantial bonuses given by the father to the son. Although this real estate deal was above-board and regular in all respects, it tends to establish financial dealings between Joseph Merlino and his father. The fact that Lawrence Merlino also gave his son Joseph bonuses which totaled some $50,000 also suggests that Joesph Merlino was, at least to that extent, financially dependent upon his father and Nat Nat, despite the fact that he worked for United Carpenters and G & H Construction and had started Bayshore's business operations. Was Lawrence Merlino simply trying to do right by his oldest son or were these transactions some nefarious attempt to conceal Lawrence Merlino's assets from the reach of the federal government? The proofs submitted do not supply an answer to this question but the fact of the bonuses and the real estate deal, as well as the other business connections proven, establishes an association between Joseph Merlino and his father which goes far beyond one of simple blood relation. The common business dealings of Bayshore and Nat Nat are similar to those which were found, in the case of Local 54, to constitute an inimical association.

As stated, the Division's burden in this case is to demonstrate that Bayshore, through its officers or principle employees, is associated with Lawrence Merlino, a career offender and a member of a career offender cartel, in such a manner as to create a reasonable belief that the association is of such a nature as to be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act and gaming operations. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86f. The respondents contend that the State has shown much association between themselves and Lawrence Merlino, but that none of it is inimical because it is based on the natural and constitutionally protected connection of family. They point to the absence of any evidence showing actual influence by Lawrence Merlino over Bayshore. Such an argument was also raised, and rejected, in the Local 54 case, where the Appellate Division found ample circumstantial evidence of Scarfo's influence over union employees. 203 N.J. Super. at 321. Even without DelGiorno's statements, there is, in this case, ample circumstantial evidence of the external influence of Lawrence Merlino on Bayshore

Rebar, Inc., and that evidence ranges from the choice of name of the company to payment of bills and rent for its initial location, to the selection of insurance companies, bookkeeper and foreman and also to advice given by Lawrence Merlino to Joseph Merlino as to the conduct of the business and as to the purchase of real estate (unrelated to the business) which was financed, in part, by very generous bonuses provided by the father to the son. Joseph Merlino is not merely Lawrence Merlino's son in the context of this case. Their relationship is far beyond that. Their business dealings have become inextricably linked with their familial connection. If Joseph Merlino were not Lawrence Merlino's son but merely a social or business associate, the evidence in this case would be sufficient to support a conclusion that the two men are associated and that this association is of such a nature that it suggests influence and control of Bayshore by a career offender and therefore is inimical. The fact that Lawrence Merlino is related to Joseph Merlino by blood and that he was once related to Phyllis Mistie by marriage should not be allowed to obscure the nature of the business association which has formed between them or to put it beyond the reach of State regulation in the highly sensitive area of casino operations. Family ties, without greater association, cannot provide a basis for disqualification under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86f, but they do not preclude a finding of disqualification if other evidence of an inimical association, beyond that of relation by blood or marriage, is proven. See, e.g., Niglio v. New Jersey Racing Commission. Such proof is present in sufficient amount in this case. This matter is also distinguishable from the case of D'Ascenso v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement because there the contacts between the licensee and her father were infrequent and insignificant and posed no appreciable threat to the proper function of legalized gambling, especially in light of the licensee's function as a cocktail waitress. Here, Joseph Merlino's contacts with his father are substantial and on going, and while they embrace the usual aspects the relationship between a father and his son, they also are characterized by extensive business associations that go beyond the family tie and pose an ~~applicable~~ APPRECIABLE threat to the operations of a casino service industry. The fact that Lawrence Merlino is now and has since July 1987 been incarcerated awaiting trial on charges of murder and racketeering does not diminish this association. It is not unknown for inmates to control enterprises far beyond the prison walls. The fact that Lawrence Merlino is in jail because he is unable to make bail also provides a most compelling incentive and motive for him to be involved in Bayshore's business affairs. As the respondent notes, there is no evidence, beyond DelGiorno's statements, that Lawrence

Merlino is directly so involved or that he has received any monies from Bayshore or from Joseph Merlino. However, such evidence is not necessary to reach a conclusion that their association is of such a nature as to create a reasonable belief that it is inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and gaming operations. I CONCLUDE the evidence submitted, including DelGiorno's statements, as to the association between Bayshore Rebar, Inc., and Lawrence Merlino is sufficient to disqualify Bayshore under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86f and that Bayshore's vendor registration issued under N.J.S.A. 5:12-104b should be revoked.

(2) Casino Service Industry Application

The remaining issue is whether Bayshore Rebar, Inc., and its officers have proven their eligibility to be licensed as a casino service industry pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-92c under N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3 and 1.14. The Casino Control Act provides for licensing and registration of casino service industries, including construction companies contracting with casino applicants or licensees:

> [a] ll casino service industries not included in subsection a. of this section [those providing goods or services directly relating to casino or gaming activity] shall be licensed in accordance with rules of the commission prior to commencement or continuation of any business with a casino applicant or licensee or its employees or agents. Such casino service industries, whether or not directly related to gaming operations, shall include suppliers of alcoholic beverages, food and nonalcoholic beverages; garbage handlers; vending machine providers; linen suppliers; maintenance companies; shopkeepers located within the approved hotels; limousine services and construction companies contracting with casino applicants or licensees or their employees or agents. . . . d. Licensure pursuant to subsection c. of this section of any casino service industry may be denied to any applicant disqualified in accordance with the criteria contained in section 86 of this act (emphasis added). [N.J.S.A. 5:12-92c,d]

Those grounds of disqualification include those of inimical association under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86f, as discussed and concluded above. The regulations promulgated by the Casino Control Commission provide, with respect to issuance of casino service industry licenses, that:

> [n]o casino service industry license shall issue unless the individual qualification of each of the following persons shall have first been established in accordance with all provisions, including those cited, of the Act and of the regulations of the Commission. . . [i]n the case of casino service industry licenses issued in accordance with section 92c and d of the Act each such applicant in accordance with the standards of section 92d and 86 and the Act. [N.J.A.C. 19:41-3.2]

The casino control regulations further provide, as to standards for qualification for a casino service industry license, that:

> The general rules relating to casino service industry standards for qualification are set forth in N.J.A.C. 19:41-3.2 et seq. . . (c) Each applicant required to be licensed as a casino service industry in accordance with section 92c and d of the Act shall, prior to the issuance of any casino service industry license, produce such information and documentation, including without limitation as to the generality of the foregoing its financial books and records, and assurances to establish by clear and convincing evidence its reputation for good character, honesty and integrity. . . [N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3(a) and (c)] (emphasis added)

As to disqualification, the regulations state that:

> A casino service industry license may be denied to any applicant who has failed to prove by clear and convincing evidence that he or any of the persons required to be qualified, are in fact qualified in accordance with the act and with the provisions of these rules and regulations, or who has violated any of the provisions of the Casino Control Act or these rules and regulations, or who has violated any of the provisions of the Casino Control Act or these rules and regulations, or who disqualified under of the criteria set forth in section 86 of the Casino Control Act. [N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.5] (emphasis added)

With respect to persons who need to be qualified before a casino service industry license can be issued, the Commission has provided that, as to Casino Service Industry Licenses issued in accordance with Section 92c and d of the Act of the following persons must be qualified:

(i.) The enterprise;

(iii.) Each owner of the enterprise who directly or indirectly holds any beneficial interest or ownership in excess of five percent of the enterprise;

(v.) Each director of the enterprise except that a director who, in the opinion of the Commission, is not significantly involved in or connected with the management or ownership of the enterprise shall not be required to qualify;

(vi.) Each officer of the enterprise significantly involved in the conduct of business and each officer who the Commission may consider appropriate for qualification in order to insure the good character, honesty and integrity of the enterprise;

(viii.) The management employee supervising the regional or local office which employs the sales representative soliciting business or dealing directly with a casino licensee;

(ix.) Each employee who will act as a sales representative or otherwise regularly engage in the solicitation of business from casino licensees;

(x.) Any other person whom the chairman may consider appropriate for approval or qualification. [N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.14(a)2]

As discussed above, Joseph Merlino is currently vice-president and treasurer, as well as 25-percent owner of Bayshore Rebar, Inc. His mother, Phyllis Mistie, is the president and secretary of the company and also 75-percent owner. Rocco Bunodono functions as the Superintendent and foreman for Bayshore on various construction jobs. An application for licensure as an Casino Service Industry pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-92c, was filed by Bayshore Rebar, Inc., on July 29, 1988.

The Division objected to that application on August 10, 1988, maintaining that Bayshore cannot demonstrate, by the requisite clear and convincing evidence, the good character, honesty and integrity necessary for licensure. The Division also argued that Bayshore was disqualified for licensure as a casino service industry because of its association with Lawrence Merlino and due to the indictment of the applicant's principal, Joseph N. Merlino. In addition, the Division asserts disqualification on the basis N.J.S.A.

5:12-86b because of alleged misrepresentations made by Joseph N. Merlino and Phyllis Mistie at the hearing in this matter. No particular misrepresentations are cited by the Division, which nonetheless argues that the testimony of the two was "less than truthful concerning several issues of fact" (Division's objection of August 10, 1988, at 3).

As to this last claim of misrepresentation, I CONCLUDE that the Division has failed to show that Joseph N. Merlino and Phyllis Mistie supplied any information which was untrue or misleading as to any material fact pertaining to their qualifications. The Division's case, beyond the statements of Thomas DelGiorno, was largely circumstantial, and the respondent did not deny the allegations of the complaint. This case turns on the interpretation to be given to those admitted facts. The Division perceives, and I conclude that it has proven, an inimical association where the respondents see only family connections. The Division has not shown, however, that the respondent supplied untrue or misleading information as to any material facts and I CONLCUDE, on that basis, that Bayshore is not disqualified from receiving a casino service industry license under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b.

The Division also cites the criminal indictment pending against Joseph N. Merlino as an additional basis for disqualification, under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c and d.. Because the matter of this pending indictment as set forth in the amended complaint was severed in order to expedite resolution of the original complaint, as well as the casino service industry license application matter, it is not appropriate at this time to consider the indictment pending its resolution and I so CONCLUDE.

The Division also asserts Bayshore's inimical association under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86f as precluding the issuance of a casino service industry license in this instance under N.J.A.C. 19:41-3.2(a)2. The Casino Control Act provides that licensure for a casino service industry may be denied when the applicant is disqualified under section 86, including 86f. See, N.J.S.A. 5:12-92d. The rule requiring that an applicant also establish its reputation for good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence is in addition to the basic requirement that the applicant not be disqualified under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86. See, N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3(a),(c). The Commission has discretion to deny a casino service industry license application if it concludes that the nature of the disqualification is such as to render issuance of the license contrary to the policy of the Act and to gaming operations. In this instance, the evidence supports the conclusion that Bayshore is disqualified by virtue of its inimical association with Lawrence Merlino, a career offender and a member of a career offender cartel. On the basis of this disqualification alone, and without reaching the issue of the reputation of Bayshore and its officers for good character, honesty and integrity, I CONCLUDE that the Bayshore Rebar, Inc., application of for a casino service industry license should be denied by the Commission.

DISPOSITION

On the basis of the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, it is ORDERED that respondent Bayshore Rebar, Inc., is ajudged to be disqualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86f and that its vendor registration, issued pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-104b, be revoked. It is further ORDERED that the application of respondent Bayshore Rebar, Inc., for casino service industry license pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-92c and d is denied on the grounds of disqualification under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86f. It is further ORDERED that all casino licensee are prohibited from transacting any business — present or future, direct or indirect — with Bayshore Rebar, Inc.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

INTRODUCTION

This matter arises out of a complaint filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) which essentially sought the termination of business between casino licensees and Bayshore Rebar, Inc. (Bayshore) pursuant to section 104(b) of the Casino Control Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.[1] Subsequent to the filing of the complaint Bayshore was required to and did apply for a casino service industry license pursuant to section 92 of the Act. By order dated April 10, 1989, this application was denied and the relief sought by the Division was granted by the New Jersey Casino Control Commission (Commission) essentially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which had been filed in this case by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). Bayshore filed an appeal to the New Jersey Superior Court, Appellate Division and the Commission issues this opinion pursuant to R. 2:5-1(b).

Bayshore reinforces concrete on construction projects. It had been engaged in business as a subcontractor on several construction sites of casino licensees or applicants for casino licenses. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-104(b), the agreements between Bayshore and casino licensees and applicants are subject to review and approval by the Commission.[2]

1. Various provisions of the Act may be cited by section number only, omitting the prefix, "N.J.S.A. 5:12-."

2. At the time this matter was initiated section 104(b) did not include reference to applicants for casino licenses. However, the Act was amended in January 1988 (Footnote Continued)

On January 6, 1987, the Division filed with the Commission a complaint for revocation and an application for a temporary prohibitory order against Bayshore. The Division sought to prohibit any further business, direct or indirect, between Bayshore and casinos based upon the allegation that the company and its principal qualifier, Joseph N. Merlino, were associated with a member of organized crime in such a manner as to render it disqualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(f). The organized crime figure identified in the complaint is Lawrence "Yogi" Merlino, the father of Joseph N. Merlino.

We denied the Division's request for a temporary prohibitory order at our public meeting of February 25, 1987. On March 3, 1987, Bayshore filed an answer to the complaint and the matter was thereafter transmitted to the OAL for a plenary hearing.

On May 6, 1987, the Division filed an amendment to the complaint alleging that Joseph N. Merlino and Bayshore were disqualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(1) and (g) based on a three-count indictment filed against Joseph N. Merlino on March 20, 1987, for possession of a deadly weapon for unlawful purposes contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:39-4; aggravated assault contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(b)(1); and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(b)(2). To expedite a hearing and resolution of the association allegation, and with the concurrence of the parties, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in his prehearing order dated November 18, 1987, deferred a hearing on the allegations of the indictment pending resolution of the criminal proceedings against Joseph N. Merlino pursuant to section 86(d). Hearings on the association allegation were held on March 14, 29 and 31, 1988. The record was closed on April 17, 1988. On June 16, 1988, the Division filed a motion to reopen the record to admit additional evidence, specifially the affidavit of Thomas A. DelGiorno, an admitted member of the Scarfo organized crime family.

On June 24, 1988, the Division filed a second application for a temporary prohibitory order with the Commission. We denied this application at our public meeting of July 13, 1988, noting in part that the ALJ's decision on the associational question appeared to be imminent.

On July 22, 1988, the ALJ granted the Division's motion to reopen the record and both parties were permitted to supplement the record.

In the interim, by letter dated May 18, 1988, Bayshore was advised that, due to the regular and continuing nature of its business with casino licensees and applicants, it was required to file an application for licensure as a casino service industry pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-92 and N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.2. Bayshore filed its application on July 26, 1988. By letter-report dated August 10, 1988, the Division objected to Bayshore's licensure on the grounds stated in its complaint, as amended, and on the further grounds that Joseph N. Merlino and Phyllis Mistie Merlino, Bayshore's qualifiers, misrepresented material facts at the OAL hearing and that Bayshore lacked the good character, honesty and integrity required by N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3.

On August 18, 1988, the application matter was consolidated with the pending complaint matter in the OAL. The record was kept open until November 21, 1988, to permit the parties an opportunity to introduce additional evidence.

On December 21, 1988, the ALJ recommended that Bayshore's application be denied for the reasons stated in an initial decision, a copy of which is appended hereto as A-1 through A-40 and incorporated herein as if set forth in full.[3] Essentially, the ALJ's recommendation was predicated upon his finding that Bayshore and its principal, Joseph N. Merlino, had an association with Lawrence Merlino, a career criminal offender and a member of a career criminal cartel, which rendered Bayshore's licensure inimical to the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(f) and thus disqualified it for licensure as a casino service industry. The ALJ further concluded that the Division failed to prove its allegations that Joseph N. or Phyllis Mistie Merlino had made any material misrepresentations. The judge also noted that the criminal indictments filed against Joseph N. Merlino were still pending at the time of the filing of the initial decision and were not considered in his decision. The ALJ made no determination on the issue of whether Bayshore carried its burden proving its good character, honesty and integrity.

On January 9, 1989, Bayshore filed exceptions to the initial decision. On January 17, 1989, the Division filed a reply.

After consideration of the entire record in this matter, we determined at our public meeting of April 5, 1989, to adopt the initial decision, subject to a modification to find that, in addition to Bayshore, Joseph N. Merlino and Phyllis Mistie Merlino were also disqualified by reason of section 86(f). Prior to announcing our decision we were informed by the parties that Joseph N. Merlino had been found guilty of all three counts of the indictment. Counsel for Bayshore iterated Bayshore's right to have a hearing relating to this aspect of the case. Transcript of Commission public meeting April 5, 1989, at 100-7 to 100-12.

The decision to deny the application was memorialized by order dated April 10, 1988. Consistent with our determination, the order further required the termination of all contracts between Bayshore and casino licensees and their agents within fifteen days.

On April 24, 1989, Bayshore filed with the Commission a motion for stay pending appeal of our order of April 10, 1989. At our public meeting of April 26, 1989, we denied Bayshore's motion.

DISQUALIFICATION PURSUANT TO N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(f)

The ALJ concluded that Bayshore is disqualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(f), by reason of the association between it and its principal, Joseph N. Merlino, with Lawrence Merlino. Bayshore conceded that Lawrence Merlino was a career offender and member of a career offender cartel, the Act's euphemism for organized crime figures. This Commission had already determined as much by including the elder Merlino on the Exclusion List, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-71, in 1985.[4] Having reviewed the record in detail we accept the ALJ's recommendation to deny Bayshore's application and grant the relief sought in the Division's complaint.

The Commission has been charged by the Legislature with protecting the "public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations." N.J.S.A. 5:12-1(b)(6). To this end the Legislature enacted "a comprehensive statutory scheme that authorizes casino gambling and establishes a rigorous system of regulation for the entire casino industry." Brown v. Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union Local 54, 468 U.S. 498, 104 S. Ct. 3179, 3182, 82 L. Ed. 2d 373 (1984). Keeping the casino industry free from infiltration by or even the influence of organized crime is the primary mission of the agencies created by the Act. Ibid.

4. See State v. Lawrence Merlino and Philip Leonetti, 8 N.J.A.R. 126 (1985), aff'd. 216 N.J. Super. 579 (App. Div. 1987), aff'd. o.b. 109 N.J. 134 (1988).

N.J.S.A. 5:12-92(d) provides that a casino service industry may be "disqualified in accordance with the criteria contained in section 86" of the Act. The Division alleged that Bayshore should be disqualified pursuant to section 86(f) of the Act. That section provides in part that any person[5] who is required to be qualified under the Act shall be disqualified if such person is determined to be "... an associate of a career offender or a career offender cartel in such a manner which creates a reasonable belief that the association is of such a nature as to be inimical to the policy of this Act and to gaming operations." As this language has been interpreted and applied, the association is inimical if it presents the danger of influence or control over casino-related business by an organized crime figure. See In the Matter of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union Local 54, 203 N.J. Super. 297 (App. Div. 1985), certif. den. 102 N.J. 352 (1985), cert. den. 475 U.S. 1085, 106 S. Ct. 1467 (1986). We need not wait, however, until this potential control manifests itself in criminal behavior by the associate. Ibid. In accordance with these guiding principles, we must analyze the nature and quality of the association between Bayshore and Lawrence Merlino to determine if it creates an appreciable risk that Lawrence Merlino might exercise some degree of influence over Bayshore.

The ALJ reviewed the voluminous record in this matter and found that the contacts between Lawrence Merlino and Joseph N. Merlino, Bayshore's principal, "are substantial and on going [sic], and while they embrace the usual aspects [of] the relationship between a father and his son, they also are characterized by extensive business associations that go beyond the family tie and pose an appreciable threat to the operations of a casino service industry." A-30 and A-41.

Based on our own close scrutiny of the record, we agree with the ALJ. The Division's proofs established by a fair preponderance of the credible evidence that the nature and quality of the association is such that Lawrence Merlino could, indeed, exercise control or influence over Bayshore. Although the evidence here of a tainted association is largely circumstantial, it is not for that reason alone deficient. The Local 54 decision, which also involved an 86(f) disqualifying association, was grounded in "a record replete with circumstantial evidence." Local 54, 203 N.J. Super. at 321. There, too, no proof of actual misconduct by union officials at Scarfo's behest was shown, though there was evidence of Scarfo's interest in union affairs. Nevertheless, the court upheld the Commission's determination that the potential for untoward influence by the Scarfo crime family was disqualifying.

Any corporation, association, operation, firm, partnership, trust or other form of business association, as well as a natural person.

In response to the Division's proofs, Bayshore suggests that each of the indicia of the purportedly inimical association can be explained, most as the natural elements of a father-son relationship. The applicant's contention essentially is that it has no relationship with Lawrence Merlino; the only relationship is between Lawrence the father and Joseph the son and the son ought not be disqualified simply because of who and what the father is.

We can agree only to a point. The disqualification of the father does not alone disqualify the son. The old English notion of "corruption of the blood" has never been part of American Jurisprudence and certainly section 86(f) does not provide reason to incorporate it into casino law. But just as the father-son relationship cannot be used as a sword to disqualify, neither can it be used as a shield from regulatory scrutiny.

In Niglio v. New Jersey Racing Commission, 158 N.J. Super. 182 (App. Div. 1978), the Appellate Division recognized the public interest in the strict regulation of legalized gambling and upheld the Racing Commission's decision to disqualify the wife of an individual convicted of certain criminal offenses from racing a horse that she owned. The court held:

> The undesirability of an association between those previously convicted of a crime or those in affinity with such a person and the sensitive "business of racing and the legalized gambling attendant thereupon," is too apparent to justify extended discussion. Certainly an appropriately strong state interest is involved and there is a rational basis for the classification imposed. [Id. at 188, (quoting Jersey Downs, Inc. v. Division of New Jersey Racing Commission, 102 N.J. Super. 451, 457 (App. Div. 1968)].

The Niglio decision was predicated, not so much on the familial relationship per se, but rather on the wife's financial dependence on her disqualified spouse. In the instant case, the operative question is whether the evidence cited by the ALJ is sufficient to raise reasonable concern that Lawrence could influence the activities of Bayshore. We believe that it most certainly is, as a recapitulation of the pertinent evidence will demonstrate.

Bayshore was incorporated in New Jersey on December 13, 1985, only one month after the dissolution of a Florida corporation of the same name owned by Lawrence Merlino. Joseph N. Merlino's employment with Lawrence's Merlino's company, Nat Nat, ended some undisclosed date prior to December 1985, yet Joseph received a $15,000 "bonus" check from his father on or about March 10, 1986. At around the same time, Joseph bought from Lawrence the condominium that Lawrence had previously acquired from Scarf, Inc.[6] Phyllis Mistie Merlino, Bayshore's President, is listed on insurance records for Nat Nat as late as January 16, 1987. Nat Nat and Bayshore operated from the same premises, the home of Phyllis and her children which is owned by Phyllis's ex-husband, Lawrence, as recently as eight months prior to the OAL hearings conducted in March 1988. Bayshore paid no rent during this period and on occasion had its phone bill paid by Lawrence. It used the same bookkeeper and insurance agent as Nat Nat. As of the date of the OAL hearings, Bayshore had employed as its foreman, Rocco Bunodono, the former foreman for Lawrence at Nat Nat.

We cannot dismiss these factors as being "innocuous" as the applicant suggests. The indicia of a significant, non-familial, association between Lawrence Merlino and

6. The background of Scarf, Inc., is discussed in State v. Lawrence Merlino and Philip Leonetti, supra, 8 N.J.A.R. at 152-153.

Bayshore are too recent, numerous and substantial to permit Bayshore's participation in the casino industry under the strict standards that we are obliged to uphold. The risk of infiltration by organized crime is too great, too palpable, to warrant any decision other than denial of licensure in this instance.

Our concerns are in no way alleviated by Bayshore's contention that, because Lawrence Merlino has recently been sentenced to prison for life, he is in no position to influence Bayshore. The influence of the Scarfo crime family in the Atlantic City area is well-documented. We do not share the same confidence that Lawrence Merlino either directly or indirectly could not influence the operations of Bayshore even while he resides within prison walls. Moreover, this record is inadequate for us to reach a firm conclusion as to the finality of Lawrence Merlino's conviction and sentence.

DISQUALIFICATION PURSUANT TO N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(b)

As an additional basis for disqualification, the Division, in its letter-report objecting to Bayshore's licensure as a casino service industry, alleged that Phyllis Mistie Merlino and Joseph N. Merlino each misrepresented material facts at the OAL hearing in an attempt to cover-up any relationship between Bayshore and Nat Nat contrary to section 86(b) of the Act. The ALJ concluded that the Division failed to prove its case concerning these allegations. We agree. Because the Division failed to make any specific allegations of such conduct or offer any proof in this regard, we do not see any need for extended discussion on this issue.

DISQUALIFICATION PURSUANT TO N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(1)

In its amended complaint and letter-report, the Division alleged that Joseph N. Merlino had engaged in criminal conduct which was the basis of a three count criminal indictment filed against him and disqualifying to Bayshore pursuant to section 86(c)(1) of the Act. To expedite a hearing on the other issues involved in this matter, the ALJ accepted a stipulation by the parties to sever the issue of the indictment and defer consideration of the indictment pending its resolution. The ALJ properly did not consider the indictment in his initial decision.

We were advised by the parties at our public meeting of April 5, 1989, that Joseph N. Merlino has been found guilty on each count of the indictment. We do not consider this aspect of the case in this decision. Upon sentencing, because the criminal conduct by Mr. Merlino will have been resolved, there will no longer be any basis for continued deferral under the Casino Control Act. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(d). Thereupon, the matter should proceed to a hearing in the Office of Administrative Law to assess whether Bayshore and Joseph N. Merlino are also disqualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(1).

GOOD CHARACTER HONESTY INTEGRITY PURSUANT TO N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3(c)

The ALJ also did not reach a decision with respect to whether Bayshore established the good character, honesty and integrity required by N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3(c). The criminal allegations against Joseph N. Merlino, concerning disqualification pursuant to section 86(c)(1) of the Act, are equally relevant to a consideration of Bayshore's good character, honesty and integrity. Therefore it is appropriate for the good character issue to proceed to a hearing and be tried along with the issue of disqualification pursuant to section 86(c)(1).

CONCLUSION

The possibility of infiltration into the casino industry by the likes of Nicodemo Scarfo and his associates is the raison d'etre for strict State regulation. The Division's proofs established by a fair preponderance of the evidence an association between the applicant and a notorious organized crime figure well beyond the mere familial. We are satisfied that this association, manifesting itself in the structure and operation of a business engaged in casino hotel construction, is the type envisioned by section 86(f) of the Act, i.e., one which we reasonably believe to present a threat to the integrity of the gaming industry. Accordingly, we adopt the ALJ's conclusion that Bayshore is disqualified pursuant to section 86(f) and his recommendation that Bayshore's application for a casino service industry license be denied. This disqualification runs to Bayshore's qualifiers as well. Accordingly we modify the initial decision to conclude that Joseph N. Merlino and Phyllis Mistie Merlino are also disqualified pursuant to section 86(f).

BOARDWALK REGENCY CORP.,

Respondents.

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and two initial decisions having been filed by the administrative law judge (ALJ) with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions and replies to exceptions having been filed by the parties to both initial decisions; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meetings of August 16 and November 1, 1989; and for the reasons stated on the record of the Commission's public meeting of December 6, 1989,

IT IS on this 4th day of January 1990, ORDERED:

1. The ALJ's conclusion that N.J.S.A. 5:12-134 and N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a) require casino licensees to treat their employees equally and fairly is adopted. However, the ALJ's conclusion that these provisions of Casino Control Act and Commission regulations do not apply to individual casino employees is rejected and this issue is remanded to the OAL for further proceedings. Because the ALJ formed an assessment of the credibility of respondents Niglio and Bogatin, it is requested that the hearing on remand be conducted by an ALJ other than the one who heard this matter initially;

2. The ALJ's conclusion that N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.12(a) regulates the conduct of both casino licensees and individual casino employees is adopted;

3. The ALJ's recommendation to dismiss Count III is adopted subject to the following modification: The Commission did not intend to incorporate all applicable federal, state, and local laws into the standard anti-preemption language of Boardwalk Regency Corporation's (BRC) Certificate of Operation, thereby investing itself with jurisdiction to enforce any and all legal obligations related to the operation and maintenance of a casino hotel. Therefore, the dismissal of Count III is based upon a failure to state a cause of action;

4. The ALJ's conclusion that respondent BRC violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-134 and N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a) by intentionally discriminating against three of its employees on May 13, 1988, is adopted. However, based upon the uncontradicted evidence in the record, the initial decision is modified to find BRC liable for a similar discriminatory reassignment of two of its employees on May 7, 1989;

5. The ALJ's recommendation that BRC be required to pay a civil penalty of $15,600 as a sanction for these five violations is rejected. BRC's violations are extremely serious both because of the inherently abhorent nature of race and sex-based discrimination and because of BRC's prior regulatory violations which, like those involved herein, are marked by a marked by a willingness to cater to preferred patrons with little or no regard to the regulatory process. Among the prior regulatory violations are State v. Boardwalk Regency Corp., 11 N.J.A.R. 29 (1983), State v. Boardwalk Regency Corp., et al., Docket No. 84-246 (Commission decision October 28, 1985), and State v. Boardwalk Regency Corp., Docket Nos. 87-290 and 88-147 (Consolidated) -- all of which Commission officially notices pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-107(b). In addition, the Commission believes that the corrective action taken by BRC was inadequate. Upon consideration of the factors of N.J.S.A. 5:12-130, a penalty of $250,000 is hereby imposed. Furthermore, BRC is hereby required to develop a training course for all of its employees, the focus of which shall be compliance with the Act and regulations with particular emphasis on appropriate methods for dealing with high roller patrons; and

6. The ALJ's finding that the Division failed to prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that BRC and Bogatin instructed a pit boss not to supervise Robert Libutti's play on May 13, 1988, is adopted and Count II is therefore dismissed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the foregoing civil penalty be due and payable upon receipt of an invoice from the Commission's Division of Financial Evaluation and Control; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the training program referred to above be submitted to the Commission for approval within six months of the date of this order.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on June 26, 1988, alleging in the first count that Boardwalk Regency Corp. (BRC), Nicholas Niglio (Niglio) and Rachel Bogatin (Bogatin) violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-134(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a), by failing to afford an equal opportunity to certain BRC employees because of their race, color and sex. The Division alleged in the second count that respondents BRC and Bogatin violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.12(a)(6) and BRC's internal supervision controls by directing a pit boss not to "watch" the conduct of the craps game at table #8 on May 13, 1988. In the third and final count, the Division alleges that respondent BRC violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-96(a), and its Certificate of Operation, by failing to adhere to the certificate and by failing to operate the casino in accordance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and New Jersey's Law Against Discrimination N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq. (NJLAD).

The respondents answered the complaint and requested a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-107. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 1, 1988, to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. On May 16, 1989, the respondents moved for Summary Judgment.

FACTS DEEMED TRUE FOR PURPOSE OF MOTION

A casino patron requested that he and his party be served at the gaming tables by white male casino employees only and that supervisors not "watch" his party's play at the craps table. This request was honored. It was effectuated by Niglio and Bogatin, key employees of BRC, who transferred black and female casino employees to another area of the casino and replaced them with white males. In addition, Bogatin ordered the pit boss not to watch the play.

FIRST COUNT

Niglio and Bogatin

Niglio and Bogatin contend that N.J.S.A. 5:12-134 and N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5 (a) (the equal employment statute and regulation) are limited in their application to licensed casinos and casino service industries and therefore so much of count one as purports to charge them should be dismissed.

The statute requires that applicants for a casino license guarantee that all contracts and subcontracts awarded in connection with construction or renovation of a proposed casino facility contain an appropriate affirmative action program consonant with N.J.S.A. 10:5-1, NJLAD. It also requires that an applicant, including a casino service industry, provide equal employment opportunities to all prospective employees in accordance with an approved affirmative action plan consonant with N.J.S.A. 10:5-1. It further requires that certain rehabilitated offenders, minorities and handicapped persons be guaranteed equal employment opportunities in accordance with N.J.S.A. 10:5-1. Finally, it provides that if the Commission violates this statute by issuing a casino license without the required filings and guaranties, the license shall be null and void.

The cited regulation, N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a), spells out in great detail the guaranties to be included in affirmative action programs. Nowhere in the statute, or in the far greater detailed regulation, are individual casino employees charged with an affirmative duty. The law and regulation express the duties of casino applicants, casino licensees, casino service industry licensees, contractors and subcontractors to act according to an affirmative action plan and it also expresses the correlative duty of the Commission to require such plans during the licensing application process. Casino employees are mentioned only as a protected class. No standard of conduct is identified to which they must adhere. In re Polk License Revocation, 90 N.J. 550, 575 (1982).

The statute reflects the policy of the State of New Jersey towards discrimination and provides that casinos establish affirmative action programs. It does not provide that individual casino employees are responsible for anything in connection with the administration, or enforcement, of a program to provide equal employment opportunities.

This is not to say that racist or sexist acts committed by casino employees must be tolerated. Such acts raise the issue of an employee's good character, honesty and integrity. The possession of good character, honesty and integrity is required of casino employees by N.J.S.A 5:12-89b2 and 90b.

The purpose of the good character requirement is to insure that the industry employs persons who are responsive to laws and regulations, not to peer pressures or patron pressures. It is to insure that the industry employs persons who are able to discriminate between right and wrong, not white and black. And it is to insure that the industry employs persons with the courage to just say no to outrageous demands.

Boardwalk Regency Corp.

BRC contends that the first count of the complaint should be dismissed. It claims that N.J.S.A. 5:12-134 does not apply to current employees but is limited to job applicants. But the affirmative action plans required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-134 must be consonant with the NJLAD. N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq.

The NJLAD requirement that employees be treated equally and fairly does not end with the initial employment process. It is a continuing obligation so that one cannot hire minorities and then segregate their drinking fountains or gaming tables.

In addition, the regulation cited in the first count, N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a), for which N.J.S.A. 5:12-134 is a source, expressly requires that employees be treated during employment without regard to age, race, creed, color, national origin, ancestry, marital status, sex, liability for service in the armed forces of the United States, or handicaps.

I CONCLUDE therefore that the statute cited in the first count of the complaint proscribes and directs the conduct of casino licensees and other named corporate bodies connected with the casino industry. It does not proscribe or direct the conduct of persons in their individual capacity.

I GRANT the motions of Niglio and Bogatin and DISMISS count one of the complaint as it applies to them.

I DENY the motion of BRC to dismiss the first count of the complaint.

SECOND COUNT

Bogatin

Bogatin contends that the second count should be dismissed since N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.12(a) cannot be interpreted to apply to individual employees. She claims that the regulation merely informs casinos how to staff gaming areas. The regulation reads in pertinent part as follows:

> (a) The following personnel shall be used to operate and conduct table games in an establishment:
> ...
>
> 6. Pit boss shall be:
>
> i. The third level supervisor assigned the responsibility for the overall supervision of the operation and conduct of craps games at not more than eight craps tables; and

While it is true that the regulation mandates staffing patterns, it also clearly puts the third level responsibility for supervising craps games upon a pit boss. Any reasonable English reader of the regulation could determine that a pit boss has supervisory responsibility over craps tables. Bogatin is charged with ordering a pit boss not to exercise that responsibility.The action complained of is readily identified in the language of the regulation.

Boardwalk Regency Corp.

BRC contends that the regulation cited in the second count is nothing more than a job description and that no penalty is provided for its violation. N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.12 (a) is more than a job description; it is a job description enacted into law. In addition, N.J.S.A. 5:12-129 authorizes the Commission to sanction conduct provided the standards of N.J.S.A. 5:12-130 are followed. Both statutes refer to violations of regulations as conduct which may be sanctioned. It is alleged in count two that a specific regulation has been violated, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.12(a). Again, the action complained of is readily identified in the language of the regulation.

I CONCLUDE that N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.12(a) regulates the conduct of both casinos and individual casino employees.

I DENY the motion of Bogatin and BRC to dismiss Count 2 of the complaint.

THIRD COUNT

Boardwalk Regency Corp. only

BRC contends that the third count of the complaint should be dismissed. The third count alleges that BRC violated its Certificate of Operation and N.J.S.A. 5:12-96, which requires a licensed casino to have a certificate of operation. BRC's certificate of operation requires it to obey the Casino Control Act and all other applicable State, Federal and local laws. The complaint alleges that Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C. 2,000e et seq. is an applicable law and so, it alleges, is NJLAD N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq. Since, the Division alleges, BRC violated both Title VII and NJLAD, it must be in violation of the Certificate of Operation and N.J.S.A. 5:12-96.

However, the Division concedes in its brief that it is not prosecuting a claim before this tribunal under either Title VII or NJLAD. It argues that it is prosecuting BRC only under the Casino Control Act and section 134 in particular. But a violation of 134 is charged in the first count. Therefore, the third count of the complaint is surplusage.

I CONCLUDE that the third count of the complaint is surplusage.

I GRANT the Motion of BRC and DISMISS the third count of the complaint.

This recommended Partial Initial Decision respecting Niglio in the first count and BRC in the third count, may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDERS CONCERNING DISCOVERY

1. Bogatin's attorney requested relief from the Division's request to him to permit the Division to interview Bogatin. Since the request was made to the attorney and not to Bogatin, the relief requested is DENIED.

2. BRC's attorney requested relief from the Division's request to a Senior Vice President of BRC to appear for an interview. The request was not made to the attorney of record. I GRANT the motion and ORDER the Division to make all requests to interview persons who hold a position equivalent to a casino qualifier through the attorney of record during the pendency of this matter.

3. BRC objects to the Division's discovery request of May 5, 1989 which demanded the following:

1. Any marketing manuals, memoranda, documents, letters or tapes which refer or relate to BRC's marketing strategies, marketing techniques or policies regarding premium players.

2. Any information, inclusive of documents and memoranda of meetings, relating to how BRC's marketing strategies for premium players are implemented and the methods by which BRC's staff is informed of the marketing strategy.

3. Any information, inclusive of internal correspondence, which relates to how management monitors compliance with and evaluates the implementation of BRC's marketing strategy for premium players.

4. Any information regarding instruction or training given to employees including Nicholas Niglio and Rachel Bogatin on the treatment of premium players and BRC's policy regarding the treatment of premium players.

The purpose of the request was to determine what instruction, if any, was given to BRC employees relating to discrimination and equal opportunity during the course of employment. The demand therefore is too broad and is alleged to be onerous. I ORDER that the demand for discovery be limited to such marketing manuals, memoranda, documents, etc. which refer either directly or indirectly to discrimination and/or equal opportunity during the course of employment.

4. All outstanding demands for discovery must be completed by Wednesday, May 24, 1989.

AMENDMENT TO PREHEARING ORDER

D. Did respondent Boardwalk and/or Rachel Bogatin instruct Carol Ungerer not to supervise the play of Robert Libutti as she is required to do pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.12(a) and Boardwalk's own internal controls on May 13, 1988.

AMENDMENT TO PLEADINGS

At the oral argument on May 16, 1989, the Deputy Attorney General requested leave to file an amended complaint. He wished to complain that the conduct of Niglio and Bogatin raise character, honesty and integrity issues. The possession of these characteristics is a requirement for continued casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b2 and 90b. I mistakenly advised the Deputy Attorney General to file such a motion with me. However, the rules do not provide for an ALJ to retain jurisdiction after an initial decision has been filed. Therefore it would be inappropriate for the Deputy Attorney General to file such a motion with the undersigned with respect to Niglio who is the subject of the partial initial decision. N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.1(h).

This Order may be reviewed by the Casino Control Commission either upon interlocutory review, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10, or at the end of the contested case, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6.

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) alleges that Boardwalk Regency Corporation (Caesars) removed black and female dealers from a craps table and substituted white male dealers for them in order to gratify the perceived wishes of a casino patron. It alleges that this transfer of individuals was effectuated by Nicholas Niglio (Niglio) and Rachel Bogatin (Bogatin) and that, in addition, Bogatin instructed a female pit boss not to "watch" the patron play, although a pit boss is required by Rule to supervise the game.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on June 26, 1988, alleging in the first count that Caesars, Niglio and Bogatin violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-134(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a), by failing to afford an equal opportunity to certain Caesars' employees because of their race, color and sex. The Division alleged in the second count that respondent Caesars and participant Bogatin violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.12(a)(6) and Caesars' internal supervision controls by directing a pit boss not to "watch" the conduct of the craps game at table eight on May 13, 1988. In the third and final count, the Division alleged that respondent Caesars violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-96(a), and its Certificate of Operation, by failing to adhere to the certificate and by failing to operate the casino in accordance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and New Jersey's Law Against Discrimination. N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq. (NJLAD).

The respondents answered the complaint and requested a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-107. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 1, 1988, to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. On May 16, 1989, the respondents moved for Summary Judgment.

By way of a partial initial decision filed on May 24, 1989, the motions of Niglio and Bogatin to dismiss count one of the complaint as it applies to them was granted.

The motion of Caesars to dismiss count one of the complaint as it applied to it was denied and the motions of Bogatin and Caesars to dismiss count two were denied. The motion of Caesars to dismiss count three was granted. Niglio then moved for participation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.4 et seq. Participation was granted on the grounds that a full determination of the case could substantially, specifically and directly affect him. He may be subject to a future proceeding as a result of his testimony or the testimony of others in this proceeding.

A plenary hearing convened on June 5, 1989 and was concluded on June 16, 1989. The time in which to file an initial decision was extended by Order of the Commission until August 14, 1989.

ISSUES

The issues identified at a prehearing conference held on December 19, 1988, and amended during the hearing, which were not disposed of by the partial initial decision are:

A. Did respondent Nicholas Niglio intentionally discriminate against Joel Respes, Pamela Jiacopello, and/or Deborah O'Kane on May 13, 1988, by reassigning them and replacing them with white male gaming employees so as to provide one Robert Libutti, a patron, with an all white male gaming staff?

B. Did respondent Rachel Bogatin intentionally discriminate against Joel Respes, Pamela Jiacopello, Deborah O'Kane, Mary Ann Egeli, and/or Catherine Daidone on May 7, 1988 and/or on May 13, 1988, by reassigning them and replacing them with white male gaming employees so as to provide Robert Libutti, a patron, with an all white male gaming staff?

C. If the allegations of A and B above are proven, is respondent Caesars liable for the actions of Niglio and/or Bogatin?

D. Did respondent Caesars and/or Rachel Bogatin instruct Carol Ungerer not to supervise the play of Robert Libutti as she is required to do pursuant to

N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.12(a)6 and Caesars' own internal controls on May 13, 1988?

G. Whether the allegations set forth in issues A, B and/or C above, if proven, violate N.J.S.A. 5:12-134b and/or N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a)2?

I. If the allegations set forth above are proven, what penalty, if any, should apply?

SUMMARY AND DISCUSSION OF DOCUMENTARY AND TESTIMONIAL EVIDENCE

The Casino Control Act (Act) requires an applicant for a casino license to agree to afford an equal employment opportunity to all prospective employees consonant with N.J.S.A. 10:15-1 et seq., the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination. N.J.S.A. 5:12-134b. Paragraph c of Section 134 of the Act requires the applicant to formulate and abide by an affirmative action program of equal opportunity.

In addition, the Commission enacted regulations to insure a balanced workplace in casinos. N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.1 et seq. The regulations require that the policy of nondiscrimination continue during the whole course of actual employment. N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5.

Accordingly, Caesars prepared an affirmative action plan for the Commission in connection with its application for a Certificate of Operation in 1979. The plan was updated on April 3, 1980, August 15, 1980 and in September 1988.

Caesars stated policy is the provision of equal employment opportunity to everyone. It seeks out female and minority candidates. It provides, through its Upward Mobility Program and its Supervisory Skills Training Program, vehicles for identifying, training and promoting female and minority employees.

The Division disparages these efforts and offered into evidence the 1986, 1987 and 1988 reports of the Commission's Division of Affirmative Action and Planning in order to show that Caesars was not in compliance with the Act or its own Affirmative Action Plan.

These reports are chatty but they tend to ramble. In one place they chastise Caesars for being in last place among the casinos in a category of female employment, in another place they administer a pat on the back to Caesars for showing gains in a category of minority employment. Apparently there is an ongoing dispute between Caesars and the Division of Affirmative Action and Planning over who is responsible for keeping statistics of female and minority employment by building contractors.

The best, or worst, that can be said about Caesars' record of affirmative action, according to these reports, is that Caesars has achieved mixed results in maintaining affirmative action goals.

Caesars offered rebuttal evidence by way of tables prepared by the Division of Affirmative Action and Planning of the Commission for the periods ending March 31, 1987, March 31, 1988 and March 31, 1989. These tables merely confirm that Caesars, like other casinos, has achieved mixed results in affirmative action.

The gravamen of the complaint filed in this matter, however, is not a failure by Caesars to maintain affirmative action goals; it is that very specific instances of conduct were discriminatory.

There does not appear to be much conflict in this case about what actually happened. Black and female dealers at Caesars were moved to other tables and replaced by white male dealers to accommodate a player who was perceived to favor white male dealers at the craps table and a female pit boss alleges she was instructed not to "watch" his play. The conflict in the case is over who gave the order to transfer the dealers and what was intended by the order given to the pit boss which she interpreted to mean that she was not to "watch" the game.

The resolution of this conflict is essential for the penalty phase of the case. Obviously the higher up into casino management the origins of the conduct can be traced, the more grave the conduct appears. Certainly a racial squabble among low level employees, especially in a company actively pursuing an affirmative action program, although reprehensible in itself, may not lead to the conclusion that the employer, in its corporate capacity, has a failed policy or requires a penalty to force it to take a corrective action. On the other hand, where the conduct reflects a corporate policy, drastic measures may be required. In order to illustrate the conflict, the testimony of the witnesses is summarized below.

William Frasco is an audit agent for the Division and has been assigned to Caesars since August of 1986. He was assigned to review the gaming activity of Robert Libutti. of whom it was rumored that he preferred white male dealers to black or female dealers at his table. He discovered that Libutti gambled at Caesars on April 1, April 30, May 7 and May 13, 1988. On April 1, 1988, Libutti gambled about an hour and placed average bets of $4,400. On April 30, 1988, Libutti gambled about an hour and a half and made average bets of $4,500. On May 7, 1988, Libutti gambled approximately one hour and 25 minutes and his average bet was $8,000. On May 13, 1988, Libutti gambled for a little over two hours beginning at approximately 7:10 p.m. and his average bet was about $6,000. Libutti's total loss over the four days was $15,600.00.

These kinds of records are maintained for several reasons, one of which is to "rate" players in order to bestow complimentary items and services upon them. Libutti was a rated player and considered to be a "high roller," which is, apparently, a term of great esteem in gambling argot. It describes a person who wagers vast sums of money upon insignificant events such as the turn of a card or the throw of the dice. Accordingly, Libutti was a favored person in casinos.

Lyndon Stockton is a Senior Marketing executive for Caesars World Marketing Corporation; a sister corporation to Caesars . He was first employed on May 12, 1988. His major function is to solicit table game customers for Caesars' Atlantic City and Tahoe casinos. He does this by mail, telephone and personal contact. He frequents sporting events and restaurants in search of qualified customers. He remembers their birthdays and anniversaries with phone calls or flowers. He develops strategies for introducing players to Caesars and maintaining their interest in the casino.

Stockton knew Libutti before he worked at Caesars. Stockton first met Libutti when he, Stockton, worked at Trump Plaza as a casino host. On May 13, 1988, Stockton got a phone tip from someone at Trump Plaza that Libutti was on his way over to Caesars to play craps. Stockton met Libutti at the door. A table had already been roped off for Libutti's party. Stockton ordered Libutti's favorite brand of champagne and the special glasses Libutti is fond of. He stood with Libutti as he gambled to insure that Libutti was comfortable. Although he had heard rumors that Libutti was abusive, Stockton said he never saw Libutti abuse anyone. He said that any rumors concerning Libutti's preference for white male dealers were false. He said Libutti was not a racist or a bigot. Stockton said that he knew this because he, Stockton, was black, and had hosted Libutti in Trump Plaza for years without incident.

Mario DeLuca has been employed at Caesars since its opening in 1979. He has been a craps dealer, a blackjack dealer, a box person, and a floor person with pit boss credentials who can occasionally fill in as a pit boss. A craps pit boss is responsible for the eight craps games which comprise the pit. A floor person is responsible for supervising one game; dealers and box persons actually operate one game. Floor persons, box persons and dealers are supervised by the pit boss. A pit boss observes the games to make sure correct procedures are followed and resolves disputes beyond the jurisdiction of the floor person. A pit boss is also responsible for the chips and money count at each table and for the work schedule of the crew.

DeLuca testified that as a pit boss for Caesars he has never been told not to "watch" a game. On April 30, 1988, he was told by Nicholas Niglio, the assistant casino manager, not to "crowd" a game played by Robert Libutti at table eight in his pit. An assistant casino manager is one step above a shift boss who supervises pit bosses.

DeLuca did not define the expression "crowd a game". In answer to a question, he acknowledged the existence of two expressions common in casino argot: "hawk the game" and "sweat the money." He defined only the expression "sweat the money." When a casino employee "sweats the money", the employee stands close to a losing table and assumes a "nervous" or "irritable" expression. He said Caesar's policy was not to "sweat the money."

As a result of being told not to "crowd the game" DeLuca observed Libutti's play from approximately six or eight feet away from the craps table. He did not feel that the instruction diminished his capacity to supervise the game. He recalls talking to Carol Ungerer who was the floor person on the next table from Libutti. He told her why he was watching Libutti's play from her table, table seven, and not from

table eight, Libutti's table, but he does not recall what was actually said. He recalls that she began to watch Libutti's play and Richard Stack, the shift boss, told her not to watch table eight. He noted that she was embarrassed.

DeLuca also identified Pamela Jiacopella, Joel Respes and Debra O'Kane as competent employees of Caesars.

DeLuca recalled that two black women were floor persons on Libutti's table on April 30, 1988.

Maryann Egeli is a dice dealer and boxperson for Caesars. A dice dealer accepts bets and paces the game. She says they usually have fun. On May 7, 1988, she worked the 6:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m. shift. Many employees have staggered starting times. As a result, a witness may refer to two different pit bosses or shift managers during a single shift. Egeli was a dealer on table 17, pit four. Joseph Bochen was her pit boss that night and Richard Stack was the shift boss. Stack came around and put reserve signs on her table. He told her a big player was coming in and that she would be removed from the table because the "man didn't want any women on the game." Joseph Bochen told her the "man" was Libutti. At 8:30, her break time, she was moved to a different table by Joseph Bochen, her pit boss. Libutti had not yet arrived. She was replaced at table 17 by a white male. During the evening she heard from other dealers that Libutti preferred only white males on his game. She testified that she was shocked by the move and has instituted suit against Caesars.

At a sworn interview Egeli told the Division that she "just figured this guy (Libutti) was superstitious, didn't want women around. It really didn't bother (her)." At the hearing she explained this discrepancy in her testimony by saying "You learn not to say too much ... So I would like to keep my job ... So I didn't say anything."

Egeli testified that as a result of her move, she lost no income because dealers pool their tips. She also testified that she instituted suit because after she thought about the incident she became disturbed. She concluded her testimony by saying that she was 29 years old, and she had never before experienced discrimination solely because she was a woman.

Catheryn Daidone has been employed by Caesars for nine years. She was a box person on May 7, 1988, and has since become a floor person. On May 7, 1988, she was assigned to table 17 pit four on the swing shift with Maryann Egeli. She said Nicholas Niglio came by and told Joe Bochen, the pit boss, to reserve the table by roping it off. Later, Joe Bochen told her to move to another game because a man was coming in who didn't like women or blacks on the game. Her co-workers told her the man coming in was Libutti. Bochen also told her that Libutti didn't want the pit boss "looming over the table watching the game over his shoulder." Daidone was replaced at table 17 by a white male. She says she wasn't bothered by the move because she knew it did not have anything to do with her competence.

Joseph Bochen has been employed by Caesars for 10 years. He is a pit boss. He said that he had never been told not to "watch" a game. He defined the expression "hawking the game" as standing close to the table, with negative body language, arms crossed, stern demeanor, pacing near the table, overtly worrying that the table is losing money. He equated the expression "hawking the game" with "sweating the game."

Bochen recalls that at about 6:30 one night in May, Rachel Bogatin, shift manager, told him that Libutti would be playing on a reserved table and that Libutti did not want women or blacks or minorities dealing to him. She also asked him to arrange the table accordingly.

Bochen then moved Egeli and Daidone to another table. He said he explained his actions to them and that they acquiesced in the move. They were replaced with white males. Later that evening Libutti came to play at table 17. Bochen said that Rachel Bogatin also told him that Libutti doesn't "like pit bosses hawking the game." He said this was a common term in the business and he knew exactly what she meant. He said it is Caesars policy that no one is to hawk a game. The employees are told that there is "plenty of money", so there is no need to "sweat the game."

As a result of this instruction Bochen did not show Libutti any extra attention other than to make eye contact and smile at him. He continued to monitor the game and the chip situation with the floorman and he observed the game from the pit boss's podium.

Joel Respes is black. He is a floor person employed by Caesars for nine years. In 1983 he received the company's Superstar award. On May 13, 1988, he was on the day shift, 12:45 p.m. until 8:45 p.m. He was a relief floorperson assigned to pit two and was to relieve the floorpersons on tables eight, one, seven and two. He said that Carol Ungerer was the pit boss and that Jack Nolan was the shift manager.

Respes started his shift on table eight relieving the floor person there. The betting minimum on table eight was raised from $5 to $500 to accommodate a "high roller." The employees speculated that Libutti was coming in to play. Libutti's supposed preference for white male dealers was discussed.

Shortly thereafter, two female employees of Caesars were removed from the table, Debbie O'Kane, a dealer, and Pamela Jiacopello, a box person. Two white males replaced them. Carol Ungerer, the pit boss made the changes. She said to Respes "Well, I had them taken care of. I don't know what I'm going to do with you yet." Later, Respes was switched to table seven and the table seven floor person, a white male, took Respes' place at table eight and remained there. At a few minutes after seven, Libutti arrived and played on table eight. Respes said he asked Ungerer why the switch was make and she told him "Well, this is what Caesars wants. They want to avoid any confrontation or any unusual circumstances."

Respes said that Ungerer also instructed the entire pit not to look at table eight and to exit the pit from the other side. Ungerer told Respes she was not allowed to "look" at the game and that "they don't even want me over there." He says she did not go near table eight as a result.

After work Respes left the casino but returned after a few minutes and related the events of the evening to a representative of the Casino Control Commission. She took his report and advised him to notify the affirmative action officer for Caesars, Roland Coleman. The next day, he did notify Coleman.

Respes said that the incident caused him to feel hurt, embarrassed and humiliated. It reminded him of the treatment his father received as a high school student in Philadelphia. His father wanted to be an engineer. A white male teacher told his father that he couldn't become an engineer because he was black.

Respes asked rhetorically: "How much do I have to accomplish? How much do I have to do?"

Respes told his children what had happened. He told them he felt as though he had encountered a sign that read "For Whites Only."

Roland Coleman, Caesar's Affirmative Action Officer, told Respes that the matter would be investigated. Coleman told Respes that he had already spoken to the president and two vice presidents concerning the matter and that the company did not condone the action. Respes subsequently filed suit against Caesars over the incident.

Respes says that Bogatin came to him after the event and talked to him "off the record" in Niglio's office. She said she was sorry it happened and that it never should have happened. She said she wished she "had the guts to stand up and say No! This is not right! It is wrong!"

Deborah O'Kane has been employed at Caesars for ten years. She started as a cocktail waitress and, through the Upward Mobility Program, has become a craps dealer.

O'Kane was on the 1:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. day shift on May 13, 1988, assigned to pit two, table eight. On that day, after her break, O'Kane was reassigned to another table by the pit boss, Carol Ungerer. Ungerer told her earlier that she would be reassigned because the table was reserved for Libutti and that he didn't want women on the table. The table went "dead" after the minimum bet was raised to $500. Because she was bored and knew she was going to be transferred anyway, O'Kane asked Ungerer to transfer her to a busy table and her request was honored.

O'Kane has joined with Respes and Egeli in the civil suit against Caesars.

Pamela Jiacopello has been employed at Caesars for 12 years, beginning as a telephone operator and successively becoming a front desk clerk, a rooms controller, a craps dealer and now a boxperson. On May 13, 1988, she was a relief box person on the 1:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. shift assigned to pit two. When Libutti arrived she was relieving the box person on the table reserved for him. She was "tapped off" the game by a white male. She knew this was going to happen because the pit boss, Carol Ungerer, previously told her it would happen. Ungerer had explained to her that Libutti did not like women on the game.

Jiacopello said that she was not offended by being removed from table eight. She says she and O'Kane joked abut Libutti's preferences. She said she had heard about Libutti and was glad she did not have to serve as the box person on his table.

Craig Isaia is Casino Administration Director for Caesars. He has been employed at the casino for ten years. He reports to Nicholas Niglio. He related that he is responsible, among other things, for overseeing the evaluation of casino employees and for scheduling casino employees. He testified that Maryann Egeli, Catherine Daidone, Deborah O'Kane, Joel Respes and Pamela Jiacopello were all competent employees capable of handling the play of a high roller.

Carol Ungerer is a craps floor person employed at Caesars for ten years. She sometimes worked as a pit boss because she is dual rated (both as a floor person and as a pit boss) but she has elected not to work as a pit boss any longer.

Prior to May 13, 1988, she recalls an occasion when Libutti gambled on a table next to hers on a night she was a floor person. This must have been on April 30, 1988, according to the testimony of others.

She recalls watching Libutti play from her vantage point as a floor person on an adjacent table. Richard Slack came up to her and told her that Nick Niglio said to him that he thought Ungerer was the pit boss because she spent so much time watching Libutti's play. She acknowledged that this reprimand was proper. Her job was to supervise the play on her table.

On May 13, 1988, Ungerer was working as a pit boss in pit two on the 12:45 to 9:30 p.m. shift. Shortly after she opened she was told by John Miller, the shift manager, to raise the minimum on a table to $500. She learned Libutti was expected. He arrived at approximately 7:05 p.m.

Ungerer recalled her conversation with Mario DeLuca when he was the pit boss during Libutti's play on April 30th. She recalled that he told her he was not supposed to be near Libutti's table or words to that effect. In addition, she claims that Bogatin told her not to "watch" the game. Although on cross examination she said she might have only "understood" she was not to "watch" the game.

In any case, Ungerer understood the instruction in its literal sense and slavishly followed it, even hiding behind a pillar to block her view of Libutti.

Later in her testimony, Ungerer recalled that Richard Slack found her behind a pillar and told her she did not have to hide. She says he told her "you just aren't to watch the game." She also acknowledged that at her interview with the Division, she said several times that she did not know who instructed her "not to watch the game."

Ungerer says she was also told on May 13, 1988, by Rachel Bogatin "that there weren't to be any female personnel on the table." This was at approximately 4:00 or 5:00 p.m.

Earlier, she says she had asked Debbie O'Kane, who was assigned to Libutti's table, which was not yet active, if she wanted to work table one so as not to be bored. O'Kane said "yes" and went to table one. When Libutti arrived, Ungerer did not bring O'Kane back to work at Libutti's table.

Ungerer says that Bogatin also told her to take Respes off the game "...to avoid a possible confrontation later." Ungerer replaced Respes with a white male. She told Respes she was doing it "... to avoid a confrontation later on." Ungerer says she asked Bogatin twice if she meant for her to move Respes. She says she asked her twice because she sensed trouble.

Ungerer testified several times that she was a "stickler for rules." Unfortunately she was not a stickler for accuracy. She was not untruthful in the sense that she consciously misrepresented the truth. She was merely careless of the truth. She interpreted the events of April 30, 1988, to mean that the pit boss should not, literally, watch the game. Therefore, she interpreted every order or instruction thereafter to mean "do not watch the game," even if the words used were different. This was obvious during both direct and cross examination. In response to questions, she would say she "probably" said this or that. In other words, she assumed that she said something appropriate at the time and then supplied an appropriate answer to the question at the hearing.

Rachel Bogatin is a dual rate shift manager at Caesars and has been employed there for ten years. She worked her way up from blackjack dealer to floor person to pit boss to dual rate shift manager. She reports to Nicholas Niglio.

On May 7, 1988, Bogatin had been a dual rate shift manager for about four weeks. Libutti played at the casino that evening. Bogatin denied that she told Joe Bochen to move dealers on May 7, 1988, because it was not until sometime between May 7, 1988, and May 13, 1988, that Bogatin heard the rumor that Libutti was verbally abusive or that he preferred white males to deal to him.

On May 13, 1988, Bogatin met Niglio on the floor of the casino at about 5:20 p.m. She told him that they had raised the minimum at table eight in the expectation that Libutti was coming and had $5,000. chips on the game. She said that Niglio told her to "leave white males on the game." Later Bogatin asked Niglio what she should do about Ungerer. Niglio told her to leave her there, "she won't be watching the game anyway." Bogatin then told Ungerer "Don't stand on top of the game."

Bogatin left the casino floor on her break when Libutti arrived. When she returned she divided duties with Richard Slack, another shift manager, because he was more experienced at craps than she was. She did not see Libutti play except to walk through once in order to see what he looked like. She told Slack about Libutti's preference for white males.

Bogatin acknowledged telling Respes that she was sorry for the incident and that she promised him it would never happen again.

She also recalls that Niglio told her, just prior to their Division interview, that he had no idea about Libutti's preferences. She claims this remark stunned her because of the conversation she had with Niglio on May 13, 1988, at about 5:20 p.m.

Jeffrey Johnson is a dual rate pit manager employed ten years by Caesars. He was a pit manager on April 30, 1988, on the 8:45 p.m. swing shift. He was assigned to pit two. He relieved Mario DeLuca, the day shift pit boss. DeLuca told him that Robert Libutti was playing on table eight and that Libutti requested that "pit managers not stand next to his game." He said this was not an unusual request. He also reported that Libutti's table was staffed with some women, one of whom was black. He said Libutti was not abusive.

Eric Reynolds has been employed as a training manager for Caesars for the past three years. He is experienced in the areas of training and development, affirmative action, employee relations and personnel. He developed the Upward Mobility Program at Caesars. He described the Upward Mobility Program, the Supervisory Training Program and the efforts of Caesars to recruit minority and female candidates for the programs. The Upward Mobility Program includes a unit on valuing diversity; i.e., emphasizing the salutory effect of a multi-cultural work force.

The Upward Mobility Program also deals with subjects such as "overcoming stereotypes," "getting into the club," "the glass ceiling," individual experiences of upward mobility and the "feelings" that accompany these experiences. He described Nicholas Niglio as a strong supporter of, and a vigorous participant in, the Upward Mobility Program.

In addition, Reynolds said that all new employees are given an orientation course which includes a segment on affirmative action, equal opportunity employment and sexual harassment.

John Groom is Senior Vice President of Casino Operations for Caesars Atlantic City. He has been employed by them for ten years. He recruited Nicholas Niglio away from Resorts. He wanted Niglio to improve staff professionalism and recruit qualified females and minorities to Caesars. He says Niglio has a reputation for expertise in these areas. He has been pleased with Niglio's performance in staff development and recruitment.

Groom recalled a meeting on May 16, 1988, at which time the transfer of Joel Respes was discussed. It was a high level meeting which included the president and chief operating officer of the casino, and others. They ordered an investigation. Groom also immediately advised the shift manager on duty that no personnel would, in the future, be moved on account of sex or race. He asked Niglio to so advise all shift managers and to have them instruct pit managers of the policy. He also made the decision to move a dealer for any reason, the shift manager's decision rather than a pit manager's decision.

Groom acknowledged on cross examination that during his employment interview of Lynden Stockton (whom Groom also recruited), that Stockton included Libutti in his following.

Groom recalled that on May 13, 1988, he learned sometime during the day that Libutti was coming to play in the casino. That evening Groom introduced himself to Libutti at table eight. Stockton asked Groom at that time if he had heard that Libutti didn't like blacks or women on the game. Groom said he had not heard that. He found it so unusual that he wanted to share it with someone. He saw Niglio on the floor and told him about Libutti's preference. He noticed that Niglio was in a hurry; he estimated the time was about 6:30 p.m.

Jack Miller is a casino shift manager at Caesars. He was so employed on May 13, 1988. He reserved a table for Libutti on that day; table eight , pit two. Miller said Ungerer told him that she had advised O'Kane that O'Kane would be moved when Libutti arrived. He recalls she said to him that "they won't have to worry about moving me because I won't be watching the game."

Dan Geiger operates a limousine service. He produced a log book of his company which indicated that a limo was ordered for Mark Juliano at Caesars for 5:30 p.m. on May 13, 1988. He recalled that Niglio was with Juliano on that date and accompanied Juliano to Philadelphia. He said the limo left at 5:30 p.m.

Nicholas Niglio has been employed by Caesars for two and a half years. He is the assistant casino manager. He was formerly the training supervisor at Resorts casino. He included affirmative action and equal opportunity training in his supervision. He instituted an upward mobility program at Resorts.

Niglio emphasized his commitment to affirmative action and gave numerous illustrations of his success in finding and promoting female and minority workers at Caesars. For instance, during his tenure at Caesars, he claims 11 women and four minority workers have been promoted to pit manager out of 18 total promotions. He claimed that he was notorious in Atlantic City casinos for recruiting away from other casinos qualified female and minority employees for Caesars.

On April 1, 1988, he was tipped off that Libutti was coming to Caesars to gamble. Libutti played in pit two where the pit boss was black. Libutti told a Caesars casino host that the table crew was very professional. Consequently, Niglio sent each one a commendation letter. The crew included an oriental male, an hispanic male and a white female. Niglio said that he never heard any of the rumors about Libutti's supposed preferences against black and female dealers, or pit bosses who "hawked" him, until after May 13, 1988.

On May 13, 1988, Niglio arrived at work at about 3:15 in the afternoon. He did office work until 4:00 p.m. when he attended a meeting in the executive suite. The meeting lasted until about 5:15 p.m. Niglio said he left the casino with Mark Juliano to attend a viewing in Philadelphia. On his way out through the casino, he spoke to several people. He has no recollection of speaking to Rachel Bogatin.

Niglio says that the limo ordered for that date departed for Philadelphia at 5:30 p.m. and returned at 10:00 or 10:30 p.m. On his return Niglio learned that Libutti lost $200,000 that evening.

The next day, according to Niglio, he learned for the first time about the transfer of black and female dealers. He emphasized that the order to transfer black and female employees did not come from him as Bogatin alleges. He said he never knew about Libutti's alleged preferences.

Niglio said that sometime after May 7, 1988, but before May 13, 1988, Niglio discussed Libutti with Stockton. Stockton described Libutti to Niglio as aggressive, imposing and intimidating. He says Stockton did not tell him about any preferences for white male dealers.

Niglio also claims that he could not have been told of Libutti's preferences for white male dealers by Groom as Groom alleges because he was in Philadelphia at the viewing at the time when Groom says he told him about the preference. Niglio says he learned from Coleman, who did the investigation for Caesars, about the conflict with Bogatin in their respective testimony.

Roland Coleman is Vice President for Human Resources at Caesars and has been so employed for approximately one year. He has been with Caesars since August of 1983, first as Director of Employee and Labor Relations, then as Executive Director of Administration, then as Vice President for Administration until his recent promotion.

On May 16, 1988, Joel Respes reported to him the transfer which occurred on May 13, 1988. Respes said that he had been discriminated against and humiliated by the transfer. Coleman told Respes that Caesars did not condone the transfer. Coleman reported the incident to counsel, to the senior Vice President for Governmental Affairs and to the Chief Executive Officer of the casino. A high level meeting convened and Coleman was requested to conduct an investigation. Coleman took statements from numerous persons. He was unable to conclude who was responsible for initiating the transfers on May 13, 1988, because Bogatin and Niglio gave conflicting versions of the events. He did not investigate the May 7, 1988 incident.

Coleman also described the reports filed with the Commission which illustrate the progress of licensees in complying with N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5e. The regulation sets employment goals for minority and female workers in the casino hotel industry.

Coleman discussed in great detail the percentages of minority and female representation in various casino department job categories and Caesars ranking with respect to other casinos. For instance, he testified how the industry average for certain casino positions compared with Caesars and Caesars' rank among casinos. His testimony can be illustrated by the following table:

Alfred J. Cade, Senior Vice President for Governmental Relations, has been employed by Caesars for ten years. He discussed Caesars commitment to equal opportunity employment and affirmative action. He traced the history of its efforts since 1979. He also discussed Caesars' role with the Casino Redevelopment Investment Authority and Caesars' direct investment project, the Regency.

FACTUAL AND LEGAL DISCUSSION

I. Ungerer freely admits that on May 13, 1988, she reassigned employees solely on the basis of their sex or race. Her rationale for making the move was to avoid a possible confrontation with Libutti. She says she was told this by Rachel Bogatin.

Bogatin acknowledges that she told Ungerer to move the employees on May 13, 1988, on the advice of Niglio. Niglio denies that he told Bogatin to make the move. Niglio says he left for Philadelphia at 5:30 p.m. promptly that evening and has no recollection of talking to her about it. He recalled that he and Bogatin were in a meeting together from 4:00 p.m. to about 5:00 p.m., when Bogatin left. Niglio says he left the meeting at 5:15 p.m. and left for Philadelphia by 5:30 p.m. after passing through the casino. He recalled two or three conversations with others on his way out of the casino but recalled none with Bogatin. The log book and the testimony of Geiger appear to back up Niglio's alibi. But John Groom recalls telling Niglio about Libutti's supposed preferences at approximately 6:30 p.m. on May 13, 1988, when Niglio says he was in Philadelphia.

A curious inconsistency appears in Niglio's reliance upon the log book showing that he departed the casino at 5:30 p.m. on May 13, 1988. Niglio says he returned in the limo from the viewing to Caesars at about 10:00 or 10:30 p.m. that same night. But the log book indicates that the limo was only gone for two and a half hours. If so, Niglio would have returned to the casino at 8:00 p.m. if he left at 5:30 p.m. But if Niglio is correct that he returned at 10:00 or 10:30, then the limo must have left closer to 7:30 p.m., giving Niglio time to speak both to Bogatin and Groom just as they recall the events.

Another instance which supports Bogatin's version of an event as against others, concerns the May 7th transfer. On May 7, 1988, Maryanne Egeli and Catheryn Daidone were transferred by their pit boss Joseph Bochen. Joseph Bochen said shift manager Rachel Bogatin told him to make the transfer. Rachel Bogatin denies she told Joe Bochen to do this. But Maryanne Egeli testified that shift manager Richard Slack was the one who told her she would be moved. This supports Bogatin's version of that event and her credibility generally.

Other testimony which casts doubt on Niglio's version of an event includes DeLuca's statement that as early as April 30, 1988, Niglio told him not to "crowd" a game played by Libutti in DeLuca's pit. But Niglio has insisted he did not know any of Libutti's supposed preferences until after May 13, 1988.

I believe that Niglio told Bogatin that she should transfer the black and female dealers. I believe that he did it in order to humor Libutti, a high roller.

Groom's description of Niglio and the reasons he recruited him away from Resorts, together with Niglio's own aggressive demeanor and obvious allegiance to the company strongly suggest that Niglio strives as hard as he can for a successful career at Caesars. He is interested in profits and will accommodate preferred customers to the best of his ability. In this case, I do not think he considered the rights or feelings of the transferred employees. Niglio was interested in one thing and in one thing only; how to attract and keep Libutti coming back to Caesars. Nevertheless, he intentionally transferred the employees and that transfer was an act of discrimination. Furthermore, no one disputes that the conduct was an act of discrimination. Joel Respes, Deborah O'Kane and Pamela Jiacopello were told to stand aside for a white man. They might just as well have been directed to the back of the bus or to separate drinking fountains.

Nicholas Niglio is not a mere employee of Caesars, a peer of Respes, et al., he is a casino executive with access to the very top level of management. By regulation, he is invested with the authority to operate table games according to policies adopted by the casino's board of directors. N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.12 (a) 7, and 8. His acts bind the casino. This is a strictly regulated industry. N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6) and (13) state:

> further such public confidence and trust, the regulatory provisions of this act are designed to extend strict State regulation to all persons, locations, practices and associations related to the operation of licensed casino enterprises and all related service industries as herein provided.
>
> In addition, N.J.S.A. 5:12-130g provides:
> It shall be no defense to disciplinary action before the commission that an applicant, licensee, registrant, intermediary company, or holding company inadvertently, unintentionally, or unknowingly violated a provision of this act. Such factors shall only go to the degree of the penalty to be imposed by the commission, and not to a finding of a violation itself.

This language was cited and approved by the Appellate Division in Dept. of Law v. Boardwalk Regency, 277 N.J. Super. 549, 555 and 556 (1988). In that case, the court strictly construed the provisions of the Casino Control Act which regulated gambling by underage persons. In the instant case, the provisions of the Casino Control Act alleged to be violated, N.J.S.A. 5:12-134(b) is to be construed "consonant" with the N.J.L.A.D. N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq. That statute elevates the opportunity to obtain employment to a "civil right." N.J.S.A. 10:5-4. It makes it unlawful for an employer to discriminate in "terms, conditions or privileges of employment." N.J.S.A. 10:5-12.

To insure that these objectives are accomplished, the Casino Control Act gave the Commission extensive power. In section 135 of the Act, it granted the Commission the authority "to impose such sanctions as may be necessary to accomplish the objective of section 134." One of the objectives of section 134 is to require casinos to "abide by" the affirmative-action program of equal opportunity it submits as a requirement of casino licensure. N.J.S.A. 5:12-134C. This is further required by N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a), which extends the guarantees of nondiscrimination throughout the entire course of employment.

II. It is obvious that pit bosses and shift managers were aware that Libutti did not like anyone "hawking" his game as early as April 30, 1988. DeLuca, a pit boss, reports that he was told this by Niglio on April 30, 1988. Johnson, a pit boss who relieved DeLuca, said that DeLuca told him not to stand next to Libutti's table. DeLuca and Ungerer both recalled that shift manager Richard Slack knew on April 30, 1988 that Libutti did not want to be closely watched while he played. Apparently some high rollers do not appreciate a crowd when they gamble and some do not appreciate a representative of management standing by the craps table or blackjack game, wringing their hands in dismay whenever the player is ahead.

Caesars has adopted a policy which prohibits its employees from exhibiting such behavior. Caesars has told its employees that there is no need for such behavior since the casino has adequate funds to pay off winners. It is a reasonable policy.

In this case, the Division alleges that Caesars and Rachel Bogatin, in their effort to humor Libutti, prohibited a pit boss from performing her duty to supervise a craps game by ordering her not to "watch" Libutti's play contrary to N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.2(a)(6). The regulation cited makes the pit boss the third level supervisor of the craps table in her pit.

The pit boss admits that she literally did not watch Libutti's play. She was, however, too unsure of what Bogatin actually told her to render either Bogatin or Caesars liable for an infraction of this regulation. Bogatin says she told Ungerer not to "stand on top of the game." Bogatin was a credible witness, Ungerer was not. Bogatin's instruction was not a direction to Ungerer to violate her duty as a pit boss and leave the craps table unsupervised. It was a reminder of Caesars' policy not to crowd the game; it was a legitimate deference to a high rollers preference for a little anonymity; it was an instruction to use tact and discretion.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

I FIND that Nicholas Niglio intentionally discriminated against Joel Respes, Pamela Jiacopello and Deborah O'Kane on May 13, 1988, by reassigning them and replacing them with white male gaming employees so as to provide one Robert Libutti, a patron, with an all white male gaming staff.

I FIND that Rachel Bogatin intentionally discriminated against Joel Respes, Pamela Jiacopello and Deborah O'Kane on May 13, 1988, by reassigning them and replacing them with white male gaming employees so as to provide Robert Libutti, a patron, with an all white male gaming staff.

I FIND that the Division has failed to prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Rachel Bogatin intentionally discriminated against Maryanne Egeli and/or Catherine Daidone on May 7, 1988.

I FIND that the Division has failed to prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Caesars and/or Rachel Bogatin instructed Carol Ungerer not to supervise the play of Robert Libutti on May 13, 1988.

I CONCLUDE that respondent Caesars is liable for the actions of Niglio and Bogatin on May 13, 1988.

I CONCLUDE that Caesars violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-134b and N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a)2 on May 13, 1988.

PENALTY CONSIDERATION

In this case, the Division seeks the penalty of closure, and demands that Caesars pay full salary to its employees during the period of closure. At first blush, such a penalty seems reasonable.

Everyone knows that racism and sexism exist in the hearts and minds of many people. Racist and sexist jokes still travel well in our society. Racism and sexism are contemptible everywhere: when they are taught at home by word or deed, when they appear in social contacts, when they manifest themselves in the work place. When they appear in the guise of policy in a State regulated industry they must be openly and publicly excoriated.

In this case however, Caesars has not adopted a policy which is either racist or sexist in its application to employees. In fact, it has adopted sound policies of affirmative action and equal employment opportunities. These are required by the Casino Control Commission. Caesars honestly attempts to implement them. Caesars appears to be doing as well as, or better than other casinos in attracting and promoting minorities and women.

Many of the Caesars executives who appeared to testify in this case were black, albeit male. Any cynics who might assert that the appearance of these witnesses was based on their skin color and not the relevance of their testimony must keep in mind that their appearance is the best evidence that Caesars is committed to equal employment opportunity. Additionally, recent statistical evidence indicates that women are achieving middle level promotions at a high rate. In the table games department, in which these incidents occurred, it is doing better than average. In fact, Nicholas Niglio, the person responsible for ordering the transfers of black and female dealers, is an important person in the selection and training of female and minority persons for promotion in the table games department.

The action taken here was intended primarily to gratify and seduce a very big customer of the casino. Caesars wanted this customer to return again and again. He was a very high roller. There are various legal ways that a casino can reward high rollers. Complimentary services and items is the traditional way in the casino industry and is approved by the Commissions' regulatory scheme. N.J.S.A. 5:12-14a and N.J.S.A. 19:45-1.9. Unfailing courtesy and attention is another way, but may not be reciprocated by some classes of bettors according to the testimony in this case. Apparently the rudeness of losing bettors is routine in the industry. It must be stressful to casino employees.

Pandering however, as occurred in this case, must always be discouraged. This transfer of black and female dealers was insensitive, bizarre and traumatic. Respes articulated his injury best when he said that he felt as though he had encountered a sign that read: "For Whites Only."

Egeli's response was also classic; "You learn not to say too much ... So I would like to keep my job ... So I didn't say anything." One learns to endure.

Caesars, as well as other casinos, must never lose sight of the fact that a significant factor in their creation is their contribution to the general welfare, health and prosperity of the State and its inhabitants. N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(1). The provision of dignified employment opportunities to area residents is a large part of the bargain.

A penalty must be exacted. In considering an appropriate sanction, seven factors must be considered pursuant to the Act. N.J.S.A. 5:12-130.

The conduct complained of created a risk to the public and to the integrity of gaming operations because it demoralized employees, disregarded law and regulation and exalted profits over common decency. If these actions became the standard by which all casinos operated, they would all be no better than disorderly houses.

The conduct complained of was a serious violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-134c. Caesars did not abide by its guarantee of equal employment opportunity to all.

There was no justification for the conduct. In Caesars favor, no theory of justification or excuse was advanced, even though the testimony of some witnesses gave Caesars an opportunity to do so. Their defense of this case was handled in a sensitive and intelligent manner.

There is no indication that this action by Caesars was other than a singular and extraordinary action. Based upon the employment record of Caesars, it could not have been predicted. It surprised Caesars own management personnel. It never happened before, it has not happened since. It is best described as aberrant.

The corrective action taken by Caesars was not adequate. John Groom, Senior Vice President of Casino Operations, orally advised the shift manager, as soon as he heard about the incident, that no personnel would, in the future, be moved on account of sex or race. Groom also asked Niglio to so advise all shift managers and to have them instruct pit managers of the policy. Groom also made the decision to move a dealer for any reason a shift manager's decision rather than a pit manager's decision. He ordered an investigation. These actions were well taken. But they did not go far enough.

Throughout the hearing the Division elicited responses from witnesses that Caesars did not teach employees how to defend themselves from abusive patrons. The Division properly identified this failure as a problem which contributed to this incident. Caesars therefore, ought to study, adopt, promulgate and teach guidelines to all its employees which will assist the employee in handling the rude, unruly, obnoxious, demanding, drunken, racist or otherwise bigoted player. If a player is not satisfied with a polite, competent and honest dealer, the player should be moved, not the dealer. Casino's exist to provide decent employment to decent people as well as to provide a source of revenue to the State and to the shareholders.

There was no evidence adduced that Caesars could not afford a monetary penalty. All of the evidence suggested that Caesars was financially sound and an industry leader.

This violation was intentional, albeit uncharacteristic of the respondent. Therefore, the provisions of this section are inapplicable which provide that guilty knowledge is not required in order to find a violation.

An appropriate penalty is the payment of a fine by Caesars of $15,600., the amount of money lost by Libutti. In addition, Caesars shall include in its orientation program for all new employees, a segment dealing with methods to identify and control the abusive patron. This segment shall be presented to all Caesars' employees regardless of their longevity with the company. Prior to presentation to employees, it shall be approved by the Commission.

ORDER AND DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that respondent Caesars shall pay a fine in the amount of $15,600. to the Commission upon receipt of an invoice for the same, and,

It is FURTHER ORDERED that Caesars prepare a teaching segment for all present employees which is to be incorporated into the orientation course for all new employees that deals with methods to identify and control abusive patrons after approval of the said plan by the Commission. The teaching segment shall be submitted to the Commission for approval within six months of the final decision in this matter.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

GARY P. BRENNER, SR.,

STATE OF NEW JERSEY,
DEPARTMENT OF LAW AND PUBLIC SAFETY,
DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT,
Respondent.

Gary P. Brenner, Sr., petitioner, pro se

Norma L. Stancil, Deputy Attorney General, on behalf of respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: February 16, 1990 Decided: March 13, 1990

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of petitioner's application for a casino employee license. Respondent filed an objection with the Casino Control Commission pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A hearing was conducted on February 9, 1990 and the record closed on February 16, 1990.

The questions presented are whether certain conduct by petitioner, would, if it had been prosecuted, constitute theft by deception in the third degree, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4; a statutory disqualifier, N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and if so whether petitioner can establish rehabilitation and that he is a person of good character, N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 5:12-90h.

The facts are substantially undisputed. The State Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance has obtained a judgment against petitioner in the amount of $2,486.25, for the receipt of unemployment benefits to which he was not entitled. On January 7, 1985, petitioner's employment with Viking Yachts, Inc. ended. On January 13, 1985, he applied for unemployment benefits which were denied. Petitioner appealed, and on March 19, 1985 his disqualification was reversed and he began to receive unemployment benefits of $153 per week retroactive to his January entitlement. In early February 1985, petitioner began employment with Price Atlantic City Enterprises, Inc., which continued until April 26, 1985. While his appeal was pending, petitioner was required to report bi-weekly to unemployment to claim the weeks which were the subject of his appeal, and on each such visit he certified that he was not then employed. Petitioner did not report his employment at Price Atlantic City Enterprises and continued to claim benefits for the entire period of his employment there. Petitioner acknowledged that he intentionally withheld this information and knew it was wrong. The judgment against petitioner was entered on September 26, 1986; as of the week prior to hearing, he had paid $647.52 of the amount due.

Petitioner was arrested on May 12, 1978, by Galloway Township Police and was charged with possession of marijuana under 25 grams, N.J.S.A. 24:21-20(a)(4), comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10(a)(4) and growing marijuana in his home, N.J.S.A. 2A:170-25.1. He pled guilty to both charges and was fined $120 and ordered to pay court costs.

Petitioner was arrested on June 11, 1981 by New Jersey State Police and charged with possession of methamphetamine and marijuana under 25 grams, N.J.S.A. 24:21-20 comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10. Petitioner was indicted and found guilty of the charge of possession of methamphetamine, and he received a one-year term of probation and fine.

Petitioner was arrested on June 18, 1985, by the Egg Harbor Township Police and charged with possession of a stolen motorcycle, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-7. The charge was administratively dismissed, and petitioner testified that he purchased the motorcycle at a flea market for $1,200 and had a receipt for it.

Petitioner was arrested on June 6, 1987, by New Jersey State Police and charged with receiving a stolen three-wheel vehicle. N.J.S.A. 2C:20-7. Petitioner was found not guilty of this offense. While he disclosed each of his prior arrests on his Personal History Disclosure Form (PHDF), petitioner failed to disclose this incident. He explained during his interview with investigators that he purchased the vehicle from a co-worker, had not known that it was stolen, and simply forgot about it when he filed his PHDF.

Petitioner is 32 years old, married, and has 4 children, ages 13, 5, 3, and 2. He is a carpenter by trade and has been so employed at the Showboat Hotel and Casino for three years. Petitioner is now a registrant and a casino employee license would permit him to work on the casino floor. He has had no disciplinary problems at work.

Petitioner also submitted four character letters from supervisors at the Showboat and from his union representative. This is the substance of the record.

Petitioner acknowledged his deception with respect to the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance and respondent has thus established a statutory disqualification. The rehabilitation factors tend, however, to fall in his favor. Petitioner is a person with significant family responsibilities, he has no disciplinary record with his casino employer, and his supervisors think well of him. His drug offenses occurred many years ago when he was relatively young. Thus, while petitioner's false certifications to unemployment are not easily overcome, he is repaying this debt, albeit slowly, and on balance appears to be well directed. Petitioner was a credible witness and I accept as a fact that he simply forgot to disclose the last of his four arrests.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that petitioner has established his rehabilitation and that he is a person of good character. It is ORDERED that petitioner be awarded a casino employee license.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Respondent.

Don Shur, Esq., for petitioner

Record Closed: October 30, 1989 Decided: December 14, 1989

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter concerns the application of Jeffrey S. Brown (petitioner) for renewal of his casino employee license. By letter report to the Casino Control Commission dated August 18, 1988, the Division of Gaming Enforcement objected to renewal of the petitioner's license, based upon the allegation that the petitioner has been arrested on three occasions since his initial licensure. This is the issue:

> Has the petitioner established by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner's request for a hearing on his renewal application was received by the Casino Control Commission on January 23, 1989. On January 30, 1989, the matter was transmitted by the Commission to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A telephone prehearing conference was held on April 25, 1989.

The hearing was originally scheduled to be held on September 21, 1989. However, it was adjourned from that date at the request of the petitioner, because he sought the opportunity to obtain counsel. The matter was then rescheduled for and heard on October 30, 1989. The record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The material facts are essentially undisputed. The petitioner is a is 32-year-old resident of Mays Landing, New Jersey. He was issued casino employee license no. 44013-21 by the Casino Control Commission in March 1983. In July 1983, the petitioner was hired by Resorts International Hotel and Casino as a craps dealer. He held this position until he was placed on indefinite suspension status on November 18, 1986 (Exhibit R-6), as a result of his arrest on November 13, 1986.

The petitioner was first arrested on August 15, 1986, following a motor vehicle stop by the New Jersey State Police on the Atlantic City Expressway. The petitioner was found to have methamphetamine and marijuana in his possession. He was indicted for possession of a controlled dangerous substance, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(1), on November 20, 1986 (Exhibit R-1).

Just prior to issuance of this indictment, the petitioner was arrested on November 13, 1986 (Exhibit R-7) and charged with several drug and weapons offenses. The petitioner was interviewed by the Resorts International Inspector General's Office on November 18, 1986, and was suspended by the assistant casino manager pending court disposition of the charges (Exhibit R-6). On December 2, 1986, the petitioner was indicted for possession of a controlled dangerous substance and possession with intent to distribute, possession of handgun without a permit, unlawful acquisition of a firearm, and possession of a weapon (Exhibit R-3).

The petitioner's arrest occurred at about 6:00 on the morning of November 13, 1986. According to the Atlantic City Police Department Investigation Report (Exhibit R-7), the police were called to the arrest scene in response to a citizen's complaint that two disorderly males were in a vehicle continuously blowing the car horn. When the police arrived, they found one Paul Alston in the passenger seat of the vehicle. An open can of beer was on the floor of the passenger side of the vehicle, together with hand-rolled cigarettes and a rolled plastic baggy containing a white powder. Mr. Alston was placed under arrest. A further check of the vehicle revealed a .38 caliber Derringer two shot pistol, which was not loaded.

The police were admitted to the nearby apartment complex and they there located and arrested the petitioner. When he was searched, it was discovered that he had a large folding knife in his possession, as well as two plastic baggies of marijuana and a container of Valium tablets. The petitioner told the arresting officers that he had purchased the weapon for $20.00 from a man who lost a lot of money gambling.

Testifying on his own behalf, the petitioner stated that he had purchased the gun in a tavern around 4:00 that morning from a man he had never seen before. According to the petitioner, the man said that he had lost his money gambling and he was also selling his jewelry. The petitioner testified that the man offered to sell him a gold chain, but it was purchased by someone else. It was the sincere and believable testimony of the petitioner that he did not tell the police officers or the Resorts International investigator that the seller of the gun had been a Resorts patron. He never saw the seller before meeting him in the tavern and he also testified believably that the statement in the Resorts interview report that he had purchased a gold chain was not correct.

While the two indictments against the petitioner were pending, he was arrested for a third time. On January 31, 1987, the petitioner was arrested in Hamilton Township, Atlantic County, and charged with possession of marijuana less than 25 grams, in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a4 (Exhibit R-5). On February 5, 1987, the petitioner entered a plea of guilty in Municipal Court and received a conditional discharge. A term of the conditional discharge was a period of unsupervised probation for six months.

On January 12, 1987, the petitioner had entered a plea of not guilty to the pending indictments. However, he retracted the plea of not guilty on March 5, 1987 and entered a plea of guilty to the one count indictment charging him with possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine). He also entered a guilty plea to counts two and four of the seven count indictment (Exhibit R-3) charging him with various weapons and drug offenses. Specifically, the petitioner pled guilty to possession of a handgun without a permit, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:39-5(b) and possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana over 25 grams), contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(4). The remaining counts were dismissed.

On March 27, 1987, the petitioner was sentenced to the Atlantic County Jail for 90 days and probation for one year on the single count indictment for unlawful possession of methamphetamine (Exhibit R-2). He was also ordered to pay $30.00 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board and to have quarterly drug reports. On count two of the second indictment, possession of a handgun without a permit, the petitioner was also sentenced to the Atlantic County Jail for 90 days and probation for one year. This sentence was to run concurrently with the sentence on the earlier indictment. On count four of the second indictment, possession of marijuana over 25 grams, the petitioner received the same sentence as he received for count two, and this sentence was also to run concurrently. A sentencing requirement for each count was that the petitioner seek and maintain employment (Exhibit R-4).

In July 1987, the petitioner was hired as a craps dealer by the Claridge Casino. He has continued to work there ever since. According to the petitioner, he has not received any disciplinary action from his supervisors at the Claridge. The petitioner also testified that he has had no arrests since January 1987, and he had no problems with the law prior to his first arrest in August 1986.

The petitioner candidly admitted that he had possessed narcotics and had purchased a weapon from an unknown party in a tavern. He had not been working at the casino that night and he was sober when he made the purchase. According to the petitioner, he put the weapon under the passenger seat of the vehicle which he was driving. It was not loaded. It was his intention to take the weapon home and register it legally if he could. He characterized the purchase of the weapon as a "stupid move." The petitioner cooperated with the police and ultimately served his jail time and complied with the terms of probation.

When asked to explain how it was that he became involved in illegal activity, the petitioner stated that he had just been divorced at the time of his arrests and he was having visitation problems in regard to his two daughters. In addition, his parents also were involved in divorce proceedings at that time.

The petitioner testified believably that the serious problems involving his family had an adverse affect on him. However, he emphasized that he never sold narcotics. He now believes that he has changed completely. He is happily remarried and has no interest in drugs. According to the petitioner, he is happy with his life as a father and a husband and he would like to continue working in the casino industry.

Robert Ruberton also testified at the hearing. He is the petitioner's cousin and has been his friend for 30 years. Mr. Ruberton supervises a computer system for First Fidelity Bank. It is his opinion that the petitioner is an honest and trustworthy man of conscious. He noted that the petitioner has bounced back from the stress of his earlier family problems.

John Mavromatis also testified on behalf of the petitioner. He stated that he knows the petitioner to be a good person deep down. He described the petitioner's honesty as "impeccable." According to Mr. Mavromatis, he would trust the petitioner with his son's life.

All of the preceding is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to section 80a of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), it is the affirmative responsibility of each applicant and licensee to establish by clear and convincing evidence his individual qualifications. It is the intention of the act to preclude the creation of any property right in any license permitted under the act, and to require that participation in gaming be solely conditioned upon the individual qualifications of the person seeking such a privilege. Pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the act, an applicant for a casino employee license must demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity.

The Division of Gaming Enforcement contends that the petitioner has failed to meet his burden of establishing his good character, honesty and integrity.

Specifically, the Division notes that the petitioner had three arrests while he held a casino employee license and worked in the industry.

The petitioner acknowledges his three arrests, the first of which occurred on August 15, 1986, and the last of which occurred on January 31, 1987. He candidly admits that these arrests resulted from stupid conduct on his part. The ill-advised conduct occurred while he was experiencing a great deal of family-related stress. In essence, the petitioner contends that he is an honest man who briefly engaged in aberrant behavior three years ago.

I agree with the petitioner. It is particularly significant that he has worked satisfactorily and without incident as a craps dealer at the Claridge Casino since July 1987. There is no doubt that the petitioner's conduct several years ago impacts negatively on his qualifications for licensure. The Division's objection to his renewal application amply illustrates the negative impact. Nevertheless, I am convinced that the petitioner has overcome his earlier difficulties and that he has established by clear and convincing evidence that he presently possesses the good character, honesty and integrity for licensure as a casino employee, within the meaning of sections 89b(2) and 90b of the act. I so CONCLUDE.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the application of Jeffrey S. Brown for renewal of licensure as a casino employee permitting him to work in a licensed casino as a craps dealer be GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Evelyn K. Cahall, petitioner, pro se

Ralph Fusco, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: January 9, 1990 Decided: January 24, 1990

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

Evelyn K. Cahall, holder of a casino hotel registration, seeks a casino employee license. By letter of April 24, 1989, the Division of Gaming Enforcement ("Division") filed a letter of objection with the Casino Control Commission ("Commission") objecting to the issuance of the license. Ms. Cahall requested a hearing and the matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law on April 28, 1989, as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held before Honorable Lillard E. Law, ALJ, on September 5, 1989. Judge Law issued a prehearing order on September 19, 1989. The case came on for hearing before Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin at the Office of Administrative Law in Atlantic City on January 9, 1990. The record closed following the hearing.

ISSUES

The prehearing order established the issues for consideration at the hearing as:

A. Whether petitioner was convicted in a foreign state of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c to wit: Promoting gambling, analogous to N.J.S.A. 2C:37-2 or; providing a premises for gambling, analogous to N.J.S.A. 2C:37-4?

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2)?

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act?

EVIDENCE

Ms. Cahall does not dispute that she was convicted in the State of Delaware in 1981 upon her plea of guilty to a charge that she had committed the offense of advancing gambling in the second degree, 11 Del. Code Annotated 1401. This offense makes it a class A misdemeanor for a person to advance gambling by:

(3) . . . is concerned in interest in lottery policy writing, or in selling or disposing of any lottery policy, . . .

In addition, Ms. Cahall does not dispute that she was also convicted of providing premises for gambling, an offense involving the knowing permission of the use of a house by one in possession or control for the purpose of committing any gambling offense. As a result of her conviction on these offenses, Ms. Cahall, then known as Evelyn K. Papaleo, was sentenced to two years unsupervised probation beginning June 10, 1981, on her plea to Indictment I-N-80-06-0889 and, on her plea to I-N-80-05-1173 to a term of imprisonment of 30 days, which was suspended, and one year probation beginning at the termination of the two-year probationary period set for the plea on the other indictment. This probation was also unsupervised.

Ms. Cahall remained on probation until an order discharging her from the unsupervised probation was signed on August 20, 1987. She explained that because she had no money to pay the $1,600 fine that was also imposed upon her on her plea to the offenses she remained on probation until the full amount of the fine was paid.

According to the petitioner, she moved to Mays Landing approximately seven years ago. Although she is now unemployed, she previously was employed until December 1, 1989, at Paoli's Tavern in Cologne where she worked as a bartender and waitress for about ten and one-half months. Prior to that she worked for two months at TropWorld as a cocktail server and before that at the Diamond Lounge in Mays Landing for four and one-half years.

Ms. Cahall explained that at the time of her arrest in 1980 she was writing numbers for a lottery which was being conducted in the State of Delaware. Her then husband, who was a nightclub owner and gambler, had asked her to become involved to help out a "friend." She worked in this operation from approximately September or October 1979 until her arrest in March or April 1980. She would take phone calls from bookies who would be laying off bets with the person for whom she worked - a Mr. Cappadono (phonetic). The bets might total $100 or $150 a day, sometimes more. She would be paid approximately $125 a week for her work, although this figure varied depending on the number of days she worked. She wrote down the bets which were called into her on regular paper and did not use flash paper. She would receive a phone call from someone who would then take the numbers which had been called in by the various bookies from her. The sheets upon which she recorded the bets were never picked up and she would retain them for a short time and then dispose of them. She was arrested following a wire tap on her home. At the time the police came to her house to search it, she was in Las Vegas and her 18-year-old son was the only one present. Her husband was charged with providing a house for gambling, but this charge was dropped. He refused to help her pay her fine and she received no assistance in this from the bookie for whom she was working. This left her to pay the debt herself.

Ms. Cahall is 50 years old and has no dependents. She is currently unmarried. She has never been convicted of any other offense.

The petitioner brought no character witnesses with her nor did she present any character references. When queried concerning this, she explained that while she could have obtained many such references, she felt that she could speak for herself and did not think the character witnesses or references would really be helpful.

The petitioner lives in Mays Landing where she owns her home. She explained that she has not been involved in community activities and that most of her free time is spent working on the house, which she described as a hobby of sorts.

The state presented no other evidence other than Ms. Cahall's testimony, the record of the conviction and the Personal History Disclosure Form.

THE FACTS

The facts in this case are quite simple. In 1979 and 1980, Ms. Cahall became involved in a gambling operation, taking telephone calls during which bookies laid off bets with her employer. It is unclear exactly how large of an operation was involved, although she acknowledged that the dollar amount of bets over the course of a week would likely be in excess of $500.

Since her arrest, Ms. Cahall has successfully completed her unsupervised probation which was extended only because of her financial situation. She has moved to New Jersey, been employed fairly steadily, purchased property with her new husband (from whom she is now divorced), and kept out of trouble.

Initially, it is clear that Ms. Cahall's conduct in Delaware in 1979-80 constituted a violation of the offenses to which she pled guilty and that these offenses are essentially analogous to New Jersey statutes prohibiting the promotion of gambling and maintenance or provision of a premises for gambling. Promoting gambling under N.J.S.A. 2C:37-2 is defined as, among other conduct, engaging in "conduct, which materially aids any form of gambling activity. Such conduct includes, but is not limited to, conduct directed toward . . . the actual conduct of the playing phases, toward the arrangement of any of its financial or recording phases, or toward any other phase of its operation." Pursuant to the statute, a person engaging in bookmaking to the extent of accepting bets in a lottery or policy scheme involving more than $100 in any one day of money played is guilty of a crime in the third degree.

Maintenance of a gambling resort is defined by N.J.S.A. 2C:37-4 as including allowing premises over which one has substantial proprietary or other authoritative control to be used for purposes of gambling activity. Here, Ms. Cahall not only permitted her house to be used for receipt of numbers bets, but was paid for her participation in the enterprise.

In view of the convictions, I CONCLUDE that Ms. Cahall's conduct constitutes a disqualifying offense pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c1 and she is therefore disqualified from licensure as a casino employee, unless she can establish rehabilitation in accordance with the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

Ms. Cahall's testimony concerning her life since her arrest and conviction in 1980-81 shows that she has led a rather unremarkable existence since that time. She has moved to New Jersey, been married and subsequently divorced, has worked both in private capacities as well as for a short stint in a casino hotel, has bought and worked on maintaining and improving property. There is absolutely nothing about her conduct since 1981 to indicate that she has acted in violation of law or has done anything to create any mark against her. At the same time, it is fair to say that there is nothing about her existence which indicates that she has gone out of her way to participate in community affairs or to in any way do anything especially affirmative to counterbalance the apparently aberrational conduct in which she engaged in 1979 and 1980.

With respect to that conduct, it appears that Ms. Cahall may have acted under the influence of her then husband, an individual who she describes as having been a gambler. Given the fact that she was never in trouble before or since, it is fair to characterize the actions in which she engaged as aberrational. In addition, her role in the operation appears to have been minimal in that there is no evidence that she was involved in the creation of the scheme or the financing of it, but was merely a information taker playing a vital, but not especially creative, role in the enterprise.

The only real flaw in Ms. Cahall's presentation which may give some pause as to whether she has demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence that she now has the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure and that she has rehabilitated herself from the negative effects of this nearly 10-year-old criminal episode is her failure to produce character witnesses on her behalf. The subject of character evidence is, of course, a difficult one. In and of themselves, character references, be they in the form of live testimony or written statements, are often of little significance in a determination as to whether an individual is really an appropriate candidate for licensure. Often individuals who speak to the good character of a person know that person only in a specific context which may not be one which really reveals the true characteristics of the individual. On the other hand, there is no question but that some character references are of extreme significance and are in and of themselves quite persuasive as to the character of the person testified about. Here, the absence of any character support does have a negative impact on the full picture of rehabilitation and good character which Ms. Cahall seeks to present. At the same time, I believe it is fair to say that an individual who has for nearly ten years been in no trouble with the police and who has maintained herself in employment, homeownership, etc., for that period of time may well feel that they must stand or fall on their own and that placing requests with individuals to write or come to court to testify on their behalf is both an imposition and in some degree a slight on their own ability to stand up, speak for and represent themselves. Since Ms. Cahall was not represented in this case I do not know what advice she may have sought or received as to the possible significance of character evidence, although there is a strong likelihood that at the prehearing conference, which was conducted before another judge, she may have been advised that she could produce such evidence if she chose. Her own testimony on the subject seems to indicate that she did not feel it necessary.

Taking into account the limitations imposed by the failure of the petitioner to produce character evidence, I am nevertheless persuaded that the 1979-80 conduct should not stand in the way of her licensure as a casino employee with a position designation as a alcoholic beverage employee. There is no evidence whatsoever that Ms. Cahall has ever been anything other than a respectable citizen, except for a short period of time ten years ago. The nature of the offense which she engaged in was quite limited. Her own testimony as to her recent and current activities was in and of itself sufficient to impress this judge as to her sincerity, honesty and basic integrity. Under these circumstances, I CONCLUDE that she has established by clear and convincing evidence both that she has rehabilitated herself from her unfortunate aberrational conduct and that she has the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure. Therefore, it is ORDERED that Ms. Cahall be granted a casino employee license.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Gabriel Carrero, the respondent, pro se

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the revocation of Gabriel Carrero's casino hotel employee registration no. 88585-40, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91 and N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1). The Division sought revocation of the respondent's registration by reason of its contention that the respondent had been convicted of a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), and therefore, he is disqualified from registration, pursuant to section 91b. The respondent contended that he was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 91d.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The respondent had obtained a casino hotel employee registration from the Commission so he could be employed as a busboy, and now host, at TropWorld Casino and Entertainment Resort. By complaint to the Commission, filed June 5, 1989, the Division objected to the respondent's continued registration, asserting that the respondent had been convicted of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) with the intent to distribute, in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19, which is the predecessor statute to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1). Based upon the complaint, the Commission notified the respondent on June 7, 1989, that he had the right to a hearing, and that failure to respond within 15 days could result in his registration being revoked. By application dated June 14, 1989, which was received by the Commission on June 16, 1989, the respondent requested a hearing. On June 19, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on June 26, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before Administrative Law Judge Lillard E. Law on September 28, 1989. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether respondent was convicted of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, to wit: N.J.S.A. 24:21-19, possession of a controlled dangerous substance with the intent to distribute which is analogous to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5.

B. Whether respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to Section 91d of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was held on January 23, 1990, in the Pleasantville Police Building, Pleasantville, New Jersey, after which the record was closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

On March 2, 1985, the respondent along with a friend traveled from New York to visit a friend named Arturo in Galloway Township, New Jersey. The respondent was involved in using the controlled dangerous substance cocaine at Arturo's apartment, and he had known that the cocaine would be there. While the respondent was at the apartment, the police arrived, entered the apartment, located and seized the cocaine, and arrested the respondent.

On March 14, 1985, the respondent was indicted in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division (Criminal) by the Atlantic County Grand Jury in Indictment No. 85-03-0441-Inv (C). In this indictment the respondent was charged with two counts of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a and two counts of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) with the intent to distribute in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19. The difference between counts one and two and counts three and four is the alleged amount possessed. [P-3]

On April 29, 1985, the respondent entered a plea of guilty to one count of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) with the intent to distribute in a quantity of one ounce or more that included in excess of 3.5 grams of the pure free base, in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1) and N.J.S.A. 24:21-19b(2). The remaining counts of the indictment were dismissed. On May 24, 1985, the respondent was sentenced to be incarcerated for six years (with nine days credit for time served), was ordered to pay a $25 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty, and was ordered to forfeit $3,020 which had been seized in the apartment. In giving his reasons for imposing a custodial sentence, the judge cited four aggravating factors and two mitigating factors. The aggravating factors cited by the judge were the risk that the respondent would commit another crime, the substantial likelihood that the respondent was involved in organized criminal activity, the respondent's prior record and the seriousness of the crime, and the need for deterring the respondent and others from violating the law. In addition, the judge wrote that "in view of the quantity and quality of the drugs involved in this matter and defendant's background generally, this sentence to State Prison is appropriate and required. . . ." [P-4] The respondent was incarcerated from May 1985 until January 1987. He was then placed on parole supervision. In December 1988, he was released from parole supervision early for good behavior.

The respondent was born on March 18, 1952, in the Dominican Republic. His family emigrated to Puerto Rico where he was raised. He was raised by his parents with seven brothers and one sister. He completed the eleventh grade in school and played scholastic baseball. The respondent began a GED program while incarcerated, but he was released before he could complete it. In 1978, the respondent moved to New York City. From 1979 through 1981, the respondent was employed by Albin Pleiries, a sheet metal company, from 1982 until his incarceration in 1985 by Roman Flosing, and from his release from incarceration until August 1988 by Oriental Movers on a moving company truck.

In August 1988, the respondent completed a Personal History Disclosure Form 4A (P-1), which was filed with the Commission in September 1988. On this form, the respondent indicated his conviction and his employment record. On August 25, 1988, the respondent completed a TropWorld Employment Application (P-2). On this form, the respondent checked that he had not been convicted of a crime, did not disclose date, location, nature of crime or disposition as requested, and indicated that he had been employed by Albin Pleiries from 1982 through 1987. In addition, the respondent indicated that he had completed the twelfth grade.

The respondent was hired by TropWorld, and he began his employment in September 1988 as a busboy. Approximately nine months ago, the respondent was promoted from being a busboy to being the host in a buffet style restaurant.

In addition to presenting one witness who spoke in his behalf, the respondent presented two letters of recommendation. In a letter dated September 26, 1989, John Ofeldt, manager of A.C. Station Buffet, TropWorld Casino and Entertainment Resort wrote that he has > known Gabriel Carrero for two years now, both as an employee and friend. He has a very good work record. Gabriel started working as an [sic] Food Server Attendant and was promoted to a greeter. His attendance is excellent. He is an asset to our staff. [R-1]

The second is written by the respondent's parole officer, Rodney Pryor. Mr. Pryor stated that at the time the letter was written, September 12, 1988, the respondent was in good standing and that Mr. Pryor supported him. Mr. Pryor indicated that he would appreciate any assistance rendered which might help the respondent become gainfully employed. [R-2]

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the respondent's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident nor his current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess his credibility. Initially, his position in this matter must be recognized. As the respondent and the holder of a casino hotel employee registration, he has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the respondent's demeanor, the plausibility of his testimony, the manner in which he participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appears that the respondent testified truthfully in this matter. He candidly admitted his misconduct and described the underlying circumstances. The respondent's answers on his employment application, however, cause me to be somewhat skeptical of his veracity. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the respondent's testimony in substantial part.

1. On March 2, 1985, the respondent along with a friend traveled from New York to visit a friend named Arturo in Galloway Township, New Jersey. The respondent was involved in using the controlled dangerous substance cocaine at Arturo's apartment, and he had known that the cocaine would be there.

2. On March 14, 1985, the respondent was indicted in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division (Criminal) by the Altantic County Grand Jury in Indictment No. 85-03-0441-Inv (C). In this indictment the respondent was charged with two counts of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a and two counts of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) with the intent to distribute in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19.

3. On April 29, 1985, the respondent entered a plea of guilty to one count of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) with the intent to distribute in a quantity of one ounce or more that included in excess of 3.5 grams of the pure free base, in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1) and N.J.S.A. 24:21-19b(2). The remaining counts of the indictment were dismissed.

4. On May 24, 1985, the respondent was sentenced to be incarcerated for six years (with nine days credit for time served), was ordered to pay a $25 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty, and was ordered to forfeit $3,020 which had been seized in the apartment.

5. The respondent was incarcerated from May 1985 until January 1987. He was then placed on parole supervision. In December 1988, he was released from parole supervision early for good behavior.

6. The respondent was born on March 18, 1952, in the Dominican Republic. His family emigrated to Puerto Rico where he was raised. He was raised by his parents with seven brothers and one sister. He completed the eleventh grade in school and played scholastic baseball. The respondent began a GED program while incarcerated, but he was released before he could complete it.

7. In 1978, the respondent moved to New York City. From 1979 through 1981, the respondent was employed by Albin Pleiries, a sheet metal company, from 1982 until his incarceration in 1985 by Roman Flosing, and from his release from incarceration until August 1988 by Oriental Movers on a moving company truck.

8. On August 25, 1988, the respondent completed a TropWorld Employment Application. On this form, the respondent checked that he had not been convicted of a crime, did not disclose date, location, nature of crime or disposition as requested, and indicated that he had been employed by Albin Pleiries from 1982 through 1987. In addition, the respondent indicated that he had completed the twelfth grade.

9. The respondent was hired by TropWorld, and he began his employment in September 1988 as a busboy. Approximately nine months ago, the respondent was promoted from being a busboy to being the host in a buffet style restaurant.

APPLICABLE LAW

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86, Casino License - disqualification criteria, provides in pertinent part:

The commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of any of the following criteria:

a. Failure of the applicant to prove by clear and convincing evidence that the applicant is qualified in accordance with the provisions of this act;

b. Failure of the applicant to provide information, documentation and assurances required by the act or requested by the commission, or failure of the applicant to reveal any fact material to qualification, or the supplying of information which is untrue or misleading as to a material fact pertaining to the qualification criteria;

c. The conviction of the applicant, or of any person required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license, of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be:

1. Any of the following offenses under the "New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice," P.L. 1978, c. 95 (Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes) as amended and supplemented:

. . . .

N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5 (manufacturing, distributing or dispensing a controlled dangerous substance or a controlled dangerous substance analog which constitutes a crime of the second or third degree);

. . . .

N.J.S.A. 5:12-91, Registration of casino hotel employees, provides in pertinent part:

a. No person may commence employment as a casino hotel employee unless he has been registered with the commission, which registration shall be in accordance with subsection f. of this section.

b. Any applicant for casino hotel employee registration shall produce such information as the commission may require. Subsequent to the registration of a casino hotel employee, the commission may revoke, suspend, limit, or otherwise restrict the registration upon a finding that the registrant is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of P.L.1977, c. 110 (C. 5:12-86).

d. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection b. of this section no casino hotel employee registration shall be revoked on the basis of a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria or the commission of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of section 86 of P.L.1977, c. 110 (C 5:12-86), as specified in subsection g. of that section, provided that the registrant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation. In determining whether the registrant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:

1. The nature and duties of the registrant's position;

2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

4. The date of the offense or conduct;

5. The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;

6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work- release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) establishes that registration under the Casino Control Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual . . .registrant." N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1) provides for the revocation of the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his . . . registration." The Division contends, that the respondent was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1) and b(2) which is the predecessor statute of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, possession of a controlled dangerous substance with the intent to distribute, which constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), and that, accordingly, he is disqualified from continued registration.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1)

Section 86c(1) mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends that the respondent's possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) with the intent to distribute in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, which, under the circumstances, disqualifies the respondent from continued registration.

N.J.S.A. 24:21-19, Prohibited acts A. - Manufacturing, distributing, or dispensing - Penalties, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Except as authorized by this act, it shall be unlawful for any person knowingly or intentionally:
>
>
> . . .
>
> (2) A substance, in a quantity of one ounce or more including any adulterants or dilutants, classified in Schedules I or II which is a narcotic drug, provided that there are included at least 3.5 grams of the pure free base Schedule I or II narcotic drug, is guilty of a high misdemeanor and shall be punished by imprisonment for up to life, a fine of not more than $25,000.00, or both; . . . .

N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, Manufacturing, distributing or dispensing, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Except as authorized by P.L. 1970 c.226 (C. 24:21-1 et seq.), it shall be unlawful for any person knowingly or purposely:

> dangerous substance or controlled substance analog; or
>
> . . .
>
>
> (1) Heroin, or its analog, or coca leaves and any salt, compound, derivative, or preparation . . . thereof which is chemically equivalent or identical with any of these substances, or analogs, except that the substances shall not include decocainized coca leaves or extractions which do not contain cocaine or ecogine, in a quantity of five ounces or more including any adulterants or dilutants, is guilty of a crime of the first degree. The defendant shall, except as provided in N.J.S. 2C:35-12, be sentenced to a term of imprisonment by the court. The term of imprisonment shall include the imposition of a minimum term which shall be fixed at, or between, one-third and one-half of the sentence imposed, during which the defendant shall be ineligible for parole. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection a. of N.J.S. 2C:43-3, a fine of up to $300,000.00 may be imposed;
> (2) A substance referred to in paragraph (1) of this subsection, in a quantity of one-half ounce or more but less than five ounces, including any adulterants or dilutants is guilty of a crime of the second degree . . . .

The Division established, and the respondent admitted during his testimony, that he knowingly possessed cocaine. The Division further established that the respondent was convicted in Superior Court of possession of a at least one ounce of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) with the intent to distribute. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a(1) and that the respondent was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a which is the predecessor statute of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(2), the offense constitutes a crime of the second degree.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offense committed by the respondent is a disqualifying offense under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). The respondent is therefore disqualified from continued registration, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d

A registrant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against continued registration by affirmatively demonstrating his or her rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

1. The nature and duties of the registrant's position;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
4. The date of the offense or conduct;
5. The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;
6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work- release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Gabriel Carrero is a casino hotel registrant and is employed as a restaurant host. As such, he does not have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities but does come in contact with casino patrons.

Second, the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) with the intent to distribute in 1985, prior to his employment in the casino industry. Because the offense is a listed disqualifier under section 86c(1) and because it is a drug offense, it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in its appropriate context. The respondent was involved in using cocaine at a friend's apartment, and he had known that the drugs would be there. The sentencing judge's statement of reasons for sentencing indicates that this was a serious offense involving a substantial quantity of high quality drugs and that the potential sale of these drugs may have been an organized activity. Such an offense is extremely serious and cannot be tolerated in a highly regulated industry such as the casino industry.

Fourth, the respondent's misconduct occurred in 1985, when it ceased.

Fifth, the respondent was nearly 33 years old at the time of the offense. I do not believe immaturity was a factor in this case.

Sixth, the respondent's misconduct was isolated in nature. He has not been convicted of any other violations of the criminal laws. He had one prior arrest from 1978. He was arrested along with other patrons of a bar where a revolver was discovered during a disturbance. The respondent was never charged with any criminal violation arising from this arrest.

Seventh, the respondent was living in an area where drugs were available and was associating with people who regularly used drugs in their culture.

Eighth, the respondent has made some rehabilitative efforts. He completed a drug rehabilitation program, was incarcerated for 18 months, and was released from parole early for good behavior. He helps support a son who lives with the child's mother in New York. The respondent is remorseful and regrets his misconduct. He is a hard worker who has performed admirably in the casino industry in the last year and one-half, and has advanced from a bus person to a restaurant host. Several answers on his employment application (P-2), however, appear to be untrue and must be weighed against any finding of rehabilitation.

The Commission has recently addressed the weighing of the rehabilitation factors vis-a-vis the position applied for. In the Application of Brian Stiteler, argued before the Commission at the public meeting of August 5, 1987, Commissioner Armstrong stated:

> I would note that the rehabilitation criteria are identical for registrants and casino employees, but these factors can be weighed differently depending on the nature and duties of the position of the individual who is appearing before us and whether the disqualifying offense was an isolated or repeated incident, and I think that there are two prior

> Commission cases[1] in which we have given weight and emphasis to the nature and duty of the petitioner, and that's a significant factor in assessing rehabilitation.

In order to overcome the prohibition against continued registration, a registrant has the burden of affirmatively establishing his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. The Commission explained the differences in the evidentiary standards in In re Boardwalk Regency Casino Application, 10 N.J.A.R. 295 (1980). At pages 297 and 298 of that decision the Commission stated:

> Sections 84 and 89(b) of the Act set forth the criteria which a casino license applicant and other persons required to be qualified as a condition of such licensure must affirmatively establish by clear and convincing evidence. N.J.S.A. 5:12-84 and 89(b). The clear and convincing evidence requirement falls between the ordinary civil standard of "preponderance of the evidence" and the criminal standard of "beyond a reasonable doubt." The preponderance standard means simply that when the record is considered as a whole the credible evidence renders the existence of the fact in question more likely than not. In contrast, the familiar criminal standard means that the trier of fact must not have a reasonable doubt, that is, one based on the evidence or the lack of evidence. A reasonable doubt is one which has some justification rather than an imaginary or possible doubt. The clear and convincing standard is much higher than the preponderance standard but somewhat less than the reasonable doubt requirement. Clear and convincing evidence should produce in the mind of the Commissioner a firm belief or conviction as to the truth of the matters sought to be established. In order to sustain its burden, the applicant was obliged to present clear and convincing proof of the facts upon which the Commission may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. [emphasis added]

In this case, the respondent is a restaurant host. He has no responsibility for any casino gaming activity, but does have contact with casino patrons. Considering the nature of the position he holds, the respondent's work record in the industry, his demeanor and candor at the hearing, the discrepancies in his employment application, the fact that he was convicted of possession of cocaine with the intent to distribute, and the seriousness of the offense, when weighed against the eight rehabilitative criteria:

1 I believe the decisions referred to by Commissioner Armstrong are: Benjamin Waters, OAL DKT. NO. CCC 7470-86 (April 30, 1987), and Mark Bisciotti, OAL DKT. NO. CCC 5240-86 (April 9, 1987), both matters having been decided at the Commission's public meeting of June 3, 1987.

I CONCLUDE that the respondent has not established, by clear and convincing evidence, his rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division against the respondent is SUSTAINED and that registration no. 88585-40 be revoked.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: June 12, 1989 Decided: June 28, 1989

BEFORE STEPHEN W. THOMPSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), Department of Law and Public Safety, petitioner, alleges that respondent's casino licensure would be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to section 86c(2) by virtue of his alleged use and possession of a controlled dangerous substance in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10 on May 10, 1988, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g. The Division also alleges that respondent lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure as a casino employee, pursuant to section 89b(2), as incorporated within section 90b.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on August 1, 1988. The respondent requested a hearing on August 15, 1988. On September 7, 1988, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was held on March 2, 1989, and the matter was scheduled for hearing on June 12, 1989 at the OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, 1201 Bacharach Boulevard, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The matter was heard and the record closed on June 12, 1989.

ISSUES

A. Whether respondent's continued licensure is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act within the meaning of Section 86c(2) because he is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

B. Whether respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure as a casino employee, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act?

FINDINGS OF FACT

The respondent, Richard Conte, was a part-time blackjack dealer within the Atlantis Hotel and Casino until his termination on May 14, 1988.

On the evening of May 10, 1988, the respondent was arrested and charged with possession and use of a controlled dangerous substance in violaton of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10. The respondent, while at the Atalntis Hotel and Casino, was allegedly observed using marijuana in the men's locker room.

On August 30, 1988, the charge against the respondent was dismissed in the Atlantic City Municipal Court on motion of the prosecutor.

Detective Derrick Jones of the New Jersey State Police testified that he had no direct knowledge of the respondent's use or possession of a controlled dangerous substance. Respondent acknowledges, however, that he was found guilty of possession of controlled dangerous substance in the Ventnor Municipal Court on May 18, 1988. Respondent also acknowledges a shoplifting conviction on July 30, 1987, in Egg Harbor Township.

The above is uncontroverted, believable and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2)

Section 86(c) of the Act is more commonly referred to as the "inimical clause." In In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc., for a Casino License, Casno Control Commission (February 26, 1979), the Commission set forth the criteria to be applied in individual cases when a determination is made as to whether an offense is inimcal to the policies of the Act. The Commission stated at page 15:

> The nature of the offense, the events surrounding it, including any mitigating or aggravating factors, the remoteness of the offense and the offender's conduct since the offense to the presenst are all matters to be considered. Without limiting the notion of what is "inimical" to the Act or to gaming, it would appear to encompass those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that particpation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the danger of unsuitable, unfair or illeal practices, method and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business of financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations.

However, in this matter, the Division's proofs are fatally flawed. The observable testimony of Detective Jones and the documentary evidence fail to establish a linkage between the charged act and the alleged behavior of Mr. Conte. Innuendo and probabilities which the Division asks to be noted are not proof that a violation has occurred.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Division has failed to establish a violation of N.J.S.A. 2c:35-10 by a preponderance of the credible evidence. I further

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated within Section 90b

Under section 89b(2) of the Act, as incorporated in section 90b, the petitioner is required to demonstrate good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc., for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (Feb. 26, 1970) at 8. In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criteria for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good repuation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to casino employee licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon the petitioner to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Application of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, Casino Control Commission (Nov. 13, 1980) at 5. In accordance with the regulatory strictnes intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of the petitioner be scrutinized closely. Boardwalk Regency Corp. at 2.

I have had the opportunity to observe Mr. Conte's demeanor and credibility. Respondent has totally failed to sustain his burden of proof by establishing his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. The record is devoid of any charcter references. Furthermore, the respondent's testimony was evasive and misleading.

Based on the totality of the circumstances, including respondent's convictions for shoplifting and possession of a controlled dangerous substance. I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to demonstrate the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino licensure pursuant to section 89b(2), as incorporated within section 90b.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Therefore, It is ORDERED that the license of Richard T. Conte be REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Ralph D'Ambrosio, respondent, pro se

Record Closed: February 2, 1990 Decided: March 15, 1990

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), alleges that respondent Ralph D'Ambrosio committed criminal misconduct which was inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act (Act) under section 86c (2) and, further, that respondent lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure, pursuant to section 89b (2) of the Act. The Division, therefore, seeks and order issued by the Casino Control Commission (Commission) revoking respondent's casino hotel employee registration and his casino employee license, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-129.

This matter was transmitted from the Commission to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on June 22, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was held on September 28, 1989 at which, among other things, the issues to be determined were set forth and the hearing date of February 2, 1990, was established. The hearing was held as scheduled at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The hearing record was considered closed on February 2, 1990.

ISSUES

The issues agreed upon by the parties to be resolved by this tribunal are these:

A. Whether respondent's continued licensure and registration is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (2) because he is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, Theft by Unlawful Taking?

B. Whether the respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2)?

The prehearing order also sets forth, at section V, the following stipulation:

> Respondent's casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration are under suspension by Order of the Casino Control Commission dated June 22, 1989, pending final disposition of this matter.

UNCONTESTED FACTS

Based upon the documents proffered by the Division and respondent's testimony, the following facts are neither contested nor in dispute. They are, therefore, hereby adopted as FINDINGS OF FACT.

Respondent is currently 67 years of age, having retired from the United States Department of Defense and subsequently procured casino hotel employee registration no. 59219-40 and casino employee license no. 61466-21. On or about April 9, 1989, respondent was employed by the Trump Castle Hotel and Casino as a slot attendant. On April 9, 1989, respondent was the subject of surveillance by Shift Supervisor Peter LiPuma who observed respondent removing coins from various slot machines illegally. Detectives Joseph Eden and W. Higgins of the New Jersey State Police (NJSP) conducted an investigation of respondent. It was determined that respondent had a total of $95.50 in various United States coins and Trump Castle tokens on his person. Detective Eden stated on his Investigation Report that respondent asserted that he took the money from various slot machines over a period of two or three days (P-2). Respondent was placed under arrest by Detective Eden (P-3). A NJSP Property Report of the money found on respondent's person was prepared which listed the following:

Eighty-one (81) Castle $1.00 tokens	$	81.00
Nine (9) U.S. Currency - .50¢		4.50
Forty (40) U.S. Currency - .25¢		10.00
Total	$	95.50 (P-4)

On April 28, 1989, respondent appeared before the Atlantic City Municipal Court on a complaint and summons where respondent was adjudged to be guilty of violating N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking. Respondent was subject to a fine of $50 and $25 in court costs, plus the penalty of $30 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (VCCB). Respondent admits to the taking.

CONTESTED FACTS

Although respondent admits that he illegally took money and tokens from certain slot machines, he denies that the total of $95.50 found on his person on April 9, 1989 was all from his taking. He asserted that some of that total amount, represented tip money given to him by patrons. Respondent was unable to state what amount of the $95.50 represented his own money.

Respondent offered a series of documents (R-1 through R-11) which related to his former position with the United States Department of Defense. Respondent offered no live testimony nor documentation concerning his good character, honesty and integrity concerning the events of April 9, 1989, or subsequent thereto.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) establishes that licensure under the Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." Section 129(1) of the Act provides for the revocation of or other sanction against the licensee or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his license or registration." The Division contends that respondent D'Ambrosio's alleged violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 constitutes a violation of section 86c(2) and that, accordingly, his license and registration should be revoked.

Disqualifying Offense Under Section 86c (2) of the Act

Section 86c (2)of the Act is commonly referred to as the "inimical clause." In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License (Resorts), Casino Control Commission No. 79-CL-1 (February 26, 1979), the Commission set forth the criteria to be applied in individual cases when a determination is made as to whether an offense is inimical to the policies of the Act. The Commission stated at 15:

> Whether an offense is "inimical" to the Act and to legalized gaming is a question which can only be resolved in the circumstances of each case. The nature of the offense, the events surrounding it, including any mitigating or aggravating factors, the remoteness of the offense and the offender's conduct since the offense to the present are all matters to be considered. Without limiting the notion of what is "inimical" to the Act or to gaming, it would appear to encompass those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations.

In the enabling legislation authorizing casino gaming, the Legislature set forth specific policy considerations which appear to be directly related to the intent and purpose of the inimical clause. Specifically, section 1b (6) of the Act states that:

> An integral and essential element of the regulation and control of such casino facilities by the State rests in the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations.

Our Supreme Court emphasized the significance of strict regulation of all phases of the casino industry in Knight v. Margate, 86 N.J. 374, 381 (1981), where it said:

> At the very heart of the public policy embraced by the new law is "the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations." N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6). Related directly to this purpose, the Legislature stated that "the regulatory provisions...are designed to extend strict State regulation to all persons...practices and associations related to" casinos and that "comprehensive law enforcement supervision...is further designed to contribute to the public confidence and trust in the efficacy and integrity of the regulatory process."

In In the Matter of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union Local 54, (N.J. App. Div., July 11, 1985, A993-82T5, A-317-84T5, A-525-84T5, A-880-84T5) (unreported at 17) the Appellate Division held that inimical means "adverse to the policy of the act and gaming operation," i.e., contrary to strict regulatory controls over all facets of casino activities.

The Division contends that the respondent's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3; theft, which under the circumstances renders continued licensure and registration to be inimical to the Act.

> A person is guilty of theft if he unlawfully takes, or exercises unlawful control over, movable property of another with purpose to deprive him thereof.

In the matter of Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 at 313, the Commission quoted from Resorts and the criteria for determination as to whether an offense is inimical to the Act. The Commission continued to hold in Davis that rehabilitation under sections 90h and 91d of the Act do not apply to disqualifying convictions under section 86c (4) (now section 86c (2)). However, many of the factors of these two sections of the Act are to be considered within the inimical analysis. Those enumerated factors in section 90h, which apply to a claim of rehabilitation by a casino employee license applicant, are as follows:

> (1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;
>
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
>
> (4) The date of the offense;
>
> (5) The age of the applicant (licensee) when the offense was committed;
>
> (6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
>
> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling, or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release program or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

First, respondent is the holder of a casino hotel employee registration no. 59219-40 and a casino employee license no. 61466-21. Respondent was last employed as a slot attendant with the Trump Castle Hotel and Casino until his termination on April 9, 1989. As a slot attendant, respondent had direct and frequent contact with gaming patrons. Respondent seeks to retain both his registration and license.

Second, the offense of theft is a serious offense. Although respondent admits that he committed the offense and is aware that his conduct was wrong, he attempts to minimize the seriousness of the event by asserting that he does not know why he committed the offense and suggests that it could have been an attack of senility or that he was possessed by the devil. Notwithstanding that he committed the act of theft, respondent asserts he is not a thief.

Respondent, as a slot attendant, held the confidence and trust of his employer to guard and protect the employer's interests. Respondent betrayed that confidence and trust when he committed the offense of theft against his employer, Trump Castle.

Third and fourth. The offense was committed while respondent was employed and performing his duties as a slot attendant. He had direct access to the slot machine hoppers where the coins and Trump Castle tokens collected. On April 9, 1989, respondent was observed opening several of the machines and removing coins and tokens for his own use.

Fifth and sixth. Respondent was 67 years of age when the theft was committed. Respondent asserted at the hearing that the offense was a one-time occurrence. However, the NJSP Investigation Report executed by Detective Joseph Eden asserts that respondent admitted to taking the money from various slot machines over a period of two or three days (P-2). I am persuaded that the offense was not an isolated event.

Seventh and eighth. There were no social conditions which contributed to respondent's conduct or to the offense. Respondent provided no evidence of any rehabilative efforts either through counselling or psychiatric treatment. Nor did he submit any recommendations of persons who have or have had the applicant under his supervision.

Having carefully considered the record and facts concerning the issue of inimicality, I CONCLUDE that the Division has carried its burden of proof to demonstrate that respondent's conduct of committing a theft of coins and tokens, which was the property of his employer, Trump Castle, is inimical to the Act and to the gaming industry. I further CONCLUDE that such conduct is disqualifying, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (2).

Good Character, Honesty and Integrity as Required by Section 89b(2) of the Act.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), respondent is required to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979) at 8; Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985); In re Boardwalk Regency Corp. Casino License, 90 N.J. 361 (1982). When, as here, the Division raises the issue as to the licensee's good character, honesty and integrity, it is incumbent upon the licensee to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which this tribunal may reach a reasonable conclusion. Boardwalk Regency, supra, In the Matter of the Application of Boardwalk Regency Corp. and the Jemm Company for Casino License, Casino Control Commission (November 13, 1980). In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of the licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure.

Clear and convincing, falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here, the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the fact alleged is true; i.e., that respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity. The standard requires more than a mere balancing of probabilities, but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (L. Div. 1974); Germann v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466 (App. Div. 1969).

Respondent produced eleven documents, all of which related to his former position with the United States Department of Defense. He offered no live testimony nor documentary evidence by individuals who knew of his arrest and conviction for the theft offense. There was no evidence of respondent's good character, honesty and integrity supplied by members of his community, former co-workers or supervisory staff representing his casino industry employment. In short, respondent presented no evidence to demonstrate that he has met the standards for licensure as required by section 89b (2) of the Act.

Considering all of the circumstances regarding this issue, I CONCLUDE that respondent has failed to meet his burden of proof, by clear and convincing evidence, that he does in fact possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for continued licensure in the casino industry.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the hotel casino employee registration no. 59219-40 and the casino employee license no. 61466-21 issued to and held by Ralph D'Ambrosio be and are hereby REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Kenneth Davis, respondent, pro se

Record Closed: October 10, 1989 Decided: December 7, 1989

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) alleging that while serving in the United States Armed Forces respondent Kenneth Davis was charged and convicted by the United States Army with Possession of Controlled Dangerous Substance (cocaine less than 3.5 grams) With Intent to Distribute, contrary to 10 U.S.C.A. § 912 (a) (West 1983), comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a (1) and Conspiracy (to Distribute Controlled Substances), contrary to 10 U.S.C.A. § 881 (West 1983), which is comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2a (1). The Division further alleges that respondent's conduct disqualifies him from holding a casino hotel employee registration, pursuant to section 86g of the Casino Control Act (Act) which incorporates section 86c (1) of the Act and, therefore, seeks to revoke said casino hotel employee registration.

The Division filed its complaint with the Commission on March 28, 1989. On May 2, 1989, respondent requested a hearing and on May 8, 1989, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was held on September 5, 1989 at which, among other things, the issues to be determined by this administrative tribunal were set forth and the hearing date established.

The hearing was held on October 10, 1989 at the Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey with the record closed on that date. The request and application for an extension to execute this initial decision was granted.

ISSUES TO BE DETERMINED

Pursuant to the prehearing order, the following issues are to be determined by this tribunal:

A. Whether respondent was convicted of a crime, while serving in the United States Armed Forces, listed as a statutory disqualifier in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c to wit: Possession of Controlled Dangerous Substance (cocaine less than 3.5 grams) with Intent to Distribute, contrary to 10 U.S.C.A. § 912 (a), comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5?

B. Whether respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 91d of the Casino Control Act?

Based upon the testimony adduced at the hearing and the documents entered into evidence, the following facts are neither contested nor in dispute. I, therefore, adopt the following as FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter:

On or about April 8, 1985, while serving with the United States Army, Company A, Headquarters Command, Fort Dix, New Jersey, respondent was charged with two violations of General Military Law, Uniform Code of Military Justice. The charges alleged that respondent, who then held the grade of Specialist Four, had wrongfully possessed cocaine in an amount less than 3.5 grams with the intent to distribute the controlled dangerous substance in violation of 10 U.S.C.A. § 912a and, that he had engaged in a conspiracy to possess with the intent to distribute the controlled dangerous substance in violation of 10 U.S.C.A. § 881. Respondent was subsequently arraigned and appeared before a General Court-Martial where he entered pleas to both counts. On or about June 28, 1985, respondent was sentenced as follows: Reduced in grade to E-1; forfeit all pay and allowances; confined for one year; and, dishonorably discharged from the service (P-1). On June 17, 1986, respondent's conviction and sentence was upheld by the United States Court of Military Appeals.

Respondent was 31 years of age when he was sentenced for the offenses. At the time of the herein hearing, respondent was 35 years of age. He served nine months of the one year sentence of confinement and was dishonorably discharged from the United States Army upon completion of the incarceration.

Respondent was not employed at the time of the hearing. However, he was engaged in a job training program and was to begin blackjack dealer school on or about November 20, 1989. He had been in receipt of Unemployment Insurance benefits (UIB) since about June 1989.

Respondent graduated from Pleasantville, New Jersey, High School in 1972 and immediately thereafter enlisted in the United States Army. After serving three years he was honorably discharged in 1975. Respondent was then otherwise employed for three years and reenlisted into the Army in 1978, where he remained until his dishonorable discharge on July 14, 1986. In December 1986, respondent was employed by the Trump Castle Hotel and Casino in its laundry under his casino hotel employee registration. He left that job in April 1989 due to a personality conflict.

Respondent has had no arrests since his discharge from the Armed Forces. He is presently living with his wife and one minor child, a son.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Casino hotel employee registration - disqualification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86q as incorporated into section 86c(1) of the Casino Control Act.

Section 86c(1) of the Act mandates that a person who has been convicted of any one or more of the enumerated offenses under Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes shall be disqualified from holding a casino license or registration. Respondent was not charged nor convicted under the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice, Title 2C. Rather, he was convicted under the Federal Statutes pursuant to the Uniform Code of Military Justice, Title 10. The Division contends that the two offenses committed by respondent under the Federal Statutes are analogous to the New Jersey statutes enumerated in section 86c(1) of the Act and that both offenses automatically preclude respondent from holding a casino hotel employee registration. Section 86g of the Act provides, in part, that registration may be denied or revoked if the applicant is or has been found guilty of any of the offenses enumerated in section 86c(1) notwithstanding that the prosecution had not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of New Jersey.

>
> (a) Any person subject to this chapter who wrongfully uses, possesses, manufactures, distributes, imports into the customs territory of the United States, exports from the United States, or introduces into an installation, vessel, vehicle, or aircraft used by or under the control of the armed forces a substance described in subsection (b) shall be punished as a court-martial may direct.
>
> (b) The substances referred to in subsection (a) are the following:
>
> (1) Opium, heroin, cocaine, amphetamine, lysergic acid diethylamide, methamphetamine, phencyclidine, barbituric acid, and marijuana and any compound or derivative of any such substance. ... (Emphasis Supplied)

N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, provides, in pertinent part, as follows:

> .... [I]t shall be unlawful for any person knowingly or purposely:

(1) To manufacture, distribute or dispense, or to possess or have under his control with intent to manufacture, distribute or dispense, a controlled dangerous substance or controlled substance analog; or

(2) To create, distribute or possess or have under his control with intent to distribute, a counterfeit controlled dangerous substance.

b. Any person who violates subsection a. with respect to:

(1) Heroin, or its analog, or coca leave and any salt, compound, derivative, or preparation of coca leaves, and any salt, compound, derivative, or preparation thereof which is chemically equivalent or identical with any of these substances, or analogs, except that the substances shall not include decocainized coca leaves or extractions which do not contain cocaine or ecogine, in a quantity of five ounces or more including any adulterants or dilutants, provided there are included at least 3.5 grams of the pure free base drug, is guilty of a crime of the first degree.

(3) A substance referred to in paragraph (1) of this subsection in a quantity less than one-half ounce including any adulterants or dilutants, or in a quantity of one-half ounce or more with there being included less than 3.5 grams of the pure free base drug or where the amount of the pure free base is undetermined, is guilty of a crime of the third degree except that, notwithstanding the provisions of subsection b. of N.J.S. 2C:43-3, a fine of up to $50,000.00 may be imposed;

The offense to which respondent plead guilty at his military court-martial, under 10 U.S.C.A. § 912a, is analogous to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5 and which constitutes a crime of the third degree. Pursuant to section 86c(1) of the Act, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C;35-5 is a basis to automatically disqualify respondent from holding a casino hotel employee registration.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Division has met its burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that respondent committed a disqualifying offense. Accordingly, I FIND and CONCLUDE that respondent is statutorily disqualified from holding a casino hotel employee registration pursuant to section 86g of the Act as it incorporates N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

I also FIND and CONCLUDE that respondent's conviction under 10 U.S.C.A. § 881 (Conspiracy) is sufficiently similar to N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2 as to warrant revocation of his casino hotel employee registration as provided by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

Rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d.

A current registrant faced with the existence of one or more section 86 disqualifications in a disciplinary proceeding has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against continued registration by affirmatively demonstrating his rehabilitation, pursuant to section 91d of the Act. This statute sets forth eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination for rehabilitation is to be made. Section 91d of the Act provides as follows:

> (1) The nature and duties of the registrant's position;
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
> (4) The date of the offense or conduct;
> (5) The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;
> (6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision.

First, respondent is not presently employed in the hotel/casino industry although he holds casino hotel employee registration no. 71434-30. He was employed under his registration by Trump Castle Hotel and Casino in its laundry, however, he resigned his position due to a personality conflict. Respondent represents that he is to commence blackjack dealer school.

Second, respondent's disqualifying offenses of conspiracy and possession of controlled dangerous substances with intent to distribute were of such a serious nature that he was sentenced by a United States Military Court to: a reduction in grade, the forfeiture of all pay and allowances, confinement for one year and a dishonorable discharge from the United States Army. The sentence was affirmed on appeal. Respondent served nine months of the twelve month sentence.

Third, respondent asserts that he acted as the middleman to the drug supplier and ultimate distributor. The distributor requested that respondent receive mail from Columbia at respondent's home address in exchange for cocaine for respondent's personal use. Respondent acceded to the drug distributor's request and did, in fact, receive mail containing cocaine from Columbia at his home address.

Fourth and Fifth. Respondent was in receipt of mail from Columbia containing cocaine during the months of May 1984 until August 1984, when he was 31 years of age.

Sixth, the offense was continuous and repeated for a period of at least three months in 1984.

Seventh, there were no social conditions which contributed to respondent's conduct other than his assertion that he engaged in the illegal activity because he wanted to "be one of the boys."

Eighth. Respondent proffered documents to establish his rehabilitation. A 90-day probationary evaluation from Trump Castle, dated April 16, 1987, indicated a "very good" to "outstanding" evaluation of his job performance and other qualities of his behavior (R-1). Other documents indicate that respondent had successfully completed Trump's Castle Upward Mobility Program and a course in human relations conducted by the American Hotel and Motel Association. A letter from Captain Kenneth H. Boone, Trial Counsel, Department of the Army, Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, Fort Dix, New Jersey to the Commander of the United States Facility at Fort Riley, Kansas reads as follows:

> 1. This is to inform you of the cooperation provided by SP4 Kenneth Davis, 138-50-0436, in the court martial of SP5 Carlos Tuero. Without his testimony at the Article 32 hearing and willingness to testify at trial, it is unlikely that the government would have had a case against SP5 Tuero.
> 2. Considering the minor role he played in the conspiracy of which he was convicted, his confession, guilty plea, and later cooperation with the government, I believe SP4 Kenneth Davis has taken important steps towards rehabilitation.

Respondent admits to the use of cocaine. His military record also reveals that he was disciplined for the wrongful use of marijuana (P-1). He failed, however, to produce any evidence that his use of cocaine and other controlled dangerous substances had ceased. There are no medical, psychological or counseling reports (or testimony) to demonstrate that respondent has, in fact, reformed his former behavior and discontinued the use of illegal substances. It is also noted that at the time respondent committed the offenses he was 31 years of age; no mere youth but, rather, an adult of substantial age.

A careful review of the documents presented by respondent also reveals that the 90-day evaluation from Trump's Castle is dated April 16, 1987 and Captain Boone's letter is dated November 1, 1985. Nothing of any significance to illustrate his present rehabilitative status was offered.

Having carefully considered all of the factors enumerated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d, and having given fair weight thereto, I am not persuaded that respondent has met his statutory burden of establishing rehabilitation. He has failed to present sufficient evidence upon which this administrative tribunal may reasonably conclude that he is, in fact, rehabilitated.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that respondent has failed to affirmatively establish his rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J. S.A. 5:12-90d.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the casino hotel registration no. 71434-40, issued to Kenneth Davis be and is hereby REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION who by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter: However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: October 24, 1989 Decided: March 29, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter concerns the application of Wallace R. DeShields (petitioner) for licensure as a casino employee. This would permit his employment in a licensed casino facility in a non-gaming capacity. By letter report to the Casino Control Commission dated December 22, 1988, the Division of Gaming Enforcement objected to licensure of the petitioner, based upon his record of arrests. This is the issue:

Has the petitioner established by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner's request for a hearing on his license application was received by the Casino Control Commission on February 24, 1989. On March 2, 1989, the Commission transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A telephone prehearing conference was held on May 9, 1989. The hearing was thereafter held as scheduled in Absecon, New Jersey, on October 24, 1989. The record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The material facts in this matter are essentially undisputed. The petitioner is a 37-year-old resident of Northfield, New Jersey. He is married and at the time of the hearing in this matter, his wife was expecting the birth of their child. The petitioner is employed as a driver for Custom Limousine, and he works from 10 to 20 hours per day, five days per week. The petitioner attended Glassboro State College for three and one-half years and he is presently taking courses at Stockton State College.

Division of Gaming Enforcement Agent Charles Hale testified at the hearing that he conducted an investigation concerning the petitioner's license application. This included a routine check of various law enforcement records to determine if there was any negative information concerning the petitioner. In addition, the petitioner had included with his license application a copy of a presentence investigation report (Exhibit R-2) prepared in 1983. The report revealed that the petitioner had been arrested on 19 occasions between 1971 and 1982. Agent Hale also obtained an FBI report which indicated that the petitioner had one additional arrest in January 1986 (Exhibit R-1).

According to Agent Hale, he interviewed the petitioner in person and they discussed each of the petitioner's arrests. The first occurred in July 1971, when the petitioner was 18 years old. He was charged by the Camden City Police Department with possession of marijuana. The charge was subsequently dismissed. The petitioner was next arrested by the Moorestown Police on March 9, 1977, and charged with use of a stolen or lost credit card. This charge was later dismissed.

The petitioner's next arrest occurred in SanDiego, California, on August 8, 1977. He was charged with theft and receiving stolen property. Although the theft charge was dismissed, the petitioner was convicted of receiving stolen property and he received a jail sentence for the time already served and a two-year probationary term. When Agent Hale questioned the petitioner about an October 19, 1977 arrest in SanDiego, the petitioner stated that he had received a suspended sentence for theft.

Agent Hale testified that he discussed with the petitioner a March 16, 1978 arrest by the Camden Police Department for shoplifting. This charge was dismissed by the Camden Municipal Court. The petitioner was again arrested on April 1, 1978 and charged with being drunk and disorderly (Exhibit R-3). A $75 fine was suspended and the petitioner was ordered to pay $25 costs. On May 18, 1978, the petitioner was arrested by the Glassboro Police Department and charged with shoplifting. He was subsequently convicted of this offense and was fined $125.

The petitioner's next four arrests occured in March 1979. He was charged by the Cherry Hill Police Department with shoplifting on March 16, 1979. He was again charged by the Cherry Hill Police Department with shoplifting on March 21, 1979. In May 1980, the petitioner was found guilty on these charges and received a 60-day suspended sentence and two years of supervised probation. On March 24, 1979, the petitioner was arrested by the Merchantville Police Department and charged with two counts of shoplifting. Upon conviction of both counts, the petitioner was fined $100 and $25 costs on one count and fined $350 and $25 costs on the other count. According to Agent Hale, the petitioner told him that he took hams and cologne from a store in order to get money for alcohol and drugs. The petitioner was next arrested by the Camden Police Department on March 29, 1979 and charged with shoplifting. He was convicted of this charge and was fined $250 and ordered to pay $20 costs. Agent Hale testified that the petitioner said he took luggage in order to get money to pay for drugs.

On April 12 and April 24, 1979, the petitioner was arrested respectively by the Merchantville Police and the Camden Police and charged on both occasions with shoplifting. Both convictions resulted in $250 fines and the payment of costs (Exhibit R-7). The petitioner again explained to Agent Hale that he had taken items which he intended to sell so that he could buy drugs and alcohol.

On May 22, 1979, the petitioner was arrested by the Cherry Hill Police and charged with shoplifting. He was subsequently found guilty and given a 60-day suspended sentence, and he was placed on probation for two years. On May 30, 1979, the petitioner was arrested in Voorhees Township by the Patco High Speed Line Police. The petitioner was charged with a disorderly persons theft offense. He subsequently entered a plea of guilty and was given a suspended 30-day county jail sentence and placed upon one-year probation. The petitioner was also ordered to pay a $100 fine.

On June 5, 1979, the petitioner was arrested by the Camden Police and charged with shoplifting and possession of a controlled dangerous substance. He subsequently was convicted of the shoplifting offense and was fined $150. In regard to the possession of a controlled dangerous substance offense, the petitioner received a conditional discharge which was successfully completed. Agent Hale testified that the petitioner said he took items from a store in order to sell them and use the proceeds to buy drugs. The petitioner eventually was admitted to a rehabilitation center in Blackwood, New Jersey for one year of in-patient treatment and eight months of out-patient treatment for his drug and alcohol problems.

Agent Hale testified that the petitioner's next arrest occurred on July 3, 1979. He was charged by the Pennsauken Police with shoplifting. Upon his conviction, he was given a 30-day suspended jail sentence and one-year probation. The petitioner was also fined $250. He was next arrested by the Camden Police on April 6, 1980 and charged with theft by receiving stolen property. Although this charge was dismissed, the petitioner admitted to Agent Hale that he had stolen silverware from Bamberger's Department Store and was trying to sell it so that he could buy alcohol and drugs.

On December 12, 1982, the petitioner was arrested by the Washington Township (Gloucester County) Police and was charged with shoplifting. He was later convicted of this offense and was fined $250. He was also given a six-month suspended jail sentence and was placed on probation for a period of one year (Exhibit R-9). The petitioner told Agent Hale that he took the items so that he could sell them and buy drugs. On December 22, 1982, the petitioner was arrested by the Glassboro Police and charged with nine counts of writing bad checks (Exhibit R-10). The petitioner told Agent Hale that he had written checks while there were insufficient funds in his account. He admitted that he had been purchasing goods to sell so that he could buy drugs. The petitioner also told Agent Hale that he had been convicted and had been sentenced to serve a jail term of six months in the Gloucester County Jail.

The petitioner's last arrest occurred on January 20, 1986. He was charged by the Stratford Police with shoplifting. He was convicted in Municipal Court on April 9, 1986, and sentenced to 30 days in the county jail. Again, the petitioner told Agent Hale that he had stolen items so that he could sell them to buy drugs (Exhibit R-11).

Testifying on his own behalf, the petition candidly acknowledged and admitted his entire criminal arrest and conviction record. He stated that he is ashamed and embarrassed by it. According to the petitioner, he had used alcohol and drugs since high school and all of his criminal conduct occurred while he was under the influence.

In 1986 the petitioner was admitted to the Glenn Bay Hospital for a 28-day rehabilitation program. The petitioner stated that he went there because he wanted to, not because it would please the courts. As a result, he has been drug and alcohol-free since September 1986. The petitioner also had a year of aftercare following his release from Glenn Bay. It was his testimony that he attends an alcoholics anonymous or narcotics anonymous meeting at least twice a week.

The petitioner holds casino hotel employee registration number 56780-40. The non-gaming casino employee license which he seeks would permit his employment in a licensed casino as a bar porter. While acknowledging that he has had a drug and alcohol problem, the petitioner testified credibly that he will be able to resist these substances if he obtains the license which he seeks. He believes that drugs are readily available at casinos, but his fear and memories of his prior conduct under the influence will keep him from indulging again.

The petitioner offered numerous documents into evidence. Exhibit P-1 is a report from the New Jersey Higher Education Assistance Authority concerning the petitioner's outstanding balance on a studen loan. As of October 6, 1989, the petitioner had repaid $1,833.54 and had a total outstanding balance of $3,808.03. According to the petitioner, Exhibit P-2 represents proof of his payment in full of another loan. Exhibits P-3 and P-4 establish that the petitioner had fully settled his Citicorp Visa charge account. Exhibits P-5 and P-6 establish that the petitioner's Citibank Mastercard charge account was paid in full as of September 1988.

A letter from Frederick A. Earle, Ph.D., of the Therapeutic Intervention Centers in Atlantic City was admitted into evidence as Exhibit P-8. Dr. Earle reports that the petitioner successfully completed his chemical dependence rehabilitation program in September 1986. He confirms that the petitioner has been drug-free for the past three years. Custom Limousine Service Office Manager Gina M. Walk wrote in a letter dated October 23, 1989, that the petitioner is a very outstanding employee and that "no employer could ask for any finer." Her letter was admitted into evidence as Exhibit P-9. Coworker Cindy McCoy wrote that the petitioner is a responsible and conscientious individual and that she admires his honest and intellegent way of dealing with those around him (Exhibit P-11).

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to section 80a of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), it is the affirmative responsibility of each applicant and licensee to establish by clear and convincing evidence his individual qualification. Section 90 of the Act describes the qualification standards for casino employee licensure and it incorporates by reference the standards of section 89. Pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act, an applicant for a casino employee license must demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity.

The Division of Gaming Enforcement has objected to the petitioner's license application, based upon his record of arrests and convictions between 1971 and 1986. During that 15-year period, the petitioner was arrested in a number of jurisdictions, for a variety of offenses. The petitioner was convicted on 16 occasions, in the main for theft or shoplifting.

The credible evidence in the record establishes that the petitioner's arrests arose from his prolonged alcohol and drug abuse. His last arrest occurred in January 1986. From August 29, 1986, to September 27, 1986, the petitioner successfully completed a alcohol and drug rehabilitation program. He has since undergone out-patient counselling and he attends alcoholics anonymous or narcotics anonymous sessions weekly.

The petitioner has maintained his present employment for the past two years. He is well thought of by his superiors and is respected by his coworkers. They see him as an honest and reliable man. There can be no doubt that the petitioner's arrest and conviction record impacts negatively on his qualifications for licensure. However, the seriousness of that record is diminished significantly by the petitioner's attitude and conduct for the past three years. Having reviewed all of the credible evidence in this matter, I am convinced that the petitioner set his life on a new course three years ago and that he has established by clear and convincing evidence that he presently possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, within the meaning of sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act. I so CONCLUDE.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the application of Wallace R. DeShields for licensure as a casino employee permitting him to work in a licensed casino as a non-gaming employee be GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed; and a reply to the exceptions having been filed; and the Chair having agreed to expand the record to include the exhibits designated as R-3A, R-3B, R-4, R-5, P-5 and P-6; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of March 21, 1990,

IT IS on this 2nd day of April 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

(1) to reject the ALJ's ruling that the Division's exhibits R-3, R-4 and R-5 should be excluded because the evidence created a risk of undue prejudice. Incorporating the Chair's ruling on the admissibility of the resubmitted version of R-3 (R-3A and R-3B) as well as R-4, R-5, P-5 and P-6 the Commission finds that the probative value of this evidence is not significantly outweighed by any inherently inflammatory potential that would preclude a reasonable and fair evaluation of the basic issues in this case; and

(2) to reject the misinterpretation of section 107(a)(6) and Commission precedent contained within the ALJ's assertion that, while the Commission has rejected the residuum rule as applying to cases under the Casino Control Act, it nevertheless reintroduced "... some of the language of the residuum rule by making it a condition precedent to a finding of fact that reports such as these be either corroborated, uncontradicted... or undisputed by the person against whom the matter is sought to be admitted. Init. dec. at 6. Section 107(a)(6) establishes no conditions to the use of hearsay evidence other than the determination that the evidence be of the sort on which responsible persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs. Matters such as the existence of corroborating or contradictory evidence are but a few of the several factors to be considered in evaluating the reliability of evidence that is not legally competent evidence. A more complete listing of factors can be found in 3 Davis Administrative Law Treatise (2d ed. 1980), Section 16.6 at 243; and the applicant was not afforded a fair opportunity to controvert or explain this evidence as a result of the ALJ's exclusionary ruling. A remand would be required before such a finding could be entered. Upon consideration of the Division's exceptions in which it is essentially conceded that the evidence in the record as a whole could support a finding that the applicant is rehabilitated, for the reasons expressed by the ALJ at pp. 3-5 of the initial decision in support of his finding of rehabilitation, and upon our own independent evaluation of all the factors outlined in section 90, the Commission finds that even if the theft offense were assumed to be established, it is not one which renders Mr. Downey disqualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(2). Because there is significant overlap of the proofs necessary to establish rehabilitation and those necessary to establish good character, the Commission further finds that the ALJ's conclusion that Mr. Downey possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure is supported by the preponderance of the credible evidence in the record. See In the Matter of Charles Clentchscale for Licensure as a Casino Employee, Docket No. 79-EA-113 (Commission Decision April 22, 1980).

(3) to find R-4 and R-5 sufficiently reliable to establish that Mr. Downey was fired from his job at Trump Plaza for dishonesty. However, this finding does not bear upon the question of whether Downey was, in fact, dishonest. Based upon the present record, R-3A, R-3B, P-5 and P-6 would appear to support a finding that in 1985 Mr. Downey committed the disorderly persons offense of theft by unlawful taking in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. However,

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the application is granted substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on or about December 2, 1988, recommending that the Commission deny the application of the petitioner for a casino employee gaming license. The petitioner had allowed his previous casino employee gaming license to lapse. The petitioner requested a hearing on January 5, 1989, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 12, 1989, to be heard as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was conducted on March 17, 1989, before Stephen W. Thompson, Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), and a prehearing order was issued identifying the issues to be resolved at a plenary hearing as (1) whether or not the petitioner was convicted of a crime enumerated in the Casino Control Act (Act) and described as a disqualification from casino licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (1); the petitioner is alleged to have been convicted of the crime of possession of cocaine with the intent to distribute it; (2) whether the petitioner has the good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure required by the Act, N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2) and 90b, and; (3) whether the petitioner is rehabilitated from his drug conviction pursuant to the criteria set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

This Order was amended by the undersigned on October 24, 1989, because the Division amended its objection letter to add the issue of "inimicality" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (2). The Division charged (4) that petitioner's licensure would be inimical to the policy of the Act and to casino gaming because he is alleged to have committed acts which would constitute theft according to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. These acts were not prosecuted, but the Act permits the Division to introduce evidence which would constitute an offense described in the disqualification criteria of the Act. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

A plenary hearing was held on November 13, 1989. The record was continued open so that the Division would have an opportunity to verify affidavits introduced by the petitioner which the Division had not received in discovery due to inadvertence. The affidavits were apparently placed in the mail, but they were not received. The record closed on December 22, 1989, when the undersigned received the final letter from the Division on the verification process.

First Issue

The Division proved and the petitioner admitted that he was convicted by his plea of guilty on January 9, 1984, of possession of cocaine with the intent to distribute it, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a (1), since recodified as N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5. This is a disqualification from casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (1) and 90e. The circumstances of the arrest and conviction will be discussed hereafter. Unless the petitioner can affirmatively demonstrate his rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h, I will conclude that he is disqualified from casino employee licensure based upon his conviction of an enumerated offense.

Second Issue

The Division alleges that the petitioner lacks the good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2) and 90b. It raises this issue in the letter to the Commission recommending denial of the petitioner's application for licensure by pointing to his criminal record. It is therefore necessary to deal with the issue of rehabilitation prior to any analysis of the petitioner's good character. It can hardly be maintained that an unrehabilitated criminal offender enjoys good character.

Third Issue

The rehabilitation section of the Act permits a criminal offender to avoid disqualification if the offender can affirmatively establish rehabilitation according to certain guidelines. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

The first guideline simply asks what are the "nature and duties of the position applied for." Petitioner seeks licensure as a baccarat dealer. In such a position he will have continuous contact with patrons and their money. He will not be in a position to make policy although he will be charged with following the policy of the Commission and the Act. He will participate directly, but at the entry level, in casino operations.

The second factor in the rehabilitation analysis is the "nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct." Of course, possession of cocaine with the intent to distribute it is a serious offense. Petitioner's offense was treated seriously by the courts. Petitioner was fined $2,500.00 and placed on probation for two years. He also paid a $25.00 VCCB penalty.

The third factor is to determine the "circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred." The police reports in evidence detail a search of the petitioner's apartment which he shared with two other persons who were indicted with him. The cocaine was found in a bathroom adjoining the petitioner's bedroom. At the hearing, petitioner acknowledged that this bathroom was his and connected to the master bedroom which only he inhabited. Apparently, narcotics paraphenalia and some marijuana were scattered about other portions of the house. The total weight of the cocaine was approximately 20 grams.

The petitioner, in his plea, exculpated his codefendants, at least from the cocaine charges. He told this tribunal that he possessed cocaine in order to use it and share it with his roommates. This admission satisfies the statute against distribution. One does not have to be a street dealer, or worse, in order to be convicted of distribution. The Division's proofs do not contradict this testimony, except that paraphernalia found was also consistent with street distribution. This is not conclusive however. The admission is the minimum condition necessary to support a conviction for distribution. It is buttressed by the petitioner's explanation that he used cocaine to ease his fear. He suffers from a lung disease. He had once required lung surgery which kept him in the hospital for 40 days. His doctor advised him he would need more surgery. This caused the petitioner to seek solace in cocaine, he claims. The petitioner testified that he no longer uses drugs; his doctor told him that cocaine would kill him due to his lung disease if he continued to use it.

The fourth factor is the date of the offense. It occurred on August 13, 1983. The petitioner admits cocaine use on numerous occasions earlier in the year.

Fifth factor; the petitioner was 30 years old at the time of the arrest.

Sixth factor; the offense continued for a period of time during 1983 but the petitioner has no other criminal convictions.

Seventh factor; there is no evidence that social conditions contributed to the offense or conduct.

Eighth factor; there is significant evidence that the petitioner is rehabilitated. His probation officer testified that petitioner was an outstanding client and fully cooperated with her. He paid his fine and penalty early. He was open and freely discussed his situation with her.

The petitioner also offered testimony and affidavits which indicate that he is a worthy and useful member of society. He has organized a charity benefit on behalf of a friend who was seriously injured and who has since died. He has been active in the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. He has assisted in fundraising activities on behalf of sick and needy children. All of these activities have taken place since petitioner's arrest. They all indicate a satisfactory adjustment.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner is rehabilitated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and that he is not disqualified from casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and 90e.

Fourth Issue

The Division alleges in its amended letter of objection to the petitioner's licensure, that the petitioner is disqualified from casino employee licensure because he committed an "offense under present New Jersey or federal law which indicates that licensure of the applicant would be inimical to the policy of the Act and to casino operations;..." N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (2).

It is incumbent upon the Division to prove the existence of an offense under this statute in order to make the inimicality analysis relevant or pertinent. Proof of an offense is the sine qua non of the analysis.

In this case, the Division attempted to prove the existence of a theft offense by offering a "shoppers report" which indicated that the petitioner committed theft by failing to ring up bar sales when he was employed as a bartender at Harrah's Casino Hotel. I deduce from the arguments of counsel that Harrah's employed a firm of "shoppers" to report on its employees.

The firm supplied persons who posed as customers and who observed, for better or worse, the conduct of employees at the casino and casino hotel. While such a report is admissible in evidence in hearings conducted under the authority of the Commission pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-107 and Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Merlino 8 N.J.A.R. 126, 164, 165 (1985), the report was rejected in this case.

The report is hearsay. But hearsay is admissible in all New Jersey administrative hearings. N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5 and N.J.S.A. 5:12-107. In all administrative hearings except those held under the auspices of the Commission, hearsay is subject to the residuum rule. This rule requires that "some legally competent evidence must exist to support each ultimate finding of fact to an extent sufficient to provide assurances of reliability and to avoid the fact or appearance of arbitrariness." N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5(b).

In the Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Merlino, the Commission rejected the residuum rule and pointed out that the legislature had created a different standard in the Act itself at section 107. That section requires only that evidence be relevant to be admissible, and that it be the "sort of evidence upon which responsible persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs" in order to support a finding.

The Merlino decision, while rejecting the residuum rule, reintroduces some of the language of the residuum rule by making it a condition precedent to a finding of fact that reports such as these be either corroborated, uncontradicted by direct or other reliable testimony or undisputed by the person against whom the matter is sought to be admitted. 8 N.J.A.R. 164, 165. Adoptive admissions for instance are legally competent evidence. R. 63 (8). Nevertheless, Merlino and section 107 permit something less than legally competent evidence to corroborate, but there must be something about the evidence which dignifys it sufficiently to induce responsible persons to rely upon it in the conduct of important business.

The Commission's reasoning was affirmed by the Appellate Division in the same case at 216 N.J. Super. 579 (A.D. 1987), affirmed 109 N.J. 134.

In pretrial discovery, the Division supplied (inadvertently it claims) notes prepared by some unidentified person who compared the shoppers report with the actual cash register tapes and who concluded that the shoppers report was "not a very reliable document." Good faith discovery requires that just this sort of note be provided. N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.1.

The Division had no corroborative evidence in addition to the reports, or to supplement them, only the disclaimer of an unknown person. The petitioner, when confronted with the evidence, claimed it was "very unjust" and protested his termination based on the reports. The Division would not or could not produce the "shopper" who prepared the report. It did not know who at the casino compared the reports to the cash register tape, and apparently it did not seek to find out. This created a risk of undue prejudice so great that I excluded the report under N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.1 (c) 2, which is essentially similar to R. 4. It is axiomatic that an administrative hearing be "fair."

It is patently unfair to admit evidence which bears directly on the ultimate issue and which is subject to a condition precedent in order to be deemed sufficiently trustworthy to support a finding, when it is known in advance that the condition will not be satisfied or fulfilled. The converse of this statement leads only to mischief and to trial by innuendo and insinuation.

Based on the failure of the Division's proofs, I am unable to find that the petitioner committed an offense and must therefore CONCLUDE that the Division has failed to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the petitioner committed an offense which would indicate that his licensure would be inimical to the policy of the Act or to casino operations as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86 c (2).

Second Issue Revisited

The casino enabling act requires all casino employees to prove by clear and convincing evidence that they possess good character, honesty and integrity. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b. The legislature did not define "good character, honesty and integrity." It left the business of definition to the Casino Control Commission and to the courts.

The Commission decided that "(t)hese concepts are so commonly employed and so well understood that elaboration is unnecessary." In re Resorts Casino Application, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 250 (1979). The courts have also declined to define the words. Judge Fritz was satisfied that "the words 'good character' in the context of the Casino Control Act leave to men of common intelligence little doubt about their meaning." In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License, 180 N.J. Super. 324, 346 (1981), affirmed, 90 N.J. 361. 369.

Cases reported in New Jersey Administrative Reports (N.J.A.R.) also do not contain a definition of good character, honesty and integrity. Opinions merely state that some conduct, or lapse thereof, such as failing to advise the Casino Control Commission about a criminal history, reflects adversely upon the applicant's good character, honesty and integrity. Marino v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 2 N.J.A.R. 176, 182 (1980); Woodard v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 2 N.J.A.R. 231, 236 (1980). Other conduct, such as associating with organized criminals, having a bad attitude towards the regulatory scheme, or engaging in questionable business practices, have been mentioned as reasons for denying licensure to an applicant. Once the conduct is established, the reason given for the denial is the applicant's failure to possess good character, honesty and integrity. In re Doumani, 11 N.J.A.R. 407. By requiring that an applicant prove good character, honesty and integrity, the legislature meant to test whether the person was or was not a risk to casino gambling and the public which casinos serve. Character flaws, instances of dishonesty, and a lack of integrity are all indicators that a person is such a risk.

Paul Downey, a convicted but rehabilitated drug offender, does not appear to be such a risk. He has no residuum of drug induced behavior according to his probation officer. He is an open, friendly and caring person according to her testimony. His friends think well enough of him to testify on his behalf. John Polakas, a New York attorney, traveled to Atlantic City in order to describe the petitioner's state of mind during his drug period. Polakas was familiar with petitioner's medical condition and depression in 1983.

Drew Christy, John Inemer and Angela Di Giuseppe prepared certifications on behalf of petitioner. Christy knew petitioner from high school days. He said that petitioner organized a charity benefit for an injured friend. This is a caring act and confirms the probation officer's observations. Di Giuseppe knows petitioner only through the National Multiple Sclerosis Society (MSS) in which he participated as an organizer of the Ugly Bartender Contest, the proceeds of which go to MSS. Inemer, a politician in Philadelphia, utilizes petitioner, not only in elections, but in charity affairs. It is true, based upon petitioner's own testimony, that he is not a "mover and shaker" in charity circles. His participation is limited to setting up chairs, tables and booths and taking them down again when the affair is over, or collecting money from bartenders and forwarding it to the appropriate chairperson.

The Division points out that petitioner incurred two convictions as a young man in Wildwood, New Jersey, during the summer of 1970 and 1972. These disorderly persons offenses were youthful offenses and cannot affect the petitioner's present character since there were no intervening arrests between 1972 and 1983. The arrests were for possession or use of a small amount of marijuana. These arrests were discounted in 1981 when the petitioner was first licensed and can safely be discounted now. This petitioner appears not to be a risk to the casino industry. On the contrary, he appears to be just such a community minded and caring individual as to reflect credit on the industry rather than discredit.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)2 and 90(b).

I ORDER that the letter complaint filed herein be dismissed.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge (ALJ) having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed by both parties; and the applicant having filed a motion for stay of the Commission's determination in this matter; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meetings of August 16 and 30, 1989,

(1) to reject the ALJ's determination that the applicant committed the offense of unsworn falsification to authorities contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:28-3(b)(1). Bally's security personnel to whom the applicant made the false statement are not "public servants" which is an essential element of the offense;

(3) to find, upon consideration of all the rehabilitation factors particularly the seriousness and circumstances of the offense including the applicant's duplicitous efforts to conceal her wrongdoing, that the applicant is disqualified pursuant to section 86(c)(2); and

(4) to adopt the ALJ's conclusion that the applicant failed to establish her good character, honesty and integrity, but note that such finding is based upon the seriousness with which a theft from a patron must be viewed, together with the importance which must be placed upon the applicant's willful conduct designed to frustrate the investigation into the theft by casino security personnel.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the renewal application is denied substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference;

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Doris E. Dunston is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any other license, registration, qualification or approval required under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the applicant's motion for stay is denied.

Record Closed: April 20, 1989 Decided: June 21, 1989

BEFORE RICHARD J. MURPHY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Doris Dunston (petitioner or applicant) has applied for renewal of her casino employee license (gaming) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 5:12-86, 89, 90 and 107 and the Division of Gaming Enforcement objects on the basis of an incident on April 13, 1985, in which the applicant was alleged to have taken an unspecified amount of money from a patron in the slot machine area of Bally's Park Place Hotel/Casino. Dunston claimed to DGE that she had found the money on the slot machines and had placed it in a locker for safe keeping. Security officers allegedly recovered $63 in $1 tokens. No criminal charges were filed, following the return of tokens to the patron. The Applicant is currently employed at the Claridge.

Hotel/Casino. She requested a hearing on November 16, 1988 and the matter was referred to the Office of Administrative Law on December 16, 1988 for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. The hearing was held on April 20, 1989 at which time the record closed. The time for submission of an initial decision was extended until June 22, 1989 for reasons not relevant to this case.

ISSUES

1. Whether the conduct of the Applicant involving the taking of the tokens from a patron in April 1985 renders her licensure inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act notwithstanding the fact that the act was not prosecuted. See, N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(2),(g);

2. Whether the Applicant can establish by clear and convincing evidence her good character, honesty and integrity as required for licensure under N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b) as per 5:12-90(b).

FINDINGS OF FACT

Petitioner Doris E. Dunston started working the Casino industry in the summer of 1981, when she got a job as a public area attendant with the United Company, which then had a cleaning contract with Bally's Park Place Hotel and Casino. She subsequently became an "in-house" employee of Bally's in 1982 or 1983 and was considered to be an casino employee working under a license issued by the Casino Control Commission (CCC) (T-8). Her job at Bally's was to clean the slot area, including the quarter, dollar and fifty cent sections. United had no formal policy for disposing of money left behind by patrons, but the company was "relaxed" and Ms. Dunston was under the impression that she could keep what she found in the slots, provided it was not "big money" and the casino was closed or closing (T22 to 23). Ms. Dunston stated that she would, however, have left alone or turned in fifty or one hundred dollars in tokens if patrons were still playing in the area of slot machines where she was working (T24, 7-11). There was no evidence introduced to show that Bally's had any formal policy of "finders-keepers" (T11), or requiring the cleaning staff to turn in such found money.

On April 13, 1985, Petitioner was cleaning the slots on the midnight to 8:00 am shift. At approximately 12:31 p.m. a patron in the "P" [progressive] slot area complained that a public area attendant had taken a cup containing 65 to 70 dollar tokens from behind a fifty cent slot which she was playing. Bally Security was contacted and interviewed the victim, who claimed tht a cleaning woman had approached her, asked if the cup of coins was hers, and then, after being advised that it was, made off with the tokens (unbeknownst to the victim) (R-3). The victim later claimed that $135 in tokens had been taken, but ultimately stated that the cup was only one third full and contained approximately $65 in dollar tokens.

Ms. Dunston, who was working in the "P" slot area at the time, was questioned by Security and, initially, denied in a written statement that she had taken a cup of tokens from the second area of the progressive slots:

> I was cleaning slots in the second progressive slots when I found a pack of cigarettes asking the near lady to them if they were her's. Upon her negative reply I proceeded to clean the area. I came around the quarter slots in the isle where I told the guard Audrey I was going to remove my sweater. Upon return to my section I was told I was accused of taking a cup of money. At no time did I remove any cup from this section (R-1; emphasis added).

Petitioner verbally gave essentially the same statement to Lt. P.K. Smith (R-3), who subsequently checked her locker and found no tokens. At approximately 5:45 a.m. a "confidential source" advised Lt. Smith that Ms. Dunston had indeed taken the coins and had asked a friend to place them in her locker for safekeeping (Ibid). The tokens were located in the locker of the "friend," (Remel Terry) who initially denied any knowledge of them. Lt. Smith again interviewed Ms. Dunston and noted in his report that:

> I then showed her the tokens and informed her that they had been found in Terry's locker. At this point Dunston admitted her involvement. She stated that she had found the tokens unattended and taken them first to the ladies room and them to her locker. After being questioned the first time by him she took a break and asked Terry to hold them for her. Terry then placed them inside of her own locker . . . (R-3 at 2; emphasis added).

Remel Terry, Ms. Dunston's co-worker, later admitted that she had lied to protect the Petitioner (Ibid). Ms. Dunston also provided a second statement:

> This is a true statement resolving Remel Terry of any wrong doing. All she did was help a friend out. I found the money in the slots - there was no one around. I then took the coins to my locker. After being questioned by security I gave them to Mel for safe keeping. This statement void all other previous ones (R-2; emphasis added).

At the hearing, petitioner gave the following account of the incident on April 13, 1985. On that occasion, she was on the midnight shift and was cleaning the "right hand side of the palace" in the slot areas when she found a cup of dollar tokens in the dollar slot section (T9-10). She states that she took the money out of the cup and put it in her pocket and continued to clean the dollar section. Still carrying the tokens, she moved on to the fifty cent section and encountered a woman near a pack of cigarettes in a Bally's cup and inquired as to whether they belonged to the woman and was advised that they did not. She moved on down the row and then determined to remove the sweater which she was wearing and advised the guards that she was going to the bathroom for that purpose. She didn't, at this time, put the tokens in her locker, but transferred them to a bag containing a pair of gloves. When she returned to the floor, she was contacted by Security which stated that a woman had claimed that Petitioner had stolen some of her money. According to Ms. Dunston, the woman was inebriated and could not identify her as the thief; She also did not recognize the woman. After her initial conversation with Security, during which she had the tokens in her possession, the petitioner went to her friend Remel Terry and asked her to put the tokens in her locker for safe keeping. Ms. Dunston's reaction to the allegation of theft was "I said darn, the first time I ever find anything here comes this lady and says that she lost a cup of money" (T-13, 6-8). As far as the Petitioner can remember, the cup did not contain $63 when she found it, and she claims that she mingled the tokens with other coins found by her that evening. Her intention was to cash the tokens in the next day, when the casino reopened. When asked whether she thought the money might have belonged to someone else she answered:

> No, because I would have thought if somebody else had left the money there they would have come back. The first time I went around I left the money there and I came back again and it was still there, so I said well, no one has come back, and it was an empty slot area where I was working at the time (T17, 4-11).

Petitioner claims that the written statement by Lt. P.K. Smith is, in part, a "fabrication" in that she denies that she ever spoke to the woman reporting the theft, because she "couldn't even speak to anyone because the lady was so drunk she was laying all over the floor" (T18, 12-25; T24). Ms. Dunston also claimed that the woman to whom she had spoken to in the fifty cent section was not the woman who reported the theft (T25, 6-15). Petitioner claims that her written statement in exhibit R-1 that she at no time removed a cup of money from the section referred only to the fifty cent section, and not the dollar section, where she found the cup of coins. She claims that her second statement to security (R-2) was intended only to exonerate her friend, Remel Terry, and was not intended to retract or alter her statement (T31-32). In answer to a question as to why she had not put the cup of tokens in her locker, petitioner claimed that she asked her friend Remell Terry to use her locker because she was less busy, but Ms. Dunston also concedes that she knew that security had already been through her locker before she gave the first statement denying that she had found the cup of tokens (T34). She claims that she did not ask Ms. Terry to store the money in order to conceal it from security, but merely because it was more convienent (T34, 21-25). Ms. Dunston also stated that she was basically a very honest person and that "[i] f I had thought that this was this lady's money, I would have given it to her, because that was the way I was raised. I was not trying to mislead you and I didn't misled Bally's security about it. I didn't speak to this lady, I didn't see this lady, I didn't take this lady's money. I am sorry if you feel that I did, but I didn't. I know what is right and wrong" (T-41, 10-18).

Petitioner currently works at the Claridge Hotel and Casino and presented four letters of reference from her current casino supervisors, who all testified that she is an outstanding, reliable employee and honest (A-1-A-5). She also submitted a letter from Mr. David P. Richardson, Jr., a member of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, attesting to her reputation as a peaceful, law-abiding citizen (A-5). On cross-examintion it was admitted that neither Petitioner's casino supervisors nor her legislature representative, knew the particular details of her termination at Bally's involving the alleged theft of a patron's tokens.

The Division did not present any testimony from the victim of the theft, to whom the money was returned and who declined to press criminal charges. Nor was any testimony presented by DGE from security officers at Bally's including Lt. P.K. Smith, whose report contains no indication that the victim positively identified the Petitioner as the culprit. Indeed, Lt. Smith noted that the victim was not told from whom the money had been recovered (R-3 at 2).

There is no dispute as to the above facts, except as indicated below. On the basis of the Petitioner's testimony, which is corroborated by Lt. Smith's report, I FIND as a matter of fact that the victim of this alleged theft did not positively identify the petitioner as the cleaning person who made off with her cup of tokens. I also note that the "victim" was observed by the Petitioner to be in a state of extreme intoxication, and later inflated the amount of the lost coins to $135. Ms. Dunston does not dispute providing two written statements to security, subject to her explanation as to why she did so.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

(1) Inimicality

The Division argues that the offense of taking $63 in tokens from a patron, even if not prosecuted, indicates that the continued licensure of the applicant would be inimical to the policy of the act and to casino operations pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(2)(g). Specifically, the Division argues that Ms. Dunston's conduct was tantamount to a theft offense as proscribed by N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. Although there is little question that such an offense, if it occurred, would indeed be inimical within the meaning of that section, there is insufficient evidence in this case to conclude that the Petitioner committed theft within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. In particular, there is no statement from the victim or other evidence identifying Petitioner as the thief. There is no dispute that the Petitioner took a cup of tokens from the slot area, and asked a friend to store it in the friend's locker after Petitioner had given what was, at best, a misleading statement to Security. But the fact that the petitioner acted to conceal the money, after learning that there was a claim of theft is not necessarily inconsistent with her testimony that she found the cup of tokens unattended in the slot area. Bally's policy as to such

"found money" was unclear at best and the petitioner credibly claims that she was still acting under the informal "finders - keepers" practice of the United Company. Under these circumstances, I CONCLUDE that the Division has failed to establish the elements of a theft offense under N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3.

Neverltheless petitioner's action in giving a false statement to Bally's Security does constitute an unsworn falsification to authorities in that it was a written false statement which she knew not to be true. N.J.S.A. 2C:28-3(b)(1). I am not persuaded by her claim that her initial statement denying that she took the money was indeed true. Her subsequent admission that she took the money states that "this is a true statement" and is more credible than the first statement of denial given (See, R-1; R-2). I therefore CONCLUDE that the applicant committed the offense of submitting an unsowrn falsification to authorities within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 2C:28-3, which is a disorderly persons.

In assessing the claim that Petitioner's continued licensure would be inimical because of this offense, the Casino Control Commission must also consider the factors of rehabilitation as set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h which have been held to be subsumed within the concept of inimicality. In determining whether rehabilitation has been shown, the Commission must review the following factors:

(1) The nature and duties of the registrant's position applied for;
(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
(4) The date of the offense or conduct;
(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;
(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

The nature and duties of the position applied for involve general cleaning responsibilities on the casino floor and do not, in the regular course of that job, involve the handling of money or tokens, although it does require some contact with patrons having money in their possession (factor 1). The conduct of submitting an unsworn falsification to Bally's Security employees was serious in that it obstructed or attempted to obstruct an investigation into the alleged theft of a patron's slot tokens. The false statement, which was an isolated and not repeated incident, was given by the Petitioner after being questioned by security officers in connection with an alleged theft and was most likely intended by her to mislead the investigators and to keep the tokens she found, which she had a friend store in her locker (factors 2 to 6 of N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h). (I neglected to determine the applicant's age at the time of the conduct: she now appears to be in her late thirties). She cites no social conditions contributing to the conduct (factor 7). In terms of evidence of rehabiliation, she offers her unblemished work record at the Claridge Hotel and Casino as attested to by her supervisors (factor 8).

On the basis of the petitioner's untarnished work record both before and after this unrepeated incident in 1985, I CONCLUDE that her continued licensure would not be inimical within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)2, g. While the conduct in submitting a false statement was serious, it was a momentary lapse of judgment by the Petitioner, who intended to keep what apparently she had found on the casino floor. Under these circumstances, and given her otherwise unblemished record, she is not disqualified by the operation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2). However, she must also establish her good character, honesty and integrity.

(2) Good Faith, Honesty and Integrity

In order to qualify for a casino employee license, an Applicant must "produce such information, documentation and assurances as may be required to establish by clear and convincing evidence the applicant's good character, honesty and integrity." See, N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b. The applicant thus must establish good character, honesty and integrity as a matter of fact by clear and convincing evidence and not merely as a matter of reputation, See, Application of Boardwalk Regency Corp. for a Casino License, 90 N.J. 361, 369 (1982), appeal dismissed, 459 U.S. 1081 (1982). Applicants have been found to lack good character, honesty and integrity as a matter of fact where there was evidence that they have engaged in such nefarious activities as procuring prostitutes for foreign officials engaged in casino regulation or swindling casino patrons by altering dice. See, e.g., Alter v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 6 N.J.A.R. 584 (1979); Div. of Gaming Enforcement v. Matta, 5 N.J.A.R. 439 (1983). These examples are not exclusive and each case must be examined on its particular merits.

The requirement that an applicant establish good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence is imposed by N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b and goes beyond the Threshadd requirement that an applicant not be disqualified by inimical conduct under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2)g. In this instance, although the petitioner's licensure might not be inimical to the policy of the Act and to casino operations, so as to preclude registration of the petitioner, I CONCLUDE that she has failed to establish her good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence because of her conduct in submitting unsworn falsification to obstruct an investigation and, in attempting to conceal tokens taken from the casino floor. These actions were intentional, and designed to mislead security officers investigating the alleged theft. While petitioner has shown sufficient rehabilitation to reasonably support a conclusion that she is not statutorily disqualified from registration under the Act, conduct of this kind precludes a finding that she has met the requirements of N.J.S.. 5:12-89(b)(2), 90b. It may be, as the Petitioner claims, that she is basically a very honest person who acted in an innocent manner on April 13, 1985, which is now being misconstrued, but the facts submitted establish that she engaged in conduct to thwart an investigation into a patron's claim of theft and she thus has failed to establish the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for renewal of her casino employee license.

DISPOSITION

On the basis of the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, it is ORDERED that the application of Doris E. Dunston for renewal of her casino employee license is DENIED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: February 9, 1990 Decided: March 22, 1990

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), Department of Law and Public Safety, alleges that respondent Cheryl A. Edmunds committed criminal misconduct which was inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act (Act) pursuant to section 86c (2) and that respondent lacks the good character, honesty and integrity for licensure in the casino industry. The Division seeks judgment revoking respondent's casino employee license and casino hotel registration, pursuant to section 129 (1) of the Act.

On June 29, 1989, the matter was transmitted from the Casino Control Commission (Commission) to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was held on September 28, 1989 followed by a Prehearing Order, dated October 3, 1989. A hearing was held on January 8, 1990 at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The hearing record was held open to allow the Division to respond to the evidence offered by respondent which she failed to provide to the Division in discovery. The Division response was received by the undersigned on February 9, 1990, which constitutes the closing of the hearing record.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this tribunal and as agreed to by the parties at the prehearing conference are these:

A. Whether respondent's continued licensure and registration is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (2) because she is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, Theft by Unlawful Taking?

B. Whether the respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2)?

UNCONTESTED FACTS

Based upon respondent's testimony and the documents moved into evidence by the Division, the following facts are neither contested nor in dispute. Accordingly, the following uncontested facts are hereby adopted, by reference, as my FINDINGS of FACT in this matter:

Respondent, who was 23 years of age at the time of hearing, is the holder of casino hotel employee registration no. 78545-40 and casino employee license no. 76397-21. On or about April 3, 1989, respondent was employed by TropWorld

Casino and Entertainment Resort as a slot attendant under her casino employee license. On this date, respondent was the subject of a surveillance by the TropWorld Surveillance Department where, at approximately 8:00 p.m., respondent was observed to enter a 50 cent slot machine that had a $10 payout on it and place in excess of $40 in 50 cent tokens in an unknown patrons coin cup. Detective Hungridge of the New Jersey State Police (NJSP) attempted to question respondent about the surveillance observations, however, she had ended her work shift and departed the casino for the day (P-1).

Subsequently, on April 9 and 10, 1989, respondent was again the subject of a surveillance and thereafter she was questioned by Detective Hungridge. In his Supplementary Investigation Report dated April 10, 1989, Detective Hungridge stated the following:

> On this date the undersigned observed Cheryl Edmunds meet with the same unknown W/F patron that Edmunds paid the 50 cent tokens to on the previous night. The undersigned went to the Casino floor to question both Edmunds and the unk. patron. The patron had already departed the Casino. Edmunds was taken to the TropWorld D.G.E. Office where she was read her Miranda Rights and questioned by the undersigned.
> Edmunds admitted that she did in fact pay out at least $60.00 in 50 cent tokens to the W/F patron who according to Edmunds she did not know her name or where she lived. Edmund claimed that she only knew the patron by her coming to TropWorld. Edmunds stated that the patron gave her a $20.00 tip.
>
> Edmunds further admitted that she had been giving this same patron and another unknown B/F patron slot tokens for the past four months. Edmunds stated that she had received tips ranging as high as $50.00 from the two patrons in return for the free tokens.
>
> The TropWorld surveillance dept. observed Edmunds receiving a package from another unknown patron on the previous night. (4-9-89) Edmunds admitted that she received a gift for her son and from a Mr. & Mrs. Mayo that night. Edmunds stated that she only knows Mr. & Mrs. Mayo and the other two patrons from them coming into the casino. Edmunds stated that she has never paid any tokens to the Mayo's.

The undersigned signed Complaint Summons #S311128 against Edmunds for Theft By Unlawful Taking. Case pending Court. (P-1).

As a consequence of Detective Hungridge's investigation, respondent was placed under arrest and charged with Theft by Unlawful Taking, a N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 offense. Respondent was terminated from her employment position with TropWorld on or about April 10, 1989. On May 26, 1989, respondent appeared before the Atlantic City Municipal Court where she was adjudged to be guilty of the N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 offense. Respondent was fined $75, with $25 in court costs assessed against her and she was penalized $30 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board.

Respondent readily admits to the violation asserting, on the record, that she committed this offense on at least eight or ten occasions. She testified that she would deliver coins from the slot machines to approximately seven different individuals. She could not estimate the loss TropWorld suffered as a result of her activities.

On May 31, 1989, the Division filed a complaint with the Commission wherein it requested, among other things, the suspension of respondent's registration and license. On June 22, 1989, the Commission entered an order suspending respondent's casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration, pending the final disposition of the Division's complaint.

On September 5, 1989, respondent was arrested with a companion, Andrea C. Toney, in the Showboat Hotel and Casino by the N.J.S.P. as a consequence of the Showboat's surveillance department observations of the two women on the casino floor. Respondent admits that she acted as a look-out for Ms. Toney while Ms. Toney took a purse out of an open pocketbook held by a Showboat patron, Ms. Glady M. Cifelli. Respondent also admits that it was she who identified and pointed out the open pocketbook to Ms. Toney.

On September 5, 1989, Detective Harold R. Vliet of the N.J.S.P. filed complaints against both women and charged them both with violations of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2, Conspiracy and N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, Theft. Thereafter, the Atlantic County Grand Jury handed up a true bill alleging that respondent and Andrea C. Toney had committed the N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 offense and that they both were liable for the conduct of the other, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:2-6. There was no reported disposition of this matter at the time of the herein hearing.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b (8) establishes that licensure under the Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." Section 129(1) of the Act provides for the revocation of or other sanction against the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his license." The Division contends that respondent Edmund's alleged violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 constitutes a violation of section 86c (2) and that, accordingly, her license and registration should be revoked.

Disqualifying Offense Under Section 86c (2) of the Act

Section 86c (2)of the Act is commonly referred to as the "inimical clause." In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License (Resorts), Casino Control Commission No. 79-CL-1 (February 26, 1979), the Commission set forth the criteria to be applied in individual cases when a determination is made as to whether an offense is inimical to the policies of the Act. The Commission stated at 15:

> Whether an offense is "inimical" to the Act and to legalized gaming is a question which can only be resolved in the circumstances of each case. The nature of the offense, the events surrounding it, including any mitigating or aggravating factors, the remoteness of the offense and the offender's conduct since the offense to the present are all matters to be considered. Without limiting the notion of what is "inimical" to the Act or to gaming, it would appear to encompass those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations.

In the enabling legislation authorizing casino gaming, the Legislature set forth specific policy considerations which appear to be directly related to the intent and purpose of the inimical clause. Specifically, section 1b (6) of the Act states:

> An integral and essential element of the regulation and control of such casino facilities by the State rests in the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations.

Our Supreme Court emphasized the significance of strict regulation of all phases of the casino industry in Knight v. Margate, 86 N.J. 374, 381 (1981), where it said:

> At the very heart of the public policy embraced by the new law is "the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations." N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6). Related directly to this purpose, the Legislature stated that "the regulatory provisions...are designed to extend strict State regulation to all persons...practices and associations related to" casinos and that "comprehensive law enforcement supervision...is further designed to contribute to the public confidence and trust in the efficacy and integrity of the regulatory process."

In In the Matter of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union Local 54, (N.J. App. Div., July 11, 1985, A993-82T5, A-317-84T5, A-525-84T5, A-880-84T5) (unreported at 17) the Appellate Division held that inimical means "adverse to the policy of the act and gaming operation," i.e., contrary to strict regulatory controls over all facets of casino activities.

The Division contends that the respondent's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3; theft, which under the circumstances renders continued licensure and registration to be inimical to the Act.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3a defines the crime of theft as follows:

> A person is guilty of theft if he unlawfully takes, or exercises unlawful control over, movable property of another with purpose to deprive him thereof.

In the matter of Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 at 313, the Commission quoted from Resorts and the criteria for determination as to whether an offense is inimical to the Act. The Commission continued to hold in Davis that rehabilitation under sections 90h and 91d of the Act do not apply to disqualifying convictions under section 86c (4) (now section 86c (2)). However, many of the factors of these two sections of the Act are to be considered within the inimical analysis. Those enumerated factors in section 90h, which apply to a claim of rehabilitation by a casino employee license applicant, are as follows:

> (1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;
>
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
>
> (4) The date of the offense;
>
> (5) The age of the applicant (licensee) when the offense was committed;
>
> (6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
>
> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling, or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release program or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

First, respondent is the holder of a casino hotel employee registration no. 78545-40 and casino employee license no. 76397-21. Respondent was employed by TropWorld as a slot attendant where, the record demonstrates, she had frequent and direct contact with casino patrons. As a consequence of a complaint filed with the Atlantic City Municipal Court, respondent was terminated from her position by TropWorld on or about April 10, 1989. Respondent seeks to retain her casino employee license as well as her casino hotel employee registration.

Second. Theft is a serious offense. Although the total amounts to have been taken by respondent are uncertain, the fact remains that she committed the offense against her employer. Respondent had a duty to protect the interests of her employer, TropWorld. Instead, she violated that duty and the trust bestowed upon her when she opened a slot machine to make a payout to a patron which exceeded the amount of the payout due to the patron.

Third, fourth and fifth. The offenses were observed on April 3, 9 and 10, 1989, when respondent was 22 years of age. The misconduct occurred when a patron would win on a slot machine and the slot machine failed to make the proper payout. Respondent would then open the malfunctioning machine in order to make the payout to the patron. If, for example, the win was $10, respondent would make a payout to the patron of $40-$60. Respondent also admitted that she was in receipt of "tips" from patrons from time to time when the patron "hit something." (TR. 15).

Sixth. Respondent was observed by TropWorld surveillance on three occasions and she admits to between eight and ten occasions when she committed the act of theft against TropWorld. The record demonstrates, therefore, that respondent's conduct was not an isolated event but, rather, repeated violations over a period of time.

Respondent's subsequent arrest on September 5, 1989, in the Showboat with Ms. Toney demonstrates a total disregard for the property rights of others. In this instance, respondent not only conspired to act as the look-out for an illegal activity but, in addition, she pointed out the potential victim. This conduct, coupled with events in April 1989, demonstrate respondent's penchant for repeated criminal activity and may not be condoned.

Seventh. There were no social conditions extant which contributed to respondent's conduct with regard to any of the offenses.

Eighth. Respondent provided no evidence of rehabilitation or efforts to be rehabilitated.

Having carefully considered the entire record before me, I CONCLUDE that the Division has carried its burden of proof, by a preponderance of the reliable and credible evidence. It has demonstrated that respondent's conduct of committing at least one N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 offense is inimical to the policies of the Act and, thus, to the gaming industry. I further CONCLUDE that such conduct disqualifies respondent from holding a casino employee license and a casino hotel employee registration, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (2).

Good Character, Honesty and Integrity as Required by Section 89b(2) of the Act.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), respondent is required to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979) at 8; Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985); In re Boardwalk Regency Corp. Casino License, 90 N.J. 361 (1982). When, as here, the Division raises the issue as to the licensee's good character, honesty and integrity, it is incumbent upon the licensee to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which this tribunal may reach a reasonable conclusion. Boardwalk Regency, supra, In the Matter of the Application of Boardwalk Regency Corp. and the Jemm Company for Casino License, Casino Control Commission (November 13, 1980). In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of the licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure.

Clear and convincing, falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here, the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the fact alleged is true; i.e., that respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity. The standard requires more than a mere balancing of probabilities, but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (L. Div. 1974); Germann v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466 (App. Div. 1969).

Respondent produced a series of five documents addressed to "To Whom it May Concern." Three of the five letters, although complementary, make no reference to respondent's conduct at TropWorld or the reasons for her termination. Nor do these three letters address respondent's conduct on September 5, 1989 at the Showboat. Two of the five letters allude to some difficulty respondent may have had in the past, however, there is nothing specific with respect to her conduct or the events at TropWorld or the Showboat.

Respondent offered a neighbor, Steven Edwards, who testified on her behalf. He asserted, among other things, that respondent was a follower rather than a leader and she had to stop following bad people; i.e., people who went to steal. Mr. Evans admitted on the record that he was aware of the incidents of theft which occurred at TropWorld, however, he was not aware of the event which involved the taking of a pocketbook at the Showboat until he heard about it from respondent just before the hearing.

Considering all of the circumstances regarding this issue, I CONCLUDE that respondent has failed to meet her burden of proof to demonstrate, by clear and convincing evidence, that she possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for continued licensure in the casino industry.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that respondent is disqualified from continued licensure by virtue of her failure to affirmatively establish her good character, honesty and integrity as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2).

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the casino hotel registration no. 78545-40 and the casino employee license no. 76397-21 issued to and held by Cheryl A. Edmunds be and are hereby REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: November 21, 1989 Decided: January 12, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On January 25, 1988, the Division of Gaming Enforcement prepared a letter to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) recommending that the Commission deny the application of Estrada for a non-gaming, maintenance and cleaning, casino employee license.

On May 26, 1988, the Division filed a complaint against Estrada with the Commission seeking revocation of Estrada's casino hotel registration.

Estrada requested a hearing in both matters.

After several postponements at the request of Estrada, the matters were tried to a conclusion on October 19, 1989, although the record was held open until November 21, 1989, in order to permit the Division to inquire into the bona fides of certain letters which Estrada offered in evidence but had not supplied to the Division in pretrial discovery. The undersigned requested, and was granted, an extension in which to file this initial decision.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND ISSUES PRESENTED FOR DETERMINATION

The Division alleged that Estrada was convicted of aggravated assault contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(1), a crime of the second degree. This crime is one of the crimes enumerated in the Casino Control Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. at section 86c 1. Any person convicted of one of the enumerated crimes is disqualified from casino employee licensure and casino hotel employee registration. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90e and 91b.

No person shall be disqualified as a result of such a conviction, however, if that person can affirmatively demonstrate rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and 91d. A further qualification for casino employee licensure, but not for casino hotel registration, is possession by the applicant or licensee of good character, honesty and integrity. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The State proved, and Estrada admitted, that he was convicted of aggravated assault. Estrada also explained the circumstances of his offense. He said that a petty thief who lived in Estrada's apartment complex burglarized Estrada's cousin's apartment. The thief stole her welfare money. The thief was discovered and confronted by relatives of Estrada and of the cousin. Someone at the scene had a baseball bat which Estrada used as a wedge, he claimed, to try to keep the thief from closing his apartment door. The police arrived. The thief ran. Someone (not the police) shot him. Estrada and other relatives chased the thief and beat him. The thief had a knife. Estrada kicked him.

Arthur V. Guerrera, J.S.C., presided at Estrada's criminal trial. Consequently, he was in the best position to evaluate the testimony of the police, actors, victims and bystanders who witnessed or participated in the events of November 7, 1986, in Egg Harbor City, which resulted in Estrada's arrest and conviction. Guerrera wrote in his sentencing report that there was a "tumultuous riot." In his reasons for sentencing Estrada to seven years on the aggravated assault charge, Guerrera said:

> "40-50 people were involved, many of them with sticks and bats. A gun was also used, however, none of the defendants were convicted of the actual shooting of the victim, probably because the identity of the shooter was weak. During this time the mob was rampaging through the apartment complex and those that were convicted were seen pounding on the apartment where the victim was located. The police were called and because of the magnitude of the riot, other police departments were called.
> The victim, after the police arrived, ran from the apartment and was chased. During the chase, he was shot two times. When he fell to the ground the mob set upon him with baseball bats and sticks.
> With the aforementioned facts in mind, a long prison sentence must be imposed to deter this defendant and others from violating the law...."

Guerrera sentenced Estrada to seven years in the New Jersey State Prison. Six other counts in the indictment, of which Estrada was also found guilty, were either merged with the aggravated assault or sentenced concurrently with the seven years, except for VCCB penalties which totaled $210.00.

Estrada was eventually imprisoned at the Mountainview Youth Correctional Facility. While there he was elected by his cottage as a representative to the Hispanic Community Group. He provided assistance to new Hispanic inmates. He attended classes with teacher Nancy Gehr and very favorably impressed her with his respectful and cooperative demeanor. He attended drug and alcohol counselling and received a certificate. He was thereafter assigned to a prerelease program conducted by the Volunteers of America (VOA).

Participants in the VOA program must design and fulfill a personal contract. Estrada's case manager L.H. Lacock, writes that Estrada:

> "conscientiously followed all the rules and regulations. He met all of his financial obligations. He was an exemplary client.... He was always polite and courteous. He demonstrated ... that he is ready to return to his community as a law abiding productive citizen."

While at the VOA, Estrada was employed in the Trenton Warehouse, apparently a repository of clothing and furniture for institutional use.

Estrada has been employed as a finisher of concrete; floors, footings, sidewalks, etc. His employer Ed Dennis, a mason, writes that Estrada has worked for him for three years, gets along with other employees and accepts responsibility. He commented favorably on Estrada's character and trustworthiness.

Estrada has two small blemishes on his record in addition to the criminal conviction. He was convicted of possession of a small amount of marijuana, a disorderly persons offense, in 1985. Also in 1985, he was charged with burglary. The burglary charge was downgraded to "defiant trespass." He was found not guilty on that charge. He explained that this was a domestic dispute with the father of his sister's children who refused to pay support.

DISQUALIFICATION

I FIND that Estrada was convicted of a second degree aggravated assault contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(1).

I CONCLUDE that Estrada is disqualified from casino employee licensure and casino hotel registration pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c 1, 90e and 91b unless he is saved from disqualification by affirmatively demonstrating his rehabilitation.

REHABILITATION

The Act provides that persons who are disqualified from casino employee licensure and hotel registration pursuant to section 86c 1 may still be licensed or registered provided they can affirmatively demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90 and 91d. These rehabilitation statutes require the Commission to examine the applicants conduct in light of the following criteria: (1) The nature and duties of the position, (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct; (3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred; (4) The date of the offense or conduct; (5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed; (6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident; (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct; (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

Pursuant to the requirements of N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and 91d, I FIND:

1. The applicant has applied for a non-gaming casino employee license in order to perform maintenance and cleaning on the floor of the casino. He is registered as a casino hotel employee and has worked in the past as a waiter in a hotel restaurant and as a heavy duty porter. He has approximately six months experience in each job. He would prefer employment as a heavy duty porter or as a cleaner, rather than as a waiter. As a licensee, he would have contact with casino patrons while they gambled. As a registrant, his contact with patrons would be limited to the hotel area. He would have fewer contacts with patrons as a heavy duty porter than as a waiter.

2. The offense of aggravated assault is very serious; it is a second degree offense and it was treated seriously by the court.

3. The victim in this case was a known thief who stole the proceeds of Estrada's cousin's welfare check. Estrada and other residents of the apartment complex in which the theft occurred administered what is often described as "street justice." Judge Guerrera described the event as a "riot." The deputy attorney general described the action as "vigilantism." All three descriptions will appear more or less apt, depending upon the point of view, and the frequency of burglary and theft in the reader's neighborhood.

4. The offense occurred on November 7, 1986.

5. Estrada was 22 years old at the time.

6. Estrada has no other criminal convictions.

7. This pro se applicant/respondent did not offer any evidence that social conditions contributed to the offense.

8. Estrada exhibited good conduct in prison and in the community after his release to the VOA. He received drug and alcohol counseling. He took additional academic courses in prison. He participated in work release at the VOA. He has been recommended by persons who have supervised him. He is still on parole.

There is no formula by which these eight factors can be weighed. Although the questions are practically identical for both licensees and registrants, the same facts in some cases may show rehabilitation for a registrant, but not for a licensee This is because the answer to the first question; i.e., the nature of the position, always relates in some fashion to the contact an applicant has with casino patrons who are one of the protected classes under the Act. The other protected class is the general citizenry whose expectations of the casino industry must be met. It is unlikely that these expectations would include hiring parolee's for employment on the casino floor. However, the hiring of parolee's for heavy porter work at hotels would not raise the eyebrows of anyone who has any occasion at all to think about the concept of rehabilitation and its requirement of honest employment. The major requirement of heavy porters, like scullery men, is the ability to labor and toil. The average citizen expects parolees to perform such labors.

Another consideration is the degree of approbation attached to the particular conduct. Persons who maliciously assault children, or young mothers, or senior citizens are to be despised. Despicable too are bullies and muggers. None of these descriptions quite fit Estrada's crime. The "victim" in this case was a known thief who must have vexed the apartment's residents. There was no greed or other profit motive attached to the crime. There was only strong provocation. The mob, comprised mostly of Estrada's relatives, sought to recover their cousin's welfare money, and teach the burglar a lesson. Like all mobs, it raged out of control. That is why vigilantes are not excepted from the proscription of the law. That is why Judge Guerrera imposed the presumptive sentence for aggravated assault. But Estrada has not shown a predisposition to commit the evils which bring regulated casino gambling into disrepute such as theft or other fraudulent conduct. He also appears not to have a drug problem. He impressed me at the hearing with his friendly and respectful demeanor as he impressed his teacher Nancy Gehr and his case manager L.H. Lacock, both of whom had more of an opportunity to observe Estrada than I did.

I CONCLUDE that Estrada has established by clear and convincing evidence that he is rehabilitated from his conviction for aggravated assault pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d. He may retain his registration.

I also CONCLUDE that Estrada has failed to establish by clear and convincing evidence that he is rehabilitated from his crime of aggravated assault pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. He may not be licensed.

GOOD CHARACTER, HONESTY AND INTEGRITY

Estrada is still on parole. The status of parolee is inconsistent with the status of a person possessing good character, honesty and integrity. This is more apparent when the burden of proof on this issue is upon the applicant by clear and convincing evidence. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b 2 and 90b. Estrada failed to provide clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the required attributes.

I therefore CONCLUDE that Estrada has failed to establish by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b 2 and 90b.

It is ORDERED that the complaint seeking revocation of Estrada's casino hotel registration be DISMISSED.

It is further ORDERED that Estrada's application for a casino employee license be DENIED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of January 24, 1990,

IT IS on this 30th day of April 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

For the reasons stated more fully on the record, the Commission rejects the ALJ's recommendation that the respondent be found rehabilitated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(d). Instead the Commission finds that the respondent has failed to present clear and convincing evidence of her rehabilitation from the disqualifying convictions in 1982 of possession of methamphetamine with intent to distribute and 1986 for theft by deception.

However, the respondent's substantial evidence of rehabilitation, although not sufficient for purposes of 91(d), does warrant further consideration N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(e). Considering the respondent's satisfactory employment record in the casino industry since 1987, her minimal contact with casino patrons or casino operations, her favorable letters of reference and her law abiding life since her last conviction, together with her personal circumstances in which she provides the sole support for her two minor children, the disqualification is waived pursuant to section 91(e) to permit her to retain her casino hotel employee registration.

IT IT FURTHER ORDERED that Rosemarie Gibson is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any other license, registration, qualification or approval required under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

evidence, specifically considering the recency of the offense, the repeated number of times that Mr. Nocera compromised his employment by procuring complimentary credits and the absence of any affirmative evidence such as witnesses or references, and I would also note that I find it significant that he did this in his capacity as a security officer.

Thirdly, I would find in light of the absence of rehabilitation evidence Mr. Nocera has failed to demonstrate his good character, honesty and integrity and, finally, I would move to revoke Mr. Nocera's casino employee license.

MR. NANCE: Item No. 14, "Decision in complaint against Rosemarie Gibson."

Item No. 14

MR. DALY: I believe Miss Gibson i present. If so, please approach the table.

Commissioners, you will recall this item was presented previously. It concerns an initial decision filed by ALJ Steven L. Carnes on December 4, 1989 in which he recommended that the Division's complaint for revocation of Miss Gibson's casino hotel employee registration be dismissed. The judge had essentially found that the respondent had demonstrated her rehabilitation from two disqualifying convictions, one in 1982, the other in 1986.

The Division of Gaming Enforcement has filed exceptions to that ruling. Arguments concerning those exceptions and the ALJ's recommendation were presented to the Commission as the meeting of January 10. At the conclusion the Commission's consideration of this item the matter was adjourned to allow the Commission to deliberate on the issue of waiver which was raised by the Acting Chair.

It's now appropriate for final disposition. I don't know if there is any particular need for further comments from the parties. I will leave that to the Chair.

ACTING CHAIR ARMSTRONG: I think that this matter was argued completely when it was last addressed.

Miss Gibson, you realize you are here today to get a decision on the status of your registration?

I would note that this matter was deferred from the public meeting of January 10, 1990 for consideration of whether this Commission should waive Miss Gibson's disqualification pursuant to Section 91 (e) of the Casino Control Act, which, if that takes place, it would permit Miss Gibson to retain her casino hotel employee registration.

To refresh everyone's recollection, the Division of Gaming Enforcement had filed exceptions to the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge, Steven Carnes, in which Judge Carnes found that Miss Gibson had demonstrated her rehabilitation from disqualifying offenses in 1982 for possession of methamphetamine with intent to distribute, and in 1986 for theft by deception, and he had recommended dismissal of the Division's complaint for revocation of her casino hotel employee registration. When a motion to reject that initial decision failed, the Commission carried the case to consider the 91 (e) waiver issue which I specifically raised at that time.

Section 91 (e) provides that the Commission may waive disqualification of a casino hotel employee registrant consistent with the public policy of the Act and upon a finding that the interests of justice so require. The Commission has recognized that waiver is an extraordinary remedy which should be sparingly granted only after a fact sensitive analysis of the record under review has been made.

The Commission utilizes a totality of the circumstances approach to waiver cases. For guidance and structure we look to the eight so-called rehabilitation factors contained in Section 91 (d) of the Act. These and any other relevant circumstances, not only of the offense, but also of the offender, are considered to determine whether waiver of a disqualification is in the interest of justice. A careful application of this analysis is designed to yield a result which is consistent with the policies of the Act.

While I do not concur with the administrative law judge's assessment of the rehabilitative factors to the extent that would support a finding that Miss Gibson has affirmatively demonstrated her rehabilitation, I am nevertheless convinced that this is an appropriate case for a Section 91 (e) waiver.

Miss Gibson has been employed as a housekeeper at Showboat since December 1987. As revealed by two letters in evidence, Miss Gibson's employment has been satisfactory. As a housekeeper, she has minimal contact with casino patrons and no involvement with casino operations.

That the offenses here are serious is manifested by their inclusion within Section 86 (c) (1) as automatic disqualifiers. Moreover, the 1982 offense is of special concern because of the inherent and well known evils of illegal drugs, both to society in general and the casino industry in particular. The 1986 theft offense is also a grave matter for regulatory purposes because of the obvious concern for honesty and integrity on the part of those to whom the privilege and attendant obligations of employment in the total industry is extended. Nevertheless, the circumstances of each of Miss Gibson's offenses must be carefully scrutinized. Although the conviction was for possession of CDS with intent to distribute, the record establishes that the offense actually involved the distribution of a small quantity of methamphetamine to her husband who was then confined in jail. While the administrative law judge appears to have accepted Miss Gibson's testimony to the effect that she was unaware of the presence of the illegal substance within the magazine that she passed to her husband, I am precluded by law, we are precluded by law, from crediting this testimony because it is fatally inconsistent with her guilty plea in conviction of the underlying offense in Superior Court. Quite simply, the principle of res judicata applies.

Nevertheless, a thorough examination of the record reveals that Miss Gibson is not in 1982, and certainly is not in 1990, one who regularly trafficked in drugs, either as a distributor or user. Rather, on one isolated occasion she acquiesced to her incarcerated husband's request to pass him a controlled substance. The theft offense, however, is of greater concern to me primarily because it is a relatively recent occurrence and there are fewer mitigating circumstances. In fact, I find none. Presented with an opportunity to obtain unlawfully and by stealth the credit card belonging to her employer, she seized the moment and proceeded on a spending spree at the local mall where she charged approximately $2,000 worth of consumer goods for herself and her children. Limited means, even poverty, cannot excuse thievery. Miss Gibson was a mature woman at the time of both offenses and there were no pertinent social conditions. As to the theft offense, only the absence of any similar unlawful conduct either before or since the passage of nearly four years time and her gainful satisfactory employment in the industry in the intervening years are rehabilitative factors which weigh in her favor. These are insufficient to instill in the firm belief or conviction that Miss Gibson is truly rehabilitated within the meeting of Section 91 (d).

Nevertheless, upon consideration of these same factors and considering further that Miss Gibson provides the sole support for her two minor children, I am convinced that her continued employment as a housekeeper does not present an appreciable threat to the public policies of the Act and the interests of justice are further waived by waiving her disqualification under Section 91 (e).

I would, therefore, move to modify the initial decision, find that Miss Gibson has failed to demonstrate her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, but waive disqualification for the reasons stated thereby permitting Miss Gibson to retain her casino hotel employee registration.

Is there a second?

COMMISSIONER BURDGE: Second.

ACTING CHAIR ARMSTRONG: Any comment or discussion?

COMMISSIONER WATERS: Yes, Madam Chair, I think this is one of those cases where I am in complete agreement. As you have indicated in your motion, there were two criminal offenses committed here. The individual involved is not rehabilitated which leaves the question that you raised as to the interest of justice and furtherance of public policies of the Act. I have heard nothing in the motion that would explain how the interest of justice are furthered by permitting this person to stay in the industry. I recognize the Commission has said earlier that this is a term that is hard to define but I can think of instances that occurred in the past where interests of justice were furthered by reason of the 91 (e) waiver. This is not one of those. Contrary to the view expressed that this individual presented doesn't present an appreciable threat to the public policies of the Act, I think you would have to find to the contrary, that at least two of the public policies involved there are to keep out of the industry those people with criminal backgrounds who have not been rehabilitated and, secondly, the matter of the safety of the patrons and their property. I notice that we are still making a distinction between a casino hotel--in a casino hotel complex between a casino side and a hotel side. I guess I fail to be able to do that.

It seems to me that a thief who has access to all the hotel rooms in the hotel constitutes a present danger to at least property of those individuals who are residing in the hotel.

It reminds me of the effort that have been made to convince us that a security guard with a criminal background should be permitted to work on the hotel side but not the casino side. Again, I think I would hesitate to want to have a member of my family staying in a hotel where I know an unrehabilitated thief is working or other criminal who hasn't been rehabilitated.

Therefore, I won't support the motion to grant the waiver.

ACTING CHAIR ARMSTRONG: Thank you, Commissioner Waters.

Any further comment or discussion?

If not, all those in favor?

Those opposed?

The motion carries four to one.

(Acting Chair Armstrong and Commissioners Burdge, Dodd and Hurley voted in favor of the motion)

(Commissioner Waters dissented)

ACTING CHAIR ARMSTRONG: Miss Gibson, so there is no misunderstanding, you are being permitted to retain your casino hotel employee registration.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the revocation of Rosemarie Gibson's casino hotel employee registration no. 80214-40, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91 and N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1). The Division sought revocation of the respondent's registration by reason of its contention that the respondent had been convicted of two disqualifying offenses under section 86c(1), and therefore she is disqualified from registration, pursuant to section 91b. The respondent contended that she was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 91d.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The respondent had obtained a casino hotel employee registration from the Commission so she could be employed as a housekeeper at the Showboat Hotel and Casino. By complaint to the Commission, filed December 6, 1988, the Division objected to the respondent's continued registration, asserting that the respondent had been convicted in 1982, of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine) with the intent to distribute, in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1), which is the predecessor statute of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, and had been convicted in 1986 of theft by deception, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, and forgery, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-1, which are disqualifying offenses under section 86c(1). Based upon the complaint, the Commission notified the respondent on December 15, 1988, that she had the right to a hearing, and that failure to respond within 15 days could result in her registration being revoked. By application dated April 19, 1989, a hearing. On April 21, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on April 28, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before Administrative Law Judge Edgar R. Holmes on July 28, 1989. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether the respondent was convicted of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier, in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c to wit: N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a1, possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute, which is analogous to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5.

B. Whether respondent was convicted of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft over $500., in the third degree.

C. Whether respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 91d of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was held on November 14, 1989, in the Municipal Courtroom, Egg Harbor Township Municipal Building, Bargaintown, New Jersey, after which the record was closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

On June 12, 1982, the respondent visited her then husband who was incarcerated in the Atlantic County jail. Her husband indicated that a girlfriend of another inmate had an extra T.V. Guide, and he asked the respondent to get it for him. The respondent obtained the T.V. Guide and attempted to pass it to her husband. The magazine was found to contain methamphetamine and marijuana, and the respondent was arrested.

On July 20, 1982, the respondent was indicted by the Atlantic County Grand Jury in Indictment No. 7-64-82, and she was charged with one count of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine), in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(1), and two counts of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine and marijuana) with the intent to distribute, in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1) (P-1). On August 2, 1982, the respondent entered a plea of not guilty to the charges; however, on September 13, 1982, she retracted her plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to count two of the indictment, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine) with the intent to distribute. The respondent was convicted in the Superior Court, Atlantic County, on October 8, 1982, and she was sentenced to be incarcerated for 30 days in the county jail and was ordered to pay a $25.00 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty (P-2).

On April 9, 1986, the respondent was employed at C&T Deli in Atlantic City. Her employer, Caroline Taylor, would sometimes leave her personal credit cards unattended. On that date, the respondent took Ms. Taylor's Citibank Preferred Visa Card. The respondent thereafter went with her boyfriend, Antonio Bolton, to the Ocean One Mall. The respondent made various purchases at 29 different stores in the mall using the stolen credit card. The approximate value of the items purchased by the respondent using the stolen credit card is over $2,000.00 (P-5).

On June 19, 1986, the respondent was indicted by the Atlantic County Grand Jury in Indictment No. 86-06-1206, and she was charged with: count one, credit card theft, in violation of N.J.S.A 2C:21-6c(1); count two, theft of a credit card with the intent to defraud another, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-6d(2); count three, theft by deception in excess of $500, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4; count four, forgery, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-1a(2); and count five; uttering a forged instrument, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-1a(3) (P-3). On September 29, 1986, the respondent entered a plea of guilty to counts three and four of the indictment, theft by deception, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 and forgery, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-1a(2). On November 7, 1986, the respondent was sentenced on each count to serve 180 days in the Atlantic County jail, to be placed on probation for two years and to pay a total Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty of $60.00. The sentences were to be served concurrently, and the remaining charges of the indictment were dismissed (P-4).

The respondent was born on November 2, 1949, and is currently 40 years old. She was raised by her parents in Atlantic City. She reached the twelfth grade in school; however, she did not graduate. She lived with her parents until she was 21 years old when she got married. The respondent was divorced four years ago, and she is the sole support for her 19 year old son and 9 year old daughter.

The respondent testified that she is not a drug addict and never used drugs. She obtained the T.V. Guide at her then husband's request; however, she asserts that she did not know drugs were contained in the magazine. She admits taking the credit card in order to buy clothes for her family and toys for her daughter. Her father had just died, she was upset, on welfare, and needed clothes for her family, so she took her employer's credit card with the intent to return it after using it. The respondent returned all the purchased merchandise to the stores.

The respondent became employed by the Showboat Hotel and Casino on December 3, 1987, as a housekeeper (R-1). This is her only job. She is a hard working employee and is regarded by her supervisors as being an excellent employee (R-2).

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the respondent's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident nor her current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess her credibility. Initially, her position in this matter must be recognized. As the respondent and the holder of a casino hotel employee registration, she has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the respondent's demeanor, the plausibility of her testimony, the manner in which she participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appears that the respondent testified truthfully in every regard. She candidly admitted her misconduct and described in detail, experiencing great humiliation, the underlying circumstances. She appeared to testify truthfully and she expressed regret and remorse for her misconduct. She also accepted full responsibility for her misconduct. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the respondent's testimony in all respects.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. The respondent was convicted in the Superior Court, Atlantic County, on October 8, 1982, of one count of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine) with the intent to distribute, in vioaltion of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(1). She was sentenced to be incarcerated for 30 days in the county jail and was ordered to pay a $25.00 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty.

On November 7, 1986, the respondent was sentenced on each count to serve 180 days in the Atlantic County jail, to be placed on probation for two years and to pay a total Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty of $60.00. The sentences were to be served concurrently, and the remaining charges of the indictment were dismissed.

Her father had just died, she was upset, on welfare, and needed clothes for her family, so she took her employer's creidt card with the intent to return it after using it. The respondent returned all the purchased merchandise to the stores.

> a. No person may commence employment as a casino hotel employee unless he has been registered with the commission, which registration shall be in accordance with subsection f. of this section.

b. Any applicant for casino hotel employee registration shall produce such information as the commission may require. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work- release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) establishes that registration under the Casino Control Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued

qualification of the individual . . .registrant." N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1) provides for the revocation of the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his . . . registration." The Division contends, that the respondent was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:24-21-19a(1) which is the predecessor statute of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine) with the intent to distribute, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft by deception in excess of $500 (third degree), and N.J.S.A. 2C:21-1a(2), forgery (third degree), which constitutes violations of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), and that, accordingly, she is disqualified from continued registration.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1)

Section 86c(1) mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends that the respondent's passing her husband a T.V. Guide which contained methamphetamine constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, which, under the circumstances, disqualifies the respondent from continued registration.

N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Except as authorized by P.L. 1970, c. 226 (C. 24:21-1 et seq.), it shall be unlawful for any person knowingly or purposely:
>
>
> . . . .
>
> b. Any person who violates subsection a. with respect to:
>
> . . . .
>
> (8) Methamphetamine, or its analog, in a quantity of one ounce or more including any adulterants or dilutants is guilty of a crime of the second degree;
> (9) Methamphetamine, or its analog, in a quantity of less than one ounce including any adulterants or dilutants is guilty of a crime of the third degree except that, notwithstanding the provisions of subsection b. of N.J.S. 2C:43-3, a fine of up to $50,000.00 may be imposed.

The Division established that the respondent was convicted of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine) with the intent to distribute, in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1), which is the predecessor statute of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(8) and (9), the offense constitutes at least a crime of the third degree.

The Division further contends that the respondent's taking of her employer's credit card and purchasing goods with it constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which, under the circumstances, disqualifies the respondent from continued registration.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, provides in pertinent part:

> A person is guilty of theft if he purposely obtains property of another by deception. A person deceives if he purposely:
>
> a. Creates or reinforces a false impression, including false impressions as to law, value, intention or other state of mind; but deception as to a person's intention to perform a promise shall not be inferred from the fact alone that he did not subsequently perform the promise;
>
> b. Prevents another from acquiring information which would affect his judgment of a transaction; or
>
> c. Fails to correct a false impression which the deceiver previously created or reinforced, or which the deceiver knows to be influencing another to whom he stands in a fiduciary or confidential relationship.
> The term "deceive" does not, however, include falsity as to matters having no pecuniary significance, or puffing or exaggeration by statements unlikely to deceive ordinary persons in the group addressed.

The Division established, and the respondent admitted during her testimony, that she knowingly took her employer's credit card without permission and then used the credit card to purchase clothes and toys for her family. The Division further established, and the respondent admitted during her testimony that she had been convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 and that she has been convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2)a, the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

Finally, the Division contends that the respondent's wrongful use of her employer's credit card constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-1, which, under the circumstances, disqualifies the respondent from continued registration.

N.J.S.A. 2C:21-1, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Forgery. A person is guilty of forgery if, with purpose to defraud or injure anyone, or with knowledge that he is facilitating a fraud or injury to be perpetrated by anyone, the actor:
>
> . . . .
>
> (2) Makes, completes, executes, authenticates, issues or transfers any writing so that it purports to be the act of another who did not authorize that act or of a fictitious person, or to have been executed at a time or place or in a numbered sequence other than was in fact the case, or to be a copy of an original when no such original existed; or
>
>
> "Writing" includes . . . credit cards . . . .
>
> b. Grading of forgery. Forgery is a crime of the third degree if the writing is or purports to be part of an issue of money . . . or other instruments represetning interest in or claims against any property or enterprise.
> Otherwise forgery is a crime of the fourth degree.

The Division established, and the respondent admitted during her testimony, that she knowingly used her employer's credit card without permission. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-1 and that she has been convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-1. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:21-1b, the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offenses committed by the respondent are a disqualifying offense under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). The respondent is therefore disqualified from continued registration, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d

A registrant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against continued registration by affirmatively demonstrating his or her rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

1. The nature and duties of the registrant's position;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
4. The date of the offense or conduct;
5. The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;
6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work- release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Rosemarie Gibson is a casino hotel registrant and is employed as a housekeeper. As such, she does not have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities but does come in contact with casino patrons. She is responsible for cleaning patron's rooms and has access to the patron's personal property.

Second, the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C3:5-5, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine) with the intent to distribute, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft by deception, and a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-1a(2), forgery, prior to becoming employed in the casino industry. Because the offenses are listed disqualifiers under section 86c(1), they are very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in their appropriate context. In the first case, the respondent unknowingly passed drugs to her husband who was incarcerated in a county jail. In the second case, the respondent stole a credit card from her employer. This is a significant breach of trust. In mitigation, however, the respondent was in a state of depression regarding her father's recent death, she was on welfare, and needed clothes for her children.

Fourth, the respondent's misconduct first occurred in 1982, and her second incident occurred in 1986, when it ceased.

Fifth, the respondent was 33 years old at the time of the first offense and 37 years old at the time of the second offense. I do not believe immaturity was a factor in this case.

Sixth, the respondent's misconduct was not isolated in nature. After being convicted of the drug offense in 1982, she committed the theft offense in 1986. She has not committed any other violations of the criminal laws.

Seventh, the respondent assented to her then husband's request to obtain a T.V. Guide for him. She did so not knowing the magazine contained drugs. In the second incident, the respondent's father, with whom she lived, had recently died, she was depressed, on welfare, working only two days a week, and she needed clothing for her two children.

Eighth, the respondent has been employed in the casino industry for two years. She is a hardworking employee who takes direction well. She is considered a "team player," is an excellent employee, and is an asset to the Showboat. The respondent is also a good mother. She is a single parent and is responsible for raising two children. She accepts full responsibility for her misconduct in both cases, and she is very remorseful. She successfully completed her probationary period and has remained incident free for three years.

The Commission has recently addressed the weighing of the rehabilitation factors vis-a-vis the position applied for. In the Application of Brian Stiteler, argued before the Commission at the public meeting of August 5, 1987, Commissioner Armstrong stated:

> I would note that the rehabilitation criteria are identical for registrants and casino employees, but these factors can be weighed differently depending on the nature and duties of > the position of the individual who is appearing before us and whether the disqualifying offense was an isolated or repeated incident, and I think that there are two prior Commission cases[1] in which we have given weight and emphasis to the nature and duty of the petitioner, and that's a significant factor in assessing rehabilitation.

This is an extremely difficult case. It is undisputed that the respondent has been convicted of statutory disqualifiers and is therefore disqualified from continued registration, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). Also, there is not a great deal of rehabilitative evidence; however, there is some evidence of rehabilitation. In this case, the respondent is a housekeeper. She had no responsibility for any casino gaming activity, but does have contact with casino patrons. Considering the nature of the position she holds, the respondent's work record in the industry, her demeanor and candor at the hearing, her expressed remorse and acceptance of responsibility, the fact that she abused her position of trust when she took her employer's credit card, the age of the offenses, the isolated nature of her offenses, her lack of involvement in the community, and her family status, when weighed against the eight rehabilitative criteria:

I CONCLUDE that the respondent has established, by clear and convincing evidence, her rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division against the respondent be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the complaint filed with the Casino Control Commission on February 28, 1988 seeking sanctions against the respondent, GNOC Corporation t/a/ Bailey's Grand Hotel and Casino. The respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on March 27, 1989 to be heard as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

There was a telephone prehearing conference in this matter on May 9, 1989, before former Administrative Law Judge Stephen W. Thompson at which time the parties discussed the issues. Judge Thompson indicated that the matter would be transferred to the undersigned for purposes of conducting the hearing and rendering an initial decision.

The initial hearing date and subsequent hearing dates were adjourned at the request of the parties since they were discussing a stipulation of facts as well as a settlement.

The parties have now agreed to settle the matter and have prepared the attached stipulation indicating the terms of the settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the settlement terms and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore, I ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

GNOC, CORP., t/a BALLY'S GRAND HOTEL AND CASINO,
Respondent.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the above captioned matter has been discussed by and between the Parties involved, Complainant, State of New Jersey, Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement, by and through its attorney, Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, (Wendy Alice Way, Deputy Attorney General, appearing), and Respondent, GNOC, CORP., t/a Bally's Grand Hotel and Casino, by and through its attorneys, Sills, Cummis, Zuckerman, Radin, Tischman, Epstein & Gross (Trent S. Dickey, Esquire, appearing);

AND said factual matters having been resolved between the Division and Respondent GNOC;

IT IS HEREBY STIPULATED AND AGREED by and between the Division and Respondent GNOC that, for the purposes of the disposition of the above captioned matter and practices, the following is true and correct as stated:

1. Complainant, by and through its Division of Gaming Enforcement (hereinafter "Division"), is now and at all times referenced herein has been charged with the responsibility pursuant to the Casino Control Act (P.L. 1977, C. 110, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq., hereinafter the "Act") of enforcing said Act, and the regulations promulgated thereunder by the Casino Control Commission (hereinafter "the Commission") and of prosecuting violations thereof before the Commission.

2. Respondent GNOC, CORP., t/a Bally's Grand Hotel and Casino (hereinafter "GNOC"), is the current owner and operator of the casino hotel formerly trading as the Golden Nugget Hotel

Casino (the "Golden Nugget"). Said casino hotel was renamed "Bally's Grand Hotel and Casino" in or about October 1987. GNOC is now and at all times referenced herein has been a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey and has now and at all times referenced herein has had its principal place of business located at Boston and Pacific Avenues in the City of Atlantic City, County of Atlantic and State of New Jersey.

3. GNOC is the holder of a plenary casino license issued to it by the Commission authorizing it to operate a casino hotel in accordance with the Act and Commission regulations promulgated thereunder. Said license was issued to GNOC effective September 21, 1985, and it was last renewed on September 19, 1988. GNOC has been conducting its casino hotel operations pursuant to said license continually to date since that time including all times referenced herein.

4. GNOC is the holder of, and operates pursuant to, a Certificate of Operation effective September 21, 1985. GNOC has conducted its casino operations pursuant to said Certificate of Operation continually to date including all times referenced herein. Said Certificate of Operation entitles GNOC to operate a casino hotel in accordance with the Act and Commission regulations promulgated thereunder.

5. GNOC is the successor in interest to GNAC, CORP. (hereinafter "GNAC"), t/a the Golden Nugget Hotel and Casino.

GNAC was the holder of a Certificate of Operation effective December 2, 1980, at which time GNAC was the holder of a temporary casino permit. GNOC succeeded GNAC's interest as a casino licensee as of May 1, 1984.

6. On or about March 1, 1987, Bally Manufacturing Corporation (hereinafter "Bally") acquired the assets of GNAC. Among those assets was GNOC, which holds the casino license. Prior to Bally's purchase of the assets of GNAC, Bally had no responsiblity or involvement in the managment or operation of the Golden Nugget.

7. In or about March 1986 substantial amendments to the Commission regulations governing the issuance of credit to patrons of the New Jersey legalized casinos went into effect (the "Credit Amendments"). Contemporaneously with the effective date of the Credit Amendments, former management of Golden Nugget established credit practices governing the issuance and increases of credit. The Respondent generally would not grant patrons applying for initial credit the maximum credit for which the patron applied and could reasonably qualify in the Respondent's judgment. The Respondent would, however, approve a lesser amount so that the patron's play at the tables could be assessed and future credit increases could be granted at the patron's request. Respondent sought to maintain credit patrons at an approved credit limit for a period of time which varied based upon the credit department's discretion before a patron's credit limit increase requests were made permanent and notwithstanding Respondent's determination that a patron was qualified for a higher credit limit.

8. The Respondent's credit practice was designed to fully comply with the credit verification requirements of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)-(g) when approving a patron's credit application or when granting a credit increase regardless of amount or duration of the credit increase. The Respondent's procedures were not intended to utilize N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(h) (temporary this trip only credit increases) which did not require a full credit check but which placed limitations on the frequency and the amount of credit increases. The Respondent's practice for the initial granting of credit after receipt of a patron's application was as follows:

(a) A credit clerk was responsible to make certain that the application contained the information required by N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a);

(b) A clerk was responsible for verifying the banking information on the application;

(c) A commercial credit report was obtained on customers through the on-site terminals which would verify outstanding indebtedness, patron's address and other such information;

(d) A report was then obtained from Central Credit showing a patron's credit history and balances at other casinos and the Central Credit report information was run down manually by the credit clerk by verifying it with the casinos referenced;

(e) The information gathered above was then given to a credit executive who verified the completeness of the information, reviewed the information obtained from the secondary sources and cross checked the reference information;

(f) For patron credit applications of less than $25,000, the credit executive would then make a decision as to the application and execute the appropriate documents. For requests of greater than $25,000, the Respondent would often obtain a Dun & Bradstreet report and senior credit executive approval or credit manager's approval was required in addition to that of the credit executive;

(g) With credit approval, a card, the original of which was maintained at the cage, was signed by the credit executive approving the credit line. A hold was placed on the credit line until the customer physically presented himself or herself to the cage where two forms of identification were required and were recorded on the back of the card and noted on the application. A physical description of the customer was taken at the cage and the card was then signed by a cage supervisor. After the card was complete, a cage cashier would input the information into the computer system and the patron's signature was scanned for the pit clerks to verify at the gaming tables. The credit line was then activated, a photocopy of the card was then placed in the patron's credit file and the original maintained at the cage.

9. Patrons with established credit lines desiring a credit increase were required to submit a written credit increase request. The Respondent would then proceed with its credit check in conformance with N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(g) irrespective of the duration of the credit increase. A patron who had reached his current extended credit limit and who had made a written credit limit increase request would be granted the increase, provided the patron was determined to be financially qualified for the increase and a full credit check pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(g) had been satisfactorily performed. The patron was advised by Respondent that the credit line would be subsequently reduced to the original credit approval level until Respondent was satisfied that the patron was comfortable with and warranted continous play at a higher credit limit.

10. Upon a patron's request, the Respondent granted to said patron a higher credit line to be permanently maintained once the Respondent determined that said patron warranted same after having been granted several increases that were subsequently reduced. Absent a customer's request, a change in financial circumstances or derogatory information, the Respondent would document regular credit line reductions by a notation to the patron's credit file "to be reviewed". That notation signified to the credit department that the patron's credit limit should subsequently be reduced to the original level until the credit department was satisfied that the patron was playing at the higher credit limit to their mutual satisfaction.

11. In most circumstances, the Respondent granted a patron three or four increases that were subsequently reduced before maintaining the higher credit limit. Respondent maintains that its decisions were based on factors such as the patron's manner and rating of play, timing of repayment and other factors. The Respondent maintains that this practice reduced the risk of loss to the casino and allowed the Respondent to increase a patron's limit at the patron's request and to allow the credit gambler to utilize the casino's money when a bad streak of luck occurred. If a patron was given the maximum credit line that in the judgment of the Respondent it could reasonably extend, the Respondent would then be unable to increase a patron's line during an unlucky streak, causing the patron to feel the casino had treated him unfairly.

12. In or about November 1988, the Respondent was informed by the Division that it considered its practice of granting permanent credit line increases to patrons and then subsequently reducing the credit increase to be a violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(h). Upon learning of the Division's objections, the Respondent immediately stopped the practice of granting and subsequently reducing increases it considered to have been granted pursuant to and in compliance with N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(g).

13. During the period January 1988 through July 1988, all of the patrons listed below in Schedules A through G, which schedules are incorporated herein, were credit patrons of Respondent. Said patrons, as well as patron Mohammed Niloofari whose credit transactions are itemized in Schedule H below, were granted credit limit increases in accordance with Respondent's credit practices described above in paragraphs 8 through 12. Schedules A through H below reflect the credit limits for the itemized patrons and their credit limit increases by Respondent granted during the relevant months.

14. Notwithstanding the Respondent's designation of or lack of designation of credit limit increases approved by Respondent for the 87 patrons listed below in Schedules A through H of paragraph 13, said increases were not limited to two (2) during any thirty (30) day period and/or the total amount of said increases during said thirty (30) day period exceeded ten percent (10%) of each patron's credit limit at the time when Respondent approved an increase thereto.

15. A copy of patron Mohammad Niloofari's credit application dated April 18, 1986 is maintained by Respondent in the patron's credit file, but the original credit application has not been located. The copy does not include the following information: the telephone number of patron's residence; patron's type of business, the patron's source of income; the type of identification, if any, presented by the patron at the time of the application; and the patron's average bank balance for the last twelve months or an indication that such information was unavailable. The original application was accepted and approved during the time that the former management and owners operated GNOC.

16. On eleven occasions during the period from April 22, 1986 through and including January 27, 1987, the former owners and managers of GNAC reduced patron Niloofari's credit limit without indicating the key factors for the reductions in the patron's credit file except for the notation "to be reviewed". On two occasions, May 18, 1986 and November 9, 1986, they failed to properly record on the patron's credit application or the authorized credit limit increase section of the patron's credit file the time of the authorizations of credit limit increases to Niloofari.

17. On May 25, 1986, the former owners and managers of GNAC accepted patron Niloofari's personal check no. 136 in the amount of $5,000 of same date and processed it in a substitution transaction for a previously issued counter check. The cashier who accepted this check failed to record on it the serial number of the counter check being substituted by the acceptance of the personal check.

18. To Respondent's knowledge, that part of the credit practices and philosophy of the former owners and managers of GNAC and of Respondent that involved the granting of increases of credit in accordance with N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(g) and subsequently reducing such increases several times before permanently maintaining a higher credit limit was never submitted to nor received the approval of the Commission as part of its approved accounting and internal control submissions. But approval for the granting of credit and credit increases in compliance with N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(g) is a part of Respondent's internal controls and was approved by the Commission. Golden Nugget determined that its practice of increasing credit pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(g) and subsequently reducing same did not need to be submitted to the Commission for its approval, since credit decreases are not regulated by the Act except to the extent that same may be regulated by N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(f) and (h). No substantive changes to GNOC's credit practices were made by Respondent after the acquisition of GNAC by Bally nor was the determination regarding submission of the practice to the Commission reconsidered by Respondent.

19. Respondent cannot locate and therefore does not refute that it did not obtain a written request from patron James J. Chebalo prior to Respondent's authorization of a credit limit increase for him on February 19, 1988, or for patron Erol Onaran on or about February 16, 1988 or for Jerry Vincent Russo on July 23, 1988 at 12:20 p.m., 12:32 p.m. and 3:00 a.m.

20. Respondent failed to verify or at least failed to record the current casino credit limits and outstanding balances of patron Chebalo as part of its authorization of a credit limit increase for him on or about May 11, 1988, or for patron Gold on or about May 10, 1988 or for patron Ryan on or about March 1, 2, and 24, 1988.

21. Respondent failed to verify or at least failed to record patron Chebalo's outstanding indebtedness prior to authorizing his credit limit increases on or about March 3, 20, 22 and 24, 1988.

22. In or about November 1988, Respondent ceased its practice of authorizing credit limit increases for its gaming patrons as described above and subsequently reducing said increases.

23. N.J.S.A. 5:12-96(e) provides as follows:

WHEREAS, the Parties agree that the allegations pertinent to Kenneth Beyer set forth in paragraphs 26 and 3[redacted] of the First Count of the above captioned Complaint are hereby withdrawn inasmuch as patron Beyer is referenced thereby as being listed in Schedule E of paragraph 23 of the First Count of the above captioned complaint which Schedule and paragraph does not list said patron; and

WHEREAS, Respondent did perform and did maintain records of patron Niloofari's ratings at the time credit increases were approved by Respondent GNOC's credit executives and such documentation was produced by Respondent in the discovery exchange between the Parties, the Parties agree that the allegations pertinent to the absence of Niloofari player ratings set forth in paragraph 17 of the Second Count of the Complaint are hereby withdrawn; and

WHEREAS, the Division contends and Respondent GNOC admits that Respondent: (a) Violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-99 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3 inasmuch as Respondent admits that GNOC's practice of authorizing credit limit increases pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:45-

1.27(g) and subsequently reducing said increases as described herein was apparently never submitted to nor received the approval of the Commission as part of Respondent's approved accounting and internal controls submissions; (b) violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(h) inasmuch as, notwithstanding the designation of or lack of designation of the credit limit increases approved by Respondent whether approved pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(g) or not, the practice of reducing said increases, GNOC admits notwithstanding the opinion of its former owners and management, should be governed by the temporary credit increase provisions of the Act and Regulations promulgated thereunder which limit such increases to 2 in number and to 10% of a patron's pre-increase credit limit within a 30-day period; (c) violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(g)(1) and (5) by failing to obtain a written request for credit increase from patrons Chebalo, Onaran and Russo as described above in paragraph 22; (d) violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(g)(3) by failing to verify patron Chebalo's outstanding indebtedness prior to approving a credit limit increase for said patron as described in paragraph 24; (e) violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(g)(2) by failing to verify the current casino credit limits and outstanding balances of patrons Chebalo, Gold, and Rhyne as described in paragraph 23; (f) violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)(4), a5(ii), a(10), (b) and (c)(4) (iv) by processing patron Niloofari's credit application apparently omitting the information or failing to have the information in the patron's credit files as described in paragraph 18; (g) violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(f)(2) by reducing patron Niloofari's credit limit on 11 occasions without indicating the key factors for said reductions on any documentation contained in the patron's credit file except the notation "to be reviewed" as described in paragraph 19; (h) violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(f)(4) by failing to record the time of the authorizations of credit limit decreases to patron Niloofari's account which occurred on May 18, 1986 and November 9, 1986 as described in paragraph 19; (i) violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26(f) by failing to record on patron Niloofari's personal check #136 the serial number of the counter check for which said personal check was substituted as described above in paragraph 20; and (j) violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-96(e) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.8(a)(2) by failing to maintain the original credit application of patron Niloofari even though Respondent maintains a copy thereof as described above in paragraph 15;

WHEREAS, the Parties are desirous of amicably settling this litigation without the necessity of a full hearing; and

WHEREAS, the Parties respectfully submit that the terms of this Stipulation of Settlement as well as the imposition of a civil monetary penalty in the amount of $65,000 against Respondent GNOC is just and equitable in light of the statutory guidelines set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-130; and

WHEREAS, this Stipulation of Settlement must be accepted by the full Commission, upon the recommendation of the Honorable Beatrice Tylutki, A.L.J., before it becomes effective.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that upon approval of this Stipulation of Settlement by the Casino Control Commission, Respondent GNOC agrees to pay the sum of Sixty-Five Thousand Dollars ($65,000) in full settlement of the above captioned Complaint and, upon payment of said sum, Complaint No. 89-184 shall be deemed fully adjudicated and resolved. The Parties acknowledge that this Settlement pertains to and resolves all allegations contained in the Complaint and all such similar conduct and related practices prior to the filing of the Complaint.

Respectfully submitted,

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of January 10, 1990,

IT IS on this 24th day of January 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is rejected for the following reasons:

The ALJ erred in dismissing the complaint as moot due to the expiration of the respondent's license. When the DGE filed its complaint and the respondent requested a hearing his license was valid. Mere expiration of the credential does not vitiate the Commission's need to determine the respondent's qualifications for licensure, especially considering that he in no way abandoned his request for a hearing and he repeatedly expressed his desire to defend against the charges which had been levied against him.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that this matter is remanded to the OAL for a hearing on all issues.

LEONARD GRATE,
Respondent.

Ralph L. Fusco, Deputy Attorney General, for the petitioner (Peter N. Perretti, Jr., Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Leonard Grate, the respondent, pro se

Record Closed: November 9, 1989 Decided: November 16, 1989

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the revocation of Leonard Grate's casino employee license no. 51306-21, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90 and N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1). The Division sought revocation of the respondent's license by reason of its contention that the respondent had been convicted of a criminal offense which rendered continued licensure to be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act (Act), pursuant to section 86c(4) (now section 86c(2)), and therefore, he lacked the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference. The respondent contended that he was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 90h.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The respondent had obtained a casino employee license from the Commission so he could be employed as a security officer at the Sands Hotel and Casino. By complaint to the Commission, filed April 22, 1985, the Division objected to the respondent's continued licensure, asserting that the respondent had committed the offense of theft by unlawful taking, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(4) (now section 86c(2)). The Division also objected pursuant to section 89b(2). Based upon the complaint, the Commission notified the respondent on April 23, 1985, that he had the right to a hearing, and that failure to respond within 15 days could result in his license being revoked (P-4). On July 19, 1985, the Commission issued an order deferring action on the Divison's application for the suspension of the respondent's casino employee license until resolution of the criminal proceedings (P-3). By application dated May 3, 1988, which was received by the Commission on May 9, 1988, the respondent requested a hearing. On May 16, 1988, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on May 23, 1988, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. Also by letter dated May 16, 1988, the Commission notified the respondent that it had transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing and informed the respondent that his casino employee license had expired in May 1987 (P-2).

On September 27, 1988, the Office of Administrative Law notified the parties that a prehearing conference was to be held on October 18, 1988, at 1:30 p.m. at the Office of Administrative Law, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, third floor, 1201 Bacharach Boulevard, Atlantic City, New Jersey.

On the scheduled date, the respondent failed to appear. Ten days have passed from the scheduled hearing date, and during that period, the respondent did not contact the Office of Administrative Law to offer any explanation for the nonappearance. As a result, on October 28, 1988, Administrative Law Judge Stephen W. Thompson concluded that the respondent no longer sought to defend this matter and issued an Initial Decision for the respondent's failure to appear at the scheduled prehearing conference in which he granted the Division's requested relief.

The Commission considered Judge Thompson's Initial Decision at its public meeting held on November 30, 1988. At that time, the respondent appeared at the meeting, completed another hearing request form, and requested another opportunity for a hearing. The Commission granted this request, and by order dated December 1, 1988, the Commission remanded the case to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing on all issues. On December 1, 1988, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on January 3, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before me on June 22, 1989. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether respondent's continued licensure is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c because he had been convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking from his employer, the Sands Hotel and Casino.

B. Whether respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) as incorporated within section 90b.

A hearing was held on November 9, 1989, in the Office of Administrative Law, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey, after which the record was closed.

MOTION

Prior to presenting evidence on the merits of the case, the Division moved to dismiss the case as the matter was moot and there was no longer any subject matter jurisdiction in the case. On April 22, 1985, the Division filed a complaint against the respondent's casino employee license no. 51306-21. On July 19, 1985, the Commission deferred action on the complaint until after resolution of the then pending criminal proceedings. Those proceedings resulted in the respondent's conviction later in 1985. Thereafter, the respondent briefly worked at various casinos. In May of 1987, the respondent failed to renew his casino employee license, and his license expired. To this date, he has not renewed his license, nor has he made application to the Commission for the issuance of a new license. This case was originally transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on May 16, 1988. This was three years after the complaint had been filed and one year after the license had expired. As such, the Division argues that there no longer exists any subject matter jurisdiction in this case, there is no longer any case in controversy, and that the matter is moot. The Division therefore moves that the matter be dismissed without prejudice.

In Super Tire Engineering Co. v. McCorkle, 469 F.2d 911, (3rd Cir. 1972) cert. granted 94 S.Ct. 128, 414 U.S. 817 38 L.Ed.2d 50, rev'd. 94 S.Ct. 1694, 416 U.S. 115, 40 L.Ed.2d 1, on remand 412 F.Supp. 192, aff'd. 550 F.2d 903, cert. den. 98 S.Ct. 106, 434 U.S. 827, 54 L.Ed.2d 86, rehearing den. 98 S.Ct. 753, 434 U.S. 1025, 54 L.Ed.2d 773, the Court stated that the:

> four concerns that the Supreme Court addresses in terms of mootness are: that some sort of judicial decree be possible, that the parties remain in a posture sufficiently adverse to insure effective litigation, that the issue in contention continue to be concrete, and that the issue not be one that will recur and yet be unreviewable.

The Court further stated that:

> One who has been injured but will be impaired only in the future if certain speculative contingencies come to pass can no longer properly pursue the litigation.

In Anderson v. Sills, 143 N.J. Super. 432, 437 (Ch. Div. 1976), the court stated that "questions that have become moot or academic prior to judicial scrutiny generally have been held to be an improper subject for judicial review," and that "courts will not decide cases in which the issue is hypothetical, a judgment cannot grant effective relief, or the parties do not have concrete adversity of interest." Actions may be brought only if there is a bona fide controversy between the parties. See, Clark v. Degnan, 163 N.J. Super. 344 (Law Div. 1978).

In this case, a judgment cannot grant effective relief and the parties do not have concrete adversity of interest. The respondent no longer is the holder of a casino employee license and it is merely speculative whether or not he will apply for a license in the future. This is especially true since it has been two and one-half years since his license expired. As he no longer holds a casino employee license, there is no license which the Commission can revoke, and since there is no application for a license pending before the Commission, there is no case in controversy or subject matter jurisdiction presently before the Commission at the present time. As such, this case is moot.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division against the respondent be DISMISSED WITHOUT PREJUDICE.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on January 19, 1988 and an amended complaint on May 17, 1988 seeking sanctions against the casino license held by the Sands Hotel and Casino (Sands) and the junket enterprise license held by Ronald A. Zoby.

PROCEDURAL ASPECTS

The matter was transmitted from the Commission to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on February 17, 1988, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. Subsequent to a prehearing conference held by Administrative Law Judge Steven L. Carnes on May 2, 1988, respondent Sands, joined by respondent Zoby, propounded and served its Notice of Motion to Dismiss or, in the alternative, for Summary Disposition. Thereafter, the parties agreed that issues of liability were ripe for summary disposition and were to be severed from issues of penalty, if any. Therefore, subsequent to the parties submission of briefs of law with regard to the liability issues, this administrative tribunal, on February 10, 1989, issued its Partial Initial Decision - Summary Decision to the Commission for its consideration. The Commission, by way of an order dated March 14, 1989, remanded the matter to the OAL with instructions that the undersigned render an initial decision with respect to penalty and thereafter resubmit the matter to the Commission for its review and determination, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.1.

As a consequence of the Commission's remand, respondents requested and were granted a hearing on the penalty phase of the instant matter. The penalty hearing was held on May 8, 1989. Thereafter, the parties were granted leave to submit post-hearing memoranda and the record was considered closed on August 1, 1989. An extension for the execution of this portion of the decision was requested and granted.

LEGAL CONCLUSIONS WITH RESPECT TO ISSUES OF LIABILITY

To recapitulate and summarize the conclusions reached by the undersigned in the partial initial decision dated February 10, 1989 with regard to the issues of liability, reference is made to the Division's letter brief dated June 29, 1989 wherein it set forth the following at pages 4 and 5:

> Chip Transfer Counts (Counts I and V in the Division's Complaint)
>
> 1. Respondent Zoby violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-101 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27 by using his casino credit account to draw against for the purpose of transferring gaming chips to junket participants. Decision, at 45.
>
> 2. Respondent Sands, by its conduct of commission and/or omission, did permit, allow and facilitate Zoby's violations of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27 and, therefore, was negligent in its duty to enforce the conditions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101, as incorporated under N.J.S.A. 5:12-102g and, therefore is strictly liable for Zoby's violations. Decision, at 45.
>
> Credit Issuance Counts (Counts II and VI)
>
> 1. Respondent Zoby violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-1021. (2) by his conduct which "circumvented the strict regulation governing casino credit and substituted himself as the approving authority for the issuance of casino credit." Decision, at 48.
>
> 2. Respondent Sands, by allowing and permitting respondent Zoby's conduct as described above, is also in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-1021. (2), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-102g. Decision, at 48.
>
> Check Cashing Count (Count III)
>
> 1. Respondent Zoby violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25 when, on one or more occasions, he cashed the late Albert Miller's personal and business checks for the purpose of repaying debts incurred as a consequence of Miller's gaming activity as a player at the Sands. Decision, at 46.
>
> 2. Respondent Sands is vicariously liable for Zoby's conduct where, as here, Zoby was performing as an agent of and in the Sands behalf when he violated the terms of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25. Decision, at 46-47.

3. Zoby's conduct in cashing Miller's personal and business checks constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101a. and b., to which flows vicarious liability of respondent Sands under the doctrine of respondeat superior. Decision, at 47.

Cash Holding Count (Count IV)

1. Respondent Zoby violated the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101b, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.11(c) 9 and (g), and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.15 when he received and maintained cash deposits from Albert Miller. Decision at 49.

2. Respondent Zoby violated the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24 wherein he failed to prepare the required documentation and perform the required procedures to account for the receipt of cash deposits from the late Albert Miller. Decision, at 49.

3. As a consequence of Zoby's violations and his employment by the Sands Hotel/Casino, it also is held to be in violation of the same statutes and regulations. Decision, at 49.

UNRESOLVED LIABILITY ISSUE - "GAMBLING PARTNERSHIPS"

The Division observes that respondent Zoby offered two explanations for his "chip transfer" activity; i.e., that the chip transfers were reimbursements to junket patrons of cash that the patrons had turned over to Zoby to hold until called for by the patron and, that the chip transfers were given to various junket patrons for the purpose of establishing "gambling partnerships" to allow Zoby to gamble through the junket patron. Respondent Zoby contends that his maintenance of "gambling partnerships" with junket patrons is lawful. The Division contends that Zoby's chip transfer activity, under either explanation, violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-101, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27. The Division asserts that a resolution of the issue regarding "gambling partnerships" entered into between a licensed junket representative and a junket patron is necessary and appropriate at this juncture.

THE DIVISION'S POSITION

The Division observes that Zoby admitted to the use of his personal casino credit account at the Sands on at least 62 occasions, from June 30, 1984 through December 31, 1987, to obtain gaming chips and thereafter provide the gaming chips to various junket participants in order that they could engage in gaming activity at the Sands. At the hearing held on May 8, 1989, Zoby testified, among other things, that subsequent to his sworn investigative interview conducted by the Division on May 22, 1987, he discontinued the practice of accepting and holding cash of his junket patrons. However, Zoby, as well as others, testified that he continued to engage in chip passing activity, using his credit line account, in order to form gambling partnerships with his junket patrons. The herein record demonstrates, through the testimony of Ronald Grablewski, that Zoby transferred gaming chips to Grablewski on the night before the hearing held on May 8, 1989, for the purpose of establishing and engaging in a gambling partnership. Zoby testified that since the beginning of 1989, the majority of counter checks he has negotiated at the Sands have been issued to him for the express purpose of obtaining gaming chips for the use in gambling partnerships with his junket patrons and that he seldom gambles on his own. The gambling partnership arrangement is as follows: (1) Zoby obtains gaming chips by signing for a counter check against his casino credit account; (2) Zoby gives the chips to his partner - a patron on the Zoby junket (on May 7, 1989, Zoby gave $2,500 to junket patron Ronald Grablewski); (3) The junket patron places wagers at the table games with the patron's and Zoby's chips; (4) In the event the junket patron's wagers result in a net loss, Zoby receives no payment; however, (5) If the junket patron's wagers result in net winnings, Zoby receives one-half of the net winnings as his proportionate division of the winnings. Zoby, an avid gambler, contends that he is unable to gamble during his junket excursions to the Sands because of the junket patron demands placed on his time.

The Division observes that section 100n of the Casino Control Act permits a junket representative, among other casino employees, to "wager at any game in any casino in this State." The Division further observes that the general rule is that it is unlawful for any casino key employee and any casino employee to wager at any game in this State except, among others, junket representatives. The Division asserts that the relevant rules of statutory construction indicate that exceptions to a general rule contained within a statute are to be strictly but reasonably construed, consistent with the manifest reason and purpose of the law. Service Armanent Co. v. Hyland, 70 N.J. 550 (1979).

The Division contends that the act of "wagering" requires a personal affirmative act by the player at the game to place a bet on the appropriate areas of gaming tables. See; e.g. N.J.A.C. 19:47-1.3(b) for Craps; N.J.A.C. 19:47-2.3(d) for Blackjack; N.J.A.C. 19:47-3.2(c) for Baccarat; and N.J.A.C. 19:47-5.1(a) for Roulette and Big Six Wheels ('Wagers ... shall be made by placing game chips or plaques on the appropriate areas of the [name of gaming table]"). The Division asserts that the manifest reason and exception contained in N.J.S.A. 5:12-100n regarding junket representatives was to allow these individuals to personally wager at authorized games. Section 100n of the Act does not authorize a junket representative to "gamble" vicariously through a junket patron through a so-called "gambling partnership" arrangement where the junket representatives chips are "wagered" by his junket patrons. Respondent Zoby is not credited with a player rating as a consequence of this chip transfer even when the chip transfer effectuates a "gambling partnership" arrangement. Rather, the junket patron is credited with the "wagering" on the player rating form for that patron; thus, creating a disruption of the proper "paper trail."

The Division argues that its position regarding "gambling partnerships" as applied by Zoby is further supported when consideration is given to the language of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101b which authorizes a casino licensee to accept a check "from any person to enable such person to take part in gaming activity as a player (emphasis added at page 13, Division's letter brief). It asserts that when Zoby executes a counter check at the gaming tables of the Sands and the Sands accepts said check in exchange for gaming chips, the intent of the statute which authorizes such "credit" is to enable Zoby, individually, to place wagers at the gaming tables as a player - not to enable his junket participants to do so in the context of a "gambling partnership."

The Division contends that the total of 62 documented chip transfers employed by Zoby, regardless of his explanation, constitutes a violation of the credit provisions of the Act and the Commission's regulation. To the extent that this issue was not fully addressed in the Initial Decision dated February 10, 1989, it should now be resolved.

RESPONDENT ZOBY'S POSITION

Respondent Zoby contends that the "gambling partnership" question is not an issue before this tribunal nor has it ever been. Zoby asserts that when the Division took his sworn statement, Deputy Attorney General O'Toole advised Zoby that Zoby should stop holding junket patron's funds and returning the patron's funds in the form of gaming chips; Zoby complied with the advise and immediately stopped the practice. Moreover, Zoby argues, at no time did the Division even suggest to Zoby that his engagement in gambling partnerships was in anyway improper or that he should cease such activity. Zoby contends that if a licensee cannot rely upon the representations of counsel of the Division but, rather, have that same counsel "ambush" the licensee later in a proceeding with a question that is not at issue, then the regulatory system serve no one's best interests. Consequently, respondent Zoby will not address the merits of the gambling partnership issue because it was and is not an issue before this administrative tribunal.

RESPONDENT SANDS' POSITION

The Sands asserts that the testimony at the penalty hearing held on May 8, 1989, clearly demonstrates the facts alleged by the Division as being "chip transfers" were, in fact, gambling partnerships between Zoby and his various junket participants. The alleged unlawful "chip transfers" were not the result of Zoby drawing on his credit line solely for the purpose of giving the chips to one of his patrons. Rather, Zoby drew on his credit line to engage in gaming, an act which Zoby is statutorily permitted to do with no unlawful activity occurring.

The Sands contends that notwithstanding the clear impact of the evidentiary proofs, the Division argues that gambling partnerships are somehow unlawful if one of the participants is a licensed junket representative. It maintains that the Division makes this argument without the benefit of any authority therefore. It argues that it remains for the Legislature to give its instruction that junket representatives cannot lawfully engage in gaming activity. However, for as long as Section 100n of the Act specifically exempts a junket representative from the category of persons prohibited from gaming in the casinos, it remains exclusively within the province of the Legislature, not the Executive branch of government, to restrict the gaming activities of a junket representative. In the event the Division seeks to advance the position that chip transfers for the purpose of engaging in a gambling partnership by a junket representative is somehow illegal, it has raised the issue in the wrong forum and the Division should address its concerns to the Legislature; the proper forum for resolution of the issue. Consequently, no penalty is appropriate here on either Zoby or the Sands.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

There is no question that respondent Zoby, a licensed casino key employee and agent of the Sands, is privileged to engage in gaming activities within the casinos under the direction and control of the Act and the Commission. N.J.S.A. 5:12-100n. Concomitant with the privilege to gamble is, presumably, the privilege for Zoby to establish a line of credit for the purpose of participating in the licensed gaming activity. Having established credit with the Sands, the question now is; whether Zoby's use of his credit to transfer chips therefrom to another individual for the purpose of establishing a gambling partnership is a violation of the credit provision of the Act and the Commission's regulations? N.J.S.A. 5:12-101; N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27.

The record demonstrates that immediately subsequent to his sworn interview by the Division on May 22, 1987, Zoby discontinued the practice of receiving money from his junket patrons and reimbursing the patrons with chips drawn from his credit line with the Sands. However, he thereafter continued to transfer chips from his credit account to establish and engage in gambling partnerships with junket patrons.

Having previously found and concluded that the practice of Zoby receiving money from junket patrons and using his credit account as a "bank" to subsequently reimburse the patrons with chips to be in violation of the Act and the regulations, I find no such violation with respect to the use of Zoby's credit account for the purpose of engaging in a gambling partnership. (See, Initial Decision at pp. 43-45). Notwithstanding that such chip transfer may disrupt a "paper trail" of credit transactions, the fact remains that Zoby has a statutory right to "wager at any game in any casino in this State." N.J.S.A. 5:12-100n. The manner in which Zoby elects to wager; i.e., on his own behalf or through a proxy or partner, is neither prohibited nor proscribed by the Act or regulations. It is not within the province of this administrative tribunal to defeat the purpose of the statute which permits Zoby the privilege of gambling. Accardi v. Mayor & Coun. of No. Wildwood, 145 N.J. Super. 532, 545 (Law Div. 1976); Falcone v. Branker, 135 N.J. Super. 137, 153 (Law. Div. 1975); State v. Line, 14 N.J. 446 (1954); State v. Gill, 47 N.J. 441 (1966). As our Supreme Court said in Kingsley v. Hawthorne Fabrics, Inc. 41 N.J. 521 (1964) that:

> An administrative agency may not under the guise of interpretation extend a statute to include persons not intended, nor may it give the statute any greater effect than its language allows (citation omitted) at p. 528.

Neither may this administrative tribunal exclude persons intended nor give the statute any lesser effect than its language allows. Kingsley.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that respondent Zoby's transfer of gaming chips from his credit account to another person for the purpose of establishing and conducting a gambling partnership is consistent with the meaning of section 100n of the Act and does not violate N.J.S.A. 5:12-101 or N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27.

PENALTY CONSIDERATIONS

THE DIVISION'S RECOMMENDATIONS

The Division, citing the Commission's authority to impose sanctions for violations of the Act or its regulations under section 129 of the Act, recommends the following penalties to be imposed upon respondents Zoby and the Sands:

1. The suspension of Zoby's casino key employee license for a term of two (2) years; and

2. A monetary fine against Zoby in the range of $120,000 to $175,000; and

3. An order of restitution to the estate of the late Albert Miller in the amount of $127,500; and

4. A monetary fine against the Sands in the range of $350,000 to $450,000.

The Division asserts that its recommended penalties are justified due to the severity of the offenses committed by Zoby and the circumstance by which the Sands permitted the offenses to occur. In support of its penalty assessments, the Division relies, in part, upon the findings and conclusions reached by this tribunal with respect to the charged offenses.

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES WITH RESPECT TO PENALTY

Zoby License Suspension

The Division asserts, among other things, that given the nature and scope of the violations found against respondent Zoby, an order to revoke Zoby's casino key employee license, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1), is a plausible sanction to the serious and unjustified deviation from the strict regulation and control of the casino credit and cash transactions. The Division, however, recommends a penalty short of revocation; i.e., a suspension of Zoby's license for a period of two (2) years, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(3).

Respondent Zoby argues, among other things, that the Division misapplies the statute, N.J.S.A. 5:12-129, where the Division suggests that this tribunal has the authority to suspend Zoby's license thereunder. He contends that N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(3) actually permits the suspension of a license "of any person pending hearing and determination, in any case in which license or registration revocation could result." In the instant matter, Zoby has been operating as a junket representative since the filing of the Division's original complaint and there has been no temporary suspension of his license. Respondent Zoby argues that a revocation of his license would not be permitted by law in this case. He has not been convicted of any criminal offense nor has he committed any offense which would disqualify him from holding a license N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1). Nor has Zoby willfully and knowingly violated any order of the Commission N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(2). Zoby submits that the law does not even permit a suspension of his license. If the terms of N.J. S.A. 5:12-129 are examined carefully, he contends, it is apparent that a suspension of his license is not permitted by law in these circumstances.

The "Chip Transfer" Counts (Counts I and V)

The Division maintains, among other things, that it documented 62 instances of chip transfers by Zoby to junket participants. Zoby stated that the transfers reflect reimbursements of cash he held for various junket patrons, Albert Miller, Will Walker, Willard Edwards and Jules Siman. At the hearing held on May 8, 1989, Zoby identified Albert Miller, William Runnells, Will Walker and Elliot Gilmer as individuals who had provided Zoby with money at the beginning of junket trips where Zoby was to hold the money until requested by the individual during the course of the junket trip. The Division asserts that the six individuals noted above account for 35 of the 62 chip transfers and $177,500 of the $295,000 in total chip transfers by Zoby.

The Division contends that the violations of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27 are serious where credit transactions conducted by a casino licensee, its employees and agents, are to be among the most strictly regulated aspects of casino operations. Playboy-Elsinore Associates v. Strauss, 189 N.J. Super. 185 (Law Div. 1983); In the Matter of the Petition of Adamar of New Jersey, Inc.., 222 N.J. Super. 457 (App. Div. 1988); State of New Jersey v. Boardwalk Regency Corp., 11 N.J.A.R. 29. It asserts that by his actions, Zoby undermined the strict regulation of casino credit, altered the normal "paper trail" of credit transactions and facilitated a misleading record of player ratings associated with his counter check issuances.

The Division observes that N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(5) authorizes monetary fines against individual licensees up to $10,000 per violation and against casino licensees up to $50,000 per violation. Consequently, the Division recommends that a monetary fine in the range of $35,000 to $50,000 be assessed Zoby for Counts I and V of its Amended Complaint.

The Division recommends that the Sands be fined in the range of $75,000 to $100,000 for the violations associated with Counts I and V of its Amended Complaint. In support of its recommendation, the Division asserts that the Sands laissez faire approach to the open and visible conduct of junket representative Zoby contributed to the violations and, therefore, should be severely penalized.

Respondent Zoby contends that the Division is seeking a total penalty in excess of 1.3 million dollars. The major portion of the penalty would be imposed against Zoby by way of the proposed suspension of his casino key employee license for a term of two years. He contends that the Commission has not even remotely approached this level of penalty for violations of regulations, which here involves significantly less money, and would set a completely new standard of penalty; particularly for conduct which was unintentional. Respondent Zoby cites and summarizes a variety of cases where the Commission imposed penalties and fines against casino licensees for violating its accounting and internal control regulations as found at N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.1 et seq. State v. Resorts International Hotel, Inc., Laura Shope, Charles McCallion, Chester Calvin Mitchel, William Gallion and Oscar Dykes, OAL DKT. No. CCC 1427-84, Agency Dkt. No. 83-388, Initial Decision dated October 11, 1984, Commission Decision dated June 14, 1985; State v. Boardwalk Regency Corp., 11 N.J.A.R. 29, Initial Decision dated June 8, 1982, Commission Decision dated January 4, 1983; State v. Greate Bay Hotel & Casino, Inc. et al., OAL DKT. No. CCC 5460-83, Agency Dkt. No. 83-17, Initial Decision dated March 26, 1984, Commission Decision dated July 25, 1984; State v. Playboy-Elsinore Associates, et al., OAL DKT. No. CCC 4557-83, Agency Dkt. No. 83-16, Commission Decision dated October 10, 1984. In each of the above cited matters, intentional violations of the Commission's regulatory scheme were committed and each violation involved considerable amounts of money. Zoby maintains, moreover, that the fines and penalties assessed for these intentional transgressions represent only a small fraction of the penalty now recommended to be imposed against him. Zoby contends that the recommended penalties are wholly inappropriate and that he should not be subjected to a penalty of more than $10,000 in total. To do otherwise would be to impose a punitive penalty rather than a civil penalty which is supposed to punish his alleged misconduct and deter future violations.

Respondent Zoby further argues that when he was advised by the Division that his holding of funds for his patrons and then returning those funds in the form of chips was improper, he immediately ceased all such activity.

The respondent Sands observes that the testimony of the hearing held on May 8, 1989, clearly and unequivocally demonstrate that the chip transfers were, in fact, gambling partnerships between Zoby and various of his junket participants. Therefore, the chip transfers were not the result of Zoby drawing on his credit line solely for the purpose of giving the chips to one of his patrons but, rather, were for the purpose of allowing Zoby to engage in gaming; an act which he is statutorily permitted to do. Inasmuch as no unlawful activity occurred between Zoby and his gambling partners, therefore, no penalty is appropriate here on either Zoby or, vicariously, the Sands.

The Credit Issuance Counts (Counts II and VI)

The Division asserts that Zoby violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-102 1 (2) through the subterfuge of processing counter checks on his own approved casino credit account. By so doing, Zoby exercised approval authority with regard to the authorization and issuance of casino credit by funneling gaming chips to persons who had no casino credit accounts of their own, to persons who had been denied casino credit, and to at least one person who had suspended casino credit privileges. The Division contends that Zoby's conduct represents a risk to the integrity of the casino credit system and, therefore, recommends that a monetary fine in the range of $35,000 to $50,000 be imposed against Zoby and a monetary fine in the range of $75,000 to $100,000 be imposed against the casino licensee Sands.

Respondent Zoby contends that although the Division asserts that Zoby's conduct created a great risk to the public and to the integrity of gaming patrons, there has never been one statement of substantial facts to show how Zoby's conduct in any way posed a risk to the public or to the integrity of the gaming operations. Respondent Zoby testified that the late Albert Miller was his friend. On one occasion, Zoby specifically requested that the Sands not issue credit to Miller, since Zoby believed that it not be in Miller's best interest to have casino credit. While it would have been in Zoby's best financial interest for the Sands to issue as much credit as possible to Miller, Zoby went out of his way to make sure that one of his friends/patrons was not given access to the very money which would have increased Zoby's own profits as a junket representative.

It is noted here again that when Zoby was advised by the Division of the impropriety of collecting money from patrons at the beginning of a junket trip and reimbursing the patrons with chips at the gaming tables, Zoby immediately stopped the practice.

The Sands maintains that no penalty is appropriate on either Counts II and VI of the Division's Amended Complaint. These counts incorrectly allege that Zoby backhandedly engaged in the issuance of credit by drawing on his credit line and providing chips to the patron. These counts also fail to account for the lawful gambling partnerships for which Zoby's credit line was used. Consequently, the allegations cannot be sustained and, therefore, no penalty should be imposed.

The Check Cashing Count III

The Division contends that Zoby engaged in the practice of cashing personal and business checks of the late Albert Miller with the knowledge that the check cashing allowed Miller to pay gambling loans Miller had incurred from other junket patrons. As a consequence of Zoby's activity, this tribunal found that Zoby had violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25 and N.J.S.A. 5:12-101a and b. The Division asserts that Zoby admitted that 18 of 30 personal and business checks referenced in its Amended Complaint were cashed by Zoby for the purpose of defraying Miller's gambling debts. This involved $68,500 in personal checks and $59,000 in business checks cashed by Zoby for Miller which totals $127,500 in cashed checks to facilitate Miller's gaming activity.

The Division contends that the seriousness of these violations is reflected in the fact that Zoby was fully aware that Miller's checks represented losses Miller incurred at the gaming tables of the Sands from funds he had borrowed from other junket participants. The cashing of personal and business checks by Zoby enabled Miller to gamble away monies beyond his expected losses. This is precisely the type of situation that the credit provisions of the Act and the Commission regulations were designed to avoid.

The Division observes that Zoby holds a junket representative license to bring persons to Atlantic City who are willing to gamble. It also observes that to hold a casino license or individual license is a privilege and not a right. N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8). The more Zoby's junket participants gamble, the more "productive" Zoby is as a junket representative. Zoby is permitted to observe and monitor his junket patron's play pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-29.2 and N.J.A.C. 19:49-2.1(a), however, he is not permitted to facilitate the patron's gaming activity by acting as a banker to cash personal and business checks to defray gambling loans. It also observes that Zoby earned $300,000 per year since 1985 and that he currently earns in excess of $500,000 per year as a junket representative for the Sands. The Division argues that Zoby's "productivity" should not be enhanced as a consequence of his violating the law.

The Division recommends that respondent Zoby be ordered to pay restitution to the estate of the late Albert Miller in the amount of $127,500, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-129 (6), which represents the value of the checks unlawfully cashed by Zoby for the late Albert Miller. The Division also recommends that a monetary fine in the range of $75,000 to $100,000 be imposed on the Sands for the 18 violations associated with Count III of its Amended Complaint.

Respondent Zoby contends that the Division is attempting to establish a remedy for the heirs of the late Albert Miller which the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division has rejected and dismissed for the heirs failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. (See, Exhibit "A" Order by Michael R. Connor, J.S.C., February 7, 1989). Respondent Zoby asserts that it is undisputed that Miller gambled either with his own money which he brought to Atlantic City or with money he borrowed from persons other than Zoby. In effect, the Division is seeking restitution to the heirs for money which belonged to Miller, which he gambled of his own volition and which was never loaned by Zoby to Miller. Zoby objects to any penalty being imposed on these grounds.

The respondent Sands also cites the Superior Court of New Jersey decision wherein the court dismissed the action brought by the executors of Miller's estate against Zoby and the Sands. The Court determined that no cause of action lies for the recovery of paid gaming losses, therefore, no liability attaches to Zoby or the Sands for Miller's gambling losses. Notwithstanding that the executors of the estate of Miller have sought leave to appeal the court's ruling, the Sands submits that this tribunal must stay its hand in favor of the disposition of the Superior Court. Under such circumstances, no penalty is appropriate for either Zoby or the Sands.

The Cash Holding Count (Count IV)

The Division observes that the record demonstrates that respondent Zoby would receive cash deposits from various junket participants at the commencement of his junket trips. Subsequent to arrival at the Sands, Zoby would process periodic refunds of those deposits through the gaming chip transfers he negotiated at the gaming tables using his personal credit account at the Sands. Respondent Zoby maintained no records or documentation to memorialize the receipt of cash from his junket patrons. Nor did he keep any records of the reimbursements of the cash to the patrons through the gaming chip transfers.

This tribunal, having considered the undisputed facts in this matter, concluded that Zoby violated the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101b, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.11(c)9 and (g) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.15. In addition, it was concluded that Zoby violated the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24 wherein Zoby failed to prepare the required documentation and to perform the required procedures to account for the receipt of cash deposits from the late Albert Miller.

The Division contends that its investigation reveals that Miller accompanied Zoby to the Sands on nine (9) junket trips between June 30 and August 23, 1986. It asserts that during each of those junket trips, Miller was the recipient of gaming chip transfers from Zoby at the Sands gaming tables. The Division contends that Zoby's conduct seriously undermined the integrity of the regulatory process in two respects: First, the regulatory scheme of intensive security, surveillance and regulatory oversight over cash transactions was ignored; and second, the obligation to completely and accurately maintain a full "audit trail" of gaming transactions engaged in between the gaming public and those entities and individuals licensed under the Act was ignored.

For the nine (9) junket trips identified by the Division involving the late Albert Miller, the Division recommends a monetary penalty in the range of $35,000 to $50,000 be imposed against Zoby for violations of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101b, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.11(c) 9 and (g) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.15. In addition, for Zoby's failure to maintain records of the receipt and disbursement of the cash deposits in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24, the Division recommends a monetary penalty in the range of $20,000 to $25,000.

The Division observes that this tribunal also held the Sands to be in violation of the same statutes and regulations as cited above. The Division asserts that the Sands' responsibility for Zoby's conduct cannot be overstated. The Legislature has provided clear and unequivocal language that the sensitivity of junket representative activity to the integrity of the legalized gaming activity in this State is so integral to the process that casino licensees must and are to be held liable for the conduct of junket representatives; even in the absence of the casino licensee having actual knowledge of the violative conduct.

The Division, therefore, recommends a civil fine in the range of $75,000 to $100,000 be imposed against the Sands for the violations of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101b, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.11 (c) 9 and (g) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.15 and a civil fine in the amount of $50,000 for the violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24.

Respondent Zoby responds that the violations were unintentional and extraordinarily unique. He argues that it was impossible for him to have even considered that his activities were in any way illegal. Zoby relies upon the testimony of Robert Goldstein, Vice President of Casino Marketing at the Sands and Executive Vice President with Pratt Hotel Corporation wherein Goldstein testified at the penalty hearing on May 8, 1989, that he was an attorney admitted to practice in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania since 1980 and had been involved in the New Jersey casino industry since 1980. Goldstein testified that it made no sense to him that a junket representative who held cash for a patron as a way of controlling that patron, would make the junket representative into a general cage cashier. Goldstein also testified that it would not occur to him that the use of a personal credit line to draw down chips to give to someone from whom that person was holding cash would turn that person into a credit issuing agency, issuing credit for other people to play with. (Transcript at 40-48). Zoby maintains that if it never would have occurred to an attorney and to someone who has been involved in the casino industry since 1980 that there were violations of the Act and/or the Commission's rules, it certainly could not reasonably be expected to occur to Zoby that he was doing something illegal. In light of these circumstances, and in light of the very technical violations, Zoby submits that only a minimal fine be imposed and that no period of suspension of his license is appropriate.

The Sands, in response to the Division's contentions and recommendations, presents a detailed analysis of the Act's standards for penalties under section 130, which shall be discussed, in part, post.

PENALTY DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Section 129 provides the Commission with a variety of sanctions to be imposed for violations of the Act and/or its regulations. The penalties include, among other things; the revocation or suspension of a casino's license or certificate of operation; restitution or cease and desist orders; issuance of letters of reprimand or censure and the imposition of monetary civil penalties. These penalties may be imposed singularly or in combination. In its Second Interim Report, Staff Policy Group on Casino Licensing, (February 17, 1977) the policy group recognized the need for flexible civil sanctions for the enforcement of the provisions of the Act and the regulatory scheme under the Commission. It said, in part, at 54 that, "The Commission should be clearly empowered to devise the remedy best suited to the offense. To this end, there should be emphasis on alternative or cumulative sanctions." As to monetary penalties, the policy group said, in part, that:

> ... the Commission should be empowered to pose a range of fines; however, it must be emphasized that penalties must be of sufficient magnitude to eliminate the possibility that a penalty becomes simply a cost of doing business in this State. Furthermore, the Commission should be empowered to levy a monetary fine in lieu of more drastic action. A monetary penalty of sufficient magnitude would provide the desired deterrent effect and should also provide a stimulus for effective completion of any disciplinary proceedings. [Id. at 54-55]

The Legislature agreed with the policy group and enacted section 129 of the Act in accordance with its recommendations. The Legislature, in conjunction with section 129, adopted standards as requisite considerations in determining the appropriate sanction to be applied in any disciplinary action brought before the Commission. Those standards, as provided by section 130 of the Act, are as follows:

> a. The risk to the public and to the integrity of gaming operations created by the conduct of the licensee or registrant;
> b. The seriousness of the conduct of the licensee or registrant, and whether the conduct was purposeful and with knowledge that it was in contravention of the provisions of this act or regulations promulgated hereunder;

> c. Any justification or excuse for such conduct by the licensee or registrant;
>
> d. The prior history of the particular license or registrant involved with respect to gaming activity;
>
> e. The correction action taken by the licensee or registrant to prevent future misconduct of a like nature from occurring; and
>
> f. In the case of a monetary penalty, the amount of the penalty in relation to the severity of the misconduct and the financial means of the licensee or registrant. The commission may impose any schedule or terms of payment of such penalty as it may deem appropriate.
> g. It shall be no defense to disciplinary action before the commission that an applicant, licensee, registrant, intermediary company, or holding company inadvertently, unintentionally, or unknowingly violated a provision of this act. Such factors shall only go to the degree of the penalty to be imposed by the commission, and not to a finding of a violation itself.

Being mindful of the required standards for consideration, proper weight has been applied to the penalties to be imposed upon respondents' as follows:

The Chip Transfer Counts (Counts I and V)

The seriousness of this violation has been demonstrated in the Discussion and Conclusions portion of the Initial Decision dated February 10, 1989, and need not be repeated here. The undisputed facts clearly show that there were 62 documented instances of chip transfer from respondent Zoby to a variety of junket participants in a total amount of $295,000. Six identified individuals, Albert Miller among them, accounted for 35 chip transfers in an amount of $177,500. The Division has credibly established at least 35 chip transfers. The remaining 27 chip transfers, some of which were for the purpose of providing chips to Zoby's gambling partners, will not be considered for penalty due to respondent Zoby's statutory right to gamble at the casinos under the Commission's control.

Having carefully considered the standards pursuant to section 130 of the Act, an appropriate monetary penalty of $1,000 each for the 35 chip transfers is to be imposed against respondent Zoby for his violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101 and N.J.A.C.

19:45-1.27. This civil penalty of $35,000 is imposed against respondent Zoby after consideration of the "risk to the public and to the integrity of gaming operations" as a consequence of respondent Zoby's conduct. N.J.S.A. 5:12-130a. Zoby, having set himself up as a repository for his junket participants' funds and, thereafter, reimbursing the patron with gaming chips from his approved credit line became, in effect, a "bank" extending credit outside of the control of the Commission and its regulations. The Commission's regulations establish strict controls and conduct for casino credit which Zoby circumvented; a serious violation.

Consideration is also given to the fact that respondent Zoby's conduct was nor purposeful nor with the knowledge that it was in contravention of the Act and regulations. N.J.S.A. 5:12-130b. Respondent Zoby testified credibly that he was unaware that his conduct was in violation of the Act and regulations. However, such ignorance is no defense but, rather, has been taken into consideration with respect to the imposed penalty. N.J.S.A. 5:12-103g. Consideration was also given to respondent Zoby's unblemished prior history as a licensed junket representative, N.J.S.A. 5:12-103d, as well as the corrective action to cease and desist from taking patrons money after he had been advised of its impropriety by the Division on May 22, 1987. N.J.S.A. 5:12-130e.

Having found and determined the Sands to be strictly liable for Zoby's violations of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27, an assessment of a civil penalty in the amount of $35,000 against the Sands is appropriate here. There is no doubt that the Sands was negligent in its duty to enforce the controlling statutes and regulations. Where, as here, strict compliance with the provisions of the Act and regulations are overlooked and ignored, a serious breach of conduct is extant. The Sands has a continuing duty to assure that all aspects of the Act and regulations are in compliance. To the extent that the Sands observed the chip transfers from Zoby to his junket patrons on at least 35 occasions and took no action to stop the activity, a penalty of $1,000 per transaction is appropriate for a total civil penalty of $35,000 with regards to the Division's Amended Complaint - Counts I and V.

The Credit Issuance Counts (Counts II and VI)

The facts and circumstances here are virtually identical to those with regard to Counts I and V above. Here, respondent Zoby was found to have "circumvented the strict regulation governing casino credit and substituted himself as the approving authority for the issuance of casino credit." Initial Decision, February 10, 1989 at p. 48. An offense such as this is serious where it presents a risk to the integrity of the gaming operations. As stated hereinbefore, the exercise of strict regulation and control over casino credit is essential to the integrity of the casino industry. The Legislature recognized this concept of strict control when it enacted section 101 of the Act. Similarly, the Commission recognized its obligations when it promulgated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.1 et seq.

This tribunal found that Zoby exercised approval authority to his junket patrons through the subterfuge of processing counter checks against his own approved casino credit account and then transmitting gaming chips to persons who had no casino credit accounts of their own or, alternatively, had been denied or suspended casino credit.

Accordingly, a civil penalty of $1,000 per violation is assessed against respondent Zoby for 35 violations of section 102 1. (2). Thus, the total fine for the violations assessed under Counts II and VI is $35,000.

In consideration of the seriousness of the violations and by allowing and permitting Zoby to engage in approval authority with regard to the issuance of credit, a similar fine of $35,000 is assessed against the Sands.

The Check Cashing Count (Count III)

The record clearly demonstrates that Zoby cashed 30 personal and business checks executed by the late Albert Miller. The facts further demonstrate that 18 of the 30 personal and business checks were cashed by Zoby for the express purpose of defraying Miller's gambling debts, in clear violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25. The cashing of each of these checks is a separate and distinct violation of the regulations and sections 101a and b of the Act. Accordingly, a penalty of $1,000 per violation is the appropriate penalty. Therefore, the total fine assessed against Zoby under Count III of the Division's Amended Complaint is $18,000.

Having found and determined that the Sands is vicariously liable for Zoby's improper conduct under the doctrine of respondent superior, a similar fine of $18,000 is assessed against it for violating N.J.S.A. 101 a and b, and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25.

The Division's recommendation that Zoby be ordered to pay restitution to the estate of the late Albert Miller in an amount of $127,000 is rejected. The $127,000 represents the total amount of the 18 checks cashed by Zoby which permitted Miller to repay debts incurred as a consequence of Miller's gaming activity. Restitution is defined as the "Act of restoring, restoration; restoration of anything to its rightful owner; the act of making good or giving equivalent for any loss, damage or injury; an indemnification." Black's Law Dictionary, (Fifth Ed. 1979) at 1180. Here, Miller engaged in a sanctioned gambling activity by his own volition. He participated at the gaming tables by his own choosing with no evidence that he was either coerced or did so against his will. Miller incurred debts which he satisfied, in part, through the cashing of his personal and business checks by Zoby. There is no evidence that the "damage or injury" visited upon Miller was by anyone other than himself. For the Division to seek restitution of legitimate gambling losses incurred by Miller is without merit and must be DENIED.

The Cash Holding Count (Count IV)

The seriousness of Zoby's violation of section 101b of the Act and the regulatory provisions at N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.11 (c) 9 and (g) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.15 cannot be minimized. Here Zoby received and maintained cash deposits from Miller rather than direct Miller to the cashiers cage to receive Miller's deposits. In so doing, Zoby placed himself in the position of general cashier when he accepted Miller's deposit and refunded Miller with gaming chips. There is no statutory or regulatory provision which permits a junket representative to act as or substitute for a general cashier in the casino industry. Zoby's contention that Miller did not wish to use the casino facilities for his cash deposits is no justification. "In a strictly regulated industry, compliance is required and therefore expected." Div. of Gaming v. Playboy-Elsinore Assoc., et al. 11 N.J.A.R. 192 at 207.

The record demonstrates that Albert Miller accompanied Zoby to the Sands on nine (9) separate junket trips between June 30, 1984 and August 23, 1986. On each of the nine junket trips, Miller was in receipt of gaming chip transfers from Zoby as a consequence of Zoby's receipt of cash deposits from Miller. No written record of these transactions was kept by Zoby nor was the cash deposited with the cashiers cage as required by regulation. By his conduct, Zoby undermined and placed at risk the integrity of gaming operations as it affects the custody of currency, patron checks, gaming chips and documents and records for same. N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.11 (c) 9 i.

An assessment of $1,000 for each of the nine junket trips is appropriate under the circumstance. Therefore, respondent is assessed the civil fine of $9,000 for the violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101b, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.11 (c) 9 and (g) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.15. In addition, a fine of $1,000 against Zoby for his failure to maintain records of the receipt and disbursement of cash deposits in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24 is also imposed, making the total $10,000 in fines for the violations in Count IV of the Division's Amended Complaint.

Similarly, the Sands is assessed $10,000 in fines for the above violations committed by it's agent, Ronald Zoby.

Zoby License Suspension

Respondent Zoby's argument that the law does not permit a suspension of his casino key employee license, under the facts asserted and found here, is misplaced and rejected. Pursuant to its broad and discretionary powers under section 64 of the Act, the Legislature granted the Commission the power and authority to limit or restrict any registration, suspend or revoke any license and impose penalties on any person licensed or registered in the casino industry. See, In the Matter of Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union Local 54, 203 N.J. Super. 297 (App. Div. 1985) cert. den. 102 N.J. 352 (1985) cert. den. 475 U.S. 1085 (1986). Respondent Zoby's arguments to the contrary are, therefore, without merit.

The Division's request to suspend Zoby's license is also rejected and denied. Having considered the factors in section 130 of the Act in imposing such a sanction, the herein record demonstrates that:

1. Although the violations were serious and created a risk to the integrity of gaming operations, Zoby did not commit the violations purposefully and with the knowledge that his conduct was in contravention of the Act or the Commission's regulations. N.J.S.A. 5:12-130 a and b.

2. Respondent Zoby's prior history as an agent and/or employee in the casino industry is unblemished. N.J.S.A. 5:12-130 a and c.

3. Respondent Zoby took immediate corrective action, when advised by the Division, to refrain from accepting money from his junket participants and/or refunding the money with gaming chips. N.J.S.A. 5:12-130e.

4. The financial penalties imposed herein are sufficient to correct Zoby's conduct and to deter him as well as others from committing the same or similar offenses in the future.

ORDER

For the above reasons, it is hereby ORDERED the Divisions recommendation that respondent Zoby's license be suspended for a term of two (2) years, is hereby DENIED.

In summary, it is further ORDERED that the total monetary civil penalty to be imposed against respondent Ronald Zoby is $98,000. Similarly, it is ORDERED that the Sands be assessed a monetary civil penalty in the amount of $98,000.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

This case involves substantial questions regarding the relationship between and among a casino licensee, a junket representative and patrons the junket representative brings to the casino. By complaint filed on January 19, 1988, and amended on May 17, 1988, the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) alleged that Ronald A. Zoby (Zoby), a licensed junket representative and owner of a junket enterprise, arrogated to himself functions which, under the comprehensive design of the Casino Control Act and its attendant regulations, he was not authorized to perform. He was charged with improperly extending credit, receiving cash deposits and cashing checks.

More specifically, the Division asserted that Zoby used his casino credit account to obtain gaming chips which he then later transferred to junket participants (sometimes "junketeers") in violation of the credit provisions, N.J.S.A. 5:12-101, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25 and -1.27. It further charged that Zoby received and maintained cash provided by one particular patron, the late Albert Miller, which was returned to Miller in the form of chips for gambling in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(b); N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.11(c)(9), -1.11(g) and -1.15, and that he failed to prepare the documentation required for such transactions by N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24. The Division also charged that Zoby exercised approval authority with regard to the authorization of casino credit for Miller and others in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-102(l)(2). Further, the Division alleged that Zoby cashed checks for Miller so that Miller could repay gambling debts, contrary to N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(a), -101(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25. Finally, the Division alleged that Greate Bay Hotel and Casino Inc. (Greate Bay) was liable for the foregoing violations pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-102(g) and (h) as a consequence of Zoby's employment as a junket representative at its gaming establishment, the Sands Hotel and Casino (Sands).

Two initial decisions were filed in this case. In the first, issued on February 10, 1989, the Administrative Law Judge decided cross motions for summary decision and considered only questions of liability. He concluded that, based on stipulated facts, Zoby had committed all violations alleged in the complaint and both he and respondent Greate Bay were liable. Without considering the merits of this decision, the Commission remanded the case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for recommendations as to penalties. At the remand hearing on May 8, 1989, testimony was taken on the penalty issue and, because the parties could not agree on whether the first decision resolved the matter, on the issue of whether Zoby's practice of establishing "gambling partnerships" with his junketeers violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-101 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27. In the second initial decision issued on September 22, 1989, the ALJ concluded that Zoby's gambling partnerships were not unlawful. With respect to the violations previously determined, the ALJ recommended that respondents Zoby and Greate Bay each pay civil penalties totaling $98,000.

By order dated March 12, 1990, the Commission rejected the ALJ's conclusions that, on the stipulated facts, Zoby's use of his credit account to obtain gaming chips for junket patrons violated the credit provisions, N.J.S.A. 5:12-101, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25 and -1.27, and that this conduct involved the exercise of credit approval authority in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-102(1)(2). The remaining conclusions on liability were adopted but the penalty recommendations were substantially modified. At the public meeting of February 7, 1990, the Commission imposed penalties totaling $22,500 on respondent Zoby and $45,000 on respondent Greate Bay. The Commission issues this opinion to amplify its reasons.

Factual Background

The case was presented on cross motions for summary decision[1] and there are no disputed issues of fact. The ALJ's factual findings are, therefore, adopted and incorporated herein, and only a brief recitation of the significant facts is required.

Respondent Zoby is the sole proprietor of a junket enterprise which employs other junket representatives to assist in the planning and execution of gambling excursions to Atlantic City and other locations. Zoby's association with the Sands extends back to 1981. Since December 1985 the employment relationship has been governed by a written agreement which ties Zoby's compensation to the level of play of the patrons he brings to the casino. The relationship has been a profitable one, certainly for Zoby who reportedly earned $504,000 for 1988, and presumably for the Sands as well. [2]

Zoby established a credit account at the Sands in June of 1984. At the time of the hearing, his credit line was $85,000. Zoby utilized the credit account for two distinct purposes: to facilitate his own gambling and to provide chips to his junketeers. A self-described avid gambler, Zoby was too busy to engage in gaming activities personally in the course of any of the junkets he brought to the Sands. It was for this reason that he engaged in the gambling partnerships.

At issue here are 62 occasions between June 1980 and December 1987 on which Zoby caused counter checks to be issued against his credit account. On each occasion, the gaming chips he received in exchange for the counter checks were thereafter transferred to Zoby's junketeers. Some of these were for the purpose of establishing gambling partnerships. However, 35 of these chip transfers, worth a total of $295,00, were made for the sole convenience and gambling purposes of junketeers. At the outset of the junket, the patrons involved, including Miller, had given Zoby cash for safekeeping in an amount at least equal to the value of the chips transferred. Apparently, the junketeers preferred this procedure over depositing their money at the casino cage in the manner authorized by the regulations.

It is further established that for approximately three and one-half years Zoby routinely cashed personal and business checks for Miller, whose casino credit privileges had been suspended. Zoby did so knowing that the proceeds of the checks were to pay Miller's gambling debts incurred as a result of loans from other junketeers. Documents evidencing that Zoby cashed 18 such checks totaling $127,000 are included in the record before us.

Respondent Zoby kept no records of any of these transactions. Neither did he charge any fees or interest for providing any of these "services" to his junketeers.

Liability of Respondent Greate Bay

At the outset, we will dispose of Greate Bay's contention that under no circumstances can it be held accountable for any violations which Mr. Zoby may have committed. The argument advanced by Greate Bay is essentially that it is not responsible for any acts of Zoby that were contrary to the Act or regulations because such conduct would necessarily be beyond the proper course and scope of his agency as a junket representative of the Sands.

We have heard and roundly rejected similar arguments from this and other casino licensees before. In the most recent case involving Greate Bay, the Commission's decision was affirmed by Appellate Division in an unreported opinion which concluded that the casino licensee was liable for its employees' violations under the doctrine of respondeat superior and added:

> Moreover, as the Commission properly noted, a determination that Greate Bay, should be responsible for its employees' conduct is even more compelling in the context of casino gaming, given the legislative policy of strict regulation. ...To insulate Greate Bay from the conduct of its employees in such circumstances would erode the prophylactic effect of the regulations. [State v. Greate Bay Hotel and Casino, Inc., et al Docket No. A-550-86T6, unpublished Appellate Division opinion, decided July 8, 1988), slip opinion at 8.

These principles apply here as well. But the case for Greate Bay's liability is even more compelling in this case. Section 102(g) provides that, "[a] casino licensee shall be responsible for the conduct of any junket representative or junket enterprise associated with it...." Section 102(h) provides that,

> [a] casino licensee shall be responsible for any violation or deviation from the terms of a junket. Notwithstanding any other provisions of this Act, the Commission may, after hearings in accordance with this Act, ... assess penalties for such violations or deviations, prohibit future junkets by the casino licensee, junket enterprise or junket representative, and order such further relief as it deems appropriate.

Here in clear, unambiguous terms the Legislature has imposed absolute, vicarious regulatory liability upon casino licensees for the behavior of those who conduct junkets on their behalf and has authorized this Commission to mete out suitable penalties. Because all the allegations of impropriety alleged against Zoby in this case occurred in the course of his junkets to the Sands, Greate Bay is responsible for such violations by Zoby as are established in the record.

Zoby's use of Credit Account to obtain Chips for Patrons

Zoby used his credit account to provide funds in the form of chips for use by his junket patrons. The Division contends this conduct violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-101 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25 and -1.27. The ALJ disagreed with respect to those instances where Zoby gave chips to his junket patrons for the purpose of establishing gambling partnerships. As to these, the ALJ reasoned that a junket representative has the "statutory right" to wager at any casino game pursuant to section 100(n),[3] and that gambling partnerships are not otherwise precluded by the Act or regulations. Init. dec. dated September 22, 1989, at 8. As to all the other chip transfers, the ALJ ruled that Zoby's use of his credit account to provide a "bank" for the transfer of chips to junket participants constituted an "advance" of funds for gaming contrary to section 101 of the Act and disrupted the "paper trail" and "recognized use" of a casino credit account contrary to N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27. Init. dec. dated February 10, 1989, at 44, 45. Consistent with his finding that Zoby's chip passing, except for gambling partnership purposes, was an extension of credit, the ALJ concluded that this conduct also violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-102(b)(2), which prohibits junket representatives from exercising credit approval authority.

Credit for gaming purposes was a controversial issue before the Casino Control Act was enacted into law in 1977. The State Commission of Investigation had recommended that credit not be permitted at all, while others, including the Governor's Staff Policy Group, had recommended that credit be allowed but only under stringent restrictions. See State Commission of Investigation Account and Record on Casino Gambling April, 1977, at pp. 1-E to 9-E; Second Interim Report, Staff Policy Report on Casino Gambling, February 17, 1977, at pp. 34-36. The latter approach was adopted by the Legislature and section 101 of the Act, together with the strict regulations adopted by the Commission, were the result.[4] Only specifically designated and appropriately licensed casino employees are permitted to participate in credit-related transactions. Moreover, many of the credit-related functions are also limited as to where they may occur. Most of the important ones are restricted either to the area known as the casino cage or to the gaming pits. Junket representatives are expressly precluded from engaging in credit-related activities by N.J.S.A. 5:12-102(1).[5] Given this regulatory framework, the allegation that Zoby violated these credit provisions must be evaluated with extreme care.

4. The regulations, particularly N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27 have been "tightened" to meet with problems that have arisen over time. This case requires no extensive discussion of the changes or the reasons for them. It suffices to note that the regulations provide in exquisite detail the procedures which must be followed regarding all aspects of the credit process.

5. N.J.S.A. 5:12-102(1) provides:

> No junket enterprise or junket representative or person acting as a junket representative may:
>
> (1) Engage in efforts to collect upon checks that have been returned by banks without full and final payment;
>
> (2) Exercise approval authority with regard to the authorization or issuance of credit pursuant to section 101...
>
> (3) Act on behalf of or under any arrangement with a casino licensee or a gaming patron with regard to the redemption, consolidation, or substitution of

(Footnote Continued)

The thrust of the Division's allegations is that Zoby, through the use of his own properly established credit line at the Sands, set himself up as a casino cage and credit department for the convenience of his junket customers. Were these allegations supported by this record we would, without hesitation, condemn them with severe penalties. But upon careful examination of this record we find no transgression of the credit provisions.

N.J.S.A 5:12-101(a)(1) provides:

> a. Except as otherwise provided in this section, no casino licensee or any person licensed under this Act, and no person acting on behalf of or under any arrangement with a casino licensee or other person licensed under this Act, shall:

The essence of a credit transaction in the context of casino gaming is the extension of cash or chips or their equivalent and a correlative obligation to repay. In none of the transactions under scrutiny here was there any obligation to repay. This record reveals that, on every occasion that Zoby advanced chips to his junketeers, other than for gaming partnerships, he was actually returning funds, albeit in the form of chips, that the patrons had given him in advance of the junket. Although these prior deposits of cash for Zoby's safekeeping were themselves contrary to the regulations (see infra), the transactions did not involve an advance of credit. Thus, the ALJ's conclusions that the respondents are responsible for violations of section 101 of the Act and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27 must be rejected. By parity of reasoning, the ALJ's conclusion that Zoby violated N.J.S.A 5:12-102(1)(2), which prohibits junket representatives from exercising credit approval authority, is also unfounded and therefore rejected.

On the issue of gambling partnerships, like the ALJ, we are unable to find that this activity contravenes any provision of the Act or the regulations. But that is not to say we condone the practice. It has the potential for creating problems and concerns similar to those which caused the Legislature to impose restrictions on casino credit and to carefully circumscribe a junket representative participation in credit-related transactions. For example, disputes may well arise as to the amount of money to which the junket representative is entitled upon "settling up" after the gaming is concluded. The resulting collection process, not currently subject to regulatory scrutiny, is filled with potential problems, the likes of which have been documented in other jurisdictions. The potential for problems is, of course, exacerbated where, as here, no written records are kept. Moreover, the concerns are not limited to the welfare, financial and physical, of the patron and the junket representative. It bears noting that the sweep of section 102(g) is extensive: "A casino licensee shall be responsible for the conduct of any junket representative or junket enterprise associated with it...."

Because we find no violation of existing law we concur with the ALJ's recommendation to dismiss the allegations pertaining to gambling partnerships. However, we invite the Division to join with us in further consideration of the issue with an eye toward proposing new regulations or statutory constraints, if necessary.

Zoby's practice of Holding Cash for Junket Patrons

Mr. Zoby made a practice of taking custody of large sums of money from some of his junket patrons at the beginning of a junket trip. Zoby believed that these patrons did not wish to experience the delays which might be occasioned if they deposited their funds with the casino. To accommodate his patrons Zoby held the funds himself. He was equipped with an electronic paging device so he could be summoned by other casino personnel to provide these patrons with cash or chips on demand.

In his first initial decision, the ALJ concluded that, by holding his patrons' funds for safekeeping, Zoby performed the functions of a general cashier in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(b), N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.11, and -1.15, and, by failing to prepare the required documentation and follow the required procedures to account for the receipt of these deposits, he violated the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24. We agree.

The relevant portion of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(b) states:

> Nothing in this subsection shall be deemed to preclude the establishment of an account by any person with a casino licensee by a deposit of cash or recognized traveler's check or other cash equivalent, or to preclude the withdrawal, either in whole or in part, of any amount contained in such account.

In addition to enunciating specific instructions relating to customer deposit files and forms, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24(a) provides in relevant part:

> Whenever a patron requests that the casino hold his cash... for subsequent use he shall deposit the cash... with a general cashier.

N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.11 and 1.15 set forth the functions of the cashiers' cage and cage personnel and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.11(g) states that, "(f)unctions described in this section shall be performed only by persons bearing the particular title and licensed to the particular position, or persons licensed to supervise that particular position appropriate to such functions, under the Casino Control Act." Additionally, the general cashier is to receive funds for safekeeping and is to do so within the physical confines of the highly secure casino cage. See N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.15(b).

It is axiomatic that casino gaming in New Jersey remains compatible with the general public interest only so long as stringent limitations and regulatory supervision are maintained. In Petition of Adamar, 222 N.J. Super. 464 (App. Div. 1988), the Appellate Division reviewed the comprehensive regulations pertaining to the receipt of cash and cash equivalents and confirmed the Commission's conclusion that receipt of patron funds must occur within the well-monitored cashier's cage.

The role of junket representative in this regulatory scheme was also specifically addressed in State v. Greate Bay Hotel and Casino, Docket No. 86-32 (decided April 8, 1987); State v. Landsman, Docket No. 87-6 (decided September 28, 1987); and State v. Harrah's Associates, Docket No. 86-98 (decided December 2, 1988). Collectively, these cases establish that junket representatives are not permitted to perform sensitive functions which under the Act and the Commission's regulations are restricted to the general cashier or other designated casino personnel.

The detailed and carefully crafted safeguards surrounding the receipt and handling of money, and important documents from patrons are rendered meaningless if casino employees, other than the general cashier, can set themselves up as alternative repositories for patrons' cash deposits. It is no excuse that respondent Zoby performed these functions as a convenience to the participants in his junkets. It may well be that authorized cash deposit procedures entail some measure of delay or inconvenience. However, the regulatory process requires a secure location for these funds and creation of a comprehensible audit trail if protection of the gaming public and efficient oversight by the regulators is to be realized.

Zoby admitted and we have found that he held cash for numerous patrons on various occasions including all of those cited in response to the chip transfer charges. However, the Division's case for the cash deposit violations was limited to nine incidents between June 30, 1984, and August 23, 1986, in which Zoby held cash for the late Albert Miller. In his second initial decision the ALJ recommended that both Zoby and Greate Bay be assessed $1,000 for each of the violations he found. The penalty for the cash deposit violations, therefore, total $9,000 for nine junket trips. The ALJ further recommended that the respondents be assessed an additional $1,000 for Zoby's failure to maintain records of the receipt and disbursement of cash deposits in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24.

As we have stated, we believe that the risk to the public and gaming operations created by Zoby's conduct is considerable.

In mitigation, the respondents argue that this is the first time that a complaint was filed against a junket representative alleging that holding cash for patrons violates the Act and regulations. While that is true, respondents were not without notice that this conduct was improper. Most basically, section 102(g) of the Act imposes upon casino licensees the responsibility for the actions of the junket representatives and a casino could hardly maintain that any of its employees, other than the proper cage personnel, could establish safekeeping deposits. Moreover, in the Greate Bay, Landsman and Harrah's Associates cases cited previously, the Commission held that junket representatives may not perform sensitive functions restricted to the general cashier. While Zoby may not have had actual knowledge of any of these decisions, he is charged with knowledge of the Act and the regulations. Further, Greate Bay surely had actual notice of the case involving it and should have known about the other cases. Casino licensees can and should be aware of unambiguous regulatory provisions as well as Commission decisions which affect their own compliance with the Act and the regulations. Nevertheless, as to Zoby, we would agree with the ALJ that the seriousness of his conduct is mitigated because he did not actually know his conduct was prohibited and because he stopped taking cash deposits immediately after being informed that the Division believed that this practice was improper.

In view of these factors, the Commission believes that the $1,000 per violation penalty recommended by the ALJ for each cash deposit violation should be reduced to $500. Because we consider Zoby's failure to maintain records of these transactions to be of equal significance, we would impose a penalty of $500 for each of those nine violations. Because we believe that Greate Bay knew of the limitations on junket representatives and should have taken an active role in supervising Zoby's junket activities, because Greate Bay previously has been sanctioned for extra-regulatory activity by a junket representative, and because Greate Bay evidently has greater financial means, we impose a penalty of $1,000 for each of the cash holding violations and a penalty of $1,000 for each of the record keeping violations.

Zoby's Practice of Cashing Checks for Junket Patrons

Mr. Zoby also admits that for approximately three-and one-half years he routinely cashed personal and business checks for Albert Miller so that Miller could repay funds he had borrowed from other junket participants. The ALJ found that this conduct was prohibited by N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(a)(1) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(a)(1) which provide that no casino licensee or any person licensed under this Act shall cash any check to enable any person to take part in gaming activity as a player. Again we find ourselves in substantial agreement with the ALJ.

Zoby's practice of cashing checks for Miller clearly violates the language of the Act and regulations as well as their underlying policies. Zoby was fully aware that the checks he cashed for Miller were used to repay funds Miller had borrowed from other junket patrons to wager in the casino. The fact that Miller's checks were cashed after, rather than before, his gambling activities makes no difference.

Zoby's check cashing activities are serious offenses. Not only is the cashing of any check prohibited by section 101 of the Act and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25 of the regulations, Zoby's conduct enabled Miller to gamble beyond the funds which he brought to Atlantic City. Had his checks not been honored by his bank, they would have given rise to an unpaid and unenforceable (N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(f)) gaming debt between Miller and Zoby. The Commission's credit regulations were designed, to prevent just such situations.

In mitigation, Zoby argues that this is the first time he has been been charged with violating the Act and regulations and, as already noted, he immediately stopped his check cashing activities as soon as the Division notified him that it considered those practices to be a problem. Because we agree that the seriousness of Zoby's actions are somewhat mitigated by these factors, we believe that the $1,000 per violation penalty suggested by the ALJ should be reduced to $750. As to Greate Bay, we would increase the monetary penalty to $1,500 per violation for several reasons. First, as to it there are no mitigating circumstances. On the contrary, we view the prior junket-related violation found in State v. Greate Bay Hotel and Casino, Docket No. 86-32 as an aggravating factor. Second, the balance of the section 130 standards as applied to casino licensees is not the same as those for individual licensees because, in assessing monetary penalties, section 130 authorizes the Commission to consider the respondents' relative ability to pay. Third, we believe an enhanced penalty is warranted here in order to encourage casino licensees to supervise, instruct and evaluate their junket representatives.

Lastly, at the OAL the Division recommended that Zoby be ordered to pay restitution to Miller's estate in the amount of $127,500. The ALJ rejected the restitution argument and the Division does not press for reversal on that account. In any event, we would agree with the ALJ that restitution is not a proper sanction in this case.

CONCLUSION

We adopt the ALJ's conclusions that (1) Ronald Zoby's practice of establishing gambling partnerships with his junket patrons is not contrary to existing law; (2) Zoby performed the duties and functions of a general cashier in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(b), N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.11(c)(9), -1.11(g) and -1.15 when he maintained cash deposits for Albert Miller, and violated the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24 when he failed to prepare written accounts for the receipt and disbursement of these funds; and (3) Zoby's practice of cashing checks to enable Miller to repay gambling debts to other patrons violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(a), -101(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25; and (4) respondent Greate Bay is liable for all of the violations committed by respondent Zoby. However, we reject the ALJ's conclusion that Zoby's use of his casino credit account to obtain gaming chips for junket patrons violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-101, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25 and -1.27 where the record is undisputed that Zoby was returning funds deposited with him by the patrons. Lastly, we reject the ALJ's conclusion that return of their funds to the patrons in the form of chips also involved the exercise of approval authority with regard to the extension of casino credit in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-102(1)(2).

As penalties for the violations the following sanctions shall be imposed: (1) for each of the nine occasions on which Zoby illegally performed the duties of a general casino cashier, he is assessed a $500 penalty and Greate Bay is assessed a $1,000 penalty; (2) for each of the nine occasions on which Zoby failed to prepare written accounts for the receipt and disbursement of these funds, Zoby shall pay $500 and Greate Bay shall pay $1,000, and (3) for each of the 18 check cashing violations, a $750 penalty for Zoby and a $1,500 penalty for Greate Bay. The imposition of such penalties totals $22,500 for Mr. Zoby and $45,000 for Greate Bay.

ORDER NO. 90-14-2

STATE OF NEW JERSEY, DEPARTMENT OF: LAW & PUBLIC SAFETY, DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT, :

Complainant, :

v. :

GREATE BAY HOTEL & CASINO, INC., t/a THE SANDS HOTEL & CASINO OF ATLANTIC CITY, :

Respondent. :

ORDER

The parties having entered into a stipulation of facts and having filed same with the Office of Administrative Law (OAL); and the written argument of counsel having been filed with the OAL; and the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of April 4, 1990,

IT IS on this 9th day of April 1990, ORDERED for the reasons stated on the record that the initial decision is modified to include a thorough analysis of the factors in N.J.S.A. 5:12-130 which must be considered for a determination of sanctions:

a. Risk

Sands's employment of non-licensed or registered persons undermined the Commission's strict regulatory controls. The licensing and re-licensing of employees is the primary means of ensuring the continued qualification of those who participate in licensed gaming. Sands's inattention to these important regulatory safeguards posed a substantial risk.

b. Seriousness

Any statutory or regulatory violation which undermines the Commission's licensing function must be regarded as serious. However, there is no evidence to suggest that Sands's misconduct was done purposefully or knowingly. The violation appears to be one of omission rather than commission. Nevertheless, the length of time the violations went uncorrected, approximately 13 months for one employee and about 10 months for the other, is an aggravating factor.

c. Justification

Sands offers neither justification nor excuse for its misconduct.

d. Prior History

Commission records reflect that Sands has been the subject of 15 violation complaints. One involved a non-compliance issue similar to the one presented here. In State v. Greate Bay, Docket No. 83-436, the Commission accepted a stipulation calling for a total penalty of $17,500, $12,500 for permitting an individual who needed a key license to work on a registration and $5,000 for allowing another individual who required a key license to work on a casino employee license.

e. Corrective Action

The stipulation provides that by terminating both employees Sands has taken corrective action. This is true only insofar as the past is concerned. But termination of these employees does virtually nothing to assure that similar violations will not occur in the future.

f. Severity of Misconduct

The amount of any monetary penalty is to be determined upon consideration of the severity of the misconduct and the financial means of the licensee. There is no reason to believe that the Sands is unable to pay an appropriate penalty. One way to assess the severity of these violations is to review prior Commission determinations in similar non-compliance cases.

In State v. Marina Associates, et al., Docket No. 85-10, Commission Order January 13, 1987, a $19,500 penalty was imposed for each of 39 violations where employees were found to be working without the proper credentials. These violations were part of a multi-count complaint filed against three licensed entities and the penalties as well as the facts were stipulated in a comprehensive and complex proposal to resolve all allegations against all respondents.

In State v. Trump's Castle, Docket No. 86-138, Commission Order January 25, 1988, the Commission approved a settlement and imposed a $7,000 sanction for permitting an employee to perform key functions in an unapproved position without licensure or qualification.

In State v. Elsinore Shore Associates, Docket No. 87-289, Commission Order January 25, 1988, the Commission approved a settlement and imposed sanctions of $2,000 for each of three casino employees working in key positions, and $3,000 for a casino hotel employee registrant working in a key position for a total of $9,000.

In State v. GNOC Corp., Docket No. 87-422, Commission Order August 30, 1988, the Commission adopted an initial decision which recommended a penalty of $5,500 for permitting a casino hotel employee registrant to work as a casino employee licensee.

In State v. Claridge at Park Place, Docket No. 87-423, Commission Order September 23, 1988, the Commission imposed a penalty of $3,000 for allowing two casino employee licensees to work as key employees and a third individual to work without the proper endorsement.

Finally, in State v. GNOC Corp., Docket No. 88-114, Commission Order March 10, 1989, the Commission imposed a penalty of $5,000 for allowing a casino hotel employee registrant to work as a casino employee and $1,000 for employing a public area attendant for four months after his credential had expired.

Thus the range of sanctions for out-of compliance cases has ranged from $500 to $7,000 per violation. Apart from the other section 130 factors which undoubtedly account for some differences and the negotiation process which resulted in others, it would appear that the distinguishing factors include the position involved and whether it was filled by an unlicensed, underlicensed or never licensed person. The length of time the position was occupied by a person not holding the proper credential appears also to have been a factor.

g. Intent

There is no evidence to suggest that the violations were committed either intentionally or knowingly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent is found to have violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-106(a), -117(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:41-1.3(b)(5), for employing a person as a bartender who failed to either renew her casino employee license or obtain a casino hotel employee registration; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent is found to have violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-106(a), -117(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:41-1.3(b)(7) for employing a person as a cocktail waitress who failed to renew her casino employee license; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent pay a civil penalty in the amount of $2,500 per violation for a total of $5,000 due and payable upon receipt of an invoice from the Commission's Division of Financial Evaluation and Control substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference.

Record Closed: November 30, 1989 Decided: January 12, 1990

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter concerns the complaint filed by the State of New Jersey, Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on June 5, 1989, seeking the imposition of an appropriate penalty for alleged violations and appropriate action to prevent any reoccurrence. The respondent, Greate Bay Hotel and Casino, Inc., t/a the Sands Hotel, Casino and Country Club (Sands) requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on July 13, 1989, to be heard as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

At the telephone prehearing conference, which was held on September 22, 1989, the parties agreed that the issue in this matter is:

> Whether the respondent allowed two employees, Michele Jones and Christina Corea to continue to work at its facility without an appropriate license or registration, in violation of the provisions of the Casino Control Act, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. and the regulations promulgated thereunder.

The scheduled hearing date of October 26, 1989 was adjourned when the parties decided to proceed by the filing of a stipulation of facts and briefs. After receipt of the same, the record in this matter closed on November 30, 1989.

16. The employment of Christina Corea by Sands from on or about October 1, 1987 until approximately July 20, 1988 as set forth more fully in Count Two, paragraphs two (2) through eight (8) of this Count constituted a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-106(a), N.J.S.A. 5:12-117(b), and N.J.A.C. 19:41-1.3(b)(5).

IT IS THEREFORE AGREED AND STIPULATED by and between the parties that:

1. The facts stated herein are true and correct as stated in this Stipulation;

2. In recognition of the above-noted violations of the Act and the regulations promulgated pursuant thereto relating to improper licensure of employees, and by terminating both employees, Sands has taken corrective action to ensure that the licensure status of the aforementioned employees is no longer in violation of any of the above-stated sections of the Act;

3. This stipulation shall be subject to the approval and acceptance of the Casino Control Commission.

Although not part of the stipulation of facts, Roberto Rivera-Soto, Esq., on behalf of the respondent, submitted the certifications of three Sands' employees with his initial brief in this matter. Since these certifications were not objected to by Deputy Attorney General Katrina F. Wright, I will consider them as part of the facts in this matter. In her certification, Lisa George stated that she is the person immediately responsible for checking the lists of expired licenses and registrations sent by the Commission. Ms. Wright was not performing said responsibility between July 1987 and July 1988, when the Sands received the failure to renew information regarding Ms. Jones and Ms. Corea. When Ms. George resumed this responsibility in July 1988, she determined that Ms. Jones and Ms. Corea had not renewed their respective licenses and immediate action was taken to terminate both employees. According to the certification of Ellen M. Duffy, both Ms. Jones and Ms. Corea then filed grievances pursuant to the collective bargaining agreement between the Sands and the Hotel Employees and Restaurant Employees Local Union No. 54. After the Sands' determination to terminate their employment was affirmed, Frederick H. Kraus, Esq., in his certification stated that both Ms. Jones and Ms. Corea requested arbitration pursuant to the same collective bargaining agreement. After the arbitrator denied relief, Ms. Jones and Ms. Corea filed an action in the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey seeking reinstatement in their former positions with the Sands. This case was still pending when Mr. Rivera-Soto filed his brief in this matter.

Additionally, Ms. Jones and Ms. Corea reapplied to the Commission for licensure and both have received new licenses. By a letter dated May 3, 1989, the Hotel Employees and Restaurant Employees Local Union No. 54, on behalf of Ms. Jones and Ms. Corea, demanded their reinstatement to the positions from which they were terminated. When they were not reinstated, the union filed a demand dated May 25, 1989, requesting a grievance hearing and arbitration. The Sands is currently contesting this request for arbitration.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW AND DETERMINATION

Since the stipulation of facts agreed to by the parties contains an acknowledgment of the violations of the Casino Control Act, the only issue in this matter relates to the appropriate penalty for said violations. The pertinent statute, N.J.S.A. 5:12-130, provides:

> In considering appropriate sanctions in a particular case, the commission shall consider:
>
> a. The risk to the public and to the integrity of gaming operations created by the conduct of the licensee or registrant;
>
> b. The seriousness of the conduct of the licensee or registrant, and whether the conduct was purposeful and with knowledge that it was in contravention of the provisions of this act or regulations promulgated thereunder;
>
> c. Any justification or excuse for such conduct by the licensee or registrant;

d. The prior history of the particular licensee or registrant involved with respect to gaming activity;

e. The corrective action taken by the licensee or registrant to prevent future misconduct of a like nature from occurring; and

f. In the case of a monetary penalty, the amount of the penalty in relation to the severity of the misconduct and the financial means of the licensee or registrant. The commission may impose any schedule or terms of payment of such penalty as it may deem appropriate.

g. It shall be no defense to disciplinary action before the commission that an applicant, licensee, registrant, intermediary company or holding company inadvertently, unintentionally, or unknowingly violated a provision of this act. Such factors shall only go to the degree of the penalty to be imposed by the commission, and not to a finding of a violation itself.

In her brief, Deputy Attorney General Wright stated that the Commission notified the Sands when the licenses of both Ms. Jones and Ms. Corea expired and notwithstanding this information, the Sands continued to employ Ms. Jones for approximately ten months and Ms. Corea for approximately one year. Ms. Wright argued that the appropriate penalty to be assessed on Sands in this matter is $10,000.00, consisting of a penalty of $5,000.00 for the violations relating to Ms. Jones and a penalty of $5,000.00 as to the violations relating to Ms. Corea. Ms. Wright argued that when a casino allows an individual to work without the appropriate license or registration, the casino is effectively undermining the ability of the Commission to oversee the casino industry. Further, she argued that where a casino blatantly disregards the laws and public policies affecting the gaming industry, such action constitutes a serious violation which adversely affects the ability of the Commission to promote the public's confidence in the fairness, honesty and integrity of casino gambling.

In addition, Ms. Wright argued that there is no justifiable excuse for Sands' conduct and that this is the second case initiated against Sands for failing to ensure that its employees are properly licensed. In the prior case, Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Greate Bay Hotel and Casino, Inc., Agency DKT. 83-436 (Oct. 24, 1985), Sands allowed one employee to work in a position requiring a casino key license even though the employee only held a casino hotel employee registration, and allowed another employee to work in a position requiring a casino key license even though said employee only held a non-gaming license. In that case, the matter was settled and Sands paid a total penalty of $17,500.00.

Also, Ms. Wright argued that the Division is unaware of any remedial steps that have been taken by Sands to ensure in the future that its employees are working with the proper licenses or registrations.

Lastly, Ms. Wright argued that the proposed penalty is consistent with penalties that have been assessed in recent cases, Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Marina Associates, et al, OAL DKT. CCC 913-86, Agency DKT. 85-10 (August 8, 1986), adopted by Comm., Jan. 13, 1987; Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Elsinore Shore Associates, Agency DKT 87-289 (Jan. 25, 1988); Division of Gaming Enforcement v. GNOC Corporation, OAL DKT. CCC 4727-87, Agency DKT. 87-422 (Ap. 25, 1988), mod. on other grounds by Comm., Aug. 30, 1988; State v. Trump Castle Associates Limited Partnership, OAL DKT. CCC 4450-86, Agency DKT. 86-138 (Nov. 30, 1987), adopted by Comm., Jan. 25, 1988.

The Marina Associates case, involved a large number of employees working without appropriate licenses and various other violations. The aggregate stipulated penalty was $57,500.00 and there was a fine ranging between $500.00 and $8,000.00 for each of the individuals working without appropriate licensure. In the Elsinore Shore Associates case, there was a stipulated penalty of $2,000.00 for each of the three employees with gaming licenses who were allowed to work in positions requiring key licensure and a penalty of $3,000.00 for a employee holding a hotel registration who was allowed to work in a position requiring key licensure. As to the Elsinore Shore Associates case, Ms. Wright stated that the penalty reflected the fact that Elsinore discovered the violations and informed the Division and that Elsinore had a tenuous financial situation (it should be noted that the respondent's financial situation is not mentioned as a mitigating factor in the stipulation that outlines the settlement). In the GNOC case, the penalty was $5,500.00 for assigning duties to an employee who did not hold the appropriate license. In the Trump Castle case, there was a stipulated penalty of $7,000.00 for two violations, namely a person working without appropriate licensure and working a position not approved by the Commission.

Mr. Rivera-Soto stated that the Sands has been operating a casino since August 1980 and at any given time it has employed up to 3,000 employees. Mr. Rivera-Soto admitted that the Sands committed an error in that it failed to immediately "catch" the fact that Ms. Jones and Ms.Corea had allowed their licenses to expire. However, he argued that there were no aggregating factors and that only a minimum penalty of $500.00 per violation (total of $1,000.00) should be imposed for the violations.

Mr. Rivera-Soto stated that "the Sands is in the rather odd position of, on the one hand, defending employment termination while, on the other hand, battling whether the underlying basis of such terminations should give rise to regulatory liability and a concommitant penalty. Kraus certification, para. 5 through 9, inclusive." (Respondent's memorandum regarding penalty, at 8-9).

Also, Mr. Rivera-Soto argued that the violations in issue created neither a risk to the public nor a risk to the integrity of casino operations since neither Ms. Jones nor Ms. Corea were involved in gambling activities. Mr. Rivera-Soto argued that the previous Sands case cited by Ms. Wright should not be considered to be a prior similar violation, since it can be differentiated on the facts. In the previous case, two employees were accused of performing casino key functions while their applications for casino key licenses were pending and another employee was carried on the payroll in order to protect his fringe benefits even though he did not perform any employee services. Also, Mr. Rivera-Soto argued that the previous Sands case is not relevant since the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-130(d) refers to "prior history" as it relates to other actions "with respect to gambling activities" and this case involves two employees who had no job responsibilities relating to gambling activities.

Mr. Rivera-Soto stated that the cases cited by Ms. Wright show a penalty range between $500.00 and $8,750.00 per position and he argued that there was no justifiable reason for imposing a penalty of $5,000.00 per position as suggested by Ms. Wright in her brief. Further, Mr. Rivera-Soto argued that Ms. Wright's suggestions that multiple violations is a reason for imposing a smaller penalty per violation, see, Marina Associates case, is illogical and rewards the multiple violator, a result which he considers to be inconsistent with the rationale set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-130(f).

Having reviewed the facts as well as the arguments of the parties, I CONCLUDE that the $10,000.00 penalty suggested by Ms. Wright is excessive. I recognize that the prior Sands case is precedent since it also involved persons in positions without appropriate licensure, and I disagree with Mr. Rivera-Soto's argument that $500.00 per incident is an appropriate penalty in view of the fact that there has been a previous similar violation and the fact that it took the Sands a substantial period of time to find out about the violations. I have to also take into consideration the nature of the employment of the two persons involved in this matter, the fact that the Sands was not initially aware that the two employees had failed to renew their licenses and that it took prompt action. Additionally, although I recognize that the Sands has had to extend monies in order to respond to the litigation initiated by the two employees, this does not have any direct bearing on the violations or the appropriate amount of the penalty. Based on all the facts, I CONCLUDE that a penalty of $2,500.00 for the violations for each of the two employees is an appropriate penalty, and I ORDER the Sands to pay a total penalty of $5,000.00.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: November 20, 1989 Decided: January 4, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter concerns the complaint of the Division of Gaming Enforcement filed with the Casino Control Commission on June 22, 1989, seeking revocation of the respondent's casino hotel employee registration, based upon the respondent indictment on May 31, 1989, on a charge of possession of a controlled dangerous substance, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10. By Order dated July 20, 1989, the Commission suspended the respondent's registration pending final disposition of the Division's complaint. This is the issue:

With specific reference to respondent's conviction upon a plea of guilty to possession of a controlled dangerous substance, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10, has the respondent been convicted of an offense which would render his continued case hotel employee registration inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.) and to casino operations, pursuant to section 86c(2) of the Act.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 13, 1989, the Casino Control Commission received the respondent's request for a hearing concerning the Division's complaint. On July 26, 1989, the Commission transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted by telephone on September 12, 1989. The hearing was then held as scheduled in Atlantic City, New Jersey, on November 20, 1989. The record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The material facts in this matter are essentially undiputed. The respondent is a 38-year-old resident of Ventnor, New Jersey. He holds casino hotel employee registration number 78664-40.

According to the respondent's testimony, he received his registration in March of 1986 or 1987. His first casino-related employment was with the Tropicana Casino Hotel as a bus person for room service. In March 1988, the respondent began employment at the Showboat Casino Hotel as a bus person. Shortly prior to his termination from the Showboat in April 1989, the respondent was promoted to the position of waiter.

The respondent was arrested at work on April 17, 1989. At the time, he was a waiter and among his responsibilities were handling patrons money and complementaries. While on duty, the respondent was taken to the Division of Gaming Enforcement office and interviewed concerning his handling of patron bills and complementaries. According to the respondent, he had just started as a waiter and had very little experience. Some patrons were using complementaries for food and some were using cash. Since the repsondent was getting a little backed up in his work, he simply put the complementaries in his pocket to be transacted later, since no change was necessary. When things slowed down, he began settling the checks that were paid with complementaries.

It was the testimony of the respondent that he had been awake for over 24 hours and he was having trouble because of cocaine use. He got very hungry and ordered something to eat. It was his intention to add the cost of his meal onto a customer's check and then settle it with that customer's complementary. He had not intended to pay for the dinner himself. According to the respondent, it was normal procedure for the waiters to add their dinner bill to a patrons check to get a free meal. He acknowledged that this was contrary to the announced policy of his employer.

According to the respondent, while he was settling the checks, his supervisor approached him and told him that the Division of Gaming Enforcement Investigators wanted to talk to him. In the Division's office, the investigator asked the respondent to empty his pockets. He complied and the investigators found a quantity of cocaine in the respondent's cigarette pack. The respondent testified that he purchased the cocaine off-premises about two or three hours before coming to work. The respondent was placed under arrest and charged with theft, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 (exhibit P-1) and possession of cocaine, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a (exhibit P-2). The next day, the respondent was also charged with committing a terroristic threat, for allegedly calling his supervisor at the casino and threatening to kill him, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:12-3 (exhibit P-3).

The respondent was subsequently indicted for possession of a controlled dangerous substance in the third degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1). This indictment was admitted into evidence at P-4. The respondent was not indicted on the other charges and they were dropped. On July 3, 1989, the respondent entered a plea of guilty to the charge of possession of cocaine. On August 18, 1989, he was sentenced to probation for two years, with a fine of $500 and a drug enforcement and demand reduction penalty of $1,000. The respondent was required to undergo drug screenings and to attend narcotics anonymous. He was also required to maintain employment as a condition of probation. In addition, the respondent's New Jersey driving privilege was suspended for a period of six months. The judgment of conviction and sentencing statement was admitted into evidence as exhibit P-5.

The respondent testified that he had worked as a florist designer for 17 years prior to obtaining employment in the casino industry. He left his previous career because he did not receive benefits and he did not believe it had a future. After working at the Showboat Casino Hotel for several months, the respondent began using cocaine. This was around August 1988. According to the respondent, he wanted to fit in with his coworkers and be part of their crowd. He described them as mostly 20 years younger than he. According to the respondent, his use of cocaine varried, depending on how much money he had to spend. The respondent estimated that he spent $50 to $100 per week on cocaine. He acknowledged buying the drug from coworkers away from the casino premises.

The respondent testified that he stopped using drugs when he was arrested in April 1989. He goes to group drug counseling every Wednesday night. All of his random drug testing has been clear. The respondent also testified that he had a new job within two weeks following his arrest. He worked at Bally's as a room service waiter from April to July 1989. The Casino Control Commission suspended the respondent's registration on July 20, 1989.

The respondent stated that he has returned to employment in the floral industry. He has two jobs, working for a florist in Ventnor and a florist in Egg Harbor. The respondent stated that he does floral arrangements and display designs. He has no problem with either job.

The respondent testified sincerely that he has learned his lesson concerning drugs. He understands that they are against the law and that he is now better off physically and financially. The respondent contributes to his mother's support and he would like to return to work in the casino industry, because of the benefits and the opportunity for advancement.

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to section 1b(8) of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), participation in casino operations as a licensee or registrant under the Act is deemed to be a revocable privilege conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee or registrant. Section 129(1) of the Act authorizes the revocation of registration of any person for the commission of any offense or violation under the Act which would disqualify such person from holding his credential.

Pursuant to sections 91b and 86c(2) of the Act, the Commission may revoke the credential of any registrant who has been convicted of any offense which indicates that continued registration would be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations. It is undisputed that the respondent pled guilty on July 3, 1989, to possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) in the third degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1). He is currently serving his probationary term of two years.

Does the respondent's conviction for possession of controlled dangerous substance render his continued hotel employee registration inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations, pursuant to section 86c(2) of the Act? The Commission has held that the rehabilitation factors set forth in section 91d of the Act must be considered in any case involving a registrant under the Act where section 86c(2) disqualification is at issue. Stated in another way, the rehabilitation factors are an integral part of the inimicality analysis. In the Matter of the Application of Horizon Air, Inc., For a Casino Industry License, DKT. NO. 87-CSI-10 (Comm. decision September 1, 1988).

Section 91d sets forth eight factors which should be considered in determining whether rehabilitation has been affirmatively demonstrated. These include the nature and duties of the position involved; the nature and seriousness of the conduct; the circumstances under which it occurred, the date of conduct and the actor's age when it was committed; whether the offense was isolated or repeated; social conditions contributing to the conduct; and any evidence of rehabilitation following the conduct.

The respondent is 38 years old. His offense was recent, with his arrest occurring in April 1989 and his guilty plea following in July 1989. The conduct of cocaine usage lasted from approximately August 1988 until April 1989.

Given the respondent's age, it cannot be said that youth played a factor in his conduct. However, it is apparent that he did not exercise mature judgment when he attempted to fit in to his co-employees' crowd by using cocaine. Drug usage is a serious problem and this is exacerbated by the respondent's criminal conduct on the premises of a licensed casino.

The respondent is sincere in his rejection of drug usage. He realizes he made a serious mistake. However, too little time has passed since his unlawful conduct to be assured that he will continue to refrain from drug usage. The respondent continues on probation and he must still undergo drug screenings. In light of all of the circumstance expressed above, I CONCLUDE that the respondent's continued participation as a casino hotel employee registrant would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations. Therefore, I further CONCLUDE that the respondent has been convicted of an offense which indicates that his continued registration would be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations, within the meaning of section 86c(2) of the Casino Control Act.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the casino hotel employee registation of Michael K. Halley be REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

James J. Armstrong, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: January 19, 1990 Decided: January 31, 1990

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of an objection to the renewal of petitioner's casino employee license, filed by respondent with the Casino Control Commission pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. Petitioner requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A hearing was conducted on January 19, 1990, after which the record closed.

The questions presented are whether certain conduct by petitioner, would, if it had been prosecuted, constitute theft by deception, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, a statutory disqualification N.J.S.A. 5:12-86C(1), and if so whether petitioner can establish that she is a person of good character and has been rehabilitated. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 5:12-90(h).

Certain facts are undisputed. Between October 14, 1985 and May 10, 1986, petitioner received unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled, while working at Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino. On October 31, 1986, the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance obtained a judgment in Superior Court in the amount of $1,985.00 With accrued interest, this amount rose to $2,267.35.

Petitioner is 32 years old. She testified that in late September 1985 Harrah's had instituted cutbacks, and her position as a cocktail server was reduced to part time. She sought partial unemployment benefits, but did not know that tips were to be reported. Petitioner knew that tips were to be reported for tax purposes, but did not believe that this was the case for unemployment benefits. When she was informed by the Division of Unemployment Compensation in June 1986 that these monies were due, she appealed through the hearing process. From this record, it would appear that petitioner exhausted her administrative remedies sometime in the latter half of 1987, and she testified that it was only then that she realized that she had been wrong. When she did not hear from Unemployment for some time, petitioner wrote to them on November 15, 1988, asking that a payment schedule be established. Such a schedule was established and she made regular payments throughout 1989 until the debt was paid in full on January 12, 1990.

Petitioner has been working in the casinos since 1981, first at Playboy until 1984 and then at Harrah's. She offered that she had been suspended once for three days while at Playboy for improperly serving an alcoholic beverage, but that otherwise she has no record of discipline.

Petitioner also submitted a series of character letters from supervisors and friends indicating that she was a trustworthy individual. This is the substance of the record.

Petitioner was a credible witness and I adopt the facts as she presented them. Thus, while she knows now that she was not entitled to unemployment benefits, it appears that at the time she filed she did not know. Respondent has not established the purposefulness necessary to show that a crime was committed. Petitioner has paid the debt in full, and her work history shows that she is a valued employee. Indeed, the character letters which she presented have an unusually glowing quality to them and it appears that her supervisors believe that she is an important asset to their operations.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that respondent has failed to establish any underlying criminal conduct. Moreover, petitioner has established her good character and to the extent that rehabilitation may continue to be relevant, it appears that she has been rehabilitated. It is ORDERED that she be awarded a renewal license.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDER NO. 90-8-3

APPLICATION OF ROBERT IFERT
FOR A CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSE

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of February 21, 1990,

IT IS on this 27th day of April 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> To eliminate the administrative law judge's reference to the Division as having "met its burden" of establishing a disqualifying offense by a preponderance of the credible evidence. (Initial decision at 6). Where an application for licensure is involved, the existence of the disqualifying offense is to be determined by a review of the record as a whole. Although, as a practical matter, the Division generally presents evidence of disqualifying conduct, it does not bear any burden of proof where the subject matter of the proceeding is a license application. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244 (1979).

ORDER NO. 90-8-3

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the application is granted substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 89-EA-393

ROBERT IFERT,
Petitioner,
v.
STATE OF NEW JERSEY,
DEPARTMENT OF LAW AND PUBLIC SAFETY,
DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT,
Respondent.

Martin S. Wilson, Jr., Esq., for petitioner.
Charles Kimmel, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Peter N. Perretti, Jr., Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney).

Record Closed: December 4, 1989 Decided: January 4, 1990

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The State of New Jersey, Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) alleges that petitioner, Robert Ifert, is statutorily disqualified from holding a casino employee license within the meaning of section 86(c)1 of the Casino Control Act (Act) by virtue of his conviction of theft by failure to make required disposition, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-9, a crime of the third degree. The Division further objects to the issuance of a casino employee license to petitioner alleging that he lacks the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act.

Petitioner requested a hearing and on May 16, 1989, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq, and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was held on September 7, 1989, followed by a plenary hearing held on December 4, 1989 at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic City Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The hearing record was closed as of December 4, 1989.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this administrative tribunal, and as agreed to by the parties at the prehearing conference, are these:

A. Whether petitioner was convicted of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c to wit: 2C:20-9, Theft by Failure to Make Required Disposition?

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2)?

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act?

BURDEN OF PROOFS

A. The Division has the burden of proving the elements of any alleged statutory disqualifier by a preponderance of the credible evidence.

B. Petitioner has the burden of affirmatively establishing his rehabilitation and proof of his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence.

UNCONTESTED FACTS

Based upon petitioner's testimony together with the documents moved into evidence by the Division, I FIND the following facts are neither contested nor in dispute in this matter:

From January 1980 until February 1984, petitioner was employed by MAB Paint Company. During the last two and one-half years of his employment with MAB he was a store manager, earning $7.50 per hour for 50 hours per week which included 10 hours overtime per week. Sometime between January 1980 and April 1983, petitioner was married and living in a house owned by his parents located in Ocean City, New Jersey. Between April 1983 and November 1983, petitioner was involved in a scheme whereby he supplied paint and other materials to a contractor, Charles Robinson, without recording the sales in the company's books. Charles Robinson would pay petitioner for the products where petitioner pocketed the money and manipulated the books to conceal the transactions. Petitioner's scheme was subsequently detected by MAB officials and he was immediately terminated from his employment position in February 1984.

Petitioner was thirty-three years of age when he was dismissed from his employment position by MAB. He was not under a threat of foreclosure from collecting agents nor did he face the need for bankruptcy. Petitioner asserted that he engaged in the scheme with Robinson because he was "...just trying to get a little bit ahead." (TR. p. 18).

On or about May 29, 1984, petitioner was indicted by the Atlantic County Grand Jury on two counts' i.e., First Court - Theft by Unlawful Taking, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 and, Second Count - Theft by Failure to Make Required Disposition, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-9. Petitioner entered a plea of not guilty to both counts on June 18, 1984.

Petitioner was alleged to have taken a total of approximately $8,000 in cash and materials not accounted for from MAB. Subsequent to his indictment, petitioner commenced making restitution to MAB in the manner of two payments of $1,000 each. Petitioner admitted to taking $3,500 in cash. On September 14, 1984, petitioner retracted his not guilty plea to the Second Count of the Indictment and the First Count was dismissed. As a consequence of his guilty plea to Count Two, the Honorable Arthur Guerrera, J.S.C. imposed the following: Probation for three (3) years; Restitution of $4,436 (taking into account the two payments of $1,000 each and the forfeiture of his annual bonus check to MAB for the 1983 calendar year); Community service of 250 hours; a fine of $1,000; And, $25 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (VCCB).

Petitioner has satisfied all of the conditions of the sentence. He served his 250 hours of community services with Saint Peter's United Methodist Church of Ocean City, New Jersey, where he painted the youth room located in the church and the assistant pastor's home, located in Ocean City. In his reasons for sentencing, Judge Guerrera found only one aggravating factor while attributing six mitigating facts in petitioner's favor.

Subsequent to petitioner's termination by MAB, he was unemployed for approximately six weeks. Thereafter, he was employed as a painter-foreman with Consalvo Painting and Remodeling of Atlantic City from about March 1984 until April 1988. On April 25, 1988, petitioner was employed as a painter/paperhanger at the Atlantis Hotel/Casino, Atlantic City. He remained at Atlantis until June 26, 1989 when the property ceased operating as a casino/hotel. On October 1, 1989, he was employed by the Trump Regency Hotel (the former Atlantis) as a painter/paperhanger where he remained employed at the time of the hearing.

Petitioner is held in high esteem by his present supervisor and the Atlantis former assistant director of security as well as the former assistant to the president of Atlantis. All three individuals were aware of petitioner's circumstances concerning his offense and guilty plea and, despite said knowledge, considered him to be an excellent worker and rehabilitated with good character, honesty and integrity.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Disqualifying Offenses Under Section 86c of the Act.

Section 86c(1) of the Act mandates that a person who has been convicted of any of the enumerated offenses under New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice; i.e., Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes, shall be disqualified from holding a casino employee license. Section 86c(1) of the Act includes, among other offenses, violations of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-1 et seq., Theft and related offenses which constitute crimes of the second or third degree.

Petitioner argues that the offense to which he plead guilty, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-9, does not specifically deal with any monetary values and, therefore, leaves open to question as to whether or not such a charge is subject to grading of theft offenses, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b.

The Division argues that N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b applies to all theft offenses. It contends that petitioner's conviction of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-9, given the amount of money involved, rises to a crime of the third degree. Consequently, it argues, petitioner is disqualified by virtue of his commission of a section 86c(1) offense.

Theft and related offenses are found in Chapter 20 of the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice, Title 2C. Section 1 of Chapter 20 sets forth the definitions to be applied. Section 2 states, in pertinent part, that:

> Conduct denominated theft in this chapter constitutes a single offenses, but each episode or transaction may be the subject of a separate prosecution and conviction. A charge of theft may be supported by evidence that it was committed in any manner that would be theft under this chapter... (Emphasis supplied)

Prior to the Legislature's adoption of the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice, (L. 1978, c. 95, §§ 2C:20-1, et seq., eff. September 1, 1979) the criminal statutes of this State made distinctions between larceny, embezzlement and obtaining money by false pretenses. Other that "theft of a trade secret," there was no specific statutory crime in New Jersey known as "theft." The term "theft," however, was a popular term for common law larceny and was used to describe any intentional unlawful taking of another's property. Rudolph, et al. v. Home Indemnity Co., 138N.J. Super 125, 129 (Law Div. 1975). By enacting the Code of Criminal Justice, the Legislature effectively eliminated the distinctions between the statutory crimes of embezzlement, larceny and false pretenses to include these offenses, among others, under"theft and related offenses."

The offense to which petitioner plead guilty, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-9, "Theft by failure to make required disposition of property received," provides, in pertinent part, as follows:

> A person who purposely obtains or retains property upon agreement or subject to a know legal obligation to make specified payment or other disposition, whether from such property or its proceeds or from his own property to be reserved in equivalent amount, is guilty of theft if he deals with the property obtained as his own and fails to make the required payment or disposition. The foregoing applies notwithstanding that it may be impossible to identify particular property as belonging to the victim at the time of the actor's failure to make the required payment or disposition... (Emphasis supplied)

In accordance with his plea, petitioner admitted to and acknowledged guilt to a theft offense. Theft offenses are graded into "degrees" under N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b Pursuant to subsection 2, thereunder, theft constitutes a crime of the third degree if "(a) The amount involved exceeds $500.00 but is less that $75,000.00." The amount to which petitioner admits taking exceeds $500.00. Therefore, petitioner was guilty of an offense of theft in the third degree, a disqualifying offense pursuant to section 86 c(1) of the Act.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Division has met its burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, and that petitioner committed a theft offense in the third degree. N.J.S.A. 2C:20-9.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner is statutorily disqualified from holding a casino employee license, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

Rehabilitation, pursuant to Section 90h of the Act

An applicant for a casino employee license faced with the existence of a section 86 disqualification has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating his rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. This section of the statute sets forth eight specific factors to be evaluated when a determination for rehabilitation is to be made. Those factors are as follows:

1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;
2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
4) The date of the offense or conduct;
5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;
6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
7) Any social condition which which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or who have had the applicant under their supervision.

In consideration of petitioner's claim of rehabilitation, the following is found in this record:

1. Petitioner is presently the holder of a temporary, non-gaming casino employee license no. 76557-22 for maintenance and cleaning. He seeks to have the license made permanent. Although a casino employee license is not required for his present employment at the Trump Regency Hotel, a non-gaming property, he seeks the license to improve his opportunity for promotion and advancement in the casino industry.

2. The offenses for which petitioner was charged were serious. The charge to which he plead guilty, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-9, a crime of theft in the third degree, is a very serious offense and one which could have resulted in his incarceration. Judge Guerrera determined that there were sufficient mitigating factors which outweighed the single aggravating factor to warrant a substantial fine, restitution of the money taken and probation of three years in lieu of prison time for petitioner.

3. and 4. Between April and November 1983, petitioner engaged in a scheme whereby he supplied paint and other materials from his employer to a contractor and appropriated the money from the sale of these items for his own use. Petitioner had recently married and used the money from the scheme to pay bills and debts. Petitioner was not in any serious financial difficulty but, rather, employed the scheme to "get a little ahead."

5. and 6. Petitioner was 32 years of age when the offense was committed. There were a series of episodes, the number of which was not revealed on the record, between April and November 1983.

7. There were no social conditions which contributed to petitioner's conduct.

8. Subsequent to his arrest and prior to the entry of his guilty plea, petitioner commenced to make restitution to his former employer for the monies he had taken. The record demonstrates that he made payments of at least $2,000 in that period which reduced the court-ordered restitution at the time of petitioner's entry of a guilty plea to one of the two charges.

The testimonial record reveals that his present supervisor at Trump Regency Hotel considers petitioner to be rehabilitated. Mr. Kenneth Hughes asserts that he has excellent employees under his supervision and he considers petitioner to be better than others. Hughes considers petitioner to be an employee that can be depended upon. He also believes that petitioner possess the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure. Similar testimony was elicited by Robert Hingoes, former assistant director of security for Atlantis Hotel/Casino and Peter A Riverso, former assistant to the president of Atlantis.

Petitioner has successfully completed all of the conditions of the sentence imposed upon him by the court including full restitution to MAB, payment of the fine and VCCB penalty, 250 hours of community service and successful completion of his probation time. He has also expressed his remorse and regret for his conduct.

In consideration of the above factors, I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioner has met his burden and affirmatively established his rehabilitation. There is no doubt that he will refrain from engaging in any questionable conduct in the future.

Good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated within section 90h of the Act, petitioner Ifert is required to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979) at 8; Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985); In re Boardwalk Regency Corp. Casino License, 90 N.J. 361 (1982). When, as here, the Division raises the issue as to the licensee's good character, honesty and integrity, it is incumbent upon the applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which this tribunal may reach a reasonable conclusion. Boardwalk Regency, supra; In the Matter of the Application of Boardwalk Regency Corp. and the Jemm Company for Casino License, Casino Control Commission (November 13, 1980). In accordance with the strict regulatory provision intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of the applicant be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure.

Clear and convincing, as a standard, falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here, the trier of facts should have a firm belief that the fact alleged is true, i.e., that petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity. The standard requires more that a mere balancing of probabilities, but less that absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lepre v., Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (L. Div. 1974); Germann v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466 (App. Div. 1969)

Petitioner's present supervisor testified on petitioner's behalf asserting, among other things, that he had been made aware of petitioner's admission of guilt to criminal charges and, nevertheless, had no problem finding that petitioner was honest and demonstrated integrity in his employment. Kenneth Hughes asserted that petitioner was not only an excellent and dependable employee but, moreover, would perform beyond the assigned task. Hughes opined that petitioner was rehabilitated and the applied for license should issue.

Robert Hingos, the former assistant director of security at Atlantis, testified, among other things, that he had been engaged in law enforcement for twenty years and had arrested thousands of people; nevertheless, he testified on petitioner's behalf. Hingos opined that petitioner made a stupid mistake and that petitioner was not a thief. He also opined that petitioner's conduct was an isolated occurrence and that petitioner would absolutely not repeat the incident again. Hingos asserted that he would trust petitioner with his family and that it would be a travesty if the license petitioner applied for was not granted.

Peter Riverso, presently employed at the Trump Taj Mahal and formerly the assistant to President Hood of the Atlantis, testified on petitioner's behalf. Riverso asserted that he was aware of the circumstances whereby petitioner plead guilty. Notwithstanding, Riverso testified that he recommends petitioner for licensure because he believes that petitioner is rehabilitated and that he possesses the requisite honesty and integrity for licensure. Riverso asserted "There's nothing I wouldn't trust Bobby [Ifert] with that's mine, personally." (Tr. pp. 48-49).

Having observed petitioner and those who testified on his behalf, I FIND their testimony to be candid, forthright and credible. They each spoke the truth and did not hesitate to answer the questions addressed to them by petitioner's counsel and the Deputy Attorney General. In re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514, 522 (1950).

I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioner has met his burden and has clearly and convincingly established his good character, honesty and integrity pursuant to section 89b(2) of the Act, as incorporated within section 90b.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the Division's objection to the issuance of a casino employee license to petitioner Robert Ifert, be and is hereby DISMISSED

It is further ORDERED that the permanent non-gaming casino employee license no. 76557-22 applied for by Robert Ifert be issued as soon as practical.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION who by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: October 31, 1989 Decided: December 15, 1989

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter concerns the complaint of the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed with the Casino Control Commission on December 6, 1988, seeking revocation of the respondent's casino hotel employee registration. The basis of the Division's complaint is its allegation that the respondent was convicted on July 13, 1987, of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) with intent to distribute, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1) and analogous to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5. These are the issues:

1. Has the respondent been convicted of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, possession of cocaine with intent to distribute.

2. Has the petitioner, if he has been convicted of an otherwise disqualifying offense pursuant to section 86c(1) of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), affirmatively established his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, pursuant to section 91d of the act.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

By letter dated April 21, 1989, the Casino Control Commission acknowledged receipt of the respondent's request for a hearing on the Division's complaint. On April 28, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. On July 28, 1989, Administrative Law Judge Edgar R. Holmes conducted a prehearing conference. The hearing was thereafter held before the undersigned on October 31, 1989, in Atlantic City, New Jersey. The record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The material facts in this matter are not in dispute. The respondent is a 24 year-old resident of Pleasantville, New Jersey. He has been employed by John Johnson General Construction, Framing and Siding in Mays Landing since September 1989. According to the respondent, he is preparing to attend a carpentry vocational course which will last about 18 months. The respondent and his girlfriend support each other and their child, who is less than one year old. The respondent is a high school graduate, and he took a security course at the Casino Career Institute between November 1984 and January 1985.

The respondent holds casino hotel employee registration no. 69768-40. According to the respondent, he applied for and received this registration in August 1986. On December 27, 1986, the respondent was arrested and charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance, possession with intent to distribute, and possession of a weapon by a convicted person. According to the respondent, he conspired with a friend and a girlfriend to sell cocaine. At the time of his arrest, he had been selling cocaine for approximately six months. Two thousand dollars which he had obtained from the sale of cocaine was seized by the police. The respondent stated that this represented about an ounce worth of cocaine and that it would take two or three weeks to sell an ounce.

On January 15, 1987, the respondent and two others were named in a six count indictment which charged them with various drug and weapons offenses (Exhibit P-1). On June 10, 1987, the respondent entered a plea of guilty to counts two and six of the indictment, charging him with possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1), which is analogous to N.J.S.A. 2C: 35-5; and possession of a weapon by a convicted person, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:39-7 (Exhibit P-2). On July 31, 1987, the respondent was sentenced on count two to the Atlantic County Jail for 364 days with no parole eligibility for 120 days and credit for 10 days served. The respondent was also placed on probation for a period of three years. On count six, the respondent was sentenced to 18 months probation to run concurrently with the sentence on count two. The respondent was required to forfeit the 32 caliber handgun and $2,383 which were seized when he was arrested. The remaining count against the respondent was dismissed (Exhibit P-2).

The respondent acknowledged that he had a 1985 conviction for possession of marijuana with intent to distribute. He had been arrested on November 2, 1984, in a pool room which he had been leasing. According to the respondent, he had been in the business of selling marijuana. This involved traveling to New York City where he would purchase a pound of marijuana for $500. He would then divide the marijuana into individual $5 bags. The respondent estimated that it took about two weeks to sell a pound of marijuana in this manner and it brought a return of about $1,000. According to the respondent, this sale of marijuana provided his livelihood for about 14 months.

Following his March 1985 conviction for distribution of marijuana, the respondent received a term of probation of three years. It was his testimony that he was released early from that probation. According to the respondent, rather than going to work in a lawful occupation, he took the attitude that he could earn more money selling drugs and not working as hard. He tried to be honest after his marijuana conviction but then chose to do wrong by selling cocaine. As a result, he ended up "doing time." The respondent testified sincerely that he has learned the seriousness of his illegal conduct. He realizes that people were stealing to support their cocaine habit. He acknowledges his unlawful conduct and regrets it. According to the respondent, he never again wants to be involved with drugs. He has a child now and he wants to avoid doing anything that might send him to jail. The respondent learned how valuable his freedom is when he was incarcerated.

When the respondent was released on parole, he was required to undergo random urine tests. One or two such tests were taken and the respondent had no problem with them. It was his testimony that he had not been a cocaine user, although he had used marijuana. His involvement with any drugs ended between his arrest in December 1986 and his conviction in June 1987.

A condition of the respondent's probation was that he obtain employment. He worked as a line server at Resorts International Hotel and Casino between November 1987 and April 1988. He did not care for that work and he left that job for employment at the Show Boat Casino Hotel between April and August 1988. Following that, the respondent worked for less than a month at the Tropicana Casino Hotel as a bus greeter. He was terminated for missing work. The respondent then worked in a sales job between October 1988 and February 1989. He was then unemployed until May 1989, when he was hired at Trumps Castle Casino Hotel as a line server. The respondent held this position until the end of August 1989. He left that work to take his present position in the construction industry.

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to section 1b(8) of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), participation in casino operations as a licensee or registrant under the act is deemed to be a revocable privilege conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee or registrant. It is the intention of the act to preclude the creation of any property right in any license permitted under the act, and to require that participation in gaming be solely conditioned upon the individual qualifications of the person seeking such a privilege. Pursuant to section 91b of the act, the Commission may revoke the registration of any registrant who is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of the act.

It is undisputed that the respondent was convicted upon his plea of guilty on June 10, 1987, of the offense of possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1) and analogous to N.J.S.A.

2C:35-5. This is an offense specifically listed under section 86c(1) of the Casino Control Act as a disqualifier. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the respondent is subject to revocation of his casino hotel employee registration on the basis of his conviction of a disqualifying offense, pursuant to sections 86c(1) and 91b of the act.

Section 91d of the act provides that the respondent's casino hotel employee registration should not be revoked on the basis of his conviction of an offense identified in the act as a disqualifier, provided that he has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. In determining whether rehabilitation has been affirmatively demonstrated, the following factors under section 91d shall be considered:

(1) The nature and duties of the registrant's position;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision.

The respondent's employment as a registrant has primarily involved restaurant work. He has not been involved with gaming, but he did work for a short time as a bus greeter. The respondent took a security course at the Casino Career Institute between November 1984 and January 1985.

The respondent has twice been involved in periods of illegal sale of drugs. He was convicted in 1985 of possession of marijuana with intent to distribute. The respondent had sold marijuana for a living for about 14 months. As noted above, the respondent was convicted in June 1987 of possession of cocaine with intent to distribute. Again, the respondent made his livelihood from the sale of illegal drugs.

It is common knowledge that the use and sale of unlawful drugs are problems of great concern, both locally and nationally. The seriousness of the respondent's unlawful conduct cannot seriously be doubted. Although the respondent is still a young man of 24 years, he has during 2 discrete periods of time made his living from the sale of drugs. Both periods covered a considerable amount of time. In addition, there is no concrete evidence that any social conditions contributed to the unlawful conduct.

To his credit, the respondent has attempted to maintain lawful employment since his second conviction. In addition, he will soon be obtaining a lengthy period of vocational training in the craft of carpentry. This effort should be encouraged. Viewing all of the credible evidence in the record, including the respondent's candid testimony, it appears that the respondent intends to lead a law-abiding life.

It may be more likely than not that the respondent will succeed in his aspiration and will henceforth remain law-abiding. However, such likelihood does not satisfy his burden in this proceeding. Since he has, not one, but two, convictions for the possession of drugs with intent to distribute, insufficient time has passed since his second criminal involvement for me to be convinced that the respondent is fully rehabilitated. I believe that full rehabilitation is within the respondent's capability. Nevertheless, I CONCLUDE that he has not yet established his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, within the meaning of section 91d of the Casino Control Act.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the casino hotel employee registration of Jeffrey Jackson be REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of October 18, 1989,

IT IS on this 17th day of July 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> We concur with and adopt the Administrative Law Judge's factual findings and his conclusion that the respondent's continued registration would be inimical to the policies of the Act. However, we reject the Administrative Law Judge's erroneous reference to respondent's offenses as listed statutory disqualifiers. The two offenses committed by the respondent, theft of property (fourth degree) and theft by unlawful taking (fourth degree), are disqualifying pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(2) and -86(g). Because both offenses are fourth degree, neither is a statutory disqualifier under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(1).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent's casino hotel employee registration is revoked substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Richard R. Johns is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any license, registration, qualification or approval under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

Richard R. Johns, the respondent, pro se

Record Closed: August 22, 1989 Decided: September 8, 1989

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the revocation of Richard R. John's casino hotel employee registration no. 41699-40, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91 and N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1). The Division sought revocation of the respondent's registration by reason of its contention that the respondent had been convicted of a criminal offense which rendered continued registration to be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act (Act), pursuant to Section 86c(2), and that the respondent had committed a criminal offense which rendered continued registration to be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act, pursuant to Section 86c(2), by means of section 86g, and therefore, that the respondent is disqualified from registration, pursuant to section 91b.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The respondent had obtained a casino hotel employee registration from the Commission so he could be employed in the casino industry. By complaint to the Commission, filed October 11, 1988, the Division objected to the respondent's continued registration, first asserting that the respondent had been convicted of theft of property lost, mislaid or delivered by mistake, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-6, which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(2), and second, asserting that the respondent had committed theft by unlawful taking, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(2), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by section 86g. Based upon the complaint, the Commission notified the respondent on October 20, 1988, that he had the right to a hearing, and that failure to respond within 15 days could result in his registration being revoked. By application dated November 10, 1988, which was received by the Commission on November 15, 1988, the respondent requested a hearing. On November 30, 1988, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on December 5, 1988, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was scheduled for February 8, 1989. On February 7, 1989, the deputy attorney general requested an adjournment as he had to attend a Commission meeting on the scheduled prehearing date. This request for adjournment was granted and the prehearing conference was rescheduled for March 13, 1989. The respondent failed to appear for the prehearing conference; however, later in the day he contacted the Office of Administrative Law, indicated that he had had car trouble that morning, and requested that the prehearing conference be rescheduled. This request was granted, and the prehearing conference was rescheduled for April 21, 1989. On April 20, 1989, the respondent contacted the Office of Administrative Law and requested an adjournment as he was required to perform jury duty on April 21, 1989. This request for an adjournment was granted, and the prehearing conference was rescheduled.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before me on May 2, 1989. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether respondent's continued licensure is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) because he was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-6.

B. Whether respondent's continued licensure is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) because he is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

A hearing was held on August 22, 1989, in the Office of Administrative Law, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey, after which the record was closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

In 1987, the respondent, Richard R. Johns, was employed as a valet parking attendant by the Claridge Hotel and Casino. In October or November 1987, the respondent was issued a paycheck in the amount of $170.00. The respondent placed his check in his home. Then respondent had a party at his home, after which he could not find his paycheck. He reported his paycheck missing to his employer and a new paycheck was issued to him, which he cashed. Subsequently, the respondent found the original check and he cashed it at a check cashing service in Atlantic City.

On November 16, 1987, the Claridge notified the New Jersey State Police that the respondent had cashed both checks. The respondent was arrested by the State Police, and he made a statement to the State Police that he had in fact cashed both checks (P-3). The respondent was charged with theft of property lost, mislaid or delivered by mistake in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-6. On February 1, 1988, the respondent pleaded guilty to the charge in Atlantic City Municipal Court and was sentenced to pay a $25 fine, $25 in court costs, and a $30 penalty to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board. The respondent paid his fine, costs and penalty on March 31, 1988 (P-4).

The respondent testified that he was experiencing financial difficulties and was behind in his rent. The mother of his child was seeking to place his daughter up for adoption, and in an attempt to retain his daughter, he had to be able to provide a home for her. As such, when he found the original check, he cashed it in order to pay the rent. The respondent made a separate arrangement with the check cashing service and repaid the amount in full.

On December 9, 1988, the respondent was employed as a bartender at the Showboat Hotel and Casino. On that date he took $293.50 from his bank bag. The shortage was discovered during a routine audit by the hotel cashier manager. On December 30, 1988, security Investigator Margaret Woolsey of the Showboat contacted the New Jersey State Police and reported the incident. Ms. Linda Greenawalt, beverage supervisor at the Showboat, went to the Division office at the Trump Castle and signed a complaint against the respondent charging him with theft by unlawful taking in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. The respondent was thereafter arrested, and he gave a statement to the police admitting that he had taken the money for personal reasons. The case was referred to the Atlantic City Municipal Court for prosecution; however, the case was dismissed on May 11, 1989 (P-1).

In May 1988, the respondent was promoted from the position of bar porter to bartender. His salary was supposed to be raised from $5.50 per hour to $6.86 per hour. After two months of not having received the raise in his paycheck, he contacted the payroll section of the Showboat. The respondent was informed that his supervisor had never submitted the required paperwork reflecting his promotion and raise. The respondent contacted his supervisor and was told the situation would be corrected. His raise, however, never appeared in his paycheck. Every month he would go to payroll and inquire about the status of his raise and his back pay; however, he never received either a satisfactory answer or his money. On November 15, 1988, the respondent's house, clothes and furnishing were completely destroyed by fire. He immediately went to his supervisor and payroll section to inquire about his back pay; however, it still was not forthcoming. At this time the respondent was suffering from severe mental stress. He had to take care of his daughter, find clothes for the two of them, pay rent on a new apartment and start a new life. He was experiencing severe emergency financial difficulties, and he was further concerned that if he failed to make his child support payments of $200 per month that he could go to jail and that he might lose his daughter.[1] As a last resort, he removed the money from his bank bag which he intended to repay (P-2).

The respondent was born on May 23, 1959, and is 30 years old. He graduated from high school in 1977, and he enrolled in Atlantic County Community College that September. He enlisted in the Air Force in April 1978, and he served for over three years as a law enforcement officer in a security police squadron in Spain. He was discharged with an honorable discharge in 1981.

From 1981 through 1987, the respondent worked as a taxi cab driver. He quit this job afer he was robbed in 1987. In 1985, the respondent became employed at Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino. He was released at the end of his probationary period because of an alleged poor attitude. His aunt died, and he requested time off to attend her funeral. This request was denied, and he became very upset. As a result, he was released from his position. From early 1986 through the summer of 1987, the respondent worked at the Claridge Hotel and Casino as a parking valet. He was terminated from this position as a result of the payroll check cashing incident. From December 1987 through May 1988, the respondent was employed as a bar porter at the Showboat Hotel and Casino. In May, he was promoted to a bartender. On or about December 15, 1988, the repsondent was terminated from this position because of his theft of money from his bank bag. Since November 1988, the respondent has been employed as a bar porter at Trump Castle Hotel and Casino.

The respondent presented one witness who testified in his behalf, and three character leters. Franklin J. Bates testified that he has known the respondent for over 15 years. They attended the same high school and were in the Air Force at the same time. Mr. Bates testified regarding the facts surrounding the two alleged incidents of misconduct in this case. He characterized the respondent as a hard-working, honest individual, who does not get in trouble.

1 The respondent has joint custody of his daughter with the child's mother. The respondent has physical custody of the child four days a week, provides $200 a month child support, and provides all of the child's food and clothing. The child's maternal grandmother takes care of the child the other three days as the child is a burden to her mother, and it is the child's mother who has sought to place the child up for adoption.

In a letter dated August 1989, Kelly M. Harris, director of Atlantic City senior citizens programs, describes the respondent as an outstanding, self-motivated worker who has worked for the Atlantic City Senior Citizens Programs (R-1). In another letter, dated August 21, 1989, Joyce O. Ingram describes the respondent as a "responsible, energetic young man who is loyal to his family" (R-3). Finally, the Reverend J. Overton Jones, Church of St. Bernadette, in a letter dated July 31, 1989, wrote:

> I have known Richard Johns, Jr. since he was a young child. He was a dedicated young man. He attended Church regularly, was active in the C.Y.O. (Catholic Youth Organization) and the Altar Servers.
> Richard was always willing to help with all Parish activities at St. Monica's, 108 North Pennsylvania Avenue, Atlantic City, when I was Associate Pastor. He always seemed to me to be an upright, caring and honest young man. [R-2]

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the respondent's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident nor his current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess his credibility. Initially, his position in this matter must be recognized. As the respondent and the holder of a casino hotel employee registration, he has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the respondent's demeanor, the plausibility of his testimony, the manner in which he participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appears that the respondent testified truthfully in substantial part. He candidly admitted his misconduct and described the underlying circumstances. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the respondent's testimony in substantial part.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. In October or November 1987, the respondent was issued a paycheck by his employer, the Claridge Hotel and Casino, in the amount of $170.00. The respondent placed his check in his home. Then respondent thereafter could not find his paycheck. He reported his paycheck missing to his employer, and a new paycheck was issued to him which he cashed. Subsequently, the respondent found the original check and he cashed it at a check cashing service in Atlantic City.

2. The respondent was charged with theft of property lost, mislaid or delivered by mistake in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-6. On February 1, 1988, the respondent pleaded guilty to the charge in Atlantic City Municipal Court and was sentenced to pay a $25 fine, $25 in court costs, and a $30 penalty to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board. The respondent paid his fine, costs and penalty on March 31, 1988.

3. The respondent was experiencing financial difficulties and was behind in his rent. The mother of his child was seeking to place his daughter up for adoption, and in an attempt to retain his daughter, he had to be able to provide a home for her. As such, when he found the original check, he cashed it in order to pay the rent.

4. The respondent made a separate arrangement with the check cashing service and repaid the amount in full.

5. On December 9, 1988, the respondent was employed as a bartender at the Showboat Hotel and Casino. On that date he took $293.50 from his bank bag. The respondent was charged with theft by unlawful taking in violation of N.J.S.A 2C:20-3. The respondent was arrested, and he gave a statement to the police admitting that he had taken the money for personal reasons. The case was referred to the Atlantic City Municipal Court for prosecution; however, the case was dismissed on May 11, 1989.

6. In May 1988, the respondent was promoted from the position of bar porter to bartender. His salary was supposed to be raised from $5.50 per hour to $6.86 per hour. His raise, however, never appeared in his paycheck. Every month he would go to payroll and inquire about the status of his raise and his back pay; however, he never received either a satisfactory answer or his money.

7. On November 15, 1988, the respondent's house, clothes and furnishing were completely destroyed by fire. He immediately went to his supervisor and payroll section to inquire about his back pay; however, it still was not forthcoming. At this time the respondent was suffering from severe mental stress. He had to take care of his daughter, find clothes for the two of them, pay rent on a new apartment and start a new life. He was experiencing severe emergency financial difficulties, and he was further concerned that if he failed to make his child support payments of $200 per month that he could go to jail and that he might lose his daughter.

8. The respondent was born on May 23, 1959, and is 30 years old. He graduated from high school in 1977, and he enrolled in Atlantic County Community College that September. He enlisted in the Air Force in April 1978, and he served for over three years as a law enforcement officer in a security police squadron in Spain. He was discharged with an honorable discharge in 1981.

9. From 1981 through 1987, the respondent worked as a taxi cab driver. He quit this job afer he was robbed in 1987.

10. In 1985, the respondent became employed at Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino. He was released at the end of his probationary period because of an alleged poor attitude. From early 1986 through the summer of 1987, the respondent worked at the Claridge Hotel and Casino as a parking valet. He was terminated from this position as a result of the payroll check cashing incident. From December 1987 through May 1988, the respondent was employed as a bar porter at the Showboat Hotel and Casino. In May, he was promoted to a bartender. On or about December 15, 1988, the repsondent was terminated from this position because of his theft of money from his bank bag. Since November 1988, the respondent has been employed as a bar porter at Trump Castle Hotel and Casino.

APPLICABLE LAW

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86, Casino License - disqualification criteria, provides in pertinent part:

> The commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of any of the following criteria:

a. Failure of the applicant to prove by clear and convincing evidence that the applicant is qualified in accordance with the provisions of this act;

b. Failure of the applicant to provide information, documentation and assurances required by the act or requested by the commission, or failure of the applicant to reveal any fact material to qualification, or the supplying of information which is untrue or misleading as to a material fact pertaining to the qualification criteria;

c. The conviction of the applicant, or of any person required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license, of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be:

. . . .

(2) Any other offense under present New Jersey or federal law which indicates that licensure of the applicant would be inimical to the policy of this act and to casino operations; provided, however, that the automatic disqualification provisions of this subsection shall not apply with regard to any conviction which did not occur within the 10-year period immediately preceding application for licensure and which the applicant demonstrates by clear and convincing evidence does not justify automatic disqualification pursuant to this subsection and any conviction which has been the subject of a judicial order of expungement or sealing;

g. The commission by the applicant or any person who is required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of this section, even if such conduct has not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State . . . .

N.J.S.A. 5:12-91, Registration of casino hotel employees, provides in pertinent part:

a. No person may commence employment as a casino hotel employee unless he has been registered with the commission, which registration shall be in accordance with subsection f. of this section.

b. Any applicant for casino hotel employee registration shall produce such information as the commission may require. Subsequent to the registration of a casino hotel employee, the commission may revoke, suspend, limit, or otherwise restrict the registration upon a finding that the registrant is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of P.L.1977, c. 110 (C. 5:12-86).

d. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection b. of this section no casino hotel employee registration shall be revoked on the basis of a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria or the commission of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of section 86 of P.L.1977, c. 110 (C 5:12-86), as specified in subsection g. of that section, provided that the registrant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation. In determining whether the registrant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:

1. The nature and duties of the registrant's position;

2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

4. The date of the offense or conduct;

5. The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;

6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) establishes that registration under the Casino Control Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual . . .registrant." N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1) provides for the revocation of the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his . . . registration." The Division first contends that the respondent was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-6, theft of property lost, mislaid or delivered by mistake, which constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2). The Division next contends, by means of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, that the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking, which constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2). Accordingly, the Division contends that he is disqualified from continued registration.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g

Section 86g provides that a licensee or registrant will be disqualified from licensure and registration because of the commission of any action which would constitute an offense under section 86c, even if there has not been a prosecution for such conduct. Section 86c(2) is more commonly referred to as the "inimical clause." In In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979), the Commission set forth the criteria to be applied in individual cases when a determination is made as to whether an offense is inimical to the policies of the Act. The Commission stated at page 15:

> The nature of the offense, the events surrounding it, including any mitigating or aggravating factors, the remoteness of the offense and the offender's conduct since the offense to the present are all matters to be considered. Without limiting the notion of what is 'inimical' to the Act or to gaming, it would appear to encompass those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations.

The Legislature, when it authorized the establishment of casino gaming in Atlantic City, and provided for the licensure, regulation and taxation thereof, enumerated specific policy considerations which appear to be directly related to the intent and purpose of the inimical clause. More specifically, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6) and (7) state categorically that the successful regulation and control of state casino activities depends upon the confidence of the public "in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process of a casino operation," and by the exclusion from participation in casino gaming of "persons with known criminal records, habits or associations" who could threaten the integrity of the gaming and business operations.

The significance of strict regulation of all phases of the casino industry was emphasized by the Supreme Court in Knight v. City of Margate, 86 N.J. 374, 381 (1981):

> At the very heart of the public policy embraced by the new law is 'the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations.' N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6). Related directly to this purpose, the Legislature stated that 'the regulatory provisions . . . are designed to extend strict State regulation to all persons . . . practices and associations related to' casinos and that 'comprehensive law-enforcement supervision . . . is further designed to contribute to the public confidence and trust in the efficacy and integrity of the regulatory process.'

In In the Matter of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union Local 54, 203 N.J. Super. 297, 317 (App. Div. 1985), certif. den. 102 N.J. 352 (1985), the Appellate Division held that "inimical" means "adverse to the policy of the act and gaming operations," i.e., contrary to strict regulatory controls over all facets of casino activities.

The Division contends that while the respondent was only convicted of the disorderly person offense of theft of property lost, mislaid or delivered by mistake and while the respondent's conduct constitutued theft by unlawful taking in the fourth degree, neither of which is listed as a disqualifier under section 86c, that these alleged offenses are either disqualifying offenses under section 86c(2) as convictions or under section 86c(2) and section 86g as misconduct, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-6, Theft of property lost, mislaid, or delivered by mistake, provides:

> A person who comes into control of property of another that he knows to have been lost, mislaid, or delivered under a mistake as to the nature or amount of the property or the identity of the recipient is guilty of theft if, knowing the identity of the owner and with purpose to deprive said owner thereof, he converts the property to his own use.

The Division established, and the respondent admitted during his testimony, that he knowingly and wrongfully cashed a payroll check, which had been previously mislaid, after he had already cashed a replacement check. The Division further established, and the respondent admitted during his testimony, that as a result of this misconduct, he had been convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-6 in the Atlantic City Municipal Court. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-6 and that he has been convicted of this offense. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(3), the offense constitutes a disorderly person offense.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, Theft by unlawful taking or disposition, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Movable property. A person is guilty of theft if he unlawfully takes, or exercises unlawful control over, movable property of another with purpose to deprive him thereof.

In order to establish the crime of theft by unlawful taking, the Division must prove two elements. First, the Division must prove that the respondent unlawfully took the property of another ($293.50 belonging to the Showboat Hotel and Casino). Second, the Division must prove that at the time the respondent took this property his purpose was to deprive the owner of the money.

With regard to the requirement of proof of a purpose to deprive another of his property, it has been held that a person acts purposely with respect to the nature of his conduct or a result thereof if it is his conscious object to engage in conduct of that nature or to cause such a result. In other words, in order to establish that the respondent acted purposely, the Division must prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that at the time the respondent took the property it was his conscious object to deprive the Showboat of the money. "Deprive" means (1) to withhold (or cause to be withheld) property of another permanently or for so extended a period as to appropriate a substantial portion of its economic value...or, (2) to dispose (or cause disposal) of the property so as to make it unlikely that the owner will recover it.

In this case, the respondent was upset that he had not received the raise and back pay to which he was entitled for six months. He was frustrated by the payroll section's inability to correct the situation. In November, his house burned down and he experienced severe emergency financial difficulties. As a result, he took the money from his bank bag. The respondent feloniously appropriated the money to his own use as he felt the money was owed to him by the Showboat and he was in dire need for money. (See, State v. Leicht, 124 N.J. Super. 128 (App. Div. 1973).)

The Division therefore established, and the respondent admitted during his testimony, that he knowingly and wrongfully took $293.50 from the Showboat Hotel and Casino. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2 b(3), the offense constitutes a crime of the fourth degree.

Recently, in State of New Jersey, Dept. of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Michael P. Waters, OAL DKT. CCC 3933-86, decided by the Commission (June 12, 1987), the Commission stated at 2-3 that:

> A distinction must be drawn between the rehabilitation from a section 86(c)(1) or (3) disqualifying offense pursuant to sections 90(h) or 91(d) of the Act and rehabilitation as an aspect of the inimical analysis. In the former situation, disqualification is established once it is shown that the respondent committed an enumerated offense. The respondent is then afforded the opportunity to affirmatively demonstrate his rehabilitation from that disqualification. It is well established that, consistent with other affirmative licensing criteria, the respondent must prove his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. Application of Richard Romanishin for a Casino Employee License, Docket No. 84-EA-85 (Commission order, May 23, 1985); Application of Chester R. Brathwaite for a Casino Employee License, Docket No. A-4252-82T3 (Unpublished opinion reversing Commission decision, January 23, 1984).

> However, unlike a section 86(c)(1) or (3) situation, disqualification pursuant to section 86(c)(4) is not established upon demonstrating that the respondent committed the offense in question. Such a determination can only be made after considering all the circumstances surrounding the offense: its nature, its remoteness, and the offender's conduct subsequent to the offense, i.e., essentially the same factors which bear upon rehabilitation. Application of Donna Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (Commission decision, December 27, 1985); State v. Theodore Williams, Docket No. 84-288 (Commission order, May 1, 1987.)

The Commission concluded that if the Division establishes a case for the respondent's disqualification, it is "then incumbent upon the respondent to show that he was rehabilitated; that is, the burden of going forward with evidence (but not the ultimate burden of proof), had shifted."

In the Davis case, the Commission stated at 313-314:

> Rehabilitation under section 90(h) (casino employee license) and section 91(d) (casino hotel employee registration) does not apply to disqualifying convictions under section 86(c)(4). By their express terms, these rehabilitation provisions apply only to '. . . a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria.' Nevertheless, many of the factors that are considered upon a claim of rehabilitation are included within the inimical analysis.

The Commission indicated that "it has been generally observed that the notion of rehabilitation is subsumed in the inimical analysis (and) . . . the inimical analysis is substantially similar to the concept of rehabilitation." The Commission concluded that:

> The salient point to be made here is that we consider rehabilitation factors before concluding that the offense in question is or is not inimical under section 86(c)(4). Because the rehabilitation provisions are subsumed within the inimical analysis, it should never be necessary to determine the merits of a claim of rehabilitation after concluding that a given offense is inimical pursuant to section 86(c)(4). [Id. at 314] [emphasis in original; footnote omitted]

The eight specific criteria enumerated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made are:

1. The nature and duties of the licensee's position or the registrant's position;

2. The nature and seriousness of the offense;

3. The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

4. The date of the offense;

5. The age of the licensee or registrant when the offense was committed;

6. Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;

8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant or registrant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Richard R. Johns is a casino hotel registrant and was employed as a bar porter. As such, he does not have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities but does come in contact with casino patrons.

Second, the respondent was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-6, theft of property lost, mislaid or delivered by mistake, while employed in the casino industry. The respondent also committed a vioaltion of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking while employed in the casino industry. As these offenses are listed statutory disqualifiers, they are very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offenses must be viewed in their appropriate context. In the first case, the respondent lost or mislaid his paycheck. He obtained a second paycheck from his employer and cashed it. Subsequently, he found his original paycheck and instead of returning it to his employer, he knowingly and wrongfully cashed it also. The respondent was experiencing financial difficulties and was behind in his rent. The mother of his child was seeking to place his daughter up for adoption, and in an attempt to retain his daughter, he had to be able to provide a home for her. While these are mitigating factors, they do not excuse a knowing theft of money from his employer. In the second case, the respondent was promoted from a bar porter to a bartender; however, the respondent never received his raise in his paycheck even after numerous attempts to correct the situation over a period of six months. Thereafter, the petitioner's house, clothes and furnishing were completely destroyed by fire. He had to take care of his daughter, find clothes for the two of them, pay rent on a new apartment and start a new life. He was experiencing severe emergency financial difficulties, and he was further concerned that if he failed to make his child support payments of $200 per month that he could go to jail and that he might lose his daughter. Again, while these are mitigating factors, they do not allow the respondent to help himself to money in his bank bag at the casino. If he did not properly receive his raise or back pay, there are numerous legal and other channels within the casino which he could have pursued in an attempt to rectify the situation. The fact that both of these thefts were thefts of money from a casino by a casino employee makes them very serious. Such conduct directly and adversely affects the public confidence in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process of casino gaming.

Fourth, the respondent's misconduct occurred in November 1987 and again in December 1988, when it ceased.

Fifth, the respondent was 28 years old at the time of the first offense and 29 years old at the time of the second offense. I do not believe immaturity was a factor in this case.

Sixth, the two incidents of respondent's misconduct were isolated in nature. He has not committed any other violations of the criminal laws.

Seventh, in the first case, the respondent was experiencing financial difficulties and was behind in his rent. The mother of his child was seeking to place his daughter up for adoption, and in an attempt to retain his daughter, he had to be able to provide a home for her. As a result, he cashed the lost paycheck. In the second case, the respondent was promoted from a bar porter to a bartender; however, the respondent never received his raise in his paycheck even after numerous attempts to correct the situation over a period of six months. Thereafter, the respondent's house, clothes and furnishings were completely destroyed by fire. He had to take care of his daughter, find clothes for the two of them, pay rent on a new apartment and start a new life. He was experiencing severe emergency financial difficulties, and he was further concerned that if he failed to make his child support payments of $200 per month that he could go to jail and that he might lose his daughter. As a result he took the money from his bank bag.

Eighth, the respondent has made some rehabilitative efforts. He did repay the check cashing service in full. He has been active in senior citizen programs and in his church. He has also been a responsible parent and has worked to care for his daughter. He has admitted his misconduct and has accepted full responsibility for his actions. However, at one point of his life, the respondent was a sworn law enforcement officer. As such, the respondent should have known that it was wrong for him to cash a second paycheck or take money from his bank bag.

The Commission has addressed the weighing of the rehabilitation factors vis-a-vis the position applied for. In the Application of Brian Stiteler, argued before the Commission at the public meeting of August 5, 1987, Commissioner Armstrong stated:

> I would note that the rehabilitation criteria are identical for registrants and casino employees, but these factors can be weighed differently depending on the nature and duties of the position of the individual who is appearing before us and whether the disqualifying offense was an isolated or repeated incident, and I think that there are two prior Commission cases[2] in which we have given weight and emphasis to the nature and duty of the petitioner, and that's a significant factor in assessing rehabilitation.

In this case, the respondent was a bartender. He had no responsibility for any casino gaming activity, but did have contact with casino patrons. Considering the nature of the position he held, the seriousness of the offenses, the respondent's work record in the industry, his demeanor and candor at the hearing, the fact that he abused his position of trust, the fact that he stole the money from his casino employer, the fact that he twice committed thefts from his employer, the fact that he is a former sworn law enforcement officer, his involvement in the community, and his family status, when weighed against the eight rehabilitative criteria:

I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the continued registration of the respondent would be inimical to the policies of the Act, pursuant to section 86c(2).

2 I believe the decisions referred to by Commissioner Armstrong are: Benjamin Waters, OAL DKT. CCC 7470-86 (April 30, 1987), and Mark Bisciotti, OAL DKT. CCC 5240-86 (April 9, 1987), both matters having been decided at the Commission's public meeting of June 3, 1987.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division against the respondent be SUSTAINED and that registration no. 41699-40 be revoked.

It is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division against the respondent be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Before EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (CCC) on October 31, 1988, seeking to revoke the respondent's casino hotel employee registration. The respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on December 4, 1988, to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held on March 17, 1989, and a Prehearing Order was prepared identifying the issues to be determined and setting the matter down for hearing on July 21, 1989. The plenary hearing began on July 21, 1989, and was adjourned to October 17, 1989, for the completion of testimony. On October 17, 1989, the record closed.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Division asserts that in or about 1986 and 1987, the respondent received certain monies in his capacity as Chairman of the Ventnor Recreation Board and commingled these monies with his own, thus rendering him unfit for continued casino hotel employee registration.

ISSUE

The precise issue to be determined at the hearing, as set forth in the prehearing order, is whether respondent's continued registration is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86 c(2), because he is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-9, failure to make a required disposition of property received.

LAW

The Casino Control Act, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. provides that all persons who are employed in the New Jersey Casino industry be approved by the CCC. The lowest level of approval is designed for persons who are employed in casino hotels and who do not have access to the casino floor during employment. This is denominated a "registration." N.J.S.A. 5:12-91a. Persons actually employed in the casino itself must be "licensed," as opposed to "registered." N.J.S.A. 5:12-90a. Executives or key employees must possess a "key employee license." N.J.S.A. 5:12-89a.

No person convicted of certain enumerated criminal offenses, called "disqualifying offenses" in the Act, can be either registered or licensed. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), 89d, 90c and 91b. However, registrants and licensees, excepting only key licensees, may avoid disqualification pursuant to 86c(1), if they can affirmatively prove that they are rehabilitated from the conviction of a criminal offense. N.J.S.A.

prove that they are rehabilitated from the conviction of a criminal offense. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and 91d. Even if a person has not been convicted of an offense under the laws of this state, the Division may offer proof that the applicant, registrant or licensee committed acts or conduct which would constitute any offense listed in subsection c of section 86 of the Act. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g. In addition, if an applicant or licensee commits any offense which indicates that the licensure or registration of the applicant would be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations, that is a disqualification from licensure or registration also. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2), 89d, 90e and 91b. Finally, the case law has extended rehabilitation to the so called "inimical" offenses and made it part of the inimical analysis. Donna Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301, 314.

In this case, the State proceeded under the inimicality clause of the statute, N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c2, because the criminal charge originally made in the case was theft in the fourth degree, a crime not listed in section 86c(1) of the Act. In addition, the charge was dismissed pursuant to the pretrial intervention program rule. R. 3:28. Therefore, the Division also proceeded pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g which permits the Division to establish the existence of underlying, unprosecuted conduct which amounts to an offense.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Timothy Kreischer, the respondent, has lived in Ventnor City all of his life. As long as Kreischer can remember, Ventnor has provided recreation for its young people. He became active in Ventnor sports programs at the age of seven and played all sports during grammar school. At the age of fourteen, Kreischer found his niche in life; he became a coach and referee. He coached the Junior Varsity level in Pirate Football and he coached basketball in the C.Y.O. league. He refereed intramural basketball at Saint James in Ventnor.

As an adult, Kreischer became an officer in the Ventnor Baseball Association. At various times, he served as secretary, vice president, umpire-in-chief and senior league commissioner. Kreischer is also active in basketball as an official and a coach. He is a board member in the Ventnor Pirates, active in the Atlantic City All Sports Association, and he is President of the Atlantic County Junior Football League. He is also the Vice Chairman of the Ventnor City Recreation Board. The City of Ventnor's baseball leagues for children five years old to adults, street hockey, surfing contests, running races, volleyball leagues and arts and crafts opportunities. Except for high school and casino basketball games which he referees for pay, all of Kreischer's positions are voluntary and unpaid.

Kreischer is employed by the Showboat Hotel and Casino. He is an employee service coordinator. He handles non-union grievances and organizes and directs employee activities, so that even at work Kreischer is a kind of referee and coach.

The volleyball league, under the Ventnor City Recreation Board, formerly collected money from the teams as a registration fee. These monies were then used to pay for officials and supplies. There were also fees collected from sponsors and used to purchase tee shirts for the various teams. Prior to 1986, the fees were held by the director of the volleyball program. In order to tighten up controls, the Recreation Board decided that the monies should be held by Kreischer and Board member Ray Smith, in a joint account; two signatures required. Approximately $3,000 was turned over to Kreischer. Kreischer did not deposit all of the money into the bank. He kept most of it at home in a drawer.

Smith apparently had no control over the money. He simply co-signed as many blank checks as Kreischer needed to pay officials. It appears that Kreischer would put money into the bank to cover checks which had to be written in order to pay officials, although it also appears that there was a balance left in the account from time to time. He continued to keep money at home in a drawer.

On November 25, 1986, Ed Tunney, the Board member in charge of volleyball, turned over $4,399.11 to Kreischer representing registration fees collected that year. He prepared a receipt and gave a copy to Kreischer. Kreischer put this money into his drawer at home and deposited the money into the bank from time to time as needed.

In June of 1987, the Board determined to close the account and perform an audit. Kreischer turned over to the City the funds he had on hand and in the bank. The Board determined that there was a shortage of $2,405.38, although there are no supporting documents in the record for the Financial Report dated July 10, 1987 which purports to show a shortage of $2405.38. In any case, Kreischer accepted this figure and paid $2,405.50 over to the city in order to make the city whole. He says he paid the money over only because he was responsible for the money, not because he used the money for his own debts.

Kreischer was interviewed by the Atlantic County Prosecutor's Office, charged with theft of $500, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-9, denoted as theft by failure to make required disposition of property received. The statute is a recodification of the old embezzlement statute. Because the amount was stated as $500, it is classified as a fourth degree offense. N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(3). Kreischer was later granted pretrial intervention and the charge was dismissed.

During Kreischer's initial interview on August 19, 1987, he told the investigators that he never received the $2,405 alleged to be missing, but he acknowledged that he twice used the Board's money to pay his own debts. He recalled paying $1.60 to the paperboy from the drawer containing Recreation Board funds and he recalled obtaining a certified check with funds from the joint bank account for approximately $2,000 in order to pay the New Jersey State Lottery Commission. Kreischer, at that time, operated a store which sold lottery tickets. He claimed that to the best of his knowledge, he replaced the lottery money in the account.

Kreischer gave a second statement the following day, August 20, 1987. The statement reveals his complete financial ineptitude. Nevertheless, he claimed to be only a few hours short of an accounting degree from prestigious Saint Joseph's University in Philadelphia. In the second statement, Kreischer reaffirmed his previous statement which included his explanation that he borrowed from the Board's account to pay a lottery bill.

At the hearing, Kreischer introduced bank deposit and withdrawal records for the years in question. He called our attention to the fact that the bank records do not substantiate his claim that he used the Board's account to pay the Lottery Commission. There is no record of a check being drawn anywhere near $2,000. In fact, the largest check drawn was $390. As a result, Kreischer disavowed his earlier statement to the Prosecutor's Office that he used Board funds to pay the Lottery Commission. He says he only thought about doing it but must not have done it because the bank records do not reveal such a withdrawal or check cashed in that amount.

Kreischer attempts to explain his earlier statement to the police as an exercise in absolute honesty. He tried so hard to tell the truth he says, that he even divulged thoughts he had about using the Board's money; thoughts which the pressure of interrogation hypostatized. He now realizes that he was mistaken, but cannot account for the missing money except to say that he must not have received it.

On the other hand, the Deputy Attorney General suggests that if no check was drawn on the Board's account to pay the Lottery Commission, then Kreischer must have obtained cash from the drawer in that amount in order to purchase a certified check from the Bank. Kreischer testified that the Lottery Commission only accepted certified checks. That Kreischer used cash would also be my hunch, if I stood in the shoes of the Division. It is the most probable explanation once you have concluded that $2400 was in fact, missing from the Board's account. The difficulty is that the proofs on the issue, absent a confession from Kreischer, are not convincing. The evidence against Kreischer, not including his statements to the Prosecutor's Office, hardly proves a theft. The purported financial report is no evidence that a shortage exists, it is only good evidence that the Board's decision to turn over its accounts to the City was well taken. It contains no more than a few rough calculations; no one came forward to explain it; standing alone it is incapable of conveying any impression that a shortage existed in the volleyball accounts for 1986-1987.

In order to conclude that a theft occurred, one has to rely on Kreischer's own incriminating statements and actions. He paid off the shortage, but he says he did so only because his own sloppy bookkeeping methods created the difficulty. He was, he claims, morally responsible.

He told the police he used the money to pay the Lottery Commission, but thought he paid it back. He told them he drew a check on the Board's account and used it to purchase a certified check for the Lottery Commission. But the bank records reveal that no such check was ever drawn on the Board's account.

These inconsistencies leave Kreischer's reputation for financial responsibility, good character, honesty and integrity in shambles.

But these are qualities required of persons who aspire to work on the casino floor, not mere registrants, such as Kreischer. In addition, Kreischer has overcome the difficulties presented by his defalcation, if indeed there was one, in the very community in which his troubles arose. He is again the Vice Chairman of the city's Recreation Board, the alleged victim of his alleged crime. The only difference is that he no longer has the keeping of other people's money.

In his job, he has no financial responsibilities either. He tries to resolve disputes and he organizes games, two things that he is very good at doing, having spent a lifetime providing children and adults with recreational opportunities and refereeing the same games in Ventnor City.

Kreischer is highly respected in his community. His neighbors and co-volunteers like him and trust their children to his care. Except for this one incident, he has never been in trouble with the law.

In the position which Kreischer works, he is no danger to the casino industry. He poses no threat to the integrity of gaming or the policy of the Casino Control Act.

I CONCLUDE that Kreischer's continued registration is not inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations.

ORDER

Kenneth M. Leeds, Jr., petitioner, pro se
Ralph Fusco, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Peter N. Perretti, Jr., Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: November 17, 1989 Decided: December 27, 1989

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on January 24, 1989, objecting to the issuance of a casino employee license to petitioner, Kenneth M. Leeds, Jr. The Division alleges, among other things, that petitioner committed acts which statutorily disqualifies petitioner from holding a casino employee license. It further alleges that petitioner was in receipt of Unemployment Insurance benefits (UIB) to which he was not entitled which brings into questions petitioner's good character, honesty and integrity as required for licensure under section 89b(2) of the Casino Control Act (Act).

On March 10, 1989, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on July 28, 1989 before Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Edgar R. Holmes. A plenary hearing was held on November 17, 1989, at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The hearing record was considered closed on that date.

ISSUES

The issues to be resolved by this tribunal are as follows:

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c 1, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: theft by deception in the third degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, by receiving Unemployment Insurance benefits (over $500.), to which he was not entitled. The conduct occurred in 1984 and 1985.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b.

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act.

UNCONTESTED FACTS

The material facts in this matter are either admitted by petitioner or they are uncontested. The following recital, therefore, constitutes my FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter:

Petitioner is presently 26 years of age and resides with his wife in Absecon, New Jersey. He is a member of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, Local #623 and is presently employed by Baumgardner Construction., Inc. of Atlantic City and Pleasantville, New Jersey. During his employment with Baumgardner, beginning May 16, 1988, petitioner has been promoted in job positions from that of general helper to upholstery laborer and now is employed as a carpenter apprentice (J-1).

Petitioner is an applicant for a casino employee license and is the holder of casino hotel employee registration no. 075240-40. He was employed by Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino for approximately one year as a bar porter under his registration. He was terminated for absenteeism and is not now employed in the casino industry. The Division does not seek to revoke petitioner's casino hotel employee registration.

In or about 1984, petitioner was unemployed and collecting UIB. Petitioner's father was employed as a foreman at Dynalectric Corp. where petitioner was hired as a draftsman in 1984. Petitioner worked at Dynalectric while collecting UIB and failed to report his employment to the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance. Petitioner collected $3,700 in UIB from August 21, 1984 through January 15, 1985 while gainfully employed. Petitioner, who admits to the offense, asserted that he was earning $160 per week at Dynalectric and had the expenses of a new motorcycle, a car and rent to meet. Petitioner appeared at an Unemployment office to sign a "Work Search," however, he did not advise the office of his employment. As of October 26, 1988, petitioner had paid $101.73 in restitution. The total amount owed by petitioner as of that date was $4,205.56 which included the principal, penalty and interest. Petitioner asserted he had made subsequent payments of approximately $25 per month in restitution, however, he failed to produce proof of his assertion. He believes that his debt to the Division of Unemployment remains in excess of $2,000.

Petitioner's arrest record reveals, among other things, that on August 22, 1987, he was arrested by the Galloway Township Police and charged with simple assault in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1a(1) upon a complaint by a Michael Schurig of Absecon, New Jersey. Petitioner testified that he was in a bar with his cousin when a drunken brawl broke out. Petitioner stepped into the fray to protect his cousin and immediately thereafter left the bar. Petitioner was subsequently arrested in Absecon, New Jersey.

On September 8, 1987, petitioner appeared before the Galloway Township Municipal Court where he entered a plea of guilty to the charge of simple assault and paid a fine of $100, plus $25 court costs and $30 to the Violent Crime Compensation Board.

On December 7, 1984, petitioner was a passenger in a motor vehicle which was stopped by the New Jersey State Police for failure to display an inspection sticker. An arrest occurred at the Toms River Toll Plaza of the Garden State Parkway where, after the motor vehicle stop, the State Police discovered, among other things, burned marijuana cigarettes in the ashtray and center console of the vehicle; a large plastic bag of marijuana in the trunk of the vehicle; a mid-size paper bag of alleged methamphetamine and a brass knuckle/knife in a sheath. A pat down search of petitioner revealed two (2) marijuana cigarettes in his shirt pocket. Petitioner, the driver of the motor vehicle and another passenger were placed under arrest. On February 26, 1985, petitioner appeared before Municipal Court Judge James Liquori of the Dover Township Municipal Court. Petitioner entered a plea of guilty to five charges including the charge of possession of Controlled Dangerous Substance (CDS) (marijuana) over 25 grams and possession of CDS with Intent to Distribute, in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20(a)4 and N.J.S.A. 24:21-19(a)1 respectively. The Court granted petitioner a conditional discharge on all counts.

In or about August 1979, when petitioner was 16 years of age, he was arrested as a juvenile for receiving stolen property. Petitioner asserted that he had purchased a drill from a friend who had stolen the property from another.

Petitioner offered no documents nor witnesses on his behalf.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

I. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) As Incorporated Within Section 86q of the Act

The Act, under section 86c(1), mandates that a person be disqualified from licensure who has been convicted of "any offense in any jurisdiction which would be ..." any of the enumerated offenses under the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice, Title 2C of the New Jersey Statute. Section 86g of the Act provides that the Commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant who is disqualified by " ... any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c ... even if such conduct has not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State ..." Petitioner admits that he was in receipt of UIB in the amount of $3,700 to which he was not entitled. The Division contends that petitioner improperly received the UIB and that such receipt constitutes an offense which is analogous to "Theft by deception" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. The Division concedes that petitioner was not prosecuted for the offense but, nevertheless, it asserts that he is disqualified because the amount involved exceeded $500 and constitutes a crime of the third degree pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b (2).

The offense of Theft by Deception, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 provides as follows:

> A person is guilty of theft if he purposely obtains property of another by deception. A person deceives if he purposely:
>
> a. Creates or reinforces a false impression, including false impressions as to law, value, intention or other state of mind; but deception as to a person's intention to perform a promise shall not be inferred from the fact alone that he did not subsequently perform the promise;
>
> b. Prevents another from acquiring information which would affect his judgment of a transaction; or
>
> c. Fails to correct a false impression which the deceiver previously created or reinforced, or which the deceiver knows to be influencing another to whom he stands in a fiduciary or confidential relationship.
>
> The term "deceive" does not, however, include falsity as to matters having no pecuniary significance, or puffing or exaggeration by statements unlikely to deceive ordinary persons in the group addressed.

The grading of theft offenses is found at N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b. and, in pertinent part, provides that:

> (2) Theft constitutes a crime of the third degree if:
> (a) The amount involved exceeds $500.00 but is less than $75,000.00;

An applicant is disqualified under section 86c(1) of the Act if he or she has been convicted of theft and related offenses which constitute crimes of the second or third degree, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-1 et seq. It is not disputed that petitioner was not convicted of the offense. However, pursuant to section 86g of the Act, petitioner is disqualified even if he has not been prosecuted for the offense.

Accordingly, I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Division has met its burden of proof by a preponderance of the credible evidence that petitioner committed a violation analogous to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft by deception, when petitioner received UIB in an amount of $3,700 to which he was not entitled. I, therefore, CONCLUDE that petitioner is statutorily disqualified from casino licensure, pursuant to section 86c(1) of the Act as incorporated within section 86g.

II. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) as Incorporated Within Section 90b of the Act

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated within section 90b of the Act, petitioner Leeds is required to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979) at 8; Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985); In re Boardwalk Regency Corp. Casino License, 90 N.J. 361 (1982). When, as here, the Division raises the issue as to the licensee's good character, honesty and integrity, it is incumbent upon the licensee to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which this tribunal may reach a reasonable conclusion. Boardwalk Regency, supra; In the Matter of the Application of Boardwalk Regency Corp. and the Jemm Company for Casino License, Casino Control Commission (November 13, 1980). In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of the licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure.

Clear and convincing, as a standard, falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here, the trier of fact should have firm belief that the fact alleged is true; i.e., that petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity The standard requires more than a mere balancing of probabilities, but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (L. Div. 1974); German v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466 (App. Div. 1969).

Petitioner offered no documents or witnesses in support of his contention that he possesses the qualities of good character, honesty and integrity. He asserts that he possesses the qualities and that his partial repayment of the debt to the Division of Unemployment and Disability is proof of his good character, honesty and integrity. Petitioner failed to produce any evidence of his asserted restitution by way of documentation as to the amounts repaid or the program, if any, of a repayment plan. Petitioner's testimony alone, is not sufficient to meet his burden.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that respondent has failed to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity for casino licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated within section 90b of the Act.

III. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h

An applicant for licensure in a disciplinary proceeding faced with the existence of one or more section 86c statutory disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating his rehabilitation, pursuant to section 90h of the Act. This section sets forth eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made. Section 90h provides, in pertinent part, as follows:

> (1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;
>
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;
>
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
>
> (4) The date of the offense;
>
> (5) The age of the applicant (licensee) when the offense was committed;
>
> (6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
>
> (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
>
> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling, or psychiatric

> treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release program or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant (licensure) under their supervision.

1. Petitioner, who presently holds a casino hotel employee registration, has now applied for a casino employee license to act as an alcoholic beverage employee. In such an employment position, petitioner would have direct and substantial contact with casino patrons.

2. The offense of knowingly collecting UIB to which he was not entitled is a serious offense. Petitioner acknowledges and readily admits that he received the benefits. He asserts, moreover, that it was a stupid act to which he expressed regrets of having had committed.

3. Petitioner was unemployed and in receipt of UIB when, through his father, he was employed by Dynalectric Corp. Petitioner failed to advise the Division of Unemployment of his employment status and continued to collect UIB benefits for approximately five (5) months subsequent to his employment. Petitioner contends that he was earning only $150 to $160 per week and had to maintain a new motorcycle, an automobile and pay his rent. Therefore, he did not report his employment to the Division of Unemployment.

4. The offense was continuous commencing on or about August 21, 1984 and terminating on or about January 15, 1985.

5. Petitioner's date of birth is April 14, 1963. Therefore, he was 21 years of age in 1984-85 when he committed the offense.

6. As demonstrated in no. 4 above, the offense was a continuous, repeated offense covering a period of approximately five (5) months.

7. There were no social conditions extant which contributed to the offense.

8. Petitioner produced no evidence of rehabilitation by way of counseling or psychiatric treatment; any academic or vocational training or schooling; or the recommendation of any persons who possess knowledge of the offense.

Having considered all of the eight factors enumerated in section 90h of the Act and having given fair weight thereto, I am not persuaded that petitioner has met his statutory burden of establishing rehabilitation. Considering, among other things, the amount of UIB received by petitioner in 1984-85 and his failure to make full restitution some four years later, I FIND and CONCLUDE that his rehabilitation is incomplete.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the application of Kenneth M. Leeds, Jr., for a casino employee license be and is hereby DENIED and that petitioner's appeal be DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the revocation of Patricia Joan Lenahan's casino hotel employee registration no. 74311-40, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91 and N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1). The Division sought revocation of the respondent's registration by reason of its contention that the respondent had been convicted of a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), and therefore, she is disqualified from registration, pursuant to section 91b. The respondent contended that she was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 91d.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The respondent had obtained a casino hotel employee registration from the Commission so she could be employed as a cook at the Claridge Hotel and Casino. By complaint to the Commission, filed March 7, 1989, the Division objected to the respondent's continued registration, asserting that the respondent had been convicted of theft by unlawful taking (third degree), in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1). Based upon the complaint, the Commission notified the respondent on March 9, 1989, that she had the right to a hearing, and that failure to respond within 15 days could result in her registration being revoked. By application dated March 21, 1989, which was received by the Commission on March 23, 1989, the respondent requested a hearing. On March 28, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on April 3, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before me on June 22, 1989. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether respondent was convicted of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking.

B. Whether respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 91d of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was scheduled for November 3, 1989. That hearing was adjourned for personal illness, and the hearing was rescheduled. A hearing was held on December 28, 1989, in the Municipal Courtroom, Absecon City Hall, Absecon, New Jersey, after which the record was closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

On April 28, 1984, the respondent, Patricia Joan Lenahan, was employed as an undercover security employee at Bradlees Department Store in Ventnor, New Jersey. Ms. Lenahan was having an affair with another Bradlees employee who was involved with others who were unlawfully removing merchandise from the store. For approximately two months prior to April 28, 1984, Ms. Lenahan's paramour tried to persuade Ms. Lenahan to become involved in the groups' activities and offered her various items of stolen merchandise. Ms. Lenahan, however, refused. The group would remove merchandise from the store and store it in the security office as evidence in shoplifting cases until they were ready to remove it from the store.

On April 28, 1984, the respondent consented to help the group load the stolen merchandise on their truck after store hours. In order to implicate her, Richard Wyzykowski, a Ventnor police officer who was a member of the group, gave the respondent a watch to load on the truck, which she did. Unbeknown to the group, the store was under surveillance that night by a task force from the Atlantic County Prosecutor's Office and police agencies. The group was subsequently apprehended.

On June 21, 1984, the respondent was indicted along with four other individuals by the Atlantic County Grand Jury in Indictment No. 0931-6-84C Inv.. The respondent was charged with two counts of conspiracy to commit theft, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2; and two counts of theft by unlawful taking (third degree), in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. [P-1] On July 9, 1984, the respondent entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment (P-3). Two of her accomplices who faced additional charges applied peer pressure on the respondent to plead guilty. If they all pleaded guilty, the prosecutor would seek a lighter sentence; however, if one of the group decided to proceed to trial, then it was threatened that all five would go to trial. On August 20, 1984, the respondent retracted her plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to one count of theft by unlawful taking (third degree). This plea was rejected by the court on October 4, 1984, but was re-entered and accepted on December 10, 1984. The respondent was sentenced to probation for one year, to perform 100 hours of community service, to pay a $500 fine and to pay a $25 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty. The remaining counts of the indictment against the respondent were dismissed. [P-3]

The respondent was required to pay her fine in $15 per week installments. After paying $150 of her fine, the respondent refused to pay the fine as she felt she had not actually taken anything. She just helped load the truck and did not keep any of the merchandise. In addition, the respondent lost her job at a Gulf gas station because of the publicity received in the local press concerning her conviction.[1] As a result of losing her job, the respondent had no money with which to pay the fine. On March 14, 1986, the respondent was charged with a violation of probation, and she entered a plea of guilty to that charge. The respondent was sentenced to serve 30 days in the Atlantic County Jail, her probation was terminated, and any and all conditions were vacated (P-4). After serving her jail sentence, the respondent was no longer on probation, no longer had to pay the fine, and no longer had to perform community service.

1 The crime received some notoriety as at least one of the group was a local police officer.

The respondent was born on May 25, 1962. She is currently 27 years old and was 22 years old at the time of the commission of the offense. She was raised in a poor family in Los Angeles, CA. She was the youngest of four sisters. Her formative years were full of turmoil. Her older sister was involved in drugs, and her home life was full of upheaval. Between the ages of twelve and seventeen, the respondent was in and out of a total of twelve reform schools, other institutions and two mental institutions. At 17 years old, she moved to New Jersey.

In 1981, the respondent obtained a casino employee license and worked in the security department of the Playboy Hotel and Casino in Atlantic City. She voluntarily left the casino industry in order to go to work in other industries. Her casino employee license was not renewed and it expired. In addition to working at Bradlees, the respondent has held numerous jobs at various gas stations and restaurants. The respondent attended culinary school at Atlantic County College in 1987. She obtained employment as a pantry worker at the Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino. After nine months, she left that job in order to accept a position as a cook at the Sands Hotel and Casino. She left the Sands after nine months in order to accept a higher paying job as a cook at the Claridge Hotel and Casino. She has worked at the Claridge for one year and two months. Her job performance at the Claridge has been good, she has received two pay raises and is not at full rate, and she is the only female cook employed by the Claridge in a specialty restaurant.

The respondent has been arrested three other times. She was first charged with assault and terroristic threats. One of the respondent's co-workers at Bradlees threatened to burn the respondent's house if the respondent did not accept the plea agreement. Ms. Lenahan responded by stating, "if you burn my house, I'll blow up yours." The charges in this case were dismissed. In 1986, she was charged with theft from a gas station. The respondent was found not guilty after trial. Finally, the respondent had been having a relationship with an individual for seven years. Her paramour's mother disapproved of the relationship and on several occasions, the mother would call the police. In 1987, the mother had the respondent arrested on charges of assault and terroristic threats. These charges were subsequently dismissed.

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the respondent's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident nor her current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess her credibility. Initially, her position in this matter must be recognized. As the respondent and the holder of a casino hotel employee registration, she has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the respondent's demeanor, the plausibility of her testimony, the manner in which she participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appears that the respondent testified truthfully in every regard. She candidly admitted her misconduct and described in detail, experiencing great humiliation, the underlying circumstances. She was extremely open, honest and frank to the point that at times she was brutally honest. She was one of the most sincere and credible witnesses that has ever appeared before me. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the respondent's testimony in all respects.

In determining whether the registrant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:

(1) The nature and duties of the registrant's position;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) establishes that registration under the Casino Control Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual . . .registrant." N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1) provides for the revocation of the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his . . . registration." The Division contends, that the respondent committed and was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking (third degree), which constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), and that, accordingly, she is disqualified from continued registration.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1)

Section 86c(1) mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends that the respondent's conviction of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 disqualifies the respondent from continued registration.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, Theft by unlawful taking or disposition, provides in pertinent part:

a. Movable property. A person is guilty of theft if he unlawfully takes, or exercises unlawful control over, movable property of another with purpose to deprive him thereof.

The Division established, and the respondent admitted during her testimony, that she knowingly removed a watch from Bradlees Department Store and placed it in a truck to be removed by her accomplices. The Division further established, and the respondent admitted during her testimony, that she was convicted in Superior Court of one count of theft by unlawful taking in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 and that the respondent was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2)a, the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offense committed by the respondent is a disqualifying offense under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). The respondent is therefore disqualified from continued registration, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d

A registrant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against continued registration by affirmatively demonstrating his or her rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

(1) The nature and duties of the registrant's position;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Patricia Joan Lenahan is a casino hotel registrant and is employed as a cook. As such, she does not have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities, does not come in contact with casino patrons, and does not handle any money.

Second, the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking, on one occasion prior to her current employment in the casino industry. Because the offense is a listed disqualifier under section 86c(1), it is serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in its appropriate context. The respondent was a security employee at Bradlees Department Store and it was her duty to prevent thefts. She obviously breached that duty and breached the trust reposed in her. This is an aggravating factor; however, there are mitigating factors in this case also. Her paramour pressured the respondent for two months to join other employees who were removing merchandise from the store. When the respondent finally weakened and consented, all she did was load a watch on their truck. She did not keep the watch for herself, receive any other merchandise from the theft, or receive any proceeds from any sale of any of the merchandise.

Fourth, the respondent's misconduct occurred on April 28, 1984, when it ceased.

Fifth, the respondent was 22 years old at the time of the first offense. Immaturity may have been a factor in this case.

Sixth, the respondent's misconduct was isolated in nature. She has not been convicted of any other violations of the criminal laws. While she does have three subsequent arrests, she was either acquitted or the charges were dismissed.

Seventh, the respondent was raised in a poor family, and she did not graduate from high school. Her formative years were full of turmoil, exposure to drug involvement by her sister, and her home life was full of upheaval. Between the ages of 12 and 18, she lived in a total of 12 reform schools, other institutions and two mental institutions. She was always locked up in girls schools and was confused. In 1984, the respondent was living with someone who was the cause of much of her problems through peer pressure.

Eighth, the respondent has made some rehabilitative efforts. In 1987, she attended culinary school at Atlantic County College. She has worked in the casino industry and been a member of her union for nearly three years. She has progressed from a pantry worker to being the only female cook in a specialty restaurant at the Claridge. She has received two pay raises in the last year, and her work performance has been good. She is now on her own and is self-sufficient. She is active in the South Jersey Against AIDS Society. She admits her misconduct, is very remorseful, has learned from her misconduct, and was brutally honest at the hearing.

The Commission has addressed the weighing of the rehabilitation factors vis-a-vis the position applied for. In the Application of Brian Stiteler, argued before the Commission at the public meeting of August 5, 1987, Commissioner Armstrong stated:

> I would note that the rehabilitation criteria are identical for registrants and casino employees, but these factors can be weighed differently depending on the nature and duties of the position of the individual who is appearing before us and whether the disqualifying offense was an isolated or repeated incident, and I think that there are two prior Commission cases[2] in which we have given weight and emphasis to the nature and duty of the petitioner, and that's a significant factor in assessing rehabilitation.

In this case, the respondent is a cook. She has no responsibility for any casino gaming activity and does not have contact with casino patrons. Considering the nature of the position she holds, the respondent's work record in the industry, her demeanor and extreme candor at the hearing, the fact that she abused a position of trust, the fact that she stole merchandise from her employer, the isolated nature of her offense, her limited involvement in the community, her present and past family life, and her expressed remorse when weighed against the eight rehabilitative criteria:

2 I believe the decisions referred to by Commissioner Armstrong are: Benjamin Waters, OAL DKT. NO. CCC 7470-86 (April 30, 1987), and Mark Bisciotti, OAL DKT. NO. CCC 5240-86 (April 9, 1987), both matters having been decided at the Commission's public meeting of June 3, 1987.

I CONCLUDE that the respondent has established, by clear and convincing evidence, her rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division against the respondent be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter concerns the amended complaint of the Division of Gaming Enforcement filed with the Casino Control Commission on March 2, 1988, seeking revocation of the respondent's casino key employee license and gaming instructor license, based upon the allegation that the respondent has committed disqualifying offenses pursuant to sections 86c(1) and (2) of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.). The respondent's licenses were suspended by order of the Casino Control Commission dated March 20, 1987. These are the issues:

1. Has the respondent committed acts which constitute the offenses of conspiracy to commit theft, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2, and theft by unlawful taking (3rd degree) or theft by deception (3rd degree), contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 or 4, which would be disqualifiers from licensure pursuant to section 86c(1), 89d, and 90e of the Casino Control Act, even if such conduct was not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this state, as permitted by section 86g of the Act.

2. Has the respondent committed acts which constitute the offenses of theft by unlawful taking or by deception, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 or 4, or misconduct in office or commercial bribery, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:21-9 and 10. and if so, would his continued licensure as a casino key employee and gaming instructor be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act and to Casino operations, pursuant to section 86c(2) of the Act, even if such conduct was not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this state, as permitted by section 86g of the Act.

3. With reference only to the respondent's licensure as a gaming instructor, if he has committed an otherwise disqualifying offense pursuant to section 86c(1) of the Act, has he affirmatively established his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, pursuant to sections 90h and 92b of the Act.

4. Has the respondent established by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the good character, honest and integrity required for licensure as a casino key employee and gaming instructor, pursuant to sections 89b(2), 90b and 92b of the Act.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

By letter filed February 1, 1989, counsel for the respondent notified the Casino Control Commission that the respondent had completed a pre-trial intervention program and that a criminal indictment against him had been dismissed. The Commission thereafter activated the respondent's request for a hearing concerning the Division's complaint. On February 9, 1989, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1

A telephone prehearing conference was held on May 5, 1989. The hearing was thereafter held as scheduled on October 5, 1989, in Atlantic City, New Jersey. At the conclusion of the hearing session, counsel for the parties requested an opportunity to take exhibits R-2 and R-3, have them photocopied, and then return them for inclusion in the record. This request was granted. Exhibit R-3 was returned on October 19, 1989. Exhibit R-2 was returned on January 10, 1990. The record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Some of the material facts in this matter are undisputed. The respondent is a 50-year-old resident of Marmora, New Jersey. He was issued gaming instructor license number 11620-60 and key employee license number 239-11.

The respondent testified that he was first licensed as a floor person and gaming instructor in 1979. He was put in charge of all Caesar's Atlantic City craps training programs and he taught craps at the community college. According to the respondent, he received the first key employee license at Caesar's and he became an assistant shift manager.

In 1983, the respondent was arrested on the casino floor. He was charged with three counts of false swearing. According to the respondent, he was acquitted following a jury trial. When he tried to get his job back at Caesar's, he was told that he would have to start out as a dealer. The respondent testified that he chose instead to work at the Buena Vista Country Club as a golf course starter. For several years, the respondent has been employed as a limousine driver and coordinator for Limo One, Inc., in Atlantic City.

New Jersey State Police Detective Sergeant James C. Leary testified at the hearing. He is assigned to the Special Investigations Unit of the Division of Gaming Enforcement Casino Enforcemeent Section. According to Detective Sergeant Leary, he conducted an investigation in 1985 concerning the issuance of complementaries at Caesar's. He explained that complementaries normally depend on the type of play - the patron's time at the game and the amount which is bet. When a patron buys in, a floor person records the patron's name and date of birth, the amount of wagers, and the time spent gambling. This information is recorded on a rating slip which is the basis for information which the pit clerk will then put on the casino's computer. According to the witness, he began the investigation at Caesar's after receiving information that fictitious, inflated rating slips were being issued over a period of several months.

Another piece of information received by Detective Sergeant Leary was the name of a patron: Eileen Cohen. By checking Caesar's rating records, he found that Eileen Cohen had been receiving comps, beginning in June 1985. Detective Sergeant Leary acknowledged in his testimony that he had no way of verifying the accuracy of the ratings recorded for Eileen Cohen between June 13 and November 24, 1985. On the latter date, he placed Eileen Cohen under surveillence during her entire weekend stay at Caesar's. According to the witness, Eileen Cohen received a complementary hotel room for herself and her children. He observed her go on to the casino floor only once. However, she did not gamble. Detective Sergeant Leary kept Eileen Cohen under surveillence until 11:00 the next morning. He then checked Caesar's rating records. These records showed that Eileen Cohen had played at craps for 150 minutes beginning at 9:15 p.m. on November 24, 1985, and that she had made an average wager of $300. The witness stated that he knew the rating card was wrong because he had observed Eileen Cohen at dinner during the time the rating card indicated she had been gambling.

Detective Sergeant Leary's subsequent investigation revealed that Eileen Cohen had been rated every weekend from June 13 until December 30, 1985. During that time period she received comps almost every weekend. A total of 116 comps were received by Eileen Cohen and the value of these comps exceeded $19,000. The rating cards for Eileen Cohen showed a loss of $58,000 and a win of $10,500.

Detective Sergeant Leary acknowledged in his testimony that he could not determine if Eileen Cohen ever actually played at the craps tables. On the one night that he had observed her, she had not gambled. On December 30, 1985, he spoke with Ms. Cohen in her hotel room at Caesar's. The purpose of his visit was to learn from her how she was receiving comps. It is undisputed that Eileen Cohen told the Detective Sergeant the comps were arranged with the assistance of the respondent, who was then no longer a Caesar's employee. The parties are in dispute concerning the truth of Ms. Cohen's assertions. In any event, Detective Sergeant Leary testified that the respondent was one of the subjects of his investigation from its beginning.

Testimony and other evidence concerning the falsification of player ratings in Atlantic City was presented to the State Grand Jury. Relevant portions of the grand jury proceeding transcripts were admitted into evidence as Exhibits P-2, R-2 and R-3. The respondent and four others were thereafter indicted in State Grand Jury indictment number SGJ170-86-6, filed February 6, 1987. The respondent was charged with conspiracy, N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2; theft by deception in the 3rd degree, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4; theft of services in the 3rd degree, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-8; misconduct of a corporate official, N.J.S.A. 2C:21-9; commercial bribery in the 3rd degree, N.J.S.A. 2C:21-10; and tampering with public information in the 3rd degree, N.J.S.A. 2C:28-7 (Exhibit R-1). This indictment was subsequently dismissed without prejudice.

The State Grand Jury conducted further proceedings. On or about October 5, 1987, State Grand Jury indictment number 189-87-8(2) was filed. The respondent and one other individual, Vincent Farina, were charged with conspiracy to commit theft in the 3rd degree, N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2; theft by unlawful taking in the 3rd degree, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3; misconduct of a corporate official in the 3rd degree, N.J.S.A. 2C:21-9; commercial bribery in the 3rd degree, N.J.S.A. 2C:21-10; and theft by deception in the 3rd degree, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 (Exhibit P-1). The essence of the allegations against the respondent and Vincent Farina is that they acted together to unlawfully take control over food, beverages, and hotel rooms which were the property of Caesar's Boardwalk Regency Hotel Casino, and to obtain money from Eileen Cohen by creating and reinforcing the false impression that she was entitled to complementary services from Caesar's only by virtue of having paid the respondent and Vincent Farina for those services.

The respondent subsequently sought admission into the Pre-Trial Intervention Progam. After a preliminary rejection, respondent's counsel sought reconsideration (Exhibit R-4) and the respondent was admitted to the program. It is undisputed that the respondent satisfactorily completed the requirements of the Pre-Trial Intervention Program, and by order entered December 5, 1988, the foregoing indictment was dismissed.

Several witnesses testified on the respondent's behalf. Peter Eliakis, assistant shift manager for the Sands Casino Hotel, testified that he has known the respondent since 1976 and they play golf together twice a week. Mr. Eliakis is not knowledgeable about the respondent's background. However, has never heard anyone say anything derrogatory about the respondent and the respondent has always been honest with him. Edward Sebloff is a former vice president of the Sands Casino. He has known the respondent for about seven years, and they also play golf together. Mr. Sebloff has never heard anything contrary concerning the respondent's honesty and veracity.

Sanford Kartzman is president of Limo One, Inc., and he testified that he first met the respondent in 1986. In the late spring of 1987, Mr. Kartzman hired the respondent to serve in a number of capacities. The respondent coordinated and supervised chauffeurs in the lobby of the Sands Casino Hotel. The respondent has also driven limousines and performed outside sales work for Limo One. According to Mr. Kartzman, the respondent has a reputation for honesty.

Joseph Giaimo also testified on the respondent's behalf. He is an assistant casino manager for the Taj Mahal in Atlantic City since August 1989. Mr. Giaimo was previously casino manager at the Sands for nine years. He first met the respondent several years ago and has become acquainted with him personally. According to Mr. Giaimo, the respondent has a reputation for honesty in the casino community.

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

The factual disputes in this matter concern the nature of the respondent's involvement with Eileen Cohen's receipt of complementary services from Caesar's Casino. Detective Sergeant Leary testified about his conversation with Eileen Cohen in her hotel room at Caesar's on December 30, 1985. He wanted to know how she was receiving complementary services. At first, Eileen Cohen told him that she had played craps and she deserved the comps.

Later in their conversation, Eileen Cohen changed her story. She told Detective Sergeant Leary that she had an arrangement whereby she would make payments in exchange for the comps. These payments were made to the respondent. Eileen Cohen also told the Detective Sergeant that she knew that her level of gambling did not entitle her to the amount of comps which she was receiving.

Eileen Cohen explained to Detective Sergeant Leary how her arrangement with the respondent began. While at a craps table, she had observed another patron receiving comps. She was told that she should try to qualify for comps too, and she made inquiry of a casino employee. In her subsequent testimony before the State Grand Jury under a grant of immunity (Exhibit R-3), Eileen Cohen stated that the employee she spoke to was Vince Farina. He took her name and phone number and said that he knew of someone who could help her out. A week or two later, Ms. Cohen was contacted by the respondent, who told her that he understood that she was interrested in getting comped. The respondent confirmed her name, address, and date of birth. Ms. Cohen testified to the grand jury that she was subsequently called by the respondent and told that arrangements had been made for her to call the VIP office at Caesar's and tell them when she wanted to have reservations and she would receive room, food and board. She was told that this would not cost her anything.

Ms. Cohen then made her reservations through the VIP office, giving them her name and date of birth. She reserved a room for the weekend. In her hotel room on Sunday morning, Ms. Cohen received a telephone call from the respondent. She told the State Grand Jury (Exhibit R-3) that the respondent asked her to meet him outside and across the street from Caesar's. At 10:00 o'clock that morning, Ms. Cohen went across the street from Caesar's and met with the respondent in his parked car. He asked her if everything was satisfactory and she said that it was and she thanked him. The respondent then told her that an overnight stay, including room, meals and entertainment at Caesar's would cost her $200, and a full weekend would cost $300. This was the first that Ms. Cohen realized she would be required to pay for the complementary services which she was receiving. She told the State Grand Jury that she handed the respondent $200 in cash. She also testified that it was agreed that she would meet with the respondent every Sunday morning at the same place. She thereafter began going to Caesar's every weekend from June through December 1985.

Significantly, Ms. Cohen testified that on some of her weekend visits she would not play craps at all, but would then play craps the following weekend. There was no set schedule as to when she would or would not gamble (Exhibit R-3). Nevertheless, she received comps on almost every weekend as a result of her arrangement with the respondent. Ms. Cohen told Detective Sergeant Leary that she sometimes paid the respondent up to $500 for comps when she stayed at the casino longer than just over night. Everytime she received comps, she paid for them pursuant to her arrangement with the respondent.

Eileen Cohen was a cash player. She told Detective Sergeant Leary that she got her money from her business, which involved providing seat lift chairs for Medicare patients. She also told the Detective Sergeant that the respondent had come to see her in Pennsylvania to ask about employment in her business. She did not hire him. Ms. Cohen told the grand jury that her business was conducted by radio, television and newspaper advertising, and she did not need any personal sales people for door-to-door sales.

Ms. Cohen was questioned before the State Grand Jury as to why she would pay someone for complementary services when these are generally provided for free. She testified that she was not suspicious at first because she though "that's the way it was done." She later became suspicious but never said anything about it because she was receiving a benefit - since she was getting more than her money's worth, she did not question it (Exhibit R-3).

The respondent's testimony differed substantially from that of Detective Sergeant Leary and Eileen Cohen. He stated that he first became acquainted with Eileen Cohen when her business partners, Irv and Al Stolwicki, called him and said that she was not getting good ratings while playing craps. The respondent knew the Stolwicki brothers because they were regular players at Caesar's, and he said they were also bookmakers. He called VIP services at Caesar's and learned that Eileen Cohen had been comped for playing slots. According to the respondent, Eileen Cohen started calling him, seeking his help in getting rated for craps. This was at least a year after he had left his employment at Caesar's.

About two weeks after he first spoke with Eileen Cohen, she told him that the Stolwicki brothers wanted to talk to him about selling their chairs. The respondent testified that he arranged to meet with Eileen Cohen on the street near Caesar's. She gave him an envelope which contained details and brochures about the chair. The respondent stated that Eileen Cohen also gave him two $100 bills. When he asked what the money was for, she told him that it was his expenses for selling chairs. However, about two weeks later the Stolwicki brothers were charged with "defrauding old people," so the respondent never got into the chair selling business. It was the respondent's testimony that Eileen Cohen at no other time gave him any money.

A trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible or because it is inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience, or because it is overborne by other testimony. Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958). In this matter, the testimony of Detective Sergeant Leary which set forth the information he learned from his interview with Eileen Cohen was straightforward and sincere, and entirely believable. Significantly, the information which Eileen Cohen provided to the Detective Sergeant was in all material respects the same information which she provided under oath in her testimony before the State Grand Jury. Ms. Cohen testified under a grant of immunity from prosecution. She would be in jeopardy from the testimony only if she did not tell the truth. Her testimony was neither inherently incredible, nor was it inconsistent with common experience.

The respondent's version of his interaction with Eileen Cohen was not inherently incredible. However, the respondent's testimony left me with the impression that he had concocted an explanation for his receipt of money from Eileen Cohen. Simply put, his testimony did not ring true. The evidence presented by the Division produced the stronger impression, had the greater weight, and was more convincing as to its truth. Consequently, I make the following additional FINDINGS OF FACT:

1. In or around May 1985, the respondent contacted Eileen Cohen and agreed to facilitate her receipt of comps from Caesar's.

2. Between June and December 1985, Eileen Cohen spent essentially every weekend at Caesar's. On some weekends while she was at Caesar's, Eileen Cohen gambled at craps, and on some weekends, she did not.

3. Eileen Cohen paid the repsondent directly for almost all of the comps which she received from Caesar's from June through December 1985. When the respondent was unavailable, Eileen Cohen made the payments to the respondent's designee.

4. In all instances, the value of the comps received by Eileen Cohen exceeded the amount of her payment to the respondent. The amounts paid by Eileen Cohen to the respondent totalled far in excess of $500.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to section 1b(8) of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), participation in casino operations as a licensee or registrant under the Act is deemed to be a revocable privilege conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee or registrant. It is the intention of the Act to preclude the creation of any property right in any license permitted under the Act, and to require that participation in gaming be solely conditioned upon the individual qualifications of the person seeking such privilege. Pursuant to sections 89d and 129 of the Act, the Casino Control Commission may revoke the key employee license of any licensee who is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of the Act. Similarly, pursuant to sections 90e and 129 of the Act, the Commission may revoke the casino employee license of any licensee disqualified on the basis of the section 86 criteria.

Sections 86c(1) and g of the Act require disqualification for commission of certain enumerated offenses, even if such conduct has not been or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of New Jersey. Among the enumerated offenses are theft and related offenses constituting crimes of the 2nd or 3rd degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-1 et seq. In this matter, it is undisputed that the respondent was indicted on or about October 5, 1987, on a number of counts, including theft by unlawful taking in the 3rd degree and theft by deception in the 3rd degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 and N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. It is also undisputed that the respondent successfully completed a Pre-Trial Intervention Program and the indictment was dismissed on December 5, 1988.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, a person is guilty of theft if he unlawfully takes, or exercises unlawful control over, moveable property of another with purpose to deprive him thereof. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, a person is guilty of theft by deception if he purposely obtains property of another by creating or reinforcing a false impression, including false impressions as to law, value, intention or other state of mind. Under N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2), theft constitutes a crime of the 3rd degree if the amount involved exceeds $500 but is less then $75,000.

In this matter, the credible evidence in the record establishes that the respondent obtained money from Eileen Cohen by creating and reinforcing the false impression that she was entitled to complementary services from Caesar's Casino only by virtue of having paid the respondent for those services. In addition, the credible evidence in the record establishes that the respondent, while no longer an employee of Caesar's, participated in a scheme whereby control was unlawfully exercised over the rooms, food and beverages of Caesar's with the intention to deprive Caesar's of that property. Based upon this conduct, I CONCLUDE that the respondent has committed the offenses of theft by unlawful taking and theft by deception, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 and 4. The amounts involved exceeded $500, but were less than $75,000. Thus, I further CONCLUDE that the respondent is subject to revocation of his casino key employee and casino employee licenses on the basis of his commission of these disqualifying 3rd degree theft offenses, pursuant to sections 86c(1) and 86g of the Act.

Section 90h of the Act provides that the respondent's casino employee license should not be revoked on the basis of his commission of offenses identified in the Act as disqualifiers, provided that he has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. The Casino Control Act does not provide a similar opportunity to demonstrate rehabilitation in order to avoid revocation of a casino key employee license. Section 90h identifies eight factors to be evaluated in determining whether rehabilitation has been affirmatively demonstrated. The eight criteria concern: (1) the nature and duties of the position; (2) the nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct; (3) the circumstances surrounding it; (4) the date it occurred; (5) the age of the person responsible when the offense was committed; (6) whether the offense was an isolated or repeated one; (7) any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct; and (8) any evidence of rehabilitation.

I do not believe that a detailed analysis of the foregoing factors is appropriate in this case. The respondent did not attempt to establish rehabilitation. Instead, he denied having committed the disqualifying theft offenses in the first place. I did not believe his version of events and I have concluded that the respondent did commit the disqualifying offenses. In the face of the respondent's disbelieved denials, I must conclude that the respondent has failed to establish his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, pursuant to sections 90h and 92b of the Act (which provides that gaming instructors shall be licensed under the standards established for qualification of casino employees).

Pursuant to section 80a of the Casino Control Act, it is the affirmative responsibility of each applicant and licensee to establish by clear and convincing evidence his individual qualifications. Pursuant to sections 89b(2), 90b and 92b of the Act, a casino key employee and a gaming instructor must demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity. The respondent offered substantial evidence concerning his reputation in the community for these attributes. However, in light of the foregoing conclusions concerning the respondent's commission of disqualifying offenses and his failure to establish his rehabilitation because of his disbelieved testimony, I also conclude that the respondent has failed to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence.

Based upon all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the respondent's casino key employee and casino employee licenses should be REVOKED. It is thus not necessary to reach any further conclusions concerning whether the respondent has committed other offenses which would render his continued licensure inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations, pursuant to sections 86c(2) and 86g of the Act.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the casino key employee and casino employee licenses of Richard B. Leose be REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Allen K. McBride, the respondent, pro se

Record Closed: January 25, 1990 Decided: February 2, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the revocation of Allen K. McBride's casino hotel employee registration no. 30397-40, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91 and N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1). The Division sought revocation of the respondent's registration by reason of its contention that the respondent had been convicted of a criminal offense which rendered continued registration to be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act (Act), pursuant to Section 86c(2), and therefore, he is disqualified from registration, pursuant to section 91b.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The respondent had obtained a casino hotel employee registration from the Commission so he could be employed in the casino industry . By complaint to the Commission, filed February 16, 1989, the Division objected to the respondent's continued registration, asserting that the respondent had committed the offense of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine), in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1), which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(2), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by section 86g. Based upon the complaint, the Commission notified the respondent on February 22, 1989, that he had the right to a hearing, and that failure to respond within 15 days could result in his registration being revoked. By application dated March 30, 1989, which was received by the Commission on April 7, 1989, the respondent requested a hearing. Further, the respondent requested, pursuant to section 86d, that these proceedings be stayed until resolution of the then outstanding criminal charges. This request for deferral was granted. On July 11, 1989, the respondent notified the Commission that he had been convicted of the charge which forms the basis of this revocation proceeding, and the Commission directed that the matter proceed to a hearing. On July 12, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on July 17, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before Administrative Law Judge Edgar R. Holmes on October 30, 1989. The issue set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing was:

A. Whether respondent's continued licensure is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c because he was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10.

A hearing was held on January 25, 1990, in the Office of Administrative Law, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey, after which the record was closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

On November 22, 1988, the respondent was employed as a bus person at Caesar's Hotel and Casino. He was scheduled to work from 7 a.m. until 3 p.m. in the Ambrosia Restaurant. At approximately 8:15 a.m., a coworker, Timothy Brown, asked the respondent if he wanted to get high. On approximately three prior occasions at the casino the respondent had used cocaine with Mr. Brown which had been provided by Mr. Brown. The two employees went to the banquet store room which is located on the second floor near an employee smoking area. The store room was a suspected area of employee drug use, and detectives had placed a surveillance camera in the room. The respondent and Mr. Brown were observed entering the store room. Once inside the store room, Mr. Brown produced some rocks of cocaine. He placed the cocaine on a steel table and began cutting the cocaine. The respondent was observed placing some money on the table. At this time State Police detectives entered the store room. Mr. Brown swept the cocaine to the floor and grabbed the money. The two employees were then placed under arrest. [P-1]

On February 15, 1989, the respondent was indicted in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division (Criminal) by the Atlantic County Grand Jury in indictment no. 89-02-0379-A-CP and was charged with one count of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1) (P-2). On April 3, 1989, the respondent entered a plea of not guilty to the charge. On May 3, 1989, the respondent retracted his not guilty plea and entered a plea of guilty. The respondent was sentenced to serve 30 days in the Atlantic County Jail, was placed on probation for three years, was ordered to pay a $30 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty, a $1,000 drug enforcement and demand reduction penalty, and a $50 laboratory fee, and his driver's license was suspended for six months. On August 25, 1989, the respondent's custodial sentence was amended in order to permit him to serve his sentence on weekends (P-4). On September 1, 1989, an order of reconsideration of sentence was entered changing the respondent's sentence by suspending his jail sentence (P-3).

The respondent was born on April 29, 1958. He was 29 years old at the time of the offense, and he is presently 31 years old. He was raised in Atlantic City by his parents along with one sister and a retarded brother. His father died when the respondent was only nine. The respondent played football in high school and graduated form Atlantic City High. The respondent attended Rutgers University from 1976 through 1979.

In 1981, the respondent applied for and received a casino hotel employee registration. He then worked for three years at the Claridge Hotel and Casino as a valet parking attendant. He attended Johnson C. Smith College in Charlotte, North Carolina during the 1983-1984 school year, and he majored in health and physical education. He returned to Atlantic City, and in 1985 and 1986, he again was employed as a valet parking attendant at the Claridge. He was involved in a traffic accident in the parking garage while driving a patron's car, and even though the accident was caused by another employee, both employees were terminated. The respondent was then hired by the Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino as a valet parking attendant. He was laid-off in the fall after having a disagreement with his supervisor. In November 1987, the respondent was employed at the Forked River Nuclear Plant as a laborer for Local 415 of the Laborers Union. When the job was completed, the respondent became a valet parking attendant at the Showboat. After a brief period of time, the respondent left the Showboat to become a food line server at Resorts Hotel and Casino as a summer hire. At the end of the summer he was released, and he returned to the Showboat as a bus person. In August 1988, the respondent was laid-off from the Showboat for attendance violations, and he became a bus person at Caesars Hotel and Casino. He remained employed at Caesars until his casino hotel employee registration was suspended in March 1989. He was a good employee at Caesars and was being considered for a promotion to waiter at the time his registration was suspended. Caesars is holding the respondent's position open pending the outcome of these proceedings and will reemploy him should his registration be restored.

The respondent admitted that he would have used the cocaine with Mr. Brown if the detectives had not interrupted them. He then intended to return to work and bus tables of casino patrons who were in the restaurant for breakfast. The respondent does have one prior conviction for possession of marijuana. In 1979, while in college, the respondent was stopped for a license plate violation while driving a borrowed car. Several marijuana roaches were found in the back seat of the car, and the respondent was found guilty in the Pleasantville Municipal Court of possession of marijuana.

The respondent's sister died in August 1989 of advanced decompensated cardiopulmonary disease (R-3). During the last year of her life, the respondent cared for and provided for his sister and her two children. The respondent's sister was totally disabled, confined to her bed and was under continuous oxygen therapy. Since her death, the respondent has been the sole support for and guardian of his 17-year-old nephew and his 13-year-old niece. As his mother died in 1985, he also has legal custody of his retarded brother. His brother resides in the Woodbine State School; however, the respondent visits him and must make decisions in his behalf.

The respondent has been active in his community as a day camp counselor at the West Side Complex in Atlantic City. The respondent would teach children athletic events such as basketball, swimming and weight lifting. He would do this three nights a week; however, he had to stop this last summer in order to care for his sister and her family.

The respondent is still on probation, and is making satisfactory progress. He has attended drug counselling since his conviction. He has not paid his drug enforcement and demand reduction penalty as he has had numerous bills since his sister's death. He maintains two houses, and has recently paid back taxes. He was recently laid-off from his employment at Major League Food Service due to a reduction in personnel.

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the respondent's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident nor his current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess his credibility. Initially, his position in this matter must be recognized. As the respondent and the holder of a casino hotel employee registration, he has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the respondent's demeanor, the plausibility of his testimony, the manner in which he participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appears that the respondent testified truthfully. He candidly admitted his misconduct and described the underlying circumstances. The respondent has accepted responsibility for his misconduct and has expressed remorse. He believes his life has changed and that he must set a good example for his niece and nephew.

Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the respondent's testimony in substantial part.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. On November 22, 1988, the respondent was employed as a bus person at Caesar's Hotel and Casino. At approximately 8:15 a.m., a co-worker, Timothy Brown, asked the respondent if he wanted to get high. The two employees went to the banquet store room which is located on the second floor near an employee smoking area. Once inside the store room, Mr. Brown produced some rocks of cocaine. He placed the cocaine on a steel table and began cutting the cocaine. The respondent was observed placing some money on the table. At this time State Police detectives entered the store room. The two employees were then placed under arrest.

2. The respondent admitted that he would have used the cocaine with Mr. Brown if the detectives had not interrupted them. He then intended to return to work and bus tables of casino patrons who were in the restaurant for breakfast.

3. On approximately three prior occasions at the casino the respondent had used cocaine with Mr. Brown which had been provided by Mr. Brown.

4. On February 15, 1989, the respondent was indicted in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division (Criminal) by the Atlantic County Grand Jury in indictment no. 89-02-0379-A-CP and was charged with one count of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1).

5. On May 3, 1989, the respondent retracted his not guilty plea and entered a plea of guilty. The respondent was sentenced to serve 30 days in the Atlantic County Jail, was placed on probation for three years, was ordered to pay a $30 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty, a $1,000 drug enforcement and demand reduction penalty, and a $50 laboratory fee, and his driver's license was suspended for six months. On September 1, 1989, an order or reconsideration of sentence was entered suspending the respondent's jail sentence.

6. The respondent was born on April 28, 1958. He was 29 years old at the time of the offense, and he is presently 31 years old. He was raised in Atlantic City by his parents along with one sister and a retarded brother. The respondent played football in high school and graduated from Atlantic City High. The respondent attended Rutgers University from 1976 through 1979. He attended Johnson C. Smith College in Charlotte, North Carolina during the 1983-1984 school year, and he majored in health and physical education.

7. In 1981, the respondent applied for and received a casino hotel employee registration. He then worked for three years at the Claridge Hotel and Casino as a valet parking attendant. In 1985 and 1986, he again was employed as a valet parking attendant at the Claridge. He was involved in a traffic accident in the parking garage while driving a patron's car, and even though the accident was caused by another employee, both employees were terminated. The respondent was then hired by the Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino as a valet parking attendant. He was laid-off in the fall after having a disagreement with his supervisor.

8. In November 1987, the respondent was employed at the Forked River Nuclear Plant as a laborer for Local 415 of the Laborers Union. When the job was completed, the respondent became a valet parking attendant at the Showboat. After a brief period of time, the respondent left the Showboat to become a food line server at Resorts Hotel and Casino as a summer hire. At the end of the summer he was released, and he returned to the Showboat as a bus person. In August 1988, the respondent was laid off from the Showboat for attendance violations, and he became a bus person at Caesars Hotel and Casino.

9. He remained employed at Caesars until his casino hotel employee registration was suspended in March 1989. He was a good employee at Caesars and was being considered for a promotion to waiter at the time his registration was suspended. Caesars is holding the respondent's position open pending the outcome of these proceedings and will reemploy him should his registration be restored.

10. The respondent does have one prior conviction for possession of marijuana.

11. The respondent's sister died in August 1989 of advanced decompensated cardiopulmonary disease. During the last year of her life, the respondent cared for and provided for his sister and her two children. Since her death, the respondent has been the sole support for and guardian of his 17-year-old nephew and his 13-year-old niece.

12. As his mother died in 1985, the respondent also has legal custody of his retarded brother. His brother resides in the Woodbine State School; however, the respondent visits him and must make decisions in his behalf.

13. The respondent has been active in his community as a day camp counselor at the West Side Complex in Atlantic City. The respondent would teach children athletic events such as basketball, swimming and weight lifting. He would do this three nights a week; however, he had to stop this last summer in order to care for his sister and her family.

14. The respondent is still on probation, and is making satisfactory progress. He has attended drug counselling since his conviction.

APPLICABLE LAW

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86, Casino License - disqualification criteria, provides in pertinent part:

> The commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of any of the following criteria:
>
> a. Failure of the applicant to prove by clear and convincing evidence that the applicant is qualified in accordance with the provisions of this act;
>
> b. Failure of the applicant to provide information, documentation and assurances required by the act or requested by the commission, or failure of the applicant to reveal any fact material to qualification, or the supplying of information which is untrue or misleading as to a material fact pertaining to the qualification criteria;

c. The conviction of the applicant, or of any person required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license, of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be:

. . . .

(2) Any other offense under present New Jersey or federal law which indicates that licensure of the applicant would be inimical to the policy of this act and to casino operations; provided, however, that the automatic disqualification provisions of this subsection shall not apply with regard to any conviction which did not occur within the 10-year period immediately proceeding application for licensure and which the applicant demonstrates by clear and convincing evidence does not justify automatic disqualification pursuant to this subsection and any conviction which has been the subject of a judicial order of expungement or sealing;

N.J.S.A. 5:12-91, Registration of casino hotel employees, provides in pertinent part:

a. No person may commence employment as a casino hotel employee unless he has been registered with the commission, which registration shall be in accordance with subsection f. of this section.

b. Any applicant for casino hotel employee registration shall produce such information as the commission may require. Subsequent to the registration of a casino hotel employee, the commission may revoke, suspend, limit, or otherwise restrict the registration upon a finding that the registrant is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of P.L.1977, c. 110 (C. 5:12-86).

d. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection b. of this section no casino hotel employee registration shall be revoked on the basis of a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria or the commission of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of section 86 of P.L.1977, c. 110 (C 5:12-86), as specified in subsection g. of that section, provided that the registrant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation. In determining whether the registrant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:

1. The nature and duties of the registrant's position;

2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

4. The date of the offense or conduct;

5. The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;

6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) establishes that registration under the Casino Control Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual . . .registrant." N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1) provides for the revocation of the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his . . . registration." The Division contends that the respondent was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1), possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine), which constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2), and that, accordingly, he is disqualified from continued registration.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2)

Section 86c(2) of the Act is more commonly referred to as the "inimical clause." In In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979), the Commission set forth the criteria to be applied in individual cases when a determination is made as to whether an offense is inimical to the policies of the Act. The Commission stated at page 15:

> The nature of the offense, the events surrounding it, including any mitigating or aggravating factors, the remoteness of the offense and the offender's conduct since the offense to the present are all matters to be considered. Without limiting the notion of what is 'inimical' to the Act or to gaming, it would appear to encompass those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations.

The Legislature, when it authorized the establishment of casino gaming in Atlantic City, and provided for the licensure, regulation and taxation thereof, enumerated specific policy considerations which appear to be directly related to the intent and purpose of the inimical clause. More specifically, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6) and (7) state categorically that the successful regulation and control of state casino activities depends upon the confidence of the public "in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations," and by the exclusion from participation in casino gaming of "persons with known criminal records, habits or associations" who could threaten the integrity of the gaming and business operations.

The significance of strict regulation of all phases of the casino industry was emphasized by the Supreme Court in Knight v. City of Margate, 86 N.J. 374, 381 (1981):

> At the very heart of the public policy embraced by the new law is 'the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations.' N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6). Related directly to this purpose, the Legislature stated that 'the regulatory provisions . . . are designed to extend strict State regulation to all persons . . . practices and associations related to' casinos and that 'comprehensive law-enforcement supervision . . . is further designed to contribute to the public confidence and trust in the efficacy and integrity of the regulatory process.'

In In the Matter of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union Local 54, 203 N.J. Super. 297, 317 (App. Div. 1985), certif. den. 102 N.J. 352 (1985), the Appellate Division held that "inimical" means "adverse to the policy of the act and gaming operations," i.e., contrary to strict regulatory controls over all facets of casino activities.

The Division contends that while the respondent was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10, possession of a controlled dangerous substance, which is not listed as a disqualifier under section 86c, the respondent's conduct of possessing a controlled dangerous substance and preparing to use a controlled dangerous substance while on duty in a casino hotel constitutes a disqualifying offense under section 86c(2).

N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10, Possession, use or being under the influence, provides in pertinent part:

> a. It is unlawful for any person, knowingly or purposely, to obtain, or to possess, actually or constructively, a controlled dangerous substance or controlled substance analog, unless the substance was obtained directly, or pursuant to a valid prescription or order form from a practitioner, while acting in the course of his professional practice, or except as otherwise authorized by P.L. 1970, c.226 (C. 24:21-1 et seq.). Any person who violates this section with respect to:
> (1) A controlled dangerous substance, or its analog, classified in Schedules I, II, III or IV other than those specifically covered in this section, is guilty of a crime of the third degree except that, notwithstanding the provisions of subsection b. of N.J.S. 2C:43-3, a fine of up to $25,000.00 may be imposed.

The Division established, and the respondent admitted during his testimony, that he knowingly was about to use cocaine in a storage room while on duty at Caesars Hotel and Casino and that the respondent was convicted in Superior Court of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1). Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10. I further CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent was convicted in Superior Court of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1), the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

Recently, in State of New Jersey, Dept. of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Michael P. Waters, OAL DKT. CCC 3933-86, decided by the Commission (June 12, 1987), the Commission stated at 2-3 that:

> A distinction must be drawn between the rehabilitation from a section 86(c)(1) or (3) disqualifying offense pursuant to sections 90(h) or 91(d) of the Act and rehabilitation as an aspect of the inimical analysis. In the former situation, disqualification is established once it is shown that the respondent committed an enumerated offense. The respondent is then afforded the opportunity to affirmatively demonstrate his rehabilitation from that disqualification. It is well established that, consistent with other affirmative licensing criteria, the respondent must prove his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. Application of Richard Romanishin for a Casino Employee License, Docket No. 84-EA-85 (Commission order, May 23, 1985); Application of Chester R. Brathwaite for a Casino Employee License, Docket No. A-4252-82T3 (Unpublished opinion reversing Commission decision, January 23, 1984).
> However, unlike a section 86(c)(1) or (3) situation, disqualification pursuant to section 86(c)(4) is not established upon demonstrating that the respondent committed the offense in question. Such a determination can only be made after considering all the circumstances surrounding the offense: its nature, its remoteness, and the offender's conduct subsequent to the offense, i.e., essentially the same factors which bear upon rehabilitation. Application of Donna Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (Commission decision, December 27, 1985); State v. Theodore Williams, Docket No. 84-288 (Commission order, May 1, 1987.)

The Commission concluded that if the Division establishes a case for the respondent's disqualification, it is "then incumbent upon the respondent to show that he was rehabilitated; that is, the burden of going forward with evidence (but not he ultimate burden of proof), had shifted."

> In the Davis case, the Commission stated at 313-314:
> Rehabilitation under section 90(h) (casino employee license) and section 91(d) (casino hotel employee registration) does not apply to disqualifying convictions under section 86(c)(4). By their express terms, these rehabilitation provisions apply only to '. . . a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria.' Nevertheless, many of the factors that are considered upon a claim of rehabilitation are included within the inimical analysis.

The Commission indicated that "it has been generally observed that the notion of rehabilitation is subsumed in the inimical analysis (and) . . . the inimical analysis is substantially similar to the concept of rehabilitation." The Commission concluded that:

> inimical under section 86(c)(4). Because the rehabilitation provisions are subsumed within the inimical analysis, it should never be necessary to determine the merits of a claim of rehabilitation after concluding that a given offense is inimical pursuant to section 86(c)(4). [Id. at 314] [footnote omitted]

The eight specific criteria enumerated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made are:

1. The nature and duties of the licensee's position or the registrant's position;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense;
3. The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
4. The date of the offense;
5. The age of the licensee or registrant when the offense was committed;
6. Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant or registrant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Allen K. McBride is a casino hotel employee registrant and was employed as a bus person. As such, he does not have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities but does come in contact with casino patrons.

Second, the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) while employed in the casino industry. As this offense involves the possession and attempted use of a controlled dangerous substance by a casino hotel employee while on duty in the casino hotel facility, it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in its appropriate context. A casino hotel employee possessed and attempted to use a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) while on duty in a casino hotel facility. The use or possession of a controlled dangerous substance by casino hotel employees on casino hotel property cannot be tolerated. It is a total anathema to the strict regulation of the casino industry.

Fourth, the respondent's misconduct occurred in November 1988, when it ceased. The respondent did; however, admit using cocaine with Mr. Brown on three previous occasions while on duty in the casino hotel facility.

Fifth, the respondent was 29 years old at the time of the first offense. I do not believe immaturity was a factor in this case.

Sixth, the respondent's misconduct was not isolated in nature. He was convicted of possession of marijuana in 1979; however, there appear to be mitigating circumstances in that case. He was stopped for a motor vehicle registration violation while operating a borrowed car and some marijuana roaches were found in the back of the car.

Seventh, there are no social conditions which contributed to the commission of the offense.

Eighth, the respondent has attended college. He also cared for his dying sister and is now the sole support for his 17-year-old nephew and 13-year-old niece. He is also the legal guardian of his retarded brother. He has accepted his family responsibilities and has reformed his conduct. He is remorseful and has accepted responsibility for his misconduct. In the past, he has voluntered to help the youth in his community in athletic events. While still on probation, he has been making satisfactory progress. He has attended drug counselling, and his position is being held open by Caesars pending the outcome of these proceedings. He performed well at Caesars and was being considered for a promotion to waiter.

The Commission has addressed the weighing of the rehabilitation factors vis-a-vis the position applied for. In the Application of Brian Stiteler, argued before the Commission at the public meeting of August 5, 1987, Commissioner Armstrong stated:

> I would note that the rehabilitation criteria are identical for registrants and casino employees, but these factors can be weighed differently depending on the nature and duties of the position of the individual who is appearing before us and whether the disqualifying offense was an isolated or repeated > incident, and I think that there are two prior Commission cases[1] in which we have given weight and emphasis to the nature and duty of the petitioner, and that's a significant factor in assessing rehabilitation.

In this case, the respondent was a bus person. He had no responsibility for any casino gaming activity, but did have contact with casino patrons. Considering the nature of the position he held, the respondent's work record in the industry, his demeanor and candor at the hearing, the fact that he possessed and was about to use a controlled dangerous substance while on duty in a casino hotel facility, the seriousness of his offense, the repetitive nature of his offense, his involvement in the community, and his family status, when weighed against the eight rehabilitative criteria:

I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the continued registration of the respondent would be inimical to the policies of the Act, pursuant to section 86c(2).

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-91e

N.J.S.A. 5:12-91e permits the waiver of any disqualification criterion for a casino hotel employee consistent with the public policy of the Casino Control Act and upon a finding that the interest of justice so requires. At section 1b(6) of the Act, the Legislature declared the public policy to be in part that "an integral and essential element of the regulation and control of such casino facilities by the State rests in the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations." As stated above in the discussion of the rehabilitation criterion as applied in Donna Davis, the respondent cared for his dying sister and is now the sole support for his 17-year-old nephew and 13-year-old niece. He is also the legal guardian of his retarded brother. He has accepted his family responsibilities and has reformed his conduct. He is remorseful and has accepted responsibility for his misconduct. In the past, he has volunteered to help the youth in his community in athletic events. While still on probation, he has been making satisfactory progress. He has attended drug counselling, and his position is being held open by Caesars pending the outcome of these proceedings. He performed well at Caesars and was being considered for a promotion to waiter. In addition, his casino hotel employee registration has been suspended for nearly one year. While normally any drug involvement in a casino hotel facility would warrant the immediate removal of the employee from the casino hotel industry, and recognizing that waiver is an exceptional remedy like a matter of clemency or grace which should be rarely applied except under exceptional circumstances where the interest of justice so requires, it appears that this is a case which warrants such exceptional relief. The respondent appears to have learned form his misconduct, has accepted responsibility for his actions, and has modified his conduct. He is the sole living family member to care for two minor children and his retarded brother. The position he holds does not involve gaming activity, and he has served nearly a one year suspension. The respondent needs his casino hotel employment in order to support his family in Atlantic City. Based upon these factors and the discussion of rehabilitation factors above, it is apparent that the public's confidence in the integrity of the legalized gaming industry would not justifiably be undermined by the continued registration of the petitioner. Based upon the facts in this matter, I CONCLUDE that the interest of justice requires the waiver of the criterion which would otherwise disqualify the petitioner from continuing to hold his casino hotel employee registration.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division against the respondent is SUSTAINED pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2); however, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91e, the interests of justice require waiver of the disqualification, and, as such, it is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division against the respondent be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Raymond A. McDonald, Sr., the respondent, pro se

Record Closed: December 18, 1989 Decided: January 5, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the revocation of Raymond A. McDonald's casino hotel employee registration no. 86431-40, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91 and N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1). The Division sought revocation of the respondent's registration by reason of its contention that the respondent had been convicted of a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), that the respondent had failed to disclose material information pursuant to section 86b, and therefore, he is disqualified from registration, pursuant to section 91b. The respondent contended that he was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 91d.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The respondent had obtained a casino hotel employee registration from the Commission so he could be employed as a parking valet attendant at the Claridge Hotel and Casino. By complaint to the Commission, filed June 5, 1989, the Division objected to the respondent's continued registration, asserting that the respondent had been convicted of burglary in the third degree, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2, and theft by unlawful taking in the third degree, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, the second of which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1). The Division also objected to the respondent's continued registration pursuant to section 86b, alleging that the respondent failed to disclose material information on his application for registration regarding a material fact pertaining to the qualification criteria. Based upon the complaint, the Commission notified the respondent on June 7, 1989, that he had the right to a hearing, and that failure to respond within 15 days could result in his registration being revoked. By application dated June 19, 1989, which was received by the Commission on June 22, 1989, the respondent requested a hearing. On July 3, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on July 18, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before Administrative Law Judge Lillard E. Law on August 8, 1989. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether respondent was convicted of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking.

B. Whether the respondent, with specific reference to his record of arrests, has failed to reveal any facts material to qualification, or has supplied information which is untrue or misleading as to material facts pertaining to the qualification criteria for his casino hotel registration within the meaning of section 86b.

C. Whether respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to Section 91d of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was held on December 1, 1989, in the Office of Administrative Law, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The record remained open in order to afford the respondent an opportunity to submit additional documentary evidence in his behalf. Having not received any additional evidence from the respondent, the record closed on December 18, 1989.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

On September 24, 1987, the respondent was hired as the assistant manager at Bassett's Original Turkey, Forrestal Village Mall, Plainsboro, New Jersey. On five occasions between November 6, 1987 and December 9, 1987, the respondent completed deposit slips for that day's cash receipts at the restaurant. The respondent was supposed to deposit those receipts in the bank; however, the respondent failed to do so, and he kept the receipts for his own use. The company's bookkeeper discovered three discrepancies on December 15, 1987, when she compared the company's books with the November statement she had received from the bank. Subsequent inquiry disclosed two other deposits which had not been made. None of the five deposit slips had been validated at the bank. The missing receipts totaled $3,685.40. [P-4]

On December 21, 1987, James Palmiter, manager of Bassett's Original Turkey parked the company car in the parking lot at the restaurant. In the car, under the front seat, were two locked deposit bags containing a total of $2,700.00. He went to the restaurant in order to get $200 to take to the bank in order to get change, and he then intended to go to the bank and make a deposit. A day shift employee did not report to work, so he was unable to make the bank deposit until early afternoon.

When he returned to the car he saw that the cash bags had been moved and that the keys to the car were in the vehicle. He found the locked cash bags, and proceeded to the bank. At the bank, he discovered that the cash bags were empty. Mr. Palmiter indicated that the respondent had been disciplined on December 14, 1987, and had not returned. He also indicated that only he and the respondent had keys to the company car, and that the respondent knew that Mr. Palmiter often kept cash bags under the seat of the car. [P-5]

On May 12, 1988, the respondent was indicted in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Middlesex County, Law Division (Criminal) in Indictment No. 839-5-88 and was charged with burglary, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2, theft by unlawful taking, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, and five counts of theft by failure to make required disposition, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-9 (P-2). On May 27, 1988, the respondent entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment. On August 9, 1988, the respondent retracted his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to the burglary and theft by unlawful taking counts of the indictment. On September 22, 1988, the respondent was sentenced in the Superior Court to probation for five years, to make restitution in the amount of $6,432.03, to perform 100 hours of community service for each count, and to pay a $60.00 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty. [P-3]

The respondent is still on probation, and he is making restitution in the amount of $100 per month.

In late June 1988, the respondent attended a job fair at the Claridge Hotel and Casino. In July, he was hired by the Claridge as a parking valet attendant, and he completed a Personal History Disclosure Form 4A in order to obtain a casino hotel employee registration. This Personal History Disclosure Form was reviewed by Division Agent John Lugo. Agent Lugo noticed that the respondent had indicated in response to question number 9 that he had never been arrested or convicted, yet the respondent's criminal history record indicated that he had been arrested.

Agent Lugo contacted the respondent in April 1989. Agent Lugo read question 9 to the respondent, and the respondent indicated that he understood the question. At that time, and again at the hearing, the respondent indicated that he did not disclose his Middlesex County arrest on his Personal History Disclosure Form because he believed if he disclosed the arrest he would not get a casino hotel employee registration and he would not be able to keep the job at the Claridge.

The respondent, who is presently 25 years old, was raised by his mother in Philadelphia along with his younger sister. He graduated from high school and then entered the Marine Corps. He rose to the rank of corporal (E-4). He went Absent Without Leave (AWOL) in September 1987. He then obtained employment at Bassett's Original Turkey. Upon his arrest for the Middlesex County offense, the respondent was delivered to military authorities. The respondent was tried and convicted before a military court-martial of the AWOL offense, and part of his sentence included a Bad Conduct Discharge. The respondent was discharged from the military in February 1988 after approximately six years service.

The respondent is married and supports a two and one-half year old son and a one year old daughter. The respondent served as a little league coach as part of his community service.

The respondent did not list his employment at Bassett's Original Turkey in response to question 6 on his Personal History Disclosure Form, and he did not list his military arrest or conviction in response to question 9 on his Personal History Disclosure Form.

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the respondent's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident, nor his current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess his credibility. Initially, his position in this matter must be recognized. As the respondent and the holder of a casino hotel employee registration, he has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the respondent's demeanor, the plausibility of his testimony, the manner in which he participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, I am somewhat skeptical of the respondent's testimony. There were several inconsistencies in the respondent's testimony, such as he first told me that he had not been arrested or convicted of any other crimes, yet when I inquired regarding the character of his military discharge, I discovered that he had been AWOL at the time of the Middlesex County offense, was wanted by and delivered to military authorities, and thereafter was convicted by a federal military criminal court. I also discovered that he did not list his employment at Bassett's Original Turkey or his military conviction on his Personal History Disclosure Form. As a result of these and other discrepancies, I am skeptical of the respondent's testimony.

Failure of the applicant to provide information, documentation and assurances required by the act or requested by the commission, or failure of the applicant to reveal any fact material to qualification, or the supplying of information which is untrue or misleading as to a material fact pertaining to the qualification criteria;
> c. The conviction of the applicant, or of any person required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license, of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be:

1. Any of the following offenses under the "New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice," P.L. 1978, c. 95 (Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes) as amended and supplemented:

. . . .

. . . .

N.J.S.A. 5:12-91, Registration of casino hotel employees, provides in pertinent part:

a. No person may commence employment as a casino hotel employee unless he has been registered with the commission, which registration shall be in accordance with subsection f. of this section.

b. Any applicant for casino hotel employee registration shall produce such information as the commission may require. Subsequent to the registration of a casino hotel employee, the commission may revoke, suspend, limit, or otherwise restrict the registration upon a finding that the registrant is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of P.L.1977, c. 110 (C. 5:12-86).

In determining whether the registrant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:

1. The nature and duties of the registrant's position;

2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

4. The date of the offense or conduct;

5. The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;

6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work- release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) establishes that registration under the Casino Control Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual . . .registrant." N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1) provides for the revocation of the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his . . . registration." The Division contends, that the respondent was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking, which constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), and second, that the respondent's nondisclosure of his arrests and convictions on his Personal History Disclosure Form 4A constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b, and that, accordingly, he is disqualified from continued registration.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1)

Section 86c(1) mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends that the respondent's theft of funds from his employer constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, which, under the circumstances, and his subsequent conviction for this offense, disqualifies the respondent from continued registration.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, Theft by unlawful taking, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Movable property. A person is guilty of theft if he unlawfully takes, or exercises unlawful control over, movable property of another with purpose to deprive him thereof.

The Division established, and the respondent admitted during his testimony, that he knowingly took money from his employer and that he had been convicted for this offense. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 and that he has been convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2)a, the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offense committed by the respondent and for which he was convicted is a disqualifying offense under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). The respondent is therefore disqualified from continued registration, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d

A registrant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against continued registration by affirmatively demonstrating his or her rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

1. The nature and duties of the registrant's position;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
4. The date of the offense or conduct;
5. The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;
6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work- release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Raymond A. McDonald, Sr. is a casino hotel registrant and is employed as a parking valet attendant. As such, he does not have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities but does come in contact with casino patrons and the property of casino patrons.

Second, the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking, over a two-month period prior to being employed in the casino industry. Because the offense is a listed disqualifier under section 86c(1), it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in its appropriate context. The respondent, while employed as the assistant manager of a restaurant, failed to make five bank deposits of the restaurant's receipts, which it was his duty to deposit, keeping the receipts for his own personal use, and he stole additional receipts which were in the company car. The respondent abused his position of trust as assistant manager and supervisor in order to commit these offenses. As such, these offenses are very serious.

Fourth, the respondent's misconduct occurred in November and December 1987, when it ceased.

Fifth, the respondent was 23 years old at the time of the offense. I do not believe immaturity was a factor in this case.

Sixth, the respondent's misconduct was not isolated in nature. He originally told me that he had not committed any other violations of the criminal laws, yet subsequently, I discovered that at the time of the offense he was AWOL from the military, his AWOL was terminated by apprehension, and that he has been convicted in a federal military criminal court of the AWOL offense.

Seventh, there are no social conditions which contributed to the offense. The respondent states that he committed the offense out of stupidity.

Eighth, the respondent is married and supports two young children. He served as a little league coach as part of his community service requirement. He has worked at the Claridge for one and one-half years as a parking valet attendant; however, the respondent presented no evidence of the quality of his work. He has not informed his employer of his prior misconduct. The respondent is still on probation, and is making restitution in the amount of $100 per month.

The Commission has recently addressed the weighing of the rehabilitation factors vis-a-vis the position applied for. In the Application of Brian Stiteler, argued before the Commission at the public meeting of August 5, 1987, Commissioner Armstrong stated:

> I would note that the rehabilitation criteria are identical for registrants and casino employees, but these factors can be weighed differently depending on the nature and duties of the position of the individual who is appearing before us and whether the disqualifying offense was an isolated or repeated incident, and I think that there are two prior Commission cases[1] in which we have given weight and emphasis to the nature and duty of the petitioner, and that's a significant factor in assessing rehabilitation.

In this case, the respondent is a parking valet attendant. He has no responsibility for any casino gaming activity, but does have contact with casino patrons. Considering the nature of the position he holds, the lack of respondent's work record in the industry, his demeanor and candor at the hearing, the fact that he abused his position of trust, the fact that he stole the money from his employer, the serious nature of his offense, the repeated nature of his offense, his conviction and discharge from the military, his lack of involvement in the community, and his family status, when weighed against the eight rehabilitative criteria:

I CONCLUDE that the respondent has not established, by clear and convincing evidence, his rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d.

(C) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b

The Commission has succinctly described the purposes for the inclusion of section 86b within the Act and its application in In the Matter of the Application of Harl Lee Cooper for Licensure as a Casino Employee (Maintenance and Cleaning),

---

1 I believe the decisions referred to by Commissioner Armstrong are: Benjamin Waters, OAL DKT. NO. CCC 7470-86 (April 30, 1987), and Mark Bisciotti, OAL DKT. NO. CCC 5240-86 (April 9, 1987), both matters having been decided at the Commission's public meeting of June 3, 1987.

OAL DKT. CCC 1276-79 (Aug. 29, 1979), modified, Casino Control Commission (Feb. 7, 1980), when it stated, at pages 15-16 of its Final Decision:

> So that fully informed decisions may be made regarding whether applicants for licensure have satisfied the qualification criteria set forth in the Act, the [L]egislature empowered the Commission and the Division of Gaming Enforcement to gather information concerning applicants by various means. The application process is initiated by the completion and filing of a Personal History Disclosure Form in accordance with N.J.A.C. 19:41-7.1 et seq. The Commission may also require the production of information by means of other formal requests. N.J.S.A. 5:12-80(d). The Division is empowered, in fulfilling its investigative duties, to request information, documentary materials or other data from any applicant for licensure. N.J.S.A. 5:12-76(b)(8).
> Most importantly, the Legislature has explicitly placed upon applicants for licensure the affirmative responsibility to produce information to establish their qualifications under the Act, the burden of demonstrating such qualifications, and the continuing duty to provide requested information and cooperate in any investigation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-7(b)(8); 80(a), (b) and (c); 89(b); 90(b) and 91(b). But not only has the Legislature imposed these duties and burdens with regard to the production of information, it has also, as noted above, mandated that an applicant's failure to provide the same shall result in disqualification. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(b).

The failure to disclose material information will disqualify an applicant. In the Matter of the Application of Robert J. Alois for a Gaming School Resident Director License, Casino Control Commission, 78-EA-8 (Jan. 30, 1980) Final Order at 19. Although an inadvertent or ignorant failure to make a disclosure will not warrant disqualification, an intentional nondisclosure, premised upon the belief that an application for licensure would have been adversely affected, is grounds for mandatory disqualification from licensure. Harl Lee Cooper, Final Decision at 16; In the Matter of the Application of Steven M. Cohen for Licensure as a Casino Employee (Dealer), OAL DKT. CCC 3133-79 (Dec. 6, 1979), affirmed, Casino Control Commission (Jan. 30, 1980); In the Matter of the Application of William Gonzales for Licensure as a Casino Employee (Slot Attendant), OAL DKT. CCC 684-80 (July 16, 1980), modified, Casino Control Commission (Sept. 5, 1980). For a nondisclosure to result in a disqualification it must have been committed intentionally or in disregard of the regulatory process. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 253 (1979).

An applicant is required to provide all material facts when his or her application for licensure is submitted. "Material" includes both positive and negative information. Section 86b penalizes for the mere failure to provide any fact material to qualification. The weight and significance of the information provided are thereafter evaluated by the Commission under section 91 of the Act. To excuse an intentional failure to disclose or the provision of misleading statements by an applicant would usurp the responsibility and the ability of the Commission to evaluate an applicant's qualifications for licensure. An applicant has the affirmative burden to establish his or her qualifications to the satisfaction of the Commission. There is no doubt that arrests, charges and convictions of crimes are facts material to qualification.

In this case, the respondent failed to disclose his arrest in Middlesex County, failed to disclose his employment at Bassett's Original Turkey, and failed to disclose his federal military criminal conviction. He states that he simply did not think about his military conviction and that he tried to blot his employment at Bassett's out of his mind. Yet both of these events occurred only six months prior to his completing the Personal History Disclosure Form. The respondent's failure to disclose his Middlesex County arrest, however, is a different matter. He made a conscious decision not to disclose his arrest because he believed disclosure would adversely affect his application for registration. This was not an inadvertent or ignorant failure to make a disclosure but an intentional nondisclosure, which was made in disregard of the regulatory process.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b, which disqualifies him from continued registration.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division against the respondent is SUSTAINED and that registration no. 86431-40 be revoked.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: December 18, 1989 Decided: February 1, 1990

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

On October 27, 1987 the Division of Gaming Enforcement filed a complaint against David K.L. Mao and Tung Hop, Inc., t/a Jade Beach Chinese Restaurant charging that Mao, a casino hotel employee registrant and licensed junket representative, and Tung Hop, Inc., t/a Jade Beach Chinese Restaurant, holder of a non-gaming casino service industry license, had engaged in conduct which violated standards established for licensure pursuant to the Casino Control Act, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. Specifically, the complaint alleged that Mao, vice president and manager of Tung Hop and a major stockholder therein, had between 1982 and 1987 "indicated to employees of Tropicana" that he had paid a bribe to an official ofthe Tropicana to secure a lease agreement for space for a restaurant in the Tropicana and further that in May and June 1987 Mao had engaged in conduct with one Jerome Palma in which he, Mao, had agreed to pay Palma $25,000 to obtain a lease to operate a Chinese restaurant at the Taj Mahal hotel casino presently being constructed by the Trump organization. In addition, the complaint asserted that Mao agreed to pay Palma a 10 percent "kick-back" on complimentary business sent to the proposed restaurant at the Taj Mahal, this business being directed to the restaurant by Palma or other representatives of the Taj Mahal in their dealings with "high rollers." The complaint further asserted that as a result of conversations between Mao and Palma, Mao had ultimately paid $1,000 to a Richard Levin in order to obtain the lease, under the assumption and belief that Levin was an associate of Palma's who could deliver the lease. In fact, Levin was actually Detective Sergeant Richard Gallo of the New Jersey State Police, acting in an undercover capacity. Palma, who had previously come under investigation by law enforcement authorities, was also acting at the behest of the Division and the State Police at the time of his conversations with Mao.

The complaint requested that the Commission take action against the licenses held by Mao and the corporation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-129 and 130, and applicable regulations. It asserted that their conduct established that Mao did not have the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)(2) and 90(b), which qualification standard also applies to sole owners and operaters of junket enterprises and also to junket representatives, who must be licensed as casino employees pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-102(b). In addition, the complaint charged that the conduct engaged in by Mao was sufficient to constitute the offense listed in N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1, attempt to commit an offense, a disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(1), and conspiracy to commit an offense, under N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2, also a listed disqualifying offense, and N.J.S.A. 2C:21-1 et seq., fraudulent practices constituting crimes of the second and third degree, specifically N.J.S.A. 2C:21-9, misconduct by a corporate official, and N.J.S.A. 2C:21-10, commercial bribery, also automatic disqualifiers Finally, it was alleged that Mao's conduct would indicate that his licensure would be inimical to the policy of the Act and require disqualification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(4), now c(2).

Count II of the complaint charged that Mao had failed to cooperate with the Division's request to appear and furnish information or otherwise cooperate in connection with its investigation, in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-80(d) and 86(b). This alleged conduct also disqualified Mao from licensure.

Mr. Mao requested a hearing on the charges. The matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., on December 23, 1987. Thereafter, the Division filed an amended complaint on November 6, 1987 in which it named Peter D. Lu as an additional respondent and charged that Lu, president, director and stockholder of Tung Hop and holder of a casino hotel employee registration, was similarly lacking in the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure because of his business association with Mao and purported awareness of Mao's allegedly criminal conduct.

On January 26, 1988, the State Grand Jury indicted Mao, charging him with conspiracy and commercial bribery. The alleged overt acts included Mao's conversations with Palma, the payment of the $1,000 to Detective Gallo purportedly for Gallo and Palma, and the promise to pay the remainder of the $25,000 bribe. Thereafter, on March 3, 1988, the Division filed a second amended complaint with the Commission, in which it alleged the indictment as an additional basis for disqualification under 86d of the Act.

A prehearing conference was held before Administrative Law Judge Stephen Thompson on March 24, 1988. Judge Thompson issued a prehearing order on March 28. Subsequently, the Division filed a motion to dismiss and withdraw its complaint as to Tung Hop and Peter Lu and to limit the complaint against Mao to the grounds arising from the statutory provisions in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(d), in view of Mao's indictment. Judge Richard Murphy granted this motion.

Mr. Mao ultimately entered the pre-trial intervention program and the indictment was eventually dismissed. During the interim the case was placed on the inactive list by order of Judge Murphy on June 13, 1988, which was extended by his order of October 12, 1988. The case came on for a hearing before Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin and was heard in the Office of Administrative Law in Mercerville on November 20, 21, 27 and 28, 1989.[1] Following the hearing, respondent's counsel filed a letter brief on December 7, 1989 and counsel for the petitioner filed his brief on December 18, 1989. The record closed on December 18, 1989.

ISSUES

The prehearing order issued by Judge Thompson on March 28, 1988 established the issue as whether Mr. Mao had been indicted for a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier. Subsequent to that time, and following the disposal of the indictment thru pre-trial intervention and dismissal, the issues as they presently stand have returned to those raised in the initial complaint as to whether Mr. Mao possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-102(b) 5:12-89(b)(2) and 90(b), for licensure as a junket representative and whether his actions, although unprosecuted, constituted conduct violative of some or all of the statutes noted in the complaint, requiring findings as to whether he is automatically disqualified from casino employee licensure and/or casino hotel employee registration card and/or whether his continued licensure would be inimical, N.J.S.A 5:12-86c(1), (2). In addition, the further issue is whether he failed to cooperate with the Division, in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-80(v) and 86(b). Finally, although not specifically addressed as such, rehabilitation must be considered, pursuant to 5:12 90h. and 91d., if automatic disqualification is otherwise established.

EVIDENCE

The primary evidence presented in this hearing consisted of the testimony of state's witnesses Mark P. Sivetz, a senior agent with the Division of Gaming Enforcement; Sergeant First Class William R. Kisby of the New Jersey State Police, Superintendent of the Casino Intelligence Unit, Sharon Altman-Eisenberg; Richard F Gallo, a detective sergeant first class with the State Police, and David K.L Mao himself. Testimony largely revolved around discussions and interpretations of statements made on tape recorded conversations between Mao, Jerome Palma, and Gallo. These tape recordings were offered in evidence along with transcripts of the recordings.

It appears that the investigation concerning Mr. Mao and the Jade Beach occurred as a result of information received from one John Lee, a former senior executive at the Tropicana Hotel in Atlantic City. In an October 9, 1987 interview with Lee, Senior Agent Mark P. Sivetz, Deputy Attorney General Mitchell Schwefel and State Police Officer Tom Alexander, Lee discussed conversations in which Mr Mao, who had a Chinese restaurant in the Tropicana, had purportedly said that he was looking for "more money" to sell the restaurant because it cost him more to obtain it since he had to pay some money for his lease, a reference which Lee understood to refer to under the table sums. There was no specific identification of the recipient of this "under the table" money. In his report of the Lee interview Sivetz includes a quote which reads "lot of expenses getting the restaurant opened." The word "kickback" is not indicated in quotes nor is the word "bribe." There is reference to $100,000 as a cost "to get the lease" (quote from report, not a direct quote from Lee). At the time Mr. Sivetz had no knowledge that there had existed a $100,000 escrow account for the Jade Beach restaurant with the Tropicana, a fact which he later learned of and which has been stipulated as having existed by the parties to this proceeding. This escrow was related to the duct work referred to in the report.

Following Sivetz's testimony, tapes and transcripts of the various conversations between Mao, Gallo and Palma were introduced through Detective William DiGiuseppe, of the Special Investigations Unit of the Casino Investigation Bureau. According to DiGiuseppe, he was brought into the investigation following the preparation and signing of a Consensual Order which had been prepared by Detective Kisby of the State Police. According to DiGiuseppe's understanding of what was occurring, the police had information that Mao had paid a bribe to obtain the lease for his restaurant at the Tropicana and would probably do so again with respect to his desire for a restaurant site at the Taj Mahal. Detective Kisby instructed Jerry Palma, who was a cooperating individual who had previously been a high ranking executive in the casino industry and had come under the scrutiny of the State Police, as to how to proceed with respect to setting up a meeting with Mao concerning a possible future restaurant at the Taj Mahal. The initial meeting occurred on May 29, 1987.

Sergeant First Class William R. Kisby of the New Jersey State Police assigned as supervising the casino intelligence unit which is charged with monitoring the infiltration of organized crime in the casino industry, testified that he first met with Jerome Palma in September 1986 regarding information concerning possible illegal activity in which Palma was supposedly involved. The investigation centered on kickbacks being paid for certain business obtained by American International Airways (AIA) while Palma was Director of Marketing at the Tropicana Hotel. On October 10, 1986, Kisby approached Palma regarding possible cooperation in investigations. Nothing positive occurred at the time and Kisby was unable to question Palma until sometime later, with counsel present. On April 10, 1987, the Division moved to suspend Palma's license. At that time, he denied under oath that he had paid any kickbacks. The license was suspended on April 15, 1987 and in late May 1987 Kisby was able to speak to Palma, who had previously spoken to a Captain Guzzardo, who was then the lieutenant in charge of the casino intelligence unit. By this time, Palma had agreed to cooperate with the State Police. During conversations held on May 22, 1987, Palma provided information concerning criminal activity which he had been a party to. He was promised that he would not be prosecuted criminally regarding the AIA payments. In the course of his discussions, Palma gave information concerning alleged kickbacks involving one Peter Chan, a former vice president of Oriental Marketing to the Tropicana and an operator of buses to the casinos out of Chinatown in New York. In the course of this discussions, Palma noted that Chan had told him that he, Chan, had heard that David Mao had paid a kickback to get his lease at the Tropicana. It was then arranged for Palma to contact David Mao by telephone and to have the conversation overheard by DiGiuseppe. Kisby instructed Palma regarding the contact, which was for the purpose of discussing Mao's alleged proposal for a restaurant in the Taj Mahal. The meeting was scheduled for May 29, 1987. From the standpoint of the State Police the purpose of the meeting was to see whether or not Mao would offer to pay a bribe for a restaurant concession at the Taj Mahal and, secondly, whether he would verify information concerning an allegation that he had paid $25,000 as a bribe for the lease for the Jade Beach Restaurant. to an attorney holding a high level position at the Tropicana.

According to Kisby he instructed Palma not to push Mao into a corner and to give him an "out" if he did not want to engage in bribery.

The tape and transcript of the May 29, 1987 meeting between Palma and Mao are in evidence as P-9a and b respectively. At page 3 of the transcript, Palma advises

Mao that he will shortly be moving over to a position at the Taj Mahal, which has recently been purchased by Donald Trump. Since Mao knew that Palma had previously had some difficultly with his casino license Palma mentions that he "should be back to work now because I got a pretty good guy within two weeks." He notes that he had spoken with both Donald and Ivanna Trump who are anxious for him to get moving. According to Palma, his position at the Taj will be that of executive vice-president in charge of the entire operation. On page 4, he anticipates that he will be working within "the next month" and says that he is already coordinating with people who are going to be transferred from other Trump operations to the Taj Mahal.

It is at this point that a discussion concerning a possible Chinese restaurant that the Taj Mahal begins. Palma asserts that there will be something like 20 restaurants in the Taj. Mao notes that he had written a letter to the previous owners of the Taj, indicating that he wished to have a restaurant in the facility. They had responded as to a possible location. Palma then asserts that most of the decision making with respect to the Trump operation at the Taj "will rest with me."

On page 7, Mao notes that in his conversations with the prior owners concerning the location at the Taj, they had shown him a blueprint for a spot with about 5,000 square feet on the second floor. However, according to Mao, there had been no conversation regarding details (page 8). It is at this point that Palma and Mao begin to discuss their "deal." Near the bottom of page 8, Palma states:

> I don't mean between the Taj Mahal. I mean as far as the lease or the rent goes between you and I.

At page 9, he begins:

> JP What kind of deal were we talking about between you and I?
> DM What ever you say.
>
> JP Well, that's what I gotta know. Where are you coming from? I mean what is it worth? You know what I'm saying? See, I have to know cause I have to know what, you know, where I'm coming from, who I'm placing and where I'm putting them in the location.
>
> DM Un huh.
>
> JP So you tell me, but feel comfortable. And if you feel uncomfortable, just forget it.
>
> DM No I, I wanna to see . . .

JP I've known you a long time.

DM Yea.

JP So I feel that I can talk to you.

DM Sure.

JP You know.

DM Yeah, I understand.

JP Because.

DM Whatever, no, I wanna. If there's a change, I wanna just roughly take a look because I remember ah, on the ground floor there is a casino, there baccarat, big baccarat pit . . .

Significant conversation then occurs at page 10.

JP Ah, after, you know after we conclude what we did, now and I tell you this off the record, I understand that when you came in here, ok, that you had an arrangement with (deleted)[2]

DM Yes.

JP (deleted).

DM Yeah, yeah.

JP Alright, that you paid him twenty-five thousand (25,000). Is it worth the same thing over there?

DM Whatever . . . whatever you say (notable).
JP Well, I think it's worth more over there.

DM Ah ah, we'll talk about it.

JP Well, I gotta do it cause I wanna tie it up right now, what I want to do is tie it up and get leases.

---

[2]The transcripts delete the name of the person with whom Mao supposedly dealt. As the hearing developed, the person was revealed to be Steven Bolson, an attorney and high level employee of Tropicana. The parties advised the ALJ that Bolson has never been charged with respect to any such allegations and has been relicensed by the Commission subsequent to these allegations.

DM Alright.

JP I wanna take you over there.

DM Alright.

JP I wanna get you committed to the property.

DM Alright.

JP Alright, and David I've known you now for seven (7) years?

JP That's why I'm talking to you straight, cause I don't want to beat around the bush or anything. Now DM I do understand. Jerry, you don't worry about me.

JP I know your a businessman, but, ok. Where what is it worth to you over there? See, I'm trying to find out comparative orders. Now I know what some other people told me. And the numbers their throwing out to me are ridiculously high and they're not reasonable. And what'll happen is, I'll, you know, I don't know the people. I would rather be more comfortable with somebody that I know that has done business before, and I trust (deleted) you know, cause he's, he's alright. Now, let me ask you a question. The difference -- two questions.

At page 12, Mao begins to talk about the comp situation. He complains that the Tropicana's personnel do not send people down to his restaurant, but rather send them to other restaurants in the facility which are owned by the Tropicana itself. Palma responds "we can work the comp situation out." Further on he notes that this will be "based on the amount of comps we send down to you."

On page 13, Palma states that if Mao has no objection he will have an attorney from Trump call Mao to work out the contracts. He states:

As far as the contracts are concerned, you'll talk to him about the terms and conditions, but I want it . . . you gotta get it done right away as soon as our deal is cut.

DM Yea, alright.

The conversation continues:

JP Now, let me ask you a question, what did you pay to get in here? What did this cost you?

DM Ten (10) percent across.

JP Is that what you pay to (deleted) Or is, what do you, what do you pay to get the restaurant here?

DM It's around twenty-five (25), twenty-five (25).

JP Um humm. You pay twenty-five (25) to (deleted) Alright. Is that worth twenty-five thousand (25,000) or more to you?

DM We can see, you know. (inaudible) whatever you say, you know, but, me and (deleted) just that's it.

JP Just you and (deleted).

DM No, I mean over here, just one, one time.

JP With you and (deleted) oh, there was nothing continuous?

DM Nothing continuous. No. Nothing at all.

JP Well, ok. See ours is a little bit different.

DM I, I know.

JP What, your deal, was that you pay (deleted) twenty-five thousand (25,000) in cash in advance and that's it -- it was over with.

DM Yeah, it's over with.

JP Ok. Our deal is gonna be a sum of money in advance . . .

DM Oh yeah.

JP And then a continuing thing.

DM Yeah, I know.

JP . . .with the comps.

DM Alright. If the comp situation's good, it's no problem. Alright? Cause here, you know why they (inaudible).

The conversation then proceeds to a further discussion of the arrangements.

JP You know, uh, that's why I felt more comfortable. I'll tell you what David, I would be this for the same amount.

DM Alright.

JP Alright, now for the same twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars and then how do you work, how do you want to work the comps?

DM Jerry, I think the comps, with a person of your level, like a, uh, how much money depend (inaudible) what's the (inaudible) on the comp total (inaudible).

JP Ok. That's fine. Alright, let's do it this way.

JM (inaudible) ten (10) percent (inaudible) whatever.

JP Alright ten (10) percent of the comps? Alright, let's do it, let's do it in two (2) steps then. Let's get the contract executed, and then you and I, after you get in and you set up your business, we'll sit down and talk about the comps.

DM Ok.

JP Now, how does the money get transferred, you transfer it to me in cash?

DM No cash (inaudible). As soon as I get independent restaurant over there, its no problem.

JP Alright, then you'll pay me twenty-five thousand (25,000) in cash in an envelope?

DM Yeah.

JP Unmarked.

DM Sure, no problem.

JP What I don't understand is. Why couldn't (deleted) give you the comps on an ongoing basis?

DM No (deleted) really is our friends now. Every time he came here (inaudible).

JP But you paid him twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars.

JM (inaudible)

JP And you paid him twenty-five thousand dollars.

DM And very, very he's very gentlemen, very nice.

JP Well I'm gonna be real nice, too for twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars, David, you know what I'm saying?

DM Oh yeah, I understand.

Palma then expresses the concern that even though B. was involved "in what happened here I don't want him to know what we're . . . what we're" at which point

Mao replies "oh, yeah, sure, sure, I understand, sure." Palma states "just between you and I."

On page 18, Palma expresses some urgency in connection with getting the matter concluded, because "their starting to recommit to the people that they committed to before." He once again relates his significant status in the Trump organization at page 20 in a conversation with an employee of Mao's, when he again states that he is to be "vice president."

Following the meeting of May 29, a second meeting involving Palma and Mao occurred on June 11, 1987. On this date, Palma had arranged for Mao to meet with the State Police undercover agent Richard Gallo, who was posing as Richard Levin, purportedly an agent for real estate matters for the Trump organization. The significant portions of the transcript begin on page 3, where Mao asks Palma if he is now working for Trump and Palma replies "I still work for Donald." He also notes that contact with him will be easier at Trump Tower in New York. Palma introduces Levin into the conversation prior to meeting with him on page 4, when he refers to Levin and states that Mao will be in touch with him on a "consistent basis." He claims that "Richard does all of the real estate work for the Trump's. As far as the assignment of leases." Levin (Gallo) will show Mao the space and go over the plans and will need some information regarding Mao's corporate identity, etc. When Mao asks if Levin is an attorney, Palma replies:

> No. Real estate. And Richard Levin is a very dear and personal friend of mine. Alright? So when you talk to Richard, you can talk to Richard like your talking to me. Alright, because we're gonna finish this this afternoon.

The meeting with Levin was held in the Arcade Building in Atlantic City in the law offices of Nicholas Ribis, Esq., an attorney who represents Donald Trump. Ribis was not in his office on the day of the meeting, but he had loaned it to the State Police for their use. When Palma and Mao arrived at the office Palma opened the conversation by saying "Ok. Come on back Rich, how are you doing partner?" He introduced Mao. Levin quickly noted that "well, we're pressed for time. You know we're running as it is now." Palma again reasserts that Mao can talk to his "very good friend" Levin "like you're talking to me." The conversation between Palma and Levin (Gallo) then picks up on transcript P-12b.[3] The first portion of that transcript is a repetition of the introduction previously referred to, but it then picks up at the bottom of page 1 with Levin representing that he is "on his (Trump) transition team, . . . we're handling all his commercial space." Gallo claims that "if it wasn't for Jerry I wouldn't even be here with you today. Okay, he must be a very good friend of yours."

[3]The transcripts use "G" for Gallo/Levin's comments. In order to be consistent with these, the decision will generally refer to Gallo as speaking, not Levin.

After some discussion, Gallo asks Mao about his proposal for a restaurant and the discussions which Mao may have had with the original Trump owners concerning the lease. Mao explains to him that the lease is to be a ten year one with a five year option. The rent is discussed, with Gallo indicating it would be about $60,000 a month. On page 6, after some reference to Mr. Ribis and the use of his office, Gallo states:

> . . . He was kind enough to let me use his office, you know, while I'm in town here. All right. But what I wanna do is, I'm gonna have to know whether you wanna go with this deal or not. OK. If you wanna go with this deal, since I don't have time to waste. (Unintelligible). Jerry and I are looking for twenty five grand for ourselves.
>
> DM Yeah.
>
> G All right.
>
> DM Uh-Huh.
> G. Okay. I want five thousand hopefully by tomorrow. I mean, I wanna try and wrap this up by the end of the weekend.

Gallo suggests that the remaining $20,000 would be paid when the agreement is done. Mao replies that this is fair and then notes:

> That's OK cause I wanna make sure everything's OK, otherwise you just tell me I cannot get the lease here. (unintelligible).
>
> G Well, I'm gonna guarantee the lease.

Mao asks if he can talk to Ribis "tomorrow." He states that he wants "to formalize, because right now I know nothing at all now, all right." After some further discussion Gallo, again referring to the possibility of a contact with Ribis, says:

> All right. And you wanna try to set something with. See, Ribis don't know about the twenty-five thousand.

Mao replies:

> No, we don't talk about that.
>
> G OK, that's what I'm saying. That's why I wanna get that up front, then we do the agreement.
>
> DM OK.
> G And everything together. You know, if the agreement don't go your gonna get your five grand back. But I mean its gonna go. . . .

Gallo states that Ribis will be drawing up the lease. He then goes on to have a discussion with Mao, who is concerned about the comp situation and the problems he had with the Tropicana with respect to this issue. Gallo insists that Ribis can't talk to Mao about that and states:

> OK. That's something that's done on the side deal, OK. What your gonna do is we're gonna introduce you to, once we pick our casino host, all right, he's gonna be the guy the directs the comps to you. You're gonna wind up probably giving him ten percent or whatever, on that there. See that's gotta be a deal between you and him. In other words, Mr. Ribis cannot guarantee you comps. I mean, you know, that's not legal. To actually do that.
>
> DM No, no its not legal. I think its legal because you know why because if I have a space inside the casino, casino will send customers down to my restaurant to eat. (unintelligible) come to my restaurant (inaudible).
>
> G I know what your saying, yeah
>
> DM Gambler to my restaurant to eat. Because the casino comp all the restaurants go to eat.
>
> G But see that can't be in the contract.
>
> DM It is in my (unintelligible).
>
> G You have it in your contract, do you?
>
> DM Yeah, sure. It's legal.
>
> G You have it in your contract with Resorts?
>
> DM No, Tropicana.
>
> G With Tropicana, I'm sorry.
>
> DM Oh yeah, yeah. Well, I talk with Jerry before you know, I say you know, I wanna know even more detail on the comp situation, because if I'm inside the casino, and they > don't give me comp to my restaurant to eat, I'm dead. It doesn't make sense for me to open a restaurant inside the casino.

>
> G I know what you mean.

On page 10, Gallo attempts to turn away from the comp discussion and states:

> And, I don't know why your getting hung up on that. The thing you know, is you know before we actually sit down and do the actual agreement, you know, our part of the deal is gotta be done. Because, you know, that's what I'm saying. That, you know, then you can sit down and do your agreement whatever you want. But I wanna know that your gonna go into their, our part of the deal is done, and then you know, and then will, go ahead with the agreements then then when the agreement is done then you come back to me with another twenty thousand.
>
> DM All right, I think, can I talk with (unintelligible) I wanna know a little bit more of the situation.
> G OK, Yeah.

Mao continues to assert his desire for more information and a meeting with Ribis about the comps and is again told that Ribis cannot deal with that issue. After further discussion of the lease arrangements, an agreement is made to meet at the Jade Beach at 12:00 the next day. On page 14, Mao again asks whether Levin is in the same law office as Ribis, to which Gallo replies "no, no, no. I'm part of the transition team. I work with facilities. My part is gonna be the leases." At page 17, Palma has returned to the room. The discussion between Gallo and Mao is continuing. Palma asserts that they can talk in front of Richard and states with respect to the comp situation:

> . . . We're gonna be sending people down on a continual basis from the pit bosses on up. All right? Then you and I will.

to which Mao replies that he wants more information.

As the testimony in the hearing established, at some point during Mao's association with the Tropicana and construction of the restaurant, it became necessary for ventilation ducts to be placed in the Tropicana. This was the reason for the creation of the $100,000 escrow account, of which approximately $23,000 was ultimately retained by the Tropicana. A discussion concerning ventilation and responsibilities for engineering occurs at page 18 of the transcript of the Palma-Gallo-Mao discussion on June 11, 1987. Mao says he wants to know what the kitchen situation and ventilation problems may be and Palma tells him that will be no problem about it. "The responsibility as far as the ventilation and all is concerned is gonna be the engineering responsibility of the Trump's." He asserts that the lease figure includes the modification to the raw shell including the vent system and the electrical system which has "already (been) taken into consideration."

At pages 19 and 20, Palma and Gallo press for a decision by Mao as to whether he wants to enter into the commitment. Later in the discussion Mao indicates that because of the size of the investment involved, he wishes to speak to his partner before making any final decision as to whether to enter into any commitment. He will need some time to do this and asks for a few days. Gallo agrees and says he will stop at the restaurant at 4:00 p.m. on Sunday. Palma adds:

> The important thing to understand is this. Richard's doing this as a favor to me. Because of our relationship ok. If you don't want it, it's ok. (Inaudible)

Mao replies that he understands. Palma states "don't feel pressured." And Mao says no, no. I don't want . . . and then goes on to talk about the need to consult with his partners again.

On page 26, Palma again states that Levin/Gallo is not an attorney, but just someone who negotiates real estate.

The final significant conversation between Gallo and Mao occurs on June 14, 1987. At that time Gallo arrives at Mao's restaurant. Mao explains that he talked to his partner (which he later admitted was not true). As a result of the discussions with the partner and concerns raised about seeing more paperwork on the deal, Mao indicates that he can only give Gallo $1,000.00, instead of the $5,000 which Gallo had requested. In fact, as Mao testified at the hearing, the reason for the $1,000 payment verses the larger amount was his inability to obtain any funds over the weekend. Because he is only offering Gallo $1,000 instead of $5,000 he indicates that he and his partners will be willing to pay $30,000 in total, instead of the $25,000 requested. After some discussion, Gallo says this is unnecessary. The $1,000 is turned over to Gallo and an agreement is made to go see an engineer for the Trump organization at the Arcade Building on Wednesday.

On page 5, Gallo and Mao begin discussing Palma's situation. Gallo states:

> Yeah, How long have you known Jerry? You know him for quite a while?

EM I've known Jerry, yeah, quite a while, cause right now, you know, (unintelligible) toward Jerry because you know, has license problems. That what my partner wondered, you know, what he really doing.

G Yeah, yeah I know. He's got himself in a little bit of a

DM (unintelligible) something, I feel a hundred percent comfortable. Right now I, I hard for me to convince my partner too, you know, cause my partner . . . they are in the casino business too. They know what's the situation with Jerry. I don't know whether he solved the license problem or not.

G I think he's close to, doing okay with that there.

DM What is the situation? Is it OK

G Yeah, I think he's gonna be alright. I think that was really you know, a lot of bullshit on him.

DM (laughs) My partner think, you know, How can you deal with you, you know (unintelligible). I say, you know, he's not Richard Gillman, you know, I mean he's not Jerry, (unintelligible) Mr. Richard (Unintelligible).

DM My partner even tell me, you cannot deal with Jerry now. Not good for us cause we have a license at Tropicana now -- Casino Control license too. We don't (unintelligible) I say no, I'm not dealing with, he, Jerry Palma, I'm dealing with Richard Levin.

At page 7, some further discussion occurs:

DM Otherwise work here hundred percent because I know Jerry so many years.

G Yeah, well that's what I mean, you know, I feel comfortable here, because, you know, Jerry told me that you got this place here you know.

DM Yeah Yeah.

G This cost you too, right?

DM Right, yeah that's right?

G What was this here?

DM That's my partner's say, you know, we even, you know. I don't want you not to trust us because we're dealing because of my partner says, we, you know (unintelligible).

G So what was this here, same thing? twenty-five?

DM Yea.

G Yeah? more?

D.M. (unintelligible) Close.

G Yeah. Alright. OK then, why don't we just do that then and I'll see you, ah, let me call you, I'll tell you what, I'll stop here Wednesday.

Detective Sergeant First Class Richard Gallo testified concerning his involvement in the investigation, as reflected by the conversations on the tape recordings. In addition, he testified that on June 19 he picked up Mao and a Frank Hsu at the Jade Beach. He was wearing a recording device at the time, but it did not work. After picking up the gentleman and heading in the direction of the Arcade Building with the two men in the back of the car there was a discussion in which Mao mentioned that Hsu knew nothing regarding the $25,000. At that point, Hsu asked to get out of the car because his own restaurant was nearby. When the vehicle arrived at the Arcade Building, they were met by a number of state police and Division of Gaming Enforcement representatives, who took Mr. Mao inside and explained to him the investigation which was occurring. Mao was not arrested at the time.

In addition to the testimony related to the transcripts, the Division also presented Sharon Altman-Eisenberg, who is currently the manager of casino services at Merv Griffin's Resorts and was previously employed at the Tropicana for six and a half years, leaving in May of 1987. At the time she was a marketing executive and was familiar with both Mr. Mao and John Lee, who is vice president for Oriental marketing. On occasion she and Lee would eat in Mao's restaurant and he would sometimes join them. Sometime in 1986 a discussion ensued concerning Mao's interest in selling the Jade Beach. Eisenberg could not recall the details of the discussion and she was not sure whether anybody else was present during the conversation other than Mao and Lee. She was shown a memorandum concerning her meeting on October 1987 with Schwefel, Kisby and Sivetz. This report did not refresh her recollection concerning the conversation and she did not recall ever being at a meeting where the word "bribe" was used. She did acknowledge that she would have no reason to lie and would have given truthful answers to any questions asked of her at the October 9 interview. However, review of the bottom of page 2 and top of page 3 of the report did not refresh her recollection. The report was never entered into evidence.

On cross-examination, Ms. Altman-Eisenberg insisted that she had never been involved in a conversation where the word "bribe" or "kickback" had come up. She also had no recollection of Mao speaking of the costs involved in obtaining the Jade Beach. She does recall something regarding duct work which Mao had been required to provide. However, this recollection was based upon her review of the interview report.

On redirect, the witness acknowledged that she had once heard a rumor regarding money being paid to obtain the Jade Beach. She does not recall the initial "S." as being involved in this rumor nor does she recall "B" as the individual supposedly involved in receiving the bribe.

THE RESPONDENT'S EVIDENCE

David Mao is 50 years old. He was born in China and came to the United States at the end of 1966 to study at the University of Massachussets. Mr. Mao is a graduate of Taiwan Normal University. After his graduation he taught for one year and then was a travel agent in Taiwan. He became a United States citizen approximately 10 to 12 years ago. Eventually, he became the manager of a Chinese restaurant in Stratford and worked there for 12 years. He opened the Jade Beach Restaurant at the Tropicana at Christmas time 1982 and became a full-time employee there in May of 83. He presently lives in Cherry Hill and supports his 83 year old father. Mr. Mao is divorced and has children.

Mao became involved with the Jade Beach after his then wife told him that he could open a restaurant in the Tropicana. She knew Peter Lu's wife, who told her about the opportunity. Lu advised Mao that he had a lease for a restaurant at the Tropicana and asked Mao and his wife if they would be interested in joining him in the venture. They agreed. The Jade Beach lease, R-2 in evidence, was dated April 28, 1982 and is signed by Peter Lu as the representative of the restaurant. The lease was assigned on September 13, 1982 to Tung Hop, Inc., the corporation formed to own the restaurant. Mao was made vice president of Tung Hop, Inc. According to the respondent, he personally had no discussions with anyone at the Tropicana regarding obtaining a lease at that hotel.

Mao testified that there were problems concerning the duct work for the restaurant. Mao and Lu dealt with Steven Bolson, who was a high-ranking executive at the Tropicana and an attorney. Bolson requested that money be put up at the start of the duct work installation, which involved a new exhaust system which had to rise ten stories to the roof of the building. As a result of the discussions with Bolson, Mao and Lu put up $100,000, which was turned over to Bolson and placed in an escrow account. Eventually, after the work was all done, the Tropicana kept approximately $25,000 from the escrow account for a gas line installation. Mao insisted that he paid no bribes or kickbacks to anyone at the Tropicana. He had no knowledge of any and had never seen anything indicative of such illegal payments He also denied that he ever had told anyone that he paid such bribes or was aware of them and denied ever paying bribes or kickbacks to anyone in his whole life.

Mr. Mao recalled a lunch with John Lee, where there was a discussion of the possible sale of the restaurant. He believes this occurred in 1983 or 84 when the Jade Beach was not doing very well. Lee had a Korean high roller who was interested in buying the facility. He does not recall Sharon Altman-Eisenberg being involved in the discussion, although they did eat in the restaurant all the time and it was possible that she was present. There were a number of discussions at which Mao offered Lee a selling price for the facility. He told Lee that it cost a lot to build the restaurant, but it was "impossible" that he ever said that he paid a bribe or a kickback and he never intended to imply that he paid any money under the table to anyone. The first he heard of such allegations was at his interview with the State Police.

Mao was familiar with Jerry Palma, who was the marketing director of the Tropicana and who is the person who approved comps which were given to gamblers. The Tropicana paid the restaurant for these comps. They constituted a significant part of the Jade Beach's business There were problems because the Tropicana, which owned all of the other restaurants in the facility, did not seem to want to send gamblers to the Jade Beach, which it did not own. Mao complained to Bolson regarding this problem and on July 22, 1986 Gordon Golum, Esq., an attorney representing the Jade Beach, wrote a letter to Bolson. Mao spoke to Bolson many times concerning the comp problem, but never offered to pay Palma or anyone else a bribe or kickback regarding the comps.

In May of 1987, Palma called Mao and asked to see him. Palma was then employed in a real estate office in Philadelphia, having left the Tropicana and worked for the Trump Castle for a while. Mao had had some preliminary discussions concerning a possible restaurant at the proposed Hilton Hotel, which later became the Trump Castle. He was told there was no space available. In his discussions concerning this possible restaurant, there were no offers of any bribes or kickbacks made.

In discussing the transcripts and tape recordings, Mao testified as to his knowledge and familiarity with the English language. According to the witness, if he is familiar with the subject under discussion, his English is "okay." However, if the topic is unfamiliar, he sometimes has problems. All of his personal conversation with friends and associates of Chinese background are conducted in Chinese, as opposed to English. When Mao does no understand something in English, he is sometimes embarrassed to ask what the words mean.

Mao presented letters dated June 19, 1986, June 27, 1986, October 10, 1986, and March 18, 1987, in which he engaged in dialogue with representatives of Resorts concerning the possibility of a restaurant location in the proposed new Resorts Casino Hotel which was to be eventually known as the Taj Mahal. As of October 1986, H. Steven Norton, Executive Vice President of Resorts, was advising that there was "a possibility that we would like to have a Chinese Fast Food outlet at our Food Court but first we must determine whether the kitchen space available and other support services would permit us to share the Food Court with other operators." Norton said that he would have his senior vice president of Food and Beverage contact Mao. Mao interpreted this a good possibility that he would obtain a restaurant site. In March of 1987, he wrote Mr. Kohlross, expressing further interest in the restaurant. During these communications, Mao denied offering anyone any incentives or inducements to obtain the restaurant location.

Mao proceeded to discuss specifics of his discussions with Palma and Gallo as recorded on tape and transcribed in the exhibits in evidence. With respect to the May 29, 1987 discussion with Palma, Palma was the one who brought up the money payments. In the transcript, P-9b, referring to page 8 where Palma references Mao's having approached him about sitting down and "talk a deal." and Palma's expression that at the time he was not interested, Mao understood Palma to be talking about his attempt to investigate the possibility of a site at the Hilton/Trump Castle. There had been no offer of anything to Palma at the time as an inducement with respect to obtaining a restaurant at the Castle.

At page 10, where the discussion turns to Palma's comments "all right that you paid him $25,000 . . ." Mao denied paying anyone for the lease. Palma was the one who brought up the $25,000. Mao felt that Palma was talking about a real estate fee. When Palma asked for a money payment, Mao believed that he was talking about a real estate commission or a finder's fee. When the discussion referenced contact with Harvey Freedman, (page 13) Mao thought they he was the lawyer who he would deal with in negotiating a lease. Discussions concerning 10 percent across also on page 13, as a response to Palma's comment, "Now, let me ask you a question, what did you pay to get in here? What did this cost you?", was a reference by Mao to the ten percent "gross" rent contained in the lease.[4] The ten percent comment in no way referred to, or implied, any kickback on comps and none was ever paid.

With respect to Mr. Bolson, Mao noted that Bolson came into his restaurant many times and that they had a business relationship and got along well. However he never paid him any bribe.

Mao testified as to the critical statements on page 15 and 16 regarding the agreement to pay the $25,000 in cash in an unmarked envelope. The term "unmarked" meant "cash" to him. It had no "special meaning." Because his restaurant was located in the casino, he dealt with a great deal of cash all the time

After the meeting of May 29, 1987, Palma attempted to contact Mao and Mao felt that Palma was pushing "too fast." When a meeting was set up with someone who turned out to be Levin/Gallo, Mao was under the impression that the meeting was going to be with a lawyer. He was confused at to whether Levin was a lawyer or a real estate agent, but then he understood that he was in real estate."

When Mao first met Levin, Levin emphasized that he had to move fast on a commitment. With respect to the comment at page 6 of P-12b where Levin/Gallo speaks of "Jerry and I are looking for twenty-five grand for ourselves," Mao understood this to be a real estate commission He wanted everything legalized and emphasized this many times during the discussion. There was to be no deal if it was > shall pay to the Landlord at the time and in the manner herein set forth as percentage rental for each calendar month throughout the term hereof a sum equal to ten (10) percent of tenant's gross sales made during the particular month in question, less the total of the minimum rent. . . .

not legal and he wanted to see things in writing. As for the "ten percent" discussions with respect to the comps, he noted at page 8 and 9 that the ten percent was in his view a legal payment because he was paying ten percent under his lease with the Tropicana, referring to both section 4.04 and also section 43.13. This provision provides:

> Landlord agrees to include Tenant's Chinese Restaurant as one of the restaurants to which Landlord may send patrons deserving of complimentary services ("comps") . . . It is agreed that, on a weekly basis, Tenant shall submit all comp slips with the applicable restaurant checks attached thereto to Landlord. Landlord shall, on a monthly basis, coinciding with Tenant's rental payments to Landlord, apply the amount Landlord owes to Tenant for the comps toward tenant's rental payments. It is agreed that only that amount of the restaurant checks specifically covered by the provisions of the comp slips, less ten percent discount to Landlord, shall be credited to tenant's account. If the amount Landlord owes to Tenant for the comps exceeds Tenant's monthly rental payment, Landlord shall within one days pay to Tenant the excess owed.

Mao asserted that when he was talking with Levin/Gallo about the comp situation, he was not sure that he and Levin were talking about the same thing. By the time the conversation had reached that portion at page 19 of the transcript, he felt "pushed," and he asked for more time (page 23).

After the meeting, he spoke with Steve Bolson, who had come down to his restaurant to pick up some food, and asked him if he knew who Levin was. He also told him that Jerry Palma was asking for "real estate money." Bolson told him not to pay money to Palma, but said nothing about paying Levin. Mao never mentioned the figure involved.

Mao has always had partners in his business operations. He would have had partners in any enterprise at the Taj Mahal. He had a few in mind, but had not spoken to them prior to his meetings with Levin. When he advised Levin on June 14, (P-13b) at page 2, that he had spoken to his partner, this was not true, because he could not locate any of the people that he had in mind. There was no "special reason" that he did not tell Levin this. He offered $30,000 as a payment (which he believed to be a real estate commission) because the restaurant which was being discussed was a large one and if he could get it it would be worth the $30,000. The reason for paying only $1,000, instead of the requested $5,000, was that that was all of the cash that was available to him on Sunday. The $1,000 payment which was made was to secure the real estate lease.[5]

On June 19, Levin picked up Mao at the Jade Beach. Frank Hsu accompanied them. He was the vice president for Oriental Marketing at Resorts and also had a small Chinese Restaurant near the Sands Hotel. As they were driving toward the Arcade Building Hsu remembered that he had to get the key to open his own restaurant and he asked to get out. Mao denied that Hsu's exit had anything to do with any discussion of $25,000. After his confrontation with the police authorities at the Arcade Building, Detective Kisby drove him back to the Jade Beach. There was a conversation in which Kisby requested that Mao tape Bolson, but Mao indicated that he would not make any deal and would only speak to his own lawyer. He was asked to testify against Bolson and offered immunity, but denied that there was any truth to any allegations regarding Bolson.

On cross examination, Mao was asked about other real estate dealings which he might have been involved in and whether they involved real estate brokers and commissions. He had sold his house in Cherry Hill and a property on Texas Avenue, which he had owned with his partner in the Jade Beach as a residence for restaurant workers. He did not think that a real estate broker was involved when this was sold

Mao was questioned as to his understanding of Jerry Palma's status with respect to the casino industry at the time of their May 29 meeting. According to Mao, he knew that Palma was suspended and not working in the industry, and thought that he was working for himself as a real estate person. He denied that he saw anything unusual about the request made by Levin on June 11 that he not talk about the $25,000 payment to Ribis. (P-12B, page 7) [5]When he received no receipt for this money, he called Palma after the 14th at Palma's home and received a number for him in Philadelphia. He called him and a quick conversation ensued, with Palma indicating that he was very busy.

Mao explained that the $1,000 paid to Gallo came from his own pocket According to him, in the Chinese community people generally carry cash, not checks. His restaurant business always deals in cash, a plentiful commodity in the casino setting.

Mao presented several character witnesses.[6] Peter Ho has known Mao for 30 years. They first met during their first year in college in Taiwan and were roommates. Ho left Taiwan in 1964 and attended Lincoln University, obtaining a BS in mathematics and than a Masters in mathematics at Lehigh and a Masters in computer sciences at the University of Pennsylvania. His doctorate is pending the completion of a thesis. Mr. Ho is employed by a defense contractor and has a secret security clearance.

Mr. Ho has a "social relationship" with Mao, who he sees approximately once a month or so. He describes them as "close friends" and is of the opinion that Mao is a "very honest person." In part because of the "nature of (his) job," Ho would never deal with anyone who he did not believe to be honest.

The witness described Mao as "sometimes a little naive." He doesn't really "know a whole lot of mundane details in life" and is very easy about giving his trust to people." In addition, he often uses incorrect words in English and has tremendous difficulty with certain English conversation. Ho and Mao always speak Chinese with each other.

Dr. John Fei testified that he has known Mr. Mao since 1982. Dr. Fei was born in Peking, China and came to the United States in 1946 as a graduate student at the University of Washington. He obtained his Ph.d in economics at MIT in 1952 and has taught at Harvard University, Antioch College, Cornell University and is now a full professor of economics at Yale, where he has served for the past 20 years. He met Mao through Peter Lu. At the time, Lu was thinking of starting a restaurant in Atlantic City. Dr. Fei is a shareholder in the Jade Beach Restaurant. He has become friendly with Mao over the years and sees him about five to six times a year. He has a "definite opinion" that Mao is "completely trustworthy" and fair to the absentee owners. He is "honest" "and a "timid personality." Having reviewed the transcripts of the conversations which were placed in evidence in this case, Dr. Fei saw nothing which changed his opinion of Mr. Mao. He believes that Mao was "trapped."Although he has heard Mao speak English, Fei always engages in conversations with Mao in Chinese.

[6]In addition to live testimony, he also offered R-9, a certification by Kenneth T.C. Hu.

Peter Lu, the president of Tung Hop, Inc. testified that he initiated the lease arrangements for the Jade Beach at the Tropicana, negotiating with Steve Bolson and Lee Gottlieb. Lu signed the lease personally and Mr. Mao was not involved until later on. The lease was later assigned to Tung Hop, Inc. Lu testified concerning the ten percent of gross and comps payments which the lease required. He negotiated these provisions. He never paid anyone at the Tropicana any illegal payments and knows of no such payments which were made. Twenty-five thousand dollars was taken from an escrow account for some construction work.

Mr. Lu was interviewed by a Mr Clements of Tropicana Security regarding an alleged payoff made to a high level executive at the Tropicana. He did mention this allegation to Mr. Mao. Lu denied any knowledge of anything with respect to the deal being negotiated for the Taj Mahal site and was not a partner in any such arrangements.

DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

I FIND that there is no dispute with respect to the fact that in connection with an attempt to obtain a restaurant site at the Taj Mahal, David Mao was prepared, and indeed agreed to pay, the sum of $25,000. It is further uncontested that he in fact handed over $1,000 in cash to Detective Gallo, posing as Richard Levin. Mao does not dispute that he understood both the $1,000 and the $25,000 payments as monies which were going to Levin and Palma.

The uncertain aspect of this case arises from the need to decide what exactly the actions, statements and agreements of Mao meant. Did he actually believe that he was paying legitimate real estate commissions, finders fees, or some such other lawful payments to individuals whom he legitimately believed were acting in a good faith manner on behalf of the Trump organization and who were authorized to receive such monies or was Mr. Mao instead a cunning, sharp businessman who, because he believed that acquisition of a restaurant at the Taj Mahal was a good business deal, was willing and in fact agreed to pay monies which he knew to be illegal to individuals who he knew would be receiving the monies for themselves, without any lawful authorization to do so, as a means of securing their aid and influence in tying up a lease with Trump. Was Mr. Mao the somewhat naive, innocent, occasionally befuddled person whose command of English occasionally was insufficient for the types of conversations in which he engaged as a businessman, or was he instead a wheeler-dealer, a person who knew full well that sometimes, in order to obtain what one wants in the business world, one must be willing to grease the palms of those who are in a position to secure what one wants, even if such payments are completely unlawful? If Mao actually believed that he was making lawful payments to legitimate recipients, then all of the allegations of conspiracy, criminal attempt, etc. fail.

In analyzing the above questions, the evidence presents certain aids. The tape recordings and transcripts allow an analysis of the flow of conversation from which one can attempt to detect nuances of meaning and/or indications of confusion. At the same time, the evidence is bereft of whatever assistance might be derived from the testimony of Jerry Palma. Nevertheless, this absence is not crucial in the analysis of the actual words spoken by him, Mao and Levin/Gallo during the course of their encounters, and certain background information against which these conversations can be measured.

Initially, there is not doubt as to how the sequence of events before us was initiated. There is no indication from the evidence that David Mao on his own attempted to approach Jerry Palma or anyone else from the Trump organization for the purpose of suggesting to them that he was so anxious to obtain a restaurant in the Taj Mahal, that he was willing to pay bribes, or offer kickbacks, so as to get the facility. Palma contacted Mao. He raised the question of Mao's interest in a restaurant, which in and of itself was not at all surprising in view of Mao's earlier contacts with the prior developers. Further Palma was the one who brought up the conversation concerning the $25,000 and the money which it cost Mao to get the Jade Beach.

The first, and perhaps most significant question, may be whether David Mao did in fact pay some illicit sum to anyone at the Tropicana to obtain the Jade Beach Restaurant, or whether, as he says, his conversations with Palma concerning monies paid and transactions entered for consideration, into with Mr. Bolson were in fact nothing more than conversations concerning the escrow account, and the approximately $25,000 which was retained by the Tropicana. If Mao indeed paid a bribe, then certainly there is good reason to believe he would have been willing to do so to obtain the Taj Mahal site. If on the other hand, as he asserts, he never did such a thing, and was not talking about such in his conversations with Palma and later with Levin/Gallo, and if in fact all of his conversations about payments for the Jade Beach were concerning completely lawful escrow monies, then there is much less reason to believe that Mao was the guilty character whom the Division paints him to be.

The testimony of Mao is explicit, direct and unequivocal as to his absolute denial of any payoffs to Steven Bolson or anyone else at the Tropicana. Indeed, Peter Lu's testimony indicates, and the lease seems to bear out, that it was he who negotiated with the Tropicana for the lease and that Mao was not even involved with the operation at the time that the lease was negotiated. The Division has offered no significant independent evidence that Mao was involved with initial site acquisition and lease arrangements at the Tropicana. If the suggestion is that monies were paid under the table prior to an agreement being reach between Tropicana and Lu and/or Mao, there is no affirmative evidence to support this, other than the alleged assertions of Mao and the hearsay with respect to what he purportedly said. As for this hearsay, John Lee's comments concerning what someone supposedly said and what he supposedly heard are at least double hearsay. Sharon Altman Eisenberg could recall little, if anything, about her conversations with Mao concerning the cost of the restaurant, but she vehemently denied that she ever heard any comments about bribes or kickbacks. The report concerning her purported statements during her interview, statements which she had little recollection of, was not entered in evidence. Mr. Bolson was not called to testify by either party.

Although there is no evidence that Mao was involved in negotiating the Jade Beach site acquisition or lease with the Tropicana, there is evidence that he was involved directly in discussions with Bolson concerning the duct work and the escrow account. Thus, his references to paying Bolson might well refer to these discussions and the ultimate retention by Tropicana of the approximately $25,000 from the escrow account. It seems clear that Mao and Bolson had a friendly relationship and that Mao viewed Bolson as the significant figure with whom he dealt at the Tropicana. His statements to Palma with respect to payments to Bolson may well reflect this friendship, this business relationship, and be devoid of any nefarious connotation.

There can be no question but that the $23,000 to $25,000 retained by Tropicana from the escrow account was a cost, an expense, which the Jade Beach owners incurred in establishing their restaurant. If one queried the owners as to how much the facility cost them and what expenses were involved in obtaining the restaurant, this expense certainly would be one, and one which might well stand out, in that it was not part of the cost of leasing the site, but was a separate, independent, extraordinary expense. Thus, comments concerning what it cost to get into the Tropicana might well elicit a response concerning this sum of money and when one couples this with the fact that Bolson was the Tropicana representative concerned with these arrangements, some loose, imprecise or relaxed form of conversation might well be construed as meaning that money was paid to Bolson for the facility.

Despite the above, there are additional considerations which argue against Mao's position as to his frame of reference with respect to the $25,000. Clearly, the costs involved in "getting" the Jade Beach, if they are associated with the escrow cost, also might include the cost of the chimney work itself, which Mao refers to as being $150,000, or, according to Lee's recollection, $300,000 (Sivetz report, P-4). To focus only on the $25,000 which was retained as escrow and ignore the other construction-related costs seems to reflect a narrow viewpoint of the "costs" involved. This might suggest that Mao was in fact aware that the $25,000 was not the escrow money, but was some other sort of payment which he made and which was more akin to the sort of payment which the state contends was arranging with Palma.

In addition, although Mao's testimony as to his knowledge of real estate commissions was not particularly revealing, one cannot be sure whether Mao had any understanding of which party to a lease arrangement might pay a real estate commission or finder's fee and whether such a commission would be paid to someone who was an employee or direct agent of the Trump organization, as Levin claimed to be, or whether Palma, who was asserting that he was about to become a vice president of the Trump organization, would receive an independent real estate commission separate and apart from the salary and other remuneration which he would receive as an employee of Trump. The record leaves one to speculate on these questions, which are certainly relevant considerations in deciding whether Mao could have legitimately thought that the requested $25,000 was a real estate commission.

In summary, the evidence concerning Mao's understanding of the monies requested from him by Palma and Levin is open to much debate. It is neither clearly established that he did in fact agree to pay a bribe nor is it clearly established that he was speaking solely of an innocent real estate commission. There are reasons to favor both opinions. The lack of any independent evidence of the payment of a prior bribe, the possibility that Mao did not really understand all of the business considerations or the relationships of the persons with whom he was dealing either with each other and/or the Trump organization, the possibility that his discussion of $25,000 and Bolson was related to the actuality of a relationship in which $25,000 became a significant point of discussion with Bolson in the escrow situation, and the possibility of linguistic confusion, all lead to a conclusion of innocence. On the other hand, the concern for the suspicious phrasing, for the seeming lack of connection between an escrow payment and the type of payment which Palma spoke of, the possibility that Mao really understood that employees and representatives of Trump would not be entitled to a real estate commission, and the difficulty in accepting Mao's contention that "unmarked" meant "cash" to him, without any illicit connotation, all weigh in favor of guilt. Added to these considerations must be the strong character testimony presented by distinguished gentlemen whose backgrounds and achievements speak strongly in favor of their belief in Mao's honesty and integrity, but who have strong friendships with him, and in one case a business relationship, which might sway their thinking, even if subconsciously.

Based on the above considerations and a consideration of Mr. Mao's demeanor, both at the hearing and as expressed in the tapes, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established by a bare preponderance of the credible evidence that David Mao did in fact agree to and did in fact pay to Palma and Gallo a sum of money which he knew to be illegal for the purpose for securing a favorable restaurant location at the Taj Mahal.[7] I emphasize that this determination, which is an extremely difficult one, is by no means based upon evidence which clearly establishes Mr. Mao's guilt. However, in this civil/administrative proceeding, the burden of proof which the Act places upon the Division to establish Mao's conduct as illegal and violative of statutory prohibitions is a mere preponderance of the credible evidence and not the higher civil standard of clear and convincing evidence, let alone the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Although it is irrelevant to this hearing, I could not FIND Mao's guilt by either of the higher standards. However, in this proceeding the proof is sufficient.

[7]In drawing the above conclusion, I am swayed by the factors stated above which argue against Mao's version of the situation. Among other concerns, I am unimpressed by his suggestion that he believed that the references to the "unmarked" nature of the payment was a neutral or innocent remark. Although Mr. Mao is not a native born American, and while there is no doubt some lack of fluency in English, his testimony and his statements on the transcripts do not depict to me any great difficulty in conversation, nor do I believe that the evidence of such difficulties convinces me that he would not have known from the nature and tenor of the conversation and the words spoken that there was something about Palma and Gallo's conversations which, coupled with remarks such about cash payments, in an envelope, unmarked, etc., and his expressed uncertainty as to the propriety of even dealing with Palma did not suggest some possible illegality.

In making the above finding, it is also necessary to add that the evidence as to whether or not Mao did make an illegal payment to anyone at the Tropicana in connection with Jade Beach is even less persuasive. On this issue, I FIND that the Division has failed to establish that Mao did engage in such conduct. However, this finding does not specifically relate to the allegations in the complaint that Mao acted improperly with respect to Palma and Gallo. Although a finding that he did make illegal payments for the Jade Beach would be highly suggestive as to the nature and intent of the conversations with the two agents, the guilt or innocence with respect to the Palma/Levin incidents stands separate and independent from any conclusions on the Jade Beach/Tropicana.

With respect to the conversations concerning comps, the evidence also fails to establish by a preponderance that Mao's conversations were intended to be discussions concerning illicit arrangements. It is quite clear from the discussions held between Mao and Levin/Gallo that when the agent pressed the issue of a comps arrangement and referred to the need for the arrangement to be made independent of the lease with Taj Mahal and to be made on the side, that Mao responded that such an arrangement involving a ten percent pay back or credit was not only legal, but was in fact incorporated into his lease with the Tropicana. Examination of the lease bears this out. Thus, while Palma and Levin were talking about something which they perceived as being an illegal kickback arrangement, Mao was under the impression that it was perfectly legitimate for a percentage of the comps expense to be paid back or taken back or credited to the casino. While there is some conversation by Levin about paying back money to the casino host, the conversation immediately moves to the discussion of the contract with Tropicana and Mao's belief in the legality of a ten percent payment. This conversation is extremely revealing and sufficient in my view to establish that David Mao did not believe that he was talking about making an illegal arrangement concerning comps with Palma and/or Levin. Thus, the Division's proofs fail to establish that this portion of the conversation was, from Mao's perspective, about illegal activity.

Good Character, Honesty and Integrity

In view of the above finding as to Mao's guilty conduct with respect to the Taj Mahal affair, I CONCLUDE that he has failed to establish by clear and convincing that he has the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure as a junket representative, as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-102(b), 89b2 and 90b. It hardly need be stressed that his conduct reveals a serious character flaw negating any such positive finding.[8]

Disqualification and Inimicality
Commercial Bribery

In addition to the determination concerning good character, honesty and integrity, Mao's conduct would, if prosecuted, have been sufficient to establish his commission of several offenses listed in subsection 86c of the Act, including N.J.S.A. 2C:21-10, commercial bribery. That statute provides that it is crime for an individual to > solicit(s), accept(s) or agree(s) to accept any benefit as consideration for knowingly violating or agreeing to violate a duty of fidelity to which he is subject as:

> (1) An agent, partner or employee of another; . . .
>
> c. A person commits a crime if he confers, or offers or agrees to confer, any benefit the acceptance of which would be criminal under this section.
> d. If the benefit offered . . . exceeds $1,000.00, but is less than $75,000.00, the offender is guilty of a crime of the third degree.

Both Jerry Palma and Richard Gallo represented to David Mao that they were employees and/or agents working on behalf of Donald Trump and the Trump organization. Clearly, had such relationship existed they would have been agents or employees of Trump. These individuals, purporting to act in such a fiduciary relationship, sought for themselves a payment to assure their favorable action with respect to conduct which would ultimately have been undertaken by their employer with respect to Mr. Mao and his restaurant interests. Such solicitation and [8]While the proofs as to the actuality of the criminal conduct are, as noted, only slightly in favor of the state, the serious questions raised by the evidence as to Mao's conduct make the determination that he has failed to establish his good character far more obvious, especially since the standard of proof required by the Act with respect to this issue is clear and convincing evidence and the burden of proof here falls on Mr. Mao.

acceptance of such monies would constitute the crime of commercial bribery. I FIND that Mr. Mao's conference of such violates subsection c of the statute, and that since the offer was $25,000, the gradation of the offense is at the third degree. As such, N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) provides that disqualification is automatic.

Criminal Attempt

In addition, N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1 provides that:

> A. Definition of attempt. A person is guilty of an attempt to commit a crime if, acting with the kind of culpability otherwise required for commission of the crime, he:
>
> (1) Purposely engages in conduct which would constitute the crime if the attendant circumstances were as a reasonable person would believe them to be;
>
> (2) When causing a particular result is an element of the crime, does or omits to do anything with the purpose of causing such a result without further conduct on his part; or
>
> (3) Purposely does or omits to do anything which, under the circumstances as a reasonable person would believe them to be, is an act or omission constituting a substantial step in a course of conduct planned to culminate in his commission of the crime.
> b. Conduct which may be held substantial step under subsection a.(3). Conduct shall not be held to constitute a substantial step under subsection a.(3) of this section unless it is strongly corroborative of the actor's criminal purpose.

I FIND that Mr. Mao's conduct in offering to pay, agreeing, and ultimately paying a portion of the initial payment of the bribe constitutes the type of conduct which the criminal attempt statute speaks to. Reasonably believing that Palma and Levin were in a position to act to assure him his goal, that is the choice location in the Taj Mahal, Mao not only engaged in discussions concerning the payment of the inducement, but also actually came forward with $1,000 as a partial downpayment on the bribe. Under these circumstances, his conduct was a "substantial step" in the course of conduct which he assumed would culminate in the commission of the crime, that is the crime of commercial bribery. Again, disqualification is automatic in view of the gradation of the offense, N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

Conspiracy

In addition, Mao's conduct would constitute a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2.86c(1). Conspiracy. This statute provides:

> a. Definition of conspiracy. A person is guilty of conspiracy with another person or persons to commit a crime if with the purpose of promoting or facilitating its commission he:
>
> (1) Agrees with such other person or persons that they or one or more of them will engage in conduct which constitutes such crime or an attempt or solicitation to commit such crime;
>
> (2) Agrees to aid such other person or persons in the planning or commission of such a crime or of an attempt or solicitation to commit such crime.
>
> d. Overt act. No person may be convicted of conspiracy to commit a crime other than a crime of the first or second degree or distribution or possession with intent to distribute a controlled dangerous substance . . . unless an overt act in pursuance of such conspiracy is proved to have been done by him or by a person with whom he conspired.

From Mr. Mao's point of view, his discussions with Palma and Levin were for the purpose of arranging the scheme by which he would obtain his restaurant location at the Taj Mahal through the intervention of these individuals acting as agents from the Trump organization. Their meetings were, as he believed, intended to iron out certain details of the arrangement Ultimately, Mao delivered $1,000 to Levin. This last act is a clear overt act upon which a charge of conspiracy may be established. As such, I CONCLUDE that Mao's conduct was violative of this statute, and he is automatically disqualified.

Misconduct by Corporate Official

Finally, the Division's complaint also charges a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-9. Misconduct by corporate official. This statute makes it a crime for a director or officer of a corporation to "purposely or knowingly use(s) control(s)d or operate(s) a corporation for the furtherance or promotion of any criminal object.

The difficulty with determining whether or not Mao violated this statute is simply that there is no clear evidence in connection with his actions with regard to the Taj Mahal that he was acting on behalf of anyone other than himself. Although he clearly expressed some intention to have partners involved with him in such an operation and ultimately it might well have been that a corporation would have been formed or conceivably even that Tung Hop, Inc. might have become involved with the Taj Mahal operation, it is not at all certain that this would have been the case. It seems best to conclude that Mao was acting on his own as an independent actor and therefore to conclude that he did not violate this statute in that it is not clear that he used the corporation to commit the crime. However, a conviction might lie, despite the above, if it were concluded that Mao did use $1,000 of corporate money to make the payment to Levin. The exact source of the funds used is not clear, as it may have been obtained from the restaurant, or might possibly have been from Mao's own funds. Under these circumstances the proof as to a violation of this particular statute is insufficient to conclude that the statute was violated.

Inimicality

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) provides that the commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant disqualified because he committed any offense, other than an automatic disqualification under c(1), which would make licensure inimical to the policy of the Act and to casino operations. Pursuant to 86g. the Division is permitted to establish the commission by such persons required to be qualified of any act or acts which would constitute an offense under subsection c. Thus, proof of the commission of an offense not an automatic disqualifier and not the subject of a conviction may still establish the conduct as inimical.

In view of the conclusions reached above, Mao is automatically disqualified from licensure under the dictates of section 86c(1). As such no determination as to inimicality is required.

Rehabilitation

Although there was no specific reference to the issue of rehabilitation during the hearing, in light of the determination above that the evidence has established that Mao's conduct amounted to the performance of several automatically disqualifying criminal actions, the Act requires consideration of whether he has established his rehabilitation from these disqualifications. Specifically, N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h provides for rehabilitation with respect to casino employee licenses and 91d allows for rehabilitation with respect to casino hotel employee registrations. Each provision contains a list of factors to be considered in connection with the determination of whether rehabilitation has been established. The burden of establishing rehabilitation falls on the licensee or registrant.[9]

A review of the testimony indicates that the necessary evidence for consideration of the rehabilitation issue has been presented. Specifically, there is evidence as to the nature and circumstances of the offense, the personal circumstances of Mao, and other factors which relate to the statutory criteria.

Based upon a review of the evidence, I cannot FIND rehabilitation. Specifically, Mr. Mao, a mature adult at the time of the commission of the offenses, engaged in commercial bribery, criminal attempt and conspiracy with relation to a business conducted in and under the auspices and authority of the Casino Control Commission. His attempt to influence supposed agents of a casino hotel operator was specifically associated with the conduct of a casino-related enterprise. Thus, the conduct is extremely serious and the context in which it occurred makes it doubly so. There is no indication of any social condition or any unusual circumstance which may have contributed to and in some way mitigated the offense. Although the evidence does not support any finding that this was a repeat offense, in that I have concluded that the evidence is insufficient to establish any prior bribery, the fact that this must be deemed an isolated incident is, in the context, not especially significant. The offense occurred in 1987 and Mao's indictment and completion of his pre-trial intervention program are recent events. Finally, Mao's testimony indicates that he is unwilling to admit that he did anything wrong. Under the circumstances, and in view of the finding that the preponderance of credible evidence establishes his guilty conduct, there is no basis for a finding of rehabilitation.

[9]The factors for consideration are (1) nature and duties of the position applied for; (2) nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct (3) circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred; (4) the date of the offense or conduct; (5) the age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed; (6) whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident; (7) any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct; (8) any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community . . . .

Failure to Cooperate

In addition to the previously considered reasons for disqualification, Count Two of the Complaint alleges that Mao failed to cooperate with the Division in connection with its requests for an interview and that such failure to cooperate violated his responsibilities under sections 80d and 86b of the Act.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-80d reads:

> All applicants, licensees, registrants, and any other person who shall be qualified pursuant to this act shall have the continuing duty to provide any assistance or information required by the commission or division, and to cooperate in any inquiry or investigation conducted by the division and any inquiry, investigation or hearing conducted by the commission. If, upon issuance of a formal request to answer or produce information, evidence or testimony, any applicant, licensee, registrant, or any other person who shall be qualified pursuant to this act refuses to comply, the application, license, registration or qualification of such a person may be denied or revoked by the commission.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b provides:

> Failure of the applicant to provide information, documentation and assurances required by the act or requested by the commission, or failure by the applicant to reveal any fact material to qualification, or the supplying of information which is untrue or misleading as to a material fact pertaining to the qualification criteria;

disqualifies such applicant.

The basis for the claim of a lack of cooperation arises as a result of a request to Mao made by Division Senior Agent Mark P. Sivetz by telephone on October 7, 1987. Mao was advised at the time that the Division was issuing a formal request to him to appear for a sworn interview and that he was required to comply pursuant to the Act. On October 8 Mao called Sivetz and agreed to appear at an interview scheduled for Atlantic City on October 13, 1987. On October 8, 1987 Sivetz sent Mao a letter (P-3 in evidence) in which he advised him of the formal request. This letter was actually signed by Mitchell A. Schwefel, Deputy Attorney General. It memorialized Sivetz understanding of Mao's confirmation of the October 8, 1987 appointment. The letter specifically advised the licensee of the requirement of cooperation with the Division in the performance of his duties, N.J.S.A. 5:12-79, and the requirements of subsection 80d.

Sivetz testified that he was in Atlantic City on October 13, anticipating Mao's arrival. He was contacted by Brian J. Molloy, Esq., counsel for Mao, who advised that Mao would not be appearing for the scheduled interview. Mao testified at the hearing that he was aware of Sivetz' request to appear, that he had received the October 8 letter, that he forwarded it to his attorney and that he did not appear at the Division interview, on advice of counsel.

In light of the prior conclusions which act to disqualify Mr. Mao from licensure, the issue of his failure to appear at the October 13 interview is superfluous. However, it is quite clear that despite the potential criminal investigation of which Mao might have been the target and in spite of the knowledge of the Division of the contents of the conversations between Mao, Palma and Gallo/Levin, the Division had every right to request Mao's appearance. Although Mao certainly retained his constitutional right to claim his Fifth Amendment privilege in response to questions asked of him at the interview, he had an obligation to appear at the interview and either answer questions in a truthful manner or assert the privilege. That he failed to appear because his counsel advised him not to was a tactical decision, but not one which insulated him from the duty to cooperate. While a claim of the Fifth Amendment might not in itself actually constitute cooperation, appearance at the interview to afford the Division the opportunity to present to Mao its requests for information and to obtain from him either such information or his refusal under the privilege was the type of cooperation demanded by section 80d of the Act. The Commission has afforded the cooperation requirement the "broadest possible" reading "in order to maximize the casinos' obligation to cooperate with the Commission and Division, this is in furtherance of the declaration of policy of the Casino Control Act . . ." which provides specifically in its declarations of policy, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) that in view of the public interest in casino operations and the exception to the general policy with respect to gambling in the state, > participation in casino operations as a licensee or registrant under this act shall be deemed a revocable privilege conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee or registrant and upon the discharge of the affirmative responsibility of each such licensee or registrant to provide to the regulatory and investigatory authorities established by this act any assistance and information necessary to assure that the policies declared by this act are achieved. See Div. of Gaming Enforcement v. Boardwalk Regency Corp., 11 N.J.A.R. 29, 85 (CCC 1983).

In view of the clear statutory requirements, Mr. Mao's refusal to appear was a violation of his obligations under the Act. The statute provides for a discretionary

In view of the clear statutory requirements, Mr. Mao's refusal to appear was a violation of his obligations under the Act. The statute provides for a discretionary revocation where such a violation occurs. Given the circumstances of this matter, such a disqualification is appropriate.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Mr. Mao's conduct in connection with the incidents related herein violated his obligations under the Act, and requires that his casino hotel employee registration be revoked, N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1). Therefore, his casino hotel employee registration must be revoked. In addition, because he lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required pursuant to the qualification standards applicable to junket enterprises and junket representatives, which are akin to those for casino employees, N.J.S.A. 5:12-102(b), his licensure as a junket representative also must be revoked. It is so ORDERED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDER

Complainant, :

v. :

RICHARD J. MARTINEZ, :

Respondent. :

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of November 1, 1989,

IT IS on this 8th day of January 1990, ORDERED that the recommendation to dismiss the complaint is rejected for the following reasons:

(1) Falsification of player rating forms in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-4(a) in order to obtain complimentaries is a serious regulatory matter. The Commission has frequently found offenses involving a compromise of complimentary services to be disqualifying pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c). See e.g., State v. Harold C. Harman, Docket No. 86-28 (Commission order November 7, 1989), where a casino employee supplied blank complimentary forms to fellow employees; State v. Trudy J. Seher, Docket No. 87-402 (Commission order March 10, 1988), and State v. Tracey R. Owens, Docket No. 86-212 (Commission order February 19, 1988), where employees made false entries into the casino computer so friends could receive complimentaries; State v. Joseph J. Tally, Docket No. 87-410 (Commission order March 9, 1988), which involved the receipt of complimentary meals using a forged complimentary service report, and State v. Michael P. Waters, Docket No. 84-419 (Commission order June 12, 1987), where a casino employee permitted a friend to use the names of hotel guests to receive complimentaries.

(2) The Commission disagrees with the ALJ's conclusion that the respondent has demonstrated his rehabilitation from his falsification offense. As noted above, the offense is considered particularly serious. The respondent repeatedly compromised both his licensure and employment by falsifying player rating forms in an attempt to secure complimentaries for his friend. That the respondent's employer suffered no loss due to his fraudulent activity does not diminish the seriousness of the offense. The initial decision reflects a personal disdain for the practice of issuing complimentaries which, in the Commission's judgment, improperly affected the ALJ's recommendation to dismiss the complaint. Moreover, the Commission does not consider "comping" to be a social condition which contributed to the offense within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h)(7). The issuance of complimentaries is a practice deeply rooted in gaming and legally sanctioned in New Jersey subject, of course, to strict regulatory scrutiny. N.J.S.A. 5:12-102(m); N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.46. Given this legislative mandate, the ALJ's personal disdain of the complimentary practice is irrelevant.

(3) The Commission finds that the favorable evidence presented by the respondent which consisted of his own testimony, two letters of reference and a technical school transcript is insufficient to conclude that he demonstrated his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h) and 91(d).

(4) Upon consideration of the entire record, relying essentially upon the same evidence noted above, the Commission further concludes that the respondent has failed to establish his good character, honesty and integrity as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)(2) and 90(b).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent's casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration are revoked; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Richard J. Martinez is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any license, registration, qualification or approval required under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:48-8.8.

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on October 21, 1986, seeking to revoke the respondent's casino employee license on the grounds that the respondent falsified rating slips to provide preferential treatment to a customer. The respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A hearing was held on June 1, 1987, and an initial decision was filed on August 21, 1987. The matter was remanded to the OAL by Order of the Commission on November 2, 1987. On November 18, 1988, the respondent failed to attend a hearing and an initial decision was issued on November 29, 1988. On February 15, 1989, the respondent provided the Commission with an explanation for his nonappearance and the matter was again remanded to the OAL for plenary hearing. The matter was tried to a conclusion on August 18, 1989.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This case involves the records kept for the purpose of rewarding casino patrons for their time and effort at a casino's gaming tables.

A patron asked Martinez to submit false records to the casino concerning the amount of time the patron actually gambled in order that the patron could maintain his rating as a "high roller".

Martinez complied with the patron's request. He was discovered, arrested, and charged with theft. Later, the theft charges were dismissed. The Division has elected to proceed on the theory that Martinez uttered false business records with the intent to deceive his employer. A criminal statute, N.J.S.A. 2C:21-4a, proscribes such conduct.

CASINO CONTROL ACT

The New Jersey Casino Control Act (Act) N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. requires employees of the casino industry to meet strict licensing requirements if they perform jobs on the casino floor. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90 . The requirements are more strict for certain "key" employees, N.J.S.A. 5:12-89, less so for hotel employees N.J.S.A. 5:12-91. One requirement is that applicants and licensees not be convicted of certain enumerated crimes. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c 1 and 90e. The Division may establish that an applicant or licensee committed conduct which would constitute an offense enumerated in the Act even if the conduct was not prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g. If they have been so convicted, applicants and employees must affirmatively demonstrate their rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. Additionally, casino employees must prove by clear and convincing evidence that they possess good character, honesty and integrity. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b.

ISSUES

Because Martinez was alleged to have fraudulently prepared gambling records, and despite the fact that theft charges were later dismissed, the following issues are raised in this licensing proceeding.

Did Martinez' conduct constitute the crime of falsification or tampering with records contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:21-4a?

If so, is Martinez therefore disqualified from casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c1 and 90e?

If disqualified, can Martinez show that he is rehabilitated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h?

Does Martinez possess the good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensing required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b?

DISCUSSION AND DISQUALIFICATION

The Legislature and the Commission have approved a system of rewards for casino patrons which is generally described as "comping." This is a slang abbreviation for "complimentaries." Complimentaries are services or items furnished to patrons at no cost or at reduced cost. N.J.S.A. 5:12-14a, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.9.

The industry has developed an elaborate scheme for awarding complimentaries to players. At Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino, where Martinez was employed, patrons were rated as A, B, C or D players. A formula has been devised which includes the amount of money bet by a player, the amount of time spent at the tables, how many chips were purchased and whether a player wins or looses. A floor person records this information on players by filling out rating cards. The pit boss checks the rating card and instructs the pit clerk to enter the information into the casino's computer. Points are then assigned to a player based on these factors. The acquisition of a thousand points or more means an "A" rating. A "B" rating is the accumulation of 500 to 999 points. A "C" player has 250 to 499 points and a "D" player has acquired 100 to 249 points. Based upon these ratings, complimentaries are given. An "A" rated player is entitled to the most complimentaries. Any rating must be maintained by frequent play or it is lost.

In 1986, Joseph Scamardella was an "A" rated player at Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino. He sometimes bought chips with cash, sometimes on credit. Scamardella became friendly with Harrah's dealers and employees. Richard Martinez, the respondent, became especially close to Scamardella. He had access to Scamardella's yacht which was docked at Harrah's Marina. He had dinner at Scamardella's home. He met Scamardella in Puerto Rico and stayed with him as a guest at the El San Juan Casino.

Scamardella was concerned to keep his "A" rating. On some occasions when he did not feel like playing or was to ill to play, he asked Martinez "to put in some time for him." By this Scamardella meant for Martinez to fill out a rating card indicating that Scamardella played at the casino even though he did not play in fact. Martinez did this, by his own admission, about 15 times. Martinez knew the purpose of the rating cards, he was both a dealer and a floor person.

It appears that Scamardella did not actually require the false rating slips filled in by Martinez. Apparently Scamardella lost enough money regularly at the casino to have earned an "A" rating all by himself. But Martinez did not know this.

When Martinez turned in a rating card which contained false information to the pit boss, he knew that Harrah's Marina and Casino Hotel, his employer, would rely upon that rating card for the purpose of assigning points to Scamardella. He also knew that, based upon those points, Harrah's would in all likelihood, "comp" Scamardella. In other words, the Casino would give Scamardella some complimentary items as a reward for his faithful attendance at their gaming tables. By doing so, Martinez violated a criminal statute, N.J.S.A. 2C:21-4a, which makes the falsification of a record, or the uttering of a false record, a criminal act if the actor intends to deceive or injure anyone. Martinez intended to deceive Harrah's casino, his employer. He wanted Harrahs to think Scamardella played when in fact he did not play at the casino.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that Richard Martinez committed conduct which would constitute the offense proscribed by N.J.S.A. 2C:21-4a, and I further CONCLUDE that he is disqualified from casino employee licensure because N.J.S.A. 2C:21-4a is an offense listed in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

REHABILITATION

A licensed casino employee who has been disqualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c and 90e can nevertheless retain his license by affirmatively demonstrating his rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. The following facts must be considered: (1) The nature and duties of the position applied for; (2) the nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct; (3) the circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred; (4) the date of the offense or conduct; (5) the age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed; (6) whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident; (7) any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct; (8) any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

I FIND that:

1. The respondent is dual rated as a floor person and will have continuous patron contact.

2. The offense is not serious. No harm occurred.

3. The offense occurred in a casino and was an abuse of the respondent's authority. He was expected to accurately and honesty record a patrons bets, playing time, and wins and losses. He falsified these in order to help his friend look like a bigger loser than he really was.

4. The offense occurred on June 28, 1986.

5. The respondent was 25 years old when the offense occurred.

6. The offense occurred approximately 15 times over a period of a year.

7. Comping casino patrons is legal. That said, there is nothing else to recommend the practice but its efficacy in keeping patrons playing past their time. That is why Martinez' conduct was not serious and should be excused.

8. The State's witness who actually discovered the respondent's false entries testified that Martinez was an excellent employee and has learned his lesson. She would welcome him back to the industry. A former supervisor describes him as "above all honest." The respondent and others described what he did as a mistake. The respondent reiterated over and over how sorry he was and that it would not happen again. In addition, the respondent has returned to school and has a perfect 4.00 (A) average.

I CONCLUDE that the respondent has demonstrated his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence.

GOOD CHARACTER, HONESTY AND INTEGRITY

In addition to the rehabilitative evidence, the respondent submitted letters testifying to his good character, honesty and integrity. He also relied on his expressions of remorse, the fact that he intended no harm, and his honest explanations to the police when apprehended, to illustrate his good character. Martinez appears to be a shy person; he was somewhat reticent in his testimony. I observe that the respondent was naive. He is not so naive now. Even persons with the highest reputation for good character, honesty and integrity make mistakes. This respondent has paid for his mistake. I CONCLUDE that the respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b.

I ORDER that the complaint filed herein be DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: October 31, 1989 Decided: December 15, 1989

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

This matter concerns the application of Robert A. May (petitioner) for licensure as a casino employee under the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.). By letter report to the Casino Control Commission dated August 19, 1988, the Division of Gaming Enforcement raised questions concerning the petitioner's qualification for licensure. The Commission subsequently afforded the petitioner an opportunity for a hearing.

The petitioner's request for a hearing was received by the Commission on October 11, 1988. On November 1, 1988, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted by Administrative Law Judge Edgar R. Holmes on January 20, 1989.

A hearing in this matter was conducted by the undersigned on March 17, 1989. On May 14, 1989, an initial decision was issued which recommended to the Casino Control Commission that the application of the petitioner for licensure as a casino employee be granted.

On May 19, 1989, the Division of Gaming Enforcement filed a motion with the Casino Control Commission seeking an order for remand or to reopen the hearing, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.5(b). Although the Division did not take exception to the initial decision, it requested that the matter be remanded because the Division had learned since the hearing that the petitioner had been convicted of shoplifting, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-11, on March 8, 1988. This evidence was not placed on the record during the hearing because the Division was not aware of it and the petitioner did not volunteer it.

After considering the matter at its public meeting of June 21, 1989, the Commission on June 30, 1989, ordered that the matter be remanded to the Office of Administrative Law for consideration of the following issues:

(1) What effect, if any, does the applicant's March 8, 1988, conviction have upon his qualification for licensure and registration as a casino employee;

(2) What effect, if any, does the applicant's failure to reveal the conviction have upon his qualification for licensure and registration as a casino employee.

The Office of Administrative Law received the remand from the Commission on July 20, 1989. By letter dated September 25, 1989, the parties were advised that a telephone prehearing conference should be arranged and that a mutually agreeable hearing date would then be set. The parties agreed to participate in a telephone prehearing conference on October 20, 1989. This scheduling was confirmed by a Notice of Telephone Prehearing Conference which was sent to the parties on October 13, 1989.

At the scheduled time of 4:00 p.m. on October 20, 1989, the petitioner failed to be available to participate in the telephone prehearing conference. More than ten days have passed since the scheduled prehearing date. During this period, the petitioner has not contacted the Office of Administrative Law to offer any explanation for his failure to participate. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioner no longer seeks relief. In accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a), I dismiss the matter before the Office of Administrative Law and return it to the Casino Control Commission for appropriate disposition in accordance with the Casino Control Act and regulations promulgated thereunder.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: November 13, 1989 Decided: December 1, 1989

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter is in the Office of Administrative Law on remand to explore issues which the Casino Control Commission believed require further development. The original Initial Decision is incorporated herein by reference. Specifically, the Order of Remand directs the following:

(1) further information concerning the circumstances of Ms. Mays' offense, including, but not limited to, the date of her arrest for conspiracy to distribute CDS and any and all police reports pertaining to the arrest;

(2) whether or not Ms. Mays failed to disclose her arrest for conspiracy on the Personal History Disclosure Form - 2A filed October 16, 1986, a copy of which is to be included in the record on remand;

(3) further discussion as to the issue of rehabilitation and, in particular, the weight ascribed to Ms. Mays' character references;

(4) further inquiry as to whether Alfred M. Smith, Ms. Mays' former supervisor at Resorts International Hotel and Casino, was aware of her conviction at the time he wrote the letter of reference entered as exhibit R-2.

The parties stipulated at the outset that petitioner was arrested approximately one week after she filed her Personal History Disclosure Form (PHDF) and thus could not have disclosed this, and that the police reports in the matter focus on the other conspirators. A review of these reports provides additional insight into the conclusion already reached by the sentencing judge and noted in the original Initial Decision that petitioner's role in this conspiracy was limited.

With respect to the third issue noted by the Commission, the character letters which she submitted were given little weight. A number of the letters are addressed to the sentencing judge and do not go to petitioner's post-sentencing rehabilitation. These letters, as well as some of the others in evidence, tend to show that she comes from a family which is well-respected in the community. Letters from casino supervisors show that she is a conscientious and able employee. Her probation officer wrote that she was "consistent with her reporting, and has complied with all conditions of her probation." Moreover, at the prior hearing of the matter, her father and brother spoke of this incident as one mistake in an otherwise well-directed life. All of this information aids her cause. However, in the effort to understand whether an applicant is rehabilitated, we must try to separate her own positive acts from the reputations and good deeds of those around her who are legitimately interested in her success. It does appear that she is an able worker and she has not been involved in any subsequent offense. Nevertheless, approximately five weeks after her conviction, petitioner filed a false employment application with Resorts in which she denied ever having been convicted of a crime. She testified at the original hearing that she just wanted to get through the door and that she subsequently disclosed her conviction. In support of that testimony, Mr. Alfred M. Smith, her supervisor at Resorts, submitted a second letter for purposes of the remand hearing in which he states that approximately one week after petitioner was hired she discussed with him her conviction for "possession of a controlled dangerous substance." It does appear, therefore, that Mr. Smith was aware that petitioner had been involved in some type of drug-related offense at the time he wrote his very supportive original letter. In my own view, however, this does not mitigate the false statement. Were that so, applicants would be free to say as they pleased on these forms, only to explain after they were hired and after the employer has some investment in them that they had withheld derogatory information.

Finally, petitioner had testified during the original hearing that she applied for a position at Trump Plaza in March 1989, and that she disclosed her 1986 drug offense at that time. Respondent did not have this application available at the original hearing. The application was produced on remand and shows that though petitioner did acknowledge a conviction, it was for assault and battery on a police officer in 1978. The box on the form specifically directs that a separate sheet be used if there is no room to complete the list of offenses. Petitioner testified that she was in a hurry when she completed this form and though she intended to attach a separate sheet disclosing the 1986 drug offense, she forgot to do so. She also testified that her supervisors at Trump Plaza were made aware of her offense. I do not accept that petitioner simply forgot to list the more recent offense; it appears rather that she chose to disclose the remote incident. This is consistent with her earlier behavior.

The balance of evidence in the original hearing led to the conclusion that the brief period of time which had passed since petitioner's sentencing, in combination with her false application to Resorts, did not permit the inference that she had been rehabilitated. The Trump Plaza application now further undermines her cause. Based on the record of both hearings, it is ORDERED that petitioner's application to renew her casino hotel employee license be DENIED and that her casino hotel registration be REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CCC 3492-89
AGENCY DKT. NO. 89- EA-397

APPLICATION OF
KEVIN E. MUNN FOR A
CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSE

Kevin E. Munn, petitioner, pro se.
R. Lane Stebbins, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Peter N. Perretti, Jr., Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney).

Record Closed: November 28, 1989 Decided: January 12, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

On March 27, 1989, the Division of Gaming Enforcement delivered a letter to the Casino Control Commission (CCC) recommending that it deny the casino employee license application of Kevin E. Munn. On May 8, 1989, the CCC received a request for a hearing from the applicant. On May 11, 1989, the CCC transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was held on August 31, 1989. The prehearing order recited three issues to be resolved at a plenary hearing.

The first issue to be resolved is whether applicant's employee licensure would be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act (Act) because he is alleged to have committed theft contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-7. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(2) and 90e. Section 86g of the Act permits such a proceeding even though, as here, the State has not prosecuted the conduct. Part of the inimicality analysis includes the concept of rehabilitation. Donna Davis 8 N.J.A.R. 301, 314. Rehabilitation is therefore a second issue to be determined.

The third issue for resolution is whether the applicant possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for casino employee licensing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b2 and 90b.

Applicant is a well regarded casino hotel registrant who enjoys the confidence and respect of his supervisors at the Showboat Hotel and Casino. He has also enjoyed rapid promotion and, in a very short period of time, has risen to the position of convention service supervisor. He has also won kudos from clients of the hotel's convention service.

Unfortunately, on September 10, 1985, while visiting at a friend's house, a coworker sold the applicant two VCR's stolen from Trump Castle Hotel and Casino, the applicant's then employer. The coworker told the applicant he had VCR's to sell at $100 each. The applicant bought two, his friend bought three. When the applicant saw the VCR's, he knew immediately that they were stolen from Trump Castle because they still had the shipping labels attached to the containers. He was "afraid", however, to renege on the sale because he would not "get his money back."

Of course the theft was discovered, the applicant was arrested, and he was admitted to the pretrial intervention program and so escaped from this ordeal without a criminal record, although the applicant described the discomfort he felt when his own family perceived him as a thief.

But for this event, the applicant has no other criminal arrests. He reported that as a juvenile he was twice apprehended; once for possessing firecrackers, and once for being out on the ice. These are insignificant police contacts.

During the course of his testimony, the applicant detailed a long history of drug abuse resulting in his voluntary admission into a drug rehabilitation program for approximately thirty days in the early summer of 1989. He said that he smoked marijuana for six or seven years and used cocaine for six months prior to his admission into the rehabilitation facility. His drug habit cost him $200 or $300 per week according to his testimony.

Apparently there was nothing humbling about the applicant's experience of drug addiction and his subsequent entry into a rehabilitation program. He indicated that "compared to the people I see licensed now, I stand out among most people." Unfortunately, the applicant is too "busy" to keep up with his attendance at N.A. meetings although he recognized the necessity of attending meetings in his testimony.

In order to raise the issue of inimicality, the Division must prove that an offense was committed. The applicant has admitted his purchase of two VCR's, which he valued at $300 each, knowing that the VCR's had been stolen. This constitutes the crime of receiving stolen property, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-7. The offense is a crime of the third degree because the amount involved exceeds $500, but is less than $75,000. N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2). The offense would also constitute a statutory disqualifier according to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). Section 86 c(1) of the Act enumerates the criminal statutes for the conviction of which any applicant would be disqualified from casino employee licensure. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90e. However, in this case, it is unnecessary to make that determination, as will be seen below. A statutory disqualifier, pursuant to 86c(1), was not alleged in the Division's letter of objection to the Commission, and it was not mentioned in the prehearing order.

As a result of the Division's proofs and the applicant's admissions, I FIND that the applicant committed an offense.

Because the stolen items which the applicant received were stolen from the applicant's employer, a New Jersey licensed casino and because the applicant admitted a history of drug abuse which included the use of, and receipt of, drugs in a casino facility, I CONCLUDE that the applicant has committed an offense which would render his licensure inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and to gaming operations.

I come reluctantly to this conclusion. The theft offense appeared to be aberrant behavior for this applicant. In addition, he was twenty years old when it occurred; still a youth. He has no police record. His supervisors appear to have great confidence in him. He was admitted to pretrial intervention and completed community service. The offense occurred more than four years ago.

The applicant's drug use was not an issue at the prehearing conference; he only blurted it out at the plenary hearing. He meant only to illustrate that he was drug free and to contrast himself favorably with other licensees whom he supposes to be drug users.

The information therefore appeared gratuitously in the record and results, in part, from the applicant's attempt to be honest concerning his background Nevertheless, he acknowledged on cross examination that he frequently worked while "high" and that he also received drugs at casino hotels. These illegal acts were apparently repeated on numerous occasions. Coupled with the theft offense, they lead to the conclusion that the applicant's licensure would be inimical to the policy of the Act. The Act emphasizes that legalized gambling must be maintained free of any criminal influence in order to retain public confidence and trust. N.J.S.A 5 12 1(7).

For all of the reasons above, I also CONCLUDE that the applicant has failed to establish by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b.

I ORDER that the application for casino employee licensure filed herein be denied.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Respondent.

A hearing in this matter having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of January 24, 1990,

IT IS on this 31st day of January 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is rejected for the following reasons:

(1) the Commission rejects the ALJ's conclusion that the respondent bore the burden of proving rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. This finding is contrary to to the Commission's decision in State v. Michael P. Waters, Docket No. 84-419 (Commission order June 12, 1987) and State v. Thomas J. Pullman, Docket No. 89-128 (Commission order October 19, 1989). In cases involving a per se disqualifier under section 86(c)(1) of Act, the rehabilitation factors are considered after a finding of disqualification is made. Rehabilitation must then be proven by clear and convincing evidence. In cases involving an inimical offense under section 86(c)(2), the rehabilitation criteria must be considered prior to a determination that an offense is inimical. In a revocation proceeding, the burden of proving an inimical offense rests with the Division of Gaming Enforcement - it does not shift to the respondent;

(2) the Commission finds that the respondent has been convicted of an inimical offense based upon the insufficiency of the rehabilitation evidence, specifically considering the recency of the offense, the repeated number of times the respondent compromised his employment by procuring complimentary credits, and the absence of any affirmative evidence such as witnesses or references;

(3) the Commission finds that in light of the absence of rehabilitation evidence, the respondent has failed to demonstrate his good character, honesty and integrity; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent's casino hotel employee registration is revoked; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Joseph E. Nocera is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any license, registration, qualification or approval required under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter concerns the complaint filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on July 6, 1989, seeking the revocation of the casino employee license of the respondent, Joseph E. Nocera, pursuant to the provisions of the Casino Control Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.

Based on the application of Deputy Attorney General James J. Armstrong, on behalf of the Division, the casino employee license of the respondent was suspended after the filing of the Division's complaint. Mr. Nocera requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on August 7, 1989, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A telephone prehearing conference was held by Administrative Law Judge Joseph F. Fidler on September 12, 1989, and at that time the parties agreed that the issues in this matter are:

1. Has the respondent been convicted of wrongful impersonation, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:21-17, and if so, would his continued licensure as a casino employee be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.) and to casino operation, pursuant to section 86c(2) of the Act.

2. Has the respondent established by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act.

After the prehearing conference, the matter was transferred to the undersigned for the purpose of hearing the case and rendering an initial decision. The hearing took place on November 6, 1989, at the Office of Administrative Law in Atlantic City, New Jersey, and the record in the matter closed on that date.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

I FIND the facts in this matter are not in dispute.

While employed as a security guard by Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino (Harrah's), Mr. Nocera applied for and obtained a Harrah's Gold Card, which is a type of card that is given to patrons of the casino. As these Gold Card-holding patrons gamble, they are given complimentary credits. These credits have a monetary value and can be used by the patrons to purchase drinks, meals, etc. in the casino.

According to Mr. Nocera, he obtained the Gold Card as a joke and he did not impersonate anyone. Mr. Nocera stated that he was in his security uniform, with his name and his security badge clearly visible, when he submitted the Gold Card application. Mr. Nocera used the name of Kirk Slemmer, his friend's brother on the application; however, he stated that the person who issued the card knew him and knew he was using the name of someone else.

On several occasions, Mr. Nocera, while in his security uniform, gave the Gold Card to a slot attendant who assigned complimentary credits to the name on the card. Over a period of time, Mr. Nocera accumulated $166.00 in credits on the Gold Card. Mr. Nocera stated that the slot attendants who gave him these credits knew who he was and knew that his name was not on the card. However, on one occasion Mr. Nocera got complimentary credits placed on his card by representing that he was holding the card of a patron who had just hit a jackpot. Mr. Nocera admitted that on this one occasion there was a misrepresentation.

Mr. Nocera was arrested at Harrah's on May 5, 1989, and was charged with wrongful impersonating, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-17 (P-1). At the time of his arrest, Mr. Nocera stated that he had used the card to get complimentary credits on four or five occasions and that he never intended to use the credits to purchase anything at the casino (P-1). Mr. Nocera stated that neither his friend nor the friend's brother knew about the card. Thereafter, Mr. Nocera pled guilty and paid a fine of $75.00 and court costs of $30.00 (P-2). When he pled guilty, Mr. Nocera did not think that his action on the guilty plea would have any effect on his casino employee license.

As a result of his May 5, 1989 arrest, Mr. Nocera lost his job at Harrah's. Mr. Nocera had worked for Harrah's for about 20 months. About 30 days thereafter, he became employed as a security officer at Bally's Grand Hotel and Casino (Bally's). Mr. Nocera worked for Bally's for about three or four months and lost his job when his casino employee license was suspended by the Commission.

Mr. Nocera then worked as a security guard for Onclove Condominiums in Atlantic City for about four months. He lost this job because of a disagreement regarding the shift he was to work. Shortly before the hearing in this matter, Mr. Nocera obtained a job as a waiter at the Embassy Restaurant, and he is also working for Pyramid Concrete.

Mr. Nocera is 27 years old, single with no dependents, and considers himself to be a jokester and a prankster. Mr. Nocera knew it was wrong and a mistake for him to obtain a Harrah's Gold Card but did it as a joke. He wanted to see how many credits he could get on the card; however, he stated that he never intended to use the credits to purchase anything, nor did he intend to give the card to someone else.

Mr. Nocera felt that he has paid for his mistake because he was embarrassed and humiliated when he was arrested on the floor of the casino and he had financial problems after he lost his job. Also after his arrest, he had an argument with his girl friend and she "kicked" him out of their apartment. He now lives in a rooming house in Atlantic City.

Mr. Nocera does not have a previous criminal record. He had been arrested on two occasions when he was between 18 and 20 years old for the nonpayment of traffic tickets.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

In this matter, Deputy Attorney General Armstrong argued that the facts show that the respondent pled guilty to the offense of wrongful impersonating, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-17. Although this criminal action is not an automatic statutory disqualifier, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), Mr. Armstrong argued that this action is inimical to the policy of the Act, and that it constitutes a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

Based on the respondent's admissions during the hearing, I CONCLUDE that the Division has shown a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-17, which is not an automatic disqualifier, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). In order to decide whether this conduct is inimical, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)2, it is necessary to consider the circumstances underlying the incident as well as the respondent's subsequent conduct, i.e., his rehabilitation. Donna Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985); In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244 (1979). Therefore, it is appropriate to look at the following standards, which are set forth in the Act as factors which the Commission shall consider in order to determine whether the individual has demonstrated rehabilitation:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendations of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision. [N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h]

As to rehabilitation, the respondent was a mature person at the time he commited the disorderly persons offense of wrongful impersonating; however, this is his only criminal offense.

Although, as argued by Deputy Attorney General Armstrong, the respondent used the card on several occasions to obtain complimentary credits, I CONCLUDE that the respondent's obtaining and use of the Harrah's Gold Card was a single foolish incident. As a result of this incident, Mr. Nocera was arrested, he lost his casino job and his casino employee license was temporarily suspended. All of this has had a substantial impact on Mr. Nocera, and I accept his statement that if his casino employee license were restored there would be no repetition of this behavior or any similar incidents.

In view of the facts, and notwithstanding that the disorderly persons offense occurred only six months ago, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Nocera has shown by clear and convincing evidence that he is rehabilitated pursuant to the standards contained in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. Also, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Nocera's action does not constitute an inimical offense pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

Deputy Attorney General Armstrong also argued that because of his criminal conduct, Mr. Nocera cannot show by clear and convincing evidence that he has the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b. Based on the facts in this matter, I CONCLUDE that the respondent has shown by clear and convincing evidence that he has the necessary good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b.

Therefore, I ORDER that the casino employee license of Joseph E. Nocera not be revoked.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed; and a reply to the exceptions having been filed; and additional briefs having been filed at the Commission's request; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of May 2, 1990,

IT IS on this 10th day of May 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

(1) The ALJ purports to quote N.J.S.A. 2C:2-8d on page 8 of the initial decision. However, the quote provided is from the pre-1983 version of this statute. The statute was amended to delete the very language quoted by the ALJ and to substitute the following: "...if by reason of such intoxication the actor at the time of his conduct did not know the nature and quality of the act he was doing, or if he did know it, that he did not know what he was doing was wrong." L. 1983, c. 306, eff. Aug. 26, 1983; and

(2) The ALJ stated that, "a court of competent jurisdiction has determined that the petitioner was neither guilty of Burglary... nor Theft by Unlawful Taking.... The Court specifically referenced petitioner's intoxication as substantial grounds to excuse or justify petitioner's conduct." Init. dec. at 8. This statement is glaringly inaccurate. Because the applicant pled guilty to the downgraded charge of criminal trespass in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:18-3, he was never tried on the burglary or theft charges much less acquitted of them. Moreover, although the sentencing judge referred to the applicant's intoxication as a "mitigating factor...tending to excuse or justify the defendant's conduct," he further indicated that these factors were insufficient to establish a defense from the offense of criminal trespass; and

(3) The Commission hereby finds that the applicant did commit the third degree offense of theft by unlawful taking, a disqualifying offense pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(1) and (g) but that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h), he has established his rehabilitation by a preponderance of the evidence in the record. Unfortunately rehabilitation is not available pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89.

The applicant pled guilty to the fourth degree offense of criminal trespass which requires "knowing" conduct. (N.J.S.A. 2C:18-3a). In accepting the applicant's guilty plea, the sentencing judge considered and rejected his intoxication as a defense. While this conviction does not preclude the applicant from raising the defense of intoxication to the offense of theft, we believe that it significantly undermines that defense. In addition, the evidence suggests purposeful conduct in that the applicant took the money only after a thorough and careful search and that the applicant thereafter attempted to conceal his actions by secreting the money in a sock and hiding it under a tree. In light of these facts the Commission cannot find that the applicant's faculties were so prostrate that he was incapable of forming "the purpose to deprive" required for this offense.

Among the more significant factors which compel the Commission to conclude that the applicant has been rehabilitated are: the applicant's intoxication at the time of the offense; the fact that the offense took place three years ago, his lack of a prior or subsequent criminal record; his successful rehabilitation from alcoholism; and his outstanding record in the casino industry.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Brian S. O'Neill's application for renewal of his casino employee license is granted and his application for a casino key employee license is denied substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Brian S. O'Neill is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any other license, registration, qualification or approval required under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) alleges that petitioner, Brian S. O'Neill, engaged in conduct which constitutes a disqualifying offense, as provided by section 86g of the Casino Control Act (Act) and, therefore, it objects to the issuance of a casino key employee license to petitioner and to the renewal of his casino employee license. The Division also alleges that petitioner lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for either license.

On August 2, 1988, the Division filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) objecting to the petitioner's application for a casino key employee license. Subsequently, on March 20, 1989, the Division filed a letter with the Commission objecting to the renewal of petitioner's casino employee license. On April 13, 1989, the matter was transmitted from the Commission to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was held on June 29, 1989, at which, among other things, the date of September 25, 1989 was established for the hearing. The hearing was adjourned at the request of petitioner's counsel due to the unavailability of a witness. The matter was rescheduled for December 15, 1989 and was heard on that date at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The record closed on December 15, 1989. Application for an extension to execute this initial decision was granted.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this tribunal and as agreed to by the parties at the prehearing conference are these:

A. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for the renewal of his casino employee license, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in Section 90b of the Casino Control Act (Act)?

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino key employee license, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2)?

C. Whether the petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:30-3 Theft?

4. Whether the petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation for the renewal of his casino employee license pursuant to Section 90h of the Act?

FINDINGS OF FACTS

Based upon the testimony and documents proffered at the hearing and having given fair weight thereto, I FIND the following FACTS in this matter:

Petitioner, who was 29 years of age at the time of hearing, was arrested on April 26, 1987 by the Brigantine, New Jersey Police Department and charged with Burglary, N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2a (1), and Theft of Movable Property, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3a. The alleged offenses were committed upon Ms. Bonnie Putterman and Ms. Diane Sullivan. The two women resided in an apartment above the apartment occupied by petitioner and his roommate at 1006 East Beach Avenue, Brigantine, New Jersey.

On Sunday April 26, 1987, petitioner consumed three, six-packs of 12 ounce cans of beer and became extremely intoxicated. At a time not set forth on the record but before five o'clock in the afternoon of April 26, 1987, petitioner entered the apartment of Ms. Putterman and Ms. Sullivan and took money belonging to both women. Ms. Putterman and Ms. Sullivan were not in the apartment when petitioner entered and took the money. Subsequently, Ms. Putterman observed that money was missing from a dresser drawer in her bedroom and immediately telephoned the Brigantine Police. Ms. Sullivan also discovered that money had been taken from her bedroom and from a purse located in the apartment living room.

Petitioner, who was in an extreme state of intoxication, placed the money in a sock and hid the sock under a tree behind the apartments. Petitioner subsequently revealed the location of the money when interrogated by the police.

On May 21, 1987, the Atlantic County Grand Jury handed up a two count Indictment No. 87-05-0919B against petitioner charging him with sections 18-2 and 20-3 offenses of the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice. On October 9, 1987, petitioner appeared before the Honorable Robert Neustadter, J.S.C., with counsel and entered a plea of guilty to one count of the Indictment which had been amended from Burglary to the fourth degree offense of Criminal Trespass, N.J.S.A. 2C:18-3a. Judge Neustadter sentenced petitioner to: Probation, one year; Atlantic County Jail, one day with one day credit served; a fine of $1,000 to be paid within one year of the probationary period; Alcohol counseling; Community Service of 50 hours; $30 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (VCCB). In addition, the victims, Ms. Putterman and Ms. Sullivan, have had their monies fully restored to them.

In his reasons for sentencing petitioner, Judge Neustadter found one aggravating factor, the need to deter petitioner and others from violating the law; and, seven mitigating factors. One of those mitigating factors was petitioner's intoxication which was substantial grounds tending to excuse or justify his conduct, though failing to establish a defense for the conduct. Judge Neustadter further noted:

> Considering the offense and the surrounding circumstances of it, his clear prior record, and alcohol problem, this recommended probationary sentence as conditioned should be adequate for purposes of punishment, as a deterrent, for rehabilitation, and so as not to deprecate the offense. He should be amenable to probation (R-3).

Petitioner has been diagnosed as a functional alcoholic suffering from alcohol dependency for several years with no underlying psychopathology. At least between 1985 and up until the incident of 1987, Joel Miller, Doctor of Psychology, described petitioner as a maintenance drinker; i.e., petitioner developed a certain level of tolerance (a six-pack of bear per day), to reach a level of equilibrium without becoming disfunctional.

Dr. Miller asserted that petitioner's consumption of alcohol on April 25 and 26, 1987, was excessive beyond petitioner's tolerance threshold which produced behavior out of character for him. Dr. Miller opined that under the circumstances, petitioner lacked the requisite mental capacity to commit the offense to which he was charged. Dr. Miller concluded that on April 26, 1987, petitioner was clearly pathologically intoxicated.

Prior to the entry of his guilty plea before Judge Neustadter, petitioner was admitted as an out-patient for treatment for alcohol abuse to Therapeutic Intervention Centers (T.I.C.) Atlantic City, New Jersey, on May 12, 1987. On October 20, 1987, subsequent to his guilty plea, petitioner was released following his successful completion of T.I.C.'s program. During this period, petitioner was attending meetings held by Alcoholics Anonymous (A.A.).

On November 25, 1987, petitioner was admitted to the Institute for Human Development (I.H.D.) to its Outpatient Alcohol Program. Petitioner was discharged from the program on September 30, 1988 where his rehabilitative status appeared to be good. Petitioner was discharged with instructions to continue active participation in A.A. Petitioner participated in A.A. until January 1989, when he discontinued attending meetings of the support group.

The parties stipulated on the record that in the event petitioner's Atlantic County Probation Officer, James Parent, were called to testify, Mr. Parent would testify to the following: (1) that James Parent was petitioner's probation officer during the period petitioner was on probation as a result of petitioner's criminal trespass conviction; (2) that petitioner was very cooperative; (3) that petitioner was released from his probationary term earlier than scheduled; (4) that petitioner successfully completed all of the conditions of his probation; including 50 hours of community service and full payment of the court imposed fine.

Bonnie Putterman, a victim of petitioner's criminal trespass, voluntarily testified on petitioner's behalf. Ms. Putterman, who is acquainted with rather than a friend of petitioner, is a former Atlantic County probation officer and now a student at Widner University Law School. She opined that, after investigating petitioner's behavior subsequent to the event of April 26, 1987, petitioner was rehabilitated and should not be denied licensure.

Gary Dean Thompson, Casino Cage Manager and Michael David Mullen, Assistant Casino Cage Manager at the Trump Plaza Casino/Hotel are supervisors of petitioner. Both men were made aware of petitioner's conviction by petitioner. Neither supervisor has observed nor detected petitioner under the influence of alcohol at anytime during their relationship with petitioner. Both supervisors commend petitioner's demeanor, behavior and performance on the job and characterize him as an exemplary employee with the best of good character, honesty and integrity. Petitioner has been encouraged by the two supervisors, as well as three other supervisors, to apply for a casino key license. Petitioner is under consideration for promotion to the position of casino cage supervisor, for which a casino key license is required.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

I. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) as incorporated within section 86g of the Act.

Section 86c(1) of the Act mandates a casino license shall be denied to any person required to be qualified if that person has been convicted of any of the crimes enumerated thereunder in any jurisdiction. Section 86g provides that the Commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant for the "commission ... of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of this section, even if such conduct has not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State ..." Petitioner plead guilty to one count of an amended charge of Criminal Trespass, N.J.S.A. 2C:18-3a, a crime of the fourth degree. N.J.S.A. 2C:18-3 is not one of the enumerated disqualifying offenses listed in subsection c. of section 86 of the Act.

The Division contends that petitioner was arrested and indicted for the crimes of burglary, N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2, and theft by unlawful taking, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. Burglary is an offense incorporated into section 86c(1) of the Act as a disqualifying offense if it constitutes a crime of the second degree. Theft by unlawful taking is incorporated into section 86c(1) of the Act under theft and related offenses, and is a disqualifying offense whereby it constitutes a crime of the second or third degree. Petitioner was indicted for unlawfully taking of movable property (United States currency) valued at more than $500. N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3(a). Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2)(a), theft constitutes a crime of the third degree if the amount involved exceeds $500.

Petitioner was not convicted of either of the offenses for which he was indicted. The Division asserts, however, that notwithstanding the absence of a conviction; under the provisions of Section 86g petitioner is disqualified from licensure despite the fact that petitioner's conduct was not prosecuted under criminal law. It contends that a theft occurred and, therefore, petitioner is automatically disqualified from holding a casino key license by virtue of the nature of the theft and the amount involved. The Division asserts that the defense of rehabilitation is not available to petitioner under the licensing provisions of casino key employees (N.J.S.A. 5:12-89), but may be applied for the renewal of his casino employee license, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

Petitioner asserts that he does not recall the events of April 26, 1987, but concedes that he entered the apartment of another and took some money. He argues that he did not commit a theft as defined by the laws of this State, Moreover, he asserts, the Superior Court of New Jersey accepted his guilty plea to the lesser offense of Criminal Trespass, a fourth degree offense, rather than find him guilty of the offenses for which he was indicted; i.e., Burglary and Theft by Unlawful Taking. Petitioner argues that he did not plead guilty to either of the two offenses for which he was charged.

Petitioner observes that the honorable court found, as one of the mitigating factors in his favor, that his intoxication was substantial grounds which tended to excuse or justify his conduct. In consideration thereof, petitioner refers to the expert testimony of Dr. Miller who asserted that as a consequence of his excessive consumption of alcohol on April 25 and 26, 1987, petitioner lacked the requisite mental capacity to commit the offenses for which he was charged and indicted. Petitioner asserts that he did not possess the requisite mens rea, or mental culpability, to commit the offenses for which he is charged.

The statute, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3a. Movable property, states that:

> A person is guilty of theft if he unlawfully takes, or exercises unlawful control over, movable property of another with purpose to deprive him thereof.

Petitioner contends that an essential element to prove that a person is guilty of an N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3a. offense is to demonstrate that the action was committed purposely. Purposely is defined at N.J.S.A. 2C:2-2b (1) as follows:

> A person acts purposely with respect to the nature of his conduct or a result thereof if it is his conscious object to engage in conduct of that nature or to cause such a result. A person acts purposely with respect to attendant circumstances if he is aware of the existence of such circumstances or he believes or hopes that they exist.

> "With purpose," "designed," "with design" or equivalent terms have the same meaning.

Petitioner argues that the crime of theft is not committed unless the actor has, and the State proves, the mens rea.

Petitioner now looks to N.J.S.A. 2C:2-8, Intoxication and asserts there are two ways for a person who is intoxicated not to be found responsible for an act which would otherwise be criminal. One way is that if the intoxication of the person negatives an element of the offense. Petitioner argues that through Dr. Miller's expert testimony, the element of "purpose" has been negatived.

The other way for the intoxication to lead to the conclusion that a crime did not occur in the legal sense is where that intoxication is pathological. Under N.J.S.A. 2C:2-8 d., intoxication which is pathological is an affirmative defense,

> " ... if by reason of such intoxication the actor at the time of his conduct lacks substantial and adequate capacity either to appreciate its wrongfulness or to conform his conduct to the requirement of law."

Petitioner again relies upon Dr. Miller's expert testimony where he clearly concluded that petitioner suffered from pathological intoxication at the time petitioner took the property of another.

In consideration of all the above elements, petitioner contends that the Division has not proven its assertion that a theft occurred.

I FIND that a court of competent jurisdiction has determined that petitioner was neither guilty of Burglary (N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2) nor of Theft by Unlawful Taking (N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3). The Court specifically referenced petitioners intoxication as substantial grounds to excuse or justify petitioner's conduct. Having heard petitioner's credible testimony that he was unaware of his actions on April 26, 1987 due to his intoxication and his admission that he is an alcoholic, I CONCLUDE that petitioner lacked the necessary mens rea to commit the criminal offenses for which he was charged. See, In re Perrone, 5 N.J. 514, 522 (1950). I CONCLUDE, therefore, that petitioner did not commit a disqualifying offense pursuant to section 86c (1) as incorporated within section 86g of the Act.

II. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h

Having found and concluded that petitioner did not commit a disqualifying offense as enumerated under section 86c (1) of the Act, I FIND and CONCLUDE there is no necessity to consider the rehabilitation factors as contained in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

III. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2) and as incorporated in Section 90b of the Act.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2) and as incorporated within section 90b of the Act, petitioner O'Neill is required to affirmatively establish his good character, honesty and integrity, by clear and convincing evidence, for licensure as a casino key employee and for the renewal of his casino employee license. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979) at 8; Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985); In re Boardwalk Regency Corp. Casino License, 90 N.J. 361 (1982). When, as here, the Division raises the issue as to the applicant's and/or licensee's good character, honesty and integrity, it is incumbent upon the applicant/licensee to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which this tribunal may reach a reasonable conclusion. Boardwalk Regency, supra, In the Matter of the Application for Boardwalk Regency Corp. and the Jemm Company for Casino License, Casino Control Commission (November 13, 1980). In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of the applicant/licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure.

Clear and convincing, as a standard of proof, falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here, the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the fact alleged is true; i.e., that petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity. The standard requires more than mere balancing of probabilities, but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (Law Div. 1974); Germann v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466 (App. Div. 1969).

Bonnie Putterman, a victim of petitioner's criminal trespass, voluntarily testified on petitioner's behalf. Ms. Putterman asserted that she is not a friend of petitioner. She had contacted petitioner's probation officer and, as a former probation officer herself, Ms. Putterman was convinced that petitioner better than met the conditions of the court's sentencing. She saw no purpose in revoking petitioner's license nor any reason to block his advancement.

Gary Thompson, who has been employed in the casino industry for more than 20 years and is presently a Cage Manager at Trump Plaza, testified, among other things, that he has never questioned petitioner's honesty, integrity or character even though he was aware of the events and of petitioner's conduct on April 26, 1987. Mr. Thompson also asserted that petitioner's reputation among petitioner's peers is unparalleled and that everyone holds him high esteem. Mr. Thompson and four his his supervisory colleagues have recommended petitioner's promotion to the position of Cage Supervisor at Trump Plaza. Mr. Thompson asserted that petitioner not only was highly skilled and knows his job as a cashier and trainer of cashiers, but he also works well with people. Petitioner is a good teacher; i.e., very patient and thorough. Mr. Thompson has never observed petitioner under the influence of alcohol.

Michael Mullen, Assistant Cage Manager at Trump Plaza, similarly testified as to petitioner's good character, honesty and integrity. Mullen, who has known and worked with petitioner for more than five years, considers petitioner an exemplary employee in all respects. Petitioner has the respect of his coworkers who come to petitioner for advice and guidance in the performance of their duties because of his abilities and knowledge. Mullen, who is aware of the incident involving petitioner and the criminal trespass, has not changed his opinion with regards to petitioner's good character, honesty and integrity. Mr. Mullen also has not seen nor heard of petitioner's problems with alcohol until advised by petitioner.

I am persuaded that petitioner is now a recovering alcoholic who is aware of the harm, damage, injury and pain that may result if he ever again consumes alcoholic beverages. He has participated in counselling activities to recognize his problem. He has successfully abstained from drinking since his aberrant behavior on April 26, 1987.

Having carefully evaluated the evidence, I FIND and CONCLUDE that petitioner has met his burden, by clear and convincing evidence, and has demonstrated that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure as a casino key employee and for the renewal of his casino employee license.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Division letters, dated August 2, 1988 and March 20, 1989 respectively, objecting to the issuance of a casino key employee license and to the renewal of a casino employee license issued to petitioner should be DISMISSED.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the Division's letters to petitioner's application for a casino key employee license and to revoke petitioners existing casino employee license be and are hereby DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: December 18, 1989 Decided: March 1, 1990

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The New Jersey Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) alleging that respondent Simone Palermo committed acts which disqualify him from holding a junket representative license and/or a junket enterprise license, pursuant to sections 86c (2) and 89b (2) of the Casino Control Act (Act). The Division, therefore, seeks a judgment to revoke respondent's junket representative license and junket enterprise license.

The Division filed its complaint with the Commission on April 21, 1989. Therein, the Division recommended that the Commission enter an order to immediately suspend the junket representative license and junket enterprise license of respondent pending the revocation hearing. On May 19, 1989, the Commission ordered, among other things, that the junket representative license held by respondent Simone J. Palermo be suspended pending final disposition of the complaint or until further order of the Commission. The Commission further prohibited Savemore Travel from conducting any business with any casino licensee and that any existing agreements between Savemore Travel and any casino license be terminated within fifteen (15) days of the date of the order.

On June 2, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. On July 12, 1989, a prehearing conference was held at which, among other things, the matter was scheduled for hearing on July 19, 1989 on an expedited basis before Administrative Law Judge Richard Murphy. The matter was adjourned at respondent's request because respondent was unable to obtain a doctor to testify on his behalf on July 19, 1989. The matter was then rescheduled for hearing on September 19, 1989 and reassigned to the undersigned. The hearing was held on September 19, 1989, at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The parties requested and were granted leave to submit post-hearing memoranda. Due to respondent's counsel's illness and hospitalization, an extension was granted which was received by the OAL on December 18, 1989. Application for extension to submit this initial decision has been granted.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this tribunal and as agreed upon by the parties at the prehearing conference, are these:

A. Whether respondent actually committed the offense of patronizing prostitutes as alleged? N.J.A.C. 2C:34-1e.

B. Whether respondent's continued licensure is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (2), because he is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:34-1e?

C. Whether respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee key licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2)?

UNCONTESTED FACT

The following facts are neither contested nor disputed and, therefore, are hereby adopted, by reference, as FINDINGS OF FACT:

Respondent Simone J. Palermo is a resident of the State of Connecticut, residing at 284 Citizens Avenue, Waterbury, Connecticut. Respondent Savemore Travel is a Sole Proprietorship owned by Simone J. Palermo, which is located at 14 Second Avenue, Waterbury, Connecticut. Respondent Simone J. Palermo currently holds a junket representative license no. 114-95. Respondent Savemore Travel currently holds a junket enterprise license no. 7-51.

On or about March 24, 1989, respondent Palermo was arrested by the New Jersey State Police (NJSP) in the Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino (Trump Plaza) and charged with Patronizing Prostitutes, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:34-1e. On June 6, 1989, respondent Palermo, who was represented by counsel, was found guilty of the charge by the Atlantic City Municipal Court which imposed a fine of $100, plus $25 in court costs, and a $30 penalty to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (VCCB).

TESTIMONIAL EVIDENCE

JoAnne Cordy, of the New Jersey State Police assigned to the Division, testified that on March 24, 1989, she was on duty, undercover, at the Trump Plaza hotel and Casino between the hours of 9:00 p.m. and 5:00 a.m. She was dressed in civilian clothes working the prostitution detail. Trooper Cordy asserted that there was an influx of pimps and prostitutes in Atlantic City at that time of the year and she was assigned to work the lobby and lounge area of the hotel and casino and engage pimps or suspected pimps into conversations with her. Trooper Cordy entered the lounge area and sat at the bar where she made eye contact with a black male who was suspected to be a pimp. He became the target of her undercover operation when she noticed respondent Palermo who waived at her from across the bar. Trooper Cordy nodded and smiled at respondent whereupon respondent approached the Trooper where she was sitting at the bar and engaged her in conversation. Trooper Cordy testified that respondent said, "You're working, I know you are," and introduced himself to her.

Trooper Cordy asserted that respondent was not alone. He asked her if she wanted to get rich, how much would she charge to take care of his two friends that were sitting on the other side of the bar. Respondent stated that if she wanted to get rich she was to charge them a lot of money because he wanted one percent of whatever they gave her. Respondent then introduced Ms. Cordy to one of the men. After a short conversation, respondent's male friend left.

During the conversation with respondent, Trooper Cordy testified that respondent touched her by rubbing the back of her neck and her back. Respondent is also alleged to have said to his male friend, "Isn't she beautiful? She's a very nice girl."

After respondent's friend walked away, Ms. Cordy testified that respondent said that it was okay, that he wanted Ms. Cordy for himself. She asserted that he then asked her if she would engage in sex with him for $300. The two got up from their seats and left the bar. They were holding hands as they walked into the lobby toward the hotel elevators. They passed a hotel security guard and before they reached the elevator, Trooper Cordy placed respondent under arrest. Respondent was immediately taken to the Division's office where he was advised of his Miranda rights and processed.

Dr. Evan J. Whalley, respondent's personal physician for more than 20 years, was qualified as an expert to offer various medical opinions. Dr. Whalley testified that he has treated respondent for, among other things, diabetes, a severe urinary tract infection, a duodenal ulcer and impotence. Dr. Whalley asserted that respondent's wife had complained to him about respondent's impotence and that there had been no sexual contact between the two for the past four years.

Dr. Whalley asserted that there were three medical reasons for respondent's impotence: First, that respondent had uncontrolled diabetes; two, that respondent had essential hypertension which was treated with a medication called Lopressor, which can cause impotence; and, third, he has severe balanitis.

Balanitis, as described by Dr. Whalley, is a condition in uncircumcised males in which repeated infections will cause an extremely tight ring to form around the edge of the prepuce, the foreskin. The ring is so tight that the individual cannot retract the foreskin even for the purpose of personal hygiene. Dr. Whalley opined, among other things, that it would have been absolutely impossible for respondent to engage in any form of sexual activity which would have required respondent to have an erection on March 24, 1989. Dr. Whalley testified that on May 15, 1989, respondent had a circumcision performed at the doctor's insistence to relieve the problems related to the balanitis. Dr. Whalley testified that there was no improvement of respondent's impotence subsequent to the surgery and, he further opined that the condition was probably permanent.

Respondent, who was 57 years of age at the time of hearing, testified on his own behalf. Respondent offered four letters into evidence for the purpose of establishing his good character, honesty and integrity (R-3,4,5,6). None of the four character letters addressed the charges brought against respondent nor the fact that he had been found guilty on those charges. Respondent testified that he did not explain to any of the authors of the letters the specifics of the Division's complaint but, rather, he told the authors that his junket license had been suspended and that he needed references as to his good character.

Respondent testified, among other things, that on March 24, 1989, he had brought a junket of approximately 28 people to the Trump Plaza. There came a time on that date when respondent entered into the lounge in the Trump Plaza where, among others, Trooper Cordy and two of respondent's male patrons were seated at the bar. The two male patrons of respondent's junket were identified as Mr. Richard Briggs and Mr. Anello. Respondent stood next to the two men while the three of them looked at Ms. Cordy who was seated at the bar across the room from them. Respondent could not recall the conversation of the three men, however, it was focused on Ms. Cordy and related to her being a pretty lady who was a hooker looking for business.

Respondent left the two men and approached Ms. Cordy where he engaged her in conversation. Respondent admitted that he was touching Ms. Cordy and that he had his hand on her back. Richard Briggs testified, among other things, that he subsequently approached respondent and Ms. Cordy as they sat at the bar and observed that respondent was showing Ms. Cordy a badge [1] and telling her that he, respondent, was a deputy sheriff. Mr. Briggs asserted to Ms. Cordy that he, Briggs, was respondent's assistant and that she should be placed under arrest. Mr. Briggs meant his comments to be a joke, however, Ms. Cordy appeared to be angry with Briggs' comments.

Respondent asserted that prior to approaching Ms. Cordy, he had attempted to alert Mr. Briggs and Mr. Anello that anyone in the business of prostitution presented a problem; specifically with AIDS[2]. He asserted to them that association with her would not be a good idea. Mr. Briggs testified that in his conversation with respondent and Ms. Cordy, he did not hear respondent attempt to arrange some sort of a deal with Ms. Cordy for her to have sex with Briggs or anyone else for an exchange of money. Briggs testified that at some time he might have said, "Say, that might be a hooker," referring to Ms. Cordy (TR 108).

Respondent contended that he approached Ms. Cody for the purpose of removing her from the area so that she would not have any effect on Mr. Briggs and/or Mr. Anello. He asserted that he told Ms. Cordy who he was (and showed her his honorary special deputy sheriff badge) and that was usually enough "to scare off a hooker." (TR 75). Respondent denies that he had any intention of attempting to solicit Ms. Cordy for sex for himself or either of his two male companions. Respondent admits, moreover, that he escorted Ms. Cordy out of the lounge. He insists that he was not holding hands with Ms. Cordy as they left the lounge. Rather, he asserts, that he was holding her arm as they left the lounge. Mr. Briggs testified that he observed respondent leave the lounge with Ms. Cordy and as the two walked by him, respondent turned around and waived at Briggs. The two walked towards the elevator of the hotel.

1. Respondent testified earlier that he was an honorary specialty deputy sheriff and was issued a badge.
2. Acquired immunodeficiency syndrome.

Respondent contends that he was attempting to escort Ms. Cordy to the hotel security desk which was located between the lounge and the elevators in order to turn her into the security guard as a prostitute. However, before the two of them reached the security desk, respondent was placed under arrest by a state police sergeant and Trooper Cordy.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Having carefully reviewed and considered the entire record in this matter and having given fair weight thereto; and having observed the demeanor of the witnesses as they testified before me and having assessed their credibility, I FIND the following FACTS.

On the evening of March 24, 1989, Trooper JoAnne Cordy of the N.J.S.P. was on duty at Trump Plaza working undercover on the prostitution detail. At a time not disclosed on the record, Trooper Cordy entered a lounge in the hotel casino complex and was seated at its bar. Ms. Cordy was assigned the task of engaging pimps or suspected pimps in conversation for subsequent arrest. She had targeted a black male suspect and focused her attention on him. At the same time Ms. Cordy noticed respondent waive his hand at her from across the bar. She nodded her head and smiled at him. Respondent thereupon left the gentlemen he was with and approached Ms. Cordy where she was sitting. He engaged her in conversation by introducing himself and asserting that he knew that she was "working."

Respondent then asked the trooper if she wanted to get rich, how much would she charge to take care of his two friends. He advised her to charge a lot of money because he wanted one percent of whatever the amount they gave her. Respondent subsequently asked Ms. Cordy if she would engage in sex with him for $300.

There is no doubt that respondent and Trooper Cordy left the lounge together and walked towards the hotel elevator. Nor is there any doubt that respondent was touching Ms. Cordy as they both left the lounge. As respondent and Trooper Cordy left the lounge, respondent turned and waived to Mr. Briggs.

I FIND Dr. Evan Whalley's expert testimony to be entirely credible. However, I FIND respondent's testimony to be incredible and not to be believed. This is particularly so with respect to his assertion that he escorted Trooper Cordy out of the lounge to either encourage her to leave the premises of the hotel or, alternatively, to turn her in at the hotel security desk as a prostitute. It was he who left his male companions to engage Ms. Cordy in conversation, not they. Mr. Briggs subsequently arrived to engage Ms. Cordy in light conversation and left shortly thereafter without any discussion of a sexual encounter or proposal between Briggs and Ms. Cordy, respondent remained with Ms. Cordy. Respondent's fear for Mr. Briggs' safety and welfare evaporated, if in fact, he held such a concern. Mr. Anello did not even venture on the scene but, rather, remained apart from Ms. Cordy and respondent. Respondent could have remained with his companions on the other side of the bar away from Trooper Cordy. However, it was he who initiated contact with her, rather than his two male friends. It was also respondent who left the lounge alone with Ms. Cordy.

I also FIND respondent's assertions that the purpose of showing Trooper Cordy his honorary special deputy sheriff badge was to frighten her away from his two companions to be incredible. The event was of so little consequence to Ms. Cordy that she could only recall, on cross examination, that respondent may have told her that he was a special deputy. Mr. Briggs, on the other hand, considered the incident as a joke. It may be inferred, therefore, that respondent attempted to impress a lady of the night with his honorary special deputy badge, knowing full well that he exercised no official authority in this jurisdiction, or any other jurisdiction, for that matter. It was an act of braggadocio on the part of respondent.

Notwithstanding the credible testimony of Dr. Whalley, it is not necessary for a male to be potent to engage the services of a prostitute.

I FIND that respondent offered Trooper Cordy the sum of $300 for her to engage in sexual activity with him.

I FIND, therefore, that respondent Simone Palermo, did, in fact, commit the offense of patronizing prostitutes, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:34-1e.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The N.J.S.A. 2C:34-1e Offense

Chapter 34 of the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice is entitled Public Indecency. Incorporated therein is section 2C:34-1 dealing with prostitution and related offenses with subsection e. designated, Patronizing prostitutes. N.J.S.A. 2C:34-1e provides that:

> A person commits a petty disorderly persons offense if he hires a prostitute to engage in sexual activity with him, or if he enters or remains in a house of prostitution for the purpose in engaging in sexual activity or if he solicits or requests another person to engage in sexual activity with him for hire. (Emphasis supplied)

The Atlantic City Municipal Court, a court of competent jurisdiction, after a trial found and adjudged respondent guilty of the N.J.S.A. 2C:34-1e offense. After a review of all of the evidence, this tribunal also found that respondent had committed the offense as charged. Such an offense is not, however, a per se disqualifying offense under section 86c (1) of the Act.

Disqualifying Offense Under Section 86c (2) of the Act

The Division contends that as a consequence of respondent's conduct, his continued licensure is inimical to the policies of the Act. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (2) provides, in pertinent part, that:

> The Commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of any of the following criteria
> ...
>
> (2) Any other offense under present New Jersey or federal law which indicates that licensure of the applicant would be inimical to the policy of this act and to casino operations
> ....

"Inimical" is defined as; "being adverse often by reason of hostility or malevolence" (Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary, Merriam-Webster, Inc. 1986); and "Not conducive; harmful; adverse; unfriendly, hostile; antagonistic" (The American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language, Haughton, Mifflin Co., 1978). In Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 at 313, the Commission quoted from the case In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. DKT. NO. 79-CL-1 (Commission decision February 26, 1979) where it held that the accepted analytical approach to subsection 86(c)(4) (now, section 86c (2)) is as follows:

> Whether an offense is "inimical" to the Act and to legalized gaming is a question which can only be resolved in the circumstances of each case. The nature of the offense, the events surrounding it, including any mitigating or aggravating factors, the remoteness of the offense and the offender's conduct since the offense to the present are all matters to be considered. Without limiting the notion of what is "inimical" to the Act or gaming, it would appear to encompass those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations (Resorts at 15).

The Commission in Davis continued to hold that rehabilitation under sections 90h and 91d does not apply to disqualification convictions under section 86c (2) (formerly 86c (4)). However, many of the factors of these two sections are to be considered within the inimical analysis. Those enumerated factors in section 90h, which apply to a claim of rehabilitation by a casino employee license applicant, are as follows:

> (1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
> (4) The date of the offense or conduct;
> (5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;
> (6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
> (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of > additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have had the applicant under their supervision.

First, respondent is the holder of a casino key employee license as a junket representative pursuant to section 102b, incorporating section 89 of the Act. Respondent's junket representative license is currently no. 114-95. Savemore Travel is a sole proprietorship owned by respondent which holds junket enterprise license no. 7-51, pursuant to section 102 of the Act. Respondent prays that he retain both licenses in order to continue in the business of conducting junkets from the State of Connecticut to the casinos in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

Second, while the offense of Patronizing Prostitutes is graded as a petty disorderly persons offense under the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice (N.J.S.A. 2C:34-1e) it is, nonetheless, a serious offense. It is well established that most states, as New Jersey, have enacted laws to control and/or prohibit prostitution. The Congress of the United States likewise has enacted Federal statutes to control the transport of individuals across state lines for the purpose of engaging in sexual activities; i.e., the White Slave Traffic Act (Mann Act), 18 USCS § 2421; and the Travel Act, 18 USCS § 1952. These offenses may be prosecuted under 18 USCS § 1961 et seq., the Racketeer Influence Corruption Organization Act (RICO). See, U.S. v. McLaurin, 557 F. 2d 1064 (1977), rehrg. den. 562 F. 2d. 1257, cert. den. 434 U.S. 1020.

Once considered to be a victimless crime, prostitution today is alleged to be one of the major sources of income for organized crime. It is also alleged to be a source for the transmittal of a variety of social diseases, not the least among them is AIDS. With the potential for transmitting such a dreaded life threatening disease, prostitution is no longer considered a "victimless crime."

Third and fourth. Trooper Cordy of the N.J.S.P. was on prostitution detail the evening of March 24, 1989, attempting to engage pimps in conversation with her. Respondent interrupted Ms. Cordy's surveillance by introducing himself to her and identifying her as a "working girl" (prostitute). Respondent subsequently propositioned Trooper Cordy by asking her to engage in sexual activity with him for the sum of $300.

Fifth and Sixth. Respondent was 57 years of age at the time of the offense. There was no evidence to indicate that respondent had any prior arrests or convictions for patronizing prostitutes. Therefore, this was a single, isolated incident.

Seventh. There was no evidence produced to demonstrate that any social conditions contributed to the offense or respondent's conduct.

Eighth. Respondent produced no evidence concerning the factors contained in this subsection.

Having considered all the facts with respect to this issue, I CONCLUDE that the Division has carried its burden of proof to demonstrate that respondent's conduct of patronizing a prostitute in a casino while in the performance of a junket representative is inimical to the Act and to the gaming industry. I further CONCLUDE that such conduct is disqualifying, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (2).

Good Character, Honesty and Integrity as Required by Section 89b (2) of the Act.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2), respondent is required to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979) at 8; Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985); In re Boardwalk Regency Corp. Casino License, 90 N.J. 361 (1982). When, as here, the Division raises the issue as to the licensee's good character, honesty and integrity, it is incumbent upon the licensee to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which this tribunal may reach a reasonable conclusion. Boardwalk Regency, supra; In the Matter of the Application of Boardwalk Regency Corp. and the Jemm Company for Casino License, Casino Control Commission (November 13, 1980). In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of the licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure.

Clear and convincing, as a standard, falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here, the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the fact alleged is true;

i.e., that petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity. The standard requires more than a mere balancing of probabilities, but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (L. Div. 1974); Germann v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466 (App. Div. 1969).

Respondent produced a series of four (4) letters addressed to "To Whom it May Concern" (R-3, 4, 5, 6). Each of the four authors attest to respondent's character, however, none of the authors address the issue of respondent's arrest and conviction for patronizing prostitutes. Respondent testified that none of the four individuals who wrote the letters on his behalf were with him on March 24, 1989. Respondent further testified that he did not tell any of the four individuals that he had been arrested for patronizing prostitutes, only that a situation had occurred where he needed character references showing what kind of a person he was. (TR 65, 66).

Considering all of the circumstances regarding this issue, I CONCLUDE that respondent has failed to meet his burden of proof. I further CONCLUDE, therefore, that respondent has failed to demonstrate that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, by clear and convincing evidence.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that respondent is disqualified from continued licensure by virtue of his failure to establish his good character, honesty and integrity, as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2).

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the junket representative license and the junket enterprise license now held by respondent Simone J. Palermo be and are hereby REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the New Jersey Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of April 18, 1990,

IT IS on this 30th day of April 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> to conclude that a review of the rehabilitative criteria of N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h) indicates that the respondent's theft offense did not render his licensure inimical pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(2). See Davis v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985). The respondent's remorse, together with the aberational nature of the incident and the fact that he has not committed any further offense since the commission of this offense 16 months ago adequately overcomes his relatively minor theft offense.

ORDER NO. 90-16-5

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the complaint is dismissed substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Commission's order of May 5, 1989, suspending the respondent's casino employee license is vacated.

Record Closed: February 22, 1990 Decided: March 12, 1990

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of a complaint filed by petitioner with the Casino Control Commission seeking the revocation of respondent's casino employee license pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. and regulations promulgated thereunder. Respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A hearing was conducted on February 22, 1990, after which the record closed.

The questions presented are whether respondent can establish that he is a person of good character and that he has been rehabilitated. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

The facts are undisputed. On December 27, 1988, respondent was arrested and charged with theft by unlawful taking contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. He was found guilty of this charge in the Atlantic City Municipal Court and was fined $25 and ordered to pay restitution in the amount of $5.35, the value of the item stolen. As a supervisor in the maintenance department at Caesar's, respondent took a promotional camera from a room where Caesar's stored such items to be given away to patrons.

Respondent was fired after the incident and he has been unemployed since that time. Respondent is 50 years old, married, and has never before been in any such trouble. He had no disciplinary record with any of his casino employers going back to 1979, when he began working in the industry. Respondent testified that when he entered the storeroom to check on an unrelated problem, he saw the many boxes of cameras which he knew were promotional items. Respondent took one without really thinking about it, although he now understands that this was wrong. Respondent testified that though he has been advised that letters of support from former supervisors and associates might help his cause, he is simply too ashamed of what he has done to ask anyone. This is the substance of the record.

Respondent recognizes his error and he has paid a substantial price for this deviation. He has been unemployed for fifteen months, and I believe has carried a sense of humiliation with him since the incident. At age 50, respondent has no prior criminal record, and has had no disciplinary problems in ten years as a casino employee.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that this incident was aberrational and that respondent is a person of good character and has shown his rehabilitation. It is ORDERED that respondent be permitted to retain his casino employee license.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

APPLICATION OF

FOR A CASINO

Donald V. Parry, petitioner, pro se

Norma Stancil, Deputy Attorney General for respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: December 18, 1989 Decided: March 21, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

Petitioner Donald V. Parry applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for a casino employee gaming license. The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) objected to the issuance of the license by letter to the Commission filed on March 27, 1989. Petitioner requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A plenary hearing convened on December 18, 1989. The Commission granted an extension of the time within which to file an initial decision at the request of the undersigned.

There were two issues to be resolved at the hearing according to the prehearing conference order:

1. Whether petitioner possesses the requisite financial stability, integrity and responsibility for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(1) as incorporated by section 90b of the Casino Control Act?

2. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2)?

The Division introduced the evidence of Agent Rita Kazmierski who did a background investigation of petitioner. Apparently the petitioner obtained credit cards at various institutions and failed to complete payment, leaving a balance due, which in most cases was written off. The evidence may be summarized as follows:

Institution	Account Balance	Last Payment	Written Off
Equitable Bank/Visa	$ 4,143.84	Jan. 9, 1987	Yes
Dominion Bank/Visa	1,725.71	Jan. 1987	Yes
Sovran Bank/Visa	2,275.91	Apr. 1981	Yes
Signet Bank/Mastercard	2,778.20	unknown	No
Visa Card	955.02	unknown	No
Household Finance	3,944.25	Jan. 1988	No
FOMOCO Credit (auto lease - auto sold at auction)	8,036.46	unknown	No

In addition, there are outstanding federal tax liens from as far back as 1971 totaling more than $50,000.

The petitioner misconstrued the statute which makes the possession of financial stability, integrity and responsibility a requirement of casino employee licensure. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(1). He interpreted the statute to mean that applicants must demonstrate economic strength or purchasing power. Consequently, he emphasized the economic power and wealth of his former associates and his own prior economic strength. He said he was a "founder" of the health spa industry. He also alleged a personal worth of over $6 million at one time.

Persons who vouched for the petitioner include the Senior Vice President of United Air Lines Employees' Credit Union; the Sales Director of P.P.G. Industries (formerly Pittsburg Plate Glass); the Executive Vice President of the New Business Furniture Corporation; the President of Rice-Medly Enterprises, Inc. (who is also, according to the petitioner, the President of the Mormon Church in Salt Lake City, Utah); William F. Hubner, who is the founder, majority stockholder and Chairman of 21 health spas and Chairman and controlling stockholder in 69 other health spas; and Justice John P. Flaherty of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court. The petitioner formerly did business or was a partner of his vouchers except in the case of Flaherty, who represented him. They uniformly recommended petitioner in their letters. After questioning by the Division by telephone however, they discreetly distanced themselves a little, which is not unusual when a law enforcement agent makes an inquiry.

Petitioner defended his defaults in four ways.

He hastened to explain that the credit cards were all unsolicited.

His second defense was that the defaults occurred because he "stepped down" from his business and became a silent partner. His successors did not pay these debts as they promised, but instead "milked" the business dry.

Third, he argued that all persons seek to avoid taxes because there is no quid pro quo for them. He argued that he has certainly paid his fair share of taxes in his time (he paid well over $200,000 in taxes in 1971 alone); and in any case he has a $25 per month reimbursement agreement with the Internal Revenue Service covering recent years of tax liability. Additionally, he said that the majority of his tax liability is so old that the government is no longer pursuing it.

Finally, he argued that the amount of debt he left behind compared to the amount of debt he paid off over his business career is practically insignificant and a sign of his business integrity rather than a mark against it.

The petitioner is paying some of this debt now. He is presently reducing his debt with Household Finance. He says that he intends to pay all of his indebtedness as things improve financially for him. He is presently employed as a night auditor for a Brigantine hotel and obviously no longer wealthy.

With some prompting, the petitioner gave a short history of his rise and fall in American business. His initial wealth came as a result of his entry into the health spa business just as it became popular. His fall began when he became over extended in the early 1970's with simultaneous major projects in Philadelphia, New York and the Bahamas.

Thereafter petitioner had interests in restaurants and ever smaller health spas until a salon in Baltimore went out of business with his name on the credit cards. He has been employed by others ever since.

A person can be without wealth or power and still meet the financial requirements of N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(1). The Commission has always emphasized financial responsibility when it reviewed the applications of casino employees. Does the individual pay his just debts no matter how modest his life style? This is one of the criteria by which individuals are judged. They are not judged by the amount of wealth and power they control now or have controlled in the past. This is totally irrelevant to an employee licensing proceeding.

In addition, while there is something to be said for petitioners arguments, they were stated by him in the most arrogant and outrageous fashion. Had petitioner been represented, his representative would have emphasized his tax repayment and de-emphasized the petitioners libertarian arguments respecting taxation. The representative would have emphasized that petitioner is paying his debts according to his ability, one at a time, and de-emphasized petitioners argument that the credit cards were unsolicited.

Petitioner unaccountably walked out of the hearing during final summation having become disenchanted with the proceeding. He insisted at the end that if a "Supreme Court Justice and two guys worth over $100 million could not convince us that he was a decent person, he wouldn't even try."

Donald V. Parry may possesses the requisite character and financial stability for casino employee licensure but he did not demonstrate that he does so in this hearing.

The burden of proof on these issues is with the petitioner or applicant and requires proof by clear and convincing evidence. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (1) and (2). The "clear and convincing" standard of proof is less than the criminal standard of proof

"beyond a reasonable doubt," but more than the civil standard of proof by a "preponderance of the evidence." In re: Bally's, 10 N.J.A.R. 356; In re: Boardwalk Regency, 10 N.J.A.R. 295; In re: Resorts, 10 N.J.A.R. 244.

I therefore CONCLUDE that the petitioner has failed to demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite financial stability, integrity and responsibility for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (1) and 90b.

I further CONCLUDE that the petitioner has failed to demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2) and 90b.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the application filed herein by Donald V. Parry for casino licensure be and is hereby DENIED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Ralph L. Fusco, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: December 7, 1989 Decided: April 16, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter concerns the application of David C. Pruchnic (petitioner) for renewal of his casino employee license, which permits his employment in a licensed casino as a craps and blackjack dealer. By letter report to the Casino Control Commission dated March 30, 1989, the Division of Gaming Enforcement objected to renewal of the petitioner's licensure, based upon his February 22, 1988 conviction on a plea of guilty to the offense of distribution of a controlled dangerous substance, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(10). These are the issues:

1. Has the petitioner been convicted of distribution of a controlled dangerous substance in the second degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(10), which would be a disqualifier from licensure pursuant to sections 86c(1) and 90e of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.)?

2. Does the petitioner possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act?

3. Has the petitioner, if he has been convicted of an otherwise disqualifying offense, affirmatively established his rehabilitation, pursuant to section 90h of the Act?

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On May 31, 1989, the Casino Control Commission received the petitioner's request for a hearing concerning his license renewal application. On June 16, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. On August 21, 1989, a prehearing conference was conducted. The hearing was thereafter held as scheduled on December 7, 1989, in Atlantic City, New Jersey. The record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The material facts in this matter are not in dispute. The petitioner is 31 years old and he resides with his wife in Brigantine, New Jersey. He holds casino employee license number 51103-21, under which he is qualified to deal craps and blackjack. The petitioner was employed by Resorts International Hotel and Casino in Atlantic City from April 1984 until September 1987.

On September 29, 1987, the petitioner was arrested in his home following his sale of a large quantity of marijuana to an undercover detective. According to the Brigantine Police Department supplementary investigation report (Exhibit R-1), undercover marijuana purchases at the petitioner's residence in Brigantine began on September 17, 1987. The petitioner testified at the hearing that he met the man who turned out to be an undercover detective approximately two weeks before the arrest, when he was introduced by a friend. The petitioner discussed selling marijuana with the newcomer and then sold him two ounces of marijuana for $250. According to the petitioner, he had been selling marijuana for only a couple of months, and he was selling only small amounts. He used a balance scale to weigh out the marijuana he was selling.

It was the petitioner's testimony that his new acquaintance asked him if he could sell larger amounts of marijuana. The man told the petitioner that he was interested in buying ten pounds. According to the petitioner's testimony, he had never tried to sell that much before and he told the new customer that he would look into it. The petitioner testified candidly that he was experiencing financial problems and after thinking it over, he reached the wrong decision.

The petitioner made some calls to his supplier and approximately 11 pounds of marijuana were delivered to him. He received the marijuana on consignment and would have to pay for it when it was sold. According to the petitioner, he was told he would have to pay about $1,000 per pound, so he decided he would sell it for $1,200 per pound. That price was agreeable to his customer.

The petitioner stated that he used zip lock bags to hold the marijuana in one-half pound portions. He took one of the half pound bags and divided its contents into smaller bags which he was going to sell for $35 each. When asked at the hearing about his wife's reaction to his involvement with drugs, the petitioner stated that she more or less told him he should not smoke marijuana. He said that he had not been selling the marijuana for very long, so he did not remember her specifically saying that he should not sell it. In any event, the petitioner testified that he had a lot of bills piling up and he was enticed to make some quick money by selling ten pounds of marijuana to his new customer.

After the petitioner made the sale of marijuana to the undercover officer on September 29, 1987, an Atlantic County narcotics task force surveillance team entered the petitioner's home to execute a search warrant. Approximately 13 pounds of marijuana were found, as well as assorted drug paraphernalia including scales and cutting and bagging equipment (Exhibits R-1, R-2 and R-3). Undercover investigator Joseph Zavaglia placed the petitioner under arrest and read him his Miranda warning. The petitioner's wife called from a local bar while the task force was still at the petitioner's home. She was told to come into the Brigantine Police Department, where she was also placed under arrest. The petitioner was charged with the sale of marijuana over five pounds, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(10); possession of over five pounds of marijuana with intent to distribute, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(10); possession of over 50 grams of marijuana, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(3); and possession of drug paraphernalia, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:36-2. Bail was set at $10,000 cash and the petitioner was held in the county jail.

The petitioner testified that he cooperated with the police. When he was arrested, he showed the task force officers who were searching his home where to look for everything. However, he could not recall if he ever gave a signed statement to the police. In addition, when he was asked who his supplier was, he would not tell them. Since the marijuana was confiscated without the supplier having been paid for it, the petitioner is sure the supplier was not happy.

On November 19, 1987, an indictment against the petitioner was filed in the New Jersey Superior Court for Atlantic County. He was charged with a fourth degree possession of marijuana offense and a third degree possession of a controlled dangerous substance offense, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(3) and (1). He was also charged with two counts of conspiracy, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2; two counts of distributing or possessing with intent to distribute marijuana in the third degree, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(11); and two counts of distributing or possessing with intent to distribute over five pounds of marijuana, second degree offenses in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(10). On February 22, 1988, the petitioner retracted his original plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to count six of the indictment, which charged him with the second degree offense of distribution of over five pounds of marijuana in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(10). The remaining counts of the indictment were dismissed (Exhibit R-5).

On March 18, 1988, the petitioner was sentenced to five years incarceration. He was ordered to pay a drug enforcement and demand reduction penalty of $2,000 and a fine of $2,000. The petitioner was also ordered to make restitution in the amount of $250 and pay a lab fee of $50. A Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty of $30 was imposed and the petitioner's driving privilege was revoked for two years. Superior Court Judge Arthur V. Guerrera offered the following statement of reasons for the petitioner's sentence:

> This was a negotiated plea agreement, and it appears to be fair to both the state and the defendant. Therefore this court agrees with the plea and will impose the recommended sentence. Although this is the defendant's first conviction, the presumption of no incarceration should not apply for the following reasons:
> This defendant is involved in organized criminal activity as can be seen by the quantity and ease this defendant was able to facilitate the distribution of CDS. Clearly, incarceration is necessary to deter this type conduct and protect the interest of the public. This interest clearly outweighs the presumption of no incarceration.

According to the petitioner, he spent about 18 days in the county jail after sentencing, then he was sent to Trenton State Prison. Eventually, he was held at the Jones Prison Farm. After about one month, the petitioner applied for admission to the intensive supervision program. He did this even though other inmates tried to dissuade him, saying that release into the program was a set-up and that he would be back in prison with a longer sentence. In particular, the other inmates complained about the many drug tests required under the program. However, the petitioner testified that he had decided after his arrest that he would no longer be involved with drugs because they had "messed up" his life. Remaining drug free was already his intention anyway.

The petitioner was interviewed for admission into the program. A two-judge panel described the strict rules which he would have to follow and let him know that even if he did not go into the program, he could be released on parole after five more months, and the parole requirements would be much less stringent. Notwithstanding this information, the petitioner stated that he did not hesitate to enter the intensive supervision program. He put together a community network team, including a leader and employer who would sponsor him. He was released into the program after about six and one-half months incarceration.

Under the program, the petitioner was required to obtain employment and to make payments on his fines. He was also required to make a budget, keep a diary, and to attend narcotics anonymous once a week. According to the petitioner, he was eager to work and to pay his fines, and he did not consider the program requirements to be a hardship. The petitioner mowed grass for two weeks and then he worked at a pizza restaurant. He scheduled his payments of the $4,800 in fines and penalties which he owed so that he could pay it off in 12 months.

The petitioner testified that he held various restaurant and cooking jobs since he was 13 years old. He had worked his way through Penn State University by cooking. The petitioner noted that he is only nine credits short of obtaining his college degree. In any event, the Trump Plaza Casino Hotel hired him as a cook with full knowledge of his participation in the intensive supervision program. He held that position from November 1988 until May 1989. At the time of the hearing, the petitioner held three part-time jobs in the casino industry. He works as a banquet food server at Trump Plaza and Trump Castle, and he works as a dealer at Harrah's Casino. As a result of these jobs, the petitioner has been able to pay his fines and penalties in full.

The petitioner testified sincerely that he and his wife experienced problems before he went to jail and they were separated. His incarceration had made matters worse. However, following his release into the intensive supervision program, the petitioner was able to reconcile with his wife. His nearly seven months in jail had helped him realize that his drug involvement had been wrong and that it had jeopardized his health and his marriage. Because the petitioner had been obeying all of the rules of the intensive supervision program, he was not required to attend a 90-day program review. He attended a mandatory 180-day review and was encouraged when the supervising judges congratulated him on his efforts.

The petitioner testified that he underwent approximately six random drug tests per month. He had experienced about 60 tests so far and they all had been fine. As he advanced in the program, the restrictions eased and he was no longer required to keep a budget or a diary. With continued satisfactory participation, the petitioner was to receive his release from the program in February 1990. The petitioner testified credibly that he has no doubt that he can remain law abiding. It is important to him to keep his license. He enjoys his work and he is able to pay his bills.

James Ney, an employee of the Administrative Office of the Courts, testified concerning the intensive supervision program. He said that it is an intensive parole program designed to alleviate prison overcrowding. An inmate who applies must provide a plan which includes a residence and a community sponsor. There must be a community network team for moral support. In addition, drug treatment and employment services must be identified. Only about 20 percent of the applicants are accepted into the program.

Mr. Ney testified that he spoke with the petitioner's supervising officer, James Salvaryn. Mr. Salvaryn told him that the petitioner had only one minor curfew violation and otherwise was in full compliance with the program. All of his fines and penalties were paid in full and the petitioner was attending narcotics anonymous meetings as required. In addition, the petitioner had performed community service. A letter from Mr. Salvaryn was admitted into evidence as part of Exhibit P-1. According to the letter, the petitioner was required to complete 211 hours of community service. This was performed by cleaning a V.F.W. post facility. The petitioner not only satisfied the requirement but actually completed a total of 262 hours. Mr. Salvaryn offered the following evaluation of the petitioner:

> In my 10 years in the field of supervision through ISP and previously Atlantic County probation, I have come to realize that certain people will conform to the rules of a program for the sake of merely getting through a program and some actually benefit from the experience. Judging by Mr. Pruchnic's motivation, maturity and effort, I feel he has benefited from his time in prison and on ISP. In numerous conversations, Mr. Pruchnic has shown an understanding of the shortcomings of his prior criminal activity and seems to have the proper motivation, as well as the skills to achieve his goal of some day being a successful restaurateur. Throughout his time on ISP, David has shown proof of rehabilitation. His desire to learn while working as a cook at Trump Plaza, his getting a part time job to supplement his income and ultimately his getting a job dealing craps to maximize his income (so he could some day realize his goal), show a sincere desire to be a success in a pro-social, legal way.

Numerous letters from the petitioner's family, friends, acquaintances, and employers, were admitted into evidence as Exhibit P-1. Some of the letters are from coworkers and supervisors in the casino industry. Most of the letters indicate an awareness on the writer's part concerning the petitioner's criminal conduct and subsequent rehabilitation efforts. These letters describe the petitioner as a hard working and caring person, and many writers express great surprise that the petitioner became involved in any kind of illegal activity. It is apparent from reading these letters that these writers care a great deal about the petitioner and that they are convinced he has learned a painful lesson and will now be a productive and respected citizen. Many emphasize that the petitioner is a very trustworthy and conscientious person.

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to section 80a of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), it is the affirmative responsibility of each applicant and licensee to establish by clear and convincing evidence his individual qualifications. It is the intention of the Act to preclude the creation of any property right in any license permitted under the act and to require that participation in gaming be solely conditioned upon the individual qualifications of the person seeking such a privilege. Pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act, an applicant for a casino employee license must demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity.

The Act also sets forth grounds for disqualification. Section 90e incorporates the disqualification criteria set forth in section 86 of the Act. Pursuant to section 86c(1), the Casino Control Commission shall deny a casino employee license to any applicant who has been convicted of an offense specifically identified as a disqualifier from licensure. Among these offenses are the second or third degree crimes of distributing a controlled dangerous substance, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5.

It is undisputed that on September 29, 1987, the petitioner sold ten pounds of marijuana to an undercover investigator. On February 22, 1988, the petitioner was convicted upon his plea of guilty to one count of distribution of marijuana in a quantity of five pounds or more, a second degree crime in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(10). Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner is subject to denial of his application for renewal of his casino employee license on the basis of his conviction of a disqualifying offense.

Section 90h of the Act provides that the petitioner shall not be denied a casino employee license on the basis of his otherwise disqualifying conviction, provided that he has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation. In determining whether rehabilitation has been affirmatively demonstrated, the following factors under N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h shall be considered:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counselling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

The petitioner holds three part-time positions in the casino industry. He is a dealer at one licensed casino and he works as a food service employee in two others. Renewal of licensure would permit him to continue working as a dealer on the casino floor. The petitioner previously worked for over three years at Resorts International Hotel and Casino. He lost his position there when he was arrested on September 29, 1987, following his sale of ten pounds of marijuana to an undercover investigator.

The petitioner was 29 at the time of his arrest. He had been selling marijuana in small quantities for about two months. When the undercover detective suggested buying a large quantity of marijuana, the petitioner saw the proposition as a way to make some quick money to pay some bills.

After his arrest, the petitioner took stock of his conduct and realized his drug involvement was a foolish mistake. It had jeopardized his own health and safety and had nearly destroyed his marriage. Although the petitioner was sentenced to incarceration for five years, he applied for and was admitted into the intensive supervision program. It is undisputed that the petitioner has met the requirements of the program.

The petitioner has maintained employment following his release from prison. He met the schedule for payment of his fines and penalties and these sums have been paid in full. The petitioner has also undergone about 60 random drug tests, all of which he passed without incident. In the opinion of his supervising officer, the petitioner has shown the motivation, maturity and effort to actually benefit from the intensive supervision experience.

There is no doubt that he was convicted of a serious offense. Although it was his first offense, the sentencing judge determined that incarceration was warranted. The consequences of his arrest, conviction and incarceration were more than adequate to persuade the petitioner that he had made a serious mistake. He has worked very hard to regain the respect and trust of his family, friends and employers. He has accomplished this difficult task and is considered by those who know him to be a trustworthy and conscientious man.

The petitioner has offered substantial evidence to demonstrate that the possibility of his again becoming involved in illegal activity is exceedingly remote. Based upon the foregoing discussion and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner, who has been convicted of a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1) of the Act, has established his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, within the meaning of section 90h of the Act. I also CONCLUDE on the basis of the undisputed facts in this matter that the petitioner has sustained his burden of establishing by clear and convincing evidence that he presently possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, within the meaning of sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner's application for renewal of his casino employee license should be granted.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the application of David C. Pruchnic for renewal of licensure as a casino employee be GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL ASPECTS

On June 3, 1988, the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a four count complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) alleging various violations of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.1 et. seq. by respondent Resorts International Hotel, Inc., t/a Resorts International Casino/Hotel (Resorts). The Division alleges, among other things, that the violations pertain to the approval of a casino credit account for a Richard Hartman on September 19, 1987, and subsequent credit limit increases approved on October 1, 1987, and October 7, 1987 respectively, and in violation of the controlling regulations.

On August 15, 1988, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. Prehearing conferences were held on November 3, 1988 and January 26, 1989. The matter was assigned to be heard by Stephen W. Thompson, ALJ, on April 24, 1989. That hearing date was adjourned and new hearing dates of May 19, 1989 and May 30, 1989 were set down and also adjourned. ALJ Thompson left the OAL and the matter was transferred to the undersigned.

Subsequent to the filing of cross-motions for summary decision, among other things, the parties entered into settlement negotiations. On October 17, 1989, the undersigned was in receipt of a Stipulation of Facts and Settlement Agreement duly executed by the parties, which is set forth hereinbelow:

STIPULATION OF FACT AND SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

1. Respondent, Resorts International Hotel, Inc. t/a Resorts International Casino/Hotel (hereinafter "Resorts"), is now and at all times referenced herein has been a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey and has now and at times referenced herein has had its principal place of business located at North Carolina and the Boardwalk in the City of Atlantic City, County of Atlantic and State of New Jersey.

2. Resorts is the holder of, and operates pursuant to, a Certificate of Operation effective May 26, 1978 at which time Resorts was the holder of temporary casino permit. Resorts has conducted its casino hotel operations pursuant to said Certificate of Operation continually to date including all times referenced herein. Said Certification of Operation entitles Resorts to operate a casino hotel in accordance with the provisions of the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder.

3. Resorts is now the holder of a plenary casino license issued to it by the Commission authorizing it to operate a casino hotel in accordance with the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder. Said license was issued to Resorts effective February 26, 1979, and was last renewed for a term of two years on or about February 26, 1988.

4. At the time of its last license renewal, Resorts had been conducting its casino hotel operations under the ownership and control of M.r Donald J. Trump. Mr. Trump had purchased Resorts from the Estate of Mr. James M. Crosby on or about July 21, 987.

5. On November 15, 1988, Resorts was acquired from Mr. Donald J. Trump by the Griffin Company. The Griffin Company is an entity which is wholly-owned by Mr. Merv Griffin.

6. On June 3, 1988, the Division filed with the Commission the complaint in the above-captioned matter. Said complaint alleges various violation s of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.1 et seq. against Resorts which pertain to the approval of a casino credit account for Richard Hartman on September 19, 1987, and subsequent credit limit increases approved on October 1, 1987, and October 7, 1987, respectively.

7. Richard Hartman had initially established a casino credit account at Resorts on or about April 12, 1983. As of November 23, 1983, Richard Hartman's outstanding credit owing to Resorts consisted of a $200,000 counter check executed by Mr. Hartman on that date.

8. On January 10, 1984, Resorts was notified by a representative of Richard Hartman that Mr. Hartman had placed a stop payment against his outstanding counter check at Resorts. On January 18, 1984, Resorts deposited Mr. Hartman's outstanding counter check and on January 30, 1984, said counter check was returned unpaid for the reason "payment stopped."

9. On or about August 8, 1984, Richard Hartman paid $70,000, or 35% of the amount owed, to Resorts in full settlement of his $200,000 casino credit debt. The unpaid balance of $130,000 was written -off by Resorts for the quarter ending September 30, 1984.

10. On or about September 10, 1987, Richard Hartman had a telephone conversation with Jeff Ross, then Resorts' Vice President of Casino Operations, regarding the establishment of a casino credit account at Resorts.

11. Based on the telephone conversation described in paragraph 10, supra, Mr. Ross requested Gary Grant, Resorts' Vice President of Credit Operations, to begin gathering information to prepare a credit file for Mr. Hartman. A copy of Richard Hartman's complete 1987 credit file, consisting of 24 pages, is attached hereto as Exhibit 1.

12. On September 10, 1987, Resorts Credit Department personnel began gathering information regarding Mr. Hartman's bank, casino credit and other non-casino credit data. The information thus obtained by the Resorts Credit Department personnel is set forth at paragraphs 13 through 25 of this Stipulation, infra.

13. On September 10, 1987, at 9:58 p.m. (E.S.T.) Resorts Credit Department obtained information from an approved casino credit bureau, Central Credit of Las Vegas (hereinafter "CCLV"), regarding Richard Hartman's credit limits and outstanding balances at other Atlantic City casinos. The information obtained from CCLV was contained on a document entitled "Central Credit Gaming Report," a copy of which is found at page 13 of Exhibit 1.

24. In connection with the completion of the credit application form, as described in paragraph 22, supra, Resorts requested Richard Hartman to sign a "Confidential Credit Inquiry" letter to be sent to Irving Trust to provide Resorts with information concerning Mr. Hartman's business and personal accounts established at Irving Trust. A copy of the "Confidential Credit Inquiry" letter is included within Richard Hartman's credit file and can be found at page 17 of Exhibit 1.

25. Following the completion of the credit application form, as described in paragraph 22, supra, and the "Confidential Credit Inquiry" letter, as described in paragraph 24, supra, Resorts Cage Shift Supervisor Robert Capozzi examined Mr. Hartman's identification credentials which consisted of his New York State driver's license. Cage Shift Supervisor Capozzi recorded his examination of the driver's license in Richard Hartman's 1987 credit file at 10:40 p.m., on September 19, 1987. The record of Cage Shift Supervisor Capozzi's examination of the driver's license can be found at page 12 of Exhibit 1. A copy of Mr. Hartman's driver's license was also included in the credit file and can be found at page 18 of Exhibit 1. The address contained on the driver's license was 2922 Lonni Lane, Merrick, New York 11566.

26. On September 19, 1987, at 10:45 p.m., patron Richard Hartman was granted a casino credit line in the amount of $200,000 at Resorts. Said credit line was approved by Vice President of Credit Operations Gary Grant and former Vice President of Casino Operations Jeff Ross. Recorded in the credit file at page 3 of Exhibit 1 in the box designated "Summary of Credit Decision, Include Disregard of Deroge Information" is the following: "Bank report and established in other casinos."

27. In approving the credit decision described in paragraph 26, supra, an arrangement was made with Mr. Hartman that any counter checks, or checks received in substitution of counter checks, which were outstanding at the end of patron Richard Hartman's gaming trip to Resorts would be immediately deposited for collection on the next business day. Said deposit arrangement was not recorded within Richard Hartman's 1987 credit file.

28. On September 19, 1987, at 11:20 p.m., Credit Clerk Supervisor Debra Innis prepared and mailed to Irving Trust in New York City the "Confidential Credit Inquiry" letter regarding Richard Hartman's bank account 1010000676. Resorts' Credit Check List for patron Richard Hartman indicates that Resorts did not receive a response from Irving Trust. A copy of said Credit Check List is included in Richard Hartman's credit file and can be found at page 11 of Exhibit 1.

29. On gaming day September 19, 1987, at 10:50 p.m., Richard Hartman was issued counter check #70919707875 in the amount of $200,000 on his approved casino credit account at Resorts. Approximately 1 hour later, at 11:45 p.m., Richard Hartman substituted said counter check with a $200,000 personal check. A copy of counter check #70919707875 and the documentation regarding the substitution transaction is attached hereto as Exhibit 2.

30. On September 20, 1987, the personal check, as described in paragraph 29, supra, was deposited by Resorts into its depository bank account consistent with the arrangement described in paragraph 27, supra. After deposit, Vice President of Credit Operations Gary Grant telephonically contacted Irving Trust and was informed that there were sufficient funds in patron Richard Hartman's account for the check to clear.

31. On gaming day October 1, 1987, at 7:35 p.m., patron Richard Hartman requested that Respondent Resorts increase his approved casino credit line from $200,000 to $500,000. A 'Credit Limit Request" form was signed by Mr. Hartman and retained in his credit file at Resorts and can be found at page 19 of Exhibit 1.

32. Prior to making a decision on Richard Hartman's request for an increase in his casino credit line at Resorts on October 1, 1987, Resorts Credit Clerk Supervisor Debra Innis obtained information regarding Mr. Hartman's outstanding balances at other Atlantic City casinos. At or between 5:15 p.m. and 5:20 p.m., on October 1, 1987, Credit Clerk Supervisor Innis obtained a Central Credit Summary Review from CCLV and directly contacted several Atlantic City casinos and obtained the following casino credit information:

Atlantic City Casino	Information Obtained and Recorded
Trump Castle	$500,000 credit limit; $500,000 current outstanding balance from September 24, 1987.
Trump Plaza	$1,000,000 credit limit; $500,000 outstanding balance from September 22, 1987 in transit.
Sands	Suspended credit company decision, $400,000 in transit from September 19, 1987."

The above described information was recorded in Richard Hartman's 1987 credit file under the designation "Intransits" and can be found at page 6 of Exhibit 1. A copy of the Central Credit Summary Review dated October 1, 1987, is included within Richard Hartman's credit file and can be found at page 20 of Exhibit 1.

33. On October 1, 1987, at 7:45 p.m., Respondent Resorts approved the $300,000 credit limit increase requested by Richard Hartman. The credit limit increase was approved by Vice President of Casino Operations Jeff Ross. Recorded in the credit file at page 3 of Exhibit 1 in the box designated "Summary of Credit Decision, Include Disregard of Derog Information" is the following: "Payment record, other casinos and management decision."

34. On gaming day October 1, 1987, at 7:54 p.m., Richard Hartman was issued counter check #71001745850 in the amount of $500,000 on his approved casino credit at Resorts. On the same gaming day, at 2:47 a.m., Richard Hartman substituted said counter check with a $500,000 personal check. A copy of counter check #71001745850 and the documentation regarding the substitution transaction is attached hereto as Exhibit 3.

35. On October 2, 1987, the personal check, as described in paragraph 33, supra, was deposited by Resorts into its depository bank account consistent with the arrangement described in paragraph 27, supra. On or before gaming day October 7, 1987, Resorts Credit Department telephonically contacted Irving Trust and was informed that the October 1, 1987, personal check of Richard Hartman had cleared the bank.

36. Resorts' computer system, as it then operated, was programmed to recognize as cleared a personal check drawn on a New York City bank and deposited in Resorts' depository account ten (10) days after deposit. Although Mr. Hartman's $500,000 personal check, as described in paragraph 34, supra, had cleared Irving Trust on or before gaming day October 7, 1987, Resorts' computer system did not recognize it as cleared until October 12, 1987, ten (10) days after its deposit. Since Resorts' computer system did not reflect any available credit on Mr. Hartman's $500,000 credit line, he could not be issued any counter checks unless his credit limit was increased.

37. On gaming day October 7, 1987, at 4:00 p.m., Richard Hartman requested that Respondent Resorts increase his approved casino credit line from $500,000 to $1,000,000. A "Credit Limit Request" form was signed by Mr. Hartman and retained in his credit file and can be found at page 21 of Exhibit 1.

38. Prior to making a decision on Richard Hartman's request for an increase in his casino credit line at Resorts on October 7, 1987, Resorts Credit Clerk Supervisor Judith Braddock Smith obtained information regarding Mr. Hartman's current casino credit limits and outstanding balances at other Atlantic City casinos. At or between 2:05 p.m. and 2:27 p.m. on October 7, 1987, Credit Clerk Supervisor Smith directly contacted the following Atlantic City casinos and obtained the following information regarding Mr. Hartman's credit limits and outstanding balances:

Atlantic City Casino	Time Information Obtained	Information Obtained and Recorded
Sands	2:05 p.m.	suspended credit account-credit executive decision; zero outstanding balance.
Trump Plaza	2:10 p.m.	current $1,000,000 credit limit; $500,000 outstanding balance; in transit 9/29/87.
Harrah's Marina	2:27 p.m.	front money only.

39. On October 7, 1987, Credit Clerk Supervisor Smith also requested a Central Credit Summary Review from CCLV which was received on or about 2:11 p.m. (E.S.T.) . The information obtained from the Central Credit Summary Review regarding Mr. Hartman's casino credit limits and outstanding balances were as follows:

Atlantic City Casino	Information Obtained and Recorded
Trump Castle	$500,000 credit limit; $500,000 outstanding balance from September 24, 1987.
Trump Plaza	$1,000,000 credit limit; $500,000 outstanding balance from September 22, 1987.
Sands	$400,000 credit limit; zero current balance.

40. On October 7, 1987, at 4:15 p.m., Respondent Resorts approved the $500,000 credit limit increase requested by Richard Hartman raising his approved credit line to $1,000,000. The credit limit increase was approved by Vice President of Credit Operations Gary Grant and former Vice President of Casino Operations Jeff Ross. Recorded in the credit file at page 3 of Exhibit 1 in the box designated "Summary of Credit Decision, Include Disregard of Derog Information" is the following: "Payment record, other casino credit and management decision."

41. On gaming day October 7, 1987, at 4:37 p.m., Richard Hartman was issued counter check #71007760491 in the amount of $500,000 on his approved casino credit account at Resorts. Approximately 30 minutes later, at 5:03 p.m., Richard Hartman substituted said counter check with a $500,000 personal check. A copy of counter check #71007760491 and the documentation regarding the substitution transaction is attached as Exhibit 4.

42. On gaming day October 7, 1987, at 2:43 a.m., Richard Hartman presented to Resorts casino check #2665 issued to Mr. Hartman by Trump Plaza in the amount of $500,000 and dated October 7, 1987. Said casino check was accepted by Resorts in a substitution transaction for the $500,000 personal check presented by Richard Hartman to Resorts earlier that same gaming day, as described in paragraph 41, supra. A copy of casino check #2665 and the documentation regarding the substitution transaction is attached hereto as Exhibit 5.

43. On gaming day October 11, 1987, at 10:51 p.m., Richard Hartman was issued counter check #71011783226 in the amount of $500,000 on his approved credit account at Resorts. Approximately 1 1/2 hours later, at 12:27 a.m., Richard Hartman redeemed said counter check with $500,000 in gaming chips. A copy of counter check #71011783226 and the documentation regarding the redemption transaction is attached hereto as Exhibit 6.

44. On gaming day October 12, 1987, at 3:23 p.m., Richard Hartman was issued counter check #71012785760 in the amount of $500,000 on his approved casino credit account at Resorts. Approximately 30 minutes later, at 3:56 p.m., Richard Hartman redeemed said counter check with $500,000 in gaming chips. A copy of counter check #71012785760 and the documentation regarding the redemption transaction is attached hereto as Exhibit 7.

45. On gaming day October 12, 1987, at 11:36 p.m., Richard Hartman was issued counter check #7101278721 in the amount of $500,000 on his approved casino credit account at Resorts. Said counter check remained outstanding as of the close of business on gaming day October 12, 1987. A copy of counter check #71012786721 is attached hereto as Exhibit 8.

46. Richard Hartman's last gaming activity at Resorts on his approved casino credit account was October 12, 1987, as described in paragraphs 44 and 45, supra, at which time Mr. Hartman"s outstanding casino credit balance was $500,000.

47. Resorts' Customer Action Report pertaining to Richard Hartman"s gaming activity at Resorts for the months of September and October 1987 indicate that Mr. Hartman sustained net gaming losses in the total amount of $1,685,400 during those two months. A copy of Resorts' Customer Action Report for Richard Hartman is attached hereto as Exhibit 9.

48. On February 19, 1988, counter check #71012786721 in the amount of $500,000 as described in paragraph 45, supra, was deposited by Resorts into its depository bank account.

49. On or about March 2, 1988, counter check #71012786721 in the amount of $500,000 was returned unpaid to Resorts for the stated reason that a stop payment order had been issued on said counter check. A copy of returned counter check #71012786721 is attached hereto as Exhibit 10.

50. To date, the returned check balance in the amount of $500,000 on the casino credit account of Richard Hartman at Resorts as described in paragraph 49, supra, remains unpaid.

51. During the course of the Division's investigation of the subject matter which resulted in the filing of the Division's Complaint, Division representatives requested copies of the personal checks accepted from Richard Hartman on September 19, 1987, October 1, 1987 and October 7, 1987, as described in paragraphs 29, 34, and 41, supra. Resorts personnel were able to produce a microfilm reproduction of the personal check dated September 19, 1987, but they were unable to produce copies of the October 1, 1987 and October 7, 1987 personal checks. A copy of the personal check dated September 19, 1987, is attached hereto as Exhibit 11.

52. Resorts, as a matter of company policy, makes a copy of all personal checks accepted from patrons in substitution transactions, like that described in paragraphs 29 and 34, supra, prior to deposit in its depository account for payment. Such copies are made for the purpose of demonstrating to the bank where Resorts' depository account is maintained the deposit of such checks if any problems arise. Resorts does not make copies of personal checks accepted from patrons in substitution transactions, like that described in paragraph 41, supra, which are later returned to the respective patron in subsequent substitution transactions prior to deposit.

53. During the course of discovery in the instant matter, Resorts located a copy of the front of Richard Hartman's personal check dated October 1, 1987 and provided same to the Division. The personal check of Richard Hartman's dated October 7, 1987 was not copied or microfilmed by Resorts because it was not deposited; rather, it was returned to Mr. Hartman in exchange for a casino check, as described in paragraph 42, supra. A copy of the personal check dated October 1, 1987, provided to the Division in discovery is attached hereto as Exhibit 12.

54. As part of the Division's investigation in the instant matter, sworn investigative interviews were conducted of credit clerk supervisor Judith Braddock Smith, casino cage shift manager Robert Capozzi, and Vice President of Credit Operations Gary Grant. A copy of the transcript of said interviews is attached hereto as Exhibit 13. Additionally, five exhibits were utilized at the sworn investigative interviews and are attached hereto as Exhibits 14 through 18, respectively.

55. Resorts recognizes the necessity for maintaining compliance with the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder. Resorts is presently in the process of drafting a training manual for use by its Casino Credit Department. The training manual, when complete, will serve as an aid in providing comprehensive training to Resorts' Casino Credit Department employees. The training manual is to reemphasize the requirements of the Act and regulations with respect to the proper procedures for the issuance of casino credit. Resorts intends to distribute such manual to all current and new employees with responsibilities affecting the issuance of casino credit.

56. Upon completion of the training manual, more fully described in Paragraph 55, supra, Resorts intends to conduct retraining seminars for all employees of its Casino Credit Department. The retraining seminars are to emphasize the proper procedures for the issuance of casino credit, including all requirements of the Act.

WHEREAS, the parties agree that if the Stipulation of Facts and Settlement set forth herein are not accepted in their entirety by the Casino Control Commission, the parties are no longer bound thereby and each party retains its right to proceed to a hearing before the Office of Administrative Law for the purpose of adjudicating this Complaint, and

WHEREAS, with respect to Counts I and II of Division Complaint No. 88-386, Respondent admits that its September 19, 1987 decision to approve a $200,000 credit limit for Richard Hartman violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a) by virtue of such approval not being adequately supported by the information contained in his credit file, to wit:

(2) Respondent did not adequately verify and record in his credit file the type, balances, date opened and last name of the person supplying the bank information, in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(c)4i, iii, iv and vii;

(3) Respondent did not adequately record in his credit file information used and a brief summary of the key factors relied upon in its decision to approve the credit limit in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(f); and

(4) Respondent did not adequately record in his credit file the reasons credit was approved in light of his 1984 casino credit problems, in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(f)3.

WHEREAS, with respect to Counts III and IV of Division Complaint No. 88-386, Respondent admits that its October 1, 1987 decision to increase the credit limit of Mr. Hartman by an additional $300,000 and its October 7, 1987 decision to increase the credit limit of Mr. Hartman by an additional $500,000 violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a) by virtue of such increases not being adequately supported by the information contained in his credit file, to wit:

(1) Respondent increased Mr. Hartman's credit limit notwithstanding the initial deficiencies in the credit file as set forth above with respect to Counts I and II in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a), (c) and (f); and

(2) Respondent did not adequately record in his credit file information used and a brief summary of the key factors relied upon in its decision to approve credit limit increases in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(f).

WHEREAS, with respect to Count V of Division Complaint No. 88-386, Respondent admits that it violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-96(e) by virtue of the fact that a copy of Mr. Hartman's personal check presented to the casino cage on October 1, 1987 was maintained by Resorts and not made immediately available to the Division agent who requested same during the Division's investigation in the instant matter. With respect to the personal check presented to the casino cage on October 7, 1987 Resorts did not maintain a copy of said check since it was returned to the patron prior to deposit in exchange for a casino check. The Division agrees to dismiss the allegations set forth in Count V of Division Complaint No. 88-386 as they relate to the personal check presented on October 7, 1987.

WHEREAS, the parties hereby stipulate and agree that the validity and enforceability of counter check #71012786721 under N.J.S.A. 5:12-101 is not an issue addressed in this action and Respondent specifically preserves its rights with respect to this issue in a separate proceeding.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY, DEPARTMENT OF LAW AND PUBLIC SAFETY, DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT, Complainant, vs. RESORTS INTERNATIONAL HOTEL, INC., t/a RESORTS INTERNATIONAL CASINO/HOTEL, Respondent.	Civil Action STIPULATION OF FACTS AND SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

With the above-captioned matter having been discussed by and between the parties involved, Peter N. Perretti, Jr., Attorney General of New Jersey, Attorney for Complainant, State of New Jersey, Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement, by Kevin F. O'Toole, Deputy Attorney General, and Jack Gorny, Esquire, of Horn, Kaplan, Goldberg, Gorny & Daniels, Attorneys for Respondent Resorts International Hotel, Inc., t/a Resorts International Casino/Hotel, and all matters having been agreed upon, it is hereby stipulated and agreed by and between the parties as follows:

1. Respondent, Resorts International Hotel, Inc. t/a Resorts International Casino/Hotel (hereinafter "Resorts"), is now and at all times referenced herein has been a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey and has now and at times referenced herein has had its principal place of business located at North Carolina and the Boardwalk in the City of Atlantic City, County of Atlantic and State of New Jersey.

2. Resorts is the holder of, and operates pursuant to, a Certificate of Operation effective May 26, 1978 at which time Resorts was the holder of a temporary casino permit. Resorts has conducted its casino hotel operations pursuant to said Certificate of Operation continually to date including all times referenced herein. Said Certificate of Operation entitles Resorts to operate a casino hotel in accordance with the provisions of the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder.

3. Resorts is now the holder of a plenary casino license issued to it by the Commission authorizing it to operate a casino hotel in accordance with the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder. Said license was issued to Resorts effective February 26, 1979, and was last renewed for a term of two years on or about February 26, 1988.

4. At the time of its last license renewal, Resorts had been conducting its casino hotel operations under the ownership and control of Mr. Donald J. Trump. Mr. Trump had purchased Resorts from the Estate of Mr. James M. Crosby on or about July 21, 1987.

5. On November 15, 1988, Resorts was acquired from Mr. Donald J. Trump by The Griffin Company. The Griffin Company is an entity which is wholly-owned by Mr. Merv Griffin.

6. On June 3, 1988, the Division filed with the Commission the complaint in the above-captioned matter. Said complaint alleges various violations of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.1 et seq. against Resorts which pertain to the approval of a casino credit account for Richard Hartman on September 19, 1987, and subsequent credit limit increases approved on October 1, 1987, and October 7, 1987, respectively.

7. Richard Hartman had initially established a casino credit account at Resorts on or about April 12, 1983. As of November 23, 1983, Richard Hartman's outstanding credit owing to Resorts consisted of a $200,000 counter check executed by Mr. Hartman on that date.

8. On January 10, 1984, Resorts was notified by a representative of Richard Hartman that Mr. Hartman had placed a stop payment against his outstanding counter check at Resorts. On January 18, 1984, Resorts deposited Mr. Hartman's outstanding counter check and on January 30, 1984, said counter check was returned unpaid for the reason "payment stopped."

9. On or about August 8, 1984, Richard Hartman paid $70,000, or 35% of the amount owed, to Resorts in full settlement of his $200,000 casino credit debt. The unpaid balance of $130,000 was written-off by Resorts for the quarter ending September 30, 1984.

10. On or about September 10, 1987, Richard Hartman had a telephone conversation with Jeff Ross, then Resorts' Vice President of Casino Operations, regarding the establishment of a casino credit account at Resorts.

11. Based on the telephone conversation described in paragraph 10, supra, Mr. Ross requested Gary Grant, Resorts' Vice President of Credit Operations, to begin gathering information to prepare a credit file for Mr. Hartman. A copy of Richard Hartman's complete 1987 credit file, consisting of 24 pages, is attached hereto as Exhibit 1.

12. On September 10, 1987, Resorts Credit Department personnel began gathering information regarding Mr. Hartman's bank, casino credit and other non-casino credit data. The information thus obtained by the Resorts Credit Department personnel is set forth at paragraphs 13 through 25 of this Stipulation, infra.

13. On September 10, 1987, at 9:58 p.m. (E.S.T.) Resorts Credit Department obtained information from an approved casino credit bureau, Central Credit of Las Vegas (hereinafter "CCLV"), regarding Richard Hartman's credit limits and outstanding balances at other Atlantic City casinos. The information obtained from CCLV was contained on a document entitled "Central Credit Gaming Report," a copy of which is found at page 13 of Exhibit 1.

14. The Central Credit Gaming Report described in paragraph 13, supra, disclosed that Richard Hartman established casino credit and front money accounts at various Atlantic City casinos commencing in or about September, 1980. A summary of the Central Credit Gaming Report disclosed the following information from the following casinos:

Caesars Boardwalk Regency	Credit established 9/28/80; no credit as of inquiry on 2/21/87; $200,000 payment stopped, 1/28/84; write-off 12/1/84, $60,000; balance 9/7/87, $60,000.

After deposit, Vice President of Credit Operations Gary Grant telephonically contacted Irving Trust and was informed that there were sufficient funds in patron Richard Hartman's account for the check to clear.

31. On gaming day October 1, 1987, at 7:35 p.m., patron Richard Hartman requested that Respondent Resorts increase his approved casino credit line from $200,000 to $500,000. A "Credit Limit Request" form was signed by Mr. Hartman and retained in his credit file at Resorts and can be found at page 19 of Exhibit 1.

32. Prior to making a decision on Richard Hartman's request for an increase in his casino credit line at Resorts on October 1, 1987, Resorts Credit Clerk Supervisor Debra Innis obtained information regarding Mr. Hartman's current casino credit limits and outstanding balances at other Atlantic City casinos. At or between 5:15 p.m. and 5:20 p.m., on October 1, 1987, Credit Clerk Supervisor Innis obtained a Central Credit Summary Review from CCLV and directly contacted several Atlantic City casinos and obtained the following casino credit information:

line, he could not be issued any counter checks unless his credit limit was increased.

Resorts personnel were able to produce a microfilm reproduction of the personal check dated September 19, 1987, but they were unable to produce copies of the October 1, 1987 and October 7, 1987 personal checks. (1) Respondent increased Mr. Hartman's credit limit notwithstanding the initial deficiencies in the credit file as set forth above with respect to Counts I and II in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a), (c) and (f); and

(2) Respondent did not adequately record in his credit file information used and a brief summary of the key factors relied upon in its decision to approve the credit limit increases in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(f).

WHEREAS, with respect to Count V of Division Complaint No. 88-386, Respondent admits that it violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-96(e) by virtue of the fact that a copy of Mr. Hartman's personal check presented to the casino cage on October 1, 1987 was maintained by Resorts and not made immediately available to the Division agent who requested same during the Division's investigation in the instant matter. With respect to the personal check presented to the casino cage on October 7, 1987 Resorts did not maintain a copy of said check since it was returned to the patron prior to deposit in exchange for a casino check. The Division agrees to dismiss the allegations set forth in Count V of Division Complaint No. 88-386 as they relate to the personal check presented on October 7, 1987.

WHEREAS, the parties hereby stipulate and agree that the validity and enforceability of counter check #71012786721 under N.J.S.A. 5:12-101 is not an issue addressed in this action and Respondent specifically preserves its rights with respect to this issue in a separate proceeding.

IT IS THEREFORE consented to and agreed upon by and between the parties that:

A. Respondent Resorts agrees to pay the sum of forty thousand dollars ($40,000) to the New Jersey Casino Control Fund pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(5) for the aforementioned violations of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)2, 1.27(c)1, 1.27(c)4, 1.27(a) and (f) relative to Counts I and II of Division Complaint No. 88-386.

B. Respondent Resorts agrees to pay the sum of sixty thousand dollars ($60,000) to the New Jersey Casino Control Fund pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(5) for the aforementioned violations of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a) and (f) relative to Counts III and IV of Division Complaint No. 88-386.

C. Respondent Resorts agrees to pay the sum of two thousand five hundred dollars ($2,500) to the New Jersey Casino Control Fund pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(5) for the aforementioned violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-96(e) relative to Count V of Division Complaint No. 88-386.

D. This Settlement Agreement, upon approval of the Casino Control Commission, is a full and final settlement of all allegations, matters, issues brought or which could have been brought, and claims and possible claims relating to Division Complaint No. 88-386.

Record Closed: February 16, 1990 Decided: March 26, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter concerns in part the application of respondent Leander C. Rice for a casino employee license which would permit him to be an alcoholic beverage employee in a licensed casino. By letter report to the Casino Control Commission dated January 4, 1989, the Division of Gaming Enforcement objected to licensure of the respondent, alleging that he had committed the offense of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) with intent to distribute, comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5(b)3. This matter also concerns the complaint of the Division of Gaming Enforcement filed with the Commission on March 13, 1989, seeking revocation of the respondent's hotel employee registration.

These are the issues:

1. Has the respondent engaged in conduct constituting the offense of distribution of a controlled dangerous substance, or possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, which would be disqualifiers from licensure and from continued casino hotel employee registration, pursuant to sections 86c(1), 90e and 91b of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), even if such conduct has not been prosecuted under the laws of this state, as permitted by section 86g of the Act.

2. Has the respondent established by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act.

3. Has the respondent, if he has committed an otherwise disqualifying offense, affirmatively established his rehabilitation, pursuant to sections 90h and 91d of the Act.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On June 12, 1989, the Casino Control Commission entered an order denying the casino employee license application of the respondent and revoking his casino hotel empoyee registration. The respondent subsequently filed a petition for rehearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-107(d). On August 18, 1989, the Commission ordered that the respondent's petition be granted and further ordered that the contested matters be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing. On August 23, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matters to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A telephone prehearing conference was held on October 10, 1989. At that time, the hearing was scheduled to be held on February 6, 1990. The hearing was thereafter held as scheduled in Absecon, New Jersey, on February 6, 1990. I subsequently determined that review of the hearing transcript was necessary, and the record closed when the transcript was received on February 16, 1990.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The material facts are essentially undisputed. The respondent is 32 years old and he resides with his girlfriend in Pleasantville, New Jersey. The respondent finished high school and he also had a two-year vocational course for electronics. He supports his one-year-old daughter.

The respondent holds casino hotel employee registration number 78279-40. Between August 1987 and July 1989, the respondent was employed by Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino as a bar porter. At the time of the hearing, the respondent had been receiving unemployment benefits for about four months. Between 1978 and 1987, the respondent worked at Lenox China.

Leslie Folks, an investigator with the Atlantic County Prosecutor's office, testified on behalf of the Division of Gaming Enforcement. According to Mr. Folks, he took part in an undercover investigation at Lenox China in 1986. The management of Lenox China had sought the help of the prosecutor's office because employees were noticeably under the influence of alcohol and drugs while working. Mr. Folks began working under cover as an employee at Lenox China on October 28, 1986. It was his testimony that he had a list of suspects and his objective was to find them, gain their confidence, and buy drugs from them.

On October 29, 1986, Mr. Folks met the respondent at work. He asked the respondent if anyone there got high. The respondent told him that everyone does at lunch time: drinking beer or using marijuana or cocaine to get high. When Mr. Folks asked the respondent for drugs the respondent replied that he did not have any but he could get some.

Mr. Folks testified that the very next day, October 30, 1986, the respondent handed him a small glassine bag containing green vegetation which subsequently field tested positive as marijuana. Mr. Folks did not see how the respondent obtained the marijuana and he did not pay the respondent for it. It was his opinion that the respondent gave it to him because he had been asking the respondent for drugs.

On October 31, 1986, Mr. Folks asked the respondent if he could get some cocaine. He testified that the respondent said that the cocaine could be obtained from "Louie." Later, the respondent told Mr. Folks that the respondent would not be able to get cocaine from Louie because Louie did not know him. The respondent said that he would get the cocaine for Mr. Folks. At about 8:10 p.m. on October 31, 1986, Mr. Folks purchased from the respondent a $40 bag of what later field tested positive as cocaine. Mr. Folks did not know what the respondent did with the money which he paid for the cocaine.

Testifying on his own behalf, the respondent stated that he was pretty friendly with some of the other employees at Lenox China. He said that some of the employees did drugs or were drinking on their lunch hour. The respondent admitted that he would drink on his lunch hour but he denied ever doing drugs at lunch. He knew that some people were selling drugs and he could have purchased drugs if he wanted to.

According to the respondent's, he met Mr. Folks at Lenox China in October 1986. He had no idea that Mr. Folks was an undercover officer. The respondent stated that Mr. Folks kept bugging him about getting drugs. The first few times Mr. Folks asked, the respondent said no. The respondent acknowledged that he later told Mr. Folks that "Louie" might have some.

It was the respondent's testimony that near the end of a work day in October 1986, a coworker handed him some loose marijuana in a little bag. It appeared to the respondent to be just enough for one-half a joint. The respondent stated that he gave it right away to the guy who had been bugging him about getting drugs - Mr. Folks. The respondent did not ask him for any money in return.

According to the respondent, at some point thereafter Mr. Folks asked him in the cafeteria if he could get cocaine. The respondent testified that he told Mr. Folks that "Louie" was selling cocaine. When the respondent went up to Louie and told him that the new employee wanted to talk to him, Louie declined. The respondent felt that Louie did not want to talk to Mr. Folks because he did not know him. Instead, Louie handed the respondent a bag of cocaine in the factory cafeteria. It was the respondent's testimony that he brought the bag of cocaine to Mr. Folks and received a payment for it in return. The respondent then brought the money for the cocaine to Louie.

The respondent testified that sometime thereafter, the police came to his mother's house in Galloway Township. After speaking to his mother on the telephone, the respondent turned himself in to the Galloway Township Police. It is undisputed that the respondent was charged in November 1986 with variety of drug possession and distribution charges, as well as with conspiracy to distribute a controlled dangerous substance. On February 20, 1987, the respondent and three others were named in a 20-count indictment alleging a variety of drug offenses. The respondent was named in six counts and charged with unlawful possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(1); unlawful possession of cocaine with intent to distribute, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1); unlawful distribution of cocaine, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1); unlawful possession of marijuana with intent to distribute and unlawful distribution of marijuana, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1); and conspiracy to distribute a controlled dangerous substance, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-24. On August 4, 1987, the respondent retracted a not-guilty plea and entered a plea of guilty to count 12 of the indictment, which charged him with unlawful possession of marijuana with intent to distribute it, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1).

On September 25, 1987, the respondent was sentenced on the one count of the indictment to a period of probation of three years. He was ordered to pay $30 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board and a fine of $1,000. The remaining counts of the indictment were dismissed (Exhibit P-1). In the statement accompanying the judgment of conviction, the sentencing judge listed as reasons for the sentence that it was recommended by the prosecutor; the respondent has no other record and the incident is an isolated one where the respondent acted at the initiative of another; and that the fine imposed would punish the respondent. Among the mitigating factors identified by the sentencing judge were that the respondent did not contemplate that his conduct would cause or threaten serious harm; that the respondent has no history of prior criminal activity; that the respondent's conduct was the result of circumstances unlikely to recur; and that the respondent was willing to cooperate with law enforcement authorities (Exhibit P-1).

The respondent testified that he has no other record of arrests. He visits the probation office once a month and his fine of $1,000 is almost paid off. According to the respondent, he is trying to make monthly payments. A letter from the Atlantic County Probation Department was admitted into evidence as exhibit R-1. This letter states that the respondent is complying with the conditions of his probation. The respondent noted that he was not required to perform community service or undergo drug testing as a result of his conviction.

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT:

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to section 80a of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), it is the affirmative responsibility of each applicant and licensee to establish by clear and convincing evidence his individual qualifications. Pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act, an applicant for a casino employee license must demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity. The Act also sets forth grounds for disqualification. Section 90e incorporates the disqualification criteria set forth in section 86 of the Act. Pursuant to section 86c(1) and 86g, the Casino Control Commission shall deny a casino employee license to any applicant who has committed an offense specifically identified as a disqualifier from licensure, even if such offense has not been prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State.

Participation in casino operations as a licensee or registrant under the Act is deemed to be a revocable privilege conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee or registrant. N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8). It is the intention of the Act to preclude the creation of any property right in any license permitted under the Act, and to require that participation in gaming be solely conditioned upon the individual qualifications of the person seeking such a privilege. Pursuant to section 91b of the Act, the Commission may revoke the registration of any registrant who is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of the Act.

In August 1987, the respondent was convicted upon his plea of guilty to a charge of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) with intent to distribute it, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1), which is comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5. Under section 86c(1) of the Act, violations of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5 which constitute a crime of the second or third degree are disqualifiers. In addition, it is undisputed that the respondent in October 1986 sold a quantity of cocaine to an undercover police officer. The distribution of cocaine in a quantity of less than one-half ounce is a crime of the third degree, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the respondent is subject to denial of his application for a casino employee license and to revocation of his casino hotel employee registration on the basis of his commission of a disqualifying offense.

Section 91d of the Act provides that the respondent's casino hotel employee registration should not be revoked on the basis of his commission of an offense identified in the Act as a disqualifier, provided that he has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. Similarly, the respondent shall not be denied a casino employee license on the basis of his otherwise disqualifying conduct, provided that he has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Act. In determining whether rehabilitation has been affirmatively demonstrated, the following factors under N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h (the language of section 91d is almost identical) shall be considered:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counselling or psychiatric treatment received, acqusition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

The license which the respondent seeks would permit him to be hired in a licensed casino as an alcoholic beverage employee. The hotel employee registration which the respondent holds has permitted his employment as a bar porter. The respondent is now 32-years-old and he supports his one-year-old daughter.

When the respondent was 28 years old, he engaged in a conspiracy with fellow employees at Lenox China to distribute controlled dangerous substances. The record reveals that this conduct occurred over a short period of time. Specifically, the respondent took part in a distribution of a small quantity of marijuana and a distribution of a small quantity of cocaine. After pleading guilty to possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, the respondent was sentenced on September 25, 1987, to a period of probation of three years. He was also fined $1,000. The respondent has been meeting with his probation officer on a monthly basis and he is making payments toward his fine.

The respondent was not required to undergo drug testing as part of his probationary sentence. Neither was he required to perform any community service. The sentencing judge considered the respondent's conduct to be the result of circumstances which were unlikely to recur.

If the respondent continues to comply with the terms of his probation, it should end in September 1990. He has no record of arrests before or after the incident which is the subject of this proceeding, and I expect that he will satisfactorily complete his probation. The respondent believes that he will have employment opportunities in the casino industry if he has his credentials and his belief is probably correct. However, has the respondent established his rehabilitation? I am not convinced that he has. This is so specifically because the respondent has yet to understand the seriousness of his criminal conduct. Even though he delivered cocaine to an undercover officer and accepted a payment for the cocaine in return, the respondent asserted that he wasn't directly selling drugs and that someone else was doing the actual selling. While it is apparent that the respondent was acting as a middle man in the transaction, his attitude concerning the transaction nevertheless fails to acknowledge his participation in a serious drug offense.

Based upon the foregoing discussion, I CONCLUDE that the respondent has failed to establish his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, within the meaning of sections 90h and 91d of the Casino Control Act. Also based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the respondent has failed to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence, within the meaning of sections 99b(2) and 90b of the Act. Thus, the respondent is disqualified from licensure and continued registration for the reasons identified above.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the casino hotel employee registration of Leander C. Rice be REVOKED. It is further ORDERED that the application of Leander C. Rice for a casino employee license permitting him to work in a licensed casino as an alcoholic beverage employee be DENIED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

FOR A CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSE

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of February 21, 1990,

IT IS on this 28th day of February 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> The issue is whether the applicant is disqualified for committing an offense which renders his licensure inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(2). While the applicant bears the burden of establishing his qualifications for licensure by clear and convincing evidence, the existence of a disqualifying offense is a matter to be determined from an examination of the record as a whole under the preponderance of the evidence standard. Application of Resorts International, Hotel Inc., for a Casino License 10 N.J.A.R. 244 (1979). Whether the applicant's theft of under $200 from a casino in 1982 was disqualifying required consideration of the so called rehabilitation factors of N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h). State v. Donna Davis 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985). In making that determination, however, it is inaccurate to state, as the ALJ did, that the applicant bears the burden of establishing rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence

It is neither necessary nor appropriate to ascribe a burden of proof standard as to the existence or lack of rehabilitation in these circumstances. Cf. State v. Waters, Docket No. 84-419 (June 15, 1987). The question, simply put, is whether the applicant's offense, evaluated against all the factors delineated in section 90(h) is one that requires his disqualification. We agree with the ALJ that it does not.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the application is granted substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference.

Record Closed: December 8, 1989 Decided: January 11, 1990

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter concerns the letter filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on March 30, 1989, regarding the application for a casino employee license filed by the petitioner, Samuel A. Robb, pursuant to the provisions of the Casino Control Act, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. Since this letter contained negative information about the petitioner and there was a possibility that his application would not be approved, Mr. Robb requested a hearing. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on May 11, 1989, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held by Administrative Law Judge Edgar R. Holmes on August 31, 1989, and at that time the parties agreed that the issues in this matter are:

1. Whether petitioner's licensure is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2), because his is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, a disorderly persons offense.

2. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

3. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to Donna Davis v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985).

After the prehearing conference, the matter was transferred to the undersigned for the purpose of hearing the case and rendering an initial decision.

The hearing took place on December 8, 1989, at the Winslow Township Municipal Court, and the record in the matter closed on that date.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

I FIND the facts in this matter are not in dispute.

Mr. Robb was licensed as a casino employee in 1981. In 1982, he was employed by the then Golden Nugget Hotel and Casino (Golden Nugget) as a coin cashier. In that capacity, Mr. Robb operated an automatic counting machine. On March 26, 1982, Mr. Robb was arrested at the casino and accused of diverting $6.50 for his own use. The petitioner was charged with theft by unlawful taking, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. The petitioner pled guilty and was convicted of this offense in the Atlantic City Municipal Court on April 19, 1982. Mr. Robb was fined $100.00 plus $25.00 for court costs. In addition, Mr. Robb lost his job at the Golden Nugget.

Thereafter, the Division filed a complaint and recommended that the petitioner's casino employee license be revoked. After a hearing, Administrative Law Judge Richard L. Voliva Jr. issued an initial decision, dated July 1, 1983, in which he concluded that the petitioner's casino employee license should be revoked (R-2). This decision was modified by the Commission in its final order dated September 20, 1983; however, the Commission determined that the petitioner's casino employee license was to be revoked (R-3).

In September 1988, Mr. Robb filed an application for another casino employee license (R-1). In this application, Mr. Robb stated that he wants to work for a casino as a slot attendant and he disclosed the 1982 conviction (R-1). The Division's letter of March 30, 1989 related to this application.

At the hearing, Mr. Robb admitted that he took some coins belonging to Golden Nugget but stressed that he never cheated the customers of the casino. At the time he committed the offense, Mr. Robb was under a great deal of stress since he was having marital problems and his wife had created a substantial number of debts by purchasing with credit cards items that they could not afford. Mr. Robb took the casino money to help pay these bills. After the 1982 incident, he and his wife got a divorce.

After he lost his casino job, Mr. Robb sold real estate for about one and one-half years. On behalf of the petitioner, Leonard F. Albig submitted a letter stating that Mr. Robb worked for him as a real estate salesman and that he was a honest, dependable and reliable employee (P-1). Mr. Robb left this position since he was unable to earn an acceptable salary based on his commissions (P-1). A co-worker at the real estate company also wrote a letter stating that Mr. Robb was a honest person with high personal integrity and was a good employee (P-4). Thereafter, Mr. Robb worked as a driver for a testing laboratory for about two years. He also worked for a while as a driver for a seafood company. Recently, Mr. Robb has been employed by a laundry; however, he lost this job when the laundry burnt down on June 30, 1989. On the date of the hearing, December 8, 1989, Mr. Robb was unemployed and had applied for unemployment benefits.

Mr. Robb regrets that he committed the 1982 offense, and states that he has paid for this mistake. He has not been arrested or convicted of any other criminal offense. Mr. Robb applied for a casino employee license since he wants to work in the casino industry and he indicated that if his application is approved, he would never steal from the casino or its customers.

On behalf of the petitioner, two of his personal friends wrote letters indicating that they have known him for a number of years and found him to be a honest, trustworthy and hard working individual (P-2, P-3).

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

In its March 30, 1989 letter, the Division took no position as to the petitioner's application for a casino employee license. At the hearing, Charles F. Kimmel, Deputy Attorney General, on behalf of the respondent, noted that the petitioner had pled guilty to the disorderly persons offense and that more than five years have passed since his initial license was revoked.

Based on the petitioner's admissions during the hearing, I CONCLUDE that the Division has shown a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, which is not an automatic disqualification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). In order to decide whether this conduct is inimical pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2), it is necessary to consider the circumstances underlying the incident as well as the petitioner's subsequent conduct, i.e., his rehabilitation. Donna Davis v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985); In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244 (1979).

Therefore, it is appropriate to look at the standards set forth in the Casino Control Act governing rehabilitation for purposes of licensure:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) the age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendations of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision. [N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h]

As to rehabilitation, the petitioner was a mature person at the time he committed the disorderly persons offense; however, this is his only criminal offense. Based on the facts, it appears that Mr. Robb took the coins belonging to the casino because of the substantial debts created by his former wife. As a result of this incident, Mr. Robb was arrested, he lost his casino job and his casino employee license was revoked. All of this has had a substantial effect on Mr. Robb and I accept his statement that if his casino employee license is restored there will be no repetition of this or any similar criminal conduct.

In view of the facts, and especially the fact that the disorderly persons offense occurred more than five years ago, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Robb has shown by clear and convincing evidence that he is rehabilitated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h, and therefore I CONCLUDE that Mr. Robb's action does not now constitute an inimical offense pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2).

Also based on the facts in this matter, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has now shown by clear and convincing evidence that he has the necessary good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

Therefore, I ORDER that the application of Samuel A. Robb for a casino employee license be approved.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

James J. Armstrong, Deputy Attorney General for respondent (Peter N. Perretti, Jr., Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: December 28, 1989 Decided: January 8, 1990

This is a transcript of the administrative law judge's oral initial decision rendered pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.2.

BEFORE RICHARD J. MURPHY, ALJ:

This is an oral opinion in the case of Francine B. Rutledge versus the State of New Jersey, Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement. The Docket No. is CCC 301-89 and the appearances are on behalf of the applicant, Charles P. Maratea, that's M-A-R-A-T-E-A, of Cape-Atlantic Legal Services, and DAG James Armstrong.

The hearing has been held on December 28th and the record is going to close that date, and that is also going to be the date of the, well, probably not the date of the decision, but the date of the opinion.

For the statement of the case this a renewal, this is application for renewal of a casino employee license by Francine B. Rutledge who is currently employed as a floor person in craps. What was the casino agin? I'm sorry, which casino?

MR. MARATEA: Playboy Hotel Casino.

At Playboy. The Division of Gaming Enforcement objects to renewal of this application based on Ms. Rutledge's receipt, unlawful receipt of unemployment benefits between November 1981 and March f 1982. Ms. Rutledge contends that she, even if disqualified, has proved rehabilitation and in addition to that has proved her necessary good character, honesty and integrity which are required for continued licensure under the act.

I just have the procedural history at this point. This case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on January 17, 1989. Prehearing was held on April 3, 1989 and we had an initial hearing scheduled for July 17th of 1989, which was adjourned in order to allow Ms. Rutledge to get an attorney, which she eventually was able to do. We have had a couple of - I think we had a couple of additional adjournments, which I will fill in as part of the procedural history, and we are here today, which is really what matters.

In terms of findings of fact, there is no dispute as to the important facts, the material facts necessary to decide this case. Ms. Rutledge admitted and admitted at the time of the offense as soon as the offense was discovered that she did unlawfully receive unemployment benefits while employed for the period of November 16, 1981 through March 1, 1982. She explained, let me just give the amount, the amount of that was $2,128, correct?

MR. ARMSTRONG; That's correct.

At the time of receiving these benefits she had been laid off by a casino and had incurred heavy obligations of a financial nature in the way of mortgages and other expenses. She lists no real mitigating factors as to the - as to the receipt of the unemployment benefits other than financial need which was of a pressing nature.

The evidence also shows that as of today at least all of that overpayment as well as fines and penalties has been paid off, although it did take several years to accomplish that.

At the time of the offense Ms. Rutledge was 30 years of age and did not have then and does not have now any children or other dependents so far as I know. She admitted to the Division of Unemployment and later to the Division of Gaming Enforcement that she had unlawfully received unemployment benefits and was aware at the time of the receipt of those benefits that she was doing something contrary to law, but felt that financial necessity forced her to resort to that method.

She decided not to declare bankruptcy and - in fear of losing her house and ultimately was able to pay off all her creditors including, and I think most importantly, the State of New Jersey. She really lists no mitigating factor for the offense other than financial need as I have set forth:

In terms of her work record, we have had testimony from Ms. Rutledge and from her supervisors and fellow employees, namely Michael Watson and Diane Tarone, who have attested as to her good character, honesty and integrity, and beyond that as to their relationship with her on the job and off the job. Mr. Watson testified that he has never had any problems on the job whatsoever with MS. Rutledge, and Ms. Tarone also testified that she was a great supervisor and that she regarded her a something as a sister and are quite close friends.

We also have a letter from Betty Toy, T-O-Y, who states that Ms. Rutledge assisted in helping her son when he contracted AIDS and came by regularly and gave the family what assistance she could. There is further evidence in that record that Ms. Rutledge has been active in assisting senior citizens in Berlin, and that she also has been involved in trying to better herself by academic courses as well as undertaking other games of the casino. There is no dispute as to those facts as set forth and I so FIND.

The first issue is whether petitioner is disqualified from holding a Casino Employee License under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

The second issue - I am rearranging the prehearing order a little bit - is whether the petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation to the Section 90h of the Casino Control Act notwithstanding the disqualification.

The third issue is whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty, integrity for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

The next section of the opinion is discussion and conclusions. As tot he arguments of the parties, petitioner contends that although her receipt of unemployment benefits was intentional and not an error in any way and further was not the result of any extenuating or mitigating circumstances other than financial need and layoff from the casino industry, petitioner maintains that her excellent work record in the interim, intervening years rather, as well as her efforts to voluntarily payoff this loan, which she has done as of today - and I note the fact that the voluntary payment was limited to $400 and involuntarily through income tax benefit withholding and other withholdings the State recoup all its claimed debt from her.

Petitioner claims that in the seven years and nine months since the offense her work record as well as her activities in the community, her efforts to better her education constitute rehabilitation and also demonstrate her good character, integrity and honesty sufficient to allow the renewal of her application.

The Division of Gaming Enforcement objects to the renewal of this application based on the severity as well as the intentional nature of the offense, and emphasizes that the debt was only paid off as of today or the last few days and then was only paid off involuntarily for the most part through deductions by the State and other means.

The Deputy Attorney General emphasized that the situation of debt in which Ms. Rutledge found herself in September of 1981 was due to her financial situation at that time which was not complicated by the care and expense of any dependents, but rather was intentional in the sense of acquiring a house and other expenses.

Deputy Attorney General also notes that Ms. Rutledge's age was that of 30 years of age at the time of the offense and claims that this further militates against any finding of rehabilitation or of good character, honesty and integrity.

As to the issue of statutory disqualification, the applicant or petitioner does not contest that this offense is statutorily disqualifying under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), and I CONCLUDE that it is a disqualifying offense.

As to whether Ms. Rutledge has affirmatively established her rehabilitation I have to consider the following factors under N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h:

Factor number one, the nature and duties of the position applied for. Ms. Rutledge occupies a position of great responsibility and trust, in fact maybe one of the more responsible and sensitive positions in a casino, that of craps floor person. I think she also is getting involved in some other games, so I would characterize the nature of the duties of the position as those of high sensitivity and high responsibility.

Factor number two, the nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct. Ms. Rutledge concedes that the offense was a serious one and indeed received unlawful receipt of unemployment benefits even under difficult circumstances is a serious offense, and it is tantamount to theft by deception, and is something that the State cannot tolerate or condone, especially of one who occupies such a position. So the nature and seriousness of the offense I would have to characterize again as serious.

The circumstances under which the offense occurred or conduct occurred is the next factor. And I note for the record that the petitioner has cited no mitigating circumstances other than her layoff from the casino industry, her level of debt which forced her from the financial point of view into the impalpable choice of either declaring bankruptcy or losing her home and facing other problems. While she choose to in effect take a loan from the State in the form of unemployment benefits, I don't know if she attempted at that time to pay it back, but ultimately her receipt of these benefits was detected and a demand for repayment was made.

The date of offense of conduct is another factor to be considered and this occurred exclusively and repeatedly between November 16th of 1981 and March 2, 1982. At the time of the offense as noted the applicant was 30 years of age and is 38 today, which is also a factor to be considered.

The offense can fairly be characterized as isolated - excuse me, as repeated in the sense that that was a repeated and continuing unlawful receipt of unemployment benefits at least foe the period of November 1981 through March of 1982.

An additional factor can be considered by the Casino Control Commission in assessing an application for renewal is social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct, and the applicant cites no conditions other than lay-off from the casino industry and heavy level of debt. She had no dependents at the time and cites no other family obligations which may have contributed to this offense.

She offers by way of evidence of rehabilitation, which is the final factor to be considered, her assistance to senior citizens in the community, as well as to the Toy family, and also stresses her efforts to go on and better her education and assume more responsibility in the casino industry.

This is not really an easy case because of the fact that receipt of unemployment benefits is a serious matter. It's essentially, to use the vernacular, ripping off the State, and in this case it was done in a fairly deliberate way, albeit under some financial stress at the time.

Had this conduct occurred two years ago, a year ago, three years ago I would be almost forced to conclude that the required rehabilitation had not been shown by this applicant, but given the fact that seven years have passed and repayment has been made, and further that her record in the casino industry is excellent without any further complaint or any problem and is supported by testimony of persons still in the casino industry who have knowledge of her, I am going to CONCLUDE as a matter of law that she has shown the requisite rehabilitation.

The final hurtle that any applicant has to make is that of good character, honesty and integrity, and again I FIND that it is a close question in this case, because I think the receipt of unemployment benefits is a serious offense and it is one that sometimes is dismissed by people as being a technical violation or an inadvertent violation, but in reality people who do take unemployment benefits under false pretenses or in an unlawful way are depleting an extremely critical fund that the State maintains to protect people when they get into difficult circumstances.

So in terms of the offense it is a serious offense and in this instance it was repeated over a number of months between November and March of 1982. However, in this case I am satisfied that even though the offense is serious, its nature was repeated at least for that period, that the applicant's record in the casino industry is sufficiently excellent to support a conclusion that she has demonstrated her good character, honesty, and integrity. I think she has shown that through the evidence of her excellent work in the industry after this date.

This situation in 1981 strikes me as being one of those regrettable decisions that people make and then have to live with later on, but due to the passage of what I consider to be a long period of time during which she has shown her worth to the casino industry and performed flawlessly my conclusion is that she be allowed to continue to work in the casino industry, and I order that her license be renewed.

What I will do is attach all the evidence, I am not going to go over it now on the record, and any exceptions you have, I assume Mr. Armstrong, you can direct to the Casino Control Commission. At that point you will have the opinion, all right.

I don't want to make you wait over New Years, but I think in this case that the passage of time you have proven yourself. I hope the Casino Control Commission does the same thing.

Record Closed: January 16, 1990 Decided: March 5, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter concerns in part the application of the petitioner for licensure as a casino employee, which would permit her employment in a licensed casino as a teller. By letter report to the Casino Control Commission dated June 14, 1988, the Division of Gaming Enforcement objected to the petitioner's licensure, based in part upon her conviction on March 20, 1987, of theft by deception in the 3rd degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. This matter also concerns the complaint of the Division of Gaming Enforcement filed with the Casino Control Commission on December 29, 1989. The Division seeks revocation of the respondent's casino hotel employee registration, based upon her 1987 conviction of theft by deception. These are the issues:

1. Has the petitioner been convicted of theft by deception in the 3rd degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which would be a disualifier from licensure and from continued registration, pursuant to sections 86c(1), 90e and 91b of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.).

2. Does the petitioner possess the requisite good character, honsety and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act.

3. Does the petitioner possess the requisite financial stability, integrity and responsibility for casino employee licensure, pursuant to sections 89b(1) and 90b of the Act.

4. Has the petitioner, if she has been convicted of an otherwise disqualifying offense, affirmatively established her rehabilitation, pursuant to sections 90h and 91d of the Act.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner's request for a hearing on her license application was sent to the Casino Control Commission on November 16, 1988. On December 7, 1988, the Commission transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. (OAL DKT. NO. CCC 8890-88). A prehearing conference was held by Administrative Law Judge Beatrice S. Tylutki on January 26, 1989.

The petitioner subsequently failed to appear at a hearing scheduled before Administrative Law Judge Lillard E. Law on April 13, 1989. However, the petitioner appeared before the Casino Control Commission and by order dated June 2, 1989, the Commission remanded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing on all issues. The remanded matter was filed with OAL on June 16, 1989, and a prehearing conference was thereafter conducted on August 21, 1989.

The hearing was held as scheduled on November 14, 1989. At that time, the Division of Gaming Enforcement moved for inclusion of revocation of the respondent's casino hotel employee registration as an issue to be considered. According to the Division, a complaint had not yet been filed through inadvertence. After fully discussing the implications of this request with the parties, I was satisfied that the petitioner understood the motion and consented to inclusion of revocation of her casino hotel employee registration as an issue. On December 29, 1989, the Division's revocation complaint was filed with the Casino Control Commission. The Commission's notification of this filing was received on January 16, 1990. The record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Many of the material facts in this matter are undisputed. The petitioner is a 27-year-old resident of Atlantic City, New Jersey. She lives with and supports her three daughters. The petitioner holds casino hotel employee registration number 94877-40. Since June 1989, the petitioner has been employed in the housekeeping department at the TropWorld Hotel and Casino.

Between December 1980 and June 1981, the petitioner worked as a porter at Resorts International Hotel and Casino. She left this job when she became pregnant. After a period of unemployment, the petitioner worked as a maid at the Deauvelle Hotel in Atlantic City between June and November 1982. She left this job as a result of another pregnancy. From July to September 1983, the petitioner worked as a maid at the Lafayette Hotel. She was then a clerk typist for A Woman's World from May 1984 until May 1985.

It was the petitioner's testimony that she applied for welfare benefits in 1985. She stated that she was not working at the time she made the application. On May 17, 1985, the petitioner began working at the White Castle Restaurant at Kentucky Avenue and the Boardwalk in Atlantic City (Exhibit R-6). However, she continued to receive welfare benefits. On August 26, 1985, the petitioner signed a redetermination of benefit eligibility at the Atlantic County Department of Social Services (Exhibit R-1). This redetermination did not reveal her employment at White Castle, and it indicates that she had received no income from employment.

The petitioner continued to receive welfare benefits while working at White Castle. On December 17, 1985, the petitioner signed an interim redetermination (Exhibit R-2). For this redetermination, the petitioner reported a change of address. Although this form provides a space for reporting the receipt of money, the petitioner did not reveal on this form her receipt of earnings from her employment at the White Castle Restaurant.

In August 1986, the Atlantic County Department of Social Services contacted White Castle and asked that the petitioner's wages from employment be verified (Exhibit R-6). White Castle responded with a verfication showing the petitioner's weekly earnings at the restaurant from May 1985 through August 1986. The welfare agency then calculated that the petitioner had received an overpayment of welfare benefits in the amount of $6,708. In addition, she had received a Medicaid overpayment of $769.21 and a food stamp overissuance of $1,971 (Exhibit R-7).

On September 23, 1986, the petitioner signed an agreement to repay the Atlantic County Division of Welfare the sum of $6,708 at the rate of $10 per week (Exhibit R-5). The agreement to repay benefits received from May 1985 until August 1986 stated that the petitioner had received the overpayment because she had failed to notify the agency in a timely manner of her employment at the White Castle Restaurant. On November 13, 1986, the petitioner was indicted on one count of theft by deception in the 3rd degree, contrary to N.J.S.A 2C:20-4 (Exhibit R-3). The indictment alleged that the petitioner had purposely obtained welfare benefits in excess of $500 from the Atlantic County Division of Weflare by deception, in that she had created or reinforced the false impression that she was not employed when in fact she was gainfully employed. On January 5, 1987, the petitioner entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment.

The petitioner retracted her plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to the indictment on March 2, 1987. On March 20, 1987, the petitioner was sentenced to four years probation and ordered to pay restitution in the amount of $9,448.21, at a rate of $25 per month. She was also ordered to maintain employment and to pay $30 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (Exhibit R-4).

The petitioner testified that she reported to probation as scheduled for a while. However, after the deaths of some close family members, she stopped reporting. According to the petitioner, she "just didn't care." The petitioner testified that she was subsequently brought into court for violating the terms of her probation. At that time, the terms of her restitution repayment were changed to require that she pay $50 per month. As of February 21, 1989, the Atlantic County Probation Department reported that the petitioner had repaid a total of $199 toward her restitution (Exhibit R-8). According to the petitioner, she has been making the restitution payment regularly since it was changed to $50 per month in 1989.

The petitioner testified that she attended cage cashier school in 1986. This preceded her indictment for theft by deception. She also worked at the White Castle Restaurant until 1988, when her brother died. According to the petitioner, she felt too much pressure after that and she quit the restaurant job. She now works days at the TropWorld, cleaning guest rooms. She has been working 40 hours per week but feels that her hours may be cut back to 32 per week. The petitioner stated that she has had no problems with this employment. While she is at work, her oldest daughter makes sure that the younger children go to their babysitter after school. The petitioner also noted that she will be residing in a housing project which requires that residents give 10 hours of community service per week, helping either the elderly or children.

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

The factual dispute in this matter concerns whether the petitioner timely reported her earnings from employment to the Atlantic County Department of Social Services. As noted above, the petitioner twice signed forms at the welfare agency which provided an opportunity for her to report her earnings from employment (Exhibits R-1 and R-2). However, in neither instance did the petitioner reveal on these forms that she had earnings from employment. In addition, the petitioner signed an agreement to repay (Exhibit R-5) which contains her admission that she had failed to notify the agency in a timely manner of her employment at the White Castle Restaurant. Finally, the petitioner entered a plea of guilty to the indictment which charged her with purposely obtaining the welfare benefits by creating or reinforcing the false impression that she was not employed.

The petitioner admitted in her testimony that neither the redetermination application nor the interim redetermination (Exhibits R-1 and R-2) disclosed her employment at the White Castle Restaurant. Nevertheless, she maintained that she had reported this employment when it began in May 1985. She noted that she had been making $4.00 per hour there and she felt that she would still be eligible for welfare benefits. According to the petitioner, the forms were filled out by the welfare worker and she just signed them. The petitioner also acknowledged signing the agreement to repay.

The petitioner testified that she had originally entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment for theft by deception because she had reported the income. However, her public defender was subsequently switched and the new attorney recommended that she plead guilty. Although she said that she reported her income, no records of such a report could be found. She felt her attorney was not giving her support and when he urged her to plead guilty she did.

I do not accept the petitioner's version of events. The county welfare agency continued to pay her benefits while she maintained her employment. At any time, she could have again reported her employment when it became apparent to her that her earlier report had gone unheeded. That she did not take the opportunity on subsequent redeterminations to make clear that she was employed seriously places in doubt her assertion that she had earlier reported that she had earnings from employment. She thereafter signed a statement admitting to the welfare agency that she had not timely reported her employment. These events, taken together with her plea of guilty to the charge of theft by deception, prevent me from believing the petitioner's uncorroborated testimony that she had reported her employment in May 1985. Consequently, I further FIND AS FACT that she did not.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to section 80a of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), it is the affirmative responsibility of each applicant and licensee to establish by clear and convincing evidence her individual qualifications. Sections 89b(1) and 90b of the Act require an applicant for a casino employee license to demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence her financial stability, integrity and responsibility. By the same burden, sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act require an applicant for a casino employee license to demonstrate her good character, honesty and integrity.

The Act also sets forth grounds for disqualification. Section 90e incorporates the disqualification criteria set forth in section 86 of the Act. Pursuant to 86c(1), the Casino Control Commission shall deny a casino employee license to any applicant who has been convicted of an offense specifically identified as a disqualifier from licensure.

Participation in casino operations as a licensee or registrant under the Act is deemed to be a revocable privilege conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee or registrant. N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8). It is the intention of the Act to preclude the creation of any property right in any license permitted under the Act, and to require that participation in gaming be solely conditioned upon the individual qualifications of the person seeking such a privilege. Pursuant to section 91b of the Act, the Commission may revoke the registration of any registrant who is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of the Act.

In March 1987, the petitioner was convicted upon her plea of guilty to a charge of theft by deception in the 3rd degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. This is an offense specifically listed under section 86c(1) of the Act as a disqualifier. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner is subject to denial of her application for a casino employee license and to revocation of her casino hotel employee registration on the basis of her conviction of a disqualifying offense.

Section 91d of the Act provides that the petitioner's casino hotel employee registration should not be revoked on the basis of her conviction of an offense identified in the Act as a disqualifier, provided that she has affirmatively demonstrated her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. Similarly, the petitioner shall not be denied a casino employee license on the basis of her otherwise disqualifying conviction, provided that she has affirmately demonstrated her rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Act. In determining whether rehabilitation has been affirmatively demonstrated, the following factors under N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h (the language of section 91d is almost identical) shall be considered:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;
(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
(4) The date of the offense or conduct;
(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;
(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counselling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

The license which the petitioner seeks would permit her employment on the floor of a casino as a teller. Her hotel employee registration permits her present employment in the housekeeping department at the TropWorld Casino Hotel. She is now 27 years old and is the mother of three children.

When the petitioner was 23 and 24 years old, she received welfare benefits to which she was not entitled. This occurred between May 1985 and August 1986. As a result of her failure to report earnings from employment, the petitioner received various welfare benefits valued in excess of $9,000. Although she pled guilty to the charge of theft by deception in the 3rd degree, the petitioner contended at the hearing that she had made a timely report of her employment to the welfare agency. I have found the facts in this matter to be to the contrary.

The petitioner's offense occurred over a substantial period of time. However, the record in this matter does not reveal that the petitioner has any other record of arrests or convictions. It is also fair to infer from the evidence in the record that the petitioner engaged in the unlawful conduct which led to her conviction for theft by deception because of her economic situation.

In addition to being required to make restitution, the petitioner was also placed on probation for a period of four years. She failed to comply with the terms of probation and her restitution requirement was modified from $25 per month to $50 per month. As of February 1989, the petitioner had paid a total of $199 toward her restitution, with a balance owing of $9,249.21. According to the petitioner, she has subsequently been making her payment of $50 per month.

The petitioner is a high school graduate. She has also taken vocational courses and completed a course in word processing. In the casino field, the petitioner attended a course for cage cashiers. All of this training occurred prior to her indictment for theft by deception. Following her conviction, the petitioner's sporadic reporting to the Atlantic County Probation Department led to her being required to appear in court and her restitution schedule was readjusted.

The petitioner's serious efforts toward rehabilitation did not begin until 1989, after having violated the terms of her probation. The restitution remaining to be paid is quite large. Her probation is likely to continue into 1991. It would be well to encourage the petitioner's efforts toward rehabilitation. Unfortunately, her lack of candor during the hearing concerning her commission of the disqualifying theft by deception offense constitutes significant evidence that she has not yet achieved rehabilitation. I am not convinced that she has.

Based upon the foregoing discussion, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has failed to establish her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, within the meaning of sections 90h and 91d of the Casino Control Act. Also based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has failed to establish her good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence, within the meaning of sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act. The unrefuted evidence in the record establishes that the petitioner is gainfully employed and is making regular restitution payments. Notwithstanding the foregoing conclusions, I further CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established her financial stability, integrity and responsibility pursuant to sections 89b(1) and 90b of the Act. Nevertheless, the petitioner is disqualified from licensure and continued registration for the reasons identified above.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the casino hotel employee registration of Darlene Samuel be REVOKED. It is further ORDERED that the application of Darlene Samuel for a casino employee license permitting her to work in a licensed casino as a teller be DENIED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

OAL DKT. NO. CCC 4661-89

AGENCY DKT. NO. 89-EA-415

JOSEPH M. SCIACCA,

Petitioner,

v.

DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT,

Respondent.

Timothy P. Maguire, Esq., for petitioner (D. William Subin, attorney)

R. Lane Stebbins, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: November 9, 1989 Decided: March 30, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

This matter concerns the application of Joseph M. Sciacca (petitioner) for licensure as a casino employee, which would permit his employment in a licensed casino in a gaming-related position. By letter report to the Casino Control Commission dated April 26, 1989, the Division of Gaming Enforcement objected to licensure of the petitioner, alleging that he has committed the offense of distribution of a controlled dangerous substance, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, which would be a disqualifier from licensure under section 86c(1) of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.). The Division does not seek to revoke the petitioner's casino hotel employee registration. These are the issues:

1. Whether petitioner's conduct with regard to the distribution of CDS, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, constitutes a statutory disqualifying offense pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), despite the fact that the charge was dismissed by the Superior Court of New Jersey, Gloucester County, as permitted by section 86g of the Casino Control Act?

2. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act?

3. Whether petitioner, if he has committed an otherwise disqualifying offense, has affirmatively established his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, pursuant to section 90h of the Act.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On June 7, 1989, the Casino Control Commission received the petitioner's request for a hearing concerning his license application. On June 26, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. On August 8, 1989, Administrative Law Judge Lillard E. Law conducted a prehearing conference. The hearing was thereafter held before the undersigned on November 9, 1989, in Absecon, New Jersey. The record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The material facts in this matter are not in dispute. The petitioner is a 26 year old resident of Clementon, New Jersey. On March 17, 1985, while the petitioner was a student at Glassboro State College, he sold approximately 1/4 ounce of marijuana to a police informant for the sum of $40. The Glassboro campus police obtained and executed a search warrant for the petitioner's campus apartment. Pursuant to this search, two plastic bags of suspected marijuana and three plastic bags of mushrooms were seized, along with scales, cash and various drug paraphernalia (Exhibit R-5).

The $40 used for the informant's marijuana purchase was found in the petitioner's wallet. He was placed under arrest and charged with possession of marijuana over 25 grams, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-20(a)4; possession of psilocybine (mushrooms), a controlled dangerous substance, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-20(a)1; possession of marijuana and psilocybine with the intent to distribute, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19(a)1; distribution of a controlled dangerous substance, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19(a)1; and possession of drug paraphernalia, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-47 (Exhibits R-2, R-3A and B). The Glassboro State College Security Department forwarded three bag of suspected psilocybine to the New Jersey State Police for examination (Exhibit R-7A). On April 15, 1985, the State Police issued a laboratory report which concluded that two of the specimens analyzed were psilocybine, weighing 16.7 and 4.83 grams. The third specimen was not analyzed (Exhibit R-7B).

The Grand Jury of the State of New Jersey, for the County of Gloucester, thereafter entered an indictment against the petitioner which charged him with one count of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (psilocybine), contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-20(a)1; and one count of possession of psilocybine with intent to distribute, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19(a)1 (Exhibit R-4). On July 15, 1985, the petitioner appeared before the Superior Court and Judge Alvino granted a conditional discharge as to the possession of psilocybine count of the indictment. The charge of possession of psilocybine with intent to distribute was dismissed (Exhibit R-4). Following the petitioner's successful completion of the conditional discharge program, the remaining charge of possession of a controlled dangerous substance was dismissed in February 1986 (Exhibit P-1).

Testifying at the hearing, the petitioner acknowledged that he had sold a quantity of marijuana for $40 prior to his arrest on March 17, 1985. He also acknowledged that he had intended to sell the quantities of marijuana and mushrooms (psilocybine) which were seized by the campus police when they executed the search warrant. According to the petitioner, he did not use these drugs himself. He had not yet sold any of the mushrooms because he had just received them. It was the petitioner's candid explanation that he was selling these controlled dangerous substances because he had been a gullible and easily led person at the time and the crowd which he associated with engaged in that type of activity. In addition, the petitioner admitted that he sold the drugs because he needed the money.

The petitioner testified that he successfully completed the conditional discharge program and has had no arrests or charges since March 1985. He had been expelled from Glassboro State College following his arrest. After the charges against him were dismissed, the petitioner requested a hearing at the College concerning his re-entrance. On June 18, 1986, the campus hearing board voted to recommend the petitioner's readmission (Exhibit P-2).

The petitioner testified sincerely that his conduct in 1985 was very stupid and it reflected his maturity level at the time. According to the petitioner, he learned a great lesson from his mistake and he believes that he is now a responsible individual who has something positive to offer. His unlawful conduct will not happen again.

The petitioner has had several jobs since 1985. For a time, he helped his brother operate a business in Florida. Later, the petitioner returned to New Jersey and supervised a warehouse for the Blackwood Medical Supply Company. The petitioner also worked at the Heartthrob Cafe. Although he started as a valet parker, he was later promoted to kitchen steward and his duties included ordering supplies for the business.

The petitioner holds casino hotel employee registration number 82745-40. He also was issued a temporary casino employee license on June 8, 1988. Beginning in April 1988, the petitioner was employed by the Atlantis Hotel and Casino as a clerk in its payroll and scheduling department. His duties there included entry of payroll hours and verifying time sheets for dealers and floor people. Sharon Corcoran was the petitioner's supervisor at the Atlantis Hotel and Casino and she testified on his behalf. According to Ms. Corcoran, the petitioner had great potential and worked very well with other people. She selected him for his technician position over eight other employees. In Ms. Corcoran's opinion, the petitioner has the highest integrity and he would be an asset to the casino industry.

The petitioner testified that his position was dissolved and he was laid off when the Atlantis property was sold. He then went to work for George Foley, owner of AlphaGraphics print shop in Haddonfield, New Jersey. A letter from Mr. Foley was admitted into evidence as Exhibit P-4. The petitioner worked for him from June through September 1989. According to Mr. Foley, the petitioner was a consciencious and attentive employee who was always above reproach. The writer gives the petitioner his highest recommendation.

The petitioner testified that he is now working at the Paper Shop in Cherry Hill, New Jersey. He is an assistant manager of the business and he enjoys it very much. The petitioner is also involved in video taping various functions, including weddings, and it is his goal to eventually work in the communications or entertainment aspects of the casino industry.

The petitioner testified that he is also active in his community church. His contributions include helping the church plan all year long for its annual carnival. A letter from Robert J. Jacobs, chairman of the carnival public relations committee was admitted into evidence as Exhibt P-3. Mr. Jacobs noted that the petitioner has volunteered his assistance for the past four years and "he has always been nothing other than professional and highly personable." The petitioner's father, Vito Sciacca, testified on his behalf. He noted that he and his wife were devastated by the petitioner's arrest in 1985. In his opinion, the consequences of the arrest tormented the petitioner. Since that time, the petitioner has changed by becoming a more caring individual. He wants to help others. Mr. Sciacca noted that his son loved the responsibility which he had with his job at the Atlantis Hotel and Casino, and he believes that the petitioner has the honesty and integrity to work successfully in the casino industry.

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to section 80a of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), it is the affirmative responsibility of each applicant and licensee to establish by clear and convincing evidence his individual qualifications. Pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act, an applicant for a casino employee license must demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity. The Act also sets forth grounds for disqualification. Section 90e incorporates the disqualification criteria set forth in section 86 of the Act. Pursuant to section 86c(1) and 86g, the Casino Control Commission shall deny a casino employee license to any applicant who has committed an offense specifically identified as a disqualifier from licensure, even if such offense has not been prosecuted under the criminal laws of this state.

On March 17, 1985, the petitioner sold approximately 1/4 ounce of marijuana to a police informant, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19(a)1. This offense is comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a(1), which would be a crime of the fourth degree pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(12). The petitioner also had in his possession with the intent to distribute it a quantity of the controlled dangerous substance psilocybine, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19(a)1. This is also comparable to a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a(1), and it is a crime of the third degree, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(13).

Under section 86c(1) of the Act, violations of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5 which constitute crimes of the second or third degree are disqualifiers. As noted above, conduct constituting such an offense is a disqualifier from licensure pursuant to section 86g, even if such offense has not been prosecuted. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner is subject to denial of his application for a casino employee license on the basis of his commission of a disqualifying offense.

Section 90h of the Act provides that the petitioner shall not be denied a casino employee license on the basis of his commission of an otherwise disqualifying offense, provided that he has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation. In determining whether rehabilitation has been affirmatively demonstrated, the following factors under N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h shall be considered.

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counselling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

The license which the petitioner seeks would permit his employment in a licensed casino in a gaming-related, non-experiential capacity. He presently holds a casino hotel employee registration which is not the subject of this proceeding. The petitioner is 26 years old and he is gainfully employed.

When the petitioner was a 21-year-old student at Glassboro State College, he sold a small quantity of marijuana to a police informant and he had in his possession marijuana and psilocybine which he intended to sell. He was selling drugs because he needed the money and because this was a type of activity which was also engaged in by those with whom he associated. Following his indictment on charges of possession and possession with intent to distribute a controlled dangerous substance, the petitioner was afforded an opportunity to participate in a conditional discharge program. He satisfactorily completed the program and all charges were subsequently dismissed.

The petitioner truly regrets his unlawful conduct in 1985. He recognizes that the conduct was illegal and stupid and he has credibly asserted that such conduct will never happen again. The petitioner has successfully worked in the casino industry and has achieved the respect of his supervisors. Those who have had an opportunity to evaluate his performance consider him to be an honest and trustworthy individual.

The petitioner is now a mature and responsible citizen. He acknowledges his unlawful conduct five years ago and he has presented substantial evidence to demonstrate that there is no likelihood whatsoever of his again becoming involved in illegal activity. Based upon the foregoing discussion and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner, who has committed a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1) of the Act, has established his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, within the meaning of section 90h of the Act. I also CONCLUDE on the basis of the undisputed facts in this matter that the petitioner has sustained his burden of establishing by clear and convincing evidence that he presently possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, within the meaning of sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner's application for licensure as a casino employee should be GRANTED.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the application of Joseph M. Sciacca for licensure as a casino employee be GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

James J. Armstrong, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Peter N. Perretti, Jr., Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: December 12, 1989 Decided: January 16, 1990

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of petitioner's application for licensure as a casino employee, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-1. et seq. Respondent filed an objection with the Casino Control Commission, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A hearing was conducted on November 30, 1989, and the record closed on December 12, 1989 with receipt of documentary evidence unavailable at the hearing.

The questions presented are whether petitioner can demonstrate rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and whether he is a person of a good character and financial stability, N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(1), (2) and N.J.S.A. 5:122-90b.

The facts are either stipulated or undisputed. In June 1983, the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance obtained a judgment against petitioner in the amount of $1,901 as a result of his having received unemployment benefits improperly from April through October 1981. During this period, petitioner had been employed as a waiter at the Sands Hotel and Casino. Though unprosecuted, the conduct was statutorily disqualifying under the Casino Control Act. Petitioner did not initially satisfy this judgment and interest accrued so that at one point he owed $3,767. All but $400 of this debt has now been paid to unemployment, mostly through governmental transfers of tax refunds and other disability benefits due petitioner.

In April 1984, petitioner filed a bankruptcy petition seeking to discharge debts in the amount of $1,352,773.67. This petition was granted by the Court in February 1985.

In October 1983, petitioner became indebted to Great American Financial Services for $1,400, which account was charged off in May 1984.

In January 1977, petitioner was arrested in Galloway Township. He was charged with two counts of possession of a weapon without a permit contrary to N.J.S.A. 2A:151-41, which is comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:39-2a, possession of narcotics paraphernalia, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2A:170-77.5, which is comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:36-1, and possession of marijuana under 25 grams, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-20(a)(4), which is comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10(a)(4). In February 1977, he pled guilty to two counts of possession of a weapon without a permit and the other charges were dismissed. He was sentenced to 30 days in the Atlantic County Jail. Petitioner reported all of this derogatory information on his Personal History Disclosure Form.

Petitioner testified that he is 39 years old and a lifelong resident of the State of New Jersey. He now lives with his wife of ten months, and with his child from a previous marriage. He has been a mason foreman at Resorts International since September 1984 and he also works part-time at Convention Hall. He testified that during this period he has had no problems on the job, and he now meets his expenses.

Petitioner acknowledged that he sought to deceive the authorities in 1981 by collecting unemployment benefits while working at the Sands. His bankruptcy in 1984 arose from debts incurred in 1979 while he, his former wife and mother were operating a restaurant and two pizza parlors. He testified that they were all inexperienced and the businesses failed. As a result, he was ruined financially and had to seek protection under the bankruptcy laws. Petitioner testified that the $1,400 debt to Great American Financial Holiday Universal was paid, and he submitted checks to so indicate. This was a membership fee in a health spa. He testified that his criminal offense has now been expunged but that the incident involved a search of his automobile in which unpermitted weapons were found. He testified that these were for target shooting. He also recalled that there was some marijuana in the car which was not his.

Petitioner testified that as a mason foreman, he repairs tile and does concrete work, and that a casino employee license would allow him to extend his activity to the casino floor. He does not handle money now on behalf of Resorts and does not anticipate any change should the license be granted.

Petitioner also submitted a series of commendation letters from his pastor, friends and supervisors at Resorts. These reflect the common theme that he is a person of stability and integrity.

This is the substance of the record. Petitioner was a credible witness. He openly acknowledged his prior wrongdoing with respect to the 1977 conviction, and his receipt of unemployment compensation while working. He has had no difficulty with law enforcement since that time. He described how he, his mother and former wife were inexperienced and that their businesses simply became overextended and failed. He has worked successfully in the casinos on a full-time basis since 1984 and his supervisor indicates that he is trustworthy. The debt to the Division of Unemployment Compensation has been substantially liquidated, and he has paid his health spa membership. The fact of his bankruptcy should have no bearing upon his receipt of a license. First, he was young and inexperienced when he took on these debts and second the present nature of his work does not require financial acumen.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that petitioner has established his rehabilitation and that he is a person of good character and financial stability. It is ORDERED that he be awarded a casino employee license.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter concerns the application of Thomas L. Smith (petitioner) for renewal of his casino employee license, which permits his employment in a licensed casino as a blackjack floorperson and a baccarat dealer. By letter report to the Casino Control Commission dated December 5, 1988, the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) objected to renewal of the petitioner's licensure, based upon his record of arrests and conduct since his last license renewal in 1983. This is the issue:

Has the petitioner established by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for casino employee licensure by sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

By letter to the Casino Control Commission dated January 17, 1989, the petitioner requested a hearing on his renewal application. On January 30, 1989, the Commission transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to the N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A telephone prehearing conference was held on April 25, 1989. The hearing was thereafter held as scheduled on September 19, 1989, and the record closed on that date.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Many of the material facts in this matter are undisputed. The petitioner is a 47-year-old resident of Brigantine, New Jersey. He is married to Coleen Kelly Smith and he shares custody of his 13-year-old son with his former wife, Rosalie Smith. The petitioner was divorced from Rosalie Smith about six years ago, after about ten years of marriage.

The petitioner last worked as a blackjack floor person and baccarat dealer about three years ago. He has since become a carpet installer. He needs his license so that he can install carpeting on casino floors. According to the petitioner, his last carpeting work was done in July 1989, when a job was undertaken at Convention Hall in Atlantic City through the Carpenter's Union.

It is undisputed that the petitioner has been arrested on eight occasions since his last license renewal in 1983. Most of these arrests arose from difficulties the petitioner experienced as a result of his earlier troubled marriage and all of them were related to his personal problems. On August 30, 1983, the petitioner and Rosalie Smith were engaged in divorce litigation and were separated. On that date, Rosalie Smith signed a complaint at police headquarters charging the petitioner with harassment, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4. More specifically, Ms. Smith alleged that the petitioner had stood outside her home and had annoyed her with offensively coarse language. The petitioner came to police headquarters and was served with his summons. It is undisputed that the petitioner was found guilty on this charge and was required to pay a $25 fine, plus $25 court costs (Exhibit R-1).

On October 9, 1983, Rosalie Smith again charged the petitioner with harassment, alleging that he had followed her inside a local bar and was causing her embarrassment and annoyance (Exhibit R-2). The petitioner received his summons at police headquarters on October 10, 1983. It is undisputed that this charge was subsequently dismissed.

On March 20, 1984, Rosalie Smith charged the petitioner with criminal mischief, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:17-3. Ms. Smith alleged that the petitioner had come to her home and had argued with her about custody of their son. She accused the petitioner of becoming irritated and pulling a metal mailbox from the front of her home (Exhibit R-3). The petitioner was again served with a copy of the complaint at police headquarters.

On May 10, 1984, Rosalie Smith again charged the petitioner with harassment, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4. She alleged that he had followed her and her boyfriend in his car, had tried to prevent her from entering her house, and had made several phone calls to her home after midnight (Exhibit R-4). The petitioner was served with a copy of the summons shortly after the charges were made. It is undisputed that this charge was subsequently dismissed.

On the night of August 23, 1984, the petitioner and Rosalie Smith had another altercation at a local bar. Ms. Smith again charged the petitioner with harassment, alleging that he had engaged in a course of alarming and seriously annoying conduct (Exhibit R-5). This time, the petitioner signed a counter-complaint against Ms. Smith, charging her with harassment. It is undisputed that both of these complaints were subsequently dismissed.

On March 13, 1985, the petitioner was charged with harassment by Linda Freedman, a former girlfriend. She alleged that he called her repeatedly at work and also had followed her in his car (Exhibit R-6). Ms. Freedman also alleged that the petitioner had threatened her and was harassing and annoying her to the point that she found it difficult to work and to carry on with her life. The petitioner received service of the summons at police headquarters. It is undisputed that this harassment charge against the petitioner was subsequently dismissed.

The petitioner's next involvement with the Brigantine Police Department occurred on January 17 and 18, 1987. On the former date, the police received a call from Linda Freedman. She told the police dispatcher that the petitioner had taken an overdose of pills and was going to commit suicide. The police went to the petitioner's residence and he appeared to be fine. He was about to take his son to the boy's mother. Since there did not seem to be a problem, the police left. Some time later, Ms. Freedman called the police and stated that the petitioner had returned to his residence and his vehicle was damaged. The police returned to the scene and spoke with the petitioner, who appeared to be more emotional in demeanor. The petitioner's son was still with him and the police informed the petitioner that they would take care of getting the boy to his mother's house. Some time later, the petitioner was examined at the Atlantic City Medical Center Crisis Intervention Unit and was then returned to the Brigantine Police Department. After receiving a warning from the police captain, the petitioner was released to go about his business. The police investigation reports concerning this incident were admitted into evidence as Exhibit R-7.

The next morning, Linda Freedman called the Brigantine Police to report that the petitioner was tampering with her vehicle. The police arrived at the scene and observed the petitioner walking away from Ms. Freedman's front yard and they heard a hissing sound coming from the left front tire of her vehicle. The petitioner was arrested and charged with harassment, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4 and criminal mischief, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:17-3(a)2 (Exhibit R-9). While the police investigated this incident, they learned more information from Linda Freedman concerning the events of the previous evening. As a result, the petitioner was also charged with attempting to cause bodily injury to his son by intentionally ramming his motor vehicle into a telephone pole while the child was a passenger, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1. He was also charged with child abuse and endangering the welfare of a child, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:9-6 and N.J.S.A. 2C:24-4 (Exhibit R-7).

After his arrest, the petitioner was released on 10 percent cash bail in the amount of $500 (Exhibit R-8). He was ordered to have no contact with his children and to obtain inpatient rehabilitation at the Seabrook House or a comparable facility. He was also ordered to attend narcotics anonymous or alcoholics anonymous meetings daily. On February 4, 1987, the petitioner waived the indictment on the endangering the welfare of a child and child abuse charges. Proceedings on the accusation were postponed pending the petitioner's release into the custody of the Pre-Trial Intervention Program (Exhibit R-8). The petitioner was admitted into the PTI Program on March 6, 1987. The participation agreement setting forth the conditions for satisfactory completion of the program was admitted into evidence as Exhibit P-10.

On February 12, 1987, the petitioner was admitted as an inpatient at the Riverside House for alcohol and drug rehabilitation. His discharge summary was admitted into evidence as Exhibit P-1. His admission diagnosis was reported to be alcoholism addiction and drug abuse. His prognosis upon discharge was described as "good". Among his after-care treatment plans was the proposal to attend alcoholics anonymous type meetings four to five times per week (Exhibit P-1).

It is undisputed that the petitioner successfully completed the requirements of the Pre-Trial Intervention Program. By order of November 6, 1987, the charges against the petitioner arising from the incidents on January 17 and 18, 1987, were dismissed (Exhibit P-3). The petitioner has had no further involvement with the criminal justice system.

Testifying on his own behalf, the petitioner acknowledged each of his arrests. He stated that the series of events involving his wife was caused by the splitting of their relationship. Although he acknowledged that he has abused alcohol, amphetamines and marijuana, the petitioner contended that alcoholism did not have much to do with the problems with his wife.

According to the petitioner, the January 1987 arrests were the result of his having taken improper medication. A letter from Robert Schwab, D.O., was admitted into evidence as Exhibit P-2. According to Dr. Schwab, the petitioner visited his office on January 17, 1987, exhibiting symptoms of anxiety stress reaction. The petitioner was given a prescription for Ativan. According to Dr. Schwab, this new medication for the petitioner could have caused poor judgment while driving. The petitioner testified that he was on this medication when he was involved in the car accident. He noted that neither his son nor he were hurt.

The petitioner stated that he admitted himself to the Riverside House on February 12, 1987 (Exhibit P-8). He was then diagnosed as an alcoholic and a drug abuser. According to the petitioner, four weeks of alcoholism therapy helped him. He then had similar outpatient treatment, including attending alcoholics anonymous three times per week. The petitioner stated that he still attends AA, and he also has begun to attend a Christian fellowship at Greentree Ministries. A letter from Pastor Warren Huber dated March 24, 1989, was admitted into evidence as Exhibit P-7. According to Pastor Huber, the petitioner became an active member of the Greentree Church and has attended services three times every week with his family. He also noted that the petitioner has been undergoing pastoral counseling with his wife to help improve the quality of their marriage. Pastor Huber stated that the petitioner "seems very sincere and responsive and shows real significant signs of growth."

It was the petitioner's testimony that he has not used alcohol or drugs since his release from the Riverside House in March 1987. He candidly acknowledged that he nevertheless still has problems with relationships. When these problems arise, he obtains help through counselling. A closing summary from the Family Service Association dated March 16, 1989, was admitted into evidence as Exhibit P-4. This summary reports that the petitioner attended 14 individual counselling sessions to work on his relationship with his wife and family. Among his treatment goals were to remain free from alcohol and mind altering drugs and to attend AA meetings weekly. Noting that the petitioner was free from alcohol and mind altering drugs, the out-patient therapist stated that the petitioner has dealt with his compulsivity and impatience and was feeling more positive about himself and his future.

The petitioner testified that he is now able to spend quality time with his son. The petitioner has previously been a volunteer soccer coach in Brigantine and he would like to resume coaching. He is also a distance runner, logging about 30 miles per week. According to the petitioner, taking care of his body is important to him, and this has made it all the more dismaying that he use to resort to alcohol and drugs. His counselling programs have helped him to understand this. The petitioner testified sincerely that he admits his problems and he now understands how to remain law abiding.

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

The only significant factual dispute in this matter concerns the nature of the petitioner's admissions to Division of Gaming Enforcement Agent Donald E. Ellison. Testifying on behalf of the Division, Agent Ellison stated that he interviewed the petitioner in August 1988. They discussed each of the petitioner's arrests between 1983 and 1987. As noted above, the petitioner admitted each arrest. However, Agent Ellison further tetified that the petitioner admitted to the alleged conduct underlying each arrest. Of all the arrests, the only one resulting in a conviction was the arrest for harassment on August 30, 1983. All other charges were eventually dismissed.

Testifying on his own behalf, the petitioner recalled his interview by the Division agent. He acknowledged each of the complaints and arrests. It was his recollection that he had maintained his innocence on all but the August 30, 1983 arrest. However, the accuracy of the petitioner's memory is suspect. When questioned specifically about each of the eight arrests, the petitioner could not remember the incidents underlying five of them. The petitioner did not deny the alleged conduct underlying his last charges in January 1987. He simply could not remember the events.

Agent Ellison's testimony was sincere and believable in every respect. There is nothing to indicate that the agent was not telling the truth. However, the petitioner was also a sincere and believable witness. He candidly admitted his past alcohol and drug abuse. It is fair to infer that his earlier dependence on these substances has adversely affected his ability to recall events occurring when he was using alcohol and drugs. Accordingly, it is more likely than not that the petitioner now no longer remembers that he did admit to some of the conduct underlying his arrests when he was interviewed by Agent Ellison in August 1988. I so FIND.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to Section 80a of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), it is the affirmative responsibility of each applicant and licensee to establish by clear and convincing evidence his individual qualifications. It is the intention of the Act to preclude the creation of any property right in any license permitted under the Act and to require that participation in gaming be solely conditioned upon the individual qualifications of the person seeking such a privilege. Pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act, an applicant for a casino employee license must demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity.

The Division of Gaming Enforcement objected to renewal of the petitioner's licensure, based upon his record of arrests and conduct since his last license renewal in 1983. The credible evidence in the record establishes that these arrests arose from difficulties the petitioner experienced as a result of his earlier troubled marriage, and these difficulties were compounded by the petitioner's alcoholism and drug abuse.

The petitioner's last arrest occurred in Janaury 1987. Since that time, he has acted appropriately to deal with his personal problems. He has undergone both in-patient and out-patient treatment and counselling. In addition to satisfactorily completing a pre-trial intervention program, the petitioner has been able to respond in a constructive way to his counselling and therapy. He continues to attend alcoholics anonymous on a frequent basis.

It is reasonable that the petitioner's conduct between 1983 and 1987 be seen as impacting negatively on his qualifications for licensure. One of the many consequences which the petitioner faced was the necessity to establish his qualifications for licensure at the hearing. Having reviewed all of the credible evidence in this matter, I am convinced that the petitioner has taken conscious control over his life and that he has established by clear and convincing evidence that he presently possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, within the meaning of sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act. I so CONCLUDE.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the application of Thomas L. Smith for renewal of licensure as a casino employee permitting him to work in a licensed casino as a blackjack floor person and a baccarat dealer be GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Patricia A. Strickland, petitioner, pro se

Charles Kimmel, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: April 3, 1990 Decided: April 18, 1990

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

Patricia A. Strickland seeks renewal of her casino employee license. By letter of July 20, 1989, the Division of Gaming Enforcement ("Division") filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission ("Commission") objecting to renewal. Ms. Strickland requested a hearing on the proposed rejection and the matter was sent to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held on December 11, 1989, before the Honorable Edgar R. Holmes, ALJ. Judge Holmes issued a Prehearing Order on December 15, 1989.

A hearing was held before Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin on April 3, 1990. The record closed following the hearing.

ISSUES

The Prehearing Order established the issues for consideration at the hearing. These were:

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(g) to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, by receiving unemployment compensation to which she was not entitled.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)(2).

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to §90(h) of the Control Casino Act.

EVIDENCE

Patricia A. Strickland testified as a witness called by the Division of Gaming Enforcement. Ms. Strickland acknowledged that she received unemployment benefits from October 6, 1984 through April 5, 1985, a period when she was working part-time at the Tropicana Casino Hotel. According to the witness, at first she told unemployment representatives that she was working part-time, but then told them that she was working less hours, or no hours at all, when in fact she actually was working one or two days a week and did not report the same. She acknowledged that she knew that she should not be collecting unemployment while she was working at the Tropicana.

According to Ms. Strickland, she started working at the Tropicana in 1981 and by 1984 was working as a slot attendant and then a dealer. She had a clean record and was married. In 1984 she and her husband bought a home. Thereafter, her husband started using drugs. She also began to have problems with her son, who had been born in 1974. He was stealing, not going to school and having run-ins with the police. Her husband was constantly taking drugs. At the time, her husband was employed at the Atlantis Casino Hotel.

In late 1984 or early 1985, Ms. Strickland's husband hit her son so hard that he left marks on the child's body. The child reported this to his grandmother, who advised the Division of Youth and Family Services. DYFS had the child removed from the Strickland home and placed in foster care. Ms. Strickland's husband was never home, her child had been removed from the home, and she was paying the bills and trying to keep the mortgage alive. She was also attempting to deal with credit problems, many of which were caused by the bills run up by her husband. He was arrested in April or May of 1985 on a drug charge New York City and she had to put up $1000 bail to get him out of jail. In addition, the home went into foreclosure and her husband continued to take money through her credit cards. Eventually, Strickland "lost everything". Her husband went into rehabilitation and while there he called and made threatening statements to her, which required that she receive protection. Eventually her husband left entirely for two years. The couple is now separated.

According to Strickland, the period of time during which she illegally collected unemployment benefits roughly mirrored the late 1984, early 1985 period when she was having the most serious difficulties with her husband, his drug problem, her son and his problems, and the eventual removal of her son from the home. She was in desperate straits and was trying to keep her family going and keep a roof over their head. She was receiving no help at all from her husband .

On October 16, 1987, Ms. Strickland was arrested on a shoplifting charge. By this time she herself was taking cocaine and drinking. She "didn't care any more." She was in a Bradlee's department store in Cardiff and picked up a pocketbook. She was arrested for shoplifting, although at the time she had a credit card, $400 in cash and a gram of cocaine in her pocket. The police never discovered the cocaine.

In 1987, Ms. Strickland filed for bankruptcy. Her debt to unemployment was discharged as a result of the bankruptcy proceedings. She began to go to church and started to get her life back together. However, her son was still stealing from her. She went into counselling, her son was placed on probation.

Throughout the difficult years, Ms. Strickland remained employed at the Tropicana. She had first begun working in the casino industry in 1980 at Harrah's Casino Hotel, but has been continuously employed on a part-time basis at the Tropicana since 1981. Her casino employee license was renewed in 1984. She has never been disciplined at work and in fact has been nominated as employee of the month.

According to the applicant, she last used any illegal drugs in 1987. She does use alcohol occasionally, but has no problems as a result of this drinking and is undergoing no counselling at this time. She does get migraine headaches and the people at work understand this and help her out when she needs assistance. She is very sorry that she engaged in the fraudulent conduct and the shoplifting. She has been in no legal difficulties since the shoplifting in 1987 and has been working ever since, while at the same time attempting to deal with her family situation.[1]

Carl McCrae Strickland, Ms. Strickland's son, testified on her behalf. He confirmed his conduct during the 1984-85 period indicating that he was "doing a lot wrong," stealing money from his mom and having problems at school. His father beat him regularly and was always abusing his mother. His grandmother eventually had him removed to a foster home. His sister wanted to leave home and his mother was going to lose the house. All his father ever did was beat him. His mother was the only one giving him support then and she has continued to do so. He now lives with his mother and has little to do with his father, who he apparently has no interest in having a relationship with. His father was "always taking money and sold drugs in his presence." Mr. McCrae is currently 15 years old, in school and working at a job in the Ocean One Mall.

Dolores Matthews, Ms. Strickland's mother, testified concerning the bruises which she observed on her grandson which caused her to have him removed from the Strickland home. She explained that Ms. Strickland's husband was never either a father or a husband and Ms. Strickland always worked. At the time of the unemployment fraud, her daughter was apparently attempting to keep food in her children's stomachs and a roof over their head. While she does not condone what occurred, Mrs. Matthews understands why her daughter did what she did.

[1] Strickland paid a $150 fine on the shoplifting charge.

DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

Ms. Strickland readily admits that she engaged in unemployment fraud. She knew at the time that she received the benefits that she was not entitled to them. The amount of the fraud apparently was close to $5000, well in excess of the $500 which would make this fraud constitute a crime of the third degree. As such, it constitutes an automatic disqualification from licensure.

The crucial question with respect to this application for renewal is whether Ms. Strickland has rehabilitated herself and whether she has the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure. With respect to rehabilitation, an examination of the circumstances surrounding this incident of unemployment fraud presents a compelling case. This individual, who was admittedly employed in the casino industry in 1984-85 and reaping the benefits of that employment, was at the same time under severe and apparently unrelenting pressures at home due to her husband's drug use and abuse, his abuse of her son, her son's serious difficulties with police and school officials, and the apparently crushing financial pressures surrounding the entire situation. Under these circumstances, and I suspect against her better judgment, Ms. Strickland entered into a scheme to obtain unemployment monies while at the same time working. She knew at the time that her conduct was illegal. However, apparently the surrounding circumstances overwhelmed her and she did undertake the illegal course.

At the time of her involvement in the theft by deception, Ms. Strickland was approximately 30 years old. She was old enough to know that what she was doing was wrong. However, when one looks at the totality of the circumstances, one is impressed with the severity of the circumstances.

Examination of Ms. Strickland's life prior to 1984 and subsequent to the shoplifting incident of 1987, indicates that this individual was otherwise a law abiding citizen. It is an extremely impressive fact that she has maintained successful employment at one casino hotel since 1981, in and of itself an unusual circumstance, and here even more significant in view of the tremendous burdens under which she acted through much of this period of employment. That she was able to maintain the employment and that she ran into no difficulty with her employer bespeaks a great deal about the basic underlying good character of this individual. Perhaps the most impressive feature of the testimony was the obvious support and love which

Ms. Strickland attempted to give to her troubled son throughout the period. As Mr. Strickland himself noted, it was his mother who was the only individual (apparently bedsides his grandmother) who stood by him and attempted to help him in his own time of trouble. That the child was removed from the Strickland home for a period is no reflection against Ms. Strickland. I CONCLUDE based on the evidence before me that whatever occurred in her home which led to her child being abused and removed was not her fault but was that of her husband, who was apparently heavily involved in drug use and in fact, even sold drugs in front of his young son.

Based on all the evidence presented in this case, I am convinced that Ms. Strickland's brush with the law in 1987 and her previous unprosecuted illegal conduct in connection with the unemployment fraud were aberrations in an otherwise law abiding life. Ms. Strickland has demonstrated much that is commendable in connection with her life. While generally this judge is of the opinion that individuals who commit unemployment fraud while employed by the casinos are entitled to little sympathy, this case presents a strong, and in fact compelling, exception to that rule. Under these circumstances, I CONCLUDE that Ms. Strickland has both demonstrated that she has rehabilitated herself from the impact of her disqualifying conduct and that she has the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure.

It is ORDERED that Ms. Strickland's renewal application be GRANTED .

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

KENNETH K. THOMAS,
Petitioner,
v.

DEPARTMENT OF LAW & PUBLIC SAFETY,
DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT,
Respondent.

Kenneth K. Thomas, petitioner, pro se

Charles Kimmel, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: January 12, 1990 Decided: February 7, 1990

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

The Division of Gaming Enforcement ("Division") filed an objection with the Casino Control Commission ("Commission") to Kenneth K. Thomas' 1986 application for renewal of his casino employee license. Mr. Thomas requested a hearing on the objection and the matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held before Honorable Lillard E. Law, ALJ on September 7, 1989. Judge Law issued a prehearing order on October 3, 1989. The case was tried before Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin on January 12, 1990 at the Office of Administrative Law in Atlantic City.

ISSUES

The Division's letter to the Commission bases its objection to renewal upon Mr. Thomas' alleged involvement in and conviction for theft by deception, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, an offense arising out of alleged unemployment fraud which was prosecuted as a third degree offense but which was the subject of a guilty plea to a fourth degree offense. Since the Division seeks to establish that the value of fraud was in excess of $500 even though the plea of guilty was to an offense involving less than $500, the Division proceeds pursuant to its authority in section 86g of the Casino Control Act ("Act"), which provides it with authority to establish that unprosecuted conduct constituted a statutory disqualifying offense under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c1. The issues for consideration therefore are whether or not Mr. Thomas did in fact commit a theft by deception in excess of $500, whether he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and whether, if he has committed disqualifying conduct, he may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Act.

EVIDENCE

There is no dispute as to the fact that Mr. Thomas did in fact commit a theft by deception in that he received unemployment benefits from the State of New Jersey, Division of Unemployment Security, during a period when he was employed at the Atlantis Casino/Hotel as a security officer. According to Mr. Thomas, he was unemployed at about two or three weeks and then, while still receiving benefits, he became employed at Atlantis. According to documentation received from the Division of Employment Security, Mr. Thomas was overpaid during the period from February 23, 1985, for which benefits were paid March 19, 1985, through August 17, 1985, for which benefits were apparently paid August 20, 1985. The total amount of overpayment of benefits was $3,068. In addition, Mr. Thomas was fined $20 for each week of overpayment or 25 percent of the total amount, which in this case amounted to $767, for a total overpayment, including fine, of $3,835.

Mr. Thomas was indicted on a charge of theft by deception and pled guilty on December 5, 1988. On February 10, 1989, he was sentenced by Honorable Manual H. Greenberg, J.S.C., sitting in the New Jersey Superior Court, Law Division, Atlantic County, to one year probation with a special condition that he make restitution of any balance still due to the Division of Unemployment Security and that he pay $30 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board. Mr. Thomas completed payment of all monies due to the Division of Employment Security and his probation was terminated by an order signed by Judge Greenberg on or about July 25, 1989, after Judge Greenberg received written notification from the State Unemployment office that all monies due had been paid.

Mr. Thomas, who is 40 years old, unmarried and with no dependents, is now employed with the Atlantic City Fire Department, where he has worked for two years. Prior to that, he worked as a slot cashier for a year at Trump Plaza. According to the petitioner, at the time of his fraudulent conduct he had been behind on his bills, needed tires and a new engine for his car, and was generally behind on his debts. He acknowledged that he was aware that he was collecting unemployment illegally.

Mr. Thomas has never been convicted of any other criminal offenses. According to him, he now has a work schedule which involves four days on, four days off work. On his days off, he attempts to help out in the neighborhood, doing some handy work for elderly residents, and otherwise trying to be of aid to his neighbors. He produced no character witnesses on his behalf.

DISCUSSION

The issue for consideration is what affect the conduct and conviction which arose out of it have upon Mr. Thomas' character and, more broadly upon his relicensure. Based upon the evidence, it appears possible that the theft by deception constituted an aberrational, unlikely to reoccur, situation. Apparently Mr. Thomas was under some financial pressure when he decided to accept unemployment benefits while at the same time working. Obviously, his conduct cannot be condoned. There is no evidence that he has previously resorted to criminal acts.

The fraud occurred in 1975. However, the conviction only occurred in 1989 and the probation period ended approximately six months ago, having been terminated early.

In some ways, perhaps the most damaging aspect of Mr. Thomas' conduct was that he used his position in the casino industry as a means for obtaining income while at the same time stealing from the taxpayers of the State of New Jersey. Individuals who so act violate a form of trust which their licensure imposes upon them, one which requires that they, having been granted a privilege by the state, live up to high standards of conduct and citizenship. It is surely appropriate that these persons should be held to strict account for their misdeeds. While the extent of Mr. Thomas' criminal conduct was limited in scope, it nevertheless does not reflect well upon the casino industry or its employees for a licensed person to dip into the public till while at the same reaping the rewards of casino employment, an employment which may only be obtained after the State has licensed the individual, thereby indicating that he fills the stiff licensing requirements.

Mr. Thomas seeks renewal of a casino employee license. In order to be so licensed, he must establish by clear and convincing evidence that he has good character, honesty and integrity. In view of the conviction and the nature of the offense charged, it is difficult to so find. While admittedly Thomas may not again seek to cheat, his action does suggest a character flaw. Under the circumstances, I cannot FIND that he has the necessary good character, honesty and integrity.

In addition, the offense for which he was convicted, theft by deception, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, involved over $3,000. N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2 provides that a theft involving in excess of $500, but less than $75,000, is a crime of the third degree. Although Mr. Thomas was convicted of a fourth degree offense, it is clear that had he not entered a guilty plea and had the matter been tried to conclusion, the evidence would have supported a conviction for a third degree offense. As such, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), his conduct constitutes an automatic disqualification from licensure.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h) provides for a demonstration of rehabilitation by someone whose conduct automatically disqualifies him from licensure. The statute establishes several factors for consideration. Among these are the nature and duties of the registrant's position; nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct; circumstances under which it occurred, date of the offense, age of the individual when the offense was committed, whether it was an isolated or repeated incident; and any social conditions which may have contributed to it, as well as any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in the community.

At the time Mr. Thomas committed this offense in 1985, he was approximately 35 years old. It appears that he was under some economic pressure at the time. He has presented no character testimony, but has testified on his own behalf concerning some activities in the neighborhood to help out persons in need of assistance.

The most difficult problem with respect to finding rehabilitation, other than the rather short period since his conviction, is the nature of the offense. As noted previously, this unemployment fraud involved an individual who had already been licensed by the Commission and who used casino employment as the means of obtaining an income in addition to the unemployment compensation, which he was not entitled to receive. While it may be occasionally appropriate to license a previously unlicensed or registered individual who comes before the Commission seeking such having previously been involved in an unemployment fraud, one who presents himself for renewal of license or registration and who has committed such an offense while licensed and who has used the industry as a tool in ripping off the public presents a much different, often less sympathetic picture.

Based upon the considerations above, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Thomas has not presented sufficient evidence to establish that he has rehabilitated himself. The nature of the offense involved was very serious because of the context in which it was committed. While it may be that the incident was isolated, I CONCLUDE that in light of that seriousness it is too soon to assure that this individual would not again engage in such fraudulent conduct were he faced with economic pressures.

CONCLUSION

I CONCLUDE that Mr. Thomas is disqualified from licensure because of his conviction of an offense which, based on the evidence presented, in fact involved a fraud of sufficient amount to constitute a crime of the third degree, N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). In addition, I FIND that Mr. Thomas has failed to establish his rehabilitation. Finally, I CONCLUDE that he has failed to establish by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure. Therefore, his application for renewal is DENIED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

R. Lane Stebbins, Deputy Attorney General for petitioner (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)
Guy Michael, Esq., for respondent (Brown & Michael, attorneys)

Record Closed: November 27, 1989 Decided: February 9, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (CCC) on February 16, 1989, seeking to revoke the respondent's casino hotel employee registration. The respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held on September 12, 1989, by Administrative Law Judge Joseph Fidler, who identified the following issues to be determined at a plenary hearing:

1. Has the respondent engaged in conduct which constitutes the offense of distribution of a controlled dangerous substance, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, which would be a disqualifier from continued casino hotel employee registration, pursuant to sections 96c(1) and 91b of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), even if such conduct was not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this state, as permitted by section 86g of the Act.

2. Has the respondent, if he has committed an otherwise disqualifying offense, affirmatively established his rehabilitation, pursuant to section 91d of the Act.

3. Has the respondent been convicted in 1984 of possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute, which would be a disqualifier from continued casino hotel employee registration, pursuant to sections 86c(1) and 91b of the Act.

First Issue

The Division was advised by an informant that a Cuban casino employee named Roberto had heroin for sale at 119 South Texas Avenue, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The informant, one Noel Lopez, had been apprehended while selling drugs and sought to obtain favor with the State Police by informing against others.

On December 7, 1989, Lopez was thoroughly searched, given $100 and sent to Roberto's home to buy heroin under surveillance by State Police detectives. Lopez went to 119 South Texas Avenue and was advised by someone there that Roberto had moved around the corner to 4 Oceanic Terrace. Lopez went to 4 Oceanic Terrace and there was no one home. On December 7, 1989, the detectives questioned the local mail man who confirmed that a Roberto Thompson had recently moved from 119 S. Texas Avenue to 4 Oceanic Terrace.

On December 12, 1989, Lopez was again searched, given $100, and sent to 4 Oceanic Terrace. The State Police detectives could not see who opened the door and admitted Lopez. A short time later, Lopez emerged from 4 Oceanic Terrace with a "bundle" of heroin. According to the testimony, a "bundle" is ten bags and the street price at that time was $100 per bundle. Lopez was again searched, and the bags were submitted to the laboratory where they were confirmed to be heroin.

On December 13, 1989, the operation was repeated and again Lopez returned with a bundle of heroin. On both occasions, Lopez told the detectives, who watched him go in and out of the house, that he purchased the heroin from Roberto. None of the detectives ever saw Roberto enter or leave the house.

On December 14, 1989, the detectives showed Lopez a photograph of Roberto Thompson and asked him if he could identify the picture. He identified the photo as the Roberto from whom he purchased the heroin.

Based on the purchases allegedly made by Lopez, the detectives obtained a no knock search warrant. They went to 4 Oceanic Terrace and broke the window in order to gain entrance. Roberto and his wife were understandably excited. The police found no drugs or residue of drugs; only a scale and some money which Roberto Thompson claimed was Christmas shopping money.

Later, Lopez refused to testify against Roberto Thompson and the criminal charges against Thompson were dismissed. The charges against Lopez were not dismissed and he has fled the area.

The Division has no independent evidence to corroborate the hearsay testimony of Lopez that Roberto Thompson sold heroin to him on December 12 and 13, 1989. We do not know why Lopez refused to testify against Roberto Thompson nor why Lopez has become a fugitive if indeed he is a fugitive. Roberto Thompson, although not a very credible witness in other respects, denied that he sold heroin to Noel Lopez at any time.

Relevant hearsay testimony is admissible in CCC hearings. It may not support a finding however, unless it is the sort of evidence upon which responsible persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs. N.J.S.A. 5:12-107(6).

The evidence in this case supported probable cause for a search warrant at the time. There was a "well grounded suspicion" that Thompson sold heroin to Lopez. State v. Waltz, 61 N.J. 83, 87 (1972). Indeed, a search warrant issued. The return indicates that no drugs were found. In addition, Lopez is now a fugitive after declining to confront Thompson and testify against him. There is no longer reason to conclude that Lopez is "trustworthy." State v. Ebron, 61 N.J. 207, 212 (1972).

The quality of the state's evidence in this case has deteriorated over time.

I CONCLUDE therefore that the state has failed to prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Robert Thompson distributed a controlled dangerous substance contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5 and he is not disqualified from casino employee registration pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and 91b on that account.

Third issue

The third issue was added by amendment. It is logically prior however, to the second issue.

The Division proved and the respondent admitted that he was convicted by his plea of guilty on November 16, 1984, of possession with intent to distribute a controlled dangerous substance; cocaine, in the City of Newark, on September 12, 1983. The Statute violated was N.J.S.A. 24:21-20, since recodified as N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5.

This is a statute enumerated under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) as a disqualification from casino hotel registration. N.J.S.A. 5:12-91b.

I therefore CONCLUDE that Roberto Thompson is disqualified from casino hotel employee registration pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and 91b, unless he is saved from disqualification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d, by affirmatively demonstrating that he is rehabilitated.

REHABILITATION

The Act provides that persons who are disqualified from casino employee licensure and hotel registration pursuant to section 86c 1 may still be licensed or registered provided they can affirmatively demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90 and 91d. These rehabilitation statutes require the Commission to examine the applicants conduct in light of the following criteria: (1) the nature and duties of the position, (2) the nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct; (3) the circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred; (4) the date of the offense or conduct; (5) the age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed; (6) whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident; (7) any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct; (8) any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

Pursuant to the requirements of N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d, I FIND:

1. The respondent has worked in the casino industry as a cleaning person and as a steward. These jobs do not take him on to the casino floor. He has occasion however, to meet casino patrons in the hotel.

2. The offense of cocaine distribution is a serious crime. It is perceived to be more serious now than it was in 1984 when the respondent was convicted. The statute proscribing the offense was "reformed" in 1987 and contains enhanced penalties.

3. The circumstances under which the respondent committed the crime are unknown. The indictment to which the respondent pled guilty merely recites that he possessed cocaine in Newark on September 12, 1983, with the intent to distribute it. The respondent testified that he was in a bar when police raided it and found cocaine. The respondent testified that he did not know it was there. He said his public defender told him to plead guilty anyway because he was the person closest to the cocaine. This is not characteristic advice from public defenders. Nor is it characteristic of New Jersey courts to accept pleas without establishing a foundation upon which a plea can be accepted. Pleas must be made "knowingly" in New Jersey and with a recognition that the party entering the plea realizes his guilt.

There was other evidence in the case that the witness was not credible. He failed to list previous arrests in his Personal History Disclosure Form 4A. He insists he told the person who helped him fill it out about his prior arrests but that the person unilaterally decided, without advising the respondent, to leave the information out of the form, even though it is a sworn document.

4. The offense occurred on September 12, 1983.

5. The respondent was 28 years old when the offense occurred.

6. The respondent has no subsequent convictions.

7. There was no evidence that any social conditions contributed to the offense or conduct.

8. There was no other evidence of rehabilitation offered in this case; no history of employment, no community service, no additional academic or vocational schooling, no recommendation from supervisors, no vouchers from persons who know or work with the respondent.

It is the affirmative responsibility of each person seeking qualification under the Act to establish his qualifications by clear and convincing evidence. N.J.S.A. 5:12-80a. The rehabilitation statute emphasizes that the applicant must affirmatively demonstrate his rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d.

The respondent has utterly failed to meet this burden.

I CONCLUDE that the respondent has failed to affirmatively demonstrate his rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91h.

I therefore CONCLUDE that he is disqualified from casino hotel registration pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c1 and 91b.

I ORDER that Roberto Thompson's casino hotel registration be REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: January 18, 1990 Decided: February 28, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

On August 18, 1989, the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) seeking to revoke the respondent's casino employee license and casino hotel registration. The respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. At a prehearing conference on October 10, 1989, before administrative law judge Joseph Fidler, two issues were identified for resolution at a plenary hearing.

The first issue was described as follows: "With reference to the respondent's conviction for promoting prostitution in the fourth degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:34-1b (5), has the respondent been convicted of an offense which would render his continued licensure and registration inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act (Act) (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.) and to casino operations pursuant to Section 86c (2) of the Act." The second issue was identified as: "Has the respondent established by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for continued casino employee licensure, pursuant to Sections 89b (2) and 90b of the Act." A plenary hearing on these issues was convened on January 18, 1990, in Atlantic City.

In 1982, the respondent came to the United States as a refugee from Vietnam. He was 14 years old. He was originally sponsored by an Oklahoma family who, according to the respondent, abused him. With the help of a cousin, respondent escaped to Atlantic City and has been "on his own" ever since. He enrolled in Atlantic City High School and graduated in four years. He supported himself by working at McDonald's and on the boardwalk.

After graduation the respondent was employed in the casino industry as a blackjack and craps dealer until his license and registration were suspended as a result of an indictment in Atlantic County charging him with conspiracy, and promoting prostitution.

The charges occurred during a time when the respondent was moonlighting as a taxi cab driver in Atlantic City in December of 1988. On December 16, 1988, he was arrested at a "house" of prostitution while bringing a customer to the house just at the time when the police conducted a raid. He admitted to the police that he received $5 for every customer he brought to the house. He apparently worked the casinos for patrons for the house of prostitution.

The respondent pled guilty to the 4th degree crime of promoting prostitution on July 16, 1989, and on August 4, 1989, was sentenced to 18 months probation. His probation officer says that he is an ideal probationer. However, he has remained unemployed since August 31, 1989, when his license and registration were suspended.

The respondent was vague about the details of his arrest. He was more than vague about the details of his plea of guilty, he was evasive. He communicated nothing, except the fact that he has paid his fine, which would lead one to the conclusion that he is rehabilitated. Rehabilitation is a factor which must be considered in the inimicality analysis. Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301, 308 (1986).

The same or similar testimony offered on rehabilitation also goes to the issue of good character, honesty and integrity, N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2) and 90b. No such testimony was offered on this question either. Respondent merely offered his probation officer's letter stating that he was an "ideal probationer." The respondent acknowledged that the administrative law judge at the prehearing conference advised him concerning his burden to produce evidence on the issue of good character, but he failed to do so at the plenary hearing.

The respondent's failure to offer any such evidence leads inescapably to the conclusion that he cannot clearly convince that he is of sufficient good character, honesty and integrity to retain his license as a craps and blackjack dealer.

In addition, the provision of prostitutes to casino patrons is inimical to the policies of the Act. Promoting prostitution, in this age of AIDS, may lead to death. This is not the conduct we expect from industry workers.

I therefore CONCLUDE that the respondent has been convicted of an offense which would render both his continued employee licensure and registration inimical to the policies of the Act and to casino operations pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (2), 90e and 91b.

I also CONCLUDE that the respondent has failed to establish by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2) and 90b.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that the respondent's casino employee license and casino hotel registration be and are hereby REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on March 18, 1987, requesting that the Commission revoke the casino employee license and the casino hotel employee registration of respondent Lazaro Trejo based upon its allegation that respondent had committed and been convicted of the disqualifying offense of Armed Robbery, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (1).

On January 12, 1989, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. On March 20, 1989, a prehearing conference was held, followed by a Prehearing Order, which set forth the issues to be determined and established July 27, 1989 as the hearing date. The hearing was adjourned at the request of respondent's attorney and rescheduled for November 9, 1989. The matter was adjourned and rescheduled for March 6, 1990. The hearing was held on March 6, 1990 at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. the hearing record was closed on that date.

ISSUES

The issues to be resolved by this administrative tribunal and as agreed by the parties are these:

A. Whether respondent was convicted of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:15-1 (a) Armed Robbery, and is disqualified from both licensure and registration?

B. Whether respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to sections 90h and/or 91d of the Casino Control Act?

C. Whether respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2)?

UNCONTESTED AND STIPULATED FACTS

Respondent is presently 40 years of age. He arrived in the United States of America from Cuba with the Mariel boat people in or about 1980. In 1982, respondent moved to the State of New Jersey.

While in Cuba, respondent completed his high school education and, thereafter, attended Santa Clara College where he studied veterinary medicine for one year. He has no plans to attend college in this country. Rather, respondent would like to open his own restaurant business. Respondent has been employed in the restaurant business having served as a busperson at Resorts International Hotel and Casino, Caesars Hotel and Casino and the Showboat Hotel and Casino. Recently, respondent held down two jobs; one, as a busperson at Bally's Hotel and Casino and one, as an attendant at Bally's Texaco Service Station on Boston Avenue, Atlantic City.

On March 14, 1986, respondent was arrested by officers of the Brigantine Police Department following an armed robbery committed by him at the First Jersey National Bank - South in Brigantine. The parties stipulate that the gun used in the robbery was a plastic water pistol. On March 27, 1986, the Atlantic County Grand Jury handed up a one count indictment against respondent alleging that he:

> ... did, in the course of committing a theft upon First Jersey National Bank, inflict or threaten to inflict bodily injury or use of force upon Beverly Smith while armed and in possession of a deadly weapon, a device or instrument which, in the manner it was used or fashioned lead Beverly Smith to believe it capable of producing death or serious injury, contrary to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 2C:15aa and against the peace of this State, the government and dignity of same.

On May 12, 1986, respondent entered a plea of not guilty to one count of robbery. On September 22, 1986, respondent retracted his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to robbery in the second degree. On October 10, 1986, respondent appeared in Superior Court, before the Honorable Arthur V. Guerrera, JSC, who sentenced respondent to serve seven years in state prison (with credit for three days) and a $30 penalty to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (VCCB).

Judge Guerrera observed that respondent's act of robbery was respondent's first adult arrest. Nevertheless, Judge Guerrera determined that the very nature of the armed robbery, even though it was committed with a toy gun, clearly dictated that the presumptive sentence (N.J.S.A. 2C:43-6 a (2)) be imposed so as to protect the public and deter this type of conduct (P-1).

On June 28, 1988, respondent was released from Southern State Prison and placed on parole until September 27, 1991. While incarcerated at Southern State Prison, respondent became acquainted with the Reverend Alfred J. Hewett, a full-time prison chaplain. Respondent regularly and voluntarily attended Sunday Mass conducted by Father Hewett. Respondent successfully completed courses conducted by Father Hewett entitled Spanish Behavior Modification and Behavior Modification in Self-Control Techniques where he also served as an aide. Respondent engaged in prison recreational activities, having won the intramural softball championship. He also successfully completed the prison's substance abuse counseling.

Subsequent to his release from Southern State Prison, respondent was married on November 8, 1989. This was his second marriage. Since his release from prison, respondent has become active in the church and parish activities of Holy Spirit Roman Catholic Church, Atlantic City. Respondent regularly attends meetings offered by Alcoholics Anonymous (A.A.).

CONTESTED FACTS

Respondent testified as to the events of March 12, 13, 14, 1986. On the night of March 12, 1986, respondent had been drinking alcoholic beverage and was extremely depressed. He attempted to telephone and visit his cousin who lived in Brigantine, however, without success. Respondent asserted that he was feeling suicidal and needed someone to talk with. Respondent asserted that he had attempted on two other occasions to take his own life; once in Cuba with a knife, and once in Brigantine while driving a motor vehicle over the Brigantine Bridge.

Respondent recalls purchasing a yellow colored plastic gun, however, he could not recall where he purchased it. Respondent had been drinking prior to entering the First Jersey National Bank in Brigantine. He asserts that he does not recall the events in the bank. He does recall, however, that immediately after leaving the bank he thought of escape. On March 14, 1986, respondent was in a room at the Golden Nugget Hotel and Casino. He testified he had telephoned his girlfriend's residence and was in conversation with his girlfriend's grandmother who informed respondent that his girlfriend was at the Brigantine Police Department reporting the bank robbery. Respondent insisted that he had not committed the offense because he had no recollection of it. He thereafter telephoned the Atlantic City Police Department to get the telephone number of the Brigantine Police Department. He then telephoned the Brigantine Police who arrived at the Golden Nugget and placed respondent under arrest without any resistance.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b (8) establishes that licensure and registration under the Act are revocable privileges which are "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." Section 129 (1) provides for the revocation of or other sanction against the licensee or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this Act which would disqualify such person from holding his license." The Division contends that the respondent's criminal misconduct constitutes a disqualifying offense under section 86c (1), and therefore, he cannot continue to hold a license or registration.

Disqualifying Offense Under Section 86c (1) of the Act.

Section 86c (1) of the Act mandates the Commission shall deny a casino license and/or registration to any person who has been convicted of any of the enumerated offenses set forth therein. The offense of robbery under N.J.S.A. 2C:15-1 is one of those disqualifying offenses.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Division has established, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that respondent committed the offense of robbery in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:15-1a (2), which is a disqualifying offense.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that respondent is disqualified from holding a casino employee license and a casino employee hotel registration.

Rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d

A license and registrant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure and/or continued registration by affirmatively demonstrating his rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h; N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d. These sections of the Act set forth the following eight factors to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) - The nature and seriousness of the offense;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

(4) The date of the offense;

(5) The age of the applicant (licensee) when the offense was committed;

(6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling, or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release program or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

In consideration of petitioner's claim of rehabilitation, the following is found in this record.

(1) Respondent presently is the holder of casino employee license no. 54020-21 and casino hotel employee registration no. 45876-40. Respondent's employment in the casino industry has been in the restaurant and food service business, generally as a busperson. He seeks to retain his non-gaming casino license and employee registration for the employment opportunities in the Atlantic City casinos.

(2) The crime of armed robbery is a very serious offense. The sentencing judge considered all of the circumstances surrounding respondent's conduct and determined that an extended prison term was necessary, even though the offense was committed with a toy gun. Respondent was sentenced to seven (7) years in prison on October 10, 1986. Respondent served less than two (2) years of his sentence when he was paroled on June 28, 1988. His parole extends until September 27, 1991, approximately five (5) years from the date of his conviction.

(3), (4) and (5) Respondent was approximately 36 years of age when he committed the offense of armed robbery. He is an emigre from Cuba, having come to this country with the Mariel flolilla in or about 1980. He has few friends or relatives in the United States. Respondent admits that he abused alcohol. He asserted that he was under pressure to get money. On March 13, 1986, respondent contends that he was depressed and intoxicated. He recalls purchasing a toy water pistol, however, he does not recall using it to rob the First Jersey National Bank in Brigantine, New Jersey on that date. He subsequently turned himself over to the Brigantine Police.

(6) and (7) This was respondent's first adult conviction. Respondent contends that a contributing factor for his criminal conduct was the culture shock he experienced in this country as contrasted by his life in Cuba. The lack of friends and relatives in the United States also caused him to be depressed where he abused alcohol to the extent that he could not remember events in which he participated or observed.

(8) Respondent's conduct in prison was exemplary as evidenced by his early release where he served less than two (2) years of a seven (7) year sentence. While in Southern State Prison, respondent engaged in behavior modification programs and substance abuse counseling. He was also in regular church attendance while incarcerated.

Subsequent to the termination of his incarceration, respondent has remarried and is now leading a productive life, holding down two jobs. He has devoted a good portion of his time to his wife and church while continuing participation with A A The evidence demonstrates that he now abstains from any and all forms of alcoholic drink.

Respondent has the recommendation as to his rehabilitation of two Roman Catholic priests, friends and former employment supervisors. It is noteworthy that respondent also has the recommendation of his Parole Officer for the retention of his casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration. It appears that respondent began his rehabilitation upon his entry to the Southern State Prison.

Having considered all of the factors above and having given fair weight thereto, I am persuaded that respondent has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation. His only brush with the criminal justice system was alcohol induced

While this in no way excuses his conduct, it does provide some mitigation. Respondent has not demonstrated any violent behavior, except in one incident which was considered to be self defense. There is no evidence he has been in a state of depression while in prison or since his release. He is presently free of use or abuse of alcohol.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that pursuant to sections 90h and 91d of the Act, respondent has clearly and convincingly demonstrated his rehabilitation.

Good Character, Honesty and Integrity as Required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2).

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b (2) by reference, Mr. Trejo is required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, his reputation for good character, honesty and integrity for licensure. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979) at 8. In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant (or licensee), is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key The reverse must also be said to be true; a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b (2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corp. and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, Casino Control Commission (November 13, 1980) at 5. In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be closely scrutinized. Boardwalk Regency Corporation at 2.

Aside from respondent's aberrant conduct which resulted in his robbery conviction, he possesses indicia of good character, honesty and integrity. He has the unqualified support and recommendation of the Reverend Father Hewett, a full-time prison chaplain, who had frequent contact with respondent while he was incarcerated in Southern State Prison. Father Hewett is of the opinion that respondent is not only rehabilitated but, moreover, that he will serve the general good of society now that he has been released from prison.

Respondent's parish priest, Father Ronald S. Falotico, has known respondent before and after respondent's prison term and asserts that respondent wishes to make amends to society for his past mistake. Father Falotico opines that respondent is genuinely a very moral person despite his single past altercation with law enforcement. Father Falotico has worked closely with respondent since respondent's release from prison and finds him to be a fine Christian gentleman in every sense of the word. Father Falotico also finds respondent to be a very industrious worker who is intent on helping others in need. The pries finds respondent to be honest and trustworthy and that he is truly rehabilitated.

Having considered all of the evidence before me, I CONCLUDE that respondent has shown, by clear and convincing evidence, that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino licensure. Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (Law Div. 1974); Germann v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466 (App. Div.1 969).

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the Division's complaint against respondent, seeking to revoke respondent's casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration be and is hereby DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), Department of Law and Public Safety, alleges that respondent Louis Vasquez is statutorily disqualified from holding a casino hotel employee registration, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (1), by virtue of his conviction of the offense of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (CDS) with the intent to distribute in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a (1), comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, a crime of the second degree.

On June 8, 1989, this matter was transmitted from the Casino Control Commission (Commission) to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was held on October 3, 1989 followed by a Prehearing Order dated October 4, 1989. A hearing was held on February 15, 1990 at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The hearing record closed on that date.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this tribunal are set forth below as follows:

A. Whether respondent was convicted of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c to wit: N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1), Possession of Controlled Dangerous Substance with Intent to Distribute which is comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5?

B. Whether respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 91d of the Casino Control Act?

UNCONTESTED FACTS

Based upon the testimony and other evidence adduced at the hearing, the following facts are neither contested nor in dispute. Therefore, I hereby adopt the following as my FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter:

Respondent, who was 24 years of age at the time of the herein hearing, was indicted by the Cumberland County Grand Jury on April 15, 1987 for (1) possession of a CDS in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a (1) and, (2) possession of a CDS with the intent to distribute, in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19 a (1). Respondent was indicted, along with his then paramour, when he was approximately 21 years of age. On May 14, 1987, respondent entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment. Subsequently, on June 25, 1987, respondent retracted his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to the second count of the indictment; i.e., possession of a CDS with the intent to distribute. As a consequence of his entry of a guilty plea, the Honorable Isaac I. Serata, J.S.C., entered a Judgment of Conviction and placed respondent on probation for two years with the following conditions: Respondent was required to pay a fine of $500 at a rate of $10 per week; provide 100 hours of community service and pay a penalty of $30 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (VCCB). Count I of the Indictment was dismissed.

Respondent satisfactorily completed his probation by performing his community service with the Spanish Catholic Centers in Vineland, New Jersey and at the Thrift Store operated by the Goodwill Industries in Atlantic City. Respondent also paid the $500 fine and the $30 penalty to the VCCB. Respondent has had no other arrests or convictions since June 25, 1987. His probation was terminated on March 17, 1989.

Respondent is presently employed by Harrah's Marina Hotel/Casino (Harrah's) as a waiter under his casino hotel employee registration no. 68285-40. In or about August 16, 1989, respondent married Wendy Vazquez, nee Hewitt. They have an infant daughter, born June 28, 1989, and Mrs. Vazquez has a three year old daughter from another relationship. Respondent considers Mrs. Vazquez's daughter as his own. Mrs. Vazquez is also employed by Harrah's as a waitress in its Reflections Restaurant. Respondent is the father of a child born to his former paramour, Kimberly Clark. Ms. Clark has moved with the child to a foreign state, therefore, respondent is not presently under any court order for child support or any other financial support for the mother or child.

Respondent has been drug free since on or about his conviction on July 25, 1987. At the request of his attorney, respondent volunteered to undergo drug screening on September 1 and October 27, 1989, and January 23, 1990, by the Damon Clinical Laboratories. The drug screen tested for, among other things, amphetamine, methamphetamine, phenylpropanolamine, barbiturates, doriden, quinine, morphine, methadone, phenothiazine, codeine, cocaine, dilaudid, darvon and dilantin. None of these substances were detected in respondent's urine drug screen on the three dates they were administered to him.

Respondent and his wife reside in a rental property at a cost of $629 per month. They have undertaken some debt for a motor vehicle ($109.90 per month) and furniture ($85 per month with an amount outstanding of $1,400) and are current with these financial obligations.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b (8) establishes that licensure under the Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." Section 129 (1) of the Act provides for the revocation of or other sanction against the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his license." The Division contends that respondent Vazquez's alleged violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19 a (1) is comparable to a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, a disqualifying offense under section 86c (1) of the Act.

Disqualifying Offense Under Section 86c of the Act

The record demonstrates, and respondent admits, that respondent was convicted of possession of a CDS with the intent to distribute, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a (1). The statute, N.J.S.A. 24:21-19 a (1), was repealed by the Legislature, pursuant to the Laws of 1987, chapter 106, section 1. Under the identical act, the Legislature promulgated N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, which states in pertinent part that:

> ... it shall be unlawful for any person knowingly or purposely:
> (1) To manufacture, distribute or dispense, or to possess or have under his control with intent to manufacture, distribute or dispense, a controlled dangerous substance ...

Section 86c (1) of the Casino Control Act mandates that a person who has been convicted of any of the enumerated offenses therein shall be disqualified from holding a casino license (or registration). N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, is one of those enumerated offenses in section 86c (1), as amended by L. 1987, c. 106.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Division has met its burden of proof to clearly demonstrate, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that respondent is disqualified from holding a casino hotel employee registration by virtue of his commission of the offense of possessing a CDS with the intent to distribute. N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5.

Rehabilitation Under Section 91d of the Act

A registrant in a disciplinary proceeding faced with the existence of one or more section 86 disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against continued registration by affirmatively demonstrating his rehabilitation, N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d. This section sets forth eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination for rehabilitation is to be made and are as follows:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

(4) The date of the offense;

(5) The age of the applicant (licensee) when the offense was committed;

(6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling, or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release program or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

In consideration of the above factors, the following has been found:

First, respondent is a waiter for Harrah's in its Reflections restaurant. Respondent commenced his employment with Harrah's in or about 1987 as a busperson and has been promoted to waiter within the two year period of his employ. He seeks to retain his registration in order to continue employment in this field.

Second. The offense of possessing CDS with the intent to distribute is a serious crime. The menace of illegal drug distribution, use and abuse has contributed to the erosion and, perhaps, destruction of a segment of our society. Respondent's involvement and participation in this illegal activity perpetuated the unhealthy and treacherous menace. Unfortunately, respondent was also a victim of the toxins as an abuser of the drugs he possessed and distributed.

Third, fourth and fifth. On or about November 6, 1986, respondent was arrested in the City of Vineland, New Jersey, when he attempted to make a sale of lysergic acid diethylamide (L.S.D.). He was approximately 21 years of age at the time of the arrest and is uncertain as to whether he was the subject of an undercover operation or identified by a police informant.

Sixth and seventh. Respondent's arrest on November 6, 1986, was his first and only arrest for possession and possession with the intent to distribute a CDS. Thus, the conduct was an isolated incident. There was no evidence proffered to indicate that any social conditions contributed to the offense respondent's or conduct.

Eighth, respondent has demonstrated evidence of rehabilitation through, among other things, his successful completion of all of the probationary conditions and his assertion that he is drug free and no longer subject to drug use or abuse. The evidence also shows that he is in a happy marriage, living with his wife and natural daughter and a step-daughter whom he considers his own. He has assumed the responsibility of husband and father by providing a comfortable and loving home atmosphere. He is now accepted by his own family, which once rejected him because of his use of drugs, and he is accepted by his in-laws.

Having carefully considered all of the factors enumerated in section 91d of the Act, and having given fair weight thereto, I am persuaded that respondent has met his burden and affirmatively established his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence.

Accordingly, I FIND and CONCLUDE that respondent is rehabilitated and will refrain from illegal activity in the future.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the Division's complaint seeking the revocation of respondent's casino hotel employee registration be and is hereby DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Sidney W. Weiss, the petitioner, pro se

Norma L. Stancil, Deputy Attorney General, for the respondent, (Peter N. Perretti, Jr., Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: December 4, 1989 Decided: January 3, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Sidney W. Weiss, applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the issuance of a casino employee license (security employee), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90. The respondent, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), opposed the issuance of the license by reason of its contention that the petitioner had been convicted of a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), and therefore, he lacked the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference. The petitioner contended that he was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 90h.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed with the Commission an application for the issuance of a casino employee license so he could be employed as a security employee in the casino industry. By letter to the Commission, dated March 7, 1989, the Division objected to the petitioner's application for licensure as a security employee, asserting that the petitioner had been convicted in federal district court of bribery of a public official in violation of 18 U.S.C. §201(c), which is analogous to a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:27-7, compensating public servant for assisting private interests in relation to matters before him, and conspiracy in violation of 18 U.S.C. §371, which is analogous to a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2, conspiracy, which are disqualifying offenses under section 86c(1). The Division also objected pursuant to section 89b(2). Based upon the report, the Commission notified the petitioner on April 6, 1989, that there was a "substantial possibility" that his application would be denied and that he had the right to a hearing. By application dated April 13, 1989, which was received by the Commission on April 17, 1989, the petitioner requested a hearing. On April 25, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on April 28, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before Administrative Law Judge Lillard E. Law on September 5, 1989. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether petitioner was convicted in a foreign state of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c to wit: Conspiracy to Defraud the United States government, comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2 and Bribery of a Public Official, comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:27-7.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for a casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) as incorporated within section 90b.

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was held on December 4, 1989, at the Municipal Courtroom, Absecon Municipal Building, Absecon, New Jersey, after which the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The petitioner, Sidney W. Weiss, was employed by the United States government for 33 years. His last nine years of employment was as a purchasing agent at the Defense Industrial Supply Center (DISC). The petitioner was assigned to the Special Management and Review Team, which handled all urgent and priority purchases for DISC. Mr. Weiss was responsible for purchasing hardware such as nuts, bolts, screws, wire and fasteners critical to the maintenance of military aircraft and other strategic equipment. DISC continually and frequently purchases these parts and requires that these purchases be made on a competitive bid basis in order to assure the government obtains the lowest price possible (R-2 & R-4).

Sometime between 1978 and 1981, the petitioner was approached by Mr. Wernovsky, owner of Philadelphia Hardware, Inc., in order to obtain contracts. Mr. Wernovsky had recently had a quadrupal bipass and had a son in college. Mr. Wernovsky asked the petitioner for assistance in getting government contracts and gave the petitioner a bribe. As a purchasing agent, the petitioner could award contracts up to $25,000, and for some purchases, could informally solicit bids. In many instances over a five-year period, the petitioner controlled the entire bidding process by dictating Philadelphia Hardware's or another company's, Delsea Fasteners, Inc., bids and falsely creating higher "competitive" bids that ensured Philadelphia Hardware or Delsea Fasteners would be awarded the contract (R-4).

The petitioner retired in 1983. On May 8, 1986, the petitioner was indicted along with others as a result of an investigation into bidding irregularities at DISC. The petitioner was indicted in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania in indictment number 86-00235 and was charged with 35 counts of bribery of a public official in violation of 18 U S C §201(c), one count of conspiracy in violation of 18 U.S.C. §371, and three counts of income tax evasion in violation of 26 U.S.C. §7201 (R-2). On September 2, 1986, the petitioner pleaded guilty to two counts of bribery in violation of 18 U.S.C. §201(c), one count of conspiracy in violation of 18 U.S.C. §371, and one count of income tax evasion in violation of 26 U.S.C. §7201 (R-4). The remaining counts of the indictment were dismissed (R-3).

The petitioner was sentenced to pay a $10,000 fine, to be incarcerated for six months, and was placed on probation for five years. The petitioner is paying the fine at a rate of $100 per month and still owes approximately $6800, he served four months and 17 days of his incarceration, and he is scheduled to remain on probation until April 1992. In addition, DISC has revoked the petitioner's pension in order to recover $11,000 in restitution.

The petitioner asserts that he accepted bribes only over a two-year period, not a five-year period. He also indicated that for the purposes of the plea agreement he agreed that he had received approximately $100,000; however, he does not believe he actually received that amount. He also asserted that the government was not overcharged because of his actions. He used the last legitimate bids submitted regarding the purchase of an item in order to develop his fabricated bids. Philadelphia Hardware's bids were always equal to or lower than the last legitimate solicited bids.

The petitioner was born in Philadelphia in 1927, and he is currently 62 years old. He is a high school graduate. He has attended various colleges, but he never graduated from college. In 1946 and 1947, he served in the infantry in the United States Army. He attained the rank of private and was separated with an honorable discharge. In November 1947, the petitioner became employed by the U.S. Postal Service. This began his government employment. In 1957, the petitioner left government service and became employed as a technical writer for the Burroughs Corporation. He thereafter became employed as a writer of military handbooks for H.L. Yoh, Company. In 1960, the petitioner returned to government service as a purchasing agent for the Marine Corps Supply Agency. In 1974, he was transferred to DISC. Since his retirement from the federal government, the petitioner has been employed as a salesman for Crazy Ned's Furniture and is presently a car salesman at McCarthy Ford.

The petitioner is married and has two married daughters, ages 31 and 29. He also has three grandchildren. Throughout his life, the petitioner has been involved in numerous charitable organizations. He has been the entertainment director and charity director for Brith Shalom. He arranged shows and parties for the patients at Children's Hospital and at the Philadelphia Naval Hospital. He formerly was involved in recruiting, arranging for entertainment, and fundraising for the American Legion and the Jewish War Vets. He is also a Mason and a Shriner. He was also the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) chairman at DISC for two years. While the petitioner has been active in the past, he has not been involved in any of these activities during the last three years. Most of his time is spent working.

Mr. Weiss submitted ten letters in his behalf. Most attest to his honesty and integrity. They describe him as a family man who is hardworking and who devotes time to charitable endeavors. As such, most recommend him for employment (P-1 through P-10).

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the petitioner's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident and his current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess his credibility. Initially, his position in this matter must be recognized. As the petitioner and the applicant for a casino employee license, he has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the petitioner's demeanor, the plausibility of his testimony, the manner in which he participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appeared that the petitioner testified truthfully in every regard. He candidly admitted his misconduct and described in detail, experiencing great humiliation, the underlying circumstances. He has accepted responsibility for his misconduct, acknowledged that he was wrong, and has expressed remorse. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the petitioner's testimony in all respects.

DISCUSSION

The Division contends, that the petitioner was convicted in federal district court of bribery in violation of 18 U.S.C. §201(c) which is analogous to a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:27-7, compensating public servant for assisting private interests in relation to matters before him, and of conspiracy in violation of 18 U.S.C. §371 which is analogous to a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2, conspiracy, which constitutes violations of section 86c(1), and that, accordingly, he is disqualified from licensure.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1)

Section 86c(1) mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends that the petitioner's acceptance of money and rigging of bids in order to award government contracts to specific companies constitutes violations of N.J.S.A. 2C:27-7 and N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2, which under the circumstances disqualifies the petitioner from licensure.

18 U.S.C. §201. Bribery of public officials and witnesses, provides in pertinent part:

. . . .

(c) Whoever -

(1) otherwise than as provided by law for the proper discharge of official duty -

. . . .

(B) being a public official, former public official, or person selected to be a public official, otherwise than as provided by law for the proper discharge of official duty, directly or indirectly demands, seeks, receives, accepts, or agrees to receive or accept anything of value personally for or because of any official act performed or to be performed by such official or person; shall be fined under this title or imprisoned for not more than two years, or both.

. . . .

N.J.S.A. 2C:27-7, Compensating public servant for assisting private interests in relation to matters before him, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Receiving compensation. A public servant commits a crime if he knowingly, directly or indirectly, receives any benefit in connection with the furnishing to or for the government of any goods, supplies, property or services for which the agreement or contract is made, or the expense or consideration is paid, by the branch, subdivision or agency which employs the public servant.
>
> An offense proscribed by this section is a crime of the second degree. If the benefit solicited, accepted, agreed to be accepted, paid, offered or agreed to be paid is any benefit of $200.00 or less, an offense proscribed by this section is a crime of the third degree.

The Division established, and the petitioner admitted during his testimony, that he knowingly accepted money from Philadelphia Hardware in connection with furnishing goods to the government for which a contract was made. The Division further established, and the petitioner admitted during his testimony, that he was convicted in federal district court of bribery in violation of 18 U.S.C. §201(c). I CONCLUDE that the offense for which the petitioner was convicted in violation of 18 U.S.C. §201(c) is analogous to an offense of N.J.S.A. 2C:27-7. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:27-7. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:27-7, the offense constitutes a crime of the second degree.

18 U.S.C. §371, Conspiracy to commit offense or to defraud United States, provides in pertinent part:

> If two or more persons conspire either to commit any offense against the United States, or to defraud the United States, or any agency thereof in any manner or for any purpose, and one or more of such persons to any act to effect the object of the conspiracy, each shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both.

N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2, Conspiracy, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Definition of conspiracy. A person is guilty of conspiracy with another person or persons to commit a crime if with the purpose of promoting or facilitating its commission he:
>
> (1) Agrees with such other person or persons that they or one or more of them will engage in conduct which constitutes such crime or an attempt or solicitation to commit such crime;

. . . .

d. Overt act. No person may be convicted of conspiracy to commit a crime other than a crime of the first or second degree . . . unless an overt act in pursuance of such conspiracy is proved to have been done by him or by a person with whom he conspired.

. . . .

f. Duration of conspiracy. For the purpose of section 2C:1-6d:

(1) Conspiracy is a continuing course of conduct which terminates when the crime or crimes which are its object are committed or the agreement that they be committed is abandoned by the defendant and by those with whom he conspired;

The Division established, and the petitioner admitted during his testimony that he knowingly agreed with Mr. Wernovsky to accept money for fixing bids and awarding government contracts to Philadelphia Hardware in contravention of government competitive bidding requirements. The Division further established, and the petitioner admitted during his testimony, that he was convicted in federal district court of conspiracy in violation of 18 U.S.C. §371. I CONCLUDE that the offense for which the petitioner was convicted in violation of 18 U.S.C. §371 is analogous to an offense in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:5-4a and N.J.S.A. 2C:27-7, the offense constitutes a crime of the second degree.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offenses committed by the petitioner are disqualifying offenses under sections 86c(1). The petitioner is therefore disqualified from licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h

An applicant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating his or her rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;

2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

4. The date of the offense or conduct;

5. The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Sidney W. Weiss is applying to become a casino licensee in order to be employed as a security employee in the casino industry. As such, he will not have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities but will come in contact with casino patrons.

Second, the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:27-7, compensating public servant for assisting private interests in relation to matters before him, and N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2, conspiracy, over at least a two-year period while employed by the federal government. Because the offenses are listed as disqualifiers under section 86c(1), they are very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offenses must be viewed in their appropriate context. The petitioner as a buyer for DISC was responsible for purchasing spare parts critical to the maintenance of military aircraft and other strategic equipment. The petitioner controlled the entire bidding process by dictating bids and falsely creating higher bids in order to ensure that one company would get an award. This bidder was thereafter automatically resolicited. The petitioner breached his trust as a public official, violated competitive bidding requirements for personal gain, made it impossible for honest contractors to compete for certain contracts, and possibly increased costs to the government. Such a breach of the public trust is very serious and cannot be tolerated.

Fourth, the respondent's misconduct occurred between February 1978 and January 1983, when it ceased.

Fifth, the respondent was 55 years old at the time of the offense. I do not believe immaturity was a factor in this case.

Sixth, the respondent's misconduct was not isolated in nature. It was a reoccurring course of conduct which continued over several years. In addition, the petitioner has one prior conviction from 1967 for selling football pools on federal property. The football pool was sponsored by Birth Shalom in order to raise money for Children's Hospital and the Naval Hospital. The petitioner was fined $75.00 for this offense.

Seventh, the petitioner felt compassion towards Mr. Wernovsky who recently had had a quadrupal bypass and had a son in college. As such, he agreed to assist Mr. Wernovsky in obtaining government contracts in exchange for monetary payments.

Eighth, the petitioner has made few rehabilitative efforts. He is still on probation and will remain so until April 1992. He is making satisfactory progress while on probation. He is paying his fine at a rate of $100 per month but still owes approximately $6300. His pension has been revoked in order to provide restitution to DISC. Throughout his life, the petitioner has been involved in numerous charitable organizations. He has been the entertainment director and charity director for Birth Shalom. He arranged shows and parties for the patients at Children's Hospital and at the Philadelphia Naval Hospital. He formerly was involved in recruiting, arranging for entertainment, and fundraising for the American Legion and the Jewis War Vets. He is also a Mason and a Shriner. He was also the EEOC chairman at DISC for two years. While the petitioner has been active in the past, he has not been involved in any of these activities during the last three years. Most of his time is spent working. Other than his satisfactory job performance and stated remorse, there is little evidence of his rehabilitation.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not established, by clear and convincing evidence, his rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

(C) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Mr. Weiss was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts

International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of fact s upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Id. at 296.

It is readily apparent that the petitioner's misconduct was aberrant and that he was otherwise a person of good character, honesty and integrity. The misconduct did not involve any licensed employment. In addition, the petitioner has fully accepted responsibility for his misconduct, regained control over his behavior, performed admirably in furniture and automotive sales during the past three years, is married and is a respected member of his community. The petitioner's misconduct, however, relates directly to good character, honesty and integrity. He abused his position of public trust in order to manipulate the competitive bidding process for personal gain. Such actions cannot be tolerated. While the petitioner is remorseful, he is still on probation and insufficient time has passed in order to establish that he is truly once again a person of good character, honesty and integrity. Accordingly, the petitioner has not established that he presents no risk to the public nor to the integrity of the gaming industry in this State. The petitioner has not earned the privilege of licensure. An examination of the whole person does not clearly and convincingly establish that Mr. Weiss is a person of good character, honesty and integrity, and is entirely suitable for licensure in this state. See, Boardwalk Regency Corp.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not established, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity under section 90b.

Record Closed: February 6, 1990 Decided: February 20, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Joann Williams, applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the renewal of a casino employee license (blackjack dealer), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90. The respondent, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), opposed the renewal of the license by reason of its contention that the petitioner had committed a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), by means of section 86g, and therefore, she lacked the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference. The petitioner contended that she was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 90h.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed with the Commission an application for the renewal of a casino employee license so she could be employed as a blackjack dealer at Caesar's Hotel and Casino. By letter to the Commission, dated May 26, 1989, the Division objected to the petitioner's application for licensure as a blackjack dealer, asserting that the petitioner had committed the offense of theft by deception in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by section 86g. The Division also objected pursuant to section 89(b)2. Based upon the report, the Commission notified the petitioner on June 28, 1989, that there was a "substantial possibility" that her application would be denied and that she had the right to a hearing. By application dated July 8, 1989, which was received by the Commission on July 10, 1989, the petitioner requested a hearing. On July 12, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on July 17, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before Administrative Law Judge Lillard E. Law on October 5, 1989. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, Theft by Deception in the Third Degree.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) as incorporated within section 90b.

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was held on February 6, 1990, at the Municipal Courtroom, Pleasantville Police Building, Pleasantville, New Jersey, after which the record closed.

THE FACTS

In 1981, the petitioner obtained a casino employee license from the Commission, and she became employed as a blackjack dealer at the Claridge Hotel and Casino. She remained in this position until January 1984. Her car broke down on the Atlantic City Expressway so she reported to work five minutes late. When she explained the situation to management, she was told she was rude and insubordinate and was fired.

On January 27, 1984, the petitioner filed a claim for unemployment benefits with the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance (Division of Unemployment) (R-1, R-2, R-3 and R-4). The basis of the petitioner's claim was that she had been terminated from her position at the Claridge. The petitioner was determined to be eligible for benefits in the amount of $170 per week (R-2 and R-3). The petitioner collected unemployment benefits through September 1, 1984, at which time her benefits terminated (R-3).

From May through August 1984, the petitioner was employed as a change person at the Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino and was therefore an employee of the Harrah's Atlantic City Corporation (R-1 and R-4). The petitioner knew it was wrong to continue to collect unemployment benefits. She continued to collect benefits because she was behind in her bills. She had been disqualified from receiving benefits for six weeks after her initial claim, and she had fallen behind in paying her rent, gas, electric and other bills (R-3). Her husband had deserted her and her two children, and she was thus the sole support for her family. Her main concern was to provide a home for her children, and keep her children from "going on the street." When her initial benefits period expired, she did not apply for extended benefits. Because the petitioner failed to notify her local unemployment office of her employment, she received unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled in the amount of $2,380.00 (R-1, R-2, R-3 and R-4).

The Department of Labor notified the petitioner that it would be conducting a hearing concerning the unemployment benefits she had received from May 26, 1984 through August 25, 1984, during which period the petitioner had been employed. The petitioner failed to attend the hearing as the notice had been sent to her prior address, and the Department of Labor thereafter made a determination in the case based on the record. On July 26, 1985, the Department determined that the petitioner had received unemployment benefits in the amount of $2,380.00 which she was not entitled to receive, and it imposed a fine of $595.00 for a total claim of $2,975.00 plus interest (R-1).

On August 23, 1985, the Division of Unemployment filed a certificate of debt against the petitioner in the Superior Court of New Jersey. On November 8, 1985, a judgment was entered against the petitioner in the amount of $2,975.00 (R-5). The petitioner's state income tax refunds in the amount of $178.88 in 1986 and $208.00 in 1988 were withheld pursuant to a SOIL attachment (R-4).

In May of 1984, the petitioner moved from her Doughty Road address to an Old Zion Road address. In 1986, the petitioner moved to a Main Street address. The petitioner did not receive any correspondence from the Division of Unemployment as all of the correspondence was mailed to the Doughty Road address. As such, she had no notice of the claim or the judgment.

In September 1988, the petitioner was contacted by a Division investigator and was questioned regarding her unlawful receipt of unemployment benefits. Thereafter, on October 18, 1988, the Division of Unemployment filed a criminal complaint against the petitioner in the Atlantic City Municipal Court charging her with theft by deception of $2,380.00 in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 (R-6). After review by the Atlantic County Prosecutor's Office, the charges were returned to the Atlantic City Municipal Court for disposition at that level. On October 27, 1988, the petitioner pleaded guilty to the amended and reduced charge of theft by unlawful taking in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3.[1] The petitioner was sentenced to be incarcerated for 60 days and to pay a $100 fine. Both of these portions of her sentence were suspended. She was placed on probation for two years, was ordered to pay a $30 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty, $25 in court costs, and to make restitution of $3,503.31 at a rate of $200 per month (R-6 and R-7).

The petitioner is presently 40 years old and was 34 years old at the time of the offense. She was raised in Newark by her mother and father. She entered the twelfth grade, but she did not graduate. She is the sole support for her two sons. In late August 1984, the petitioner was hired as a floor cashier at Caesar's Hotel and Casino. After two years, she was promoted to a blackjack dealer. For the last five and one-half years, she has had a good attendance and work record at Caesar's.

The petitioner presented seven letters in her behalf. The first, written by Katrina Bond, the petitioner's probation officer, indicates that the petitioner is reporting as directed and making regular restitution payments. Officer Bond concludes that the petitioner "is abiding by the conditions of her probation and has remained problem and arrest free" (P-2).

The second, dated January 4, 1990, was written by Craig Isaia, casino administration director, Caesar's Atlantic City. After stating the petitioner's employment history, Mr. Isaia states that as a blackjack dealer, the petitioner's annual performance reviews have reflected fully satisfactory scores (P-3).

The third, dated February 1, 1990, was written by Althea Williams, a blackjack floorperson at Caesar's. Ms. Williams wrote that she has known the petitioner for four years. She states that the petitioner's character is above reproach, that she is familiar with the petitioner's unemployment situation and that the reason the petitioner kept the unemployment benefits was to provide for her family as she is a single mother (P-4). Both Lynda Henson and Donna Mazzali are pit managers at Caesar's and wrote letters similar to that of Ms. Williams (P-5 and P-6).

The sixth, dated February 6, 1990, was written by Lenore Rowley. Ms. Rowley writes:

> I have known Joann Williams for quite a number of years. During that time Joann has shown herself to be a very dedicated mother and a caring friend. Also during that time she found herself to be in a very difficult financial situation. Raising two sons alone on an unemployment check could not meet all the needs of the growing boys. This is when Joann got a job to supplement the check. The extra income was used to help clothe and care for her family. Never was any of this money used for anything but her family. Joann is not, and never has been, a drug user alcohol abuser or a woman to run the streets. The majority of her activities, even today, include her family.
>
> Since that time, Joann has been paying on the amount owed to the unemployment by way of a casino licensed job, a dealer. Being the straightforward person that she is, she did not try to hide this fact. Because of this her license is in jeopardy. Without the license she cannot obtain a decent job to maintain her family. With > the license, she cannot only maintain her family but also keep her self-respect and remain an asset to her job, her family, her friends and to society. [P-7]

Finally, in a letter dated January 30, 1990, Jesse Dully of Prestige Productions writes:

> I'm a real good personal friend of Joann's. I've known Joann and her two children for about six years. For the time that I've known her, she has always provided a good home and a positive image for her kids.
>
> I understand she's having problems with the State of New Jersey and the Casino Control Commission because she collected unemployment payments while she was working. I feel Joann has paid the price for what she had done. If you look at her work record, you will see she is a good worker. Joann has been with the same company for many years. As you know, a Casino License plays a big part in a person's life if that person works in Atlantic City's gaming industry. A number 21 gaming license can change a person's way of life. Joann understands what she did was wrong. She's paying back all the money plus fines. With all this in mind, please give Joann Williams her Casino License so she can continue to work and provide for her family. [P-8]

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the petitioner's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident and her current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess her credibility. Initially, her position in this matter must be recognized. As the petitioner and the applicant for a casino employee license, she has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the petitioner's demeanor, the plausibility of her testimony, the manner in which she participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appeared that the petitioner testified truthfully in every regard. She candidly admitted her misconduct and described in detail, experiencing great humiliation, the underlying circumstances. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the petitioner's testimony in all respects.

APPLICABLE LAW

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86, Casino license - disqualification criteria, provides in pertinent part:

> The commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of any of the following criteria:

a. Failure of the applicant to prove by clear and convincing evidence that the applicant is qualified in accordance with the provisions of this act;

c. The conviction of the applicant, or of any person required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license, of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be:

(1) Any of the following offenses under the "New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice," P.L. 1978 c.95 (Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes) as amended and supplemented:

N.J.S. 2C:20-1 et seq. (theft and related offenses which constitute crimes of the second or third degree);

g. The commission by the applicant or any person who is required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of this section, even if such conduct has not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State . . .

N.J.S.A. 5:12-89, Licensing of casino key employees, provides in pertinent part:

b. Each applicant must, prior to the issuance of any casino key employee license, produce information, documentation and assurances concerning the following qualification criteria:

. . . .

(2) Each applicant for a casino key employee license shall produce such information, documentation and assurances as may be required to establish by clear and convincing evidence the applicant's good character, honesty and integrity. Such information shall include, without limitation, data pertaining to family, habits, character, reputation, criminal and arrest record, business activities, financial affairs, and business, professional and personal associates, covering at least the 10-year period immediately preceding the filing of the application. Each applicant shall notify the commission of any civil judgments obtained against such applicant pertaining to antitrust or security regulation laws of the federal government, of this State or of any other state, jurisdiction, province or country. In addition, each applicant shall, upon request of the commission or the division, produce letters of reference from law enforcement agencies having jurisdiction in the applicant's place of residence and principal place of business, which letters of reference shall indicate that such law enforcement agencies do not have any pertinent information concerning the applicant, or if such law enforcement agency does have information pertaining to the applicant, shall specify what that information is. If the applicant has been associated with gaming or casino operations in any capacity, position or employment in a jurisdiction which permits such activity, the applicant shall, upon request of the commission or division, produce letters of reference from the gaming or casino enforcement or control agency, which shall specify the experience of such agency with the applicant, his associates and his participation in the gaming operations of that jurisdiction; provided, however, that if no such letters are received from the appropriate law enforcement agencies within 60 days of the applicant's request therefor, the applicant may submit a statement under oath that he is or was during the period such activities were conducted in good standing with such gaming or casino enforcement or control agency.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-90, Licensing of casino employees, provides in pertinent part:

a. No person may commence employment as a casino employee unless he is the holder of a valid casino employee license.

b. Any applicant for a casino employee license must, prior to the issuance of any such license, produce sufficient information, documentation and assurances to meet the qualification criteria, including New Jersey residency, contained in subsection b. of section 89 of this act and any additional residency requirement imposed under subsection c. of this section; except that the standards for business ability and casino experience may be satisfied by a showing of casino job experience and knowledge of the provisions of this act and regulations pertaining to the particular position involved, or by successful completion of a course of study at a licensed school in an approved curriculum.

e. The commission shall deny a casino employee license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of this act.

h. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection e. of this section, no applicant shall be denied a casino employee license on the basis of a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria or the commission of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of section 86 of P.L. 1977, c.110 (C. 5:12-86), as specified in subsection g. of that section; provided that the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation. In determining whether the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence or rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

DISCUSSION

The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, Theft by deception - third degree, which constitutes a violation of section 86c(1), and that, accordingly, she is disqualified from continued licensure.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86C(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g

Section 86g provides that an applicant will be disqualified from licensure because of the commission of any action which would constitute an offense under section 86c, even if there has not been a prosecution for such conduct. Section 86c(1) mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends that the petitioner's receipt of unemployment benefits in excess of $500 between May 26, 1984 and August 25, 1984 inclusive while she was employed by the Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which under the circumstances disqualifies the petitioner from continued licensure.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, Theft by deception, provides:

> A person is guilty of theft if he purposely obtains property of another by deception. A person deceives if he purposely:
>
> a. Creates or reinforces a false impression, including false impressions as to law, value, intention or other state of mind; but deception as to a person's intention to perform a promise shall not be inferred from the fact alone that he did not subsequently perform the promise;
>
> b. Prevents another from acquiring information which would affect his judgment of a transaction; or
>
> c. Fails to correct a false impression which the deceiver previously created or reinforced, or which the deceiver knows to be influencing another to whom he stands in a fiduciary or confidential relationship.
>
> The term "deceive" does not, however, include falsity as to matters having no pecuniary significance, or puffing or exaggeration by statements unlikely to deceive ordinary persons in the group addressed.

This statute has been held applicable where one wrongfully receives unemployment benefits. In State v.Moore, 158 N.J. Super. 68, 85-86 (App. Div. 1978), the court stated:

> As we read the trial judge's findings, defendant knowingly misrepresented his employment status to obtain money "under pretense that he is . . . out of employment." These findings establish a violation of N.J.S.A. 2A:111-2.[1] It is not necessary to prove a "corrupt intent," so long as the evidence establishes a criminal intent. See State v. Lambertson, 110 N.J. Super, 137, 141-143 (App. Div.), certif, den. 56 N.J. 479 (1970). It is immaterial that defendant may have felt entitled to some unemployment benefits and, therefore, did not have a "conscious" intent to defraud or to commit a criminal or immoral act. It is not necessary to show that defendant was "conscious that his acts were unlawful." Id. Defendant himself testified, in effect, that he received more benefits than he thought he should receive, based upon the hours he allegedly worked - or did not work. It was unnecessary to determine the exact amount of overpayment, so long as the wrongful acts inducing such payment have been established. State v. Harris, 70 N.J. 586, 589 (1976).

1 N.J.S.A. 2A:111-2 is now repealed, but was the predecessor to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4.

The Division established, and the petitioner admitted during her testimony, that she knowingly received unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled from the New Jersey Department of Labor. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2)(a), the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offense committed by the petitioner is a disqualifying offense under sections 86c(1) and 86g. The petitioner is therefore disqualified from licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and 86g.

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h

An applicant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating his or her rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;

2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

4. The date of the offense or conduct;

5. The age of the application when the offense or conduct was committed;

6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Ms. Williams is a casino licensee and is employed as a blackjack dealer. As such, she does have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities and does come in contact with casino patrons.

Second, the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, Theft by Deception - third degree, over a three-month period during which she was employed in the casino industry. Because the offense is a listed disqualifier under section 86c(1), it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the misconduct must be viewed in its appropriate context. The petitioner's husband deserted the family and did not contribute any further to the support of the family. The petitioner fell behind in paying her bills as she did not receive any unemployment benefits for six weeks after losing her job. She was simply concerned with providing for her family in a time of crisis. These circumstance converged upon the petitioner and impaired her judgment. Accordingly, the totality of the circumstances underlying the incident tends to mitigate somewhat the seriousness of her offense.

Fourth, the petitioner's misconduct occurred from the end of May 1984 until the end of August 1984, when it ceased.

Fifth, the respondent was 34 years old at the time of the offense. I do not believe immaturity was a factor in this case.

Sixth, while the offense was an ongoing offense over a three-month period, the petitioner's misconduct was isolated in nature. She has not committed any other violations of the criminal laws.

Seventh, because of the underlying circumstances, the petitioner was only concerned with raising and providing for her family. The family's security and her financial situation were her major concerns. The petitioner states that such conduct will not occur again. She is now a responsible, productive member of society. In addition, it is clear that the underlying circumstances affected the petitioner's ability to deal reasonably with the problem at that time.

Eighth , the petitioner has made substantial rehabilitative efforts. She has made full restitution of both the unemployment benefits wrongfully taken and the fine, and is now repaying her interest penalties. The petitioner has been employed in the casino industry continuously since August 1984. Her performance has been exemplary. She has advanced from a floor cashier to a blackjack dealer. She has demonstrated that she has matured and has accepted responsibility. The petitioner has expressed remorse for, and has no intention of repeating, her misconduct. Accordingly, there is little likelihood, if any, of a repetition. Essentially, there is nothing more the petitioner could do to establish her rehabilitation.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, her rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

(C) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Ms. Williams was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, her reputation for good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objections to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Id. at 296.

It is readily apparent that the petitioner's misconduct was aberrant and that she is otherwise a person of good character, honesty and integrity. The misconduct did not involve her licensed employment, and the underlying circumstances somewhat mitigated the seriousness of the misconduct. In addition, the petitioner has full accepted responsibility for her misconduct, regained control over her behavior, performed admirably within the casino industry during the past five and one-half years, is raising two children, and has become a respected member of her community. Accordingly, the petitioner presents no risk to the public nor to the integrity of the gaming industry in this state. The petitioner has earned the privilege of licensure. An examination of the whole person clearly and convincingly establishes that Ms. Williams is a person of good character, honesty and integrity, and is entirely suitable for licensure in this state. See, Boardwalk Regency Corp.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, her good character, honesty and integrity under section 90b.

DISPOSITION

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CCC 432-90
AGENCY DKT. NO. 90-EA-115

DOMENIC ACILIO,
Petitioner,
v.
STATE OF NEW JERSEY, DEPARTMENT OF LAW AND PUBLIC SAFETY, DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT,
Respondent.

Domenic Acilio, petitioner, pro se

James J. Armstrong, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: July 23, 1990 Decided: August 3, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Domenic Acilio, applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the issuance of a casino employee license (maintenance and cleaning), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90. The respondent, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), opposed the issuance of the license by reason of its contention that the petitioner had committed a disqualifying offense under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), by means of section 86g, and he therefore lacked the requisite good character, honesty, and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference. The petitioner contended that he was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 90h.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed with the Commission an application for the issuance of a casino employee license so he could be employed as a heating and air conditioning mechanic at Trump Taj Mahal. By letter to the Commission, dated September 27, 1989, the Division objected to the petitioner's application for licensure as a maintenance and cleaning person asserting that the petitioner had committed the offense of theft by unlawful taking, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by section 86g. The Division also objected pursuant to section 89b(2). Based upon the report, the Commission notified the petitioner on November 2, 1989 that questions had been raised concerning his qualification for licensure under the Casino Control Act (Act) and that he had the right to a hearing. By application dated January 10, 1990, which was received by the Commission on January 16, 1990, the petitioner requested a hearing. On January 16, 1990, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on January 19, 1990, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before me on April 17, 1990. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty, and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated within section 90b.

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was held on July 23, 1990, at the Municipal Courtroom, Somers Point Municipal Building, Somers Point, New Jersey, after which the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

On May 10, 1985, while on patrol in the parking lot of Malibu Grand Prix in Mt. Laurel, New Jersey, a Mt. Laurel policeman saw what appeared to be an empty black truck. The officer then saw two heads appear in the windows. The officer approached the truck, smelled a strong odor of marijuana, and saw a wooden pipe and a plastic bag containing a white, powdery substance. The officer arrested the owner of the vehicle, Anthony Bucci, and the petitioner, who was a passenger in the vehicle. The officer searched the vehicle and found a plastic bag in the glove compartment containing marijuana, a marijuana roach in the ashtray, a pipe containing marijuana residue, and a plastic bag containing methamphetamine (R-2).

On May 11, 1985, the petitioner was charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana less than 25 grams), in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a4, and possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine), in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a1 (R-3). On May 13, 1985, the case was referred to the county prosecutor's office for review (R-3). On June 11, 1985, after review by the county prosecutor's office, the charges were downgraded to disorderly persons offenses and were returned to municipal court for disposition (R-3). On September 17, 1985, the petitioner received a conditional discharge of the charges. The petitioner was placed on probation for two years, received a $125 fine on the marijuana charge and a $200 fine on the methamphetamine charge, and was ordered to pay $25 court costs on each count and a $30 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty on each count (R-3). The petitioner completed his probationary period on September 17, 1987 (R-1).

On October 28, 1986, the petitioner was employed by the Sterile Products Division of Absorbent Cotton, Inc., in Hammonton, New Jersey. That evening, the petitioner was drinking with another employee, John Mastro. Earlier that day, Mr. Mastro had discussed with another employee the idea of stealing scales from the Sterile Products Division (R-4). At approximately 1:15 a.m. on October 29, 1986, Mr. Mastro had the petitioner accompany him to the plant to commit a break-in and steal something. The petitioner accompanied Mr. Mastro to the plant and helped Mr. Mastro enter the plant. The two took two scales from the plant. One scale was a digital gram scale valued at $1,375 and the other was a double beam scale valued at $110 (R-4 and R-5). On October 30, 1986, Sergeant Robert Frederico of the Hammonton Police Department interviewed various employees at the plant. The petitioner first denied knowledge of the break-in but later admitted his involvement (R-4).

On October 30, 1986, the petitioner was charged in Hammonton Municipal Court with burglary, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2, theft by unlawful taking, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, and receiving stolen property, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-7 (R-5). The receiving stolen property charge was dismissed on November 10, 1986, as the charge is subsumed in the offense of theft by unlawful taking (R-5). On November 18, 1986, the petitioner was indicted by the Atlantic County Grant Jury in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division (Criminal), Atlantic County, Indictment No. 86-11-2306-D and was charged with burglary, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2, theft by unlawful taking (third degree), in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, and conspiracy to commit burglary (third degree), in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2 (R-6). On December 22, 1986, the petitioner pleaded guilty to the conspiracy count of the indictment (R-7). On January 16, 1987, the petitioner was convicted of the conspiracy count and the remaining two counts were dismissed. The petitioner was placed on probation for two years, was fined $250, and was ordered to pay a $30 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty (R-7). The petitioner was released early from his probationary supervision in May 1988 (R-1).

The petitioner was born in Italy in 1965, and he is 25 years old. His parents emigrated to the United States that year, and the petitioner was raised in Hammonton, New Jersey. The petitioner is now a naturalized United States citizen. His family consisted of his parents and his two brothers and two sisters. The petitioner attended Hammonton High School, but he did not graduate. He received his high school diploma by attending Vineland Adult Education in the evenings. The petitioner is married, and the couple is expecting their first child.

At the age of 17, the petitioner obtained a casino hotel employee registration. He worked at Bally's Park Place from 1982 through 1986. In 1986, the petitioner had to accompany his mother to Italy in order to get his younger sister. As he did not have any vacation time accrued, he resigned his position at Bally's Park Place. The petitioner then entered a one-year training program in heating, air conditioning, and refrigeration at Lincoln Technical Institute. He graduated in the fall of 1987. Over the next two years, the petitioner was continuously employed by four employers in the heating and air conditioning industry. He was injured in an automobile accident in March 1989 and was unemployed for six months. He then attended the Casino Career Institute and completed the course for blackjack dealers.

In March 1990, the petitioner became employed as a heating, air conditioning, and refrigeration mechanic at the Trump Regency Hotel. He left that position on July 9, 1990, and began employment at the Trump Taj Mahal Hotel and Casino.

Mr. Acilio submitted five letters in his behalf. The first, written by Rev. Joseph Mungari, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, describes Mr. Acilio as a person of good character who is very responsible (R-1). The second, written by a former employer, Charles R. Sceia, Jr. of Charles R. Sceia Construction, describes Mr. Acilio as a person who would be an asset to any organization. Mr. Sceia states that Mr. Acilio "has a strong sense of responsibility, a willingness to cooperate with coworkers, and adapts well to new situations he encounters" (P-2).

The third letter, written by Ed Lindsey, maintenance supervisor at the Trump Regency and dated June 19, 1990, provides:

> Domenic has proved to be a very capable and competent Refrigeration/HVAC Mechanic during his employment at the Trump Regency Hotel.
>
> While under my direction, Domenic has performed various duties and responsibilities with the utmost professionalism and I feel he would be an asset to any organization he may persue [sic]. [P-3]

The fourth letter is written by Joseph Caronte, a slot technician at Trump's Castle who has known Mr. Acilio for 20 years. Mr. Caronte describes Mr. Acilio as a "well mannered, ambitious young man, who is eager to achieve his goals in his chosen field" (P-4).

The final letter was written by Michael L. Testa, Esq., of Basile, Testa & Testa. Mr. Testa has represented the petitioner in various legal matters. Mr. Testa states that:

> I have recognized that Dominic has matured greatly since I first met him and has had a positive change in his attitude and outlook for the future. He has recently gotten married and is expecting a child in the near future. These factors have contributed to his maturity.
> Despite the fact that Dominic may have exhibited poor judgment in the past that resulted in a legal problem, I feel that that is behind him. I feel that Dominic has rehabilitated himself and that he does not pose a threat as a repeat offender. [P-5]

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the petitioner's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident and his current good character, honesty, and integrity, it is necessary to assess his credibility. Initially, his position in this matter must be recognized. As the petitioner and the applicant for a casino employee license, he has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the petitioner's demeanor, the plausibility of his testimony, the manner in which he participated in the proceedings, and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appeared that the petitioner testified truthfully in substantial regard. He candidly admitted his misconduct and described in detail, experiencing great humiliation, the underlying circumstances. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the petitioner's testimony in substantial part. I am persuaded that his misconduct was, in part, due to immaturity.

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

DISCUSSION

The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking (third degree), which constitutes a violation of section 86c(1), and that, accordingly, he is disqualified from continued licensure.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g

Section 86g provides that an applicant will be disqualified from licensure because of the commission of any action which would constitute an offense under section 86c, even if there has not been a prosecution for such conduct. Section 86c(1) mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner's theft of two scales from his employer, the Sterile Products Division of Absorbent Cotton, Inc., constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, which under the circumstances disqualifies the petitioner from licensure.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Movable property. A person is guilty of theft if he unlawfully takes, or exercises unlawful control over, movable property of another with purpose to deprive him thereof.

The Division established, and the petitioner admitted during his testimony, that he knowingly participated in the burglary and theft of two scales from the Sterile Products Division. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2)a, the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offense committed by the petitioner is a disqualifying offense under sections 86c(1) and 86g. The petitioner is therefore disqualified from licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and 86g.

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h

An applicant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating his or her rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
4. The date of the offense or conduct;

5. The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Mr. Acilio is a non-gaming casino licensee and is employed as a heating, air conditioning, and refrigeration mechanic. As such, he does not have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities and does not come in contact with casino patrons. While the petitioner seeks primary employment as a heating, air conditioning, and refrigeration mechanic, he has completed blackjack dealer training. If licensed, he hopes to have an additional credential as a blackjack dealer added to his license as a fall-back job opportunity. The petitioner's employer is requiring him to obtain a gaming license so he can have access to all areas of the casino in case there is a heating or air conditioning emergency.

Second, the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking, on one occasion prior to his employment in the casino industry. Because the offense is a listed disqualifier under section 86c(1), it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in its appropriate context. The petitioner was drinking with some of his coworkers. One coworker suggested breaking into their place of employment and committing a theft. The petitioner accompanied his friends and participated in the theft. When initially questioned, the petitioner denied committing the offense; however, he quickly recanted, gave a full confession, and cooperated with the police. As such, there are mitigating circumstances.

Fourth, the respondent's misconduct occurred in October 1986, when it ceased.

Fifth, the respondent was 20 years old at the time of the first offense and 21 years old at the time of the second offense. I believe immaturity was a factor in this case. The petitioner believes he has learned with maturity and that such conduct will not occur again. He is now married and is a responsible, productive member of society.

Sixth, the respondent's misconduct was not isolated in nature. He has committed one other violation of the criminal laws. In 1985, he smoked marijuana with a friend in the friend's truck. He was convicted of a disorderly persons offense.

Seventh, the petitioner gave in to peer pressure. He has severed his association with all of the people with whom he formerly associated.

Eighth, the petitioner has made substantial rehabilitative efforts. He earned his high school diploma, he completed heating, air conditioning, and refrigeration training at Lincoln Technical Institute, and he completed blackjack dealer training at the Casino Career Institute. He has been employed the last three years in the heating and air conditioning industry. He has married, and is expecting his first child. He has demonstrated that he has matured and has accepted responsibility. The petitioner has expressed remorse for, and has no intention of repeating, his misconduct. Accordingly, there is little likelihood, if any, of repetition. Essentially, there is little more the petitioner can do to establish his rehabilitation.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, his rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

(C) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Mr. Acilio was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, his reputation for good character, honesty, and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty, and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: A good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981);

In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Id. at 296.

It is readily apparent that the petitioner's misconduct was aberrant and that he is otherwise a person of good character, honesty, and integrity. The misconduct did not involve his licensed employment, and the underlying circumstances somewhat mitigated the seriousness of the misconduct. In addition, the petitioner has fully accepted responsibility for his misconduct, regained control over his behavior, has attended educational training, has performed admirably within the heating and air conditioning industry during the past three years, is married, is expecting a child, and has become a respected member of his community. Accordingly, the petitioner presents no risk to the public nor to the integrity of the gaming industry in this State. The petitioner has earned the privilege of licensure. An examination of the whole person clearly and convincingly establishes that Mr. Acilio is a person of good character, honesty, and integrity, and is entirely suitable for licensure in this state. See, Boardwalk Regency Corp.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty, and integrity under section 90b.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the application of Domenic Acilio for the issuance of a casino employee license be GRANTED.

Respondents

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission, and exceptions to the initial decision and a reply thereto having been filed; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meetings of May 2, 1990, and July 11, 1990;

IT IS on the 25th day of July 1990, ORDERED that, for the reasons fully set forth on the record at the public meeting of July 11, 1990, the initial decision is modified as follows;

1. The Commission finds Adamar liable for the violations alleged in Counts I, II, III, IV, V and VI of the Division's complaint. The recommended penalty of $35,000 for the violations in Count II is rejected. Instead, considering the extensive and egregious violations of the credit and credit-related provisions of the Casino Control Act and its attendant regulations, Adamar is prohibited from extending credit to any patron for a period of two business days beginning 10:00 a.m. Saturday, August 18, 1990, and ending 6:00 a.m. Monday August 20, 1990;

2. The Commission adopts the findings of liability on Count II as to Robert James. However, the recommended sanction of $2,000 for Robert James is rejected and a monetary penalty of $5,000 is imposed; and

3. The Commission finds John Gallaway liable for the violations alleged in Counts III, IV and VI of the DGE's complaint. A monetary penalty of $10,000 is imposed; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that payments of $5,000 from Robert James and $10,000 from John Gallaway are due and payable upon receipt of an invoice from the Division of Financial Evaluation and Control, and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that, in view of the finding of liability on Count III and disallowance of the $500,000 write-off, the Division of Financial Evaluation and Control shall ensure that the necessary adjustments are made to the Casino Revenue Fund.

Record Closed: November 20, 1989 Decided: January 18, 1990

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of charges filed by complainant with the Casino Control Commission alleging certain violations of the Casino Control Act N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. and regulations promulgated thereunder. Respondents requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A hearing was conducted on July 24, 25, and August 30, 1989. The record closed on November 20, 1989 after receipt of the last posthearing submission. An extension of two weeks was then granted for the issuance of this initial decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8.

Complainant alleges that respondents violated credit and collection regulations in the conduct of business with Patron Edward Brian Rood, Sr. These violations involve; the extension of credit from March 25, 1986 through May 24, 1986, the failure to report returning counterchecks during the period June 20, 1986 through October 7, 1986 to Central Credit of Las Vegas (CCLV), the collection efforts that were made and those that should have been made but were not, the way in which the debt was ultimately settled, the reinstitution of credit on May 29, 1987 after the debt was settled, and finally the purchase of a complimentary Cadillac on June 29, 1988.

Most of the facts are either stipulated or undisputed. In November 1982, Patron Rood was granted a credit line at Tropicana in the amount of $100,000. Patron Rood was senior partner in the law firm of Rood & Associates located in Tampa, Florida. As of late February 1986, Patron Rood's credit account reflected a credit limit and outstanding balance of $850,000. On March 1, 1986, revisions to N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a) became effective. This new credit regulation required casinos to obtain and verify additional information regarding a credit patron's identification and credit worthiness. From March 25, 1986 through May 24, 1986, Patron Rood received five permanent credit limit increases to his approved credit line. These increases raised his outstanding credit account from $850,000 to $1,350,000. At the time of each such increase, the credit department obtained derogatory information concerning Patron Rood from CCLV and from independent contact with several New Jersey casinos. These sources indicated that on each such occasion, Patron Rood had unpaid credit debts at six different New Jersey casinos totalling approximately $1,500,000, and that his credit accounts at these casinos had been cancelled in each case during 1985.

Mr. Rood's credit file contains an uncertified financial statement dated February 1985 which shows total net worth in excess of $41,000,000 and available cash of $180,000. Most of his wealth was in the form of real estate and oil wells. From 1982 until his checks began to return in June 1986, Patron Rood had gambled approximately $40,000,000 at Tropicana and had lost approximately $7,500,000.

On June 20, 1986, Patron Rood's credit account at Tropicana was suspended due to a returned check. From this date to October 7, 1986, a total of 24 counterchecks and personal checks totalling $1,225,000 were returned unpaid to Tropicana. Patron Rood also owed $225,000 to Tropicana West located in Las Vegas, Nevada.

On the same day that his first check returned, Tropicana's collection department established a collection file for Patron Rood. Entries in the file indicate that from this date until May 20, 1987, eight of ten collection statements sent, went to Robert M. James. Respondent James was vice president of casino operations at the time and was not a member of the collection department. Maureen Cullen Keenan, former collections manager, and Leanor A. Mazzeo-Amoriello, the current collections manager, confirmed in testimony that the file would have contained notations that collection statements were sent to Patron Rood had they been. Respondent John M. Gallaway in a memorandum of July 15, 1986 to Steven R. Bolson, Tropicana vice president and in-house counsel, referring to the Rood matter indicates that respondent James "was doing everything he can to work out an equitable arrangement with Patron Rood, in order to get the money owed us as soon as possible".

Former collections manager Keenan described respondent James role in the Rood matter as that of "a messenger" to prompt him to pay his outstanding debt. Lester Brzozowski, Vice President of Finance, with oversight responsibility for the collections department, referred to him as the "customer contact" and Steven Bolson testified that respondent James was a "middleman and contact person only". Respondent James and Patron Rood were personal friends. There is no indication in the file that collection efforts were made by anyone other than respondent James in the early months after checks began to return. Mr. James was not present at the hearing and did not testify.

There were 13 separate dates between June 20, 1986 and October 7, 1986, on which checks returned. The CCLV was not notified at all, and the file contains the notation "no derog" or similar language on five of these dates indicating that someone made a decision not to report the matter. Former collections manager Keenan testified that she did not make this decision, and was unaware of it, but that she had expected Patron Rood to come in and make good on these returned checks. When current collections manager Mazzeo-Amoriello took over the Department in November 1986, she discovered the error and on December 3, 1986 reported to CCLV that $1,225,000 had returned.

In a memorandum dated July 25, 1986, Steven R. Bolson advised respondent Gallaway as to the status of collection efforts in Patron Rood's account. He opined that the matter was being handled in compliance with the regulatory framework, and that more aggressive and/or formal collection efforts were neither necessary or legally required at that time.

In a memorandum of October 16, 1986 to respondent Gallaway, Mr. Bolson again advised after a telephone call with Mr. Rood that real estate owned by Rood was in the process of being sold and that part of the proceeds would be used to pay Tropicana's debt. He recommended that Tropicana refrain from formal efforts to perfect a security interest in the property until the end of the year.

By December 11, 1986, Mr. Bolson was less sanguine. Tropicana retained Florida counsel, and in a letter of this date to counsel, Mr. Bolson set out the problem and expressed Tropicana's desire to perfect a security interest in real property owned by Mr. Rood. He noted that although Mr. Rood had represented his willingness to pay the debt in full, at this point formal steps toward this end had become necessary.

On December 17, 1986, collections manager Mazzeo-Amoriello and Mr. Bolson travelled to Florida to meet with counsel and Mr. Rood to inspect certain real estate and discuss repayment of the debt. During their meeting and for the first time, Mr. Rood raised the question of discounting $500,000 of his total debt of $1,450,000 in return for the security interest which Tropicana sought.

In January 1987, after considering the matter and receiving Mr. Bolson's advice that this would be legal, and the advice of the credit committee that it was prudent, respondent Gallaway approved the settlement. In a memorandum of January 13, 1987 Mr. Bolson informed Mr. Brzozowski that the appraisals received confirmed that the value of the land exceeded the debt. A note mortgage and escrow agreement were executed on January 20, 1987, and by their terms Patron Rood was obliged to pay $950,000 by June 15, 1987, or Tropicana would perfect a security interest in this real estate for the entire debt. In a memorandum of February 5, 1987 Mr. Bolson informed Mr. Brzozowski that the agreement had been executed. On May 20, 1987, Patron Rood wired $950,000 to Tropicana. Respondent Gallaway applied $725,000 to the debt owed respondent Tropicana and paid in full the $225,000 to Tropicana West. On May 29, 1987, the $500,000 was written off as "bad debt" pursuant to a write off memorandum signed by respondent Gallaway. Florida counsel were paid $30,000 for their efforts.

From June 20, 1986 when his checks began to return, until May 29, 1987 when his credit was reinstated, Patron Rood was a cash player at Tropicana. The player trip history form for him shows that he played over 200 hours during this period, had an average bet of $2,179 and wagered a total amount of $805,000 in cash and $846,000 in chips.

On May 29, 1987 respondent Gallaway reinstated Mr. Rood's credit line at $50,000. The CCLV reports at the time indicated that Patron Rood owed a total of $1,170,000 to six Atlantic City casinos and his credit at these establishments continued to be suspended. Thereafter, Mr. Gallaway and the credit committee determined that Mr. Rood could lose no more than $100,000 in any weekend trip. From May 29, 1987 through May 13, 1988, Patron Rood received four permanent credit increases and one temporary credit increase at Tropicana which raised his credit limit to $330,000. During this period Patron Rood lost over $1,000,000 as a player. At each point that credit was increased, the CCLV reported to Tropicana that Patron Rood owed other casinos in the vicinity of $1,000,000. On June 22, 1988, checks drawn by Patron Rood on this reinstated credit line began returning. On June 23, 1988, credit was suspended and the derogatory information reported to CCLV. When all the checks had returned, Patron Rood owed Tropicana $330,000. The file reflects that monthly statements were now sent directly to Patron Rood and on October 17, 1988, Mr. Bolson advised him in a letter that unless payment was forthcoming, suit would be instituted. On February 9, 1989, an action was filed in Superior Court and a judgment was obtained for the amount in question. At the time of hearing, two payments of $5000 each, had been received by Tropicana.

On June 29, 1988, Tropicana wired funds to a Florida automobile dealer to provide a gift complimentary to Patron Rood of a 1988 Cadillac Eldorado. The purchase price was $25,122.81. The reason recorded in the file was "birthday gift-Ed Rood". To this point, the facts are undisputed.

Mr. Bolson testified that he became actively involved in the matter at Mr. Gallaway's request in the fall of 1986. He had many telephone conversations with Mr. Rood, in which Rood assured him that full payment would be forthcoming. They also discussed the possibility of a security interest in real property about to be sold in Florida by Mr. Rood, but when the sale was delayed, Mr. Gallaway sent him to Florida to see how he could move the matter along.

Mr. Bolson testified that his advice to Mr. Gallaway that the settlement was legal and proper was based on a number of factors. Tropicana had made substantial efforts to collect the entire debt but it was plain from his conversation with Mr. Rood in Florida that although he regretted the circumstances, if Tropicana wanted to secure its debt it would have to pay for that peace of mind. Mr. Bolson considered the fact that Mr. Rood was 72 years old, and in case of his death, Tropicana could expect a dispute with his heirs. Further, the debt would have to be collected in Florida, where there was some question at the time about the collectability of gambling debts. Finally even if formal collection efforts were instituted and were ultimately successful, Tropicana would expend large sums in attorney's fees and costs. Mr. Bolson had taken this same view with respect to Mr. Rood's debt in September 1985, when he wrote a memorandum on this same subject, although at that time no settlement took place.

Mr. Gallaway testified that he concluded reluctantly based on this advice and discussion at credit committee meetings, that a settlement was in Tropicana's best interest. He then reestablished Patron Rood's credit line at the patron's request but with limitations. He and the credit committee decided that no more than $100,000 in credit would be granted in any one weekend. This level of credit was justified by Patron Rood's net worth which was still substantial. When checks began to return again, Rood advised Tropicana that his assets were now effectively frozen as a result of judgments obtained by various Federal agencies, and that at this point he could not pay. He expressed a continuing desire to pay as soon as these difficulties were behind him.

Mr. Gallaway testified that during the entire period which bound these charges, Mr. Rood was always available, answered calls, and generally was open about his responsibilities. This is in sharp contrast to the norm at the debt collection end of the business. He and the other key personnel assisting in these credit decisions considered Mr. Rood to be an honorable person and accountable to his word. This is the substance of the record.

THE EXTENSION OF CREDIT FROM MARCH 25, 1986 THROUGH MAY 24, 1986

(Count I, Tropicana)

N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a) provides:

> A credit file for each patron shall be prepared by a general cage cashier or credit department representative with no incompatible functions either manually or by computer prior to the casino licensee's approval of a patron's credit limit. All patron credit limits and changes thereto shall be supported by the information contained in the credit file. Such file shall contain a credit application form upon which shall be recorded, at a minimum, the following information provided by the patron . . .

Petitioner, argues that the extensions of credit during this two month period were not warranted by the information in the credit file. Respondents knew that Mr. Rood's credit lines at other Atlantic City casinos were suspended and that he owed approximately $1,500,000. Although his uncertified financial statement shows substantial net worth, he had but $180,000 in cash. Respondents argue first, that the regulation does not authorize an inquiry into Tropicana's evaluation of Patron Rood's credit worthiness, rather, it requires only that the specific information sought after the regulatory preamble above, be contained in the file. Second, even if such an analysis is authorized, these decisions were well supported by Tropicana's long and financially rewarding history with Patron Rood, and by his net worth statement Finally, respondent believes that unless its decisions here were tainted or wholly incompetent, petitioner must show them deference.

As to the first of respondents' arguments, it seems plain that the regulation invites the inquiry being made here. Patron credit limits must be supported by the content of the credit file and it is not enough that the form simply contain the required information. There is no dispute here that Patron Roods form was complete; the question goes to the evaluation itself. As to the more substantive issue, there is support in the record for both parties' point of view. When credit was being expanded from $850,000 to $1,225,000, respondents were aware that Patron Rood's credit was suspended elsewhere in Atlantic City. Mr. Bolson wrote a memorandum in 1985 discussing the legality of a settlement with Mr. Rood, evidencing Tropicana's awareness that all was not well in this account. Nevertheless, Patron Rood had been a premier customer for five years having gambled some $40,000,000 and lost $7,500,000. Moreover, the accuracy of Rood's financial statement was not attacked in this proceeding other than to note that it was not certified. Thus, all indications are that Patron Rood was a man of great wealth and might be expected to handle this level of credit. Finally, and importantly, Gallaway, Bolson and the other witnesses, who appeared on behalf of Tropicana testified credibly that they had always known Rood to be a man of his word.

Different casino executives might well have come to different conclusions about Patron Rood's ability to handle his growing gambling debt. We know that other casinos cut him off, although we do not know his player history elsewhere Ms. Panton, petitioner's investigator in this matter, acknowledged that she has never granted casino credit and neither is this forum particularly expert in this regard. The only witnesses with experience in this area were presented by Tropicana. The March 1, 1986 revised regulations sought to provide casinos with additional information about players, so that their ability to repay credit could be more accurately gauged, and so as to deter credit frauds. See 17 N.J.R. 181, January 21, 1985. The rule change did not eliminate the need to make close decisions. If Patron Rood's fortunes had taken a different turn and he paid his debt in full, we might have looked on these credit extensions as a sensitive balancing of the needs of a longtime patron, with Tropicana's desire for security and player retention. I cannot say therefore that these decisions were unsupported by the credit file, and it appears that some deference is appropriate here. Count One of the Complaint is dismissed

THE FAILURE TO NOTIFY CCLV FROM JUNE 20, 1986 TO OCTOBER 7, 1986

(Count 2, Tropicana)

N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(j) provides:

> Any patron having a check returned to any casino unpaid by the patron's bank shall have his credit privileges suspended at all New Jersey casinos until such time as the returned check has been paid in full or the reason for the derogatory information has been satisfactorily explained. All derogatory > information concerning a patron's credit account shall be reported by each casino licensee on a daily basis to a casino credit bureau used by New Jersey casinos.

There is no dispute that during the period in question Tropicana did not notify CCLV about Patron Rood's returning checks. Petitioner believes that this was intentional and part of a broader strategy to tread softly around Patron Rood. It points to the fact that these reporting failures occurred on 13 separate days over four months, and that on five occasions the file contains the reference "no derog" or similar language. Ms. Maureen Cullen-Keenan, the former collection manager, could not recall why such entries were made in the file, but suggested that this may have occurred because the casino expected Mr. Rood to pay these debts off. This is neither a defense or mitigation, since Tropicana is obliged to report derogatory information on a daily basis.

Respondent argues that there is no evidence that other casinos were adversely affected by its failure here. Even if that is so, it is only because Patron Rood's credit was already suspended elsewhere. In any case, the omission created the risk that others might be swayed by Tropicana's issuance of credit and the lack of any derogatory report. In this business that is an infraction of some moment.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that Tropicana personnel followed a pattern of withholding derogatory information from CCLV about Patron Rood in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(j). It is ORDERED that it pay a penalty of $25,000 for these omissions.

SENDING COLLECTION STATEMENTS FROM JUNE 20, 1986 THROUGH MAY 20, 1987

(Count 2, Tropicana, James)

N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.29(b) provides:

> No person other than one licensed in a separate collection section within the accounting department as a casino key employee or as a casino employee, and one who has no incompatible functions may engage in efforts to collect returned checks . . .

N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.29(e) provides:

> Statements shall be sent to patrons, by accounting department employees with no incompatible functions, immediately upon initial receipt of a return check or immediately upon receipt of a check returned for a second time if the check was immediately redeposited pursuant to (d) above, and on a quarterly basis thereafter until collection efforts are discontinued . . .

The record supports petitioner's contention that respondent James made collection efforts during this period and that as part of this activity at least eight of ten collection statements sent went to him. Both Ms. Cullen-Keenan and Ms. Mazzeo-Amoriello acknowledged that if collection statements had been sent directly to Patron Rood the file would have reflected it. The file shows only that these statements went to respondent James. Mr. Gallaway's memorandum of July 15, 1986 to Mr. Bolson also makes apparent Mr. James' involvement. Respondents argue that James was merely a middleman or conduit for the transmittal of these collection statements as he and Patron Rood were friends. While the use of their friendship may have been an expedient and inoffensive way of delivering an unwelcome message, collection statements must be sent to patrons by persons in the collection department without incompatible functions. Respondent James was involved in credit issuing decisions and his position clearly forbad collections. It would defeat the aimed at separation of function between collection and credit, to say that non-collection or credit personnel can be conduits, middlemen, facilitators, or in any other way be involved in the collection process. Mr. James did not appear and we know little of the messenger and nothing of his method of delivery. Yet, the character of the activity seems plain in the absence of any evidence that Tropicana took approved steps in the early months after checks began to return.

Based on the foregoing, it is my CONCLUSION that the failure to utilize routine collection measures after Patron Rood's checks began returning, and the use of respondent James to help collect the debt gives rise to a penalty of $10,000 against Tropicana, and of $2,000 against Mr. James.

THE SETTLEMENT

(Count 3, and 6 Tropicana, Gallaway)

N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(a) states:

> Except as otherwise provided in this section, no casino licensee, or any person licensed under the Casino Control Act, and no person acting on behalf of or under any arrangement with a casino licensee or other person licensed under the Casino Control Act, shall
>
> . . . (2) Release or discharge any debt which is uncollectible, either in whole or in part, which represents any losses incurred by any player in gaming activity without maintaining a written record of the deposit, check return and collection efforts as required by N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.28 and 19:45-1.29; . . .

N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.29(j) which governs the procedure for treating return checks as uncollectible states:

> After reasonable collection efforts, returned checks may be considered uncollectible for accounting purposes and charged to the casino licensee's allowance for uncollectible patron's checks . . . Any patron's indebtedness, in excess of $1,000, may only be considered uncollectible for accounting purposes and charged to the allowance for uncollectible patron's checks account after the following information has been included in the patron's credit file:
>
> 1. Documentation by two or more of the casino licensee's collection department employees evidencing independent efforts to collect the patron's outstanding check(s) and the reason why such collection efforts were unsuccessful; and/or
> 2. A letter from an attorney representing the casino documenting the efforts to collect the patron's outstanding checks and the reasons why such collection efforts were unsuccessful or were not pursued further.

Petitioner maintains that respondents Tropicana and Gallaway did not make reasonable collection efforts before they settled with Rood and wrote off a portion of his obligation as uncollectible. Its first arguments are procedural in nature. By failing to utilize authorized collection methods, i.e., sending collection statements from the collection department, Tropicana forfeited its right to deem any portion of debt as uncollectible, and then write it off. A write off deprives the state of taxes, and may be taken only after approved steps are followed. Additionally, there is neither documentation in the file from two collection department employees or from an attorney representing the casino setting out the collection effort and why it was unsuccessful. Finally, and more to the substantive point, petitioner believes that Patron Rood was capable of paying this debt and that the settlement is simply further proof that Tropicana was protecting its client at the expense of required collection efforts. At the very time that the negotiations resulting in settlement were taking place, Patron Rood was a cash player at the casino.These and other assets could have been pursued and though collection may not have been easy, this is not the test.

Respondents contend that they had every intention of collecting the debt, but that on December 17, 1986, Patron Rood presented a set of circumstances which made settlement a reasonable option. Collection of the full amount, or for that matter of any substantial portion of the debt, might be blocked for years and would be costly. Even if successful, Tropicana would obtain an interest in Florida realty which it did not want. A long-term payment schedule would deprive it of the use of this money for an indefinite period of time, and should Patron Rood die in the interim, Tropicana would likely have to dispute with his estate. The decision which they took secured an otherwise unsecured loan and they quickly received most of their due.

I do not agree with petitioner's contention that the failure to send collection statements properly, bars respondent from entering into a settlement and write off. That would amount to punishing respondents twice for the same regulatory infraction. The decision with respect to the settlement and write off must stand or fall on its own. Neither do I agree with respect to petitioner's second procedural point. The letters from Mr. Bolson to Mr. Brzozowski in January and February 1987 as well as Mr. Bolson's letter to Florida counsel, and the note, escrow agreement and mortgage taken together, document the effort sufficiently to satisfy subparagraph 2 of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.29(j). Petitioner is left to argue about the quality and scope of these papers and this is at best nitpicking. The file is fairly clear about what was done and why.

Finally, Mr. Bolson and Mr. Gallaway were credible and their testimony concerning the decision-making process here is adopted. Thus, faced with substantial impediments to collection of the entire debt they agreed to settlement. There is nothing in this record which would indicate that this was in any way tainted, and given the circumstances they appear to have acted within the bounds of reasonable judgment. Petitioner seeks to connect Rood's status as a favored player, with the original credit extension, failure to report to CCLV and use of James to collect, to conclude that Tropicana simply winked at this debt with the hope that it would recover its loss later. The record does not support such an inference. The charges surrounding the settlement decision and write off are dismissed.

REISSUANCE OF CREDIT FROM MAY 29, 1987 THROUGH MAY 13, 1988

(Count 4, 5, Tropicana Gallaway)

Here again with benefit of hindsight, we are asked to say that the decisions made were unsupported by the credit file. N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a). Again, both sides are armed with plausible arguments. Petitioner now adds the recent settlement experience to its previous view of the March through May 1986 period. Respondents note, that they received almost $1,000,000 from Mr. Rood in settlement and though the result was not optimal neither was it a poor outcome. Respondent Gallaway granted credit initially at $50,000 and the credit committee came to a decision that Patron Rood could not gamble more than $100,000 on any weekend. This was for him, a significant limitation. Despite the settlement, Patron Rood remained a man of great wealth. In the year that this restriction was in effect, he lost and paid $1,000,000 to Tropicana. Thus, argue respondents, the policy was reasonably successful. When his checks began to return Patron Rood informed Mr. Bolson that he was now in serious financial difficulty. Federal authorities had sued him on a bank transaction that had gone awry and there was a lien on his assets, which took priority over the Tropicana debt. At this point he could not pay or provide a security interest.

As expressed earlier in this opinion, it is my view that some leeway must be accorded the executives making these decisions. Considering the type of player that Rood was, the decision to grant him a comparatively small level of credit on May 29, 1987 was not unreasonable. Additionally, there is no indication that Tropicana was aware of Rood's more pressing financial problems until he disclosed them, after checks began to return. Thus, the decision to allow him to lose up to $100,000 on any weekend was within the bounds of business judgment , and in fact the policy was successful for a year. Counts 4 and 5 of the complaint are therefore dismissed.

THE CADILLAC

On June 29, 1988, respondent Tropicana authorized payment of $25,122.81 to a Florida automobile dealer for the purchase of a Cadillac for Patron Rood's birthday. N.J.S.A. 5:12-102m(4) states:

No casino licensee shall offer or provide any complimentary service, gifts, cash or other item of value to any person unless:

> . . . (4) The complimentary consists of noncash gifts, provided that such noncash gifts in excess of $2,000.00 per trip or such greater amount as the commission may establish by regulation provided directly to the patron and his guests by the licensee or indirectly to the patron and his guests on behalf of a licensee by a third party shall be supported by documentation regarding the reason the noncash gift was provided to the patron and his guests, including where applicable, a patron's player rating, to be maintained by the casino licensee.

Petitioner maintains that player rating information was not included in the decision to grant this complementary and thus the gift was not supported. Respondent maintains that the phrase "when applicable" in the section indicates that player rating information must be included when the casino is unfamiliar with a patron. Surely, in this instance, the player was well-known and Tropicana's decision to buy him a birthday gift was warranted by his play. Petitioner carries the burden of showing that this gift was unsupported and based on the history of patron Rood's play and Tropicana's desire even as late as June 29, 1988 to continue its relationship with him, there is no basis for the conclusion that this was a violation. This charge is dismissed.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: March 28, 1990 Decided: September 27, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

This matter concerns the complaint of the Division of Gaming Enforcement filed with the Casino Control Commission on May 8, 1989 charging the respondents with various violations of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.) and regulations adopted under the Act. The alleged violations set forth in four counts arise from the return of gaming chips to patron Mitri Hiresh on October 21, 1988. This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on June 26, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

The Division of Gaming Enforcement and respondent David Linnett have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a Stipulation of Facts and Settlement setting forth the agreement between the parties. This Stipulation of Facts and Settlement pertaining to respondent David Linnett is attached and fully incorporated herein. All parties to this proceeding have agreed to issuance of a partial initial decision reflecting the settlement.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representative's signatures.

2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy between the settling parties and it is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the settling parties comply with the settlement terms and that the proceedings as to the settling parties be CONCLUDED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY, DEPARTMENT OF LAW AND PUBLIC SAFETY, DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT, Complainant, vs. ADAMAR OF NEW JERSEY, INC. t/a TROPWORLD CASINO & ENTERTAINMENT RESORT; DAVID LINNETT; JOSEPH CARSON; ROBERT BINSTEIN AND LISA ELIZARDO Respondents.	STIPULATION OF FACTS AND SETTLEMENT PERTAINING TO RESPONDENT DAVID LINNETT

The above-captioned matter having been discussed by and among the parties involved, Robert Del Tufo, Attorney for Complainant, State of New Jersey, Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (hereinafter "Division"), by Nancy P. Scharff, Deputy Attorney General; and Respondent David Linnett appearing pro se; and certain factual matters having been agreed upon, it is hereby consented to and agreed by and among the parties as follows:

1. Complainant, by and through its Division of Gaming Enforcement (hereinafter "Division"), is now and at all times referenced herein has been charged with the responsibility pursuant to the Casino Control Act (P.L. 1977, c. 110, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq., hereinafter "the Act") of enforcing said Act, and the regulations promulgated thereunder by the Casino Control Commission (hereinafter "the Commission") and of prosecuting violations thereof before the Commission.

2. Respondent, Adamar of New Jersey, Inc. t/a TropWorld Casino & Entertainment Resort (hereinafter "TropWorld"), is now and at all times referenced herein has been a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey and has now and at all times referenced herein has had its principal place of business located at Iowa Avenue and the Boardwalk in the City of Atlantic City, County of Atlantic, and State of New Jersey.

3. TropWorld is now the holder of a casino license issued by the Commission authorizing TropWorld to operate a casino hotel in accordance with the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder. Said license was initially issued to TropWorld effective on November 26, 1982, and most recently renewed on November 26, 1989. TropWorld has been conducting its casino hotel operations pursuant to said license continually to date since that time including all times referenced herein.

4. TropWorld is the holder of, and operates pursuant to, a Certificate of Operation effective November 26, 1981 at which time TropWorld was the holder of a temporary casino permit. TropWorld has conducted its casino hotel operations pursuant to said Certificate of Operation continually to date since that time including all times referenced herein. Said Certificate of Operation entitles TropWorld to operate a casino hotel in accordance with the provisions of the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder.

5. Respondent David Linnett presently holds casino key employee license #3400-11. Mr. Linnett currently resides at 1515 Jefferson Davis Highway, Apartment 820, Arlington, Virginia 22202.

6. On or about March 20, 1986, Mitri Hiresh, a TropWorld patron and a resident of Florida, was granted a casino credit account in the amount of $350,000 by TropWorld. As of October 20, 1988, Mr. Hiresh had a $1,000,000 credit limit with TropWorld.

7. On or about October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), at approximately 1:00 a.m., Mitri Hiresh arrived at TropWorld. Upon his arrival, Mr. Hiresh requested that a dealer, Joseph Carson, be reassigned to Pit 14, commonly known as the baccarat pit, to deal blackjack to Mr. Hiresh.

8. Prior to commencing his gaming activity at Blackjack Table BJ 85, Mitri Hiresh requested the issuance of a $250,000 counter check on his approved casino credit account. At or about 1:10 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), Mitri Hiresh was issued counter check #1096004 in the amount of $250,000

Following the signing of said counter check, Mr. Hiresh received $250,000 in gaming chips.

9. At or about 1:14 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), Mr. Hiresh began to play blackjack at Table BJ 85. At this time, Respondent David Linnett was the casino shift manager; Anthony Carno was the relief pit boss assigned to Pit 14 and Nancy Foti was the relief floorperson assigned to Table BJ 85 located within Pit 14.

10. From at or about 1:14 a.m. until at or about 1:22 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), Mitri Hiresh played three rounds of blackjack at Table BJ 85.

11. Following the third round of blackjack referenced in paragraph 10 of this Count, supra, Mitri Hiresh requested the issuance of a second $250,000 counter check on his approved casino credit account. At or about 1:23 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), Mitri Hiresh was issued counter check #1096005 in the amount of $250,000. Following the signing of said counter check, Mr. Hiresh received $250,000 in gaming chips from dealer Joseph Carson.

12. From at or about 1:23 a.m. until at or about 1:30 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), Mitri Hiresh played three additional rounds of blackjack at Table BJ 85.

13. On four of the six rounds of blackjack played by Mitri Hiresh, as referenced in paragraphs 10 through 12, supra, Mr Hiresh wagered amounts which exceeded betting limits which had been established by TropWorld for Mr. Hiresh. Said betting limits are described in a memorandum dated October 20, 1988 from Emil Russell, Director of Casino Games Operations at TropWorld, to all Shift Managers, Assistants and Pit Bosses. A copy of the October 20, 1988 memorandum is attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibit "A".

14. At or about 1:30 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), a seventh round of Blackjack commenced at Table BJ 85, at which time Mitri Hiresh played four of the six spots on the blackjack table, wagering $20,000 on each spot.

15. At or before 1:30 a.m., Respondent Robert Binstein, the pit boss responsible for Pit 14 and Respondent Lisa Elizardo, the floorperson responsible for Blackjack Table BJ 85 within Pit 14, returned from relief breaks and replaced Mr. Carno and Ms. Foti, respectively, who had been working within Pit 14, as described in paragraph 9, supra. Mr. Binstein and Ms. Elizardo observed that Mr. Hiresh was wagering in excess of his designated betting limits.

16. At or about 1:31 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), play at Table BJ 85 within Pit 14 was stopped and Mr. Hiresh was apprised by Respondent Binstein and Respondent Linnett that he had been wagering over his betting limits and that he could no longer continue to do so. Mr. Hiresh became upset, threatened not to pay his outstanding counter checks and stated that he wanted his money back.

17. Respondent David Linnett then directed the dealer, Respondent Joseph Carson, to bring Mr. Hiresh's gaming chips into the center of Table BJ 85 in order to stack them and count them.

18. Respondent Joseph Carson complied with Respondent Linnett's instruction and stacked and counted Mr. Hiresh's gaming chips. Mr Hiresh's chips totalled $315,000, which consisted of three stacks of $100,000 and three loose $5,000 gaming chips. It was thereupon determined that Mr. Hiresh had lost $185,000 during the course of his gaming activity from 1:14 a.m. to 1:31 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), as described in paragraphs 9 through 16, supra.

19. Respondent Linnett then directed Respondent Carson to remove two stacks of grey gaming chips (totalling $200,000) from the table inventory of gaming chips for Table BJ 85 and to add them to Mr. Hiresh's gaming chips, thus making a total of $515,000. Respondent Carson was then directed by Respondent Linnett to place five stacks of gaming chips (totalling $500,000) into two racks and to give the two racks of gaming chips totalling $500,000 to Mr. Hiresh. The three loose $5,000 gaming chips were then returned to the table inventory of gaming chips for Table BJ 85 by Respondent Binstein.

20. Respondents Robert Binstein and Lisa Elizardo were present and witnessed the conduct described in paragraphs 17 through 19 supra, and took no action to protest or prevent the return of the $185,000 in gaming chips to Mitri Hiresh.

21. Respondent David Linnett then escorted Mitri Hiresh, along with the two racks of gaming chips totalling $500,000, to the casino cage in order for Mr. Hiresh to engage in a counter check redemption transaction.

22. Upon arrival at the casino cage, at 1:37 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), Mr. Hiresh presented the two racks of gaming chips totalling $500,000 to Casino Cage Shift Supervisor Jon Goodway for the purpose of redeeming his two (2) outstanding counter checks, #1096004 and #1096005, which totalled $500,000. Cage Shift Supervisor Goodway processed the redemption transaction for Mr. Hiresh at which time Mr. Hiresh's full $500,000 outstanding credit debt was recorded as paid and his credit account thereupon reflected a zero outstanding balance.

23. After redeeming his two (2) outstanding counter checks, as described in paragraphs 21 to 22, supra, Mr. Hiresh returned to the gaming tables at TropWorld where he engaged in further gaming activity until 4:00 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988).

24. In a written statement dated October 25, 1988, Respondent David Linnett indicated that he directed Respondent Carson to return the money which Mr. Hiresh had lost so that Mr. Hiresh could "start afresh" with the betting limits designated in the October 20, 1988 memorandum. A copy of Respondent David Linnett's statement is attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibit B.

25. Pursuant to the approved job compendium at TropWorld, a Casino Shift Manager is responsible for the efficient operation of all table games on a particular shift. The approved job compendium at TropWorld charges casino shift managers with knowledge of the Casino Control Act and its attendant regulations as well as TropWorld's internal controls, policies and procedures.

26. N.J.S.A. 5:12-99, which requires a casino licensee to submit to the Commission a description of its internal procedures and administrative and accounting controls, provides in pertinent part, as follows:

> a. Each casino licensee shall submit to the commission a description of its system of internal procedures and administrative and accounting controls...Each such submission shall contain both narrative and diagrammatic representations of the internal control system to be utilized by the casino, including, but not limited to:
>
> * * *
>
> (16) Procedures and rules governing the conduct of particular games and the responsibility of casino personnel in respect thereto;
>

27. N.J.S.A. 5:12-100(e) provides, in pertinent part, as follows:

> All gaming shall be conducted according to rules promulgated by the Commission. All wagers and pay-offs of winning wagers at table games shall be made according to rules promulgated by the Commission, which shall establish such minimum wagers and other limitations as may be necessary to assure the vitality of casino operations and fair odds to and maximum participation by casino patrons....

28. N.J.A.C. 19:47-2.3(c), which sets forth certain requirements for wagers in the game of Blackjack, provides, in pertinent part, as follows:

> Except as otherwise provided in these regulations, no wager shall be made, increased or withdrawn after the first card of the respective round has been dealt.

29. The conduct of Respondent David Linnett in returning $185,000 in gaming chips to Mitri Hiresh for losses incurred by Mr. Hiresh while engaging in gaming activity between 1:14 a.m. and 1:31 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), as described in paragraphs 10 through 19, supra, permitted Mr. Hiresh to withdraw his losing wagers after the respective blackjack rounds had been dealt during said period of time, in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-99a(16); N.J.S.A. 5:12-100(e); and N.J.A.C. 19:47-2.3(c).

30. The conduct of Respondent David Linnett in providing to Mr. Hiresh $185,000 in gaming chips representing Mr. Hiresh's losing wagers, constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-100(e), as this $185,000 represented a pay-off or reimbursement to Mr. Hiresh on his losing wagers and gave Mr. Hiresh an unfair advantage over other casino patrons who did not receive pay-offs or reimbursements of their losing wagers.

31. N.J.S.A. 5:12-101, which sets forth certain requirements for the extension of credit by casino licensees, states in pertinent part, as follows:

> a. Except as otherwise provided in this section, no casino licensee or any person licensed under this act, and no person acting on behalf of or under any arrangement with a casino licensee or other person licensed under this act, shall:
>
> (1) Cash any check, make any loan, or otherwise provide or allow to any person any credit or advance of anything of value or which represents value to enable any person to take part in gaming activity as a player;
>
> (2) Release or discharge any debt, either in whole or in part, or make any loan which represents any losses incurred by any player in gaming activity, without maintaining a written record thereof in accordance with the rules of the commission.

c. ...the drawer of the check may redeem the check by exchanging cash or chips in an amount equal to the amount for which the check is drawn; or he may redeem the check in part by exchanging cash or chips and another check which meets the requirements of subsection b. of this section for the difference between the original check and the cash or chips tendered; or he may issue one check which meets the requirements of subsection b. of this section in an amount sufficient to redeem two or more checks drawn to the order of the casino licensee.

32. The conduct of Respondent David Linnett in returning $185,000 in gaming chips to Mitri Hiresh for losses incurred by Mr. Hiresh while engaging in gaming activity between 1:14 a.m. and 1:31 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), as described in paragraphs 10 through 18, supra, constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101a(1) as this $185,000 represented a loan or an advance of something of value or which represents value which enabled Mr. Hiresh to take part in gaming activity as a player.

33. The conduct of Respondent David Linnett, in providing $185,000 in gaming chips to Mr. Hiresh from the table inventory of gaming chips for Table BJ 85 for losses Mr. Hiresh incurred as a result of engaging in gaming activity between 1:14 a.m. and 1:31 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), as described in paragraphs 10 through 18, supra, constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101a(2) as this $185,000 represented a loan for losses incurred by Mr. Hiresh in gaming activity and/or an unlawful release or discharge of a portion of Mr. Hiresh's $500,000 casino credit debt owing to TropWorld prior to a determination that said credit debt was uncollectible and without maintaining a written record in accordance with the rules of the Commission.

34. The conduct of Respondent David Linnett, in providing $185,000 in gaming chips to Mr. Hiresh from the table inventory of gaming chips for Table BJ 85 for losses incurred by Mr. Hiresh while engaging in gaming activity between 1:14 a.m. and 1:31 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), as described in paragraphs 10 through 18, supra, constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101c, as Mr. Hiresh utilized the $185,000 in gaming chips from the table inventory of Blackjack Table BJ 85 to redeem his counter checks and thus actually reimbursed TropWorld only $315,000, an amount less than the amount of the counter checks redeemed.

35. N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.20(a), which sets forth certain requirements for the control and accountability of gaming chips maintained within the table inventory of each gaming table, states:

> (a) Whenever a gaming table in a casino is opened for gaming, operations shall commence with an amount of gaming chips, coins and plaques to be known as the "table inventory" and no casino shall cause or permit gaming chips, coins or plaques to be added to or removed from such table inventory during the gaming day except:
>
> 1. In exchange for cash, or issuance copies of Counter Checks presented by casino patrons in conformity with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.18 and 1.25;

2. In payment of winning wagers and collection of losing wagers made at such gaming table;

3. In exchange for gaming chips or plaques received from a patron having an equal aggregate face value; and

4. In conformity with the Fill and Credit Slip procedures described in N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.22 and 1.23.

36. At or about 1:31 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), gaming chips totalling $185,000 maintained within the table inventory of gaming chips for Table BJ 85 were removed from said table inventory and given to patron Mitri Hiresh, as described in paragraphs 17 through 19, supra, without patron Mitri Hiresh exchanging an equal value of cash or gaming chips or presenting a properly executed issuance copy of a Counter Check.

37. The conduct of Respondent David Linnett, in removing $185,000 in gaming chips from the table inventory of Table BJ 85 and providing said gaming chips to Mr. Hiresh for losses he incurred while engaging in gaming activity between 1:14 a.m. and 1:31 a.m. on October 21, 1988 (gaming day October 20, 1988), as described in paragraphs 10 through 18, supra, constitutes a violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.20(a).

38. On January 27, 1989, a sworn investigative interview of Respondent Robert Binstein was conducted. A copy of the transcript of this January 27, 1989 interview is attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibit C.

39. On February 2, 1989, a sworn investigative interview of Respondent Lisa Elizardo was conducted. A copy of the transcript of this February 2, 1989 interview is attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibit D.

40. On February 9, 1989, a sworn investigative interview of Respondent Joseph Carson was conducted. A copy of the transcript of the February 9, 1989 interview is attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibit E.

41. On February 10, 1989, a sworn investigative interview of Respondent David Linnett was conducted. A copy of the transcript of the February 10, 1989 interview is attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibit F.

IT IS THEREFORE AGREED AND STIPULATED by and between the parties that:

1. The facts stated herein are true and did in fact occur;

2. Respondent David Linnett admits to violations of N.J.S.A. 5:12-99(a)(16); N.J.S.A. 5:12-100(e); N.J.A.C. 19:47-2.3(c); N.J.S.A. 5:12-101a(1) and (2); N.J.S.A. 5:12-101c; and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.20(a);

3. In consideration of the foregoing violations by Respondent David Linnett, the parties agree that the following penalties be imposed upon Respondent Linnett:

a. A civil penalty in the amount of $4,000;

b. A formal letter of reprimand; and

c. Respondent Linnett shall be suspended for a total of thirty (30) working days.

4. The parties agree that such penalties are just and equitable in accordance with the criteria set forth at N.J.S.A.

5:12-130 and shall be in full and final settlement of the allegations pertaining to Respondent David Linnett set forth in the Division's complaint; and

Record Closed: June 26, 1990 Decided: July 19, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Toni Arabia, applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the renewal of a casino employee license (craps dealer), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90. The respondent, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), opposed the renewal of the license by reason of its contention that the petitioner had committed a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), by means of section 86g, and therefore, she lacked the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference. The petitioner contended that she was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 90h.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed with the Commission an application for the renewal of a casino employee license so she could be employed as a craps dealer at Trump's Castle Hotel and Casino. By letter to the Commission, dated August 3, 1989, the Division objected to the petitioner's application for licensure as a craps dealer, asserting that the petitioner had committed the offenses of distribution of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5 and conspiracy to distribute a controlled dangerous substance in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2, which are disqualifying offenses under section 86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by section 86g. The Division also objected pursuant to section 89(b)2. Based upon the report, the Commission notified the petitioner on September 11, 1989, that there was a "substantial possibility" that her application would be denied and that she had the right to a hearing. By application dated September 20, 1989, which was received by the Commission on September 21, 1989, the petitioner requested a hearing. On September 22, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on October 5, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before me on February 8, 1990. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, distribution of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana), and N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2, conspiracy to distribute a controlled dangerous substance.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated within section 90b.

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was held on June 26, 1990, at the Municipal Courtroom, Egg Harbor Township Municipal Building, Bargaintown, New Jersey, after which the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

On April 19, 1988, an informant introduced New Jersey State Police Undercover Detective William F. Carey as a prospective buyer of marijuana to the petitioner, Toni Arabia. This occurred in Maynard's Bar in Margate. Detective Carey purchased Ms. Arabia a drink, and they had a brief conversation. During this conversation, Ms. Arabia pointed to two individuals, James Palladinetti and Michelle Perlstein, and indicated that they were her source for marijuana. As Mr. Palladinetti and Ms. Perlstein were leaving the bar, Ms. Arabia introduced them to Detective Carey as "her main people for weed." Mr. Palladinetti told the detective that he could contact him through Ms. Arabia "for anything." After the couple departed, Ms. Arabia told Detective Carey to call her if he wanted anything and if Jim and Michelle were "dry," she would "check around" for him. Ms. Arabia gave Detective Carey her telephone number and Detective Carey departed.

On April 21, 1988, Detective Carey telephoned the petitioner regarding the purchase of one ounce of marijuana. Ms. Arabia indicated that she would call Jim and Michelle and check on the price. Later, Ms. Arabia telephoned Detective Carey and told him that the price for one ounce of marijuana was $140 and the price for one ounce of Thai bud was $180. Detective Carey asked to purchase one ounce of marijuana, and Ms. Arabia indicated she would call back with the details. Ms. Arabia later telephoned Detective Carey and told him to meet her and Michelle at the Ventnor Shopping Plaza.

Michelle picked up Ms. Arabia at her house and drove to the shopping center. While in the car, Michelle gave Ms. Arabia what later tested to be just under one ounce (27.8 grams) of marijuana (R-2). At the shopping center, Ms. Arabia exited Michelle's vehicle and entered Detective Carey's vehicle. She gave the detective the marijuana, and he gave her $140. Detective Carey asked Ms. Arabia if she knew where he could obtain some cocaine; however, Ms. Arabia knew nothing about cocaine and advised Detective Carey to talk to Michelle. Ms. Arabia motioned for Michelle to join them, which she did.

Detective Carey asked Michelle if she knew where he could obtain some cocaine. Michelle indicated that they had just returned from Florida and had some connections for cocaine, but that she would have to talk to Jim. As no one had a pen, Michelle told Detective Carey to call Ms. Arabia in order to obtain her telephone number to call and discuss the purchase of cocaine.

On April 29, 1988, Detective Carey telephoned Ms. Arabia and obtained Michelle's telephone number. Detective Carey contacted Jim and then proceeded to Jim's apartment. When Detective Carey arrived, he saw approximately one pound of marijuana on a table which Jim was "breaking down" and packaging into one ounce containers. Detective Carey purchased one ounce of marijuana which later tested positive as being just over one ounce (30.3 grams) of marijuana (R-3).

On June 2, 1988, the petitioner was telephoned by Detective Carey who identified himself as a police officer and requested Ms. Arabia to turn herself in for processing. Ms. Arabia then proceeded to the State Police office in Atlantic City, was arrested and processed. At that time, she indicated that she had learned that Detective Carey was a police officer and she was maintaining a "low profile." She also indicated that she would cooperate with the police. She was then charged with the sale of one ounce of marijuana in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, and was then released on her own recognizance (J-1).

The petitioner is now 23 years old and lives with her parents. April 19, 1988, was her twenty-first birthday. As such, she was celebrating both her birthday and her attainment of the legal drinking age. As such, the petitioner was slightly intoxicated. When introduced to Detective Carey, he asked her if she knew where he could buy some "pot." She did not sell marijuana, but she knew Jim and Michelle did. Ms. Arabia knew it was wrong to sell drugs, but she thought she was doing everybody a favor by introducing them to each other. The petitioner did not receive any compensation for her part in the transaction. While employed in the casino industry, the petitioner attended parties held by casino employees where marijuana was used, and she did experiment with it at that time, however, she has not used or possessed marijuana since her arrest in 1988.

The petitioner graduated from Holy Spirit High School in 1985. While in school, she worked at a movie theater and then at Sir Speedy Printers. Upon graduation from high school, she obtained her casino employee license. She was hired as a craps dealer at Trump's Castle where she worked for four years. She was a good employee and was only disciplined once for violating the attendance call-in procedures.

Since her arrest, she successfully completed a Pretrial Intervention Program, and the charges were dismissed. She also completed a three-month manicuring course at a vocational school and has received a license as a manicurist. She now works in a family-run hair styling salon. She plans to return to school and study cosmetology.

The petitioner submitted four letters of recommendation in her behalf. The first, written by a retired police officer, Sergeant Edward Jones, provides that "Toni is a very honest and caring person. She is also dependable and hard working" (P-1).

The second written by Anthony R. Catrambone provides:

> . . . I have known the Arabia family for approximately twenty years. I have found Mr. and Mrs. Arabia to be hard working, law abiding and responsible people and the apple doesn't fall too far from the tree when it comes to their daughter Toni.
>
> I have watched Toni grow up over the years and develop into a fine young woman. I have always felt that she was a responsible person and never had to worry when she and my daughter went out. I also have felt comfortable whenever Toni babysat for my granddaughter and I am a very protective family man. [P-2]

The third letter, written by her father, describes Toni as a "responsible and efficient employee." He also states that she has disassociated herself from her former drug connections. Her father describes this incident as an isolated incident [P-3]

Finally, John Sisinni, the petitioner's former supervisor at Trump's Castle, wrote that the petitioner always received excellent evaluations as a craps dealer. She was always honest and trustworthy and was an excellent employee. [P-5]

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the petitioner's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident and her current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess her credibility. Initially, her position in this matter must be recognized. As the petitoner and the applicant for a casino employee license, she has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the petitioner's demeanor, the plausibility of her testimony, the manner in which she participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appeared that the petitioner testified truthfully in every regard. She candidly admitted her misconduct and described in detail, experiencing great humiliation, the underlying circumstances. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the petitioner's testimony in all respects. I am also persuaded that her misconduct was in part, due to immaturity.

DISCUSSION

The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, distribution of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) and a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2, conspiracy to distribute a controlled dangerous substance, which constitutes a violation of section 86c(1), and that, accordingly, she is disqualified from continued licensure.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g

Section 86g provides that an applicant will be disqualified from licensure because of the commission of any action which would constitute an offense under section 86c, even if there has not been a prosecution for such conduct. Section 86c(1) mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner's sale of marijuana to an undercover detective and her participation in helping arrange for another sale of marijuana constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5 and N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2, which under the circumstances disqualifies the petitioner from continued licensure.

N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, Manufacturing, distributing or dispensing, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Except as authorized by P.L. 1970, c.226 (C. 24:21-1 et seq), it shall be unlawful for any person knowingly or purposely:
>
>
> . . . .
>
> b. Any person who violates subsection a. with respect to:
>
> . . . .
>
> (11) Marijuana in a quantity of one ounce or more but less than five pounds including any adulterants and dilutants, or hashish in a quantity of five grams or more but less than one pound including any adulterants and dilutants, is guilty of a crime of the third degree except that, notwithstanding the provisions of subsection b. of N.J.S. 2C:43-3, a fine of up to $15,000.00 may be imposed;
> (12) Marijuana in a quantity of less than one ounce including any adulterants and dilutants, or hashish in a quantity of less than five grams including any adulterants and dilutants, is guilty of a crime of the fourth degree;

In State v. Weissman, 73 N.J. Super 274 (App. Div. 1962), the court held that the passing of marijuana and money between the defendant and the person who allegedly received marijuana from the defendant for purpose of selling marijuana to third persons as defendant's agent constituted "sale" within prohibitions of Uniform Narcotic Drug Law. Further, in State v. Metcalf, 168 N.J. Super. 375, 381 (App. Div. 1979), the court stated:

> Although defendant in the instant case did not receive any money from the drug transaction, a pecuniary interest is not a prerequisite for one to be considered an aider or abettor. The proofs at trial showed that defendant was involved in two successive attempts to obtain drugs for the undercover agent. The judge's determination that defendant was an agent for both the buyer and seller of the pills is amply supported by the evidence.

The court therefore affirmed the defendant's conviction of unlawfully distributing a controlled dangerous substance.

The Division established, and the petitioner admitted during her testimony, that she knowingly delivered marijuana to Detective Carey on behalf of Michelle Perlstein. This marijuana weighed just under one ounce. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(12), the offense constitutes a crime of the fourth degree.[1]

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has not established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offense committed by the petitioner on April 21, 1988 is a disqualifying offense under sections 86c(1) and 86g.

N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2 Conspiracy, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Definition of conspiracy. A person is guilty of conspiracy with another person or persons to commit a crime if with the purpose of promoting or facilitating its commission he:
>
> (1) Agrees with such other person or persons that they or one or more of them will engage in conduct which constitutes such crime or an attempt or solicitation to commit such crime; or
>
> (2) Agrees to aid such other person or persons in the planning or commission of such crime or of an attempt or solicitation to commit such crime.
>
> d. Overt act. No person may be convicted of conspiracy to commit a crime other than a crime of the first or second degree or distribution or possession with intent to distribute a controlled dangerous substance as defined under the "New Jersey Controlled Dangerous Substances Act," P.L. 1970, c.226 (C. 24:21-1 et seq.), unless an overt act in pursuance of such conspiracy is proved to have been done by him or by a person with whom he conspired.

The Division established that when asked about how to purchase cocaine, the petitioner summoned Michelle Perlstein to the car and thus facilitated a prospective sale of cocaine. Thereafter, knowing the parties were attempting to consummate a a sale of cocaine, she provided the telephone number of Michelle Perlstein to the detective thus enabling the detective to contact Ms. Perlstein. As a result of providing this telephone number, the detective was able to purchase just over one ounce of marijuana. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(3), the conspiracy to distribute cocaine is at a minimum a crime of the third degree. I further CONCLUDE that the petitioner's actions on April 21, 1988, aided and abetted the sale of just over one ounce of marijuana. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:2-6 and N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a. I further CONCLUDE that pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(11), the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offense committed by the petitioner is a disqualifying offense under sections 86c(1) and 86g. The petitioner is therefore disqualified from licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h

An applicant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating her rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
4. The date of the offense or conduct;
5. The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;
6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric > treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of person who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Ms. Arabia is a casino licensee and was employed as a craps dealer. As such, she does have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities and does come in contact with casino patrons.

Second, the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, distribution of a controlled dangerous substance, over a one week period while employed in the casino industry. Because the offense is a listed disqualifier under section 86c(1), it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in its appropriate context. The petitioner brought together parties so they could consummate a drug transaction. She thereafter acted as the intermediary to deliver the drugs and transfer the money. Afterwards, she again acted as an intermediary to enable the parties to discuss the prospective sale of cocaine. While this later action did not result in the sale of cocaine, it did result in the sale of marijuana. Such illicit drug activities are extremely serious and cannot be condoned in the casino industry.

Fourth, the petitioner's misconduct occurred in April 1988, when it ceased.

Fifth, the petitioner was 21 years old at the time of the offense. I believe immaturity was a factor in this case.

Sixth, the petitioner's misconduct was isolated in nature. She has not committed any other violations of the criminal laws.

Seventh, the petitioner thought she was just doing a favor for all the parties involved. She received no pecuniary or other benefit from the transaction. The day of the initial contact was her birthday and she was slightly intoxicated.

Eighth, the petitioner successfully completed her Pretrial Intervention Program. She has a good work record, and has basically led a law abiding life. She was very candid, and she is remorseful. She has not used marijuana since her arrest She attended vocational school and has been licensed as a manicurist. She intends to return to school to study cosmetology. While the petitioner has begun her journey towards rehabilitation, the offense is only two years old, and the charges were dismissed only two months ago (P-4). Insufficient time has passed to enable the petitioner to establish her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not established, by clear and convincing evidence, her rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

(C) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Ms. Arabia was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, her good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Id. at 296.

It is readily apparent that the petitioner's misconduct was aberrant and that she is otherwise a person of good character, honesty and integrity. The misconduct did not directly involve her licensed employment, and the underlying circumstances somewhat mitigated the seriousness of the misconduct. In addition, the petitioner has fully accepted responsibility for her misconduct, regained control over her behavior, performed admirably within the personal care and beauty industry during the past two years, and has become a respected member of her community. Accordingly, the petitioner presents no risk to the public nor to the integrity of the gaming industry in this State. An examination of the whole person clearly and convincingly establishes that Ms. Arabia is now a person of good character, honesty and integrity, and would be entirely suitable for licensure in this State if it were not for her disqualifying conduct. See, Boardwalk Regency Corp.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, her good character, honesty and integrity under section 90b.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the application of Toni Arabia for the renewal of a casino employee license be DENIED.

RECORD CLOSED: AUGUST 23, 1990 DECIDED: AUGUST 31, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) objecting to the petitioner continuing to hold a casino service industry license pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-92 of the Casino Control Act (hereinafter referred to as the Act). The Division alleges that Charles C. Bakely (hereinafter referred to as Charles) has such an interest in the company so as to disqualify it from licensure and that the company is not qualified to hold a casino service industry license due to the company's employment of Charles knowing that he was otherwise disqualified due to the commission of a Section 86(c)1 disqualifying offense.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its letter of objection with the Commission on May 10, 1990. Petitioner requested a hearing on June 25, 1990 and on June 29, 1990 the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard on an expedited basis pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-9.4. A prehearing conference was conducted on July 25, 1990 before Joseph E. Kane, ALJ followed by a hearing which was held on July 31, 1990. The record was closed on August 23, 1990.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this tribunal are as follows:

A. Whether petitioner has sufficiently separated itself from Charles C. Bakely, Sr. in order that petitioner may prove its qualifications under the provisions of the Casino Control Act in order to permit the petitioner to do business with the casino industry.

B. Whether petitioner should be disqualified from licensure because petitioner employed the services of Charles C. Bakely, Sr. with full knowledge of his criminal activities.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon testimony presented and documents proffered at the hearing, the following constitutes FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

Petitioner, Bakely Signs, Inc. is owned and operated by Regina M. Bakely (hereinafter referred to as Gina). Gina is a 28 year old single woman, with one child, who graduated from Brandywine College. Shortly thereafter, Gina was married and began to work for her father-in-law's company Dolequest Medical Supplies. She separated from her husband in or about November 1986 and later purchased a home in 1987.

Gina made it known to her parents and friends that she wanted to continue with a career and re-enter the job market.

Gina's father, Charles, recommended that she contact Mr. John Roberts who was the manager of Northern Outdoor Advertising, (Northern) a company with offices in Atlantic City, New Jersey and headquarters located in North Carolina. Northern was engaged in the business of erecting and selling billboard advertising. Northern had acquired a much smaller company based only in Atlantic City known as Electro Signs (hereinafter referred to as Electro). Electro unlike Northern, dealt in smaller signs, neon signs and displays. The former owners of Electro, pursuant to a buy-out agreement relieving Electro and Mr. Roberts, who was more concerned with the running and possible sale of Northern, needed someone to take over the day-to-day operations of Electro.

Charles was the owner and operator of Andrew Construction Company (hereinafter referred to as Andrew) which specialized in heavy duty erection construction, such as iron work and precast concrete. Andrew had erected billboards for Northern and through this association, Charles introduced his daughter to John Roberts. After several meetings, it was clear to Gina that Mr. Roberts was looking for someone he could groom to take over Electro. After much consideration and a brief trial work period, Gina agreed to accept the challenge and began employment in December of 1988.

Gina quickly became a jack of all trades managing Electro and assisting in the daily business affairs of Northern since Mr. Roberts was often absent from the office. Gina quickly learned that Northern wanted to divest itself of its Atlantic City subsidiary and if that event occurred, Northern would most likely divest itself of Electro or merely allow it to go out of business. Realizing that Electro was the unwanted stepchild of Northern, Gina became concerned that all the effort she had put into Electro to build the company would be wasted and she would be out of a job. Gina had spent countless overtime hours learning and operating the business of Electro. As set forth above, Gina was a jack of all trades since not only was she selling the product, preparing bid specifications and negotiating with businesses and casinos, but she often donned a hardhat to climb up scaffolding, sides of buildings and to enter upon casino hotel roofs in order to estimate the job. By the time Northern was considering divesting itself of or closing down Electro, Electro was Regina (Gina) Bakely.

Contemporaneous with the discussions to sell Northern and to divest Electro from Northern, the Casino Control Commission notified Electro that due to the amount of business Electro was conducting with the casinos, it would have to qualify for a service industry license. At this time, the Bakely family Gina, Regina Bakely, her mother, (hereinafter referred to as Regina) and Charles were considering a way for Regina to purchase Electro. Charles was concerned for the financial health of his company, Andrew, due to the slump in the construction business. He wanted his wife and daughter to be financially secure in the event Andrew went bankrupt. Gina testified that Regina wanted to be involved in a business of her own apart from her husband since her family was now grown and away from the home. The decision to buy Electro from Northern was made and negotiations for the transfer began in the summer of 1989.

Gina, in the summer of 1989, was not sure whose name should be listed as qualifiers for Electro with the Casino Control Commission because of the pending transfer. She listed herself as Vice President, Charles as General Manager, Pat Waters as the Bookkeeper and Joe Tattie as Foreman. The Division now draws into question Charles' involvement in the company since he was listed as General Manager and as more fully set forth below, he assisted with some of the jobs performed by Electro.

Gina had sales experience with the Hyatt Corporation and later with her father-in-law's company, Dolequest Medical Supply. In this latter position, which she describes as first assistant to her father-in-law who was the head of the company, she sold products, re-designed and opened stores and assisted with marketing. Her sales, marketing and organization skills could thus be carried over into the Electro business, however, she did not anticipate the adverse reaction she would receive from the male employees nor was she ready to climb buildings and scaffolding in order to bid jobs. Charles removed trash and debris from Electro's shop, organizing the facilities and the workers. He also taught his daughter how to climb onto roofs and scaffolding, to measure and to estimate and anticipate the heavy machinery needed for outdoor neon signs. He never at any time negotiated directly or indirectly with the casinos. Gina testified that he did not negotiate, nor did he know how to, since heavy equipment and not contracting was his speciality. All dealings with the casinos were conducted by Gina and Pat Waters. Charles had no involvement with the books of Electro or with the application to qualify as a service industry licensee. His involvement with Electro was to teach his daughter skills she needed to manage men, estimate jobs and determine when and what type of heavy equipment or cranes should be utilized.

The purchase of Electro from Northern was in the form of a buyout costing $200,000.00 financed with no money down to be paid monthly over a four year period. Regina owns 100% of the stock in Bakely Signs t/a Electro. Neither Gina or Charles own any stock in the corporation. The purchase price was guaranteed by Charles and Regina placing as collateral land which they owned jointly in Westville, New Jersey. This real estate stood as security for receivables and has been discharged as of the date of the hearing according to Gina. A post hearing submission (Exhibits P-1 thru P-3 would indicate that Charles and Regina are in the process of converting this land into the name of Regina only.

After the legal metamorphosis changed Electro into Bakely Signs t/a Electro, Charles continued to provide support to his daughter by continuing to assist her with directing of the men, teaching her how to measure large buildings and assisting with specifications when heavy equipment such as cranes were needed. Gradually Gina assumed greater all around responsibility for Electro. She wanted to have complete control and supervision over all aspects of the company and to do so she needed to acquaint herself with aspects of the company's operation which only her father could teach her. She wanted direct involvement with every aspect of the business even if it meant climbing scaffolding in a 28 story building to supervise her men. As Gina learned this aspect of the business, her father's role began to decrease. Charles was listed by Gina as one of the qualifiers in the position of "General Manager". This was a title that he was given by John Roberts when Charles performed work for Northern. His functions were more in the nature of a subcontractor, however, the title of General Manager with Northern as well as Electro remained with him. Gina emphasized that only she or Pat Waters, the bookkeeper were the only two individuals in the company that ever had dealings with the casino industry when Electro was owned by Northern and when Electro was owned by Bakely Signs.

On April 11, 1990 Charles was convicted of a violation of 29 U.S.C. 186(a)(2), the Taft-Hartley Act. Gina, her brothers, or her grandparents were not aware of the pending criminal charges. Suspecting for a period of time that something was bothering her father, Gina confronted him on or about May 1, 1990 at which time he revealed the circumstances surrounding the criminal charges. Within one week, Charles was no longer a salaried employee of Electro and was no longer involved directly or indirectly with the running of the business.

Since commencing work with Electro, Gina has through her own perseverance and talents together with the assistance of her father evolved into a knowledgeable, assertive businesswoman who has a first hand knowledge of all aspects of Electro. Gina throughout the hearing expressed appreciation for the assistance her father has given her in the past, nevertheless, she realizes that she can no longer have any dealings with him concerning Electro no matter how trivial. Charles also understands that in order for Bakely signs to continue operations with the casinos he cannot have so much as a conversation with his daughter or even answer a question for her concerning Electro's business. Gina has now evolved to the point where she no longer needs her father's assistance.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

The two issues presented by this matter are whether Charles was so involved with Electro so as to disqualify Bakely Signs from licensure and whether Bakely has now sufficiently distanced itself from Charles in order to qualify for continued licensure.

Bakely Signs seeks to retain its non-gaming casino service industry license. Pursuant to Section 92 of the Act such entities must be licensed in accordance with the rules of the Casino Control Commission. Under N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3(c) each applicant for license must establish by clear and convincing evidence that it possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure. Those whose qualifications must be established as a prerequisite to licensure of the enterprise pursuant to Section 92(c) of the Act (qualifiers) are identified in N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.4(a)(2). These include the enterprise and each owner holding a beneficial interest in excess of five percent as well as each director of the enterprise and each officer significantly involved in the conduct of business with a casino licensee. Pursuant to Section 92(d) of the Act a non-gaming casino service industry license may be denied to any applicant who is disqualified in accordance with the criteria set forth in Section 86 of the Act.

DOES BAKELY SIGNS POSSESS THE REQUISITE GOOD CHARACTER, HONESTY AND INTEGRITY REQUIRED FOR LICENSURE.

Electro had business dealings with the casino industry prior to it evolving into Bakely Signs t/a Electro. The requirement for licensure appears to have been initiated around April of 1989 with the sale of Electro occurring in the summer of that year. During this time period and continuing until around the first of May, Charles' role in the enterprise appeared to be that of a subcontractor and consultant to his daughter. As time passed, his involvement decreased. Within one week of learning of her father's difficulties with the criminal justice system, Gina no longer employed or consulted with her father.

Considering that Gina had no knowledge of her father's criminal activity and further considering that she immediately took steps to distance him from the company after learning of his involvement, I FIND that petitioner has met its burden to demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that it possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure under Section 92 of the Act.

HAS BAKELY SIGNS SUFFICIENTLY DISTANCED ITSELF FROM CHARLES C. BAKELY IN ORDER TO QUALIFY FOR CONTINUING LICENSURE.

The factual testimony presented during the course of the hearing stood unrefuted by both parties. Thus, the issue is whether those facts as presented demonstrate that Charles Bakely will have no contact whatsoever direct or indirect with Bakely Signs. Gina's and Charles' affirmation that they would have no contact with each other regarding Bakely Signs including not so much as a question answered over dinner, is at first difficult to believe and to accept due to the family relationship. Nevertheless, having had an opportunity to observe the demeanor of Gina, I FIND her testimony to be credible and her vow not to involve her father in the affairs of Bakely Signs to be believable. Gina was candid in her admiration and love for her father, however, she was equally committed to the viability and success of Bakely Signs and if ceasing all business contact with her father was necessary, this was a business decision she seemed willing and able to abide by. This, together with evidence of Charles' ever decreasing role in the company leads inevitably to the conclusion that Charles has and will continue to remain apart from any of the business decisions or operations of Bakely Signs t/a Electro Signs. I FIND accordingly and HEREBY HOLD that petitioner does possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required of a casino service industry licensee pursuant to Section 92 of the Act.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The New Jersey Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) alleging that respondent John E. Ball committed criminal acts which disqualify him from holding a casino hotel employee registration. The Division alleges that respondent's conviction for Aggravated Assault, N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(1), is a disqualifying offense for his continued registration in the casino industry pursuant to Section 86c(1) of the Casino Control Act (the Act).

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on April 25, 1990 for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 54:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on July 31, 1990 followed by a plenary hearing which was held on October 2, 1990 at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The hearing record was considered closed on October 2, 1990.

ISSUES

The issues to be resolved by this administrative tribunal are as follows:

A. Whether respondent was convicted of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(1), Aggravated Assault?

B. Whether respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 91d of the Casino Control Act?

C. If respondent fails to demonstrate rehabilitation under section 91d, whether he should be permitted to otherwise retain his casino employee registration through the extraordinary relief of waiver as permitted by section 91e of the Act?

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the testimony and documents proffered at the hearing, and having given fair weight thereto, I FIND the following FACTS in this matter:

Respondent is presently 28 years of age, married and living with his wife and her minor child. Respondent is the father of eight (8) children by four (4) different mothers for which he is responsible for child support payments in the amount of $170 per week. He is presently employed by the Sands Hotel and Casino (Sands) as a banquet supervisor under his casino hotel employee registration where his gross pay is approximately $300 per week. He also maintains a second job with the Amoco Service Station on Absecon Boulevard, Route 30, Atlantic City, between the hours of 11:00 p.m. until 7:00 a.m. five (5) days per week where his gross pay is approximately $250 per week. His wife is gainfully employed at the Trump Castle Hotel and Casino as a security person where she averages approximately $250 per week.

On June 1, 1986, respondent took a kitchen knife from his mother's home and proceeded to drive his pick-up truck to the Belle Plain State Forest, Dennis Township, Cape May County. Respondent expected to see his ex-paramour, Patricia Holland, there on a picnic outing with her friends. Ms. Holland, who is the mother of three of respondent's children, had recently broken off a six year relationship with respondent. When respondent left his mother's house with the kitchen knife, he was sober and had not consumed any alcoholic beverage.

Respondent asserted he went to the Belle Plain State Forest looking for Ms. Holland because he believed she would be with her boyfriend. When he located Ms. Holland at the park he ran up to her and commenced stabbing her with the kitchen knife. She attempted to run from him, but he caught up with her and continued to stab her. Respondent then ran from the scene, dropping the knife on a dirt path, and escaped in his pick-up truck. Respondent was subsequently arrested by a Park Ranger who had followed respondent's vehicle to Woodbine, New Jersey. Thereafter, respondent made a full and complete statement admitting to seeking out and stabbing Ms. Holland. In the meantime, Ms. Holland was transported to Burdette Tomlin Hospital, Cape May Courthouse, New Jersey, where she was admitted for emergency surgery for the stab wounds inflicted upon her by respondent. (P-2) Ms. Holland subsequently recovered.

On August 6, 1986, the Cape May County Grand Jury indicted respondent, Indictment 86-08-0204-I, for Aggravated Assault, N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(1), and Possession of a Weapon for Unlawful Purpose, N.J.S.A. 2C:39-4(d). (P-4) On September 8, 1986, respondent retracted his plea of not guilty to both counts of the indictment. On September 29, 1986, respondent was sentenced to seven (7) years in the New Jersey State Prison on Count One of the Indictment and three (3) years on Count two, to run concurrent with Count One. The Court also imposed a penalty against respondent in the amount of $60 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (VCCB). (P-5).

Respondent served 19 months of his sentence after which he was paroled on April 5, 1988. His parole is to expire on October 24, 1991. The conditions for his release under parole include, among other things; regular attendance at Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) for more than one year (he does not now attend A.A. meetings), a urine specimen once per month screening for alcohol and controlled dangerous substance (CDS) and, steady and regular employment.

Respondent reported one prior arrest which occurred on June 20, 1984. He was charged with simple assault, however, the matter was dismissed (P-1).

Respondent contends that his former assaultive behavior was attributable to alcohol and drugs. Since his release from prison he is no longer violent nor does he engage in fighting or other aggressive behavior. His activities while in prison included, among other things, participation with A.A., weight lifting, arts and crafts and Bible study.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) establishes that licensure and registration under the Act are revocable priviliges which are "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." Section 129(1) of the Act provides for the revocation of or other sanction against the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this Act which would disqualify such person from holding his license." The Division contends that the respondent's criminal misconduct constitutes a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), and therefore, he cannot continue to hold a license or registration.

I. Disqualification Under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1)

Section 86c(1) of the Act mandates that a person who has been convicted of any one or more of the enumerated offenses therein under Title 2C of the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice shall be disqualified from holding a casino employee license or a casino hotel employee registration. It is uncontested that respondent was convicted of the crime of Aggravated Assault, in the third degree, N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b. It is further uncontested that respondent was sentenced to serve seven (7) years for this offense in a New Jersey State Prison.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Division has met its burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that respondent committed a disqualifying offense pursuant to section 86c(1) of the Act.

Accordingly, I FIND and CONCLUDE that such disqualifying offense warrants the revocation of respondent's casino hotel employee registration.

II. Rehabilitation Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d

A current registrant faced with the existence of one or more section 86 disqualifications in a disciplinary proceeding has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against continued registration by affirmatively demonstrating his rehabilitation, pursuant to section 91d of the Act. This statute sets forth eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination for rehabilitation is to be made. Section 91d of the Act provides as follows:

> (1) The nature and duties of the registrant's position;
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
> (4) The date of the offense or conduct;
> (5) The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;
> (6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
> (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision.

(1) Respondent is currently employed by the Sands as a banquet supervisor under his casino hotel employee registration. Respondent comes into contact with casino patrons in the performance of his duties as banquet supervisor. He wishes to retain his registration and continue in this type of employment.

(2) and (3) The offense committed by respondent was serious and could have resulted in the death of his victim. Respondent knowingly removed a kitchen utility knife from his mother's home and purposely drove his pick-up truck to a location he knew his former paramour (and mother of three of his children) could be found, with the intent to inflict serious bodily harm to her. Respondent, unprovoked, repeatedly stabbed his victim, Ms. Holland, and then fled the scene. He admitted he was not under the influence of alcohol when he left his mother's house with the knife.

(4) and (5) The offense of Aggravated Assault was committed on June 1, 1986 when respondent was 24 years of age.

(6) Respondent had one prior arrest for simple assault, which was dismissed. The offense of Aggravated Assault committed on June 1, 1986 is the only conviction on respondent's record.

(7) There were no social conditions which contributed to respondent's conduct.

(8) Respondent was sentenced to serve seven (7) years in prison for the offense of Aggravated Assault with a three (3) year concurrent sentence for the offense of possession of a weapon for unlawful purpose. While in prison, respondent participated in its A.A. program and Bible study, among other things. Respondent was granted parole after serving only 19 months of his 84 month sentence. He remains under parole supervison for another year, which will terminate on October 24, 1991.

Having carefully considered all of the factors in N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d, and having given fair weight thereto, I am not persuaded that respondent has met his statutory burden of establishing his rehabilitation. He has not, nor will he complete his Court ordered probation period until October 24, 1991. In addition, by his own admission, respondent has not been attending A.A. meetings where he avers that it was alcohol and CDS which caused his assaultive behavior. It would appear he needs the support of A.A. and/or N.A. to continue his recovery from his addictive behavior.

Respondent failed to offer any evidence from his present employer, the Sands; as to his job performance, his relationship with other employees and patrons, his understanding of the Commission regulations which affect him, among other factors. Nor did respondent offer any evidence of his rehabilitation as viewed by members of his immediate community, the clergy and/or business associates.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that respondent has failed to establish his rehabiliation, by clear and convincing evidence (N.J.S.A. 5:12-86a), as permitted under Section 91d of the Act.

III. Waiver of Disqualification as provided by N.J.S.A. 5:12-91e

Pursuant to section 91e of the Act, the Commission may:

> ... waive any disqualification criterion for a casino hotel employee consistent with the public policy of this act and upon a finding that the interest of justice so require.

The facts in this matter demonstrate that respondent is currently holding down two full-time jobs, one in the casino industry and one outside the casino industry, in order to provide for his wife, who is also gainfully employed in the casino industry, and her minor child. Respondent is also under a court order to provide $170 per month in child support for eight children he has fathered.

Although respondent is a convicted felon, the Sands has shown its faith in him and employed him as a banquet supervisor. Respondent does not have an extensive arrest or criminal record. Other than the one conviction, for a very serious offense, repondent has had only one arrest where the charge of simple assault was dismissed. Since his parole from prison on April 5, 1988, respondent has had no involvement with law enforcement officials nor the Criminal Justice system, other than his parole officer.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that respondent is making every effort to project a positive image of himself. I also FIND and CONCLUDE that he is remorseful for the pain and suffering he has inflicted upon Ms. Holland, with whom he has established a friendly relationship. I further FIND and CONCLUDE that in the interest of justice, respondent should be permitted to retain his registration.

ORDER

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that consistent with the public policy of the Act and my finding that the interest of justice requires that respondent retain his casino hotel employee registration, it is accordingly ORDERED that the disqualification criteria be WAIVED and that respondent's casino hotel employee registration be permitted to be RETAINED. (See: Dunston vs. Dept. of Law, 240 N.J. Super. 53 (App. Div. 1990)).

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Casino Control Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the CHAIR OF THE CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, 3131 Princeton Pike, Building 5, CN 208, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Record Closed: September 27, 1989 Decided: November 10, 1989

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint against the respondent with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on November 28, 1984, seeking the revocation of the respondent's casino hotel employee registration. The ground for the relief sought was the allegation that the respondent was charged with possession of cocaine in Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino on October 9, 1984.

The respondent requested a hearing. He also requested that the hearing be delayed pending disposition of the criminal charge against him in the Atlantic County Court, Criminal Division. After the criminal charge was resolved, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 28, 1988, to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A plenary hearing convened on August 1, 1989. The record was held open for 30 days to permit the respondent to obtain letters which he asserted would indicate that he was rehabilitated. He obtained one letter but apparently filed it only with the Attorney General. Upon learning that the letter was filed with the Attorney General. The record was held open until September 27, 1989, to permit additional investigation by the deputy attorney general.

The issues set forth in the prehearing conference order were as follows:

A. Whether respondent's continued registration is inimical to the policy of the casino control act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86 because he is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20(a)1, possession of cocaine, despite the fact that the act was not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this state as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

B. Whether respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to Donna Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301.

The Casino Control Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq., strictly regulates the employment of casino and casino hotel workers. Casino employees are required to be licensed, N.J.S.A. 5:12-90, casino hotel employees are required to be registered. N.J.S.A. 5:12-91. Both may be disqualified if convicted of certain enumerated crimes, N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), or of any other offense if the offense was such as to render the applicant, licensee or registrant's employment inimical to the policy of the Act and to casino operations. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2). Disqualification may occur even if the applicant, licensee or registrant has not been prosecuted for the offense. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g. Applicants, licensees and registrants (excepting only key employees) may overcome a disqualification by offering clear and convincing evidence that they are rehabilitated. N.J.S.A. 5:12-80a, 89, 90h and 91d. Rehabilitation is also a factor to be considered in the inimicality analysis. Donna Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301.

This respondent is a registrant and was employed on October 9, 1984, at Harrah's Marina and Casino Hotel. His alleged offense was not prosecuted. The alleged offense is not an enumerated criminal offense, therefore, the Division alleges that his continued registration is inimical.

Detective Sergeant Wilshire of the New Jersey State Police testified that he was assigned to investigate an incident in Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino on October 9, 1984. At that time, he was a member of the Casino Investigation Bureau of the New Jersey State Police and the Division of Gaming Enforcement. He met the respondent and two members of the Atlantic County Major Crimes Unit in a men's locker room on the second floor of the hotel on the day mentioned. The respondent had been questioned there about his knowledge of a homicide. During the interrogation, a packet of cocaine fell out of the respondent's pant leg. Wilshire was called in to make the arrest. A State chemist reported to Wilshire that the packet contained a tenth of a gram of cocaine.

Wilshire did not observe the cocaine fall from respondent's pant leg. It was found during the interrogation by the officers of the major crime unit before Wilshire arrived. The respondent admitted at the hearing only that it was found on the floor next to his feet. Respondent seemed to imply, by word and gesture, that the cocaine was a "plant" in order to induce him to testify about a certain homicide.

The respondent was indicted for possession of cocaine but the indictment was dismissed as part of a plea bargain in which the respondent pled guilty to hindering the apprehension of a person charged with homicide by obtaining transportation for him.

The Division also introduced the substantial criminal history record of the respondent. This evidence is useful in determining whether or not an individual is rehabilitated. Rehabilitation statutes require a consideration of whether the relevant offense is an isolated or repeated incident. N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d(6) and 90h(6). The respondent quibbled at length over his criminal history record. He claimed that as a result of lengthy and substantial drug abuse he was unable to recall many of the incidents. He also claimed that he had only six adult convictions. I take him at his word on both claims.

The respondent said that he could not have been in any trouble recently because he has been incarcerated. He also claimed that he had resolved his drug problems through attendance at NA (Narcotics Anonymous).

It appeared from the respondent's testimony that he was released from a half way house on July 11, 1989, after being continually incarcerated since August 17, 1987 or 1986, he does not remember which. This gives him a possible alibi for a burglary with which he was charged on August 28, 1987. This charge too was dismissed as part of a plea bargain. In any case, respondent has an extensive criminal background.

On November 3, 1988, the respondent was admitted to a half-way house operated by the Volunteers of America. While there, he met all of the contractual obligations imposed by the VOA on prisoners who wish to pursue work release programs. He obtained employment, he paid for his room and board, he kept a savings account and he paid his Violent Crimes Compensation Board (VCCB) penalty. He also attended NA and a 16 week substance abuse program. He was monitored weekly and remained alcohol and chemical free during his stay at the Volunteers of America. Moreover, his case manager says that respondent "conducted himself in a mature and positive manner at all times" and was elected by his peers as a spokesman to the Facility Director on their behalf.

I am also satisfied from the respondent's testimony that he still attends NA meetings. I urge him to continue; it works.

Respondent's parole will terminate in February of 1991.

Respondent hopes to enroll in a cooking course. He is presently employed as a public area attendant in a non casino related hotel.

The respondent was unable or unwilling to produce any letters from persons who supervised his employment although given an opportunity to do so.

The testimony of Sergeant Wilshire concerning the respondent's possession of cocaine was hearsay. It was also documented in police reports which are also hearsay. In addition, the respondent confirmed that the cocaine was found on the floor and that he was charged with its possession. He said that the cocaine was a plant.

The Act permits the introduction of hearsay evidence. Its use, however, is well regulated. It must be relevant and, in order to make a factual finding based upon it, it must be "the sort of evidence upon which responsible persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs." N.J.S.A. 5:12-107a(6). The legislature specifically enacted this standard for the admission of evidence in hearings conducted under the Act so that the residuum rule which governs the admissibility of evidence in all other New Jersey Administrative hearings would not apply. N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.5. The cases confirm that the residuum rule is inapplicable in cases under the Act. DGE v. Merlino, 8 N.J.A.R. 126, 161. Merlino also deals with the legal sufficiency of certain kinds of evidence. For instance, it abjures newspaper articles. Ibid. p. 164. It describes the report of a law enforcement agency as "insufficient by itself to support a find (sic)" "Ibid. p. 164. Merlino also identifies some of the factors to be considered in applying the responsible person/serious affairs rule. Is the hearsay corroborated by other evidence? Is it contradicted by other direct or reliable hearsay? Does the respondent dispute the hearsay in his testimony? Ibid. p. 165 In this case, there is a hearsay police report that the respondent possessed cocaine. He disputes this in his oral testimony; and says it was a plant. At least this statement may be treated as an admission that the cocaine actually existed. In addition, the bona fides of this disputed possession is so dubious as to amount to an affirmation of the truth of the proposition.

Respondent claims that he suffers from memory loss as a result of serious and prolonged drug abuse. This memory loss includes the factual basis for all of a long series of criminal convictions although he admits there were "only six adult convictions." In addition, the antipathy he displayed, both by word and in his demeanor, towards the deputy attorney general as she probed his memory concerning his criminal record and this event in particular, made all of his testimony suspect. He wheeled around in the witness box assuming attitudes of defiance, showing her his back and making extraordinary faces intended to communicate disgust and distain for her questions.

There comes a time in a trial when a person's attitude, demeanor, body language and words are so hostile and negative that they tend to confirm the truth of the statement which they mean to refute. Respondent's courtroom behavior and long history of drug abuse lead me inescapably to the conclusion that it is more probable than not that on October 9, 1984, the respondent possessed cocaine in a casino facility.

I FIND that the respondent possessed cocaine in a casino facility during his employment on October 9, 1984.

This is an offense proscribed by N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10, although at the time the offense occurred the statute violated was N.J.S.A. 24:21-20(a)1.

In order for inimicality to be found in a particular case, the state must show by a preponderance of the evidence that the respondent's continued registration would be inimical to the policy of the Act and to casino operations. This registrant is an unrehabilitated drug offender. His attendance at NA is a first step and an excellent one,but mere attendance at NA is not equivalent to rehabilitation. The respondent is still on parole and will be until February 1991. His demeanor indicates that he has difficulty with authority. He constantly argued with the deputy attorney general over his criminal record and its relevancy as to whether he should be registered. The respondent has not had sufficient time in the community to demonstrate that he is rehabilitated. He was released from the VOA only in July of this year. His stay there, it must be mentioned, showed that the respondent has the potential to become a contributing member of society, but he is not yet there. He has a long way to go.

Inimicality has been defined as "encompass(ing) those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations. In Re Resorts Casino Application, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 254.

This offense was possession of cocaine in a casino hotel. The respondent's long history of drug abuse makes him an unmistakeable risk to the industry until such time as he can prove his rehabilitation from drugs and the criminality associated with them.

I CONCLUDE that the respondent's continued registration would be inimical to the policy of the Act and to casino operations.

I ORDER that the respondent's casino hotel registration be REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

RENEWAL APPLICATION OF KENNETH A. BARTS — ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of September 19, 1990,

IT IS on this 27th day of September 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified to find that:

(1) the unprosecuted conduct which the administrative law judge (ALJ) found to constitute the offense of theft by deception in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 is disqualifying pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(1) and -86(g);

(2) the ALJ should have recommended that the respondent's renewal application "be denied" rather than that his casino employee license "be revoked" because this is a case involving a license application;

(3) the ALJ erred in concluding that the respondent failed to demonstrate his rehabilitation;

(4) the respondent has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation for the following reasons: (1) the offense took place approximately 6 years ago; (2) the respondent is employed in the non-gaming related position of cocktail server; (3) the respondent has had a good work record in the casino industry; and, (4) 11 individuals testified to his diligence and character; and

(5) the respondent has established his good character, honesty and integrity pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(b)(2), given the significant overlap between the evidence necessary to establish rehabilitation and the evidence necessary to establish good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Charles Clentchscale for Licensure as a Casino Employee, Docket No. 79-EA-113 at 22 (Commission decision April 22, 1980).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the renewal application of Kenneth A. Barts is granted.

Record closed: JULY 3, 1990 Decided: JULY 17, 1990

OAL DKT. NO. CCC-09352-89

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) objecting to the renewal of the casino employee license #014645-21 issued to petitioner. The Division alleges, among other things, that petitioner committed acts which constitutes a statutory disqualifier for licensure and that petitioner lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its letter of objection with the Commission on November 3, 1989. Petitioner requested a hearing on November 22, 1989 and on November 29, 1989 the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on March 26, 1990 by JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ followed by a hearing which was held on June 18, 1990 . The record was closed on July 3, 1990 .

ISSUES

A. Did Mr. Barts engage in conduct which, had it been prosecuted, would have constituted the crime of theft by deception, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, a crime of the third degree?

B. If Mr. Barts did engage in such conduct, does the Casino Control Act require his automatic disqualification from licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1)?

C. If Mr. Barts would be automatically disqualified, does the evidence establish that he has rehabilitated himself from the prior misconduct so as to be permitted to be relicensed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h)?

D. Does Mr. Barts have the required good character, honesty and integrity necessary for licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2)?

UNCONTESTED FACTS

Based upon testimony and documents proffered at the hearing on June 18, 1990, the following facts are neither contested nor in dispute. Therefore, these uncontested facts are hereby adopted as FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

Petitioner is a 30 year old single male with two children who are currently not living with him. Petitioner was issued a casino license on July 23, 1980. The license sought to be renewed by petitioner is for the position of slot mechanic (electro); blackjack dealer; roulette dealer. He is currently employed by the Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino in the position of a cocktail server. Petitioner's employment with the casino industry began in 1980 when he was employed by Resorts International Hotel and Casino as a bar porter. Thereafter, he was employed by Caesers Hotel and Casino and Showboat Hotel and Casino as a bar porter from the date Showboat opened until he moved to Trump Plaza. For a brief period of time in 1989 Mr. Barts was employed at TropWorld as a change mover, a position that he said he left after learning that he could not be employed by two casinos simultaneously. Since beginning at Resorts his employment in the casino industry, as well as working various positions on the boardwalk, were full time jobs. He recalled earning $5.00 an hour at Resorts; "$5.00 and some change" at TropWorld; minimum wage while working on the boardwalk; $5.00 an hour as a bar porter at Trump Plaza; and the position which he currently holds pays "$4.00 and some cents per hour" plus tips. Although holding a casino license with the endorsements of slot mechanic, blackjack and roulette dealer Mr. Barts has never worked or sought employment in these positions.

For the past fifteen years Mr. Barts has from time to time lived in his parents' apartment and has always utilized their residence located at 2305 Sheldon Avenue, Apartment 12, Atlantic City, New Jersey as an address where he could receive mail. Documents R-1 thru 17 introduced into evidence by the State contain the Sheldon Avenue address. Between May 21, 1984 and July 30, 1984 Mr. Barts collected unemployment benefits in the amount of $809.00 as more fully set forth in R-15 . At the time he was collecting unemployment, he was employed at the Tropicana Hotel/Casino and freely admitted that he knew that it was wrong to collect unemployment insurance while working and stated: "at that time I knew the money would come in handy". He offered as a justification his inability to make ends meet since he had just moved into an apartment on Georgia Avenue, was attempting to pay rent, feed himself and give some support to the one child that he had at that time. Since incurring the debt, he has failed to make any voluntary repayments with the exception of $33.50 in December of 1989 and $25.00 in February of 1990. Involuntary payments were made by way of payment from his New Jersey State Income Tax refund check in November of 1987 and September of 1988. As of the date of the hearing, the amount of the debt was $740.08. He stated that the reason he began voluntary payments in December of 1989 was because of the action being taken against his license by the Division of Gaming Enforcement. His lack of payment since February of 1990 he attributes to his inability to make ends meet based upon his greatly reduced work schedule of one to three days per week. He works only when called by his employer to substitute for other employees who are marked out sick or on vacation.

On December 8, 1986 Mr. Barts was arrested by the Egg Harbor Township Police and charged with shoplifting a bicyle worth $59.99 from a local department store. At the time of this arrest he was found to be carrying marijuana and was charged with possessing a controlled dangerous substance. On February 8, 1988 he pled guilty to shoplifting, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-11 and was ordered to pay a fine of $150.00, $25.00 court costs and $30.00 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board. At that time he also pled guilty to possessing a controlled dangerous substance, marijuana, under 50 grams and was ordered to pay a penalty of $150.00, $25.00 court costs and $30.00 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board and was granted entrance into the conditional discharge program. On July 13, 1989 he was removed from the conditional discharge program and found guilty of possession of marijuana under 50 grams. Mr. Barts explained that he never complied with the terms of the conditional discharge program in that he did not pay the penalty so ordered nor did he supply the court with the requisite urinalysis from his physician. As of June 18, 1990 he owed the Egg Harbor Township Municipal Court a total of $205.00 in penalties and costs. On June 5, 1990 a bench warrant was issued for his arrest for failure to pay penalties. As of the date of the hearing Mr. Barts had an outstanding bench warrant for his arrest issued by the Egg Harbor Township Municipal Court for failure to pay penalties as set forth above. Mr. Barts presented an original money order in the amount of $205.00 which he represented he had not yet delivered to the Egg Harbor Township Municipal Court but that he intended to do so at the conclusion of the hearing. This money order admitted into evidence as P-6 was blank and had not been made out to the Egg Harbor Township Municipal Court as of time of the hearing.

DISCUSSIONS AND CONCLUSIONS

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8), it is established that licensure under the Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." Section 129(1) of the Act provides for the revocation of or other sanctions against the license held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this Act which would disqualify such person from holding his license."

The Division contends that petitioner's misconduct constitutes a disqualifying offense under Section 86(c) of the Act. It asserts that petitioner's acquisition of funds in the amount of $809.00 from the New Jersey State Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance while he was otherwise gainfully employed is, under the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice, the crime of theft by deception, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. Notwithstanding that petitioner had not been prosecuted for the offense, it cites section 86(g) of the Act which provides that licensure may be denied to a person who has committed an offense enumerated in section 86(c)1 of the Act whether or not the offense has been prosecuted under the criminal laws of this state. Section 86c(1) of the Act sets forth the offenses under the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice which if committed constitutes a per se disqualification for casino employee licensure. Section 86c(1) lists as a class of disqualifying offenses those involving theft and related offenses which constitute crimes of the second or third degree under N.J.S.A. 2C:20-1 et seq. Theft by deception, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, is included in that class. N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2(b) provides for the grading of theft offenses and states that:

"Theft constitutes a crime of the third degree if:

(a) the amount involves exceeds $500.00 but is less than $75,000.00."

Petitioner freely admitted that he was working while collecting unemployment from May 21, 1984 through July 30, 1984 in the total amount of $809.00 and that he knew that it was wrong. I thus CONCLUDE that the Division has clearly established by a preponderence of the credible evidence that petitioner committed an offense which disqualifies him from licensure in the casino industry. See State vs. Moore, 158 N.J. Super. 68(App. Div. 1978).

A licensee faced with the existence of one or more of the 86(c) statutory disqualifiers is, nevertheless, afforded the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating his rehabilitation in accordance with the factors set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h). These eight factors to be considered and evaluated are:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense;
3. The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
4. The date of the offense;
5. The age of the applicant (licensee) when the offense was committed;
6. Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work release program or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant (licensee) under their supervision.

In consideration of the petitioner's claim of rehabilitation, the following is found in this record:

1. Petitioner has been employed within the casino industry in various positions since 1980. He has held employment in the position of a bar porter, server, change carrier and his most recent employment at Trump Plaza being that of cocktail server.

2. Petitioner was convicted in February of 1988 of shoplifting an item worth $59.99 in violation of N.J.S.A 2C:20-11 and possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20(a)4. Petitioner's conduct since being convicted of these offenses reflects directly on the issue of his rehabilitation. Most notably, he has failed to pay the penalties ordered by the Egg Harbor Township Municipal Court although he has had over two years and four months to do so. His problems were exacerbated by his own failure to comply with the terms of the conditional discharge program thus increasing the amount of penalties due to the court. His actions in collecting unemployment in the amount of $809.00 while working is a serious offense especially when considered against the factors that (1) he was working in the gaming industry at the time; (2) he knowingly and intentionally committed the offense;

(3) Petitioner's justification for collecting the unemployment benefits simply are not justifiable since the only explanation he could proffer was that the additional money would "come in handy". Petitioner offered no explanation as to why he was engaged in shoplifting or possessing marijuana in December of 1986 nor could any explanation be justifiable or in any way assist the petitioner;

(4) The dates of the offenses set forth above would offer petitioner sufficient time to establish his rehabilitation. Although time may be on petitioner's side, his inaction in failing to pay the Egg Harbor Township penalties, comply with the terms of the conditional discharge program and his failure to pay the judgment to the State of New Jersey Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance mitigate against his cause;

(5) Petitioner's age at the time he wrongfully began to collect unemployment benefits was 24 years old and he was 26 years old at the time of his arrest for shoplifting and possession of CDS.

(6) The offenses set forth above have not been repeated by the petitioner. During the hearing he admitted that he no longer smokes marijuana and would not fraudulently collect unemployment benefits;

(7) There were no social conditions offered by petitioner as an explanation for his transgressions other than his need for money to pay rent and other bills;

(8) Petitioner offered no explanation as to why the penalties and judgment as set forth above were not paid prior to the date of the hearing other than a lack of money due to a reduced work schedule. If petitioner had truly rehabilitated himself from his past transgressions, such would have been evident by the payment of the penalties and judgment set forth above together with successful completion of the conditional discharge program. Even at the time of the hearing there was a bench warrant outstanding for petitioner's arrest for failure to pay the Egg Harbor Township penalties. The record was held open for 15 days to permit the inclusion of additional evidence, most notably a receipt from the Egg Harbor Township Municipal Court that the penalties had been paid in full. As of the closing of the record petitioner did submit evidence that final payment was made to the Egg Harbor Township Municipal Court on June 18, 1990. The character references submitted by petitioner do not establish his rehabilitation. Such references fall short of assisting petitioner when considered against his conduct over the last six years. Petitioner described his life as "turning around since being employed at Trump Plaza. He no longer smokes marijuana, gives $1.00 per week to the United Way, assists in the casino olympics and talent night. However, I FIND that such representation is simply in opposition to petitioner's irresponsible conduct in failing to pay penalites which resulted in the issuance of a bench warrant. Rehabilitation occurs when an individual has consistently demonstrated fiscal and social responsibility including a respect for the legal system. Mr. Barts has failed to prove by clear and convincing evidence his rehabilitation since his lack of good character, honesty and integrity continued right up to the day of the hearing.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to affirmatively establish his rehabilitation.

Petitioner has also failed to demonstrate his good character, honesty and integrity as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2). An individual possessing good character, honesty and integrity would not collect unemployment benefits while working when, as petitioner indicated, he knew it was wrong to do so. Compounding the problem petitioner only returned a meager sum of the judgment owed to the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance in December of 1989 and February of 1990 only because petitioner felt it would effect his casino license. Secondly, when offered the opportunity to rehabilitate himself through the conditional discharge program, petitioner again failed to demonstrate his good character, honesty and integrity by admittedly not providing the urinalysis required by the program and failing to pay the penalties.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that petitioner has failed to demonstrate, by clear and convincing evidence, he possesses those characteristics as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the casino employee license number 014645-21 issued to Kenneth A. Barts be and hereby is REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The New Jersey Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) alleging that respondent Melinda R. Batts committed acts which disqualify her from holding a casino employee license and/or a casino hotel registration. The Division alleges that respondent was arrested, charged and found guilty of the offense of Theft by Unlawful Taking, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 and, therefore, is disqualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2). The Division also alleges that respondent lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure as a casino employee, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b which incorporates section 89b(2) of the Casino Control Act (Act).

This matter was originally transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on July 10, 1989. A prehearing conference was held on August 8, 1989 followed by a hearing held on November 3, 1989 at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The hearing concluded after approximately 15 minutes where the Division placed its proofs on the record and the respondent offered no defenses to the Division's proofs. Subsequently, this administrative tribunal inadvertently executed an initial decision Failure to Appear, dated November 29, 1989. Respondent appealed to the Commission for another opportunity to be heard, which was granted. By way of an Order, dated January 16, 1990, the matter was remanded to the OAL for a hearing on all issues.

On May 9, 1990, the Honorable Beatrice S. Tylutki, ALJ, conducted a prehearing conference on the Order of Remand. The matter was assigned to the undersigned and the hearing was scheduled for August 28, 1990. The hearing was held on the scheduled date at the Atlantic City OAL. The hearing record closed on August 28, 1990.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

The following facts are undisputed and, therefore, are hereby adopted as FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter:

Respondent, Melinda R. Batts, is currently 30 years of age and resides in Atlantic City, New Jersey. Respondent is the holder of casino employee license no 58258-21 and casino hotel employee registration no. 35196-40. She has been employed as a cashier under her casino employee license by the Tropicana Casino Hotel (now TropWorld Casino and Entertainment Resort) (Tropicana) and Showboat Hotel and Casino (Showboat).

On February 27, 1987, between the hour of 2:00 a.m. and 2:30 a.m., respondent was arrested by the New Jersey State Police assigned to the Division (NJSP/DGE) while on duty at the Tropicana. The Tropicana Surveillance Supervisor had observed and video taped respondent remove money from her assigned cashier counter and place the money in her shoe. Subsequent to her arrest on February 27, 1987, she was instructed by the NJSP/DGE to remove her shoe where a $10 bill was found. Respondent was charged with Theft by Unlawful Taking, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 (P-3). On March 26, 1987, respondent appeared before the Atlantic City Municipal Court and was found not guilty of the charge (P-4).

On or about October 16, 1988, at approximately 10:15 p.m., respondent was arrested during the course of her employment as a coin cashier at the Showboat. It is alleged respondent removed a ten dollar ($10) bill from her assigned cash drawer, placed the money in a tip envelope and then placed the envelope in her back pant pocket. As a consequence, respondent was charged with the offense of Theft by Unlawful Taking, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3.

On November 3, 1988, respondent was found guilty of the N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 offense by the Atlantic City Municipal Court which imposed a fine of $25 and $25 in court costs against her. In addition, respondent was required to pay a $30 penalty to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (VCCB) (P-2).

At the time of the herein hearing, respondent was employed as a housekeeper by Bally's Park Place Casino/Hotel (Bally's) in Atlantic City, New Jersey, under her casino hotel employee registration.

CONTESTED FACTS

Notwithstanding that respondent was found guilty of the offense of Theft by Unlawful Taking by the Atlantic City Municipal Court, she steadfastly maintains that the amount taken was not ten dollars ($10.00) but, rather, it was four dollars ($4.00) mistakenly left on her counter by a patron. Respondent testified, among other things, that a female patron had arrived at her redemption cashier station on the evening of October 16, 1988, with cups of slot tokens to be redeemed for cash. Respondent placed the slot tokens into the machine to be counted and deposited into a token collection bag. Four of the one dollar ($1.00) tokens did not pass through the machine to be counted. Respondent removed the four one-dollar slot tokens from the machine and placed them on the counter, in full view of the patron. Respondent testified that she intended to give the patron four dollars from her cash drawer after she had completed counting the other slot tokens for redemption. Respondent asserts that the patron walked away from her work station without redeeming the cash for the four slot tokens respondent had set aside. Respondent insists she shouted to the patron to return to her redemption counter, however, the patron continued to walk away.

Respondent asserts she placed the four one-dollar slot tokens in her cash drawer where they remained until her break at approximately 10:00 p.m. Prior to her break, respondent removed the four one-dollar slot tokens and redeemed them for cash. She was observed removing a ten dollar bill from the cash drawer and place it in a tip envelope. Respondent insists that six dollars ($6.00) of the ten dollars ($10.00) was tip money she had received that evening. Respondent did not, however, place the ten dollar tip in the tip box, as required by policy and regulation. Rather, respondent admits she placed the ten dollar bill in the envelope in her pants pocket.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) establishes that licensure under the Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." Section 129(1) of the Act provides for the revocation of or other sanction against the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his license." The Division contends that Ms. Batts' violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 constitutes a violation of section 86c(2) and, accordingly, her license and registration should be revoked.

I. The "Inimical Clause," N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2)

Section 86c(2) of the Act is commonly referred to as the "inimical clause." In In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission No. 79-CL-1, (February 26, 1979), the Commission set forth the criteria to be applied in individual cases when a determination is made as to whether an offense is inimical to the policies of the Act. The Commission stated at 15:

> ...The nature of the offense, the events surrounding it, including any mitigating or aggravating factors, the remoteness of the offense and the offender's conduct since the offense to the present are all matters to be considered. Without limiting the notion of what is "inimical" to the Act or to gaming, it would appear to encompass those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations.

The Appellant Division of our Superior Court has held that inimical means "...adverse to the policy of the Act and gaming operations...," that is to say, contrary to strict regulatory controls over all facets of casino activities. In the Matter of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union Local 54, (App. Div., July 11, 1985 A-993-82T5, A-317-84T5, A-525-84T5, A-880-84T5) (unreported at 17).

The facts demonstrate that respondent knowingly set aside four dollars in slot tokens of a patron and failed to provide the patron with cash for the tokens. This misconduct was committed by respondent during the course of her licensed employment as a redemption cashier. Respondent's exculpatory testimony was neither persuasive nor convincing. This is so, because respondent failed to report or alert her supervisor and/or security of the circumstances surrounding the event. In addition, respondent kept the money which belonged to the patron. Respondent's explanation that she combined the patron's four dollars with six dollars in tip money was incredible and not to be believed. State v. Taylor, 38 N.J. Super. 6 (App. Div 1955); In re Perrone, 55 N.J. 514 (1950). The facts also clearly demonstrate that respondent was found guilty of the offense of Theft by Unlawful Taking, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, the Division has established, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that respondent did, in fact, violate the provisions of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 while employed as a cashier in the casino industry.

I further CONCLUDE the Division has demonstrated, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that respondent's continued licensure and registration would be inimical to the policies of the Act.

II. Good Character, Honesty and Integrity as Required by Section 89b(2) of the Act as Incorporated in Section 90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Ms. Batts was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, her reputation for good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotels for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979), at 8. In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true; a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. When the Division raises an objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon the applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability of the applicant for licensure. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, Casino Control Commission (November 13, 1980), at 5. In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Boardwalk Regency Corporation at 2.

Clear and convincing, as a standard, falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here, the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the fact alleged is true; i.e., that petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity. The standard requires more than a mere balancing of probabilities, but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (L. Div. 1974); Germann v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466 (App. Div. 1969).

Respondent offered three witnesses, under subpoena, on her behalf. Mr. Terry Haverstick, housekeeping manager at Bally's, knew respondent Batts as an employee with Bally's housekeeping department. He asserted that respondent's record was fairly clean with no problems concerning the quality of her work. Respondent did have an attendance problem where she had received a written warning and suspension. Respondent was under suspension at the time of the hearing pending the investigation of an undisclosed incident which occurred in the casino on the Sunday prior to the hearing. Mr. Haverstick asserted there were no reported problems from hotel guests complaining about respondent stealing items from the guest's rooms.

Lena Pierce, housekeeping supervisor at Bally's, testified she was respondent's immediate supervisor and that respondent was a very good worker. Ms. Pierce, who had worked with respondent for approximately one year, asserted that respondent's attendance problems usually were caused by respondent's military reserve activities which generally occurred on weekends. Respondent was scheduled to work 40 hours per week, five days per week. She was usually scheduled to work Thursday through Monday, with Tuesday and Wednesday as her days off.

Ms. Pierce asserted that she learned of respondent's conviction of a theft charge only after she was served with the subpoena to appear at the herein hearing She stated that respondent had been honest in their working relationship and that the theft conviction did not affect Ms. Pierce's opinion of respondent.

Juanita Bond, an employee of the Trump Plaza Casino Hotel, testified that she was acquainted with respondent through the activities of the Pennsylvania Army National Guard. Ms. Bond is a PFC in the unit where respondent serves as a sergeant, E5. Ms. Bond socializes with respondent on weekends when they are both on duty with the military reserve unit. In addition, they converse by telephone once or twice a month. Ms. Bond testified that respondent had been honest with her since she had known respondent. Respondent told Ms. Bond about her arrest for theft about the time of the event. Ms. Bond expressed no opinion about respondent's good character or integrity.

Having considered all of the evidence before me, I am not convinced respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino licensure. While she may be honest with those individuals with whom she has close contact, the evidence does not support a finding that respondent has the good character, honesty and integrity when dealing with strangers or in the work-place setting. The evidence clearly demonstrates that respondent knowingly withheld money from a casino patron while conducting casino business with the patron. The evidence also shows, by her own admission, that respondent secreted the patrons money, together with other money, on her person in violation of the casino policies, which caused her to be charged and convicted of the offense of Theft by Unlawful Taking.

I CONCLUDE that respondent has failed to demonstrate, by clear and convincing evidence, that she possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino licensure.

PENALTY

Sections 129 and 130 of the Act provide for various penalties and/or sanctions which can be imposed against the license and/or registration of any person who has committed a violation of the Act. Here the Division seeks revocation of the respondent's casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration.

Section 130 of the Act sets for the following factors to be considered when a determination of a sanction is to be made:

a. the risk to the public and to the integrity of gaming operations created by the conduct of the licensee;

b. the seriousness of the conduct of the licensee, and whether the conduct was purposeful and with knowledge that it was in contravention of the provisions of this Act or regulations promulgated hereunder;

c. any justification or excuse for such conduct by the licensee;

d. the prior history of the particular licensee involved with respect to gaming activity;

e. the corrective action taken by the licensee to prevent future misconduct of a like nature from occurring;

There can be no doubt that the commission of a theft offense by a licensee in a casino while performing within the scope of her official duties creates a substantial risk to the public confidence in the casino industry and the perceived integrity of gaming operations. The seriousness of respondent's conduct is established by her knowledge that she acted illegally and has not otherwise been mitigated. Under such circumstances, respondent's license and registration must be revoked.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the casino employee license and the casino hotel employee registration held by Melinda R. Batts be and is hereby REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION who by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

AMENDED

BOARDWALK REGENCY CORP.,
d/b/a CAESAR'S ATLANTIC CITY,
NICHOLAS NIGLIO AND RACHEL BOGATIN

Respondents.

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and two initial decisions having been filed by the administrative law judge (ALJ) with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions and replies to exceptions having been filed by the parties to both initial decisions; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meetings of August 16 and November 1, 1989; and for the reasons stated on the record of the Commission's public meeting of December 6, 1989,

IT IS on this 29th day of November 1990, ORDERED:

1. The ALJ's conclusion that N.J.S.A. 5:12-134 and N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a) require casino licensees to treat their employees equally and fairly is adopted. However, the ALJ's conclusion that these provisions of Casino Control Act and Commission regulations do not apply to individual casino employees is rejected and this issue is remanded to the OAL for further proceedings. Because the ALJ formed an assessment of the credibility of respondents Niglio and Bogatin, it is requested that the hearing on remand be conducted by an ALJ other than the one who heard this matter initially;

2. The ALJ's conclusion that N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.12(a) regulates the conduct of both casino licensees and individual casino employees is adopted;

3. The ALJ's recommendation to dismiss Count III is adopted subject to the following modification: The Commission did not intend to incorporate all applicable federal, state, and local laws into the standard anti-preemption language of Boardwalk Regency Corporation's (BRC) Certificate of Operation, thereby investing itself with jurisdiction to enforce any and all legal obligations related to the operation and maintenance of a casino hotel. Therefore, the dismissal of Count III is based upon a failure to state a cause of action;

4. The ALJ's conclusion that respondent BRC violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-134 and N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a) by intentionally discriminating against three of its employees on May 13, 1988, is adopted. However, based upon the uncontradicted evidence in the record, the initial decision is modified to find BRC liable for a similar discriminatory reassignment of two of its employees on May 7, 1988;

5. The ALJ's recommendation that BRC be required to pay a civil penalty of $15,600 as a sanction for these five violations is rejected. BRC's violations are extremely serious both because of the inherently abhorent nature of race and sex-based discrimination and because of BRC's prior regulatory violations which, like those involved herein, are marked by a marked by a willingness to cater to preferred patrons with little or no regard to the regulatory process. Among the prior regulatory violations are State v. Boardwalk Regency Corp., 11 N.J.A.R. 29 (1983), State v. Boardwalk Regency Corp., et al., Docket No. 84-246 (Commission decision October 28, 1985), and State v. Boardwalk Regency Corp., Docket Nos. 87-290 and 88-147 (Consolidated) -- all of which Commission officially notices pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-107(b). IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the foregoing civil penalty be due and payable upon receipt of an invoice from the Commission's Division of Financial Evaluation and Control; and

Record Closed: June 16, 1989 Decided: August 10, 1989

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) alleges that Boardwalk Regency Corporation (Caesars) removed black and female dealers from a craps table and substituted white male dealers for them in order to gratify the perceived wishes of a casino patron. It alleges that this transfer of individuals was effectuated by Nicholas Niglio (Niglio) and Rachel Bogatin (Bogatin) and that, in addition, Bogatin instructed a female pit boss not to "watch" the patron play, although a pit boss is required by Rule to supervise the game.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on June 26, 1988, alleging in the first count that Caesars, Niglio and Bogatin violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-134(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a), by failing to afford an equal opportunity to certain Caesars' employees because of their race, color and sex. The Division alleged in the second count that respondent Caesars and participant Bogatin violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.12(a)(6) and Caesars' internal supervision controls by directing a pit boss not to "watch" the conduct of the craps game at table eight on May 13, 1988. In the third and final count, the Division alleged that respondent Caesars violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-96(a), and its Certificate of Operation, by failing to adhere to the certificate and by failing to operate the casino in accordance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and New Jersey's Law Against Discrimination. N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq. (NJLAD).

The respondents answered the complaint and requested a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-107. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 1, 1988, to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. On May 16, 1989, the respondents moved for Summary Judgment.

By way of a partial initial decision filed on May 24, 1989, the motions of Niglio and Bogatin to dismiss count one of the complaint as it applies to them was granted.

The motion of Caesars to dismiss count one of the complaint as it applied to it was denied and the motions of Bogatin and Caesars to dismiss count two were denied. The motion of Caesars to dismiss count three was granted. Niglio then moved for participation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-16.4 et seq. Participation was granted on the grounds that a full determination of the case could substantially, specifically and directly affect him. He may be subject to a future proceeding as a result of his testimony or the testimony of others in this proceeding.

A plenary hearing convened on June 5, 1989 and was concluded on June 16, 1989. The time in which to file an initial decision was extended by Order of the Commission until August 14, 1989.

ISSUES

The issues identified at a prehearing conference held on December 19, 1988, and amended during the hearing, which were not disposed of by the partial initial decision are:

A. Did respondent Nicholas Niglio intentionally discriminate against Joel Respes, Pamela Jiacopello, and/or Deborah O'Kane on May 13, 1988, by reassigning them and replacing them with white male gaming employees so as to provide one Robert Libutti, a patron, with an all white male gaming staff?

B. Did respondent Rachel Bogatin intentionally discriminate against Joel Respes, Pamela Jiacopello, Deborah O'Kane, Mary Ann Egeli, and/or Catherine Daidone on May 7, 1988 and/or on May 13, 1988, by reassigning them and replacing them with white male gaming employees so as to provide Robert Libutti, a patron, with an all white male gaming staff?

C. If the allegations of A and B above are proven, is respondent Caesars liable for the actions of Niglio and/or Bogatin?

D. Did respondent Caesars and/or Rachel Bogatin instruct Carol Ungerer not to supervise the play of Robert Libutti as she is required to do pursuant to

N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.12(a)6 and Caesars' own internal controls on May 13, 1988?

G. Whether the allegations set forth in issues A, B and/or C above, if proven, violate N.J.S.A. 5:12-134b and/or N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a)2?

I. If the allegations set forth above are proven, what penalty, if any, should apply?

SUMMARY AND DISCUSSION OF DOCUMENTARY AND TESTIMONIAL EVIDENCE

The Casino Control Act (Act) requires an applicant for a casino license to agree to afford an equal employment opportunity to all prospective employees consonant with N.J.S.A. 10:15-1 et seq., the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination. N.J.S.A. 5:12-134b. Paragraph c of Section 134 of the Act requires the applicant to formulate and abide by an affirmative action program of equal opportunity.

In addition, the Commission enacted regulations to insure a balanced workplace in casinos. N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.1 et seq. The regulations require that the policy of nondiscrimination continue during the whole course of actual employment. N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5.

Accordingly, Caesars prepared an affirmative action plan for the Commission in connection with its application for a Certificate of Operation in 1979. The plan was updated on April 3, 1980, August 15, 1980 and in September 1988.

Caesars stated policy is the provision of equal employment opportunity to everyone. It seeks out female and minority candidates. It provides, through its Upward Mobility Program and its Supervisory Skills Training Program, vehicles for identifying, training and promoting female and minority employees.

The Division disparages these efforts and offered into evidence the 1986, 1987 and 1988 reports of the Commission's Division of Affirmative Action and Planning in order to show that Caesars was not in compliance with the Act or its own Affirmative Action Plan.

These reports are chatty but they tend to ramble. In one place they chastise Caesars for being in last place among the casinos in a category of female employment, in another place they administer a pat on the back to Caesars for showing gains in a category of minority employment. Apparently there is an ongoing dispute between Caesars and the Division of Affirmative Action and Planning over who is responsible for keeping statistics of female and minority employment by building contractors.

The best, or worst, that can be said about Caesars' record of affirmative action, according to these reports, is that Caesars has achieved mixed results in maintaining affirmative action goals.

Caesars offered rebuttal evidence by way of tables prepared by the Division of Affirmative Action and Planning of the Commission for the periods ending March 31, 1987, March 31, 1988 and March 31, 1989. These tables merely confirm that Caesars, like other casinos, has achieved mixed results in affirmative action.

The gravamen of the complaint filed in this matter, however, is not a failure by Caesars to maintain affirmative action goals; it is that very specific instances of conduct were discriminatory.

There does not appear to be much conflict in this case about what actually happened. Black and female dealers at Caesars were moved to other tables and replaced by white male dealers to accommodate a player who was perceived to favor white male dealers at the craps table and a female pit boss alleges she was instructed not to "watch" his play. The conflict in the case is over who gave the order to transfer the dealers and what was intended by the order given to the pit boss which she interpreted to mean that she was not to "watch" the game.

The resolution of this conflict is essential for the penalty phase of the case. Obviously the higher up into casino management the origins of the conduct can be traced, the more grave the conduct appears. Certainly a racial squabble among low level employees, especially in a company actively pursuing an affirmative action program, although reprehensible in itself, may not lead to the conclusion that the employer, in its corporate capacity, has a failed policy or requires a penalty to force it to take a corrective action. On the other hand, where the conduct reflects a corporate policy, drastic measures may be required. In order to illustrate the conflict, the testimony of the witnesses is summarized below.

William Frasco is an audit agent for the Division and has been assigned to Caesars since August of 1986. He was assigned to review the gaming activity of Robert Libutti. of whom it was rumored that he preferred white male dealers to black or female dealers at his table. He discovered that Libutti gambled at Caesars on April 1, April 30, May 7 and May 13, 1988. On April 1, 1988, Libutti gambled about an hour and placed average bets of $4,400. On April 30, 1988, Libutti gambled about an hour and a half and made average bets of $4,500. On May 7, 1988, Libutti gambled approximately one hour and 25 minutes and his average bet was $8,000. On May 13, 1988, Libutti gambled for a little over two hours beginning at approximately 7:10 p.m. and his average bet was about $6,000. Libutti's total loss over the four days was $15,600.00.

These kinds of records are maintained for several reasons, one of which is to "rate" players in order to bestow complimentary items and services upon them Libutti was a rated player and considered to be a "high roller," which is, apparently, a term of great esteem in gambling argot. It describes a person who wagers vast sums of money upon insignificant events such as the turn of a card or the throw of the dice. Accordingly, Libutti was a favored person in casinos.

Lyndon Stockton is a Senior Marketing executive for Caesars World Marketing Corporation; a sister corporation to Caesars . He was first employed on May 12, 1988. His major function is to solicit table game customers for Caesars' Atlantic City and Tahoe casinos. He does this by mail, telephone and personal contact. He frequents sporting events and restaurants in search of qualified customers. He remembers their birthdays and anniversaries with phone calls or flowers. He develops strategies for introducing players to Caesars and maintaining their interest in the casino.

Stockton knew Libutti before he worked at Caesars. Stockton first met Libutti when he, Stockton, worked at Trump Plaza as a casino host. On May 13, 1988 Stockton got a phone tip from someone at Trump Plaza that Libutti was on his way over to Caesars to play craps. Stockton met Libutti at the door. A table had already been roped off for Libutti's party. Stockton ordered Libutti's favorite brand of champagne and the special glasses Libutti is fond of. He stood with Libutti as he gambled to insure that Libutti was comfortable. Although he had heard rumors that Libutti was abusive, Stockton said he never saw Libutti abuse anyone. He said that any rumors concerning Libutti's preference for white male dealers were false. He said Libutti was not a racist or a bigot. Stockton said that he knew this because he, Stockton, was black, and had hosted Libutti in Trump Plaza for years without incident.

Mario DeLuca has been employed at Caesars since its opening in 1979. He has been a craps dealer, a blackjack dealer, a box person, and a floor person with pit boss credentials who can occasionally fill in as a pit boss. A craps pit boss is responsible for the eight craps games which comprise the pit. A floor person is responsible for supervising one game; dealers and box persons actually operate one game. Floor persons, box persons and dealers are supervised by the pit boss. A pit boss observes the games to make sure correct procedures are followed and resolves disputes beyond the jurisdiction of the floor person. A pit boss is also responsible for the chips and money count at each table and for the work schedule of the crew.

DeLuca testified that as a pit boss for Caesars he has never been told not to "watch" a game. On April 30, 1988, he was told by Nicholas Niglio, the assistant casino manager, not to "crowd" a game played by Robert Libutti at table eight in his pit. An assistant casino manager is one step above a shift boss who supervises pit bosses.

DeLuca did not define the expression "crowd a game". In answer to a question, he acknowledged the existence of two expressions common in casino argot: "hawk the game" and "sweat the money." He defined only the expression "sweat the money." When a casino employee "sweats the money", the employee stands close to a losing table and assumes a "nervous" or "irritable" expression. He said Caesar's policy was not to "sweat the money."

As a result of being told not to "crowd the game" DeLuca observed Libutti's play from approximately six or eight feet away from the craps table. He did not feel that the instruction diminished his capacity to supervise the game. He recalls talking to Carol Ungerer who was the floor person on the next table from Libutti. He told her why he was watching Libutti's play from her table, table seven, and not from

table eight, Libutti's table, but he does not recall what was actually said. He recalls that she began to watch Libutti's play and Richard Stack, the shift boss, told her not to watch table eight. He noted that she was embarrassed.

DeLuca also identified Pamela Jiacopella, Joel Respes and Debra O'Kane as competent employees of Caesars.

DeLuca recalled that two black women were floor persons on Libutti's table on April 30, 1988.

Maryann Egeli is a dice dealer and boxperson for Caesars. A dice dealer accepts bets and paces the game. She says they usually have fun. On May 7, 1988, she worked the 6:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m. shift. Many employees have staggered starting times. As a result, a witness may refer to two different pit bosses or shift managers during a single shift. Egeli was a dealer on table 17, pit four. Joseph Bochen was her pit boss that night and Richard Stack was the shift boss. Stack came around and put reserve signs on her table. He told her a big player was coming in and that she would be removed from the table because the "man didn't want any women on the game." Joseph Bochen told her the "man" was Libutti. At 8:30, her break time, she was moved to a different table by Joseph Bochen, her pit boss. Libutti had not yet arrived. She was replaced at table 17 by a white male. During the evening she heard from other dealers that Libutti preferred only white males on his game. She testified that she was shocked by the move and has instituted suit against Caesars.

At a sworn interview Egeli told the Division that she "just figured this guy (Libutti) was superstitious, didn't want women around. It really didn't bother (her)." At the hearing she explained this discrepancy in her testimony by saying "You learn not to say too much ... So I would like to keep my job ... So I didn't say anything."

Egeli testified that as a result of her move, she lost no income because dealers pool their tips. She also testified that she instituted suit because after she thought about the incident she became disturbed. She concluded her testimony by saying that she was 29 years old, and she had never before experienced discrimination solely because she was a woman.

Catheryn Daidone has been employed by Caesars for nine years. She was a box person on May 7, 1988, and has since become a floor person. On May 7, 1988, she was assigned to table 17 pit four on the swing shift with Maryann Egeli. She said Nicholas Niglio came by and told Joe Bochen, the pit boss, to reserve the table by roping it off. Later, Joe Bochen told her to move to another game because a man was coming in who didn't like women or blacks on the game. Her co-workers told her the man coming in was Libutti. Bochen also told her that Libutti didn't want the pit boss "looming over the table watching the game over his shoulder." Daidone was replaced at table 17 by a white male. She says she wasn't bothered by the move because she knew it did not have anything to do with her competence.

Joseph Bochen has been employed by Caesars for 10 years. He is a pit boss. He said that he had never been told not to "watch" a game. He defined the expression "hawking the game" as standing close to the table, with negative body language, arms crossed, stern demeanor, pacing near the table, overtly worrying that the table is losing money. He equated the expression "hawking the game" with "sweating the game."

Bochen recalls that at about 6:30 one night in May, Rachel Bogatin, shift manager, told him that Libutti would be playing on a reserved table and that Libutti did not want women or blacks or minorities dealing to him. She also asked him to arrange the table accordingly.

Bochen then moved Egeli and Daidone to another table. He said he explained his actions to them and that they acquiesced in the move. They were replaced with white males. Later that evening Libutti came to play at table 17. Bochen said that Rachel Bogatin also told him that Libutti doesn't "like pit bosses hawking the game." He said this was a common term in the business and he knew exactly what she meant. He said it is Caesars policy that no one is to hawk a game. The employees are told that there is "plenty of money", so there is no need to "sweat the game."

As a result of this instruction Bochen did not show Libutti any extra attention other than to make eye contact and smile at him. He continued to monitor the game and the chip situation with the floorman and he observed the game from the pit boss's podium.

Joel Respes is black. He is a floor person employed by Caesars for nine years. In 1983 he received the company's Superstar award. On May 13, 1988, he was on the day shift, 12:45 p.m. until 8:45 p.m. He was a relief floorperson assigned to pit two and was to relieve the floorpersons on tables eight, one, seven and two. He said that Carol Ungerer was the pit boss and that Jack Nolan was the shift manager.

Respes started his shift on table eight relieving the floor person there. The betting minimum on table eight was raised from $5 to $500 to accommodate a "high roller." The employees speculated that Libutti was coming in to play. Libutti's supposed preference for white male dealers was discussed.

Shortly thereafter, two female employees of Caesars were removed from the table, Debbie O'Kane, a dealer, and Pamela Jiacopello, a box person. Two white males replaced them. Carol Ungerer, the pit boss made the changes. She said to Respes "Well, I had them taken care of. I don't know what I'm going to do with you yet." Later, Respes was switched to table seven and the table seven floor person, a white male, took Respes' place at table eight and remained there. At a few minutes after seven, Libutti arrived and played on table eight. Respes said he asked Ungerer why the switch was make and she told him "Well, this is what Caesars wants. They want to avoid any confrontation or any unusual circumstances."

Respes said that Ungerer also instructed the entire pit not to look at table eight and to exit the pit from the other side. Ungerer told Respes she was not allowed to "look" at the game and that "they don't even want me over there." He says she did not go near table eight as a result.

After work Respes left the casino but returned after a few minutes and related the events of the evening to a representative of the Casino Control Commission. She took his report and advised him to notify the affirmative action officer for Caesars, Roland Coleman. The next day, he did notify Coleman.

Respes said that the incident caused him to feel hurt, embarrassed and humiliated. It reminded him of the treatment his father received as a high school student in Philadelphia. His father wanted to be an engineer. A white male teacher told his father that he couldn't become an engineer because he was black.

Respes asked rhetorically: "How much do I have to accomplish? How much do I have to do?"

Respes told his children what had happened. He told them he felt as though he had encountered a sign that read "For Whites Only."

Roland Coleman, Caesar's Affirmative Action Officer, told Respes that the matter would be investigated. Coleman told Respes that he had already spoken to the president and two vice presidents concerning the matter and that the company did not condone the action. Respes subsequently filed suit against Caesars over the incident.

Respes says that Bogatin came to him after the event and talked to him "off the record" in Niglio's office. She said she was sorry it happened and that it never should have happened. She said she wished she "had the guts to stand up and say No! This is not right! It is wrong!"

Deborah O'Kane has been employed at Caesars for ten years. She started as a cocktail waitress and, through the Upward Mobility Program, has become a craps dealer.

O'Kane was on the 1:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. day shift on May 13, 1988, assigned to pit two, table eight. On that day, after her break, O'Kane was reassigned to another table by the pit boss, Carol Ungerer. Ungerer told her earlier that she would be reassigned because the table was reserved for Libutti and that he didn't want women on the table. The table went "dead" after the minimum bet was raised to $500. Because she was bored and knew she was going to be transferred anyway, O'Kane asked Ungerer to transfer her to a busy table and her request was honored.

O'Kane has joined with Respes and Egeli in the civil suit against Caesars.

Pamela Jiacopello has been employed at Caesars for 12 years, beginning as a telephone operator and successively becoming a front desk clerk, a rooms controller, a craps dealer and now a boxperson. On May 13, 1988, she was a relief box person on the 1:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. shift assigned to pit two. When Libutti arrived she was relieving the box person on the table reserved for him. She was "tapped off" the game by a white male. She knew this was going to happen because the pit boss, Carol Ungerer, previously told her it would happen. Ungerer had explained to her that Libutti did not like women on the game.

Jiacopello said that she was not offended by being removed from table eight. She says she and O'Kane joked abut Libutti's preferences. She said she had heard about Libutti and was glad she did not have to serve as the box person on his table.

Craig Isaia is Casino Administration Director for Caesars. He has been employed at the casino for ten years. He reports to Nicholas Niglio. He related that he is responsible, among other things, for overseeing the evaluation of casino employees and for scheduling casino employees. He testified that Maryann Egeli, Catherine Daidone, Deborah O'Kane, Joel Respes and Pamela Jiacopello were all competent employees capable of handling the play of a high roller.

Carol Ungerer is a craps floor person employed at Caesars for ten years. She sometimes worked as a pit boss because she is dual rated (both as a floor person and as a pit boss) but she has elected not to work as a pit boss any longer.

Prior to May 13, 1988, she recalls an occasion when Libutti gambled on a table next to hers on a night she was a floor person. This must have been on April 30, 1988, according to the testimony of others.

She recalls watching Libutti play from her vantage point as a floor person on an adjacent table. Richard Slack came up to her and told her that Nick Niglio said to him that he thought Ungerer was the pit boss because she spent so much time watching Libutti's play. She acknowledged that this reprimand was proper. Her job was to supervise the play on her table.

On May 13, 1988, Ungerer was working as a pit boss in pit two on the 12:45 to 9:30 p.m. shift. Shortly after she opened she was told by John Miller, the shift manager, to raise the minimum on a table to $500. She learned Libutti was expected. He arrived at approximately 7:05 p.m.

Ungerer recalled her conversation with Mario DeLuca when he was the pit boss during Libutti's play on April 30th. She recalled that he told her he was not supposed to be near Libutti's table or words to that effect. In addition, she claims that Bogatin told her not to "watch" the game. Although on cross examination she said she might have only "understood" she was not to "watch" the game.

In any case, Ungerer understood the instruction in its literal sense and slavishly followed it, even hiding behind a pillar to block her view of Libutti.

Later in her testimony, Ungerer recalled that Richard Slack found her behind a pillar and told her she did not have to hide. She says he told her "you just aren't to watch the game." She also acknowledged that at her interview with the Division, she said several times that she did not know who instructed her "not to watch the game."

Ungerer says she was also told on May 13, 1988, by Rachel Bogatin "that there weren't to be any female personnel on the table." This was at approximately 4:00 or 5:00 p.m.

Earlier, she says she had asked Debbie O'Kane, who was assigned to Libutti's table, which was not yet active, if she wanted to work table one so as not to be bored. O'Kane said "yes" and went to table one. When Libutti arrived, Ungerer did not bring O'Kane back to work at Libutti's table.

Ungerer says that Bogatin also told her to take Respes off the game "...to avoid a possible confrontation later." Ungerer replaced Respes with a white male. She told Respes she was doing it "... to avoid a confrontation later on." Ungerer says she asked Bogatin twice if she meant for her to move Respes. She says she asked her twice because she sensed trouble.

Ungerer testified several times that she was a "stickler for rules." Unfortunately she was not a stickler for accuracy. She was not untruthful in the sense that she consciously misrepresented the truth. She was merely careless of the truth. She interpreted the events of April 30, 1988, to mean that the pit boss should not, literally, watch the game. Therefore, she interpreted every order or instruction thereafter to mean "do not watch the game," even if the words used were different. This was obvious during both direct and cross examination. In response to questions, she would say she "probably" said this or that. In other words, she assumed that she said something appropriate at the time and then supplied an appropriate answer to the question at the hearing.

Rachel Bogatin is a dual rate shift manager at Caesars and has been employed there for ten years. She worked her way up from blackjack dealer to floor person to pit boss to dual rate shift manager. She reports to Nicholas Niglio.

On May 7, 1988, Bogatin had been a dual rate shift manager for about four weeks. Libutti played at the casino that evening. Bogatin denied that she told Joe Bochen to move dealers on May 7, 1988, because it was not until sometime between May 7, 1988, and May 13, 1988, that Bogatin heard the rumor that Libutti was verbally abusive or that he preferred white males to deal to him.

On May 13, 1988, Bogatin met Niglio on the floor of the casino at about 5:20 p.m. She told him that they had raised the minimum at table eight in the expectation that Libutti was coming and had $5,000. chips on the game. She said that Niglio told her to "leave white males on the game." Later Bogatin asked Niglio what she should do about Ungerer. Niglio told her to leave her there, "she won't be watching the game anyway." Bogatin then told Ungerer "Don't stand on top of the game."

Bogatin left the casino floor on her break when Libutti arrived. When she returned she divided duties with Richard Slack, another shift manager, because he was more experienced at craps than she was. She did not see Libutti play except to walk through once in order to see what he looked like. She told Slack about Libutti's preference for white males.

Bogatin acknowledged telling Respes that she was sorry for the incident and that she promised him it would never happen again.

She also recalls that Niglio told her, just prior to their Division interview, that he had no idea about Libutti's preferences. She claims this remark stunned her because of the conversation she had with Niglio on May 13, 1988, at about 5:20 p m

Jeffrey Johnson is a dual rate pit manager employed ten years by Caesars He was a pit manager on April 30, 1988, on the 8:45 p.m. swing shift. He was assigned to pit two. He relieved Mario DeLuca, the day shift pit boss. DeLuca told him that Robert Libutti was playing on table eight and that Libutti requested that "pit managers not stand next to his game." He said this was not an unusual request. He also reported that Libutti's table was staffed with some women, one of whom was black. He said Libutti was not abusive.

Eric Reynolds has been employed as a training manager for Caesars for the past three years. He is experienced in the areas of training and development, affirmative action, employee relations and personnel. He developed the Upward Mobility Program at Caesars. He described the Upward Mobility Program, the Supervisory Training Program and the efforts of Caesars to recruit minority and female candidates for the programs. The Upward Mobility Program includes a unit on valuing diversity; i.e., emphasizing the salutory effect of a multi-cultural work force.

The Upward Mobility Program also deals with subjects such as "overcoming stereotypes," "getting into the club," "the glass ceiling," individual experiences of upward mobility and the "feelings" that accompany these experiences. He described Nicholas Niglio as a strong supporter of, and a vigorous participant in, the Upward Mobility Program.

In addition, Reynolds said that all new employees are given an orientation course which includes a segment on affirmative action, equal opportunity employment and sexual harassment.

John Groom is Senior Vice President of Casino Operations for Caesars Atlantic City. He has been employed by them for ten years. He recruited Nicholas Niglio away from Resorts. He wanted Niglio to improve staff professionalism and recruit qualified females and minorities to Caesars. He says Niglio has a reputation for expertise in these areas. He has been pleased with Niglio's performance in staff development and recruitment.

Groom recalled a meeting on May 16, 1988, at which time the transfer of Joel Respes was discussed. It was a high level meeting which included the president and chief operating officer of the casino, and others. They ordered an investigation. Groom also immediately advised the shift manager on duty that no personnel would, in the future, be moved on account of sex or race. He asked Niglio to so advise all shift managers and to have them instruct pit managers of the policy. He also made the decision to move a dealer for any reason, the shift manager's decision rather than a pit manager's decision.

Groom acknowledged on cross examination that during his employment interview of Lynden Stockton (whom Groom also recruited), that Stockton included Libutti in his following.

Groom recalled that on May 13, 1988, he learned sometime during the day that Libutti was coming to play in the casino. That evening Groom introduced himself to Libutti at table eight. Stockton asked Groom at that time if he had heard that Libutti didn't like blacks or women on the game. Groom said he had not heard that. He found it so unusual that he wanted to share it with someone. He saw Niglio on the floor and told him about Libutti's preference. He noticed that Niglio was in a hurry; he estimated the time was about 6:30 p.m.

Jack Miller is a casino shift manager at Caesars. He was so employed on May 13, 1988. He reserved a table for Libutti on that day; table eight , pit two. Miller said Ungerer told him that she had advised O'Kane that O'Kane would be moved when Libutti arrived. He recalls she said to him that "they won't have to worry about moving me because I won't be watching the game."

Dan Geiger operates a limousine service. He produced a log book of his company which indicated that a limo was ordered for Mark Juliano at Caesars for 5:30 p.m. on May 13, 1988. He recalled that Niglio was with Juliano on that date and accompanied Juliano to Philadelphia. He said the limo left at 5:30 p.m.

Nicholas Niglio has been employed by Caesars for two and a half years. He is the assistant casino manager. He was formerly the training supervisor at Resorts casino. He included affirmative action and equal opportunity training in his supervision. He instituted an upward mobility program at Resorts.

Niglio emphasized his commitment to affirmative action and gave numerous illustrations of his success in finding and promoting female and minority workers at Caesars. For instance, during his tenure at Caesars, he claims 11 women and four minority workers have been promoted to pit manager out of 18 total promotions. He claimed that he was notorious in Atlantic City casinos for recruiting away from other casinos qualified female and minority employees for Caesars.

On April 1, 1988, he was tipped off that Libutti was coming to Caesars to gamble. Libutti played in pit two where the pit boss was black. Libutti told a Caesars casino host that the table crew was very professional. Consequently, Niglio sent each one a commendation letter. The crew included an oriental male, an hispanic male and a white female. Niglio said that he never heard any of the rumors about Libutti's supposed preferences against black and female dealers, or pit bosses who "hawked" him, until after May 13, 1988.

On May 13, 1988, Niglio arrived at work at about 3:15 in the afternoon. He did office work until 4:00 p.m. when he attended a meeting in the executive suite. The meeting lasted until about 5:15 p.m. Niglio said he left the casino with Mark Juliano to attend a viewing in Philadelphia. On his way out through the casino, he spoke to several people. He has no recollection of speaking to Rachel Bogatin.

Niglio says that the limo ordered for that date departed for Philadelphia at 5:30 p.m. and returned at 10:00 or 10:30 p.m. On his return Niglio learned that Libutti lost $200,000 that evening.

The next day, according to Niglio, he learned for the first time about the transfer of black and female dealers. He emphasized that the order to transfer black and female employees did not come from him as Bogatin alleges. He said he never knew about Libutti's alleged preferences.

Niglio said that sometime after May 7, 1988, but before May 13, 1988, Niglio discussed Libutti with Stockton. Stockton described Libutti to Niglio as aggressive, imposing and intimidating. He says Stockton did not tell him about any preferences for white male dealers.

Niglio also claims that he could not have been told of Libutti's preferences for white male dealers by Groom as Groom alleges because he was in Philadelphia at the viewing at the time when Groom says he told him about the preference. Niglio says he learned from Coleman, who did the investigation for Caesars, about the conflict with Bogatin in their respective testimony.

Roland Coleman is Vice President for Human Resources at Caesars and has been so employed for approximately one year. He has been with Caesars since August of 1983, first as Director of Employee and Labor Relations, then as Executive Director of Administration, then as Vice President for Administration until his recent promotion.

On May 16, 1988, Joel Respes reported to him the transfer which occurred on May 13, 1988. Respes said that he had been discriminated against and humiliated by the transfer. Coleman told Respes that Caesars did not condone the transfer. Coleman reported the incident to counsel, to the senior Vice President for Governmental Affairs and to the Chief Executive Officer of the casino. A high level meeting convened and Coleman was requested to conduct an investigation. Coleman took statements from numerous persons. He was unable to conclude who was responsible for initiating the transfers on May 13, 1988, because Bogatin and Niglio gave conflicting versions of the events. He did not investigate the May 7, 1988 incident.

Coleman also described the reports filed with the Commission which illustrate the progress of licensees in complying with N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5e. The regulation sets employment goals for minority and female workers in the casino hotel industry.

Coleman discussed in great detail the percentages of minority and female representation in various casino department job categories and Caesars ranking with respect to other casinos. For instance, he testified how the industry average for certain casino positions compared with Caesars and Caesars' rank among casinos. His testimony can be illustrated by the following table:

1987			1988			1989

Alfred J. Cade, Senior Vice President for Governmental Relations, has been employed by Caesars for ten years. He discussed Caesars commitment to equal opportunity employment and affirmative action. He traced the history of its efforts since 1979. He also discussed Caesars' role with the Casino Redevelopment Investment Authority and Caesars' direct investment project, the Regency.

FACTUAL AND LEGAL DISCUSSION

I. Ungerer freely admits that on May 13, 1988, she reassigned employees solely on the basis of their sex or race. Her rationale for making the move was to avoid a possible confrontation with Libutti. She says she was told this by Rachel Bogatin.

Bogatin acknowledges that she told Ungerer to move the employees on May 13, 1988, on the advice of Niglio. Niglio denies that he told Bogatin to make the move. Niglio says he left for Philadelphia at 5:30 p.m. promptly that evening and has no recollection of talking to her about it. He recalled that he and Bogatin were in a meeting together from 4:00 p.m. to about 5:00 p.m., when Bogatin left. Niglio says he left the meeting at 5:15 p.m. and left for Philadelphia by 5:30 p.m. after passing through the casino. He recalled two or three conversations with others on his way out of the casino but recalled none with Bogatin. The log book and the testimony of Geiger appear to back up Niglio's alibi. But John Groom recalls telling Niglio about Libutti's supposed preferences at approximately 6:30 p.m. on May 13, 1988, when Niglio says he was in Philadelphia.

A curious inconsistency appears in Niglio's reliance upon the log book showing that he departed the casino at 5:30 p.m. on May 13, 1988. Niglio says he returned in the limo from the viewing to Caesars at about 10:00 or 10:30 p.m. that same night. But the log book indicates that the limo was only gone for two and a half hours. If so, Niglio would have returned to the casino at 8:00 p.m. if he left at 5:30 p.m. But if Niglio is correct that he returned at 10:00 or 10:30, then the limo must have left closer to 7:30 p.m., giving Niglio time to speak both to Bogatin and Groom just as they recall the events.

Another instance which supports Bogatin's version of an event as against others, concerns the May 7th transfer. On May 7, 1988, Maryanne Egeli and Catheryn Daidone were transferred by their pit boss Joseph Bochen. Joseph Bochen said shift manager Rachel Bogatin told him to make the transfer. Rachel Bogatin denies she told Joe Bochen to do this. But Maryanne Egeli testified that shift manager Richard Slack was the one who told her she would be moved. This supports Bogatin's version of that event and her credibility generally.

Other testimony which casts doubt on Niglio's version of an event includes DeLuca's statement that as early as April 30, 1988, Niglio told him not to "crowd" a game played by Libutti in DeLuca's pit. But Niglio has insisted he did not know any of Libutti's supposed preferences until after May 13, 1988.

I believe that Niglio told Bogatin that she should transfer the black and female dealers. I believe that he did it in order to humor Libutti, a high roller.

Groom's description of Niglio and the reasons he recruited him away from Resorts, together with Niglio's own aggressive demeanor and obvious allegiance to the company strongly suggest that Niglio strives as hard as he can for a successful career at Caesars. He is interested in profits and will accommodate preferred customers to the best of his ability. In this case, I do not think he considered the rights or feelings of the transferred employees. Niglio was interested in one thing and in one thing only; how to attract and keep Libutti coming back to Caesars Nevertheless, he intentionally transferred the employees and that transfer was an act of discrimination. Furthermore, no one disputes that the conduct was an act of discrimination. Joel Respes, Deborah O'Kane and Pamela Jiacopello were told to stand aside for a white man. They might just as well have been directed to the back of the bus or to separate drinking fountains.

Nicholas Niglio is not a mere employee of Caesars, a peer of Respes, et al., he is a casino executive with access to the very top level of management. By regulation, he is invested with the authority to operate table games according to policies adopted by the casino's board of directors. N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.12 (a) 7, and 8. His acts bind the casino. This is a strictly regulated industry. N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6) and (13) state:

> (6) An integral and essential element of the regulation and control of such casino facilities by the State rests in the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations. To > further such public confidence and trust, the regulatory provisions of this act are designed to extend strict State regulation to all persons, locations, practices and associations related to the operation of licensed casino enterprises and all related service industries as herein provided.

>
> (13) It is in the public interest that the institution of licensed casino establishments in New Jersey be strictly regulated and controlled ....
>
> In addition, N.J.S.A. 5:12-130g provides:
> It shall be no defense to disciplinary action before the commission that an applicant, licensee, registrant, intermediary company, or holding company inadvertently, unintentionally, or unknowingly violated a provision of this act. Such factors shall only go to the degree of the penalty to be imposed by the commission, and not to a finding of a violation itself.

This language was cited and approved by the Appellate Division in Dept. of Law v. Boardwalk Regency, 277 N.J. Super. 549, 555 and 556 (1988). In that case, the court strictly construed the provisions of the Casino Control Act which regulated gambling by underage persons. In the instant case, the provisions of the Casino Control Act alleged to be violated, N.J.S.A. 5:12-134(b) is to be construed "consonant" with the N.J.L.A.D. N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq. That statute elevates the opportunity to obtain employment to a "civil right." N.J.S.A. 10:5-4. It makes it unlawful for an employer to discriminate in "terms, conditions or privileges of employment." N.J.S.A. 10:5-12.

To insure that these objectives are accomplished, the Casino Control Act gave the Commission extensive power. In section 135 of the Act, it granted the Commission the authority "to impose such sanctions as may be necessary to accomplish the objective of section 134." One of the objectives of section 134 is to require casinos to "abide by" the affirmative-action program of equal opportunity it submits as a requirement of casino licensure. N.J.S.A. 5:12-134C. This is further required by N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a), which extends the guarantees of nondiscrimination throughout the entire course of employment.

II. It is obvious that pit bosses and shift managers were aware that Libutti did not like anyone "hawking" his game as early as April 30, 1988. DeLuca, a pit boss, reports that he was told this by Niglio on April 30, 1988. Johnson, a pit boss who relieved DeLuca, said that DeLuca told him not to stand next to Libutti's table. DeLuca and Ungerer both recalled that shift manager Richard Slack knew on April 30, 1988 that Libutti did not want to be closely watched while he played. Apparently some high rollers do not appreciate a crowd when they gamble and some do not appreciate a representative of management standing by the craps table or blackjack game, wringing their hands in dismay whenever the player is ahead.

Caesars has adopted a policy which prohibits its employees from exhibiting such behavior. Caesars has told its employees that there is no need for such behavior since the casino has adequate funds to pay off winners. It is a reasonable policy.

In this case, the Division alleges that Caesars and Rachel Bogatin, in their effort to humor Libutti, prohibited a pit boss from performing her duty to supervise a craps game by ordering her not to "watch" Libutti's play contrary to N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.2(a)(6). The regulation cited makes the pit boss the third level supervisor of the craps table in her pit.

The pit boss admits that she literally did not watch Libutti's play. She was, however, too unsure of what Bogatin actually told her to render either Bogatin or Caesars liable for an infraction of this regulation. Bogatin says she told Ungerer not to "stand on top of the game." Bogatin was a credible witness, Ungerer was not. Bogatin's instruction was not a direction to Ungerer to violate her duty as a pit boss and leave the craps table unsupervised. It was a reminder of Caesars' policy not to crowd the game; it was a legitimate deference to a high rollers preference for a little anonymity; it was an instruction to use tact and discretion.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

I FIND that Nicholas Niglio intentionally discriminated against Joel Respes, Pamela Jiacopello and Deborah O'Kane on May 13, 1988, by reassigning them and replacing them with white male gaming employees so as to provide one Robert Libutti, a patron, with an all white male gaming staff.

I FIND that Rachel Bogatin intentionally discriminated against Joel Respes, Pamela Jiacopello and Deborah O'Kane on May 13, 1988, by reassigning them and replacing them with white male gaming employees so as to provide Robert Libutti, a patron, with an all white male gaming staff.

I FIND that the Division has failed to prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Rachel Bogatin intentionally discriminated against Maryanne Egeli and/or Catherine Daidone on May 7, 1988.

I FIND that the Division has failed to prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Caesars and/or Rachel Bogatin instructed Carol Ungerer not to supervise the play of Robert Libutti on May 13, 1988.

I CONCLUDE that respondent Caesars is liable for the actions of Niglio and Bogatin on May 13, 1988.

I CONCLUDE that Caesars violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-134b and N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a)2 on May 13, 1988.

PENALTY CONSIDERATION

In this case, the Division seeks the penalty of closure, and demands that Caesars pay full salary to its employees during the period of closure. At first blush, such a penalty seems reasonable.

Everyone knows that racism and sexism exist in the hearts and minds of many people. Racist and sexist jokes still travel well in our society. Racism and sexism are contemptible everywhere: when they are taught at home by word or deed, when they appear in social contacts, when they manifest themselves in the work place When they appear in the guise of policy in a State regulated industry they must be openly and publicly excoriated.

In this case however, Caesars has not adopted a policy which is either racist or sexist in its application to employees. In fact, it has adopted sound policies of affirmative action and equal employment opportunities. These are required by the Casino Control Commission. Caesars honestly attempts to implement them. Caesars appears to be doing as well as, or better than other casinos in attracting and promoting minorities and women.

Many of the Caesars executives who appeared to testify in this case were black, albeit male. Any cynics who might assert that the appearance of these witnesses was based on their skin color and not the relevance of their testimony must keep in mind that their appearance is the best evidence that Caesars is committed to equal employment opportunity. Additionally, recent statistical evidence indicates that women are achieving middle level promotions at a high rate. In the table games department, in which these incidents occurred, it is doing better than average. In fact, Nicholas Niglio, the person responsible for ordering the transfers of black and female dealers, is an important person in the selection and training of female and minority persons for promotion in the table games department.

The action taken here was intended primarily to gratify and seduce a very big customer of the casino. Caesars wanted this customer to return again and again. He was a very high roller. There are various legal ways that a casino can reward high rollers. Complimentary services and items is the traditional way in the casino industry and is approved by the Commissions' regulatory scheme. N.J.S.A. 5:12-14a and N.J.S.A. 19:45-1.9. Unfailing courtesy and attention is another way, but may not be reciprocated by some classes of bettors according to the testimony in this case. Apparently the rudeness of losing bettors is routine in the industry. It must be stressful to casino employees.

Pandering however, as occurred in this case, must always be discouraged. This transfer of black and female dealers was insensitive, bizarre and traumatic. Respes articulated his injury best when he said that he felt as though he had encountered a sign that read: "For Whites Only."

Egeli's response was also classic; "You learn not to say too much ... So I would like to keep my job ... So I didn't say anything." One learns to endure.

Caesars, as well as other casinos, must never lose sight of the fact that a significant factor in their creation is their contribution to the general welfare, health and prosperity of the State and its inhabitants. N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(1). The provision of dignified employment opportunities to area residents is a large part of the bargain

A penalty must be exacted. In considering an appropriate sanction, seven factors must be considered pursuant to the Act. N.J.S.A. 5:12-130.

The conduct complained of created a risk to the public and to the integrity of gaming operations because it demoralized employees, disregarded law and regulation and exalted profits over common decency. If these actions became the standard by which all casinos operated, they would all be no better than disorderly houses.

The conduct complained of was a serious violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-134c. Caesars did not abide by its guarantee of equal employment opportunity to all.

There was no justification for the conduct. In Caesars favor, no theory of justification or excuse was advanced, even though the testimony of some witnesses gave Caesars an opportunity to do so. Their defense of this case was handled in a sensitive and intelligent manner.

There is no indication that this action by Caesars was other than a singular and extraordinary action. Based upon the employment record of Caesars, it could not have been predicted. It surprised Caesars own management personnel. It never happened before, it has not happened since. It is best described as aberrant.

The corrective action taken by Caesars was not adequate. John Groom, Senior Vice President of Casino Operations, orally advised the shift manager, as soon as he heard about the incident, that no personnel would, in the future, be moved on account of sex or race. Groom also asked Niglio to so advise all shift managers and to have them instruct pit managers of the policy. Groom also made the decision to move a dealer for any reason a shift manager's decision rather than a pit manager's decision. He ordered an investigation. These actions were well taken. But they did not go far enough.

Throughout the hearing the Division elicited responses from witnesses that Caesars did not teach employees how to defend themselves from abusive patrons. The Division properly identified this failure as a problem which contributed to this incident. Caesars therefore, ought to study, adopt, promulgate and teach guidelines to all its employees which will assist the employee in handling the rude, unruly obnoxious, demanding, drunken, racist or otherwise bigoted player. If a player is not satisfied with a polite, competent and honest dealer, the player should be moved, not the dealer. Casino's exist to provide decent employment to decent people as well as to provide a source of revenue to the State and to the shareholders.

There was no evidence adduced that Caesars could not afford a monetary penalty. All of the evidence suggested that Caesars was financially sound and an industry leader.

This violation was intentional, albeit uncharacteristic of the respondent. Therefore, the provisions of this section are inapplicable which provide that guilty knowledge is not required in order to find a violation.

An appropriate penalty is the payment of a fine by Caesars of $15,600., the amount of money lost by Libutti. In addition, Caesars shall include in its orientation program for all new employees, a segment dealing with methods to identify and control the abusive patron. This segment shall be presented to all Caesars' employees regardless of their longevity with the company. Prior to presentation to employees, it shall be approved by the Commission.

ORDER AND DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that respondent Caesars shall pay a fine in the amount of $15,600. to the Commission upon receipt of an invoice for the same, and,

It is FURTHER ORDERED that Caesars prepare a teaching segment for all present employees which is to be incorporated into the orientation course for all new employees that deals with methods to identify and control abusive patrons after approval of the said plan by the Commission. The teaching segment shall be submitted to the Commission for approval within six months of the final decision in this matter.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: September 6, 1990 Decided: October 9, 1990

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the complaint filed with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on March 16, 1990, seeking revocation of the respondent's casino hotel employee registration. The respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on April 19, 1990, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held on June 11, 1990, and at that time the parties agreed that the issue in this matter is whether the respondent's continued registration is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2), because he is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 (theft).

The hearing took place on September 6, 1990, at the Office of Administrative Law in Atlantic City, New Jersey, and the record in the matter closed on that date.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

I FIND that the facts in this matter are not in dispute.

Mr. Bojazi, while employed as a food server at the Trop World Casino and Entertainment Resort (Trop World) stole two chicken halves, having a value of $19.00 from the Trop World Carousel Restaurant on October 6, 1989 (P-1).

During the investigation by the petitoner, the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), Mr. Bojazi admitted that he took the two chicken halves, and that he pled guilty to a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 (P-2). He was fined $25, was assessed $25 in court costs and paid $30 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (P-1). Mr. Bojazi paid the $80.

According to Mr. Bojazi, he had worked for Trop World for three years. Mr. Bojazi stated that the Carousel Restaurant has a computer system for the placement of orders and the bills for the food are given to the customer. The food server does not handle any money and the customer has to pay the cashier. On October 6, 1989, the computer was down and the food servers had to handwrite the orders. Mr. Bojazi wrote a fictitious order for two chicken halves, received the cooked food from the kitchen, packed it up and was caught when he attempted to take the food home with him at the end of his shift. Mr. Bojazi was stopped by the security guard and he admitted that he had the two chicken halves. According to the respondent, this was the first and only time he tried to take food from the casino and he could offer no explanation as to why he did it. Mr. Bojazi lost his job at Trop World on October 6, 1989.

Prior to working at Trop World, Mr. Bojazi had a job as a counter server at Resorts International Casino Hotel (Resorts). He left this job for a better position with Trop World. After the October 6, 1989 incident, Mr. Bojazi was able to get a job with Resorts. According to the respondent, he told Resorts about the October 6, 1989 incident and he was hired since he had been a good employee when he worked for Resorts. Mr. Bojazi is now employed as a food server at the Celebrity Deli at Resorts. At the Celebrity Deli, the food servers not only serve the food, but also takes care of the customers' bills with the cashier. The food servers are responsible for the payment of all food receipts.

Mr. Bojazi stated that he is 35 years old, divorced with no dependents. He completed the tenth grade in school. Mr. Bojazi has worked in the casino industry for approximately four years, and prior to that time, he worked as a waiter at other restaurants for about six years. Mr. Bojazi stated that the October 1989 incident has had had a tremendous effect on him, that he learned his lesson, and that he would never steal again. Mr. Bojazi stated that he has always been a good, reliable and honesty employee and described the October 6, 1989 incident as a dumb and terrible mistake. At the time of the incident, Mr. Bojazi had no financial problems and no reason to take the chicken halves. Trop World has a cafeteria with free food for its employees. Mr. Bojazi stated that after he lost his job at Trop World, he was concerned about his registration since casinos offer the best employment in the Atlantic City area. He was also afraid that he could not get a non-casino job.

Joseph K. Grzesowiak, the respondent's roommate for sixteen years, testified on his behalf. Mr. Grzesowiak has worked for Resorts for three years, as a restaurant greeter. According to Mr. Grzesowiak, Mr. Bojazi is a good and honest person who gets along with everyone. Mr. Grzesowiak stated that when Mr. Bojazi returned to their apartment on October 6, 1989, he was very upset, was crying, and was very concerned about whether he could get another job.

Mr. Bojazi ~~offered~~ introduced into evidence an official notice of outstanding performance that he received on May 6, 1990 from Resorts (R-2). This notice indicates that Mr. Bojazi has provided excellent service to the customers at the Celebrity Deli. In addition, Mr. Bojazi submitted a letter from Edward E. Menzer, the manager of the Celebrity Deli (R-1). In this letter, Mr. Menzer stated that it is Resorts' policy only to verify employment; however, he stated that the respondent has his personal recommendation since he is an amicable employee, who has an excellent rapport with his supervisors and coworkers, and who provides excellent service to the customers. According to Mr. Menzer, he has never had any reason to question the respondent's honesty.

On behalf of the Division, Deputy Attorney General Ralph L. Fusco stated that the respondent had admitted the theft, and the question was whether the respondent had presented enough evidence to outweigh the seriousness of the offense in order to show that his continued registration would not be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2).

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The only issue in this matter is whether the respondent's criminal activity renders his continued registration inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act. In order to make this determination, it is necessary to consider the circumstances surrounding the criminal offense as well as the respondent's prior and subsequent conduct, i.e., his rehabilitation. Davis v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985). In order to make a determination relating to inimicality, it is appropriate to consider the following criteria set forth for rehabilitation in N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

Mr. Bojazi has no criminal record except for the 1989 incident, and he has an excellent work record as a food server. The October 6, 1989 incident was an isolated offense. In the approximate one year period since this incident, Mr. Bojazi has not changed his life style; however, he has been able to get another position as a food server in the casino industry.

The October 6, 1989 incident occurred in a casino facility and showed very poor judgment by the respondent, who was a mature person when the offense occurred However, Mr. Bojazi presented convincing testimony that he would not consider such criminal action in the future. Based on the facts presented, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Bojazi has show rehabilitation and that his continued licensure would not be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2).

Therefore, I ORDER that the casino hotel employee registration of the respondent not be REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

BEFORE JOHN R. TASSINI, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner has applied for a casino employee license so that she may work as a secretary in a licensed casino. The Division of Gaming Enforcement ("Division") recommended denial of the application based upon its allegation that the petitioner committed the offense of theft, a disqualifying offense, and that therefore she lacks good character, honesty and integrity. See, N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1); N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g; N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2); and N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b and h

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner applied for a casino employee license and, by letter dated October 13, 1989, the Division recommended denial of the application. By her hearing request form dated November 21, 1989, the petitioner requested a hearing on the matter. By letter dated November 29, 1989, the Division transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") where, on December 6, 1989, it was filed as a contested case. See, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq; and N.J.A.C. 1:1-1:1-3.1. On March 9, 1990, the matter was the subject of a prehearing conference before Administrative Law Judge Joseph Fidler, who thereafter entered a prehearing order. On August 24, 1990, I heard the matter in the City of Absecon Council Chambers. The record was kept open until September 5, 1990 to allow the Division to contact the persons whose letters were submitted by petitioner and to request an opportunity to present evidence in that regard, however, no such request was made, so the record was closed on September 5, 1990.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Based upon the testimony of the petitioner, who was a credible witness, and the exhibits indicated, I FIND the following FACTS:

Petitioner was born on February 5, 1967 in New York City, where she was raised and attended public school.

From about October 1986 until March 1987 the petitioner worked as a saleswoman in Bloomingdale's department store in New York City.

During the time that she worked at Bloomingdale's, petitioner lived at home with her parents, including her mother who had suffered several strokes and was ill with breast cancer and a brain tumor. The petitioner bore the burden of most of the care for her mother, including administering medicine to her, and during this time, she suffered great emotional stress. The petitioner then learned that her mother's brain tumor was cancerous.

The day after the petitioner learned her mother's brain tumor was cancerous, she went to work and sold a lamp for approximately $1,000 cash. The petitioner prepared a sales slip showing the item sold, price, etc., however, she kept the cash rather than depositiong it in the cash register. This was an irrational act since, given the record of the sale which the petitioner had made, her failure to turn in the cash would certainly be discovered. The petitioner spent some of the cash and reported for work the next day as scheduled. The New York City police were called in to investigate; the petitioner immediately admitted taking the cash; the petitioner turned in the cash she still had; and the petitioner was terminated from her job at Bloomingdales. Following completion of their investigation, the New York City police brought no charge against petitioner and no public complaint of any kind was made relative to the incident.

When asked during the hearing why she kept the cash or whether she expected to "get away" with it, the petitioner stated that she could only guess that she had cracked under the pressure relating to her mother's illness and she stated that she did not really see how she could not have been discovered.

The petitioner credibly testified that she has never had any charges of wrongdoing other than this incident, credibly acknowledged that taking the sales cash was wrong, and credibly testified that she would never make such a mistake again.

Following her departure from Bloomingdale's, the petitioner worked for a church and in offices, including a law office; she completed training in the use of office machinery; and her mother entered Beth Abraham Hospital in New York City, where she remains.

About 1989, the petitioner came to New Jersey and obtained work in the casino industry as a "casino scheduling clerk" at the Trump Castle Hotel and Casino. In this position, the petitioner's duties include making and maintaining records relating to personnel, scheduling, salary and medical insurance and she "loves" her job. It is significant that the petitioner handles no cash as part of her duties. The petitioner is very well regarded by her fellow employees who have described her as "very reliable," an employee who has "good job knowledge and does an excellent job"; an employee who "gets along well with everyone"; an employee "with great character and good spirit"; and " the type of person you can depend on with anything." See, P-1, P-2, P-3, P-4 and P-5. The petitioner now resides in an apartment in Atlantic City.

Having observed the petitioner and having considered her testimony and the exhibits admitted into the record, I specifically FIND that there is clear and convincing evidence that the petitioner is a person of good character, honesty and integrity who has been rehabilitated relative to the above- noted incident.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Pursuant to the Casino Control Act, no person may commence employment as a casino employee unless he is the holder of a valid casino employee license. See, N.J.S.A. 5:12-90.

An applicant for a license must submit "information, documentation and assurances as may be required" to establish her qualifications and her "good character, honesty and integrity." See, N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b and N.j.S.A. 5:12-896(2).

A casino license may be denied to an applicant who is disqualified on the basis of criteria including commission of an act which would constitute, e.g., theft of the second or third degree in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-1 et seq., even if such conduct has not been and may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of New Jersey. See, N.J.S.A. 5:12-90e and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

Here there is no dispute that the petitioner committed an act which constitutes theft of the 3rd degree. However, no applicant may be denied a casino employee license on the basis of commission of an act which would constitute, e.g., theft of the second or third degree, provided the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated her rehabilitation, and determination of rehabilitation shall be by consideration of the following factors:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

(4) The date of the offense;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense was committed;

(6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense.

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendations of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision. [N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.]

Relative to the above factors I CONCLUDE as follows: Petitioner's position is substantially that of a record maker and record keeper, i.e., she handles no cash. The offense occurred during a period of great emotional stress, caused by news relative to the petitioner's mother's serious illness, the petitioner residing in her parent's home and the petitioners responsibility for care of her mother. These are circumstances which no longer exist. Also, the fact that police investigated petitioner's "offense" and declined to prosecute substantiates its status as only an isolated occurrence and it is unlikely that the petitioner will repeat such an act. The offense occurred over three years ago. Petitioner was approximately 20 years old at the time of the offense. The petitioner has for the past year and a half earned substantial respect for her character and employment performance, such that her fellow workers and superiors have recommended her as qualified for approval of her application. More specifically, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has affirmatively demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence her rehabilitation and her good character, honesty and integrity within the meaning of relevant laws, such that she should not be considered disqualified and she should be granted a casino employee license.

ORDER

I ORDER petitioner's application for a casino employee license GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

APPLICATION FOR RENEWAL OF THE CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSE OF CHRISTIAN D. BOSQUEZ

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed; and a reply to the exceptions having been filed; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of December 5, 1990,

IT IS on this 7th day of December 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> Reject the ALJ's comments at p. 7 of the initial decision wherein he incorrectly states that section 86(b) sets forth two separate offenses. The ALJ's statements are inaccurate. In fact, section 86(b) sets forth three circumstances whereby an individual may be found disqualified: (1) failure to provide information required by the Act or requested by the Commission; (2) failure to reveal any fact material to qualification; and (3) the supplying of information which is untrue or misleading as to a material fact.
