OAL DKT. NO. CCC-01968-90

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) objecting to the renewal of the casino employee license #054485-21 issued to Christian D. Bosquez, petitioner. The Division alleges, among other things, that petitioner with specific reference to his record of arrests, failed to reveal facts material to qualification and/or has supplied information which is untrue or misleading as to material facts pertaining to the qualification criteria for his casino employee license within the meaning of Section 86b and/or 90e of the Act and that petitioner does not possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its objection with the Commission by letter dated January 29, 1990. Petitioner requested a hearing on March 7, 1990 and on March 9, 1990 the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on June 19, 1990 by Joseph E. Kane, ALJ followed by a hearing which was held on August 27, 1990. The record was closed on September 25, 1990.

ISSUES

A. Whether the petitioner with specific reference to his record of arrests, has failed to reveal any facts material to qualification, or has supplied information which is untrue or misleading as to material facts pertaining to the qualification criteria for his casino employee license within the meaning of section 86(b) and/or 90(e).

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based upon the testimony and documents proffered at the hearing, the following are hereby adopted as FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

Petitioner is a 25 year old single male who commenced his career in the casino industry in 1983 as a hotel registrant in the position of room service attendant at Bally's Park Place Hotel Casino. Petitioner's salary could not support his efforts to obtain a degree in fashion design from the Tracy Warner School in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Unable to find employment while attending school, petitioner was prevented from completing his degree. He returned to the Atlantic City area in 1984 where he commenced employment as a pit clerk at the Claridge. He has worked in various casinos including TropWorld and Trump Castle where he started out as pit clerk and now holds the position of a blackjack dealer.

As part of petitioner's license renewal investigation, Agent David P. Cooke sent petitioner a "ten day letter" which requests that petitioner contact the Division of Gaming Enforcement in order that a personal interview could be conducted. On August 26, 1987 the petitioner had completed his Employee License Renewal Application. On August 17, 1989 Agent Cooke conducted a telephone interview with petitioner at which time he reviewed petitioner's answer to question number 6 and 7 on page 2 of the renewal application form. Question number 6 states:

> "Have you been arrested, taken into custody, charged or indicted by any law enforcement authority for the alleged commission of a crime or other offense, including any high misdemeanor, felony, misdemeanor, or disorderly persons offense, in New Jersey or in any other state or jurisdiction since you were initially licensed or since your last license renewal?"

To this question, petitioner answered "no". Question number 7 states:

> "Have you been convicted of a crime including a high misdemeanor, felony, misdemeanor, or disorderly persons offense in New Jersey or any other State or jurisdiction since you were initially licensed or since your last license renewal?"

Petitioner also answered this question in the negative.

Question number 6 and 7 were incorrectly answered since petitioner had been arrested on two previous occasions. On June 7, 1986 petitioner was arrested by the Atlantic City Police Department and charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana). On April 5, 1987 petitioner was again arrested by the Atlantic City Police Department and charged with possession of a prohibited weapon (knife) and possession of marijuana under 25 grams. This matter was dismissed on August 5, 1987.

Agent Cooke specifically remembers petitioner's interview since it was the first time that an applicant when confronted with question number 6 and 7 the applicant repeatedly denied having any involvement with the criminal justice system. Agent Cooke testified that it is normal procedure to first discuss employment related issues, then financial matters, and finally any matters dealing with criminal arrests or convictions. An applicant's criminal record is discussed last since in general, this is the portion of the interview which is the most time consuming and often the most aggravating for the applicant. Agent Cooke read question 6 and 7 to the petitioner and asked him if he understood the question at least four times before petitioner relented and agreed that he had been arrested. Agent Cooke recalled that he was virtually begging the petitioner to admit to the arrest after reading the question one or two times and was not able to obtain a confirmation of the arrest record until he advised petitioner that he had an FBI rap sheet.

Petitioner's testimony was in sharp contrast to that of Agent Cooke. His recollection of the interview was that Agent Cooke did not identify who he was, began to shout and argue with him and immediately began an inquiry as to his criminal history background. Petitioner claims that he only answered Agent Cooke's questions after he was able to ascertain Agent Cooke's position, who he represented and the nature of his call.

Petitioner testified that he fully understood questions 6 and 7 on the renewal application and answered in the negative because he felt that the June 1986 and April 1987 matters had been dismissed and was thus not relevant. Petitioner claimed that at that time, he was only a recreational user of marijuana. He stated that in June of 1986 he was only holding three pouches of marijuana for a friend and that in April of 1987, without his consent or knowledge, a friend had placed marijuana in his duffle bag. Being afraid that these two arrests would impact adversly upon his relicensing petitioner intentionally answered questions number 6 and 7 in the negative.

A. DID PETITIONER FAIL TO REVEAL ANY INFORMATION OR PROVIDE FALSE OR MISLEADING INFORMATION AS TO A MATERIAL FACT RELEVANT TO HIS RELICENSURE.

Section 86b of the act makes the providing of false or misleading information or the failure to provide information which is material to relicensure a disqualifying offense.

> "Failure of the applicant to provide information, documentation and assurances required by the act or requested by the commission, or failure of the applicant to > reveal any fact material to qualification, or the supplying of information which is untrue or misleading as to a material fact pertaining to the qualification criteria;"

The evidence is clear and unequivocal that petitioner intentionally failed to reveal information and provided false information to the Division when answering question number 6 and 7 on page 2 of the renewal application. His actions were intentional and deliberate especially when considered against the fact that the renewal application was completed by him on August 25, 1987 some 20 days after his last involvement with the criminal justice system. His conduct was deliberate and not committed out of ignorance since he testified that he understood and was aware of what information was required to be revealed by question number 6 and 7.

Section 86b sets forth two separate offenses which constitute a disqualifying offense. The first portion of the statute recognizes that it is an offense for an applicant not to supply information required by the commission.

> "The commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of any of the following criteria:
> b. Failure of the applicant to provide information, documentation and assurances required by the act or requested by the commission..."

The remaining portion makes it an offense not to supply any additionally requested information which is material to licensure. Failure to supply information on the renewal application falls within the former category. In the instant matter, petitioner did not violate the first portion of section 86b through inadvertance or forgetfulness, but instead he deliberately intended to omit "information" required by the commission.

The case of Paul vs. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 2 N.J.A.R. 341 addressed the issue under 86b when an individual intentionally seeks to withhold information from a personal history disclosure form. There it was recognized that intentional omission rather than mere inadvertance constitutes a violation of 86b.

> "The legislature has seen fit to include in the Casino Control Act an express declaration of public policy. N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6) provides in part: An integral and essential element of the regulation and control of such casino facilities by the State rests in the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations. To further such public confidence and trust, the regulatory provisions of this act are designed to extend strict State regulation to all persons, locations, practices and associations related to the operation of licensed casino enterprises and all related service industries as herein provided".

Whether an individual has been arrested despite the fact that such arrests may have been unjustified or that a conviction was subsequently dismissed is material to the licensing criteria set forth in Section 86 of the act. Accordingly, I FIND that petitioner has committed a violation of Section 86b of the act by his intentional omission of the June 1986 and April 1987 arrests from his renewal application. I FURTHER FIND that petitioner's continuing failure to provide information to Agent Cooke during the personal interview which occurred on August 17, 1989 also constitutes and compounds a violation of Section 86b of the act. For these reasons, I hereby REVOKE petitioner's casino employee license #054485-21.

B. DOES PETITIONER POSSESS THE REQUISITE GOOD CHARACTER, HONESTY AND INTEGRITY REQUIRED FOR CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSURE PURSUANT TO N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

Whenever the Division of Gaming Enforcement raises as an issue the good character, honesty and integrity of the petitioner, it is then petitioner's burden to show by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure under the Act. In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the legislature it is imperative that the character and background of the licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure. Clear and convincing falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the facts presented by petitioner are true. The standard requires more than the mere balancing of probabilities but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lapre vs. Caputo, 133 N.J. Super. 118 (Law Div. 1974).

Petitioner presented no less than 15 statements in writing and four witnesses attesting to his good character, honesty and integrity. Each of these witnesses considered petitioner to be a competent casino employee, good friend, considerate and honest individual despite their knowlege that petitioner had twice been arrested for marijuana, once for possession of a prohibited weapon and had intentionally lied on his renewal application. The Division did not draw into question petitioner's work record or ability to perform his job. In sum, the evidence presented on behalf of petitioner indicates that he is a hard working, industrious individual who is both a good and loyal friend and competent employee. To these attributes I agree, however, petitioner's intentional decision to omit vital and relevant information from his renewal application seriously draws into question whether he has demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence his good character, and most importantly, honesty and integrity.

When petitioner was completing the renewal application, the 1986 and 1987 involvement with the criminal justice system had not been forgotten. Petitioner made a deliberate and calculated decision to omit this information and then further exacerbated the charade by repeatedly denying any knowledge of them when questioned by Agent Cooke. Both these actions, the former more than the latter, impact dramatically on petitioner's affirmative duty to demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite qualities set forth in Section 89b and 90e of the Act. Inadvertance or forgetfulness is excusable. Intentional conduct to violate Section 86b of the Act is not and accordingly, I FIND that petitioner has failed to meet his burden placed upon him by Sections 89b and 90e of the Act.

For the reasons set forth above, I HEREBY REVOKE petitioner's casino employee license number 054485-21.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISION for consideration.

INITIAL DECISION

ROBERT J. BOSTIC, SR.,
Petitioner,
v.
STATE OF NEW JERSEY, DEPARTMENT OF LAW AND PUBLIC SAFETY, DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT,
Respondent.

Robert J. Bostic, Sr., the petitioner, pro se

R. Lane Stebbins, Deputy Attorney General, for the respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: August 13, 1990 Decided: September 26, 1990

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the November 14, 1989 letter filed by the respondent, the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), with the Casino Control Commission (Commission), objecting to the issuance of a casino employee license to the petitioner, Robert J. Bostic, Sr. The petitioner requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted on December 27, 1989, to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A telephone prehearing conference was held on April 26, 1990, at which time the parties agreed that the issues in this matter are:

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: theft by deception (a third degree offense), a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee license pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

The hearing took place on August 13, 1990, in the Absecon City Hall, Absecon, New Jersey, and the record in the matter closed on that date.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

I FIND that there are no factual disputes in this matter.

The Division showed at the hearing that the petitioner has the following criminal record:

(1) On April 22, 1980, the petitioner was arrested by the Atlantic County Police Department and charged with receiving stolen property, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-7. The matter was dismissed on July 22, 1980. The petitioner stated that he was a passenger in a stolen automobile. Mr. Bostic revealed this arrest on his application form (R-1).

(2) On April 1, 1974, the petitioner was arrested by the Atlantic City Police Department and charged with assault, a violation analogous to N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1. He was convicted and sentenced to 10 days in jail, which was suspended. The petitioner stated that this incident was a domestic dispute between him and his wife. Mr. Bostic revealed this arrest and conviction in his application form (R-1).

Also during its investigation of the petitioner's application, the Division determined that:

(1) In March 1971, the petitioner received an overpayment in unemployment benefits in the amount of $590. The Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance (UDI Division) represents that this amount was paid based on the fraudulent representations of the petitioner. The UDI Division has assessed a fine of $540 plus interest. The petitioner has repaid part of the amount he owes. According to the report from the UDI Division, he currently owes $614. (R-3). At the time of this incident, Mr. Bostic was employed by the Atlantic City Housing Authority.

(2) In January 1972, the petitioner received an overpayment in unemployment benefits in the amount of $1323. Of this amount, the UDI Division represents that $767 was paid to the petitioner based on fraudulent representations and $556 was paid in error (no fraud). The petitioner has repaid the amount of the fraudulent payment but has not paid the other amount. According to the report from the UDI Division, with interest the petitioner currently owes $869.73 (R-3). At the time of this incident, Mr. Bostic was employed by the Atlantic City Housing Authority.

(3) In February 1982, the petitioner received an overpayment in unemployment benefits in the amount of $1305. Of this amount, the UDI Division represents that $435 was paid to the petitioner based on fraudulent representations and $870 was paid in error (no fraud). According to the report from the UDI Division, the petitioner has repaid almost the entire amount of this debt and he currently owes $47.28 (R-3). At the time of this incident, Mr. Bostic was employed by the Claridge Hotel and Casino (Claridge).

At the hearing, Mr. Bostic stated that he has no recollection regarding the three times he received overpayments in unemployment benefits. Mr. Bostic did not deny that he received the overpayments and that he had repaid some of the monies he owed to the UDI Division; however, he had no recollection as to when these incidents occurred, where he was working at the time of the incidents, the circumstances surrounding the incidents, the arrangements for the repayments or how much he still owes the UDI Division.

Mr. Bostic stated that he probably stopped repaying the debt to the UDI Division because he needed the money to support his family. According to Mr. Bostic, he filed a petition for bankruptcy on April 5, 1989, because he could not pay his debts. Mr. Bostic thought that his debt to the UDI Division may had been dismissed as part of the bankruptcy proceeding. Agent Patrick B. Hickey, the Division's investigator, stated that he had checked into the matter and that the debt owed to the UDI Division had not been discharged during the bankruptcy proceedings. Mr. Hickey stated that he was informed by the UDI Division that the petitioner owes about $700.

On his own behalf, Mr. Bostic stated that he is 37 years old and that he completed the ninth grade. Through the manpower training program, Mr. Bostic took a course in maintenance and repair in 1974.

Mr. Bostic got married when he was 16 years old and he has been divorced for 15 years. Currently, Mr. Bostic helps to support his five children and six grandchildren.

Mr. Bostic has held a number of positions. He was a security guard at the Steel Pier in Atlantic City for three years, a security guard for a detective agency for three years and a security guard for the Atlantic City Housing Authority for two years. Also, he was a gas attendant for two years, and he worked for three years as a truck driver for a bakery.

In 1981, Mr. Bostic obtained a casino hotel registration. Mr. Bostic worked for the Bally's Park Place Hotel and Casino as a cook from 1980 to May 1982, and he was fired because he was absent too many times. Mr. Bostic then got a position as a cook for the Claridge and he quit the job after about one month because he did not like his hours of work. Since June 1982, Mr. Bostic has been employed by TropWorld Casino and Entertainment Resort as a cook. Also in the past, Mr. Bostic was employed for a while by Resorts International Casino and Hotel in a housekeeping position, but he resigned to get a better position.

According to Mr. Bostic, he applied for the casino employee license since he wants to get a better position in the casino industry.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based on the facts presented, Deputy Attorney General R. Lane Stebbins argued that the petitioner fraudulently obtained unemployment benefits on three occasions. Since on two of these occasions the amount that was fraudulently received exceeded $500, Mr. Stebbins argued that the petitioner's conduct was analogous to a criminal violation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft by deception. Mr. Stebbins argued that these two incidents constitute statutory disqualifiers pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, even though criminal charges were not filed against the petitioner. As to the third incident of the fraudulent receipt of unemployment benefits, Mr. Stebbins recognized that less than $500 was involved and therefore the incident did not constitute a statutory disqualifier. However, Mr. Stebbins stated that Mr. Bostic fraudulently obtained the money while he was a casino employee. Mr. Stebbins stated that recently the Commission adopted Administrative Law Judge Mason's initial decision holding that an applicant's casino employee license should not be renewed because he had fraudulently received unemployment benefits while employed by a casino, Thomas v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, OAL DKT. No. CCC 4401-89 (Feb. 7, 1990), adopted by Comm., March 23, 1990. In the Thomas case, Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin stated that it "does not reflect well upon the casino industry or its employees for a licensed person to dip into the public till while at the same [time] reaping the rewards of casino employment" (Id. at 4).

Also as to rehabiliation, Mr. Stebbins recognized that the fraudulent unemployment compensation incidents occurred a substantial time ago, but he argued that there were three separate incidents of fraud and that the petitioner has not repaid the entire amount he owes to the UDI Division. Because of these facts, Mr. Stebbins argued that the petitioner has not shown rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. Further, Mr. Stebbins stated that the petitioner has not presented any support for his position that he is rehabilitated and that he is a person of good character, honesty and integrity. Mr. Stebbins argued that because of the three incidents of the receipt of fraudulent overpayments, the petitioner cannot demonstrate his good character, honesty and integrity as required for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

Mr. Bostic stressed that he wants the casino employee license so that he can get a better job. With such a job, Mr. Bostic stated that he could financially help his family and also repay the remainder that he owes to the UDI Division.

Based on the facts, I CONCLUDE that the Division has shown a statutory disqualification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and 5:12-86g. The Division has shown that based on the two fraudulent claims, the petitioner received overpayments of unemployment benefits in 1971 and 1972 and these incidents constituted theft by deception, violations of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4.

I have difficulty accepting petitioner's testimony that he cannot recall any of the circumstances regarding these overpayments. However, in view of his testimony, I CONCLUDE that there are no mitigating factors relating to the three fraudulent overpayments.

I recognize that the petitioner was a young man at the time of the first two fraudulent overpayments which constitute the statutory disqualifiers. However, he was about 29 years old when he received the latest fraudulent overpayments. Although the 1982 overpayment does not constitute a statutory disqualifier it is a significant factor in evaluating his rehabilitation especially since he was working for a casino at that time. Also, I recognize that the petitioner has made a substantial repayment of the debt to the UDI Division; however, he has not repaid the entire amount nor has he presented convincing reasons for the long delay in repaying the debt. Further, I note that the petitoner presented no witnesses at the hearing regarding his rehabilitation or as to his good character, honesty and integrity.

Based on these facts, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not shown by clear and convincing evidence his rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. Based on the same facts, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not shown by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity pursuant to N.J.S.A 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

APPLICATION FOR RENEWAL OF THE CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSE OF ANGELA E. BROWN

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of October 3, 1990,

IT IS on this 14th day of December 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> To reject that portion of the initial decision, at page 3, wherein the ALJ commented that "[t]he worst that can be said of petitioner is that she was negligent or, if she had any larceny in her heart, that the amount in question was less than $500.... because she obviously did not steal $705 if she was entitled to partial benefits. There is insufficient evidence in the record to support this conclusion. While there is evidence that Brown received some benefits to which she was not entitled, there is no evidence that Brown obtained the money as a result of any purposeful conduct within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. Absent such evidence, a crucial element of the theft offense is lacking and, thus, no disqualification is established under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(1).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the renewal application is granted substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. CCC 6954-89

AGENCY DKT. NO. 90-EA-63

IN THE MATTER OF THE RENEWAL APPLICATION OF ANGELA BROWN

Angela Brown, petitioner, pro se

Record Closed: June 26, 1990 Decided: August 9, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

Angela Brown, petitioner, applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for a renewal of her employee gaming license. The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) objected to the renewal by letter filed with the Commission on August 17, 1989. The petitioner requested a hearing and on September 15, 1989, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held on January 19, 1990 and the issues to be resolved at a plenary hearing were identified. It appeared that the petitioner had a judgment against her from the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance in the amount of $881.25. The Division of Gaming Enforcement equated this with theft by deception, and, pursuant to section 86g of the Casino Control Act (Act), N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq., it presented the matter as unprosecuted criminal conduct.

Persons convicted of certain crimes are disqualified from casino employee licensure pursuant to section 86c(1) of the Act. Theft by deception in an amount over $500 is one such disqualifying crime.

A person can be saved from disqualification by affirmatively showing that she is rehabilitated. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. Casino employees must also demonstrate that they have good character, honesty and integrity. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2). Therefore, the three issues listed in the prehearing order are whether or not the petitioner committed conduct equivalent to theft over $500., if so, whether the petitioner is rehabilitated, and whether or not the petitioner has the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure.

The petitioner was first licensed by the Commission on June 12, 1985. In November of 1985, she was fired from the Tropicana and she applied for unemployment benefits. She was employed as a cashier by Pathmark on November 18, 1985, and she was employed as a cashier by Jamesway on November 21, 1985. She kept both jobs but was terminated from the Pathmark job a month later on December 20, 1985 because she was too slow. She said she did not pick up her first series of unemployment checks until after she was terminated from Pathmark. The Division could not refute her testimony. The petitioner reported her salary from Jamesway to the Division of Unemployment but may not have reported her salary from Pathmark to the Division of Unemployment.

A hearing examiner for the Division of Unemployment assumed that petitioner did not "properly" report her earnings to the Division of Unemployment because, after examining her record of unemployment benefits payments he concluded that she "either did not report her full earnings for the weeks in dispute or she did not make any effort in correcting over payments made..." (emphasis added). The hearing examiner determined that this was fraud.

The total amount of the petitioner's earnings from Pathmark was $160.42 During the same period however, the petitioner collected $705 in unemployment benefits. The difference between this amount and the judgment amount referred to above is the fine imposed by the Director of $176.25.

The hearing examiner in this case, as is apparently done in every case, concluded in the alternative because he did not know how the overpayment occurred. He did not know how the overpayment occurred because he did not have the relevant documents in front of him. The relevant documents, that is, the checks and underlying supporting documents for these transactions which the petitioner executed, were apparently in some archive. He therefore did not know whether the petitioner caused the overpayment by making a false statement, utterance or writing, or whether the mistake was caused by the Division of Unemployment. If the latter case, then the petitioner's fraudulent conduct, if any, was her failure to report checks issued to her in the wrong amount. This assumes that she knew the scale of benefits and was capable of the calculations required.

The hearing examiner obviously calculated the benefits paid against the amounts of earnings reported, noted the discrepancy and reported it as fraud. This is the policy of the Division of Unemployment. It may even be the law. It is a reasonable policy because persons ought not receive more unemployment benefits than to which they are entitled no matter whose mistake it is in the first place. It is even reasonable to demand the repayment of the entire amount of the benefit paid even if the petitioner was entitled, as may have been the case here, to a partial payment. But it is not reasonable to conclude, from all of the evidence received in this case, that the petitioner stole $705.

The worst that can be said of petitioner is that she was negligent or, if she had any larceny in her heart, that the amount in question was less than $500. This is so because she obviously did not steal $705 if she was entitled to partial benefits.

It would have been just as reasonable for the Division of Unemployment to adopt a policy which declared that only the amount received over and above the partial entitlement constituted the fraud and required repayment. The Division of Unemployment, just as reasonably, chose a stricter policy. But one should not acquire the status of a felon by reason of an administrative policy governing the recoupment of overpayments.

I CONCLUDE that the Division has failed to prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the petitioner committed acts which constitute the crime of theft in an amount over $500.

Nevertheless, the petitioner has repaid the sum due and owing to the Division of Unemployment. In addition, she has supplied evidence that her friends, co-workers and her landlord perceive her to be honest, hardworking and faithful.

Petitioner was only 22 years old when this event occurred five years ago. She has the responsibility of a child; she is a single parent. Her work record over the past three years has been steady; she has only changed employment in order to upgrade. She intends to go to college. She has no record of police contacts.

I therefore CONCLUDE that the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure.

The petitioner having committed no crime, the issue of rehabilitation is moot.

I ORDER that the letter objection to petitioner's renewal be DENIED and that the petitioner's casino employee license be RENEWED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

AND PUBLIC SAFETY,

Morton Feldman, Esq., for petitioner
Ralph Fusco, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: July 9, 1990 Decided: August 28, 1990

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In May 1989, the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) objecting to the renewal of a non-gaming casino employee license to petitioner. The Division alleges, among other things, that petitioner committed offenses which automatically disqualifies her for licensure under section 86c(1) of the Casino Control Act (Act) and, that she failed to disclose her arrests as required by section 86b of the Act. The Division, therefore, seeks an order issued by the Commission to deny petitioner's application for the renewal of her casino employee license. Petitioner requested a hearing and, thereafter, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held on September 28, 1989, at which, among other things, the hearing date was established, the requirements for discovery were agreed upon and set forth and, petitioner was granted leave to propound her Motion to Dismiss for Failure to Provide a Speedy Trial on or before December 1, 1989. The hearing was held on January 16, 1990 and continued to July 3, 1990. The record closed on July 3, 1990, upon receipt of petitioner's documents.

ISSUES

The issues to be resolved by this administrative tribunal and as agreed to by the parties are these:

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: N.J.A.C. 2C:20-3, Theft by Unlawful Taking in an amount which would render the offense a third degree crime?

B. Whether the petitioner, with specific reference to her record of arrests, has failed to reveal any facts material to qualification for her casino employee license within the meaning of section 86b and/or 90e?

C. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2)?

D. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act?

MOTIONS

Counsel for petitioner, Morton Feldman, Esq., propounded three (3) motions with respect to the instant matter: (1) Motion to Dismiss for Failure to Provide a Speedy Trial; (2) An application (oral) to invoke petitioner Burnett's privilege against self-incrimination as provided by the United States Constitution, Fifth Amendment; and (3) An application to bifurcate these proceedings by allowing petitioner to testify as to her rehabilitation for alleged criminal activity, as provided by N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h, but, not requiring her to testify as to her criminal conduct (N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1)) pursuant to her Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination.

MOTION TO DISMISS FOR FAILURE TO PROVIDE A SPEEDY TRIAL

Pursuant to the Prehearing Order, petitioner was required to file her application, with accompanying brief of law, on or before December 1, 1989, with regard to her Motion to Dismiss for Failure to Provide a Speedy Trial. The Motion was received by the undersigned on January 30, 1990 and the Deputy Attorney General on June 29, 1990, respectively, over two months and seven months late. It is noted here that Mr. Feldman's Certification of Service is neither dated nor signed by counsel, nor does it indicate a date it was mailed to Deputy Attorney General Fusco.

Mr. Feldman withdrew petitioner's Motion where, when asked by this tribunal as to the status of her Motion, Feldman responded, "Respectfully, your Honor, I didn't feel that the Motion could carry, and I decided not to put it in." (Tr. January 16, 1990, at p. 11, 1. 18-20).

MOTION TO BIFURCATE THE PROCEEDINGS

Mr. Feldman propounded on oral motion on behalf of petitioner to bifurcate these proceedings, as follows: (1) Mr. Feldman would permit petitioner to testify as to her rehabilitation factors, under N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and to her qualities of good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 89b(2) of the Act; (2) Mr. Feldman would then allow petitioner to invoke her Constitutional Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination to avoid testifying concerning her alleged criminal activities.

Petitioner's Motion to bifurcate the proceedings was denied on the record.

CONSTITUTIONAL FIFTH AMENDMENT PRIVILEGE AGAINST SELF-INCRIMINATION (CURRENT N.J. RULES OF EVIDENCE, R. 23, R. 24)

Mr. Feldman objected to the Division calling his client, petitioner, to testify at these proceedings pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-107a(5), and, therefore, invoked her privilege against self-incrimination. Although it was observed by the Division that this was an administrative matter, not criminal, petitioner's counsel insisted that his client was not compelled to give self-incriminating evidence. It was further observed that petitioner's cause to apprehend a criminal prosecution as a consequence of her testimony was rather weak and unpersuasive. Nonetheless, petitioner was granted leave to invoke the privilege.

Subsequently, petitioner was called by her attorney and testified on her own behalf. Thereafter, this tribunal spread on the record petitioner's right to invoke the privilege against self-incrimination together with petitioner's statutory obligation to meet the qualifications for licensure under the Act. Petitioner then agreed to testify and be cross-examined by the Division's Deputy Attorney General.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the testimony and documents proffered at the hearing, and having given fair weight thereto, I FIND the following FACTS in this matter:

Petitioner Donna Burnett presently is the holder a casino hotel employee registration and a non-gaming casino employee license. At the time of the hearing, petitioner was 26 years of age and single. Her original casino employee license was issued on March 21, 1984, with her renewal date of March 20, 1987. She is presently employed by the Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino as a cocktail server and has been so employed since May 1984.

On petitioner's original license application executed on December 15, 1983, question #16 asked whether the applicant had ever been arrested or charged with any felony, crime, misdemeanor, disorderly persons offense, etc. Petitioner answered "Yes," and asserted that she was arrested for trespassing in Egg Harbor Township, New Jersey, in 1976. The matter was subsequently dismissed.

In or about April 27, 1984, when petitioner was 20 years of age, she was arrested by the Margate, New Jersey, Police Department and charged with the possession of drug paraphernalia, in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-47. This matter was subsequently dismissed by the Honorable Paul R. Porreca, J.S.C. on October 22, 1984.

Sometime in 1985, petitioner gave birth to a baby girl. The date of the infant's birth was not set forth on the record. On or about April 18, 1985, petitioner's infant daughter died from sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS), also referred to as "crib death." The putative father of the child was one Gary Young, who denied any responsibility for the child.

On June 10, 1985, Gary Young summoned the Margate City Police to investigate a theft of a 14k gold and diamond ring from his premises. Patrolman Peter Crook investigated the incident and reported that Young believed the theft had been committed by petitioner Donna Burnett. Young stated to Crook that Burnett had telephoned Young that morning and had threatened to kill him with a gun she possessed. Young further stated to Crook that Burnett had appeared at Young's place of employment (Resorts International Hotel and Casino) at approximately 9:00 a.m. and that Burnett had caused a scene (R-4).

Subsequently, on June 26, 1985, petitioner was placed under arrest by the Margate City Police on a charge of terroristic threats brought by Young. During the police interrogation of Burnett, the police advised her that she was a suspect regarding the burglary and theft at Young's residence. Detective Lt. Raymond F Welsh's investigation report states, in part, that:

> ... Donna Burnett ... admitted to breaking into Mr. Young's home, going through some of his possessions and finally taking a ring. Miss Burnett said that on that morning she had been drinking and that earlier in the day she had a confrontation with Mr. Young at his job. When Mr. Young threatened to summon security guards to have her removed Miss Burnett left, very angry. She then went to Margate to Mr. Young's home and made her entry through a window. Miss Burnett went on to say that what she had done was wrong, that a sober mind cannot justify what she did. She went on to say that since breaking up with Mr. Young her life has been a mess. She also said that she holds many ill feelings toward Mr. Young as a result of the baby and the events surrounding the baby and her death. Since the death she feels her life has fallen apart. Somehow, the burglary seemed like the only way to fight back at that particular moment. (R-5)

Miss Burnett went on to say that she wanted to return the ring ever since she took it but that she has been afraid to do so. She was afraid that Mr. Young would be very unforgiving and would have her arrested, which would result in her casino job being placed in jeopardy. Miss Burnett expressed a desire to undo the wrong she committed. She took the officers to her home in Atlantic City where she turned the ring over to them. Miss Burnett was then taken back to the police department in Margate where she was charged with burglary and theft and then processed and released (ROR) (R-5).

The ring, whose value was appraised as $1,590 on October 7, 1980, (R-6), was returned to Young by the Margate City Police. Subsequently, petitioner was indicted by the Atlantic County Grand Jury on two (2) counts; i.e., burglary and theft by unlawful taking (R-8). Petitioner applied for and was accepted into the Atlantic County Pretrial Intervention (PTI) program where she served 40 clock hours of community service with the Salvation Army. On June 6, 1986, the indictment was dismissed (R-8).

On November 25, 1986, petitioner completed the Employee License Renewal Application. Question #6 on the application asks the question:

> Have you been arrested, taken into custody, charged or indicted by any law enforcement authority for the alleged commission of a crime or other offense, including any high misdemeanor, felony, misdemeanor, or disorderly persons offense, in New Jersey or in any other state or jurisdiction since you were initially licensed or since your last license renewal? (R-1).

Petitioner answered the question "No."

On March 21, 1989, petitioner was interviewed by the Division's Agent Karen Smolenski via telephone. Agent Smolenski's Supplementary Summary Report (R-10) asserts that petitioner admitted to a Driving While Intoxicated (DWI) charge in February 1987, however, she denied there were any other arrests. Petitioner continued to deny the earlier arrests even after Agent Smolenski explained that arrests should not be confused with convictions (R-10).

After further discussion with Agent Smolenski, petitioner became agitated, distraught and began crying. Petitioner admitted to the two arrests. Petitioner also stated to Agent Smolenski that petitioner did not disclose the two arrests on her Employee License Renewal Application because she was afraid of being fired. Petitioner also asserted that she had no education, no training and asked, where else was she to get a job (R-10).

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Disqualifying Offense Under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) as Incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) establishes that licensure and registration under the Act are revocable privileges which are "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." Section 129(1) provides for the revocation of or other sanction against the licensee or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this Act which would disqualify such person from holding his license." The Division contends that the petitioner's criminal misconduct constitutes a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), and therefore, she cannot continue to hold a license.

Section 86c(1) of the Act mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of the enumerated offenses under the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice shall be denied a casino license. Section 86g of the Act mandates that an applicant shall be denied a license even if the criminal offense had not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State.

The Division has clearly shown that petitioner was arrested on June 26, 1985 where she was charged by the Margate City Police with burglary and theft. The record demonstrates that petitioner was brought before the Atlantic County Grand Jury which indicted her for burglary and theft by unlawful taking. The record also reflects that the subject of the theft, a 14k gold and diamond ring, was appraised in 1980 as having a retail value of $1,590. Under N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b, grading of theft offenses, the statute states that theft constitutes a crime of the third degree if the amount involved exceeds $500 but is less than $75,000.

Notwithstanding that petitioner was not prosecuted for the offense, I CONCLUDE that under section 86g of the Act, the Division has met its burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that petitioner committed a disqualifying offense,pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

Rehabilitation, pursuant to Section 90h of the Act

An applicant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c(1) disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating her rehabilitation as provided by section 90h of the Act. The factors which the Commission shall consider in determining the applicants rehabilitation are as follows:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

(1) Petitioner Burnett holds a non-gaming casino employee license and a casino hotel employee registration. She has been employed by Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino since May 1984 as a cocktail server. As such, she has direct and substantial contact with casino patrons, although she has no responsibilities for actual gaming activities.

(2) The crime of theft in the third degree is a serious offense and, consequently, is listed as a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1) of the Act.

(3) The seriousness of petitioner's misconduct must be viewed in its appropriate context. Petitioner's credible explanation of the circumstances underlying the theft charge diminish significantly the seriousness of the offense. Petitioner had experienced a traumatic event by the death of her infant daughter occasioned by SIDS. The putative father, Gary Young, denied any obligation or responsibility for the infant and refused to discuss or communicate with the mother of the child. Petitioner, in either an act of frustration or revenge, broke into Young's home and removed some of his jewelry. Upon the advise of a girlfriend, petitioner returned all of the jewelry, except a ring which was dropped in her car, before it was missed. But for the ring dropped in her car, petitioner would, in all likelihood, not have been arrested or charged with burglary and theft.

(4) Petitioner entered Young's residence on or about June 10, 1985 when she removed and returned certain pieces of jewelry. Petitioner was placed under arrest on June 26, 1985 when she appeared at the Margate City Police Department and admitted to having Young's ring in her possession.

(5) and (6) Petitioner was 22 years of age when the offense was committed The conduct of burglary and theft was a single isolated incident.

(7) There were no social conditions which contributed to the offense.

(8) Petitioner has made substantial rehabilitative efforts. She has acknowledged her misconduct and was accepted into a PTI program which she successfully completed. She has earned a positive and respectable employment record with no suspensions or other disciplinary actions evidenced. Petitioner has the respect of her supervisor, colleagues, friends and coworkers as evidenced by their letters of recommendations for her continued licensure. There is a substantial basis upon which to conclude that petitioner does not present a risk to the casino industry and that her rehabilitative efforts now, outweigh the seriousness of her misconduct.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, her rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

Clear and convincing, as a standard of proof, falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here, the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the fact alleged is true. The standard requires more than mere balancing of probabilities, but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (Law Div. 1974); Germann v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466 (App. Div. 1969).

Failure to Disclose, Pursuant to Section 86b of the Act

Section 86 states that the Commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of the following criteria:

> b. Failure of the applicant to provide information, documentation and assurances required by the act or requested by the commission, or failure of the applicant to reveal any fact material to qualification, or the supplying of information which is untrue or misleading as to a material fact pertaining to the qualification criteria; . . .

Petitioner's counsel asserted that there was no contest as to petitioner's failure to reveal facts to the Division (TR. I, January 16, 1990, p. 10, l. 12-13). The record in this matter supports the Division's allegations that petitioner did fail to disclose facts material to her qualifications for licensure. As Judge Fidler, ALJ, observed in Paul v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 2 N.J.A.R. 341 (1979) at 345:

> The Legislature has seen fit to include in the Casino Control Act an express declaration of public policy N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6) provides in part:
> An integral and essential element of the regulation and control of such casino facilities by the State rests in the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations. To further such public confidence and trust, the regulatory > provisions of this act are designed to extend strict State regulation to all persons, locations, practices and associations related to the operation of licensed casino enterprises and all related service industries as herein provided.

There is no statutory rehabilitation from the disqualification criteria pursuant to section 86, under section 90h of the Act. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that petitioner is disqualified from holding a non-gaming casino employee license to perform the duties of a cocktail server, based upon her failure to disclose facts material to her qualification for licensure, within the meaning of section 86b of the Act.

Good Character, Honesty and Integrity as Required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2)

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated within section 90b of the Act, petitioner is required to affirmatively establish her good character, honesty and integrity, by clear and convincing evidence, for the renewal of her casino employee license. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979) at 8; Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985); In re Boardwalk Regency Corp. Casino License, 90 N.J. 361 (1982). When, as here, the Division raises the issue as to the applicant's and/or licensee's good character, honesty and integrity, it is incumbent upon the applicant/licensee to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which this tribunal may reach a reasonable conclusion. Boardwalk Regency, supra, In the Matter of the Application for Boardwalk Regency Corp. and the Jemm Company for Casino License, Casino Control Commission (November 13, 1980). In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of the applicant/licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure.

The herein record clearly demonstrates that petitioner was not truthful when she completed the Employee License Renewal Application on November 25, 1986. She answered Question #6 falsely when she checkmarked the box labeled "No" which asked, among other things, whether she had been arrested since she had been initially licensed. Section 89b(2) of the Act specifically requires that:

> Each applicant for a casino key employee license shall produce such information, documentation and assurances > as may be required to establish by clear and convincing evidence the applicant's good character, honesty and integrity. Such information shall include, without limitation, data pertaining to family, habits, character, reputation, criminal and arrest record, business activities, financial affairs, and business, professional and personal associates, covering at least the 10-year period immediately preceding the filing of the application. . . . (emphasis supplied)

Petitioner's failure to supply the required information concerning her arrests of April 27, 1984 and June 26, 1985 can not lead to a reasonable conclusion that petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure. Notwithstanding her apprehension of losing her job, petitioner was, nevertheless, compelled to answer the questions on the application honestly. When she failed to do so, it also raised questions about her good character and integrity, which the casino industry requires.

Considering all of the circumstances regarding this issue, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet her burden of proof. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that petitioner has failed to demonstrate that she possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, by clear and convincing evidence.

Having considered all of the issues in this matter, I CONCLUDE that petitioner is disqualified from continued licensure and that her application for the renewal of her non-gaming license is hereby DENIED.

ORDER

It is therefore ORDERED that the application of Donna Burnett for licensure as a non-gaming casino employee be DENIED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION who by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Record Closed: August 9, 1990 Decided: August 9, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission on October 13, 1989 objecting to the issuance of petitioner's casino employee license. Additionally, on March 2, 1990 the Division of Gaming Enforcement filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission seeking revocation of petitioner's casino hotel employee registration #96770-40.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division alleges as to both the casino license and the hotel registration that petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier for licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)1 and that he lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(b) incorporating 89(b)2. Petitioner requested a hearing and the Commission transmitted the matters to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on April 23, 1990 by Jeff S. Masin, ALJ. An Order was entered on May 17, 1990 requiring consolidation of the above captioned matters. A hearing was conducted as to both of these matters on July 19, 1990. The record was held open until August 9, 1990 to permit the petitioner additional time to submit evidence concerning his rehabilitation, good character, honesty and integrity.

The issues to be determined by this tribunal are as follows:

A. Has Mr. Cassick engaged in conduct which constitutes an automatic disqualification from licensure, pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)1? With respect to these matters, the Division relies upon the allegations contained in its complaint and the letter to the Casino Control Commission dated October 13, 1989.

B. If Mr. Cassick has engaged in disqualifying conduct, does the evidence presented establish that he has rehabilitated himself, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h) and 91(d)?

C. In connection with the casino employee license application, does Mr. Cassick have the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(b) incorporating 89(b)2?

D. In connection with the casino hotel employee registration, if Mr. Cassick is otherwise disqualified for registration, does the evidence and circumstances presented require that the disqualification be waived in the interests of justice and consistent with the public policy of the Act, as provided at N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(e)?

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon testimony and evidence presented during the hearing, the following facts are not in dispute and thus are herein adopted as FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

Petitioner is a 27 year old single male with no dependents. Prior to moving to the Atlantic City area he was a resident of Johnstown, Pennsylvania where he lived with his family. He had never been arrested or had any problems with the law prior to the evening of February 2, 1985. It was on that evening that his problems began.

Mr. Cassick, on the evening of February 2, 1985 was in a bar when a disturbance occurred as a result of a drink being spilled. Mr. Cassick pushed a gentlemen out of the way at the time the drink was spilling. This minor incident would later prove to be the catalyst for a more serious confrontation between Mr. Cassick and four other individuals. During the course of the evening, Mr. Cassick had approximately five drinks. Unbeknownst to him, four individuals had assembled outside the bar intending to engage him in a fight. Immediately upon opening the door to leave, he was confronted with two men on either side of the door and two other men immediately in front of him. One of these men was rapidly advancing towards Mr. Cassick, butterfly knife in hand, apparently intending to even the score from the earlier altercation. These gentlemen were unaware that Mr. Cassick possessed a third degree black belt in ty kwon du. Within an instant, Mr. Cassick had acquired the weapon and turned it on his assailant. Despite the fact that the first assailant had been stabbed in the stomach, the other three continued to advance towards Mr. Cassick. In the altercation, a second assailant was stabbed which prompted the remaining men to flee the area. It was then that a police officer pushed Mr. Cassick against a wall in an attempt to subdue him. A scuffle ensued at which time Mr. Cassick attempted to strike the officer. He explained that he was trying to inform the officer that he was acting in self-defense, however, the officer continued to attempt to subdue him.

Mr. Cassick was asked whether considering his martial arts prowess it was necessary to inflict a stomach wound upon both assailants. He explained that he would have been placed in greater jeopardy had he thrown the knife on the ground since this would have again made the weapon available to be used against him. He reasoned that there simply was not time to place the weapon in his pocket and that his martial arts training dictated the evasive actions taken by him. As a result of the above captioned incident, Mr. Cassick was arrested on February 2, 1985 and charged with two counts of aggravated assault as a result of the stabbings, one count of resisting arrest and one count of recklessly endangering the life of another individual by placing a knife to her throat. This latter charge was dropped on the grounds that it was a false accusation which was fabricated by a friend of one of the victims.

On July 11, 1985 Mr. Cassick pled guilty to one count of aggravated assault and one count of simple assault. He was ordered incarcerated for a period of 16 to 32 months in the County Prison. His incarceration began on October 22, 1985 and ended 16 months later. Mr. Cassick was 22 years old during this time period.

On September 27, 1985 Mr. Cassick was arrested in Pennsylvania and charged with conspiracy to distribute a controlled dangerous substance, cocaine. The investigation report indicated that Mr. Cassick and another individual conspired to sell cocaine (one gram) to an undercover police officer. Apparently Mr. Cassick was again in the wrong place at the wrong time. On September 27, 1985, he met a friend who stated that he needed a ride. Mr. Cassick obliged and took his friend to his destination. He stated that he had known this individual since they were ten years old and although he knew he used cocaine, he was not aware that he was a distributor or sellor of the drug. Mr. Cassick disavowed any knowledge of his friends mission and stated that while he waited in the car his friend stepped out and made the deal with the undercover police officer. When asked during the course of the hearing why he entered a plea of guilty he responded that it was his word against many others and he just did not feel that it was worth fighting. On January 10, 1986 Mr. Cassick entered a plea of guilty to conspiracy to distribute a controlled dangerous substance and received a sentence of 6 to 23 months in the County Jail to run concurrently with his sentence for aggravated assault set forth above.

The Division of Gaming Enforcement alleges that Mr. Cassick's plea of guilty to one count of aggravated assault and one amended count of simple assault is comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(b)(1) which states as follows:

> "A person is guilty of aggravated assault if he:
> (1) Attempts to cause serious bodily injury to another, or causes such injury purposely or knowingly or under circumstances manifesting extreme indifference to the value of human life recklessly causes such injury..."

The Division also alleges that Mr. Cassick's plea of guilty to one count of conspiracy to distribute a controlled dangerous substance is equivalent to N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2 which states:

> "A person is guilty of conspiracy with another person or persons to commit a crime if with the purpose of promoting or facilitating its commission he:
> (1) Agrees with such other person or persons that they or one or more of them will engage in conduct which constitutes such crime or an attempt or solicitation to commit such crime; or

and N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5(a)(1) which states:

> "Except as authorized by P.L.1970, c.226(C.24:21-1 et seq.), it shall be unlawful for any person knowingly or > purposely:

Based upon the facts set forth above, I FIND that Mr. Cassick's conviction for aggravated and simple assault entered in Pennsylvania on July 11, 1985 together with his conviction for conspiracy to distribute a controlled dangerous substance entered on January 10, 1986 are equivalent to the respective New Jersey State statutory cites set forth above and accordingly, constitute disqualifying offenses pursuant to Section 86(c)1 of the Act.

Pursuant to Section 5:12-(1)b(8) of the Act, it is established that licensure under the Act is a revocable privilege which is conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee. Section 129(1) of the Act provides for the revocation of or other sanctions against the license held by a person for the commission of any other offense or violation of this Act which would disqualify such person from holding his license. The Division has proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Mr. Cassick's conduct as set forth above does constitute a disqualifying offense pursuant to 86(c)1 of the Act. See State vs. Moore, 158 N.J. Super. 68 (App. Div. 1978).

Despite the fact that Mr. Cassick has committed an 86(c)1 violation, he may nevertheless retain his casino hotel employee registration and qualify for his casino employee license provided that he can demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that he has rehabilitated himself. Mr. Cassick, pursuant to Section 91(d) of the Act need only demonstrate rehabilitation to preserve his hotel registration. In order to obtain his casino license, Mr. Cassick must show not only that he has been rehabilitated under Section 90(h) of the Act, but also that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required of him pursuant to Section 89(b)2 of the Act. A showing of rehabilitation in and of itself is not sufficient to obtain a casino employee license.

The eight rehabilitative factors to be considered by this tribunal are identical in both sections 90(h) and 91(d). Accordingly, a finding of rehabilitation means that Mr. Cassick can retain his hotel registration but must overcome one more hurdle that of demonstrating his good character, honesty and integrity pursuant to Section 90(b) of the Act in order to obtain his casino employee license. The eight specific factors to be considered by this tribunal are:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
4. The date of the offense or conduct;
5. The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;
6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

Applying these eight factors, I FIND as follows:

1. Nature and duties of the position.

Mr. Cassick began employment on or about July 21, 1989 at the Sands Hotel Casino in the position of a hotel porter. Within three weeks he was promoted to bus greeter within the Day Tours Department. During this period, he has been well liked by his supervisors who uniformly agree that he has an excellent work record. (See R-2 thru 4). Mr. Cassick is entrusted with upwards of $10,000 of coin coupons per day which he distributes to the various casino patrons. Sands officials feel confident to entrust him with these vouchers and so indicated by letter dated July 7, 1990.

2. Seriousness of the offense.

I FIND that both offenses committed by Mr. Cassick in 1985 of conspiracy to distribute CDS and aggravated assault constitute serious offenses. As set forth in number 3 below, however, there are factors which mitigate slightly in his favor.

3. Circumstances surrounding the offense.

Just as the Bernard Getz case has been debated, the instant matter presents the question as to how much force is reasonable to defend oneself when presented with a potentially life-threatening situation. Considering that Mr. Cassick who was unarmed was accosted by four individuals, one of which was armed with a knife, the action taken by him may have been the only viable alternative. Mitigating in his favor is the fact that he was apparently ambushed and did not instigate the altercation.

The second charge on the otherhand, Mr. Cassick appeared to be a more willing initial participant in that he willingly drove his friend to the site of a drug deal. He disavowed any knowledge of the consipiracy, however, I believe that a reasonable and prudent person would have, before driving a friend to a location, first inquired into the where and why before providing transportation.

4. Date of the offense.

Mr. Cassick was charged with aggravated assault on February 2, 1985 and pled guilty to said charge on July 11, 1985. He was charged with consipiracy to distribute CDS on September 27, 1985 and pled guilty to said charge on January 10, 1986.

5. Age at the time of the offense.

Mr. Cassick at the time of both above offenses was 22 years old.

6. Has the offense in question been repeated.

Mr. Cassick had never been involved with the criminal justice system prior to the two offenses which occurred in 1985 and has no other involvement since other than an arrest for DWI on his birthday in 1988.

7. Any social conditions which contributed to the offense.

Mr. Cassick attributed the two offenses in question to his age at the time (22) and the fact that he was living in a small town with high unemployment. Since removing himself from that environment, he feels that he is improving his life.

8. Evidence of rehabilitation occurring subsequent to the offense.

Mr. Cassick served 16 of a possible 32 month sentence commencing on October 22, 1985. As part of his sentence, the judge approved a work release program which commenced two months after he entered jail. He was employed at Will's Auto Sales performing general maintenance during the day and returning to the jail at night. There were no disciplinary problems with Mr. Cassick while incarcerated. Upon his release in February of 1986 he obtained employment with Jeff Graffius Construction as a roofer. He enjoyed a good work reputation with this latter employer.

CONCLUSION

When evaluating whether an individual is rehabilitated, two of the most important elements are whether the offense has been repeated and the time that has lapsed since the event. In this instance, both factors weigh heavily in favor or Mr. Cassick. Approximately five years have elapsed from the crimes which occurred in 1985 and he has been out of jail for over four years. Note must also be taken of the fact that he was approved for work release at the time of his sentencing for aggravated assault and thus it can be assumed that the court did not consider him to be prone to violence or otherwise a threat to the community. The court's evaluation was apprarently correct since he has not engaged in any such conduct since 1985. Given his age in 1985 that of 22 and considering that he was in all likelihood acting in self-defense, and further considering that he has been and is now still gainfully employed and has achieved the respect of his supervisors, I FIND that Mr. Cassick has rehabilitated himself pursuant to Sections 91(d) and 90(h) of the Act.

Has Mr. Cassick demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required of a casino license holder pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b).

The letters submitted by Mr. Cassick's supervisors (R-2 thru 4) attest to Mr. Cassick's more than adequate abilities and willingness to perform his job. They speak of him as being prompt, trustworthy and honest. He is entrusted with large sums of coin redemption coupons on a daily basis and has never given his supervisors any cause for concern.

Obviously, in 1985 Mr. Cassick would have failed the Section 89(b) test, however, since then he has improved to the extent that his current supervisors find him to be hardworking, trustworthy and honest. The amount of time which has elapsed from the disqualifying offense together with the absence of any adverse information concerning Mr. Cassick is a factor which mitigates greatly in his favor.

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, I FIND that Mr. Cassick does possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required of a casino license holder pursuant to Section 89(b) of the Act.

Do the circumstances set forth above warrant the extraordinary relief of waiver being granted to Mr.

Cassick.

Section 91(e) of the Act permits the Casino Control Commission to grant a hotel registrant the right to be employed in the industry even if the registrant has been disqualified pursuant to Section 86(c)1 of the Act and has failed to demonstrate his or her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence pursuant to Section 91(d) of the Act. In order to obtain a waiver, the hotel registrant must demonstrate that despite a negative finding of rehabilitation, the interest of justice dictates that the registration should issue. Extraordinary circumstance must thus exist in order to obtain such relief.

In the instant matter, I hereby recommend that in the event the Commission does not find rehabilitation under Section 91(d), the Commission, nevertheless, should issue a waiver based upon the individual circumstances of this case. In particular, Mr. Cassick has demonstrated through the passage of time, that he has rehabilitated himself and is now a trusted and valued employee. He apparently was trusted by the judicial system in 1985 when he was granted work release and he is now trusted by his supervisors with thousands of dollars of coin coupons on a daily basis. This demonstrates his worthiness to be employed by the casino industry and I recommend the Commission grant such a waiver pursuant to Section 91(e) of the Act.

CONCLUSION AND RECOMMENDATION

For the reasons set forth above, I hereby HOLD that Craig M. Cassick has committed a disqualifying offense pursuant to Section 86(c)1 of the Act and that despite such disqualification he demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence his rehabilitation pursuant to Section 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act and I FURTHER HOLD that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required of a casino employee license holder pursuant to Section 90(b) of the Act. For these reasons, I HOLD that Craig M. Cassick should be permitted to retain his casino hotel employee registration #96770-40 and receive a casino employee license. I FURTHER RECOMMEND that should the circumstances dictate, that the Commission grant to Mr. Cassick the extraordinary relief of waiver in order that he may retain his casino hotel employee registration #96770-40. IT IS SO ORDERED.

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALAJ:

This matter was opened to the Office of Administrative Law following transmittal from the Casino Control Commission. The Division of Gaming Enforcement had filed a petition with the Commission seeking to place Mr. Casso's name on the exclusion list and thereby exclude him from any casino hotel facilities, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-71 and 107 and N.J.S.A. 19:48-1.1 et seq. Following transmittal, the matter was the subject of a prehearing conference held by telephone on April 5, 1990 and Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin issued a prehearing order on April 12, 1990. Thereafter, the matter was scheduled for hearing before Judge Masin at the Office of Administrative Law in Newark on August 9, 1990. Prior to the hearing date, Mr. Casso, through counsel, had indicated that he would be invoking his Fifth Amendment privilege at the hearing. Nevertheless, the parties were advised of the necessity of a hearing on August 9, so that all appropriate questions could be posed and witnesses presented. Prior to August 9, Mr. Casso's attorney advised Deputy Attorney General Fusco that he did not intend to appear at the hearing because he had not been able to be in communication with his client. On the day of the scheduled hearing counsel did not appear and Mr. Casso, who had also been notified of the hearing date by the Office of Administrative Law via notice of July 10, 1990, did not appear either. In view of Mr. Casso's failure to appear, the administrative law judge held the file for ten days, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4. No explanation for Mr. Casso's failure to appear has been provided either by he on his own behalf or by his attorney. Based upon his failure to appear, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Casso has determined to forego an appearance in defense of the allegations contained in the complaint. Therefore, based upon N.J.S.A. 5:12-108d, Mr. Casso's failure to appear constitutes an admission of all matters and facts contained in the complaint and a waiver of his right to a hearing. Since the petition filed by the Division with the Commission alleges grounds for exclusion based upon allegations that Mr. Casso is a person appropriate for placement in that he has been identified as a member of a career offender cartel, N.J.S.A. 5:12-71, and since by his failure to appear he admits these allegations as well as the specific allegations contained in the Complaint detailing Mr. Casso's involvements, connections, and relations with the Luchese Organized Crime Family and further admits his plea of guilty to attempted bribery in conjunction with an indictment returned by the Bronx County Grand Jury, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Casso has admitted sufficient grounds for exclusion. It is therefore ORDERED that Mr. Casso shall be excluded from all casino facilities and entities in accordance with the statute and regulations and that all appropriate notifications shall be provided to all casino facilities so as to effectuate the purposes of this Order.

Betty J. Corbin, the petitioner, pro se

Norma L. Stancil, Deputy Attorney General for the respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: September 21, 1990 Decided: October 1, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Betty J. Corbin, applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the renewal of a casino employee license (blackjack floorperson and craps dealer), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90. The respondent, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), opposed the renewal of the license by reason of its contention that the petitioner had committed a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), by means of section 86g, and therefore, she lacked the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference. The petitioner contended that she was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 90h.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed with the Commission an application for the renewal of a casino employee license so she could be employed as a craps dealer at the Sands Hotel and Casino. By letter to the Commission, dated June 15, 1989, the Division objected to the petitioner's application for licensure as a blackjack floorperson and craps dealer asserting that the petitioner had committed the offense of theft by deception in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 (sic N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4), which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by section 86g. The Division also objected pursuant to section 89(b)2. Based upon the report, the Commission notified the petitioner on July 20, 1989, that questions were raised concerning her qualifications under the Casino Control Act and that she had the right to a hearing. By application dated July 25, 1989, which was received by the Commission on August 1, 1989, the petitioner requested a hearing. On August 2, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on August 8, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before Administrative Law Judge Lillard E. Law on December 7, 1989. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft by deception (in excess of $500, third degree).

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) as incorporated within section 90b.

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing commenced on May 14, 1990, in the Office of Administrative Law, Atlantic County Civil Court House, Atlantic City, New Jersey. At that time, the petitioner requested an adjournment in order to afford her the opportunity to obtain counsel. This request for an adjournment was granted; however, she was informed that no further adjournments for this reason could be granted.

A hearing in the matter was held on September 21, 1990, at the Municipal Courtroom, Absecon City Hall, Absecon, New Jersey, after which the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

In September 1979, the petitioner became employed as a security guard at Caesars Boardwalk Regency Hotel and Casino. In 1980, the petitioner became licensed as a blackjack dealer and she became a blackjack dealer at Caesars. In February 1981, the petitioner was released from her position at Caesars for excessive absenteeism.

On February 6, 1981, the petitioner filed a claim for unemployment benefits at the Atlantic City office of the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance (R-1, R-3 & R-4). Upon application, the petitioner was informed that it was her obligation to inform her local unemployment office of any changes in her employment status. The petitioner was determined to be eligible for benefits in the amount of $133.00 per week (R-1 & R-3).

On April 17, 1981, the petitioner became employed by the 1401 Artic Corporation as a barmaid at Ike's Corner. She retained this employment until February 5, 1982 (R-3). The petitioner did not report her employment at Ike's Corner to her local unemployment office, and she continued to receive unemployment benefits until August 6, 1981, at which time the petitioner voluntarily stopped receiving unemployment benefits (R-1 & R-3). During this period, the petitioner earned $2,036.80 while employed at Ike's Corner (R-3). Because the petitioner failed to notify her local unemployment office of her employment, she received unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled in the amount of $2,128.00 (R-1, R-3 & R-7).

In January 1982, the petitioner was hired as a blackjack dealer at the Sands Hotel and Casino. In approximately 1983, the petitioner received a credential as a craps dealer, and she began dealing craps at the Sands. She is still employed at the Sands as a craps dealer and her annual performance reports have been excellent. She has recently been considered for promotion to a box person; however, that promotion is being held pending the outcome of these proceedings.

On December 21, 1982, the Department of Labor (Department) attempted to notify the petitioner that it would be conducting a hearing on January 6, 1982 (sic 1983) concerning the unemployment benefits she had received between April 17, 1981 and August 6, 1981, while the petitioner had been employed (R-4). The petitioner had been unable to pay her rent while employed at Ike's Corner. As such, she moved from Pleasantville to Atlantic City. As a result, she did not receive any of the correspondence from the Department until it was provided to her by the Division in 1990 as part of its discovery in this case. (Upon her reentry into the casino industry in 1982, the petitioner notified the Commission of her change of address from Pleasantville to Atlantic City (R-17)). The petitioner failed to attend the scheduled hearing. The Department indicated that it was unable to contact the petitioner as the notice had been returned by the postal service as being undeliverable (R-5). The Department thereafter made a determination in the case based on the record. On January 25, 1983, the Department determined that the petitioner had received unemployment benefits in benefit year 1981 in the amount of $2,128.00, which she was not entitled to receive, and it imposed a fine of $320.00 for a total claim of $2,448.00 (R-7). The Department then filed a certificate of debt for $2,448.00 in the Superior Court of New Jersey on March 28, 1983, and a judgment was entered and docketed on April 1, 1983 (R-8, R-9, R-10 & R-12). While the case was referred by the Department to the Attorney General's office for possible criminal prosecution, the petitioner was never charged with any criminal offense arising out of this incident (R-6).

The petitioner is 49 years old and was approximately 40 years old at the time of her receipt of unemployment benefits. She is a single mother with two children, one of whom still resides with her. She dropped out of school after junior high school, however, she obtained her high school equivalency diploma (G.E.D.) when she was approximately 35 or 36 years of age.

At the time she was fired from Caesars she was residing in Pleasantville and supporting both of her then minor children. She was fired without notice for five incidents of absenteeism. She did not receive a final paycheck as it was withheld to pay for her attendance at dealers school. She continued to collect unemployment benefits while working at Ike's Corner as her salary was insufficient to pay for her rent, utilities, food and clothing for herself and her children. Her primary concern at that time was to provide shelter, food and clothing for her children. She was raised in Tampa, Florida, and as such, she had no family in the area to help her, and she was the sole support for her minor children.

The first time the petitioner became aware of her unemployment debt was when she was questioned by a Division agent regarding her renewal application. The first time she received any of the supporting documentation was when it was provided by the Division as part of its discovery in this matter. The petitioner has since contacted the Department and entered into a repayment agreement. She has made payments in the last four months, and she is current. She intends to fully repay this debt.

The petitioner submitted five letters of recommendation in her behalf. The first, written by Wilbert L. Royal, Sr., vice-principal of the Westside School Complex provides in pertinent part:

> I have had the pleasure of knowing Ms. Corbin for over fifteen years. During that period of time she has demonstrated her willingness to go above and beyond the call of duty on task oriented duties.
> She is an inspiration to me and all of the people who interact with her. Her zeal and zest to better herself has always been an inspiration to me. Betty is a genuinely good person. In addition to knowing her, we reside in the same neighborhood. She is well liked and respected by all of the neighbors. She has my highest recommendation. [P-1]

The second, written by Jacqueline Blount, dated June 4, 1990, provides:

> I Jacqueline Blount have known Betty Corbin, for approximately ten years-in knowing her I have grown to love and respect her, because of the qualities she possesses.
> She is honest, hardworking, a very good mother, and has a great sense of humor that uplifts your spirits when you may be feeling down.
> Betty is the type of person anyone would feel fortunate and cherish as a friend. Because the qualities she possesses, once again are not found too much in this day and time. If there were more people like her this world would be a much happier place to live. [P-2]

The third letter was written by Rene' Smith and provides:

> I am a close friend of Mrs. Betty Corbin. She is a wonderful person.

> I have known Betty in excess of ten years. She is a respected employee.
> Everyone has the highest regards for Betty. She has been both a friend and a dedicated co-worker. I have known her to be extremely honest, trustworthy, and of the highest character. [P-3]

The fourth letter was written by Virginia Hill on June 28, 1990, and provides in pertinent part:

> She is a hardworking, law-abiding upstanding citizen of this community. She is the kind of person who will fulfill her obligations, when she can, regardless of how long it may take.
> She is a devoted mother and a true friend. I am proud to be living in the same neighborhood with her. Her word is her bond, which is a rare thing. [P-4]

The final letter was written by Gladys F. Gilmore and provides in pertinent part:

> She is a woman of great character and wonderful temperanet [sic] who enjoys a splendid reputation for integrity, honesty, and loyalty. [P-5]

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the petitioner's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident and her current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess her credibility. Initially, her position in this matter must be recognized. As the petitioner and the applicant for a casino employee license, she has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the petitioner's demeanor, the plausibility of her testimony, the manner in which she participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appeared that the petitioner testified truthfully in every regard. She candidly admitted her misconduct and described in detail, experiencing great humiliation, the underlying circumstances. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the petitioner's testimony in all respects.

I am persuaded that her misconduct was, in part, due to mental and emotional immaturity, irrespective of her age. I am also inclined to believe that it was the result of inexperience and the difficulty in dealing with her financial and family affairs. At the time the petitioner obtained the job and failed to disclose this fact to her local unemployment office, she was in a difficult living arrangement. She had a significant drop in income. She could not afford to pay her rent or provide food or clothing for her children. She was in debt, and her primary concern was to provide food and shelter for her children. Although her actions were clearly and admittedly wrong, the underlying circumstances do mitigate somewhat the seriousness of the misconduct. In addition, the absence of any other criminal misconduct supports this finding.

In determining whether the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

DISCUSSION

The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft by deception -third degree, which constitutes a violation of section 86c(1), and that, accordingly, she is disqualified from continued licensure.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g

Section 86g provides that an applicant will be disqualified from licensure because of the commission of any action which would constitute an offense under section 86c, even if there has not been a prosecution for such conduct. Section 86c(1) mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends that the petitioner's receipt of unemployment benefits in excess of $500 between April 17, 1981, and August 6, 1981, while she was employed by Ike's Corner constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which under the circumstances disqualifies the petitioner from continued licensure.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, Theft by deception, provides:

> A person is guilty of theft if he purposely obtains property of another by deception. A person deceives if he purposely:
>
> a. Creates or reinforces a false impression, including false impressions as to law, value, intention or other state of mind; but deception as to a person's intention to perform a promise shall not be inferred from the fact alone that he did not subsequently perform the promise;
>
> b. Prevents another from acquiring information which would affect his judgment of a transaction; or
> c. Fails to correct a false impression which the deceiver previously created or reinforced, or which the deceiver knows to be influencing another to whom he stands in a fiduciary or confidential relationship.
> The term "deceive" does not, however, include falsity as to matters having no pecuniary significance, or puffing or exaggeration by statements unlikely to deceive ordinary persons in the group addressed.

This statute has been held applicable where one wrongfully receives unemployment benefits. In State v. Moore, 158 N.J. Super. 68, 85-86 (App. Div. 1978), the court stated:

> As we read the trial judge's findings, defendant knowingly misrepresented his employment status to obtain money "under pretense that he is . . . out of employment." These findings establish a violation of N.J.S.A. 2A:111-2.[1] It is not necessary to prove a

"corrupt intent," so long as the evidence establishes a criminal intent. See State v. Lambertson, 110 N.J. Super. 137, 141-143 (App. Div.), certif. den. 56 N.J. 479 (1970). It is immaterial that defendant may have felt entitled to some unemployment benefits and, therefore, did not have a "conscious" intent to defraud or to commit a criminal or immoral act. It is not necessary to show that defendant was "conscious that his acts were unlawful." Id. Defendant himself testified, in effect, that he received more benefits than he thought he should receive, based upon the hours he allegedly worked - or did not work. It was unnecessary to determine the exact amount of overpayment, so long as the wrongful acts inducing such payment have been established. State v. Harris, 70 N.J. 586, 589 (1976).

The Division established, and the petitioner admitted during her testimony, that she knowingly received unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled from the Department of Labor. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2)a, the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offense committed by the petitioner is a disqualifying offense under sections 86c(1) and 86g. The petitioner is therefore disqualified from licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h

An applicant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating his or her rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
4. The date of the offense or conduct;

5. The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Ms. Corbin is a casino licensee and is employed as a craps dealer. As such, she does have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities and does come in contact with casino patrons.

Second, the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft by deception (third degree), over a sixteen-week period during which she was not employed in the casino industry. Because the offense is a listed disqualifier under section 86c(1), it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in its appropriate context. The petitioner was suddenly fired from Caesars. She began collecting unemployment benefits. Even though she subsequently became employed as a bar maid, her income was not sufficient to pay her rent, utility, food and clothing bills. In fact, she lost her apartment because of her inability to make her rent payments. She was a single mother supporting two minor children with no assistance or support available from any other family members. She was simply concerned with providing for her family in a time of crisis. These circumstances converged upon the petitioner and impaired her judgment. Accordingly, the totality of the circumstances underlying the incident tends to mitigate somewhat the seriousness of her offense.

Fourth, the petitioner's misconduct occurred from April 17, 1981 until August 6,1981, when it ceased. The petitioner voluntarily stopped collecting unemployment benefits.

Fifth, the petitioner was 40 years old at the time of the offense. I believe that mental and emotional immaturity was a factor in this case irrespective of her chronological age. The petitioner believes she has learned with maturity. She is now a responsible, productive member of society. In addition, it is clear that the underlying circumstances affected the petitioner's ability to deal reasonably with the problem at that time.

Sixth, the petitioner's misconduct was isolated in nature. She has not committed any other violations of the criminal laws.

Seventh, because of the underlying circumstances, the petitioner was only concerned with raising and providing for her family. Her family's security and her financial situation were major concerns. Because of her lack of education she was unaware of other alternatives which she could have pursued.

Eighth, the petitioner has made substantial rehabilitative efforts. She has begun making restitution and is current with her payments. The petitioner has been employed in the casino industry continuously since January 1982. Her performance has been exemplary. She has demonstrated that she has matured and has accepted responsibility. She is not being considered for a supervisory position as a box person. Her home life has also stabilized, and she has demonstrated her acceptance of responsibility. The petitioner has expressed remorse for her misconduct. Accordingly, there is little likelihood, if any, of a repetition. Essentially, there is nothing more the petitioner could do to establish her rehabilitation.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, her rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

(C) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Ms. Corbin was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, her good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Id. at 296.

It is readily apparent that the petitioner's misconduct was aberrant and that she is otherwise a person of good character, honesty and integrity. The misconduct did not involve her licensed employment, and the underlying circumstances somewhat mitigated the seriousness of the misconduct. In addition, the petitioner has fully accepted responsibility for her misconduct, regained control over her behavior, performed admirably within the casino industry during the past nine and one-half years, entered into a repayment agreement, and become a respected member of her community. Accordingly, the petitioner presents no risk to the public nor to the integrity of the gaming industry in this State. The petitioner has earned the privilege of licensure. An examination of the whole person clearly and convincing establishes that Ms. Corbin is a person of good character, honesty and integrity, and is entirely suitable for licensure in this State. See, Boardwalk Regency Corp.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, her good character, honesty and integrity under section 90b.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the application of Betty J. Corbin for the renewal of a casino employee license be GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL); and the initial decision of the administrative law judge (ALJ) having been filed with the Casino Control Commission (Commission); and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of June 6, 1990,

IT IS on this 22nd day of July 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> In addition to granting a casino key employee license and an endorsement for sole owner/operator junket enterprise, as recommended by the ALJ, the Commission also grants the application for a gaming school instructor license. Although the gaming school instructor license application was not addressed in the prehearing order or at the OAL hearing, this application was consolidated with the casino key employee license renewal matter.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the initial decision is adopted as modified provided, however, that the Commission expressly disavows that portion of the initial decision at pp. 18-20 wherein the ALJ discusses the obligation of an individual casino employee to exclude a person whose name does not appear on the Commission's exclusion list, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-71(d). As agreed by the parties at the Commission's public meeting of June 6, 1990, that issue was not raised in the record. There is no evidence to establish that the respondent had the requisite knowledge that any of the patrons with whom he met were persons who satisfied the criteria for exclusion pursuant to sections -71(a) and -71(d).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the applications are granted substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference.

Record Closed: March 2, 1990 Decided: April 16, 1990

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), Department of Law and Public Safety, filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on May 31, 1989, seeking sanctions against the casino key employee license no. 644-11 issued to Daniel J. Costandino, Jr., (respondent). In addition, the Division filed a letter with the Commission dated May 26, 1989, which presented negative information relating to the renewal of respondent's casino key employee license and for the position addition of sole owner/operation junket enterprise.

Respondent, through his attorney by way of letter dated June 19, 1989, requested a hearing in this matter. On July 13, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted by the Honorable Beatrice S. Tylutki, ALJ, on September 29, 1989. The matter was set down for hearing on January 29, and 30, 1990, however, it was adjourned. The matter was rescheduled for hearing on March 1 and 2, 1990 and reassigned to the undersigned. The hearing was held, as scheduled, at the Absecon, New Jersey, Municipal Court. The hearing record was considered closed as of March 2, 1990.

The issues to be determined, as agreed by the parties at the prehearing conference, are these:

A. Whether Mr. Costandino accepted a gratuity in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-100(o)1, and if so, what is the appropriate remedy?

B. Whether Mr. Costandino possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino key employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2)?

C. Whether Mr. Costandino possesses the requisite business ability for casino key employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(3)?

D. Whether Mr. Costandino's behavior during the Division's investigation demonstrates a lack of candor which negatively impacts on his ability to show he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino key employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2)?

E. Whether Mr. Costandino gave the Commission a check, which was returned due to inadequate funds, during his 1986 application for a gaming school instructor license, and if so, whether this action has a negative effect on his business integrity?

BURDEN OF PROOF

The burdens of proof, as allocated to the parties and determined by the issues, are as follows:

1. The Division has the burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, as to Issue A.

2. Respondent has the burden of proof, by the standard of clear and convincing evidence, as to Issues B,C,D and E.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the testimony of Thomas J. Logan, Agent with the Division in its Special Investigations Section, and respondent Costandino, among others; and the documents moved into evidence by the parties, I FIND the following FACTS:

Respondent Costandino, who was 36 years of age at the time of the hearing, has been in the casino industry since 1975 when he was 21 years of age. He began his career in Los Vegas, Nevada as a "shill" and moved to New Jersey in February 1979 where he was employed by Resorts International Hotel and Casino (Resorts) as the youngest licensed acting pit boss and acting shift manager in the New Jersey casino industry. Respondent received his casino key license in 1980 when he was 26 years of age. He subsequently was employed by Playboy casino where he worked approximately five years. During his Playboy employment, respondent was promoted to four different positions within the scope of his casino key license.

While employed by the Showboat, respondent held two job titles simultaneously; i.e., Executive Regional Manager of Player Development and Director of New York Operations. The Showboat did not provide an office in New York City from which respondent could operate in his capacity as Director of New York Operations. The Showboat did, however, install a business telephone in respondent's home in Linwood, New Jersey.

In or about November 8, 1988, respondent was asked to resign his position and take another position within the Showboat organization. Willard "Bucky" Howard, requested that respondent resign from his marketing positions and assume the duties in the gaming and of the business as a pit boss in baccarat. Respondent declined the offer and resigned with severance pay.

Issue A. Whether Respondent Accepted a Gratuity

Agent Logan testified, among other things, that he became aware in 1988, that the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) was conducting surveillances in the Atlantic City casino industry with regard to known members of alleged organized crime. Video surveillance films were taken at the Showboat Hotel and Casino on August 7, 1988 and October 29, 1988 which were presented to Agent Logan by his supervisor, Irwin Schecter. Agent Logan was not able to identify any of the individuals on the film. However, he was advised by FBI agents from the New York and Philadelphia offices as to the identities of the people appearing on the films as alleged members of organized crime. Subsequently, Agent Logan viewed the films with Showboat officials who identified respondent Costandino, a casino host, with the other individuals identified as alleged members of organized crime (DGE-1).

Agent Logan identified those individuals appearing on the August 7, 1988 videotape as follows:

Matteo Romano, listed as a furniture salesman from Brooklyn, New York. He was indicted in 1988 under what has become known as the famous "pizza connection" case. He was acquitted of the charge. Romano was subsequently reindicted under the same indictment as that which indicted Giovanni Gambino, a/k/a John Gambino, in the United States District Court, Southern District of New York. Romano was arrested on May 10, 1982, after negotiating the purchase of five kilograms of heroin from a government informant. Approximately $70,000 in cash and $170,000 in jewelry were seized at the time of his arrest. On July 7, 1982, Romano was convicted of conspiring to distribute heroin and sentenced to ten years imprisonment. Investigation by the FBI uncovered criminal activity by Romano while he was on parole. He was arrested on March 31, 1988 for continuing drug trafficking and other criminal activities. It is alleged that Romano is a business associate of organized crime.

Giovanni (John) Gambino is alleged to be a "made" member of the Sicilian Mafia and also a "made" member of the New York Gambino family La Cosa Nostra. John Gambino is alleged to be a capo in the Gambino crime family and also a member of the Sicilian Mafia.[1]

Francesco Gambino has been identified as a cousin of John Gambino. He is also known as "Cheech" and/or "Ciccio" and is alleged to be a member of the Sicilian Mafia.

1. The Mafia is a secret criminal organization singularly dedicated to the enrichment of its members. Wherever Mafia or La Cosa Nostra exists, its structure, protocols and discipline are basically the same. In both the United States and Sicily, families are ruled by a "boss" or "capo." Inducted or "made" members, although all subordinate to the "boss" are directly supervised by "captains." The senior, supervisory section of the "family" - besides captains - also includes an under-boss and a family counselor or "consiglieri." In both the United States and Italy, ruling commissions oversee the efficient operation of the Mafia as an entity; thus, disputes are generally resolved internally.

   Mafia and La Cosa Nostra members adhere to a code of strict discipline designed to maintain secrecy. For example, a made member may only be introduced to another made member in the presence of a third who is able to vouch for the member being introduced. Strict obedience to one's superiors is essential. Sharing one's ill-gotten gains with Mafia superiors is required. Mafia business, moreover, is never to be discussed with outsiders (non-Mafia members), and sharing information with law enforcement is, of course, strictly forbidden. The sanctions for violation of Mafia rules are severe - in some cases the penalty is death. Made members are permitted to work towards their criminal ends using non-Mafia members. The made member who takes on such a partner, however, must educate his non-Mafia associate in the operational principles of secrecy and discipline because the member himself assumes the risk of any harm caused by deviation from rules by the associate. When disputes involving an associate occur, they will generally be brought to the attention of the supervising member, just as disputes involving members are taken up with the member's Mafia superiors (DGE-2, pp. 6,7).

Rosario Spotola is alleged to be a member of the Sicilian Mafia. At the time of the videotape, August 7 and October 29, 1988, Rosario Spotola was a fugitive from Italy. At the time of the herein hearing, Spotola was incarcerated in New York awaiting extradition to Sicily, Italy.

Agent Logan also asserted that Giuseppe Gambino, who does not appear on any of the videotapes, is John Gambino's brother. Giuseppe Gambino appears on the Division's and Commission's exclusion list. Giuseppe Gambino operates and supervises the Cafe Giardino in Brooklyn, New York. The Cafe Giardino is alleged to be the criminal headquarters for illegal drug dealing, loan sharking and illegal gambling. Real estate records and public utility records indicate that Cafe Giardino is owned by John Gambino who has a business office in the basement of the known premises.

On August 7, 1988, at approximately 12:57 a.m., respondent Costandino is observed on the videotape talking with John Gambino. Subsequently, at approximately 2:08 a.m., respondent Costandino is observed talking with John Gambino, Francesco Gambino and Rosario Spotola.

On October 3, 1988, respondent Costandino was summoned to the Division's office in the Showboat where he was interviewed by Agent Logan and Agent John Herbert with regard to the surveillance videotapes taken on August 7, 1988. Costandino was allowed to view the videotapes for the purpose of identifying certain individuals who appeared on the film with respondent. Agent Logan testified that Costandino identified Giovanni (John) Gambino as Dominic Longobaldi; Francesco (Cheech) Gambino as Frank Calabrese; and, Rosario Spotola as Salvatore (Sal) Spola. Respondent Costandino testified that it was his recollection that these were the names given to him as he was introduced to the individuals named above except he did not identify Francesco Gambino as Frank Calabrese to Agent Logan but rather, he identified the person on the film only as Calabrese. Respondent had a customer, Frank Calabrese, whom respondent knew and who was a rated player at the Showboat. Respondent Costandino also identified Matteo Romano as Matteo Romano as he appeared on the videotape. Respondent admits that he granted complementary (comps) services to these individuals by way of food, beverages and lodging.

Respondent also had a customer named Anthony Longobaldi. Costandino told Agent Logan on October 3, 1988, that he had received a telephone call from Anthony Longobaldi who asserted that his brother, Dominic Longobaldi, would appear at the Showboat on August 7, 1988. Respondent Costandino met the person at the casino identified to him as Dominic Longobaldi. Subsequently, on October 5, 1988, in a telephone conversation with Agent Logan and on December 13, 1988, when Division Agents took respondent Costandino's sworn statement, Costandino stated that he made a mistake in his identification of Dominic Longobaldi. Costandino asserted that he had conducted a further investigation where he searched his mind and remembered Dominic Longobaldi to be John Gambino. He asserted that he recalled John Gambino as a customer when respondent worked at Resorts and the Playboy casinos.

Agent Logan asserted that respondent was not the target of the FBI's investigation. Nor was there any indication that respondent was involved with the Mafia, organized crime, or illegal activities.

The videotaped surveillance filmed on October 29, 1988, as offered into evidence as DGE-1, commences at approximately 6:02 p.m. and continues, with interruptions until approximately 11:05 p.m. During the period between 6:02 p.m. (18:02) through 10:24 p.m. (22:24) Rosario Spotola and Frank Calabrese, among others, appear on the film. The grounds for the Division's charge that respondent accepted a gratuity is based upon the videotaped surveillance at the Showboat on October 29, 1988, between 11:00 p.m. (23:00) and 11:04 p.m. (23:04). The following represents my observations of the event:

At approximately 11:00, Frank Calabrese, Rosario Spotola and respondent appear to be engaged in conversation. Calabrese is standing to the left of respondent, who is writing on a pad with a pen, while Spotola is standing to Calabrese's left, centered between Calabrese and respondent. Respondent's attention is focused on Calabrese while respondent is taking notes because Spotola does not speak English. Spotola is then observed to back away from the two men and turn his back to the videocamera. While his back is turned toward the camera, Spotola is observed placing his right hand in his righthand jacket pocket. Thereafter, he turns to the left to take a couple of steps to rejoin Calabrese and respondent, who are still in conversation with respondent taking notes on a small writing pad

Respondent is observed shaking Calabreses' hand and then shake Spotola's hand. Respondent's back is toward the videocamera at this moment and it appears that he is addressing a remark to Calabrese. Immediately after the handshake between respondent and Spotola, Spotola is observed to place his righthand into his righthand jacket pocket. Respondent, who has the writing pad in his left hand and pen in his right hand, continues to take notes. Nothing is observed in respondent's hands other than the pad and pen. The videotape ends at approximately 11:03 p.m. (23:03:50)(DGE-1).

Respondent Costandino testified, credibly, that as he was shaking Spotola's hand, he felt paper in Spotola's hand, which he believed to be money. Respondent did not see what Spotola had in his hand; moreover, he told both Spotola and Calabrese he could not accept a gratuity and refused the offer.

Issue D. Whether Respondent's Behavior During the Division's Investigation Demonstrated a Lack of Candor.

Agent Logan testified that at the October 3, 1988, informal interview, respondent Costandino answered all questions put to him. Costandino was not advised at the time that he had a right to legal counsel, nor did respondent request the presence of his attorney at the informal interview.

Agent Logan testified, credibly, that respondent appeared with his attorney at the formal interview held on December 13, 1988, at the Richard J. Hughes Justice Complex, Trenton, New Jersey. Agent Logan asserted that respondent answered all questions asked of him and that respondent's attorney did not interrupt nor ask for a recess to consult with his client before permitting him to answer.

Respondent asserted that when he was asked to identify Rosario Spotola, he identified him as Salvatore or Sal Spola because that was the name given for the individual when he was introduced to respondent. Respondent testified that Spotola (Spola) did not speak English. Rather, Spotola only spoke Italian where Frank Calabrese interpreted for Spotola and respondent in their conversations on October 29, 1988. Respondent does not speak the Italian language. Respondent only learned that Sal Spola was actually Rosario Spotola through the Division's investigation. On cross examination, respondent testified that Spotola was rated a "2" customer where he played with $35,000 to $50,000 per visit to the casino.

Respondent's testimony as to his identification to the Division of Giovanni (John) Gambino as Dominic Longobaldi and Francesco (Cheech) Gambino as Calabrese is set forth hereinbefore. In his capacity as a gaming host, respondent meets hundreds of customers and patrons. On August 7, 1988, respondent was introduced to Giovanni (John) Gambino as Dominic Longobaldi as the result of a telephone call respondent received from a current customer, Anthony Longobaldi. Respondent did not immediately recognize Dominic Longobaldi as John Gambino from his previous meetings of the person of some years in the past when respondent was employed by Resorts and Playboy casinos. Respondent also did not immediately recognize John Gambino because he was much heavier than respondent remembered and he used a cane. Respondent testified, credibly, that many customers in the gaming business alter their names or do not provide their proper name to casino employees. In any event, after some reflection, respondent recalled that Dominic Longobaldi was, in fact, Giovanni (John) Gambino and so identified him to the Division's authorities on October 5, 1988, and on December 13, 1988.

Issue E. Whether Respondent issued a Check to the Commission Which Was Returned Due to Inadequate Funds.

Respondent had been licensed as a gaming instructor while employed by Playboy where he was a baccarat instructor and baccarat manager. Prior to the Showboat casino opening, the management wanted respondent to teach its gaming employees, however, his instructor license had expired. Respondent completed the necessary Commission application forms and enclosed a check dated December 1, 1986, for the proper amount ($220.) which was drawn against the Provident National Bank (Provident), Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. The check was returned to the Commission marked NSF (nonsufficient funds). The return of the check prompted the Commission to write to respondent to advise him, among other things, that no work permit would be approved until payment was made and that respondent was precluded from employment under this credential.

Respondent asserted that in December 1986, he, his wife and newborn child were living with his wife's parents in Media, Pennsylvania while respondent's home in Linwood, New Jersey was under construction. Respondent was acting as his own general contractor, an endeavor with which he was inexperienced. Respondent had three accounts with Provident, two of which were money market accounts having a limit of three checks per month. Although it appears that the Provident provided automatic transfer from and to respondent's accounts to avoid overdrafts, the three check limit per month was enforced. Respondent believes that his December 1, 1986 check to the Commission was one of those which was the result of the three checks per month limit and, thus, not honored by the bank. Respondent asserted he corrected the deficiency by personally appearing at the Commission office with a money order.

Now that respondent and his family reside in their completed Linwood, New Jersey home, he has no need for the Provident accounts. All of his personal accounts are now in New Jersey banking institutions.

Respondent's casino key employee license has been renewed twice before by the Commission without this issue having been raised by the Division.

Issue B. Whether Respondent Possesses the Requisite Good Character, Honesty and Integrity.

Two witnesses testified as to respondent's good character, honesty and integrity. Both witnesses have been supervised by respondent as employees in the casino industry. Michael Devine has known respondent for eight years and respondent was responsible for Devine's employment at the Showboat as a host in 1987. Respondent supervised Devine for approximately one and one-half years where Devine observed respondent on a daily basis. Devine opined that respondent was one of the most honest people he had ever met. Devine also testified that in his opinion, respondent had superior ability as a casino employee with great skill in performing his job.

Frank Mauriello testified that he has known respondent since 1979, the year Resorts opened. Mauriello was employed as a dealer at Resorts and respondent was his direct supervisor on a rotating basis; first as a floorperson and later as a pit boss. Respondent again supervised Mauriello when the two moved to Playboy. Mauriello was employed as a floorperson while respondent worked as a pit boss and was later promoted to shift manager. Mauriello opined that respondent's good character, honesty and integrity were fine.

Respondent introduced documents which indicated the Showboat authorities appreciated respondent's work and contributions to that enterprise. In a memorandum, undated, his annual salary was increased by $3000 with a "thank you" for doing an excellent job (R-3). On October 20, 1988, Frank A. Modica, President and Chief Executive Officer of Showboat, recognized respondents contribution and awarded respondent a "special bonus" of $5,940. (R-4).

There were no reports, documents or other indicia submitted by the Division with regard to the issue of respondent's good character, honesty and integrity.

Issue C. Whether Respondent Possesses the Requisite Business Ability for Casino Key Employee Licensure.

On or about April 8, 1988, respondent Costandino was appointed Director of the Showboat's New York office for player development (R-1). On or about April 26, 1988, the Showboat perfected its Petition to the Commission for the purpose of establishing a place of business for player development activities in the New York City area; i.e., telephone marketing, coordination of special events, arrangement of hotel accommodations and transportation to the Showboat. The Petition requested authorization from the Commission for permanent off-site (New York) generation and storage of original books, records and documents at a secure facility (R-2). The Showboat New York office did not open. However, respondent proceeded with his duties and responsibilities as director of development in the New York area. Respondent performed his duties from his home where the Showboat installed a business telephone. Respondent was also required to travel to New York where he conducted his business from hotel rooms by telephone and by personal meetings with potential customers.

On August 24 and 25, 1988, respondent was in New York City in the performance of his duties in player development. He was lodged at the Holloran House Hotel where he made approximately 27 telephone calls to numbers outside of the hotel. One such call was made to the number 718-745-8070 which was the J. Apple Concrete Company, Brooklyn, New York. Agent Logan subsequently learned that the principals of the company were John Gambino and Guiseppe Gambino. When questioned about this telephone call by Deputy Attorney General Auriemma at the sworn interview held on December 13, 1988, Agent Logan testified that respondent said he had placed the call to G. and G. Concrete Company in Brooklyn. Agent Logan opined that G. and G. stands for Gambino and Genevez Concrete Company. Agent Logan's personal investigation revealed that G. and G. Concrete Company is owned by John Gambino, his brother Joseph Gambino and others. The Agent opined that J. Apple Concrete and G. and G. Concrete were one and the same and operated as real businesses. Agent Logan learned that Lorenzo Mannino was employed by G. and G. Concrete Company as John Gambino's chauffeur. Agent Logan asserted that Lorenzo Mannino was then under indictment for narcotics violations in the United States District Court, Southern District of New York.

Respondent Costandino advised Agent Logan that he had received a message from Showboat on his long distance beeper to call a Maryann at 718-745-8070. Respondent advised Agent Logan at the December 13, 1988 sworn interview that respondent had talked to others at this telephone number, namely, Lorenzo Mannino and Guiseppe Gambino. Respondent voluntarily turned over his home-business telephone log to Agent Logan. The record shows that between March 25 through October 7, 1988, respondent made seven telephone calls to J. Apple Concrete and/or G. and G. Concrete.

At the December 13, 1988, sworn interview, respondent Costandino asserted that he had used many New York restaurants as meeting places for his Showboat customers. Respondent volunteered that he had visited Cafe Giardino in Brooklyn, New York on several occasions. He had met Lorenzo Mannino at the Cafe Giardino, however, he was not certain as to whether he had met John Gambino at the establishment. Respondent testified he had met Giuseppe Gambino there Respondent did not believe it was inappropriate for a casino key employee to talk with a person who was on the Commission's exclusion list when the excluded person initiated a conversation.

Agent Logan testified that Cafe Giardino was the headquarters of John Gambino and operated by Giuseppe Gambino. Agent Logan asserted that the restaurant was used as a meeting place and as the operational headquarters of the narcotics trade for the Gambino crime family.

Michael Devine asserted he had observed respondent's business ability as a casino key employee and opined that it was superior where respondent demonstrated great skills. Mr. Devine described respondent's duties of a player development manager as a person who seeks new business and sustains the current business of the casino. The player development manager is a salesperson who visits and promotes clients who already patronize the casino as well as seek out new clients. He asserted that it was a requirement that persons on the Commission's exclusion list not be brought into the casino.

Mr. Devine contended that the Showboat New York office was not established because of the frequent changes in the upper level management of the property. He asserted that respondent had completed all of the necessary work for the establishment of the New York office, however, the plan was never implemented by management.

Respondent Costandino presented evidence that Showboat management recognized his business ability when it appointed him to the position of Director of its New York office for player development in or about April 1988 (R-1). Other indicia of Showboat's appreciation of respondent's job performance is reflected in its granting respondent a substantial pay increase (R-3) and a significant bonus (R-4) in or about October 1988. Changes in the Showboat's management altered its plan to open the New York City office, therefore, preventing respondent the opportunity to fully function in his capacity as its director. Similarly, the management changes at Showboat worked to respondent's detriment where the new management worked its own team of employees in its player development. The new management requested respondent's resignation from his positions in player development with an offer to the position of pit boss. Respondent refused the offer. Instead, respondent negotiated severance pay and, thereafter, submitted his resignation and left the employ of Showboat. There is nothing in the record to demonstrate that the Showboat doubted or questioned respondent's business ability.

Respondent asserted that he has not nor would he invite an individual to the casino who appeared on the Commission's exclusion list.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

It is established that licensure under the Casino Control Act (Act) is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8). Section 129 (1) of the Act provides for the revocation of or other sanctions against the license held by a person "for the commission of any ... offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his license..."

N.J.S.A. 5:12-100 o (1), Unlawful Gratuity

The Division contends that respondent accepted a gratuity from Rosario Spotola (known to respondent as Salvatore Spola) on October 29, 1988 at approximately 11:03 p.m. Section 100 o (1) of the Act provides, in pertinent part, that:

> It shall be unlawful for any casino key employee ... to solicit or accept ... any tip or gratuity from any player or patron at the casino where he is employed.

The Commission may exercise its authority to impose sanctions against a licensee or registrant in addition to any penalty, fine or term of imprisonment authorized by law, after appropriate hearings and factual determinations. Section 129 (5) of the Act, grants the Commission authority to:

> Access such civil penalties as may be necessary to punish misconduct and to deter future violations, which penalties may not exceed $10,000.00 in the case of any individual licensee or registrant ...

The Division bottoms its complaint, that respondent accepted a gratuity, upon the videotape taken on October 29, 1988 at the Showboat between 11:00 p.m. and 11:04 p.m. where respondent, Frank Calabrese and Rosario Spotola are engaged in conversation. The film shows the three men in conversation with respondent writing on a notepad. It is observed that Spotola turns away from the other two men to take a couple of steps to his right and turn his back to the videocamera and the two men in conversation. Respondent is in conversation with Calabrese and continues to take notes while Spotola, with his back toward the camera, is seen placing his right hand into his right jacket pocket. Spotola turns back, facing the camera, and joins the two men in conversation. Respondent is then seen holding the pen and notepad in his left hand, shake Calabrese's right hand with respondent's right hand. Respondent then turns toward Spotola, with respondent's back now toward the camera, and shakes Spotola's right hand. The hands are withdrawn and Spotola is seen to immediately place his right hand in his right jacket pocket while respondent continues to write on his notepad.

Nothing can be observed in respondent's right hand other than the pen or pencil with which he is taking notes. Respondent is not observed to have placed his right hand in any of his pockets immediately after the handshake with Calabrese or Spotola. No one from the Division or Showboat immediately went to the casino floor to question respondent about the event of the meeting of the three men between 11:00 p.m. and 11:04 p.m. on October 29, 1988. Respondent admitted, on December 13, 1988, that Spotola had attempted to pass something to respondent during the handshake on October 29, 1988, and that respondent had refused to accept it.

Based on my observations of the videotape DGE-1, and particularly the noted observation that Spotola placed his right hand in his right jacket pocket immediately after the handshake with respondent, I CONCLUDE that the Division has not carried its burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, to demonstrate that respondent Costandino accepted a tip or gratuity from patron Spotola in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-100 o (1).

Accordingly, this charge in the Division's complaint is DISMISSED.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2) Production of Information as Required, and Good Character, Honesty and Integrity.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), respondent is required to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979) at 8; Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985); In re Boardwalk Regency Corp. Casino License, 90 N.J. 361 (1982). When, as here, the Division raises the issue as to the licensee's good character, honesty and integrity, it is incumbent upon the licensee to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which this tribunal may reach a reasonable conclusion. Boardwalk Regency, supra, In the Matter of the Application of Boardwalk Regency Corp. and the Jemm Company for Casino License, Casino Control Commission (November 13, 1980). In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of the licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure.

Clear and convincing, falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here, the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the fact alleged is true; i.e., that respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity. The standard requires more than a mere balancing of probabilities, but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (L. Div. 1974); Germann v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466 (App. Div. 1969).

The Division contends that respondent does not possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino key employee licensure and, further, that his lack of candor during its investigation negatively impacts on his good character, honesty and integrity. With regard to the latter, Agent Logan's testimony clearly shows that respondent answered questions put to him during the informal interview held on October 3, 1988 and the formal, sworn interview held on December 13, 1988. At the October 3, 1988 informal interview, respondent was not advised that he had a right to legal counsel. However, he answered all of the questions asked of him to the best of his recollection. On that occasion, respondent did not accurately identify at least two individuals; i.e., John Gambino and Rosario Spotola. Respondent was introduced to John Gambino as Dominic Longobaldi and did not recognize his true identity because John Gambino had gained considerable weight since their previous meetings at Resorts and Playboy. Gambino's appearance was also changed by the fact that he now walked with the aid of a cane. On October 5, 1988, subsequent to the informal interview respondent reported to Agent Logan in a telephone conversation that he believed Dominic Longobaldi to be John Gambino.

Respondent did not learn that Salvatore (Sal) Spola was actually Rosario Spotola until the completion of the FBI's investigation. Respondent had known Spola to be a good customer, rated with a "2", because he brought between $35,000 and $50,000 to the casino on each of his visits. Respondent was also aware that there were three accounts at Showboat under the name of Spola.

Agent Logan also testified that respondent answered all questions asked of him at the formal, sworn interview held on December 13, 1988. Although respondent did have an attorney accompany him on that occasion, there were no interruptions of the interrogation conducted by the Division either by respondent or his legal counsel. While respondent hesitated to answer some questions put to him, he did so with the caveat that he did not want to give an answer to which he was uncertain or one which would be misleading.

Respondent produced two witnesses who knew him and had worked under his supervision in the gaming industry. Both witnesses; Michael Devine and Frank Mauriello, testified to respondent's good character, honesty and integrity. Devine opined that respondent was one of the most honest people he had ever met.

No evidence was produced to demonstrate that respondent had committed any crimes or that he had been involved in any criminal activity. The evidence produced did demonstrate, moreover, that respondent's Showboat employers appreciated his performance and contributions.

I CONCLUDE that respondent had met his burden of proof, by clear and convincing evidence, that he does possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure under N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2). I also CONCLUDE that to the extent possible, respondent answered all questions put to him by the Division's representative on October 3, and December 13, 1988, and, therefore, that he complied with the statutory provisions found in section 89b(2) of the Act.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (3) Business Ability

Section 89b (3) of the Act, provides that:

> Each applicant [for a casino key employee license] shall produce such information, documentation and assurances as may be required to establish by clear and convincing evidence that the applicant has sufficient business ability > and casino experience as to establish the reasonable likelihood of success and efficiency in the particular position involved.

The record shows that respondent has been involved with the casino industry since 1975 when he was then 21 years of age. He began in the business as a lowly "shill" in Las Vegas, Nevada; playing with the casino's money to induce patrons to sit at the table he was playing and gamble with their money. He moved to New Jersey in February 1979 and was employed at Resorts at the age of 25 where he was known as the youngest licensed pit boss and acting shift manager in the New Jersey casino industry. He has subsequently been employed by Playboy and Showboat where he has been promoted to higher level positions. He has also instructed dealers in gaming activities. The last two positions he held with Showboat before he resigned were titled, Executive Regional Manager of Player Development and Director of New York Operations.

There is no doubt nor question that respondent has exhibited sufficient and varied casino experience to insure success in the positions he has held and those for which he now applies. The Division, however, raises the issue of respondent's business probity and judgment because of his contacts with alleged members of organized crime. The Division contends that respondent, by virtue of his casino key license, is required to operate beyond the Commission's exclusion list and, therefore, not provide services or comps to alleged crime figures. The Division relies upon N.J.S.A. 5:12-71d for this proposition and which provides as follows:

> d. Any list compiled by the commission of persons to be excluded or ejected shall not be deemed an all-inclusive list, and licensed casino establishments shall have a duty to keep from their premises persons known to them to be within the classifications declared in paragraph a. of this section and the regulations promulgated thereunder.

Respondent asserted he was familiar with the provisions of section 71d of the Act and it was his understanding that he was not allowed to book people that are on the exclusion list or do any business as far as vending or anything of that nature with those individuals. The Division contends that the casinos have a duty to police their own industry and exclude individuals who are not on the exclusion list. Assistant Attorney General Schwefel asserted that respondent should be concerned about individuals who have been identified as high ranking members of organized crime and whose names do not appear on the Commission's exclusion list. Assistant Attorney General Schwefel asserted that respondent had a duty to protect the casino by not extending complimentaries to such individuals nor to extend these persons the courtesies available to respondent in his position as an executive in the casino marketing department.

Respondent argues that the Division's position, with respect to non-exclusionary persons, is not the state of the law. I agree.

Respondent has not been authorized to exclude any individual from the casino in which he has been employed; either by management or statute. There is nothing in this record to suggest that Showboat's management authorized respondent to exclude any person from its casino who met the minimum age requirement and who had the wherewithal to gamble. Too the contrary, respondent was employed to seek out and encourage people with the means to do so, to come to the Showboat and participate in its gaming activities. For respondent, on his own initiative and unilaterally to exclude paying patrons from the gaming tables on a mere suspicion of criminal activity or association with criminals without more, could lead to disastrous consequences. One, respondent could lose his job and; two, his actions might lead to litigation on the part of the individual excluded.

The Legislature authorized the Commission to establish, by regulation, a list of persons who are to be excluded or ejected from any licensed casino establishment. N.J.S.A. 5:17-71a. The Commission is then admonished to define the standards by which the exclusion of certain individuals is to be implemented. The Commission's order to exclude many neither be arbitrary nor capricious but, rather, by the application of due process and an opportunity for a full plenary hearing prior to any decision to exclude. N.J.A.C. 19:48-1.1 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 42-4.1 et seq.

Individual casinos may, on their own initative exclude patrons; i.e., those who have not paid their gambling debts to the casino. That, however, is not the situation here. The Division contends that in the instant matter, respondent should have, at the very least, not provided comps to individuals it suspected as being involved in criminal activity; knowledge not conveyed to nor made privy to respondent. While it is recognized that the criminal element must be prevented from involvement in the casino industry in order to protect the integrity of the industry, it is also recognized that statutory and regulatory provisions exist to accomplish this end.

I CONCLUDE that such arbitrary and capricious action by respondent as to unilaterally exclude or otherwise discriminate against patrons is not the state of the law nor was respondent authorized by the Showboat management to exclude any patron whose name did not appear on the Commission's exclusion list.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that respondent has shown, by competent, clear and convincing evidence, he possesses the requisite business ability for licensure as a casino key employee.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (3) Business Integrity

There is no doubt, and respondent admits, that he issued a check in 1986 to the Commission for the renewal of his gaming school instructors license and the check was returned due to nonsufficient funds in the account from which the check was drawn. Respondent testified as to the reason for the mistake and I FIND the explanation to be reasonable.

It is noted here that respondent has gone through two licensing reviews since the 1986 check error and neither the Division nor the Commission has raised this as an issue for respondent's licensure. It is also noted for the record that the Division takes no position with regard to this issue.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that respondent did, in fact, present a check to the Commission which check was returned due to inadequate funds. I further CONCLUDE that this inadvertent error did not nor does it have a negative effect on respondent's business integrity.

It is therefore, ADJUDGED that the Division's complaint against respondent Daniel J. Costandino, Jr. be and is hereby DISMISSED. It is for the ADJUDGED that respondent's casino key employee license be renewed and that the endorsement for sole owner/operator junket enterprise be added to respondent's casino key employee license.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

SHIRLEY E. DAVIS,

DEPARTMENT OF LAW & PUBLIC SAFETY,
DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT,
Respondent.

Shirley E. Davis, petitioner, pro se

Charles F. Kimmel, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: May 29, 1990 Decided: July 2, 1990

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

Shirley E. Davis applied for licensure as a casino key employee, designating the positions desired as pit boss in blackjack, craps and roulette. By letter of August 25, 1989, the Division of Gaming Enforcement opposed licensure. The Casino Control Commission transferred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. following Ms. Davis' request for a hearing with respect to the recommended denial.

A prehearing conference was held by telephone before Honorable Joseph F. Fidler, ALJ on January 23, 1990. Judge Fidler issued a prehearing order on February 8, 1990, in which he listed the issues as:

1. Has the petitioner engaged in conduct constituting the offense of theft by deception in the third degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which would be a disqualifier for licensure pursuant to sections 86c(1), 86g, and 89(b) of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.)?

2. Has the petitioner established her good character, honesty and integrity, required for casino key employee licensure, pursuant to section 89b(2) of the act?

EVIDENCE

The Division's objections to Ms. Davis' application stem from her alleged commission of fraud in connection with receipt of unemployment benefits. According to records entered in evidence at the hearing, Ms. Davis received her first payments for unemployment benefits on September 15, 1981. According to her testimony, she had been laid off from her employment at the Playboy Casino Hotel in September of 1981 and as a result applied for benefits. She collected them until February of 1982. Although Ms. Davis denies that she was ever gainfully employed during the period September 1981 to February 1982, on December 17, 1985 the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance sent her a Determination and Demand for Refund of Unemployment or Disability Benefits and Imposition of Penalty and Disqualification Because of Willful Misrepresentation, R-1, which document claimed that Ms. Davis had received a total overpayment of $2,411.25, as a result of her having received benefits through false or fraudulent representation. Specifically, the notice advised that during the time that she was receiving unemployment benefits she was employed by Building Block Early Childhood Center. She was fined a total of $482.25, in addition to the overpayment of benefits.

According to Ms. Davis, she worked on a strictly volunteer basis for Building Blocks, which was located in Somers Point, New Jersey. She had been asked if she would work by Nancy Scribner, who was the founder and head of the Building Block Center. During her time as a volunteer with the center, Ms. Davis was not paid, received no checks, received no W-2 forms and did not file a 1040 tax return indicating any income. In addition, Davis was not employed by any other employer during the period during which she received unemployment benefits.

According to the applicant, when she received the notification from the Division of Unemployment seeking return of the allegedly fraudulently obtained benefits, she contacted Nancy Scribner, who said that she would take care of the problem. In addition, according to the witness, she wrote to the Division of Unemployment in response to their demand for payment and in one letter both asked for a hearing on the alleged obligation and also indicated that she could pay $25 per month in payment of the debt. By letter of March 17, 1986, the Division advised her that it would not accept $25 per month, but instead would accept a minimum acceptable amount of $150 a month on the total debt of $2,459.47. No mention was made of a hearing and she was never advised of any.

Subsequent to these communications, Davis became aware that the state had seized her property tax rebate. When she heard nothing further from the Division of Unemployment she assumed that they were satisfied with the amount of money they had received as a result of this seizure, although it was certainly not the full amount of money owing in accordance with their demand. In view of their failure to contact her and advise that they were demanding any more of the total sum, she assumed that they were satisfied.

Ms. Davis explained that Nancy Scribner contracted cancer sometime after her initial contact with Scribner concerning the unemployment demand. As a result she stopped bothering Scribner. Scribner has since died.

Ms. Davis also testified that she had filed for bankruptcy and had attempted to list the obligation to the Division of Unemployment as a debt to be discharged. According to the investigation report prepared in connection with the Division of Gaming Enforcement's investigation of Ms. Davis' application for key license, she filed her bankruptcy petition on July 12, 1985 with the United States Bankruptcy Court in Camden. The judgment for the unemployment compensation was filed on January 24, 1986. Although from the dates it appears that the bankruptcy petition was in fact filed before the judgment Ms. Davis asserts that the attempt to include the New Jersey Unemployment Judgment for discharge was made subsequent to the filing of the bankruptcy petition and of course after the filing of the unemployment judgment.

Ms. Davis paid the outstanding debt by tendering a check in the amount of $2,412.63 to the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance on September 28, 1989. A Notice of Satisfaction advising that the debt had been satisfied was offered in evidence. The Division's letter of objection, noting its objection as being based upon the alleged fraudulent receipt of unemployment benefits and also noting that the substantial portion of the debt was still outstanding, is dated August 25, 1989, although it was not stamped received by the Casino Control Commission until September 18, 1989 and there is no evidence as to when Ms. Davis first saw the letter. When questioned concerning the timing of the repayment, Ms. Davis insisted that she mailed the check to the Division of Unemployment prior to receiving the Division of Gaming Enforcement's letter to the Casino Control Commission.

According to Ms. Davis, if any fraud occurred in this case it was not on her part. She cannot answer as to why the Division of Unemployment might have been advised by anyone that she was paid for her services as a volunteer when she in fact was not.

Ms. Davis presented no other witnesses nor did she present any character reference letters.

DISCUSSION

In this case the petitioner seeks licensure as a casino key employee. In order to be so licensed, she must possess good character, honesty and integrity and integrity. In addition, in this case, the evidence must satisfactorily establish that she did not commit a per se disqualifying offense pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). Since she was never prosecuted for the alleged fraud, the Division has proceeded to attempt to prove that it in fact occurred pursuant to the authority granted to the Division in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

Because a key employee license is at issue, the petitioner is not entitled to prove rehabilitation from any per se disqualifying conduct. Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301, 308 (1985). Thus, if the evidence establishes that Ms. Davis did in fact commit unemployment fraud, she is disqualified and cannot be licensed.

The circumstances of this case are somewhat unusual. In the typical situation where a person seeks a license or registration to work in the casinos, and where unemployment fraud has been alleged, the applicant admits having received unemployment benefits while having been employed and presents reasons why such conduct occurred. Here Ms. Davis denies any fraud, claiming that, despite the Division of Unemployment's claim and her own conduct in repaying the Division, she never was paid by the alleged employer and therefore was entitled to receive unemployment benefits and owed the Division no money.[1]

Both sides in this case have presented evidence which is somewhat lacking in scope. From the Division's standpoint, its presentation of the records of the Division of Unemployment merely involve the form which asserts the claim. The underlying data, whatever that may have been, which supported the conclusion of the Division of Unemployment that Ms. Davis had been gainfully employed and that she had been paid monies during the period when she received unemployment benefits, has not been presented. As a result, in the absence of any documentation which may have been provided by Building Block to the Division of Unemployment, we cannot be certain on what basis the Division reached its conclusion that money was owed. At the same time, the evidence presented by the Division does establish that a claim was put forth by the Division, that there was no hearing on the matter, that Ms. Davis eventually paid the claim, and that she received a Notice of Satisfaction for the payment.

From Ms. Davis' standpoint, the evidence on her side is equally lacking. She has asserted that she was not paid, but she is unable to present any evidence in support of that. The letter which she was able to obtain from the alleged employer merely indicates that no records are available. The founder and operator of the facility at the time in question is deceased. Thus, Ms. Davis' assertion is supported solely by her own possibly self-serving testimony. In addition, with respect to the good character issue, Ms. Davis' testimony is again devoid of support.

The problem presented by this case is that it is difficult to imagine why the Division would have received any information from Building Block indicating that Ms. Davis was being paid for her work when in fact she was not being paid. While there might be an explanation for this, it has not been forthcoming.

Although Ms. Davis was quite certain as to the circumstances of her relationship to Building Block, I FIND that the testimony and evidence presented by her fails to convince me by a preponderance of the credible evidence that she was not in fact paid any money for the work that she did at that facility. While she now asserts that she paid the Division of Unemployment over $2,400 in September of 1989 separate and apart from any connection with her application for licensure as a casino key employee and prior to receiving the Division of Gaming Enforcement's letter, I am unconvinced that this is what happened. The circumstances of the timing of her payment, so close after the Division issued its letter to the Commission, but yet far enough removed to have permitted the letter to have been received by her, would appear to point to the likelihood that upon receipt of the letter Ms. Davis recognized that she might have difficulty getting licensed if the debt was still outstanding and therefore she paid the debt.

Based upon the evidence presented, I am constrained to conclude that Ms. Davis' testimony before me was less than candid. In addition, separate and apart from her obligation to satisfy the question of whether or not she in fact had engaged in fraud, with respect to the good character, honesty and integrity issue, she bears the burden of establishing those characteristics by clear and convincing evidence. Given the uncertainties of the situation surrounding the unemployment claim, and my own uncertainty as to the complete truthfulness of her testimony at the hearing, I cannot find that she has established good character, honesty and integrity at the high level required by the Casino Control Act.

For the reasons expressed, I CONCLUDE that Ms. Davis has failed to meet the burdens placed upon her by the Act for receiving a casino key employee license. Under these circumstances, her application must be DENIED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

RECORD CLOSED: February 16, 1990 Decided: April 2, 1990

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), Department of Law and Public Safety, filed an Amended Complaint before the Casino Control Commission (Commission) wherein it alleges that respondent Armond R. DeCicco is alleged to have committed offenses which disqualifies him from holding a casino employee license despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts and; that he lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure.

This matter originated with a Complaint filed before the Commission by the Division dated October 5, 1983, alleging that respondent was arrested and charged with falsifying or tampering with records while employed by Bally's Park Place Hotel and Casino, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-4. The Division sought the immediate suspension of respondent's casino employee license pending a license revocation hearing. On October 20, 1983, the Commission entered an order to suspend respondent's license. Subsequently, on December 12, 1985, pursuant to an application by respondent, the Commission vacated its order of suspension of October 20, 1983, and reinstated respondent's casino employee license.

On or about December 16, 1985, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. On February 3, 1986, a prehearing conference was conducted by Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Beatrice S. Tylutki, with a hearing set down for March 14, 1986.

On March 4, 1986, the Division filed an Amended Complaint before the Commission alleging that respondent had been indicted by an Atlantic County Grand Jury on or about September 6, 1984, Indictment no. 122-84-3, on a variety of offenses alleged to have been committed by respondent while respondent was employed in the casino industry. The charges were dismissed on or about October 31, 1985.

Subsequently, the Division filed a motion before the Commission to dismiss the complaint against respondent. On July 9, 1986, the Commission denied the Division's motion and by way of an order dated July 23, 1986, transmitted the matter to the OAL for an expedited hearing.

On September 16, 1986, the matter was placed on the inactive list, pursuant to section 86d of the Act, where it remained until a prehearing held on October 24, 1989. The instant matter was heard on February 16, 1990 by the undersigned at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The hearing record closed on February 16, 1990.

The issues to be determined by this tribunal and as agreed to by the parties are these:

A. Whether respondent's continued licensure is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) because he is alleged to have committed disqualifying criminal offenses, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

B. Whether respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

C. Whether respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Act, in accordance with Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301, 313-315.

BURDEN OF PROOF

1. The Division has the burden of proving the elements of any alleged statutory disqualifier and/or inimicality by a preponderance of the credible evidence.

2. Respondent has the burden of affirmatively establishing proof of his good character, honesty and integrity by the standard of clear and convincing evidence.

UNCONTESTED FACTS

Based upon the testimony and documents proffered at the hearing, the following facts are neither contested nor in dispute. Therefore, these uncontested facts are hereby adopted as FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter:

Respondent, who was 34 years of age at the time of the hearing, was arrested by the New Jersey State Police (NJSP) on September 20, 1983, when he was then 28 years of age. Respondent was charged with conspiracy in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2 and falsifying records in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-4, while in the employ of Caesars Hotel and Casino.

Respondent commenced employment at Caesars in 1979 as a blackjack dealer. Thereafter, he was additionally licensed for a dealer in roulette, baccarat and craps. He subsequently received an endorsement as a floorperson in blackjack, a position he held in 1982-1983. In 1982 and 1983, bus tour groups known as "superbuses" were brought to Caesars to have those individuals bussed participate in gaming activities. Mr. Albert Corbo, Atlantic Tour and Transit, Inc., Atlantic City, had an arrangement and organized a superbus junkets to Caesars. Pursuant to Count One of the State Grand Jury Indictment No. SGJ 146-85-1 (2), in which, among others, respondent is a named defendant, it alleges, in pertinent part, that:

> ... It was further a part of the conspiracy that, pursuant to the above described arrangement between ATLANTIC TOUR AND TRANSIT, INC. and Caesars, the said ATLANTIC TOUR TRANSIT, INC. would select patrons (gamblers) and approve their participation in the superbus junket program on the basis of the individual patron's ability to satisfy a financial qualification obligation related to his ability, willingness and propensity to gamble. Further, Caesars would monitor and evaluate the patrons by rating the patrons' gambling activity on a "Group Work Sheet." The coconspirators, being aware of the manner in which Caesars monitored and evaluated patrons' gambling activity, would falsely report inflated "drop" figures of the patrons on the said Caesars' "Group Work Sheet" forms. These falsifications would induce Caesars to make payment to ATLANTIC TOUR AND TRANSIT, INC., to continue the said superbus junket program arrangement, and further induce Caesars to continue the budget for the superbus program. (Indictment No. SGJ 146-85-1 (2) pp. 17-18).

Respondent testified that as a floorperson, it was his responsibility to write down the amount of money that each of the identified superbus patrons brought with them to the blackjack tables. Sometime in 1982, respondent was approached by Al Corbo who asserted that the bus patrons were not properly rated. Corbo advised respondent that if he did not start rating the bus patrons, respondent and others would find themselves out of work. Anthony (Tony) Amico, respondent's shift manager and direct supervisor told respondent to add to the amount of money the bus patron brought to the blackjack table. For example, if the patron came to the table with $300, respondent would add $200 to the rating sheet to show that the patron was playing with $500 rather than $300 in cash. Tony Amico instructed respondent to place a cash dollar amount on a player rating sheet even though the patron arrived at the table with gaming chips. For example, respondent testified that if a player came to the blackjack table with $400 in chips and bought into the game with $200 in cash ($600), respondent would place $800 or $900 on the players rating sheet. Respondent asserted that: "Even though this player is only buying for $200 on the game, I'm showing $900 on the sheet." (TR. p. 25).

Respondent testified that falsification of player rating sheets continued for a year and a-half or maybe longer. He asserted that he received no benefits directly from either Corbo or Amico for this activity. He did, however, receive indirect benefits by way of complementary services for family members and friends. Respondent asserted that when he asked Amico for complementary dinner and show tickets for his parents, Amico would provide them. Respondent also requested complementary tickets for Caesars' Super Bowl Party for a Hammonton detective and police officers which Amico provided. Respondent asserted that he believed Amico provided the requested comps because respondent falsified the Corbo bus patron player rating sheets.

Respondent testified that he falsified the player rating slips to advance his position within the Caesars organization. He believed that as long as his boss wanted him to falsify the player rating slips, he did not believe there was anything wrong. If respondent could do it, perhaps it would help him to advance in the organization in the long run. Respondent asserted that he did not believe what he was doing was wrong because, as it was explained to him, 90 percent of the other floor people were not rating the Corbo bus patrons.

Respondent was terminated from his job on September 14, 1983, as a consequence of his activity with the player rating slips. Subsequent to Indictment SGJ 146-85-1 (2), respondent applied for and was accepted in the Mercer County Pretrial Intervention Program (PTI). On July 11, 1989, he successfully completed the PTI and the charges against him were dismissed (P-1).

Respondent has been involved with the criminal justice system on other occasions. On or about November 15, 1985, he was arrested on a charge of Shoplifting in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-11. The offense was committed at Eckerd Drugs, Route 30, Hammonton, New Jersey, where he shoplifted a tube of Clearasil valued at $4.79. Respondent was fined $50 with $25 in court costs and a penalty of $25 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (VCCB). On another occasion, and while he was still participating in the PTI program, respondent was induced to help a fellow worker deliver a tractor, known to be stolen, to a buyer. Respondent testified that while he was employed part-time at Parker's Farm and Gardening Supply, Hammonton, New Jersey, a fellow employee:

> ... told me he had somebody he could sell a hot tractor to and he wanted me to go with him and help him deliver it. I went with him just to help him deliver it. When I got in the truck, in the truck with him, the state police came over and arrested us. And what they wanted, they wanted information about somebody gambling that I knew, that somebody was gambling where I worked ....
> .... Whitehall Labs. And I gave him the information that they wanted and they dismissed the charge against me and the person that I gave the information is in jail. ... (TR 40).

Respondent testified that the NJSP advised the PTI officer that it would not press charges against respondent on the stolen tractor charge because of his cooperation with the illegal gambling investigation. Respondent asserted he was not involved in the illegal gambling operation although he placed a couple of $50 bets with the individual he targeted to the NJSP.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b (8) establishes that licensure under the Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." Section 129(1) of the Act provides for the revocation of or other sanction against the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his license." The Division contends that respondent DeCicco's conduct during 1982-1983 of conspiracy and falsifying patron rating sheets while employed in the casino industry as a casino floorperson was inimical to the Act, notwithstanding that he was neither prosecuted nor convicted of the criminal offenses for which he was indicted.

Disqualifying Offense Under Section 86c (2) of the Act

Section 86c (2)of the Act is commonly referred to as the "inimical clause." In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License (Resorts), Casino Control Commission No. 79-CL-1 (February 26, 1979), the Commission set forth the criteria to be applied in individual cases when a determination is made as to whether an offense is inimical to the policies of the Act. The Commission stated at 15:

> Whether an offense is "inimical" to the Act and to legalized gaming is a question which can only be resolved in the circumstances of each case. The nature of the offense, the events surrounding it, including any mitigating or aggravating factors, the remoteness of the offense and the offender's conduct since the offense to the present are all matters to be considered. Without limiting the notion of what is "inimical" to the Act or to gaming, it would appear to encompass those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations.

In the matter of Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 at 313, the Commission quoted from Resorts and the criteria for determination as to whether an offense is inimical to the Act. The Commission continued to hold in Davis that rehabilitation under sections 90h and 91d of the Act do not apply to disqualifying convictions under section 86c (4) (now section 86c (2)). However, many of the factors of these two sections of the Act are to be considered within the inimical analysis. Those enumerated factors in section 90h, which apply to a claim of rehabilitation by a casino employee license applicant, are as follows:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

(4) The date of the offense;

(5) The age of the applicant (licensee) when the offense was committed;

(6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling, or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release program or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

In consideration of these inimical factors and the herein record the following is found:

First, respondent seeks to retain his casino employee license which permits him to deal in blackjack, roulette, baccarat and craps as well as perform as a floorperson in blackjack. He has not, however, been employed in the casino industry since September 14, 1983, the date of his termination with Caesars.

Second, the offenses to which respondent admits are serious. His conduct of entering into a conspiracy with his supervisor to falsify better rating slips for the benefit of a junket enterprise deprived his employer of a true and accurate accounting of the junket group ratings. Respondent knowingly caused false entries to be made on the group betting rating slips with the purpose to defraud and injure his employer, Caesars; and to ingratiate himself with his supervisor for self promotion.

Third, respondent was induced to commit the offenses by his supervisor, a shift manager in the employ of Caesars, and by a veiled threat from Albert Corbo, the operator of a junket enterprise. Mr. Corbo asserted that respondent could lose his job by not cooperating with the conspiracy because there would be less patrons visiting the casino. Although respondent derived no direct benefit from the conspiracy, he received indirect benefits by way of complementary dinners, shows and other special events for his parents and friends. He also joined into the conspiracy with the belief that his cooperation would benefit him with promotions in the casino industry in the future.

Fourth and fifth. The offenses occurred over a period of between 18 months and 24 months in 1982-1983. Respondent was 27 and 28 years of age respectively. He was no mere youth at the time the offenses were committed.

Sixth and seventh. The offenses having been committed over an extended period of time demonstrates that there was a repetition of respondent's conduct and that it was not an isolated event. There were no social conditions which may have or did in fact, contribute to the offenses.

Eighth. Although respondent can demonstrate he completed his required PTI program, he fails to show he is rehabilitated. In fact, the opposite is shown on the record; i.e., while not yet released from his PTI program, respondent is persuaded to aid a fellow worker to deliver a stolen tractor to a potential buyer. Respondent was not duped nor forced to engage in this activity but rather, volunteered when asked by the thief. Not only did respondent fail to refuse to participate in the illegal delivery but he also failed in his duty to report the theft. Respondent's actions fails to demonstrate any evidence of rehabilitation.

Having carefully considered the entire record before me, I CONCLUDE that the Division has carried its burden of proof, by a preponderance of the reliable and credible evidence. It has clearly demonstrated that respondent's conduct of falsifying player betting rating slips while in the employ of Caesars as a floorperson is inimical to the policies of the Act and, thus, to the gaming industry. I further CONCLUDE that such conduct disqualifies respondent from holding a casino employee license, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) and 86g.

Good Character, Honesty and Integrity as Required by Section 89b(2) of the Act.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), respondent is required to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979) at 8; Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985); In re Boardwalk Regency Corp. Casino License, 90 N.J. 361 (1982). When, as here, the Division raises the issue as to the licensee's good character, honesty and integrity, it is incumbent upon the licensee to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which this tribunal may reach a reasonable conclusion. Boardwalk Regency, supra, In the Matter of the Application of Boardwalk Regency Corp. and the Jemm Company for Casino License, Casino Control Commission (November 13, 1980). In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of the licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure.

Clear and convincing, falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here, the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the fact alleged is true; i.e., that respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity. The standard requires more than a mere balancing of probabilities, but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J Super. 118 (L. Div. 1974); Germann v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466 (App. Div. 1969).

Respondent produced no evidence, by way of documents or testimony, to establish his good character, honesty and integrity, although he was given explicit instructions at the prehearing conference as to how to meet his burden Respondent, who was willing to jeopardize his future by engaging in the disposition of stolen property while enrolled in PTI, does not give rise to a finding that he possessed good character or honesty or integrity. I can only CONCLUDE, therefore, that respondent has failed to meet his burden, by clear and convincing evidence, that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for continued licensure in the casino industry.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that respondent is disqualified from continued licensure by virtue of his failure to affirmatively establish his good character, honesty and integrity as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the casino employee license no. 02418-21 issued to and held by Armond R. DeCicco be and is hereby REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge (ALJ) having been filed with the New Jersey Casino Control Commission; and exceptions and replies having been filed; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meetings of September 5 and October 10, 1990,

IT IS on this 13th day of November 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

(1) to reject the ALJ's finding that Peter G. Demos, Jr. could not and did not violate the regulations cited in Count IV, paragraph 10 and Count V, paragraph 11 of the complaint because the student-teacher ratios central to the alleged violations were rules which were required to be adopted in accordance with the Administrative Procedures Act. This ruling misperceives the nature of the violation. Demos and Casino Schools, Inc. were required to obtain approval of student-teacher ratios for each course offered. Neither he nor it obtained such approvals for the classes at issue here and therefore N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.2(a)(13) and -8.5 were violated.

(2) to reject the ALJ's conclusion that the respondent has established his good character, honesty and integrity as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)(2). The record clearly establishes that Demos knowingly made numerous false and inaccurate filings to the Commission. Given the seriousness of the transgressions, the evidence favorable to Demos, although substantial, does not clearly and convincingly establish that he has the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino key employee.

(3) The $1,000 penalty recommended by the ALJ is a reasonable penalty for all the violations committed by the respondent. The regulatory provisions violated by respondent Demos are: N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.2(a)(13),-8.3, -8.4, -8.5, -18.1(a), and -18.1(b).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the applications of Peter G. Demos, Jr. for renewal of his gaming school instructor and casino key employee licenses are denied; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the resident director license of Peter G. Demos, Jr. is revoked substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Peter G. Demos, Jr. is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any other license, registration, qualification or approval required under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter was originally opened before the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on a complaint filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) dated October 5, 1987, seeking sanctions against Casino Schools, Inc., (CSI), a gaming school; Peter G. Demos, Jr., the resident director of CSI; and Rosemary Monacello, an administrative employee of CSI. The Division also filed a letter with the Commission, dated October 5, 1987, recommending that a hearing on the renewal of CSI's gaming school license be had together with Peter G. Demos' application for renewal of his license as Resident Director of CSI and Rosemary Monacello's qualifications for future licensability in the casino industry.

On December 28, 1987, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. (OAL DKT. NO. CCC 8692-87). Subsequently, the Honorable Jeff Masin, ALJ, issued an initial decision incorporating three separate stipulations of settlement entered into by the Division, CSI, Peter G. Demos, Jr., and Rosemary Monacello. On November 9, 1988, the Commission issued an Order accepting the stipulations of settlements pertaining to CSI and Rosemary Monacello which, among other things, granted the renewal application of CSI for its casino service industry license through the period ending June 11, 1988 and ordered CSI to pay a civil penalty of $25,000. The Commission ordered Rosemary Monacello to pay a civil penalty in the amount of $750, together with a reprimand for violating certain casino regulatory provisions. The Commission further ordered that Judge Masin's initial decision be modified to reject the proposed settlement between the Division and Peter G. Demos, Jr., with an order that the matter be remanded to the OAL.

On September 20, 1989, the Commission issued a subsequent order rejecting a stipulation of settlement entered into between the Division and Peter G. Demos, Jr., as incorporated in an initial decision issued by the Honorable Jeff Masin, ALJ (OAL DKT. NO. CCC 8330-89). The Commission further ordered the matter be remanded to the OAL for further proceedings regarding Mr. Demos' qualifications as a resident director, gaming instructor and key employee pursuant to the issues raised by the Division in its complaint and letter-reports to the Commission.

The remanded matter was transmitted to the OAL on September 29, 1989, where it was assigned OAL DKT. NO. CCC 7445-89. Subsequently, on November 14, 1989, the undersigned conducted a prehearing conference with the Deputy Attorney General and counsel for the respondent at which, among other things, the issues to be determined were identified and eight (8) hearing dates were established in the months of March and April 1990. The record opened on March 16, 1990 with the hearing record closed on April 27, 1990, upon receipt of the hearing transcripts.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this administrative tribunal, as agreed upon at the prehearing conference, and as set forth in the Division's complaint and letter report, are these:

I. Complaint

A. Count I

Whether Respondent Demos, in his capacity as Resident Director, violated N.J.A.C. 19:44-8-3 by failing to assure that the minimum hours of training and instruction were provided prior to their graduation from CSI to the students aforedescribed in paragraphs 12 and 14 of this Count?

B. Count II

Whether, by certifying to the Commission that said students identified in paragraphs 12 and 14 of Count I had properly completed the said courses or programs of instruction even though said students did not in fact receive the requisite minimum number of hours of training and instruction as required by N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.3, Respondent Demos, in his capacity as Resident Director, violated N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.4?

C. Count III

Whether Respondent Demos, in his capacity as Resident Director, failed to maintain accurate permanent records in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:44-18.1(b) by maintaining permanent records recording those students identified in paragraphs 12 and 14 of Count I showing that said students received the minimum number of hours of training and instruction required by N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.3 even though said students did not receive the requisite minimum number of hours of training and instruction as required by N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.3?

D. Count IV

Whether Respondent Demos, in his capacity as Resident Director, permitted CSI to exceed the maximum number of instructor/student ratios as aforedescribed in paragraphs 4 through 8 of this Count and thereby violated N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.2(a) and 8.5?

E. Count V

Whether Respondent Demos, in his capacity as Resident Director, violated N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.2(a), 8.4 and 8.5 by exceeding the maximum number of instructor/student ratios established by the Commission as aforedescribed in paragraph 4 of Count IV and by misrepresenting compliance therewith through the filing of the false and inaccurate information with the Commission as aforedescribed in paragraph 5 through 10 of the Count?

F. Count VI

(1) Whether, by failing to maintain accurate daily attendance sheets as aforedescribed in paragraphs 4 and 6 of this Count, Respondent Demos, in his capacity as Resident Director, violated N.J.A.C. 19:44-18.1(a)?

(2) Whether, by failing to maintain accurate permanent records as aforedescribed in paragraphs 5 and 8 of this Count, Respondent Demos, in his capacity as Resident Director, violated N.J.A.C. 19:44-18.1(b)?

II. Letter Report

A. Respondent Demos

(1) Whether Respondent Demos' execution of his duties as Resident Director, administration of the day-to-day operations of CSI, and implementation of systems to ensure that CSI's operation remained in overall compliance with the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder:

(a) adversely impact upon the Respondent Demos' reputation for good character, honesty and integrity pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)2?

(b) negatively impact upon Respondent Demos' business ability pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)3?

(2) Whether the Commission has jurisdiction to render a decision as to the suitability of licensure where the licensee no longer seeks a renewal of that license and where that license has now lapsed?

ORDER OF PROOFS AND BURDEN OF PERSUASION

A. The State has the burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, with respect to Counts I through VI.

B. Respondent has the burden of affirmatively establishing proof of his good character, honesty and integrity and his business ability by clear and convincing evidence.

C. Respondent has the burden of proof, by the standard of a preponderance of the credible evidence, with regard to the Commission's jurisdiction for non-renewal of license and/or lapsed license.

STIPULATIONS

The following stipulations are set forth on the record by the parties and are hereby adopted, by reference, as FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter. The stipulated counts in the complaint are annexed hereto together with the exhibits referenced therein.

COMPLAINT

Count I

The parties stipulate to paragraphs one (1) through and including paragraph sixteen (16). The Division has agreed, without objection from respondent, to withdraw any and all allegations pertinent to Veronica Jamison and Rafael Mora.

Count II

The parties stipulate to the allegations set forth in paragraphs one (1) through and including paragraph eight (8).

Count III

The parties stipulate to the allegations in paragraph one (1) through paragraph three (3).

Count IV

The parties stipulate to the allegations contained in paragraphs one (1) through and including paragraph nine of Count IV of the Division's complaint. Respondent Demos does not stipulate to paragraph ten (10) of Count IV, which reads as follows:

> 10. In his capacity as Resident Director, Respondent Demos permitted Respondent CSI to exceed the maximum number of instructor/student ratios as aforedescribed in paragraphs 4 through 8 of this Count and thereby violated N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.2(a) and 8.5.

Count V

The parties stipulate to the allegations set forth in paragraphs one (1) through and including paragraph ten (10). Respondent does not, however, stipulate to paragraph eleven (11) of Count V, which provides as follows:

> 11. Respondent, CSI; Respondent Demos, in his capacity as Resident Director, and Respondent Monacello, in her capacity as an administrative employee, violated N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.2(a), 8.4 and 8.5 by exceeding the maximum number of instructor/student ratios established by the Commission as aforedescribed in paragraph 4 of Count IV and by misrepresenting compliance therewith through the filing of the false and inaccurate information with the Commission as aforedescribed in paragraphs 5 through 10 of this Count.

Count VI

The parties stipulate to the allegations set forth in paragraphs one (1) through paragraph ten (10).

As to Counts IV and V, respondent stipulates to the facts set forth therein. However, he argues that those facts, standing alone, do not constitute any violation of the administrative code nor any properly promulgated regulation. Respondent contends that he cannot be held liable for violations of regulations that were not properly promulgated as required by the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), the OAL Rules, and as determined by our Supreme Court in Metromedia, Inc. v. Director, Div. of Taxation, 97 N.J. 313 (1984).

TESTIMONIAL AND DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE WITH REGARD TO PARAGRAPH 10 OF COUNT IV AND PARAGRAPH 11 OF COUNT V

Rosemary Monacello, Director of Student Services and Office Manager of CSI, testified on behalf of the Division. Ms. Monacello has been employed by CSI for nine years and reports directly to the Resident Director (R.D.) of the school. She reported directly to respondent Demos when he held the position of R.D. of CSI. As part of her duties under respondent Demos, Ms. Monacello scheduled blackjack and craps classes from six months to one year in advance of the class being offered. She was responsible for making bank deposits, supervised the record keeping of the school and its general office management. She would also provide orientation to instructors employed by CSI in the absence of respondent Demos. Ms. Monacello worked from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Ms. Monacello asserted that CSI was required to keep an Actual Report and a Graduation Report, both of which were filed with the Commission. The Actual Report is sent to the Commission's Affirmative Action monitor approximately four days subsequent to the beginning of a class. The Actual Report consists of, among other things, data concerning students enrolled in a class and a description of the class offered. The Graduation Report consisted of, among other things, the type of class provided, the instructor's name, the required number of hours completed by the student, the tuition paid in full and the successful completion of a student audition by the instructor.

In 1986-87, a sign-in sheet was provided to the instructors where the student would sign his or her name each day of attendance at class. The sign-in sheet would show the hours each day a student appeared for class and formed the basis of calculating the students hours for graduation.

Ms. Monacello testified that on two occasions, in or about 1986, two instructors were scheduled to teach separate classes with two sign-in sheets for the students. There were 18 or 20 student names listed on the sign-in sheets when the two classes were to begin. However, all of the students enrolled did not appear and, therefore, one instructor assumed the responsibility for the total student body of the combined classes and conducted one class. The Actual report filed with the Commission's Affirmative Action monitor indicated two classes taught by two instructors. The Graduation Report filed with the Commission indicated two instructors taught the classes to comport with the Actual Report, when only one instructor taught one combined class.

Ms. Monacello testified that when she noticed that the Graduation Report did not comport with the Actual Report, she confronted respondent Demos with the discrepancy. She told Demos that only one instructor had taught the class while the Actual Report was submitted with two instructors names listed. Ms. Monacello testified that Demos "...just thought it was insignificant and ... to let it go." As a consequence, Ms. Monacello filed an incorrect Graduation Report with the Commission.

Ms. Monacello testified that the last day of class instruction was to be counted as five (5) hours toward the total number of hours required for the completion of gaming instruction for licensure. She asserted that soon after the instructors submitted their individual student sign-in sheets, which occurred prior to the start of the class, the instructors were issued the students diplomas and graduation certificates. She testified that in some instances, the instructors then issued diplomas and graduation certificates to the students without conducting further classroom instruction on the last day of assigned class. The students, therefore, received diplomas and/or certificates attesting that they each had completed the minimum hours of training and instruction when, in fact, they had not.

On cross-examination, Ms. Monacello testified that since the schools opening approximately 10,000 students had graduated from CSI. She filed, on average, between 40 and 45 Actual Reports and Graduation Reports with the Commission each year. During the nine years that Ms. Monacello was employed by CSI, she filed, conservatively, 360 Actual and Graduation Reports with the Commission and only one Actual Report was called into question as to its accuracy or validity.

Ms. Monacello asserted that other than the four named students in the Division's complaint, she knew of no other students who were granted credit for making up hours they were absent from class when, in fact, the students had not made up for the absent class time. Similarly, she testified that other than the six named students in the Division's complaint, Ms. Monacello knew of no other students who were given credit for hours of instruction where, in fact, the students did not actually receive the hours of instruction reported. These were the only regulatory violations that she was aware of that had been committed by CSI during the period she had been employed at the school.

Ms. Monacello testified, among other things, that during respondent Demos' tenure at CSI, she dealt with Demos on a day-to-day basis and that he had never asked her to do anything, directly or indirectly, that she would consider to be immoral or dishonest. She opined that Demos possessed good character, honesty and integrity. Even after the Division had filed its complaint with the Commission, which placed her license and the license of Demos and CSI in jeopardy, Demos did not request Ms. Monacello to do anything other than to tell the truth. Monacello opined that respondent Demos was a promoter for CSI rather than a hands-on-administrator; i.e., he was a figurehead president who generated business rather than administer the institution on a day-to-day basis.

James Joseph Dickey was called and testified on behalf of the Division. Mr. Dickey is presently employed by Resorts International Hotel and Casino as a full-time pit boss with the games of roulette, blackjack, baccarat and mini baccarat. He is licensed by the Commission holding a key license in the games in which he serves as a full-time pit boss. He also holds instructor licenses in the games of roulette, blackjack and baccarat. It was under his instructor's license that he taught classes in baccarat at CSI in February and September of 1986 when respondent Demos was its R.D.

Mr. Dickey testified that he was hired to teach 80 hours of baccarat to licensed dealers and floorpersons as a second or subsequent game. There were between 30 and 35 students enrolled in his class. Mr. Dickey approached Ms. Monacello to express his concerns about the large class and offered to locate another instructor to help him teach the class. Ms. Monacello asserted that several of the enrollees would drop out of the class, therefore, another instructor was not necessary. Mr. Dickey next approached respondent Demos who stated the same position as Ms. Monacello, asserting that an additional instructor was not necessary. Respondent Demos did, however, offer Dickey more money to teach the large class, which Dickey accepted.

Mr. Dickey testified, among other things, that he was to offer 80 hours of instruction to the students enrolled in his class. The last day of classroom instruction, which was to account for five of the 80 hours, was devoted to a review of the final test for the course, after which he and the students celebrated with a graduation party. Mr. Dickey asserted that he did not teach the full five hours of the last scheduled day of class. He opined that a graduation party was a common practice on the last day of scheduled classes at CSI.

On cross-examination, Mr. Dickey admitted he did not know what was common practice at the school regarding the last day of scheduled class other than the two classes he taught. He also admitted that he allowed a student to leave his class for a doctor's appointment and did not require the student to make up the missed time. Mr. Dickey was not cited by the Division for violations of the casino regulations for these two events.

Mr. Dickey asserted that respondent Demos did not attempt to pay Dickey off to keep quiet about large classes at the school when Demos offered Dickey additional compensation to teach the class. The extra money was offered to Dickey because he would have to do more work than the original agreement provided. Mr. Dickey asserted that respondent Demos never exhibited any evidence that he lacked good character or integrity, or that he was dishonest.

The Division moved into evidence, without objection, exhibits marked J-1 through J-25. It asserts that Exhibit J-2 demonstrates that James Dickey and Steve Kuriscak were reported as the instructors for two (2) baccarat classes to be conducted from September 8, 1986 through October 6, 1986. The CSI attendance records indicated that 21 students were listed for the first day of class and assigned to Kuriscak. Eleven of the 21 students appeared. The attendance records listed Dickey with 24 students where 21 appeared. On September 11, 1986, the attendance sheets were changed by assigning 17 students to each of the instructors listed on separate attendance sheets. There was only one baccarat class of instruction at CSI between September 8, and October 6, 1986, and it was taught by Dickey.

The Division contends that the record demonstrates that four students were graduated from CSI who did not meet the minimum required hours of training and instruction because of absences. None of the four students made up the class time missed. It asserts that six students were absent from their regularly scheduled classes and subsequently reported to CSI, however, they too did not receive the minimum hours of training and instruction as required by the regulations. Students who made up class time because of absence often made up the time without benefit of an instructor (J-2, J-3, J-4).

The Division contends that exhibit J-9 shows that eight students were certified by respondent Demos as having completed the requisite minimum number of hours of training and instruction, where the evidence demonstrates (J-2, J-3, J-4) that none of the eight students received the minimum hours of training and instruction reported. The certification entitled the eight students to a grant of licensure in games listed. In support of its contention, the Division relies upon Exhibits J-5, J-9 and J-21 which include, among other things, student permanent records.

The Division asserts that respondent Demos, in his capacity of R.D., violated N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.2(a) and 8.5 when he permitted CSI to exceed the maximum instructor/student ratios. The Division relies, in part, upon Exhibit J-14 in evidence which is a letter to respondent Demos from the Commission dated December 1, 1980 and states, in pertinent part, as follows:

At the public meeting of November 26, 1980 the Commission issued a Certificate of Operation to Casino Schools, Inc., authorizing the commencement of gaming school operation at 1923 Bacharach Boulevard, Atlantic City, NJ and the public offering of primary and secondary courses or programs of instruction in dealing techniques in the games of Blackjack, Craps, Roulette and Baccarat.

This Certificate and authorization were made specifically subject to the licensee's compliance with conditions #1-3 as set forth on page two (2) of the Staff Report dated November 26, 1990. Additionally, all approved courses or programs of instruction to be offered by Casino Schools, Inc. shall at all times conform to the following maximum ratios, as adopted by the Commission.

Maximum Ratios

Courses	Student/Table	Instructor/Table	Instructor/ Student
Blackjack	5 to 1	1 to 5	1 to 20
Craps	8 to 1	1 to 2	1 to 16
Baccarat	9 to 1	1 to 2	1 to 18
Roulette	8 to 1	1 to 2	1 to 16
Big 6	8 to 1	1 to 2	1 to 16	(J-14)

The Division contends that CSI's attendance sheets (J-21) and its compilation of statistics derived from those attendance sheets (J-10), demonstrate that from March 10, 1986 to November 4, 1986, CSI exceeded the maximum instructor/student ratio established by the Commission in 12 blackjack courses of instruction. It asserts that from March 10, 1986 to April 7, 1987, CSI exceeded the maximum instructor/student ratio in five craps courses. The Division submits that from February 3, 1986 to October 20, 1986, CSI exceeded the maximum instructor/student ratio in five baccarat courses and, from March 3, 1986 to December 1, 1986, it exceeded the maximum in four roulette courses.

The Division asserts that notwithstanding its letter notice to respondent setting forth the maximum instructor/student ratios for the various courses taught at CSI, respondent continued to exceed the established ratios in classes conducted during March and April 1987. The Division conducted a routine spot inspection of CSI on March 17, 1987 and determined that a craps course instructed b y Bill Belzner listed 23 students on the attendance sheet, with 19 present and under instruction. The Division's inspector noted that CSI was allowed 16 students per instructor as the maximum enrolled in a craps class (J-7). Similarly, in a spot inspection conducted on April 29, 1987, when two blackjack and one craps class was monitored by the Division's inspector, the inspector noted, among other things, that it appeared that two craps classes (201 and 202) may have been combined to form one class of 25 students (J-8). The Division again contends that the maximum instructor/student ratio for CSI craps classes was 1 to 16 on April 29, 1987.

The Division contends that CSI's July 31, 1986 Graduation Class and Report for blackjack was false and inaccurate where it listed the classes as having been taught by Peter Demos, Sadie Jones and Beryl Tweedle (J-20). The Division asserts that respondent Demos did not teach a blackjack class between June 9 and July 31, 1986, as submitted in the Report (J-20). Blackjack 101 was taught as two, rather than three classes, by instructors Sadie Jones and Beryl Tweedle. Sadie Jones taught the course which enrolled 48 students and graduated 34 students. The Division claims that the established instructor/student ratio's for blackjack was 1 to 20; therefore, CSI exceeded the maximum student enrollment for instruction in this class.

Respondent Demos admits to the regulatory violations that certain students did not complete the required minimum hours of instruction in courses offered by CSI for casino employee licensure, while respondent served as CSI's R.D. Although respondent Demos is and was unaware of the names of the ten (10) students identified by the Division or the circumstances as to why they each did not complete the required minimum hours of instruction at CSI, he admits to the regulatory violations because he has no way to refute the Division's allegations. Respondent contends that only ten (10) students found to have been short of the required minimum hours of instruction out of some 10,000 certified graduates from CSI was a minimal offense, yet it has been very costly to him and his career in the casino industry. Nevertheless, when Demos was advised of the alleged violations by the Division's investigator, respondent took immediate action to correct the alleged irregularities (J-15). Respondent contends that he received no benefit, monetary or otherwise, as a consequence of these few students' failure to complete the required minimum hours of instruction at CSI. He testified that he terminated certain teaching staff members when he learned they were not providing the requisite number of hours for licensure.

Respondent Demos does not admit to any violation of the regulations with regard to student/teacher ratios provided at CSI while he was its R.D. He contends that the administrative regulations specifically sets forth the required minimum hours of instruction to be provided students in each gaming course, however, there are no specific teacher/student ratios for the courses of instruction set forth in the regulations. Respondent Demos maintains that the Division's investigation in 1986 was the first time any reference to teacher/student ratios was brought to his attention. He does not recall receiving J-14, the letter dated December 1, 1980, addressed to him from the Commission, He contends that it was his understanding that the teacher/student ratios were established by the ability of the individual instructor to handle a given number of students and the physical facilities (tables) the instructor was able to work with.

Respondent Demos asserted that CSI could not continue as a viable enterprise under the restrictive teacher/student ratios as suggested by J-14. He asserted, for example, that the letter provides for only 16 students as the student/teacher ratio for instruction in a craps class. Sixteen people might show up for the first class, however, after one week, the class might be down to an enrollment of 12 or 13 students. By the time the class of instruction is completed, only eight (8) or nine (9) students might graduate. Demos maintained that the school would not have collected enough money in tuition payments to pay the cost of the instructor under such circumstances. He asserted that the school would have been bankrupt in two months if it was required to comply with such ratios.

Respondent Demos testified that subsequent to the Division's investigation of CSI in 1986, he conducted a search for J-14 in the schools then attorney's files. After an intensive search, Demos located the letter which, he maintains, was the first he learned of any suggested or regulated maximum teacher/student ratios for the instruction in the various gaming classes.

Respondent Demos asserted that once the teacher/student ratio problem was brought to his attention in 1986, and under advice of counsel, he immediately petitioned the Commission to increase the teacher/student ratios to the levels reflected in CSI's records. This was for the purpose, among other things, of protecting those individuals who had graduated and been certified by CSI. Demos asserted that its petition was granted by the Commission.

Respondent Demos maintains that from December 1980 up to and including 1986, the Division's and Commission's inspectors were present and on CSI's site on a regular basis. In fact, many times the Division and Commission sent individuals to CSI's classes for training. These Division and Commission staff members were in classes which exceeded the maximum teacher/student class ratios as expressed in J-14. No warning or complaint was issued from either the Division or the Commission.

While respondent Demos admits that J-14 existed and that the letter (J-14) required certain teacher/student ratios, he does not admit to any regulatory violations or noncompliance because there were no adopted or promulgated regulations to which he or CSI were required to comply.

The parties stipulated that respondent Demos cooperated with the Division and did not interfere with its investigation.

Seven witnesses testified on respondent Demos' behalf with regard to his good character, honesty and integrity. They were: Thomas A. Olah, Senior Gaming Inspector, New Jersey Casino Control Commission; John A. Clement, III, President and General Manager, Gold and Tennis World, 405 Black Horse Pike, West Atlantic City, New Jersey; James Gulbrandsen, Director of Casino Games, TropWorld Hotel/Casino; James A. Rigot, Vice President, Casino Games, TropWorld Hotel/Casino; Robert J. Driscoll, Assistant Games Manager, Harrah's Marina Hotel/Casino; Donald C. Williams, talk show host with radio station WOND, South Jersey Broadcasting; and, Robert M. Walker, Senior Vice President, Action Savings Bank, Somers Point, New Jersey. All of the witnesses opined that respondent Demos possessed the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure as a key employee in the casino industry.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Having carefully considered the entire record in this matter and having given fair weight thereto, and having observed the witnesses and assessed their credibility, I FIND the following FACTS:

Respondent Demos is presently 48 years of age and is employed as the Director of Casino Operations at the Sands Hotel/Casino, San Juan, Puerto Rico. In March 1978, he was recruited by the Atlantic City Resorts International Hotel/Casino (Resorts), and employed as an instructor of blackjack. Prior to March 1978, he was employed by the Sahara Casino, Lake Tahoe, Nevada. Demos has been employed in the casino industry since 1963. Subsequent to his arrival in New Jersey, respondent Demos was issued casino key license no 18-11. When Resorts opened some four months later, respondent was employed as a pit boss by the casino.

On April 1, 1979, respondent Demos left Resorts with the purpose of opening his own gaming school. In or about October 1979, he was employed by Caesars Hotel/Casino (Caesars) as a pit boss. Subsequently, respondent and two partners opened CSI. The partnership consisted of respondent and Kenneth Arthur, both key licensed employees with instructors licenses and, Morgan Cashman of Photo Enterprises, Las Vegas, Nevada and Atlantic City, New Jersey. Cashman was a qualifier doing business with Atlantic City casinos and was also the "money man" for the enterprise.

During the summer of 1979, respondent Demos and Arthur were approached by representatives of the Commission to set up a training program for its inspectors. Demos and Arthur did establish a training program and Demos wrote many of the manuals for the inspectors use in checking games at the casinos and for interpreting casino rules and regulations.

Respondent was CSI's President and R.D. from December 1980 until January 1988. Demos performed as the school's public relations (PR) person. Ken Arthur handled all of the schools records, accounts, files and submission of reports and applications to the Commission. Demos delegated all of the administrative duties to Arthur although acknowledging that he, Demos, was responsible for compliance with the administrative regulations. Arthur left CSI within the first year of the school's operation and respondent Demos then elevated Ms. Monacello to the position of office administrator with all of the delegated duties and responsibilities formerly performed by Arthur. Demos was not attentive to administrative details in the daily operation of the school.* Moreover, he signed documents placed before him without a thorough review of the contents of the documents; i.e., bulk diplomas, attendance sheets, correspondence, memoranda, etc. Respondent Demos did not knowingly sign any document which he knew to be false.

Subsequent to the Division having filed its complaint with the Commission, dated October 5, 1987, alleging regulatory violations against respondent Demos, CSI and Ms. Monacello, Demos was asked by Cashman to resign as the school's R.D. and President. As a consequence of his resignation, Demos faced severe financial problems with lending institutions and the IRS and came very close to bankruptcy. Due to the nature of the Division's charges against him, Demos was unable to find work in the casino industry either in Atlantic City or Nevada. He subsequently found employment in the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and remains deeply in debt today.

Respondent Demos admits to the Division's allegations with regard to those counts of the complaint stipulated hereinbefore. He does not admit to any violations of any regulation pertaining to instructor/student ratios.

I FIND the testimony of both the Division's witnesses and the witnesses produced by respondent Demos to be reliable and credible. In re Perrone's Estate, 5 N.J. 514, 522 (1950); Gilson v. Gilson, 116 N.J. Eq., 556, 560 (1934). Accordingly, I hereby ADOPT the proffered testimony as FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The issues now for determination are these:

Count IV, paragraph 10.

Whether, in his capacity as Resident Director, respondent Demos permitted respondent CSI to exceed the maximum number of instructor/student ratios as aforedescribed in paragraphs 4 through 8 of this Count and thereby violated N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.2(a) and 8.5.

Count V, paragraph 11.

Whether respondent Demos, in his capacity as Resident Director, violated N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.2(a), 8.4 and 8.5 by exceeding the maximum number of instructor/student ratios established by the Commission as aforedescribed in paragraph 4 of Count IV and by misrepresenting compliance therewith through the filing of the false and inaccurate information with the Commission as aforedescribed in paragraphs 5 through 10 of this Count.

Letter Report

(1) Whether Respondent Demos' execution of his duties as Resident Director, administration of the day-to-day operations of CSI, and implementation of systems to ensure that CSI's operation remained in overall compliance with the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder:

(a) adversely impact upon the respondent Demos' reputation for good character, honesty and integrity pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)2?

(b) negatively impact upon respondent Demos' business ability pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)3?

(2) Whether the Commission has jurisdiction to render a decision as to the suitability of licensure where the licensee no longer seeks a renewal of that license and where that license has now lapsed?

JURISDICTION

Respondent raises the jurisdictional issue as to whether the Commission may render a decision as to the suitability of licensure where the licensee no longer seeks renewal of a license and where a license has now lapsed. The Division cites the matter of Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Ihrig, OAL DKT. NO. CCC 3180-88 (Commission Order dated December 30, 1988). The Division observes that while its complaint in Ihrig was pending, the respondent's casino license expired with no reapplication pending while the respondent's hotel registration lapsed. While the Commission voted three (3) to one (1) not to revoke respondent Ihrig's registration, and took no action on the casino license as it had expired, Chairman Read stated in his dissent as follows:

> With respect to the question of licensure, ... I would recognize that the argument ... with respect to our ability to deal with licensure if there is not a current license in being, but I would be concerned about the situation where someone who was licensed at the time the charges were brought has presumably allowed his licensure to lapse voluntarily as a possible means of avoiding implication at this time. I would agree with Judge Masin > with going forward with the hearing as he did, when we say it's on the basis of efficiency as I think the basis that he used, the availability of the witnesses, the whole picture that way. I think he did the proper thing and the question I would find if I were to go against ... [the respondent] at this time would be simply that he is not licensable, if you will, in view of the circumstances and the time that the complaint was brought. Transcript of Commission Meeting, December 21, 1988 at 113, 11 8-25.

It is the Division's position that the instant matter may be distinguished from Ihriq on a number of grounds. First the Division's complaint was brought against respondent Demos when the respondent's licenses were current. Second, even though respondent Demos' casino key employee license expired in June 1989 with no reapplication pending, the Commission has not taken action on respondent Demos' key license for the years 1986-1988, inclusive, as reflected in the Division's letter report dated August 30, 1989, which letter report is a part of this record. Third, respondent Demos' gaming school instructor license and resident director license remain active to date. Fourth, because said gaming school instructor and resident director licenses are active, any action taken by the OAL and the Commission impacts upon the key license as a matter of law pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89 (b) incorporated by reference by N.J.S.A. 5:12-92 (a) (1) and (b).

The Division continues to argue that in the event this tribunal finds respondent Demos not to be qualified as a gaming school instructor and/or resident director, then respondent cannot be found to be qualified as a casino key employee. I disagree.

I find Chairman Read's comments significant concerning the Ihriq matter at the Commission meeting on December 21, 1988 with regard to the Commission's authority over lapsed or expired casino employee licenses. The Commission, by virtue of its broad powers under N.J.S.A. 5:12-64, possesses

> ... the power and authority to deny any application; limit or restrict any license, registration, certificate, permit or approval, suspend or revoke any license, registration, certificate, permit or approval; and, impose a penalty on any person licensed, registered, or previously approved for any cause deemed reasonable by the Commission ... (Emphasis supplied).

Section 64 of the Act grants to the Commission the authority to consider not only current applications, licenses and registrations, but also, those previously approved and which may now have expired.

I FIND and CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Commission, and derivatively the OAL, has jurisdiction to hear and determine the qualifications of respondent Demos for licensure where respondent no longer seeks a renewal of his license and where respondent has allowed a license to lapse.

COMPLAINT, COUNT IV, PARAGRAPH 10 AND COUNT V, PARAGRAPH 11

The Division alleges that respondent Demos was in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.2(a), N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.4 and N.J.A.C. 19:44- 8.5 as a consequence of respondent permitting the maximum number of instructor/student ratios to be exceeded at CSI in certain classes of instruction and by his filing of false and inaccurate information with the Commission pertaining to those instructor/student ratios. The regulations alleged to have been violated by respondent Demos are as follows:

N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.2 Outline

3. For courses, the content in outline form showing the major elements of items of instruction, the number of teacher contact hours of instruction for each element of the course, the number of laboratory or practice hours required and the total number of hours for the course;

4. For programs, a description of the program in outline form showing the courses or elements or items of instruction comprising the program, the number of teacher contact hours of instruction for each course or element of the program, the number of laboratory or practice hours required and the total number of hours required for completion of the program;

5. A description of the plan of instruction to be used which shall include daily lesson plans;

6. A description of the space, equipment, tools and audio-visual material to be used for each course or program;

7. The entrance requirements, if any, such as education, physical fitness or dexterity, and the procedure for determining compliance with such;

8. The proposed tuition and other charges or cost to the student;

9. The maximum number of students that will be permitted to enroll in any one session of the course or program taking into account the facilities available;

10. The capacity of the school for any one session of the course or program showing the number of work stations in the shop or laboratory, the number of classroom spaces and the number and type of gaming tables and equipment to be utilized;

11. The nature of skill and knowledge students are expected to have upon completion of the course or program and occupational and other outcomes expected from the course or program, and the testing program to be used to test students for these competencies and the standard to be used;

12. A description of the method and frequency by which the course will be evaluated in relation to its goals and objectives.

13. The student-teacher, student-table and table-teacher ratios for each course or program; and

14. A copy of all textual material to be used in the course or program of instruction (emphasis supplied.

N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.4 Certificate

Upon satisfactory completion of any course or program of instruction, the gaming school shall, in writing, certify directly to the commission that the student has completed the said course or program of instruction.

N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.5 Standards

> No course or program of instruction shall be approved by the commission unless the commission shall have first been satisfied that the student-teacher ratio, physical facilities, equipment and classroom and laboratory space shall be such as to afford each student an adequate opportunity to determine the student's progress by testing, observation or performance. (Emphasis supplied).

In support of its allegations that respondent Demos permitted the instructor/student ratios to be exceeded, the Division relies upon Exhibit J-14 in evidence, a letter addressed to respondent Demos from Bertha L. Scott, Legal Analyst for the Commission, and dated December 1, 1980.

Respondent Demos asserts that he did not see J-14 in or about December 1980 but, rather, he first saw the document sometime in 1986 after the Division had commenced its inspection of CSI. He asserted that the letter (J-14) was located in the files of the school's then attorney after an intensive search lasting some five hours. Demos contends that he had no way of knowing of the Commission's instructor/student ratios because the ratios were not set forth in any regulation Demos maintains that between December 1980 and on or about April 1986, when the Division commenced its inspection of CSI, many members of the Division's staff and the Commission's staff had visited CSI and participated in its courses of study without advising him of the instructor/student ratios or that he had exceeded said ratios. Respondent Demos observes that the regulatory scheme clearly sets forth, at N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.3, the maximum hours of instruction required of a student in preparation to deal various games in the casinos. Notwithstanding that ten (10) of the students enrolled at CSI some how did not meet these minimum hours of instruction, the regulations, nevertheless, put respondent Demos on notice as to his obligation to satisfy the standard. He argues that no such standard exists with respect to maximum instructor/student ratios. Therefore, he contends, he committed no violation with respect to said ratios and cites Metromedia, Inc., supra in support of his position.

In Metromedia, Inc., the Director of the Division of Taxation assessed a corporate business tax on an out-of-state corporation owning five out-of-state television and radio stations. The Director allocated a factor to calculate the stations' share of the local viewing or listening audiences and assessed a tax on the corporation. The New Jersey Supreme Court held that even though the assessment was authorized by Statute (N.J.S.A. 54:10A-8), it was invalid without a proper promulgation of rules in compliance with the Administrative Procedure Act (APA). In sum, the Court held the following:

> We can synthesize from this authority that an agency determination must be considered an administrative rule when all or most of the relevant features of administrative rules are present and preponderate in favor of the rule-making process. Such a conclusion would be warranted if it appears that the agency determination, in many or most of the following circumstances, (1) is intended to have wide coverage encompassing a large segment of the regulated or general public, rather than an individual or a narrow select group; (2) is intended to be applied generally and uniformly to all similarly situated persons; (3) is designed to operate only in future cases, that is, prospectively; (4) prescribes a legal standard or directive that is not otherwise expressly provided by or clearly and obviously inferable from the enabling statutory authorization; (5) reflects an administrative policy that (i) was not previously expressed in any official and explicit agency determination, adjudication or rule, or (ii) constitutes a material and significant change from a clear, past agency position on the identical subject matter; and (6) reflects a decision on administrative regulatory policy in the nature of the interpretation of law or general policy. These relevant factors can, either singly or in combination, determine in a given case whether the essential agency action must be rendered through rule-making or adjudication. 97 N.J. 331-332

The Metromedia Court held that not all of the above features need to be present for an agency statement to be considered a rule. Where, as here, the Commission's maximum instructor/student ratios was one of general applicability to a regulated class (Gaming Schools), essentially prospective in nature, intending to have continuing effect and not otherwise expressly provided for by statute, nor was it clearly and obviously implied, it therefore meets the test of an administrative rule

The regulatory provisions cited by the Division in support of its allegations that respondent Demos was in violation of the Commission's instructor/student ratios (N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.2(a), 8.4 and 8.5) did not provide respondent with a sufficiently specific standard of conduct by which it was to be measured by the Commission or the Division. While N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.2(a) 13 provides that CSI was to submit its student-teacher ratios, among other ratios, for each course or program for the Commission's approval; the Division offered no such document for this tribunal to assess whether or not respondent was aware of any established instructor/student ratios prior to 1986. Similarly, N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.5 offers little or no guidance as to what ratios, if any, were required to be provided respondent's gaming courses.

I CONCLUDE, as the Supreme Court did in Metromedia at 334, that, "In balancing the relevant factors before [me], [I am] satisfied that the [Commission's] determination constituted a rule, and that its adoption required compliance with statutory rule-making procedures." N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2; N.J.S.A. 52:14B-4.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that respondent Demos could not, nor did he, violate the Commission's instructor/student ratios as alleged. Accordingly, Count IV, paragraph 10 and Count V, paragraph 11 of the Division's complaint are hereby DISMISSED.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-89B(2), GOOD CHARACTER, HONESTY AND INTEGRITY

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), respondent is required to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979) at 8; Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985); In re Boardwalk Regency Corp. Casino License, 90 N.J. 361 (1982). When as here, the Division raises the issue as to the licensee's good character, honesty and integrity, it is incumbent upon the licensee to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which this tribunal may reach a reasonable conclusion. Boardwalk Regency, supra, In the Matter of the Application of Boardwalk Regency Corp. and the Jemm Company for Casino License, Casino Control Commission (November 13, 1980). In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of the licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure.

Clear and convincing, falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here, the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the fact alleged is true; i.e., that respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity. The standard requires more than a mere balancing of probabilities, but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (L. Div. 1974); Germann v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466 (App. Div. 1969).

The Division contends that respondent Demos does not possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino key licensure as a consequence of his lack of diligence in the day-to-day administration of CSI and his failure to ensure the school's operation remained in compliance with the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder. While respondent's lack of diligence in administration of the school may speak to his business ability, it does not necessarily hold that such lack of diligence adversely impacts upon his good character, honesty and integrity. Quite the contrary. The testimony of the witnesses extolled respondent's good character, honesty and integrity. Thomas Olah testified that "[Demos] has an outstanding character" and reputation in the casino community. Olah opined that respondent bent over backward to be in compliance with the casino rules and regulations. (TR, March 22, 1990, pp. 7,8). Mr. John A. Clement, III, testified as to respondent's good character, honesty and integrity as did James Gulbrandsen who believes that respondent has always set very high moral standards for himself and others. James Rigot found respondent to be very honorable with the utmost integrity. Robert Driscoll, Donald Wilson and Robert Walker had similar opinions concerning respondent's reputation.

There was no evidence produced to demonstrate that respondent had committed any crimes or that he had been involved in any criminal activity. The evidence produced did demonstrate, moreover, the casino community's high regard for his good reputation and his contributions to the casino industry. There was no evidence to suggest that respondent Demos was anything other than a person of good character, who is honest in his dealings with others and has the utmost integrity.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that respondent Demos has met his burden of proof, by clear and convincing evidence, that he does possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure under N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2). Accordingly, the Division's complaint with regard to this issue is hereby DISMISSED.

Section 89b(3) of the Act provides that:

> Each applicant shall produce such information, documentation and assurances as may be required to establish by clear and convincing evidence that the applicant has sufficient business ability and casino experience as to establish the reasonable likelihood of success and efficiency in the particular position involved.

The record shows, and respondent Demos admits, that during his tenure as President and R.D. of CSI, he functioned as its P.R. person while he delegated the day-to-day administrative operations to others. He viewed his job as being before the public, appearing on radio and television to discuss the problems and issues of the casino industry while also recruiting students for his school. The minutia of administrative detail respondent left to others. Although he was ultimately responsible for the decisions and actions of his subordinates, respondent routinely signed important documents for transmission to the Commission without first scrutinizing the contents of the documents. In addition, respondent was unaware of the practice of some of the teachers who permitted CSI students to be absent from class without making up the lost time to meet the minimum required instruction hours for licensure. He was also unaware that some teachers did not perform their duties to the full extent of the requirements by allowing students to forego instruction on the last day of class to engage in graduation celebrations. It is to respondent's credit that when he did learn of situations where teachers in his employ failed to provide their respective students with the minimum required hours of instruction, he immediately dismissed the teachers and required the students to make up the missed time.

There is no question or doubt that respondent has exhibited extensive casino experience as both a teacher and dealer of a variety of gaming activities. In fact, he is highly regarded as a teacher and expert in the field of casino games. During his tenure as President and R.D. of CSI, he saw the school grow in reputation and turn a profit for him and his partner, Morgan Cashman. It was unfortunate that respondent's other partner, Kenneth Arthur, left the school for other employment. Mr. Arthur was familiar with the casino Act and regulations and preferred working with such administrative detail. Subsequent to Arthur's leaving CSI, respondent promoted Ms. Monacello to the position of Office Manager and delegated Arthur's duties to her. There is no evidence on this record to demonstrate that Ms. Monacello possessed the expertise of the Act and its attendant regulations as that possessed by Arthur.

It can fairly be said that, under Section 89b(3) of the Act, respondent possesses the casino experience to establish the reasonable likelihood of success for a casino gaming school. It is also obvious from the herein record that respondent Demos has failed to establish that he possesses sufficient business ability to assure the "efficient" operation component of the statutory prescription. I CONCLUDE that respondent Demos has failed to demonstrate, by clear and convincing evidence, that he possesses sufficient business ability to operate a casino gaming school.

ORDER

I do not conclude that respondent Demos lacks sufficient business ability and casino experience to establish the reasonable likelihood of success and efficiency for casino key licensure. I CONCLUDE only, that he lacks the ability to efficiently operate a gaming school. Consequently, I ORDER that only respondent's resident director license, number 504-60 should be REVOKED and that he be assessed a penalty of $1000. for the violation of N.J.A.C. 19:44-8.3 I further ORDER that respondent's gaming school instructor license number 38-60 and respondent's casino key employee license number 18-11 be permitted to lapse.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

BEFORE RICHARD J. MURPHY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE, ISSUES AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) has filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission against Jean Ann DeGraw, a key licensee pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86, 89-91, 197-198, 129-130, seeking to revoke her key employee license. Respondent currently holds casino (key) employee license number 840-11 and is not now employed in the casino industry. On or about July 14, 1982, respondent was arrested and charged with conspiracy, theft of services, and computer related theft, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2, 2C:20-25(c) for alleged conduct while working as a pit boss at the Atlantis Casino/Hotel. The criminal charges were unconditionally dismissed, after being reduced to the misdemeanor of theft.*

*The Commission filed this matter with the Office of Administrative Law on September 25, 1989, for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., a prehearing was held on January 2, 1990, and a plenary hearing held in Absecon on March 22, 1990, at which time the record closed. The due date for submission of the intial decision was extended for good cause not related to this case as set forth in an Order of Extension. I regret any hardship or inconvenience that this delay may have caused the parties.

The following issues are to be resolved:

(1) Whether the key licensee is disqualified from holding a license under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), because of commission of acts constituting the offense of theft notwithstanding that these acts or conduct have not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of the state as provided by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g or are the subject of a current prosecution or pending charges pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86d.

(2) Whether the key licensee is disqualified from holding a license under N.J.S.A. 56:12-86c(2) and 86g for commission of the offense of falsification which indicates that licensure would be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and casino operations in the state of New Jersey under subsection c(2) even if this conduct has not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of the state or pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86d is the subject of current prosecution or pending charges for an offense included within section 86c.

(3) Whether the key licensee can demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that she possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), and 90b, considering the factors of rehabilitation as set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

The facts are not in dispute and the respondent does not contest the Division's statements contained in paragraph 6 of its complaint at page 2, as to her arrest in July of 1987 on charges:

> On or about July 14, 1987, Respondent, Jean Ann DeGraw, was arrested and charged with the following:
>
> | | |
> |---|---|
> | Conspiracy | N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2; |
> | Theft of Services | N.J.S.A. 2C:20-8(b) (third degree) |
> | Computer-related Theft | N.J.S.A. 2C:20-25(c) (third degree) |
>
> Ms. DeGraw denies the underlying allegations by the Division:
> It is alleged that beginning in May of 1983 and continuing through June of 1987, while working as a pit boss, the Respondent and another individual entered false patron names together with corresponding false player rating information into the Atlantis Casino/Hotel computer systems. Further, it is alleged that on several occasions between June of 1985 and June of 1987 the Respondent obtained complimentary goods or services valued at $807 by utilizing the false patrons information. Copies of the investigation report, written statement of the Respondent and criminal complaint are attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibits "A", "B" and "C", respectively.

The parties also stipulate that the charges were ultimately dismissed after being downgraded and there was no conditional discharge or pretrial intervention program required. (The DAG represents that the Atlantic City Municipal Court was unable to locate the file in this matter, but the file of Ms. DeGraw's former attorney, Steven J. Feldman, shows dismissals of those charges as of April 22, 1988).

Ms. DeGraw, who had flown in from Las Vegas, Nevada in an effort to clear up this matter, testified that she initially applied for a floor person license in May of 1979, was granted that, and later obtained a casino key license, under which she functioned as shift manager and casino manager, until her suspension in connection with these theft charges in September of 1987. Her employment history began with Caesar's Hotel and Casino, from its opening until December of 1979, and thereafter with the Brighton Casino (now the Sands Hotel and Casino), where she wrote procedures and taught training as to roulette and blackjack. In 1981, she moved on to the Playboy Hotel and Casino as a pit boss, advancing to assistant shift manager and continued there until her suspension.

She explained that her duties as pit boss, were to "run the pit" and supervise play at all tables, including blackjack and baccarat, by keeping a close eye on dealers and floor persons. The pit supervisor, who is above the pit boss, also supervises the pit clerks, who generate markers and handle the computer listings that are needed to dispense the complimentaries given to patrons based on their play in the casino. Ms. De Graw also testified that comps are sometimes given to non-players, who are accompanying players in the casino. She also stated, the Division did not dispute that the pit boss is authorized to issue comps, and that some other floor persons have that same authority, based on a player's rating. The actual rating of play is done by floor persons, based on the length of time, average bet, nature of the game being played, and other factors. As pit boss, she was authorized to write "comps" (complimentaries) for coffee shops and the bar, although casino shows and the gourmet restaurants were "comped" by the pit manager. She acknowledged that comps were "indispensible to casino operations" as a "key marketing tool." She also stated that the pit clerk and floor persons must accurately rate players to have an accurate "pay-out" of comps.

In 1983, after Playboy had become the Atlantis, the procedure for dispensing comps was based on ratings entered by the floor persons and sent to the pit clerk, who would then issue the comps to deserving players. Ms. DeGraw explained that the comps worked in a manner analogous to a savings account, with credits built up by rated play and comps issued like withdrawals from an account. She stated that one Frederick Jones worked with her 1983-84, as a pit clerk, and that she found that he was a "pretty reliable" clerk: his powers included the ability to create a patron account by entering data representative of the player's rating.

On or about June 8, 1985, Ms. DeGraw was asked by a co-worker, Andrea Ross, (a dealer), to issue a comp to Ms. Ross's parents, who were visiting the casino and wanted to get something to eat in the coffee shop. As a dealer, Ms. Ross, who occasionally dealt in Ms. DeGraw's pit, was not allowed in casino restraurants. Since there was no account for Ms. Ross's parents, Ms. DeGraw obtained coffee shop comps for these family members and concedes that in doing so, she may have used the name "Ralph Amano," which was a fictitious patron's name, but she is not sure as to this. She also states that she now is familiar with the name "Ralph Amano," but does not know if he is a real person or merely a fictitious name. Whatever the case, Ms. Ross's parents were not entitled to that comp and there is no dispute of fact on this point. . Pit Clerk Frederick J. Jones gave the following statement to DGE investigators as to inappropriate complimentaries at the Atlantis:

> Q. Mr. Jones, would you tell me, to the best of your recolection (sic) anything that would shed some light onto the matter of complimentaries being issued at the Atlantic Casino Hotel by Pit Boss Jean DeGraw to Ralph Amano.
>
> A. When I was a pit clerk I was assigned to Jeanne DeGraw's Pit on numerous occasions. Back in May of 1983 I was working in "H" pit with Jeanne DeGraw. At that time we decided to create a fictious customer. Together we came up with the name of Ralph Amano. We though it would be interesting to put a fictious customer into the casino computer system. As a pit clerk, I was able to add new customers and their player ratings to the system. Upon adding the name Ralph Amano to the system we felt that we should also enter some player ratings for this customer. I entered player ratings into the system and then brought it up on the screen so that Jeanne could see it. After doing this, we both agreed to remain silent about this. From then on I would enter player rating from time to time. On different occasions Jeanne and I would then check Ralph Amano's computer screens to see how he was doing. As far as I was concerned, I didn't tell anyone about this and I assumed that she didn't either. But, one night I checked Ralph Amano's account and discovered that a comp had been issued in this customers name. At the earliest opportunity, I went to Jeanne and asked her about this. She told me that she had written a comp for the Garden State Cafe in the lobby for one of the dealers, and to my knowledge the comp was used by one of the dealers family members who signed Ralph Amano's name. At that time in adding these ratings to the system I simply felt that Jeanne and I were playing a game. And then when I saw the comp I felt really uncomfortable. We got into this really to alleviate the boredom in a slow pit.
> Q. Do you know how many comps were issued in the name of Ralph Amano between 1983 and now and by whom and for how much.
> A I just remember this one comp and a comp that I wrote at a later date in CRC. (P-2) (emphasis added)

Jones gave his statement on July 14, 1987, at approximately 3:30 p.m., and respondent Jean Ann De Graw also provided the following written statement, which she claims she did not personally write and signed only after having been interrogated for four hours, and threatened:

July 14, 1987
4:07 p.m.
Jean Ann DeGraw
RD#2 Box 344 E
Mays Landing, NJ 08330

I Jean Ann DeGraw work at Atlantis Casino as a pit boss.

On or about June 8, 1985 I issued a comp to Atlantis employee Andrea Ross for he parents.

This comp was for (4) people to the Garden State Restaurant.

I issued the comp to the parents of Atlantis employee Andrea Ross. I placed the comp in the name of another patron wh has player rating at Atlantis Casino.

I may have put the comp in the name of Ralph Amano, but at this time I am not sure.

I do know that this was a violation of the comp policy at Atlantis Casino. (P-1) (emphasis added)

As indicated, Ms. DeGraw denies having written the above statement and claims that she signed it under some duress. She does concede, that she may have used the name of Ralph Amano when obtaining comps for Ms. Ross's parents, but is unsure of this. She claims that Jones is lying concerning her involvement in the creation of the fictitious patron, "Ralph Amano," who was used as a cover to obtain comps for family members of dealers and other floor persons. The investigation by DGE and the state police indicated that as many as eight comps for a value of $807 were issued for Ralph Amano between 1983 and 1987. (P-3). Detective D. Willshire of the New Jersey State Police, entered in his report that Jones had stated that he had issued at least one comp using the fictitious name of Amano, and also "some of the comps were issued by DeGraw." (P-2).

Ms. DeGraw has no idea as to why Jones would accuse her of creating the fictitious patron comp scam, but she denies any involvement in doing so. She admits writing a comp for a dealer's parents and may have used the Ralph Amano name. She suspects that Fred Jones may have tried to shift blame to her and though she described him as "pretty reliable," she also characterized him as a "gossip" and "difficult person," who was regarded as a "troublemaker" and avoided by most pit bosses. She felt that Jones might have been aware of the fictitious comp, but she denies emphatically that she was engaged in any scheme to create a fictitious patron, to whom comps might be charged for dealer's families and others.

Based on the evidence submitted, I FIND as a matter of FACT that Jean Ann DeGraw did issue an unauthorized comp for the parents of a dealer on or about June 8, 1985, and also that she issued these comps in the name of "Ralph Amano," which was a fictitious name. I further FIND that there is insufficient evidence in the record to conclude that Ms. DeGraw created the name of the fictitious customer and then put it into the casino computer system. The only evidence that she did so is the statement by Frederick Jones, who was also a suspect in the issuance of improper complimentaries and thus, any of his statements must be viewed with his interest in shifting the blame and exonerating himself. Without the benefit of Mr. Jones' live testimony subject to cross-examination, I FIND that the statements by Jean Ann DeGraw are more credible and worth of belief.

Ms. DeGraw also testified that she has had 26 years in the casino business, from 1961 to 1987, and has had no other criminal charges in that period, and no other employment problems. She offers character references from co-workers, who attest to her good character, honesty and integrity, as well as other virtues as dependability, professionalism and kindness. (R-1 to R-5). Particularly, I note the character reference given by Vincent Mascio and Candice Butcher of March 20, 1990:

> It was our privilege in August of 1980 to meet one of the few people in our lives, who would have such a positive impact upon our careers as Ms. Jean DeGraw. Her professionality and leadership she displayed was a true doctrine for her commitment to excellence.
> In an industry at times, it can become cold and stressful, Ms. DeGraw was always calm, collected, and above all most supportive. Her unstanding and sense of fair play made working conditions much more tolerable during these moments.
> It is hard to put into words the effects of her courtesy and upbeat attitude on everyone she came in contact with, but there is no doubt of the mark she left upon us. She has become the perfect role model for all to follow. . . . (R-5).

As indicated, efforts to obtain the file of the criminal charges of Atlantic County Municipal Court were not successful, but a record of dismissal of the charges, following a downgrade to theft, was obtained from her former attorney (P-6.

Except as otherwise noted and found above, there is no dispute as to the above facts and I SO FIND.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The Division has the burden of going forward and of demonstrating by a preponderance of the believable evidence grounds for statutory disqualification under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), or proving that licensure would be inimical pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)2. The licensee has the burden of establishing by clear and convincing evidence the required good character, honesty and integrity, as provided by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), 90b.

In determining whether licensure of the applicant is inimical under 86c(2) or whether the applicant has clearly and convincingly demonstrated her good character, honesty and integrity, the Commission may consider the following factors of rehabilitation:*

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;
(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
(4) The date of the offense or conduct;
(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;
(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

[N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h]

Although the Division argues that the factors of rehabilitation are not relevant or applicable to the issue of whether a casino key employee license holder can demonstrate good character, honesty and integrity, I CONCLUDE that these factors are relevant, even if not expressly made so by the statute, under the Appellate Division's reasoning in the Dunston case, and the Commission's holding in the Bershad case.

*See, Dunston v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, Superior Court of New Jersey, App. Div., dec'd April 10, 1990, A-197-89T3; Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Davis, N.J.A.R. 301, 314 (1985); Application of Edward Bershad Company, 12 N.J.A.R. 48 (1989).

In applying the factors of rehabilitation to the question of inimicality, as well as that of good character and integrity, in this case, I note that the nature and duties of the position of pit boss are highly sensitive and supervisory in nature and require the holding of a casino key license, which is of a higher caliber than casino employee licenses and casino hotel employee registrations. See, N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2). The Pit boss function as the eyes and ears of the casino in the midst of the action on the floor. (Factor 1; 90h) The offense of conduct of issuing improper comps under fictitious patron names is serious and defrauds both the casino, as well as patrons who have a legitimate entitlement to these comps which may be the only consolation they receive if the cards and dice are not going their way. Complimentaries are key tools to the casino industry and any conduct which defrauds casinos of "comps" is a serious offense, especially when committed by a casino key licensee, occupying a sensitive position such as that of pit boss. (Factor 2; 90h). The circumstances under which the offense occurred in June of 1985, show that the licensee was asked by a fellow employees, who was a dealer and social acquaintance, to grant some comps so her parents could eat in the casino coffee shop, and she did so, in all probability utilizing the fictitious name of "Amano." Ms. DeGraw admits to issuing these improper comps in June of 1985. She denies issuing other comps and the Division presents no proof that she did so, beyond the statement of someone who was also accused of the offense, and not produced to give testimony. In light of my above finding that the Division has only proven by a preponderance of the believable evidence that Ms. DeGraw issued comps to Ms. Ross's parents in June of 1985, I further CONCLUDE that her conduct was isolated and not repeated. (Factor 3, 4 and 6; 90h). I don't believe I asked Ms. DeGraw her age at the hearing, but she appeared to be in her early to mid-40's and I note that she has worked in the casino industry since the 1960's. (Factor 5; 90h). She cites no social conditions contributing to the conduct, other than the fact that this may have been a not entirely uncommon practice at the casino of comping the relatives of dealers and other employees through a generally used fictitious name. (Factor 7). As to evidence of rehabilitation, she offers the recommendations of persons who have worked with her, and also notes that the charges were ultimately dismissed without her appearance in court. She also offers her long and unblemished service in the casino industry in support of her good character, honesty and integrity.

As to an inimicality, I CONCLUDE, considering all of the above factors of rehabilitation, that Ms. DeGraw is not disqualified on the basis of this isolated mistake in 1985 from holding a casino key employee license. Except for the comps given to her friend's parents in June of 1985, which she admits, she never pled guilty and was not convicted of the broader and more serious charges of conspiracy and computer related theft. Based on the evidence presented by the Division, which consists of a statement provided by the person under investigation for these crimes who was not produced at the hearing for cross-examination, I CONCLUDE that the respondent's conduct was limited so that isolated conduct of an improper issuance of comps in June of 1985, and I further CONCLUDE that that conduct alone, given her long and otherwise good service in the casino industry, is not sufficient to render her licensure inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act or to casino operations under 86c(2). I found Ms. DeGraw's testimony to be credible and convincing and I note that she took the considerable trouble to travel all the way from Las Vegas, Nevada, to clear her name. Her manner was candid and forthright, and, based on all the mortal indicators of demeanor and bearing evident at least to me at the hearing, I believed her story that the instance of improper comps was limited to the June 1985 occasion. I also note that the Division has the burden of proof as to disqualification by an inimicality, and I CONCLUDE that it has failed to bear that burden. As pit boss, Ms. DeGraw was in a position to create a fictitious name and use it to issue improper comps, but this is also true (if not more so) of the pit clerk, Frederick Jones, who had more frequent responsibility in the area of comps.

Ms. DeGraw has the burden of showing, by clear and convincing evidence, her good character, honesty and integrity, and I CONCLUDE that, again considering the above factors of rehabilitation as applied to this casino key employee licensee, she has made this showing, despite her lapse of judgment in 1985. She has submitted a number of character references attesting to her good character, honesty and integrity, and her record in the casino industry, beyond this one regrettable incident, was a long and good one. There was also no evidence that she issued comps to benefit herself or in any other way to profit, but merely unwisely agreed to issue comps for a dealer's parents, which may well have been a widespread practice at the casino during that time, as the total of $807 in comps issued to "Ralph Amano" would seem to suggest. Ms. DeGraw struck me as a dedicated casino career professional whose one proven and admitted mistake in 1985 does not, in my opinion, tip the scales against her under N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90h. I realize that she was functioning as a pit boss and not as a cleaning person as was the case in the Dunston matter, but she is no less entitled to benefit of the factors of rehabilitation, and I CONCLUDE that she has show good character, honesty and integrity, notwithstanding her exercise of bad judgment in June of 1985.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the Division's complaint seeking revocation of the casino key employee license of Jean Ann DeGraw is hereby DISMISSED for the reasons discussed above.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: AUGUST 28, 1990 Decided: SEPTEMBER 12, 1990

BEFORE: JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) requesting the revocation of the casino employee license #45497-21 and casino hotel employee registration #47968-40 issued to respondent. The Division alleges that respondent committed acts which are inimical to the interests of the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry of the State of New Jersey and respondent lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its complaint with the Commission on October 18, 1989. Respondent requested a hearing on October 27, 1989 and on November 3, 1989 the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on February 20, 1990 by Lillard E. Law, ALJ followed by a hearing which was held on August 14, 1990. The record was closed on August 28, 1990.

ISSUES

A. Whether respondent's continued licensure and registration is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c because she is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 (theft), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

B. Whether the respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based upon testimony and documents proferred at the hearing held on August 14, 1990, the below represents FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW in this matter.

Respondent is 42 years old and resides in Atlantic City where she supports herself and her three children ages 19, 12 and 11. Respondent is the holder of both a hotel registration and casino employee license. She has worked at several casinos where her positions have included housekeeping at Trump Plaza, Slot Booth Attendant at Bally's and Slot Booth Attendant at Showboat, which is the site of her current employment. She has enjoyed a good working relationship with all of her casino employers and has never been fired with the exception of her dismissal from Bally's which is the subject of the within litigation.

The Division alleges that on July 18, 1989 respondent engaged in an act of theft by removing $40.00 from her cash drawer. Respondent had been a slot booth attendant for five years. Respondent testified that with the exception of two write-ups for overage and shortage in her cash drawer she generally had a good record with Bally's. The Division submitted evidence which shows that respondent had ten write-ups for overage and shortage in her cash drawer.

Christopher Hartny, a surveillence officer for seven years with Bally's, had noticed respondent several months prior to the July 18, 1989 incident. His attention had been drawn to the respondent because of numerous procedural violations committed by her. Most notably, respondent was continuously "counting down the bank" during the course of her shift. According to Madeline C. Edelmann, Slot Cage Supervisor, it is a violation of procedure to completely count all the money in a slot booth attendant's cash drawer. This is known as "counting down the bank". This accounting procedure should only occur at the beginning and conclusion of a shift, although it is common according to Ms. Edelmann, for slot attendant's to count money in order to determine whether they have 25 of one particular denomination in order that the money can be "clipped". Clipping the money is a way of organizig the cash drawer which in turn enables an easy countdown at the conclusion of a shift. In his experience, Mr. Hartny found that excessive "counting of the bank" is an indicator that a slot booth attendant may be short changing patrons and thus trying to determine how much money can be skimmed off the top at the conclusion of the shift. In the event the employee feels there is a shortage or an overage during the course of the shift, Bally's requires that the countdown procedure be performed in front of a supervisor.

The Division presented as Exhibit P-5 a VHF tape which was recorded by Christopher Hartny. At approximately 18:29 the tape shows respondent counting down the bank. There are no patrons being serviced, nor are there any in the vicinity. At approximately 18:42 on the tape respondent wraps several bills, denominations unknown, around the finger of her left hand and then puts her left hand into her left apron pocket. Her hand then comes out of the pocket without the bills. Note, Mr. Hartny testified that it is proper for slot booth attendants to wrap bills around their fingers in order to better secure the money while servicing patrons. At approximately 18:46 on the tape respondent reaches in her left pocket and removes coins. She is next observed removing bills, denominations unknown, from the apron pocket and placing them in her left pants pocket underneath the apron. She then goes about her normal duties in providing change to patrons. However, she is observed counting down the bank eight times over the next 20 minutes.

Noting that respondent had placed bills in her pocket, Christopher Hartny contacted the Division of Gaming Enforcement who together with respondent's supervisor, Ms. Edelmann, approached her at approximately 19:13. At this point, Ms. Edelmann requested that respondent close down and count the bank. The tape shows respondent reaching into her left pants pocket, removing the bills and co-mingling them with other money in her right hand at which time she places all of the money on the counter. Detective Martin Higgins of the Division of Gaming Enforcement testified that from his vantage point on the runway, he was unable to view respondent reaching into her left pocket since in his opinion, she intentionally turned away from him in order to avoid him viewing the transaction. Detective Higgins recovered two 20 dollar bills that appeared like they had been folded eight times.

Respondent claims that the two folded 20 dollar bills where her property. She had intended during her lunch break to leave Bally's and purchase shoes at the Ocean One Mall. She claimed that she became distracted when playing a free pac man machine and returned to her shift with the money still in her left pocket. She was aware that it was a violation of Bally's rules to have money on her person while on duty, however, she did not follow Bally's procedure to notify her supervisor, because she was afraid she would be disciplined. The tape shows respondent as being very nervous when approached by her supervisor and the DGE agents. She explained that she removed the money from her pants and placed it on the counter with the other cash because she knew she was violating Bally's procedure. Respondent's proferred explanation as to why she had the $40.00 on her person is inconsistent with her subsequent testimony that she also knew that it was a violation of Bally's rules to leave the work premises while on duty. When her cash drawer was counted down at the request of her supervisor, there was found to be a $40.00 overage.

The two issues presented herein are whether continuing licensure of the respondent would be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry in general pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) and whether the respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required of a license holder under N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2). It is unnecessary to reach the second issue of the respondent's good character, honesty and integrity if it is first determined that respondent's continuing licensure would be inimical to the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry. Thus, the inimical analysis must be considered first.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) states:

> "Any other offense under present New Jersey or federal law which indicates that licensure of the applicant would be inimical to the policy of the act and to casino operations; provided, however, that the automatic disqualification provisions of this subsection shall not apply with regard to any conviction which did not occur within the 10 year period immediately preceding application for licensure and which the applicant demonstrates by clear and convincing evidence does not justify automatic disqualification pursuant to this subsection and any conviction which has been the subject of a judicial order of expungement or sealing."

Whether an individual's conduct rises to the level of inimicality to the Act and legalized gaming depends upon the circumstances of each case. The factors to be weighed and considered are the nature of the offense, the circumstances surrounding the offense including mitigating and aggravating factors, the amount of time that has passed from the offense to the date of the hearing. 8 N.J.A.R. 301 at 313. Included in this analysis are the eight factors set forth in Section 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act. It must be emphasized that an individual cannot affirmatively demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act in order to overcome the disqualifying offense of inimicality set forth in Section 86c(2). Nevertheless, the enumerated rehabilitation factors set forth in Sections 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act can be utilized in the inimical analysis in order to determine whether the individual must be disqualified from participation in the gaming industry. Applying these factors to the facts of the instant matter I FIND as follows:

A. HAS AN OFFENSE OCCURRED WHICH IS INIMICAL TO THE INTEREST OF THE CASINO CONTROL ACT.

It was said by the ancient Chinese philosopher, Confucius "a picture is worth a thousand words". The tape in the instant matter supports that ancient proverb since it was the tape, and not Detective Higgins, that showed respondent removing the money from the cash drawer and then replacing the money when confronted by the DGE agents. Respondent claims that the money in her left pants pocket was hers and was to be utilized to purchase shoes during her lunch break. At this point, her credibility must be questioned since she also testified that she knew that she was not permitted to leave the premises and yet had intended to do so in violation of Bally's policy. Respondent also admitted that she normally never spent $40.00 on the purchase of shoes. Where the standard is reasonable probability, (preponderance of the evidence), the evidence must be such as to "generate (the) belief that the tendered hypothesis is in all human likelihood the fact". Loew vs. Union Beach, 56 N.J. SUPER. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959), certif. den. 31 N.J. 75 (1959), overruled on other grounds, 36 N.J. 487 (1962). Respondent's own testimony is inconsistent with her motives, thus drawing into question her veracity concerning the incident. This inconsistency coupled with the taped observation of respondent removing and then replacing currency leads to the conclusion that respondent committed an act of theft equivalent to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. The Division has met its burden of demonstrating by a preponderance of the credible evidence that respondent did engage in an act of theft on July 18, 1989 while employed as a slot booth attendant at Bally's Park Place Hotel Casino.

An act of theft on the floor of a casino, regardless of the amount, must in and of itself be considered to be of a serious nature and thus inimical to the interests of the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry of the State of New Jersey. There are many factors which entice patrons to gamble in casinos in Atlantic City. Many of these enticements are the direct results of clever and innovative marketing promotions developed by each casino. In addition to these factors, and perhaps most importantly, patrons must feel secure that while they are customers of a casino, they will not be short changed or cheated in any way. Whether respondent obtained the $40.00 by intentionally cheating a patron or whether the overage occurred through inadvertance was not proven by the Division. The Division did demonstrate, however, that respondent did intend to retain monies which was the property of her employer, Bally's Park Place Hotel Casino. Such actions are patently unacceptable if confidence in the gaming industry is to continue and accordingly, I FIND that the Division has met its burden to prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that respondent committed an act deemed inimical pursuant to Section 86c(2) of the Act.

B. DOES THE RESPONDENT POSSESS THE REQUISITE GOOD CHARACTER, HONESTY AND INTEGRITY REQUIRED OF A LICENSE HOLDER PURSUANT TO SECTION 89b(2) OF THE ACT.

In support of her good character, honesty and integrity, respondent submitted three letters (Exhibits R-1, 2 and 3). In sum, this evidence shows that respondent is a hardworking, caring and supportive parent who is a regular attendant at church and supportive of her parrish and parrish activities. She also indicated that every Tuesday since her husband died, approximately three years ago, she has been participating in a parrish program wherein she visits the sick and elderly.

Unfortunately for respondent, whenever a determination of inimicality occurs, it is unnecessary to reach the issue of good character, honesty and integrity. Accordingly, considering the discussions set forth above, this issue will not be addressed.

SUMMARY

For the reasons set forth above, I FIND that respondent,

Marta R. Diaz a/k/a Lapres committed an act of theft within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 on July 18, 1989 and as such, has violated Section 86c(2) of the Act. Based on this determination I hereby REVOKE respondent, Marta R. Diaz a/k/a Lapres', casino employee license #45497-21 and casino hotel employee registration #47968-40.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: April 3, 1990 Decided: May 18, 1990

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

This matter comes before the Office of Administrative Law following transmittal as a contested case from the Casino Control Commission, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. Mr. Dolpies had applied to the Commission for renewal of his casino employee license. The Division of Gaming Enforcement ("Division") filed a letter on May 18, 1989, in which it requested the Casino Control Commission to deny renewal. Mr. Dolpies requested a hearing on the proposed rejection of his renewal application and this resulted in the transmittal of the case to the OAL.

A prehearing conference was held before Administrative Law Judge Edgar R. Holmes on December 11, 1989. A prehearing order was issued on December 14, 1989. The hearing was held before Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin on April 3, 1990, at the Pleasantville Municipal Court. The record closed following completion of the hearing.

EVIDENCE

Mr. Dolpies was called as a witness on behalf of the Division. After testifying that he was born in May of 1964, Dolpies spoke concerning his arrest on September 9, 1988 for an incident which he claimed occurred January 22, 1988, in which he acknowledges that he sold marijuana to a police informant. According to Dolpies, he had received a few phone calls from a friend of his asking him for marijuana and after a while he agreed to provide it. He was asked for about one ounce and he provided approximately that amount.

Mr. Dolpies pled guilty to an accusation, No. 88-12-3044E, filed in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division, Atlantic County on December 15, 1988. The charge was distribution of a controlled dangerous substance in the fourth degree for having distributed marijuana under one ounce, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a(1) and 2C:35-5b(12). Based upon his plea of guilty he was sentenced by Honorable Steven C. Perskie, then Judge of the Superior Court, to 30 days in the Atlantic County Jail, of which he served 24, 2 years probation, a $500 fine, a 6-month suspension of his driver's license, a $30 fee to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board, $750 to the DEDR, and a lab fee of $50. At the time of the hearing Dolpies was still on probation, but according to him a recommendation has been made for early termination. A letter of March 29, 1990 from Robert William Johnson, a parole agent for the Board of Probation and Parole of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, who supervises Dolpies pursuant to his New Jersey conviction, indicates Johnson is "recommending that his probation be terminated."

Additional evidence presented by the Division included police reports which indicated that Dolpies had in fact made the sale to the informant in the presence of the state police detective who was working undercover. A laboratory test performed by the New Jersey State Police Laboratory indicated that the actual amount of the sale was 34.37 grams gross weight, somewhat in excess of 1 ounce.

Mr. Dolpies testified in his own behalf and acknowledged that he had committed a "grevious offense," that he had made a "mistake," but that he had been in no further trouble and not involved with drugs in any way. He described himself as "young, stupid" and also said that he was "sort of coerced." He has since undergone random drug testing, all of which tests have been negative and has successfully performed his probationary obligations. He has paid his fines and of course been in jail. Since the incident, he has married and is now the father of a one-year child. He described himself as a "dedicated family man."

Dolpies is presently a realtor associate with I.W. Levin and Company, Inc. of Philadelphia, working on a commission basis since August 1989. He has also previously worked at the Trump Castle, having been terminated from that employment at the time of his sentencing. He described himself as having an excellent employment record and thinks that he was a model employee while working as a boxperson at the casino. He also worked at the Tropicana in 1984, for about two months, but was terminated for a no call/no show, which he claimed resulted from a mixup in his schedule. He was then rehired by the Tropicana and stayed for two years before leaving to go to work at Trump Castle.

Mr. Dolpies presented character references from several individuals, including Lee Cohen, a broker at I.W. Levin and Co., Inc., who indicated that he found Dolpies to be "hard-working, dependable, honest, trustworthy, loyal, and an excellent addition to our staff and industry." Cohen does not indicate whether he is aware of Dolpies' conviction. However, he does state that he has known him for "sometime."

Parole Agent Johnson, in his letter of March 29, 1990 referred to above, indicates that since his conviction Dolpies has not been involved in any further criminal activities and has been "very responsible, attentive and fully cooperative" while under his supervision.

> Mr. Dolpies has impressed me as being a dedicated family man and has worked relentlessly to redeem himself and fulfill his financial obligation to the Atlantic County Probation Department.

He further describes him as "sincere" and believes that if given a second chance "he would make the best of it."

Stewart A. Greenberg, Supervisor I for the Pennsylvania Board of Probation and Parole, writes in a letter of November 27, 1989 to Lee Cohen at Levine and Company indicating that despite Dolpies' previous criminal episode he has been "responsive to our supervision and has always presented himself when requested." He further indicates that he has followed probation and parole rules "with great diligence" and that in connection with questions raised concerning whether or not Dolpies could obtain a real estate license that "I think that would be a travesty" if he were not permitted to have the license.

By letter of December 6, 1989, Pierce L. Clouser, Jr., Administrative Officer for the Pennsylvania Department of State, Bureau of Professional and Occupational Affairs, Real Estate and Vehicle Division, advised Dolpies that the Real Estate Commission had considered his application for a salesperson initial license and had determined that his prior criminal record "will not serve as a barrier against Pennsylvania real estate licensure." Dolpies has since received a license, issued March 1, 1990.

Additional character references were received from Anthony J. Screnci, Susan Mignucci and Gar Bezotsky, who indicate knowledge of Dolpies as a "kind and considerate person," a "dependable and reliable person," one who is "very honest and hard-working." There is no indication where either Screnci or Mignucci, who have known him for two or three years, are aware of his criminal involvement. Mr. Bozotsky, writing to the Pennsylvania State Real Estate Commission, indicates a 15 year close friendship and finds that Dolpies has "always conducted himself at the highest standard of character and integrity." He adds > he has always been dependable, and conscientious. I feel, although he may have made a stupid mistake two years ago, that he deserves to be given a chance to prove to the world that he is the person of character and integrity that I have known for so many years.

DISCUSSION

Mr. Dolpies was involved in the sale of a controlled dangerous substance, marijuana. There is no indication that he was engaging in this practice in an ongoing business-type capacity. It appears that he did a "favor" for a "friend," although he was paid. Despite this, his conduct was clearly illegal and reprehensible. In addition, since this incident occurred in 1988, at the time he was a licensed casino employee. Given the standards imposed upon such licensees, the incident becomes even more serious, since Dolpies carried upon him at the time the imprimateur of state approval of his character and conduct.

In a circumstance such as this, one must be leery of permitting an individual who has violated a drug law from continuing to be licensed. This is especially so where the violation involved distribution. However, in this situation one must recognize that the drug involved was marijuana, which while certainly of a serious nature, is not in the same class as a substantial threat as some of the hard drugs. In addition, Dolpies appears to have engaged in a very limited criminal activity. There is no indication from the evidence that he was involved in a distribution enterprise of any sort.

Mr. Dolpies presented himself as a very sincere, well-spoken individual. The character references from his friends and acquaintances are strong and more significantly, the remarks of the Pennsylvania parole officers who have supervised him are extremely positive.

Given the above, it is necessary to consider whether, despite the commission of conduct which requires automatic disqualification from licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), whether Mr. Dolpies has established by clear and convincing evidence that he has rehabilitated himself from the disqualification, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. As noted, the offense which he committed was serious in nature, but limited in scope, frequency and, in the spectrum of illegal drug distribution, in type. The circumstances indicate that this was probably "friendly" distribution, rather than part and parcel of a scheme or business of drug distribution. At the time that he committed the offense, Dolpies was approximately 24 years old. The incident itself occurred somewhat over two years prior to the hearing and the conviction and sentencing approximately a year and a quarter before the hearing. The conduct clearly seems to have been isolated. Other than his youth and general circumstances of present social conditions involving the widespread use of drugs, there are apparently no other social conditions which contributed to the offense. Finally, with respect to evidence of rehabilitation, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Dolpies has established that he has successfully handled his parole status, that he has become employed, married, and a father, that he is living and conducting himself in accordance with the law and that he has strong recommendations from both his friends, employer and most importantly from his parole supervisors.

Based upon the evidence presented before me, and in light of the limited nature of the offense involved, I am convinced that Mr. Dolpies has in fact rehabilitated himself.

Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Dolpies did commit a disqualifying act, but that he has established rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence and that he now possesses the requisite good character, honesty, and integrity. Under these circumstances, I CONCLUDE that the his license should be renewed. It is so ORDERED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Record Closed: April 17, 1990 Decided: May 16, 1990

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of a complaint filed by petitioner with the Casino Control Commission seeking the revocation of respondent's registration and with an application by respondent for a casino employee license. N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. Respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A hearing was conducted on April 17, 1990, after which the record closed.

The questions presented are whether respondent was found guilty of attempted armed robbery in the State of New York, a disqualifying offense pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c; whether respondent's licensure or continued registration is inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act because of an unprosecuted crime committed within the casinos, N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c; whether respondent failed to reveal material facts when he filed his Personal History Disclosure Forms (PHDF) in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b; whether respondent can establish his good character pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b, and finally whether respondent can demonstrate rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and/or 5:12-91d.

The facts are essentially undisputed. On September 21, 1978, respondent was arrested by the New York City police and charged with theft of services, comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-8 and resisting arrest, comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:29-2. Respondent was found guilty and fined.

On January 25, 1979, respondent was arrested by the New York City police and charged with robbery comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:15-1 and criminal possession of a weapon comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:39-5. Respondent was found guilty and sentenced to one to three years in prison. Respondent disclosed this arrest on his PHDF.

On March 6, 1981, respondent was arrested by the Irvington police and charged with two counts of robbery, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:15-1 and simple assault, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(a). On May 21, 1981, the charges were dismissed by an Essex County Grand Jury.

On July 27, 1984, respondent was arrested by the Newark police and charged with prostitution, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:34-1(a). Respondent clarified this at the hearing and stated that he was actually charged with solicitation.

On January 27, 1985, respondent was arrested by Newark police and charged with aggravated assault, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(b); respondent pled guilty to the downgraded offense of simple assault, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(a). Respondent was given a 30-day suspended sentence, one year probation and a fine. Respondent disclosed this arrest on his PHDF.

On December 27, 1987, respondent was arrested by New Jersey State Police and was charged with theft by unlawful taking, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. This offense occurred while he was employed as a housekeeper at the Showboat Hotel and Casino and respondent was terminated from employment as a result of this incident.

The charge was eventually dismissed in Atlantic City Municipal Court for lack of prosecution.

On December 28, 1987, respondent was arrested by Atlantic City police and charged with the possession of cocaine, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10(a)(1) and possession of a hypodermic needle, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:36-6. Respondent was found guilty of these offenses and was placed on 18 months probation and fined. This arrest occurred after respondent filed his Personal History Disclosure Forms in November 1987.

Trooper Brian Brady of the New Jersey State Police testified on petitioner's behalf. He investigated the incident of December 27, 1987 at the Showboat. Trooper Brady testified that respondent admitted sweeping up a patron's watch in the slot machine area and then giving it to a co-employee because he was aware that security was looking for it.

Respondent testified in his own behalf. He acknowledged his intention to take the watch but stated that he "was high at the time." He has attempted to kick his drug habit many times, and is still trying. Respondent testified that he had forgotten the details of the three prior arrests and/or convictions which he failed to disclose, and thought that listing two would be enough.

Respondent is 30 years old. He testified that he has paid for his crimes, and is attempting to straighten out his life; continued employment in the casinos is important to him. From March 26, 1988 to the present, respondent has been employed by Caesars Boardwalk Regency Hotel and Casino without incident as a kitchen porter. This is the substance of the record.

Respondent failed to disclose material information on his PHDF and this is a near absolute bar to his licensure or continued registration. Additionally, he was convicted of possession of cocaine two years ago and admitted committing an offense on the casino floor while under the influence of drugs. He does not contest his conviction for attempted armed robbery in New York, a disqualifying offense. These facts taken together with his other offenses make his burdens with respect to good character, and rehabilitation insurmountable.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that respondent committed a disqualifying offense, and that his licensure and/or continued registration would be inimical to the policies of the Act. He has not carried his affirmative burdens. It is ORDERED that his license application be denied and that his registration be revoked.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Record Closed: July 10, 1990 Decided: August 22, 1990

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the complaint filed with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on August 16, 1989, seeking revocation of the casino hotel employee registration of the respondent, Christopher E. Estrada. The respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on November 28, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq., and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held on February 23, 1990, and at that time the parties agreed that the issue in this matter is:

> Whether respondent's continued registration is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, because he is alleged to have committed violations of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2 and 2C:34-1b(5), despite the fact that such actions were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

The hearing took place on July 10, 1990, at the Pleasantville City Hall, and the record in the matter closed on that date.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

I FIND that the following facts are not in dispute.

As of December 17, 1988, Mr. Estrada was employed by the Showboat Hotel and Casino (Showboat) as a doorperson. Mr. Estrada stated that while he was working in this position, part of his job was to greet casino guests and to answer any questions they might have. In order to help these guests, the respondent accumulated a number of business cards. Mr. Estrada had business cards for limousine services, automobile garages, stores, etc., including a number of Lotus Oriental Massage (LOM) in Ventnor, New Jersey business cards (R-5). According to Mr. Estrada, he got the LOM business cards from a taxi driver and never asked or checked to find out what services were offered by LOM. Mr. Estrada is aware that some massage parlors are houses of prostitution.

Mr. Estrada was aware that there were prostitutes coming in and going from the Showboat and recognized that certain women were prostitutes since he saw them often with different male companions. In addition to his conversation with Mr. Graves, the respondent has had conversations with other guests about prostitutes, although the word "prostitutes" was never used in the conversation. Mr. Estrada knew that prostitution was illegal; however, he was aware that his supervisors knew that prostitutes were coming and going into the Showboat and that nothing was done to stop the prostitution.

While the respondent was working on December 17, 1988, John Graves Jr., the mayor of a small town in Arkansas and a male companion, arrived at the Showboat. Mr. Graves asked the respondent a number of questions as to "where the action was" and "where he could find some girls." Although he did not use the word "prostitute," Mr. Estrada assumed Mr. Graves was asking about prostitutes. Mr. Graves persisted in his questioning of Mr. Estrada and Mr. Estrada gave him the LOM business card. Mr. Estrada stated that this was the only LOM business card he gave out to a guest.

Unbeknown to Mr. Estrada or Mr. Graves, the State Police had been conducting an investigation of LOM and another facility in Atlantic City. The State Police believed that both of these facilities were houses of prostitution, operated by Orientals and had primarily Oriental prostitutes and patrons. The State Police determined that the operator of LOM had recruited at least one cab driver and was willing to give $5.00 for every customer brought to LOM. During its surveillance, the State Police saw Oriental males going into LOM and on October 31, 1988, Lieutenant Keith J. Halton called the LOM and was told that the facility catered only to Orientals. Later, Lieutenant Halton was told that LOM would accept non-orientals because of a lack of business.

The State Police raided LOM on December 17, 1988. While the state police officers were at the facility, there was a telephone call, and Lieutenant John Medolla answered and represented himself as a employee of LOM. The call was from a male with a southern accent who wanted two young girls to go to his room, number 913, at the Showboat. Lieutenant Medolla agreed, and several state police officers went to room 913 at the Showboat. While the other state police officers were out of sight, a female state police officer knocked on the door and asked whether the person wanted two girls from the LOM. Upon receiving an affirmative response, the state police officers entered the room and determined that Mr. Graves had made the telephone call to LOM. Mr. Graves agreed to cooperate and agreed to identify the person who had given him the LOM business card.

Several state police officers and Mr. Graves went to the hotel lobby to look for Mr. Estrada. When they arrived in the lobby, Mr. Estrada was on a break and taking a nap . A coworker went into the employee lounge, woke up the respondent and told him that somebody was looking for him. When the respondent went into the hotel lobby, Mr. Graves identified him and the state police officers started to question him about giving out business cards. According to Mr. Estrada, he was half-asleep and confused, and he was also afraid, since he sensed that there was something wrong. Mr. Estrada initially denied that he given out any business cards. Later, he was searched and the state police officers found a number of business cards in his possession, including several LOM business cards. Mr. Estrada admitted that he gave the LOM business card to Mr. Graves but insisted that he did not know that the card was for anything but a massage parlor. The respondent felt he had done nothing wrong. According to Mr. Estrada, when the state police officers asked to look at his possessions, he refused since he felt this was an invasion of his privacy. Also, Mr. Estrada felt that the State Police had improperly questioned and searched him without first reading him his rights.

Mr. Estrada was arrested, and he was indicted for the promotion of prostitution (fourth degree offense) in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:34-1b(5), and for conspiracy (third degree offense) in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2. According to Mr. Estrada, he was offered the opportunity to participate in the Pretrial Intervention Program; however, he refused since he felt he was not guilty of any criminal offenses. Prior to the date of his trial, the charges against Mr. Estrada were dismissed.

At the hearing, Detective Halton stated that he had been informed that one of the police officers involved in the investigation had spoken to a prostitute at the Showboat. This prostitute was not associated with the LOM; however, she stated that she was working with a doorperson named Chris. This information is not contained in any of the state police reports since the officers were trying to get this prostitute to become an informant. Charles T. Eckel, Esq., on behalf of the respondent, objected to the admission of the hearsay testimony relating to this prostitute. I allowed the testimony to go into the record, and reserved decision as to what weight, if any, to give to the testimony. Since there was no other evidence presented during the hearing as to Mr. Estrada's alleged connection with this prostitute and no evidence that this prostitute ever positively identified the respondent as the doorperson she worked with, I do not consider this testimony to be reliable and I will not consider this testimony in reaching my decision in this matter.

Sonja Estrada, the respondent's mother testified that he has lived with her almost his entire life and that she believes him when he says that he did not know that the LOM had prostitutes.

Mrs. Estrada stated that in 1985 the respondent had joined the navy and was involved in a bad motor vehicle accident while he was being conveyed to the naval base. Mr. Estrada was badly injured and was in the hospital for approximately four months. Initially, Mr. Estrada was unable to walk and it took him a long time at home to recover. Because of his injuries, he could not stay in the navy. Mr. Estrada became emotionally withdrawn because of the seriousness of his injuries and the fact that he could not fulfill his long-term goal of a navy career (R-2, R-3, R-4). Mrs. Estrada stated that eventually her son recovered and that he was very happy with the doorperson position at the Showboat. After he lost this job, Mrs. Estrada stated that her son again became depressed and he again had to put his life together. Mrs. Estrada said that her son has done this and he now operates his own construction company. Prior to the Showboat incident, Mrs. Estrada stated that her son was very easy going, ready to do anything and could be easily lead by others. Mrs. Estrada feels that her son has learned from the Showboat incident and that he is now a more responsible person, who is in control of his life and cannot be lead by others.

Brian K. Estrada, Jr., the respondent's older brother, confirmed that before the Showboat incident his brother was happy-go-lucky, carefree, very trusting, and would believe anything he was told. Since that time the respondent is more settled, more mature, and is a more responsible person. By letter dated July 6, 1990, the respondent's father indicated that his son was a good, reliable and conscientious worker and that he is now demonstrating his maturity and responsibility by operating his own business (R-1).

The respondent's wife, Nadette Irizarry Estrada knew the respondent prior to the Showboat incident. Before the incident, she stated that the respondent was carefree, naive, very trusting, and easily lead by other people. Mrs. Estrada stated that the Showboat incident had a tremendous affect on her husband, and that he is now a more responsible and mature person. After the Showboat incident, they married and the respondent has assumed the responsibility of raising her daughter by a prior marriage. The respondent and his wife are expecting a child shortly.

Pastor Rollie Davis testified that she has known the respondent and his family for approximately eight years and that she is the pastor of the church that the respondent attends. Pastor Davis stated that the respondent is a very honest person and that she trusts him to do things for the church, including making deposits. Pastor Davis stated that the respondent told her about the Showboat incident and that he asked the congregation to pray for him. Pastor Davis feels that the respondent would never do anything he knew to be wrong. When they discussed the incident, Pastor Davis stated that the respondent told her that someone gave him the LOM business cards, asked him to give them to casino guests but that he did not know what services were offered at the LOM. Mr. Estrada told Pastor Davis that his job was to help the guests and he was very upset that he got into trouble by giving out one business card. Pastor Davis has noted a substantial change in the respondent since the Showboat incident and she feels that he is now a more responsible person.

On his own behalf, Mr. Estrada stated that the motor vehicle accident occurred when he was 20-years old and that during the long period of time it took for him to recover, he felt caged in and that he also felt he had nothing to live for since he had lost his navy career. When he felt better, Mr. Estrada worked for a while at a gas station and cutting grass. He then got a job as a waiter at the Caesars Casino and Hotel. He quit this job after one day since he felt he was not physically capable of performing the work and found the responsibilities to be to emotionally stressful. Thereafter, he got the doorperson job with Showboat and during the approximate eight month period he worked there, he enjoyed the job.

While he was working as a doorperson, Mr. Estrada started to attend Atlantic County College but he had to quit college when he lost his casino job. Since that time, he has been involved with his own construction business, and he hopes to continue this business and to go back to college one day. Mr. Estrada would like to retain his casino hotel employee registration since if his company does not continue to do well, he would like to get another casino position.

While he was employed as a doorperson, Mr. Estrada stated he was naive and that today if he had such a position he would be very careful and would not give out business cards when he did not know exactly what services were offered by the businesses.

The only factual dispute is whether Mr. Estrada knew the LOM business card he gave Mr. Graves was for a house of prostitution. Based on all the evidence presented, it is quite clear that although Mr. Estrada did not personally confirm that the LOM was a house of prostitution, he thought that prostitutes were available there and it was for this reason that he gave the business card to Mr. Graves. Mr. Graves did not use the word "prostitute"; however, it was clear to Mr. Estrada what he wanted and Mr. Estrada thought he was responding to Mr. Graves's request by giving him the LOM business card. As he stated at the hearing, Mr. Estrada felt that it was his job to respond to the questions of the casino guests and, although not mentioned at the hearing, obviously the amount of the tip Mr. Estrada received from these guests would be dependent, in part, on his ability to accommodate their needs. There was no evidence presented to show that Mr. Estrada knew anything about LOM, whether LOM would accept Mr. Graves, a caucasian as a customer, or that there was any arrangement between Mr. Estrada and LOM whereby he would be compensated for referring customers there.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

On behalf of the Division, Deputy Attorney General Ralph L. Fusco argued that the petitioner had shown that the respondent gave the LOM business card to Mr. Graves with the clear intent to accommodate his request for information about prostitutes and therefore the Division had shown that the respondent was guilty of the promotion of prostitution. Based on this conduct, Mr. Fusco argued that the respondent's continued registration would be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c and 5:12-86g.

On behalf of the respondent, Mr. Eckel argued that the Division had not shown that the respondent was guilty of any criminal conduct. Mr. Eckel argued that Mr. Estrada had accumulated a number of business cards which he distributed to guests in response to their inquiries without knowing anything about the businesses themselves. Mr. Eckel argued that there is a possibility that if Mr. Graves had talked to the LOM owner, he would have been turned down since he was not Oriental. Also, Mr. Eckel argued that the respondent was not thinking but just did not want to get involved when he initially denied giving the business card to Mr. Graves.

In addition, Mr. Eckel argued that the 1985 accident should be considered since it affected the respondent's attitude to his Showboat position. Mr. Fusco disagreed and argued that the accident occurred a substantial period before the Showboat incident and it had no relevancy in the matter. I disagree with Mr. Fusco, and I will consider the effect of this accident on the respondent's attitude and maturity at the time of the Showboat incident.

Based on the facts surrounding the Showboat incident, the fact that the respondent holds a casino hotel employee registration, and the effect on his life of both the 1985 accident and the Showboat incident, Mr. Eckel argued that the respondent's continued registration would not be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act. In support of his argument, Mr. Eckel cited the recent Appellate Division's decision in Dunston v. Dept. of Law, 240 N.J. Super. 53 (App. Div. 1990). In that case, the Appellate Division reversed the Commission's decision to deny relicensing to Ms. Dunston, a cleaning person. Ms. Dunston had taken an unattended cup from the casino floor which contained $63 in coins, and she had denied the act when initially questioned by casino employees. The court noted the fact that Ms. Dunston had an unblemished work record, except for the one incident, and that the incident occurred about four years before the Commission's action.

The Commission has recognized that in deciding an issue involving inimicality, it is necessary to both consider the facts surrounding the alleged criminal offense as well as the respondent's prior and subsequent conduct, i.e., his rehabilitation, Davis v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1986). In order to make a determination relating to inimicality, it is appropriate to consider the following criteria set forth for rehabilitation in N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct:

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

It is clearly one of the goals of the Commission to keep illegal activities, such as prostitution, out of the casinos. This goal is frustrated if a casino employee is allowed to give out information about prostitution to casino guests.

As a doorperson, Mr. Estrada held the type of position which placed him in frequent contact with casino guests and guests would be expected to ask doorpersons questions. According to the undisputed testimony of Mr. Estrada, he was not given any training by Showboat and instead of being told to report incidents of prostitution, Mr. Estrada saw that his supervisors took no action to stop prostitution. By giving Mr. Graves the LOM business card, Mr. Estrada thought he was doing his job - assisting a casino guest - and he also thought there was a good possibility that Mr. Graves would be able to procure a prostitute by using the card. Although Mr. Estrada knew prostitution was illegal, based on his observations at work, he felt it was a vice tolerated by the casino and that the paramount concern was to please the casino guests.

I recognize that this is a civil matter and that the Division has to establish a crime by only a preponderance of evidence. Based on the facts, I CONCLUDE that the Division has shown by a slight preponderance of evidence that the respondent was guilty of the promotion of prostitution.

It is clear from the undisputed testimony of Mr. Estrada and his witnesses that the 1985 accident frustrated the respondent's career plans and fostered a carefree attitude as well as indifference to life's responsibilities. Although the respondent was about 24 years old when the Showboat incident occurred, it is evident that he was not yet a mature person.

This Showboat incident was an isolated event and Mr. Estrada has no prior criminal record. Since the incident, he has become a more responsible person, has married and started a family, has involved himself in his church activities and has started his own business. Clearly the respondent has learned by his mistake, and has presented convincing testimony that there will be no repeat of such illegal action.

Having considered all the facts, I CONCLUDE that the respondent's continued registration would not be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c.

Therefore, I ORDER that the casino hotel employee registration of the respondent not be revoked.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Stephen A. White, Esq., for respondent

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

Paul Faulkner, respondent, was born and raised in Atlantic City. His mother was a hard worker but an alcoholic. Respondent never mentioned his father. Respondent had five brothers and a sister. His mother also raised numerous cousins. The family was troubled. Four of the respondent's brothers and his sister, were always on the wrong side of the law. One brother was murdered, another committed suicide. Despite this background, respondent was a good student and a role model; he was never a discipline problem at school. A teacher says he "was always seen going to and from work, participating in athletic activities, helping his mother with family chores." At the age of 16, he began to work at Caesars Hotel and Casino; at first after school, and then full time. He is now 28 years old and still employed at Caesars. He possesses both a casino hotel registration and a casino employee license. He is a craps dealer. His supervisors describe him as serious and sociable. He is considered to be an asset to the casino. His personnel evaluations mark him as a superior employee. He has been recommended for promotion.

Respondent is a single parent, the custodial parent of a 10 year old girl. He receives no support from the child's mother. He is a homeowner and a community organizer. He volunteers at the Salvation Army. He is a fundraiser, organizing basketball games which benefit Atlantic City youth.

In all respects the respondent appears to be an ideal candidate for relicensure as a casino employee and for reregistration as a casino hotel worker.

Respondent possesses, however, a serious blemish on his otherwise fine record. He has been convicted of possessing marijuana with the intent to distribute it.

In 1988, the respondent became a heavy user of marijuana. He describes himself as having become a "pot head." Like many "pot heads", the respondent began to buy marijuana in ever larger quantities, financing his habit by sharing the marijuana with others which helped defray the expense. Respondent was not a drug dealer in the sense that he peddled marijuana on the streets, but he enabled others, usually friends, to smoke marijuana by sharing his costs. Thus when respondent was arrested in January of 1989, he possessed close to a half pound of marijuana, scales, a morsel of cocaine and $2620 in cash; the usual indicia of a person who distributed marijuana for either fun or profit.

As if this were not enough to tarnish the respondent's record, the circumstances of his arrest further enlarged the stain. While struggling on the floor with the arresting officer inside the respondent's home, respondent called on his girlfriend to let the dogs loose; a pit bull and a boxer locked inside a closet. The fact that the officer was in plain clothes and took the respondent by surprise only partly explains the respondent's violent response. Apparently, the respondent quieted down when the officer placed his revolver adjacent to the respondent's head.

The respondent pled guilty to the offense of possession of marijuana with the intent to distribute, in the third degree. N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a(1) and b (11). This offense is listed in the Casino Control Act (Act) disqualification criteria. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (1). If a person is convicted of one of the enumerated offenses, the person convicted is disqualified from casino employee licensure and registration. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90e and 91b.

The disqualification is not automatic however. If a person demonstrates rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, the disqualification does not obtain. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and 91d. A licensee, as opposed to a registrant, has an additional burden. A licensee must also prove by clear and convincing evidence that he or she possesses good character, honesty and integrity. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b2 and 90b. this additional burden is because the licensee is actually employed in a casino setting. A registrant is not permitted to work on the casino floor. N.J.S.A. 5:12-7 and 8.

All of these issues were focused upon the respondent when his arrest and conviction came to the attention of the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), which presents matters before the Casino Control Commission (Commission). N.J.S.A. 5:12-76.

A complaint was filed by the Division with the Commission on November 9, 1989 seeking revocation of the respondent's license and registration based on the respondent's indictment for possession of marijuana with the intent to distribute.

The respondent requested a hearing and on December 6, 1989, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 5:12-107.

A prehearing conference identified the legal and factual issues referred to above for resolution at a plenary hearing; i.e., disqualification, rehabilitation and good character. The plenary hearing convened on September 10, 1990.

At the plenary hearing, the respondent stipulated that he was convicted of N.J.S.A. 35-5a(1) in the third degree, possession of an ounce or more of marijuana, with the intent to distribute. I therefore CONCLUDE that the respondent is disqualified from casino employee licensure and hotel employee registration unless saved from such disqualification by rehabilitation.

By way of rehabilitation and character evidence, the respondent introduced letters from two probation officers. These letters are unusual because probation officers rarely attempt to predict the future. Most merely recite that a probationer was or was not prompt for his or her appointments; did or did not obtain employment, and either was or was not terminated from probation with improvement. Probation Officer Susan L. Silver, however, describes the respondent as "extremely cooperative." She also relates that he "has expressed remorse." She predicts that he will be "an asset to any employer." Probation Officer Crystal Brown writes that the respondent was terminated from probation on March 20, 1990, in good standing. She opines that he is a good candidate "for licensure in the casino setting." She also describes him as a "wonderful asset to the working circuit."

In addition to these tributes, the respondent produced hard evidence that he is no longer using drugs. He submitted a lab report prepared April 13, 1990 indicating the absence in his system of ten drugs including THC. But the most important evidence of the respondent's rehabilitation was his response to jail and his devotion to his daughter. He said that he was "scared straight" by his short jail experience. He has described that experience to his daughter and uses his own legal difficulties as an example to her to say "no" to drugs. Respondent's daughter accompanied him to the hearing and gave her father moral support as she absorbed the lesson that drug use is fraught with problems; social, physical and legal.

The respondent's behavior during the last few months of 1988, and on the night in January 1989 when he was arrested, is not excusable. But measured against his entire life, it does not compel the conclusion that he is unlicensable. It is precisely because the public perceives drugs as capable of producing violent and aberrant behavior that society feels compelled to make their use and possession illegal.

The respondent's good behavior during probation, his fine work record during his life time, his exercise of family responsibility, his pride of home ownership, all indicate that the respondent is rehabilitated. The factors required by the Act to be considered clearly indicate this. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and 91d.

1. The respondent is a craps dealer. There is no evidence that the respondent ever used or distributed drugs at a casino. He expressly denies ever having done so. Respondent's work product apparently did not suffer as a result of his drug use.

2. The offense was serious and was dealt with by the courts in a serious fashion. The respondent has completed his sentence.

3. The respondent was a "pot head" and shared marijuana with others in order to defray expense.

4. The offense occurred in January of 1989.

5. The respondent was 27 years old when he committed the crime.

6. The offense was not repeated. However, for a period of several months prior to respondent's arrest in January of 1989, he engaged in heavy drug use and sold drugs to friends.

7. There was no evidence that social conditions contributed to the offense.

8. The Atlantic County probation department reports clearly indicate that the respondent is rehabilitated. His conduct since the arrest corroborates the probation report. Respondent's supervisor considers him a superior employee and a candidate for promotion.

I CONCLUDE that the respondent is rehabilitated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and 91d.

I further CONCLUDE that the respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b.

I ORDER that the complaint filed herein be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Casino Control Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the CHAIR OF THE CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, 3131 Princeton Pike, Building 5, CN 208, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." BEFORE RICHARD J. MURPHY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE, ISSUES AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The New Jersey Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed an amended complaint under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86, 89, 90-91, 107-108, and 129-130, with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on March 2, 1988 seeking to revoke the casino key employee license (No. 2591-11) held by Vincent L. Farina because of his indictment in early 1987 for theft (third degree), conspiracy to commit theft, commercial bribery, misconduct by a corporate official, and theft by deception based on his alleged involvement in an illegal scheme involving complimentaries and rating cards, while he was employed as a floorperson at Caesars Hotel and Casino. Those charges were later dismissed, after Mr. Farina entered the Pretrial Intervention Program (PTI).

The issues to be resolved in this proceeding, as set forth in the prehearing order are:

1. Whether the respondent Vincent L. Farina is disqualified from holding a casino key employee license under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and 86g because he committed acts constituting the offenses of theft in the third degree and conspiracy, notwithstanding the dismissal of those charges through PTI;

2. Whether the respondent Vincent L. Farino is disqualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c2 and 86g in that his commission of acts constituted commercial bribery, misconduct by a corporate official, and theft, make his licensure as a casino key employee inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations, notwithstanding the dismissal of those charges through PTI;

3. Whether the respondent key licensee can establish by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), including consideration of the factors of rehabilitation as set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.[1]

Vincent L. Farina, who is not currently employed in the casino industry, hold a casino key employee license and was previously employed by the Boardwalk Regency Corporation, trading (t/a) as Caesars Boardwalk Regency Hotel & Casino (Caesars). He was indicted on February 6, 1987 for the crimes of theft by deception, theft of services, misconduct of a corporate official, commercial bribery and tampering with public information. Those charges were ultimately dismissed on December 5, 1988 under New Jersey Court Rule 3:28, on the recommendation of the coordinator of the Pretrial Intervention Program (PTI). As part of the order of dismissal, the clerk of Atlantic County was directed to mark the court record as "complaint dismissed — matter adjusted".

1 Procedural History The Commission filed this matter with the Office of Administrative Law on March 22, 1989 for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., and the case was preheard on May 5, 1989, with the prehearing order issued on May 8, 1989. The plenary hearing was held on August 31, 1989 and completed on January 18, 1990, at which time the record closed. The due date for submission of the initial decision was extended for good cause not related to this case. I regret any hardship or inconvenience that this unavoidable delay may have caused the parties.

Before dismissal pursuant to PTI, the matter was presented to a State Grand Jury which returned a superseding indictment (No. 189-87-8(2) against Farina and one Richard Leosi, for conspiracy to commit theft (third degree), commercial bribery (third degree), misconduct by a corporate official (third degree) and theft by deception (third degree) in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2, 2C:20-3, 2C:21-10, 2C:21-9 and 2C:20-4, respectively. The indictment charged that Farina, who was then working under a casino key employee license at Caesars, conspired with Richard Leosi to arrange to have an unnamed guest register as a complimentary guest of Caesars, occupy a room, and receive complimentary services including accommodations, food, beverages and entertainment, and later pay Leosi and Farina for the "comp". Respondent was accused of engaging in this activity between May 1, 1985 and December 31 of that year.

The indictment specifically alleges that the money was for the most part received by Leosi, but at least $300 was received by Farina on or about November 17, 1985 and again on November 25 of that year. Farina and Leosi were also accused of theft in that they ". . . did knowingly and unlawfully take and exercise unlawful control over movable and immovable property of another, that is, food and beverages and hotel rooms with a value over $501, the property of Boardwalk Regency Corporation, traded as Caesars Boardwalk Regency Hotel Casino, and Eileen Cohen with the purpose to deprive the owner or owners thereof . . . ." (Indictment at 10). Farina and Leosi were charged in the third count with misconduct of a corporate official in the third degree in that they ". . . . did purposely and knowingly use, control and operate Boardwalk Regency Corporation trading as Caesars Boardwalk Regency Hotel Casino, a corporation of the State of New Jersey for the furtherance of a criminal object, to wit: to commit the crimes of commercial bribery and theft . . . ." (Indictment at 10). The respondent and Richard Leosi were also charged with commercial bribery for unlawfully soliciting, accepting and agreeing to accept to benefit in the form of United States currency in an amount in excess of $1000 but less than $75,000 as consideration for knowingly violating and agreeing to violate a duty of fidelity to which Farina was subject as employee, manager and participant in the direction of the affairs of Boardwalk Regency Corporation, in exchange for providing complimentary services of a value in excess of $1000 but less than $75,000. The fifth and final count of the indictment charge theft by deception as stated that Farina and Leosi ". . . did purposely obtain property of another by deception, that is, United States currency in excess of $500, from Eileen Cohen by creating and enforcing the false impressions that Eileen Cohen only was entitled to complimentary services from Boardwalk Regency Corporation . . by virtue of having paid Vincent Farina and Richard Leosi for said services, whereas in truth and in fact . . . Eileen Cohen was not entitled to complimentary services from Caesars by virtue of having paid . . . ." (Indictment at 13).

All of these charges were dismissed after Farina entered the Pretrial Intervention Program, without admitting his guilt as charged. Farina offered the following account of his background at Caesars and the genesis of the charges. In 1979, he was licensed as a craps dealer and was employed at Caesars. He received several upgrades in his casino employee license, permitting him to serve as a box person, and later as a floor person, with supervisory responsibilities. He later applied for and received a casino key employee license and in 1985 was working as a craps pit boss at Caesars, with supervision of the total craps pit operation, including dispensing of complimentaries ("comps") to deserving patrons. The craps pit at the Caesars then had 8 tables, and the pit boss's function was to supervise all of the floor people, some 32 dealers, and 10 to 20 box persons. In essence, the pit boss "runs" the pit, with all operations and "comp" system under his or her supervision and guidance. The pit boss has no independent authority to grant comps in the form of room, food, or beverages, which are given to "rated" players, based on a rating determined by floorpersons based on the patron's play, including average bet and time at the tables. The "comp" policy had changed at Caesars four to five times during Farina's tenure at the casino, although the basic information of average bet and time of play remained the same basis for the rating, done by the floorpersons, who convey this information to the pit clerk and pit boss, who has a position (or desk) in the pit. Floorpersons simply hand the rating cards to the pit clerk, and the information is entered into the computer. The pit boss's function is to determine qualifications regarding players based on ratings by floorpersons and thus determine entitlement to comps. Originally, Farina had some discretion to do this, but later the comps came directly from a computerized system. The comps are based on recent ratings, which the pit boss would review, and Farina stated that, on a scale of one to ten, this aspect of the pit boss's function ranked eighth in importance.

Farina identified several of the other individuals involved in this controversy. Nelson Italiano, was formerly Farina's direct supervisor at Caesars, and the holder of a casino key employee license. Italiano was pit boss, when the respondent served as a craps dealer, and the two often worked together. Richard Leosi, also named in the indictment, was the respondent's first craps instructor at Caesars' gaming school, and usually functioned as respondent's direct supervisor on the job, although, by the time Farina became pit boss, Leosi had left the employ of the casino. Harold Harmon dealt craps when the respondent was a dealer and later became a floorperson when the respondent was on the floor. There was a time when the respondent was pit boss and Harmon was a floor dealer. Eileen Cohen, characterized in the indictment as the victim of this "comp" scam, was a rated craps player and consistent customer of Caesars. Respondent spoke to her in circumstances off the casino floor, but claims that he never met with her in the casino to discuss comps and she denies that she ever approached him for that purpose. He claims that he never issued any comps for her and his only contact was to inquire of her as to availability of automatic lift chairs for his handicapped 80 year old mother, since Ms. Cohen was in the business of selling such equipment. Leosi, according to Farina, received cash from Cohen and falsified the ratings in an attempt to generate comps. Cohen, who was a rated player entitled to comps, needed no assistance to obtain them and Farina characterized her as a "good, well known" rated player. Farina may have asked Harmon or another floorperson to rate Cohen, but this was in the course of his duties to identify and rate "big players". He also states that Italiano may have asked Harmon to rate players, but he is unaware of this. Respondent claims that he never asked Harmon to do anything unethical or illegal.

Leosi, Cohen, and Harmon did not testify in this proceeding. Harmon had previously testified in OAL Dkt. No. CCC 7505-88, and admitted that Italiano had asked him to do some illegal and unethical things as to comps, including signing ratings. (See P-1 at 18 to 23). Harmon also claims that Farina asked him to sign comps ratings in late 1985, but Farina maintains that this was the first occasion that he did so. (P-1, at 20, lines 9-22). Although Harmon claims that he received money for rating cards, and signed those cards two to three times for Farina, respondent denies that he ever paid Harmon to sign cards, and never asked him to sign them for a fictitious player, or for Eileen Cohen. (P-1 at 23, 1 at 17). Harmon's license application was later denied by the Commission.

All of Cohen's comps were "RFB" (room-food-beverage) and were provided by VIP services. Farina denies asking Leosi to contact Cohen, and also denies that he ever contacted her to arrange floor meetings or that he received cash payments from her. He admits that he was suspended for two days by Caesars, but later reinstated and reimbursed, and denies that Cohen ever questioned him as to why she was receiving comps.

Both Harmon and Cohen were later given immunity and made statements to the New Jersey State Police incriminating Leosi and Farina:

> FEBRUARY 21, 1986: On this date, under the terms of an agreement, in which Eileen Cohen would not be prosecuted for her part in this crime, which was worked out between DAG B. Scott of the Criminal Justice Department and Joseph Gindhart, Esq. who is Cohen's attorney, the undersigned met with Eileen Cohen in the presence of her attorney and DAG Scott. The meeting was held in Gindhart's office on New York Ave., Atlantic City, N.J.
>
> During the meeting, Cohen gave the undersigned the following account of her activities regarding this crime:
>
> > Cohen was a slot player at Caesar during the year of 1984. She made numerous day trips to the casino for the purpose of playing slots. She was rated as a slot player and did receive low level complimentary services based on her slot ratings. In May or June of 1985, Cohen began to play occasionally on the craps tables. On evening in this time period while playing craps, she met a unknown male player who said that he was going to a show and dinner with his wife on a comp from the casino. Cohen asked the subject how she could receive complimentary services such as shows, dinners and hotel rooms. The subject told her to see one of the pit personnel and then pointed to a pit boss named Vince and said, "such as him". Cohen approached this pit boss who she later learned was Vincent Farina and asked him how she could go about receiving complimentary services. Farina asked Cohen her name and phone number which she supplied and then told her that someone would contact her.
> > One evening during the following week, Cohen received a phone call from a subject who identified himself as Richard Leose. Leose told Cohen that he was a friend of Farina and although he, (Leose), was no longer working at Caesar's, he could make it possible for Cohen to start receiving the room, food and beverage complimentary services (RFB comps). Leose told Cohen that she would be the first woman that he has ever used in this arrangement. Leose asked Cohen for her date of birth wich she gave him and then he gave the telephone number for the Caesar's Marketing Department and told her that when she wanted to come to Caesar's as a comped quest, she should just call the marketing department and give them her name and date of birth.

Approximately two weeks later which was sometime in June of 1985, Cohen called the Caesar's marketing department and made arrangements to stay at Caesar's as a comped quest the following Saturday night. Several days later, Cohen received a second telephone call at her home on Rennard St., Phila., Pa. from Leose who said that he was aware of the fact that Cohen was coming to Caesar's on Saturday night. Leose told her that he wanted her to meet him on Sunday morning at 10:00 AM outside the casino on Arkansas Avenue by Aubrey's Restaurant in his car. Leose described himself and his car to Cohen.

Cohen did in fact go to Caesar's as per the arrangements made with the marketing department and did stay over Saturday night as a comped quest. On Sunday morning at 10:00AM she went out onto Arkansas Ave. and met with Leose in his car which was a chocolate brown Imperial. During the meeting, Leose questioned Cohen as to whether her accommodations were satisfactory. After Cohen told Leose that everything was to her liking, Leose told her that if she wanted to have similar comps extended to her in the future, she would have to pay Leose $200.00 for every Saturday night that she stayed and that if she wanted her stay to include Friday night it would cost an additional $100.00 or a total of $300.00 for the two nights. Leose told her that she would make the payments to him at 10:00AM on Sunday mornings in his car at the same location on Arkansas Ave.

During the remainder of the month of June and the beginning of the month of July, Cohen and her two daughters stayed every Saturday night at the Caesar's Hotel as RFB comped quest under the agreement she had with Leose. Every Sunday morning, she would meet Leose in his car and pay him $200.00 in cash. Sometime in the month of July, Cohen got tired of fighting the traffic from Philadelphia to Atlantic City on Saturdays so she increase her stat to include Friday nights at which time she increased her Sunday morning cash payments to leose to $300.00. Cohen and her two daughters, utilized the arrangements with Leose to stay at Caesar's almost every weekend for the remainder of the summer.

On August 2, 1985, Cohen moved from her 10831 Rennard St., Philadelphia, Pa. address with phone number (215-) to 830 Hendrix St. Philadelphia, Pa. with

During her weekend visits to Caesar's, on one occasion Cohen received a call from Leose in her room at which time Leose told her that she would not be able to meet her on Sunday morning as per their arrangement. Leose told her that he would meet her the following Sunday at which time she would pay him $600.00 for both weekends. Cohen did meet him the following Sunday at which time she paid him for both weekends. On one other occasion which Cohen could not remember the date, she had to cancel her plans to stay at Caesar's over the weekend due to the fact that she had to go to a funneral. Cohen called either Leose or Farina at their homes at which time the line was busy. She could not remember whose number was busy but she did reach the other at his home and she advised him that she would not be coming to Caesar's that particular weekend. Leose and Farina had both supplied Cohen with their home phone numbers.

Sometime in November on 1985, Farina called Cohen at her home in Hendrix St., Philadelphia and told her that Leose was going on vacation for two weeks and that when she came to Caesar's while Leose was away, she was to meet with Farina and make the payments to him. Farina told her to meet him at 1:30 AM on Saturday nights in a hallway in Caesar's to make the payment. Farina instructed her to have the case secreted in her hand and to make the exchange while shaking hands. Cohen met with Farina in the hallway as per his instructions and paid him the required cash during the next two weekends.

Sometime later in December of 1985 just before the New Years Holiday, Cohen received a call from Leose at her business which is E & S Comfort located at 1661 Republic Road, Huntington Valley, Pa. Leose told her that he had to talk to her but could not talk over the phone. He stated that he would come to her office the next day. Leose did meet with Cohen in her office the following day at which time Leose told her thatr Farina and two other people had been suspended from Caesar's due to an investigation. Cohen questioned Leose as to what she had to do with any investigation being conducted at Caesar's. Leose told her that Farina and other people were doing things for her in order that she could receive the benefits of the comps she has been receiving. Leose would not tell Cohen what Farina and the other were doing for her. Leose told her that > someone might contact her regarding the investigation. Leose then told her that his boys were hurting for money and asked her to pay him in advance for the upcoming New Years Holiday which she was scheduled to spend at Caesars. Cohen paid Leose $500.00 cash at that time for her New Years Holiday accommodations.

> Cohen met with Leose again of December 30, 985 in his car on Arkansas Ave. Leose told her that Farina and the two other people that had been suspended were back to work. He told her that everything was now alright. He told her that the investigation would probably continue and that if she was questioned by anyone, she should say nothing.
>
> At the conclusion of Cohen's aforementioned account of her activities, Cohen showed the undersigned a card on which she had written the home phone number of Richard Leose. The number was 390-3508. She also showed the undersigned a number 390-1485 which was written on the back of her check book. She said that the latter number was Farina's home phone number.
> Cohen stated that she had no contact with Leose or Farina since she left Caesar's Hotel on January 31, 1986. (P-2)(emphasis added) [sic].

Under the comp scam created by Leosi, with the assistance of Farina as described above, Eileen Cohen was, in effect, paying for comps that her rated play would have entitled her to receive on a purely complimentary basis. Following receipt of the police reports, Leosi and Farina were indicted in February of 1987, and a superseding indictment was later handed up by a state grand jury, as detailed above.

Ms. Cohen, who was not produced to testify at the hearing, gave essentially the same statement in her testimony before the State Grand Jury on June 20, 1986 in Trenton. (P-6). There, she stated that she introduced herself to one of Caesars' pit bosses (whom she later learned was Vincent Farina) and inquired as to how she could receive comps. (P-6 at 12 to 13). She claims that Farina asked her for her phone number and told her that he knew of someone who could help her out in this regard. (Ibid.). She heard from Richard Leosi a week or two later by telephone, Leosi stated that he had received Ms. Cohen's name from Farina, and understood that she was interested in getting "comped". (P-6 at 14). Leosi also later called and told her that "everything was set up" and that all she had to do was call VIP services at Caesars, identify herself, and she would receive the RF&B (room-food-beverage) (P-6 at 16, line 9-13). Cohen checked into the casino and had dinner. Leosi subsequently called her and asked her to meet him outside the Arby's Restaurant across the street from Caesars, and asked if everything was satisfactory. He then advised Cohen that she would be charged $200.00 for an overnight stay and $300.00 for a full weekend, for room, meals and entertainment at Caesars. In her first meeting she paid Leosi $200.00 (P-6 at 24). In June or July of 1985 she came down to the casino every other week and made payment to Leosi on those occasions. (Ibid. at 25 to 27). When Leosi had to go away for a couple of weeks, she was instructed by him to meet Farina and made the payments to respondent. (Ibid. at 27 to 28). She also states that Farina contacted her and inquired as to what she was able to offer from her business for his mother. (Ibid. at 28). That was the extent of Farina's involvement in this scam whereby Ms. Cohen was hoodwinked into paying under the table for comps that her rated play entitled her to receive free of charge.

Farina attacks Cohen's testimony as obtained through immunity and denies that he ever personally issued any comp for Eileen Cohen: he also states that she never gave him any money. He denies having changed her rating chards and states that "she never needed anything", because she was a rated craps player and well known. This was recognized by Linda Smith, who was a floorperson in Caesars dice department as a dual rate pit boss. (R-2). In her statement on May 30, 1986 to DGE, Smith stated that she recognized Eileen Cohen as being a good player, who was betting considerable money for a substantial length of time, and also that she knew Vincent Farina, but offered no statement as to Farina's involvment. (Ibid.). A review of statements given by other Caesars employees to DGE did not reveal any statements incriminating Farina in either a suspected scam or false player ratings, in which persons were given ratings of other players. (R-2 to R-3). Jay Dee Clayton, a dual rate pit boss/floorperson at Caesars, gave a statement to DGE on May 30, 1986 stating that Harold Harmon took advantage of a situation where pit bosses were signing blank comps to set up a scam being run with a cocktail waitress in a casino restaurant. (R-13 at 13). Under the scam, Harmon would provide the comp to patrons for cash, which would be split. Farina's name was on some of the "comps" as pit boss, but he was exonerated after being suspended for two days in connection with this matter. Caesars changed procedures on the presigned comps after this problem was detected, and Farina was reinstated.

Farina admits that he knew Eileen Cohen, whom he characterized as a recognized player, and he concedes that he introduced himself and asked if there was anything he could do for her as pit boss, after he saw her gambling considerable amounts of money. Farina stated that the comp system was intricate and that the pit boss was allowed to comp to a low limit for meals and the like, but that room, transportation and weekend packages were handled through host services, entitled "VIP" services. He claims that he offered limited comps to Ms. Cohen, but she was already staying on an RFB comp (room-food-beverage) and receiving more than he could offer, as pit boss. In fact, he denies that he ever gave Ms. Cohen anything she should not have received, and also denies that he was involved in any "comp" scam as to Ms. Cohen. He notes that Harmon was terminated at Caesars, after his part in the "comp" scam was revealed.

Harmon admitted in testimony for the Casino Control Commission that Italiano had asked him to commit illegal or unethical acts in 1981 or 1982, when he asked him to sign rating cards, in order to dispense comps. (P-1 at 18). Harmon also accused Farina of paying him as much as $80 for signing rating cards. (P-1 at 22 to 24). Farina denies any such payments to Harmon.

I FIND, as a matter of fact, based on the testimony given to the State Grand Jury on June 20, 1986 by Eileen Cohen (P-6), that she did initially seek comps from pit boss Vincent Farina, who referred her to Richard Leosi, and that Leosi made arrangements for her to pay for comps that she was, in fact, entitled as a rated player to receive and gave his number and Farina's number to make arrangements. (P-6 at 14 through 22). I further FIND Ms. Cohen made payments to Richard Leosi in exchange for comps and also made such payments to Vincent Farina on several occasions in the summer of 1985 when Leosi was not available. Cohen's testimony in this regard was given under oath in a State Grand Jury proceeding and her statements were straightforward and believable, notwithstanding that Ms. Cohen was engaged in making illegal payments for comps, to which she mistakenly believed she was not lawfully entitled. Although Ms. Cohen was engaged in an unlawful activity herself and offered immunity, she was, more or less, the "victim" of the scam and was testifying, essentially, from the victim's perspective. She had no casino license to protect and no interest in lying to protect herself in light of her immunity to prosecution. Farina, on the other hand, testified at the hearing in this case under the threat of permanently losing his casino key employee license, and thus had considerable incentive to deny any wrongdoing.

As to Harold Harmon, Farina's coworker, who was also granted immunity, I FIND that his statements as to receiving payments from Farina in return for signing rating cards were less credible than Cohen's and Farina's, given his considerable interest in his prospects for a casino employee license and also were less believable because he did not even recall the sum that he alleged that Farina had given him (P-1, at 22, lines 6 to 10). Given the nature of Harmon's testimony , as well as his obvious interest in protecting his license, I do not FIND his claim of payment from Farina to be credible and FIND that the Division of Gaming Enforcement has failed to bear its burden of proof on this point. Unlike Cohen, who was essentially the victim in this instance and could have easily stopped at naming Richard Leosi as the culprit, Harmon had a greater interest in shifting blame to Farina and the testimony given by him in the context of his licensing proceeding (P-1) must be read more skeptically, with that interst in mind. (P-1). I found the live testimony of Vincent Farina more credible than the self-interested statements of Harmon in his OAL licensing proceeding. I also note that Cohen was testifying before a State Grand Jury, whereas Harmon testified before an ALJ at OAL in a civil context, which is a considerably less forbidding and imposing setting.

As indicated, no statements, prior testimony or live testimony was presented from Richard Leosi, who I FIND was the prime mover and mastermind of the comp scam.

There is no dispute as to the above facts, except as otherwise discussed and found, and I so FIND.

I also FIND that, other than the matter of this comp scam, respondent Vincent Farina had a good work record in the casino industry.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

At issue, is whether Vincent Farina is disqualified from holding a casino key employee license under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c1 and 86g because of his conduct amounting to theft in the third degree and conspiracy, and whether he is disqualified under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c2 and 86g because of his acts constituting commercial bribery, misconduct by a corporate official, and theft. In addition to these issues of disqualification, the ultimate issue is whether Vincent Farina can establish his good character, honesty and integrity pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), considering the factors of rehabilitation as set forth in 90h.

Counsel for Farina argues that his client testified candidly and honestly, and slights the Division's case as resting on the dubious testimony of Eileen Cohen and Harold Harmon, who are both "admitted scammers" and, the latter of whom has already lost his casino employee license. Farina stands by his story that his only personal contact with Eileen Cohen was fielding her questions about "comps", and later asking her the price of special handicapped wheelchairs for his aging mother. He points to testimony of other casino employees, which failed to incriminate him. He cites his otherwise long and untroubled work record in the casino industry, and notes that Cohen and Harmon, who both had immunity from prosecution, "would say anything." Respondent maintains the Division has failed to carry its burden of proof, which is to prove disqualification by a preponderance of the believable evidence.

The Division defends Cohen's credibility, and submits that she had no reason to lie, as to Farina. The Division maintains that it has established the elements of theft by deception, and may rest on the testimony and statements provided by Cohen and Harmon. It argues that Harmon's testimony before OAL is believable because it was against his interest, in that he admitted to accepting money from Farina in exchange for rating players. The Division defends its reliance on hearsay statements under the authority of N.J.S.A. 5:12-107a(6).

As indicated above, I FIND as a matter of fact that Vincent Farina accepted payments from Eileen Cohen as charged, but that the Division has failed to prove by a preponderance of the believable evidence that Farina made the payment to Harmon, as claimed. In any event, the payment to Harmon was not part of the indictment against Farina and Leosi. (P-5).

Vincent Farina did not plead guilty to the indictment, which was dismissed after he entered the Pretrial Intervention Program. Without a guilty plea or a judgment of conviction on the charges, the Division is left to its proofs as to Farina's conduct in order to establish disqualification and to question his good character, honesty and integrity. The facts thus found above show that Farina was involved in a scheme which originally was to seek and accept payments from Eileen Cohen in return for comps, to which she was already entitled by virtue of her rated play at Caesars.

But has the Division proven by a proponderance of the believable evidence that respondent engaged in acts constituting the offenses of conspiracy under N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2 or theft in the third degree, in violation of N.J.S.A. 20-3, both of which are enumerated disqualifiers under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1)? Conspiracy is defined in the Code of Criminal Justice in the following manner:

> (1) agrees with such other person or persons that they or one of more then will engage in conduct which constitutes such crime or attempt or solicitation to commit such crimes; or
>
> (2) agrees to aid such other person or persons in the planning or commission of such crime or of an attempt or solicitation to commit such crime . . .
> d. overt act. No person may be convicted of conspiracy to commit a crime other than a crime of the first or second degree or the distribution or possession with intent to distribute a controlled dangerous substance unless an overt act in pursuance of such conspiracy is proved to have been done by him or by a person with whom he conspires. . . . N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2 (emphasis).

This licensure proceeding is civil in nature and the Division is, thus, required to prove the disqualifying conduct only by a preponderance of the believable evidence. In this case, there is no direct evidence of an agreement between Vincent Farina and Richard Leosi to charge Eileen Cohen for comps to which she was entitled by her play, but such an agreement may be inferred under the circumstances, from Farina'a actions in meeting Eileen Cohen and in accepting payment from her for comps which I conclude constitutes an overt act under N.J.S.A. 2C:5-2 and also constitutes proof of the agreement between Farina and Leosi, since Farina's actions could only have come about through agreement with Leosi under the circumstances. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that Vincent Farina is disqualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) for engaging in conduct constituting the offense of conspiracy to commit the offense of theft in the third degree, notwithstanding that this conduct was not prosecuted as per N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

I further CONCLUDE that Vincent Farina, by accepting payments from Eileen Cohen, engaged in conduct constituting theft by unlawful taking in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, providing that "[a] person is guilty of theft if he unlawfully takes, or exercises unlawful control over, movable property for the purposes of depriving him thereof." The above findings of fact support the conclusion that Farina engaged in theft of Eileen Cohen and he is subject to disqualification for that conduct under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86d1, 86g, despite the absence of prosecution and the dismissal of the charges.

The Division also argues that it has proven that Farina involved in conduct constituting commercial bribery, misconduct by a corporate official, and theft by deception, all of which are disqualifying under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) and that they indicate that his licensure would be inimical to the policy of the Act and to casino operations.

Commercial bribery is defined in the following manner by the Code of Criminal Justice:

> (a) A person commits a crime if he solicits, accepts or agrees to accept any benefit as consideration for knowingly violating or agreeing to violate a duty of fidelity to which he is subject as:
> . . . an officer, director, manager or other participant in the direction of the affairs of an incorporated or unincorporated association . . . if the benefit offered, conferred, or agreed to be conferred, solicited, accepted or agreed to be accepted in violation of this section as $75,000 or more, the offender is guilty of a crime of the second degree. If the benefit exceeds $1000, but is less that $75,000 the offender is guilty of a crime of the third degree. If the benefit is $1000 or less, the offender is guilty of a crime of the fourth degree. N.J.S.A. 2C:21-10 (emphasis added).

Under the indictment, Farina is charged with accepting a total of $600 from Eileen Cohen in November of 1985, and I FIND that the Division has proven that allegation by a preponderance of the believable evidence. (P-5 at 7 to 9). Although the scam by Leosi and Farina involved much more than $600, the evidence submitted proves only that Farina took $600 from Ms. Cohen and on that basis I CONCLUDE that he is guilty of a crime of the fourth degree in accepting as a benefit for knowingly violating his duty of fidelity arising from his position as a manager or participant in the affairs of Caesars under N.J.S.A. 2C:21-10.

As to the charge of misconduct by a corporate official, the Code of Criminal Justice defines this as follows:

> [a] person is guilty of a crime when . . . he purposely and knowingly uses, controls or operates a corporation for the furtherance of promotion of any criminal object. N.J.S.A. 2C:21-9(c). If the benefit derived is $1000 or less, the offender is guilty of a crime of the fourth degree.

Based on the above findings as to respondent's acceptance of payments from Eileen Cohen, I CONCLUDE that Vincent Farina did engage in misconduct by a corporate official, by using his position as a pit boss at Caesars to further the promotion of the criminal object of stealing from Ms. Cohen.

The final claim by the Division is that Farina's conduct constituted theft by deception in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which provides:

>
> a. Creates or reinforces a false impression, including false impressions as to law, value, intention or other state of mind; but deception as to a person's intention to perform a promise shall not be inferred from the fact alone that he did not subsequently perform the promise . . .
> c. Fails to correct a false impression which the deceiver previously created or reinforced, or which the deceiver knows to be influencing another to whom stands in a fiduciary or confidential relationship.(emphasis added).

The term "deceive" does not, however, include falsity as to matters having no pecuniary significance, or proffering or exaggeration by statements unlikely to deceive ordinary persons in the group addressed. Although there is evidence that Richard Leosi did intentionally create a false impression in Eileen Cohen's mind as to her entitlement to comps and need to make payments to receive them, there is insufficient evidence to conclude that Farina expressly created or reinforced this false impression. Obviously, his action in accepting payment from Ms. Cohen did have the effect of reinforcing that false impression, but there is insufficient evidence linking Farina to the conversations between Leosi and Cohen, at which the false impression was put forward by Leosi. On that basis, I CONCLUDE that the Division has failed to show that Vincent Farina engaged in conduct constituting theft by deception within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4.

Consideration of the question of inimicality as to proven conduct of commercial bribery and misconduct by a corporate official also requires application of the fact as to rehabilitation, as set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. See, Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301, 314 (1985). Although casino key employees are not specifically given the benefit of rehabilitation on innumerated disqualifying offenses under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), those factors are relevant to the determination of both inimicality and the issue of good character, honesty and integrity and I so CONCLUDE under the authority of Dunston v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, decided April 10, 1990, A-197-89T3. The factors of rehabilitation under N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h are as follows:

> [i]n determining whether the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his [or her] rehabilitation the Commission shall consider the following factors:
>
> (1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;
>
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
>
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
>
> (4) The date of the offense or conduct;
>
>
> (6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
>

The respondent's duties as pit boss are one of the most sensitive and substantial on the casino floor and involve supervision of numerous employees, as well as contact with patrons and handling of funds. The pit boss occupies a central position of trust on the casino floor. The nature of the conduct of commercial bribery and misconduct by a corporate official, as well as the acts of conspiracy to commit theft seriously violate that position of trust. (Factors 1 and 2). Respondent has offered no mitigating circumstances under which this conduct took place, and I FIND that it was part of a conspiracy to commit a theft upon a patron. The respondent appears to be in his late 30s (although I neglected to get his exact age at the hearing, I trust that this can be filled in by way of exception) and thus was of mature age at the time of the conduct in November of 1985. (Factors 4 and 5). The conduct was repeated on at least two occasions by Vincent Farina, and he cites no social conditions contributing to that conduct. (Factors 6 and 7). As to evidence of rehabilitation, he cites his otherwise long and unblemished work record in the casino industry. (Factor 8).

When all of the above factors, and especially noting the highly sensitive nature and duties of the pit boss's position, as well the grave nature of the conduct involving a theft committed against a patron, as well as conduct constituting commercial bribery and misconduct of a corporate official, I CONCLUDE that the respondent's licensure would be inimical within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c1 and further CONCLUDE that he has failed to show rehabilitation from the innumerated disqualifying offenses of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c1.

Based on the above findings and conclusions and application of the factors of rehabilitation, I further CONCLUDE that the respondent Vincent Farina has failed to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence as required for licensure as a casino key employee under N.J.S.A. 5:12-89. Although his career in the casino industry has been otherwise without blemish or problem his conduct constituting conspiracy, theft, commercial bribery, misconduct of a corporate official so violated his trust as a casino key employee that the evidence of his otherwise good work in the casino industry is not sufficient to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. Athough Eileen Cohen was not without fault in this scam in that she was seeking to unlawfully pay for something to which she was actually entitled, respondent Vincent Farina's conduct breached his trust as a pit boss and casino key employee licensee and warrants revocation of that license.

DISPOSITION

On the basis of the above findings of fact and conclusions of law it is ORDERED that the casino key employee license of Vincent Farina is revoked.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of November 7, 1990,

IT IS on this 18th day of December 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

(1) Although the respondent admitted that he committed the offense of theft by unlawful taking, he was never convicted because the charges against him were dismissed after he completed the Pretrial Intervention Program. Therefore, the Administrative Law Judge should have found the respondent disqualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(2) and -86(g).

(2) The ALJ stated that, for the purpose of the inimical analysis, the burden of establishing rehabilitation is on the respondent. This statement is incorrect. It is neither necessary nor appropriate to ascribe a burden of proof standard in these circumstances for the reasons more fully stated in State v. Theodore Williams, Docket No. 84-288 (Commission order May 1, 1987) and State v. Michael P. Waters, Docket No. 84-419 (Commission order June 12, 1987).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent's casino employee license is revoked substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision, which as modified, is incorporated herein by reference; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Hector A. Feliciano, Jr., is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any license, registration, qualification or approval under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

Record Closed: August 20, 1990 Decided: September 18, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

Hector Feliciano, Jr., is licensed by the Casino Control Commission (Commission) as a slot attendant. He lost his job as a slot attendant at the Sands Casino. He was arrested on January 24, 1989 and charged with committing an act of theft against the Sands Casino. He admitted in writing that he and other casino licensees conspired to enter slot machines and manipulate them in order to make false jackpot payoffs to confederates. Feliciano was indicted for the crime of theft by unlawful taking in the fourth degree (more than $200 but less than $500), contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 and 2. Feliciano was admitted into the Pretrial Intervention Program (PTI) for first offenders R. 3:28.

As a result of this arrest, the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Commission in May of 1988 seeking to revoke Feliciano's license on the grounds that his continued employment would be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act (Act) and to casino operations pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (2). It also alleged that he did not possess the good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2) and 90b. Feliciano requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 5:12-107.

An in-person prehearing conference was conducted on March 2, 1990 and the above issues were identified for resolution at a plenary hearing. In addition, the burden of proof on the various issues was allocated and the concept of rehabilitation, as described in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and Donna Davis 8 N.J.A.R. 301, was discussed with Feliciano.

Nevertheless, at the plenary hearing conducted on August 20, 1990, Feliciano, after admitting that he committed the conduct described above on more than one occasion, did not produce a single document attesting to his rehabilitation except the PTI dismissal order. He did apologize for his actions, but the thrust of his argument for continued licensure went to the issue of his unemployability and the fact that he was in debt. He explained that he could not produce character evidence because none of his friends were "loyal" to him. With presidential authority he declared that he "was not a thief." He said he made a simple mistake.

The burden of establishing rehabilitation is on the applicant or licensee. It is part of the inimicality analysis. Donna Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301, N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. The burden of establishing good character, honesty and integrity is upon the applicant or licensee by clear and convincing evidence. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b. A mere half hearted apology is not enough to meet either standard; it is not enough by a wide margin.

I CONCLUDE that the continued licensure of the respondent would be inimical to the policy of the Act and to casino operations.

I further CONCLUDE that the respondent has failed to establish by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b.

I ORDER that the casino employee license of Hector Feliciano, Jr., be REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

A hearing in this matter having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of September 19, 1990,

IT IS on this 26th day of September 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> The Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) inimical analysis was incorrect in two respects. First, the ALJ stated that the respondent's age had no bearing on this analysis because the respondent admitted that he knew what he was doing was wrong. Second, although the ALJ considered evidence of rehabilitation with respect to the question of the respondent's good character, honesty and integrity, he did not factor this evidence into his analysis of the disqualification issue. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h) and 91(d), the age of the respondent when the offense was committed and any evidence of rehabilitation must be considered before determining whether an offense is disqualifying under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(2).

See Davis v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301, 314 (1985).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent's casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration are revoked substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision, which as modified, is incorporated herein by reference; and

JAVIER FELICIANO, pro se, respondent

Record Closed: JULY 6, 1990 Decided: AUGUST 1, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) seeking revocation of respondent's casino employee license #78641-21 and casino hotel employee registration #77686-40. The Division alleges, among other things, that respondent committed acts which are inimical to the interest of the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry of the State of New Jersey and respondent lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its complaint with the Commission on May 2, 1989. Respondent requested a hearing on May 11, 1989 and on October 27, 1989 the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on February 20, 1989 by Lillard E. Law, ALJ followed by a hearing which was held on July 6, 1990. The record was closed on July 6, 1990.

ISSUES

A. Whether respondent's continued licensure and registration is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c because he is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 (theft)?

B. Whether respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2)?

C. Whether the extraordinary relief of waiver pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(e) should be granted to respondent. Note, this issue was added at the commencement of the hearing by motion made by the Division of Gaming Enforcement.

Based upon testimony and documents proferred at the hearing, the following facts are neither contested nor in dispute. Therefore, these uncontested facts are hereby adopted as FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

Respondent is a 20 year old single male with two dependents, his girlfriend and one child, who was issued a casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration.

In the summer of 1987 respondent applied for and received a casino hotel employee registration. Subsequently, in November of 1988 he received his casino employee license. Both the hotel registration and casino license have been suspended pending the outcome of the within proceeding.

Respondent began employment in the casino industry on or about February 1, 1989 as a change person in the Atlantis Hotel/Casino. He remained in this position until February 28, 1989, the date he was arrested and charged with theft, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. Thereafter, respondent was employed at Bally's Grand where he worked until his license was suspended by the Casino Control Commission on May 19, 1989. Respondent testified that it took him nine or ten months to find a job after his license was suspended. He is currently working part-time at the Pathmark Supermarket in Vineland, New Jersey. With this employment, he is currently supporting one child and sharing the cost of an apartment with his girlfriend.

On February 28, 1989 respondent was working as a change person in the Atlantis Hotel/Casino. A change person works on the floor of the casino meeting with the casino's patrons and supplying them with change and tokens. On February 28, 1989 respondent was approached by a casino patron, Mr. Rice, who gave respondent a $50.00 bill. In return, respondent provided Mr. Rice with $20.00 in tokens at which time Mr. Rice, apparently not noticing the mistake, turned and walked away. Respondent testified that he was aware that he had only paid Mr. Rice $20.00 in tokens and that he intended to take the other $30.00 home with him at the conclusion of his shift. Respondent testified that he knew it was wrong to retain the patron's money. Respondent reasoned "that I had one on him and that he would not argue". Mr. Rice did return and confront respondent requesting the return of his $30.00. An argument between Mr. Rice and respondent then began and lasted approximately five minutes. Respondent then attempted to secrete the three ten dollar bills in a towel rack of the men's room. Mr. Rice observed the respondent's attempts to hide the money and upon calling Atlantis security, the money was retrieved from the towel rack by Coin Cage Supervisor, John Allen. Respondent was placed under arrest and charged with theft, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3.

Respondent pled guilty in the Atlantic City Municipal Court to theft by deception, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 and was ordered to pay a penalty of $150.00, this penalty having been paid as of the date of the hearing. Thereafter, as a result of the February 28, 1989 incident and subsequent guilty plea, respondent's license was suspended by the Casino Control Commission.

In January of 1990 respondent was found guilty of driving while under the influence, N.J.S.A. 39:4-50. He was fined $365.00 and ordered to spend two days in an Intoxicated Driver Resource Center. Approximately one month after the DWI arrest, respondent was arrested in Cumberland County, New Jersey and charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1), indictment number 90-03-0344-I/B. The charges for possession of CDS were pending as of the date of the hearing, however, respondent indicated that on July 9, 1990 he had an interview with the Cumberland County Probation Office at which time he was hopeful that he would be admitted into the Pre-Trial Intervention Program. Respondent admitted that he did possess cocaine as charged in the above indictment number 90-03-0344-I/B. Respondent expressed regret that both the DWI and possession incidents had occurred and explained that these arrests were as a result of the depression he was feeling due to his inability to find work for approximately nine months after leaving the Atlantis Hotel/Casino.

In addition to contributing to the support of his girlfriend and one eleven month old child, respondent has been attending for one month, Star Technical Institute to receive a degree in electronics. This is a basic electronics course which, when completed, in January of 1991 will qualify respondent for the field for computer repair.

For the past two and one-half years respondent has been a member of, and a part-time counsellor in Centro Del Sagrado Corazon, a Catholic youth group in Vineland, New Jersey. A letter presented by the respondent, R-1, in support of his good character, honesty and integrity was signed by Rev. Victor Muro, Director and Jollyvette Ramos, the Vice President of Centro Del Sagrado Corazon. Respondent candidly admitted that the individuals who signed the letter, R-1, were upset that respondent had been charged with possession of CDS (cocaine). As a result of the possession charge, Rev. Muro has revoked respondent's role as a counsellor to other members of the group.

Respondent was afforded the opportunity to have the record held open an additional period of time in order to permit him to submit additional letters concerning his character. Respondent refused and the record was closed on July 6, 1990.

respondent in the gaming industry would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or will create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations. Davis vs. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 at page 313. Thus, the first question which must be answered is whether the offense in and of itself is inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and/or the gaming industry. It is possible to have an offense fall within the inimical classification and still have an applicant retain his or her license because under the circumstances the individual's continuing licensure would not constitute a threat to the gaming industry or impairment of the public's confidence in the industry. The latter result could be reached by applying the rehabilitation factors found within Section 90(h) and/or 91(d) to determine whether continuing licensure is inimical.

Respondent in paragraph 5 of the March 1, 1990 prehearing order stipulated that he had on February 28, 1989 committed the offense of theft, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 and that he was found guilty in the Atlantic City Municipal Court and was ordered to pay a penalty of $150. Considering the location of the crime, it is clear that the offense does fall within the inimical category of 86c(2) of the Act. Since the rehabilitation factors of Sections 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act are subsumed in the inimical analysis it is necessary to examine those factors in order to determine whether respondent's continuing licensure rises to the level of inimicality.

Since the offense committed, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 involves an amount less than $200 respondent is guilty of a disorderly persons offense and accordingly there is no per se disqualification of his license pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). Instead, it is necessary to examine into all of the circumstances surrounding the crime including respondent's actions subsequent to the event.

The rehabilitation factors to be considered in the inimical analysis are as follows:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense;
3. The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
4. The date of the offense;
5. The age of the applicant when the offense was committed;
6. Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

In the instant matter, a consideration of factor number 1 should also include factor number 3 because the circumstances surrounding the crime must be considered in light of respondent's job responsibilities. Respondent on February 28, 1989 was a change person in the Atlantis Hotel/Casino. His duties were to make change and provide tokens to patrons of the Atlantis. As such, respondent had continuous involvement with the patrons in a position which was certainly highly visible to the public. A casino patron, Mr. Rice, trusting that respondent would fulfill his reponsibilities honestly completed his transaction, turned and walked away from respondent without the $30.00 due him. Respondent intended to, as he put it, "shortchange" Mr. Rice. Respondent continued this scheme even after Mr. Rice confronted him and argued with him about the issue for approximately five minutes.

Considering the nature and duties of respondent's position (factor number 1) and further considering that respondent intended all along to defraud a casino patron leads to the conclusion that the crime committed (factor number 2) is of a most serious nature. The amount of the fraud, that of $30.00, pales in insignificance when considered against the circumstances of the crime, that of intentionally and continuously depriving a casino patron of his money. Under factor number 4, there is an insufficient time between the occurrence, February 28, 1989 to the date of the hearing, July 6, 1990 to demonstrate with any realistic certainty that the offense would not again occur. The age of the respondent, (factor number 5) has no bearing in the analysis since considering that respondent admitted that he knew what he was doing was wrong, the maturity level of the respondent is not a factor to be considered.

Mitigating in favor of the respondent is that under factor number 6, the February 28, 1989 incident was apparently a one time occurrence.

Under factor number 7, there were no social conditions which contributed to the happening of the offense.

Thus, when considering the rehabilitation factors as they apply to the inimical analysis, it is clear that respondent's continuing licensure would be inimical to the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry. The intent and purpose of the Casino Control Act is to insure confidence and trust by the public in the gaming industry. To permit the respondent to be licensed some 16 months after intentionally defrauding a patron would most assuredly undermine the confidence by the public in the gaming industry and regulatory process.

I, THEREFORE, CONCLUDE that the State has met its burden to show by a preponderence of the evidence that pursuant to Section 86c(2) of the Act the offense committed by the respondent on February 28, 1989 as well as his continuing licensure would be inimical to the Casino Control Act.

The second issue presented is whether the respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

Pursuant to Section 89b(2) of the Act, the respondent is required to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. In the matter of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979) at 8; Davis vs. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985); In re Boardwalk Regency Corp.

Casino License, 90 N.J. 361 (1982). When, as here, the Division raises the issue as to the licensee's good character, honesty and integrity, it is incumbent upon the licensee to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which this tribunal may reach a reasonable conclusion. Boardwalk Regency, supra, In the matter of the Application of Boardwalk Regency Corp. and the Jemm Company for Casino License, Casino Control Commission (November 13, 1980). In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of the licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure.

Clear and convincing, falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here, the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the fact alleged is true; i.e., that respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity. The standard requires more than a mere balancing of probabilities, but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J.Super. 118 (L.Div. 1974); Germann v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466 (App. Div. 1969).

Respondent only produced one document, R-1, attesting to his credibility, honesty and integrity. By respondent's own admission, the author of R-1 was displeased with respondent as a result of the possession of CDS charge to the extent that he requested that he no longer counsel fellow youth group members as to the evils of drugs. Thus, this letter, R-1, must be given little, if any, weight. In addition, balanced against this evidence is respondent's conviction for driving while under the influence, N.J.S.A. 39:4-50 and his admission that he did in fact possess cocaine on January 31, 1990. Mitigating in respondent's favor is his effort to better his life by attending school at Star Techinical Institute and his support of his girlfriend and child. However, when balanced against the theft and DWI convictions, including the pending charges for possession of CDS respondent falls far short of convincing this tribunal by clear and convincing evidence of his good character, honesty and integrity.

Accordingly, I FIND that respondent has failed to meet his burden placed upon him by the provisions of Section 89b(2) of the Act.

The third issue is whether the extraordinary relief of waiver pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(e) should be granted to respondent.

Section 91(e) of the Act enables the Commission to grant a waiver of any otherwise disqualifying offense where the interest of justice so dictate. It must be emphasized that the nature of the relief afforded to the Commission by Section 91(e) of the Act is extraordinary and must only be granted for good cause shown.

In the instant matter, respondent has failed to demonstrate that he is an individual possessing good character, honesty and integrity. Although the latter standard (89b(2)) is inapplicable to a hotel registrant, the offense committed by the respondent is one of dishonesty and deceit which cannot be tolerated under any circumstances on the floor of a casino when interacting with patrons. The amount of the fraud is insignificant. The perpetration of the fraud is great especially when one considers the degree to which this conduct will destroy public confidence in the gaming industry. Casinos must be free from those who would flim-flam the public. This type of conduct does not belong in a highly regulated industry such as the casino industry in Atlantic City.

Accordingly, I do not recommend that the Commission grant a waiver to the respondent pursuant to the provisions of Section 91(e) of the Act.

RECOMMENDED DECISION

For the reasons set forth above, I FIND that the respondent, Javier Feliciano, committed an act which is inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry in general pursuant to Section 86c(2) of the Act. Respondent has failed to demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity pursuant to Section 89b(2) of the Act. The extraordinary relief of waiver provided under Section 91(e) of the Act should not issue in this instance.

Accordingly, I HEREBY REVOKE respondent, Javier Feliciano's, casino employee license #78641-21 and casino hotel employee registration #77686-40.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of October 24, 1990,

IT IS on this 27th day of November 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> To include a reference to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(g) as a further basis for the disqualification, because the respondent was not convicted of the disqualifying offense.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent's casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration are revoked substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision, which as modified, is incorporated herein by reference; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that John A. Fogarino is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any license, registration, qualification or approval under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

Richard L. Goldstein, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: July 30, 1990 Decided: September 13, 1990

BEFORE M. KATHLEEN DUNCAN, ALJ:

This matter commenced with the filing of a complaint by the State of New Jersey, Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (hereinafter petitioner) seeking to revoke the casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration of John A. Fogarino (hereinafter respondent). The complaint alleged that respondent had been charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10. By order entered June 8, 1990, the Casino Control Commission suspended respondent's employee license and hotel employee registration pending the outcome of a plenary hearing. By letter dated June 7, 1990, respondent's attorney requested a hearing on his behalf, and on June 25, 1990, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was conducted by telephone conference call on July 11, 1990; at that time the following were identified as issues for determination at hearing:

1. Has Mr. Fogarino engaged in conduct which indicates that his continued licensure and hotel employee registration would be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and casino operations in the State of New Jersey, N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)2? In connection with this question the Division of Gaming Enforcement proceeds pursuant to its authority under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(d) or N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(g) to establish this conduct.

2. Does respondent have the requisite good character, honesty, and integrity for licensure as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)2 and 90(b)?

3. If otherwise disqualified, should respondent be allowed to retain his hotel employee registration pursuant to the waiver provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(e)?

The hearing was scheduled for July 16, 1990, and took place as scheduled at the Trenton office of the Office of Administrative Law. Following the close of testimony it was determined that the record would remain open for the receipt of additional evidence from respondent. A letter dated July 13, 1990, addressed, "To Whom It May Concern" from Charlotte L. Blyn, M.D., respondent's psychiatrist, was received on July 20, 1990. No objection having been made by petitioner, the letter was marked R-2 in evidence on July 30, 1990, whereupon the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The facts relevant to a determination of this matter are not in dispute and I, therefore, FIND the following as uncontested facts.

Prior to the October 3, 1989 incident which resulted in the within matter, respondent was employed by Caesar's Cafe Roma as a waiter. On that date Detective John Silver of the New Jersey State Police, Division of Gaming Enforcement, arrested respondent at the restaurant and charged him with possession of a controlled dangerous substance - cocaine. Detective Silver removed the suspected controlled dangerous substance from respondent's person at that time and forwarded it for analysis to the State Police Laboratory in Hammonton, New Jersey. Following his arrest, upon the advice of Detective Silver in October or November 1989, respondent applied for and received a casino hotel employee registration. Detective Silver had advised respondent that he would undoubtedly lose his casino license as a result of his conduct on October 3, 1989, but that he might be permitted to maintain his registration. Also following his arrest in October 1989, respondent left his employment at Caesar's and commenced employment at Sinbad's Seafood Restaurant in the Taj Mahal.

The criminal charges arising from the October 1989 arrest are still pending against respondent; he has been permitted to enter the pretrial intervention program which he has not yet completed. Respondent entered no plea to the charges prior to being permitted to enter the pretrial intervention program, although in the course of the within hearing he acknowledged that the substance which was removed from his person on October 3, 1989 by Detective Silver was, in fact, cocaine. Completion of the pretrial intervention program requires the payment of a $1000 fine, 25 hours of community service, periodic urine testing, maintaining gainful employment and meeting with a counselor periodically. The counselor did not testify at the hearing and no communication from him or her was offered in evidence. Respondent testified that he has not completed the PTI program. He expected to finish in October 1990. He has not yet paid the fine; he indicates he intends to borrow this money from his parents since he is not currently employed.

Concerning the details of his offense, respondent testified that he had the cocaine on his person on October 3, 1989, knowingly. He said that he did not purchase it on site, but that he had brought it from home. He testified that some of his co-workers at Caesar's had suggested using cocaine to him as a way of staying awake. He testified that he had the cocaine on the premises with him to use after work in case he was tired to keep him awake for the drive home. He indicated that prior to October 3, 1989, he had used the substance "quite a few times" before and had commenced this practice following an automobile accident in April 1989, wherein he had fallen asleep at the wheel and smashed into the rear end of another vehicle. He further testified that he did not use the substance with social friends or family members. Although his former wife is aware of the pending charges, respondent has concealed the truth from his 13 year old son. "If my son ever found out it would kill me; I told him I got laid off," respondent testified. Respondent is 44 years old, he currently resides with his parents in Philadelphia.

Respondent's 13-year old son lives with his former wife. Although respondent and his former wife have been divorced since 1980, they are currently attempting to reconcile; in this regard respondent has consulted psychiatrist Charlotte L. Blyn, M.D. Dr. Blyn's June 4, 1990 letter to Richard Goldstein, respondent's attorney, was marked as R-1 in evidence. It provides in pertinent part:

> Mr. John Fogarino first consulted me, together with his wife - Amelia, in May 1990 for problems related to their marital relationship. Upon reviewing their initial history, it became apparent that Mr. Fogarino was highly anxious, especially in certain situations. Because of his need for a good performance record and his fear of not doing so, his level of anxiety became heightened. This is especially so when he is concerned about his relationship with his wife.
> Both Mr. and Mrs. Fogarino are currently under treatment and expect to continue. They are both highly motivated and a good prognosis is expected. At this time they are being seen jointly in weekly psychotherapy. However, it may be necessary to also see them on an individual basis.

A second letter from Dr. Blyn addressed To Whom It May Concern, dated June 13, 1990, was marked R-2 in evidence. It provides:

> Mr. Fogarino is in psychotherapy with me for an Adult Attention Disorder. This is a condition which has been present since childhood; however, it has only recently been diagnosed. Because of this disorder, Mr. Fogarino might easily be led into activities without considering the consequences.
> In addition to psychotherapy, this is a disorder which requires medication also. He is currently taking the prescribed medication and has shown improvement in his condition.

Respondent indicated that working as a waiter involved contact with casino patrons and guests. In general, he testified that patrons usually paid their own bill at the cash register; however, occasionally respondent would take the payment to the cashier for patrons. Respondent testified that he had no work-related problems and that he had encountered no disciplinary problems within the nine and one-half years he served as a waiter at Caesar's and the Taj Mahal. He indicated that the pension plan in which he is enrolled through the union requires 10 years to vest; respondent needs an additional 500 hours to vest his pension. He testified that Mark Clemency, his supervisor at Sinbad's Seafood Restaurant, told him that he was welcome back at any time his registration was restored.

Respondent futher testified that he did not think he was addicted to cocaine and that he has not gone to Narcotic's Anonymous or sought counselling for drug addiction. He testified that he has been drug free since his arrest and that he left Caeaer's to go to the Taj Mahal on his own to remove himself from associates who use drugs. He testified that he is not aware of anyone employed at the Taj Mahal who is involved with drugs. To satisfy his community service requirement, respondent is coaching for the Delaware Valley Baseball Little League, an activity which he has been engaged in for a number of years.

After his arrest, respondent assisted Detective Silver by advising him about a sports betting operation which was being conducted in Caesar's. Respondent called this betting operation to the detective's attention after the detective advised him that his case would be looked upon more favorably if he cooperated with the authorities. Respondent acknowledged that he was aware of the sports betting operation prior to his arrest and had not brought it to the attention of the authorities. Detective Silver testified that respondent has been very helpful to him in conducting his investigations.

With respect to the within proceedings, respondent said that he felt that he had suffered enough through his parents' finding out about his arrest and the substantial loss of income and financial benefits. He testified that he knows his conduct was a mistake but "to take everything away is a little harsh."

APPLICABLE LAW AND DISCUSSION

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86 provides that a casino employee is disqualified from licensure on the basis of:

> c. The conviction of the applicant, or of any person required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license, of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be:
>
> (1) Any of the following offenses under the "New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice,"...(offenses listed)

N.J.S.A. 5:12-91 provides that the Casino Control Commission may revoke, suspend, limit or otherwise restrict the registration of a casino hotel employee upon the finding that the registrant is disquailified on the basis of the criteria recited in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86.

N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10 (possession of a controlled dangerous substance) is not one of the offenses listed in subsection (1) of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c; accordingly, subsection (2) is the portion of statute relevant to a determination of the within matter. The analytical approach to be taken under subsection (2) in determining whether a particular offense requires the conclusion that licensure of the applicant would be inimical to the policies of the act was described in some detail by the Casino Control Commission in Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1986). Quoting from their previous decision, In the matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, Docket Number 79-CL-1 (Commission Decision February 26, 1979), the Commission said:

> Whether an offense is "inimical" to the Act and to legalized gaming is a question which can only be resolved in the circumstances of each case. The nature of the offense, the events surrounding it, including any mitigating or aggravating factors, the remoteness of the offense and the offender's conduct since the offense to the present are all matters to be considered. Without limiting the notion of what is "inimical" to the Act or gaming, it would appear to encompass those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations.

In Davis the Commission explained that the concept of rehabilitation under N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(d) specifically applies only to a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in the Act as disqualification critera. The Commission noted, however, that many of the factors that are considered upon a claim of rehabilitation are included in the inimical analysis and generally observed that the notion of rehabilitation is subsumed in the inimical analysis. Davis, supra, at 314. Accordingly, to determine whether respondent's offense on October 3, 1989, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) on the casino premises, warrants the conclusion that his continued licensure and registration are inimical to the policies of the Act the facts of the present matter need to be assessed in the context of the rehabilitation critera. The enumerated factors in section 91(d) which apply to casino hotel employees' registrations are:

(1) The nature and duties of the registrant's position;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

Respondent's job as a waiter involves direct casino patron contact and interaction. He occasionally handles patrons' money when he takes their food checks and payment to the cashier for them. Respondent's offense was a serious one; this country is in the midst of a war against drugs. Drug abuse is a major problem which threatens the very fabric of our society. Respondent's offense was among the worst in this regard since by his own admission he was not an addict, unable to help himself, but rather a licensed employee who knowingly, willfully, and purposely chose to engage in unlawful conduct "quite a few times." Additional aggravating factors include the fact that he possessed the controlled dangerous substance on the casino premises and that he used the substance "to stay awake" while he was operating an automobile. Operating an automobile under the influence of drugs is an offense which threatens the safety and well-being not only of respondent but also of law abiding citizens using our highways. Furthermore, although respondent states that he realizes that his conduct was a "mistake" I am not persuaded that respondent recognizes the serious nature of his conduct. Although he testified that he told his psychiatrist, Dr. Blyn, about his use of cocaine, R-1 and R-2 in evidence reflect that respondent consulted Dr. Blyn for marital counselling rather than for assistance with his drug problem. Respondent is 44 years old; accordingly, innocence and youth cannot be considered as mitigating circumstances or contributing factors to engaging in unlawful conduct. Furthermore, this offense occurred only last October; respondent is still enrolled in the PTI program. He has yet to satisfy his $1050 fine. By his own testimony he has not complied with the employment requirement of his pretrial intervention program and his community service efforts are nothing more than coaching Little League Baseball, something which he had been doing prior to his offense anyway. At best, it would be premature to conclude that respondent has atoned and reformed. For all of the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that respondent has engaged in conduct which indicates that his continued licensure and registration are inimical to the policies expressed in the Casino Control Act which requires, so far as practicable, the exculsion from participation of persons with known criminal records, habits or associations. N.J.S.A. 5:12-1(b)(7).

Whether respondent has demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the necessary good character, honesty and integrity for licensure as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)(2) and 90(b) is a question which cannot be answered in the affirmative given the foregoing inimical analysis. Given the foregoing conclusions, it is also not necessary to decide whether the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(d)* are applicable to offenses under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2), although it appears that the language "enumerated" probably applies only to the offenses specifically listed under subsection c(1). The only issue remaining for determination, therefore, is whether respondent should be permitted to retain his hotel employee registration pursuant to the waiver provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(e). That statute provides:

*Which identifies as a disqualifying criterion: "Current prosecution or pending charges in any jurisdiction of the applicant or of any person who is required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license, for any of the offenses enumerated in subsection c. of this section; provided, however, that at the request of the applicant or the person charged, the commission shall defer decision upon such application during the pendency of such charge;"

Respondent's argument in this regard relates primarily to the effect revocation of his registration will have on his pension benefits. Respondent asserts that he needs to work an additional 500 hours to achieve the required ten years of service for his pension to vest. Although he acknowledged that employment opportunities exist at non-casino hotels, he asserted that Atlantic City has a different pension plan from the pension plan provided through the union to non-casino hotel employees. He also stated that if he does not go back to work within a certain amount of time he will lose the nine and one-half years credit he currently has in the pension system. Respondent did not indicate how long he has to return to work in a covered position and perhaps there are other options which respondent did not explore or explain on the record, such as transferring his nine and one-half years credit to another system. In any event, although the potential loss of pension benefits is regrettable, standing alone it does not provide a reason for waiving respondent's disqualification at this time. In Div. of Gaming v. Crumble, 12 N.J.A.R. 191, 205-206, the Casino Control Commission explained:

> As a standard for a 91(e) waiver, "interests of justice" necessarily includes consideration of the hardship that revocation would visit upon the respondent. Hardship is not alone determinative, for virtually every revocation can reasonably be expected to result in difficult consequences. Nevertheless, the degree of hardship, viewed always in the light of the policies of the Act and the purposes those policies are intended to further, is a relevant concern that requires our attention.

In that case, although the Commission noted its reluctance to exercise its waiver authority in drug related cases, the Commission concluded that because of Mr. Crumble's extraordinary efforts to reform, his was "an exceptional case." Mr. Crumble had presented persuasive evidence that he had gone "that extra mile" and had "pushed hard to get his life together" and had done all the things that show a very pro-social, law-abiding lifestyle, and not just for the sake of the Intensive Supervision Program in which he was required to participate as a condition for release from prison. No such extraordinary evidence was offered in the within matter and accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the circumstances of this case do not warrant exercising the extraordinary remedy of waiver.

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that respondent's casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration are hereby REVOKED. It is further ORDERED that respondent is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any license, registration, qualification or approval required under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Record Closed: December 8, 1989 Decided: September 19, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter concerns the complaint of the Division of Gaming Enforcement filed with the Casino Control Commission on March 10, 1986, seeking revocation of the respondent's casino employee license, based upon the respondent's arrest on August 23, 1985, for possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana under 25 grams), contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(4), and comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(4). This charge against the respondent was dismissed in the Atlantic City Municipal Court on February 6, 1989.

These are the issues:

1. Has the respondent committed acts which constitute the offense of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana under 25 grams), contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(4), and comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(4), and if so, would his continued licensure as a casino employee be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.) and to casino operations, pursuant to section 86c(2) of the Act, even if such conduct was not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this state, as permitted by section 86g of the Act.

2. Has the respondent established by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for casino employee licensure, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The respondent requested a hearing concerning the Division's complaint, but proceedings were deferred pursuant to section 86d of the Casino Control Act during the pendency of charges in the Atlantic City Municipal Court. Upon dismissal of the charges on February 6, 1989, the respondent moved before the Casino Control Commission for an order dismissing the Division's complaint.

On May 4, 1989, the Commission denied the respondent's motion to dismiss the complaint and the Commission then transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law on May 9, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A telephone prehearing conference was conducted on August 18, 1989, and the hearing was then held as scheduled in Atlantic City, New Jersey, on December 8, 1989. The record closed on that date. Issuance of this initial decision was delayed because of my heavy caseload, exacerbated by illness requiring my absence from the office for an extended period.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The material facts in this matter are essentially undisputed. The respondent is 37 years old. He and his family reside in Northfield, New Jersey. The respondent holds casino employee license number 02641-22.

On August 23, 1985, the respondent was working as an electrical shop foreman at Resorts Hotel and Casino. He had been employed there since 1975, which predated casino operations. New Jersey State Police Detective Sergeant Richard Loufik testified that an investigation concerning narcotics led to execution of a search warrant at Resorts' basement electrical shop on August 23, 1985.

According to Detective Sergeant Loufik, the respondent was not the initial focus of the investigation. However, he entered the electrical shop during execution of the warrant and he was told that the warrant covered all who were present. When the respondent was searched, a manila envelope containing marijuana was found in his back pocket, and a rolled marijuana cigarette was found in his wallet. The respondent admitted ownership of the marijuana and told the detective that it was obtained at his brother-in-law's party. The total weight of the marijuana was 4.77 grams.

The respondent was placed under arrest and advised of his Miranda rights. Detective Sergeant Loufik signed a municipal court complaint charging the respondent with possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana under 25 grams), contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(4). The Complaint was admitted into evidence at Exhibit P-1. The detective sergeant testified that the respondent had not been involved in the purpose for which the warrant had been obtained. His involvement had been simply that he walked into the room while the search was in progress. According to the detective sergeant, he received at least one trial notice concerning the municipal court proceeding, but the proceeding was postponed. It is undisputed that the matter was never prosecuted and it was dismissed by Municipal Court Judge Bruce F. Weekes pursuant to rule 7:4-2(h), on February 6, 1989.

Testifying on his own behalf, the respondent candidly acknowledged that he had concealed the marijuana on his person. He stated that he never took the marijuana out of his pocket or wallet while he was at work. Although he acknowledged that he did smoke marijuana elsewhere at that time in his life, he credibly denied that he ever smoked marijuana at Resorts. The respondent explained that as an electrician who regularly worked with high voltage electricity, it would not be possible for him to perform his job safely if he were under the influence of drugs.

The respondent testified that he had purchased the marijuana from someone who was also at a party for his brother-in-law. The only reason that he had brought the marijuana with him to work was so that he could give it away to a fellow employee. The respondent had even put that employee's name on the envelope. The respondent testified sincerely that it was foolish to have brought the envelope to work and he realizes that he made a big mistake which will never be repeated. He has not had marijuana or any other drug in his possession since his arrest because he realizes that there is more to life than being high. The respondent stated that he totally rejects drugs, and he would not use any alcohol if it would affect his performance.

While employed at Resorts, the respondent satisfactorily completed vocational classes in advanced heating and air conditioning and black seal fireman (Exhibits R-2 and R-3). The respondent was nominated for employee of the month at Resorts in 1981 and 1984 (Exhibits R-4 and R-5), and he received the employee of the month award for May 1984 (Exhibit R-6). Nothwithstanding his excellent work record at Resorts, the respondent was asked to resign following his arrest on August 23, 1985.

After leaving his employment at Resorts, the respondent worked at the Tropicana Casino Hotel for about six months. However, he was laid off from that job. The respondent testified that he then went to work as a construction electrician for Femcor, a Federal Aviation Administration subcontractor. Letters of appreciation from the FAA commending the respondent's outstanding performance were admitted into evidence as Exhibits R-7 and R-8. According to the respondent, he is in the process of trying to pass the New Jersey exam which would permit him to become an electrical contractor. He also noted that he has had no arrests since August 1985. His only other arrest occured about 15 years ago when he received a conditional discharge for smoking a marijuana cigarette.

The respondent testified sincerely that his possession of marijuana in August 1985 had been totally wrong and he accepts full responsibility for it. It is a mistake he will always have to live with. It is his desire to return to the casino industry, because he enjoyed his work there. The respondent also noted that he performs some electrical work for his neighbors. He does not charge for this service and the neighbors pay only for the materials. He is willing to give his time for this purpose.

Several witnesses testified on the respondent's behalf. Joseph F. Taggart is an electrician for the TropWorld Casino Hotel. He has known the respondent for about 15 years. He characterized the respondent as an excellent electrician. According to Mr. Taggart, he has never heard anything negative about the respondent's honesty and integrity, either at work or in the community.

Helen Cohen is a neighbor of the respondent. He has performed some electrical work for her, without charge. In her opinion, the respondent is a nice and honest person. Michael Kopp testified that he has known the respondent for 15 years. They regularly socialize and he has never seen the respondent use drugs. Mr. Kopp considers the respondent to be a generous and honest man and he treasures the respondent's friendship.

The respondent's wife, Theresa Garcia, also testified. Noting that her husband is a good provider and has been steadily employed, Mrs. Garcia described the respondent as more mature than he was at the time of his arrest in 1985. She testified credibly that the respondent has not used any drugs since that time.

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to section 1b(8) of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), participation in casino operations as a licensee or registrant under the Act is deemed to be a revocable privilege conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee or registrant. Section 129(1) of the Act authorizes the revocation of any license of any person for the commission of any offense or violation under the Act which would disqualify such person from holding his credential.

Section 90e of the Act provides that a casino employee license shall be denied to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of the Act. Pursuant to sections 86c(2) and 86g of the Act, the Commission may revoke the credential of any licensee who has committed any offense which indicates that continued licensure would be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations, even if such conduct was not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this state. In this matter, it is undisputed that the respondent was arrested on August 23, 1985, and charged with the disorderly persons offense of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana under 25 grams), contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(4), and comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(4). The respondent has in fact admitted that on that date he had in his possession 4.77 grams of marijuana.

Does the respondent's commission of the offense of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana under 25 grams) render his continued casino employee licensure inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act and casino operations, pursuant to section 86c(2) of the Act? The Commission has held that the rehabilitation factors set forth in section 90h of the Act must be considered in any case involving a licensee under the Act where section 86c(2) disqualification is at issue. Stated in another way, the rehabilitation factors are an integral part of the inimicality analysis. In the Matter of the Application of Horizon Air, Inc., For a Casino Industry License, dkt. no. 87-CSI-10 (Comm. decision September 1, 1988).

Section 90h sets forth eight factors which should be considered in determining whether rehabilitation has been affirmatively demonstrated. These include the nature and duties of the position involved; the nature and seriousness of the conduct; the circumstances under which it occurred; the date of the conduct and the actor's age when it was committed; whether the offense was isolated or repeated; social conditions contributing to the conduct; and any evidence of rehabilitation following the conduct.

The respondent is now 37 years old. His offense occurred five years ago, when he was 32. Although the respondent candidly acknowledged the use of marijuana recreationally away from the work place, he credibly denied ever using marijuana at work. The reason for his arrest at Resorts Casino Hotel was his possession of a very small amount of marijuana concealed on his person. Although his possession of a controlled dangerous substance in a licensed casino cannot be condoned, it is apparent that there was no relationship between the possession and the respondent's duties as an electrician under his non-gaming casino employee license.

Given the respondent's age at the time of the offense, it cannot be said that youth played a facter in his conduct. However, his use of marijuana away from the licensed casino premises at that time indicates a lack of mature judgment. The respondent has since had an opportunity to reflect carefully on his misconduct and has totally rejected the use of drugs. He has steadily held employment in a responsible position as a construction electrician. The fine quality of his performance has resulted in commendations from the Federal Aviation Administration. In addition, the respondent has prepared to take an examination which would afford him State licensure as an electrical contractor. Finally, it is apparent from the testimony of witnesses on the respondent's behalf that he is held in high regard and as a person of honesty and integrity by those who know him.

In light of all of the circumstances examined above, I CONCLUDE that the respondent's continued participation as a casino licensee would not justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations. Therefore, I further CONCLUDE that the respondent has not committed an offense which would indicate that his continued licensure would be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations, within the meaning of section 86c(2) of the Casino Control Act.

Pursuant to section 80a of the Casino Control Act, it is the affirmative responsibility of each applicant and licensee to establish by clear and convincing evidence his individual qualifications for licensure. Among these qualifications is the requirement that an applicant for a casino employee license demonstrate that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act. Those who know the respondent have expressed their trust in him. Based upon all of the foregoing evidence, I CONCLUDE that the respondent has sustained his burden of establishing by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, within the meaning of sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Casino Control Act. Therefore, I further CONCLUDE that the Division's complaint seeking revocation of the respondent's casino employee license should be dismissed.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement against Robert A. Garcia be DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

TINAENETTA M. GOINES,

Respondent.

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of July 18, 1990,

IT IS on this 9th day of August 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> We concur with and adopt the Administrative Law Judge's factual findings and his conclusion that the respondent's continued licensure would be inimical to the policies of the Act. However, we reject the Administrative Law Judge's erroneous reference to respondent's offense as a listed statutory disqualifier. (See Initial decision at p. 13). The offense committed by the respondent, theft by unlawful taking (fourth degree), is disqualifying pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(2) and -86(g). Because the offense is fourth degree, it is not a statutory disqualifier under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(1).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent's casino employee license is revoked substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Tinaenetta M. Goines is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any license, registration, qualification or approval under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

Record Closed: May 10, 1990 Decided: May 24, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the revocation of Tinaenetta M. Goines's casino employee license no. 71257-21, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90 and N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1). The Division sought revocation of the respondent's license by reason of its contention that the respondent had committed a criminal offense which rendered continued licensure to be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act (Act), pursuant to section 86c(2), by means of section 86g, and therefore, she lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The respondent had obtained a casino employee license from the Commission so she could be employed as a pit clerk at the Sands Hotel and Casino. By complaint to the Commission, filed July 13, 1988, the Division objected to the respondent's continued licensure, asserting that the respondent had committed the offense of theft by unlawful taking (fourth degree), in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(2), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by section 86g. The Division also objected pursuant to section 89b(2). Based upon the complaint, the Commission notified the respondent on July 15, 1988, that she had the right to a hearing, and that failure to respond within 15 days could result in her license being revoked. By application dated July 25, 1988, which was received by the Commission on July 28, 1988, the respondent requested a hearing. By letter dated February 28, 1989, which was received by the Commission on March 6, 1989, the respondent requested a deferral of Commission action in this case, pursuant to section 86d, until resolution of the criminal charges. This request for a deferral was granted by the Commission. On October 20, 1989, the respondent notified the Commission that the charges had been dismissed following her successful completion of a Pre-Trial Intervention Program and she requested that her hearing request be activated. On October 25, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on November 1, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before me on December 5, 1989. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether respondent's continued licensure is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c because she is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

B. Whether respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated within section 90b.

A hearing was held on May 10, 1990, in the Municipal Courtroom, Absecon City Hall, Absecon, New Jersey, after which the record closed.

On April 24, 1988, the respondent, Tinaenetta M. Goines, was employed as a slot booth cashier at the Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino. At one point during her shift, she entered the slot booth of a new slot booth cashier, B. Materio, in order to allow Ms. Materio to go on a break. While in the slot booth, the respondent removed $200 in coupons from Ms. Materio's cash drawer. Thereafter, the respondent placed the $200 in coupons in her cash drawer, and she removed two one-hundred-dollar bills from her cash drawer. She placed the $200 in her pocket. [P-1 & P-3]

At the end of the shift, it was discovered that Ms. Materio's cash drawer was $200 short. The slot cashier manager, Linda Thibault, along with Trump Security Investigator, Carol Waldron, questioned the respondent about the shortage, and the respondent admitted taking the $200 in coupons from Ms. Materio's cash drawer, placing them in her drawer, and removing $200 in cash. Ms. Thibault then escorted the respondent to the State Police investigators in the Division office at the Trump Plaza. While walking up stairwell six to the Division's office, the respondent removed the two one-hundred-dollar bills from her pocket and dropped them in the stairwell.

Upon being questioned by the State Police, the respondent admitted the theft and provided a written statement which is P-1 in evidence. She also stated that she dropped the money in stairwell six. She told the police that the reason she took the coupons from Ms. Materio's cash drawer is that Ms. Materio was a new employee who had only worked there for one week, and the shortage would look like an honest mistake by a new employee. [P-3] The respondent stated at the hearing that the reason she took the coupons was that she needed some money. There were no pressing social conditions; she just wanted to have some money.

A complaint was issued in the Atlantic City Municipal Court on April 24, 1988, charging the respondent with theft by unlawful taking in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 (P-5). Thereafter, the matter was presented to the Atlantic County Grand Jury which returned an indictment against the respondent charging her in Indictment No. 88-06-1505-ACP with one count of theft by unlawful taking. On July 22, 1988, Superior Court Judge Robert Neustadter approved the respondent's entry into the Pre-Trial Intervention Program and placed her on probation for six months until March 1, 1989. She was also ordered to serve 50 hours of community service and to pay $200 in restitution. [P-4] The respondent successfully completed her probationary period and the charges were dismissed.

The respondent is 21 years old. She was raised in Atlantic City by her mother and father along with her two brothers and a sister. She was a cheerleader and was on the softball team at Pleasantville High School. She graduated from high school in 1987.

She obtained her casino employee license in June 1987, and became employed at the Sands Hotel and Casino as a pit clerk. She resigned her position because of disagreements with her supervisor. She then became employed as a change person and slot booth cashier at the Trump Plaza. She was fired on April 24, 1988 as a result of the charges in this case. During the summer of 1988, she worked at Resorts International Hotel and Casino as a timekeeper; however, she was terminated from this position when her casino employee license was suspended by the Commission. In February 1989, she became employed by Northeastern Water Resources doing telemarketing. She resigned this position in October 1989, and she is presently unemployed.

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the respondent's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident nor her current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess her credibility. Initially, her position in this matter must be recognized. As the respondent and the holder of a casino employee license, she has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the respondent's demeanor, the plausibility of her testimony, the manner in which she participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appears that the respondent testified truthfully in substantial respect. She admitted her misconduct and described the underlying circumstances. She denied, however, telling the State Police that she removed the coupons from Ms. Materio's cash drawer because Ms. Materio was a new employee and that she thought the shortage would be considered a mistake by a new employee. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the respondent's testimony in substantial part.

(2) Any other offense under present New Jersey or federal law which indicates that licensure of the applicant would be inimical to the policy of this act and to casino operations; provided, however, that the automatic disqualification provisions of this subsection shall not apply with regard to any conviction which did not occur within the 10-year period immediately preceding application for licensure and which the applicant demonstrates by clear and convincing evidence does not justify automatic disqualification pursuant to this subsection and any conviction which has been the subject of a judicial order of expungement or sealing;

g. The commission by the applicant or any person who is required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of this section, even if such conduct has not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State. . . .

N.J.S.A. 5:12-89, Licensing of casino key employees, provides in pertinent part:

b. Each applicant must, prior to the issuance of any casino key employee license, produce information, documentation and assurances concerning the following qualification criteria:

. . . .

(2) Each applicant for a casino key employee license shall produce such information, documentation and assurances as may be required to establish by clear and convincing evidence the applicant's good character, honesty and integrity. Such information shall include, without limitation, data pertaining to family, habits, character, reputation, criminal and arrest record, business activities, financial affairs, and business, professional and personal associates, covering at least the 10-year period immediately preceding the filing of the application. In addition, each applicant shall, upon request of the commission or the division, produce letters of reference from law enforcement agencies having jurisdiction in the applicant's place of residence and principal place of business, which letters of reference shall indicate that such law enforcement agencies do not have any pertinent information concerning the applicant, or if such law enforcement agency does have information pertaining to the applicant, shall specify what that information is. If the applicant has been associated with gaming or casino operations in any capacity, position or

. . . .

e. The commission shall deny a casino employee license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of this act.

. . . .

h. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection e. of this section, no applicant shall be denied a casino employee license on the basis of a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria or the commission of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of section 86 of P.L. 1977, c.110 (C. 5:12-86), as specified in subsection g. of that section; provided that the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation. In determining whether the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) establishes that licensure under the Casino Control Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1) provides for the revocation of the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his license." The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking, which constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, and that, accordingly, she is disqualified from continued licensure.

Section 86g provides that a licensee or registrant will be disqualified from licensure and registration because of the commission of any action which would constitute an offense under section 86c, even if there has not been a prosecution for such conduct. Section 86c(2) of the Act is more commonly referred to as the "inimical clause." In In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979), the Commission set forth the criteria to be applied in individual cases when a determination is made as to whether an offense is inimical to the polices of the Act. The Commission stated at page 15:

> The nature of the offense, the events surrounding it, including any mitigating or aggravating factors, the remoteness of the offense and the offender's conduct since the offense to the present are all matters to be considered. Without limiting the notion of what is "inimical" to the Act or to gaming, it would appear to encompass those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations.

The Legislature, when it authorized the establishment of casino gaming in Atlantic City, and provided for the licensure, regulation and taxation thereof, enumerated specific policy considerations which appear to be directly related to the intent and purpose of the inimical clause. More specifically, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6) and (7) state categorically that the successful regulation and control of state casino activities depends upon the confidence of the public "in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations," and by the exclusion from participation in casino gaming of "persons with known criminal records, habits or associations" who could threaten the integrity of the gaming and business operations.

The significance of strict regulation of all phases of the casino industry was emphasized by the Supreme Court in Knight v. City of Margate, 86 N.J. 374, 381 (1981):

> At the very heart of the public policy embraced by the new law is "the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations." N.J.S.A. 5:12-1(b)(6). Related directly to this purpose, the Legislature stated that "the regulatory provisions . . . are designed to extend strict State regulation to all persons . . . practices and associations related to" casinos and that "comprehensive law-enforcement supervision . . . is further designed to contribute to the public confidence and trust in the efficancy and integrity of the regulatory process."

In In the Matter of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union Local 54, 203 N.J. Super. 297, 316-317 (App. Div. 1985), certif. den. 102 N.J. 352 (1985), the Appellate Division held that "inimical" means "adverse to the policy of the act and gaming operations," i.e., contrary to strict regulatory controls over all facets of casino activities.

The Division contends that the respondent was charged with a fourth degree theft offense which is not listed as a disqualifier under section 86c. The charges were subsequently dismissed because the respondent successfully completed the Pre-Trial Intervention Program. As this offense is not listed as a disqualifier under section 86c(1), the Division asserts that this alleged offense is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(2) and section 86g, despite the fact that such act was not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this state.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, Theft by unlawful taking or disposition, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Movable property. A person is guilty of theft if he unlawfully takes, or exercises unlawful control over, movable property of another with purpose to deprive him thereof.

In this case, the respondent while in the course of her employment, wrongfully removed $200 in coupons from another employee's cash drawer, placed the coupons in her own cash drawer, and wrongfully removed $200 in cash from her own cash drawer which was the property of the Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino. She indicated that she simply wanted some money.

CONCLUSION

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(3), the offense constitutes a crime of the fourth degree.

Recently, in State of New Jersey, Dept. of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Michael P. Waters, OAL DKT. CCC 3933-86, decided by the Commission (June 12, 1987), the Commission stated at 2-3 that:

> A distinction must be drawn between the rehabilitation from a section 86(c)(1) or (3) disqualifying offense pursuant to sections 90(h) or 91(d) of the Act and rehabilitation as an aspect of the inimical analysis. In the former situation, disqualification is established once it is shown that the respondent committed an enumerated offense. The respondent is then afforded the opportunity to affirmatively demonstrate his rehabilitation from that disqualification. It is well established that, consistent with other affirmative licensing criteria, the respondent must prove his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. Application of Richard Romanishin for a Casino Employee License, Docket No. 84-

> EA-85 (Commission order, May 23, 1985); Application of Chester R. Brathwaite for a Casino Employee License, Docket No. A-4252-82T3 *Unpublished opinion reversing Commission decision, January 23, 1984).
> However, unlike a section 86(c)(1) or (3) situation, disqualification pursuant to section 86(c)(4) is not established upon demonstrating that the respondent committed the offense in question. Such a determination can only be made after considering all the circumstances surrounding the offense: its nature, its remoteness, and the offender's conduct subsequent to the offense, i.e., essentially the same factors which bear upon rehabilitation. Application of Donna Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (Commission decision December 27, 1985); State v. Theodore Williams, Docket No. 84-288 (Commission order May 1, 1987).

The Commission concluded that if the Division establishes a case for the respondent's disqualification, it is "then incumbent upon the respondent to show that she was rehabilitated; that is, the burden of going forward with evidence (but not the ultimate burden of proof), had shifted."

> Rehabilitation under section 90(h) (casino employee license) and section 91(d) (casino hotel employee registration) does not apply to disqualifying convictions under section 86(c)(4). By their express terms, these rehabilitation provisions apply only to ". . . a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria." Nevertheless, many of the factors that are considered upon a claim of rehabilitation are included within the inimical analysis.

The Commission indicated that "it has been generally observed that the notion of rehabilitation is subsumed in the inimical analysis (and) . . . the inimical analysis is substantially similar to the concept of rehabilitation." The Commission concluded that:

> The salient point to be made here is that we consider rehabilitation factors before concluding that the offense in question is or is not inimical under section 86(c)(4). Because the rehabilitation provisions are subsumed within the inimical analysis, it should never be necessary to determine the merits of a claim of rehabilitation after concluding that a given offense is inimical pursuant to section 86(c)(4). [Id. at 314] [footnote omitted]

The eight specific criteria enumerated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made are:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Tinaenetta M. Goines is a casino licensee and was employed as a change person and slot booth cashier. As such, she does have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities and does come in contact with casino patrons. She is also directly responsible for maintaining money belonging to the casino.

Second, the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking, on one occasion while employed in the casino industry. Because the offense is a listed disqualifier under section 86c(1), it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in its appropriate context. The respondent was employed as a slot booth cashier. This is a position of trust and responsibility. The respondent used her position in order to remove $200 in coupons from another employees cash drawer while the respondent was relieving the new employee. This was a conscious theft as the respondent hoped the shortage would simply be considered a mistake by a new employee. The respondent thus knowingly violated her position of trust and used her employment in order to steal $200 from her casino employer.

Fourth, the respondent's misconduct occurred in 1988, when it ceased.

Fifth, the respondent was 19 years old at the time of the offense. I believe immaturity was a factor in this case.

Sixth, the respondent's misconduct was isolated in nature. While visiting an aunt in Maryland three years ago, she was arrested when the house was raided when the police were looking for a fugitive. She was charged along with the rest of the inhabitants with harboring a fugitive, and various weapon and drug offenses. All charges were thereafter dismissed against the respondent as she was merely visiting her aunt.

Seventh, there were no social conditions in this case which may have contributed to the offense. Respondent merely needed money and she took the money "just to have some money."

Eighth, the respondent is 21 years old and has been off probation for 14 months. She is currently unemployed. She has enrolled in the Job Placement Training Assistance program, and she intends to enroll in Atlantic County College in the fall. She is not active in any community or other organizations. There is little evidence of her rehabilitation other than her stated remorse.

When considering the respondent's conduct as taken in context and the overall nature of her character, I find that the respondent's theft of $200 from her casino employer is sufficient to establish that the continued licensure of the respondent is inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act.

I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the continued licensure of the respondent would be inimical to the polices of the Act, pursuant to section 86c(2), by means of section 86g.

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Ms. Goines was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, her reputation for good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closed. Id. at 296.

It is not readily apparent that the respondent's misconduct was aberrant and that she is otherwise a person of good character, honesty and integrity. The misconduct did involve her licensed employment, and the underlying circumstances do not mitigate the seriousness of the misconduct. In addition, while the respondent has fully accepted responsibility for her misconduct, she has only been off probation for 14 months, she is currently unemployed, and has presented very little evidence concerning her good character, honesty and integrity. Accordingly, I cannot state that the respondent presents no risk to the public nor to the integrity of the gaming industry in this state. The respondent has not earned the privilege of licensure. An examination of the whole person does not clearly and convincingly establish that Ms. Goines is a person of good character, honesty and integrity, and is entirely suitable for licensure in this state. See, Boardwalk Regency Corp..

I CONCLUDE that the respondent has not established, by clear and convincing evidence, her good character, honesty and integrity under section 90b.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division against the respondent is SUSTAINED and that license no. 71257-21 be revoked.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

BEFORE RICHARD J. MURPHY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE, ISSUE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The New Jersey Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint on September 1, 1988 with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86, 89-91, 107-108, 129-130, seeking to revoke respondent Richard L. Goldman's casino employee license number 49064-21, because he was arrested and charged with theft by unlawful taking of $200 from a change booth at the Atlantis Hotel and Casino in June of 1988, while working as a part-time

("breaker") cashier, during his regular employment as a dealer. That charge was subsequently dismissed, after Goldman entered the pretrial intervention program (PTI). He denies that he committed the act of theft. At issue are:

(1) whether the licensee is disqualified from holding a casino employee license under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) and 86g for committing the offense of theft of unlawful taking, which indicates that his licensure would be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations in the State of New Jersey under 86c(2), even if this conduct has not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of the state. (This question of inimicality includes consideration of the factors of rehabilitation as set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h)

(2) whether the licensee can establish by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b, considering the factors of rehabilitation as set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h[1]

Respondent, Steven L. Goldman disputes that he committed the offense of theft by unlawful taking by taking $200 from the change booth at the Atlantis Hotel Casino on June 16, 1988. In the alternative, he argues he has shown rehabilitation and has established his good character, honesty and integrity.

The Division relied on surveillance video tapes of Goldman's action, as well as testimony of several Atlantis employees. The former chief of investigations at the Atlantis Hotel and Casino between 1981 and 1989 was Charles J. Guenther, now the owner of Guenther Detective Agency, who testified that he met with the Atlantis Casino slot

[1] Procedural History: The Casino Control Commission filed this matter with the Office of Administrative Law on December 29, 1988 for a hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., and a prehearing was held on April 6, 1989, with a plenary hearing initially scheduled for June 19, 1989 then adjourned, and rescheduled and held on August 11, 1989. The record closed on September 21, 1989 after receipt of closing arguments and additional documentation, but the due date for submission of the initial decision was extended on several occasions for reasons not related to this case, including backlog cases, stemming from pending public utility matters affecting many New Jersey residents, and finally extended to July 13, 1990. I regret any hardship or inconvenience that this unavoidable delay may have caused the parties.

cashier supervisor on June 15, 1988, concerning five shortages in cash booths that had been reported over a week's span. During that time, Steven L. Goldman was working as a blackjack dealer at the Atlantis, and also as a part-time cashier, and worked in the booths showing shortages on three occasions, including June 7, 1988 (slot booth M $300 shortage), and June 15, 1988, slot booth D, (two shortages of $100). Mr. Guenther testified that the only "common denominator" in these thefts was the respondent and for that reason he was placed on the "E" file list, and subjected to daily video tape surveillance within the casino. Mr. Guenther stated that casino employees were generally aware of video "spot-monitoring" of cashier booths and other locations from several angles from video cameras located in "bubbles" on the ceilings. At approximately 3:36 p.m. on June 16, 1989, Guenther observed the respondent with his right hand in the cash drawer at the location of the largest bills containing ($100 denomination) and, he started watching the monitor closely at 15:37:19 p.m. (3:37:19 or 3 hours 37 minutes and 19 seconds). At the hearing, the video tape was shown and Mr. Guenther, as well as other witnesses including respondent gave their account of it. (P-6 to P-8)

Mr. Guenther stated that he observed what he considered to be the first suspicious move by the respondent at 15:36:33 p.m. (P8), when Goldman put his hands in the cash drawer and slid the top cash drawer forward, which, according to Guenther, was a violation of procedure and an unnecessary motion. He also observed the respondent move the cash drawer back in the drawer, start to crumple some bills, and then stop when a customer came up. Guenther stated that at 15:45:16 p.m. on tape P8, he observed the respondent looking around and then saw his right hand inside the cash drawer near the $100 bills and left hand at the other end of the drawer and concluded that he was "crimping" one or more $100 bills in his right hand, which he then removed (again with his right hand), coughed, and placed in his right hand pants pocket. See, P8 at 15:45:36 p.m.to 15:46:04 p.m. Guenther stated that the respondent subsequently went to the men's room. and the telephones and then went into a second cash booth. Guenther called surveillance. the respondent was read his Miranda rights and asked to empty his pockets, which contained two $100 bills crimped into the pocket, as well as a $50 bill. After the arrest. Guenther called surveillance to close and "audit" the booth and claims that no one entered that booth after the respondent. This is not disputed. As a result of the audit, a $200 cash shortage was found in the booth in which respondent was working, and a partially filled coin-can partially filled was also found in the rear of the booth.

The Division next offered testimony of Frank Grippaldi, formerly in surveillance with the Atlantis Hotel and Casino, before it closed. On June 16, 1988 Mr. Grippaldi was in the monitoring room conducting surveillance on booths "A" and "M", and was asked to monitor the respondent in booth "B", because of prior shortages. Mr. Grippaldi he observed the respondent with his right hand in the cash drawer scratching a section of that drawer, in what he desrcibed as a "crimping" motion, and later saw him again with the right hand in the drawer making a "crumbling" motion. On cross-examination, Mr. Grippaldi stated he saw cash in the respondent's hand coming out of the drawer but the videotape (I FIND) does not clearly show cash visible in respondent's right hand. He also stated that, if cashier's drawer is full, the cashier may put $100 bills in the back of the drawer, and also is allowed to arrange the denominations of the drawer for efficiency. There is no dispute that, on June 16, 1988, the drawer used by respondent in change booth B was arranged, (from the cashier's left to right) with the following denominations: $1; $5; $10; $20; $50; and $100, in the far right section of the drawer, closest to the surveillance cameras.

Policy guidelines adopted by the Atlantis on April 25, 1986 provided the following instructions to cashiers:

1. Display palms of hands to the surveillance camera before and after reaching for a cigarette, purse, pockets, tucking in shirt, etc.

2. Any time a tip is received, the tip (no matter the amount), must be displayed to the surveillance camera before placing the tip into the tip box.

3. A clear plastic purse may be carried into the booth. Contents should be limited to a cigarette container, no more then $3 in change, 1 comb or brush, a limited supply of cosmetics, a small amount of hard candy or cough drops.

4. Under no circumstances should a cashier carry currency on their person while working in a booth or zone. Impressment Team Members may not carry coin/currency on their person between the time they clock in and the time they clock out. Lockers have been assigned the time they clock out. Lockers have been assigned on 1 Mezzanine for the purpose of securing personal belongings.

5. Books, magazines, newspapers, extra articles of cloting, food, soda cans, and chairs are not permitted in the booths.

6. Never pass paper, gum, cigarettes, etc. to anyone outside the booth or visa versa.

7. Cigarettes, purses, candy, personal items, etc. may not be placed inside the cash drawer. (P17) (emphasis added)

The Division who was presented testimony by Irene Morris, former shift manager of the Atlantis Casino, responsible for overseeing procedures and operations in the slot cage. Ms. Morris, who is now employed by the Showboat Hotel Casino, was on duty on June 16, 1988 and observed the respondent. As to overall procedures, she stated that there is no need for cashiers to reach in to the cash drawer while it is not in use, and that they are instructed verbally to keep the cash drawer closed. She felt that the respondent's action in leaning on the drawer and placing his right hand in was a violation of Atlantis procedures. Ms. Morris couldn't testify as to the exact position of the $100 bills in respondent's cash drawer in booth M, but testified that they should be located on the extreme right hand of the drawer. She testified that Mr. Goldman was working that day as a "breaker", spelling other cashiers during breaks. She explained that, at the beginning of each working day, slot booths are "impressed" prior to the cashier assuming the booth by an impressment team, which rotates and pulls coin cans and ensures that all are filled and that nothing is missing. Cashier then enters the booth, counts it down, and signs the sheet that it meets its impressment. In the event that the impressment is then found to be short, the cashier is to call the supervisor and report it. She testified, that during her eight-and-a-half years as supervisor, she has not seen many instances where an impressment or cash count was in error. She was also asked to go down and "count-down" respondent's booth on June 16, 1988, and audit the different denomination bills as well as the coin-cans. She stated that the booth was $200 short, but does not how many coin-cans that shortage might have involved. Booths are not generally counted down when breakers leave the booth, unless they are checking out of the casino at the end of their shift. The breaker cashier also does not go in and assume someone's "impressment," but works out of his or her own drawer, except for a brief periods breaking other cashiers. Ms. Morris had no recollection of who had "manned" change booth B before the respondent's shift, but knew that the "count-down" was performed in the afternoon, after he had left the booth. She could not name the individuals who had impressed Mr. Goldman's booth early in the day. Ms. Morris also testified that shortages were not relatively frequent occurrences change booths, and that most of them occur as a result of human error. Cashiers are instructed not to bring large amounts of money on the job with them, and that they should leave any large sums on hand in lockers available at the casino. The maximum cash allowed to be in the possession of cashiers on the floor is $5, although this was not a formal or written policy and Ms. Morris could not say, for sure, whether Mr. Goldman had knowledge of this $5 maximum.

The fifth witness presented was Aloha Sanders, surveillance supervisor for Atlantis, now working at the Trump Plaza. She was also present in the surveillance monitoring room on June 16, 1986, obeserving the respondent, who was in slot booth B. Based on her observations, Ms. Sanders suspected that respondent had removed $200 cash from the drawer which he took out with his right hand and then placed in his right front pants pocket.

After the hearing, the Division submitted an affidavit from Brian Donahue, Division agent, stating that he had obtained an updated credit bureau file on Mr. Goldman and performed a limited investigation revealing that respondent had filed a chapter seven bankruptcy petition in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania on July 9, 1986 and that a discharge was granted on February 19, 1987. This fact is not disputed by respondent, whose objection to its relevance was overruled.

Respondent Steven Goldman testified, as he had earlier testified before the Casino Control Commission (P-16), that he did not remove $200 from the cashier booth B on June 16, 1986, and that he had with him more than that amount in cash, in anticipation of taking his children to Orlando, Florida several days later. He is divorced (or separated) and is responsible for the support of four children. He had no criminal record before his 1988 arrest, and has had none since. He was admitted to the pretrial intervention program, and the charge of theft by unlawfully taking was dismissed. He had worked at the Atlantis since 1984, was licensed for four games, and also had been placed on various committees, by vote of the dealers. His dual capacity in the Atlantis is as a floor person in blackjack and part-time cashier earns him approximately $28,000 to $32,000 a year, depending on the amount of hours worked. He had no prior incidents or "writeups" during his four years at the Atlantis, beyond the 1988 arrest for unlawful taking. He was not aware of any maximum dollar limit on the amount the cashiers were allowed to carry on duty, and indicated that he had approximately $319 with him on June 16, 1990, to be used for his childrens' trip to Orlando. He denied any knowledge of written policies by Atlantis prohibiting him from putting his hands in his pocket while in the change booth, and denies he was ever informed of such a policy during his brief training (which he described as a "ten minute crash course") as a part-time "breaker" cashier. He emphatically denies taking the $200 or any money from change booth B on June 16, 1988, or from any other change booth on any other occasion.

Goldman admits that he was terminated by the Tropicana on July 21, 1988, (from which he had obtained employment after leaving the Atlantis) on grounds that he had failed to disclose his arrest and charge of theft by unlawfully taking at the Atlantis. The official reason for termination was falsification, (P-15), but respondent denies that he was attempting to mislead anyone and did not consider himself to have been placed under arrest at the Atlantis on June 16, 1988. As to his actions in leaning on the change booth drawer, he admitted that he thought it was wrong to do that, but did so because he was exhausted from working two jobs. He knew that, as a dealer, he was supposed to keep his hands constantly in view of the camera and to "clear them" (show them to the camera), if his hands moved out of camera range. He worked as many as 105 hours through some seven day periods to support himself and his family and claimed that he was often in a state of extreme exhaustion. He arranged his cash drawer as a breaker by putting $100 bills behind the $20s in the back of the far right end of the drawer, but denies crumpling or taking any cash from that drawer.

Having observed the surveillance video tapes submitted by the Division of the respondent's actions on June 16, 1988, and having heard the testimony of the respondent, and the Division's witness as to these tapes and other matters, I FIND as a matter of fact that the tapes, in particular P-8 at 15:45:25 to 15:46:05 show the respondent Steven L. Goldman crumpling $100 bills with his right hand in the cash drawer and then removing those bills and placing them in his right hand pocket. The bills are not clearly visible in his hand on the tape, but he can be seen crumpling or rolling the bills, and two one hundred dollar bills were later found in his wallet. In light of the unmistakable evidence of the video tape and physical evidence, respondent's denial is not credible, as a matter of fact.

I FURTHER FIND that respondent Steven L. Goldman intentionally falsified information to the Tropicana Hotel on his employment application and that he was terminated from that position because of his falsification. (P-14 and P-15). There is no dispute of fact on this point.

Respondent offers a number of letters of reference as to his good character, honesty and integrity, including ones from his Rabbi, current employers, and landlord, who is also an employer.

There is no dispute as to the above facts, except as otherwise noted and found, and I so FIND.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

At issue is whether Steven L. Goldman is disqualified from holding a license under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c2 and 86g for commission of the offense of theft by unlawful taking, and, beyond that, whether he has established by clear and convincing evidence that he possess the requiste good character, honesty and integrity required by N.J.S.A. 5:89b(2) and 90b.

Both determination of inimicality under 86c2 and of good character, honesty and integrity under 89b2, 90b, require consideration of the factors of rehabilitation, as set forth under N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. See, Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301, 314 (1985); Dunston v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, decided April 10, 1990, A-197-89T3:

> [i]n determining whether the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his [or her] rehabilitation the Commission shall consider the following factors:
>
> (1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;
>
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
>
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
>
> (4) The date of the offense or conduct;
>
>
> (6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isoloated or repeated incident;
>
> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, couneling or psyciatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, with recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under the supervision. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h [emphasis added].

The Division argues that it has established by a preponderance of the believable evidence that the respondent committed the act of theft against the Atlantis Hotel Casino on June 16, 1988 and that respondent's testimony is not credible.

Respondent characterizes the video tape evidence as inconclusive and not sufficient to support the finding that he committed the alleged act of theft. He also notes that he completed the pretrial intervention program and that the indictment against him was consequently dismissed (J-1). He attacks the testimony of Investigator Guenther, Frank Grippaldi, and Irene Morris, as riddled with inconsistencies and inaccuracies, and notes that no positive identification was made by him, on the record, by the State's witnesses. He argues that, as a full time blackjack dealer, he was not subject to the same regulations or given the same training as regular (full-time) that of change booth cashiers, and, in any event, the only regulation was a suggestion by the shift manager that cashiers not carry large quantities of cash on their person. Respondent characterizes cash shortages in change booths as a relatively common occurrence in the casino and argues that he would not jeopardize a position of earning approximately $28,000 to $30,000 a year for a few hundred dollars. He cites his otherwise excellent work record in the industry, which the Division does not dispute, except for his dismissal by the Tropicana for falsification on his employment application. In the alternative, respondent argues that he is fully rehabilitated, within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h, and should be allowed to continue to earn a living in the casino industry, for which he holds a training in four games.

On the basis of the above finding of fact as to respondent's action on June 16, 1988, I CONCLUDE, as a matter of law, that he committed conduct amounting to theft by unlawful taking (fourth degree) contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 by removing $200 cash from a change booth at the Atlantis Hotel and Casino. I FURTHER CONCLUDE, considering all of the factors of rehabilitation, that his continued licensure would be inimical under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) and that his license should be revoked. The factors of his rehabilitation, which are relevant both to the question of inimicality and good character, honesty and integrity, are discussed below:

(1) Nature and duties of the position: The positions of dealer, as well as that as cashier, are at the very heart of a casino's gaming operation and require much contact with patrons and accountability for funds entrusted;

(2) Nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct: The conduct of theft by unlawful taking of cash from the cashier's booth strikes at the very core of the casino's financial operation;

(3) The circumstances of the conduct: Beyond the respondent's denial of the conduct, which I do not find to be credible, given the video tape evidence catching him red-handed in the act, he offers no mitigating circumstances and I find none in the record. There is evidence of a financial motive, in the form of his recent bankruptcy and his heavy support obligations for his four children;

(4) Date of offense for conduct: June 16, 1988;

(5) The age of the applicant; 42 years of age;

(6) Isolated or repeated conduct: There is no conclusive evidence that the conduct of unlawful taking was repeated by the respondent, although the Division put him under surveillance because of shortages in change booths where he had worked;

(7) Social conditions: Although the respondent advances no social conditions, in that he does not admit the offense, he has heavy financial obligations and his relatively recent bankruptcy may have played a role in his action;

(8) Evidence of rehabilitation: Respondent offers a number of character references from current employers, as well as recommendations from the casino industry, in which he has not worked for the last two years.

Considering all the above factors, and noting especially the highly sensitive nature of the duties of dealers and cashiers, as well as the extremely serious nature of the offense of theft of cash from the booth, and absence of any mitigating circumstances, as well as any compelling proof of rehabilitation, I CONCLUDE that licensure of Steven L. Goldman would be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c2.

I FURTHER CONCLUDE that respondent has failed to demonstrate, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b2, 90b, considering the factors of rehabilitation as set forth in 90h, again, because of the extremely serious nature of conduct of theft in the casino and total lack of mitigating circumstances or convincing evidence of rehabilitation. This conclusion as good character, honesty and integrity is also supported by the finding of fact concerning respondent's falsification of an employment application to Tropicana, on which he failed to disclose his arrest for theft by unlawfu taking at the Atlantis Hotel and Casino.

This is a tragic case in the sense that Mr. Goldman's record of employment in the casino industry was otherwise an excellent one. But the clear and convincing proof of his offense of theft by unlawful taking at the Atlantis requires that his license be revoked. So ORDERED.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: September 12, 1990 Decided: September 26, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Dennis C. Gorman, applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the renewal of a casino employee license (box person and blackjack dealer), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90. The respondent, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), opposed the renewal of the license by reason of its contention that the petitioner is disqualified pursuant to section 86b for failure to disclose material information, and therefore, he lacked the requisite good character.

honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed with the Commission an application for the renewal of a casino employee license so he could be employed as a boxperson and blackjack dealer at Caesar's Hotel and Casino. By letter to the Commission, dated May 31, 1989, the Division objected to the petitioner's application for licensure as a boxperson and blackjack dealer pursuant to section 89b, alleging that the petitioner failed to disclose material information on his application for licensure regarding a material fact pertaining to the qualification criteria. The Division also asserts that the petitioner lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference. Based upon the report, the Commission notified the petitioner on July 11, 1989, that there was a "substantial possibility" that his application would be denied and that he had the right to a hearing. By application dated July 20, 1989, which was received by the Commission on July 24, 1989, the petitioner requested a hearing. On July 31, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on August 3, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held in the matter before Administrative Law Judge Lillard E. Law on October 3, 1989. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether the petitioner, with specific reference to his record of arrests, has failed to reveal any facts material to qualification, or has supplied information which is untrue or misleading as to the material facts pertaining to the qualification criteria for his casino employee licensure within the meaning of section 86b.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) as incorporated within section 90b.

A hearing was scheduled to commence on January 9, 1990. By letter, dated December 14, 1989, and received on December 21, 1989, the petitioner's counsel requested an adjournment of the proceedings as he had been recently retained. This request for an adjournment was granted, and the hearing was rescheduled. A hearing was held on May 8, 1990, in the Office of Administrative Law, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey.

The record remained open in order to afford the deputy attorney general the opportunity to authenticate the petitioner's documentary exhibits. By letter dated May 17, 1990, the Division requested an extension of time in which to respond to the petitioner's letters of reference which were offered in evidence at the hearing. The Division alleged that in its attempt to authenticate the documents, new evidence was discovered relating to the petitioner's failure to appear in court and failure to pay numerous motor vehicle fines. A telephone conference was held between the parties on May 21, 1990. At that time, I granted the Division's request to keep the record open so as to allow the Division the opportunity to file a formal motion to reopen its case. By notice dated May 25, 1990, which was filed on May 31, 1990, the Division moved for an order allowing it to reopen its case and offer additional evidence which had been newly discovered as a direct result of attempting to authenticate the petitioner's documentary exhibits. The submission date for the motion was set for June 15, 1990. The petitioner's counsel objected to the Division's motion. By order dated June 18, 1990, I granted the Division's motion to reopen its case for good cause shown.

A telephone conference was held with the parties on July 6, 1990. At that time it was agreed that the parties would enter into a stipulation of facts regarding the newly discovered evidence which the Division now sought to introduce. By letter dated July 19, 1990, the Division forwarded a proposed stipulation of facts and attached exhibits to the petitioner's counsel. By letter dated September 7, 1990, and received by me on September 12, 1990, the Division filed the executed stipulation of facts and attached exhibits with me. As such, the record closed on September 12, 1990.

THE FACTS

At one point in his life, the petitioner, Dennis C. Gorman, had a relationship with Diane L. Mulholland. This relationship was terminated by Ms. Mulholland. Thereafter, the petitioner allegedly continued to harass Ms. Mulholland. Ms. Mulholland made several complaints to the police, and she obtained temporary restraining orders (R-1, R-2, R-3, R-7 & R-11).

On December 7, 1985, the petitioner allegedly forced his way into Ms. Mulholland's home, began yelling at her and began retrieving things he had given her. He pulled the sheets off of the bed, slammed Ms. Mulholland against the door, and ripped a gold chain off her neck (R-3 & R-22). On May 2, 1986, two summonses and complaints were issued in the Ventnor Municipal Court charging the petitioner with harassment, simple assault and burglary (R-23 & R-23a).

On March 18, 1986, the petitioner allegedly became argumentative with and pushed Ms. Mulholland in a bar in Margate. The petitioner was arrested by the police and was charged with simple assault in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1a(1) (R-12 & R-13). The charge was dismissed on February 2, 1987, in accordance with a plea agreement entered into by the petitioner with the Atlantic County Prosecutor's Office (R-13). A third restraining order was entered in the Superior Court against the petitioner on March 20, 1986 (R-14).

On March 2, 1986, Ms. Mulholland reported to the police that her home had been burglarized, and that she suspected the petitioner of being the burglar (R-10). Property of a value over $1,300 was reported missing. The police discovered that entry was made into the home through a window and fingerprints were discovered on the inside and outside of the window (R-16). The Atlantic County Sheriff's Department subsequently identified the fingerprints on the window as the petitioner's (R-15). On April 28, 1986, a complaint and summons was issued in the Ventnor Municipal Court charging the petitioner with burglary and theft (third degree) (R-17).

During the course of the investigation concerning the burglary, Ms. Mulholland alleged that the petitioner had entered her home in February 1986 while she was in Florida, removed her George card (bank card), withdrew money from her account, and then returned the card (R-8 & R-19). Ms. Mulholland stated the petitioner knew her secret identification number (her Social Security number), and bank records indicate that the withdrawal was made on February 19, 1986 at the Tropicana Hotel and Casino, which was the petitioner's then place of employment (R-9). On May 1, 1986, a summons and complaint was issued against the petitioner in the Ventnor Municipal Court charging him with credit card theft and theft by deception (fourth degree) based upon his alleged use of the George card (R-21).

On May 20, 1986, the petitioner was indicted by the Atlantic County Grand Jury based upon the filing of the four above-discussed municipal complaints. He was charged in Indictment No. 86-05-0960 with two counts of burglary in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2, theft by unlawful taking (fourth degree) in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by deception (fourth degree) in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, and theft by unlawful taking (third degree) in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. [R-24] On August 7, 1986, the petitioner entered a plea of not guilty to the charges. On November 12, 1986, he retracted his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to count two of the Ventnor Municipal Court complaint filed April 28, 1986 (R-17), charging him with theft by unlawful taking of property valued over $1,300, after the count was amended to a disorderly persons offense of theft under $200, and counts one and two of the Ventnor Municipal Court complaint filed May 2, 1986 (R-23a) charging the petitioner with harassment in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:33-4c and simple assault in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1a. The remaining counts of the indictment and municipal complaints were dismissed. On December 12, 1986, the petitioner was sentenced to serve one year on probation, to pay $2,400 in restitution, and to pay a $90 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty. [R-25]

On December 22, 1986, the petitioner was stopped by the Northfield police for a traffic violation (following too close in violation of N.J.S.A. 39:4-89). When requested to produce his driver's license, the petitioner stated that he did not have his driver's license with him. Upon being asked to identify himself for a computer driver's license check in the NCIC system, the petitioner stated that his driving privileges probably were suspended. The NCIC check revealed that the petitioner's driving privileges in this State were, in fact, suspended. The petitioner was then arrested for driving while suspended. While securing the petitioner's car, the police discovered the remains of what appeared to be a marijuana cigarette and numerous motor vehicle summonses. [R-26 & R-27] A summons and complaint was issued to the petitioner by the Northfield Municipal Court charging him with possession of less than 25 grams of marijuana in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(4). On June 18, 1987, the petitioner received a conditional discharge for six months. The conditional discharge was extended to May 1, 1988 and was ultimately granted on June 8, 1988 [R-28]

On August 26, 1987, the petitioner entered Bradlee's Department Store in Egg Harbor Township. The petitioner allegedly switched the price tag on a $109 AT&T cordless telephone to a $29.99 price tag. When the item was rung up at the cash register, the machine indicated that the $29.99 item was then on sale for $19.99

The petitioner was then detained and thereafter arrested by the Egg Harbor Township Police Department for shoplifting. On June 8, 1988, the petitioner pleaded not guilty to this charge. After trial, he was found guilty and was sentenced to pay a $150 fine, pay a $30 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty, and was ordered to pay $25 in court costs. [R-30]

On December 22, 1987, the petitioner was found guilty of violating the probation imposed upon him on December 12, 1986 (R-32). The basis of the charge was his failure to pay his court-ordered restitution. The petitioner's probation was extended for an additional two years. As he had only paid $30 in one year towards his $2,400 restitution order, he was again ordered to make restitution and a six-month suspended sentence was imposed (R-32 & R-36). The petitioner's first restitution payment was made with a check which was returned for insufficient funds (R-36).

On June 10, 1988, the petitioner was again found guilty of violating his probation (R-33). The basis of the charges was his arrest on the marijuana and shoplifting charges and his failure to notify the Probation Department of his arrest (R-36). The petitioner's probation was terminated and he was ordered to be incarcerated for 30 days and to continue payments on his $2,400 restitution order (R-33).

After his incarceration, the petitioner failed to make any restitution payments. He testified that he thought his restitution order terminated upon his incarceration. On December 6, 1988, his probation officer sent him a letter informing him that he still owed $1805 in restitution, scheduled an appointment to meet with him, and recommended that he bring a "substantial catch-up payment" (R-35). On December 9, 1988, the petitioner met with his probation officer and agreed to make weekly payments of not less than $20. The petitioner made a $20 payment on December 12, 1988, and January 6 & 12, 1989. He has made no payments since January 12, 1989, and has a current balance of $1725. His probation officer now intends to return the case to the Superior Court for an Order to Show Cause why the petitioner should not be held in contempt for his willful failure to make restitution.

On August 27, 1986, the petitioner completed an application for renewal of his casino employee license (R-34). In response to question 6, the petitioner indicated that since he had been originally licensed or since his last license renewal he had not been "arrested, taken into custody, charged or indicted . . . for the alleged commission of a crime or other offense, including any high misdemeanor, felony, misdemeanor, or disorderly persons offense. . . . " On November 30, 1988, the petitioner was telephonically interviewed by Division Agent Bard H. Goldstein. Agent Goldstein read question 6 to the petitioner in its entirety, and the petitioner indicated that he understood the question. The petitioner responded that his only arrest was a 1985 arrest in Ventnor for a disorderly persons offense. The petitioner denied any other arrests or charges. The petitioner was then asked about his March 18, 1986 charges. The petitioner responded that he had forgotten about them. He then responded that he had no other arrests or charges. He was then asked about his two violations of probation. He responded they were part of the original Ventnor charges. He again responded that he had no other arrests or charges. When questioned about his December 22, 1986 arrest on marijuana charges, he answered that the charges were dismissed, and he had forgotten about it. He again stated that he had no other arrests or charges. When questioned about his August 26, 1987, arrest for shoplifting, he again stated he had forgotten about it and that he had paid a $200 fine.

The petitioner is 34 years old. He was raised in the Atlantic City area by his mother. He is a 1977 graduate of Fairleigh Dickenson University where he majored in biology with a minor in chemistry. He resides with his mother who has been disabled since 1987 when she underwent brain surgery. He also resides with his fiancee and her two-year-old son, both of whom he helps to support.

In 1983, the petitioner became employed as a craps dealer at the Claridge Hotel and Casino. He was terminated from this part-time position after eight months because of a "management changeover." From the spring of 1983 until November 1986, the petitioner worked as a craps dealer at the Tropicana Hotel and Casino. It was during this time period that the petitioner also became licensed as a blackjack dealer. The petitioner was also terminated from this position because of a "management changeover." He stated he was terminated because he dealt blackjack too slow. He indicated that he only dealt blackjack on a few occasions on a substitute, fill-in basis. Since March 1987, the petitioner has been employed as a craps dealer at Caesar's Boardwalk Regency Hotel and Casino. The petitioner is also the holder of a casino hotel employee registration; however, the Division is taking no action against that registration.

The petitioner has participated in the Maloney Bikeathon and has supported the Cancer and Muscular Distrophy Societies. He has also played in charity basketball games. He has been receiving psychological counseling for two months through an employees' program at Caesar's. He is also experiencing financial difficulties due to his mother's hospitalization bills.

The petitioner submitted four letters of recommendation in his behalf. The first, written by Enrique Urdaneta, international marketing executive, Caesar's Atlantic City, dated May 7, 1990, provides in pertinent part:

> I have had the pleasure of knowing Dennis for six years and must honestly say that during this period of time I found him to be a person of strong values and good character. I firmly believe that Dennis' good values far outweigh small mistakes we all commit as people. [P-1]

The second, written by Pamela Falk-Singer, ACSW, of EAP Consultants, and dated May 7, 1990, provides that the petitioner > has been receiving counseling through his employers' employee assistance program. He appears to be making a sincere attempt to resolve personal problems which impact on his life and has done so voluntarily and with a positive attitude.

> He has discussed his legal concerns with me and I would like to support him in whatever way possible to resolve this concern. [P-2]

The third, written by James Pappas, Jr., of Paine Webber and dated May 4, 1990, provides:

> I have been acquainted with Dennis Gorman for 7 years. During this period he has been creditable and trustworthy. Many of our transactions have been made over the phone or by hand shake. None of these have failed. [P-3]

The fourth letter, written by William F. Helbling, president of Yardley Group, dated May 7, 1990 provides:

> Please be advised that I have been a personal friend and business associate of Dennis Gorman for the past twelve years.
> Dennis is a very upstanding, honorable and ethical man. I can state this unequivocally because I have known him for so long. He is a man who honors his responsibilities and commitments, and one whom I can recommend to any third party as a very honest and trustworthy person. [P-4]

In response to the order allowing the Division to reopen its case, the Division submitted the following stipulated facts:

Subsequent to the original hearing, Agent Goldstein contacted by telephone individuals who authored the letters of reference offered at the hearing held on May 8, 1990 and marked for identification as Exhibits P-1 through P-4. Agent Goldstein's contacts verified the authenticity of these documents.

During this inquiry, information was received from an individual who wrote a letter recommending the petitioner, that the petitioner had been cited for operating a motor vehicle while his driver's license was suspended or revoked. Additional information was received from the Division of Motor Vehicles that the petitioner has twenty-three (23) open suspensions for failure to appear based upon operating a motor vehicle while his driver's license was suspended or revoked as well as other motor vehicle violations and for failure to pay fines. The information indicates that petitioner's driver's license has been suspended since 1980 (J-2 and J-3).

On May 16, 1990, Agent Goldstein contacted the Somers Point Municipal Court Clerk. He discovered that on January 3, 1990, the petitioner was stopped for speeding and driving while on the revoked list. On January 23, 1990, the petitioner pled guilty to the speeding charge and was fined $285. Petitioner pled not guilty to the charge of driving while on the revoked list and the case was postponed to March 22, 1990. The petitioner failed to appear at the March 22, 1990 hearing and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest (J-3 and J-5).

On May 16, 1990, Agent Goldstein contacted the Northfield Municipal Court Clerk who told Agent Goldstein that the petitioner's driver's license was suspended on November 29, 1989, for failure to pay the balance of a $1,200 fine imposed due to being charged with operating a motor vehicle while on the revoked list in 1986, and that the balance due is $165 (J-3).

On May 17, 1990, Agent Goldstein contacted the Atlantic City Municipal Court. He was told that multiple summonses for operating a motor vehicle while suspended have been issued against the petitioner, and that he owes in excess of $2,105 in fines (J-3). Later that day, Agent Goldstein contacted the Ocean City Municipal Court Clerk. He was told that their records indicated that the petitioner failure to appear in court for a motor vehicle violation and that a bench warrant was issued on November 17, 1986 which is still active (J-3 and J-4).

On May 18, 1990, Agent Goldstein contacted the Margate City Municipal Court Clerk. He was told that on September 6, 1985, the petitioner was given a summons for driving while on the revoked list. On January 15, 1988, petitioner failed to appear in court and his driver's license was revoked. On May 25, 1990, a bench warrant was issued for the petitioner's arrest (J-3 and J-6).

I FIND all of the above as FACT.

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the petitioner's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident, it did attempt to refute the petitioner's current good character, honesty and integrity. As such, it is necessary to assess his credibility. Initially, his position in this matter must be recognized. As the petitioner and the applicant for a casino employee license, he has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. During both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the petitioner's demeanor, the plausibility of his testimony, the manner in which he participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appeared that the petitioner was not candid and forthright regarding his testimony. As such, I am extremely skeptical of his testimony.

APPLICABLE LAW

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86, Casino license - disqualification criteria, provides in pertinent part:

> The commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of any of the following criteria:
>
> a. Failure of the applicant to prove by clear and convincing evidence that the applicant is qualified in accordance with the provisions of this act;
> b. Failure of the applicant to provide information, documentation and assurances required by the act or requested by the commission, or failure of the applicant to reveal any fact material to qualification, or the supplying of information which is untrue or misleading as to a material fact pertaining to the qualification criteria; . . . .

N.J.S.A. 5:12-89, Licensing of casino key employees, provides in pertinent part:

> b. Each applicant must, prior to the issuance of any casino key employee license, produce information, documentation and assurances concerning the following qualification criteria:

....

(2) Each applicant for a casino key employee license shall produce such information, documentation and assurances as may be required to establish by clear and convincing evidence the applicant's good character, honesty and integrity. Such information shall include, without limitation, data pertaining to family, habits, character, reputation, criminal and arrest record, business activities, financial affairs, and business, professional and personal associates, covering at least the 10-year period immediately preceding the filing of the application. Each applicant shall notify the commission of any civil judgments obtained against such applicant pertaining to antitrust or security regulation laws of the federal government, of this State or of any other state, jurisdiction, province or country. In addition, each applicant shall, upon request of the commission or the division, produce letters of reference from law enforcement agencies having jurisdiction in the applicant's place of residence and principal place of business, which letters of reference shall indicate that such law enforcement agencies do not have any pertinent information concerning the applicant, or if such law enforcement agency does have information pertaining to the applicant, shall specify what that information is. If the applicant has been associated with gaming or casino operations in any capacity, position or employment in a jurisdiction which permits such activity, the applicant shall, upon request of the commission or division, produce letters of reference from the gaming or casino enforcement or control agency, which shall specify the experience of such agency with the applicant, his associates and his participation in the gaming operations of that jurisdiction; provided, however, that if no such letters are received from the appropriate law enforcement agencies within 60 days of the applicant's request therefor, the applicant may submit a statement under oath that he is or was during the period such activities were conducted in good standing with such gaming or casino enforcement or control agency.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-90, licensing of casino employees, provides in pertinent part:

a. No person may commence employment as a casino employee unless he is the holder of a valid casino employee license.

b. Any applicant for a casino employee license must, prior to the issuance of any such license, produce sufficient information, documentation and assurances to meet the qualification criteria, including New Jersey residency, contained in subsection b. of section 89 of this act and any additional residency requirement imposed under subsection c. of this section; except that the standards for business ability and casino experience may be satisfied by a showing of casino job experience and knowledge of the provisions of this act and > regulations pertaining to the particular position involved, or by successful completion of a course of study at a licensed school in an approved curriculum.

>
> ....
> e. The commission shall deny a casino employee license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of this act.

DISCUSSION

The Division contends first that the petitioner's nondisclosure of his arrest record on his Employee License Renewal Application constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b, and that, accordingly, he is disqualified from licensure, and second, by means of section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, that the petitioner lacks the necessary good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b

The Commission has succinctly described the purposes for the inclusion of section 86b within the Act and its application in In the Matter of the Application of Harl Lee Cooper for Licensure as a Casino Employee (Maintenance and Cleaning), OAL DKT. CCC 1276-79 (Aug. 29, 1979), modified, Casino Control Commission (Feb. 7, 1980), when it stated, at pages 15-16 of its Final Decision:

> So that fully informed decisions may be made regarding whether applicants for licensure have satisfied the qualification criteria set forth in the Act, the [L]egislature empowered the Commission and the Division of Gaming Enforcement to gather information concerning applicants by various means. The application process is initiated by the completion and filing of a Personal History Disclosure Form in accordance with N.J.A.C. 19:41-7.1 et seq. The Commission may also require the production of information by means of other formal requests. N.J.S.A. 5:12-80(d). The Division is empowered, in fulfilling its investigative duties, to request information, documentary materials or other data from any applicant for licensure. N.J.S.A. 5:12-76(b)(8).
> Most importantly, the Legislature has explicitly placed upon applicants for licensure the affirmative responsibility to produce information to establish their qualifications under the Act, the burden of demonstrating such qualifications, and the continuing duty to provide requested information and cooperate in any investigation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-7(b)(8); 80(a), (b) and (c); 89(b); 90(b) and 91(b). But not only has the Legislature imposed these duties and burdens with regard to the production of information, it has also, as noted above, mandated that an applicant's failure to provide the same shall result in disqualification. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(b).

The failure to disclose material information will disqualify an applicant. In the Matter of the Application of Robert J. Alois for a Gaming School Resident Director License, Casino Control Commission, 78-EA-8 (Jan. 30, 1980) Report and Recommendation of Hearing Examiner at 19 (June 27, 1979). Although an inadvertent or ignorant failure to make a disclosure will not warrant disqualification, an intentional nondisclosure, premised upon the belief that an application for licensure would have been adversely affected, is grounds for mandatory disqualification from licensure. Harl Lee Cooper, Final Decision at 16; In the Matter of the Application of Steven M. Cohen for Licensure as a Casino Employee (Dealer), OAL DKT. CCC 3133-79 (Dec. 6, 1979), affirmed, Casino Control Commission (Jan. 30, 1980); In the Matter of the Application of William Gonzales for Licensure as a Casino Employee (Slot Attendant), OAL DKT. NO. CCC 684-80 (July 16, 1980), modified, Casino Control Commission (Sept. 5, 1980). For a nondisclosure to result in a disqualification it must have been committed intentionally or in disregard of the regulatory process. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244 at 253 (1979).

An applicant is required to provide all material facts when his or her application for licensure is submitted. "Material" includes both positive and negative information. Section 86b penalizes for the mere failure to provide any fact material to qualification. The weight and significance of the information provided are thereafter evaluated by the Commission under section 91 of the Act. To excuse an intentional failure to disclose or the provision of misleading statements by an applicant would usurp the responsibility and the ability of the Commission to evaluate an applicant's qualifications for licensure. An applicant has the affirmative burden to establish his or her qualifications to the satisfaction of the Commission. There is no doubt that arrests, charges and convictions of crimes are facts material to qualification.

In this case, the petitioner failed to list several arrests on his Employee License Renewal Application. When questioned about these arrests, he conveniently indicated that he had forgotten about them. How does one forget being incarcerated a mere five months before the interview? How does one forget an indictment on a series of charges which was filed just three months before the petitioner completed his renewal application? How does one forget violations of probation while still being on probation? Needless to say, I do not accept the petitioner's explanation. I FIND that the nondisclosure was an intentional nondisclosure premised upon the belief that the disclosure of the information would have adversely affected his application for licensure and that the nondisclosure was made in disregard of the regulatory process.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b, which disqualifies him from continued licensure.

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Mr. Gorman was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel Inc. for a Casino license, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Id. at 296.

The petitioner has a history of assaultive and dishonest behavior. His numerous violations of court orders, temporary restraining orders, and motor vehicle laws reflect a total disregard of our laws and a flouting of authority. This total disregard for authority was the reason then Superior Court Judge Steven P. Perskie finally incarcerated the petitioner. Judge Perskie specifically cited the petitioner's willful violation of a court order and the need to provide credibility and enforcement of a court order as the reasons necessitating incarceration (R-33). Now we learn that the petitioner has 23 open suspensions for failure to appear in connection with operating a motor vehicle while his driver's license was suspended or revoked and that there are at least three outstanding bench warrants for his arrest. One of the reasons his probation was violated is that he did not inform his probation officer of his subsequent arrests. His probation officer now intends to seek another probation violation for the petitioner's failure to comply with the court order requiring him to make restitution.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not established, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity under section 90b.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the application of Dennis C. Gorman for the issuance/renewal of a casino employee license be DENIED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDER

LEONARD GRATE,

Respondent.

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of August 1, 1990,

IT IS on this 10th day of August 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> While the Commission concurs with the ALJ's finding that the respondent is disqualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2), the finding that he nevertheless established his good character, honesty and integrity as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and -90b is rejected as contrary to the weight of the evidence.
> The principal basis for the respondent's disqualification is his conviction in 1985 for theft by unlawful taking contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, a disorderly persons offense. The offense involved a theft of $100 in coins by the respondent in the course of his employment as a casino security officer.

Upon consideration of all pertinent factors, Donna Davis v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985), the evidence which supports the conclusion that the respondent is disqualified also establishes that he has failed to demonstrate the good character honesty, and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee. In the Matter of the Application of Charles Clentchscale for Licensure as a Casino Employee, Docket No. 79-EA-113, April 22, 1990; Cf., Doris Dunston v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 240 N.J. Super 53 (App. Div. 1990)

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent's casino employee license is revoked substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Leonard Grate is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any license, registration, qualification or approval under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

Record Closed: June 12, 1990 Decided: June 19, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the revocation of Leonard Grate's casino employee license no. 51306-21, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90 and N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1). The Division sought revocation of the respondent's license by reason of its contention that the respondent had been convicted of a criminal offense which rendered continued licensure to be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act (Act), pursuant to section 86c(4) (now section 86c(2)), and therefore, he lacked the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference. The respondent contended that he was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 90h.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The respondent had obtained a casino employee license from the Commission so he could be employed as a security officer at the Sands Hotel and Casino. By complaint to the Commission, filed April 22, 1985, the Division objected to the respondent's continued licensure, asserting that the respondent had committed the offense of theft by unlawful taking, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(4) (now section 86c(2)). The Division also objected pursuant to section 89b(2). Based upon the complaint, the Commission notified the respondent on April 23, 1985, that he had the right to a hearing, and that failure to respond within 15 days could result in his license being revoked (P-4). On July 19, 1985, the Commission issued an order deferring action on the Division's application for the suspension of the respondent's casino employee license until resolution of the criminal proceedings (P-3). By application dated May 3, 1988, which was received by the Commission on May 9, 1988, the respondent requested a hearing. On May 16, 1988, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on May 23, 1988, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. Also by letter dated May 16, 1988, the Commission notified the respondent that it had transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing and informed the respondent that his casino employee license had expired in May 1987 (P-2).

On September 27, 1988, the Office of Administrative Law notified the parties that a prehearing conference was to be held on October 18, 1988, at 1:30 p.m. at the Office of Administrative Law, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, third floor, 1201 Bacharach Boulevard, Atlantic City, New Jersey.

On the scheduled date, the respondent failed to appear. Ten days passed from the scheduled hearing date, and during that period, the respondent did not contact the Office of Administrative Law to offer any explanation for the nonappearance. As a result, on October 28, 1988, Administrative Law Judge Stephen W. Thompson concluded that the respondent no longer sought to defend this matter and issued an Initial Decision for the respondent's failure to appear at the scheduled prehearing conference in which he granted the Division's requested relief.

The Commission considered Judge Thompson's Initial Decision at its public meeting held on November 30, 1988. At that time, the respondent appeared at the meeting, completed another hearing request form, and requested another opportunity for a hearing. The Commission granted this request, and by order dated December 1, 1988, the Commission remanded the case to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing on all issues. On December 1, 1988, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on January 3, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before me on June 22, 1989. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether respondent's continued licensure is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c because he had been convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking from his employer, the Sands Hotel and Casino.

B. Whether respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) as incorporated within section 90b.

A hearing was held on November 9, 1989, in the Office of Administrative Law, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. Prior to presenting evidence on the merits of the case, the Division moved to dismiss the case as the matter was moot and there was no longer any subject matter jurisdiction in the case. On April 22, 1985, the Division filed a complaint against the respondent's casino employee license no. 51306-21. On July 19, 1985, the Commission deferred action on the complaint until after resolution of the then pending criminal proceedings. Those proceedings resulted in the respondent's conviction later in 1985. Thereafter, the respondent briefly worked at various casinos. In May of 1987, the respondent failed to renew his casino employee license, and his license expired. He did not renew his license, nor make application to the Commission for the issuance of a new license. This case was originally transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on May 16, 1988. This was three years after the complaint had been filed and one year after the license had expired. As such, the Division argued that there no longer existed any subject matter jurisdiction in this case, there was no longer any case in controversy, and that the matter was moot. The Division therefore moved that the matter be dismissed without prejudice.

On November 16, 1989, I entered an Initial Decision granting the Division's motion and dismissed the matter without prejudice. The Commission considered my Initial Decision at its public meeting of January 10, 1990. At that meeting, the Division indicated that it had been unaware of N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.7 which permits the Commission to determine applications or qualifications for licensure or registration even if the matter becomes moot after the application was submitted. The Division, therefore, requested the matter be remanded for a hearing. By order dated January 22, 1990, the Commission rejected the Initial Decision and remanded the matter for a hearing.

A hearing was held on June 12, 1990, in the Office of Administrative Law, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey, after which the record was closed.

In June 1984, the respondent, Leonard Grate, became employed as as security officer at the Sands Hotel and Casino. On March 27, 1985, while employed as a security officer at the Sands, the respondent was arrested for stealing, from a change booth on the casino floor, several rolls of wrapped quarters and half-dollars totaling $100. The respondent told the investigating agent that he found the coins on the floor in the booth and that he did not take the coins from the cash drawer (P-8).

On March 27, 1985, the respondent was charged in Atlantic City Municipal Court with theft by unlawful taking in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. On September 5, 1985, the respondent pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to pay a $25 fine, a $25 Violent Crimes Compensation Board Penalty, and $25 in court costs (P-5).

The respondent denies committing the theft. He maintains that he purchased two rolls of quarters in order to do his laundry. The two rolls of quarters were in his jacket in a room near the casino floor. He denies wrongfully taking change from the change booth. He further maintains that he pleaded guilty on the advice of counsel.

His trial had been repeatedly postponed, and he was told that if he pleaded guilty, paid $75, and promised not to return to the Sands, that everything would be put behind him and he could return to work in the casino industry.

The respondent is 37 years old and resides in Atlantic City with his mother and two younger brothers. He is presently unemployed. In 1985 and 1986, he briefly held security positions at the Showboat, Tropicana and Caesars; however, he was terminated from these positions when information was raised concerning the Sands incident. Since 1986, he has been employed in a grocery store and as a part-time cook.

On February 13, 1986, the respondent was arrested and was charged in the Atlantic City Municipal Court with one count of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(4), one count of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) with the intent to distribute in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1), and one count of possession of narcotic paraphernalia in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-47. On September 23, 1986, the respondent entered a plea of not guilty to all the charges. The charges were then referred to the county prosecutor for action. After reviewing the case, the county prosecutor elected not to seek an indictment, and returned the case to municipal court for disposition. On October 23, 1986, the respondent was found guilty of the possession of marijuana and possession of narcotic paraphernalia charges and the possession with the intent to distribute charge was dismissed. The respondent was granted a conditional discharge on the charges and was placed on probation for six months. The respondent satisfactorily completed his probationary period and the charges were dismissed.

Since 1986, the respondent has been very active in his community. He regularly assists senior citizens and senior citizen groups. He makes repairs, performs odd jobs, and runs errands for senior citizens in the community. He only receives money to pay for expenses; he does not accept any money for profit or if he did not incurr any expenses.

The Division did attempt to refute the respondent's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident but did not attack his current good character, honesty and integrity. As such, it is necessary to assess his credibility. Initially, his position in this matter must be recognized. As the respondent and the former holder of a casino hotel employee license, he has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the respondent's demeanor, the plausibility of his testimony, the manner in which he participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence, it appears that the respondent testified truthfully in substantial regard. However, there were a few inconsistencies. He denied the underlying misconduct and had no recollection of the drug paraphernalia charge.

If the applicant has been associated with gaming or casino operations in any capacity, position or employment in a jurisdiction which permits such activity, the applicant shall, upon request of the commission or division, produce letters of reference from the gaming or casino enforcement or control agency, which shall specify the experience of such agency with the applicant, his associates and his participation in the gaming operations of that jurisdiction; provided, however, that if no such letters are received from the appropriate law enforcement agencies within 60 days of the applicant's request therefor, the applicant may submit a statement under oath that he is or was during the period such activities were conducted in good standing with such gaming or casino enforcement or control agency.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-90, Licensing of casino employees, provides in pertinent part:

a. No person may commence employment as a casino employee unless he is the holder of a valid casino employee license.

b. Any applicant for a casino employee license must, prior to the issuance of any such license, produce sufficient information, documentation and assurances to meet the qualification criteria, including New Jersey residencey, contained in subsection b. of section 89 of this act and any additional residency requirement imposed under subsection c. of this section; except that the standards for business ability and casino experience may be satisfied by a showing of casino job experience and knowledge of the provisions of this act and regulations pertaining to the particular position involved, or by successful completion of a course of study at a licensed school in an approved curriculum.

e. The commission shall deny a casino employee license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of this act.

. . . .

h. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection e. of this section, no applicant shall be denied a casino employee license on the basis of a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria or the commission of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of section 86 of P.L. 1977, c.110 (C. 5:12-86), as specified in subsection g. of that section; provided that the application has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation. In determining whether the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense of conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) establishes that licensure under the Casino Control Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1) provides for the revocation of the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his license." The Division contended that the respondent was convicted of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking from the Sands Casino, which constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(4) (now section 86c(2)), and that, accordingly, he is disqualified from continued licensure.

Section 86c(4) of the Act (now section 86c(2)) is more commonly referred to as the "inimical clause." In In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244 (1979), the Commission set forth the criteria to be applied in individual cases when a determination is made as to whether an offense is inimical to the policies of the Act. The Commission stated at 254:

> The nature of the offense, the events surrounding it, including any mitigating or aggravating factors, the remoteness of the offense and the offender's conduct since the offense to the present are all matters to be considered. Without limiting the notion of what is "inimical" to the Act or to gaming, it would appear to encompass those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations.

enumerated specific policy considerations which appear to be directly related to the intent and purpose of the inimical clause. More specifically, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6) and (7) state categorically that the successful regulation and control of state casino activities depends upon the confidence of the public "in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process of a casino operation," and by the exclusion from participation in casino gaming of "persons with known criminal records, habits or associations" who could threaten the integrity of the gaming and business operations.

The significance of strict regulation of all phases of the casino industry was emphasized by the Supreme Court in Knight v. City of Margate, 86 N.J. 374, 381 (1981):

> At the very heart of the public policy embraced by the new law is "the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations." N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6). Related directly to this purpose, the Legislature stated that "the regulatory provisions . . . are designed to extend strict State regulation to all persons . . . practices and associations related to" casinos and that "comprehensive law-enforcement supervision . . . is further designed to contribute to the public confidence and trust in the efficacy and integrity of the regulatory process."

In In the Matter of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union Local 54, 203 N.J. Super. 297, 317 (App. Div. 1985), certif, den. 102 N.J. 352 (1985), the appellate division held that "inimical" means "adverse to the policy of the act and gaming operations," i.e., contrary to strict regulatory controls over all facets of casino activities.

The Division contended that the respondent was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking, in an amount which makes the crime a disorderly persons offense. This offense is not listed as a disqualifier under section 86c(1), as such the Division asserted that this offense is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(4) (now section 86c(2)) as the offense was committed against the casino hotel.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, Theft by unlawful taking provides in pertinent part:

> a. Movable property. A person is guilty of theft if he unlawfully takes, or exercises unlawful control over, movable property of another with purpose to deprive him thereof.

The Division established that the respondent has been convicted of theft by unlawful taking in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. The conviction resulted from the respondent's alleged theft from a change booth in the Sand's Casino Hotel of ten rolls of quarters and half-dollars totaling $100. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b, the offense constitutes a disorderly persons offense.

In State of New Jersey, Dept. of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Michael P. Waters, OAL DKT. CCC 3933-86, (Jan. 7, 1987) decided by the Commission (June 12, 1987), the Commission stated at 23 that:

> A distinction must be drawn between the rehabilitation from a section 86(c)(1) or (3) disqualifying offense pursuant to sections 90(h) or 91(d) of the Act and rehabilitation as an aspect of the inimical analysis. In the former situation, disqualification is established once it is shown that the respondent committed an enumerated offense. The respondent is then afforded the opportunity to affirmatively demonstrate his rehabilitation from that disqualification. It is well established that, consistent with other affirmative licensing criteria, the respondent must prove his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. Application of Richard Romanishin for a Casino Employee License, Docket No. 84-EA-85 (Commission order, May 23, 1985); Application of Chester R. Brathwaite for a Casino Employee License, Docket No. A-4252-82T3 (Unpublished opinion reversing Commission decision, January 23, 1984).
> However, unlike a section 86(c)(1) or (3) situation, disqualification pursuant to section 86(c)(4) is not established upon demonstrating that the respondent committed the offense in question. Such a determination can only be made after considering all the circumstances surrounding the offense: its nature, its remoteness, and the offender's conduct subsequent to the offense, i.e., essentially the same factors which bear upon rehabilitation. Application of Donna Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (Commission decision, December 27, 1985); State v. Theodore Williams, Docket No. 84-288 (Commission order, May 1, 1987).

The Commission concluded that if the Division establishes a case for the respondent's disqualification, it is "then incumbent upon the respondent to show that he was rehabilitated; that is, the burden of going forward with evidence (but not the ultimate burden of proof), had shifted." [Id. at 3]

In the Davis case, the Commission stated at 313-314:

> Rehabilitation under section 90(h) (casino employee license) and section 91(d) (casino hotel employee registration) does not apply to disqualifying convictions under section 86(c)(4). By their express terms, these rehabilitation provisions apply only to ". . . a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria." Nevertheless, many of the factors that are considered upon a claim of rehabilitation are included within the inimical analysis.

The Commission indicated that "it has been generally observed that the notion of rehabilitation is subsumed in the inimical analysis (and) . . . the inimical analysis is substantially similar to the concept of rehabilitation." The Commission concluded that:

> The salient point to be made here is that we consider rehabilitation factors before concluding that the offense in question is or is not inimical under section 86(c)(4). Because the rehabilitation provisions are subsumed within the inimical analysis, it should never be necessary to determine the merits of a claim of rehabilitation after concluding that a given offense is inimical pursuant to section 86(c)(4). [Id. at 314] [footnote omitted]

The eight specific criteria enumerated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made are:

1. The nature and duties of the licensee's position or the registrant's position;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense;
3. The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
4. The date of the offense;
5. The age of the licensee or registrant when the offense was committed;
6. Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant or registrant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Leonard Grate was a casino licensee and was employed as a security officer. As such, he did not have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities but did come in contact with casino patrons.

Second, the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking, on one occasion while employed in the casino industry. Because the offense was committed against his casino employer, it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in its appropriate context. The respondent was convicted of stealing $100 in coins from his casino employer while employed as a security officer. This is a position of trust, and as such the offense is very serious.

Fourth, the respondent's misconduct occurred on March 27, 1985, when it ceased.

Fifth, the respondent was 32 years old at the time of the first offense. I do not believe immaturity was a factor in this case.

Sixth, the respondent's misconduct was not isolated in nature. He has committed other violations of the criminal laws. He received a conditional discharge in 1986 for possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

Seventh, there are no social conditions which may have contributed to this offense.

Eighth, the respondent has been extremely active in his community during the last five years. He helps senior citizens by volunteering his time to perform odd jobs and to run errands. The respondent, however, presented virtually no evidence in his own behalf.

I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the continued licensure of the respondent would be inimical to the policies of the Act, pursuant to section 86c(4) (now section 86c(2)).

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Mr. Grate was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, his reputation for good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. (Id. at 296).

It is apparent that the petitioner's misconduct was aberrant and that he is otherwise a person of good character, honesty an integrity. The misconduct did involve his licensed employment; however, during the last five years, the respondent has become a responsible member of his community. He regularly volunteers to assist senior citizens and is an asset to his community. An examination of the whole person clearly and convincingly established that Mr. Grate is now a person of good character, honesty and integrity.

I CONCLUDE that the respondent has established, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity under section 90b.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division against the respondent is SUSTAINED and that license no. 51306-21 which has not been renewed, be revoked.

It is further ORDERED that the respondent, Leonard Grate, is presently not qualified to hold a casino employee license because of his conviction of an offense which is inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

I - PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter concerns the complaint filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement, Department of Law and Public Safety (Division) with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on July 7, 1989, seeking the imposition of an appropriate penalty for alleged violations and appropriate action to prevent any reoccurrence. The respondent, the Greate Bay Hotel and Casino, Inc. t/a the Sands Hotel, Casino and Country Club (Sands), requested an administrative hearing, and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on August 3, 1989, to be heard as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

During the telephone prehearing conference on September 28, 1989, the parties agreed that the issues in this matter are:

A. Count I

1. Whether the respondent's failure to submit the Custodial Check Clearing Account Procedures, the Custodial Funds Receipt and the Custodial Credit Check Clearing Form to the Commission and Division violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-99(a) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3(a).

2. Whether the respondent's adoption and implementation of the Custodial Check Clearing Account Procedures and the respondent's use of the Custodial Funds Receipt and Custodial Credit Check Clearing Form, without first having said procedures and forms approved by the Commission violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-99(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3(b).

B. Count II

1. Whether the respondent altered its internal controls without Commission approval in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-99(b) each time that the Custodial Check Clearing Account Procedures were revised and implemented as revised.

2. Whether the respondent violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3(c) by failing to submit the revised Custodial Check Clearing Account Procedures to the Commission and Division.

C. Count III

1. Whether the respondent violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26(a) and (f) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)(6) in the methodology used to process the 12 custodial checks listed in the Division's complaint.

2. Whether the respondent violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24(a) in the methodology used to process the 5 custodial checks listed in the Division's complaint.

3. Whether the respondent violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24(a) and/or N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26(a) and (f) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)(6) in the methodology used to process one of the custodial checks[1] listed in the Division's complaint.

4. Whether the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(b) in the methodology used to process the 18 custodial checks[2] listed in the Division's complaint.

D. Count IV

1. Whether or not the respondent violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.14 and 1.15 by implementing the Custodial Check Clearing Account Procedures.

There was no hearing in the matter, rather, the parties submitted stipulated facts and documents as well as briefs. The record closed on January 4, 1990, the day on which the parties presented their oral closing statements before the undersigned at the Office of Administrative Law in Atlantic City.

II - FINDINGS OF FACT

The parties stipulated to the following facts:

1 Count III of the Division's complaint related to 18 custodial checks reviewed by the Division during its investigation of this matter. During the discussion between the parties which resulted in the stipulation of facts, the Division agreed to withdraw its allegations as to the one custodial check which is the subject of this sub-issue.

2 Count III of the Division's complaint related to 18 custodial checks reviewed by the Division during its investigation of this matter. During the discussion between the parties which resulted in the stipulation of facts, the Division agreed to withdraw its allegations as to one of the custodial checks, identified in Count III, para 37, item #17. The 17 custodial checks in issue consist of 12 checks submitted for redemption, 2 checks submitted for safekeeping and 3 checks submitted for redemption and safekeeping.

1. The Division is established pursuant to Section 55 of the New Jersey Casino Control Act ("the Act"), N.J.S.A. 5:12-55, and has such powers and duties as are set forth in Sections 76 through 79, inclusive, of the Act, N.J.S.A. 5:12-76 to 79.

2. The Sands is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey and maintains a principal place of business located at Indiana Avenue and Brighton Park, Atlantic City, New Jersey, 08401.

3. The Sands is now the holder of a plenary casino license issued to it by the Casino Control Commission ("the Commission") authorizing it to operate a casino hotel in accordance with the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder ("the License"). The License was issued to the Sands effective May 7, 1982, and was last renewed on May 7, 1988, and the Sands has been and is now operating a casino hotel pursuant to the License.

4. The Sands is the holder of, and operates pursuant to, a Certificate of Operation effective May 7, 1981, which, due to a change in ownership, replaced the original Certificate of Operation which was issued on August 12, 1980, at which time the Sands was the holder of a temporary casino permit effective August 7, 1980, and the Sands has been and is now operating a casino hotel pursuant to the Certificate of Operation. The Certificate of Operation entitles the Sands to operate a casino hotel in accordance with the provisions of the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder.

5. Effective March 1, 1986, the Sands first adopted and implemented procedures under which the Sands received custody of certain checks from patrons of the Sands ("Custodial Checks").

6. The Sands received custody of Custodial Checks for two difference reasons. First, certain patrons, in seeking to substitute counter checks in accordance with N.J.A.C. 19:45-

1.26, presented personal or business checks at the casino cage but the personal or business checks could not be immediately accepted for substitution because the accounts on which such items had been drawn had not been verified in accordance with N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(c)(4) ("Unverified Checks"). Because the Sands could not immediately accept Unverified Checks in substitution of counter checks, the Sands decided to receive custody of Unverified Checks and to maintain Unverified Checks on file within the casino cage while the Credit Department performed the verification of the account on which the Unverified Checks had been drawn in the manner required by N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(c)(4) ("Custodial Checks for Verification"). Once the account on which the Custodial Checks for Verification had been drawn had been verified by the Credit Department in the manner required by N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(c)(4), the Custodial Check for Verification was then accepted in substitution of the patron's counter check and the substitution transaction was processed in accordance with the Sands approved internal controls. Second, certain patrons, in seeking to redeem counter checks in accordance with N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26, presented Unverified Checks, bank checks, or other third party checks (collectively "Non-conforming Items") at the casino cage that could not be immediately accepted for redemption in accordance with N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26 because the Non-conforming Items did not satisfy either the definition of a cash equivalent set forth at N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.1, or the requirements applicable to a check accepted in redemption of a counter check set forth at N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)(6). Because the Sands could not immediately accept a Non-conforming Item in redemption of a counter check, the Sands decided to receive custody of a Non-conforming Item solely for the purpose of depositing the Non-conforming Item into the Sands account with Midlantic National Bank/South, awaiting confirmation from the bank upon which the Non-conforming Item had been drawn that the Non-conforming item had actually cleared, and, only when the Non-conforming Item had been thus converted into cleared funds, applying the cleared funds in redemption of a counter check or to a safekeeping deposit, as requested by the presenting patron, in accordance with the Sands approved internal controls ("Custodial Checks for Clearing").

7. The procedures applicable to the manual processing of Custodial checks for Verification ("the Manual Procedures for Custodial Checks for Verification") were attached to and described in a memorandum from Timothy A. Ebling dated February 28, 1986 ("the Ebling Memorandum"). Copies of the Ebling Memorandum and the Manual Procedures for Custodial Checks for Verification are attached as Exhibit "A."

8. The Ebling Memorandum stated in the first paragraph as follows: "Please keep in mind that this system is totally manual at this date. When the data system is available, you will receive a copy of those procedures."

9. The procedures applicable to the processing of Custodial Checks for Verification were changed or altered to include procedures designed for use with the Sands electronic data processing ("EDP") system within two weeks following the adoption of the Manual Procedures for Custodial Checks for Verification by the adoption and implementation of documents entitled: "Procedure for Redemption by Personal or Business Check at the Front Window and Procedure for Accepting and Disbursing Custodial Checks in the Main Bank" (collectively "the EDP Procedures for Custodial Checks for Verification"). A copy of the EDP Procedures for Custodial Checks for Verification are [sic] attached as Exhibit "B."

10. A computer generated receipt was issued to a patron when the Sands took custody of a Custodial Check for Verification ("a Custodial Check Receipt"). A copy of a Custodial Check Receipt is attached as Exhibit "C."

11. The procedures applicable to Custodial Checks were altered or amended to include procedures applicable to Custodial Checks for Clearing on or about March 25, 1986 ("the Procedures for Custodial Checks for Clearing") and were attached to and described in a memorandum from John Ciullo dated March 25, 1986 ("the Ciullo Memorandum"). Copies of the Procedures for Custodial Checks for Clearing and the Ciullo Memorandum are attached as Exhibit "D."

12. A Custodial Check Receipt, as defined in paragraph 10 above, was issued to a patron when the Sands took custody of a Custodial Check for Clearing.

13. The Sands used a form entitled: "Custodial Credit Check Cleared" ("Custodial Check Clearing Form") as part of the Procedures for Custodial Checks for Clearing. A copy of a Custodial Check Clearing Form is attached as Exhibit "E."

14. A memorandum was written by John Ciullo, as an explanatory supplement to the Procedures for Custodial Checks for Clearing, dated April 15, 1986. Memoranda were written by John Ciullo, as explanatory supplements to the EDP Procedures for Custodial Checks for Verification, dated April 28, 1986 and March 6, 1987 (collectively "the 3 Ciullo Memoranda"). Copies of the 3 Ciullo Memoranda are attached as Exhibit "F."

15. Neither the Manual Procedures for Custodial Checks for Verification, as defined in paragraph 7 above, the EDP Procedures for Custodial Checks for Verification, as defined in paragraph 9 above, the Custodial Check Receipt, as defined in paragraph 10 above, the Custodial Check Clearing Form, as defined in paragraph 13 above, the Procedures for Custodial Checks for Clearing, as defined in paragraph 11 above, nor the 3 Ciullo Memoranda, as defined by paragraph 14 above, were submitted by the Sands to the Commission for review and approval pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-99. However, the Sands contends that it had no obligation to submit such documents to the Commission for review and approval pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-99.

16. The Sands obtained custody of seventeen (17) Non-conforming Items on the dates and for the patrons identified in item numbers 1 through 16 and 18 of paragraph 37 of the Division Complaint and deposited the seventeen (17) Non-conforming Items into the Sands account with Midlantic National Bank/South, awaited clearance of the seventeen (17) Non-conforming Items, and applied the resulting cleared funds to a redemption transaction and/or to a safekeeping deposit, as requested by the patrons in question, in accordance with the Sands approved internal controls.

17. As part of the investigation performed by the Division, the Division obtained copies of documents prepared and maintained by the Sands as records in the ordinary course of business relating to the transactions described in paragraph 16 above. Copies of such documents are attached as Exhibit "G."

18. Copies of the Internal Controls submitted by the Sands, reviewed by the Division, and approved by the Commission related to the Sands Casino Cage Operations pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-99 and N.J.A.C. 19:45 et seq. and which were in effect at all times referenced herein (i.e., March, 1986 through and including July, 1989) are attached as Exhibit "H."

19. The Division conducted an investigation into the subject of Custodial Checks that included, inter alia, sworn interviews of John Osborne, Casino Controller, on December 2, 1988 and Timothy A. Ebling, Director, Corporate Accounting, on December 2, 1988. Copies of such sworn statements are attached as Exhibit "I."

20. The Sands was not advised by any representative of the Division during the course of the investigation of the Division that the conduct of the Sands relating to the subject matter of the Custodial Checks violated the Casino Control Act, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. ("the Act") or the regulations promulgated pursuant to the Act. However, the Division's position is that it has no obligation to advise any licensee of any violative conduct under investigation by the Division.

21. On or about July 14, 1989, after receipt of the Division Complaint in this matter, Frederick H. Kraus, Director, Legal Affairs, telephoned Timothy A. Ebling, Director, Corporate Accounting, advised Mr. Ebling of the receipt of the Division Complaint and of the need to discontinue taking custody of Custodial Checks, and telephoned Wendy Way, Deputy Attorney General, to acknowledge receipt of the Division Complaint and to advise Ms. Way of the decision of the Sands to discontinue taking custody of Custodial Checks without prejudice to the Sands' position that the Sands' practice of taking custody of Custodial Checks was lawful. Following the telephone call from Mr. Kraus, Mr. Ebling took the necessary steps to implement the decision to discontinue taking custody of Custodial Checks. Attached as Exhibit "J" is a certification of Timothy A. Ebling certifying the truth of the statement in the preceding sentence.

III - POSITIONS OF THE PARTIES AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

A. Alleged Violations of N.J.S.A. 5:12-99 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3

In her oral argument as well as in her legal briefs, Deputy Attorney General Wendy Alice Way, on behalf of the petitioner, argued that the facts clearly show that:

(1) The respondent failed to submit the Custodial Check Clearing Account Procedures, the Custodial Funds Receipt and the Custodial Credit Check Clearing Form to the Commission and the Division for review and approval as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-99(a) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3(a).

(2) The respondent adopted, implemented and used said Custodial Check Clearing Account Procedures, the Custodial Funds Receipt and the Custodial Credit Check Clearing Form without first having obtained the approval of the Commission, a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-99(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3(b).

(3) The respondent violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-99(b) each time that the Custodial Check Clearing Account Procedures were revised and supplemented.

(4) The respondent violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3(c) by failing to submit the revised Custodial Check Clearing Account Procedures to the Commission and the Division for review and approval.

Although not specifically listed in N.J.S.A. 5:12-99(a), Ms. Way argued that the procedures, receipt and form in issue affect gambling operations and therefore are the type of internal controls that require the Commission's approval. Ms. Way stated that the need for the monitoring and control of the casinos' systems of internal financial controls was recognized in the Report and Recommendations on Casino Gaming, dated April 1977, submitted by the State Commission of Investigation, and in the Second Interim Report, dated February 17, 1977, submitted by the Governor's Staff Policy Group on Casino Gambling.

Ms. Way noted that the casino statute requires such monitoring and control, and specifically that N.J.S.A. 5:12-99(a), in part, provides:

> Each casino licensee shall submit to the commission a description of its system of internal procedures and administrative and accounting controls. Such submission shall be made at least 120 days before gaming operations are to commence or at least 90 days before changes in previously submitted control plans are to become effective, unless otherwise directed by the commission. Each such submission shall contain both narrative and diagrammatic representations of the internal control system to be utilized by the casino, including, but not limited to:
> (1) Accounting controls, including the standardization of forms and definition of terms to be utilized in the gaming operations;
>
> (2) Procedures, forms, and, where appropriate, formulas covering the calculation of hold percentages, revenue drop, expense and overhead schedules, complimentary services, junkets, cash equivalent transactions, salary structure and personnel practices;
>
> . . .
>
> (4) Procedures within the cashier's cage for the receipt, storage and disbursal of chips, cash, and other cash equivalents used in gaming; the cashing of checks; the redemption of chips and other cash equivalents used in gaming; the pay-off of jackpots; and the recording of transactions pertaining to gaming operations;
>
> . . . .

590

(9) Procedures for the security, storage and recordation of chips and other cash equivalents utilized in the gaming operation;

. . . .

(13) Procedures for the cashing and recordation of checks exchanged by casino patrons;

. . . .

See also, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3. Additionally, Ms. Way argued that recent case law has consistently recognized that N.J.S.A. 5:12-99 should be given a broad interpretation in order to achieve the goals of the statute. State v. Boardwalk Regency Corp. & Haverstick, OAL DKT. CCC 578-86 (June 4, 1987), adopted by Comm., Sept. 10, 1987; State v. Boardwalk Regency Corp., OAL DKT. CCC 2480-87 and 8472-87 (Sept. 12, 1988), modified by Comm., Nov. 30, 1988; Playboy - Elsinore Assocs. v. Strauss, 189 N.J. Super. 185 (Law Div. 1983); State v. Boardwalk Regency Corp., OAL DKT. CCC 3916-80, (May 18, 1981), adopted by Comm. July 17, 1981. Based on the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-99 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3, Ms. Way argued that the Sands should have submitted the procedures, receipt and form in issue to the Commission and the Division for review and approval. Further, she argued that the Commission's review acts as a safeguard to prevent the use of procedures that do not conform with the Casino Control Act, so that the non-submission divests the Commission of its legislative mandate to review as well as denies the respondent the statutory safeguard against the adoption of improper procedures. Also, Ms. Way argued that the use of the procedures without the Commission's approval is a serious violation even if it was not intentionally done and there was no harm by the actions, State v. Resort's International Hotel, Inc., Comm. decision, Oct. 4, 1983, aff'd, (N.J. App. Div., Feb. 26, 1985, A838-83T2) (unreported).

Frederick H. Kraus, Esq., on behalf of the Sands, argued that the legislative history relating to N.J.S.A. 5:12-99 clearly establishes that this provision was not intended to cover all internal controls regardless of the subject matter (R-1). If this was the intent of the legislation, Mr. Kraus argued that N.J.S.A. 5:12-99 would have simply provided that all internal controls had to be submitted to the Commission for approval rather than listing 17 subsections which identify the procedures that need approval.

Mr. Kraus stated that the Sands developed the procedures since its patrons were confused as to why the Sands would not accept the type of checks in issue. This procedure was reviewed by in-house counsel who advised the Sands that the Commission's approval was not necessary pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-99, since the checks were taken for custody and were not used for redemption or safe-keeping until they cleared the bank.

Further, Mr. Kraus argued that the broad interpretation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-99 advocated by Ms. Way was not justified by either the legislative history or the language in the statute. Mr. Kraus argued that the cases cited by Ms. Way are not relevant since the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-99 did not constitute the main issue in these cases.

Ms. Way disagreed and argued that the list in N.J.S.A. 5:12-99 was intended to be a guideline and this provision was intended to cover procedures not specifically listed in the statute. Additionally, Ms. Way argued that when the Sands took the checks in issue, it "accepted" them and therefore the procedures were subject to the Commission's approval and she disagreed with Mr. Kraus' argument that the Sands only took custody of the checks.

Having considered the arguments of the parties, I CONCLUDE that the procedures, receipt and form in issue should have been submitted to the Commission and Division for review and approval pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-99 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3. The provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-99 clearly indicate that the listing of procedures needing approval is not all-inclusive but only reflects examples of the type of procedures which need the Commission's approval. Since the acceptance of the checks in issue was the first step in a procedure intended to affect the patrons' gambling credit, I CONCLUDE that the procedures in issue directly relate to gaming operations and as such should have been submitted to the Commission and Division for review and approval.

B. Alleged Violations of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(b)

Ms. Way argued that the Sands adopted the procedures, receipt and form in issue in order to circumvent the statutory and regulatory requirements regarding the processing of checks contained in N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(b) She argued that there is no statutory or regulatory authority to permit the receipt and deposit of non-conforming checks while waiting for the instruments to clear the bank. Further, she argued that the non-conforming checks in issue cannot be considered to be cash equivalent as defined in N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.1.

Mr. Kraus disagreed and argued that N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(b) is clearly limited to checks accepted to enable a player to immediately gamble and that N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(b) only restates the provision of this statute. Since it is the Sands' position that it only took custody of the checks, Mr. Kraus argued that this statute and regulation do not apply to the checks in issue since the players who presented the checks did not receive immediate credit.

Based on my review of the arguments of the parties and the law, I agree with Mr. Kraus' arguments and I CONCLUDE that the respondent was not in violation of the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(b).

C. Alleged Violations of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26(a) and (f) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)(6)

It is Ms. Way's position that the acceptance of 15 of the checks in issue as part of the redemption transaction violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26(a) and (f) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)(6), and in support of her position, she cited the decision in In the Matter of the Petition of Adamar of N.J. Inc., Comm. decision, Dec. 1, 1986. She argued that the regulations clearly require contemporaneous payment for the surrender of a patron's counter check and prescribe the type of instruments that can be accepted as payment.

Mr. Kraus disagreed and argued that the redemption transaction did not take place when the Sands took custody of the custodial checks, so there was no violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26. According to Mr. Kraus, there was no redemption since the Sands did not exchange the counter check for the custodial check and also since by taking custody of the checks in issue the Sands did not affect the patrons' remaining credit limit. According to Mr. Kraus, the redemption took place only after the non-conforming checks cleared the bank. In addition, Mr. Kraus argued that there is nothing in N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26 to prevent a casino from taking "custody" of a check and that this regulation was not intended to contain an exhaustive list of the forms of equivalent value that can be given to redeem a counter check.

Mr. Kraus admitted that the checks in issue did not satisfy the requirements of N.J.S.A. 19:45-1.27(a)(6), and therefore could not be used to immediately redeem a counter check pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26. However, he argued there was no violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27 since there was no redemption until the checks cleared the bank.

After my review of the arguments and the provisions of the regulations, I agree with Mr. Kraus' arguments, and I CONCLUDE that the respondent did not violate the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26(a) and (f) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)(6).

D. Alleged Violations of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24(a)

Ms. Way argued that the five custodial checks that were accepted as safekeeping deposit transactions violated the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24(a), since the checks in issue did not meet the regulatory requirements for "cash equivalents."

Mr. Kraus argued that the Sands had not violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24(a) by taking custody of the five custodial checks since the patrons did not get any additional credit when the Sands received the checks. Mr. Kraus agreed with Ms. Way's argument that the checks in issue did not meet the definition of "cash equivalents," and he argued that for that reason, the Sands only took custody and the safekeeping deposit did not take place until after the checks cleared the bank.

Based on my review of the arguments and the provisions of the regulation, I agree with Mr. Kraus' arguments and I CONCLUDE that the respondent did not violate the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24(a).

E. Alleged Violations of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.14 and 19:45-1.15

Ms. Way argued that the Sands violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.14 and 19:45-1.15 by adopting procedures which provided for certain functions to be handled by the cage cashier in the cage which are not included in the authorized list of cage and cage cashier functions.

Mr. Kraus disagreed and argued that neither of these regulations contain an all-inclusive list of functions that may be performed in the cashier cage. Further, he argued that if the Sands had allowed the checks in issue to be accepted elsewhere, the Division would have objected and would have taken the position that the checks should have been accepted at the cage.

Based on my review of the arguments and the language of the regulations, I agree with Mr. Kraus, and I CONCLUDE that the Sands did not violate the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.14 and 19:45-1.15.

F. Proposed Penalty

To determine the penalty to be imposed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-129 and 5:12-130 for the alleged violations, Ms. Way argued that the following factors should be taken into consideration:

(1) The seriousness of the violations committed which involve the sensitive area of casino credit.

(2) The potential risk to the public and to casino operations occasioned by the use of unapproved internal controls and administrative accounting procedures regarding the acceptance of non-conforming instruments.

(3) The existence of the non-compliance for over a three-year period.

(4) There are no justifiable reasons for the violations.

(5) The existence of a prior similar violation committed by the Sands. State v. Greate Bay Hotel and Casino, Inc. et al , 11 N.J.A.R. 151 (1984) (Hong Kong case). In that matter, the Commission found that the respondent accepted 26 non-conforming instruments in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-99, 5:12-101(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24(a), and imposed a monetary penalty of $78,000.00 ($3,000.00 per violation). It is Ms. Way's position that this matter involves similar violations even though in the Hong Kong case the checks were accepted in a conference room rather than at the cage and the patrons were able to immediately use the money rather than waiting for the checks to clear the bank.

Based on the violations in this matter, Ms. Way argued that the respondent should be assessed a monetary penalty of between $128,000.00 and $187,000.00. The penalty proposed by Ms. Way consists of:

(1) For respondent's failure to submit the procedures, receipt and form in issue to the Commission and Division, in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-99(a) and N.J.A.C. 1:45.1.3(a), a penalty ranging between $20,000.00 and $25,000.00.

(2) For the respondent's adoption and implementation of procedures and the use of a receipt and form without the Commission's approval, in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-99(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3(b),a penalty ranging between $20,000.00 and $25, 000.00.

(3) For respondent's alterations of its procedures without Commission's approval, in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-99(b), a penalty ranging between $10,000.00 and $15,000.00.

(4) For respondent's failure to submit the revised procedures for Commission's approval, in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3(c), a penalty ranging between $5,000.00 and $10,000.00.

(5) For respondent's acceptance of 17 custodial checks,[3] a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-101(b) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.25(b), a range from $4,000.00 to $6,000.00 per check for a total penalty ranging between $68,000.00 and $102,000.00. Said violations are compounded by the fact that the Sands processed 15[4] of these checks as patron redemption transactions in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26(a) and (f) and 19:45-1.27(a)(6) and processed 5[5] of said checks as safekeeping deposit transactions in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.24(a).

(6) For respondent's implementation of procedures pertaining to cage and cage cashier functions, in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.14 and 19:45-1.15, a penalty between $5,000.00 and $10,000.00.

Ms. Way argued that the proposed monetary penalty range is reasonable based on the facts and is consistent with the past practices of the Commission. In 3 Count III of the Division's complaint related to 18 custodial checks reviewed by the Division during its investigation of this matter. During the discussion between the parties which resulted in the stipulation of facts, the Division agreed to withdraw its allegations as to one of the custodial checks, identified in Count III, para 37, item #17.

4 The 15 checks include the 12 checks accepted just for redemption as well as the 3 checks submitted for both redemption and safekeeping.

5 The 5 checks include the 2 checks accepted just for safekeeping as well as the 3 checks sumbitted for obth redemption and safekeeping.

support of her position, she cited the Hong Kong case, as a prior similar violation by the Sands (assessment of a penalty of $3,000.00 for each of twenty-six non-conforming checks). See, also, State v. Playboy-Elsinore Associates, et al, 11 N.J.A.R. 192 (1984) (assessment of a penalty of $4,000.00 for each of thirteen non-conforming checks); State v. GNOC, OAL DKT. CCC 162-88 (February 16, 1989), adpted by Comm., April 17, 1989 (assessment of a penalty of $50,000.00 for implementing revised clearing dates for checks without the Commission's approval); and State v. Harrah's Associates, t/a Trump Casino Hotel, OAL DKT. CCC 524-87 (August 9, 1988), adopted by Comm., December 19, 1988 (assessment of a penalty which included $100,000.00 for off-site redemptions, $10,000.00 for improperly establishing a patron's cash deposit account; $10,000.00 for failing to submit and obtain approval for the redemption procedures; and $20,000.00 for allowing a collection agent to perform the functions of a general cashier).

Mr. Kraus argued that the Sands did not violate any of the statutes and/or regulations cited in the complaint; however, he argued that if the respondent is determined to have violated any of the statutes and/or regulations, only a nominal monetary fine should be imposed. According to Mr. Kraus, the procedures, receipt and form in issue did not present any risk to the public or the integrity of gaming operations, and the Sands' action was not an intentional violation of the law. Mr. Kraus argued that the Sands acted in good faith after it sought the advice of counsel. In additon, Mr. Kraus stated that the Division took no action when it initially found out about the procedures in issue and he argued that this meant the Division did not consider this matter to involve serious violations of the Casino Control Act. Mr. Kraus stated when the Sands found out about the Division's positon regarding the procedures, receipt and form in issue, it immediately discontinued taking custody of any such checks.

Also, Mr. Kraus disputed the Division's representation that this matter constituted a second violation and argued that this matter is clearly distinguishable from the Hong Kong case. In the Hong Kong case, the patrons got immediate credit which could be used for gambling and the transactions did not take place in the cage. According to Mr. Kraus, the fact that the procedures in issue required these checks to be accepted in the cage is further evidence that the Sands thought the procedure was consistent with the law. Also, Mr. Kraus argued that the required use of the cage is a mitigating factor since it is the appropriate place for such action, not an aggravating factor as argued by Ms. Way.

Ms. Way stated that the Division did not consider the fact that the transfer took place in the cage to be an aggravating factor as to the amount of penalties for taking the checks in issue, but that the Division considers this use of the cage to be separate violations.

IV - Disposition

Based on my understanding of this matter, the prime objection of the Division is not the substance of the procedures developed by the Sands but the fact that the procedures, the form and the receipt, and amendments thereto, were not submitted to the Commission and the Division for review and approval before they were used. From the facts in the record, it appears likely that if the procedures had been submitted to the Commission and the Division, they would have been approved.

Although, I have concluded that the procedures, the form and the receipt should have been submitted to the Commission and the Division pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-99 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3, I recognize that the Sands did not think that it needed the prior approval of the Commission. For that reason, the facts in this matter are clearly distinguishable from those in the Hong Kong case.

Based on the record, I CONCLUDE that the Sands should pay a penalty for its violations of N.J.S.A. 5:12-99 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3, and I CONCLUDE that the penalty should be:

(1) $25,000 for the respondent's failure to submit the procedures, form and receipt to the Commission and Division for review and approval, including the amendments to said procedures, in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-99 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.3, and

(2) $51,000 for the implementation of said procedures, and the use of the procedures, form and receipt without the prior approval of the Commission, specifically the acceptance of 17 custodial checks in issue ($3000 per check).

Since the Sands has ceased taking the types of checks in issue, there is no need for any other relief. As noted during the oral argument, the Sands can at its option submit the procedures, form and receipt to the Commission and the Division for review if it wishes in the future to resume taking such checks.

Therefore, I ORDER the Sands to pay a total penalty of $76,000.00.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

James Schwerin, Esq., Senior Assistant Counsel for respondent Casino Control Commission

Record Closed: June 13, 1990 Decided: August 29, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

Casinos are licensed and regulated in New Jersey pursuant to the Casino Control Act (Act). N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. Section 144 of the Act imposes a gross revenue tax upon casinos. Section 149 of the Act formerly provided for the State Treasurer to audit casinos for tax purposes. In 1987, Section 149 was amended to substitute the Casino Control Commission for the State Treasurer. Subsequent to the amendment, Commission staff audited and then assessed the petitioners, alleging that an additional gross revenue tax over and above what the casinos had already reported and paid, was due and owing. The petitioners requested a hearing and the matters were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as contested cases pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

The matter transmitted under docket number 3018-89 is an audit of Resorts for the period January 1, 1979 to January 2, 1983 and the period January 1, 1983 to December 31, 1983. The matter transmitted under docket number 3019-89 is an audit of the Sands for the period 1982 through 1985. The matter transmitted under docket number 9257-89 is an audit of Resorts for 1988. These matters were consolidated for plenary hearing on March 6, 1989. The Order of Consolidation mistakenly included a matter transmitted under docket number 980-90, an audit of the Sands revenues for 1988. At the plenary hearing, this matter was continued without date.

An amended prehearing order was issued on August 25, 1989 which identified the issues to be determined at a plenary hearing as follows:

A. Whether the methodology used by the Commission in performing the gross revenue audits for Resorts International for the years 1979, 1980 and 1983 was appropriate?

B. Whether the methodology used by the Commission in performing the gross revenue audits for Greate Bay for the years 1982, 1983 and 1985 was appropriate?

C. Whether the aforesaid methodology, if appropriate, produced an accurate tax calculation for each of the enumerated years?

D. Whether the interest calculated to be due and owing is accurate?

E. Whether the audits issued to petitioners were authorized by the Commission prior to issuance?

F. Whether the respondent is time barred from asserting petitioners additional tax liability or any portion thereof?

The matter of the Resorts audit for 1988, docket number 9257-89, should have appeared in issue A, and A is hereby amended to include 1988.

On March 29, 1990, an Order denying Motions for Summary Judgment was entered.

On June 13, 1990, after 6 days of plenary hearing, the record closed.

The Casino Control Commission, at the request of the undersigned, extended the time within which to file an initial decision.

If accounting is the art of organizing and presenting financial data, then auditing is a form of criticism. Unlike the rules governing art and art criticism however, the rules governing accounting and auditing functions are "generally accepted." This case involves an application of the generally accepted rules governing auditing; whether an assumption made by the Commission staff in designing a portion of the gross revenue tax audit was contemplated by, or permissible under, these rules, or whether it was not. This is the primary issue, the rest are fall back positions.

A casino's gross revenue upon which the tax in question is calculated is the change in its net assets as a result of gaming transactions. These changes reflect the win or loss at the gaming tables.

A typical gaming table has a box affixed to it called a "drop box". The drop box can be thought of as a kind of piggy bank. It holds both cash taken in at the table in exchange for chips and the counter checks of customers who play at the casino on credit. A counter check is simply a credit instrument in the form of a bank check. The drop box can only be opened during a ceremony attended by a staff member of the Casino Control Commission.

In order to calculate a table's win or loss one adds the cash and credit instruments in the drop box to obtain the total "drop" for that table. From this sum one deducts the difference between the beginning table inventory (chips) and the ending table inventory adjusted for chip transfers, either in or out. Chip transfers occur because gamblers can carry chips from table to table. When too many chips are walked away from a table, the replacement chips are called a "fill." Conversely, if many chips are lost by a player to a table, the excess chips are removed and a credit is issued to the table. Thus, a $2000 win for a table might appear as follows:

Cash in drop box			$6000
Credit issued and outstanding			3000
			$9000
Less: Beginning table inventory		$14,000
Chip transfers
Fills		5,000
Credits		(1,000)
		$18,000
Ending table inventory		(11,000)
Win			$2,000

The total of each table's win or loss is calculated daily. These totals are reported monthly to the Casino Control Commission. A check for the tax due accompanies the report. At year end the petitioners employ super accounting firms to prepare financial statements, among other things. These statements indicate adjustments, if any, to taxes paid.

The Commission staff elected to audit the petitioner's books and records in order to determine if the petitioners had correctly stated gross revenues. In other words, had the petitioners paid sufficient taxes?

Both the super accounting firms and the Commission's staff rely upon sampling techniques in the performance of audits because the financial data generated each year by a casino operation must number in the millions of individual items. Whether samples accurately predict or not is a specialized field. Experts are often employed to create or to test sampling techniques which purport to accomplish audit objectives; i.e., the purpose of the audits.

In this case, it was necessary for the auditors to verify the contents of drop boxes, since it was from drop boxes that significant revenues were obtained. As described above, players counter checks are deposited into the drop boxes. Commission staff designed a sampling technique which purports "to provide the Commission with 95% assurance (confidence level) that the errors do not exceed 2% (upper precision limit) of the documents being examined." Counter checks are prenumbered. Pursuant to the design the staff selected random numbers within the set of prenumbered counter checks utilized during the audit year in question for the audit. It discovered that some were missing. Staff determined that the missing counter checks represented taxable transactions. It estimated the value of the missing documents from some average of the known documents. In statistics this whole process is called extrapolation. Unless the process is carefully designed however, it may result in mere conjecture or wild surmise.

Commission staff's rationale for assuming that the missing counter checks represented taxable transactions is based upon an apparently salutory reasoning process. To begin with, the regulations promulgated pursuant to the Casino Control Act require casinos to maintain financial documents until the Commission approves their destruction. A penalty is prescribed for their destruction (or loss) without Commission approval. N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.8 and N.J.S.A. 5:12-129. No such approval was granted to either petitioner for its counter checks.The tax imposed upon casinos is for the public benefit. N.J.S.A. 5:12-144. Therefore, staff reasoned, since the casinos cannot produce documents which they were obligated to maintain, they are not entitled to the benefit of the doubt and the burden should be upon the casinos to show that the documents do not reflect taxable transactions.

This reasoning process correctly states the burden of proof. The burden is upon the petitioners to show that the assessment is not valid. Pantasote Co. v. City of Passaic, 100 N.J. 408 (1985); a case dealing with a property assessment; Duncan Truck Stop, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 4 N.J. Tax 367 (Tax Ct. 1982), dealing with a motor fuel tax.

In this case, petitioners have met the burden. They have established that the ceremonies and rituals which are performed upon counter checks preclude the missing counter checks from rational consideration as ever having been revenues.

The following is the briefest of descriptions of the internal controls employed by the petitioners in tracking counter checks. It should also be pointed out that safekeeping withdrawal forms are tracked in a similar fashion. Safekeeping withdrawal forms are used when a player draws from her own funds or deposit with the cashier, rather than on credit. Counter checks are used for credit play only Apparently some safekeeping withdrawal forms were also missing.

First, the credit player must open an account by establishing an approved line of credit. When the player wishes to draw upon the line of credit, the player does so by notifying the casino clerk who verifies that the player has credit by making a telephone call to the marker bank. The clerk then fills out a four part counter check showing the player's name and bank, the game, table number, current date and time. The amount of credit (chips) is then entered and the pit boss, the player and the clerk all sign the counter check. The clerk then verifies the player's signature via the display unit at the pit terminal. Color coded Lammar buttons, which signify various amounts, are then displayed on the table representing the exact amount of the transaction. The Lammar buttons are for the benefit of the surveillance cameras recording the transaction. The fourth copy of the counter check is placed on the table and the dealer then gives the player the correct amount of chips. The fourth copy of the counter check is then deposited in the drop box. The first and second copies of the counter checks are sent to the Fill Bank via pneumatic tubes. The third copy is retained in the pit until the end of the day when it is sent along to accounting with void counter checks. The Fill Bank cashier, upon receipt of the first and second copies of the counter check, fills out a three part prenumbered check credit slip, keeps the first part, and sends the second part to the casino clerk. The first and second copies of the counter check then go to the marker bank cashier. The Marker Bank cashier lists counter checks on the pit check control and files the counter check parts in an envelope. At the end of the shift, the Marker Bank cashier is responsible for determining if the total of counter checks agrees with the total of check credit slips. In the meantime, the casino clerk receives the second copy of the check credit slip, gets it signed by the pit supervisor and dealer and puts it into the drop box. Then the color coded Lammar buttons are removed from the table and play resumes.

At the end of the day the drop boxes are removed from the tables by security and taken to the soft count room. There, a ritual is performed over each and every drop box. First, its number is shown to the TV camera. Then the contents of the drop box are dumped out onto the soft count table. Then the box is held up again to the camera eye in order to show the camera that the box is empty.

The contents of the box are calculated and entered upon the Master Game Report (MGR). The entire ritual is performed under the eye of a Commission representative who then memorializes his or her presence by signing the MGR. The MGR's are the basic documents reflecting the win or loss at a casino. Even if a counter check is eventually dishonored by a player, it is nevertheless considered revenue. Uncollected patron's checks are taken into consideration in the definition of "Gross Revenue." N.J.S.A. 5:12-24.

It is readily apparent, that if the internal controls described in depth at the hearing and briefly described above were in place, then if the missing counter checks were placed into the drop box, they were counted as revenue and the taxes were paid upon them. If they are missing now, the casino may be liable for a penalty for a violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.8, but they cannot be considered as additional revenue over and above what has already been taxed, and the tax paid.

But what if they were not placed into the drop box? That is the darker side of this case. Does one immediately assume that the petitioners are getting away with tax free income? There is no hint, however, let alone an allegation, that some evil was afoot. The Commission staff, in answers to interrogatories propounded by Resorts, conceded this point. The concession was extended to the Sands at trial during the examination of William H. Delaney, Director of the Division of Financial Evaluations and Control for the Commission. He also acknowledged that the interest was incorrectly calculated.

The internal controls instituted by the petitioners, which were approved by the Commission, and which have been examined by the petitioner's accountants and examined again by the Commission staff, are asserted to be without material weaknesses. The relevant transactions of both Resorts and Sands were subject to being witnessed by floor and pit personnel and by surveillance. The relevant transactions were validated and analyzed by personnel in the casino cage and in the accounting department. They were signed off by casino personnel at each stage. Commission staff witnesses the final tally of counter checks in the soft count room. The controls would certainly have indicated the existence of stray counter checks. This is especially true if, as the Commission alleges, Resorts, for instance, lost more than 7,258 such documents representing more than seven and a half million dollars worth of revenues.

It is apparent that Commission staff did not consider internal controls in planning the examination or in evaluating the results of audit procedures applied. Government Auditing Standards and generally accepted auditing standards require that such considerations be given. Absent such planning, the assessment is a "naked assessment" and neither valid nor entitled to a presumption of correctness. United States v. Janis, 428 U.S. 433, 441-442 (1976); Weimerskirch v. Commissioner of IRS, 596 F.2d 358 (9th Cir. 1979).

What did happen to the missing documents? Peter Burns, Vice President of Finance and Treasurer of Bally's Grand Casino Hotel and formerly Vice President of Finance at Resorts testified that he believed that through neglect or oversight on the part of the pit clerks, the missing counter checks were voided by the pit clerks and, rather than returning them to the casino clerk at the end of the day, they were simply thrown into the trash. He testified that he had been told that this was so by a pit boss and several pit clerks. This is the best, and most rational explanation given to account for the missing counter checks. It is corroborated by the fact that being thrown in the trash is apparently the only way that a counter check would not appear in the internal controls.

Therefore I FIND that the missing documents do not reflect untaxed revenue.

Petitioners cite the Administrative Procedures Act (N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq.) and cases appertaining thereto as an additional reason for invalidating the assessment, citing for instance Metromedia, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 97 N.J. 313 (1984). Metromedia develops the standards by which an agency determines when to promulgate and when to adjudicate a rule. It is totally inappropriate however, for the Casino Control Commission, or any other State agency including the Treasury, to make any rule effecting generally accepted auditing principles.

One thing more, the Commission may wish to perform another audit upon the petitioners. It is not barred from doing so by N.J.S.A. 5:12-68. The statute merely bars an action for collection in state and federal courts. Since the Act permits the Commission to collect license fees and taxes at relicensing hearings, the Commission may determine and redetermine tax assessments at any time so long as the taxpayer remains a licensed casino in this State. The statute is obviously intended to limit actions against casinos which are no longer subject to the Casino Control Commission. Of course, the audit must be in accord with generally accepted auditing standards.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that:

A. The methodology used by the Commission in performing the gross revenue audits for Resorts International for the years 1979, 1980, 1983 and 1988 was not appropriate.

B. The methodology used by the Commission in performing the gross revenue audits for Greate Bay for the years 1982, 1983 and 1985 was not appropriate.

C. The aforesaid methodology did not produce an accurate tax calculation for each of the enumerated years.

D. The Commission acknowledged at the hearing that it had not calculated the interest properly. Since there is no tax presently due and owing, the issue is rendered moot in any case.

E. Since the audits are invalid on generally accepted auditing principles, there is no necessity to determine whether the audits were authorized by the Commission.

F. The Commission is not time barred from asserting additional tax liability against the petitioners.

It is ORDERED that the assessments, being invalid, are DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: July 24, 1990 Decided: September 7, 1990

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the letter filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on December 4, 1989, objecting to the issuance of a casino employee license to the petitioner, Anthony J Gulite, Jr. The petitioner requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on January 31, 1990, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A telephone prehearing conference was held on April 9, 1990, and the parties agreed that the issues in this matter are:

A. Whether the petitioner was convicted of a crime in 1976, which is equivalent to a listed statutory disqualifier in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c.

B. Whether in view of his criminal record, the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

C. Whether the petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

At the prehearing conference, the respondent was represented by Deputy Attorney General Charles F. Kimmel; however, Deputy Attorney General James J. Armstrong presented the Division's case at the hearing.

The hearing took place on July 24, 1990, at the Office of Administrative Law in the Atlantic County Courthouse, and the record in the matter closed on that date.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

I FIND the facts in this matter are not in dispute.

The Division showed that the petitioner has the following criminal record:

(1) As a juvenile, Mr. Gulite was arrested in 1970 for shoplifting. The petitioner disclosed this arrest on his personal history disclosure form and indicated that he was not convicted of this offense.

(2) On June 4, 1976, the petitioner was arrested for contributing to the delinquency of a minor after the police discovered two minor females in the petitioner's car (R-4). The petitioner was not convicted of this offense and he did not disclose the arrest on his personal history disclosure form. He acknowledged the arrest during his interview with the Division's representative.

(3) On October 23, 1976, the petitioner was arrested and indicted for the possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute (marijuana), and employing a juvenile in a drug distribution scheme (R-2, R-3). According to the investigation report, the petitioner and a female juvenile were selling marijuana from the petitioner's vehicle. In 1977, Mr. Gulite entered a guilty plea to the possession of a controlled dangerous substance and possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute (R-3). Mr. Gulite was given a suspended prison term, was placed on three years probation and ordered to perform community service. Mr. Gulite disclosed this conviction on his personnel history disclosure form. During his interview with the Division's representative and at the hearing, the petitioner indicated that he was setup by the persons from whom he had purchased the marijuana since they were seeking a more favorable plea bargaining arrangement as to their own criminal charges.

(4) On February 6, 1977, the petitioner was arrested for theft by receiving stolen property (R-5). After he was indicted, Mr. Gulite was acquitted on this charge (R-6) and he represented that he and the driver had the permission on the owner's wife to use the vehicle. Mr. Gulite disclosed this arrest on his personal history disclosure form.

(5) On December 23, 1980, Mr. Gulite was indicted for theft by receiving stolen property (R-7); however, there was no conviction. The petitioner failed to disclose this arrest on his personal history disclosure form but acknowledged the arrest during his interview with the Division's representative.

(6) On September 17, 1981, Mr. Gulite was charged with aggravated assault (R-8). The complaint was filed by his female friend. The charge was later downgraded to simple assault and subsequently dismissed. Mr. Gulite did not disclose this arrest on his personal history disclosure form, but admitted the arrest during the interview with the Division's representative. According to Mr. Gulite, this matter resulted from a domestic dispute.

(7) On February 5, 1983, the petitioner was arrested and charged with the unlawful taking of an automobile (R-9). The charge was later dismissed. The petitioner did not disclose this arrest on his personal history disclosure form but acknowledged the arrest during his interview with the Division's representative.

(8) On February 28, 1983, the petitioner was arrested and charged with harassment (R-10). Mr. Gulite did not disclose this arrest on his personal history disclosure form but acknowledged the arrest during the interview with the Division's representative. According to Mr. Gulite, a female friend was harassing him by phone and he retaliated. The complaint was later dismissed.

(9) On August 20, 1983, Mr. Gulite was arrested and indicted for terroristic threats (R-11). Apparently Mr. Gulite called in a bomb scare to a 7-11 store where he was employed. Mr. Gulite stated that he made the phone call as a joke; however, the police were called and he was arrested. The petitioner pled guilty to the downgraded charge of harassment (R-12). The petitioner was sentenced to one year probation and fined $200.00. Since Mr. Gulite did not pay the fine within the period specified, his probationary period was extended. Mr. Gulite disclosed this arrest on his personal history disclosure form.

(10) On August 31, 1988, the petitioner was indicted by the United States District Court for the Middle District of Florida and charged with nine counts of making false statements to a federally licensed firearm dealer and of receiving firearms transported in interstate and foreign commerce (R-13). Mr. Gulite stated that he is a gun collector and while in Florida on vacation he purchased seven firearms for approximately $4,000.00. He was requested to fill out a permit application and Mr. Gulite stated that he misunderstood the questions relating to his criminal record. Mr. Gulite plead guilty to one count of receiving a firearm which had been transported in interstate and foreign commerce and was placed on probation for five years (R-14, R-15, R--16). Mr. Gulite is still serving this period of probation.

In 1984, the petitioner received a casino hotel employee registration, and between March - April 1984, he was employed by the Atlantis Hotel and Casino as a bus person. This employment was terminated for insubordination. From May through August 1984, the petitioner was employed by the Sands Hotel Casino and Country Club as a bar porter. Mr. Gulite was terminated after he refused to accept a transfer to another position. Between October 1988 and March 1989, the petitioner was employed by Caesars Boardwalk Regency Hotel and Casino as a bar porter. Mr. Gulite quit this job to take a better paying position. From March to May 1989, the petitioner was employed by Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino as a service person. He was terminated from this position for unsatisfactory work performance. Mr. Gulite alleged that his Columbian supervisor had him fired so that he could hire a Columbian. For about one year starting in May 1989, the petitioner was employed by Claridge Hotel and Casino as a parking attendant. Thereafter for about three months, Mr. Gulite worked as a bar porter at the Trump Taj Mahal Hotel and Casino.

At the time of the hearing, the petitioner was unemployed. Mr. Gulite stated that his girlfriend is helping to support him and he is trying to start a business selling and buying baseball cards. Mr. Gulite is presently 35 years old, divorced, and has a dependent daughter.

With funds from a federal employment program, Mr. Gulite attended the Boardwalk and Marina Casino Dealer School in 1988. He has completed the course in blackjack. Mr. Gulite has applied for a casino employee license because he wants a better job as a casino blackjack dealer.

On his own behalf, Mr. Gulite argued that a substantial period of time has elapsed since many of the arrests reflected in his criminal record and that some of the arrests were due to harassment by local police officials. Mr. Gulite argued that he is now rehabilitated.

On behalf of the Division, Mr. Armstrong argued that the 1977 drug conviction is a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c. Further, Mr. Armstrong argued that because of his criminal record, the petitioner cannot at this time show that he is rehabilitated or that he is a person of good character, honesty and integrity as required for casino licensure.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Having reviewed the facts, I agree with Mr. Armstrong's argument and I CONCLUDE that the Division has established a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c. The 1977 conviction for the possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute, is comparable to a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5 and is a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). Since the Division has established a statutory disqualifier, the next issue is whether the petitioner has shown rehabilitation. Although the statutory disqualifier occurred more than 10 years ago, there have been several later criminal convictions, and the petitioner has presented no witnesses or exhibits to support his allegation of rehabilitation. Mr. Gulite has taken a blackjack dealer course in order to get a better job; however, to date he has a poor employment record in the casino industry. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Gulite at this time cannot show that he is rehabilitated pursuant to the standards set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. For the same reasons, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Gulite has not shown that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b. In addition, I recognize that the Division in its complaint did not allege a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b based on the petitioner's failure to fully disclose his criminal record on his personal history disclosure form. However, I CONCLUDE that his failure to disclose his entire criminal record, does negatively reflect on the petitioner's good character, honesty and integrity.

Therefore, I ORDER that the recommendation of the Division that Anthony J. Gulite, Jr., be denied a casino employee license be AFFIRMED.

forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

MICHAEL HELGELAND,
Petitioner,
v.
STATE OF NEW JERSEY, DEPARTMENT OF LAW AND PUBLIC SAFETY, DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT,
Respondent.

Michael Helgeland, petitioner, pro se

Ralph L. Fusco, Deputy Attorney General, for the respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: July 30, 1990 Decided: September 13, 1990

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the letter filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on August 25, 1989, objecting to the issuance of a casino employee license to the petitioner, Michael Helgeland. The petitioner requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on October 26, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A telephone prehearing conference was held on February 26, 1990, and the parties agreed that the issues in this matter are:

A. Whether the petitioner, with specific reference to his record of arrests, has failed to reveal any facts material to qualification for casino employee licensure within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

At the prehearing conference, the respondent was represented by Deputy Attorney General Charles F. Kimmel; however, Deputy Attorney General Ralph L. Fusco presented the Division's case at the hearing.

The hearing took place on July 30, 1990, at the Office of Administrative Law in the Atlantic County Courthouse, and the record in the matter closed on that date.

I FIND the facts in this matter are not in dispute.

The Division showed at the hearing that the petitioner has the following criminal record (R-3):

(1) The petitioner was arrested on June 21, 1973 by an Asbury Park police officer and charged with the possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana), a violation comparable with the current provisions in N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10. After being convicted of this offense, the petitioner was given a six-month conditional discharge and fined $50.00.

(2) The petitioner was arrested on January 6, 1974 by an Ocean Township police officer and was charged with the possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana), a violation comparable with the current provisions in N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10. The petitioner was found guilty, was fined $100.00 and was ordered to pay $25.00 in court costs.

(3) On January 14, 1982, the petitioner was arrested by an Ocean Township police officer and charged with terroristic threats, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-3, after the petitioner allegedly had threatened his wife. The matter was dismissed on January 25, 1982.

(4) On January 26, 1985, the petitioner was arrested by an Ocean Township police officer and charged with issuing a bad check, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-5. According to the petitioner, he thought he had enough money in his account to cover the check when he gave the check to his local Foodtown store. The petitioner was convicted of this offense and ordered to pay a $25.00 fine, $25.00 in court costs and $25.00 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board.

(5) On August 3, 1986, the petitioner was arrested for disorderly conduct, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:33-2. According to the petitioner, he and his girlfriend were having an argument and the police were called. The petitioner was convicted of this offense and fined $60.00.

In addition to the above criminal charges, the petitioner was twice arrested for drunk driving in Ocean Township, a violation of N.J.S.A. 39:4-50. The first arrest was on March 9, 1974, at which time the respondent's driver license was suspended for two years and he was fined $200.00. The second arrest took place on June 13, 1982 at which time his driver license was suspended for two years and he had to pay a fine of $500.00.

On his application for a casino employee license (R-1), the petitioner listed only the 1986 disorderly persons conviction.

Mr. Helgeland stated that he filled out his casino employee license application at home, and that it took him a while to complete the form . He had to check his records to get some information and he needed time to recall his former positions. The petitioner stated that he tried to fill out the form accurately.

The petitioner admitted that when he was filling out his application for a casino employee license, he recalled the two marijuana convictions; however, he did not list them because he considered them unimportant since they occurred a long time ago while he was in high school, and also because he felt that having too many arrests and convictions on his record might result in the denial of his application. Mr. Helgeland admitted that he withheld information about the same two arrests when he applied to join the navy.

As to the 1982 terroristic threat arrest, and the 1985 bad check arrest and conviction, the petitioner stated that he had forgotten about these matters at the time he filled out the application form. As to the two drunken driving offenses, Mr. Helgeland stated that he did not think he had to list motor vehicle violations on his application. The petitioner has had no arrests or convictions since 1986.

James T. Minniti, an investigator employed by the Division, was assigned to check the petitioner's application. On June 5, 1988, Mr. Minniti spoke to the petitioner and reviewed with him the information contained in his application. At that time, the petitioner stated that he had only one arrest and conviction, namely the 1986 disorderly persons offense which he listed on his application. When confronted by Mr. Minniti with the other arrests and convictions, the petitioner admitted that he recalled the two marijuana offenses and stated that he had not listed them because they happened a long time ago and were minor matters.

On his own behalf, Mr. Helgeland stated that he is 36 years old, divorced, and lives with his son (a minor). Mr. Helgeland is currently unemployed and is receiving welfare benefits. The petitioner's last job was working for a restaurant in the Port-O-Call Hotel as a dishwasher. Mr. Helgeland held this position for approximately one year and was fired for poor attendance. Prior to that time, Mr. Helgeland had a job working for a landscaping business. In the summer of 1988, the petitioner took a slot mechanic course at the Atlantic County Community College. According to the petitioner, the State paid for him to take this course and he received a certification that he completed the program. Mr. Helgeland has not worked for the casino industry and he applied for the casino employee license so that he could get a position as a slot mechanic. The petitioner stated that it would be a waste of state money if he is not allowed to get the type of job he was trained for.

Mr. Helgeland stated that he would like to improve his life and he would like to get a new start with a good job. The petitioner stated that he is a person of good character, honesty and integrity.

In closing, Mr. Fusco suggested that the petitioner did what many people try to do, namely, minimize his criminal record since he felt it might reflect negatively on him and prevent him from getting a casino employee license. Mr. Fusco argued that the petitioner fully completed other portions of the application form; however, he knowingly did not list all of his criminal offenses. Mr. Fusco argued that Mr. Helgeland's failure to list all of his criminal arrests and convictions on his application form constitutes a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b. Further, Mr. Fusco argued that because of his failure to reveal his entire criminal record, the petitioner could not show that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Casino Control Act provides that a person shall be disqualified from casino employee licensure if he or she fails "to reveal any fact material to qualification," N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b. In this matter, the Division has shown that the petitioner intentionally did not reveal part of his criminal record since he was afraid that these arrests and convictions might adversely affect his chances to obtain a casino employee license. Also, I question Mr. Helgeland's representation that he forgot about the terroristic threat and bad check incidents. I accept the petitioner's representation that he did not think he had to list on the application form the two motor vehicle offenses. Based on my reading of Question 16 of the application form (R-1), it is clear that most people would assume that this question relates to criminal arrests and convictions and does not include motor vehicle offenses. However, I question Mr. Helgeland's representation that he forgot about the terroristic threat and bad check incidents. Based on the facts, I agree with Mr. Fusco's argument and I CONCLUDE that the Division has established a statutory disqualification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b.

In addition, based on Mr. Helgeland's lack of candor in filling out his application for a casino employee license, I CONCLUDE that at this time Mr. Helgeland cannot show that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

Therefore I ORDER that the recommendation of the Division that Michael Helgeland be denied a casino employee license be AFFIRMED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Guy S. Michael, Esq., on behalf of respondent (Brown & Michael, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 29, 1990 Decided: April 20, 1990

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of petitioner's objection to respondent's licensure as a casino employee and to his continued employment in the casinos as a registrant pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. Respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A hearing was conducted on March 29, 1990, after which the record closed.

The questions presented are whether respondent was convicted of aggravated assault in the third degree, N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(2), a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c; whether he possesses the good character required for licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and whether he can demonstrate rehabilitation with respect to the license sought, and/or his registration pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h or 91d.

The basic facts are undisputed. Respondent is 39 years old. He has a long criminal record going back to 1970. Respondent's offenses include assaults, weapons possession, causing disturbances, indecent exposure, and interfering with and eluding police. The last of his offenses occurred in 1985 and resulted in a conviction for aggravated assault in the third degree. He was sentenced to serve 364 days in the Cape May County Jail for this offense, was placed on two years' probation and was required to make restitution in the amount of $782. He violated probation in April 1987 when he failed to make payment as required.

Respondent testified that he was ashamed of his prior criminal record which was fueled by a poor attitude, unhealthy associations and a drinking problem. When he was released from prison in 1985 he decided to make a new start and sought employment in the casinos. In August 1986 respondent went to work at Bally's Grand Hotel and Casino cleaning up public areas in the hotel. He now lives alone in Atlantic City; he has substantially reduced his drinking and no longer goes to bars at all, and does not see any of the people with whom he previously socialized. Respondent testified that his sole desire is to continue working and to develop the sense of self-respect which comes from work. He testified that he has never had a disciplinary problem with his employer.

Jerome Conforto has been a supervisor of housekeeping at Bally's for nine years and he has supervised respondent. He testified that respondent treats guests well, has a positive attitude and when called upon does extra work. He described respondent as a responsible individual with whom he has never had a day's trouble. This is the substance of the record.

Respondent acknowledged that he was convicted of a statutory disqualifier in 1985 and that he has a criminal record spanning 15 years. His burden here is a heavy one. Nevertheless, he has had no record of criminal involvement since 1985 and has been successfully employed at Bally's since August 1986. Respondent was credible when he testified that he was ashamed of his former behavior and that he had redirected his life. He presently cleans up the public areas of the hotel and with a casino employee license he could extend this work to the casino floor. Respondent appears to understand that alcoholism and peer influences were among the root causes of his prior behavior. Additionally, at age 39 he seems to appreciate the contrast between his former and present life-styles. While it might be more comforting if respondent's good conduct extended a few more years as a balance to his prior history, to deny his license application or revoke his registration on this basis would be to approach rehabilitation mechanically. It appears that respondent is in the process of redirecting himself, and it would do him a great disservice to now take from him the very thing which buttresses his resolve. The public interest seems little at risk by this.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that respondent has established that he is a person of good character and that he has been rehabilitated from his statutory disqualifier as well as from his prior criminal conduct. It is ORDERED that he be permitted to retain his casino registration and that he be awarded a casino employee license.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

JOHN L. ITRI, JR.,

Respondent.

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions and a reply to exceptions having been filed; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meetings of August 22, 1990 and September 12, 1990,

IT IS on this 21st day of September 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> In determining whether an offense is disqualifying pursuant to section 86(c)(2), the "rehabilitation" factors listed in section 90(h) are to be considered. Davis v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985). In his initial decision the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) analyzed those factors and determined that the respondent's offense of possession of CDS was inimical to his continued licensure.

> We agree with the ALJ that the respondent's admitted possession of CDS on casino premises raises serious concerns about his fitness for continued licensure and that the seriousness of this offense is not outweighed by the mitigating and rehabilitative evidence presented. However, because the respondent's 1986 offense of distribution of CDS must be analyzed in terms of the same section 90(h) factors, the ALJ erred in finding the respondent rehabilitated from that offense. Accordingly, we find that the respondent failed to demonstrate his rehabilitation from the offense of distribution of CDS and reject the ALJ's conclusion to the contrary.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent's casino employee license is revoked substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision, which as modified, is incorporated herein by reference; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that John L. Itri, Jr. is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any license, registration, qualification or approval under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

v.

Record Closed: September 5, 1989 Decided: June 28, 1990

BEFORE RICHARD J. MURPHY, ALJ:

Statement of the Case

The Division of Gaming Enforcement filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on December 30, 1988 seeking to revoke the Casino Employee License of respondent John L. Itri, Jr., pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86, 89-91, 107-108, 129-130, because of his guilty plea to distribution of a controlled dangerous substance (CDS). Respondent currently holds casino employee license number 01692-21 and is employed by the Sands Hotel/Casino as a floorperson. On or about April 2, 1986, respondent was indicted for distribution of a CDS, conspiracy to distribute, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-19(a)(1), 21-24, comparable to distribution. Respondent plead guilty to distribution of a CDS.*

State of the Issues

(1) Whether the respondent is disqualified from holding a license/registration under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(a), because of convictions for the offense of distribution if a CDS; (2) whether the licensee can demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:1290h/91d; (3) whether the licensee can demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), and 90b, considering the above factors of rehabilitation.

Findings of Fact

The material facts are not in dispute. The parties stipulate to exhibits P-3 through P-5, which are the indictment for distribution of a CDS and conspiracy to distribute, the judgment of conviction as to distribution, and the plea retraction in Superior Court. The indictment charges that or about the 9th day of December 1985 and 24th day of January 1986 in Winslow Township, John L. Itri, Jr., distributed a CDS in the form of cocaine to one George Snyder, and that he conspired to do so with a John R. Marcucci on January 24, 1986. Mr. Itri retracted this plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to Count II, distribution of a CDS, based on N.J.S.A. 24:21-19(a)1. He was sentenced to five years probation with conditions that he receive drug and alcohol evaluation and treatment and any follow-up as necessary. He was also required to perform 300 hours of community service at a rate 60 hours per year, and pay $30 to the Violent Crimes Board, as well as a fine of $750. Count I as to distribution and Count III as to conspiracy were dismissed. The sentencing Judge noted as aggravating factors, the risk that the defendant would commit another offense; that there is a substantial likelihood that the defendant was involved in organized criminal activity; and the need for deterring the defendant from violating

* As to procedural history, this matter was filed with the Office of Administrative Law on February 22, 1989 for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., and the prehearing was held on May 1, 1989, with a prehearing issued on May 23, 1989. The hearing was held in Galloway Township on August 18, 1989 and the record closed on September 5, after receipt of post-trial briefs. The due date for submission of the initial decision was extended on several occasions for reasons not related to this case and I regret any hardship or inconvenience that this unavoidable delay may have caused the parties.

the law as mitigating, the judge noted that the defendant had no history of prior delinquency or criminal activity and had led a law abiding life for a substantial period of time before commission of the present offense and will participate in program of community service, is particularly likely to respond affirmatively to probationary treatment, and imprisonment of the defendant will entail excessive hardship to himself or his dependents. At the plea retraction on October 6, 1986 in Camden, the respondent stated under oath that he knowingly gave George Snyder cocaine on January 24, 1986.

The Division submitted two police reports, which were admitted over the respondent's objection grounded on hearsay. In an operation report dated December 9, 1985, Detective Cuomo of the Winslow Township Police Department stated that a report from a "employee - - informer"George Snyder, had been received stating that John Itri came to Mr. Snyder's place of work, asked Snyder if he got "high," and, when Snyder indicated that he did occasionally, Itri asked him were he could "cut some stuff up." Itri allegedly went into the gas station office and removed a bag of white powdery substance from his pocket, which he then snorted. He placed some inside a gum wrapper and gave it to Snyder to use later. After Itri left, Snyder called the Winslow Police, who responded and determined that the substance given by Itri to Snyder was cocaine. A police department report prepared by Detective Cuomo on December 20, 1985 contains another report from Snyder:

> . . . [u]ndersigned met with Snyder who informed the undersigned that he had seen Itri again at the service station this date, the informant indicated that Itri stated the was getting another "load" of cocaine on 12-31-85 so he would have plenty for New Year's Eve. The informant stated that Itri told him would drop a little off for him (informant) to use. Informant further stated that when he asked Itri if he could buy some Itri stated, "Yeah, if you like it there will be plenty for you to buy . . . . [P-1 at 3; emphasis added]

Detective Cuomo instructed Snyder to "feel-out" Itri on whether he would supply additional quantities of cocaine, and the detective related the following comments from the informant he his report:

> . . . Informant indicated that Itri asked him he could sell an eighth of an ounce of cocaine for him. The informant had advised Itri that he could and made arrangements to meet with Itri and accept the delivery on 1-25-86 at 10:30 a.m. The undersigned informed the C.I. [Confidential Informant] that surveillance would be instituted at the predetermined meeting place and Itri would be stopped prior to his arrival. Later . . . . . at around 10:00 a.m. this date the undersigned received a > second call from the C.I. Same indicated that Itiri [sic] had returned and had "Fronted" him the 1-8 oz. Indicating that he would return this date at 2130 hours to collect the $290 cost of the advanced. The informant wrote the license plate of the vehicle Itri and his companion had returned to the station and telephoned the undersigned. [The informant also stated to detective Cuomo that] . . . Itri returned with an unknown companion . . . and called the informant over to the vehicle. Itri gave the informant the package and told him he would be back this evening at 2130 hours to collect the money owed and to provide him (the informant) with additional [sic] product he could distribute . . . . [P-1 at 4]

Itri and Marcucci returned to Snyder's place at work at the gas station around 9:30 p.m., and were arrested after leaving the station. No CDS was found in their possession or at the gas station on this occasion, but they were arrested and charged on the basis of their previous transaction with Snyder. The total amount of cocaine involved was stipulated by the parties to be 2.71 grams.

No witnesses were presented by the Division, which relied exclusively on the indictment, judgment and conviction, and other supporting documentation.

John Itri testified that he had been a blackjack floor supervisor for 9 years and considered himself a "good employee." He stated that his contact with George Snyder began inadvertently, when he was passing through the Exxon gas station were Snyder worked, after getting "wasted" at a party through cocaine use. Itri testified that Snyder told him to "stop by" if anything ever happens. He denies that he recruited or asked Snyder to buy or pay for coke and denied that he was a drug dealer, but stated that he had a "problem" with cocaine and thought it was "nice" to turn people on through drugs. He claimed that he was not addicted to cocaine, and also not an alcoholic, but had problems with abuse of those two drugs. He was in the habit of providing cocaine to friends on occasion, and on the night of his first dealings with Snyder he had purchased a "eight ball" or approximately 3 grams of cocaine, which he intended to share with friends. He claims that he "just gave" cocaine to Snyder, but Snyder said he would give him money for the CDS later that evening. He denied that he had been dealing drugs with Snyder, because he was not selling at a profit, but merely covering his cost.

Itri also admitted drug use with casino patrons, on casino premises. He claims that his drug problem accelerated in the casino business, where "coke pops up like beer" and that sometimes he "had to have it." He stated that his drug use in casino rooms or parking lots with patrons or "players" happened 7 or 8 times at the rate of approximately once a month when, usually at the end of a shift, regular players would invite him to rooms by saying that they "got something for you," meaning CDS, usually cocaine. He also stated that he used cocaine on the job to combat fatigue and long hours, and had snorted cocaine in the casino men's room.

He denied that he had been dealing drugs with Snyder, because he was not selling at a profit, but merely covering his cost.

Following his conviction and sentence to five years probation, he has performed some of his 300 hours required of community service working with senior citizens, which he states makes him feel "good about himself." He also has worked at the Holy Trinity Church in Audobon with neighborhood assistance, helping to set-up tables and the like. He is married with two young sons and states that he has "overcome his coke problems" and no longer makes the mistake of picking his friends through drugs. He has had no other convictions or arrests. He offers a letter from his probation officer, Erin Conway, who states that ". . . he has maintained an above average reporting record, remains cooperative and has made above average progress on the conditions of his probation. This offense appears to be defendants first contact with the criminal justice system. If the defendant maintains his current progress this officer fully expects it to be the last. . . ." [R-1] So far, Ms. Conway is correct in that regard and I so FIND. A supervisor, who oversees his volunteer help as a term of probation, testifies that he has completed 123 hours of service and is "a fine worker [who] . . . will do what is required at all times." [R-2] Other employees at the neighborhood assistance program attest to Itri's friendly attitude, efficiency and cooperation, as well as his regret for his drug offense [R-3 thru R-5]

Discussion and Conclusions of Law

As stated, the issues are disqualification, which the Division must prove, rehabilitation to be affirmatively shown by the respondent, and whether John L. Itri can demonstrate be clear and convincing evidence that he possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, including consideration of those factors of rehabilitation.

As to disqualification, there is no contest or dispute that the respondent's conviction for distribution of cocaine is a disqualifying offense under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and I so CONCLUDE.

Respondent argues that he has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and that his employee license should therefore not be revoked. The factors of rehabilitation to be considered by the Commission are set forth in section 90h:

> (1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;
>
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense;
>
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
>
> (4) The date of the offense;
>
> (5) The age of the applicant when the offense was committed;
>
> (6) Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
>
> (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense; and
>
> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional release programs, or the recommendation of the persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision. (emphasis added

Respondent makes the following argument, which I set forth in full:

> As for the first factor, the nature and duties of the position applied for, Mr. Itri is licensed and would like to continue to be licensed as a Casino Floor Person. Whereas as a Casino Floor Person, he has important responsibilities in the casino, the Casino Control Commission has recognized in previous decisions, that there is a distinction in terms of the positions involved in the casino. In Davis v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985), the Commission recognized the distinction between the application for a casino license and the application for license as a key casino employee. Obviously in the case at bar, Mr. Itri is not applying for a key casino employee license and is instead seeking to maintain his current casino license.
> This factor is somewhat related to the second factor which deals with the nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct. The reason for this is, of course, the fact that certain offenses could directly impact upon the type of work an employee seeking to be licensed performs for the casino. For example, in Davis, the Commission was faced with an employee who was employed for four and one half years in the soft count room. Simultaneously with this employment, she was employed as an income maintenance technician by the Atlantic County Welfare Board. Subsequently, she was indicted for theft for a failure to make the required disposition of funds that came into her control in her position as an income maintenance technician at the Altantic County Welfare Board. The offense was considered particularly serious in the Davis case because of the similarities between her performances for the Atlantic County Welfare Board and the Casino. Id. 301-305.

Unlike the Davis case, Mr. Itri's performance as a Floor Person is not directly impacted or related to the circumstances surrounding the offense that occurred in January of 1986. As to the third factor, under Section 90(h), the circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred, the case at bar is distinguishable from other cases in which the Commission has approved the revocation of a casino employee license. For example, in the case of Division of Gaming v. Maldonado, 10 N.J.A.R. 69 (1987), the Commission was faced with a casino employee who had been arrested for selling cocaine to an undercover agent on two occasions and who was subsequently convicted, as a result of plea bargaining, of simple possession of drugs. However, in the Maldonado case there was evidence in the form of computer tapes maintained by Maldonado's home computer that Maldonado had been selling drugs for at least and had had a substantial income from selling drugs in a prior year. Also, marijuana, cocaine and drug paraphernalia were also found in Maldonado's home.

Likewise, at the Maldonado hearing, the State produced an undercover agent, Detective Larry Ross, who testified that Maldonado had informed him that he earned One Hundred and Four Thousand Dollars ($104,000.000) selling drugs the previous year. In the subsequent raid of Maldonado's home, the State uncovered evidence that supported the boast of Maldonado's that he earned a substantial income from drug sales. Further, Maldonado did not deny this fact at his hearing, he merely sought to minimize the amount of money he earned as a drug dealer.

Judge Holmes who initially heard the matter concluded that Mr. Maldonado's actual offense was regular and repeated sale of drugs over a period of at least one year during which time he had no other means of support. Judge Holmes further found that during this time, he lived quite well and was motivated entirely be greed.

The facts and circumstances of this case are distinguishable from the Maldonado case. Unlike Maldonado, Mr. Itri did not act to make a profit nor out of greed. As Mr. Itri testified, he had provided the cocaine to one Mr. Snyder at Mr. Snyder's request and came back later to pick up the money for the cocaine with that figure being the same figure Mr. Itri had, in fact, paid. There was no intent to make a profit. Likewise, there is no evidence in the record to suggest that there was any regular or repeated sales of drugs and during the entire incident, Mr. Itri was working at his job in Atlantic City, which was his primary and main means of support.

The facts and circumstances of the case at bar are also distinguishable from the Davis case. In Davis, the Commission determined that there was a plausible inference from the facts presented that the thefts by Davis were occasioned by greed or, at best, the desire to alleviate personal indebtedness. Again in the case at bar, there is no evidence to suggest greed on the part of Mr. Itri or any desire or effort by him to alleviate personal indebtedness.

In short, whereas Mr. Itri does not seek to minimize the seriousness of the offense for which he was convicted, the circumstances under which that offense and his conduct occurred are distinguishable from the above sited cases and is more indicative of the situation where Mr. Itri had a social or addictive problem which, as will be demonstrated below, he has overcome.

The fourth factor, the date of the offense or conduct, is particularly significant in the case at bar. As can be seen from the uncontroverted facts, the offense to which Mr. Itri now answers, occurred in January of 1986, well over three and a half years ago. The significance of the interval of time has to do with the fact that Mr. Itri has not committed any subsequent offenses of any sort and the fact that the Casino Control Commission has, on prior occasions, explicitly recognized that past transgressions can be overcome by a subsequent interval of time allowing for present fitness under the Act. See, for example, In re Atlantic City Showboat, 10 N.J.A.R. 608, 609-10, 613-14 (1987).

This is particularly important in terms of the finding of rehabilitation. As the Commission pointed out in the case of Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Harris, 11 N.J.A.R. 90, 100 (1983), where sufficient time has elapsed from the date of the offense to the date of Commission action, the lapse in time and other affirmative circumstances may warrant the finding of rehabilitation. It is, Mr. Itri's position in the case are bar, that such circumstances have occurred in this case.

Over three and a half years have elapsed since the date of the offense and it is that lapse of time which is particularly significant in light of the other evidence supporting the fact that Mr. Itri has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation in the interim period. As Mr. Itri testified, his arrest in January of 1986 brought home the potenital [sic] seriousness of his involvement with drugs. This social problem that had gradually intensified over the three (3) or four (4) year period preceding his arrest now threatened his livelihood and his ability to support his wife and two (2) young sons. A problem had developed and intensified and the problem had to be addressed and stopped immediately because it now threatened everything Mr. Itri had worked for in terms of family and career. As can be seen from Mr. Itri's testimony and the character references admitted into evidence as R-1 through R-5, Mr. Itri has been able to overcome the problem.

Factor number five is potentially significant under the circumstances of this case. Mr. Itri will be 37 years of age in October of this year. At the time of his arrest in January 1986 he was 33 years of age. Mr. Itri clearly testified that he has matured a great deal since that time. the seriousness of the arrest and the three and a half (3 1/2) year interval have helped him "grow up" and realize that he must be responsible for all his acts. At 37 it is increasingly difficult to change careers and jobs, especially with a wife and two (2) young children.

Factor six, whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident, is again particularly significant. As the facts of this case reveal, Mr. Itri had no prior criminal record before this incident and there has been no subsequent offense or conduct which would impact upon Mr. Itri's character. In fact, as can be seen from the statement of his Probation Officer, she is convinced that there is little likelihood that Mr. Itri will be involved in the criminal justice system again. Likewise, as can be seen from both her statement and the statements of the people involved in the Neighborhood Assistance Program for whom Mr. Itri has performed his community service, Mr. Itri has demonstrated integrity, character, and other positive signs clearly indicating rehabilitation.

Factor number seven is also potentially significant in this case in that as Mr. Itri clearly testified he had fallen into a pattern of behavior one equates with a lifestyle of flash and glitz. Unfortunately, what could be positive social interaction had developed into a problem of social abuse, i.e., drugs had become a part of Mr. Itri's interaction with other people. Mr. Itri realized that he had stumbled onto this unfortunate path and accordingly, he has taken the steps to right himself from that path. It was clear from his testimony that Mr. Itri had become socially addicted to cocaine use. While he may not have been addicted physically, the drug had become a social crutch. It was this addiction that that became necessary for Mr. Itri to overcome.

As to the final factor, factor number eight, again there is clear and convincing evidence of Mr. Itri's rehabilitation. The aforementioned recommendations demonstrate good conduct in the community. As has been indicated, Mr. Itri successfully concluded the counseling which was mandated as part of his sentence. The recommendations also demonstrate a successful participation in the community service program. Finally, as can be seen particularly by Miss Conway and Miss Madrack's recommendations, Mr. Itri has performed well in the programs they have supervised. In short, Mr. Itri has met all of the factors which evidence rehabilitation including the fact that his employment status has not suffered since the time of the incident. This is additional proof of his character and the fact that he realizes the importance his casino license has to his family, including his wife and two young sons. (As to the significance of this factor, see, Maldonado, supra. at 73). When all of the factors set out in section 90(h) have been evaluated, it is clear that Mr. Itri has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation pursuant to Section 90(h). Again, it is respondent's position that the case fits within the standard announced by the Commission in the Harris decision. As the Commission said in Harris, where sufficient time has elapsed from the date of the incident and the date of the Commission action, the finding of rehabilitation can be made so long as the other factors of Section 90(h) affirmatively demonstrate rehabilitation. As can be seen above, an analysis of those factors affirmatively demonstrates rehabilitation justifying a denial of the Division of Gaming Enforcement's request for the revocation of Mr. Itri's casino employee license. See, for example, Marino v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 2 N.J.A.R. 176, 183 (1980). [respondent's brief at 6 thru 13]

The Division responds and again I choose to set forth this response in full, that:

. . . In addition, Mr. Itri testified that he has also possessed and used cocaine on the premises of the casino hotel facility where he is employed, and that he has in fact been under the influence of cocaine while working in the position of floorperson. Based upon Mr. Itri's admissions, the Division requests that the court, pursuant to Evid. R. 9, take Judicial Notice that Possession of a Controlled Dangerous Substance is an offense under N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10, and that the Commission has found that his offense to be inimical to the policies of the Act, pursuant to Section 86(c)(2) of the Casino Control Act. Accordingly, if the court finds that Mr. Itri is not rehabilitated from the disqualifying offense pursuant to Section 86(c)(1) of the Act, and that he does not possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure, then the court must also find that he is disqualified pursuant to Section 86(c)(2) of the Casino Control Act, pursuant to Davis v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985).

In an attempt to establish his rehabilitation and good character, honesty and integrity, Mr. Itri has provided four statements from individuals associated with the Neighborhood Assistance Program and a letter from his probation officer. From the hearsay submitted, it appears that Mr. Itri is performing his duties well in this program, that he gets along with the people who participate in the program, and he is in compliance with his probation. However, it should be noted, that Ethel M. DeRobertis states that she is not aware of the reason that brought Mr. Itri to the program. The hearsay submitted by Mr. Itri indicates, at most, that he is in compliance to date with the terms of his probation, which require 300 hours of community service over five years. However, the question before the court is whether or not Mr. Itri has established by clear and convincing evidence that he is rehabilitated from the disqualifying offense, whether his continued licensure would be inimical to the policies of the > Casino Control Act, and whether he possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure. It is the Division's position that Mr. Itri's testimony, and the statements submitted on his behalf simply do not meet the standard set forth in the Casino Control Act. Mr. Itri, by his own admission, has distributed Controlled Dangerous Substance, in particular cocaine, to friends, and on January 24, 1986, he provided approximately 1/8 of an ounce of cocaine to a George Snyder. Although the reason that he provided the cocaine to Mr. Snyder was in dispute at the hearing, what is not in dispute is that Mr. Itri did commit the act of distribution of cocaine and on more than one occasion. In addition, Mr. Itri has admitted that on more than one occasion he has accepted cocaine from patrons and used the cocaine on the premises of the casino/hotel facility where he is employed. This conduct is particularly disturbing when it is committed by a person in a position requiring extensive contact with casino patrons and who is responsible for supervision of games. It should also be noted that Mr. Itri is scheduled to remain on probation until November 1991, that his work with the Neighborhood Assistance Program is one of the court ordered conditions of his probation and that he has yet to complete another 120 hours of community service pursuant to that order. Considering the seriousness of Mr. Itri's conviction and the extent of his probation it is too soon to conclude that he is rehabilitated. It addition, the Honorable Judge I Steinberg's statement of reasons appended to Exhibit P4 in evidence indicate his recognition of the seriousness of Mr. Itri's conduct and his dissatisfaction with the plea bargain agreement entered into while the case was on another Judge's list despite the fact that this was Mr. Itri's first offense. In addition, Judge Steinberg noted under aggravating factors, also appended to this Exhibit, that there is the risk the defendant will commit another offense and that there is a substantial likelihood he is involved in organized criminal activity. Taken together, it is apparent that based on the evidence presented, Mr. Itri has not met his burden of proof on the issues of rehabilitation and good character, honesty and integrity.

> Accordingly, the Division urges the court to conclude that Mr. Itri's casino employee license be revoked. [Division's brief; emphasis added]

Respondent's brief is limited to the issue of whether the respondent has demonstrated rehabilitation under 90(h), and does not expressly address the question of whether he is proven by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity. In effect, though, under the recent Appellate Division decision in the matter of Dunston v. Division of Gaming Enforcement (Decided April 10, 1990), A-197-89T3, where a licensee is found to be rehabilitated from the disqualifying offense, and "[w]here the conduct under §86 and the contrary demonstration under 90(b) are all part of the same transaction and constitute a single res jestae, it would, in our view, contribute the statutory intendment to insist that while the §86 conduct can be overcome by rehabilitation, the circumstances surrounding the conduct cannot be. In that case, no one would ever be eligible for rehabilitation relief. Proof of petitioner's good character, honesty and integrity thus lies in her entire unblemished work history apart from this one episode and its surrounding circumstances. . . ." [Decision at 10-11] Thus the question of disqualification and good character, honesty and integrity both turn on the factors of rehabilitation.

As to rehabilitation under 90(h), respondent's duties and responsibilities as a casino floor person are sensitive ones at the heart of the gaming operation, and involve much patron contact. The offense of distribution of cocaine is at the core of the circulation of an illegal and dangerous drugs in the United States. Even though Mr. Itri may not have profited from this particular distribution of drugs, he admits that he expected to be paid for those drugs, even if only at cost to him. That fact that he was not out to make a profit on this occasion is not particularly mitigating, because of the fact that he was to have additional contacts with Mr. Snyder for the purpose of selling more cocaine. It may be that he was just sharing with his friends and acquaintances the bounty of cocaine purchased by him, but he did charge Mr. Snyder for the drugs and had no particular long standing friendship with that individual, to support his claim of mere generosity. Lack of actual profit is somewhat mitigating in the abstract, but not particularly in compelling in this case, given the fact that Itri charged Snyder and was going to charge him additional cost of cocaine of future occasions. This is dealing and distribution of a controlled dangerous substance, and Itri admitted this by pleading guilty.

The circumstances of the offense thus indicate that Itri was engaged in business transactions of distribution, even if not for profit at that point, and intended to develop further business relationship with Snyder, which might also have the social incident of "parting" but cannot be fairly described as a strictly social arrangement. At the time of this offense, respondent was not addicted to cocaine, although he was experiencing problems with that drug and alcohol. This case may be, as the respondent argues distinguishable from the matters of Davis v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985) and Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Maldonado, 10 N.J.A.R. 69 (1987) in that it does not contain either a key casino employee license, or a strong element of greed and profit, but these elements alone are not dispositive, though they may be distinguishable.

Respondent stresses the date of the offense, which occurred in January 1986, well over three and one half (3 1/2) years ago and this not a negligible period of time. However, this passage of time after the criminal charges and good conduct in probation and on the job, most also be weighed against the serious nature of the distribution offense, as well as the compounding aspect in this case of the respondent's free and open admission during the hearing that he used cocaine on seven or eight occasions on the casino premises, some of which was provided by casino patrons for his use. This entirely unacceptable behavior must be weighted, along with the serious nature of the distribution offense, against Mr. Itri's claim of rehabilitation in the last 3 1/2 years. He is now 37 years of age, and has two young children and a spouse to support. There is, certainly evidence that he has matured a great deal since 1986, when he was convicted of distributing cocaine and also admitted to using the drug on a number of occasions on casino premises, often in the form of gifts from patrons.

Respondent argues that the 1986 distribution offense was an isolated incident not likely to be repeated, and that he has had no subsequent offenses and conduct involving possession or distribution of cocaine. Itri's offense was isolated in the sense that he was convicted of distributing cocaine on only one occasion, but it is evident from the facts introduced by the Division, heresay though they may be, that he intended to distribute cocaine to Snyder on more than one occasion and expected to receive payment in return, even if only to cover his cost. Thus the offense and conduct was not truly isolated and has more of the character of a repeated transaction. Respondent's drug use on casino premises was also repeated on a number of occasions.

Mr. Itri cites no social conditions contributing to his problems of drug abuse beyond the "flash and glitz" of the casino industry in Atlantic City, as well as some of the demands and stress, of the business which caused him to become "socially addicted" to cocaine use. [respondent's brief at 12] Respondent claims the drugs had become a part of his interaction with other people and "social crutch," The Division does not dispute this claim, but argues that it has shown evidence that respondent was regularly in the business of dealing drugsand, further, that he was in the habit of using drugs, regardless of the setting of circumstances, even to the extent of accepting it from patrons and using it on casino premises. This is the most troubling aspect of respondent's conduct. In fact, if not for the respondent's admitted use on casino premises, this might be an easier case for finding rehabilitation, in contrast to the Commissioner's decision in the Davis and Maldonado matters. It is plausible that his offense of giving drugs to Snyder, for which he was paid only for his cost, was essentially a social transaction, even though the two were not friends.

On the basis of the nature of the offense, and absence of any evidence that he was regularly engaged in drug dealing for profit, (although he frequently exchanged drugs for money for more social purposes), and in light of the evidence presented of his efforts toward rehabilitation and increasing maturity, I CONCLUDE that he has shown rehabilitation within the meaning of 90(h) from the disqualifying offense of distribution of cocaine in 1986.

However, the Commission's inquiry does not end there; there remains an issue of whether, considering all of the evidence and all of these factors of rehabilitation, the licensee has proven by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity. Given the evidence of rehabilitation, I CONCLUDE that the 1986 distribution offense does not disqualify his from licensure. But, at the hearing, he offered further evidence as to use of cocaine on casino premises on seven or eight occasions, sometimes after being offered the drug by patrons, and, though he was never criminally charged with that conduct, which apparently came to light only at the hearing, it must be considered by the Commission in assessing his rehabilitation in the context of inimicality under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(2), as well as the requirement that he show good character, honesty and integrity.

Conduct of use of cocaine on casino premises by a casino employee licensee particularly when aided or betted by casino patrons, is inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations and therefore is also disqualifying under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2), as the Division suggest. Under the Davis case, and with a reasonable and fair reading of the Casino Control Act, the factors of rehabilitation are implicitly part of the consideration of whether conduct is inimical under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(2), even if rehabilitation is not expressly applicable. Respondent makes no express argument as to inimicality and does not address the issue raised by his admission of drug use and acceptance of drugs of casino patrons. The nature of his duties during this conduct, were that of a floor person as discussed above. The nature of the conduct of using cocaine on casino premises and accepting it from patrons for that purpose, constitutes illegal activities by casino employees on casino premises and is further compounded by the acceptance of controlled dangerous substance from casino patrons by this casino licensee. Respondent also concedes that he used cocaine while working on the casino floor, not merely after hours or in his own free recreational time, but as something to help him function on the job. This also is a severely aggravating factor. This conduct of on premises drug abuse by the respondent occurred when he was 33 years of age, which is not a tender age, and was repeated on at least seven or eight occasions, some of which involved casino patrons. Respondent, though denying that he was a cocaine addict, did admit that "he had to have" the drug and went to some lengths to do so. He cites no social conditions, beyond the particular and stressful nature of the casino industry to justify his on-casino premises drug use. While his compliance with the terms of probation has been full and law-abiding in all respects and though he claims that he has stopped his use of cocaine, (which the Division does not dispute), I CONCLUDE that his conduct in using cocaine on casino premises and accepting it for use from patrons on a number of occasions as discussed above renders his licensure inimical within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2).

Also applying these factors of rehabilitation to consideration of whether respondent has satisfied his burden of proof under N.J.S.A. 5:12-89 (b)(2), 90(b), I CONCLUDE that he has, because of the nature of his conduct of drug abuse on casino premises, which was repeated and involved patrons, has failed to show the requisite good character, honesty and integrity to continue to hold a casino employee license.

Order

On the basis of the above, it is ORDERED that the casino employee license of respondent John L. Itri, Jr., be revoked by the Casino Control Commission.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Dayton James, the respondent, pro se

Record Closed: June 1, 1990 Decided: June 20, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the revocation of Dayton James's casino employee license no. 16475-21, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90 and N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1). The Division sought revocation of the respondent's license by reason of its contention that the respondent had committed a criminal offense which rendered continued licensure to be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act (Act), pursuant to section 86c(4) (now section 86c(2)), by means of section 86g, and that therefore, he lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The respondent had obtained a casino employee license from the Commission so he could be employed as a blackjack dealer in the casino industry. By complaint to the Commission, filed June 25, 1987, the Division objected to the respondent's continued licensure, asserting that the respondent had committed the offense of attempt to commit theft by deception, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 and N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1, which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(4) (now section 86c(2)), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by section 86g. The Division also objected pursuant to section 89b(2). Based upon the complaint, the Commission notified the respondent on July 2, 1987 that he had the right to a hearing, and that failure to respond within 15 days could result in his license being revoked. By application dated September 20, 1989, which was received by the Commission on September 20, 1989, the respondent requested a hearing. On September 21, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on September 26, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before Administrative Law Judge Edgar R. Holmes on January 19, 1990. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether respondent's continued licensure is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c because he is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 and 5-1, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

B. Whether respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) as incorporated within section 90b.

C. Whether respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was held on June 1, 1990, in the Municipal Courtroom, Galloway Township Municipal Building, Absecon, New Jersey, after which the record was closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

In March of 1987, the respondent was employed as a blackjack dealer at the Atlantis Hotel and Casino. On the morning of March 17, 1987, the respondent cashed his paycheck in the amount of $240.23 at the Midlantic Bank. He then went to work at the casino. The respondent placed his money inside his jacket, placed the jacket inside his garment bag, and secured the garment bag inside his locker at the casino.

After completing his shift, the respondent discovered that his locker and garment bag had been broken into and that his money had been stolen. He reported the theft to the hotel security department; however, instead of reporting that his money had been stolen, he reported that his paycheck had been stolen. He thereafter attempted to have the Atlantis payroll department reissue the check.

On March 20, 1987, the respondent was arrested for attempted theft by deception, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 and N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1. At that time, he admitted to the police that it was his money that had been stolen and not the paycheck (P-3). At the hearing, the respondent attempted to explain that what he meant by saying that his paycheck had been stolen was that the money from his paycheck had been stolen. He considered the money and the check to be one in the same. He wanted another paycheck to replace the payroll money that had been stolen as he had bills to pay.

On March 20, 1987, a complaint was issued in the Atlantic City Municipal Court charging the respondent with attempted theft by deception in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1. The arresting officer advised the respondent to plead guilty to the charge and opined that if the respondent did so, his casino employee license would not be taken. Based upon this advice, on September 17, 1987, the respondent pleaded guilty to the charge in the Atlantic City Municipal Court and was sentenced to pay $25 in court costs and a $30 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty. He was not otherwise fined or even placed on probation (P-1).

The respondent was raised in Brooklyn, New York, by his mother and father, along with a brother and a sister. When respondent was 12, the family moved to Atlantic City. The respondent attended Atlantic City High School through the twelfth grade; however, he did not graduate. The respondent played basketball in high school. The respondent is a member of the Second Baptist Church, and attended Atlantic County Vocational Technical School for one year studying cosmetology.

The respondent worked in the casino industry as a blackjack dealer for eight years without incident. From 1979 through 1981, he worked at Resorts International Hotel and Casino; from 1982 through 1984, he worked at Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino; from 1984 through 1986, he worked at the Tropicana Hotel and Casino, and from 1986 through March 1987, he worked at the Atlantis Hotel and Casino. He was terminated from his position at the Atlantis because of the check incident. He thereafter worked at the Showboat Casino Hotel and Bowling Center until his casino employee license was suspended by the Commission. He has worked various jobs since leaving the casino industry including part-time jobs at Bradlee's Department Store and Touch and Go Maintenance; however, he is presently unemployed.

The respondent submitted four copies of a form letter signed by individuals attesting to his honesty and loyalty and his proficiency as a blackjack dealer. He also submitted a petition signed by 11 individuals which he represented as attesting to the same facts as contained in the form letter (R-1 through R-5).

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the respondent's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident nor his current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess his credibility. Initially, his position in this matter must be recognized. As the respondent and the holder of a casino hotel employee license, he has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the respondent's demeanor, the plausibility of his testimony, the manner in which he participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appears that the respondent testified truthfully. He candidly admitted his misconduct and described in detail, experiencing great humiliation, the underlying circumstances. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the respondent's testimony.

APPLICABLE LAW

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86, Casino License - disqualification criteria, provides in pertinent part:

>
> c. The conviction of the applicant, or of any person required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license, of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be:
>
> . . . .
>

666 operations; provided, however, that the automatic disqualification provisions of this subsection shall not apply with regard to any conviction which did not occur within the 10 year period immediately preceding application for licensure and which the applicant demonstrates by clear and convincing evidence does not justify automatic disqualification pursuant to to this subsection and any conviction which has been the subject of a judicial order of expungement or sealing;

. . . .

g. The commission by the applicant or any person who is required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of this section, even if such conduct has not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-89, Licensing of casino key employees, provides in pertinent part:

b. Each applicant must, prior to the issuance of any casino key employee license, produce information, documentation and assurances concerning the following qualification criteria:

. . . .

enforcement or control agency, which shall specify the experience of such agency with the applicant, his associates and his participation in the gaming operations of that jurisdiction; provided, however, that if no such letters are received from the appropriate law enforcement agencies within 60 days of the applicant's request therefor, the applicant may submit a statement under oath that he is or was during the period such activities were conducted in good standing with such gaming or casino enforcement or control agency.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-90, Licensing of casino employees, provides in pertinent part:

a. No person may commence employment as a casino employee unless he is the holder of a valid casino employee license.

b. Any applicant for a casino employee license must, prior to the issuance of any such license, produce sufficient information, documentation and assurances to meet the qualification criteria, including New Jersey residency, contained in subsection b. of section 89 of this act and any additional residency requirement imposed under subsection c. of this section; except that the standards for business ability and casino experience may be satisfied by a showing of casino job experience and knowledge of the provisions of this act and regulations pertaining to the particular position involved, or by successful completion of a course of study at a licensed school in an approved curriculum.

e. The commission shall deny a casino employee license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of this act.

. . . .

h. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection e. of this section, no applicant shall be denied a casino employee license on the basis of a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria or the commission of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of section 86 of P.L.1977, c. 110 (C. 5:12-86), as specified in subsection g. of that section; provided that the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation. In determining whether the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs,or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) establishes that licensure under the Casino Control act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1) provides for the revocation of the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his license." The Division contended originally, by means of section 86g, that the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1, attempted theft by deception, which constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(4) (now section 86c(2)), and that, accordingly, he is disqualified from continued licensure.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g

> The nature of the offense, the events surrounding it, including any mitigating or aggravating factors, the remoteness of the offense and the offender's conduct since the offense to the present are all matters to be considered. Without limiting the notion of what is "inimical" to the Act or to gaming, it would appear to encompass those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations.

The Legislature, when it authorized the establishment of casino gaming in Atlantic City, and provided for the licensure, regulation and taxation thereof, enumerated specific policy considerations which appear to be directly related to the intent and purpose of the inimical clause. More specifically, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6) and (7) state categorically that the successful regulation and control of state casino activities depends upon the confidence of the public "in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process of casino operations," and by the exclusion from participation in casino gaming of "persons with known criminal records, habits or associations" who could threaten the integrity of the gaming and business operations.

The significance of strict regulation of all phases of the casino industry was emphasized by the Supreme Court in Knight v. City of Margate, 86 N.J. 374, 381 (1981):

> At the very heart of the public policy embraced by the new law is "the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations." N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6). Related directly to this purpose, the Legislature stated that "the regulatory provisions . . . are designed to extend strict State regulation to all persons . . . practices and associations related to" casinos and that "comprehensive law-enforcement supervision . . . is further designed to contribute to the public confidence and trust in the efficacy and integrity of the regulatory process."

In In the Matter of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union Local 54, 203 N.J. Super. 297, 317 (App. Div. 1985), certif. den., 102 N.J. 352 (1985), the Appellate Division held that "inimical" means "adverse to the policy of the act and gaming operations," i.e., contrary to strict regulatory controls over all facets of casino activities.

The Division contends that while the respondent was only convicted of a crime of the fourth degree, which is not listed as a disqualifier under section 86c (1), the respondent's conduct constituted an attempted theft from the casino. This alleged offense is not listed as a disqualifier under section 86c(1); as such, the Division asserts that this alleged offense is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(4) (now section 86c(2)).

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, Theft by unlawful taking or disposition, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Movable property. A person is guilty of theft if he unlawfully takes, or exercises unlawful control over, movable property of another with purpose to deprive him thereof.

N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1, Criminal attempt, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Definition of attempt. A person is guilty of an attempt to commit a crime if, acting with the kind of culpability otherwise required for commission of the crime, he:
>
>
> (3) Purposely does or omits to do anything which, under the circumstances as a reasonable person would believe them to be, is an act or omission constituting a substantial step in a course of conduct planned to culminate in his commission of the crime.

In this case, the Division established, and the respondent admitted, that he had been convicted in the Atlantic City Municipal Court of attempted theft by deception. After having been the victim of a theft, the respondent falsely represented that his paycheck had been stolen rather than the cash from his paycheck, and he wrongfully attempted to have his casino employer issue a new payroll check to him. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:5-4 and N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(3), the offense constitutes a crime of the fourth degree.

In State of New Jersey, Dept. of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Michael P. Waters, OAL DKT. CCC 3933-86 (Jan. 7, 1987), modified, Casino Control Commission (June 12, 1987), the Commission stated at 2-3 that:

> A distinction must be drawn between rehabilitation from a section 86(c)(1) or (3) disqualifying offense pursuant to sections 90(h) or 91(d) of the Act and rehabilitation as an aspect of the inimical analysis. In the former situation, disqualification is established once it is shown that the respondent committed an enumerated offense. The respondent is then afforded the opportunity to affirmatively demonstrate his rehabilitation from that disqualification. It is well established that, consistent with other affirmative licensing criteria, the respondent must prove his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. Application of Richard Romanishin for a Casino Employee License, Docket No. 84-EA-85 (Commission order, May 23, 1985); Application of Chester R. Brathwaite for a Casino Employee License, Docket No. A-4252-82T3 (unpublished opinion reversing Commission decision, January 23, 1984).
> However, unlike a section 86(c)(1) or (3) situation, disqualification pursuant to section 86(c)(4) is not established upon demonstrating that the respondent committed the offense in question. Such a determination can only be made after considering all the circumstances surrounding the offense: its nature, its remoteness, and the offender's conduct subsequent to the offense, i.e., essentially the same factors which bear upon rehabilitation. Application of Donna Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (Commission decision, December 27, 1985); State v. Theodore Williams, Docket No. 84-288 (Commission order, May 1, 1987).

The Commission concluded that if the Division establishes a case for the respondent's disqualification, it is "then incumbent upon the respondent to show that he was rehabilitated; that is, the burden of going forward with evidence (but not the ultimate burden of proof), had shifted."

In the Davis case, the Commission stated at 313-314:

> Rehabilitation under section 90(h) (casino employee license) and section 91(d) (casino hotel employee registration) does not apply to disqualifying convictions under section 86(c)(4). By their express terms, these rehabilitation provisions apply only to " . . . a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria." Nevertheless, many of the factors that are considered upon a claim of rehabilitation are included within the inimical analysis.

The Commission indicated that "it has been generally observed that the notion of rehabilitation is subsumed in the inimical analysis [and] . . . the inimical analysis is substantially similar to the concept of rehabilitation." The Commission concluded that:

> The salient point to be made here is that we consider rehabilitation factors before concluding that the offense in question is or is not inimical under section 86(c)(4). Because the rehabilitation provisions are subsumed within the inimical analysis, it should never be necessary to determine the merits of a claim of rehabilitation after concluding that a given offense is inimical pursuant to section 86(c)(4). [Id. at 314] [footnote omitted]

The eight specific criteria enumerated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made are:

1. The nature and duties of the licensee's position or the registrant's position;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense;
3. The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
4. The date of the offense;
5. The age of the licensee or registrant when the offense was committed;
6. Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation , including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant or registrant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Dayton James is a casino licensee and was employed as a blackjack dealer. As such, he does have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities and does come in contact with casino patrons.

Second, the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1, attempted theft by deception, on one occasion while employed in the casino industry. Because the offense was committed against his casino employer, it is serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in its appropriate context. There are both mitigating and aggravating factors in this case. The respondent was a victim of the theft of his payroll money from his locker while working in the casino. Instead of reporting the cash had been stolen, he reported that his paycheck had been stolen, and he attempted to have the casino issue him a new paycheck. The sentencing court obviously did not consider this to be a very serious offense as the respondent was only ordered to pay court costs and a Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty.

Fourth, the respondent's misconduct occurred in March of 1987, when it ceased.

Fifth, the respondent is presently 30 years old and was 27 years old at the time of the offense. I do not believe immaturity was a factor in this case.

Sixth, the respondent's misconduct was isolated in nature. He has not committed any other violations of the criminal laws.

Seventh, the respondent had been the victim of a theft. Since it was his payroll money that had been stolen, and had been stolen from his employee's locker while he had been working, he wanted a little help in order to pay his bills. At the time, the respondent did not think of his actions as the commission of a theft.

Eighth, the respondent now recognizes that what he did was wrong. He is remorseful and feels stupid because of what he did. He feels he has been punished, and has learned his lesson. He worked in the casino industry for eight years without incident. Numerous co-workers have attested to the respondent's abilities as a blackjack dealer and to his honesty and loyalty.

When considering the respondent's conduct as taken in context and the overall nature of his character, I do not find that the respondent's attempt to have a new payroll check issued to him after his money had been stolen sufficient to establish that the continued licensure of the respondent is inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act.

In Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Wynette Harris, the administrative law judge hearing the case recommended that the respondent's license be suspended for three years. The Commission's final decision modified the initial decision of the administrative law judge by substituting the penalty of revocation instead of the administrative law judge's recommended three-year suspension. This action was based on its belief that it was not empowered to impose a penalty less than revocation. On appeal, the Superior Court Appellate Division stated that:

> The other question is whether the Commission correctly conceived that it was not authorized to impose a suspension rather than a revocation. It is clear to us that the Commission acted on the understanding that it was limited to the alternatives of withholding penalty entirely or imposing a revocation. The governing statute, N.J.S.A. 5:12-129, provides that after appropriate hearings and factual determination the Commission shall "have the authority" to impose a number of specified sanctions. Included among these is the revocation of a license or registration of any person for the conviction of any criminal offense. In our view, the authority to impose a revocation implies the authority to withhold such revocation and impose instead a suspension for a designated period.

Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Harris (N.J. App. Div., Mar. 1, 1983, A-3774-81T2) (unreported), at 4. The court then remanded the case to the Commission for reconsideration as to penalty.

On remand, the Commission acknowledged that it had the authority to suspend rather than revoke. It ruled, however, that suspension of a license is singularly inappropriate when a disqualifying offense is involved. Rather, revocation is the only appropriate sanction when a disqualifying offense under section 86 is established. Revocation must follow disqualification unless there is a finding of rehabilitation under sections 90(h) and 91(d) or, in the case of a casino hotel employee, a waiver is granted pursuant to section 91(e). Persons convicted of disqualifying offenses, unless rehabilitated or granted a waiver, are not suitable for employment in the casino industry. If the proscribed activity falls short of a disqualifying offense, the Commission may reconsider suspension. Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Harris, 11 N.J.A.R. 90, 98 (1983). In Harris, the Commission discussed revocation of licenses of persons "convicted of a disqualifying offense." This language usually refers to convictions for offenses listed as a statutory disqualifier in section 86c(1).

While the Harris case dealt with a section 86c(1) disqualification, the logic employed by the Commission could be applicable to a section 86c(2) inimical disqualification. Such an all-or-nothing analysis sometimes could work an unjust result. In a case such as the one presently before the Commission, the misconduct, after considering the Davis factors, does not rise to the level of being inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act. As such, revocation does not seem to be appropriate. Yet, the misconduct did directly involve the casino and should be sanctioned. This is the type of case in which I would recommend that the Commission consider imposing an administrative suspension of the respondent's license pursuant to sections 129 and 130. The Commission should have the flexibility to assess penalties appropriate to the misconduct based upon the facts in a given case. In cases such as this, where the misconduct does not rise to the level of being inimical to the policies of the Act, but the misconduct involves the casino or relates directly to gaming activity, the Commission should be able to impose appropriate penalties or sanctions less than revocation. I would also invite the Commission to consider whether or not a suspension could be imposed instead of a revocation if the respondent's conduct was found to be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act.

I CONCLUDE that the Division has not established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the continued licensure of the respondent would be inimical to the policies of the Act, pursuant to section 86c(4) (now section 86c(2)) or pursuant to section 86c(4) (now section 86c(2)), by means of section 86g.

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Mr. James was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Id. at 296.

It is readily apparent that the respondent's misconduct was aberrant and that he is otherwise a person of good character, honesty and integrity. The misconduct did not involve the performance of his licensed employment, but did involve his employer, and the underlying circumstances somewhat mitigated the seriousness of the misconduct. In addition, the respondent has fully accepted responsibility for his misconduct, regained control over his behavior, performed admirably within the casino industry prior to the incident, and is remorseful. Accordingly, the respondent presents no risk to the public nor to the integrity of the gaming industry in this State. The respondent has earned the privilege of licensure. An examination of the whole person clearly and convincingly establishes that Mr. James is a person of good character, honesty and integrity, and is entirely suitable for licensure in this State. See, Boardwalk Regency Corp.

I CONCLUDE that the respondent has established by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity under section 90b.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division against the respondent be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 90-EA-98

LOUVENIA JAMES,

Petitioner,

v.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY, DEPARTMENT OF LAW AND PUBLIC SAFETY, DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT,

Respondent.

Louvenia James, the petitioner, pro se

Ralph L. Fusco, Deputy Attorney General, for the respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: July 5, 1990 Decided: August 9, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Louvenia James, applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the renewal of a casino employee license (blackjack dealer), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90. The respondent, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), opposed the renewal of the license by reason of its contention that the petitioner had committed a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), by means of section 86g, and therefore, she lacked the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference. The petitioner contended that she was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 90h.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed with the Commission an application for the renewal of a casino employee license so she could be employed as an income control clerk at Trump's Castle Hotel and Casino.[1] By letter to the Commission, dated August 28, 1989, the Division objected to the petitioner's application for licensure as a blackjack dealer, asserting that the petitioner had committed the offense of theft by deception in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 (third degree), which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by section 86g. The Division also objected pursuant to section 89(b)2. Based upon report, the Commission notified the petitioner on September 25, 1989 that there was a "substantial possibility" that her application would be denied and that she had the right to a hearing. By application dated October 2, 1989, which was received by the Commission on October 5, 1989, the petitioner requested a hearing. On October 10, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on October 18, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq., and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before me on February 8, 1990. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft by deception.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, purusant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated within section 90b.

---

[1] The highest credential the petitioner holds is that of a blackjack dealer; however, she has never held a position as a dealer.

c. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was held on July 5, 1990, at the Municipal Courtroom, Absecon City Hall, Absecon, New Jersey, after which the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

On August 7, 1980, the petitioner obtained a gaming license from the Commission, and she became employed as a pit clerk at Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino. In late summer or early fall of 1981, the petitioner left her position at Harrah's and accepted the same position at the Playboy Hotel and Casino. After only several months there was a lay-off. Since the petitioner was one of the employees last hired, she was one of the first employees to be laid-off.

On December 2, 1981, the petitioner filed a claim for unemployment benefits (R-1, R-2, R-3, R-5, R-6). The petitioner was found to be eligible to receive unemployment benefits in the amount of $133 per week (R-1). In late January 1982, the petitioner was recalled to work at the Playboy. She returned to work on January 26, 1982 (R-1).

The petitioner received her first unemployment check on January 26, 1982. As such, she had not received any income in nearly two months. At that time she was a 24-year-old single mother of three children. She borrowed money from her sister and friends in order to pay rent, utility and food bills. Her overriding concern was to provide food and shelter for her children. As she had incurred substantial debt in the previous two months, she did not tell her local unemployment office that she returned to work. Instead, she continued collecting unemployment benefits until she voluntarily stopped collecting benefits in the week of March 16, 1982. The petitioner used these continued benefits to pay off bills she incurred and the loans she received while unemployed.

The petitioner collected unemployment benefits for eight weeks while still employed at Playboy (R-1, R-5, R-6). During this period the petitioner earned $1,587.00 at Playboy (R-1 & R-6). Because the petitioner failed to notify her local unemployment office of her employment, she received unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled in the amount of $1,064.00 (R-2, R-5 & R-6).

On April 17, 1984, the Department of Labor (Department) notified the petitioner that it would be conducting a hearing on April 26, 1984, concerning the unemployment benefits she had received from January 20, 1982 through March 16, 1982, while petitioner had been employed (R-3). The petitioner did not attend the hearing. The Department of Labor thereafter made a determination that the petitioner had received unemployment benefits in the amount of $1,064.00, which she was not entitled to receive, and it imposed a fine of $266 for a total claim of $1,330 (R-2).

Over the next several years, the petitioner's State income tax return checks were withheld by the State and applied to her outstanding debt for unemployment benefits. The petitioner made no other attempt to repay this debt. After being contacted by the Division in March 1989 concerning her license renewal application, the petitioner contacted the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance, and she entered into a repayment agreement of $25 per week. From April 1989 through March 1990, the petitioner made payments pursuant to this agreement (P-1). In March or April 1990, the petitioner changed from being a cage cashier to being an income control clerk. This resulted in her receiving a cut in salary. She therefore wrote to the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance and requested that her repayment agreement be reduced to $15 per week. She has not yet received a response from the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance.

The petitioner is 33 years of age, and she was 24 years of age at the time she collected unemployment benefits. She was raised by her mother along with her ten brothers and sisters. The family moved to Atlantic City when the petitioner was 13 years old. She left high school in the eleventh grade because she became pregnant. She is now a single parent raising three children. She is an active member of the New Hope Baptist Church where she serves as the Assistant Director of the Youth Department.

The petitioner has been employed in the casino industry for nearly ten years. She first became employed as a pit clerk at Harrahs in 1980. She left Harrahs in 1981 to accept the same position at Playboy. After being laid-off and her return in January 1982, the petitioner became a cage cashier at Playboy. On March 20, 1985, the petitioner left her employment at Playboy and accepted a position as a cage cashier at Trump's Castle Hotel and Casino. In March or April 1990, the petitioner changed jobs at Trump's Castle and she became an income control clerk. This change in position resulted in a pay cut; however, the petitioner changed positions in order to achieve more stable hours of employment so she could spend more time raising her family. In the petitioner's view, she needs to be at home with her teenage children in order to properly raise them.

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the petitioner's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident and her current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess her credibility. Initially, her position in this matter must be recognized. As the petitioner and the applicant for a casino employee license, she has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the petitioner's demeanor, the plausibility of her testimony, the manner in which she participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appeared the petitioner testified truthfully in every regard. She candidly admitted her misconduct and described in detail, experiencing great humiliation, the underlying circumstances. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the petitioner's testimony in all respects.

I am persuaded that her misconduct was, in part, due to immaturity. I am also inclined to believe that it was the result of inexperience and the difficulty in dealing with her financial and family affairs. At the time the petitioner obtained the job and failed to disclose this fact to her local unemployment office, she was in a difficult living arrangement. She was a single parent responsible for raising three children and her only concern was to provide food and shelter for her children.

DISCUSSION

The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft by deception, which constitutes a violation of section 86c(1), and that, accordingly, she is disqualified from continued licensure.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g

Section 86g provides that an applicant will be disqualified from licensure because of the commission of any action which would constitute an offense under section 86c, even if there has not been a prosecution for such conduct. Section 86c(1) mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner's receipt of unemployment benefits while she was employed at Playboy constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which under the circumstances disqualifies the petitioner from continued licensure.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, Theft by deception, provides:

> A person is guilty of theft if he purposely obtains property of another by deception. A person deceives if he purposely:
>
> a. Creates or reinforces a false impression, including false impressions as to law, value, intention or other state of mind; but deception as to a person's intention to perform a promise shall not be inferred from the fact alone that he did not subsequently perform the promise;
>
>
> c. Fails to correct a false impression which the deceiver previously created or reinforced, or which the deceiver knows to be influencing another to whom he stands in a fiduciary or confidential relationship.
>
> The term "deceive" does not, however, include falsity as to matters having no pecuniary significance, or puffing or exaggeration by statements unlikely to deceive ordinary persons in the group addressed.

This statute has been held applicable where one wrongfully receives unemployment benefits. In State v. Moore, 158 N.J. Super. 68, 85-86 (App. Div. 1978), the court stated:

> As we read the trial judge's findings, defendant knowlingly misrepresented his employment status to obtain money "under pretense that he is...out of employment." These findings establish a violation of N.J.S.A. 2A:111-2.[2] It is not necessary to prove a "corrupt intent," so long as the evidence establishes a criminal intent. See State v. Lambertson, 110 N.J. Super, 137, 141-143 (App. Div.) certif. den. 56 N.J. 479 (1970). It is immaterial that defendant may have felt entitled to some unemployment benefits and, therefore, did not have a "conscious" intent to defraud or to commit a criminal or immoral act. It is not necessary to show that defendant was "conscious that his acts were unlawful." Id. Defendant himself testified, in effect, that he received more benefits than he thought he should receive, based upon the hours he allegedly worked - or did not work. It was unnecessary to determine the exact amount of overpayment, so long as the wrongful acts inducing such payment have been established. State v. Harris, 70 N.J. 586, 589 (1976).

The Division established, and the petitioner admitted during her testimony, that she knowlingly received unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled from the Department of Labor. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2)a, the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offense committed by the petitioner is a disqualifying offense under sections 86c(1) and 86g. The petitioner is therefore disqualified from licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and 86g.

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h

An applicant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating his or her rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

---

[2] N.J.S.A. 2A:111-2 is now repealed, but was the predecessor to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4.

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;

2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

4. The date of the offense or conduct;

5. The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

First, Ms. James is a casino employee. While she does hold a blackjack dealer credential, she has never been employed as a dealer. She is presently a non-gaming casino employee and is employed as an income control clerk. She works in an office and reviews the accuracy of paperwork. As such, she does not have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities, and she does not have contact with casino patrons.

Second, the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, Theft by deception - third degree, over an eight-week period during which she was employed in the industry. Because the offense is a listed disqualifier under section 86c(1), it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the misconduct must be viewed in its appropriate context. The petitioner was a young, unemployed, single parent of three children. She had not received a paycheck in over eight weeks. As such, she had borrowed from others in order to attempt to meet her expenses. The petitioner's main concerns were to provide food and shelter for her family. She was simply concerned with providing for her family in a time of crisis. These circumstances converged upon the petitioner and impaired her judgment. Accordingly, the totality of the circumstances underlying the incident tend to mitigate somewhat the seriousness of her offense.

Fourth, the petitioner's misconduct occurred from the end of January 1982 until mid-March 1982, when it ceased.

Fifth, the petitioner was 24 years of age at the time of the offense. I believe that immaturity was a factor in this case. The petitioner believes she has learned with maturity and such conduct will not occur again. She is now a responsible, productive member of society. In addition, it is clear that the underlying circumstances affected the petitioner's ability to deal reasonably with the problem at that time. She now knows that their were other, legal ways to deal with her problem.

Sixth, the petitioner has no prior or subsequent arrests and has had no other transgressions of the law.

Seventh, because of the underlying circumstances, the petitioner was only concerned with raising and providing for her family. Her family's security and her financial situation were major concerns. Because of her youthfulness, she was unaware of other alternatives which she could have pursued.

Eighth, the petitioner has made substantial rehabilitative efforts. She has made partial restitution. The petitioner has been employed in the casino industry continuously since January 1982 and first entered the industry in August 1980. Her performance has been exemplary. She has demonstrated that she has matured and has accepted responsibility. Her home life has also stabilized, and she has demonstrated her acceptance of responsibility. She is a single parent who takes her obligations seriously.

The petitioner regularly participates in church activities and is the Assistant Youth Director. The petitioner has expressed remorse for, and has no intention of repeating, her misconduct. Accordingly, there is little likelihood, if any, of a repetition. Essentially, there is nothing more the petitioner could do to establish her rehabilitation.

(C) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Ms. James was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, her good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Id. at 296.

It is readily apparent that the petitioner's misconduct was aberrant and that she is otherwise a person of good character, honesty and integrity. The misconduct did not involve her licensed employment, and the underlying circumstances somewhat mitigated the seriousness of the misconduct. In addition, the petitioner has fully accepted responsibility for her misconduct, has substantially made restitution, regained control over her behavior, performed admirably within the casino industry during the past eight years, is a responsible single parent of three children, is active in her church, and has become a respected member of the community. Accordingly, the petitioner presents no risk to the public nor to the integrity of the gaming industry in this State. The petitioner has earned the privilege of licensure. An examination of the whole person clearly and convincingly establishes that Ms. James is a person of good character, honesty and integrity, and is entirely suitable for licensure in this State. See, Boardwalk Regency Corp.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, her good character, honesty and integrity under section 90b.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CCC 8380-89
AGENCY DKT. NO. 90-EA-78

IN THE MATTER OF THE APPLICATION OF WILLIAM LEE JAMES FOR A CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSE

William Lee James, petitioner pro se
Ralph Fusco, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: August 28, 1990 Decided: September 10, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

William Lee James graduated from Bridgeton High School in 1977. He was a special student. James cannot read. During high school, James was a kitchen employee at a steak house in Bridgeton. After graduation he worked for Seabrook Farms for approximately 9 years. Seabrook Farms raises, processes and freeze-packages vegetables for sale to supermarkets across the country. James was hired as a cleaner. He cleaned and polished the equipment used in cooking and processing vegetables.

Seabrook Farms employment is seasonal employment, subject to long layoffs. James sought employment in the casino industry approximately one year ago in order to have full time employment. He obtained a hotel registration from the Casino Control Commission which permits him to work in the casino hotel in a variety of jobs, but it does not permit him to work in or about the casino itself.

James is content working as a cleaner in the kitchen; he calls it the "back of the house." He does not enjoy working in the public eye.

James described himself as a "lonely" person, with few friends. He resides with his grandmother in Bridgeton and commutes daily to work at Caesars by bus. He spends his off duty time at home watching television. Occasionally he goes fishing with an uncle who also resides in Bridgeton. James is exceedingly polite and friendly, once contact is made with him, but he is a very shy man, and unsure of strangers.

James is 32 years old. He has never been convicted of a crime. He earns approximately $6.56 per hour at Caesars. He seeks a non-gaming casino employee license so that he can work as a cleaner on the casino floor. He is not particularly anxious to do so, because he is timid when exposed to the public, but apparently the license will increase his value to his employer, so he has made the application.

The Division of Gaming Enforcement objected to James' license application, but not to his registration, on the grounds that he committed conduct which constitutes a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, g and 90e. Section 86c of the Casino Control Act contains a list of crimes. A conviction for any one of them disqualifies an applicant from licensure. Even if a person has not been prosecuted for one of the enumerated offenses, a person may still be disqualified from licensure, if the Division can prove that the person's conduct conformed to the statutory definition of the crime, according to section 86g. Section 90h of the Act permits a person to avoid disqualification however, in the event rehabilitation has occurred. There is a further requirement that each applicant for casino employee licensure prove by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses a good character, honesty and integrity. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b.

When James learned that the Division of Gaming Enforcement objected to his application for licensure he requested a hearing. The Casino Control Commission then transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-107 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

At a prehearing conference the issues of whether or not James committed conduct equivalent to theft in the third degree contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 and 2 (over $500); whether or not he possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity; and, if he committed the criminal conduct, has he rehabilitated himself; were listed for resolution at a plenary hearing which convened on August 28, 1990.

Before the hearing the Division propounded interrogatories upon James. Because he could not read them, he did not answer them. When they were read to him, he could not understand them. When they were explained to him at the hearing, he agreed that he had a judgment against him from the Division of Unemployment Benefits.

The gravamen of the Division's complaint, the sole issue which triggered this investigation and gives rise to the three issues described above, is the undisputed fact that from May 18, 1984 through July 20, 1984, while employed at Seabrook Farms, James received unemployment benefits in the amount of $1,285. James says he did not know at the time that what he was doing was stealing from the government, and in fact, he may not be able to make such a fine discrimination. Indeed, persons much better placed than James, with more education, and of whom we have higher expectations, are equally unable to discriminate when it is the government's money at issue. Nevertheless, James now acknowledges that he was wrong and agrees that he owes the government money.

On subsequent occasions when James was eligible for unemployment benefits, he endorsed his unemployment benefit checks over to the government and so he has partially reduced his debt. It appears that he presently owes about $500 to the government.

James says that he intends to pay the government back; he has just never had the money on hand to do so. He recently made a contract to pay the money back at the rate of $25 per week. He produced addressed envelopes the government sent to him for ease in making the payments. James intended to make his first payment "next week."

All James brought to the hearing were the envelopes, the pleadings, and an honest countenance. He recalled that at the prehearing conference he was instructed to bring witnesses or letters of recommendation, but he said he was unable to obtain them. He explained again that he is a "lonely person" and "stays by (himself." He said that some of the people he asked for letters have drifted off to other jobs, and some have been too busy.

James was unable to confirm my impression by any evidence (a letter from a supervisor or co-worker, an annual evaluation from his personal file) other than his demeanor, that he is a good and honest worker and poses no threat to the casino or its patrons. But the Casino Control Act is clear; the burden is upon James to "produce such information, documentation and assurances as may be required to establish by clear and convincing evidence (his) good character, honesty and integrity." N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2)

Because of James' learning disability, I am not convinced that James committed theft when he received unemployment benefits in 1984. Therefore I CONCLUDE that the Division has failed to establish by a preponderance of the credible evidence that James committed conduct which is equivalent to theft by deception in an aggregate amount of more than $500.

However, I must also CONCLUDE that James has failed to provide such information, documentation and assurances as may be required to establish by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity.

No crime having been committed, the issue of rehabilitation is moot.

I ORDER that the application of William Lee James for a casino employee license be DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CCC 6686-89
AGENCY DKT. NO. 90-EA-50

DEBORAH L. JONES,
Petitioner,
v.
STATE OF NEW JERSEY,
DEPARTMENT OF LAW & PUBLIC SAFETY,
DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT,
Respondent.

Deborah L. Jones, petitioner, pro se

Charles Kimmel, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: May 21, 1990 Decided: June 21, 1990

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

This matter comes before the Office of Administrative Law following transmittal from the Casino Control Commission ("Commission"). The Division of Gaming Enforcement ("Division") filed a complaint with the Commission on August 16, 1989, objecting to the renewal of a casino employee license which had been previously issued to the petitioner and which was up for renewal. Ms. Jones requested a hearing on the proposed denial and the matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held on January 19, 1990 before Honorable Edgar R. Holmes, who issued a prehearing order on January 22, 1990. Thereafter, a hearing was held before Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin at the Office of Administrative Law in Atlantic City on May 21, 1990. The record closed following completion of the hearing.

ISSUES

The prehearing order set forth the issues as follows:

A. Whether petitioner engaged in acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this state, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: theft by receiving Unemployment Insurance Benefits to which she was not entitled in 1982, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. The amount charged is over $500 and therefore a Third Degree Theft.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2)?

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act?

EVIDENCE

At hearing, the Division of Gaming Enforcement presented evidence to establish the basis for its objection to the renewal of Ms. Jones' license. Specifically, the Division presented a New Jersey State Department of Labor, Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance Determination and Demand for Refund of Unemployment or Disability Benefits and Imposition of Penalty and Disqualification Because of Willful Misrepresentation, which document was mailed on May 6, 1985 to Ms. Jones at her home in Atlantic City. This document advised that she had been employed at Midtown Motor Inn Limited and that she had also received unemployment benefits illegally while so employed. The demand was for repayment of $906.25, which was the amount allegedly overpaid. In addition, she was disqualified from receiving benefits for one year from the date of mailing and liable for a fine which amounted to $181.25.

The Division also presented documents to show payments made by the Midtown Motor Inn Limited to Ms. Jones in July and August 1982 and a statement by Ms. Jones which she apparently signed on January 4, 1984, in which she states:

> While collecting unemployment benefits between 7-18-82 I did work some weeks for Sands Hotel, some weeks for Midtown Motor Inn.

As a result of the determination that Ms. Jones had violated the law by receiving unemployment benefits while otherwise employed and in circumstances where she would not have been entitled to receive any unemployment, Ms. Jones was advised that a payment of $20 per week would be acceptable as an installment arrangement for refunding the unemployment benefits. The letter confirming this payment schedule is dated June 25, 1985. The record also contains a letter of June 17, 1985 (R-6), which called for $80 a month payments until paid in full.

Ms. Jones testified in her own behalf. She advised that she had been working part-time temporary jobs at the Sands and the Midtown Motor Inn and that she did not feel that she should interrupt the flow of her unemployment checks since the jobs were of a temporary nature. She acknowledged that she had been working in the casino industry prior to her being fired from such employment. She could not recall whether she made any specific payments on the outstanding unemployment obligation, but she did recall that her income tax returns were seized as a method of paying off her debt. She paid off the balance due by way of a check in the amount of $200 and another one in the amount of $204.83 on July 25 and October 6, 1989. She submitted a notice of satisfaction from the Division dated October 11, 1989 indicating that the entire debt had been paid. A Warrant for Satisfaction was filed with the Superior Court, acknowledging the full payment of the obligation.

Ms. Jones has been employed at the Tropicana/TropWorld Casino Hotel for the past seven years. She is currently a security officer earning $350 a week. She submitted a written statement, P-7 in evidence, as part of her testimony. In this, she notes that she was terminated from Bally's Park Place on March 11, 1982 for excessive absenteeism and then filed her claim with the unemployment department. She was penalized because of the fact that she was terminated from employment for a period of about eight weeks. She began seeking employment in other casinos and began collecting unemployment checks at a time when she was not yet employed. She did however work part-time at the Sands and Midtown Motor Inn for a period of four weeks and one week respectively. She reiterates the fact that these were temporary jobs. She continued to collect unemployment because she was "a single parent raising a 12-year-old daughter with the responsibility of paying the rent, supplying food, and clothing. Also the other bills that went on regardless of whether I was employed or not."

In addition, Ms. Jones notes that "she figured that the unemployment checks were my money that I had paid into the Department for the past two-and-one-half years." She explained that it took her a long time to pay back the Division because they were taking her state income tax refund checks for 1986 through 1988, a total of $490.19, and she had heard nothing from them and believed that they were "somewhat content." When she was contacted by the Division of Gaming Enforcement Agent Maggs and was told that her license reapplication might be denied she arranged which the Division of Unemployment to pay the remainder of the balance.

Character Evidence

In support of her position, Ms. Jones presented testimony of several character witnesses. Walter Jeralds, who has been her immediate supervisor for three years in the security department at the TropWorld, testified that she is an outstanding employee, that she has integrity and honesty and that there have been no negative incidents in connection with her employment. She is presently a command post operator and has responsibility for signing out keys, answering phones, etc. She is evaluated once a year and except for some attendance problems has an outstanding overall evaluation. She is highly respected and liked. She also has occasional possession of master keys and is constantly around money without any problem having occurred.

Ronald V. Pisko, a supervisor at TropWorld testified that he is the lieutenant in charge of the shift and supervises Ms. Jones two days a week on the midnight shift She is one of the most dependable and dedicated individuals working for him and is "outstanding," a "highly responsible" individual. Ms. Jones has responsibilities involving surveillance cameras, phones, and keys and has been involved in many arrests, as well as transportation of million of dollars with no shortages or any attitude problems. She is "thoroughly responsible" and a "key employee."

Donald E. Barnes, also a supervisor of Ms. Jones for seven years at the TropWorld, testified that he was the lieutenant in charge of the midnight shift until December 19, 1989, when he became an administrator. He agreed with the assessments provided by Messrs. Jeralds and Pisko are outside of the job context and knows her to be a conscientious parent who pays her bills. He has never heard anything negative about her either or outside of the casino.

Ms. Jones presented evaluations from the Tropicana which generally indicate acceptable or above ratings for her performance. In fact, they appear to show improvement over the years to the extent that they demonstrate a growing number of outstanding ratings.

DISCUSSION

I FIND that Ms. Jones, while holding a casino employee license, committed the offense of theft by deception in that she received unemployment benefits in a fraudulent manner, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. The amount of the fraud was in excess of $500 and constitutes a crime of the third degree pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2. Although she was not criminally prosecuted, the evidence is sufficient to sustain the Division's burden of establishing the commission of such an illegal act by a preponderance of the credible evidence, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g. This conduct constitutes disqualifying conduct under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)1.

In view of the disqualification of Ms. Jones from licensure due to the conduct in which she engaged, the key issue in this case is whether she has established her good character, honesty and integrity and her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. With respect to these two issues, there is a good deal of similarity in the nature of the evidence which is relevant to the determination of whether the proofs support findings in her favor. Specifically, the evidence establishes that Ms. Jones committed an offense which, while monetary in nature, is of a serious character, particularly due to the fact that she was licensed by the state as a casino employee at the time that she committed the offenses and her employment during the period of fraud was at least partially at a casino facility. It is a serious matter when a licensed individual undertakes to commit fraud upon the citizens of the State of New Jersey, while enjoying the benefit of employment and licensure in the highly regulated and otherwise illegal gambling industry, which was at least partially promoted to New Jersey citizens as a means of increasing employment opportunities, thus reducing the rolls of those forced to receive unemployment benefits at taxpayer's expense.

Ms. Jones' conduct was knowing and willful. She readily acknowledged that she determined that she should continue to accept unemployment benefits while working at the two jobs which she believed would be temporary and from her testimony it appears that she did not consider it necessary, nor did she make any effort, to determine whether the temporary nature of the jobs would in any way actually permit her to continue receiving benefits or not. She simply decided that she should allow her income to be supplemented by the unemployment benefits while she was being paid for working. The purposeful nature of her conduct increases the severity of the incident.

At the time Ms. Jones engaged in unemployment fraud she was approximately 29 years old. At this age she should have known better. However, it must also be recognized that the incident itself did occur eight years ago and there has been a considerable passage of time, and hopefully a maturation process.

Ms. Jones' reason for her conduct is typical for matters of this nature. Hard pressed by bills, raising a child, in some financial straits, she followed a convenient path which presented itself to her to supplement her income. While her action is economically understandable, this is not an excuse for it.

The most impressive aspect of the rehabilitation proof revolves around Ms. Jones' employment history, particularly during the last three years. She has been employed in the security department of the TropWorld for three years where she has received outstanding evaluations and recommendations, which in this case were presented via live testimony by three individuals who came forward to support their fellow employee. Each served in a supervisory capacity over Ms. Jones and spoke highly of her good character, honesty and integrity. They also pointed out her involvement with the security aspects of the casino operation, including contact with substantial sums, without any problems presenting themselves. This testimony speaks highly of the applicant.

On the whole, it appears that this case involves an individual who, when in some economic difficulty and presented with an opportunity to obtain some extra dollars, gave in to the temptation. Other than this incident, it does not appear that Ms. Jones has been in any other trouble. In some respects the incident may be aberrational, although there is no way of being completely sure that she would not again succumb to such temptations if the situation repeated itself. However, on the whole, given the considerable passage of time, and in light of her more recent conduct, particularly her employment within the casino industry functioning in a position of trust with good success, I CONCLUDE that the evidence does establish that Ms. Jones has rehabilitated herself from the adverse inferences arising from her prior disqualifying conduct and that she further possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure which is required by N.J.S.A. 5:89b(2). Under these circumstances, I CONCLUDE that she has established established rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and that she should be permitted to renew her casino employee license.

It is hereby ORDERED that the casino employee license of Deborah L. Jones be RENEWED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

BEFORE RICHARD J. MURPHY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) has filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) under the Casino Control Act, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq., seeking to revoke the casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration held by Domingo Laboy, a former public area attendant at Harrah's, for his alleged theft of a coin cup containing $42.00 from a patron of Bally's Grand Hotel in August 1988.*

*As to the procedural history, the Division's compaint was filed with the Commission on November 2, 1988, and filed with the Office of Administrative Law on December 2, 1988, for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. The prehearing conference was held on January 19, 1989, and the plenary hearing was held on April 21, 1989, in Atlantic City, with the record closing on May 25, 1989, after receipt of additional documentation. The due date for submission of the Initial Decision was extended on several occasions for a variety of reasons not relevant to this case, including pending public utility matters, and I very much regret any hardship or inconvenience that the extension of this matter until July 2, 1990, has caused any of the parties.

ISSUES TO BE RESOLVED

(1) Whether the respondent engaged in conduct inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(g), notwithstanding that this conduct was not successfully prosecuted;

(2) Whether the respondent can demonstrate the good character, honesty and integrity required for lciensrue prusuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)2, and N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(b), considering factors of rehabilitation set forth in 5:12-90h.

The Division seeks revocation of respondent's casino employee license and casino employee registration, notwithstanding the fact that the criminal charge of theft was dismissed on or about September 9, 1988.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Domingo Laboy denies that he took a coin up containing $42.00 in quarters from a Patron at Bally's on August 22, 1988. He does not dispute that that amount of money, in that denomination, was found in his possession and confiscated on that date. He claims that those coins were found by him over a period of time in the slot area at Bally's, and that he had the money with him on that day to buy a pair of shoes. He testified that, in August 1988, he was working in the "poker city" area of the Bally's Grand floor, which contains poker card machines, and was assigned to perform housekeeping and cleaning on the casino floor. Specifically he claims that he brought to work with him $25.00 in quarters, which he had previously received in tips or found on the floor and then taken home for safekeeping, and the balance of the $17.50 he found on the floor or received in tips on August 22, 1988. He states that it is not unusual from him to find or receive in tips of $12.00 to $15.00 a day and has received as much as $20.00. His intention in bringing the $25.00 in coins, on August 22, 1988, was to buy a pair of shoes in Atlantic City the next day, after he got off work. He intended to cash the coins into paper at the casino in order to buy the shoes, which cost $40.00. He claims that he did later buy the shoes, and still has them. On two other occasions, he had found a wallet and $1,000.00 on the casino floor and alleges that he turned both into the casino, which is not disputed by the Division.

The Division presented no live testimony at the hearing, but relied on police reports to attempt to establish the conduct of theft by Laboy. The complainant in this case was one Julie M. Conover and the complaint specifically charged Laboy with "unlawfully taking certain moveable property to wit: a coin cup containing $42.00 in quarters in U.S. currency, belonging to another, with the intent to deprive the owner thereof, which is a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3". (P-1). Security Office Sergeant Bower was on duty on August 22, 1988, and gave the following statement:

> [h]ousekeeper picked up cup of coin which was right next to the machine victim was playing, to the left of the machine. She thought he was just cleaning and then he walked away with it. He came back a minute later it was empty. Then the victim went to the security podium and reported the theft. Got his name off his Id and reported to security. (P-5).

An investigation report by New Jersey State Police Detective J. Cordy, contained the following account, which was admitted into evidence, despite the fact, as respondent's counsel correctly pointed out, it is "double hearsay":

> [h]his date detail to the Bally's Grand Hotel/Casino reference a theft complaint. Upon arrival met with S/O Bower and it was advised that the above listed accused had taken a casino patron's coin cup.
>
> The investigation revealed that the victim had been playing with a slot machine #4429, location 1305-07, when the accused, identified as Domingo Laboy CCC #73669-22, a public area attendant, picked up a partially full coin cup containing $42.00 in coins from along the side of the machine the victim was playing, and returned the cup empty. A statement taken from the victim revealed that she observed him cleaning the slot area, at which time, she observed the accused pick up her coin cup and walk away with the cup. At this point, she still though the accused was doing his job. When the accused returned, he put the coin cup back, next to the machine that the victim was playing; however, the cup was empty.
> The accused was arrested, read his rights as per Miranda, and processed. A complaint was signed against the accused for theft by unlawful taking by the victim and forwarded to AC Municipal Court pending a date. · A check with Bally's Grand Surveilance > Department for any CC TV coverage [video surveilance], was met with negative results. There were no other witnesses to this accident.

> The "42.00 in quarters was found on the accused person, it was conviscated, and entered into evidence. It should be noted that the victim originally claimed to have had approximately $20.00 in quarters in the coin cup, then changed the amount. (P-5) (Emphasis added).

The Division also submitted statements from slot manager at Bally's Grand, Mr. David Lyons, indicating that machine #4429 was at location 1305-07 on August 22, 1988, and was a $.25 denomination on that date. (P-6; P-7).

Domingo Laboy, who primarily speaks Spanish and has a more limited grasp of English, says that he was approached by security office Bower on August 22, 1988 and Officer Cordy, who said, referring to the missing coins, "Why did you do that", to which Laboy responded, "But I didn't: she says I did it". He claimed, that part of the money in his posssession, besides the $25.00 he had previously found and brought from home, were tips from winning gamblers, or found money. Laboy also testified that he is "a religious man" who "prays to the Lord every morning" and is very concerned for his salvation. After his dismissal from Bally's he applied for and received a casino employee license in gaming.

Having heard the testimony of Domingo Laboy, which I found to be credible, and considering the police reports submitted by the Division, I FIND as a matter of fact that Domingo Laboy did not engage in a conduct of theft of the coin cup from a patron containing $42.00 in change. I FIND the respondent's testimony to be sincere and straightforward, and his story is worthy of belief, or at least more worthy than the reports submitted by the Division, in which the complaining patron inflated the amount of money claimed to have been stolen from $20.00 to $42.00, when she learned that the higher figure had been found in Mr. Laboy's possession. On that basis, I FIND Ms. Conover's claim to be unworthy of belief, and also note that the criminal charge was dismissed for lack of prosecution. Laboy's claim that he had with him $25.00 in found or tip money brought in from home to buy shoes, as well as $17.50 in coins found on the floor or given in tips by winning gamblers that day, is believable, considering the relatively low level of his position at the casino and commensurately low level of his salary.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

I CONCLUDE that the Division of Gaming Enforcement has failed to prove that the respondent Domingo Laboy engaged in conduct inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(6) on the basis of the above finding of fact, which rests on my assessment of the respondent's credibility, as well as the thin and unconvincing nature of the Division's proofs.

I further CONCLUDE that the respondent has demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty, and integrity required for licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)2 and 90(b)1. Beyond the incident of the allged theft of $42.00 in coins, the Division raises not objection to the applicant's good character, honesty and integrity and I CONCLUDE that he has sufficiently demonstrated those qualities to retain his casino employee license.

Again, I regret the delay in the processing of this case, especially in light of my finding and conclusion that the Division has failed to prove that the respondent engaged in the conduct of theft of $42.00 in quarters from a patron.

ORDER

On the basis of the above findings of fact resting on crediblity, and conclusions of law, it is ORDERED that the complaint seeking revocation of Domingo Laboy's casino hotel registration is DISMISSED and his application for a casino employee license is GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CCC 9175-89
AGENCY DKT. NO. 90-EA-66

IN THE MATTER OF THE RENEWAL APPLICATION OF CHARLES E. LAIRD FOR A CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSE.

Gregory Imperiale, Esq., for petitioner
Ralph Fusco, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: August 14, 1990 Decided: September 12, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

Charles E. Laird is a 34 year old Atlantic City casino blackjack and baccarat dealer. He is well regarded by his peers and supervisors at the Tropicana Hotel and Casino where he is presently employed. He is also well regarded by members of the larger community, many of whom have known him since he was a child. He has numerous personal letters of reference.

Laird was first licensed by the Casino Control Commission (Commission) as a dealer in 1979 and worked at Bally's for approximately eight years. He was fired from Bally's on August 8, 1987 as a result of an arrest on August 2, 1987 in connection with drug charges.

The Margate, New Jersey police searched Laird's home, which he shared with a couple. They found some marijuana plants, small amounts of hash, cocaine and a few pills. Laird told the police that everything in the house was his. He was not aware at the time that he made this statement that the police had found hash in a bedroom recently vacated by a third housemate.

Laird was candid about his drug use. He said that he grew the marijuana from seeds in order to smoke pot more cheaply, but the marijuana was of such poor quality that he rarely used his own crop. He purchased a better grade of marijuana on the street.

Laird also admitted having used cocaine over a period of time but asserted that he had weaned himself from cocaine by the time of the arrest. He denied ever having smoked or purchased marijuana or cocaine while at work in a casino. He also claimed to be drug free ever since the arrest.

Laird did not distribute drugs. There is no proof that he did. He admits only to sharing marijuana with his male housemate. He said the female housemate did not smoke. As a result of his admission that he would share drugs with his roommate, he has satisfied the statute which defines distribution or intent to distribute so broadly as to include sharing.

I therefore FIND that Laird possessed marijuana with the intent to distribute it in violation of the law (N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5). This act constitutes a statutory disqualifier and I CONCLUDE that Laird is disqualified from casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and 90e unless he is saved from disqualification by being rehabilitated according to section 90h of the Casino Control Act (Act).

An applicant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c(1) disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating his/her rehabilitation as provided by section 90h of the Act. The factors which the Commission shall consider in determining the applicants rehabilitation are as follows: (1) The nature and duties of the position applied for; (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct; (3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred; (4) The date of the offense or conduct; (5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed; (6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident; (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct; (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

(1) The licensee is a baccarat dealer in constant contact with casino employees and the public. There is no evidence however, that the licensee ever dealt drugs or ever used drugs at work.

(2) The offense is not a serious one involving distribution for profits. The licensee only shared marijuana with a housemate.

(3) The offense occurred at home.

(4) The offense occurred over three years ago.

(5) The licensee was 31 years old when he was arrested.

(6) The licensee had been engaged in drug use for a period of approximately eight years when he was arrested.

(7) There was no evidence that social conditions contributed to the offense.

(8) The licensee has been treated by the courts as a first offender. He successfully completed pretrial intervention and the charges were dismissed. He has an excellent work record and is well recommended by his supervisors, co-workers and members of the larger community.

I CONCLUDE that the licensee has affirmatively established his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence.

The applicant must also exhibit good character, honesty and integrity. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b2 and 90b. The rehabilitation factors are also relevant on this issue.

In addition, the licensee was completely candid about his drug use. He sought to hide nothing. When he denied knowing that hash was in the closet of an empty room, he quickly added that if he had known it was there, he would have smoked it.

The Act requires only that a licensee exhibit good character, honesty and integrity. It nowhere demands a perfect character. The licensee made a mistake. He has paid the penalty and cured the defects. I am satisfied that he no longer uses marijuana or other drugs. In all other respects he appears to be a good worker and citizen and a credit to the industry.

I CONCLUDE that the licensee possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure.

I DISMISS the complaint filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement and ORDER that the petitioner's license be RENEWED.

Record Closed: June 8, 1990 Decided: July 23, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Division filed letters with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) objecting to the issuance of casino service industry licenses to petitioners Botti and Laman-Loesche Supply Co., Inc. The Division identified Botti as a qualifier for the company pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.14(a)(2) 1 through 10, because he was listed on the application as Laman-Loesche's vice president for sales. Botti is also alleged to have been convicted of a crime which would render him unfit for casino service industry licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86 c, g and 92d. The petitioners requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held on January 12, 1990 and the issues to be resolved at a plenary hearing were identified as whether or not Botti committed disqualifying acts pursuant to 86 c and g, whether Botti is a qualifier for Laman-Loesche Supply Co., Inc., pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.14(a)(2), whether Laman-Loesche Supply Inc., possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino service industry licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-92c, and whether Botti may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to Application of Edward Bershad t/a Penn Vending Co. for a Casino Service Industry License, Docket No. 85-CSI-11, final decision 28 March 1989.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Botti was employed as a sales representative for Eastern Supply Company in the nineteen seventies. He sold janitorial and maintenance supplies. The Hudson County Vocational Technical School, a public school, located in North Bergen, New Jersey, was one of his customers. Hudson Vo Tech was subject to the New Jersey Public School Contracts Law, which required it to obtain competitive price quotations and award purchase orders to the lowest responsible bidder when the amount to be purchased was $300 or more. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-37 et seq.

Botti made an arrangement with the school secretary who handled purchases to obtain the school's business. In order for the secretary to appear to comply with the New Jersey School bidding law, Botti submitted additional fraudulent bids for prices higher than the price he and the secretary agreed to. He would then ship the order and she would cause the invoice to be paid because Botti's price appeared to be the lowest bid. Botti and the secretary worked this scheme together numerous times during 1977 and 1978. Botti sold the school more than $50,000 worth of supplies before he was discovered. He was indicted in the United States District Court, New Jersey, in 18 counts, including mail fraud, conspiracy and tax evasion. Botti was tried and convicted on all counts.

Apparently because Botti was politically connected, he was approached by the U.S. Attorney and asked to become a government informant. Botti did cooperate in an investigation involving political corruption, payoffs and kickbacks. He wore a wire. He said that at the completion of his undercover work, he was offered placement in the federal witness protection program but declined the privilege because he did not want to lose contact with his mother and father.

Botti's involvement in the investigation also delayed his entry into probation, but he eventually completed his term of supervision.

Botti left the Union, New Jersey area, where he had formerly lived, after his arrest, conviction and undercover stint. He obtained a sales position with J.H. Williams Company, a manufacturer of hand tools. Botti covered the Northeastern region of the United States for the company. He built his territory up to the point that management added to it the states of Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee, Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma. Unfortunately, the rest of the country did not do as well as Botti did, and J.H. Williams went into bankruptcy.

Botti was recruited by Peter Laman, President of Laman-Loesche Supply Company, a Philadelphia based distributor of tools and maintenance supplies, who was looking for someone to expand the company's activities into the New York metropolitan area. Laman knew Botti because Laman-Loesche distributed a line of tools made by J.H. Williams, among other things.

Botti divulged his criminal background to Laman and Laman nevertheless hired him. Laman says he has never had cause to regret the decision during the four years that Botti has worked for him.

One of the inducements Laman offered to Botti in the process of recruiting him was the title of Vice President. However, the title was honorific only and all decision-making powers remained in Laman and his board of directors, which is apparently comprised of family members.

When the Division objected to the licensure of Laman-Loesche based on Botti's criminal record and his high position in the company, Laman responded by changing Botti's title to Director of Sales and isolating him from all involvement in casino sales. The South Jersey salesman who sells to casinos, now reports directly to Peter Laman. Botti is confined entirely to the New York metropolitan area where he is apparently doing a good job in introducing the Laman-Loesche line to potential customers.

Several persons came to the hearing to testify about Botti's character.

Ronald H. D'Angelo has known Botti for about twenty four years. He was formerly Botti's priest, and political adversary. Now he is Botti's friend and counselor. He said that Botti has changed dramatically since his arrest and conviction. Botti has moved away from his old neighborhood and friends and has remarried.

He says Botti is now a homebody and a good husband and father. He contrasts this with Botti's former life in which, he said, Botti was a husband and father in name only. Because of Botti's former life style and associates, D'Angelo says, he did not vote for Botti when he ran for political office. Now, he says Botti is worth voting for, although there is no indication that Botti is a candidate for anything but a casino service industry license.

Robert Barnstead worked with Botti at J.H. Williams Company. Barnstead stayed with L.H. Williams; the company survived bankruptcy. Barnstead says that Botti did a good job for Williams; that he won the respect of customers, co-workers and management; that he treated everyone fairly and left the firm on good terms. He says Botti is "A1".

Robin Ranahan met Botti through her acquaintance with D'Angelo. She has only known the new Botti; she did not know the old Botti. She described Botti as "a very caring, very generous and loving father and husband." She based this opinion on her observations of him during social gatherings over the past three years.

DISQUALIFICATION OF BOTTI

The New Jersey Criminal Code makes theft by deception a crime of the third degree when it involves more than $500. N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 and 2b (2). The Casino Control Act (Act) provides for the disqualification of a person convicted of a 3rd degree theft from casino service industry licensure in the discretion of the Commission. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (1) and 92d. Persons who have not been convicted of the crimes listed in section 86c (1) may nevertheless be disqualified if the Division of Gaming Enforcement can prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that the person actually committed the acts which constitute the criminal violation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

Botti's conduct in submitting the fraudulent bids in order to obtain $50,000 or more of Hudson Vo Tech's business is sufficient to constitute a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 in the third degree. He was convicted in the federal court of making "false and fraudulent pretenses and representations relating to price quotations ...in order to obtain payment of over $50,000..." Those acts constitute theft by deception.

I therefore CONCLUDE that Botti is disqualified from casino service industry licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (1), g and 92d.

IS BOTTI A QUALIFIER FOR LAMAN-LOESCHE

Casino service industry licenses may not be issued unless the individual qualifications of certain natural persons who constitute the business or service industry seeking licensure conform to sections 86 and 89 of the Act. N.J.A.C. 19:41-3.2 and N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.14. Section 89 of the Act requires that applicants possess other qualifications besides the absence of a criminal record as described in section 86. As a vice president of Laman-Loesche, Botti undoubtedly appeared to be such a person because he was in a position to manage and supervise persons who sold supplies to casinos or to personally engage in sales to casinos. N.J.S.A. 19:43-1.14(a) 2.

When Laman-Loesche changed Botti's title to Director of Sales and isolated him from all casino sales involvement it cured the problem which had arisen under the regulation.

At the plenary hearing the Division had every opportunity to test the bona fides of this arrangement. It did not appear that Botti had any involvement, either directly or indirectly, with New Jersey licensed casinos except in two ways so remote as not to bring him within the ambit of N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.14 (a) 2x, a catch-all provision which reads "any other person whom the chair( ) may consider appropriate for approval or qualification."

First, Laman-Loesche has a profit sharing plan so that if the salesman calling on New Jersey licensed casinos has a banner year, it might be reflected in Botti's share of the profits. Secondly, both Laman and Barnstead described Botti as a very professional and experienced sales representative. He is a strong closer. He is available to other sales representatives as a resource during the weekly sales meetings conducted by Laman. Therefore, he might discuss potential sales to casino licensees with the salesman who is actually responsible for the sale.

These two instances of a possible indirect connection to the casino industry should not disqualify Laman-Loesche from casino service industry licensure. In fact Laman-Loesche was acting in compliance with the public interest as perceived by the New Jersey Legislature when it hired a person with a criminal record. N.J.S.A. 2A:168A-1.

Furthermore, Laman's personal qualifications have not been questioned by the Division. His demeanor at the plenary hearing indicates that he is a strong leader and an upright and conscientious man. I believed him when he said that Botti had no contact with New Jersey casinos. I also formed the opinion that Laman himself is highly unlikely to be adversely influenced by Botti if Botti in fact is not rehabilitated.

I CONCLUDE that Botti is not such a person who must be approved or qualified in order for Laman-Loesche to become licensed as a casino service industry pursuant to N.J.S.A. 92d, and pertinent regulations.

DOES LAMAN-LOESCHE POSSESS THE REQUISITE CHARACTERISTICS FOR LICENSURE

This issue was not directly addressed at the plenary hearing or in the briefs filed by the parties although it was not abandoned by the Division. From the entire record presented, however, it is obvious that the sole objection to the licensure of Laman-Loesche was Botti's involvement in the company. Nevertheless, the burden is on the applicant by clear and convincing evidence to establish its qualifications for licensure. These qualifications include the possession of good character, honesty and integrity. N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3.

The company could have qualified by merely terminating Botti's employment. It chose not to do so for reasons which explicate its good character. Its president, Peter Laman said he believed in Botti; that Botti made a mistake but was "living up" to it, trying to change his life, and doing a good job. He would not stop such a man.

In addition, Laman conducted himself on the witness stand in a manner which clearly showed him to be an honest and forthright individual. From the whole record presented in this matter, I CONCLUDE that Laman-Loesche Supply Company, Inc. possesses the good character, honesty and integrity for casino service industry licensure required by N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3.

IS BOTTI REHABILITATED

The rehabilitation criteria described in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90 (h) and 91 (d), are an appropriate context in which to consider Botti's conduct in any determination in his fitness for licensure. This is so because of the discretion afforded the Casino Control Commission by the legislature at N.J.S.A. 5:12-92d. Application of Edward Bershad Company, t/a Penn Vending Co. for a Casino Service Industry License, Docket No. 85-CSI-11, final decision 28 March 1989. Of course, other factors are relevant.

Alan and Ronald Bershad claimed that Philadelphia police officers required them to pay protection to the police in order to place their vending machines in the precinct. The Bershads also traded on the relationship and used the police to discourage customers from going over to the competition. The Commission was greatly concerned by this latter implication of the protection scheme and with the applicant's attempts to minimize its significance.

Botti too attempted to minimize his involvement in the crimes for which he was convicted. He said the school board secretary asked him to submit the fraudulent bids. He said that no one else wanted to sell to the school, and that neither he nor the secretary made any profit. He seemed to imply that he was indicted for doing the school a favor; that but for him no one would have supplied the school with toilet paper and other necessities.

No one can dispute that Botti has made significant progress in terms of rehabilitation. Laman recognizes it and he has given Botti a significant business opportunity.

But the qualification criteria for casino service industry licensure required by the Act and regulations are to insure as far as possible that persons who deal with casinos will not attempt to evade the regulatory scheme or bribe and corrupt the licensees with whom they deal. This is the very kind of act of which Botti stands convicted. Even giving Botti every benefit of doubt and accepting at face value his interpretation of the events leading to his conviction, he nevertheless totally disregarded the law regarding school contracts. He attempted to avoid its requirements by fraud and deception. This occurred over a substantial period of time and involved a substantial sum of money.

Public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and casino operations is a major factor to be considered in licensing decisions. N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 (6). That is why rehabilitation and evidence of good character, honesty and integrity and other qualifications are required to be shown by the applicant by clear and convincing evidence. N.J.S.A. 5:12-80a. Botti has failed to carry that burden in this case.

I CONCLUDE that Botti has not affirmatively established his rehabilitation and his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence.

ORDER AND DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the application of Robert C. Botti for a casino industry license be DENIED; it is further ORDERED that the application of Laman-Loesche Supply Co., Inc. for a casino service industry license be GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: May 20, 1990 Decided: July 10, 1990

BEFORE WALTER F. SULLIVAN, ALJ:

This matter began on July 5, 1989, when the Division of Gaming Enforcement brought a complaint seeking to revoke the casino hotel employee registration number of the respondent, Michael A. LaVecchia (88978-40) based upon his conviction for possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute within 1000 feet of a school, N.J.S.A. 2C:35-7. The Casino Control Commission characterized the matter as a contested case and transmitted it to the Office of Administrative Law for disposition pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act. Following a prehearing conference, a hearing was held on April 23, 1990. At the conclusion of the Division's proofs, I directed the Attorney General to file a motion to amend the complaint with respect to certain material he had elicited during the hearing with respect to seeming misrepresentations by Mr. LaVecchia with respect to his personal history disclosure form filed before the Board in 1988.

The Division so moved and the motion was not opposed. The record closed on May 20, 1990.

As a threshold matter, the Attorney General noted in the hearing room that N.J.S.A. 2C:35-7 is not explicitly listed among the crimes which will serve as an automatic disqualifier under the Casino Control Act, §86(c)(1). Mr. LaVecchia does not dispute that he was convicted of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-7, but since it was the only conviction arising out of his indictment (2564-10-88), the question of whether or not the conviction serves as a disqualifier gains importance.

The Division argues that the disqualifiers include N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a(1), namely the knowing and purposeful possession with intent to distribute a controlled dangerous substance. The question then arises as to whether or not these elements, further restricted to possession within 1000 feet of a school property may serve as a disqualifier since that is the activity which under the conviction. I ORDER that it can.

I concede that neither side has argued a body of case law with respect to lesser included offenses as specifically understood in the regulatory process or, more specifically, the casino control process. The concept of "lesser included offense" pertains chiefly to the statutes governing pleading in the criminal courts. N.J.S.A. 2C:1-8 and, in a broader sense, to questions of double jeopardy.

On the other hand, in applying the Casino Control Act, the Casino Control Commission bears the responsibility of carrying out the legislative intent as best it can be discerned in the statute. I would consider it an act of folly to exempt possession with intent to sell in the vicinity of a school from the generalized disqualifier of intention with intent to sell. Clearly the former has been found more destructive by the Legislature and LaVecchia has not argued that this is not so. Therefore, since the act which would serve as a disqualifier is in every respect manifest in the act for which LaVecchia was convicted, I view N.J.SA. 2C:35-7 as a disqualifier under the Casino Control Act.

I FIND that Mr. LaVecchia has been convicted of this offense.

Proceeding from the conclusion that an automatic disqualifier exists, I note Mr. LaVecchia's arguments in support of his conclusion that he has been rehabilitated and the Division's arguments that he is not. In my view, Mr. LaVecchia's arguments are substantial but insufficient.

On Mr. LaVecchia's part, I note from the demeanor of those in the hearing room that his father stood beside him throughout the hearing.

Furthermore, Ms. Connie Kopp, Director of Hotel Operations at the Showboat testified for Mr. LaVecchia. He works there as a bellman. Ms. Kopp testified that she had been told by her personnel staff that Mr. LaVecchia had applied for employment as a bellman and indicated to her that he had recently been released from a four month stay in jail on the convictions described above. Ms. Kopp expressed that she had raised reservations at the time but was motivated to interview Mr. LaVecchia because of his forthrightness. Following the interview, she offered employment at Showboat in the capacity as a bellman in which he has access to the personal property of others. Ms. Kopp indicated that she watches Mr. LaVecchia like a hawk and has found nothing to complain of.

Furthermore, Mr. LaVecchia offered two form of evidence from the criminal justice system in support of his claims to rehabilitation. He has submitted documentation of drug testing which indicates that he is drug free and, apart from that, has supplied a report of his probation officer who indicates that his period of probation and release goes well.

The foregoing is FOUND as FACT.

Be that as it may, a number of considerations weigh on the opposite scale against Mr. LaVecchia which cannot be ignored. The first is the recency of the crime for which he was convicted and the second is its seriousness. I will not dwell on the national or societal problems of cocaine other than to note that the amount of which Mr. LaVecchia was convicted of possessing is by statute evidence of an intent to distribute. As noted above, Mr. LaVecchia found himself within 1000 feet of a school and while there is no evidence of actual distribution or attempt to distribute, I do not quarrel with the legislative judgment that having the means of destruction within the immediate vicinity of a school is trouble enough.

Furthermore, Mr. LaVecchia was arrested a second time for much the same kind of crime about a month after the arrest which gave rise to the conviction. This arrest, also for possession of cocaine, led to a conviction in Municipal Court and Mr. LaVecchia can hardly claim to be a victim of some unusual form of bad luck.

More seriously still, a review of Mr. LaVecchia's personal history disclosure form, filed on October 6, 1988 by the Commission indicates Mr. LaVecchia did not acknowledge either the August arrest or the September arrest and September conviction. Mr. LaVecchia testified that his mind was clouded by drug usage at that time, but the general mitigating effect of this statement is diminished by the fact that his mind was clouded in precisely the one direction which worked chiefly to his advantage.

Lastly, Mr. LaVecchia attempted to initiate a discussion in the hearing room denying that he was guilty of the violation discussed above. Mr. LaVecchia pleaded to one of three counts of an indictment and Mr. LaVecchia was represented by counsel. Mr. LaVecchia addressed these realities by his observation that he was unable to make contact with counsel until 46 days had elapsed during his four month incarceration, which denied him access to the Appellate Division.

I indicated at the hearing that while the courts are open to the possibility that Mr. LaVecchia pleaded guilty to a crime he did not commit while in a state of personal agitation, I cannot accept such a statement in this proceeding. Mr. LaVecchia's conviction was in the Superior Court and it is the Superior Court to which Mr. LaVecchia can and may have recourse if he is minded to pursue his position. Nevertheless, as bearing on the question of rehabilitation, the denial of guilt places Mr. LaVecchia in the awkward position of claiming to be rehabilitated from a crime he never committed in the first place.

Of course, I understand that life and law are not so cut and dry and that the logic of Mr. LaVecchia's position might be that he has been rehabilitated from the usage of controlled dangerous substances which clouded his judgment and generally led to the events described by the arresting officers. However, I see nothing in the record to indicate an acknowledgement of wrongdoing and I do see a repeated offense which might be treated as a continuous course of conduct.

The foregoing is FOUND as FACT.

For these reasons, I CONCLUDE that Michael A. LeVecchia has not yet met the standard of rehabilitation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-91D and that his license should be revoked.

746

DECISION

For the Division of Gaming Enforcement:

Before E. KENNETH BURDGE COMMISSIONER:

Statement of the Case

Mr. Roger Lee is required to be qualified to casino key employee license standards in connection with the license renewal of Boardwalk Regency Corporation (BRC) by virtue of his position as senior vice president, finance and administration, and treasurer of BRC holding companies, Caesars World, Inc., and Caesars New Jersey, Inc. Mr. Lee was first found qualified in connection with BRC's 1985 license renewal and has been requalified with each subsequent renewal.

The sole issue to be decided is whether Mr. Lee is able to establish his good character, honesty and integrity as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-85 and -89. The questions raised center on Mr. Lee's violation of the law prohibiting corporate contributions to political campaigns for federal offices. Although the conduct to be examined occurred in 1984, it has not been raised nor considered in any prior proceeding before the Commission.

Procedural History

By letter report dated March 9, 1990, the Division of Gaming Enforcement asked that a hearing be held regarding Mr. Lee's continued qualification for licensure. The Commission agreed and, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-107a(1), I was designated hearing Commissioner.

The hearing was held on July 10, 1990, and the record closed on that date.

Facts

Prior to the hearing the parties entered into a stipulation of facts (Exhibit J-1, attached) which is adopted and incorporated herein by reference.

In 1984 Mr. Lee was chief financial officer of the Bekins Company. On February 3, 1984, the then-president of Bekins, Albert Labinger, asked Lee to contribute $250 to the Glenn campaign and to solicit additional $250 contributions from Lee's subordinates. Labinger advised that the request for contributions was coming from Irwin Jacobs, chairman of the board at Bekins, and that the company could "make him whole" for his contribution. That same day Mr. Lee gave Labinger a check for $250 and solicited campaign contributions from Jack Foti, Bekins's director of corporate development, and Joseph P. Noga, Bekins's controller. Mr. Lee told Foti and Noga that they could be reimbursed either through their expense account reports or through an increase in their bonus incentive award.

Foti and Noga contributed to the Glenn campaign. Both sought and received reimbursement, Foti through his expense account and Noga through his bonus award. Mr. Lee authorized Foti's reimbursement through his expense account and was aware that Noga and others were reimbursed through bonus checks that were "grossed up" to compensate them for the contributions made at the request of Bekins's management.

Mr. Lee never sought nor received any reimbursement for his contribution to the Glenn campaign.

At around this time, Bekins's holding company, Minstar, Inc., was conducting an investigation of improprieties allegedly committed by Bekins's general counsel. In the course of that investigation, Minstar learned that various Bekins employees had been reimbursed by Bekins for contributions to the Glenn campaign. Minstar turned this information over to the Federal Election Commission (FEC) which subsequently conducted its own investigation.

By letter dated June 27, 1985, the FEC notified Mr. Lee that it had determined that there was reason to believe that he had violated 2 U.S.C.A. 441, the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971.

On October 25, 1988, Mr. Lee entered into a consent order with the FEC in which he did not contest that when he authorized the reimbursement of Bekins's employees who made contributions to John Glenn's 1984 presidential campaign, he consented to making a corporate contribution in violation of 2 U.S.C.A. 441b(a) which states:

> It is unlawful for ... any corporation organized by authority of any law of Congress, to make a contribution or expenditure in connection with any election to any political office [for a candidate to federal office] ... or any officer or any director of any corporation ... to consent to any contribution or expenditure by the corporation ... prohibited by this section.

The consent order further provided that it was Mr. Lee's position that any violation of the law was neither knowing nor willful.

Findings and Conclusions

At the hearing testimony was solicited from only one witness, Mr. Lee. Lee testified he did not know it was unlawful for a corporation to reimburse its employees for federal campaign contributions until he was notified by the FEC in June 1985 that it was investigating his possible violation of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971. According to Lee, he merely acquiesced to the suggestion of his boss, Mr. Labinger, that the employees' contributions be made to appear as a popular show of support for Glenn. It was for that reason, Lee testified, that he rejected an expense account submitted by Mr. Foti which expressly listed his contribution to the Glenn campaign as a miscellaneous expenditure of $250.

Mr. Lee readily acknowledged that he should have reflected on the matter before proceeding, but did not do so, much to his subsequent and continuing regret. As Lee put it, "I got a quick request, I reacted quickly and it was in error, I found out afterwards and Lord knows I will never do it again." (T40-24 to T41-1).

Lee denied that he had suggested to any of his subordinates that false expense vouchers could be submitted.

Some of Mr. Lee's statements are contradicted by other evidence in the record. For example, in a deposition before the FEC (R-3), Mr. Foti testified that, after he had naively included his John Glenn contribution as a miscellaneous expense on his expense report, Mr. Lee returned his report, indicating that he, Foti, would have to "disguise the expense in some other way." (T85). According to Foti, Mr. Lee suggested charging for personal air fare. (R-3 at pages 16 to 17).

When questioned about this testimony, Lee emphatically denied making any such statement. Lee insisted that his instructions had been misunderstood. (T57 to T60). Lee stated that he had recounted to Foti what Labinger had told him, namely that he (Foti) was being asked to make a contribution because the chairman of the board wanted to have "a number of people make small contributions in order to demonstrate a grass roots support from multiple people and that if he (Foti) wanted, the company would permit him to be reimbursed for this indirectly through his expense reports." (T36-6 to 11). Lee further testified that he had informed Foti that business expense "must be legitimate ... with a true business purpose served," but that he (Lee) would be more "liberal" rather than "ultra strict" as he had been in the past. Lee offered as an example that under his normally strict standard he would disallow meal expenses which were predominately social and only partly business-related. Under the more liberal policy, he would approve an expense report in those circumstances to allow recompense for the contribution.

In his summation the DAG expressed some reservations about Mr. Lee's testimony, particularly with respect to his explanation for disallowing Foti's initial, candid expense account report. However, the DAG ultimately accepted Mr. Lee's testimony as credible and indicated that the Division would not object to his re-qualification.

Having closely observed Mr. Lee as he testified, I too find him a credible witness. I further find that when he directed his subordinates to make political contributions and arranged for their reimbursement, he did so to satisfy the desires of his superiors in the company. Moreover, I believe that he acted in complete ignorance of the law regarding corporate contributions. His rejection of Foti's candid expense report is, I agree, disconcerting at first glance. However, upon consideration of all the evidence before me I am persuaded that Lee believed that reimbursement in this manner would not be "indirect," and therefore not consistent with the instructions of Mr. Labinger.

Of course, that does not excuse the violation of the political contribution laws, and Mr. Lee has already been called to account for his improprieties by the appropriate federal authorities. The inquiry here is what effect Lee's conduct has upon his qualification under the Casino Control Act. It is neither my province nor inclination to determine whether the restitution paid by the Bekins company was in derogation of internal revenue laws or any other, and I note that this record does not establish that Lee approved any expense allowances which were demonstrably non-business related.

At worst, Lee approved questionable expense reports and authorized bonuses higher than legitimate business interests would appear to have warranted. Such conduct does not exemplify the highest standards one might expect of a chief financial officer, a fact which Mr. Lee has himself come to recognize. Nevertheless, it does not necessarily follow that one cannot satisfy the exacting qualifications under the Casino Control Act on that account.

In evaluating Mr. Lee's fitness under the criteria of good character, honesty and integrity I am obliged to consider "the sum total of [his] attributes, the thread of intention, good or bad, that weaves its way through the experience of [his] lifetime." In re Bally's Casino Application, 10 N.J.A.R. 356, 393 (Casino Control Commission 1981).

Upon consideration of the entire record I find the events and circumstances of the election law violations in 1984 to be a truly aberrant event in Lee's otherwise law-abiding and respectable life. This incident when balanced against the remainder of the evidence elicited in this proceeding and with the assurance that the DGE's thorough investigation of Mr. Lee uncovered nothing other than positive indicia of Mr. Lee's qualification, does not render Mr. Lee unqualified under the Casino Control Act.

I therefore conclude that Roger Lee has clearly and convincingly demonstrated his good character, honesty and integrity. Accordingly, I order that he be found qualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)(2) and -92(b).

This recommended decision may be affirmed, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CCC 7632-89
AGENCY DKT. NO. 90-EA-72

FRANK N. LEICHTNAM, Petitioner,
v.
STATE OF NEW JERSEY, DEPARTMENT OF LAW AND PUBLIC SAFETY, DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT,
Respondent.

Elliot C. Beinfest, Esq., for the petitioner

R. Lane Stebbins, Deputy Attorney General for the respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: May 17, 1990 Decided: June 28, 1990

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the letter filed by the respondent, the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on August 4, 1989, objecting to the renewal of the casino employee license of the petitioner, Frank N. Leichtnam. The petitioner requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted on October 5, 1989 to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A telephone prehearing conference was held on February 23, 1990, at which time the parties agreed that the issues in this matter are:

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constituted a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: theft by deception, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee license pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

The hearing took place on May 17, 1990, in the Office of Administrative Law in Atlantic City, New Jersey, and the record in the matter closed on that date.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

I FIND that there are no factual disputes in this matter.

During its investigation, the Division determined that a certificate of debt was filed against the petitioner by the New Jersey Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance, State Department of Labor (Labor). This certificate of debt is based on the determination by Labor that the petitioner had received unemployment benefits, totaling $535.00, between May 1, 1984 and May 29, 1984, due to his misrepresentation of his employment status (R-1, R-2, R-3, R-4, R-5). With interest and fines, the total amount sought by Labor from the petitioner was $768.99 (R-6). Between May 1, 1984 and May 29, 1984, Mr. Leichtnam was employed by Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino (Trump).

Mr. Leichtnam stated that when he was collecting unemployment benefits in 1984, he was not familiar with the law relating to these benefits. Mr. Leichtnam thought that when he was determined eligible for unemployment benefits, he was entitled to collect all of the checks for a certain period of time, and that he was to notify Labor regarding any new employment thereafter. Mr. Leichtnam's period of eligibility for benefits ceased at the end of May 1984, and Mr. Leichtnam admitted that he did not inform Labor that he got a job with Trump at the beginning of May 1984. When he got this job, Mr. Leichtnam was aware that he would not immediately get a paycheck from Trump.

The petitioner stated that he is 37 years old and that he graduated from high school. Prior to May 1984, Mr. Leichtnam was drinking excessive amounts of alcoholic beverages and found it difficult to support his family on his unemployment benefits. The petitioner's wife left him and for a while he could not find his wife and three children. According to the petitioner, he was opposed to the divorce and became depressed during the divorce proceedings. For a while after the divorce (P-1), Mr. Leichtnam continued to drink heavily. Later, he started to go to church. Mr. Leichtnam stated that he has now improved his life style, he no longer drinks, he has a job at Caesar's Hotel and Casino and he has recently remarried.

According to the petitioner, he never committed any criminal offenses either before or after the matter relating to the overpayment of unemployment benefits. Mr. Leichtnam indicated that this overpayment was due to an error on his part, that it was his only mistake, that he is sorry and that he will never repeat such action in the future. Additionally, the petitioner stated that he paid the entire amount he owed to Labor (P-2). The petitioner admitted that he was advised by a representative of the Division that he should pay the amount he owed to Labor, and it was then that he paid the full amount in two payments (R-6, P-2).

Prior to working for Trump, Mr. Leichtnam was employed as a security officer by Bally's Casino and Hotel. This was his first job in the casino industry and he quit after about ten months. Later, he was employed as a security officer by Resorts Hotel and Casino and was terminated after about one month due to excessive absences. Also, the petitioner worked for Showboat Hotel and Casino for a short period of time and was terminated for excessive absences.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based on the facts presented, Deputy Attorney General R. Lane Stebbins argued that the petitioner misrepresented his employment status to Labor in order to continue to receive unemployment benefits. Although no criminal action was taken against the petitioner, Mr. Stebbins argued that the petitioner's action is analogous to theft by deception in excess of $500, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which is a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g. Mr. Stebbins noted that there is a recent case with similar facts. In that case, the Commission adopted an initial decision holding that the person's license should not be renewed. Thomas v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, OAL DKT. No. CCC 4401-89 (Feb. 7, 1990), adopted by Comm., March 23, 1990. In the Thomas case, concerning the collecting of unemployment benefits while employed by a casino, Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin held that it "does not reflect well upon the casino industry or its employees for a licensed person to dip into the public till while at the same [time] reaping the rewards of casino employment" (Id. at p.4).

Further, Mr. Stebbins argued that the petitioner's casino job as a security guard is a position of trust which justifies the careful scrutiny of his qualifications by the Commission. Mr. Stebbins argued that because of the overpayment of unemployment benefits, the petitioner cannot demonstrate his good character, honesty and integrity as required for the continuation of his casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b. Also, Mr. Stebbins argued that the petitioner has not shown rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence.

Mr. Stebbins noted that the petitioner paid his debt to Labor only after the Division objected to the renewal of his casino employee license. The overpayment occurred in 1984 and the petitioner did not make the repayment until 1989. Lastly, Mr. Stebbins noted that the petitioner has a poor employment record in the casino industry.

Elliot C. Beinfest, Esq., on behalf of the petitioner argued that the petitioner's acceptance of the overpayment of unemployment benefits was not a criminal act since the petitioner never intended to commit a crime. Mr. Beinfest stressed that the matter concerns only the last couple of checks issued by Labor and argued that the petitioner was confused about his status since he only obtained employment at the end of his claim period and he knew that the casino would not give him a paycheck until after the first two weeks of employment. Mr. Beinfest admitted that the petitioner had a "shaky" record of casino employment; however, he argued that this was due to his absences and that this record should not reflect adversely on him. Mr. Beinfest stated that the petitioner has shown that he overcame his drinking problem, has obtained a new job, has no criminal record and has recently married. Further, Mr. Beinfest argued that six years have passed since the matter relating to the overpayment of unemployment benefits.

Based on the facts, I CONCLUDE that the Division has shown a statutory disqualification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and 5:12-86g. The Division has shown that the petitioner received an overpayment of unemployment benefits by misrepresenting his employment status and this action constituted theft by deception, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. I have difficulty accepting petitioner's testimony that he was not aware that he had to promptly report his employment to Labor and was not aware that he could not collect unemployment benefits while working. More likely, the petitioner did not report his employment because he needed the money to support his drinking habit, and his depression as to his marital problems made him indifferent to his legal responsibilities.

As to rehabilitation, I recognize that this incident is the petitioner's only criminal action, and that at the time he committed the offense, Mr. Leichtnam was having a drinking problem and had just gone through an emotional divorce proceeding. I recognize that he no longer drinks, has remarried and has sincerely resolved not to repeat such illegal action.

Also, I recognize that the petitioner was a mature person at the time he accepted the overpayment of benefits, and notwithstanding the requests of Labor, he did not repay the debt until after the Division objected to the renewal of his casino employee license. I recognize that Mr. Leichtnam had a casino job at the time he accepted the overpayments and that he presented no reasons for the long delay in repaying the debt to Labor. Further, I note that the petitioner presented no witnesses at the hearing regarding his rehabilitation or as to his good character, honesty and integrity.

Based on the facts, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not shown by clear and convincing evidence his rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. Additionally, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not shown by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CCC 8379-89
AGENCY DKT. NO. 89-EA-423

ADRIAN LINDSEY,
Petitioner,
v.
STATE OF NEW JERSEY, DEPARTMENT OF LAW AND PUBLIC SAFETY, DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT,
Respondent.

Adrian Lindsey, the petitioner, pro se

Ralph L. Fusco, Deputy Attorney General, for the respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: May 4, 1990 Decided: June 4, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Adrian Lindsey, applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the issuance of a casino employee license (maintenance and cleaning), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90. The respondent, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), opposed the issuance of the license by reason of its contention that the petitioner had committed a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), by means of section 86g, and therefore, he lacked the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference. The petitioner contended that he was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 90h.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed with the Commission an application for the issuance of a casino employee license so he could be employed as a maintenance and cleaning person and subsequently a blackjack or craps dealer in the casino industry. By letter to the Commission, dated May 8, 1989, the Division objected to the petitioner's application for licensure as a maintenance and cleaning person asserting that the petitioner had committed the offense of theft by unlawful taking (third degree), which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by section 86g. The Division also objected pursuant to section 89b(2). Based upon the report, the Commission notified the petitioner on June 13, 1989 that there was a "substantial possibility" that his application would be denied and that he had the right to a hearing. By application dated June 13, 1989, which was received by the Commission on October 24, 1989, the petitioner requested a hearing. On October 25, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on October 31, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before me on December 5, 1989. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) as incorporated within section 90b.

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was held on May 4, 1990, at the City Council Chamber, Bridgeton City Hall, Bridgeton, New Jersey, after which the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

On August 9, 1987, Kenneth Walden, a friend of the petitioner, asked the petitioner to help him burglarize a home at 78 Summit Avenue in Bridgeton. The petitioner refused to enter the home; however, he did agree to remain outside the home and act as a lookout. The petitioner helped Mr. Walden enter the home through a window, and the petitioner's fingerprints were subsequently discovered by police on the pane of window glass. Nothing was taken from the home.

Mr. Walden then had the petitioner accompany him to a home at 7 Suncrest Avenue in Bridgeton. Mr. Walden then attempted to burglarize this home and again requested the petitioner's assistance. The petitioner again refused to enter the home; however, he did agree to remain outside as a lookout. Mr. Walden entered the house through a window. The petitioner heard "hollering" coming from the house, and he ran home. He does not know if anything was taken from that house.

Later that evening, Mr. Walden burglarized the home at 403 Fayette Street in Bridgeton. He stole a microwave oven, a 19-inch color television, and several pieces of jewelry. The value of all the articles was estimated by the owner to be $925.00 (R-3). Mr. Walden took the stolen articles to the petitioner's home and asked the petitioner to help him sell the articles. The petitioner refused and asked Mr. Walden to remove the stolen articles.

After being arrested regarding other burglaries, Kenneth Walden, in an attempt to "get a deal from the prosecutor," implicated the petitioner in another burglary. He stated that he and the petitioner had entered the home at 11 Glenn Drive in Bridgeton and had stolen a stereo system. He further stated that they had sold the stereo to Jeffrey Stewart (R-7). The home at 11 Glenn Drive had been burglarized on August 17, 1987, and a stereo system valued at approximately $900.00 had been taken (R-6). When questioned by police, the petitioner denied involvement in this burglary; however, after the principles of accessory after the fact and accomplice were explained to him, he admitted involvement. He indicated that Mr. Walden had entered the home through a window and removed a stereo system.

Mr. Walden took the stereo system to the petitioner's home, and the petitioner helped him sell the stereo (R-8).

On January 27, 1988, the petitioner was indicted by the Cumberland County Grand Jury and was charged in Indictment No. 88-01-0064-I/A with one count of theft by unlawful taking (third degree), in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, and one count of burglary (third degree), in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2, for the August 17, 1987 offense (R-4). On March 1, 1988, the petitioner was indicted by the Cumberland County Grand Jury and was charged in Indictment No. 88-03-0223-I/B with two counts of burglary (third degree), in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2, one count of theft by unlawful taking, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, and one count of attempted burglary, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1 and N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2, for the August 9, 1987 offenses (R-1).

On April 11, 1988, the petitioner retracted his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to the three burglary counts of the indictments. The remaining counts were dismissed (R-2 & R-5). On May 20, 1988, the petitioner was sentenced to be placed on probation for three years, to serve 354 days in the county jail, and to pay a $30 Violent Crimes Compensation Board Penalty on each count (total $90) (R-2 & R-5). The petitioner served nine and one-half months of his sentence, paid his penalties, and was released from probationary supervision early for good behavior, in March 1990.

The petitioner is a 20-year-old high school graduate who resides with his mother in Bridgeton. From January 1988 until April 1988, he worked as a kitchen utility worker at the Claridge Hotel and Casino. He terminated this employment upon his incarceration. Upon his release, he obtained two jobs outside the casino industry, and in October 1989, he began his current employment as a food line server at Resorts International Hotel and Casino. His employment evaluations have been satisfactory.

The petitioner played football in high school. The offenses occurred during the summer after his high school graduation when he was 18 years old. He has a three-year-old child whom he supports. He has not had any prior or subsequent involvement with the law.

The Division did attempt to refute the petitioner's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident and his current good character, honesty and integrity. As such, it is necessary to assess his credibility. Initially, his position in this matter must be recognized. As the petitioner and the applicant for a casino employee license, he has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the petitioner's demeanor, the plausibility of his testimony, the manner in which he participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appeared that the petitioner testified truthfully in substantial regard. He admitted his misconduct but tried to minimize his involvement in the burglaries. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the petitioner's testimony in substantial part.

I am persuaded that his misconduct was, in part, due to immaturity. I am also inclined to believe that it was the result of inexperience and giving in to peer pressure. The petitioner has since severed his relationships with these individuals and believes he has learned from his incarceration.

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

DISCUSSION

The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking, which constitutes a violation of section 86c(1), and that, accordingly, he is disqualified from continued licensure.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g

mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner's taking or sale of property taken during the burglaries constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, which under the circumstances disqualifies the petitioner from licensure.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, Theft by unlawful taking or disposition, provides in pertinent part:

The Division established, and the petitioner admitted, that he participated in two burglaries as a lookout on August 9, 1987. Burglaries, to be disqualifying offenses pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), must constitute at least crimes of the second degree. In this case, the burglaries were only crimes of the third degree and therefore are not automatic statutory disqualifiers. The Division is thus attempting to establish that the petitioner is disqualified from licensure for the commission of a theft offense; specifically, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking. Unfortunately, the Division has failed to establish that any property was taken during the course of the two burglaries in which the petitioner participated on August 9, 1987.

That leaves us with the burglary of August 17, 1987. The petitioner stated that his only involvement in this burglary was that he helped Mr. Walden sell the property after the burglary. The petitioner plead guilty to this count of burglary because he believed he was an accomplice to the burglary. This, however, does not establish a theft offense under N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. Pursuant to the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-1 et seq., Theft and Related Offenses, an intermediary who knowingly arranges for the sale of stolen property is guilty of a separate substantive offense and is not an accomplice to larceny (theft by unlawful taking in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3). N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2 provides that conduct denominated theft in this chapter constitutes a single offense, but each episode or transaction may be the subject of a separate prosecution and conviction. Under N.J.S.A. 2C:20-7 and 7.1 an individual who knowingly arranges for the sale of stolen property may be found guilty of receiving stolen property and/or fencing, respectively. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-7, a person is guilty of receiving stolen property if "he knowingly receives or brings into this State movable property of another knowing that it has been stolen, or believing that it is probably stolen." A person is guilty of "fencing" or "dealing in stolen property" if "he traffics in, or initiates, organizes, plans, finances, directs, manages or supervises trafficking in stolen property." N.J.S.A. 2C:20-7.1. Although receiving and fencing stolen property are designated as "thefts" under the statute, they are offenses distinct from the prior theft/larceny. Courts have defined the elements of larceny as: "the wrongful or fraudulent taking and carrying away by any person of the personal property of another, from any place, with fraudulent intent to deprive the owner of his property, and the property must be taken without the consent of the owner." State v. Green, 170 N.J. Super. 292, 294 (App. Div. 1979).

Relevant case law on the issue supports the delineation of these offenses. In State v. Rachman, 68 N.J.L. 120, 122 (1902), the court held that "our statute makes larceny and the receiving of stolen goods, knowing them to have been stolen, separate offenses." The receiver of stolen goods and the thief are not accomplices. State v. Vanderhave, 47 N.J. Super. 483, 486 (App. Div. 1957). See also, State v. Fox, 12 N.J. Super. 132, 138 (App. Div. 1951). "The larceny and receiving being offenses of separate and inconsistent nature, there results the legal concept that the receiver must be someone other than the thief." Vanderhave at 486.. To prove that a defendant was a "fence" rather than the actual thief there must be sufficient evidence to show that the theft was committed by a person other than the defendant. State v. Dancyger, 29 N.J. 76, 87 (1959).

Larceny or theft by unlawful taking is a separate statutory offense from the sale of stolen property. An individual who knowingly arranges for the sale of stolen property is guilty of receiving or fencing stolen property pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-7 and 7.1. The Division has failed to establish the offense of theft by unlawful taking; however, the facts presented do establish the offense of fencing. Both theft by unlawful taking and fencing are theft offenses listed in N.J.S.A. 2C:20-1 et seq. They are both, therefore, listed statutory disqualifiers pursuant to the same language contained in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) if the offense constitutes a crime of the second or third degree.

The Division established, and the petitioner admitted during his testimony, that he knowingly helped Mr. Walden sell the stereo system valued at $900 which Mr. Walden had stolen, and that the petitioner knew the property had been stolen Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A

2C:20-7.1b. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2)(a), the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offense committed by the petitioner is a disqualifying offense under sections 86c(1) and 86g. The petitioner is therefore disqualified from licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and 86g.

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h

An applicant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating his or her rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
4. The date of the offense or conduct;
5. The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;
6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

In regard to the first criterion, Adrian Lindsey is a casino hotel registrant and is employed as a food line server. He has applied to become licensed as a maintenance and cleaning person; however, he desires to upgrade to a blackjack or craps dealer. As such, he does not have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities nor does he come in contact with casino patrons at this time; however, he will have these responsibilities and contact if he should become licensed.

Second, the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-7.1, fencing, over a one-month period prior to his employment in the casino industry. Because the offense is a listed disqualifier under section 86c(1), it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in its appropriate context. The petitioner participated in several burglaries along with Mr. Walden. After committing a subsequent burglary, Mr. Walden had the petitioner assist him in selling stolen property.

Fourth, the petitioner's misconduct occurred in August 1987, when it ceased.

Fifth, the petitioner was 18 years old at the time of the first offense. I believe immaturity was a factor in this case. The petitioner gave in to peer pressure.

Sixth, the petitioner's misconduct involving several offenses in a one-month time-period was isolated in nature. He has not committed any other violations of the criminal laws.

Seventh, as indicated above, the petitioner gave in to peer pressure and assisted Mr. Walden in committing the offenses. The petitioner has since severed his relationships with these individuals and believes he has learned from his incarceration.

Eighth, the petitioner served nine and one-half months of his sentence, paid his penalties, and was released from probationary supervision early for good behavior, in March 1990. He has thus been off probationary supervision for only two months. He is employed in the industry as a food line server, and his employment evaluations have been satisfactory. He supports a three-year-old child.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not established, by clear and convincing evidence, his rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

(C) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Mr. Lindsey was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, his reputation for good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Id. at 296.

It is not readily apparent that the petitioner's misconduct was aberrant and that he is otherwise a person of good character, honesty and integrity. While the misconduct did not involve his licensed employment, the underlying conduct reflects a total disregard for the property of others. He knowingly participated in two burglaries and he helped sell property taken during a third burglary. While the petitioner has fully accepted responsibility for his misconduct and is now employed in the casino industry, he has only been off probation for two months. Accordingly, the petitioner has not established by clear and convincing evidence that he presents no risk to the public nor to the integrity of the gaming industry in this State. The petitioner has not established that he has earned the privilege of licensure. An examination of the whole person does not clearly and convincingly establish that Mr. Lindsey is a person of good character, honesty and integrity, and is entirely suitable for licensure in this State. See, Boardwalk Regency Corp.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not established, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity under section 90b.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the application of Adrian Lindsey for the issuance of a casino employee license be DENIED.

ORDER

IT IS on this 31st day of October 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision's conclusion that the applicant failed to establish his good character, honesty and integrity is rejected for the reasons stated on the record of the Commission's proceedings; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the initial decision is also rejected because it would require the Division of Gaming Enforcement, by a preponderance of the evidence, to draw into question an applicant's good character, honesty and integrity when, in fact, the only burden of proof bearing upon character is that borne by the applicant; namely, that he demonstrate his good character by clear and convincing evidence regardless of the quantum of proof adduced by the Division; and

ORDER NO. 90-41-6

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the application for a non-experiential casino employee license (gaming) is granted substantially for the reasons stated on the record by the Commission.

Record Closed: JULY 23, 1990 Decided: AUGUST 31, 1990

OAL DKT. NO. CCC-09094-89

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) objecting to the issuance of a casino employee license to petitioner. The Division alleges that petitioner lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its letter of objection with the Commission on December 10, 1988. Petitioner requested a hearing on May 1, 1989 and on May 9, 1989 the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was scheduled for September 7, 1989 by Lillard E. Law, ALJ at which time petitioner failed to appear. On November 20, 1989 the matter was remanded back to OAL to be heard as a contested case. The hearing was held on July 23, 1990 before Joseph E. Kane, ALJ. The record was closed on July 23, 1990.

ISSUES

The Division requested that the prehearing order be amended to eliminate issues (A) and (B). Thus, the only issue in this matter is whether petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required of a licensee by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the testimony and documents proffered during the course of the hearing on July 23, 1990 the below represents FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

The sole issue in this matter is whether petitioner can affirmatively demonstrate that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity to qualify to hold a casino license. Petitioner, who is now 49 years old, has lived in Atlantic City all of his life. He attended Casino Dealer's School completing the hours required for certification as a craps dealer, however, he subsequently failed the course.

Petitioner's history of arrests and convictions spands some 24 years beginning in 1962. Then at the age of 21, he regularly was arrested and/or convicted for a series of offenses which include possession and use of CDS, larceny and aggravated assault. In 1962 petitioner pled guilty to an offense which is the equivalent of use and possession of a controlled dangerous substance, marijuana. Subsequent arrests and convictions for narcotic offenses resulted in petitioner being sentenced to state prison in 1971.

A common thread which weaved throughout petitioner's testimony was that although he was found or pled guilty to the offenses set forth in Exhibits R-1 thru R-11, he was nonetheless not guilty. On February 20, 1967 a police raid of a house in which petitioner was sleeping resulted in his arrest despite his protestations that he was unaware that the other inhabitants possessed illegal drugs. As a result of an incident which occurred on December 12, 1986 petitioner was charged and later pled guilty to grand larceny wherein petitioner and an associate stole a typewriter from Sears. As to this incident, petitioner disavowed any knowledge that his friend was stealing a typewriter despite the fact that he accompanied his friend while walking out of the Sears store, typewriter in hand. On September 28, 1973 petitioner was returned to state prison for failing to complete a drug rehabilitation program at NARCO (Institute for Human Development). Petitioner reasoned that he did not need the treatment program and that he was "too mature" for the program. On August 31, 1978 petitioner was charged by the Atlantic City Police Department with possession of a weapon. Petitioner had requested that some uninvited guests leave his home. When the guests failed to abide by petitioner's request, petitioner stated that he would have to "make them leave" and apparently successfully pursuaded them to do so by displaying an ice pick. On January 5, 1986 petitioner was arrested and charged with aggravated assault as a result of an incident between him and his wife. At that time, he claims that he "just pushed her" at which time she slipped and fell and sustained the majority of her injuries.

In 1976 petitioner was employed in a federal grant program which rehabilitated homes in Atlantic City. His involvement in this program was for only two years since the funds were eliminated, however, during this period petitioner earned the respect and admiration of his supervisor.

For approximately the last four to five years, petitioner has been attending Atlantic Community College taking courses which will eventually qualify him as a paralegal. He plans to attend Rutgers University at some point in the future to further his legal studies. He has held jobs as a painter and "decorator" working in various Atlantic City casinos as an employee of a casino subcontractor. He is the self-styled founder and president of the Atlantic City Opportunity Development Association which appears to be an advocacy organization with a rather broad mandate to advocate for the rights of senior citizens, youth of Atlantic City and any individual needing housing. He resigned as an officer in this organization to run for Councilmen-at-Large in Atlantic City in June of 1990. From 1984 to 1986 he was the president of the Atlantic County Transportation Authority Tenant's Association.

Petitioner testified that since 1986, he has been working as a self-employed painter and wallpaper hanger. The Division of Gaming Enforcement agent who conducted petitioner's personal interview on February 19, 1988 testified that the petitioner had indicated that he had been unemployed for the two years prior to his personal interview and had been supporting himself with funds from the Atlantic City Welfare Office and food stamps.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Section 5:12-86b(2) of the Act requires that whenever the Division of Gaming Enforcement raises as an issue the good character, honesty and integrity of the petitioner, it is then petitioner's burden to show by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure under the Act. In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the legislature it is imperative that the character and background of the licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure. Clear and convincing falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the facts presented by petitioner are true. The standard requires more than the mere balancing of probabilities but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lapre vs. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (Law Div. 1974).

It is clear that from the record above, between the years of 1962 and 1986 petitioner could not have met his burden to demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the character traits required of Section 89b of the Act. The issue more narrowly defined is whether petitioner can now demonstrate that since 1986 he is qualified to hold a casino license. Petitioner's honesty was drawn into question when Agent Kazmierski testified that during her telephone interview with petitioner, he testified that he had been receiving welfare for a period of two years. Petitioner testified that during this time, approximately February of 1986 to 1988, he had worked as a self-employed painter and wallpaper hanger. Petitioner offered no rebuttal testimony to explain or clarify Agent Kazmierski's testimony.

An individual of good character is willing to confront past transgressions rather than to continually deny that the events occurred. In the instant matter, petitioner repeatedly protested his innocence to those charges of which he had either entered guilty pleas or had been found guilty. His testimony was contradictory in that he admitted that he was a drug addict and yet as it pertains to the drug charges and arrests, he disavowed any involvement and refused to continue with his course of treatment at NARCO stating instead that he was "too mature" for that type of treatment.

As more fully set forth above, it is petitioner's affirmative duty to come forth and demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that he does possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity needed for licensure. Petitioner's documentary evidence was voluminous, however, it was not relevant or, more importantly, recent in time.

The State has, by a preponderence of the credible evidence, drawn into question the good character, honesty and integrity of the petitioner. Despite petitioner's criminal history, it would be possible for him to come forth and demonstrate the requisite Section 89b(2) factors needed for licensure. The lack of current and more importantly, relevant evidence fails to overcome the State's demonstration of a lack of good character, honesty and integrity.

Accordingly, I HOLD that a casino employee license should not issue to the petitioner for the reasons enumerated above. IT IS SO HELD this 31st day of August, 1990.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified, or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

FOR A CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSE

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of September 5, 1990,

IT IS on this 6th day of December 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> To include a more thorough consideration of the rehabilitation factors. Among the more significant factors to be highlighted are: that the applicant received no notice of the 1985 judgment entered against her on behalf of the Division of Unemployment, until she applied for benefits in 1988; that, by reason of her unemployment, a condition which began in August 1987 and lasted until at least November 1988 (R-1), the applicant was not in a financial position to make restitution; the applicant has made arrangements with the Division of unemployment for repayment of the debt whereby she will make regular payments of $127 per month; and the applicant was, at least as of the time of the hearing, current with the repayment schedule.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the application is granted substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference.

Record Closed: June 21, 1990 Decided: July 17, 1990

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of an objection to petitioner's licensure filed by respondent with the Casino Control Commission pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. and regulations promulgated thereunder. Petitioner requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A hearing was conducted on June 21, 1990, after which the record closed.

The questions presented are whether petitioner committed acts which constitute theft by deception in the third degree, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, a listed disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g; whether she is a person of good character, N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2); and finally whether she can demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

The essential facts are undisputed. Petitioner collected unemployment benefits from February 23, 1982 through April 21, 1983, while she was employed on a part-time basis by the Mercer County Personnel Pool. The total amount of benefits paid was $2,580 and with interest and fine assessment the total reached $4,254.74. A judgment was entered in the matter in October 1985. Some $639 of this amount has been repaid over the years when petitioner was otherwise entitled to unemployment benefits and the Division of Unemployment & Disability Insurance applied these monies to reduce her obligation. She also voluntarily paid $200 in May 1990.

Petitioner was 23 years old at the time of this incident; she is presently 31 years old. She has one dependent. Petitioner acknowledged her wrongdoing and testified that she has been gainfully employed in various part-time positions since 1983 without incident. She has never had any other involvement with law enforcement. This is the substance of the record.

Petitioner was fairly young when she committed the violation in question, and 8 years of gainful employment have passed without further incident. This one offense ought not to follow her at this late date.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that respondent has established that petitioner committed an offense listed as a statutory disqualifier, but that petitioner has proven her rehabilitation and that she is a person of good character. It is ORDERED that she be awarded a casino employee license.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

RECORD CLOSED: AUGUST 30, 1990 DECIDED: SEPTEMBER 12, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) requesting the revocation of the casino hotel employee registration #92710-40 issued to respondent. The Division alleges that respondent committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its complaint with the Commission on December 29, 1989. Respondent requested a hearing on January 12, 1990 and on January 18, 1990 the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on May 25, 1990 by Jeff S. Masin, ALJ followed by a hearing which was held on August 23, 1990. The record was closed on August 30, 1990.

ISSUES

A. Did Ms. Maldonado engage in activity which automatically disqualifies her from holding a casino hotel registration, namely, did she possess a controlled dangerous substance and did she possess it with intent to distribute and engage in a conspiracy to do so? In addition, was she convicted of possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19, analogous to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5? Does this automatically disqualify her from being registered?

B. If Ms. Maldonado would be disqualified by her conduct involving drugs, does she demonstrate through evidence presented at the hearing that she has rehabilitated herself from the disqualification, that is, that she should be permitted to be registered as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(d)?

C. Under the facts and circumstances of this case, if Ms. Maldonado would otherwise be disqualified, do the interests of justice require a waiver of the disqualification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(e).

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based upon testimony and documents proferred at the hearing held on August 23, 1990, the below represents FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

A. HAS RESPONDENT COMMITTED A DISQUALIFYING OFFENSE AS DEFINED BY SECTION 86c(1) OF THE ACT.

On June 16, 1986 at the age of 22, respondent was arrested and charged in a five count indictment with possession of cocaine and heroin with intent to distribute and conspiracy to distribute controlled dangerous substances. In sum, respondent and her boyfriend imported cocaine and heroin from New York City and then packaged and distributed the substances from their Congress Avenue, Atlantic City apartment. Respondent's boyfriend, after being released from prison for previous narcotics violations, began distributing drugs in February of 1986. Respondent estimates that their profit was somewhere between $500 and $1,000 per day. At the time the police executed the search warrant, they confiscated 319 bags of cocaine and heroin, $784 in cash and narcotics paraphenalia which the respondent indicated was used to cut, stamp and package the illicit drugs. The $784 represented some of the profit from the operation since neither the respondent nor her boyfriend were employed at the time.

On August 4, 1986 the respondent pled guilty to one count of possession of controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute. Respondent was given a sentence of 180 days in the Atlantic County Jail; 18 months probation; $30.00 payment to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board. She served 90 days in the Atlantic County Jail and was released on probation for 18 months.

Section 86c(1) of the act sets forth certain enumerated disqualifiers which, if proven by a preponderance of the credible evidence, constitutes a bar to respondent's continuing licensure. Considering the proofs submitted by the State as well as respondent's admission to the conduct set forth above, I FIND that respondent's conviction for possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute, N.J.S.A. 24-21.19(a)(1) constitutes an 86c(1) disqualifier thus making respondent ineligible to continue to hold her hotel registration.

B. HAS RESPONDENT DEMONSTRATED REHABILITATION AS PERMITTED BY SECTION 91(d) OF THE ACT.

Despite the fact that respondent has committed a disqualifying offense pursuant to Section 86c(1) of the Act, she may nevertheless retain her hotel registration provided that she is able to demonstrate her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. Section 91(d) of the Act sets forth the eight enumerated factors which are utilized in evaluating whether an individual has achieved rehabilitation. It is the burden of the respondent to affirmatively demonstrate rehabilitation by not only her own testimony, but also by the testimony of friends and associates who have first hand knowledge of the efforts and achievements made towards rehabilitation. Unless this tribunal is supplied with such evidence a finding of rehabilitation cannot be found or implied by the respondent's lack of involvement with the criminal justice system since the disqualifying offense.

In the instant matter, the record was held open for a period of one week in order to permit the respondent to introduce evidence of her rehabilitation. No such evidence was received and thus, respondent's testimony alone will serve as the basis to determine the issue of rehabilitation.

Applying the eight factors set forth in Section 91(d) of the Act, I FIND as follows:

1. The nature and duties of the registrant's position.

Respondent is currently employed at Bally's Park Place Hotel Casino in the position of a public area porter. This position, involves daily and regular contact with the public and casino patrons. Accordingly, the primary concern must be whether respondent has clearly and convincingly demonstrated rehabilitation in order to obviate the concern that she would repeat the conduct for which she was previously indicted and convicted. Respondent testified that she knew it was wrong to be distributing drugs, however, when the enterprise began to bring in between $500 and $1,000 a day, the financial gain quickly took priority over that of respondent's concern for the illegality of the venture. This conduct and manner of thinking seriously draws into question whether respondent should be permitted to hold a registration which permits contact with a large amount of individuals on a daily basis.

2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct.

3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred.

The offense, that of possessing and distributing a controlled dangerous substance to the extent of respondent's involvement is a serious crime. The circumstances offered no mitigation of the seriousness or nature of the offense since respondent admitted that drugs were being distributed both to support her heroin addiction as well as for financial gain.

4. The date of the offense or conduct.

Respondent was arrested on June 16, 1986, indicted on June 30, 1986 and entered a plea of guilty to possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute on August 4, 1986. She then served 90 days in the Atlantic County Jail after which she was placed on probation for a period of 18 months.

5. The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed.

The respondent was 22 years old when she was arrested in 1986, she is now 26 years old.

6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident.

The offense which serves the basis of the within action is the only crime to which respondent has ever been arrested or convicted. But for the severity and nature of the offense, such a lack of any arrest or other convictions would mitigate heavily in respondent's favor.

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct.

Under the circumstances set forth above, there are no social conditions which contributed to the offense.

After entering the Atlantic County Jail on June 17, 1986 respondent experienced withdrawal from her heroin addiction. While incarcerated she did not become involved in Narcotic's Anonymous meetings, however, when leaving the facility she did attend two weeks of a substance abuse course at the Institute For Human Development in Atlantic City, New Jersey. Respondent claims that she has been drug free since the date of her arrest, June 16, 1986. Respondent lives at home with her parents and five year old son who she has been supporting through her employment at Bally's for the last year. She has no involvement with community activities.

Essential to a claim of rehabilitation is the willingness and ability of the individual to admit to him or herself and to others that a crime has occurred. In the instant matter, both on respondent's personal history disclosure form and job application for Bally's, she intentionally stated that she had never been arrested or convicted of any crime. As of the date of the hearing, respondent admitted that her employer, Bally's is unaware of her past arrest and conviction record. It is inconsistent with a claim of rehabilitation to provide false information concerning the offense from which one claims he or she is rehabilitated.

The fact that respondent has not been arrested and has been drug free for a period of four years mitigates heavily in her favor. Nevertheless, these two facts alone do not demonstrate rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. Her intentional omission of the 1986 conviction from both the Bally's application and her personal history disclosure form seriously draws into question her veracity and demonstrates her lack of rehabilitation. The offense committed by the respondent, that of selling and distributing cocaine and heroin in such amounts so as to turn a profit of between $500 and $1,000 a day requires a showing of rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence especially when respondent desires to work in a position which has regular and daily contact with the public within the casino industry. Respondent's failure to produce sufficient evidence to meet her burden coupled with questionable veracity and failure to provide information to her employer and the Commission concerning her conviction leads to the inevitable conclusion that she has failed to rehabilitate herself.

SUMMARY

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above I FIND that the respondent, has committed an offense in 1986, that of possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute which constitutes a statutory disqualifier pursuant to Section 86c(1) of the Act. I FURTHER HOLD that respondent has failed to demonstrate her rehabilitation pursuant to Section 91(d) of the Act. I HEREBY REVOKE respondent's hotel registration #92710-40.

C. IS THE RESPONDENT ENTITLED TO A WAIVER PURSUANT TO SECTION 91(e) OF THE ACT.

Section 91(e) of the Act bestows upon the Commission the discretion to grant a waiver to a registrant who has committed an 86c(1) disqualifying offense and has not shown rehabilitation pursuant to Section 91(d) of the Act, provided that the waiver is consistent with the public policy of the Casino Control Act and is granted in the interest of justice.

Section 91(e) of the Act provides that:

> "The commission may waive any disqualification criterion for a casino hotel employee consistent with the public policy of this act and upon a finding that the interest of justice so require".

The waiver provision applies only to casino hotel employees who perform only service or custodial duties not directly related to operations of the casino. (See Section 8 of the Act).

Based upon the FINDINGS OF FACT set forth above, a waiver can be granted provided that the Commission specifically finds that waiver would be consistent with both this article's public policy and be in the interests of justice. The Casino Control Act, P.L.1987 c.409, 1986 Senate No. 2895 included the following language:

> 1. Short Title, Declaration of Policy and Legislative Findings...
>
> (b) The Legislature hereby finds and declares to be the public policy of this State, the following:
> (6) An integral and essential element of the regulation and control of such casino facilities by the State rests in the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations. To further such public confidence and trust, the regulatory provisions of this act are designed to extend strict State regulation to all persons, locations, practices and associations related to the operation of licensed casino enterprises and all related service industries as herein provided...

(7) Legalized casino gambling in New Jersey can attain, maintain and retain integrity, public confidence and trust, and remain compatible with the general public interest only under such a system of control and regulation as insures, so far as practicable, the exclusion from participation therein of persons with known criminal records, habits or associations...

(9) Since casino operations are especially sensitive and in need of public control and supervision, and since it is vital to the interests of the State to prevent entry, directly or indirectly, into such operations or the ancillary industries regulated by this act of persons who have pursed economic gains in an occupational manner or context which are in violation of the criminal or civil public policies of this State, the regulatory and investigatory powers and duties shall be exercised to the fullest extent consistent with law to avoid entry of such persons into the casino operations or the ancillary industries regulated by this act...

(13) It is in the public interest that the institution of licensed casino establishments in New Jersey be strictly regulated and controlled pursuant to the above findings and pursuant to the provisions of this act, which provisions are designed to engender and maintain public confidence and trust in the regulation of licensed enterprises... Casino Control Act, P.L. 1987 c.409, 1986 Senate No. 2985.

The 1987 Superior Court, Appellate Division decision in State of New Jersey, Dept. of Law & Public Safety, Div. of Gaming Enforcement vs. Hannah, 221 N.J. SUPER. 98 (App. Div. 1987) echoed the above cited language and required specific findings of fact to support the Commission's granting of a waiver. The Appellate Division reasoned that the legislature required conformance with this policy as a precondition to waiver of any disqualification criterion, in that any exercise of the commission's authority under Section 91(e) must be "...consistent with the public policy of this act and upon a finding that the interests of justice so require". Hannah, 221 N.J. SUPER. 98 citing N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(e).

> "In exercising its authority, the Commission must be ever mindful that the gaming industry is to be insulated from criminals so that its integrity may be maintained." Hannah, 221 N.J. SUPER. at 102, citing Matter of Hotel and Restaurant Emp. & Bartend., 203 N.J. SUPER. 297 (App. Div. 1985), certif. den. 102 N.J. 352 (1985), cert. den. 475 U.S. 1085 (1986).

The Appellate Division in Hannah stated that the decision to waive disqualification must be supported by specific findings that waiver of disqualification criteria is consistent with the public policy of the act and that the interests of justice so require.

"The Commission's ruling cannot be supported without > detailed findings." Hannah, 221 N.J. SUPER. at 102 (App. Div. 1987) citing NJ Bell Tel. Co. vs. CWA, etc., 5 N.J. 354, 374-79 (1950).

As to the question of when the interests of justice may require that waiver be applied, New Jersey Courts have recognized the need to resolve the necessary question of whether the provision is reasonable or equitable as applied to the individual. Dougherty vs. Dept. of Human Services, 179 N.J. SUPER. 541 (App. Div. 1981), modified 91 N.J. 1 (1982). The Dougherty court cautioned, however, that "although waiver may serve the individual,... in the long run the overall statutory purposes are better served by drawing certain fixed lines in the administration of the program." Dougherty at 9.

In the instant matter, respondent has been convicted of a crime and accordingly, a Section 86c(1) disqualifying offense which, due to the nature of the offense, must be of a particular concern for the casino industry. An individual must not be given entree into the casino industry and its patrons when there has been no demonstration of rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence that the individual will no longer engage in the distribution of illicit drugs. Respondent's lack of veracity and credibility does not provide this tribunal with the necessary compelling facts upon which the extraordinary relief of waiver could be recommended and eventually granted by the Commission. The relief of waiver can only be granted when there is within the record, basis upon which the Commission can determine that the integrity and public confidence in the industry will not be compromised in any way. Such a potential appears to exist in the instant matter and accordingly, given the strict regulation of the industry by the Casino Control Act, the relief of waiver in the instant matter is not appropriate and should not be granted.

For the reasons set forth above, I FIND that respondent was convicted of possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute which constitutes a statutory disqualifier pursuant to Section 86c(1) of the Act. Respondent has failed to demonstrate her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence as required by Section 91(d) of the act. The facts and circumstances of the offense do not require that the extraordinary relief of waiver pursuant to Section 91(e) of the act should be envoked. IT IS SO ORDERED this 12th day of September 1990.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO

CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter concerns the complaint filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on July 29, 1988, seeking the revocation of the casino employee license of the respondent, Robert W. McConkey. The respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on January 9, 1990, to be heard as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A telephone prehearing conference was held on May 8, 1990, at which time the parties agreed that the issues in this matter are:

A. Whether respondent committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: theft by deception (a third-degree offense) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4.

B. Whether the respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

C. Whether the respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.A.C. 5:12-90h.

The hearing took place on July 26, 1990, at the Office of Administrative Law in Atlantic City, New Jersey, and the record in the matter closed on that date.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

I FIND the facts in this matter are not in dispute.

In November 1987, the respondent drove to Kennedy Airport in New York City and left his leased vehicle in the long-term parking lot. After leaving the car, the respondent returned home by public transportation. The following day, the respondent went to work as a roulette dealer at the Claridge Casino Hotel (Claridge). After work on that day, the respondent reported that his leased car had been stolen from an Atlantic City parking lot. Mr. McConkey filled out a police report indicating that the car had been stolen and he also reported the car as stolen to the insurance company. The insurance company processed his claim and paid $6,400.00 to the car dealership and Mr. McConkey received back his security payment of approximately $300.00.

According to Mr. McConkey, he left the car at Kennedy Airport since he thought the car would not be found and he wanted to get out of the car lease agreement. Mr. McConkey gave no specific reasons as to why he wanted to get out of the car lease agreement and he denied that he was in any financial difficulty. He stated that he could afford the lease payments. Mr. McConkey stated that he had never done anything like this, and that he had not given it a great deal of thought, nor had he spoken to anybody regarding his plan. On cross-examination, Mr. McConkey was unable to give specific answers to questions as to how he managed to get back home after he left his leased vehicle at Kennedy Airport.

After reporting his leased vehicle stolen, the respondent told his family, friends and co-workers that the car had been stolen. Mr. McConkey admitted that he never intended to reveal what he had done with the vehicle. After making the police and insurance reports, Mr. McConkey was scared since he knew he would be in serious trouble if he were caught.

In March 1988, the respondent was arrested at the Claridge and he was charged with filing a false police report and theft by deception (P-1, P-2, P-3). Thereafter, Mr. McConkey was indicted for theft by deception involving more than $500.00 (a third-degree offense), in violation of the provisions of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 (P-4).

The respondent applied for and was admitted into the Pretrial Intervention Program (PTI). Pursuant to the conditions of this program, he was required to make restitution to the insurance company, report monthly to a probation officer and pay a $3,000.00 penalty to the Department of Insurance. The respondent is paying the penalty to the Department of Insurance in installment payments and he has approximately eight more payments to make. In February 1990, Mr. McConkey completed the PTI and the indictment against him was dismissed (R-5, R-6, R-7, R-8, R-9).

After he was arrested, Mr. McConkey's employment at the Claridge was terminated. The Commission suspended his casino employee license on August 17, 1988. After losing the position with the Claridge, the respondent obtained a position as a heavy equipment operator with William Bowman and Associates, and he has now worked for this company for over two years. Thomas M. Maher, site development foreman for William Bowman and Associates, submitted a letter indicating that he considers the respondent to be a person of good character, honesty, and integrity and that the respondent is a good and valuable employee (R-4).

Prior to the 1987 incident, Mr. McConkey had been employed for four years by the Claridge and he was considered to be an outstanding employee. At the hearing and by letter, one of his supervisors, Martin T. Williamson, a pit boss supervisor, stated that he has known the respondent for the entire time he worked at the Claridge. Mr. Williamson considers the respondent to be an excellent employee and a person of good character, honesty and integrity (R-1). In addition, his coworker at the Claridge, Emil P. Milec, testified that the respondent is an excellent dealer and that he considers him to be a person of good character, honesty and integrity. Mr. Milec stated that the respondent's fellow employees thought very highly of him and elected him to be a member of the committee which handles and divides the tips. Also at the hearing, Mary Ellen McCann testified that she is a family friend and that she has always found the respondent to be a reliable, honest and helpful friend. All three of these witnesses stated that initially the respondent had told them that his leased car had been stolen and it was not until after he was arrested that they became aware that he had falsified the report. However, all three witnesses stated that this incident did not change their opinion regarding the respondent's good character, honesty and integrity.

In addition, the respondent presented a number of letters attesting to his good character, honesty and integrity. By letter dated May 22, 1990, Roger P. Wagner, the president of Claridge, stated that Mr. McConkey was an excellent roulette dealer, and that notwithstanding the 1987 incident, he deserves to have the opportunity to again work in the casino industry (R-2). Joseph L. Ciano, the chief of staff of the Office of Superintendent of Elections and Commissioner of Registration of the County of Hudson, by a letter dated June 18, 1990, stated that he has known the respondent for his entire life, that he is aware of the 1987 incident and that the respondent should be given another chance (R-3).

On his own behalf, the respondent testified that he is a high school graduate and that he obtained his casino employee license in 1984. Mr. McConkey has qualified as a blackjack and roulette dealer and has received a license upgrade so that he qualifies for a floorperson position. Mr. McConkey would like to get another job in the casino industry. Except for the 1987 incident, Mr. McConkey has had no other arrests or convictions. Mr. McConkey was twenty-seven years old at the time of the 1987 incident. According to Mr. McConkey, this incident was a stupid mistake which has had a substantial effect on his life.

In closing, Deputy Attorney General Ralph L. Fusco argued that the Division has shown that the respondent filed false police and insurance reports and he argued that the filing of the false insurance report was analogous to theft by deception, which is a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). Mr. Fusco argued that the incident occurred less than three years ago and that an insufficient period of time has lapsed for the respondent to be able to show by clear and convincing evidence his rehabilitation. Additionally, Mr. Fusco argued that although there was only one criminal incident, the respondent reinforced the matter by lying and telling his family, friends and fellow employees that his car had been stolen. Lastly, Mr. Fusco questioned the respondent's candor and credibility since he was vague in his responses to Mr. Fusco's questions relating to how he got home from Kennedy Airport in New York City.

John C. Grady, Esq., on behalf of the respondent, argued that even though the 1987 incident was a serious offense, the respondent was relatively young at the time and his action was not a violent crime nor a crime which had a direct relationship to his casino job. Mr. Grady emphasized that the respondent was an outstanding employee of the Claridge and that the president of Claridge wrote a letter of endorsement on his behalf. Mr. Grady noted that Mr. McConkey has an unblemished employment record both in and outside of the casino industry. Further, Mr. Grady argued that the respondent received no financial gain from the 1987 incident since the insurance money was paid to the leasing company and all he received was the security payment of approximately $300.00. Mr. Grady admitted that the 1987 incident was a serious error in judgement; however, the respondent has successfully completed the PTI program. For all of these reasons, Mr. Grady argued that the respondent has shown his rehabilitation and that he is a person of good character, honesty and integrity.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based on the respondent's admissions during the hearing, I CONCLUDE that the Division has shown a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which is an automatic statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

Therefore the next issue in this matter is whether the respondent has shown rehabilitation. The Casino Control Act sets forth the following factors which the Commission shall take into consideration in order to determine whether a person has demonstrated rehabilitation:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

In this matter, the respondent was a mature person at the time he committed the 1987 offense and he intentionally filed false police and insurance reports in order to get out of a car lease arrangement. At the hearing, the respondent could offer no explanation as to why he wanted to get out of the lease arrangement and why he did not negotiate the termination of the lease.

It is clear from the facts that this was a single foolish act by the respondent, and based on the testimony presented, it is clear that there is no reason to believe that there will be any repeat of such behavior in the future. Although this criminal offense occurred only approximately three years ago, Mr. McConkey has shown that he has an excellent employment record both in his former position with the Claridge and in his current position, and that he has successfully completed the PTI program. Based on all of the facts, I CONCLUDE that Mr. McConkey has shown by clear and convincing evidence that he is rehabilitated pursuant to the standards contained in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

Also based on the same facts, I CONCLUDE that the respondent has shown that he is a person of good character, honesty and integrity as required for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

Therefore, I ORDER that the casino employee license of the respondent not be revoked.

827

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of Septebmer 19, 1990,

IT IS on this 20th day of September 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

(1) The Commission's decision in Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Donna Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985), requires consideration of the eight rehabilitation criteria prior to concluding whether or not an offense is "inimical" or disqualifying under section 86(c)(2). The ALJ's statement that "once an inimical violation has occurred, the respondent cannot then demonstrate rehabilitation" (init. dec. at p. 9) is rejected as incorrect;

(2) Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10(a)(1) possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) is a third degree crime. The ALJ's findings that the offense is a crime of the second degree and a disqualifier under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(1) are rejected as incorrect; it is neither;

(3) The ALJ's finding that the failure of the respondent to demonstrate her rehabilitation and good character, honesty and integrity precludes consideration of whether she is a candidate for waiver of her disqualification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(e) is rejected as incorrect. To the contrary, waiver of a disqualification which emanates from section 86(c) is an issue which only arises where the respondent fails to adduce clear and convincing proof of rehabilitation required for continued registration. Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Mark Phillip Crumble 12 N.J.A.R. 191 (1989). Here, the ALJ should have considered what interests of justice, if any, existed to waive disqualification. Considering the recent and serious offenses, which occurred on casino premises, the respondent's continued probation, and the virtual absence of any rehabilitative evidence, there are no interests of justice which warrant waiver of the respondent's disqualification, and

(4) The Commission's determination in this matter is based solely on the record developed at the OAL without consideration of the respondent's arrest on August 31, 1990, at the Taj Mahal.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent's casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration are revoked substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision, which as modified, is incorporated herein by reference; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Kimberly A. McDermott is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any license, registration, qualification or approval under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

OAL DKT. NO. CCC-02845-90

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) requesting the revocation of the casino employee license #81572-21 and casino employee registration #48459-40 issued to respondent. The Division alleges among other things that respondent committed acts which are inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and casino operations.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its complaint with the Commission on November 29, 1989. Respondent requested a hearing on March 13, 1990 and on April 2, 1990 the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on June 13, 1990 by Jeff S. Masin, ALJ followed by a hearing which was held on June 28, 1990. The record was closed on June 28, 1990.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this tribunal are as follows:

A. Would Ms. McDermott's continued licensure and/or registration be inimical (against) the interests of the casino industry and the policies of the Casino Control Act?

B. Does Ms. McDermott have the required good character, honesty and integrity for licensure as a casino employee, as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(b), incorporating 89b(2)?

C. With respect to the registration, if Ms. McDermott would otherwise be disqualified from holding a registration, do the facts and circumstances of this case indicate that the Casino Control Commission should waive (not require) a revocation in the interests of justice and under the policies of the Act?

UNCONTESTED FACTS

Based upon testimony and documents proffered at the hearing, the following facts are neither contested nor in dispute. Therefore, these uncontested facts are hereby adopted as FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

Respondent, Kimberly A. McDermott is a 25 year old single female with no dependents, who was issued a casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration. She had been employed by Trump Castle Hotel/Casino in the capacity of pit clerk for three years prior to September 7, 1989. In this function, respondent compiles data concerning players within her pit the purpose of which is to determine which players are eligible for comps. On that date, respondent was arrested and charged with N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 (theft) and N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10(a)1 (possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine)).

The State presented the testimony of Det. Joseph Eden, a member of the New Jersey State Police for twelve years, of which the last six years have been with the Division of Gaming Enforcement. Det. Eden's description of the events which occurred on September 7, 1989 were based upon his personal investigation of the matter including having viewed video tapes obtained from Trump Castle Security. Det. Eden was advised by the security supervisor at Trump Castle that respondent had been observed removing money from other employees purses which were placed adjacent to respondent's work area. Respondent on September 7, 1989 was a pit clerk in Pit #1 of the baccarat area. The pit stand in which she was observed, is slightly elevated from the casino floor and is located a short distance from the baccarat tables. The employees working in Pit #1 were permitted to leave their purses in and about respondent's pit stand. Respondent was observed removing money from her fellow employees purses at 8:25 p.m., 8:29 p.m. and 8:32 p.m. After observing the respondent, both on tape and during a filming of the incident as it was occurring, Det. Eden approached respondent, identified himself and requested that she accompany him to the DGE office. Consenting, respondent accompanied Det. Eden to the office where she was read her miranda rights and placed under arrest for the alleged theft. In response to questioning, the respondent admitted taking $15.00 from a purse. During the course of a patdown frisk conducted by a female officer, respondent voluntarily removed $36.00 from her pantyhose. Questioning of employees working in Pit #1 revealed that floorperson Mi Suk Riley was missing $36.00 from her purse. This money was in denominations of one $20.00 bill, one $5.00 bill and eleven $1.00 bills which corresponded exactly in amount and denomination to that which was removed from the respondent's pantyhose. Blackjack dealer Lynn Carusi stated she was missing $10.00 from her purse. A subsequent search of respondent's purse revealed a crumpled $10.00 bill. As a result of this incident, respondent was charged with theft by unlawful taking, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. During the subsequent search of respondent's purse, Det. Eden discovered a black Trump Castle matchbook containing a plastic envelope containing what was later identified by the SBI laboratory in Hammonton, New Jersey as .22 grams of cocaine. Respondent had voluntarily informed Det. Eden at the time of the arrest that the substance in the matchbook was cocaine. She was then charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance, N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10(a)1.

Respondent pled guilty in the Atlantic City Municipal Court to one count of possession of a controlled dangerous substance, N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10(a)1 and was sentenced to 90 days to be served in the Atlantic County Justice Facility, two years probation and a $1,000.00 penalty. Respondent served 61 days of her jail term commencing on February 16, 1990. As of the date of the hearing, respondent was scheduled to see her probation officer for the second time and had not yet paid any of the $1,000.00 penalty. Respondent, with great regret for her actions, attributes her behaviour to her then addiction to drugs. Since November of 1989 and while incarcerated, she has attended Narcotics Anonymous meetings and has been drug free from November to the date of the hearing. She claims that NA has worked for her and managed to keep her off of drugs. Respondent has had a fight with addiction and spent time in a rehabilitation facility in 1986. This experience kept her free of drugs for eleven months until she rejoined her old friends. She now knows through NA that she cannot associate with old friends who are involved with drugs. Respondent is well aware of how drugs have ruined her life.

Respondent did not produce any evidence in support of her good character, honesty and integrity other than her own testimony. The undersigned offered to hold the record open to enable her to produce such evidence, however, despite encouragement by the Deputy Attorney General, respondent refused on the grounds that she had caused her family enough trouble in the past and she "just wanted to get it over with".

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8), it is established that licensure under the Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." Section 129(1) of the Act provides for the revocation of or other sanctions against the license held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this Act which would disqualify such person from holding their license."

Two of the issues set forth herein (Issues B and C) are whether respondent has been convicted of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine), N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10(a)1 and theft, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. Both the State's proofs and the respondent's admission lead to the conclusion that respondent did violate the criminal code of the State of New Jersey in that she possessed a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10(a)1 and that she was guilty of theft, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 by reason of the money that was stolen from her fellow employee's purses. The question which now must be addressed is whether under all the circumstances above, respondent's conduct is inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry in general.

The criteria to be utilized in determining whether a particular conduct is inimical was set forth in the case of Davis vs. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301:

> "Whether an offense is 'inimical to the Act and to legalized gaming is a question which can only be resolved in the circumstances of each case. The nature of the offense, the events surrounding it, including any mitigating or aggravating factors, the remoteness of the offense and the offender's conduct since the offense to the present are all matters to be considered. Without limiting the notion of what is 'inimical' to the Act or > gaming, it would appear to encompass those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations". Davis at page 313.

In determining whether respondent's conduct is inimical to the Act and the gaming industry, the analysis need go no further than to examine into the type of the crime and most importantly, its location. Respondent's position is one which places her in full and constant view of the public. Visible to casino security, and one can only assume also in view of the public, respondent systematically removed monies from her fellow employee's purses. Confidence in the gaming industry would most certainly be undermined in the eyes of the public to view a representative of Trump Castle Hotel/Casino engaging in theft. Addiction to narcotics by respondent's own admission may have lead to her unfortunate behaviour, however, given the nature and duties of her position, that of calculating comps for patrons, her conduct in the midst of such patrons is simply inexcusable.

Respondent's conviction for possession of a controlled dangerous substance, N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10(a)1 must also be considered inimical conduct. In this instance, the possession of the drug did not occur off the casino premises, but instead, at a crucial location where a vital casino marketing function was being performed. In addition, the nature of the crime, possession of a controlled dangerous substance constitutes a crime of the second degree pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10(a)1. Accordingly, not only does the conduct fall within the inimical classification but also a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) thus disqualifying respondent from retaining her casino hotel employee registration #48459-40.

Pursuant to Davis supra, once an inimical violation has occurred, the respondent cannot then demonstrate rehabilitation. However, the rehabilitation factors set forth in section 90(h) can be utilized in determining whether the conduct is inimical in the first instance. Factor number 4 is of particular note since the date of respondent's arrest was September 7, 1989. As of the date of the hearing, respondent had only been out of jail for approximately three and one-half months. Much to her credit, she has been drug free due to her regular attendance at NA meetings. Her efforts towards abstinance from illegal drugs is highly commendable, however, there is simply not enough time between the happening of the event and the date of the hearing to demonstrate that such activities would not occur again on the casino floor. This is also consideration when analyzing whether respondent has demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence her rehabilitation in order to maintain her hotel registration. Her significant efforts towards rehabilitation, if continued, should at some time in the future demonstrate her rehabilitation sufficient to restore her hotel registration.

Respondent while employed by Trump Castle Hotel/Casino committed acts of theft in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 and possession of CDS (cocaine) in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10(a)1. Because these acts were committed on the casino floor at Trump Castle Hotel/Casino, I FIND that respondent's continuing licensure would be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry. I, therefore, REVOKE respondent's casino employee license #81572-21. I FURTHER CONCLUDE that the commission of a crime of the second degree here, possession of cocaine N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10(a)1, constitutes a statutory disqualifier pursuant to section 86c(1) of the Act and accordingly, I hereby REVOKE respondent's hotel employee registration #48459-40. I FURTHER FIND that respondent has failed to demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence her good character, honesty and integrity and I FURTHER FIND that she has failed to affirmatively demonstrate her rehabilitation so as to overcome the disqualifying provisions of section 86c(1) of the Act. Considering the above, it is unnecessary to consider whether respondent should be afforded the extraordinary relief of waiver pursuant to section 91(e) of the Act. IT IS SO ORDERED.

OAL DKT. NO. CCC 7629-89
AGENCY DKT. NO. 90-EA-80

IN THE MATTER OF THE APPLICATION OF MARK McDUFFIE
FOR A CASINO KEY EMPLOYEE LICENSE,

Mark McDuffie, petitioner, pro se
Nancy P. Scharff, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: July 17, 1990 Decided: August 21, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES:

The petitioner is presently licensed as a blackjack floorperson, a roulette dealer and a baccarat dealer. He applied for a casino key employee license in order to perform in the sensitive position of pit boss. On August 3, 1989, the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) wrote a letter to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) objecting to the petitioner's application on the grounds that he had committed conduct which is equivalent to theft in the third degree (over $500), and on the additional grounds that he lacked the good character, honesty and integrity for casino key employee licensure.

The petitioner is alleged to have received unemployment benefits to which he was not entitled in excess of $500. This act, while never prosecuted criminally, may still be considered as a disqualification from casino key employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c1, g, and 89d. The conduct may also be asserted against an applicant's claim that s/he possesses the good character, honesty and integrity for casino key employee licensure. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

A telephone prehearing conference was held on February 27, 1990 and, among other things, the issues referred to above were identified for resolution at a plenary hearing. The plenary hearing convened on June 6, 1990. The record remained open until July 17, 1990 in order for the State to submit briefs and additional evidence.

At the plenary hearing, the Division proved and the petitioner admitted that a certificate of debt in the amount of $612 was entered against the petitioner by the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance of the Department of Labor on December 20, 1983. The judgment represents unemployment benefits which were overpaid to the petitioner in November and December of 1981 and a fine.

The petitioner was employed at the Tropicana Hotel/Casino at the time. The Casino had just opened for business and the petitioner was coming off of a period of unemployment. He did not report his employment immediately. He used the extra money to pay off some bills acquired during his period of unemployment. He did notify the Division of Unemployment after approximately four weeks however when he began to receive income from tips and no longer needed the benefits to tide him over. These are the operative facts concerning the alleged theft.

At the conclusion of the plenary hearing, the Division of Gaming Enforcement reexamined the petitioner's claim in light of the fact that he may have been entitled to partial benefits during the period of the claim. The Division determined that the actual amount of benefits paid to the petitioner over and above the amounts to which he was entitled totaled $325.00 Since this does not rise to the level of a third degree theft, the Division advises that the petitioner is not disqualified from casino key employee licensure. Under the New Jersey Criminal Code, the value of the goods stolen must exceed $500 to be considered a crime of the third degree. N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2).

The Division also points out in its post hearing letter that the petitioner's proofs at the hearing sufficiently establish his good character, honesty and integrity.

It cites his good work record and the length of elapsed time since the events occurred. I agree with the Division's recommendations.

The petitioner has paid the obligation against him and a warrant of satisfaction has been entered. He expressed his personal embarrassment at his situation. The petitioner has a good work history, having been formerly employed as an architectural draftsman. He has been employed in the casino industry since its inception. His recommendations and evaluations from supervisors and coworkers are outstanding. It is obvious from his work record that he will continue to advance in the casino industry and has the capabilities to become an industry executive. But for this incident of very short duration, the petitioner has no other blemish on an otherwise fine record.

Based on the Division's post hearing submission and the evidence adduced at the hearing, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not committed an offense which would disqualify him from casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c1,g and 89d.

I further CONCLUDE that the petitioner has affirmatively demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino key employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement be and is hereby DISMISSED and that the petitioner's application for a casino key employee license be GRANTED.

VALERIE H. ARMSTRONG, VICE-CHAIR

State of New Jersey
OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATIVE LAW

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CCC 1728-89
AGENCY DKT. NO. 89-EA-335

IN THE MATTER OF THE RENEWAL APPLICATION OF BETHANNE MCFADDEN
FOR A CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSE.

Laura McAlister, Esq., for petitioner (Cooper, Perskie, April, Niedelman, Wagenheim, & Levenson, attorneys)
Joanne Ciancimino, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: August 23, 1990 Decided: September 21, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

Bethanne McFadden, petitioner, graduated from Seton Hall University on May 21, 1983 with a Bachelor of Arts degree. She returned to the University in the fall of 1983, and in the spring of 1984, to take graduate business courses, but did not stay for an advanced degree. During the summers while she was a college student, petitioner was employed as a cocktail waitress at Atlantic City casinos and, during the school year, she collected unemployment compensation.

Sometimes during the school year, the petitioner would be called back to Atlantic City to work a special event, such as a prize fight or convention. On these occasions, she would drive down from the University and work the event. On two occasions, from December 1982 to April 1983, and from January 1984 to May 1984, while petitioner was collecting unemployment benefits, she did not report her earnings from Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino to the Division of Unemployment Benefits. On the first occasion, petitioner received $553.00 of unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled. On the second occasion, petitioner received $668.75 of undeserved unemployment benefits.

The petitioner stipulated to these facts and concedes that her conduct can be equated with theft in the third degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 and 2.

As a result of this conduct, the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) objected to the petitioner's application for a renewal of her casino employee license. It filed its objection with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) which issues licenses. A license permits an employee to perform duties on the casino floor or in connection with casino gaming. The petitioner requested a hearing and the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 5:12-107.

The following issues were listed at a prehearing conference for resolution at a plenary hearing:

1. Has the petitioner committed acts which constitute the offense of theft by deception in the third degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which would be a disqualifier from licensure pursuant to sections 86c(1) and 90e of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), even if such conduct was not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this state, as permitted by section 86g of the Act.

2. If the petitioner has committed acts which constitute an otherwise disqualifying offense pursuant to section 86c(1) of the Act, has she affirmatively established her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, pursuant to section 90h of the Act.

3.. Has the petitioner established by clear and convincing evidence that she possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act.

The Casino Control Act (Act) strictly regulates persons who are licensed to work upon the casino floor. At section 86c (1), there is a list of crimes. N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft by deception, if it is in the third degree (over $500), is on the list. Anyone who commits such an offense, whether or not they are prosecuted for the offense, is disqualified from casino employee licensure. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g and 90e.

As a result of petitioner's stipulation, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner is disqualified from casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), and 90e unless she can save her license by affirmatively demonstrating that she is rehabilitated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

The petitioner, who is 29 years old, committed these infractions when she was 22 or 23 years old and a college student. It is the only blemish on an otherwise productive life. She is now an administrative assistant in the marketing department of Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino. She has been in a management training program for more than seven months. The president of Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino predicts that she will go far in the company. She has letters of recommendation which attest to her good character, honesty and integrity, not only from the president of the Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino, but from its vice president of food and beverage operations as well. Her direct supervisor, the vice president for casino marketing, and a friend and co-worker, both testified personally on her behalf. There is no question that her employer and co-workers are convinced that she is rehabilitated and has good character, honesty and integrity.

In addition, the petitioner has other interests than her career. She has been involved for the past four years in a fund raising organization known as the "Friends." The Friends contributed last year to the Marine Mammal Society. This year it will donate to the Dooley House, a home for babies with AIDS.

An applicant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c(1) disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating her rehabilitation as provided by section 90h of the Act. The factors which the Commission shall consider in determining the applicants rehabilitation are as follows: (1) The nature and duties of the position applied for; (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct; (3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred; (4) The date of the offense or conduct; (5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed; (6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident; (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct; (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

(1) The petitioner has applied for a renewal license which will permit her to continue working on the casino floor.

(2) The offense was not serious. She was not prosecuted for its commission. It was not a crime of violence. No person was injured by her actions. Unemployment benefit theft is one of the milder forms of white collar crime. In this case it is a third degree crime and carries a presumption with it that a first offender will not be incarcerated. N.J.S.A. 2C:44-1e. There is no question however, that it is a factor to be considered in licensing a person to handle cash or other similar items because it raises the question of honesty.

(3) The offense occurred when the petitioner was a student.

(4) (5) The offense occurred in two periods. One period covered part of 1982 and 1983. A second period covered part of 1983 and 1984. The petitioner was 22 or 23 years old.

(6) The offense has never been repeated. The petitioner has committed no other offenses.

(7) There was no evidence offered at the hearing that social conditions contributed to the offense.

(8) The petitioner is fully employed. She is in training for an executive position in the casino industry. She is highly regarded by both her supervisors and her peers. She has a social conscience and engages in charitable work. She has repaid the debt and is in all respects fully rehabilitated.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has affirmatively demonstrated her rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

I further CONCLUDE, based on the identical factors, that the petitioner possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for casino employee licensure by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b.

I ORDER that the objection letter filed by the Division be DISMISSED.

I further ORDER that the petitioner's casino employee license be RENEWED.

Record Closed: May 24, 1990 Decided: July 16, 1990

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), Department of Law and Public Safety, filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission), dated April 18, 1989, wherein the Division objected to the renewal of a casino employee license issued to petitioner. The Division's 1989 objection to the renewal of petitioner's key license was based upon its letter, dated January 9, 1984, to the Commission where it alleged, among other things, that petitioner deducted certain promotional and entertaining expenses from his 1981 individual income tax return with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS), to which he was not entitled. Petitioner contends that his expenses were legitimate, however, he filed an amended tax return with the IRS in 1984, at the insistence of the Division, to avoid any difficulties with his license renewal.

On June 5, 1989, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was held on September 5, 1989 at which, among other things, the issues to be determined by this tribunal were set forth and the hearing dates of December 21 and 22, 1989 were established. The hearing was held on December 21, 1989, February 17, 1990 and April 17, 1990. The record remained open to provide the Deputy Attorney General time to review certain documents concerning bankruptcy proceedings concerning petitioner. The record closed on May 24, 1990. A request for an extension of time in which to file this initial decision has been granted.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined in this matter, as agreed upon by the parties at the prehearing conference, are these:

A. Whether petitioner's improper deductions on his 1981 Federal Income Tax Return are analogous to a theft offense under N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 and, therefore, is a disqualifying offense pursuant to Section 86c (1) of the Casino Control Act (Act), despite the fact that the conduct was not prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g?

B. Whether petitioner's improper deductions on his Federal Income Tax Return negatively affects his good character, honesty and integrity as required by Section 89b (2) of the Act and, whether his violation of the credit regulations negatively impacts on his good character, honesty and integrity?

BURDEN OF PROOF

1. The Division has the burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, as to issue A.

2. Petitioner has the burden of proof as to issue B, by the standard of clear and convincing evidence.

UNCONTESTED FACTS

Based upon the testimony adduced at the hearing and the documents entered into evidence, the following facts are neither contested nor in dispute. I, therefore, adopt the following as my FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter:

Petitioner is presently 45 years of age and has been licensed by the Commission since May 1, 1979 as a pit boss (all games) and a shift manager. From October 1980 through November 1982, petitioner was employed by the Golden Nugget Hotel and Casino in Atlantic City, New Jersey as a pit boss. His duties included, among other things, the supervision of personnel and the management of running the games assigned to him. As a pit boss, petitioner had direct contact with patrons who played at the gaming tables. Petitioner was never directed by his supervisors to engage in promotional work for the casino. However, he entertained certain patrons on the casino premises by dining with the patrons or attending a function at the casino hotel with them. He would provide patrons with other complimentary (comps) services or items when authorized to do so. On other occasions, petitioner was sent by the Golden Nugget to attend openings, charity events and/or golf outings with patrons.

In or about August 1982, petitioner and his wife filed a joint United States Individual Income Tax Return for the year ending December 31, 1981. Therein, petitioner declared $8,760 as "Expenses incurred as employee of the Golden Nugget Hotel and Casino, Atlantic City, N.J." (R-1). Petitioner claimed, among other things, expenses for 13 trips to New York (City) and two trips to Washington (D.C.) for "promotion and entertaining casino players." (R-1). Petitioner did not seek permission from his supervisors nor was he authorized by the Golden Nugget to take the 13 trips to New York or the two trips to Washington to entertain casino patrons. In fact, petitioner took the trips on his days off from his employment duties at the Golden Nugget. Petitioner contended that he engaged in the entertainment of Golden Nugget patrons to encourage them to gamble at the casino and to enhance his image with his supervisors.

Petitioner claimed $6,500 in expenses for the 13 trips to New York and $1,000 for the two trips to Washington on his tax return. Petitioner had no diary or calendar which would indicate the date, time, place, type of entertainment (dinner, shows) and/or individuals entertained by him for any of the 15 trips. Nor did petitioner produce any receipts or other documentation demonstrating expenses incurred by him for any of the 15 trips. Petitioner's wife accompanied petitioner to New York on six of the 13 trips. He did not deduct his wife's estimated expenses of food, lodging and transportation for the six New York trips on his 1981 tax return.

Petitioner listed auto and promotional expenses in connection with 12 golf trips for casino players on his 1981 tax return. He placed the expenses as $75 per trip, for a total of $900 for this tax deduction. He had no diary or calendar to indicate when or where these trips were made. Nor did he have any documentation by way of receipts or vouchers to support the expenditures.

In calculating the expenses for each of the 13 trips to New York and the two trips to Washington, D.C., petitioner estimated the cost for a typical trip and then used the median amount to arrive at the total amount of $6,500 to deduct from his 1981 income tax for the New York trips and $1,000 for the Washington trips. Rick Freizer, a Certified Public Accountant (CPA), prepared petitioner's 1981 Federal income Tax Return. By way of affidavit, Mr. Freizer asserted that the dollar figures reflected on Line 23 - Employee Business Expenses, were provided to him by petitioner. Freizer asserted that he would not have permitted petitioner to deduct these expenses "...if there had not been receipts or other documentation or a representation from the client that these expenses actually had been incurred." (R-2). Freizer continued to assert that he would not have permitted petitioner to deduct those expenses if petitioner was not authorized to make the trips or if the trips were not an integral part of his employment.

Petitioner traveled to New York between 20 and 25 times in 1981. Some of the trips were completely personal while others were strictly business. Other trips taken by petitioner were a combination of personal and business. In 1981, petitioner took between 20 and 25 trips to Washington, D.C. where certain of his family members reside. On all but two of his 1981 trips to Washington, petitioner stayed with family members. On two trips to Washington, petitioner stayed in hotels in the city of Washington, D.C.

Petitioner subsequently filed an amended 1981 tax return prepared by Michael Taxin, CPA, on or about June 25, 1984. As a consequence of his filing an amended 1981 tax return, petitioner paid $4,397.00 to the IRS despite the fact that the IRS never sought an audit of petitioner's 1981 tax return. Petitioner was neither assessed any fines or penalties by the IRS for his 1981 or 1984 amended tax returns. Under Part II, Form 4726, Explanation of Changes to income, Deductions and Credits, petitioner stated, in part:

> To Amend Return Pursuant to a Demand Made by the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement as a Condition of Being Licensed to Work in a New Jersey Casino. (P-1).

TESTIMONIAL EVIDENCE AND CONTESTED FACTS

Robert W. Latimer, an administrator of investigation for the Division; i.e., supervisor of the Financial Analysis Section, was qualified as an expert in the field of taxation with respect to the preparation and review of income tax returns and testified on behalf of the Division. He reviewed petitioner's 1981 tax return with particular attention to petitioner's employee business expenses. He asserted that petitioner's business expenses were permissible deductions under the IRS Code where the deductions met the following tests: (1) The expense must be directly related to business; (2) That the employer or employee will receive some income (benefit) from the expense; (3) The expenditure must be in a business setting; (4) There must be substantiation for the expense either by way of receipts, a business log, journal or other supporting evidence, and; (5) The expense must be ordinary and necessary for the business. He asserted that ordinary can be a one time expense and it was not necessary for the employee to have the employer's approval in order for the employee's expenses to be justified as income tax deductions under necessary. There would have to be, however, some hope or belief that there would be a monetary or income benefit to the employer or employee.

Mr. Latimer opined that petitioner's business expenses would not be permissible, given the facts in this matter; i.e., petitioner's failure to produce any documentation or receipts for the expenses listed and the absence of a diary which would indicate the type of trips and its business relationship. Latimer contended that the majority of cases under his review concerning casino key employees and qualifiers, involved expenses limited to junkets. He further opined that petitioner's wife's expenses would not be permitted as deductible expenses unless it could be shown that her expenses were directly related to the business activity. He qualified his opinion by stating that if it could be shown that petitioner's wife's mere presence led to the business or petitioner being benefited with future income, then the wife's expenses would qualify as permissible deductions for income tax purposes. Mr. Latimer asserted that as a consequence of petitioner's declaring the business expenses on his 1981 Federal Income Tax Return, petitioner moved from the 54 percent tax bracket to the 49 percent tax bracket with a savings of approximately $4,400 in tax liability.

On cross-examination Latimer opined, among other things, that it was the duty of the accountant preparing a tax return to do so for the benefit of the client in order that the client pays the least possible tax. The accountant will typically ask the client taxpayer to substantiate any deduction, however, the tax preparer does not necessarily review the substantiation. In the event the tax payer cannot substantiate a deduction, the accountant then has the duty to advise the taxpayer that the deduction will not be allowed by the IRS. Latimer asserted that it was permissible in 1981, to estimate deductions. He asserted that the rules for substantiation of deductions had changed, considerably, since 1981.

Latimer testified that the effect of a taxpayer in amending a return was to clarify, correct or adjust the original tax return based upon new information. He asserted that an amended tax return supersedes the original tax return and that petitioner's claimed deductions on the original return were wiped out by the amended return. He stated that petitioner's amended 1981 tax return eliminated the $8,760 deduction for business expenses, with an adjustment of $4,397 in additional taxes owed by petitioner to the IRS.

At the close of the Division's case in chief, counsel for petitioner made an oral application to dismiss the Division's charges and allegations against his client for lack of proof. Having heard oral argument on the motion, the undersigned held the motion in abeyance based upon the Division having made a prima facie case with respect to its charges. Petitioner was, therefore, required to move forward with his proofs.

Michael Steven Taxin, testified on behalf of petitioner. Mr. Taxin is a self-employed licensed New Jersey public accountant who does accounting, audits, tax preparations and represents his clients before the IRS when called to do so. He was formerly employed by the IRS as a tax examiner and audit classifier. He generally prepares between 200 and 300 tax returns for filing with the IRS during each tax season. He estimates that he has prepared thousands of tax returns during the course of his career. As a consequence of his background and representations to this tribunal, Mr. Taxin was qualified as an expert in the area of tax preparation and in the review of tax returns.

Mr. Taxin testified that he prepared petitioner's amended 1981 tax return on June 24, 1984, through petitioner's then attorney, Richard Press. He asserted that there was an arrangement between the Division and Mr. Press that upon the completion and filing of the amended tax return, petitioner then would be relicensed as a casino key employee. Specifically, Taxin eliminated the employee business expenses deductions (line 23 of Form 1040) (R-1) which Press stated were objectionable to the Division.

Taxin, who is familiar with the IRS rules as of 1981 and the subsequent changes made pursuant to the Tax Reform Act of 1984, testified that under the old tax law substantiation of deductions was required. However, in the absence of written documentation in an IRS audit, verbal (oral) documentation was completely acceptable when no other forms of documentation were available. He asserted that IRS auditors were instructed to accept oral documentation unless the taxpayers could otherwise substantiate the proffered tax deduction. He opined that it was reasonable and acceptable for a taxpayer to orally claim a $500 average expense for a trip to New York in the absence of any contrary evidence. He stated that the IRS audit manual contained reference charts which relate to normal and reasonable expenditures. In circumstances of an IRS audit, the amount of the deduction would be viewed against the total income of the taxpayer.

Mr. Taxin testified that the effect of filing an amended tax return to eliminate Line 23, Form 1040 deductions was to eliminate the deductions as though the deductions never existed. In any future IRS audits, petitioner's amended tax form, 1040X, would be the only one considered and any deductions taken on his original 1981 1040 Form would no longer be considered because said deductions were eliminated and are no longer a part of the tax return.

Mr. Taxin asserted that to his knowledge, the IRS never requested an audit of petitioner's original 1981 tax return nor of the 1984 amended 1981 tax return. He testified that under the present tax law, the taxpayer is required to maintain a diary and keep explicit documentation to substantiate employee business expenses.

On cross-examination, Taxin testified that section 274d of the 1976 amendments to the Internal Revenue Code required substantiation with regard to travel expenses. He also asserted that oral substantiation of a taxpayers deduction was provided in the Code under the clause which states "...or by sufficient evidence corroborating his own statements." The taxpayer was not required to corroborate a deduction through a receipt, canceled check or credit card receipt under the IRS auditor's guidelines.

Mr. Taxin testified as to his procedures in preparing an individual tax return with regard to travel and business expenses. He asserted that he would not necessarily review written documentation related to the expenses if the taxpayer did not provide it to him. Rather, Taxin would require the taxpayer to sign a statement attesting to the fact that such documentation exists. Taxin would not prepare the tax return including the deductions if the taxpayer refused to sign the statement in the absence of providing documentation for business expense deductions.

Richard Press, a licensed attorney at law in the State of New Jersey, testified, among other things, that he was petitioner's legal counsel in 1980 and represented petitioner with regard to the Division's letter to the Commission dated January 9, 1984, objecting to the renewal of petitioner's casino key employee license. Attorney Press could not recall whether he was first contacted by officials of the Tropicana Hotel and Casino or by petitioner. In any event, he represented petitioner with regard to the Division's objection to the renewal of petitioner's license.

Mr. Press began his representation of petitioner by requesting discovery from the Division which included, among other things, a transcript of a sworn statement given to the Division's investigators by petitioner. The attorney researched what rights, if any, the Commission possessed to request petitioner to subject himself to an IRS audit, to request that he amend his tax return, or alternatively, to disqualify petitioner from further licensure as a result of what the Division and Commission perceived to be improper filing of tax returns and, specifically, improper deductions taken by petitioner. He contacted tax experts for advice including Michael Taxin and Mark Schwartz, a tax attorney.

Thereafter, Press had several discussions with Dennis Daly, Senior Assistant Counsel for the Commission and Deputy Attorney General Fusco concerning a resolution of the matter in controversy. By way of letter dated May 30, 1984, addressed to Daly, Press requested a hearing on petitioner's behalf and stated the following:

> This will confirm my telephone conversation with you on 5/25/84 wherein I indicated that I represent Mr. McGuire in this matter and further, that I had a series of phone conversations with Ralph Fusco in March 1984 wherein we have been attempting to resolve this matter.
>
> You indicated that if the D.G.E. would remove any objections to a renewal of Mr. McGuire's key license, that you would make a similar recommendation to the Commission. Following our discussions, I spoke with Mr. Fusco who indicated that if Mr. McGuire cleans up his tax returns he would look very favorably towards removing any objections. I have sent Mr. McGuire to an extremely competent C.P.A. who is presently amending the 1981 Return and preparing the 1982 and 1983 Returns which Mr. McGuire has been granted an extension for filing same. Once these Returns are completed and filed with the IRS, I will forward everything to Mr. Fusco and yourself.
>
> It is unfortunate that Mr. McGuire ran into difficulty due to what I perceive and which the C.P.A. perceives was > incompetent tax advise by Mr. McGuire's former accountant. (P-3). (Emphasis in the original)

Mr. Press testified that as he proceeded through the matter, that a decision was ultimately reached whereby it was agreed that petitioner would amend his tax returns for two years brought into question by the Division. Mr. Press subsequently sent a letter dated June 25, 1984, addressed to Daly and Fusco, which stated as follows:

> Following up my correspondence of May 30, 1984 a copy of which I attach hereto for easy review, I herewith supply copies of the following documents:
>
> 1. Copy of Federal and State Income tax returns for 1983.
>
> 2. Copy of Federal and State Income tax returns for 1982.
>
> 3. Amended U.S. Individual tax return Form 1040 for the calendar year 1981.
>
> 4. Copies of four checks all dated 6/22/84 from Lawrence and Elizabeth McGuire to the Internal Revenue and the State of New Jersey in the amounts of $4,397.00, $11,127.00, $1,686.00 and $282.00.
>
> I trust that all of these documents fully comply with your requests. As you can see Mr. McGuire is paying over $17,000.00 to State and Federal Income tax agencies.
> I would appreciate your reviewing these enclosures and contact me as soon as possible concerning your position regarding new licensing Mr. McGuire. (P-3).

It was Press' understanding that the Division's and/or the Commission's tax department would review the amended tax returns and correspond with the attorney if there was a problem. Press heard nothing from the Division or the Commission. Subsequently, in or about July 1989, petitioner contacted Press to advise the lawyer that the Division had filed a complaint against petitioner. Press then contacted Daly to express his surprise that the complaint dealt with the identical issues that had already been resolved. Press stated that Daly indicated that perhaps there were other issues in the complaint and that was the reason for its issuance. Press asserted that Daly was conciliatory in their conversation and recalled that the agreement was made to have petitioner file amended tax returns, however, there was nothing Daly could do about the new complaint. Press sent a letter, dated July 8, 1989, to confirm their conversation. Daly did not respond to the letter.

On cross-examination, Press admitted there was nothing in writing from either the Division or the Commission which made a demand upon petitioner to file an amended tax return. Press insisted, moreover, that there were oral representations to that effect by way of discussions with both Mr. Dennis Daly of the Commission and Mr. Fusco of the Division. It was Press' understanding that the Division would remove its objections to petitioner's relicensure if petitioner filed an amended tax return and eliminated the employee business expenses reported on petitioner's 1981 tax return. When Deputy Attorney General Fusco asked Mr. Press:

> Q. Is that your understanding of a demand being made that Mr. McGuire file an amended return?

Mr. Press answered:

> A. That's correct. (TR. III, p. 46)

Mr. Press continued to testify, in part, that:

> ...He indicated to me on May 25 of '84, he being Mr. Daly, that the DGE would remove any objections to a renewal of Mr. McGuire's key license if Mr. Fusco made the same recommendation to the Commission. (TR III, p. 46).

In a subsequent letter, dated July 8, 1989, Press wrote to Daly and stated, in part, as follows:

> Thank you for your telephone call of 6/26/89 wherein you did recall the resolution of the tax questions which the Commission was previously concerned about and our agreement to provide amended tax returns for the years in question. It was my specific understanding that the amended returns resolved any questions as to re-licensing. (P-4).

There were no writings to Press from either Daly or Fusco.

Petitioner offered two witnesses who testified as to petitioner's reputation and good character. Richard Zapulla, Sr., Senior Vice President of Casino Operations, Trump Taj Mahal Hotel and Casino (Taj Mahal), testified that he has known petitioner for ten years and that petitioner has an outstanding reputation in the casino gaming industry. Zappulla asserted that he had forgotten what the Division's complaint against petitioner concerned, however, it would make no difference to him because Zappulla has known petitioner to be an outstanding citizen and a great employee. Zappulla testified that he did not know anything bad about petitioner.

Mr. Wolf Lichten, employed by the Taj Mahal in casino marketing, asserted that he had worked with petitioner and that petitioner was highly regarded in the gaming industry and the Atlantic City community. Lichten asserted that petitioner had always been a gentlemen and that his word was his bond.

Mr. Lichten admitted that the Division had opposed his licensure as a casino employee license for gambling in Atlantic City. Prior to his licensure, Lichten had been a casino gambling patron and incurred significant amount of debt to the casinos. Those debts have been eliminated and, by way of an OAL hearing, an ALJ recommended that the Commission should issue Lichten a license. Lichten testified that, notwithstanding the charges brought against petitioner by the Division, petitioner has always demonstrated good character.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (1) as incorporated within Section 86g of the Act

In its public policy declaration, the Legislature held that a primary purpose of the Act was to insure "public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations." N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b (6). It further asserted this public interest by enacting N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b (8), which states:

> Since the public has a vital interest in casino operations in Atlantic City and has established an exception to the general policy of the State concerning gaming for private gain, participation in casino operations as a licensee or registrant under this act shall be deemed a revocable privilege conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee or registrant and upon the discharge of the affirmative responsibility of each such licensee or registrant to provide to the regulatory and investigatory authorities established by this act any > assistance and information necessary to assure that the policies declared by this act are achieved. Consistent with this policy, it is the intent of this act to preclude the creation of any property right in any license, registration, certificate or reservation permitted by this act, the accrual of any value to the privilege of participation in gaming operations, or the transfer of any license, registration, certificate, or reservation, and to inquire that participation in gaming be solely conditioned upon the individual qualifications of the person seeking such privilege.

Thus, the Act requires that every casino employee be either registered with or licensed by the Commission. N.J.S.A. 5:12-89, 5:12-90, 5:12-91. In addition, these statutes provide that a license shall be denied to an employee or a key employee in the event that employee is disqualified on the basis of the criteria found in section 86 of the Act. Moreover, section 86g grants the Commission the power and authority to deny a casino license to any person who is disqualified on the basis of any one of the statutory listed criteria, whether or not the disqualifying offense was prosecuted in a court of competent jurisdiction.

Section 86 (1) of the Act, as amended, mandates that a person who has been convicted of any of the offenses enumerated thereunder in any jurisdiction shall be disqualified from licensure. Section 86g provides that the Commission shall deny a casino license to any person who has committed any act or acts "which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of this section, even if such conduct has not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State. ..." As was said in Div. of Gaming v. Boardwalk Regency, 12 N.J.A.R. 301 at 317:

> In enacting the Casino Control Act, the Legislature sought to maintain the integrity of the casino industry by providing, among other things, a statutory mechanism to automatically disqualify certain persons from registration and licensure who had committed specific criminal offenses in any jurisdiction N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (1). It is not the object of the Division to relitigate each criminal offense but, rather, to affirmatively demonstrate through an administrative proceeding that the disqualifying offense occurred and under what circumstances it occurred. Even where the disqualifying offense had not been prosecuted in a court of competent jurisdiction or where the offense had been downgraded to be a lesser, non-disqualifying matter; the Legislature provided the Casino Control Commission with the authority to deny an individual with licensure to work in the casino industry. N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

The Division alleges that employee business expense deductions claimed by petitioner on his 1981 Federal Income Tax Return were improper and analogous to a theft offense under New Jersey statutes, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 and, therefore, a disqualifying offense pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (1) despite the fact that the conduct was not prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State, as provided by section 86g of the Act. Theft by unlawful taking or disposition under N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 provides as follows:

> a. Movable property. A person is guilty of theft if he unlawfully takes, or exercises unlawful control over, movable property of another with purpose to deprive him thereof.
> b. Immovable property. A person is guilty of theft if he unlawfully transfers any interest in immovable property of another with purpose to benefit himself or another not entitled thereto.

In enacting the Code of Criminal Justice, the New Jersey Legislature provided for the grading of theft offenses. Under N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3b (2) (a), the statute provides that theft constitutes a crime of the third degree if the amount involved exceeds $500 but is less than $75,000.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c (1), theft and related offenses which constitute crimes of the second or third degree are per se disqualifying offenses for licensure in the New Jersey casino industry.

Under Internal Revenue Code (I.R.C.) section 162 (26 U.S.C.A. § 162), expenses for entertainment, gifts and travel are permissible business deductions in computing a taxpayers federal income tax. Prior to 1962 there were few restrictions on the deductibility of entertainment expenses. There were virtually no limitations as to the scope of items which were considered within permissible entertainment or as to the amount of proof or substantiation of expenses incurred for the deductions. In the matter of Cohan v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 39 F. 2d. 540 (2d. Cir. 1930), the Court stated:

> In the production of his plays Cohan was obliged to be freehanded in entertaining actors, employees, and, as he naively adds dramatic critics. He had also to travel much, > at times with his attorney. These expenses amounted to substantial sums but he kept no account and probably could not have done so. At the trial before the Board [Tax Court] he estimated that he had spent eleven thousand dollars in this fashion during the six months of 1921, twenty-two thousand dollars, between July 1, 1921 and June 30, 1922, and as much for his following fiscal year, fifty five thousand dollars in all. the Board refused to allow him any part of this, on the ground that it was impossible to tell how much he had in fact spent, in the absence of any items or details. The question is how far this refusal is justified, in view of the finding that he had spent much and that the sums were allowable expenses. Absolute certainty in such matters is usually impossible and is not necessary; the Board should make as close an approximation as it can, bearing heavily if it chooses upon the taxpayer whose inexactitude is of his own making. But to allow nothing at all appears to us inconsistent with saying that something was spent. True, we do not know how many trips Cohan made, nor how large his entertainments were; yet there was obviously some basis for computation, if necessary by drawing upon the Board's personal estimates of the minimum of such expenses. The amount may be trivial and unsatisfactory, but there was basis for some allowance, and it was wrong to refuse any, even though it were the traveling expenses of a single trip. It is not fatal that the result will inevitably be speculative; many important decisions must be such. Id. at 543-544.

Thus, the Second Circuit instructed that the trial court should approximate the taxpayers expenses when the taxpayer has claimed unsubstantiated business deductions for purposes of federal income tax.

Subsequently, in 1962, Congress enacted I.R.C. (26 U.S.C.A.) section 274 in order to narrow the scope of deductions allowed by I.R.C. (26 U.S.C.A.) section 162. Section 274 imposed some limitations on section 162 with the additional requirement of substantiation of the expense. A major limitation in section 274 requires that expenses related to entertainment, amusement, or recreational activity must be directly related to or associated with the taxpayer's trade or business in order to be deductible.

With regard to substantiation of a business expense deduction, 26 U.S.C.A. section 274 (d) provides, as follows:

> Substantiation required.--No deduction or credit shall be allowed--

> (1) under section 162 or 212 for any traveling expense (including meals and lodging while away from home),
>
> (2) for any item with respect to an activity which is of a type generally considered to constitute entertainment, amusement, or recreation, or with respect to a facility used in connection with such an activity,
>
> (3) for any expense for gifts, or
>
> (4) with respect to any listed property (as defined in section 280F(d)(4),
> unless the taxpayer substantiates by adequate records or by sufficient evidence corroborating the taxpayer's own statement (A) the amount of such expense or other item, (B) the time and place of the travel, entertainment, amusement, recreation, or use of the facility or property, or the date and description of the gift, (C) the business purpose of the expense or other item, and (D) the business relationship to the taxpayer of persons entertained, using the facility or property, or receiving the gift. The secretary may by regulations provide that some or all of the requirements of the preceding sentence shall not apply in the case of an expense which does not exceed an amount prescribed pursuant to such regulations. This subsection shall not apply to any qualified nonpersonal use vehicle (as defined in subsection (i)).

Petitioner contends that he entertained certain patrons of the Golden Nugget and, in good faith, deducted the estimated amounts incurred on his 1981 federal income tax return. He admits that he was not authorized by his supervisors to carry on this activity, however, he did so in furtherance of the casino's and his business opportunities. He further admits that he does not have documentation to substantiate the business expenses he deducted from his 1981 federal income tax but, rather, that he estimated his expenses.

As to the issuance of estimating business expenses, the Division's own witness, Robert W. Latimer, asserted that in 1981 it was permissible for a taxpayer to estimate deductions on his/her federal income tax return. Further, the language of section 274(d) of 26 U.S.C.A. appears to grant the Secretary of Treasury, through his/her designees, broad latitude with regards to the enforcement of requiring substantiation for deductions where it says, in part:

> ... The Secretary may by regulations provide that some or all of the requirements of the preceding sentence shall not apply in the case of the expense which does not exceed an amount prescribed pursuant to such regulations. ...

In support of petitioner's position that his former accountant accepted petitioner's representations for the 1981 business expense deductions; Mr. Michael Taxin asserted that in an IRS audit of a taxpayers return, oral documentation was completely acceptable in the absence of written documentation and when no other forms of documentation were available. He also asserted under circumstances of an IRS audit, the amount of deduction by the taxpayer would be viewed against the taxpayers total income. Mr. Taxin's assertion may be the relaxation of the substantiation requirement, under section 274 (d), where the " ... requirements .... shall not apply in the case of an expense which does not exceed an amount prescribed ... (26 U.S.C.A. 274 (d)). Petitioner's position is further buttressed by the fact that his 1981 federal income tax return was neither questioned nor challenged by the I.R.S. Even subsequent to petitioner's filing an amended 1981 tax return in 1984, under protest and at the insistence of the Division, the IRS neither questioned nor sought any sanctions of petitioner by way of penalties or fines.

Given all of the above I cannot find or conclude that petitioner committed any offense which would be analogous to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Division has failed to carry its burden to prove, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that petitioner claimed improper deductions on his 1981 Federal Income Tax Return or that he committed a disqualifying offense under section 86c (1) of the Act.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (2), GOOD CHARACTER, HONESTY AND INTEGRITY

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated within section 89b(2) of the Act, petitioner McGuire is required to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel for a Casino License, Casino Control Commission (February 26, 1979) at 8; Davis v. Div. of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985); In re Boardwalk Regency Corp. Casino License, 90 N.J. 361 (1982). When, as here, the Division raises the issue as to the licensee's good character, honesty and integrity, it is incumbent upon the licensee to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which this tribunal may reach a reasonable conclusion. Boardwalk Regency, supra; In the Matter of the Application of Boardwalk Regency Corp. and the Jemm Company for Casino License, Casino Control Commission (November 13, 1980). In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of the licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure.

Clear and convincing, as a standard, falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here, the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the fact alleged is true; i.e., that petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity. The standard requires more than a mere balancing of probabilities, but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (L. Div. 1974); Germann v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466 (App. Div. 1969).

Having concluded that petitioner did not take improper deductions on his Federal Income Tax Return and, the Division having failed to produce any evidence with regard to alleged violations of credit regulations, I CONCLUDE that the Division's charge that either or one of these events negatively impacts on petitioner's good character, honesty and integrity is without merit. Petitioner has clearly and convincingly established his good character, honesty and integrity by virtue of licensure as a key employee in the casino industry. Nothing has been demonstrated or shown otherwise. I CONCLUDE, therefore, that petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity as required by section 89b(2).

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the Division's objection to the renewal of petitioner's casino key employee license be and is hereby DISMISSED and that the Commission renew petitioner's license pursuant to the provisions found at N.J.S.A. 5:12-88.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION who by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

OAL DKT. NO. CCC 8609-89
AGENCY DKT. NO. 89-EA-299

APPLICATION OF
JAMES R. MEE, JR.,
FOR A CASINO
EMPLOYEE LICENSE.

James R. Mee, Jr., petitioner pro se
Ralph Fusco, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: August 2, 1990 Decided: August 28, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

James Mee, a casino hotel worker, who is registered with the Casino Control Commission (Commission), applied for a casino employee license in order to serve alcoholic beverages at a casino. The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) objected to his licensure by letter to the Commission dated December 28, 1988, but not to his continued registration, on the grounds that he lacked the good character, honesty and integrity required of licensees pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b.

The applicant failed to appear at a scheduled hearing and his application was denied. He appealed to the Commission and was granted a new hearing. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on November 9, 1989 to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing order identified the above mentioned character issue as the issue to be determined at a plenary hearing. A plenary hearing convened on June 26, 1990 at which time the Division raised an additional issue for determination pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b. That section of the Casino Control Act (Act) requires applicants to divulge all information material to qualification. The application form requests one to list all arrests. The Division alleged that the applicant failed to list some arrests in Pennsylvania.

The issue was added and the applicant was granted a postponement in order to obtain legal counsel.

On August 2, 1990, a new plenary hearing convened, the applicant having elected to proceed without an attorney.

An important factor in this case was the applicant's demeanor at the plenary hearing.

It was immediately obvious that the applicant had failed to divulge information material to his qualification, beginning with his address. The applicant listed his grandmother's house in Mystic Island, New Jersey as his only address on section seven of the application which states: "Beginning with your current residence(s) and working backwards, provide the following information with respect to each place where you have lived during the past (5) years." The form then asks for dates, addresses and phone number.

The applicant had only resided in Mystic Island for a very brief period; during summer vacations as a child. He did not list his residences in Haverford, Pa., the locality of his three undivulged arrests.

According to the FBI rap sheet, the applicant was arrested on February 21, 1984 in Havertown, Pa., and charged with conspiracy and unauthorized use of a car. He was arrested again in Havertown, Pa. on April 7, 1985, and charged with theft by unlawful taking, receiving stolen property and hit and run. A third arrest in Havertown does not appear on the rap sheet, but an arrest in Margate, New Jersey for possession of under 25 grams of marijuana, growing marijuana and possession of drug paraphenalia on June 17, 1987 does appear. The Margate arrest was the only arrest that the applicant divulged.

The applicant explained that he either thought that the incidents were not arrests or that they happened when he was less than 21 or, alternatively, that they were all discharged and therefore not to be considered. He said that the unauthorized use of a motor vehicle charge in February of 1984 was merely a result of his using his girlfriend's father's car. During the examination on this issue, the petitioner exclaimed that the Deputy, by asking him questions concerning his criminal history, was playing cat and mouse with him.

The applicant referred to an assault, criminal mischief and trespassing charge not contained on the FBI rap sheet. He explained this as an occurrence at his wife's mother's house. He said he pled guilty and received a 30 day suspended sentence. He said that he did not feel that this was a matter of record and therefore did not divulge it.

He explained the 1985 theft charge by saying he bought an illegal inspection sticker for a car and was caught moving his car from his father's house to his mother's house. He received Pennsylvania's equivalent to the New Jersey PTI program, therefore, he said, he did not feel that this created a record.

He again reiterated that since these events occurred before he was 21 he need not report them.

When it was pointed out to him that the application calls for a history of all arrests, including juvenile arrests, he hastened to point out that he did not check the box either "yes" or "no" which answers the question "have you ever been arrested or charged, even if not convicted, with any felony, crime, misdemeanor, disorderly persons offense, juvenile offense or other offense (other than a traffic violation) in New Jersey or anywhere else?" He argued that he was unsure of the question so he did not check the box or answer it. He implied that this excused him. In addition, he argued that he did not even read the entire application, someone at work helped him to fill it out.

When it was pointed out to him that the unreported simple assault charge occurred in January of 1987 when he was more than 21, he said that he was under the impression that a suspended sentence was not a criminal record.

The arrest in Margate was reported on the application form. The police report reveals that marijuana plants were growing in a second floor window at the applicant's residence. A search warrant was obtained and executed. The applicant and his wife were the only residents found at home. They were arrested and charged.

The applicant said that these charges were dismissed. Apparently he obtained pretrial intervention or a conditional discharge because the charges have been dismissed. He said he had two urinalysis performed by court order, both of which were negative for drugs.

He hedged his answers to the questions asked by the deputy concerning this arrest too. He suggested that the plants were not his but his wife's. Then he retracted that statement. He then again denied that the plants were his. Then he said that neither he nor his wife used marijuana. He said the plants were a biological experiment. He said all of this in a very challenging tone to the deputy. He was angry and hostile about being questioned. He refused to place into evidence a letter of recommendation he had obtained for the hearing.

The applicant had an impudent response to every question and an honest answer to none. This was not occasioned however, by the deputy's demeanor or tone of voice. The deputy was professional and polite at all times during the hearing.

It was obvious that the applicant had difficulty with authority. It was also equally obvious that he was unable to tell the truth. It is not surprising that someone would try to conceal a criminal record. It is surprising to find someone who lies about things not relevant to the issues. For instance, in the hearing scheduled on June 26, 1990, the applicant said that he "went to college for five years. (he) didn't come down here to have (his) number two license now (sic) being taken away from (him) forever." But at the plenary hearing on August 2, 1990, it appeared from the applicant's own testimony that he has just completed his freshman year at Drexel University.

This applicant is seriously deficient in the qualities required of casino licensee's. He does not tell the truth. His character defects are plainly seen after a short interview. He has utterly failed to convince me that he has integrity.

I therefore CONCLUDE that the applicant lacks the good character, honesty and integrity required for casino employee licensure by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b.

I also CONCLUDE that the applicant has failed to divulge information material to his qualification for licensure as required by N.J.S.A 5:12-86b.

I therefore DISMISS the application for casino employee licensure.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 90-EA-99

MICHAEL A. MILLER,
Petitioner,
v.
STATE OF NEW JERSEY, DEPARTMENT OF LAW AND PUBLIC SAFETY, DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT,
Respondent.

Michael A. Miller, the petitioner, pro se

James J. Armstrong, Deputy Attorney General, for the respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: September 6, 1990 Decided: September 26, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Michael A. Miller applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the renewal of a casino employee license (blackjack and craps dealer), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90. The respondent, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), opposed the renewal of the licenses by reason of its contention that the petitioner lacked the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, and that the petitioner lacked the requisite financial stability, integrity and responsibility for casino employee licensure, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(1) by reference.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed with the Commission an application for the renewal of a casino employee license, so that he could be employed as a blackjack and craps dealer at Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino. By letter to the Commission, dated August 28, 1989, the Division objected to the petitioner's application for licensure as a blackjack and craps dealer, asserting that the petitoner had defaulted on a student loan, and that he had not filed a federal or State income tax return for five years. Based upon these actions, the Division asserts that the petitioner lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference. The Division further asserts, based upon these actions, that the petitioner lacks the requisite financial stability, integrity and responsibility for casino employee licensure, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(1) by reference. Based upon this report, the Commission notified the petitioner on September 25, 1989, that there were questions concerning his qualifications under the Casino Control Act and that he had the right to a hearing. By application dated December 20, 1989, and received by the Commission on that date, the petitioner requested a hearing. On December 27, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was received on January 8, 1990, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq., and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held in the matter before me on April 20, 1990. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite financial stability, integrity and responsibility for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(1), as incorporated within section 90b.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated within section 90b.

A hearing was held on September 6, 1990, at the Municipal Courtroom, Absecon City Hall, Absecon, New Jersey, after which the record closed.

THE FACTS

The Division is challenging, in part, the petitioner's financial stability, integrity and responsibility. The basis of this objection is the petitioner's personal financial record. The petitioner obtained a student loan from the Bank of New Jersey in 1978. This loan was guaranteed by the New Jersey Higher Education Assistance Authority (NJHEAA). On February 28, 1983, the petitioner went into default on his loan. As NJHEAA had guaranteed the loans, it paid the Bank of New Jersey $2,600.12, a total that included principal and interest. As of January 9, 1989, the petitioner owed NJHEAA a balance of $3,505.44 (R-1). The petitioner's 1983 State tax return was applied to this debt. After being questioned by the Division regarding this debt, the petitioner attempted to contact the Bank of New Jersey regarding the repayment of the student loan. The Bank of New Jersey has since been purchased by the Chemical Bank. Chemical Bank has no record of the loan, as a result, the petitioner did not know whom to contact regarding repayment. The petitioner was advised at the hearing that NJHEAA is the proper agency to repay. He is going to contact NJHEAA in an attempt to enter into a repayment agreement.

The petitioner failed to file any federal or State income tax returns for the years of 1985 through 1989 (R-1). The petitioner testified that he had intended to file his tax returns, but that he had been lazy and irresponsible. The petitioner contacted his past employers and obtained copies of his W-2 statements. The petitioner took his records to H&R Block who prepared the petitioner's federal and State income tax returns for 1986 through 1989 (P-1 through P-7). These returns were filed in March and April 1990. The petitioner did not file an income tax return for 1985 as H&R Block had informed him that the statute of limitations had run on that year's income tax return and that the petitioner need not file that return.

The petitioner graduated form Vineland HIgh School in 1978. He then attended Winston-Salem State College for two years. He transferred to Rutgers - New Brunswick in 1981, but he quit school because he ran out of money and needs 17 credits for a degree. From October 1982 through November 1983, the petitioner was employed as a housekeeper at the Tropicana Hotel and Casino. He was terminated from this position for leaving an assigned area without authorization. He remained unemployed until he was hired as a change person by the Golden Nugget Hotel and Casino in 1985. He held this position for one year and left in the summer of 1986 in order to accept a craps and blackjack dealer position at Trump's Plaza Hotel and Casino. The petitioner was laid off from this position in 1987, and ever since has been employed on a part-time basis as a craps and blackjack dealer at Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino.

The petitioner is 30 years old and supports two minor children. He has entered into support agreements concerning the children, and he is current in his payments. He is current in paying back a student loan from Rutgers University. This loan is nearly satisfied. The petitioner has no criminal record. He plays football in the Atlantic City Casino League, and has been a good employee at Harrah's Marina for over three years.

The petitioner submitted two character reference letters in his behalf. The first was written by Glenn Cunningham (P-8), and the second was written by Joseph Monte (P-9). Both men are pit bosses at Harrah's Marina. Both men wrote that they have supervised the petitioner on numerous occasions and that he has "always performed in a courteous and professional manner." (P-8 & P-9).

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the petitioner's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident and his current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess his credibility. Initially, his position in this matter must be recognized. As the petitioner and the applicant for a casino employee license, he has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the petitioner's demeanor, the plausibility of his testimony, the manner in which he participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appeared that the petitioner testified truthfully in every regard. He candidly admitted his misconduct and described in detail the underlying circumstances. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept petitioner's testimony in all respects.

I am persuaded that his misconduct was in part, due to immaturity. I am also inclined to believe that his financial problems were the result of his inexperience, laziness and inattentiveness in dealing with his financial affairs. The petitioner has matured as an individual. Previously, he did not pay close attention to his financial matters. He is now more responsible. He is not incurring any new debts, has filed his tax returns for the last four years, and is attempting to make arrangements to repay his NJHEAA loan. His growing maturity and improved sense of responsibility has been demonstrated in the last three years by his success in the casino industry and his acceptance of responsibility in supporting his two children.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. The petitioner obtained a student loan from the Bank of New Jersey in 1978. This loan was guaranteed by the New Jersey Higher Education Assistance Authority.

2. On February 28, 1983, the petitioner went into default on his loan. As the New Jersey Higher Education Assistance Authority had guaranteed the loans, it paid the Bank of New Jersey $2,600.12, a total that included principal and interest.

3. As of January 9, 1989, the petitioner owed the New Jersey Higher Education Assistance Authority a balance of $3,505.44.

4. The petitioner's 1983 State tax return was applied to this debt. After being questioned by the Division regarding this debt, the petitioner attempted to contact the Bank of New Jersey regarding the repayment of the student loan. The Bank of New Jersey has since been purchased by the Chemical Bank. Chemical Bank has no record of the loan, as a result, the petitioner did not know whom to contact regarding repayment.

6. The petitioner was advised at the hearing that the New Jersey Higher Education Assistance Authority is the proper agency to repay. He is going to contact New Jersey Higher Education Assistance Authority in an attempt to enter into a repayment agreement.

7. The petitioner failed to file any federal or State income tax returns for the years of 1985 through 1989.

8. The petitioner took his records to H&R Block who prepared the petitioner's federal and State income tax returns for 1986 through 1989. These returns were filed in March and April 1990.

9. The petitioner did not file an income tax return for 1985 as H&R Block had informed him that the statute of limitations had run on that year's income tax return and that the petitioner need not file that return.

10. The petitioner graduated form Vineland High School in 1978. He then attended Winston-Salem State College for two years. He transferred to Rutgers - New Brunswick in 1981, but he quit school because he ran out of money and needs 17 credits for a degree.

11. From October 1982 through November 1983, the petitioner was employed as a housekeeper at the Tropicana Hotel and Casino. He was terminated from this position for leaving an assigned area without authorization.

12. He remained unemployed until he was hired as a change person by the Golden Nugget Hotel and Casino in 1985. He held this position for one year and left in the summer of 1986 in order to accept a craps and blackjack dealer position at Trump's Plaza Hotel and Casino. The petitioner was laid off from this position in 1987, and ever since has been employed on a part-time basis as a craps and blackjack dealer at Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino.

13. The petitioner is 30 years old and supports two minor children. He has entered into support agreements concerning the children, and he is current in his payments.

14. He is current in paying back a student loan from Rutgers University. This loan is nearly satisfied.

15. The petitioner has no criminal record. He plays football in the Atlantic City Casino League, and has been a good employee at Harrah's Marina for over three years.

APPLICABLE LAW

N.J.S.A. 5:12-89, Licensing of casino key employees, provides in pertinent part:

> b. Each applicant must, prior to the issuance of any casino key employee license, produce information, documentation and assurances concerning the following qualification criteria:
> (1) Each applicant for a casino key employee license shall produce such information, documentation and assurances as may be required to establish by clear and convincing evidence the financial stability, integrity and responsibility of the applicant, including but not limited to bank references, business and personal income and disbursements schedules, tax returns and other reports filed with government, agencies, and business and personal accounting and check records and ledgers. In addition, each applicant shall, in writing, authorize the examination of all bank accounts and records as may be deemed necessary by the commission or the division.

(2) Each applicant for a casino key employee license shall produce such information, documentation and assurances as may be required to establish by clear and convincing evidence the applicant's good character, honesty and integrity. Such information shall include, without limitation, data pertaining to family, habits, character, reputation, criminal and arrest record, business activities, financial affairs, and business, professional and personal associates, covering at least the 10-year period immediately preceding the filing of the application. Each applicant shall notify the commission of any civil judgments obtained against such applicant pertaining to antitrust or security regulation laws of the federal government, of this State or of any other state, jurisdiction, province or country. In addition, each applicant shall, upon request of the commission or the division, produce letters of reference from law enforcement agencies having jurisdiction in the applicant's place of residence and principal place of business, which letters of reference shall indicate that such law enforcement agencies do not have any pertinent information concerning the applicant, or if such law enforcement agency does have information pertaining to the applicant, shall specify what that information is. If the applicant has been associated with gaming or casino operations in any capacity, position or employment in a jurisdiction which permits such activity, the applicant shall, upon request of the commission or division, produce letters of reference from the gaming or casino enforcement or control agency, which shall specify the experience of such agency with the applicant, his associates and his participation in the gaming operations of that jurisdiction; provided, however, that if no such letters are received from the appropriate law enforcement agencies within 60 days of the applicant's request therefor, the applicant may submit a statement under oath that he is or was during the period such activities were conducted in good standing with such gaming or casino enforcement or control agency.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-90, Licensing of casino employees, provides in pertinent part:

a. No person may commence employment as a casino employee unless he is the holder of a valid casino employee license.

b. Any applicant for a casino employee license must, prior to the issuance of any such license, produce sufficient information, documentation and assurances to meet the qualification criteria, including New Jersey residency, contained in subsection b. of section 89 of this act and any additional residency requirement imposed under subsection c. of this section; except that the standards for business ability and casino experience may be satisfied by a showing of casino job experience and knowledge of the provisions of this act and regulations pertaining to the particular position involved, or by successful completion of a course of study at a licensed school in an approved curriculum.

e. The commission shall deny a casino employee license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of this act.

DISCUSSION

The Division contends that the petitioner lacks the requisite financial stability, integrity and responsibility for casino employee licensure, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(1) by reference. The Division further contends that the petitioner lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 89b(1) for casino key employee licensure, and under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(1) by reference, for casino employee licensure, Mr. Miller was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, his financial stability, integrity and responsibility. In the matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 250 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that "this standard encompasses all financial aspects of the Applicant, the holding company and other qualifiers. In addition to basic financial solvency or soundness, the standard relates to honesty and forthrightness in business dealings. Further, it includes the care and prudence exercised by the entity or individual in managing, preserving and enhancing the assets entrusted to such entity or individual." Id. at 250.

In Velasquez v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, OAL DKT. CCC 4251-87 (July 7, 1988), aff'd. Casino Control Comm. (September 23, 1988), Judge Law held that the petitioners recent attempts to establish a payback schedule, although commendable, were "too recent to demonstrate his 'financial stability, integrity and responsibility.'" In In the Matter of the Application of Gilbert L. Smith as a Casino Employee, OAL DKT. CCC 2252-79 (November 8, 1979), mod., Casino Control Comm. (March 20, 1980), the Commission rejected the ALJ's finding of a lack of financial stability and stated:

> Although evidence of financial stability may also be probative of financial integrity, these concepts are not identical. Central to the question of financial stability is the Applicant's solvency or soundness. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, supra at 7. Of primary importance to the Commission is the Applicant's present financial stability. Proofs adduced at the hearing establish that the Applicant was, at the time of the hearing, indebted to four judgment creditors in the sum of approximately $1,300. The Commission may certainly take notice of the fact that residents of this State are and have been for some time enduring double digit inflation in general, high unemployment and soaring consumer prices. Atlantic City in particular, where the Applicant has resided for the past 19 years, has in the past several decades suffered from blight and economic decay. See N.J.S.A. 5:12-1(b). Against this backdrop, the indebtedness of the Applicant in the approximate sum of $1,300 cannot be viewed as uncommon. Furthermore, the Commission is satisfied that the record on this issue permits the inference that the judgments against the Applicant which were outstanding as of October, 1979 have been, or will be, satisfied within a reasonable period of time. We believe we may properly anticipate that employment in the casino industry will enable the Applicant to make substantial progress in this regard in the foreseeable future. In light of all of the foregoing, the Commission finds that the Applicant presently possesses the financial stability required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)(1). [Final Commission Decision at 13-14]

In Scott Onque v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, OAL DKT. CCC 8216-88 (April 10, 1989), rejected by the Casino Control Commission (June 1, 1989), Commission Decision (August 14, 1989), the Commission stated:

> What our decisions on financial stability reveal is that prime emphasis will be placed upon current and prospective financial stability. For example, in In the Matter of the Application of John J. Taylor for Licensure as a Casino Key Employee, OAL Docket No. CCC 4044-79 (May 8, 1980), the Commission upheld the ALJ's determination that neither the applicant's previous financial problems nor the fact that he had filed for bankruptcy on two separate occasions prevented him from establishing his present financial stability in light of the fact that he was presently meeting his financial obligations.
> In Application of Leonard Grabel for a Casino Employee License, OAL Docket No. CCC 4120-82 (August 2, 1984), the applicant defaulted on at least ten accounts which had been written off by the creditors. He was unable to earn sufficient money to pay his bills, especially at the time of his divorce and while he was courting his second wife, because, by his own admission, he lived beyond his means. That admission notwithstanding, the Commission rejected the initial decision and granted the license sought by Mr. Grabel based largely on the fact that, as of the time of the hearing, his financial situation had stabilized. Past failings were outweighed by the status at the time of consideration of the license application.

> Here, the ALJ made a specific finding that petitioner has established his present financial stability. Initial decision at page 22. The record before us supports that conclusion. Notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Onque has had a number of credit accounts charged off as uncollectible and that he fell behind on student loans, these failures are being, or have already been, rectified. Most of the credit accounts have now been satisfied and those remaining are being paid off in regular installments, as are the student loans. Petitioner's past financial indiscretions may be attributed in large part to immaturity and failure to take his obligations seriously while a student and in the early years of employment. He is currently well regarded by his supervisors at TropWorld which would now like to promote him to a Cage Manager position, requiring a key employee license.
> Given all of the above circumstances, it is our conclusion that Mr. Onque has clearly and convincingly demonstrated his present and prospective financial stability. [Onque Commission Decision at 6, 7, 8]

The Division centers its case around the petitioner's failure to timely file his income tax returns. The petitioner has now filed his past returns. In every case, he was due a refund from both the federal and State governments. He does not have a history of not paying his debts, and he is current in his child support payments. The only debt he has not repaid is his NJHEAA loan. The petitioner attempted to secure information regarding the status of his loan from the bank where he obtained the loan. However, the bank no longer has records of the loan (probably because it was satisfied by NJHEAA), and the bank could not assist the petitioner. The petitioner, now having been made aware that NJHEAA holds the loan, is attempting to contact NJHEAA in order to enter into a repayment schedule.

The petitioner has been employed in the casino industry on a part-time basis over the past three years. He has been a good employee at Harrah's. The petitioner's filing of his outstanding tax returns and his attempts to enter into a repayment schedule to repay his NJHEAA loan are indicative of the petitioner's effort to regain financial stability, an effort which, in turn, reflects positively upon the petitioner's financial integrity and responsibility.

Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established his present financial stability, and that he has established, by clear and convincing evidence, that he meets the statutory criteria of financial stability, integrity and responsibility for a casino employee license under section 90b.

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Mr. Miller was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity. Application of Resorts International, 10 N.J.A.R. at 248. In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions that must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-98 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Id. at 296.

It is readily apparent that the petitioner's misconduct was aberrant and that he is otherwise a person of good character, honesty and integrity. The misconduct did not involve his licensed employment, and the underlying circumstances somewhat mitigated the seriousness of the misconduct. He did not owe the federal of State governments any taxes. In fact, he was due a refund in every case. In addition, the petitioner has fully accepted responsibility for his misconduct. He has regained control over his behavior, is attempting to repaying his student loan, has performed admirably within the casino industry during the past several years, is current in making his child support payments and has become a respected member of his community. Accordingly, the petitoner presents no risk to the public or to the integrity of the gaming industry in this State. The petitioner has earned the privilege of licensure. An examination of the whole person clearly and convincingly establishes that Mr. Miller is a person of good character, honesty and integrity, and that he is entirely suitable for licensure in this State. See, Boardwalk Regency Corp.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity under sections 89b(2) and 90b.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the application of Michael A. Miller for the renewal of a casino employee license be GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 89-EA-300

RENEWAL APPLICATION OF
ROBERT S. MONTGOMERY
FOR A CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSE.

Scott E. Becker, Esq., for petitioner (Becker & Lands)

James Armstrong, Deputy Attorney General for respondent (Peter N. Perretti, Jr., Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: October 28, 1989 Decided: December 15, 1989

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

The Division of Gaming Enforcement filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) recommending that it not renew the casino employee license of Robert S. Montgomery. The basis of the recommendation was an allegation that Montgomery fraudulently collected unemployment benefits while he was employed at a casino hotel. Montgomery requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A plenary hearing was conducted on September 28 and 29, 1989. The record was held open for an additional period of 30 days for briefs. The time within which to file an initial decision was extended by Order of the Commission until December 21, 1989.

The issues raised in this case are whether or not Montgomery committed acts equivalent to a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, g and 90e, and if so, does he possess the good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b, and is he rehabilitated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

In September 1982, petitioner Robert S. Montgomery lost his job. He applied for unemployment benefits on September 8, 1982, and began to collect. In July of 1983, Montgomery obtained employment at the Playboy Hotel and Casino. Beginning July 29, 1983, and continuing through September 4, 1983, he collected partial unemployment compensation benefits because he claimed that he was not fully employed during that period at the Playboy.

A regulation requires that an employer provide to any employee working on a reduced schedule, a pay stub identifying the employee and the employer and which reports the employee's wages and last day worked. The stub must also bear the legend: "less than full time remuneration because of lack of work." N.J.A.C. 12:17-4.2.

The primary purpose of the stub is so that an employee who is otherwise eligible for unemployment compensation benefits may use the stub in order to collect. A formula, not relevant here, is applied to the wage paid in order to determine the amount, if any, of the benefit grant. Montgomery testified that when he collected his partial unemployment benefits in July, August and September of 1983, he furnished the Division of Unemployment with his pay stub. He said they photocopied the stub and kept the copy.

On or about January 11, 1985, Ronald E. Burgin, an investigator for the Division of Unemployment, personally copied Montgomery's payroll records at the Playboy for the dates including July 29, 1983, through September 4, 1983.

The payroll stubs which Montgomery submitted to the Division of Unemployment must have been fraudulent, Burgin exclaimed, because there is a discrepancy between the computer record made of Montgomery's pay stubs by the Division of Unemployment and the computer record of Montgomery's pay stubs made by the Playboy. Burgin produced neither the copies of the payroll stubs which Montgomery provided to the Division of Unemployment nor a copy of the Playboy records from which Burgin made his notes. He never examined the actual stubs and could only speculate about the ways in which they might have been fraudulent.

On April 15, 1984, April 22, 1984, April 29, 1984 and May 6, 1984, Burgin says that Montgomery was both employed and collecting unemployment compensation benefits. He decided this from his review of a computer printout showing benefits were paid to Montgomery and his own notes which he made from a computer payroll printout at the Playboy. He deduces that Montgomery committed fraud because the "system" does not permit the simultaneous collection of unemployment benefits and wages. Montgomery claims he only collected what he thought was due him.

Burgin also described the system devised for the collection of unemployment benefits. It is obvious from his description that the system was designed to make the prosecution of unemployment fraud simple and direct. The system is almost fool proof. I say "almost" because the system has been completely emasculated by computerization.

Here is the way the system is supposed to work: A working employee eligible for partial unemployment benefits must produce the pay stub as described above. An out of work eligible person must sign a "pay order," in order to collect an unemployment benefit check. The pay order contains blocks to check, either yes or no, after each of several questions such as: Are you now employed? Did you receive any holiday or vacation pay? Are you available for work? Are you seeking work? The correct responses will produce an unemployment benefits check on the spot. The benefits check itself bears a legend over the endorsement block which clearly indicates that endorsement of the check is a certification that the endorser was not employed during the period of time represented by the unemployment benefits check. On the face of the check is a list of the weeks covered by the check.

These items, i.e., the payroll stub, the pay order, and the certification on the back of the unemployment benefits check, were specifically designed to constitute proof where a claim of fraudulent receipt of benefits is made. These items, coupled with proof of wages paid from other employment at the time the benefits are claimed, provide the clearest evidence imaginable for proof at a hearing that a recipient of unemployment benefits committed fraud when he received benefits.

The items will constitute proof of fraud on behalf of the Division of Unemployment when fraud has actually been committed. They will also constitute proof of a recipient's innocence when no fraud has been committed.

But where were these records at this hearing? According to Burgin, once the unemployment benefits transaction has been recorded in a computer, the actual records are consigned to the "archives." The computer printout of the memorandum of the transaction thereafter stands in their place. Obviously, someone has ignored the admonition found in John VII,24; "Judge not according to the appearance."

The Division of Gaming Enforcement urges that, despite the hearsay nature of the exhibits, they are nevertheless admissible in a Casino Control Commission administrative hearing because N.J.S.A. 5:12-107(a)(6), and N.J.A.C. 19:42-2.1(d), permit the introduction of any relevant evidence despite any court rule to the contrary. But the evidence must be such that a reasonable person would rely upon it in the course of important business before it can form the basis for a finding of fact. This is one way of determining whether evidence is worthy of belief.

Although resort to court rules is not required by the Casino Control Act in determining when evidence is admissible, it would be foolish to ignore court rules in determining when evidence is worthy of belief. The reasoning behind court approved rules of evidence often depends upon the logic of belief.

Of course computer records may be admissible in courts of law under certain defined circumstances. See Comments to R. 1 (13) "Writing". But not all computer records are admissible in all courts of law.

The computer printouts offered in evidence in this case do not comply with the business entry exception to the hearsay rule. The rule requires that business records be "made in the regular course of business, at or about the time of the act, conditions or event recorded, and ( ) the sources of information from which (the record) was made and the method and circumstances of its preparation were such as to justify admission." R. 63 (13). There was no testimony in this case describing the method or circumstances in which the computer printouts were prepared, by whom they were prepared or when they were prepared. It is claimed they were made in the ordinary course of business.

The computer printouts and Burgin's notes do not comply with the best evidence rule. That rule requires the production of the original writing unless any one of eight exceptions obtains. R. 70. None do in the circumstances of this case. Because of the accuracy of modern photocopying equipment, the best evidence rule is waning in importance. It originated when clerks made handwritten copies of documents and brought only the copies to court. The courts were concerned about the accuracy of the clerk's copy. They held that the original, if available, was the best evidence, and a copy was not admissible into evidence. Basic Concepts in the Law of Evidence, An In-Depth Outline of the Younger NITA Lectures, Second Edition; The National Institute for Trial Advocacy; Robert E. Oliphant; 1977, p. 20. But here, Burgin did what clerks used to do; he copied payroll numbers from the Playboy computer printouts and brought his copies, not the printouts, to court.

In this case, the Division of Gaming Enforcement asserts, without having seen it, that a pay stub given to the Division of Unemployment by the petitioner was altered, forged or otherwise fraudulent. The petitioner asserts that it was not. The Division of Unemployment has a photocopy of the stub in its "archives." The petitioner saw no reason to keep his original once the government made a copy. The Division of Unemployment brought to court a computer printout made by an unknown person at an unknown time which purports to be a record of the amount of the pay recorded on the stub. The petitioner asserts the printout is incorrect.

No reasonable person would declare that Montgomery committed fraud based on the evidence in this case, knowing that the Division of Unemployment had a photocopy of the alleged fraudulent pay stub in its possession, together with a pay order and a certificate in Montgomery's own handwriting. Any reasonable person, in the conduct of important business, such as licensing, would want to see that stub. Such a person would also want to see the pay orders and endorsements on the benefits check before arriving at such a conclusion.

Courts of law view allegations of fraud with a wary eye. This is based on long practice with those who claim fraud. It is an easy cry to raise. Therefore, civil courts have required that fraud be proved by clear and convincing evidence. See cases collected at Note 6, R. 1(4) "clear and convincing."

In this case, I am not satisfied by a preponderance of the evidence that Montgomery committed fraud. I therefore CONCLUDE that the Division of Gaming Enforcement has failed to prove that Montgomery committed fraud against the Division of Unemployment in 1983 and 1984.

Because I conclude that no crime was committed, the issue of rehabilitation is moot. Also mooted is the question of whether or not Montgomery possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for casino licensure. Since Montgomery has previously satisfied the Commission that he has such good character, honesty and integrity, the failure of the Division of Gaming Enforcement to prove that he committed an offense cannot revive the issue. However, Montgomery's testimony, that he signed an agreement to repay the Division of Unemployment just in case they were "able to prove that (he) owed the money," may have raised an additional issue; does he possess the financial stability, integrity and responsibility for licensure as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(1) and 90b. I hasten to point out that an agreement to pay an obligation is not proof that it was acquired by fraud. But Montgomery seemed to indicate at the hearing that he has not satisfied this obligation because, although he signed the agreement to repay the Division of Unemployment, he had an undisclosed mental reservation not to pay the obligation at the time he signed it. This is like crossing your fingers when telling a lie; it doesn't save you from the consequences. That issue, of course, is not mooted by the conclusions made here, nor is the Division prejudiced by it, and the Division is free to litigate the issue in the future if its investigation warrants a new complaint.

I ORDER that the letter filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement be DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Frederick J. McDonough, Deputy Attorney General, for the respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: August 7, 1990 Decided: September 20, 1990

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter concerns the January 9, 1990 letter filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) regarding the issuance of a casino service industry license to the petitioners, Network Construction Company, Inc. (NCC) and Ricardo Thompson, as the qualifier. The petitioners requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on April 11, 1990, to be heard as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A telephone prehearing conference was held on May 30, 1990, at which time the parties agreed that the issues in this matter are:

A. Whether the failure of Ricardo Thompson to make certain withholding payments to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) constitutes a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, despite the fact that such actions were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

B. Whether the petitioners possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure.

C. If there is a statutory disqualifier, whether the Commission should exercise its discretionary power and grant a license pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-92d.

The hearing took place on August 7, 1990, at the Pleasantville Police Building in Pleasantville, New Jersey, and the record in the matter closed on that date.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

I FIND the facts in this matter are not in dispute.

In 1979, Mr. Thompson with several other people established the United Minority Construction Company (UMCC) to do general construction work in the Atlantic City area. This was Mr. Thompson's first business enterprise. As the business increased, Mr. Thompson bought out the interests of the other stockholders of UMCC. This company had unionized minority employees and was able to get a substantial amount of business from the casino industry. The company grew rapidly and in one year its business expanded from $300,000 to $5,000,000. The number of people employed by the company varied, and at one time it had 126 employees.

Mr. Thompson now recognizes that UMCC undertook too many projects at one time, grew too rapidly and had a substantial cash flow problem. In addition to its internal problems, UMCC lost $100,000 on one project undertaken for the Sands Hotel, Casino and Country Club (Sands). As to this project, UMCC acted as a sub-contractor and there was a cost dispute between the Sands and the general contractor. Although UMCC completed its job for the Sands and the Sands indicated its satisfaction with UMCC's work, the Sands refused to pay UMCC the remaining $100,000 for the job since it alleged that it had paid this amount to the general contractor. The general contractor denied receiving this amount from the Sands for work performed by UMCC. There was litigation between the Sands and the general contractor, and after the litigation, UMCC did not get any additional monies. Because of its financial difficulties, UMCC declared bankruptcy in 1984 and the company was dissolved. Mr. Thompson lost his entire investment. Because of his financial difficulties, Mr. Thompson had domestic problems and his first marriage ended in a divorce.

According to Mr. Thompson, because of UMCC's cash flow problem and the loss of money from the Sands project, UMCC found it difficult to get enough money to meet its payroll obligations and it did not have enough money to pay the withholding payments to the IRS. Mr. Thompson stated that the company filed the required IRS reports and notified the IRS regarding its financial problems. In 1987, the IRS filed two tax liens against Mr. Thompson; one lien is for $6,409.22 (R-1), and the other lien is for $315,598.60 (R-2).

Thereafter, Mr. Thompson met with representatives of the IRS and presented information regarding his financial situation (R-4). In June 1987, IRS agreed to allow Mr. Thompson to pay the debt in installment payments (R-3, R-5, R-6), waived payments for the first year and required Mr. Thompson to make a payment of $50.00 a month. After Mr. Thompson's financial position improved in 1988, the amount of the payments was raised to $550.00 a month (R-3). Mr. Thompson has paid in full the first lien. Mr. Thompson is still making installment payments as to the second lien, and he is current as to these payments.

In 1985, Mr. Thompson started a new company called NCC to do construction work in the Atlantic City area, including work for the casino industry. Mr. Thompson is the president of NCC and owns 51 percent of its stock. According to Mr Thompson, there is a substantial difference in the way he operates NCC as compared with UMCC. First of all, Mr. Thompson recognized that he had problems handling the financial matters for UMCC. The financial matters for NCC are handled by Robert Polisano. Mr. Polisano is the vice president of NCC and he owns 48 percent of its stock. Mr. Polisano has twenty years of experience in the construction industry and he owns his own construction company which is licensed by the Commission. Mr Polisano holds a degree in accounting, and for a while he was employed by the IRS Both Mr. Thompson and Mr. Polisano stated that it is Mr. Polisano's responsibility to oversee all the financial activities of NCC and he reviews all new projects from a financial standpoint. Mr. Thompson stated that he is now selective and he does not accept all the contracts offered to NCC. According to Mr. Thompson, the Sands has requested him to undertake new projects and he has refused because of his prior experience with the Sands. In addition, Mr. Thompson stated that he was offered a contract by Trumps Taj Mahal Hotel and Casino and refused it because he had a "gut feeling" that this casino might have financial difficulties in the future. According to Mr. Thompson, he is anxious to obtain the casino service industry license since presently 60 percent of the work done by NCC is for the casino industry.

Mr. Thompson is now 44 years old. He is a high school graduate and has taken additional courses at the Atlantic City Vocational School. Mr. Thompson is a trained carpenter. Mr. Thompson does not have a criminal record. According to Mr. Thompson, he was born and raised in the Atlantic City area and has lived in this area for a substantial period of time. Mr. Thompson does volunteer work for the Police Athletic League and the local boys' club, and he makes donations to various civic projects. Mr. Thompson has remarried. He is now a deacon for the Calvary Baptist Church in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and he is active in church affairs.

Mr. Polisano stated that he has known Mr. Thompson since 1983 and was aware of his financial problems when he was president of UMCC. According to Mr. Polisano, what happened to UMCC could happen to any small corporation which is dependent on the good faith of the people it works for. Mr. Polisano stated that Mr. Thompson's activities with UMCC should not be held against him, and that Mr. Thompson is a person of good character, honesty and integrity.

On behalf of Mr. Thompson, several persons submitted letters attesting to his good character, honesty and integrity. Stanley M. Berk of Soltz Paint Company indicated that he has personally known Mr. Thompson for many years, that he considers him to be a good friend, and that the company has had business dealings with Mr. Thompson for some years and considers him to be a valuable customer (P-1). Norman Hill, Director of the Atlantic County Department of Administrative Services, stated he has known Mr. Thompson for many years and that Mr. Thompson is a "hard working, dedicated, honest individual" who wants the "opportunity to prove he is qualified and capable to efficiently complete any task" (P-2). Robert S. Tyner, Traffic Analyst for the Atlantic County Department of Regional Planning and Development, stated that he has known Mr. Thompson for approximately twenty years and that he considers him to be a good person who is a supporter of many civic projects in the Atlantic City area (P-3). Lastly, Edyth V. Sluby, a personal friend of Mr. Thompson, stated that he is an honest, upright and good person (P-4).

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

In closing, Deputy Attorney General McDonough stated that the Division has taken no position regarding the petitioners' application for a casino service industry license. Mr. McDonough stated that Mr. Thompson's failure on behalf of UMCC, to make the required payments to the IRS could be considered a criminal offense analogous to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-9, theft by failure to make required disposition of property received, and/or N.J.S.A. 2C:21-15, misapplication of entrusted property and property of government or financial institution. If Mr. Thompson's conduct is determined to be a criminal offense, based on the amount of money involved, it would constitute a crime of the third degree, which is an automatic disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). Deputy Attorney General McDonough recognized that even if the conduct was deemed to be a criminal offense, the Commission has the discretion to permit licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-92d. Lastly, Mr. McDonough noted that in order to qualify for licensure the petitioners must show by clear and convincing evidence good character, honesty and integrity. Mr. McDonough stated that Mr. Thompson's failure to make the IRS payments was a factor to be considered in determining his good character, honesty and integrity.

In his closing remarks, Mr. Thompson stated that he did not intend to defraud the IRS and emphasized that even though he could not make the payments he did file the required reports with the IRS, which established his debt. Mr. Thompson indicated that he is now paying off this debt and that he has taken precautions with his new corporation to avoid the apparent mistakes of the past.

Based on the facts, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Thompson's action in failing to make the withholding payments was not a criminal offense, analogous to either a N.J.S.A. 2C:20-9 or 2C:21-15 violation. These two criminal statutes provide:

> 2C:20-9. Theft by failure to make required disposition of property received
>
> A person who purposely obtains or retains property upon agreement or subject to a known legal obligation to make specified payment or other disposition, whether from such property or its proceeds or from his own property to be reserved in equivalent amount, is guilty of theft if he deals with the property obtained as his own and fails to make the required payment or disposition. The foregoing applies notwithstanding that it may be impossible to identify particular property as belonging to the victim at the time of the actor's failure to make the required payment or disposition. [emphasis added]

917

2C:21-15. Misapplication of entrusted property and property of government or financial institution

A person commits a crime if he applies or disposes of property that has been entrusted to him as a fiduciary, or property belonging to or required to be withheld for the benefit of the government or of a financial institution in a manner which he knows is unlawful and involves substantial risk of loss or detriment to the owner of the property or to a person for whose benefit the property was entrusted whether or not the actor has derived a pecuniary benefit. "Fiduciary" includes trustee, guardian, executor, administrator, receiver and any person carrying on fiduciary functions on behalf of a corporation or other organization which is a fiduciary. [emphasis added.]

Both of these statutes deal with the misapplication of funds. In this matter, Mr. Thompson did not misapply funds; rather, he did not have adequate funds from UMCC's business to make the withholding payments to the IRS. Additionally, there was no criminal intent. Mr. Thompson filed the required reports and there was no evidence presented to show that he tried to steal, deceive, defraud, misinform or deny his financial responsibility to the IRS.

The second issue is whether Mr. Thompson's failure to make the IRS payments has had a negative effect on his good character, honesty and integrity. Obviously, the nonpayment of debts owed to the IRS cannot be condoned; however, Mr. Thompson freely admitted he owed the money and is now paying the debt. Mr. Thompson candidly admitted the problems he had while he was president of UMCC and the steps he has taken to avoid such problems with NCC. Except for this debt, the Division's investigation of Mr. Thompson has not disclosed any other derogatory information about him.

Based on Mr. Thompson's testimony as well as the testimony of Mr. Polisano and the contents of the letters presented at the hearing, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Thompson has shown that he is a person of good character, honesty and integrity.

It has been established that the character and responsibility of a company can be judged by the character and responsibility of its owners, officers, directors and principal employees, Trap Rock Industries, Inc. v. Kohl, 59 N.J. 471 (1971), cert. den., 405 U.S. 1065 (1972). In view of my conclusion as to Mr. Thompson's good character, honesty and integrity, and since no negative information has been presented regarding Mr. Polisano or anyone else associated with NCC, I CONCLUDE that NCC has shown its good character, honesty and integrity.

Therefore, I ORDER that the application of the petitioners for a casino service industry license be approved.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: December 19, 1989 Decided: September 6, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter concerns the complaint of the Division of Gaming Enforcement filed with the Casino Control Commission on January 18, 1989, seeking revocation of the respondent's casino hotel employee registration, based upon the respondent's alleged conviction for possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute on July 17, 1987, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5.

These are the issues:

1. Has the respondent been convicted of possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5-5, which would be an automatic disqualifier from licensure, pursuant to sections 86c(1) and 91b of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.).

2. Has the respondent, if he has been convicted of an otherwise disqualifying offense, affirmatively established his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, pursuant to section 91d of the Act.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 9, 1989, the Casino Control Commission received the respondent's request for a hearing concerning the Division's complaint. On February 22, 1989, the Commission transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. The respondent failed to participate in a prehearing conference scheduled for May 1, 1989. Administrative Law Judge Richard J. Murphy issued an initial decision on May 16, 1989, which concluded that the respondent did not seek to defend the matter.

The respondent appeared at the Commission's public meeting of June 7, 1989, to request another opportunity for a hearing. The Commission granted the request and on June 12, 1989, ordered that the complaint be remanded to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing on all issues. The matter was retransmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on June 15, 1989. A prehearing conference was held on August 21, 1989, and the hearing was then held as scheduled in Atlantic City, New Jersey, on December 19, 1989. The record closed on that date. Issuance of this initial decision was delayed because of my heavy caseload, exacerbated by illness requiring my absence from the Office for an extended period.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The material facts in this matter are essentially undisputed. The respondent is a 22-year-old resident of Atlantic City, New Jersey. He has lived in Atlantic City nearly his entire life. The respondent holds casino hotel employee registration number 80473-40.

The respondent testified that he left school in the ninth grade. He had no particular reason to quit; he simply wanted to hang out and party with his friends. At the time of the hearing, the respondent had been working at Bally's Casino as a bus person for about ten months. He stated that he likes this job and he would like to be able to keep it. His fellow employees are friendly and seem to be concerned about each other. According to the respondent, he lives with his parents and pays them room and board.

On or about March 24, 1987, the respondent was arrested in Atlantic City and charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance and possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(1) and 24:21-19a(1). The charge of possession with intent to distribute is comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, which is a disqualifier under section 86c(1) of the Casino Control Act. In April 1987, the respondent was indicted on the foregoing charges, as well as on a charge of conspiracy, contrary to N.J.S.A. 24:21-24.

On June 19, 1987, the respondent retracted a plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to possession of CDS with intent to distribute (Exhibit P-2). On July 17, 1987, he was sentenced to probation for two years and ordered to pay $30 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board. The remaining counts of the indictment were dismissed. According to Honorable Manuel H. Greenberg, J.S.C., the sentenced imposed "is in accordance with the plea agreement which is deemed to be in the interest of justice under all the circumstances."

Testifying about the 1987 conviction, the respondent stated that his friend Sonia had been selling some drugs and he was with her. He was just "hanging out with her," but he did know that she was selling drugs. According to the respondent, it was heroin that was being sold. He does not know why the indictment said that the drug was cocaine.

The respondent candidly acknowledged that he was a heroin user at the time of his arrest in 1987 and that he was addicted. He acknowledged that he was arrested in August 1989 by the Drug Enforcement Administration and the Atlantic City Police Department and was charged with simple possession of heroin. On December 15, 1989, he pled guilty to that charge and was sentenced to serve 30 days in county jail. The respondent stated that he was given permission to serve his jail sentence on his days off from work. The arrest occurred when the police found a $10 bag of heroin under a seat of the car in which the respondent was riding, and all of the passengers were charged. The respondent was advised by his public defender to plead guilty to the possession charge to avoid the risk of a lengthy jail sentence.

The respondent testified credibly at the hearing that he had not used heroin for many months. He had voluntarily decreased his illegal drug usage and then had been able to stop by entering a methadone program. He receives this medication every day and he sees a counselor twice a month. He also provides urine samples twice a month, and these have been clean. He was on this methadone program at the time of his second arrest in August 1989.

The respondent works the 7:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. shift at Bally's. He has received only minor written warnings from his supervisors. According to the respondent, he does not participate in any community activities. He also has not attended any training programs since his 1987 conviction. He goes to work and he goes out with his girlfriend. Significantly, the respondent stated that he no longer hangs out with the crowd that seemed to involve him in drug related activities. He recognizes that he made a mistake and he feels that he has paid the consequences.

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to section 1b(8) of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), participation in casino operations as a licensee or registrant under the Act is deemed to be a revocable privilege conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee or registrant. Section 129(1) of the Act authorizes the revocation of registration of any person for the conviction or commission of any offense or violation under the Act which would disqualify such person from holding his credential.

Pursuant to sections 91b and 86c(1) of the Act, the Commission may revoke the credential of any registrant who has been convicted of certain offenses, including possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute, comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5. It is undisputed that the respondent pled guilty to one count of possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute on June 19, 1987. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the respondent is subject to revocation of his casino hotel employee registration, pursuant to section 86c(1) of the Casino Control Act.

Section 91d of the Act provides that a registration shall not be revoked on the basis of otherwise disqualifying conduct, provided that the registrant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. In determined whether rehabilitation has been affirmatively demonstrated, the following eight factors should be considered: the nature and duties of the position involved; the nature and seriousness of the conduct; the circumstances under which it occurred; the date of the conduct and the actor's age when it was committed; whether the offense was isolated or repeated; social conditions contributing to the conduct; and any evidence of rehabilitation following the conduct.

The respondent is now 22 years old. His two drug related offenses occurred in 1987 and, most recently, in August 1989. Following completion of the respondent's sentence of 30 days in the county jail, served on weekends, he was to be placed on probation.

The respondent's offenses occurred in large measure as a result of his immaturity and poor choice of friends. His testimony at the hearing did not produce any impression that he felt he had been involved in any serious misconduct.

The respondent has been working in the casino industry as a bus person with only minor difficulty. He is actively involved in a methadone maintenance program and is subject to providing urine samples twice a month. He also receives counselling.

The respondent acknowledges that his involvement with illegal drugs has been a mistake. However, too little time has passed since his unlawful conduct (his last arrest was August 1989) to be assured that he will continue to refrain from drug usage. In light of all of the circumstances expressed above, I CONCLUDE that the respondent has not established his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, within the meaning of section 91d of the Casino Control Act. Although not specifically identified as an issue in this proceeding, I further CONCLUDE that the facts in this matter do not warrant a finding that the interests of justice require waiver of any disqualification criterion, pursuant to section 91e of the Act. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the respondent's casino hotel employee registration should be revoked.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the casino hotel employee registration of Raul Nieves be REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: September 24, 1990 Decided: October 10, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the revocation of Margaret L. Olsson's casino employee license no. 74211-21, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90 and N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(a). The Division sought revocation of the respondent's license by reason of its contention that the respondent had committed a criminal offense which rendered continued licensure to be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act (Act), pursuant to section 86c, by means of section 86g, and therefore, she lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The respondent had obtained a casino employee license from the Commission so she could be employed as a slot cashier at the Trump Castle Hotel and Casino. By complaint to the Commission, filed January 11, 1990, the Division objected to the respondent's continued licensure, asserting that the respondent had committed the offense of theft by unlawful taking, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(2), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by section 86g. The Division also objected pursuant to section 89b(2). Based upon the complaint, the Commission notified the respondent on January 17, 1990, that she had the right to a hearing, and that failure to respond within 15 days could result in her license being revoked. By application dated January 26, 1990, which was received by the Commission on January 29, 1990, the respondent requested a hearing. On February 23, 1990, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on March 5, 1990, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before me on May 24, 1990. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether respondent's continued licensure is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c because she is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

B. Whether respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) as incorporated within section 90b.

A hearing was held on September 24, 1990, in the Municipal Courtroom, Absecon City Hall, Absecon, New Jersey, after which the record was closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

On November 21, 1989, the respondent, Margaret L. Olsson, was employed as a slot cashier at the Trump Castle Hotel and Casino. She was assigned to change booth 16 right. At 02:02, video tape surveillance of the respondent in her work station began. At 02:03, the respondent removed four bills (paper money) from various slots in her cash drawer and placed the bills in the far left slot of her cash drawer. The respondent removed one twenty dollar bill, one ten dollar bill and two five dollar bills. At 02:05, the respondent removed the four bills from her cash drawer, folded them in half, and placed them under a tissue box on her front counter. At 02:06, the respondent removed the four bills from under the tissue box, individually folded each bill into fourths, and placed the bills into her tip box located in the back of the change booth. [P-1 & P-2]

At 03:12, the respondent took a $1 token from the side counter and placed it on the front counter. At 03:14, the respondent obtained a one dollar bill and appeared to change it for the token. The respondent then placed the one dollar bill into her tip box. [P-1 & P-2]

Trump Castle security then contacted State Police Detective Garabics who responded and reviewed the video tape. At 03:29, Detective Garabics, slot coin cashier supervisor Schneller and security shift manager Williams entered change booth 16 right, confronted the respondent, and removed the money from her tip box. At 03:34, the audit was conducted of the respondent's cash drawer. At 03:52, an audit was completed revealing a $40 shortage in the respondent's cash drawer. [P-2]

The respondent was arrested by Detective Garabics and was charged with theft by unlawful taking in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 (P-3 & P-4). The respondent told Detective Garabics that she had taken the money to pay for Christmas gifts (P-3). Detective Garabics then returned the $41 to change booth 16 right. On January 30, 1990, the respondent was found not guilty of the theft in Atlantic City Municipal Court; however, the video tape was not introduced into evidence and the municipal court judge apparently believed that by placing money into a cage cashier's tip box that the tips would be divided by other cage cashiers when in fact it was an individual tip box (R-1).

FINDINGS OF FACT

As the above facts are not disputed, I FIND all of the above as FACT.

APPLICABLE LAW

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86, Casino License - disqualification criteria, provides in pertinent part:

> The commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of any of the following criteria:
>

The commission by the applicant or any person who is required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of this section, even if such conduct has not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-89, Licensing of casino key employees, provides in pertinent part:

> b. Each applicant must, prior to the issuance of any casino key employee license, produce information, documentation and assurances concerning the following qualification criteria:
>

Each applicant shall notify the commission of any civil judgments obtained against such applicant pertaining to antitrust or security regulation laws of the federal government, of this State or of any other state, jurisdiction, province or country. In addition, each applicant shall, upon request of the commission or the division, produce letters of reference from law enforcement agencies having jurisdiction in the applicant's place of residence and principal place of business, which letters of reference shall indicate that such law enforcement agencies do not have any pertinent information concerning the applicant, or if such law enforcement agency does have information pertaining to the applicant, shall specify what that information is. If the applicant has been associated with gaming or casino operations in any capacity, position or employment in a jurisdiction which permits such activity, the applicant shall, upon request of the commission or division, produce letters of reference from the gaming or casino enforcement or control agency, which shall specify the experience of such agency with the applicant, his associates and his participation in the gaming operations of that jurisdiction; provided, however, that if no such letters are received from the appropriate law enforcement agencies within 60 days of the applicant's request therefor, the applicant may submit a statement under oath that he is or was during the period such activities were conducted in good standing with such gaming or casino enforcement or control agency.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-90, Licensing of casino employees, provides in pertinent part:

> a. No person may commence employment as a casino employee unless he is the holder of a valid casino employee license.
>
> b. Any applicant for a casino employee license must, prior to the issuance of any such license, produce sufficient information, documentation and assurances to meet the qualification criteria, including New Jersey residency, contained in subsection b. of section 89 of this act and any additional residency requirement imposed under subsection c. of this section; except that the standards for business ability and casino experience may be satisfied by a showing of casino job experience and knowledge of the provisions of this act and regulations pertaining to the particular position involved, or by successful completion of a course of study at a licensed school in an approved curriculum.

e. The commission shall deny a casino employee license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of this act.

. . . .

h. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection e. of this section, no applicant shall be denied a casino employee license on the basis of a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria or the commission of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of section 86 of P.L. 1977, c. 110 (C. 5:12-86), as specified in subsection g. of that section; provided that the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation. In determining whether the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

DISCUSSION OF LAW AND CONCLUSIONS

N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) establishes that licensure under the Casino Control Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(1) provides for the revocation of the license or registration held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this act which would disqualify such person from holding his license." The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking, which constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, and that, accordingly, she is disqualified from continued licensure.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g

Section 86g provides that a licensee or registrant will be disqualified fROm licensure and registration because of the commission of any action which would constitute an offense under section 86c, even if there has not been a prosecution for such conduct. Section 86c(2) of the Act is more commonly referred to as the "inimical clause." In In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc., for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244 (1979), the Commission set forth the criteria to be applied in individual cases when a determination is made as to whether an offense is inimical to the policies of the Act. The Commission stated :

> The nature of the offense, the events surrounding it, including any mitigating or aggravating factors, the remoteness of the offense and the offender's conduct since the offense to the present are all matters to be considered. Without limiting the notion of what is "inimical" to the Act or to gaming, it would appear to encompass those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming operations. [at 254]

The Legislature, when it authorized the establishment of casino gaming in Atlantic City, and provided for the licensure, regulation and taxation thereof, enumerated specific policy considerations which appear to be directly related to the intent and purpose of the inimical clause. More specifically, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6) and (7) state categorically that the successful regulation and control by the State of casino activities depends upon the confidence of the public "in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations," and by the exclusion from participation in casino gaming of "persons with known criminal records, habits or associations" who could threaten the integrity of the gaming and business operations.

The significance of strict regulation of all phases of the casino industry was emphasized by the Supreme Court in Knight v. City of Margate, 86 N.J. 374, 381 (1981):

> At the very heart of the public policy embraced by the new law is "the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process and of casino operations." N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(6). Related directly to this purpose, the Legislature stated that "the regulatory provisions . . . are designed to extend strict State regulation to all persons . . . practices and associations related to" casinos and that "comprehensive law-enforcement supervision . . . is further designed to contribute to the public confidence and trust in the efficacy and integrity of the regulatory process."

In In the Matter of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union Local 54, 203 N.J. Super. 297, 317 (App. Div. 1985), certif, den. 102 N.J. 352 (1985), the Appellate Division held that "inimical" means "adverse to the policy of the act and gaming operations," i.e., contrary to strict regulatory controls over all facets of casino activities.

The Division contends that while the respondent's conduct resulted in a disorderly persons theft offense which is not listed as a disqualifier under section 86c, the respondent's conduct constituted a theft from the casino entity. Such conduct strikes directy at the public confidence and trust in the credibility and integrity of the regulatory process. As such the Division asserts that this alleged offense is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(2) and section 86g, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State or that she was found not guilty in municipal court.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, Theft by unlawful taking or disposition, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Movable property. A person is guilty of theft if he unlawfully takes, or exercises unlawful control over, movable property of another with purpose to deprive him thereof.

In this case, the respondent's removal of $40 from her cash drawer and $1 in tokens from her side counter and eventually placing the $41 into her individual tip box so she could purchase Christmas presents constituted a theft from Trump Castle. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the respondent's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(3), the offense constitutes a disorderly persons offense.

In State of New Jersey, Dept. of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Michael P. Waters, OAL DKT. NO. CCC 3933-86, decided by the Commission (June 12, 1987), the Commission stated at 2-3 that:

> A distinction must be drawn between the rehabilitation from a section 86(c)(1) or (3) disqualifying offense pursuant to sections 90(h) or 91(d) of the Act and rehabilitation as an aspect of the inimical analysis. In the former situation, disqualification is established once it is shown that the respondent committed an enumerated offense. The respondent is then afforded the opportunity to affirmatively demonstrate his rehabilitation from that disqualification. It is well established that, consistent with other affirmative licensing criteria, the respondent must prove his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. Application of Richard Romanishin for a Casino Employee License, Docket No. 84-EA-85 (Commission order, May 23, 1985); Application of Chester R. Brathwaite for a Casino Employee License, Docket No. A-4252-82T3 (Unpublished opinion reversing Commission decision, January 23, 1984).
> However, unlike a section 86(c)(1) or (3) situation, disqualification pursuant to section 86(c)(4) is not established upon demonstrating that the respondent committed the offense in question. Such a determination can only be made after considering all the circumstances surrounding the offense: its nature, its remoteness, and the offender's conduct subsequent to the offense, i.e., essentially the same factors which bear upon rehabilitation. Application of Donna Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (Commission decision, December 27, 1985); State v. Theodore Williams, Docket No. 84-288 (Commission order, May 1, 1987).

The Commission concluded that if the Division establishes a case for the respondent's disqualification, it is "then incumbent upon the respondent to show that he was rehabilitated; that is, the burden of going forward with evidence (but not the ultimate burden of proof), had shifted."

In the Davis case, the Commission stated at 313-314:

> Rehabilitation under section 90(h) (casino employee license) and section 91(d) (casino hotel employee registration) does not apply to

> disqualifying convictions under section 86(c)(4). By their express terms, these rehabilitation provisions apply only to ". . . a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria." Nevertheless, many of the factors that are considered upon a claim of rehabilitation are included within the inimical analysis.

The Commission indicated that "it has been generally observed that the notion of rehabilitation is subsumed in the inimical analysis [citation omitted] (and) . . . the inimical analysis is substantially similar to the concept of rehabilitation." The Commission concluded that:

> The salient point to be made here is that we consider rehabilitation factors before concluding that the offense in question is or is not inimical under section 86(c)(4). Because the rehabilitation provisions are subsumed within the inimical analysis, it should never be necessary to determine the merits of a claim or rehabilitation after concluding that a given offense is inimical pursuant to section 86(c)(4). [Id. at 314] [footnote omitted]

The eighth specific criteria enumerated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made are:

1. The nature and duties of the licensee's position or the registrant's position;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense;
3. The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
4. The date of the offense;
5. The age of the licensee or registration when the offense was committed:
6. Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation or persons who have or have had the applicant or registrant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Ms. Olsson is a casino licensee and was employed as a slot cashier. As such, she had direct responsibilities for maintaining a bank and making change for actual gaming activities and came in contact with casino patrons.

Second, the respondent committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, theft by unlawful taking or disposition, on one occasion while employed in the casino industry. Because the offense involves a theft from the casino employer, it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in its appropriate context. The respondent was assigned as a slot cashier responsible for maintaining a bank and making correct change for casino patrons. This is a position of trust. The respondent violated this trust by stealing money from the casino cash drawer and placing it in her individual tip box. Such a theft cannot be tolerated in the casino industry.

Fourth, the respondent's misconduct occurred in November 1989, when it ceased.

Fifth, the respondent was 26 years old at the time of the offense. I do not believe immaturity was a factor in this case.

Sixth, the respondent's misconduct was isolated in nature. She has not committed any other violations of the criminal laws.

Seventh, there were no social conditions presented in evidence which may have contributed to the offense.

Eighth, the respondent is single and has been steadily employed as a bus driver by National School Bus Company ever since she was terminated from the casino industry. The respondent presented no other evidence of her rehabilitation.

I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the continued licensure of the respondent would be inimical to the policies of the Act, pursuant to section 86c(2), by means of section 86g.

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Ms. Olsson was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, her good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Id. at 296.

The respondent presented virtually no evidence that she is a person of good character, honesty and integrity other than the fact that this is her first criminal offense and that she has been continuously employed since she was terminated from the casino industry. As such, I cannot state that it is readily apparent that the respondent's misconduct was aberrant and that she is otherwise a person of good character, honesty and integrity. The misconduct did involve her licensed employment, and the underlying circumstances do not mitigate the seriousness of the misconduct. Accordingly, I cannot state that the respondent presents no risk to the public nor to the integrity of the gaming industry in this State. The respondent has not earned the privilege of licensure. An examination of the whole person does not clearly and convincingly establish that Ms. Olsson is a person of good character, honesty and integrity, and is entirely suitable for licensure in this State. See, Boardwalk Regency Corp.

I CONCLUDE that the respondent has not established, by clear and convincing evidence, her good character, honesty and integrity under section 90b.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division against the respondent is SUSTAINED and that license no. 74211-21 be revoked.

942

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter concerns the complaint of the Division of Gaming Enforcement filed with the Casino Control Commission on October 15, 1987. The respondent was employed as a security officer at Caesar's Casino Hotel. The complaint charges that he permitted an underage person to enter into and remain in the casino at Caesar's, in violation of section 119b of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.). These are the issues identified during a prehearing conference conducted by Administrative Law Judge Steven W. Thompson on April 6, 1989:

1. Whether respondent's continued licensure is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) because he is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-119b, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the courts of this state, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

2. Whether the respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) as incorporated within section 90b.

At the conclusion of the evidentiary hearing in this matter, the Division of Gaming Enforcement argued that a one-year suspension of the respondent's casino employee license would be the appropriate sanction if the respondent were found to have violated section 119b of the Act. The significance of this assertion is that the Division did not contend that such a violation would render the respondent's continued licensure as a casino employee inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act, within the intent of section 86c(2) of the Act. It also meant that any adverse impact such a violation would have on the respondent's good character, honesty and integrity would not be so great as to require the respondent's disqualification pursuant to sections 86a, 89b(2) and 90b of the Act. Thus, the actual issues in this matter may be stated as follows:

Has the respondent violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-119b, and if so, what sanctions permitted under section 129 of the Act should be imposed?

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On November 4, 1987, the respondent filed his request for a hearing with the Casino Control Commission. The Commission transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law on August 4, 1988, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. Administrative Law Judge Steven W. Thompson conducted a prehearing conference in this matter on April 6, 1989.

This matter was reassigned and the hearing sessions were held in Atlantic City, New Jersey, on September 18 and 20, 1989. Counsel for the respondent subsequently sought permission to obtain additional information concerning the post-hearing conduct of Debra Kim Cohen, one of the Division's witnesses. On April 27, 1990, the Division filed its written objection to the respondent's request. I considered the parties' arguments and determined that the post-hearing conduct of Cohen could not have sufficient impact on the resolution of this matter as to warrant keeping the evidential record open. Issuance of this initial decision was delayed because of my heavy caseload, exacerbated by illness requiring my absence from the office for an extended period.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Many of the material facts in this matter are undisputed. The respondent holds casino employee license number 48123-21. He was employed as a security guard at Caesar's Casino Hotel from June 1983 until May 1988. According to the respondent, he left his employment at Caesar's when he was offered a better position with the United States Post Office in Wildwood, New Jersey.

While employed as a security guard, the respondent's duties included securing the casino area and being on the lookout for suspicious persons. One of the main security functions was keeping underage persons out of the casino. According to the respondent, his post would vary. He would be assigned either to an entrance to the casino or to roving duty throughout the casino. The respondent testified that he received about one week of on-the-job training at Caesar's.

Caesar's security manager Michael Timberlake testified at the hearing that the respondent was one of the security officers who served under him and he observed the respondent daily on the 3:00 to 11:00 p.m. shift. He described the respondent as a very good security officer who was both very intellegent and very honest. Mr. Timberlake had never received any complaints about the respondent, either from fellow employees or from patrons. He said that Caesar's would hire the respondent back if he wished to return.

Several other witnesses testified on behalf of the respondent. All described him as trustworthy and honest. These witnesses also agreed that the respondent is hard working and forthright.

Division of Gaming Enforcement Agent John McLaughlin testified at the hearing that he was assigned in 1987 to investigate underage gambling in Atlantic City casinos by Debra Kim Cohen, who was born February 8, 1969. Agent McLaughlin's investigation reports were admitted into evidence as Exhibits P-1 and P-2. It is undisputed that Ms. Cohen patronized many Atlantic City casinos on numerous occasions in 1986. She gambled sufficiently to be rated in many of the casinos and she was frequently rated and received complimentary services at Caesar's. Floor person's rating cards reflecting Ms. Cohen's gambling at Caesar's were admitted into evidence as Exhibits P-4 through P-12.

It is undisputed that Ms. Cohen was arrested at more than one casino and that she was charged with several counts of underage gambling. At some casinos, Ms. Cohen had misidentified herself as Diane Norcia to facilitate her underage gambling. Ms. Cohen testified at the hearing that when she went to court on the charges, she received a sentence of one year probation and a fine. For a while, she was under psychiatric care for depression and compulsive gambling. Ms. Cohen acknowledged that some of the money which she used to gamble she had stolen from her father. On June 1, 1988, Ms. Cohen received a grant of immunity from the Commission.

Agent McLaughlin testified that he interviewed Ms. Cohen as part of his investigation. She told him that a security guard at Caesar's named David knew that she was underage. The agent obtained five photographs of security guards from Caesar's and Ms. Cohen identified the photo of the respondent. When Agent McLaughlin interviewed the respondent, he showed the respondent a photo of Ms. Cohen. The respondent recognized Ms. Cohen and told the agent that he had seen her at the Boardwalk entrance to the casino and had conversed with her. He told the agent that Ms. Cohen did not go into the casino.

Both Ms. Cohen and the respondent testified that their first encounter at Caesar's occurred at the Boardwalk entrance to the casino, in late summer or early fall 1986. The respondent was on duty with Security Officer Mark Levin. According to Ms. Cohen, she had a friendly conversation with the respondent. They talked a little about gambling and she asked him to guess her age. She told him that she was 17 and she also showed the respondent her Atlantic City high school photo identification.

The respondent testified that he first noticed Ms. Cohen in the lobby area between the casino floor doors and the doors to the boardwalk. She was heading up the escalator to the second floor and Mark Levin said something to him about guessing her age. According to the respondent, Ms. Cohen came back to his area about 10 minutes later and approached him. They had a general conversation and the subject of her age came up. The respondent believes that Ms. Cohen asked him how old he thought she was, and he guessed about 17. Ms. Cohen told him that he was right and showed him some form of identification. The respondent testified sincerely that Ms. Cohen appeared to him to be underage.

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

The central factual dispute in this matter concerns whether the respondent allowed Ms. Cohen to walk into the casino after their first meeting, when he had learned that she was only 17 years old. Ms. Cohen testified that she talked with the respondent for about one half hour. She then walked past the respondent straight onto the casino floor and gambled for about two hours. Ms. Cohen acknowledged that it was odd to have been let into the casino after she had revealed her age.

The respondent testified emphatically that he did not allow Ms. Cohen to enter the casino at the time of their first meeting or at any time thereafter. In fact, he once saw her on the floor of the casino at a later date and he helped Sergeant McCall escort Ms. Cohen out of the casino. Significantly, when Agent McLaughlin interviewed Sergeant McCall on March 12, 1987, she told the agent that the security officer with her when Ms. Cohen was seen on the casino floor could have been the respondent (Exhibit P-2).

Mark Levin testified at the hearing about the first encounter with Ms. Cohen. He confirmed that she first went up the escalator to the second floor. When she returned a few minutes later, Ms. Cohen and the respondent conversed. The respondent had guessed that she was about 16 or 17 years old and Ms. Cohen had produced her identification card. Because she was underage, the security officers would not let her into the casino. She was told that she could either go upstairs to the shops or out the door, but she would not be allowed on the casino floor. Mr. Levin testified in a very sincere and straightforward manner.

Did the respondent allow Debra Kim Cohen to enter the casino floor even though he knew that she was underage? Resolution of this factual dispute depends upon credibility determinations. A trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible or because it is inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience, or because it is overborne by other testimony. Congleton v. Pura-Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958). The respondent's testimony was sincere and straightforward; it sounded a strong ring of truth. The respondent's testimony was corroborated by the believable testimony of Mr. Levin.

In contrast, the testimony of Ms. Cohen must be viewed with caution. She had misrepresented her age to the licensed casinos. She had used a false name in some of the casinos. Ms. Cohen had also obtained some of the money which she gambled by stealing it from her father.

Ms. Cohen's bias against the licensed casinos and casino employees was apparent. She stated that she had no hesitation revealing the names of any casino employees involved in her gambling activities. However, she also acknowledged that she would refuse even a judge's order to reveal the names of other underage persons who had gambled in the casinos. This bias provides further reason to view Ms. Cohen's testimony with caution. While the respondent's testimony was entirely credible, I simply do not believe Ms. Cohen's testimony that the respondent allowed her to walk into the casino after she revealed to him that she was underage. Thus, I further find as fact that the respondent did not allow Ms. Cohen to enter into and remain in a licensed casino.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Section 119b of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), provides in part:

> Any licensee or employee of a casino who allows a person under the age at which a person is authorized to purchase and consume alcoholic beverages to remain in a casino is a disorderly person. . . .

I have found that the respondent did not permit an underage person to enter into and remain in a licensed casino. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the respondent has not violated section 119b of the Casino Control Act. Therefore, I further CONCLUDE that the complaint of the Division of Gaming Enforcement against the respondent should be DISMISSED.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the complaint filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement against David Oslin be DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Pascal's casino employee license no. 69763-21 because of her conviction with theft by unlawful taking contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, for short-changing a patron at Caesars' Boardwalk Hotel and Casino where Ms. Pascal worked as a slot booth cashier.*

---

*As to the procedural history, the Commission filed this matter with the Office of Administrative Law on February 22, 1989, for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., and a prehearing was held on May 1, 1989 with a prehearing order issued on May 23, 1989 and the plenary hearing was held on August 18, 1989 in Galloway Township, with the record closing on August 25, 1989, following the receipt of additional documentation. The due date for issuance of the initial decision was extended on several occasions for reasons unrelated to this case, including a heavy backlog of decisions resulting from a pending public utility case. I regret any hardship or inconvenience that this unavoidable delay may have caused the parties.

ISSUES

The following issues are to be resolved, as per the prehearing order:

(1) Whether the licensee is disqualified from holding a license under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2), because of conviction for the offense of theft by unlawful taking, which indicates that licensure of the licensee would be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and to the casino operations in the State of New Jersey.

(2) Whether the licensee can demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that she possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b(2), and 90b [including consideration of the factors of rehabilitation]

In light of the appellate division's recent decision in the matter of Dunston v. Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement and Casino Control Commission, decided April 10, 1990, 8-197-89 T3, discussion of the good character issue will expressly address the factors of rehabilitation set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

FINDINGS OF FACT

There is no dispute as to the facts. On July 29, 1988, the respondent, Beverly E. Pascal, was observed by B. Carlson a member of Caesars' Surveillance Department. short changing casino patrons in her cashier booth by taking 2 $1.00 tokens off to one side and giving the patron the rest of the tokens, keeping the 2 stolen tokens under an empty bucket. She later placed the 2 $1.00 tokens in a bucket in a drawer under the counter and at the end of her shift, she was observed giving the cup to another cashier in return for $26.00 in US currency. The Division submitted a New Jersey State Police Report by Detective J. Cordy, which contained the following statement:

> [a] review of the CCTV Tape [video surveillance] coverage of the accused revealed that the accused received 2 full change buckets of tokens in $1.00 denomintations from a casino patron to be cashed in for US Currency. The accused dumped the buckets of > tokens onto a tray to be pushed through the counter; at which time, she guided two tokens off to one side and covered them with empty change buckets. After paying the customer, the accused took the (2) $1.00 tokens and placed them inside a bucket in a drawer under the counter. At the end of the shift, the accused was observed giving the cup to another cashier and in return she received $26.00 in US Currency.

>
> Interviewed Coin Cage Shift Supervisor, R. Bartholomew, who advised that standard procedures for the cashiers when receiving a tip from a patron, is to advise the head cashier, and show the camera the tip. On July 29, 1989, the accused had no reports of tips, during her shift.
>
> The accused was escorted to the DGE Office where she was advised that she was under arrest, read her rights as per miranda, and processed. A statement taken from the accused revealed that she has short changed patrons in the past, on this date she admitted to short-changing customers, and she did receive some tips which equals the total amount of $26.00 which is what she left with at the end of her shift. Complaints were signed and forwarded to AC Municipal Court pending a court date. (1) original CCTV Tape, and (1) copy of teh incident, depicting the accused taking (2) $1.00 tokens was received from Caesars' Surveillance Dept., and entered into evidence. (Exhibit P-1)

A summons was filed against Ms. Pascal in Atlantic City Municipal Court: she plead guilty to the charge of theft by unlawful taking and on October 26, 1988, was fined $25.00, with $25.00 in costs and $30.00 violent crimes penalty.

Ms. Pascal admitted short-changing casino customers in the past in order to break even in her cash count at the end of an evening, but denies doing so on July 29, 1988. On that occasion, she states that she received 2 $1.00 tokens as a "tip," inadvertently left by a customer, but failed to "flash" the tip or show it to the surveillance camera, which she knew might be videotaping her actions as required. Despite the fact that she claims she didn't shortchange a casino patron "that night" [July 29, 1988] she said that she plead guilty because she "wanted to get it over with" and felt that the attitude of the public defender was not helpful to her. She also states that she was not aware that her guilty plea would ultimately jeopardize her casino employee license.

Asked of prior occasions of short changing customers, the respondent admitted that she had done so once deliberately because her count was short and she wanted to make "bank" even. This incident, which she could not date involved $2 to $3. She states that she has short-changed casino patrons 2 to 3 times by "accident," but that it is "not an everyday thing." Asked of the $26.00 in the tip bucket, she explains that she had worked a double shift of 15 to 16 hours on that busy weekend and had accumulated a number of tips.

Ms. Pascal is 24 years of age, and has no dependents.

On July 31, 1988, respondent Pascal gave the following incident report to Caesars':

> On Friday 7-29-88 two coins was left on my machine, handy wipe fell on it and covered it so I placed it in my draw along with my other loos coins which customers gave me. I also shortchanged a couple of my customers a few quarter in order to break my bank even at the end of the night because the machine have techinical problems off and on. I already have several write up from being short and I try to prevent getting any more. However at the end of my shift I was even and I ask the cashier next to me to count my coins. It totaled $26 and when I was leaving I flashed it and kept the $26. I have applied for several transfers out of my department but haven't received one because there is a shortage in my department this is unfair, in order to keep my job and eliminate anymore write up I have to break even at all times. I have never took any money from Caesars before but I have shortchanged my customers to break even. (sic) (Exhibit P-3) (emphasis added).

I FIND as a matter of fact that respondent deliberately short-changed a customer as charged on July 29, 1988, to which charge she plead guilty, and further FIND that she has engaged in this practice several times in the past and has intentionally short-changed a "couple of [her] customers in order to break the bank even at the end of the night."

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

At issue is whether respondent, Beverly E. Pascal, is disqualified from holding a casino employee license under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) because of her conviction for the offense of unlawful taking from a patron which indicates that her licensure would be inimical to the policy control act, and, beyond that, whether she can demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that she possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b. Both issues include application of the factors of rehabilitation, set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. The Casino Control Act provides that:

> The Commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of the following criteria:
>
> a. Failure of the applicant to prove by clear and convincing evidence that the applicant is qualified in accordance with the provisions of this Act. . .
>
> c. The conviction of the applicant or any person required to be qualified under this Act as a condition of a casino license, of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be:. . .
> (2) Any other offense under present New Jersey or federal law which indicates that licensure of the applicant would be inimical to the policy of this Act and to casino operations; provided, however, that the automatic disqualification provisions of this subsection shall not apply with regard to any conviction which did not occur within a ten-year period immediately preceding application for licensure in which the applicant demonstrates by clear and convincing evidence does not jusitify automatic disqualification pursuant to this subsection and any conviction which has been the subject of a judicial order of expugent or sealing. . . .N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(2).

The "inimical" standards under N.J.S.A.5:12-86, which also appears under subdivision (f) as to assocation with career offenders was found to be not unconstitutionally vague or arbitrary in the matter of Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartendars International Union Local 54, 203 N.J. Super. 297 (App. Div. 1985). cert. denied 102 N.J. 352 (1985), cert. denied 475 U.S. 1085 (1986). Although the Casino Control Act does not expressly provide an opportunity for a licensee to prove rehabilitation under N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h, the Commission has held that rehabilitation factors should be considered before concluding that an offense is or is not inimical to licensure under the Casino Control Act. See, Davis v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8

N.J.A.R. 301 (1985). These factors were also recently held by the Appellate Division of New Jersey Superior Court in the case of Dunston v. Division, dec'd April 10, 1990, A-197-89T3, to apply to the question of whether an applicant has succeeded in proving a clear and convincing evidence that he or she possesses the required good character, honesty and integrity as provided by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(b)(2) and 90(b).

The Division has the burden of going forward and of demonstrating by a preponderance of the believable evidence that grounds exist for statutory disqualification resulting from a commission of an offense or conduct which would be inimical [e.g., extremely adverse] to the policies of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(2). The licensee, in turn, has the burden of affirmatively demonstrating rehabilitation under N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h) and of establishing, by clear and convincing evidence, the required good character, honesty and integrity.

In determining whether the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated her rehabilitation from disqualification as part of inimicality, and also shown good character, honesty and integrity, the Commission must consider the following factors:

> (1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
> (4) The date of the offense or conduct;
> (5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;
> (6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
> (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of addition academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h (emphasis added).

The nature of the duties of the position applied for (factor one) are those of cashier, and the exchange of money (often, but not always from patrons to the casino) is at the very heart of the casino's functioning, even though it is not a part of the actual gaming process. The offense of short-changing casino patrons is extremely serious, even if of a relatively small amount for each transaction, as was the case here, and it defeats the patrons' reasonable expectation that they will not be short-changed or "ripped off" by cashiers as they go out to try their luck with the slots (a/k/a one arm bandits) and other "games of chance." Casino patrons are just as entitled to not be cheated of their hard earned money at the cashiers booth, as they are of being free of loaded dice, and other unlawful means of taking their money (factor two). This offense occurred in July 1988, which was less than a year before the hearing and the applicant, who was 24 at the time of the hearing, admitted that she had previously short-changed "a couple of customers" to break even, even though she denied doing so on July 29, 1988. Her conduct was thus a repeated, although undetected, incident. She cites no social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct nor does she cite any compelling evidence of rehabilitation, offers no character references or other evidence that might be considered in mitigation of the offense. (factor eight). Her explanation of the practice of short-changing patrons is that she was under great pressure on the job to break even at the end of the night in her "bank" as a cashier, and she only short-changed a small amount to cover any discrepancies. Her motive, therefore, was that of keeping her job and not of taking the money for herself. That may be the case, but the fact remains that she deliberately decided to keep her cashiers "bank" even at the expense of unknowing and trusting patrons, who had reasonable expectation that they would not be the victim of any kind of theft by casino employees, before they even stepped onto the casino floor to try their luck.

Considering all these factors of rehabilitation, I CONCLUDE that the Division has shown by a preponderance of the believable evidence that the licensure of Beverly E. Pascal would be inimical to the polices of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations. Even though the amount of money was small on this occasion, it was evident that she engaged in this practice on at least several occasions, and whenever she needed to to break even for the day. Under these circumstances, her offense renders her licensure inimical.

The final and related issue is whether the respondent can establish by clear and convincing evidence her good character, honesty an integrity as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)(2), 90(b):

> shall produce such information, documentation and assurances as may be required to establish by clear and convincing evidence the applicant's good character, honesty and integrity. Such information shall include, without limitation, data pertaining to family, habits, character, reputation, criminal and arrest record, business activities, financial affairs, and business, professional and personal associates, covering at least the 10-year period immediately preceding the filing of the application.

Under 89(b)(2), the applicant must establish good character, honesty and integrity as a matter of reputation. See, Application of Boardwalk Regency Corporation for casino license, 90 N.J. 361, 369 (1982), appeal dismissed 459 US 1081 (1983). Applicants have been found not to have established their good character, honesty and integrity as a matter of fact, where there is evidence that they have engaged in such nefarious activities as swindling patrons by altering dice, or procuring prostitutes for a foreign official engaged in casion regulations. See, Alter v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 6 N.J.A.R. 584 (1979); Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Matta, 5 N.J.A.R. 439 (1983). The Appellate Division recently held in the Dunston case that the factors of rehabilitation as set forth in Section 90(h) are relevant and must be considered by the Commission in assessing her claim of good character, honesty and integrity under 90(b).

The above discussion and application of the factors of rehabilitation in 90(h) in this case, applies with equal force to the question of good character, honesty and integrity, and leads to the same result of revocation of the respondent's license. Deliberate shortchanging of casino patrons is both disqualifying misconduct inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act and to casino operations and also indicative, as practiced, of an insufficient level of good character, honesty and integrity to allow Ms. Bascal to maintain her license and I so CONCLUDE. Although she may have just been responding to what she perceived as the pressures of her cashier position to break even at the end of the day and to keep her job and not for personal profit, the means she chose was theft of patrons and, however, small the amount taken each time, that is more than an ample reason for the Commission to revoke her casino employee license and I RECOMMEND that it do so.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

APPLICATION FOR RENEWAL OF THE CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSE OF CHRISTINA W. PAUL

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meetings of September 5, 1990 and October 3, 1990,

IT IS on this 12th day of December 1990, ORDERED that the decision is modified as follows:

> The administrative law judge erred in excluding, on grounds of relevance, evidence of the applicant's 1969 shoplifting conviction and her failure to disclose information on the Personal History Disclosure Form which she had filed in 1978. The mere fact that this evidence was fully considered in prior license proceedings before this Commission in 1982 does not detract from its relevance to a present inquiry into the applicant's qualifications for renewal of her license. This is especially true where, as here, the negative information constituted disqualifying conduct in proceedings before this Commission in 1979. In evaluating an applicant's qualifications for licensure under the Casino Control Act, the individual's entire life history is subject to scrutiny. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino Application, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 324 (1980). The weight to be ascribed to any particular evidence of misconduct may, in fact, be diminished by the passage of time, but its relevance is self-evident.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the renewal application is granted substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference.

BEFORE RICHARD J. MURPHY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Division of Gaminig Enforcement (Division) objects to the renewal of Christina W. Paul's casino employee license based on her alleged involvement in a bingo hall scam in California at the behest of her then boyfriend, and also because of possession of a controlled dangerous substance in the form of cocaine in her home, which she claimed belonged to the same boyfriend. Ms. Paul, who has been licensed by the Commission since 1982 and has worked continuously at Bally's during that period, argues that she was unwittingly involved in what turned out to be illegal activities by a con man, with whom she had fallen in love. For the reasons discussed below, her rènewal application is granted.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Following the Division's objections to the renewal of Christina Paul's casino employee license on October 27, 1988, the Commission filed this matter with the Office of Administrative Law on January 25, 1989 for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. The case was preheard on April 6, 1989 and the hearing was held in Absecon on August 11, 1989 and it was completed on October 6, 1989 in Pleasantville. The due date for submission of the initial decision in this matter was extended on several occasions for reasons unrelated to this case, including a pending public utility matter and resulting backlog of opinions. I regret any hardship, aggravation, or inconvenience that this unavoidable delay may have caused the parties.

ISSUES TO BE RESOLVED

1. Whether the applicant is disqualified from holding a license under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) and 86g for commission of the offense of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (CDS) contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10, which indicates that licensure would be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and casino operations in the state of New Jersey under subsection c(2) even if this conduct has not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of the state or pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86d is the subject of current prosecution or pending charges for an offense included within section 86c.

2. Whether the applicant can demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that she possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), and 90b, including consideration of the factors of rehabilitation as set forth in the recent Appellate Division case of Dunston v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, decided April 10, 1990, A-197-89T3.

FINDINGS OF FACT

There is no dispute as to the material facts. The Division's objection is based on the applicant's involvement in a California bingo scam in 1985 and the presence of a controlled dangerous substance, in her home which was found during a search related to the bingo scam. Before we get to those events, the Division in its objection of October 27, 1988 and at the hearing, sought to introduce evidence on this renewal application of matters occurring prior to the Commission's June 22, 1982 issuance of a casino employee license to Christina Paul. Because the Commission had already fully considered these aspects occurring prior to June of 1982 and determined that Ms. Paul was not disqualified and possessed the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure in 1982, I ruled at the hearing, and CONCLUDE and ORDER here that any events or conduct prior to the Commission's granting of Christina Paul's casino license on June 22, 1982 are in no way relevant to this proceeding, which is to be based entirely on conduct and matters occurring after the initial license was granted. The only exception to this ruling would be any matters or conduct occurring prior to June 22, 1982 of which the Casino Control Commission was unaware when it issued Ms. Paul's casino employee license. No such matters have been advanced by the Division, and I ORDER that events prior to June 22, 1982 are in no way germane or relevant to this proceeding and that the Commission is bound by its earlier issuance of a license as to those earlier matters. This proceeding concerns and is confined to Ms. Paul's conduct after June 22, 1982, when she initially received a casino employee license after the Commission's presumably thorough review of her credentials and background.

The Division's objection sets forth facts, accurate as far as they go, as to the event and conduct by the applicant in 1985 which form the basis of the state's objection:

> [o]n December 12, 1985 members of the New Jersey State Police executed a search warrant at the home of the licensee at the Parkshore Condominiums in Somers Point, New Jersey with regard to an illegal bingo scam that had taken place in the Barona Indian Bingo Hall in San Diego County, California. Confiscated at the home of the licensee were various documents relating to the illegal bingo scam and also a quantity of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine). The licensee pled guilty to accusation A-86-04-0730A charging possession of a controlled dangerous substance contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10 and received a conditional discharge. One of the conditions of her conditional discharge was that she was to undergo urinalysis. [Division's objection at 2]

At the hearing, Christina Paul gave the following account of her relationship and contact with Stewart Siegel, to whom she attributes the problems now resulting in this immediate threat to her license and livelihood. She states that she was born in 1946, was 38 years old in 1985, is single and has never been married. She was licensed by the Commission in 1982, and has worked thereafter for Bally's as a dealer and has never been suspended, and also has a good employment record. In February 1984, she met Stewart Siegel through a girlfriend; he stated that he ran casino junkets and frequently visited Bally's baccarat pit. Between February 1984 and October 1985, Ms. Paul dated Siegel, who flew her out to Las Vegas on occasion, after he took a job as a casino manager out there. He also took her to New York City for a weekend in March of 1985. Ms. Paul testified that Siegel "treated her terrific" and "acted upstanding" and she assumed "he was legit". Siegel also initially told her that he had a house in Smithville, New Jersey, which was not the case.

On October 25, 1984, the couple met in Philadelphia at the Hilton Hotel and after that, stopped seeing each other, partly because of the great distance of the relationship between Las Vegal and New Jersey. Ms. Paul did not see Siegel between October of 1984 and May of 1985. In April 1985, Siegel called her from California, where he was working as a partner in a bingo operation on an Indian reservation, and he asked her to come out to San Diego to join him. She flew out first class at his expense, hoping to reconcile. At that time she was 39 years old, thinking seriously about marriage and children, and saw Mr. Siegel as a possible desirable prospect for those purposes. As she put it, she "wanted him and babies." The day after arriving in San Diego, Ms. Paul was taken by Siegel to the Barona Indian Reservation in El Cajon, California. Siegel asked her to act as a "shill", which is a slange term for a person who poses as a customer in order to generate excitement and decoy others into participating in an activity such as gambling or at an auction house. Acting as a "shill" is not illegal in Las Vegas, or other locations, although it is not permitted in Atlantic City.

The fraudulent bingo game for which Siegel was later convicted, was set up on an Indian reservation in El Cajon, California, outside of San Diego. The game involved some 3,000 contestants, who were mostly Indians from the reservation. Siegel explained to Ms. Paul that her role in helping him as a "shill" was to win the bingo game, and she did indeed win a $25,000 jackpot, of which she kept $3,500, to rig the bingo game, she was instructed by Siegel to circle seven numbers out of a possible 60 on the bingo game, but to leave the eighth blank and then to circle 12 or 13 and yell bingo. Siegel then came out and filled out a second copy of a two-ply ticket, which he filled in and then deposited in a locked box, at the same time slipping a duplicate of the ticket that he gave to Ms. Paul. The shill's function was to take the duplicate that Siegel put in the loced box and then verify that the ticket was the winning ticket.

Ms. Paul rather unquestioningly went through this process and "won" the game, then provided identification in the form of her casino license when requested, and collected a check for $22,000, of which Siegel later paid her $3,500 in cash. She used $500 to tip the number callers of the bingo game. After the game, she returned the $22,000 check to Siegel, who gave her $3,000 minus the $500 tip to the callers, which she took in large bills so she could shop in nearby Tijuana, Mexico. She stated that she did not think that this was a "scam" and thought that nothing was wrong. In fact, she declared a total of $5,000 received from Siegel on her W-2 forms. (A-12). Ms. Paul had never acted as a "shill" before and did not think that what she was doing was illegal. She claims that she did not suspect that the activity was fraudulent or illegal until police later came to her home as part of an interstate investigation and conducted a search of her home, during which they found a small amount of cocaine (less than one gram) and some marijuana, the latter of which she acknowledged that she smoked "occasionally". (We will return to the issue of these controlled dangerous substances shortly).

After helping Siegel on the Indian reservation, Ms. Paul spent four or five days together with him in San Diego and came away with the feeling that "he loved her". After Ms. Paul returned to New Jersey and her job at Bally's, Siegel continued to send her presents, including eight or nine rabbit fur jackets, which Siegel claimed he obtained from a warehouse owned by him in Las Vegas.

On cross-examination, Ms. Paul admitted that she knew she was going to win the jackpot at the rigged bingo game on the Indian reservation and stated that she wanted the Indians to believe that she had won, and acted in a manner calculated to convince them that she was a surprised and delighted winner. When asked whether she thought she was thereby committing fraud or doing something otherwise illegal, she answered that she assumed that being a shill was legal, and that's all she thought she was being, and that she further saw nothing morally wrong with Siegel taking the winning ticket. Looking back, she now sees that her conduct was immoral, but that night she did not think it was wrong and assumed that Siegel, with whom she had fallen in love, was not doing anything wrong. She felt that acting as a "shill" encouraged play at the bingo game and excited the crowd and encouraged gambling. Although she assumed the game was legal, she admitted that she knew that it would be illegal in New Jersey to take the slip out, as Siegel had done, and that she would report such conduct to the Commissioner or some other authority if she observed it. But since Siegel, in whom she had placed trust and confidence, assured her that her role was only to act as a shill and win in order to encourage others to gamble, she had no feeling of guilt at the time.

Christina Paul was only one of six women brought to California by Stewart Siegel to act as shills in fraudulent bingo games at the Barona Indian Reservation run by the American Amusement Management, Inc. between October 1984 and September 1985. (A-12). She claims that several other of these women have been used and manipulated emotionally by Siegel, as she feels that she has been. In California, Siegel was indicted for felony grand theft, for his scam in manipulating the outcome of bingo games and causing a prearranged player-accomplice ("shill") to win. No charges were filed against Christina Paul, and she received transactional immunity for testimony against Siegel, who later pled guilty to four counts of grand theft. (Ibid.) Siegel's testimony in San Diego, California, on December 8, 1986 did not incriminate Ms. Paul other than to list her as one of the shills that he used in his operation. (A-15; T60, 14-28). A report prepared by Division Agent Karen Smolenski states that ". . . [c]hristina Paul became one of Siegel's girlfriends while he was in New Jersey. Steward Siegel is believed to have organized crime ties . . . Christine Paul was granted immunity from prosecution for involvement in this scam in return for her full and truthful account and testimony . . . ." (A-17 at 2) (emphasis added). Ms. Paul fully cooperated with the California authorities under a transactional immunity (A-11) and Siegel ultimately pled guilty to grand theft as stated.

Ms. Paul's problems stemming from her relationship with Siegel (which I find, as a matter of fact, was entirely romantic on her part and had no other motive discernible from the facts presented), did not end in California but became compounded in New Jersey when a search of her condominium in the course of the bingo scam investigation turned up a small amount of cocaine and marijuana. The cocaine was found in a box that the applicant claims belonged to Mr. Siegel, which had not been unpacked after her recent move to the condominium. A small amount of marijuana was also found in Ms. Paul's condo, which she admitted possessing and occasionally using in order to get to sleep after a hectic work day in the casino. The marijuana did not belong to Siegel. She denied ever being under the influence of marijunana at work or at the casino. She also denied any knowledge of the presence of cocaine in Siegel's belongings, and states that when she pled guilty to the accusation (A-5), she did not think she was also pleading guilty to possession of cocaine. Charges against her were later conditionally discharged (A-8), and she submitted to urinalysis monitoring without any drug use detected and completed the other terms of her probation. Ms. Paul did not recall where she obtained the small quantity of marijuana found in her apartment, but said that she never purchased the drug and that it may have been given to her, possibly by Siegel, but she is unsure of this.

Ms. Paul also recalls being contacted by an investigator from the Division, and stated that she declined to answer questions initially, on the advice of her attorney. She does not recall if she told the Division investigator that she did not know to whom the box containing cocaine belonged and also does not recall denying to the investigator that the marijuana was hers. Division Agent Karen Smolenski testified that she had called Ms. Paul some six times without receiving a return call, and then, on July 17, 1986, when she did speak to Ms. Paul, the applicant refused to talk without her attorney present and also denied that the drugs belonged to her. According to Ms. Smolenski, Ms. Paul declined to talk about the bingo scam except through her attorney and denied that the cocaine belonged to her. The applicant did admit that she had pled guilty to the drug charge because the CDS were found in her possession and she viewed them as her responsibility.

Ms. Paul denies avoiding the Division investigator, and states that she instructed the agent to talk to her attorney, because of the criminal nature of the charges. In discussing the drug aspect with the agent, Ms. Paul stated that she thought that the phrase controlled dangerous substance (CDS) meant cocaine and not marijuana, and she denied that the cocaine belonged to her. Ms. Paul thus denies any failure to cooperate with the Division's investigation, which could provide another basis for disqualification. She also states that she was asked by the New Jersey State Police to cooperate as to the source of the marijuana, but denies that she ever advised them that she would provide the source of that drug. There is no dispute as to the substance of the above facts, and I so FIND.

Ms. Paul also provided a number of character references, including Dr. Demitrios J. Constantelos, the Charles Cooper Professor of History at Stockton and also minister of The Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox Church, who had known Ms. Paul since 1971, as well as her family through the family restaurant. He stated that he has the highest regard for her good character, honesty and integrity, and noted that she was president of the Ladies Philosophus Club, which does charitable work with the poor.

Dr. Constantelos stated that his opinion of Ms. Paul was unchanged by his knowledge of her involvement in the California bingo scam and possession of CDS, of which he was unaware prior to the hearing.

Several of Ms. Paul's fellow employees at Bally's also testified. Veronica Long, pit manager at Bally's, stated that she had known Ms. Paul for seven years, mostly on the job, although occasionally on a social basis, for drinks after work. She stated that the applicant, whom she supervised, is assigned to the baccarat pit, which is the high limit of the casino and that her reputation is outstanding and that she is "very honest" and "a hell of a kid". Ms. Long had met Stewart Siegel and found him to be a "funny and charming guy". Ms. Paul told Ms. Long that she had won at a bingo game in California with Siegel, but did not advise her as to the specifics of her role as a shill. Ms. Long's opinion of Ms. Paul's good character, honesty and integrity was unchanged by the drug charges and her involvement in the California bingo scam. Also testifying for the applicant, was Verbena B. Wells, who was a dealer and later a floor supervisor. She found Ms. Paul to be reliable in the baccarat pit, as well as dependable, courteous and efficient. Ms. Wells was sympathetic toward Ms. Paul's situation with Mr. Siegel, and viewed her as "susceptible" and "vulnerable" to Siegel's hustler's "rap" and noted that "aren't we all".

The last witness for the applicant was Joseph Orzehowski, pit boss at Bally's Grand (now the Golden Nugget) who had known the applicant for 14 years and viewed her like a "little sister", and was active together in the church. He felt that Ms. Paul had been used by Siegel, whom he described as a "scumbag" (a description with which Ms. Long enthusiastically agreed), and felt that she had been blinded by her love for him and been badly used. In short, Mr. Orzehowski felt that Ms. Paul, nearing 40, saw that time was passing her by and Mr. Siegel took ill advantage of her feelings and fears. Another acquaintance of Ms. Paul's for the last 18 years, Ms. Peggy Giordano, submitted a character reference stating that she has always found her to be "nothing short of honest, sincere, and trustworthy and responsible". (A-14).

The applicant submitted supervisory evaluation forms prepared on her by Bally's Grand which were consistently of high order, except in some areas of attendance, which she later improved. There are no serious problems noted on these evaluation reports, and Bally's was, on the whole, very happy with her performance and attitude.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Division argues that Ms. Paul's involvement in the California bingo scam and possession of a controlled dangerous substance render her continued licensure inimical and prevents the Commission from concluding that she has shown her good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b2, 90b. In support of this conclusion of nonrenewal, the Division also advances as relevant and probative conduct in matters preceding the Commission's granting of a casino license to the applicant on June 22, 1982. As previously set forth, I ruled that evidence prior to June of 1982 was not relevant to this renewal proceeding, in that the Commission had already considered those matters and determined to license Ms. Paul and was bound by that previous determination as to any facts known to it. In my view, the Commission's issuance of a license in 1982 with the Division's consent, bars DGE from resurrecting those earlier matters now and using them as a jusitification for denying Ms. Paul's renewal. Her current renewal application has to rise and fall on events transpiring after the Commission's action in 1982 of granting Ms. Paul a license and I so expressly CONCLUDE, given the Division's expressed desire to challenge this ruling.

Both the determination of inimicality under 86c2 and of good character, honesty and integrity under 89b2, 90b, require consideration of the factors of rehabilitation, as set forth under N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. See, Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301, 314 (1985); Dunston v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, decided April 10, 1990, A-197-89T3:

> [i]n determining whether the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his [or her] rehabilitation the Commission shall consider the following factos:
>
> (1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;
>
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
>
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
>
> (4) The date of the offense or conduct;
>
> (5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psyciatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, with the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h [emphasis added].

The applicant argued that her duties as a floorperson were significant, but played down the seriousness of the CDS offense, in light of the widespread use of marijuana and cocaine by the general population. She characterized her involvement in the California bingo scam as, though wrong and immoral, not a serious crime in the great scheme of things. Although the applicant was in her late 30s at the time of the offenses, which were isolated and not repeated, she stressed the social conditions contributing to her offense consisting of her blind and trusting romantic involvement with a con man and a swindler, whom the Division characterizes as having ties to organized crime. Ms. Paul also notes that she fully cooperated with the California authorities in prosecuting Stewart Siegel. In terms of her rehabilitation, the applicant cites her work with her church, some of which predated the offense, as well as her good work record at Bally's and the references of her friends and associates.

The deputy attorney general representing the Division stated, in closing, thus, if just CDS were involved, the Division might not have objected to Ms. Paul's licensure, but the fact of the California bingo scam, combined with the CDS, led to the Division's objection. Specifically, the Division argues that Ms. Paul knew that there was a scam going on at the California Indian reservation and knowingly and voluntarily cooperated in that fraud. The DAG also notes that she benefited financially from this fraud, in the form of the $5,000 cash received from Siegel. Although the Division concedes that people are all "fools in love", it also finds the applicant's claim of naivete as to "shilling" to be unbelievable and stressed that there is "a little larceny in everyone's heart." It also notes that Ms. Paul failed to cooperate initially with the Division's investigation, and also had a faulty memory as to the source of marijuana found in her possession.

As to the issue of the applicant's failure to cooperate, which alone can be disqualifying under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(b)[1], I CONCLUDE that such failure has not been shown on the part of the applicant. Although she was reluctant to return the Division's calls and perferred to handle them through her attorney, this is understandable behavior on the part of someone who had been given transactional immunity in California and pled guilty to the CDS charge in New Jersey and does not amount to a failure to provide information requested under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(b) and I so CONCLUDE.

As to the factors of rehabilitation, which were essential to finding of inimicality and of good character, honesty and integrity, I note the following. As the applicant concedes through her character witnesses, her position on the floor of the baccarat pit is in one of the more high stake areas of the casino, where many thousands of dollars often ride on single bets, and thus is of a particularly sensitive nature. (Factor 1). The offense or conduct of acting as a shill in a clearly rigged game that later resulted in a multi-count indictment for grand theft, and possession of controlled dangerous substances are serious, particularly in that the former is related to gaming activities.

But there are, however, mitigating factors arising from the circumstances. It is evident that Ms. Paul cooperated in the 1985 California bingo scam because of her romantic relationship with Siegel and it is also not disputed that, at the time, she did not feel that her activities were illegal or immoral, and did not have a deep understanding or the proper and legal role of a "shill". She was nearing 40 years of age at the time, had never been married, and very badly wanted a marriage and family of her own. At this point in her life, she came into contact with Stewart Siegel, who may be most charitably described as a charming con man who, though he very well may have had genuine feelings of love for Ms. Paul, also used her, apparently without any compunctions whatsoever, to carry off his California bingo scam. Ms. Paul was not the only woman duped by Siegel: he flew several others in to act as shills in this fraud. But she was particularly vulnerable and susceptible to his entreaties and charms because of her own feelings for him and her own desire to have a future and a family with him. She was, I suppose, old and experienced enough to know better than to place such unquestioning trust in Mr. Siegel, but she was viewing him and his activities through the sometimes distorting prism and lens of love and longing. Profit and money played no part in her traveling to San Diego at Siegel's expense and in her playing the part of a shill in his scam, even though she later received several thousand dollars, reported to the IRS as gambling winnings. Certainly a person exercising reasonable care would have quickly realized that the Indian reservation bingo game had been rigged by Siegel and that the role of the shill amounted to nothing more than theft, but Ms. Paul was not familiar with the role of a shill, and was also blinded for her love for Siegel and driven by her great desire to reconcile with him after their breakup. For that reason she complied unquestioningly and with great naivete with his request that she help in what was clearly a rip-off of unsuspecting bingo players. That offense was a serious one, as the state of California recognized when it hit Siegel with a six-count indictment for grand theft. But the prime mover and brains behind the operation was Siegel, who coldbloodedly took advantage of Ms. Paul's feelings and desires, and possibly did this with a number of other women he used as shills.

I also found Ms. Paul's statements concerning the cocaine to belong to Siegel to be credible, and her admission of use of small amounts of marijuana to be straightforward and believable. The possession and use of drugs are also serious matters, even in the privacy of one's home, but I believe Ms. Paul's explanation that the cocaine belonged to Siegel, and that she pled guilty because she felt that, nonetheless, it was her responsibility because it was in her home. Again, Ms. Paul's emotional entanglement with Siegel was the prime cause of the cocaine possession charge and that is a very mitigating circumstance. Both her participation as a shill in the California bingo scam and her possession of drugs (except for the marijuana, which is less serious) were isolated and not repeated incidents, and both were prompted and caused by her relationship with Siegel, which, if not a "social condition" under 90h(7) was an essential component of the circumstances in which the offense occurred.

In addition to the mitigating factors surrounding the offenses, there is substantial evidence of rehabilitation in the form of Ms. Paul's continued good performance on the job as noted by character witnesses and evaluations, as well as her good works in the community through her church, as noted by other witnesses.

Under the circumstances taken as a whole, I CONCLUDE that Ms. Paul's licensure is not inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act or to casino operations under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c2, taking into consideration the factors of rehabilitation as discussed above, and I further CONCLUDE that she has shown by clear and convincing evidence her good character, honesty, and integrity so as to continue to hold her casino employee license. This is a case in which a person who had long functioned as a good and trusted casino licensee, was led astray by another who played on her deep and possibly desperate desire for love and a family, which partly blinded her to what cooler eyes might have quickly seen: that she was being used by a con man to commit fraud on others and thereby being defrauded herself:

> [b] ut love is blind, and lovers cannot see > the pretty follies that themselves commit > [Shakespeare]

I do not usually garnish initial decisions with Shakespearean quotations, but this case, more than some I have heard, turns on very human and somewhat tragic terms and I recommend that the Commission not compound Ms. Paul's misfortune in love by taking away the gambling license that she has held long and well, except for her unfortunate association with a con man.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the renewal application of Christina W. Paul as a dealer, for blackjack and roulette, as well as a floorperson for blackjack and roulette, is GRANTED.

However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Record Closed: November 21, 1989 Decided: September 5, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This matter concerns the application of Joseph F. Pepe (petitioner) for licensure as a casino employee, which would permit his employment in a licensed casino as a blackjack dealer. By letter report to the Casino Control Commission dated March 20, 1989, the Division of Gaming Enforcement objected to the petitioner's licensure, based upon his alleged conduct which in New Jersey would be the third degree offenses of promoting gambling and possession of gambling records, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:37-2(a)2 and N.J.S.A. 2C:37-3(a)1.

These are the issues:

1. Has the petitioner committed acts which in New Jersey would constitute the third degree offenses of promoting gambling and possession of gambling records, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:37-2(a)2 and N.J.S.A. 2C:37-3(a)1, which would be automatic disqualifiers from licensure pursuant to sections 86c(1) and 90e of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), even if such conduct was not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this state, as permitted by section 86g of the Act.

2. If the petitioner has committed acts which constitute an otherwise disqualifying offense pursuant to section 86c(1) of the Act, has he affirmatively established his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, pursuant to section 90h of the Act.

3. Has the petitioner established by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

By letter to the Casino Control Commission dated May 5, 1989, the petitioner requested a hearing on his application for licensure. On May 17, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A telephone prehearing conference was held on August 18, 1989. The matter was thereafter heard as scheduled on November 21, 1989, in Pleasantville, New Jersey. The record closed on that date. Issuance of this initial decision was delayed because of my heavy caseload, exacerbated by illness requiring my absence from the office for an extended period.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The material facts in this matter are undisputed. The petitioner is a 31-year-old resident of Margate, New Jersey. He is employed by Bally's Grand Casino Hotel as a parking valet. The petitioner seeks a casino employee license. In addition to having taken the necessary course work for dealing blackjack, the petitioner has also completed a craps dealer course.

Division of Gaming Enforcement Investigator Danial J. Keitt testified that he conducted an investigation concerning the petitioner's employee license application. This investigation revealed that the petitioner was arrested in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania on January 19, 1985, and charged with bookmaking under section 5514 of the Pennsylvania Criminal Code (Exhibit R-1). The arrest arose following execution of a search warrant at the home where the petitioner resided with his parents. A copybook containing a record of over 500 sports bets valued in excess of $250,000 was found in the petitioner's bedroom. This copybook showed that the petitioner had accepted bets between September 6, 1984, and January 18, 1985.

On May 8, 1985, the petitioner entered a plea of guilty to a charge of operating an illegal lottery (Exhibit R-2). The sentence imposed was probation for a period of one year. The petitioner disclosed this arrest and conviction on his personal history disclosure form (Exhibit R-3). It is undisputed that the petitioner completed his probation without incident and paid his fines and imposed costs. It is also undisputed that the petitioner had no arrests or convictions prior to this offense and has had no arrests or convictions since.

Testifying on his own behalf, the petitioner stated that he had been unemployed and was living at home prior to his arrest in January 1985. His family was not in good financial shape and the petitioner wanted to help pay some of the bills. He began calling a telephone number which provided point spreads for sporting events and he started to accept bets. According to the petitioner, the bets were mainly for football games, and some basketball games. He said that he did not take any bets on baseball.

The petitioner testified that taking bets was a common occurrence where he lived in south Philadelphia. His dollar volume handled on any given day would generally be around $200. These bets were placed by people in the neighborhood. When the police executed their search warrant, they found the petitioner's copybook which recorded the bets.

The petitioner testified credibly that his first activity taking bets began in September 1984. He had never done it previously. A friend was retained as his attorney and he persuaded the petitioner to enter a plea of guilty to operating an illegal lottery. Thus, the petitioner was sentenced to one year probation, with no requirement for community service. The petitioner stated that his attorney represented him for free and made no legal attack on the validity of the search warrant. In addition, his attorney did not advise him of any future consequences of his guilty plea.

Testifying on cross examination, the petitioner provided more details concerning his bookmaking activity. He accepted bets only on weekends and on the average, he would have from eight to ten people call him on Saturday and about the same number again on Sunday. The average wager was between $50 and $100, so the petitioner's "handle" for the weekend would be around $1,300. He estimated that over the season prior to his arrest, he made "a couple thousand" dollars.

The petitioner testified sincerely that he has not engaged in any sports betting since 1985. He badly needed the money at the time and allowed himself to do something stupid which he now regrets. Since it was accepted behavior in his community, he did not realize its seriousness at the time. He now recognizes his mistake with the law. He acknowledges his illegal conduct and knows that it was wrong.

After working in Philadelphia as a valet driver, the petitioner came to the Atlantic City area and obtained employment at Bally's Grand as a valet parker. He has also done some construction work. It is the petitioner's sincere desire to maintain stable employment and he would like to enjoy the opportunities available to the holder of a casino employee license.

Several witnesses testified on the petitioner's behalf. Anthony J. Cipriano is a craps dealer at Bally's Grand, and he has known the petitioner since September 1988, when they met at craps dealer school. He described the petitioner as a well-liked and reliable friend. The petitioner is someone who can be trusted.

Joseph V. Marchione has known the petitioner all his life. He described the petitioner as friendly, mannerly, and respectful. It was his testimony that the petitioner has a reputation for honesty and good character. Philadelphia State Representative Joseph Howlett also testified. He has known the petitioner for many years and he described the petitioner as an honest man. Representative Howlett was aware of the petitioner's 1985 arrest when it happened. In his opinion the petitioner deserves a second chance. In support of this view, Representative Howlett disclosed that he had once been arrested himself.

Representative Howlett described several ways in which he knows that the petitioner has done the morally right thing. The petitioner has assisted senior citizens in his legislative district and has helped involve younger children with sports. In addition, Representative Howlett once handed $300 to the petitioner, thinking that it was only $200. The petitioner was to bring the money to his father. When the petitioner noticed that he had been given $300 instead of $200, he promptly let Representative Howlett know of the mistake.

James J. DeMarco, a Pennsylvania attorney also testified on the petitioner's behalf. He stated that the petitioner and his family are very well respected. According to Mr. DeMarco, he would not have come from Pennsylvania to testify at the hearing if he thought the petitioner was dishonest. Edward R. Smith testified that he has worked with the petitioner as a valet parker since May 1985. He has known the petitioner since they attended blackjack school together. In Mr. Smith's opinion, the petitioner is an honest employee.

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to section 80a of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), it is the affirmative responsibility of each applicant and licensee to establish by clear and convincing evidence his individual qualifications. Pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act, and applicant for a casino employee license must demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity. Section 90e incorporates the disqualification criteria set forth in section 86 of the Act. Pursuant to sections 86c(1) and 86g of the Act, the Commission shall deny a casino employee license to any applicant who has committed an offense specifically identified as a disqualifier from licensure, even if such conduct has not been or may not be prosecuted under the laws of this state.

It is undisputed that the petitioner accepted bets from members of the public. These bets concerned the outcome of sporting events. To conduct this activity the petitioner relied on recording the bets in a copybook. On weekend days between September 1984 and January 1985, the petitioner would accept an average of eight to ten bets in amounts which averaged between $50 and $100.

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:37-1g, "bookmaking" means advancing gambling activity by unlawfully accepting bets from members of the public upon the outcome of future contingent events as a business. Under N.J.S.A. 2C:37-2, a person who engages in bookmaking to the extent he receives or accepts in one day more than five bets totalling more than $1,000 is guilty of the crime of promoting gambling in the third degree. Under N.J.S.A. 2C:37-2b, a person who engages in bookmaking to the extent he receives or accepts three or more bets in any two-week period is guilty of a crime of the fourth degree.

Pursuant to sections 86c(1) and 86g of the Casino Control Act, persons who commit gambling offenses under N.J.S.A. 2C:37-1 et seq. which constitute crimes of the third or fourth degree are disqualified from licensure. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner is subject to denial of his application for a casino employee license on the basis of his commission of the offense of promoting gambling in the third or fourth degree, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:37-2. In addition, a person is guilty of possession of gambling records in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:37-3, when he possesses any writing, paper, instrument or article with knowledge of its contents, of a kind commonly used in the operation or promotion of a bookmaking scheme or enterprise. The petitioner's use of a copybook to record the bets which he accepted fulfills the elements of this offense, which is a crime of the third degree. Therefore, I further CONCLUDE that the petitioner is subject to denial of his application for a casino employee license, pursuant to sections 86c(1) and 86g of the Act, for his commission of the third degree offense of possession of gambling records, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:37-3.

Section 90h of the Casino Control Act provides that an applicant shall not be denied a casino employee license on the basis of his otherwise disqualifying conduct, provided that he has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. In determining whether rehabilitation has been affirmatively demonstrated, the following eight factors should be considered: the nature and duties of the position involved; the nature and seriousness of the conduct; the circumstances under which it occurred; the date of the conduct and the actor's age when it was committed; whether the offense was isolated or repeated; social conditions contributing to the conduct; and any evidence of rehabilitation following the conduct.

The respondent is now 34 years old. His offense occurred when he was 25. Although his illegal gambling conduct occurred over a period of several months, the petitioner was never previously involved in illegal activity and has not been since.

The petitioner's offenses occurred when he was unemployed and needed to help his family pay the bills. In his neighborhood, bookmaking was a common and generally accepted behavior. Although the petitioner did not realize the seriousness of this conduct when it occurred, he has since realized that it was a mistake and that it was wrong. He regrets his conduct and he believes that it is well in his past.

The petitioner satisfactorily completed his probationary period, and paid his fines and costs. He has successfully completed training to qualify for employment as a blackjack dealer. The petitioner has demonstrated his increased maturity since his arrest in January 1985. It is highly unlikely that he will have any further criminal involvement. Based upon the foregoing evidence and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, within the meaning of section 90h of the Casino Control Act. Substantial credible evidence was also presented at the hearing to establish the petitioner's good character, honesty and integrity. Based upon this evidence, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has shown that he possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, within the meaning of sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner's application for a casino employee license should be granted.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the application of Joseph F. Pepe for licensure as a casino employee permitting him to work in a casino as a blackjack dealer be GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: July 27, 1990 Decided: September 10, 1990

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on June 22, 1989, seeking the revocation of the casino employee registration issued to the respondent. The respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 4, 1989, to be heard as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

After notice to the parties, a prehearing conference was held on February 20, 1990 at which, among other things, the issues to be resolved by this administrative tribunal were established and the hearing date of July 27, 1990, was scheduled. The matter was heard on July 27, 1990, at the Atlantic City OAL, Atlantic County Civil Courthouse, Atlantic City, New Jersey. The hearing record closed on July 27, 1990.

ISSUES

In accordance with the Division's granted request, the Prehearing Order dated February 26, 1990 was amended to reflect the following issues:

A. Whether respondent committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, Possession of a Controlled Dangerous Substance (Cocaine) With Intent to Distribute and Distribution of a Controlled Dangerous Substance (Cocaine)?

B. Whether respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 91d of the Casino Control Act?

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the testimony and documents proffered at the hearing, I FIND the following FACTS in this matter:

Respondent Drew M. Perry is 19 years of age and the holder of casino hotel employee registration no. 92401-40. Respondent is a school "drop out," having only completed grade 10 of high school. He has taken, but has not successfully passed, the New Jersey General Education Development (GED) examination for his high school equivalency diploma. Respondent is single, living with his mother. He is under court order to provide $15 per week in child support for his 3 year old daughter. He is presently employed by a clothing store at the Ocean One Mall on the Atlantic City Boardwalk earning $4.95 per hour.

Respondent was employed by the Claridge Hotel and Casino under his casino hotel registration. He was terminated from his Claridge position on March 18, 1989, for failure to report for duty. Respondent was subsequently employed by Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino. He was terminated from this position, as a food runner, on May 24, 1989.

Respondent began using alcohol when he was approximately 15 years of age. He subsequently moved into the use and abuse of controlled dangerous substance (CDS). Respondent's mother was an enabler who supplied him with money to purchase alcohol and drugs. On May 4, 1984, respondent was arrested, as a part of a drug undercover operation by the New Jersey State Police (NJSP), for possession of CDS and possession with intent to distribute CDS. Respondent was 18 years of age at the time of arrest when he sold cocaine to Detective John Silver, NJSP, Division of Gaming Enforcement Investigator.

On June 14, 1989, respondent was indicted by the Atlantic County Grand Jury on one count of distribution of CDS, a third degree offense. N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a(1) On July 31, 1989, respondent entered a guilty plea to an amended charge of possession of CDS (N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1)) before the Honorable Manuel H. Greenberg, JSC, who imposed sentence as follows: (1) Two years probation; (2) $1,000 mandatory Drug Enforcement and Demand Reduction (D.E.D.R.) Penalty; (3) $50 Laboratory fee for processing the CDS; (4) $30 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (VCCB); all sums payable monthly; (5) The suspension of his motor vehicle driver license for a term of six (6) months; and, (6) Inpatient or outpatient drug treatment as directed.

On August 1, 1989, one day after respondent had entered his guilty plea to the N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1), offense, he was placed under arrest for the possession of CDS (cocaine). Respondent was again indicted by the Atlantic County Grand Jury on one count of possession of CDS, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1). Judge Greenberg assigned the following sentence after respondent entered a plea of guilty to the charge on October 13, 1989; (1) Two years probation to run concurrently with the former sentence; (2) DEDR Penalty of $30; (3) VCCB penalty of $30; (4) Laboratory fee of $50; (5) Suspension of New Jersey driving privileges for six (6) months to run consecutively with former sentence; and, (6) Inpatient or outpatient drug treatment as directed. All of the fines and penalties to be paid in monthly installments.

At the time of the herein hearing, respondent had paid a total of $60 toward the fines and penalties. Respondent paid $50 immediately after the first sentencing and $10 on July 26, 1990, a day prior to the hearing. Respondent's mother provided him with the $50 for the first payment. The second payment of $10 was from respondent's own funds.

Subsequent to his second arrest and prior to the second conviction, respondent entered the Charter Fairmount Institute, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, on August 21, 1989, for drug/alcohol abuse treatment. He completed the in-patient program and was discharged on September 18, 1989. Respondent's in-patient care at the Charter Fairmount Institute was paid by his mother's insurance program.

Respondent has received a favorable report from his probation officer who asserts, among other things, that respondent is working, going to school and searching for better employment. Respondent reports to the probation office on every scheduled date and he has demonstrated a very positive attitude and eagerness to turn away from a negative lifestyle (R-2).

Respondent participated in a Job Connection program from October 1989 through December 1989. This program, sponsored by Atlantic Community College, addresses the problems of employability and basic skills as well as preparation for the G.E.D. examination. On January 23, 1990, respondent entered into a contract with Associated Business Careers, Atlantic City, for a course of study in Personal Computer Specialist. Respondent successfully completed the course after six months.

Respondent is presently serving his probation, which will terminate on October 13, 1991, if successfully completed.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Casino Hotel Employee Registration - Disqualification Under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86q as Incorporated Into Section 86c(1) of the Casino Control Act

Section 86c(1) of the Act mandates that a person who has been convicted of any one or more of the enumerated offenses therein under Title 2C of the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice shall be disqualified from holding a casino employee license or a casino hotel employee registration. Respondent was arrested, charged and indicted on the charge of distribution of CDS (cocaine) contrary to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a(1). This offense is one of those enumerated in section 86c(1) of the Act which provides for respondent's disqualification to hold registration as a casino hotel employee. Respondent, however, entered a plea of guilty to the offense of possession of CDS, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1). The offense of possession of CDS under N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(1) is not one of those disqualifying enumerated in section 86c(1) of the Act. The Division, therefore, brings this action against respondent under section 86g of the Act, which provides that:

> The Commission shall deny a casino license (or registration) to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of any of the following criteria
> g. The commission by the applicant who is required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of this section, even if such conduct has not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State;

The evidence produced by the Division, by way of the testimony of Detective John Silver and the documents marked P-1 through P-4 in evidence, clearly demonstrate that respondent, indeed, was in the business of selling cocaine. Respondent's testimony corroborates the Division's assertion that he was in possession of CDS and that he possessed CDS for the purpose of distributing it, specifically on May 4, 1989 as alleged by Detective Silver.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the Division has met its burden of proof, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that respondent committed a disqualifying offense, pursuant to section 86g of the Act as it incorporates N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

Accordingly, I FIND and CONCLUDE that such disqualifying offense warrants revocation of respondent's casino hotel employee registration as provided by section 86 of the Act.

Rehabilitation Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d.

A current registrant faced with the existence of one or more section 86 disqualifications in a disciplinary proceeding has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against continued registration by affirmatively demonstrating his rehabilitation, pursuant to section 91d of the Act. This statute sets forth eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination for rehabilitation is to be made. Section 91d of the Act provides as follows:

(1) The nature and duties of the registrant's position;
(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
(4) The date of the offense or conduct;
(5) The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;
(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
(8) Any evidence or rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision.

(1) Respondent is not currently employed in the hotel/casino industry although he holds casino hotel employee registration no. 92401-40. His previous employment with Claridge and Harrah's ended with his termination for failure to appear for duty and inability to perform his assigned duties. His position as a food runner would have provided him with minimal contact with casino patrons.

(2) Respondent's disqualifying offense of possession of CDS is serious, particularly in view of the fact that respondent is privileged to work in the casino industry, where he has had daily contacts with other casino employees. There is no allegation that respondent possessed or distributed illegal drugs while he was employed at the hotel/casinos. However, he admitted on the hearing record that he used illegal drugs while employed in the casino industry and lost his job at the Claridge, "Because I was too busy getting high." (TR. p. 45, l. 22-23).

(3) Respondent's arrest was as a result of the NJSP conduct of an undercover operation. He, among others, were caught in the sting operation and arrested for possession and possession of CDS with the intent to distribute. Respondent, by his own admission, had abused and distributed drugs for a long period of time prior to his arrest.

(4) and (5) Respondent was arrested for possession of CDS with intent to distribute on May 4, 1989, when he was 18 years of age. He was subsequently arrested on August 1, 1989 for possession of CDS at the same age.

(6) Although respondent's arrest on May 4, 1989, was his first, the conduct of the distribution of CDS had been continuous for a period of years. He admits to the use of alcohol and drugs at the age of 15 years and that it continued until his entry into the Charter Fairmount Institute on or about August 21, 1989.

(7) There was no evidence of social conditions which contributed to respondent's offense or conduct.

(8) Respondent produced evidence that he has met the conditions of his probation and that he completed a 28-day in-patient program for alcohol and drug abuse at the Charter Fairmount Institute. At the time of the hearing, respondent was gainfully employed and was meeting his commitments for child support. The record demonstrates, however, that he had made less than minimum efforts to pay his court ordered fines and penalties. Respondent has, moreover, successfully completed a Personal Computer Specialist program through Associated Business Careers. He has also engaged in an Atlantic Community College sponsored Job Connection program to assess his employability basic skills and to prepare him for the GED examination which he has failed to pass.

Having carefully considered all of the factors in N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d, and having given fair weight thereto, I am not persuaded that respondent has met his statutory burden of establishing his rehabilitation. He has not, nor will he complete his Court ordered probation period until October 13, 1991. In, addition, he has made less than minimum efforts to address and meet his obligations to pay the Court ordered fines and penalties imposed upon him. The fines for both convictions total more than $1,100. Yet, in approximately one year, he has paid only $10 of his own earnings toward this obligation. The other $50 paid to the Court came from his mother.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that respondent has failed to affirmatively establish his rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d. Given more time under the present conditions and circumstances, respondent may be in the position to demonstrate rehabilitation.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the casino hotel employee registration no 92401-40, issued to Drew M. Perry be and is hereby REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record closed: AUGUST 17, 1990 Decided: SEPTEMBER 7, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on August 4, 1989 objecting to a casino employee license being issued to petitioner. The Division alleges that petitioner was convicted of a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) (hereinafter referred to as the Act) and that she lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its letter of objection with the Commission on August 4, 1989. Petitioner requested a hearing on September 8, 1989 and on September 22, 1989 the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on February 27, 1990 by Joseph F. Fidler, ALJ followed by a hearing which was held on August 17, 1990. The record was closed on August 17, 1990.

ISSUES

1. Has petitioner been convicted of false swearing in the fourth degree, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:28-2a, which would be a disqualifier from licensure pursuant to sections 86c(1) and 90e of the Casino Control Act N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.

2. With reference in part to the petitioner's arrest record, does she possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act?

3. Has the petitioner, if she has been convicted of an otherwise disqualifying offense, affirmatively established her rehabilitation, pursuant to Section 90h of the Act?

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based upon testimony and documents proffered at the hearing, the following represents FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

Petitioner is 26 years old, married and lives with her husband and four children. At the time she was a teenager, she associated with the "wrong crowd" which resulted in several minor encounters with the criminal justice system. At the age of 15, she began dating and later lived with Allen Wilson. According to petitioner, Mr. Wilson had been in trouble with the law since he was 13 and had spent time in a juvenile detention center. Her relationship was stable only for the first year, thereafter, when becoming intoxicated, Mr. Wilson would beat the petitioner to the point where at one time, she was hospitalized with a fractured jaw and concussion.

A. HAS PETITIONER BEEN CONVICTED OF AN OFFENSE WHICH WOULD DISQUALIFY HER FROM LICENSURE PURSUANT TO SECTION 86c(1) OF THE ACT.

Petitioner has been arrested and found guilty of three offenses. On August 24, 1984, petitioner pled guilty to false swearing, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:28-2(a). Although a crime of the fourth degree, Section 86c(1) specifically includes false swearing as one of the enumerated disqualifers. Section 86c(1) states:

> "The conviction of the applicant, or of any person required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license, of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be:
>
> (1) Any of the following offenses under the "New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice," P.L.1978, c. 95 (Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes) as amended and supplemented: ... N.J.S. 2C:28-1 et seq. (perjury and other falsification in official matters which constitute crimes of the second, third or fourth degree); ...".

I, THEREFORE, FIND that petitioner has been convicted of a crime which does disqualify her from licensure pursuant to Section 86c(1) of the Act.

B. HAS PETITIONER DEMONSTRATED HER REHABILITATION BY CLEAR AND CONVINCING EVIDENCE PURSUANT TO SECTION 90h OF THE ACT.

Petitioner, although faced with an 86c(1) disqualifying offense, can nevertheless, overcome such a bar to her licensure if she is able to demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that she has been rehabilitated pursuant to Section 90h of the Act. This section of the Casino Control Act evidences the intent on the part of the legislature to permit an applicant to demonstrate that rehabilitation has occurred and that the applicant is accordingly suitable for licensure by an industry which is strictly regulated. The eight enumerated factors which are to be considered in determining whether rehabilitation has been achieved are as follows:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for.

The position applied for by the petitioner, that of a blackjack dealer, constitutes a challenge to her since the only job she has ever held has been that of a cashier in an Acme Supermarket and now in a Wawa Grocery Store. Petitioner has received a certificate from Professional Dealer's School and there is no objection to her qualifications filed by the Division. Under the circumstances of the statutory disqualifier as more fully set forth below, her conviction for false swearing on August 24, 1984 does not pose a threat to the casino industry in the event petitioner is licensed and employed as a blackjack dealer.

2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct.

Petitioner was charged and pled guilty to false swearing which is a crime of the fourth degree. She was sentenced to pay a penalty in the amount of $250, a $25 payment to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board, 75 hours of community service and two years probation. Considering the type and degree of the offense, the crime is not considered to be one of a serious nature.

3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred.

Petitioner had noticed for a period of time that Allen Wilson would return with items which obviously did not belong to him. When questioning him about the property, petitioner was met with abuse and threats of extreme violence should she call or otherwise inform law enforcement officials. Finally, early in 1984 Mr. Wilson burglarized the home of one of petitioner's neighbors for which she had great love and respect. When he refused to return the items, petitioner got up the courage to call the police and provide them with information regarding two burglaries in the neighborhood. As a result, petitioner agreed to act as a witness against Mr. Wilson who was later convicted of two of the neighborhood burglaries. Because petitioner had been untruthful concerning police inquiries in the past, she was also charged with false swearing to which she entered a plea of guilty on August 24, 1984. Petitioner now found herself in a position where she was being charged with false swearing since, in the past, out of fear for her life, she had supplied the police officials with incorrect information.

4. The date of the offense or conduct.

Petitioner was charged with false swearing on April 17, 1984 and pled guilty on August 24, 1984.

5. The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed.

Petitioner was 20 years old at the time of the offense and she is now 26 years old.

6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident.

The offense of false swearing to which petitioner entered a guilty plea, has occurred only once in her life. There are two other convictions, as more fully set forth below, however, these offenses do not constitute statutory disqualifiers pursuant to Section 86c(1) of the Act. Except for a disorderly charge, petitioner has not been convicted of any offense since the April 1984 incident.

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct.

The social conditions surrounding the offense mitigate heavily in petitioner's favor. Petitioner's conduct was brought about by fear that her boyfriend would inflict physical harm upon her.

8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

Since removing herself from the influence of Mr. Wilson and the "old crowd" petitioner has demonstrated that she is a responsible individual. She coached children in the T-ball League for three years and coached women's basketball for one year. Petitioner, and her husband, recognized that it would be beneficial for petitioner to be away from her old friends who, for many years, had such a bad influence upon her. In the last year, petitioner with her husband and four children have moved to Egg Harbor Township, New Jersey. She has been working at a local Wawa for the last six months and apparently is well respected by her employer who often requests that she does overtime. Petitioner was encouraged to submit into evidence a letter from her current employer, however, she refused feeling that he would not want her to leave the store and that she did not want him to be aware that she was attempting to seek employment in the casino industry. The letters presented on behalf of petitioner, P-1 and P-2 mirror petitioner's testimony that she is now a mature responsible mother of four who is now attempting to embark upon a new career.

I FIND that based upon the above facts, petitioner has demonstrated her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. This conclusion takes into consideration the fact that I found petitioner to be a polite, sincere and believable individual.

C. DOES PETITIONER POSSESS THE REQUISITE GOOD CHARACTER, HONESTY AND INTEGRITY REQUIRED OF A LICENSE HOLDER BY SECTION 89b OF THE ACT.

Despite petitioner's conviction for false swearing, I FIND her to be a credible and honest individual. Her conviction was a result of her providing false information to the police, an act which was committed more out of fear for her own personal safety rather than because of any criminal motive. Petitioner has removed herself from the individuals who had such a deleterious effect on her life and now enjoys the support of a loving husband, the results of which are evident in her personality and lack of arrests for the last two years. Based upon these factors as well as those set forth in the rehabilitation analysis set forth above, I FIND that petitioner does possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure.

SUMMARY

I FIND that petitioner was found guilty of a statutory disqualifier pursuant to 86c(1) of the Act, that of false swearing in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:28-2(a). I FURTHER FIND that petitioner has demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence her rehabilitation and her good character, honesty and integrity thus permitting her to hold a casino employee license. IT IS SO ORDERED this 7th day of September, 1990.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CCC 428-90
AGENCY DKT. NO. 89-EA-194

IN THE MATTER OF THE APPLICATION OF KAREN L. PHILLIPS FOR A CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSE.

Karen L. Phillips, petitioner, pro se
Norma Stancil, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: August 13, 1990 Decided: September 17, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

The petitioner is registered with the Casino Control Commission (Commission). The petitioner permitted her casino employee license to lapse. A casino employee license permits a person to work on the casino floor. Petitioner applied to the Commission for a new casino employee license. The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), by letter to the Commission, dated October 31, 1989, objected to the relicensure of the petitioner on several grounds which were identified as issues to be determined at a plenary hearing.

ISSUES

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: theft by deception contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, by improperly receiving unemployment benefits.

B. Whether petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

C. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite financial stability, integrity and responsibility, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(1).

D. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act.

DISQUALIFICATION

At a plenary hearing conducted on August 13, 1990, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 5:12-107, the State proved and the petitioner admitted that she received unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled. The uncontradicted evidence reveals that petitioner received approximately $984 of unemployment benefits in 1981 when she was employed at Spencer's Gifts and at the Head Start Program sponsored by Atlantic Human Resources, Inc. This constitutes theft by deception contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 and 2 in the third degree because it exceeds $500.

Section 86c 1 of the Casino Control Act contains a list of crimes. If a person is convicted of any one of them, she is disqualified from obtaining a casino employee license, which permits a licensee to work on the casino floor. Third degree theft is on the list. Section 86g of the Act permits the Division to prove that criminal conduct occurred even if no prosecution was conducted by the State. I therefore CONCLUDE that the petitioner is disqualified from casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c 1.

REHABILITATION, CHARACTER AND FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY

An applicant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c(1) disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating her rehabilitation as provided by section 90h of the Act The factors which the Commission shall consider in determining the applicants rehabilitation are as follows: (1) The nature and duties of the position applied for; (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct; (3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred; (4) The date of the offense or conduct; (5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed; (6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident; (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct; (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

(1) The petitioner has applied for a casino employee license as a casino teller. If licensed, she would be accountable to the public, and to the casino employing her, for the correct disposition of cash, checks, credits, or chips.

(2) The offense committed by the petitioner was not serious. She was not prosecuted for its commission. It was not a crime of violence. No person was injured by her actions. Unemployment benefit theft is one of the milder forms of white collar crime. In this case it is a third degree crime and carries a presumption with it that a first offender will not be incarcerated. N.J.S.A. 2C:44-1e. There is no question however, that it is a factor to be considered in licensing a person to handle cash or other similar items because it raises the question of honesty.

(3) (6) & (7) The petitioner was sent to Artic Avenue near Indiana Avenue in Atlantic City to live with her grandparents when she was 17 years old after it was discovered that she was pregnant. She did not finish high school. She recounted an alienated childhood and young adulthood of having babies, taking drugs and living on welfare. She was a recipient of Aid to Families with Dependent Children. She had a second child. Petitioner has always been a single parent and totally responsible for her two children. The County Welfare Agency, through its WIN program, trained the petitioner and found employment for her with Spencer Gifts and Project Head Start, operated by Atlantic Human Resources. The WIN program was designed to put welfare recipients to work. It was during this time that the petitioner collected the unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled. She acknowledges that she was wrong and made mistakes in her life.

(4) & (5) The offense occurred in 1981 when the petitioner was 30 years old. It was shortly after this offense was committed that the petitioner, who is now 39 years old, began to organize her life.

(8) Petitioner, working with a casino hotel registration, obtained employment at the Tropicana Hotel and Casino and was there from 1983 until she resigned in February 1989. While at Tropicana as a reservationist, the petitioner was very successful and highly regarded. She was reservationist of the month in April of 1984. She received a superior annual review in 1989, her last year of employment. She was chosen to participate in the Upward Mobility Program at Tropicana and successfully completed her course of studies there. In fact, it was her success in this program which inadvertently led to her resignation. She expected a promotion as a result of successfully completing the course. She was even offered a promotion, but the salary was misrepresented to her. This led to harsh words between her and her supervisor and as a result the supervisor felt their differences were irreconcilable. Petitioner was permitted to resign as an alternative to firing.

The petitioner has since been employed at Resorts where she is a reservationist for "high rollers." She earns approximately $16,000 per annum. She has been earning this sum for the last several years. It is not a large sum and as a result the petitioner has been unable to make much headway in paying off an outstanding debt to the New Jersey Education Assistance Authority. She has also failed to pay the fine of $160 imposed as a result of her collection of unemployment benefits. The $984 which she collected has been repaid. When she left the Tropicana after 5 years and 8 months, she was entitled to unemployment benefits. The Unemployment Division applied her benefits to the debt.

There is evidence in the record that the petitioner has been arrested 5 times. She explained these arrests satisfactorily. In 1974, she received a conditional discharge for possessing a small amount of marijuana and in 1975 she paid a $100 fine for possessing narcotic paraphernelia. This is consistent with her testimony that she formerly used drugs when a resident of Artic Avenue in Atlantic City (she described her neighborhood near Indiana Avenue as "Bad!").

The petitioner admitted on her application for casino licensure, although her FBI rap sheet fails to report it, that she was arrested for shoplifting in 1978. She explained that she inadvertently pocketed a package of cigarettes while shopping These three arrests are more than 10 years old and are not significant.

In 1980, the applicant was arrested in Ballys Park Place Casino Hotel, where she was employed, and charged with possession of cocaine. As a result, she was terminated from Ballys. She was later found not guilty of this charge. In 1987, the petitioner failed to appear for a traffic court hearing and was fined $30.

Nothing in her arrest record negates the petitioner's claim that she is rehabilitated or that she has acquired good character, honesty and integrity. Certainly nothing in the record supports a contention that she does not possess financial responsibility. The record merely supports her contention that she is poor.

The petitioner has been off of welfare for almost 10 years, thanks to the WIN program. From a pregnant, dope-smoking, teenage dropout, she has become a steady, hard working member of the casino work force. Her children are now 17 and 22. This is her time and opportunity to progress farther. As evidence that the petitioner is acquiring maturity and social skills, she introduced, among other things, a letter from the Deputy General Manager for Operations at New Jersey Transit recognizing her efforts to retain a bus route which the company had proposed discontinuing. The petitioner had prepared a petition, obtained signatures and presented the petition at a public meeting.

During the entire hearing, the petitioner presented herself in a truthful and forthright manner, although she was nervous and prone to overstatement. She has, nevertheless, an honest and open demeanor.

CONCLUSIONS

Based on the totality of the evidence presented, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has affirmatively demonstrated her rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

I further CONCLUDE that the petitioner has demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence that, although poor, she has the requisite financial stability, integrity and responsibility required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(1).

I further CONCLUDE that the petitioner has demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence that she possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

DISPOSITION

Therefore it is ORDERED that the letter filed by the Division be DISMISSED and that the petitioner's application for licensure be GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT,

Guy S. Michael, Esq., for petitioner (Brown & Michael, attorneys)

James J. Armstrong, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: October 23, 1989 Decided: September 4, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH F. FIDLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner seeks renewal of his casino employee license, which permits him to work in a licensed casino as a blackjack dealer and box person. By letter report to the Casino Control Commission dated March 30, 1989, the Division of Gaming Enforcement objected to the renewal, based primarily upon his alleged failure to disclose material information concerning his arrest record. These are the issues:

1. With specific reference to the petitioner's arrest on February 4, 1986, on charges of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana under 25 grams), comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(4), and possession of drug paraphernalia, comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:36-2, has the petitioner failed to reveal material facts and supplied untrue or misleading information pertaining to the qualification criteria, and if so, is he disqualified from licensure pursuant to section 86b of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.).

2. Has the petitioner established by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On June 1, 1989, the Casino Control Commission transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A telephone prehearing conference was held on August 18, 1989. The hearing was thereafter held as scheduled on October 23, 1989, and the record closed on that date. Issuance of this initial decision was delayed because of my heavy caseload, exacerbated by illness requiring my absence from the office for an extended period.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The material facts in this matter are essentially undisputed. The petitioner is 30 years old and he resides in the Atlantic City area. He holds casino employee license number 19371-21, originally issued by the Casino Control Commission on May 20, 1981.

According to the petitioner's employee license renewal application (Exhibit R-3) and the Division investigation report (Exhibit R-2), the petitioner was employed as a craps dealer at Caesar's Boardwalk Regency Casino between June 1980 and May 1984. He then worked as a craps dealer for a year at Trump's Castle. Following a short break from employment in the casino industry, the petitioner then worked for about a year at Trump's Plaza Casino. The petitioner has held his present employment as a craps dealer at Trump's Castle for well over three years.

The incident which has given rise to the present matter concerns the petitioner's arrest on February 4, 1986, for possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana under 25 grams) and possession of drug paraphernalia. These are offenses comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(4) and N.J.S.A. 2C:36-2, respectively. The petitioner was a passenger in a vehicle which was being driven by a friend. When the vehicle was parked on the shoulder of the Garden State Parkway, State Police troopers approached to investigate. A clear plastic bag containing marijuana was observed next to the petitioner. Marijuana cigarette rolling papers were also discovered. The petitioner was arrested and issued a complaint and summons for the foregoing charges; he was then released on his own recognizance pending a court appearance on March 4, 1986.

The petitioner testified that the marijuana and other paraphernalia were not his. Nevertheless, he claimed responsibility because he did not have a driver license and feared he would be unable to drive his friend's car if his friend were arrested. He was well aware that the marijuana was in the car prior to his arrest.

The petitioner stated that he did not obtain legel representation when he went to court. He was found guilty on March 18, 1986, in Berkely Township Municipal Court and was sentenced to a six-month probation on a conditional discharge (Exhibit R-2). The petitioner testified credibly that he does not remember too much about the court proceeding, but he understood that his record would be clean after he completed six months probation.

New Jersey State Police Detective Frank Gordan testified that he is assigned to the Division and he conducted a background investigation concerning the petitioner's renewal application. This investigation included a review of the information which the petitioner had provided on his application form, dated May 28, 1987 (Exhibit R-3). In response to questions number 6 and number 7, which require disclosure of an applicant's arrest and conviction record, the petitioner had indicated he had no arrest and conviction record by checking the "no" boxes.

Detective Gordan had received a report from the FBI which listed the petitioner's arrest on February 4, 1986. Detective Gordan conducted an interview by telephone with the petitioner on September 14, 1988. He testified that he asked the petitioner if he had ever been arrested and the petitioner said "no." The Detective then read questions number 6 and number 7 to the petitioner and again asked him if he had been arrested. Again, the petitioner said "no." Then, the detective told the petitioner that he had an FBI report which listed the petitioner having been arrested on February 4, 1986. According to Detective Gordan, the petitioner again denied having been arrested. However, the detective then told the petitioner that he had in his possession a copy of the actual arrest and investigation report. At that point, the petitioner admitted the arrest.

Detective Gordan's testimony concerning this matter was sincere and credible. He had asked the petitioner if he understood questions number 6 and number 7. Significantly, it was Detective Gordan's testimony that the petitioner said he did understand the questions and that he understood that he did not need to disclose the arrest since the charges had been dropped because of the conditional discharge.

The petitioner's testimony was likewise sincere and credible. He stated his awareness of Division investigations and the strictness concerning providing information. It was the petitioner's believable testimony that he answered "no" when the detective asked if he had been arrested because he thought that "no" was the right answer.

The petitioner was not sure how many times the detective asked him if he had been arrested. However, he eventually admitted that he had been. He explained to the detective that he did not think that he had any record because he thought that the charges had been dropped. It was his understanding then that he did not need to disclose the arrest under that circumstance. It was the petitioner's believable testimony that he was not trying to deceive the detective. Having noted that he was never arrested before or after this incident, the petitioner stated that he didn't think the arrest would affect his renewal application if it had been disclosed.

Testifying on the respondent's behalf were Angelo Bianco and Jerry Florio. Mr. Bianco is a dual rated pit boss at Trump's Castle and he is the petitioner's direct supervisor. He has known the petitioner for well over six years and considers him to be a good friend. Most important, Mr. Bianco trusts the petitioner.

Mr. Florio is a floor person at Trump's Castle. He has known the petitioner for over 25 years. He considers the petitioner to be a very good person; a person to be trusted. Both witnesses hold the petitioner in high regard.

All of the preceding evidence is essentially undisputed and believable, and is thus FOUND AS FACT.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Pursuant to section 80a of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.), it is the affirmative responsibility of each applicant and license to establish by clear and convincing evidence his individual qualifications for licensure. Among these qualifications is the requirement that an applicant for a casino employee license demonstrate that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Act.

Section 90e of the Act provides that a casino employee license shall be denied to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of the Act. Section 86b provides that the Commission shall deny licensure to an applicant disqualified for failure to provide information required by the Act or requested by the Commission, or for failure of the applicant to reveal any fact material to qualification, or for the supplying of information which is untrue or misleading as to a material fact pertaining to the qualification criteria. An intentional nondisclosure, premised upon the belief of the applicant that licensure would be adversely affected by disclosure, is grounds for mandatory diqualification. However, it is well settled that an inadvertent or ignorant failure to make a dislosure will not warrant disqualification.

It is undisputed in this matter that the information concerning the petitioner's arrest and conviction record was material to his qualifications for licensure. It is further undisputed that the petitioner did not disclose in his employee licensure renewal application his 1986 arrest and conviction. However, the undisputed facts in this matter also established that the petitioner mistakenly understood that he did not need to reveal his arrest and conviction because of the conditional discharge disposition. The petitioner had no intention of deceiving the Commission or the Division, and his failure to disclose the arrest and conviction was not committed intentionally or in disregard of the regulatory process. I so CONCLUDE. Thus, I further CONCLUDE that the petitioner is not disqualified from licensure pursuant to section 86b of the Act, in light of his ignorant failure to disclose material information.

The petitioner has no other record of arrests or convictions. He satisfactorily completed his probationary period pursuant to the conditional discharge. The petitioner has worked without adverse incident in the casino industry for a substantial time. He is respected by his supervisors who have expressed their trust in him. On the basis of the undisputed facts in this matter, I CONCLUDE the petitioner has sustained his burden of establishing by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure as a casino employee, within the meaning of sections 89b(2) and 90b of the Casino Control Act. Therefore, I further CONCLUDE that the petitioner's application for renewal of his casino employee license should be granted.

ORDER OF DISPOSITION

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that the application of Ralph M. Pitts for licensure renewal as a casino employee be GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

OAL DKT. NO. CCC-6211-89

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) objecting to the renewal of the casino employee registration #84529-40 issued to respondent. The Division alleges among other things that respondent committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier for licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5 (possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) with intent to distribute).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its complaint with the Commission on July 26, 1989. Respondent requested a hearing on August 2, 1989 and on August 15, 1989 the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on December 21, 1989 by Edgar R. Holmes, ALJ followed by a hearing which was held on June 26, 1990. The record was closed on July 6, 1990.

ISSUES

A. Whether respondent was convicted of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5 (possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) with intent to distribute).

B. Whether respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 91(d) of the Casino Control Act.

UNCONTESTED FACTS

Based upon testimony and documents proffered at the hearing, the following facts are neither contested nor in dispute. Therefore, these uncontested facts are hereby adopted as FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

Respondent is a 21 year old single female with one child who was issued a casino hotel registration #84529-40. She is currently unemployed and has never worked in the casino industry on a regular basis with the exception of a period of approximately one month, in March 1990 when she held the position of a parking lot cashier at Bally's Hotel and Casino. Respondent's intention is to retain her casino registration in order that she may better her life and provide support to her only child. From the time of the incident in question until today, respondent resides at 61 North Illinois Avenue, Apartment 422-B, Atlantic City, New Jersey.

On September 6, 1987 at approximately 4:00 A.M., respondent was outside of her apartment with several acquaintences. The Atlantic City Police Department had received a report of drugs being sold in the neighborhood. When responding to the call, respondent was observed running into the hallway of her apartment at which time the police saw her drop several bags of what was later identified as cocaine from her pockets. Thereafter, she was placed under arrest and charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance; possession of a controlled dangerous substance at or near school property; possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute; distribution of a controlled dangerous substance at or near school property. The controlled dangerous substance set forth in the indictment consisted of thirteen bags of cocaine. On April 26, 1988 respondent entered a plea of guilty to one count of possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5. She received three years probation and was ordered to pay $30.00 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board, $50.00 lab fee and $1,000.00 DERD. These penalties are to be paid during the period of probation.

Although petitioner admitted entering a plea of guilty on February 8, 1988 she maintained her innocence throughout the entire hearing. She contended that at the time of her arrest she was asked to take the fall by other individuals who insisted that they would pay her to admit to owning the drugs and that if she did not, serious harm could befall her. Respondent's mother corroborated her daughter's story by indicating that she was present when these unnamed individuals threatened her daughter. Respondent proffered no other evidence to support her theory that she had entered an involuntary plea of guilty out of duress and fear for her own safety.

At the time of her arrest, petitioner described her neighborhood as one in which drugs were all pervasive. This a neighborhood where individuals are many times coerced into taking responsibility for possessing drugs rather than risk the wrath of the dealer. Being well aware of this environment, respondent's mother urged her to plead guilty even though she was convinced that her daughter had never dealt in drugs.

Although I can sympathize with respondent as to the reasons why she felt it was necessary to enter a plea of guilty I cannot, nevertheless, dismiss the fact that such a plea was entered and that respondent did not come forward with sufficient evidence to rebut the State's prima facie case of per se disqualification pursuant to section 86c(1) of the Act. Assuming as true respondent's argument, the fact still remains that the evidence presented by her was simply not sufficient so as to draw into question her guilty plea entered on February 8, 1988. The Superior Court, and not this tribunal, is the forum in which respondent could re-open her previously entered guilty plea. Unfortunately for her, this tribunal does not have the authority to draw into question or to otherwise overturn her plea. Respondent is precluded from litigating the facts upon which a previously adjudicated judgment of conviction and plea was based. See Matter of Tinnelli, 194 N.J. Super. 492, 498 (1984)

Accordingly, I FIND that respondent has been convicted of a statutory disqualifier pursuant to 86c(1) of the Act, that of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) with intent to distribute, N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5. Respondent is thus precluded from retaining her hotel registration #84529-40.

A hotel registrant who is faced with one of the statutory disqualifiers set forth in section 86c(1) of the Act is nevertheless afforded the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating her rehabilitation. Section 91(d) of the Act sets forth eight specific criteria which are to be considered and evaluated in determining whether respondent has been rehabilitated. The specific eight factors are:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense;
3. The circumstances under which the offense occurred;
4. The date of the offense;
5. The age of the registrant or applicant when the offense was committed;
6. Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counselling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work release program or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant (registrant) under their supervision.

Respondent, on June 9, 1988 completed her Personal History Disclosure Form. On the top of page 8, question 9 the applicant is required to disclose, amongst other information, any arrests or convictions and the terms and conditions thereof. On the portion of the question dealing with convictions, respondent checked yes, however, when asked to describe the offense she only filled in possession and not the entire charge that of possession with intent to distribute. Respondent agreed during the course of the hearing that this portion of the Personal History Disclosure Form was not complete. Additionally, on page 8, question 9 respondent indicated the disposition of the offense to be "dismissed". Such action on the part of the respondent although not significant, weighs against her claim of rehabilitation since she does not seem willing to face the nature and extent of her conviction.

Respondent offered little in the way of evidence of her rehabilitation. Since the date of the offense when she was 19, she is now 21, she has not worked except for brief employment with Bally's Hotel and Casino in the position of a parking lot cashier. This employment which began in February of 1990 concluded March 22, 1990 when she was fired for being late on several occasions. Respondent stated that the reason she was late was that she was tending to her sick child. As a result of her lack of employment since her conviction, she has been unable to pay much of the penalties ordered as a condition of her probation. She still owns $800.00 which, according to the terms of her probation, must be paid off within the three year probationary period which will conclude in April of 1991. Mitigating in respondent's favor is the fact that she had not been in trouble with the law prior to her arrest on September 6, 1987 and she has not been arrested or convicted of any offense since then. When asked what she has been doing to better her life she responded "taking care of my child and staying out of trouble".

Respondent's conviction for possession of a controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) with intent to distribute, N.J.S.A. 2c:35-5 is a most serious crime especially when committed within 1,000 feet of a school. Respondent has had just over two years to demonstrate rehabilitation during which time she has failed to better her life other than to stay out of trouble. I do not mean to downplay the fact that she has not been arrested or convicted of any offense since September 6, 1987, however, when considering the serious nature of her conviction against the evidence that she has not been able to accomplish any life skills such as retaining employment or furthering her career or education in the two years that have elapsed since her arrest, I CONCLUDE that respondent has failed to meet her burden of showing rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence pursuant to section 91(d) of the Act. The mere passage of time, especially that of only two years, is not sufficient to demonstrate rehabilitation.

ORDER

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above it is hereby ORDERED that respondent's hotel registration number 84529-40 is hereby REVOKED.

Pedro L. Ramos, Jr., the petitioner, pro se

Record Closed: July 9, 1990 Decided: August 3, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Pedro L. Ramos, Jr., applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the renewal of a casino employee license (casino count room supervisor), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90. The respondent, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), opposed the renewal of the license by reason of its contention that the petitioner had committed a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), by means of section 86g, and therefore, he lacked the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference. The petitioner contended that he was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 90h.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed with the Commission an application for the renewal of a casino employee license so he could be employed as a count room supervisor at the Showboat Hotel and Casino. By letter to the Commission, dated August 10, 1989, the Division objected to the petitioner's application for licensure as a count room supervisor, asserting that the petitioner had committed the offense of theft by deception in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by section 86g. The Division also objected pursuant to section 89(b)2. Based upon the report, the Commission notified the petitioner on September 11, 1989, that there were questions concerning his qualification under the Casino Control Act and that he had the right to a hearing. By application dated September 27, 1989, which was received by the Commission on September 29, 1989, the petitioner requested a hearing. On October 2, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on October 5, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before me on February 8, 1990. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft by deception - third degree.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A.

5:12-89b(2) as incorporated within section 90b.

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was held on July 9, 1990, at the Municipal Courtroom, Absecon City Hall, Absecon, New Jersey, after which the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

(A) STIPULATED FACTS

The parties entered into a Stipulation of Facts (J-1) which provides as follows:

The matters involved in the above-captioned matter having been discussed by and among the parties involved, Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, Attorney for Respondent, State of New Jersey, Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement, by Norma L. Stancil, Deputy Attorney General, and Pedro L. Ramos, Jr., and said matters having been resolved, it is hereby consented to and agreed by and among the parties that:

(1) WHEREAS Petitioner, Pedro L. Ramos, presently holds casino employee license number 58818-21 issued by the Casino Control Commission on April 17, 1985.

(2) WHEREAS by letter dated December 18, 1987, the Division of Gaming Enforcement recommended that Petitioner's application for casino key employee license number 4032-11 be denied based on the allegation that Petitioner had committed the offense of Theft by Deception (Unemployment Fraud - Third Degree), N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, between August 1982 and October 1982; and that Petitioner lacked the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)(2). The Letter of Recommendation is incorporated herein and attached hereto as Exhibit "A" (J-2).

(3) WHEREAS on July 14, 1988, a hearing was held by the Office of Administrative Law in reference to Petitioner's qualification for licensure as a casino key employee. On August 2, 1988, the record of hearing closed. On November 11, 1988, an Initial Decision was filed with the Casino Control Commission, in which Administrative Law Judge Law concluded that Petitioner had committed the offense of Theft by Deception (Third Degree), which disqualified him from licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(g). Judge Law also concluded that Petitioner had established that he possessed the good character, honesty, and integrity required for licensure. A copy of the Initial Decision is incorporated herein and attached hereto as Exhibit "B" (J-3).

(4) WHEREAS, by Order dated April 6, 1989, the Casino Control Commission modified the Initial Decision to reject the finding of good character, concluding that in view of the determination of disqualification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), no decision on this issue is necessary. The Casino Control Commission adopted the Initial Decision as modified and denied Petitioner's application for licensure as a casino key employee. A copy of the Order is incorporated herein and attached hereto as Exhibit "C" (J-4).

(5) WHEREAS, by Letter of Recommendation dated August 10, 1989, the Division of Gaming Enforcement recommended that Petitioner's 1988 Employee License Renewal Application be denied based upon the allegations set forth in paragraph (2), supra.

(6) WHEREAS, the parties recognize that the issue of disqualification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, as set forth in paragraph (2), supra, has been decided in a plenary hearing which resulted in Petitioner's disqualification from licensure as a casino key employee, and that this issue need not be re-litigated.

It is therefore agreed and stipulated by and between the parties hereto that:

1. The facts stated herein, supra, are true and did, in fact, occur.

2. The issues to be decided at the hearing scheduled on July 9, 1990 in reference to Petitioner's 1988 Employee License Renewal Application are whether Petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) as incorporated in section 90b, and whether Petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act.

3. The Prehearing Order dated February 14, 1990 shall be amended to reflect the issues to be decided at the hearing as set forth herein.

As the Stipulation of Facts was entered into freely, knowingly, voluntarily and intelligently, I accepted the Stipulation of Facts and I FIND everything contained therein as FACT.

(B) UNDISPUTED FACTS

In his Initial Decision in CCC 1232-88 (J-3), Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Law found as FACT that:

During the period August and October 1982, petitioner was in receipt of Unemployment Insurance Benefits (UIB) while he was employed by the Deerpark Baking Company, Hammonton, New Jersey. Petitioner was in receipt of six weekly UIB checks in an amount of $122.00 each during the period in which he was employed one to four days per week. Petitioner was subsequently cited for an UIB overpayment of $118 for the week ending March 9, 1985. As of July 7, 1988, petitioner's liability was as follows:

Principal		$ 850.00
Penalty		183.00
Interest		229.54
	Total	$1262.54
	Paid	612.00
	Balance	$ 650.54

While the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance claimed all benefits paid as an overpayment due to fraud, the petitioner was actually entitled to partial payments. If he had properly reported his part-time earnings, the overpayment would have been $574 (R-3).

ALJ Law found that the petitioner entered into a repayment agreement on April 16, 1987, to "refund the UIB overpayments, fines and interest in installment payments of $100 per month until the full claims against him were satisfied. Petitioner made payments of $100 in the months of April, May, June, September 1987 and February and March 1988" (J-3). On March 31, 1989, the petitioner entered into a second repayment agreement to repay the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance at a rate of $55.00 per month (P-6). The petitioner fully satisfied this debt on March 28, 1990 (P-5, P-7 & R-1). A Warrant For Satisfaction was entered in the Superior Court of New Jersey on April 24, 1990, and the previously issued judgment for debt was discharged (P-7).

ALJ Law found that:

> Petitioner's employment history shows that he was engaged in a variety of unskilled jobs, many of which were part-time or seasonal positions commencing on or about July 1979. Petitioner was employed as a porter by the Greate Bay Hotel and Casino, trading as the Sands, from July 1980 until March 1983. He was terminated from the Sands for tardiness and absenteeism. Petitioner's subsequent association with the casino industry occurred in May 1985, at which time he was employed at the Trump Castle Hotel and Casino as a hard count attendant. He received two written > warnings while employed by Trump Castle, one of which was for tardiness and absenteeism. In March 1987, petitioner resigned from the Trump Castle to take a better paying position with the Showboat Hotel and Casino as a hard count attendant.

>
> In July 1987, petitioner was promoted to Dual Rate in which he performed supervisory duties two times per week in the Hard Count Department at the Showboat. Petitioner's employee performance appraisals with the Showboat shows one evaluation period where he was rated as "Fully Acceptable" and two where he had achieved a "Superior" status. [J-3]

Since that time, the petitioner has been promoted to be a full-time count room supervisor. He is responsible for approximately one-half million dollars a day on weekdays and approximately one million dollars a day on weekends.

At the time the petitioner collected unemployment benefits in 1982, he was 22 years of age. He had been unemployed for several months, and he was behind in paying his rent, car payment and child support obligation. In addition, his second wife had a baby during this six week period. The petitioner knew it was wrong to not report his part-time earnings, and he did report his employment to his local unemployment office in October 1982.

The petitioner was born in Brooklyn. At age 14, he moved to New Jersey with his mother and three sisters. He graduated from Vineland High School in 1979. In 1984, he completed training in microcomputers. He supports three children, and he is a responsible father. He participates in both basketball and softball leagues in Vineland. The petitioner was selected to be one of four persons to serve on a task force at the Showboat to establish better customer and employee relations.

The petitioner submitted four letters of recommendation in his behalf. The first, written by Mary Edwards, count room manager, Showboat Hotel and Casino, dated June 25, 1990, provides in pertinent part:

> I believe that Pedro truly regrets his mistake and at no time did he try to conceal the fact. I believe that everyone is entitled to make a mistake and this situation occurred quite some time ago. I personally feel that this incident has been held against Pedro long enough. He is attempting to make a nice career for himself but is being penalized for an incident that occurred many years ago.

I do not hesitate to add my highest recommendation to Pedro's qualifications as a Hard Count Supervisor. He has proved to be a reliable and competent employee. I have found Pedro to be an honest and trustworthy person.

I hope that you will extend to Pedro, every consideration in granting his licensure. He has truly developed into an excellent employee and is considered an asset to my Department. [P-1]

The second, written by Hector Suarez, investigator, Office of the Public Defender, provides in pertinent part:

. . . . I have known Mr. Ramos for over twenty years.

In those twenty years I have watched this young man grow into a reputable and good natured individual that he is. Moreover, I can state without any reservations that he is an honest and trustworthy person. He has many good qualities and has never involved himself with the wrong elements. I have also known him to be an exceptionally loving father to his children and a dedicated worker to his employers.

Finally, I am fully aware of the problem Mr. Ramos had with the Unemployment Division. Eventhough he may have used poor judgment in the handling of the situation, I am certain he fully regrets his actions and had no idea at the time his actions were questionable. Nevertheless, Mr. Ramos has assured me that he regrets same and will refrain from such behavior in the future. [P-2]

The third, written by David Acosta provides:

I have known Pedro Ramos for over ten years. I have known him to be a trustworthy honest person. I have known Pedro to be a contributing member of society. Pedro is a loving father who often gives to his children all he has.

More important, Pedro is a law abiding citizen. I am aware that Pedro used poor judgment when dealing with the Division of Unemployment. It is my understanding that this matter took place six (6) years ago. In my judgment, I know Pedro used poor judgment. He regrets this matter ever took place. To my knowledge, Pedro has been and continues to be a law abiding citizen.

I can sincerely say that Pedro is an honest person who is deserving of a favorable ruling. Pedro understands that it is a privilege to work in the casino industry. He also understands that the State is concern [sic] that dishonest individuals are kept away from the > casino. The integrity of the industry and the State is called to question if dishonest individuals are allowed to work in the industry. Pedro is not a dishonest person, but a hard working father and a contributing member of this community. [P-3]

Finally, Fay Velasquez, wrote:

> I have known Pedro L. Ramos, Jr. for a period of three and a half years now. I have had the pleasure of working with Pedro for those years and find that he is one of the most honest people I know. He seems to have a true compassionate concern for others.
>
> I am aware of Pedros past problems with the Unemployment Division of this state, and feel he has become a matured and unstanding citizen since then. [sic]
> I give my highest recommendation to Pedro on both a professional level and a personal one as well. [P-4]

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the petitioner's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident and his current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess his credibility. Initially, his position in this matter must be recognized. As the petitioner and the applicant for a casino employee license, he has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the petitioner's demeanor, the plausibility of his testimony, the manner in which he participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appeared that the petitioner testified truthfully in every regard. He candidly admitted his misconduct and described in detail, experiencing great humiliation, the underlying circumstances. He admitted his mistake and expressed remorse. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the petitioner's testimony in all respects.

I am persuaded that his misconduct was, in part, due to immaturity. I am also inclined to believe that it was the result of inexperience and the difficulty in dealing with his financial and family affairs. At the time the petitioner obtained the part-time job and failed to disclose this fact to his local unemployment office, he was in a difficult living arrangement. He had been unemployed for several months, he was behind in paying his rent, other bills, child support, and his second wife was about to have a baby. These factors converged upon the petitioner and impaired his judgment.

As the above facts are undisputed, I FIND all of the above as FACT.

In determining whether the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

DISCUSSION

The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft by deception (third degree), which constitutes a violation of section 86c(1), and that, accordingly, he is disqualified from continued licensure.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g

Section 86g provides that an applicant will be disqualified from licensure because of the commission of any action which would constitute an offense under section 86c, even if there has not been a prosecution for such conduct. Section 86c(1) mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner's failure to report his part-time employment to his local unemployment office and his receipt of full unemployment benefits constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which under the circumstances disqualifies the petitioner from continued licensure.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, Theft by deception, provides:

> A person is guilty of theft if he purposely obtains property of another by deception. A person deceives if he purposely:
>
> a. Creates or reinforces a false impression, including false impressions as to law, value, intention or other state of mind; but deception as to a person's intention to perform a promise shall not be inferred from the fact alone that he did not subsequently perform the promise;
>
> b. Prevents another from acquiring information which would affect his judgment of a transaction; or
>
> c. Fails to correct a false impression which the deceiver previously created or reinforced, or which the deceiver knows to be influencing another to whom he stands in a fiduciary or confidential relationship.
>
> The term "deceive" does not, however, include falsity as to matters having no pecuniary significance, or puffing or exaggeration by statements unlikely to deceive ordinary persons in the group addressed.

This statute has been held applicable where one wrongfully receives unemployment benefits. In State v. Moore, 158 N.J. Super. 68, 85-86 (App. Div. 1978), the court stated:

> As we read the trial judge's findings, defendant knowingly mispresented his employment status to obtain money "under pretense that he is . . . out of employment." These findings establish a violation of N.J.S.A. 2A:111-2.1 It is not necessary to prove a "corrupt intent," so long as the evidence establishes a criminal intent. See State v. Lambertson, 110 N.J. Super. 137, 141-143 (App. Div.), certif. den. 56 N.J. 479 (1970). It is immaterial that defendant may have felt entitled to some unemployment benefits and, therefore, did not have a "conscious" intent to defraud or to commit a criminal or immoral act. It is not necessary to show that defendant was "conscious that his acts were unlawful." Id. Defendant himself testified, in effect, that he received more benefits than he thought he should receive, based upon the hours he allegedly worked - or did not work. It was unnecessary to determine the exact amount of overpayment, so long as the wrongful acts inducing such payment have been established. State v. Harris, 70 N.J. 586, 589 (1976).

The Division established, and the petitioner admitted during his testimony, that he knowingly received unemployment benefits to which he was not entitled. In addition, ALJ Law found in a prior hearing that the petitioner had committed the offense of theft by deception (third degree) and concluded that the petitioner was disqualified from key employee licensure pursuant to section 86c(1) and 86g (J-3). This finding and conclusion was adopted by the Commission on April 6, 1988 (J-4). Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2)a, the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

[1] N.J.S.A. 2A:111-2 is now repealed, but was the predecessor to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offense committed by the petitioner is a disqualifying offense under sections 86c(1) and 86g. The petitioner is therefore disqualified from licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and 86g.

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h

An applicant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating his rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
4. The date of the offense or conduct;
5. The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;
6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Mr. Ramos is a casino licensee and is employed as a count room supervisor. As such, he does not have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities and does not come in contact with casino patrons. He is involved in supervising the counting of money which requires a person of honesty and integrity.

Second, the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft by deception (third degree), over a six week period while not employed in the casino industry. Because the offense is a listed disqualifier under section 86c(1), it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in its appropriate context. The petitioner had been unemployed for several months. He was behind in paying his rent, other bills and child support. His second wife was about to have a baby and he secured a part-time, seasonal job. He was simply concerned with providing for his family in a time of crisis. These circumstances converged upon the petitioner and impaired his judgment. Accordingly, the totality of the circumstances underlying the incident tend to mitigate somewhat the seriousness of his offense.

Fourth, the petitioner's misconduct occurred in a six-week period from the end of August 1982 until the beginning of October 1982, when it ceased.

Fifth, the petitioner was 22 years old at the time of the first offense. I believe immaturity was a factor in this case. The petitioner believes he has learned with maturity and such conduct will not occur again. He is now a responsible, productive member of society. In addition, it is clear that the underlying circumstances affected the petitioner's ability to deal responsibly with the problem at that time.

Sixth, the petitioner's misconduct was isolated in nature. He has not committed any other violations of the criminal laws.

Seventh, because of the underlying circumstances, the petitioner was only concerned with paying his bills in order to provide for his family. His family's security and his financial situation were major concerns. Because of his youthfulness, he was unaware of other alternatives which he could have pursued.

Eighth, the petitioner has made substantial rehabilitative efforts. He has made full restitution. The petitioner has been employed in the casino industry continuously since May 1985. His performance has been exemplary. He began as a hard count attendant, and he has advanced to the position of a count room supervisor. He has been considered for other promotions; however, his inability to obtain a key employee license has prevented his further advancement. He was selected to be one of four persons to serve on a task force at the Showboat to establish better customer and employee relations. He has demonstrated that he has matured and has accepted responsibility. He is a responsible father who is concerned about raising his three children. The petitioner participates in local basketball and softball leagues. The petitioner has expressed remorse for, and has no intention of repeating, his misconduct. Accordingly, there is little likelihood, if any, of a repetition. Essentially, there is nothing more the petitioner could do to establish his rehabilitation.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, his rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:12-90b.

(C) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Mr Ramos was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Id. at 296.

In November 1988, ALJ Law commented upon the petitioner's attributes of good character, honesty and integrity. At that time, ALJ Law stated:

> It is apparent that petitioner has matured with the passage of time and by assuming more than routine responsibilities in his position as a supervisor in the Showboat's Hard Count Department. Petitioner's performance as a "superior" employee as reflected on two of three Employee Performance Appraisals, speaks to a change in his employment behavior of the past where he was terminated > for tardiness and absenteeism. Petitioner is now considered a very dependable worker who completes all job assignments with the utmost accuracy and thoroughness and is a valuable employee with good problem solving abilities. Initial Decision at 7-8.

Based upon these observations, ALJ Law concluded that the petitioner had demonstrated at that time, by clear and convincing evidence, that he did possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino key employee. The Commission, however, elected not to make a finding on this issue in view of the disqualification established pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

Nothing has changed since ALJ Law made his finding of good character, honesty and integrity in November 1988. If anything, with the further passage of time, the petitioner has further been able to demonstrate his rehabilitation and good character, honesty and integrity. It is readily apparent that the petitioner's misconduct was aberrant and that he is otherwise a person of good character, honesty and integrity. The misconduct did not involve his licensed employment, and the underlying circumstances somewhat mitigated the seriousness of the misconduct. In addition, the petitioner has fully accepted responsibility for his misconduct, regained control over his behavior, performed admirably within the casino industry during the past five years, is a responsible parent and has become a respected member of his community. Accordingly, the petitioner presents no risk to the public nor to the integrity of the gaming industry in this State. The petitioner has earned the privilege of licensure. An examination of the whole person clearly and convincingly establishes that Mr. Ramos is a person of good character, honesty and integrity, and is entirely suitable for licensure in this State. See, Boardwalk Regency Corp.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity under section 90b.

DISPOSITION

It is ORDERED that the application of Pedro L. Ramos, Jr. for the renewal of a casino employee license be GRANTED.

James J. Armstrong, Deputy Attorney General, for petitioner (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Daniel Rivera, respondent, pro se

Record Closed: July 12, 1990 Decided: August 17, 1990

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the complaint filed with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on March 28, 1989, seeking revocation of the respondent's casino employee license. The respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on November 17, 1989, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq., and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held on February 23, 1990, and at that time the parties agreed the issues in this matter are:

A. Whether respondent's continued licensure is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, because he is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3(a).

B. Whether the respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

The hearing in this matter took place on July 12, 1990, at the Absecon City Hall in Absecon, New Jersey, and the record in the matter closed on that date.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

I FIND that the facts in this matter are not in dispute.

Mr. Rivera, while employed as a coffee shop cashier by the Showboat Hotel and Casino (Showboat), stole $100 from his cash register on February 11, 1989 (P-1).

During the investigation, Mr. Rivera admitted that he took the $100, and on March 7, 1989, he pled guilty to a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3 (P-2). He was fined $25, and was assessed $25 in court costs and $30 for the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (P-2). Mr. Rivera paid the $80.

On his own behalf, Mr. Rivera stated that at the time of this incident he was 24 years old. He had recently moved to the Atlantic City area from his home in New York. Mr. Rivera stated that a short time before the incident, his roommate had left their apartment and that he had a substantial increase in his living expenses. One of his co-workers was stealing money from the cash register without being discovered and this co-worker told Mr. Rivera how to steal. Mr. Rivera stated that he only stole money on one occasion, and this occurred when the preceding cashier had left $100 in the cash register. According to Mr. Rivera, he took the money because he was in debt and did not know how he could pay all of his bills. After he took the money, Mr. Rivera was scared. He felt that he would be caught even though he knew that at least initially the blame for the missing $100 would be placed on the preceding cashier.

After his employment was terminated by Showboat, Mr. Rivera worked for a short time for Harrah's Marina Hotel Casino as a busboy. He left this position for a better paying position with TropWorld Casino and Entertainment Resort (TropWorld). He was employed for a short time by TropWorld as a public area attendant, and he quit this job because he disliked the work hours. Currently, the respondent has a full-time clerical position with Macy's Department Store (Macy's) and he works three nights and weekends as a cashier for Friendly Restaurant (Friendly).

According to Mr. Rivera, he now has a new apartment with several new roommates. Mr. Rivera stated that he no longer is in debt, that he has learned his lesson, and is now doing all right.

On behalf of the Division, Deputy Attorney General James J. Armstrong argued that the respondent had not presented enough evidence to outweigh the seriousness of the offense and that the respondent's continued licensure would be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c. Further, Mr. Armstrong argued that because of the criminal offense, Mr. Rivera cannot show by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

Mr. Rivera submitted several letters relating to his good character, honesty and integrity (R-1, R-2, R-3). The first letter is from Bonnie Herbein, the respondent's supervisor at Macy's. In her letter, Ms. Herbein stated that Mr. Rivera has been employed by Macy's for four months, that he is an exemplary employee—punctual, courteous, honest, helpful and conscientious, and that he is due for a promotion (R-1). The next letter is from Thelma Bettian, a manager at Dynamic Maintenance at the Sears-Hamilton Mall. In her letter, Ms. Bettian stated that Mr. Rivera was employed by the company between August 1989 and February 1990, that he was a dependable and trustworthy employee and that the company was sorry to lose his services (R-2). The last letter is from Elsa C. Pansa, assistant manager of Friendly. In her letter, Ms. Pansa stated that Mr. Rivera has worked for the restaurant for ten months, and that he is a reliable and responsible employee (R-3).

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The first issue in this matter is whether Mr. Rivera's criminal activity renders his continued licensure inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act. In order to make this determination, it is necessary to consider the circumstances surrounding the criminal offense as well as the respondent's prior and subsequent conduct, i.e., his rehabilitation. Davis v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 (1985). In order to make a determination relating to inimicality, it is appropriate to consider the following criteria set forth for rehabilitation in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

Mr. Rivera grew up in New York and he left school after he had completed the eleventh grade. Since then, he has taken some business courses. While he lived in New York, he was unemployed. After moving to Atlantic City, he got his first job working for a 7-11 Store. He left this job for the position with Showboat. Mr. Rivera has no criminal record prior to or since the 1989 incident.

As a cashier, Mr. Rivera had a responsible position and when he got into financial difficulties he stole from the casino. This was an isolated offense. In the approximate one and one-half years since this incident, Mr. Rivera has not changed his life style; however, he has been able to stay out of financial difficulties by holding two positions. Based on the facts presented, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Rivera has not shown rehabilitation. Mr. Rivera was a mature person when the offense occurred. His job with the Showboat put him into contact with casino patrons and he was responsible for the proper handling of casino monies. The fact that he was in financial difficulty when he stole the casino money does not excuse the offense and Mr. Rivera did not present any testimony to show that he would not consider such action in the future if he again got into debt. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that his continued licensure would be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c.

The second issue is whether the respondent has established his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. Although Mr. Rivera has had a good employment record since his termination by Showboat, the offense he committed was a serious one which directly related to his reliability, honesty and integrity as a casino employee. Since only a short period of time has elapsed since this criminal conduct, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Rivera cannot show at this time that he is a person of good character, honesty and integrity as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

Therefore, I ORDER that the casino employee license of the respondent be REVOKED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: July 19, 1990 Decided: August 16, 1990

BEFORE SOLOMON A. METZGER, ALJ:

This matter arises out of a complaint filed by petitioner with the Casino Control Commission seeking the revocation of respondent's hotel employee registration pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. Respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

The questions presented are whether respondent can establish that he has been rehabilitated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d, in light of his conviction for aggravated assault, N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(1), an automatic disqualification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

The facts are either stipulated or undisputed. Respondent was indicted in Atlantic County in May 1986 on charges of possessing a weapon, N.J.S.A. 2C:39-5(d); possession of a weapon for unlawful purposes, N.J.S.A. 2C:39-4; aggravated assault, N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(1); aggravated assault, N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(2); and resisting arrest, N.J.S.A. 2C:29-2a(1). In September 1986, respondent pled guilty to the charge of aggravated assault, N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(1), amended to a crime of the third degree, and the remaining charges were dismissed. He was sentenced to two years' probation, and fined.

The incident which gave rise to this offense was a stabbing of Raul Zamorano, respondent's adult son. Respondent testified that at the time of the incident he was separating from his girlfriend, Mr. Zamorano's mother. He returned home from work that evening and was drunk. His son began an argument with him which led to a fight. Respondent testified that he lifted a kitchen knife and accidentally cut his son who required five stitches. An affidavit submitted by Mr. Zamorano in June 1986 in connection with the criminal matter indicates that he too was drunk on the night in question and that he actually started the fight with his father.

Respondent testified that he also had some involvement with the police between 1967 and 1976, but that those incidents were mainly domestic disputes with his former girlfriend. He testified that since 1976 he has only been arrested one time, as a result of this incident involving his son.

Respondent is 45 years old. He testified that since his separation and remarriage two years ago, he has given up drinking and his main focus is work. He has been employed by Bally's as a steward supervisor since 1979 and has had no difficulties on the job. He has never missed a day's work. Respondent testified that he paid the fine arising out of the criminal matter and finished his probation.

John L. Druid has been employed by Bally's for 12 years and is the executive steward for food and beverages. He has known respondent personally for 20 years and in the last 10 years has been his direct supervisor. Mr. Druid testified that respondent is one of his best employees and is well respected amongst his peers. He has never had a problem with him.

Respondent also submitted an additional letter of recommendation from Sam Ran, manager of public areas, and a petition signed by co-workers and people under his charge, attesting that he is an upstanding individual. This is the substance of the record.

Respondent has established his rehabilitation. Though he had some involvement with law enforcement prior to 1976, he explained those incidents credibly as mainly domestic disputes. Importantly, from 1976 until the present time, he has been involved in only one incident which, though serious, occurred when the family unit was dissolving. Respondent pled guilty to one count of the indictment brought against him, he completed his probation, paid his fine, and appears truly remorseful about the incident. He has an exemplary employment record over a ten-year period.

Based on the foregoing, it is my conclusion that petitioner has established that respondent committed a disqualifying offense, but that respondent has also established rehabilitation. It is ORDERED that he be permitted to retain his license and that this complaint be dismissed.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

This is a transcript of the administrative law judge's oral initial decision rendered pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.2.

BEFORE RICHARD J. MURPHY, ALJ:

Statement of the Case,
Procedural History and Issues

The Division of Gaming Enforcement filed a complaint against Nathaniel Tyrone Ross with the Casino Control Commission, seeking to revoke his casino.hotel employee registration because of his indictment, and later his plea to drug-related charges. Mr. Ross does not dispute those charges and does not dispute that those charges are disqualifying under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

The issues to be resolved are:

Number One, whether the conduct to which Mr. Ross pled guilty; namely, merged offenses of possession and possession with intent to distribute, as well as distribution to a juvenile, of cocaine. (And, also, I believe there was included the offense of possession of marijuana) constitute disqualifying offenses under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

The second issue is whether, notwithstanding that disqualification, Mr. Ross, has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d.

The last issue, if we need to reach it, is whether notwithstanding the disqualification, and further notwithstanding his inability to show rehabilitation, grounds exist to allow or require the Commission to waive the disqualification. In this instance, because of compelling circumstances, and in the interest of justice.

Factual Discussion and Findings

In terms of the factual discussion, and findings of fact in this case, there is no dispute as to the offense.

Let me just lay out a little background:

Mr. Ross holds casino employee registration number 90264-60. He has been employed at the TropWorld, in the records department, since November of 1988.

The offense, which is his only criminal offense, took place in 1987. The indictment, in particular, charged him with possession of a controlled dangerous substance in the form of cocaine, possession of cocaine with intent to distribute, and distribution of a controlled dangerous substance to a juvenile, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35, sections five, eight and ten, respectively.

On October 31, 1988, Mr. Ross retracted a plea of guilty to the indictments charging possession, and the charges of possession with intent to distribute was merged: he was found guilty of that merged offense, as well as distribution to a juvenile.

Mr. Ross has explained that this offense was only his second use of cocaine. He states that he was not a cocaine addict or addicted to any drugs. He also states that he was using cocaine, probably, as a result or a desire to be socially accepted, and be "in" with the right crowd. And at the time of the offense he was only twenty-one years of age; he's now twenty-four. He also states that he obtained this cocaine in Philadelphia with the assistance, (and partially at the suggestion) of a juvenile acquaintance of his, and had the juvenile hold the drug for his later use. He denies any kind of distribution in the sense of a sale of that drug to a juvenile. This statement does not conflict with police statements, and other statements taken at the scene, and the subsequent investigation in this matter.

There is no dispute that he did plead guilty to the merged first and second count and the third count and was given two years probation, a $1,000 drug enforcement demand reduction fee, six months loss of driving privileges, seven days imprisonment, with credit for time served, and $30 in Violent Crimes Compensation Board payments.

There is no dispute as to any of the above facts surrounding the criminal conviction which, as I indicated, was his first, (and I hope his last).

Essentially, Mr. Ross maintains that he, to quote his phrase, "messed up in the past," and feels that he has learned a lot, especially from seven days of incarceration, and has made an effort to extricate himself and move himself away from the drug temptations of Atlantic City. He now lives in Brigantine and is currently holding two jobs.

Counsel for the Division points out that respondent has not yet fully complied with the terms of his probation, either by serving the full-time or by making all of the required payments. Mr. Ross indicates that he is supporting himself, although he doesn't have any dependents in the form of spouse, children or any relatives. He has rental expenses and other expenses, and has elected to pay some of his living expenses before he pays the fees required as part of his sentence, which I note as part of the record.

Mr. Ross states, and there is no evidence to the contrary that, he no longer uses cocaine or marijuana. He did not attend any treatment programs in connection with his conviction, which was not recommended as part of his sentence, or required as a part of his judgment of conviction by the judge. He has no past or subsequent record of arrest or convictions, prior to this.

In terms of the juvenile, he indicates they were close friends, and they were "fishing buddies." (to use his phrase again), and on one occasion while fishing, he tried cocaine at his friend's suggestion, and then went on from there.

He has received his high school diploma, briefly attended Salem Community College, but chose not to pursue that. He has worked in the casino industry, since 1988. He has submitted a number of documents from Tropworld Casino and Entertainment Resort, including a letter from Lilly Hoffman, who is the senior clerk in the records department, who said, "in the records retention office, I don't know what I would do without him." He also submitted a non-management achievement evaluation form, dated November 25, 1988, which states "Nate is a very professional person and is extremely polite. He informs me, and keeps up his work. And I also note his great communication skills."

Other review performances in March of 1989 found him to be -- found his work performance to be -- outstanding or highly satisfactory, in virtually all areas. A Letter dated July 13, 1990, from casino employees, Daniel Marios, and Holly Tozer, stated they are co-workers of Nathaniel Ross, and that he is responsible, dependable, and has a good attitude. In the letter dated April 20, 1990, Dean A. Woods, an analyst, recommends also indicates, Mr. Ross has made the Department what it is today, and is a very valued employee who realizes his mistakes made in the past. In a letter dated, April 23, 1990, to me, Thomas Karlan, assistant support manager, also, attests as to -- or shall I just say, states, because it is not under oath -- Mr. Ross has been a reliable and dedicated employee, and he has never had any problems at work. I also note for the record, that Mr. Ross was nominated in January of 1990, as employee of the month by TropWorld, based on outstanding job performance and dedicated service to TropWorld Casino and the Entertainment Resort.

Mr. Ross has also submitted evidence of his employment or, shall I say, his dual employment, counting TropWorld and also Shop N Bag.

There's no dispute as to these facts above and I make that finding.

Legal Discussion and Conclusion

The terms of the legal discussion and conclusion, as I stated before, the issues are, first of all, is he disqualified? My conclusion on that score is that he is disqualified by virtue of his guilty plea to the possession and distribution offenses. I don't think there's any issue as to this and I do think this is something automatically qualifying under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

The next issue to be addressed (and I believe in this case at the dispositive issue), is that of rehabilitation. The registrant has the burden in this instance and in all instances of affirmatively demonstrating rehabilitation.

Eight factors are to be considered. As I go through them, I will make reach conclusion as to each one.

The first factor under N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d, concerns the nature and duties of the position, and Mr. Ross's position in the records department is a sensitive one which bears on the fiscal integrity, and business record keeping function of the casino's and therefore, is a sensitive position.

The second factor under the rehabilitation section, is the nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct. Certainly, the offense of possession of a controlled dangerous substance, especially cocaine, is recognized to be a highly serious offense. In this case it is aggravated and compounded by distributions to a minor, albeit with some mitigating circumstances. Those circumstances are the third factor to be considered.

Mr. Ross has testified today, and I believe quite credibly, but he was intentionally involved in this activity: primarily or maybe exclusively out of a desire to engage in a socially acceptable activity - to be one of the in-crowd. However, this was his first offense. He testifies that he is not an addict. There is no evidence that he is or was a addict. He also testified that he did not initiate the cocaine use, but was led into that by a younger friend. There is no evidence to the contrary submitted by the Division, and this story is consistent with police reports in evidence. There was no violence involved in this crime, and, at the time of the offense, there was no evidence that Mr. Ross was impaired or under the influence of drugs. His friend was in possession of drugs, which he admits belonged to him.

As to the fourth and fifth factors the date of the offense was December 7, 1987, and Mr. Ross was twenty-one years of age at that time and he was not a juvenile. He's now twenty-four years of age. There is no prior criminal record, or subsequent criminal records. And I believe it is fair to describe this offense as an isolated incident, and not a pattern of some deeper and more regular, ongoing involvement in drug distribution, or any kind of criminal activity (factor six). It appears to me to be just a matter of bad judgment, and going along with friends and associates without really taking an independent look at yourself.

He doesn't cite any social conditions, which would be the seventh factor to be considered under the factors of rehabilitation, and I find there were none present, as I understand, that section. There are social factors, in the sense there is a lot of social pressure on people to become involved in the drug scene in Atlantic City, and I take note of that. But I don't think that's the sort of a social condition under that provision in terms of rehabilitation: respondent presents nothing in terms of poverty, or any social problem that might have contributed to offense.

In terms of rehabilitation, which is the eighth and final factor to be considered, I can consider any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison, or community counseling, or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition or additional education, or -- rather academic, or vocational schooling, or successful participation in correctional work release programs, or recommendations. In this instance, we don't have any good conduct in prison, because the prison stay was a minimal one. There is no evidence of any further bad conduct in the community, although I will put on the record, Mr. Ross has been somewhat less than diligent in the fulfilling all terms of the sentence, which I believe, is something the Commission has to weigh. There is also no evidence of counseling, or psychiatric treatment required by the sentencing Judge, and these are not a factor in this case. Nor is additional academic or vocational schooling relevant. I would point to what I consider to be sufficient evidence submitted of excellent job performance and track records in the casino industry, which combined with his admission of the offense, (and I think contrite attitude toward it, and what I judge to be the very low likelihood of repetition of that conduct), constitute sufficient evidence of rehabilitation, when proif combined with the circumstances of the offense, his age at the time, and what I perceive as his increasing maturity, and his status as a valued employee in the casino industry. Based on these facts, I'm going to find rehabilitation under 91d.

I CONCLUDE, that respondent has carried his burden under the Casino Control Act to that end. Having decided that he has proven rehabilitation, there is no reason to reach the issue of waiver. I do agree with Miss Stancil this is not appropriate case for waiver. But I believe also that waiver is not an issue I need to reach, because rehabilitation is present.

Disposition

It is ORDRED that the complaint against Nathaniel Tyrone Ross is DISMISSED.

This oral decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, who by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this oral decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Record Closed: July 26, 1990 Decided: August 16, 1990

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

By complaint filed on July 28, 1989 with the Casino Control Commission ("Commission"), the Division of Gaming Enforcement ("Division") sought revocation of Luis A. Ruiz' casino hotel employee registration. Mr. Ruiz requested a hearing on the proposed revocation and the matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

Following transmittal to the OAL, a prehearing conference was held on December 21, 1989 before Administrative Law Judge Edgar R. Holmes. A prehearing order was issued by Judge Holmes on December 28, 1989. A hearing was held before Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin on June 26, 1990 at the Office of Administrative Law in Atlantic City. The record closed following transmittal of a copy of a transcript of a plea which Mr. Ruiz had entered in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Criminal Division-Atlantic County on March 16, 1987. This transcript was received by the Administrative Law Judge on July 20, 1990. Thereafter, on July 26, 1990 the attorney for respondent filed a letter closing statement concerning the plea. The record closed on July 26, 1990.

ISSUES

The prehearing order issued by Judge Holmes provided that the issues to be considered at the time of the hearing were whether the respondent had been convicted of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, specifically, whether he had been convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21(a)(1). In addition, whether the evidence presented by Mr. Ruiz demonstrated rehabilitation from any disqualification, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(d). The prehearing order was amended to include the issue of whether, in the absence of sufficient proof to establish rehabilitation, the facts and circumstances demonstrated that the interests of justice and the policies of the Casino Control Act required that any disqualification otherwise appropriate be waived pursuant to the authority of the Commission contained at N.J.S.A. 5:12-91e.

EVIDENCE

The Division of Gaming Enforcement presented documentation in support of its allegations contained in the complaint that Mr. Ruiz had been convicted of violating the criminal laws of the State of New Jersey, specifically, an indictment, number 87-02-0232-C-I, which was returned by the Atlantic County Grand Jury against Mr. Ruiz and three other named defendants on February 10, 1987. This indictment charged that the respondents had engaged in various instances of possession of cocaine, possession with intent to distribute cocaine, conspiracy, and distribution of cocaine. The indictment contained numerous counts, but Mr. Ruiz was only named in the last four counts of the indictment, specifically counts 17, 18, 19 and 20. These counts charged respectively violations of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1), distribution or sale of controlled dangerous substance; N.J.S.A. 24:21-24, conspiracy to distribute CDS; N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1), possession of CDS with intent to distribute and N.J.S.A. 24:21-20a(1), possession of CDS. Each of these charges dealt with a specific incident of October 31, 1986.

A transcript of proceedings with respect to a plea of guilty entered by Mr. Ruiz on March 16, 1987 before Honorable Robert Neustadter, J.S.C., was offered as evidence subsequent to the hearing with the consent of the parties. Mr. Ruiz entered a plea of guilty to count 17 of the indictment charging distribution of cocaine. According to his statement at the time of the plea, which is contained beginning at page three, Mr. Ruiz indicated that on the particular occasion on October 31, 1986 at which time he was alleged to have distributed cocaine to an undercover agent in Galloway Township, that he "gave a bag of cocaine to a Charley Rice and he gave it to undercover." Upon questioning by Judge Neustadter, Mr. Ruiz advised that he knew that the substance which he gave to Rice was cocaine, that he did not sell it, but just gave it to Rice, and that he did not know what Rice was going to do with it.

Based upon the plea of guilty entered to count 17 of the indictment and in accordance with the plea bargain which had been reached with the Atlantic County Prosecutor's Office, Mr. Ruiz was sentenced by Judge Neustadter on April 3, 1987 to 60 days in the Atlantic County jail, 18 months probation, with credit for two days served. In addition, he was fined $350, which was to be paid during the first year of probation and was required to pay $30 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board. The sentence was to be served intermittently on specified days of each week and the respondent was released each week following service of the specified two days of incarceration each week. Judge Neustadter indicated in his reasons for sentencing that he considered the serious nature of the offense, but also the "defendant's clean record and good family background and his good work record up until this incident." He believed that the recommended sentence was "marginally acceptable for purposes of punishment, deterrence and rehabilitation and so as not to deprecate the seriousness of the crime of distribution of drugs."

Mr. Ruiz was called as a witness on behalf of the Division of Gaming Enforcement. Ruiz, who is also known in accordance with the common custom of Hispanics as Luis Arturo Ruiz Santiago, is 37 years old and a native of Puerto Rico. He was married in October of 1971. He came to the United States in 1978 with his wife and one child and was later joined by his twins. Ruiz completed 11th grade in Puerto Rico.

Since 1979, Ruiz' wife has worked at Lenox China. He began working there in 1978 as a fork lift driver and worked eight years until 1986, when he was fired as a result of the incident of drug distribution. While worked at Lenox, he became lead man of the fork lift operators, working the 4 p.m. to 12 a.m. shift.

In addition to working at Lenox, Ruiz also began working at Resorts International Hotel & Casino in 1979 and worked there through 1985 as a buffet attendant. He worked six days a week, eight hours a day at Lenox and six hours a day, five days a week at Resorts in order to save money to buy a house, which he managed to do in 1982. After he bought the house he stopped working at Resorts and remained at Lenox.

Mr. Ruiz described the incident for which he was arrested. He was in the cafeteria at Lenox in October 1986 when a man came to the table and asked for a half of gram of cocaine. Another individual at the table had some cocaine and put it on a napkin. This individual was sitting too far away from the person who had requested the drugs and he passed the napkin in the direction of Ruiz who passed it on to the requesting party. Ruiz never owned the specific drugs in question, nor did he receive any money for them and was never involved in any sale of these drugs. However, he did pass the napkin with the drugs on it.

According to the respondent, he pled guilty because his lawyer said this was the only way out for him. The whole incident was very hard on his family and himself and he expressed extreme regret at the pain he caused.

Ruiz acknowledged that he previously used drugs on an occasional basis, although he has not done so since 1986. More specifically, he began using marijuana when he was 17 years old in 1974 and then in about 1978 he began using cocaine, which he used during the period of 1984 to 1986 on an occasional basis. At the time of his arrest, some marijuana was also found on him. He has not used either drug or any others since his arrest.

Following his arrest, Ruiz was fired from Lenox. He was unable to obtain unemployment because of the circumstances under which he lost his job. He served his jail time and his probation period and, according to an affidavit from Susan Hargis, his probation officer with the Atlantic County probation office (R-1 in evidence), Ruiz was on probation from April 3, 1987 until October 1988 and successfully completed his probation and paid his fine as required.

Mr. Ruiz eventually became reemployed in the casino industry after a friend told him of a job at Harrahs. When he went to Harrahs, he did not tell anyone about his arrest and conviction because he was afraid that he would not get a job. He was placed in charge of general cleaning on the 12 a.m. to 8 a.m. shift and was eventually promoted to chief supervisor on that shift. He changed shifts after a year in order to move to the swing shift so that he could have more time with his family, even though the change of shifts necessitated a demotion. He was again promoted to chief supervisor in April of 1990. His work does not take him into the casino portion of the premises at all.

Mr. Ruiz advised his boss, Bob Wuzzardo of his conviction for distribution of cocaine after he received a letter from the Casino Control Commission indicating that the Division was seeking revocation of his registration. He offered to quit, but Wuzzardo told him not to and instead urged him to fight the revocation.

Mr. Ruiz attends the Way of Life Pentacostal Church in Pleasantville. Although he was not very involved with the church prior to 1986, attending on a once-a-week basis, since that time he has become heavily involved, has been baptized and attended classes and is now a "member of the church" as of 1989. He was very active with other members of the church when the congregation purchased an old building and renovated it. He has been elected by the membership as the superintendent of the Bible School and he and his wife are co-signers with the church for a van and for the building in which it is housed.

On cross-examination Ruiz acknowledged that when he passed the drugs to the individual who had requested them, he did pass money back from that individual to Carlos or Charles, who was the person from whom the drugs came. There were six people seated at the table. When asked who he purchased his cocaine from, he stated that this was Carlos.

Robert W. Wuzzardo, Executive Steward at Harrahs Marina, testified that he is responsible for all cleaning and outfitting of the restaurants and supervises 150 people. He has known Mr. Ruiz since December 1986, having met him at the time when he interviewed him for employment. Wuzzardo made the decision to hire him, although at the time he did not know of the criminal conviction. He has had daily contact with Ruiz ever since and knows that Ruiz has no contact with the casino itself at any time. Ruiz supervises approximately 25 people. Wuzzardo is responsible for preparing Ruiz' evaluations and several of these were introduced as exhibits. Wuzzardo has observed no indications that Ruiz has been using drugs at any time since he was employed at Harrahs.

The witness described Ruiz as "extremely important" to his operation. The respondent now acts as a shift supervisor and assistant to Wuzzardo on the grave shift. The witness evaluated Ruiz as extremely good with employees, knowledgeable, and very able with respect to handling employees.

Wuzzardo learned of Ruiz' criminal conviction about a year ago. Mr. Ruiz was quite upset and offered to quit, but after discussions with the Food and Beverage Director and questioning of Ruiz concerning the incident, Wuzzardo urged him to fight the revocation. According to the witness, who was present in court during Mr. Ruiz' testimony before this Judge, the version of the incident which Ruiz related to Wuzzardo at the time that he explained what had occurred was essentially the same as that related under oath at this hearing.

Wuzzardo described Ruiz as a man of character, a good family man, who took a demotion and a change of shifts in order to be home with his teenage sons. He described the respondent as a man who takes his work home with him and is perhaps "over conscientious."

Richard Schneider, Food and Beverage Director at Harrahs, who supervises 1200 employees, first met Mr. Ruiz in December 1986. He sees him about four or five times a week and depends heavily on Ruiz, who does everything that he is asked to do and helps manage the food and beverage facilities. When Schneider first learned of the conviction a year ago, he was surprised and shocked. According to Schneider, Ruiz related essentially the same information to him at the time as Ruiz testified in court in this proceeding. Schneider described himself as having "great admiration" for Ruiz, who is a "great guy," and he would not want to operate his facilities without him. He stands by him, as does the hotel.

Schneider testified that Ruiz is an individual who he would "trust with anything," an "A-one" person with great honesty and integrity.

In addition to the testimony, Mr. Ruiz also offered a certification from Reverend William Vazquez Velez, president of the Federation of Pentacostal Churches, Alpha and Omega, Inc., described in the certification as an organization of over 80 churches in the United States and throughout the world with thousands of members.

Vasquez Velez has known Ruiz and his family for over ten years and described their relationship to the church of which Ruiz has been a member himself for over one year. He has since become a very active member of the church and is superintendent of the Sunday School by election of the church members. Such an individual must "be a good Christian, have teaching ability and the ability to direct people." The Reverend refers to Ruiz as a "hard working family man and of good moral character, honesty and integrity." He further notes that Ruiz works at the church on construction during his free time and attends church on Sundays and on his days off. He concludes by noting that he has been aware of the arrest and conviction and that "it is my belief that this incident was a one-time, isolated occurrence and not indicative of Ruiz' character."

In addition to its other evidence, the Division of Gaming Enforcement offered arrest reports concerning the investigation and the arrest of Mr. Ruiz and his co-defendants as a result of the undercover drug investigation conducted at Lenox China in 1986. The references to Mr. Ruiz and the incident of October 31, 1986 are somewhat limited. Essentially, the investigator, L.E. Folks, in a report of November 7, 1986, indicates that at approximately 8:10 p.m. on the evening of October 31, 1986, he purchased a $40 bag of purported cocaine from a Spanish male named Luis, a fork lift operator at the plant. The sale was made "by Charles Rice," who evidently was another defendant in the case and was apparently involved in some form of cooperation with the authorities, and the sale was "observed by Folks." Additional investigation reports show that Ruiz was arrested and that on November 25, 1986, he was interviewed by Lieutenant Hepburn. Investigator Michael Fadden noted in his report of November 25, 1986 that in the course of interviews by Hepburn, Ruiz admitted possession and use of CDS. In investigator Folks' report of November 26, 1986, he notes that during a "confrontation" with Ruiz, the subject admitted using cocaine, but denied selling any.

DISCUSSION

The evidence establishes, and I FIND, that Luis A. Ruiz, an employee of Lenox China in October 1986, participated in distribution of cocaine to an individual who apparently was working in some sort of informant capacity for an investigator doing undercover work as part of a drug investigation at the Lenox plant. I FIND no evidence that Ruiz personally received money which he was intending to retain or did retain as part of this distribution, although according to his own testimony, he accepted money from the buyer and passed it on to the initial distributor, Carlos. In essence, according to Ruiz' version of the events, he was a conduit for the distribution from Carlos to the requesting party and a conduit for the payment to Carlos in exchange for the drugs. At the same time, Ruiz acknowledges that he knew that he was passing cocaine and that he was a user of cocaine at the time. Based upon his testimony at this hearing, as well as that which he presented to Judge Neustadter at the time of his guilty plea on March 16, 1987, there is no doubt but that Mr. Ruiz was involved in the distribution of cocaine on October 31, 1986. His conviction for distribution of a controlled dangerous substance in violation of N.J.S.A. 24:21-19a(1) constitutes disqualifying conduct pursuant to the Casino Control Act, N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c1.

Since his conviction in 1987, Mr. Ruiz has been reemployed in the casino industry and has performed in an excellent fashion as a highly trusted and responsible employee of Harrahs Casino Hotel. He functions in a non-casino related capacity and has achieved promotion to a supervisory position on not one, but two occasions. In addition, Ruiz has become actively involved with his church and has continued to raise his family as he did prior to his conviction. It is obvious from the testimony that Mr. Ruiz has always conducted himself as a highly responsible worker and family man and upon arrival on the mainland worked very hard at two jobs in order to achieve the goal of homeownership. It is unfortunate that both prior to and after his arrival from Puerto Rico Mr. Ruiz had become involved with marijuana and eventially cocaine and continued use of these illegal substances until his arrest.

Mr. Ruiz' involvement with cocaine did not begin on the night on which he distributed the cocaine for which he was eventually arrested. In some sense, this incident was not the isolated type of matter which Reverend Vazquez Velez suggests. It is certainly arguable that Ruiz' long standing cocaine use, although it may not have amounted to an addiction, put him on the slippery slope toward involvement in distribution. Nevertheless, taking all of the circumstances into account, I am impressed by the fact that Mr. Ruiz has, since the time of his conviction, performed in his job and family capacities as society would demand and that there is no evidence that he has again become involved in the use of illegal substances, much less in their distribution. I found his testimony concerning his non-use of these items since 1986 to be credible. In addition, I found the testimony of his character witnesses to be quite impressive and persuasive.

With respect to consideration of the rehabilitation criteria, I find that Mr. Ruiz was involved in the serious criminal matter of distribution of cocaine, but that there is no evidence in the record that he was specifically involved in any incidents other than the October 31, 1986 distribution. With respect to that incident, I find that he was a conduit, rather than the originator, of the sale and that he did not profit from the same. I find that he is a good family man, that he is an active church member, that he participates in community-based, public spirited and beneficial works through his church involvement. With respect to employment, he has an outstanding employment record, which has been essentially continuous from his arrival from Puerto Rico up to the present, except for the period of unemployment which followed his termination at Lenox, which resulted from this unfortunate criminal incident.

In conclusion, I FIND that Mr. Ruiz has successfully established that he has rehabilitated himself from the disqualification which is properly applicable to one convicted of distribution of cocaine. I have every reason to believe and expect that he will continue to perform admirably in the casino industry, albeit in a role which does not put him in direct contact with the casinos themselves. I CONCLUDE that revocation of his casino hotel employee registration is not warranted. As such, the complaint is hereby DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Record closed: AUGUST 10,1990 Decided: SEPTEMBER 7, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) objecting to the issuance of a casino employee license to petitioner. The Division alleges that petitioner failed to disclose his arrest record as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b and that as a result, he lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its letter of objection with the Commission on August 15, 1989. Petitioner requested a hearing on October 11, 1989 and on October 18, 1989 the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on April 23, 1990 by Jeff S. Masin, ALJ followed by a hearing which was held on August 10, 1990. The record was closed on August 10, 1990.

ISSUES

A. With reference to the items listed in the letter of August 15, 1989, did Mr. Russell fail to disclose on his Personal History Disclosure Form any or all of the arrests listed? If so, does his failure to disclose them require that his license be denied pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b?

B. Does Mr. Russell have the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b?

FINDINGS OF FACT

Petitioner is 49 years old, currently married, and supports his wife and six year old daughter. He currently holds a hotel registration and has been employed for the last four years as a mail clerk at the Sands Hotel/Casino. His purpose in applying for a casino license was that his current employment permitted him to also assume a part-time position three times per week and he felt that a title such as slot attendant or change person would not only afford him additional income but would also allow him an entree into an upward mobility position in the event he decided upon a career change in the future. He felt that a part-time change person or slot attendant position would afford him an opportunity to prove that he had the ability to perform the job.

Mr. Russell has not been arrested or convicted of any offense since 1974. Nevertheless, between 1959 and 1974 his record indicates 13 arrests. Normally it is possible to examine the police incident reports concerning an arrest, however, in this instance due to the age of these particular offenses, the records have been destroyed. A complete list of the 13 arrests are set forth in Exhibit R-3 thru R-8.

On page 15, question 16 of the Personal History Disclosure Form filed by Mr. Russell, he answered the question "have you ever been arrested?" in the negative. When confronted with question number 16, Mr. Russell knew that he had been arrested in the past. He was ashamed of the child molestation charge and despite the dismissal of these charges, he did not want to be stigmatized by having to admit to any individual or agency that he had been so charged. He testified that in the past when he had put down on a job application that he had been arrested, he was never called back for an interview and he was frightened that when applying for the casino license, this pattern would be repeated. When questioned by Agent Keitt concerning the arrest, he indicated that he was not sure as to the outcome of some of the assault charges because that was a period of his life when both he and his wife were drinking which often resulted in a domestic dispute. Mr. Russell felt that he had left his past behind him in Philadelphia and was hoping that he would be able to prove his abilities and trustworthiness once he gained the license and new position. When confronted during his personal interview, he was able to recall seven of the arrests. Admittedly, at the time he was completing the answer to question number 16 on page 15 of the Personal History Disclosure Form, he intentionally decided to answer in the negative.

In order to prove his good character, honesty and integrity, Mr. Russell testified that he has never been arrested since his last arrest in November of 1974. He has abstained from drinking, is remarried and considers he has left his past in Philadelphia. For the last six months, he has been working with senior citizens and attempting to form a men's fellowship group at the Salvation Army in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

The documentary evidence submitted by petitioner in support of his good character, honesty and integrity can be described in one word, overwhelming. No less than 28 documents signed by no less than 40 individuals were received into evidence. Since starting work on September 15, 1986, petitioner has had a wide involvement and daily contact with many employees and departments within the Trump organization. The 28 letters submitted by him, demonstrate that he is extremely well liked, respected and considered by all to be a hardworking, industrous employee. Petitioner was sixth of the finalists for employee of the month out of 4,200 Trump employees. Petitioner qualified for this honor in November of 1988 and again in May of 1990.

Petitioner enjoys working in the mailroom and has been commended by his employer for developing innovative time-saving programs. He enjoys his work and is ready to take on the additional responsibility of a change person on a part-time basis.

HAS PETITIONER FAILED TO DISCLOSE INFORMATION MATERIAL TO HIS LICENSURE.

Section 86b of the Act establishes an affirmative obligation on the part of an applicant to fully disclose whether and when the applicant has been arrested. Petitioner admitted that he failed to truthfully answer question number 16 on page 15 of the Personal History Disclosure Form. When questioned by the DGE agent, he was able to recall approximately seven of the 13 arrests. Considering the nature of the offenses and the time period involved, his inability to recall in detail all 13 arrests does not reflect negatively on his honesty or integrity. The crucial issue is whether his failure to disclose any arrests in response to question number 16 on page 15 of his PHD constitutes a violation of Section 86b of the Act.

Petitioner's fear in answering "yes" to an arrest record was based upon his past experiences in dealing with the prejudice that often results in such a truthful response. The irony of this entire matter is that if he had detailed all 13 arrests on the PHD, in all likelihood, a challenge to the granting of his license would not have occurred due to the age and nature of the offenses. Unfortunately, he knowingly and intentionally omitted these arrests from the PHD hoping that by the time his record was discovered, he would have been given an opportunity to prove his honesty and integrity as a slot attendant or change person. Agent Daniel Keitt conducted a personal interview with the petitioner on April 3, 1989. When read question number 16, petitioner recalled four arrests and later during the course of the interview recalled another three. When read the entire rap sheet, petitioner could not recall the remaining eight arrests.

Petitioner's reason and motivation in failing to disclose his arrests in response to question number 16 of the PHD, cannot be condoned. It is understandable, that petitioner may not have been able to recall all of his encounters with the criminal justice system due to the age of many of the offenses which occurred between 1959 and 1974.

As set forth above, petitioner's motive in failing to disclose the arrests cannot be condoned, however, he did redeem himself somewhat by recalling seven of the 13 arrests when confronted by Agent Keitts. Had he continued the charade during the course of his personal interview, his honesty and integrity would be drawn into irrefutable question. Under the circumstances, however, his attempts to secrete his past did not materially hinder or otherwise subvert the DGE's investigation of his qualifications for licensure. Accordingly, I DO NOT FIND that a violation of Section 86b of the Act has occurred so as to disqualify petitioner from licensure provided that he is able to sufficiently demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity required by Section 89b(2) of the Act.

DOES PETITIONER POSSESS THE REQUISITE GOOD CHARACTER, HONESTY AND INTEGRITY REQUIRED FOR LICENSURE PURSUANT TO SECTION 89b(2) OF THE ACT.

Whenever the Division raises the good character, honesty and integrity of an applicant, it is then incumbent upon the petitioner to demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that he does possess the requisite qualities necessary for licensure under Section 89b of the Act. This tribunal is thoroughly persuaded that petitioner has met his burden more than ample evidence that is both clear and convincing.

Through his work in the mailroom, petitioner interacts virtually on a daily basis with many levels of the Trump Plaza organization. This is abundantly clear when examining the job titles of the various individuals who provided letters on behalf of the petitioner. This broad spectrum of review demonstrates that petitioner is hardworking, reliable, honest and always polite even under pressure or when confronted with difficult situations. He has earned the confidence of his employer to the extent that out of 4,200 employees, he was named employee of the month in November of 1988 and again in May of 1990.

Petitioner experienced 13 encounters with the criminal justice system between 1959 and 1974 which he attributes largely to his involvement with alcohol. His lack of involvement with criminal activities since 1974 mitigates in his favor especially when contrasted against his previous record.

Petitioner's failure to truthfully answer question number 16 of the PHD when considered against the above, appears to be a defect in his character, but not one which when compared with the above evidence, is so great so as to seriously draw into question his good character, honesty and integrity.

For the reasons set forth above, I HEREBY HOLD that petitioner has demonstrated his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence as required by Section 89b(2) of the Act.

CONCLUSION

I CONCLUDE that petitioner should be permitted to obtain a casino employee license. IT IS SO HELD this 7th day of September 1990.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed by both parties; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of October 17, 1990,

IT IS on this 14th day of December 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> The administrative law judge erroneously recited the facts of Dunston v. Dept. of Law, 240 N.J. Super. 53 (App. Div. 1990). (See initial decision at 7). Dunston involved a woman employed in the maintenance and cleaning department of a casino who had authorized access to restricted casino areas. The position required, and Ms. Dunston sought to renew, a casino employee license, not a casino hotel employee registration as the administrative law judge assumed. Thus, contrary to the administrative law judge's understanding, Ms. Dunston, like Mr. Salsberg, was required to establish her good character, honesty and integrity.

The Dunston case is, nevertheless, distinguishable from this matter because, in that case, the applicant worked for approximately four years after her disqualifying theft without further incident. Here the respondent's subsequent employment with the Claridge security department was for only thirteen months. This and other distinguishing factors, render Dunston inapposite.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent's casino employee license is revoked substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Glenn Salsberg is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any license, registration, qualification or approval under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent's casino hotel employee registration not be revoked for the reasons stated in the initial decision which is incorporated herein by reference.

Record Closed: June 26, 1990 Decided: August 2, 1990

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

The Division of Gaming Enforcement filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission on May 2, 1989 seeking revocation of Mr. Salsberg's casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration, based upon allegations that Mr. Salsberg had committed the offense of theft by unlawful taking, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. Mr. Salsberg requested a hearing on the proposed action and the matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

Following transmittal, the matter was preheard before Administrative Law Judge Joseph F. Fidler on August 18, 1989, and Judge Fidler issued a prehearing order on that date. The prehearing established the issues for consideration at the hearing as follows:

1. Has the respondent been convicted of the disorderly persons offense of theft by unlawful taking, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3, and if so, would his continued casino employee licensure and hotel employee registration be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act (N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq.) and to casino operations, pursuant to section 86c(2) of the act?

2. Has the respondent established by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the good character, honesty and integrity required for casino employee licensure, pursuant to sections 89b(2) and 90b of the act?

A hearing was held before Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin on June 4, 1990 at the Office of Administrative Law in Atlantic City. Following the hearing, counsel submitted briefs which were received from the deputy attorney general on June 11, 1990 and from respondent's counsel on June 26, 1990. The record closed upon receipt of the last brief on June 26.

EVIDENCE

There is no dispute concerning the significant facts of this case. Mr. Salsberg, a casino industry employee since 1982, was employed on December 26, 1988 at the Showboat Casino Hotel as a lead cashier selling change at change booths. At 2:20 A.M. on December 26, Detective Ames, a detective for seven years with the New Jersey State Police assigned to the casino unit, was called to the Showboat to observe a video tape of Mr. Salsberg engaging in conduct which appeared to be inappropriate. According to Ames' testimony, the tape, which was shown at the hearing, appeared to show Salsberg pocketing a $20 bill while he was counting out money at his duty station. Ames brought Salsberg to the Commission office at the Showboat, gave his Miranda warnings and asked him to empty his pocket. Salsberg appeared to move his hand in a deceptive manner, although Ames agreed on cross-examination that he could not be sure whether the action was a deceptive motion or alternatively, one caused by the cerebral palsy which affected Salsberg. Ames determined that Salsberg was holding a $20 bill in his hand, which had been in his front pocket. Salsberg claimed that the money was a tip. When he was asked who gave it to him, he gave "inappropriate" answers. When Salsberg was told that an audit showed a $20 difference between the appropriate amount of money and the actual money counted, he admitted that he had taken the money and signed a written statement which Ames wrote out for Salsberg because of Salsberg's physical problem. Salsberg read the document and signed it in the officer's presence. A complaint was sworn out against the respondent in the Atlantic City Municipal Court, charging him with theft by unlawful taking, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3.

Mr. Salsberg testified on his own behalf. Salsberg is 28 years old and lives in Atlantic City with his mother, with whom he owns a property and shares expenses. She is employed at the Claridge Hotel. Salsberg, a 1982 graduate of Mastbaum Vocational High School in Philadelphia, became employed at the Golden Nugget as a wine server in 1982, but was fired because of his difficulty in performing his duties due to the difficulties which the cerebral palsy caused him. He was eligible for re-hire and was hired by Resorts and later by the Tropicana, where he worked from 1982 to 86 as a change person and booth cashier. He began working at the Showboat in 1987 as a booth cashier and then as a lead cashier.

Salsberg admitted that he had in fact pocketed the $20 bill. He agreed that he was in fact attempting to hide the bill and that the hand movements were deceptive rather than a result of his affliction. Although he was aware that surveillance cameras scanned the cashier area, he nevertheless did attempt to take the money. According to Salsberg, at the time that this occurred, he was "burned out," had been doing the same type of work for eight years, but was embarrassed to ask his mother about quitting his job. Apparently he had a discussion with her and she indicated that she preferred that he stay at the job. Salsberg claimed that he had tried to obtain other jobs in the industry, but was unable to do so because of the limitations which his arm imposed upon his ability to do so certain forms of work and fear on the part of potential employers of lawsuits.

Mr. Salsberg agreed that he was well aware that it was wrong to take any money from his employer. Although he expected that if he was caught he would probably be fired, he did not think he would be charged with any criminal offense. When the state police confronted him he was scared and nervous, although he was not positive that he was going to be charged with any offense. At first he did not admit having taken the money because of his fear, but when he was asked again he admitted what he had done because he is "honest" and wanted to get the incident "off his chest."

As a result of his actions, Mr. Salsberg was fired from his position with the Showboat. Criminal charges were not filed until three weeks later and Salsberg was not sure at the time he was fired that he was going to be charged. He told his mother that he had been fired because had taken the keys home, something which he had done the day before. He was too embarrassed to face up to her concerning what he had actually done. As a result of his informing her that he had lost his job, she told him that she would talk to someone at the Claridge where she worked about his becoming a booth cashier. He went to the Claridge on the 27th. His first choice of employment was as a booth cashier and his second choice as a security officer.

The original application filed by Salsberg seeking employment at the Claridge was filled out on December 27, 1988 and was introduced in evidence as P-7. With respect to his employment at the Showboat, he advised that the reason for leaving was that he had taken keys home by accident, the same story which he had told his mother and which according to him she had related to her contact at the Claridge when she sought to determine whether Salsberg could get a job there. He explained that he wrote down this false information about the reason for his termination at the Showboat because he was embarrassed and did not want his mother to find out that he was a "common criminal."

Mr. Salsberg was offered a job as a booth cashier at $8 an hour, which is 15 cents less then he had been making at the Showboat. Because he did not want to deal with the same type of work, he accepted a job as a security officer for $7 an hour. During his orientation program he was called out and immediately said "I know what its all about." At this point he advised what he had done at the Showboat. Salsberg was told that after the municipal court matter was disposed of he could reapply for employment at the Claridge.

Mr. Salsberg pled guilty to the municipal court charge and was fined $25. He applied for unemployment compensation and advised the unemployment agency of the actual reason for his termination. When he reapplied for employment at the Claridge he put the actual reason for termination on the application, as well as indicating the charge and conviction for the disorderly persons offense.

The respondent was employed at the Claridge as a security officer in late April 1989. In that capacity he was involved in many activities which brought them into contact with substantial amounts of money. He looked for stolen money and lost items, and carried money back and forth throughout the premises. He resigned from the Claridge on May 14, 1990, as a result of a dispute with another security officer.

On cross-examination, the witness denied that it was likely that his co-worker at the Showboat cashier booth, Ms. Moore, would have been responsible for the $20 loss which would have shown up on the records had he managed to abscond with the $20 which he pocketed. It would not have been uncommon for Ms. Moore to make a mistake in her count. However, he did acknowledge that drawer shortages can lead to the termination of an employee. He also acknowledged that he was aware that there were certain angles which the security cameras could not see and acknowledged that he had lied on his application seeking employment at the Claridge.

In addition to his own testimony, Salsberg presented many letters from character witnesses including supervisors and fellow employees.

DISCUSSION

This case raises some very serious issues. On a simple level, there is no dispute that Mr. Salsberg engaged in theft by deception, that he was convicted of this offense in municipal court, that it was his intention to pocket and steal $20 from his employer and that in so acting he acted in violation of his fiduciary responsibility and in clear and absolute opposition to the policies of the Casino Control Act which seek to promote honesty in gaming operations and all related financial aspects in the casino industry and which seek to assure as much as possible that employees within the industry are honest, upstanding and, particularly with those involved in financial roles, trustworthy persons. Mr. Salsberg's motivation for pocketing the money is unexplained.

In addition to Salsberg's commission of the basic impropriety of stealing from his employer, the evidence established that he compounded his improper behavior by initially lying to the investigator about the money, claiming that it was a tip. While admittedly Salsberg quickly changed his tune and told Detective Ames the truth, acknowledging his wrongdoing, Salsberg then went on to lie to his mother about what had led to his losing his job and, more significantly for the purposes of this regulatory action, continued the lie by misrepresenting the reason for his termination on his application for employment at the Claridge. It was only when he was confronted by Claridge representatives at the commencement of his orientation session that he acknowledged the true circumstances of his termination.

All of the above strongly suggests that Mr. Salsberg, for whatever reason, conducted himself as both a thief and as a lier in reference to his employer and his prospective employer. His thievery was limited in scope in that he only attempted to take $20. It would be inappropriate to presume that this incident was anything other than the first incident of this type. In view of the minimal amount of money involved the offense which he committed would only constitute a disorderly persons offense, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. It would not constitute an enumerated disqualifying offense. However, there can be little question that one who steals from an employer, especially when the employment is within the casino industry, is an individual whose continued licensure would, on the face of the situation, clearly be against the interests of the casino industry and the policies of the Casino Control Act and therefore inimical and barred by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c2.

If there is a problem in this case which raises any concern as to whether in fact to declare Salsberg's continued licensure inimical, it is the fact that he has apparently successfully worked within the industry since the time of the criminal incident. For reasons which this judge must confess he finds somewhat disquieting, a casino entity determined that after Salsberg was convicted of theft by unlawful taking that he should be reemployed within the industry and placed in a security position. While I do not wish to suggest that it is by any means impossible for Mr. Salsberg to have suffered an aberrational incident in his life, one not reasonably likely to be repeated, given the short period of time which passed from the date on which he was discovered stealing from his employer until the date upon which he was reemployed and placed in a security position by a different casino hotel, it seems at least surprising, if not mystifying, that he would have been so employed and so assigned While Mr. Salsberg may properly have some role in the casino industry, placing an individual in a potentially sensitive position with access to employer's and even the public's funds who so recently showed himself sufficiently devoid of character so as to stoop to stealing money from his employer and violating his fiduciary responsibilities, strikes the hearer as troubling. While there may have been reasons why Claridge personnel deemed it appropriate, the fact is that employment within the casino industry is not simply an employer/employee matter, but also involves a rigid licensing procedure through a regulatory body with its own role to play in determining whether individuals are employable within the industry.

Having considered the evidence in this case, including the substantial body of character references produced by the respondent, I FIND that Mr. Salsberg engaged in the disorderly persons offense of theft by unlawful taking and more specifically that this theft involved the removal of funds which Salsberg was responsible for and for which he had a fiduciary responsibility toward his employer. The theft occurred within the confines of a casino and within the context of a casino employment relationship. Further, I FIND that Mr. Salsberg misrepresented the reasons for his termination from the Showboat when he applied for employment at the Claridge. I FIND that there is a serious question as to Salsberg's good character, honesty and integrity and that I cannot FIND that at this time he has established his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence, as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b, despite the opinions of those who have spoken in his behalf.

I FIND nothing in this case which suggests that Salsberg should be permitted to retain licensure, despite the determinations of the Appellate Division in its decision in Dunston v. Dept. of Law, 240 N.J. Super. 53 (App. Div. 1990). While the court in that case seemed to view the plight of a woman with little education or training in a sympathetic and understanding way, and while it seemed to focus on the negative aspects of the casino atmosphere as a possible excuse for yielding to temptation, the facts of that case, involving a cleaning lady holding a casino registration, not required to prove good character, honesty and integrity, are sufficiently distinct from the facts and legal context of Mr. Salsberg's matter as to differentiate them, despite the handicap which affects Salsberg and which certainly is of concern.

Based upon the above, I CONCLUDE that the continued licensure of Mr. Salsberg as a casino employee would be inimical. Further, I FIND that he has failed to establish by clear and convincing evidence that he has the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b2 and 90b. Therefore, it is ORDERED that his casino license be REVOKED.

As for Mr. Salsberg's casino hotel employee registration, the statute does not require that one possessing such a registration prove good character, honesty and integrity. As for inimicality, it is perhaps somewhat more difficult to conclude that a convicted thief cannot hold any position within the industry, even at a registrant's level, although even this is certainly arguable. On balance, I see no reason why Mr. Salsberg's involvement in certain aspects of the industry in a registrant capacity would not be appropriate. I recognize that his disability may limit his opportunity with respect to some of these potential employments, nevertheless, given the seriousness of the actions in which he engaged, I cannot at this time find that his licensure would be appropriate. As for registration, if he has no contact whatsoever with financial, gaming or security matters, I would find no objection to his continued registration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: May 21, 1990 Decided: June 19, 1990

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

Arthur J. Saraceno seeks renewal of a casino employee license. The Division of Gaming Enforcement objected to renewal in a letter to the Casino Control Commission dated August 16, 1989. Mr. Saraceno requested a hearing and the matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held before Honorable Edgar R. Holmes, ALJ on January 19, 1990. Judge Holmes issued a prehearing order on January 22, 1990, which established that the issue in dispute was whether or not Mr. Saraceno had the required good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

A hearing was held before Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin on May 21, 1990 at the Office of Administrative Law in Atlantic City. The record closed following completion of the hearing.

EVIDENCE

The questions concerning Mr. Saraceno's good character, honesty and integrity, which he must at all times establish by clear and convincing evidence pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), arises from an incident which occurred in 1986 in which he submitted fraudulent claims for medical bills to his then employer, Bally's Park Place Hotel Casino. Saraceno does not dispute the incident. According to testimony from Alfred V. Falco, an agent from the Division of Gaming Enforcement asigned to the casino employee licensing section renewal unit, Falco interviewed Saraceno by telephone following his review of the employee license renewal application which was filed by the applicant on July 15, 1987. Saraceno was then employed at the Showboat. On the application, he indicated that he had never been asked to leave by an employer since his last renewal. In fact, Saraceno resigned from Bally's and when questioned about this by Falco he immediately said that he had resigned in lieu of termination. According to Falco's description of Saraceno's explanation, Saraceno had been ill and hospitalized and a substantial number of medical expenses had been incurred, which were to have been paid by Bally's hospital plan. However this did not occur and according to the writeup contained in the investigation report placed in evidence on behalf of the Division as R-1, Falco records that the medical plan "did not cover all the medical expenses and as a result he had to pay some of the bills out of his pocket." In fact, Saraceno falsified medical expense records in order to obtain approximately $200 from Bally's. When Bally's learned of this they intended to terminate Saraceno for misconduct, but he was permitted to resign in lieu of termination.

On cross-examination, Falco admitted that he did not know whether Saraceno obtained any funds that he would not otherwise have been entitled to as a result of the benefits due to him from the medical plan. Falco believed that some of the bills were not covered under the Bally's policy, but he does not know why, nor is he certain whether, they were not covered or whether payment had merely been delayed. He did not conduct an independent investigation of the underlying facts of the incident. The investigation did not show whether Bally's had been defrauded of any money.

According to Saraceno's explanation to Falco, he, Saraceno, needed the money in order to fend off collection agencies who were putting pressure on him.

Mr. Saraceno testified in his own behalf. He was originally licensed in June of 1978 as a pit clerk and has since worked as a craps person and a dealer. He was chairman of the Toke Committee at Bally's prior to his termination, handling hundreds of thousand dollars a week in a position of trust for his fellow employees. In 1986 a main artery in his stomach gave way and he developed internal bleeding. He was hospitalized for 11 days, had an operation to stop the bleeding, was out of work for eight to ten weeks and in a recuperative condition for three months. He was on medical leave and accumulated medical bills of approximately 12 to 13,000 dollars. He would bring the bills into Bally's or fill out the necessary paperwork and mail it in to the company. In some cases he had to fill out forms three or four times with respect to the same bills. Some of them were paid, some were not. He was left with approximately 13 to 1,400 dollars unpaid, which was to have been covered under the Bally plan. He had never received any letters of refusal from the plan concerning these bills. The Atlantic City Medical Center, where he had first been taken at the time of the problem, was seeking a payment of $100 and threatening to sue him. In addition, after going to the Atlantic City Medical Center, he had taken an ambulance to another facility because of dissatisfaction with the delay in receiving treatment in the emergency room and the ambulance charge was $190. He was receiving threatening letters with respect to these bills as well. Some three to four months after his hospitalization, when he was already back at work, he took several bills into the benefits office and gave them to the female employee who was in charge, who apparently did not want to be bothered with them. According to Saraceno, this employee was later terminated for her improper handling of benefit claims.

At the time Saraceno was attempting to support his family, which included six children. He did not have the money to pay the bills for which the collection agencies were pressing him. He was "intimated" by the letters received from the collection agencies and he "made a mistake." He had a doctor's bill for $100 which had been paid and he changed the date on that bill and added two prescriptions to another bill in order to obtain money which he was not actually entitled to so that he could use it to pay bills which, as far as he was aware, Bally's insurance plan should have already paid.

The applicant denied any intention to benefit financially from his actions. If he had received any overpayment, he would have returned the same.

According to Saraceno, Falco's description of his explanation contained in the investigation report, in which Falco recorded that the medical insurance plan "did not cover all the medical expenses and as a result he had to pay some of the bills out of his pocket," was not correct. He never told Falco that some of the bills were not covered. In fact, all of them were to have been covered by the medical plan. However, when confronted with the situation by the Bally's representatives, he did admit that he had changed the bills and they told him he could resign in lieu of termination.

Saraceno was out of work for two months and then went to work at Showboat and has worked there since that time. He is now a dealer supervisor and a member of the Toke Committee and the Board of Trustees of the Toke Committee. He again deals with great amounts of money and has never had any problem involving these funds.

The witness explained that at the time of the incident, when he was being pressed for payment by the collection agencies and threatened with lawsuits, he "did not know who to turn to or what else to do."

On cross-examination, the witness insisted that he had revealed what had occurred at Bally's when he was hired at the Showboat. He never received any money as a result of the bills which had been sent to Bally's and they ultimately paid all of the outstanding bills.

Character Evidence

In addition to his own testimony, the applicant presented letters of recommendation from a number of individuals who he has had dealings with within and without the industry. These include the chairperson of the Showboat Toke Committee, who describes Saraceno as working even prior to opening of the facility "diligently on his own time to setup our payroll system in accordance with the Casino Control Commission rules and regulations." She describes herself as holding a "high personnel regard for Jim, who has always helped me with my chairperson duties."

Reginald Miller, a casino shift manager, described Saraceno as being of the "highest character, trustworthy and reliable. He is an asset to the employees of the Showboat Hotel and Casino," a person of the "highest morale fiber, earning the respect of all his fellow employees."

Dolores Mann, an assistant deputy public defender employed by the Department of the Public Advocate in the Union Region, Elizabeth, New Jersey, writes that she has known Saraceno for 25 years both professionally and socially and has always found him "reliable, trustworthy and hardworking." She states "I have no reservations saying that I have only known him to be honest and of high character." Additional letters from other employees of the Showboat, including pit bosses, shift managers and a pit manager, as well as from other outside acquaintances, all speak highly of Saraceno's character and integrity.

DISCUSSION

In 1986 Mr. Saraceno, an individual who apparently prior to that date had a spotless record in the industry since his original licensure in June of 1978, committed an action which can only be described as stupid and dishonest. Stupid because it was done without any apparent attempt to seek any assistance from anyone other than the seemingly uncooperative individual to whom the forms were being turned in despite indications that there were other avenues within the Bally's organization which could have provided counseling and assistance; dishonest because without question Saraceno's intent was to deceive his employer into providing some benefits by the submission of false documentation. Even if Saraceno was ultimately entitled to receive the monies which he was attempting to get, there can be no question but that the way in which he went about attempting to get it was deceitful. As the Bally's report of the incident indicates, Saraceno was at that point told that "two wrongs do not make a right." Surely that is true.

From everything else about Mr. Saraceno's past it appears that his conduct in connection with the submission of these fraudulent documents was aberrational. Both before and since the incident he has worked in the casino industry without any apparent difficulty, has held positions of trust both from the Commission, which has granted him a casino employee license, and within the casinos themselves, where he has served both in supervisory capacities and also in the role of a highly respected representative of the employees in connection with the Toke Committees at both Bally's and Showboat. There can be no question but that his fellow employees, as well as his employers, have seen fit to reside great trust in Mr. Saraceno. It is unfortunate that in 1986 he failed to live up to the trust given to him.

The question is whether at this time Saraceno has the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure as a casino employee. He must prove this by clear and convincing evidence. Based upon what has been presented, I have no doubt that Mr. Saraceno's mistake will not be repeated. There are instances where individuals faced with certain pressures will cave in to them, will be unable to deal with them, and will as a result do foolish and sometimes even illegal things. Mr. Saraceno gives every indication that he has learned from his lesson. When he filled out the application in 1987 and did not list that he had been asked by his employer to leave, he was perhaps technically correct, although there is no question but that the spirit of the question should have required him to answer that he was in fact asked to leave by Bally's. However, since that time I sense that Saraceno has recognized the wrong procedure that he followed in seeking what in fact may have been due to him and I have no question that he will not repeat this error.

The good character references received do not specifically indicate whether the individuals are aware of the circumstances under which Saraceno left Bally's. There is no doubt that the individuals involved hold Mr. Saraceno in an extremely high regard. Based upon the evidence presented and the circumstances, I am convinced that at this time he does have the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure. It is therefore ORDERED that his license be renewed.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

G. Michael Brown, Esq., for petitioner (Greenberg Margolis, attorneys)

James J. Armstrong, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: August 31, 1990 Decided: October 15, 1990

BEFORE JOHN R. FUTEY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Thomas E. Schaffer, Jr., applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the issuance of a casino employee license. The respondent, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) opposed the issuance of the license by reason of its contention that, as a prior law enforcement officer, petitioner had sworn to uphold the law at the time of his arrest (prior to his employment in the casino industry). As a result, the Division objected to the licensure of petitioner as a casino employee pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)(2) and 90(b). Petitioner contends that he was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 90h.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed with the Commission an application for the issuance of a casino employee license so that he could be employed in the full scale security operations of the casino industry. By letter to the Commission dated March 28, 1990, the Division objected to the petitioner's application for licensure as a security employee. On May 7, 1990, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (which received it on May 11, 1990), for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

The matter was listed for hearing and heard on August 23, 1990 at the OAL, Mercerivell, New Jersey. The record remained open until August 31, 1990 in order for this tribunal to receive additional documents on behalf of petitioner. The hearing record closed on that date.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The essential facts in this matter are not in dispute. Petitioner's application disclosed an arrest in 1966 for aggravated assault (comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(b)) in Camden, New Jersey. In addition to that, petitioner indicated that he had fired a rifle within the city limits and had been charged with disorderly conduct. However, the Division could not obtain any further details regarding the arrest. Petitioner indicated at hearing that he was mistaken regarding the matters having resulted in an arrest. Rather, he erroniously indicated that an arrest had followed the incident. Instead, he indicated that he was only investigated as a result of the incident and that no formal charges were ever filed.

Petitioner was arrested on April 28, 1969 and charged with possession of narcotics, a charge comparable to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10. The Division contends that the petitioner was subsequently indicted on the charge, which was later dismissed. Petitioner contends that the matter did not result in an indictment. Rather, he entered pretrial intervention as a result of a direct complaint. The charge, in any event, resulted from a party which petitioner threw at his apartment for 24 people after he had been employed several months by the Camden Police Department. The party was meant to celebrate the class graduation from the county police academy. After the party, one of the attendees stated that he had smelled marijuana at the party. Although an investigation and arrest resulted, he was later found not guilty of any offense. Petitioner was fully reinstated to his police position with full back pay.

On or about August 4, 1988, petitioner was arrested by the Camden Police Department for possession of controlled dangerous substance (cocaine) in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10. The arrest occurred when petitioner attempted to purchase $65 worth of cocaine for recreational use. At the time of that arrest, petitioner was then a 20-year veteran of the Camden Police Department. As a result of a civil service hearing conducted before Administrative Law Judge Steven Carnes, a settlement was entered into between petitioner and the City of Camden whereby petitioner would receive a resignation in good standing and, further provided that he not seek any employment with any law enforcement agency in New Jersey. He then entered and successfully completed the pretrial intervention program, as a result of which the charge was dismissed against him on May 8, 1989.

Petitioner indicated that prior to the incident involving cocaine, he had become increasingly afraid of his job as a street policeman. In March 1987 petitioner became involved in an investigation involving a hostage situation. He was summoned from across town to the scene of the hostage taking at which time, absent the presence of any senior officers, he took charge of the hostage situation on behalf of all of the officers who were then assembled at the scene. After assessing the situation, petitioner went up to the front door of the home and, upon discussing this matter with the woman who appeared at that location, he immediately grabbed her and pulled her away from the door. It was then determined that a man inside the home held various other hostages at bay with a shotgun and other weapons. As petitioner pulled the lady away from the door area, the hostage taker appeared at an upper story window, held a five-year-old girl by her feet and threatened to do harm to her. He then let go and the girl dropped head first to the ground, sustaining various serious injuries. He was ultimately subdued and placed under arrest by the police team at the scene. As a result of the incident, petitioner received commendations from the Camden Police Department (P-5), the Camden County Prosecutor's office (P-6), and the New Jersey State Senate (P-7). However, as a result of the incident, petitioner's nerves began to wear on him and he became increasingly despondent and frightened about his role as a city officer. Subsequently, he investigated other Camden shootups, including a situation in which a cab driver had been shot in the stomach. Although petitioner needed significant help to deal with his emotional problems and his declining professionalism, there were no programs in place at the Camden City Police Department at the time. (It is noted that, subsequent to petitioner's involvement with cocaine in 1988, the Department has in fact instituted such programs.) Petitioner also was feared going to his supervisors, from whom he feared retaliation. As a result, he turned to the use of alcohol and, subsequently drugs on a recreational basis. Although his alcohol consumption had begun in 1986, his use of drugs only commenced after the 1987 hostage crises, at which time another officer had introduced him to the use of cocaine.

After his arrest in 1988, he voluntarily entered the Malvern Institute, Pennsylvania, for a 28-day inpatient program. He then entered various after care programs as follows: (a) Turning Point (Starting Point) - four months, (b) Narcotics Anonymous and Alcoholics Anonymous meetings on a regular basis. Initially he attended three to four times a day and has now reduced them to once each week. (c) The 1033 Club, which is a support group for policemen, firemen and medics, who have abuse problems, (d) once a month check ups back at Malvern, (e) Department of Labor, Division of Location Rehabilitation counselling, which gave him jobbing techniques as well as a referral to a psychiatrist (Dr. Harp, who saw him 20 times during the course of one year. He has been treated for post-traumatic stress disorder through that program).

Petitioner contends that he has used no alcohol and no drugs since August 4, 1988. He has also previously consulted with Maurice L. Hayes, M.D., regarding his post-traumatic stress disorder (P-4). He has since been discharged from Dr. Hayes.

The Division also cited the fact that petitioner's name appears on a charge off account with the First People's Bank in the amount of $899, which event occurred in 1974. Petitioner contends that he was not aware of that particular billing, since his former wife had been responsible for maintaining the account all along. His former wife had also suffered from alcoholism. He is the parent of three adult boys, ages 25, 24 and 18. He helped both older boys go through college and is presently assisting his youngest child who is attending Philadelphia Textile College. He claims to be on good terms with all boys.

Subsequent to his divorce from his first wife, petitioner married his wife Kathleen, on December 29, 1986. She has known him however, for a period of eight and one-half years, during which time she has had an opportunity to observe him in his various stress-related situations. She corroborated the fact that on three occasions petitioner attempted to ask his Captain for help but choked up and failed to follow through with the request for assistance. He has also begged his captain to get him off the streets. His captain assured him that he would grant him his request and place him in the Juvenile Detective Bureau, at a time when the captain would become chief of police. However, that event did not occur until after petitioner's drug arrest in 1988.

Kathleen also reported that she has a ten-year-old daughter by her previous marriage, whom petitioner intends to adopt.

Frank Falco has been employed by the Taj Mahal since November 1989 and prior thereto by the Playboy Casino as a security supervisor. He first became acquainted with petitioner in November 1989, at which time there were fellow officers. Falco is presently petitioner's supervisor. He observed that petitioner is an above average security officer, based upon his experience and maturity. He has seen absolutely no problems in petitioner's performance and recommends him highly for advancement. However, because of the limitation placed upon his ability to secure a casino license to date, petitioner has been passed over five times for supervisory positions. Petitioner's attendance is good and he performs up to task. In view of the limitation placed upon him to date, petitioner has only been able to work the hotel side of security, and particularly the employee parking lot area. Falco sees this as a very important job because it requires someone who is able to remain alert at all times and capable of handling a multitude of potential problems. He has recommended petitioner for casino security work.

John L. Pickering originally met petitioner through Alcoholics Anonymous, at which time Pickering was petitioner's sponsor. In that capacity he has known him for approximately two years and has had a periodic opportunity to observe petitioner's performance from a distance. He has noted that petitioner has always performed well and has never seen petitioner consume alcohol.

LAW, ANALYSIS AND FINDINGS

The Division contends, by means of section 89(b)(2) and 90(b) of the Casino Control Act, that petitioner's admission of the use of recreational use of cocaine while employed as a law enforcement officer calls into question his good character, honesty and integrity.

Needless-to-say, the Division's initial concern in that regard is understandable since petitioner is seeking licensed entry into an industry which demands a high level of good character, honesty and integrity. As a result, it is necessary to scrutinize petitioner's background in order to assess his ability to have embraced those necessary qualities before one can consider any recommendation regarding his employment in the casino control industry.

To that end, this tribunal has closely evaluated the proofs offered in this case as well as the explanations afforded by petitioner regarding his past misconduct. Based upon all the factors presented, I am satisfied and FIND that petitioner presented a satisfactory explanation regarding the investigation/incident which took place in 1966 as well as the alleged incident which took place at the police academy party in 1969. In both cases, petitioner has demonstrated that his good character was not otherwise compromised.

The arrest for possession of cocaine in 1988 requires a much closer evaluation since the incident occurred at a time when petitioner was then actively employed in law enforcement in Camden County after a period of some 20 years of veteran service. There is no doubt in the mind of this tribunal that even the recreational use of cocaine is a serious matter impacting upon one's good character. However, this tribunal FINDS that petitioner has afforded a reasonable and realistic explanation for having delved into this prohibitive area when he did. There is also no doubt in the mind of this tribunal that petitioner underwent a massive decline in his own personal character as a result of having been exposed to long-term pressures as a city policeman. I FIND that the stresses of that job are enormous on even a regular basis. It is apparent that petitioner was in the process of suffering burnout over an extended period, which decline was magnified when petitioner became involved in the hostage taking situation in 1988. Petitioner was literally under fire and jeopardized his own safety for the benefit of the public at large.

In addition, to have witnessed a child having been dangled out of upper story window and then let go by such a sick criminal mind as the hostage taker leaves no doubt that that incident put petitioner over the edge. Yet, for all of his immediate decline, he was just as frightened to approach his own superiors regarding his problem. I FIND that absent a declared program of nonattribution on the part of the Camden City Police Department at the time, petitioner would have placed himself in extreme professional peril by announcing his problems to his superiors. Further, I find that the Camden City Police Department lacked a comprehensive program to address stress related problems of its street officers and this enlarge part propelled petitioner even farther down the road toward his own self distruction.

The events which occurred on August 4, 1988 may in fact have ultimately saved petitioner's life, since petitioner bottomed out at that time. Yet, he had the character and strength to rise above the ashes, seek professional help on a long-term basis, and come to grips with the poisons associated with recreational drug use. Petitioner demonstrates a fine history of rehabilitation in that regard and offers all of us a reasonable assurance that he has conquered his worst problems in that regard.

I also FIND that petitioner's work history since that time has been exemplary and further demonstrates his renewed self assurance and good character. This tribunal firmly believes that petitioner is in fact a good police officer and, although he can no longer work in that regard in any law enforcement agency in New Jersey, there is no reason to deny him utilization of his extensive talents in the security field.

Finally, I FIND that petitioner's positive life style regarding his wife, his soon-to-be adopted daughter, as well as his three natural sons also demonstrates an ongoing commitment to his family. Were this petitioner to have been so gripped by the use of drugs, it is extraordinarly doubtful that he could have maintained such an intact family unit as he has. It is obvious that he has a family which supports him and loves him. It further indicates to this tribunal that even at hs lowest times, petitioner never really abandoned his family. Rather, he attempted to come to grips with his problem and has in fact succeeded. Finally, I am satisfied that petitioner had no direct involvement with the bad debt which was incurred by his former wife. Rather, he was merely on the receiving end of a destroyed marriage. He should not suffer any adverse consequences because of that bad debt.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Based upon all the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity in this matter. It is hereby ORDERED that the application of Thomas E. Schaffer, Jr., for the issuance of a casino employee license be and is hereby GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

v.

GARY J. SEGARS, JR.,

Respondent.

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed; and a reply to the exceptions having been filed; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of October 3, 1990,

IT IS on this 16th day of October 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is rejected and the Commission finds as follows:

(1) The ALJ erred in separately applying the rehabilitation factors of N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h) and 91(d) to the two offenses which the Division alleged rendered the respondent unsuitable for licensure. That is, in considering whether the respondent was rehabilitated from his 1988 conviction for aggravated assault, a disqualifying offense pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h), the ALJ did not consider the effect of the respondent's conviction for theft by unlawful taking, which the Division contended was a disqualifying "inimical" offense under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(2). This compartmentalized approach yielded an improper result;

(2) Although the ALJ recognized that the respondent was estopped from relitigating the underlying facts of his municipal court conviction for theft by unlawful taking (Matter of Tanelli, 194 N.J. Super. 492, 498 (App. Div. 1984)), the ALJ thereafter found that the respondent had not acted out of a plan to defraud but rather out of "mistake and ignorance,"

Thus, in the opinion of the ALJ, the respondent was guilty only of an unknowing violation of casino policy. These findings are in fatal conflict with the municipal court's finding that the respondent committed theft by unlawful taking;

(3) Upon evaluation of all the rehabilitation criteria of both N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h) and 91(d) to the facts of this case, the respondent is not rehabilitated from his conviction for aggravated assault, and is therefore disqualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(1). By reason of his conviction for theft by unlawful taking in the course of his duties as a slot booth cashier, the respondent is also disqualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(2); and

(4) Notwithstanding these rulngs, the Commission concurs with the ALJ's alternative recommendation that the respondent's disqualification should be waived pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(e) to permit him to retain his casino hotel employee registration. Although the respondent failed to establish his rehabilitation to the clear and convincing standard, the evidence he presented is sufficient to find interests of justice which warrant waiver of his disqualification under section 91(e).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent is found disqualified from holding a casino employee license and casino hotel employee registration substantially for the reasons stated herein; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent's casino employee license is revoked but the disqualification is waived pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(e) to permit him to retain his casino hotel employee registration and he remains eligible for employment in any capacity permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-8 and 91; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Gary J. Segars, Jr. is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any other license, registration, qualification or approval required under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

Record Closed: August 10, 1990 Decided: August 10, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) seeking revocation of respondent's casino employee license #71468-21 and casino hotel employee registration #56945-40. The Division alleges, among other things, that respondent committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifer for licensure and that respondent's continuing licensure would be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry in general and that he lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required of license holders.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its complaint on December 13, 1989. Respondent requested a hearing on December 22, 1990 and on January 11, 1990 the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on May 25, 1990 by Jeff S. Masin, ALJ followed by a hearing which was held on July 13, 1990. The record was closed on August 10, 1990.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this tribunal are as follows:

A. Has Mr. Segars engaged in conduct which would automatically disqualify him from licensure, namely, has he engaged in aggravated assault (third degree) for which he was supposedly convicted on January 9, 1989? Does this automatically require his disqualification from licensure and registration pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)1?

B. Has Mr. Segars rehabilitated himself from any disqualification resulting from the aggravated assault and is he thus eligible for licensure and registration pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h) and 91(d)?

C. Does Mr. Segars have the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure as a casino employee by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)(2), incorporating 90(b)?

D. Would Mr. Segar's continued licensure or registration be inimical, that is, against the policies of the Casino Control Act and the interests of the casino industry, thus requiring revocation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)2?

E. With respect to the hotel registration, does the evidence and the facts involved in this case indicate that it is one in which the interests of justice would require that any disqualification be waived, as provided by N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(e).

FINDINGS OF FACT

Respondent, Gary J. Segars, is a 24 year old married male who currently supports a wife and two daughters, approximately one and a half and three years old. The facts presented at the hearing clearly demonstrate the debilitating effects that a seven year alcohol and drug addiction had on Mr. Segars' casino employment career and his family life. Mr. Segars' addictive behaviour caused him to be involved in criminal activity to which the Division alleges he should now be disqualified pursuant to 86(c)1 of the Act from holding a casino license and hotel registration.

Mr. Segars began his casino career in 1984 at the age of 18 years old as a bus person in a hotel restaurant. He, as well as his father, held aspirations then and now that he would eventually work his way up to an upper level casino management position. He remained in various restaurant positions in Trump Castle and Atlantis until qualified in 1987 to deal craps at which time he gained employment with Bally's Park Place.

Mr. Segars held eleven different positions within the casino industry from 1984 until October of 1989. He was terminated from many of these positions due to excessive tardiness and an inability to perform the functions of the job. According to Mr. Segars, "it's hard to hold a job when you are addicted to alcohol and drugs". "I have lost a lot of good jobs, jobs that I should have today". His addiction effected not only his career but also his home environment. Susana Segars, his wife, described her husband as being irritable and unable to go to work many days at which times she would call in sick for him. She together with Mr. Segars' parents recognized the problem but felt powerless to do anything about it. During this period, Susana Segars stated that her husband only wanted to obtain more alcohol and drugs, often disappeared with the paycheck and would rarely come home at the conclusion of his shift. "It was a nightmare". Susana Segars first realized that there was a serious problem when her husband was convicted of the first of three drunk driving charges in a period of approximately three years. This was a problem, she learned later through counselling, that she was powerless to change until her husband was ready to face the problem and seek help.

Mr. Segars' problems began, or perhaps ended, the evening of June 1, 1988. The evening began with Mr. Segars and a friend partaking in cocaine and alcohol to the extent that when arrested, he had a blood alcohol content of 0.23. Running out of something to drink, Mr. Segars and his co-defendant, Mario Macellari, left his apartment intent on purchasing more alcohol. Mr. Segars, who was driving, ran his vehicle over the curb while entering a gas station. Present in uniform, was Officer Heinze of the Atlantic City Police Department who, noticing the erratic behaviour, approached the Segars' vehicle for questioning. It was at this point, that a high speed chase ensued North on Route 9 eventually culminating in an apartment house parking lot in Absecon, New Jersey. Officer Heinze pulled Mr. Macellari from the vehicle and a fight ensued. When Mr. Segars exited the vehicle he found Mr. Macellari on the ground with the officer attempting to subdue him. Mr. Segars then pulled the officer off of Mr. Macellari by which time the Absecon police, with guns drawn, ordered Mr. Segars to lie on the ground. Mr. Segars contended that he never struck the officer.

As a result of the above incident, Mr. Segars pled guilty on January 9, 1989 to one count of aggravated assault, N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(b)5. He was ordered to serve 180 days in the Atlantic County Jail, pay $1,000 in restitution to Officer Heinze and a $500 penalty. He was assigned to the minimum security wing of the Atlantic County Jail and within 30 days qualified as a trustee and began work in the jail kitchen. While incarcerated, Mr. Segars attended a bible study course and regular alcoholic's anonymous meetings. There were no disciplinary problems with Mr. Segars while in jail and as a result, he qualified for early release on May 17, 1989 serving 72 out of a possible 180 day sentence. As part of his probation, he was required to submit regular urinalysis in order to detect the presence of alcohol or drugs. This portion of his probation was discontinued after seven months due to repeated negative results.

Mr. Segars has been in his own words "replacing former irresponsible, impulsive, addictive behaviour with responsible sober behaviour". Living by the 12 steps of AA, he has been attending an outpatient program at Seabrook House four days a week, three hours a day for a total of 32 sessions. Admitting, that he was powerless over his addiction, he realized that his life had become unmanagable and decided to do something about it. He feels that at the age of 24, he had been an alcohol and drug abuser for the last seven years of his life. As of the date of the hearing, he has refrained from any alcohol and drug use for a period of 14 months straight. Incarceration was the catalyst by which Mr. Segars obtained sobriety.

Mr. Segars' parents and wife both described a changed individual determined to stay sober and to re-enter the casino industry. His parents "hoped" and "prayed" that their son would be sentenced to jail in order that he could receive the help he so desperately needed. His wife describes him now as a responsible father, considerate husband and never absent or late for work. Mr. Segars' father has observed that since leaving Atlantic County Jail, his son has been current with his rent including the other household expenses. Obtaining his casino license is of great concern to the Segars' since Mrs. Segars is also employed in the casino industry and because of the family's desire to remain in Atlantic County. Other than dealing, Mr. Segars' primary skill is that of a gourmet restaurant waiter with the only such restaurants in Atlantic County being found in the casinos.

Documentary evidence submitted by Mr. Segars support his claims of recovery from addiction. His probation officer states that he is in compliance with the terms and conditions of his probation and a letter from Jeane R. Woerner, a therapist at Seabrook House states that he is committed to his recovery, has been regularly attending self-help sessions.

In August of 1989 Mr. Segars began employment classified as a dual-rate dealer and change person working three days a week dealing craps and two days dispensing change in the slot change booth. When reporting to work on October 1, 1989 he was advised to report to his supervisor's office where he was met by Det.

Lindsay of the Division of Gaming Enforcement. Det. Lindsay was accusing Mr. Segars of theft of $40 during his shift of September 30, 1989. Mr. Segars both before Det. Lindsay and during the course of the hearing freely described the events leading up to the allegation. On that night, Mr. Segars was stationed in the slot change booth. A regular patron of the casino whose name was unknown to Mr. Segars received change at least three times prior to 1:00 A.M. At that time, the patron gave Mr. Segars a $100 bill and exited the slot change booth before Mr. Segars had an opportunity to return his $40. The patron ignored Mr. Segars' calls to him that he had left his change behind. Since the patron had frequented the booth at least three times prior to the 1:00 A.M. change incident, Mr. Segars placed the $40 on top of a cash drawer awaiting his return. By the close of his shift at 4:00 A.M. the patron had failed to claim the change and Mr. Segars placed the money in his back pocket and left. Mr. Segars testified that he had no intention of keeping the money at the time the patron left his change booth, and he was unaware that the casino had a procedure for collecting unclaimed monies. He later learned that the procedure was to place the money in an envelope marked with either the name of the patron or a description of the person, at which time the money would be turned over to his supervisor.

Det. Lindsay continued to press Mr. Segars for his cooperation to arrange an undercover drug purchase within the casino. Mr. Segars refused stating that he was a recovering alcoholic and narcotics user, that he had left that life behind him and that everyone who associated with him in the casino knew that. Det. Lindsay visited Mr. Segars' mother's house and later Mr. Segars' residence at which time Mr. Segars again refused to participate in a drug buy and told the Detective he would have nothing further to do with the plan. It was not until this point that Det. Lindsay filed a complaint in the Atlantic City Municipal Court. There, on January 3, 1990, without benefit of counsel, Mr. Segars was found guilty of theft, N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. Mr. Segars contended that during his interview of October 1, 1989 with Det. Lindsay he overheard Det. Lindsay report to Trump officials that "no crime had taken place" and it was only after Mr. Segars refused to participate in a drug purchase that Det. Lindsay then filed the theft compliant.

Mr. Segars had been discharged from Trump Plaza not because of the theft charge, but instead, for failing to follow accounting procedures within the slot change booth. Trump officials in the gaming department immediately hired him to deal craps full time, however, upon learning that he was only qualified in one game, they referred him back to his old position which was no longer available.

Since his discharge from Trump Plaza, Mr. Segars has been employed at Chez Robe'rt Restaurant, a gourmet restaurant in Haddon Township, New Jersey. His position at Chez Robe'rt's is that of front waiter and as indicated by R-4 and R-5, he is considered to be a well qualified, reliable employee who is also responsible for training and supervising other employees. According to Mr. Segars' uncle (R-6) "I have seen the worst of Gary and now I am seeing the best". This statement summarizes the testimony of his wife, mother and father. Mr. Segars' desire to work in the gaming industry and to remain sober was demonstrated throughout the course of the entire hearing.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Has Mr. Segars committed an offense which would constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to 86(c)1 of the Act, thus disqualifying him from holding both a hotel registration and casino license.

Pursuant to Section 5:12-1(b)8 of the Act, it is established that licensure under the Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." Section 129(1) of the Act provides for the revocation or other sanctions against the license held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this Act which would disqualify such person from holding their license." The Division contends that Mr. Segars' conviction for aggravated assault on January 9, 1989 constitutes a statutory disqualifier pursuant to 86(c)1 of the Act both as to his hotel registration and casino employee license. Section 86(c)1 of the Act states:

> "The conviction of the applicant, or any person required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license, of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be:
> (1) Any of the following offenses under the "New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice," P.L. 1978, c. 95 (Title 2C of the New Jersey Statutes) as amended and supplemented: N.J.S. 2C:12-1b. (aggravated assault which constitutes a crime of the second or third degree).

I FIND that Mr. Segars' commission of aggravated assault in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b constitutes a statutory disqualifier pursuant to 86(c)1 of the Act and accordingly is disqualified from holding a hotel registration as well as a casino employee license.

Has Mr. Segars demonstrated his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence.

Mr. Segars, who has committed a disqualifying 86(c)1 offense is afforded the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating by clear and convincing evidence his rehabilitation pursuant to Section 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act. In order to retain his hotel registration, it is necessary for him to demonstrate rehabilitation, however, his casino employee license may only be retained if in addition to rehabilitation, he is able to show by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required of a licensee pursuant to Section 89(b)2. Accordingly, the analysis set forth below will address the rehabilitative factors necessary for both the registration and casino employee license.

In Section 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act, the Legislature has set forth eight specific criteria to be considered and evaluated by this tribunal where a determination of rehabilitation is to be made. The specific eight factors are:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
4. The date of the offense or conduct;
5. The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;
6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

In consideration of Mr. Segars' claim of rehabilitation, the following facts are found in this record.

1. Mr. Segars is currently the holder of casino employee license #71468-21 and casino hotel employee registration #56945-40. He has held since 1984 eleven different positions in various casinos both in the hotel and on the casino floor. He has also lost many of these jobs, not because he was not otherwise qualified for the positions, but instead he was fired as a result of excessive tardiness or no-shows on account of his alcohol and drug addiction. Removing that factor, he thus possesses the requisite qualifications for a position either within the hotel or on the casino floor.

2. The offense of aggravated assault, N.J.S.A. 2C:12-

1(b)(5) is a crime of a serious nature especially when considering that the offense took place against a police officer. His addiction cannot be utilized as a reason to justify or in any way to explain away his behaviour the night of June 1, 1988. The offense thus, must be considered of a serious nature thus requiring Mr. Segars to demonstrate through the other seven factors herein his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence.

3. Although the offense must be considered serious, the circumstances surrounding the incident mitigates slightly in Mr. Segars' favor, he had never been arrested or involved in any other criminal activity, exclusive of three DWI instances, prior to June 1, 1988. His blood alcohol content was 0.23. He attributes his behaviour to his addiction which must be considered as a plausible explanation since it is very unlikely that any individual who had never been involved in violent behaviour in the past would engage in such but for the fact of extreme intoxication. Mr. Segars involvement in the matter was not to fight with the officer directly but instead to remove the officer from his co-defendant. Alcohol and drugs were clearly a catalyst for Mr. Segars' irrational behaviour.

4. The aggravated assault occurred on June 1, 1988.

5. At the time of the assault Mr. Segars was 22 years old. He is now 24 years old. From the testimony presented, it is apparent that Mr. Segars was a very young and extremely immature 22 year old when the assault occurred. Although only two years have passed since the date of the assault, testimony presented warrants a finding that he has greatly matured during that time period. He has replaced immature, impulsive, addictive behaviour with sober behaviour and is now capable of setting and maintaining goals. He has matured financially in that his rent is paid on time and he is now anticipating the purchase of a home with his wife in approximately one year.

6. The aggravated assault offense was a one time transgression apparently induced by immature and addictive behaviour. Under the current circumstances, it is unlikely that such an offense or behaviour would be repeated.

7. The next inquiry is whether any social conditions played in the commisison of the offense. This can include any family circumstances or external peer pressure which resulted in or influenced the individual to commit the offense. Mr. Segars both then and now is surrounded with a loving supportive family. The debate continues as to whether alcohol and drug abuse is a result of heredity or external social pressures. In this instance, the social condition partially responsible for the commission of the offense was Mr. Segars association with other friends who themselves exhibit immature addictive behaviour, specifically his co-defendant, Mario Macellari. Mr. Segars admitted this fact and indicated during the hearing that he no longer associates with individuals of this ilk and specifically his former friend and best man, Mario Macellari.

8. Mr. Segars demonstrated while incarcerated that he was an individual who was concerned with his rehabilitation and who could be trusted. He was housed in the minimum security section of the Atlantic County Jail and obtained the status of trustee, eventually serving 72 out of a possible 180 day sentence. His rehabilitation from alcohol and drugs began in jail and as set forth above, has continued to this day. He works hard at his rehabilitation which is clearly demonstrated by his attendance four days a week, three hours a day for a total of 32 sessions at Seabrook House. He is currently successfully employed at Chez Robe'rts and has earned the respect of his employer, Robert Sliwowski (R-4) and fellow co-workers (R-5). He has been straight for 14 months as of the date of the hearing which is a commendable period of time considering the nature and extent of his addiction. As a result, he is now successfully supporting his wife and two children.

During the course of the hearing, I found Mr. Segars to be a polite, credible, and sincere individual who is determined regardless of the outcome of the instant matter to continue his rehabilitation. As set forth above, I found that the crime of aggravated assault committed by him is one of a most serious nature and it is only through his extraordinary demonstration by clear and convincing evidence of his commitment to sobriety that leads me to CONCLUDE and to so FIND that Mr. Segars has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation.

Whether Mr. Segars' continuing licensure would be inimical to the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry pursuant to 86(c)2 of the Act.

In order to retain his casino employee license #71468-21 Mr. Segars, in addition to rehabilitation under Section 90(h) of the Act, must also demonstrate his good character, honesty and integrity pursuant to Section 89(b)2 of the Act. However, if it is first determined that his continuing licensure would be inimical to the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry, it would be unnecessary to reach the issue of his good character, honesty and integrity. Thus, the inimical analysis would be considered first. It must be observed, that a determination of inimicality would preclude Mr. Segars, not only as a casino employee but also as a hotel registrant. It must be noted, however, that despite a determination of inimicality, it is possible for an individual to retain his or her hotel registration provided that the extraordinary relief of waiver is granted by the Casino Control Commission pursuant to Section 91(e) of the Act. The issue as to whether a waiver should issue is discussed below.

Section 86(c)2 of the Act states:

> "Any other offense under present New Jersey or federal law which indicates that licensure of the applicant would be inimical to the policy of this act and to casino operations; provided, however, that the automatic disqualification provisions of this subsection shall not apply with regard to any conviction which did not occur within the 10 year period immediately preceding application for licensure and which the applicant demonstrates by clear and convincing evidence does not justify automatic disqualification pursuant to this subsection and any conviction which has been the subject of a judicial order of expungement or sealing."

Whether an individual's conduct rises to the level of inimicality to the Act and legalized gaming depends upon the circumstances of each case. The factors to be weighed and considered are the nature of the offense, the circumstances surrounding the offense including mitigating and aggravating factors, the amount of time that has passed from the offense to the date of the hearing. See Davis vs. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 at 313. Included in this analysis are the eight factors set forth in Section 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act. It must be emphasized that an individual cannot affirmatively demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act in order to overcome the disqualifying offense of inimicality set forth in section 86(c)2. Nevertheless, the enumerated rehabiliation factors set forth in Sections 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act can be utilized in the inimical analysis in order to determine whether an individual must be disqualified from participation in the gaming industry. Applying these factors to the facts of the instant matter I FIND as follows:

1. Nature of the offense.

The complaint filed in the Atlantic City Municipal Court alleges in sum, that Mr. Segars "shortchanged" a patron in the sum of $40. Mr. Segars' unrefuted testimony was that he had no intention to shortchange the patron. This is corroborated by his actions since he called to the patron when realizing that the patron was leaving without receiving the full amount of change and that Mr. Segars then put the $40 aside (on a shelf) anticipating that he would return by the conclusion of his shift. This tribunal does not have the authority to overturn the guilty finding entered on January 3, 1990. Mr. Segars is precluded from litigating the facts upon which a previously adjudicated judgment of conviction was based. See Matter of Tinelli, 194 N.J. Super. 492, 498 (1984). However, this tribunal does have the authority to question and otherwise inquire into the circumstances surrounding the offense and subsequent finding of guility.

2. Circumstances surrounding the offense.

Testimony presented at the hearing demonstrates that the Division of Gaming Enforcement detective after interrogating Mr. Segars, reported to Trump Plaza officials that no crime had taken place. It was only after Mr. Segars refused to consent to the demands of the DGE officer that the municipal court complaint was filed. This unrebutted testimony must stand provided that both Mr. Segars and his version of the incident are considered credible by this tribunal. The party who has the burden of proof in an administrative hearing must prove the case by a preponderance of the credible evidence. This tribunal must, therefore, decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, and according to the reasonable probability of the truth. Jackson vs. D. L. & W. R.R., Co., 111 N.J.L. 487, 490 (E. & A. 1933). The evidence is found to preponderate if it establishes the reasonable probability of fact. Jaeger vs. Elizabethtown Consolidated Gas Co., 124 N.J.L. 420, 423 (Sup.Ct. 1940). Where the standard is, as in the instant matter, a reasonable probability (preponderance of the evidence), the evidence must be such as to generate the belief that the tendered hypothesis is in all human likelihood the fact. Loew vs. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959) certif. den. 31 N.J. 75 (1959), overruled on other grounds, 36 N.J. 487 (1962). Mr. Segars was interviewed by the DGE detective on October 1, 1989. The municipal court complaint was not filed until October 19, 1989 almost three weeks after the incident. This time factor corroborates Mr. Segars' contention that the municipal court complaint was a sort of damocles over his head which would only be removed when he refused to cooperate with Det. Lindsay's plan. Under the facts and circumstances of this matter, I FIND Mr. Segars' testimony to be credible and believable. He did not set out intentionally to defraud a patron of his change instead, he unknowingly violated company policy in that he did not remit the $40 to his supervisor.

3. Seriousness of the offense.

I do not consider the offense to be of a serious nature since the act was not committed as a result of any plan or scheme to defraud either a patron or the casino industry. It was an offense that occurred out of mistake and ignorance. As such, it is clearly distinguishable from those crimes wherein the individual clearly intends to defraud a patron or to otherwise perform an act which could simply not be tolerated if the integrity of the gaming industry is to be maintained.

CONCLUSION

In analyzing whether Mr. Segars' actions fall within the inimical category of Section 86(c)2 of the Act, the question must be asked whether the offense committed by him is likely to be repeated. If the factors which contributed to the offense remain ever present, then allowing that individual entry into the industry would be inimical both because of the potential for the act to be repeated and because of the public's perception that repetitive conduct of this nature is condoned.

I CONCLUDE that based upon the factors as set forth above, Mr. Segars' continuing licensure both as a casino employee and hotel registrant would not be inimical to the interest and policies of the Casino Control Act or the gaming industry in general.

> Does Mr. Segars possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required of a casino license holder by Section 89(b)2 of the Act.

Whenever the Division of Gaming Enforcement raises as an issue the good character, honesty and integrity of the respondent, it is then respondent's burden to show by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure under the Act. In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the legislature it is imperative that the character and background of the licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure. Clear and convincing falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the facts presented by respondent are true. The standard requires more than the mere balancing of probabilities but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lapre vs. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (Law Div. 1974).

Mr. Segars produced three witnesses, all of which were family members, to attest to his good character, honesty and integrity. In general, it is expected that family members would provide glowing flattering testimony regarding the applicant. Accordingly, when evaluating the weight which must be accorded to such testimony the familiar relationship must be taken into consideration. In the instant matter, however, Mr. Segars' family members testified not only to his good character, honesty and integrity but also to his lack thereof during the period of his addiction. From this testimony, it can be adduced that Mr. Segars' is now a strong individual committed to rehabilitation and abstinence from alcohol and drugs. That he is a supportive loving father and husband and that according to his father even during the period of his addiction, he could be trusted with money. Other letters produced at the hearing, R-4 and R-5, demonstrate that he is a hardworking, competent and reliable individual. These above traits must be weighed against the incident which occurred in the slot change booth on September 30, 1989. Mr. Segars' actions that night could be considered more in the nature of a serious mistake in failing to comply with company policy concerning abandoned money rather than rising to the level of criminal activity. The probative weight attributed to this incident as an aggravating factor is significantly lessened when compared against the mitigating factors adduced through the testimony of this family members, current employer, and his own efforts to gain and maintain sobriety. Such evidence rises to the level to prove that Mr. Segars possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required of a casino license holder.

Does Mr. Segars qualify for the extraordinary relief of waiver pursuant to Section 91(e) of the Act.

Section 91(e) of the Act provides the discretion to the Casino Control Commission to waive any disqualifying criteria if the interest of justice so dictate.

There are potentially two disqualifying events which could stand in the way of Mr. Segars' hotel registration. The first is a finding by the Casino Control Commission that he has not rehabilitated himself so as to overcome the 86(c)1 disqualifier and the second is a finding by the Casino Control Commission that his continuing licensure would be inimical to the Act. Should the commission so find, I would hereby recommend that the extraordinary relief of waiver be granted in order to preserve Mr. Segars' hotel registration. But for the 86(c)2 violation of September 30, 1989, I believe Mr. Segars has demonstrated his rehabilitation especially when viewed against the fact that his addictive behaviour was largely the cause for his criminal activity in June of 1988. This, of course, is only a recommendation since the ultimate decision concerning waiver lies with the Casino Control Commission, however, I must emphasize that in addition to the facts set forth above, I was impressed with Mr. Segars' demeanor, credibility and overall attitude concerning his past behaviour and his now committment to rehabilitation. In this instance, I believe such relief is warranted.

CONCLUSION AND RECOMMENDATION

Based upon the FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW set forth above, I FIND that:

1. Mr. Segars committed an offense, aggravated assault, N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(b)(5) which constitutes a disqualifier pursuant to 86(c)1 of the Act.

2. Mr. Segars has demonstrated his rehabilitation pursuant to Section 91(d) of the Act so as to permit him to retain his casino employee license #71468-21.

3. Mr. Segars continuing licensure is not inimical to the policies and procedures of the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry in general pursuant to Section 86(c)2 of the Act.

4. Mr. Segars possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required of a license holder pursuant to Section 89(b) of the Act.

5. The extraordinary relief of waiver pursuant to Section 91(e) of the Act should be granted by the Casino Control Commission as to his casino hotel employee registration #56945-40.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Gary J. Segars, Jr. is herein permitted to retain his casino employee license #71468-21 and casino hotel employee registration #56945-40.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: August 16, 1990 Decided: August 30, 1990

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALAJ:

This proceeding arises before the Office of Administrative Law following transmittal from the Casino Control Commission. Charles Shaid of New Jersey, Inc. is a painting and wall covering contractor which has, over the last 11 years, performed some 17 million dollars worth of work for various casino entities in Atlantic City. Elliot B. Shaid is one of the principals of the corporation, owner of 24.5% of the stock in Charles Shaid of New Jersey.[1] As a result of certain actions of Mr. Shaid which will be detailed below, the Casino Control Commission must consider whether or not the corporate entity itself and Mr. Shaid as a principal therein are eligible for continued licensure as a casino service industry and as a qualifier pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 5:12-92c and 95.

The matter originally arose when Charles Shaid of New Jersey, Inc. applied for renewal of its previously issued casino service industry license. Thereafter, the Division of Gaming Enforcement filed a letter complaint in which it objected to the relicensure and sought revocation of the license. The Casino Control Commission considered a Division application for a temporary prohibition against the corporation conducting any business with casino licensees and such an order was granted. Thereafter, Shaid of New Jersey moved for reconsideration of the order and the order was stayed by the Commission until July 19, 1990 to permit reconsideration. On July 20, 1990, the motion for reconsideration was denied by the Commission, which transferred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law as an accelerated proceeding pursuant to the terms of N.J.A.C. 1:1-9.4. A prehearing conference was conducted before Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin on July 23, 1990, and a prehearing order was issued on July 30, 1990. A hearing was then conducted before Judge Masin on August 16, 1990, at the Office of Administrative Law in Mercerville.

THE ISSUES

The prehearing order established the issues as follows.

A. Is the corporate entity qualified for licensure as a casino service industry?

[1]His mother, Minnie, owns 51%, his brother Eugene 24.5%.

1. Did Mr. Shaid engage in conduct which constitutes an automatic disqualification from licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c1 and N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3c, specifically did he engage in the crime of filing a false federal income tax return, contrary to 26 U.S.C. 7206(1), equivalent to a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-4(a)?

2. If Mr. Shaid is personally disqualified from licensure, may the company nevertheless qualify without his participation?

3. If Mr. Shaid is automatically disqualified, should the Commission, in the exercise of its discretion under section 92b of the Act nevertheless permit licensure of the corporation and of Mr. Shaid, taking into account the standards applicable to a finding of rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and 91c, in accordance with the Commission Decision In Application of Bershad Company, 12 N.J.R. 48 (1989)?

4. If Mr. Shaid cannot be qualified, may the corporation nevertheless be qualified and licensed if Mr. Shaid is removed from any positions in the corporate structure which would require that he be qualified?

EVIDENCE

The evidence presented at the hearing consisted of testimony from witnesses produced on behalf of Mr. Shaid and the corporation. There is no dispute concerning the fact that Elliot B. Shaid was convicted in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania of a violation of 26 U.S.C. § 7206(1). Indeed, Mr. Shaid pled guilty on February 24, 1989 to a two count Information filed charging him with willfully and knowingly making and subscribing a federal income tax return for the years 1984 and 1986 respectively, which he did not believe to be true and correct and which resulted in his reporting total income which was not in fact an accurate reflection of his actual total income. In fact, the undisputed evidence, including Mr. Shaid's own testimony, reveals that during the years in question, as well as in other years for which he was not charged, Shaid skimmed monies from Charles Shaid of New Jersey, Inc., by writing checks either to himself or to others, endorsing the same, and collecting the money, without reporting these monies as income which he received from the corporation and thus taxable to him. The total amount of money skimmed was approximately $175,000 and the tax liability to the United States therefrom was in the vicinity of $75 to $76,000.[2]

As a result of his plea to of the Information, Mr. Shaid was sentenced by Honorable Marvin Katz, United States District Judge, to five years' probation and initially fined of $200,000, later reduced to $100,000, with the remaining $100,000 to be "paid" in the form of painting service to be provided free of charge to charitable institutions. In addition, he was assessed a special assessment of $100.

The circumstances surrounding Mr. Shaid's misdeeds and the way in which they were discovered are of some significance. While Shaid does not deny his guilt, his testimony was aimed at presenting the circumstances which surrounded his misdeeds and which he asserts led to them and the steps which he has taken since the time that the skimming occurred to deal with the problems which he believes led him to engage in this misconduct. In addition, evidence was presented concerning Shaid's involvement in the investigation of judicial corruption in the State of Pennsylvania, for the purpose of establishing that he was a cooperative witness in the prosecution of a Pennsylvania judge who was ultimately removed from the bench. All of this evidence of mitigation goes as well to the question of rehabilitation which is to be considered in connection with whether or not both Shaid and ultimately his company can be relicensed and qualified.

Norman T. Kirk, a special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Philadelphia for 19 years, testified that during the mid-1980's he was assigned to an investigation of alleged corruption in the Philadelphia judiciary. Approximately three years ago, he was involved in the investigation of Philadelphia Common Pleas Court Judge Joseph Braig. This investigation arose out of the ongoing federal examination of the activities of the Roofers Union. In the course of the investigation, Kirk learned of some work done at Braig's residence in Philadelphia, which allegedly involved free labor and materials provided by unions. Kirk discovered that Braig had filed an insurance claim for wind and water damage. He subpoenaed insurance company records and learned that there were two major contractors engaged in the work, one of which was Charles Shaid.[3] He questioned Elliot Shaid, who advised him damage claimed was greatly in excess of that likely to have occurred and further investigation eventually determined that Braig had filed a false claim with the insurance company. Mr. Shaid testified before the grand jury on two or three on several occasions concerning the books and records of the company and its involvement in the repair of water damage at Judge Braig's home. The information seemed to indicate that the damage was greatly in excess of that likely to have occurred and further investigation eventually determined that Braig had filed a false claim with the insurance company. Mr. Shaid testified before the Grand Jury on two or three occasions and provided helpful testimony which in Kirk's view made the case "solid." Braig was eventually indicted and pled guilty to charges arising from the filing of the false insurance claim. In Kirk's estimation the testimony provided at the Grand Jury by Mr. Shaid was "critical" and without his testimony it would have been very questionable whether or not Braig would have been indicted. Shaid stood ready to testify at Braig's trial had Braig not entered a plea. In Kirk's view Shaid provided truthful information "right down the line" during both his Grand Jury testimony and at meetings which he and his attorney had with the federal investigators.

On cross-examination, Mr. Kirk acknowledged that at no time did Mr. Shaid volunteer information that he had filed a false income tax return or that he had a gambling problem. At some point during the investigation, Kirk became aware that Shaid had such difficulties. He may have learned this from the IRS agent who was asked to look at the company's books. He also learned of Shaid's skimming activities, probably from the same source.

When first questioned Shaid indicated that he could not recall how much damage he had observed at the Braig residence. He had some difficulty in producing the names of the painters who were involved and subpoenas were issued to the union in an attempt to determine this information. In Kirk's view, it is not unusual for a cooperating witness to initially hold back some information. However, the amount of water damage which actually occurred was critical in his mind and information provided by Shaid was helpful in this regard.

Richard L. Scheff, Esq., presently an associate at the law firm of Montgomery, McCracken, Walker and Rhodes, in Philadelphia, testified that from August 1983 to March 4, 1990 he was an assistant United States attorney associated with the United States attorney's office in the Eastern District of Pennsylvania. Mr. Scheff served as the lead prosecutor in the Roofers Union cases which resulted in the conviction of numerous Philadelphia judges for corrupt activities. According to Scheff, during the first round of investigations, Judge Braig was a target, but he was not indicted because the prosecutors felt that they would have a difficult time proving a bribery case against him. A continued investigation ensued and through informant information the prosecutors learned of free work performed on Braig's home. This involved the renovation of portions of the home and the construction of a fourth floor and a sun deck for approximately $60,000. The investigation determined that free work and materials had been provided. Braig's bank account was subpoenaed and an insurance settlement check was discovered. An examination of weather records for the alleged date of the damage indicated that there had been but minimal rain and such was unlikely to have caused the extensive wind and water damage claimed. Since this entire situation did not make sense, further records were subpoenaed, including records of one of the principal contractors on the work, Shaid. Because the investigators were unfamiliar with the way in which Shaid's books were kept, they contacted Shaid's attorney. In September 1987 Shaid met with the investigators and helped them put the records together. In the course of the investigation, because of further difficulties in working with the records, the books were turned over to the IRS. They saw that there were checks to Shaid from the company which were not part of the figures reported on Shaid's W-2 forms. As a result, further investigation was undertaken and eventually Shaid provided information to the IRS concerning other checks which they had not uncovered which were part of the monies he had skimmed from the company.

Shaid testified voluntarily before the Grand Jury. Although he did not provide the complete story of everything involved with his activities, he also gave no untruthful information. The witness testified that in his opinion the only reason Shaid did not give complete information was that he was not asked questions which would have brought out more information.

As a result of reviewing the Shaid records, the investigators noticed that Shaid first provided an estimate for work on the alleged damage on August 24, 1983, which was three days before the date that Braig claimed the storm damage had occurred. In addition, Braig had been advising Shaid of water damage on the fourth floor in areas where there was new drywall.

Mr. Scheff observed that Shaid's information "put the investigation over the top." Scheff expressed his doubt as to whether he would have recommended that the Grand Jury indict Braig had not been for the information provided by Shaid.

Shaid was never a target for the Braig investigation. He was offered no immunity for his testimony, although it had been sought by his counsel. Early on, Mr. Scheff had a suspicion that Shaid was actively involved with Braig in a conspiracy to defraud the insurance company. However, he later became convinced that this was not so. In addition, through discussions with Braig's attorney following Braig's plea of guilty he learned that Shaid's testimony had been instrumental in convincing Braig to plead guilty. Braig was eventually removed from the bench and from the bar.

At the time that the IRS problems surfaced, Shaid's attorney, Peter Vaira, requested that he be immunized. However, Mr. Scheff advised Vaira that this would depend on the amount of money involved in the skimming and that if the amount was within the guidelines for prosecution his client would be prosecuted. The amount was in fact within the guidelines. A plea agreement was negotiated with a plea to the two-count Information.

Prior to Shaid's sentencing Mr. Scheff prepared a sentencing memorandum detailing the cooperation which Shaid had provided in connection with the Braig investigation. In the course of the memorandum, the witness advised that the government was making no recommendation as to sentence. Scheff detailed the manner in which Shaid had cooperated in interpreting the records of the company and providing further information, including the identification and location of the actual painters and testimony before the Grand Jury. He also was involved in extensive preparation for testimony in Braig's anticipated trial. This included a number of meetings to examine documents, prepare for testimony, and anticipate cross-examination. Scheff wrote:

> The significance of this cooperation to the investigation and prosecution cannot be overstated. At the time Shaid agreed to cooperate, the government only had solved one piece of the puzzle. Shaid's full cooperation gave the government the ammunition it needed to complete the investigation successfully. In short, the combination of Shaid's records, testimony and leads to other witnesses sealed Judge Braig's fate by establishing that he was guilty beyond all doubt. Shaid deserves substantial credit for this cooperation to reward him and encourage others to follow in his footsteps.

The memorandum continued with a word about Shaid's crime. While noting the aggravating factor of the substantial amount of money involved in the crime, Scheff noted that the government, while aware of the crime, was unaware of its magnitude and that Shaid's cooperation with the Internal Revenue agents led to the identification of additional monies which he had skimmed. Shaid writes:

> Accordingly, Shaid's cooperation prejudiced his position before this Court in assessing the seriousness of the offense and has caused him to owe more money to the government. Certainly, the Court must view this cooperation as evidence of Shaid's good faith and 100% cooperation.

During the course of his discussions with Shaid and Vaira, Scheff learned that Mr. Shaid had an extensive gambling problem. A great deal of the money which he was skimming was going to pay casino debts.

Shaid testified that prior to June 1990 he was vice president and secretary of Charles Shaid Company of New Jersey, Inc. He had held this position since 1964. In June, he signed a proxy agreement and a letter advising the other owners, and his brother Eugene, who owns 24.5% of the company, that he was asking for an unpaid leave of absence. He has not participated in any aspect of the operation of Charles Shaid and Company of New Jersey since that date. He has, however, been involved in companion companies Charles Shaid of Pennsylvania and Charles Shaid of Delaware.

Prior to 1976, Mr. Shaid's father ran the company and Elliot was involved in sales and assisted William Bowen, who was the vice president. After 1976, he became more active in sales and decision making.

In 1979-80, he began to receive contracts for work in casino hotel establishments. The first such project was at the Boardwalk Regency, now Caesars. As of 1982 or 83, the company established an office in Atlantic City run by Fred Bowen, William's brother. Fred is a foreman and general supervisor and has become more and more self-sufficient over the years except for bookkeeping operations. The Bowens began with the Shaid Company approximately 30 years ago.

Shaid testified that William Bowen is one of the most respected, knowledgeable men in the painting and wallpaper contracting business in the East. He is responsible for overseeing estimating of projects, hiring, firing, and general operation of the company. The company has engaged in somewhere between 500 and 1,000 contracts for the casino industry in the past 11 years. Most of the direct supervision of this work is by Fred Bowen and there have never been any complaints at all from anyone in the casino industry concerning the company's performance.

Elliot Shaid testified that his problems with gambling arose following the completion of the Boardwalk Regency project when he was given a trip to Las Vegas, along with his brother and their wives. They spent a long weekend in Las Vegas and were provided with credit lines for he and his brother. Prior to this time, Elliot had not engaged in any "real" gambling. While in Las Vegas he started at the blackjack table and remained there for 14 hours. He gambled for 14 to 15 hours on the second day and 3 or 4 hours on the third day. After returning home, he began frequenting casinos on a full-time basis, and as he testified he slept, ate, drank gambling. In late 1982 and 83, he hardly went to work at all and was at the casinos practically everyday prior to the opening of the doors at 10 A.M. He would come home when the casinos closed. All of this was very trying on his family, although they were unaware of what he was actually doing. Shaid became ill with high blood pressure and was hospitalized. According to the witness, he cannot explain why he kept going back, but he did and as a result he fell deeply into debt, owing hundreds of thousands of dollars, and did not know where to turn to solve his problems. He remortgaged his house, extended credit with several casinos who willingly gave him credit and was in deep financial trouble by October of 1983, by which time he had even exhausted his credit with several casinos. During this time the Bowens handled the business operation.

According to Mr. Shaid, neither his wife nor his brother were aware of his gambling problem until he took it upon himself to begin to attend to Gamblers Anonymous in October 1983. He had had a number of discussions with a personal friend, Dr. Kenneth Kool, M.D., a psychiatrist. These discussions resulted from his feelings of deep depression. Dr. Kool recommended that Shaid attend Gamblers Anonymous and in October 1983 Shaid was able to stop gambling. He has never bet since that time, will not buy a lottery ticket, will not participate in office pools, and refrains from any reference to or activity involving any form of gambling.

Despite the fact that he was making a substantial amount of money, the debts which he owed to the casinos were quite significant and Shaid found that after he stopped frequenting the establishments they began to press him for his obligations. He did not know where to obtain the money from and began skimming money from the family business by either writing checks to himself and endorsing them or writing checks to other individuals signing their names, and endorsing the checks over to himself and then cashing them. All of this was accomplished during a time when casinos kept pressing him.

During the period beginning in 1984 when Shaid was skimming money from his company he never thought about the tax consequences of what he was doing. He was only responding to the pressures from the casinos, including threats that they would cut his company off from any business. The skimming went on for approximately three years.

Mr. Shaid detailed the cooperation which he gave to both the United States Attorney's Office and the Internal Revenue Service in connection with the Braig investigation and the money skimming. He provided this information during interviews when he was not under oath. With respect to his showing the IRS checks which he had skimmed but which they had not identified, he stated that he provided this additional information because he felt that he had to do so in order to straighten out of life and get rid of his guilt feelings and anxiety over how much he had messed up his life.

Mr. Shaid has paid the $100,00 fine and has had conversations with several religious and charitable organizations concerning providing painting services for them as part of his sentence. He anticipates that his company will begin a $35 to $40,000 project for a synagogue in the next few months, which will be the first project under the sentence.

Shaid attended Gamblers Anonymous beginning in October 1983, going to sessions three to five times a week up until he became heavily involved in the Braig investigation in 1986. His wife also participated with him in the Gamblers Anonymous counselling. Since 1987, Shaid has intended GA two to three times a month, the reduction largely because of his involvement with the Braig and IRS situations. He has attempted to spend more time at home with his family, but described himself as also quite reclusive, embarrassed, ashamed, and distraught concerning the pain and suffering his conduct has caused to all involved. He also suffers from diabetes.

Shaid has continued to see Dr. Kool on an occasional basis and about eight or nine months ago he started seeing Diane Marchant, a psychotherapist who has been helping him with his problems. Since his counselling with Ms. Marchant began he describes himself as a different person than he has been in his entire life. He sees Marchant on a twice weekly basis, as well as having additional discussions with her on the telephone.

Mr. Shaid has been actively involved with the Masons since the age of 19 and has also continued active involvement in the Golden Slipper Charities, synagogue and community programs and has also been very active in Catholic Charities.

The witness commented on the potential impact on the corporate entity if he were forced to permanently discontinue involvement with the business. He believes that since William Bowen is 63 years old and will probably want to retire at some point in the near future, his removal from any involvement with the company would have a great impact. The company presently employs 50 to 60 plus people in New Jersey and 75 to 80% of its business is with the casino industry. Besides his ownership of the family owned businesses, Shaid of New Jersey, Shaid of Delaware, and Shaid of Pennsylvania, Mr. Shaid also has recently owned the Thundering Surf Water Slide at the shore, which had not been operating and was recently sold, and is also a 50% partner in Meredith Development Corporation, which is involved in residential construction in Pennsylvania, but is not presently operating. The other 50% of that company is owned by his brother.

Mr. Shaid acknowledged that he was not sure whether or not his 1984 through 86 Pennsylvania tax returns were accurate, although they probably were not.

Shaid commented upon the proxy agreement under which Mr. William Bowen currently holds his 24.5% share of the stock in Charles Shaid of New Jersey, Inc. There is no agreement nor have there been any discussions up to this point as to what will happen to his stock if he is ousted permanently. Bowen owes him no money at this time.

Dr. Kenneth Kool, M.D., a psychiatrist since 1949 with a private practice since 1955, testified that he has been a friend of Mr. Shaid's since 1966-67, having met him through mutual friends. They developed a social relationship which has gotten closer over the years and Kool knows the entire Shaid family. He described them as "very good friends."

Dr. Kool had some professional discussions with Mr. Shaid following the death of Shaid's father in 1976. Elliot, who he described as the real businessman in contrast to his brother, suffered from stress and from a certain degree of sibling rivalry. In late 1982-83, he learned of Shaid's gambling problems. Shaid expressed great dissatisfaction with his life, anxiety, and stress. They entered into informal discussions concerning these problems and Kool noted that Shaid was in a "selfdestruct mode." When Kool learned of the gambling problem and the extent thereof he advised Shaid that because of their close personal friendship it would be necessary for Shaid to enter into some kind of outside psychiatric counselling, as well as to attend Gamblers Anonymous. Through 1983 he noted mounting anxiety and depression. He diagnosed Shaid as suffering from Reactive Pathological Gambling or Impulse Control Neurosis, a diagnosis contained in the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual III. The DSM III defines the neurosis as one that requires instant gratification and is characterized by an emotionally immature individual who has been given too much or too little by his parents. These individuals have an impulse to do something injurious to themselves or others and they have a sense of heightened anticipation, and receive intense pleasure when committing the act which gratifies them. After the act they may have some relief, but often are depressed or guilty. However, there is nothing about Mr. Shaid that is specifically antisocial. His conduct however, may well be characterized as antisocial and it is often true that an individual with this problem will treat the government "almost as a parent" and will often fail to pay taxes.

The witness testified that there is nothing unusual about Shaid's having concealed his gambling. He noted that Shaid is not psychopathic or psychopathic, but that his gambling was in essence a reaction to depression. Dr. Kool believes that Shaid's financial misdeeds resulted from a desperate attempt to recoup and stabilize his life. He did not want his mother, wife or brother to know the nature and extent of his difficulties. Individuals suffering from this type of neurosis characteristically use any and all means to pay their debts. In Kool's view, therapy through GA is the cornerstone of treatment for this type of problem and is a well recognized necessity. As he understands the situation, Shaid stopped gambling on October of 1983. The doctor expressed his belief to a reasonable degree of medical certainty that Mr. Shaid has considerably matured and is coping far better with his stresses and anxieties. His gambling problem is under control and he has returned to many of his positive personality features. There is no reason why he cannot responsibly do business in a highly regulated industry. Shaid is today a much more sober, reflective, mature, integrated personality, although it is true that he continues to suffer from the neurosis and it is fair to say that a person who is a "gambling addict" is never actually cured of his disease, much the same as an alcoholic or a drug addict.

Diane Marchant, the psychotherapist currently working with Mr. Shaid, has been in private practice for three years after working at Temple Hospital for 12 years. She is a certified family and Gestalt therapist. She has been seeing Shaid approximately two times a week for eight and a half months and has also been involved in family therapy to repair the damage caused by his gambling. She described Shaid as a pathological gambler who will require open-ended therapy and maintenance through GA.

According to the witness, Mr. Shaid is well aware that he can never go near gambling. However, this does not mean that he cannot go into a casino hotel environment for other business. He has faced up to his problem and is coping quite well with it. He has a strong understanding of what led him to his difficulties. He is struggling against self-contempt and blame and is "not there yet," but is progressing very well.

William Bowen, vice president of each of the Shade companies for the past 14 years, also serves as general superintendent of the company. He has worked for it since late 1957, starting as a painter.

Prior to June 1990, Bowen was making all decisions for Shade of New Jersey as to which projects it would undertake, the estimates to be submitted on the projects, communication with street men in the Atlantic City office, etc. He visits Atlantic City once or twice a week and speaks with his brother Fred, who is the on-site representative, three or four times a day and whenever else needed. All billing occurs from the main office in Chester, Pennsylvania, but supervision of the day-to-day activities in Atlantic City occurs out of the Atlantic City office. Fred Bowen takes care of all day-to-day matters and deals with William with respect to manpower problems and some questions concerning estimates.

From 1979 until June 1990, Elliot Shade's role with the company was mostly to work in the office and also to call on customers. The hand-ons responsibility was in William Bowen's hands. Since June of 1990 when Elliot prepared the proxy and the letter requesting a leave of absence he has had no role whatsoever with Charles Shaid of New Jersey on any of its ongoing projects in Atlantic City or in other sites in New Jersey, including the State House Restoration Project. As of the Commission's order temporarily suspending the company, it has suspended ongoing projects with several casinos.

William Bowen has daily conversations with Mini Shaid, the principal owner of the company, to advise her of general information concerning the company's activities. According to William, he can carry on the business without Elliot's participation. He is well aware that Elliot is to have no involvement at all with the New Jersey business. However, he is not sure at this point what will happen with Elliot's stock if he is ousted from any further participation with the company.

Mr. Bowen denied any knowledge of Elliot's skimming of monies from the company. Elliot's brother, Eugene, handled most of the check-signing and paid the bills.

The witness noted considerable irregularities in Mr. Shaid's work performance between 1982 and 87. It was clear that there were some problems, but he did not know the details of them and assumed that there were family matters. Bowen is not a social friend of the Shaids. The decrease in performance did have an adverse affect on the company, however, Eugene Shaid thought that Elliot had merely "burned out."

Fred Bowen, who has worked for Shaid of New Jersey for 30 years, starting as an apprentice painter at the age of 20, testified that he makes most decisions on day-to-day work in Atlantic City. In all the years that the company has conducted business in Atlantic City, it has never had any complaints from its customers. Elliot has had a small role in connection with the Atlantic City work, mostly visiting customers or speaking with them on the telephone. At present, the company has ongoing projects with the Trump casinos for $54,000, with the Sands for $59,500, and was low bidder on a project for Bally's at $55,000, but has lost this as well as other work with the Sands because of the Discontinuance Order. Work for the company has slowed down considerably due to the Order.

Marshall J. Maltzman, Rabbi of Temple Beth Hillel-Beth El in Wynnewood, Pennsylvania, submitted a certificate on behalf of Mr. Shaid. According to the certification, Rabbi Maltzman has known Shaid as a member of the congregation for over ten years. He indicates that Shaid has always been a "credit to his family, community, and business." The rabbi indicates that he is aware of Elliot's plea of guilty to the tax violation, but believes that this was a "one-time aberration in his otherwise unblemished life." In connection with his understanding of Elliot's good character, honesty, and integrity, he writes:

> In all of his dealings and relationships with his community, Elliot has always maintained the utmost in ethical standards demonstrating by his actions not only good character, honesty and integrity, but also a sense of generosity in caring for his fellow man.

Based upon his understanding of Mr. Shaid and knowledge of his "aberration(al) conduct, and the interests of the State of New Jersey, in connection with the casino industry and the type of persons allowed to participate therein, Rabbi Maltzman indicates that he is confident his conduct will at all times meet those standards expected by the State of New Jersey and he is deserving of the privilege of licensure."

DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

This case presents a classic example of the way in which an addiction can destroy the life and reputation of an otherwise successful and respected person. I FIND that the evidence which has been produced by the respondents concerning the conduct of Elliot B. Shaid from 1982 through 87 demonstrates beyond any reasonable doubt that this man became the victim of a serious gambling addiction following his trip to Las Vegas in 1982 and that as a result of the addiction, and the mounting financial and psychological pressures which it placed upon him during 1982 and 83, he found himself in a position from which he did not know how to extricate himself and which led him on to commit criminal violations in an attempt to somehow deal with the financial pressures which were the inevitable consequence of his addiction. Elliot B. Shaid slid down the slippery slope from addiction to criminal wrongdoing. The question which this case poses is whether at this time he as an individual, and his company, can be entrusted with the imprimateur of respectability and confidence which designation as a casino service industry provides.

Initially, I FIND that Mr. Shaid was convicted of subscribing a false income tax return in violation of 26 U.S.C. § 7206(1), with respect to his 1984 and 1986 income tax returns. In addition, I FIND that although he was not prosecuted, by his own admission as well as the implications arising from the evidence, he also filed a false income tax return for 1985 and quite likely filed false income tax returns for these years with the State of Pennsylvania, although this latter has not yet been clearly established by the authorities. The total amount of money skimmed appears to have been approximately $180,000 and according to the available information the tax liability arising therefrom for the calendar years 1984 to 1986 based upon the IRS assessment of taxes and interest appears to be between $75 and $76,000, with some additional assessment of civil penalties to be the subject of negotiations between counsel for Shaid and the IRS. The tax liability to the State of Pennsylvania is presently undetermined.

The crimes for which Mr. Shaid was convicted clearly constitute crimes of moral turpitude. They involve an attempt, albeit perhaps one of which Shaid did not specifically think, to defraud the federal government out of monies to which it was properly entitled by misrepresentation and deceit concerning the actual amount of income received by Shaid from his corporation during the years in question. Such conduct, in addition to being a violation of the federal statute, certainly would constitute a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-4(a), if conducted in New Jersey. That statute provides:

> . . . , a person commits a crime of the fourth degree if he falsifies, destroys, removes, conceals any writing or record, or utters any writing or record knowing that it contains a false statement or information, with purpose to deceive or injure anyone or to conceal any wrongdoing.

Filing a falsely subscribed income tax return has the purpose of injuring and deceiving the United States government. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-4(a) is an enumerated disqualifying offense for purposes of determining eligibility for licensure. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-92b, licensure may be denied to any non-gaming service industry required to be licensed pursuant to subsection 92c, where any applicant would be disqualified in accordance with the criteria contained in section 86 of the Act. Since pursuant to section 86c(1), Mr. Shaid would be disqualified and since pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3c each applicant required to be licensed pursuant to subsection 92c and d must produce evidence of assurances to establish by clear and convincing evidence its good character, honesty, and integrity, the corporate entity is subject to disqualification as well if Mr. Shaid is a participant therein.

Given the above, the remaining inquiry is related to whether or not, despite Mr. Shaid's disqualification and its negative impact upon the ability of the corporate entity to fulfill the requirements of N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3, the individual qualifier, or alternatively, the corporation in and of itself without Mr. Shaid, can satisfy the conditions for licensure. For Shaid himself to qualify, he must prove rehabilitation pursuant to the standards contained at N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and 91c, in accordance with the Commission's decision in the Bershad matter, 12 N.J.R. 48 (1989).

In considering the rehabilitation standards, the initial inquiry is with respect to the nature of Mr. Shaid's duties with the corporation. Clearly, although the main day-to-day operation of Shaid of New Jersey, particularly with respect to the Atlantic City operation, is under the control of Fred Bowen and the close supervision of William Bowen, there is no question but that, at least in those periods when he was not so adversely affected by his gambling activities, and until June 1990, Elliot Shaid was an active participant in Shaid of New Jersey's operations, represented the company with respect to visiting clients and having contact with them, and was of course a 24.5% owner of the company. Thus, he is a principal, as well as a representative to the regulated public, and his position is of significance.

Secondly, with respect to the nature and seriousness of the conduct and offense, there is no question but that attempting to defraud the United States of its appropriate tax revenues is a serious matter. Although Mr. Shaid was not sentenced to jail as a result of his offense, it is quite possible that he was treated more leniently as a result of the strong sentencing memorandum prepared by the Assistant United States Attorney in recognition of his cooperation in the Braig matter, as well as in uncovering the full extent of the tax liabilities. The seriousness of the offense cannot be denied, and the amount of money involved is quite significant.

The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred are of course of great importance. Mr. Shaid has established beyond any question that at the time that he committed the offense he was under substantial financial pressure resulting from his ongoing gambling addiction and the significant debts which he had run up as a result thereof. While he had stopped gambling prior to the time that he began skimming money from the corporation, there is no question but that the skimming resulted from the effects of the gambling addiction and was not a separate and unrelated series of events. The income tax violation occurred as a consequence of Shaid's financial manipulations. I fully believe his testimony that at the time he skimmed the money he did not consider the tax consequences of such conduct. Nevertheless, he did subscribe a false Income Tax report for 1984 and 1986.

Given the evidence concerning Shaid's general history, I am inclined to agree with Rabbi Maltzman's characterization of Shaid's conduct as aberrational, that is in the sense that neither prior to 1984, nor after 1987, is there any indication that Mr. Shaid was involved in any criminal conduct. That the underlying emotional problems which resulted in his gambling addiction may have existed long before he began to gamble does not detract from my conception that but for the gambling addiction, Shaid would not have gotten into the financial difficulties which led him to skim money and as a consequence violate the tax laws.

At the time that Mr. Shaid committed his offenses he was a chronologically mature individual. One may question whether he had the same emotional stability and maturity that his chronological age would denote, but there is no question that on the surface his conduct cannot be chalked up to gross immaturity. The offenses occurred between 1984 and 1987, a relatively recent period of time.

Lastly, consideration must be given to the question of rehabilitation in terms of what Mr. Shaid has done to try to overcome his difficulties. The evidence reveals that once Mr. Shaid recognized the seriousness of his plight, that is, once he was under such pressure and so distraught and upset about his gambling that he was forced to face it, he consulted with Dr. Kool, followed the doctor's advice to become involved with Gamblers Anonymous, drew his wife into that therapy milieu with him, stopped gambling entirely, and over the course of the next several years followed through with therapy with Dr. Kool and eventually with Ms. Marchant. While Shaid did commit his criminal offenses after he stopped gambling, given the pressures which he was under and the problems from which he was suffering, it is not entirely surprising that his problems did not immediately cease because he stopped gambling. However, at this time, it appears that Shaid has significantly and convincingly subdued his urge to gamble, learned to cope with it and even to overcome it and has undertaken steps to handle his financial obligations on a legal basis.

Given all of the above, as well as the clear evidence that Shaid was otherwise a responsible businessman and a well thought of and civicly minded individual, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Elliot Shaid has established by clear and convincing evidence to the best of his ability that he is today a considerably different person than he was when he was in the throes of his gambling addiction in 1982-83 and that he is far less likely to succumb to the urge to gamble and thus far less likely to fall into the financial woes which led him to illicitly take money from his corporation and as a consequence thereof commit tax violations.

The great difficulty in determining the ultimate question of whether or not Shaid is rehabilitated obviously arises from the fact that just as with an alcoholic or a drug addict, one who is a gambling addict is in some sense never entirely cured. There is always some risk that Mr. Shaid may again begin to gamble and if he does there is little reason to doubt that he will plunge headlong into that quagmire. If this occurs there is always the possibility that he will become financially embroiled and resort to "any and all means" to cure his financial difficulties, as Dr. Kool indicated. Nevertheless, I cannot FIND that the likelihood of such reoccurrence is significant enough to overcome the conclusion that Elliot B. Shaid has faced up to his problem, has dealt with it, has learned methods of coping and indeed resisting, and has found the strength within himself, as well as the sources of support necessary to prevent such reoccurrences. Under these circumstances, and given the fact that Mr. Shaid is not applying for a position which would take him directly in contact with the gaming function, but merely one which may involve some telephone or even personal contact with casino hotel representatives in connection with painting and wallpaper contracting, I see this as a situation where Mr. Shaid has established his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence and thus is qualified. While he still has to provide painting services as part of his sentence and while he will be on probation for some period of time, I do not FIND the proofs such as to warrant his disqualification.

With respect to the corporate entity, clearly if Mr. Shaid is rehabilitated than Charles Shaid of New Jersey, Inc., is qualified for licensure, even with his participation. It has been a respected and successful contractor within the casino hotel industry since the onset of casino gambling in Atlantic City, performing numerous contracts for substantial amounts of money without any indication of complaint whatsoever. No basis exists for denying it the required approval. Alternatively, if Elliot B. Shaid is found to be unqualified there is every reason to believe that the Bowens are capable of operating the business with the overall supervision, although not the active participation of Minnie Shaid and the financial and business participation of Eugene Shaid, even if Elliot B. Shaid is not involved with the New Jersey company. Obviously, there may come a time when both of the Bowens may retire, but that is not the situation at present and it would be inappropriate to disqualify the company merely on the possibility that the Bowens will ultimately leave and the company may then be unable to operate properly without the participation of Elliot Shaid.

Under all the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that the corporate entity can be licensed as a casino service industry with or without the participation of Elliot B. Shaid. Further, I FIND that Mr. Shaid, although otherwise disqualified from licensure because of his criminal activities, has nevertheless established by clear and convincing evidence that he has rehabilitated himself from the disqualification and therefore he can qualify for participation with his corporation. Therefore, the Division's complaint is dismissed and it is ORDERED that the casino service industry license of Charles Shaid of New Jersey, Inc. and the qualification of Elliot B. Shaid shall be GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

APPLICATION FOR RENEWAL OF THE CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSE OF DIANE R. SHANKS

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of October 3, 1990,

IT IS on this 16th day of October 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> The ALJ statement that the "Casino Control Act establishes a financial stability criteria hierarchy depending upon the entity being licensed or the position of the applicant within the gaming industry" (init. dec. at 6, 7) is rejected as inconsistent with the Commission's decision in In re the Applications of Scott Onque for a Casino Key Employee License and Renewal of Casino Employee License, ____ N.J.A.R. ____. There, the Commission rejected the contention that the standard for measuring financial stability, integrity and responsibility differed for casino employee licensees and casino key employee licensees. Rather, the Commission interpreted the Act to require the application of the same standard to all licensees who are subject to the financial qualification criteria contained in N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)(1).

ORDER NO. 90-39-7

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the renewal application of Diane R. Shanks is granted substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference.

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) objecting to the renewal of petitioner's casino employee license #41274-21. The Division alleges that petitioner does not possess the requisite financial stability and integrity required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)1. and lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)2.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its letter of objection with the Commission on March 6, 1990. Respondent requested a hearing on March 26, 1990 and on April 9, 1990 the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on June 6, 1990 by Joseph E. Kane, ALJ followed by a hearing which was held on July 27, 1990.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this tribunal are as follows:

A. Whether petitioner can establish her financial stability, integrity and responsibility as required for licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)1.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)2.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon documents and testimony proffered during the course of the hearing, the below represents the FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

Diane R. Shanks is a singlewoman who was originally licensed to work in the casino industry in 1982. She has been a resident of Atlantic City for 26 years where she resides currently with her mother and various family members.

Since her initial licensing by the Commission, Ms. Shanks has not been guilty of any conduct resulting in negative information on her Personal History Disclosure Form with the exception of an outstanding loan to the New Jersey State Higher Education Assistance Authority (hereafter referred to as NJHEAA). This delinquent student loan now forms the basis of the objection to the renewal of her casino employee license on the grounds that she does not possess the requisite financial stability and integrity and corresponding good character, honesty and integrity required under the Act.

Ms. Shanks obtained the student loan in the amount of $2,635.00 to enable her to attend Associated Business Careers in Atlantic City, New Jersey. She began her studies in 1984 and eventually received a certificate in data processing. The absenteeism of the teaching staff at Associated Business Careers was high according to Ms. Shanks, leaving her and her fellow students on many days to teach themselves. The school was also to provide post graduation placement, a promise which was also breached. Feeling angered and cheated by the entire experience, Ms. Shanks did not feel obligated to repay the student loan. She has recently come to the realization that NJHEAA had no involvement with the quality of the staff or curriculum at Associated Business Careers and thus, the loan must be repaid.

Ms. Shanks' student loan payments have been infrequent and sporadic at best. Her first payment in the amount of $50.00 was due on August 15, 1984. Instead, the first payment was received by NJHEAA in March of 1986. Two additional payments were made in 1986 with only one payment in 1987. Seven payments were made in 1988 with one constituting an involuntary payment as a result of an attachment of her federal income tax refund. No payments were received in 1989. After obtaining employment on March 11, 1990 at the Claridge Hotel Casino as a baccarat dealer, she began making regular monthly payments commencing on March 15, 1990. As of July 19, 1990 Ms. Shanks owes $2,436.76 to NJHEAA.

Ms. Shanks' casino industry career began with employment at Caesars in May of 1983 which continued until December 1983. Thereafter, she was employed at Tropicana from May 1985 to October 1986, Showboat from May of 1987 to June of 1989. She is currently employed at the Claridge Hotel Casino since March of 1990.

In addition to supporting herself, she has, when employed given her mother $300 per month including a portion of the utilities. This money supports not only her mother, but also various family members living in the household. At one point, her sister returned home with her four children and then disappeared. This left Ms. Shanks to support not only her mother and her grandmother but also her nieces and nephews. According to Bradley Charles Bryant, a personal friend of Ms. Shanks, she has always been a person who supported her family and often was the only support upon which they could rely. Mr. Bryant, who has been a casino floor supervisor for the last nine and one half years at Sands testified that he has always found Ms. Shanks to be an honest and caring individual. When his mother was seriously ill, Ms. Shanks would bathe his mother, fix her hair and generally be there to assist in any way possible. During the seven and one half years Mr. Bryant has known Ms. Shanks, he has found her to be a very caring individual and very supportive of those who are in need. He was aware of Ms. Shanks delinquency on her student loan and confirmed that she was frustrated with the payment of the loan due to to the inferior education she received coupled with her frustration that the school had not assisted her with job placement as promised. He recalls driving her to the State office of NJHEAA in an attempt to resolve the matter, however, he was unable to testify from his personal knowledge as to whether any agreement had been reached.

Ms. Shanks submitted in support of her good character, honesty and integrity letters from her Showboat and Claridge supervisors. Both these supervisors attest to Ms. Shanks competency, honesty and pleasant manner when dealing with fellow employees and customers. Her supervisor at the Showboat, Edna Willis, is very impressed with the work performed by her and would trust her in all situtations.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

The question to be addressed herein is a novel one. It is whether Ms. Shanks' conduct in providing delinquent and/or sporadic payments to satisfy her student loan guaranteed by NJHEAA demonstrates her lack of financial integrity and stability pursuant to Section 89(b)1 of the Act. It must be emphasized, that the Division admits that the within action would not have been instituted if the debt in question was a "private" debt such as a delinquency or chargeoff on a credit card or car loan. The nature of the debt and its guarantor was the factor which precipitated the Division's letter objection of March 6, 1989. The within matter should not have come as a surprise to Ms. Shanks considering that the Division noted in its letter to her of February 25, 1987 that it was concerned with the student loan delinquency and that failure to pay the loan could draw into question her financial integrity and stability.

The Casino Control Act establishes a financial stability criteria hierarchy depending upon the entity being licensed or the position of the applicant within the gaming industry. The standard as it applies to corporate applicants for a casino license including the casino's qualifiers, has been identified by the Casino Control Commission as the most stringent. In addition to basic financial solvency and soundness, the standard relates to honesty and forthrightness in business dealings. Further, it includes the air and prudence exercised by the entity or individual, i.e., managing, preserving and enhancing the assets entrusted to such entity or individual. In re: Resorts Casino Application, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 250 (1979). The legislature obviously did not intend to impose the more strict corporate standard on all workers within the casino industry. Casino key employees are not afforded the benefits of rehabilitation to obviate the disqualifying results of an 86(c)1 violation as are casino license employees and hotel registrants pursuant to Sections 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act respectively. Nor do hotel registrants need to demonstrate good character, honesty and integrity pursuant to Section 89(b)2 of the Act as do casino license employees. The hotel registrant need not be concerned with financial integrity except as it may affect an 86(c)1 violation. The regulatory scheme thus runs the gamut from total indifference to an individual's financial stability and integrity to complete scrutiny of every phase of an entity's financial accountability. Obviously this leaves a large middle ground against which Ms. Shanks' conduct must be examined in order to determine her financial integrity and stability or lack thereof.

Just as the eight factors set forth in Section 91(d) and 90(h) of the Act must be considered in whole in order to reach a determination of rehabilitation, so too all mitigating and aggravating factors must be analyzed in answering the question does Ms. Shanks possess the Act's 89(b)1 requirement of financial integrity and stability.

1. Financial support of family.

Ms. Shanks has demonstrated that she can support not only herself, but also participates in the support of her mother, grandmother, and at times her nieces and nephews. The Division did not present any other adverse credit information other than the student loan. Ms. Shanks testified that in 1988 she purchased a 1988 hyundai automobile and with the exception of two five day late periods, has been current on all payments to the date of the hearing.

2. Employment stability.

Since receiving her license in 1983 there have been periods when Ms. Shanks did not work within the casino industry. While there, however, as demonstrated by R-2 and R-3, she apparently enjoyed a good relationship with her employer and was considered a valued employee. In 1984 she attempted to better her life by obtaining a new employment skill, that of data processing.

3. Status of the student loan.

Ms. Shanks' payments on her student loan are delinquent or sporadic at best. To her credit, however, is the fact that during the hearing she admitted she was wrong in venting her aggression on NJHEAA rather than Associated Business Careers and now realizes that payment of the loan is something that "has to be done". Since obtaining employment at Claridge, in March of 1990 her payments have been current.

When examining Ms. Shanks' financial responsibility as a whole, it is clear that with the exception of her student loan, she is a person of good financial stability and integrity. She supports herself and her family, pays a car loan and does not have bad credit with the exception of the student loan. From the testimony presented, as well as observing the demeanor of Ms. Shanks, I FIND that she is an individual who can be trusted and believed when she indicates that she intends to continue paying her student loan. Thus, considering the above as a whole, I FIND the mitigating factors outweigh her past student loan payment history and accordingly, I FIND that she does possess the requisite financial stability and integrity required of a casino employee license holder under Section 89(b)1 of the Act.

DOES MS. SHANKS POSSESS THE REQUISITE GOOD CHARACTER HONESTY AND INTEGRITY REQUIRED OF A CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSEE PURSUANT TO SECTION 89(b)2 OF THE ACT.

Whenever the Division raises as an issue the good character, honesty and integrity of the petitioner, it is then the petitioner's burden to show by clear and convincing evidence that she possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure under the Act. In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the legislature, it is imperative that the character and backgound of the licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure. Clear and convincing falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here, the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the facts presented by the petitioner are true. The standard requires more than a mere balancing of probabilities but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lapre vs. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118 (Law Div. 1974).

Petitioner produced one witness and two letters from her employer which uniformly attests to her competency on the job, honesty, caring nature and integrity. The State did not present any evidence either directly or by way of cross-examination to disparage Ms. Shanks' reputation with the exception of her student loan delinquency.

It must be noted that the Division admitted during the course of the hearing that an NJHEAA loan had no greater legal priority or status at law than that of a private debt. That is, assuming Ms. Shanks declared bankruptcy, her student loan would assume the same priority of that of a general creditor together with her credit cards and other non-secured loan obligations. Additionally, the Division admitted that if the payment circumstances were identical as to a private debt, the instant matter would not have been instituted.

Thus, considering that the student loan stands in equal parity with "private debts", Ms. Shanks' delinquency on this particular obligation should not be afforded any additional weight. Accordingly, when balancing the delinquency as an aggravating factor against the mitigating factors of her good character, honesty and integrity it is clear that the former category does not greatly outweigh the latter so as to lead to the conclusion that she does not possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required of a licensee. The facts and circumstances of this matter demonstrate that Ms. Shanks should be permitted to retain her casino license #41274-21.

It must be noted, that this decision does not sanction or otherwise condone delinquent student loan payments. Under the facts of this particular matter, Ms. Shanks was able to demonstrate that she is now committed to repaying the loan and together with the good character evidence submitted by her, I FIND that she should be permitted to retain her license. A student loan has no greater priority at law than that of a private debt, however, the nonpayment of such a loan or excessive late payments under the facts of a particular matter may seriously draw into question a licensee's good character, honesty and integrity.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Diane R. Shanks shall be permitted to retain her casino employee license #41274-21.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

RENEWAL APPLICATION OF RICHARD T. SILBERT

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and technical exceptions having been filed; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of August 15, 1990,

IT IS on this 20th day of September 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> The Administrative Law Judge implied that the decision in Dunston v. Department of Law and Public Safety, 240 N.J. Super. 53 (App. Div. 1990) requires the Commission to consider the rehabilitation factors listed in sections 90(h) whenever good character, honesty and integrity pursuant to 89(b)(2) and 90(b), are an issue. We do not agree. First, an applicant's good character may well be placed in issue where no criminal conduct is involved. Moreover, Dunston involved issues relating both to a disqualifying offense and to good character. In analyzing those issues the court held that, "where the conduct under §86 and the contrary demonstration under §90(b) are all part of the same transaction and constitute a single res gestae, it would, in our view, contravene the statutory intendment to insist that while the §86 conduct can be overcome by rehabilitation, the circumstances surrounding the conduct cannot be. Id. at 61-62.

In this case good character is the only issue. While the Commission believes that an analysis of the rehabilitation factors listed in section 90(h) of the Act may in many instances be helpful in determining whether an applicant has established the good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89(b)(2) and -90(b), whether or not this approach is desirable can only be determined upon consideration of the nature of the good character objection.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the renewal application is granted substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference.

RENEWAL APPLICATION OF RICHARD T. SILBERT FOR A CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSE

Scott Silver, Esq., for applicant (Dilworth, Paxson, Kalish & Kauffman, attorneys)

James Armstrong, Deputy Attorney General, for petitioner (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: July 25, 1989 Decided: July 6, 1990

BEFORE RICHARD J. MURPHY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Richard T. Silbert applies for renewal of his casino employee license under 5:12-86, 89b(2), 90b, to continue working as a box person in the industry. The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) objects on the basis of negative information revealed as to Mr. Silbert's financial stability, integrity, and responsibility and because of his criminal record incurred since he was licensed in June of 1983, which includes charges of consumption of alcohol beverage by a minor, criminal attempt/burglary, criminal trespass and possession of a weapon. The Division objects primarily because of the licensee's criminal record. The Casino Control Commission (Commission) filed Mr. Silbert's renewal application with the Office of Administrative Law on January 30, 1989 for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., and a prehearing was held on April 6, 1989, with a plenary hearing held on July 17, 1989. The record remained open until July 25, 1989, for receipt of additional documentation. The due date for submission for this decision was extended on several occasions for good cause not related to this case and finally extended until July 1, 1990. I regret any hardship or inconvenience that this unavoidable delay may have caused the parties.

ISSUE

The question presented is whether the applicant can demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b, taking into consideration the factors of rehabilitation established by N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

The basic underlying facts set forth in the Division's objection are accurate, although they were supplemented at the hearing, and they are set forth in full and adopted below:

> Division investigation revealed that Mr. Silbert had a charge off account with First Fidelity Bank South for $2,232.13. The licensee had an automobile loan with First Fidelity Bank-South. Mr. Silbert failed to continue making payments on this loan and on April 15, 1986 his automobile was repossessed. The licensee failed to disclose this charge off account on his renewal application but admitted to it at his personal interview. Mr. Silbert advised that he was unemployed and in the hospital when his automobile was repossessed. A wage execution has since been placed on the licensee's salary and he is currently paying approximately $85 a week to satisfy this debt.
>
> Division investigation also revealed that the applicant had a charge off account with Shore Acceptance Company for $200. Mr. Silbert failed to disclose this debt on his renewal application but acknowledged it at his personal interview. The licensee advised that he had never had an account with Shore Acceptance Company. Mr. Silbert claimed that he has since contacted Shore Acceptance Company and resolved this matter.

C. Criminal Record:

(X) Criminal Record ( ) No Negative Information

(X) Negative Information as Follows:

Since his initial licensure, Mr. Silbert has been arrested three times.

On October 24, 1983, Mr. Silbert was arrested by the New Jersey State Police and charged with Consumption of Alcoholic Beverage by a Minor, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:33-15. The police report indicated that Mr. Silbert and others were observed by the New Jersey State Police purchasing and consuming alcoholic beverages at the Broadway by the Sea Theatre Lounge in Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino. On December 19, 1983, Mr. Silbert was found guilty of the offense. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $25, $25 court costs and $25 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board. The licensee failed to disclose this arrest on his renewal application but admitted to it at his personal interview. Mr. Silbert advised that he thought he was able to legally drink alcoholic beverages because he was excused under the grandfather clause in the statute under which he was charged. The licensee further explained that he failed to disclose this arrest because he thought it was dismissed, since he was only required to pay a $75 fine.

On January 5, 1984, the licensee was arrested by the Atlantic City Police Department and charged with Criminal Attempt/Burglary, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1. The police report indicated that Mr. Silbert was observed attempting to gain entrance into a truck in a parking lot on Pacific Avenue in Atlantic City, New Jersey. On February 29, 1984, the licensee was found guilty of the offense. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $50, court costs of $25 and $25 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board. Mr. Silbert disclosed this arrest on his renewal application. The licensee advised that he and some friends were walking across the parking lot in question and were behaving boisterously. Mr. Silbert denied that he attempted to break into a truck.

On February 5, 1987, Mr. Silbert was indicted in Atlantic County Indictment No. 87-02-0192-C for: Criminal Trespass, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:18-3(a); Possession of a Handgun Without a Permit, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:39-5(b); and Possession of a Weapon, contrary to N.J.S.A. 2C:39-5(d). The police report indicated that on November 11, 1986 Mr. Silbert and his roommate forced their way into the apartment of the roommate's girlfriend. While in the apartment they shouted obscenities and physically assaulted one of the females. During the incident, Mr. Silbert was in the possession of a handgun and a large knife. On May 4, 1987, the licensee entered a retraxit plea of guilty to count two on the indictment, Possession of a Handgun Without a Permit. Mr. Silbert was sentenced to: twelve days in prison; one year probation; a $200 fine; and had to pay $30 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board. The remaining charges were dismissed. This arrest and indictment occurred after Mr. Silbert filed his renewal application. The licensee acknowledged the incident at his personal interview. The licensee's explanation > of this incident is inconsistent with the Atlantic City Police Department's investigation report and court records. Mr. Silbert explained that he and his roommate went to his roommate's girlfriend's apartment to get money that she owed his roommate. An argument ensued and his roommate's girlfriend called the police. Mr. Silbert advised that he and his roommate left before the police arrived. They were later stopped by the police regarding the incident. At this time, Mr. Silbert claims the police found a gun registered to his roommate in Mr. Silbert's automobile. The licensee claimed that he was arrested but that all charges were dropped in court. The licensee further advised that he was ground guilty of a downgraded charge, Possession of a Handgun Without a Permit and only fined $250.

>
> The Division will object to Mr. Silbert's licensure renewal pursuant to Section 89(b)(2) of the Casino Control Act, as incorporated by Section 90(b), as it appears from the foregoing that the licensee has failed to establish his good character, honesty and integrity. (Division's objection at 1 to 3). (emphasis added).

Mr. Silbert's current employment is with the Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino as a craps dealer, and the Division investigation found that his business ability and casino experience were satisfactory and not grounds for objection to his continued licensure. At the hearing, Mr. Silbert did not contest the fact that he has been convicted of three crimes since 1983, including Consumption of Alcoholic Beverages by a Minor, Criminal Attempt/Burglary, and Possession of a Handgun Without a Permit. He further admits that he was charged with criminal trespass and possession of a weapon in connection with the most recent criminal conduct, which occurred on November 11, 1986.

He offered the following explanations. As to the underage drinking charge, he stated that on October 24, 1983, when he was 19 years of age, he was at Harrah's Marina watching football while wearing a casino badge and was served a drink in a bar. He denies having had a drink in the casino, and claims that he was confused as to the drinking age, which had been changed several times, and states that he "assumed" he could drink, but pled guilty to the charge.

As to the second offense, criminal attempt/burglary, which also occurred when Mr. Silbert was only 19 years of age, he states that he was out with a number of friends, the same companions with whom he engaged in underage drinking) and was, with these friends, engaged in drinking and throwing eggs at "hookers" in Atlantic City. Although he was drunk at the time, he is "100% sure" that he did not try to break into a truck on that occasion, but he admits that he was "mouthy" to arresting officers and that this may have aggravated the incident.

With respect to the last, (and most serious) of the incidents, occurring on November 11, 1986, involving charges of criminal trespass, possession of a handgun without a permit, and possession of a weapon, the applicant admits that he pled guilty to possession of a handgun without a permit, but characterizes this incident as a matter of "poor judgment". He explains that abuse of alcohol, for whlch he has now been treated, played a role in this, and the other criminal activities. Mr. Silbert's testimony did not differ substantially from the above statement given to the Division and he emphasizes that he didn't enter the house of Pepe's girlfriend and also didn't know that Pepe had a gun. He claims that "Pepe" told him, as he stood outside the house, that "Rick, get rid of the gun!" and Silbert admits that he panicked and ran and threw the gun and a knife down a nearby alley. Pepe then ran out and drove off, leaving Silbert to face the police. The applicant offered the following voluntary statement from the victim of this crime, one Karen Berenato:

> . . . Q. Did Pepe have a gun in his possession?
>
> A. I never saw one, he never threatened me verbally as if he had one.
>
> Q. Were you in fear in any way that he might have had a weapon of any kind?
>
> A. No, I wasn't in fear of him having a weapon.
>
> Q. What happened after Pepe struck you?
>
> A. During this time, Debbie was on the phone calling the police. Richard Silbert was standing just outside her apartment door and Pepe told him "Ricky, get rid of the gun she's on the phone with the police."
>
> Q. At that point were you in fear that Ricky had a weapon and might hurt you with it?
>
> A. I wasn't in fear at all about any weapon. Again, I never saw one and was never threatened by one, implied or real . . . . (P 12).

1222

Mr. Silbert emphasizes that he is not a violent person, had no prior knowledge of the existence of Pepe's weapon, and did not threaten or hurt anyone. He states that his crime was using poor judgment in a very stressful situation.

Because of his problems with alcohol and occasional use of controlled dangerous substances, he participated in a 45-day in-patient substance abuse program and then went regularly to Alcoholic Anonymous (AA). He feels that he has brought his alcohol problems under control, and now goes to AA when he feels he needs it, and is not receiving any other follow-up therapy or counseling. He states that he no longer drinks, and is now engaged to be married and intends to start a family. After leaving the alcohol rehab program, he performed volunteer work (not required as part of the terms of his probation) at the Atlantic City Rescue Mission, as well as the Marine Mammal Stranding Center in Brigantine, New Jersey. His conduct while under supervision of the Atlantic County Probation Department was satisfactory, with all fines paid, and probation has been terminated.

The Division raised several matters as to the applicant's driving record during the hearing, but these were not part of the Division's objection and involved some rebellious "hot-rodding" in which Mr. Silbert had earlier engaged in and are not relevant to this renewal application.

Mr. Silbert states that he has worked as a craps dealer since leaving high school and he knows no other trade or profession. He submits a letter from the craps supervisor at the Trump Plaza Hotel/Casino, Michael S. Faccenda, attesting to his maturity and character (P-2). Craps floorperson, William Shillingford, of Trump Plaza also characterizes him as a "outstanding crap dealer" who needs "little or no supervision regarding procedures and/or game protection". Mr. Shillingford also considers the applicant to be responsible and an asset to Trump Plaza (P-3). Michael Scardino, another floorperson at Trump Plaza who has supervised Mr. Silbert, states that:

> Rick has tried to better himself at work and has dealt the game of craps with integrity and excellence. I know Rick has made some mistakes, but he realizes the importance of his casino license and that it depends on his livelihood and future in the casino business. (P-4).

He offers other letters of reference, including one from his mother, and submits the following closing statement, by way of letter received July 25, 1989:

> . . . Please let me again stress that I had no prior knowledge of the existence of a weapon and I never threatened to hurt anyone. I am not a violent person. The victim states this in her statement. . . . I am not a criminal, my crime was that I used very poor judgment in a stressful situation.
>
> This has taught me a very valuable lesson and I know that I will never be in a situation [sic] to this one again. I am truly sorry for any problems that I contributed to for Karen [the victim] or anyone else. Also for the time I took up with officials in courts to correct this situation. I have truly learned my lesson-never, ever, again will I do anything to jeopardize my future, or cause anyone any grief. Dealing is the only occupation I know--I have dealt since I was 19 years old and I am not trained for any other type of employment--please give me this one time chance. (P-11).

There is no dispute as to the above facts and I so FIND.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

All applicants for casino employee licenses must, prior to the issuance of any such license, produce such information, documentation, and assurances to meet the qualification criteria, including New Jersey residency, contained in Subsection b, of Section 89 of the Casino Control Act. See N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

An applicant seeking renewal of his or her casino employee license has the burden of establishing by clear and convincing evidence good character, honesty and integrity as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b:

> [e]ach applicant for a casino . . . employee license shall provide such information, documentation and assurances as may be required to establish by clear and convincing evidence the applicant's good character, honesty and integrity. Such information shall include, without limitation, data pertaining to family, habits, character, reputation, criminal and arrest record, business activities, financial affairs, and business, professional and personal associates, covering at least the ten year period immediately preceding the filing of the application .... N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

Under 89b(2), the applicant must establish good character, honesty and integrity as a matter of fact and not merely as a matter of reputation, see

Application of Boardwalk Regency Corp. for a Casino License, 90 N.J. 361, 369 (1982), appeal dismissed 459 U.S. 1081 (1983), and licenses have been denied where there is evidence that applicants have engaged in such nefarious activities as procuring prostitutes for foreign officials engaged in casino regulation, or swindling casino patrons, by altering dice. See, e.g., Alter v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 6 N.J.A.R. 584 (1979); Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Matta, 5 N.J.A.R. 439 (1983). The Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, recently held in the matter of Dunston v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, decided April 10, 1990, A-197-89T3, that the factors of rehabilitation set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h), must also be considered by the Commission in assessing good character, honesty and integrity, where disqualifying conduct under Section 86 and conduct under Section 90b are all part of the same transaction and constitute a single "res gestae." (Dunston at 10). In determining whether an applicant has affirmatively demonstrated rehabilitation from disqualifying offenses, either specifically enumerated under Section 86 or otherwise inimical to licensure, the Commission must thus consider the following factors of rehabilitation as set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. [discussion of each factor is included in brackets after the statutory language]

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

[The position of craps dealer is a highly sensitive and responsible position which represents, on both a symbolic and real level, the very heart of casino operations, and requires a high level of good character, honesty and integrity, not to mention the ability to deal well with the casino patrons];

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

[The offenses of underage drinking, criminal trespass/burglary, and unlawful possession of a handgun are serious although none of the applicant's conduct involved any damage to persons or property. Underage drinking occurred at a casino bar, but there is some evidence that the applicant thought that he was permitted to drink, despite the fact that he was only 19 years of age. The criminal trespass/contempt and unlawful possession of a handgun offenses are both more serious, but involve mitigating circumstances as discussed below];

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

[The underaged drinking is mitigated by the applicant's belief that he was authorized to drink while only 19 under some kind of grandfathering provision, and the criminal trespass/burglary offense may be fairly characterized as a drunken prank involving the applicant and his companions, which got out of hand. Although the weapons offense is more serious than the other conduct, Mr. Silbert did not use or threaten to use that weapon, which belonged to another individual, who fled the scene and advised the applicant to dispose of the gun, which he, in a moment of panic, did];

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

[Consumption of alcoholic beverage by a minor - October 24, 1983;

Criminal attempt/burglary - January 5, 1984;

Possession of a handgun without a permit - February 5, 1987];

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

[19 years of age in 1983;

19 years of age on January 5, 1984;

22 years of age on February 5, 1987];

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

[The applicant committed three criminal offenses between 1983 and 1987, but they were unrelated offenses in the sense that they involved different types of conduct, although each was characterized by the licensee's association with certain companions and the abuse of alcohol];

(7) The social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

[Abuse of alcohol; social immaturity].

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision;

[The applicant has successfully completed the terms of probation, performed community service on a voluntary basis, completed an inpatient alcohol rehabilitation program, and submitted the recommendation of persons who have or have had him under their supervision, all of whom attest to his good character and otherwise excellent work record];

Considering the above factors of rehabilitation as applied, and the overall requirement that the applicant establish good character, honesty and integrity, I CONCLUDE and recommend to the Commission that it grant Richard Silbert's application for renewal of his casino employee license. I reach this conclusion primarily on the basis of evidence of rehabilitation as discussed above and the licensee's increasing maturity. Mr. Silbert's problems were aggravated by alcohol abuse, from which he has been rehabilitated. His work record in the casino industry has been excellent and his conduct otherwise reflects increasing maturity. In effect, Mr. Silbert is asking the Casino Control Commission to give him another "roll of the dice", and I think that his record of rehabilitation is worth the gamble, notwithstanding his commission of three criminal offenses between 1983 and 1987.

DISPOSITION

On the basis of the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, it is ORDERED that the renewal application of Richard Silbert for a casino employee license is GRANTED.

1227

decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c).

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter concerns the complaint filed by the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on January 10, 1990, seeking the revocation of the casino hotel employee registration of the respondent, Albert Smith. The respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on March 6, 1990, to be heard as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et. seq., and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A telephone prehearing conference was held on May 15, 1990, at which time the parties agreed that the issues in this matter are:

A. Whether respondent was convicted of a crime listed as a statutory disqualifier in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:17-1a, aggravated arson.

B. Whether the respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d.

The hearing took place on September 27, 1990, at the Office of Administrative Law in Atlantic City, New Jersey, and the record in the matter closed on that date.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

I FIND the facts in this matter are not in dispute.

On March 29, 1987, Mr. Smith, his brother and several of his friends were standing in the street near his home when someone in the adjacent apartment building threw out an empty bottle which hit Mr. Smith on the head. Mr. Smith passed out for a short time and then he was in pain and dazed by the blow to his head. He was also upset and angry about being hit, and wanted to find who threw out the bottle. With his brother and friends he ran into the apartment building. They knocked on all the doors but were unable to find out who threw the bottle.

Mr. Smith felt he had to do something and so he lit matches and threw them into trash at various locations in the halls of the apartment building. He did not intend to start a real fire or to hurt anyone but he felt he had to take some action or lose face with his friends.

At the time of the incident, Mr. Smith was 21 years old and very concerned about his image. Mr. Smith felt that if he did nothing, he would be considered to be soft. Mr. Smith stated that his status with his friends was already threatened since he was the only one who had a regular job.

After he dropped the lighted matches, Mr. Smith, his brother and friends left the apartment building. Mr. Smith was still not feeling well, he left the group and went home to get some sleep. When he woke up, he was surprised to find that there had been a substantial fire in the apartment building and that his brother and friends had been arrested .

Mr. Smith went to the police and confessed that he alone was responsible for the fire. Thereafter, he was indicted for aggravated arson, violations of N.J.S.A. 2C:17-1a(1) and (2), and terroristic threats, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-3a (P-1). Mr. Smith pled guilty to one count of aggravated arson, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:17-1a(1), and was sentenced to a jail term not to exceed six years (P-2).

Mr. Smith was in the county jail for six months and then at the Yardville Youth Correction Facility for ten months. According to Mr. Smith, he was a good inmate, followed all the rules and attended classes. Mr. Smith was paroled on August 2, 1988, and he will be on parole until December 30, 1992. Mr. Smith has to report every six months to his parole officer. Lora W. Gaines, the respondent's parole officer submitted a letter in which she states that "Mr. Smith's readjustment in the community has been very positive" and that allowing him to retain his casino hotel employee registration would "only serve to enhance his continued positive adjustment and rehabilitation thus allowing him to continue to be a productive member of society" (R-1).

This is Mr. Smith's only criminal conviction, except for a drug violation (possession of a controlled dangerous substance) in 1985 when he was 19 years old. Mr. Smith was convicted and was placed on probation for the 1985 offense. At that time, he was part of a group using drugs, and he wanted to fit into the group and so he also used drugs. According to Mr. Smith, he was never an addict and he does not have to take urine tests for drugs as part of his parole.

Mr. Smith is a high school graduate and since he was in high school he has always had one or two jobs. Mr.Smith wants to become a chef and he plans to take cooking courses at the Atlantic County College.

When he was 13 years old, Mr. Smith got his first job in a restaurant and he worked there for five years. Robert J. Rosenfeld, the owner of the restaurant stated that Mr. Smith was a hard working, industrious, honest and loyal employee (R-3).

Mr. Smith was hired to clean the restaurant and he worked his way up to food preparation and light cooking at the restaurant (R-2).

Mr. Smith then got a job as a dishwasher at the Los Amigos Restaurant in Atlantic City. During the three years he worked there, he had several promotion and was placed in charge of the kitchen. Peter G. Jones, the former manager of this restaurant, who is now employed by the Pumpernickle's Deli - Restaurant, wrote a letter on behalf of the respondent (R-2). In his letter, Mr. Jones stated that Mr. Smith was a reliable worker, who was able to deal with any problem and who was willing to work extra hours if someone did not come to work (R-2). Mr. Smith lost this job when he was incarcerated for the arson charge.

After he was released from jail, Mr. Smith went back to work at the Los Amigos Restaurant, but left this job since the working conditions were not the same. For a short period he worked for McGee Restaurant as a pastry cook and then for a short time as a cook at another restaurant. Mr. Smith obtained a casino hotel employee registration and he was initially employed by Bally's Park Place Casino Hotel and Tower (Park Place). According to Mr. Smith, his employment was suspended after about 50 days because of a mix-up regarding his paycheck. Apparently his paycheck was given to another employee named Smith. While the matter was being investigated, Mr. Smith worked for about two months as a cook for Bally Grand Hotel and Casino. After the investigation was completed and Mr. Smith was exonerated, he got back his job as a cook in Park Place. Mr. Smith is still working at Park Place (R-5), and he also has a part-time job as a breakfast cook at the Black Forest Restaurant.

Since his release from jail, Mr. Smith stated that he no longer associates with his prior friends and he now recognizes that it is not important to have a reputation of "being cool" or "bad." Mr. Smith has new friends and he has established goals for his future. Mr. Smith is engaged and he is saving money so he can afford to get married. The respondent's fiance, Patricia F. Upchuch testified and wrote a letter on behalf of the respondent (R-6), and she confirmed his testimony.

Additionally, the respondent's pastor wrote a letter stating that he is a good, hardworking person (R-4).

In closing, Deputy Attorney General R. Lane Stebbins argued that the Division has shown that the respondent was found guilty of aggravated arson, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:17-1a(1), which is an automatic statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). As to the rehabilitation issue, Mr. Stebbins stated that Mr. Smith had been convicted of a serious offense and that this criminal act took place only three years ago. He also noted that Mr. Smith had one prior criminal conviction.

Mr. Smith stated that he is now rehabilitated. Mr. Smith is now more mature, no longer associates with the wrong type of people, and does not drink or take drugs. According to Mr. Smith, he was young when the two offenses occurred and he has now learned his lesson and in the future he only wants to do the right thing.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based on the facts presented at the hearing, I CONCLUDE that the Division has shown a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:17-1a(1), which is an automatic statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

Therefore, the only issue in this matter is whether the respondent has shown rehabilitation. The Casino Control Act sets forth the following factors which the Commission is to take into consideration in order to determine whether a person has demonstrated rehabilitation:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision. [N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d]

In this matter, the respondent was a young man at the time he committed both criminal offenses. Although arson is a very serious offense, it is clear from the facts that this was a single foolish act by the respondent, done in anger and to impress his friends. Since his release from jail, Mr. Smith no longer has the same friends and recognizes that he should not engage in illegal behavior in order to have a reputation acceptable to his friends. Based on his testimony, there is no reason to believe that there will be any repetition of such criminal behavior in the future. Further, Mr. Smith has shown that he has an excellent employment record. Although the arson offense occurred only three years ago, based on all of the facts, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Smith has shown by clear and convincing evidence that he is rehabilitated pursuant to the standards contained in N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d.

Therefore, I ORDER that the respondent's casino hotel employee registration not be revoked.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Casino Control Commission does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the CHAIR OF THE CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, 3131 Princeton Pike, Building 5, CN 208, Trenton, New Jersey 08625, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Record Closed: September 27, 1990 Decided: October 1, 1990

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALAJ:

On March 28, 1989 the Division of Gaming Enforcement filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission seeking revocation of the respondent's casino hotel employee registration. Mr. Smith requested a hearing and the matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

Following transmittal the case was preheard before Administrative Law Judge Edgar R. Holmes on February 5, 1990, and Judge Holmes issued a prehearing order on February 6, 1990. Subsequently a hearing was held before Administrative Law Judge Jeff S. Masin on June 5, 1990, at the Absecon Municipal Court. The record closed following conclusion of testimony.

ISSUES

The prehearing order established the issues for consideration at the hearing as whether Mr. Smith's > continued registration is inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c because he is alleged to have committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, fourth degree theft.

In addition, "whether respondent may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to Donna Davis, 8 N.J.R. 301."

EVIDENCE

At the hearing the Division presented documentation establishing that Mr. Smith was indicted by the Atlantic County Grand Jury in Indictment 88-10-2731-C-CP for theft by unlawful taking in the third degree in that he allegedly took seafood and steaks from the Atlantic City Showboat, Inc., t/a Showboat Hotel, Casino and Bowling Center, the pilfered items being valued in excess of $500, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-3. In addition, the state presented a Judgment of Conviction showing that Smith pled guilty on January 25, 1989 to an amended charge of theft by unlawful taking under $500, a fourth degree crime, and that he was sentenced to one-year probation, a $30 payment to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board, a $250 restitution and a $500 fine with the probation to terminate upon payment of all monies. The sentencing judge, Honorable Steven P. Perskie, then presiding judge of the criminal division, indicated that his sentence was based upon his determination that the fine was sufficient to punish and deter the defendant and that the defendant's last conviction had occurred 12 years ago.

Mr. Smith was called as a witness and testified that he in fact did commit the theft. At the time he was having a very difficult time with his life and about two months before the theft his one-and-a-half year old son had died. Apparently his son was in the custody of the child's mother, who was involved with drugs. It is not clear from the testimony the exact reasons for the child's death however, not surprisingly Smith indicated that this affected him severely and he "mentally lost it" and had an attitude that he did not care what happened. Prior to the child's death he had been commuting between Atlantic City and New York in order to see the child and as a result had asked for a leave of absence which was denied. He then decided not to come to work and was placed on suspension. When he talked to the executive chef to try to obtain some relief he got the "run around."

In addition Smith indicated that he was affected by a drinking problem. He ultimately realized that he was not getting anywhere and he had no job or money and felt that the only way out was to get a grip on himself. He received guidance on a weekly basis from someone who he described as a "non-professional" and "began to regroup." About eight and one-half months ago he began working for Bally's Park Place as a cook and has had no problems with his employment since that time. Smith is currently 32 years old, is planning on getting married, and supports a ten-year-old daughter, who does not live with him but whom he sees regularly. He has paid his fine and has been off probation since December 2, 1989.

Smith explained that at and about the time of the theft he felt that he was a "nobody" and that "nobody cared about him." He has since developed a new attitude.

Smith acknowledged that he stole 12 steaks and 4 boxes of seafood. He worked at the restaurant where the theft occurred and was normally off on Sunday and Monday and was unaware that the restaurant was closed on Sunday. He admitted that he went to the facility, offered $25 to an employee who was on duty as an inducement to allow him to take the items and that that individual turned down the money, although he apparently did not present Smith from taking what he wanted. According to the respondent he took the items as the "way of supporting himself" and sold some of the food. At the time he was sleeping any place he could, including on the boardwalk, and was drinking on street corners. He had lost all of his self-respect and was at an extreme low point.

On cross-examination Smith was asked whether he was an alcoholic and he said that he never actually determined this, although he had spoken to someone at the detoxification facility at the Atlantic City Medical Center and as a result of his conversation he did not feel that he had an actual alcohol problem. He controls his drinking and will have two or there beers, but does not become intoxicated. He now has a sense of responsibility and is trying to make his life better.

Finally, Smith noted that while employed at the Showboat he had been doing a good job, but felt that he was overlooked when advancement opportunities were presented. The company would bring in outside individuals who really did not know what they were doing, but they would be placed in positions which he was seeking and would then come to him for advice on how to perform their work.

In addition to his own testimony, the respondent presented letters from individuals supporting his good character. Among these are one from Ronald Davison, who indicates that he has known Smith for eight months and that he has "always proven to be a loyal and dependable employee." Michael Siegal, a sous chef at Bally's, indicates that Smith "has worked under me eight months and in this time he has progressed and learned a great deal. He is an important asset to us. When he sets his mind to something there is always good results."

At the hearing, Mr. Smith advised that he had intended to present in evidence a statement from the Probation Office concerning the termination of his probation. However, because the hearing location had been switched at the last moment from the courthouse in Atlantic City to the Absecon Municipal Court, he had been unable to pick up the statement the morning of the hearing, as he had intended to do. He was, therefore, advised that he would be permitted to obtain the statement and submit it to the administrative law judge by mail.

On June 21, 1990, the administrative law judge received an envelope addressed from Mr. Smith to Judge Masin, containing an APPLICATION FOR ORDER GRANTING TERMINATION OF PROBATION. This document is on an official Atlantic County Probation Department form and bears the signatures of Probation Officer Mark Franks, an unreadable signature of the Chief Probation Officer, and a signature of Honorable Dennis J. Braithwaite, P.J.Cr. Upon examining the form, the administrative law judge noted that next to the printed word "Recommendations" was typed "Terminate probation with . . . improvement." The word "with" was immediately followed by an ink mark which appeared to be approximately the size of three letters. Because of this marking, the ALJ was concerned as to whether or not the document had been changed and he therefore wrote to the Atlantic County Probation Department requesting that a certified copy of the original document be transmitted. Upon receipt of that document, which is C-4 in evidence, the judge discovered that the certified copy showed the "Recommendations" section as reading "Terminate probation without improvement." Based upon the apparent change in the document submitted by Mr. Smith, the administrative law judge wrote the parties on July 30, 1990 advising that it would be necessary to schedule an additional hearing date in order to provide the parties with the opportunity to address themselves to the condition of the submitted application J-1 and the significance thereof.

On September 30, 1990, the parties appeared in front of Judge Masin at the courthouse in Atlantic City. At that time, the certified application, as well as the application submitted by Mr. Smith and the correspondence between the Probation Office, Judge Masin, and the parties, was introduced into evidence. Thereafter, Mr. Smith testified that because of his work schedule he had been unable to go to the Probation Office to pick up the document during regular business hours and as such he had handwritten the envelope, which was eventually sent to Judge Masin, and had sent his sister to the Probation Office for the purpose of picking up the document, putting it in the mail, and mailing it to the address which he had placed on the document. According to Mr. Smith, his sister did so and after he received the Judge's July 30, 1990 letter advising of the difference between the originally submitted Application and the certified copy of the Application, he asked his sister "many times" whether she had made any change on the document. She denied this and insisted that she had simply taken the document, placed it in the envelope, and placed it in the mailbox. Mr. Smith insisted that he had never seen the document until he received the photocopy of both the application which she had submitted and the certified copy, which were sent as part of Judge Masin's July 30, 1990 correspondence. According to Mr. Smith, he "wouldn't do anything to jeopardize his position because his "license was on the line," he was "trying to maintain his license, not get rid of it."

Mr. Smith's sister did not appear at the hearing. According to him, she is 25 years old and was attending a job training program on the day of the hearing. No affidavit or other correspondence from her was submitted in evidence.

DISCUSSION

This case presents the all too familiar situation of a casino employee or registrant who commits a theft from his employer, or who engages in some illicit conduct, and then, prior to the time that the matter proceeds to hearing and determination on an application to revoke a license or registration, becomes employed again in the industry and performs quite well in the subsequent employment. There is no doubt that at first blush an individual who acts as Smith did, stealing from his employer, is an individual ripe for revocation of license or registration. The time delay which normally arises in cases of this nature often works to the benefit of licensee or registrant in that they can at the time of the hearing present evidence that they have successfully operated within the industry since their improper conduct occurred.

There is no question but that Smith did steal a significant amount of food from his employer. The state police report indicates that the value was $769 and there is no evidence to the contrary other than Smith's recollection that the amount he stole was not quite as great as the report reveals. The important thing here is not exactly how much was taken, but the fact that it was stolen. I FIND that Mr. Smith did commit the offense of theft and that the more likely evidence indicates that it was valued in excess of $500. In addition, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Smith has completed his probation by paying the amount due. Therefore, the question is whether his continued licensure at this time would be inimical.

Based upon my observations of Mr. Smith and the testimony which he gave at the original hearing, I was convinced at that time as to the credibility of his explanation concerning his life circumstances at and around the time that this incident of theft occurred. I have no doubt that the loss of his child was devastating and that even prior to that time he was having some difficulty handling his work responsibilities and his parental obligations and dealing with the travel time and demands which these imposed upon him. In addition, although he denied being an alcoholic, it appears that the circumstances may have led him into some excessive use of alcohol, which, while perhaps no longer a problem, at the time was a contributing factor to his downfall.

Initially, although he did not present expert evidence in support of the extent and depth of his psychological problems at the time of the incident in question, I was sufficiently convinced about Mr. Smith's situation as to find that his description of the reasons for his illegal conduct was believable. Thus, based upon the original testimony I would likely have found Mr. Smith to be a credible witness and would have quite probably concluded that he had returned to the casino industry, successfully and properly conducted himself, and that his continued registration would not be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act or the interests of the gaming industry. This finding would have been despite a general belief that theft from an employer is a quite serious offense, one which in most circumstances requires that the miscreant be barred from the industry.

However, whatever my initial thoughts concerning this matter may have been, the situation which developed upon Mr. Smith's submission of the application for termination of probation has drastically altered my thinking. After receiving the document and finding that its condition raised serious questions about whether I have received what had actually been issued by the Probation Department, and after discovering that, in fact, there appeared to have been an alteration, I provided Mr. Smith with an opportunity to come forward and explain the situation. As noted above, according to Mr. Smith, he is totally without fault as to any alteration of the document and his sister, who he claims was the only person who had any contact with the document on his behalf, also purportedly denies any involvement in placing the ink on the page.

Mr. Smith's testimony concerning his sister's alleged statements is hearsay and is unsupported by any residuum of competent evidence. If the situation is as serious to Mr. Smith as he lets on, and certainly it should be, it seems surprising that he would have neither produced his sister at the hearing, nor at least brought a letter or affidavit from her explaining that she picked up the document, mailed it, and never changed anything. However, no such evidence was produced.

As for Mr. Smith's explanation, I must conclude that he did not testify truthfully. Having examined the document and considered his testimony, it is my belief that in fact he did see the document, that he thought might have a difficult time in light of the comment that his probation had been terminated without improvement, and that he took a chance and altered the document, hoping that the judge would merely believe that the Probation Office had crossed out the "out" because a typist had mistakenly placed it on the page. However, a statement that probation was terminated without improvement is entirely consistent with the comments on the page indicating that Mr. Smith's conduct while under supervision was only "fair" and that he "marginally completed with the conditions of probation." I strongly suspect that the word "completed" is a misstatement, and was in fact intended to be "complied." Nevertheless, the internal consistency of the document with the word "without" is clear.

Based upon an assessment of Mr. Smith's credibility in connection with the altered probation form, I must to some degree reassess his entire testimony in this case. While I am unwilling to conclude that he lied concerning the full circumstances which led him to steal from his employer, I nevertheless conclude that licensing this individual would be inimical to the indusry's interests and to the policies of the Casino Control Commission. There is no question in my mind that Mr. Smith, in order to attempt to retain his license, presented an altered document as evidence in this case. Such conduct is both highly reprehensible and clearly indicative of an individual who does not belong in the highly regulated casino industry.

For the reasons expressed, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Smith's continued licensure would be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and the interests of the casino industry. Therefore, his registration must be revoked. It is so ORDERED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: June 5, 1990 Decided: July 17, 1990

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

The Division of Gaming Enforcement ("Division") filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission ("Commission") on May 15, 1985 seeking revocation of Mr. Streeper's casino hotel employee registration because of his alleged conviction for distribution of methamphetamine, in violation of 21 U.S.C. 841, a crime which is allegedly comparable with N.J.S.A. 24:21-19(a)(1). The Commission initially revoked Streeper's registration by order of August 20, 1987, but by order of April 6, 1990 the matter was sent to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing.

A prehearing conference was held on May 15, 1990 before Honorable Jeff S. Masin, A.L.J. A prehearing order was issued by Judge Masin on May 25, 1990. A hearing was then held before the judge on June 5, 1990 at the Absecon Municipal Court. The record closed following completion of the hearing.

ISSUES

The issues listed in the prehearing order were whether Mr. Streeper had been convicted of conduct which constituted an automatic disqualification from licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and whether he had rehabilitated himself from any such disqualification, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-91e.

EVIDENCE

At the hearing the Division presented a copy of a complaint charging Mr. Streeper and two codefendants with violations of 21 U.S.C. 841 and 846, in that they allegedly knowingly, intentionally and willfully conspired to manufacture and attempted to manufacture methamphetamine, a Schedule II, non-narcotic drug controlled substance. In addition, the Division offered a Judgment and Probation/Commitment Order issued by the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania on Dkt. No. 81--0003-2, United States of America v. James Streeper, which indicates that Streeper was convicted of distribution of methamphetamine, 21 U.S.C. 841, and was sentenced to three years imprisonment, which was suspended. He was placed on five years probation, the first three of which were under strict supervision. The imposition of sentence on three additional counts was suspended.

Mr. Streeper testified that he is 46 years old and a resident of Brigantine. He is the holder of a GED diploma and served for nine years in the United States Marine Corps, serving two tours in Vietnam where he was awarded the Bronze Star, Purple Heart and Silver Star. Thereafter, Streeper was employed at the Valley Forge Military Academy as a Warrant Officer in charge of grounds keeping and facilities. He left Valley Forge in 1968 and became a regional manager for Building Maintenance Corporation, in charge of 43 buildings and 450 people. He left this job in 1972 and went to work for Zimmerman Engineering as a manager of buildings, supervising 23 properties from 1972 to 75 and then went to work for a social service program in Philadelphia as the director of operations. This program was known as Impact Services and it was a organization which dealt with ex-offenders and addicts and obtained jobs for them. The operation involved the obtaining of contracts and training 175 people and supervisors in various businesses. Streeper was involved with this project from 1975 to 81.

In 1980 Streeper "got caught up" with the people at work and thought he had found an easy way to make money. He became involved in the distribution of methamphetamine, admitting at the hearing that he provided two grams of methamphetamine in circumstances involving an undercover agent. He regrets this activity to this day and has not been involved in any further criminal matters. He admitted that his involvement arose from his belief that he could make a lot of money. At the time his son's hands needed to be "rebuilt" because they lacked a number of digits and the anticipated cost of the operation was $75,000. This was the financial motivation for his involvement with the controlled dangerous substance.

Streeper presented a letter dated March 5, 1990 from his probation officer in which the probation office advised him that they were certifying his completion of the five-year probation period imposed by the federal court. The probation expired on March 29, 1986, with Streeper having satisfactorily completed the probation term with "favorable adjustment."

The respondent testified that following his criminal involvement he was employed at the Cherry Hill Inn as a facilities manager and executive housekeeper and then from 1981 to 83 he was an operator of Envirocom Cleaning Services, a residential and commercial cleaning operation in South Jersey and Pennsylvania, where he supervised up to 63 people. Many of the clients had summer homes for which Streeper personally held keys in order to admit the cleaning personnel. He was also employed from 1983 until this past summer, driving a limousine for Michael's Limousine Company of Brigantine, working 75 to 80 hours a week. He phased out his involvement with Envirocom and now works for General Limousine of Atlantic City as a limousine driver. He has been offered a job at the Taj Mahal as a driver.

The witness testified that he has been involved in the Marine Corps League and its Toys for Tots Crusade and golf tournament for crippled children. He also has had some limited involvement with the American Legion. He denied any involvement in any drug activity of any type since 1980.

On cross-examination the witness admitted that he did tell undercover personnel at the time of his involvement in the methamphetamine operation that he had been manufacturing it for eight years and that he had a place in which to do the manufacturing. He described the entire circumstance as a "game," apparently implying that there was a good deal of "puffing" going on in the conversations between the various actual and undercover participants in the scheme and that the conversations concerning prior manufacturer and locations for such work were done to impress the others supposedly involved. The distribution involved the giving of a "sample"to an undercover agent. He never told anyone that he had "laundered" money. His associate in the plot, one Anthony Caulfield, provided the chemicals for the operation. Caulfield was an individual who he had met through his work with Impact Services and was a personal friend.

In 1979 Mr. Streeper had bought a car in Pennsylvania for $1,500. The title was to be delivered to him that night. In fact, the car, a 240 ZX, was stolen and when he was stopped by the police he was arrested. He ultimately entered a pre-trial intervention type of program and the matter was dismissed.

DISCUSSION

The evidence in this case establishes that Mr. Streeper was in fact convicted of distribution of methamphetamine, an offense against the laws of the United States and one which is comparable to the New Jersey Statute, N.J.S.A. 24:21-19(a)(1). Streeper does not deny the conviction and the documents presented establish it.

The ultimate question for consideration is therefore whether Streeper has rehabilitated himself from the disqualifying conduct. This conviction occurred in 1981 and involved conduct which apparently occurred in 1980. The distribution itself was apparently limited in scope. Conversations between the purported participants may have implied an operation which was either proposed to be, or perhaps was in fact larger in scope. Nevertheless, it appears that in treating the sentence, the district court judge concluded that a probationary period was appropriate. This seems to imply that the scope of Streeper's involvement was not deemed so significant as to require that he be incarcerated.

Mr. Streeper successfully completed his probation and has not been in any trouble either during or after the probationary period. The testimony concerning his history prior to the criminal activity indicates that he is a decorated Vietnam veteran and that he held a number of fairly significant supervisory positions in the building maintenance field after his involvement with the military. He has continued in maintenance/cleaning type operations subsequent to his conviction, although he now is involved in limousine driving.

Mr. Streeper's conduct in 1980 cannot be condoned, despite his claim that his motivation for seeking financial gain was related to and motivated by his child's need for expensive surgery. Distribution of methamphetamine is a serious offense, which might well have led to possibly devastating consequences for other children or adults. The criminal conviction hopefully has served to drive home to Streeper both the seriousness of the offense and the consequences arising from such involvement. Since his conviction and the start of his probation he has apparently had a successful adjustment. It is of some significance that the probation expired in 1986 and there has been no indication of any wrongdoing since that time.

Based upon the above and in view of the criteria set forth in the statute, I FIND that Mr. Streeper was involved in serious conduct of a criminal nature which would constitute an automatic disqualification from licensure. At the time that he engaged in this conduct he was in his mid-30's and should have been sufficiently mature to understand the seriousness and the social implications of his conduct. Nevertheless, it appears that his activity was limited and hopefully aberrational in nature. He has paid a penalty of some significance and has made a proper adjustment to probationary and post-probationary status. He has maintained employment throughout his life since his release from the Marines and has held some jobs of significance. He remains employed to this day.

Considering all of the above, I am convinced that Mr. Streeper has established his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence, as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-91e. Therefore, he is entitled to retain his casino hotel employee registration. The complaint is therefore DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: August 7, 1990 Decided: August 15, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Jeffrey L. Strouse, applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the issuance of a casino employee license (security employee-electronics technician), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90. The respondent, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), opposed the issuance of the license by reason of its contention that the petitioner had been convicted of a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), and therefore, he lacked the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference. The petitioner contended that he was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 90h.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed with the Commission an application for the issuance of a casino employee license so he could be employed as a security employee-electronics technician at Resorts International Hotel and Casino. By letter to the Commission, dated October 11, 1989, the Division objected to the petitioner's application for licensure as a security employee, asserting that the petitioner had been convicted of two counts of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(2) (third degree), and that he had been convicted by military court-martial of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine) with the intent to distribute, which is analogous to a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5 (third degree), which are disqualifying offenses under section 86c(1). The Division also objected pursuant to section 89(b)2. Based upon the report, the Commission notified the petitioner on November 13, 1989, that there were questions raised concerning his qualification under the Casino Control Act and that he had the right to a hearing. By application dated November 27, 1989, which was received by the Commission on December 19, 1989, the petitioner requested a hearing. On January 10, 1990, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on January 19, 1990, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before me on April 17, 1990. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(2), aggravated assault (two counts).

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A 5:12-89b(2) as incorporated within section 90b.

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was held on August 7, 1990, in the Office of Administrative Law, Atlantic County Civil Court House, Atlantic City, New Jersey, after which the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

In June 1984, when the petitioner was 24 years old, he was arrested by the Delaware State Police and was charged with resisting arrest, offensive touching and failure to stop on command. The charges resulted from a domestic argument in which the police became involved. During the course of the argument, the petitioner pushed a police officer. The petitioner was convicted in municipal court of failure to stop on command. The remaining two charges were dismissed. The petitioner's driver's license was suspended for one year as a result of this incident.

In March 1985, while on active duty in the United States Air Force and assigned at Dover Air Force Base, Delaware, the petitioner was arrested and charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine) with the intent to distribute. The petitioner was experiencing marital and financial problems and he was told selling drugs was a quick way to make money. He was arrested shortly after commencing his drug activities. As such, he sold only one eighth of one ounce of methamphetamine and was in possession of two grams of methamphetamine. The petitioner had been using methamphetamine approximately once a week for approximately one month. The petitioner pleaded guilty and was convicted by a general court-martial of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine) with the intent to distribute. He was sentenced to serve 20 months in prison, was reduced to the grade of E-1, and was separated from the service with the issuance of a bad conduct discharge (R-1).

On October 7, 1988, the petitioner was depressed about his divorce and not being allowed by his former wife to visit his children. He went to Rosey's Tavern in Dorothy, New Jersey, to drink and shoot pool. While playing pool, another intoxicated patron, Barry O'Sullivan, began ridiculing and criticizing the petitioner. Words were exchanged between the two men. Mr. O'Sullivan's girlfriend, Laurie Taylor, entered the argument. A fight ensued, and the petitioner threw an ashtray at Mr. O'Sullivan and Ms. Taylor. The fight ended and the parties departed.

On October 10, 1988, the petitioner went to the local state police barracks, explained what had occurred, and was arrested (R-3). On December 1, 1988, the petitioner was indicted in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Law Division-Criminal, Atlantic County, Indictment No. 88-12-3082-C, and was charged with aggravated assault causing serious bodily injury (Counts one and two), in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(1); aggravated assault with a deadly weapon (an ashtray) (Counts three and four), in violation N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(2); unlawful possession of a weapon (a beer mug) (Count five), in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:39-5d; and possession of a weapon (a beer mug) for an unlawful purpose (Count six), in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:39-4d (R-2). On January 23, 1989, the petitioner entered an original plea of not guilty to the charges. On February 21, 1989, the petitioner retracted his plea and entered a guilty plea to Counts three and four of the indictment. On March 17, 1989, the petitioner was convicted of Counts three and four of the indictment, aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, and the remaining counts of the indictment were dismissed. The petitioner was sentenced on each count to serve 270 days in the Atlantic County jail, to be placed on probation for two years, and to pay a $30 Violent Crimes Compensation Board penalty ($60 total). The sentences were to be served concurrently. The petitioner was also ordered to make restitution in the amount of $481 for medical bills (R-3). The petitioner was released on parole in June 1989 and entered a work release program. The petitioner satisfactorily completed his parole supervision and is now serving his probationary period. The petitioner has paid most of the court ordered restitution.

The petitioner was born on September 24, 1961, and he is now 28 years of age. He was raised by his parents along with four brothers and sisters in Estell Manor, New Jersey. He graduated from Buena Regional High School in 1979. He is a volunteer fireman in Estell Manor.

From 1979 through 1981, the petitioner was employed at Spencer's Gifts in Atlantic City. In 1981, the petitioner entered the Air Force. He rose to the grade of E-4, senior airman, until his court-martial in 1985. He was discharged upon his release from confinement in 1986. He then worked for several months as a salesman for Culligan Water Conditioning and then as a temporary technician for Diamond State Telephone. In April 1987, he received a casino hotel employee registration and began work as a records retention clerk at Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino. In August 1987, he left this position as he found employment in his career field. He became employed as a camera technician for Electro Alarms Custom Systems. This is a company owned by Resorts that maintains the security system and cameras at Resorts International Hotel and Casino. The petitioner was an outstanding employee for Electro Alarms; however, he left this position due to his incarceration in March 1989. Since his release, he has held various jobs in the electronics industry, and he currently does piecework for a television repair shop in Ocean City.

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the petitioner's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident and his current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess his credibility. Initially, his position in this matter must be recognized. As the petitioner and the applicant for a casino employee license, he has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the petitioner's demeanor, the plausibility of his testimony, the manner in which he participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence, it appeared that the petitioner testified truthfully in substantial regard. He admitted his misconduct and described the underlying circumstances; however, he attempted to minimize his involvement and the seriousness of the offenses. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the petitioner's testimony in substantial part.

As the above FACTS are not in dispute, I FIND all of the above as FACT.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-89, Licensing of casino key employees, provides in pertinent part:

b. Each applicant must, prior to the issuance of any casino key employee license, produce information, documentation and assurances concerning the following qualification criteria:

. . . .

(2) Each applicant for a casino key employee license shall produce such information, documentation and assurances as may be required to establish by clear and convincing evidence the applicant's good character, honesty and integrity. Such information shall include, without limitation, data pertaining to family, habits, character, reputation, criminal and arrest record, business activities, financial affairs, and business, professional and personal associates, covering at least the 10-year period immediately preceding the filing of the application. Each applicant shall notify the commission of any civil judgments obtained against such applicant pertaining to antitrust or security regulation laws of the federal government, of this State or of any other state, jurisdiction, province or country. In addition, each applicant shall, upon request of the commission or the division, produce letters of reference from law enforcement agencies having jurisdiction in the applicant's place of residence and principal place of business, which letters of reference shall indicate that such law enforcement agencies do not have any pertinent information concerning the applicant, or if such law enforcement agency does have information pertaining to the applicant, shall specify what that information is. If the applicant has been associated with gaming or casino operations in any capacity, position or employment in a jurisdiction which permits such activity, the applicant shall, upon request of the commission or division, produce letters of reference from the gaming or casino enforcement or control agency, which shall specify the experience of such agency with the applicant, his associates and his participation in the gaming operations of that jurisdiction; provided, however, that if no such letters are received from the appropriate law enforcement agencies within 60 days of the applicant's request therefor, the applicant may submit a statement under oath that he is or was during the period such activities were conducted in good standing with such gaming or casino enforcement or control agency.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-90, Licensing of casino employees, provides in pertinent part:

a. No person may commence employment as a casino employee unless he is the holder of a valid casino employee license.

b. Any applicant for a casino employee license must, prior to the issuance of any such license, produce sufficient information, documentation and assurances to meet the qualification criteria, including New Jersey residency, contained in subsection b. of section 89 of this act and any additional residency requirement imposed under subsection c. of this section; except that the standards for business ability and casino experience may be satisfied by a showing of casino job experience and knowledge of the provisions of this act and regulations pertaining to the particular position involved, or by successful completion of a course of study at a licensed school in an approved curriculum.

e. The commission shall deny a casino employee license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of this act.

. . . .

h. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection e. of this section, no applicant shall be denied a casino employee license on the basis of a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria or the commission of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of section 86 of P.L. 1977, c. 110 (C. 5:12-86), as specified in subsection g. of that section; provided that the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation. In determining whether the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

DISCUSSION

The Division contends that the petitioner was convicted of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(2), aggravated assault with a deadly weapon (third degree). The Division further contends that the petitioner was convicted by a military court-martial of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine) with the intent to distribute which is analogous to a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5a(1). The Division asserts that these convictions constitute violations of section 86c(1), and that, accordingly, he is disqualified from licensure.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1)

Section 86c(1) mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends that the petitioner's involvement in a fight in Rosey's Tavern constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b, which under the circumstances disqualifies the petitioner from licensure. The Division further contends that the petitioner's possession of methamphetamine with the intent to distribute constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, which under the circumstances disqualifies the petitioner from licensure.

N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1, Assault, provides in pertinent part:

> b. Aggravated Assault. A person is guilty of aggravated assault if he:
>
> . . . .
>
> (2) Attempts to cause or purposely or knowingly causes bodily injury to another with a deadly weapon;
>
> . . . .
> Aggravated assault under subsection b. (1) is a crime of the second degree; under subsection b. (2) is a crime of the third degree; under subsection b. (3) and b. (4) is a crime of the fourth degree; and under subsection b. (5) is a crime of the third degree if the victim suffers bodily injury, otherwise it is a crime of the fourth degree.

The Division established, and the petitioner admitted during his testimony, that he knowingly engaged in a fight and threw an ashtray at his victims. The Division further established, and the petitioner admitted during his testimony, that he was convicted of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b(2). Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b and that the petitioner was convicted of a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A 2C:12-1b, the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, Manufacturing, distributing or dispensing, provides in pertinent part:

> a. Except as authorized by P.L. 1970 c. 226 (C.24:21-1 et seq.), it shall be unlawful for any person knowingly or purposely:
>
>
> ....
>
> b. Any person who violates subsection a. with respect to:
>
> ....
>
> (8) Methamphetamine, or its analog, in a quantity of one ounce or more including any adulterants or dilutants, is guilty of a crime of the second degree;
>
> (9) Methamphetamine, or its analog, in a quantity of less than one ounce including any adulterants or dilutants, is guilty of a crime of the third degree except that, notwithstanding the provisions of subsection b. of N.J.S 2C:43-3, a fine of up to $50,000.00 may be imposed.
> ....

The Division established, and the petitioner admitted during his testimony, that he knowingly possessed two grams of methamphetamine with the intent to sell the drug. The Division further established, and the petitioner admitted during his testimony, that he was convicted by a military court-martial of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine) with the intent to distribute. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner's conduct constitutes a violation analogous to a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5 and that the petitioner was convicted of an offense which is analogous to a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5b(9). I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offenses committed by the petitioner are disqualifying offenses under section 86c(1). The petitioner is therefore disqualified from licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h

An applicant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating his or her rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
4. The date of the offense or conduct;
5. The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;
6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Mr. Strouse is applying for a position as a non-gaming casino licensee as a security employee-electronics technician. As such, he will not have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities and will not come in contact with casino patrons.

Second, the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1b, aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, on one occasion while employed in the casino industry. The petitioner also committed an offense which is analogous to a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-5, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (methamphetamine) with the intent to distribute, over a two-week period. Because the offenses are listed as disqualifiers under section 86c(1), they are very serious. In addition, one offense is a crime of violence against another person and the second offense is a drug offense. Such conduct cannot be condoned or tolerated.

Third, the seriousness of the offenses must be viewed in their appropriate context. With regard to the aggravated assault, the petitioner was depressed about his divorce and not being able to visit his children. He went out drinking and began to play pool. Another intoxicated patron began ridiculing and criticizing the petitioner and a fight ensued. With regard to the drug offense, the petitioner was experiencing domestic and financial difficulties. He submitted to peer pressure and a quick way to make some extra money. His involvement in illicit drug sales lasted no more than two weeks, as he was caught. The petitioner testified against his supplier in court.

Fourth, the respondent's drug misconduct occurred in 1985 and the aggravated assault occurred in 1988, when it ceased.

Fifth, the respondent was 23 years old at the time of the drug offense and 26 years old at the time of the aggravated assault. I do not believe immaturity was a factor in this case.

Sixth, the respondent's misconduct was not isolated in nature. In 1984, he was convicted of failure to stop on command, in 1985, he committed the drug offense, and in 1988, he committed the aggravated assault. The petitioner asserts that the aggravated assault was an isolated act of violence.

Seventh, all three offenses in some way involved domestic problems. In addition, the petitioner succumbed to peer pressure and financial difficulties when he turned to selling methamphetamine.

Eighth, the petitioner has served two periods of incarceration. He attended drug counseling while incarcerated by the Air Force, and he has not returned to drug involvement. After the aggravated assault conviction the petitioner participated in alcoholics anonymous, successfully completed his parole supervision and his work release program, and he is making satisfactory progress on probation. He has nearly completed making restitution, and he is current in making child support payments. He is a member of a volunteer fire company. He was an outstanding employee as an electronics technician while employed at Resort's. The petitioner is remorseful and does not believe his misconduct is likely to reoccur.

In this case, the petitioner is required to establish his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. The Commission explained the differences in the evidentiary standards in In re Boardwalk Regency Casino Application, 10 N.J.A.R. 295 (1980). At pages 297 and 298 of that decision the Commission stated:

> Sections 84 and 89(b) of the Act set forth the criteria which a casino license applicant and other persons required to be qualified as a condition of such licensure must affirmatively establish by clear and convincing evidence. N.J.S.A. 5:12-84 and 89(b). The clear and convincing evidence requirement falls between the ordinary civil standard of "preponderance of the evidence" and the criminal standard of "beyond a reasonable doubt". The preponderance standard means simply that when the record is considered as a whole the credible evidence renders the existence of the fact in question more likely than not. In contrast, the familiar criminal standard means that the trier of fact must not have a reasonable doubt, that is, one based on the evidence or the lack of evidence. A reasonable doubt is one which has some justification rather than an imaginary or possible doubt. The clear and convincing standard is much higher than the preponderance standard but somewhat less than the reasonable doubt requirement. Clear and convincing evidence should produce in the mind of the Commissioner a firm belief or conviction as to the truth of the matters sought to be established. In order to sustain its burden, the applicant was obliged to present clear and convincing proof of the facts upon which the Commission may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. [Emphasis added.]

The different "burdens of proof" applicable in this State are set forth in Evid. R 1(4) and are discussed in Lepre v. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118, 123-24 (Law Div. 1974)

> Evid. R.:1(4) sets forth three standards of proofs: namely, preponderance of the evidence, clear and convincing proof and beyond a reasonable doubt. Comment 1(4)-4 provides that:
>
> > The third standard, clear and convincing evidence, falls somewhere between the ordinary civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. * * * It should produce in the mind of the trier of the fact a firm belief or conviction as to the truth of the allegations sought to be established.

This principle was enunciated in Aiello v. Knoll Golf Club, 64 N.J. Super. 156 (App. Div. 1960), where the clear and convincing standard of proof was applied in establishing plaintiff's burden of proving an alleged parol gift of land. The language adopted in Aiello of an earlier Iowa case, Bevington v. Bevington, 133 Iowa 351, 358, 110 N.W. 840, 843, 9 L.R.A., N.S. 508 (Sup. Ct. 1907), describes appropriately this additional burden placed upon a proponent in clear and convincing situations:

> The law requires nothing more than that the result shall not be reached by a mere balancing of doubts or probabilities, but by clear and unequivocal proof of facts upon which a Court or jury may reach a reasonable satisfactory conclusion. In other words the rule does not require absolute certainty, but reasonable certainty of the truth of the ultimate fact in controversy.

See also, Germann v. Matriss, 104 N.J. Super. 466, 470 (App. Div. 1969). The evidence must be "so clear, direct and weighty and convincing as to enable either a judge or jury to come to a clear conviction, without hesitancy, of the truth of the precise facts in issue." Aiello at 162. Evidence may be uncontroverted, but yet not clear and convincing. See, Matter of Jobes, 108 N.J. 394, 408 (1987). While I do not believe that the petitioner's licensure as an electronics technician would threaten the casino industry, if measured by a preponderance of the evidence standard, I do not believe that the petitioner has met his burden of affirmatively establishing his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not established, by clear and convincing evidence, his rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

(C) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Mr. Strouse was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Id. at 296.

It is not readily apparent that the petitioner's misconduct was aberrant and that he is otherwise a person of good character, honesty and integrity. While the misconduct did not involve casino employment, the petitioner was involved in three separate incidents over a four-year period. Two of these incidents resulted in incarceration. The underlying circumstances did, however, somewhat mitigate the seriousness of the misconduct. In addition, the petitioner has fully accepted responsibility for his assaultive misconduct, however, he has not fully accepted responsibility for or indicated appreciation of the severity of his drug misconduct. The petitioner still attempts to minimize the severity of his offense. The petitioner now appears to have regained control over his behavior, performed admirably within the casino industry for two years, and has become a respected member of his community serving as a volunteer fireman. Accordingly, while the petitioner appears to now be a good person and does not appear to be a threat to the casino industry by serving as an electronics technician, I cannot clearly and convincingly state that the petitioner presents no risk to the public nor to the integrity of the gaming industry in this State. The petitioner has not earned the privilege of licensure. He is still on probation. An examination of the whole person does not clearly and convincingly establish that Mr. Strouse is a person of good character, honesty and integrity, and is entirely suitable for licensure in this State. See, Boardwalk Regency Corp.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not established, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity under section 90b.

Record Closed: September 18, 1990 Decided: October 31, 1990

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the letter filed with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on August 4, 1989, objecting to the issuance of a casino employee license to the petitioner, Lonnie Taylor. The petitioner requested a hearing, and the matter was transmitted on December 13, 1989, to the Office of Administrative Law for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A telephone prehearing conference was held on April 27, 1990, at which time the parties agreed that the issues in this matter are:

A. Whether the petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c, despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: Theft by deception (third-degree offense), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

C. Whether the petitioner can demonstrate rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

At the prehearing conference, Mr. Taylor appeared pro se and the respondent, the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), was represented by Deputy Attorney General James Armstrong. At that time, it was decided that the hearing in this matter would be held on July 5, 1990. This hearing date was adjourned at the request of the petitioner after he acquired the services of an attorney, Jerry C. Goldhagen, Esq. The hearing was rescheduled and took place on August 23, 1990, at the Absecon City Hall in Absecon, New Jersey. At the hearing, the respondent was represented by Deputy Attorney General Norma L. Stancil. After receipt of additional documents from the petitioner, as well as briefs from the parties, the record in this matter closed on September 18, 1990.

FACTUAL FINDINGS

I FIND that there are no factual disputes in this matter.

During its investigation, the Division determined that a certificate of debt had been filed against the petitioner by the New Jersey Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance, State Department of Labor (Labor). This certificate of debt is based on the determination by Labor that the petitioner had received unemployment benefits totaling $1,848.75 between March 23, 1982 and June 15, 1982, due to his misrepresentation of his employment status (R-20, R-21, R-22, R-23). With interest and fines, the total amount sought by Labor from the petitioner was $2,033.65 (R-24), and Mr. Taylor currently owes Labor $1,746.35 (R-5). According to the respondent's investigator, Agent Rita Kazmierski, the petitioner has not made any voluntary payments as to this debt.

Agent Kazmierski stated that Mr. Taylor had been working at Resorts International Casino Hotel (Resorts) when he was collecting the unemployment benefits in 1982.

Additionally, the Division determined that Mr. Taylor had a student loan debt of $2,550.00 and he currently owes $1,944.00 on this debt (R-18, R-19). The last payment on this debt was made by withholding petitioner's income tax refund on May 19, 1988 (R-18, R-19). Also, Mr. Taylor is in default on a $2,193.28 loan debt he owes to the First Fidelity Bank, and he has an overdue account at Annie Sez (R-18).

In addition, during its investigation, the respondent determined that the petitioner has the following criminal record:

(1) On July 18, 1981, the petitioner was arrested for the possession of a controlled dangerous substance, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10, while he was confined at Leesburg State Prison (R-1, R-3, R-17). This charge was later administratively dismissed (R-2).

(2) On October 24, 1981, the petitioner was arrested for the possession of a controlled dangerous substance, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10 (R-4, R-17).

(3) On September 21, 1982, the petitioner was arrested for having a number of different controlled dangerous substances in his possession. He was charged with the possession of heroin, valium and marijuana, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10 (R-5, R-6, R-17). Initially, the petitioner was given a conditional discharge regarding this matter provided that he was examined for narcotics every three months for a one-year period (R-7) The conditional discharge was revoked due to the petitioner's failure to comply with the conditions of the discharge, and the petitioner pled guilty to one charge of the possession of a controlled dangerous substance. He was placed on probation for 18 months and he was required to pay a fine of $150.00, serve 100 hours of community service, and pay a penalty of $25.00 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (R-7).

(4) On May 25, 1983, the petitioner was arrested for theft, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-6 (R-8, R-17). In the complaint, it was alleged that the petitioner had in his possession an electric typewriter valued at $399.99 taken from Sears and Roebuck Company (R-9, R-10). Mr. Taylor pled guilty to the offense of theft by receiving stolen property, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-7, and he was placed on probation for one year. He was also required to perform 100 hours of community services and to pay a penalty of $25.00 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board (R-11). Mr. Taylor stated that he did not know the typewriter was stolen and that he pled guilty to protect his older brother.

(5) On March 25, 1987, Mr. Taylor was arrested for simple assault and terroristic threats, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(a)1 and 2C:12-3 (R-12, R-17). In this matter, the complainant alleged that Mr. Taylor had chased him with his car and then with a table leg and had tried to do him bodily harm (R-13, R-14). According to Mr. Taylor, the complainant had had an argument with his sister and had hit her. Mr. Taylor found out and went after the complainant. This matter was dismissed (R-14, R-15).

(6) On January 23, 1989, Mr. Taylor was arrested for an assault, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:12-1(a). According to Mr. Taylor, this was a domestic matter involving his wife, and the complaint was dismissed.

Mr. Taylor did not list any of the above arrests and convictions in his personal history disclosure form - 2A (PHD form) (R-26), which he filed as part of his application for a casino employee license.

After the matter was assigned to Agent Kazmierski for investigation, she tried to contact Mr. Taylor by telephone several times without success. Agent Kazmierski then sent Mr. Taylor a registered letter, dated on March 29, 1989, asking him to contact the employee license section and indicating that his failure to comply with the request would delay the background investigation relating to his application for a casino employee license (R-27). Mr. Taylor received this letter and the Division received a return receipt with his signature (R-27); however, Mr. Taylor did not contact the Division.

On his own behalf, Mr. Taylor stated that he had submitted the PHD form as part of his application for a casino employee license (R-26) and that he had received the letter from the Division. According to Mr. Taylor, he was very busy at the time he got the letter, since he was moving, and he never really read the contents of the letter.

Mr. Taylor admitted that he did not reveal his arrest record in the PHD form since he felt that the criminal matters occurred a long time ago and were minor incidents. He also admitted that when he filled out the PHD form, he had been concerned that his criminal record might have a negative impact on his chances of getting a casino employee license.

Mr. Taylor stated that he is now 28 years old, married, and has three children, ages 9, 4 and 3 years old. Mr. Taylor is a high-school graduate. Mr. Taylor took carpentry courses while in high school, and he completed a six-month course for data processing in 1984 (in the PHD form, this course is improperly listed as having been taken in 1974). After he completed the data processing course, he was unable to get a job as a data processor because he had no work experience.

As to receiving the unemployment compensation benefits in 1982, Mr. Taylor admitted that he was working at Resorts at the time and indicated that he did not report the employment since he needed the money. At that time, Mr. Taylor stated that he was young and he was supporting a wife and an infant son. He was also using drugs in 1981-82 and was being influenced by an older brother who has a long and serious criminal record. According to Mr. Taylor, he has not made any voluntary repayment of the amount he owes Labor because he does not have the money. Mr. Taylor stated that he has not repaid his student loan and other debts for the same reason.

Mr. Taylor is currently employed at the Claridge Hotel and Casino (Claridge) as a barporter. Prior to this employment, he has had a number of other jobs in the casino industry. Mr. Taylor holds a casino hotel employee registration.

For a while, Mr. Taylor was employed as a busperson by the Trump Castle Hotel and Casino (Trump) and he worked there approximately five months during 1989. In 1989, the petitioner also worked at the Claridge. He was terminated by the Claridge. The petitioner stated that he was working for both the Claridge and the Trump at the same time, and it was too hard to work at both places. Mr. Taylor worked for approximately eight months for the Showboat Hotel and Casino in 1988, and he was discharged for unauthorized absenteeism. Prior to that time, he was employed as a car cleaner for a limousine company for approximately six months in 1987. In 1982, he worked for a time for Resorts but was laid off from the position.

Mr. Taylor was taking drugs when he was 19 to 20 years old; however, he stated that he no longer takes drugs. Mr. Taylor stated that his older brother was a bad influence on him and that he now does not associate with this brother and will not allow this brother to involve him in any criminal activities.

According to Mr. Taylor, he wants the casino hotel employee license so that he can get a better position in the casino industry. If he gets a better position, he will be able to pay his debts.

On behalf of the petitioner, three persons submitted letters attesting to his good character, honesty and integrity. The letters are from George Taylor, Jr., an Atlantic City Police Officer and one of the petitioner's brothers. Cornell Taylor, the petitioner's mother, and Izra Jones, a close friend of the petitioner. All three persons stated that the petitioner is a good person, who is now working very hard to support his wife and children (P-1, P-2, P-3).

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

On behalf of the petitioner, Mr. Goldhagen argued that Mr. Taylor is now a mature person who takes his family responsibilities seriously. Mr. Goldhagen argued that the petitioner's criminal activities occurred some time ago, and even though Mr. Taylor did not list the criminal charges in his application, he candidly admitted them during the hearing. Additionally, Mr. Goldhagen stated that Mr. Taylor had financial problems during 1982, and he had improperly accepted unemployment benefits because he had a urgent need for the money to support his wife and child. Mr. Goldhagen argued that the petitioner has shown his rehabilitation and that he is now a person of good character, honesty and integrity. Mr. Goldhagen noted that Mr. Taylor's last criminal conviction was almost eight years ago.

In addition, Mr. Goldhagen argued that even if there is a finding that Mr. Taylor has not been rehabilitated, the Commission should waive this disqualification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91e, and he cited the case of The Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Crumble, 12 N.J.A.R. 191 (1989). I disagree with Mr. Goldhagen as to the application of N.J.S.A. 5:12-91e. By law, the waiver provision is only applicable to cases involving a casino hotel employee registration.

In her brief, Ms. Stancil argued that the petitioner admitted that he had received unemployment benefits in 1982 by misrepresenting his employment status, and she argued that this action is equivalent to theft by deception, a third-degree offense, pursuant to N.J.S.A 2C:20-4, and that this action constitutes a disqualification, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

Although the Division had not alleged in its letter that petitioner should be disqualified based on his failure to reveal his criminal record, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b, Ms. Stancil argued that this fact and the petitioner's criminal record should be taken into consideration in determining whether or not he is a person of good character, honesty and integrity as required for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b.

Further, Ms. Stancil requested pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.1 and N.J.A.C. 1:1-6.1, that I amend the prehearing order to add the issue of disqualification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b, in view of the petitioner's admission that he intentionally failed to disclose his criminal record. In support of her request, Ms. Stancil noted that the petitioner had not cooperated with the Division's investigation by not responding to the Division's letter. If the petitioner had responded, Agent Kazmierski would have discussed the failure to reveal his criminal record on the PHD form with the petitioner prior to the preparation of the Division's letter to the Commission. I CONCLUDE that the Division's request to amend its August 1989 letter and the prehearing order to add the issue of a disqualification pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86b is denied since it was first raised by Ms. Stancil after the hearing in the matter. Although N.J.S.A. 1:1-6.2 provides the administrative law judge with liberal latitude to amend the pleadings, this power is usually exercised before the actual hearing and is not allowed when it would be prejudicial to either party. To add a new ground for the denial of the petitioner's application for a casino employee license at this junction would deny the petitioner the opportunity to submit a defense and, therefore, must be denied.

After considering all the evidence presented at the hearing, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established a statutory disqualifier since the petitioner intentionally misrepresented his employment status in order to receive unemployment benefits, and I CONCLUDE that his action is analogous to theft by deception in excess of $500.00, a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which is a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

As to rehabilitation, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not shown rehabilitation at this time. The receipt of unemployment benefits is not the petitioner's only criminal offense. Additionally, Mr. Taylor has made no attempt to repay any of his debts. Further, as stated by Administrative Law Judge Masin in Thomas v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, OAL DKT. NO. CCC 4401-89 (February 7, 1990), adopted by Commission, March 23, 1990, the fact that he was working for the casino industry while collecting the unemployment benefits "does not reflect well upon the casino industry or its employees." Id. at 4.

Although I recognize that Mr. Taylor was a young man when he committed the acts which resulted in the criminal convictions, in view of the number of convictions, the 1982 improper receipt of unemployment benefits and Mr. Taylor's failure to take any positive action to repay the debt, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has not presented sufficient evidence to show by clear and convincing evidence his rehabilitation or to show his good character, honesty and integrity.

In reaching this conclusion, I have also taken into consideration that Mr. Taylor appears not to be able to hold a position for any extended period of time and the fact that he intentionally withheld information regarding his criminal record on his PHD form.

Therefore, I ORDER that the application of the petitioner for a casino employee license be DENIED.

I hereby FILE my initial decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: August 22, 1989 Decided: July 2, 1990

BEFORE RICHARD J. MURPHY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The New Jersey Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) has filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86, 89-91, 107-108, 129-130, seeking to revoke respondent Guy Thomas' casino employee registration #46650-40, because of his 1986 arrest for aggravated assault, possession of a weapon for unlawful purposes, and possession of a weapon, and guilty plea to aggravated assault. The Division relies on the same grounds to object to Guy Thomas' application for a casino employee license. Thomas is employed by Trump Hotel & Casino as an environmental services worker. He argues mitigating circumstances, as well as rehabilitation from the offense.

Procedural History:

The application matter was filed by the Commission with the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 12, 1989, for hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., and the revocation proceeding was filed with OAL on March 1, 1989, to be consolidated with the casino employee license application made by Mr. Thomas. The prehearing was held on April 6, 1989 and the plenary hearing was held in Camden on August 22, 1989, at which time the record closed. The due date for submission of this decision was extended on several occasions for matters not relevant to this case, including the backlog of decisions resulting from pending public utility matters. I regret any hardship or inconvenience that this unavoidable delay may have caused the parties.

Issues:

The issues to be resolved are:

(1) Whether the applicant/respondent is disqualified from holding a license/registration under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), because of conviction for the enumerated offense of aggravated assault;

(2) Whether the applicant/respondent can affirmatively demonstrate his rehabilitation from the disqualifying offense pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h, 91d;

(3) Whether the applicant/respondent can establish by clear and convincing evidence his good character, honesty and integrity as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), and 90b, considering the fact as to rehabilitation as set forth in 90h.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

There is no dispute as to the facts. Guy Thomas currently holds a casino hotel employee registration and works in the hotel part of the Trump Hotel & Casino, shampooing rugs and scrubbing floors. He seeks a casino employee license to be able to work on the casino floor in a cleaning capacity. Mr. Thomas does not dispute that, on July 3, 1986, he was indicted for aggravated assault, possession of a weapon for unlawful purposes, and possession of a weapon, and that he pled guilty on August 11, 1986 to aggravated assault and sentenced on October of 1986, to ten months incarceration in the Atlantic County jail (with credit for two days), three years probation, $2,283.76 in restitution and $30 payable to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board. (P-1). Specifically, Mr. Thomas was alleged to have assaulted one Rene Louis and Marie Jasmine. Mr. Thomas claimed that the charges were the result of a fight that he did not start, provoked by Rene Louis' suspicions that Thomas was (to use the colloquial) "putting the moves on his wife, Marie Jasmine, which Thomas emphatically denies. The sentencing Judge noted, as aggravating factors, the risk that the defendant will commit another crime and the need for deterring the defendant from others from violating the law. He also included the following reasons for sentence:

> [c]onsidering the brutal nature of the offense and resultant damage to the victim, and despite defendant's clear prior criminal record, a term of incarceration is necessary since the defendant will pose a danger to the community without some jail; and also for purposes of punishment, as a deterrent, for rehabilitation, and so as to not deprecate the seriousness of the offense. Thereafter the defendant should be amenable to this probation. (P-1) (emphasis added).

The sentencing Judge also noted the following mitigating factors:

> . . . substantial grounds tending to excuse or justify the defendant's conduct, though failing to establish a defense fight . . . .
>
> The defendant has compensated or will compensate the victim of this conduct for the damage or injury that he sustained or will participate in a program of community service
>
> . . . The defendant has no history of prior delinquency or criminal activity and has led a law-abiding life for a substantial period of time before the commission of the present offense
>
> . . . The defendant's conduct was the result of circumstances unlikely to recur

1294

> . . . The character and attitudes of the defendant indicate that he is unlikely to commit another crime or offense
>
> . . . The defendant is particularly likely to respond affirmatively to probationary treatment . . . . (P-1; sentence worksheet) (emphasis added).

The Division also relies on arrest reports prepared by the Atlantic City Police Department, which contain the following statement by the arresting officer:

> . . . both victims [Marie Jasmine and Rene Louis] were in a fight with the accused. [Marie Jasmine] was struck in the face with a fist and [Rene Louis] was stabbed several times in the back and head . . . while the victims and the accused were at the above location [Rene Louis and Marie Jasmine] a domestic dispute ensued victim number 2 [Rene Louis] then get up and told the accused to leave his house. The accused refused and victim number 2 then shoved the accused. Victim number 1 [Marie Jasmine] then attempted to break up the fight and the accused punched her in the face causing two cuts on her face, further one of her teeth were knocked out. Victim number 2 [Louis] then tried to defend his girlfriend and the accused then pulled a knife with two blades and stabbed him repeatedly in the back and head. Both victims were transported to A.C.M.C. were victim number 1 was treated and released while number 2 was admitted for the stab wounds. The weapon was recovered at the scene, further the accused was arrested at the scene also. (P-3) (emphasis added).

Guy Thomas does not dispute that he pled guilty to aggravated assault, but offers the following account of the incident, which is somewhat at odds with the above police report. According to Thomas, the problem started when Rene Louis, who did not have an automobile, asked Thomas, who was a friend of the family, to take his wife to the hospital, which he did. Thomas stated that the wife, Marie Jasmine, always told him of the problems with Louis and also of her boyfriend in New York City, who had bought her a car. Thomas suspects that Ms. Jasmine became concerned that he would tell Louis of her boyfriend in New York. Louis, in turn, accused Thomas of asking Marie Jasmine to a restaurant and called Thomas at home to come over to discuss it. When Thomas arrived Louis was questioning Marie, and then he hit Thomas and grabbed his shirt. Thomas claims that he asked to go, that Rene slapped him three times, Said he would kill him and produced a knife. Thomas (in self-defense) then pulled the knife from Louis and stabbed and cut him several times. Marie Jasmine then grabbed a turkey knife and the applicant stated that "all hell was breaking loose". Rene Louis called the police who shortly arrived and quelled the disturbance. Thomas states that Rene Louis' sister-in-law was also present in the house and could testify that Louis started the fight, but she was reluctant to testify and as a result Thomas "has nobody to say nothing for him or to take his side". He was represented by a lawyer in the criminal proceeding, but pled guilty because he did, in fact, fight with Rene Louis, although only in self-defense, after having his life threatened. Thomas stated that he did not expect a fight from Rene Louis when he arrived at the house, that Louis shook his hand and said that he had been mad at work. Thomas intended to tell Louis in front of Marie Jasmine and get her to deny that he asked her to a restaurant and thereby smooth things over with Louis. When Rene Louis grabbed his shirt and tried to hold him, Thomas claims that he tried to run but, that when Louis slapped his face several times, Thomas took Louis' knife and first cut him on the hands and then saw Marie Jasmine go to get Louis the second knife, a turkey carving knife. When asked why he pled guilty to aggravated assault in light of his claim of self defense, Thomas, who is Haitian and has only a limited command of the English language, stated that his lawyer advised him to plead guilty under the circumstances. Thomas stated that he was "confused as to the process". In response to the investigative report statement that he repeatedly stabbed Louis in the back and head, he stated that he didn't know how manys time he stabbed Mr. Louis, but that the other woman present (Marie Jasmine and Louis' sister-in-law) came at him and threw objects, and also went to get Louis another knife, after Thomas had taken the first from him.

Thomas, who was 25 at the time of the assault, had no prior or subsequent criminal record beyond his conviction for aggravated assault. He has paid $800 of the soom $2300 in restitution, consisting mostly of hospital bills, incurred by Louis as a result of the stabbing. Thomas states that he doesn't use alcohol or drugs and "doesn't feel like hurting somebody". While incarcerated, he states that he took a mechanics course, and attended church, as well as AA meetings (not because of alcoholism, but just to listen). In the community, he has helped build his brother-in-law's house.

He has worked at Trump Castle for two years, shampooing rugs, waxing and buffing floors and the like, and the manager of environmental services at Trump Castle, Michael March, states that he is a good worker and an asset to the department. (R-1).

In his application for employment at the Castle, he disclosed that he had been convicted of the offense of "fighting", but did not mention aggravated assault, or the charge of possession of an unlawful weapon. He claims that he put in the word "fighting" because he didn't know how to write anything else. He was born in Haiti, has lived in the United States for six and one-half years, and has learned English here, but doesn't write English well. He was assisted at the hearing by a James Williams, a Trump supervisor. Mr. Williams testified that, although Thomas' English was "bad," he is "always working" and has had no problems on the job.

As to his application for a casino license, Thomas states that he wants to "be something" and hopes to get a non-gaming license to clean on the casino floor. He states that after the altercation with Rene Louis and Marie Jasmine, who were once friends of his, he "only works and eats" and "has no more friends". But he does like the casino industry and wants to stay in it.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

As to disqualification, the Division argues and the respondent/applicant does not dispute that he pled guilty to the enumerated disqualifying offense of aggravated assault in August of 1986 and I CONCLUDE that he is disqualified on that basis pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1).

Once disqualified, the respondent/applicant has the burden of affirmatively showing rehabilitation under N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(d), as to the registration:

> [i]n determining whether the registrant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the Commissioner shall consider the following factor:
>
> (1) The nature and duties of the registrant's position;
>
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
>
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
>
> (4) The date of the offense or conduct;
>
> (5) The age of the registrant when the offense or conduct was committed;
>
> (6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
>
> (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

> (8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, or counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendations of persons who have or have had the registrant under their supervision . . . . N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(d) (emphasis added).

The factors of rehabilitation also bear on applicants for casino employee licenses who are disqualified, as set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90 which closely parallels the rehabilitation factors of 91h. The question of rehabilitation is thus relevant both to the issue of disqualification and that of good character, honesty and integrity, the latter of which the applicant must establish by clear and convincing evidence. See, Dunston v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, App. Div. decided April 10, 1990, A-197-89T3.

In applying the factors of rehabilitation both to Mr. Thomas' registration and application for casino employee license, I note that the duties of the position held under the registration and the one sought by the application are both essentially cleaning (or environmental services) and are of a non-gaming nature, involving no contact with patrons. (Factor 1). The offense of aggravated assault to which Thomas pled guilty, is a serious and enumerated disqualifier under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c1 and involved serious bodily injury, at least as to Rene Louis, in the form of multiple stab wounds. (Factor 2). The circumstances under which the offense occurred, are, however, somewhat mitigating and I FIND credible the applicant/respondent's claim that he did not start the fight with Rene Louis and also feared for his life. Although the dispute between Thomas and Louis was not the result of a domestic dispute between Louis and Marie Jasmine, it is evident that the applicant/respondent became embroiled in the couple's affairs, and was suspected of pursuing Ms. Jasmine, which he emphatically denies. Although I agree with the sentencing judge that Mr. Thomas' claim did not establish the defense of self-defense in the criminal context, I found Thomas' testimony believable as to his intent to defend himself from Rene Louis' jealous rage. Thomas was also justifiably concerned for his safety by virtue of the fact that Marie Jasmine went to get a carving knife, after Thomas removed the first knife from Louis' hand, and put it to violent use, on Louis. The circumstances, though serious, are mitigated to the extent that Thomas became embroiled in a situation exacerbated by explosive emotions of jealous and feelings of suspicion, and had some reasonable basis to fear for his life. (Factor 3). Thomas, who was 25 years of age at the time of the 1986 offense, had no previous or subsequent criminal record, and his conduct was an isolated and not repeated incident. (Factors 4 through 6). He cites no social conditions contributing to the offense and the record reflects none. (Factor 7). As to evidence of rehabilitation, he claims good conduct in prison, as well as successful compliance with probation, and continued good conduct on the job. He presents recommendations of supervisors who attest to his good work record in the casino industry, within which Mr. Thomas seeks to stay and progress (Factor 8).

Considering all of the above factors, I CONCLUDE that Guy Thomas has shown rehabilitation under N.J.S.A. 5:12-91d from the otherwise disqualifying offense of aggravated assault. I further CONCLUDE that has established his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), 90b, considering all the circumstances of this offense, the absence of any other criminal record, his good work record in the casino industry and all are true factors of rehabilitation under 90h. As the sentencing judge noted, the circumstances that led to the aggravated assault are not likely, to recur and Mr. Thomas does not appear to me to present any danger to casino patrons or hotel guests. I recommend that he be allowed to retain his registration and that he be granted a casino employee license. See, Dunston.

DISPOSITION

On the basis of the above findings of fact and conclusions of law it is ORDERED that the Division's complaint seeking to revoke Guy Thomas' casino hotel employee registration is DISMISSED and that his application for casino employee license is GRANTED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

OAL DOCKET NO. CCC 09487-89
ORDER NO. 90-37-14

APPLICATION OF NORMAN J. THOMPSON
FOR A CASINO EMPLOYEE LICENSE

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of September 19, 1990,

IT IS on this 20th day of September 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

1. The ALJ's finding that the applicant's conviction for malicious shooting into an occupied dwelling is equivalent to the disqualifying offense of burglary, second degree pursuant to section 86(c)(1) of the Casino Control Act is rejected. An essential element of burglary is the illegal entry. This element is notably absent from a conviction for malicious shooting. The basis for disqualification of the applicant under section 86(c)(1) is his 1984 conviction for breaking and entering while armed which is analogous to burglary, second degree;

2. Rehabilitation of an applicant for a casino employee license is governed by section 90(h) of the Casino Control Act, not 91(d) as suggested by the ALJ; and

3. The ALJ's recommended disposition that the applicant be permitted to retain his casino hotel employee registration and his casino employee license is rejected as incorrect. This is an application case, not a revocation proceeding. The Division has not initiated a proceeding seeking the revocation of Mr. Thompson's casino hotel employee registration and therefore no issue concerning that credential is before the Commission. The correct disposition of this case is to grant the application of Norman J. Thompson for a casino employee license.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the application is granted substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference.

NORMAN THOMPSON,
Petitioner,

vs.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY,
DEPARTMENT OF LAW & PUBLIC SAFETY,
DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT,

NORMAN THOMPSON, petitioner, pro se

MITCHELL A. SCHWEFEL, Assistant Attorney General for respondent (Robert J. DelTufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: JUNE 22, 1990 Decided: JULY 17, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

OAL DKT. NO. CCC-09487-89

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a letter with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) objecting to the issuance of a license to the petitioner, Norman Thompson. The Division alleges, among other things, that petitioner while residing in the State of Virginia committed an offense equivalent to that of N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2 (burglary) which constitutes a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). The Division further alleges that as a result of said offense, petitioner lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(1).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its letter of objection with the Commission on October 25, 1989. Petitioner requested a hearing on December 4, 1989 and on December 6, 1989 the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on March 26, 1990 by Jeff S. Masin, ALJ followed by a hearing which was held on June 14, 1990. The record was closed on June 22, 1990.

ISSUES

A. Did Mr. Thompson engage in conduct in the State of Virginia which resulted in a conviction for a crime comparable to the New Jersey crime of burglary, N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2 a crime of the second degree: If he was convicted of this offense, does this automatically disqualify him from licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1)?

B. If Mr. Thompson would be automatically disqualified, does the evidence presented by him establish that he has rehabilitated himself from the prior conduct so as to be permitted to obtain a license, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h)?

C. Does Mr. Thompson possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:89-b(1)?

UNCONTESTED FACTS

Based upon testimony and documents proffered at the hearing the following facts are neither contested nor in dispute. Therefore, these uncontested facts are hereby adopted as FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

Petitioner is a 30 year old male, married with two children. He is currently employed in the casino industry. At the hearing, petitioner freely stipulated and agreed that he had committed the offenses listed in his criminal history record. Agent Bruce Cooke noted that when he reviewed the petitioner's Personal History Disclosure Form petitioner had answered "yes" to question number 16. Question number 16 of the Personal History Disclosure Form asks whether the applicant has ever been arrested. To this question, petitioner answered in the affirmative. Petitioner did not, however, complete the portion of the form which requests that the crime or offense be described. Agent Cooke testified that petitioner was most cooperative with him in describing the nature of the offense including his period of incarceration. When questioned by Agent Cooke as to why the description of the crime had not been completed, petitioner answered that he did not believe that it was necessry to fully describe the offense since it had occurred over five years ago.

On December 7, 1983 petitioner was found guilty in the Juvenile & Domestic Relations Court of Pittsylvania County, Virginia. He received a 90 day jail sentence of which 60 days was suspended. This incident was a result of a domestic dispute between petitioner and his wife. On July 20, 1984 petitioner was found guilty in the Circuit Court of Pittsylvania County, Virginia of breaking and entering while armed with a deadly weapon with the intent to commit assault on which charge the imposition of sentence was withheld for 20 years from the date of the sentence on the conditon of Mr. Thompson's peace and behaviour during that period of time. Also on July 20, 1984 Mr. Thompson was found guilty of malicious shooting into an occupied dwelling and was sentenced to seven years to be served in the Virginia State Penitentiary. It is this charge of malicious shooting into an occupied dwelling that the State now contends is analogous to the crime of burglary set forth in the New Jersey State Criminal Code, N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2.

The incident, which petitioner indicated he would regret for the rest of his life, began on the evening of November 22, 1983. At that time, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson had an argument which resulted in her leaving the house with their nine month old child to seek refuge at her parents' home. Petitioner then began drinking with some friends. The drinking episode, which was the catalyst for his subsequent behaviour, consisted of petitioner and his friends consuming "a case of beer, a bottle of liquor, some wine" and then indulging in "marijuana and cocaine". Some four hours later, he drove his vehicle to his in-laws' home where he requested to see his wife and child. When he was denied entrance, petitioner returned to his vehicle at which time he backed his vehicle up the street for some distance and proceeded to aim it at his in-laws' residence. With wheels spinning he then accelerated from between 30 to 50 miles per hour, driving at least half of the vehicle into the front living room of the one story dwelling. Then, without leaving his vehicle, he pulled an unlicensed 22 caliber automatic pistol from the glove compartment and began shooting randomly through the vehicle into the home. He estimates that he fired six shots in all. None of the residents of the dwelling were visible to petitioner during the shooting episode. Petitioner then remained in his vehicle until the police came, at which time he was taken away in an ambulance with minor injuries.

On July 20, 1984 petitioner was sentenced to serve seven years in the Virginia State Penitentiary for malicious shooting in an occupied dwelling in violation of Section 18.2-279 of the Code of Virginia. Petitioner served 18 months of the seven year sentence during which time he was never disciplined by prison authorities.

Although attending religious services on an infrequent basis prior to entering prison, petitioner's participation in religious services and counselling increased while in prison.

Within one month of his entry into the penal system he became an assistant to the Chaplan. He described these duties as assisting with the religious services several times per week including counselling his fellow inmates. He competed a "disciples" course and began ministering to his fellow prisoners on an ever increasing basis, especially after the Chaplan left.

Petitioner possessed a high school diploma at the time he entered prison and did not further his education because of a lack of courses within the facility. As a result of his good behavior while incarcerated petitioner qualified for an early release program and was released to his home town of Danville, Virginia at which time he was enrolled in a mandatory drug rehabilitation program. Petitioner attended every meeting and received an early release from this program.

While living in Danville, petitioner reconciled with his wife who had been visiting him regularly while he was in prison. Petitioner then moved to Atlanta, Georgia where he worked two jobs; that of a maintenance man in an apartment complex and in a part-time cleaning service. After six months, petitioner felt financially established and his wife and child joined him in Atlanta.

Shortly after moving to New Jersey, petitioner received his hotel registration #90825-40 in the position of public area porter. He was issued casino employee license #80107-22 on January 18, 1989. Petitioner described his work career with the casino as having started sweeping floors and working up to the point where he is now, entering data onto player's club cards at Showboat Hotel and Casino. He has been employed by Showboat since December 22, 1988. While working in the casino industry, petitioner attended Associated Business Careers for a degree in the field of computers. He intends to enroll in Stockton State College in the fall of 1990 to obtain a two year associates degree as a computer technician. He stated that he enjoys the work which he is currently doing with computers and hopes to pursue a career in the field of computer technology.

Since July 20, 1984 petitioner has not been arrested or convicted of any offense. He has no traffic offenses on record and has not received any notices of discipline from his employer, Showboat Hotel and Casino. Since their reconciliation and petitioner's release from prison petitioner has been happily married and now supports his wife and two children. Petitioner, prior to the November 22, 1983 incident, described himself as a recreational drug user. Since the November 22, 1983 incident he has abstained from the use of controlled dangerous substances.

DISCUSSIONS AND CONCLUSIONS

Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b(8) it is established that licensure under the Act is a revocable privilege which is "conditioned upon the proper and continued qualification of the individual licensee." Section 129(1) of the Act provides for the revocation of or other sanctions against the license held by a person "for the commission of any other offense or violation of this Act which would disqualify such person from holding his license."

The Division contends that petitioner's July 20, 1984 conviction for malicious shooting in an occupied dwelling is the equivalent of burglary under the New Jersey Criminal Code, N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2 and thus, a disqualifying offense pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1). Section 86c(1) of the Act sets forth the offenses under the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice which, if committed, constitutes per se disqualifying offenses, those involving burglary which constitutes a crime of the second degree under N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2.

> Burglary is defined in the New Jersey Criminal Code as:
> "A person is guilty of burglary if, with purpose to commit an offense therein he: (1) enters a structure or a separately secured or occupied portion thereof, unless the structure was at the time open to the public or the actor is licensed or privileged to enter; or (2) surreptitiously remains in a structure or a seperately secured or occupied portion thereof knowing that he is not licensed or privileged to do so.
> ...Burglary is a crime of the second degree if in the course of committing the offense, the actor: (1) purposely, knowingly or recklessly inflicts, attempts to inflict or threatens to inflict bodily injury on anyone; or (2) is armed with or displays what appears to be explosives or a deadly weapon..." N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2.

The applicable Virginia State Code sections to which petitioner was found guilty on July 20, 1984 state:

> Section 18.2-92 - Breaking and entering dwelling house with intent to commit assault or other misdemeanor.
> "If any person break and enter a dwelling house while said dwelling is occupied either in the day or nighttime with the intent to commit assault or any other misdemeanor except trespass, he shall be guilty of a class six felony provided, however, that if such person was armed with a deadly weapon at the time of such injury he shall be guilty of a class two felony."

Section 18.2-279 - Discharging firearms or missles within or at occupied buildings.

"If any person maliciously discharges a firearm within any building when occupied by one or more persons in such a manner as to endanger the life or lives of such person or persons or maliciously shoot at or maliciously throw any missle at or against any dwelling house or other building when occupied by one or more persons may be put in peril, the person so offending shall be guilty of a class four felony".

I CONCLUDE that the facts as set forth above if committed in the State of New Jersey would constitute the crime of burglary, N.J.S.A. 2C:18-2. I FURTHER CONCLUDE that the offense to which petitioner was found guilty on July 20, 1984, the crime of malicious shooting in an occupied dwelling, Section 18.2-279 of the Code of Virginia is analagous to the crime of burglary and thus a statutory disqualifier pursuant to 86c(1) of the Act.

An individual faced with the existence of a section 86c(1) statutory disqualifer may, nevertheless, overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating his rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. This can be accomplished utilizing the elements set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(d). The specific eight factors in 91(d) of the Act are:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense;
3. The circumstances under which the offense occurred;

4. The date of the offense;
5. The age of the applicant (licensee) when the offense was committed;
6. Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work release program or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant (licensee) under their supervision.

Considering petitioner's claim of rehabilitation I FIND that petitioner has demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence his rehabilitation for the reasons set forth below:

During the entire course of the hearing I found petitioner to be polite and respectful, not only of this tribunal but also of the Assistant Attorney General assigned to handle the matter. It was very apparent during petitioner's testimony that he is greatly embarrased and remorseful for his conduct. While describing the November 22, 1983 incident, it was necessary to adjourn the proceedings because petitioner began to sob uncontrollably. At the time of the incident petitioner was 21 years old and except for the assault charge to which he was found guilty on December 7, 1983 he had never been in trouble with the law. He attributes the incident to "craziness, jealousy and stupidity" and he is very much aware of the part that drugs and alcohol played in the entire incident. I do not by any means downplay the seriousness of the offense by emphasizing the extent to which petitioner shows remorse and regret. Certainly, the entire incident as bad as it may be could have been even worse had an occupant of the dwelling been in the living room at the time of the crash or nearby when petitioner randomly emptied shots into the home. I believe that petitioner's conduct during the hearing demonstrated that he was very much aware of the seriousness of the offense and as he put it "only wishes that it had never happened".

Nevertheless, since that point petitioner has demonstrated not only to his wife and children, but also to his employer and society that he can be trusted. He began by becoming a model prisoner, qualifying for the early release program and then being released early from a drug rehabilitation program. Since then he has always held a job even when going to school in the evening. He has in his own words "worked his way up from sweeping floors in the casino to entering data on the player's club cards", a position he thoroughly enjoys. He now plans to increase his knowledge of computers by attending Stockton State College in the fall of 1990.

Taking into account petitioner's age at the time of the incident (21) and considering that seven years have elapsed in which time petitioner has remained law abiding without so much as a speeding ticket, I FIND that petitioner has met his burden of proving rehabilitation by clear and convincing evidence. Additionally, considering the factors set forth above I ALSO CONCLUDE that petitioner has met his burden to prove by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity necessary for licensure pursuant to sections 90(b) and 89b(1) of the Act.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner shall be permitted to retain his casino registration #90825-40 and his casino license #80107-22.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the New Jersey Casino Control Commission; and exceptions and a reply to exceptions having been filed; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of September 12, 1990,

IT IS on this 21st day of September 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision of the Office of Administrative Law is modified as follows:

(1) The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) incorrectly stated that an individual cannot affirmatively demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to sections 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act in order to overcome the disqualifying offense of inimicality.

First, "inimicality" is not an offense. In In re Resorts Casino Application

10 N.J.A.R. 244, 254 (1979) the Commission explained the "inimical" offenses are "those offenses which, when viewed in the light of all circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or ... gaming operations."

Second, the ALJ's statement that an individual cannot affirmatively demonstrate rehabilitation from an inimical offense is confusing. The salient point is that the Commission considers rehabilitation factors before concluding that an offense is or is not inimical under section 86 (c)(2). Because the rehabilitation provisions of section 90(h) are subsumed within the inimical analysis, it should never be necessary to determine the merits of a claim of rehabilitation after concluding that a given offense is inimical. See, Davis v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301, 314 (1985).

(2) The ALJ incorrectly indicated on page 9 of the initial decision that the respondent was "convicted" of possession of marijuana in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a(4). Because the respondent was admitted into a conditional discharge program, a judgment of conviction was not entered in his case. N.J.S.A. 2C:36A-1.

(3) The ALJ's conclusion on page 14 that the respondent's offense of possession of marijuana "constitutes a serious offense when considered that it occurred within the confines of the TropWorld dealers' lounge" is consistent with the Commission's prior determinations with respect to such offenses. Therefore, the Commission rejects the ALJ's finding at pages 10-11 of the initial decision that his offense was not serious.

(4) The ALJ incorrectly finds that the respondent's conviction must be considered an isolated incident because he had never been arrested or charged with any other offense prior to his March 16, 1989, arrest. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h) requires the Commission to consider whether "the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident." While it is true that this was the respondent's only arrest, the respondent's admission that he had smoked marijuana approximately once an month in the dealers' lounge makes his conduct "repeated" within the meaning of section 90(h).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Commission's order no. 89-20-22-A dated May 19, 1989, suspending the respondent's casino employee license is vacated; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the complaint is dismissed substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference.

Record Closed: JUNE 28, 1990 Decided: JULY 19, 1990

OAL DKT. NO. CCC-9490-89

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) requesting the revocation of the casino employee license #65505-21 issued to respondent. The Division alleges, among other things, that respondent committed acts which are inimical to the interest of the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry of the State of New Jersey and that respondent lacks the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its complaint with the Commission on May 2, 1989. Respondent requested a hearing on May 17, 1989 and on December 6, 1989 the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on April 23, 1990 by Jeff S. Masin, ALJ followed by a hearing which was held on June 28, 1990. The record was closed on June 28, 1990.

ISSUES

A. Has Mr. Tomlinson engaged in conduct which indicates that his continued licensure would be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and casino operations in the State of New Jersey, N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2)?

B. Does the respondent have the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure, as required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2)?

UNCONTESTED FACTS

Based upon testimony and documents proffered at the hearing, the following facts are neither contested nor in dispute. Therefore, these uncontested facts are hereby adopted as FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter.

Respondent is a 24 year old single male who, prior to the incident in question, worked at TropWorld for the previous three years as a craps dealer. Respondent's problem with his casino license began on March 16, 1989 when he was arrested and charged with possession of CDS (marijuana) N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10(a)1. Thereafter, he was fired from his job and his license was suspended.

The facts adduced during the hearing on June 28, 1990 stand uncontested largely due to the respondent's cooperation and candid testimony. This testimony is accordingly adopted as FINDINGS OF FACT. Respondent, Michael P. Tomlinson now 24 years old began his casino career when he was 19 by attending Casino Schools Incorporated of Atlantic City for four months. There, he learned what was characterized by the State and himself as the most difficult and fast moving casino game, that of dealing craps. In October of 1985 respondent applied for his number two casino license which he received in May of 1986. Respondent's career began at Caesars where he was employed as a change person for approximately two weeks at which time he secured employment as a craps dealer at TropWorld where he remained until March 16, 1989 the date of his arrest. During these three years, respondent received employment evaluations approximately every six months and was never the subject of a reprimand by his employer.

On March 16, 1989 respondent was working the 10:00 A.M. to 6:00 P.M. shift. The dealers would receive a break for 20 minutes every hour at which time respondent would either go to the cafeteria or to the dealer's lounge. On March 16, 1989 respondent, while in the dealer's lounge locker room area joined approximately seven other individuals who were passing around a marijuana cigarette. Det. J. Griffin observed the respondent and proceeded towards him. Respondent's fellow employees and supervisors, who were sharing the marijuana with him, immediately scattered leaving respondent who was holding the marijuana cigarette to greet Det. Griffin. He was immediately placed under arrest and began to cooperate with Det. Griffin by providing the names of individuals who had been sharing the marijuana cigarette. In response to a request by Det. Griffin, respondent consented to a search of his locker. This subsequently produced a small bag of marijuana which had been placed by respondent into his jacket earlier in the day. The purchase of this marijuana had occurred the same day within the confines of the dealer's lounge. Respondent also voluntarily provided Det. Griffin with the name of the individual from whom he had purchased the marijuana.

As a result of the above incident, respondent was charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance, N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10(a)1 and was ordered to appear in the Atlantic City Municipal Court. Since the marijuana in respondent's possession at the time of the arrest was less than 50 grams respondent qualified to enter into a conditional discharge program as authorized by N.J.S.A. 24:21-27. Respondent supplied the requisite amount of urinalysis which proved to be drug free, paid the penalties ordered and thus, having successfully complied with the terms of the conditional discharge program, the charges were dismissed on December 14, 1989.

Respondent testified that he has not smoked marijuana since the March 16, 1989 incident. In suppport of this proposition he stated that on his own volition, he submitted to a drug test on June 8, 1989 at May Malloy Memorial Lab. This resulted in a negative finding for marijuana as well as any other controlled dangerous substance.

When asked why respondent would smoke marijuana in the dealer's lounge, he stated that the usage of marijuana was not considered socially unacceptable. There was no stigma attached to its use and those who smoked marijuana in the dealer's lounge were not ostracized by their fellow employees nor were they reprimanded by their supervisors. One of respondent's supervisors was amongst the seven or so individuals sharing the marijuana cigarette at the time of his arrest. Respondent candidly admitted that he had smoked marijuana in the dealer's lounge on other occasions. Upon questioning by the State, respondent volunteered that he had previously smoked marijuana in the dealer's lounge approximately once a month during the time he was employed by TropWorld.

The State offered no evidence to draw into question or rebut the good character evidence submitted by the respondent. The evidence demonstrates that respondent grew up in a loving, supportive family with his parents emphasizing a good work ethic to their children. This is apparent since from the time respondent was ten years old he worked every summer in and about Wildwood, New Jersey. After losing employment on March 16, 1989, respondent moved to Cherry Hill to seek permanent employment. He was only able to find part-time work as a bus boy/waiter and bartender. He is currently working at Johnson's Restaurant in Wildwood, New Jersey where he began at the age of ten as a dishwasher. Respondent emphasized the importance of the casino industry to his career since it provides him with steady employment at a salary range which is particularly advantageous to one with only a high school education.

In support of respondent's good character, honesty and integrity he presented two witnesses and five letters.

Mr. Frances Tomlinson, father of the respondent and Assistant Chief Investigator for the New Jersey State Office of the Public Defender, testified that he was shocked to learn of the marijuana incident. He testified that through his employment he is familiar with drug usage and saw no evidence of any previous drug usage by his son whom he believes has learned his lesson.

Mrs. Anna M. Vinci testified that she has known the respondent since his birth and that he was an integral part of their family spending many holidays and vacations with the Vincis'. She described respondent as very industrious and respectful from the time he was a child. She never heard any disparaging rumors about the respondent and trusted him and his family with a key to her house. She believes strongly that respondent has learned his lesson and that he is very remorseful for the shame and economic upheavel it has brought to him and his family. She believes he has gone through much emotional turmoil and has learned his lesson.

The letters presented on behalf of the respondent consists of evidence which is for the most part, cumulative of the testimony set forth above. A common thread that weaves throughout these letters is that their authors have known the respondent since his birth and have always found him to be respectful and hardworking. They uniformly indicate that they were shocked to learn of the marijuana incident, however, they have personally observed the respondent's sense of remorse and all share a belief that the conduct will not be repeated.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The two issues presented herein are whether continuing licensure of the respondent would be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry in general pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) and whether the respondent possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required of a license holder under N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2). It is unnecessary to reach the second issue of the respondent's good character, honesty and integrity if it is first determined that respondent's continuing licensure would be inimical to the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry. Thus, the inimical analysis must be considered first.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) states:

> "Any other offense under present New Jersey or federal law which indicates that licensure of the applicant would be inimical to the policy of ths act and to casino operations; provided, however, that the automatic disqualification provisions of this subsection shall not apply with regard to any conviction which did not occur within the 10 year period immediately preceding application for licensure and which the applicant demonstrates by clear and convincing evidence does not justify automatic disqualification pursuant to this subsection and any conviction which has been the subject of a judicial order of expungement or sealing."

Whether an individual's conduct rises to the level of inimicality to the Act and legalized gaming depends upon the circumstances of each case. The factors to be weighed and considered are the nature of the offense, the circumstances surrounding the offense including mitigating and aggravating factors, the amount of time that has passed from the offense to the date of the hearing. See Davis vs. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 at 313. Included in this analysis are the eight factors set forth in section 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act. It must be emphasized that an individual cannot affirmatively demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act in order to overcome the disqualifying offense of inimicality set forth in section 86c(2). Nevertheless, the enumerated rehabilitation factors set forth in sections 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act can be utilized in the inimical analysis in order to determine whether an individual must be disqualified from participation in the gaming industry. Applying these factors to the facts of the instant matter I FIND as follows:

1. Nature of the offense.

Respondent was convicted of possession of a controlled dangerous substance, N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a4. He received a conditional discharge since the amount of marijuana was less than 50 grams. See N.J.S.A. 24:21-27. The latter statute evidences an intent on the part of the legislature to lessen and/or decriminalize the act of possession of marijuana under 50 grams. An individual qualifies for the conditional discharge program if the amount of the controlled dangerous substance (marijauna) found on the accused is less than 50 grams and if the accused has not already received the benefits of the conditional discharge program. In effect, the legislature has provided the accused with one free bite at the apple since the right to enter into the conditional discharge program is a one time privilege.

> "Without limiting the notion of what is 'inimical' to the Act or gaming, it would appear to encompass those offenses which, when viewed in light of all the circumstances, indicate that participation by that person either would justifiably undermine public confidence in the integrity of the regulatory process and of gaming operations or would create or enhance the dangers of unsuitable, unfair or illegal practices, methods and activities in the conduct of gaming or the carrying on of the business or financial arrangements incidental to gaming

Assume for the sake of argument that respondent had committed the same act off the premises of his employer, TropWorld. In such an event, respondent's actions would not be considered inimical to the Act or to the gaming industry. Inimicality comes into play because respondent committed the violation while a representative of TropWorld in particular and the gaming industry in general. The offense, however, did not occur in clear view of the public. This is not to downplay in any way the intoxicating effects smoking marijuana on break may have had on respondent's performance back at the craps table. There was no evidence presented by the State to indicate that respondent was impaired while performing his job or while visible to the public. The disturbing factor which must be considered is respondent's candid admission that he had engaged in the same conduct in the dealer's lounge on other occasions. Such conduct is reprehensible not only because of the obvious illegal nature of it, but also because of the potential effects being under the influence while conducting a craps game could have upon the gaming industry.

Nevertheless, as set forth in Davis supra, each decision must rise or fall based upon the particular circumstances surrounding the offense. In this instance, a mitigating factor is that the legislature through the enactment of the conditional discharge statute, N.J.S.A. 24:21-27 has given an individual one break, one chance not to have a criminal record. When balanced against the circumstances surrounding the offense and subject conduct of the respondent as more fully set forth below, I FIND that the offense committed by respondent on March 16, 1989 is not serious and is not of such a nature that if respondent was permitted to retain his license, public confidence in the gaming industry would be lessened or destroyed.

2. Circumstances of the offense.

Respondent testified that at least six to ten individuals were smoking the marijuana cigarette with him at the time of his arrest. Some of these individuals included his supervisors. Respondent also testified that smoking marijuana in the dealer's lounge occurred on a daily basis and was considered socially acceptable. Essentially respondent offered the thundering herd defense. That is, if everybody is doing it it must be right. Although respondent's contention must be rejected as a defense, the circumstances giving rise to his action deserve comment and consideration. Respondent was 22 years old on March 16, 1989 and had observed smoking of marijuana in the dealer's lounge for some three years previous. Although respondent knew it was illegal, he must have considered that it was condoned since participants consisted of employees of a greater age than respondent including, and most importantly, his supervisors. The ease in which drugs could be obtained and used in such an environment mitigates slightly in respondent's favor in that he committed an act, albeit illegal, but one which was apparently condoned and considered socially acceptable by respondent's supervisors.

3. Date of the offense and age of the respondent.

Respondent had worked in the casino industry for three years prior to March 16, 1989. He commenced employment when he was 19 years old and was 24 years old at the time the offense occurred. Respondent attributed his marijuana smoking to his "youth" and feels that both time and the incident have provided him with a sense of maturity. It has been approximately 15 months from the date of the offense during which time it was unrefuted that respondent had not smoked marijuana, had successfully completed a conditional discharge program and submitted a lab report indicating negative drug use as recently as June 8, 1990.

6. Whether the offense was an isolated or repeated incident.

By respondent's own candid admission he had smoked marijuana approximately once a month in the dealer's lounge during the time he was employed at TropWorld. Although I commend respondent for his candor, I cannot condone his continuing drug use, albeit infrequent, prior to the March 16, 1989 incident. In respondent's favor, I FIND that he has never been arrested or charged with any other offense prior to or after the March 16, 1989 incident. Accordingly, for the purposes of a criminal arrest or conviction history, I FIND that the incident must be considered an isolated incident.

7. Social conditions attributing to the offense.

Throughout the course of the hearing, respondent demonstrated, and the State did not refute, the fact that respondent was raised in a loving family environment that instilled in him a sense of fairness and hard work. Respondent has worked every summer since he was ten years old and has remained employed to the present. He expressed a sense of regret for the effects the March 16, 1989 incident has had on him and his family.

The evidence as to respondent's good character, honesty and integrity stood unrefuted. The common theme that appears in the testimony of the witnesses and the letters of recommendation presented on behalf of the respondent is that they have all known him since birth, have found him to be respectable and hard working and still hold these opinions even though they have been apprised of his arrest for possession of CDS.

The inquiry is whether any social conditions contributed to the offense. Section 90(h) or 91(d) does not contain the definition of "social conditions". Nevertheless, I believe it is reasonable to assume that the proper inquiry is whether the environment both in and out of the family contributed to the offense in question. As more fully set forth in Paragraph 2 above, the environment in the dealer's lounge could have very easily adversely affected the respondent. There, he was exposed to peers and authority figures engaging in illegal, albeit within that context, socially acceptable behavior. Once again, respondent's thundering herd defense should not be accepted, however, the environment in which he was exposed should be considered as a mitigating factor to lessen the severity of the conduct.

8. Evidence of rehabilitation.

Subsection 8 of 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act sets forth a broad list of elements which are to be considered as mitigating factors when evaluating whether an individual has been rehabilitated. Within the context of the inimical analysis, however, these enumerated factors are utilized not to determine rehabilitation but instead to evaluate whether the offense itself or the respondent's continuing licensure would rise to the level of inimicality.

Mitigating in respondent's favor is the fact that he successfully completed the conditional discharge program as of December 14, 1989, has not smoked marijuana since the March 16, 1989 incident and submitted recent proof of his abstinence from drugs in the form of a voluntary drug screen performed on June 8, 1990.

During the entire hearing conducted on June 28, 1990 the respondent presented all of the above evidence in a respectful and credible manner. As indicated in paragraph Uncontested Facts above, the evidence set forth herein stood unrefuted by the State.

CONCLUSION

The crime to which respondent pled guilty, N.J.S.A. 2C:35-10a4, possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) constitutes a serious offense when considered that it occured within the confines of the TropWorld dealer's lounge. This, however, is the only aggravating factor set forth in the above analysis. Mitigating greatly in favor of the respondent are the circumstances under which the offense occurred, the age of the respondent, respondent's good record and conduct both before and after the offense and the persuasive testimony and evidence tending to show respondent's good character, honesty and integrity. The respondent's conduct since the event including his sincere sense of remorse make it unlikely that the offense will be repeated.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that respondent's continuing licensure is not inimical to the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry.

Section 5:12-89b(2) of the Act requires that whenever the Division of Gaming Enforcement raises as an issue the good character, honesty and integrity of the respondent, it is then respondent's burden to show by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure under the Act. In accordance with the strict regulatory provisions intended by the legislature it is imperative that the character and background of the licensee be closely scrutinized and evaluated as to fitness for licensure. Clear and convincing falls between the usual civil standard of preponderance of the evidence and the criminal standard of beyond a reasonable doubt. Here the trier of fact should have a firm belief that the facts presented by respondent are true. The standard requires more than the mere balancing of probabilities but less than absolute certainty. A reasonable certainty is required. Lepre vs. Caputo, 131 N.J. Super. 118(Law Div.1974)

Respondent produced two witnesses and five letters from friends which stood unrefuted by the State. As more fully set forth in Uncontested Facts above, these letters testify to respondent's good character, honesty and integrity despite his March 16, 1989 conviction. Perhaps the most revealing testimony is that of Mrs. Vinci who indicated that she had and would trust respondent and other members of this family with the key to her home. Respondent's honesty and integrity was demonstrated by his willingness to provide Det. Griffin with the names of the individuals involved in the incident on March 16, 1989. His honesty was demonstrated, almost to his detriment, by revealing that he had smoked marijuana in the dealer's lounge on other occasions. His good character is demonstrated by his successful completion of the conditional discharge program together with his voluntary willingness to submit to a drug screen on June 8, 1990.

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that respondent does possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required for licensure under Section 89b(2) of the Act.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that respondent, MICHAEL P. TOMLINSON, shall be permitted to retain his casino employee license number 65505-21.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

Record Closed: July 9, 1990 Decided: July 19, 1990

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

1. On June 3, 1988, the Division filed a six count complaint with the Casino Control Commission (hereinafter "the Commission") against Trump Plaza. The Division's complaint charged Trump Plaza with violations of the Casino Control Act, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. (hereinafter "the Act"), and Commission regulations promulgated thereunder, arising out of circumstances involving the extension of a $500,000 casino credit line to patron Richard Hartman on August 28, 1987, the extension of $500,000 increase to Mr. Hartman's credit line on September 3,1 987, and the processing and recording of credit-related transactions involving an $817,000 certified check and a $183,000 customer's check negotiated by Mr. Hartman at Trump Plaza on September 21, 1987.

2. A plenary hearing regarding the issues raised in the Division's complaint was conducted before the undersigned and was heard on July 31, August 1, 2, 3,4 and September 21, 1989. The record remained open in order to give the parties an opportunity to submit post hearing briefs.

3. During the course of the plenary hearing, the Division moved to amend its complaint and the Prehearing Order to conform the issues to the proofs established at the hearing. More specifically, the Division raised four (4) additional issues designated as Counts VII through X, described as follows:

> Count VII - Whether, N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(d) was violated on September 3, 1987 when Credit Executive John Goff obtained credit verification information from Harrah's Marina regarding Richard Hartman's casino credit limit and outstanding balance at Harrah's Marina in that said information was not recorded in Mr. Hartman's credit file and accompanied by the signature of Mr. Goff along with the date and time.
>
> Count VIII - Whether N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(d) was violated in that "+Sands 400,000" was recorded in conjunction with a September 3, 1987 entry in the credit file of Richard Hartman without the signature of the credit department representative who made the notation or the date or time of the signature and without any indication as to the method by which the information was obtained.
>
> Count IX - Whether the contemporaneous request and approval for Richard Hartman's casino credit limit increase on September 3, 1987 violates the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(g)1i.
>
> Count X - Whether N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)5ii (patron's type of business), N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)5iii (patron's position), N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)6 (patron's banking information), N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)9 (patron's approximate amount of all other outstanding indebtedness), and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)10 (the amount and source of the patron's income and assets) were violated on the basis that Credit Executive John Goff recorded said information on Richard Hartman's credit application card from information not provided by the patron.

4. On August 4, 1989, the undersigned granted the Division's motion to amend.

5. On August 4, 1989, the undersigned also considered a motion made by respondent to dismiss the charges alleged in the Division's complaint. On that date, the ALJ granted respondent's motion to dismiss the allegation that Trump Plaza violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26(f) in connection with the processing of the $183,000 customer check negotiated by Mr. Hartman as part of a counter check redemption transaction that occurred on September 21. 1987. Based upon the testimony of Joanne Lohin, Casino Cage Shift Supervisor, the Division consented to the dismissal of said allegation.

6. Subsequent to the conclusion of the plenary hearing, the parties have engaged in further settlement negotiations and, as a result thereof, have agreed to resolve all the issues by way of the instant Settlement Agreement. Said Settlement Agreement was received on July 9, 1990, which constitutes the record closed date.

7. For purposes of this Settlement Agreement, the parties agree that the factual record consists of the following: (1) A Partial Stipulation of Facts executed by the parties at the commencement of the plenary hearing (Exhibit J-1), as modified in part based on the testimonial and documentary evidence presented at the hearing; (2) The testimony of all witnesses presented at the plenary hearing; and (3) The documents admitted into evidence at the plenary hearing.

SETTLEMENT TERMS

WHEREAS, with respect to Count I of Division Complaint No. 88-384, respondent admits the following violations with respect to its August 28, 1987, decision to approve a $500,000 credit limit for patron Richard Hartman:

(1) Respondent did not adequately record in Mr. Hartman's credit file information used and a brief summary of the key factors relied upon in its decision to approve the credit limit, in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(f) 1 and 2; and

(2) Respondent did not adequately record in Mr. Hartman's credit file the reasons credit was approved in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(f) 3 in light of all of the following:

(a) The apparently conflicting information regarding the type, balances and date opened of Mr. Hartman's checking account obtained by respondent during the verification process;

(b) The derogatory consumer credit information obtained by respondent during the verification process; and

(c) Mr. Hartman's 1984 casino credit problems disclosed during the verification process.

WHEREAS, with respect to Counts II, III and IV and amended Counts VII, VIII and IX of Division Complaint No. 88-384, respondent admits that its September 3, 1987 decision to increase the credit limit of Mr. Hartman by an additional $500,000 violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a) and (f) by virtue of the following:

(1) Respondent could not establish that it recorded the time of the patron's initial request for a credit limit increase on September 3, 1987, in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(g)1i;

(2) Respondent did not adequately verify and/or record in Mr. Hartman's credit file all available current casino credit limits and outstanding balances on September 3, 1987, with respect to Mr. Hartman's credit accounts at Harrah's Marina Casino Hotel and The Sands Hotel and Casino, in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27 (g) 2 and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(d);

(3) Respondent did not adequately record in Mr. Hartman's credit file the special payment arrangement made with Mr. Hartman and relied upon by respondent in approving the credit limit increase, in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-2.17 (f) 1 and 2;

(4) Respondent did not adequately record in Mr. Hartman's credit file the reasons the increase was approved in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27 (f)3, in light of:

(a) The initial deficiencies in its decision to extend credit as set forth above with respect to Count I;

(b) Mr. Hartman's then outstanding credit balances at other Atlantic City casinos; and

(c) Mr. Hartman's then outstanding credit balance and gaming losses at respondent's casino during the period between the initial extension of credit and the approval of the increase.

WHEREAS, with respect to Count V of Division Complaint No. 88-384, the Division consented to the dismissal of the allegation that respondent violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26 (f) regarding the processing of the $183,000 customer check utilized in the redemption transaction of September 21, 1987.

WHEREAS, with respect to Count V of Division Complaint No. 88-384, respondent admits that it violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26 (f) regarding the processing of the $817,000 certified check utilized in the redemption transaction of September 21, 1987. This admission of liability is for this litigation only.

WHEREAS, with respect to Count VI of Division Complaint No. 88-384, respondent admits that it violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.2(a) in that it failed to prepare adequate documentation to memorialize the buy-back of the certified check from patron Hartman on September 21, 1987.

WHEREAS, subsequent to the filing of Division Complaint No. 88-384, respondent has implemented satisfactory corrective measures to insure that all checks received in redemption transactions are processed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26 (f) and that a contemporaneous record is prepared and maintained for a patron buy back of a cash equivalent;

WHEREAS, with respect to amended Count X, the Division consents to the dismissal of its allegation that credit executive John Goff recorded certain information on Mr. Hartman's credit application form dated August 28, 1987, that was not provided by the patron.

IT IS THEREFORE consented to and agreed upon by and between the parties that:

A. Respondent Trump Plaza Associates agrees to pay the sum of thirty thousand dollars ($30,000) to the New Jersey Casino Control Fund pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-129 (5) for the aforementioned violations of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27 (f) relative to Count I of the Division Complaint No. 88-384.

B. Respondent Trump Plaza Associates agrees to pay the sum of sixty thousand dollars ($60,000) to the New Jersey Casino Control Fund pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-129 (5) for the aforementioned violations of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27 (a), 1.27 (f), 1.27 (g) and 1.27 (d) relative to Counts II, III, IV, and amended Counts VII, VIII and IX of Division Complaint No. 88-384.

C. Respondent Trump Plaza Associates agrees to pay the sum of two thousand five hundred dollars ($2,500) to the New Jersey Casino Control Fund pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-129 (5) for the aforementioned violations of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26 (f) and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.2 (a) relative to Counts V and VI of Division Complaint No. 88-384.

D. This Settlement Agreement, upon approval of the Casino Control Commission, is a full and final settlement of all allegations set forth in Division Complaint No. 88-384.

FINDINGS

Having reviewed and considered the entire record before me, I FIND that:

1. The parties have voluntarily entered into the settlement of this matter as evidenced by their respective signatures on the Settlement Agreement; and

2. The settlement is a fair one under the circumstances and disposes of all issues in controversy between the parties in this case; and

3. The settlement is consistent with the law.

CONCLUSIONS

I CONCLUDE, therefore, that the proposed penalties totaling an amount of $92,500.00 upon Trump Plaza is appropriate and shall be imposed.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION who by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY, DEPARTMENT OF LAW AND PUBLIC SAFETY, DIVISION OF GAMING ENFORCEMENT, Complainant, v. TRUMP PLAZA ASSOCIATES, t/a TRUMP PLAZA HOTEL AND CASINO, Respondent.	Civil Action SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

With the above-captioned matter having been discussed by and between the parties involved, Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, Attorney for Complainant, State of New Jersey, Department of Law and Public Safety, Division of Gaming Enforcement (hereinafter "the Division"), by Kevin F. O'Toole, Deputy Attorney General, and Ribis, Graham & Curtin (by Brian D. Spector, Esquire), Attorneys for Respondent, Trump Plaza Associates (hereinafter "Trump Plaza" or "Respondent"), and all matters having been agreed upon, it is hereby stipulated and agreed by and between the parties as follows:

1. On June 3, 1988, the Division filed a six count complaint with the Casino Control Commission (hereinafter "the Commission") against Trump Plaza. The Division's complaint charged Trump Plaza with violations of the Casino Control Act, N.J.S.A. 5:12-1 et seq. (hereinafter "the Act"), and Commission regulations promulgated thereunder, arising out of circumstances involving the extension of a $500,000 casino credit line to patron Richard Hartman on August 28, 1987, the extension of a $500,000 increase to Mr. Hartman's credit line on September 3, 1987, and the processing and recording of credit-related transactions involving an $817,000 certified check and a $183,000 customer's check negotiated by Mr. Hartman at Trump Plaza on September 21, 1987.

2. A plenary hearing regarding the issues raised in the Division's Complaint was conducted before the Honorable Lillard E. Law, Administrative Law Judge, which hearing concluded on September 21, 1989.

3. During the course of the plenary hearing, the Division moved to amend its Complaint and the Prehearing Order to conform the issues to the proofs established at the hearing. More specifically, the Division raised four (4) additional issues designated Counts VII through X, described as follows:

> Count VII - Whether N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(d) was violated on September 3, 1987 when Credit Executive John Goff obtained casino credit verification information from Harrah's Marina regarding Richard Hartman's casino credit limit and outstanding balance at Harrah's Marina in that said information was not recorded in Mr. Hartman's credit file and accompanied by the signature of Mr. Goff along with the date and time.

Count VIII - Whether N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(d) was violated in that "+ Sands 400,000" was recorded in conjunction with a September 3, 1987 entry in the credit file of Richard Hartman without the signature of the credit department representative who made the notation or the date or time of the signature and without any indication as to the method by which the information was obtained.

Count IX - Whether the contemporaneous request and approval for Richard Hartman's casino credit limit increase on September 3, 1987 violates the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(g)1i.

Count X - Whether N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)5ii (patron's type of business), N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)5iii (patron's position), N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)6 (patron's banking information), N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)9 (patron's approximate amount of all other outstanding indebtedness), and N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(a)10 (the amount and source of the patron's income and assets) were violated on the basis that Credit Executive John Goff recorded said information on Richard Hartman's credit application card from information not provided by the patron.

4. On August 4, 1989, Judge Law granted the Division's motion to amend.

5. On August 4, 1989, Judge Law also considered a motion made by Respondent to dismiss the charges alleged in the Division's Complaint. On that date, Judge Law granted Respondent's motion to dismiss the allegation that Trump Plaza violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26(f) in connection with the processing of the $183,000 customer check negotiated by Mr. Hartman as part of a counter check redemption transaction that occurred on September 21, 1987. Based upon the testimony of Joanne Lohin, Casino Cage Shift Supervisor, the Division consented to the dismissal of said allegation.

6. Subsequent to the conclusion of the plenary hearing, the parties have engaged in further settlement negotiations and, as a result thereof, have agreed to resolve all issues by way of the instant Settlement Agreement. Said Settlement Agreement is submitted to the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1.

7. For purposes of this Settlement Agreement, the parties agree that the factual record consists of the following: (1) A Partial Stipulation of Facts executed by the parties at the commencement of the plenary hearing (Exhibit J-1), as modified in part based on the testimonial and documentary evidence presented at the hearing; (2) The testimony of all witnesses presented at the plenary hearing (attached hereto is a list of the witnesses who testified at the hearing); and (3) The documents admitted into evidence at the plenary hearing (attached hereto is a list of the documentary evidence admitted at the hearing).

(1) Respondent did not adequately record in Mr. Hartman's credit file information used and a brief summary of the key factors relied upon in its decision to approve the credit limit, in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(f)1 and 2; and

(2) Respondent did not adequately record in Mr. Hartman's credit file the reasons credit was approved in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(f)3 in light of all of the following:

(3) Respondent did not adequately record in Mr. Hartman's credit file the special payment arrangement made with Mr. Hartman and relied upon by Respondent in approving the credit limit increase, in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-2.17(f)1 and 2;

(4) Respondent did not adequately record in Mr. Hartman's credit file the reasons the increase was approved in violation of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(f)3, in light of:

(a) The initial deficiencies in its decision to extend credit as set forth above with respect to Count I;

(b) Mr. Hartman's then outstanding credit balances at other Atlantic City casinos; and

(c) Mr. Hartman's then outstanding credit balance and gaming losses at Respondent's casino during the period between the initial extension of credit and the approval of the increase.

WHEREAS, with respect to Count V of Division Complaint No. 88-384, the Division consented to the dismissal of the allegation that Respondent violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26(f) regarding the processing of the $183,000 customer check utilized in the redemption transaction of September 21, 1987.

WHEREAS, with respect to Count V of Division Complaint No. 88-384, Respondent admits that it violated N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.26(f) regarding the processing of the $817,000 certified check utilized in the redemption transaction of September 21, 1987. WHEREAS, with respect to amended Count X, the Division consents to the dismissal of its allegation that credit executive John Goff recorded certain information on Mr. Hartman's credit application form dated August 28, 1987, that was not provided by the patron.

IT IS THEREFORE consented to and agreed upon by and between the parties that:

A. Respondent Trump Plaza Associates agrees to pay the sum of thirty thousand dollars ($30,000) to the New Jersey Casino Control Fund pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-129(5) for the aforementioned violations of N.J.A.C. 19:45-1.27(f) relative to Count I of Division Complaint No. 88-384.

v.

TRUMP PLAZA ASSOCIATES t/a TRUMP PLAZA HOTEL AND CASINO,

Respondent.

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed by the complainant; and a reply to these exceptions having been filed by the respondent; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meetings of December 5, and December 19, 1990; and for the reasons stated on the record of the Commission's public meeting of December 19, 1990;

IT IS on this 21st day of December 1990, ORDERED that:

1. The ALJ's rulings that evidence of events and conversations occurring after the period during which the complaint alleged the violations to have occurred is inadmissible are rejected. There was no need for either the complaint or the prehearing conference order to reference such events or conversations for them to be admitted into evidence. The use of this evidence would not have unfairly surprised the respondent, since it had notice of such events and conversations by way of discovery. Additionally, the admission of this evidence would not have unduly delayed the hearing given that the sources of such evidence were the same witnesses who also testified about the alleged violations;

2. To the extent that the ALJ's rulings imply that Rule 51 of the Rules of Evidence governing court proceedings, which prohibits the use of subsequent remedial measures to prove negligence or culpable conduct, bars the use of such evidence in proceedings regarding violations of the Casino Control Act, they are rejected. This provision does not serve as a bar to the admission of evidence in such proceedings, as the Casino Control Act expressly provides that any relevant evidence is admissible in such proceedings notwithstanding the rules of evidence. N.J.S.A. 5:12-107(a)(6);

3. The record is reopened for the purpose of receiving evidence which was improperly excluded by the ALJ by way of the aforementioned rulings. The proffer may include evidence of any change in policy or procedures by respondent regarding the removal or reassignment of employees after the time when the violations were alleged to have occurred. It may also include any evidence of events or conversations occurring after this time which concern the alleged violations or the qualifications of the employees who were removed or reassigned;

4. This matter is not remanded to the Office of Administrative Law. Vice-Chair Armstrong is hereby designated the hearing officer to preside over the hearing which will be held to receive the evidence that was improperly excluded.

BEFORE LILLARD E. LAW, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) filed a two-count complaint on February 16, 1989, with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) alleging, among other things, that respondent Trump Plaza Associates, t/a Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino (Trump Plaza) discriminated against certain of its employees because of their gender and/or race by prohibiting the employees to act within scope of their employment while a certain patron engaged in gaming activity at Trump Plaza during divers times in 1987 and 1988. On March 23, 1989, Trump Plaza filed its Notice of Defense and Request for a hearing with the Commission. On December 19, 1989, the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) was in receipt of an Amended Complaint filed by the Division.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The matter was transmitted from the Commission to the OAL on March 28, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. On June 29, 1989, a prehearing conference was conducted at which, among other things, it was ordered that " ... all discovery shall be completed no later than October 1, 1989" (Prehearing Order, July 12, 1989, section VIII, D). It was also determined that the hearing in this matter was to commence on October 24, 1989 and continue for nine days thereafter to conclusion on or before November 20, 1989.

On March 20 and June 22, 1989, respondent Trump Plaza had served two separate written requests for discovery upon the Division. On August 21, 1989, the Division provided respondent Trump Plaza with two loose-leaf binders containing in excess of 1,000 pages of sworn and unsworn statements. On October 2, 1989, the Division responded to respondent's supplemental discovery request by serving Trump Plaza with an additional 500 plus pages of material.

On or about August 23, 1989, the Division propounded and served its Interrogatories upon respondent, followed on September 28, 1989, with its Supplemental Interrogatories.

On September 18, 1989, Trump Plaza propounded a short set of Interrogatories upon the Division requesting information which had not been provided but promised by the Division at the prehearing conference.

On October 2, 1989, a telephone conference call was initiated by counsel for respondent asserting, among other things, that the Division had failed to provide requested discovery. In particular, Trump Plaza asserted that the Division had failed to answer respondent's Initial Interrogatories. The Division could not assure the undersigned that it could complete the requested discovery in sufficient time for respondent to prepare its defenses, therefore, the hearing dates scheduled October 24, 26, 30 and 31, 1989 were adjourned. The hearing was then to commence on November 13, 1989, and continue for five days thereafter through November 20, 1989. Additional hearing days were added in January and February 1990.

On October 26, 1989, counsel for Trump Plaza initiated a conference call with the undersigned and the Deputy Attorney General representing the Division, seeking an order from this administrative tribunal to compel the Division to respond to respondent's discovery requests. The Deputy Attorney General assured the undersigned that the requested discovery would be forthcoming and that an order was not necessary. Notwithstanding the Divisions assertions, an oral order was issued compelling the Division to complete discovery.

On November 2, 1989, Trump Plaza asserted that it had been in receipt of Answers to its Initial Interrogatories from the Division on November 1, 1989, and that the Division's answers were totally unresponsive. Trump Plaza then propounded a motion together with a letter memorandum, seeking the following relief: (1) Dismiss the Division's complaint without prejudice; or (2) Require the Division to supply fully responsive answers to Interrogatories and adjourn the hearing dates scheduled in November 1989, until January 29, 1990, to provide the parties sufficient time to prepare their respective cases.

Oral argument on the Motion to Dismiss or Compel Discovery was had on November 2, 1989, Brian D. Spector, Esq., appearing for movant Trump Plaza Associates; Fredric E. Gushin and Timothy C. Ficchi, Deputy Attorneys General, arguing for the Division. The Division requested and was granted leave to file its brief regarding the issues raised by respondent. The undersigned was in receipt of the Division's brief on the morning of November 8, 1989. On November 8, 1989, via fax, the respondent submitted its response to the Division's brief by way of letter memorandum.

On November 8, 1989, counsel for Trump Plaza requested a conference call with the Division and this tribunal to argue the propriety of the Division conducting interviews of respondent's employees in preparation for the hearing. Respondent's request was granted and oral argument was heard on November 8, 1989 concerning Trump Plaza's objection to the Division conducting discovery subsequent to the close of the discovery completion date or, alternatively, that the Division's actions in conducting interviews with Trump Plaza employees subsequent to its filing its complaint was improper.

By way of an Order dated November 14, 1989, this tribunal found and concluded that the Division had failed to comply with the Prehearing Order to complete the required discovery in a timely fashion and that it failed to answer Trump Plaza's initial interrogatories in an appropriate or acceptable manner. It was further found that the Division's stonewalling tactics effectively precluded Trump Plaza from preparing its defenses and resulted in the delay of those hearing days scheduled for October 24, 26, 30 and 31, 1989. This tribunal denied Trump Plaza's motion to dismiss the instant matter without prejudice and ordered that all discovery be completed no later than December 20, 1989. As a consequence of the Division's cavalier conduct in ignoring the orders of this tribunal, by its failure to comply with discovery orders, it was necessary to again adjourn hearing dates scheduled for November 13, 16 and 17, 1989.

All delays in moving these proceedings to a conclusion are directly attributable to the Division for its failure to comply with the rules of discovery. N.J.A.C. 1:1-10.1 et seq.; New Jersey Court R. 4:10-2.

The November 14, 1989 Order also concluded that the Division's conduct in interviewing Trump Plaza employees without notice to respondent's legal counsel (or to the employee's legal counsel) was proper and permissible under section 80 of the Casino Control Act (Act). At the oral argument held on November 8, 1989, the Division consented to make the inquiry of the interviewees as to whether or not the Trump Plaza employee wished to have his/her own attorney present, respondent's attorney or, no one present.

On December 12, 1989, the Division filed a Motion for Declaratory Judgment seeking confirmation that its complaint against Trump Plaza was legally sufficient. On December 15, 1989, the Division filed its Motion to Amend its Complaint to add the charge that Trump Plaza violated the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination and to name additional employees allegedly discriminated against by respondent. Trump Plaza brought on a Cross-Motion to Dismiss the Division's Complaint arguing that the complaint was legally insufficient and also that the Amended Complaint was duplicative. This tribunal granted the Division's Motion for Declaratory Judgment and its Motion to Amend its Complaint.

Because the Assistant Attorney General was on an extended vacation during the month of January 1990, the hearing was delayed until January 31, 1990, the first day of hearing.

The hearing was conducted January 31, February 5,6,7,8, 9 and April 23, 24 and 25, 1990. The parties requested and were granted leave to submit post hearing briefs. The last submission was received on July 2, 1990, which constitutes the closing of the hearing record in this matter.

ISSUES

The issues to be determined by this tribunal and as agreed upon by the parties are these:

A. Whether respondent Trump Plaza, by extending preferential treatment to patron Robert Libutti's gaming play, violated N.J.S.A. 5:12-134b and N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a)2 through its failure to afford an equal employment opportunity to Newton Brown, Margaret Camper, Arlene Daniels, Carlton Carpenter, Louis Monroe and Gwendolyn Torian on account of their race, color or sex by failing to insure that said employees were treated, during their employment, without regard to race, color or sex.

B. Whether respondent Trump Plaza, by the actions and conduct of its employees, unlawfully discriminated against its black and female employees during the period 1987 up to and including May 1988 by removing black and female games personnel from certain job assignments solely because those employees were either black or female, in violation of New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq.

The Division's Amended Complaint added the following names to Issue A above: Dwain Harris and Cathy Carlino (Denise Bellamy's name was inadvertently omitted from Issue A. in the Prehearing Order). It also alleged that Trump Plaza was in violation of N.J.S.A. 5:12-134c. in Issue A. above.

UNDISPUTED FACTS

The following facts are not disputed and, therefore, are hereby adopted as FINDINGS OF FACT in this matter:

Robert Libutti was a frequent patron of the Trump Plaza between May 28, 1986 through September 20, 1988 and was the catalyst of the Division's charges of racial and sexual discrimination against respondent. He was considered a premium, preferred (high roller) player by Trump Plaza which made special accommodations for him when it was known he would be appearing at the casino. Libutti generally played the game of craps. Trump Plaza would reserve a craps table for his play by roping off, generally, Pit #3, Table #3, for Libutti's use. The assigned Pit Boss would then assign the boxperson, floorperson and dealers to the pit and table.

Based upon a review of Trump Plaza records, it was demonstrated, through a Division Agent's testimony, that Libutti gambled a total of 321 days between the period May 28, 1986 and September 20, 1988. During the year 1986, Libutti played at Trump Plaza a total of 113 days with an average bet of $11,354.56. For the year 1987, he played a total of 84 days with an average bet of $13,929.52. For the period January 1 to September 20, 1988, he played 124 days with an average bet of $10,372.45.

As a consequence of the time frame set forth in the Division's Complaint, evidence is restricted to the period May 28, 1986 to and including May 1988.

Mr. Libutti was known to be abusive to people around him when he was losing at a gaming table. He was abusive to his family members, his employees, people merely passing by or watching his game and, employees at Trump Plaza. He would shout obscenities to no person in particular or to a specific person. Some of his abusive language had sexual and/or racial overtones. Libutti has been observed throwing dice into a chandelier and at the security booth. He has also been observed throwing gaming chips (value chips) in the pit and aisles of the casino floor

Craps is complicated and one of the most difficult games to deal and supervise due to number of plays that can be made at one roll of the dice, the various odds available to the players and the number of players at one game. There are at least 86 variations of odds on the craps table, with 50,000 possible plays available. The organization of the hierarchy of supervision of the craps game (as with other games as well) includes; the pit boss, floorperson, boxperson and dealers. The pit boss is in charge of all of the games in the pit which includes eight craps tables. The pit boss is responsible, among other things, for the assignment of dealers on the tables within his/her assigned pit. The pit boss observes all of the games in action within the pit and oversees credit markers used at the games.

The floorperson watches one craps game and may be called upon to settle a dispute over a call (cocked die, etc). The game may include one or two boxpersons and three dealers at one table.

The boxperson places the money bet and lost in a drop box and corrects any errors made by the dealers. The boxperson oversees the game in that the roll of the dice is done fairly and the payouts are correct. Dealers in craps consist of one stick person, one dealer at second base and one dealer at third base. The stick person must be extremely accurate with the call of the number on the dice, while dealers are responsible for the pick up of the chips on lose and pay out on wins.

The game is fast paced with as many as 16 players at one craps table, eight on each side. Wagers may be made between the time the dice leaves the shooter's hand and the time the dice come to rest (N.J.A.C. 19:47-1.3(a)). The dealers, boxperson, floorperson and pit boss must possess, among other things, the knowledge of the various odds and the skill to rapidly add, subtract and multiply mentally, without the aid of mechanical assistance, in order to calculate the odds and make the correct payout. The payouts to the winning players must be quick, precise and accurate in order for the game to resume.

During the relevant times in this matter, Trump Plaza had in place an unwritten policy whereby dual rated employees were only allowed to serve Libutti at the lower position of the dual rate.

CONTESTED FACTS

Both parties offered witnesses whose testimony is summarized hereinbelow.

Newton Brown, III, is a black male who was a craps dealer at Trump Plaza during the times relevant in the Division's complaint. He presently holds a dual rate as a boxperson/craps dealer. Brown started dealing craps while employed at the Atlantis Hotel and Casino in 1982. He is a 1975 graduate of Rutgers University with a bachelors degree in Education. He taught in the Atlantic City public school system prior to beginning his employment with the Atlantis Hotel and Casino.

Mr. Brown asserted that he has dealt high limit and fast paced games while at Trump Plaza. He asserted that he has never been pulled off of a game while employed at Trump Plaza when there has been high limit wagers or fast action games. Brown is of the opinion that he can handle himself in a game very well. He contends that his performance evaluations executed by his superiors have always been positive and his abilities as a craps dealer were never placed in question by his supervisors. He asserted that in 1986 he was tapped off a craps game and placed on another craps game where the dealer was not able to handle the action.

Mr. Brown testified with respect to his 1987 performance evaluation which, he asserts, there were all positive comments. His superiors commented about his favorable attitude toward his fellow employees and toward Trump Plaza customers Mr. Brown opined that his evaluation was "pretty good." On a total numerical score of 200, Mr. Brown scored 136 points by his supervisors.

On cross examination, Mr. Brown admitted that he had notices of unsatisfactory performance. On October 10, 1986, he was deemed unsatisfactory for a violation of the regulations when he failed to pick up a line. Subsequently, on October 25, 1986, he received an unsatisfactory performance/misconduct where he did not book a bet. In addition, in 1988, he was cited for violation of the game protection regulations. In that situation, a player placed money down after the point had been made and Mr. Brown did not detect it in time. Mr. Brown admitted on cross examination that he had been reprimanded for attendance problems. In his evaluations, dated October 13, 1986 and December 13, 1986, both of which were signed by Brown, his job performance with regard to game protection was cited as needing improvement. The evaluation also stated that Mr. Brown starts to lose control of the game if the game becomes heavy. In addition, he was criticized for occasionally becoming abrupt with patrons. Mr. Brown admitted that he was not one of Trump Plaza's more experienced dealers and that he believed that he had the label as a troublemaker attached to him since his employment at Trump Plaza.

Mr. Brown testified that he knows Robert Libutti as a guest at the Trump Plaza Hotel who started to come to the hotel/casino in May of 1986. Brown asserted that he had heard that Libutti was not a very pleasant person. Brown dealt for Libutti for the first time late in 1986, a specific date that he could not recall. Brown asserted that he was in pit #5 on game #18 when Libutti walked upon the scene and threw money on the game. Libutti bet on a number, which hit, after which Libutti walked away. Brown asserted that in late 1986 he again dealt Libutti, however, this was in pit #3, table #3. The table was reserved for Libutti and Brown was assigned to the reserved table. Mr. Libutti had been on the table only a short time and was losing heavily, while his chauffeur was rolling the dice. Brown was the stick person when Libutti turned to his chauffeur and stated "shoot the fucking dice. Shoot the fucking dice like you were fucking some nigger." Brown, who was the only black person at the table, was agitated and upset by Libutti's comments. Brown continued to perform his duties until such time as he was relieved of the stick.

The late Steven Hyde, President of Trump Plaza approached the craps table to talk with Libutti. On cross examination, Brown testified that Libutti apologized to Mr. Hyde and then Libutti attempted to give Brown a $300 tip in chips, which Brown could not accept for performing his duties. Subsequently, Gary Massey who was the pit boss on Brown's game, stated to Brown that he did a good job in controlling his temper. Sometime thereafter, pit boss Massey awarded Brown with a commendation for a job well done.

Brown asserted that some time in mid 1987, dates which he could not recall, he again dealt Libutti in pit #5, table #17, which was reserved for Mr. Libutti. Brown asserted that he has not dealt Libutti since the 1987 event. Brown asserted that he was told by Trump Plaza personnel that Libutti did not like blacks or females on his, Libutti's, table. Brown testified that Trump Plaza employees Robert Toscano, Guy Resnick, Frank Shapiro, Ron Gangolenski and Chris Ford were the ones which advised him that Libutti did not care for blacks or females to deal him.

Brown testified that in the latter part of 1986, he was to be assigned to pit #3, table #3. He asserted that the floorperson, Robert Toscano, advised Brown that Libutti was coming and that Libutti did not want blacks or females on his game. Brown was reassigned and assumed that the reason for his being reassigned was that Libutti did not care for blacks or females to be dealers on his game. Brown was never taken off the game while he was dealing to Libutti. He contends, moreover, that he was reassigned on at least on five different occasions, however, he could not give specific dates of those reassignments. Brown assumed that he was reassigned, more likely than not, because Libutti was on the casino floor.

On direct examination, Brown asserted that he seldom saw blacks or females on Libutti's table. He changed his testimony to state that he never saw blacks or females on Libutti's table. On cross examination, Brown asserted that every time he observed Libutti he had an all white crew. He recanted that testimony, however, on cross examination and stated that he saw Libutti with crews other than all white. He asserted that a couple of times (between two and ten times) he saw Libutti without an all white male crew which included a black male, a black female or a female on his game. Brown testified that he recalled seeing Melissa Steinberg, a white female, deal for Libutti. He also testified that he recalls observing Maria Street, a white female, deal for Libutti. Brown also testified that he saw a variety of white males reassigned from Libutti's table; Gary Noah, Paul Wisebecker, Joe Viro, and Vince LaSaso among them. Brown testified that he did not mind being reassigned away from Libutti's table. He did not complain to management nor could he assert that he was more qualified than the dealer who was reassigned and replaced him. Brown further testified on cross examination that he never heard Libutti state that Libutti did not like blacks or females.

Trump Plaza contends that Brown lacked the qualifications to handle Libutti's game, as observed by other witnesses who testified at the herein hearing. Ellen Rush, a Trump Plaza dual rate shift manager, described Brown as getting easily flustered and not being able to take criticism. Rush commented that Brown was sensitive on the issue of race, and that, although Brown was removed from Libutti's table, his removal was not racially motivated. Susan (Sue) Ciboldi, a Trump Plaza pit boss, found Brown to be an inexperienced dealer who was not accustomed to dealing high limit action. Ciboldi stated that Brown was reassigned from Libutti's game because of Brown's lack of ability, not because of his race. John Ciafradone, a Trump Plaza pit boss, believed Brown to be inexperienced. Karen Wisher, a Trump Plaza shift manager, testified that Brown was a weak dealer. Gary Massey, a then Trump Plaza pit boss, who was in the pit on the day Libutti made the derogatory racial comment to Libutti's chauffeur in Brown's presence, asserted that Brown had only average technical ability. Massey further stated that Brown had difficulty dealing with authority and that Brown did not have a very good personality. It was Mr. Massey's opinion that Brown had a difficult time doing his job. Melissa Steinberg, a Trump Plaza pit boss who is now employed by the Taj Mahal Hotel and Casino, stated that she would not assign Brown to Libutti's table because Brown consistently made mistakes and never took the time to learn. Paul Laviollette described Brown as an extremely weak dealer who lacked the mental and physical dexterity necessary to deal Libutti.

Louis William Monroe, Jr., testified on behalf of the Division asserting, among other things, that he was hired as a dealer at Trump Plaza in May of 1984. Thereafter, he was promoted in March or April 1987 to the position of dual rate boxperson/craps dealer. Monroe, who is black, was on disability leave commencing September 1986 for a two month period as a consequence of a stabbing incident which was perpetrated by another Trump Plaza employee. Monroe asserted that he gave up the dual rate status after ten months for unfair treatment by Trump Plaza management.

With regard to Monroe's performance evaluations, in 1986/1987, he achieved a total score of 163 out of a total of 200 points. Monroe considered this to be an above average evaluation. On July 28, 1988, Monroe's evaluation for the 1987/88 year, had a total score of 153 out of 200. Monroe characterized this evaluation as "a pretty good score."

Monroe asserted that he became aware of Libutti in the latter part of 1986 when Libutti was on craps table #3 in pit #3. At the time Monroe was assigned to table #5 in pit #3, however, Monroe was pulled off of table #5 and assigned to deal Libutti on table #3.

There came a time where Monroe was involved with Libutti concerning a cocked die. Under such circumstances, the dealer is to call the cocked die without touching the die and then if there is a dispute to call the supervisor to make a determination as to the cocked die. On this occasion, Monroe called the cocked die against Libutti who objected and the supervisor was then called to call the cocked die. The supervisor made the same call as Monroe. As a consequence Libutti had Monroe removed from the table although Libutti asserted that he liked Monroe. Monroe admitted on the record that his removal from Libutti's table was not because of race but, rather, due to his call of the cocked die.

Monroe testified that he had dealt Libutti between 5 and 10 times. On one occasion in pit #5, table #17, Monroe was on second base and Libutti was on third base and again the die became cocked. A player bumped the table which did not alter the die, however, Libutti became irate. The supervisor called the cocked die against Libutti. Several days later Monroe received a call from the supervisor to reconstruct the incident at table #17. After considerable discussion, Libutti was allowed to shoot the point again.

Monroe testified that in the latter part of 1987 he noticed a change of attitude of his supervisors. He contended that when he was scheduled to pit #3, table #3, he would be removed by another dealer. Monroe asked Sue Ciboldi why he as removed from the pit #3, table #3, and Ciboldi advised Monroe that he was not good enough to deal to Libutti. Monroe asserted that he was removed, or tapped off, from Libutti's table ten times and, he asserted, that each time he was replaced by a white male dealer.

Monroe testified that he learned that Libutti had certain preferences with regard to only white males dealing his game from his co-workers in the locker room. Monroe testified that he never heard of Libutti's preferences from his supervisors nor did Libutti ever discuss his preferences with Monroe. Monroe contended that it was common knowledge among the employees as it was locker room talk. He believed that he was taken off Libutti's game because he is black.

On cross examination, Monroe testified that he was aware that Libutti did not want dual rated persons dealing his game. Monroe also admitted that he made two to three errors per hour while dealing. Although he denied ever receiving a verbal or written warning he did, in fact, receive one on June 8, 1987 for allowing an improper bet. This notice of unsatisfactory performance asserted that Monroe pai out odds against Trump which resulted in a loss of $900 to Trump Plaza. He contended that the betting stakes on high action tables could be more costly to the casino when the dealer would make an error against the casino. He acknowledge that the knowledge of odds on the craps table was extremely important and that his performance evaluation of three (3) points out of a total of five (5) points was just average with respect to his knowledge of the odds.

Monroe testified that Libutti never made any racial slurs to him nor did he ever hear Libutti make any racial slurs to anyone. Nonetheless, Monroe considers Libutti to be a bigot because of Libutti's actions on the floor. He characterized Libutti as eccentric and superstitious.

With respect to Monroe's 5 or 10 reassignments from Libutti's table, he does not recall who reassigned him or when. Nor did he recall who replaced him, although Monroe testified that every time he was replaced, he was replaced by a white male. He admitted on the record that John Leach, a black male, dealt Libutti from early 1986 through mid 1988 and that he also observed females deal Libutti from early 1986 to mid 1988. He further admitted that no one told him that he was reassigned because he was black.

Monroe testified that he had not contacted the Division with respect to any complaint, however, the Division had contacted him with regard to its complaint Monroe further testified that he was aware of a dealer at Caesars who had received an $80,000 cash settlement with respect to a claim of discrimination. He further asserted that if the Division prevails in the instant matter, it is possible that he will initiate a suit against Trump Plaza.

Other witnesses who testified in these proceedings describe Monroe as inconsistent, having good days and bad days, is not eventempered, as a mediocre dealer, and as having a big chip on his shoulder and lacking the ability to maintain composure in a difficult situation.

Gwendolyn Torian, a black female boxperson employed at Trump Plaza, testified on behalf of the Division. She had previously worked at Caesars for two and one half years before being employed at Trump Plaza as a craps dealer. From June 1987 until January 1988 Torian worked a total of 15 months at Trump Plaza. From January 1987 until March 1987 she was absent from duty on a maternity leave. Subsequently, from July 1987 to January 1988 she was absent from her duties on a medical leave.

Ms. Torian testified that while employed at Caesars she had dealt high action games. She is trained to deal in craps, blackjack and baccarat. She asserted that she was never taken off of a game because her supervisors did not believe she could not handle a game.

Ms. Torian testified that she has known Libutti since September 1986. She has heard negative things about Libutti, e.g., that he did not like women or blacks. She asserted that she had no problems with Libutti when she supervised his game in September 1986 when he played on table #4 in pit #3. She had no difficulty in handling his game. She testified that on another occasion in September 1986, she again acted as Libutti's boxperson. She was put on his game, and after about 20 minutes, Libutti left the game after the shift change. She asserted that she did not supervise Libutti's game again thereafter.

Ms. Torian stated that on September 14, 1984 she received a Notice of Unsatisfactory Performance, which resulted in a one day suspension for her insubordinate comments to a supervisor and conduct unbefitting a supervisor. On December 5, 1985, Torian received a Notice of Unsatisfactory Performance for arguing with her supervisor while on duty. On April 1, 1987, Torian also received a Notice of Unsatisfactory Performance for a low test score. In addition, Torian received four warnings for attendance since 1986. In her 1988 performance evaluation, Sue Ciboldi gave Ms. Torian an overall score of 137 out of a total 200 points. Torian stated that she was never taken off of a game because a supervisor believed that she could not handle the game. She also stated that when she was placed in the back pits and tables, she lost her enthusiasm for her work.

Ms. Torian testified that in April 1988, she was scheduled for table #17, in pit #5 when Jimmy Beich, a white male boxperson, tapped her out of her normal rotation and told her to go to table #21. Libutti played at table #17 while Ms. Torian had gone to table #21. When Mr. Libutti left table #17, Ms. Torian was permitted to return to table #17. Ms. Torian testified that either in May or June of 1988, she was "running relief," which meant that she would relieve the boxperson on four different tables in pit #3, for a period of 20 minutes each. Gary Massey was the pit boss at the time and told Torian that when Libutti came to table #3, she was to "tap out" Martin Salway, a white dealer, who would be on table #7 and for Mr. Salway, rather than Torian, to go to table #3. Massey did not tell Torian why she was being reassigned. Prior to Libutti's arrival, Torian tapped out the boxperson on table #3 and, since the game was dead, she remained on table #3. Gary Massey saw her sitting on table #3 and told her that she had to leave the table because, "if Bobby Yee came in and saw me [Torian] sitting there, he would have his [Massey's] head". (2T, volume 2 page 37).

In or about June 1988, Ms. Torian testified that she was assigned to table #7, pit #3 and was scheduled to be on table #3, pit #3 at 2:00 p.m. However, Paul Laviolette told her to close table #7 and to go to the pit stand where she was reassigned to table #5. Libutti was in and he played at table #3 at the time that Torian was scheduled to be at that table. Torian asserted that she was replaced by a white male, however, she could not identify the male that replaced her. Ms. Torian saw game personnel being moved and concluded that Libutti did not want blacks or females on his game. Ms. Torian admitted that she was aware of the dual rate policy involving Libutti, that is, a dual rate could only serve Libutti in the dual rate's lower capacity.

Trump Plaza contends that Torian was consistently described by other witnesses in this matter as lacking the necessary qualifications to deal a player like Libutti. It contends that Torian simply lacked concentration on the game. It was asserted that Torian would get upset on the game and show that she was upset. It was also stated that Torian was not a very strong boxperson, lackadaisical at times and unable to reconstruct problems on the game. It was also testified that Torian was thought to be an inexperienced and a weak, or below average, boxperson from a technical point of view. She did not have enough experience to deal to a patron like Libutti; lacking the quick mental figures, as far as computing bets, as well as lacking the ability to compute rapidly enough to handle that type of pressure. It was also stated that Torian was very difficult to get along with and especially had trouble with her coworkers and at times, patrons.

Carlton Carpenter testified on behalf of the Division, asserting among other things, that he has been employed at Trump Plaza since on or about May 1, 1984 as a floorperson. He has been given the opportunity to be a pit boss at Trump Plaza, however, he has declined the offer. Carpenter has completed three years of college and has been attending the Philadelphia College of Bible for the past three years studying for the ministry. Carpenter's race is black, which is not commonly known at Trump Plaza due to his light colored skin.

Since his employment at Trump Plaza Carpenter has supervised high action craps games and games involving high rollers. He has supervised high actions games approximately two to three times per week.

During the time between May 1986 and May 1988, Carpenter has worked on the front games where the high end players are frequently placed. Carpenter deals with chip denominations between $100 to $1,000 and has dealt games with $5,000 chips approximately one dozen times.

Mr. Carpenter testified that he had his first experience with Libutti in May or June of 1986 where Carpenter acted as the floorperson for Mr. Libutti. He asserted that thereafter he performed as the floorperson for Mr. Libutti a dozen or more times. On most of those occasions, Libutti was playing at table #3, in pit #3. Carpenter became familiar with Libutti's betting pattern which he described as plain and simple. Carpenter testified that Libutti just bet large amounts of money and that his payouts were not complicated. He asserted that the most complicated thing about dealing to Libutti would be his vigorish, i.e., what Libutti had to pay to Trump Plaza to make his bets. Carpenter asserted that Libutti's game was not difficult to deal or supervise.

Carpenter did not personally have any incidents with Mr. Libutti in the twelve or so times that he supervised Libutti's games. Carpenter was never criticized by his supervisors during the times he acted as a floorperson at Libutti's game. Carpenter testified about one incident involving Libutti 's uncle, Peter Libutti. In the latter part of 1987 or in the beginning of 1988, Peter Libutti was gambling and Denise Bellamy, a black female boxperson, was tracking the action and the players chips. Peter Libutti wanted Bellamy removed from the game and Peter Libutti specifically requested that Carpenter, who was the floorperson at the time, have Bellamy removed. Carpenter did not act upon that request. Peter Libutti then went to Robert Libutti, who was also playing at the game, and told Robert Libutti that he wanted Bellamy off his game. Ms. Bellamy was removed from the game and was replaced by a white male. Carpenter could not describe who had ordered Bellamy's removal or who had replaced her.

Carpenter testified that Peter Libutti became very angry with Carpenter because Carpenter did not honor Peter Libutti's request. Peter Libutti told Carpenter, "I want you so bad I can taste you." Carpenter thereupon stepped closer to Peter Libutti and stated, "Sir, I don't think you want to mess with me." (2T, Vol. 3, p. 59-61). Carpenter asserted that the Denise Bellamy incident occurred in late 1987 or early 1988.

Carpenter stated that in late 1987 or early 1988, he had heard rumors that Libutti wanted no blacks, females, or minorities of any sort on his game. He asserted that he was reassigned away from Libutti's table on two occasions, once by Gary Massey and once by Dante Benevenuto. He asserted that Massey told him that Libutti was coming into the casino and that the Trump Plaza management did not want any altercations. Carpenter also stated that Benevenuto asserted that management did not want any altercations, therefore, Carpenter had to move from Libutti's assigned table. Carpenter further asserted that when he was reassigned, a dozen or more times, he was replaced by a white male. Carpenter testified that on many of his reassignments he was not told by management to move, rather, he observed his name erased from the pit schedule and a white person's name placed in his former spot.

Carpenter stated on cross examination that he did not believe that he was rescheduled away from Libutti's table because of the Peter Libutti/Denise Bellamy incident. He stated that he did not believe that Trump Plaza management was aware of the incident between himself and Peter Libutti.

On cross examination Carpenter testified that he had never complained to Trump Plaza management of any alleged discrimination. He further stated that he does not like the gaming business nor the way people are treated in the casinos. Further, he dislikes working on Sundays; it bothers him and he would rather be at church on Sundays.

Carpenter testified to a couple of experiences where he's lost his temper while working on the casino floor. In one instance, a patron spat at Carpenter where Carpenter went to the player and told him that he had tissues. The patron cursed at Carpenter and said something to the effect that "I will kick your ass." The patron started to come toward Carpenter whereupon Carpenter went toward the patron. When two employees tried to restrain him, Carpenter threw the two employees onto the craps table.

Carpenter admitted that he had received a reprimand for failing to pass a test. He failed to have a passing grade of a procedures test where he received a "one", the lowest possible score in procedures. It was also demonstrated that he received a "one" in his knowledge of the limits of authority. Carpenter testified that he lost interest and motivation in upward mobility in the casino industry because of the way people were treated. He further testified that the treatment of the employees at Trump Plaza is not based upon race or sex. With respect to Libutti, Carpenter testified that Libutti's outbursts were not based on race or sex. He further testified that Libutti appears to be a perfect gentlemen when he is not playing the craps table.

Carpenter testified that there was never a time in his opinion where Libutti believed or knew that Carpenter was black. He further asserted that every time that he acted as the floorperson in Libutti's game, he was never removed, which was at least a dozen times. He further stated that he was never told by Peter Libutti or Robert Libutti that they wanted Denise Bellamy removed because of her race or sex. It was Carpenter who concluded that it was racist or sexist. He testified further there more white males removed from Libutti's game, during the game, than blacks or females.

Carpenter stated that he did not know whether or not he would file a law suit of discrimination against Trump Plaza. However, he had contacted an attorney the day before these proceedings.

Arlene F. Daniels, a black female, testified that she was formerly employed at the Trump Plaza between 1984 and February 1989 as a craps dealer. She was terminated by Trump for attendance problems. During her employment at Trump Plaza, she asserted that she dealt high action games four out of the five days per week that she worked and that she was able to handle the action. Daniels admitted that in 1984 and 1985, she was removed from games because she could not handle the action.

Daniels score on her 1988 performance evaluation form indicated that she scored 145 points out of a total of 200 points. On a scale of 1 to 5, Daniels received four 4's and three 3's. She received nothing less than a 3 on her evaluation form. On or about May 1987, Daniels received a notice of unsatisfactory performance from her supervisors. She received the notice for failure to acknowledge the call of the dice. She asserted that all three of the games personnel on the table at the time received such a warning.

Ms. Daniels testified that it was in late 1986 that she became aware of Libutti. She testified that she had never dealt Libutti. However, she subsequently testified that she had dealt Libutti when she was the stickperson on his game.

Ms. Daniels testified that it was a known fact, not a rumor, that Libutti did not want females on his gaming tables. She related an incident in the spring of 1987 involving a friend of hers, Gloria Young, in which Daniels alleged that Libutti called Ms. Young a "cunt." She also alleged that Libutti had called John Leach a "black bastard." She contended that the whole crew, including the pit boss and floorperson, heard the comments by Libutti.

Daniels alleged that in the summer of 1988, she heard Libutti arguing with a Commission Inspector who was watching Libutti's game. She asserted that Libutti said something to the Casino Control Commission officer, to the effect, that Libutti did not want anyone standing near him. She asserted that the Commission Inspector said to Libutti that he was going to stand where he was and watch the game. Libutti was alleged to have said to the inspector "it's bad enough that I have to look at you at my home, I also have to look at you here." Daniels assumed that Libutti had black people cleaning his home.

Daniels testified that she had been scheduled on more than one occasion to deal Libutti, however, she was never assigned to his table. She asserted that the first time, she could not recall the date, she was assigned to pit #3, table #3, when pit boss John Ciafardone rescheduled her to another table. She did not ask Ciafardone why she was rescheduled. She asserted that she was replaced by Dave Venezia, a white male. Libutti did not appear at the casino on that day.

The second time Daniels asserted that she was reassigned she was again in pit #3, table #3 when pit boss Susan Cioboldi rescheduled Daniels to another table. Libutti again did not arrive as expected. She testified that the third time she was removed and all times thereafter the pit boss was Arthur Crawford. She said that she was tapped off by a white male. She also asserted that Crawford, during one of the times she was rescheduled, told her that it was for her protection as well as Libutti's and that the reason that Daniels was being moved was because she was black. Daniels testified on direct examination that she was certain that it was Sue Cioboldi who reassigned her in 1988 because Cioboldi had just returned from a medical leave. She then countered her testimony on direct, that she was now not certain that the incident had occurred in 1988.

Daniels asserted it was common knowledge that Libutti did not want females or blacks on his table, and that this common knowledge came from pit bosses, Christopher Ford, John Ciafardone, Susan Ciboldi and Arthur Crawford Subsequently, on her direct examination, however, Daniels testified that John Leach, a male black, and David Blackwell , a male black, had dealt Libutti on a regular basis She also acknowledge that Melissa Steinburg supervised Libutti's game.

On cross examination, Daniels admitted she had attendance problems at Trump Plaza prior to her termination. She also had a written warning with respect to game protection. As a consequence, on her performance appraisal, it was indicted to Daniels that she must show immediate improvement in attendance and improvement in gaming protection. Daniels was known, and she admitted, she was a "casino gazer." In other words, she was not attentive to her business or the game at hand. It was also acknowledge that Daniels used vulgar language while on the gaming table.

Daniels acknowledged that it was preferable to have the most experienced dealers on the high roller tables. She admitted that almost one half of the house had more experience than she.

Daniels admitted Libutti did not ask that she be removed from his game when she was the stickperson for his game. Daniels also admitted that Libutti expressed no racial slurs toward her. She also admitted Libutti had never used the word "black" when he made the alleged statement to the Casino Commission Inspector. She testified she was certain that the incident with the Casino Commission Inspector occurred in 1988. However, she subsequently testified she was uncertain about the date of the incident. She further testified she was uncertain as to whether it was six or more times she was reassigned because of Libutti.

On cross examination Daniels testified she was certain that Libutti had made the statement to John Leach, "black bastard." She testified that Leach was removed from Libutti's game, however, Leach returned to deal Libutti the next day.

During the period 1987 to 1988, Daniels was assigned to pit #5 four days per week. The rest of the time was split up. Daniels admitted that table #3 is not in pit #5 and that table #3 was Libutti's favorite craps table. Daniels admits, therefore, that she could not have been reassigned from Libutti's table during this period of time. She asserted that she was rescheduled six times, moreover, three of those six times could have been after June 1988.

Daniels testified she knew of the Caesars matter and knows the individual who received the monetary award. She asserted that she had not employed legal counsel, however, several other employees have consulted with a lawyer as a group She testified that she wants to see Trump Plaza punished.

Daniels completed her cross examination by asserting she did not want to deal Libutti even if given the choice.

Dwain Harris, a black male, testified for the Division and asserted, among other things, that he had been employed at Trump Plaza since May of 1984. He is presently on medical disability as of January 1990. His employment background with Trump Plaza demonstrated that he has been a craps dealer from May 1984 until the spring of 1988. He asserted that he was promoted to a dual rate boxperson/craps dealer in March 1987. Subsequently, in May of 1988, he was promoted to a full time boxperson. He asserted that he has dealt high action and high stakes craps games prior to June 1988. He asserted he dealt such games two to three times per week where he would manage chips of $500 to $1,000. He testified he never dealt $5,000 chips, however, he has supervised such games.

He testified that for the first six or seven months he was a dealer he was pulled from the game for being inexperienced. In his prior sworn statement, however, Harris indicated that he had been pulled off of games as a consequence of his inexperience after the first 12 months of his employment at Trump Plaza rather than just six months. He asserted he had not been pulled from any games for inexperience since that time.

In his 1985 performance evaluation, Harris received a comment that his game pace was a little slow. Therein, the evaluation demonstrated that he did a fine job, however, he must work on his game pace. In June of 1985 he was also alerted to the development of his accuracy. In his June 29, 1987 dealer evaluation, Harris received a score of 150 out of a total score of 200, which he classified as average to above average. In or about of December of 1988, Harris' floorperson/boxperson performance evaluation form indicated a score of 113 out of a total of 200 points; this was classified as a low score. The record also indicates that Harris had some attendance problems in 1987 and 1988.

Harris asserted that he first learned of Libutti as a player in the fall of 1986. He testified that the first time he was removed from a Libutti game was when he was assigned to table #3, in pit #3. He asserted that a phone call came to the pit with the information that a high roller was coming and that the player did not want blacks or females on the table. Harris asserted he was told by the pit boss that he had to be replaced and the reassignment was based upon gender and race. He contended the female floorperson who moved him on this occasion was also removed from the game. Harris stated he was replaced numerous times thereafter and that he was rescheduled before the game opened or that he was tapped off from the game if it was known that Libutti was coming to the casino.

Harris asserted that he was rescheduled at least three times toward the end of 1986. However, he could not specify any dates in which he was rescheduled. He asserted that he was off duty on Wednesdays and Thursdays, and on all other days he was scheduled to work pit #3, table #3. During the period in 1987, Harris could not recall the dates on which he was rescheduled. He asserted, moreover, that he was rescheduled on at least ten times, which averaged once per month. He stated he did not question his supervisors for the reasons for his reassignments. However, was a known fact Libutti did not care for blacks or females on his table, because the fact was discussed among the casino employees. Harris admitted on direct examination, that he had never heard Libutti request an all white male crew. Harris asserted, moreover that he had heard Libutti state that he did not want "dames" on his game. Harris asserted that when female game personnel were assigned to Libutti's game, Libutti would call out obscenities.

On cross examination, Harris testified among other things, that he did not recall the name of the floorperson who told him that Libutti did not like blacks or females on his game. Harris asserted it was common knowledge discussed in the employees lounge. Harris further testified that he did not know how many times he was reassigned. However, he stated in his sworn statement that it was 12 times he was reassigned while at the hearing he stated it was 14 to 15 times he was reassigned. Harris asserted further that he never asked why he was reassigned, but relied upon his own experience and what he had learned in the dealers lounge. Harris further testified that Libutti never made any racial slurs in Harris' presence.

Harris asserted that he never saw a black deal Libutti and never saw a female floorperson or a female boxperson. He testified that he believed it was a female floorperson who was the target of Libutti's obscenities, however, it could have been a pit boss. The female was not removed from Libutti's game.

Trump Plaza observes that on cross examination that Harris admitted he did not know the dates he was reassigned or even the names of the pit bosses who reassigned him. Harris claimed he knew of Mr. Libutti's preferences solely based on rumor and observation. Harris was not aware that John Leach, Richard Holmes or Everton Clark, all black males, serviced Libutti's game.

Trump Plaza contends that Harris' testimony was often contradictory. On direct examination he said he might have been at Libutti's table after May 1988, but in his sworn statement to the Division he stated that he had never dealt Libutti Harris claimed on direct that during his first six months he was reassigned for inexperience, however, in his sworn statement he stated that the period was not six but 12 months. On cross examination, Harris admitted that he had consulted with an attorney regarding a civil suit against Trump Plaza. He asserted that he would have filed one, but did not do so, due solely to the statute of limitation problems.

Trump Plaza further observes the testimony of other witnesses, where it was demonstrated that Harris lacked the qualifications to interact with Libutti. He lacked the ability and made mistakes. He was thought to be inexperienced and weak as a dealer.

Denise Bellamy, a black female, testified on behalf of the Division asserting that she had started her employment with Trump Plaza on May 2, 1984 as a permanent boxperson. Her prior experience was at Caesars Hotel and Casino beginning May of 1979 as a soft and hard count supervisor. In 1981 she became a craps dealer at Caesars.

Ms. Bellamy's supervisors encouraged her to seek the position of floorperson at Trump Plaza, however, she declined the offer for personal reasons. She asserted that she is divorced, the mother of a young daughter, and that the increase in salary for dual floorperson at Trump Plaza was not significant. These were the reasons she did not seek the promotion.

Ms. Bellamy stated that craps is a fast action game with large numbers of people betting a great deal of money. Her position as a boxperson was to oversee the game and to assure that the patrons were serviced properly. In so doing, she was to make certain that the dealers worked in a professional manner and that she was to rate patrons and also to evaluate the patrons for comps. As a boxperson on high action games, Ms. Bellamy often handled $1,000 chips on a daily basis and occasionally $5,000 chips. She asserted that she was never told by any supervisor that she could not handle high action or high limit games. She stated that it was more difficult to supervise low limit games because you have patrons betting between $5 and $1,000 with all types of bets.

In her December 1988 performance evaluation as a floorperson/boxperson, Bellamy received a score of 149 points out of a total of 200 points. In her 1987 performance evaluation as a floorperson/boxperson Bellamy received 141 points out of 200 points. She opined that these were "good" evaluations. She asserted she had never received a written notice of unsatisfactory performance.

Ms. Bellamy testified that she first learned of Libutti in 1986 when she acted as a boxperson for Libutti approximately five times. These occurred on a couple of occasions in pit #3, table #4 and a couple of occasions in pit #3, table #5. She asserted that Libutti's betting patterns were simple and the payments were not difficult.

In 1987, Bellamy acted as a boxperson for Libutti on two occasions. The first time was in pit #5, table #17, where she was sitting "double box" with Dante Benevenuto. She explained that in a double box situation an extra boxperson is in the pit to assist the first boxperson. Bellamy testified the pit boss asked her to stand up, after which the pit boss stated to Bellamy that Libutti did not want any blacks on his game. The pit boss asked Bellamy not to take it personally, however, she was removed from the game. She asserted she had never been removed from a game because of sex or race and that she was hurt and embarrassed over this situation.

Sometime after this situation, Bellamy was assigned to pit #3, and table #3 with the floorperson Carl Carpenter and the pit boss Sue Cioboldi. Bellamy was performing as a double boxperson for Libutti. Bellamy testified she heard Peter Libutti, Robert Libutti's uncle, state "I want that bitch off the table and I want her out of here." She observed Robert Libutti call Carpenter over to where Libutti was standing, however, she did not hear their conversation. She then observed Carpenter approach Sue Cioboldi after which Sue Cioboldi told Bellamy to leave the game. Cioboldi did not tell Bellamy why she was removed from the game nor did Bellamy ask why she was removed. She testified she was never again scheduled for Libutti's game thereafter.

Bellamy asserted that she talked with co-workers about Libutti's alleged preferences which included floorpersons and pit bosses. They talked about Libutti's alleged preferences and joked about it where Bellamy understood that Libutti did not want blacks or females on his game. She testified, on direct examination, that she never heard Libutti say he did not want blacks or females on his game. Bellamy was subsequently assigned by Gary Massey to pit #5 where Massey asked her to work on Libutti's game, however, Bellamy refused to do so.

On cross examination Trump Plaza observed that Bellamy claimed that the best crews were not always assigned to Libutti's game. However, in her sworn statement Bellamy asserted that only the better dealers, boxpersons and floorpersons were assigned to Libutti's game. On cross examination she stated that she considered herself above average or one of the better boxpersons employed at Trump Plaza at the time.

On cross examination Bellamy admitted there was an incident between the first and second occasions when she was removed from Libutti's game where she had a confrontation with Peter Libutti over a $50 bet. Robert Libutti was not at the table at the time, however, Peter Libutti became extremely angry. Bellamy acknowledged that this incident with Peter Libutti could have been the cause of her removal from Libutti's game on the second occasion. She could not state with any certainty that her removal from this game was because she was black or female.

On cross examination, Bellamy asserted she never heard from pit bosses, or persons with rank above pit boss, about Libutti's alleged preferences. She also stated she never heard Libutti state that he did not care for blacks or females on his game. She also stated that blacks and females dealt Libutti's game early in 1987 to 1988 including Monroe, Leach, Clark, Steinberg, Street and two other females, one white and one Hispanic. Bellamy also admitted that, at the time, she was the only black female boxperson. She further admitted that her source of information concerning Libutti's preferences was by the way of rumor and talk with her fellow workers.

Catherine Carlino, included in the Division's amended complaint, testified on behalf of the Division. She commenced employment with Trump Plaza as a floorperson in craps in the spring of 1984. She is also qualified as a boxperson. Carlino holds key licenses in blackjack, craps, and recently completed the requirements for baccarat. She asserted that she worked at Caesars for five years before coming to Trump Plaza where, as a dealer, she was promoted to dual rate floorperson/boxperson. Her work at Caesars involved high action and high limit games where she where she handled $5,000 chips.

She testified with regard to her employee performance appraisal at Trump Plaza for the 1984 year wherein she was rated on a range between 6 and 8 on a scale of 0 to 10. She opined that this was a good evaluation. On her 1985 supervisory annual performance review, Carlino did not sign the document because she believe it was discriminatory and could jeopardize her future in the gaming industry. She believed she was treated unfairly by her evaluators because she is a woman. On her floorperson/boxperson evaluation form for 1987, Carlino received comments calling her technical skills, without question, excellent. The evaluation also indicated she showed improvement in handling situations, but she lacks the diplomacy in dealing with others and was asked to improve to an even temperament. Carlino received a commendation from Trump Plaza for administering CPR to a heart attach victim. She also received a score a 99 out of 100 on a procedures test.

Ms. Carlino first became aware of Libutti late in 1986 when she was the floorperson on his game at pit #3, table #3. She recalled that she was the floorperson on his game from approximately 1:30 pm. until 5:45 p.m. where he bet a great deal of money. She asserted there were no problems and there was nothing unusual about the game. She testified she subsequently was the floorperson on Libutti's game three to five times and a few times in 1986, 1987 and 1988. She described Libutti as a fairly simple player and that his action was not difficult to supervise.

She testified concerning one incident where Libutti was yelling and screaming that he did not want women on his game. Ms. Carlino testified that she was not removed from the game and that this incident occurred late in 1987.

Ms. Carlino testified that she was not scheduled thereafter to be the floorperson for Libutti's games. She testified she believed she was rescheduled away from Libutti's game at least eight times from late 1987 until June of 1988. She contended that during those times she believed she was rescheduled away from Mr. Libutti's game she was replaced by white males; i.e., Guy Renzi, Mike Scardina, Billy Schillingford and John Brown.

Ms. Carlino asserted the first time she believed she was rescheduled from Libutti's game was when she was in pit #5, game #18. She asserted that the normal rotation would have been for her to go to pit #3, table #3. When she arrived at pit #3, pit boss Gary Massey told her she would be going to game #6 instead of pit #3, table #3. She inquired of Massey as to the reason she was being reassigned

Whereupon, she testified, Massey told her that Mr. Libutti would be arriving and Libutti did not want women on his game. Ms. Carlino testified she was replaced by Guy Renzi.

A few weeks after this first incident of rescheduling, Carlino was scheduled to go to pit #3, game 3, when the floorperson told her to go to game #6. She asked the pit boss, John Ciafardone, why she was going to game #6 and, she testified, that Ciafardone told her because "that's where I assigned you and we have the right to reassign you if we want to." Carlino asked Ciafardone if she was being rescheduled because Libutti did not like women. Ciafardone did not answer Carlino.

Ms. Carlino testified that she also questioned dual rate pit boss/shift manager Louis Gutierrez in late 1987 concerning Libutti's alleged preferences. She asserted that Mr. Gutierrez told her that Libutti did not want women or blacks on his game. She asserted she stopped questioning her reassignments because she did not want to make waves.

Carlino asserted that she personally observed Libutti as a very hostile person where she saw him throwing gaming chips valued at $100 each. She also observed Libutti throw a die into a chandelier. She observed him screaming, yelling and cursing and that he was like a child having a temper tantrum.

Ms. Carlino testified that she had brought an equal employment opportunity (EEOC) grievance against the management of Trump Plaza and that Libutti and his activities were mentioned as one of the aspects in her grievance. She contended that the grievance had not been resolved as of the time of the hearing.

Trump Plaza observes that, on cross examination, Ms. Carlino's performance evaluations demonstrated that she needed improvement with her temperament and she lacked tact and diplomacy. Trump Plaza also observes that despite Carlino's claim on direct examination that Libutti was one of the reasons she filed EEOC grievance, that in fact Libutti's name was never mentioned in the grievance. On direct examination, Carlino stated she had received no response or action with regard to her grievance. However, on cross examination she admitted that on October 19, 1989, she had a meeting with Sandy Rodriquez of Trump Plaza, specifically with regard to the grievance.

Ms. Carlino admitted on cross examination that she had acquired the reputation and nickname as "the colonel." The nickname, the colonel, was applied to her by employees and patrons alike and was a consequence of her inflexibility with respect to the rules of procedure. She was seen as being extremely strict.

On cross examination Ms. Carlino asserted that she did not recall any blacks or females, deal, box or floor Libutti between 1986 and 1988. The record notes however, that she was the floorperson for him during this period. She did not see Melissa Steinberg on Libutti's table; she did not recall seeing Ms. Street on Libutti's table nor did she recall Carman Degas on Libutti's table during this time period. She also asserted she did not recall seeing any black males on Libutti's table. She did not see or observe John Leach on Libutti's table, Everton Clark, or Mr. Holmes during this period.

Ms. Carlino testified that she was turned down for the position of dual rate floorperson/pit boss promotion. She asserted that she was extremely upset at the time. It is also observed that Carlino was on leave of absence between January and March of 1989 and she was not assigned or reassigned to any table during that period.

Paul Laviolette, a white male, testified on behalf of the Division. Prior to 1986, Laviolette held a triple rate as a boxperson, floorperson, and pit boss. In 1986, he became a dual rated floorperson and pit boss. Laviolette has had 26-1/2 years experience in the casino industry.

In or about January 1985 he was terminated from the Sands Hotel and Casino for his failure to support management. He contended that the then new Sands management had changed some policies which he believed were detrimental to employee moral. He attempted to have the policies changed and apparently management believed he was not supporting it. Laviolette subsequently learned that the Sands had fired him for incompetence.

Laviolette testified he became a pit boss at Trump Plaza in 1988, and part of his duties and responsibilities was to supervise eight tables and all of the personnel in the pit. In addition, he was to schedule personnel. Laviolette testified that he never scheduled Libutti's game. He did testify that he had the opportunity on one, or possibly two, occasions to give the pit boss assigned to Libutti 30 minute breaks. On those occasions, he testified that Libutti never made a request of him to have white male dealers at his gaming table.

Laviolette testified that after Libutti's third visit to the Trump Plaza he became aware of a directive made by an unidentified individual whom he suggested was either a pit boss, an assistant shift manager or a shift manager that he, Laviolette, was not to put blacks or females on Libutti's games. He asserted that this directive was oral and was made to him sometime in 1986. He also asserted that management, through the late Steven Hyde then president of Trump Plaza, ordered that only full time personnel be assigned to Libutti's game. This meant that dual rated persons were only to be assigned to their lower rating while dealing Libutti.

Laviolette testified that he never saw a black person deal, box, or supervise a Libutti game during the 1986-88 period. He stated that he did not discuss the alleged directive with respect to not assigning blacks or females to Libutti's table with his peers or other pit bosses. However, he heard conversations in the cafeteria and overheard pit bosses discussing Libutti's preferences. He admitted that there is a great deal of gossiping that goes on in the casino industry where individuals react to events which occur on the casino floor. He testified that rumors get blown out of proportion and even may not be true. He asserted that in some instances, it is very difficult to distinguish the difference between rumor and fact in the casino industry

On cross examination Laviolette testified, among other things, that Libutti was an unusual patron, however, Laviolette had never seen Libutti pick on any particular race or sex. While Laviolette testified at this hearing that he never saw a minority on Libutti's table, in his statement to the Division he asserted that he had seen minorities on Libutti's game.

Laviolette testified that in his opinion the most qualified craps dealers on the day shift during the time period May 1986 to June 1986 were all white males Laviolette further testified with respect to his opinion about certain Trump Plaza employees and whether or not he would assign them to Libutti's table, as follows

Denise Bellamy - Laviolette knows her and would not assign her to Libutti's table. He stated that she does not have the mental and physical dexterity necessary to deal Mr. Libutti nor does she have the ability to handle the size of his wagers and she cannot complete the payoffs rapidly enough to be able to satisfy Libutti's play. He also opined that Bellamy was a weak dealer.

Gwendolyn Torian - Laviolette opined that she was also a very weak dealer due, perhaps, to her lack of experience. He further asserted that she does not have the ability to compute rapidly enough to handle Libutti's type of pressure. Laviolette further testified that he had never heard anyone tell Torian that she was being removed from a table because she was a female.

Newton Brown - Laviolette testified that he would not assign Brown to Mr. Libutti's game because he does not have the mental and physical dexterity necessary to deal Mr. Libutti. He contended that Brown was an extremely weak dealer and only recently had begun to show improvement in his capacity.

Louis Monroe - Laviolette testified that Monroe does have some talent as a dealer but lacks the ability to maintain composure in difficult situations.

Arlene Daniels - Laviolette testified that although it was his understanding that Daniels is no longer employed at Trump Plaza, he would not assign her to Libutti's table because she does not have sufficient experience nor the mental capacities to deal his game.

Catherine Carlino - He stated he would not assign her to Libutti's game because she becomes easily flustered.

Dwain Harris - Laviolette asserted that he would not put Harris on Libutti's game because he would be gambling on his ability to handle it.

Carl Carpenter - Laviolette understood that Carpenter was a supervisor and he had only known him as a supervisor. Laviolette had no opinion as to Carpenter's ability as a dealer. Laviolette stated that his earliest recollections with respect to Carpenter was that he had not supervised very long and, on several occasions, Laviolette noted that Carpenter allowed erroneous payoffs to take place under his supervision. In view of that, Laviolette would not allow Carpenter on Libutti's game.

Laviolette testified that for these reasons, if any of the above employees had ever been removed or reassigned from Libutti's game during the period of May 1986 to May 1988, it certainly was not based upon race or sex. Rather, the removal could have been for their inability to handle the game.

Melissa Steinberg, a white female, was called by and testified on behalf of Trump Plaza. Ms. Steinberg was employed by Trump Plaza from the period May 1984 until October 1989 where she then went to the Trump Taj Mahal Hotel and Casino where she is serving as a pit boss. She testified with respect to her promotions while at Trump Plaza. In any event, she was initially hired at Trump Plaza as a dealer and subsequently promoted to the position of dual rate floorperson prior to May 1988.

Ms. Steinberg described the game of craps by using a mock up of a craps table illustrating the various bets that can be made by the patrons and the odds on each of those bets. Ms. Steinberg also demonstrated the positions of the dealers; i.e., the stickperson, second base, third base, boxperson, and floorperson. She described the functions of each of the employees at the craps table asserting, that craps is an extremely complicated game with over 50,000 possible bets. She demonstrated that eight patrons could be stationed on each side of the craps table allowing for 16 players at one time; all of whom could participate in the betting on a single roll of the dice. She asserted that there were 86 varieties of odds at any table and that betting by the patrons or the dice thrower may be made while the dice are in the air and before they strike the table. Ms. Steinberg's description of the various plays and the various odds shall not be recited here.

Ms. Steinberg testified that it takes at least one year to learn the game of craps. She asserted even after such a lengthy learning period some people never become proficient with the game. She described the attributes necessary for a craps dealer as follows: The individual must be able to handle stress, a quick tempe should never be on the game of craps. The craps dealer must have the basic tools of addition, subtraction and multiplication and be able to figure the payouts rapidly. There are so many odds and so many different combinations of bets that mistakes are made on payouts due to the individuals lack of the basic tools of addition, subtraction and multiplication. She also stated that the individual craps dealer must have the ability to get along with patrons because the attitude of the dealer is extremely important. And, of course, knowledge of the job is extremely important in handling the chips because everything is open and must be seen. The craps dealer must verbalize every bet in clear and concise language and communicate to all the people at the table. The dealer must also know the colors of the chips because of the odds and in changing chips can complicate the payout. The knowledge of the odds is extremely important because the total payouts must be accurate and quick. She asserted that although one person cannot know everything of the game while it is being played, game protection cannot be compromised. The game pace must be rapid and ongoing. She asserted that craps is the most difficult game in the casino.

Ms. Steinberg asserted that all craps dealers are not able to deal high action or high level games. Management makes a determination to place the better dealers at the high action/high level games. Management decides what action is contemplated at a particular craps table and then dictates the crew to be assigned to that table. She contended that the higher action and the higher level of the game demanded the more proficient personnel, which include the dealers, floorperson and boxperson. Only those with high ability would be assigned to the high action, high level games.

Ms. Steinberg testified that she had had experience with high rollers and proceeded to name six such individuals. She asserted that she was always assigned to the high roller action at Trump Plaza and was always able to handle the high action which she described as $500 bets and above. She asserted that at a high action table the craps dealer would handle all denominations of chips, which made it very difficult to make payouts. Ms. Steinberg proceeded to describe the various color of chips and the maximum bet per roll and the maximum to be bet at any one time by a single player. She asserted that cutting down the chips, or she referred to them as checks, created various problems for dealers. She also described that high rollers or those in the high action, high level games had betting patterns which could be anticipated. However, the betting patterns of these high rollers changed from time to time due to the variables in the craps game. She asserted that craps action tends to become loud and boisterous by the patrons and that not all boxpersons or dealers are able to handle the patrons outbursts because the employee may take some of the outbursts personally.

Ms. Steinberg testified she first met Libutti in 1986 when the late Steven Hyde was appointed president of Trump Plaza. She stated she had over 20 contacts with Libutti as a craps dealer and even more as a boxperson on craps games. Ms. Steinberg testified that when she served as Libutti's boxperson in 1987, Libutti talked to her about his tragic life. Among the tragedies was the death of his 30 year old son who apparently died of drug abuse. She stated that Libutti told her that losing at the gaming table was more exciting than winning; it was the only way to forget his son. Ms. Steinberg described Libutti as very intelligent before he gets his marker and that his disposition was agreeable when he was winning at the table. However, when Libutti was losing, he became extremely angry with everyone and blamed everyone for his losses. She analogized his behavior and demeanor to that of Dr. Jeckyll and Mr. Hyde. She asserted he disliked everyone when he was losing.

Ms. Steinberg opined that Mr. Libutti was inhibited around women, except when she was dealing or serving as a boxperson on his table. She also asserted that Libutti had his favorite dealers which he wished to have on his game. Libutti's favorites included, among others, Vince LaSasso, Robert Henneffer, John Leach, Maria Street, Debbie Goldstein, Carmen Vega and Melissa Steinberg. She asserted that Libutti felt comfortable with all of the above individuals. She asserted that LaSasso is a white male as is Henneffer; Leach is a black male, while Maria Street is a while female as is Debbie Goldstein, and Carmen Vega is Hispanic. She asserted that all of these individuals had technical skills for the game and could make the correct payouts. Their personalities were much the same and they made people comfortable when they were at the table.

Ms. Steinberg asserted there came a time when she was thrown off Libutti's game as was LaSasso and Henneffer a couple of times. She asserted that Libutti never had any employee thrown off his game because race or gender. She contended Libutti was more careful with blacks and females than with white males.

Libutti especially liked Steinberg on his game because she had developed a special rapport with him. She stated that on many occasions when Libutti was looking for somebody to blame for his losses or a scape goat, he would have the whole crew removed, except for her.

Ms. Steinberg stated she had heard rumors around the casino that Libutti did not like blacks or females on his game. She stated she also heard rumors about altercations involving Libutti and her which never happened on the game. She stated one day she went to the breakroom and people were talking about Steinberg dealing to Libutti and that Libutti had called her the "C" word. Steinberg asserted that it never happened, however, all of the employees were talking about the situation and calling Steinberg this word. Ms. Steinberg stated there were rumors in the lounge, or breakroom, among the employees all of the time and that a great deal of the time the rumors turned out not to be true. She stated there was a time when she was in the breakroom where it was rumored that she was having an affair with Robert Libutti. She stated it was absurd, however, everyone believed it to be true.

Steinberg testified that Trump Plaza management placed the best employees on Libutti's table. She asserted that Libutti plays upon mistakes made by dealers and if one mistake is made, he will use that against the dealer. By of illustration, Steinberg testified as follows:

> I'll just give you an experience that I had as a dealer with him. He was throwing in money while I was dealing and he was throwing the dice at the same time and pressing his bets. At the time, he has a maximum of $10,000 and there are two ways to get to the number. He also has a maximum on the hard ways which is three times the players maximum.
> So if he's got a $10,00 maximum, he could get a payoff on the proposition area of $30,000. He was throwing in a bet. Now, me, as a dealer, had to book that bet; also make sure that that bet was right, that I call out the right amount. That it was clear and that it wasn't over his maximums because when you make a mistake with Mr. Libutti, he plays upon it. If you make one mistake, he uses it against everybody one mistake. Once he sees you fall, when he's in this irate stage, he plays upon it. (TR. Feb. 9, 1990, pp. 179-180).

Ms. Steinberg testified that when Libutti started to lose, he changed his betting pattern. She asserted that he would roll the dice and while the dice were in the air, before they had struck the table, he would change his bets. She asserted that Libutti only use orange chips and that the purple chips were not allowed on his table as a consequence of his superstition. He would use black chips in place of purple chips which could confuse the dealer in determining the odds and making a payout. She stated as time went on there was nothing typical about Mr. Libutti. By way of illustration Ms. Steinberg testified as follows:

> There was no typical any more. There was nothing that was typical with Mr. Libutti. He had changed completely. He went from not using the black anymore and he's going to use the orange, and put eight blacks on there. Now we got to figure out the odds, what he's allowed to take in, true double odds, whatever the point comes out to. Now I got to utilize my brain because there are different odds you can take with different amounts of money on the pass line.
>
> Nothing is just cut and dry. Where, alright, I have $1800. I'm going to double that and give him -- his allowed to take $3,600 odds. Especially on the 6 and the 8, you have to go to single odds and double it. So you have to memorize a lot of things. Now he's got this...one orange... I'm sorry. So you have $1,900 here. Now he's...now I have to tell him what odds he's allowed to take...from his maximum odds because he can only go up to a certain amount on his odds. Now the point is 4. And he wants to buy this for $10,000. No, not $10,000. I'm sorry. He starts with $2,000 which is different. Then while he's throwing the dice, he says, I want to put another $1,000 on it and throws it on there. Now my job is to say bet $1,000 more, press on the buy number. Then he throws $3,000 more, then he says, take it off the pass line and put it on the number. Where it's marked up on the 4. He says take this off, because now he feels like this is unlucky being on the pass line. Take this off and put it over there. Me, as the dealer, I'm getting fried and I'm trying real hard not to break. And it's real difficult.
>
> Now he's taking this number that is over here and he wants it down and now I have to give him --not only do I have to take this down, I have to give him back his vig that he paid for it, the vig, because he get's it back, when he takes it down. Now when I give it to him, he throws it back at me and telling me to place the six. This was common. Money was all over the layout. I was actually scrambling to get every single check up so a die wouldn't > land on it. Because he would complain if there was an obstruction (TR. Feb. 9, 1990, pp. 192-194).

Ms. Steinberg testified that no one was more difficult to deal than Libutti.

In January 1988, Libutti had Steinberg removed from his table. It was a night that Mike Tyson was boxing at the Trump Plaza. She stated she was working the swing shift and had come in early, around 6:30 in the evening. She sat in on Libutti's game after the day shift. She asserted it was around 7:20 in the evening when the day shift was closing out the game, Libutti was beating (winning) the day shift for about $500,000. She stated the swing shift was now present and he's walking up with $500,000 worth of checks. Libutti then started winning what she believed to be another $100,000 on the swing shift. She believed he must have been up to $600,000 in winnings which included $500,000 for the day shift and another $100,000 for the swing shift. She stated that Libutti did a complete turn around and blew back (lost) the $600,000; the $500,000 he won on the day shift and the $100,000 that he was winning on the swing shift, plus some more of his money. Ms. Steinberg asserted that Libutti then became irate and looked at her, and she knew it was over. Ms. Steinberg asserted that she walked away and she heard Libutti say something about "I don't want the Jew on the table anymore. She's bringing me back luck." And from then on, she asserted, Libutti would always say hello to her and be very cordial but she never sat on his game again thereafter.

Ms. Steinberg testified as to certain employees that were typically assigned to Libutti's crew. She gave the following assessments:

> Richard Holmes, a black man who served as a boxperson for Libutti in 1986. She described John Leach as a good dealer with sound technical skills. She described Vince LaSasso as excellent with people, excellent with peers and excellent with payouts. She asserted that Robert Henneffer was a very strong individual who knows every payout. She asserted that Hennefer very rarely makes a mistake and that he knows how to handle people very well. She asserted that Maria Street was more on the quiet side but she's very good. Street handles people very well. Street was a boxperson during this period. She described Debbie Goldstein as one who tends to get flustered. Goldstein tended to run out of patience, but she had very strong technical skills. She described Carmen Vega, a Hispanic female, as very, very good.

In her description of others she described them as follows:

Arlene Daniels - Steinberg used to work with Daniels as a dealer and then they were both promoted to dual rate box status which means dealer/supervisor. Daniels was at a meeting one day and every word out of her mouth was "f---ing." However, she was promoted to a boxperson. When asked to comment on Daniels abilities, Steinberg responded about her lack of. "I don't think she has any." Steinberg asserted that Daniels has actually been dealing the game without knowing what she is doing, that she just deals the game. It is something that has become very routine to Daniels. Any bet that is placed in front of her that is out of the ordinary Daniels would not have an answer when asked. Steinberg described Daniels as very mechanical. She also asserted that Daniels had a terrible attitude, she is abrupt and uses a lot of vulgarity. Ms. Steinberg asserted that she would absolutely not assign Arlene Daniels to Libutti's table.

Cathy Carlino - Ms. Steinberg worked under Carlino as a dealer and as a subordinate. Subsequently she worked as a boxperson and then as a floorperson with Carlino and then as a dual rated pit boss. Ms. Steinberg stated that Carlino's technical skills are sound and that she's very good and she gets her numbers out. She asserted that Carlino was very devious and she makes a person feel very, very small and intimidated with her words. She described Carlino as being one sided and there's only Carlino's side of a debate. A person is never allowed to talk to her about something when she makes a statement, that's all there is to it. Steinberg asserted that Carlino treated players exactly the way she treated her subordinates and that there was no room for discussion. Steinberg stated that she would not assign Carlino to any game.

Ms. Steinberg testified that in August of 1989, she was promoted about two weeks before this matter was initiated and that Carlino was very irate about the fact that Steinberg was promoted over Carlino. Steinberg asserted that Carlino talked to one of Steinberg's girlfriends and said, to the effect, that Carlino was going to fix their (Trump Plaza's) wagon with the Libutti trial. Ms. Steinberg identified her girlfriend as Sue Rutledge, a boxperson at Trump Plaza at the time. Steinberg also stated that Joe Morrel also told her that he had heard Carlino state that she would get even with Trump Plaza.

Denise Bellamy - Ms. Steinberg stated that Bellamy was a boxperson to Steinberg when Steinberg was a dealer and that Bellamy was also a subordinate and a peer. With regard to Bellamy's ability, Steinberg asserted that Bellamy was pretty sound. She's got the answer, however, she's generally intimidated and she does not like to be in a situation where confrontation could arise because she over reacts to it. Steinberg asserted that Bellamy has already made it clear that she did not want to be anywhere near Libutti's game.

Louis Monroe - Steinberg asserted that at one point Monroe was a very good dealer. However, for some reason something happened and he seemed to have a chip on his shoulder. She asserted Monroe believed that everybody was after him, whether it was a player, a peer, supervisor or a friend, it did not matter. Steinberg stated that in the beginning she would have assigned him to Libutti's game; towards the end, however, when Monroe's personality definitely changed and it was so apparent, Steinberg stated that she would not assign him to Libutti's game.

Dwain Harris - Steinberg stated she was the boxperson and Harris' pit boss/floorperson. Steinberg observed that he has no input in the game. Harris just watches the game, and he gets paid. Steinberg stated that she saw him make mistakes on the game and directed the payoff wrong when she was the pit boss and that she intervened between the floorperson and Harris. She stated she would absolutely not assign Harris to any of Libutti's games.

Newton Brown - Ms. Steinberg asserted that he is strange, to say the least. She asserted that Brown believed that he is an excellent dealer, however, he has never stopped to learn the game. She stated that because he is too busy thinking that he's good he makes a ton of mistakes, constantly, one after the other and he continues to make the same mistakes. She asserted she would not assign Brown to Libutti's game.

Gwendolyn Torian - Ms. Steinberg stated that Torian was a boxperson when Steinberg was a dealer. Torian was Steinberg's supervisor and Steinberg testified that when you are a break-in dealer, you depend upon your supervisor to teach you the game and to help you get the right payoff. Everytime Steinberg would look to Torian for an answer, Torian never had the answer because she was not watching the game. Steinberg would absolutely not assign Torian to a Libutti game.

Carl Carpenter - Steinberg asserted that she liked Carpenter very much. Steinberg stated that he was an excellent supervisor and she learned a great deal from him. She asserted that during this period Carpenter was going through a difficult time with his wife and that Carpenter's attitude had completely changed. She stated that Carpenter had advised Steinberg that he was interested in getting out of the casino business and suggested that he might be going to Las Vegas. He also stated to Steinberg that he was going to voice his opposition toward Trump Plaza at every opportunity.

Ms. Steinberg stated that Arlene Daniels, Cathy Carlino, Denise Bellamy, Louis Monroe, Dwain Harris, Newton Brown, Gwendolyn Torian, and Carl Carpenter all have been passed over for promotions and that they each asserted they were going to get even with Trump Plaza.

John J. Leach, Jr., a black male, testified on behalf of Trump Plaza, asserting, among other things, that he is presently employed as a pit boss. He testified as to his rapid promotions over a five year period while employed at Trump Plaza. Leach testified that he is very professional in his games. This is his career, for which he has studied hard to achieve the recognition that he presently holds. He stated that he began his career in the casino industry dealing in craps. With the passage of time, he has now learned all of the games.

Mr. Leach is quite familiar with craps and asserts that it is a complex game with numerous odds and crossbets. He asserted there are 92 different ways to bet by one individual and when you have a maximum of 16 people on one game, it becomes even more complex.

Mr. Leach asserted he was familiar with Libutti and had dealt Libutti in excess of 20 times and had supervised his game of craps. He first dealt Libutti in 1986. He asserted that Libutti is a high roller. Leach described a high roller as minimum bets of $1,000 to $10,000 and bets that can be as high as $100,000 on one roll. He saw Libutti bet $40,000 on one roll. He asserted that Libutti's bet was generally simple where Libutti would bet the 4's and 10's; then the 6 and 8; and then the 5's and 9's. Leach asserted that after a while Libutti's betting pattern changed.

Mr. Leach described Libutti's personality as follows; if Libutti was winning he was calm and friendly. However, when Libutti started to lose, Libutti was beside himself. Libutti would scream, yell, become profane, throw betting chips and generally become abusive. Libutti was abusive to his body guard, his chauffeur, his friends and the dealers. Leach testified that Libutti's behavior and abusiveness was not directed at any race, sex or nationality. He further asserted that Libutti did not express a preference of gaming personnel.

Leach testified that he was not aware that Libutti had his favorites of gaming personnel on his games. He heard of rumors that Libutti did not want females or blacks. Leach was not told this by his supervisors of Libutti's alleged preferences, rather, he had heard it as rumors on the gaming floor. Leach stated that between the period 1986 and May 1988 he recalled that Louis Monroe, a black male, dealt Libutti. He further testified that he had seen Denise Bellamy, a black female as the boxperson on Libutti's game. He also stated that Carl Carpenter, a black male, was the floorperson on Libutti's game as was Melissa Steinberg, a white female, deal on his game.

Mr. Leach asserted that Libutti was highly superstitious. He testified that Libutti requested that dealers, floorpersons and/or boxpersons be removed from his game to change the luck of his game because of his superstitions. Leach asserted that Libutti's request to remove these people was because of his superstition and not because of race or sex.

Mr. Leach testified that the pit boss would take the best crew and move it to Libutti's table. The crew generally was very customer oriented. Libutti's crew had an indepth understanding of the game because of the rapid pace of the game with Libutti. Leach asserted the crew must know the game very well in order to service Libutti. Leach asserted there were certain individuals who asked not to be placed on Libutti's game. He asserted that Libutti occasionally received an all white crew because they were the best dealers at the time; the cream of the crop.

Mr. Leach testified he was removed from Libutti's game when he was on the stick at one time. He asserted that while he was on the stick, the house took $50,000 from Libutti in 15 minutes. Libutti became frantic, hostile and used abusive language; not necessarily direct at Leach. Leach asserted there were no racial comments addressed to him by Libutti. In any event, Libutti called for the management to remove Leach from the game. Leach asserted that he would have responded to Libutti to any racial remarks Libutti would have addressed to him, however, none were addressed to Leach. The next day, Leach was called into the office and commended for his professional demeanor and commended for a job well done. Leach asserted that thereafter he dealt Libutti. Management had asked Leach if he was willing to deal Libutti and Leach agreed that he would deal the patron. Mr. Leach asserted that Mr. Libutti had never called Leach a "black bastard" as Arlene Daniels testified.

On cross examination, Leach asserted that all craps dealers do not know how to play the game of craps. He asserted that it is harder to payoff 5's and 9's from 4's and 10's. The odds of the 5's and 9's are at 5 to 7, while the odds of 4's and 10's are at 2 to 1.

Leach asserted that Libutti did not make any racial slurs when Leach was on Libutti's table. Leach does not recall what profanity was used by Libutti.

Leach further testified, on cross examination, that rumors about Libutti and Libutti's alleged preferences was heard from dealers in the dealers lounge. Leach testified he did not hear such rumors from boxpersons or floorpersons. He also asserted he did not talk with Gwen Torian about such rumors.

Maria Street, a white female, testified on behalf of Trump Plaza. She has been employed as a craps dealer, boxperson and is presently a floorperson at Trump Plaza. She asserted she sat box for Libutti approximately 30 times. She was never removed nor replaced while sitting box on Libutti's game. She testified, moreover, that Libutti had white males removed from his game when Libutti was losing.

Ms. Street testified concerning Libutti's personality and described it as being loud, and that he did not like people to watch him gamble. She asserted he was superstitious and that he would become irate and temperamental on occasions. She stated that Libutti's personality was affected by his winning or losing. Libutti's behavior was directed mainly upon himself, although he could get angry at people walking by or at commission employees for just watching him gamble.

Street testified that Libutti had never expressed a preference of gaming personnel to her. She stated that Libutti liked Melissa Steinberg and Vince LaSasso and one other individual to work his games. Street testified she heard rumors that Libutti only wanted white males on his game. She asserted she heard this in the locker room and on the casino floor. However, no supervisor ever expressed such a statement to her. Street was aware of black males, black females and white females who served on Libutti's game. She mentioned Carlton Carpenter, John Leach, Vanessa Stone, Ellen Ruff, Carmen Vega, Joyce Herman, Sue Ciobaldi as well as Melissa Steinberg and herself. She asserted that anyone removed from Libutti's game was not removed because of race or sex. She further asserted that the white males were the best qualified dealers in this time period.

On cross examination Ms. Street testified, among other things, that Libutti was irate, loud, abusive to everyone. Street opined that he was the most abusive person she knew. She heard that Melissa Steinberg was thrown off Libutti's game and asserted that Steinberg's removal from the game by Libutti was not for the reason of her sex but, rather, because Libutti was losing at the game. She stated on cross she never heard Libutti make any sexual or racial slurs to anyone.

Gary Leon Noa, a white male, is a craps dealer at Trump Plaza and testified on its behalf. He has been in the casino industry for 10 years and he observes that his supervisors consider him to be one of the better dealers.

Noa asserted he dealt Libutti approximately 25 and 30 times between the dates of 1986 and 1988. He asserted that on one occasion he was asked to tap into table #18, where a dealer was dealing Libutti and was not able to handle the game.

Mr. Noa opined that Libutti is moody and superstitious and would attack his family before attacking a dealer. He also asserted that Libutti's behavior was not directed at any race or sex and that Libutti would have employees thrown off of his table on a whim.

Noa did hear that Libutti preferred white males as dealers. He was not told this by any of his supervisors. He observed, moreover, that Libutti requested that white male dealers be thrown off Libutti's game.

Noa testified that management attempted to put the best dealers and boxpersons on Libutti's table. He further stated that a few people did not want to be on Libutti's game. Noa admitted he was removed from Libutti's game two or three times. In 1987, he understood Libutti believed that Noa was calling too many "7 outs." Libutti yelled and screamed, however, he did not curse at Noa.

On cross examination Noa stated he had heard the rumors in the dealer's lounge that Libutti preferred white males on his game. He further asserted he did not hear about Libutti's preferences from any boxperson or pit boss. He also stated that when he dealt Libutti, there were women and blacks on Libutti's table. He further stated he did not know whether Trump Plaza had any special policy concerning Libutti.

Other witnesses presented by Trump Plaza testified much the same as the testimony set forth hereinbefore by Trump Plaza witnesses. Those include Ellen Rush, Susan Ciboldi, Richard W. Holmes, John Ciafardone, Karen Lee Wisher, Gary and Christopher Ford and Gary Massey.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the testimony and documentary evidence adduced at the hearing; and having given fair weight thereto, I FIND the following FACTS in this matter:

There is absolutely no question or doubt that Robert Libutti was afforded special privileges and considerations by management while he gambled at the Trump Plaza between May 1986 and June 1988. It is undisputed that while he was winning at the gaming tables, Libutti's behavior and demeanor was agreeable, and he behaved as a gentleman. It is further undisputed that when he was losing at the gaming table, Libutti became loud and boisterous, shouting profanities and obscenities at anyone within earshot or at no one in particular. Libutti was indiscreet with his use of profane and obscene vocabulary, shouting it in the presence of his employees, his family members, Trump Plaza employees and strangers who were Trump Plaza patrons. It mattered not to Libutti that his remarks would or could be offensive to others; i.e., females, blacks, Hispanics, or other ethnic or religious groups and individuals.

Libutti's reputation for being a high roller was well known among the Trump Plaza employees. His abusive manner towards people was equally well known Libutti's reputation, demeanor and behavior became the source of conversation, rumor and gossip among Trump Plaza employees in the dealer's lounge, the coffee shop and the cafeteria. Each of the Division's witnesses testified that it was rumor, gossip and hearsay which formed the basis of their individual understanding of Libutti's alleged preferences that he did not want blacks or females assigned to his gaming table.

None of the Trump Plaza employees who testified in this matter ever heard Libutti state that he did not want blacks or females assigned to the craps tables upon which he played. None of the employees who testified in this matter ever heard Libutti state that he wanted only white males assigned to his gaming tables.

None of the Trump Plaza black or female employees who testified in this matter complained to the Division or the Trump Plaza management that they, individually, had been discriminated against as the result of being removed or not assigned to Libutti's gaming table. Rather, it was the Division's representatives who sought out these individual Trump Plaza employees prior to its filing its complaint against Trump Plaza with the Commission.

The record clearly demonstrates that at all times relevant to the Division's complaint and amended complaint, blacks and females did, in fact, service Libutti as dealer, boxperson and floorperson, while Libutti gambled at Trump Plaza. The record also demonstrates that white male employees were removed from Libutti's game more frequently than blacks or females.

The record shows that although the Division's witnesses believed they each had the experience and qualifications to work Libutti's game; those in supervisory positions believed otherwise. Paul Laviolette, the Division's witness, testified, credibly, that during the period May 1986 to June 1988, the most qualified craps dealers on the day shift were all white males. He further testified, credibly, that as a pit boss, he would not have assigned the Division's witnesses to Libutti's game for such reasons as; weak dealer (Denise Bellamy), very weak dealer due to lack of experience and inability to compute rapidly (Gwendolyn Torian), lacks physical and mental dexterity (Newton Brown), lacks ability to maintain composure in difficult situations (Louis Monroe), lacks sufficient experience and mental capacity (Arlene Daniels), becomes easily flustered (Catherine Carlino), lack of ability (Dwain Harris) and, allowed erroneous payouts (Carl Carpenter). Melissa Steinberg similarly testified concerning the assignment of the Division's witnesses to Libutti's game. Ms. Steinberg's credible testimony indicated that Bellamy, Torian, Brown, Monroe, Daniels, Carlino, Harris and Carpenter had all been passed over for promotion at Trump Plaza and that each of them were seeking an opportunity by which to "get even" with Trump Plaza management.

Only one of the witnesses who testified on behalf of the Division could state, with any degree of certainty, as to the date the individual employee was removed from Libutti's game during the period May 1986 to June 1988. The dates testified to were shown to be false because the witness did not work on the days set forth on the record. Gwendolyn Torian stated in her unsworn interview that she was reassigned from Libutti's game on May 15 or 16, 1988. The record shows that Torian left work due to illness on May 15, 1988 and did not return to work on May 16, 1988.

None of the Division's witnesses could testify, with any certainty, that they were more qualified than those who replaced them on Libutti's table to perform the duties of the craps game. The Division did not place any of the replacement employees personnel records on the herein record in order for this tribunal to make a comparison of their respective qualifications with those employees replaced.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The Division brings this action against Trump Plaza by way of complaint and amended complaint, wherein the Division alleges Trump Plaza to have violated provisions of the Casino Control Act, N.J.S.A. 5:12-134b. and c. and the applicable regulations, N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5; together with the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq. The statute and regulations cited by the Division are set forth hereinbelow as follows:

> N.J.S.A. 5:12-134
>
> b. No license shall be issued by the commission to any applicant, including a casino service industry as defined in section 12 of this act, who has not agreed to afford an equal employment opportunity to all prospective employees in accordance with an affirmative-action program approved by the commission and consonant with the provisions of the "Law Against Discrimination," P.L. 1945, c. 169 (C. 10:5-1 et seq.).
>
> c. Each applicant shall formulate for commission approval and abide by an affirmative-action program of equal opportunity whereby the applicant guarantees to provide equal employment opportunity to rehabilitated offenders eligible under sections 90 and 91 of this act and members of minority groups qualified for licensure in all employment categories, including the handicapped, in accordance with the provisions of the "Law Against Discrimination," P.L. 1945, c. 169 (C. 10:5-1 et seq.), except in the case of the mentally handicapped, if it can be clearly shown that such handicap would prevent such person from performing a particular job.

The relevant portions of the applicable regulations at N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5 are set forth as follows:

(a) Affirmative action programs required by N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.3(b) shall include the following:

1. A guaranty that the applicant or licensee will not discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because of age, race, creed, color, national origin, ancestry, marital status, sex, liability for service in the armed forces of the United States, or because of mental handicap or physical handicap where reasonable accommodation may be made to allow for such handicap without causing an undue hardship on the operation of the business of the applicant or licensee, or because the employee or applicant for employment is a rehabilitated offender eligible under section 91 of the act, subject to the provisions of section 89 and 90 of the act;

2. A guaranty that the applicant or licensee will take affirmative action to insure that applicants for employment who are within the groups set forth in N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a)1 are recruited and employed at all levels of its workforce, and that employees are treated during employment without regard to the characteristics listed in N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a)1. Such affirmative action shall include but not be limited to, the following:

i. Employment, upgrading, demotion or transfer;
ii. Recruitment or recruitment advertising;
iii. Layoff or termination;
iv. Rates of pay or other forms of compensation; and
v. Selection for training programs.

3. A provision that the applicant or licensee will post in conspicuous places, available to employees and applicants for employment, notices to be provided by the commission setting forth the obligations of the applicant or licensee as described in N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5(a)1 and 2.

The New Jersey Law Against Discrimination at N.J.S.A. 10:5-12, provides, in pertinent part, as follows:

It shall be unlawful employment practice, or, as the case may be, an unlawful discrimination:

a. For an employer, because of the race, creed, color, national origin, ancestry, age, marital status, sex . . . to refuse to hire or employ or to bar or to discharge or require to retire, unless justified by lawful considerations other than age, from employment such individual or to discriminate against such individual in compensation or in terms, conditions or privileges of employment; . . .

The Division correctly observes that the Law Against Discrimination (LAD) reflects "[t]he clear public policy of this State . . . to abolish discrimination in the work place." Shaner v. Horizon Bancorp., 116 N.J. 433, 436 (1989). Our Supreme Court earlier stated:

> Employment discrimination due to sex or any other invidious classification is peculiarly repugnant in a society which prides itself on judging each individual by his or her merits. . . .

The Court continued by observing that:

> New Jersey has always been in the vanguard in the fight to eradicate the cancer of unlawful discrimination of all types from our society. We have had a law against discrimination since 1954 -- some twenty years before the effective date of Title VII [1]Pepper v. Princeton Univ. Bd. of Trustees, 77 N.J. 55, 80 (1978).

Our Legislature, in enacting the Law Against Discrimination, set forth its finding and declaration at N.J.S.A. 10:5-3, where it states:

> The Legislature finds and declares that practices of discrimination against any of its inhabitants, because of race, creed, color, national origin, ancestry, age, sex, marital status or because of their liability for service in the Armed Forces of the United States, are a matter of concern to the government of the State, and that such discrimination threatens not only the rights and proper privileges of the inhabitants of the State but menaces the institutions and foundation of a free democratic State.

Thus, the clear and unambiguous public policy of New Jersey is to eliminate discrimination which manifests a bias or prejudice against its people because of their race, creed, color, national origin, ancestry, age, sex or marital status, among other reasons. "All persons shall have the opportunity to obtain employment . . . without discrimination . . . " N.J.S.A. 10:5-4.

1 Civil Rights Act of 1964, Pub. L. 88-352, Title VII, § 701, July 2, 1964.

The Division has charged that Trump Plaza engaged in disparate treatment of its employees based upon rumor and gossip that one of Trump Plaza's preferred patrons, Robert Libutti, did not wish to have blacks or females serve as dealers, boxpersons or floorpersons at his gaming table.

Disparate treatment is one of two separate theories of relief recognized in actions concerned with discrimination. As the United States Supreme Court said in the matter of International Brotherhood of Teamsters v. United States, 431 U.S. 324, 335 f.n. 15 (1977):

> "Disparate treatment" such as alleged in the present case is most easily understood type of discrimination. The employer simply treats some people less favorably than others because of their race, color, religion, sex, or national origin. Proof of discriminatory motive is critical, although it can in some situations be inferred from the mere fact of differences in treatment.

The standard of proof with regard to claims of discrimination characterized as "disparate treatment" is set forth in the matter of McDonnell Douglas Corp. v Green, 411 U.S. 792 (1973) and adopted by the New Jersey Supreme Court in Peper, supra. The Peper Court quoted, with approval, from McDonnell Douglas where it said:

> The complainant in a Title VII trial must carry the initial burden under the statute of establishing a prima facie case of racial discrimination. This may be done by showing (i) that he belongs to a racial minority; (ii) that he applied and was qualified for a job for which the employer was seeking applicants; (iii) that despite his qualifications, he was rejected; and (iv) that, after his rejection, the position remained open and the employer continued to seek applicants from persons of complainant's qualifications. [411 U.S. at 802, 93 S. Ct. at 1824, 36 L. Ed. 2d at 677 (footnote omitted)] 77 N.J. at 82.

The Peper Court recognized that the McDonnell Douglas matter concerned alleged racial discrimination only, however, it continued hold that the McDonnell Douglas tests are equally applicable to other forms of employment discrimination, i.e., discrimination against females on the basis of sex. Id. 82-83.

The application of the McDonnell Douglas standards requires that the Division establish a prima facie case by demonstrating that (1) the Trump Plaza employees identified by the Division in its complaint and amended complaint belong to a protected class; (2) that the employees were qualified at the time for the positions from which they were removed or reassigned; and (3) despite their qualifications, they were improperly removed or reassigned from their positions on the basis of their race or sex.

Trump Plaza observes that the burden of proving a prima facie case is not onerous. It must merely be demonstrated by a preponderance of the evidence that the individuals were qualified for the positions from which they were rejected under circumstances giving rise to an inference of discrimination. Texas Department of Community Affairs v. Burdine, 450 U.S. 248, 67 L. Ed. 207, 101 S. Ct. 1089 (1981). "A prima facie case raises an inference of discrimination only because [we] presume these acts, if otherwise unexplained, are more likely than not based on the considerations of impermissible factors." 450 U.S. at 254. Accordingly, the initial burden of proof can usually be easily met. "In prescribing the prima facie case criteria, the Court gave recognition to the fact that proof of unlawful discrimination rarely can be demonstrated through direct evidence but normally is demonstrated only through circumstantial evidence. It did not make plaintiff's burden in meeting those criteria onerous." Erickson v. Marsh & McLennan Co., Inc., 227 N.J. Super. 78 (App. Div. 1988) at 86.

Once proof has been offered, by a preponderance of the evidence, sufficient to establish a prima facie case, the burden shifts to the defendant to articulate some legitimate nondiscriminatory reason for the alleged conduct. Texas Department of Community Affairs, 450 U.S. at 253; see also, Slohoda v. United Parcel Service, Inc., 207 N.J. 78, 151 (App. Div. 1986) cert. den. 104 N.J. 400 (1986). "An employer's duty to articulate a legitimate nondiscriminatory reason does not oblige it to persuade the court that it was actually motivated by the proffered reasons, but it must at least raise a genuine issue of fact as to whether it discriminated against the plaintiff." Id. at 153 (citing Texas Department of Community Affairs, 450 U.S. at 254). (emphasis added). In this regard, the ultimate burden of persuasion remains upon the plaintiff throughout the entire case. Accordingly, the employer need only articulate a clear and reasonably specific legitimate nondiscriminatory basis. If the employer succeeds in articulating such a basis, the plaintiff is given the opportunity to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the legitimate reasons advanced by the employer "were not true reasons but were a pretext." Texas Department of Community Affairs, 450 U.S. at 253. The employer's articulated basis frames an issue of fact that allows the plaintiff to respond by presenting evidence of a pretext, "thereby avoiding the legally mandatory inference of discrimination arising from the plaintiff's evidence." Slohoda, 207 N.J. Super. at 153. "The burden [of pretext] merges with the ultimate burden of persuasion that [the plaintiff] was the victim of intentional discrimination," and this burden is met if the plaintiff persuades the court that (1) the employer was more likely motivated by a discriminatory reason, or (2) the employer's reason is unworthy of credibility. Texas Department of Community Affairs, 450 U.S. at 255. (emphasis added). This is consistent with the holding in Slohoda in which the court stated that "it is sufficient if, taken with other possibly meritorious reasons, the discriminatory purpose was a determinative factor." Slohoda, 207 N.J. Super. at 155. As such, a plaintiff meets the burden of proof and burden of persuasion if proof is presented, by a preponderance of the evidence, sufficient to persuade a fact finder that the employer intentionally discriminated against a member of a protected class in the terms and conditions of his or her employment and that the employer's proffered nondiscriminatory basis is either incredulous or more likely motivated by a discriminatory reason (i.e., the discriminatory purpose was a determinative factor).

Trump Plaza argues that in order to succeed in these proceedings, the Division must have established, by a preponderance of the evidence, and have persuaded this Court, that Trump Plaza's proffered basis for reassigning employees was either unbelievable or more likely motivated by a discriminatory reason. This has simply not been done.

The Division argues that it has satisfied the McDonnell Douglas test by proving by a preponderance of the evidence: (1) that the gaming personnel involved are members of classes protected by anti-discrimination law; (2) that they were qualified to continue in their capacities as dealers, boxpersons, or floorpersons; i e , that they were performing their jobs at a level that satisfied their superiors; (3) that despite these qualifications, they were reassigned or not allowed to deal to or act as boxpersons in regard to casino games participated in by Robert Libutti; and (4) that they were replaced by gaming personnel who were not members of a protected class, or if they were not reassigned, that nonminority workers with comparable work records were allowed to service Libutti, while the gaming personnel at issue were not allowed to do so.

The Division argues, in the alternative, that if the case is classified as one of "mixed motive," the standard of proof may vary from that imposed in a pretextual case. Under federal law, this standard (which applies equally to cases involving other protected classifications) has been articulated as follows:

> We hold that when a plaintiff in a Title VII case proves that her gender played a motivating part in an employment decision, the defendant may avoid a finding of liability only by proving by a preponderance of the evidence that it would have made the same decision even if it had not taken the plaintiff's gender into account. [Price Waterhouse, supra, ____ U.S. at ____, 109 S. Ct. at 1795.]

New Jersey's standard of proof in a so-called "mixed motive" case varies from that articulated in Price Waterhouse. Our Appellate Division in Slohoda v. United Parcel Service, Inc., 207 N.J. Super. 145 (App. Div.), certif. den., 104 N.J. 400 (1986), has articulated in a ruling binding on this court that plaintiff need only prove that an illegitimate factor motivating employer's challenged decision was a "determinative factor."

> [F]or purposes of the Law Against Discrimination plaintiff need not prove that the termination was motivated solely by a discriminatory purpose. It is sufficient if, taken with other possibly meritorious reasons, the discriminatory purpose was "a determinative factor." Hagelthorn v. Kennecott Corp., 710 F. 2d. 76, 82 (2d Cir. 1983). [207 N.J. Super. at 155.]

The Division argues that under Slohoda, once it has proved that race and/or gender were determinative factors in Trump Plaza's decision to prevent the enumerated gaming personnel from servicing Robert Libutti, the Division must prevail. This is true whether or not Trump Plaza has proved that its employment decisions were also predicated on legitimate considerations.

The Division sets forth other legal arguments which, having been carefully considered, are not recited here.

I CONCLUDE that the Division has failed to prove, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that Trump Plaza committed violations of the Casino Control Act or the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination. As was said in Jones v. College of Med. & Dent. of N.J. Rutgers, 155 N.J. Super. 232, 236 (App. Div. 1977):

> Discrimination involves the making of choices. The statute [N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq.] does not proscribe all discrimination, but only that which is bottomed upon specifically enumerated partialities and prejudices. Thus, we have held that in discrimination cases an intent to discriminate must be proved (citation omitted) (Emphasis supplied).

The facts herein clearly demonstrate that those individuals named in the Division's complaint are within the statutory protected classifications under race and sex and, although they each were removed from or not assigned to Libutti's games, others similarly situated by the protected classifications were assigned to and participated in Libutti's gaming activities during the period May 1986 through May 1988. These individuals, both blacks and females, served on Libutti's game as dealers, boxpersons and floorpersons during the controverted period. Their service to Libutti was not without incident where they too were removed from his game when Libutti suffered heavy losses. Due to their expertise most, but not all, of these individuals were subsequently assigned to Libutti's craps table and continued to serve him as a preferred patron at Trump Plaza.

The record clearly shows that Libutti's preference for Trump Plaza games personnel was, in fact, indiscriminate. He requested that white males be removed from his game more frequently than those protected by statute under the Law Against Discrimination. The fact that blacks and females were removed from Libutti's game, together with white males, does not show bias or prejudice. Nor does it demonstrate an intent to discriminate against members of the protected class. Jones, supra. Rather, the record demonstrates that the most qualified of Trump Plaza's game personnel were assigned to Libutti, whether they be white, male, black or female.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Division has established a prima facie case, pursuant to McDonnell Douglas test to the extent it has demonstrated that: (1) The individual Trump Plaza employees identified by the Division in its complaint and amended complaint are members of a protected class under our laws against discrimination; (2) That the Trump Plaza employees were licensed and qualified to perform in their respective positions; and (3) despite their respective licensure and qualifications, they were either removed or not assigned to patron Robert Libutti's gaming table while he gambled at Trump Plaza at divers time between May 1986 and June 1988.

I FIND and CONCLUDE that the Division has failed to demonstrate, by any standard of proof, that Trump Plaza's reassignment or removal from Robert Libutti's gaming table of any of the employees named in the Division's complaint and amended complaint was based on race or sex. As the Division observes, there is no "smoking gun" with regard to racial or sexual discrimination on the part of Trump Plaza. There is absolutely no evidence that race or gender was a consideration by Trump Plaza management when the employees were either removed or replaced from Robert Libutti's games. I am persuaded, given the facts in this controversy, that Trump Plaza's motive in reassigning or removing its employees from Robert Libutti's games was for legitimate business, nondiscriminatory reasons.

I, therefore, CONCLUDE that the Division has failed to demonstrate that Trump Plaza acted with an intent to discriminate against blacks or females in its employ.

I, therefore, CONCLUDE that under the circumstances of this matter, Trump Plaza Associates did not violate the provisions of the Casino Control Act, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-134b and c. or its regulations at N.J.A.C. 19:53-1.5.

I further CONCLUDE that Trump Plaza Associates did not violate the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq.

ORDER

Accordingly, it is hereby ORDERED that the Division's Complaint and Amended Complaint be and are hereby DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ALLISON TURNER,

Respondent.

This matter having been transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for a hearing; and the respondent having failed to appear at scheduled proceedings; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of July 3, 1990,

IT IS on this 24th day of July 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) concluded that the respondent no longer seeks a hearing on the complaint and, therefore, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a), determined to "Dismiss this matter." Upon the unexplained failure of a party to appear at scheduled proceedings, N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a) authorizes the ALJ to "dismiss the matter or grant the requested relief." Where as here the respondent fails to appear and defend against a complaint for revocation the appropriate action is to grant the relief requested in the complaint.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the respondent's casino employee license is revoked based upon her constructive admission pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-108(d) of the matters and facts contained in the complaint, which is incorporated herein by reference; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Allison Turner is prohibited from reapplying for any license, registration, qualification or approval required under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

BEFORE BEATRICE S. TYLUTKI, ALJ:

This matter concerns the complaint, dated November 14, 1989, filed by the petitioner with the Casino Control Commission, recommending the denial of the respondent's casino employee license. The respondent requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on March 14, 1990, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

By written notice dated April 30, 1990, the Office of Administrative Law notified the parties that there would be a telephone prehearing conference on May 9, 1990, at 4:00 p.m. In this notice it is stated:

> Parties who do not have an attorney should immediately contact this office at the above number to supply a telephone number where they can be reached at the date and time listed above.

The respondent did not provide the Office of Administrative Law with a telephone number nor did she contact the Office of Administrative Law on the date set for the prehearing conference.

Ten days have passed since the scheduled prehearing conference date. During that period, the respondent has not contacted the Office of Administrative Law to offer any explanation for her failure to contact the office for the prehearing conference.

Based on the above, I CONCLUDE that Allison Turner no longer seeks a hearing regarding the complaint filed by the respondent regarding her casino employee license. In accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a), I DISMISS this matter.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However if the Casino Control Commission does not so act in forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

John E. Shields, Jr., Esq., for the petitioner (Hoffman, DiMuzio, Hoffman and Marcus, attorneys)

R. Lane Stebbins, Deputy Attorney General, for the respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: September 20, 1990 Decided: October 29, 1990

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Steven Valentino, applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the renewal of a casino employee license (craps dealer and box person), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90. The respondent, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), opposed the renewal of the license by reason of its contention that the petitioner had committed a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), by means of section 86g, and therefore, he lacked the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference. The petitioner contended that he was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 90h.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed with the Commission an application for the renewal of a casino employee license so he could be employed as a craps dealer and boxperson in the casino industry. By letter to the Commission, dated December 6, 1989, the Division objected to the petitioner's application for licensure as a box person, asserting that the petitioner had committed the offense of possession of a lost or stolen credit card in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-6. As such, the Division objected pursuant to section 89(b)2. Based upon the report, the Commission notified the petitioner on January 22, 1990, that there was a "substantial possibility" that his application would be denied and that he had the right to a hearing. By application dated January 26, 1990, which was received by the Commission on January 29, 1990, the petitioner requested a hearing. On February 1, 1990, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on February 7, 1990, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before me on May 24, 1990. At that time, the Division moved to amend its complaint to include a count of a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) despite the fact that the act was not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g. The alleged offense involved an attempted theft by deception in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 and N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1. This motion was granted, and the complaint was amended. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 and N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1, attempted theft by deception.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A 5:12-89b(2) as incorporated within section 90b.

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was held on September 20, 1990, at the Municipal Courtroom, Pleasantville Police Building, Pleasantville, New Jersey, after which the record closed.

THE FACTS

In October 1985, the petitioner found a brown camera case type pouch in the marina area of Atlantic City near Trump's Castle Hotel and Casino. In the bag were keys, business cards, a checkbook, credit cards, and other forms of identification belonging to Barry Newsome. Mr. Newsome reported the loss of his credit cards to the issuing stores.

On October 17, 1985, the petitioner attempted to purchase a Sony Super Beta hi-fi model HF900 valued at $1259.00 at Bamberger's Department Store in the Deptford Mall. The petitioner presented the credit card to the clerk and represented himself as being Barry Newsome. At that time the petitioner intended to sign the credit card charge slip as Barry Newsome. After a brief period of time, the petitioner was approached by a store manager who stated "Mr. Newsome, you reported your credit card as being missing." The petitioner then indicated that the credit card was not his and that he was not Barry Newsome. The petitioner was escorted off the store floor and was held until arrested by Deptford Township Police. The petitioner told the police there were additional items belonging to Mr. Newsome in his car. The petitioner consented to a search of his vehicle, and the case and its contents belonging to Mr. Newsome were recovered. The petitioner was charged with possession of a lost or stolen credit card in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-6 and receiving stolen property in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-7.

On December 5, 1985, the petitioner was indicted by the Gloucester County Grand Jury and was charged in Indictment No. 1-1176-12-85 with one count of using a credit card with the intent to defraud the issuer in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:21-6d (R-2). The petitioner entered a six month Pretrial Intervention Program. He successfully completed this program, and on August 6, 1986, the charge contained in the indictment was dismissed (R-3).

At the age of 18, the petitioner applied for and was granted a casino hotel employee registration. In 1980, he applied for and was granted a casino employee license. As such, he never renewed his casino hotel registration. From January 1982 through March 1983, the petitioner was employed as a change person at the Tropicana Hotel and Casino. While employed at the Tropicana, the petitioner attended the Casino Career Institute in order to learn how to be a craps dealer. In January 1983, after completing this course, the petitioner's casino employee license was upgraded to include a craps dealer credential. He left Tropicana in order to accept a position as a craps dealer at Resorts International Hotel and Casino. The petitioner remained at Resorts from March 1983 through February 1987. In 1985, the petitioner's casino employee license was again upgraded to include a box person credential.

In March 1986, the petitioner married. The couple experienced marital difficulties, and the separated after one year. As both of them were craps dealers at Resorts, they often worked together. The petitioner found this situation to be extremely upsetting and difficult so he quit his job at Resorts.

The petitioner remained unemployed for a period of time before briefly accepting employment at the Atlantis Hotel and Casino. In December 1988, the petitioner began working as a craps dealer at Bally's Park Place Hotel and Casino. He was terminated from this position in December 1989 after having an argument with a patron over a bet. The patron never "booked the bet,", and the petitioner refused to pay off the bet as a winning wager. The petitioner immediately was hired as a craps dealer and change person at Trump's Plaza Hotel and Casino. The petitioner remained there until May 1990 when he was hired as a box person at the Showboat Hotel and Casino.

The petitioner is 27 years old and was 22 years old at the time of the offense His early childhood was spent in Newark. He, along with his mother, father and three sisters, moved to Hammonton. He completed the tenth grade and participated on the track team.

In 1985, the petitioner was in a severe state of depression. His mother was a "binge alcoholic" who drank to excess. His father also had an alcohol problem, and the petitioner had a very strained relationship with his parents. The petitioner began drinking heavily, and occasionally used cocaine at social events. The petitioner's alcoholism would take him out of reality. He attempted to purchase the hi-fi on an impulse in order to get a sense of gratification.

In 1986, the petitioner recognized that he had a problem. He began attending counseling sessions provided by Resorts International. He was referred to the Fairmont Institute which is a rehabilitation center in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. The petitioner entered a 28 day inpatient program in January 1987.

The Fairmont Institute Intake Pyschological Assessment of the petitioner provides:

> The patient was admitted into the Addiction Treatment Service describing increased feelings of depression, confusion and anxiety. He struggles with unresolved feelings of guilt over the need to fabricate events in his life. The patient reports various familial, interpersonal and occupational issues. . . . Familiarly the patient expresses rage towards his father for alleged infidelity and was physically violent with him last year. This event required police intervention. Two years ago the patient's mother was hit by a car, the patient reports feelings of responsibility although he was not directly or indirectly involved in this accident. . . . The patient reports disturbed sleeping patterns and significant weight loss over the past four months due to poor eating habits. The patient began indulging in self defeating behaviors at age 15. He is positive for blackouts and negative for suicide ideation
>
>
> The patient describes his childhood as a nightmare. He recalls excessive fighting, physical and verbal abuse with no close relationships in the nuclear family other than his mother. He alleges that she is an alcoholic who has not had a drink for the past two years as the result of her being hit by a car while intoxicated.
>
> When he was 12 years old his maternal uncle hung himself and at age 16 another maternal uncle was found dead. The patient reports these events were never clearly explained. He feels much grief for his mother as she has suffered so much. He is extremely angry at his father, verbalizing his inadequacy as a husband and a father. . . . There is a positive history of alcoholism in the nuclear and extended family. The patient lived at home until age 16.

> . . . .

The Fairmont Institute Discharge Summary provides:

> Provisional Diagnosis: Major Affective Disorder, Severe with Melancholia
> Reason for Admission: This is the first Fairmont Institute and psychiatric hospital admission for this 23 year old, single, white male. He presented with a severe clinical depression which he reported becoming increasingly debilitating in the weeks preceding his admission. He felt he could no longer function with the support of only the outpatient psychotherapy he was receiving. He presented with an intensely dysphoric mood and noted recent disturbances in sleep, appetite (with 20 lb. weight loss), and level of energy. He spoke of difficulty functioning at work and in his relationship with his girlfriend It was obvious that his self-esteem was extremely poor with the patient considering himself a failure. Mr. Valentino had abused alcohol and drugs to help alleviate his dysphoria, but this self-medication pattern only exacerbated his negative feelings. He had even entertained some passive suicidal ideation (without plans) prior to admission.

. . . .

Family History: . . . . He described a very difficult childhood with much fighting between his parents. He noted that his mother was an alcoholic, who stopped drinking two years ago; he did say that he felt some closeness with her The patient described an extremely negative relationship with his father, and he noted that his father was domineering, unsupportive, and mistreated the patient's mother.

. . . .

Mental Status Examination: . . . Mood was extremely depressed, and the patient was preoccupied with his decline in functioning and his lack of self-worth. He admitted to passive suicidal ideation in which he had hoped that he would die; he denied any active ideation or plans, however. Intellectual functioning appeared to be intact with a patient of average intelligence. Insight was fair and judgment poor.

Hospital Course: Mr. Valentino was treated with individual, group, milieu, and adjunctive therapies. He was exceedingly dysphoric and downtrodden at the time of his admission to the hospital. He complained of disturbances in his sleep, appetite, and energy; he denied suicidal ideation, although admitted to some fleeting thoughts prior to admission. He also presented with difficulties attending, concentrating, and focusing in therapy sessions. He was able to convey a very poor sense of self-esteem, and the patient berated himself constantly for his decline in functioning. He was quite anxious interpersonally, both in therapy sessions and in the way he interacted with peers. He reported negative feelings about others, admitting that he had great difficulty trusting. It was reported that he was rather isolated on the unit.

Despite such early difficulties, Mr. Valentino gradually was able to verbalize his problem trusting others. This issue was especially salient with regard to his father. The patient spoke of how his father had mistreated him and how he could never please his father or receive support from him. He expressed concern about how he had become over reliant on his girlfriend, fearing that he would driver her away.

A family session was held with her present, which caused him to feel much anxiety, but in the end helped him feel supported and relieved. His girlfriend reiterated her concern over his neediness and need to receive support from other people as well.

A second family session was held with Mr. Valentino's parents. Again, the patient was extremely anxious, especially since he had not spoke with his father for almost one year. Although there was much tension between them, the patient was able to express his feelings in an appropriate manner without losing his temper. He was also able to express positive feelings and a desire for a good relationship with his father. Mr. Valentino said that he felt very relieved following the session, although he was realistic that the relationship between his father and himself would take further work to improve.

In the latter stages of treatment, Mr. Valentino continued to demonstrate improvement. He reported a renewed ability to sleep, eat and concentrate. It was apparent that he experienced renewed energy and spontaneity. It was reported that he was more involved with his peers, although he still had a tendency to isolate himself and regard others with caution. Mr. Valentino did express a commitment to utilize his supports, especially outpatient therapy (which he admitted he had attended on a sporadic basis). He was also able to gain insight into how he misinterpreted the motives and others and "wrote them off" without giving them a change. He admitted that he had lost some potentially good friends and supports this way. He expressed anxiety over returning to work and was able to work through these fears as well.

At the time of his discharge, Mr. Valentino was anxious but increasingly confident about his ability to cope.

Prognosis: Fair. Mr. Valentino made significant improvements in terms of his mood, self-esteem, and attitudes towards others. He still has considerable work which he needs to do on an outpatient basis.

Disposition: The patient planned to return to his apartment with his girlfriend. Outpatient psychotherapy was to continue with is previous therapist. The patient also made a commitment to attend AA and NA meetings to work on his problems with self-medication.

Discharge Diagnosis:	DSM-III Axis I	Major Affective Disorder, Single Episode, Severe with Melancholia
	Axis II	Mixed Personality Disorder
	Ais III	Drug and Alcohol Dependence in Remission

The petitioner has now been sober for four years. He has worked his way up in the casino industry to a supervisor's position. He is now engaged, and has a positive outlook. He is tutored one day a week in an effort to obtain a high school equivalency diploma (G.E.D.). He exercises in a local gym, and he participates in body building competitions. He regrets his prior misconduct and expressed remorse. He has accepted responsibility for his actions, and has attended Alcoholic Anonymous and Narcotic Anonymous meetings over the last four years. In February 1988, he moved into Mayfair By the Sea, which is a halfway house for recovering alcoholics. This provided a "safe place" environment and enabled him to continue with his rehabilitation.

Several witnesses testified on behalf of the petitioner attesting to his rehabilitation and to his good character, honesty and integrity. The petitioner was described as being a very courteous and respectful individual and an excellent dealer. He was portrayed as an extremely honest individual who now possesses the highest integrity. He is hard working and trustworthy. The witnesses attributed the credit card incident as a onetime mistake which occurred at a time when the petitioner was experiencing severe personal problems and difficulties. Every witness testified as to the petitioner's sincere efforts at rehabilitation.

Although the Division did not attempt to refute the petitioner's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident and his current good character, honesty and integrity, it is necessary to assess his credibility. Initially, his position in this matter must be recognized. As the petitioner and the applicant for a casino employee license, he has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. However, during both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the petitioner's demeanor, the plausibility of his testimony, the manner in which he participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appeared that the petitioner testified truthfully in every regard. He candidly admitted his misconduct and described in detail, experiencing great humiliation, the underlying circumstances. Accordingly, I am persuaded to accept the petitioner's testimony in all respects.

I am persuaded that his misconduct was, in part, due to immaturity. I am also inclined to believe that it was the result of inexperience and the difficulty in dealing with his alcohol problem and family affairs. At the time the petitioner attempted to purchase the hi-fi with another person's credit card, he was in an extremely depressed mental state. He suffered from the effects of an abusive childhood and a severe state of alcoholism. The petitioner has now turned his life around, attended in-patient therapy, is sober, engaged and a productive member of the casino industry.

As all of the above was undisputed, I FIND all of the above as FACT.

APPLICABLE LAW

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86, Casino license - disqualification criteria, provides in pertinent part:

> The commission shall deny a casino license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of any of the following criteria:

>
> ...
>
> N.J.S. 2C:5-1 (attmept to commit an offense which is listed in this subsection);

>
> ....
>
> g. The commission by the applicant or any person who is required to be qualified under this act as a condition of a casino license of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of this section, even if such conduct has not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of this State.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-89, Licensing of casino key employees, provides in pertinent part:

> b. Each applicant must, prior to the issuance of any casino key employee license, produce information, documentation and assurances concerning the following qualification criteria:

application. Each applicant shall notify the commission of any civil judgments obtained against such applicant pertaining to antitrust or security regulation laws of the federal government, of this State or of any other state, jurisdiction, province or country. In addition, each applicant shall, upon request of the commission or the division, produce letters of reference from law enforcement agencies having jurisdiction in the applicant's place of residence and principal place of business, which letters of reference shall indicate that such law enforcement agencies do not have any pertinent information concerning the applicant, or if such law enforcement agency does have information pertaining to the applicant, shall specify what that information is. If the applicant has been associated with gaming or casino operations in any capacity, position or employment in a jurisdiction which permits such activity, the applicant shall, upon request of the commission or division, produce letters of reference from the gaming or casino enforcement or control agency, which shall specify the experience of such agency with the applicant, his associates and his participation in the gaming operations of that jurisdiction; provided, however, that if no such letters are received from the appropriate law enforcement agencies within 60 days of the applicant's request therefor, the applicant may submit a statement under oath that he is or was during the period such activities were conducted in good standing with such gaming or casino enforcement or control agency.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-90, Licensing of casino employees, provides in pertinent part:

a. No person may commence employment as a casino employee unless he is the holder of a valid casino employee license.

b. Any applicant for a casino employee license must, prior to the issuance of any such license, produce sufficient information, documentation and assurances to meet the qualification criteria, including New Jersey residency, contained in subsection b. of section 89 of this act and any additional residency requirement imposed under subsection c. of this section; except that the standards for business ability and casino experience may be satisfied by a showing of casino job experience and knowledge of the provisions of this act and regulations pertaining to the particular position involved, or by successful completion of a course of study at a licensed school in an approved curriculum.

e. The commission shall deny a casino employee license to any applicant who is disqualified on the basis of the criteria contained in section 86 of this act.

h. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection e. of this section, no applicant shall be denied a casino employee license on the basis of a conviction of any of the offenses enumerated in this act as disqualification criteria or the commission of any act or acts which would constitute any offense under subsection c. of section 86 of P.L. 1977, c.110 (C. 5:12-86), as specified in subsection g. of that section; provided that the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation. In determining whether the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:

(1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;

(2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

(3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

DISCUSSION

The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 and N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1, attempted theft by deception, which constitutes a violation of section 86c(1), and that, accordingly, he is disqualified from continued licensure.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g

Section 86g provides that an applicant will be disqualified from licensure because of the commission of any action which would constitute an offense under section 86c, even if there has not been a prosecution for such conduct. Section 86c(1) mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner's presentation of Barry Newsome's credit card in an attempt to purchase a hi-fi at Bamberger's Department Store constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 and N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1, which under the circumstances disqualifies the petitioner from continued licensure.

1434

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, Theft by deception, provides in pertinent part:

A person is guilty of theft if he purposely obtains property of another by deception. A person deceives if he purposely:

a. Creates or reinforces a false impression, including false impressions as to law, value, intention or other state of mind; but deception as to a person's intention to perform a promise shall not be inferred from the fact alone that he did not subsequently perform the promise;

. . . .

c. Fails to correct a false impression which the deceiver previously created or reinforced, or which the deceiver knows to be influencing another to whom he stands in a fiduciary or confidential relationship.

N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1, Criminal attempt provides in pertinent part:

a. Definition of attempt. A person is guilty of an attempt to commit a crime if, acting with the kind of culpability otherwise required for commission of the crime, he:

(1) Purposely engages in conduct which would constitute the crime if the attendant circumstances were as a reasonable person would believe them to be;

(2) When causing a particular result is an element of the crime, does or omits to do anything with the purpose of causing such result without further conduct on his part; or

(3) Purposely does or omits to do anything which, under the circumstances as a reasonable person would believe them to be, is an act or omission constituting a substantial step in a course of conduct planned to culminate in his commission of the crime.

The Division established, and the petitioner admitted during his testimony, that he knowingly attempted to purchase a hi-fi valued at $1,259.00, the property of Bamberger's Department store by presenting a credit card for payment of the hi-fi, which credit card was the property of another. The petitioner did not have permission of the credit card holder to use the credit card. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:5-4a and N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2)a, the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offense committed by the petitioner is a disqualifying offense under sections 86c(1) and 86g. The petitioner is therefore disqualified from continued licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and 86g.

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h

An applicant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating his rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;

2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;

3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

4. The date of the offense or conduct;

5. The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

In regard to the first criterion, Mr. Valentino is a casino licensee and is employed as a box person. As such, he does have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities and does come in contact with casino patrons.

Second, the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:5-1 and N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 attempted theft by deception, on one occasion during a period while employed in the casino industry. Because the offense is a listed disqualifier under section 86c(1), it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the offense must be viewed in its appropriate context. The petitioner was suffering from alcoholism and was in a severe state of depression. While the petitioner attempted to commit a serious theft offense, the underlying circumstances somewhat tend to mitigate the seriousness of the offense.

Fourth, the petitioner's misconduct occurred on October 17, 1985, when it ceased.

Fifth, the petitioner was 22 years old at the time of the first offense. I believe immaturity was a factor in this case.

Seventh, the petitioner had experienced an abusive childhood and had been raised in an alcohol dependent family. He himself became an alcoholic and experienced sever emotional depression. He experienced confusion and anxiety.

Eighth, the petitioner has made a complete turn-around in his life. He successfully completed an inpatient alcohol rehabilitation program in early 1987, and he has received outpatient therapy over the last five years. He is now completely sober. He has even resided in a special facility with an alcohol free environment. He has been an excellent casino employee the last five years and has advanced from a craps dealer to a box person. He is obtaining a G.E.D., and is engaged to be married. He is now a courteous, respectful, hardworking, and honest individual. He is now an active body-builder who participates in competitions. He has accepted responsibility for his actions and has expressed remorse. He has no intentions of repeating his misconduct. Accordingly, there is little likelihood, if any, 1437 of a repetition. Essentially, there is nothing more the petitioner could do to establish his rehabilitation.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, his rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

(C) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Mr. Valentino was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true; a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Id. at 296.

It is readily apparent that the petitioner's misconduct was aberrant and that he is otherwise a person of good character, honesty and integrity. The misconduct did not involve his licensed employment, and the underlying circumstances somewhat mitigated the seriousness of the misconduct. In addition, the petitioner has fully accepted responsibility for his misconduct, regained control over his behavior, performed admirably within the casino industry during the past five years, is engaged, and has become a respected member of his community. Accordingly, the petitioner presents no risk to the public nor to the integrity of the gaming industry in this State. The petitioner has earned the privilege of licensure. An examination of the whole person clearly and convincingly establishes that Mr. Valentino is a person of good character, honesty and integrity, and is entirely suitable for licensure in this State. See, Boardwalk Regency Corp.

I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity under section 90b.

BEFORE RICHARD A. MURPHY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division of Gaming Enforcement seeks revocation of respondent Maria E. Vanegas' casino hotel employee registration and opposes her application for a casino employee license under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86, 89-91, 107-108, 129-130, because she was arrested and charged in December 1984 with theft by deception for allegedly taking and redeeming complimentary coupons and conspiracy to this end, which charges were later dismissed. Ms. Vanegas is now and has been for the last four years employed by Ceasar's Hotel and Casino as a kitchen porter.*

ISSUES

The following issues are to be resolved:

(1) Whether the applicant is disqualified from holding a license/registration under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) and 86g for commission of the offense of theft by deception and conspiracy, which indicates that licensure/registration would be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and casino operations in the state of New Jersey under subsection c(2) even if this conduct has not or may not be prosecuted under the criminal laws of the state or pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86d is the subject of current prosecution or pending charges for an offense included within section 86c;

(2) Whether the applicant can demonstrate by clear and convicning evidence that she possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity required by N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2) and 90b, considering the factors of rehabilitation as set forth in 90h.

---

*Procedural History: the Division of Gaming Enforcment (Division) filed its amended complaint seeking revocation with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) on Janaury 23, 1989 and objected to Ms. Vanegas's application for a casino employee license for a gaming/security employee position on January 18, 1989. A hearing was requested on April 26, 1989 and Commission filed this case with the Office of Administrative Law on May 9, 1989 for hearing as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing was held on September 1, to settle the issues, with a prehearing order issuing on September 15, 1989 and the hearing was held in Atlantic City on September 18, 1989, with the record closing on September 22, 1989, after receipt of additional documentation. The due date for submission of the initial decision was extended on several occasions for good cause not relevant to this case. I regret any hardship or inconvencience that his unavoidable delay may have caused the parties.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The facts are not in dispute. Ms. Vanegas (with the assistance of Diane Pinnex, an interpreter) testified as to the incident on December 14, 1984 at Resorts Hotel and Casino, which led to the charges against her for theft by deception. She explained that her husband had problems in 1984 and was in jail, forcing her to seek a job cleaning at Resorts. At the time, Resorts was offering "superstar coupons" as part of a slot machine promotion, which could be redeemed by players for gifts such as totebags, gold earnings, and the like. She claims that the supervisor at Resorts told all employees that they could not take coupons off the floor when cleaning, and had to throw them away with the other trash. Ms. Vanegas states that she never read a coupon, and has only limited ability with the English language. She knew that they were worth something to patrons, but not of any use to her, since she could not cash or redeem them, as employees were barred from doing so. She claims that a friend of her husband, one Jesus Albelo, visited the couple at their home, claimed that he was a member of the superstar coupon club at Resorts and asked the respondent if she had any coupons, to which she said "yes," and gave him coupons, which she claimed she had found on the floor of the casino. She estimates that she gave him 75 to 100 coupons because he claimed to be member of the superstar club and that "he came back with gifts". Ms. Vanegas does not recall if she gave the coupons to Albelo in order to get a gift for herself, but she acknowledges that she did take some earrings from Albelo.

She was interviewed on December 14, 1984, by the Division of Gaming Enforcement and asked of her involvement with Albelo's redemption of coupons. She admits that, when first questioned by the Division, she denied knowing Albelo or giving him coupons, although she later told the truth. Initially, no interpreter was present during her interview with the police. After she experienced difficulty in the interview without an interpreter, one was obtained and she states that she "confessed" to the DGE, which had "caught" and "arrested" her. The parties stipulate that the charges were downgraded by elimination of conspiracy, and then dismissed altogether on March 25, 1985. (J-1; J-2). There was also no dispute that, during the interview with State Police Sergeant L. Paccione, Vanegas threw away 17 slot superstar coupons from her purse into a nearby trashcan, while waiting to be searched by a female officer. The translater informed the sergeant that Vanegas has asked him if she could get rid of something she had on her, and the interpreter told her that she could not.

After leaving Resorts, Vanegas claimed that she unsuccessfully applied for unemployment benefits and then applied to Ceasar's Hotel and Casino, where she has worked for the last four years. In completing her Ceasar's employment application, which she understood and signed, she failed to put her arrest or theft by deception on the place indicated, because she "needed a job" and stated that this was the first application she filled out after being denied unemployment benefits. She also stated that her husband was still in jail, and that she was responsible for supporting his four children by a previous marriage.

Since 1984, Ms. Vanegas has had no more problems with the law. She offered a number of character references from co-workers at Ceasar's and others. (R-1 through R-16). Eighteen of her fellow employees at Ceasar's signed a letter vouching for her good character and stating that she is "a very considerate and friendly person who carries out her duties in a responsible manner" and that each of them "trust her very much and feels that she would not do any dishonest thing that would bring shame to her, Ceasar's, or others." (R-1). Other letters of reference enthusiastically attest to her good character, honesty and integrity, and other virtues. (R-2 through R-16).

There is no dispute as to the above facts and I so FIND.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The factors of rehabilitation, as set forth in 90h (and 90d), are relevant to both the issue of inimicality under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(2) and good character, honesty and integrity, which the applicant must demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence under N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), 90b. See, DGE v. Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301, 314 (1985); Dunston v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, dec'd April 10, 1990, A-197-89T3. Those factors are as follows:

> [i]n determining whether the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his rehabilitation the commission shall consider the following factors:
>
> (1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;
>
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
>
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;

(4) The date of the offense or conduct;

(5) The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;

(6) Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;

(7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;

(8) Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. (emphasis added).

The Division argues that Ms. Vanegas should lose her registration and be denied licensure because of the 1984 coupon incident alone, where she took coupons against instructions, initially lied to the Division, and then tried to throw the coupons away in the midst of the investigation interview. The Division argues that she has shown no social condition contributing to the offense or other rehabilitation and that her licensure and registration would be inimical. The DAG also noted the respondent's failure to disclose her arrest record to Ceasar's when applying, and discounts character references from persons not aware of her past behavior.

Ms. Venages argues that she came from Columbia in the early 1980's and was suffering from "culture shock", to which her limited grasp of the English language contributed. She argues that the coupons were to be treated as trash, not as an article of value, and that she acted accordingly. Although she admitted that she knew they had value to others who could redeem them, she offered them to Albelo to share in the proceeds as part of the "old culture" of her native country of share and share alike and not from any desire to profit personally, although she did receive at least earrings.

In assessing the factors of rehabilitation, as set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90, Ms. Venages argued that her position as a registrant has no contact with patrons, since she works when the casino is closed, did not involve serious conduct in that she was dealing with discarded coupons, was an isolated and not a repeated act, and was complicated and compounded by her unfamiliarity of the English language. She states that she is now 28 years of age, and has not had any further problems with the law.

Given the above discussed and undisputed circumstances of the 1984 event involving discarded coupons which was isolated, and in light of respondent's subsequent unblemished work record in the casino industry for four years following dismissal or the theft charge, I CONCLUDE that her registration is not inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and the casino industry as per N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c2 and I further conclude that she has shown the requisite honesty, good character, and integrity for licensure under N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b and 90b, as construed and interpreted by the Appellate Division in the matter of the Dunston case, which is closely analogous to this case. Although the redemption of the coupons was serious in the sense that Ms. Vanegas knew that it was wrong, and, further, that it touched on her employment, it is outweighed by her overall excellent employment record, by which she was redeemed herself.

On the basis of the above findings of act and conclusions of law, it is ORDERED that the Division's complaint seeking revocation of respondent registration is DISMISSED and her application for casino employee license granted.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE my Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

AMENDED

DENISE E. VASILIEFF, a/k/a OVENS,

Respondent.

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the New Jersey Casino Control Commission; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of October 17, 1990,

IT IS on this 27th day of November 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

(1) The ALJ stated that, "an individual cannot affirmatively demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to 90(h) and 91(d) in order to overcome the disqualifying offense of inimicality set forth in section 86(c)(2)." Init. dec. at 4-5.

This statement is incorrect for the reasons noted in the recent case of State v. Michael P. Tomlinson, Docket No. 89-344 (Commission order No. 90-36-8 dated September 21, 1990.

(2) The ALJ found that the respondent's February 29, 1988, arrest must be considered an isolated incident because she had never been arrested for, or convicted of, a controlled dangerous substance offense. This finding is rejected.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h) requires the Commission to consider whether "the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident." While it is true that this was the respondent's only arrest, the respondent's admission that she had used drugs a couple of times a week makes her conduct "repeated" within the meaning of section 90(h).

(3) The ALJ stated that the inimical analysis requires the respondent to establish that the mitigating factors in favor of continuing licensure greatly outweigh the aggravating factors. This statement is incorrect. For the reasons more fully stated in State v. Theodore Williams, Docket No. 84-288 (Commission order May 1, 1987) and State v. Michael P. Waters, Docket No. 84-419 (Commission order June 12, 1987), it is neither necessary nor appropriate to ascribe a burden of proof standard in these circumstances.

Here the Division established that the respondent committed drug offenses which, although not enumerated as disqualifiers in section 86(c)(1), occurred in circumstances that the Commission has previously found inimical to licensure. At this point, the Division of Gaming Enforcement had established a case for the respondent's disqualification. It was then incumbent upon the respondent to show that he was rehabilitated; that is, the burden of going forward with evidence (but not the ultimate burden of proof) had shifted. For the reasons stated by the ALJ we find that the respondent carried her burden of proof.

(4) The ALJ stated that waiver requires the demonstration of extraordinary circumstances by clear and convincing evidence the part of the respondent. This statement is also incorrect.

The question of waiver arises only after the Commission has determined that a respondent has failed to demonstrate his or her rehabilitation. At this point > the Commission may, in its discretion waive the disqualification if it finds that the interests of justice so require. While the respondent is free to urge the Commission to grant this extraordinary relief, we disagree that the respondent bears any burden of proof on the issue of waiver pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(e).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the casino hotel employee registration of Denise E. Vasilieff is not revoked substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference.

Record Closed: July 26, 1990 Decided: August 10, 1990

BEFORE JOSEPH E. KANE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The Department of Law & Public Safety, Division of Gaming of Enforcement (Division) filed a complaint with the Casino Control Commission (Commission) requesting revocation of the casino hotel employee registration #64533-40 of the respondent. The Division alleges that respondent committed an act which is inimical to the Casino Control Act (Act) and the gaming industry pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)2.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Division filed its complaint with the Commission on October 11, 1988. Respondent requested a hearing on May 26, 1989 and on November 28, 1989 the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq. A prehearing conference was conducted on April 23, 1990 by Jeff S. Masin, ALJ followed by a hearing which was held on July 26, 1990. The record was closed on July 26, 1990.

ISSUES

The issues to be resolved by this tribunal are as follows:

A. Did Ms. Vasilieff engage in conduct which, had it been prosecuted would be an offense which would indicate that her licensure would be inimical to the policies of the Casino Control Act and thus requires revocation, N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)2; 86(g)?

B. If Ms. Vasilieff engaged in such conduct, is revocation the appropriate and required penalty?

C. Under the facts and circumstances of this case, would a waiver of disqualification be appropriate, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-91(e).

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

On February 29, 1988 respondent was employed as a food server in Caesars Hotel Casino. At the conclusion of her shift, approximately 3:00 to 3:30 P.M. she entered the employee's locker room bathroom. Her intent, was to get high by utilizing a packet of drugs given to her by a girlfriend earlier in the week. Injecting the drug into her system, which she believed to be cocaine, she immediately began to overdose and was rushed to the hospital by Caesars officials. State Police lab results indicated that the drug was not cocaine but heroine.

As a result of the above incident, the Division filed charges against the respondent on March 4, 1988 alleging in sum that respondent injected and used a controlled dangerous substance, heroine and she also possessed a hypodermic needle. (see P-3) Respondent entered a plea of guilty on September 7, 1988 to possession of a hypodermic syringe and use of a controlled dangerous substance and was accepted into the conditional discharge program. The charge of possession of a controlled dangerous substance was dismissed. As a result of the February 29, 1988 incident, the Division now alleges that her continuing licensure within the casino industry would fall into the inimical category of Section 86(c)2 of the Act.

N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)2 states:

> "Any other offense under present New Jersey or federal law which indicates that licensure of the applicant would be inimical to the policy of this act and to casino operations; provided, however, that the automatic disqualification provisions of this subsection shall not apply with regard to any conviction which did not occur within the 10 year period immediately preceding application for licensure and which the applicant demonstrates by clear and convincing evidence does not justify automatic disqualification pursuant to this subsection and any conviction which has been the subject of a judicial order of expungement or sealing."

Whether an individual's conduct rises to the level of inimicality to the Act and legalized gaming depends upon the circumstances of each case. The factors to be weighed and considered are the nature of the offense, the circumstances surrounding the offense including mitigating and aggravating factors, the amount of time that has passed from the offense to the date of the hearing. See Davis vs. Division of Gaming Enforcement, 8 N.J.A.R. 301 at 313. Included in this analysis are the eight factors set forth in section 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act. It must be emphasized that an individual cannot affirmatively demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act in order to overcome the disqualifying offense of inimicality set forth in section 86(c)2. Nevertheless, the enumerated rehabilitation factors set forth in sections 90(h) and 91(d) of the Act can be utilized in the inimical analysis in order to determine whether an individual must be disqualified from participation in the gaming industry. These eight factors are:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
4. The date of the offense or conduct;
5. The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;
6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

Applying the criteria set forth above, I FIND as follows:

The conduct engaged in by the respondent is clearly one which falls within the inimical classification. Granted, respondent's conduct was not in clear view of patrons and the public, nevertheless, there is simply no rational basis or valid excuse for the presence or use of illegal drugs within a casino. Employees who are under the influence of illegal drugs perform their duties in an impaired condition and thus constitute a risk for their individual employer as well as the gaming industry in general. Despite this finding, it is possible for respondent to retain her registration provided that her continuing licensure does not pose a continuing threat or is otherwise inimical to the Act and the industry. To make this determination, I turn to the eight factors set forth in 91(d) of the Act.

1. Nature and duties of the position.

Respondent has worked in the casino industry for the last ten years. She has held such positions as a cocktail waitress at Bally's Park Place, a food server at the Sands and Caesars and a reservationist at Trump Plaza where she is currently employed. Her duties include booking up charters, arranging schedules of all the incoming buses for her supervisors, providing reports regarding buses and passengers to the Casino Control Commission and dealing on a daily basis with group tour leaders. She has held this position for two years and four months as of the date of the hearing. Respondent has been recommended by her supervisor to participate in an upward mobility program. In addition, her supervisor requested and received authorization for an extraordinary salary increase based upon her job performance and increased work load since when assuming the position, she replaced two individuals.

2. Seriousness of the offense.

Considering the type of drug involved, heroine, and the location of its use, the offense of possession and use of a controlled dangerous substance must be considered to be of a serious nature.

3. Circumstances surrounding the offense.

Respondent's overdose was brought on because of her belief that the substance being injected was cocaine rather than heroine. Her justification for utilizing the drug was that she was upset over the recent dissolution of her marriage. In addition to the seriousness of the offense, the circumstances could have resulted in respondent's death. The overdose did not occur while respondent was on duty and thus, visible to patrons of the casino, however, as set forth above, the location and type of drug utilized leads to the decision that the offense and circumstances surrounding it constitute an inimical act.

4. Date of the offense.

The date of the overdose was February 29, 1988.

5. Age of the respondent.

Respondent was 30 years old on February 29, 1988. She is now 32 years old.

6. Has the conduct been repeated.

In reviewing respondent's testimony, I FIND that the best description of her involvement with illegal drugs prior to February 29, 1988 could be that of a binger. She could abstain from drug usage for months at a time and then, depending on various social or family conditions, began utilizing drugs regularly for a two to three month period. Respondent had never been arrested or found guilty of possession or use of a controlled dangerous substance either prior to February 29, 1988 or thereafter. She has not been a user of illegal drugs since her overdose. Although prior to February 29, 1988 respondent had many periods of drug usage, I FIND that the February 29, 1988 incident was a one-time event in that it was the only time in her life that she was ever arrested for, or convicted of, the use of a controlled dangerous substance.

7. Social conditions contributing to the offense.

The only social condition contributing to the offense must be viewed more as a reason than as justification for the use of heroine. As more fully set forth in number 3 above, respondent used drugs to alleviate the pressures and conflicts resulting in her life from the break up of her marriage. As she testified, and I agree, such is simply not a justification for addictive behaviour.

8. Evidence of rehabilitation.

Respondent's overdose was the catalyst for her subsequent treatment and elimination of drugs from her life. Being very frightened by the incident, respondent within two days sought help from one of the in-house Caesars counsellors. Within two days thereafter, she was enrolled in the Bradford Drug & Alcohol Rehabilitation Program in Alabama. The 28 day program consisted of intensive one on one and group counselling and mandatory attendance at NA and AA meetings. When leaving this program, respondent continued group theraphy with Dr. Earle in Atlantic City, New Jersey which also included attendance at NA meetings upwards of three times per week for two years. She no longer feels the need to attend NA meetings on a regular basis but does maintain regular contact with NA personnel.

Respondent describes her addiction as being one of "occasional use" in that she was always able to maintain employment and was able to go without drugs for weeks or months at a time. She learned through her rehabilitation in Alabama as well as through NA meetings that drugs used three times a week is "three times too many". Her husand who, prior to February 29, 1988 was her fiance, testified that he had a suspicion that repondent may have been using drugs.

Respondent did not utilize illegal drugs while on the premises of any casino except for the February 29, 1988 incident. Although knowing other Caesars employees who were utilizing drugs, respondent indicated that she never did drugs with them in an effort to conceal her usage of drugs. She never purchased drugs from other casino employees, instead, her supply came from "the street".

Respondent pled guilty to possession of a hypodermic syringe and use of a controlled dangerous subsance on September 7, 1988 and was granted entry into the conditional discharge program. She successfully completed the requirements of the program and received her discharge. The Bradford rehabilitation program was not ordered by the court. Instead, this was a "personal decision" made by the respondent with the assistance of a Caesars counsellor.

Respondent is now remarried and jointly supports with her husband two children. Both she and her husband regularly attend church services and functions. Additionally, respondent no longer associates with individuals who use illegal drugs.

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATION

The act of using heroine on any portion of a casino premises clearly constitutes an act which is inimical to the interest and policies of the Casino Control Act and the gaming industry in general. The question which the Davis decision requires this tribunal to next answer is whether despite a finding of inimicality, will the continuing licensure of a hotel registrant constitute a threat to the operations of a casino hotel or otherwise impair the public's confidence in the gaming industry. Because the eight factors set forth in 91(d) of the Act are subsumed into the inimical analysis under Davis supra, this tribunal must be persuaded by clear and convincing evidence that the mitigating factors in favor of continuing licensure greatly outweigh the aggravating factors including the initial determination that the act itself falls within the inimical category.

Much to respondent's credit is the fact that she voluntarily sought and accepted the drug rehabilitation program offered by Caesers Hotel Casino. Thereafter, she successfully completed her conditional discharge program and has remained drug free to the present. The results of her successful rehabilitation are evident by her remarriage and stable family life together with the respect she has earned from her employer, Trump Plaza. These mitigating factors, greatly outweigh respondent's commission of an inimical offense on February 29, 1988 and on balance, demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that her retaining her hotel registration would not be inimical to the Casino Control Act and would not diminish the public's trust and confidence in the gaming industry.

Accordingly, for the reasons set forth above, I HOLD that respondent, Denise E. Ovens Vasilieff should be permitted to retain her casino hotel employee registration #64533-40.

UNDER THE FACTS OF THIS MATTER SHOULD A WAIVER BE GRANTED PURSUANT TO SECTION 91(e) OF THE ACT?

Section 91(e) of the Act states:

"The commission may waive any disqualification criterion for a casino employee consistent with the public policy of this act and upon a finding that the interests of justice so require."

It is thus clear from the language of the statute that it is possible for the Casino Control Commission to grant to a hotel registrant a waiver of an otherwise disqualifying offense whenever the facts and circumstances demonstrate that to do so would not otherwise harm or threaten the gaming industry. This extraordinary relief thus requires the demonstration of extraordinary circumstances by clear and convincing evidence on the part of the respondent.

In the instant matter, I have found that the respondent does face a disqualifer to which she has been rehabilitated. In the event the Casino Control Commission rejects this finding, I would urge the Commission under the individual facts of this matter to grant a waiver.

But for the fact that the February 29, 1988 incident occurred within the casino, there is no doubt that respondent would have met her burden to demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence her rehabilitation pursuant to Section 91(d) of the Act. The commission of the act within the casino brings into play the element of inimicality under Section 86(c)2 which places a higher burden on the respondent to show that the conditions which served as the catalyst for the offense are not now, nor will they be present in the future. Respondent has demonstrated by clear and convincing evidence that she is not now, nor will she be anything other than a hard-working and deeply motivated individual who wants to succeed in the industry.

For these reasons I FIND that respondent has demonstrated that she is eligible to receive a waiver should the Casino Control Commission disagree with my findings as set forth above.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified, or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

FOR A JUNKET REPRESENTATIVE LICENSE

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of November 28, 1990,

IT IS on this 10th day of December 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is modified as follows:

> To find that the applicant has failed to establish that she possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence, noting not only the business relationship with her husband cited by the ALJ, but also the applicant's less than candid testimony, both at the OAL hearing and in sworn testimony at interviews conducted by the Division of Gaming Enforcement. The particular testimony which underscores this finding concerned, inter alia, the extent of Albert Vitali's involvement in the business of Jet Tours Travel World, the relationship between the applicant's husband and her with a reputed member of organized crime and the circumstances of the dissolution of the applicant's automotive sales business.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the application of Jeannette B. Vitali is denied substantially for the reasons stated in the initial decision which, as modified, is incorporated herein by reference; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Jeannette B. Vitali is prohibited from reapplying for or obtaining any other license, registration, qualification or approval required under the Casino Control Act except pursuant to N.J.A.C. 19:41-8.8.

INITIAL DECISION
OAL DKT. NO. CCC 6210-89
AGENCY DKT. NO. 87-EA-81

IN THE MATTER OF THE APPLICATION OF JEANNETTE VITALI FOR A CASINO JUNKET REPRESENTATIVE LICENSE.

Donald Targan, Esq., for petitioner (Targan, Higbee & Kievit, attorneys)
Richard Morrissey, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Robert J. Del Tufo, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: August 10, 1990 Decided: September 7, 1990

BEFORE EDGAR R. HOLMES, ALJ:

Jeannette B. Vitali applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for a junket representative license. The Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) recommended to the Commission that her application be denied. She requested a hearing and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference was held on February 5, 1990 and the following issues were identified for resolution at the plenary hearing:

A. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino junket representative licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite financial stability, integrity and responsibility for casino junket representative licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(1).

C. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite business ability and casino experience for casino junket representative licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(3).

D. Whether the petitioner failed to cooperate with the Division pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-80(d).

A plenary hearing convened on August 8, 9 and 10, 1990.

Jeannette B. Vitali has owned and operated a travel bureau in Pawtucket, R.I. since approximately 1974. She specializes in tours to Italy, but also has done tours to Spain, the Canary Islands, Egypt and Costa Rica. She operates a full service travel agency. She can issue tickets on airplanes and cruise ships; either package tours or individually planned vacations. She also does tours for sporting events such as super bowls, playoffs and world series. She seeks licensure in order to provide junkets to Atlantic City casinos.

The applicant's employees are well trained, her clients are satisfied, her books and records are clean, and her reputation is excellent. Some minor difficulties from her past, such as an arrest in 1961 and a problem with her license to operate a used car lot were satisfactorily explained by her. The arrest was never prosecuted and the licensing problems were really only a problem meeting the lot size requirements of the Rhode Island State Code.

The applicant is experienced in the operation of tours and could readily learn the Commission rules pertaining to casino junkets. She is a working owner operator and the sole owner of her business.

When the applicant was not engaged in business, she worked at home and raised four children. She was active in the Mothers Guild at her children's school; she was the president for several terms. After school, she taught confirmation classes at St. Theresa's. She was also a lunch monitor. Her priest describes her as having a "deep religious commitment" which has been a "guiding force in her life."

The applicant has additional letters testifying to her good character, honesty and integrity from her banker, the mayor of her city, the Chief of Police and many other friends, neighbors and clients. It is obvious that the applicant is loved and revered in her home town.

She favorably impressed the two New Jersey State Police officers who interviewed her in Rhode Island in connection with her application for licensure. In fact, she cooperated fully with the Division over a period of years. The Division's only complaint in this regard is that she refused to permit an investigator to go into her safe deposit box.

Nevertheless, the applicant is not licensable. She is married to an organized crime figure and the incidents of that relationship are the occasion of her disqualification from licensure.

A modern marriage, especially among the middle classes, is similar in many respects to a business. There are properties to be purchased, insured, sold and sometimes pledged as collateral. Real property and personal investments must be managed in order to produce income. Some couples, especially those who are regulated by a professional or governmental code of ethics, are quite effective in isolating one spouse, or shielding the other, from allegations of conflict of interest.

But this applicant has not isolated herself effectively from her husband's interests, or him from hers, where it was possible to have done so. Prior, however, to discovering these incidents, it is necessary to illustrate Albert Vitali's organized crime connections.

Albert "Albo" Vitali was born on April 16, 1924 in Johnstown, R.I. His rap sheet reveals that he was convicted of a bookmaking charge in 1947, of wagering without a tax stamp in 1962, of interstate theft in 1965 and of conspiracy to manufacture counterfeit slugs in 1979. He is suspected of being a "fence" for organized crime. There is probable cause to believe that this is so. John LaCross, a Rhode Island State Trooper of 12 years experience, the last four of which have been with the Organized Crime Intelligence Unit, recently wired up a criminal informant and sent him in to sell stolen goods to Albert Vitali. LaCross listened to the conversation on a monitor, and reports that Vitali was very receptive to the offer.

The deal fell apart however, when the informant could not produce the stolen goods.

In addition, based upon surveillance, the exchange of information with other police agencies, information developed from confidential informants, the results of analyzing the telephone toll charges of Albert Vitali, the testimony of experts in the field of organized crime in Rhode Island and elsewhere, LaCross has formed the opinion that Albert Vitali is an associate of the organized crime family in Rhode Island. This is corroborated by the fact that Albert Vitali has acted as surety for the purpose of bailing organized crime family members out of jail on numerous occasions. The property utilized by Albert Vitali for bail purposes is frequently the marital residence of the Vitali's.

In addition, Albert Vitali's connections with organized crime are not hidden and sub rosa, but they are open and notorious. In evidence is a television film clip of a local news team baiting Albert Vitali in the attempt to obtain an admission from him regarding his connections. The news item concerned a property owned by Jeannette Vitali and partner (not Albert) which they hoped to sell to the State for an off track betting parlor.

The applicant testified that she left the management of real property to her husband. The applicant owns over 4 million dollars worth of real property according to her personal history disclosure form. The form also indicates that all of the property is held by Albert and Jean Vitali. This is not wholly accurate as the property which was the subject of the TV news show mentioned above is owned by the applicant and a partner, not her husband.

In addition, Albert Vitali frequently accompanies his wife on tours. It may be supposed that he will accompany his wife on junkets. He has access to her bank and checkbook. It is true that he rarely exercises this right; he has only written eight checks in the last half dozen years, but the fact remains that he is a signatory on her business account. On at least one occasion, the applicant relied upon her husband to resolve a quarrel at a hotel between her clients and the hotel's management.

These incidents clearly indicate that the applicant and Albert Vitali have close and frequent business contact over and above the bonds of marriage. Albert Vitali exercises a position of authority and responsibility in Jeannette Vitali's travel business. The Casino Control Act requires the exclusion of persons with known criminal records, habits or associations . . . from positions of authority or responsibility within casino gaming operations ... N.J.S.A. 5:12-1b (7).

Counsel for the applicant suggests that a conditioned license may or ought to be issued to the applicant in case an organized crime connection is found to append to her husband. There is authority for such a license. Elliot D. Strahl and Atlantic City Tours, Inc. Applicants v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, OAL DKT. NO. CCC 0575-83, initial decision July 20, 1983, Final Order affirming and modifying the initial decision September 21, 1983. In that case, the applicant's relationship to an organized crime figure was filial.

The Commission granted Elliot D. Strahl a license on the condition that he have no interest in any of his father's businesses. It also ordered that his employees have no interest with Strahl's father. Such an order in this case would exceed the bounds of propriety. All of the testimony revealed that Albert and Jeannette Vitali were a happily married couple who loved and respected each other.

A. I therefore CONCLUDE that the applicant does not possess the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino junket representative licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2).

I do so on the very narrow grounds that she is associated with an organized crime figure and that association would be inimical to the policy of the Casino Control Act and to gaming operations. In re Resorts Casino Application, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 251.

B. I also CONCLUDE that, the applicant does not possess the requisite financial stability, integrity and responsibility for casino junket representative licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (1).

Again, the fact that the applicant's finances are inextricably bound up with her husband's impels this conclusion.

C. I CONCLUDE that the applicant possesses the requisite business ability and casino experience for casino junket representative licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b (3).

D. I CONCLUDE that the applicant cooperated with the Division pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89 (d).

A safe deposit box is available to the government only upon the owner's death and then for tax purposes only. Even the bank does not know what is in a safe deposit box. A box usually contains a will or other instructions to the survivors, it might contain a personal and private momento. No one can guess what individuals may wish to place in a cashe. To force an opening of a safe deposit box at the whim of a licensing agent or as a matter of policy goes too far. In the event such a policy is permitted, it is only a matter of time until the Division searches bureau drawers, pocketbooks and body cavities.

I ORDER that the application for a casino junket representative licensure of Jeannette B. Vitali be DISMISSED.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION for consideration.

ORDER

A hearing having been held before the Office of Administrative Law; and the initial decision of the administrative law judge having been filed with the Casino Control Commission; and exceptions having been filed; and a reply to the exceptions having been filed; and the Commission having considered the entire record of these proceedings at its public meeting of August 15, 1990.

IT IS on this 20th day of September 1990, ORDERED that the initial decision is rejected and the Commission finds as follows:

1. Although not addressed by the Administrative Law Judge, the application of Bernard Falkow for a casino key employee license was also an issue in this case. Because Mr. Falkow was convicted in 1983 of a crime which is listed as a disqualifying offense in N.J.S.A. 5:12-86(c)(1) and because rehabilitation is not available to applicants for key employee licensure, his application must be denied. However, a qualifier of a casino service industry license applicant, like the applicant itself, may adduce evidence of is rehabilitation to persuade the Commission that he and it are qualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-92(d).

2. After reviewing the rehabilitation factors listed in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90(h), the Commission concludes that Bernard Falkow has demonstrated his rehabilitation for the following reasons: (1) Mr. Falkow's crime, though serious, occurred over ten years ago; (2) Mr. Falkow has acknowledged his wrongdoing and expressed remorse for his actions; (3) Mr. Falkow cooperated with the investigation into his crime; (4) Mr. Falkow has no prior or subsequent arrests; (5) Mr. Falkow complied with all the conditions of his probation and made full restitution to the American Express Company; and (6) two businessmen and an attorney from the Atlantic City area have testified to Mr. Falkow's present good character, honesty and integrity.

3. In view of our conclusion that Mr. Falkow has established his rehabilitation we find that he has also established his good character, honesty and integrity as required by N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3(c).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the application of Bernard Falkow for a casino key employee license is denied; and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Bernard Falkow is hereby found qualified pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-92(c); and

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the application of Woodsroad Management Corp., t/a Hurst Travel and Travel Dimensions, for a non-gaming related casino service industry license is granted.

IN THE APPLICATION OF WOODSROAD MANAGEMENT CORPORATION, T/A HURST TRAVEL AND TRAVEL DIMENSIONS, FOR A CASINO SERVICE INDUSTRY LICENSE, QUALIFIER: BERNARD FALKOW

BEFORE RICHARD J. MURPHY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE, ISSUE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Woodsroad Management Corporation, t/a Hurst Travel and Travel Dimensions, applies to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for a casino service industry (CSI) license pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:12-86, 92c and N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.1 et seq., and the Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division) objects solely on the basis of the conviction of its qualifier, Bernard Falkow, for obtaining money by false pretenses in February of 1983. Because the Division's objection is limited to Mr. Falkow's problems, the parties agreed that the hearing would proceed on that issue alone and that Woodsroad Management Corporation would abide by the Commission's determination of Mr. Falkow's qualifications (or disqualifications) and terminate his services, if that was required in order to obtain a casino service industry license. The sole issue, then, is whether Bernard Falkow possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity as a qualifier for a casino service industry license pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-92 and 19:43-1.3c, considering any evidence of rehabilitation as set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.*

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

There is no dispute as to the facts and the parties agreed to proceed only as to the qualifier, Bernard Falkow, as indicated. If Mr. Falkow is found not to be qualified, Woodsroad Management has agreed to terminate his services, and thereby remove what is now the only obstacle posed by the Division to granting its casino service industry license.

The parties stipulate that Bernard Falkow was the subject of an accusation in the Superior Court of New Jersey Law Division - Criminal, on February 15, 1983, which charged him with cheating and defrauding the American Express Company between May 1, 1979 and May 31, 1979 by making false representations, writings and pretenses for the purpose of deceiving the American Express Company as to the number of separate and distinct transactions involving the sale of traveler's checks so as to increase the amount of commissions received by a travel agency, of which Bernard Falkow was presiding and part owner. On February 15, 1983, Mr. Falkow plead guilty to the four counts of the accusation as to obtaining money by false pretenses in violation of N.J.S.A. 2A:111-1 and was sentenced to one year's probation, ordered to pay restitution of $4,000, and to perform 200 hours of community service.

*Procedural History: The matter of this application was filed with the Office of Administrative Law by the Casino Control Commission on May 1, 1989 for a hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq., and a prehearing was held on September 1, 1989, with a plenary hearing held on October 31, 1989, as to the applicant's qualifier, Bernard Falkow. The record closed on that date, but the due date for submission of the initial decision was extended on several occasions for reasons not related to this case, including the backlog of cases resulting from a public utility matter affecting many residents of New Jersey. I regret any hardship or inconvenience that this unavoidable delay may have caused the parties.

On February 21, 1985, Mr. Falkow filed a personal history disclosure form with the Commission, as part of the application of Woodsroad Management, indicating that he was then employed as sales representative for Hurst Travel, the tradename of Woodsroad. (J-2). Woodsroad filed its casino service industry application on the same date, listing its services as "travel services including airline, rail and cruise ship tickets; car rentals and hotel reservations are sold to any casino/hotel desiring same, on and as need or required basis" (J-3 at 2). That application stated that Hurst Travel had been acquired by the applicant on December 31, 1984, and also that the applicant was an American Express travel service representative, offering all services, including selling of American Express traveler's checks to the general public. Bernard Falkow was listed as a qualifier for Woodsroad on the CSI application.

Mr. Falkow presented testimony from Roy Baylinson, Esq., who represented him in his criminal case, and who also characterized himself as a friend and social acquaintance of the qualifier for twenty five years. Though he initially considered opposing the charge of obtaining money by false pretense because of doubt as to whether the facts precisely fit under the statute, Mr. Baylinson decided to advise his client to "turn your back on it; and go on with your life." Although Mr. Baylinson noted on cross-examination that Mr. Falkow's action in defrauding American Express was "deliberate; intentional and stupid," he felt that Mr. Falkow was "more honester than the next" and not usually of criminal bent. Mr. Baylinson noted that Falkow was concerned with breaking even in his travel business and sought to meet his expenses in servicing American Express by falsely inflating the number of American Express Traveler's Check transactions, which increased the commissions paid by the company. Baylinson he places great trust in the applicant, and permits him to sign credit cards for his frequent travel arrangements. He explained that Falkow's problems began when American Express detected his practice some eleven years after it had occurred, when one of Falkow's travel agency employee's, who was suspected of theft, "turned on him" and claimed that American Express was being cheated by the agency.

Bernard Falkow testified that he returned to the Atlantic City/Margate area nineteen years ago with a Masters in Psychology and Personal Counseling, after his marriage had failed. He then went to work for his in-laws business but was later let go when the business was sold. Rather than go back into the psychology business after his experience in the business world, he chose to buy a travel agency in 1975, and then to merge with another agency in 1976. Since he lacked the expertise needed, he purchased the agency with one Constance Duffield, who left after six months of work. After the merger in 1976, he obtained an account with Resorts International Hotel and Casino and his partner, Howell Edwards, suggested that they open a full service travel office with check cashing privileges for the benefit of hotel customers. Under an arrangement with American Express, Falkow would pay out the traveler's checks, and American Express would pay him 2/3 of one percent of the check cashing, as well as $1.50 fee for the servicing of each client. In 1978, the company opened its office in Resorts and applied to become a full service agency for American Express and The ATC Company (Air Traffic Corporation) but was asked by American Express and ATC Company to leave Resorts in March of 1979, because of the lack of any outside doorway and space provided by the casino/hotel. When he left Resorts, Falkow had four people employed and that he didn't want to lay them off. He felt that he was faced with the unacceptable choice of having to work until midnight every night or of keeping the Agency going on by splitting (falsely multiplying) American Express transactions to generate excess commissions to carry the payroll. He knew that this was "totally wrong," but split the proceeds to maintain the company and the staff. He also stated that "I knew I was doing something wrong. Definitely wrong." He feared detection in that all of his employees and partners knew of the scheme to defraud American Express and agreed to participate in it in order to keep their jobs. After returning to Resorts in June or July of 1979, the travel agency was robbed, and Falkow suspects that one of his former employees told the investigating officers of the fraudulent American Express practice.

After leaving the travel agency in May of 1980, Falkow filed an application for a Casino Key Employee license, in orderto work in a casino. In the course of the investigation of that application, the Division called him in in 1982 and asked if he had split transactions for American Express. He admitted that practice, and subsequently was charged and convicted. Prior to this time, he had heard no complaints from American Express as to the fraud. He freely admitted his deception practices to the Division and waived all his rights: in deciding to plead guilty and he felt relief that the matter was finally out in the open and had a sense of "catharsis."

Falkow paid made the restitution and served the 200 hours community service with the Knights of Pytheus, a fraternal organization loosely based on Greek mythology, in bingo games on Saturday nights. He also sold raffle tickets for Deborah Hospital. He claims that he is not employed directly by Woodsroad, but rather works as an independent contractor on outside sales, selling airline tickets and car reservations at a commission of 14% to 15% of his total volume. Although loosely he knew that what he had done in defrauding American Express was wrong, he claimed that he had never done anything like that before, and was never been arrested or convicted for anything, except a traffic ticket in 1965. He also states that he has had no further problems in the criminal area and been the subject of and no civil actions, except a class action against one of his former travel agencies. He claims that he is current with his tax payments, and has never been penalized for filing false returns. He is presently 48 years of age, and thus was 38 in May of 1979. He is also a member of the Rotary Club and Temple Beth El in Margate and had previously been named Man of the Year by the Knights of Pytheus.

On cross-examination, Falkow stated that, although he considers himself to be independent of Woodsroad, he was a qualifier for that company on its casino service industry application. He also condeded that it was his idea to instruct employees to split transactions and thereby increase commissions from American Express. Although, he knew that this practice was wrong, he did it for his employees, and wouldn't do it again. After his return to Resorts, he instructed employees to stop splitting, but they apparently kept up the practice, without his knowledge.

Roger Buffman, President and Chief Executive Officer of Brittany Jewelers and holder of a casino service industry license, testified that he has known Falkow since 1978, on both a personal and business basis, and has always found him to be a hardworker, with a character above reproach. He has used Falkow for business purposes and keeps his credit cards on file there, to be signed on his behalf by Falkow.

Rich Abel, the owner of an insurance agency in Northfield, also testified as character witness, having supervised Falkow's community service for the Knights of Pytheus, in which Mr. Abel is lodge chancellor and commander in that "society of charity and benevolance." Mr. Abel testified that Falkow's character was impeccable and that he suffered great embarrasment in performing his community service, by mopping up after the Knights of Pytheus on many a Saturday night.

There is no dispute as to the above facts and I so FIND.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

The question presented is whether Bernard Falkow is disqualified and not rehabilitated for the purpose of acting as a qualifier on the application of Woodsroad Management Company for a casino service industry license, and whether he can demonstrate by clear and convincing evidence that he possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for licensure under the Casino Control Act and regulations, considering any rehabilitation set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. See, N.J.S.A 5:12-86,92c and N.J.A.C. 19:43-1.3c.

Both the question of disqualification and that of good character, honesty and integrity require the Commission to consider the factors of rehabilitation as set forth in N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. See, Division of Gaming Enforcement v. Davis, 8 N.J.A.R. 301, 314 (1985); Dunston v. Division of Gaming Enforcement, Superior Court of New Jersey, App. Div., dec'd April 20, 1990, A-197-89T3:

> [i]n determining whether the applicant has affirmatively demonstrated his [or her] rehabilitation the Commission shall consider the following factors;
>
> (1) The nature and duties of the position applied for;
>
> (2) The nature and seriousness of the offense of conduct;
>
> (3) The circumstances under which the offense of conduct occurred;
>
> (4) The date of the offense of conduct;
>
> (5) The age of the applicant when the offense of conduct was committed;
>
> (6) Whether the offense of conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
>
> (7) Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense of conduct;
>

> release programs, with the recommendation of persons who have or have had the applicant under their superivision. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h (emphasis added).

As to the factors of rehabilitation, Falkow argues that his function in selling and writing travel tickets is not sensitive, although it involves customers credit cards. The Division characterizes his duties at Woodsroad as significant, given the large volume of casino travel business handled by the company. As to the offense, Falkow raises the question as to whether there was a crime given the small amount of money involved (approximately $1000.00), but he states that his action was intentional and that he "knew it was wrong." He argues that he "did the human thing" by choosing to split transactions rather than lay off employees. His motive thus was not to profit, but, rather, he was following what his attorney characterized as the "great Atlantic City tradition" of keeping employees employed and the "ship afloat" in slow times. The Division emphasized that Falkow plead guilty to the serious charge of theft by pretense, and knew that he was cheating American Express, solely for business reasons.

Falkow also emphasized that the offense was some ten years ago in 1979, although it did not come to light until 1983. He stresses that the conduct was isolated to approximately to a month or so in 1979, and that he has had no further arrrests or charges lodged against him. He cites as social circumstances contributing to the offense, his great and sincere desire to keep his people employed, and feels that he has "taken his medicine" by admitting the offense readily and fulfilling all the requirements of his sentence. The Division replies that Falkow was a principal at the time of the offense, and that the agency was in the process of being licensed by the Casino Control Commission as a casino service industry. The DAG also stressed that Falkow was 38 years of age at the time of the offense and was the mastermind of the plan to defraud American Express, and not just some impressionable young person who had been influenced or pressured by others more familiar with the darker side of travel industry practices. The Division also takes issue with Falkow's description of his conduct as isolated, and stresses that it was repeated on a number of occasions for several months, and then stopped only to avoid detection. But for the fear of apprehension by American Express or the police, the fraud might have continued, at Falkow's direction. Falkow's character witnesses are dismissed as largely social and faternal acquaintances (lodge brothers), who are unlikely to have anything ill to add.

I agree with the Division's analysis and application of the Casino Control Act and regulations in this instance and CONCLUDE that Bernard Falkow is statutorily disqualified under N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) for his role (which was the leading one) in defrauding American Express in 1979 and further CONCLUDE that he has failed to show the requisite rehabilitation under N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and failed to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, his good character, honesty and integrity. Although the offense occurred almost ten years ago, the nature of the offense, which involved a premeditated plan to defraud American Express so that the partners in the travel agency wouldn't have to work late or terminate employess, was such an intentional fraud, without any substantial mitigating factors, that it overcomes the showing of the evidence of rehabilitation submitted, including compliance with the terms of probation and conviction. Bernard Falkow is clear and unequivocal in his statement that he knew that his actions were wrong in 1979, but proceeded to direct his employees to defraud American Express solely for business reasons. Under these circumstances and given the serious nature of the offense which raises doubts as to Woodsroad's ability to function as qualified casino service industry in the travel service area, I CONCLUDE that Bernard Falkow has failed to show rehabilitation under N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h and also failed to establish his good character, honesty and integrity by clear and convincing evidence. This result is consistent with other Commission decisions on casino service industry applications. See, e.g., The Application of Edward Bershad Company, t/a Penn Vending Company, 12 N.J.A.R. 48(1988).

I note again that the sole objecion raised by the Division is Bernard Falkow's involvement as a qualifier and thus this initial decision is limited to that objection. Woodsroad is thus free to terminate its relationship with Bernard Falkow, which is the only hurdle raised by the Division of Gaming Enforcement.

DISPOSITION

On the basis of the above findings of fact and conclusions of law, it is ORDERED that Bernard Falkow is disqualified from serving as a qualifier for the Woodsroad Management Company t/a Hurst Travel, in its application for a Casino Service Industry license under N.J.S.A. 5:12-92c.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the CASINO CONTROL COMMISSION, which by law is empowered to make a final decision in this matter. However, if the Commission does not so act in forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BEFORE STEVEN L. CARNES, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The petitioner, Beverly Ann Wright, applied to the Casino Control Commission (Commission) for the renewal of a casino employee license (craps and blackjack dealer and blackjack floorperson), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90. The respondent, Division of Gaming Enforcement (Division), opposed the renewal of the license by reason of its contention that the petitioner had committed a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), by means of section 86g, and therefore, she lacked the requisite good character, honesty and integrity, pursuant to section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference. The petitioner contended that she was rehabilitated, pursuant to section 90h.

1493

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed with the Commission an application for the renewal of a casino employee license so she could be employed as a craps and blackjack floorperson at Trump's Castle Hotel and Casino. By letter to the Commission, dated December 2, 1988, the Division objected to the petitioner's application for licensure as a craps and blackjack dealer and a blackjack floorperson, asserting that the petitioner had committed the offense of theft by deception in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4 (third degree), which is a disqualifying offense under section 86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by section 86g. The Division also objected pursuant to section 89(b)2. Based upon the report, the Commission notified the petitioner on January 9, 1989, that there was a "substantial possibility" that her application would be denied and that she had the right to a hearing. By application dated January 28, 1989, which was received by the Commission on February 2, 1989, the petitioner requested a hearing. On February 3, 1989, the Commission transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law, which received it on February 8, 1989, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq., and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 et seq.

A prehearing conference in the matter was held before me on May 2, 1989. The issues set forth at the prehearing conference to be resolved at the hearing were:

A. Whether petitioner committed acts which constitute a statutory disqualifier pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1), despite the fact that such acts were not prosecuted in the criminal courts of this State, as permitted by N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g, to wit: N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft by deception.

B. Whether the petitioner possesses the requisite good character, honesty and integrity for casino employee licensure, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-89b(2), as incorporated within section 90b.

C. Whether petitioner may demonstrate rehabilitation pursuant to section 90h of the Casino Control Act.

A hearing was held on September 12, 1989, at the Municipal Courtroom, Pleasantville Police Building, Pleasantville, New Jersey. At this hearing, there was conflicting testimonial and documentary evidence. The deputy attorney general requested an adjournment in order to afford the parties the opportunity to obtain additional documentary evidence in order to clarify the previously presented unclear and conflicting evidence. This motion was granted. Several telephone conferences were held with the parties over the next few months in order to determine the status of the case and in an attempt to reschedule the matter. After discovery had been completed, the matter was rescheduled for the first available date for all parties concerned. The hearing reconvened and concluded on June 15, 1990, at the Municipal Courtroom, Pleasantville Police Building, Pleasantville, New Jersey, after which the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

On November 3, 1980, the petitioner was hired to be a blackjack dealer at Harrah's Marina Hotel and Casino (Harrah's) (R-8). As Harrah's was in the process of opening, new employees who did not yet have their gaming licenses, such as the petitioner, were employed at "practice" gaming tables at the Golden Gate Motel. The petitioner began practice dealing for Harrah's on December 2, 1980 (R-11). In March of 1981, the petitioner received her gaming license from the Commission, and she began dealing blackjack at Harrah's. The petitioner worked at Harrah's until she resigned at the mutual agreement of parties on August 13, 1981 (R-8 & 11).

The petitioner collected unemployment benefits for twenty-four weeks while still employed at Harrah's (R-1, R-3, R-4, R-5, R-6). During this periods the petitioner earned $7,862.23, at Harrah's (R-1 & R-3). Because the petitioner failed to notify her local unemployment office of her employment, she received unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled in the amount of $2, 496.00 (R-3).

On July 1, 1982, the Department of Labor (Department) notified the petitioner that it would be conducting a hearing on July 8, 1982, concerning the unemployment benefits she had received from February 26, 1981 through August 19, 1981, while the petitioner had been employed (R-4). The petitioner attended the hearing and admitted that she had received unemployment benefits while employed at Harrah's (R-5). The Department of Labor thereafter made a determination that the petitioner had received unemployment benefits in the amount of $2,496.00, which she was not entitled to receive, and it imposed a fine of $460.00 for a total claim of $2,956.00 (R-3). The Department then filed a Certificate of Debt for $2,713.27 in the Superior Court of New Jersey on May 28, 1985, and a judgment was entered and docketed on September 4, 1985 (R-2).

Over the next several years, the petitioner's State income tax returns and homestead rebate checks were withheld by the State and applied to her outstanding debt for unemployment benefits. The petitioner made no other attempts to repay this debt. In 1989, the petitioner's fiancee received a Workers Compensation claim. He loaned part of his compensation claim receipts to the petitioner, and the petitioner repaid the unemployment claim in full. On March 14, 1989, the Division of Unemployment and Disability Insurance executed a Warrant for Satisfaction indicating its judgment against the petitioner had been satisfied and should be discharged. This warrant was filed in the Superior Court on March 29, 1989 (P-1 & P-2).

The petitioner worked at Spencer's Gifts from September 24, 1981 until December 2, 1981 (P-10). On November 23, 1981, the petitioner was hired as a parking valet attendant at the Atlantis Casino Hotel (R-1). Shortly, afterwards, the petitioner obtained a position as a blackjack dealer at the Atlantis. She continued in this employment until June 2, 1985 (R-10). The petitioner left the Atlantis in order to accept a position as a blackjack and craps dealer when Trump's Castle opened, the position she currently holds.

The petitioner testified that she was unemployed at the time she applied for unemployment and that she then became employed at Spencer's Gifts (T-32). She further testified that she did not apply for unemployment until after she was fired by Harrah's (T-39 & T-41). The petitioner applied for unemployment because she could not pay her bills. Her fiancee was an unemployed construction worker and they were raising three children at that time. Their telephone was disconnected and the heat and electric was shut off. She tried to keep up on her house payments, but she eventually lost her house. Her main concerns were putting food on the table, providing heat and electricity and keeping a roof over the family's heads.

In the last eight years, the petitioner has performed admirably in the casino industry. Her ratings at Trump's Castle have been "very good" to "above average" (P-3, P-4 & P-5). Her supervisor testified that the petitioner is a trustworthy person who is always prompt and pleasant. She has a good demeanor and is a good dealer.

The petitioner has a good reputation with other floorpersons and supervisors. In addition, the petitioner is the treasurer of her bowling league.

The petitioner submitted four letters of recommendation in her behalf: The first, written by another supervisor, Cynthia Wyatt, dated September 8, 1989, states that the petitioner is "thoughtful, positive and giving" (P-6). The second, written by Alyce Banta, property manager at the petitioner's apartment complex, dated September 8, 1989, states that the petitioner is a very warm and caring person, accepts responsibility for herself and others, is dependable and very honest (P-7). The third, written by Ms. Block, pre-enrollment specialist, Atlantic County Division of Training and Employment, dated September 7, 1989, states that the petitioner is "a warm, caring personable individual. She is honest, dependable, responsible and her overall character beyond reproach" (P-8). The final letter was written by Michael Watson, pit boss at Trump's Castle, dated August 5, 1989, states "[H]er character and personality have been an asset in her career as well as her life. I have also found Ms. Wright to be of good integrity and one who carries herself with the dignity of a lady who is progressive in all of her endeavors" (P-9).

The Division attempted to refute the petitioner's testimony concerning the circumstances underlying the incident and her current good character, honesty and integrity. As such, it is necessary to assess her credibility. Initially, her positoin in this matter must be recognized. As the petitioner and the applicant for a casino employee license, she has a direct interest in the outcome and a bias in these proceedings. I found that during both the hearing and my review of the record, and from my observations of the petitioner's demeanor, the plausibility of her testimony, the manner in which she participated in the proceedings and my examination of the documentary evidence and the documents submitted by other witnesses, it appeared that the petitioner did not testify truthfully in every regard. While she candidly admitted her misconduct and described in detail, experiencing great humiliation, the underlying circumstances, she did not testify truthfully concerning the dates of her employment and the circumstances surrounding her receipt of the unemployment benefits. Specifically, she testified that she did not apply for unemployment until after she had been fired from Harrah's when in fact, she applied for unemployment approximately one month before she received her gaming license, while employed at Harrah's, and stopped receiving unemployment one week after leaving Harrah's in August. Accordingly, I am somewhat skeptical of the petitioner's testimony.

DISCUSSION

The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, theft by deception, which constitutes a violation of section 86c(1), and that, accordingly, she is disqualified from continued licensure.

(A) N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g

Section 86g provides that an applicant will be disqualified from licensure because of the commission of any action which would constitute an offense under section 86c, even if there has not been a prosecution for such conduct. Section 86c(1) mandates that a person who has been convicted of any offense in any jurisdiction which would be one of certain enumerated offenses contained in Title 2C of the New Jersey statutes be disqualified from licensure. The Division contends, by means of section 86g, that the petitioner's receipt of unemployment benefits while she was employed at Harrah's constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, which under the circumstances disqualifies the petitioner from continued licensure.

N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, Theft by deception provides:

A person is guilty of theft if he purposely obtains property of another by deception. A person deceives if he purposely:

a. Creates or reinforces a false impression, including false impressions as to law, value, intention or other state of > mind; but deception as to a person's intention to perform a promise shall not be inferred from the fact alone that he did not subsequently perform the promise;

>
> b. Prevents another from acquiring information which would affect his judgment of a transaction; or
>
> c. Fails to correct a false impression which the deceiver previously created or reinforced, or which the deceiver knows to be influencing another to whom he stands in a fiduciary or confidential relationship.
>
> The terms "deceive" does not, however, include falsity as to matters having no pecuniary significance, or puffing or exaggeration by statements unlikely to deceive ordinary persons in the group addressed.

This statute has been held applicable where one wrongfully receives unemployment benefits. In State v. Moore, 158 N.J. Super. 68, 85-86 (App. Div. 1978), the court stated:

> As we read the trial judge's findings, defendant knowingly misrepresented his employment status to obtain money "under pretense that he is . . . out of employment." These findings establish a violation of N.J.S.A. 2A:111-2.[1] It is not necessary to prove a "corrupt intent," so long as the evidence establishes a criminal intent. See State v. Lambertson, 110 N.J. Super, 137, 141-143 (App. Div.), certif. den. 56 N.J. 479 (1970). It is immaterial that defendant may have felt entitled to some unemployment benefits and, therefore, did not have a "conscious" intent to defraud or to commit a criminal or immoral act. It is not necessary to show that defendant was "conscious that his acts were unlawful." Id. Defendant himself testified, in effect, that he received more benefits than he thought he should receive, based upon the hours he allegedly worked - or did not work. It was unnecessary to determine the exact amount of overpayment, so long as the wrongful acts inducing such payment have been established. State v. Harris, 70 N.J. 586, 589 (1976).

The Division established that the petitioner knowingly received unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled from the Department of Labor. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the petitioner's conduct constitutes a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4. I further CONCLUDE that, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-2b(2)a, the offense constitutes a crime of the third degree.

1 N.J.S.A. 2A:111-2 is now repealed, but was the predecessor to N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4.

1503

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the Division has established, by the preponderance of the credible evidence, that the offense committed by the petitioner is a disqualifying offense under sections 86c(1) and 86g. The petitioner is therefore disqualified from licensure pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-86c(1) and N.J.S.A. 5:12-86g.

(B) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h

An applicant faced with the existence of one or more section 86c disqualifiers has the opportunity to overcome the prohibition against licensure by affirmatively demonstrating her rehabilitation. N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h. This section sets forth the following eight specific criteria to be evaluated when a determination of rehabilitation is to be made:

1. The nature and duties of the position applied for;
2. The nature and seriousness of the offense or conduct;
3. The circumstances under which the offense or conduct occurred;
4. The date of the offense or conduct;
5. The age of the applicant when the offense or conduct was committed;
6. Whether the offense or conduct was an isolated or repeated incident;
7. Any social conditions which may have contributed to the offense or conduct;
8. Any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs or the recommendation of person who have or have had the applicant under their supervision.

First, Ms. Wright is a casino employee and is employed as a blackjack and craps dealer. As such, she does have direct responsibilities for actual gaming activities and does have contact with casino patrons.

Second, the petitioner committed a violation of N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, Theft by Deception - third degree, over a twenty-four week period during which she was employed in the industry. Because the offense is a listed disqualifier under section 86c(1), it is very serious.

Third, the seriousness of the misconduct must be viewed in its appropriate context. The petitioner's fiancee was unemployed and they could not pay their bills. Their telephone, heat and electricity were disconnected. Eventually, their house was taken. The petitioner's main concerns were to provide food and shelter for her family. She was simply concerned with providing for her family in a time of crisis. These circumstances converged upon the petitioner and impaired her judgment. Accordingly, the totality of the circumstances underlying the incident tend to mitigate somewhat the seriousness of her offense.

Fourth, the petitioner's misconduct occurred from the beginning of March 1981 until mid-August 1981, when it ceased.

Fifth, the petitioner was 25 years of age at the time of the offense. I believe that immaturity was a factor in this case. The petitioner believes she has learned with maturity and such conduct will not occur again. She is now a responsible, productive member of society. In addition, it is clear that the underlying circumstances affected the petitioner's ability to deal reasonably with the problem at that time.

Sixth, the petitioner has one prior arrest. As a juvenile, she was arrested in New York for what may have been an accessory in a theft case. The charges against the petitioner were dismissed as she was not guilty. The theft had been committed by her brother. The petitioner has not committed any other violation of the criminal laws since 1981.

Seventh, because of the underlying circumstances, the petitioner was only concerned with assisting her fiancee in raising and providing for their family. Her family's security and her financial situation were major concerns. Because of her youthfulness, she was unaware of other alternatives which she could have pursued.

Eighth, the petitioner has made substantial rehabilitative efforts. She has made full restitution. The petitioner has been employed in the casino industry continuously since November 1981. Her performance has been exemplary. She has demonstrated that she has matured and has accepted responsibility. Her home life has also stabilized, and she has demonstrated her acceptance of responsibility. She raised a family and participates in community activities such as being treasurer of the local bowling league. The petitioner has expressed remorse for, and has no intention of repeating; her misconduct. Accordingly, there is little likelihood, if any, of a repetition. Essentially, there is nothing more the petitioner could do to establish her rehabilitation.

If the unemployment fraud had been recent, or if the petitioner did not have an excellent record in the casino industry or reputation over the last nine years, I would not hesitate to recommend that her application for the renewal of her casino employee license be denied; however, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, her rehabilitation, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 5:12-90h.

(C) N.J.S.A. 5:12-90b

Under section 90b, which incorporates section 89b(2) by reference, Ms. Wright was required to establish, by clear and convincing evidence, her reputation for good character, honesty and integrity. In the Matter of the Application of Resorts International Hotel, Inc. for a Casino License, 10 N.J.A.R. 244, 248 (1979). In Resorts, the Commission held that an unfavorable reputation, although it raises questions which must be addressed by an applicant, is not the determinative criterion for licensure. Rather, the individual's actual character and attributes of good character, honesty and integrity are the key. The reverse must also be said to be true: a good reputation may be undeserved by the existence of proof of bad character. In any event, when the Division raises objection to licensure under section 89b(2) of the Act, it is incumbent upon an applicant to present clear and convincing proof of facts upon which the trier may reach a reasonable conclusion as to suitability. In re Boardwalk Regency Casino License Application, 180 N.J. Super. 324 (App. Div. 1981); In the Matter of the Applications of Boardwalk Regency Corporation and the Jemm Company for Casino Licenses, 10 N.J.A.R. 295, 297-298 (1980). In accordance with the regulatory strictness intended by the Legislature, it is imperative that the character and background of an applicant be scrutinized closely. Id. at 296.

It is readily apparent that the petitioner's misconduct was aberrant and that she is otherwise a person of good character, honesty and integrity. The misconduct did not directly involve her licensed employment, and the underlying circumstances somewhat mitigated the seriousness of the misconduct. In addition, the petitioner has fully accepted responsibility for her misconduct, made full restitution, regained control over her behavior, performed admirably within the casino industry during the past nine years, is engaged, has raised a family, and has become a respected member of her community. Accordingly, the petitioner presents no risk to the public nor to the integrity of the gaming industry in this State. The petitioner has earned the privilege of licensure. An examination of the whole person clearly and convincingly establishes that Ms. Wright is a person of good character, honesty and integrity, and is entirely suitable for licensure in this state. See, Boardwalk Regency Corp.

I CONCLUDE that the petitoner has established, by clear and convincing evidence, her good character, honesty and integrity under section 90b.
