Indeed Dweck acknowledged that he was unfamiliar with the Public Schools Contract Law; that he had not consulted with an attorney or anyone else who might have been familiar with the bidding process; and that he had otherwise failed to make any effort to educate himself about the law or the process in anticipation of participating in either of these programs.

As such, Dweck was unaware that any questions he had about the bidding process had to be put in writing before the bids were to be opened and conceded that the questions he did have about the bidding process in this case—including the questions he had about the skort and the short—were never put in writing before the bids were opened.

The Skort

Dweck was also unaware that specialty items, such as the girls' skort Style Plus had custom-made for The Uniform Group, were typically available to the public.

Dweck testified that he had attempted to contact Style Plus to ask about the girls' skort but could not find their contact information and had been unable to contact them.

Even more surprising from this long-time executive of an apparel company was his testimony that he never attempted to contact another manufacturer to ask about the availability of an equivalent skort.

In fact, Dweck testified that he did not even know what a full skort was.

Again, Dweck was unaware that any questions he had about the skort had to put in writing before the bids were to be opened.

The Short

Dweck testified that he ordinarily provided a mesh short to other schools but stated that he chose to provide Elizabeth with a cotton short instead for no reason whatsoever.

Once more, Dweck was unaware that any questions he had about the short had to be put in writing before the bids were opened.

His own unfamiliarity with the public bidding process for the school uniforms notwithstanding, Dweck submitted a complaint to New Jersey Department of Education, School Ethics Commission, alleging improprieties with the public bidding process for the school uniforms.

The Casus Belli

Dweck did not file his complaint with the Department as soon as he lost the bid in July 2006; instead, Dweck called Jaspan to ask him whether the Board had selected the school colors for the uniforms so he could stock them in his store.

Dweck testified that Jaspan told him he did not know and would have to get back to him.

But Dweck did not believe Jaspan did not know the school colors (even after Jaspan did get back to him and told him that he still did not know), threatened to go to the authorities, and still failed to put any complaints in writing (even after Jaspan advised him to do so in order for him to address it with the Board).

More significantly, Dweck made it clear that his genuine complaint was not about the bidding process but about the school colors:

Q: Did you have any other conversations with Mr. Jaspan after the Friday following the bid opening date?

A: Yes.

Q: When?

A: In July what had happened was a lot of the parents were coming in to us because they—we—we are the local—in downtown Elizabeth we are the local store. I mean, I have a store down there for 30 years. So basically they all buy uniforms through me and they were coming in to find out what the uniform was, what the colors, what's happening and so on and so forth, that they—they wanted to be able to—to purchase other product as opposed to the one that they're just getting free. So I had called him up to tell him that, you know, we don't know the colors. You have to give me the colors and he said, you know—at first he said, "Okay. Give me a couple of days. I'll get back to you," and he never responded.

So fast forward two, three, days, I was calling every day and he never go back to me. So finally one day I left a message. I said, you know, "This is a public school system and I'm entitled to know what colors the—the schools are wearing,” and he said—I left a message and then he called me back and he told me when he called me, he says, “We really don’t know yet.” I said, “How can’t you know? It’s the middle of July. You have to know the school colors to—you know, to—to let me know to be prepared. I don’t want anything to do with what they do, but I still have to run a business.” And he says, “Okay. If you have any contentious something, put it in writing to me.” So I said, “What do you mean put it in writing?” He said, “Put whatever you want in writing to me and we’ll address it then.”

Q: And did you do that? Put it in writing to Mr. Jaspan?

A: No.

[(Tr. at pp. 160-61 (March 16, 2011).)]

Dweck continued that his complaint (again) was not about the bidding process but about the school colors—about Jaspan “stonewalling” him—and the effect not knowing could have had on his retail business:

Q: Why did you wait until August to complain about the 2006—the May bid?

A: Because what was happening here was I wasn’t getting any response. I—I—am the—I am the brick—I am the retailer that—that sells uniforms. I’ve been doing it for twenty-five years in Elizabeth and these people are walking in to me and—and I couldn’t get any response from the Board of Education. So I didn’t want to have anything to do with what they were doing. I just wanted to—you know, the right to sell a product in my establishment. That’s all I wanted and he wouldn’t give me the colors and he wouldn’t give me this and he wouldn’t give me that. He was like stonewalling me to everything that we were doing, everything.

In fact, Dweck maintained this belief even after he called the school principals himself and they too told him that they did not know their school colors yet either.

That is why the initial complaint Dweck filed with the Department does not contain any allegations about the skort and the short (alleged improprieties about the bidding process before the bids were opened) but only allegations about the blazer and the tight (alleged improprieties about the bidding process after the bids were opened).

More specifically, Dweck alleged in his initial complaint that Executive Apparel did not make a machine-washable blazer in 2006 (even though he never saw the sample submitted) and that The Uniform Group was able to change the price of its bid (even though he never saw the contract awarded).

Indeed Dweck admitted as much on cross-examination when he testified that the skort and the short were not issues for him.

The Report

The investigative report concluded that the bidding process was deficient because the specifications included the wrong style number for the short and the review committee accepted a machine-washable blazer. According to the report, a bidder could not figure out the short and the specifications required a dry-clean-only blazer. Meanwhile, the report found the complaint about the skort to be unsubstantiated:

The allegation regarding the skorts manufactured by Style Plus was unsubstantiated. The description of the skorts provided in the specifications was adequate and the OCI investigator located the vendor on the Internet.

[(J-21) (EBOE 403).]

The Appeal

On appeal, the Department changed its position regarding the skort and determined that the listing of a custom-made skort as opposed to a catalog item made it impossible for another bidder to submit the skort.

III.

The Investigation

Karl Feltes, who has been working with the Department for the past sixteen years as a special investigator, testified on behalf of the Department. Feltes offered that he had also worked in law enforcement for the previous twenty-six years as an investigator, including investigations into organized crime, and was familiar with the Public School Contract Law. Yet Feltes acknowledged that he had no expertise when it came to school uniforms—or the apparel industry for that matter—and was not even the investigator in this case. As Feltes explained, he assigned the investigation to another investigator, Sonya Donalson, whom he did not supervise, and only conducted a peer review once or twice a month instead. Significantly, Donalson was no longer with the Department and unable to testify at the hearing.

Regardless, Donalson did not interview Remus or any of the other principals on the review committee. And since Feltes was not the investigator in this case, he did not interview anyone on the review committee either. He also did not interview Dweck or any of the other bidders in this case—and he did not interview Jaspan as previously stated.

Yet Feltes testified that this did not concern him. Feltes stated that he was only concerned with how the Board drafted its specifications, not how the review committee made its selection, and that he was concerned in particular with the specifications for the short and the skort. Feltes later amended his testimony to add that he was also concerned with the specification for the blazer—and the fact that Jaspan noticed The Uniform Group had made a mistake in the price of its tights.

In short, Feltes did his best to explain the determination the Department made in this case.

The Short

Feltes testified that he thought the Board discouraged free, open, and competitive bidding under the law because the Board listed the wrong style number for the Augusta short in its specifications. He did not think that the Board discouraged free, open, and competitive bidding because The Uniform Group helped draft the specifications. More specifically, Feltes thought that the incorrect listing of the style number for the Augusta short was a violation of the law because he believed Kids Place was unable to identify the short after it read the specifications.

Feltes, however, did not know if someone in the apparel industry could have figured out the correct style number if that person had tried. In fact, Feltes had no idea what measures Kids Place took to identify the correct style number and did not know that Kids Place never asked the Board in writing to correct it. Indeed, Feltes did not even know whether Augusta even made another pair of shorts.

The Skort

Feltes testified that he thought the Board discouraged free, open, and competitive bidding under the law because the Board required a custom-made skort in its specifications. More specifically, Feltes thought that this was a violation of the law because he believed that no bidder other than The Uniform Group could buy the full skort from Style Plus, that no manufacturer other than Style Plus could have made a full skort, and that no full skort existed anywhere else. Feltes, however, did not know whether a bidder other than The Uniform Group could buy the full skort from Style Plus or whether it was customary in the industry for another vendor to be able to do so. More significantly, Feltes did not know whether Style Plus even made another full skort or which skort Kids Place even submitted—a full skort or a half skort.

In addition, Feltes thought that the Board discouraged free, open, and competitive bidding under the law because Kids Place claimed that it could not contact Style Plus. Yet Donalson had reported that she was able to find Style Plus on the Internet and contact it. And the investigative report found that the claim was unsubstantiated.

But Feltes testified that this did not matter. According to Feltes, the fact that the skort was a custom-made item and not a catalog item discouraged free, open, and competitive bidding. Indeed Feltes maintained that the mere listing of a custom-made item in a bid specification made it a violation of the law.

The Blazer

Feltes testified that he thought the Board discouraged free, open, and competitive bidding under the law because he believed the specifications required a dry-clean-only blazer and the Board deviated from the specifications when it chose a machine-washable blazer instead. The specifications, however, did not describe the girls' or boys' blazer as dry-clean-only. In fact, the specifications only described the girls' blazer as "Girl's 100% Polyester Blazer with Embroidered School Logo," identified the manufacturer as "Executive Apparel," and listed the style number as "2000/4000."

Similarly, the specifications only described the boys' blazer as "Boy's 100% Polyester Blazer with Embroidered School Logo," identified the manufacturer as "Executive Apparel," and listed the style number as "1000/3000."

Indeed, neither listing mentioned any care instructions. And common sense would suggest that a 100 percent polyester blazer did not have to be dry-cleaned and could be machine-washed instead. But Feltes relied upon the assertion by Dweck that Executive Apparel did not make a machine-washable blazer in 2006.

Meanwhile, Jaspan and the principals testified that the blazer The Uniform Group submitted with its bid was from Executive Apparel and that it was machine-washable.

Likewise, Jaspan and the principals testified that the blazer Kids Place submitted with its bid was from Executive Apparel but that it was dry-clean-only.

In anticipation of this, Dweck had testified that the blazer The Uniform Group had submitted with its bid must have been from a different manufacturer, Rifle, because Dweck asserted that only Rifle had manufactured a machine-washable blazer in 2006. But other than this assertion, the Department submitted no proof. In fact, Dweck acknowledged that the blazer he submitted at the hearing was not the blazer he submitted with his bid.

Indeed the Department could not even establish that this blazer was from 2006 as Dweck could not explain why the blazer was missing his inventory tag—which would have indicated the year it was made or at least the year in which Kids Place purchased it.

By the same token, the statement in the investigative report—that an investigator from the Department spoke with a representative from Executive Apparel who confirmed that Executive Apparel only made a dry-clean-only blazer in 2006—remained unreliable hearsay.

Regardless, Feltes testified that he did not know if Executive Apparel only made a dry-clean-only blazer in 2006 and not a machine-washable one as well.

The Tights

Feltes testified that he thought that the Board discouraged free, open, and competitive bidding under the law because he believed the Board allowed The Uniform Group to change the price of its bid after they were opened. The Board, however, had not allowed the Uniform Group to change the price. In fact, the Board awarded and entered into the contract with The Uniform Group at its original bid price of $431,517.90. Nevertheless, Feltes thought it was unusual for Jspan to have noticed that The Uniform Group had made a mistake in the price of its tights.

The Substitutions

Feltes testified that if he had known that Kids Place had submitted substitutes for 40 percent of the items required in the specifications—and that the review committee had thought that these substitutes or equivalents were not as good as the items The Uniform Group had submitted—then he would have changed his mind about the investigation and the findings contained in it. His implication was that he would not have found against the Board. Either way, it did not matter because the review committee did not award the contract to The Uniform Group based on its preference for the items The Uniform Group had submitted.

To repeat, the review committee awarded the contract to The Uniform Group based on the fact that it submitted a full skirt while Kids Place submitted a half skirt. As such, it did not matter whether the blazer The Uniform Group submitted was manufactured by Executive Apparel or Rifle and it did not matter whether the blazer Kids Place submitted was dry-clean-only or machine-washable. Moreover, it did not matter whether the review committee compared the samples to the specifications or expressed its preference for one item over an equivalent.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

I.

A. The Department argues that the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15.

Bid specifications must be drafted in a manner to encourage “free, open, and competitive bidding.” N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15. Toward this end, no specification may require any “brand name,” but it may require a “brand name or equivalent,” Ibid., which serves as a “reference or point of comparison,” N.J.A.C. 5:34-9.2(c). If the bidder submits an equivalent, then the bidder bears the responsibility of documenting the equivalence, and the failure to do so shall be grounds for rejection of the claim. Ibid.

The purchasing agent, however, must know that at least one equivalent exists. N.J.A.C. 5:34-9.2(b). If no equivalent exists, or if the nature of the brand name effectively restricts bidders to a single good, then the purchasing agent must consider that good to be proprietary. Ibid. A proprietary good is a specialty item that is made or marketed by a person who has the exclusive right to make or sell them. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2(cc).

If the bid specifications do require a proprietary good then its special need must be directly related to the performance of the contract. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15. The purchasing agent, however, must certify the reasons why the proprietary good is necessary to the performance of the contract. N.J.A.C. 5:34-9.1(b). And such a certification must be included as part of the bid documents. Ibid.

A bidder may even help draft the specifications. See, e.g., Bd. of Educ. of Lakewood v. Office of Compliance, EDU 4397-99, Initial Decision (January 21, 2000), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>; see also, Longo Ass'n v. Bd. of Educ. of Pascack, 3 N.J.A.R. 66 (1981).

Nevertheless, any specification that knowingly excludes all prospective bidders but one—by reason of impossibility of performance for example—shall be null and void. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15. In that case, the bid specification must be re-advertised for the receipt of new bids. Ibid. Moreover, the contract upon which it is based must be set aside. Ibid.

In addition, any prospective bidder who wishes to challenge a bid specification must do so in writing, with the purchasing agent, no less than three business days before the bids are opened. Ibid. As such, a challenge filed after that time shall be considered void—having no impact on the local board of education or its award of the contract. Ibid. Indeed, the New Jersey Supreme Court has held that the identical provision in the Local Public Contracts Law, N.J.S.A. 40A:11-13, is intended as a statute of limitations. See Jen Electric v. County of Essex, 197 N.J. 627, 631 (2009).

Finally, an authorized agent may appoint a committee to assist in the evaluation of the proposals. N.J.A.C. 5:34-4.3(c)(2). Toward this end, committee members must be familiar with the goods or services requested. N.J.A.C. 5:34-4.3(c)(2)(i). But they may ask bidders any questions they have about their proposals—as long as the bidders do not use the opportunity to negotiate their contracts. See N.J.A.C. 5:34-4.3(c)(3).

In this case, the Department makes a number of arguments, some in the alternative, why the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15, or why the bid specifications were not drafted in a manner to encourage “free, open, and competitive bidding.”

The Department, however, misses the mark—as the Department bases its arguments on a mistake of fact, a mistake of law, or both.

1. The Department argues that the short was imaginary.

First, the Department argues that the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15 when it listed the wrong style number for the mesh short because doing so made it impossible for prospective bidders to provide it. The Department then extrapolates this singular mistake by multiplying it by the approximate quantities the Board requested. Stated otherwise, the Department argues that the Board requested 2,392 articles of imaginary clothing.

The rhetoric aside, the argument has no basis in fact. Indeed, a preponderance of the evidence does not exist that the listing of the wrong style number made the specification so vague that no prospective bidder could provide a mesh short. By his own admission, Dweck typically provides a mesh short, recognized the style number was incorrect, yet still provided a cotton short—for no reason. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Department has not proven by a preponderance of the evidence that the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15 when it listed the wrong style number for the mesh short.

2. The Department argues that the Board dismissed a bid challenge.

Second, the Department argues that the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15 when it did not correct the style number for the mesh short and provide the contact information for the full skort. Although the Department predicates its argument on the unsupported assertion that Jaspan did not know whether an equivalent mesh short or full skort existed; what the Department is really arguing is that Jaspan failed to answer a bid challenge. Stated otherwise, the Department argues that the Board dismissed a bid challenge when Dweck contacted Jaspan by telephone to inform him that he was having difficulty locating the short and the skort and Jaspan responded that Dweck could simply substitute them with equivalent items instead.

While the previous argument had no basis in fact, this one has no basis in law. Indeed, the Department cites no relevant authority for its extended argument. Meanwhile, under N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15, Kids Place was obligated to challenge any and all specification in writing before the bids were opened. Dweck, by his own admission, failed to do so and Jaspan, who was without legally sufficient notice that the style number was incorrect, and that the contact information for Style Plus might have been unavailable, did not amend the specifications. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Department has not proven by a preponderance of the evidence that the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15 when it did not correct the style number for the short, or provide the contact information for the full skort.

3. The Department argues that the skort was proprietary.

Third, the Department argues that the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15 when it listed the full skort Style Plus had custom-made for The Uniform Group in a previous bid in its bid specifications because doing so made it impossible for prospective bidders to provide it. The Department then extrapolates this to mean that the Board effectively restricted bidders to that single good. Stated otherwise, the Department argues that the Board should have known that the custom-made skort was proprietary.

As a corollary, the Department argues that Jaspan should have certified why the custom-made skort was necessary to the performance of the contract and then made such a certification part of the bid documents.

In effect, the Department argues that Jaspan knew the specification excluded all prospective bidders but The Uniform Group; that the bid specifications should have been re-advertised; and that the contract the Board awarded to The Uniform Group should have been set aside.

The remedy aside, these arguments too have no basis in fact. Indeed, no evidence exists that the full skort Style Plus had custom-made for The Uniform Group in a previous bid was proprietary. More pointedly, no evidence exists that The Uniform Group had the exclusive right to make or sell the specialty item. By his own admission, Dweck never attempted to have such a skort made for Kids Place by any manufacturer, and according to its own investigator, the Department had no difficulty contacting Style Plus to ask it about the item. Moreover, Kids Place failed to submit a full skort by any manufacturer. Had Kids Place submitted a full skort by another manufacturer, then the Department would have had a more persuasive argument—but that would have made this a different case. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Department has not proven by a preponderance of the evidence that the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-5 when it listed the full skort Style Plus had custom-made for The Uniform Group in a previous bid.

In addition, I CONCLUDE that Jaspan was not required to certify why the custom-made skort was necessary to the contract and then make such a certification part of the bid documents.

As such, I further CONCLUDE that the bid specifications need not have been re-advertised and the contract the Board awarded to The Uniform Group set aside.

4. The Department argues that the Board rigged the bid process.

Fourth, the Department argues that the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18-15 when The Uniform Group provided the Board with the manufacturer and style numbers of the items listed in the bid specifications because no need existed for the Board to have this information. Yet Jaspan sought this information so the bid specifications would be fairer. Indeed, the bid specifications would have done just the opposite—discouraged free, open, and competitive bidding and effectively excluded all bidders but The Uniform Group—if the bid specifications had remained as non-descript as they had been in the pilot program.

The reason is that The Uniform Group, as the winning bidder in the pilot program, would have been the only bidder which would have known which garment would have been responsive to each item carried over from the pilot program—whether The Uniform Group had helped the Board draft the bid specifications in the expanded program or not.

For example, the full skort had simply been listed in the pilot program as “Khaki full skort, pleated front with elastic back” with no manufacturer or style number listed as a reference or point of comparison. Similarly, the mesh short had simply been listed in the pilot program as “Shorts” with no other description. Likewise, the boys’ pant had simply been listed in the pilot program as “Khaki Pants” with no manufacturer or style number listed as a reference or basis of comparison.

And by way of a final example, the socks had simply been listed in the pilot program as “Socks.”

No manufacturer, no style number, not even a color.

In fact the only information contained in the bid specifications for the pilot program for any of the items other than their terse descriptions was an approximation of the quantities needed.

These facts and circumstances notwithstanding, the Department stated in its decision denying the Board's second-level appeal that the Board was within its right to ask The Uniform Group for help in drafting the bid specifications in the first place:

The OFAC Report of Examination did not dispute that the Board was within its rights to solicit help from The Uniform Group to assist in the drafting of the bid specifications. Instead, the report revealed that The Uniform Group was the successful bidder of the 2005-06 (previous school year) school uniform contract and had assisted in purchasing agent in drafting bid specifications that were deficient and unclear which adversely affected the overall fairness of the bidding process That was not done in this case.

Although the Department continued in its decision that it had denied the appeal because the bid specifications had been "deficient and unclear, which adversely affected the overall fairness of the bidding process," the bid specifications, as previously discussed, had not been deficient as a matter of fact and did not adversely affect the overall fairness of the bidding process as a matter of law.

Even Feltes testified that the Board did not violate the statute when it asked The Uniform Group to help draft the specifications.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Department has not proven by a preponderance of the evidence that the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15 when it asked The Uniform Group for the manufacturer and style numbers of the items to be listed in the bid specifications.

B. The Department argues that the Board abused its discretion.

The rule that actions of local boards of education, which lie within their discretionary powers, may not be upset unless "patently arbitrary, without rational basis, or induced by improper motives," has long been well-established. See Kopera v. W. Orange BOE, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). As such, their factual determinations must be accepted if supported by substantial credible evidence. See Thomas v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Morris, 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965), aff'd o.b., 46 N.J. 581 (1966). Indeed, the State Department of Education cannot substitute its judgment for a local board of education. See Bd. of Educ. of E. Brunswick v. Twp. Council of E. Brunswick, 91 N.J. Super. 20, 25 (App. Div. 1966).

In this case, the Department makes another set of arguments why the Board violated N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-15, or how the Board discouraged “free, open, and competitive” bidding. These arguments, however, are really arguments that the Board abused its discretion. Either way, the Department misses the mark. Once again, the Department bases its arguments on a mistake of fact, a mistake of law, or both.

1. The Department argues that Brady was induced by improper motives.

First, the Department argues that the Board abused its discretion when it allowed Brady to meet with The Uniform Group to discuss school uniforms and preview garment samples. In essence, the Department argues that Brady was induced by improper motives. This argument, however, has no basis in fact. In fact, no evidence exists that her discussion of school uniforms and her preview of garment samples somehow predisposed Brady to favor The Uniform Group especially since Brady did not know which samples were submitted by which bidder.

Moreover, the Department is not even certain of its argument as it writes its argument in the conditional tense:

Ms. Brady also testified that during the meeting Uniform Group brought uniform garment examples and Ms. Brady discussed school colors during those meetings. Ms. Brady further testified that Robert Jaspan knew about Ms. Brady's meetings with the Uniform Group. Despite this knowledge, Mr. Jaspan still asked Ms. Brady to assist in selecting the winner of the uniform contract although he was aware that Ms. Brady had meetings with Uniform Group and could have been familiar with Uniform Group's uniform samples.

[(Dep't's Responsive Br. at pp. 27-28 (May 18, 2011) (emphasis added).]

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Board did not abuse its discretion when Brady met with The Uniform Group to discuss school uniforms and preview garment samples.

2. The Department argues that Jaspan was induced by improper motives.

Second, the Department argues that the Board abused its discretion when Jaspan did not provide the other bidders with the unspecified information Brady allegedly provided to The Uniform Group. In essence, the Department argues that Jaspan was induced by improper motives. This argument, however, has no basis in fact. Indeed, no evidence exists that Brady gave The Uniform Group any information—let alone information that would have given The Uniform Group a competitive advantage during the bidding process.

Again, Brady met with The Uniform Group to become more familiar with school uniforms—not the other way around—and she did so before Jaspan even drafted the bid specifications.

This argument also has no basis in law. Indeed, the Department cites no authority for its argument that the Board was somehow obligated to provide the other bidders with the information allegedly exchanged or discussed between Brady and The Uniform Group before Jaspan drafted the bid specifications. Meanwhile, committee members are obligated under N.J.A.C. 5:34-4.3(c)(2)(i) to become familiar with the goods and services requested. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Board did not abuse its discretion when Jaspan did not provide the other bidders with unspecified information Brady allegedly provided to The Uniform Group.

3. The Department argues that the selection of the blazer was arbitrary.

Third, the Department argues that the Board abused its discretion when the review committee selected the machine-washable blazer. In essence, the Department argues that its selection of the blazer—and by extension The Uniform Group—was arbitrary. This argument, however, has no basis in fact. In fact, the specifications do not describe a dry-clean-only blazer. Nor do they reference a dry-clean-only blazer.

Stated otherwise, a preponderance of the evidence does not exist that Executive Apparel only made a dry-clean-only blazer in 2006.

But even if Executive Apparel only made a dry-clean-only blazer in 2006, the review committee did not select The Uniform Group instead of Kids Place based on the blazer. As previously discussed, the committee based its selection on the skort. Again, The Uniform Group submitted a full skort while Kids Place submitted only a half skort. As such, any of the concerns surrounding any of the other items became merely secondary concerns. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Board did not abuse its discretion when the review committee selected the machine-washable blazer.

4. The Department argues that the questioning of the tights was arbitrary.

Fourth, the Department argues that the Board abused its discretion when Jaspan noticed that The Uniform Group had made a mistake in the price of its tights and questioned The Uniform Group about it. In essence, the Department argues that this questioning—and ultimate price correction—was arbitrary. This argument, however, has no basis in fact. In fact, Jaspan did not allow The Uniform Group to change the price of its tights and lower the price of its bid as the Board awarded and entered into the contract with The Uniform Group at its original bid price and not at its corrected price. Stated otherwise, he did not question The Uniform Group about the price of its tights to negotiate their price or the price of its bid—nor did The Uniform Group use the opportunity to negotiate the price of its tights or the price of its bid.

The argument also has no basis in law as members of a review committee are specifically authorized under N.J.A.C. 5:34-4.3(c)(3) to ask bidders any questions they might have about their proposals—as long as the bidders do not use the opportunity to negotiate their contracts.

Moreover, the Department cites no relevant authority for its proposition that the Board could not pay an amount less than the amount awarded—especially when the amount awarded contains an incorrect unit price resulting in an unintentionally inflated charge.

To be sure, there is a difference between lowering the price of a bid and correcting one. And surely the Department would not sanction the Board paying The Uniform Group three times the price for a pair of girls' tights when it knew the unit price for a pair of those tights was three times less. Besides, the Board did not base its award on price. It based its award on responsiveness—the submission of a full skort versus the submission of a half skort. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Board did not abuse its discretion when it questioned the unit price of the girls' tights and then paid only the corrected price.

II.

A. The award of the contract was proper.

Every contract for the provision or performance of any goods or services, the cost of which in the aggregate exceeds the bid threshold, shall be awarded only by resolution of the board of education to the lowest responsible bidder after public advertising for bids and bidding. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4(a).

In 2006, the contract the bid threshold was $17,500. See N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-3(a).

Thus, the contract the Board awarded to The Uniform Group had to have been publically advertised for bids and bidding.

1. The Uniform Group was the lowest-responsible bidder.

Under the Public Schools Contract Law, every contract for the performance of any good or service shall be awarded only by resolution of the board of education to the "lowest responsible bidder" after public advertising for bids. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4(a).

The "lowest responsible bidder" means the bidder who offers the "lowest price," is "responsive" to the bid, and is "responsible." N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2(t).

According to the statute, the "lowest price" means "the least possible amount that meets all requirements of the request," N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2(s); "responsible" means "able to complete the contract in accordance with its requirements," N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2(x); and "responsive" means "conforming in all material respects to the terms and conditions, specifications, legal requirements, and other provisions of the request," N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2(y).

This means that the contract must be awarded to the lowest bidder who complies with the substantive and procedural requirements set forth in the specifications and that any material departure invalidates the non-conforming bid as well as any contract based on it. Meadowbrook Carting Co. v. Borough of Island Heights and Consol. Waste Serv., 138 N.J. 307, 313-14 (1994).

In this case, the bid Kids Place submitted was not responsive to the specifications because it did not include a full skort as the specifications required. Stated otherwise, it did not conform in all material respects to the request because the specifications required a full skort and Kids Place submitted a half skort. Meanwhile, the bid The Uniform Group submitted was responsive to the specifications because it did include a full skort and no evidence or even allegation exists that the bid The Uniform Group submitted was in any way unresponsive to the specifications. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that The Uniform Group was the lowest-responsible bidder as a matter of law.

2. The acceptance of the half skort would have been a material departure.

The requirement that a contract be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder notwithstanding, minor discrepancies and technical omissions can be waived. Meadowbrook, supra, 138 N.J. at 314. The test is one of materiality. Originally set forth by Judge Pressler in River Vale v. R.J. Longo Constr. Co., 127 N.J. Super. 207, 216 (Law Div. 1974), this test of materiality was later adopted by the New Jersey Supreme Court in Meadowbrook, supra, 138 N.J. at 315: (1) whether waiver would deprive the municipality of its assurance that the contract will be entered into, performed, and guaranteed according to its requirements; and (2) whether waiver would adversely affect competitive bidding by giving an advantage to one bidder over the other or by undermining the common standards of competition.

In essence, the Department argues that the bid Kids Place submitted was responsive to the specifications because its submission of a half skort was not a material departure from the specifications but a minor discrepancy that the Board should have waived. Stated otherwise, the Department argues that the request for the full skort in the specifications—and the reference to the full skort Style Plus had custom-made for The Uniform Group in a previous bid—somehow gave an advantage to The Uniform Group in the expanded program. But no such evidence exists. Moreover, such an argument turns the test of materiality on its head and trivializes the importance of the full skort in the specifications.

Once more, no evidence exists that the full skort Style Plus had custom-made for The Uniform Group in a previous bid was an exclusive or proprietary item. Indeed, no evidence exists that The Uniform Group had the exclusive right to make or sell the skort.

In addition, no evidence exists that the skort was unavailable to the public just because it was not a catalog item. Indeed, this assertion was undermined by the fact that Kids Place submitted a half skort and not a full skort by another manufacturer.

Similarly, no evidence exists that Style Plus could not be contacted just because Dweck asserted that he had difficulty contacting it. Indeed, this assertion was undermined by the fact that Donalson reported no difficulty contacting Style Plus.

More significantly, the fact that the bid specifications did require a full skort was underscored by the members of the review committee who explained that they wanted full coverage for their female students—a full skort with pleated panels all the way around—in order to ameliorate any potential body-image issues.

To have waived that requirement then would not only have disadvantaged The Uniform Group (by giving a competitive advantage to Kids Place) but also the female students (by exposing them to the very body-image issues the review committee sought to avoid). As such, the Board maintained the common standards of competition—not undermined them—when it maintained the requirement that the skort be a full skort. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the acceptance of the half skort would have been a material departure from the bid specifications.

3. The acceptance of a machine-washable blazer would not have been a material departure.

By contrast, if the specifications had required a dry-clean-only blazer, and the Board accepted a machine-washable blazer instead, then such a departure from the specifications would not have been a material one because the difference in care would have only been a minor discrepancy, which the Board could have waived. To argue otherwise would have been to require the students to have incurred greater costs for the care of their blazers. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the acceptance of the machine-washable blazer would not have been a material departure from the bid specifications but a minor discrepancy, which could have been waived.

B. The bid specifications were as definite, precise, and full as practicable.

Bid specifications must be as definite, precise, and full as practicable. In other words, to invalidate an award for a deficiency, the irregularity must be substantial in nature. Again, the polestar is the effect on fair and competitive bidding. Indeed, this requirement—that an irregularity must be of a substantial nature—has been the standard for more than fifty years:

To conform with statutory requirements, N.J.S.A. 40:50-1, specifications in an invitation to bid “must be as definite, precise and full as practicable in view of the character of the work, the quality and quantity of the materials to be furnished.” Waszen v. Atlantic City, 137 N.J.L. 535, 537 (Sup. Ct. 1948), reversed on other grounds, 1 N.J. 272 (1949). The specifications must “furnish the same information to all prospective bidders, so that there may be intelligent bidding." Phifer v. Bayonne, 105 N.J.L. 524, 525 (Sup. Ct. 1929). To invalidate an award for a deficiency in the specifications, "the irregularity must be of a substantial nature—such as will operate to affect fair and competitive bidding." Id. at 527.

[(James Petrozello Co. v. Chatham, 75 N.J. Super. 172, 178-79 (App. Div. 1962).]

In this case, the Department argues that the short and the skort were irregularities. But as previously discussed, the wrong style number for the short was not substantial and the listing of the Style Plus skort was not an irregularity. As such, neither the listing of the wrong style number nor the listing of the custom-made skort had an effect on fair and competitive bidding. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the bid specifications were as definite, precise, and full as practicable when advertised.

ORDER

Given my findings of fact and conclusions of law, I ORDER that the complaint against the Board be DISMISSED.

INVESTIGATIVE REPORT
JANUARY 2007

STATE OF NEW JERSEY

REPORT OF EXAMINATION – JANUARY 2007 ELIZABETH SCHOOL DISTRICT – SCHOOL UNIFORM BIDDING REVIEW

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Office of Compliance Investigation (OCI) conducted a limited review of the Elizabeth School District's compliance with statute and code regarding school uniform contract awards for the 2005/2006 and 2006/2007 school years. The purpose of the review was to determine if the bidding process was in compliance with educational statute and code. The Examiner reviewed policies and procedures utilized to solicit and award the contracts.

To conduct the review, the OCI examiner interviewed the district's purchasing agent, the complainant, as well as other personnel thought to possess knowledge pertinent to the investigation. The examiner also reviewed board minutes, communications, bid proposals, invoices and various other documents pertaining to the school uniform contract awards.

The information and documentation provided indicated that the Elizabeth School District advertised for bids for the 2006/2007 school year wherein the successful bidder of the 2005/2006 school uniform contract, the Uniform Group, significantly assisted the district's purchasing agent in drafting bid specifications that were deficient and unclear. As the project advanced, the district's purchasing agent recommended the second lowest bidder for the award, the Uniform Group.

The manner in which the Elizabeth School District awarded a contract to the Uniform Group violated provisions of the Public School Contracts Law. The school district failed to provide sufficient bid specifications when soliciting bids for the 2006/2007 school uniform contract. The Uniform Group was put in a position of advantage because they were closely involved in the development of the deficient bid specifications, which adversely affected the overall fairness of the bidding process.

The investigation concludes that the Elizabeth School District improperly awarded a school uniform contract to the Uniform Group. A summary of events, conclusions and recommendations is contained in the remainder of this report.

ALLEGATION AND FINDINGS

The Elizabeth Board of Education compromised the bidding process by placing a bidder in a position of advantage and by drafting insufficient specifications contrary to N.J.S.A.18A:18A-15.

On May 2, 2006, Elizabeth School District advertised for a Request for Proposal (RFP) from bidders to provide school uniforms for schools 30, 31, 88 & 89 for the 2006/2007 school year with the option to include additional schools. Three bids were submitted: Kid's Place, the Uniform Group and Flynn & O'Hara. The bid opening date was on May 16, 2006 wherein Kid's Place submitted a bid of $415,687.70, the Uniform Group submitted a bid of $431,517.90, and Flynn & O'Hara Uniforms was disqualified because their paperwork was not in order. As a result of the disqualification of Flynn & O'Hara, the two qualifying bidders were under consideration for the school uniform contract pending the review of samples they had submitted to the district on May 15, 2006.

Prior to submitting the samples, the uniform coordinator at Kid's Place found discrepancies with the bid specifications. As such, the uniform coordinator contacted the district's purchasing agent for clarification. Namely, the specifications called for Augusta style #136 shorts. This item number was incorrectly indicated on the specifications. Moreover, the material was not mentioned. Another variant was that the uniform coordinator could not locate the skorts identified in the specifications as manufactured by Style Plus. The uniform coordinator stated that their company had been in business for over 20 years and had never heard of this school uniform manufacturer.

According to the uniform coordinator at Kid's Place, the district's purchasing agent declined to expound on the discrepancies which left Kid's Place at a disadvantage. The uniform coordinator was instructed by the district's purchasing agent to replace the items in question with their equivalent. However, the uniform coordinator argued that since the specifications were not accurate it was unlikely Kid's Place could present items of equivalent quality and therefore most likely would not have a fair opportunity to compete for the contract award. Nevertheless, Kid's Place did submit samples to the district as required and was distraught when they were informed that although they were the lowest bidder their samples were not acceptable and as a result they did not win the school uniform contract award.

On June 15, 2006, approximately a month after the review of the samples, the district awarded the contract to the Uniform Group, the second lowest bidder who was awarded the contract the previous year. This award was based on the recommendation of the purchasing agent. Although board minutes did not articulate and memorialize the reason for rejecting the lowest bidder, the purchasing agent told the investigator that the lowest bidder failed to provide appropriate samples. In particular, the purchasing agent stated that Kid's Place: a) failed to provide mesh gym shorts; they provided cotton shorts, b) failed to provide girl skorts without the split in the back; they provided girl skorts with the split in the back, and c) the blazers they submitted were marked dry clean only, the Uniform Group's samples were machine washable. The purchasing agent concluded that the samples provided by Kid's Place failed to meet the requirements of the bid specifications.

However, based on the information and documentation provided to OCI, the examination identified the following discrepancies and violation:

- 1) The bid specifications were not accurate or clear. The style number 136 for shorts manufactured by Augusta was incorrect and was actually the style number for reversible mini mesh league tanks. The specifications did not indicate if the district was requesting cotton or mesh shorts and since the specifications were incorrect, Kid's Place could not determine the specific material the district was requesting. Both the Uniform Group and the purchasing agent confirmed that an incorrect style number was used when putting together the bid specifications. This hindered Kid's Place from submitting appropriate short samples.
- 2) Kid's Place provided dry clean only Executive Apparel 2000/4000 girl blazers and Executive Apparel 1000/3000 boy blazers as the specifications required. However, the Uniform Group submitted washable blazers contrary to what was requested on the specifications. Nevertheless, the district decided that the washable blazers were of a better quality and therefore selected the samples submitted by the Uniform Group.

Based on these findings, the OCI determines that Elizabeth School District failed to provide sufficient, fair and competitive bid specifications in accordance with the following statute:

N.J.S.A.18A:18A-15 states, "Any specifications for the provision or performance of goods or services shall be drafted in a manner to encourage free, open, and competitive bidding."

The allegation regarding the skorts manufactured by Style Plus was unsubstantiated. The description of the skorts provided in the specifications was adequate and the OCI investigator located the vendor on the Internet.

Conclusion:

The evidence supports that the district compromised the bidding process by failing to provide a non-biased and competitive bidding process which is in violation of statute N.J.S.A.18A:18A-15, therefore payments to the Uniform Group must be recovered.

Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:26-14.1, the Commissioner of Education is authorized to withhold or recover funds from any school that fails to obey the law, rules or directions of the Commissioner. The non-compliant payments in the matter under review total $726,297.67. A percentage of this amount will be recovered.

Recommendation:

Elizabeth School District is directed to prepare a Corrective Action Plan (CAP) indicating the procedures it will implement to ensure future compliance with the above referenced statute. The identified violation requires a recovery of $594,217.10. The Department of Education Division of Finance will notify the school as to the timing and method of recovery.

In the future the district should take appropriate actions to ensure all bid specifications are accurate and afford every vendor an equal opportunity to compete.

RE: Uniform Bid

Enclosed information requested pertaining to the Uniform Bidding process:

I checked the State web site to see if there was a State Contract vendor for School Uniforms, I found none.

I wanted to put together a more specific bid proposal than went out for school #29 (enclosed), looked in Uniform Catalogs and received information from Uniform Group the vendor that supplied student uniforms for school #29. Augusta shorts, the wrong item number was listed, the number was for a mesh gym top, Style Plus, full Skort, style number was listed on specifications. (attached bid specs May 1, 2006)

Bid advertised May 2, 2006, bid opening May 16, 2006 to supply Uniforms for Schools #30, 31, 88 & 89. Bid packages sent to 16 vendors, listed on Board minutes. Samples were requested, specifications indicates as specified or approved equal.

Samples were inspected by school principals, it was their decision which vendor to use.

Uniform group was the lowest responsible bidder and was awarded the contract at the June 8, 2006 Board meeting.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that her children were not eligible for a free public education in the Linden school district. Petitioner contended that her children had been transferred from Roselle public schools to Linden public schools in 2007 pursuant to the Unsafe Schools Choice Option under No Child Left Behind (NCLB). The Board asserted that petitioner's children were enrolled in its schools based on a 2007 joint custody order that granted residential custody of the children to C.P., a family friend who is domiciled in Linden, and that a residency investigation had established that the children are in fact living with petitioner in Roselle. The Board further contended that there are no documents reflecting the alleged Unsafe School Choice Option transfer, nor any record of an agreement between the Roselle and Linden districts pursuant to the education of petitioner's children.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the record is devoid of any credible evidence that the children were enrolled in Linden schools pursuant to the Unsafe School Choice Option, or that the children were enrolled on any basis other than the custody order; petitioner testified that the custody order had nothing to do with the children being enrolled in Linden public schools, but the school registration documents – which were signed by petitioner – on their face contradict this assertion; further, the section of the 2007 Linden registration forms which asks whether the child is being enrolled as the result of exercising the NCLB unsafe school choice option is crossed out; petitioner's arguments were not credible; neither the petitioner nor her husband lived in Linden during the time the children were enrolled in the Linden schools; the children did not reside in Linden during the time of their school enrollment; the petitioner and her children resided in Roselle during their enrollment in Linden schools; and no Board agreement or resolution exists relative to a 2007 transfer from Roselle to Linden pursuant to the Unsafe School Choice Option. The ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to prove by a preponderance of the credible evidence that her children were eligible for a free public education in Linden schools; accordingly, petitioner must reimburse the Board for tuition in the amount of $76,223.40 for the period of her children's ineligible attendance in the district schools.

Upon full review and based on the ALJ's credibility determinations and the complete lack of any credible evidence to the contrary, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ and adopted the initial decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions – filed on July 6, 2012 in response to an Initial Decision mailed on June 19, 2012 – were untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and, therefore, these were not considered here.¹

Upon full consideration, the Commissioner is compelled to concur with the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) findings and conclusion – based on her credibility determinations in this matter² and the complete lack of any creditable evidence to the contrary – that petitioner has failed to sustain her burden of establishing that her children, J.K.B., L.B. and

² The ALJ having had the opportunity to assess the credibility of the various witnesses who appeared before her, and having made findings of fact based on their testimony, the standard governing the Commissioner's review is clear and unequivocal:

The agency head may not reject or modify any findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony unless it is first determined from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by sufficient, competent, and credible evidence in the record. (N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c)).

The Commissioner finds no basis whatsoever in the record to reject the ALJ's recitations of testimony, her determination of witness credibility or her fact finding analysis.

J.B. were entitled to a free public education in the Board of Education of the City of Linden's schools.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. Petitioner is hereby ordered to pay the Board a total of $76,223.40 for her children's ineligible attendance in its schools ($37,743 for the 2010-11 school year and $38,480.40 for the 2011-12 school year). It is further ordered that the Police Report in this matter – P-6 – is hereby sealed. The instant petition of appeal is dismissed.

Decided: June 18, 2012

BEFORE KELLY J. KIRK, ALJ:

¹ For confidentiality purposes and ease of reference, the children shall hereinafter be identified by fictitious names as follows: J.K.B. as John, L.B. as Lucy and J.B. as Joseph.

² Although the Petition was filed by L.B., request was made by L.B. at the hearing that her husband, J.B., be permitted to also proceed as a petitioner. There was no objection by the Board and the request was granted.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner challenges the action of the Board of Education of the City of Linden (Board), removing her three children from Linden public schools.

On January 9, 2012, petitioner filed a Pro Se Residency Appeal with the Department of Education. On January 11, 2012, and January 23, 2012, M. Kathleen Duncan, director, Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, Department of Education (Department), issued to petitioner letters relative to deficiencies in the filing and emergent relief. Additional documents were filed by petitioner with the Department on January 10, 2012, and a "Request for Relief Stay" was filed by petitioner with the Department on January 24, 2012. On January 24, 2012, the Department transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) under the Administrative Procedure Act, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15, and the act establishing the office, N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -23, for a hearing under the Uniform Administrative Procedure Rules, N.J.A.C. 1:1-1.1 to -21.6, and the rules of procedure established by the Department of Education to hear and decide controversies and disputes arising under school laws, N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1 to -1.17. Jurisdiction is conferred under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The case was filed at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 26, 2012.

Oral argument on the application for emergent relief was heard on February 2, 2012. By Order dated February 6, 2012, the application for emergency relief was granted, and it was ordered that the children attend Linden public schools during the pendency of the appeal, and ordered that the plenary hearing be scheduled for February 24, 2012. The Assistant Commissioner adopted the recommended Order granting emergent relief, and ordered that Linden immediately allow the attendance of John, Lucy and Joseph in its schools, and ordered that the matter proceed to a hearing on the merits. Due to the unavailability of the Board's witness, the hearing was rescheduled for February 27, 2012.

The Board filed its Answer with Affirmative Defenses on February 17, 2012. Petitioner served subpoenas upon Linden employees and Board members on February 22, 2012. The Board filed a motion to quash on February 24, 2012. The motion to quash was granted on March 9, 2012. I heard the matter on February 27, 2012, and March 9, 2012. The record closed on March 15, 2012, upon receipt of petitioner's response to the Board's certification.

TESTIMONY AND FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Preliminary Facts

I FIND the following preliminary facts:

Petitioner L.B. and her husband Jeffrey³ have three children, John, Lucy and Joseph (collectively "the family"). In 2005 the family moved to 227 Maple Street, Roselle, New Jersey. 227 Maple Street, Roselle, is owned by petitioner and Jeffrey.

On July 6, 2007, a Civil Action Complaint for Custody was filed in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Chancery Division – Family Part, Union County (Custody Complaint). (R-1.) Plaintiff C.P. filed for "custody of children (joint custody)." C.P. was a friend of the family. The Custody Complaint reflects C.P.'s address as 844 Main Street, Linden, New Jersey; Jeffrey's address as 724 Oak Street, Brooklyn, New York; L.B.'s address as 227 Maple Street, Roselle; and the children's addresses as 844 Main Street, Linden. 844 Main Street, Linden, is owned, in part, by C.P.

John and Lucy were enrolled in Linden public schools on July 11, 2007. Joseph was enrolled in Linden public schools on or about July 11, 2007.

On July 23, 2007, a Non-Dissolution Order for Temporary Custody and Visitation (Custody Order) was entered by the Honorable David J. Issenman, J.S.C. Per the Custody Order, C.P. was awarded residential custody of the three children.

Testimony

Petitioner testified on her own behalf. Rocco Tomazic, Superintendent of Schools, and Joann Hamilton, Supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services and Guidance, testified on behalf of respondent.

Petitioner stipulated that she and her husband did not reside in Linden, and that her three children, John, Lucy and Joseph, did not primarily reside in Linden. Petitioner is a teacher, and has at times been employed by the Roselle school district and by the Linden school district. Petitioner testified that in March 2007, Lucy was assaulted⁴ on Roselle public school grounds during school hours, and that after the end of the 2006–2007 school year, all three children were enrolled in Linden public schools pursuant to an Unsafe Schools Choice Option “transfer.” Petitioner denied that the children were enrolled in Linden pursuant to the Custody Order, and testified that the Custody Order had been entered after the children were enrolled in Linden, and that the Custody Order had not been submitted to the Board until 2009.

Rocco Tomazic has been employed by the Board as superintendent for the past three years, and from 2002 to 2008 he was the assistant superintendent. He became aware of the petitioner’s children in 2010 when, after a Board meeting, a Board member advised him that children had been observed walking from Roselle to Linden in Linden school uniforms. An investigation was commenced and it was determined that the children were petitioner’s children.

Tomazic testified about the State policy relative to the Unsafe School Choice Option of No Child Left Behind (NCLB), and about “persistently dangerous schools” and “victims of violent criminal offenses.” (R-28; R-29.) He explained that the Unsafe School Choice Option provides that a student who becomes the victim of a violent criminal offense, as determined by State law requirements, while at public school, would be allowed to attend a safe public school within the district. He further testified that, although the law provides that it should be within the same district, if there were no safe school available within the district, it is possible that a student would be allowed to attend a public school outside of the district, pursuant to an agreement between the two districts, with one as the sending district, and the other as the receiving district. According to Tomazic, if such an agreement had been made between Linden and Roselle, it would have appeared on the Board agenda, and a Board vote and resolution would have been required. Tomazic was not made aware of any such item on the Board agenda while he was the assistant superintendent, and he has since verified that no such item appeared on the Board agenda, and that there had been no resolution relative to the alleged Unsafe School Choice Option agreement between Linden and Roselle.

Tomazic also testified that various documents, including C.P.'s deed and the Custody Complaint and Custody Order, were maintained in the children's school records, and that the deed would have been required for registration. Tomazic also testified about tuition rates and attendance.

JoAnn Hamilton has been employed by Linden since 1974. She is presently employed as the supervisor of Pupil Personnel Services and Guidance. In October 2010 she assumed the position of Supervisor of Attendance. She was not advised by the outgoing supervisor of any Unsafe School Choice Option "transfer" or agreement between Linden and Roselle. She commenced a residency investigation in 2010, but suspended it because she thought the children were attending Linden schools pursuant to the Custody Order and had dual residency. She thereafter re-initiated the residency investigation. Hamilton's file contained no documents reflecting the alleged Unsafe School Choice Option "transfer" or an agreement between Linden and Roselle.

Factual Discussion

A credibility determination requires an "over-all evaluation of the testimony in light of its rationality or internal consistency and the manner in which it hangs together with other evidence." Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). For "testimony to be believed, it must not only proceed from the mouth of a credible witness, but must be credible in itself.” Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 16 N.J. 546, 554–55 (1954). It must be “such as the common experience and observation of mankind can approve as probable in the circumstances.” Gallo v. Gallo, 66 N.J. Super. 1, 5 (App. Div. 1961). “The interest, motive, bias, or prejudice of a witness may affect his credibility and justify the [trier of fact], whose province it is to pass upon the credibility of an interested witness, in disbelieving his testimony.” State v. Salimone, 19 N.J. Super. 600, 608 (App. Div.) (citation omitted), certif. denied, 10 N.J. 316 (1952).

Petitioner testified that the custody order had nothing to do with the children being enrolled in Linden public schools, that it was entered by the judge after the children were enrolled, and that the custody order was not provided at the time of registration. However, the registration documents on their face belie this assertion. The registration documents, signed on July 7, 2007, reflect that C.P. was the children’s guardian, and that the children resided at 844 Main Street, Linden, which is C.P.’s address. (R-1; R-2; P-24; P-25.) Other documents signed by either petitioner or Jeffrey in September 2007 also reflect the 844 Main Street, Linden, address, and/or that C.P. was the children’s guardian. (P-17; P-18.) Further, the Linden school records include a copy of C.P.’s deed, the custody complaint and the custody order. (R-1; R-2.) Linden school records include the custody complaint, which reflects that it was filed on July 6, 2007, the day before the children were enrolled in Linden public schools. Petitioner also omitted from the Linden Public Schools Registration Forms the pages reflecting that the section about enrolling in school as a result of NCLB choice had been crossed out. (P-24; P-25.)

Based upon a review of the regulations, after due consideration of the extensive testimonial and documentary evidence presented at the hearing, and having had the opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses and assess their credibility, I FIND the following additional facts:

Petitioner did not reside in Linden during the time John, Lucy and Joseph were enrolled in Linden schools. Jeffrey did not reside in Linden during the time John, Lucy and Joseph were enrolled in Linden schools. John, Lucy and Joseph did not reside in Linden during the time they were enrolled in Linden public schools. John, Lucy and Joseph were enrolled in Linden public schools as a result of the custody complaint and custody agreement.

Linden school records reflect two addresses for the children, the 844 Main Street, Linden, address, and the 227 Maple Street, Roselle, address. As reflected in the Linden Public Schools Registration Forms, when petitioner registered the children in Linden, it was not "as a result of exercising [her] 'No Child Left Behind' choice option" for an unsafe school. (P-24; P-25; R-1; R-2.) As reflected in the Linden Public Schools Registration Forms, petitioner and Jeffrey repeatedly represented that the children's "permanent/home address" was 844 Main Street, Linden, and that the children resided with a guardian, C.P., and not with their mother or father.

No agreement exists between the Board and petitioner, Jeffrey or the three children. There was no item on the Board agenda and no Board resolution relative to the Unsafe School Choice Option or the children's 2007 "transfer" from Roselle to Linden.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

The Children's Entitlement to Attend the Linden Schools

Per the Board's December 20, 2011, letter, the Board voted to disenroll the children from Linden public schools pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 for failure to meet the residency requirements. Accordingly, the operative statute is N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, which provides, in pertinent part, as follows:

Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under twenty years of age:

- a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district;
- b. (1) Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person's own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the district, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled within the district and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligations for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term, and a copy of his lease if a tenant, or a sworn statement by his landlord acknowledging his tenancy if residing as a tenant without a written lease, and upon filing by the child's parent or guardian with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economic hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the district solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education within the district. The statement shall be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statements, information from or about which shall be supplied only to the board and only to the extent that it directly pertains to the support or nonsupport of the child. If in the judgment of the board of education the evidence does not support the validity of the claim by the resident, the board may deny admission to the child. The resident may contest the board's decision to the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner on the validity of the claim and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. The board of education shall, at the time of its decision, notify the resident in writing of his right to contest the board's decision to the commissioner within 21 days. No child shall be denied admission during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. In the event the child is currently enrolled in the district, the student shall not be removed from school during the 21-day period in which the resident may contest the board's decision nor during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the resident, he shall assess the resident tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the school district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced. Nothing shall preclude a board from collecting tuition from the resident, parent or guardian for a student's period of ineligible attendance in the schools of the district where the issue is not appealed to the commissioner;

(2) If the superintendent or administrative principal of a school district finds that the parent or guardian of a child who is attending the schools of the district is not domiciled within the district and the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the superintendent or administrative principal may apply to the board of education for the removal of the child. The parent or guardian shall be entitled to a hearing before the board and if in the judgment of the board the parent or guardian is not domiciled within the district or the child is not kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and supported by him gratis as if the child was the person's own child as provided for in paragraph (1) of this subsection, the board may order the transfer or removal of the child from school. The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection. The board of education shall, at the time of its decision, notify the parent or guardian in writing of his right to contest the decision within 21 days. No child shall be removed from school during the 21-day period in which the parent may contest the board's decision or during the pendency of the proceedings before the commissioner. If in the judgment of the commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the parent or guardian, the commissioner shall assess the parent or guardian tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the schools of the district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the commissioner are enforced. Nothing shall preclude a board from collecting tuition from the parent or guardian for a student's period of ineligible attendance in the schools of the district where the issue is not appealed to the commissioner;

Petitioners argue that the residency statute is inapplicable to this matter because the children were transferred to Linden by Roselle pursuant to the Unsafe School Choice Option after Lucy was assaulted on the grounds of Roselle public schools. The Board conversely argues that this is strictly a residency case, and that the children had attended Linden public schools pursuant to the custody order, but an investigation revealed that the children did not reside in Linden.

There is no dispute that petitioner and her husband did not reside in Linden, and there is further no dispute that the children did not reside primarily with C.P. in Linden. Thus, this matter turns upon whether, notwithstanding the non-residency of the parents and children, the children are otherwise eligible to attend Linden public schools. In this regard, the record is devoid of any credible evidence that the children were enrolled in Linden public schools pursuant to the Unsafe School Choice Option, or that the children were enrolled in Linden public schools on any basis other than the custody order. Although it appears from documents in the record that petitioner may have had discussions with Roselle relative to an alleged assault of Lucy, and relative to the Unsafe School Choice Option, the record is also devoid of any evidence that Linden was involved in or apprised of those discussions. (P-42; P-43; P-44; P-47; P-50; P-51.) Additionally, those documents do not extend beyond June 14, 2007, and based upon a June 4, 2007, letter, ostensibly from Katie B. LaMar, director of Special Services for Roselle Public Schools, to L.B., it also appears that the matter was still unresolved. There was no board of education resolution presented for either Linden or Roselle relative to the alleged Unsafe School Choice Option "transfer." Tomazic credibly testified that he reviewed the past Board agendas and resolutions and determined that no such resolution existed in Linden, and even if petitioner had presented evidence of a Roselle resolution or agreement between petitioner and Roselle, petitioner's recourse would be against Roselle, not Linden.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that John, Lucy and Joseph were eligible for a free education in Linden.

The Board's Claim to Tuition

The Board stipulated at the hearing that tuition would be sought for the 2010–2011 and 2011–2012 school years. Where, as here, the evidence does not support the claims of the resident, the Commissioner of Education is authorized to assess tuition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2(a), which provides as follows:

If in the judgment of the Commissioner the evidence does not support the claim of the resident, he shall assess the resident tuition for the student prorated to the time of the student's ineligible attendance in the school district. Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance and shall be collected in the manner in which orders of the Commissioner are enforced.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) likewise requires that tuition be calculated on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance.

The 2010-2011 School Year

Per Tomazic's testimony and the Board minutes of June 16, 2010, the tuition for the 2010–2011 school year was as follows:

Students in grades 6–8: $13,461 per annum

Students in grades 9–12: $12,141 per annum

Tomazic certified that John and Lucy were high school students for the entirety of the 2010–2011 school year, and Joseph was a middle school student for the entirety of the 2010–2011 school year. I CONCLUDE that the petitioner should pay to the Board tuition in the amount of $13,461 for Joseph's period of ineligible attendance in 2010–2011; tuition in the amount of $12,141 for John's period of ineligible attendance in 2010–2011; and tuition in the amount of $12,141 for Lucy's period of ineligible attendance in 2010–2011. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the total tuition for 2010–2011 is $37,743.

Additionally, per Tomazic's Certification, the tuition for the 2011–2012 school year was as follows:

Students in grades 6–8: $14,410 per annum

Using the formula prescribed by the applicable regulation, the daily rate of tuition for students in grades 6-8 during the 2011-2012 school year is $80.05 ($14,410 divided by 180). The daily rate of tuition for students in grades 9-12 is $74.50 ($13,415 divided by 180). See: N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2(a).

Tomazic has certified that John and Lucy were high school students for the 2011–2012 school year, and Joseph was a middle school student for the 2011–2012 school year. Tomazic certified that the children were disenrolled effective January 20, 2012. They were formally reenrolled, per the order of the Commissioner, on February 7, 2012. Tomazic states that there are 180 days in the school year; the children thus were not enrolled for twelve of these days.⁵ The school calendar that accompanies Tomazic's certification notes that school will end on June 22, 2012. Since a final decision in this matter will not be rendered until after the close of the 2011-2012 school year, I CONCLUDE that the children attended the Linden schools during 2011-2012 for 168 days.

Accordingly, the children were ineligible for 168 days during the 2011–2012 school year. As such, I CONCLUDE that petitioner should pay to the Board tuition in the amount of $13,448.40 for Joseph's period of ineligible attendance in 2011–2012, tuition in the amount of $12,516 for John's period of ineligible attendance in 2011–2012, and tuition in the amount of $12,516 for Lucy's period of ineligible attendance in 2011–2012. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the total tuition owed for the 2011–2012 school year is $38,480.40. Petitioner's contention that she should not be assessed tuition for the period from December 2011 until the children were re-enrolled pursuant to the Commissioner's decision on the emergent application is not persuasive. As Tomazic noted, the children were never formally removed from the Linden schools until January 20, 2012.

In light of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner should pay to the Board tuition in the total amount of $76,223.40, for her children's period of ineligible attendance during the 2010–2011 and 2011–2012 school years. I further CONCLUDE that the children should be disenrolled from the Linden public schools.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that petitioner's Petition of Appeal be and hereby is DENIED.

It is ORDERED that petitioner pay to the Board tuition in the amount of $76,223.40 for the period of ineligible attendance of her children in the Linden public schools during the 2010–2011 and 2011–2012 school years. It is further ORDERED that John, Lucy and Joseph should be disenrolled from the Linden public schools.

It is further ORDERED that the police report in evidence as P-6 is hereby SEALED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the decision of the respondent Board to terminate her employment as a tenured social worker through a reduction in force (RIF) at the end of the 2009-2010 school year. Petitioner contended that the Board continued to employ another social worker – Kimberly McDermott – who had less seniority, thereby violating her tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 et seq. The Board asserted that petitioner surrendered her tenure and seniority rights by tendering her resignation from the school district in 2006. Petitioner rescinded her resignation shortly after she submitted it and before the effective date of the resignation, and the Board granted her request to rescind the resignation. Petitioner filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: while a teaching staff member may not unilaterally rescind her resignation after the school board accepts the resignation, the teaching staff member and the school board nevertheless may mutually agree to rescind the resignation after the school board accepts the resignation; when the Board accepted petitioner's offer to rescind her resignation on August 7, 2006 – the effective date of petitioner's resignation – the parties thereby entered a mutual agreement to rescind the resignation; at the time of the mutually agreed-upon rescinding of the resignation, Kimberly McDermott was not yet employed by the Board as a social worker; when the parties agreed to rescind the resignation on August 7, 2006, the petitioner remained an employee of the school district with no break in service; accordingly, petitioner was continuously employed by the Board from September 1, 2005 to the date of the RIF in 2010 and had more seniority than McDermott, whose employment as a social worker with the Board did not begin until 2006. The ALJ concluded that petitioner should have been retained for the 2010-2011 school year instead of McDermott and granted her motion for summary decision.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions and, accordingly, adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL granting summary decision to petitioner. The Commissioner ordered the Board to compensate petitioner for all salary, benefits and emoluments, less mitigation, that she was entitled to for the 2010-2011 school year. Further, as the social worker position was abolished by the Board in a second RIF effective September 2011, petitioner is entitled to be placed on the preferred eligibility list in accordance with her seniority rights as of that date.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The Board's exceptions and petitioner's reply thereto – submitted in accordance with the directives of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

The Board's exceptions mirror its arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) below. As it is determined that the ALJ fully considered and addressed such arguments in her decision, these will not be revisited here.

Upon full deliberation, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that summary decision is appropriately granted to petitioner as he is in full agreement – for the reasons comprehensively detailed in the Initial Decision – that the mutual agreement of rescission of petitioner's 2006 resignation did not cause a break in her service with the Board and, absent such break in service, petitioner did not forfeit her tenure and seniority rights at any point during the 2005-06 school year. As such, the Board's termination of petitioner from her social worker position through a RIF at the end of the 2009-10 school year – rather than Kimberly McDermott, who had less seniority in that position – was a violation of petitioner’s tenure and seniority rights.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The Winslow Board of Education is hereby directed to compensate petitioner for all salary, benefits, and emoluments, less mitigation, that she was entitled to for the 2010-11 school year absent her improper dismissal at the end of the 2009-10 school year. As the social worker position was abolished by the Board in a second RIF effective September 2011, petitioner is entitled to be placed on the preferred eligibility list in accordance with her seniority rights as of that date.

Record Closed: May 1, 2012

Decided: June 6, 2012

BEFORE PATRICIA M. KERINS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, Wendy Eberwein-O'Donnell appeals the decision of the Winslow Township of Winslow Board of Education (Winslow) to terminate her employment as a tenured social worker, through a reduction-in-force (RIF) at the end of the 2009-2010 school year. She contends that Winslow continued to employ Kimberly McDermott as a social worker despite McDermott having less seniority, violating her rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 et seq.

On May 13, 2010, petitioner was notified by Winslow of its decision and on July 23, 2010, she filed a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education. On August 27, 2010, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing as a contested case. An Order was entered by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) then assigned to the case, ALJ Viscomi, giving notice to potential intervener McDermott, who then was granted the status of intervener. Effective September 2011, Winslow eliminated the position of social worker, the position then held by McDermott. On September 29, 2011, McDermott voluntarily withdrew from this matter and on October 4, 2011, petitioner filed an Amended Petition of Appeal. In March 2012, the matter was reassigned to me and Motions for Summary Decision were filed by the parties.

The relevant facts in this matter are not in dispute. Winslow employed Eberwein-O'Donnell as a social worker for the 2005-2006, 2006-2007, 2007-2008, 2008-2009, and 2009-2010 school years. Winslow approved her request for an unpaid medical leave of absence from May 30, 2006 to June 30, 2006. On July 6, 2006, she submitted a letter of resignation to Winslow. The effective date of the resignation was August 7, 2006 and on July 17, 2006, Winslow accepted the resignation. However, on July 20, 2006, petitioner wrote to Winslow asking to rescind her resignation and on August 7, 2006, Winslow granted her request.

Winslow also employed McDermott as a social worker. She was so employed for the 2006-2007, 2007-2008, 2008-2009, and 2009-2010 school years. In its first RIF in 2010, Winslow terminated Eberwein-O'Donnell rather than McDermott. It took the position that her actions to resign in the summer of 2006 had ended her employment with Winslow, along with her seniority in that position. Viewing both McDermott and Eberwein-O'Donnell as having the same seniority in the social worker position, Winslow chose to retain McDermott, who also had tenure as a teacher. On September 1, 2011, in its second RIF, Winslow eliminated the social worker position, simultaneously transferring McDermott to a teaching position.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

The purpose of teaching staff tenure laws is “to aid in the establishment of a competent and efficient school system by affording teaching staff members ‘a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service.’” Carpenito v. Rumson Bd. of Educ., 322 N.J. Super. 522, 528-29 (App. Div. 1999) (quoting Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App.Div.1949)). Notwithstanding the tenure laws, a local board of education may reduce the number of teaching staff members for reasons of economy. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9; Maywood Bd. of Educ. v. Maywood Educ. Assoc., 168 N.J. Super. 45, 55 (App. Div. 1979).

When such a reduction occurs, the board must “determine the seniority of the persons affected according to [regulatory] standards and shall notify each such person as to his seniority status.” N.J.S.A. 18A:28-11. Seniority “shall be determined according to the number of academic or calendar years of employment, or fraction thereof, as the case may be, in the school district in specific categories,” and unpaid leaves of absences in excess of 30 days shall not count toward seniority. N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(b); N.J.S.A. 18A:29-10. Seniority “provides a mechanism for ranking all tenured teaching staff members so that reductions among the tenured force can be effected in an equitable fashion and in accord with sound educational policies.” Capodilupo v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of West Orange, 218 N.J. Super. 510, 514 (App. Div. 1987), certif. denied, 109 N.J. 514 (1987). Finally, if any teaching staff member is dismissed as a result of such reduction, commonly known as a reduction-in-force or RIF, such person shall be and remain upon a preferred eligible list in the order of seniority for reemployment whenever a vacancy occurs in a position for which such person shall be qualified and he shall be reemployed.¹ N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12; N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(i).

According to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-8, a tenured teaching staff member who wishes “to relinquish his position shall give the employing board of education at least 60 days written notice of her intention.” The school laws do not address a teaching staff member’s decision to rescind her resignation; however, “[i]t is well-recognized that in the absence of statutory provisions dealing with the effect of resignations and their rescission or modification, principles of contract law are applicable.” Bloomfield Educ. Assn. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Bloomfield, EDU 8308-01, Initial Decision (November 18, 2003), modified, Comm’r (December 29, 2003) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>> (citing Cutro v. Hazlet Twp. Bd. of Educ., 94 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 402, modified, State Bd. of Educ., 97 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 557).

A teaching staff member may withdraw her resignation before it is accepted by the school board. Kozak v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Waterford, 1976 S.L.D. 633. However, a school board’s acceptance of a teaching staff member’s offer of resignation terminates the teaching staff member’s employment, and a subsequent withdrawal is ineffectual after its acceptance. Cutro, supra (citing Andrews v. Lamb, 136 N.J.L. 548 (Sup. Ct. 1948). More specifically, a resignation effectively terminates “previous tenured employment with the Board on that date [of resignation] and bar[s] all service prior to such date from subsequently accruing to a new tenure entitlement.” Solomon v. Bd. of Educ. of the Princeton Reg’l Sch. Dist., 1977 S.L.D. 650, aff’d, State Bd. of Educ., 1977 S.L.D. 657. This is true “even if the period of resignation lasts for one day or for one year.” Misek v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Willingboro, 1980 S.L.D. 98, aff’d, Comm’r, 1980 S.L.D. 103, aff’d, State Bd. of Educ., 1980 S.L.D. 104.

In recognizing that principles of contract law apply to questions of resignation and rescission in school law matters, the Commissioner in Bloomfield, supra, determined that if a board of education accepts a teaching staff member’s resignation, each party is bound by the accepted terms of the resignation. Bloomfield, supra (citing F. Rupert

Belles v. Wayne Twp. Bd. of Educ., 1938 S.L.D. 556; Kozak, supra; Cutler v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Parsippany-Troy Hills, 1990 S.L.D. 725). Thus, a teaching staff member may not unilaterally rescind her resignation after the board accepts the resignation. Ibid.

While a teaching staff member may not unilaterally rescind her resignation after the school board accepts the resignation, the teaching staff member and the school board nevertheless may mutually agree to rescind the resignation after the school board accepts the resignation. Indeed, “[a] body having the power, and accepting a resignation, may, after such acceptance, revoke their action and consent to a withdrawal, if other rights have not arisen to be affected by such revocation.” Whitney v. Van Buskirk, 40 N.J.L. 463, 468 (Sup. Ct. 1878); see also Glab v. Bd. of Educ. of the Bor. of Belmar, 1975 S.L.D. 243, 247 (finding school board “has discretionary authority to rescind actions taken at earlier meetings where no vested interests accrue”). What thus occurs is “[a]n agreement of rescission . . . under which each party agrees to discharge all of the other party's remaining duties of performance under an existing contract.” Restatement of the Law, Second, Contracts, § 283(1).² Importantly, as the New Jersey Supreme Court stated in Cnty. of Morris v. Fauver, 153 N.J. 80 (1998), “[a]s a general rule, rescission ‘must be exercised in toto and is applied to the contract in its entirety with the result that what has been done is wholly undone and no contract provisions remain in force to bind either of the parties.’” Ibid (quoting M.J. Merickel v. Erickson Stores Corp., 255 Minn. 12 (1959)).

In this matter, both parties rescinded the resignation prior to and on its effective date. The Commissioner’s recognition that principles of contract law apply to resignations and rescissions in school law matters therefore provides an analytical framework for the facts at hand. When petitioner submitted her letter of resignation on ² As Comment (a) to § 283 explains, [t]he term ‘agreement of rescission’ is used in this Restatement to avoid confusion with the word ‘rescission,’ which courts sometimes use to refer to the exercise by one party of a power of avoidance.” Thus, a “rescission” is unilateral, while an “agreement of rescission” is bilateral, or mutual.

However, the bilateral agreement by petitioner and Winslow to rescind petitioner’s resignation, though an “agreement of rescission,” is mostly referred to herein merely as a “rescission.”

Also, in the case of an agreement of rescission, “[c]onsideration is provided by each party's discharge of the duties of the other.” Restatement, § 283.

July 6, 2006, she could have withdrawn it at any time before Winslow accepted it. However, petitioner forfeited her right to withdraw her resignation when Winslow accepted the resignation on July 17, 2006. However, when Winslow accepted petitioner's offer to rescind her resignation on August 7, 2006, the effective date of petitioner's resignation, the parties thereby entered a mutual agreement to rescind the resignation.

In light of Whitney and Glab, supra, Winslow could properly rescind the resignation by mutual agreement even though it had previously accepted the resignation as long as such a decision did not affect the vested rights of another party. See also, Fauver, supra, 153 N.J. at 95 (holding that "[i]n the absence of some vested derivative interest in another, a contract may be modified, abrogated or rescinded by . . . the contracting parties" (citation omitted)). As petitioner persuasively argues, McDermott did not have any vested interest that could be affected by the mutual rescission because McDermott had not yet begun her employment as a social worker with Winslow.

Since rescission generally "applie[s] to the contract in its entirety with the result that what has been done is wholly undone and no contract provisions remain in force to bind either of the parties," the effect of the rescission here was to wholly undo the resignation contract. Once the parties agreed to rescind the resignation, the parties returned to the positions they held before the resignation. Thus, Winslow remained petitioner's employer throughout August 7, 2006, and there was no break in petitioner's service as a social worker in Winslow's employ. In fact, petitioner actually worked on August 7, 2006. In the absence of a break in service, petitioner did not forfeit her tenure and seniority rights at any point during the 2005-2006 school year. As such, petitioner, a tenured social worker who was employed continuously by Winslow from September 1, 2005 to the date of the reduction-in-force in 2010, had more seniority as a social worker than McDermott, whose employment began a year after that of petitioner. Petitioner therefore should have been retained for the 2010-2011 school year instead of McDermott.³

Based on the above, petitioner's motion for summary decision is GRANTED. Petitioner is entitled to all salary, benefits, and emoluments, less mitigation, that she would have received had she not been improperly dismissed at the end of the 2010-2011 school year. Further, as Winslow abolished the social worker position at the beginning of the 2011-2012 school year, petitioner is entitled to be placed on a preferred eligible list in accordance with her seniority rights. The Commissioner has previously ordered such remedies for tenured teaching staff members who were improperly dismissed. See, e.g., Trionfo v. Bd. of Educ. of the Bor. of Glassboro, EDU 2565-03, Initial Decision (April 28, 2004), adopted, Comm'r (August 19, 2004) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>; Jarmond v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Elizabeth, EDU 9107-08, Initial Decision (April 23, 2009), adopted, Comm'r (September 8, 2009) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

³ In its many briefs, Winslow did not address the effect of petitioner's leave of absence from May 30, 2006 to June 30, 2006 on her seniority rights. However, Winslow stated in its answer to the petition that petitioner is not entitled to seniority credit for the leave of absence, citing to N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1. Winslow has not argued anywhere that the leave of absence affected petitioner's right to tenure. As such, even if petitioner is not entitled to seniority credit for the leave of absence, she has more seniority as a social worker than McDermott.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

J.V. on behalf of minor child T.N.V., :
PETITIONER, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V. : DECISION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF :
WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY, :
RESPONDENT. :
_____ :

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that his daughter, T.N.V., was not eligible for a free public education in the West Orange school district during the 2011-2012 school year. Petitioner contended that he and his daughter are domiciled in West Orange with petitioner's parents, and produced documentation including a child support document, a federal student loan bill, and an independent business registration. The Board asserted that petitioner does not live in West Orange, but rather in East Orange with his girlfriend – as evidenced by a lengthy residency investigation.

The ALJ found that: based on the reports from the residency investigation, petitioner and his daughter were never observed leaving for school directly from the home of J.V.'s parents in West Orange; petitioner and his daughter were repeatedly observed leaving for school from a house in East Orange; the documents submitted by petitioner do not prove actual residency; petitioner failed to produce any proof of residency such as voter registration, licenses, or financial account information that might demonstrate a personal attachment to a specific location; and petitioner failed to offer an affidavit or sworn attestation of his and his daughter's residency. The ALJ concluded that the weight of evidence and testimony indicates that petitioner and his daughter resided in East Orange during the 2011-2012 school year, and accordingly ordered petitioner to reimburse the Board for tuition in the amount of $84.09 per day for 183 days, or $15,388.47.

Upon a full and independent review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ concerning the disenrollment of T.N.V. from respondent's school district. However, the Commissioner modified the tuition calculation based on the Board's exhibit in the record stating that the school year consists of 180 days. Accordingly, the tuition owed was calculated at $84.09 per day for 180 days, or $15,136.20.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF :
WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY, :
_____ :

The Commissioner has reviewed the record and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) recommending that the petitioner's residency appeal be denied.¹ For the reasons identified by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ), the Commissioner concludes that petitioner and his minor child were not domiciled in West Orange. Thus, the respondent Board appropriately disenrolled the child.

As to the amount of tuition due respondent, the single pertinent exhibit in the record states that the per diem tuition for T.N.V. was $84.09, to be multiplied by 180 days – the total number of days of T.N.V.'s ineligible attendance. Thus, petitioner owes respondent tuition in the amount of $15,136.20 for the 2011-2012 school year.

Accordingly, the petition is dismissed, petitioner's minor child is hereby disenrolled from respondent's school system, and petitioner is ordered to pay to respondent the aforementioned amount of back tuition.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 02132-12

AGENCY DKT. NO. 373-12/11

J.V. ON BEHALF OF T.N.V.,

Appellants,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF WEST ORANGE, ESSEX COUNTY,

Respondent.

J.V., appellant, pro se

Stephen J. Christiano, Esq., representing respondent

Record Closed: April 17, 2012

Decided: May 25, 2012

BEFORE SANDRA ANN ROBINSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On or about December 12, 2011, appellant, J.V., received a letter from respondent, West Orange Board of Education (BOE), that informed appellant that his daughter had been removed from the West Orange School District. A vote of the members of the BOE occurred at a meeting of the BOE on December 12, 2011, wherein it was determined that appellant's daughter did not reside in West Orange.

Appellant contested the determination and timely appealed to the Commissioner of Education.

Appellant presents evidence to establish his and his daughter's residency in West Orange. Respondent submits evidence that appellant and his daughter reside in East Orange and that tuition charges in the amount of $15,388.47 are due to respondent for the entire 183 school days during the 2011/2012 school year (SY) on which the student was ineligible to attend school in West Orange.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Department of Education Bureau of Controversies and Disputes transmitted this case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on February 17, 2012, for a hearing pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14 F-1 et seq. A hearing commenced on March 29, 2012, and on the same date testimony was completed. The record remained open until the close of business on April 17, 2012, to enable appellant to supplement the record with copies of the document he referenced to support his and his daughter's residency argument. Specifically, the submission included: Child Support Cooperation Requirement, Federal Student Aid Loan Bill, Independent Business Registration, and West Orange Library Correspondence. The documents were submitted and the record closed on April 17, 2012.

ISSUES

Do appellant and his daughter reside in West Orange, New Jersey? If residency is not established, what is the amount of the tuition reimbursement due to respondent from appellant for the 2011/2012 SY?

SUMMARY OF TESTIMONY

Gerard Drappi, investigator for West Orange Board of Education, testified,

I am a residency investigator for West Orange schools. Prior to this employment I was a police officer for thirty years. I was a Detective Sergeant in charge of detectives during me last six years.

On September 15, 2011, I received a Residency Verification Request to check on the residency of this student, based on a statement by the student to the teacher, "I live far away and I take the bus with my father."

Appellant's daughter, T.N.V., is in kindergarten. School starts at 8:45 a.m. Her school registration indicates she resides on Fitzrandolph Road in West Orange, which is a home owned by appellant's mother. Prior to the BOE meeting on December 12, 2011, I watched the Fitzrandolph Road house from 7 a.m. to 8:45 a.m. and I never saw appellant and his daughter leave the Fitzrandolph Road residence. Between September 2011 and March 2012 I never saw appellant's daughter exit the Fitzrandolph Road property. On September 20 and 21, 2011, Tuesday and Wednesday, the first two days of my investigation, appellant's daughter was observed entering the Fitzrandolph house at 8:03am and 8:07am, respectively. On September 20th appellant's daughter left seventeen minutes after arriving and was driven to school. On September 21st there was no observation of when appellant's daughter was driven to school.

My investigations and written Investigative Report reveals that appellant, his daughter and his girlfriend reside on Hillyer Street in East Orange in the girlfriend's apartment. Commencing on September 20, 2011 and ending on March 22, 2012, the areas and addresses on Fitzrandolph Road, West Orange and Hillyer Street, East Orange were monitored by me and Investigators Zawacki and Zarro. In total thirty-six monitoring of the areas were completed. The details of the monitoring are outlined in the Investigative Report, which I prepared. I have seen the daughter with appellant on Hillyer Street. I have seen them leave at the same time from Hillyer Street. I have seen them leave in the same vehicle each day bearing license plate number NJ Registration X53-BHR. The vehicle was sometimes driven by a female who drove appellant's daughter to school and let her out near the corner and walked her to the Redwood School. If the arrival time was later, the female would stop closer to the school before getting out and walking the student to the school. I am presenting a log and photo's that I took at the Hillyer Street property.

I have never seen appellant and his daughter leave the Fitzrandolph Road home.

J.V., appellant, testified,

My mother and father own a house in West Orange. My father works in New York and comes home to West Orange on weekends. My brothers, a nephew, my daughter and I live in my parents West Orange home. My daughter stays at Fitzrandolph Road some school nights and weekends.

I have a girlfriend that I visit on Hillyer Street in East Orange. There is no lease for Hillyer Street, the apartment is rented by my girlfriend. My daughter goes wherever I go. I do not catch the bus with my daughter. You do not have any pictures of my daughter on a bus. I have too much to worry about. I lost a child this morning, I lost a son. I am only twenty-seven years old. I want to do something positive. I am a member of the West Orange Country Club, of the West Orange Library. I have financial aid documents that show my residency and a child support paper that indicates my West Orange address. I also have an Independent Business Owner Registration Agreement that shows my address in West Orange. Neighbors will tell you that I live in West Orange.

I am employed as a superintendent for a residential building and I exterminate.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the law, the credible testimonial and documentary evidence, I FIND the following as FACTS in this matter:

1. The West Orange Board of Education had good cause to request a residency investigation when appellant's daughter told her teacher that she lives along way from the school and takes the big bus with her father;
2. The investigation of residency entailed thirty-six monitorings of the two areas and addresses where appellant and his daughter could reside – Hillyer Street, East Orange and Fritzrandolph Road, West Orange. On no occasion during the thirty-six monitorings did the investigators observe appellant and his daughter leaving from the Fitzrandolph Road home;

3. On a number of occasions the investigators observed appellant and his daughter leaving from the Hillyer Street home. The investigators observed on numerous occasions appellant's daughter coming to school in an automobile, bearing the same license plate number. The automobile stops at the corner by the school if school has not started or the vehicle stops closer to the school if the appellant's daughter is already late for school. The driver is always appellant or a woman. Appellant or the woman always exit the vehicle and walk the student to the school door;
4. Appellant's testimony is credible that his daughter may spend some weekends at the Fitzrandolph Road home where her grandparents, the appellant's parents, reside;
5. Appellant's testimony about his daughter sleeping at the Fitzrandolph Road home on some school nights is not supported by the facts and is incredible;
6. The documents appellant submitted to support his argument that he and his daughter reside at the Fitzrandolph Road home are insignificant because they do not prove actual residency. Appellant confirmed during testimony that the Fitzrandolph Road home is owned by his parents so he had no property tax bills, deeds, leases or mortgages. Nor did appellant offer into evidence voter registrations, licenses, permits, or financial account information; that is, bills, cancelled checks, insurance claims or payments, or other evidence of expenditures demonstrating personal attachment to a particular location. Nor did appellant offer an affidavit or sworn attestation of his and his daughter's residency;
7. At all times during the residency investigation appellant and his daughter were observed at or leaving the Hillyer Street property, in East Orange. Out of thirty-six monitorings during the investigation appellant and his daughter were never observed leaving for school directly from the Fitzrandolph property in West Orange, New Jersey.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

A student is eligible to attend a school free of charge if the student is domiciled within the school district. A student is domiciled in the school district when he or she is living with a parent or legal guardian whose permanent home is located within the district. A home is permanent when the parent or guardian intends to return to it after being absent from the home and has no present intent of moving from the home, notwithstanding the existence of homes or residences elsewhere. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a)(1). Domicile may also be defined as a residence. N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1.

Consideration in proving residency for purposes of establishing eligibility for school district placement is found at N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.4(a),

(a) A district board of education shall accept a combination of any of the following or similar forms of documentation from persons attempting to demonstrate a student's eligibility for enrollment in the school district:

1. Property tax bills, deeds, contracts of sale, leases, mortgages, signed letters from landlords and other evidence of property ownership, tenancy or residency;

2. Voter registrations, licenses, permits, financial account information, utility bills, delivery receipts, and other evidence of personal attachment to a particular location;

4. Receipts, bills, cancelled checks, insurance claims or payments, and other evidence of expenditures demonstrating personal attachment to a particular location, or, where applicable, to support of the student;

...

6. Affidavits, certifications and sworn attestations pertaining to statutory criteria for school attendance, from the parent, guardian, person keeping an "affidavit student," adult student, person(s) with whom a family is living, or others as appropriate;

8. Any other business record or document issued by a governmental entity.

(b) A district board of education may accept forms of documentation not listed in (a) above, and shall not exclude from consideration any documentation or information presented by a person seeking to enroll a student.

(c) A district board of education shall consider the totality of information and documentation offered by an applicant, and shall not deny enrollment based on failure to provide a particular form of documentation, or a particular subset of documents, without regard to other evidence presented.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a) and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(a) sets forth the right of a student to a free public education, which in pertinent parts states:

Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under 20 years of age:

a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district[.]

(a) A student over five and under 20 years of age pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, or such younger or older student as is otherwise entitled by law to free public education, is eligible to attend school in a school district if the student is domiciled within the district.

CONCLUSION

Based on all of the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the weight of the evidence, which includes portions of appellant's testimony, indicates that during the 2011/2012 SY, appellant and his daughter has resided on Hillyer Street in East Orange, New Jersey.

It is further ORDERED that the West Orange Board of Education be entitled to tuition reimbursement from appellant J.V. for the 2011/2012 SY in the amount of:

$15,388.47 for 183 days in the 2011/2012 SY at a per diem rate of $84.09.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Petitioners filed a pro se residency appeal on behalf of E.B. in November 2011. A hearing at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) was scheduled for June 13, 2012, but petitioners failed to appear despite having received appropriate notice and provided no explanation for their nonappearance. Having received no explanation from petitioners for their failure to appear, the OAL returned the file to the Commissioner.

There being no explanation filed, the Commissioner dismissed the petition with prejudice, further noting that the file included a letter dated June 12, 2012 from the Board attorney to the administrative law judge withdrawing the Board's counterclaim for tuition.

BEFORE LAURA SANDERS, Acting Director and Chief ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner Vincent Guarini sought emergent relief with regard to the Ocean County Technical Vocational School's refusal to allow him to participate in the awards ceremony scheduled for June 13, 2012, on grounds that he accumulated more than nineteen absent days due to illness. Petitioner contends that the action is unfair, as more than fifty percent of his absences were properly documented in the form of a doctor's note, phone call from a parent, or hospital discharge form.

The Petitioner filed with the Commissioner of the Department of Education (the Department) on May 30, 2012. The Department transmitted the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on June 7, 2012. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. It was scheduled for hearing at 9 a.m. on Monday, June 11, 2012.

Given the limited amount of time before the awards ceremony, the OAL followed its usual practice of contacting the parties by telephone. On June 7, 2012, at 1:45 p.m., Deputy Clerk Sandra Hlatky called the first phone number supplied by the Petitioner and spoke at length with a person who identified himself as Petitioner's grandfather. She also left a lengthy message at the second number provided by Petitioner. On June 8, 2012, a gentleman who identified himself as Mr. Guarini contacted the OAL and confirmed receipt of the message scheduling the hearing. (See attached certifications.)

On June 11, 2012, the board attorney and school officials appeared at the OAL on time, but petitioner did not appear. At 9:30 a.m. the OAL began trying to reach the petitioner, again contacting the two phone numbers it had for petitioner, again reaching the Petitioner's grandfather but not succeeding in locating the petitioner. At 10 a.m., the board's representatives were allowed to leave. The OAL held the file; however, even today, after the ceremony date, no contact from the petitioner has come.

Therefore, the petition is hereby DISMISSED with PREJUDICE for failure to appear and pursue the matter.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Petitioner contended that he was improperly laid off as the result of a 2010 reduction in force (RIF). Petitioner asserted that he had achieved tenure and therefore should not have been subject to layoff. The respondent, New Jersey State Juvenile Justice Commission (JJC) argued that since the petitioner filed for retirement benefits after receiving notice of the RIF, but before the layoff was to take effect, the issue was moot.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner was employed by the Department of Corrections (NJDOC) from 1974 until 2001, progressing from the position of teacher to Supervisor of Education Programs, the position from which he resigned on August 10, 2001; petitioner's resignation in 2001 from his former tenured, supervisory position with NJDOC to take the position of Education Director with the JJC constituted a "break in service" pursuant to N.J.A.C. 10A:15-2.1 and N.J.A.C. 13:102-1.3; a break in service results in the forfeiture of previously held tenure; petitioner voluntarily forfeited his tenure rights, including any seniority, when he resigned from NJDOC; petitioner went on to earn tenure in the position of Education Specialist 1 with JJC; however, petitioner's seniority at the time of the 2010 RIF was limited to the time he had served in the tenurable position of Education Specialist 1 with the JJC, which must be counted from June 2002 – the date when he assumed that position; of the five employees retained by JJC in the Educational Specialist 1 title at the time of the RIF, all had greater seniority than petitioner; and, accordingly, no tenure violation occurred. The ALJ concluded that petitioner's within appeal should be dismissed, and the issue of petitioner's retirement resignation need not be addressed.

Upon careful and independent review – and finding petitioner's exceptions to the Initial Decision to be without merit – the Deputy Commissioner, to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33, concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions, and dismissed the petition. In so doing, the Deputy Commissioner found that: petitioner forfeited any tenure he had accrued at the NJDOC when he left that agency in 2001; petitioner began to accrue tenure with the JJC in June 2002 when he commenced the position of Education Program Specialist 1; and at the time of the RIF, there were five other employees working under this title at the JJC with seniority greater than petitioner's. Accordingly, no tenure violations were perpetrated and petitioner is not entitled to be reinstated.

V.	:	DECISION
NEW JERSEY STATE JUVENILE	:
JUSTICE COMMISSION,	:

Petitioner seeks an order reinstating him to the position of Educational Program Specialist 1 with the respondent Juvenile Justice Commission, from which he was removed as the result of a reduction in force (RIF). Upon review of the record, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the parties' exceptions thereto, the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – concludes that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) correctly determined that petitioner failed to prove entitlement to reinstatement.

The ALJ's conclusion rested upon his determination that petitioner's departure in 2001 from his former tenured, supervisory position with the New Jersey Department of Corrections (NJDOC) to take the position of Education Director with respondent constituted a "break in service" pursuant to N.J.A.C. 10A:15-2.1 and N.J.A.C. 13:102-1.3. Such a break in service results in the forfeiture of previously held tenure. See, N.J.A.C. 10A:15-2.1; N.J.A.C. 13:102-2.1 Thus, the result of adopting the ALJ's determination would be that petitioner's seniority for purposes of respondent's November 2010 RIF would be limited to the time he had served in tenurable positions with respondent. Under those circumstances, his seniority would be less than that of the five employees who were retained when four Education Specialist 1 positions were abolished by respondent, and he would not be entitled to reinstatement.

The primary argument in petitioner's exceptions is that no "break in service" occurred because in 2001 petitioner "seamlessly" moved from one State position to another State position that required similar qualifications and responsibilities. (Petitioner's Exceptions at 2-4) The Deputy Commissioner disagrees.

Tenure is earned by virtue of service in a particular position which is, necessarily, in a particular school district or State agency. Like each school district in New Jersey, each co-equal State agency hires its own teachers and educational administrators. While co-equal State agencies are all creatures of the administrative arm of the State and all receive funds from the public fisc, so are local school districts all recipients of State funding and subject to oversight by the State Department of Education. Yet there is no authority that binds one local school district to another district's employment decision. It is the same for State agencies – a fact which is reflected, for example, in the existence of separate regulations governing teaching staff members in the Department of Corrections vis-a-vis the Juvenile Justice Commission of the Department of Law and Public Safety.

In other words, when petitioner accepted employment with a separate State agency, the tenure/seniority clock was reset. In determining entitlement to positions remaining after a RIF, respondent is not required to count the years of service that an employee has provided to a different agency.

In his second exception, petitioner parses out the definition of “break in service” as it appears in N.J.A.C. 10A:15-1.3 and N.J.A.C. 13:102-1.3. He posits that he did not leave his ‘tenured’ position at the NJDOC to enter a career service, unclassified service, non-tenured service or Senior Executive Service position, and that consequently there was no break in service.

At the outset, the Deputy Commissioner notes that the four classes of positions identified in N.J.A.C. 10A:15-1.3 and N.J.A.C. 13:102-1.3 are examples. The regulation states that a break in service occurs when an employee leaves a tenured position for any purpose. As to the examples of “purposes” set forth in the above referenced regulations, there appears to be no disagreement among the parties that petitioner did not leave the NJDOC to enter a Senior Executive Service or career service position. However, it appears that petitioner did leave the NJDOC to take an unclassified position since, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 11A:3-4(e), educators in the public schools and State institutions are unclassified employees.

But petitioner maintains that, notwithstanding the unclassified nature of the Director of Education position that he took in the Juvenile Justice Commission upon leaving the NJDOC, the move may not be considered a break in service because that Education Director position was tenurable. He comes to this conclusion by comparing the performance assessment duties of tenured administrators in school districts with the responsibilities that N.J.A.C. 13:102-2.3 imposes upon the above referenced Education Director position, and declaring them identical.

The argument fails for multiple reasons. First, the responsibilities set forth in N.J.A.C. 13:102-2.3 do not constitute the entirety of respondent’s Education Director job. Second even assuming arguendo that respondent’s Education Director position is tenurable, it is still unclassified, and leaving a tenured position for an unclassified position constitutes a break in service according to the express language of N.J.A.C. 10A:15-2.1 and N.J.A.C. 13:102-1.3. In fact, as mentioned above, both N.J.A.C. 13:102-1.3 and N.J.A.C. 10A:15-2.1 expressly state that leaving a tenured position for any purpose is a break in service.

Third, N.J.S.A. 18A:60-1 expressly excludes the Education Director position from those protected by tenure. Thus, petitioner left a supervisory position with tenure at the NJDOC to take an unclassified, expressly non-tenurable position at the Juvenile Justice Commission – a clear break in service under the above cited regulations.

To counter the language of N.J.S.A. 18A:60-1, petitioner urges in his third exception that the exclusion of “Education Director” from the tenurable positions identified in N.J.S.A. 18A:60-1 does not pertain to his position because N.J.S.A. 18A:60-1 was enacted when the Juvenile Justice Commission was part of the NJDOC. Petitioner reasons that since the Juvenile Justice Commission was previously a subdivision of the NJDOC, Director of Education of the Juvenile Justice Commission is a much lower level position than the Director of Education position contemplated by our legislators when they passed N.J.S.A. 18A:60-1. This argument cannot stand, as it must be presumed that our legislature would have – in the last fifteen or more years since the Juvenile Justice Commission was removed from the NJDOC – amended N.J.S.A. 18A:60-1 if it believed that the Commission’s Director of Education position should not be included in the exemption from tenure imposed upon Education Director positions in the NJDOC and other State agencies. See, e.g., In re Petition for Referendum on City of Trenton Ordinance 09-02, 201 N.J. 349, 359 (2010) (noting that the Legislature is presumed to be knowledgeable about its previous enactments).

Petitioner's fourth exception is also without merit. In it he suggests that respondent's RIF should be deemed a nullity because respondent did not consult with the Department of Education about it. However, N.J.A.C. 13:102-2.5 gives respondent the right to reduce the number of its educators when there is a reduction in student participation in its educational programs, just as N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 allows school districts to do. Nor has petitioner cited any authority to the contrary.

In summary, by virtue of petitioner's departure from his tenured position at the NJDOC, he forfeited any tenure he may have accrued at the NJDOC. His tenure with respondent began in June of 2002 when he commenced the tenurable position of Education Program Specialist 1. At the time of respondent's RIF, there were five other Education Program Specialists with seniority greater than petitioner's, which precluded him from claiming one of the five remaining Educational Program Specialist positions. No tenure violations were perpetrated and petitioner is not entitled to be reinstated.

Accordingly, the petition is hereby dismissed.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 21-1/11

STEPHEN TROYANOVICH,

Petitioner,

v.

NEW JERSEY STATE JUVENILE

JUSTICE COMMISSION,

Respondent.

Stephen B. Hunter, Esq., for petitioner (Detzky and Hunter, attorneys)

Erin M. Green, Deputy Attorney General, for petitioner (Jeffrey S. Chiesa, Attorney General of New Jersey, attorney)

Decided: June 4, 2012

BEFORE DONALD J. STEIN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Stephen Troyanovich (petitioner) asserts that he was improperly laid off, effective January 1, 2011. The petitioner asserts that he should not have been subject to the layoff since he had achieved tenure. The New Jersey State Juvenile Justice Commission (respondent) argues that since the petitioner filed for retirement benefits after receiving notice of the layoff, but before the layoff was to take effect, the issue is moot.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On January 25, 2011, petitioner filed a Petition of Appeal as to the proposed layoff. On March 4, 2011, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case. On November 17, 2012, both parties' motions for summary decision were denied. On February 27, 2012, the matter was heard in the OAL (Trenton). The parties requested two weeks to submit written closings. On April 26, 2012, the closings were received, and the record closed on that date.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

STEPHEN TROYANOVICH

Stephen Troyanovich holds a master's degree in Correctional Education, a permanent teaching certificate and an educational supervisory certification.

His first position with the State of New Jersey was a teacher intern selected through the New Jersey Core Correction projection under Department of Education (DOE). He served in that capacity from June 1973 to May 1974. He was assigned to a correctional facility in New Jersey (State), where he worked full time and went to school full time. At the completion of the internship, he received his certifications and master's degree.

From May 1974 to April 1977, he was employed by the State as a teacher in the Department of Corrections Youth Center (now Wagner) where he taught English and other instructional contents.

In April 1977, he became the program director until April 1982 at the same facility. In April 1982, at the same facility, he became the Assistant Supervisor of all vocational programs. At these positions, he was required to have a permanent teaching certificate and a supervisory education certificate.

In April 1983, he moved to the Southern State Correctional Facility and was promoted to the Director of Education and was responsible for all educational programming. The same two certifications were required.

In August 2001, he accepted a promotion as Director of Education 1 at the JJC. His civil service title was Director 1, Education. From June 2003 until July 2005, he became the Education Youth advocate. The civil service title was Educational Program Specialist 1. In July 2005, he returned to the JJC as an Educational Program Specialist 1. He worked in that position until January 2011. He was required to hold a teaching certificate and supervisory certification since 1981.

He became aware of Article 29 of the Collective Bargaining Act (CBA), which meant that his entire state service meant nothing. He had more state service than anyone in his department, which had over 200 people.

He testified that his retirement was not voluntary, he received documents that he would be laid off if he did not retire. He had no choice.

He admitted that he was never notified that he had received tenure. Once he obtained tenure, he thought he would have it in all state positions. At the JJC as an education program specialist, he thought he had more seniority based upon total state service.

MICHELE SHAPIRO

Michele Shapiro is employed as a Manager 2 of Human Resources at the JJC. Her duties include overseeing the operations of the JJC, and she would oversee and calculate seniority in the case of layoffs.

In 2010, the JJC decided to implement a RIF, which was approved by the Civil Service Commission and the Employee Relations Office of the Governor. She determined that the petitioner held an unclassified position. She then applied the provisions of Article 29 of the CBA which determines the seniority based upon the title in job category. Educational Program Specialist 1, 2, and 3 are in the same category. Seniority was determined pursuant to the CBA to be the time served in the titled category.

According to the Educational Seniority List (R-2), the petitioner's date of hire in that title was June 2002. The latest hiring date of the top individuals not targeted was November 4, 2000.

She had no contact with the DOE and the issue of tenure pursuant to New Jersey statutes was never brought to her attention.

She admitted although the Director I is a much higher position, the salary ranges for the Director I and the Educational Program Specialist are similar. She testified that they are equivalent positions.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The facts are not in dispute. Petitioner was employed by the DOC beginning in July 1973 as a teacher/intern, then began regular employment for the DOC as a teacher in 1974 and progressing to the position of Supervisor of Education Programs from which he resigned on August 10, 2001. During this time petitioner acquired a standard instructional certificate with endorsement in English issued by the State Board of Examiners in June 1974, and a standard administrative certificate with endorsement as Supervisor issued in April 1982. He acquired tenure with the DOC in 1977 under his instructional certificate and under his administrative certificate in 1985.

Petitioner resigned from his position as Supervisor of Education, effective August 10, 2001, and accepted an unclassified appointment with Civil Service title Director 1, Education and working title of Director of Education at the JJC within the Department of Law and Public Safety, effective August 13, 2001. This position required an administrative certificate, but since he held the position less than twelve months, he did not acquire tenure. He served in the position until June 2002 when he accepted a voluntary demotion to the Civil Service position of Education Program Specialist 1 with a working title of "Education Youth Advocate." As this position required an instructional certificate and he remained in it until January 2011, he acquired tenure under this certificate with the JJC.

On November 1, 2010, the JJC notified petitioner that he would be subject to a RIF effective on January 1, 2011. However, on December 14, 2010, petitioner submitted an application to retire, effective January 1, 2011. Petitioner contends that he made the decision to retire only to preserve his pension benefits and that the filing was forced and did not represent a voluntary decision on his part. He contends that his retirement actions are a separate issue that arose from his effort to mitigate his damages while concurrently pursuing this appeal contesting his initial selection for layoff.

On January 19, 2011, petitioner's application for retirement was approved by the Board of Trustees of the Division of Pensions and Benefits. On January 25, 2011, petitioner filed a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education alleging that he was improperly laid-off by the respondent and sought to be reinstated.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Teachers and other certified professional educators of the DOC are tenured in New Jersey under the State and County College Tenure Act ("tenure statute"), N.J.S.A. 18A:60-1 to -15. The tenure statute is intended to provide job security during good behavior and efficiency for the teachers and other certified professional educators employed in State institutions within the Department of Corrections. N.J.S.A. 18A:60-1.1. The DOC has adopted the New Jersey State Board of Examiners (BOE) certificate system by awarding tenure only to individuals required to "possess appropriate educational certification issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners as a condition of employment and not otherwise included in the New Jersey Department of Personnel career service.” N.J.A.C. 10A:15-1.2. Individuals who meet the requirements set forth at N.J.A.C. 10A:15-1.2 “shall be eligible for tenure after the expiration of continuous employment for three consecutive years in tenure eligible assignments with satisfactory evaluations within the scope of a specific standard certificate.” N.J.A.C. 10A:15-2.2.

Petitioner has established that he possesses a standard instructional certificate with endorsement in English issued in June 1974 and a standard administrative certificate with endorsement as Supervisor issued in April 1982. Petitioner has also established that he initially obtained tenure within the DOC in 1977 due to possession of appropriate educational certification and the expiration of continuous employment for three consecutive years in assignments not otherwise included in the New Jersey Department of Personnel career service.

Once tenure is acquired by an employee, the tenure rights extend only to assignments within the scope of the certificate under which the employee earned tenure. If, however, the employee experiences a break in service, he or she will forfeit tenure rights. N.J.A.C. 10A:15-2.1. While there is no judicial precedent applying N.J.A.C. 10A:15-2.1 to DOC employees, the regulation mirrors the same principle for tenure of teachers employed by local school boards. See Nelson v. Board of Education, 148 N.J. 358, 366 (1997) (citing Ellicott v. Bd. of Educ., 251 N.J. Super. 342, 348 (App. Div. 1991)). Tenure is achieved in a specific position, and the scope of the tenured position is initially limited by the certificate the teaching staff member must hold to satisfy the prerequisite of qualifications for his or her employment. The Court in Nelson held that, except for those positions specifically enumerated in the corresponding statute and regulations, “an educator who has attained tenure by virtue of the requisite service in a specific position will have tenure with respect to all positions under the particular certificate.” Ibid. (citing Dennery v. Bd. of Educ., 131 N.J. 626, 634 (1993)). Applied to the instant matter, petitioner acquired tenure in the DOC in positions requiring an instructional certificate with English endorsement or administrative certificate with Supervisor endorsement.

Even when conferred by statute, tenure and reemployment rights are not absolute and may be voluntarily waived. O'Toole v. Forestal, 211 N.J. Super. 394, 402 (App. Div. 1986), cert. denied 107 N.J. 123 (1987) (tenure waived by refusal of reemployment following dismissal in a reduction in force). Accord, Lange v. Bd. of Educ. of Audubon, 26 N.J. Super. 83, 88 (App. Div. 1953) (tenure waived when employee under tenure leaves position to accept one which carries no tenure). Similar to the teacher in Lange, petitioner resigned from the DOC on August 10, 2001 and accepted a new position as Director of Education with the Juvenile Justice Commission within the Department of Law and Public Safety. Since his tenure was with the DOC, the petitioner's resignation constitutes a break in service as defined by the DOC to mean "resigning or leaving a tenured position for any purpose including to enter a career service, unclassified service, non-tenured or Senior Executive Service position." N.J.A.C. 10A:15-1.3. Here, petitioner resigned his tenured position with the DOC to accept an unclassified appointment in the JJC as Director of Education with a Civil Service title of Director I, Education.

The tenure laws provide not only for the creation of rights of tenure, but also how they may be lost. Under the plain language of N.J.A.C. 10A:15-2.1, once an employee experiences a break in service, he or she will forfeit tenure rights. While the regulation provides no conditions on the break in service to be valid, New Jersey case law has long held that the resignation or waiver of tenure rights by a tenured employee must be voluntary and intentional to be effective. Rieder v. Caldwell-West Caldwell Bd. of Ed., EDU 7609-97, Initial Decision, (Jan. 22, 1999), adopted, Comm'r. (March 10, 1999), aff'd, St. Bd. (July 7, 1999) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/search.html>>. A waiver requires a clear, unequivocal and decisive act by a party. Here, petitioner has not argued that his resignation from the DOC was anything but voluntary and intentional. A plain reading of the circumstances and his resignation letter indicate that petitioner left the DOC to pursue a career advancement as evidenced by a promotion, expanded job duties, and a salary increase.

By resigning from the DOC, petitioner voluntarily and intentionally waived his tenure rights with that agency. However, like the DOC, petitioner was eligible to earn tenure at the JJC under the tenure statute. N.J.A.C. 13:102-1.1. Also like the DOC, the JJC adopted the BOE certificate system by awarding tenure only to individuals required to possess appropriate educational certification issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners as a condition of employment and not otherwise included in the New Jersey Department of Personnel career service. N.J.A.C. 13:102-1.2. Individuals who meet the requirements set forth at N.J.A.C. 13:102-1.2 shall be eligible for tenure after the expiration of continuous employment for three consecutive years in tenure eligible assignments within the scope of a specific standard certificate.” N.J.A.C. 13:102-2.2.

Petitioner’s first position with the JJC, as Director of Education, required an administrative certificate with endorsement as Supervisor but he did not serve for three consecutive years to acquire tenure under this certificate. Instead, on June 1, 2002, petitioner accepted a voluntary demotion to a Civil Service Title of Education Program Specialist I, which required an instructional certificate. Petitioner served in this position until January 2011, thereby serving for at least three consecutive years to acquire tenure under his instructional certificate within the JJC. Tenure is not transferable between certificates. Dennerly v. Bd. of Educ., 131 N.J. 626, 635-6 (1993) (reversing the Appellate Division’s holding that the transfer of tenure between certificates is analogous to transferring tenure between endorsements, stating that such a holding would render meaningless the requirement “that there be actual service in a position under a certificate to gain tenure under that certificate”). In conclusion, petitioner’s tenure eligibility is with the JJC, within the Department of Law and Public Safety, and limited to positions that require an instructional certificate because that is the only certificate under which he worked the requisite period of time.

There is no evidence of conduct by the JJC attempting to violate the spirit of the tenure law. Instead, petitioner unilaterally and voluntarily waived his previous tenure status with the DOC by his resignation and acceptance of employment with the JJC. Therefore, this type of waiver does not violate public policy. The purpose of the tenure statute is to prevent employers from abusing their superior bargaining power over education staff members in contract negotiations and to protect such employees from dismissal for “unfounded, flimsy or political reasons.” Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Ed., 90 N.J. 63, 73 (1982). Petitioner was not deprived of that protection at any time prior to his decision to voluntarily resign and terminate his employment relationship with the DOC and begin employment with the JJC.

Petitioner's rights to tenure and reemployment in case of a RIF are governed by N.J.A.C. 13:102-2.5. Under this regulation, the JJC has the authority to eliminate a position, even when held by a tenured staff member, when the reduction is due to natural diminution of the number of students participating in the educational program or programs. N.J.A.C. 13:102-2.5(a). Individuals can be protected from being "rified" on the basis of seniority, where the employee having the least number of years of service shall be dismissed in preference to those having longer terms of service. N.J.A.C. 13:102-2.5(b). N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1 sets forth the standards for determining seniority. The JJC adopted the tenure standards for determining seniority that are applicable to teachers employed by local school boards.

Applying the rules applicable to local school boards, seniority is determined according to the number of academic or calendar years of employment, or a fraction thereof, in a school district in specific categories. N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(b). Whenever any individual's particular employment shall be abolished in a category, he shall be given that employment in the same category to which he is entitled by seniority. Id. at § (i). If he has insufficient seniority for employment in the same category, he shall revert to the category in which he held employment prior to employment in the same category and shall be placed, and remain, upon the preferred eligible list of the category from which he reverted until a vacancy occurs in such category to which his seniority entitles him. Ibid. See also, N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(j) and (k).

The pertinent regulations also set forth the specific applicable categories. N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(l). Seniority categories are not necessarily synonymous with position titles. Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Educ., 221 N.J. Super. 239, 242 (App. Div. 1987) held that seniority is measured by years of employment in specific job categories which are normally narrower than the subject fields which are endorsed on teachers' certificates. The regulation establishing categories of employment do not have a provision for "Education Specialist I" or any other unrecognized title. See N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(l). In such a situation, the seniority regulations provide that when the job title is not described in the regulation, the holder shall be placed in a category in accordance with the duties performed and not by title. Whenever the title of any employment is not found in the certification rules or in these rules, the holder of the employment shall be classified as nearly as may be according to the duties performed, pursuant to the provisions of N.J.A.C. 6A:9, Professional Licensure and Standards. N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(g).

Therefore, in determining petitioner's entitlement to a position, it is necessary to examine petitioner's job title and job description. It has been found that:

When deciding competing tenure and seniority claims, courts "look to the substance rather than the form." Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Ed., 5 N.J. Super. 214, 218 (App. Div. 1949). Thus, the nature of the work done, not the title, is "the crucial factor." Quinlan v. North Bergen Bd. of Ed., 73 N.J. Super. 40, 48 (App. Div. 1962). "The duties performed, rather than the title of the position or job description, are controlling." Christie v. East Orange Bd. of Ed., 1985 S.L.D. (Comm'r 1985), slip. op. at 14. ... Seniority regulations codify this approach by clarifying that "where the title of any employment is not properly descriptive of the duties performed, the holder thereof shall be placed in a category in accordance with the duties performed and not by title." [N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1(g)].

[Kornberg v. Bd. of Ed. of Twp. of North Bergen, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 120, 121].

Petitioner acquired tenure from respondent under the civil service position of Education Specialist I. The duties of this position varied according with assignments. From June 2002 to July 2005, petitioner served as liaison between the Office of Education at the JJC and the JJC Parole and Transitional Services. Petitioner was responsible for the education programming of all JJC juveniles on parole. From July 2005 to January 2011, petitioner was involved in various curriculum activities, curriculum development assessment, also program development and planning, training, development of training programming and one of his major areas of responsibility was career, technical education.

In his petition, the petitioner has only identified entitlement to an Education Specialist I position. Based upon an analysis of his job duties from 2002 - 2011, petitioner was primarily involved in educational programming in both of his assignments, thus placing all of petitioner's experience in the category of Education Specialist I is logical. Because petitioner's employment has been in this same category during his tenurable time with respondent, petitioner has 3,006 days of service credited to his Education Specialist I category from June 1, 2002, to January 1, 2011. Petitioner's creditable service in the Education Specialist I category must be counted beginning in June 2002 because he did not acquire tenure under his administrative certificate to earn any seniority to the Director of Education position that he occupied from July 2001 to June 2002.

Furthermore, contrary to petitioner's contention, his time served in the DOC prior to July 2001 cannot be included because he voluntarily forfeited his tenure rights, including any seniority, when he resigned from the DOC. Despite the regulation forfeiting all tenure rights within the DOC upon a voluntary resignation to pursue an unclassified position, petitioner contends that all of his State service should be counted toward his seniority. However, like a teacher who leaves a school district, and unlike a career service position, petitioner forfeited his seniority from his time with the DOC pursuant to N.J.A.C. 10A:15-1.3.

Even if the JJC wanted to credit petitioner's time with the DOC, it would be prohibited from doing so by law because credit for seniority can only be included from the time period leading to tenure. Lachman v. Cherry Hill Bd. of Educ., 1985 S.L.D. 1756, aff'd in part, rev'd in part Comm'r, 1985 S.L.D. 1766 (involving a teacher who forfeited her seniority credit by voluntarily resigning from all employment in the district). In Lachman, the petitioner expressed the belief that years of prior service would count for seniority purposes because of information received from the administrative assistant for personnel who had advised her on two occasions that if she resigned and returned to the district, all prior service would count for salary placement and seniority credit. The Commissioner determined that Lachman followed the advice of the administrative assistant at her own peril, and that seniority credit may only be accorded pursuant to statute and code. Thus, even if a board were willing or guaranteed to recognize all prior service in the district for seniority purposes, the granting of credit for any service not leading to tenure would be prohibited by law. Ibid.

Therefore, in the present matter, respondent is prohibited from including previous service credit for service not leading to tenure with the respondent. Next, applying the principles set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1 to calculate the petitioner's seniority with respondent, his claim to any Education Specialist 1 position is subject to any fellow employees with superior claims to those positions. Respondent has identified a total of nine Education Specialist positions prior to the RIF, with four positions to be abolished. Of the five employees retained, all had greater seniority than petitioner, with the least seniority being 3,580 days. Petitioner has not identified any evidence or contested that the retained employees were improperly included in his category of Education Specialist. Thus, it must be concluded that all employees had similar job duties and were properly categorized, therefore petitioner has no entitlement to any of the remaining positions. Consequently, no tenure violation has occurred and petitioner's claim should be dismissed.

Since no tenure violation has occurred, the issue of petitioner's resignation need not be addressed.

CONCLUSION

Petitioner, despite establishing his tenure status with the DOC, forfeited his rights when he voluntarily resigned from the agency to pursue an unclassified position with respondent. Petitioner reacquired tenure with respondent but was properly selected for layoff when his seniority, beginning with his commencement in the category of Education Specialist 1, was less than that of other employees retained in the same category. Therefore, no tenure violation has occurred and the petition should be dismissed.

RE: Regis Academy Charter School v. New Jersey Department of Education, Agency Docket #191-7/12.

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the materials filed in connection with the Regis Academy Charter School's (Regis Academy) Motion for a Stay of the Commissioner's July 6, 2012 decision denying its application for a charter,¹ and find as follows.²

At the outset, I remind the parties that the purpose of issuing stays is to preserve the status quo in situations where declining to do so would irreparably harm litigants who are likely to succeed on the merits of their claims. See, e.g. University of Texas et al. v. Camenisch, 451 U.S. 390, 395 (1981). It is well settled that stays may only be granted 1) where they are necessary to prevent irreparable harm, 2) where the legal rights underlying the movants' claims are settled, 3) where the movants demonstrate a likelihood of success on the merits and 4) where the relative hardship to the parties favors granting the movants such relief. Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-134 (1982). Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b), litigants seeking stays must make a showing that all four of those standards are satisfied.

¹ As there is no provision in the regulations for an applicant to file an amended motion for a stay after the respondent has replied to the initial motion for a stay, I will treat Regis Academy's July 25, 2012 submission as a reply brief.

² The record of the within matter has been reviewed by the Assistant Commissioner, to whom the matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34.

In the matter before me, however, Regis Academy does not ask for maintenance of the status quo. Rather, it asks to be allowed to open a charter school without having satisfied all of the regulatory prerequisites to earning a charter. Granting such a request would change the status quo, and bestow upon Regis Academy its ultimate goal by way of a procedure designed to confer temporary relief. Nor do Regis Academy's papers contain facts and arguments that would satisfy the above-identified standards that are used to measure the appropriateness of preliminary injunctions.³

By way of example, Regis Academy's articulation of the nature of the irreparable harm that it believes would ensue if it were required to satisfy all regulatory requirements before being granted a charter is primarily financial, i.e. the loss of the funds it expended in seeking charter status. As Regis Academy itself acknowledges in its brief, such monetary damages do not qualify as irreparable harm. The balance of the harm alleged by Regis Academy to be irreparable is the fact that the prospective students and teachers will have to enroll in or, respectively, find employment in other schools. I do not find this point persuasive, as the students have ample time to enroll in their respective home districts and the teachers have more time now to seek other employment than they would if a grant of injunctive relief delayed the implementation of the Commissioner's final decision.

Second, Regis Academy has not satisfactorily explained how it can succeed on the merits of its appeal of the denial of its application for a charter. In light of its failure to submit a valid and accurate lease by the regulatory deadline (see, N.J.A.C. 6A:11-2.1(l)) of June 30, 2012 – thereby failing to show its preparedness for opening a school – the Commissioner considers it unlikely that the Appellate Division will find the denial of the charter to be arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

Third, in contrast to Regis Academy's failure to make an adequate showing regarding how it might be irreparably harmed by maintenance of the status quo, counsel for both the Department of Education and the Cherry Hill Board of Education have described the disruption to students and local districts and the burden to local taxpayers that could result from changing the status quo and bestowing charter status on an entity which has not shown that it has secured a facility and which consequently cannot guarantee that it will be able to timely open a school for the students who have enrolled to attend. In addition, the granting of the relief sought by Regis Academy would negatively impact the Commissioner by forcing him to approve a charter school application where the statutory and regulatory requirements have not been met.

In light of the foregoing it is clear that Regis Academy has not met the standards – set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) and Crowe v. DeGioia, supra – for measuring the need for emergent relief.

Nor do I view as meritorious Regis Academy's assertion that it was constitutionally entitled to a hearing before the Commissioner's final decision denying its application for a charter. It is well settled that charter school applicants are not entitled to same, as such decisions are quasi-legislative in nature. In re Grant of Charter Sch. App. Of Englewood on the Palisades Charter Sch., 320 N.J. Super. 174, 235-236 (App. Div. 1999). Nor does the absence of a hearing deprive Regis Academy of due process, since denial of its request for a charter implicates a sought-after privilege, rather than a liberty interest or vested property right. Doe v. Poritz, 142 N.J. 1, 99 (1995) (We examine procedural due process questions in two steps: the first asks whether there exists a liberty or property interest which has been interfered with by the State, Board of Regents of State Colleges v. Roth, 408 U.S. 564, 571 (1972); the second examines whether the procedures attendant upon that deprivation [if any] were constitutionally sufficient, Hewitt v. Helms, 459 U.S. 460, 472 (1983)).

For its position that it was entitled to a hearing, Regis Academy appears to rely heavily on letters dated November 1, 2011 and November 7, 2011 from a Deputy Attorney General to counsel for the Cherry Hill and Voorhees Boards of Education, which letters referred to the Commissioner's September 30, 2011 preliminary approval of Regis Academy's charter application as a "final" decision and advised that any appeal therefrom must be filed with the Appellate Division of Superior Court. See, Exhibit C, annexed to Regis Academy's motion brief. Regrettably, the letters were incorrect.

At the time of the Commissioner's September 30, 2011 correspondence the Commissioner's final decision had clearly not yet been made. His letter expressly stated:

This approval is contingent upon receipt of outstanding documentation not included in your application, successful participation in the preparedness process and compliance with applicable state and federal regulations.

Since the charter school application process is quasi-legislative, it is questionable as to whether the Commissioner's interim action was appealable. But if such an appeal is possible it must properly be directed to the Appellate Division and brought by means of a motion for an interlocutory appeal. In the final analysis, however, this procedural issue became academic when jurisdiction of the matter was returned to the Commissioner in May of this year.

After considering all the documentation related to Regis Academy's charter application, the Commissioner, through Assistant Commissioner Evo Popoff, issued a final decision denying same. The reasons were articulated in Mr. Popoff's July 6, 2012 letter. While the merits of this final decision may be appealed to the Superior Court, Appellate Division, the emergent relief requested by Regis Academy is inappropriate – for the reasons articulated supra. Accordingly, Regis Academy's application for a stay of the July 6, 2012 decision is hereby DENIED.⁴

Sincerely,

David F. Corso

PLEASANTECH ACADEMY CHARTER :

SCHOOL AND KATHY McDAVID, :

CHIEF SCHOOL ADMINISTRATOR, :

RESPONDENTS. :

Petitioner – who was tenured as a director/supervisor at respondent charter school – contended that the decision of the school’s Board of Trustees to eliminate his position as Administrative Assistant to the Chief School Administrator was a violation of his tenure and seniority rights. Petitioner held seven different positions with respondent between September 2005 and June 30, 2011, when the school abolished his final position of Administrative Assistant to the Chief School Administrator. Petitioner also served as supervisor of special education from May 2010 to March 2011. Petitioner claimed that in addition to the supervisory positions he held during his employment, he also regularly served as a substitute principal, and he claimed tenure rights as a principal. Respondent Board asserted that petitioner’s position was abolished for financial reasons, that petitioner had never been employed as a principal, and that he was not qualified for re-employment in the position of supervisor of special education.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner was tenured under his administrative certificate as a supervisor and director; although petitioner was entitled to tenure credit while he was acting as principal during vacancies, his service in this capacity fell well short of the attainment of tenure rights as a principal; petitioner served as supervisor of special education from May 2010 until March 2011, and was qualified as a supervisor in that capacity; respondent advertised internally that it was hiring a supervisor almost immediately after terminating petitioner, but failed to offer petitioner re-employment as a supervisor or director; a non-tenured staff member was assigned and compensated to fill the position of supervisor of curriculum, a position that petitioner previously held; petitioner was a tenured supervisor/director, and was therefore entitled to assert tenure rights over a non-tenured staff member working in a title for which petitioner is qualified; petitioner was purposefully excluded from notification regarding the supervisory position that was internally advertised in July 2011; and, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12, respondent’s assignment of a non-tenured staff member to perform the duties and functions of a curriculum supervisor circumvented and violated petitioner’s tenure rights. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered that petitioner be reinstated as a supervisor/director with respondent charter school, together with retroactive salary, benefits and emoluments.

Upon comprehensive review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ’s findings and conclusions, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter. In so deciding, the Commissioner noted that in light of the fact that the respondent charter school is no longer operating, the Board cannot reinstate the petitioner; however, the Board remains obligated to provide the petitioner with retroactive salary, benefits and emoluments as ordered by the ALJ.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner’s decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by the PleasanTech Academy Board of Trustees (Board).

In this case, the petitioner, Marc Zydiak, challenged the Board's decision to terminate his employment and abolish his supervisor position in 2011. The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that the petitioner did not accrue tenure rights as a principal; however the petitioner was tenured as a director/supervisor and as a result the petitioner was entitled to a supervisor position. Additionally, the ALJ found that the petitioner was entitled to retroactive salary, benefits and emoluments.

The Board did not file exceptions challenging the ALJ's determinations with respect to the petitioner's tenure as a supervisor and his entitlement to a position. Instead the Board took exception to the ALJ's conclusion that the Board's job offer to the petitioner following the hearing was part of ongoing settlement discussions, and that the petitioner's refusal to except the offer does not constitute abandonment. The Board maintains that after the hearing it offered the petitioner the position of Supervisor of Curriculum and Instruction, and since the petitioner turned down that offer he had effectively abandoned his tenure and seniority rights. The Board also takes exception to the ALJ's determination that the petitioner is entitled to full retroactive salary, benefits and emoluments. The Board contends that the petitioner has been employed by the Atlantic County Institute of Technology since his separation, and – as a result – his retroactive salary, benefits and emoluments should be subject to mitigation.

Upon a comprehensive review of the record in this matter,¹ the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ, for the reasons discussed on page 13 – 19 of the Initial Decision, that the petitioner does not have tenure as a principal. The Commissioner is also in accord with the ALJ's determination that the petitioner obtained tenure as a supervisor. Although the Board contends that it terminated petitioner's employment because it eliminated the petitioner's position, the evidence revealed that – following petitioner's termination – a non-tenured teacher had been assigned the duties of supervisor of curriculum, which was a position formerly held by the petitioner. Further, the Board posted other supervisory positions following petitioner's termination that the petitioner was also entitled to based upon his tenure as a supervisor.² Therefore, when the Board terminated the petitioner's employment, it circumvented and violated petitioner's tenure rights.³

With respect to the abandonment argument advanced in the Board's exceptions, the Commissioner is not persuaded by the Board's contention that the petitioner abandoned his position because he failed to accept his position back under the circumstances conveyed by the

² It is not clear from the record whether the Board ever actually filled any additional supervisor positions.

Board. The Board made the same abandonment argument before the ALJ in its post hearing submission. The ALJ found that the April 23, 2012 letter from the Board offering the petitioner the position of Supervisor of Curriculum and Instruction was a part of settlement discussions and was not offered into evidence during the hearing, and as a result he found that the documents had no evidential bearing on the case. Notably, the April 23, 2012 offer letter was provided to the petitioner well after the final hearing date of February 23, 2012, and a mere three days before the Board submitted its post hearing submission. Additionally, it is not clear from the record whether there were conditions related to the offer or how the issue of retroactive salary and benefits would be resolved. As a result, the Commissioner finds no reason to disturb the ALJ's determination with respect to the Board's abandonment claim.

In its exceptions, the Board also argues for the first time, that the recommended award of retroactive salary, benefits and emoluments should be subject to mitigation. It is well established that mitigation is an affirmative defense and the initial burden of proving the appropriateness of its application rests with the employer. Goodman v. London Metals Exchange, Inc., 86 N.J. 19, 32 (1981). There is nothing in the record to suggest that the Board presented any evidence of petitioner's employment or even remotely mentioned mitigation below. Certainly, the affirmative defense of mitigation cannot be brought for the first time after the record has closed.

Moreover, the Board simply attached to its exceptions an excerpt from the Atlantic County Institute of Technology's website that lists the petitioner in the science department. First, N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.3 provides that evidence not presented at the hearing shall not be submitted as part of the exceptions or referenced in the exceptions. Furthermore even if it were to be considered, a print-out attached to the Board's exceptions does not prove that the petitioner is employed nor does it provide the requisite details surrounding the employment that are essential for a mitigation analysis, i.e. if and when he actually started. As such, without any admissible evidence supporting mitigation or the introduction of the defense at the OAL, the Commissioner finds that the Board failed to prove that the retroactive salary, benefits and emoluments should be subject to mitigation.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter.⁴

IT IS SO ORDERED.⁵

MARC ZYDIAK,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE PLEASANTECH ACADEMY CHARTER
SCHOOL AND KATHY McDAVID,
CHIEF SCHOOL ADMINISTRATOR,
Respondents.

Marc Zydiak, petitioner, pro se

Stephen M. Bacigalupo, II Esq., for respondents (Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein & Celso, attorneys)

Record closed: April 30, 2012

Decided: June 14, 2012

BEFORE W. TODD MILLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On August 4, 2011, Marc Zydiak (petitioner) filed an action with the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) seeking a determination that the Board of Trustees of the PleasanTech Academy Charter School's (PACS, District or Board) decision to “non-renew” and abolish petitioner’s position in 2011 was, among other claims¹, a violation of his tenure rights. For the reasons discussed below, petitioner’s relief is GRANTED, in part.

1. that the Commissioner declares that petitioner is a tenured employee for respondent Board,
2. that Commissioner finds respondents McDavid and Board were arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable and acted in bad faith when they abolished petitioner’s position as an Administrative Assistant to the District Superintendent – Chief School Administrator
3. in view of respondents’ bad faith with regard to their alleged abolishment of petitioner’s position, that the Commissioner order reinstatement of petitioner to the improperly-abolished position of Assistant to the District Superintendent
4. in the alternative or in addition, that the Commissioner declares that petitioner’s seniority status shall be accurately calculated based on the duties petitioner performed over the six years of his employment with respondent Board,
5. that Commissioner find respondents McDavid and Board were arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable and acted in bad faith when they denied petitioner’s statutory right of tenure and the right to be rehired based upon his earned seniority,
6. that the Commissioner compel respondent Board to fully account for all its administrative positions, by job titles, by certifications required, by duties performed and full reasons and justifications for any positions abolished to reveal which position(s) petitioner is entitled by virtue of his tenure and seniority,
7. that Commissioner order respondents immediately rehire petitioner in a position which the Commissioner determines is fair and equitable, based on petitioner’s tenured status and considering respondents’ multiple examples of acting arbitrarily, capriciously, unreasonably and with acts of bad faith at petitioner’s great expense,
8. that, if necessary, petitioner be reinstated by displacing a non-tenured employee of respondent Board in a position petitioner has earned by virtue of his tenure,
9. that Commissioner order respondent Board to pay petitioner back salary, including but not limited to petitioner’s New Jersey pension and fringe benefits, providing petitioner with full retroactive credit as a member of the New Jersey Teachers Pension and Annuity Fund for time and days lost between respondents’ non-rehire of petitioner and the court-ordered rehire of petitioner,
10. that Commissioner find respondent Board acted in bad faith by ignoring petitioner’s request for payout of his earned but unused sick days and vacation days guaranteed by contract and order respondent Board to immediately pay petitioner for all monies due thereby,
11. that Commissioner order respondent Board pay petitioner prejudgment interest equal to the average rate of return, to the nearest one half percent, for the corresponding preceding fiscal year terminating on June 30, of the State of New Jersey Cash Management Fund (State accounts) as reported by the Division of Investment in the Department of the Treasury,
12. In the alternative, that Commissioner find respondents, in requiring that petitioner perform duties outside of his contracted job titles, had entered into an implied contract to compensate petitioner, and were unjustly enriched by requiring petitioner to perform these extra-title duties without compensation for the six years petitioner was employed by respondent, and order respondents compensate petitioner in full for performing these job duties outside of his job titles at a rate which the Commissioner determines to be fair and equitable,
13. an award of such other relief which the Commissioner may deem equitable and just.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The commissioner transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") for hearing as a contested case, where it was filed on August 11, 2011. See, N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and 14F-1 to 13. A request for emergent relief was submitted with the petition. The emergent motion was denied by an order issued on August 17, 2011.

Hearings were conducted on the following dates: August 16, 2011, November 18, 2011, December 6, 2011, December 15, 2011, January 18, 2012, January 31, 2012, and February 23, 2012. The record closed on April 30, 2012, upon receipt of closing briefs.

On April 10, 2012, petitioner filed a request to amend his complaint because Kathy McDavid passed away in or around April 2012. McDavid was named as a respondent in her capacity as chief school administrator. (P-1). Petitioner sought to amend his complaint by adding the Estate of Kathy McDavid. Petitioner's motion to amend the complaint is DENIED. McDavid was not named in her individual capacity, in the original action. Moreover, the dispute between petitioner and McDavid relates to official actions executed by McDavid, while serving as the chief school administrator. This Initial Decision makes no findings of fact or conclusions of law against McDavid, individually.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Marc Zydiak was employed by PACS on September 1, 2005. PACS is a small charter school providing an education for children in kindergarten through eighth grade. Its enrollment consists of about 500 students. PACS's classrooms were split between two buildings (building one and building two; or Ptech one and Ptech two). This became an important distinction for petitioner.

As a small charter school, PACS only filled a minimal number of administrative positions. They are: chief school administrator (CSA) (superintendent); administrative assistant to the chief school administrator (AACSA); two assistant school administrators (ASA) (principals); business administrator; director of curriculum and director of special education (P-14). Again these titles were distributed between two buildings. It was not uncommon for the small group of administrative staff to "substitute," or fill in, if someone was absent from the one of the buildings.

The positions officially held by petitioner during the 2005-2011 timeframe were as follows:

Supervisor/Curriculum Coordinator	9/1/05 to 7/30/06
Supervisor of Curriculum and Instruction	9/1/06 to 6/30/07
Director of Curriculum	7/2/07 to 6/30/08
Director of Curriculum	7/1/08 to 6/30/09
Supervisor	7/1/09 to 7/30/09
Supervising of Planning, Research & Evaluation	7/1/09 to 6/30/10
Administrative Assistant to the District Superintendent	7/1/10 to 6/30/11

Petitioner possesses the following endorsements under his administrative certification:

Teacher of Science (May 1976)
Principal/ Supervisor (October 1979)
Business Administrator (November 1984)
Affirmative Action – Next Phase (February 6, 1986)
Supervisory Management, successful completions of Levels 1, 2 and 3 of New Jersey Certified Public Manager Program (December 1986)

(See P-1; petition with supporting exhibits).

Petitioner was issued a principal/supervisor [administrative] certification in October 1979. (P-1:B2.) Petitioner testified that he was tenured as a supervisor because he had been with the district for over six years and held supervisory positions for at least three years. See, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6. This assertion was not contested² by the PACS.

Petitioner's most recent job title with PACS was AACSA (2010-2011). He held that title from July 1, 2010, until he was terminated on May 13, 2011. Petitioner was not granted tenure as an AACSA because he only held the title for one year. Petitioner was also the supervisor of special education from May 2010 to March 2011. Petitioner's title for the preceding (2009-2010) school year was supervisor of planning, research, and evaluation.

By letter dated May 13, 2011, Kathy McDavid³, the CSA, notified petitioner that his contract would not be renewed ("non-renewed") for the 2011-2012 school year. On May 16, 2011, petitioner requested reasons for the decision. McDavid explained it was because petitioner's position as AACSA was being abolished. (H-6; P-1:H6-H10; P-2; P-4). But McDavid expounded upon her reasons for "non-renewing" petitioner in an August 2011 certification. Therein she states, in part:

8. At no time was petitioner employed as a Principal. In addition, he was never employed in any "acting" position, nor did I ever seek county approval to have him serve in such capacity. Any assumption of "principal duties" was limited to temporary coverage caused by the absence of the actual principal.

9. At the end of the 2010-2011 school year, it became clear that the School needed to reorganize its organizational structure in light of its special education population's needs.

10. Because of special education needs, I could not justify the continued existence of a non-special education

² Petitioner and the PACS had settlement discussions numerous times during the course of the hearings. Counsel for the PACS attached to its April 27, 2012, closing brief, minutes from February 2012, board meeting authorizing that petitioner be rehired. Also attached was an April 23, 2012, letter offering petitioner his position back as supervisor of curriculum and instruction. The PACS urges that petitioner's refusal to accept his job back is tantamount to job abandonment. I DISAGREE. These documents were not offered into evidence during the hearing as they contain settlement discussions. Settlement discussions are not admissible. Evid. R. 408. And I cannot make a determination based upon inadmissible evidence. Moreover, as petitioner correctly points out, the letters did not resolve any issues of back pay or other benefits. Therefore, these documents have no evidential bearing on this case.

supervisory position in addition to creating a special education geared position. As I did not believe Petitioner to be qualified for a special education director or supervisor position, I decided to non-renew Petitioner as the Administrative Assistant to the Chief School Administrator in order to cut costs needed to cover the new special educational supervisory position. Accordingly, I determined to abolish the Administrative Assistant position for the 2011-2012 school year.

11. Although Petitioner was sent and (sic) Open Public Meetings notice, my decision to non-renew him was never discussed at the May 12, 2011 board of trustees meeting.

12. During the May 12, 2011 Board of Trustee meeting the Board of Trustees voted on my recommendations to renew staff certain members, as is required. However, the Board held no discussion relating to those personnel actions.

13. Similarly, the Board did not discuss my decision to non-renew petitioner. In order to comply with the statutory notice requirements for non-renewals, I notified him of my decision on or about May 13, 2011.

14. Petitioner requested a statement of reasons for his non-renewal. I notified Petitioner, in writing, that the reason for his non-renewal was that his position was to be abolished effective June 30, 2011.

15. Petitioner appeared before the Board on June 28, 2011 for a Donaldson hearing. Petitioner was informed that he was permitted to make a presentation to the board of trustees, but that his appearance was not a question and answer session. He requested that his employment be restored and left the meeting.

16. The following day, Petitioner was notified that the Board upheld the decision to non-renew his contract because the position had been abolished.

17. In the interest of resolving all outstanding payroll issues by June 30, 2011, which was to be my last day at the School, I requested that Petitioner sign an accounting of his unused leave balances. Petitioner reminded me that he had not yet appeared for his Donaldson hearing and did not wish to sign off on the accounting.

18. I later apologized to Petitioner for asking him to come in before the Donaldson hearing and clarified that I simply made the request so that I could have everything completed before my last day of employment.

Verna Forman replaced McDavid as the CSA effective July 1, 2011. Forman submitted a certification dated August 12, 2011, on the same topic. Forman's certification provides, in part:

2. For the 2010-2011 school year, Petitioner was employed as the Administrative Assistant to the Chief School Administrator. Petitioner's position was abolished and he was non-renewed for the 2011-2012 school year.

3. At the end of the 2010-2011 school year, the School was forced to close its second building. This required the School to reassess its needs, as all of its employees would now be located in one building.

4. As a result, the previously posted "supervisor" position is no longer needed and will not be filled.

5. For the 2011-2012 academic year, the only anticipated supervisory position that will exist is for special education. The position reiterates the obvious requirement that the individual hold supervisory certification and have a special education background.

6. The position has been posted, but the job description and precise duties of the new positions are still under consideration and have not yet been fully developed.

7. The job description will further detail the requirements of this position. Specifically, this position is intended to provide oversight of the Child Study Team and case management, as well as oversight of the special education teaching staff members.

8. Based on the records maintained by the District, Petitioner does not possess the requisite special education endorsements required to perform the duties of the new created position. See Exhibit A.

On June 28, 2011, the board's agenda contained a motion to advertise for a special education supervisor and a technology coordinator. (P-1:G8-5)

On July 26, 2011, the board approved a request (by motion) to internally advertise for a supervisor's position for the 2011-2012 school year. (P-35). On July 27, 2011, PACS posted the advertisement. (P-7). The internal posting stated:

We are hiring for the following position:

Supervisor

- Supervisor certification, 5 yrs. Supervisor experience in the education field, excellent communication skills, experience in writing curriculum, data analysis.

Interested applicants may submit a letter of interest, resume and copy of certifications and references in person or via email to:

Verna Dennis-Forman, Interim Chief School Administrator

(P-7).

An interview committee was formed and Forman was part of the committee. Indeed, Foreman's certification, at ¶5 states, that for the 2011-2012 academic year, the only anticipated supervisory position that will exist is for special education. Therefore, PACS was hiring qualified individuals in the (administrative) supervisor's category.

The advertisement makes no mention of a special education position or the requirement of special education credentials. Petitioner was not informed of the internal advertisement. Nor was he offered the chance to fill the position.

On August 31, 2011, the board (by motion) formally abolished petitioner's position of administrative assistant to the district superintendent (a/k/a chief school administrator). (P-3).

Kim Smitelli, a teacher or tech support staff member, filled the duties of supervisor or director of curriculum, adjunct to her other duties, for the 2011-2012 school year (Answers to petitioner's interrogatories # 26 (P-5); See also, demonstrative evidence based upon the testimony of Verna Forman). (P-9). Smitelli was paid an additional $30.00 per hour to facilitate⁴ the social studies, math, and science curriculum. (P-1;G8-2). No proof was offered that the position of director of curriculum was abolished in 2011-2012. And by all accounts, Smitelli was not tenured. Petitioner testified his tenure rights were violated when Smitelli occupied the position of curriculum coordinator, director, or supervisor.

Petitioner also claims he regularly served in the capacity as a ("substitute") principal for the period 2005-2011. Therefore his termination in 2011 was in violation of his tenure rights as principal. The PACS required two building principals because it occupied two separate building locations. The PACS presented evidence that petitioner was never appointed as principal, and never actually served acting principal or interim principal. (McDavid certification and Forman testimony). Nor did the board appoint petitioner in such capacity.

When the designated principal was absent from either building (not on the property, on vacation, official leave, ill, at a seminar, in training or otherwise), he was a de facto principal, as a matter of fact and law. Petitioner testified that he accumulated tenure rights over time while a serving as a de facto principal.

Petitioner asserts the he was the de facto or "substitute" principal as follows:

1. 2006-2007 school year – Ten (10) days
2. 2007-2008 school year- Forty-One (41) days
3. 2008-2009 school year- Forty-Nine (49) days
4. 2009-2010 school year- Eighty-Nine (89) days
5. 2010-2011 school year – One-Hundred-Twenty-Two (122) days

Petitioner completed and filed annual reports, suspended or expelled pupils, held fire drills, filed monthly reports with the trustees, prepared budgets, held managerial type meetings with staff and parents, attended board meetings, all of which petitioner claims are duties of a school principal⁵. See Petition, ¶¶ 17, 18. Petitioner documented numerous examples of this type of activity. (P-1; P-32; P-33; P-37 and P-39). The PACS does not dispute that petitioner intermittently performed some of these functions, albeit in his capacity as a supervisor or director.

Petitioner substituted as principal only when the properly designated principal was away from the building. Many staff members “filled in” or “substituted” for administrative staff members during temporary absences. The PACS strongly disputes the legal impact of substitute service and its impact upon tenure, if any.

FINDINGS OF FACTS

1. Petitioner was employed by the PACS as the administrative assistant to the chief school administrator for the 2010-2011 school year. He was also the director or supervisor of the special education department from May 2010 to March 2011.

2. Petitioner was terminated on May 13, 2011.

3. Petitioner was tenured under his administrative certificate as a supervisor and director.

4. The PACS advertised (internally) that it was hiring a supervisor, almost immediately after petitioner was terminated.

5. Petitioner was purposely or negligently not offered re-employment as a supervisor or director.

6. Kim Smitelli, a non-tenured staff member, was assigned and compensated to fill the position of supervisor of curriculum, a position that petitioner previously held. This title was not abolished.

⁵ Citing N.J.S.A. 18A:25-5, 18A:37-4, 18A:40-7 and 18A:41-1.

7. On August 31, 2011, the PACS abolished petitioner's position as administrative assistant to the chief school administrator for the 2011-2012 school year.

8. Petitioner filled in or substituted as principal from 2005 to 2011 when the building principal was absent.

9. Petitioner was not appointed as interim principal or full time principal from 2005-2011.

CREDIBILITY

I found the testimony of petitioner to be mostly self-serving but credible to the extent that his tenure rights as a supervisor were violated. Petitioner preceded pro se and was clearly frustrated. Petitioner generated numerous self-serving documents, records, notes, and charts. He offered an overabundance of grievances making it difficult to sort out the material issues relevant to tenure arguments. But the denial of his tenure rights was adequately documented by the official actions and records of the district.

Verna Forman was less than credible as it relates her recollection of why petitioner was terminated and why he was not rehired. Forman testified/certified that petitioner's position was abolished by the board before August 2011, when it was not. Forman sought a replacement for petitioner by internally posting an advertisement in July 2011, which is contrary to the tenure laws. Forman was not sure if petitioner was tenured as a supervisor/director, even though she was part of the administration for a number of years and worked with petitioner. Petitioner worked with the district for six years as a supervisor. It is hard to comprehend that Forman was unaware of petitioner's tenure status.

I also found the McDavid certification unreliable for many of the same concerns expressed with Forman's testimony/certification. Unfortunately, McDavid was too ill to testify.

The remaining witnesses were not material to the contested issues.

CONCLUSIONS

The purpose of the tenure laws, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18, is "to aid in the establishment of a competent and efficient school system by affording teaching staff members a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service." Carpenito v. Rumson Bd. of Educ., 322 N.J. Super. 522, 528-29 (App. Div. 1999). The Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18, and N.J.A.C. 6A:11-6.1 (Charter Schools) specifically define the conditions under which teaching staff members are entitled to the security of tenure. Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65 (1962), cert. den. 371 U.S. 956 (1963). Tenure arises only upon compliance with the precise conditions articulated in the statute. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Picogna v. Board of Education of Cherry Hill, 143 N.J. 391, 400 (1996). See also, Howley v. Ewing Bd. of Educ., 6 N.J.A.R. (EDU) 509, 516 (1982).

A teaching staff member "is entitled to tenure if they; (1) work in a position for which a teaching certificate is required; (2) hold the appropriate certificate; and (3) have served the requisite period of time." Spiewak v. Summit Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 74 (1982); N.J.S.A. 18A:28-2; N.J.S.A. 18A:28-4; N.J.S.A. 18A:26-5. (See also Charter School Program Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-1 to -18, and its implementing regulations, N.J.A.C. 6A:11-1.1 to -6.3)

A teaching staff member who is promoted may acquire tenure in the new position after the expiration of a period of employment of two consecutive calendar years in the new position; employment for two academic years in the new position together with employment in the new position at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or, employment in the new position within a period of any three consecutive academic years, for the equivalent of more than two academic years. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.⁶

⁶ Unless otherwise specified in the Charter School Program Act or its implementing regulations, or unless otherwise exempted by the Commissioner of Education, "[a] charter school shall operate in accordance with its charter and the provisions of law and regulation which govern other public schools." N.J.S.A. 18A:36A-11(a).

Petitioner did not accrue tenure rights as a Principal

I CONCLUDE that petitioner did not obtain tenure as a principal for the following reasons: 1) petitioner did not serve as a principal for the required probationary period; 2) petitioner is entitled to tenure credit for substitute service as a principal during vacancies, but not the temporary absences of incumbent principals; and 3) petitioner did not obtain promotional tenure as a principal because he did not serve enough time as a principal.

1. Petitioner did not satisfy the time requirements for tenure as a principal.

Tenure requirements are embodied in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Generally, teaching staff members must be properly certified and serve in the position for a probationary period to attain tenure. The analysis of tenure rights starts with the determination of what certificate is at issue. There are only three types of certificates: 1) instructional (e.g. teachers etc.); 2) administrative (e.g. principals and superintendents etc.); and 3) educational services⁷ (e.g. school psychologists, social workers and guidance counselors etc.).

A certificate is a credential that the State Board of Examiners issues to an individual serving as a teaching staff member. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-2.1. It is their license to teach or work in the public school system. An endorsement authorizes the certificate holder to teach a specific subject area. There are numerous special endorsements that permit educators to teach special subjects within their certified area, such as teaching industrial arts, auto mechanics or elementary education.

An educator can acquire tenure under one of or more of these certificates. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. And he or she can attain tenure with respect to all endorsements held under the particular certificate. Ellicott v. Board of Educ., 251 N.J. Super. 342,

349, (App. Div.1991); Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Ed., 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1987); certif. denied 110 N.J. 512 (1988).

The legislature carved out specific exceptions for administrative certificates and endorsements. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. These are managerial positions wherein the actual experience was deemed a vital ingredient of the tenure process. Nelson v. Board of Educ., 148 N.J. 358 (1997). Therefore, after Nelson, the legislature determined that a supervisor such as a principal or assistant principal must actually work in the position to attain tenure. The same exception was not inserted for instructional or educational services certificates. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Finally a teacher with an instructional certificate (i.e. teacher's certification) and an administrative certificate (i.e. principal's certification etc.) cannot cross certificates and claim tenure as a principal unless they have worked the requisite time under the administrative certificate as a principal.

Certainly, petitioner held the appropriate administrative certificate and endorsement (principal) required to serve as a principal. But, he was not officially designated or assigned the title of principal. Nor did he serve the necessary probationary period under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5(b).

From the 2005 to 2010 petitioner's official title was supervisor. He was promoted to administrative assistant to the chief school administrator for the 2010-2011 school year. This title is the charter school equivalent of an assistant superintendent. It is above a principal. I CONCLUDE that petitioner was not appointed to the position of principal and therefore cannot not make a claim of tenure for this title. Even if an administrative assistant to the chief school administrator is the charter school equivalent of a principal, petitioner only served in this title for ten months, which is an insufficient period to acquire tenure.

2. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 precludes petitioner from attaining tenure as a principal while serving as a substitute for an incumbent principal.

Petitioner holds both a supervisor and a principal endorsement, under an administrative certificate. Petitioner argues that although his job titles were “supervisor” and “director” from 2005 to 2010, he simultaneously performed principal duties to such an extent that he deserves tenure as a principal. Essentially petitioner is attempting to piece together a principal/tenure claim by focusing on the tasks he performed rather than the position he held.

Petitioner is entitled to tenure credit as a principal where he officially served as acting, or interim principal, during actual vacancies. But N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 prevents him from accruing tenure as a substitute principal during temporary absences. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 authorizes a board of education to “designate some person to act in place of any officer or employee during the absence, disability or disqualification of any such officer or employee.” However, “no person so acting shall acquire tenure in the office or employment in which he acts pursuant to this section when so acting.” Ibid. Thus, “a person properly employed pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 is not entitled to the status and the resulting benefits of teaching staff membership.” In re Sayreville Educ. Assn., 193 N.J. Super. 424, 427 (App. Div. 1984). In fact, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 applies “when the services of a substitute teacher are required because of the temporary absence, even if protracted, of a regular teacher whose return to duty is contemplated.” Id. at 428. But, “[i]f that other employee has . . . terminated his employment, then the place which the appointee is filling is not the place of the other but rather a vacant place, and the statute ordinarily does not apply.” Ibid.

The Supreme Court stated in Lammers v. Bd. of Educ. of the Bor. of Point Pleasant, 134 N.J. 264, 268 (1993), “[t]he implication drawn by the Appellate Division in Sayreville between a vacancy and an absence is unmistakable. An absence exists when the missing teacher is scheduled ultimately to return to the position. A vacancy exists when the teacher leaves the position permanently, as in the case of a resignation or a retirement.” Thus, a school employee who serves during a temporary absence may not accrue tenure, while a school employee who serves during a vacancy may so accrue tenure. As the Court explained in Spiewak, supra, 90 N.J. at 81, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 is an exception to the statutory rule that a teacher who holds a proper certificate for the requisite number of years is eligible for tenure. As such, a teacher who does not otherwise satisfy N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 cannot tack on time accrued as a substitute under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 in order to obtain tenure.

The distinction between temporary absence and vacancy is illustrated in Walton v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Newton, EDU 7628-06⁸, Initial Decision (May 10, 2007), adopted, Comm'r. (August 8, 2007). In Walton, the Commissioner affirmed the ALJ's conclusion that an interim principal's service before the effective date of the incumbent principal's resignation did not count toward tenure because there was not, until then, an actual vacancy. Relying on Sayreville and Lammers, the ALJ found that N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1 precluded Walton from accruing tenure while serving as interim principal, because Walton was in effect a substitute principal until a vacancy was created by the incumbent's resignation. As a result, Walton could not tack the time served as interim principal onto his two calendar years as actual principal in order to obtain tenure under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.

In Donnelly v. Bd. of Educ. of Hasbrouck Heights, EDU 7770-99⁹, Initial Decision (October 29, 2001), rejected, Comm'r. (December 17, 2001), the Commissioner held that service during a vacancy counts toward tenure in that position. Donnelly served as acting principal for the 1996-1997 academic year; as acting principal for one month in September 1997; as principal for seven months during the 1997-1998 academic year; and, as principal for the 1998-1999 academic year. The Commissioner held that Donnelly's service as acting principal should be credited toward tenure as principal because there was an actual vacancy during that time. However, the Commissioner further held that since Donnelly was employed on a calendar year basis, and "he did not serve two consecutive calendar years, with reemployment, as an acting principal and principal," Thus the provision requiring consecutive years of service was a factor. N.J.S.A. 18A:28 -5 and -6.

Here, petitioner claims he actually served or was appointed as interim or acting principal during various (vacancy) periods from September 1, 2005 to January 16, 2006; July 1, 2006 to August 31, 2006; September 1, 2006 to November 1, 2006 (or whenever Sheila Williamson began her employment as principal); and July 1, 2007 to August 1, 2007, for a total of nine months (See P-39, P-1). During these dates, petitioner typically served as principal after the resignation of an incumbent principal but, before the start date of the next principal. And since this service occurred during vacancies, petitioner could argue he accrued tenure credit while serving as “acting” principal. The PACS denies that petitioner was officially designated as acting principal. (McDavid Affidavit, ¶ 8 and see P1-14, P-31).

None of petitioner’s contracts or the official board minutes corroborate that petitioner was actually appointed as interim or acting principal (P-14; P-31). Petitioner merely assumed the duties of principal, without formal action of management or the board. Or his superiors asked him to substitute as principal on intermittent dates, between 2005 and 2011. Nevertheless assuming petitioner’s factual assertion to be true, and he was acting principal because there was a real vacancy in that title, he still did not serve the required two years or consecutive periods, sufficient to acquire tenure as a principal. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. His service was sporadic and occurred at different points in time, totaling nine months over a five year period. As noted above, a district may designate an employee to serve in the place of another during the absence, disability, or disqualification of the incumbent. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1.

The record reflects substitute service was a common practice at PACS because of its small size and limited administrative staff. Thus, on many dates between 2005 and 2011, petitioner merely substituted during the temporary absences of the incumbent principal whose return was contemplated. Many times the designated principal was only out of the building for a few hours. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1, petitioner cannot be credited for tenure time as a principal.

As the commissioner stated in Rossi v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Newark, 1977 S.L.D. 734, 739, “[t]he statutory prescription of [N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1] is clearly directed at the need to maintain functional school operations irrespective of employee absence and to insure that the entitlement to accrue service toward a tenured status is afforded to only one person in a specific position at one time.” (Emphasis added).

Petitioner was well-aware that he would be needed for substitute service. His contracts stipulated that he could be asked to perform “any other duties as assigned” in addition to those specifically included in his contracts. And he worked for charter schools in the past (Charter Tech). Indeed N.J.A.C. 18A:16-1.1 provided the PACS the flexibility needed to ensure adequate staffing during the temporary absences of incumbent principals. These managerial assignments cannot serve as “an obvious effort to circumvent the school [tenure] laws,” against which the court warned in Sayreville, supra, 193 N.J. Super. at 428.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner is entitled to tenure credit while he was acting as principal during vacancies, but not during temporary absences. In this case petitioner’s service as acting principal fell well short of the probationary period he would need to attain tenure as a principal.

3. Petitioner is not entitled to promotional tenure as a principal.

I CONCLDUE that petitioner is not entitled to promotional tenure as a principal under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6. Again, petitioner was never officially assigned the title of principal. Therefore he did not fill the title for the two years necessary to claim promotional tenure. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5; N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6.

II

Petitioner was a tenured director/supervisor, and is therefore entitled to assert tenure rights over a non-tenured staff member who is working in a title for which petitioner is qualified.

The abolishment of petitioner’s job title did not extinguish his tenure rights. Tenure provides petitioner special re-employment rights by seniority over tenured staff members, and absolute employment rights over non-tenured staff members.

Tenure and seniority have two separate functions. Tenure is a status designed to protect teachers from dismissal for unfounded, flimsy or political reasons, Spiewak, supra at 90 N.J. 73, and to afford teachers a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service. Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949). Seniority provides a mechanism for ranking all tenured teaching staff members so that reductions in force and reemployment can be effected in an equitable fashion and in accordance with sound educational policies. Lichtman v. Ridgewood Bd. of Educ., 93 N.J. 362, 368 (1983). Hence, seniority must be regarded as a consequence of tenure.

Petitioner was the AACSA for the 2010-2011 school year, and he was also the supervisor of the special education from May 2010 to March 2011. CSA Verna Forman took over supervision of the special education department in March 2011.

The PACS motives for terminating petitioner were spurious. When petitioner was released in May 2011, the Board stated it was cutting costs by eliminating an administrative position. The board was unclear when it articulated what method it was using in terminating petitioner. First petitioner was non-renewed, which is terminology associated with non-tenured staff members. (P-1:H6). The May 13, 2011, notice does not mention petitioner's title being abolished. Then a second undated notice was issued stating petitioner's position was being abolished. (P-1:H9).

On June 29, 2011, McDavid advised petitioner that the board deliberated and abolished his title. Indeed, the board's June 28, 2011, agenda contained no indication petitioner's job title was scheduled for any official action. (P-1:G8-1). The June 28, 2011, minutes that reflect no action was taken to abolish petitioner's position (C-2). Petitioner's position was abolished on August 31, 2011, according to the board's minutes. (P-35). The process reflects disorganization between the board and its management. Neither the board, McDavid nor Forman had a coherent reorganization plan, in relation to petitioner.

Against this backdrop, the PACS made no effort to evaluate petitioner's seniority or tenure rights once he was terminated on May 13, 2011. It might be that petitioner's seniority rights (as a supervisor) were inferior to the remaining administrative staff. But nothing in this record indicates that petitioner's seniority rights were even considered. This is most evident when Forman testified that if petitioner was tenured, he would have re-employments rights as a supervisor. Yet she had no idea if he was tenured.

The PACS management described its dissatisfaction with petitioner's performance as supervisor of the special education department. (e.g. See, Forman and McDavid certifications.) The PACS utilized the Cape May Special Services District for child study team services. Forman testified that petitioner was not processing bills from the Cape May Special Services District timely. But no complaints, letters, emails, warnings, or performance appraisals confirmed any such complaints from the Cape May District. Petitioner stated that he thoroughly reviewed the invoices to make sure that services were properly billed and received. He was not made aware of any serious complaints or problems. And yet he was relieved from his duty as supervisor of this department, with no documented misdeeds or performance-related complaints. Petitioner was an outcast, and targeted for removal. Rather than bring tenure charges, if just cause existed for petitioner's removal, he was fired, in complete disregard of his tenure rights to other titles.

On July 26, 2011, after petitioner was terminated, but before the official abolishment of his title, the board authorized (by motion), the posting of an internal advertisement for the position of "supervisor," for the 2011-2012 school year. (P-35). The internal advertisement was posted on July 27, 2011. (P-7).

Petitioner was not formally notified of the job posting for "supervisor." In fact, petitioner was purposely excluded from being made aware the posting by the designation "internal posting." The timing is very telling and undeniable. Almost concurrent with the posting of an opening for supervisor, PACS formed a committee to interview prospective candidates for the newly posted (supervisor) position. Petitioner was not invited to interview with the committee, in spite of his tenure status as a supervisor and the law requiring the re-employment of tenured staff. Petitioner learned about the internal posting from his PACS acquaintances. He notified the district of his interest and requested an interview (P-36), but his request was ignored. CSA Forman was on the committee, but could not explain why petitioner was denied an interview.

The advertisement does not specially mention any title or position. But the McDavid certification states that "I did not believe petitioner to be qualified for a special education director or supervisor position, I decided to non-renew petitioner as the Administrative Assistant to the Chief School Administrator in order to cut costs needed to cover the new special educational supervisory position." (P-2:¶ 10). Indeed petitioner was the supervisor of the special education department from May 2010 to March 2011.

CSA Forman also stated that she anticipated hiring a new supervisor¹⁰ of the special education department for the 2011-2012 school year. Likewise, Forman commented in her certification (and during her testimony) that petitioner was not qualified for the special education position irrespective of his 2010-2011 assignment to this department. (P-2). Indeed, petitioner did not receive any negative comments or negative performance reviews.

Once more the timeline is suggestive of the PACS's motives. Petitioner filed legal action against PACS on August 4, 2011. Immediately thereafter, Forman states in her August 12, 2011, certification - - a general supervisory position is longer needed. (P-2). Only a supervisor of special education would be needed and petitioner is not qualified. (P-2). The obvious impact was to deny petitioner a general supervisory position. It was assumed he was not qualified for the special education position, so only that title remained available to be filled.

McDavid and Forman knew, or should have known, that petitioner had the proper credentials to supervise any department, including the special education department, since he was assigned this task in 2010-2011. And the education regulations do not specifically require a special education endorsement¹¹ to be the "supervisor" of the special education department. Likewise, the advertisement contained no mention of special education credentials. Therefore, the McDavid and Forman affidavits, as well as Forman's testimony, were disingenuous by stating that petitioner was not qualified to be the supervisor of special education when viewed against his credentials, performance reviews, and prior assignments.

PACS also filled the position of supervisor of curriculum with a non-tenured staff member for the 2011-2012 school year. Again petitioner's tenure status entitles him to displace staff members in titles for which petitioner was qualified and tenured, and which are occupied by non-tenured staff. Kim Smitelli took over the curriculum duties. There is no proof that this title was formally abolished (See P-29)¹². I CONCLUDE assigning a non-tenured staff member to perform the duties and functions of a curriculum supervisor circumvented and violated petitioner's tenure rights.

The law regarding reemployment following a reduction in force is set forth in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12, which states in pertinent part:

If any teaching staff member shall be dismissed as a result of such reduction, such person shall be and remain upon a preferred eligible list in the order of seniority for reemployment whenever a vacancy occurs in a position for which such person shall be qualified and he shall be reemployed by the body causing dismissal...

In Capodilupo v. West Orange Twp. Bd. of Educ., 218 N.J. Super. 510 (App. Div. 1987), the court ruled that a tenured teacher who taught physical education is entitled to retention as against a non-tenured teacher with the same certification. And in Ellicott v. Frankford Bd. of Educ., 251 N.J. Super. 342, 347 (App. Div. 1991), the court reiterated

¹¹ N.J.A.C. 6A:11-5.1(b)1 states that "A lead person or another person who holds a New Jersey standard school administrator or supervisor certificate or a New Jersey standard or provisional principal certificate in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8.6 to direct and guide the work of instructional personnel including but not limited to, the supervision and evaluation of staff and the development and implementation of curriculum..." that a teaching staff member with an educational-services certificate had preference over a non-tenured teaching staff member in all positions for which her certificate qualified her.

¹² See, In the matter of Marsh v Atlantic City Board of Education, EDU 8582-98, Initial Decision (October 20, 1999), modified on other grounds, Comm'r (December 21, 1999), St. Bd. (October 4, 2000) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.shtml>>

The PACS had an obligation to offer petitioner re-employment based upon his tenure as a supervisor. I CONCLUDE that the PACS purposely or negligently ignored petitioner's tenure status and violated his rights as a supervisor/director.

ORDER

I ORDER that petitioner be reinstated as a supervisor/director with respondent PleasanTech Academy Charter Schools, together with retroactive salary, benefits and emoluments. All other relief sought by petitioner is DENIED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING : OF WAYNE CALANDRIELLO, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
 SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF : DECISION
 SOUTH ORANGE-MAPLEWOOD, :
 ESSEX COUNTY. :

The petitioning school district certified thirteen tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and other just cause against respondent – a tenured physical education teacher – alleging, inter alia: inappropriate communication and/or contact with students; failure to supervise students during class time; failure to report a student fight incident; failure to report for work; failure to notify the substitute service; shoplifting of magazines; and failure to disclose a dismissal from previous employment with Monmouth County. The majority of the thirteen charges stem from two incidents: respondent's behavior during a study hall which he supervised on January 7, 2010, and the circumstances and aftermath of respondent's failure to report to work on April 15, 2011. In the latter incident, respondent was arrested for shoplifting at a 7-Eleven on his way to work; the criminal charges were later dismissed. The Board contended that respondent's misconduct warrants dismissal from his tenured position. The first of the thirteen charges was voluntarily withdrawn by the Board, and the ALJ dismissed charge 11 as redundant with charge 10.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming when he failed to appropriately supervise his students during a study hall on January 7, 2010, leading to misuse of instructional time and the use of forbidden electronic devices by students; the evidence does not, however, support the Board's contention of failure to respond to or report a student fight because the nature of the 2010 incident shown on videotape can best be characterized as teasing rather than fighting; at the time of the 2010 incident, respondent received only a written reprimand and the conduct is no more egregious two years later; respondent misrepresented the reason for his April 15, 2011 absence from school as well as his efforts to contact the substitution service, and this behavior constituted conduct unbecoming; respondent's failure to report for duty on that day – and failure to give timely notice that he would be absent – also constitute conduct unbecoming a teacher; the credibility of the only witness presented by the Board in support of the shoplifting charge was profoundly deficient, and his testimony was irrational and lacked internal consistency; accordingly, the Board failed to prove that respondent committed a shoplifting offense. The ALJ concluded that respondent was guilty of conduct unbecoming, but that the circumstances of the case do not warrant dismissal from his tenured position. Accordingly, the ALJ recommended that the appropriate penalty in this matter is the forfeiture of the 120 days of salary withheld pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14.

Upon careful and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions regarding respondent's unbecoming conduct. However, the Commissioner modified the penalty recommended by the ALJ and ordered that the respondent forfeit one year of salary increment and the 120 days of salary withheld pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, plus an additional four months suspension without pay. Accordingly, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL, as modified with respect to the penalty, as the final decision in this matter.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING :

OF WAYNE CALANDRIELLO,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF	:	DECISION
SOUTH ORANGE-MAPLEWOOD,	:
ESSEX COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by the respondent, Wayne Calandriello, and the Board of Education (Board), as well as the respondent's and the Board's respective replies thereto.

This case involves tenure charges brought by the Board against the respondent, a tenured teacher in the South Orange-Maplewood School District. The Board charged the respondent with 13 counts of unbecoming conduct and other just cause stemming from four separate incidents.¹ Following the presentation of the Board's case, the Board voluntarily

- Charge 1: Inappropriate communication and/or contact with a student;
- Charge 2: Failure to properly supervise his students during a third period study hall on January 7, 2010;
- Charge 3: Failure to take any action in response to a fight between students during a third period study hall on January 7, 2010;
- Charge 4: Failure to report a student fight that occurred during a third period study hall on January 7, 2010;
- Charge 5: Misuse of instructional time during a third period study hall on January 7, 2010;
- Charge 6: Failure to report for duty on April 15, 2011;
- Charge 7: Failure to notify the substitute service on April 15, 2011;
- Charge 8: Misrepresentation regarding reason for April 15, 2011 absence;
- Charge 9: Misrepresentation regarding notification of substitute service for April 15, 2011 absence;
- Charge 10: Arrest for shoplifting on April 15, 2011;
- Charge 11: Arrest for shoplifting adult magazines on April 15, 2011;
- Charge 12: Failure to disclose dismissal from employment with Monmouth County Youth Service; and withdrew charge 1 and the Administrative Law Judge (“ALJ”) dismissed charge 11. In his Initial Decision the ALJ found that the respondent engaged in unbecoming conduct by failing to appropriately supervise his students during study hall on January 7, 2010; by failing to provide the Board with timely notice that he would be absent on April 15, 2011; and by misrepresenting his reason for the April 15, 2011 absence and his efforts to contact the substitute service. The ALJ also found that the Board failed to sustain its burden of proving misconduct arising out of the allegation that the respondent engaged in shoplifting on April 15, 2011, and for failing to disclose his dismissal from employment at the Monmouth County Youth Detention Center (“Detention Center”) when he was hired in 2001. The ALJ recommended the imposition of a 120 day suspension as a result of the respondent’s unbecoming conduct.
- Charge 13: Other just cause.

The Board submitted exceptions to support the contention that the ALJ erroneously found that the Board did not prove certain charges against the respondent, and seeking to have the Commissioner modify the recommended penalty. Initially, the Board takes exception to the ALJ’s summaries of the witness testimony, noting that these do not reflect complete summaries of each and every witness’s relevant direct and cross-examination testimony. The Board provided numerous examples in which it takes exception to the ALJ’s summary of witness testimony, reiterating the factual findings suggested in its post hearing submission.

With respect to charges 6 and 7, the Board maintains that the ALJ incorrectly placed greater responsibility for the unsupervised students on the pool deck on the custodian and the night school teacher than on the respondent. The Board contends that the fact that other individuals before him did not secure the area does not diminish respondent’s responsibilities as it was his duty to supervise the students in the pool area. Since the respondent did not report to work and failed to notify school officials, his morning swim class entered the pool area without any supervision.

The Board also claims that the ALJ erred in concluding that the Board did not prove charges 10 and 11, involving the shoplifting of pornographic magazines. In connection with charge 10, the Board takes issue with the ALJ's credibility determination, arguing that the Board's witness, Habes Al-Fwaier – who worked at the 7-Eleven store where the alleged shoplifting incident occurred – was more credible than the respondent. The Board stressed that Al-Fwaier had no stake in the proceeding, and he was forthright in his answers – particularly in view of his language difficulties and his reluctance about testifying. On the other hand, the respondent was incredible throughout his testimony. The Board cites numerous examples of the respondent's testimony and argues that because the ALJ found the respondent to be lacking credibility when it involved other aspects of his testimony, it only follows that his whole testimony should be deemed incredible. The Board maintains that selective credibility determinations deserve no deference. With respect to charge 11, the Board contends that the ALJ's conclusion that it was irrelevant whether the magazines the respondent allegedly shoplifted were pornographic is inconceivable. The Board maintains that fact that the respondent felt compelled to obtain pornographic materials on his way to work – where he supervises students in a pool – is very disconcerting.

Finally, the Board asserts that the ALJ erred in concluding that the Board did not prove charge 12. The Board argues that the ALJ incorrectly found that the employment information that respondent submitted to the Board at the time of his hire was accurate. The Board maintains that in light of the Final Decision of the Merit System Board removing him from his position at the Detention Center, the recommendation letter from the Assistant Superintendent of the Detention Center that the respondent submitted with his employment application was inherently false. As a result, the Board argues that the Commissioner should reject a portion of the Initial Decision and dismiss the respondent from his tenured position.

In his exceptions, the respondent urges the adoption of the Initial Decision with respect to the specific charges that were either dismissed by the ALJ or which the ALJ determined the Board failed to prove. Respondent takes exception to the following factual conclusions contained in the Initial Decision, which he alleges are not supported by the record. The respondent notes that the charges stemming from the incident during study hall on January 7, 2010 arose out of a short video taken with a student's cell phone. Respondent contends that the ALJ should have included the fact that the school had surveillance video of the cafeteria at the time, and that the principal never looked at the video to determine the context of the incident and the respondent's subsequent actions.

Additionally, respondent contends that the ALJ wrongfully concluded that he was able but failed to call the school to report his absence on April 15, 2011. The respondent contends that the circumstances surrounding his dispute with Al-Fwaier at the 7-Eleven regarding magazines and the subsequent police presence prevented him from being able to make a phone call. Further, the respondent contends that the ALJ's conclusion that he improperly failed to disclose the reason for his absence on the day of his arrest and the following days is at odds with N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.1. Under N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.1, the respondent was required to report his arrest within 14 days and, in fact, the respondent sent a memorandum to the Superintendent on April 29, 2011. Finally, the respondent contends that a 120 day suspension is too harsh based on the totality of the circumstances in this case and the Board's limited and unsubstantiated proofs.

In reply to the respondent's exceptions, the Board contends that no negative inference should be drawn from the lack of the surveillance video because the footage from the student's cell phone was enough to establish the respondent's failure to properly supervise his students, and at the time it was not foreseeable that there would be a need for the evidence in a future tenure case. Additionally, the Board contends that no negative inferences can be drawn from the fact that the 7-Eleven surveillance video was never presented at the hearing. The Board also states that the respondent incorrectly asserted that the ALJ made a finding that his failure to disclose the reason for his absence on April 15, 2011 breached a duty under N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.1. The Board stresses that the ALJ found that it was the false information that the respondent provided to multiple Board employees and his misrepresentations regarding contacting the substitute service that constituted the unbecoming conduct. Finally, the Board reiterates its request to have the respondent dismissed from his tenured position.

In reply to the Board, the respondent contends that the Board exceptions should be rejected because the factual assertions suggested by the Board were previously argued below, and the ALJ's credibility findings should not be rejected because they are supported by the evidence in the record. In his reply, the petitioner essentially provided a lengthy verbatim recitation of the facts that were outlined in his post-hearing submission. With respect to the petitioner's exceptions regarding the shoplifting charge (charge 10), the petitioner emphasizes the clear credibility findings made by the ALJ. The petitioner also contends that charge 11 is related to charge 10 and was therefore properly dismissed by the ALJ because there is no nexus between the nature of the magazines that were allegedly shoplifted and the respondent's work responsibilities. The petitioner points out that there was no allegation that petitioner shared or intended to share any such magazine with a student or co-worker. Finally, in reply to the Board's exceptions regarding charge 12, the petitioner argues that the Board's arguments concerning the recommendation letter from the Assistant Superintendent of the Detention Center are unfounded by the record and distort the scope of the letter. Lastly, the petitioner again argues that dismissal from his tenured employment is not warranted in this case.

Upon a comprehensive review of the record in this matter, which included the transcripts of the hearing dates conducted at the OAL on March 6, 2012, March 16, 2012, March 23, 2012 and March 26, 2012, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the Board has established that respondent is guilty of unbecoming conduct. The ALJ's finding in connection with the characterization of respondent's behavior as unbecoming conduct is fully supported by the record and consistent with applicable law.

With respect to the January 2010 incident (charges 2-5), the Commissioner is in accord with the ALJ's determination that the respondent engaged in unbecoming conduct by failing to properly supervise his students during study hall, leading to a misuse of instructional time and the use of forbidden electronic devices by the students. Although the surveillance video from the school's cafeteria was not provided by the Board at the hearing, it is readily apparent from the student's cell phone video that the students were not behaving appropriately and that the respondent did not do enough to properly quell the situation. On the charges related to the employment application (charge 12), the Commissioner also agrees with the ALJ – for the reasons discussed on pages 19-21 of the Initial Decision – that the Board failed to prove that the respondent provided erroneous information at the time of his hire in August 2001. There was no indication that the recommendation letter provided by the respondent was fraudulent, and the Board had authorization to check all of respondent's references. Further, the application did not require the respondent to state why he left his position at the Detention Center.

The Commissioner is also in accord with the ALJ's determination concerning the shoplifting charges and the aftermath of the incident (charges 6-11). Although the respondent was arrested, the charges were eventually dismissed and he claimed that the whole incident with the magazines was simply a misunderstanding. Notably all of the facts related to the alleged shoplifting incident were in dispute; as such, witness testimony and ultimate credibility is the only means available to make a determination as to the veracity of the charges. The ALJ had the opportunity to assess the credibility of the witnesses who appeared before him and made findings of fact based upon their testimony. In this regard, the clear and unequivocal standard governing the Commissioner's review is:

The agency head may not reject or modify any findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony unless it is first determined from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by sufficient, competent, and credible evidence in the record. [N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c)].

Based on his overall assessment of the Board's only witness related to the alleged shoplifting, Mr. Al-Fwaier, the ALJ found that he was not credible, stating that he "was so profoundly deficient that it is impossible to make findings supported by his testimony." The ALJ went on to note that Al-Fwaier "described Calandriello as a nice and good person, a type of person he was proud to see. This assessment, however, is totally inconsistent with his claim that he watched Calandriello shoplift or had a suspicion that he was shoplifting ... without intervention." (Initial Decision at 15). Notwithstanding the Board's contentions to the contrary, the Commissioner finds no basis in the record to reject either the ALJ's recitations of testimony or his determinations of witness credibility. Further, since the Board carries the burden of proof, without a credible witness or other evidence in the record, the charge must be dismissed.

Although the Board did not sustain its burden of proving that respondent was guilty of shoplifting, there is no doubt that respondent failed to report to duty that day and did not provide the school with notice before the start of his morning classes. The ALJ found the respondent's assertion that he was prevented from making a phone call after he was confronted at 7-Eleven by Al-Fwaier was not plausible. There is nothing in the record to contradict the ALJ's assessment of the respondent's credibility and his finding on this point. Moreover, it is undisputed that the respondent failed to notify the substitute service, which was a violation of Board policy. It is also undisputed that the respondent informed the Superintendent of his arrest within 14 days in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.1, yet the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that the respondent's misrepresentations in the days following the arrest were problematic in that he gave false and conflicting information to three different Board employees on four separate occasions, putting into question the respondent's professionalism. The term unbecoming conduct is elastic and broadly defined to include any conduct "which has a tendency to destroy public respect for [government] employees and competence in the operation of [public] services." Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1988). Behavior rising to the level of unbecoming conduct "need not be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartman v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 22, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (citing Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)). As a result, the ALJ's finding in connection with the characterization of respondent's behavior as unbecoming conduct is fully supported by the record and consistent with applicable law.

Turning to the appropriate penalty, the Commissioner recognizes that the factors to be taken into account in making a penalty determination include the nature and circumstances of the incidents or charges, any evidence as to provocation, the teacher's prior record and present attitude, the effect of such conduct on the maintenance of discipline among the students and staff, and the likelihood of such behavior recurring. In re Hearing of Kittell, Little Silver School District, 1972 S.L.D. 535, 541; Fulcomer, supra, 93 N.J. Super. at 422.

While in no way minimizing the seriousness of respondent's infractions, the Commissioner is in accord with the ALJ that – under all of the circumstances and considerations existing in this matter – removal of respondent from his tenured position is an unduly harsh penalty. The dismissal of the respondent from his teaching position is not justified because the conduct that was proven does not establish his unfitness to discharge the duties and functions of his position as a teacher. Nor is there is any indication that the respondent's behavior will have any long term effects on the maintenance of discipline among the students and staff in the South Orange-Maplewood School District. Moreover, the respondent has also received positive evaluations throughout his employment with the Board.

It is important to recognize that the appropriate penalty must be assessed based upon the conduct proven. Despite the list of charges, the Board effectively proved that the respondent failed to properly supervise his students during one incident in 2010², and that the respondent did not report for duty on April 15, 2011 – which situation was compounded by respondent's failure to follow proper protocol and by his communication of conflicting information to Board employees. The Board deemed the fact that the respondent was picking up adult magazines on his way to school to be extremely significant, yet there is no indication that he ever had such materials in the school building or that he shared them with any students or coworkers. Without any additional evidence, the mere fact that the respondent admitted to possessing a Playboy magazine does not rise to the level of unbecoming conduct necessitating the removal of his tenure.³

Although dismissal in this case is not warranted, respondent's unbecoming conduct necessitates an appropriate penalty. It is without question that "teachers carry a heavy responsibility by their actions and comments in setting examples for the pupils with whom they have contact." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Blasko, School District of the Township of Cherry Hill, 1980 S.L.D. 987, 1003. Certainly the proper supervision of students is a paramount component of a teacher's responsibilities. Although the respondent may not have intended to be absent from school on April 15, 2011 when he left his house, the situation he ended up in resulted in students being left unsupervised on a pool deck and caused confusion within the school as to his whereabouts, which is not conducive in a productive school setting. The respondent's unfortunate actions were only further exacerbated by his subsequent communications with Board employees that did not convey the requisite candor that is expected of a teaching staff member. Respondent's conduct in January 2010, coupled with the series of events on April 15, 2011, indicates that the respondent displayed questionable judgment that does not meet the implicit standard of good behavior required by teaching staff members.

Therefore, the Commissioner finds and concludes that the loss of respondent's increment for one year and the 120 days salary withheld pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, following the certification of tenure charges plus an additional four months suspension without pay is a sufficient penalty to impress upon respondent the seriousness of her errors in judgment displayed in this matter. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL, as modified with respect to the penalty, is adopted as final decision in this matter.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 321-10/11

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE
HEARING OF WAYNE CALANDRIELLO, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SOUTH ORANGE-MAPLEWOOD, ESSEX COUNTY.

Joanne L. Butler, Esq., for petitioner, School District of the Township of South Orange-Maplewood (Schenck, Price, Smith & King, attorneys)

Sheldon H. Pincus, Esq., for respondent, Wayne Calandriello (Bucceri and Pincus, attorneys)

Decided: June 14, 2012

BEFORE JESSE H. STRAUSS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The School District of the Township of South Orange-Maplewood (District) brought thirteen charges against tenured teacher Wayne Calandriello (Calandriello) for conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member and/or other just cause. A tenured employee of a public school system shall not be dismissed except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. The District certified charges alleging: (1) inappropriate communication and/or contact with students; (2) failure and/or refusal to supervise students during class time; (3) failure to take any action in response to fight, etc.; (4) failure to report student-fight incident; (5) misuse of instructional time; (6) failure to report for duty; (7) failure to notify the substitute service; (8) misrepresentation regarding reason for April 15, 2011, absence; (9) misrepresentation regarding notification of substitute service for April 15, 2011, absence; (10) arrest for shoplifting; (11) arrest for shoplifting of adult magazines; (12) failure to disclose dismissal from employment with County of Monmouth; and (13) other just cause. The issues are whether Calandriello engaged in the alleged conduct, and, if so, what is the appropriate penalty.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The District certified charges against Calandriello to the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the Department of Education (Commissioner) on August 26, 2011. Upon the receipt of Calandriello's Answer on November 15, 2011, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes referred the tenure charges to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on November 25, 2011, as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

In accordance with the statutory and regulatory case-processing and discovery requirements related to tenure charges, the hearing commenced on March 6, 2012, and continued on March 16, March 23, and March 26, 2012. The parties ordered transcripts and filed closing briefs on May 11, 2012, in compliance with the schedule permitted by the regulations. The record closed on that date.

The District voluntarily withdrew Charge One at the conclusion of the presentation of its case.¹ I also dismissed Charge Eleven at that time as being redundant with Charge Ten and because it separately bore no relationship to Calandriello's teaching responsibilities.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Background

I FIND the following background FACTS:

Calandriello was hired by the District for the 2001-2002 school year based on his New Jersey K-12 certification as a teacher of health and physical education. For the ensuing eleven years, he taught physical education, health, driver's education, and swimming based on his water safety instructor certification. He also holds a K-12 teacher of the handicap certification. Calandriello has been assigned to Columbia High School (the School) for seven and one-half years of his employment with the District. Judy LoBianco has been his supervisor for the last seven years. LoBianco had observed and evaluated Calandriello's performance during this period and had consistently found him to be proficient in virtually all relevant areas of performance each year. (P-38 to P-62.)

Charges Two Through Five

Charges Two through Five arise out of the same January 7, 2010, incident and are treated together.

On January 7, 2010, eighty percent of Calandriello's thirdperiod thirty-two-student swim class was assigned to a biology lab. Rather than conduct swim instruction for the remaining few students, Calandriello exercised his discretion to hold a study hall in the school cafeteria, and he informed the non-lab students a day earlier to report to the cafeteria with work to do.

During the study hall, a student recorded on his cell phone, for almost five minutes, an interaction between a male (M) and female (F) student. (P-30.) The recording shows that F and an additional student were also using cell phones in plain view despite a school policy that students must refrain from using electronic devices and that staff members prohibit their use. The policy also requires the confiscation of the device if a student is uncooperative as well as referral to the dean for further discipline. The recording was posted on Facebook, eliciting a complaint by the parent of M to Columbia High School Principal Lovie Lilly claiming that his son had been assaulted.

The following can be observed from the cell phone recording: M and F were sitting across from each other at a cafeteria table. Calandriello was at the table a few seats away reading a newspaper during the entire interaction. M and F are teasing each other, and M is pestering F with questions about her moving from town. She replies that it is none of his business and that she is moving that month. F walks around the table, grabs M's arm and says, "I swear to God. Stop talking to me." F returns to her side of the table. M then stands up and leans across toward her, whereupon F swats at him. M tries to reach her across the table, but there is no contact. M then comes to F's side, and she swats at him knocking his glasses off. M says, "do you know how much these glasses cost?" They continue to tease each other. At the end of the recording, Calandriello finally tells them to stop. Both M and F are loud and not doing anything productive in terms of studying during the study hall. However, neither of them exhibited the malice or aggressiveness one would attribute to a fight. It was more akin to mutual teasing and banter.

Calandriello testified that M and F knew each other from swim class. M apparently liked F and they would egg each other on. Calandriello would try to keep them apart in the pool. On January 7, as M and F entered the cafeteria, M was telling her that he liked her, and she replied that she did not like him. Before the recording, Calandriello went to M and made a sign across his lips to convey to M that he should seal his lips. Calandriello also testified that, after the encounter between M and F, M begged him not to report him to the principal.

Principal Lilly reviewed the recording and concluded that there was unacceptable behavior by the students. She criticized Calandriello, who sat next to the students during the interaction reading the newspaper and did nothing for approximately five minutes to quell the situation until he finally told them to stop. There was no supervision of the class. She was critical that no instruction was taking place in this study hall supervised by Calandriello and that the study hall was not structured. Lilly met with Calandriello on January 20, 2010, and issued a memorandum to him on January 28, 2010, which was placed in his personnel file. (P-9.) The memorandum recites Calandriello's admission that, in an instructional/supervisory capacity, he failed to intervene during a conflict between students and failed to submit disciplinary referrals regarding the male student. Lilly criticized Calandriello for a failure to execute his professional responsibilities for the general supervision of students as follows:

. . . you failed to do the following:

1. Intervene during a student conflict that included bullying and harassment, and resulted in a physical assault.
 - a. Students were observing yelling, screaming, and taunting each other.
 - b. One student was observed leaving her seat, running past you, and threatening another student, while you were observed reading a newspaper.
 - c. One student was observed slapping another, causing a pair of glasses to fall to the floor.
 - d. One student was overheard telling the argumentative students "to stop" and "threatening" to place the footage from the videotape on Facebook.
2. Prevent a student from using an electronic videotaping device during an instructional period.
3. Call for security and/or an administrator to quell the situation.²
4. Report the incident to school officials (dean of students/administrators).

Lilly determined that Calandriello's conduct on January 7, 2010, warranted the above Memorandum of Reprimand and a written warning that "in the future, failure to properly supervise students under your tutelage may lead to disciplinary actions and/or consequences." Calandriello did not file a grievance in protest of the letter of reprimand.

² Board Policy 3290 requires a teaching staff member to immediately report any instance of violence. (P-9.)

I FIND that Lilly's assessment of the encounter was accurate except for her characterization of harassment, bullying and an assault. The totality of the interaction suggests a disruption of a class and clearly inappropriate behavior. It did not constitute such serious misbehavior, however, that warranted a referral to security and/or the administration for disciplinary action. Nevertheless, Calandriello's lack of intervention, lack of control over his class, ignoring the open use of electronic devices, and apparent disinterest in assuring that a productive study hall took place constituted a derogation of his teaching responsibilities. This is so despite Calandriello's claim that he had attempted to separate and quiet the two students earlier during the forty-minute study hall and before the recording was made. The video itself counters claims by Calandriello that he was not in a position to see several students using cell phones. Even with Lilly's more severe characterization of the January 7, 2010, encounter than what I have found, the District determined that Calandriello's conduct warranted no penalty more severe than a written reprimand. There was no increment withholding or tenure charges. The incident went unmentioned in his subsequent evaluation.

Charges Six Through Eleven

Charges Six through Eleven arise out of the same April 15, 2011, incident and its aftermath and are treated together. At the end of the Board's case, I dismissed Charge 11 (arrest for shoplifting of adult magazines) as being redundant with Charge 10 (arrest for shoplifting). Moreover, the District failed to establish that the nature of the allegedly shoplifted items had any unique bearing on his teaching duties so as to warrant a separate charge from that of arrest for shoplifting.

On his way to work on April 15, Calandriello followed his daily routine of stopping at a 7 Eleven store in Union where he would purchase The Daily News, The New York Post, and some food. Store manager Habes Al-Fwaier testified that he observed Calandriello take four or five magazines from a rack on the right side of the store and move to the refrigerator area in the back. Al-Fwaier further claimed he asked his cashier if Calandriello had paid for the magazines and was told that he had only paid for the newspapers. Al-Fwaier followed Calandriello to his car and asked him where were the magazines, to which Calandriello replied that he didn't take a magazine. Al-Fwaier grabbed the magazines from inside Calandriello's jacket. He claimed that the magazines were in Calandriello's jacket and not between the two newspapers. Calandriello then gave him some money. He instructed Calandriello to return to the store. Calandriello was compliant; followed Al-Fwaier back into the store; and told him that if he wanted to call the cops to go ahead. Al-Fwaier estimated the value of the magazines to be approximately $70. Al-Fwaier then called the police who arrived and arrested Calandriello.

Al-Fwaier described Calandriello, whom he observed coming to the store every day, as nice, good, and, "I was proud to see some people like him." He liked Calandriello. Yet, Al-Fwaier also testified that Calandriello had been taking magazines without paying for them for "months and months and days, every day come and do the same." He elaborated that Calandriello had been taking magazines once a week when new deliveries were made over a period of six months. He had not confronted Calandriello before because he wanted to make sure Calandriello was doing this. Although he testified that he had watched Calandriello shoplift repeatedly for six months without intervention, he also expressed shock and surprise that he would take adult magazines. Despite this testimony about delaying any confrontation, he also testified that the owner had instructed him that, any time he saw shoplifting, he was to report it to the police with a telephone number he had been given. He also stated that he always followed that directive of the store's owner. Al-Fwaier acknowledged that the store had six or seven video cameras that cover every corner of the store but did not know if Calandriello's alleged conduct was ever recorded. No surveillance tapes of the alleged shoplifting were produced during the pendency of the criminal charges or in this proceeding.

Calandriello was arrested, detained for a few hours, and charged with shoplifting.

Regarding the April 15 incident, Calandriello tells quite a different story. In January 2011, he slipped on black ice on his back porch and experienced pain in his left shoulder. He missed several days of school. He visited Dr. Kurt Von Suskil who suspected a rotator cuff disorder and prescribed Percocet. He again visited Von Suskil on February 3 complaining of dizziness. The doctor suspected Vertigo and prescribed medication. Around this time, Calandriello also visited Orthopedist Dr. Laurie Glasser who had been treating him for knee and back problems. She ordered an MRI and gave him another prescription for pain. The MRI revealed a slight tear of the left rotator cuff. Approximately three weeks after seeing Von Suskil, Calandriello began taking the Percocet because the shoulder pain was getting progressively worse. He saw Dr. Vicki Raab on April 4 for his persistent vertigo-related dizziness. She noted his complaint of dizziness when driving in stop-and-go traffic. She believed that his symptoms were related to a possible inner-ear concussion from a fall in January and recommended that he continue to take Dramamine.³

Calandriello further testified that, due to his shoulder pain, he took a Percocet pill at 11:30 p.m. on April 14 and another one at 3:00 a.m. on April 15. At 6:00 a.m. he commented to his wife that his shoulder was killing him, and she suggested that he go to the emergency room of Riverview Hospital. He declined because this was a Friday before the District's Easter vacation, and such an absence could be an issue. He never told his wife he was going to the hospital. Nor did he instruct his wife to call the District's substitute service. He took another Percocet before he left for school at 7:10 a.m.

Calandriello followed his usual routine that day of exiting the Garden State Parkway and cutting through Union where he would stop daily at a 7 Eleven. His routine was to buy newspapers there as well as sometimes a drink and sometimes a magazine. He recalled that, on April 15, between 8:00 and 8:15 a.m., he parked his car; entered the 7 Eleven; picked up The Daily News and The New York Post; and picked up four magazines by the magazine rack. The magazines were Playboy, Sports Illustrated, People Magazine and Rolling Stone Magazine. He started feeling dizzy and wobbly and dropped the magazines. He picked up the magazines and proceeded to the back of the store to get something to drink and again dropped the magazines. He again picked them up and stuck them between the two newspapers and did not procure a drink. Calandriello then waited in line at the cash register. As he was waiting, he saw Al-Fwaier walk outside the store before it was his turn at the register. He remembered talking to the person at the register about the National Basketball Association playoffs. He put the newspapers with the four magazines between but not inside them on the counter and gave the cashier a $20 bill. He did not remember how much change he was given. He picked up the papers, put the money in his pocket and said to the cashier, "have a great weekend, take care" as he exited the store.

According to Calandriello, he then walked to his car, opened the door, and felt a slap on his sore left shoulder by Al-Fwaier causing him pain. Calandriello said, "don't do that again," Al-Fwaier said, "you didn't pay for the magazines" and Calandriello responded with, "what are you talking about." Contrary to Al-Fwaier's testimony, Calandriello denied that he had the magazines stuffed in his jacket, but rather they were with the newspapers. Calandriello testified that, after Al-Fwaier said he had not paid for the magazines, he said, "I didn't?" and added, "well, let's pay for the magazines," meaning, "I'll give you the money for the magazines." Calandriello wanted to clear up what, in his view, was a misunderstanding. Al-Fwaier then became nasty saying "mother fucker, give me the magazines, I called the police, I want them right now." Calandriello said, "here's the magazines." Al-Fwaier again put his hand on Calandriello's shoulder and started pulling him while saying, "you're coming inside." He walked into the store on his own. When in the store, Calandriello gave Al-Fwaier $40, which he took. Al-Fwaier ordered him to sit behind the counter. His four magazines were no longer in view. He then observed Al-Fwaier go to the magazine rack, pick up some other magazines, put them on the counter, and hit them with the price gun. When Calandriello said, "look, I gotta make a phone call," Al-Fwaier replied, "no, you're not going to make any phone calls, the police are on their way. Just sit there and shut up." Calandriello testified that he had his cell phone in his car.

A police officer arrived around 8:15 a.m. and would not listen to Calandriello's side of the story. He took him outside and handcuffed him. Calandriello was in the back of the police vehicle for about fifteen minutes. He told the officer several times that he needed to call work but was told, "we can't let you do that." He was transported to the Union Police headquarters where he was arrested. He was not permitted to leave until about 10:15 a.m. Two to three requests to make a phone call were denied.

Al-Fwaier testified that he subsequently agreed in a discussion with Calandriello and his lawyer at municipal court that he would dismiss the complaint against Calandriello if he paid the 7 Eleven owner the equivalent of $70 times four times a month for six months. Al-Fwaier signed a letter on July 8, 2011, to the Union Township Municipal Court prepared by Calandriello's attorney. It said, "I, Habes Al-Fwaier, on behalf of Twfik Thabata, 7 Eleven and myself wish to have the charges against Wayne Calandriello dismissed. This was part of a larger civil dispute between us and has been resolved. We do not wish to pursue criminal charges and want the charges against Wayne Calandriello dismissed." (P-28.)

The Union Township Municipal Court dismissed the charge of shoplifting (N.J.S.A. 2C:20-11B(1)) against Calandriello on July 14, 2011. (R-11.) Calandriello denied that he paid Al-Fwaier money to cause him to dismiss the charges. He considered this to be a civil settlement that implicated Al-Fwaier having put his hands on him and getting physical with him. He was unaware of any formula for determining the amount of civil settlement.

Calandriello denied shoplifting from the store on April 15 or at any other time. He had had no intention of walking out of the 7 Eleven on April 15 with any items for which he had not paid.

Columbia High School has a written procedure for the reporting of staff absences. (P-11.) It contracts with an outside substitute service. In the event of an unanticipated absence, a teacher is to call the substitute service no later than 6:30 a.m. giving one's name, school, department, reason, and length of absence. After 6:30 a.m. he or she must call the main office at a designated number, which is that of School secretary Joan Foote. She keeps the attendance for staff members and directs substitutes as they come into the main office. When Foote reports at 7:00 a.m., she checks the fax machine for an attendance sheet from the substitute service as well as her voice mail and e-mail. The staff member must also call the substitute service even after 6:30 a.m.

On April 15, Foote and then Vice Principal Janice McGowan were notified by the security staff around 9:00 a.m. that Calandriello's swimming class at the Columbia High School pool was unattended, thereby creating a potentially dangerous situation. The students were directed back to the locker rooms. Calandriello was due at school at 8:15 a.m. to cover an 8:25 a.m. swimming class. Students can only access the pool deck when a staff member opens otherwise-locked locker room doors. The doors this day were left open, not by Calandriello, but by the neglect of a custodian who had checked the pool earlier that morning and by a night school instructor, neither of whom had secured the doors as required.

Both Principal Lilly and Supervisor LoBianco testified as to their extreme student safety concern due to the unanticipated absence of Calandriello on the morning of April 15, because students, some of whom were non-swimmers, were present unsupervised on the deck of the swimming pool. As a swimming teacher, Calandriello's duties are to supervise the space and maintain security, safety, and cleanliness. It is undisputed that students do not have access from the locker rooms to the pool unless someone with an access card opens the doors from the inside. The pool area is under video camera surveillance at all times. The video of April 14 and 15 showed that the teacher of the adult swim class the night before had failed to secure the doors. The video also showed that the custodian who checked the PH level of the water on the morning of April 15 had likewise failed to secure the doors as required. Had either person secured the doors as they were supposed to, students would not have had access to the pool deck in Calandriello's absence.

The fax from the substitute service for April 15 did not indicate that Calandriello had called it to report an absence. (P-13.) Nor had Foote received a notification from Calandriello of his absence as of 9:00 a.m. Foote consulted with McGowan and tried to locate teachers to cover Calandriello's classes until she could ascertain when he would be in. Foote was unsuccessful in her attempts to contact Calandriello on his home and cell phones. McGowan also unsuccessfully called his two numbers and left messages for him. McGowan also e-mailed the substitute service to inquire whether it had heard from Calandriello and received a response that it had not heard from him. (P-14 and P-15.) Foote testified that Calandriello called her around 10:00 a.m. on April 15 and told her that he had been at the hospital and would not be in. He said nothing else.

Calandriello testified that, as soon as he was returned to his car at the 7 Eleven after being released by the police, he called the main school telephone number where he left a message for Foote, but did not speak with her, advising only that he would not be able to make it in for the rest of the day at work and would need a substitute. He also claimed that, at 10:15, there were no messages on his cell phone, but one from McGowan appeared after one-half hour. When he arrived home, there were no messages on his home phone from anyone from the school.

On April 15 Maplewood Detective Sergeant James Deval, who is the police liaison to the District, telephoned Principal Lilly between 10:00 and 11:00 a.m. to report a call he had received from the Union Township Police Department. He conveyed to Lilly that one of her teachers, Calandriello, had been arrested that day for allegedly shoplifting approximately $67 worth of magazines at a 7 Eleven store in Union Township. He had no personal knowledge as to what had occurred.

The District was on spring break for the week following April 15. Foote testified that, on Monday April 25, Calandriello came to her desk and said, "I am sorry about the 15th. I take full responsibility. I had taken some medication, and I thought that my wife had called to report my absence." Foote notified Calandriello's supervisor Judy LoBianco by e-mail that he had come to see her that morning and "said he took full responsibility for not calling for a sub on Friday April 15, 2011. He was taking medication for pain in his shoulder that knocked him out and he asked his wife to call the sub line which he thought she had done." (P-20.) Unlike April 15, the substitute service records reflect that Calandriello had called it or the main office in accordance with the required practice approximately twenty-one other times. (P-21.)

McGowan testified, in addition to Foote, that Calandriello approached her on April 25 after the spring break. He apologized for not returning her phone call on April 15. He told her that he had a shoulder injury and had taken prescribed Percocet on Thursday evening and had asked his wife to call in on Friday morning before 6:30 a.m. to say he would not be in. They discussed the concern that students were in the pool area without a teacher, to which he responded that students had always been told not to enter the pool deck without a teacher. Calandriello did not inform McGowan that he had been arrested on the morning of April 15. McGowan memorialized this April 25 conversation in an e-mail to LoBianco that day. (P-23.)

Calandriello also met with Supervisor LoBianco on the morning of April 25 regarding his April 15 absence. LoBianco testified that he told her that he was in shoulder pain over an on-going rotator cuff injury and went to the emergency room of Riverview Medical Center around 2:30 in the morning of Friday April 15. He explained that he was given Percocet for pain and that he takes full responsibility for not calling the sub service, but thought he had called from his cell phone at some point in the morning. He advised LoBianco that he had also spoken with McGowan and Foote that morning. LoBianco described Calandriello as visibly sweating and repeatedly apologizing during their meeting. (P-22.) He did not mention his April 15 arrest during this conversation.

Calandriello testified as to his discussions with staff on April 25 after the Easter vacation. At around 8:05 a.m. he kneeled down by Foote's desk in the main office and said, "I'm sorry what happened on Friday. I'll take full responsibility." She responded that it was a situation where no one knew where he was and they thought something had happened to him. He then went to McGowan's office and told her he had gotten her message and was sorry that he had not gotten back to her and would take full responsibility. She replied that they had been concerned about him and about the children on the pool deck. He answered that the children should not have been on the pool deck. Calandriello denied that he told either Foote or McGowan that he had gone to an emergency room or had instructed his wife to call and say such that morning. Calandriello does not permit students on the pool deck until he uses his electronic-locking-system swipe card on the door from the male locker room. He also spoke with LoBianco that day. She said they had been concerned about his health and his whereabouts on April 15. He told her he had an issue with his shoulder and had taken some Percocet. He also told LoBianco that his wife said he should go to the emergency room on April 15, but he did not tell LoBianco that he had actually gone. He denied that he told LoBianco that he had instructed his wife to call the substitute service on April 15. During these conversations on April 25, no one mentioned knowledge of his arrest.

Calandriello participated in an April 26 meeting with Lilly, Assistant Superintendent for Administration James Memoli, LoBianco, and Union Representative Chandler Dennis. Lilly expressed concerns over Calandriello failing to properly report his absence on April 15 and the concern about students being unsupervised on the pool deck as a result of Calandriello's absence. Calandriello remained silent during this meeting and did not mention that he had been arrested on April 15. At the end of this meeting Memoli provided Calandriello with a letter signed by Superintendent Brian Osborne suspending him pending the investigation related to his April 15 absence. (P-25.) On April 29, 2011, Calandriello provided a handwritten memorandum to Superintendent Osborne indicating, "I was arrested on April 15, 2011. The charge was 2C:20-11B (1) Disorderly Persons Offense."

The District bears the burden of proving the charges upon which it relied by a preponderance of the competent, relevant and credible evidence. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-21; N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962); In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982); In re Garcia, 1970 S.L.D. 335. The evidence must be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to a given conclusion. Bornstein v. Metro. Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263 (1958). Therefore, the tribunal must "decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, and according to the reasonable probability of truth." Jackson v. Del., L. and W. R.R., 111 N.J.L. 487, 490 (E. & A. 1933). For reasonable probability to exist, the evidence must be such as to "generate belief that the tendered hypothesis is in all human likelihood the fact." Loew v. Union Beach, 56 N.J. Super. 93, 104 (App. Div. 1959). Preponderance may also be described as the greater weight of credible evidence in the case, not necessarily dependent on the number of witnesses, but having the greater convincing power. State v. Lewis, 67 N.J. 47 (1975).

For testimony to be believed, it must not only come from the mouth of a credible witness, but it also has to be credible in itself. It must elicit evidence that is from such common experience and observation that it can be approved as proper under the circumstances. See Spagnuolo v. Bonnet, 60 N.J. 546 (1974); Gallo v. Gallo, 66 N.J. Super. 1 (App. Div. 1961). A credibility determination requires an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency and the manner in which it "hangs together" with the other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963).

Calandriello's recitation of what occurred at the 7 Eleven on April 15, 2011, raises concern about his candor even if his actions that day were influenced or confused by the effect of the prescription drugs he was taking for pain and vertigo. However, the credibility of the only witness presented by the District in support of the charge of shoplifting was so profoundly deficient that it is impossible to make findings supported by his testimony. He described Calandriello as a nice and good person, a type of person he was proud to see. This assessment, however, is totally inconsistent with his claim that he watched Calandriello shoplift or had a suspicion that he was shoplifting on a weekly basis for six months without intervention. Al-Fwaier testified that he had not confronted Calandriello earlier because he wanted to make sure Calandriello was doing this. If there were a suspicion of improper conduct on a weekly basis over six months, there would be no better way of proving it than to use the six or seven video cameras that cover every corner of the store. Astonishingly, Al-Fwaier, although the store manager, did not bother to access the room where the recordings were kept, nor did he make sure the cameras were operational. Although the criminal charge was never adjudicated, a negative inference can be made regarding the lack of video support for Al-Fwaier's charge when the video capabilities were present in the store and Al-Fwaier knew or at least had a suspicion before April 6 that Calandriello had been shoplifting. It is inconceivable that Al-Fwaier would have tolerated such conduct for such an extended period of time and in view of the alleged repetitiveness. Another glaring inconsistency with his lengthy failure to take action was his claim that the store owner had instructed him to report shoplifting to the police any time he saw shoplifting. There was neither an adjudication nor a plea to the shoplifting charge that might have supported the District's related charge. Al-Fwaier's testimony was irrational and lacked any semblance of internal consistency. The District did not produce the 7 Eleven cashier to support Al-Fwaier's testimony. It is not inconceivable that Calandriello, in a medication-diminished state of mind and in a rush to get to work would purchase magazines and the newspapers and not think about the fact that he received change from a twenty-dollar bill. Again, the omnipresent video cameras, the contents of which no one produced, would have been helpful to determine whether magazines were visible among the newspapers when Calandriello allegedly placed them on the cashier's counter. There was no proof that the magazines Al-Fwaier tendered to the police were the ones that Calandriello actually had picked from the magazine rack or, as Calandriello contended, were instead ones that Al-Fwaier had picked from the rack after the fact and before the police arrived.

In short, Al-Fwaier's testimony cannot in any way be credited. As the burden of proof rests with the District, I CANNOT FIND that Calandriello committed a shoplifting offense on April 6, 2011.⁴ If the evidence were in equipoise, and there is, as here, no other persuasive evidence, the question in issue must go against the party who has the burden of persuasion. See In re Miller, EDU 5812-01, Final Decision (April 8, 2002), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>, where the Commissioner stated:

. . . the Commissioner is cognizant of the well-established standard that, in tenure matters, the charging entity bears the burden of proving, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, respondent's guilt on the charges. It is, likewise, clear that this burden is not satisfied where the evidence is in equipoise or is such as to raise legitimate doubt as to the existence of essential facts.

Calandriello has been charged with a failure to report for duty. There is no dispute that he was arrested in Union around 8:15 a.m. on April 15, 2011, while on his way to work, or that he did not report to the School after his release that morning. I FIND that Calandriello failed to report for duty on April 15, 2011, and failed to advise of his absence before the start of classes.

Calandriello has also been charged with failure to notify the substitute service of his absence. District policy requires a staff member to report an unanticipated absence to an outside substitute service no later than 6:30 a.m. After 6:30 a.m., one is to call the main office number of Joan Foote and the substitute service as well. (P-11.) I FIND that Calandriello embarked on his trip to school after 6:30 a.m. only to be impeded by his detention in Union later that morning. Under such circumstances his primary obligation was to call Foote's number and secondarily that of the substitute service as well. Although Calandriello testified that he called Foote after his release by the police and left a message for her (Foote testified that they actually spoke to each other), he never disputed that he did not also call the substitute service as required. Information from the substitute service supported the claim that Calandriello never contacted it on April 15. Accordingly, I FIND that Calandriello did fail to notify the substitute service in violation of District policy.

With regard to Calandriello's interaction with School personnel related to his April 15 arrest, the testimony of the District's witnesses was more credible than that of Calandriello. He shared with none of them that the true reason for his absence was his arrest in Union on his way to School. Foote, McGowan, and LoBianco all testified forthrightly, without apparent animus and with recollections reinforced by timely written memorializations. None had any motive to fabricate a story. Each of them tempered their testimony. McGowan has retired from the District. LoBianco was very supportive of Calandriello in all of her yearly evaluations.

There is no doubt that Calandriello was shocked, terrified, and embarrassed over his detention at the 7 Eleven. He, however, had an imperative obligation to immediately contact the School when it became apparent that he would not be present to cover his morning classes. Unpersuasive is Calandriello's claim that he was prevented by store personnel from accessing his cell phone in his car after being confronted in the parking lot and after he accompanied Al-Fwaier back into the store. He was not under arrest at that time. The police had not yet arrived to restrict his movements. It is not plausible, as he claimed, that the store personnel could have physically restrained him from accessing his phone and calling the School. I FIND that Calandriello was able but failed to call the School to report his absence before the commencement of classes.

I FIND, as Foote testified, that Calandriello called her around 10:00 a.m. on April 15 and told her nothing else other than that he had been in the hospital and would not be in. He was dishonest regarding the reason he gave for the absence. I do not credit Calandriello's claim that he never spoke to Foote that day, but instead called and left a message on her answering machine. I FIND that Calandriello compounded his dishonesty with School personnel when he approached Foote on April 25, the next school day after a vacation week, and told her as follows: he took full responsibility for the failure to timely report his April 15 absence but had been taking medication for a pain in his shoulder that knocked him out; and he had asked his wife to call the substitute service, which he thought that she had done. There is no reason to doubt that Calandriello was suffering from shoulder pain around April 15 or even that he was on strong medication at the time. That medical situation, as well as the testimony that no one on Calandriello's behalf had called the substitute service on April 15, is irrelevant because Calandriello is not now contending that someone had called or had been asked to call the substitute service, or that he was absent because of his physical condition. He instead has denied that he ever made that statement. Also, there is no question but that the true and sole reason for his absence was his arrest that day and that his failure to report for duty after his release was not due to his medical condition. I additionally FIND that Calandriello was dishonest with McGowan on April 25 when he told her that he thought his wife had called the substitute service before 6:30 a.m. on April 15 to say he would not be in because of medication he had taken. Again, that was not the reason for his April 15 absence. I FIND, again, that Calandriello was dishonest with LoBianco when he volunteered to her that he was absent on April 15 due to an evening visit to a hospital because of his shoulder injury and medication he had taken, and that he thought he had called the substitute service from his cell phone that morning.

Charge Twelve

The District alleges that Calandriello engaged in unbecoming conduct by not disclosing in his August 30, 2001, employment application or during his employment interview that he had been removed from his position with the Monmouth County Department of Corrections/Youth Services (Youth Detention Center) or that he had appealed that decision to the Merit System Board (now known as the Civil Service Commission).

As a result of a "Google" search of Calandriello in 2011, District personnel learned of a Final Administration Action of the New Jersey Merit System Board dated October 24, 2003, upholding the June 1, 2000, removal of Calandriello as a physical education instructor at the Youth Detention Center because of excessive lateness and absenteeism. (P-29.) In or about August 2001, Calandriello applied for a K-12 physical education and health position with the District. He submitted an application and resume. (P-6.) On August 30, 2001, he signed a "Statement of Assurances." (P-6.) It provided as follows:

By my signature below, I certify that all information supplied to the South Orange/Maplewood School District in support of my application for employment is true and accurate as stated. This includes information contained in my application, resume, curriculum vitae, employment folder, and oral statements I made to all District employees/representatives. I understand that if subsequent investigation reveals that I provided any false information, the District may refuse to hire me, may rescind any pending offer, or may terminate my employment, as it deems appropriate.

Under the heading "Teacher Experience," Calandriello listed as prior school employments, grade and subject, dates of service and length of service as follows:

Bradley Beach Elementary K-8 PE + Health- 2/99-6/00 1½ Years

Monmouth Cty. Youth Detention Center Juveniles Ages 8-18- 5/94-5/00 6 Years

In response to the question, "Why do you wish to change your present position?" Calandriello wrote on the application, "(Was Laid off)." Calandriello testified without contradiction that his reference to being laid off was with regard to his employment with the Bradley Beach Elementary School. He also listed on the application as references, Phillip Sidotti, Principal for the Middlesex Public Schools; James Jones Jr., Assistant Superintendent at the Youth Detention Center; and Ines Csulak, Recreation Director in Holmdel. Calandriello's accompanying curriculum vitae also listed Bradley Beach Elementary School full-time from February 1999 to June 2000 and the Youth Detention Center part-time from May 1994 to May 2000. Calandriello's application packet also contained a June 4, 2001, letter of recommendation from James L. Jones, Assistant Superintendent, Monmouth County Youth Detention Center which provided as follows:

Wayne Calandriello was the Recreation Supervisor under my supervision for several years. He performed his duties in an excellent manner, was responsive to the needs of young folk under his care, and conducted programs in accordance with the policies and procedures of this facility. If I can be of any further assistance, I can be contacted at the Monmouth County Youth Detention Center.

The District's Assistant Superintendent James Memoli testified regarding the application and interview process for Calandriello in 2001. He indicated that the consideration of Calandriello's application was made by Daniel Brundage, a former supervisor of physical education, who did not testify in this proceeding. The application packet (P-6) contains a "Transmittal Sheet" signed by Brundage recommending Calandriello's hire. The "Transmittal Sheet" also reflects that Brundage checked the references from Csulak, Sidotti, and Jones. Although neither Memoli nor Osborne would concede that Brundage telephoned the references, they were not in a position to deny that he had done so. The "Transmittal Sheet" has telephone numbers for all three references even though Csulak had not submitted a letter. Brundage must have looked up these numbers and called them. I FIND that Brundage called the listed references including Jones. Memoli acknowledged that there was no question on the employment application asking whether Calandriello was party to any employment-related litigation, or that such a question was asked by Brundage during the interview. There is also no such question on the "Statement of Assurances."

Based on the testimony and the application-related documents, I FIND that, although Calandriello did not disclose on his application or at his interview that there was a pending administrative appeal related to his June 1, 2000, removal from his part-time job at the Youth Detention Center, he was never asked to make a disclosure of such nature in either instance. There is no evidence that he made any falsification during this process. Indeed, he accurately informed that he had been laid off from his current (or last) employment, which was the Bradley Beach Elementary School rather than the Youth Detention Center. According to the Merit System Board decision, the Youth Detention employment ended June 1, 2000, whereas the Bradley Beach employment would have ended later in June upon the completion of the 1999-2000 school year. Additionally, the "Statement of Assurances" requires only that the information on the application and employment folder be accurate. I FIND that the information was accurate. Even Jones's letter of recommendation that accompanied Calandriello's application asserting that Calandriello performed his duties in an excellent manner does not seem inconsistent with a dissatisfaction that was limited to his attendance. Had Calandriello been asked for the reason for the termination of all prior employments or whether any of the terminations had not been voluntary, it would have been incumbent on him to have explained his status with the Youth Detention Center. He, however, was asked no such questions.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

The District has brought tenure charges against Calandriello alleging conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member and other just cause. Under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, tenured teaching staff members may be dismissed for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause.

The statutory status of a tenured employee may not be lightly removed. Tenure protects teachers from arbitrary dismissal for "unfounded, flimsy or political reasons." Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 73 (1982). It is designed to aid in the establishment of “a competent and efficient school system” by affording teachers a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service. Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949).

“Unbecoming conduct” is an elastic phrase, which encompasses conduct that adversely affects the morale or efficiency of a governmental unit or that has a tendency to destroy public respect in the delivery of governmental services. Karins v. City of Atl. City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998); see also In re Emmons, 63 N.J. Super. 136, 140 (App. Div. 1960). It is sufficient that the complained-of conduct and its attending circumstances “be such as to offend publicly accepted standards of decency.” Karins, supra, 152 N.J. at 555 (quoting In re Zeber, 156 A.2d 821, 825 (1959)). Such misconduct need not necessarily “be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct.” Hartmann v. Police Dep’t of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 32, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (quoting Asbury Park v. Dep’t of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)). Unbecoming conduct is particularly troubling in public education where teachers should set the good example and be a role model rather than engage in activity, which is inimical to the public interest and which is designed to impede the orderly process of public education. In re Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 312, 321. The Commissioner in Sammons stressed that teachers are professional employees “to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of tens of thousands of school children with the hope that this trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of each individual child. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment.” Ibid.

In light of the above findings I CONCLUDE that Calandriello engaged in conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member by failing to appropriately supervise his students during study hall on January 7, 2010, leading to a misuse of instructional time and the use of forbidden electronic devices by students. However, the nature of the interaction between the two teasing students was not of such character as to warrant any additional adverse conclusions regarding the charges of failure to take any action in response to a fight and failure to report a student fight incident. The District’s previous evaluation and weighing of the seriousness of Calandriello's January 7, 2010, conduct resulted in the substantially tempered discipline of a written reprimand. This conduct, even with the perspective of two-years' hindsight, is no more egregious now and should be treated no differently except to the extent of a determination of progressive discipline.

Calandriello, and any staff member of a District, is obligated to be honest in all interactions with District personnel. It was undoubtedly embarrassing for Calandriello to share the reason for his absence on April 15 regardless of whether or not he had actually committed the offense with which he was charged. Nevertheless, there was no justification for a lack of candor with three District personnel on four separate occasions including on the day of the arrest. At the time of his call on the morning of April 15, he appropriately notified Foote as the primary post-6:30 a.m. contact rather than the substitute service in accordance with District policy. Yet, I CONCLUDE that the false information he gave to Foote that day as well as the stories he gave to McGowan, LoBianco, and Foote on April 25 constitute conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. He misrepresented the reason for his April 15, 2011, absence and also misrepresented his efforts to contact the substitution service. It is of no moment that Calandriello had thirty days to report his arrest to the Administration in that it provides no excuse for dishonesty. Such conduct subverts a teaching staff's responsibility to be a role model for students.

Based on the above finding that Calandriello had an opportunity to give timely notice that he would be absent on April 15 but failed to do so, I also CONCLUDE that Calandriello engaged in conducting unbecoming a teaching staff member. This constituted a failure to report to duty. One is derelict in his duty when he fails to take steps to minimize the chance that a class be uncovered, especially if the safety of students is imperiled. In this particular situation, Calandriello's responsibility to supervise students—some of whom were non-swimmers in a pool area—was great. Had he contacted Foote in a timely manner, emergency coverage could have been secured so that no students were left unattended on the pool deck. Despite the potential for an unfortunate accident at the pool that morning, the implications of Calandriello's misconduct, however, must be weighed against the undisputed fact that no student would have had access to the pool deck and been put in danger if the custodian had fulfilled his responsibility to secure the pool access doors after he treated the pool that morning and if the night school teacher had similarly fulfilled his or her duty to have secured the doors before leaving the previous night.

Based on the above findings, I CONCLUDE that the District has not sustained its burden of proving misconduct arising out of the allegation that Calandriello engaged in shoplifting on April 15, 2011.

Finally, I CONCLUDE that the District has not sustained its burden of proving misconduct by Calandriello for failing to disclose his dismissal at the Youth Detention Center, an earlier employment. He accurately disclosed all information requested on his employment application with the District; he was never directed to make disclosures as to the reason for departing each and all past employments; and he did not deviously deny the District the opportunity to access representatives of the Youth Detention Center, as, indeed, the District's Brundage did reach out for a Youth Detention Center administrator.

With respect to the appropriate penalty, factors to be taken into account in making a penalty determination include the nature and circumstances of the incidents or charges, the teacher's prior record and present attitude, the effect of such conduct on the maintenance of discipline among the students and staff, and the likelihood of such behavior recurring. See In re Young, EDU 9771-09, Final Decision (October 15, 2010), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>; In re Suitt-Green, EDU 7071-96, Final Decision (October 14, 1997), aff'd, State Bd. of Educ. (February 4, 1998), <<http://www.state.nj.us/education/legal/index.html>>. Some of the charges against Calandriello have been affirmed and some have not. Although the totality of Calandriello's conduct certainly does not leave him blameless, it does not warrant the loss of his tenure. His 2010 misconduct resulted in a written reprimand, a penalty appropriate under the circumstances. His acts of misrepresentation on April 15 and April 25, although understandable in light of the embarrassing nature of the alleged arrest, were nonetheless inexcusable. The failure to timely report his absence from school on April 15, 2011, did, indeed, imperil the safety of students on the pool deck because it resulted in a temporary lack of supervisory coverage. This failing is, however, tempered by the acknowledgment that student access to the unsupervised pool that day was due not to Calandriello's absence but to the failure of others responsible for securing the doors. Aside from the single 2010 written reprimand, Calandriello has been evaluated as proficient in each of his ten years of service to the District. In consideration of all of the factors relative to a penalty, I CONCLUDE that the imposition of a 120-day suspension is the appropriate penalty.

ORDER

I ORDER that certain tenure charges against Wayne Calandriello be AFFIRMED and that certain tenure charges be DISMISSED consistent with the above conclusions.

I further ORDER that Calandriello shall forfeit all salary and benefits that otherwise would have been accrued during the first 120 days of his suspension.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. YOU AND ME PRESCHOOL,	:
PETITIONER,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
V.	:	DECISION ON MOTION
NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT	:
OF EDUCATION, DIVISION OF	:
ADMINISTRATION AND FINANCE,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The petitioning preschool for children with disabilities challenges respondent's rescission of its approval to operate and seeks a stay of the rescission pending adjudication of the matter. A review of the parties' motion papers reveals the following.

N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.3(c)(1) requires that within two years of approval of a private school for students with disabilities, the school must show that it has reached a minimum level of enrollment. N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.3(c)(1)(iii) sets that minimum average daily enrollment (ADE) at 16 students for schools which were approved before the 2004-2005 school year – as was the case with petitioner.

By letter dated December 18, 2009, respondent notified petitioner that it had not been maintaining the required number of students. That letter is marked as Exhibit A to the Certification of Claudia Sommerer in petitioner's motion papers, and contains an advisement to petitioner that it "must attain an ADE of 16 public school placement students by the end of the 2011-2012 school year or the school's approval status will be rescinded." Another letter from respondent, dated November 19, 2010, warned petitioner that it still had not reached the minimum ADE, and its approval would be rescinded if it failed to do so by the end of the 2011-2012 school year. See, Exhibit B to the Certification of Claudia Sommerer.

In October of 2011, petitioner submitted to respondent a request for a waiver of the attendance requirement. See, Exhibit C to the Certification of Claudia Sommerer. By letter dated November 22, 2011, respondent denied the request (see Exhibit D to the Certification of Claudia Sommerer) and by letter dated January 13, 2012, respondent again reminded petitioner of the June 30, 2012 deadline for achieving the minimum required ADE. See, Exhibit E to the Certification of Claudia Sommerer. Petitioner submitted another request for a waiver on or about June 11, 2012 (see, Exhibit G to the Certification of Claudia Sommerer) which was denied by the Commissioner of Education on June 29, 2012. See, Exhibit H to the Certification of Claudia Sommerer.

Subsequent to the June 29, 2012 denial of petitioner's waiver request, respondent wrote to petitioner advising that its approval as a private school for students with disabilities was rescinded, effective July 1, 2012. See, letter dated July 9, 2012 from Assistant Commissioner David F. Corso to Claudia Sommerer, marked as Exhibit I to the Certification of Claudia Sommerer. On or about July 25, 2012, petitioner appealed to the Superior Court, Appellate Division, both the Commissioner's decision denying its waiver request and the July 9, 2012 rescission of petitioner's approval to operate as a private school for students with disabilities. A motion seeking stays of the implementation of both of the appealed actions was filed with the Commissioner on July 27, 2012.

It would appear that today, after consideration of petitioner's motion, respondent has given its consent to a stay of its decision to rescind petitioner's approval to operate as a private school for students with disabilities. That consent is evidenced in a letter of even date from respondent's counsel. In light of same, the Commissioner grants petitioner's motion for a stay of the rescission. Further, the granting of said motion makes it unnecessary to address petitioner's request for a stay of the above-referenced denial of a waiver from the enrollment requirements set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:23A-18.3(c)(1)(iii).

Accordingly, petitioner's motion is granted, and implementation of respondent's July 9, 2012 rescission of petitioner's approval to operate is stayed pending adjudication of the underlying merits of same.

APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF

The record of this emergent matter – which included a digital recording of the hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on July 11, 2012 – along with the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioners have failed to satisfy the requirements necessary for the granting of emergent relief as set forth in Crowe v DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982); most notably, petitioners have failed to demonstrate irreparable harm or the likelihood of prevailing on the merits of their claim.

Accordingly, the recommended order of the OAL denying petitioners' application is hereby adopted. This case shall proceed at the OAL for such further proceedings as may be required to bring it to conclusion.

Decided: July 11, 2012

BEFORE KIMBERLY A. MOSS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner challenges the City of Rahway Board of Education's (Board) decision to move their children from Roosevelt Elementary School to Cleveland Elementary School at the start of the 2012-2013 school year as part of the Board's decision to redistrict students. On June 25, 2012, petitioner filed a Motion for Emergent Relief allowing their children to remain at Roosevelt School. In support of the motion, petitioner submitted a verified petition and letters. Oral argument on the motion was scheduled for July 5, 2012. Respondent requested an adjournment to which petitioner consented. Respondents submitted a brief and certification on July 10, 2012. Petitioner submitted a letter from Central Jersey Behavioral Health, LLC on July 10, 2012. The motion was as held on July 11, 2012. An Order was rendered by the undersigned on July 11, 2012, which is attached hereto for reference.

I FIND the following to be the FACTS of this matter.

Starting on or about 1976 and continuing through 2005 the Board voluntarily bussed students from their neighborhoods to more distant schools to achieve racial diversity. In 2005 regulations no longer required the Board to maintain a certain balance of racial groups within a school. On July 26, 2005, the Board adopted a redistricting plan which sought to reach three objectives (1) determine school assignments based on address, rather than race, (2) to create attendance areas that are closer to each elementary school and to reduce bussing of elementary students.

The bussing of a number of students living in the Cleveland School neighborhood to Roosevelt School continued after July 26, 2005, because Cleveland School did not have space to accommodate the additional students. Petitioner's children were among the children in the Cleveland School neighborhood that were bussed to Roosevelt School.

On June 29, 2009, the Board approved a proposed thirty-four million capital project proposal. On September 29, 2009, a referendum was approved by the citizens of Rahway regarding the thirty-four million dollar capital project proposal. Cleveland School has been renovated to accommodate a greater number of students due to the capital project proposal. R.S. and R.L. attended Roosevelt School through the 2011-

2012 school year. R.L. and R.S. would be enrolled in Cleveland School for the 2012-2013 school year. The elimination of bussing would save the Board between $130,000 and $180,000.

The Board implemented a district wide program of sixth grade realignment. It determined that sixth grade students experience a decline in standardized test scores and an increase in disciplinary infractions when students are moved to a middle school where they are exposed to older peers, intensified expectations and greater responsibility. The sixth grade students in Rahway will attend their respective elementary school instead of going to middle school. Twenty-four fifth graders who were bussed to Roosevelt School but were transferred to Cleveland School will complete the sixth grade at Cleveland School.

The Rahway school district has 3890 students. Of those students forty-two percent are Black, thirty-four percent are Hispanic, nineteen percent are White and five percent are other including Asian, Native American and Multicultural. The Districts overall demographics show that the racial and ethnic makeup of each school is reasonably reflective of the diverse population living within the area.

During the 2011-2012 school year, Roosevelt School's racial composition was nineteen percent White, forty-seven percent Black, twenty-nine percent Hispanic and five percent other. It is anticipated that Roosevelt School's racial composition for the 2012-2013 school year will be approximately twenty-two percent White, thirty-eight percent Black, thirty-two percent Hispanic and 6.4 percent other. During the 2011-2012 school year, the Cleveland School student body was seven percent White, forty-eight percent Black, forty-one percent Hispanic and four percent other. It is anticipated that Cleveland School's racial composition for the 2012-2013 school year will be approximately seven percent White, fifty-five percent Black, thirty six percent Hispanic and four percent other. Madison Elementary School has the highest percent of White students, thirty-three percent. The majority of the students at Madison School are minority students. There is no elementary school in Rahway that has a racial composition that is more than thirty-three percent white.

Petitioner alleges that the redistricting plan violates N.J.A.C. 6A:7-1.7, provisions for equality in school and classroom practices. Petitioner has not provided documentation that the purpose of the redistricting plan was to segregate students based on race. Petitioner has provided no documentation that minority students are underrepresented in all classes or programs including gifted and talented, accelerated and advanced classes. Petitioner has provided no documentation to substantiate her claim that Rahway does not include a multicultural curriculum in its instructions and methods and that the students understand the basic tenant of multiculturalism. Petitioner has not provided documentation that African American history as well as the history of other cultures is not infused in the curriculum and taught as part of the history of the United States.

Petitioner submitted a letter from Roy Hirschfeld of Central Jersey Behavioral Health, LLC stating that the children were anxious about losing their peer relationships and changing to a new school. It was his impression that it would be detrimental to change their aschool environment.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Petitioner did not meet the criteria of Crowe v. DeGioia for emergent relief. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) sets forth the standards governing motions for emergent relief. The regulation instructs in salient part:

A motion for a stay or emergent relief shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the following standards be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982):

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
3. The petitioner has the likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and

4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

Petitioner has the burden of establishing each of the above requirements in order to warrant relief in his favor.

It is well settled that relief should not be granted except "when necessary to prevent irreparable harm." Crowe, supra 90 N.J. at 132. In this regard, harm is generally considered irreparable if it cannot be adequately redressed by monetary damages. Id. at 132-33. In other words, it has been described as "substantial injury to a material degree coupled with the inadequacy of money damages." Judice's Sunshine Pontiac, Inc. v. General Motors Corp., 418 F. Supp. 1212, 1218 (D.N.J. 1976) (citation omitted). See New Jersey Dep't of Environmental Protection v. Circle Carting, Inc., 2004 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 968 (April 2, 2004) (finding no irreparable harm in connection with the revocation of respondent's solid waste license in that financial loss is generally insufficient to demonstrate this requirement). The moving party bears the burden of proving irreparable harm. More than a risk of irreparable harm must be demonstrated. Continental Group, Inc. v. Amoco Chemicals Corp., 614 F. 2d 351, 359 (D.N.J. 1980). The requisite for injunctive relief requires a "clear showing of immediate irreparable injury," or a "presently existing actual threat; (an injunction) may not be used simply to eliminate a possibility of a remote future injury, or a future invasion of rights, be those rights protected by statute or by common law." Ibid. (citation omitted.)

Petitioner claims that her children will suffer irreparable harm because they will be going to a different school, Cleveland School, and that Cleveland School had a majority of minority students thereby subjecting her children to racial segregation. Petitioner has not shown that her children will suffer irreparable harm. Petitioner is requesting her children remain at Roosevelt School. Roosevelt School and Cleveland School both have a racial composition that has vastly more minority students than white students. In fact, all of the elementary schools in Rahway have more minority students than white students.

The letter petitioner submitted from Central Jersey Behavioral Health by Roy Hirschfeld stated that the children had anxiety about going to a new school and it was his IMPRESSION that it would be detrimental for them to change schools. He did not state that this was his opinion based on any degree of reasonable certainty. There is no clear showing of immediate irreparable harm.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to shoulder its burden of proving that her children will suffer irreparable harm.

Petitioner has not proved that there is a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim. The petitioner has not provided any documentation to support her claims. Actions of the Board or any administrative agency must be upheld unless it is deemed to be arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. See Shuster v. Bd. of Ed. of Montgomery Twp., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 670, 676, adopted Comm'r. 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 677. Petitioner has not provided any evidence that the decision to send students who live in the Cleveland School neighborhood to Cleveland School was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Petitioner's children were originally sent to Roosevelt School because there was not sufficient space at Cleveland School. Cleveland School can now accommodate the students in the Cleveland School neighborhood. In both Roosevelt and Cleveland schools the majority of the students are minority students. Petitioner cited Madison School in her petition. The majority of the students at Madison School are also minority students. In the Rahway school district, the vast majority of the students are Black and Hispanic.

The Board began district wide program of sixth grade realignment. The reason for the realignment was to combat the decline in standardized test scores and the increase in disciplinary infractions when sixth grade students enter the middle school. The realignment meant that the sixth grade would remain in the elementary schools. The realignment was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to shoulder its burden of proving that it has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of his claims.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet the requirements set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) warranting a stay or emergent relief. Accordingly, I ORDER that petitioner's application for such relief be and hereby is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Petitioner was notified in May 2011 that her position of Director of Curriculum was to be eliminated in a reduction in force (RIF) effective June 30, 2011. Petitioner subsequently filed an appeal in September 2011 asserting her tenure rights to reinstatement as a school principal or to one of two new administrative positions in respondent Board's school district. The Board contended that petitioner waived her tenure rights when she was offered the position of high school principal or one of two other administrative positions, but rejected them. Petitioner, however, disputed that she had received an official offer of these positions, and instead asserted that the Superintendent had questioned her tenure status and had merely asked if she would be interested in these jobs. When petitioner did not respond in the affirmative, the Board sent her a letter accepting her resignation.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner was never offered the position of high school principal because the Superintendent did not make a bona fide offer of employment that petitioner could rely upon; the District interpreted petitioner's preference for a middle or elementary school position as a rejection and never fulfilled its duty to actually offer her a position in accordance with her tenure and seniority rights; even after petitioner clarified her position by stating in writing that she would take the high school principal position if it was offered to her, the Board decided to terminate her by sending a letter accepting her resignation; waiver of tenure rights is only effective if the protected employee intended to relinquish them, and in this case petitioner clearly expressed her job preferences; but when it became clear that the Board was interpreting this as a rejection, petitioner clarified any confusion by stating that she would accept the principal position if it was offered to her. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered the Board to reinstate petitioner to the position of High School Principal or a similar position effective June 30, 2011, with back pay, seniority, and any other emoluments to which petitioner is entitled.

Upon review and consideration, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter for the reasons set forth by the ALJ.

This controversy arose as a disagreement between the parties as to whether, subsequent to the elimination of petitioner's position as Curriculum Director, she was offered a high school principalship and refused same – resulting in the forfeiture of her tenure in respondent's district. Review of the record and Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL)¹ reveals that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) carefully applied the principles of contract law to the material and relevant facts, correctly concluding that no bona fide offer had been made to petitioner. Consequently she could neither be deemed to have rejected an offer of employment nor be found to have knowingly waived her tenure rights. The ALJ ordered petitioner's reinstatement with back pay and benefits, minus mitigation.

Subsequent to the Initial Decision respondent rehired petitioner, making the controversy concerning her employment status moot. Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision regarding the remaining issue in controversy, i.e., the payment of back pay and

Nadine Tribbett (petitioner) was the subject of a Reduction in Force (RIF) and demands reinstatement as a school principal or one of two new administrative positions. The Willingboro Board of Education (Board) asserts that they have offered these positions to the petitioner and she has turned them down.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On September 27, 2011, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). On March 26, 2012, the matter was heard in the OAL (Trenton). The parties requested time to submit closing arguments. On April 11, 2012, the briefs were received and the record closed.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Some of the facts are not in dispute. The petitioner is a tenured principal in the Willingboro School District (District). She was an assistant principal in 2003, and served as principal in the Elementary and Middle schools from 2006 to 2009. In 2009, petitioner's employment was terminated as part of a RIF, and she was assigned a central administration position as Director of Curriculum. In 2010, she was hired for one year as the Director of Curriculum for Kindergarten through twelfth grade.

In June 2011, her position was subject to a RIF, and the facts are contested as to what occurred after the RIF. The Board contends that the petitioner waived her rights by not accepting two positions. The petitioner asserts that she was never offered the position, and never waived her rights.

NADINE TRIBBETT

Nadine Tribbett was a teacher in a Camden City elementary school from 1994 to 1999 (P-1). She was recruited by John Hopkins to work as an educational consultant to go to districts in need of improvement. She decided she wanted to work in one school. In 2003, she was hired to be the assistant principal at the middle school in Willingboro. After two years, she became the principal at Martin Luther King School. In 2005, she was transferred back to the middle school as the principal. She then became the principal at the Hawthorne Elementary School from 2006 to 2009. In 2009, she was appointed Director of Curriculum and Instruction for Kindergarten through fifth grade.

She served one year at this position, and was subject to a RIF. In 2010, she was hired for one year as the Director of Curriculum for Kindergarten through twelfth grade.

Dr. Hespe was the superintendent throughout this time, but was transitioning out of this position in February 2011. Dr. Taylor became the superintendent.

On May 2, 2011, Dr. Taylor presented a realignment plan for middle management at a conference meeting. She was required to attend and watched Dr. Taylor's PowerPoint presentation (P-3). He proposed two new positions, Chief Academic Officer (CAO), and Chief of Schools. The CAO was responsible for academic services, and the Chief of Schools dealt with principals. Members of the public asked why two positions were created when someone had those responsibilities. The petitioner for the first time during the presentation saw her position was eliminated. When asked why he was creating these positions and eliminating petitioner's job, Dr. Taylor said that he was not pleased with her.

She admitted that she did not have all of the responsibilities of the two positions. The most prominent responsibility of the new position was the evaluation piece, as well as the responsibility for supervising personnel. She never did evaluations and did not have supervisory authority.

A RIF list was prepared. There were thirty-one people on the list, and she was first (P-5). On May 12, 2011, the Board approved the RIF. On May 13, 2011, she received a letter from Dr. Taylor that she was not being offered employment for the 2011-2012 school year. She was confused by the letter because it said the RIF was applicable to nontenured employees, and she was tenured.

She reviewed the list of current tenured and nontenured staff (P-4). She had seniority over all five principals and four assistant principals. One principal and two assistant principals were not tenured.

On June 7, 2011, she met with Dr. Taylor. He informed her that he would not be hiring her for either of the two positions. He said she should apply for the positions of either Early Childhood Director or Twenty-First Century Coordinator. Dr. Taylor said there may be a problem with her tenure as assistant principal and principal, and asked for proof of tenure. He also told her that he had concerns with her attendance and possible issues with her family.

She was surprised that this was an issue because she had asked to carry over forty vacation days. One time, she applied for one-half of a personal day to go to court to get custody of her niece. On another occasion, she used vacation time to take care of her sick mother.

Dr. Taylor told her that the only position she could replace a nontenured teacher was the high school principal and he asked if she would be interested. She told him that she had experience at the elementary and middle school, but was not interested in the high school. She never said she would be surrendering her tenure rights, only that she was not interested in the high school position. She never told him that she had time and family restraints which would take her out of the position.

On June 8, 2011, Dr. Taylor sent her an email summarizing the meeting. The letter states that if found to be tenured, "the lowest tenured Principal you would replace would be Mr. E. Brown at the High School", and that petitioner said she was not interested in that position (P-8). The letter further invited her to respond with any corrections. On June 9, 2011, she advised that she was getting legal counsel and is retaining all tenure and seniority rights (P-9). On the same day, she sent another email to Dr. Taylor reiterating that Dr. Taylor asked her how she felt about working at the high school, and said she was not interested in the position of high school principal (P-10). On June 15, 2011, she emailed Dr. Taylor that she was never specifically offered the high school position, and if the offer was made, she would accept it. She also stated that she was claiming her tenure rights and seniority positions (P-11).

On June 16, 2011, Dr. Daniel Mastrobuono of the Human Resource Department (HR) wrote to her reiterating her rejection of the positions offered and that the "District accepts your voluntary resignation effective June 30, 2011" (P-12).

She testified that this is contradiction to the policy of resignation. The resignation policy states that the employee's resignation must be tendered to the Board through the superintendant who may accept or reject it. If accepted, the resignation must be ratified by the Board (P-2). None of these steps were taken.

She has been collecting unemployment since August 2011. She has had no other employment. She has been sending out her resume, and used internet searches.

DR. RONALD TAYLOR

Dr. Ronald Taylor has a Bachelor of Arts degree in education, and a Masters and Doctorate Degree in School Leadership (R-2). He had been a teacher for six years in multiple school districts, an assistant principal for three years and principal for six years in Washington, D.C., and the regional supervisor for twenty-one Newark schools in 2009. In 2011, he was appointed the superintendant for Willingboro.

When he arrived in Willingboro, he found almost every department had deficiencies. He asked each department to prepare a PowerPoint presentation so he could evaluate each department. Every department gave him a PowerPoint presentation except the petitioner. She told him that she did not place high importance on the presentation and apologized. He never received the presentation from her.

He found that there was a lack of curriculum in the District. Some of the curriculum was from 1998.

As result of this investigation, he made certain recommendations in May 2011. He wanted to raise accountability. He found the accountability of the middle managers, such as the petitioner, was not defined. He prepared a PowerPoint presentation showing his realignment of middle management (R-3). The plan was approved by the Board and the Burlington County Supervisor of Education.

He was changing to a more streamlined design to define roles in central administration. The department heads had no authority. The District was spending a lot of money on middle management, but they had no supervisory authority.

His plan created an academic services department for academics and special education under the authority of a Chief Academic Officer (CAO). The CAO had supervisory authority which the petitioner did not. The petitioner also was not involved in special education.

The other position created was the Chief of Schools. The principle duties of this position included funding, evaluations, and guidance. The difference between this position and petitioner's position is that the principals are accountable to the Chief of Schools.

The Director of Human Resources and the Business Administrator were maintained, but the bulk of middle management was RIF'd, which was approximately twenty positions.

He reviewed the tenure status of similar positions. Of the five principals, three had tenure (P-4). The petitioner was the first name on the RIF (P-5). Letters were sent to all RIF'd employees (P-6).

He met with the petitioner on June 7, 2011 to see what she was going to do. He discussed his concerns that she may not have achieved tenure. Petitioner told him that she was not interested in a high school principal position because her experience was in elementary school.

He memorialized this conversation in an email stating that she told him that she was not be interested in the high school principal position because of family commitments and other time restraints, as well as lack of experience in high school (P-8). He noted that this position requires more hours and especially evening hours. He further noted that the classification of principal was the same, whether in the elementary or high school setting.

Petitioner also turned down the positions of Program Administrator for Twenty-First Century Grants and Program Administrator for Early Childhood. He believed she was qualified and met the requirements for these positions, as well as the high school principal. After his conversation with the petitioner, he concluded that she was not interested in these positions. On June 9, 2011, she confirmed in an email that she was not interested in the high school principal position (P-10). On June 22, 2011, he confirmed in writing that petitioner declined to apply for the Program Administrators position for the Twenty-First Century Grants and Early Childhood programs, as well as the high school principal position, and as a result, her last day of employment would be June 30, 2011 (R-4). Although Dr. Mastrobuono wrote that the petitioner voluntarily resigned (P-12), the District did not view this as resignation, but as a RIF.

He admitted the petitioner told him that although she did not accept the positions she wanted to retain all tenure and seniority rights (P-9). He told her that if she did not take any of the positions offered, she would give up tenure rights.

The essential facts are not in issue. At issue is whether an offer was made and the petitioner relinquished her tenure rights.

Petitioner is a tenured principal for the Willingboro School District. On May 13, 2011, petitioner was notified that she was not being offered employment for the 2011-12 school year due to reasons of economy and that her last day of employment would be June 30, 2011. Subsequently, petitioner was requested by the school superintendent, Dr. Taylor, to meet with him for a one-on-one meeting, eventually held on June 7, 2011.

At the meeting, Dr. Taylor told petitioner that she would not be considered for either of the two new administrative positions, but felt she would be a good candidate for other positions such as the Twenty-First Century Grant Coordinator or Early Childhood Coordinator. Petitioner stated she was not interested in either position for several reasons, including that neither position requires the administrative certification in which she has tenure. Dr. Taylor then informed her that there was some question as to whether petitioner was tenured.

Dr. Taylor then informed her that if she was found to be tenured, she would qualify for the high school principal position. Petitioner stated that she was not interested in this position due to time restraints and because she preferred a middle or elementary school position where she gained her experience as principal.

On June 9, 2011, petitioner sent Dr. Taylor a letter memorializing the meeting and confirming that she stated she was not interested in the high school principal position. On June 15, 2011, petitioner emailed Dr. Taylor to clarify that despite feeling better qualified for an elementary or middle school position, she would accept the high school principal position if it was offered to her.

The preceding information has not been disputed by the parties and is FOUND AS FACT.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Educational personnel acquire tenure under statute in New Jersey. Spiewak v. Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 72 (1982) (citations omitted). The New Jersey Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18, specifically defines the conditions under which teachers are entitled to the security of tenure. It is undisputed that petitioner has satisfied the tenure requirements and her status as such in the Willingboro School District is not at issue. That having been said, tenure and reemployment rights are not absolute and may be voluntarily relinquished, or be the subject of a RIF. O'Toole v. Forestal, 211 N.J. Super.

394, 402 (App. Div. 1986), cert. denied 107 N.J. 123 (1987); Lange v. Bd. of Education of Audubon, 26 N.J. Super. 83, 88 (App. Div. 1953).

To be valid, New Jersey case law has long held that the resignation or waiver of tenure rights by a tenured employee must be voluntary and intentional to be effective. Rieder v. Caldwell-West Caldwell Bd. of Ed., EDU 7609-97, Initial Decision, (Jan. 22, 1999), adopted, Comm'r. (March 10, 1999), aff'd, St. Bd. (July 7, 1999) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/search.html>. A waiver requires a clear, unequivocal and decisive act by a party. Evaul v. Bd. of Ed. of City of Camden, 35 N.J. 244, 249-250 (1961) (holding that tenured employee's written resignation does not divest the employee of tenure rights where the resignation was submitted under emotionally-charged and unusual circumstances); Vexler v. Bd. of Ed. of Red Bank, 1 N.J.A.R. 196, 202 (1980) (holding that a tenured employee, whose full-time position was legally abolished, does not waive tenure rights by refusing to accept a position of lesser rank).

In the present matter, respondent concluded that petitioner waived her tenure rights during the June 7 meeting with Dr. Taylor because petitioner was allegedly offered the position of high school principal, but she rejected it. Determining whether this meeting resulted in petitioner waiving her tenure rights requires a determination of (1) whether petitioner was actually offered the position, and (2) whether she subsequently rejected it and, in doing so, that she knowingly and intentionally relinquished her tenure rights.

An offer requires a manifestation of willingness to enter into a bargain such that acceptance would create a binding contract without any further action on the part of the offeror. "The making, requisites, and validity of a contract of employment of educational employees in the public schools are governed by the rules relating to contracts generally. Delgado v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Union, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 744, 746. Restatement (2nd) of Contracts Sections 24 and 26 (1981) define what can be considered an offer. Section 24 defines an offer as "the manifestation of willingness to enter into a bargain, so made as to justify another person in understanding that his assent to that bargain is invited and will conclude it.” Section 26 states that a manifestation of willingness to enter into a bargain is not an offer if the person to whom it is addressed knows or has reason to know that the person making it does not intend to conclude a bargain until he has made a further manifestation of assent.

Sections 24 and 26 suggest that an offer arises when the recipient would be justified in accepting the proposal with knowledge that acceptance would conclude the negotiations. In other words, an offer is something that can be accepted to form a binding contract without any further action on the part of the offeror. Determining whether an offer exists is a fact intensive inquiry. What each of the parties’ principals did or said and how their conduct and words were perceived and acted upon, and whether reasonably or not, are among the critical determinants in resolving whether the dealings between the parties constituted an offer. Central Paper Distribution Services v. International Records Storage and Retrieval Service, Inc., 325 N.J. Super. 225, 232 (App. Div. 1999), cert. denied 163 N.J. 74 (2000).

In the present matter, Dr. Taylor admitted during the June 7 meeting that there was confusion as to the petitioner’s tenure status. Until this issue was decided, it is unclear how the District could have offered her the high school position. It is reasonable that petitioner could conclude the discussion on assuming the high school principal position was only preliminary negotiations because there was no reasonable basis for the petitioner to believe, that by accepting the high school principal position at the June 7 meeting, that she could bind the respondent. By expressing uncertainty regarding petitioner’s tenure, Dr. Taylor was protecting and precluding himself from making an offer to which petitioner could accept and bind him.

Under contract law principles, when some further act of the purported offeror is necessary, the purported offeree has no power to create contractual relations, and there is as yet no operative offer. 1 Joseph M. Perillo ed., Corbin on Contracts § 1.1 (rev. ed. 1993). In indentifying an offer, “we must exclude invitations to deal or acts of mere preliminary negotiation . . . as these are acts that do not lead others reasonably to believe that they are empowered 'to close the contract.'" Ibid.; See also Restatement (2nd) of Contracts § 24, supra.

Furthermore, Superintendent Taylor's comments in the June 7 meeting displayed no "manifestation of willingness to enter into a bargain." In fact, his recollection of the meeting does not show that he ever asked petitioner if she wanted the high school principal position. He simply made a statement that if it were found that petitioner was tenured, the lowest tenured principal she would replace would be the principal at the high school. Petitioner responded that she was not interested and preferred an elementary or middle school position where she had experience as a principal. Petitioner confirmed this statement in her email of June 9, 2011.

Superintendent Taylor's preface expressing uncertainty as to petitioner's tenure status precluded petitioner from accepting or rejecting any offer. By requiring confirmation of her tenure status, Superintendent Taylor is putting off making the offer until such confirmation. The evidence reflects that Superintendent Taylor expressed, in very general terms, an intention to offer petitioner the high school principal position pending verification of tenure.

The District is arguing that petitioner's expression of a lack of interest in the high school principal position amounted to refusal of an offer to the position. Restated, respondent is arguing that petitioner's lack of interest in the high school principal position relieved it of a duty to actually offer her the position. However, there is no basis in New Jersey law for the proposition that making one's preference known for one position over another constitutes a rejection of an offer of employment. Thus, viewing the June 7 conversation in its entirety, Superintendent Taylor's preface expressing uncertainty as to petitioner's tenure status and absent any language that manifests a willingness to enter into a bargain at that time, it must be concluded that Superintendent Taylor's statements do not meet the minimum definitional requirements for an offer.

A waiver of tenure rights is only effective if the tenured individual knew these rights existed and intentionally relinquished them. O'Toole v. Forestal, supra, 211 N.J.

Super. at 402. In O'Toole, the petitioner's part-time position as physical education teacher was abolished, and she was offered a full-time physical education position that she declined by stating she had relocated to Vermont. Id. at 397. The Commissioner and State Board of Education deemed this refusal as abandonment of her tenure and reemployment rights. Ibid. In its decision, the Appellate Division held that, under the circumstances presented, petitioner's rejection of the position resulted, as a matter of law, in an abandonment of her rights to reemployment. The Court found that petitioner knowingly and intentionally waived her rights by communicating her decision through her attorney and because petitioner made no response to the motion before the Administrative Law Judge or the exceptions to his determination, nor did she claim on appeal that her decision not to accept the offered position was made without knowledge of the effect of such refusal. Id. at 402-403.

The District also cites to an unpublished opinion, Kelly v. Bd. of Educ. of the Middlesex County Vocational Technical School District, Docket No. A-5190-06T3 (N.J. App. Div., March 28, 2008), as further evidence that tenure rights can be waived. In Kelly, the Appellate Division applied the reasoning of O'Toole to conclude petitioner forfeited her tenure rights when she rejected an offer of recall for an open position because she was contractually obligated to another employer at the moment and unable to leave immediately. Id. at 21. The District also cites Alt v. Bergenfield Bd. of Educ., EDU 9624-02, Initial Decision, (Aug. 15, 2003), adopted, Comm'r. (Sept. 29, 2003) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/search.html>, which held the petitioner's failure to respond to the Board's employment offer coupled with his failure to make further inquiry for approximately eight years was the equivalent of his refusing the full time position offered and the forfeiture of his tenure and reemployment rights.

O'Toole, Kelly, and Alt all make clear that a waiver of tenure rights requires a clear and unequivocal rejection of an offer of employment. In the present matter, there is no such rejection by the petitioner that would constitute a knowing and intentional forfeiture of her tenure rights. First, as stated above, she was never offered a position that she could reject. Second, though she expressed her disinterest in the high school principal position and preference for a middle or elementary school position, when it became evident to her that the respondent was treating this preference as a rejection of employment, she clarified any doubt by stating in her June 15, 2011 email to Dr. Taylor that she would accept the high school principal position if offered. In contrast to the teachers in the cited cases, petitioner here made clear that she would accept the position if offered.

CONCLUSION

Petitioner was not offered the position of high school principal because the superintendent never manifested a willingness to enter a bargain that would justify petitioner in accepting the proposal with knowledge that acceptance would conclude the negotiations. Instead, the District interpreted petitioner's preference for a middle or elementary school position as a rejection and never fulfilled its duty to actually offer her a position in accordance with her tenure and reemployment rights.

In fact, she clarified her position by stating that she would take the position discussed if offered. In spite of receiving that letter, the District decided to terminate her even after receiving this letter.

Even if such an offer was made and rejected, waiver of tenure rights is only effective if the protected employee intended to relinquish them. In this case, petitioner expressed her job preferences and when it became clear that respondent was interpreting this as a rejection, she clarified any confusion by stating she would accept the principal position if it was offered to her.

DECISION AND ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is ORDERED that the petitioner be reinstated to the position of High School Principal or a similar position, effective June 30, 2011 with back pay, seniority, and any other emoluments to which he would otherwise have been entitled. The amount of back pay awarded is to be reduced and mitigated to the extent of any income earned or that could have been earned by petitioner during this period of any potential back pay.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
 HEARING OF MIGUEL VALLADARES, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
 SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP : DECISION OF BELLEVILLE, ESSEX COUNTY. :

Petitioning school district certified six tenure charges against respondent – a tenured custodian – alleging unbecoming conduct, misbehavior, insubordination, and other just cause. These charges stem from the Board's allegations that: respondent received the proceeds from a vending machine placed in School #5 without authorization of the Board of Education; misappropriated public property by operating and receiving the proceeds from a vending machine placed in School #8 during the period from 2008 through July 2011; neglected his duties as a custodian when he serviced these vending machines in Schools #5 and #8; and made intentionally false statements to the superintendent and his direct supervisors regarding his conduct. Respondent contended that he had the principals' permission to install and service the machines in question, made periodic cash payments from the proceeds of the machines to each school's main office, and did not neglect his custodial duties because the machines were serviced on his dinner breaks.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the District had no clear policy on the operation of vending machines, and testimony made clear that there was a patchwork of vending machines and operators during the relevant time period; there was precedence in the District for individual operators to own and service vending machines in teacher lounges; respondent gave credible testimony that he believed he had permission from the building principals to own and operate a vending machine in both School #5 and School #8, and respondent's testimony was buttressed by testimony from the former principal of School #5, who in effect recruited the respondent to install a vending machine in the teacher lounge; respondent is not a sophisticated business owner, and did not understand the importance of recordkeeping in regard to his ownership of the machines or his accounting of the proceeds from them, a percentage of which was paid in cash to the main office – often by slipping an envelope under the door; no evidence was presented to show that respondent was servicing the vending machines when he should have been working; respondent did, however, fail to disclose the fact that he had been operating a machine in School #5 when it became obvious that an investigation was ongoing regarding the machine in School #8; respondent has an otherwise unblemished career of service in the District. The ALJ concluded that respondent's failure to disclose the existence of the second vending machine constituted an act of insubordination, but that the Board failed to meet its burden of proof on the other charges. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered that respondent forfeit 120 days of pay, and be returned to his tenured position as custodian.

Upon careful review and consideration, the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusion, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter.

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 2455-12
AGENCY DKT NO. 39-2/12

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF MIGUEL VALLADARES,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP	:	DECISION
OF BELLEVILLE, ESSEX COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions.

This case involves tenure charges brought by the Board of Education (Board) against the respondent, Miguel Valladares, a tenured custodian in the Belleville Township School District. The Board charged the respondent with unbecoming conduct, insubordination and other just cause for the misappropriation of public property and receiving funds from the operation of two vending machines. The Administrative Law Judge (“ALJ”) found that the Board proved by a preponderance of the credible evidence that respondent’s failure to disclose the existence of the vending machine located at School #5 after it was identified that he owned a vending machine located at School #8 was an act of insubordination. The ALJ also found that the Board did not sustain its burden of proving the other charges against the respondent. The ALJ recommended the imposition of a 120 day suspension as a result of the respondent’s insubordination.

Upon a comprehensive review of the entire record in this matter, which included the transcripts of the hearing dates conducted at the OAL on May 15 and 16, 2012, the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – concurs with the ALJ for the reasons discussed in the Initial Decision that the Board has established that respondent is guilty of insubordination. The Deputy Commissioner is also in accord with the ALJ's determination that the remaining charges against the respondent should be dismissed. The Deputy Commissioner finds no basis in the record to reject either the ALJ's recitations of testimony or her determinations of witness credibility. The ALJ had the opportunity to assess the credibility of the various witnesses who appeared before her and made findings of fact based upon their testimony. In this regard, the clear and unequivocal standard governing the Deputy Commissioner's review is:

The agency head may not reject or modify any findings of fact as to issues of credibility of lay witness testimony unless it is first determined from a review of the record that the findings are arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable or are not supported by sufficient, competent, and credible evidence in the record. [N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c)].

Moreover, the Deputy Commissioner fully concurs with the ALJ's assessment of respondent's conduct in light of applicable law and prior decisional precedent, and agrees that the conduct proven in this proceeding necessitates an appropriate penalty.

Therefore, the Deputy Commissioner finds and concludes that the 120 days salary withheld pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, following the certification of tenure charges, is commensurate with the error in judgment displayed by the respondent. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as final decision in this matter.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On January 23, 2012, the Board of Education of Belleville, New Jersey, filed Tenure Charges against respondent Miguel Valladares. The respondent was charged with unbecoming conduct, misbehavior, insubordination and other just cause, to wit: receiving the proceeds from a vending machine placed in School #5 without authorization of the Board of Education, misappropriating public property by operating and receiving the proceeds from a vending machine placed in School #8 during the period from 2008 through July 2011, neglecting his duties as a custodian when he serviced said vending machines at Schools #5 and #8, and making intentionally false statements to the superintendent and his direct supervisors regarding his conduct.

On February 23, 2012, the respondent filed an Answer to the Tenure Charges. On February 23, 2012, the Department of Education deemed the charges sufficient and forwarded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed. A pre-hearing conference was held on March 13, 2012, at which time a discovery schedule and hearing dates were determined and an Order was issued. The matter was heard on May 15 and 16, 2012. Following the completion of the District's case, the respondent moved to have Charges 3 and 4 dismissed. The respondent argued that there was no testimony that showed that Mr. Valladares had neglected his duty by servicing the vending machines during his work hours, and therefore the District had failed to sustain its burden on those charges. The District argued that Mr. Valladares could, in fact, have been servicing the machines during work time, and that would amount to a theft of services. I reserved on the motion. Simultaneous summation briefs were submitted on June 4, 2012.

ISSUES

1. Did Mr. Valladares have the authority to install two unauthorized vending machines in the school district?
2. If he did not, did said conduct amount to theft of services, conduct unbecoming, misbehavior, insubordination and other just cause such that he should lose his tenured position?
3. Did Mr. Valladares intentionally seek to mislead the District regarding his operation and/or installation of the machines such that he should lose his tenured position?

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES

The District argued that the respondent operated vending machines in two of the District schools without obtaining permission from his superiors to do so. By misappropriating public property by operating and receiving the proceeds from the vending machines, he demonstrated conduct that was unbecoming a public school custodian. In addition, by failing to turn over the proceeds from the vending machines and by conspiring with other District employees, he in effect took money from the taxpayers of Belleville. Further, by servicing these machines during school time he neglected his duties and responsibilities as a custodian and was insubordinate. Finally, by failing to admit, when questioned, that he was operating a second vending machine, the respondent made intentionally false statements to the superintendent. This behavior amounted to insubordination.

The respondent did not dispute that he operated vending machines in two schools in the District. However, he disputed the conclusions drawn from this ownership. Mr. Valladares asserted that, prior to his operation of one of the machines, it was operated by another private individual. The individual had an arrangement with certain schools that he would install and service the machine, in return for which he paid 15 percent of the proceeds to the school administrator for use by the school. Mr. Valladares consulted with the principal of the school, who said that there was no problem with the vending-machine arrangement. In the other school, the principal asked the respondent to install a machine. Based on these arrangements, Mr. Valladares bought vending machines and operated them. Further, he disputed that he serviced the machines during his work day. Therefore, he did not neglect his duties. He also denied misappropriating funds from the proceeds of the vending-machine sales and claimed that he had never misrepresented the location of his vending machines in the District.

Joseph Picardo

Mr. Picardo testified that he has been the superintendent of schools in Belleville since April 9, 2010. In July 2011 he was informed that there had been a break-in at School #8. He was told that windows had been broken and a vending machine damaged. At the time he did not know who owned the vending machine. He was later informed that the machine was owned by Miguel Valladares. On July 28, 2011, he convened a meeting in his office with the respondent, his union representative, the business administrator and the supervisor of buildings and grounds (Mr. Fiscella, who had been supervisor for over ten years). Mr. Valladares acknowledged that he owned the vending machine in School #8. When asked under what authority he was operating the machine, the respondent said that he had obtained permission from the former principal of the school. Mr. Picardo testified that Mr. Valladares stated that he made payments to the building principal of a percentage of the proceeds of the sales from the vending machine. He put the money in an envelope and placed it under the principal's office door. When asked whether he was operating any other machines in the District, Mr. Valladares responded in the negative. Mr. Picardo said that he later discovered that the respondent was also operating a machine in School #5.

Mr. Picardo said that he convened another meeting in early August 2011, where the same individuals were present. Mr. Picardo said that at this meeting Mr. Valladares said nothing about operating a vending machine in School #5. On cross-examination, Mr. Picardo stated that he understood that at some point Mr. Valladares removed the vending machine from School #5, but he did not know when that occurred. Mr. Picardo asserted that Pomptonian Food Services was contracted to operate vending machines in the District, but acknowledged that there was nothing in the 2011–2012 addendum to the contract that referred to vending machines. He also asserted that no employee has the authority to enter into a contract with an outside service; all contracts have to be approved by the Board of Education and recommended by the superintendent; and no principal has the authority to enter into a contract. Mr. Picardo stated that he had no knowledge of a school principal entering into a contract to install a vending machine.

Mr. Nazziola, who was the principal of School #8 in the summer of 2010, never submitted a request to have a vending machine placed in the school, and the District never received the proceeds from the vending machine. When questioned, Mr. Picardo stated that in the terms of the contract with Pomptonian, all proceeds from the vending machines go to the District and are used for the District's benefit. Mr. Picardo stated that at some time following the incident, a secretary in School #5 came forward and said that she found an envelope in her desk containing $88, which had been in her drawer for over a year. He did not know if the envelope had the words "vending machine" on the outside.

Following the break-in at School #8, Mr. Picardo prepared a list of vending machines in the District (R-1). There were no machines owned by Pomptonian in School #5 or School #8. Mr. Picardo stated that vending machines in the areas frequented by students had to be operated according to the rules of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The vending machines in Schools #5 and #8 were in the teachers' lounge and were not subject to the Department of Agriculture. He did not know if the Pomptonian contract predated the installation of the vending machines in Schools #5 and #8.

Mr. Picardo stated that Vincent Fiscella was Mr. Valladares' supervisor. He asserted that there was nothing in the collective bargaining agreement stating that custodians could operate private vending machines.

Edward Appleton

Mr. Appleton testified that he is the Board secretary for the Belleville Board of Education and has been the school administrator for twenty-four years. Among his duties, he oversees all business and support services for the District, including food services. He said that the District has had contracts with Pomptonian Food Service for about nine years. Mr. Appleton testified that the arrangement is that Pomptonian owns the machines, fills them and services them. The District pays for the products in the machines and derives profits from the machines, and those profits are used to purchase equipment for the food services in the schools, such as ovens, refrigerators, etc. He said that the District did not contract with anyone else to provide vending machines for the schools. Mr. Appleton testified that at no time did Mr. Valladares have a contract with the District to operate vending machines. Mr. Appleton stated that following the break-in at School #8 in July 2011, the maintenance supervisor was told to go through the building and check on any damage. The vending machine in the teachers' lounge had been damaged and he called Pomptonian to report this. Pomptonian informed him that they did not own the vending machine in question. Through further investigation he discovered that the machine was owned by Mr. Valladares. Mr. Appleton described a meeting involving Mr. Valladares and other people from the District that took place in July 2011. Mr. Valladares informed those present at the meeting that the vending machine had been placed in the school by a vendor, who offered to sell it to the respondent. Mr. Valladares said that he never asked permission from the Central Office to operate the machine. The respondent said that he turned over 15 percent of the profits from the vending machine to the principal. His procedure was to slide an envelope under the door of the principal's office. This occurred while Mr. Petrillo and Ms. Cavallo were principals of the school. The business manager said that the District never received the funds allegedly put in the envelopes. Mr. Appleton testified that at the second meeting with Mr. Valladares, in August 2011, the District offered to allow Mr. Valladares to resign, and nothing further would occur. Mr. Valladares turned down this offer. According to Mr. Appleton, Mr. Valladares never mentioned at the second meeting that he was operating another vending machine in the District. The business administrator could not remember when Mr. Valladares removed the vending machine from School #5.

On cross-examination, Mr. Appleton acknowledged that an inventory had been done of the vending machines following the break-in. As a result, they found non-Pomptonian machines in Belleville Middle School and School #4. The owner of the vending machine in the teachers' lounge in School #4 was Fritz Vending. As far as Mr. Appleton knew, no money came to the District from this vending machine. Mr. Appleton was not aware of how Fritz came about placing the machine in School #4. They never determined the owner of the vending machine in the middle school and considered it abandoned. No one was disciplined in either school regarding these machines.

Vincent Fiscella

Mr. Fiscella testified that he has been the supervisor of buildings and grounds for the District for twenty-five years. He said that when he was informed of the July 2011 break-in at School #8, he went through the building and found that the vending machine had been vandalized. Mr. Fiscella actually did two reports. Upon the request of Mr. Appleton, he did a second investigation to give the Central Office a more detailed account of the damage. About two weeks later he was instructed to remove all non-Pomptonian vending machines from the District and bring them over to Belleville High School. Mr. Fiscella said that he attended a meeting where the superintendent, Mr. Appleton, Mr. Gerst and Mr. Valladares were present. He said that ownership of the vending machine at School #8 was discussed, and he believed that Mr. Valladares said that the machine was not his.¹ Ultimately, Mr. Fiscella found out that Mr. Valladares owned the machine in School #8. He spoke to Leonard Gerst, the custodian of School #8, who told him that Mr. Valladares filled the vending machine in the teachers' lounge in the school. Mr. Fiscella said that Mr. Valladares never came to him and told him that he was operating a vending machine in the District or asked his permission to operate a vending machine in the school. Mr. Fiscella claimed that at the July 2011 meeting with Valladares and other District officials, Mr. Valladares was asked if he had machines in any other schools in the District, and he denied having any other machines in the District. Mr. Fiscella stated that between the July and August meetings with Mr. Valladares, the vending machine in School #5 was removed. Mr. Fiscella said that he recalls doing inventory of the vending machines during the second week in July. At the time, there was a vending machine in School #5. When he went back to do another inventory in August, the machine had been removed. Mr. Fiscella said that sometime in August he removed (or locked up) four non-Pomptonian vending machines from schools in the District.

Mr. Fiscella identified P-3, which was a memo from Mr. Fiscella to Mr. Valladares dated December 14, 2007. The memo dealt with an incident unrelated to this matter.

However, it was introduced to show that Mr. Valladares knew of the chain of command regarding whom he was responsible to report to. The letter stated, "Even though you spoke with the Principal, you circumvented the central office and me. This behavior will not be tolerated."² Mr. Fiscella testified that Mr. Valladares never came to him to seek authorization to install and/or service a vending machine in any building in the District.

Dora Cavallo

Ms. Cavallo testified that she was hired as principal of School #8 in September 2009. Mr. Valladares was a custodian at the school for the 2009–2010 school year and the beginning of the 2010–2011 year until he was transferred. His working hours were from 12:00 p.m. until 8:00–8:30 p.m. She said that she observed Mr. Valladares filling the vending machine sometime between 12:30 and 4:00 p.m. After Mr. Valladares was transferred to School #5, she never saw him servicing the machine. However, it continued to be stocked. Ms. Cavallo testified that Mr. Valladares would assist in the lunchroom between 11:30 a.m. and 12:25 p.m. The custodians would finish up in the lunchroom by 12:30. Ms. Cavallo stated that she never received the proceeds from any vending machine in the school. She never saw money in an envelope under her door marked "vending machine" or "petty cash."

On cross-examination, Ms. Cavallo said that she arrived at the school at about 7:30 a.m. and her secretary arrived between 7:30 a.m. and 7:45 a.m. The custodians arrived before her and always opened up her office and her secretary's office. She usually left school at 4:00 p.m., but sometimes stayed later or left earlier. She said that when she came to the school in September 2009, the vending machine was already there.

Lisa Kistner

Ms. Kistner testified that she has been the secretary at School #8 since September 2010. She usually arrived at the school at 7:30 a.m. Before becoming a secretary, she worked as a paraprofessional at School #5. She knew Mr. Valladares from the time she worked at School #5 and he was the assistant custodian. Ms. Kistner said that the teachers never came to her to have Mr. Valladares restock the vending machine. She never saw the respondent stocking the machine at School #8. She never went into the teachers' lounge where the machine was located. Ms. Kistner stated that she never received money from Mr. Valladares from the vending machines; she never found an envelope under her door or anything marked "for the vending machine." She said that Ms. Cavallo did not have any financial accounts for monies for the building.

² The memo was allowed into evidence only to show knowledge of chain of command and not for progressive-discipline purposes.

Gabriel Nazziola

Mr. Nazziola testified that he has been employed by the Belleville School District since September 1990. He has worked primarily as a music teacher, with periodic stints as an administrator. In 2008 he became interim principal of School #3. The next year he returned as a teacher. For the 2010–2011 school year he was principal at School #5. At the present time he is a teacher at the middle school. When he was principal at School #5, Mr. Valladares was a custodian there. Mr. Nazziola would work from 7:30 a.m. to approximately 4:00 p.m. Mr. Nazziola recalled that he spoke to Joe Petrillo, a principal at the high school in August 2010, about how he could obtain a vending machine for School #5 and how the arrangement worked. He said that he consulted with Mr. Petrillo because he had been in the District for many years and would know how things worked. Mr. Petrillo told him that the school gets 15 percent of the proceeds from the vending machine and the money goes directly to the school. Mr. Nazziola approached Mr. Valladares and asked him if he could get a vending machine for School #5. He talked with the respondent about obtaining the proceeds from the vending sales, and was told that when he cashed out the machine, he would get 15 percent for the school. Mr. Nazziola said that he never saw Mr. Valladares servicing the vending machine. Mr. Nazziola said that he received vending-machine money in the middle of the year and at the end of the year. Mr. Valladares handed an envelope containing cash directly to him. Mr. Nazziola stated that he has worked in each of the elementary-school buildings and has seen vending machines in the teachers' lounges in Schools #3 and #4. He was not sure about the other schools, but thought that he saw vending machines in at least four elementary schools.

Mr. Nazziola acknowledged that he was not disciplined for his part in the vending-machine situation. On cross-examination, Mr. Nazziola stated that he did not go to the superintendent, the business administrator, or anyone else in the Central Office about getting permission to have a vending machine installed in the school. Even though he acknowledged that the superintendent was his boss, he did not feel that he had to go to him about permission to have a vending machine placed in the school. He stated that the reason that he asked a fellow principal, rather than the superintendent, about the vending machine was that he was a first-year principal and did not want to bother Mr. Picardo all the time. Mr. Nazziola stated that when he got the vending-machine money, he did not turn the proceeds over to the central administration or report the proceeds to them. He did not get receipts from Mr. Valladares and did not try to verify whether the amount that he received was correct. When questioned, Mr. Nazziola stated that when he was principal of School #3, he did not ask Lucy Demikoff, the principal for whom he was filling in, about the vending-machine situation. Mr. Nazziola testified that he thought that he received a total of $11 for the whole year from Mr. Valladares for School #5, and he gave the money to the secretary. When questioned, Mr. Nazziola said that there were thirty teachers at School #5 at the time. He did not think that the volume of sales was high, and therefore he thought that $11 was the correct amount based on 15 percent of sales.³ Mr. Nazziola said that he did not keep a ledger of the money. He simply recorded the amount in the envelope on the front and gave it to the secretary. He did not use the money personally. He said that there was no bank account for the petty cash. It was just kept in a box.

John Faronea

Mr. Faronea testified that he is the head custodian at School #5. He has been employed by the District since November 2009. He stated that Mr. Valladares came to School #5 in November 2010. While Mr. Faronea worked the 6:00-a.m.-to-4:00-p.m.

³ There was a question of whether it was 15 percent of gross proceeds or net proceeds.

shift, Mr. Valladares worked from 12:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Mr. Faronea stated that he recalled Mr. Nazziola inquiring about getting a vending machine for the teachers' lounge in School #5 like they had in School #8. Mr. Faronea told the principal that Mr. Valladares came from School #8 and would probably know where the vending machines came from. Sometime thereafter, Mr. Faronea helped the respondent bring a vending machine into School #5. Mr. Faronea recalled seeing Mr. Valladares servicing the machine at the school. He thought that he saw this occur between 5:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m., which was the respondent's normal dinner time. Mr. Faronea testified that he was never asked by Mr. Valladares to deliver money to the principal, nor did he ever give a message to the respondent that he should service a vending machine in another school. On cross-examination, Mr. Faronea stated that as head custodian he is responsible for the whole school, which consists of three floors, thirty classrooms, an office, an all-purpose room and the teachers' lunchroom. Once or twice a month Mr. Faronea would stay late, and he saw Mr. Valladares at the school.

Leonard Gerst

Mr. Gerst testified that he has been employed by the District for twenty-one years. He has been head custodian at School #8 for six years. He has been president of the maintenance workers' union for over one year. He stated that he was not the union president when the break-in involving the vending machine occurred, but he was the union representative when Mr. Valladares was called into a meeting with the superintendent and other school officials. He worked with Mr. Valladares, but they were on different shifts. He worked from 6:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., and Mr. Valladares worked from 12:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Mr. Gerst said that he actually worked beyond 4:00 p.m. because the school had a YMCA after-care program at the school. He would stay until 5:00 p.m. so that Mr. Valladares could take his lunch break from 4:00–5:00 p.m.

Mr. Gerst stated that when he started at School #8, there were no vending machines in the teachers' lounge. He thought that at some point the principal, Mr. Petrillo, arranged to have the machine brought into the school. Mr. Gerst did not know the name of the vendor, but knew that it was not Mr. Valladares. Mr. Gerst said that he recalled a conversation with Mr. Valladares in which Mr. Valladares mentioned that he was considering purchasing the vending machine at School #8. Mr. Gerst told him to speak with the principal, Mr. Petrillo, because the principal was responsible for the building. Later, Mr. Valladares told Mr. Gerst that he spoke to Mr. Petrillo, who gave him the go-ahead on the vending machine. Mr. Gerst said that Mr. Valladares told him that he serviced the vending machine after 8:30 p.m., when he was done with his shift. Mr. Gerst stated that he never saw Mr. Valladares servicing the machine.⁴ According to Mr. Gerst, Mr. Valladares was transferred from School #8 to School #5. Mr. Gerst remained at School #8. Mr. Gerst recalled seeing Mr. Valladares servicing the vending machine at School #8 between the hours of 4:00 and 5:00 p.m.⁵ This was the time of Mr. Valladares' lunch break when he was at School #8. Mr. Gerst did not know of other times Mr. Valladares serviced the machine after 5:00 p.m., since he was not at the school in the evening.⁶ Mr. Gerst stated that after Mr. Valladares was transferred to School #5, he no longer had the keys to School #8. The building would have been locked up by 8:30 p.m., when the last employee left.

Mr. Gerst recalled on one occasion giving the proceeds of the vending machine to Mr. Petrillo. He put the envelope on Mr. Petrillo's desk. The next day he went back to be sure that the principal had received the envelope. Mr. Gerst stated that this occurred while he and respondent were both at School #8.

Mr. Gerst recalled that at the first meeting he attended with Mr. Valladares and the administration, they discussed the fact that the vending machines should not have been in the building, and the administration was thinking of taking action and would let the union know what they had decided to do. He did not recall Mr. Valladares being asked about vending machines other than the one at School #8. At the second meeting, Mr. Valladares was asked to submit his resignation. He did not recall whether there was any discussion about the machine in School #5.

⁴ During the summer Mr. Gerst worked the same hours as Mr. Valladares, namely, 6:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. They took lunch from 12:00–1:00 p.m. Mr. Gerst would see Mr. Valladares servicing the machine during lunchtime.

⁵ There was testimony that Mr. Valladares' lunch hour was 5:00–6:00 p.m. when he was at School #5.

⁶ Mr. Gerst stated that when he saw Mr. Valladares servicing the machine, the operation took him no more than twenty minutes.

On cross-examination, Mr. Gerst stated that he is the first person in the building in the morning. He opens all the doors, including the doors to the principal's and secretary's offices. He said that their offices do not remain open if they are not there. Mr. Gerst stated that from the time of Mr. Petrillo's transfer until the present, he has never found any envelopes containing cash under the principal's door. In addition, he never delivered any money to Ms. Cavallo from the fall of 2009 until the summer of 2011. While he continued to see Mr. Valladares service the teachers'-lounge vending machine, he was never given an envelope containing cash to give to Ms. Cavallo.

Miguel Valladares

Mr. Valladares testified that he was hired by the Board of Education as a custodian in 2003. He started working at the high school, then went to the middle school, and then moved on to School #8 in 2004. He remained there until February 2010, when he was involuntarily transferred to School #5. His hours at School #8 were 12:00–8:30 p.m. When he first went to School #8, Angela Himercy was the principal. In 2007 Mr. Petrillo became the principal. In September 2009 Mr. Petrillo went back to the high school and Ms. Cavallo became the principal. When Mr. Petrillo was principal he was told by the chief custodian, Mr. Gerst, and Mr. Fiscella that Mr. Petrillo was the supervisor of the building. Mr. Valladares identified R-3 and R-4, two performance evaluations, which designated Mr. Petrillo and Mr. Fiscella as the certified evaluators for the 2008–2009 school year. Exhibit R-5, the evaluation for the 2009–2010 school year, designated Ms. Cavallo and Mr. Fiscella as the certified evaluators. Exhibit R-6, Mr. Valladares' evaluation for the 2010–2011 school year, designated Mr. Fiscella and Mr. Nazziola as the certified evaluators.

Mr. Valladares testified that in 2004, when he was first assigned to School #8, there were no vending machines in the teachers' lounge. At some point during the year, a machine was installed. He had nothing to do with its installation and had no responsibility to service the machine. He said that a man named Steve serviced the machine. He said that he ran into Steve a number of times and spoke to him. He had no idea if Steve had other vending machines in the District.

The respondent stated that while he was at School #8 he had one fifteen-minute break and one hour for dinner. His break was at about 2:30 to 2:45 p.m. and dinner was usually from 4:00 to 5:00 p.m., although sometimes the times were changed depending on whether he had something that he had to do at the time. Mr. Valladares stated that in the fall of 2008 Steve informed him that he was selling his vending-machine route and he wanted to know if Mr. Valladares was interested. Mr. Valladares said that he would discuss it with his wife and the principal of the school. He said that he discussed it with Mr. Petrillo a few days after that, sometime in late November 2008. He testified that he told Mr. Petrillo that Steve offered to sell him the vending machine, and the principal said that it would not be a problem as long as the school continued to receive 15 percent of the vending-machine profits. Mr. Petrillo told him that the cash should be placed in an envelope and should be given either to the main office or to him. Following this conversation, Mr. Valladares contacted Steve and said that he would buy the machine. The respondent stated that he also bought another machine a month later from Steve, which was located at a nursing home. Mr. Valladares testified that Steve never mentioned the company for which he worked and, in fact, he did not know Steve's last name.

Mr. Valladares stated that in December 2008, after he purchased the machine at School #8, he gave Mr. Petrillo money from the proceeds in an envelope. He gave him money again in late January 2009. He said that he would do this each month. However, he did not always physically give the money to Mr. Petrillo. Sometimes he would put the envelope in Mr. Petrillo's mail bin. After Mr. Petrillo left School #8 and Ms. Cavallo became principal, he did not speak to her about the vending machine. He did not hand her an envelope directly, but put it in her mailbox.

When asked about the operation of the machine, Mr. Valladares said that he purchased the products for the machines from Sam's Club. He did not keep any records about how much money he took out of the machines, how often he restocked the machines, or the amount of product he put in the machines. He said that while he was at School #8 he would restock the machine about every two weeks during his lunch break. He said that he took about $80–$90 out of the machine each month, and each month he would bring money to the office. Once he was transferred to School #5 in February 2010, he would come back to School #8 during his lunch break at 5:00 p.m.⁷ about every two weeks to service the machine. He did not have keys to School #8 any longer; it was open at the time he got there because of the YMCA after-school program that ended at 6:00 p.m. When asked how he knew that the machine in School #8 needed stocking, he said that besides the regular servicing, some teachers or the secretary would leave messages when the machine needed to be restocked.

Mr. Valladares testified that when he arrived at School #5 in February 2010, there was no vending machine. Mr. Nazziola approached him and asked about placing a machine in the teachers' lounge. The respondent said that he had a machine that he had removed from a nursing home. Mr. Nazziola inquired about the money arrangement, and Mr. Valladares said that he would pay the school the same 15 percent as he was paying at School #8. He installed the machine in September 2010. He used the same procedure of servicing the machine during his lunch break about every two weeks. He recalled giving Mr. Nazziola the proceeds sometime early in 2011 via an envelope with cash inside. At the end of the school year in June, he gave Mr. Nazziola another envelope containing cash. Mr. Valladares said that he waited until the end of the year because Mr. Nazziola said that there was so little money on a monthly basis that it did not pay to distribute the money monthly. Mr. Valladares recalled giving Mr. Nazziola $88 in June at the end of the school year.

Mr. Valladares said that he did not keep records about the proceeds of the vending machines and the percentage given to the schools. Neither Mr. Petrillo nor Mr. Nazziola ever watched him empty the machines to see if the amount he said he collected was correct. In addition, neither of the principals told him that he needed permission from the Central Office to install and/or service the machines.

Mr. Valladares said that he had two meetings with the administration regarding the machines. The first was in late July. At that meeting, he was asked who gave him the authority to bring the machine into School #8, how it was purchased, and from whom. He was told that there would be an investigation. He asserted that at the meeting no one mentioned the machine in School #5 or asked if he owned it. During direct examination, Mr. Valladares stated that he removed the machine in School #5 before the late-July meeting. When asked why he did this, he said that he had found out that Mr. Nazziola was no longer going to be the principal of School #5; he was fighting for his position and, since he had requested the machine, and there was going to be a new principal at the school, he thought he should take the vending machine out. At the second meeting, in late August, the superintendent told him that they wanted him to resign. He told them "no." He did not recall their asking him a question about the vending machine at School #5 or if he had other machines in the District. On cross-examination, Mr. Valladares stated that he removed the vending machine from School #5 sometime in late July or early August 2011, which was between the two meetings he had with the administration. He had no idea of the exact date, since he kept no records.

⁷ Mr. Valladares testified that he worked from 12:00–8:30 p.m. at School #5 and took lunch/dinner from 5:00–6:00 p.m.

On cross-examination Mr. Valladares was asked what arrangement he had with Ms. Cavallo. He said that he did not talk to her about the vending-machine arrangement, but just left the envelopes containing the school's share of the proceeds under the principal's door. He could not explain why Mr. Gerst said that he never found an envelope when he unlocked the principal's door or why Ms. Cavallo and Ms. Kistner said that they never found any envelopes. He was directed to Interrogatory #14 (P-1), which said that he had an agreement with Mr. Petrillo to place the proceeds in an envelope under the door, but said nothing about giving money to Ms. Cavallo or putting money in her mail bin. When asked about the discrepancy between his testimony that he serviced the machine at School #8 between 5:00 and 6:00 p.m. and Mr. Gerst's testimony that he serviced the machine between 4:00 and 5:00 p.m., Mr. Valladares asserted that he was telling the truth about the time he serviced the machine. Mr. Valladares was asked about Mr. Nazziola's testimony that he only received $11 for the whole year from the vending machine. Mr. Valladares said that he paid Mr. Nazziola by placing cash in an envelope during the beginning of the school year, and not again until June. He did not dispute the $11 payment. When asked how he knew whether he was making money from the vending business, he said that he was not doing the vending machines in order to make money, but rather as a service to the school.⁸ When he took the vending machine out of the nursing home, it was not being used. When Mr. Nazziola said that he wanted a vending machine, Mr. Valladares was happy to supply one. Mr. Valladares acknowledged that he never reported the income from the vending machines on his tax returns and never told his accountant about the business.

Mr. Valladares was questioned about his understanding of the chain of command. He was directed to P-3, a letter of reprimand sent to him from Vincent Fiscella on December 14, 2007. The memo stated, "Even though you spoke with the Principal, you circumvented the central office and me. This behavior will not be tolerated."⁹ Based on his knowledge that Mr. Fiscella was his supervisor, Mr. Valladares was asked why he did not ask permission from him before installing the vending machines in the schools. Mr. Valladares' response was that his supervisors at the schools were the principals, because they ran the buildings, and they approved of the installation of the vending machines. The principals were the ones that he had to go to with any issues or problems within the school. Mr. Petrillo had initially authorized the installation of the vending machine in School #8, before Mr. Valladares ever started working there, so it was the principal whom he questioned about his buying the vending machine for the school, not Mr. Fiscella. In addition, Mr. Valladares testified that he was told by both Mr. Gerst and Mr. Fiscella that he had to report to the principal in the school that he was assigned to. When asked on cross-examination why he did not advise Ms. Cavallo about the vending-machine contract, he said that he assumed that Mr. Petrillo had said something to her about it. Since Mr. Valladares no longer had the keys to School #8 once he had been transferred, he could not open Ms. Cavallo's door and could only slip the cash in an envelope under the door when he came in to service the vending machine during his dinner break. When asked how he responded to Mr. Gerst's testimony that he never found an envelope under the door of the main office or Ms. Cavallo's office, Mr. Valladares stated that he was not accusing Mr. Gerst of stealing the money. The respondent said that he was never told by his superiors that he was not allowed to go back to School #8. Mr. Valladares claimed that in discussions with Steve and Mr. Petrillo, they said that the vending machine was grandfathered in and therefore was allowed in the school.

⁹ There was an objection to the introduction of this letter on grounds that it might be used for progressive discipline and it was too remote in time, irrelevant and too prejudicial. I allowed the document in evidence only on the issue of prior knowledge of chain of command.

Joseph Petrillo

Mr. Petrillo testified that he had been employed by the Belleville School District from September 1972 until he retired in 2011. He started as a social studies teacher, became a principal at the high school in 1994, briefly worked as the principal of School #4, and then returned to the high school. He was transferred to School #8 for the period September 2007 to June 2009.¹⁰ When he went to School #8, Mr. Valladares was working there. He did not recall whether there was a vending machine in the school at the time. Mr. Petrillo thought that he had a vending machine brought to the teachers' lounge at School #8 during the 2007–2008 school year. He said that he had arranged for vending machines in the high school several times. He said that he contacted vendors; screened them, as he had done several times before; and got a machine for the school. He did not discuss bringing in the machine with anyone in the Central Office. He asserted that he did not have to speak to anyone in administration, including the business administrator, because there was no policy regarding vending machines, and the amount collected from the machine was negligible. In addition, he asserted that the business administrator knew about the vending machines in the high school and never asked about them.¹¹ He also stated on cross-examination that the Central Office did not need to be involved because the vending machine was a fundraiser. The vending machine that he brought in was only in the teachers' lounge. At the time he brought in the machine, it was not owned by Mr. Valladares, but rather by Gary Villardi. When he negotiated the contract, the terms were that the company would be responsible for providing the supplies and 10 to 15 percent of the profits would be turned over to the secretary, who would keep the money in a petty-cash box for the student-activities account. He thought that they obtained no more than $11, $15 or $20 per month. He posited that Mr. Valladares had once or twice handed him an envelope with cash in it, which he turned over to the secretary. Mr. Petrillo thought that he might have had a discussion with Mr. Valladares, before he went back to the high school, about his taking over the vending machine, but he did not give him permission to operate the machine. He did not think that there was a problem with Mr. Valladares operating the machine.

¹⁰ In total, he was principal of the high school for seventeen years.

On cross-examination, Mr. Petrillo stated that in 2002–2003 the vending machines in the high school were audited and the money from the machines was given to the school secretary, who kept a ledger for the student account. When Pomptonian took over the machines in the high school, he did not know what arrangements were made with the prior owners of the vending machines. As far as he knew, Pomptonian collected the money from the machines and gave it to the business administrator, who gave a percentage back to the high school student fund. Mr. Petrillo said that he never received money from Mr. Valladares from the vending machine after he left School #8.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the testimony presented and the exhibits submitted, I make the following FINDINGS OF FACT:

1. Mr. Valladares was hired by the Belleville Board of Education as a custodian in 2003. After working at a few of the District schools he was moved to School #8 in 2004, where he remained until February 2010, when he was moved to School #5.
2. Besides the present charge, he has an unblemished disciplinary history.
3. His hours at School #8 were 12:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. He had a fifteen-minute break at about 2:30 p.m., and usually had a dinner break from 4:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.
4. When Mr. Valladares first went to School #8 in 2004 there was no vending machine in the teachers' lounge. Sometime during the 2007–2008 school year the principal, Mr. Petrillo, contacted vendors and arranged for a vending machine to be placed in the teachers' lounge. He contracted with Gary Villardi, who agreed to supply the machine and supplies, and agreed that 15 percent of the profits would be turned over to the secretary to be placed in a petty-cash box for student activities. A vending machine was subsequently installed in the lounge and serviced by someone named Steve. Mr. Petrillo had also arranged for vending machines when he was the principal at the high school.

5. It was Mr. Petrillo's position that he did not have to ask permission from anyone to have a vending machine installed because there was no policy regarding vending machines, the amount received was negligible, the proceeds were for fundraising, and there were vending machines in the high school and no one in Central Administration had questioned their being there.
6. In the fall of 2008, Mr. Valladares made an arrangement with Steve to buy two vending machines for $1,000 each. One was located in the teachers' lounge at School #8 and the other was in a nursing home. Mr. Valladares consulted with the principal of the school, Mr. Petrillo, prior to purchasing the machine. Mr. Petrillo stated that there was no problem as long as the school continued to receive 15 percent of the proceeds from the machine, as had occurred during Steve's ownership. The arrangement was that the proceeds, in cash, were to be placed in an envelope and given to either Mr. Petrillo or his secretary. While Mr. Petrillo was principal of the school, Mr. Valladares would either give the principal the envelope or place it in his mail bin.
7. While Mr. Valladares was custodian at School #8 he would stock the vending machine at 8:30 p.m. after he finished his shift.
8. Once Mr. Valladares was transferred to School #5, he would come back to School #8 approximately two times per month to stock the machine. He would come to the school during his lunch/dinner time from School #5 at about 5:00 p.m.

9. When Mr. Valladares was first transferred to School #5 in February 2010, there was no vending machine in the teachers' lounge. The principal, Mr. Nazziola, approached him and asked him about placing a machine in the teachers' lounge. Previously, Mr. Nazziola had consulted with Mr. Petrillo about whether a vending machine could be placed in the teachers' lounge and the procedure that should be followed. Mr. Valladares placed the second machine that he owned, which had previously been at a nursing home, in School #5. Mr. Valladares and Mr. Nazziola negotiated the same payment arrangement as existed at School #8. Initially, Mr. Valladares made two cash payments to Mr. Nazziola in December 2010 and January 2011. Because the payments were so small, he did not make another payment until the end of the school year.
10. Mr. Gerst, a custodian in the District, acknowledged that on one occasion, at Mr. Valladares' request, he delivered an envelope that contained cash to the school office.
11. Mr. Valladares did not keep records of the amount of supplies that he bought for the two machines, the cost of the supplies, or the profit that he made from the vending machines. He also did not keep track of the amount that he paid the two schools as their percentages of the profits from the machines.
12. Once Mr. Petrillo left School #8, Mr. Valladares did not speak to Ms. Cavallo about any arrangements with regard to the vending machine. Despite the fact that Mr. Valladares asserted that he slipped the payments under the principal's door or the door to the main office, neither Ms. Cavallo nor Ms. Kistner had any record of receiving the money. Mr. Gerst, who unlocked the principal's and secretary's offices each morning, testified that he did not find any envelopes under the doors in the morning. However, Mr. Picardo, the superintendent of schools, acknowledged that one of the building secretaries at School #5 had an envelope containing $88 that she kept in her drawer for a full year.

13. Since approximately 2003 the District has had a contract with Pomptonian Food Service to handle the food service. This includes the cafeteria and vending machines in the student area. (However, the 2011–2012 addendum to the Pomptonian contract does not mention the vending machines.) According to this contract, Pomptonian operates and stocks the vending machines and the profits go to the District.
14. In July 2011 there was a break-in at School #8 and the vending machine owned by Mr. Valladares was vandalized. During the investigation into the break-in, the District learned that Mr. Valladares owned the machine in School #8 and impounded it.
15. In July 2011 following the break-in, Mr. Valladares was called into a meeting with the superintendent of schools, Mr. Picardo, the supervisor of buildings and grounds, Mr. Fiscella, the business administrator, Mr. Appleton, and a union representative, Leonard Gerst. At that meeting Mr. Valladares acknowledged that he owned the vending machine at School #8. He did not say anything about owning other vending machines in the District.
16. Another meeting took place between the same people in early or mid-August. Between the first and second meetings, Mr. Valladares removed his vending machine in School #5. When questioned at the second meeting as to whether he was operating any other vending machines in the District, he answered in the negative.

ANALYSIS OF THE LAW

The tenure of custodians is authorized in N.J.S.A. 18A:17-3. According to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, no person under tenure of office, position, or employment shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause. Tenure is a status in a particular position created by statute, not the agreement of the parties, therefore, it is a “statutory right imposed upon a teacher's contractual employment’ [that] may not be forfeited or waived.” Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 77 (1982) (quoting Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65, 72 (1962), cert. denied, 371 U.S. 956, 83 S. Ct. 508, 9 L. Ed. 2d 502 (1963), and citing Red Bank Educ. Ass’n v. Red Bank Bd. of Educ., 78 N.J. 122, 141 (1978)). Tenure was designed to protect employees “from dismissal ‘for unfounded, flimsy or political reasons.’” Wright v. Bd. of Educ. of E. Orange, 99 N.J. 112, 118 (1985) (quoting Zimmerman, supra, 38 N.J. at 71). While tenure was designed to protect employees, teachers (and other tenured employees) are responsible to act in a professional manner and to serve the welfare of the students in their care. Tenure charges can be sustained based on a history of unprofessional conduct, In re Riddick, 93 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 345, or based on a single incident, “if sufficiently flagrant.” In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404, 421 (App. Div. 1967).

Among the charges lodged against Mr. Valladares was “conduct unbecoming.” This conduct was defined by the administrative law judge in In re Tenure Hearing of Motley, State-Operated School District of Newark, Essex County, EDU 7421-97, Initial Decision (May 5, 1999), aff’d as modified, Comm’r (August 4, 1999), aff’d, State Bd. of Educ. (December 1, 1999), <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>:

the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct. Hartmann v. Police Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 22, 40 (App. Div. 1992). Despite the apparent vagueness of this standard, "it fairly and adequately conveys its meaning to all concerned." Laba v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 23 N.J. 364, 384 (1957). In the context of a school tenure case, "the touchstone is fitness to discharge the duties and functions of one's office or position." In re Tenure Hearing of Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13, 29 (App. Div. 1974), certif. denied, 65 N.J. 292 (1974).

The District charged that Mr. Valladares misappropriated public property by operating and receiving proceeds from a vending machine placed in School #5 without authorization from the Board of Education. This constituted conduct unbecoming, misbehavior, insubordination and other just cause. From the testimony presented it is clear that there was a patchwork of vending machines and operators in the District and that the Board did not have a clear policy on the operation of the machines or an understanding of what machines were actually housed in the District. While there was a contract with Pomptonian for the operation of machines in the area servicing students,¹² there was certainly no general policy regarding vending machines located in teachers' lounges and no contract or policy presented that outlined the responsibility of Pomptonian to supply vending machines in the teachers' lounge. After the "break-in" the District discovered a number of machines that were not under Pomptonian's control; some were identified as belonging to other operators, including Mr. Valladares, and others were just abandoned. In addition, there was testimony from Mr. Nazziola that he was interested in having a vending machine installed in School #5. He contacted another principal, Mr. Petrillo, a longtime principal in the District, to see how this could be arranged. When Mr. Petrillo told him that there was no problem and he had made arrangements for a vending machine in the lounges before, Mr. Nazziola then spoke to Mr. Valladares about his installing a machine in the building. It is clear from the testimony that Mr. Nazziola did not think that he had to contact the Central Office about installing a machine in the teachers' lounge, and this was borne out by the testimony of Mr. Petrillo. The District pointed to a prior 2007 memo from Mr. Fiscella to Mr. Valladares regarding the chain of command as proof that the respondent knew that he should have consulted with his supervisor before installing the vending machine in the teachers' lounge. However, there was also testimony from Mr. Nazziola and Mr. Petrillo that principals were the parties in charge of the buildings. Since the installation of a vending machine in the teachers' lounge of the school building would directly involve the building that the principal supervised, it would not appear unreasonable for a custodian to rely on the authority of the principal to allow for its installation.¹³ Additionally, in this case the principal actually recruited Mr. Valladares to install a machine. While the District pointed out that there is a procedure to be followed in contracting with vendors and that the principal would not have the authority to approve entering into such a contract, this information is more pertinent to any charges that might be brought against Mr. Nazziola and not Mr. Valladares. I CONCLUDE that it was reasonable for Mr. Valladares, as a custodian, to rely on the authority of the school principal.

In large part the analysis that was put forward in Charge 1 applies to Charge 2 as well. One of the differences that did exist was that instead of the principal soliciting Mr. Valladares to install a vending machine in the teachers' lounge, in School #8 the respondent consulted with the school principal, Mr. Petrillo, about buying a vending machine that was already installed in the teachers' lounge. The District, in its summation brief, cited Mr. Petrillo's testimony on cross-examination in which he denied that he gave permission to Mr. Valladares to run the machine. However, in the line prior, when asked if he gave the respondent permission to operate the vending machine in the building, Mr. Petrillo said:

I wouldn't say I gave permission. He discussed something right before I was going to be transferred back to the high school about acquiring ownership, see? You know, I didn't see anything, you know, wrong about that

Mr. Petrillo also testified that he had arranged for the installation of non-Promptonian vending machines in the high school; had spoken with Mr. Nazziola about the procedure for getting a vending machine in his school; and asserted that there was no District policy regarding machines in the teachers' lounge. It was clear from the totality of the testimony that Mr. Valladares believed that his supervisor had given him the go-ahead to keep a vending machine in School #8. Based on this, Mr. Valladares purchased the machine from Steve.

The District also pointed out that it was highly suspicious that Mr. Valladares purchased a machine from someone without even knowing that person's last name and his authority to transfer the vending-machine ownership to him. At first blush, this argument would seem persuasive. It certainly is not the usual arrangement for one not to know at least the last name of the person you are dealing with in a business enterprise. Secondly, it is uncommon in a business relationship to pay $2,000 in cash and not receive a receipt. However, after assessing Mr. Valladares on the stand, it is my opinion that he is not sophisticated in the business realm and could very well have made this arrangement on a handshake without knowing the full name of the seller or getting any kind of receipt. The fact that he did not report his earnings to the IRS could certainly get him into trouble with the federal government, but it does not bear on the charges before me.

Following the completion of the District's case, the respondent moved to have Charges 3 and 4 dismissed. Charge 3 states that during the 2010–2011 school year, while misappropriating public property by operating and receiving proceeds from a vending machine placed in School #5, Mr. Valladares neglected his duties and responsibilities as a custodian when he serviced the vending machine. This constituted conduct unbecoming a custodian, misbehavior, neglect, insubordination and other just cause for dismissal. Charge 4 was identical, except that it dealt with School #8. The respondent argued that there was no testimony that showed that Mr. Valladares had neglected his duty by servicing the vending machines, and therefore the District had failed to sustain its burden on those charges. The District argued that Mr. Valladares could in fact have been servicing the machines during work time, and that would amount to a theft of services. I reserved on the motion.

Having heard all of the evidence and read the summation briefs of the parties, I must CONCLUDE that the District has failed to meet its burden as to Charges 3 and 4, and therefore they must be dismissed. Mr. Valladares testified that he serviced each of the machines during his dinner/lunch hour either on break from his duties at School #5 or School #8 or at 8:30 p.m. after he completed his shift. The time for his lunch/dinner break was 4:00–5:00 p.m. while he was a custodian at School #8, although sometimes the break time was changed depending on whether he had something to do at the time. Once he was transferred to School #5 in February 2010 he would go back to School #8 to service the machine at his lunch/dinner time, which was 5:00–6:00 p.m. He took about twenty minutes to service the machine. He was never told by his superiors that he could not go back to School #8. Mr. Nazziola, who was principal of School #5 when Mr. Valladares was the custodian, testified that he worked from 7:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. He never saw Mr. Valladares servicing the vending machine during the time that he was in the building. Since he left the building at 4:00, this would mean that Mr. Valladares serviced the machine at School #5 after 4:00, which would fall into line with his dinner/lunch break. Mr. Faronea testified that while he was the head custodian at School #5, he worked the 6:00-a.m.-to-4:00-p.m. shift. Mr. Valladares worked from 12:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Mr. Faronea testified that once or twice a month he would stay late, and he saw Mr. Valladares servicing the machine at the school during the period from 5:00–6:00 p.m., which was Mr. Valladares' normal dinner break. Mr. Gerst, who was the custodian at School #8, testified that while Mr. Valladares was at that school, the respondent told him that he serviced the vending machine after 8:30 p.m., when he was done with his shift. After Mr. Valladares was transferred, Mr. Gerst recalled seeing Mr. Valladares servicing the vending machine at School #8 between the hours of 4:00 and 5:00 p.m.¹⁴

The District called attention to the fact that Mr. Gerst testified that he saw Mr. Valladares at School #8, after he had been transferred to School #5, servicing the vending machine between 4:00 and 5:00 p.m. The District pointed this out to show that Mr. Valladares was servicing the machine on school time. However, Mr. Gerst did not say that he saw Mr. Valladares doing this on a regular basis, and Mr. Valladares testified that his dinner hour was adjusted from time to time depending on the circumstances. While there is some discrepancy in the time that Mr. Valladares serviced the vending machines, it appears that this activity occurred during his dinner/lunch break. Ms. Cavallo testified that while Mr. Valladares was assigned to School #8 she saw him servicing the vending machine. However, she could not give any specific dates or times. In addition, there was no evidence that Mr. Valladares neglected his duties in order to service the machine, that he failed to perform any of his duties as a custodian, or that the building was not properly cared for. In fact, during the period of time in question, Mr. Valladares' evaluations showed that he was performing his duties adequately. Moreover, there was no testimony that Mr. Valladares was not allowed to leave the building during his "break time," at which point he could have gone to School #8 to service the vending machine.

It is the obligation of the District to prove the tenure charges by a preponderance of the credible evidence. The Commissioner, in In re Tenure Hearing of Grundfest, School District of Madison, Morris County, EDU 5326-98, Comm'r (June 20, 2000), rev'g Initial Decision (March 29, 2000), aff'd, State Bd. (November 1, 2000) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>, outlined what a board of education had to prove in order to meet its burden in a tenure charge:

Sustaining tenure charges for unbecoming conduct, however, is a very serious matter. . . . Since the penalty for ¹⁴ Mr. Gerst testified that he would stay until 5:00 because there was an after-school program that lasted until 5:00.

respondent would be severe, it is the Board's responsibility and its burden to prove by a preponderance of credible evidence [the tenure charges against respondent].

It is the District's obligation to prove that Mr. Valladares did in fact service the vending machines during the time that he was supposed to be performing his duties as a custodian, not that he could have been servicing the machines during this time. The evidence presented by the District or elicited on cross-examination does not bear out the fact that Mr. Valladares was servicing the vending machines when he should have been working or that he neglected his custodian duties in order to service the machines. Therefore, Charges 3 and 4 must be dismissed.

The District also alleged that the fact that Mr. Valladares installed machines in the schools amounted to a theft of public funds, since under the contract with Pomptonian the proceeds from the vending machines would be turned over to the District. If the revenue from the food program fell short, then it would have to be supplemented by the local tax levy. By installing the vending machine in School #5, the District was deprived of revenue that could have been generated by that vending machine. However, there were was no proof that Pomptonian operated vending machines in any of the teachers' lounges and that the proceeds from those machines would ever find their way into the public coffers.

There is also a question of what happened to the money that Mr. Valladares was to turn over to school officials at Schools #5 and #8. Mr. Nazziola testified that he received two payments from Mr. Valladares that amounted to $11. This money was kept in cash and was supposed to be used for student activities, although there was no accounting by the principal of the vending-machine money. Mr. Petrillo remembered receiving some money from Mr. Valladares, and Mr. Gerst recalled Mr. Valladares, on one occasion, asking him to take an envelope containing vending-machine money to the main office. The vending-machine money from School #8 was held in cash, as well, in a strong box, and was not formally accounted for. Neither of the principals required any kind of formal accounting and basically believed that Mr. Valladares gave an honest accounting of the amount due. Therefore, the evidence does not sustain any charge of misappropriation of funds by Mr. Valladares during the time that Mr. Nazziola and Mr. Petrillo were principals. The evidence is not as clear with regard to School #5 when Ms. Cavallo was principal.¹⁵ Mr. Valladares testified that he never discussed the vending-machine arrangement with Ms. Cavallo, and assumed that she had somehow been made aware of the situation. He stated that once he was transferred, he periodically slipped envelopes containing the school's percentage of the proceeds from the vending machine under the door of the main office. Mr. Gerst, the custodian of the school, testified that he opened the school and the main offices each morning and never found any envelopes containing money. When asked if he thought that Mr. Gerst had appropriated the money, Mr. Valladares said that he was not accusing anyone of stealing.

Determinations often turn on credibility. Credibility is the value that a finder of the facts gives to the testimony of a witness. The process of evaluating the credibility of witnesses entails: (a) observing demeanor; (b) evaluating the ability to recall specific details; (c) considering the consistency of the testimony under direct and cross-examination; (d) determining the significance of any inconsistent statements or evidence; and (e) otherwise developing a sense of the witness's candor. This requires an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency and the manner in which it "hangs together" with the other evidence. See Carbo v. U.S., 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963), cert. denied sub. nom., Palermo v. U.S., 377 U.S. 953 (1964).

In evaluating the weight, trustworthiness and reliability of the evidence, factors such as motive, bias, confirming witnesses or statements, corroborative evidence, and common sense must be considered. Frequently, the trier of fact relies on the innate sense of whether the testimony has the ring of truth.

¹⁵ There was testimony from Mr. Picardo that the secretary at School #5 had $88 in an envelope in her desk for one year. While this was School #8 and not School #5, this could bolster Mr. Valladares' testimony that his method of payment was to leave cash in an envelope in the main office.

I found both Ms. Cavallo's and Ms. Kistner's testimony that they never received an envelope containing cash from vending machines to be credible. They do not appear to have been aware of any arrangement regarding the vending machines. That leaves the testimony of Mr. Gerst and Mr. Valladares. While Mr. Valladares' method of paying the schools their share of the proceeds of the vending machines was far from orthodox, it appears to have been consistent. Both Mr. Nazziola and Mr. Petrillo testified that they received payments, albeit small, from Mr. Valladares on a regular basis when they were the principals of Schools #5 and #8. Therefore, either Mr. Valladares decided to keep the proceeds from the vending machine at School #8 after Mr. Petrillo left, or someone else took the envelopes that he said he left under the door for the principal. On cross-examination, Mr. Valladares refused to implicate Mr. Gerst as the person who stole the envelopes. I could not discern from the testimony presented whether Mr. Valladares or Mr. Gerst was more credible, or if another person took the alleged envelopes filled with vending-machine money. In addition, the District failed to link-up the proceeds of the vending machine with any theft of funds from the taxpayers of Belleville. There was no testimony that demonstrated that the proceeds from the vending machines were to be used to defray District expenses and that the loss of that revenue would affect the school budget.¹⁶ Since the District has the burden to prove the theft by a preponderance of the evidence, and since it did not meet its burden, I must CONCLUDE that the charge of theft regarding money from the School #8 vending machine was not sustained.

In Charge 6 the District alleged that Mr. Valladares made intentionally false statements to the superintendent and his direct supervisor, in that, when asked at the meetings held after the "break-in," he denied having any vending machines in the District other than the one in School #8. This amounted to insubordination. "Insubordination" has been found in an employee's "'willful refusal of submission' to the authority of [his or] her superiors." Laba v. Bd. of Educ., 23 N.J. 364, 385 (1957)

¹⁶ Since there was no testimony that Pomptonian ever dealt with vending machines in the teachers' lounges in the District and since both principals testified that the money received was never turned over to the District and was not used to defray District expenses, the connection between the vending-machine money and the theft of District funds could not be supported.

(quoting Harrison v. State Bd. of Educ., 134 N.J.L. 502, 505 (Sup. Ct. 1946)). It has also been defined as the willful and intentional disregard of the lawful and reasonable directives of an employee's duly authorized supervisor. In re Tenure Hearing of Motley, supra, EDU 7421-97, Initial Decision (May 5, 1999), modified, Comm'r (August 4, 1999), adopted, State Bd. of Education (December 1, 1999), <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>. Mr. Picardo testified that Mr. Valladares was asked at the first meeting, in mid-July 2011, whether he was operating vending machines in the District other than the one discovered at School #8, and that Mr. Valladares responded "no." Mr. Picardo stated that at the second meeting, the respondent did not say anything about owning/operating another vending machine. (Mr. Picardo did not know the exact date when the second machine was removed from the school.) Mr. Appleton said that at the first meeting, Mr. Valladares said "no" to the question of whether he was operating another machine in the District. Mr. Appleton stated that at the time of the second meeting, Mr. Valladares did not mention anything about having another machine in the District. However, Mr. Appleton did not recall when the vending machines were impounded and did not know if that occurred before or after the first meeting. Mr. Fiscella, who also attended the meetings, testified that Mr. Valladares was asked at the first meeting if he had machines in the District besides the one in School #8, and that he responded "no." Mr. Fiscella stated that the vending machines were ordered removed from the schools sometime between the first and second meetings. Mr. Gerst stated that he did not recall Mr. Valladares being questioned about other vending machines at the first meeting, and he did not know if other vending machines were discussed at the second meeting. Mr. Valladares testified that at the first meeting the District did not mention any other vending machines at School #5, and did not ask if he owned any other vending machines in the District. He stated that he removed the machine in School #5 before the July meeting, which he indicated was the first meeting. He said that he did so because Mr. Nazziola had left the school, and he was the one who had requested the machine. Since he was leaving, he thought that he should remove the vending machine from the school. This explanation does not hold water. Mr. Valladares had left the vending machine in School #8 even after Mr. Petrillo, the person with whom he had discussed buying the machine, left the school. It is clear that once Mr. Valladares got wind of the fact that machines were being impounded and he was under suspicion, he removed the machine from School #5. The respondent's argument that at the time he was asked if he had another machine in the District he had already removed the machine, and therefore his answer was correct, is disingenuous. As the District pointed out, "whether he [Valladares] removed the machine at School #5 before or after meeting with District officials, he removed it to conceal its existence and avoid further potential punishment." If Mr. Valladares was forthcoming, he would have divulged the fact that he had been operating another machine in the District. He did not do so. Obviously, once the respondent realized that an investigation was underway, he attempted to cover his tracks. I therefore CONCLUDE that his failure to disclose the existence of the other vending machine in the District was an act of insubordination.

PENALTY

The question then becomes what punishment should be meted out to the respondent on Charge 6. The Board seeks Valladares' dismissal. Factors to be taken into account in making a penalty determination include the nature and circumstance of the incidents or charges, the teacher's (employee's) prior record and present attitude, the effect of such conduct on the maintenance of discipline among the students and staff, and the likelihood of such behavior recurring. In re King, EDU 4241-00, Final Decision (February 25, 2002), <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>, (citing In re Suitt-Green, EDU 538-07, Final Decision (February 25, 2002), <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>). There is no doubt that Mr. Valladares was not above board when he did not reveal that he was operating another vending machine in the District. Having been alerted to the investigation of the vending machines, Mr. Valladares tried to cover his tracks by not being up front with the District and by removing the second vending machine without notifying the District. This behavior stands in sharp contrast to his otherwise unblemished record in over eight years of employment. While the District has argued and cited cases that stand for the proposition that one bad act is cause for removal of tenure and termination of position, the cases by and large dealt with theft by the employee. In this case, I found that the District did not prove that Mr. Valladares was guilty of theft. I also note that, based on Mr. Valladares' position as a custodian, the effect on the maintenance of discipline among the students and staff, should the respondent be returned to his position, would be minimal. On the other hand, the respondent's argument that other employees who were also involved in the vending-machine incident were not disciplined is not persuasive. Mr. Valladares must be judged by his own actions and not those of other employees who may or may not be brought up on charges. Weighing all of these factors, I CONCLUDE that the proper penalty for Mr. Valladares' insubordination is forfeiture of his pay for a period of 120 days; he should thereafter be returned to his position as a custodian in the District.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that Mr. Valladares forfeit 120 days of pay, following which he should be returned to his position as a custodian in the Belleville School District.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the decision of the respondent Board to terminate her employment as a teacher through a reduction in force (RIF) at the end of the 2010-2011 school year. Petitioner was continuously employed by the Board from 1997 through June 2011. Petitioner contended that the Board offered teaching contracts to other school employees with less seniority than petitioner, in violation of her tenure and seniority rights. Petitioner filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; petitioner was employed under tenure at the time of the RIF and plainly met the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5; the Board gave no consideration whatsoever to the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10 prior to terminating petitioner's employment; and upon petitioner's termination, the Board retained elementary teachers with no prior experience in the district. The ALJ concluded that petitioner must be immediately reinstated to her position of employment, and must be compensated for all lost salary, benefits and emoluments, less mitigation, retroactive to the date of her termination.

Upon careful and independent review, the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions and, accordingly, adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL granting summary decision to petitioner. The Commissioner ordered the Board to reinstate petitioner as an elementary school teacher with salary and all benefits retroactive to June 30, 2011, less any mitigation.

The Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – has reviewed the record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law, wherein the Administrative Law Judge concluded that petitioner’s tenure rights were violated when respondent “RIF’d” her while retaining teachers with less seniority in the position of elementary education teacher.¹ As the record fully supports that conclusion, the Deputy Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case.

Accordingly, summary decision is granted in favor of petitioner. Respondent shall reinstate petitioner as an elementary school teacher with salary and all benefits retroactive to June 30, 2011, minus any mitigation.

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Deborah Bearg, a teacher employed by the Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth (the Board), asserts that the Board terminated her employment effective June 30, 2011, in contravention of her tenure and seniority rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 et seq. She seeks reinstatement and back pay retroactive to the date of her termination.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Bearg filed her appeal with the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) on August 22, 2011. An answer was filed on behalf of the Board, and the contested case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), on September 13, 2011.

In or about June 2010, the Board terminated several-hundred employees pursuant to a reduction in force (RIF); more than eighty of these employees have pending petitions challenging their terminations as violative of the tenure laws. Discovery and settlement discussions relative to these cases have been the subject of bi-monthly status conferences between counsel and me. In June 2011, additional school district employees were RIF'd, among them Bearg. These additional petitions have been case-managed together with those filed in 2010. At one such status conference several claims, including that filed by Bearg, were discussed at length; it appeared to petitioners' counsel that seven petitioners had lengthy tenures in the district. Counsel questioned how it was determined that these teachers should be RIF'd while other, ostensibly less-senior staff members, had been retained by the district. Board counsel advised that he would investigate the matter.

Accordingly, a case-management Order dated November 22, 2011, provided as follows:

Seven petitioners were identified who appear to have long tenures in the district (Schwartz, Jones, Kologi, Simmons, Clayton, Meade and Bearg). By December 9, 2011, Mr. Lehman will advise me and counsel regarding the district's position as to these petitioners

Via letter from counsel dated December 16, 2011, the Board advised that, “[t]he District’s position is that the said Petitioners were subject to a reduction-in-force due to budgetary reasons” (C-2.) I considered this statement to be non-responsive to my Order, and I so advised in correspondence dated December 20, 2011. (C-3.) I directed counsel to supply a substantive explanation “why the district RIF’d seven petitioners who appear to clearly have rights superior to retained staff members.”

That explanation came via letter from Board counsel dated January 13, 2012. (C-4.) Citing the expense of tenure charges, counsel stated that school administration is “of the belief that poor teachers should not be in the classroom, regardless of tenure.” Relative specifically to Bearg, counsel stated on behalf of the Board that she was RIF’d because,

[s]he is believed to live out of her car, despite receiving a full teacher’s salary. She attends any function where she can pocket free food. A DYFS complaint was dismissed and she refused to go for an independent exam at the Board’s expense. The undersigned had to request a school nurse to talk to her several times about personal hygiene, as all of the people near her complained regularly.

Counsel noted that, “[t]he District cannot in good conscience subject the District’s students to potential physical and emotional harm.” Counsel went on to advise that “it does not take an accountant to see that the least productive, ineffective employees should be rified, as the law requires the best possible education for students.” It is noteworthy that at no time did counsel advise me that Bearg was chosen to be RIF’d because she was non-tenured.¹

Via letter dated January 19, 2011, I directed that counsel for Bearg file a motion for summary decision, and he did so on February 24, 2011. The Board filed its opposition to the motion on March 27, 2012. Bearg responded to that opposition with a supplementary certification and brief on April 17, 2012. Upon review of the submissions of the parties, via letter dated May 3, 2012, I directed that they supplement the record with additional documents and factual details. They did so via letters and certifications. The record closed upon receipt of a final letter from counsel for the Board on June 6, 2012.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The material facts are not in dispute. I FIND:

Bearg is the holder of an instructional certificate issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners, bearing an endorsement as a teacher of elementary education. Her certificate was issued in 1977. Bearg was employed continuously by the Board from November 3, 1997, through June 30, 2011. From 1997 until the end of the 2005-2006 school year, Bearg served as a teacher in the "Division of Staff Development." It is uncontroverted that Bearg's function was to fill in for teachers who were absent from their classrooms because they were engaged in staff-development training.

The district has characterized Bearg's role during the first nine years of her employment as that of a "replacement" or "substitute teacher." Bearg urges in her supplemental certification that in actuality she performed all the responsibilities of any other classroom teacher during this time period. She points out that administration provided evaluations to her in October 2000, October 2001, October 2002, October 2003, May 2005, and March 2006, which expressly note that she is "tenured." Professional Improvement Plans (PIP) completed in 2003 and 2005 include a section denoted "for non-tenured" where the evaluator may recommend reappointment; although the forms are otherwise completely filled out, this portion is blank in Bearg's PIP, leading to the obvious conclusion that she was viewed as already holding tenure status.

During the years 2006-2009 there is no contention that Bearg served as anything but a regular classroom teacher, as follows:

- 2006-2007 – Teacher of Sixth Grade
- 2007-2008 – Teacher of Second Grade²
- 2008-2009 – Teacher of Preschool

Bearg was reemployed for the 2009-2010 school year. A contract was issued to her dated May 14, 2009, reemploying her for the entire school year, and assigning her as a pre-kindergarten teacher at the Albert Einstein Academy. A second, identical contract was issued to her on June 29, 2009. But come September, Bearg was told to report to the Imperial Building, a district administrative location, and to an assignment that was non-instructional.

The Board asserts that it paid Bearg to do absolutely nothing once it assigned her to the Imperial Building. Bearg replies that she engaged in “various professional duties including curriculum related matters affecting the district’s science department.” (Bearg certif. (May 23, 2012).) Thereafter, at its meeting of September 17, 2009, the Board placed Bearg on a “paid administrative leave effective September 18, 2009.” (Lehman certif., exhibit 3.) Bearg remained in this status, “assigned” to the district administration building (the Mitchell Building) with the citizens of Elizabeth again paying her to do absolutely nothing, until June 30, 2011. She then was advised that her contract for the 2011-2012 year was being rescinded “[d]ue to a continuing need to implement a reduction in force.” Notwithstanding the Board’s present contention that Bearg is nontenured, she was further advised that she would “be placed on a recall list in accordance with [her] tenure, certification and seniority rights.” (Lehman certif., exhibit 3 (March 26, 2012).)

The certification of counsel for the Board, dated May 24, 2012, renews the Board’s performance-related concerns, stating as follows:

When she was reporting to the Mitchell Building, as a result of complaints from other staff on administrative leave, there were serious concerns over [Bearg’s] performance, interactions with staff and students and her mental health . . . [Staff] began complaining to the District about bizarre and unusual behavior exhibited by the Petitioner in their presence. These complaints included lack of personal hygiene, bizarre behavior in the administrative leave room, and information that Petitioner appeared to be living in her car.

The Board urges that it sought unsuccessfully to send Bearg for an independent medical examination. She replies with a letter from counsel dated June 29, 2010, which clearly agrees to the evaluation, albeit with certain stipulations as to when the evaluation will take place and what materials will be supplied to the evaluator. (Hunter letter, exhibit A (June 1, 2012).) Mr. Hunter notes, and Board counsel does not dispute, that to date he has received no reply to his letter.

Board counsel certifies that staff "with tenure achieved going back to 2002" were also RIF'd in 2011. More to the point, however, minutes of the meeting of the Board throughout the fall of 2011 reveal the appointment of several new hires in the area of elementary education shortly after Bearg was RIF'd. These include teachers who earned their college degrees as late as 2010. (Attachment to Spear certif.).

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Bearg seeks relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, which provides that summary decision should be rendered "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." Our regulation mirrors R. 4:46-2(c), which provides that "[t]he judgment or order sought shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law."

A determination whether a genuine issue of material fact exists that precludes summary decision requires the judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the allegedly disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. Our courts have long held that “if the opposing party . . . offers . . . only facts which are immaterial or of an insubstantial nature, a mere scintilla, ‘Fanciful frivolous, gauzy or merely suspicious,’ he will not be heard to complain if the court grants summary judgment.” Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 529 (1995) (quoting Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co., 17 N.J. 67, 75 (1954)).

The “judge’s function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial.” Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 540 (quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 249, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2511, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202, 212 (1986)). When the evidence “is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law,” the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 252, 106 S. Ct. at 2512, 91 L. Ed. 2d at 214. I CONCLUDE that this matter is ripe for summary decision. There are no material facts in dispute, and Bearg is entitled to the relief she seeks as a matter of law. Bearg challenges the good faith of the Board, asserting that her RIF was not the result of a need to effectuate economies; she further asserts that upon determining to RIF her the Board failed to give proper consideration to her tenure and/or seniority rights. While she is right on both counts, the facts reflect that this case is really about the bona fides of the Board’s decision to reduce force.

Tenure is a legislative status, earned by operation of law, and upon meeting the precise requirements of the tenure statute. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63 (1982); Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65 (1962); N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18. The tenure laws were “designed to aid in the establishment of a competent and efficient school system by affording to principals and teachers a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service.” These statutory protections notwithstanding, economic exigencies may necessitate the lay-off of tenured staff. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. But the law is unequivocal that such dismissals must be made “for reasons of economy or because of reduction in the number of pupils . . . or for other good cause”; and on the basis of seniority according to standards established by the Commissioner. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10; see N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1; Howley v. Ewing Bd. of Educ., 1982 S.L.D. 1328, 1339, aff'd, 1983 S.L.D. 1554; Impey v. Shrewsbury Bd. of Educ., 142 N.J. 388, 398 (1995) (citing In re Maywood Bd. of Educ., 168 N.J. Super. 45, 55 (App. Div. 1979). The Commissioner has recognized that “[w]hile the Board is vested with extensive management power to employ, promote, transfer and dismiss, it must exercise that power within the constraints imposed by the tenure law . . . [t]o hold otherwise would render meaningless the protections afforded by the tenure system.” Smith v. Berlin Bd. of Educ., EDU 06584-03S, Initial Decision (August 6, 2004), aff'd, Comm’r (September 17, 2004), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>.

A presumption of correctness attaches to a local board’s decision to reduce staff. The petitioning teacher generally will not prevail where there exists any reasonable justification for the reduction in force, and absent proof of bad faith. See Klig v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Palisades Park, 1975 S.L.D. 168, 173-174; Maywood, supra, 168 N.J. Super. 45. Accordingly, Bearg’s burden is a weighty one, but nonetheless one she has readily met. The Board averred in its formal answer, and initially informed me via letter, that it dismissed Bearg for reasons of economy. The Board’s real reason for dismissing Bearg was dissatisfaction with her performance. The Board reiterated that performance and mental-health concerns motivated its decision to RIF Bearg in counsel’s May 2012 certification.

Indeed, counsel’s January 13, 2012, letter reveals that the Board and its administration do not care for our tenure laws. Accordingly, they appear to believe that they can simply disregard the laws’ requirements. The Board, through counsel, is nothing if not candid; readily admitting that Bearg was “RIF’d” to avoid the expense and uncertainty of tenure charges. Counsel writes:

. . . the District cannot in good conscience subject its students to teachers who cannot teach. Further, this District’s experience with tenure charges is that it is a long, expensive process which, except for extreme physical abuse seems to result in poor, incompetent teachers being returned to the classroom.

If the Board feels that Bearg acted in a manner that is inconsistent with her professional responsibilities, a statutory mechanism exists through which to seek her removal. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. To date, the Board has taken no steps to comply with the tenure charge procedures codified at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. and I CONCLUDE that Bearg remains deprived of the salary and benefits of her tenured position of employment, in clear violation of her rights. The Board further asserts that Bearg failed to agree to submit to a psychiatric examination, thus justifying its action in terminating her. This argument is the proverbial "red herring," as it is clear that the Board advised Bearg that it terminated her to effectuate economies, and for no other reason.³

The Board's contention that Bearg was untenured is devoid of merit. This argument was never asserted prior to the filing of the pending motion; is utterly disingenuous and inconsistent with the position taken by the Board in prior correspondence and other documents; and buttresses my conclusion that this Board has acted in bad faith. Indeed, if the Board perceived that Bearg lacked tenure why did it place her on a series of paid non-instructional reassignments rather than summarily terminate her when it became concerned about her performance, demeanor, and mental health? Moreover, why did the Board admit that she was tenured in its answer to the petition? In any event, it is uncontroverted that Bearg was employed for three years under her teacher of elementary education certificate during the years 2006-2007 through 2008-2009. She was reemployed in September 2009, reported to work and was paid under a contract for professional services. It is thus unnecessary to reach the issue of whether Bearg's service as an alleged replacement teacher was that of a substitute teacher within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1. I CONCLUDE that Bearg plainly has met the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, and that she was employed under tenure at the time of her RIF.

Finally, it is clear that this Board gave no consideration whatsoever to the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10 prior to terminating Bearg's employment. Upon her termination, the Board retained elementary teachers with no prior experience in the district.⁴ I CONCLUDE that Bearg must be immediately reinstated to her position of employment, and be compensated for all lost salary, benefits and emoluments of employment, less mitigation, retroactive to the date of her termination.

³ If the Board was acting pursuant to its authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-4, I would have expected to have received a copy of a letter placing Bearg on a sick leave pending evidence of recovery, rather than a copy of a letter to her citing the need to effectuate economies.

ORDER

Bearg's motion for summary decision is GRANTED. The Board is ORDERED to reinstate Bearg to the position of teacher, with all salary, benefits and emoluments of this position, less mitigation, retroactive to June 30, 2011.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

⁴ The district argues that the scope of Bearg's seniority remains an issue for plenary hearing, even if she did have tenure. This argument is a non-starter. Berg's rights clearly superseded those of the non-tenured staff newly employed by the district in 2011 after she was terminated. See Capodilupo v. W. Orange Bd. of Educ., 218 N.J. Super. 510, 514 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 109 N.J. 514 (1987).

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, who holds an instructional certificate with an endorsement as a teacher of social studies, appealed the decision of the respondent Board to terminate her employment through a reduction in force (RIF) at the end of the 2010-2011 school year. Petitioner was continuously employed by the Board from 2004 through June 2011. Petitioner contended that the Board offered employment for which she was qualified to other teachers who were untenured or had less seniority, in violation of her rights pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 et seq. Petitioner filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; petitioner was employed under tenure at the time of the RIF and plainly met the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5; the Board gave no consideration whatsoever to the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10 prior to terminating petitioner's employment; and upon petitioner's termination, the Board retained teachers of social studies with no prior experience in the district. The ALJ concluded that petitioner must be immediately reinstated to her position of employment, and must be compensated for all lost salary, benefits and emoluments, less mitigation, retroactive to the date of her termination.

Upon careful and independent review, the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions and, accordingly, adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL granting summary decision to petitioner. The Deputy Commissioner ordered the Board to reinstate petitioner as an elementary school teacher with salary and all benefits retroactive to June 30, 2011, less any mitigation.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ELIZABETH,

Respondent.

Karen Murray, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: April 12, 2012

Decided: May 7, 2012

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Maureen Meade, a teacher employed by the Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth (the Board), asserts that the Board terminated her employment effective June 30, 2011, in contravention of her tenure and seniority rights under

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 et seq. She seeks reinstatement and back pay retroactive to the date of her termination.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Meade filed her appeal with the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) on October 31, 2011. An answer was filed on behalf of the Board, and the contested case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), on November 22, 2011.

In or about June 2010, the Board terminated several hundred employees pursuant to a reduction in force (RIF); more than eighty of these employees have pending petitions challenging their terminations as violative of the tenure laws. Discovery and settlement discussions relative to these cases have been the subject of bi-monthly status conferences between counsel and me. In June 2011, additional school district employees were RIF'd, among them Meade. These additional petitions have been case managed together with those filed in 2010. At one such status conference several claims, including that filed by Meade, were discussed at length; it appeared to petitioners' counsel that seven petitioners had lengthy tenures in the district. Counsel questioned how it was determined that these teachers should be RIF'd while other, ostensibly less-senior staff members, had been retained by the district. Board counsel advised that he would investigate the matter.

Accordingly, a case management order dated November 22, 2011, provided as follows:

Seven petitioners were identified who appear to have long tenures in the district (Meade, Jones, Kologi, Simmons, Clayton, Meade and Bearg). By December 9, 2011, Mr. Lehman will advise me and counsel regarding the district's position as to these petitioners budgetary reasons” (C-2.) I considered this statement to be non-responsive to my order, and I so advised in correspondence dated December 20, 2011. (C-3.) I directed counsel to supply a substantive explanation “why the district RIF’d seven petitioners who appear to clearly have rights superior to retained staff members.”

Via letter from counsel dated December 16, 2011, the Board advised that, "[t]he District's position is that the said petitioners were subject to a reduction-in-force due to

That explanation came via letter from Board counsel dated January 13, 2012. (C-4.) Citing the expense of tenure charges, counsel stated that school administration is “of the belief that poor teachers should not be in the classroom, regardless of tenure.” Relative specifically to Meade, counsel stated on behalf of the Board that she was RIF’d because “[s]he had a DYFS complaint and after its dismissal . . . refused to obtain independent clearance at the Board’s expense. She is accused of belligerent behavior toward students, staff and supervisors and demonstrated the same over a year” Counsel went on to advise that “it does not take an accountant to see that the least productive, ineffective employees should be rified, as the law requires the best possible education for students.”

Via letter dated January 19, 2011, I directed that counsel for Meade file a motion for summary decision, and she did so on March 12, 2011. The Board filed a reply on April 12, 2012, at which time the record closed.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The material facts are not in dispute. I FIND:

Meade is the holder of an instructional certificate issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners, bearing an endorsement as a teacher of social studies. Her certificate was issued in 1988. Meade was employed continuously in the Elizabeth schools from September 2004 through June 30, 2011. She taught seventh grade social studies during the 2004-2005 school year and high school social studies from 2005 through 2008. Meade was again appointed to a position as a high school social studies teacher in September 2008. But, “[a]s a result of numerous complaints, [Meade] was removed from her teaching duties and assigned to administrative duty from April 22, 2009, until the end of the 2008-2009 school year.” (Murray Certif.) Meade returned to an elementary school social studies classroom for the 2009-2010 school year, where she remained until May 11, 2010. The Board notes that Meade was then again placed on "administrative duty," due to "numerous additional complaints," and that she remained on paid status, but with no teaching responsibilities, until the date of her RIF in June 2011.

The certification of counsel filed in opposition to the pending motion notes that staff "who had achieved tenure as far back as 2002" were also RIF'd in 2011. More to the point, however, minutes of the meeting of the Board on October 3, 2011, also reveal the appointment of several new hires in the area of social studies in the fall of 2011, shortly after Meade was RIF'd. These include a teacher who earned her college degree in 2009, and another who earned a college degree in 2010. (Attachment to Oxfeld Certif.).

Meade seeks relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, which provides that summary decision should be rendered "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." Our regulation mirrors R. 4:46-2(c), which provides that "[t]he judgment or order sought shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law."

A determination whether a genuine issue of material fact exists that precludes summary decision requires the judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the allegedly disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. Our courts have long held that "if the opposing party . . . offers . . . only facts which are immaterial or of an insubstantial nature, a mere scintilla,

'Fanciful frivolous, gauzy or merely suspicious,' he will not be heard to complain if the court grants summary judgment." Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 529 (1995) (quoting Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co., 17 N.J. 67, 75 (1954)).

The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 540 (quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. 242, 249, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2511, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202, 212 (1986)). When the evidence "is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law," the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 252, 106 S. Ct. at 2512, 91 L. Ed. 2d at 214. I CONCLUDE that this matter is ripe for summary decision. There are no material facts in dispute, and Meade is entitled to the relief she seeks as a matter of law. Meade challenges the good faith of the Board, asserting that her RIF was not the result of a need to effectuate economies; she further asserts that upon determining to RIF her the Board failed to give proper consideration to her tenure and/or seniority rights. While she is right on both counts, the facts reflect that this case is really about the bona fides of the Board's decision to reduce force.

Tenure is a legislative status, earned by operation of law, and upon meeting the precise requirements of the tenure statute. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63 (1982); Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65 (1962); N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18. The tenure laws were "designed to aid in the establishment of a competent and efficient school system by affording to principals and teachers a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service." These statutory protections notwithstanding, economic exigencies may necessitate the lay-off of tenured staff. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. But the law is unequivocal that such dismissals must be made "for reasons of economy or because of reduction in the number of pupils . . . or for other good cause"; and on the basis of seniority according to standards established by the Commissioner. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10; see N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1; Howley v. Ewing Bd. of Educ., 1982 S.L.D. 1328, 1339, aff'd, 1983 S.L.D. 1554; Impey v. Shrewsbury Bd. of Educ., 142 N.J. 388, 398 (1995) (citing In re Maywood Bd. of Educ., 168 N.J. Super. 45, 55 (App. Div. 1979)). The Commissioner has recognized that "[w]hile the Board is vested with extensive management power to employ, promote, transfer and dismiss, it must exercise that power within the constraints imposed by the tenure law . . . [t]o hold otherwise would render meaningless the protections afforded by the tenure system.” Smith v. Berlin Bd. of Educ., EDU 06584-03, Initial Decision (August 6, 2004), aff’d, Comm’r (September 17, 2004), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>.

A presumption of correctness attaches to a local board’s decision to reduce staff. The petitioning teacher generally will not prevail where there exists any reasonable justification for the reduction in force, and absent proof of bad faith. See Klig v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Palisades Park, 1975 S.L.D. 168, 173-174; Maywood Bd. of Educ., supra. Accordingly, Meade’s burden is a weighty one, but nonetheless one she has readily met. The Board averred in its formal answer, and initially informed me via letter, that it dismissed Meade for reasons of economy. The Board’s real reason for dismissing Meade was dissatisfaction with her performance. Indeed, counsel’s January 13, 2012, letter reveals that the Board and its administration do not care for our tenure laws. Accordingly, they appear to believe that they can simply disregard the laws’ requirements. The Board, through counsel, is nothing if not candid; readily admitting that Meade was “RIF’d” to avoid the expense and uncertainty of tenure charges. Counsel writes:

. . . the District cannot in good conscience subject its students to teachers who cannot teach. Further, this District’s experience with tenure charges is that it is a long, expensive process which, except for extreme physical abuse seems to result in poor, incompetent teachers being returned to the classroom.

But if the Board feels that Meade has acted in a manner that is inconsistent with her professional responsibilities, a statutory mechanism exists through which to seek her removal. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. To date, the Board has taken no steps to comply with the tenure charge procedures codified at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. and I CONCLUDE that Meade remains deprived of the salary and benefits of her tenured position of employment, in clear violation of her rights.

The Board's contention that Meade was untenured is so devoid of merit as to barely warrant response. The argument is disingenuous and buttresses my conclusion that this Board has acted in bad faith. Indeed, if the Board perceived that Meade lacked tenure why did it place her on a series of paid non-instructional reassignments rather than summarily terminate her when it began to receive "numerous complaints" about her performance and demeanor? In any event, it is uncontroverted that Meade was employed for more than three years and a day as a teacher of social studies, and that she held a proper certificate in full force and effect during that time. I CONCLUDE that Meade plainly has met the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, and that she was employed under tenure at the time of her RIF.

Moreover, it is clear that this Board gave no consideration whatsoever to the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10 prior to terminating Meade's employment. She had worked in the district for seven years; upon her termination, the Board retained teachers of social studies with no prior experience in the district. The Board unsuccessfully argues that Meade's lack of elementary seniority serves to defeat her claims.¹ Our courts have held that "seniority provides a mechanism for ranking all tenured teaching staff members so that reductions among the tenured force can be effected in an equitable fashion and in accord with sound educational policies." Capodilupo v. W. Orange Bd. of Educ., 218 N.J. Super. 510, 514 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 109 N.J. 514 (1987). Accordingly, the regulations specify precise categories of prior employment to which a tenured employee such as Meade may assert an entitlement in the event of a RIF. N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1.

But our case law recognizes that Meade's entitlements are more expansive than her seniority rights. A tenured staff member remains entitled to retention as against a non-tenured teacher, regardless of seniority. Our courts have held that "[t]o hold otherwise would be to defeat the purpose of tenure[,] which was to give a measure of security to teachers after the prescribed number of years of service." Id. at 515. Meade unequivocally held tenure; her tenure rights extended to any positions for which she was qualified under the social studies endorsement to her instructional certificate. Accordingly, the retention in September 2011 of new hires to teach social studies clearly violated Meade's rights. This is the case regardless whether Meade earned elementary seniority. See Bednar v. Westwood Bd. of Educ., 1985 S.L.D. 627, aff'd, State Bd., 1986 S.L.D. 2993, rev'd and remanded, 221 N.J. Super. 239 (App. Div. 1987), certif. denied, 110 N.J. 512 (1988).

I CONCLUDE that Meade must be immediately reinstated to her position of employment, and be compensated for all lost salary, benefits and emoluments of employment, less mitigation, retroactive to the date of her termination.

ORDER

Meade's motion for summary decision is GRANTED. The Board is ORDERED to reinstate Meade to the position of teacher, with all salary, benefits and emoluments of this position, less mitigation, retroactive to June 30, 2011.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner filed a pro se residency appeal in February 2011 challenging the determination of the respondent Board that her niece, A.A., was not eligible for a free public education in the South Plainfield school district. Petitioner failed to appear at a November 2011 hearing in this matter, despite having received appropriate notice thereof. Accordingly, the Commissioner – by decision issued January 10, 2012 – dismissed the matter with prejudice but remanded the case to the OAL for supplementation of the record with regard to the amount of tuition counterclaimed by the Board. A hearing on this issue was conducted on June 25, 2012 at the OAL; the petitioner again failed to appear despite appropriate notice.

The ALJ found that: Y.C. enrolled her niece in respondent's schools on January 24, 2011; on March 7, 2011, Y.C. presented the respondent with proof of guardianship over A.A.; A.A. was ineligible for a free public education in South Plainfield for the period from January 24, 2011 to March 7, 2011; and the amount of tuition due for this period is $2,828. The ALJ concluded that the Board is owed tuition reimbursement for A.A.'s period of ineligible attendance, and ordered petitioner to pay the respondent $2,828.

After independent review and consideration, the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – concurred with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE	:
BOROUGH OF SOUTH PLAINFIELD,	:

RESPONDENT.	:

This matter originally came before the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – as a challenge to respondent's determination that A.A. had been ineligible to receive a free public education from respondent between the dates of January 24, 2011 and March 7, 2011. In consequence of petitioner's failure to appear at the hearing scheduled for November 28, 2011 in the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and her failure to provide an explanation for the non-appearance within the allotted time, the Deputy Commissioner upheld respondent's determination and remanded the case to the OAL for a determination as to the amount of tuition owing.

On June 25, 2012, a hearing was held in the OAL for that purpose. The record indicates that notice of the hearing was sent to petitioner, but she did not attend. Respondent's witness testified about respondent's daily tuition rate and about the number of days of A.A.'s ineligible attendance. The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found the testimony credible and unrefuted, and concluded in a June 26, 2012 Initial Decision that the amount of tuition due for A.A. is $2,828.00.

On July 12, 2012, two weeks after the second hearing in this case, a letter from petitioner was received in the Commissioner's office wherein she 1) stated that respondent's representative never told her that she would be liable for tuition until she secured legal custody of A.A., and 2) conceded that she "now recognize[s] that [she] must appear before the courts to better explain [her] circumstances." There is no indication that a copy of the letter was sent to petitioner or its counsel.

The Deputy Commissioner cannot consider petitioner's letter, as it is not competent evidence and was not a part of the record in the OAL.^{1 2} Nor has any legitimate explanation been offered for petitioner's non-participation in the proceedings prior to this date. Accordingly, the Deputy Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case. Petitioner is liable to respondent for tuition in the amount of $2,828.00.

IT IS SO ORDERED.³

DEPUTY COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Decision: 8/03/12

Date of Mailing: 8/06/12

¹ If the letter was meant as an exception to the Initial Decision, it was untimely filed and therefore was not considered.

³ This decision may be appealed to the Superior Court, Appellate Division, pursuant to P.L. 2008, c. 36 (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1).

BEFORE: MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 10, 2011, petitioner Y.C. filed an appeal on behalf of A.A. and challenged the residency determination by respondent Board Of Education of the Borough of South Plainfield, Middlesex County (Board). A hearing was scheduled at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for February 28, 2011. Petitioner received notice of the hearing but failed to appear and provided no explanation for the nonappearance. Consequently, the matter was returned to the agency pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4, Failure to appear.

The Acting Commission of Education dismissed the petition with prejudice but remanded the matter for supplementation on the amount of tuition counterclaimed by the Board.

A hearing was conducted on June 25, 2012 and the record closed on that date.

ISSUE

The issue in this proceeding is the amount of tuition owed by petitioner to the Board.

Mary Muglia is employed by respondent in the position Enrollment Secretary. Her duties include processing applications for student enrollment. Muglia testified that on January 24, 2011, Y.C. attempted to enroll A.A., her niece in the school district. Muglia informed Y.C. that under the regulations, A.A. was ineligible for free tuition. On March 7, 2011, Y.C. presented to the Board proof of guardianship over. The Board accepted A.A. application for enrollment to the school district, effective March 7, 2011.

Muglia calculated the tuition due from January 24, 2011 to March 7, 2011. The tuition for each student, grades nine to twelve, per school year (180 days) is $18,140.00. Muglia applied the per diem rate of $101.00 to the amount of days (28) A.A. attended school. Consequently, $2,828.00 represents tuition owed for the period A.A. was ineligible.

The evidence presented by the Board was credible and unrefuted.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

The state of New Jersey provides that “public schools shall be free to . . . any child who is domiciled within the school district.” N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). The domicile of a minor child follows that of his parents. See V.R. on behalf of A.R. v. Bd. of Ed. Of Hamburg, 2 N.J.A.R. 283, 286. N.J.S.A. 18A-38-1(b)1, reads in part:

Any person who is kept in the home of another person domiciled within the school district and is supported by such other person gratis as if he were such other person’s own child, upon filing by such other person with the secretary of the board of education of the District, if so required by the board, a sworn statement that he is domiciled in the District and is supporting the child gratis and will assume all personal obligation for the child relative to school requirements and that he intends so to keep and support the child gratuitously for a longer time than merely through the school term, and a copy of his lease if a tenant, or a sworn statement by his landlord acknowledging his tenancy if residing as a tenant without a written lease, and upon filing by the child’s parents or guarding with the secretary of the board of education a sworn statement that he is not capable of supporting or providing care for the child due to a family or economical hardship and that the child is not residing with the resident of the District solely for the purpose of receiving a free public education in the District. The statement shall be accompanied by documentation to support the validity of the sworn statement, information from or about which shall be supplied only to the board and only to the extent that it directly pertains to the support or nonsupport of the child. If in the judgment of the board of education the evidence does not support the validity of the claim by the resident, the board may deny admission to the child.

I FIND AS FACT A.A. was ineligible for free public school education from the period of January 24, 2011 to March 7, 2011.

I CONCLUDE $2,828.00 represents tuition owed by Y.C. to the Board.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that Y.C. reimburse the Board of Education of the Borough of South Plainfield, Middlesex County $2,828.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the decision of the respondent Board to terminate her employment as a teacher through a reduction in force (RIF) at the end of the 2010-2011 school year. Petitioner was continuously employed by the Board from 1997 through June 2011. Petitioner contended that the Board offered teaching contracts to other school employees with less seniority than petitioner, in violation of her tenure and seniority rights. Petitioner filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no material facts at issue, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; petitioner was employed under tenure at the time of the RIF and plainly met the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5; the Board gave no consideration whatsoever to the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10 prior to terminating petitioner's employment; and upon petitioner's termination, the Board retained elementary teachers with no prior experience in the district. The ALJ concluded that petitioner must be immediately reinstated to her position of employment, and must be compensated for all lost salary, benefits and emoluments, less mitigation, retroactive to the date of her termination.

Upon careful and independent review, the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions and, accordingly, adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL granting summary decision to petitioner. The Deputy Commissioner ordered the Board to reinstate petitioner as an elementary school teacher with salary and all benefits retroactive to June 30, 2011, less any mitigation.

The Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – has considered the record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law, wherein the Administrative Law Judge concluded that petitioner had earned tenure as an elementary education teacher in respondent’s district,¹ and that her tenure rights were violated when respondent 1) “RIF’d” her in June 2011, and 2) failed to recall her for service in September 2011, even as it hired nine new elementary education teachers.² As the record fully supports that conclusion, the Deputy Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case.³

² The identification of the new hires was presented in an un rebutted certification by NJEA Field Representative Jack Spear, with attached copies of excerpts from respondent’s September 15, 2011 and October 3, 2011 Supplemental Personnel Reports.

³ Respondent’s exceptions were reviewed and found to be without merit.

Accordingly, summary decision is granted in favor of petitioner. Respondent shall reinstate petitioner as an elementary school teacher with salary and all benefits retroactive to June 30, 2011, minus any mitigation.

SUMMARY DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 12244-11

AGENCY DKT. NO. 255-9/11

VALERIE JONES,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE

CITY OF ELIZABETH,

Respondent.

Gregory Syrek, Esq., for petitioner (Bucceri and Pincus, attorneys)

Karen Murray, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: May 23, 2012

Decided: June 29, 2012

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Valerie Jones, a teacher employed by the Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth (the Board), asserts that the Board terminated her employment effective June 30, 2011, in contravention of her tenure and seniority rights under

N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 et seq. She seeks reinstatement and back pay retroactive to the date of her termination.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Jones filed her appeal with the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) on September 2, 2011. An answer was filed on behalf of the Board, and the contested case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), on October 7, 2011.

In or about June 2010, the Board terminated several hundred employees pursuant to a reduction in force (RIF); more than eighty of these employees have pending petitions challenging their terminations as violative of the tenure laws. Discovery and settlement discussions relative to these cases have been the subject of bi-monthly status conferences between counsel and me. In June 2011, additional school district employees were RIF'd, among them Jones. These additional petitions have been case-managed together with those filed in 2010. At one such status conference several claims, including that filed by Jones, were discussed at length; it appeared to petitioners' counsel that seven petitioners had lengthy tenures in the district. Counsel questioned how it was determined that these teachers should be RIF'd while other, ostensibly less-senior staff members, had been retained by the district. Board counsel advised that he would investigate the matter.

Accordingly, a case-management Order dated November 22, 2011, provided as follows:

Seven petitioners were identified who appear to have long tenures in the district (Schwartz, Jones, Kologi, Simmons, Clayton, Meade and Bearg). By December 9, 2011, Mr. Lehman will advise me and counsel regarding the district's position as to these petitioners

Via letter from counsel dated December 16, 2011, the Board advised that, "[t]he District's position is that the said Petitioners were subject to a reduction-in-force due to budgetary reasons” (C-2.) I considered this statement to be non-responsive to my Order, and I so advised in correspondence dated December 20, 2011. (C-3.) I directed counsel to supply a substantive explanation “why the district RIF’d seven petitioners who appear to clearly have rights superior to retained staff members.”

That explanation came via letter from Board counsel dated January 13, 2012. (C-4.) Citing the expense of tenure charges, counsel stated that school administration is “of the belief that poor teachers should not be in the classroom, regardless of tenure.” Relative specifically to Jones, counsel stated on behalf of the Board that she was RIF’d because:

[s]he was routinely insubordinate and her classroom evidenced a total lack of control and showed no evidence of teaching or learning. She allowed students to come and goes [sic] as they wished and left students unsupervised; the DYFS allegations were of physical abuse.

Counsel noted that, “[t]he District cannot in good conscience subject the District’s students to potential physical and emotional harm.” Counsel went on to advise that “it does not take an accountant to see that the least productive, ineffective employees should be riffed, as the law requires the best possible education for students.” It is noteworthy that at no time did counsel advise me that Jones was chosen to be RIF’d because she was non-tenured; in fact, to the contrary, counsel justified the District’s action by pointing out that the tenure charge process is protracted, costly, and produces uncertain results.

Via letter dated January 19, 2011, I directed that counsel for Jones file a motion for summary decision, and he did so on February 27, 2011. The Board filed its opposition to the motion on March 27, 2012. Jones responded with a supplementary certification and brief on April 4, 2012. Upon review of the submissions of the parties, via letter dated May 3, 2012, I directed that the Board supplement the record with additional documents and factual details. Counsel did so via letter and certification. The record closed on May 23, 2012.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The material facts are not in dispute. I FIND:

Jones is the holder of an instructional certificate issued by the New Jersey State Board of Examiners, bearing endorsements as an elementary school teacher and nursery school teacher. Her certificate was issued in 1981. Jones was employed continuously by the Board from November 3, 1997, through June 30, 2011.

In its initial opposition to Jones's motion the Board certified that she served as a replacement teacher, or substitute, until November 16, 2007. Jones related her employment history differently, urging that she was assigned as a regular classroom teacher a good bit earlier, so I asked the Board to supply me with her employment contracts. At that point, the Board's version of Jones's employment history changed dramatically. A review of the documents supplied, and the certifications of the parties, reveals that they cannot entirely agree on what grade Jones taught each year. But the salient concern for purposes of this motion; that is, whether Jones was employed as a tenure eligible teacher for three years and a day, is not controverted. The record reveals the following employment history in the Elizabeth Public Schools:

- November 3, 1997-June 1998: Replacement Teacher
- 1998-1999: Replacement Teacher
- 1999-2000: Replacement Teacher (per contract, although Jones contends she served as a First-Grade Teacher)
- 2000-2001: Teacher/Tutor Fourth Grade (per contract, although Jones contends that she served as a Third-Grade Teacher)
- 2001-2002: Fifth-Grade Teacher (per contract, although Jones contends that she served as a First-Grade Teacher)
- 2002-2003: First-Grade Teacher

- 2003-2004: First-Grade Teacher (contract simply states “ten month tenure,” additional documentation reflects that the assignment was to Fifth Grade)
- 2004-2005: First-Grade Teacher (contract simply states “tenure contract”)
- 2005-2006: Jones recalls that she was a replacement teacher, but she was issued a contract that stated “tenure contract”
- 2006-2007: Dual language, then Fifth-Grade Teacher (contract states First Grade)
- 2007-2008: First-Grade Teacher
- 2008-2009: First-Grade Teacher
- 2009-2010: Paid “administrative leave” (reported to Imperial and Mitchell Buildings)
- 2010-2011: Paid “administrative leave” (reported to Mitchell building)

In a certification submitted in opposition to the pending motion, counsel for the Board notes as follows:

Petitioner’s first tenurable position was during the 2000-2001 school year when she served as a Teacher-Tutor. During the 2001-2002 school year, Petitioner was appointed as a 1st grade Teacher. During the 2002-2003 school year, Petitioner was appointed as a 5th grade teacher. Thus, the earliest that Petitioner would have been eligible for tenure as an elementary school teacher would have been the second day of school during the 2003-2004 school year or September 2, 2003. That would have given her three years and one day of service in an elementary position and under the statute she would have achieved tenure.

The documentation supplied by the Board reveals that Jones indeed was appointed for the 2003-2004 year as a regular classroom elementary teacher, although the precise grade level appears to be the source of some confusion. Nonetheless, per counsel’s representation in his certification, all agree that at least as of September 2003, when she returned to the classroom, Jones had worked for the Board for three years and a day as regular classroom teacher.

When not serving as a regular classroom teacher, Jones served as a teacher in the "Division of Staff Development." It is uncontroverted that Jones's function was to fill in for teachers who were absent from their classrooms because they were engaged in staff development training. The district has characterized Jones's role when so assigned as that of a "replacement" or "substitute teacher." Jones urges in her supplemental certification that in actuality she performed all the responsibilities of any other classroom teacher during this time period.

Jones contends that she was assigned to a first-grade classroom for the 2009-2010 school year. But via letter dated August 20, 2009, she was advised to report to the Imperial Building, a district administrative location. Via Board resolution dated March 18, 2010, Jones was reassigned to the Mitchell Building, retroactive to January 29, 2010. According to counsel for the Board, these reassignments entailed no teaching responsibilities and have been characterized by the district as "administrative leave." But Jones continued to be paid until June 30, 2011. She then was advised via letter dated June 30, 2011, that her contract for the 2011-2012 year was being rescinded "[d]ue to a continuing need to implement a reduction in force." Notwithstanding the Board's present contention that Jones is non-tenured, she was further advised that she would "be placed on a recall list in accordance with [her] tenure, certification and seniority rights." (Jones Certif., Exhibit A.)

In addition to its performance-related concerns, the Board questioned Jones's fitness to teach; via resolution dated May 6, 2010, it directed that she submit to psychiatric and medical examinations. Counsel for the Board urges that Jones did not comply with this directive; Jones's counsel vigorously disagrees, stating that he requested a hearing before the Board, as was Jones's right, and received no reply to his request.

Minutes of the meeting of the Board throughout the fall of 2011 reveal the appointment of several new hires in the area of elementary education shortly after Jones was RIF'd. These include teachers who earned their college degrees as late as 2010. (Attachment to Spear Certif.)

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Jones seeks relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, which provides that summary decision should be rendered “if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.” Our regulation mirrors R. 4:46-2(c), which provides that “[t]he judgment or order sought shall be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law.”

A determination whether a genuine issue of material fact exists that precludes summary decision requires the judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the allegedly disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. Our courts have long held that “if the opposing party . . . offers . . . only facts which are immaterial or of an insubstantial nature, a mere scintilla, ‘fanciful frivolous, gauzy or merely suspicious,’ he will not be heard to complain if the court grants summary judgment.” Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520, 529 (1995) (quoting Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co., 17 N.J. 67, 75 (1954)).

The “‘judge’s function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial.” Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 540 (quoting Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. 242, 249, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2511, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202, 212 (1986)). When the evidence “is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law,” the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 252, 106 S. Ct. at 2512, 91 L. Ed. 2d at 214. I CONCLUDE that this matter is ripe for summary decision. There are no material facts in dispute, and Jones is entitled to the relief she seeks as a matter of law.¹ Jones challenges the good faith of the Board, asserting that her RIF was not the result of a need to effectuate economies; she further asserts that upon determining to RIF her the Board failed to give proper consideration to her tenure and/or seniority rights. While she is right on both counts, the facts reflect that this case is really about the bona fides of the Board's decision to reduce force.

Tenure is a legislative status, earned by operation of law, and upon meeting the precise requirements of the tenure statute. Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63 (1982); Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65 (1962); N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18. The tenure laws were "designed to aid in the establishment of a competent and efficient school system by affording to principals and teachers a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service." These statutory protections notwithstanding, economic exigencies may necessitate the lay-off of tenured staff. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9. But the law is unequivocal that such dismissals must be made "for reasons of economy or because of reduction in the number of pupils . . . or for other good cause;" and on the basis of seniority according to standards established by the Commissioner. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10; see N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1; Howley v. Ewing Bd. of Educ., 1982 S.L.D. 1328, 1339, aff'd, 1983 S.L.D. 1554; Impey v. Shrewsbury Bd. of Educ., 142 N.J. 388, 398 (1995) (citing In re Maywood Bd. of Educ., 168 N.J. Super. 45, 55 (App. Div. 1979)). The Commissioner has recognized that "[w]hile the Board is vested with extensive management power to employ, promote, transfer and dismiss, it must exercise that power within the constraints imposed by the tenure law . . . [t]o hold otherwise would render meaningless the protections afforded by the tenure system." Smith v. Berlin Bd. of Educ., EDU 06584-03S, Initial Decision (August 6, 2004), aff'd, Comm'r (September 17, 2004), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>.

A presumption of correctness attaches to a local board's decision to reduce staff. The petitioning teacher generally will not prevail where there exists any reasonable justification for the reduction in force, and absent proof of bad faith. See Klig v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Palisades Park, 1975 S.L.D. 168, 173-174; In re Maywood Bd.

of Educ., supra. Accordingly, Jones's burden is a weighty one, but nonetheless one she has readily met. The Board averred in its formal answer, and initially informed me via letter, that it dismissed Jones for reasons of economy. The Board's real reason for dismissing Jones was dissatisfaction with her performance.

Indeed, counsel's January 13, 2012, letter reveals that the Board and its administration do not care for our tenure laws. Accordingly, they appear to believe that they can simply disregard the laws' requirements. The Board, through counsel, is nothing if not candid; readily admitting that Jones was "RIF'd" to avoid the expense and uncertainty of tenure charges. Counsel writes:

. . . the District cannot in good conscience subject its students to teachers who cannot teach. Further, this District's experience with tenure charges is that it is a long, expensive process which, except for extreme physical abuse seems to result in poor, incompetent teachers being returned to the classroom.

If the Board feels that Jones acted in a manner that is inconsistent with her professional responsibilities, a statutory mechanism exists through which to seek her removal. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. To date, the Board has taken no steps to comply with the tenure charge procedures codified at N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq. and I CONCLUDE that Jones remains deprived of the salary and benefits of her tenured position of employment, in clear violation of her rights.²

The Board's contention that Jones was untenured is devoid of merit. This argument is disingenuous and buttresses my conclusion that this Board has acted in bad faith. Indeed, if the Board perceived that Jones lacked tenure why did it place her on a series of paid non-instructional reassignments rather than summarily terminate her when it became concerned about her performance, demeanor, and mental health? In any event, it is uncontroverted that Jones was employed for three years and a day as a regular classroom teacher and properly certificated during the years 2000-2001, 2001-2002, 2002-2003, and 2003-2004. It is thus unnecessary to reach the issue of whether Jones's service as an alleged replacement teacher was that of a substitute teacher within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1. I CONCLUDE that Jones plainly has met the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, and that she was employed under tenure at the time of her RIF.

² The Board asserts that Jones failed to agree to submit to a psychiatric examination. This concern is the proverbial "red herring," as it is clear that the Board advised Jones that it terminated her to effectuate economies, and for no other reason. If the Board was acting pursuant to its authority under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-4, I would have expected to have received a copy of a letter placing Jones on a sick leave pending evidence of recovery, rather than a copy of a letter to her citing the need to effectuate economies.

Finally, it is clear that this Board gave no consideration whatsoever to the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-10 prior to terminating Jones's employment. Upon her termination, the Board retained elementary teachers with no prior experience in the district. I CONCLUDE that Jones must be immediately reinstated to her position of employment, and be compensated for all lost salary, benefits and emoluments of employment, less mitigation, retroactive to the date of her termination.

ORDER

Jones's motion for summary decision is GRANTED. The Board is ORDERED to reinstate Jones to the position of teacher, with all salary, benefits and emoluments of this position, less mitigation, retroactive to June 30, 2011.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Before the Commissioner¹ is a proposed settlement concerning the disciplinary record of petitioners' minor child. In consequence of his review of the settlement, and of the Initial Decision which recommends its approval, the Commissioner makes the following observation.

The first provision of the agreement states, in pertinent part:

Upon M.G.'s graduation from the South Plainfield School District the disciplinary record concerning this September 27th, 2011, incident shall be removed from the student's record.²

For the following reason, the phrase "upon M.G.'s graduation" is problematic.

N.J.A.C. 6A:32-7.8(b) allows student disciplinary records to be destroyed while the student is still enrolled in a district. However, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:32-7.8(c), after the student has graduated or left the district, his records may be disposed of only in accordance with the Destruction of Public Records Law, N.J.S.A. 47:3-15 et seq. Records are classified by the State Records Committee into series and posted on a Records Retention and Disposition Schedule. Student disciplinary records have been assigned the Record Series Number 0012-0001. Records in that classification may not be destroyed until two years after the student's graduation or termination from the school system or age 23, whichever is longer.

Thus, if the intent of the parties is that M.G.'s disciplinary record be destroyed at the end of his high school career, it must be destroyed before M.G. graduates. Otherwise the disciplinary record must remain under respondent's control for at least two years.³

In summary, the Commissioner approves of the settlement terms and adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case, so long as the settlement is implemented in a manner that is consistent with N.J.A.C. 6A:32-7.8(b) and (c).

STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS DKT. NO. 0708-164
AGENCY DKT NO. 1-2/12A

IN THE MATTER OF THE :
REVOCATION OF THE CERTIFICATE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF RICHARD DECKERT BY THE : DECISION
STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS. :

Order of Revocation by the State Board of Examiners, December 2, 2009

For the Respondent-Petitioner, Richard Deckert, pro se

For the Petitioner-Respondent State Board of Examiners, Geoffrey N. Stark, Deputy Attorney General (Jeffrey S. Chiesa, Attorney General of New Jersey)

The Commissioner¹ has thoroughly reviewed the record and the papers filed in connection with respondent's appeal of the State Board of Examiners' Order of December 2, 2009, revoking his Teacher of the Handicapped Certificate (certificate).

On November 19, 2008, the petitioner entered a guilty plea for Assault by Automobile, N.J.S.A. 39:4-50, and Driving While Intoxicated, N.J.S.A. 39:4-50, stemming from a motor vehicle accident where an occupant in the petitioner's car was killed, and he was sentenced to a four-year term of incarceration. On May 14, 2009, the Board of Examiners sent the petitioner an Order to Show Cause why his certificate should not be suspended or revoked. The petitioner filed an Answer on June 29, 2009. The Board of Examiners sent the petitioner a hearing notice on July 10, 2009, and on July 29, 2009, the petitioner's mother provided a response to the Board of Examiners.

The Board of Examiners voted to revoke petitioner's certificate at a meeting on October 22, 2009, finding that his convictions constituted conduct unbecoming a teacher. The written decision was mailed to the petitioner on December 2, 2009 and re-sent to the petitioner on December 15, 2009.² On March 1, 2012, the petitioner filed a Petition of Appeal challenging the decision of the Board of Examiners.³

Upon such review, the Commissioner finds that the petitioner's March 1, 2012 petition was not timely filed in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:4-2.2. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:4-2.2., "[a]ppeals from final decisions of the Board of Examiners shall be filed within 30 days of the filing date of the decision from which appeal is taken." Moreover, under N.J.A.C. 6A:4-2.3(a), "[a] decision of the State Board of Examiners ... shall be deemed filed three days after the date of mailing to the parties." It is undisputed that on December 15, 2009, the Board of Examiners mailed its decision revoking the petitioner's certification, and as such the decision was deemed filed on December 18, 2009. As a result, the time for filing the appeal expired on January 18, 2010. It was not until two years later that the petitioner filed his appeal of the Board of Examiners' decision revoking his certification – well beyond the 30 day requirement contained in N.J.A.C. 6A:4-2.2.⁴ Accordingly, the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed as untimely.

DEPUTY COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Decision: 8/07/12

Date of Mailing: 8/07/12

² It is not clear from the record why the decision was re-sent to the petitioner.

³ By letter dated January 3, 2012 addressed to the Commissioner of Education, the petitioner expressed an interest in appealing the Board of Examiner's decision. Thereafter the petitioner filed a petition dated February 7, 2012. The petition however did not include proof of service on the Attorney General's Office in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:4-2.4(a)4. On March 1, 2012, the petitioner filed a petition that complied with N.J.A.C. 6A:4-2.4.

⁵ This decision may be appealed to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court pursuant to P.L. 2008, c. 36.

IN THE MATTER OF : NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
THE CERTIFICATE OF : STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS
RICHARD DECKERT : ORDER OF REVOCATION

RECEIVED NJ DOE
2009 DEC 16 P 2:03
DOCKET NO: 0708-164

At its meeting on May 11, 2009, the State Board of Examiners reviewed information received from the Atlantic and Burlington County Prosecutors' Offices indicating that on November 19, 2008, Richard Deckert had pled guilty to charges of Assault By Auto and Driving While Impaired (2nd Offense.) Deckert was sentenced to four years in prison and fined. Deckert currently holds a Teacher of the Handicapped certificate, issued in January 2002. Upon review of the above information, at its May 11, 2009, meeting, the State Board of Examiners voted to issue Deckert an Order to Show Cause.

The Board sent Deckert the Order to Show Cause by regular and certified mail on May 14, 2009. The Order provided that Deckert's Answer was due within 30 days. Deckert filed an Answer on June 29, 2009. In that response, he indicated that becoming a teacher was "one of the happiest and proudest moments in my life." (Answer, p. 1.) Deckert also recalled that he was in a horrible automobile accident and learned after he emerged from a coma that his friend had been killed in the accident. (Answer, p. 2.) He claimed that "we were both ejected from the vehicle so determining who was driving is not 100 percent." (Answer, p. 2.) He stated that he pled guilty to a lesser third degree charge because "I was the owner of the vehicle and found to have a blood-alcohol level that was just over the legal limit." (Answer, p. 2.) Deckert added that knowing he may have contributed to a friend's death "will last a lifetime." (Answer, p. 2.) Deckert hoped to return to the classroom after completing his sentence so he could help teach students "to not make any of the mistakes I've made in life." (Answer, p. 2.)

Thereafter, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.7(e), on July 10, 2009, the Board sent Deckert a hearing notice by regular and certified mail. The notice explained that it appeared that no material facts were in dispute, and thus, Deckert was offered an opportunity to submit written arguments on the issue of whether the conduct addressed in the Order to Show Cause constituted conduct unbecoming a certificate holder. It also explained that upon review of the charges against him and the legal arguments tendered in his defense, the State Board of Examiners would determine if his conviction warranted action against his certificate. Thereupon, the Board of Examiners would also determine the appropriate sanction, if any. Deckert was also provided the opportunity to appear before the Board to testify on the sanction issue.

On July 30, 2009, Deckert's mother responded and indicated that her son was "learning a lesson knowing [his friend] lost his life due to the horrible accident they were both in." (Hearing Response, p. 1.) She stated that teaching special needs children meant everything to her son and asked for leniency. (Hearing Response, p. 1.)

The threshold issue before the State Board of Examiners in this matter, therefore, is whether Deckert's conviction constitutes conduct unbecoming a certificate holder. At its meeting of October 22, 2009, the State Board of Examiners considered the allegations in the Order to Show Cause and Deckert's responses. The Board of Examiners determined that no material facts related to Deckert's offense were in dispute since he never denied that he had pled guilty to the offense charged and had been sentenced accordingly. Thus, the Board of Examiners determined that summary decision was appropriate in this matter. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.7(h). It is therefore ORDERED that the charges in the Order to Show Cause are deemed admitted for the purpose of this proceeding.

The State Board of Examiners must now determine whether Deckert's conviction, as set forth in the Order to Show Cause, represents just cause to act against his certificate pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.5. The Board finds that it does.

The State Board of Examiners may revoke or suspend the certification of any certificate holder on the basis of demonstrated inefficiency, incapacity, conduct unbecoming a teacher or other just cause. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.5. "Teachers... are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of ... school children. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment." Tenure of Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321. Moreover, the Commissioner has long held that teachers serve as role models for their students. Deckert's actions are inexcusable and certainly prevent him from laying claim as a role model to students.

Unfitness to hold a position in a school system may be shown by one incident, if sufficiently flagrant. Redcay v. State Bd. of Educ., 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct. 1943), aff'd, 131 N.J.L. 326 (E & A 1944). In this instance, Deckert's conviction for Assault By Auto and Driving While Impaired demonstrates egregious behavior that warrants revocation.

Accordingly, on October 22, 2009, the Board of Examiners voted to revoke Richard Deckert's Teacher of the Handicapped certificate. On this 2nd day of December 2009 the Board of Examiners voted to adopt its formal written decision and it is therefore ORDERED that the revocation of Deckert's certificate be effective immediately. It is further ORDERED that Deckert return his certificate to the Secretary of the State Board of Examiners, Office of Licensure, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625-0500 within 30 days of the mailing date of this decision.

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – concurs with the ALJ, for the reasons thoroughly set forth in the recommended Order, that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), and codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL denying petitioner's application for emergent relief is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. This matter shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.

DENYING EMERGENT RELIEF

JOHN MICHAELS,

Petitioner,

v.

NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, OFFICE OF CRIMINAL HISTORY REVIEW,

Respondent.

John Michaels, petitioner; pro se

Geoffrey N. Stark, Deputy Attorney General, for respondent (Jeffrey S.
Chiesa, Attorney General for New Jersey, attorney)

Record Closed: July 20, 2012

Decided: July 23, 2012

BEFORE ROBERT BINGHAM II, ALJ

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner John Michaels applies for emergent relief, challenging his disqualification from employment by respondent, New Jersey Department of Education,

Office of Criminal History Review (the Department), based upon a prior criminal conviction pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On June 25, 2012, the Department permanently disqualified petitioner from employment. Petitioner requested an emergent hearing and the Department of Education transmitted the case, as an emergent matter, to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on July 16, 2012, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1 et seq. and N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15. On July 20, 2012, an emergent hearing was held and the record was closed at the conclusion of the proceedings.

The material facts are undisputed. Accordingly, I FIND AS FACT the following.

On June 22, 2012, Michaels began his employment as a substitute custodian/maintenance employee for the Egg Harbor Township School District (the District). (P-1.) An Army veteran and father of two grown children, he was off to a good start on his new job. (P-1, P-2.) However, a routine background fingerprint search revealed a prior criminal history. (J-1.) Specifically, on November 9, 1990, in New Jersey Superior Court, Atlantic County, he was convicted of possession of narcotics paraphernalia, in violation of N.J.S.A. 2C: 36-6, for which he received a probationary sentence that was extended for one year on January 14, 1994. (J-2.)¹ Also, on November 8, 1984, he was convicted of possession of a controlled dangerous substance in Mineola County, New York,² for which he received a three-year probationary sentence. (J-3.) By letter dated June 25, 2012, the Department permanently disqualified Michaels from employment, citing reference to the above convictions.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

The standards which must be met by the moving party in an application for emergent relief are embodied in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6 and Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-34 (1982). Emergency relief may only be granted if the judge determines that:

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the relief is not granted;
2. The legal right underlying the petitioner's claim is settled;
3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

The petitioner must satisfy all four prongs of the Crowe test. The application of the above standard to the facts in this case yields the conclusion that petitioner has not met, as he must, all of the above criteria for emergent relief.

Irreparable Harm

Michaels argues that he will suffer irreparable harm if relief is not granted because he will face unemployment, lack of income, loss of benefits and probable foreclosure on his home. The Department argues that financial loss is insufficient to constitute irreparable harm and that there has been no showing that any such harm would be imminent.

Under Crowe, "harm is generally irreparable in equity, if it cannot be redressed adequately by monetary damages." Crowe v. DeGioia, supra, 90 N.J. at 133. In Morton v. Beyers, 822 F.2d 364 (3rd Cir. 1987), the petitioner claimed that job loss would result in irreparable harm, considering his need to pay his mortgage, car loan, child's college tuition and credit card payments. Noting that "the claimed injury . . . is purely economic in nature and thus compensable in money," the Third Circuit stated:

Although we are not insensitive to the financial distress suffered by employees whose wages have been terminated, we do not believe that loss of income alone constitutes irreparable harm. Indeed, the Supreme Court has observed that an insufficiency of savings or difficulties in immediately obtaining other employment -- external factors common to most discharged employees and not attributable to any unusual actions relating to the discharge itself -- will not support a finding of irreparable injury, however severely they may affect a particular individual.

Although Michaels may reasonably anticipate financial hardship, there is no showing of an absolute inability to obtain other employment. Moreover, he has demonstrated neither the type of injury nor any extraordinary circumstances to establish irreparable harm. What is more, there is no competent evidence that any such harm would be imminent. I therefore CONCLUDE that petitioner has not shown immediate harm that would constitute irreparable injury justifying issuance of injunctive relief.

Right to Underlying Claim Must be Settled

Petitioner asserts that the remoteness of his convictions should entitle him to demonstrate proof of rehabilitation, and thereby an opportunity to maintain his employment, as was allowed under the statute in effect when the convictions occurred.

The presence of a conviction for an enumerated offense identified during a criminal history record check disqualifies one from employment with a board of education under the supervision of the Department of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1. The enumerated offenses include any "offense involving the manufacture, transportation, sale, possession, distribution or habitual use of a 'controlled dangerous substance' as defined in the 'Comprehensive Drug Reform Act of 1987,' N.J.S.A. 2C:35-1 et seq. or 'drug paraphernalia' as defined pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:36-1 et seq.". N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7-1(b). And foreign convictions for offenses substantially similar to those proscribed in New Jersey constitute disqualifying convictions under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(d).

N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 was amended by L. 1998, c. 31, § 5, effective June 30, 1998, before which time subsection (e) of N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 stated that:

an individual shall not be disqualified from employment or service under this act on the basis of any conviction disclosed by a criminal record check performed pursuant to this act if the individual has affirmatively demonstrated to the Commissioner of Education clear and convincing evidence of his or her rehabilitation.

The 1998 amendment revised this section to state that:

an individual shall not be disqualified from employment or service under this act on the basis of any conviction disclosed by a criminal record check performed pursuant to this act without an opportunity to challenge the accuracy of the disqualifying criminal history record.

[Ibid.; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(e).]

Through this revision, the legislature eliminated the ability of disqualified persons to avoid disqualification upon proof of rehabilitation and instead limited their recourse to only challenging the accuracy of the criminal history record information.

The statute is applied prospectively to “criminal record checks conducted on or after the effective date of P.L.1998, c.31. . .”, which was June 30, 1998. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1(g). Thus, the date of the criminal background check is the determining factor as to which version of the statute applies. In Cidoni v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Camden and Dept. of Ed., Office of Criminal History, EDU 6088-03, Initial Decision (Jan. 11, 2006), adopted, Comm'r. (Feb. 27, 2006) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>, the administrative law judge (ALJ) found that the statute was clear on its face and that the petitioner was properly disqualified after a criminal record check uncovered a conviction from 1984, well before the statute’s 1998 effective date. Id. The ALJ and the Commissioner both held that it was the date that the criminal record check is conducted which controls, regardless of the date of petitioner’s offense. Id. If the prior conviction is a disqualifying offense at the time the criminal record check is conducted, the school employee is disqualified. Id.

Under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1, Michaels is disqualified from employment because the background check that revealed two proscribed convictions occurred well after the 1998 effective date of the statute, which mandates disqualification regardless of when the conviction occurred. And N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1 does not offer a waiver or an appeal process by which demonstration of rehabilitation can overcome permanent disqualification.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the law is settled, but not in petitioner’s favor. In this case, disqualification is mandatory and petitioner has no legal recourse by which to present proof of rehabilitation and thereby maintain his employment.

Reasonable Probability of Prevailing on the Merits

Michaels also argues that that there is a reasonable likelihood of success on the merits because the disqualifying conviction from Atlantic County was dismissed and the New York conviction is so remote that, had it been in New Jersey, it would have been expunged or the “statute of limitations would have run.” The Department argues that Michaels cannot prevail on the merits because the governing statute unequivocally mandates disqualification for employment of anyone with a qualifying conviction, and he does have such a conviction.

As indicated above, a conviction for an enumerated offense identified during a criminal history record check disqualifies one from employment with a board of education under the supervision of the Department of Education. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1. If the prior conviction is a disqualifying offense at the time the criminal record check is conducted, the school employee is disqualified, regardless of the date of the conviction. Cidoni, supra.

Michaels has a 1984 conviction for drug possession and a 1990 conviction for possession of drug paraphernalia, both of which are enumerated offenses that disqualify one from employment under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-7.1. Even if, for the sake of argument, he only had the 1984 conviction from New York, an offense sufficiently comparable to a disqualifying offense in New Jersey under N.J.S.A. 2C:35-1 et seq., the criminal record check in this matter was conducted in June 2012, approximately fourteen years after N.J.S.A. 18A: 6-7.1 became effective. Under the circumstances, the law mandates disqualification from employment regardless of when the conviction occurred.

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has not shown that he would have a reasonable probability of prevailing on the merits.

Relative Hardship to the Parties

The final test in considering the granting of emergency relief is the relative hardship to the parties in granting or denying relief in order to preserve the status quo pending a full hearing on the merits. Michaels argues that his financial hardship would be greater than any harm faced by the Department. The Department, on the other hand, argues that it would suffer the greater harm because the public has a greater interest in preventing persons with certain criminal convictions from working in the state's public schools. It is for that reason, that the legislature imposed permanent disqualification on individuals with such convictions.

On balance, I must agree that the greater harm would be to respondent because of the implications for the public interest. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has not shown that he would suffer a greater harm if relief were denied.

ORDER

Therefore, I hereby ORDER that petitioner's application for emergent relief is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE :
TOWNSHIP OF HILLSIDE,

RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner filed a pro se residency appeal on behalf of his son in April 2012. A hearing at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) was held on June 15, 2012, but petitioner failed to appear despite having received appropriate notice and provided no explanation for his nonappearance. Counsel for the Board did appear on June 15, 2012, and the ALJ conducted a hearing at which the Board presented ex parte proofs in support of its claim for tuition reimbursement.

The ALJ found that: petitioner failed to appear and prosecute his appeal of the Board's decision; the Board produced evidence at hearing that O.C. did not reside at the address where he purported to live; the Board presented ex parte proofs demonstrating that it is entitled to tuition reimbursement in the amount of $6,773. The ALJ concluded that the determination of the Board that O.C. was not domiciled in Hillside during the 2011-2012 school year should be upheld, and accordingly dismissed the petition and granted the Board's counterclaim for tuition in the amount of $6,773.

The Deputy Commissioner, to whom this matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33, concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusion, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter.

Upon review of the record of the instant residency dispute and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the Commissioner¹ concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that petitioner has failed to prove that the respondent Board of Education erred in its determination that petitioner and his minor child were not domiciled in respondent's school district during the 2011-2012 school year.² The Commissioner further concludes that the ALJ was correct in finding that respondent provided un rebutted evidence that it is due tuition in the amount of $6773.00.

BEFORE JESSE H. STRAUSS, ALJ:

¹ The caption transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law inadvertently designated O.C.-B. as the parent and O.C. as the minor child. According to the pro se residency appeal, O.C. is the parent and O.C.-B. is the minor child.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner O.C. appeals the determination of the respondent, Hillside Township Board of Education, that he is not domiciled in its district. The Board counterclaims for tuition reimbursement.

Petitioner filed an appeal with the Department of Education on April 5, 2012. The Board filed an answer and cross-petition for tuition reimbursement on May 4, 2012, and the contested case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on May 8, 2012. I scheduled a hearing for June 15, 2012, and a Notice of Plenary Hearing dated May 29, 2012, was sent to the parties advising them of the hearing date. The Notice of Plenary Hearing was sent to petitioner at the address listed in his pro se appeal. Counsel for the Board appeared on June 15, 2012. Petitioner failed to appear. I conducted a hearing on June 15, 2012, at which time the Board presented ex parte proofs in support of its claim for tuition reimbursement. Petitioner has provided me with no explanation for his failure to appear.

FINDINGS OF FACT

At hearing, the Board offered documentary evidence (R-1 to R-5) and the testimony of its residency investigator Alexander Munoz and residency coordinator Matthew Leonardis in support of its claim for tuition reimbursement. Based on the documentary and testimonial evidence presented to me, I find the following FACTS:

During the 2011-2012 school year, O.C.-B. attended the Hillside Public Schools. The Board initiated an investigation after O.C. was unable to produce adequate proofs of residency. Munoz observed the two-family home where O.C. purported to live with O.C.-B. from 6:00 a.m. to 9:00 a.m. on fifteen occasions between February 15, 2012, and June 14, 2012. He did not observe O.C.-B. exit the residence on any of those occasions although the child was present at school on each of those occasions. On January 17, 2012, Munoz knocked on the apartment door and learned that the apartment was occupied by a tenant other than O.C. On June 7, 2012, Munoz again knocked on the apartment door and discovered that the apartment was vacant. He took photographs of the vacant apartment. (R-2.) On June 15, 2012, Munoz received an e-mail from Theodore Frank, the owner of the house where O.C. purported to live, and learned that O.C. had not lived at those premises since June 2011. (R-3.)

The Board is seeking tuition reimbursement for a total of 100 days since Munoz began his investigation in January 2012, during which time O.C.-B. attended school in the District. The annual per-pupil cost for students in grades one through five is $12,193. The daily tuition rate for such a student is $67.73. This is calculated by dividing the per-pupil cost by 180. Accordingly, the amount of tuition sought by the Board for O.C.-B.'s period of ineligible attendance is $6,773.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Public schools are required to provide a free education to individuals between the ages of five and twenty years who are domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). Domicile has been defined as the place where a person has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which, whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 250 (1955). The domicile of an unemancipated child is that of her parent, custodian or guardian. P.B.K. ex rel minor child E.Y. v. Bd. of Educ. of Tenafly, 343 N.J. Super. 419, 427 (App. Div. 2001).

Where a local board determines that a child is not properly domiciled in its district, N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2) provides a right of appeal to the parents as follows:

The parent or guardian may contest the board's decision before the commissioner within 21 days of the date of the decision and shall be entitled to an expedited hearing before the commissioner and shall have the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the child is eligible for a free education under the criteria listed in this subsection.

Petitioner has failed to appear and prosecute his appeal of the Board's decision. He has failed to advise me of the reason for his nonappearance. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the determination of the Board that O.C. was not domiciled in Hillside during much of the 2011-2012 school year should be upheld and the petition of appeal should be dismissed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4.

The Board asserts that it is entitled to be reimbursed for tuition for the period of O.C.-B.'s ineligible enrollment in its schools. Where, as here, the evidence does not support the claims of the alleged resident, the Commissioner of Education is authorized to assess tuition pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2(a), which provides as follows:

If an appeal to the Commissioner is filed, where the appellant does not sustain the burden of demonstrating entitlement to attend the schools of the district, or abandons the appeal through withdrawal, failure to prosecute or any means other than settlement agreeing to waive or reduce tuition, the Commissioner may order assessment of tuition for any period of a student's ineligible attendance in a school district, including the 21-day period for filing of an appeal and the period during which the hearing and decision on appeal were pending.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) requires that tuition be calculated on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per-pupil cost to the district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance.

In accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(d), I accepted ex parte proofs from the Board relative to its tuition claim. The Board's proofs are convincing and its calculations are consistent with the requirements of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b) and N.J.A.C. 6A:22-6.2(a). Therefore, I CONCLUDE that the Board has demonstrated an entitlement to tuition reimbursement in the amount of $6,773.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I ORDER that the petition of appeal be DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE. I further ORDER that the Board's application for tuition reimbursement is GRANTED in the amount of $6,773.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – a tenured teacher holding an instructional certificate with endorsements in General Business Studies and Elementary Education – asserted that the respondent Board’s action in terminating her employment in a Reduction in Force (RIF) violated her tenure and seniority rights. Petitioner was employed by the Board from April 2000 until June 2010, when her position was eliminated. Petitioner was rehired by the Board in January 2011 as a retirement replacement, and taught through June 30, 2011; subsequently, petitioner retired in July 2011. The Board contended that petitioner was not appropriately certified for the positions held by less senior employees (the Intervenors) who were retained after the RIF; all of these individuals possessed the Teacher of Computer Science Technology (CST) endorsement which was required for teaching the rigorous curriculum offered in the Board’s five specialized and selective Career Academies. Petitioner had never worked in these academies, but rather had taught a population of general education vocational students and classified students in the district’s traditional vocational education schools.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the Board’s decision regarding certification requirements for teachers in its highly technical career academies was not arbitrary and is justified by the regulations; the Board’s determination that petitioner’s comprehensive business endorsement is not adequate for the technically oriented curriculum offered in the career academies is within its discretionary powers, and case law provides that such a decision by a local board of education should be honored. The ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to establish that she has the appropriate certification to claim seniority entitlement over any of the intervenors, all of whom hold the CST endorsement, and that the Board’s determination was not arbitrary or capricious. Accordingly, the ALJ dismissed the petition.

Upon independent review, the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – concurred with the ALJ’s findings and conclusions, and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. The petition was dismissed.

Petitioner's exceptions replicate the arguments advanced in her post-hearing and reply briefs below. In that these arguments were fully considered and addressed in the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) decision, they will not be revisited here.

² The grant of such extensions, however, necessitated that the Commissioner seek an extension of time within which to issue his final decision in this matter.

Upon a comprehensive review and reasoned consideration of the record – which included transcripts of the hearing conducted at the OAL on October 25 and 26, 2011 – the Commissioner determines to adopt the recommended decision of the ALJ. In so determining, the Commissioner finds that the record in this matter reveals the following:

Petitioner, a tenured teaching staff member who was subject to a Reduction In Force (RIF), effective June 30, 2010, charges that the Board retained non-tenured or less senior staff in subject areas where she was certified, thereby violating her tenure and seniority rights.² Specifically, petitioner claims entitlement to have taught the following courses during the first semester of the 2010-11 school year over individuals who were retained to teach them: 1) Communications Technology, 2) Computer Literacy Related Instruction, 3) Computer Applications, 4) Computer Information Technology, 5) Introduction to E-Commerce, 6) Animation, 7) Introduction to Animation, 8) Software Applications, and 9) Web Design.

Petitioner possesses an instructional certificate with a General Business Studies endorsement.³ Petitioner began employment with the District April 1, 2000:

- During the period April 1, 2000 through June 30, 2006 she taught Computer Information Technology courses in the Share Time Program⁴ at the Hazlet and then the Keyport school buildings and provided in-class support at 5 different Share Time buildings.

² It is noted that although petitioner was rified effective June 30, 2010, she subsequently was reemployed by the Board – in January 2011 – when she returned to work following the retirement of another teacher. Petitioner subsequently retired from employment with the Board effective July 2011. As such, petitioner seeks salary and emoluments she would have received for the first semester of the 2010-11 school year (September-December 2010) had she not been – as she maintains – improperly rified.

³ She additionally has a teacher of elementary education endorsement which has no bearing in this matter.

⁴ The Share Time program allowed students to attend their home school for half a day and receive vocational training during the other half of the day.

- During the period September 1, 2006 through June 2010 she taught office occupation courses and computer literacy courses in the Career Center⁵ campus.

In addition to its schools for the classified and general education vocational population at which petitioner taught, the District additionally operates five Career Academies – offering Career and Technical Education (CTE) programs which students are competitively selected to attend after submitting applications and taking exams.⁶ All of the courses to which petitioner claims seniority entitlement were solely offered at one of three of the District's Career Academies, i.e., High Technology High School, The Academy of Allied Health and Science or Communications High School. Petitioner has never taught any course at the advanced educational Career Academies of the District.

Because the District views the career and technical programs at the Career Academies as sequential, rigorous, integrated and challenging, it has uniformly taken the position that computer technology teachers in these schools must have extensive knowledge and experience in technology and computer science which it believes is evidenced by the possession of a Teacher of Computer Science Technology endorsement, which the district sees as a robust and sophisticated endorsement demanding a solid background in computer science to acquire it and, therefore, the only “appropriate” endorsement to teach these courses. Each of the intervenors who taught courses at issue in this matter has tenure and possesses the "appropriate" endorsement; petitioner does not have this endorsement.

⁶ The Academy of Allied Health & Science – designed for students whose interest is in the health science and medical areas; Biotechnology High School – focuses students on a college preparatory program related to biological research technologies and is suited for students interested in careers in pharmaceutical and biological research; Communications High School – designed for students interested in various communication technologies including computer applications, graphic design and publishing and network technologies; High Technology High School – a pre-engineering college preparatory program with an emphasis on technology, mathematics and science; and the Marine Academy of Science & Technology – which provides an educational program for students interested in marine and environmental science. See Exhibit R-7

For the reasons comprehensively presented on pages 18-24 of his Initial Decision, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's conclusion that:

[i]n the exercise of its judgment, no doubt in consultation with its expert employees, both past and present, who have testified in this case and whose expertise is deemed to be substantial, the Board of Education has determined that one teaching courses in the career academies, where the career paths are not oriented toward "business" as that relates to the more traditional office-type positions, must have an endorsement that is more technically oriented, with a broader focus on the technology and its use in these career paths than is suggested by the types of courses that are authorized to be taught by one holding a comprehensive business endorsement. That judgment seems justified by the regulations, by the focus which N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.2(a)9i(1) provides for the endorsement that Ms. Slivka holds. Again, this is not to say that she is not capable of actually teaching at least some of the courses at the Academy taught by the intervenors. But as the case law provides, the Commissioner, as well as the courts, are loath to interfere in such educational judgments. There appears nothing here that smacks of arbitrariness. The determination of the school district that Slivka's CTE is not the "appropriate" CTE for these courses should be honored. (Initial Decision at 24)

As petitioner does not have the "appropriate" endorsement to teach the courses at issue here at the Academies, her seniority claim of entitlement must fail.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.⁸

Record Closed: March 30, 2012

Decided: May 17, 2012

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

Kim J. Slivka was employed as a teacher by the Board of Education of Monmouth County Vocational School District (Board), but was the subject of a Reduction In Force (RIF) which caused her to lose her position, effective June 30, 2010. She was not employed by the Board again until January 2011, when she returned to work following the retirement of another teacher. Ms. Slivka retired in July 2011 and therefore did not teach after June 30, 2011. In this contested case, she argues that she was improperly bumped from her teaching position in June 2010, and seeks the benefits that she would have received had she not been bumped out of work during the first semester of the 2010-2011 school year. As her claim could affect the rights of other teachers, notice was provided as per my Order to other teachers who might be affected if Slivka were successful in her challenge to the Board's determination. Four intervenors were admitted into the case. A hearing was held on October 25 and 26, 2011. After receiving transcripts, counsel filed briefs and replies, which prompted a telephone conference with counsel regarding an issue that required clarification. Additional briefs and replies were submitted and the record closed on March 30, 2012.

Kim Slivka holds a B.A. degree in Business Administration and a Masters of Arts in Education. She holds an instructional certification with endorsements as a teacher of elementary education and general business studies. The General Business Studies endorsement, which is numbered 1320, no longer exists, but it is "grandfathered" into the "Comprehensive Business" endorsement, numbered 1300. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.2. The intervenors in this case, all teachers in the district, each hold a Computer Science Technology endorsement. Ms. Slivka has seniority over any of the intervenors. However, as will be explained, the Board and the intervenors contend that she is not qualified to teach the courses that were available during the first semester of the 2010-2011 school year, as she does not have the appropriate endorsement to do so. She disputes this assertion.

The Board operates several schools, amongst which are three schools, each of which has a particular career orientation: The Academy of Allied Health and Science, Communications High School, and High Technology High School. Board witnesses former Superintendent Dr. McAndrew and current Superintendent McCaskill each testified that at each of these "Career Academies", the academic curriculum is clustered around a career theme. Each of these schools has been established in accordance with approvals received from the New Jersey Department of Education as Career Technical Education (CTE) Programs.

Ms. Slivka graduated from Texas State University in 1982 and obtained her Masters in 2002. She has received training from Microsoft and was certified in Microsoft Excel, Microsoft Power Point and Microsoft Access. Prior to 2000, Ms. Slivka worked outside of the education field, owning her own flooring store and fabrication shop, where she was responsible for finance and marketing; setting up an accounting process using Peachtree Software Program; working for a botanicals company in the accounting department and then doing database development using Act software and working as a loan officer for a mortgage company. She started at Monmouth Vocational in April 2000. While working in the school district, she taught Computer Information Technology from 2000 through 2006. This was first taught in the Share Time program in the district's building in Hazlet, where cosmetology and auto mechanics were taught.¹ Later, the course was moved to a school located in Keyport. In this course, Word, Excel, Power Point, Access, Publisher, Microsoft Money, Adobe Photoshop, and Microsoft Front page were utilized. Each year there would be some upgrading of the materials, software and, sometimes, the computers. In 2005-2006, she was assigned to "in-class support" in the shared time buildings, working on assignments as generated by the school principal, also doing computer information technology "part time" as "they were in the process of closing the course down." She worked that year in five different share time buildings and assisted students and teachers with their "technology needs", assisting students with using the computer and helping them work on their projects, their spread sheets for keeping time and helping teachers "with e-mail programs" and getting them "proficient on the computer." In 2006-2007, Ms. Slivka was transferred to the career center where she taught "office occupations", described as a basic office skills course teaching students how to use copy machines, fax machines and computers. Macintosh computers were utilized, with software including Word, Excel, Power Point, Adobe, In Design, Illustrator and Photo Shop. Students were taught how to make spreadsheets, how to create databases, graphics, how to manipulate objects and how to use office equipment. She was also tasked to take some students who were not being challenged enough and work with them in the computer lab, where they worked on Windows-based computers toward Word Specialist certification, which she believes four or five of the students achieved by the end of the school year. In 2007-2008, she was assigned to the computer literacy center, which had as a course philosophy "the ability to use computers, to perform a variety of tasks is becoming fundamental to the learning process." Again, programs used were Word, Excel, Power Point. This course was conducted in the Career Center in Freehold, as was the office occupations course. In 2008-2009, she again taught these two courses in the same location. She was a leader of the technology team in the building during 2009-2010. This involved an attempt to develop a plan to assist teachers with integrating more technology into their programs.

Referring to her expert witnesses' report for a list of courses taught in the Monmouth Vocational School District and to the Board approved, course curriculum, Ms. Slivka was asked to comment upon her knowledge of and ability to teach the software programs utilized in these courses. So, for instance, she identified as used in the "Introduction to E Commerce" course and "Web Design" course, "Cold Fusion" as the scripting language inside "Dream Weaver"; "Flash" as a macro media software. She could teach these "immediately." In the "Introduction to Animation" course, she contended that she was "familiar" with "Final Cut Pro" and "I Stop Motion" and was "able to teach those immediately." She also could teach "Alice." She was not familiar with "Light Wave 7.5" listed as utilized in the "Introduction to Animation" course. She could teach "Flash" and "Adobe After Effects" "immediately." She is familiar with "office software and photo manipulation software" utilized in the this course.

On cross-examination, Slivka acknowledged that she had no endorsement as a Teacher of Computer Science Technology. The courses that she was asked to comment upon as to whether she could teach them and was familiar with the software utilized in these courses were all taught at the Vocational School District Academies.

She believed that some of the computer classes actually overlapped what she had taught, such as the "Software Applications" taught at the High Tech High School by intervenor Peter Borschardt, which she said was ninety-five percent of what she taught. She was unfamiliar with the "cluster program, the career technical education program" operated at High Tech High School. However, her review of the curriculum for the "Software Applications" course showed her that "it overlaps tremendously." The philosophy of the course, described in the Board approved curriculum, refers to "multitudes of engineering and daily challenges that can be solved through the use of a general computing device. . . . The study of application software will give the learners the tools he or she needs to solve engineering problems and communicate thoughts through the power of computing." Slivka acknowledged that she had no engineering degrees nor had she ever taught engineering. She had taught several of the software programs listed for the course, such as Microsoft Office, Adobe Photo Shop and Hyper-text Mark Up Language, but she had not taught others, such as Cascading Style Sheets and Adobe Dreamweaver or Alice Programming Language.

The petitioner agreed that the courses that were taught at Hazlet or at Keyport when she was teaching in those locations on the Shared Time program were auto body, auto mechanics, cosmetology and dental assistant, and, in later years, another allied health program. When she taught at the Career Center, every student attending was classified. The variety of courses at the Career Center included auto mechanics, horticulture, bakery and health occupations.

Martha O. DeBlieu, who was admitted to testify as an expert witness for Ms. Slivka regarding certification standards and the courses one is authorized to teach pursuant to such certifications as one may possess, is employed by the New Jersey Education Association as its Associate Director for Education Research and Issues Analysis, responsible for understanding and covering issues before the State Board of Education.² Since 1985, she has been familiar with licensing issues due to her long-standing involvement with reporting on these for the Association and first as a contact, and later as the primary contact, for members and staff of the Association regarding licensing and certification issues. As such, she has worked with the regulations and with personnel at the Department of Education concerning the licensing regulations and amendments thereto. This includes contact with the agency's Director of Licensure and Credentials. As a part of her advisory responsibilities, she was required to know the requirements for being able to teach various teaching assignments, including the teaching of computer subjects, a subject that has "come up frequently." In her capacity, Ms. DeBlieu fields inquiries from attorneys, field representatives and persons from other states, as well as the general public. Since September 2009, she has served as the staff contact with the NJEA certification, evaluation and tenure committee, which monitors developments related to these areas and recommends policy to the NJEA Delegate Assembly.

DeBlieu testified concerning a memorandum issued on July 25, 1985 by Leo Klagholz, then the DOE's Director of Teacher Preparation and Certification, in which Klagholz addressed the work of a task force formed to study certification in computer education. In that memo, Klagholz notes that no certificate existed for teaching computer education. Teachers of computer education were required to have a New Jersey Instructional certificate. Non-binding guidelines issued in the memo provided that teachers with any instructional endorsement "may use the computer as an instructional tool to enhance instruction at any grade level" and that "Teachers who hold any instructional endorsement and who have some preparation in computer education may teach courses in this area at the secondary level. The following preparation was considered important by the task force" There followed a listing of matters deemed either "essential" or "additional preparation." The memo ends: "Again, however, your decisions in this regard are not currently regulated by the state, except that your computer education teachers must possess an instructional certificate."

The witness noted that Ms. Slivka had a general business endorsement to her instructional certificate and that the DOE understood this to mean that under that endorsement the specific course work authorized included a series of topics as listed in the so-called "Matrix" or the "Cross-Walk," a document that carries the title of "Job and Certification Match File." The endorsement for general business studies is numbered 1320. Among the courses that one with the endorsement can teach are business law, banking and finance technology, banking and insurance principles, business mathematics, clerical office practices, travel marketing. Also, the matrix includes that "Computer Literacy/Applications/Programming" can be taught by anyone holding a certificate coded between 1000 and 2682. As the general business code is 1320, Slivka is authorized to teach these courses. There is nothing in the matrix which prohibits a teacher so authorized from teaching in a regular high school or a vocational high school. There is, however, a distinction in the administrative code between "educational technology" and "technology education." Such programs as computer network systems, computer service technicians, computer systems engineering and computer technology are "technology education."

"Educational technology" means the implementation of technology as an integral part of the instructional process across all curriculum areas that supports a learner centered environment.

"Technology education" means instruction by a teacher holding the Technology Education endorsement and covering New Jersey Core Curriculum Content Standard (NJCCCS) 8.2 and the International Technology Education Association (ITEA) standards. The ITEA standards are published in "Standards for Technological Literacy,"(c) ITEA, incorporated herein by reference, as amended and supplemented and are available at <http://www.iteaconnect.org/TAA/PDFs/xstnd.pdf>. The ITEA standards recognize the increasing reliance of modern society on a range of technologies, stress the incorporation of technological study into all aspects of the curriculum, and promote experiential learning about technology development, use, maintenance, and impact on the individual, environment, economy, and society as a whole. Examples of the topics that can be taught under NJCCCS 8.2 and the ITEA standards include, but are not limited to, the nature of technology; technology and society, engineering and technological design; abilities for a technological world; energy and power; information and communication; and transportation, manufacturing and construction technologies. A technology education endorsement does not provide an endorsement to teach educational technology and/or computer and information skills.

[N.J.A.C. 6A:9-2.1.]

DeBlieu understands these definitions to mean that educational technology is "basically the use of computers and computer software. Technology education is more along the lines of engineering . . . it is not about the use of computers and software. It's about the technological end of the computer. That's basically in that computer design and software design. . . . A person with a general business studies endorsement can teach educational technology but not technology education." DeBlieu testified

So there is a distinction between the course that is teaching about how to use computers and software that's available in the mass market versus a course that's teaching a technological, very career specific technological software about a career that happens to be using computers in the course of that.

THE COURT: So if I'm taking, and this is purely hypothetical, if I'm teaching an engineering course, wherever I'm teaching that engineering course and I'm using engineering software that helps design buildings, and I happen to be using a computer and the techniques of using a computer, that's the kind of educational technology that you're referring to as opposed to the technology education.

THE WITNESS: Well, the technology education person would be using that software, the engineering software. They're not teaching the person how to use computers.

THE COURT: Right.

THE WITNESS: They're using the computer and the software in the course of teaching the course. It's not that they're teaching a person how to use a computer or necessarily how they're employing that career specific software in terms of that particular career.

...

BY MR. FRIEDMAN: So does that mean, to try to put this in sort of a non-computer person's or lay person's terms, that, for example, Ms. Slivka could not teach an engineering course merely because there were computers, and even if she knew about those computers, but she could teach a computer course primarily geared toward computers.

- A. Yes, and in teaching a computer course, she could have assigned individuals to do a paper on a career, but that's different than the actual using of a specific career specific software in which you're learning about that particular - - you're basically learning how to do that career as opposed to learning about how to operate, use the computer and use mass market software.

Ms. DeBlieu reviewed the syllabi and course descriptions of courses being offered in the district and opined about whether Ms. Slivka could teach them under her endorsement. She premised her review in part upon N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.20, which provides

(a) Every teacher shall demonstrate knowledge and understanding of computers and other educational technology resources and tools as defined by the New Jersey Professional Standards for Teachers.

(b) Every teacher shall integrate into the classroom appropriate educational technology resources and digital tools related to the content area being taught.

(c) The school administrator may assign an individual to provide instruction in the use of educational technologies, computers, and other digital tools if the individual:

1. Demonstrates proficiency in the uses of educational technologies, computers, and other digital tools and understands their common applications in an educational setting;

2. Demonstrates knowledge and understanding of the integration of such technologies and digital tools into the curriculum;

3. Demonstrates understanding of the legal and ethical issues surrounding the use of educational technologies and digital tools in PK-12 schools; and

4. Holds a CE, CEAS or standard certificate in an instructional field.

[Ibid.]

DeBlieu concluded that Ms. Slivka could teach the course in Computer Literacy Related instruction, a twelfth grade course at the Career Center, because it was a basic computer literacy course involving the understanding of the basic concepts regarding the use of hard and soft-ware. It had no specific career tie-in. It involved the use of materials regularly available to the general public. Similarly, Introduction to Animation, (P-9), described as part of the career cluster for "Arts/Audio/Video Tech & Communications", and taught at the Wall location, is a basic course, as animation is used in a variety of ways, including in websites and online. The course is basic and she could teach it with her endorsement.

Slivka could teach Introduction to E Commerce (P-10), also part of the career cluster for these same areas and for Information Technology, taught at Communications High School. Here, the reason is not only that her instructional certificate and endorsement are appropriate, but also that she has a business and marketing background. P-11, Software Applications, taught in the ninth grade at High Technology High School, is another basic computer course; not an engineering or a technology education course. Instead, it appears to deal with basic technology and skills. Communications Technology, (P-5), a ninth grade course at Communications High School, "is a basic computer course on using the McIntosh computer and certain types of software that I guess market software that's available and is, you know, just basic software that can be used by anybody." Computer Applications I, (P-6), a ninth grade course at the Academy of Allied Health and Science, is again basic, with a limited portion of the course related to a research project that relates to the Science/Health element, but the course is basically "learning how to use the computer and the computer, regular computer software that every student should be able to know."

DeBlieu was less assertive about Slivka's ability to teach Web Design, P-12, because while she could teach it, she would have to know the software.

Dr. Brian McAndrew, who holds a doctorate in vocational administration, was employed by the Monmouth County Vocational School District from 1969 until his retirement in 2009. He served as the District's school superintendent for twenty years. Dr. McAndrew was at one time responsible for reviewing the credentials of all employees in the county who were applying for the vocational technical certification or for employment by the District. He was president of the New Jersey Council of County Vocational Schools and served on the Council until his retirement in 2009. Thereafter, he was employed as a part-time consultant to the Council and has been actively involved with the DOE's Division of Career and Technical Education in providing guidance regarding vocational education matters. He was admitted as an expert in matters relating to education, vocational education, curriculum development and the Administrative Code as it relates to curriculum.

Dr. McAndrew explained that the three academies within the District must meet Federal guidelines issued under the Perkins Act.³ Dr. McAndrew noted that the approvals for these three academies issued by the New Jersey Department of Education was for Career and Technical Education programs which had to provide curriculum that would "meet appropriate industry-approved and/or state or nationally-recognized skill standards and the New Jersey Core Curriculum Content Standards." As a part of the Program of Study Approval for each of the academies, the DOE directed, as noted on page 10 of the Approval for the Academy of Allied Health and Science, but also for the other academies, that "A course required of every student enrolled in the district or agency, such as 'Introduction to Careers', 'Computer Literacy', and/or 'Keyboarding', is not acceptable for inclusion." The approved curriculum for, as an example, the Academy of Allied Health and Science, includes such courses as "Computer Applications I" and "Principles of Computer Technology." In his response to Ms. DeBlieu's report, McAndrew contended that Slivka did not hold the correct credential for teaching this course. He testified that "a credential for business studies" was inappropriate.

³ The Carl D. Perkins Career and Technical Education Act, as amended by Public Law 109-270, is codified at 20 U.S.C. 2301 et seq.

Basically, because it is a business certificate credential, okay, and that is what it's all about. That's why teachers get - - teachers who are involved in business studies basically will get that type of credential to teach typically types of course work that would be back in the 20th century, typing, stenography. Now it will get involved in the Microsoft types of business types of courses, the types - - types of things that basically upgrades what a student would need to know coming out of school that is interested in being an administrative secretary or something along those type of lines. Okay and so it is - - it's a business credential and that's why we employed Mrs. Slivka in the first place. . . We have no employee or at least during when as - - as I was superintendent we have had no employee working in any of the five career academies with a business certificate. It's just not appropriate. . . The certificate we have consistently used is the computer science technology because that's basically the state of the art and that's what everyone has concurred within terms of what would be the appropriate certification because of the nature of the sequential types of course work that is being - - being taught in those particular schools.

The witness explained that in a program of study at a career academy, students have little choice in what courses they must take, due to the "thematic" nature of the school. The courses are "basically interwoven with the theme, even the academic course work is interwoven within the theme so that students in their English courses will basically also use literature . . . in terms of the theme of that particular school and as a result we are very clear in terms of how and what we need to teach each of these course works that we offer."

McAndrew noted that Slivka could teach "what we all consider to be those traditional business type of courses to prepare young people for office types of working technologies. . . . The only expertise that she's presented is that she has a certificate in Microsoft studies. That's it. . . ."

The witness referenced the Klagholz letter and the evolution of computer usage in schools since 1985. He referred to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-2.8, which addresses

"technological literacy" as a part of the larger regulation, N.J.A.C. 6A:9-2, that discusses "teaching endorsements and authorizations" which are "grouped" in (a)1 through 9 . . . within the relevant CCCS.

i. Computer and information literacy: There is no separate endorsement for educational technology and tools or for computer and information literacy except where career and technical endorsements occur for the related career clusters and career education and for consumer, family and life skills (see N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.20). The New Jersey Core Curriculum Content Standards require that teachers integrate the use of computer and information technology into their instruction; and

ii. Technology education. This endorsement authorizes the holder to teach technology education in all public schools with the exception of approved vocational programs. Technology education includes content aligned with the CCCS and the Standards for Technology Literacy published by the International Technology Education Association, Copyright 2000, incorporated herein by reference, available <http://www.iteaconnect.org/TAA/Publications/STL/STLMainPage.htm>. Examples of the topics that can be taught under this endorsement include: the nature of technology; technology and society; engineering and technological design; abilities for a technological world; energy and power; information and communication; and transportation, manufacturing and construction technologies

Dr. McAndrew commented that the concept represented here is that in the absence of a separate endorsement for educational technology, the Klagholz letter and the regulation allow a district to utilize personnel to provide computer related matters, but "If you have a career technical education program that's - it's going to require a career technical education certificate."

On cross-examination, McAndrew agreed that in order to teach in the academy setting it is not required that a teacher holding a certificate as a teacher of computer science technology, hold any other endorsement that is for any of the endorsement specifically related to the career-path subjects included in the career curriculum. So, for instance, a teacher teaching web design in the health academy need not hold any health-related subject matter endorsement to teach web design at that school. McAndrew tried to explain why the lack of any such health-related endorsement is not important. He said, "They're all related to the career. They - - they have the endorsement that's appropriate to teach the course work that they're teaching."

The witness could not point to any specific document or regulation that said that N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.20 does not apply to either career cluster or vocational technical schools. He argued that in reference to the matrix, it was necessary to understand that document in reference to the Administrative Code. McAndrew claimed that while he was familiar with the matrix, he had never used it.

In an attempt to further clarify how Dr. McAndrew distinguished between the sort of coursework that he believed Ms. Slivka could teach and that which she could not, i.e., the career cluster courses that he argued could only be taught by someone holding a CTE, I entered into a series of questions with him.

Q. But is it fair to say that a course called "Computer Applications One" taught in the Academy of Allied Health and Science is not teaching a academic course per se, maybe that's the wrong word. It's not teaching a, you know, English, history, science, math, philosophy. It's teaching something about computers that you can then use in all these other areas, correct? And it's - -

A. Yes.

Q. - - it's important to those other areas especially today to be able to use that technology, correct?

A. Yes, at a high level.

Q. But the course is teaching about how to use computers, correct, and the software that goes with the computers?

A. How to utilize what the computers do.

Q. Right. Okay and computer information technology again is not teaching - - while, it may be related to a lot of the - - I hate to use the word "academic," but academic courses, that is really a course that's dealing again with a tool. It's teaching you something in regard to the use and the application of that tool so that you - - you didn't take that information and use it in the subject matter areas, correct?

A. A tool to basically teach the information with the thematic theme at a high level.

Q. Now the person who teaches computer information technology, if they have the - - if they have the computer technology endorsement and they're teaching that course, we're not expecting that that individual is teaching any of those other academic subjects, correct? And they don't have the endorsement for it, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So they're basically teaching a computer course because they have a computer degree - - a - - a computer endorsement, correct?

A. Yes

...

Q. . . . I mean, again would - - would a teacher of computer systems technology be teaching about the use and application - - about the use and manipulation through software of computers?

A. In that context, yes.

Q. And so that would be a - - opposed to a course teaching an academic subject they're really teaching computer there, correct?

A. In that context, yes.

The witness acknowledged that the approvals received from the State for the CTE programs did not specify the kind of endorsements required to teach the courses.

Timothy McCorkell is the current Superintendent of the Monmouth Vocational School District. He was in that position at the time that budget cuts necessitated the

RIF here in question. A structured learning advisor position in business education in the shared time division,⁴ who worked with students performing internships in the field, had to be eliminated due to the cuts and reductions in the number of internships available. This resulted in bumping which impacted Ms. Slivka. He affirmed that due to her not holding a computer science technology endorsement, Slivka would not have been considered for teaching any of the courses at the academies. Persons holding such an endorsement were "on a separate seniority list." This arrangement was created before he became superintendent. He understood that the certification was considered to be "more robust" and that it allows those teachers to teach all aspects of technology and it gives the teachers the ability as technology changes as it does overtime and curriculums need to be revised. It's not a limiting certification, plus it's also considered a CTE certification and all of these programs are approved for appropriate for a program of study approval process.

In managing the RIF, Superintendent McCorkell applied the decision made before his incumbency that the certificate of computer science technology" was the appropriate certificate "to be utilized in the career academies for teaching technology." Asked to expand upon the nature of the relationship between the teachers holding the computer science technology certification and other teachers in the academy buildings, he said they're working with all the teachers in the building, the thematic teachers particularly on integrating what they're teaching with the theme of the school. So if that was High Technology High School it would be the engineering theme or the medical theme or the communications technology. So there is a direct relationship and in fact in some cases, for instance High Technology High School, while the courses, the curriculums are stand alone if you view them in fact the actual application of the curriculum in practice is teachers work together in integrated units. So at High Technology High School the software applications curriculum that was being discussed, the - - that teachers work with the biology teacher, also works with the humanities teachers in an integrated approach.

McCorkell noted that as a result of this arrangement the computer science technology endorsement was necessary, as "they are considered to be technical courses." A person can obtain this certification if they have either a bachelors or masters degree in computer science or appropriate industry experience, meaning at least four years "working in the field."

McCorkell could not point to anything in the CTE application that indicated that Slivka's endorsement was not appropriate to teach in the CTE program. However, in further explanation of the need for this endorsement, McCorkell noted that as technology is constantly changing, it was the District's decision to require the CTE endorsement, because they needed to have teachers who could expand into these other areas as robotics has become in a more and more - - a mainstay in all the schools. You needed teacher who could teach all of the aspects of technology and software applications and everything that went in, but the computer science technology teacher, I used the word, robust. It gives the ability to teach any and all of those courses.

Counsel for the Board directed the witness to examine Bate Stamp pages 000666 and 000667 of the Computer Applications I course curriculum, P-6. He queried McCorkell as to how this document demonstrated the integrated approach of teaching at the academies, more specifically in this instance the Academy of Allied Health and Science, and how the computer application course was so interrelated with the thematic approach. The witness pointed to the language on page 000667

Improving communication skill being a primary goal of all programs at Academy of Allied Health and Science, writing and vocabulary will be emphasized in each of the three program components.

McCorkell acknowledged, however, that improvement of communications skills was a primary goal for all students, regardless of the career or work that they might pursue. He was asked if there was anything in this description of the course that indicated that "in regard to learning the computer applications skills that are being taught here that the skills . . . are more specific to the health and science area as opposed to more generally applicable . . . is there anything in here that specifically indicates that the course . . . is only applicable . . . or is geared to what's being taught in this course" He was also queried as to whether there was anything to distinguish what was being taught in the course from a similar Computer Applications One course being taught elsewhere in the district, McCorkell replied that "it's tailored [sic] made to the deeds [sic, probably he said needs] of the student at Allied" However, he acknowledged that he had not reviewed the curriculum for some time.

Discussion

In New Jersey, the statutes and regulations governing the teaching profession identify certifications and endorsements which establish the legal right for teachers to teach specific courses of instruction. All of these legal provisions import into the decision making process for boards of education constraints upon the board's discretion, but it is still true that despite this important overlay of laws, within the confines of the legal structure boards retain some discretion in how they allocate their resources and what choices they make in delivering education to their students. As the New Jersey Supreme Court put it in Denney v. Bd. of Educ., 131 N.J. 636, 643, "courts cannot supplant educators" and therefore, unless educational judgments are "palpably arbitrary or depart from governing law", judges and even the Commissioner of Education must refrain from interfering in these professional choices. Here, the Board's witnesses have argued that in operating its highly-rated Academies the Board has maintained a consistent judgment that only persons with "advanced," "robust," more specialized endorsements for computer science technology should teach computer-related course in the career-oriented academies. The petitioner argues that she holds an endorsement that is legally sufficient to permit her to teach in these schools, to teach these courses. The Board contends that even if it is the case that her endorsement is perhaps within the legal parameters that would permit her to do so, its judgment is neither arbitrary nor capricious, and therefore should be upheld. It maintains that Ms. Slivka's seniority rights do not afford her any claim to these positions, because its judgment that her endorsement is not the appropriate one for these teaching assignments is a proper choice, even if not the only legally correct one.

N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.2 provides

(a) Career and technical education endorsements authorize the holder to teach career and technical education programs in all public schools. Specific career and technical education endorsements are based on the candidate's Department-approved employment experience, bachelor's degree or associate's degree. Endorsements are organized under the following career clusters and are listed on the Department's website:

[Ibid.]

The Board and Intervenors point to language contained on page 9 of each of the approvals for the Academies, which reads, "Secondary teachers for each of the required CTE Program or CTE Program of Study's courses are required to hold the appropriate New Jersey certificate(s) and instructional endorsement(s) issued by the NJDOE Office of Licensure and Credentials." Intervenors read this to "indicate that teaching staff members instructing students in the CTE program courses must be appropriately certificated with appropriate CTE endorsements in order to properly teach the career-oriented courses at the vocational academies." However, the plain language of the statement does not say that the "appropriate New Jersey certificate(s) and instructional endorsement(s) must be "CTE endorsement(s)." That reading by the Intervenors assumes that "appropriate endorsement" equals "CTE endorsement". Indeed, they themselves recognize that the Administrative Code may not in fact reflect their position with clarity. To the extent that they contend that a teacher must possess a CTE certification to teach in a CTE program such as exists in the academies, they admit that this "may not be clearly stated in the Administrative Code."

The Board and Intervenor's position here is staked upon the argument that in a highly integrated teaching model such as they represent the academies are, where every part of the instruction is utilized to at least some degree to advance the thematic mission and to prepare the students for the career(s) that presumably flow from the training that they receive in this CTE educational setting, the teaching that the intervenors perform and which they claim Ms. Slivka is not capable of performing with her endorsement, is of a special character. But what the record as developed shows is that the expressions about the integrated and sequential nature of the training, as it involves the course work taught by the intervenors, are all very generalized. None of the intervenors testified; none explained the details of this at all. Dr. McAndrew and Mr. McCorkell's testimony was likewise quite theoretical and general. The concept is that these teachers are not simply teaching basic computer skills, using basic software, to do basic functions, but that they are teaching more sophisticated ideas, concepts, functions, manipulations, usages of advanced, possibly non-mass market, career-related software, that one with a more basic understanding of the usual hardware and, I suspect more importantly, usual software is simply not capable of. All this may be true, but the record does not demonstrate that. More specifically, in their brief, the intervenors note that in the Web Design course, students are not simply taught to use Dreamweaver, Flash and Cold Fusion "for the sake of learning the programs for general use; rather, these software programs are integrated into the academy's theme and focused on developing the student's career-oriented education at Communications High School." That statement is in accord with the testimony, but it does not actually explain with any specificity what the intervenors are able to do in the course of their instruction to advance this thematic concept that the petitioner is not. And by that, I mean not whether any given teacher is familiar with a particular software program, but what is it that these teachers, with their computer science technology endorsement, can do, as a result of that endorsement, that Slivka is unable to do with her general business studies endorsement.

This said, and while perhaps the record could have been more detailed, I note that the Board's expert witnesses were certainly highly qualified and, especially in the case of Dr. McAndrew, he has a long-standing history and great knowledge of the development of career-oriented education that cannot be overlooked in understanding both his opinion and the Board's policy and its determination in this particular instance. The expert testimony does provide some context for the decision that is worthy of credit.

Having noted the Board's explanation as to why Ms. Slivka cannot teach at the Academies, and the lack of informative detail that might make clear the actual facts arising from the theoretical core of the Board and intervenors' position, it is nevertheless necessary to go back to the Administrative Code to determine whether the Board's assertion that the petitioner's endorsement is not the "appropriate" CTE endorsement is correct. In regards to determining whether a teacher has the correct credentials the relevant inquiry . . . is not what a person can teach, but what a person may teach. The answer must be found in the regulations and the case law, not in a review of the endorsement holder's college transcript. Accordingly, in the context of tenure and seniority rights following a RIF, any discussion concerning who is more suited to teach a particular course or who is more qualified is unnecessary and inappropriate. If a rifed teacher has an endorsement which authorizes, i.e., permits, her to teach a course, she may exercise her tenure and seniority rights to claim it.

[Ulrich v. Board of Education of the Monmouth-County Vocational School District, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 290, 293 (Duncan, ALJ), adopted, Comm'r Final Decision, 96 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU)295].

The first inquiry then is whether Ms. Slivka holds a career and technical endorsement (CTE). Her endorsement was originally General Business Studies. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.2 addresses "Career and technical education certification requirements."

"(a) Career and technical education endorsements authorize the holder to teach career and technical education programs in all public schools. Specific career and technical education endorsements are based on the candidate's Department-approved employment experience, bachelor's degree or associate's degree. Endorsements are organized under the following career clusters and are listed on the Department's website: (Emphasis added.)

[Ibid.]

The parties are not in accord as to the exact meaning of the regulation's reference to the Department's website for an organized list of endorsements. Indeed, the website has much information. Initially at least, it has a list entitled, "List of New Jersey Licensure and Credentials Career and Technical Educators." The Intervenor's claim that the reference in the Code must be to this, and not to the "CTE Certificate Crosswalk Chart Current and Former Career and Technical Vocational-Technical Certificates." The petitioner specifically contends that the "Crosswalk" is referenced in the Code and therefore is a part thereof. The allegedly relevant portion of the "Crosswalk" is reproduced here.

Business, Management & Administration	Business: Comprehensive Business	1300	Business Education	1300	Business Organization and Management
	Continued		Social Business Studies	1329
Business, Management & Administration	Business: General Business Studies	1320	Certificate no longer offered. Grandfathered into #1300, Comprehensive Business
Business, Management & Administration	Business: Computer Applications and Business-Related Information Technology	1304	Business: Computer Applications and Business-Related Information Technology	1304	Business or Commercial Arithmetic
Business, Management & Administration	Business: Finance/Economics/Law	1302	Economics	2334	Consumer Education

In actuality, it seems that both of these elements are necessary to properly understand the endorsements as they currently exist. As an example, there is a current endorsement for "Business: Comprehensive Business," number 1300. There was a previous endorsement, no longer offered, for "Business: General Business Studies", numbered 1320. The latter has been grandfathered into the former, a fact that the chart notes. That being said, then a look at the listing for CTE Licensure and Credentials includes the "Business: Comprehensive Business" endorsement, which we know includes those who held the prior General Business Studies endorsement. The list of current endorsements is not a fully functional list if it is not understood to incorporate such grandfathered defunct endorsements. As such, to the extent that N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.2 notes the listing of endorsements on the DOE website it can be understood to reference and thereby incorporate both the list and the chart. And based upon this information, it is clear that Ms. Slivka does hold a CTE endorsement. Yet, the Board and intervenors contend that despite this fact, she does not have the "appropriate" CTE endorsement, that her Business: Comprehensive Business" endorsement (as that incorporates the former Business" General Business Studies) is not the endorsement appropriate to the career training that occurs in the Academies. As such, her endorsement is not one that establishes that Slivka "may" teach." Ulrich, supra at 293.

That said, what courses may one with a grandfathered endorsement of General Business Studies teach? More to the point, what may one holding a Business: Comprehensive Business endorsement teach? N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.2(a) provides:

The teaching endorsements and authorizations in (a)1 through 9 below are grouped within the relevant CCCS.

9. Career education and consumer, family and life skills:

i. Business education/business-related technologies: Endorsements in these content fields authorize the holder to teach business education and business-related technologies in all public schools.

(1) Comprehensive business: This endorsement authorizes the holder to teach accounting, banking and insurance, business computer applications, business law, business communications, business mathematics, economics and finance, entrepreneurship; international business; keyboarding; business management; business organization, marketing; office administration/office systems technology; and exploration in business related careers.

In reviewing this list of courses that one with the Comprehensive Business endorsement is authorized to teach, it seems apparent that the central element of the group is that the courses are related to "business." In the exercise of its judgment, no doubt in consultation with its expert employees, both past and present, who have testified in this case and whose expertise is deemed to be substantial, the Board of Education has determined that one teaching courses in the career academies, where the career paths are not oriented toward "business" as that relates to the more traditional office-type positions, must have an endorsement that is more technically oriented, with a broader focus on the technology and its use in these career paths than is suggested by the types of courses that are authorized to be taught by one holding a comprehensive business endorsement. That judgment seems justified by the regulations, by the focus which N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.2(a)9i(1) provides for the endorsement that Ms. Slivka holds. Again, this is not to say that she is not capable of actually teaching at least some of the courses at the Academy taught by the intervenors. But as the case law provides, the Commissioner, as well as the courts, are loath to interfere in such educational judgments. There appears nothing here that smacks of arbitrariness. The determination of the school district that Slivka's CTE is not the "appropriate" CTE for these courses should be honored.

I CONCLUDE that Ms. Slivka has failed to establish that she has the appropriate CTE endorsement to bump any of the intervenors who hold a CTS endorsement. The Board of Education's decision to have only persons with CTS endorsements teach computer courses in the Academies is not arbitrary. Ms. Slivka's petition for relief is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This Settlement Agreement ("Agreement"), executed this 25 day of June, 2012, by and between, Petitioners Garden State School Bus Contractors Association and Javier Fernandez ("Petitioners"), Passaic County Educational Services Commission ("PCESC"), K&M Transportation, Inc. ("K&M"), and Bondex Insurance Company ("Bondex") (collectively, the "Parties") (PCESC, K&M, and Bondex collectively referred to as "Respondents").

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, on or about July 21, 2009, PCESC solicited bids for student transportation services to be carried out during the 2009-2010 school year; and

WHEREAS, K&M submitted its bid for twenty-nine routes; and

WHEREAS, as part of its bid package, K&M provided a bid bond from Bondex, identifying K&M as the principal and PCESC as the obligee, in an amount that was not to exceed five percent of K&M's bid; and

WHEREAS, on August 5, 2010, PCESC opened the bids and determined that K&M was the lowest numerical bidder on eight of the twenty-nine routes for which it submitted bids; and

WHEREAS, K&M subsequently informed PCESC that it only had sufficient vehicles to carry out services on two of the bus transportation contracts; and

WHEREAS, PCESC awarded K&M contracts on Route Nos. 3025 and 3026; and

WHEREAS, the Petitioners objected to the award of the two contracts and asserted that PCESC should have made a claim on K&M's bid bond issued by Bondex; and

WHEREAS, PCESC disagreed and the Petitioners filed the within action; and

WHEREAS, K&M and Bondex assert that the action of the Petitioners was not timely filed; and

WHEREAS, the Petitioners, K&M and Bondex have been involved in litigation culminating in a decision dated June 27, 2011, in which the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, reversed the decision of the Commissioner of Education and remanded the matter "for a determination by the Commissioner on whether PCESC should now be ordered to issue [a demand for forfeiture of the bid bond] to Bondex"; and

WHEREAS, the Parties wish to avoid the expense and disruption of further litigation over these issues and are prepared to settle their differences as to the subject matter of this lawsuit.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises and covenants contained herein, and for good and valuable consideration, the sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, and intending to be legally bound, the Parties agree as follows:

1. In consideration of the mutual promises contained herein, Bondex and K&M each agree to pay to PCESC the sum of Four Thousand and 00/100 United States Dollars ($4,000.00) for a total of Eight Thousand and 00/100 United States Dollars ($8,000.00) (hereafter the "Settlement Amount") as set forth below.

2. The Bondex portion of the Settlement Amount shall be payable to PCESC and delivered to The Law Office of Adams Stern Gutierrez & Lattiboudere, LLC, no later than May 18, 2012. A copy of the check(s) and letter(s) transmitting same shall be contemporaneously provided to all counsel listed below.

3. The K&M portion of the Settlement Amount shall be payable to PCESC and delivered to The Law Office of Adams Stern Gutierrez & Lattiboudere, LLC, no later than May 18, 2012. A copy of the check(s) and letter(s) transmitting same shall be contemporaneously provided to all counsel listed below.

4. The Law Office of Adams Stern Gutierrez & Lattiboudere, LLC shall hold the checks in escrow until all funds are received.

5. PCESC shall distribute the entire Settlement Amount of Eight Thousand and 00/100 United States Dollars ($8,000.00) to the six districts that were not serviced by K&M in the form of credits for the 2012-2013 school year. These credits shall be distributed to the subject districts no later than September 15, 2012. In addition, no later than September 15, 2012, PCESC shall provide a schedule showing the amount of the credit(s) distributed to each of the subject districts to all counsel listed below.

6. Upon K&M's and Bondex's full compliance with the obligations set forth in the preceding paragraphs, including payment and clearance of the full Settlement Amount set forth in Paragraph 1, K&M and Bondex shall have no further obligation and this matter shall be dismissed as to K&M and Bondex. Upon PCESC's full compliance with the obligations set forth in the preceding paragraphs, including, but not limited to, those set forth in Paragraph 5, this matter shall be dismissed as to PCESC.

7. In consideration of, effective upon, and subject to the payment of the Settlement Amount by Bondex to PCESC, the Petitioners and PCESC hereby fully release, remise, and forever discharge Bondex from any and all claims, demands, actions, and causes of action of every kind, nature, and description (including any claims for bad faith, breach of contract, breach of duty, statutory or regulatory violation, or punitive, exemplary or extra-contractual damages of any type) whether known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, and whether founded in fact or in law that the Petitioners and/or PCESC may have had, may now have, or may hereafter have arising out of or in connection with the Bid Bond issued by Bondex and any of the allegations as set forth in the petition.

8. In consideration of, effective upon, and subject to the payment of the Settlement Amount by K&M to PCESC, the Petitioners and PCESC hereby fully release, remise, and forever discharge K&M from any and all claims, demands, actions, and causes of action of every kind, nature, and description (including any claims for bad faith, breach of contract, breach of duty, statutory or regulatory violation, or punitive, exemplary or extra-contractual damages of any type) whether known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, and whether founded in fact or in law that the Petitioners and/or PCESC may have had, may now have, or may hereafter have arising out of or in connection with the Bid Bond issued by Bondex and any of the allegations as set forth in the petition.

9. In consideration of, effective upon, the execution of this Agreement, Bondex hereby fully releases, remises, and forever discharges K&M from any and all claims, demands, actions, and causes of action of every kind, nature, and description (including any claims for bad

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF CORY FORMAN, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
CLEARVIEW REGIONAL SCHOOL : DECISION
DISTRICT, GLOUCESTER COUNTY. :

SYNOPSIS

The petitioning school district certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct against respondent – a tenured physical education and special education teacher – for allegedly pushing a student, T.E., into a trophy case in the gym hallway, slapping the same student in the stomach with the back of his hand, and telling the student that if he deleted the cell-phone photograph taken of the red mark on his stomach, respondent would give him grades of 100 for the rest of the year. Respondent contended that his actions, all of which occurred in a single school day, were not what the Board alleged. The Board asserted that respondent's alleged misconduct warranted dismissal from his tenured position.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: based on a security video and the testimony of witnesses, T.E.'s assertion that the respondent actively shoved him into a trophy case is not credible; rather, T.E. was shoving and grabbing at respondent and the overall momentum of the horseplay sent T.E. backward into the trophy case; based on the testimony of respondent's expert witness regarding the photograph of the alleged handprint on T.E.'s stomach, together with the testimony of students who witnessed the classroom episode that followed the trophy incident, respondent's contact with T.E. amounted to a "light slap"; respondent's joking offer to give T.E. "100s" for the rest of the year – while not serious – was inappropriate, as was respondent's tolerance of student provocation and horseplay; respondent's responses to his students' misbehaviors were improper for a teacher and in fact encouraged other students to misbehave; and respondent cared deeply about his students and had no malicious intent, but simply failed to appreciate the inappropriateness of the horseplay at issue in this matter. The ALJ concluded nonetheless that – given current precedents and ongoing efforts through the anti-bullying laws to change how students conduct themselves in relation to each other – the loss of respondent's tenure was the appropriate penalty.

Upon independent review of the record, the Commissioner¹ – while concurring with the ALJ that the Board has established that respondent is guilty of unbecoming conduct – rejected the ALJ's penalty recommendation as he found, inter alia, that the ALJ failed to conduct the requisite analysis of the factors to be taken into account in determining the appropriate penalty in a tenure case (In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967)), and instead determined that the respondent should be removed from his tenured position in light of the anti-bullying legislation. The Commissioner determined that removal is an unduly harsh penalty given all of the circumstances existing in this matter, and is not justified because the proven conduct does not establish respondent's unfitness to discharge the duties of his position, nor was respondent's behavior "premeditated, cruel or vicious, or done with the intent to punish." (In re Fulcomer, supra, at 421) The Commissioner concluded that the loss of respondent's increment for one year, along with the 120 days salary withheld pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 following the certification of tenure charges, is a sufficient penalty to impress upon respondent the seriousness of his errors in judgment displayed in this matter. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL – as modified with respect to the penalty – was adopted as the final decision in this matter.

AGENCY DKT NO. 250-8/11

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
HEARING OF CORY FORMAN, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
CLEARVIEW REGIONAL SCHOOL : DECISION
DISTRICT, GLOUCESTER COUNTY. :

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by the respondent, Cory Forman, and the Board of Education's (Board) reply thereto.

This case involves tenure charges brought by the Board against the respondent, a special education and gym teacher in the Clearview Regional School District. The Board charged the respondent with unbecoming conduct based on three episodes that occurred throughout the course of a school day, including two incidents of physical contact with a student, T.E.¹ The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that the respondent was guilty of unbecoming conduct, and recommended that the respondent be removed from his tenured position.

In his exceptions, the respondent maintains that the ALJ correctly determined that each of the tenure charges was without merit. The respondent cites to the ALJ's discussion of the three incidents in the Initial Decision in an effort to argue that she effectively found that the charges were not sustained. The respondent points out that the ALJ did not find that he pushed

Charge One – respondent intentionally and forcefully pushed a student, T.E., into the trophy case in Pioneer Hall, in view of other students and staff members;
Charge Two – respondent intentionally and forcefully slapped the same student, T.E., in the stomach with the back of his right hand, in view of other students in the class; and Charge Three – respondent told T.E. that if he deleted the photograph T.E. took of his injury, respondent would give him "100s" for the rest of the school year.

T.E. into the trophy case, that he forcefully and intentionally slapped T.E. in the stomach or that he promised to give T.E. 100s for the rest of the school year if he would delete the cell phone photograph.

Respondent also takes exception to the ALJ's determination that the mutual camaraderie that existed between the respondent and the students merited the harsh and severe penalty of termination. Respondent maintains that the penalty recommended by the ALJ is excessive and that a lesser penalty is appropriate in light of the relevant case law and the analysis required under In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967). Specifically, the respondent contends that he jokes around with the students, and he was joking around with T.E. on the day of the incidents that led to the tenure charges. Further, the respondent stresses in his exceptions that he had no malicious intent in connection with the joking. The respondent also points out that he has no disciplinary history, he is remorseful for his conduct, and he recognizes that the joking improperly blurred the student-teacher relationship.

Finally, the respondent claims that the ALJ erred in applying the anti-bullying legislation to this case. The respondent contends that the tenure charges do not allege any violations of N.J.S.A. 18A:37-13 et seq. and that the statute was not in existence at the time of the alleged incidents. Further, the respondent maintains that there was no evidence presented suggesting that he ever bullied any students. As a result the respondent contends that an appropriate penalty in this case would be the loss of 120 days salary.

In reply, the Board urges the Commissioner to adopt the ALJ's determination that the respondent engaged in conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member and the penalty recommended. The Board maintains that the ALJ correctly determined that the respondent's unbecoming conduct warrants the dismissal of respondent from his tenured teaching position, emphasizing the fact that the respondent twice laid hands on a student. In its reply, the Board further cited to the Initial Decision to support the assertion that the ALJ correctly concluded that the inappropriate, bullying-type behavior that took place significantly outweighed any mitigating factors.

Upon a comprehensive review of the record in this matter, which included the transcripts of the hearing conducted at the OAL on January 19 and 20, 2012, the Commissioner² concurs with the ALJ that the Board has established that respondent is guilty of unbecoming conduct. The ALJ's finding in connection with the characterization of respondent's behavior as unbecoming conduct is fully supported by the record and consistent with applicable law.

With respect to the three incidents outlined in the tenure charges, the ALJ found that: while T.E. was shoving and grabbing at the respondent, their feet touched and the overall momentum sent T.E. backward into the trophy case; the respondent lightly slapped T.E. in the stomach; and there was a discussion of grades in relation to the posting of a photograph of T.E.'s stomach on Facebook. Despite the assertion made by the respondent in his exceptions, the ALJ did not determine that each of these charges was without merit, but rather she made findings related to the severity of each incident. The term "unbecoming conduct" is elastic and broadly defined to include any conduct "which has a tendency to destroy public respect for [government] employees and competence in the operation of [public] services." Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1988). Behavior rising to the level of unbecoming conduct "need not be predicated upon the violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon the violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct." Hartman v. Police

Dep't of Ridgewood, 258 N.J. Super. 22, 40 (App. Div. 1992) (citing Asbury Park v. Dep't of Civil Serv., 17 N.J. 419, 429 (1955)). The record demonstrates that the totality of the respondent's behavior amounted to conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member.³

Turning to the appropriate penalty, the Commissioner recognizes that the factors to be taken into account in making a penalty determination include the nature and circumstances of the incidents or charges, any evidence as to provocation, the teacher's prior record and present attitude, the effect of such conduct on the maintenance of discipline among the students and staff, and the likelihood of such behavior recurring. In re Hearing of Kittell, Little Silver School District, 1972 S.L.D. 535, 541; Fulcomer, supra, 93 N.J. Super. at 422. In the case at bar, the ALJ did not recommend termination based on the Fulcomer factors, but instead determined that the respondent should be removed from his tenured position in light of the anti-bullying legislation. It is without question that the anti-bullying legislation is extremely important and the effective implementation of the statute is paramount; however, the existence of the statute alone does not serve as an avenue to automatically remove a teacher from a tenured position without conducting the requisite Fulcomer analysis.

The Commissioner finds that based on all of the circumstances and considerations existing in this matter, the removal of respondent from his tenured position is an unduly harsh penalty. The dismissal of the respondent from his teaching position is not justified

³ The ALJ specifically concluded,

Physical wrestling with a student in a hallway was unbecoming conduct. Students should not be stomping each other's feet, or grabbing each other's arms in a hallway between classes, and a teacher that signals that such engagement is appropriate by wrestling himself or by allowing a passing student to stomp on his feet is neglecting his duty. Laughing and joking about the fact that a student went tumbling into a trophy case was inappropriate, and invading that young man's physical person a second time, minutes later, now in a classroom, was misconduct. Finally, the joking references to "100s" in an atmosphere where the students easily could have linked it to a form of blackmail were completely inappropriate, also constituting conduct unbecoming. (Initial Decision at 16).

in this case because the proven conduct does not establish his unfitness to discharge the duties and functions of his position as a teacher. Nor is there is any indication that the respondent's behavior will have any long term effects on the maintenance of discipline among the students and staff in the Clearview Regional School District. Additional mitigating factors include the fact that T.E. and the respondent were joking around when the light slap occurred, T.E. initiated the contact and was grabbing the respondent during the trophy case incident and there was no evidence to suggest that the respondent seriously offered T.E. 100s if he deleted the cell phone photograph. Importantly, the respondent's behavior was not "premeditated, cruel or vicious, or done with the intent to punish." See, In re Fulcomer, supra, 93 N.J. Super. at 421. Finally, the respondent has acknowledged that he did not handle the situations properly and that it is inappropriate for him to maintain such relaxed relationships with his students.⁴

Although dismissal in this case is not warranted for the reasons discussed above, the Commissioner recognizes that the charges in this matter are serious in nature. It is without question "that teachers carry a heavy responsibility by their actions and comments in setting examples for the pupils with whom they have contact." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Blasko, School District of the Township of Cherry Hill, 1980 S.L.D. 987, 1003. Respondent himself admitted that he did not conduct himself properly by cultivating relationships with the students that did not convey proper boundaries. Moreover respondent's unprofessional conduct led to two incidents where there was unnecessary physical contact with a student, which is never condoned even if it is characterized as horseplay. Although there was no evidence that respondent bullied the students, his demeanor and approach resulted in an overall environment that is not appropriate to a school setting.

⁴ The ALJ determined that the "respondent testified compellingly as to his remorse about the conduct, and to his understanding that the joking was inappropriate, and that what he intended as a means of building a spirit of camaraderie blurred the student-teacher relationship unacceptably." (Initial Decision at 18-19).

Therefore, the Commissioner finds and concludes that the loss of respondent's increment for one year, along with the 120 days salary withheld pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14 following the certification of tenure charges, is a sufficient penalty to impress upon respondent the seriousness of his errors in judgment displayed in this matter. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL, as modified with respect to the penalty, is adopted as final decision in this matter.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10976-11

AGENCY DKT. NO. 250-8/11

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF CORY FORMAN, CLEARVIEW REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT, GLOUCESTER COUNTY.

Frank P. Cavallo, Jr., Esq., for petitioner Clearview Regional School District, Gloucester County (Parker McCay, attorneys)

Michael C. Damm, Esq., for respondent Cory Forman (Selikoff & Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: March 16, 2012

Decided: April 12, 2012

BEFORE LAURA SANDERS, ACTING DIRECTOR & CHIEF ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Cory Forman (or respondent) is employed by the Clearview Regional School District, Gloucester County, (or Board) in the position of tenured teacher. On August 25, 2011, the Board, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.1, certified charges of unbecoming conduct constituting cause for dismissal in relation to a trio of incidents on May 11, 2011. Forman contends that his actions were not what the Board alleges, and, therefore, no disciplinary action was warranted.

The Board charges Forman with having pushed a student into a trophy case. Additionally, he is charged with slapping the same student in the stomach with the back of his right hand, leaving a large red handprint on the student's stomach. Lastly, the Board alleges that Forman told the student that if he deleted the cell-phone photograph of the red mark, he would give him grades of 100 for the rest of the year.

Following receipt of respondent's answer to the charges on September 14, 2011, the Commissioner of Education forwarded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16. The matter was heard on January 19 and 20, 2012. The record closed on March 16, 2012, with the submission of briefs.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The Trophy-Case Incident

In support of its allegation that Forman pushed student T.E. into a trophy case, the Board offered a security video, plus testimony from T.E. and two teachers who also appear on the video.

At no point does the video show Forman pushing the student; rather, both the student and Forman testified that whatever happened occurred when they are not visible to the camera. The relevant portion begins with T.E. dancing around, then grabbing Forman's arm and stepping deliberately on Forman's foot. Forman ignores this, and proceeds down the hallway, where another student for no apparent reason also steps on his foot. No one at hearing could identify that student. Forman does not react to this either, but continues to the end of the hallway, where for a short period he stands, surveying the students who are starting to change classes. He then returns to the far end, next to T.E., and briefly his lower legs are visible, but his upper torso is leaned forward, out of the picture.

T.E. testified as follows:

Me and a friend were in the gym hallway and Mr. Forman approached us and he told us to get behind the green line, we then proceeded to get behind the green line and then he came up to me and he tried to step on my sneakers and he did and he asked me if my sneakers were new and I said they were relatively new and then he proceeded to step on them, after that I got shoved into a trophy case by him. After that he went to the gym hallway doors and then he proceeded just to look at me and then he came back trying to step on my sneakers and that's when I backed up, I was putting my hands up and I said, "I don't want any trouble," and then the bell rang.

Shown the video at time stamp 9:01:41, T.E. testified that Forman tried to step on his sneakers for a second time, and that he put up his hands, saying, "Hey, I don't want any trouble," but that Forman came very close to him, which made him feel uncomfortable. (Id. at 75.)

Michael Lerch, a health and physical education teacher who has occasionally socialized with Forman, identified himself crossing the hallway on the video between the times stamped 9:01:37 and 9:01:42. On the video, he suddenly turns and looks behind him. He testified that he heard "a loud bang" into what he believed to be the trophy case. (Id. at 109.) He said it was a quick glance, and he "didn't really observe what was going on." (Id. at 110.)

Robyn Gray, a health and physical education teacher, is shown on the video entering the hall at 9:02:19. She said that when she walked by T.E. and Forman, T.E. "was standing with his back against the wall and Mr. Forman was right in front of him, you know, separated by a couple of inches right in front of T., and as I was walking by T. said to me, 'Mrs. Gray, he's abusing me, he's abusing me.' So at that time, I said to T. that, 'You're supposed to be in the locker room until the bell rings so you need to go down to the locker room. If you were in the locker room where you belonged then we would not be in this situation, so please go down to the locker room.'" (Id. at 119.)

She testified that her impression at the time was that T.E. knew he was supposed to be somewhere else, and was trying to defuse a situation. Gray said that the “abusing-me” comments were made in “a sing-songy” manner, and “kids mess around and say things of that nature, so it didn’t concern me that he was actually being abused.” (Id. at 120.) She repeated more than once that at no point did she think T.E. was in danger, and that generally Forman had a friendly relationship with students. But, she said, because Forman “is a big guy and they were very close when I walked by,” she thought T.E. was intimidated. (Ibid.) From her perspective, she felt that Forman “was intimidating the student. He was too close, it was out of my comfort zone.” (Id. at 121.) She also said that “in general the male teachers have more of a—almost like a fatherly kind of—where kids like to mess around and joke around, where the female teachers don’t get that much.” (Id. at 116.)

Forman testified that at 9:01:41 he turned to face T.E., who began pushing up against him. He said, “and then he dropped his hands and he stepped back and then—and he stepped into the trophy case and my foot went forward—and I went forward and our—our—our feet touched and I went into the—my foot hit the bottom of the trophy case causing it to slide.” (Tr. 2, January 20, 2012, at 165.) According to Forman, T.E.’s foot stomp and grab occurred after the trophy-case collision. When Forman returned from the other end of the hall later, he and T.E. were laughing and joking and gave each other a fist pound and then walked away. (Id. at 169.) The fist pound occurred at 9:02:42. Forman acknowledged that in speaking to the superintendent of schools, he did not give precisely the same description of the incident. (Id. at 224.) He maintained that he told the superintendent their feet touched and then he stepped back, but he acknowledged that he did not tell the superintendent that the youth was pushing or leaning on him. (Ibid.)

Based on the video and the testimony, I do not find credible T.E.’s assertion that Forman actively shoved him into the trophy case. The single most salient feature of the video is the impunity with which students mount minor assaults on Forman. Had he just aggressively shoved a student into a case, other students would not be strolling around the halls or feeling free to stomp him in fun. As Forman acknowledged that he had engaged in horseplay with students on multiple occasions, a better explanation is that this particular round went too far. Gray's testimony that Forman wound up close enough to intimidate T.E. was highly credible. Therefore, I FIND as FACT that T.E. was shoving and grabbing at Forman, who was leaning forward. When T.E. dropped his arms, their feet did touch, and the overall momentum sent T.E. backward into the trophy case.

The Slapping Incident and the Grading Comment

In the spring term of 2011, Forman, who is a certified special education teacher, taught T.E. for physical education, followed immediately by mathematics, which was a small consumer-math course for students with disabilities. The District alleges that it was in this class, just after the hallway incident, when Forman slapped T.E.'s stomach so hard that it left a vivid handprint. The District presented a photograph taken from a cell-phone picture as evidence of the strike, along with testimony from T.E. and several other math students, including the person who identified herself as the photographer.

T.E. testified that when math class started, Forman initially logged onto his computer, then came over and asked T.E., who was still standing up, if he was tough, telling him to put his hands up. T.E. objected, saying, "Well, we just did this in the hallway, why do you want to do this?" T.E. testified, "[a]nd then he got real close to me, like he—like to talk to me and I said, 'Well, can you get out of my face?' And he was like—this is what he did in the hallway, talking to all of the other students and I guess trying to make them laugh and everything and then he turned around and that's when he backhanded me and went back to his computer." (Tr. 1 at 77.) T.E. demonstrated with a sweeping motion to the right. After that, T.E. said, he was in pain, so he lifted his shirt. Another student, M., saw a mark on his stomach, and M. "made a big deal about it in front of all the students and that's when she said, 'Give me your phone, give me your phone so you can see it from my point of view,' and I said, 'Here you go,' and then she took the picture and I'm like, 'Oh, yeah, it is really bad.'" (Id. at 80.) T.E. said the photo was taken perhaps two seconds after respondent struck him, maybe less.

T.E. testified that he and a couple of other students were saying, “‘Oh, we should just put it on Facebook,’ and that’s when Mr. Forman said, “No, no, don’t do that,’ he must [have] said it like three times.” (Id. at 81.) T.E. said that after Forman saw the photograph and heard the comments, “He told me to hit him back to get even and he also said, ‘If you delete that photo I’ll give 100s in the grade book for the rest of the year,’ and I said, ‘No, that’s all right.’” (Id. at 82.) T.E. said that he did not talk to anyone at school that day. He said he did not report the incidents in the hallway and classroom “because the next day, I would have had to go to [Forman’s] math class and then I would have pretty much felt scared and everything and if he found out, he could have maybe hit me or escalated it to [a] certain degree.” (Id. at 83.)

A male student, C.T., who was present in the math class that day said that everyone was joking around at the beginning of class, and he noticed nothing until he heard another student say, “Oh, my God.” He looked up and saw a handprint on T.’s stomach. (Id. at 129.) He recalled T.E. saying he would put the photo on Facebook and the teacher saying, “No, don’t put it on Facebook, I could lose my job.” (Id. at 130.) At no point did respondent seem angry.

Another male student, A.J.R., said he remembered “Mr. Forman and T. kind of joking around and Mr. Forman just gave a slap on the stomach and that’s about it.” He described the motion as “a joking around kind of slap . . . not hard.” He recalled observing a red mark on T.’s stomach “a little bit.” He had no recollection of the teacher saying anything about grades or anybody talking about putting the photo on Facebook. (Id. at 136.)

M.C. testified that at the beginning of math class, everybody was kidding around. She was sitting down, and in front of her, T. was standing up. “Mr. Forman was sitting down and they were talking and then something—and then they were messing around and he went like—and Mr. Forman went like this, kidding around with him. He didn’t hit him hard or anything, it was just like, you know, playing around. And Mr. Forman asked if he was going to take that down to the—like we were asking him if he was going to—everyone was asking . . . , ‘Are you going to take that down to the office?’ Like it was nothing serious, you know, and he was like, ‘No, no, no, I’m not taking it down to the office because it's not a big deal.” (Id. at 145.) Later, she said the other students were all asking T.E. if he were going to take the picture to the office, “because that’s the kind of person he is, you know, if—the smallest thing turns into the biggest thing.” (Id. at 149.) Then T.E. told everyone he deleted the picture.

M.C. described Forman’s action as not a hit because it was not hard, “kind of like a slap, like a softer slap, . . . a light slap.” (Id. at 147.) T.E. lifted his shirt and asked her and another girl if his stomach was red. M.C. said that when she saw his stomach, “I said it was like real red because I guess his skin was—he has like sensitive skin, so his skin got real red but—and he asked me to take a picture and I said, ‘Sure,’ you know.” (Ibid.) She couldn’t recall whether P-3 was the photo she took, but was sure she had seen the photo before. M.C. and other classmates were asking T.E. whether he was going to take the picture to the office, and he said he had deleted it. M.C. testified, “And kidding around Mr. Forman was like, ‘I’ll give a 100 if you delete the picture and don’t show the office,’” and T. said he had deleted it, it was not a big deal, and they were just messing around. (Id. at 149, 150.)

A fourth student, J.M., recalled that T. and the teacher were standing together “talking about like the whole incident like about the shoes and stuff, the sneakers, and then they were like playing around with each other, like joking around and that’s when that happened, the incident, . . . Mr. Forman backslapped T. in the stomach.” (Id. at 158–59.) She saw the red marks on T.’s stomach, and T. asked her to take a picture, which she refused to do. J.M. said that following M.C.’s taking of the photograph, “T. said he was going to put the picture on Facebook with his phone and Mr. Forman said, ‘Don’t put it on Facebook,’ and Mr. Forman told him to delete the picture and T. said he was going to delete the picture and then Mr. Forman said he would change his grade to 100 if he deleted the picture.” (Id. at 160.) She said the teacher and T. were laughing, not being serious, “until he hit him.” (Id. at 161.) She said T. continued to look at his stomach on and off through class, and the mark remained for awhile, but not through the end of class.

Respondent testified that when he got to the math class that morning, T.E. was sitting on his desk, joking about “what happened downstairs with my foot sliding into the trophy case.” (Tr. 2 at 173.) Forman turned his computer on, then went over to T.E., where they started joking together about what had happened. He said T.E. stood up and said, joking, with his arms up, “Come on, Forman. You want to go? Let’s go. Come on. You want to go?”

Forman said his response was “a hand gesture for him to . . . sit down and I accidentally brushed his shirt.” (Ibid.) He described the gesture as “a brush,” “non-confrontational.” (Id. at 174.) He then returned to his computer. Several minutes later, he heard T.E. joking and laughing, saying, “Oh, I’m going to take a picture. I’m going to make this look like a bear claw and put it on Facebook.” (Id. at 175.) Forman told him, “T., you know that if you take a picture you need to delete it because of classroom policy, especially if you’re going to take a picture to put on Facebook.” (Id. at 176.) Forman had not seen the picture and did not even know a picture was taken. A few minutes later, “T. stated that, ‘If you change my 70 to a 100 on my last assignment I won’t tell anyone.’” Forman responded, “You want me to change your grade to 100?” The class then went on as usual. (Ibid.) He categorically denied striking T.E., or having a reason to believe his action caused the mark. He also said there was no logical reason to discuss changing T.E.’s grade, because the teenager was an A–B student anyway. (Id. at 177.) In retrospect, he said he now realized that he should not have allowed the students to form “these joking relationships with me because [they] can lead to misunderstandings.” (Id. at 181.)

The District offered a copy of the cell-phone photograph that various students identified as the one taken on May 11, 2011. The photograph (P-3) shows a lifted t-shirt, revealing a bare stomach with one red mark that looks like an outlined finger complete with fingernail, two tube-shaped outlines, and a fourth mark looking more like a red triangle.

On one hand, the photo is dramatic. The marks do resemble the outline of a little finger, fourth and third fingers of about the same length, and a slightly removed triangle shape that looks like a claw. Inside the red outlines, the skin is normal-colored.

The petitioner's argument is that T.E. had red marks; therefore, Forman must have slapped him hard enough to cause them right through the shirt. But this is not a problem-free causation argument for several reasons. The first is that the other students did not testify to witnessing a slap of substantial magnitude. None of them heard a slapping sound, and apparently the marks were gone by the end of class. Additionally, there was expert testimony indicating that the marks are not consistent with being struck by a hand, essentially because the pattern is akin to a negative. The red should be inside, where the force is said to have contacted the flesh, not outside outlining normal color.

Forman presented testimony regarding the handprint photograph from a trauma expert. This testimony was the subject of a motion to exclude, based on the opinion being no more than a net opinion, which would render it inadmissible.

Brad Bendesky, M.D., is a specialist in emergency medicine, meaning the treatment in the emergency room of trauma, acute conditions, and "the first hour of almost any medical condition that exists." (Tr. 2 at 51.) He is the supervising physician at Mercy Hospital and Mercy Fitzgerald Hospitals in Philadelphia and also part of the peer-review committee, which examines the appropriateness of care in mortality cases. In addition to his employment at Mercy Health Systems, he is an assistant professor at Drexel University College of Medicine, supervising medical residents and students rotating through the emergency room. He also is a clinical-skills-examination note grader for the National Board of Medicine. He is board certified in emergency medicine and a fellow of the American Academy of Emergency Medicine. He published an article, "Axioms in emergency medicine, always splint and file wrist injuries with scaphoid tenderness," on treatment of complicated wrist and hand injuries in 1999. He was admitted as an expert in emergency medicine and treatment of blunt-force injuries to the torso.

Dr. Bendesky did not examine T.E.'s actual injury; in fact, there is no evidence that any parent, teacher, or physician ever saw the injury. The physical evidence of its existence consists of the cell-phone photograph, which was downloaded onto a computer and enlarged. In the absence of other information, Dr. Bendesky examined the photograph. He said that he has done this on perhaps twenty or twenty-five other occasions where medics who have taken pictures at accident scenes have brought them to him, in the interest of learning what caused the injuries they witnessed.

Dr. Bendesky said that the marks in the photograph are not consistent with the injuries he sees in the emergency room. "The appearance of the borders of the mark being so prominent and well delineated and red, that's considered erythema which is just another term for redness. To have it so erythematous on the outside of the wound with no central erythema is not something that I would expect to see from a flat blunt force impact between a hand and an abdomen." (Id. at 72.) Blunt force from a hand "would be more of a confluent consistent erythema—red—red mark upon the abdomen and not outlined on the borders." (Id. at 73.) Put another way, "you wouldn't have a— a sharply red area and then a pale area right next to one another when two flat—two flat surfaces or two skin surfaces are meeting like that." (Ibid.)

He used the example of someone falling against an irregular object such as a wire hanger, which would have a cookie-cutter effect. "People that are struck with wire hangers[,] you see an outline of the mark and . . . central clearing where—where it's not red in the middle, but those were objects where you would expect that the impact would create a much greater force on the periphery of the wound than it would in the central part of the wound." (Id. at 74.) He compared that to the effect of a cookie cutter, a metal object with a hollow center that concentrates the force on the edges. With a cookie cutter, "the metal would create a mark on the body because that's where it's impacting the greatest creating more trauma and more redness and the central area that is hollow would not . . . create damage at that area, and not release the . . . chemicals that would create that red mark on the . . . body." (Ibid.) In his work as an emergency-room specialist, he has never seen a mark of that appearance resulting from a slap to a stomach. (Id. at 75.)

The doctor said that he could not rule out 100 percent that a backhanded slap caused the appearance of injury depicted in the photography. (Id. at 80–81.) He was careful to note, "I'm not testifying that there was [a] slap or there wasn't a slap. What I'm testifying to is that the described trauma of a backhand . . . to a clothed abdomen would not create that mark in particular.” (Id. at 82.) He said his view was not based simply on his having examined patients with stomach slaps on at least a dozen occasions, but also on “the patho-physiologic properties of the human body and what we know happens when there’s impact upon . . . the body and what chemicals are released in the skin and in what amount and in what shape.” (Ibid.) Dr. Bendesky explained that when the body is impacted by trauma a range of injuries can occur. The least severe would be a mild red mark that would go away in a few minutes. Red marks that are left longer reflect “basically increased blood flow to the skin, that’s a release of histamine and other inflammatory factors in the skin that are reacting to the trauma and then up to bruising, which is liberation of blood from the muscles because the . . . impact was even greater than just . . . a minor impact to, you know, lacerations and ripping of the skin from more severe blunt force trauma.” (Id. at 85.) He said he could not think of a circumstance that would create an outline mark from the described trauma. He went on to state that in his opinion, based upon a reasonable degree of medical probability, if there were a slap it would not create that specific mark. (Id. at 83.)

The Board moved to disqualify Dr. Bendesky’s opinion from admission into evidence on grounds that it constituted a net opinion. The Board argued that he never examined the patient, that he was not qualified as an expert in reviewing photographs to determine cause of injury, and that he needed to produce a report, treatise or professional document to support his conclusion. Anderson v. A.J. Friedman Supply Co., Inc., 416 N.J. Super. 46 (App. Div. 2010), certif. denied, 205 N.J. 518 (2011).

A judge, like a jury, may hear expert testimony in its role as fact-finder, and “[a] judge sitting on a bench trial is in the best position to determine if expert testimony on a particular issue will assist that judge.” N.J. Div. of Youth and Family Servs. v. Z.P.R., 351 N.J. Super. 427, 439 (App. Div. 2002) (citing Wilkerson v. Pearson, 210 N.J. Super. 333 (Ch. Div. 1985)). The OAL’s rules provide that testimony of an expert witness in the form of opinions or inferences is admissible if such testimony will assist the judge to understand the evidence or determine a fact in issue, and the judge finds that the opinions or inferences are: 1. based on facts and data perceived by or made known to the witness at or before the hearing; and 2. within the scope of the special knowledge, skill, experience or training possessed by the witness. N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.9(b).

However, there are limits. In Polzo v. Essex County, 196 N.J. 569, 582 (2008) (quoting State v. Townsend, 186 N.J. 473, 491 (2006)), the New Jersey Supreme Court summarized the rules governing expert opinion testimony: “[W]hile ‘Rule 702 permits a qualified expert witness to testify “in the form of an opinion or otherwise,” N.J.R.E. 703 ‘addresses the “bases of opinion testimony by experts.”’”

Rule 703 is intended to permit expert opinion based on “facts or data derived from (1) the expert’s personal observations, or (2) evidence admitted at the trial, or (3) data relied upon by the expert which is not necessarily admissible in evidence but which is the type of data normally relied upon by experts in forming opinions on the same subject.”

[Polzo, supra, 196 N.J. at 583 (quoting Townsend, supra, 186 N.J. at 494).]

“The corollary of [Rule 703] is the net opinion rule, which forbids the admission into evidence of an expert’s conclusions that are not supported by factual evidence or other data.” Ibid. Polzo explains that Townsend states, “Simply put, the net opinion rule ‘requires an expert to give the why and wherefore of his or her opinion, rather than a mere conclusion.’” Ibid. In Polzo, the Supreme Court then determined that an expert’s evaluation of how long a roadway depression had been in place was a net opinion, because it did not explain why he believed that to be the case. (Id. at 583, 584.)

The case cited by petitioner, Anderson, supra, 416 N.J. Super. 46, is one of many in which courts have utilized the fact that a physician has not directly examined the patient as one of several factors in determining that an opinion is an inadmissible net opinion. Additionally, lack of direct experience in a medical area has been used to disqualify opinions where a treating physician could not otherwise offer medical studies to support his theory about the cause of a medical condition. See, e.g., Spandet v. Bucknam, 2011 N.J. Super. Unpub. LEXIS 879 (App. Div. 2011). Finally, the mere assertion by a physician that something is a birth defect as opposed to a mental and nervous condition has been found insufficient where it lacked explanation, reasoning, facts, or supporting data. J.S. v. State Health Benefits Comm'n, 2010 N.J. Super. Unpub. LEXIS 453 (App. Div. 2010).

However, “[e]vidential support for an expert opinion is not limited to treatises or any type of documentary support, but may include what the witness has learned from personal experience. . . . ‘The requisite knowledge can be based on either knowledge, training or experience.’” Rosenberg v. Tavorath, 352 N.J. Super. 385 (App. Div. 2002) (citation omitted).

Here, Dr. Bendesky did not examine the patient and did not provide particular studies with regard to the medical properties of injuries. However, he established that, as an emergency-room expert, he has examined multitudes of traumatic injuries, including at least a dozen involving slaps to the torso, and that he has been called upon to analyze photographs with regard to what caused particular injuries. Common sense suggests that an understanding of what causes an injury would be helpful in first-responder determinations on how to treat them. He explained how the physiological properties of the body are triggered when injury occurs, beginning with red marks and rising to bruises and tears. He analyzed the appearance of the mark in the picture, which is a cookie-cutter-type outline of fingers, in comparison to the appearance of marks on people struck by wire hangers or tail fins—an outline of a hanger, or the punctures from the fin points, with white space where there was no trauma. Therefore, he has provided the “why and wherefore” of his opinion, based upon substantial personal experience, and I CONCLUDE that his opinion is admissible.

I am not convinced that Forman slapped T.E. hard enough to leave that mark through a t-shirt. It seems unlikely that a group of high school seniors who clearly liked each other would describe that kind of behavior as “joking around.” Moreover, none of them reported hearing the kind of sound that would accompany such a blow. Further, one girl refused to get involved in taking the picture. Additionally, most had limited memories of the incident, suggesting that the strength of their recollections was related to how harsh the contact actually was. And finally, as the doctor testified, the marks are not a handprint; they are a hand outline, inconsistent with the physical realities of injury creation and appearance. Therefore, I FIND as FACT that the contact was, as one student put it, a “light slap.”

I am persuaded there was some discussion of grades in relation to Facebook, and that the students were chattering about T.E. complaining to the school principal. I FIND that respondent’s version of the events—he heard talk about some kind of picture, he told T.E. to delete the picture because of the school’s phone policy, he did not even know for sure there was a picture, T.E. asked him for a score of 100 if he did not tell anybody—accurately reflects his memory of events. But I also FIND that it dances around the central problem, which is that he knew or should have known that students were discussing inappropriate behavior on his part, that this conduct left him open to student threats and jokes about a form of blackmail, and that he did not put a firm end to such discussions.

With regard to overall background, Thomas Jones, assistant principal, testified that an incident during the week prior to May 11 had caused him some concern. He was called to the gym because respondent had been injured when a student, in a joking manner, jumped on his back. The student received a one-day suspension as a result of the incident. Jones’s concern was that the student said that when he jumped the teacher, the teacher had taken his leg, back-kicked him, and later tapped him on the head with a clipboard. (Tr. 1 at 175.) He spoke to Forman about the child’s allegations, and they “had a discussion about how we need to make sure . . . that we can’t put our hands on the students at any time.” (Id. at 176.) Asked about the incident, Forman testified that he had sustained an on-the-job back injury on May 5, when, without provocation, a student jumped on his back as he was taking attendance during physical education class. He testified, “my hands went backwards . . . I don’t know if I hit the—if I made contact with the student or not or what part of the body I made contact [with]. My first reaction is—was to get them off my back.” (Tr. 2 at 242.) Forman stated, “If a five-six 200-pound person jumps on your back, your initial—and you go forward your initial reaction is to get that person off your back” (Ibid.) He essentially conceded that he acted first, then spoke, once the child was off him. He denied that Jones told him that physical contact with students was not appropriate.

Forman himself acknowledged that at the time he was hired at Clearview, he disclosed that he had accepted a football coach position at another high school, but had been forced to withdraw when the school discovered that he had lied on his résumé by stating that he had played football in college, when, in fact, he had done volunteer work with the team. (Id. at 214–15.) In February 2009 he received a letter from the director of Special Services for failing to attend a required meeting. (P-9.)

There was other credible documentation and testimony to establish that Forman had worked hard to create a stimulating math class that used the stock market to engage student interest in mathematics and consumer issues. His formal evaluations had been positive since his arrival in September 2002. He had undertaken an array of other paid tasks, including summer custodian work, the summer reading program, security services for games, detention monitoring, paid lunch duty, and working at the alternative night school. Two fellow coaches testified to his effectiveness in working with both boys and girls in spring track.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

The purpose of teacher tenure laws is “to aid in the establishment of a competent and efficient school system by affording teaching staff members ‘a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service.’” Carpenito v. Rumson Bd. of Educ., 322 N.J. Super. 522, 528–29 (App. Div. 1999) (quoting Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App. Div. 1949)). A tenured teacher may not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5; N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. Here, petitioner Clearview Regional High School District Board of Education has charged respondent with three counts of conduct unbecoming. The first is related to the allegation that he “intentionally and forcefully pushed” student T.E. into the trophy case; the second to the allegation that he slapped T.E. so hard that the blow resulted in a large red handprint on the student’s stomach; and the third to an alleged promise to give T.E. scores of 100 for the rest of the year if he deleted the cell-phone photograph of the handprint. The District bears the burden of proving the charges upon which it relied by a preponderance of the competent, relevant and credible evidence. N.J.S.A. 11A:2-21;

N.J.A.C. 4A:2-1.4(a); Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143 (1962); In re Polk, 90 N.J. 550 (1982). The evidence must be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to the given conclusion. Bornstein v. Metro. Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263 (1958).

While the education laws do not provide a definition of unbecoming conduct, the courts have considered unbecoming conduct on a case-by-case basis and determined that it can embrace a wide range of conduct that touches upon a teacher's fitness to discharge the duties and the functions of the position. See In re Watkins, 2003 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 14 (citing Laba v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 23 N.J. 364, 384 (1957); In re Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13, 28–29 (App. Div.), certif. denied, 65 N.J. 292 (1974)).

Although corporal punishment has been held to include “unnecessary and inappropriate physical contact” with a student, In re Quinones, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 649, 652, such contact is more often treated as conduct unbecoming where there is no intent to harm. In the current instance, the Board has not proved by a preponderance of the evidence that respondent had any malicious intent, or even a present intention to discipline the student. Respondent did, however, twice lay hands on a student.

Physically wrestling with a student in a hallway was unbecoming conduct. Students should not be stomping each other's feet, or grabbing each other's arms in a hallway between classes, and a teacher that signals that such engagement is appropriate by wrestling himself, or by allowing a passing student to stamp on his feet, is neglecting his duty. Laughing and joking about the fact that a student went tumbling into a trophy case was inappropriate, and invading that young man's physical person a second time, minutes later, now in a classroom, was misconduct. Finally, the joking references to “100s” in an atmosphere where the students easily could have linked it to a form of blackmail were completely inappropriate, also constituting conduct unbecoming.

The remaining issue is whether termination is warranted. In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967), involved an instance where a teacher had twice used corporal punishment on students, although there was no indication in the record that the teacher's acts were premeditated, cruel or vicious, or done with intent to punish or to inflict corporal punishment. The court held that the resulting penalty "should be based upon the Commissioner's findings as to the nature and gravity of the offenses under all the circumstances involved, any evidence as to provocation, extenuation or aggravation, and should take into consideration any harm or injurious effect which the teacher's conduct may have had on the maintenance of discipline and the proper administration of the school system." 93 N.J. Super. at 422.

As was noted recently in a footnote to the Commissioner's determination in In re Tenure Hearing of Craft, EDU 1751-11, modified, Acting Comm'r, (September 1, 2011), <<http://www.nj.gov/education/legal/>>:

There are a series of cases which are routinely cited by litigants involving incidents of physical contact between a teacher and a student. Although the penalties given in those cases can offer some insight into appropriate penalties to be imposed in future matters, it is important to recognize that cases involving physical force are extremely fact sensitive and require a case-by-case analysis. Moreover, conduct on the part of teaching staff members that occurred several decades ago may not be consistent with the type of behavior that will be tolerated in this day and age. The adherence to precedents in administrative proceedings is "subject to the basic notion that experience is a teacher and not a jailer. In re Masiello, 25 N.J. 590, 598-599 (1958) (citations omitted).

Craft was given a four-month suspension after she slapped an eight-year-old special education student who had been hitting her.

In re Alvarez, EDU 10067-09, Initial Decision (March 5, 2010), modified, Comm'r (June 3, 2010), <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>, involved a teacher who pushed a desk into a student on one occasion, used physical force to push a student out of a room on another, and utilized profane language in other frustrating situations. The Commissioner distinguished Alvarez's situation from the situation in In re Tenure Hearing of Mierzwa, EDU 8220-07, Initial Decision (May 6, 2008), modified in part, Comm'r (June 23, 2008), <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>. While Mierzwa was recognized as having a mindset that focused on a lack of administrative support and/or proper protocols as the primary factors triggering his temper flare-ups, Alvarez's outbursts were directed at students and left both staff members and students in fear. Thus, while the penalty exacted from Mierzwa was the forfeiture of 120 days' pay withheld upon initial suspension, and an additional suspension of four months while he obtained training in anger management, conflict resolution and handling difficult and disruptive students, with termination of his employment if he did not successfully complete the program, the Commissioner dismissed Alvarez from his tenured position.

An examination of the facts of the current situation, the mitigating factors, the effect on the school district, and the precedents indicates the following. T.E.'s behavior could be viewed as a form of provocation. He stepped on the respondent, pulled on the respondent, and then later, in a classroom, suggested that the two go at it. However, as the incident of the prior week and the video showed, this sort of student-teacher interaction had become a pattern. Respondent's responses to it were wholly inappropriate, and in fact encouraged other students to misbehave, as demonstrated by the unidentified student who felt free to stomp on a teacher. There are some threads in the case law that suggest that behavior in gym class is necessarily more physical than is the case elsewhere in school, but these incidents did not happen in gym. The actual class was over; the first T.E. incident happened in the hall, the second in math class.

Testimony by Robyn Gray also suggested that male teachers had less formal relationships with students than did their female counterparts. Whether this was a polite way of alluding to tolerance of horseplay and greater levels of physical contact is uncertain. But in a time when schools are focusing on how to comply with the new anti-bullying laws, this sort of physical behavior is out of step with current requirements for school districts.

The inappropriate joking about "100s" in and of itself is not so offensive as to implicate tenure, but taken with the other behavior underlines the problem with properly modeling behavior.

As his counsel notes, respondent testified compellingly as to his remorse about the conduct, and to his understanding that the joking was inappropriate, and that what he intended as a means of building a spirit of camaraderie instead blurred the student-teacher relationship unacceptably. It should also be noted that Forman did demonstrate that he has worked hard at elements of the position, trying to build an intellectually engaging program, supporting student athletes, and supporting the school by taking paid duty in a variety of areas. Further, it was clear that respondent did care deeply about his students and had no malicious intent, but for some reason, simply failed in the time in question to appreciate the inappropriateness of the horseplay.

Nonetheless, given the current precedents and the ongoing efforts through the anti-bullying laws to change how students conduct themselves in relation to each other, I CONCLUDE that the loss of tenure from this position is appropriate.

WHEREAS during the 2009-10 school year Petitioner Beagan was assigned to the full-time secretarial/clerical position in the library at Village Elementary School; and

WHEREAS during the 2009-10 school year Petitioner Yacovelli was assigned to the full-time secretarial/clerical position in the library at Holmdel High School; and

WHEREAS Respondent determined, at a meeting held on May 26, 2010, to abolish two (2) secretarial/clerical positions in the District's libraries, pursuant to a Reduction in Force ("RIF"); and

WHEREAS at the time of the RIF, the four (4) employees assigned to secretarial/clerical positions in the District's libraries, including Petitioners, were all tenured secretarial/clerical employees; and

WHEREAS, pursuant to Article 19D of the Collective Bargaining Agreement between the Holmdel Township Board of Education and the Holmdel Township Education Association (the Association") for the period from July 1, 2009 to June 30, 2013, dismissals of tenured office services personnel, in the event of a reduction in force, shall be accomplished on the basis of seniority of personnel currently assigned within the job classification affected by the RIF; and

WHEREAS Petitioners had the least seniority in the job classification of library secretary, and, thus, they were notified by Respondent that their employment would be terminated, effective July 1, 2010; and

WHEREAS, as tenured secretarial/clerical employees, Petitioners are entitled, following the termination of their employment pursuant to a reduction in force, to remain on a preferred eligibility list for recall to employment in the District when comparable secretarial/clerical positions become

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and promises contained herein, the Parties agree as follows:

1. Respondent Holmdel Township Board of Education shall remove the results of the aforementioned computerized tests from the personnel files of Petitioner Beagan and Petitioner Yacovelli, and shall not utilize same, in any fashion, as the basis for denying the Petitioners future employment in secretarial/clerical positions with the District.

2. Petitioner Beagan and Petitioner Yacovelli, hereby agree to a dismissal, with prejudice, of the Petition of Appeal against Respondent in this matter. Said dismissal shall have no effect on the rights that Petitioner Beagan and/or Petitioner Yacovelli may have to future employment in the District.

3. 6. All parties are bound by this Agreement and each of its provisions. Anyone who succeeds to their rights and responsibilities, such as their successors and assigns, are also bound. This Agreement is made for the benefit of all the parties hereto and all who succeed to their rights and responsibilities, and expressly includes their officials, representatives, employees, agents, attorneys, successors or assigns.

7. This Agreement shall be construed fairly according to the plain language of its terms and not for or against any party hereto.

8. This Agreement shall not constitute, be interpreted, construed or used as evidence of any admission of fact, law, responsibility, wrongdoing or liability and shall not be referred to in any subsequent proceeding by any party other than to enforce the express terms of this Agreement. In the event that this Agreement is not fully executed and approved by all parties hereto, it shall become null and void and shall neither constitute an admission of any party, nor be referred to by any party in any subsequent legal proceeding for any purpose whatsoever.

Petitioner – an early childhood education teacher employed in respondent’s school district since 1990 – appealed the determination of the respondent Board to withhold her 2010-2011 salary increment, alleging that the Board’s actions were arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. The Board contended that the increment withholding was justified based upon deficiencies in petitioner’s teaching performance as documented in all of her evaluations throughout the previous school year.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner was observed and evaluated three times during the 2009-2010 school year; all three evaluations concluded that petitioner’s performance was below standard, unsatisfactory, and needed improvement; petitioner never submitted a written rebuttal stating why she should not have received an unsatisfactory evaluation, and never asked for or accepted assistance from staff or colleagues, although it was offered; and that the Board acted reasonably in withholding the petitioner’s increment due to unsatisfactory performance during the 2009-2012 school year. The ALJ concluded that the petitioner failed to show that the increment withholding was unreasonable and accordingly affirmed the Board’s decision to withhold petitioner’s increment; the petition was dismissed.

Upon independent review and consideration, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the petitioner failed to sustain her burden of establishing that the Board’s action was arbitrary, capricious unreasonable, or an abuse of its discretion. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter.

RESPONDENT.	:

Upon careful consideration, the Commissioner¹ determines to adopt the ALJ's recommended decision as he finds that the Board's action in withholding the petitioner's 2010-2011 increment was a valid exercise of its discretionary authority. In so determining, the Commissioner was mindful that it is well-established that the scope of the Commissioner's review in increment withholding matters is not to substitute his judgment for that of those who made the evaluation, but to determine whether they had a reasonable basis for their conclusions. (Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). As such, there are only two determinations to be made when reviewing the Board's decision to withhold the increment of a teaching staff member, i.e., 1) whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluation claimed, and 2) whether it was unreasonable for them to conclude as they did based on those facts. Moreover, it is likewise well-established that the burden of proving unreasonableness lies with the petitioner. (Kopera at 296-297)

With this applicable legal standard in mind, the Commissioner's review persuades him that the record here amply establishes that the Board's action in withholding petitioner's increment was based on validly perceived deficiencies in her performance during the 2009-2010 school year. Consequently, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to sustain her burden of establishing, by a preponderance of the credible evidence, that the Board's action was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable, or an abuse of its discretion.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

BEFORE CARIDAD F. RIGO, ALJ:

Decided: July 19, 2012

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

In this matter Anita Martin, the petitioner, appeals the Jersey City Board of Education's (hereinafter District) decision to withhold her salary increment for the 2010-2011 school year. Petitioner contends that respondent's actions were arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable.

On September 20, 2010, petitioner filed a Verified Petition appealing respondent's decision. On September 28, 2010, respondent filed an Answer and Affirmative Defenses. The matter was transmitted by the Department of Education Bureau of Controversies and Disputes to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case on October 6, 2010. The case was heard on September 21, 2011, December 5, 2011, and on December 9, 2011. Closing briefs were received on January 10, 2012, at which time the record closed.

ISSUE

Did respondent school District have a reasonable basis to withhold petitioner's increment?

THE FACTS

Anitra Martin began teaching in Jersey City on September 1, 1990. She has a Bachelor of Science degree in education from Trenton State College and is certified in early childhood education. She has taught three-year-olds and the pre-k programs for Jersey City for approximately twenty-two years. Petitioner is a tenured teacher.

By letter dated August 24, 2010, petitioner was advised that the District Superintendent directed that her salary increment for the school year 2010-2011 be withheld because of her unsatisfactory performance. (See Exhibit R-20.)

Summary of Testimony

Lauren Bernero

Lauren Bernero is the supervisor of the early childhood education department of the Jersey City Public Schools. She has been employed by the District for thirteen years. She has a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Scranton in elementary education and a Master of Arts degree from Jersey City University. She has certifications in pre-school, elementary education, and a supervisor's education. She oversees ten childcare centers in Jersey City plus twelve public schools. She further oversees a staff of twenty. She said the majority of her work entails evaluating pre-school teachers. She conducts about sixty-five evaluations a year. She is also responsible for coordinating the professional-development programs for the teachers.

Bernero testified that she observed Ms. Martin for purposes of evaluating on March 30, 2010. (Exhibit R-15.) Bernero observed Ms. Martin at Public School #9 (PS 9) in the pre-kindergarten class. Bernero observed Martin in four domains of teaching; "Planning and Preparation," "Students and Learning," "Instruction" and "Classroom Environment." On Planning and Preparation Bernero concluded that Martin's performance needed improvement. According to Bernero there was little if any effective planning methods. Bernero gave Martin an unsatisfactory score on Domain 1. For Domain 2, Students and Learning, Bernero said Martin's skills needed improvement. On Domain 3, Instruction, Bernero felt that Martin needed to improve. And, on Domain 4, Classroom Environment, Bernero evaluated Martin as unsatisfactory.

Bernero stated that she offered Martin support services for curriculum, program social workers, psychologist, teacher consultants, and the pre-school nurse.

Under cross-examination Bernero stated that Martin's classroom was not set up as it should have been. She said the space in Martin's classroom was not well defined although it was divided. She said Martin had things all mixed up; she had adult things with children's toys. She said traffic flow in the classroom was a problem. Children's names were not on their cubbies or hooks.

Bernero observed that some children were fighting and Martin did nothing about it. The children's challenging behaviors were not addressed by Martin. Bernero said she did not observe a lot of adult-child interaction. That, Martin did not spend a lot of time interacting with the children, Martin just moved around the class. Martin did not engage with the children while they were playing—thereby extending their play. Bernero stated Martin was not engaged and was generic. She observed Martin in her classroom for forty-five minutes. She concluded that learning was limited because of the limited child-teacher interaction. She observed that Martin used the same lesson plans and the same small-group activity.

Bernero testified that Martin was not aware of her students. Further, she had not managed her class well, so much so, that a student left the room and Martin did not notice. The children with misbehaviors were not redirected. She saw children acting out in disruptive behaviors and at one point Martin walked out of the class leaving the students unsupervised.

Bernero had a post-evaluation conference with Martin on March 31 and they discussed the results. Bernero said that petitioner acknowledged that on the day of the observation she had a bad day.

Wendy Perez

Wendy Perez has been employed by the Jersey City Board of Education for over thirty-four years. She has a Master's degree in early childhood and certificates in supervisor, principal, and bi-lingual education. She is principal at PS 5 and previously the principal of PS 9. She has nineteen-years experience as a school principal. She evaluates about sixty teachers a year teaching in grades pre-k through 8.

Perez observed and evaluated Martin twice. Perez had a pre-observation conference with Martin on September 23, 2009. (See Exhibit R-9.) At that pre-observation conference the areas to be observed and evaluated were discussed and the date of the observation was confirmed. The first observation took place on November 9, 2009.

On November 9, 2009, Perez said Martin was not organized and she was minimally engaged with the students. Perez observed that Martin was not walking around and talking with the children. Perez noted that Martin's plan book lacked detail in planning. Martin's plan book did not follow the district guidelines. Perez observed that Martin did not record anecdotal records for the students and Martin did not use the appropriate documentation forms required by the district.

Perez noted that children were sleeping even though the scheduled nap time was over. It took over ten minutes to wake some of the children up and at times Martin had to kick the children's sleeping mats to wake them. The children were motivating and stimulating themselves to learn and interacting amongst themselves, while Martin just stood by and watched. Perez noted that the classroom was barren of displays and did not have grade-appropriate visual stimulation. The classroom's labeling was minimal. The work and play centers did not contain sufficient materials to meet the students' needs and interests. Perez also noted that Martin's class notes were incomplete.

As a result of the November 9, 2009, observation and evaluation Perez gave Martin the following ratings: Domain 1 - Planning and Preparation, needs improvement; Domain 2 - Students and Learning, needs improvement; Domain 3 - Instruction, unsatisfactory; and Domain 4 - Classroom Environment, needs improvement. (See Exhibit R-10.)

The second evaluation by Perez took place on May 11, 2010. Perez stated that on that day when she came into the classroom appellant was not in the class, only the teacher's assistant was in the classroom, and again the children were still sleeping from their nap. Perez noted that the children were all doing "their own thing." As a result of her observations, Perez concluded that Martin was not doing her job in a satisfactory manner. Perez also stated that Martin had not demonstrated any progress from her previous reviews. Perez said she offered to provide Martin assistance but Martin never came to her. Perez told the lead teacher to provide support services to Martin. Perez told Martin that her increment was in danger.

As a result of the May 11, 2010, observation and evaluation Perez gave Martin the following ratings: Domain 1 - Planning and Preparation, unsatisfactory; Domain 2 - Students and Learning, needs improvement; Domain 3 - Instruction, unsatisfactory; and Domain 4 - Classroom Environment, unsatisfactory. (See Exhibit R-18.)

Perez said she frequently observed petitioner by informally walking in to her class.

Anitra Martin

Anitra Martin testified that she started teaching at Jersey City on September 1, 1990, prior to that she taught at a daycare center in Newark, N.J. She has a Bachelor of Science degree in education from Trenton State College and is certified in Early childhood education. She has taught pre-k to three-year-olds at PS 9 and at the Kennedy School. Martin has been at PS 9 for seventeen years. In the school year 2009-2010 she had pre-k class at PS 9 that had thirteen to fifteen students, in which she had one assistant who worked cooperatively with her.

Martin stated she was teaching to the children's interest. Martin explained that in interest learning the teacher is more of a facilitator. Martin said the children choose work or play center, for example, home center, library center, family center, etc. She had a schedule that she prepared and she taught according to that time schedule. (See Exhibit P-1.) The majority of the equipment/crafts/displays were provided by the district. All of the centers are guided by the district's curriculum. The displays in her class were the children's work.

According to Martin, Perez generally did not review her lesson plans. And, her teaching methods did not change in 2009-2010 from the previous years. Martin said she used the High Scope Preschool Curriculum on a daily basis. (See Exhibit P-2.) Martin said that the entire class is together during large-group time and reading time. She said she has a plan book of her own that follows the district's curriculum. Her lesson plans are done on a daily basis.

Martin denied ever kicking a child's cot to wake them up. She actively engaged herself with the children. Martin denied ever leaving the classroom with the children unsupervised. And, that no child ever walked out of her class and she did not know it.

Martin furthered that her classroom was small so it was difficult to keep organized, as she did not have much space to put things.

Martin testified that she was not in agreement with the May 14, 2010, evaluation.

Under cross-examination Martin stressed that she taught based on the child's interest. The child's interest is what she uses to drive her daily plans. For example, if the child wants to listen to music every day you let it happen and take the opportunity to introduce different instruments. She said the High Scope Curriculum is driven by the child's interest.

Martin explained that the purpose of anecdotal records is for the teacher to see what the child has accomplished. Therefore, the teacher can see the child's development over the school year. In her case, she kept anecdotal records but not on a regular basis because much of the information she gets from the child is the same from day to day. She only kept anecdotal records if it changed.

Martin further stated that she disagreed with the evaluation results from Perez. That Perez's conclusions were inaccurate representations of her teaching but that she never submitted a response. She did not sign the evaluations because she did not agree with the contents.

Martin said that Perez never offered to help her improve with her performance.

She said no parent ever complained.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon the testimonial and documentary evidence presented and having had the opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses and assess their credibility , I FIND the following to be FACT:

1. Petitioner is a tenured pre-k teacher for the respondent district. She has taught pre-k to three-year-olds at Public School #9 for at least seventeen years. She has taught in the district nineteen years.
2. Petitioner was observed and evaluated three times during the 2009-2010 school year: twice by her Principal Wendy Perez, and once by Supervisor of Early Childhood Education Lauren Bernero for the district.
3. Petitioner was observed and evaluated on November 9, 2009, March 30, 2010, and May 11, 2010. All three evaluations concluded that petitioner's performance was below standard, unsatisfactory, and needed improvement.
4. Petitioner disagreed with the conclusions and the ratings her superiors gave her but never submitted a written rebuttal stating why she should not have received an unsatisfactory evaluation.
5. Petitioner never asked or accepted assistance from staff or colleagues.

In this case, petitioner tries to defend her position by arguing that she instructs according to her interpretation of the required curriculum. Petitioner asserts that her classes are child-interest driven. Petitioner responds by saying that the lesson plans may be repeated on a daily basis because it is the child that drives the instruction. Petitioner stated that no child ever walked out of her classroom without her knowing it. And, that she never kicked the cots to wake the children up. I FIND that other than these assertions, petitioner does not address the heart of the deficiencies found in her performance evaluations.

Therefore, based on the above findings of FACTS I further FIND that the district acted reasonably in withholding petitioner's increment due to unsatisfactory performance during the 2009-2010 school year.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSION

N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, allows a board of education to withhold any member's employment increase for inefficiency or other good cause. The purpose of the statute is to "reward only those who have contributed to the educational process thereby encouraging high standards of performance." Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Bernards v. Bernards Twp. Educ. Ass'n, 79 N.J. 311, 321, (1979). "The decision to withhold an increment is therefore a manner of essential managerial prerogative which has been delegated by the Legislature to the board." Ibid.

In matters such as this, petitioner has the burden of proof to demonstrate that the district's decision was arbitrary and capricious. Gnatt v. Bd. of Educ. of the Manalapan-Englishtown Reg'l Sch. Dist., 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 89. When reviewing a board's determination to withhold a teaching increment, the scope of the Commissioner's review is to determine (1) whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluations claimed, and (2) whether it was reasonable for them to conclude as they did based upon their findings and facts. The Commissioner is not to substitute his judgment for that of those who made the observations and evaluations. Id. at 94. I CONCLUDE that petitioner failed to prove her burden; therefore, the increment withholding by the District should be upheld.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that petitioner's petition of appeal is hereby DISMISSED. And, I AFFIRM Respondent's decision to withhold petitioner's increment for the 2010-2011 academic year.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen (13) days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Petitioner – a tenured school psychologist – challenged the Board’s decision to transfer her from the position of school psychologist assigned to the child study team to a newly created elementary school psychologist position. Petitioner alleged that under the new position she has been assigned teaching duties that are inconsistent with her school psychologist certification, and that she is now effectively employed as an elementary school teacher. The Board contended that petitioner failed to file the petition in a timely manner, and filed a motion to dismiss.

The ALJ found that: petitioner was notified on June 22, 2011 that she would be reassigned to the newly created position of school psychologist for the 2011-2012 school year; on the same day, petitioner met with the director of elementary education and the principal of the George Elementary School, and was told about the new position and how she would implement the “second-step” curriculum; petitioner acknowledged in an email after the June 22, 2011 meeting that her new position would be of a teaching nature; although petitioner knew of her reassignment in June 2011, she did not submit her appeal until November 10, 2011, which is beyond the 90 day limitation period set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that petitioner’s appeal was untimely filed, and granted the Board’s motion to dismiss the petition.

The Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – concurred with the ALJ that this matter must be dismissed as untimely. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto – filed in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were fully considered by the Commissioner¹ in reaching his determination herein.

Petitioner's exceptions replicate her arguments advanced in her letter memorandum in opposition to the Board's Motion for Summary Decision filed below. As it is determined that such arguments were fully considered and addressed by the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in his Initial Decision, they will not be revisited here.

Upon full consideration, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that summary decision is appropriately granted to the Board as the instant petition of appeal was filed well outside the 90-day limitation period set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) and the record provides no reason whatsoever for relaxation of this rule.

¹ This matter has been delegated to the Deputy Commissioner pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted for the reasons clearly presented therein and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

BEFORE MICHAEL ANTONIEWICZ, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The Board of Education for Westwood (Board) seeks dismissal of a petition, filed with the Commissioner of Education, in which Debra Bruno (Bruno) seeks to challenge the Board's decision to transfer her from a school psychologist position to an elementary school psychologist position. The Board contends that she failed to file the petition in a timely fashion, more specifically: within ninety days of the date of the Board action from which she appeals as required by N.J.A.C. 6A:1.3(i). Bruno responds that she effectively complied with the regulation, citing that she was unaware that the new position was a teaching position and that it was not until the first week of school for the 2011–2012 school year that it became clear that her transfer was not a new assignment requiring her educational services certificate with the school psychologist's endorsement. Bruno thus avers that the ninety days began to run in September 2011, when she acquired notice of her actual job duties. Respondent filed a Motion for Summary Decision on April 30, 2012; the petitioner filed a brief in opposition to the motion on May 24, 2012; and the Board filed a reply to the petitioner's brief on June 4, 2012, on which day the record closed.

FACTS

Based upon a review of the evidence presented and the submissions by both parties, I FIND as FACT the following:

1. Bruno was employed by the Westwood Regional School District as a school psychologist since 1988 and was assigned as such for the child study team through the 2010–2011 school year.
2. Bruno possesses an educational services certificate with a school psychologist endorsement.
3. Bruno's primary responsibilities as the school psychologist on the child study team were to administer, score, and interpret psychological assessments of the District's students with special needs.
4. During the 2010–2011 school year, the Board determined that there was a need in the elementary schools to provide systemic-learning experiences for students in the third, fourth, and fifth grades.

5. At the Board's meeting held on June 9, 2011, the Board approved the creation of a new elementary school psychologist position at George Elementary School and approved the job description for same.
6. On June 22, 2011, Superintendent of Schools Dr. Geoffrey Zoeller informed Bruno that he would be recommending to the Board that she would be assigned to this newly created position for the 2011–2012 school year.
7. In addition, on June 22, 2011, Bruno met with Rory McCourt (Mccourt), director of elementary education and district technology, and Mary Ferreri (Ferreri), principal of the George Elementary School, and was told about the elementary school psychologist position and how she would implement the second-step curriculum.
8. Furthermore, on June 22, 2011, Bruno e-mailed McCourt and Ferreri and confirmed that she would be recommended for a transfer to the elementary psychologist position.
9. Petitioner sent an e-mail to McCourt and Ferreri after the June 22, 2011 meeting acknowledging that his new position would be of a teaching nature.
10. On November 10, 2011, Bruno filed a petition with the Commissioner, alleging that the Board assigned her to a job with teaching duties that are inconsistent with her school psychologist's endorsement.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

A summary decision may be rendered in an administrative proceeding if the pleadings, discovery and affidavits "show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). The standard to be applied in deciding a motion pursuant to

N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b) is essentially the same as that governing a motion under R. 4:46-2 for summary judgment in civil litigation. Contini v. Bd. of Educ. of Newark, 286 N.J. Super. 106, 121 (App. Div. 1995), certif. denied, 145 N.J. 372 (1996).

The standard for evaluating a motion for summary judgment was modified in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, 142 N.J. 520, 540 (1995). Under this standard, a determination as to whether there exists a “genuine issue” of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party.

The Board disputes the petitioner’s argument that she had no notice of the change of position and responsibilities by stating that there exists documentation that Bruno was aware in June 2011, that she was transferred to a newly created position entitled elementary school psychologist with new and different professional responsibilities, including providing services in the classroom and contending that any action challenging its decision must be timely filed with the Commissioner with the time period beginning on June 22, 2011.

The ninety-day filing requirement is codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i)

(i) The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing. This rule shall not apply in instances where a specific statute, regulation or court order provides for a period of limitation shorter than 90 days for the filing of a particular type of appeal.

Clearly, the petition contemplated by this rule is a petition to the Commissioner of Education, who is empowered to decide disputes arising under the education laws of this State and whose jurisdiction is generally primary in such matters. The ninety-day rule is applied strictly and substantial case law supports that practice. There are limited instances where exceptions to the rule have been allowed. The purpose of the rule has been described as:

The limitations period provides a measure of repose, an essential element in the proper and efficient administration of the school laws. It stabilizes the relationship between the teachers and the administration The limitation period gives school districts the security of knowing that administrative decisions regarding the operation of the school cannot be challenged after ninety days. Moreover, because local school boards operate on a cash basis, claims must be filed promptly so that the local board can anticipate any back-pay requirements.

The rule has been waived where the issue(s) presented by a petition filed out-of-time involve important and novel constitutional questions or matters of important public rather than private interests which are in need of adjudication or where there are informal or ex parte determinations of legal questions by administrative officials. However, in general, the rule has been strictly enforced. Brunetti v. Borough of New Milford, 68 N.J. 576, 586 (1975); Raymond v. Bd. of Educ. of River Edge, 94 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 203; see also Dreher v. Jersey City Bd. of Educ., 1987 S.L.D. 1706, aff'd, 1988 S.L.D. 2439 (State Bd. 1988), rev'd on other grounds, A-6120-82 (App. Div. February 28, 1985) (where a petition which was filed only two days after the timeline expired was dismissed as untimely).

In some matters involving a controversy regarding the school laws, a party first seeks to institute another type of challenge to the action in some other arena, or in some other fashion has given a board of education some degree of notice that the party is not satisfied with the board's action. Generally, these efforts do not satisfy the requirement to file a petition with the Commissioner within the allotted ninety days. The case law has long recognized that the fact that other proceedings may have been initiated elsewhere does not effect the 90-day time period to file with the Commissioner. In Medeiros v. Jersey City School District, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 276, the petitioner had a claim before the worker's compensation court for an alleged work-related injury. The ALJ held that the petitioner should not have waited for his worker's compensation claim to be determined before filing a petition with the Commissioner for a violation of the school laws. Citing the opinion in Verneret v. Elizabeth Bd. of Educ., 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 191, modified in part and aff'd in part, 95 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 134, the ALJ held that "even if an alleged work-related injury also is the subject of a worker's compensation petition, a school law claim . . . still must be filed within 90 days." Medeiros, supra, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) at 277; see also Riely v. Hunterdon Cent. High Sch. Bd. of Educ., 173 N.J. Super. 109, 113 (App. Div. 1980) (stating that the respondent "gambled" on a favorable arbitration award and after losing in arbitration tried to seek relief with the Commissioner in an untimely manner); Bernards Township Bd. of Educ. v. Bernards Township Educ. Ass'n, 79 N.J. 311, 326 (1979) (holding that a teacher who proceeds to arbitration is not thereby relieved from compliance with the 90-day requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3); Hoffman v. Hillsborough Township Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 943, 946 (stating, "[t]here is no reason why [the petitioner] could not have timely filed a petition of appeal with the Commissioner of Education even while pursuing other avenues" of relief).

[Z.G. on behalf of minor child, V.G. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Livingston, Essex County, EDU 5459-04, Initial Decision, (September 20, 2004), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>.]

In this case, the petitioner did not take any action in another forum. Rather, Bruno's defense for not filing within the ninety-day period from June 22, 2011, is that the ninety-day period did not begin until September, 2011. Bruno alleges that the time limitation began in September 2011, when it became clear to her that her transfer was not a new assignment requiring the educational services certificate with the school psychologist's endorsement.

I agree with the Board that there is ample evidence that Bruno was fully aware in June 2011 that her transfer was to a newly created position entitled "Elementary School Psychologist," with its new and different professional responsibilities, including providing services in the classroom. Such evidence includes the fact that: 1) Bruno admits that she was informed by McCourt and Ferreri on June 22, 2011, that Bruno was being transferred to the elementary schools to serve as the elementary school psychologist; 2) Bruno stated that she was informed by McCourt and Ferreri that the transfer resulted from being moved from the Department of Special Services and that she would no longer serve as a child study team member; 3) McCourt e-mailed the Board-approved job description for the elementary school psychologist position to Bruno on June 22, 2011; 4) Bruno sent an e-mail to McCourt and Ferreri after their meeting on June 22, 2011, acknowledging that “primarily my position was expected to be of a teaching nature”; 5) McCourt informed Bruno that, as an elementary school psychologist, Bruno’s role would be teaching lessons regarding anti-bullying, social skills and life skills, and that she would also assist the District with implementing New Jersey’s new harassment, intimidation, and bullying program; and 6) McCourt sent a responding email to Bruno, dated June 22, 2011, which states that he would develop a schedule for the ensuing year for Bruno and that he would email to her over the summer the social-skills curriculum that she would be using.

Bruno’s claim, at this point, that she had no knowledge of her new role simply cannot stand up to the weight of the evidence set forth above and has no credibility. It is clear that Bruno had notice of and acknowledged her changed responsibilities on June 22, 2011, and yet did not file her petition until November 10, 2011, when the ninety-day requirement for filing had expired. A Verified Petition was filed with the Commissioner on November 10, 2011.

Indeed, as the Kaprow court itself said, the purpose of the ninety-day rule is both to “stimulate litigants to pursue a right of action within a reasonable time so that the opposing party may have a fair opportunity to defend, thus preventing the litigation of stale claims” and “to prevent dilatoriness and serve as a measure of repose by giving security and stability to human affairs.” Kaprow, supra, 131 N.J. at 587.

For the reasons stated, I CONCLUDE that Bruno’s petition was not filed with the Commissioner within ninety days of the time when she knew that such filing was required by the facts known to her. I CONCLUDE that the delay of at least 141 days in filing the petition with the Commissioner is precisely that sort of delay that undermines the interest in certainty and repose that lies at the foundation of the ninety-day rule. As such, I CONCLUDE that the petition is untimely.

ORDER

The Motion to Dismiss the Petition is therefore GRANTED. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE : DECISION VILLAGE OF RIDGEWOOD,
BERGEN COUNTY, :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that his child is not eligible for a free public education in the Ridgewood school district. Petitioner contended that the house he owns in Ridgewood was for sale during the 2011-2012 school year because he and his wife have separated. Petitioner stated that his wife – who has custody of J.M.J., III – intends to move back to Ridgewood after their house sells; however, petitioner admitted that neither he nor his wife resided in Ridgewood during the 2011-2012 school year. The Board sought tuition reimbursement in the amount of $12,600 for the full school year.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner did not appear at the hearing on June 18, 2012; the Board did appear, and represented that petitioner had admitted that neither he nor his wife has been domiciled in Ridgewood since before September 2011; J.M.H., III, attended school in Ridgewood without interruption during the 2011-2012 school year; the respondent Board is entitled to tuition from petitioner for this time period; and the out-of-district tuition rate for the 2011-2012 school year is $70 per day, or a total of $12,600 for the whole year. The ALJ concluded that J.M.H., III, attended school but was not domiciled in Ridgewood during the 2011-2012 school year; accordingly, the ALJ ordered the petitioner to pay the Board $12,600 in tuition for his period of ineligible attendance.

Upon a full and independent review, the Deputy Commissioner – to whom this matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-33 – concurred with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this case, and the petitioner was ordered to pay tuition in the amount of $12,600 for the period of J.M.H.'s ineligible attendance in the district's schools.

Record Closed: June 18, 2012

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, J.M.H. is challenging the non-residency determination of his son J.M.H.III, who is a student currently enrolled in the Ridgewood Public School District. J.M.H. contends that his wife has custody of his son and that he is entitled to continue his schooling under the auspices of the Ridgewood School District. Ridgewood Board of Education (Board) contends that neither the son nor the parents live in Ridgewood.

On March 15, 2012, the Board determined that J.M.H.III is ineligible to attend school in the district. By letter of March 15, 2012, the Board notified petitioner of its determination. The Board seeks tuition reimbursement for the 2011-2012 school year. On April 11, 2012, the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes transmitted the contested case to the Office of Administrative Law. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A telephone pre-hearing was scheduled for May 3, 2012, and notices were mailed to the parties and to the attorney for the Board. A hearing was conducted on June 18, 2012, on which date the record closed. Petitioner did not appear for the hearing.

TESTIMONY AND FINDING OF FACTS

During the hearing Jeffrey R. Merlino, Esq. on behalf of the Board represented that:

1. On or about March 14, 2012 petitioner admitted to Dr. Daniel Fishbein, Superintendent of Schools, (hereinafter referred to as "Dr. Fishbein") and the Respondent Ridgewood Board of Education that neither parent of J.M.H., III, is domiciled in Ridgewood, New Jersey.
2. At the aforementioned time, petitioner also admitted that neither parent of J.M.H., III has been domiciled in Ridgewood since before September 2011.
3. J.M.H., III, has been attending Ridgewood Public Schools without interruption since before September 2011.
4. The out-of-district tuition rate to attend Ridgewood Public Schools for the 2011-12 school year is $12,600 per year, or $70.00 per day.
5. J.M.H., III continues to be educated by Ridgewood Public Schools.

6. J.M.H., III unlawfully attended Respondent's schools during the 2011-2012 school year.
7. Respondent is entitled to tuition from petitioner for this time period.

THE LAW

The general rule concerning attendance at school free of charge is that public schools are free for anyone over five and under 20 years of age who is domiciled within the district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). Domicile has been defined as the place where a person has his true, fixed, permanent home, and principle establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. State v. Benny, 20 N.J. 238, 250 (1955). For purposes of (Subsection A), the domicile of an unemancipated child is the domicile of the parent, custodian or guardian. P.B.K. o/b/o minor child E.Y. v. Board of Ed. of Tenafly, 343 N.J. Super 419, 427 (App. Div. 2001). Thus, a child would routinely attend school in the district where his or her parents live.

Based upon the facts adduced, I CONCLUDE that J.M.H., III attended school but was not domiciled in Ridgewood during the 2011-2012 school year.

The Board is entitled to recover tuition from a parent or guardian of a child found ineligible to attend a school in its district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2). "Tuition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance" Ibid. Jeffrey R. Merlino, Esq represented that the total annual per pupil cost for the 2011-2012 school-year was $12,600.00. The per diem rate for the 2011-2012 school-year is $70.00. J.M.H. was ineligible to attend Ridgewood High School during the 2011-2012 school-year and he has accumulated 180 days of ineligible attendance. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the total due the Board for the 2011-2012 school year is $12,600.

ORDER

I hereby ORDER that the Board's decision to remove J.M.H., III. from its school district is AFFIRMED. I further ORDER that the Board's application for tuition reimbursement is hereby GRANTED in the amount of $12,600.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

General (Jeffrey S. Chiesa, Attorney General of New Jersey)

Appellant challenges the determination of the New Jersey State Board of Examiners (Board of Examiners) that his actions warranted the revocation of his teaching certificates. The Commissioner has thoroughly reviewed the record of the proceedings before the Board of Examiners and the parties' appellate papers, and concurs with the Board of Examiners' holdings.

The facts have been amply set forth in the various adjudications of the tenure charges – including a Commissioner Decision and an affirmance of same by the Superior Court, Appellate Division – which underlay the Board of Examiners' action against appellant's certificates. Those facts reveal that appellant was found guilty of insubordination towards his administrative superiors and inappropriate behavior towards students, parents and colleagues – the latter behavior having included a physical altercation with a fellow teaching staff member. The Commissioner's and Appellate Division's findings of unbecoming conduct constitute the law of the case and will not be relitigated here. Under N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.5, such findings may serve as the basis for revocation of teaching certification.

The Board of Examiners provided appellant with the opportunity to present information which might mitigate against action on his certificates. In response, appellant invoked the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination (NJLAD) N.J.S.A. 10:5-1 et seq., arguing that his behavior had been caused by depression – for which he should not be punished. For this proposition, appellant relied on a letter report by James R. Cowan, M.D., in which Cowan concluded that appellant was suffering from depression “associated with the present experience at the school where he teaches.” (Letter Report dated January 23, 2008 from James R. Cowan, M.D. to Florence B. Eatman, M.D., attached to Item #10 of respondent’s statement of items comprising the record.)

Cowan’s report did not, however, contain any determination that depression had caused appellant’s unbecoming behavior; nor would that have been appropriate insofar as Cowan had met with appellant on one occasion only – after the offending behavior had occurred – had administered no testing, and had based his assessment of appellant exclusively upon appellant’s own account of his background and situation. Thus, appellant’s contention that his aggressive behavior was caused by depression lacks factual support.

Further, even if appellant had proven that his behavior had been the result of a depressive disorder, the Board of Examiners would not have been precluded from revoking his teaching certificates. To establish the elements of a prima facie discriminatory discharge, the plaintiff employee must prove (1) that he or she was handicapped, (2) that he or she was performing the job at a level acceptable to the employer, (3) that he or she was fired, and (4) that the employer sought to fill the job after he or she left. Jansen v. Food Circus Supermarkets, Inc., 110 N.J. 363, 382 (1988) (emphasis added). Since it has been determined that appellant had not been performing his job acceptably, appellant cannot prove one of the four necessary elements of a claim under the NJLAD. Moreover, the Appellate Division has addressed the issue and has determined that it concurs “with the federal authority that laws protecting the handicapped from employment discrimination are not intended to protect against crime or egregious conduct which, if committed by any other employee, would [warrant an] adverse employment decision. Barbera v. Di Martino, 305 N.J. Super. 617, 640 (App. Div. 1997).

In summary, the Commissioner is not persuaded that there is any basis to disturb the decision of the Board of Examiners to revoke appellant’s certificates.¹ Accordingly, said decision is affirmed and the appeal is dismissed.

¹ Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.10, appellant may file an application for a new certificate upon the satisfaction of the criteria in N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.10(b). Those criteria include the provision of evidence of rehabilitation for the unbecoming conduct. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.10(b)(3). It is solely the responsibility of appellant to seek and realize that rehabilitation.

IN THE MATTER OF NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
THE CERTIFICATES OF STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS
BRIAN TAYLOR ORDER OF REVOCATION

DOCKET NO: 0910-146

At its meeting of December 2, 2009, the State Board of Examiners (Board) reviewed a decision forwarded by the Commissioner of Education that had dismissed Brian Taylor from his tenured position with the East Orange School District (East Orange) for charges of unbecoming conduct. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Brian Taylor, Docket No. 307-09 (Commissioner's Decision, September 21, 2009). Taylor currently holds a Teacher of Elementary School Certificate of Eligibility, issued in July 1998 and a Teacher of Elementary School certificate, issued in September 1999. At its meeting of January 7, 2010, the Board voted to issue Taylor an Order to Show Cause as to why his certificates should not be revoked.

This case originated in September 2008 when East Orange certified tenure charges against Taylor alleging unbecoming conduct and/or other just cause. East Orange alleged that Taylor had engaged in inappropriate behavior toward students, inappropriate treatment of colleagues, insubordination to administrators and inappropriate treatment of parents.

After receiving Taylor's response to the tenure charges, the Commissioner of Education transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL). Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Irene Jones heard testimony on several days during March and April, 2009. After receiving post-hearing submissions, the record closed and the ALJ issued an Initial Decision on August 4, 2009. In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Brian Taylor, Dkt. No. EDU 11914-08 (Initial Decision, August 4, 2009).

In that decision, ALJ Jones found that Taylor had engaged in a verbal altercation with a female special education student in which he became abusive and called her an "untamed beast."

Id. at 4-5. The ALJ also found that Taylor was insubordinate toward his supervisor by attempting to block his entry into Taylor's classroom when he came to evaluate Taylor and by directly disobeying his supervisor's directive not to take a class to the school book fair so that Taylor might be evaluated on his lesson plan. Id. at 5. ALJ Jones also determined that Taylor was insubordinate when he stormed out of an administrative meeting on two occasions, inappropriately slamming the door, and inappropriate when he made disparaging remarks about his supervisor in front of other teachers and students. Id. at 6-7. The ALJ found that Taylor left his class unattended and, upon returning and finding his supervisor in the doorway, attempted to push him aside. Id. at 7-8. Taylor was also found to have engaged in unbecoming conduct when he called another student "stupid and retarded" and then refused to acknowledge or address the student's parent in a conference arranged to address the issue. Id. at 8-9. ALJ Jones also found that, on other occasions, Taylor approached his principal in a hostile and threatening manner, violated district policy by distributing a flier at a Superintendent's convocation, exhibited aggressive and inappropriate behavior toward another staff member in the presence of students, and initiated a physical altercation with a fellow faculty member. Id. at 9-14.

Based on the totality of the charges, ALJ Jones concluded that Taylor was guilty of unbecoming conduct. Id. at 14. The ALJ determined that Taylor "failed to control his temper, exercised poor judgment, made disparaging remarks about students and allowed his feelings of frustration and anger to overwhelm his professional demeanor." Ibid. The ALJ was not persuaded that Taylor deserved a second chance even though his behavior might possibly have been caused by depression. Ibid. Rather, ALJ Jones stated that Taylor's "single act of physical assault against a fellow teaching staff member, in the presence of students and staff, rises to the level of an act significantly alarming as to warrant dismissal." Id. at 14-15. That act, coupled with Taylor's other behaviors caused other staff members to feel physically threatened. Id. at 15. ALJ Jones therefore concluded that East Orange's determination "to remove respondent was reasonable and necessary in order to insure the safety and well being of the students and staff." Ibid. Accordingly, the ALJ affirmed Taylor's dismissal from his tenured position. Ibid.

In a decision dated September 21, 2009, the Commissioner of Education concurred with the ALJ's factual findings in the case: "Upon a reasoned review of the record..., the Commissioner is satisfied that the ALJ's recitation of testimony is both accurate and thorough, and that she carefully measured its relevance to the charges, conflicts, inconsistencies, potential biases, and the plausibility of its content in deciding which testimony to credit in reaching her findings of fact." Commissioner's Decision, slip op. at 7. The Commissioner further concurred with the ALJ that East Orange had sustained its burden of proving 12 out of the 13 charges of unbecoming conduct against Taylor by a preponderance of "the competent, relevant and credible evidence." Ibid. In assessing the appropriate penalty, the Commissioner considered Taylor's service in East Orange, as well as "the stresses and strained relationships that may exist in any employment relationship whether in the public or private sectors." Id. at 10. Those factors, however, were outweighed by Taylor's demonstrated "pattern of improper conduct toward students, staff and parents alike." Ibid. The Commissioner stated that, "based on this record, it cannot be said that respondent's behavior is an aberration; nor can it be said that it is more likely than not that such conduct would not be repeated in the future." Id. at 11. Under those circumstances, the Commissioner could not "entertain the prospect of respondent's return to the District and the resultant potential for the perpetration of an unhealthy educational environment." Ibid. Accordingly, the Commissioner sustained the tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and affirmed Taylor's removal from his tenured employment. Id. at 12. The Commissioner transmitted the matter to the State Board of Examiners for appropriate action regarding Taylor's certificates.¹ Ibid.

Thereafter, on January 7, 2010, the State Board of Examiners issued Taylor an Order to Show Cause as to why his certificates should not be revoked. The Order was predicated on the charges of unbecoming conduct that had been proven in the tenure hearing.

The Board sent Taylor the Order to Show Cause by regular and certified mail on January 13, 2010. The Order provided that Taylor's Answer was due within 30 days. Taylor responded on January 26, 2010. In that response, Taylor stated that the tenure allegations and the Commissioner's tenure decision were "self-explanatory." (Answer, ¶¶ 3-4.) He added that there was no basis to revoke his certificates. (Answer, ¶ 6.)

Thereafter, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.7(e), on February 5, 2010, the Board sent Taylor a hearing notice by regular and certified mail. The notice explained that it appeared that no material facts were in dispute. Thus, Taylor was offered an opportunity to submit written arguments on the issue of whether the conduct addressed in the Order to Show Cause constituted conduct unbecoming a certificate holder as well as arguments with regard to the appropriate sanction in the event that the Board determined to take action against his certificates. It also explained that upon review of the charges against him and the legal arguments tendered in his defense, the Board would determine if the charges proven in the tenure matter warranted action against his certificates. Thereupon, the Board would also determine the appropriate sanction, if any. Taylor was also provided the opportunity to appear before the Board to testify on the sanction issue. After granting Taylor's request to hold the matter in abeyance pending the resolution of his appeal, the Board received Taylor's response to the Hearing Notice on February 8, 2011.

In his response, Taylor denied that any "relationship difficulties with parents of students were the result of his actions." (Hearing Response, p. 2). He also included with his response, a report from a psychiatrist, Dr. James Cowan, who indicated that Taylor was suffering from Depression Disorder. (Hearing Response, p. 2). Taylor claimed that "[d]espite Dr. Cowan's recommendation for further psychological testing and counseling, the [district] failed to take any steps at all in follow up." (Hearing Response, p. 2). Taylor stated that since the district took no steps to address his condition, it shared some of the responsibility "in the events that occurred." (Hearing Response, p. 3). Taylor reiterated his claim that if he was given training in anger management, conflict resolution and handling difficult and disruptive students, he could again satisfactorily handle his teaching responsibilities. (Hearing Response, p. 3). Finally, Taylor argued that suspending or revoking his certificates was premature since he could still be given the opportunity to address his psychological and behavioral issues. (Hearing Response, p. 3).

The threshold issue before the Board in this matter is whether Taylor's conduct and his subsequent loss of tenure constitute conduct unbecoming a certificate holder. At its meeting of June 16, 2011, the Board considered the Order to Show Cause, Taylor's Answer and his response to the Hearing Notice. The Board determined that no material facts related to Taylor's offense were in dispute since he did not deny that he had lost his tenured position as a result of the tenure proceedings brought against him. Thus, the Board determined that summary decision was appropriate in this matter. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.7(h). It is therefore ORDERED that the charges in the Order to Show Cause are deemed admitted for the purpose of this proceeding.

The Board must now determine whether Taylor's conduct, as set forth in the Order to Show Cause, represents just cause to act against his certificates pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.5. The Board finds that it does.

The Board may revoke or suspend the certification of any certificate holder on the basis of demonstrated inefficiency, incapacity, conduct unbecoming a teacher or other just cause. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-17.5. "Teachers ... are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of ... school children. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment." Tenure of Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321. There can be no dispute that Taylor's ongoing conduct in verbally abusing students and embarrassing them in front of their classmates, being disruptive at meetings, acting rude and disrespectfully to parents and administrators, engaging in threatening and aggressive behavior towards colleagues and in one instance, initiating a physical altercation, amply demonstrates his inability to be a role model for students. Moreover, his continued insistence that his actions were instigated by others' behavior and his refusal to accept responsibility for his own conduct speaks volumes about his unfitness to be a teacher. Psychological counseling and treatment may well be warranted in this case, but the Board does not owe Taylor the right to re-enter the classroom, especially given the pattern of egregious behavior in this matter. The Board therefore concludes that the only appropriate response to Taylor's breach is the revocation of his teaching certificates.

Accordingly, on June 16th, 2011, the Board voted to revoke Brian Taylor's Teacher of Elementary School Certificate of Eligibility and his Teacher of Elementary School certificate. On this 28th day of July 2011 the Board voted to adopt its formal written decision and it is therefore ORDERED that the revocation of Taylor's certificates be effective immediately. It is further ORDERED that Taylor return his certificates to the Secretary of the State Board of Examiners, Office of Licensure, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625-0500 within 30 days of the mailing date of this decision.

Petitioner – a world language teacher employed in respondent’s school district since 2004 – appealed the determination of the respondent Board to withhold her 2010-2011 salary increment based on performance, alleging that the Board’s actions were arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. The Board contended that the increment withholding was justified based upon deficiencies in petitioner’s teaching performance as documented in her evaluations from the previous school year.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner was evaluated three times during the 2009-2010 school year – two formative reviews and a summative review; these evaluations concluded that petitioner’s performance was unsatisfactory and in need of improvement; petitioner’s second and third evaluations reflected no improvement in targeted performance areas; petitioner’s evaluations reflect genuine professional observations of her performance rather than retaliatory action, as suggested by petitioner; and, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, petitioner received a letter dated August 24, 2010 which clearly advised that her increment was being withheld due to performance concerns. The ALJ concluded that petitioner did not meet her burden of demonstrating that the Board’s actions were arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered the petition dismissed.

Upon independent review and consideration, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ findings and conclusions in this matter; accordingly the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision and the petition was dismissed.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon such review, the Commissioner agrees with the Administrative Law Judge – for the reasons comprehensively detailed in her decision – that petitioner has failed to sustain her burden of establishing that the District’s withholding of her increment for the 2010-2011 school year was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted and the instant Petition of Appeal is hereby dismissed.

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Caridad Rodriguez, a tenured teacher employed by the Jersey City Board of Education (the Board), appeals the Board's action to withhold her salary increment, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Rodriguez filed her appeal with the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) on September 17, 2010. An answer was filed on behalf of the Board, and the contested case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), on October 4, 2010. A hearing was conducted on June 29, 2012, at which time the record closed.¹

FINDINGS OF FACT

Background Facts

The parties stipulated to the pertinent background facts, and I FIND:

Rodriguez is a ten-month tenured world language teacher, who has taught at P.S. 37 since March 22, 2004. Her principal and primary evaluator is Marvin Strynar. Rodriguez was twice evaluated during the 2009-2010 school year using the school district Formative Evaluation Form, which rates teachers across four domains, including "Planning and Preparation"; "Students and Learning"; "Instruction"; and "Classroom Environment." In five sub-categories under each domain, teachers are rated as satisfactory, needs improvement, or unsatisfactory.

On or about March 1, 2010, Rodriguez received a Formative Evaluation report dated February 22, 2010, in which Strynar gave her an overall rating of "needs improvement" in the domain, "Classroom Environment." (J-3.) Rodriguez also received several "needs improvement" ratings across the remaining evaluative domains, and in such critical areas as "designing coherent instruction"; "linking assessment to instructional objective"; "employing effective questioning and discussion techniques"; and "properly providing feedback to students."

On or about June 2, 2010, Rodriquez received a Formative Evaluation dated May 24, 2010, in which Strynar gave her an overall rating of “needs improvement” in the “Planning and Preparation,” and “Students and Learning” domains. (J-4.) Strynar rated Rodriquez as “unsatisfactory” overall in the “Instruction” and “Classroom Environment” domains. A June 8, 2010, Summative Evaluation, prepared by Assistant Principal Sergio Cabrera, again rated Rodriquez as needing improvement in planning and preparation, and rated her as unsatisfactory in the domains of “Instruction,” “Classroom Environment,” and “Students and Learning.”

Strynar recommended an increment withholding in a June 8, 2010, memorandum to the district Executive Assistant of Human Resources. Via letter dated August 24, 2010, Rodriguez received written notice that her increment was being withheld for the 2010-2011 school year based on performance.

The Testimony

The testimony shed light on the learning environment in Rodriquez’s seventh-grade world language classroom. Rodriguez stated that her February 22, 2010, lesson was intended to support Black History Month by focusing on the achievements of well-known black Hispanics. The activity Strynar observed that day was not part of the course curriculum and was conducted in English. Rodriguez gave the students background information on a celebrity that she had selected, and they were required to answers a series of questions. Rodriguez urged that it was a well-planned, coherent lesson, with a clear objective. She admitted that the classroom was loud and that the children were talking among themselves, but she asserted that it was a group activity that required that the students interact. Rodriguez stressed that the children were having fun, noting that in her view learning can and should be enjoyable.

Strynar has served as principal of P.S. 37 for forty-five years. He explained that the evaluation process includes pre-observation and post-observation meetings between staff and administration, and an opportunity for the staff member to rebut in writing any unfavorable aspects of the evaluation. It is thus open and collaborative. Relative to his February 22, 2010, observation of Rodriquez, Strynar stated that the “purpose of the lesson” was not clearly stated at the start of class; it likewise was not included in Rodriguez’s planning book. Strynar felt that the classroom environment was disorganized and lacked discipline. Rodriguez did not make a real effort to interact with her students.² Strynar did not disagree that learning should and could be enjoyable; he simply felt that that the clamor in Rodriguez’s classroom was tomfoolery, without any real instruction taking place. Interestingly, when asked if Strynar had fairly evaluated her performance that February day, Rodriguez did not reply with a resounding no. Rather, she explained that this was a middle school class; that the children are at a difficult age; that they like to fool around, but that most importantly they enjoyed the lesson.

The lesson observed by Strynar on May 24, 2010, reflected no improvement in the targeted performance areas. His evaluation was increasingly critical of Rodriguez’s teaching efforts. Instruction centered on telling time in Spanish. Strynar again found few positive interactions took place with the children; that Rodriguez did not clearly state the objective of the lesson; and that the lesson was conducted without appropriate follow through. Strynar renewed serious concerns about classroom decorum and discipline. He noted that Rodriguez did not establish a culture for learning, and he stated that “the lesson ended as it started with lack of order.” (J-4.) Strynar felt that the lesson was not meaningful for the children. He noted that clocks were used as tools for instruction, but felt that they were ineffective, and that the children were confused by them. Strynar emphasized that Rodriguez referred to the class as “Room 406,” which did not aid in establishing control or give the children the impression that she wished to get to know them personally.

Rodriguez again urged that her lesson was undeserving of criticism, explaining that the students were all actively engaged in learning. Although Strynar’s evaluation noted that no visuals were used, Rodriguez pointed to the clocks that were provided to each child. Strynar criticized Rodriguez for not assessing the children’s performance; but she urged that she did use an activity sheet to assess learning. She testified that the decorum of the class Strynar observed was appropriate.

Rodriguez argued, unsuccessfully, that a dispute with Strynar prior to the May 2010 observation was the true reason for his poor evaluation of her performance. Her testimony lacked credibility. Indeed, initially, when asked if she ever had a difference of opinion with Strynar, Rodriguez replied that she did not, and that she always got along well with him. She needed to be prompted by her attorney to recall an incident where she sustained an eye injury after a child hit her with a pencil. Although the nurse examined and released her, Rodriguez continued to feel discomfort. She asked to see the school doctor; Strynar did not grant her permission to do so. After seeking the intervention of her union representative, Rodriguez went to the doctor over Strynar's objection. Rodriguez contended that thereafter their relationship soured. Nonetheless, on cross-examination, she reiterated that she got along well with Strynar, and specifically denied that she felt that Strynar "was out to get her," was biased against her, or disliked her.

It seemed unlikely that Rodriguez's cordial relationship with Strynar would change so dramatically over so small a disagreement. Indeed, Strynar testified with credibility that he did not even recall the eye-injury incident until it came up at the hearing; his bemused tone was utterly believable. Moreover, it was uncontroverted that Rodriguez was never disciplined in any way for her visit to the doctor; she stated that she did not even receive as much as a verbal reprimand. Her perception that she was the victim of retaliation was nowhere mentioned in her rebuttal to the evaluation. Accordingly, I FIND that the evaluation of May 2010 reflected Strynar's genuine professional observations of Rodriguez's performance, and was not retaliation for her decision to visit a doctor during school hours over his objection.

Rodriguez contends that she was blindsided by the withholding of her increment. But a letter to her dated August 24, 2010, clearly advised that her increment was being withheld due to performance concerns. (J-7.) All of her evaluations during the 2009-2010 school year fell far short of professional expectations and put her on clear notice that administration was dissatisfied with her performance. Rodriguez's May 24, 2010, lesson evidenced no responsiveness to earlier administrative concerns.

However, it should be noted that Strynar testified that Rodríguez tended to call for the assistance of building security guards too frequently and that he heard noise and disruption in her classroom often when he walked through the building. While the evaluations clearly put Rodríguez on notice that classroom management was of concern, I FIND that these latter criticisms and observations were nowhere expressed in writing.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Rodríguez's increment was withheld pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14, which provides that, "[a]ny board of education may withhold for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment, or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board." It is well-established that an increment is not a statutory right but "a reward for meritorious service to the school district." N. Plainfield Educ. Ass'n v. N. Plainfield Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J. 587, 593-94 (1984).

Rodríguez has the burden of demonstrating that the withholding of her increment was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Kopera v. W. Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). The Kopera court confirmed that in reviewing the local board's decision, the Commissioner must engage in a two-part inquiry. He must determine "whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluation claimed, and . . . whether it was unreasonable for [the evaluators] to conclude as they did upon those facts" Id. at 296-97. As the Kopera court stated, "the scope of the Commissioner's review is . . . not to substitute his judgment for that of those who made the evaluation but to determine whether they had a reasonable basis for their conclusions." Id. at 296. I CONCLUDE that Rodríguez has not met her burden of demonstrating arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable action by this Board.

Rodríguez did not convince me that her classroom environment was any different than as described by Strynar in his evaluations and in his testimony. Strynar was a credible witness, and I heard nothing that would suggest that his evaluations contained other than honest descriptions of the instruction he observed. That instruction was sorely lacking in several respects, including an inability by Rodriquez to keep her students attentive to learning and a lack of focus to her lessons. She admitted that she found classroom management challenging, testifying that her class could be loud, and that the adolescents in her charge could be hard to control. Having determined that Strynar accurately portrayed the educational environment in Rodriquez's classroom, and it appearing that she was non-responsive to the concerns raised in her first evaluation, it was plainly reasonable for Strynar to withhold Rodriquez's salary increment. This record offers no basis upon which to overturn the action of the Board and its administration.

Rodriquez's contention that she did not receive proper notice of her increment withholding is unavailing. She is entitled by statute "to written notice of [the increment withholding], together with the reasons therefor" N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. Strynar's testimonial accounts of informal observations, and his assertion that Rodriquez too frequently called security, were not documented by the Board in writing. But the August letter notifying Rodriquez of her increment withholding plainly cited performance concerns, and many such concerns were thoroughly documented in her written evaluations. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that Rodriquez received the written notice required by the statute.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED that the relief sought by Rodriquez is DENIED and that the petition is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the file in the matter captioned In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Erin M. Markakis, School District of the Township of Bedminster, Somerset County, Agency Dkt. No. 111-5/11, which has been held in abeyance pending Ms. Markakis' appeal of the State Board of Examiners' Order of May 12, 2011 revoking her teaching certificates.

In light of my decision of September 19, 2011 affirming such revocation, there is no basis upon which I can order this matter to proceed and it is, therefore, dismissed as moot.

Sincerely,

Dear Parties:

I have reviewed the Board's Motion to Dismiss in the matter captioned T.F. and L.F., on behalf of minor children, M.M. and K.F. v. Board of Education of the Borough of Manasquan, Monmouth County, Ron Kornegay and Rick Coppola, Agency Dkt. No. 192-7/12. Therein the Board argues that as petitioners Thomas & Lynn Flaherty are neither the parent or legal guardian of minor child M.M., they have no legal standing to file this petition on this child's behalf. Petitioner's were provided an opportunity to file a response to the Board's motion but did not file any response.

Accordingly, as there is no authority for individuals to file a petition of appeal on behalf of a child for whom they have no legal responsibility, minor child M.M. is being removed from petitioner's petition of appeal.

Sincerely,

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
 HEARING OF FELICIA MORALES, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF : DECISION
 PLEASANTVILLE, ATLANTIC COUNTY. :

The record of this matter, the proposed settlement agreement and general release, and the Initial Decision on Remand of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), have been reviewed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1. On June 27, 2012, the Commissioner remanded this matter to the OAL based upon a determination that the settlement agreement recommended for adoption by the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") contained several deficiencies and the Initial Decision did not include the analysis required by In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846.

Upon review of the revised agreement and the record on remand, the Commissioner finds that the deficiencies identified in the prior agreement have been corrected. The Commissioner also concurs with the ALJ that the proposed settlement is consistent with the established standards governing the settlement of tenure matters. In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846.

Accordingly, the settlement is hereby approved and the tenure matter dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

SETTLEMENT

OAL DKT. No. EDU 8598-12
(On Remand from EDU 10853-11)
AGENCY DKT. NO. 256-9/11

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE
HEARING OF FELICIA MORALES,
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PLEASANTVILLE, ATLANTIC COUNTY.

Raymond L. Hamlin, Esq., for petitioner (Hunt, Hamlin & Ridley, attorneys)

Keith Waldman, Esq., for respondent (Selikoff & Cohen, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 19, 2012

Decided: July 24, 2012

BEFORE BRUCE M. GORMAN, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on June 28, 2012, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

The parties have agreed to a settlement and have prepared a Settlement Agreement indicating the terms thereof, which is attached and fully incorporated herein.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures, and as placed on the record on March 29, 2012.
2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.
3. A copy of the disciplinary charges are attached hereto.

I CONCLUDE that this settlement is in accord with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and of In Re Cardonick, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846, and that it should be approved. In reaching this conclusion, I rely heavily on the testimony adduced during that portion of the board's case that was tried prior to the parties reaching this settlement. The evidence to that point showed that respondent served as executive secretary to the board's prior superintendent, Gloria Grantham. Upon succeeding Grantham, the new superintendent, Gail Bailey, immediately removed respondent from her position and brought in her own executive secretary, a person whom she perceived to be loyal to herself. By all appearances, Bailey's action was an attempt to dispose of an employee who she believed to be loyal to her predecessor. The balance of the board's case centered around certain computer records that demonstrated someone was surfing the internet during work hours and may have been utilizing respondent's assigned computer. The board was attempting to show that such activity occurred on dates when respondent sought overtime compensation. The board contended that such a claim for overtime constituted "theft." Even had the board been able to prove that respondent had surfed the internet during work hours, the board would have had great difficulty establishing that such conduct amounted to "theft." Further, the board maintained a policy regarding internet use that specified such activity was permitted with permission. At the point in time that the case settled, the prior superintendent Grantham was scheduled to testify for respondent. While the nature of Grantham's testimony remains unknown, had she testified she granted respondent permission to surf the internet during work hours because she was regularly kept late at work, then the board's case would have collapsed.

Given the dubious nature of the board's proofs, the board's decision to resolve this matter appears to be a wise one. For that reason, I am satisfied that the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and of In Re Cardonick, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846 have been satisfied. I therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

601 Mill Road
Pleasantville, New Jersey 08232

Charges Brought Against:

Felicia Morales, Secretary

The Respondent, Felicia Morales, a Secretary assigned to the transportation department at Pleasantville High School has been charged with Conduct Unbecoming. Said charges have been demonstrated by the Respondent as follows:

1. Respondent submitted false and misleading information in an effort to derive a financial benefit from the Pleasantville Board of Education with full knowledge that she was not entitled to said benefit
2. Respondent improperly utilized Board of Education property and computer equipment for non Board of Education work without any approval to do so by the Administration or the Board of Education.
3. Respondent's use of Board of Education property by way of its computer equipment for personal non-Board of Education business is a violation of Board of Education policy and expectations of its employees.
4. Respondent submission of false and misleading information was designed to enable her to collect overtime compensation in excess of $8,000.00 for work which was allegedly performed on behalf of the Board of Education when said time was spent surfing the internet for non-Board of Education related information which included entertainment sites, social networking sites and other unauthorized and unapproved sites.

5. Respondent defrauded the Pleasantville Board of Education by submitting documents which implied that the overtime compensation for which she was seeking authorization was due to her working beyond normal working hours in order to complete assignments which were requested and/or required which same could not be completed during the normal course of the work day.

8. By affixing a signature to the document, the Respondent appears to have committed an act of "false swearing" pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:28-2, in that Respondent made false statements under oath about overtime compensation that she believed she was entitled to with full knowledge that the amount of compensation which she claimed an entitlement to actually included time when she was not actively working on Board of Education business.
9. Respondent's conduct in submitting false and misleading timesheets is also in violation N.J.S.A. 2C:20-4, in that the Respondent submitted time sheets to the Board of Education with the intent to deceive that she in fact performed certain work when in reality she was engaged in non-Board of Education business .

This office represents the Pleasantville Board of Education in the above-captioned matter. This letter is in response to the Commissioner of Education's Decision that concluded that the sufficient basis to approve the proposed settlement is lacking. Enclosed please find a copy of the resolution evidencing petitioner's ratification of the agreement, and a letter from the State Monitor setting forth his approval of the settlement. In addition, the Commissioner's finding that the settlement was not signed by the petitioner's attorney is inaccurate. My signature appears on the settlement agreement. April 25, 2012

I Certify, that during the Pleasantville Board of Education Regular Work/Action Meeting of April 24, 2012 the Board approved the following resolution with motion and vote reflected below:

RESOLUTION APPROVING THE SETTLEMENT OF THE CASES ENTITLED "IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF FELICIA MORALES, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF PLEASANTVILLE, ATLANTIC COUNTY" AND "FELICIA MORALES V. CITY OF PLEASANTVILLE BOARD OF EDUCATION"

WHEREAS, the Board of Education and Felicia Morales have decided to resolve the matters currently pending before the Commissioner of Education under Agency Ref. No.: 256-9/11, and OAL Docket Number: EDU 10853-11, hereinafter the "Tenure Case," and Agency Ref. No.: 297-10/11, and OAL Docket Number: EDU 13390-11, hereinafter the "Petition for Overtime Case"; and

WHEREAS, the Board has had a full opportunity to investigate these matters, and based upon those investigations, has determined that this Stipulation of Settlement is fair and just, and causes the least disruption to the School District in that witnesses will not be taken away from their normal responsibilities and that given the voluminous amount of records, the settlement avoids the uncertainty of litigation and a more lengthy and expensive hearing process for both matters and possible appeals, and that Felicia Morales has raised defenses and objections to the manner in which the Board proffered the charges which may be meritorious and that there is good cause which warrants this settlement; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Education has determined that it is in the best interests of the Pleasantville School District, and the public at large to resolve the dispute existing between the Board of Education and Felicia Morales in that the long term costs to the District may far exceed the costs of settling the matter in the near term, and a settlement ensures the most efficient way in which to resolve this matter;

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the Pleasantville Board of Education approves the aforementioned settlement which will be on file with the Board Secretary's Office upon final approval by the Commissioner of Education. The material terms of the settlement are as follows:

1. Felicia Morales will return to work as a tenured secretary, upon Board approval in a secretary position, not within the executive offices. There will be no reduction in compensation, benefits or emoluments of employment in that regard;

BEFORE LAURA SANDERS, Acting Director and Chief ALJ:

On August 25, 2011, the Board of Education of the School District of the Township of Pemberton, Burlington County ("the Board") certified tenure charges against the respondent, Major John Cook, a member of the tenured teaching staff employed by the district. Major Cook filed an answer denying the charges, and the Commissioner, having deemed the charges sufficient, if true, to warrant dismissal or reduction in salary, transmitted the contested case to the Office of Administrative (OAL), pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. It was filed at the OAL on September 13, 2011.

The Board charged Major Cook with conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member and other just cause, in relation to the allegation that he "physically initiated and forcibly accosted" a student walking in the hallway, in violation of the policy prohibiting either physical force or threat thereof to maintain discipline.

After a prehearing conference on September 28, 2011, the matter was scheduled for an in-person conference to view a DVD of the incident of the issue. Following several telephone status conferences to allow the parties to pursue settlement, an in-person settlement conference was held on January 31, 2012. At that conference, the parties agreed to the outline of a settlement, and the hearing scheduled for February 16, 2012, was adjourned to afford the parties time to finalize and execute settlement documents. A fully executed stipulation of settlement and certified copy of a Board resolution approving the settlement were received by me on July 19, 2012, at which time the record closed.

Based upon a review of the attached settlement agreement, together with Borgess's testimony on the record, I FIND as follows:

1. The nature of the charges has been documented by the submission of a Statement of Charges and Certificate of Determination to the Commissioner. John Cook (Major, retired) has been employed by the Board since September 1, 1997. Among his duties, he has served as senior Army instructor of the Pemberton High School JROTC.
2. Under the terms of the settlement agreement, the tenure charges against Major Cook shall be withdrawn and dismissed with prejudice. The Board agrees to reinstate Major Cook to all teaching, coaching/extracurricular assignments and army-related activities forthwith.
3. With regard to compensation, the following shall occur. A one-time fine of the loss of two and one-day days of vacation time from the 2011-2012 school year, which is equivalent to the sum of $1,250, will be imposed on Major Cook.

Major Cook will be paid for the salary previously withheld for the period August 25, 2011, through December 24, 2011, at the 2011-2012 negotiated pay rate. Additionally, he will receive one JROTC stipend for the 2011-2012 year, equaling $2,673, due and payable in June 2012. He will not receive a stipend for seventh period instruction in either the 2010-2011 or 2011-2012 school years; however, he will receive one in the 2012-2013 school year if he is scheduled for seventh period instruction.

4. During the transition of students through hallways, Major Cook will remain in his classroom; however, in the event that he happens to observe student conduct he believes to be in violation of school rules, he will report it to an assistant principal, and will not interact directly with students regarding violation of school rules. Inside the classroom, he will comply with the school handbook's regular rules and procedures governing student discipline.

5. As part of the settlement, Major Cook has agreed to withdraw his November 18, 2011, Notice of Tort Claim against the Board, and has tendered a general release, to be effective upon approval by the Commissioner of the Settlement.

6. If proven, the charges associated with the incident would have been serious; however, the evidence reviewed during the settlement discussion fell far short of the types of conduct that the Commissioner has deemed worthy of such penalties as increment withholding, loss of months of salary, or dismissal.

7. The proposed settlement agreement is with the consent of all parties. It has been approved by the Board of Education, as confirmed by the attached Board resolution.

8. By the terms of the proposed settlement agreement, Major Cook has entered into this agreement with a full understanding of his rights. He further confirmed on the record that he was represented by counsel, counsel fully explained his rights, and he was satisfied with that representation.

9. The Board's resolution indicates the settlement is prudent and fulfills the public interest with regard to these matters, and I so FIND. Further, by entering into this agreement, the Board has avoided costly and uncertain litigation involving taxpayer funds.

10. As the tenure charge would be dismissed with prejudice, if the Commissioner of Education approves the settlement, the Commissioner's obligation to refer matters of sufficient magnitude to affect general tenure rights would not be implicated.

I therefore CONCLUDE that this settlement agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 and that approval of this settlement is in the public interest.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Agency Ref. No. 246-8/11

Dear Judge Sanders:

I have enclosed an original of Joint Request for Approval of Settlement Including Withdrawal of Tenure Charges ("Joint Request") for your review and approval. You will note that the Joint Request has been executed by both parties and, as to the Board, please note that Exhibit 2 confirms that the Board has taken official action to approve same.

With regard to the Board's resolution (Exhibit "2"), you will note that it does not refer to Major Cook by name for privacy reasons; rather it refers to the Board "approv[ing] a settlement with the employee in position number BJY." Accordingly, I am also enclosing a copy of Mr. Schmoll's email to me of July 17, 2012 1:27 PM, which contains an email string between School Business Administrator Pat Austin and him, confirming that the resolution pertains to Major Cook.

We will await Your Honor's determination and, hopefully, your submission of the Joint Request to the Commissioner of Education for his review and approval.

Please contact Mr. Schmoll or me should you require any additional information in connection with the Joint Request.

Respectfully yours,

JOINT REQUEST FOR APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENT, INCLUDING WITHDRAWAL OF TENURE CHARGES

INTRODUCTION

Counsel for the Board of Education of the School District of Pemberton Township ("BOARD") and counsel for its tenured employee MAJOR JOHN R. COOK ("COOK"), join in moving for an order declaring that the Settlement Agreement between the Parties, attached hereto as Exhibit A, meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, recommending that the Settlement Agreement be approved by the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL") and the Commissioner of Education ("Commissioner"), and on condition that the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") and the Commissioner approve without modification the Settlement Agreement attached hereto as Exhibit A, ordering that the Settlement Agreement be implemented, and that the tenure charges filed by the BOARD be withdrawn and this matter dismissed with prejudice.

JRC

PROCEDURAL STATEMENT

This matter arises out of charges certified by the BOARD to the Commissioner on August 25, 2011, against a tenured teaching staff member on grounds of conduct unbecoming. The tenure charges were transmitted to the OAL as a contested case on September 13, 2011. A settlement conference concerning the BOARD's tenure charges was scheduled before the Honorable Laura Sanders, ALJ, for January 31, 2012. Following the January 31, 2012 settlement conference, the Parties reached a tentative settlement agreement conditioned upon the drafting of mutually satisfactory settlement documents to be submitted for approval by the ALJ and the Commissioner in accordance with which the tenure charges might be withdrawn.

The Parties have agreed under the terms of the Settlement Agreement attached hereto as Exhibit A that COOK will be reinstated to all positions he held prior to his suspension, consistent with his certification as a teacher.

The Parties have further agreed under the terms of the Settlement Agreement attached hereto as Exhibit A that conditioned upon the ALJ's and the Commissioner's approval of the Settlement Agreement without modification, the tenure charges against COOK shall be withdrawn and dismissed with prejudice. Furthermore, should the ALJ and the Commissioner fail to approve the Settlement Agreement attached hereto as Exhibit A without modification, the Parties have agreed to make every reasonable effort to reform their Settlement Agreement to meet any objections and to provide the Parties with the full benefit of the intended settlement.

THE JUSTIFICATION FOR WITHDRAWAL OF TENURE CHARGES

Removing the hat from the young man's head does not rise to corporal punishment as generally defined in the case law. However, it did fall outside the BOARD's view of appropriate implementation of behavior modification

CONCLUSION

The Settlement Agreement was negotiated between counsel after certain facts became known during the course of discovery; in particular, a DVD which recorded the interaction between COOK and the student, which DVD was reviewed by the ALJ. Counsel, as well as COOK and the BOARD, are satisfied with the Settlement Agreement and believe that it fulfills the public interest with respect to these matters. For the reasons outlined above, and for good cause shown, this tribunal should conclude that the Settlement Agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, recommend that the Settlement Agreement be adopted without modification by the Commissioner, order that the Settlement Agreement be implemented on condition that it is so approved, and therefore upon such approval dismiss with prejudice the tenure charges in this matter.

EXHIBIT A SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT REGARDING ACTIONS PENDING
BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

This Settlement Agreement is entered into by and between the BOARD OF EDUCATION OF PEMBERTON TOWNSHIP, BURLINGTON COUNTY ("BOARD") and its tenured employee MAJOR JOHN R. COOK ("COOK")(the BOARD and COOK are sometimes referred to in this agreement severally as a "Party" and jointly as the "Parties").

WHEREAS, COOK has been continuously employed by the BOARD as a teacher since September 1, 1997; and

WHEREAS, on August 25, 2011, the BOARD certified tenure charges against COOK to the Commissioner of Education under the Tenure Employees Hearing Law, which charges were captioned:

*IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF JOHN R.
COOK, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF PEMBERTON TOWNSHIP, BURLINGTON COUNTY*

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10856-2011 S
AGENCY REF. NO. 246-8/11

WHEREAS, COOK filed an answer contesting the tenure charges;

WHEREAS, the Parties exchanged reciprocal discovery, in particular, a DVD which recorded the interaction between COOK and the student, which DVD was reviewed by the Honorable Laura Sanders, ALJ;

WHEREAS, ALJ Sanders conducted a settlement conference with the parties on January 31, 2012; and

WHEREAS, the BOARD has reviewed the defenses and evidence and decided to withdraw the charges with prejudice subject to this settlement;

JRC

NOW THEREFORE, the matters in dispute having been amicably adjusted by and between the Parties, it is hereby stipulated and agreed as follows:

1. The parties consent to the imposition of a one-time fine to be imposed upon COOK amounting to the loss of school year 2011-2012 vacation time (2 and ½ days), which is equivalent to the sum of one thousand two hundred fifty dollars and no cents ($1,250.00).

2. The BOARD will restore the following amounts of compensation and pay them to COOK, subject to usual and customary payroll deductions:

a. Payment of salary previously withheld for the period August 25, 2011 through December 24, 2011 at the 2011-2012 negotiated pay rate;

b. Payment of one of the two JROTC stipends for the 2011-2012 school year (either Color Guard/Raider Team or Drill/Rifle Team Advisor (they are always divided between COOK and First Sergeant Gaskin) for the sum of two thousand six hundred seventy three dollars and no cents ($2,673.00) to be paid in June 2012.

3. COOK will not receive a stipend for seventh period instruction for either the 2010-2011 or 2011-12 school years. In the event COOK is scheduled for seventh period instruction for the 2012-2013 school year, the stipend will be paid to him.

4. The BOARD agrees to reinstate COOK to all teaching, coaching/extra-curricular assignments and army-related activities forthwith;

5. The Parties further agree:

a. During the transition of students at any time through the hallways, COOK is to remain in his classroom and to not stand in the hallway to monitor the student hallway activity. Notwithstanding this, in the event that COOK nevertheless observes student conduct which he believes violates school rules, he will report it to an assistant principal. Subject to paragraph 5.b. below, COOK is not to interact with students directly regarding their violation of school rules.

b. Insofar as violations of school rules by students who are in COOK's classroom are concerned, COOK will comply with the procedures and rules set forth in the school handbook dealing with student discipline.

c. Subject to the approval of this Settlement Agreement by the ALJ and the Commissioner without modification, COOK hereby withdraws his November 18, 2011 Notice of Tort Claim and tenders the General Release attached to this Settlement Agreement as Exhibit 1. Provided, however, in the event that the settlement giving rise to this Settlement Agreement is voided, the withdrawal of the Notice of Tort Claim and the tender of the General Release shall both be void.

6. The Parties understand and agree that this matter is now concluded. Going forward, hereafter, neither Party shall disparage the other relating to this particular matter and neither shall take any reprisal against the other.

7. The Parties will seek the ALJ's and the Commissioner's approval for this Settlement Agreement, and if the ALJ and the Commissioner approve the Settlement Agreement without modification, ask the ALJ and Commissioner to allow the tenure charges against COOK to be withdrawn and dismissed with prejudice.

8. Should the ALJ and the Commissioner fail to approve the Settlement Agreement without modification, the Parties have agreed to make every reasonable effort to reform their Settlement Agreement to meet any objections and to provide themselves with the fully-negotiated benefit of the settlement memorialized by this Settlement Agreement.

9. The Parties agree in consideration of this Settlement Agreement that if it is not approved by the ALJ and Commissioner without modification and if reformation proves impossible, the Joint Request for Approval (including the Justification for Withdrawal of the Charges) and this draft Settlement Agreement will not be admissible in any judicial or administrative proceeding, nor shall any statements by the BOARD through its attorney concerning the reasons it believes this settlement is not inconsistent with the public's interest.

10. True copies of the BOARD'S minutes demonstrating that the Board authorized the BOARD's signatory to execute this Settlement Agreement are attached to this Settlement Agreement as Exhibit 2.

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the submissions filed in connection with the request of Respondent Lang for Interlocutory Review of the appended August 8, 2012 Order of Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Tiffany M. Williams, denying his motion to compel discovery in the matter entitled In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of James Lang, School District of the Township of Woodbridge, Middlesex County, OAL Dkt. No. 5463-12, Agency Dkt. No. 108-4/12. Upon my review of the Order and the filings in connection with this interlocutory review request, I have determined to set aside the ALJ's blanket denial of respondent's request for discovery.

On April 23, 2012, the Board certified tenure charges against respondent based – in large measure – upon inappropriate comments which he allegedly made to students in his classroom during the 2010-11 and 2011-12 school years. Respondent charges that the Board has refused to provide him with certain information pertaining to the students who made allegations against him, and the other students who were in his classes when he allegedly made inappropriate comments. The Commissioner is in full accord with the Board that respondent has not demonstrated a genuine need for the broad discovery he requested which would serve to outweigh the involved students' privacy interests – for example: copies of reports, records, or other documents memorializing any disciplinary reports, referrals, or other disciplinary action during the 2003-04, 2010-11 and 2011-12 school years, and any Individualized Education Plan for each student who provided a statement included in the evidence supporting the tenure charges.

However, respondent's submission here identifies four particularized pieces of information which he sought and was denied, specifically: 1) the names of the students who were in the classes where the comments were allegedly made; 2) the dates of attendance of the students in the classes where the comments were allegedly made; 3) the grades which the students accusing respondent of making such inappropriate comments received in his classes; and 4) any records of disciplinary action taken against the accusing students by respondent. In justification of his request in this regard respondent offered:

In preparing the tenure charges, [t]he Board solicited statements from students in Mr. Lang's classes. It used those statements, and provided the names of those students, to Mr. Lang with the tenure charges. Though the names of his accusers have been disclosed, [respondent] has been denied discovery as to the names of the other students who were in his classes, who could either confirm or deny his alleged comments. Likewise, attendance records would allow Mr. Lang to determine who was, or was not, in this classroom when any alleged comment was made.

The grades which the students in question received from Mr. Lang are relevant since a poor or failing grade may create a bias on the part of the student against him, rendering such information relevant for purposes of impeaching the witness....The same is true with respect to any disciplinary action taken against the students which was initiated by Mr. Lang.

The nature of the controversy here and the dictates of fundamental fairness require that respondent be accorded reasonable due process to give him an opportunity to rebut the charges against him. The Commissioner finds and concludes that respondent has identified a sufficient legitimate interest and a particularized need for the above information.¹

Accordingly, the August 8, 2012 Order of the ALJ is hereby set aside. I hereby direct the Board to supply respondent with a listing of the names of the students who were in the classes where the comments forming the basis of its tenure charges were allegedly made and these students' dates of attendance in these classes. The ALJ is hereby requested to conduct an in camera review of the records of the accusing students as to issues 3 and 4 above. If the ALJ's review reveals pertinent documentation in this regard, the Board should be directed to provide respondent with copies of such documentation.

Sincerely,

Christopher D. Cerf
Commissioner

¹ It is noted that the Board charges that respondent already has, in his possession, the names of those students who he taught and the grades obtained by those students – citing to materials entitled “Grade Posting Status Reports,” attached to its materials here as Exhibit A. That respondent may have knowledge of this limited number of documents – spanning a period from March 2011 to December 2011 – is not a valid ground for objection to providing the requested discovery. RE: I/M/O Tenure Hearing of James Lang / School District of Woodbridge
OAL DOCKET NO. EDU 5643-12

Dear Counsel:

In response to petitioner's Motion to Compel Discovery dated July 30, 2012, and respondent's opposition filed August 2, 2012, please be advised that the motion is DENIED. Petitioner fails to cite legal authority to support a court order for the disclosure of sensitive student records which are historically and carefully guarded under state and federal law. See N.J.S.A. 18A:36-19; State v. Krivacska, 341 N.J. Super. 1, 35 (App. Div.), cert. denied, 170 N.J. 206 (2001). Accordingly, I find no factual or legal basis to support the need for such records or to dispense with the well-settled notion of their confidentiality.

Please be advised that this matter is scheduled to proceed on August 14, 2012 at 9:00 a.m. and petitioner's request to use that date for oral argument is DENIED.

This Order may be reviewed by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION either upon interlocutory review pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10 or at the end of the contested case, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the decision of the respondent Board to terminate her employment as a teacher through a reduction in force (RIF) at the end of the 2009-2010 school year. She contended that following her termination, the Board continued to employ teachers without tenure and with less seniority than petitioner, in violation of her tenure and seniority rights. Petitioner sought reinstatement and back pay retroactive to the date of her termination.

The ALJ found that: petitioner failed to appear for a hearing in this matter on July 30, 2012, despite having received appropriate notice; and attorney for the petitioner appeared at the hearing and confirmed on record his ongoing inability to reach his client via telephone, and via certified and regular mail. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that petitioner had abandoned this matter and ordered the case returned to the Department for appropriate disposition.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions and, accordingly, adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter.

Petitioner was a tenured teacher in respondent's district and one of hundreds of employees terminated by respondent in June 2010. She was also one of approximately eighty employees who appealed respondent's action as violative of the tenure laws in place at the time.

As explained in the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), due to the commonality of the issues in most of the above-referenced eighty petitions, they were managed together. Ultimately, a hearing was set for July 30, 2012 and each petitioner was so advised by a notice from the OAL – which notice warned that the petitioner's "APPEARANCE [WAS] MANDATORY. FAILURE TO APPEAR [WOULD] RESULT IN DISMISSAL OF [HER] PETITION." A copy of the notice sent directly to the instant petitioner is in the file for this case.

Notwithstanding the notice, petitioner did not appear at the July 30 hearing. Her counsel – who did appear – represented that she had attempted to contact petitioner to discuss the need for petitioner's appearance, but was unable to reach her.

As no explanation for her non-appearance was received from petitioner subsequent to the hearing, the Administrative Law Judge concluded that petitioner had abandoned her appeal and directed that the file be returned to the Department of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a). The Commissioner similarly concludes that the appeal has been abandoned, and dismisses the petition for petitioner's failure to prosecute.

Decided: August 1, 2012

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Sarah Becker, a teacher formerly employed by the Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth (the Board), asserts that the Board terminated her employment in contravention of her tenure and seniority rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 et seq. She seeks reinstatement and back pay retroactive to the date of her termination.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND STATEMENT OF FACTS

Becker filed her appeal with the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) on August 12, 2010. An answer was filed on behalf of the Board, and the contested case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), on September 27, 2010.

In or about June 2010, the Board terminated several-hundred employees pursuant to a reduction in force (RIF); more than eighty of these employees have pending petitions challenging their terminations as violative of the tenure laws. Discovery and settlement discussions relative to these cases have been the subject of bi-monthly status conferences between counsel and me. In the aftermath of the RIF, many of the petitioners were reinstated by the Board, or secured alternative employment. Counsel and I agreed that many claims might be ripe for withdrawal or settlement, and that by disposing of these claims we would be better able to efficiently focus upon the claims that presented factual or legal complexities. Counsel were directed to communicate with their clients and share with the Board a settlement proposal that fully outlined the back and pay benefits sought by each petitioner, or in the alternative, to promptly withdraw any claim that was no longer viable.

At several case management conferences counsel advised me of ongoing difficulties in securing the cooperation of some of the petitioners and of counsel's inability to obtain the information needed to make a settlement proposal to the Board, or to counsel a client that it was appropriate to withdraw his or her claim. Accordingly, in my order dated May 15, 2012, I directed counsel to supply me with a list of petitioners with whom they have been unable to communicate regarding the nature and extent of their claims. Becker was among these petitioners, per correspondence from her attorney dated May 23, 2012.

A notice of hearing was issued on June 5, 2012, requiring Becker's appearance on July 30, 2012. Becker was notified by the Clerk of the Office of Administrative Law, that her appearance was mandatory, and that a failure to appear would result in dismissal of her petition. The notice was sent both to her attorney and directly to Becker at the address on record via regular mail. The OAL received no return of the notice as undeliverable.

Becker's attorney appeared at the hearing and confirmed on the record his ongoing inability to reach his client. He confirmed that he has attempted to communicate with Becker via telephone and by certified and regular mail, all to no avail. He tried, without success, to discuss the need for Becker to appear at the scheduled proceeding. Becker did not appear on July 30, 2012.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Becker has abandoned this matter and that it should be returned to the transmitting agency.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a) provides that, if, after appropriate notice, a party does not appear in any proceeding scheduled by a judge, the judge shall hold the matter for one day before taking any action. If the judge does not receive an explanation for the nonappearance within one day, the judge may direct the Clerk to return the matter to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition. Becker failed to appear at the scheduled proceeding, and she failed to provide an explanation one day following her nonappearance. Accordingly, the Clerk should return this matter to the Department of Education.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the Clerk return this matter to the Department of Education for appropriate disposition.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Nina Armento, a teacher formerly employed by the Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth (the Board), asserts that the Board terminated her employment in contravention of her tenure and seniority rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 et seq. She seeks reinstatement and back pay retroactive to the date of her termination.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND STATEMENT OF FACTS

Armento filed her appeal with the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) on August 9, 2010. An answer was filed on behalf of the Board, and the contested case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), on September 14, 2010.

In or about June 2010, the Board terminated several-hundred employees pursuant to a reduction in force (RIF); more than eighty of these employees have pending petitions challenging their terminations as violative of the tenure laws. Discovery and settlement discussions relative to these cases have been the subject of bi-monthly status conferences between counsel and me. In the aftermath of the RIF, many of the petitioners were reinstated by the Board, or secured alternative employment. Counsel and I agreed that many claims might be ripe for withdrawal or settlement, and that by disposing of these claims we would be better able to efficiently focus upon the claims that presented factual or legal complexities. Counsel were directed to communicate with their clients and share with the Board a settlement proposal that fully outlined the back and pay benefits sought by each petitioner, or in the alternative, to promptly withdraw any claim that was no longer viable.

At several case management conferences counsel advised me of ongoing difficulties in securing the cooperation of some of the petitioners and of counsel's inability to obtain the information needed to make a settlement proposal to the Board, or to counsel a client that it was appropriate to withdraw his or her claim. Accordingly, in my order dated May 15, 2012, I directed counsel to supply me with a list of petitioners with whom they have been unable to communicate regarding the nature and extent of their claims. Armento was among these petitioners, per correspondence from her attorney.

A notice of hearing was issued on June 4, 2012, requiring Armento's appearance on July 30, 2012. Armento was notified by the Clerk of the Office of Administrative Law, that her appearance was mandatory, and that a failure to appear would result in dismissal of her petition. The notice was sent both to her attorney and directly to Armento at the address on record via regular mail. The OAL received no return of the notice as undeliverable.

Armento's attorney appeared at the hearing and confirmed on the record her ongoing inability to reach his client. She confirmed that she has attempted to communicate with Armento via telephone and by certified and regular mail, all to no avail. She tried, without success, to discuss the need for Armento to appear at the scheduled proceeding. Armento did not appear on July 30, 2012.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Armento has abandoned this matter and that it should be returned to the transmitting agency.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a) provides that, if, after appropriate notice, a party does not appear in any proceeding scheduled by a judge, the judge shall hold the matter for one day before taking any action. If the judge does not receive an explanation for the nonappearance within one day, the judge may direct the Clerk to return the matter to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition. Armento failed to appear at the scheduled proceeding, and she failed to provide an explanation one day following her nonappearance. Accordingly, the Clerk should return this matter to the Department of Education.

It is ORDERED that the Clerk return this matter to the Department of Education for appropriate disposition.

A notice of hearing was issued on June 1, 2012, requiring Simmons's appearance on July 30, 2012. Simmons was notified by the Clerk of the Office of Administrative Law, that her appearance was mandatory, and that a failure to appear would result in dismissal of her petition. The notice was sent both to her attorney and directly to Simmons at the address on record via regular mail. The OAL received no return of the notice as undeliverable.

Simmons's attorney appeared at the hearing and confirmed on the record his ongoing inability to reach his client. He confirmed that he has attempted to communicate with her via telephone and by certified and regular mail, all to no avail. He tried, without success, to discuss the need for her to appear at the scheduled proceeding. Simmons did not appear on July 30, 2012.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Simmons has abandoned this matter and that it should be returned to the transmitting agency.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a) provides that, if, after appropriate notice, a party does not appear in any proceeding scheduled by a judge, the judge shall hold the matter for one day before taking any action. If the judge does not receive an explanation for the nonappearance within one day, the judge may direct the Clerk to return the matter to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition. Simmons failed to appear at the scheduled proceeding, and she failed to provide an explanation one day following her nonappearance. Accordingly, the Clerk should return this matter to the Department of Education.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the Clerk return this matter to the Department of Education for appropriate disposition.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

 PETITIONER, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
 V. : DECISION
 BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE :
 TOWNSHIP OF NORTH BRUNSWICK, :
 MIDDLESEX COUNTY, :
 RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner filed a pro se residency appeal challenging the determination of the respondent Board that his daughter was not eligible for a free public education in the North Brunswick school district during the 2011-2012 school year. Petitioner contended that his daughter lived primarily with him in North Brunswick, but also spent time in New Brunswick at her mother's residence. The respondent Board asserted – based on substantial evidence produced during a residency investigation – that E.A.Z. lived in New Brunswick with her mother during the 2011-2012 school year. The Board sought reimbursement for tuition for the 2011-2012 school year in the amount of $10,250. This matter was originally heard at the OAL in April 2012, after which the ALJ issued an Initial Decision determining that E.A.Z. was not eligible for a free education in the district's schools until December 2011 or January 2012; accordingly the ALJ ordered petitioner to pay the Board tuition for one half of the 2011-2012 school year. Subsequently the Commissioner remanded the case back to the OAL for supplementation of the record to establish the actual amount of tuition owed by petitioner to the Board.

On remand, the ALJ found that: the respondent Board sent the OAL a letter dated July 27, 2012, stating that the amount of tuition owed by petitioner for the 2011-2012 school year had been settled, and attaching an invoice in the amount of $5,295.42; and the Board's correspondence stated that after settlement discussions, the Board agreed to accept payment of $3,000 from petitioner in full settlement of the matter. The ALJ concluded that the letter confirming settlement and the tuition reimbursement invoice fully disposed of all issues on remand and met the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and accordingly approved the settlement.

Upon a full and independent review, the Commissioner found that there is no legal indication whatsoever that petitioner has agreed to the terms contained in the Board's letter. Accordingly, the Commissioner rejected the purported settlement agreement and returned the matter to the OAL for supplementation of the record to conclusively evidence that both parties have agreed to the reported terms.

The record of this matter, and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, advising that the parties have settled this matter, have been reviewed.

Upon review, the Commissioner cannot find – on this record – that the parties have agreed to settle this matter. Specifically, appended to the Administrative Law Judge's decision are a Tuition Reimbursement Invoice from the Board indicating that it has calculated the tuition due and owing to be $5,295.42 for the period of minor child E.A.Z.'s ineligible attendance in its schools. Also attached is a letter from Board counsel, Anthony T. Betta, reporting that – after settlement discussions – the Board has agreed to accept payment of $3,000 from the petitioner in full settlement of this matter. Noticeably absent, however, is any legal indication whatsoever that petitioner has agreed to these terms.

Accordingly, the purported settlement agreement of the OAL is rejected and this matter is being returned to the OAL for supplementation of the record to conclusively evidence that both parties have agreed to the reported terms.

Record Closed: August 6, 2012

Decided: August 6, 2012

BEFORE SANDRA ANN ROBINSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

In August 2010, E.A.A., appellant, signed a Lease Agreement for a one-bedroom apartment located in North Brunswick, New Jersey. Appellant registered his daughter for school, but instead of her attending the school closest to the apartment, Judd School, he asked that she attend Parsons School. Since Judd School had maximized enrollment capacity, the North Brunswick Board of Education (NBBOE), respondent, approved appellant's request for his daughter to attend Parsons only during the 2011/2012 school year (SY). Parsons School was requested by appellant to accommodate his childcare concerns.

Prior to the end of the 2010/2011 SY, Parson School officials informed the NBBOE that appellant's daughter had told some of her friends that she lives in New Brunswick.

Appellant did not make a request of NBBOE in the 2011/2012 SY for his daughter to attend Parsons School. However, on August 11, 2011, the NBBOE through Dr. Brian Zychowski, superintendent of North Brunswick Township Schools, wrote to appellant to advise him that his daughter would be transferred back to Judd School if he could not prove she resided in North Brunswick.

On September 2, 2011, appellant visited the NBBOE offices to inquire why his daughter could no longer attend Parsons School. Appellant met with Dr. Zychowski and was advised of the NBBOE suspicions that his daughter resided in New Brunswick. Appellant assured Dr. Zychowski that he and his daughter reside in North Brunswick and his wife and his daughter's mother live in New Brunswick. Appellant also told the superintendent that his daughter splits her time between parents and usually stays with him on Monday, Tuesday, and Friday.

Based on the information provided to the superintendent, appellant's daughter was permitted to remain at Parsons School for the 2011/2012 SY. Dr. Zychowski requested a residency check to commence when school started. On December 12, 2011, the NBBOE held a residency hearing and the Student Services Committee determined that appellant's daughter did not legally reside in North Brunswick with appellant, but resided in New Brunswick with her mother. The NBBOE informed appellant of the determination by letter dated December 13, 2011. A pertinent portion of the letter set forth,

This determination was made in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1(i). A family member residing at 705 Birchwood Court confirmed to the Residency Investigator that child (your daughter) stays with mother at 65 Comstock Street in New Brunswick during the week and visits father on the weekend. Therefore it is the recommendation of the committee that the North Brunswick Board of Education terminates your daughter's attendance At Parsons Elementary School effective Tuesday, January 3, 2012.

Appellant contends that his daughter has split residency between her mother's home in New Brunswick and his (her father's) home in North Brunswick at the beginning of the 2011/2012 SY. On appellant's "Pro Se Residency Appeal Petition" and during his testimony and oral presentation he disclosed that his daughter moved in completely to live with him in North Brunswick, starting on December 17, 2011.

Respondent, through Investigator Mauer, submitted substantial evidence to support respondent's suspicions that appellant's daughter's residency during the 2011/2012 SY is in New Brunswick. Respondent seeks reimbursement for services and calculates tuition charges due and owing from appellant for the full 183-day enrollment ineligibility in North Brunswick during the 2011/2012 SY, to be $10,250.

On May 29, 2012, the Initial Decision in this matter was filed with the Commissioner of the Department of Education and transmitted to the parties. It was determined that the weight of the evidence indicates that appellant's daughter resided in New Brunswick and not in North Brunswick for the first half of the 2011/2012 SY. The ORDER in decision required a modification of the amount of tuition appellant owes respondent to reflect the school days appellant's daughter did not reside in North Brunswick during the first half of the 2011/2012 SY.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY ON REMAND

The within matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) ON REMAND on July 12, 2012, for a determination of the actual amount of tuition owed based on a calculation prepared by the undersigned after listening to and admitting evidence in regard to days of school and tuition rates.

On July 30, 2012, OAL received correspondence from respondent, Board of Education of North Brunswick Township, dated July 27, 2012, to confirm that the matter On Remand—OAL Docket Number 09420-12—pertaining to the amount of tuition owed for the 2011/2012 SY, had been settled.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSION

I have reviewed both the Tuition Reimbursement Invoice, dated June 5, 2012, and the letter confirming the settlement, dated July 27, 2012, and I FIND:

1. Respondent, Board of Education of North Brunswick Township calculated the tuition owed by appellants E.A.A. and E.A.Z. to be $5,295.42 for the first half of the 2011/2012 SY.
2. The parties entered into settlement discussions. At the conclusion of discussions respondent agreed to accept appellant's payment of $3,000, instead of the calculated $5, 295.42, as payment in full for tuition for the first half of the 2011/2012 SY.
3. The Letter confirming settlement and the Tuition Reimbursement Invoice fully disposes of all issues On Remand and is consistent with the law.

I therefore CONCLUDE that the Letter and the Invoice meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved.

ORDER

I approve the SETTLEMENT and hereby ORDER that the parties comply with the payment terms, and that these proceedings be concluded, pending approval by the Commissioner of Education.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five (45) days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

V. : DECISION

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY : OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY, :

RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – who has been employed in respondent’s district since 1977, most recently as an elementary vice principal – appealed the determination of the respondent Board to withhold his 2011-2012 salary increment, claiming that he had not received prior written notice of this action, nor the reasons therefore as required under N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. The Board contended, inter alia, that petitioner’s appeal – which was filed on October 31, 2011 – was untimely pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3, as he had been notified by letter dated May 19, 2011 of the Board’s decision to withhold his increment. The Board filed a motion for summary decision, to which petitioner failed to respond.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: counsel for petitioner notified the OAL that his client had failed to communicate with him regarding an answer to the Board’s motion to dismiss, and indicated that the petition might be withdrawn; because such withdrawal was not forthcoming, the matter was decided on the papers; the uncontested documents presented with the motion to dismiss show, inter alia, that the Board notified petitioner in writing on May 19, 2011 that his increment would be withheld for the coming year; further, by letter dated July 8, 2011, petitioner was notified that the reason for the increment withholding was his “unsatisfactory performance as Vice Principal” as detailed in “multiple memorandums from the principal at Davis Elementary School between October 2010 and June 2011”; and the Board heard argument from petitioner at a “Donaldson Hearing” as to why his increment should not be withheld, but declined to change its determination to withhold the increment. The ALJ concluded that petitioner was fully aware that his increment was to be withheld by the end of May 2011 yet failed to file his appeal until the end of October 2011, well beyond the 90 day limit for the filing of a petition. Accordingly, the ALJ dismissed the petition as untimely.

Upon independent review and consideration – and noting that the file includes a July 30, 2012 letter from petitioner’s counsel purporting to withdraw the petition subsequent to the issuance of the decision of the OAL on July 27, 2012 – the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ’s findings and conclusions in this matter. Accordingly, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter.

This controversy was initiated on October 31, 2011 as a challenge to respondent's decision to withhold petitioner's increment for the 2011-2012 school year. On March 22, 2012 – after the matter had been transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for fact-finding – respondent moved for summary decision alleging, inter alia, that petitioner had failed to institute the case within the time period allowed by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i) and that, consequently, the Commissioner lacked jurisdiction to adjudicate the matter. Petitioner never responded to the motion.

On July 27, 2012 an Initial Decision was issued in the OAL, wherein the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that petitioner had not timely instituted his challenge to the increment withholding action by respondent. The ALJ accordingly recommended dismissal of the petition.

Upon review of the record and Initial Decision, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's determination that the petition was untimely filed. For this reason, and in light of petitioner's "withdrawal" from the case by way of a letter dated July 30, 2012 from his counsel, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case. The petition is dismissed with prejudice.

ALBERT CAMPBELL,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF CAMDEN, CAMDEN COUNTY,

Respondent.

Robert M. Schwartz, Esq. for petitioner

Louis R. Lessig, Esq., and Eric D. Milavsky, Esq., for respondent
(Brown & Connery, attorneys,)

Record Closed: July 11, 2012

Decided: July 27, 2012

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

In this contested case, Albert Campbell filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education challenging a decision of the Camden City Board of Education to withhold his increment for the 2011-12 school year. The petition was filed by Campbell on October 31, 2011 and was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law on January 10, 2012. A prehearing conference was held on February 21, 2012. On March 22, 2012, counsel for the Board filed a motion to dismiss the petition, contending in part that it was filed beyond the ninety-day period permitted for the filing of such a challenge to the Board's action. In addition, the respondent argued that Mr. Campbell had failed to present any argument against the Board's action that did not fail as a matter of law.¹ No reply to the motion was received. On May 25, 2012, Mr. Schwartz advised this judge in writing that he had sent his client a letter on April 5, 2012, concerning the reply to the motion but that as of May 25, he had not yet heard from Mr. Campbell. He indicated that he would try to reach Campbell and would advise me as to "what course of action we will take." Thereafter, no reply to the motion, nor any other indication of the position of the petitioner, has been received, this despite an indication that the petition might be withdrawn. At this date, it is no longer appropriate to wait for any reply to the motion, and no withdrawal having been received, a decision is therefore rendered.

According to the uncontested documents presented with its motion to dismiss, the Board notified Campbell by letter dated April 19, 2011, that it intended to discuss a personnel matter respective to his position at its meeting of May 17, 2011. He was invited to advise of any desire that the personnel matter be discussed in the public portion of the meeting, as opposed to a discussion during a private meeting. On May 19, 2011, the Board advised Campbell, in writing, that it had determined at its May 17, 2011, meeting to withhold his increment for the 2011-12 school year. The letter also advised that if he desired, the Board would "provide a right to an informal appearance to request that the Board reconsider the decision to withhold your increment." He was told that if he desired such an appearance he should notify the Board office. By letter, he did so, on May 27, 2011. In the letter he noted his astonishment and dismay at the decision. In response to the letter, the Board advised that he could appear on August 2, 2011 at a "Donaldson Hearing." By letter dated July 8, 2011, the Board's Acting Assistant Director of Human Resources notified Campbell that the reason for the increment withholding was his "unsatisfactory performance as Vice Principal at Davis Elementary School" as detailed in "multiple memorandums from the principal at Davis Elementary School between October 2010 and June 2011." The Board did hear argument from Campbell, but declined to change its previously announced determination to withhold his increment.

The Board contends that Campbell's petition was filed outside of the allowable period for challenging the Board's action. N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14 provides that ¹ Campbell argues that the action was arbitrary and capricious, done without notice to him of the Board's intentions, was a "retroactive" decision, and violated his tenure rights.

Any board of education may withhold, for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment, or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board of education. It shall be the duty of the board of education, within 10 days, to give written notice of such action, together with the reasons therefor, to the member concerned. The member may appeal from such action to the commissioner under rules prescribed by him. The commissioner shall consider such appeal and shall either affirm the action of the board of education or direct that the increment or increments be paid. . . .

A petition filed with the Commissioner challenging such a withholding must be filed in a timely manner, as defined by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i),

The petitioner shall file a petition no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing. This rule shall not apply in instances where a specific statute, regulation or court order provides for a period of limitation shorter than 90 days for the filing of a particular type of appeal.

The ninety-day rule expresses a public policy that favors a measure of repose to school districts, stabilizing the relationship between teachers and administration. It allows for the proper and efficient administration of the school laws. The rule has been upheld as a "fair and reasonably-necessary requirement for the proper and efficient resolution of disputes under the school laws." Kaprow v. Bd. of Ed. of Berkeley Township, 131 N.J. 572, 582 (1993). The significant factor used in measuring the start of the ninety-day period is "adequate notice." The party presenting a claim must have received some form of notice adequate to alert "an individual of some fact that he or she has a right to know and that the communicating party has a duty to communicate. Moreover, adequate notice under the regulation must be sufficient to further the purpose of the ninety-day limitations period. . . . [T]he notice requirement should effectuate concerns for individual justice by not triggering the limitations period until [the petitioner has been alerted to the existence of facts that would be adverse to it]. At the same time, it should further considerations of repose by establishing an objective event to trigger the limitations period in order "to enable the proper and efficient administration of the affairs of government." Borough of Park Ridge v. Salimone, 21 N.J. 28, 48 (1956)." Id. at 587. The form of notice deemed adequate to place someone on notice of adverse action can be either formal, such as a letter from the secretary of the Board of Education informing the petitioner that someone else has been given her job, Kaprow, supra, or informal, such as the issuance of a check that does not contain a salary increase (North Plainfield Ed. Ass'n. v. Bd. of Ed. of North Plainfield Borough, 96 N.J. 587 (1984)). While the law does recognize that there are some extremely limited instances where the enforcement of the ninety-day rule should be waived in the interests of public policy, such as where important and novel constitutional questions or matters of important public rather than private interests are in need of adjudication or where there are informal or ex parte determinations of legal questions by administrative officials, in general, the rule has been strictly enforced. Brunetti v. Borough of New Milford, 68 N.J. 576, 586 (1975); Bland-Carter v. State-Operated School District of the City of Newark, (EDU 1505-00, Initial Decision, (July 21, 2000), <http://lawlibrary.Rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>., adopted Comm'r (September 11, 2000) (refusing to relax the ninety-day rule when the petitioner filed outside of the time limitation where genuine personal problems of the petitioner occurred during the first part of the ninety-day period and the petitioner returned to work several weeks before the ninetieth day).

Here, I FIND that the Board notified Mr. Campbell that his increment would be withheld by letter dated May 19, 2011. This letter followed upon the earlier April 19 letter advising that he was to be the subject of a discussion regarding a personnel matter at the Board's May meeting. Thus, as of May 19, or a day or two thereafter, I FIND that Campbell was fully aware that his increment was to be withheld, and his May 27, letter to the Board requesting to appear before it confirms that he knew of the Board's May 17 decision and was certainly troubled by it. Despite this, he did not file a petition with the Commissioner until, according to the Controversies and Disputes date stamp, October 31, approximately 166 days after he was aware of the Board's action. The ninety-day period for filing the appeal expired on or about August 17, 2011. Clearly, the petition was filed well outside of the allowable time. And Mr. Campbell has neither denied this nor offered any explanation or excuse for his failure to file in a timely manner. He has not presented any response, and as such, has not suggested that any of the limited grounds for waiving the ninety-day rule apply to his case.

Based upon the uncontested facts relevant to the issue of the timelines of the petition, and without comment upon the substantive issues as the ninety-day rule is jurisdictional. I CONCLUDE that Mr. Campbell's petition was filed outside of the time permitted by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3i and that, as such, it is not a timely objection to the Board's decision and the Commissioner is without jurisdiction to act upon the petition. The Petition is therefore DISMISSED with prejudice.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BEFORE PATRICIA M. KERINS, ALJ:

Petitioners are the parents of eight children, ages five through twelve, who reside in the Borough of Interlaken (Borough) and whose public education is to be provided by the Board of Education of Interlaken (Interlaken). They seek an Emergent Order allowing their children to enroll in the West Long Branch School District (West Long Branch)¹ along with other Interlaken students. The petition and request for emergent relief was filed with the Department of Education on August 17, 2012, and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 21, 2012. Pleadings in response were filed by the parties up to August 24, 2012, and oral argument on the request for emergent relief was heard on August 27, 2012 at the OAL in Mercerville, New Jersey. Only respondent Board of Education of Asbury Park (Asbury Park) has objected to the relief sought by petitioners.

The right of Interlaken students to attend either West Long Branch schools or Shore Regional High School rather than Asbury Park schools was the subject of a prior May 11, 2012, emergent order in Board of Education of the Borough of Interlaken v. Board of Education of the City of Asbury Park, OAL Docket No. EDU 5340-2012

(Interlaken I). That order allowed Interlaken students to attend those districts pending a decision in the underlying dispute between Asbury Park and Interlaken over the existence of a sending-receiving relationship between the two districts.² That Order was affirmed by the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) on June 14, 2012. The legal and factual discussions set forth those Orders are incorporated herein.

At issue in this request for emergent relief is whether the prior order allowing Interlaken students to attend West Long Branch and Shore Regional schools should be applied to the approximately fifty school age children resident in the Borough, rather than just the twenty students who were currently attending those schools on the date of the entry of the order in Interlaken I. As set forth by petitioners, Interlaken did not allow their children to enroll in the West Long Branch district for the 2012-13 school year based upon its interpretation of the emergent order entered on May 11, 2012 and the Commissioner's subsequent affirmance.

In Interlaken I, the Borough requested several forms of relief, including an Order maintaining the status quo, allowing the twenty Interlaken students currently attending West Long Branch and Shore Regional schools to continue their attendance in those districts, and an Order, pending the outcome of its underlying petition for relief, permitting any additional Interlaken students who wish to enroll in the West Long Branch or Shore Regional schools to do so for the 2012-13 school year. In pertinent part, the May 11, 2012 Order reads:

....Its request for maintenance of the status quo is GRANTED and Interlaken students may continue to attend West Long Branch and Shore regional schools pending a determination by the Commissioner of Interlaken's Verified Petition for Relief.

In affirming that Order the Commissioner stated:

Accordingly, the Order of the OAL is adopted. Petitioner's students will continue their educations in the schools where they currently are enrolled, pending an ultimate determination concerning petitioner's application to replace or supplement the send-receive relationship that it previously maintained with the respondent Asbury Park Board of Education. The matter is hereby returned to the OAL for a plenary hearing on the merits.

The standards for emergent relief are set forth in Crowe v. DeGoia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) and are codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6. They include irreparable harm if the relief is not granted, a settled legal right underlying petitioner's claim, likelihood that petitioner will prevail on the merits of the underlying claim, and, balancing the equities and interests, that petitioner will suffer greater harm than respondent.

While neither Order specifically addresses the question of whether Interlaken students not currently enrolled in West Long Branch or Shore Regional schools can enroll in those schools, the language of each order is broad enough to encompass that eventuality. Further, the legal analysis applied in each anticipates such a result. In allowing Interlaken students to continue attending the receiving districts of West Long Branch or Shore Regional both orders cited the underlying dispute between Interlaken and Asbury Park as to the existence and extent of the sending-receiving relationship between them. Although a hearing is required to determine whether such a relationship exists, and if so whether Interlaken has met the statutory requirements for terminating such a relationship, under the Crowe standard, it was determined that Interlaken had a likelihood of prevailing on the merits. That likelihood of success was one of the factors allowing Interlaken students to attend West Long Branch and Shore Regional as receiving districts for Interlaken.

Crowe further requires that petitioners show a settled legal right to the relief sought. In this matter, the children of Interlaken have a right to a public education under the law of New Jersey. While Asbury Park has disputed Interlaken's right to enter into sending-receiving relationships with West Long Branch and Shore Regional, it has nevertheless done so. Although the relationships are disputed, all of the children of Interlaken have a settled legal right to the public education made available by Interlaken. As Interlaken has been allowed to maintain the status quo of those sending receiving relationships with West Long Branch and Shore Regional pending the resolution of Interlaken I, access to those schools must be provided to all its resident children. To do otherwise calls into question their settled legal right to a public education.

The standard for emergent relief further requires that petitioners suffer irreparable harm should the relief not be granted. In this matter, petitioners' children are entitled to a public education. If they are unable to receive that education, they will be denied a constitutional right, clearly suffering irreparable harm. Interlaken maintains no schools of its own and has disputed its sending-receiving relationship with Asbury Park. It has however, entered into sending-receiving relationships with West Long Branch and Shore Regional. As those relationships have been permitted to continue, they should be available to all of the approximately fifty school age children residing in the Borough. To do otherwise would deprive the remaining children of access to the schools available to other residents, raising a serious issue regarding their equal access to the public education already being provided to those children already attending West Long Branch or Shore Regional.

The final prong of the Crowe analysis is whether upon a balancing of the equities and interests, petitioners will suffer greater harm than respondent. As noted in Interlaken I, a balancing of the equities shows that the children of Interlaken have a greater stake in this matter than the only objecting respondent, Asbury Park. Their right to a public education is at stake in this dispute between the two districts. Interlaken has chosen to enter into sending-receiving relationships with West Long Branch and Shore Regional and to contest the existence and extent of the relationship with Asbury Park. Pending the outcome of the Interlaken I case, the status quo of the West Long Branch and Shore Regional relationships has been maintained and petitioners have chosen to enroll their children in the same manner as other Interlaken children. To deny them that right raises issues of equal access and subjects their children's right to a public education to the uncertainty of Interlaken's disputed relationship with Asbury Park. In contrast, as noted in Interlaken I, no regular education Interlaken students have attended Asbury Park schools since the mid 1990s, and any harm to it is merely speculative at this point.

Petitioners' request for an emergent order is GRANTED and all Interlaken students may attend West Long Branch and Shore Regional Schools pending the final determination in the matter of Board of Education of the Borough of Interlaken v. Board of Education of the City of Asbury Park, et al., OAL Docket No. EDU 5340-2012. It is so ORDERED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, a tenured secretarial employee whose position was abolished in a reduction in force (RIF) in June 2010, alleged that the respondent Board violated her tenure and seniority rights when it failed to rehire her for a secretarial position which was posted in August 2011, and instead selected a non-tenured employee to fill the vacancy. After transmittal of the case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the Board filed a motion for summary disposition, contending that petitioner had no legal entitlement to a position created after her employment was terminated in a RIF. In its motion to dismiss, the Board referenced the well-settled principle that secretaries are not protected by the seniority system that applies to teaching staff members. The ALJ assigned to the case denied the motion to dismiss, after which the Board sought an interlocutory review of the ALJ's August 7, 2012 order by the Commissioner of Education.

The Commissioner reviewed the ALJ's order and the parties' submissions in this matter, and determined that reversal of the ALJ's August 7, 2012 order is appropriate; consequently, an evidentiary hearing is not necessary for the disposition of this case. Citing prior case law, the Commissioner found, inter alia, that – while tenured secretaries may “bump” into the secretarial positions of untenured employees at the time of a RIF – in the absence of contractual seniority for secretaries, a board of education is not obliged to maintain a seniority list and call a secretary back when a secretarial job opens up subsequent to the elimination of his or her prior position. In light of this finding, the Commissioner determined that petitioner did not have a legal right to the secretarial position that opened up in respondent's district over a year after her prior employment was terminated. Accordingly, the Commissioner granted summary disposition in favor of respondent and issued a final decision dismissing the petition.

RESPONDENT.	:

Respondent Board of Education of the Borough of Ridgefield has sought interlocutory review of an August 7, 2012 order by an Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) which denied respondent's application for summary decision dismissing the petition. Having reviewed both the ALJ's order and the parties' submissions, and having decided to undertake such interlocutory review, the Commissioner has determined that reversal of the August 7, 2012 order is appropriate.

As discussed in the Interlocutory Order, petitioner was a tenured secretary in respondent's district whose position was eliminated on June 30, 2010 as the result of an economically induced reduction in force (RIF). Petitioner does not allege that the RIF itself was improper, nor does she contend that at the time of the RIF there were vacant secretarial positions or secretarial positions held by non-tenured employees to which she might have been entitled. Rather, petitioner contends that in August 2011 – over a year after the RIF – when a new secretarial position opened in the district, respondent was obliged to offer it to her in preference to any non-tenured candidate, so long as she was qualified for the job.

Respondent moved for summary disposition, arguing that as a matter of law petitioner had no legal entitlement to a position created after her employment was terminated via a reduction in force. In so arguing, respondent made reference to the settled principle that secretaries are not protected by the seniority system enjoyed by teaching staff members. See, e.g., Ferronto v. Bd. of Educ. of the Township of Weymouth, et al., State Board of Education Decision #36-05, decided February 1, 2006; Sheridan v. Board of Education of the Township of Ridgefield Park, Bergen County, 1976 S.L.D. 995, 997.

Consequently, while tenured secretaries may “bump” into the secretarial positions of untenured employees at the time of a RIF, Lisa Salimbene v. Board of Education of the Township of Dennis, Cape May County, Commissioner Decision No. 511-11, decided November 10, 2011, at 2, in the absence of contractual seniority for secretaries a board of education is not obliged to maintain a seniority list and call a secretary back when a secretarial job opens up subsequent to the elimination of his or her prior position. Gloria Dezuzio v. Board of Education of the Borough of Bound Brook, Somerset County, Commissioner Decision No. 387-08, decided September 18, 2008, at 2.

Significantly, such decisions as Dezuzio, supra, and Judith A. DiNapoli v. Board of Education of the Township of Verona, Essex County, Commissioner Decision No. 281-12M, decided July 16, 2012 (Slip Op.), at 2, hold that school secretaries enjoy neither seniority privileges nor recall rights. Thus, a tenured secretary can exercise his or her right to “bump” a non-tenured secretary solely at the time of the RIF. Indeed, in the absence of a system of seniority, there is no fair and practical way of determining who, among multiple “RIF’d” tenured secretaries, might properly be “recalled” or offered a position that is created or vacated subsequent to a RIF. And the longer the interval of time between the RIF and the opening of a secretarial position, the more compounded the issue can become.

In light of the foregoing, petitioner did not have a legal right to the secretarial position which opened up in respondent's district over a year after her prior employment was terminated. Consequently, an evidentiary hearing regarding her qualifications for the position is not necessary for the disposition of this case.

Accordingly, summary disposition is granted in favor of respondent, and a final decision dismissing the petition is hereby issued.

IT IS SO ORDERED.¹

BOROUGH OF RIDGEFIELD BOARD OF EDUCATION,

BEFORE SANDRA ANN ROBINSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Kathleen Biggiani, petitioner, was a secretary for the Board of Education Borough of Ridgefield, in Bergen County New Jersey. Biggiani was hired in a twelve-month secretarial position in November 2006 and was terminated June 30, 2010, due to fiscal constraints and a reduction in workforce (RIF) pursuant to the vote taken at a June 10 public meeting. (Resp't's Br. at 1; Pet'r's Br. at 1). Petitioner's position was abolished effective June 30, 2010. Petitioner charges that in August 2011 she became aware of an opening for a twelve-month secretary position and applied for the position. The position was awarded to a non-tenured individual. Petitioner argues that the award to a non-tenured person is in violation of her (petitioner's) tenure rights.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 15, 2011, this matter was transferred to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) from the New Jersey Department of Education for a hearing as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to B-15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to F-13. On March 27, 2012, respondent filed a Motion for Summary Decision, and on May 11, 2012, petitioner submitted a Brief in Opposition to the Motion for Summary Decision. July 6, 2012, was set as the deadline for submission of reply briefs.

MOTION FOR SUMMARY DECISION

When considering a Motion for Summary Decision, this tribunal must determine whether the pleadings, admissions, certifications and affidavits demonstrate that no genuine issue of material fact exists. Motions for Summary Decision are the administrative counterpart to Summary Judgment and should be granted if the pleadings, discovery and certifications "show there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5; Contini v. Bd. of Educ., 286 N.J. Super. 106, 121 (App. Div. 1995). In Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, 142 N.J. 520, 541 (1995), the New Jersey Supreme Court encouraged trial courts to grant summary judgment whenever the proper circumstances present themselves. When the evidence is so one-sided that one party must prevail, courts should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 540; R. 4:46-2; Boyle v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Bayonne, EDU 11549-96, Initial Decision (October 27, 1997), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/search.html>.

An adverse party's mere reliance on argument in a brief and the bare allegations of the complaint, without more is insufficient to create a genuine issue of fact. In re

LaRusso, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 506 (citations omitted); Camuso v. City of Newark, CSV 3667-98, Initial Decision (October 26, 1999), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/search.html>; Baran v. Clouse Trucking, 225 N.J. Super. 230, 234 (App. Div. 1988), certif. denied, 113 N.J. 353 (1988). Relevant to the inquiry regarding a Motion for Summary Decision is whether the competent evidential materials, which have been presented, when viewed in the light of the most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact-finder to resolve the alleged disputed issues in favor of the non-moving party. Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 540. In order for the non-movant to prevail, a responding affidavit must be offered setting forth specific facts, which indicate that there is a genuine issue of a material fact that can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. 37 New Jersey Practice, Administrative Law and Practices, 194 at 202 (Lefelt) (1988).

In the instant case, additional fact-finding is necessary to determine whether Biggiani, possesses the precise skills and necessary qualifications to efficiently perform the duties of the newly created and sought-after secretarial position.

Citing Sheridan v. Board of Education of Township of Ridgefield Park, 1976 S.L.D. 995, 997, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) in Harrington v. Sussex Board of Education, EDU 09137-08, Initial Decision (April 11, 2011), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/search.html>, reiterated that although no statutory right empowers tenured secretaries to bump non-tenured secretaries, such a right may be established in the aftermath of a reduction in force (RIF) "only if the tenured secretary possesses the skills and necessary qualifications to efficiently perform the duties of such secretarial position." Ibid. The ALJ noted that "[i]n such cases, 'title alone is not dispositive and actual duties should control over labels.'" Ibid. (quoting Hibo v. Bd. of Educ. of the W. Essex Reg'l Sch. Dist., EDU 1226-96, Initial Decision (November 12, 1997), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/search.html>).

In Salimbene v. Board of Education of the Township of Dennis, Cape May County, EDU 9322-10, Initial Decision (October 5, 2011), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/search.html>, which addressed whether a tenured secretary RIF'd from a twelve-month position to a ten-month position had rights to an alternate twelve-month position occupied by a non-tenured secretary, the Commissioner of Education remanded the ALJ's decision, which had granted such a right to the petitioner. The Commissioner stated that while "a tenured secretary may 'bump' into another secretarial position held by a non-tenured employee," such a result requires "careful[] analy[sis] and compar[ison] [of] the evidence relating to the duties and responsibilities of the eliminated or reduced position and the position sought by the RIF'd employee." Id. at 2. The Commissioner determined that the ALJ's finding that the tenured secretary could bump the non-tenured secretary was based "solely upon the assumption that petitioner's tenure in her secretarial position signifies that she possesses [such] skills." Id. at 4. Therefore, despite there being only a single discrepancy between the job descriptions of the RIF'd position and the position sought—specifically "organizational skills" (Id. at 3)—the case was remanded to OAL due to the "record [being] devoid of fact-finding on the issue of whether petitioner has mastered the skills required for the [non-tenured secretarial] position." Id. at 4.

In the present case, respondent contends that "no such claim" is being made, i.e., as to entitlement to the non-tenured secretary's position based on the tenured secretary's possessing the requisite skills and necessary qualifications to bump the non-tenured secretary. (Resp't's Br. at 4.) Respondent characterizes petitioner's argument as instead reliant upon "tenure and right of recall." Ibid. However, petitioner, quoting Sheridan, specifically avers "[i]t has long been held that a tenured secretary is entitled to the non-tenured secretary's position 'if the tenured secretary possesses the skills and necessary qualifications to efficiently perform the duties of such secretarial position.'" (Resp't's Br. (quoting Sheridan, supra, 76 S.L.D. at 999)).

The case at-hand is therefore reminiscent of Salimbene and requires a finding of whether Biggiani's RIF'd position in fact mirrors the position sought. That is, if further fact-finding and comparison between the contested position's job duties and Biggiani's pre-RIF duties reveals Biggiani to be in possession of the "skills and necessary qualifications" to "efficiently perform" the duties of the secretarial position the District created post-RIF, and, if, Biggiani may be entitled to that position.

FINDING

In the instant matter, the attorneys for petitioner and for respondent submitted briefs that present a material issue as to whether Biggiani possesses the precise skills and necessary qualifications to efficiently perform the duties of the newly created secretarial position. In sum, further fact-finding is required to produce a fair and unbiased decision. The information provided between the parties is void of the information needed for a decision to be rendered in this matter via Motion for Summary Decision.

CONCLUSION

Having considered the submissions of both counsel and for reasons hereon expressed, I CONCLUDE that a Motion to decide this case via Summary Decision is not appropriate.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I hereby ORDER that respondent's Motion for Summary Decision be and is hereby DENIED.

It is further ORDERED that the de novo hearing of this matter will commence at 9 a.m. on Thursday January 24, 2013, and continue on Friday January 25, 2013, at the Administrative Law Court 33 Washington, Street, 7th Floor, Newark, New Jersey 07102.

This order may be reviewed by COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION either upon interlocutory review pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10 or at the end of the contested case, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6

STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS DKT. NO. 0910-102
AGENCY DKT NO. 4-5/12A

IN THE MATTER OF THE :
REVOCATION OF THE CERTIFICATES : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF JUDITH PITCHER BY THE : DECISION
STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS. :

Order of Revocation by the State Board of Examiners, April 2, 2012

For the Respondent-Appellant, Gail Oxfeld Kanef, Esq.

For the Petitioner-Respondent State Board of Examiners, Angela L. Valez, Deputy Attorney General (Paula T. Dow, Attorney General of New Jersey)

The Commissioner has thoroughly reviewed the record and the papers filed in connection with the appellant Judith Pitcher's appeal of the State Board of Examiners' April 2, 2012 Order revoking her Teacher of Nursery School and Elementary School certificates. On appeal, the appellant maintains that the Board's decision to revoke her certificates was based on facts that were not in the record. Specifically the appellant argues that the findings by the Board that she "humiliate[d] and frightened her young students in front of their peers," and that she had a "dismissive attitude regarding the harm she inflicted" were not supported by the record. The appellant further maintains that it was these findings that resulted in the Board's determination that the revocation of appellant's certificates was the appropriate penalty.

In reviewing appeals from decisions of the State Board of Examiners, the Commissioner may not substitute his judgment for that of the Board so long as the appellant received due process and the Board's decision is supported by sufficient credible evidence in the record. Further, the Board's decision should not be disturbed unless the appellant demonstrates that it was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1(a).

After full consideration of the record and all submissions, the Commissioner finds that the record adequately supports the Board's determination that the appellant engaged in unbecoming conduct, and that revocation of the appellant's certificates was the appropriate penalty. Contrary to the appellant's assertions on appeal, the credible evidence in the record supported the Board's findings that the appellant "humiliate[d] and frightened her young students in front of their peers," and had a "dismissive attitude regarding the harm she inflicted." The Initial Decision of the Administrative Law Judge contains several findings regarding the inappropriate conduct of the appellant that caused her kindergarten-age students to be frightened and humiliated, i.e. calling a student an idiot; directing other students to shout out the "idiot of the day;" angrily grabbing and brusquely moving students; yelling at the students; and bringing students to tears. It is also clear from the record that the appellant's unbecoming conduct was not an isolated incident, but rather a pattern of conduct that took place over a 13 year period from 1995 through 2008 – despite the fact that school administrators had warned the appellant about her inappropriate behavior. The Board's penalty determination in this case was not based on any one fact but rather the totality of the circumstances and, as a result, there is nothing in the record to suggest that the Board's decision was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Consequently, the Commissioner finds no basis upon which to disturb the decision of the State Board of Examiners.

Accordingly the decision of the State Board of Examiners is affirmed for the reasons expressed therein.*

IN THE MATTER OF : NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
THE CERTIFICATES OF : STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS
JUDITH PITCHER : ORDER OF REVOCATION
_____ : DOCKET NO: 0910-102

At its meeting of October 22, 2009, the State Board of Examiners (Board) reviewed information it had received from the Stillwater Township School District (Stillwater) regarding Judith Pitcher. Stillwater reported that Pitcher resigned from her teaching position after the district filed tenure charges alleging unbecoming conduct and other just cause in regard to her conduct toward students. The district alleged that Pitcher used demeaning language toward her kindergarten students including using the words "hate" and "idiot" and calling at least one child "stupid." She had also allegedly asked her class "who's our idiot of the day?" and had the students chant a child's name back to her. Pitcher also allegedly grabbed one student by the arm and swung him around in an arc so that his back struck a nearby school bus; had refused to allow students to use the bathroom; had thrown a book bag at a student and had refused to follow an administrative directive that she discontinue the use of harsh, demeaning or inappropriate words in the classroom. She also had repeatedly used improper and excessive physical force and had publicly identified students as being on a "good list" or a "bad list." Pitcher holds Teacher of Nursery School and Teacher of Elementary School certificates, both issued in August 1976. Upon review of the above information, at its January 7, 2010 meeting, the Board voted to issue an Order to Show Cause to Pitcher as to why her certificates should not be revoked.

The Board sent Pitcher the Order to Show Cause by regular and certified mail on January 13, 2010. The Order provided that Pitcher must file an Answer within 30 days. Pitcher responded on February 17, 2010. In her Answer, Pitcher emphatically denied the charges in the Order and stated that she had never engaged in any of the alleged conduct. (Answer, ¶ 2). Pitcher stated that she resigned from the district because she “was not interested in continuing to work for a district that would make such inaccurate accusations against me.” (Answer, ¶ 3). She added that, because the district offered to pay her close to a year’s salary in return for her resignation, she resigned for those reasons and “not because any of the allegations against me were true.” (Answer, ¶ 3).

Since there were material facts in dispute, on March 5, 2010, the Board transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case. Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Ellen Bass heard the matter on several days in April and June, 2011. The record closed on October 21, 2011 and the ALJ issued an Initial Decision on December 5, 2011. In the Matter of the Teaching Certificates of Judith Pitcher, Dkt. No. EDE 03376-10 (Initial Decision, December 5, 2011).

In that decision, ALJ Bass found that Pitcher was employed by Stillwater as a kindergarten and first grade teacher for twenty years. (Initial Decision, slip op. at 2). In 1995 Pitcher was observed by the Chief School Administrator, S. William Shelton, brusquely escorting a young child down the hallway, by holding his elbow up in the air, with his feet barely touching the ground. Id at 4. Shelton told Pitcher that he never wanted to see anything like that happen in the future. Ibid. ALJ Bass also found that Pitcher received a memo in 1995 from Shelton stating that other staff members had reported concerns regarding Pitcher’s disciplinary techniques, including speaking to students at the top of her voice and brusquely moving one child by the arm to the front of a line. Id at 4-5. In 2002, Pitcher’s principal, Anna Elizabeth Mommelaar, observed Pitcher escorting her students to the busses at the end of the day when Pitcher grabbed a student roughly and swung him toward the side of the bus. Id at 6. The ALJ found Mommelaar credible when recounting this event. Id. at 7. ALJ Bass also found that in 2006, a visiting teacher, Sue Pierson, overheard Pitcher refer angrily to a student in the class as an idiot. Id. at 9. A few moments later, Pierson heard Pitcher ask the class “who is our idiot of the day?” and heard the class chant a student’s name. Ibid. Pitcher then repeated the question and the student’s name was chanted again. Ibid. The ALJ also found that in the 2007-2008 school year Pitcher had angrily disciplined two young boys by holding them by the elbows with their arms above their heads and had, on another occasion, screamed so loudly at a kindergarten boy who could not put his coat on quickly enough that a teacher from across the hall came into her room to offer assistance. Id. at 11-13. The other teacher had to calm both the boy and a sixth-grade student aide, both of whom were in tears. Id. at 13.

After assessing the evidence, ALJ Bass concluded that the Board had proven that Pitcher engaged in unbecoming conduct. Id. at 15-16. The ALJ noted that Pitcher's "demeanor with the very young students in her charge, at times, lacked the restraint, controlled behavior, and compassion demanded of a public school teacher." Id. at 16. Most tellingly, ALJ Bass observed that "Pitcher taught her students that in school, if you do not move quickly enough, a teacher may roughly move you along; if you do not follow instructions quickly enough you might be yelled at; and if you do something incorrectly you might be publicly humiliated and called 'idiot'." Ibid. The ALJ acknowledged that Pitcher had a long, mostly successful career, and balanced that against the proven instances of unbecoming conduct. Id. at 16-17. ALJ Bass therefore concluded that "under the totality of the circumstances, the appropriate response to Pitcher's breach of her professional responsibilities is a two-year suspension of her teaching certificates. Id. at 17. Both parties submitted Exceptions in the case.

In her Exceptions, the Deputy Attorney General (DAG) representing the Board agreed with the ALJ's finding that Pitcher engaged in unbecoming conduct but argued that the penalty imposed was too lenient. (DAG Exceptions, p. 1). The DAG recounted the various incidents which demonstrated Pitcher's unbecoming conduct and stated that "revocation is the appropriate penalty in this instance because Pitcher's conduct was directed at students of a tender age and continued over the course of thirteen years despite repeated admonitions by school administrators." (DAG Exceptions, p. 4).

Conversely, in her Exceptions, Pitcher argued that while the ALJ found that she had “engaged in discrete acts of inappropriate treatment of students,” her long-standing career filled with excellent evaluations and accolades merited a much less severe penalty than a two-year suspension of her certificates. (Pitcher Exceptions, pp. 1-3). Pitcher noted that the district treated these incidents as isolated events because it never imposed progressive discipline and she never had her increment withheld. (Pitcher Exceptions, p. 2). Pitcher argued that her behavior was not egregious and that it did not violate corporal punishment rules. (Pitcher Exceptions, pp. 3-6). She therefore argued that a two-year suspension of her certificates was “simply excessive.” (Pitcher Exceptions, p. 6).

The Board must now determine whether to adopt, modify or reject the Initial Decision in this matter. At its meeting of January 19, 2012, the Board reviewed the Initial Decision and Exceptions from both parties. After full and fair consideration of the Decision and submissions, the Board voted to adopt the Initial Decision, with modification as to penalty.

As noted above, ALJ Bass concluded that Pitcher’s behavior constituted conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. (Initial Decision, slip op. at 15-16). The Board agrees. The Board disagrees with the ALJ, however, as to the consequences that Pitcher’s behavior merits. “Teachers ... are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of ... school children. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment.” Tenure of Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321. Pitcher has clearly engaged in conduct that negates her status as a role model for students and, even worse, has acted to undermine students’ trust in relying on their teachers to make them feel safe and respected.

The Board is also well aware of Pitcher’s long and mostly untarnished career. Yet, her actions in humiliating and frightening her young students in front of their peers cannot and should not be lightly dismissed. Thus, when weighing these counterbalancing considerations, the Board believes that a two-year suspension of Pitcher's certificates is too lenient a penalty. Unfitness to hold a position in a school system may be shown by one incident, if sufficiently flagrant. Redcay v. State Bd. of Educ., 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (1943), aff'd, 131 N.J.L. 326 (E & A 1944). In this case, there were repeated instances of excessive behavior that concerned the other adults around her. Moreover, Pitcher's argument that her discipline should be light because her conduct did not rise to the level of corporal punishment, speaks volumes about her dismissive attitude regarding the harm she has inflicted. It also reinforces the Board's belief that the only appropriate response to Pitcher's breach is revocation.

Accordingly, on January 19, 2012, the Board voted to adopt, with modification, the Initial Decision and ordered to revoke Pitcher's teaching certificates. On this 2nd day of April 2012, the Board of Examiners formally adopted its written decision to adopt, with modification, the Initial Decision in this matter, and it is therefore ORDERED that Judith Pitcher's Teacher of Nursery School and Teacher of Elementary School certificates be hereby revoked effective immediately. It is further ORDERED that Pitcher return her certificates to the Secretary of the State Board of Examiners, Office of Licensure, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625-0500 within 30 days of the mailing date of this decision.

Petitioner – who contends that she had been employed by the respondent Board as a vice principal or principal for four years prior to a reduction –in-force (RIF) at the end of the 2009-2010 school year – filed a petition asserting that she had attained tenure in the position of vice principal. Petitioner claimed that the vice principals who lost their positions due to the RIF in June 2010 were reinstated in March 2011, but petitioner was not offered a vice principal position and remains a class room teacher. The Board contended that petitioner never achieved tenure as a vice principal.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there is no dispute that by September 2009, the petitioner had successfully completed all of the requirements for a Standard Certificate – Principal, which would entitle her to that certificate; petitioner did not, however, file her required paperwork to complete the certification process in September 2009; the New Jersey Department of Education (Department) did not issue petitioner’s Standard Certificate – Principal until August 2010, at which time the certificate was made retroactive to September 2009; the Department’s action to make petitioner’s certificate retroactive to September 2009 was ultra vires, as there is no statutory or regulatory authority governing the retroactive issuance of certificates; therefore, petitioner failed to earn time toward tenure as a vice principal during the 2009-2010 school year because she did not hold the Standard Certificate - Principal until it was issued in August 2010. The ALJ concluded that petitioner never achieved tenure as a vice principal or principal; accordingly, the Board’s decision in June 2010 to return the petitioner to her original teaching position – in which she is tenured – was appropriate. The ALJ dismissed the petition.

Upon comprehensive review, the Commissioner rejected the Initial Decision of the OAL, finding, inter alia, that the ALJ acted beyond the scope of his jurisdiction in finding the Department’s action ultra vires. In so determining, the Commissioner noted that the Department was not a party to this action and that the actual issue in dispute – whether the petitioner is tenured as a vice principal – was not properly adjudicated because the matter erroneously morphed into a case about the Department’s certification process. Accordingly, the matter was remanded to the OAL for a determination of the petitioner’s tenure and seniority rights based upon the fact that she received a valid Standard Certificate – Principal on August 22, 2010, which bears an effective date of September 2009.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner’s decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The Board did not take exception to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) Initial Decision, but instead urged the Commissioner to issue a final decision that included an order revising the petitioner's Standard Certificate – Principal to have an effective date of August 2010.

The petitioner filed exceptions arguing that the Initial Decision should not be adopted because the ALJ made several errors in law and fact, and exceeded the scope of his authority and the jurisdiction of the OAL. Specifically, the petitioner maintains that the ALJ's conclusion that the Department of Education's (Department) practice of backdating certifications in limited circumstances is an ultra vires act. The petitioner points out that the dispute as to whether the petitioner had obtained tenure was limited to a dispute between the petitioner and the Board, and that the Department was not even a party to the contested case. As a result, the petitioner argues that the ALJ exceeded his authority when he determined that the Department's backdating of the petitioner's certification was ultra vires. The petitioner also contends that the ALJ's decision to adjudicate the credibility of the petitioner regarding whether she filed her application with the appropriate fee was beyond the scope of the contested case. Petitioner stresses that her credibility was not at issue because the Department had deemed that she was entitled to a certificate effective September 2009.

Additionally, the petitioner takes exception to the ALJ's determination that the Department's practice of backdating certifications is in violation of the rulemaking requirements contained in Metromedia, Inc. v. Director, Division of Taxation, 97 N.J. 313, 331-332 (1984). The petitioner also contends that the ALJ's Initial Decision exalts form over substance, noting that the ALJ found that the petitioner "was eligible to receive her Standard Certificate – Principal in September 2009 as, by then, she had met all of the necessary requirements." The petitioner stresses that the Board employed petitioner as a principal until June 2010 despite the fact that her provisional certificate expired in September 2009.

Further, the petitioner contends that the ALJ made findings of fact without the presentation of evidence, i.e. that a reduction-in-force occurred in June 2010 and that it was the reduction-in-force that led to the petitioner's removal as a principal. The petitioner also points out that the alleged reduction-in-force was for vice principals, not principals. Finally notwithstanding the backdating issue, the petitioner contends that the ALJ incorrectly ignored the fact that the Board violated New Jersey law and the contract that the petitioner and the Board entered into in May 2010.

Upon a comprehensive review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner finds that the ALJ acted beyond the scope of his jurisdiction when he found that the Department's action to issue the petitioner's Standard Certificate-Principal retroactive to September 2009 was ultra vires. The Commissioner further finds that the ALJ's determination that the Department's process of backdating certifications is in violation of Metromedia, supra, is also beyond the scope of his jurisdiction.

It is important to recognize that the Department was not a party to this action and that the underlying issue in this case was limited to a determination as to whether the petitioner obtained tenure as a vice principal. Certainly, a decision deeming a Department process to be ultra vires – which would invariably affect other certifications and the certification process as a whole – should not be addressed as a collateral issue in a case where the Department was not even afforded an opportunity to participate in the litigation. If the Board believes that the action of the Department in issuing the petitioner's certification was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, the Board would be required to institute an action against the Department challenging the validity of its decision.

With respect to the rulemaking issue: in the course of this matter, the ALJ concluded that the Department violated Metromedia, supra, when it failed to promulgate a rule that governs the circumstances under which certificates may be backdated and the procedure to do so. It is, however, well settled that the action or inaction of an administrative agency is a challenge which belongs in the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, pursuant to R. 2:2-3(a)(2). See N.J. Civil Service Ass'n v. State, 88 N.J. 605, 612 (1982). It is without question that the alleged failure to promulgate a rule constitutes agency inaction. Therefore, the OAL is not the proper forum to determine whether the Department must issue a rule that provides guidelines for the backdating of certifications pursuant to Metromedia, supra.

The limited issue in this case is whether the petitioner obtained tenure as a vice principal. Yet the testimony at the April 30, 2012 hearing focused on the Department's procedures for processing applications and issuing certifications, and the petitioner's assertions with respect to her application. In the absence of an actual ruling that the certification issued by the Department was invalid, the issues emphasized at the hearing were beyond the scope and authority of the OAL. In light of the fact that this matter erroneously morphed into a case about the Department's certification process, the actual issue in dispute was not properly adjudicated. It is undisputed that the petitioner received her Standard Certificate – Principal on August 11, 2010, and that the certificate was effective September 2009. As such, the certificate is valid on its face, and it is in the context of these facts that the petitioner's tenure and seniority rights must be evaluated.

Accordingly the Initial Decision is rejected; this matter is remanded to the OAL for a determination of the petitioner's tenure and seniority rights in the District based upon the fact that she received a valid Standard Certificate – Principal on August 11, 2010 with a September 2009 effective date.²

CHRISTINA SILVEIRA FRANCISCO,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF ELIZABETH, UNION COUNTY,

Respondent.

Lawrence N. Lavigne, Esq., for petitioner

Karen A. Murray, Esq., and Marvin Lehman, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: June 19, 2012

Decided: July 31, 2012

BEFORE JESSE H. STRAUSS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Christina Silveira Francisco (Francisco) challenges the determination of the Elizabeth Board of Education (Board) that she did not have tenure as a Vice Principal. She contends that she held the position of Vice Principal for more than two consecutive calendar years and should be tenured in that position pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-6. At issue is whether Francisco held an appropriate certificate for a sufficient period to have afforded her tenure, and, if so, whether the District's return of her to a teaching position as a result of a reduction in force was improper.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner filed her petition with the Commissioner of Education on July 14, 2011. After the Board filed an Answer on August 2, 2011, the Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes of the New Jersey Department of Education (Department) transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, on August 4, 2011, for determination as a contested case. On March 16, 2012, I denied Francisco's Motion for Summary Decision. I conducted a hearing on April 30, 2012, and closed the record on June 19, 2012, upon the receipt of briefs from each party.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

I FIND the following uncontested FACTS of this case:

1. Francisco was appointed to a position of Seventh Grade Teacher at Alexander Hamilton School on September 1, 2001, and received an Elementary School Teacher Standard Certificate on June 20, 2002.
2. She received a Standard Certificate for Teacher of English on June 29, 2004, when she first applied, and it was backdated to June 29, 2002.
3. On September 1, 2004, she was appointed to the position of Teacher-Instructional Coach-Alexander Hamilton School.
4. On February 8, 2006, she received a Certificate of Eligibility-Principal.
5. On September 1, 2006, she was appointed to the position of Interim Vice Principal-Alexander Hamilton School.
6. On December 15, 2006, she was appointed to the position of Vice Principal-Alexander Hamilton School.
7. On July 1, 2007, she was appointed to the position of Vice Principal-Alexander Hamilton School.
8. On September 10, 2007, she was appointed Assistant House Director-EHS-Jefferson.

9. On January 9, 2008, she received a Provisional Certificate-Principal backdated to an effective date of November 2007.
10. On July 1, 2008, she was appointed to the position of Assistant House Director-EHS-Jefferson.
11. On June 16, 2009, she was appointed to the position of Interim House Director-EHS-Jefferson.
12. On July 2, 2009, her Provisional Certificate-Principal expired.
13. On July 1, 2009, she was appointed to the position of Principal-EHS-Jefferson.
14. By the end of the 2009-2010 school year, Francisco had performed as a Vice Principal or Principal for four years.
15. On August 11, 2010, the Department issued to Francisco a Standard Certificate-Principal backdated to September 2009.

Additional Evidence:

While Francisco held the Provisional Certificate-Principal, she worked with a mentor and had paperwork filled out by the Superintendent of Schools. In 2010, while Francisco held the position of Interim Principal, she learned that a reduction in force would be occurring. In March 2010, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, Aida Garcia, recommended that Francisco be reappointed as Principal. Toward the end of the 2009-2010 school year, the Board offered Francisco a contract for the position of Principal. She testified that she signed and returned it. However, Superintendent of Schools, Pablo Munoz, thereafter notified her that, due to a reduction in force, all the positions of vice principal were being abolished, and she was being returned to the classroom, which was her last tenured position. She had believed that she was a tenured Vice Principal.

Prior to the discussion with Munoz, Assistant Superintendent Olga Hueglemeyer had informed Francisco in May or June that the Board did not have a copy of her Standard Certificate-Principal and needed to know the status of it.

Francisco testified that she contacted the Department and spoke with Director of the Office of Certification and Induction, Robert Higgins. According to her, he told her not to worry and that she was good for September 2009, and she was in good standing, but that the Department had not received her application or $200 check in the mail. When she told him she had sent the check and application in September 2009, he instructed her to send another copy of the application with a check. Higgins sent her an application form which she filled out and returned on June 26, 2010. The State Board of Examiners thereafter issued a Standard Certificate-Principal on August 11, 2010, with a retroactive issuance date of September 2009. After her discussion with Higgins, she contacted Hueglemeyer and explained that she did not have the paper certificate to give to her because the Department had not sent it to her due to the failure to get Francisco's original check.

Francisco did not retain a copy of the earlier application she allegedly filed in September 2009, because she did not feel that it was necessary. She recalled sending it in September because she had completed her New Jersey Leaders to Leaders program and signed all the paperwork with her mentor by July 2009 when her Provisional Certification expired. She did not recall notifying anyone at the Board that her Provisional Certification had expired; that she had completed her program for Standard Certification; or that she was awaiting her Standard Certification. She also did not retain a copy of the money order or certified check she allegedly sent in with her application in September 2009. She never made an attempt to obtain verification that she had either a money order or a certified check from a bank in September 2009. She could not recall how she paid for the money order or certified check or whether she used a debit or credit card to obtain the money order or certified check. Until the discussion with Hueglemeyer near the end of the school year, Francisco never made any follow-up inquiries to the Department as to the status of her September 2009 application. She was already on the job as a Principal, so it did not occur to her that she had not received an actual certificate in the mail.

Department of Education Director of the Office of Certification and Induction, Dr. Robert Higgins, testified. He oversees the process of reviewing applications for certification submitted to the State Board of Examiners, which number between 50,000 and 55,000 per year. There are no regulations, written guidelines, memos or website postings with regard to backdating a certificate to the date on which someone applied for the certification. He reviewed the Department's system log which is accessible only by his office and the various county boards of education, but not by school districts. The log shows when an application is received. The log indicates that, on July 15, 2010, the Department received Francisco's application dated June 26, 2010, and $200 payment for a Standard Certification-Principal. (P-20.) The Department affixed a tracking number for Francisco of 342855. The records indicate that now retired Department Coordinator Ray Levy reviewed the application on July 22, 2010. The processed application has a handwritten notation from Levy "Issued September 2009." Levy was the coordinator for the issuance of provisional and standard certificates for principals and other administrators. Higgins testified that Francisco's certification did not actually issue in September 2009 but was subsequently issued in July or August 2010 to be effective September 2009. No certification issued in September 2009.

Higgins did not recall a telephone conversation with Francisco in May or June 2010, but could have had one.

The Department does not issue a certificate without the $200 payment being made. If the Department receives an incomplete application or there is no payment, it either sends the application back, calls the applicant or sends a new blank form. Typically, the Department makes a notation of such an event in either a paper file or a system file. In April 2009, the Department received Mentor Richard O'Malley's Formative Assessment Report for Francisco from the New Jersey Leaders to Leaders program with a letter directed to Levy. (P-23.) Levy then wrote a September 2009 letter to Kristina Covington of the Office of Licensing and Credentials informing her that Francisco had successfully completed the training requirements of licensure for the Standard Licensure: Principal. It also stated, "[u]pon receipt of an application for licensure and fee (certified check or money order) payable to the Commissioner of Education, could you please issue a standard license to the candidate. The candidate has been advised to forward application and fee to the attention of Raymond Levy, Coordinator, Administrator Training." It also indicated that a copy of the letter was sent to Christina Silveira (Francisco). (P-23.) Upon receipt of such documentation that one has met the requirements for a certification, the Department typically thereafter sends an application package to someone such as Francisco. The Department log indicates that, on September 24, 2009, it sent Francisco a packet containing instructions, fees billed and a standard certificate request. (P-23, Bate 00047.) An additional document entitled "Principal Candidate File Review" has checkmarks with a September 24, 2009, date under the headings "Fees Billed" and "Request for Standard Certification." (P-23, Bate 00050.) No certificate issues until the application is filed with the fee payment even if the mentoring and all other requirements have been completed. According to Higgins, if the requirements for a certification are met, and the application and fees have been submitted, the certification is backdated to the date the application is sent to the individual considering that it might take the Department a few months to process the matter.

Higgins testified that, generally, the rule is to date a certificate to the month in which the application has been completed. It is the applicant's responsibility to pursue her application and make inquiries. He also testified, however, that Levy, albeit rarely, exercised discretion to accept someone's compelling claim such as that she did not receive the application for reasons beyond her control; that the application must have been lost; that there was a mailing problem, or that she sent it back despite the Department not having received it. In such a situation, Levy would make an exception and backdate the certification to the date when eligibility was attained rather than when the paperwork is filed. Levy never communicated with Higgins as to why he was backdating Francisco's certification to the date when the original packet was sent to her in September 2009. There was no claim of an improper address. Higgins testified that Levy either inherited or adopted the practice of backdating certifications regardless of when the paperwork is filed. According to Higgins, there are no guidelines, memorialized internally or made available to boards, explaining when exceptions to the certification date would be made or how far back the Department would go to backdate a certificate. Instead, boards and applicants have access to an on-line "Application Status Check." This on-line source accessed by the Board indicates for Francisco that her Standard Certificate-Principal issued on August 11, 2010. (P-15, Ex. 5.) There is no notification process to applicants to make inquiries of the Department if they hear nothing from the Department within a specified time.

Although Francisco contends that she timely sent her application and $200 payment to the Department in September 2009, I cannot credit her testimony in this regard. It is not likely that she sent the paperwork in September and that it was either lost in the mail or lost within the Department. A credibility determination requires an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency and the manner in which it "hangs together" with the other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F.2d 718, 749 (9th Cir. 1963). Francisco's testimony does not pass this test. It is implausible that she, particularly as a trained professional, would not have retained a copy of her application in 2009 if for no other reason than to support a claim that it was filed but lost in the event that such were to occur. It is equally implausible that she would not have retained a copy or receipt of a certified check or money order for a $200 payment. If it were paid by certified check, the bank would have a retrievable record or Francisco would have learned that her account was out of balance. If she had purchased a money order from a bank, the bank would most likely have had a record of this. Francisco did not attempt to retrieve such information in light of this dispute. Most importantly, eight or nine months elapsed from September 2009, and Francisco made no inquiry of the Department of the status of her supposed application when her status as a Principal importantly and vitally depended on the receipt of an appropriate certificate. Indeed, she made no inquiry until Hueglemeyer questioned her about the certificate. It is irrelevant whether Francisco negligently or intentionally ignored her obligation to file the application and pay the fee to consummate the issuance of the Standard Certification-Principal in September 2009.

I make the following additional FINDINGS of FACT. There is no dispute that Francisco had successfully completed all of the requirements for a Standard Certificate-Principal to entitle her to that certificate by September 2009. It is also clear that the Department, upon learning that she had satisfied the prerequisites, provided Francisco with notice of its position and a packet of instructions and an application on or about September 24, 2009. However, Francisco did not file her required paperwork in September 2009 to complete the certification process at that time. The Department did not issue her Standard Certificate-Principal until August 2010, and, at that time, made it retroactive to September 2009.

When the Board received no Standard Certificate-Principal or Provisional Certificate-Principal from Francisco in June 2010, it transferred her on June 24, 2010, effective September 1, 2010, to her last certificated position as a teacher.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

I CONCLUDE that the Department's action to make Francisco's Standard Certificate-Principal in August 2010 retroactive to September 2009 was ultra vires. The certification process for teaching staff is highly regulated—and with good reason.¹ It is important to insure that school districts employ only qualified personnel to improve the quality of education to New Jersey students. The rules also protect the tenure and seniority rights of teaching staff personnel, insure consistency, and alert both teaching staff and boards of their rights and responsibilities in navigating this process. To this end, the Department has established a rigorous system of licensure. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-1.2. The Board of Examiners is charged with issuing appropriate certificates. All actions taken by the Board of Examiners shall be taken pursuant to adopted rules. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-4.2 (a). In exercising its statutory and regulatory authority, the Board of Examiners and staff assigned to it may issue certificates that qualify individuals to seek employment as teaching staff members; recommend and develop procedures that govern the certification of teaching staff members; maintain and report data on the supply and quality of newly certified teaching staff members; and assist district boards of education in the employment of teaching staff members. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-4.2 (c). Chapter 9, Subchapter 5 is entitled "General Certification Policies" and includes a regulation regarding the fees that must accompany an application for certification. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.4.

The Board of Examiners shall issue the appropriate certificate upon the candidate's completion of all certification requirements. The candidate shall be subject to all requirements in effect at the time the application is received in the Office. Requirements include, but are not limited to, coursework, degree, tests, fees, GPA and all certificate rules pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-8, 11, 12, and 13.

¹ The Department has established rules governing the preparation, licensure and professional development of those educators required by their positions to be certified. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-1.1.

Applications shall be deemed filed with the Office when the application and all required supporting documentation has been received. The teacher shall maintain possession of the original certificate.

[N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.16] [emphasis added].

There is no reference to the circumstances by which a certificate may be granted retroactively to a date before the submission of an application and fee.

In this matter there is no dispute that, in June 2010 when the Board returned Francisco to her teaching position, the Department had not yet acted to grant Francisco a Standard Certificate-Principal. There is also no dispute that the Department, through Levy, granted this certificate on August 11, 2010, and made it retroactive to September 2009, a time when Francisco had met all of the qualifications for such certification (but, as found above, had not filed her application or paid her fee). According to Higgins, Levy, during his service in the Department's Office of Certification and Induction, occasionally made retroactive certifications. Higgins concedes that, in doing so, Levy acted without express statutory or regulatory authority. He followed no guidelines, no standards, no precedence and no established exceptions as to when to designate a date of certification for teaching staff members. He exercised unfettered discretion as to when and how far back to backdate a certification. Although Higgins supervised Levy, there was no requirement to notify or obtain authorization from Higgins.

Once qualifications for a certification have been obtained and an application for certification has been submitted to the Department, certainly a reasonable period of time is expected for the Department to review and process the application.² Here, though, Levy backdated the Certification by approximately ten months obviously for reasons other than the normal internal application processing time. There is nothing in the record as to why Levy backdated the certificate. Without an authorization to backdate an application for good cause, Levy's action was ultra vires. Francisco notified the Department of an issue with her certification nine months after she qualified for the certification, claiming that an earlier application had been filed and must have been lost. Would Levy have been authorized to exercise his discretion to backdate the certification if the gap had been one year or three years?

An administrative rule under the Administrative Procedure Act means an agency statement that describes the organization, procedure or practice of an agency. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2 (e). Each agency shall adopt rules of practice setting forth the nature and requirements of all formal and informal procedures available. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-3 (2).

- a. A State agency shall follow the administrative rule-making requirements set forth in the "Administrative Procedure Act," P.L.1968, c.410 (C.52:14B-1 et seq.), and shall only implement rules that have been adopted in accordance with those rule-making requirements.
- b. No State agency shall utilize regulatory guidance documents that have not been adopted as rules in accordance with P.L.1968, c.410 unless the agency makes such documents readily available to the regulated community through appropriate means, including but not limited to posting in a prominent place on the website for the agency. [N.J.S.A. 52:14B-3a.]

Levy's actions should have been, but were not, the product of the Department's rulemaking responsibility under the Administrative Procedure Act as required by Metromedia, Inc. v. Director, Div. of Taxation, 97 N.J. 313 (2001).

Not every circumstance, concept and idea falling within the jurisdiction of an agency must be addressed by rulemaking. As explained In re Certain Sections of the Unif. Admin. Procedure Rules, 90 N.J. 85, 92 (1982) quoting Securities and Exchange Comm'n v. Chenery Corp., 332 U.S. 201, 202, 67 S.Ct. 1575, 1580, 91 L.Ed. 1995, 2002 (1947),

The function of filling in the interstices of [an enabling act] should be performed, as much as possible, through th[e] quasi-legislative promulgation of rules to be applied in the future. But any rigid requirement to that effect would make the administrative process inflexible and incapable of dealing with many of the specialized problems which arise. * * * Not every principle essential to the effective administration of a statute can or should be cast immediately into the mold of a general rule. Some principles must await their own development, while others must be adjusted to meet particular, unforeseeable situations. In performing its important functions in these respects, therefore, an administrative agency must be equipped to act either by general rule or by individual order

Metromedia instructs that an agency determination should be implemented by regulation, as opposed to de facto rulemaking when it

(1) is intended to have wide coverage encompassing a large segment of the regulated or general public, rather than an individual or a narrow select group; (2) is intended to be applied generally and uniformly to all similarly situated persons; (3) is designed to operate only in future cases, that is, prospectively; (4) prescribes a legal standard or directive that is not otherwise expressly provided by or clearly and obviously inferable from the enabling statutory authorization; (5) reflects an administrative policy that (i) was not previously expressed in any official and explicit agency determination, adjudication or rule, or (ii) constitutes a material and significant change from a clear, past agency position on the identical subject matter; and (6) reflects a decision on administrative regulatory policy in the nature of the interpretation of law or general policy.
[97 N.J. at 331-32.]

Higgins testified that the Department processes between 50,000 and 55,000 certification applications a year. The process of backdating certificates could affect this large community.

One would contemplate that reasons for backdating a certification would be applied generally and uniformly to all similarly situated persons. The problem here is that there is nothing to test whether Levy's use of this procedure was uniform. There may be legitimate reasons for backdating where there is good cause to find that an application or fee was transmitted but lost, where a mentor failed to send the required materials in a timely fashion, or where an applicant made a timely inquiry as to her status. Such a published rule would alert an applicant of her responsibility to follow through as well as to alert other certificated teaching staff as well as boards of education that their expectations regarding the exercise of seniority in the event of a reduction-in-force or the status of tenure may be different than what appears on the Department's website.

Higgins did not indicate that the backdating practice was not intended to operate in the future. One would expect that it would operate in the future under published good-cause guidelines contemplating the potential snags mentioned above that are through no fault of the applicant.

The consideration of faultless delays should use a standard which is not clearly and obviously inferable from the enabling statutory authorization. The applicable statutes do not speak of faultless delays in the certification process.

The practice in question appears to reflect an administrative policy applied for a number of years, which undisputedly was not previously expressed in any official and explicit agency determination, adjudication or rule.

Finally, although not set forth anywhere, the practice seems to reflect a decision on administrative regulatory policy in the nature of the interpretation of law or general policy. N.J.A.C. 6:9-5.16 provides that the Board of Examiners shall issue a certificate when the candidate has completed all of the certification requirements, which includes the submission of an applicable fee. Applications are deemed filed when the application and all supporting documentation has been received. If there are good-cause exceptions for delays through no fault of the candidate, a rule should advise the public that the timeline of N.J.A.C. 6:9-5.16 will not always be followed.

In sum, Levy's decision to backdate Francisco's Standard Certificate-Principal lacked statutory or regulatory authority. Although not every principle essential to the effective administration of a statute can or should be cast immediately into the mold of a general rule, the circumstances here warrant a different conclusion. The backdating affects, not only the status of the certificate candidate. It also affects the status of colleagues potentially impacted by a reduction-in-force. It affects the ability of a board of education to implement an orderly reduction-in-force based on its best good-faith determinations of employee status from the resources available from the Department.

Again, Levy never articulated a reason for backdating Francisco's certificate. If his decision was based on acceptance that an earlier application and fee was filed but had been lost through no fault of Francisco, that basis was factually wrong as found above. If his decision was based on the fact that Francisco had qualified for the Standard Certificate-Principal in September 2009 and it did not matter whether she filed an application and fee at that time, such a position is contrary to the statutory and regulatory roadmap set forth above for perfecting the application process by meeting all requirements including the filing of a fee. See, N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.16. In such case Levy's and the Department's action was improper regardless of whether it was ultra vires.

"... where primary responsibility for acquisition of certification rests with the teacher and the controlling regulations are clear on their face, the law makes no provision for retroactive accreditation even in the absence of fault or deliberate delay on the part of the teacher." Morano v. Board of Educ. of Verona, 1990 S.L.D. 1192, 1201-1202 (A.L.J.D. June 27, 1990, aff'd, Commissioner, August 10, 1990).

The Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 et. seq., specifically defines the conditions under which teachers achieve tenure protection. Spiewak v. Board of Educ. of Rutherford, 90 N.J. 63, 72 (1982). More specifically, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 provides:

The services of all teaching staff members ... which require them to hold appropriate certificates issued by the board of examiners, serving in any school district ..., excepting those who are not the holders of proper certificates in full force and effect ... shall be under tenure during good behavior and efficiency ... after employment in such district or by such board for:

- (a) Three consecutive calendar years, or any shorter period which may be fixed by the employing board for such purpose; or
- (b) Three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or

- (c) The equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years. ...

In other words, Francisco is entitled to tenure only if (1) she worked in a position for which a teaching certificate is required (conceded by the parties); (2) she held the appropriate certificate; and (3) she served the requisite period of time. See, Spiewak v. Board of Educ. of Rutherford, supra, 90 N.J. at 74. "In order to acquire the status of a permanent teacher under a tenure law and with it the consequent security of permanent employment, a teacher must comply with the precise conditions articulated in the statute." Zimmerman v. Newark Board of Education, 38 N.J. 65, 72 (1962), cert. den. 371 U.S. 956 (1963). No teaching staff member shall acquire tenure in any position in the public schools who is not the holder of an appropriate certificate for such position issued by the State Board of Examiners, in full force and effect. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-4.

N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 defines "teaching staff member" as:

... a member of the professional staff of any district ... holding ... position ... of such character that the qualifications, for such ... position, require him to hold a valid and effective standard, provisional or emergency certificate, appropriate to his ... position, ... issued by the State Board of Examiners ... [emphasis added].

A standard certificate is a "permanent certificate issued to candidates who have met all requirements for State certification." N.J.A.C. 6A:9-6.1. A provisional certificate is "a two-year certificate issued to candidates who have met requirements for initial employment as part of a State-approved school district training program or residency leading to standard certification." N.J.A.C. 6A:9-6.2.

It is of no consequence that the District may have improperly carried Francisco in the position of Principal from September 2009 (after her provisional certificate had expired) until June 2010, despite the absence of a proper certificate due either to its or Francisco's mistake. Simply, she did not possess a type of certificate during this period which could be recognized for tenure purposes. Service performed under an inappropriate certificate or no certificate cannot be credited toward seniority regardless of fault for the defect. See, McAneny v. Bd. of Educ. of the School District of the Chathams, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 208 (1991); Jennings v. Highland Park Bd. of Educ., 1989 S.L.D. 1097 (St. Bd. February 28, 1989). Instead, the focus is on objective statutory criteria rather than the subjective intent of the parties. Spiewak v. Board of Educ. of Rutherford, supra, 90 N.J. at 77. There can be no recognition of tenure based merely upon "eligibility" for endorsement rather than the actual existence of an endorsement. To do so would erode the authority of the regulatory system, result in uncertainty and confusion, and deny the endorsed and authorized teachers their rights afforded by the statutory and regulatory system. See, Morano v. Board of Educ. of the Borough of Verona, supra.

Unquestionably, Francisco was eligible to receive her Standard Certificate-Principal in September 2009 as, by then, she had met all of the necessary requirements. Based on the findings above, however, the delay in perfecting her certification was her own failure to file the requisite application and pay the requisite fee in a timely manner and not some breakdown in the process by the Department. "Ultimately the 'primary responsibility' for obtaining appropriate certification belongs to the teacher. While local school officials share some responsibility for checking that teaching staff members in the district are properly certified, it is the individual's obligation to obtain any necessary certificates". McAneny, supra. (citations omitted.) For this reason Francisco's reliance on Ruiz v. Fort Lee Bd. of Educ. EDU 8187-10, Initial Decision (May 19, 2007), remanded, Comm'r (August 17, 2011), EDU 9871-11, Initial Decision on Remand, adopted, Comm'r (March 26, 2012) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>, is misplaced. The Commissioner rejected Ruiz's claim that he was unable to earn a standard certification through no fault of his own and that he should not be penalized for ministerial errors by his board and the Department. Here a finding has been made that Francisco was at fault for the failure to complete the certification process in a timelier manner.

Simply, Francisco did not hold the Standard Certificate-Principal at the time the Board initiated its reduction-in-force process in 2010 leading to Francisco's removal from the position of Principal. Information to which the Board would have had access at that time would not have shown that she held the certificate. In order to protect the tenure and seniority rights and interests of all employees potentially affected by a reduction-in-force, a Board has a right and obligation to ascertain a snapshot of the status of all such employees at the time it embarks on a reduction-in-force process that affects multiple employees.

Absent a Standard Certificate-Principal during the 2009-2010 school year, Francisco did not earn time toward her tenure during that period. As indicated above, N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1 defines a teaching staff member as a person holding a valid and effective standard, provisional or emergency certificate. She held none of those certificates for Principal during that period. As a Certificate of Eligibility does not fall within this definition, Francisco's time as an Interim Vice Principal between September 1, 2006, and December 15, 2006, and then a Vice Principal between December 15, 2006 and November 2007, cannot be used for tenure purposes. Her time between November 2007 and July 2, 2009, during which Francisco held a Provisional Certificate-Principal, can be used for tenure purposes as she then met the definition of a teaching staff member. During the time between the expiration of the Provisional Certificate-Principal in July 2009 and the perfecting of the Standard Certificate-Principal in August 2010, she held no certificate within the definition of a teaching staff member upon which tenure can be calculated. Francisco's reliance on Smith v. Bd. of Ed. of Atl. Cty. Vo-Tech. Sch., 1985 S.L.D. 704, 717 and K'Burg v. Bd. of Ed. of Lower Alloways Creek, 1973 S.L.D. 636 is inapposite because Smith and K'Burg held emergency certificates which fall within the definition and were properly countable for the purpose of attaining tenure in conjunction with meeting all the qualifications for a Standard Certificate. Such was not the case with Francisco. Her time under the Provisional Certificate-Principal was insufficient to earn tenure. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that Francisco never achieved tenure as a Vice Principal and/or Principal prior to the Board's return of her to her original teaching position.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that Francisco's Petition be DISMISSED.

RESPONDENTS.	:

The instant motion by the respondent Board of Education of Asbury Park (Asbury Park) is for a stay of the August 30, 2012 commissioner decision granting emergent relief to several residents of Interlaken – a non-operating school district – who applied for an order allowing their eight children to attend school in West Long Branch along with other domiciliaries of Interlaken.

The right, vel non, of Interlaken students to attend school in West Long Branch (or Shore Regional High School, depending on the age of the student) rather than in Asbury Park is the subject of a prior petition and emergent application, i.e., Board of Education of the Borough of Interlaken, Monmouth County v. Board of Education of the City of Asbury Park, Monmouth County, Agency Dkt. No. 109-4/12; OAL Dkt. No. EDU 5340-12 (Interlaken I). In that case the Interlaken Board of Education (Interlaken) asked the Commissioner to resolve, on an emergent basis, a dispute between Asbury Park and Interlaken over the existence vel non of a send-receive relationship between the two districts, and requested that – pending a decision on the merits – the Interlaken students be allowed to attend school in West Long Branch and/or Shore Regional High School.

The Commissioner ordered that the Interlaken students “stay put” in the West Long Branch or Shore Regional schools pending adjudication of the merits and sent the case back to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a plenary hearing. Board of Education of the Borough of Interlaken, Monmouth County v. Board of Education of the City of Asbury Park, Monmouth County, Commissioner Decision No. 238-12E dated June 14, 2012. Interlaken I is still pending.

The petitioners herein are domiciled in Interlaken but have previously sent their children to private schools because of concerns that the Asbury Park schools are lacking. When they learned that Interlaken students would be permitted to attend school in West Long Branch, they unsuccessfully tried to enroll their children with the Interlaken Board of Education. They instituted Interlaken II, urging that the emergent relief issued in Interlaken I should also apply to their children.

In recommending that the relief requested by the Interlaken II petitioners be granted, the Administrative Law Judge opined that the applicable standards set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) and Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) were satisfied by the circumstances of the case, and correctly pointed out that a significant issue regarding equal access to public education would be created if the Interlaken II petitioners' children were not allowed the same public education enjoyed by other Interlaken domiciliaries. Interlaken II Initial Decision (August 27, 2012) at 4-5. The Assistant Commissioner, to whom the matter had been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34, concurred. Interlaken II Commissioner Decision No. 361-12E, decided August 30, 2012.

Asbury Park now moves for a stay of the Interlaken II decision while it appeals same to the Superior Court, Appellate Division. As Asbury Park acknowledges, the bases for stays are the same as the standards for emergent relief.¹ Significantly, the Assistant Commissioner charged with responsibility for making a decision already determined – in his August 30, 2012 award of emergent relief to petitioners – that a Crowe v. DeGioia analysis of the available facts mitigates in their favor. Asbury Park's application for a stay is consequently tantamount to a request for reconsideration of the August 30, 2012 decision.

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)(2) requires that a party, when asking the Commissioner to reconsider a decision, must make a showing of at least one of the following four conditions:

- i. Claim(s) of mistake, provided, however, that disagreement with the outcome of a decision, or with the analysis upon which it is based, shall not constitute "mistake" for the purposes of this section;

¹ A motion for a stay or emergent relief shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the following standards to be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982):

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
3. The petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b)

- ii. Newly discovered evidence likely to alter the outcome of a matter, where such evidence could not have been previously discovered by due diligence;
- iii. Newly ascertained misrepresentation or other misconduct of an adverse party, where such misrepresentation or misconduct could not have been previously known; or
- iv. Reversal of a prior judgment on which the present matter is based.

Asbury Park invokes N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.15(b)(2)(iv), contending that a stay must be granted because the Commissioner's decisions of June 14, 2012 and August 30, 2012 are inconsistent with each other. (Asbury Park's letter brief at 2) The Assistant Commissioner – to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34 – disagrees.

It is well-established that judgments or orders normally do not bind non-parties. North Haledon Fire Co. No. 1 v. Borough of North Haledon, 425 N.J. Super. 615, 628 (App. Div. 2012), citing In Re Application of Mallon, 232 N.J. Super. 249, 254 n.2, (App. Div. 1989) citing State v. Redinger, 64 N.J. 41, 46, (1973) and Biddle v. Biddle, 166 N.J. Super. 1, 7 (App. Div. 1979). The instant petitioners were not parties to Interlaken I and were consequently not considered by the Commissioner when he issued his June 14, 2012 “stay put” decision directing that currently enrolled Interlaken public school students would temporarily be permitted to attend school in West Long Branch or Shore Regional pending a resolution on the merits of Interlaken I. Hence, the Commissioner rendered no mandate one way or the other concerning Interlaken domiciliaries who had been attending private school. There are consequently no inconsistencies between the Commissioner's June 14, 2012 grant of relief in Interlaken I and the August 30, 2012 decision in Interlaken II granting relief to the instant petitioners.

Thus, because Asbury Park has failed to establish justification for reconsideration by the Commissioner of the August 30, 2012 decision on motion for emergent relief, Asbury Park's motion for a stay of that emergent relief is denied.

BEFORE PATRICIA M. KERINS, ALJ:

Petitioners are the parents of eight children, ages five through twelve, who reside in the Borough of Interlaken (Borough) and whose public education is to be provided by the Board of Education of Interlaken (Interlaken). They seek an Emergent Order allowing their children to enroll in the West Long Branch School District (West Long Branch)¹ along with other Interlaken students. The petition and request for emergent relief was filed with the Department of Education on August 17, 2012, and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 21, 2012. Pleadings in response were filed by the parties up to August 24, 2012, and oral argument on the request for emergent relief was heard on August 27, 2012 at the OAL in Mercerville, New Jersey. Only respondent Board of Education of Asbury Park (Asbury Park) has objected to the relief sought by petitioners.

The right of Interlaken students to attend either West Long Branch schools or Shore Regional High School rather than Asbury Park schools was the subject of a prior May 11, 2012, emergent order in Board of Education of the Borough of Interlaken v. Board of Education of the City of Asbury Park, OAL Docket No. EDU 5340-2012

(Interlaken I). That order allowed Interlaken students to attend those districts pending a decision in the underlying dispute between Asbury Park and Interlaken over the existence of a sending-receiving relationship between the two districts.² That Order was affirmed by the Commissioner of Education (Commissioner) on June 14, 2012. The legal and factual discussions set forth those Orders are incorporated herein.

At issue in this request for emergent relief is whether the prior order allowing Interlaken students to attend West Long Branch and Shore Regional schools should be applied to the approximately fifty school age children resident in the Borough, rather than just the twenty students who were currently attending those schools on the date of the entry of the order in Interlaken I. As set forth by petitioners, Interlaken did not allow their children to enroll in the West Long Branch district for the 2012-13 school year based upon its interpretation of the emergent order entered on May 11, 2012 and the Commissioner's subsequent affirmance.

In Interlaken I, the Borough requested several forms of relief, including an Order maintaining the status quo, allowing the twenty Interlaken students currently attending West Long Branch and Shore Regional schools to continue their attendance in those districts, and an Order, pending the outcome of its underlying petition for relief, permitting any additional Interlaken students who wish to enroll in the West Long Branch or Shore Regional schools to do so for the 2012-13 school year. In pertinent part, the May 11, 2012 Order reads:

....Its request for maintenance of the status quo is GRANTED and Interlaken students may continue to attend West Long Branch and Shore regional schools pending a determination by the Commissioner of Interlaken's Verified Petition for Relief.

In affirming that Order the Commissioner stated:

Accordingly, the Order of the OAL is adopted. Petitioner's students will continue their educations in the schools where they currently are enrolled, pending an ultimate determination concerning petitioner's application to replace or supplement the send-receive relationship that it previously maintained with the respondent Asbury Park Board of Education. The matter is hereby returned to the OAL for a plenary hearing on the merits.

The standards for emergent relief are set forth in Crowe v. DeGoia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982) and are codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6. They include irreparable harm if the relief is not granted, a settled legal right underlying petitioner's claim, likelihood that petitioner will prevail on the merits of the underlying claim, and, balancing the equities and interests, that petitioner will suffer greater harm than respondent.

While neither Order ~~specifically addresses~~ the question of whether Interlaken students (not currently enrolled in West Long Branch or Shore Regional schools can enroll in those schools, the language of each order is broad enough to encompass that eventuality. Further, the legal analysis applied in each anticipates such a result. In allowing Interlaken students to continue attending the receiving districts of West Long Branch or Shore Regional both orders cited the underlying dispute between Interlaken and Asbury Park as to the existence and extent of the sending-receiving relationship between them. Although a hearing is required to determine whether such a relationship exists, and if so whether Interlaken has met the statutory requirements for terminating such a relationship, under the Crowe standard, it was determined that Interlaken had a likelihood of prevailing on the merits. That likelihood of success was one of the factors allowing Interlaken students to attend West Long Branch and Shore Regional as receiving districts for Interlaken.

Crowe further requires that petitioners show a settled legal right to the relief sought. In this matter, the children of Interlaken have a right to a public education under the law of New Jersey. While Asbury Park has disputed Interlaken's right to enter into sending-receiving relationships with West Long Branch and Shore Regional, it has nevertheless done so. Although the relationships are disputed, all of the children of Interlaken have a settled legal right to the public education made available by Interlaken. As Interlaken has been allowed to maintain the status quo of those sending receiving relationships with West Long Branch and Shore Regional pending the resolution of Interlaken I, access to those schools must be provided to all its resident children. To do otherwise calls into question their settled legal right to a public education.

✓ > Pres -
...
obtained on Asbury

The standard for emergent relief further requires that petitioners suffer irreparable harm should the relief not be granted. In this matter, petitioners' children are entitled to a public education. If they are unable to receive that education, they will be denied a constitutional right, clearly suffering irreparable harm. Interlaken maintains no schools of its own and has disputed its sending-receiving relationship with Asbury Park. It has however, entered into sending-receiving relationships with West Long Branch and Shore Regional. As those relationships have been permitted to continue, they should be available to all of the approximately fifty school age children residing in the Borough. To do otherwise would deprive the remaining children of access to the schools available to other residents, raising a serious issue regarding their equal access to the public education already being provided to those children already attending West Long Branch or Shore Regional.

The final prong of the Crowe analysis is whether upon a balancing of the equities and interests, petitioners will suffer greater harm than respondent. As noted in Interlaken I, a balancing of the equities shows that the children of Interlaken have a greater stake in this matter than the only objecting respondent, Asbury Park. Their right to a public education is at stake in this dispute between the two districts. Interlaken has chosen to enter into sending-receiving relationships with West Long Branch and Shore Regional and to contest the existence and extent of the relationship with Asbury Park. Pending the outcome of the Interlaken I case, the status quo of the West Long Branch and Shore Regional relationships has been maintained and petitioners have chosen to enroll their children in the same manner as other Interlaken children. To deny them that right raises issues of equal access and subjects their children's right to a public education to the uncertainty of Interlaken's disputed relationship with Asbury Park. In contrast, as noted in Interlaken I, no regular education Interlaken students have attended Asbury Park schools since the mid 1990s, and any harm to it is merely speculative at this point.

Petitioners' request for an emergent order is GRANTED and all Interlaken students may attend West Long Branch and Shore Regional Schools pending the final determination in the matter of Board of Education of the Borough of Interlaken v. Board of Education of the City of Asbury Park, et al., OAL Docket No. EDU 5340-2012. It is so ORDERED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that her child is not eligible for a free public education in the Wood-Ridge school district; the Board's determination relied upon the representation of S.B. – T.B.'s father, who is divorced from J.B. – that T.B. was living full-time with him in Hasbrouck Heights. Petitioner contended that she and S.B. share joint custody, but that J.B. is the "parent of primary residence."

The ALJ was informed by the respondent Board's attorney in a prehearing conference that there would be no appearance on the Board's behalf and that the respondent would rely on the petitioner's testimony and papers, which were presented at an ex parte hearing on June 28, 2012. The ALJ found, inter alia, that: J.B. credibly clarified the basis for S.B.'s representation regarding T.B.'s residency, i.e., that for a period of approximately one month during the fall of 2011, T.B. spent more time with S.B. as a result of a heated argument between T.B. and his mother, but that T.B. has lived with J.B. since the divorce, and this is reflected on his driver's license and by the fact that T.B. was employed as a summer youth recreation counselor in Wood-Ridge – a position afforded only to residents of Wood-Ridge borough; it is undisputed that J.B. is domiciled in Wood-Ridge and is the primary guardian of T.B.; the record soundly reflected proof of T.B.'s domicile in Wood-Ridge; and the Board did not present any evidence to the contrary. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that T.B. is entitled to a free public education in Wood-Ridge schools.

Upon a full and independent review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this case.

BEFORE TAHESHA L. WAY, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This case involves an appeal by petitioner, J.B. on behalf of her son T.B., from a residency determination by respondent, Board of Education of the Borough of Wood-Ridge (Board). On or about January 19, 2012, the Board determined that T.B. was ineligible to attend the schools in the Wood-Ridge District based on information that T.B.

was living full-time with his father in Hasbrouck Heights, and had no intent on returning to live with J.B. in Wood-Ridge.

An appeal was filed on February 7, 2012. On April 5, 2012, the Board advised the New Jersey Department of Education of its intent to not file a formal answer, but to comply with any determination made by the Commissioner of Education. Accordingly, the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on April 18, 2012, for a hearing as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. On June 4, 2012, a prehearing conference occurred. At that time and by way of a June 7, 2012, correspondence, the Board's attorney represented that no appearance would be made on his client's behalf at time of hearing but a reliance on petitioner's testimony and papers submitted. On June 28, 2012, a hearing occurred ex parte and the record remained open for the receipt of petitioner's documents. On August 1, 2012, petitioner provided clearer copies of various documents, at which time the record closed.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Based upon a review of the record, I FIND the following are the FACTS in this case.

J.B. is the mother of T.B., who is a seventeen-year-old special needs student, and a daughter, S.J.B. J.B. has been divorced from her children's father, S.B., since July 17, 2009. As part of the divorce agreement, J.B. and S.B. share joint custody, but J.B. is the "parent of primary residence." In particular, the children live with J.B. every weekday but for Wednesdays,¹ and J.B. and S.B. alternate weekend visits. (P-1.)

In or around January 2012, S.B. solely attended T.B.'s IEP meeting, as J.B. was working. At that time, S.B. represented that T.B. was living full-time with him in Hasbrouck Heights. In reliance upon this representation, the Board subsequently made the determination that T.B. was ineligible to attend the Wood-Ridge schools.

J.B., however, credibly clarified the basis for S.B.'s aforementioned statement. She explained that for approximately one-month during the fall of 2011, T.B. spent more time with S.B. as a result of a heated argument between him and J.B. J.B. also maintained that after the divorce T.B. has always lived with her as reflected on his driver's license. (P-1.) Moreover, T.B. presently works for Wood-Ridge as a summer youth recreation counselor to third graders, which is only afforded to its residents. (P-1)

LEGAL DISCUSSION

In New Jersey public schools are free for children so long as they meet certain residency requirements.

N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 provides eligibility in two alternative ways as follows in pertinent part:

Public schools shall be free to the following persons over five and under 20 years of age:

a. Any person who is domiciled within the school district;

For the purpose of applying subsection (a) of the statute, the regulations of the Department of Education provide that a student is domiciled in the school district when he is with a parent or legal guardian whose permanent home is located within the school district. N.J.A.C. 6A:22-3.1.

A district board of education may deny admission to a child if the evidence does not support the validity of the resident's claim. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1). The resident is afforded an opportunity to contest the board's decision and is entitled to a hearing on the validity of the claim. Ibid.; N.J.A.C. 6A:22-5.1. In connection therewith, the resident bears the burden of proving, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the child is eligible for a free education under the statutory criteria. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(1).

Based upon the applicable facts and law, I CONCLUDE that T.B. is entitled to a free public education in the Wood-Ridge District. Briefly, it is undisputed that J.B. is domiciled in Wood-Ridge and is the primary guardian of T.B. J.B. also cogently explained the miscommunication that T.B. was living with S.B., and the record soundly reflects proof of T.B.'s domicile in Wood-Ridge. Furthermore, the Board did not present any evidence to prove otherwise.

ORDER

I hereby ORDER that the determination of the respondent, Borough of Wood-Ridge Board of Education's determination that T.B. does not reside in the school district is REVERSED and petitioner's appeal is hereby GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the decision of the respondent Board to terminate her employment as a teacher through a reduction in force (RIF) at the end of the 2010-2011 school year. Petitioner was continuously employed by the Board from October 2005 through June 2011. Petitioner contended that after her termination, the Board continued to employ other teachers with less seniority than petitioner, in violation of her tenure and seniority rights. Petitioner sought reinstatement and back pay retroactive to the date of her termination.

The ALJ found that: petitioner failed to appear for a hearing in this matter on July 30, 2012, despite having received appropriate notice; and attorney for the petitioner appeared at the hearing and confirmed on record her ongoing inability to reach her client via telephone, and via certified and regular mail. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that petitioner had abandoned this matter and ordered the case returned to the Department for appropriate disposition.

Subsequent to the issuance of the Initial Decision, the petitioner filed exceptions in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. In the exceptions, counsel for the petitioner explained that Ms. Clayton failed to appear on July 30, 2012 because she had moved and never received notice of the hearing date. Accordingly, the Commissioner returned the matter to the OAL for reinstatement of petitioner's appeal.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner filed exceptions to the Initial Decision in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4. Respondent requested and was granted an extension of time within which to file reply exceptions. These were received in accordance with the extended timelines.

In exceptions, counsel for petitioner provided the following explanation for petitioner's failure to appear at the July 30, 2012 hearing in this matter: "Ms. Clayton apparently failed to receive notice of the hearing as she had moved. Although she had moved, she did usually receive the mail sent to her at her former address. However, she did not receive the mail sent by her counsel or by the Court." Attached to counsel's exceptions is a Certification – executed by Beth Ann Clayton – attesting to the truth of these representations and further indicating that she still wishes to pursue her claim against the Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth.

Respondent's reply exceptions charge that petitioner's exceptions fail to offer any legitimate, credible reason for her failure to appear at the hearing and urge the Commissioner to adopt the Administrative Law Judge's decision dismissing her petition of appeal.

Upon review, the Commissioner concludes that interests of justice and fair play dictate that petitioner's explanation for her failure to appear – supported by her certification – be accepted and petitioner be given an opportunity to have her claim against the Board litigated.

Accordingly, in light of the above, this matter is being returned to the OAL for reinstatement of Ms. Clayton's petition of appeal.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Beth Ann Clayton, a teacher formerly employed by the Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth (the Board), asserts that the Board terminated her employment in contravention of her tenure and seniority rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 et seq. She seeks reinstatement and back pay retroactive to the date of her termination.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND STATEMENT OF FACTS

Clayton filed her appeal with the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) on October 31, 2011. An answer was filed on behalf of the Board, and the contested case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), on November 22, 2011.

In or about June 2010, the Board terminated several-hundred employees pursuant to a reduction in force (RIF); more than eighty of these employees have pending petitions challenging their terminations as violative of the tenure laws. Discovery and settlement discussions relative to these cases have been the subject of bi-monthly status conferences between counsel and me. In the aftermath of the RIF, many of the petitioners were reinstated by the Board, or secured alternative employment. Counsel and I agreed that many claims might be ripe for withdrawal or settlement, and that by disposing of these claims we would be better able to efficiently focus upon the claims that presented factual or legal complexities. Counsel were directed to communicate with their clients and share with the Board a settlement proposal that fully outlined the back and pay benefits sought by each petitioner, or in the alternative, to promptly withdraw any claim that was no longer viable.

At several case management conferences counsel advised me of ongoing difficulties in securing the cooperation of some of the petitioners and of counsel's inability to obtain the information needed to make a settlement proposal to the Board, or to counsel a client that it was appropriate to withdraw his or her claim. Accordingly, in my order dated May 15, 2012, I directed counsel to supply me with a list of petitioners with whom they have been unable to communicate regarding the nature and extent of their claims. Clayton was among these petitioners, per correspondence from her attorney.

A notice of hearing was issued on June 5, 2012, requiring Clayton's appearance on July 30, 2012. Clayton was notified by the Clerk of the Office of Administrative Law, that her appearance was mandatory, and that a failure to appear would result in dismissal of her petition. The notice was sent both to her attorney and directly to Clayton at the address on record via regular mail. The OAL received no return of the notice as undeliverable.

Clayton's attorney appeared at the hearing and confirmed on the record her ongoing inability to reach his client. She confirmed that he has attempted to communicate with her via telephone and by certified and regular mail, all to no avail. She tried, without success, to discuss the need for Clayton to appear at the scheduled proceeding. Counsel noted that Clayton responded to one attempt at contact via telephone message, but counsel's attempts to respond to that message were once again unsuccessful. Clayton did not appear on July 30, 2012.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Clayton has abandoned this matter and that it should be returned to the transmitting agency.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a) provides that, if, after appropriate notice, a party does not appear in any proceeding scheduled by a judge, the judge shall hold the matter for one day before taking any action. If the judge does not receive an explanation for the nonappearance within one day, the judge may direct the Clerk to return the matter to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition. Clayton failed to appear at the scheduled proceeding, and she failed to provide an explanation one day following her nonappearance. Accordingly, the Clerk should return this matter to the Department of Education.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the Clerk return this matter to the Department of Education for appropriate disposition.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. controversies, agreements, promises, variances, trespasses, damages, judgments, executions, claims and demands of any nature whatsoever known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected, vested or contingent, which it ever had or has against Salimbene arising out of Salimbene's former or existing employment relationship with the District or for any other reasons which were asserted or could have been asserted under any local, state or federal statute, constitution, ordinance, contract or the common law,

5. Dismissal of Pending Petition of Appeal: Within five (5) days after execution of this agreement, the parties shall file a Stipulation of Dismissal with prejudice of the Petition of Appeal, docket number EDU 09322-2010S.
6. Non-Admission of Liability: The execution of this Agreement and the settlement made hereunder shall not be construed as an admission of liability by any party to this Agreement, such liability being expressly denied. It is agreed that there is no prevailing party in this litigation. Salimbene is responsible for her own attorneys' fees and costs.
7. Confidentiality: To the extent permitted by law, the parties shall hold confidential the terms of this Agreement, the amount paid in consideration thereof, any claims or purported admissions made during the settlement negotiations, and any information required hereunder the terms of settlement (the "Confidential Information") and shall not disseminate the Confidential Information to anyone other than the parties, their accountants, and their counsel, other than to state in response to an inquiry that the differences between them have been resolved to their mutual satisfaction.

8. Entire Agreement/Severability/Not Construed Against

Drafter: This Agreement constitutes the entire understanding between the parties as it relates to the subject matter of this Agreement and supersedes all other representations, statements, and understandings or agreements pertaining to such subject matter. The provisions of this Agreement are severable, and if any provision of it is found to be unlawful or unenforceable, it shall be deemed narrowed to the extent required to make it lawful and enforceable. The Agreement was negotiated at arms-length and shall not be construed against its drafter as each party participated equally in its drafting.

9. Consideration and Revocation Period: Salimbene represents and warrants that she has had an adequate time to consider the terms and conditions of this Agreement and that she has consulted with her own counsel, Ned P. Rogovoy, Esq., about it. Salimbene has a period of seven (7) calendar days after delivering the executed Agreement to the District's attorney to revoke acceptance of the Agreement.

10. Violation of Material Provision(s): In the event that either party violates any material provision of this Agreement, the parties will have the right to petition a court of competent jurisdiction for appropriate legal remedies, equitable remedies, or both, to compensate the aggrieved party or parties for any such violation. If a party is deemed to be the "prevailing party" in an action to enforce the terms of this Settlement Agreement, the non-prevailing party(ies) shall pay the prevailing party(ies) its reasonable legal fees and costs. For purposes of the foregoing, if either party is lawfully compelled to disclose the terms of settlement pursuant to an Open Public Records Act (OPRA) request, court order or other lawful directive, the party required to make such a disclosure shall not be considered to be in breach and the remainder of the Agreement shall remain in full force and effect.

11. Voluntary and Knowing Agreement: Salimbene acknowledges that she has executed this Agreement after consulting with her attorney, Ned Rogovoy, Esq., and after considering the terms of the Agreement, and further acknowledges that she has read this Agreement in its entirety, understands all of the terms and freely, voluntarily and knowingly, without duress or coercion, assents to all the terms and conditions contained herein.

By signing below, all Parties indicate that they have carefully read and understand the terms of this Agreement, enter into this Agreement knowingly, voluntarily and of their own free will, understand its terms and significance and intend to abide by its provisions without exception.

DECISION

SYNOPSIS

Petitioners in these consolidated cases – all tenured teachers holding instructional certificates with endorsements in Elementary Education – asserted that the respondent Board’s action in terminating their employment on June 30, 2010, in a reduction in force (RIF), violated their tenure and seniority rights. Petitioners contended that their standard elementary endorsements are valid for grades nursery through eight and therefore entitle them to teach nursery school. As such, they claimed tenure and/or seniority rights over personnel who were retained by the district in pre-kindergarten teaching positions. The Board contended that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.1(a)(3) and N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.1(h), petitioners were not qualified for a pre-school position. All petitioners except for Margaret Watkins filed motions for summary decision, and the Board filed a cross motion.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: a pre-school through third grade (P-3) endorsement was created by the Department of Education in 2001 in the context of Abbott v. Burke, 163 N.J. 95, 108 (2000); pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.1(a)(3), a teacher with an elementary endorsement issued before March 2008 (as were those held by the petitioners) must demonstrate appropriate content knowledge for the subject taught; pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.1(h), a teacher with an elementary endorsement, without reference to when it was issued, may teach preschool if he or she has “the equivalent of two academic years of full-time experience teaching three and four year-olds”; none of the petitioners possess the P-3 endorsement, nor did they submit any evidence to establish their qualification as a pre-school teacher based on the experiential requirement; the Board’s decision not to place the “riffed” petitioners in any of the pre-school positions held by non-tenured or less senior employees was therefore not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Accordingly, the ALJ granted summary decision to the Board and dismissed the petitions.

Upon independent review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ’s determination to dismiss the petitioners’ appeal, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioners Grimm and Fitzgerald requested and were granted extensions of time within which to file exceptions, and concomitant extensions were granted to the Board and the Intervenors for reply exceptions.¹ Such exceptions – filed in accordance with the adjusted timelines – were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

As a threshold matter, the Board objects to the consideration of the exceptions filed by petitioner Watkins – who, pursuant to her petition of appeal, like the other petitioners in this matter, holds an elementary endorsement on an instructional certificate – as it charges these are procedurally improper in several respects and prejudicial to both the Board and the intervenors. Because any details whatsoever with respect to this petitioner were totally omitted from the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) Initial Decision and in light of the Board's highly unusual request for exclusion of consideration of her exceptions, the Board's objections in this regard are being presented in their entirety:

It is undisputed that Petitioner Watkins did not file a motion for summary decision, nor did she oppose the summary decision cross-motions in this matter. In fact she specifically refused to file any documents relative to the same. As the procedural history of this matter plainly shows, Petitioners Fitzgerald and Grimm filed motions for summary decision in accordance with Judge Masin's letter order, in which Petitioner Scott joined. Thereafter, on March 22, 2012, the Board filed its opposition and a cross-motion for summary decision, in which the Intervenor[s] joined with supplementation. Petitioners Fitzgerald, Grimm and Scott each filed replies to the Board's cross-motion. At no point did Petitioner Watkins file a motion, opposition, or a reply. Rather, by letter dated February 21, 2012 to Judge Masin, Petitioner Watkins' counsel specifically refused to file a motion, stating "I will not file a Motion for Summary Decision on behalf of Petitioner Margaret Watkins," and instead, "reserved the right to file a response to any Summary Decision motions..." Ms. Watkins' counsel was again reminded on March 5, 2012 of the ability to reply to the Board's position, and again reserved the same right on March 7, 2012 in a letter to Judge Masin.

Despite twice reserving a right to respond, at no point in the three months between Petitioner Watkins' receipt of the Board's cross-motion...and the issuance of Judge Masin's initial decision...did Ms. Watkins file even one shred of paper in defense of her claims. The Board's cross-motion for dismissal was willingly and deliberately unopposed. Ms. Watkins cannot now be heard to complain in any fashion that summary decision was granted against her because her counsel "anticipated that an evidentiary hearing would be scheduled" and decided not to oppose the Board's motion. Quite simply, Ms. Watkins made a procedural gamble and lost. She determined to sit on the sidelines while the other parties' motions were heard, assuming that they would all be denied and that a hearing would be scheduled. Obviously, the opposite occurred. Now, in what can only be described as a second chance, Ms. Watkins seeks to file opposition to the Board's motion – armed with the full knowledge of how the motion was decided and the opportunity to tailor her "opposition/response" to the same. Given this background and deliberate (in)action by Petitioner Watkins, it is wholly unfair and prejudicial to the Board and Intervenor[s] for her exceptions ...to be considered.

Furthermore, Ms. Watkins has shown complete disregard for N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(c) and its prohibition against presenting evidence through exceptions that was not submitted below. As noted, Ms. Watkins intentionally did not participate in the motion process below, and presented no defense to the Board's motion whatsoever. Now, as part of her exceptions, she seeks to submit evidence in the form of uncertified attachments to oppose the Board's motion and demonstrate why the ALJ was allegedly incorrect. Even assuming that the documents presented were relevant, there is no reason why they could not have been presented below. Petitioner was not prevented from submitting any documents or affidavits in her defense. Such after the fact gamesmanship is exactly what N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4(c) was intended to prevent...(Board's Reply Exceptions at 3-5)

Under these circumstances – which as to their historical recitation are confirmed by the record in this matter – petitioner Watkins' exceptions here are improper and will not be considered.

The remaining petitioners' exceptions, in pertinent part, merely recast and reiterate their arguments advanced below, specifically 1) petitioners Fitzgerald and Grimm argue that they are qualified to teach pre-K because their endorsements authorized them to do so as of the date they were obtained (both prior to 2001) and once granted the scope of such endorsements cannot be limited by subsequent regulations; and 2) A review by the Board of petitioners' transcripts, educational degrees and past lower elementary grade teaching experience should have made it abundantly obvious to them that petitioners had the necessary "content knowledge" to teach young children in the district, particularly since the skills to teach pre-K are less rigorous than those required to teach the lower elementary grades. As such, they maintain that every certified elementary teacher, by definition, has the "appropriate content knowledge" to teach pre-K.

Upon full review and consideration of the instant record, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ's determination that petitioners' appeals are appropriately dismissed. In so determining, the Commissioner is in full accord with the ALJ that there are two separate issues with respect to petitioners' claims here. The first of these is whether they hold the correct certification and endorsement to allow them to teach pre-K. The second issue, which is only relevant if the first issue is decided in petitioners' favor, is whether any or all of them have tenure or seniority rights superior to those of personnel who were retained in the district. The ALJ correctly recognized that should petitioners prevail on the first issue here, resolution of their potential tenure and/or seniority rights vis-a-vis each other and the intervenors would necessitate an evidentiary hearing. In that the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that petitioners have failed to demonstrate that they were qualified to teach pre-K, he finds and concludes that summary decision is properly granted to the Board and the Intervenors.

As recognized in the ALJ's decision, although N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.1, amended, effective February 20, 1990 – the provision in effect when petitioners Fitzgerald and Grimm acquired their elementary endorsement – authorized teaching of grades nursery through eight with an elementary endorsement, this situation was altered in 2001 when the State Board – in accordance with the dictates of Abbott v. Burke, 163 N.J. 95 – determined that specialized knowledge and experience in preschool education was required in order to provide high quality preschool education to the children of the state. With the enactment of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.2(b)(4) establishing a Pre-K through grade 3 endorsement (authorizing its holders to teach preschool through grade 3 in public schools and to teach public school students in approved settings providing early childhood education), an elementary endorsement, by itself, was no longer sufficient to qualify its holder to teach pre-K. However, recognizing a need to balance the requirement for refined qualifications with a need to accommodate current endorsement holders affected by these new rules, two additional regulatory provisions effectively offered a “grandfathering” opportunity to certain of these individuals. Specifically, N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.1(h) which specifies:

A teacher holding a standard elementary school endorsement with the equivalent of two academic years of full-time experience teaching three and four-year olds under the certificate may teach children in preschool in a public school or Department of Human Services facility. The teaching experience must be in a position that would require the Preschool through Grade 3 endorsement. It shall be the responsibility of the public school district and Department of Human Services facility to maintain a copy of documentation that supports the preschool teaching experience for each teacher affected by this subsection.

and N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.1(a)(3) which, in pertinent part, reads:

Teachers with elementary school endorsements that are valid in grades nursery through eight issued no later than March 1, 2008 may teach in grades nursery through eight in any employing school district. These teachers must demonstrate to the school district that they have content knowledge appropriate to the subject(s) taught. (emphasis added)²

Consequently, as of 2001, the Code clearly states that preschool may only be taught by:

- 1) a teacher holding a preschool through grade 3 endorsement or
- 2) a teacher holding an elementary endorsement who either
 - (a) has two full years of experience teaching three and four year olds or
 - (b) is able to demonstrate appropriate content knowledge to teach preschool.

It is undisputed that the instant petitioners did not hold a preschool through grade 3 endorsement. The Commissioner is also in full agreement with the ALJ that the record here contains no evidence that any of the petitioners satisfied the experience requirement of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.1(h) or the required affirmative demonstration to the Board sufficient to persuade it of their “content knowledge” required by N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.1(a)(3). As such, as none of the petitioners qualified for the available pre-K positions, the Board determination not to place any of them in one of these positions cannot be termed arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

² To the extent petitioners may be challenging the validity of either or both of these rules, the Commissioner of Education lacks the jurisdictional authority to entertain such a challenge. Rather, challenges of this nature are under the jurisdictional purview of the Superior Court.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the instant consolidated petitions of appeal are hereby dismissed.

Record Closed: May 30, 2012

Decided: June 25, 2012

BEFORE JEFF S. MASIN, ALJ:

In this contested case, several teachers who had been employed by the Asbury Park Board of Education contend that the Board violated the tenure and seniority rights accorded to them by N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 et seq., N.J.A.C. 6A:32-5.1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, when they were the subjects of a Reduction In Force (RIF) that occurred on June 30, 2010. They filed Petitions challenging the Board's action, and the Commissioner of Education transferred their claims to the Office of Administrative Law, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -30 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -2. More specifically, the four petitioners claim that the Board terminated them while at the same time retaining persons who had either no tenure or less seniority than the petitioners. The positions in which these retained persons were kept were pre-kindergarten (pre-K) positions which the petitioners contend they were each qualified to fill by virtue of their certifications and endorsements, and as such, they had the priority for these retained positions ahead of those non-tenured or less-senior personnel retained by the Board. As the decision in these cases might affect the rights of other teachers to the positions that they held, they were invited to intervene and did so. Some of the parties have stipulated to certain facts and petitioners Fitzgerald, Grimm and Scott have moved for summary decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. Ms. Watkins has not so moved, but it appears that her legal position as to her standing to assert a tenure and seniority claim arises from the same arguments. The Board has cross-moved for summary decision. Intervenors have also filed in support of the Board's position.

There are two issues that are critical to the determination of the petitioner's contentions. One is whether they hold the correct certification and endorsement that enables them to teach pre-K. The second is only relevant if the first criteria is satisfied. If so, then the question is whether any or all of the petitioners have tenure or seniority rights ahead of any of the retained personnel. It is apparent that if the answer to the first question is resolved in favor of the petitioners, and they have a potential right to a position, there are issues of fact as to the exact seniority of some of the petitioners and/or intervenors that would necessitate an evidentiary hearing.

It has been stipulated that Ms. Fitzgerald, Ms. Grimm and Ms. Scott hold elementary endorsements on an instructional certificate. Grimm obtained her certificate and endorsement in July, 1992, Fitzgerald in July, 1999 and Scott in 2004. Fitzgerald commenced employment with the Board on September 1, 2001 and was continuously employed on a full-time basis until her lay off due to the RIF. Grimm commenced employment with the Board on February 28, 2003 and was continuously employed until the RIF. Grimm taught kindergarten from February 2003 until June 2003 and then first grade from September 1, 2003 until June 30, 2010. Fitzgerald taught second grade from September 1, 2002 until June 30, 2003 and from September 1, 2003 through June 30, 2010, she taught fourth grade Inclusion. Scott commenced her employment with the Board in February 2003 as a first grade teacher and has also taught third and fifth grades and elementary technology.

The petitioners contend that they hold standard elementary endorsements that entitle them to teach nursery school. As such, and as they contend that they have seniority greater than that of any of retained personnel, they are therefore entitled to the positions held by these persons who were not Riffed. N.J.A.C. 6:11-6.1, amended, effective February 20, 1990, provided that

- (a) Each teaching endorsement is required for the corresponding teaching assignment. Each endorsement is valid for all levels, except that the elementary endorsement is valid for grades nursery through eight.

As each of the petitioners holds an elementary endorsement, they are therefore eligible to teach pre-K. No other endorsement or certification is necessary to teach pre-K, which is included in the "nursery" category. A pre-K endorsement was first created in 2001, after a DOE recommendation in 2000. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.2(b)(4) (nursery school endorsement "4. Preschool through grade three: This endorsement authorizes the holder to: i. Teach preschool through grade three in public schools and to teach public school students in approved settings providing early childhood education;"). Since there is nothing in any legislation or regulation that divested those already authorized between 1990 and 2001 and holding a standard elementary endorsement from teaching pre-K, or pre-K through grade three, the petitioners have the necessary endorsement and authority to teach pre-K.

The Board contends that N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.1(a)(3) and N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.1 (h) apply and that these demonstrate that the petitioners were not qualified for the preschool position. N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.1(a)(3) reads:

- (a) Each teaching endorsement is required for the corresponding teaching assignment.

3. Teachers with elementary school endorsements that are valid in grades nursery through eight issued no later than March 1, 2008 may teach in grades nursery through eight in any employing school district. These teachers must demonstrate to the school district that they have content knowledge appropriate to the subject(s) taught. All elementary school teachers certified to teach in grades kindergarten through five after January 20, 2004 and hired to teach in grades six through eight must hold either the elementary school with subject matter specialization or the subject matter endorsement.

N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.1(h)

- (h) A teacher holding a standard elementary school endorsement with the equivalent of two academic years of full-time experience teaching three and four-year-olds under the certificate may teach children in preschool in a public school or Department of Human Services facility. The teaching experience must be in a position that would require the Preschool through Grade 3 endorsement. It shall be the responsibility of the public school district and Department of Human Services facility to maintain a copy of documentation that supports the preschool teaching experience for each teacher affected by this subsection.

The first regulation says that a teacher with an elementary school endorsement issued before March 1, 2008 (as were those held by the petitioners) must demonstrate "content knowledge appropriate to the subject(s) taught." The second says that a teacher with the elementary school endorsement, without reference to when such endorsement was issued, may teach preschool if she has "the equivalent of two academic years of full-time experience teaching three and four-year olds." The Board contends that even if it may be that N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.1(a)(3), clearly the less restrictive of the two regulations (appropriate content knowledge with no time reference vs. equivalent of two years) applies, these petitioners have never provided the evidence to demonstrate that they have that appropriate content knowledge.

Petitioners contend that if either or both of these regulations is understood to limit or restrict the right of the petitioners, as holders prior to 2001 of a standard elementary school endorsement that permitted them to teach N-8, such regulation is invalid as applied to them. This is especially true where the subsequently adopted regulations do not explicitly denote any intention to divest rights previously granted. And, N.J.A.C. 6A:9-9.1(a)(5) states that "Teachers holding endorsements that are no longer issued as of January 20, 2004 may continue to teach in the subject areas in which the teacher was authorized to teach under the former rules." The Board counters that the rule-making authority of the State Board of Education is quite broad, and surely allows alteration or repeal of rules where necessary to carry out the school laws of the State. But that truism does not necessarily mean that a Board action that changes the regulatory landscape for the future inevitably also divests prior authorization for those already so permitted, in the absence of a directive to that effect either stated, or perhaps implicit, in the newly announced regulatory scheme. As such, the recognized broad authority of the Board does not by itself answer that question posed here.

The intervenors point out that an understanding of the changes in endorsements that have been made with regard to the pre-school category can only be reached in the context of the Abbott v. Burke litigation. A portion of the ongoing Abbott discussion has been about the role of preschool in addressing the needs of students. Addressing concerns raised in the Supreme Court as to the need for qualified teachers in the preschools, the DOE created the P-3 endorsement, which carved out that segment of the educational experience from the previous N-8 endorsement. Abbott v. Burke, 163 N.J. 95, 108 (2000). But the DOE was not unmindful of the need to address the teachers already holding endorsements that gave them the ability to teach nursery school, but which endorsements were not specifically geared to the early stage of education. Thus, as the following comment from the Court in Abbott VII shows, the “grandfather” concept was utilized to balance the need for refined qualification with the need to accommodate already serving teachers.

Finally, we note that N.J.A.C. 6:11-5.2(f) “grandfathers” certified elementary school teachers with two years preschool experience by waiving the requirement of Abbott VI that they obtain an instructional certificate with a P-3 endorsement in order to be hired as teachers in Abbott preschool programs. We find grandfather provision to be a reasonable response to the establishment of new certification requirements that would otherwise negatively affect experienced, certified teachers. We are confident the exemption will not compromise the education of any preschool children. The DOE, which historically grandfathers all certificate holders affected by new requirements, strictly limited N.J.A.C. 6:11-5.2(f) to those teachers with the training and experience it judged fully adequate to the task.

[Abbott v. Burke, 170 N.J. 537, 555-556 (2002)].

It is important to note here that the Court’s endorsement of the DOE’s use of grandfathering was, at least in this instance, stated along with a recognition that, at least in this particular instance, the grandfathered right came with limitations. In the context of its comments in these Abbott cases, it seems clear enough that the Court felt that the limitation was a wise means of accommodating the potential impact of the new regulation with the reality of a pool of existing teachers who, of course, did not have the new endorsement and might not have the experience that was believed necessary in order to provide the appropriate level of instruction to preschool children. Indeed, the DOE specifically addressed this grandfather provision and its roots and assumptions in this response to a comment received regarding the proposed amendment to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.1(g).

18. COMMENT: The commenter recommended that the proposed amendment at N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.1(g) that grandfathers experienced elementary school teachers to teach in preschool settings should include a training and knowledge requirement. (5)

RESPONSE: The language at N.J.A.C. 6A:9-11.1(g) to grandfather elementary school teachers with experience teaching in preschool settings is an amendment that was introduced as a result of the Abbott v. Burke Supreme Court decision. The basis of the grandfathering was the belief that the teaching experience had provided the teacher with the appropriate training and knowledge. However, the Department has encouraged teachers and school districts to augment the knowledge and skills through on-going professional development in the rules at N.J.A.C. 6A:10A, Standards-Driven Instruction and Literacy in Abbott School Districts.

[37 N.J.R. 1060(a), April 4, 2005].

Thus, the picture that emerges is one in which the on-going discussion of the refinement, reform and re-conceptualization of the needs of the educational system have provoked changes in regulatory requirements. The need to upgrade the training, concentration and proficiency of teachers of the youngest element of the student body had involved some re-direction of the endorsements. There is of course no problem with such a change. But as it impacts those already holding endorsements, the regulatory changes have sought to accommodate them, without at the same time limiting a substantial element of the change needed. While not every teacher who lacks the P-3 endorsement will benefit from the "experience" exception, some will, and in a necessarily changing world of educational policy, driven at least substantially by constitutional imperatives as defined by the Supreme Court, the accommodation is reasonable. Those who do not meet the experiential requirement to teach P-3 still retain their endorsement to teach higher grades. As such, the change in the regulations does not strip the holders of the endorsements of all rights to teach. Thus, cases that involve any such totally preclusive rearrangements of the regulatory landscape are inapplicable.

The Commissioner of Education will not interfere with determinations of local boards acting within their legal authority unless their actions are arbitrary and capricious. Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960). Here the local board determined that RIF was necessary, and that decision is not challenged. In deciding who was to be riffed, the Board determined that these petitioners did not possess the P-3 endorsement. That critical fact is not in dispute. As the lack of such endorsement is the elemental legally relevant question with regard to the ability of the petitioners to claim the positions they seek without further demonstration of their qualifications for the position, a right they assert they have and which they claim entitles them to summary decision, and the absence of which the Board contends immediately defeats the petitioners' claims, summary decision can serve as the vehicle for the resolution of this challenge to the propriety of the Board's action. If any of the petitioners believed that they met the experiential requirement to allow them to teach preschool despite their not holding the P-3 endorsement, they could have advised the board that they had the required experience and submitted the information to establish their qualification. There is no evidence that they did so. If they misjudged their legal right to the positions or the basis upon which they might claim the position despite their not holding the P-3 endorsement, and as a result failed to attempt to secure a position by presenting their experience, that is not the board's fault. Thus, the decision of the board not to place any of the riffed petitioners in any of the available positions cannot be characterized as arbitrary. Summary decision is therefore properly denied to the petitioners and granted to the Board and Intervenors. The petitions are therefore DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner sought an order barring the respondent Board from enforcing – and directing respondent to revise – its Policy 5132, governing off-campus alcohol and drug use. Commonly known as “24/7”, the policy contains a provision that enables the Board to deny participation in extracurricular activities based on a student’s use of drugs or alcohol away from school grounds. Petitioner contended that Policy 5132 is illegal and unenforceable as it is ultra vires – it exceeds the authority given school districts to impose consequences for behavior away from school grounds pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6. The Board argued that these regulations do not apply to Policy 5132 because it is not part of a code of conduct, and that suspending or limiting a student’s ability to participate in extracurricular activities does not equate to a disciplinary action because such participation is a privilege, not a right.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: Policy 5132 is a code of conduct policy within the contemplation of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.1; exclusion from extracurricular activities – whether imposed as a consequence for conduct occurring on or off of school grounds – is a form of discipline; N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6 applies to the imposition of discipline for behavior occurring away from school grounds in the context of Policy 5132; and, despite limiting the proscribed conduct to that involving drugs and/or alcohol, Policy 5132 – by refusing to measure the conduct against the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6 – fails to ensure that the required nexus between the student’s conduct and the orderly administration of the school is present before the policy is triggered. The ALJ concluded that Policy 5132 is ultra vires because it does not adequately ensure that the dictates of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6(a) will be met in addressing off-campus conduct. Accordingly, the ALJ ordered that respondent revise Policy 5132 to meet the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6.

Upon consideration and review, the Assistant Commissioner – to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34 - concurred with the ALJ’s findings and conclusions in determining that Policy 5132 gives the Board authority beyond the scope of the governing regulatory provisions, and is therefore ultra vires and unlawful. Accordingly, the Assistant Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter, and directed the Board to revise its policy to bring it into compliance with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE	:	DECISION
BOROUGH OF HADDONFIELD,	:
CAMDEN COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by the petitioner and the Board of Education. This case involves the interpretation of Board Policy 5132, which contains a provision that enables the Board to deny participation in extracurricular activities based on a student's use of drugs and alcohol away from school grounds.

The petitioner did not take exception to the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) Initial Decision, but instead urged the Commissioner to issue a final decision adopting the Initial Decision for the reasons expressed therein.

The Board takes exception to the ALJ's determination that Policy 5132 is ultra vires and violates the applicable regulatory provisions. The Board does not argue that Policy 5132 incorporates the requirements contained in N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6, but instead maintains that the ALJ erred in finding that Policy 5132 is a discipline code of conduct policy, which must comply with N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6. The Board asserts that the revocation of a student's ability to participate in extracurricular activities is not discipline because such participation is a privilege, not a right, and thus N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6 does not apply to Policy 5132. The Board argues that the stringent dual nexus test of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6(a) dealing with off campus activity is only applicable to the denial of the right to attend school and receive core educational services.

The Board also argues that the Initial Decision and the ALJ's reliance on G.D.M. and T.A.M., on behalf of minor child, B.M.M. v. Board of Education of the Ramapo Indian Hills Regional High School District, 2012 N.J. Super. LEXIS 127 (App. Div. July 24, 2012), where the court found that the suspension from extracurricular activities is a form of discipline, conflicts with the holding in R.R. v. Shore Regional High School District, 109 N.J. Super. 337 (Ch. Div. 1970). The court in R.R., supra, created the language that would eventually become N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6(a)(1) and (2). The Board contends that the holding in R.R., supra, and the nexus requirements in N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6(a) only pertain to a school's right to impose discipline on a student for conduct away from school, i.e. the expulsion or suspension from school, and does not apply to a school's authority to suspend participation in extracurricular activities. In its exceptions, the Board noted that the Appellate Division acknowledged in Ramapo, supra, that the language of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6 was derived from R.R., supra, but then completely disregarded the essence of the holding.

The Board further maintains that the Initial Decision and its reliance on Ramapo, supra, conflicts with Joye v. Hunterdon Central Regional High School Board of Education, 176 N.J. 568 (2003). The Board argues that in Joye, supra, the Court upheld a drug policy that conditioned participation in extracurricular activities and student parking based on the results of random drug testing conducted by the Board. The Board argues that the policy in that case was not subjected to the dual nexus requirement of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6, and as such Policy 5132 should not have to incorporate the dual nexus requirement of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6.

Additionally, the Board argues that the Initial Decision and its reliance on Ramapo, supra, conflict with the strong legislative policies that put local public school districts on the front lines in battling student substance abuse. The Board cites to various statutory provisions and case law to support its assertion that combating substance abuse among students is a paramount concern for local boards of education. Finally, the Board states that the Commissioner is not bound by the decision in G.D.M. and T.A.M., on behalf of minor child, B.M.M. v. Board of Education of the Ramapo Indian Hills Regional High School District, Commissioner Decision No. 383-10, decided September 13, 2010, because an administrative agency is not bound to its own precedents.

After consideration and review, the Assistant Commissioner – to whom this matter has been delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34 - is in accord with the ALJ's determination – for the reasons thoroughly expressed in the Initial Decision – that Policy 5132 is ultra vires and unlawful because it gives the Board the authority to suspend a student from extracurricular activities for conduct that occurs away from school grounds without requiring the Board to conduct the two-prong analysis mandated by N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6. The Assistant Commissioner also agrees with the ALJ's determination that the exclusion from extracurricular activities is a form of discipline.

In its exceptions, the Board suggests that the revocation of a student's ability to participate in extracurricular activities is not a form of discipline because such participation is a privilege, not a right, and thus N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6 does not apply to Policy 5132. The Board's argument, however, is not supported by any case law or applicable statutory or regulatory provisions, and is simply an attempt to circumvent the limitations on the authority of the Board imposed by N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6. In Ramapo, supra, the Appellate Division addressed a similar argument advanced by the Ramapo Board of Education in connection with its policy that enabled it to suspend students from extracurricular activities for off-school-grounds conduct without conducting the requirements contained in N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6(a). The court found that, “[t]he Board’s attempt to mask this outcome by characterizing participation in extracurricular activities as a ‘privilege’ is unavailing.” Ramapo, supra, LEXIS 127 at 23. The Appellate Division went on to say that it was evident that the Board attempted to “use the control it has over students’ participation in extracurricular activities as a form of discipline to enforce its code of conduct.” Id. at 24. The Board’s suggestion in its exceptions that the Ramapo, supra, decision has effectively reversed years of precedent by ruling that participation in extracurricular activities is now a right is completely inconsistent with the express language of the decision, and it is clear that the court did not overturn the long-standing principle that participation in extracurricular activities is a privilege, and not a right. Rather, the court affirmed the Commissioner’s decision which concluded that although participation in extracurricular activities is a privilege, and not a right, it does not negate the fact that a board’s decision to revoke a student’s ability to participate amounts to a form of discipline. See, G.D.M. and T.A.M., on behalf of minor child, B.M.M. v. Board of Education of the Ramapo Indian Hills Regional High School District, Commissioner Decision No. 383-10, decided September 13, 2010.

The arguments advanced by the Board in its exceptions also overlook the fact that Policy 5132 imposes consequences for off-school-grounds conduct, and that the regulatory provisions expressly treat off-school-grounds conduct differently than conduct that occurs on school grounds. Moreover, the cases the Board uses to advance its arguments are distinguishable from the case at bar. In Joy, supra, the Court upheld a suspension from extracurricular activities based on a positive result from a random drug test conducted at the school. That case did not involve discipline for conduct that took place off-school grounds, and there is also no provision in Policy 5132 that incorporates random drug testing. Additionally, the decision in R.R., supra, did not limit discipline to the expulsion or suspension of a student as the Board contends. Notably, when N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6(a)2 was adopted it clearly created an express distinction between a board of education's authority to impose any consequences for conduct that occurs off-school grounds as opposed to conduct that occurs on school grounds or at school functions.¹ Therefore, the Assistant Commissioner finds that Policy 5132 must comply with the requirements relating to discipline for conduct away from school grounds that is outlined in N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the ALJ is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. The Board is directed to revise its policy to bring it into compliance with the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6.

IT IS SO ORDERED.²

¹ In comparing R.R., supra, to the policy in Ramapo, supra, the Appellate Division stated,

[a]lthough the court in R.R. did not discuss the school district's authority to suspend a student's participation in extracurricular activities, we presume that the scope of the disciplinary sanction would include a suspension from extracurricular activities. Regardless of the scope of the holding in R.R., the State Board of Education was free to adopt the R.R. court's two-pronged test to determine the validity of any consequences imposed for non-school-related conduct occurring away from school grounds. Ramapo, supra, LEXIS 127 at 27-28.

BEFORE ELIA A. PELIOS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

M.W. ("petitioner") seeks an order barring the Haddonfield Board of Education ("respondent") from enforcing and directing respondent to revise its policy governing off-campus alcohol and drug use.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On January 3, 2011, the matter was filed with the Office of Administrative Law as a contested case. A Motion for Summary Decision, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, was filed by the petitioner along with the petition. On December 15, 2011 summary decision was denied. On April 4, 2012, the matter was heard in the OAL (Trenton) and the record closed on that date. Orders were entered in this matter to allow for an extension of time in which to file the initial decision. The briefs, arguments and exhibits submitted for the motions for summary decision have also been incorporated into the record of these proceedings.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Petitioner is the father of C.W., a minor female student residing in the Borough of Haddonfield and attending Haddonfield Memorial High School. The Board is a Type II public school board of education organized under Title 18A of the New Jersey Statutes.

In November 2006, respondent adopted Policy Number 5132 regarding the use of drugs and/or alcohol by middle and high school students off school property and not involving a school-sponsored activity. This policy, commonly referred to as "24/7," purports to augment the Board's In-School/School Activity Drug and Alcohol Policy by focusing on the broader role the Haddonfield School District plays in combating student alcohol and drug use.

Prior to and as a condition of participating in sports, or other extracurricular activities, students and parents are required to agree to the terms of Policy 5132. Agreement is secured in the form of a signed permission form, wherein a student states:

I understand conduct regulations prohibit the use of tobacco in any form, drinking, possessing or providing alcoholic beverages and/or use, possession, or providing illegal drugs including anabolic steroids, at any time. The violation of these regulations will be dealt according to the Haddonfield

Board of Education Drug and Alcohol Policies (consequences of 24/7 Drug and Alcohol Policy Concerning Student Conduct at Non-School Related Events enclosed).

The parents sign the form to indicate that they have read and understand the policies at issue. The policy was amended in December 2007 to add dual avenues of consequences for violations of Policy 5132 in consideration of the underlying nature of the extracurricular activity, specifically whether in the course of the activity a student could be seen as publicly representing the district. Students who represent the district in public face a stronger sanction.

On June 6, 2009, C.W. and her mother signed a Student Activities Permission Form relevant to petitioner's participation in field hockey for the Fall 2009 season and again submitted a Student Activities Permission Form for her participation in the Winter 2009-2010 track season. In December, 2009, C.W. was cited for an infraction of Policy 5132 which was determined to be governed by the "Guidelines for Students Who Participate in Extracurricular Activities Which Do Not Publicly Represent the District." The consequences for her first offense were:

- a) Student and parent attending a mandatory meeting with a school administrator (Athletic Director) and coach or activity sponsor;
- b) Student encouraged to participate in drug/alcohol counseling session;
- c) Continued participation in all practices; and
- d) 10 hours of community service.

On or about December 22, 2009, petitioner filed a Verified Complaint and an Order to Show Cause with the Superior Court of New Jersey challenging the application of Policy 5132 to C. W., alleging that Policy 5132 is ultra vires because it exceeds the authority granted to school boards under Title 18A of the New Jersey statutes. The Honorable Mary Eve Colalillo, J.S.C. denied the Petitioners' emergent relief application and dismissed the matter as a result of jurisdictional issues on January 26, 2010, indicating that the matter should proceed before the Commissioner of Education as a controversy and dispute arising under the school laws pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.

Petitioner subsequently filed pleadings before the Commissioner of Education, who transferred the matter to the Office of Administrative Law ("OAL"). The Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") assigned to the matter, the Honorable John R. Futey, denied petitioner's request for emergent relief. Before the Commissioner of Education ruled on the emergent relief matter petitioner's petition was withdrawn and an appeal of Judge Colalillo's decision was filed. That appeal was decided, in November, 2011, affirming Judge Colalillo's deferral of primary jurisdiction to the Commissioner of Education, and remanding the matter for entry of an order retaining jurisdiction.

Petitioners once again submitted a Permission Form for the 2010 field hockey season but refused to submit a permission form or otherwise consent to be bound by the Policy 5132 for the 2010-2011 winter track season. C.W. submitted a modified permission form, which was unacceptable to the Board. As such, respondent did not allow C.W. to participate in the winter track season, and petitioner brought the herein matter.

The preceding statements are not in dispute and are hereby FOUND as FACT.

Testimony of M.W.

M.W. resides in Haddonfield, NJ with his two children: Daughter C.W., 17 years-old and the subject of this matter, and son J.W. who is 15 and a freshman. In 2010 CW was going to join winter track. At time of the hearing C.W. was concluding her senior year. She attended all 4 years of high school at Haddonfield. She also attended middle school in Haddonfield. The 24/7 policy went into effect during her 7th grade school year.

M.W. feels that Policy 5132 is illegal and unenforceable, and that his position is supported by G.D.M. and T.A.M. o/b/o B.M.M. v. Board of Education of Ramapo Indian Hills Regional High School District, OAL DKT. No. EDU 1157-09, Agency Dkt. No. 225-9/09 (2010). He believes that this policy seeks to enforce discipline for conduct outside of the school, and that nothing in the policy ensures that the offending conduct impacts school safety before imposing discipline.

M.W. notes that he did submit a signed permission form for C.W. to run winter track. However in the place where it was to be signed by the student he inserted the paragraph "I do not agree to be bound by the 24/7 which is illegal under the Ramapo case." Under the portion where the parent signature is to go he inserted "neither my daughter nor her parents agree to be bound by the 24/7 policy which is illegal and unenforceable under the Ramapo Indian Hills case per Commissioner of Education." The permission slip notes that violations will be dealt with in accordance with the 24/7 policy. The form was submitted as amended, and C.W. was not permitted to participate in winter track due to the altering of the permission slip.

Testimony of Michael Wilson

Michael Wilson is the principal at Haddonfield high school. The school has 965 students in grades 9 through 12. Mr. Wilson recalls attending meetings when Policy 5132 was being discussed. He was an elementary school principal at the time. He is familiar with and responsible for implementation of this policy at Haddonfield High School. Policy 5132 regulates the conduct of students off-campus. A different policy applies for on-campus or school events. Policy 5132 is in effect 24 hours a day 7 days a week.

Wilson described how violations of the policy are triggered. He states that the Policy is invoked only upon his receipt of official notification to him that a charge has been filed by the police against a student. He noted that there is a misperception as to what constitutes an "Official Police Report" and pointed to the specific definition of the term contained in and for the purposes of Policy 5132. This report is a confidential report that is directed by the police specifically to Mr. Wilson upon his request. He understands the difference between an official police report and a "notice of charge" which for purposes of Policy 5132 are one and the same.

Even though the policy gives the impression that Policy 5132 could be imposed against a student who has merely been reported to have engaged in prohibited conduct, the specific nature of the report being issued, in compliance with the legal requirements and limits of N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60 ensures that only students who are charged with an offense are sanctioned. While the police make the determination to file charges against a student, they do not make a determination that the charges or conduct are related to school safety. Principal Wilson makes that determination, although he testified that he believes that any charge of a violation of drug or alcohol laws relate to school/student safety.

The statute provides that upon request a principal is only allowed to receive the name of an offending student, the offense he is charged with and the date of disposition. Wilson stated that the Police have required that any request be specific, as to name or incident and that generic requests for any incidents involving any student are not sufficient.

Wilson noted that the policy does not wait for disposition before being implemented. Even though there is a presumption of innocence Policy 5132 is still imposed immediately. Wilson did note that the school has allowed students to appeal, and that after consideration of the circumstances sometimes this results in the parties awaiting disposition before imposing a sanction under Policy 5132.

Wilson noted that if the charges are dropped the policy does not apply. He stated that Policy 5132 is not considered a disciplinary policy; rather it is designed to work with the family to help students make good choices.

Principal Wilson did note that although students do not tend to self-report sometimes a parent may report on their child. Even in these cases, imposition of a sanction is only imposed upon students who have been charged because upon receiving the information from the parent Wilson would then request the official report of that incident from the police and would only act pursuant to Policy 5132 once that report is received.

Wilson believes that this policy has actually had a positive effect on student morale. Prior to its implementation a casual air existed among students. There existed a sense that drinking was a right. Since implementation infractions and drinking incidents are down amongst the student body. He believes the policy forces age-appropriate behavior. Students are now making more age-appropriate decisions. Wilson recalled two past tragedies – two alcohol-related student deaths - that impacted the school. The first occurred prior to his becoming principal and the second incident occurred within his first two weeks on the job.

Wilson stated his belief that exclusion from extracurricular activities for on-campus behavior constitutes discipline but that for off campus violations of Policy 5132 the sanction is not considered discipline; the difference being that under a Policy 5132 violation the student is still part of the team. When asked Wilson testified that not all off-campus drinking “materially and substantially interferes with the requirements of discipline.”

FINDINGS OF FACT

Summary decision was denied primarily because there was an open question of material fact primarily revolving around the circumstances by which a violation of Policy 5132 will be triggered. Principal Wilson testified extensively at hearing as to how he receives information and takes action pursuant to the Policy.

Credibility contemplates an overall assessment of the story of a witness in light of its rationality, internal consistency, and manner in which it “hangs together” with other evidence. Carbo v. United States, 314 F. 2d 718 (9th Cir. 1963). Additionally, the witness’ interest in the outcome, motive or bias should be considered.

A trier of fact may reject testimony because it is inherently incredible, or because it is inconsistent with other testimony or with common experience, or because it is overborne by other testimony. Congleton v. Pura- Tex Stone Corp., 53 N.J. Super. 282, 287 (App. Div. 1958).

Given the forgoing, I found Principal Wilson to be a credible witness. His testimony was thorough and detailed and was consistent with, supported by and bridged the gap between the language of Policy 5132 and N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60. Specifically, Wilson's testimony that he requests reports consistent with N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60, along with the Policy's specific reference to that statute in its definition of "Official Police Report," strongly support the Board's contention that Policy 5132 is only invoked when charges have been filed. This is further supported by Wilson's testimony that even when a parent self-reports on their own child, he still takes the step of requesting a report pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60.

Accordingly, I FIND that Policy 5132 is only triggered upon the receipt by the principal, at his request, of an "Official Police Report" as defined in the policy, and provided in accordance with N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60. I further FIND that as N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60 only permits the disclosure of the charged juvenile student's name, the offense charged, and the disposition or adjudication of the charge, Policy 5132 is only applied to students who have been charged with an offense.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

School Board policies are entitled to a presumption of correctness, and will not be upset by the courts unless there is an affirmative showing that such decision is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Thomas v. Bd. of Educ. of Morris Twp., 89 N.J. Super. 327, 332 (App. Div. 1965), affirmed, 46 N.J. 581 (1966). In general, a board of education's actions are entitled to a presumption of lawfulness and good faith. Where board actions are challenged, the challenger bears the burden of proving that such actions were unlawful, arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Schuster v. Ed. of Educ. Montgomery Twp., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 670, 676 (citing Schnick v. Westwood Ed. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 448 (App. Div. 1960), and Quinlan v. Bd. of Educ. of North Bergen Twp., 73 N.J. Super. 40 (App. Div. 1962)).

Petitioner argues that Policy 5132 is unlawful because it is ultra vires; it exceeds the authority given school districts to impose consequences for behavior away from school grounds pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6. Petitioner relies on G.D.M. and T.A.M. o/b/o B.M.M. v. Board of Education of Ramapo Indian Hills Regional High School District, OAL DKT No. EDU 1157-09, Agency Dkt. No 225-9/09 (2010) wherein the Commissioner of Education held a similar policy to be ultra vires. Petitioner asserts that no constitutional claims are being pursued, and that he is only challenging Policy 532 on grounds that it is ultra vires.

N.J.A.C. 6A: 16-7.1(a) provides that,

Each district board of education shall develop, adopt and implement a code of conduct which establishes standards, policies and procedures for positive student development and student behavioral expectations on school grounds, including on school buses or at school sponsored functions, and as appropriate, for conduct away from school grounds, in accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.2 through 7.5, 7.8 and 7.9.

Additionally, N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.1(e) states that, "[a] district board of education may deny participation in extracurricular activities, school functions, sports or graduation exercises as disciplinary sanctions, where such measures are designed to maintain the order and integrity of the school environment."

Meanwhile, N.J.A.C. 6A: 16-7.6, empowers a board to "impose a consequence on a student for conduct away from school grounds . . . that is consistent with the district board of education's code of student conduct". N.J.A.C. 6A: 16-7.6(a) further provides that such consequence may only be imposed if:

1. it is reasonably necessary for the student's physical or emotional safety, security and well-being or for reasons relating to the safety, security and well-being of other students, staff or school grounds pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:25-2 and 18A:37-2; and
2. the conduct which is the subject of the proposed consequence materially and substantially interferes with the requirements of appropriate discipline in the operation of the school.

The Board argues that these regulatory provisions do not apply to Policy 5132, because it is not a part of the Code of Conduct, and that suspending or limiting a student's ability to participate in extracurricular activities is not the imposition of discipline. They argue that "discipline" is generally understood to mean an exclusion from the education process, to which a student has a constitutional right, primarily through the suspension or expulsion process. They assert that a limit upon the opportunity to participate in extracurricular activities is not a disciplinary action because such participation is a privilege, not a right. The Board further contends that even if Policy 5132 is deemed to be a code of conduct policy, N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6 does not apply, and the only standard to be met is that the imposition of the sanction is "designed to maintain the order and integrity of the school environment."

Pursuant to an appeal of the Commissioner's Decision cited by petitioner, the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, recently concluded that "the plain language of the regulations amply support the Commissioner's interpretation of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6." In upholding the Commissioner's determination that the policy at issue was unlawful and should be revised so as to comply with the requirements with N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6, the court held that regulation's two-pronged test, rooted in the analysis applied in R.R. v. Board of Education of the Shore Regional High School District, 109 N.J. Super. 337 (Ch. Div. 1970) to be appropriately applied in determining the "validity of any consequences for non-school-related conduct occurring away from school grounds." G.D.M. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Ramapo Indian Hills Reg'l High Sch. Dist., 2012 N.J. Super. LEXIS 127 (App.Div. July 24, 2012).

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that Policy 5132 is a code of conduct policy within the contemplation of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.1. I further CONCLUDE that exclusion from extracurricular activities whether imposed as a consequence for conduct occurring on or off school grounds is a form of discipline. I further CONCLUDE that N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6 does apply to the imposition of discipline for behavior occurring away from school grounds in the context of Policy 5132.

Policy 5132 is triggered, primarily, indeed almost exclusively, according to the testimony of Principal Wilson, when an official police report is received by the school listing students “involved in any illegal drug/alcohol related activities.” (P-1, page 6). The consequence of the policy will be applied immediately “without relation to the criminal or juvenile proceedings or its outcome (id).” Although petitioner argues the vagueness of the phrase “official police report,” the phrase is defined explicitly within the Policy as follows:

Official Police Report: As provided in N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60, law enforcement is permitted to inform a school principal of certain incidents involving a student. For purposes of this policy, the following will trigger a violation: (a) a juvenile reported and/or charged by law enforcement with an offense covered by this Policy; (b) adjudication or disposition of a covered charge; (c) a student taken into custody for an offense covered by this policy. (P-1, page 7)

N.J.S.A. 2A:4A-60(c)3 provides that:

At the time of charge, adjudication or disposition, information as to the identity of a juvenile charged with an offense, the offense charged, the adjudication and disposition shall, upon request, be disclosed to...[o]n a confidential basis, the principal of the school where the juvenile is enrolled for use by the principal and such members of the staff and faculty of the school as the principal deems appropriate for maintaining order, safety or discipline in the school or to planning programs relevant to the juvenile's educational and social development, provided that no record of such information shall be maintained except as authorized by regulation of the Department of Education.

Offenses covered by Policy 5132 apply to “the illegal uses of any alcohol or drugs proscribed by New Jersey Law.” (P-1, page 2)

It is clear therefore that when the principal requests, as described by Principal Wilson, and receives a report from the Police which identifies a student as charged with an offense which applies to the illegal uses of any alcohol or drugs proscribed by New Jersey law, Policy 5132 is to be invoked and its consequences imposed immediately.

What is not as clear, is what if any steps are taken to comply with the dictates of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6, which govern the imposition of discipline for behavior occurring off school grounds. As stated earlier, the regulation provides that such discipline may only be imposed when it is necessary for the safety, security and well-being of the students, staff or school or when the offending conduct materially and substantially interferes with school discipline.

In G.D.M. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Ramapo Indian Hills Reg'l High Sch. Dist., 2012 N.J. Super. LEXIS 127 (App.Div. July 24, 2012), the Superior Court of New Jersey, Appellate Division, invalidated the policy at issue because it did not appropriately insure compliance with N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6. A distinction between the Ramapo case and the current matter may exist in that in Ramapo, the policy at issue was triggered for any alleged violation by a student of "the New Jersey Code of Criminal Justice, and/or applicable municipal codes or ordinance provisions." The Court in Ramapo noted that in implicating the entire criminal code the policy did not meet the "requirement that there be a nexus between the student's conduct and the orderly administration of the school." Ramapo, at 29, 30.

In the current matter however, the policy is specifically limited to "illegal uses of any alcohol or drugs as proscribed by New Jersey Law (P-1, page 2)." This certainly narrows the scope and focus of the behaviors which are subject to Policy 5132. Principal Wilson testified that he believed that any time a student is charged in a matter involving violation of alcohol or drug laws that the safety of the student and/or the school is implicated, and he may well be right, which would satisfy the first prong of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6(a). As noted in Policy 5132 "The use of drugs and alcohol by underage students is both an illegal and an extremely dangerous behavior (P-1, page 2)." History is tragically rife with examples of what can and all too often does occur when alcohol and drugs are introduced into the equation with underage students.

Principal Wilson concedes, however, that not every incident involving students and drinking off campus constitutes conduct “materially and substantially interferes with the requirements of appropriate discipline in the operation of the school,” as is required by the second prong of the nexus required by N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6(a) before imposing a consequence upon a student for conduct occurring away from school grounds. He is right. It is too easy to come up with hypothetical fact patterns which would not “materially and substantially interfere with the requirements of appropriate discipline,” and yet would trigger a violation of Policy 5132, most notably involving the exemption for a designated driver which is only applicable when a driver is “actually operating a motor vehicle (P-1, page 2).” It is true that Policy 5132 does allow for a student to present any evidence on his or her behalf before the principal renders a final decision, and a principal may well apply a common-sense rule of reason to the situation. However, no mechanism exists which will require the principal to consider the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6(a).

The Court in Ramapo noted that the policy in question was harmed by the lack of inclusion of a drug testing requirement and its failure to “limit the conduct that would trigger administrative action to alcohol or drug-related activity.” Ramapo, at 29. Policy 5132 does not contain a drug testing requirement, though it does limit the conduct which would trigger administrative action to alcohol or drug-related activity. However, the plain language of the policy plainly states that it “pertains to any student involvement [emphasis added] with drugs and/or alcohol that occurs off school property and not at any school sponsored event.” Nowhere does the policy state that the Board will comply with the dictates of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6, nor does it contain language which mirrors those requirements.ⁱ To the contrary the policy claims jurisdiction over any and all such activity regardless of context and the Board argues that the limitation of the regulation do not apply. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that despite limiting the proscribed conduct to that involving drugs and/or alcohol, Policy 5132 by refusing to measure the conduct ⁱ It is noted that in G.D.M. and T.A.M. o/b/o B.M.M. v. Board of Education of Ramapo Indian Hills Regional High School District, OAL DKT No. EDU 13033-10, Agency Dkt. No 638-11/10 (2011), a subsequent matter to that cited above, the Commissioner held that the Board’s revising the policy to include language equivalent to the text of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6 was sufficient to overcome the earlier determination that the policy was ultra vires.

against the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6 still fails to ensure that before Policy 5132 is triggered there will be present the required "nexus between the student's conduct and the orderly administration of the school." Ramapo, at 29, 30.

There is no doubt that there are many instances of off-campus-behavior that will meet the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6(a) and will support the suspension of a student from participation in extracurricular activities, or the other consequences delineated by Policy 5132. However, without performing even the most basic check to determine that the conduct in question meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6(a), the potential exists that the Board will exceed the authority delegated to it for the purpose of addressing off-campus conduct, where necessary. Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that Policy 5132 is ultra vires in that it does not adequately ensure that the dictates of N.J.A.C. 6A:16-7.6(a) will be met in addressing off-campus conduct..

Re: In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Wayne Calandriello, School District of the Township of South Orange-Maplewood, Essex County. Agency Dkt. No. 321-10/11.

Dear Counsel,

I have reviewed the materials filed in connection with respondent, Wayne Calandriello's Motion for Clarification of the July 30, 2012 final decision in the above-captioned matter. Pursuant to the July 30, 2012 decision, the respondent lost his increment for one year "and the 120 days salary withheld pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-14, following the certification of tenure charges plus an additional four months suspension without pay." The respondent is now seeking clarification as to when the additional four months suspension begins to run.

In his papers, the respondent argues that the additional four months suspension begins to run as soon as the July 30, 2012 decision was issued because final administrative decisions become effective on the date they are issued or mailed to the parties. The respondent also argues that the July 30, 2012 decision did not state that the suspension should begin at the beginning of the 2012-2013 school year. On the other hand, the Board contends that the additional four months suspension imposed by the July 30, 2012 decision begins to run at the start of the 2012-2013 school year as a result of the fact that the decision was issued during the summer, and the respondent is a ten-month employee. The Board points out that ten-month employees on paid suspension cease to receive compensation during the summer months, and resume compensation at the commencement of the next school year.

The July 30, 2012 decision expressly stated that the additional four-month suspension was without pay. Certainly, if the respondent is not being paid during the summer months, a suspension during that time would not amount to a suspension without pay. Accordingly, the respondent's additional four-month suspension without pay shall commence at the beginning of the 2012-2013 school year.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – a tenured secretary formerly employed by the Board – sought back pay and emoluments following a 2009 Commissioner decision which found that her tenure rights had been violated when she was terminated without just cause in late 2007, and ordered her reinstatement “to a secretarial position” with back pay and emoluments, less mitigation. Concurrent with the 2009 Commissioner decision, the Board offered petitioner the only secretarial position then vacant in the district – i.e. secretary to the child study team (“CST secretary”) – at the same salary she had previously made. The Board also advised petitioner that since she had taken no steps to mitigate her damages by seeking employment and/or applying for unemployment compensation after her 2007 termination, it would not disburse any back pay or benefits. Petitioner did not accept the position she was offered, and subsequently filed the instant petition, wherein she sought resolution of the issue of back pay and emoluments. The OAL issued an Initial Decision in this matter on August 5, 2010, finding that the Board owed back pay and emoluments for the period from December 15, 2007 to April 27, 2009, but no back pay from that point forward because petitioner should have accepted the CST secretary position that the Board offered her on April 28, 2009. The Commissioner issued a decision in the matter on February 9, 2011, which concluded that petitioner forfeited her tenure rights when she refused the CST position and remanded the case back to the OAL for fact-finding and recommendations on issues related to the amount of back pay due petitioner for the period from December 15, 2007 to April 27, 2009.

On remand, the ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner was not required to seek unemployment benefits to mitigate respondent’s damages because – even had she received such benefits – respondent would still have been required to reimburse the unemployment compensation fund since it wrongfully terminated the petitioner; petitioner is entitled to 4% pre-judgment interest pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.17; petitioner is not entitled to compensation for her unused sick days; the appropriate percent of salary increase for purposes of determining back salary is 2%, making total back salary due petitioner $67,840.89. The ALJ concluded that petitioner is due the following specific damages: total back salary plus 4% pre-judgment interest equals $70,554.52; accrued vacation days plus pre-judgment interest equals $5,767.84; emoluments, including 4% pre-judgment interest, equals $2,867.93; no award for unused sick days. Total award to petitioner including 4% pre-judgment interest: $79,190.29.

The Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter. In so doing, the Commissioner found that petitioner’s exception that took issue with the ALJ’s use of a straight 4% for computation of pre-judgment interest was disingenuous as this amount had been stipulated in the parties’ June 18, 2012 Stipulation of Facts.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Exceptions and replies of both petitioner and the Board – filed in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were fully considered by the Commissioner in making his determination herein.

The parties' exceptions essentially replicate their arguments advanced in briefs before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) below. In that it is determined that the ALJ fully considered and correctly addressed these in his decision, they will not be revisited here.¹

Upon a reasoned deliberation, the Commissioner concurs with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ – for the reasons comprehensively detailed in his Initial Decision.

¹ It is noted, however, that petitioner's exceptions additionally take issue with the ALJ's use of a straight 4% figure in computing the award of pre-judgment interest to her. The Commissioner finds such argument to be wholly disingenuous in that the parties' Stipulation of Facts (Exhibit J-1) – executed June 18, 2012 – specifies at 8: "The Court will also include in its determination whether or not to award pre-judgment interest in the amount of 4%..." Had petitioner believed that her potential pre-judgment interest differed from this stipulated percentage, it behooved her to decline agreement with this provision of the document. Given the parties' Stipulation of Facts and the additional fact that petitioner's argument was never previously raised below, the Commissioner declines to entertain any argument in this regard at this point in time.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter. The Board is hereby directed to pay petitioner an award of $79,190.29 for the period December 15, 2007 through April 27, 2009 – as delineated in the ALJ's decision at p. 10 – as a consequence of its illegal termination of her employment.

Allan P. Dzwilewski, Esq., appearing for respondent (Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein & Celso, attorneys)

Record Closed: July 25, 2012

Decided: August 13, 2012

BEFORE JEFFREY A. GERSON, ALJ:

BACKGROUND AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Virginia Bush was a tenured secretary, employed by the Board of Education of the Warren County Technical School District. On or about November 8, 2007, the Board demanded that Bush sign a contract which violated her tenure status by allowing the Board to fire her without a hearing and with only ten-business-days' notice.

December 1, 2007: Bush was fired because of her refusal to sign the contract. The Board paid her salary until December 14, 2007, and her benefits until April 1, 2008.

February 26, 2008: Bush filed with the Commissioner of Education a request for a declaratory ruling that her tenure rights had been violated, and also sought an order of reinstatement.

March 19, 2008: The Board abolished Bush's old position.

April 23, 2009: An Initial Decision was issued by Judge James Geraghty, ALJ finding that Bush's termination was unlawful. Judge Geraghty also found that Bush did not have to be reinstated into the same exact position.

On or about April 28, 2009: Bush was offered the position of Child Study Team Secretary, a position which paid the same amount as her previous position. The job offer was not accepted, but the offer was extended again on June 3, 2009, June 22, 2009, and July 27, 2009. Id. at 3.

May 27, 2009: The Commissioner issued a Final Decision that held that Bush had been improperly terminated. The Commissioner also ordered the reinstatement of Bush "to a secretarial position," and awarded back pay and emoluments less mitigation.

September 8, 2009: Bush filed a new petition seeking back pay and emoluments.

August 5, 2010: The undersigned found that the Board owed back pay and emoluments for the period between December 15, 2007, and April 27, 2009. (Bush v. Warren County Technical School District, EDU 11569-09, Initial Decision (October 1, 2010) at 8, <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0> However, no back pay after April 28, 2009, because Bush should have accepted the CST Secretary position that the Board offered her.

February 9, 2011: The Commissioner ruled that Bush's failure to accept the CST Secretary position terminated her tenure rights, and ordered a fact-finding hearing to determine the appropriate back pay award for the period from December 15, 2007 (for salary) and April 1, 2008 (for benefits) through April 27, 2009. The Commissioner also ruled that the ALJ has the discretion to determine whether 4% pre-judgment interest should be added to the award.

June 18, 2012: A fact-finding hearing was held at the Office of Administrative Law.

The following facts were stipulated:

1. The issue on Remand before the Court is the amount of back pay for salary and benefits due Petitioner for the period between December 15, 2007, and April 27, 2009, less any applicable mitigation (Acting Commissioner of Education decision dated February 9, 2011, at p. *6).
2. Salary for the above relevant period would have been $67,840.89, assuming a 2% increment for the 2008-2009 year or $69,860.27, assuming an 8% increment for the 2008-2009 year.
3. Alternative medical premiums were $2,703.24.
4. Out-of-pocket medical expenses were $54.38.
5. Petitioner had accumulated 29 vacation days. Payment for said days would be $5,546, assuming a 2% increment for the 2008-2009 year, or $5,872.23, assuming an 8% increment for the 2009-2010 year.
6. Petitioner had earned and accumulated 192 sick days.

7. The issue before the Court is the Board's claim for an offset in mitigation totaling $40,120, which is calculated as follows:

For the period 12/15 to 12/31/2007 – 2 weeks @ $536/wk or $1,072;

For the period 1/1/2008 through 12/31/2008 – 52 weeks @ $560/wk or $29,120; and

For the period 1/1/2009 through April 27, 2009 – 17 weeks @ $584/wk or $9,928.

Petitioner disputes the claim that unemployment compensation, even if received by Petitioner, would be in mitigation of the amounts set forth in paragraphs 2 through 6 above. Petitioner further disputes that Petitioner would have received the maximum amount of benefits, for the full period listed above. Thus, the calculation set forth in paragraph 7 is solely to complete the record on remand and the Court will render an Initial Decision on the legal issue of the applicability of unemployment compensation and mitigation to this matter.

8. The Court will also include in its determination whether or not to award pre-judgment interest in the amount of 4%. (Acting Commissioner of Education Decision dated February 8, 2011, at p. *5).

LEGAL DISCUSSION

1. Bush was not required to seek unemployment benefits for the purpose of mitigating Warren County's damages, because even if she had received such benefits, Warren County would still have been required to reimburse the unemployment compensation fund upon a finding of wrongful termination.

New Jersey public policy dictates that an employer who wrongfully terminates an employee is not entitled to an offset of the damages it owes because the employee receives a "collateral source" of income, such as unemployment benefits. See Sporn v. Celebrity, 129 N.J. Super. 449, 453 (Ch. Div. 1974). When dealing with private employers, as was the case in Sporn, the wrongfully terminated employee is actually entitled to a windfall (to receive back pay and unemployment benefits). See Id. at 460.¹ A wrongfully terminated employee is not entitled to double recovery, when terminated by a public employer because the employee should not recover twice from the taxpayers, who fund both the public employer and the unemployment compensation fund. See Ujhely v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Linden, Agency Dkt. No. 266-7/84, Final Agency Decision at 1342-1343. Whether private or public, no reduction in the amount an offender must pay is allowed if an employer wrongfully terminates an employee. See Willis v. Dyer, 163 N.J. Super. 152, 165 (1976). A public employer must either pay damages directly to the employee, or reimburse the unemployment compensation fund if the employee has received such benefits. Ibid. Accordingly, Bush could not have mitigated or otherwise reduced the damages the Board was required to pay out because even if she had received unemployment benefits, the Board would have been required to reimburse the unemployment compensation fund. See Ibid.

Unemployment benefits are considered a "collateral source" of income. See Sporn, supra, 129 N.J. Super. at 453. "Receipt of benefits from a source collateral to the defendant, while lessening the effect of the financial losses of plaintiff, will not diminish damages otherwise recoverable from the wrongdoer in tort cases." Ibid. This is known as the "collateral source rule." Ibid. New Jersey's public policy reason for making unemployment compensation available to the general public is to provide economic security to employees who may lose their jobs through no fault of their own. See Id. at 459. Accordingly, the money set aside for the unemployment compensation fund must be used for this sole purpose. Ibid.

An employee's receipt of unemployment benefits has no effect whatsoever upon the total damages an employer owes when it wrongfully terminates. See Id. at 460. The court stated that "In any event the tortfeasor must discharge his obligation in full; the problem of oversatisfaction in such circumstances concerns only the parties to the contract and perhaps also the State itself." Ibid.

¹ Perhaps no such statute was in place at the time, but now, N.J.A.C. 12:17-10.1 permits the State to recoup its unemployment funds from a private employee who has been awarded back-pay and reinstated.

The Board contends that Sporn dealt with a private employer, and that the duty to mitigate damages by seeking unemployment compensation does exist when dealing with public employers. However, the cases cited by respondent, Ujhely and Willis, do not support this contention. The Commissioner ruled in Ujhely that since the employee received unemployment compensation, the amount he received in unemployment compensation would be deducted from the back pay owed to him by his employer. See Ujhely, supra, Final Decision at 1343. In that decision, if the Commissioner did not reduce the employer's back pay award by the unemployment benefits received, then the employee would have been paid twice by the taxpayers: once from his public employer, and again from the unemployment compensation fund. Ibid. The Commissioner's decision in Ujhely was based on the policy consideration that an employee should not receive a windfall (double recovery) from the public fund. Ibid. This is different from saying that the employee had a duty to seek unemployment benefits, or that doing so would relieve the employer of its responsibility to pay for its own wrongdoing. The employer is never relieved of its responsibility to pay out the money it owes to its employee, even when unemployment benefits have been paid to the employee. Willis, supra, 163 N.J. Super. at 165. The only difference is whether the employer pays the money it owes directly to the employee, or if the employer reimburses the unemployment compensation fund for the money it paid to the employee. Ibid.

The fact that Bush never applied for unemployment benefits does not relieve the Board of its responsibility to pay her the total amount it owes her in back-pay. If she had received unemployment benefits, then the Board's total award to Bush would have been less the amount Bush received in unemployment benefits, but the Board would still have owed the difference to the unemployment compensation fund.

2. Bush is entitled to pre-judgment interest pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.17, because Warren County's unilateral demand of Bush to relinquish her tenure status, and subsequent dismissal of Bush for her refusal to comply, do not conform to any of the proper grounds for dismissal of a tenured employee under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. Accordingly, these actions can be viewed as deliberate violation of the statute, or an act of bad faith.

Under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.17(c)(1), the Commissioner may award pre-judgment interest if the petitioner is entitled to a monetary award and can establish that the "denial of the monetary claim" was done in "bad faith" or in "violation" of any statute or rule. The tenure statute at issue is N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, which provides the following reasons as grounds for dismissal of tenured employees: "inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause." Also, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 allows for reduction in workforce due to economic necessity, as well as for other efficiency considerations. However, none of these reasons were relied upon when Warren County unilaterally tried to compel Bush to relinquish her tenure rights, which were protected by law. Warren County's termination of Ms. Bush can either be viewed as a violation of § 18A:6-10, or it can simply be viewed as an exercise of bad faith. There is no plausible scenario, based on the facts in the record, in which Warren County could have thought it had the right to make such a demand of a tenured employee, and then fire her upon refusal to comply. Since Petitioner has both sought pre-judgment interest and established that Warren County either violated a statute, or at the very least, acted in bad faith, it is within the discretion of the Court to award pre-judgment interest pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.17(d).

Warren County has violated a statute or acted in bad faith in the instant case, despite respondent's contention to the contrary. Respondent uses two cases to support its position. Basset v. Board of Education of Borough of Oakland, Bergen County, 223 N.J. Super. 136 (App. Div. 1988) can be distinguished because in that case, the tenured teacher's position was legitimately eliminated while she happened to be out on maternity leave, and a pre-negotiated contract contained clauses establishing pay rates for both "hourly teachers" as well as "part-time teachers." Id. at 139-140. When she came back from maternity leave, she was offered work on a part-time basis. Id. at 141. The school paid Basset at the hourly rate instead of the part-time rate. Ibid. The judge ruled that the teacher should have been paid at the part-time rate, not the hourly rate. Id. at 142. No evidence was offered to show that this violation of contract was done in bad faith, and without explicit mention by the court in this regard, it seems that the school could have reasonably misinterpreted the terms of the contract in the manner that they did. See Id. at 144.

No such misinterpretation could have occurred in the instant case. No just cause was given for Bush's removal. She was coerced into signing an agreement that would have stripped her of her tenure (a legally protected status), and was fired solely for failing to do so. Warren County could not have plausibly interpreted Ms. Bush's tenure rights in such a way that they could make the mistake of firing her in the manner that they did. Accordingly, Warren County's actions can easily be construed to be in violation of the tenure statute, or at the very least, an exercise of bad faith.

Furthermore, In re Distribution of Liquid Assets Upon Dissolution of the Union County Regional High School Dist. No. 1, A-0211-04T5 (App. Div. Oct. 11 2005), <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-courts-search-page.html>, the second case relied on by respondent, sheds no light on the instant case.²

Bush is entitled to receive 4% pre-judgment interest at the discretion of the Commissioner. See N.J.A.C. 6a:3-1.17(d); see also R. 4:42-11(a)(ii) and Publisher's Note (stating the appropriate percentage rate by year). Furthermore, the Commissioner ordered on remand for this Court to determine whether or not 4% pre-judgment interest was appropriate. Bush, supra, Final Decision at *5. Based on the foregoing considerations, 4% pre-judgment interest is appropriate.

3. Bush is not entitled to compensation from her unused sick days, because the policy clearly states that only retirees are eligible to receive them.

Warren County's policy regarding compensation for unused sick days states the following:

² The case describes the dissolution of a school district and the distribution of its assets among all of the municipalities in the district. No evidence was offered to show that any party involved deliberately failed to make payments or comply with any court orders. The factual complex of the case is nothing like the instant case, where respondent's unilateral demand of a tenured employee to relinquish her tenure protections is clearly an act of bad faith.

To qualify for the benefits of this section, Personnel must submit written notification to the Chief School Administrator of the Warrant County Vocational-Technical School, on or before February 1st of their intent to retire the following year. This paragraph pertains to retirement and should not be considered severance pay, therefore, this benefit shall only be paid when the employee submits proof of filing to either vest or begin collecting retirement benefits.

[(Ex. 19, Letter Br. in Support of Pet'r (June 17, 2012).)]

Bush nevertheless contends that she is entitled to compensation for her unused sick days because she was "illegally terminated." (See Letter Br. in Support of Pet'r at IV (June 17, 2012).) A conclusion that Bush was illegally terminated would logically infer that she had been deprived of her right to receive the benefits by engaging in the retirement process. (See Ibid.) Presumably, this would have entitled Bush to retain her unused sick days and the right to convert them to cash after she was initially reinstated. However, Bush was terminated a second time when she refused to be reinstated into a similar position, and the Commissioner held that the second termination was valid. Bush, supra, Final Decision at *5, Remanded, (February 9, 2011). Therefore, she has not been deprived of her right to retire and collect her sick-day benefits. She has been legitimately terminated and cannot be compensated for her unused sick days because the policy explicitly states that its terms and conditions only apply to retirees and should not be considered "severance pay." (See Ex. 19, Letter Brief in Support of Pet'r (June 17, 2012).) She could only have retained this right if her second termination was also illegal or otherwise invalid.

4. The percentage of salary increase has already been stipulated, and there is no reason to re-calculate the figure agreed to by the parties. The more appropriate increase is the 2% figure, since it is more consistent with Ms. Bush's recent pay raises.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

For the foregoing reasons, I CONCLUDE that Ms. Bush is entitled to 4% pre-judgment interest. She is also entitled to back pay for the entire period during which she was illegally terminated. The June 18 Stipulation provides figures for total back-salary and accrued vacation days based on both a 2% or 8% salary increase for the 2008-2009 year. The award will be calculated assuming a 2% increase, since it is the more appropriate figure based on the pay raises Bush has most recently received. Finally, Bush is not entitled to compensation for her unused sick-days, since the policy clearly states that unused sick days may only be converted to cash by retirees, and is not to be considered "severance pay."

Following is a list of specific damages claimed by Bush, and a brief explanation of the calculation of each value.

Back Salary: Assuming a 2% increase for the 2008-2009 year, as stipulated, total back salary equals $67,840.89. Total back salary plus 4% pre-judgment interest equals $70,554.52.

Accrued vacation days: Assuming a 2% increase for the 2008-2009 year, as stipulated, payment for Bush's 29 vacation days is $5,546.00. Total accrued vacation days plus 4% pre-judgment interest equals $5,767.84.

Emoluments: Both parties agree that the proper figure is $2,757.62, including out-of-pocket medical expenses. Total emoluments plus 4% pre-judgment interest equals $2,867.93.

Sick Days: There is no award for unused sick days, since they may only be converted to cash by retirees.

Total award including 4% pre-judgment interest: $79,190.29. It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SETTLEMENT AND RELEASE

This Stipulation of Settlement and Release ("Agreement") is made by and between Petitioner, Carolyn S. Brown, and the Respondent, Ewing Board of Education ("Board").

RECITALS

WHEREAS, in or about March of 2012, Respondent Ewing Board of Education held that, based on the results of a residency investigation, minor students T.B., W.B. and T.B. were not domiciled in the Ewing School District ("District") and thus not entitled to a free, public education in the District and passed a resolution ordering the removal of the students from the District; and

WHEREAS, Petitioner thereafter commenced an administrative action to challenge the Board's residency determination with regard to the above-referenced students.; and

WHEREAS, this administrative action is captioned C.S.B. o/b/o T.B., W.B. and T.B. v. Ewing Board of Education, and is presently pending before the Commissioner of Education in the Office of Administrative Law and docketed as OAL Dkt. No. EDU 7032-12S, Agency Dkt.

No. 114-4/12 ("the Litigation"), the allegations of which are detailed more fully in the Petition of Appeal served and filed in the Litigation; and

WHEREAS, in order to avoid the expense, inconvenience, distractions and inherent uncertainties associated with continuation of this dispute, and the fees and expenses that inevitably would result therefrom, the Parties, by this Agreement, herein agree to adopt a full and final settlement of any and all claims, lawsuits, complaints, and/or disputes between Petitioners and Respondent in connection with any and all damages and losses arising from the Litigation; and

WHEREAS, by this Agreement, Petitioner will voluntarily dismiss the Litigation with prejudice, without costs to any party as against the other;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of good and valuable consideration, the sufficiency and adequacy of which is acknowledged, the parties to this Agreement agree as follows:

1. The Parties mutually agree that, during the pendency of the residency investigation, which began on or about December 5, 2011 through June 30, 2012, T.B., W.B. and T.B. were found not to be domiciled in Ewing, but rather, in Trenton, New Jersey.
2. Petitioners shall pay the Board the sum of Six Thousand Dollars ($6,000.00), representing back tuition due and owing for the period of the students' ineligible attendance in the District during the 2011-2012 school year and which shall constitute a full and final settlement of the claim for back tuition asserted against Petitioners by Respondent Board of Education in the Litigation.
3. The amount of $6,000.00 is to be paid as follows: Within fifteen (15) days following the adoption by the Board of Education of a resolution accepting this Agreement, but in no case prior to the receipt of a fully executed copy of this Agreement, Petitioners shall make the initial payment in the amount of Three Hundred, Thirty Three Dollars ($333.00), in the form of a check made payable to the "Ewing Board of Education," hand-delivered or mailed to the office of Brian Falkowski, School Business Administrator/Board Secretary, at the District Administration office, 2099 Pennington Road, Ewing, New Jersey 08618. The remaining amount of $5,667.00 shall be paid in seventeen (17) equal monthly installments of Three Hundred Thirty Three Dollars and Thirty-Five Cents ($333.35) each, until the full amount has been satisfied. Nothing herein shall prevent Petitioner from paying a greater amount than the monthly payment amount, provided that at least the minimum payment of $333.35 is received monthly.

4. Each payment of $333.35 is due on the first (1st) day of each Month at the office of the School Business Administrator at the above address, beginning in the month follow that in which the initial payment was made. Payments received by the School Business Administrator after the 5th of the month shall incur a late fee of $5.00. Any payment and a breach of this Agreement. Petitioner will receive receipts for each payment from the School Business Administrator.
5. Petitioner, in consideration of this Stipulation of Settlement and Release, and in full, final, and complete settlement of the matter, hereby agree to a withdrawal and/or dismissal, with prejudice, of their Petition of Appeal in this matter.
6. Petitioner further understands and agrees that, if they fail to make a payment in accordance with the agreed-upon payment plan, the entire remaining unpaid amount shall immediately become due and owing, payable in a single lump sum.

7. Petitioner further agrees to indemnify Respondent for any and all costs, including court costs and attorneys fees, associated with any action instituted by Respondent to enforce the terms of this Agreement should Petitioner breach the Agreement and/or fail to adhere to the agreed-upon payment plan.
8. The terms of this Agreement shall in no way constitute acceptance or assent by the Board that T.B., W.B. or T.B., nor any other child of Petitioner is automatically entitled to a free public education in the District at any point in the future, and the Parties understand and agree that Respondent reserves the right to investigate the students' and/or Petitioner's residency status in the District at any time, in order to determine whether or not Petitioner and/or her child(ren) and grandchild(ren) remain domiciled in the District.
9. Petitioner represents that she intends to move in the Superior Court for an order of legal guardianship of students T.B., W.B. and T.B. This Agreement is contingent upon Petitioner having made a good faith effort to obtain legal guardianship over the students. Petitioner agrees to file such action in the Superior Court prior to September 1, 2012, i.e., the beginning of the 2012-2013 school year. The failure of Petitioner to apply for and obtain legal guardianship of the students at issue shall constitute a breach of this Agreement and render same null and void. The District reserves all rights in the event that Petitioner fails to apply for or obtain legal guardianship, including the continuation of this action or future actions for disenrollment of the students at issue.
10. The students will be enrolled in the District for the 2012-2013 school year in accordance with the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1, et seq., provided: (1) Petitioner obtains legal guardianship over the students, as set forth herein; and (2) both Petitioner and the students reside and remain domiciled in Ewing Township.

11. This Agreement is subject to approval by the Ewing Board of Education. If approved, the Board President is fully authorized to execute this Agreement on behalf of the Board.

12. In exchange for the above consideration, Respondent Ewing Board of Education agrees to release Petitioner from any and all claims, cross-claims, counterclaims, demands, liabilities, damages, indebtedness, costs, attorneys' fees, actions or obligations of any nature, which solely arise out of or are related in any way to this Litigation, through the date of this Agreement.

13. This Agreement shall not constitute an admission of wrongdoing by any party and no party shall be considered to be a prevailing party for any purpose.

14. This Agreement is to be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey.

15. Petitioner hereby represents that she is freely entering into this Agreement, that she was advised of her right to obtain counsel of her choosing and has conferred with her attorney regarding this Agreement, and that she has read and fully understand the contents and effects of this Agreement.

16. This Settlement may be subject to the approval of the Office of Administrative Law and the Commissioner of Education. In the event that such approval is necessary, the terms of this Agreement shall not be binding until said approvals are received.

17. This Agreement shall be binding upon all parties hereto, and shall inure to the benefit of each of them, as well as their respective estates, heirs, legal representatives, successors, predecessors, parent companies, subsidiaries, affiliates, owners, directors, officers, shareholders, members, employees, agents and assigns.

18. This Agreement constitutes the entire understanding and agreement by the parties with respect to the subject matter of this Agreement, and there are no agreements, undertakings, restrictions, representations or warranties as between the parties other than those set forth herein. This Agreement supersedes all previous arrangements or understandings, whether written or oral, and contains the entire agreement of the parties with respect to its subject matter. This Agreement may be modified or amended only by written agreement jointly executed by the Petitioners and Respondent.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have executed this Agreement, consisting of six pages, effective on the day and year first above written.

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons set forth in the recommended Order – that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to *Crowe v. Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL denying petitioner's application for emergent relief is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. This matter shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.

BEFORE BRUCE M. GORMAN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner seeks emergent relief restoring him to his position as a Director of Special School at the Penns Grove-Carneys Point Regional School District.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner filed an application for emergent relief with the Commissioner of Education. On August 15, 2012, this matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing on the requested emergent relief. On August 29, 2012, the case was heard at the Office of Administrative Law and the record closed on that date.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

This matter comes before this tribunal on petitioner's application for emergent relief. The relevant facts are as follows.

On January 3, 2012, the Board of Education of the Pennsville Grove-Carneys Point Regional School District (Board) appointed petitioner Interim Director of Special Services. On May 7, 2012, petitioner was appointed to the permanent position of Director of Special Services.

During the summer of 2012, several district employees reported that petitioner had engaged in unacceptable behavior. The alleged misconduct consisted of, inter alia, falling asleep during working hours; borrowing money from district employees, and directing subordinates to drive him off premises to strange locations out of the district. As a penalty for his conduct, the superintendent, Dr. Joseph A. Massare imposed an oral reprimand upon the petitioner.

On July 16, 2012, Dr. Massare reported his determination to the Board of Education. The Board of Education rejected Dr. Massare's action and terminated petitioner's employment. Petitioner's termination was subsequently reported in the local newspapers.

Prior to the July 16, 2012, meeting, petitioner was provided a Rice notice. At the meeting, petitioner requested an adjournment in order to obtain counsel. That request was denied.

Petitioner argues that he will suffer irreparable harm if the district is not enjoined and restrained from terminating his contract. He asserts that the termination and subsequent publication of the termination through the media have sullied his reputation and rendered him unemployable. Petitioner asserts that his legal right to prevail is settled. Specifically, he contends that the Board violated the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(a), which states, in pertinent part:

a. A board of education shall appoint, transfer or remove a certificated or non-certificated officer or employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator and by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board. The board shall not withhold its approval for arbitrary and capricious reasons.

Petitioner argues that the Board acted contrary to the recommendation of the superintendent and therefore its action is void as a matter of law. Finally, the petitioner argues that because he has effectively been rendered unemployable, he will suffer significant hardship if emergent relief is not granted, while the Board will suffer no harm.

The Board counters that petitioner will not suffer irreparable harm. The Board argues that petitioner has other remedies available, including reinstatement and back pay, should he prevail in the case in chief, as well as the possibility of a civil suit against the Board. The Board further disputes petitioner's reading of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(a), arguing that the second sentence of the statute grants the Board the right to reject the superintendents action. Finally, the Board argues that the school will suffer substantial hardship if petitioner is returned to his position. Petitioner supervises significant aspects of the school, including the child study team. The child study team members have submitted affidavits complaining about petitioner's conduct. They have made it clear that they cannot work with petitioner.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Petitioner carries the burden in seeking emergent. The standard is set forth in Crowe v. DeGoia, 90 N.J. 126, 132-34 (1982). See also, N.J.A.C.¹ 1:6A-12.1(e). Crowe requires a showing of each of the four specific criteria:

1. The relief must not be granted except when necessary to prevent irreparable harm, or harm for which there is no adequate legal remedy;
2. Relief should not be granted when the legal right underlying the applicant's claim is unsettled;
3. The applicant for relief must make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits; and
4. The relative hardship to the parties in granting or denying relief must be considered. Crowe at 32-34.

This application was brought on an emergent basis and, as a consequence, no testimony was taken. It is impossible to reach a factual determination herein based only upon the affidavits submitted and the oral argument of counsel. Clearly, significant issues of fact remain to be adjudicated at a plenary hearing.

With that caveat, I reach the following conclusions.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner will not suffer irreparable harm. Petitioner seeks reinstatement to his position as Director of Special Services. That is a remedy which is available to him at the conclusion of a plenary hearing. Similarly, any loss of pay can be remedied through an award of back pay following such a hearing. Petitioner argues that his reputation has been sullied, and can only be restored if he is reinstated to his position. His analysis is flawed. Petitioner's reputation can only be rehabilitated if he prevails following a full hearing of all the facts. Unless and until that hearing occurs, it is impossible to restore his reputation.

Accordingly, petitioner has failed to demonstrate the irreparable harm necessary for the granting of emergent relief.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has not established that the law is settled and emergent relief must be granted in his favor. N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(a) contains ambiguities which can only be unraveled after a full briefing of its meaning following a plenary hearing to establish the facts which it controls. The statute clearly states that the Board can terminate an employee only upon the superintendent's recommendation. It then states that such approval cannot be withheld for arbitrary and capricious reasons. The latter sentence suggests that the Board can override the superintendent. If that construction can be substantiated through applicable precedent, then the petitioner is reduced to an action seeking to prove that the board in an arbitrary and capricious manner. In either event, at this juncture petitioner has failed to demonstrate that the legal right underlying his claim is settled.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to make a preliminary showing of a reasonable probability of ultimate success on the merits. If the allegations contained in the affidavits submitted by the Board are credibly adduced at a plenary hearing, then the Board may well have had good cause to terminate petitioner. Those allegations may prove false, but only a plenary hearing can facilitate a determination of what is and what is not true.

I CONCLUDE that the relative hardship to the parties stands in equipoise. Certainly, petitioner will suffer financially during the period of time he is unemployed. But at the same time, the children for whom he is ultimately responsible must have a stable Director of Special Services at the helm. Accordingly, I FIND no imbalance in the relative hardship to the respective parties.

For all the reasons set forth above, the petitioner's application for emergent relief must be DENIED.

DECISION AND ORDER

I ORDER that petitioner's application for emergent relief be DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
OF VANESSA HART, SCHOOL : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF :
IRVINGTON, ESSEX COUNTY. : DECISION
_____ :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board filed tenure charges of excessive absenteeism and insubordination against respondent, a tenured secretary, and sought to terminate her employment with the district. Neither respondent nor any attorney acting on her behalf filed an answer to the petition following notice pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4.

The Commissioner concluded that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.4(h), the allegations – which respondent has chosen not to deny – may be deemed admitted and are sufficient to warrant termination of the respondent from her tenured position. Accordingly, the Commissioner granted summary decision to the petitioner and dismissed the respondent from her tenured secretarial position in petitioner's school district.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
OF VANESSA HART, SCHOOL	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF	:
_____	:

For Petitioner, Ronald C. Hunt, Esq.

No appearance by or on behalf of Respondent, Vanessa Hart.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on August 24, 2012 by way of certified tenure charges against respondent, a secretary in petitioner's district. Petitioner seeks respondent's removal for excessive absenteeism and insubordination.

By notice dated August 27, 2012, the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes (the Bureau) directed respondent to file an answer to the petition. The notice was sent to 402 Main Street, Unit 311, Metuchen, NJ – purportedly the last known address for respondent – via certified and regular mail. The certified mail receipt was signed and returned to the Bureau and the notice which was sent by regular mail was not.

The communication from the Bureau clearly provided respondent with notice that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4, an individual against whom tenure charges are filed shall have 15 days from receipt of the petition to file an answer. The Bureau has received neither an answer to the certified charges from the respondent nor from any attorney purporting to represent respondent.

The Commissioner concludes that the allegations – which respondent has chosen not to deny – may be deemed admitted, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.4(h), and are sufficient to warrant removal of respondent from her tenured position as a secretary.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that summary decision shall be granted to the petitioner, and that respondent is dismissed from her tenured position in the district's employ as of the date of the within decision.¹

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner sought reversal of the final decision of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) denying his request for a waiver of the Eight Semester Rule – which limits a student’s eligibility for high school athletics to eight consecutive semesters following his or her entrance into the 9th grade – to allow Erick Villagra (Villagra) to participate in sports during his senior year at Bernards High School (Bernards). Villagra played junior varsity soccer as a freshman and varsity soccer as a sophomore, prior to his family’s decision in June 2010 to send their son to Paraguay to attend school for financial and other personal reasons. Petitioner did not adjust well in Paraguay, and returned to the U.S. in July 2011. Subsequently, petitioner had to repeat his junior year at Bernards because he did not earn enough credits during the year he spent in Paraguay; petitioner played varsity soccer for Bernards during that year. He did not participate in sports during his year in Paraguay. In April 2012, Bernards High School filed an Eligibility Waiver Request with the NJSIAA requesting a waiver of the strict application of the Eight Semester Rule to enable Villagra to compete in soccer during his senior year. The request was denied, as NJSIAA found that petitioner’s case does not meet the test of “truly extraordinary circumstances” that would warrant a waiver of the Eight Semester Rule. Petitioner subsequently appealed the decision to the NJSIAA’s Eligibility Appeals Committee.

The Eligibility Appeals Committee (EAC) determined that it could not grant a waiver of the Eight Semester Rule because, inter alia: the family’s decision to send petitioner to school in Paraguay was voluntary; petitioner did not maintain the required academic standards during his time in Paraguay; petitioner is an excellent soccer player on a highly competitive team; and allowing petitioner to play soccer during his fifth year of high school would upset the competitive balance between schools and displace another Bernards student who only had eight semesters of eligibility.

The Commissioner upheld the NJSIAA’s decision and dismissed the petition, finding that petitioner did not meet his burden so as to entitle him to prevail on appeal. In so deciding, the Commissioner – who may not substitute his judgment for that of the NJSIAA on appeal – noted that the NJSIAA’s decision to deny the request for waiver was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

For Petitioner, Erick D. Villagra, Pro Se

For Respondent, Steven. P. Goodell, Esq. (Herbert, Van Ness, Cayci & Goodell, P.C.)

This case involves an appeal of a decision of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) denying the request of petitioner, Erick Villagra, for a waiver of the Eight Semester Rule to allow him to participate in soccer during his senior year at Bernards High School.

Athletic competition in New Jersey's public schools is overseen by the respondent, NJSIAA, a voluntary, non-profit organization which promulgates the rules and regulations governing high school athletics. See, B.C. v. Cumberland Reg. Sch. Dist., 220 N.J. Super. 214, 234 (App. Div. 1987). Article V, Section J of NJSIAA's Bylaws, Rules and Regulations restricts a student's eligibility to play sports to four years. Specifically, the provision – known as the Eight Semester Rule – provides that “[n]o student shall be eligible for high school athletics after the expiration of eight consecutive semesters following his or her entrance into the 9th grade. A student becomes ineligible for high school athletics when the class in which he/she was originally enrolled has graduated.” The NJSIAA Guidelines set forth the reasons for the Eight Semester Rule in the NJSIAA Handbook:

This rule is intended to prohibit “red shirting,” and is also aimed at preventing athletically gifted pupils who are not meeting academic standards from replacing other students who are maintaining their academic standards but who might not have the same athletic prowess. The rule is also aimed at maintaining a uniform progression among all member schools within a four-year cycle and equalizing competition within these schools.

In appropriate cases, the NJSIAA may grant a waiver of the eligibility rules if the overall objectives of the association and its member schools will not be undermined. The Eight Semester Rule can be waived when a student proves that he or she cannot comply with the rule due to circumstances beyond his or her control. Waivers of the eligibility rules, however, are not granted where a student has repeated an academic semester or year of secondary school for academic reasons. Additionally, the “waiver will take into account the size, agility and skills of the student and the degree to which these issues will fundamentally alter the competition.” (NJSIAA Handbook, p. 49).

The material facts in this case do not appear to be in dispute. Petitioner is a student at Bernards High School and he will begin his senior year in September 2012. In September 2008, petitioner began his freshman year at Bernards High School (Bernards) and played soccer as a freshman and a sophomore. Following his sophomore year, his parents made the decision –in June 2010 – to send him to Paraguay to attend school because his parents were having financial difficulties and had recently learned that their fifth child would be born with Down’s syndrome. Petitioner’s parents made the decision to send the petitioner and his sister to finish high school and to attend college in Paraguay because the cost of living and the cost of college is far less expensive than in the United States. Petitioner did not adjust well in Paraguay and, as a result, returned to the United States in July of 2011. Petitioner did not earn enough credits during the year he spent in Paraguay and therefore had to repeat his junior year at Bernards. Petitioner played junior varsity soccer as a freshman at Bernards and varsity soccer as a sophomore and junior at Bernards. Petitioner did not play any sports in Paraguay.

Based on the fact that petitioner has already had four years of athletic eligibility, on April 11, 2012 an Eligibility Waiver Request was filed by Bernards High School with the NJSIAA requesting a waiver from the strict application of the Eight Semester Rule so that the petitioner can participate in soccer during his senior year. On April 12, 2012 the NJSIAA Eligibility Committee voted 9-0 to deny the waiver request. The Eligibility Committee determined that petitioner is ineligible to participate in interscholastic athletics during his senior year because his case has not met the test of “truly extraordinary circumstances” warranting a waiver of the Eight Semester Rule.

Thereafter, the petitioner appealed the decision of the Eligibility Committee to the Eligibility Appeals Committee (EAC). Following a hearing on May 9, 2012 – at which sworn testimony was taken from the petitioner, his father and his aunt – the EAC concluded that it could not grant a waiver of the Eight Semester Rule. The EAC found that although the family made its decision in what they thought was the best interest of the petitioner, the family’s decision to send petitioner to Paraguay to school was a voluntary decision. The EAC was also concerned that the petitioner did not maintain the required academic standards during his time in Paraguay, noting that “waivers cannot be granted when they are based on a student’s failure to meet required academic standards.” (Eligibility Appeal Committee decision letter dated March 15, 2012). Additionally, the EAC determined that petitioner was an excellent soccer player on a highly-competitive team and that allowing him to participate in soccer during his fifth year of high school would upset the competitive balance between schools and would displace another Bernards High School student who only had eight semesters of eligibility.

On appeal, the petitioner argues that the NJSIAA should have granted the waiver request because his parents’ decision to send him to Paraguay for his junior year was a circumstance beyond his control that supports a waiver of the Eight Semester Rule. The petitioner stresses that he was a minor at the time his parents made the decision to send him to Paraguay and that he did not agree with the move. The petitioner also maintains that his grades were poor because he could not concentrate in school due to being homesick and having a difficult time adjusting to the new culture and environment. Finally, the petitioner contends that he did not participate in any sports while he was in Paraguay, and therefore he meets the eligibility rules.

In reply, the NJSIAA asserts that it provided the petitioner with elaborate due process, noting that this case was heard by two NJSIAA committees, both of which unanimously denied the request for a waiver of the Eight Semester Rule. The NJSIAA stresses that the Eight Semester Rule is designed to ensure that all students have an equal opportunity to play high school sports, and limits that opportunity to four years. Here, petitioner is seeking an opportunity to play soccer in his fifth year of high school. The NJSIAA emphasizes that despite the fact that the family's decision to send petitioner to Paraguay was undoubtedly made for good reasons, the decision was entirely voluntary. The NJSIAA further maintains that the petitioner did not maintain the required academic standards during his time in Paraguay and waivers are not granted when a student has to repeat a grade due to academic difficulties. Additionally, allowing the petitioner a fifth year of eligibility would be unfair to other schools because he has had an extra year to grow and mature; he is an excellent soccer player; and he was a starter on a team that won a State Championship. Finally, if petitioner was able to play soccer during his fifth year of high school it would be unfair to other students at Bernards High School because he would be taking playing time away from another student who only has four years of eligibility. Therefore, the NJSIAA argues that it did not apply its rules arbitrarily and capriciously to the petitioner, and as such the Commissioner should affirm the decision of the EAC.

Upon careful review and consideration, the Commissioner determines to uphold the decision of the NJSIAA and dismiss petitioner's appeal. As explained above, the NJSIAA is a voluntary association of public and nonpublic schools, organized pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:11-

3, to oversee athletics for its member schools in accordance with a constitution, bylaws, rules and regulations approved by the Commissioner of Education and adopted annually by member schools, for which they become school policy enforceable by the NJSIAA.

It is well-established that the Commissioner's scope of review in matters involving NJSIAA decisions, including determinations made by the Eligibility Appeals Committee, is appellate in nature. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3; Board of Education of the City of Camden v. NJSIAA, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 182, 188. That is, the Commissioner may not overturn an action by the NJSIAA in applying its rules, absent a demonstration by the petitioner that it applied such rules in a patently arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-7.5(a)(2); B.C. v. Cumberland Regional School District, 220 N.J. Super. 214, 231-232 (App. Div. 1987); Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 297 (App. Div. 1960). Nor may the Commissioner substitute his own judgment for that of the NJSIAA, where due process has been provided and where there is sufficient credible evidence in the record as a whole to serve as a basis for the decision reached by the NJSIAA. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-7.5(a)(1); Dam Jin Koh and Hong Jun Kim v. NJSIAA, 1987 S.L.D. 259.

Additionally, the New Jersey courts have spoken as to the narrow scope of "arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable" in the context of challenges such as this one:

In the law, "arbitrary" and "capricious" means having no rational basis.  Arbitrary and capricious action of administrative bodies means willful and unreasoning action, without consideration and in disregard of circumstances. Where there is room for two opinions, action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration, even though it may be believed that an erroneous conclusion has been reached. (citations omitted) Bayshore Sew. Co. v. Dep't of Env't. Protection, 122 N.J. Super. 184, 199-200 (Ch. Div. 1973), aff'd 131 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1974).

Petitioners seeking to overturn decisions of the NJSIAA therefore bear a heavy burden and, considering the record of this matter in light of the prescribed standard of review, the Commissioner cannot find that petitioner herein has met his burden so as to entitle him to prevail on appeal.

More specifically, the Commissioner cannot find that the NJSIAA applied its rules in a patently arbitrary or unreasonable manner, in light of its duty to ensure fairness and integrity in athletic competition statewide. It is undisputed that the petitioner had to repeat his junior year when he returned to the United States because he did not maintain the required academic standards during his time in Paraguay. The NJSIAA waiver provisions advise that waivers are not granted when a student has to repeat a grade due to academic difficulties. Further, the EAC's determination that the competitive balance between schools would be impacted if petitioner was afforded an opportunity to play soccer during his fifth year of high school was not arbitrary and capricious in light of the fact that the petitioner is an excellent soccer player at a school with an exceptional soccer team.

Accordingly – the Commissioner having found that petitioner was afforded the due process to which he was entitled and that the NJSIAA's decision denying the request for waiver was neither arbitrary nor unreasonable – the NJSIAA's decision is upheld and the petition of appeal dismissed.

 OF DELRAN, BURLINGTON COUNTY. :

The record of this matter, the parties' proposed Settlement and Release (Agreement), and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1. Upon careful review of the record, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge that, under the circumstances of this matter, the proposed settlement is consistent with established standards governing the settlement of tenure matters. In re Cardonick, decided by the Commissioner April 7, 1982, aff'd State Board of Education, April 6, 1983, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846; N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6.

According to the Agreement, respondent consented to resign on August 9, 2012. The parties are reminded that a settlement of litigation before the Commissioner is not binding until the Commissioner approves the settlement. In light of the foregoing, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter, provided that the parties have already implemented certain settlement terms, or have agreed upon a mutually satisfactory alternate date for the effectuation of those provisions. Assuming same, the matter is hereby dismissed, subject to compliance with the terms of the settlement.

Roger A. Barbour, Esq., for petitioner (Barbour & Associates, attorneys)

Cristal Holmes-Bowie, Esq., for petitioner (Michael A. Armstrong & Associates, LLC, attorneys)

Record Closed: August 9, 2012

Decided: August 10, 2012

BEFORE SUSAN M. SCAROLA, ALJ:

The School District of the Township of Delran, petitioner, brings tenure charges against the respondent Karin Latham, a school secretary, for conduct unbecoming a secretary and insubordination as defined in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10. This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on June 6, 2012, for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On August 2, 2012, the parties advised that they had negotiated a proposed settlement. An executed Mutual Release and Settlement Agreement indicating the terms of the settlement is attached. A copy of the Resolution of the Board of Education dated August 7, 2012, adopting the settlement and implementing its terms, is also attached.

I have reviewed the terms of the settlement, and conferred with counsel on August 9, 2012. Counsel for the petitioner indicated that the district determined that permitting the respondent to resign in good standing was an appropriate resolution of this matter. The respondent is a secretary who had no certificates or licensing requirements. She had been hospitalized on several occasions during her employment and suffered from major depression as well as a number of other significant medical problems, both physical and mental. She continues under treatment. The district had spent considerable time and effort to bring this matter forward, and determined that the certain resolution of resignation was preferable to litigation and an uncertain outcome. The district also recognized that the medical problems may have played a part in the basis for the charges. The respondent preferred to resign in good standing so that in the event her health improves, she will be able to pursue gainful employment elsewhere.

Accordingly, I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by the parties' signatures on the Mutual Release and Settlement Agreement.
2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Based upon a review of the record as well as the proposed settlement agreement, and the representation of the parties on the record of this matter, I make the following FINDINGS:

1. The Settlement is in the public interest as it conserves the Board's resources and delivers a final result, whereby John Tracey will no longer be associated with the District, rather than the unpredictable outcome of a hearing. Litigation costs associated with a scheduled multiple day hearing have been considered against the monetary terms of the Settlement.
2. If a hearing becomes necessary, the District has identified school personnel who are potential witnesses.
3. Under the proposed settlement, John Tracey has submitted his resignation effective August 31, 2012. John Tracey will be paid his salary from April 24, 2012 through August 31, 2012 including for the months of July and August.
4. Under the best of circumstances, the hearing needs to be conducted and then the administrative law judge would have forty-five days to prepare an initial decision and the Commissioner would have an additional forty-five days for review and issuance of a final decision.
5. If the tenure matter proceeds to hearing, both parties would incur costs of paying their attorneys for a likely lengthy hearing.
6. John Tracey has had the opportunity of counsel in this matter and has represented that he fully understands his rights and implications of this argument and he is aware that the Commissioner of Education may refer this matter to the N.J. State Board of Examiners which may suspend or revoke his certificate.
7. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the terms of settlement are in the public interest.

It is ORDERED that the parties comply with the terms of settlement and that these proceedings are hereby concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

4. No Admissions

This Agreement is entered into solely for the purpose of resolving disputed claims, and neither the execution, delivery; nor performance of this Agreement, nor Mr. Tracey's resignation, shall constitute or be construed at any time or for any purpose to be an admission of fact or liability by any of the parties; and the parties further agree that neither this Agreement and

6. Authority

This Agreement is subject to Board approval. If approved, the Board President is fully authorized to execute this Agreement on behalf of the Board.

Any failure to enforce any provision of this Agreement shall not operate as a waiver of such provision or of any other provision.

10. Confidentiality

Mr. Tracey and the Board understand and agree that this Agreement, its terms, and the matters discussed in negotiating its terms are confidential, to the extent permitted by law. Neither party may directly or indirectly, divulge, discuss, publicize, disclose or in any way communicate the fact of this Agreement or the terms of this Agreement, the discussion or circumstances surrounding the negotiation or execution of this Agreement to anyone except to the New Jersey Department of Education, the State of New Jersey or its agencies or instrumentalities, without the express written authorization by an authorized representatives of the other party, unless compelled to do so pursuant to law. 13. Satisfaction of In re Cardonick, 1990 S.L.D. 842 (1990)

The parties agree that this matter satisfies the six (6) criteria for settlement set forth in In re Cardonick, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846 (1990) and delineated in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6.

- i. Documentation as to the nature of the charges - See Exhibit A.
- ii. Circumstances justifying settlement - Mr. Tracey will tender his resignation from the District effective August 31, 2012 making the tenure charges moot.
- iii. Consent of both the charged and charging parties - The agreement has been executed by both parties.
- iv. Charged party entered into this agreement with a full understanding of his rights - See Paragraph 7, supra.
- v. Agreement in the public interest - This agreement is in the public interest because Mr. Tracey will resign from the District if this agreement is approved, making the matter moot. Moreover, settlement will save the District a significant amount of time and money. In addition, it will save numerous student witnesses and faculty members the stress of having to testify at trial as well as missed school time. Finally, the State Board of Examiners may proceed against Mr. Tracey's certificate if it deems the charges sufficiently serious to warrant revocation of same.
- vi. Referral to State Board of Examiners - See Paragraph 12, supra.

14. Entire Agreement

This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties with respect to the subject matters herein, and supersedes and integrates any and all prior representations, negotiations, discussions, understandings and agreements, whether oral or written. Each party acknowledges that neither the other party, nor any agent or attorney of the other party, has made any promise, representation or warranty whatsoever, express or implied, not contained in this Agreement to induce it to execute this Agreement. This Agreement is subject to Board Approval.

15. Construction

The terms of this Agreement are not to be construed against any one party but are to be construed as if all parties prepared it equally.

16. Law Governing

This Agreement is governed by the laws of New Jersey.

SETTLEMENT AND RELEASE

This Stipulation of Settlement and Release ("Agreement") is made by and between Petitioner, Wesley Cordy, Sr., and the Respondent, Ewing Township Board of Education ("Board").

RECITALS

WHEREAS, in or about December of 2010, the Respondent Board found, based on the results of a residency investigation, that minor student W.C. was not domiciled in the Ewing Township School District ("District") and thus not entitled to a free, public education in the District; and

WHEREAS, in or about February of 2011 the Board passed a resolution ordering the removal of the W.C. from the District; and

WHEREAS, Petitioner thereafter commenced an administrative action, with the above-captioned docket information, to challenge the Board's residency determination with regard to W.C.; and

WHEREAS, during the pendency of the above-captioned residency appeal, W.C., has remained a student within the District despite the District's determination that W.C. was domiciled outside of the District and thus ineligible for a free, public education within the District; and

WHEREAS, the District now, by way of this Agreement, determines that W.C. is domiciled within the District and is eligible for attendance within the District.

WHEREAS, by this Agreement, Petitioner will voluntarily dismiss the Litigation with prejudice, without costs to any party as against the other;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of good and valuable consideration, the sufficiency and adequacy of which is acknowledged, the parties to this Agreement agree as follows:

1. Petitioner shall pay the Respondent Board the Nine-Hundred Fifty Dollars ($950.00) in back-tuition to be paid One Hundred Dollar ($100.00) increments on the Fifteenth Day of each month beginning on September 1, 2012, until that amount is paid fully, with one Fifty Dollar ($50.00) increment representing the remaining Balance due on June 1, 2013.
2. Petitioner further understands and agrees that, if he fails to make a payment in accordance with the agreed-upon payment plan, the entire remaining unpaid amount shall immediately become due and owing, payable in a single lump sum.

3. Petitioner further agrees to indemnify Respondent for any and all costs, including court costs and attorneys fees, associated with any action instituted by Respondent to enforce the terms of this Agreement should Petitioner fail to adhere to the agreed-upon payment plan. Petitioner also agrees not to contest any wage garnishment action if he fails to make the agreed-up payments.
4. Petitioner, in consideration of this Stipulation of Settlement and Release, and in full, final, and complete settlement of the matter, hereby agrees to withdraw, with prejudice, his Petition of Appeal in this matter.
5. The terms of this Agreement shall in no way constitute acceptance or assent by the Board that W.C. nor any other child of Petitioner's is automatically entitled to a free public education in the District at any point in the future, and the Parties understand and agree that Respondent reserves the right to investigate Petitioner's residency status in the District at any time, in order to determine whether or not Petitioner and/or his children remain domiciled in the District.
6. This Agreement is subject to approval by the Ewing Township Board of Education. If approved, the Board President is fully authorized to execute this Agreement on behalf of the Board.
7. In exchange for the above consideration, Respondent Ewing Township Board of Education agrees to release Petitioner from any and all claims, cross-claims, counterclaims, demands, liabilities, damages, indebtedness, costs, attorneys' fees, actions or obligations of any nature, which solely arise out of or are related in any way to this Litigation, up to and through the date of this Agreement.

8. This Agreement shall not constitute an admission of wrongdoing by any party and no party shall be considered to be a prevailing party for any purpose.
9. This Agreement is to be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey.
10. Petitioner hereby represents that he is freely entering into this Agreement, that he is acting with the advice of counsel of his choosing, or on his own accord being of legal age and sound mind, and that he has read and fully understands the contents and effects of this Agreement.
11. This Agreement shall be binding upon all parties hereto, and shall inure to the benefit of each of them, as well as their respective estates, heirs, legal representatives, successors, predecessors, parent companies, subsidiaries, affiliates, owners, directors, officers, shareholders, members, employees, agents and assigns.
12. This Agreement constitutes the entire understanding and agreement by the parties with respect to the subject matter of this Agreement, and there are no agreements, undertakings, restrictions, representations or warranties as between the parties other than those set forth herein. This Agreement supersedes all previous arrangements or understandings, whether written or oral, and contains the entire agreement of the parties with respect to its subject matter. This Agreement may be modified or amended only by written agreement jointly executed by the Petitioner and Respondent.

Re: Janine Walker Caffrey v. Board of Education of the City of Perth Amboy, Middlesex County, Agency Dkt. No. 296-9/12.

Dear Counsel,

I have reviewed the materials filed in connection with petitioner Janine Walker Caffrey's (petitioner) motion for emergent relief and request to be immediately reinstated as superintendent of schools. Upon review of the submissions, I find that the Perth Amboy Board of Education's (Board) action on September 22, 2012 – voting to place the petitioner on administrative leave before the Commissioner issued the final decision in the matter of Janine Walker Caffrey v. Board of Education of the City of Perth Amboy, Middlesex County, Agency Dkt. No.122-5/12, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 07205-12 – was premature, and as such the petitioner shall be immediately reinstated.

Despite the intricate procedural history between the parties, it is undisputed that on May 7, 2012 the Board invoked the Doctrine of Necessity, and the majority of the Board membership voted to put the petitioner on administrative leave. That action is the subject of pending litigation between the parties in the case of Janine Walker Caffrey v. Board of Education of the City of Perth Amboy, Middlesex County, Agency Dkt. No.122-5/12, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 07205-12. Although the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) issued a decision in that matter on September 11, 2012, the final decision has not been issued and as such the underlying issues in dispute remain unresolved. Yet on September 22, 2012, the Board again invoked the Doctrine of Necessity, and again voted to place petitioner on administrative leave.

It is important to recognize that the recommended decision of an ALJ does not have full force and effect when it is issued, as the Commissioner is authorized by law to adopt, modify or reject the Initial Decision. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c). Moreover, the Board's attempt to characterize the September 22, 2012 vote as new action is unpersuasive as it effectively repeated the action that was taken on May 7, 2012 when the Board invoked the Doctrine of Necessity to place petitioner on administrative leave. Therefore, I find that the Board's action on September 22, 2012 was premature in light of the fact that a final decision has not yet been issued in Janine Walker Caffrey v. Board of Education of the City of Perth Amboy, Middlesex County, Agency Dkt. No.122-5/12, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 07205-12.

Accordingly, the petitioner's motion to be immediately reinstated as superintendent of schools is hereby granted. Upon receipt of the Board's answer to the amended petition, the matter will be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law.¹

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the papers filed in connection with the Petition for Declaratory Ruling in the matter captioned Board of Education of the Township of Winfield, Union County v. T.W. and A.W., on behalf of minor children, A.W. and A.W. and Board of Education of the Township of Irvington, Essex County, Agency Dkt. No. 226-8/12. Therein, petitioner (an approved choice school) seeks a declaration – pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:36B-22 and N.J.S.A. 18A:36B-20, as well as the statutory and common law obligations of the Board to ensure student safety – that respondent Board of Education of Irvington's decision to provide aid in-lieu-of transportation to respondents T.W. and A.W. for their school choice students, when it is aware that the students are utilizing public transportation to travel to the choice district, constitutes a violation of its duty of care and, further, requiring this Board to find alternate means of transportation for these students. I have determined not to consider this matter as one for declaratory ruling, pursuant to my discretionary authority under N.J.A.C. 6A:3-2.1(a). I find, instead, that this matter – including respondents T.W. and A.W.'s motion to dismiss – should proceed as a Petition of Appeal.

Accordingly, this matter will be transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for hearing consistent with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.1 et seq.

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the submissions filed in connection with the request of the petitioners for Interlocutory Review of the appended September 10, 2012 Order of Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Richard McGill denying their motion for summary decision in the matter entitled Arthur Matthews and the Horace Mann Insurance Companies v. Board of Education of the Union County Vocational Technical School, Union County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 1666-10, Agency Dkt. No. 9-1/10. Upon my review of the Order and the filings in connection with this interlocutory review request, I have determined to set aside the ALJ's denial of summary decision to petitioners.

Petitioners here are seeking reimbursement for costs and fees expended in the defense and settlement of a civil complaint filed on February 5, 2008 in the Union County Superior Court, Law Division by S.F. – a student at the Union County Vocational Technical School – alleging that petitioner Matthews assaulted her while both were present at school, causing her personal injury.

The ALJ's Order here found that petitioners' claim for reimbursement was not barred by: 1) Res Judicata (at pages 7-10); 2) the Entire Controversy Doctrine (at pages 10-11); 3) the Torts Claims Act (at page 12); N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6, even though the monies Matthews seeks to recover were expended by petitioner Horace Mann Insurance Co. (at pages 13-14); and the fact that petitioner Matthews had been accused of assault (at page 14). Notwithstanding these correct determinations, the ALJ denied petitioner's motion for summary decision based on his perception that there were outstanding genuine issues of material fact. In so determining he stated:

[w]ith respect to the question of whether there is any genuine issue of material fact, the key provision in the Joint Stipulation of Facts from petitioners' perspective is Paragraph 12, which indicates that there was no adjudication of the underlying facts in the civil lawsuit as the matter ended with a settlement. Nonetheless, respondent argues in effect that the scope of the material facts extends beyond the Joint Stipulation of Facts. As respondent points out, it submitted evidential materials in regard to the first set of motions for summary decision indicating that its investigation supported the student's allegations of assault. A written statement by S.F. indicates that Matthews pulled her arm, yanked her out of her seat and then grabbed her neck. Interviews of two other students support this version of the events, but another student directly contradicted this account. It is noteworthy that petitioners have not specifically denied S.F.'s version of the events. Under the circumstances, petitioners have not established that there are no genuine issues of material fact. It follows that petitioners' motion for summary decision must be denied. (ALJ's Order at 6)

The Commissioner finds and concludes that whether the ALJ denied petitioners' summary decision based on a perceived absence of petitioner Matthews' denial of the assault allegations or upon a belief that an adjudication of this issue is required in order for petitioners to establish their entitlement to indemnification, his determination in this regard was incorrect. Initially, materials attached to petitioners' petition of appeal in this matter include petitioner Matthews' Answer to the Civil Complaint filed against him, which unequivocally denied the assault charges against him. Secondly, for the reasons detailed below, petitioners are entitled, per se, to reimbursement here. Their entitlement is in no way conditioned on a relitigation which exonerates petitioner Matthews of the allegations against him.

A school employee's entitlement to reimbursement for his legal fees and costs in connection with the defense of a civil matter is specifically controlled by N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6, which – in pertinent part – specifies:

Whenever any civil or administrative action or other legal proceeding has been or shall be brought against any person holding any...employment under the jurisdiction of any board of education...for any act or omission arising out of and in the course of the performance of the duties of such...employment...the board shall defray all costs of defending such action, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses, together with costs of appeal, if any, and shall save harmless and protect such person from any financial loss resulting therefrom.

By its very terms, to qualify for the protection afforded under this statute as a consequence of the civil proceeding brought against him, the conduct triggering the legal action against Mr. Matthews must have 1) arisen out of the performance of the individual's duties, and 2) occurred in the course of performing those duties. The outcome of the civil litigation addressed by this statute is irrelevant; both successful and unsuccessful litigants are protected as long as the above two criteria are satisfied. Here, the civil case against Mr. Matthews was settled without admission or adjudication of the alleged facts and there is, therefore, no proof that he engaged in any untoward conduct toward minor child, S.F. The only undisputed conduct existing in this matter is that the alleged events took place at school, during school hours, while Mr. Matthews was engaged in performing his duties as a teacher.¹ Consequently, the alleged behavior on which the civil suit was predicated arose out of and in the course of the performance of the duties of Mr. Matthews' employment, (See Bower v. Board of Education of the City of East Orange, 149 N.J. 416 (1977)) thereby satisfying the criteria which entitles petitioners to indemnification pursuant to the terms of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6. Further investigation or subsequent adjudication as to the possible veracity of the underlying charge in additional forums is not contemplated, authorized, or required by this provision. Consequently, as there are no outstanding issues of material fact which would serve to change petitioners' entitlement to indemnification under this statute, I am compelled to grant petitioners' motion for summary decision here.

Notwithstanding the legal inevitability of this result, the Board should be fully aware that if they believe that their own independent investigation supports the student's allegations of assault, there is nothing which would preclude them from filing tenure charges against Mr. Matthews should they so desire.

Accordingly, the September 10, 2012 Order of the ALJ is hereby set aside and summary decision is granted to petitioners. The Board is hereby directed to compensate the petitioners for the reasonable legal fees and costs of defense of the civil suit of S.F. against Mr. Matthews, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.

Sincerely,

ARTHUR MATTHEWS AND THE HORACE MANN INSURANCE COMPANY,

Petitioners,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE UNION COUNTY VOCATIONAL TECHNICAL SCHOOL, UNION COUNTY,

Respondent.

Edward A. Cridge, Esq., for petitioners (Wills, O'Neill & Mellk, attorneys)

Robert F. Varady, Esq., for respondent (LaCorte, Bundy, Varady & Kinsella,

BEFORE RICHARD McGILL, ALJ:

Arthur Matthews and the Horace Mann Insurance Company ("petitioners") challenge a determination by the Board of Education of the Union County Vocational Technical School ("respondent") to deny their request for reimbursement for the costs and fees expended in the defense and settlement of a civil law suit which alleged that Matthews assaulted a student, F.S., at respondent's as Union County Vocational Technical School. Both parties now move for summary decision.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petition in this matter was filed with the Commissioner of Education on January 15, 2010, invoking the Commissioner's authority to hear and determine controversies arising under the school laws pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. On February 3, 2010, respondent filed an Answer to the petition. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law on February 16, 2010, for determination as a contested case.

Prior to the filing of the currently pending cross-motions for summary decision, petitioners filed a motion for summary decision on March 9, 2010. Respondent then filed a motion for summary decision on March 24, 2010, and subsequently responsive papers to petitioners' motion.

Three Orders were issued on August 26, 2010. One Order denied petitioners' motion for summary decision, because there were genuine issues of material fact concerning an incident on or about February 27, 2006. The second Order denied respondent's motion for summary decision, because there were genuine issues of material fact concerning the incident on or about February 27, 2006. The third Order denied respondent's motion to dismiss the petition in this matter as to the Horace Mann Insurance Company.

By letter dated September 1, 2010, petitioners sought interlocutory review of the denial of their motion for summary decision. The request was denied by the Acting Commissioner by letter dated September 13, 2010.

On October 26, 2010, a substitution of attorney was filed for respondent. After a hearing was scheduled and adjourned on two occasions, the parties agreed to submit cross-motions for summary decision based upon stipulated facts.

Petitioners' and respondent's motions for summary decisions were received on November 1, 2011, and October 28, 2011, respectively. Respondent filed responsive papers on November 14, 2011. Petitioners did not file a response, but they did submit decisions in other cases as precedent by letters dated December 22, 2011, and April 24, 2012. In response to the undersigned's request, the parties submitted supplemental briefs on or about July 24, 2012.

MOTIONS FOR SUMMARY DECISION

A. Legal Standard

A motion for summary decision should be granted where there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). The same standard is applied in the courts of this State pursuant to R. 4:46-2. Summary judgment "is designed to provide a prompt, businesslike and inexpensive method" to dispose of actions which do not present any genuine issue of material fact. Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67, 74 (1954). If the opposing party offers only facts which are immaterial or insubstantial in nature, these circumstances should not defeat a motion for summary judgment. Judson v. Peoples Bank & Trust Co. of Westfield, Id., at 75. Although the pleadings may raise a factual issue, summary judgment procedure pierces the allegations in the pleadings, where the other papers show the absence of any genuine issue of material fact. Ibid. Excessive caution which would undercut the purposes of a motion for summary judgment should be avoided. Pierce v. Ortho Pharmaceutical Corp., 84 N.J. 58, 65 (1980).

In determining whether there exists a genuine issue as to a material fact, the judge must "consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party in consideration of the applicable evidentiary standard, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party." Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 142 N.J., 520, 523 (1995).

B. Stipulated Facts

The parties submitted a Joint Stipulation of Facts, which provides as follows:

1. During all relevant times hereto, Petitioner Arthur Matthews was employed as a tenured teacher by Respondent.
2. On February 5, 2008, Petitioner Matthews was named as a Defendant in a lawsuit captioned [S.F.] v. Arthur Matthews and Union County Board of Education, filed in the Union County Superior Court, Law Division, Docket No. 0435-08 (hereinafter the "Lawsuit.")
3. The Lawsuit alleged that, on or about February 27, 2006, plaintiff S.F., a student at the Union County Vocational Technical School, was assaulted by Petitioner Matthews, a teacher at the School, while both were present in the School during school hours.
4. By letter of April 8, 2008, Respondent's Insurance Carrier, Zurich, declined to provide Petitioner Matthews with defense coverage in the Lawsuit. Pursuant to an insurance agreement, Petitioner Horace Mann Insurance Company assigned Arnold M. Mellk, Esq., of the law firm of Wills, O'Neill & Mellk to defend Petitioner Matthews, and an Answer was accordingly filed on his behalf.
5. Petitioner Matthews was provided with a defense by Petitioner Horace Mann Insurance Company pursuant to a liability policy under which Petitioner Matthews, as a member of the New Jersey Education Association, constituted an insured.
6. On December 8, 2008, the Hon. Lisa F. Chrystal, J.S.C., granted Summary Judgment in favor of the defendant Union County Board of Education. The Order stated that:

summary judgment be and hereby is entered on behalf of defendants, Union County Vocational Technical School i/p/a Union County Board of Education, and against plaintiff, [S.F.], dismissing the Complaint and any crossclaims against defendants, Union County Vocational Technical School i/p/a Union County Board of Education with prejudice . . .

7. On September 21, 2009, plaintiff and defendant Arthur Matthews settled the Lawsuit for $10,000.00. Petitioner Matthews did not contribute to this settlement amount, which was paid entirely by Petitioner Horace Mann Insurance Company.
8. Petitioner Matthews did not pay counsel fees to the attorneys representing him in the Lawsuit.
9. On October 16, 2009, a Stipulation of Dismissal with Prejudice was filed with the Court as to Defendant Matthews.
10. By Letter of November 18, 2009, Petitioners requested that Respondent reimburse them for the costs and fees expended in the defense of Petitioners and settlement of the Lawsuit pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.
11. By letter of November 24, 2009, Respondent denied Petitioners' request for reimbursement.
12. There was never any civil or criminal adjudication or admission by Petitioner Matthews, that he assaulted or otherwise harmed S.F. S.F.'s allegations were never submitted to a trier of fact and the case settled without an admission of liability or wrongdoing by Mr. Matthews.
13. All of the costs and fees sought by Petitioners herein were expended by the Horace Mann Insurance Company.

It is noteworthy that the Joint Stipulation of Facts does not include any details as to the incident on or about February 27, 2006, that precipitated the lawsuit.

C. Applicable Statute

The applicable statute is N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6, which reads in pertinent part as follows:

Whenever any civil or administrative action or other legal proceeding has been . . . brought against any person holding . . . employment under the jurisdiction of any board of education, . . . for any act or omission arising out of and in the course of the performance of the duties of such . . . employment . . ., the board shall defray all costs of defending such action, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses, together with costs of appeal, if any, and shall save harmless and protect such person from any financial loss resulting therefrom; . . . [N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 (emphasis added).]

D. Petitioners' Motion

In order to prevail on a motion for summary decision, petitioners must establish that there is no genuine issue of material fact, that any pertinent act or omission arises out of and in the course of the performance of the duties of Matthews' employment and that respondent's other legal arguments are without merit. Petitioners' previous motion for summary decision was denied, because there were genuine issues of material fact. The only real difference from the previous motion is that the parties have submitted a Joint Stipulation of Facts.

With respect to the question whether there is any genuine issue of material fact, the key provision of the Joint Stipulation of Facts from petitioners' perspective is Paragraph 12, which indicates that there was no adjudication of the underlying facts in the civil lawsuit as the matter ended with a settlement. Nonetheless, respondent argues in effect that the scope of the material facts extends beyond the Joint Stipulation of Facts. As respondent points out, it submitted evidential materials in regard to the first set of motions for summary decision indicating that its investigation supported the student's allegations of assault. A written statement by S.F. indicates that Matthews pulled her arm, yanked her out of her seat and then grabbed her neck. Interviews of two other students support this version of the events, but another student directly contradicted this account. It is noteworthy that petitioners have not specifically denied S.F.'s version of the events. Under the circumstances, petitioners have not established that there are no genuine issues of material fact. It follows that petitioners' motion for summary decision must be denied.

E. Respondent's Motion

To a large extent, respondent's current motion is based upon legal arguments that are not dependent on a determination that Matthews' actions did not arise out of and in the course of the performance of the duties of his employment. These legal arguments will be considered next.

1. Res Judicata

Respondent contends that petitioners' claim for reimbursement has already been dismissed with prejudice by the Superior Court of New Jersey in the civil action by the student against Matthews and that the doctrine of res judicata bars petitioners from re-litigating the matter. In support of this argument, respondent set forth the facts in regard to the civil action in Superior Court as follows:

On February 5, 2008, [S.F.], filed a complaint against Arthur Matthews and the Union County Vo-Tech Board of Education. In her complaint, the plaintiff alleged Mr. Matthews, a teacher employed by the Board of Education, assaulted her causing personal injury. See, Exhibit A. Union County Vo-Tech Board of Education forwarded the complaint to their general liability insurance carrier, Zurich American Insurance Company.

On April 8, 2008, the Zurich Company sent a letter to Mr. Matthews advising him that under the terms of their policy there was no coverage afforded him and they would not defend or indemnify him in regard to the [F.] lawsuit. See, Exhibit B.

Mr. Matthews obtained insurance for the aforementioned lawsuit through the N.J.E.A. and its general liability carrier, the Horace Mann Insurance Company. That insurance company retained the law firm of Wills, O'Neill & Mellk, to represent Mr. Matthews and its interest. This is the same law firm that now represents both Mr. Matthews and Horace Mann Insurance Company in the Administrative Law Action.

On September 24, 2008, the firm of Wills, O'Neill & Melik filed an answer to plaintiff's complaint in the Superior Court action. Included in that answer was a cross-claim made by Mr. Matthews against the Union County Vo-Tech Board of Education. That cross-claim alleged:

1. That the Union County Vo-Tech Board of Education was liable for all claims asserted by plaintiff in the action;
2. That he [Matthews] should be awarded judgment on its cross-claim against Union County Vo-Tech Board of Education including attorney's fees and costs of the action as provided for under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6. See, Exhibit C.

During the course of the Superior Court litigation defendant, Union County Vo-Tech, filed a motion for summary judgment requesting that the Court dismiss the plaintiff's complaint. Included in that motion was a second request that the Court dismiss Mr. Matthews' cross-claim against the Board. On December 8, 2008, the Honorable Lisa F. Chrystal, J.S.C. entered an Order dismissing plaintiff's complaint and all cross-claims against Union County Vo-Tech with prejudice. See, Exhibit D. Accompanying the Order was a written opinion by Judge Chrystal. See, Exhibit E.

The attorneys for Mr. Matthews were served with the above motion, had an opportunity to oppose the dismissal of the cross-claim and/or join the motion. Instead they chose not to respond to the motion and allowed the papers to be submitted unopposed by either Matthews, Horace Mann Insurance Company and the plaintiff

Subsequent to the dismissal of the complaint and cross-claim against Union County Vo-Tech the Horace Mann Company through counsel agreed to pay $10,000.00 to settle the case. A Stipulation of Dismissal with prejudice signed by both plaintiff's counsel and Mr. Matthews' attorneys was filed on October 16, 2009. See, Exhibit F. Then defendant, Matthews, now petitioner, Matthews, now brings a claim in the Administrative Law Court for reimbursement identical to the cross-claim he raised against the Board of Education in the Superior Court lawsuit.

Preliminarily, it must be recognized that the applicability of court-made procedural tools is not automatic in an administrative proceeding but rather depends upon the nature of the agency's responsibilities toward the subject matter in controversy as well as the particular parties to the dispute. Hackensack v. Winner, 82 N.J. 1, 30 (1930). Moreover, court-made doctrines such as res judicata, collateral estoppel and the single controversy rule must be applied prudently and selectively in administrative proceedings. Id., at 31.

Under the doctrine of res judicata, when a controversy between parties is once fairly litigated and determined, it is no longer open to relitigation. Lubliner v. Board of Alcoholic Beverage Control, 33 N.J. 428, 435 (1960). Where the second action is no more than a repetition of the first, the first lawsuit stands as a barrier to the second; the rule precludes parties from relitigating substantially the same cause of action. Culver v. Ins. Co. of N. Am., 115 N.J. 451, 460 (1989). A cause of action between parties that has been finally determined on the merits by a tribunal having jurisdiction cannot be relitigated by these parties or their privies in a new proceeding. Roberts v. Goldner, 79 N.J. 82, 85 (1979). A determination on the merits is not limited to adjudications following a full trial of the substantive issues. Velasquez v. Franz, 123 N.J. 498, 506 (1991). When an issue is actually determined on a motion for summary decision, the doctrine of res judicata will be applicable. Id., at 506-07. The purpose of the doctrine of res judicata is to provide finality and repose for the litigating parties, to avoid the burdens of relitigation for the parties and the court, and to maintain judicial integrity by minimizing the possibility of inconsistent decisions regarding the same matter. Id., at 505.

Here, respondent filed a motion for summary decision in the civil suit in Superior Court requesting dismissal of the complaint as to respondent and the cross-claim against respondent. The motion was unopposed, and the court entered an Order dismissing the complaint and the cross-claim with prejudice. A dismissal with prejudice is ordinarily indicative of a determination on the merits.

Nonetheless, the fact is that the Court's letter opinion discusses the dismissal of the plaintiff's complaint but does not even mention the cross-claims. Evidently, petitioners viewed the situation as simply letting respondent out of the civil suit. Under the circumstances, Matthews' request for reimbursement was not fully and fairly litigated and actually determined on the merits. It follows that the doctrine of res judicata should not be applied in this situation.

2. Entire Controversy Doctrine

Respondent cites Mystic Isle Dev. Corp. v. Perskie & Nehmad, 142 N.J. 310 (1995) for the proposition that the objectives behind the entire controversy doctrine are three fold: (1) to encourage the comprehensive and conclusive determination of a legal controversy; (2) to achieve party fairness, including both parties before the court as well as prospective parties; and (3) to promote judicial economy and efficiency by avoiding fragmented, multiple and duplicative litigation. Id., at 322. In Mystic Isle, a party ignored its obligation to assert claims against potential defendants that could have been named in one proceeding. When the party filed claims against those defendants in a subsequent proceeding, the matter was dismissed for failure to file the claim in the original proceeding. Respondent reasons that petitioners should have opposed the motion for summary decision in the civil action in Superior Court such that all claims would have been decided in a single proceeding. Further, since petitioners failed to do so, the pending proceeding should be dismissed.

Respondent's argument is unpersuasive for several reasons. First, Mystic Isle represented the high-water mark for the entire controversy doctrine. Over time, the doctrine had been expanded to include joinder of defenses, affirmative claims, counterclaims and cross-claims as well as parties in a single controversy. Mystic Isle Dev. Corp. v. Perskie & Nehmad, 142 N.J. at 323. Additionally, a court was required to adjudicate both equitable and legal issues arising from one underlying transaction. Id., at 322. But since that time, the consequences of failure to comply with the single controversy rule have receded substantially.

In 1998, N.J. Court Rule 4:5-1(b)(2) was amended to require a party in its first pleading to provide notice of other actions and potentially liable persons. Further, if a party fails to comply with its obligations under this rule, the court may impose an appropriate sanction including dismissal of a successive action. The amended rule states as follows: "A successive action shall not, however, be dismissed for failure of compliance with this rule unless the failure was inexcusable and the right of the undisclosed party to defend the successive action has been substantially prejudiced by not having been identified in the prior action."

For example, in Kent Motor Cars, Inc., v. Reynolds, 207 N.J. 428 (2011), our Supreme Court observed that there is a general preference for addressing disputes on the merits and that dismissal is reserved for matters in which lesser sanctions are inadequate. Id., at 447. In that case, the Court determined that the violation of the Rule was inexcusable and that there was substantial prejudice with respect to one claim. Nonetheless, the Court limited the sanction to dismissal of the one claim where there was substantial prejudice, with the trial court to consider lesser sanctions as to the other claim.

Here, respondent has not demonstrated any prejudice from consideration of the claim for reimbursement in this forum. In addition, petitioners' action was excusable in that this is actually the appropriate forum in which to consider a claim for reimbursement under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6. As our Supreme Court noted in Bower v. Board of Education of East Orange, 149 N.J. 416 (1997), which involved a claim for reimbursement under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 and N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6.1, the Law Division action should have been dismissed because the Commissioner of Education has primary jurisdiction to hear and determine all controversies arising under the school laws pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Thus, the effect of petitioners' action is that the dispute is now in the correct forum. It follows that the petition in this matter should not be dismissed on the basis of the entire controversy doctrine.

3. Tort Claims Act

Respondent maintains that petitioners' claim for reimbursement arises out of an alleged tort which led to a civil action by a student against Matthews and respondent. The civil action was dismissed as to respondent, and petitioners settled the case for $10,000. Petitioners now seek reimbursement for the $10,000 plus attorney's fees. Matthews did not pay the cost of the settlement himself. Rather, the Horace Mann Insurance Company paid the entire amount. Respondent relies on N.J.S.A. 59:9-2(e), which states that "no insurer or other persons shall be entitled to bring an action under a subrogation provision in an insurance contract against a public entity or public employee." Respondent contends that the Horace Mann Insurance Company is seeking to recover for a contractual obligation which they owed to Matthews in the tort lawsuit. In other words, the Horace Mann Insurance Company brings this action under a subrogation provision, which is barred by N.J.S.A. 59:9-2(e). Respondent reasons that this action is barred by the Tort Claims Act and that therefore petitioners' application should be denied.

The New Jersey Tort Claims Act (TCA), N.J.S.A. 59:1-1 to -12.3, modified the doctrine of sovereign immunity and created limited situations in which parties could assert tort claims against public entities. Feinberg v. State D.E.P., 137 N.J. 126, 133 (1994). The TCA has no effect when a claim against a public entity does not arise from tort liability. Owens v. Feigin, 194 N.J. 607, 613 (2008).

Here, petitioners are not pursuing a tort claim against respondent; rather, petitioners seek reimbursement pursuant to a specific statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6, which provides for indemnification. It follows that the TCA has no bearing on this proceeding. Therefore, respondent's contention that the petition should be dismissed on the basis of the TCA is without merit.

4. N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6

Respondent advances two related arguments based upon the specific language of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6, which is quoted again with different emphasis as follows:

Whenever any civil or administrative action or other legal proceeding has been or shall be brought against any person holding any office, position or employment under the jurisdiction of any board of education, . . . for any act or omission arising out of and in the course of the performance of the duties of such office, position, employment or student teaching or other assignment to professional field experience, the board shall defray all costs of defending such action, including reasonable counsel fees and expenses, together with costs of appeal, if any, and shall save harmless and protect such person from any financial loss resulting therefrom;

. . . .

Any board of education may arrange for and maintain appropriate insurance to cover all such damages, losses and expenses. [Emphasis supplied.]

Respondent contends that the word "person" in N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 refers only to a natural person such as Matthews and not to an entity such as an insurance company. Respondent reasons that since Matthews did not actually incur any costs, he cannot recover anything from respondent. Further, since the Horace Mann Insurance Company is not a person within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6, it cannot be reimbursed for any costs which it may have incurred in regard to the civil action in Superior Court.

Respondent's argument is unpersuasive for two reasons. First, respondent's argument that Matthews does not have a financial stake in the matter was previously rejected in Ray Waters and the Horace Mann Insurance Company v. Board of Education of the Township of Toms River, EDU 02611-10, Initial Decision (April 4, 2011), <http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>. Further, remedial legislation should be construed liberally to achieve its beneficent purposes. Teichler v. Curtiss-Wright Corp.,

24 N.J. 585, 592 (1957). It is evident that the intent of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 is for the board of education to defray the costs of defending civil actions that meet the standards set forth therein. Any interpretation that places the burden of defraying these costs on anyone other than the board of education is plainly contrary to the intent of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6. It follows that respondent's argument is without merit.

5. Assault

Respondent argues that petitioners are not entitled to reimbursement, because the provisions of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6 do not apply to Matthews' assault on a student. There are two aspects to respondent's argument. First, respondent maintains that the alleged conduct, an assault by petitioner on a student, could not arise out of and in the course of the performance of respondent's duties as a teacher within the meaning of N.J.S.A. 18A:16-6. The difficulty with this argument is that it is settled that indemnification cannot be denied merely because an alleged act, if it actually occurred, would be beyond the scope of a teacher's duties. Bower v. Board of Education of East Orange, 149 N.J. at 431. It follows that respondent's argument is without merit.

Finally, respondent maintains that the facts are established by student statements that Matthews grabbed a student by the neck. Respondent fails to mention that one student specifically stated that Matthews did not grab anyone. As previously determined, there are genuine issues of material fact in regard to the incident on February 27, 2006. It follows that respondent's motion for summary decision must be denied.

Despite the denial of the motions for summary decision, several important legal issues have been decided herein. These determinations will be binding for purposes of this proceeding, as if they were decided on a motion in limine.

Accordingly, it is ORDERED that:

1. Petitioner's motion for summary decision is denied.

2. Respondent's motion for summary decision is denied.

This matter may be reviewed by the Commissioner of Education, either upon interlocutory review pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.10 or at the end of the contested case pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, a retired teacher formerly employed by the respondent school district, sought restoration of sick leave relative to a fall she sustained on January 30, 2004 while in the course of her employment, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1. Petitioner alleges that the fall resulted in neck problems in addition to the back, ankle, and knee injuries initially diagnosed at the time of her work-related accident. The matter was placed on the inactive list pending settlement of a related worker's compensation case. On January 6, 2010, petitioner reached a settlement with the school district regarding her worker's compensation claim. Petitioner then sought restoration of 77.5 sick days used in relation to her neck issues.

The ALJ found that: the petitioner did not waive her sick-leave claim in the worker's compensation settlement; accordingly, the Commissioner retains jurisdiction to determine whether the district should reimburse her sick time; to prevail in her claim, however, petitioner must establish – by a preponderance of medical evidence – a link between her work injury and the neck problems she experienced; according to the medical records, petitioner did not complain at the time of the fall that her neck sustained injury; petitioner failed to establish that her neck injury was work-related because the credible medical evidence was not able to conclude – because of the lapse of time between petitioner's fall and her subsequent diagnosis of neck injury – that petitioner's neck pain was caused by the fall on January 30, 2004. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that petitioner is not entitled to reimbursement of sick time.

The Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ, and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter.

STATE-OPERATED SCHOOL DISTRICT	:	DECISION
OF THE CITY OF PATERSON,	:
PASSAIC COUNTY,	:
RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioner's exceptions and the Board's reply thereto – submitted in accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were fully considered by the Commissioner in reaching his determination herein.

Exceptions of the petitioner recast and reiterate her arguments advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) below, again maintaining that her continued absence after April 18, 2004 was directly attributable to the injuries she sustained at school on January 30, 2004 – thus entitling her to benefits pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A: 30-2.1 – and she, therefore, urges the Commissioner to overturn the Initial Decision. As all of petitioner's proffered arguments in this regard were fully considered and addressed in the ALJ's decision, they will not be revisited here.

Upon review and full consideration, the Commissioner initially concurs with the ALJ that petitioner's settlement of her two workers' compensation claims without any findings on the underlying merits does not bar her from litigating a sick-leave injury claim, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1, before the Commissioner as petitioner did not knowingly and intelligently waive her rights to pursue this school law claim when she accepted settlement of her workers' compensation claims. See Patsy N. Marino v. Willingboro Township Board of Education, Burlington Co., Commissioner's Decision No. 111-99, decided by the April 13, 1999, rev'd. State Board of Education, March 1, 2000; Darienne T. Franks v. Board of Education of the City of East Orange, Essex County, Commissioner's Decision No. 318-01, decided September 20, 2001.

Notwithstanding this, however, under such circumstances, to prevail on her instant sick-leave injury claim, petitioner must demonstrate – by a preponderance of the competent and credible medical evidence – a causal link between her injuries and her work duties. See Laffey v. City of Jersey City, 289 N.J. Super. 292 (App. Div. 1996). For the reasons clearly presented on pages 8-10 of the Initial Decision, the Commissioner is in full agreement with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to sustain her burden of establishing – by demonstrable objective medical evidence – a causal connection between her neck pain and any accident arising out of or in the course of her employment so as to entitle her to sick-leave benefits under N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1 for the period April 19, 2004 through January 1, 2005.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner seeks the reinstatement of sick days deducted by the Paterson State-Operated School District (respondent or District), for whom she was employed as a teacher, relative to a fall she sustained on January 30, 2004, while in the course of her employment. On July 6, 2004, the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) as a contested case. Since petitioner had two workers' compensation claims pending (one for the fall on January 30, 2004, and another claim for a different date), the Honorable Thomas Clancy placed this matter on the inactive list until the resolution of the workers' compensation claims. On or about January 6, 2010, both claims were settled. Accordingly, the matter was restored to the calendar and a hearing was set for February 11, 2011. This date was adjourned to afford the parties an opportunity to file dispositive motions. On June 08, 2011, respondent filed a motion seeking to dismiss the petition before the OAL. On June 28, 2011, petitioner submitted a brief in opposition. On July 13, 2011, oral argument on the motion was heard by the undersigned. The motion was denied.

After adjournment requests by petitioner, the matter was heard on June 28, 2012. Post-hearing briefs were submitted on July 20, 2012, on which date the record closed.

FINDING OF FACTS

Bhanumati Desai (petitioner) was employed by Paterson State-Operated School District as a biology teacher from September 1979 until her retirement on January 1, 2005.

1. On January 30, 2004, petitioner suffered a work-related injury during the course of her employ with respondent. She also suffered a prior injury in May 2003, hurting her leg.
2. On January 30, 2004, during the morning school hours when the bell rang, two students inadvertently pushed petitioner to the ground and she fell on her belly.
3. Petitioner was taken to Barnert Occupational Health Center and x-rays were taken. Physical therapy was prescribed and petitioner was released from the hospital on the same day.
4. On January 30, 2004, petitioner completed an initial "Workers' Compensation Treatment Authorization." (P-1.) In the initial report, under "employee complaints" she wrote "[p]ain left lower back, both lower extremities – left hip." There was no complaint of neck pain.
5. On February 16, 2004, Dr. Schultz of Garden State Orthopaedic Associates diagnosed petitioner. Dr. Schultz noted that she "suffered an injury to her left side and is primarily complaining of occasional numbness in her legs and lower - back pain.” Petitioner could return to work on February 23, 2004. No complaint from petitioner of neck pain.

6. On March 8, 2004, petitioner visited Drs. Ben-Yishay and Jonathan Lester, complaining for the first time about neck pain.
 7. Dr. Ben-Yishay noted, “she was knocked down at school on January 30th landing on her left side. She had pain in her neck, left arm and shoulder, low back, and leg at that time.” (P 13.)
 8. On March 8, 2004, Dr. Lester signed two physician’s notes. The first note indicated that petitioner was able to work, could stand and sit as tolerated, and could not lift objects heavier than 2.5 pounds. The second note on the same date indicated that petitioner was unable to work until her next evaluation, on March 15th.
 9. On March 15, 2004, Dr. Lester signed a physician’s note, which indicated that petitioner could not work “until further notice,” and prescribed Percocet.
 10. On March 25, Dr. Ben-Yishay amended his earlier statements regarding the cause of petitioner’s neck pain stating he cannot determine with certainty the correlation between petitioner’s neck complaint and the incident. Dr. Ben-Yishay concluded, “[u]nless the patient has a very clear explanation as to why she did not complain of neck pain, or if there was simply a failure of documentation by Dr. Schultz, then I would be forced to conclude that the cervical disc pathology is not clearly work related”
 11. Between January 30, 2004, and April 8, 2004, the District did not charge petitioner sick time for her absences and was paid temporary disability.
 12. On April 19, 2004, when school resumed after a spring break, the District began charging petitioner sick days for her absences.
 13. Between April 19, 2004, and the end of the school year, the District charged the petitioner forty-eight sick days.
 14. When petitioner failed to return to work in September, the District charged the petitioner another thirty-nine and one-half sick days, for a total of eighty-seven and one-half sick days.
 15. When the petitioner ran out of sick days on November 1, 2004, the District charged petitioner five personal days, and then considered her on unpaid leave.

- She took leave days from November 15, 2004, until her retirement. She retired on January 1, 2005.
16. On or about April 16, 2004, petitioner filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education, seeking restoration of sick days, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1.
 17. On July 6, 2004, the matter was transmitted the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) and assigned docket number EDU 7168-04.
 18. Around the same time, petitioner filed two (2) workers' compensation claims—C.P. 2004-11857 and C.P. 2004-13961.
 19. On or about January 6, 2010, petitioner's workers' compensation claims were settled, in accordance with N.J.S.A. 34:15-20.
 20. In addition, the Orders approving settlement provided that "this is a lump sum settlement between the parties . . . pursuant to N.J.S.A. 34:15-20 which has the effect of a dismissal with prejudice, being final as to all rights and benefits of the petitioner and is a complete and absolute surrender and release of all rights arising out of this/these claims." Similar language is found in the above-quoted statute.
 21. EDU 7168-04 was subsequently restored to the calendar and a hearing was set for February 11, 2011.
 22. On June 08, 2011, respondent filed a motion seeking to dismiss the petition before the OAL.
 23. On June 28, 2011, petitioner submitted a brief in opposition.
 24. On July 13, 2011, oral argument on the motion was heard by the undersigned.
 25. The motion was denied and the hearing was held on June 28, 2012. Briefs were submitted on July 21, 2012, on which date the record closed.

ISSUE

The issue presented is whether petitioner's settlement agreement before the Division of Workers' Compensation precludes her from bringing a claim for lost sick time before the Commissioner of Education.

TESTIMONY

Petitioner testified on her own behalf. On January 30, 2004, during the morning school hours when the bell rang, two students inadvertently pushed her to the ground and she fell on her belly. Her neck, back, shoulder, and right ankle hurt but mostly her ankle. Petitioner was taken to Barnert Hospital and x-rays were taken. She stated that she sprained her ankle. (P-2, P-3, P-4; R-2.) Physical therapy was prescribed and she was released.

On the same day, petitioner completed an initial, "Workers Compensation Treatment Authorization." (P-1.) In the initial report, under "employee complaints" she wrote "[p]ain left lower back, both lower extremities – left hip." (R-2.) Petitioner did not write that she complained of neck pain although she states she experienced neck and shoulder pain which she attributes to the incident of January 30, 2004. She did not recall exactly what she told the hospital at that time.

On February 16, 2004, Dr. Schultz of Garden State Orthopaedic Associates diagnosed petitioner. He noted that petitioner "suffered an injury to her left side and is primarily complaining of occasional numbness in her legs and lower back pain." (P-5.) Physical therapy was continued and an MRI of her cervical spine was prescribed. Petitioner claims she complained to Dr. Schultz about neck pain but does not recall what she specifically told the doctor. He was the first physician to order an MRI. He opined that petitioner could return to work on February 23, 2004.

On March 8, 2004, petitioner visited Drs. Ben-Yishay and Jonathan Lester. (P-6.) Petitioner was diagnosed with left-cervical HNP (herniated nucleus pulposus) in her neck. (P-6.) It was recommended that she have spinal surgery. She chose not to have surgery. This was the first time she complained of a stiff neck. In a report, Dr. Ben-Yishay noted "she was knocked down at school on January 30th landing on her left side. She had pain in her neck, left arm and shoulder, low back, and leg at that time." (P-13.) On March 8, 2004, Dr. Lester signed two physician's notes. (P-7, P-8.) The first note indicated that petitioner was able to work, could stand and sit as tolerated, and could not lift objects heavier than 2.5 pounds. (P 7.) The second note of the same date indicated that petitioner was unable to work until her next evaluation, scheduled for March 15. (P-8.) On March 15, 2004, Dr. Lester signed a physician's note, which indicated that petitioner could not work "until further notice," and prescribed Percocet. (P-9.)

On March 23, petitioner followed up with Dr. Ben-Yishay. (P-12.) He advised petitioner to follow up with Dr. Rajaraman, a neurosurgeon, and Dr. Ben-Yishay discussed surgical options with her. On March 25th, Dr. Ben-Yishay amended his earlier statements regarding the cause of petitioner's neck pain stating he could not determine with certainty the correlation between petitioner's neck complaint and the incident. (P-14.)

On April 7, 2005, the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund granted petitioner a service retirement, effective January 1, 2005. (P-18.)

Between January 30, 2004, and April 8, 2004, the District did not charge petitioner sick time for her absences. (P-19.) She was paid temporary disability. On April 19, 2004, when school resumed after a spring break, the District began charging petitioner sick days for her absences. Between April 19, 2004, and the end of the school year, the District charged the petitioner forty-eight sick days. When petitioner failed to return to work in September, the District charged the petitioner another thirty-nine and one-half sick days, for a total of eighty-seven and one-half sick days. When the petitioner ran out of sick days on November 1, 2004, the District charged petitioner five personal days, and then considered her status as an unpaid leave of absence. She took leave days from November 15, 2004, until her retirement on January 1, 2005.

On January 6, 2010, petitioner reached a settlement with the District regarding her worker's compensation claims. (P-20.) Under the settlement, petitioner received a lump-sum payment of $30,000 for the 2004 incident and $14,000 for an incident that occurred in 2003. She is seeking 77.5 sick days.

No other witnesses were offered on behalf of petitioner.

No witnesses testified on behalf of respondent.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

Under the school laws, an employee receives full salary without losing sick time if the employee is absent “as a result of a personal injury caused by an accident arising out of and in the course of his employment” N.J.S.A. 18A:30-2.1(a). This language mirrors language in the workers’ compensation statute, which applies to “accident[s] arising out of and in the course of employment” N.J.S.A. 34:15-7. The identical wording of the two statutes indicates that the New Jersey Legislature “intended the phrase to have the same construction and consequence in both statutes.” Theodore v. Dover Bd. of Educ., 183 N.J. Super. 407, 416 (App. Div. 1982). The purpose of the sick leave provision “is to complement workers’ compensation benefits for a strictly limited time period” Ibid.

Because the school law statute supplements the worker’s compensation statute, the sick leave provision “contemplates a prior determination of a compensable injury by the compensation court before consideration by the Commissioner of the eligibility of the injured employee for the additional benefits provided by the [sick leave] statute.” Forgash v. Lower Camden County Sch., 208 N.J. Super. 461, 466-467 (App.Div. 1985). However, “a settlement of the compensation claim without any findings on the underlying merits does not necessarily bar a petitioner from litigating a sick-leave injury claim before the Commissioner.” Franks v. Bd. of Educ. of E. Orange, EDU 7423-97, Initial Decision (August 6, 2001), adopted, Comm’r. (September 20, 2001), <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>. In Franks, the petitioner filed claims for worker’s compensation benefits and sick leave benefits. Franks, supra, EDU 7423-97 at *2.¹ The petitioner insisted “she never intended to give up her sick-leave claim when she accepted the settlement of her compensation claim.” Id. at *4. Because the petitioner did not waive her sick leave claim, the Commissioner retained jurisdiction to decide the claim. Ibid.; see also Sheridan v. State-Operated Sch. Dist. of Paterson, EDU 3767-98, State Bd. of Educ. (June 6, 2001), <<http://www.nj.gov/education/legal/sboe/index.html>> (petitioner who settled worker's compensation claim before filing for sick leave was not collaterally estopped); Marino v. Willingboro Bd. of Educ., EDU 8580-98, State Bd. of Educ. (March 1, 2000), <<http://www.nj.gov/education/legal/sboe/index.html>> (petitioner who clearly reserved his right to file for sick leave benefits in settlement of worker's compensation claim not collaterally estopped); Hern v. Bd. of Educ. of Union City, A-339-91 (App. Div. October 23, 1992) (slip op. at 3-4)² (petitioner who did not file a worker's compensation claim was not precluded from filing for sick leave benefits).

Here, petitioner did not waive her sick-leave claim in the worker's compensation settlement. (P-20.) Therefore, the Commissioner retains jurisdiction to determine whether the District should reimburse her sick time. Franks, supra, EDU 7423-97 at *4. The Commissioner has jurisdiction to determine petitioner's sick-leave claim because her worker's compensation claim resulted in a settlement which did not address the sick time she seeks.

To prevail on a worker's compensation claim, and consequently on a sick-leave claim, a petitioner must establish, by a preponderance of the medical evidence, "a link between [her] disease and occupational conditions." Laffey v. Jersey City, 289 N.J. Super. 292, 303 (App. Div. 1996). In Laffey, the petitioner's medical expert "asserted a causal relationship without credible foundation." Id. at 307. The medical expert's conclusion that the petitioner's duties as a police officer caused his pulmonary conditions "was based solely on the subjective characterizations of the petitioner and not on any existing medical, epidemiological, or scientific studies establishing causation." Id. at 306. Similarly, in Franks, the petitioner did "not offer any medical evidence to connect her alleged illness to any incident occurring at the workplace." Franks, supra, EDU 7423-97 at *3. The only evidence of a causal link between the petitioner's condition and her employment was "her own subjective feeling, belief, or understanding that her illness was stress-induced." Ibid.

² This unpublished decision is not publically available.

Here, petitioner relies solely on medical reports prepared in anticipation of litigation and her own testimony to establish a link between her neck injury and her fall. On January 30, 2004, she was injured and was initially diagnosed by Barnert Hospital with a lower-back sprain, ankle sprain, and knee sprain. (P-2; R-2.) On February 16, 2004, Dr. Schultz similarly diagnosed her with a lower-back sprain and cleared her to return to work on February 23, 2004. On March 8, 2004—nearly six weeks after her fall on January 30—petitioner, for the first time, was diagnosed with neck problems.

Moreover, while Dr. Ben-Yishay initially reported that petitioner's neck injury was caused by the fall, he changed his position in that he could not say, within medically reasonable probabilities, that her neck pain was caused by the January 30th fall. (P-14.) Dr. Ben-Yishay concluded, "[u]nless the patient has a very clear explanation as to why she did not complain of neck pain, or if there was simply a failure of documentation by Dr. Schultz, then I would be forced to conclude that the cervical disc pathology is not clearly work related" Ibid. Because of this discrepancy, Dr. Ben-Yishay declined to conclude that petitioner's injury was work related. Dr. Vonroth (whom did not testify) excused petitioner from work from September to October 14, 2004. He did not connect her medical conditions to her fall on January 30, 2004. (P-17.)

Dr. Kulkarni was the only physician who connected petitioner's neck pain to her fall. (P-15 (who also did not testify but relied upon in petitioner's brief).) He relied on petitioner's own explanation "that on January 30, 2004, she was walking to her class when she was pushed by several students and she fell, striking her neck, lower back, and left knee." Dr. Kulkarni did not address the lapse between petitioner's fall and first complaint of neck pain, and did not explain the basis of his conclusion that her fall was "the proximal cause of the complaints, physical findings, diagnosis and disability rating noted in the body of this report." Dr. Kulkarni did not find evidence of a pre-existing condition, unlike Dr. Schultz and Dr. Ben-Yishay. (P-5, P-13.) As in Laffey, Dr. Kulkarni "asserted a causal relationship without credible foundation." See Laffey, supra, 289 N.J. Super. at 307. His conclusion that petitioner's neck pain was caused by her fall "was based solely on the subjective characterizations of [Desai] and not on any existing medical, epidemiological, or scientific studies establishing causation." See id. at 306.

Therefore, Dr. Ben-Yishay's conclusion that petitioner's neck pain was not work-related directly contradicts Dr. Kulkarni's conclusion that her neck pain was work-related. (P-14, P-15.) While Dr. Ben-Yishay based his conclusion on the lapse of time between petitioner's fall and neck pain, Dr. Kulkarni based his conclusion on petitioner's own subjective explanation that she fell on her neck, lower back, and knee. (P-14, P-15.) Because Dr. Ben-Yishay's conclusion is based on a credible foundation, his opinion is deemed more credible than that of Dr. Kulkarni. See Laffey, supra, 289 N.J. Super. at 307 (medical expert's testimony establishing a causal relationship must be based on a credible foundation). Therefore, petitioner did not establish that her injury was work-related by a preponderance of the competent and credible medical evidence. Id. at 303.³

Based upon the facts adduced and the legal principles cited above, I CONCLUDE that petitioner did not establish, by competent and credible evidence that her neck pain was caused by the fall on January 30, 2004. Accordingly, she is not entitled to reimbursement of sick time deducted between April 19, 2004, and January 1, 2005.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that the appeal filed by petitioner be and is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

³ Because petitioner failed to establish her injury was work related, whether she was in fact medically unable to work during her absence has not been addressed.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF KEVIN HARRIMAN,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE	:
BOROUGH OF ELMWOOD PARK,	:	DECISION
BERGEN COUNTY.	:

SYNOPSIS

The petitioning school district certified tenure charges of unbecoming conduct, insubordination and other just cause against respondent – a tenured physical education teacher – alleging, inter alia: deceptive and untruthful conduct; inappropriate, defiant and insubordinate conduct; failure to follow administrative directives; failure to enroll in anger management classes; and disregard of corrective plans. The charges related to several specific incidents as well as ongoing issues involving respondent's consistently negative interactions with his supervising administrators. The petitioning Board contended that respondent's misconduct warrants dismissal from his tenured position.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: respondent's testimony regarding the Board's claim that he made a false representation in a memo to the wrestling coach lacked credibility; respondent was combative and argumentative with representatives of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) and this unprofessional, inappropriate behavior left the school district vulnerable to sanctions from the NJSIAA – though none were assessed; respondent's testimony and written statements in the record indicate that he did not think that he should have to adhere to the directives of, or answer to, school administrators who were younger than himself; his testimony and writings indicate that respondent considered the administrators to whom he reported to be incompetent, meddling micro-managers who were unworthy of his respect; respondent believed that the tenure charges arose totally out of a conspiracy against him and not out of any behavior on his part; respondent considered the multiple write-ups of his behavior during a short period of time to be the result of a campaign by administrators to ruin him rather than a reflection of his own behavior; a school system cannot operate if the staff and administrators are constantly at odds; and, in the instant case, the disagreements reached mammoth proportions and compelled administrators to spend inordinate amounts of time responding to respondent's many voluminous "rebuttal" memoranda. The ALJ concluded that the petitioning Board sustained its burden of proving that respondent was guilty of conduct unbecoming, and that the appropriate penalty is termination of tenure.

Upon careful and independent review of the Initial Decision and the record – in particular, exhibits containing respondent's memoranda – the Commissioner concluded that the charges were substantiated. The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the respondent must be terminated from employment in petitioner's schools. A copy of the final decision will be forwarded to the State Board of Examiners for action as that body deems appropriate.

AGENCY DKT. NO. 50-3/12

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF KEVIN HARRIMAN,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE	:
BOROUGH OF ELMWOOD PARK,	:	DECISION
BERGEN COUNTY.	:

Before the Commissioner are certified tenure charges alleging that respondent has demonstrated conduct which is unbecoming a teaching staff member, including deception, insubordination and incivility. Upon consideration of the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) and the record – which includes hearing transcripts and numerous exhibits¹ – the Commissioner concludes that the charges are substantiated.

In Charge One, pertaining to deceptive conduct, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found two “counts” to be proven. One referred to an incident in which respondent forwarded to the petitioner’s athletic director a negative addendum to the 2003 evaluation of an assistant wrestling coach, and allegedly falsely stated to the athletic director that the high school principal had recommended that he do so. In another, the principal of one of the schools in which respondent taught directly observed that he had left his class unattended, but respondent denied same when the principal spoke to him about it. The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the record supports the foregoing allegations and also finds that an incident referenced in Charge Three constituted dishonesty. In that incident, respondent was seen injecting himself with insulin in a cafeteria filled with children – contrary to prior direction – but when confronted about his actions, falsely contended that he was injecting an emergency dose of glucose.

Charge Two, concerning insubordinate behavior, includes fourteen counts – twelve of which the ALJ found to be substantiated. Some of those twelve counts relate to incidents that occurred in or about the 2005-2006 school year when respondent was a wrestling coach. Respondent was, for example, said to have defied his supervisor when he selected as most valuable player a student who had been suspended for spewing profanity at a teacher. In another incident, respondent was reported to have been argumentative and unprofessional in telephone calls with New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) personnel regarding the NJSIAA's seeding or ranking of petitioner's wrestling team – jeopardizing petitioner's standing in the NJSIAA. When directed to attend an NJSIAA compliance meeting, he initially refused. And in May 2006, respondent defied an administrative directive to coaches to distribute their awards at a unified high school athlete dinner. He instead distributed his awards at a municipal recreation department dinner for wrestlers, creating a situation in which the high school athletes were not all recognized in a consistent manner.

The balance of the counts which the ALJ found to be substantiated pertain to incidents in 2011 in which respondent openly defied instructions or directives given by his supervisors. For example, in June 2011 respondent was said to have failed to comply with two administrative directives by principal Allison Jackter to schedule a meeting with her, instead advising her in a memorandum that he would communicate with her via whiteboard only. (Petitioner's Exhibit P-12 at 5)

Especially serious was respondent's reaction, in September 2011, to District Superintendent Richard Tomko's placement of him on a 90-day action plan requiring, inter alia, that respondent 1) refrain from making insubordinate comments; 2) refrain from discussing with colleagues his dealings with the administration; 3) refrain from discussing with students his issues with the administration or staff; and 4) attend an anger management professional development course to be funded by the district. (Petitioner's Exhibit P-18 at 3) Before the 90-day improvement plan had run its course, respondent sent an email to Tomko stating that he would henceforth never meet alone with him, or with Principal Jackter or Principal David Saper. (Petitioner's Exhibit P-23)

In a second memorandum respondent advised Tomko that he viewed the 90-day action plan as invalid. Denying responsibility for any insubordinate statements or actions, and alleging that Tomko was colluding with other administrators to trump-up charges against him, respondent advised that he would not accept monitoring from Tomko, Saper or Jackter – referring to the latter two as “coworkers” – and would not attend an anger management program. (Petitioner's Exhibit P-25 at 3-4) This memorandum was copied, inter alia, to all members of the respondent board of education. (Id. at 5) On the same date, respondent sent a memorandum only to board members claiming that Tomko's write-ups about him were fabrications and threatening legal action for harassment. (Petitioner's Exhibit P-24)

The Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the allegations discussed above are substantiated by the record, and also finds that respondent's previously mentioned injection of himself with insulin in the cafeteria – after being directed to refrain from doing so – falls under the rubric of insubordination.

As to Charge Three, the ALJ found eleven of the fourteen counts – which describe displays of hostility, contempt, and/or verbal abuse by respondent toward supervisors and colleagues who did not endorse his views and/or behavior – to be proven. The eleven counts include an incident in which respondent was said to have ignored Jackter when she directly asked him to meet with her, and other incidents where respondent was belligerent toward principals Jackter or Saper during meetings. The counts also include respondent's harassment of a security guard when he learned that the guard had reported to his superiors the gist of a rant against Saper that respondent had made in a personal telephone call to the guard.

But most significant are the counts which make reference to respondent's "rebuttals" to the written directives of his supervisors. In multiple situations, the attempts of respondent's supervisors to meet with him to discuss problems were unsuccessful. Notwithstanding the fact that in many cases the supervisors were calling meetings with respondent simply to get a full picture of how a particular event unfolded, respondent would regard questions about his actions as hounding, and would typically leave such meetings prematurely. Hence the follow-up memoranda stating in writing what the supervisors had wished to communicate in person – and respondent's rebuttals.

Respondent's rebuttal memoranda were defensive, accusatory, demeaning, and often threatened legal action. They would typically begin with versions of the subject events that respondent would describe as the truth, and characterizations of the supervisors' observations as falsehoods. In each rebuttal, respondent belittled his supervisor and depicted himself as superior. In each rebuttal, respondent attributed to his supervisor intentions and motives as to which respondent could not possibly have had any insight. Finally, each memorandum ended with respondent's rejection of his supervisor's directives and a warning that further "harassment" would not be tolerated. (See, e.g., Petitioner's Exhibits P-9, P-12, P-17 and P-36)

More than any witness testimony, respondent's rebuttal memoranda provide insight into the reasons not just for Charge 3, but for all of petitioner's charges. The memoranda demonstrate respondent's undisguised disdain for his supervisors, his failure to appreciate their responsibilities and authority, his defiance of their directives and his failure to understand his obligation to cooperate with them for the smooth operation of the school.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the ALJ's recommendation² that petitioner's Charges One, Two, Three and Four (which alleges a pattern of the behavior described in the first three charges) be upheld, and that respondent must be terminated from employment in petitioner's schools. Further, the State Board of Examiners will be provided with a copy of this decision for action as it deems appropriate.

INITIAL DECISION

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 03510-12

AGENCY DKT. NO. 50-3/12

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF KEVIN HARRIMAN, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF
THE BOROUGH OF ELMWOOD PARK, BERGEN COUNTY.

Nicholas Celso, Esq., for petitioner Borough of Elmwood Park Board of Education (Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein, Celso, attorneys)

Philip Feintuch, Esq., for respondent Kevin Harriman (Feintuch, Porwich and Feintuch, attorneys)

Record Closed: August 6, 2012

Decided: August 31, 2012

BEFORE CAROL I. COHEN, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On February 28, 2012, the Board of Education of Elmwood Park found probable cause and on February 29, 2012, passed a resolution certifying tenure charges against respondent Kevin Harriman alleging that he was guilty of deceptive and untruthful conduct; conduct that was inappropriate, defiant and insubordinate; failure to follow specific administrative directives; failure to enroll in anger-management courses; and disregard of corrective actions. He was also charged with treating his supervisors in a contumacious, discourteous and overtly disrespectful and personally demeaning manner. On March 1, 2012, those charges were received by the Office of Controversies and Disputes of the Department of Education. On March 13, 2012, Mr. Harriman filed an answer to the charges. On March 15, 2012, the Department of Education certified the tenure charges, and forwarded the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed under OAL Dkt. No. EDU 3510-12.

A prehearing conference was held on March 27, 2012, and an Order was issued on March 29, 2012. Discovery was completed on May 7, 2012, and the matter was heard on June 7, 20, 26, 27 and 28, 2012. Initially, the summation briefs were due on July 27, 2012. However, the respondent asked for an extension, and I allowed for the Findings of Fact, as part of the summation briefs, to be filed on July 27, 2012. The Procedural History and Analysis of the Law were submitted on August 6, 2012.

ISSUES

1. Do the allegations set forth in the tenure charges rise to the level of conduct unbecoming, insubordination and other just cause?
2. If the charges do rise to that level, what relief is the Board entitled to receive?

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Testimony

Michael Nazzaro

Mr. Nazzaro, who is retired, worked for the Elmwood Park Board of Education in various positions from September 1968. His last position before retiring in 2003 was as principal of the high school. Mr. Nazzaro testified about two incidents. In the first, Mr. Harriman was sent a memo because he failed to notify Mr. Nazzaro of his absence as per prior instructions to do so.¹ The second involved an incident in which Mr. Harriman sent a memo to Rich LaGrotta, the wrestling coach. In the memo, Mr. Harriman said that he strongly requested that Mr. Galler not return as the assistant wrestling coach. The memo said that Mr. Harriman was sending the memo "as recommended by Mr. Nazzaro." Mr. Nazzaro testified that he never recommended that Mr. Harriman do this, and pointed to P-1, his memo to Mr. Harriman of May 6, 2003, in which he said that he never recommended for him to submit a memo regarding Mr. Galler to Mr. LaGrotta. Mr. Nazzaro said that he thought that Mr. Galler was a good coach if he was approached correctly, and suggested that if Mr. Harriman changed his own attitude towards him it could benefit the program. On cross-examination, Mr. Nazzaro stated that he had had a prior discussion with Mr. Harriman in which the respondent said that Galler was not behaving well and he wanted him fired. Mr. Nazzaro told him that, if he did not think he was competent, then Harriman should have put that in his evaluation two months before. Mr. Nazzaro also pointed out that Mr. Harriman did not copy him on the memo that he sent to Mr. LaGrotta, even though he was the principal of the school and supposedly had recommended that the respondent write the addendum. When asked if it were possible that things had changed after Harriman wrote the evaluation, Mr. Nazzaro stated that he did not think so, since the wrestling season was over at the time Mr. Harriman wrote the evaluation. Mr. Nazzaro said that Mr. Harriman did not contact him prior to sending the memo to Mr. LaGrotta.

Allison Jackter

Ms. Jackter testified that she has been the principal of Gantner Avenue Elementary School for two years. Before that she was an instructional math supervisor for four years and worked as a math teacher in North Brunswick High School for five years. Ms. Jackter said that she knew Mr. Harriman originally when she was a math supervisor and he was a gym teacher. The respondent later worked part time at Ganter Avenue School when she was the principal. Ms. Jackter described a number of incidents that took place in May 2011 at a Field Day event organized by Mr. Harriman.²

The principal said that throughout the day she was nervous about the weather. The event was outdoors and the weather conditions were either threatening, misty or raining. However, she made the decision to move forward with the outdoor event. Throughout the day staff came up to her and questioned her about where they were supposed to be and what was going on. Ms. Jackter realized that some of the pages that Mr. Harriman had prepared, including a map of where students were supposed to go for various activities, were missing from the packets that the staff was given for the day. When she approached Mr. Harriman about the problem, he began yelling at her in front of students, parents and staff. Ms. Jackter said that after a brief conversation, in order not to create a scene, she walked away. From Mr. Harriman's demeanor, she sensed that he was upset that she was questioning anything about the Field Day. Eventually he gave her the information that she requested.³ At some point in the late morning it began precipitating harder, and she decided that she had to bring the children in for safety reasons. She began waving the people to come inside. She tried to set up activities in the hallway so that the children could continue to play. However, she said that she saw Mr. Harriman and he was rolling his eyes at her.

Ms. Jackter said that she asked Mr. Harriman to meet with her at the end of the day. She wanted to talk to him about the problems with the packet and how things could be changed for the next year's Field Day, and to discuss his demeanor. She said that Mr. Harriman became angry and started yelling at her. He was so loud that her secretary had to close two doors adjoining her office so that parents and staff would not hear what was going on. The principal said that Mr. Harriman yelled out two times, "you are wrong." It was her impression that Mr. Harriman felt that he was in charge of the day and she had no business getting involved. Ms. Jackter identified P-7, which was a memo to Mr. Harriman dated May 26, 2011, regarding events that went on at Field Day. In it she recounted that towards the end of their meeting, "you placed your hand on your genitals and moved your hand around for so long that I had to address your behavior asking, 'what are you doing?'" Mr. Harriman's response was that his pants were sticking to him. Ms. Jackter did not buy Mr. Harriman's response. She said that she was disgusted and ended the meeting. Ms. Jackter said that Mr. Harriman responded to her memo with P-12, which she described as a lengthy memo with many false accusations, including that she was untruthful, dishonest, uncooperative, harassing and jealous of him. She characterized the memo as a rant against her. He accused her of unwarranted meddling and micromanagement. According to Harriman, she needed to Google the word insubordinate, and learn its true meaning in education as well. He also accused her and Mr. Saper, the principal of the other elementary school that Harriman worked in, of conspiring against him to harass him. He said that she was incompetent, did not know what she was doing, and allowed a chaotic and dangerous situation to occur because she waved the students in from outside. He also denied that he had made inappropriate sexual gestures and said that he tugged at his shorts because they were wet. (Ms. Jackter denied his accusations and said that at the time of the incident she was not tenured as a principal and she was doing her best to do a good job. She claimed that she would never make baseless accusations about a staff member.) Mr. Harriman went on to say that he would no longer talk to her, since she tells everyone that he yells at her, and would only communicate with her through the use of a dry board. Ms. Jackter emphasized that communication in that manner was not an appropriate means of communication between a supervisor and staff. Ms. Jackter pointed out that while her memo to Mr. Harriman was copied to the superintendent of schools, the two other principals for whom the respondent worked and the president of the Board of Education, Mr. Harriman's memo was addressed to them and also to the vice president of the Board, all the members of the Board of Education, the head of Human Resources, the president of the union and the attorney for the union.

The second incident that Ms. Jackter recalled involved coverage for another gym teacher's classes at her school. Eric Schwartz, who also taught at her school, had to be out on a particular day. It was Ms. Jackter's understanding that Mr. Schwartz had made arrangements to make up the gym time on other dates. However, on the day that Mr. Schwartz was absent, Mr. Harriman arrived at the school. She was in the midst of conducting orientation for the new kindergarteners. She saw Mr. Harriman in the hallway talking to the second-grade teacher. Mr. Harriman said that he was there to take the class to gym. She told him that she understood that Mr. Schwartz had made other arrangements. Mr. Harriman raised his voice and said "poor communication" two times in the hall filled with parents, students and staff. Ms. Jackter walked away and thought that if Mr. Harriman were going to take the class, then he should proceed to do so. Ms. Jackter claimed that she had spoken to Mr. Schwartz, who told her that he had informed Mr. Harriman that it was not necessary for him to cover his classes. Since Mr. Harriman had said that he would not speak to her (see P-12), she wrote a memo in which she said that his insubordination would not be tolerated. (P-13.) In response to her memo, Mr. Harriman wrote P-17. In the memo he said that he had been instructed by Mr. Saper to cover Mr. Schwartz's classes on June 8, 2011. He accused Ms. Jackter of trying to form a wedge between him and Mr. Schwartz and instigating trouble. He also claimed that she had fabricated stories and was relentlessly harassing him. Ms. Jackter testified that she did not harass Mr. Harriman and she prided herself on her honesty. Ms. Jackter pointed out that the respondent again copied his memo to all of the Board of Education members, Human Resources, the union president and the union attorney.

The third incident that Ms. Jackter recounted involved Mr. Harriman's leaving his class unattended by a certificated teacher. She testified that in June 2011 she popped into the gym and saw fifth-grade students playing basketball.⁴ There was a security guard and an aide in the gym, but the teacher was not present. Ms. Jackter asked the adults where Mr. Harriman was. They said that they did not know. She went to the door of the gym, which was opened and emptied onto a field, and saw Mr. Harriman placing cones outside with the assistance of a student. She did not say anything to him, but went back into the gym so that there would be a certificated person with the students. Ms. Jackter said that she told Mr. Harriman what she saw. Mr. Harriman responded that he was simply propping the door open and could see the students at all times. Ms. Jackter denied that this was so. She said that in her eleven years in the education system, she has never left a class unattended. Following the incident, she sent a memo (P-10) in which she said that it was irresponsible, unprofessional and potentially dangerous to leave students alone without proper supervision and she did not appreciate his dishonesty.⁵ In response Mr. Harriman wrote P-16, titled: "The real truth to your write up letter dated June 6, 2011." In the memo he claimed, "While propping the stubborn door open, the students were still in my vision. . . . I immediately turned in from the gym/stage archway and saw you standing there. You snapped. 'Mr. Harriman, Mr. Harriman, I've been standing here 3 or 4 minutes, you left your class unattended.'" He claimed that he was only out of the gym ten to fifteen seconds. He then went on to counter that she had no right to call him negligent, since she allowed an unregistered student to participate in Field Day. During her testimony, Ms. Jackter denied "snapping" at Mr. Harriman. She also explained that on Field Day, parents help out, and often bring the students' younger siblings because of child-care issues. She allowed the children to participate in activities on their level.

Ms. Jackter was asked if Mr. Harriman ever met with her, as she had requested in her May 26, 2011, memo (P-7). She testified that he had not done so. On June 10, 2011, (P-14) she made a second formal request for a meeting. Mr. Harriman did not comply with that request either.

Ms. Jackter discussed a September 2011 meeting regarding a 504 Plan for a new kindergarten student who had a severe heart condition and who needed accommodations. All staff members were required to read and sign off on the plan. Since Mr. Harriman was going to be providing physical education to the student, she asked him to meet with her and sign off on the plan. He refused to meet with her unless there were other people present. (See P-23, email to Dr. Tomko,⁶ superintendent of schools). He stated, "I cannot trust a one-on-one meeting again especially with Ms. Jackter, Mr. Saper or yourself again."⁷ Ms. Jackter testified that after Dr. Tomko's intervention, Mr. Harriman agreed to meet regarding the 504 Plan.

Ms. Jackter testified about an incident that occurred in November 2011. She said that she was notified that there was an altercation between two students while Mr. Harriman was in the class. Ms. Jackter wanted to get an adult's perspective on what went on, and she asked Mr. Harriman to briefly fill her in while the next group of kindergarten students was coming into the classroom. Ms. Jackter said that as Mr.

⁶ At a certain point Mr. Tomko receive his doctorate and became known as Dr. Tomko. He will be referred to throughout this document as Dr. Tomko.

Harriman was explaining how he handled the situation, he reached his arm across her body, grabbed her arm, and pushed her to demonstrate how he physically separated the students. She told Mr. Harriman never to touch her again. Ms. Jackter said that Mr. Harriman continued to describe what had happened by making wild hand gestures and came extremely close to her personal space. She wrote a memo (P-29) dated November 9, 2011, to Dr. Tomko saying that she explained to Mr. Harriman how uncomfortable his actions made her feel. Ms. Jackter said that following the incident she had a meeting with Mr. Harriman and the union representative, Karen Toscano, during which she attempted to discuss her feelings about what had occurred. Mr. Harriman rolled his eyes and left the room.

Ms. Jackter also discussed a memo that she wrote on December 21, 2011(P-40). In it she claimed that she addressed Mr. Harriman, asking him if he had gotten her note that she had left in his mailbox. She said that he ignored her and walked right past her. When he returned to school, he came to the main office and complained that someone had taken his parking space. While Ms. Jackter attempted to speak to him about temporarily parking in a visitor's spot, Mr. Harriman walked away from her. She followed him out the door and tried to talk to him about giving her the opportunity to finish what she had to say, but he ignored her. She said that it was at this point that she had a clear sense that Mr. Harriman was not going to be cooperative and communication with him was going to be nearly impossible.

On cross-examination Ms. Jackter was asked about the planning of Field Day. She said that the Physical Education Department selects the activities and gives the schedule to her for approval. She said that on the day in question the children had been outside for about two hours when she alone made the determination to bring them in. The way she accomplished this was to go to the doors on either side of the gym and wave the students in. She did not recall seeing Mr. Harriman when she moved the students inside. She brought the children inside between 11:00 and 11:30 a.m. The students had lunch in shifts. She said that she spoke with Mr. Harriman about the activities that the students would do when they came inside, but they did not necessarily agree on what she proposed. Mr. Harriman disagreed with her decision to bring the children inside and had concerns that if the students came inside, their sneakers would be wet and there might be accidents. After the three lunch shifts the weather had cleared up and Ms. Jackter decided to send the students back outside again until 3:00 p.m., when school ended. Principal Jackter said that she wrote P-7 after the meeting, after school, following Field Day. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss issues that had come up during the day, including the missing map and Mr. Harriman's inability to communicate with her throughout the day. During the meeting, Mr. Harriman took issue with her bringing the students inside and with doing any activities inside. (Ms. Jackter acknowledged that she had reviewed the packet for Field Day and did not notice that the map was missing. After she brought it to Mr. Harriman's attention, he distributed a map to the teachers to use.) Ms. Jackter testified that during the meeting Mr. Harriman raised his voice and told her that she was wrong. He felt that the principal should have consulted with him before deciding on bringing the children inside. She told him that just because he ran the event did not mean that he ran the school. She felt that Mr. Harriman was upset about the whole day's events. She said that she did not believe Mr. Harriman's explanation that his shorts were sticky because they were wet, and that is why he touched himself in his genital area during the meeting. She said that he was touching the area for a length of time that was definitely inappropriate.

Ms. Jackter was questioned about Mr. Harriman's covering Mr. Schwartz's classes. She acknowledged that P-8, a memo from Mr. Saper, the principal of another school, to Mr. Harriman directed him to work Mr. Schwartz's Physical Education schedule on Wednesday, June 8, 2001, since Mr. Schwartz would be running the Field Day at Gilbert Avenue School. Her response was that she had talked to Mr. Schwartz, who told her that he made other arrangements and it would not be necessary for Mr. Harriman to cover his classes, and he had told the respondent this. She also stated that she had a conversation with Mr. Saper about this issue; however, she could point to no subsequent written memo from Mr. Saper telling Mr. Harriman not to follow the prior directive. When asked why Ms. Jackter sent copies of her memo to Mr. Harriman to other people, she said that it was her understanding that teachers report to their principal; principals report to assistant superintendents and the director of personnel; and those individuals report to the superintendent of schools. It was District procedure to send copies of memos to an employee's immediate supervisors.⁸ The superintendent would be the person in the chain of command who would report to the Board of Education. Mr. Harriman chose to send his memos directly to Board of Education members. This was not the proper procedure to follow in the table of organization.

When questioned about P-29, which memorialized the physical altercation between two students and Mr. Harriman's actions toward her, Ms. Jackter insisted that it was unnecessary for the respondent to touch her in order to explain what happened between the two students. She also did not think that it was necessary to send Mr. Harriman, or the other principals, a copy of her memo to Dr. Tomko, the superintendent of schools. Ms. Jackter said that she did not resent the fact that Mr. Harriman pointed out in a memo that she had reviewed the packet for Field Day and had not noticed that the map was missing. She said that he was right about her overlooking the absence of the map. When asked about her opinion of Mr. Harriman's teaching ability, she said that she had done informal observations of his teaching and found his teaching to be adequate. However, she pointed out that she was not assigned to formally observe him.

Rebuttal

Ms. Jackter identified P-48 as the Agenda she presented on September 7, 2010, at the Staff Orientation. She pointed to item #27, which said that cell phones were to be on a "silent" setting during the day, but if there were an extenuating circumstance that necessitated a cell phone call, then she should be notified prior to the call. She said that she conducted a similar meeting the following year, and she reiterated the same policy on cell phone use. (P-49.) She also pointed out that in both memos it said that calls to parents should be made either from the phone in the faculty room or a second line in the main office. Ms. Jackter said that Mr. Harriman was present during the Staff

⁸ Ms. Jackter did not know if there was actually a policy regarding this procedure, but she knew that this was the general practice. On rebuttal, she was shown P-44 and P-45, which basically mirrored the chain of command that she referred to as the procedure in the District.

Orientation meeting in 2010 when these items were discussed, but was not present in 2011 because he had been involved in an auto accident on that day.

Ms. Jackter was asked if there was a grievance mechanism in place if a teacher believed that he or she was not being treated fairly by a superior. She said that there was a mechanism that proceeded through the union. Ms. Jackter was not aware of any grievance being filed by Mr. Harriman against her.

Marie Corrigan

Ms. Corrigan testified that she has worked as a school nurse for the Elmwood school system for many years and in the Gilbert Avenue School at the time of the incident complained of. She said that in October or November 2011 the principal asked her to talk to Mr. Harriman about not injecting himself in the school cafeteria.⁹ She talked to Mr. Harriman and he claimed that he was not injecting himself in the cafeteria. She responded that if he was not doing it, then he should continue not doing it. Ms. Corrigan recalled a meeting in May 2012 with Mr. Harriman, Mr. Thornton, a union representative, and the principal in which Mr. Saper stated that he saw Mr. Harriman injecting himself in the cafeteria with the students in attendance. Mr. Harriman yelled a number of times, "you did not see me doing it." Ms. Corrigan said that she told him that that was not the point. The point was that he should not be doing it. Because Mr. Harriman would not stop yelling, she said that she had to go back to the nurse's office, because there were students in the room, and left the meeting.

On cross-examination, Ms. Corrigan was asked if Mr. Harriman could have been giving himself glucose, not insulin. She said that she has never seen anyone give himself glucose. Glucose is usually taken by a diabetic in the form of something edible (orange juice or a glucose tablet) and not an injection. A glucose injection is usually given by someone else, when a person is so debilitated that he cannot give himself a needle.

⁹ Mr. Harriman is an insulin-dependent diabetic. He injects himself with an insulin pen in his arm, abdomen or other site four times a day on a fixed schedule.

David Saper

Mr. Saper testified that he has been employed as the principal of the Gilbert Avenue School, which is pre-K through grade 5, for the past three years. Before that he was athletic director/vice principal for the District, and vice principal for Discipline before that. He stated that Mr. Harriman worked in his school as well as in other elementary schools, including the school at which Ms. Jackter was the principal.

Mr. Saper recalled an incident that occurred in 2006, when he was the athletic director. The Elmwood Park wrestling team had had a successful season and the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association was responsible for seeding the team for the statewide championships. Mr. Harriman, who was the wrestling coach, was unhappy with how the team was seeded. Mr. Saper said that without his knowledge the respondent placed a call to the Association and spoke with two of its officials, Mr. Baly, who was the director, and Mr. McMillian, the wrestling statistician. Mr. Harriman complained about the seeding. Mr. Baly, in a conversation with Mr. Saper, stated that he tried to explain the rationale behind the seeding, but Mr. Harriman would not accept the explanation and proceeded to speak to him inappropriately. In a memo to Mr. Harriman from Mr. Saper (P-3) dated February 10, 2006, Mr. Saper recounted what Mr. Baly said to him, namely, that he continued to "beat a dead horse." The executive director took exception to the fact that Harriman would "not let up." In another telephone call from Harriman to Mr. McMillian, Harriman "spoke rudely to [Mr. McMillian], cut him off several times, and used profanity (this is bullshit) toward him." Mr. Saper testified that it is not common practice for the coach to communicate with the Association. He said that Harriman should have gone through Saper. According to Mr. Saper, it placed the school program in jeopardy with the Association and was unsportsmanlike. Mr. Saper spoke with Dr. Tomko, who decided that Mr. Harriman should attend a compliance meeting from the Association, which trains coaches on appropriate behavior. Mr. Saper also did not want Mr. Harriman to contact the association for one year.¹⁰

¹⁰ Mr. Saper explained that coaches can contact the Association for reasons other than complaints about seeding.

Mr. Saper testified about another encounter in 2006, which involved the end-of-year awards dinner. He said that the administration had decided that there should be a unified dinner for all the teams and athletes. The dinner, which was sponsored by the Booster Club as a fundraiser, would be geared toward the recognition of seniors. At the dinner every team would be given the same number of awards. All awards were to be given at the dinner. Mr. Saper said that he communicated what was expected of them, including the awarding of the MVP and coach's award by the coaches, in a memo. Mr. Saper said that before the Booster dinner, Mr. Harriman attended a separate Recreation Department dinner and handed out the wrestling awards, including the MVP and Coach's Award, instead of at the Booster dinner.¹¹ Mr. Saper voiced his concerns to Dr. Tomko, who was the principal of the high school at the time. Dr. Tomko subsequently wrote a memo to Mr. Casapulla, then superintendent of schools. In it he said that he was concerned about Mr. Harriman's continued abrasive demeanor, which had been going on for some time, and he felt that he had to address his continuing inappropriate behavior. First, Dr. Tomko referred to the incident with the Wrestling Association officials. Then he pointed to the fact that Mr. Harriman had awarded MVP to a student who was absent from the championship match because he had been suspended for telling a teacher to "go f... herself." Dr. Tomko felt that a more appropriate athlete could have been picked. He also stated that Mr. Harriman refused to change his award designation, even when asked to reconsider. In a June 2, 2006, memo from Dr. Tomko to Mr. Casapulla, the principal stated that Mr. Harriman's giving the awards at the Recreation dinner was his way of circumventing the meaning of the Booster dinner and doing things his way. In addition, Mr. Harriman presented a third award for most improved player, when he knew that the other coaches were only going to be presenting two awards. Dr. Tomko also pointed out that he was still unaware that Mr. Harriman had signed an agreement to attend the compliance meeting.

Mr. Saper referred to P-6, Mr. Harriman's end-of-year evaluation for 2011. In it Mr. Harriman got good evaluations for developing instructional strategies and was deemed passionate about teaching physical education. However, Mr. Saper noted that Mr. Harriman needed to become more open to administrative feedback, must ensure that he supervise the gym at all times, and must report student injuries to the nurse in a timely fashion.

Mr. Saper testified regarding an incident that took place on May 25, 2011. Mr. Saper claimed that he had been out of the building. When he came back five students were in his office and they were upset about something that had happened in Ms. Valentine's class. Mr. Saper said that he spoke to the students and attempted to speak to Mr. Harriman after school to get more information. He said that the meeting did not go well. Mr. Harriman came into his office and began by saying "What now?" Mr. Saper said that he tried to get information from Mr. Harriman, who became abrasive and disrespectful and claimed that the principal was harassing him. In the memo memorializing the meeting (P-8),¹² Mr. Saper said that he deemed Mr. Harriman's actions to be highly insubordinate and that it was impossible to communicate with him and to find out what had occurred. Mr. Saper testified that in his eighteen years in education he had never had anything like this occur. He directed Mr. Harriman to schedule a meeting with him by June 3, 2011, and bring a union representative, if he chose to do so.¹³ Mr. Saper said that after the May 25, 2011, incident, there was no way that he could work with Mr. Harriman on Field Day. Therefore he directed that Mr. Schwartz run the Field Day at Gilbert School and Mr. Harriman take Mr. Schwartz's schedule on June 5, 2011. Mr. Harriman did not show up for the meeting that Mr. Saper told him to arrange. Instead he sent him P-9, which was a six-page rebuttal to P-8. Mr. Harriman first discussed the students' allegation of unfair treatment by him, including his threatening to call a student's mother on her cell phone during class because of the student's misbehavior. Mr. Harriman asserted that Mr. Saper was dishonest in his evaluations of him; interfered with his doing his job; did not know the answers to questions posed to him; fabricated charges against him; meddled in matters that he should not have been involved in, i.e., Field Day; was incapable of managing the fifth-grade class in the school; and exhibited behavior unbecoming a principal. In the memo Mr. Harriman said that he was being harassed, insulted and intimidated and that he would be submitting a Daily Gilbert Avenue Log, with conversations and issues he had had with the principal from January 4, 2010, to the end of the school year, to Dr. Tomko, the Board of Education, the union lawyer and his personal lawyer. This memo was distributed to many people, including all of the members of the Board of Education, Human Resources and the NJEA attorney. In a memo dated June 7, 2011, Mr. Saper followed up on his prior memo (P-8) and stated that Mr. Harriman had not gotten back to him about the meeting he had requested with his union representative. Mr. Saper testified that his correspondence back and forth with Mr. Harriman took an inordinate amount of time and took him away from his duties as principal, but he felt that he had to respond because of the nature of what Mr. Harriman had put in writing, which he felt was insubordinate, inappropriate and threatening. Following what he considered was the chain of command, Mr. Saper copied the superintendent of schools, Ms. Jackter and Mr. Silla, the two other principals for whom Mr. Harriman worked, the president of the Elmwood Park Education Association and Human Resources.¹⁴ In the memo Mr. Saper stated that he thought that Mr. Harriman's letter was threatening, troubling and unprofessional. In addition, he chastised Mr. Harriman for calling the mother of a student on her cell phone during class time, for asking a young student to fetch a water bottle for him from the teacher's lounge, and for making baseless accusations against him.

¹³ The memo also dealt with the lunch room. Mr. Saper said that he had received complaints from the lunch aides that Mr. Harriman was not supposed to be there and was getting in the way. Mr. Saper said that he had not assigned Mr. Harriman to the lunch room, and teachers who were not assigned their took their lunch in the faculty room.

Mr. Saper said that he was copied on a memo from Mr. Harriman to Superintendent Tomko. In the memo Mr. Harriman accused Dr. Tomko of making libelous remarks. He stated that he would continue to share his personal issues with anyone he chose, including faculty, staff and parents. The memo also stated, "Apparently, my professional presence overshadows the two novice Principals and they are just going to have to 'get over it.'" He also accused them and the superintendent of violating a handful of Administrative Codes of Conduct. Mr. Harriman denied having any anger-management issues and refused to attend any anger-management course. He also asserted that the sexual accusation by Mrs. Jackter was absurd and a fantasy and that he would be reporting these accusations to his personal lawyer and anyone else he deemed necessary. He stated that he had a seven-year log regarding Mr.

¹⁴ It was Mr. Saper's testimony that the Board of Education members were not normally copied on letters because that was not part of the chain of command.

Saper; that it was his personal property; and that he would not be handing it over to the superintendent.

Mr. Saper also testified regarding a memo (P-9) that Mr. Harriman sent to him. In it he accused Mr. Saper of being incompetent as a principal and not knowing the answers to any questions put to him. He accused him of dishonest evaluations of him and harassment that would "not be tolerated," and stated that Saper would be "held accountable to the fullest. What goes around comes around Mr. Saper." Mr. Harriman also stated that he was keeping a daily log of Gilbert School and it would be handed over to the proper authorities. This memo was also distributed to all the members of the Board of Education and other administrators.

Mr. Saper related an incident that occurred in the winter of 2011. Mr. Saper was in the all-purpose room/gym/cafeteria. Mr. Saper said that he looked over and witnessed Mr. Harriman lift up his shirt and inject himself with something into his belly. Mr. Saper wanted to address the situation, but there were students in the area. After they left, he walked over to Mr. Harriman and asked him if he had injected himself. He said that Mr. Harriman seemed annoyed and turned to him and said "yes." Mr. Saper responded, "why would you do that here?" Mr. Harriman stated that no one could see it and it was not a big deal. Mr. Saper told him that he could not do that again; there were students eating their lunch and it was inappropriate. Mr. Saper said that at the beginning of the year he thought he saw Mr. Harriman self-injecting in the cafeteria, but since he was unsure he pulled the nurse aside and asked her to speak with him about not injecting in the lunchroom. Mr. Saper wrote a memo to Mr. Harriman (P-30) in which he stated, "injecting yourself with an insulin shot causes an opportunity for blood to be exposed and includes heightened measures to be taken when considering blood borne pathogens and related sanitary concerns." He reminded Mr. Harriman that on a prior occasion Mrs. Corrigan had spoken to him about not taking insulin in the lunchroom and recommended that he go to the nurse's office, the faculty room or the bathroom to administer his insulin shot. Mr. Saper also mentioned in the memo of December 9, 2011, that his denial of being told beforehand was proven false, when Mrs. Corrigan was brought into a meeting and she confirmed that she had previously talked to him about the situation. Mr. Saper also disputed Mr. Harriman's "excuse" that he had taken the insulin because it was an "emergency situation" by stating that when he approached him in the cafeteria at the time, the respondent did not mention an emergency, looked fine, and instead just said that no one could see him taking the shot. In Mr. Harriman's response to the memo, he said that it was a poor assumption on his part to decide that there was no emergency, but, Saper could not comprehend that it was better to be safe than sorry because he could not comprehend such a common-sense concept and had no regard for his teachers' health. On the day of the injection, Mr. Saper said that Mr. Harriman never said that he was injecting himself with glucose. There was no discussion of what was in the injection.

Mr. Saper testified regarding Mr. Harriman's behavior on gate duty. According to the principal, Mr. Harriman was assigned to supervise the gate area between 8:30 and 8:45 in the morning, on the days that he was at the school, when the parents dropped their children off at school. The parents had been instructed to line up with their cars, drop their children off and pull away. He received information that Mr. Harriman was going down the line and opening the car doors and helping the students exit the cars. Mr. Saper thought that this was a safety hazard, because a parent might not see Harriman opening the door and a student could fall out, and because there was a lot of activity going on in the gate area at the time and this would add to the confusion. In addition, since Mr. Harriman was walking down the line, he would not be on the blacktop, where he was supposed to be supervising. Mr. Saper said that he tried to speak to Mr. Harriman about this, but Harriman became disrespectful and said that Saper was harassing him. Mr. Saper testified that Harrison Werner, a former security guard at the school, who had told the principal about Harriman's actions, received a telephone call from him saying that he was a snitch. He said that Harriman "flipped out" and insulted Saper. Mr. Saper said that he had a meeting with Mr. Harriman and a union representative, Mr. Thornton, in which he wanted to tell the respondent that he thought that what he was doing was insubordinate and to cut it out. He said that Harriman responded that Saper could not tell him what to do and who to speak to. (P-31) According to Mr. Saper, Mr. Harriman threatened him by saying "wait until you see the log that I have on you." Mr. Saper characterized Mr. Harriman's response (P-32) as trying to justify what he did by saying that it was an emergent situation. Mr. Harriman claimed that Mr. Saper had no regard for teachers' health and he could not ban the respondent from the lunch room and had no authority to order him to eat in the faculty room where the female teachers conducted “baby showers, weddings, engagements and the like.” I will continue to monitor my blood sugar out of the sight of the students . . . except for a rare occasion . . . when I had to do it right then and there.”

Mr. Saper commented on two memos (P-34 & P-35) that he sent to Mr. Harriman regarding “his verbal attack on Mr. Werner,” in which he directed him to keep confidential information, confidential. Mr. Harriman’s response, at a meeting that Mr. Saper convened, was that he could say anything he wanted and share confidential information with anyone including parents. In it Mr. Harriman accused Saper of being insecure and jealous of him, of verbally attacking Mrs. Corrigan about the insulin situation and about planting moles among the staff to snitch on him. Mr. Saper sent a response to Mr. Harriman regarding the gate incident and the insulin injection (P-41), again disputing the respondent’s version of what occurred.

Cross-Examination

On cross-examination, Mr. Saper was questioned about the “seeding issue.” He acknowledged that he received information about the seeding, but did not discuss it with Harriman, even though it would have been appropriate to do so. Mr. Saper denied telling Harriman, after he expressed his dissatisfaction regarding the seeding, that he knew nothing about wrestling, and therefore Harriman should call the Association himself. Mr. Saper said that he did not follow up on his directive to Mr. Harriman that he attend the compliance meeting, and does not know if he attended. He did know that no sanction was put on the District as a result of Mr. Harriman’s phone call to the Association. Mr. Saper said that he was copied on P-4, the memo from superintendent of schools Joseph F. Casapulla to principal Richard Tomko regarding “Athletic Concerns—Kevin Harriman.” In it he said that he was very upset about the MVP player that Mr. Harriman chose because the player had been absent from the championship match due to his suspension for telling a teacher to “go f... herself.” In addition, he was unhappy that both awards went to Bogota students, and he felt that this was due to parental involvement and concerns rather than who was the most deserving of the award. Mr. Saper acknowledged that it was within Mr. Harriman’s discretion, as the coach, to choose the MVP and coach's award recipients. However, he felt that he should have considered the administration's concerns, which he did not feel that he did. When asked if it was inappropriate to challenge the findings of the Association, Saper said that it was appropriate for the athletic director to challenge, but not the coach. When questioned about the Recreation dinner awards, Mr. Saper said that he did not attend. However, the Recreation Department is separate from the Board of Education; he did not know if they had their own awards.

Mr. Saper was questioned about P-6, his evaluation of Mr. Harriman on March 15, 2011. He asserted that the overall evaluation was not satisfactory because Harriman received "needs improvement" in Standards, 6, 8, 9, 10 and 11. Mr. Saper claimed that too many students had been injured in Mr. Harriman's class and Mr. Harriman never reported it to him. In addition, there were bullying incidents that were noticed, and that raised concerns. Mr. Saper testified that the original evaluation gave an overall evaluation of "needs improvement," but Mr. Harriman spoke with him and Saper agreed to change the evaluation to "effective."

Mr. Saper was questioned about P-8, in which he outlined a number of student complaints, among which was an incident in which a student was upset because Harriman allegedly screamed at her and called or threatened to call her mother during class time from his cell phone. He was asked what a teacher should do if he had a problem with a child. Saper said that the teacher should call the parent from a landline at the school. Saper said that this was not a policy, but it was common practice. On redirect examination, Mr. Saper said that he had two concerns about using a cell phone during class. The first was that there was a policy against the use of cell phones, and the second was that a teacher should not cut into instructional time by speaking on the phone during class. Saper also testified that he has never seen or heard of a teacher asking a student to leave the classroom to retrieve something for the teacher.¹⁵ As for the remark about not eating in the lunchroom, Mr. Saper said that the lunch aides have asked that he not be there because he gets in the way. Mr. Saper was asked if there was any written prohibition about the teaching staff writing to the Board of Education. Mr. Saper said that there is no written policy, but it was common practice that the staff go through the chain of command and not write directly. Mr. Saper admitted that prior to becoming principal, he had had a relationship with Mr. Harriman as athletic director and coach and he had had problems with him. When asked how he felt about Mr. Harriman's statements in his rebuttal memo, he said that he felt threatened by them even though he did not feel that he had done anything wrong.

¹⁵ Mr. Saper was asked what Mr. Harriman could do if he needed water to take a pill when he was in the classroom. The principal said that he could send two students, using a buddy system, to retrieve the water, or could ask a teacher to cover his class while he got the water.

When asked about the cafeteria incident that was outlined in P-30, Mr. Saper said that Mr. Harriman's administration of insulin occurred while the children were still in the cafeteria, not when they were leaving. There were 100 students at tables in the room when Mr. Harriman injected himself. He said that Mr. Harriman was sitting at a table with an aide, Ms. Romero, and two students, one next to her and the other across from her. They were three feet from him. Mr. Saper estimated that he was about twenty feet from Harriman, but there was nothing blocking his view. He saw Harriman quickly lift his shirt and inject himself in his abdomen. Mr. Saper said that he waited four to five minutes, until there was a private moment and Harriman was working on his computer, and then asked him if he was injecting himself. Mr. Harriman's response was that no one saw him do it. He did not say anything about an emergency. When asked about the gate incident, Mr. Saper said that Mr. Harriman was assigned gate duty the first day of school. He became aware that the respondent was opening car doors sometime closer to December 9, 2011. Mr. Saper said that he was pretty sure that other teachers did not open the car doors. Mr. Werner told him that he had opened a car door once or twice upon a parent's request. When asked on cross-examination what confidential information Mr. Harriman had shared with other people (P-34), Mr. Saper said that any incident regarding students or what occurred at gate duty should not be shared with anyone else. When asked whether it was his business if an employee complained about another employee, he answered in the affirmative. He was then asked why he thought it was necessary to write another memo. He said that he wrote the memo because he got a report from Mr. Werner in which Werner said that Mr. Harriman had called him, when he was off duty, and accused him of getting Harriman in trouble and harassing him. He said that Werner had told him that Harriman made remarks about Saper's personal life and Werner did not want to have anything to do with it. In addition, Mr. Werner reported that Mr. Harriman had shared confidential information about the gate incident with a parent, Mrs. Tester.

Mr. Saper was asked about the Field Day reassignment regarding Mr. Schwartz. He said that he was not aware that the plan had changed and that Mr. Harriman was not needed at Ms. Jackter's school. When questioned about his memo to Harriman on December 21, 2011 (P-41), he said that in response to Mr. Harriman's statement that he never injected himself before, he stated that that was another lie and that he had seen him do it earlier in the year and brought it to the nurse's attention.

Rebuttal

During his rebuttal testimony, Mr. Saper said that he had become principal on January 4, 2010. After that time he regularly conducted faculty meetings. At the first faculty meeting in September 2010 he discussed the use of cell phones and stated that they should not be on during the day except for family emergencies.¹⁶ He was sure that he discussed this at the faculty meeting at the opening of school for the 2011–12 school year as well, and at other faculty meetings.

Erik Schwartz

Mr. Schwartz testified that he has been employed as a physical education teacher in the Elmwood Park schools for five years. He stated that in 2011 they had originally decided that he and Harriman would plan Field Day together at Mr. Saper's school. However, after Mr. Saper decided that Mr. Harriman should not conduct Field Day at his school, he told Mr. Harriman to cover his classes at Ms. Jackter's school. Mr. Schwartz testified that he had informed Mr. Harriman that it would not be necessary for him to cover his classes at Ms. Jackter's school because he had made arrangements to cover the Wednesday classes. He had doubled up on classes prior, so there was coverage. Mr. Harriman just had to show up at the school at the appointed time. Mr. Schwartz said that he had this discussion with Harriman well before the Field Day. Mr.

¹⁶ Mr. Saper acknowledged that if the September faculty meeting was on a Monday, Mr. Harriman would not have been at his school.

Schwartz said that he understood that Harriman reported to the building, notwithstanding the fact that Schwartz told him that he did not have to cover the classes, and said that it was poor communication on Mr. Schwartz's part that he was not told that the classes were covered. Mr. Schwartz said that following Field Day at Ms. Jackter's school, he met with Mr. Harriman at his home. Harriman showed him the letter that he had received from Ms. Jackter. Mr. Harriman was very upset and asked him to write a letter of support for him about what happened at Field Day at Ms. Jackter's school. Mr. Schwartz responded that he would not write a letter and did not want to get involved. Mr. Harriman retorted that he would do it for him, and told him to "man up." Subsequently Mr. Harriman called Mr. Schwartz on his cell phone and proceeded to curse him out, make derogatory remarks about Mr. Saper, call Schwartz a snake, and refer to Jackter as a lying bitch. Over a three-day period he received numerous text messages from Mr. Harriman, to the point that Mr. Schwartz said that he felt that he was being harassed and went to Dr. Tomko to speak about it.

When asked what he would have done if he received a memo from Mr. Saper telling him to cover classes in another school, he said that Saper was not the principal of Gantner School and therefore did not have the authority to tell him to go to another school to cover classes. Schwartz said that he never told Saper that the classes at Gantner were covered. Instead, he spoke to Harriman directly and told him that.

Michael Wartel

Mr. Wartel testified that he is employed as an investigator/attendance officer/courier for the Elmwood BOE. He said that in December 2011 he was called upon to deliver paperwork from the superintendent to Mr. Harriman. He did not know what was in the envelope that he delivered. When he delivered the envelope to Mr. Harriman in the Central Office, Mr. Harriman replied that it was more harassment from Tomko, Jackter and Saper. Mr. Harriman then said that it didn't matter because he had an attorney and he would be suing.

Mr. Wartel also testified that in December 2011 he was standing next to Ms. Jackter at the Gantner School near the exit door. Mr. Harriman was exiting through one of the doors. Ms. Jackter said three times, in a loud voice, "Mr. Harriman." Wartel said that Harriman never looked back, just walked straight down the corridor, between Ms. Jackter and himself, and through the exit door. (Mr. Wartel said that he may have backed up a little as Harriman walked between them.) The corridor in which this occurred was just seven feet wide, and at the time that Ms. Jackter called Harriman's name, they were just two feet from each other. Mr. Wartel denied that Harriman was wearing headphones at the time of the incident. Wartel said that he commented to Ms. Jackter, "I can't believe he did not answer you." She responded, "I know."

Harrison Werner

Mr. Werner testified that he used to be a security officer for the Elmwood Park Board of Education. As part of his responsibilities at the time he had gate duty, which entailed watching the students entering the school and making sure that they were safe. Mr. Werner said that he was warned by Mr. Saper not to open the car doors of the children that were being dropped off until they were the first in line.¹⁷ He said that for safety reasons (fear that parents would not be aware that children were exiting the car and might fall out while the car was moving) he was told not to open the car doors. Mr. Werner said that he observed on all of the days, from September to December 2011, that Harriman worked at the school that he would walk down the line of cars and open the car doors before the cars got to the school gate. At any one time period eight or nine car doors would be open at the same time.¹⁸ At those times the cars were lined up on Spidell Ave. on the public street. In December 2011 he told Mr. Saper that Harriman was opening car doors. The Saturday following his talking to Mr. Saper, he received a telephone call from Mr. Harriman at his job.¹⁹ Mr. Harriman called him a "snitch" and spoke very loudly on the telephone. He made derogatory remarks about Mr. Saper's personal life, called him a cheater, and told him that Mr. Saper did not run Gilbert Avenue School; Ms. Jackter and Dr. Tomko ran it. When he told Mr. Saper what Harriman had said, Saper asked him to put it in writing. (P-33.) On Monday, following the telephone call, Mr. Harriman came at him "very aggressively, nose to nose," called him a mole and a snitch, cursed at him, and screamed at him, "how could you have done this to me?" At the time there were parents and students within earshot who turned around to see what was going on. Mr. Harriman opened the car door of a parent waiting in line named Mrs. Tester. Mr. Werner overheard Harriman saying to her that he was getting into trouble for opening the car doors, and that Saper does not like it when he does a good deed for parents. Harriman turned to Werner and said to him, "go run mole and tell Dave [Saper] everything I said." Mr. Werner testified that at this time, every other word out of Harriman's mouth was a curse word and parents and children were turning around to see what was going on between Harriman and Werner. Werner testified that he was worried because he was afraid that there would be a physical altercation.

On cross-examination Mr. Werner said that at any one time in the morning there could be nine to twelve cars lined up on the street. He never saw Mr. Harriman opening a car door when the car was moving and he never saw an incident when the respondent opened a door that caused him concern. Mr. Werner was asked why he waited from September to December to talk to Harriman about opening the car doors. He said that he did it in December because it had gotten to a point where Harriman would open up a line of car doors. Werner felt that this caused congestion and he worried about the students' safety. When asked, Mr. Werner said that he did not know if any of the parents had asked Mr. Harriman to open the car doors, but based on the location of the cars, he did not think that the parents waived Harriman over to open the car doors. Mr. Werner did admit that the children who were let out of their cars were on the sidewalk side; they did not have to cross a street.

Dr. Tomko testified that he has been the superintendent of schools for Elmwood Park for three years. Before that he held the positions of assistant superintendent, high school principal and middle school principal. He held the position of athletic director in another district. He has known Mr. Harriman since he came to the District in 2002, when he was the middle school principal and Harriman was the physical education teacher and head coach of wrestling. He first became concerned about Mr. Harriman in the winter of 2002–03 because of a situation regarding a Mr. Galler, who was a science teacher and wrestling coach. He described Mr. Galler as being one of the best wrestlers to come out of E. Paterson and someone who was very involved in the school system. He said that on occasion Galler disagreed with Harriman and there had been a verbal altercation between them about wrestling philosophies, but it was a successful wrestling year and Galler would be returning to coach the next year. Dr. Tomko said that he was shocked when he received a copy of a memo from Mr. Harriman to Mr. LaGrotta in which the new coach and teacher appeared to be suggesting that Mr. Galler, the most liked coach and teacher at the time, should be fired. Dr. Tomko said that the memo caused a rift between Nazzaro and Harriman because it appeared that he was countenancing Galler's removal as a coach. Dr. Tomko said that he had a brief conversation with Mr. Harriman about resolving the issues between Mr. Galler and him. Mr. Harriman's response was that there was no talking with Mr. Galler and his mind was made up. The matter resolved itself because the District decided to no longer have a middle school program, which Mr. Galler had been running.

Dr. Tomko testified that when he became principal of the high school, he had another problem with Mr. Harriman. Dr. Tomko was charged with putting together a Booster Club dinner for all the sports so that all of the teams would be treated equally. The Board of Education had felt that there were inequities in the way the different teams were treated and as a result morale was down. Dr. Tomko formed a Booster Club, which would have one event for all of the athletes. The athletic director and he put together a Booster Club dinner in which everything would be equitable, and each coach was told to talk only about the senior athletes. Every coach complied with this instruction except for Mr. Harriman. He spoke about every student, not just the seniors, and about every match they had been involved in. Dr. Tomko said that he got a lot of flak from the parents and Board members after the event about what Mr. Harriman had done. When Dr. Tomko spoke to Mr. Harriman after the dinner, Mr. Harriman said that it was a miscommunication and he had not understood what Dr. Tomko wanted. Dr. Tomko did not believe Mr. Harriman's explanation, but he said that he gave him the benefit of the doubt. The following year the coaches were instructed to hand out only two awards and only at the Booster dinner—the MVP and Coach's Award. Instead, Mr.

Harriman handed out three awards²⁰ at a separate Recreation Department awards dinner. Dr. Tomko said that he received many telephone calls from parents who were upset that Mr. Harriman gave out two of the awards to Bogota students,²¹ added an additional award, and did not hand them out at the Booster dinner, but presented them at a non-Board of Education function before the official dinner. After Dr. Tomko looked into the matter he saw that not only was Mr. Harriman giving the majority of the awards to Bogota students, but to players who had less accolades in the league than some of the Elmwood Park students. Dr. Tomko was also concerned that Harriman gave an award to a student who had been suspended from a championship match because he had told a teacher to "go f--- herself." Dr. Tomko insisted that Mr. Harriman had to know what the student had done, because he had not been allowed to compete in the championship match. Dr. Tomko said that he was very upset and had a conversation with Mr. Harriman, who said that it was a done deal. Dr. Tomko said that he had supported Harriman when he was the JV coach and threw students off the team for doing less than what the MVP had done. Dr. Tomko said that he planned to override Mr. Harriman, but then he realized that the coach had already handed out the awards at the Recreation dinner.²²

Dr. Tomko testified about the problem with the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA). In the year in question Elmwood had an excellent team. Dr. Tomko said that he was close to the NJSIAA officials. The Association oversees all the sports programs in the high school and makes the rules for all the sports. The Association can impose penalties on teams including forfeitures, suspensions and non-participation in tournaments. Dr. Tomko said that he received a call from the Association's director, Bob Baly, about a situation involving Coach Harriman. The director said that Mr. Harriman had upset his secretary and then went on to speak in an argumentative manner toward the seeding manager. According to Mr. Baly, Mr. Harriman yelled at the manager, and when he did not get his way, told him that it was "bullshit" and hung up on him. Mr. Baly said, "how dare the coach talk to my people that way?" He said that the athletic director, rather than the coach, should have contacted him. There was a way to protest seeding through an appeals process, but that was not the way that Harriman did it. Mr. Baly asked Dr. Tomko what he was going to do about the situation. He said that he was going to have the athletic director, Mr. Saper, look into the situation. At that point they talked about Mr. Harriman going to a compliance meeting, which is a professional development program for coaches to learn the rules and proper sports etiquette. Mr. Saper sent a memo to Mr. Harriman (P-3) in which he discussed Harriman's behavior toward the Association directors and directed him to attend the NJSIAA compliance meeting.

²⁰ Mr. Harriman included a most improved player's award.

Dr. Tomko discussed a memo (P-4) that he sent to the then superintendent of schools, Joseph Casapulla, on May 26, 2006. In the memo he stated that he had tried in every way to moderate Coach Harriman's abrasive demeanor, but it had reached a level that had to be addressed. He stated that he had witnessed Harriman arguing with parents, demeaning students, arguing with administrators and blatantly disregarding administrative directives. Tomko said that he had to express his continued unhappiness with Mr. Harriman as a coach in the district. He then cited the incidents with the Association and the Booster Club dinner. The superintendent responded that Tomko should continue to try to work things out. After another memo, when Dr. Tomko discovered that Mr. Harriman had handed out the awards at the Recreation dinner, it was decided that Harriman should not be rehired the next year as the wrestling coach.

Dr. Tomko commented on Mr. Harriman's "rebuttal to your meeting write up letter dated May 26, 2011," which was copied to all members of the Board. Dr. Tomko said that he had tried to educate the Board, when he became superintendent, that the prior practice of direct communication with the Board regarding the day-to-day operations of the schools was not appropriate. It was his position that the Board should not see and deal with job reprimands. They were a policy body. There was a grievance procedure set out in the collective bargaining agreement that dealt with teacher grievances. There was nothing in that procedure that allowed for direct communications to the Board. Dr. Tomko felt that Mr. Harriman's sending copies of his rebuttal to the Board circumvented the whole procedure that had been established and usurped the superintendent's authority.

In early July of that year, after he had reviewed some of Mr. Harriman's rebuttals, Dr. Tomko felt that he had to put a stop to what was going on. He said that he counted fifty-four insubordinate statements in Mr. Harriman's various rebuttals. In addition, Dr. Tomko alerted the affirmative action officer regarding Ms. Jackter's accusation about Mr. Harriman touching his genitals in her presence. Dr. Tomko felt that what the respondent had done could have created a hostile work environment and should be investigated. Dr. Tomko said that he called a meeting with Mr. Harriman and the union president. Mr. Harriman in turn called in a higher level union representative from the State. Mr. Harriman asserted that he had shown his rebuttals to the union people, including the union attorney, and they advised him that they were perfectly all right. Dr. Tomko said that it was hard to get across to Mr. Harriman that his actions and rebuttals were insubordinate. Dr. Tomko wrote a letter (P-18) regarding the meeting with union representatives, in which he summarized the meeting and cautioned Harriman to refrain from sharing his views with students, parents and faculty. He also put Mr. Harriman on a 90-Day Action Plan. In it he set forth the goals that he thought that the respondent should meet in order to get back on the right path to coexistence. Dr. Tomko said that Mr. Harriman never contacted him to ask for any clarification of the goals, but the union representative wanted to speak with him. The representative, Ms. Spina, wanted all of the negative letters and memos removed from Mr. Harriman's file. Dr. Tomko responded that Mr. Harriman had not taken responsibility for what he had said and issued no formal or informal apology. Therefore, at that point he would not remove the letters and memos from his file. (See P-20.) Dr. Tomko pointed to P-24, a letter from Mr. Harriman to the Board members dated September 6, 2011, in which he felt that the respondent repudiated the Action Plan. Harriman went on to assert that he was being slandered and the things said about him had been fabricated. He claimed that he was planning to file a defamation suit.

Dr. Tomko pointed to P-43, which was an organizational chart that depicted the chain of command. According to the chart, there was no authority for a teacher to report directly to the Board of Education. P-44 states:

The Board expressly disapproves of any attempt to expedite the resolution of a problem by disregard of the organizational plan and the appropriate processes. A staff member's persistent disregard for the established management organization of this district in violation of this policy will be considered an act of insubordination subject to discipline.

Dr. Tomko also discussed the fact that from the 2004–05 school year forward, Mr. Harriman made it known that he was refusing to meet with administration on any topic by himself; a union representative would have to be present. On that basis, he refused to attend a meeting regarding a 504 Plan for a student where all of the student's teachers were supposed to attend. Dr. Tomko wrote a memo (P-21) in response to Harriman's refusal to attend the meeting. Dr. Tomko referred to P-25, which was a reply to a memo from Dr. Tomko. Dr. Tomko testified that he felt that the memo was a threat and he was concerned about Mr. Harriman's aggressive behavior toward him. In the memo, Mr. Harriman said that he would not be attending any anger-management course, as recommended by Tomko. Mr. Harriman copied this letter to all the Board members. The Board was not aware of the compliance meeting or the suggestion of an anger-management course until Harriman told the Board. Then Dr. Tomko began receiving calls from Board members wanting to know what was going on.

Dr. Tomko pointed out that in a memo from Mr. Harriman to Dr. Tomko dated September 9, 2011, along with stating that he would not attend any meetings with administrators alone, Harriman said:

Please be careful using sarcastic adjectives to describe your interpretation of how I conduct myself when I have to defend myself against dishonesty and/or invalid reprimands being forced upon me. I am not at all intimidated by you and you keep antagonizing me. The more you harass me, the bigger my case gets.

Mr. Harriman also claimed that Dr. Tomko's use of the word "caution" was a threat, and that his 90-Day Action Plan was invalid and was another attempt to turn "this deceitful circumstance into my fault."

Dr. Tomko testified that he wrote P-27 because he was concerned about Mr. Harriman's allegations that he was keeping logs. He thought that there might be information in the logs that had something to do with a staff member hurting a student.²³ Dr. Tomko directed Mr. Harriman to meet with him on Friday, September 16, 2011, at 3 p.m. and to provide him with the logs prior to that date. The meeting never took place. Instead, Dr. Tomko met with Mr. Harriman's attorney, but nothing was resolved.

Dr. Tomko testified that he directed another letter to Mr. Harriman on December 16, 2011, after the action plan expired, in which he discussed his "willful disobedience and insubordination towards this administration," which included his injecting himself in the cafeteria and his argumentative tone toward Mr. Saper and Ms. Jackter; his conversation with the school security officer regarding his being harassed by the administration; and his accusing Mr. Werner of getting him in trouble. Dr. Tomko also claimed that Mr. Harriman had shared confidential information with parents and staff after he had been specifically advised not to do so. Dr. Tomko claimed that his having to write memos, speak with people about incidents with Mr. Harriman, and trying to get the union and therefore teachers involved in remedying the situation, all took away from the time he should have been spending administering the school system and negatively impacted the District. In addition, he was concerned that Mr. Harriman's comments that he would not accept the threats that he felt were being hurled at him passively meant that the respondent might do something violent. In addition, Mr. Harriman also refused to follow Dr. Tomko's directive to enroll in an anger-management course.

Dr. Tomko referred to P-45, which was a policy memo regarding the use of cellular telephones at school. According to the policy, if a staff member had to make a personal call on a cellular telephone during the school day, the staff member should not make the call while assigned to school district responsibilities. Dr. Tomko also pointed to R-28, which was a September 9, 2011, letter to Mr. Harriman. In it he stated that he found Mr. Harriman's letters of September 6 and 9, 2011, to be insubordinate and to contain threats.

²³ Dr. Tomko said that Mr. Harriman had made a comment in a prior communication about bullying, and he thought that it might refer to actions of a student and he needed to know about that.

Cross-Examination

Dr. Tomko was questioned regarding P-1, a memo to Mr. LaGrotta dated May 6, 2003. The superintendent said that the memo showed a pattern of insubordination by Mr. Harriman. Dr. Tomko said that as the head coach Mr. Harriman only had the right to recommend someone for reappointment or not; he did not have the right to hire or fire someone. The problem was that in his evaluation, Mr. Harriman had recommended Mr. Galler. It was only after the season ended that Mr. Harriman appeared to change his mind and was manipulating the system. Dr. Tomko stated that the real problem he had with Mr. Harriman over this incident was that he misrepresented what Mr. Nazzaro had allegedly directed him to do. Dr. Tomko testified that his memo to Superintendent Casapulla was intended to bring him up to speed with the problems he and other members of the administration had had with Mr. Harriman, and specifically the problem with the NJSIAA and the team's seeding and the issue of the presentation of awards at the Recreation dinner. Dr. Tomko asserted that it was not appropriate for Mr. Harriman to have discussed the seeding with the Association. He should have gone to the District's athletic director. He said that every coach knows this procedure, but it is Harriman's mentality to do it himself. Dr. Tomko admitted that between 2006 and May 2011 Mr. Harriman had no write-ups. He said that it was because he had been transferred to the elementary schools, which he thought would be a better fit. He said that Mr. Harriman coached baseball. There had been some issues regarding students who made fun of him, and Dr. Tomko said that the administration supported him. Dr. Tomko acknowledged that prior to Mr. Saper being appointed as principal in January 2010, he had not received complaints from the prior principal about Mr. Harriman. Similarly, prior to Ms. Jackter being appointed, he had not received complaints about Mr. Harriman from the prior school administrator. Dr. Tomko said that there had been a complaint from Mr. Silla, the principal of Sixteenth Avenue School, where Mr. Harriman had also worked. It had to do with Mr. Harriman's eating a student's food. Mr. Silla wanted to handle the situation himself, so Dr. Tomko did not deal with it.

Dr. Tomko was questioned about whether it was possible that the awards that Mr. Harriman gave out at the Recreation dinner were separate Recreation awards. Dr.

Tomko said that that was not possible, since the Recreation wrestling team was made up of younger students and the awards were given to the high school wrestling team. Dr. Tomko also pointed out that at the Booster awards dinner the second year, Mr. Harriman again talked about all of the players, when he had been instructed two years in a row to talk about the seniors only. Mr. Harriman again claimed that it was miscommunication.

Dr. Tomko was questioned about Ms. Jackter's allegation about Mr. Harriman's touching his genitals. He said that Mr. Harriman told him that his shorts were wet from being outside in the rain on Field Day and his pants were sticking to him. Dr. Tomko said that he was upset that Mr. Harriman never apologized to Ms. Jackter for making her feel uncomfortable. The superintendent was asked what happened to the complaint lodged with the affirmative action officer regarding this incident. He said that the officer became pregnant and the new officer was the Board's secretary. This created a conflict. Ms. Jackter told the superintendent to hold off on the investigation until the tenure action was over. When questioned about the cell phone incident, Dr. Tomko said that it was not unusual for a teacher to contact a parent after school hours. However, it would be unusual for a teacher to have a parent's number in his cell phone, because the union would not want the teacher to have the number.²⁴ When questioned about the July 5, 2011, memo in which Dr. Tomko said that it was inappropriate for Harriman to contact the Board before discussing the incident with the administration, Dr. Tomko said that Harriman told him that the union told him to send the letter to the Board, but Dr. Tomko stated that the union knows the proper chain of command. Dr. Tomko also recalled that at some point he strongly suggested that it was inappropriate for Mr. Harriman to go directly to the Board, and that he should instead follow the chain of command. When questioned about why he was so concerned about what was in the alleged logs that Mr. Harriman referred to, Dr. Tomko said if there was something in the logs that referred to improper action by a staff member toward a child, the District could be liable and he needed to know about it.²⁵ When asked why the 90-Day Action Plan was started July 6, when school was not in session, Dr. Tomko said that he did it that way because the anger-management course was conducted during the summer and Mr. Harriman could work on not being insubordinate over the summer. However, he was counting the 90 days from the time school was back in session. Dr. Tomko was asked whether the union officials had made it clear that whenever Mr. Harriman was to meet with administration, there should be a union representative present. The superintendent said that he did not recall such a conversation, but he did recall that in a meeting with Mr. Oxfeld, an attorney for the union, he made it clear that a union representative had to be present when the meeting involved a reprimand, and not for normal meetings involving students.²⁶

²⁵ There had been a case in the 1990's in which a principal was found guilty of improperly taking pictures of students on the wrestling team. After the charges were filed, teachers came forward to say that they had seen things that were improper, but they did not know to whom they should report the information.

Dr. Tomko was asked what prompted him to write P-38, the memo to Harriman about continuing to defy directives not to speak to anyone about confidential matters. The superintendent said that it was a result of Mr. Wartel telling him that Mr. Harriman said he was continuing to be harassed when he delivered the papers to him. The superintendent believed that it was inappropriate for Harriman to talk to a messenger about this. Dr. Tomko said that he talked to the union representative about this, but it did not make a difference. In addition, Tomko testified that three teachers informed him that Harriman had tried to get them on his side by encouraging them to file complaints because they also had issues. The superintendent was also told that Harriman used a school laptop during school time to write his rebuttals. Dr. Tomko did acknowledge that he has heard of a teacher leaving the classroom unattended for a short period of time during class. When questioned about P-45, the "Use of Cellular Phones," Dr. Tomko said that he believed that it was circulated among the teachers and given to the union, but he could not verify it. In addition, he acknowledged that the policy talked in terms of personal calls, and Mr. Harriman was asserting that the cell call that he made was not personal, but was made to the parent of a student.²⁷ However, Dr. Tomko asserted that Following this incident the District was very sensitive to any allegations of possible wrongdoing by employees.

²⁶ The meeting with Mr. Oxfeld involved an incident in which a parent filed charges against a teacher for allegedly grabbing a student. The union felt that its members were being targeted. In negotiations with the union, it was decided that if the meeting just involved fact-finding, then a union representative was not required.

²⁷ There had been prior complaints that teachers did not want to call parents/students from their home or cell phones because then they would have their private numbers. Therefore, the District installed extra he did not consider it appropriate to call a parent during instructional time except in an emergency.

Rebuttal

Lt. Michael Foligno

Lieutenant Foligno testified by telephone. He testified that he was at the Elmwood Park Recreation dinner in 2006 because he was an assistant coach for the Recreation wrestling team. He said that the event was held sometime after the end of the wrestling season, which terminates at the end of March. He said that the Recreation wrestling team consisted of younger children, but they had invited the high school wrestling team to the event. He recalled that Mr. Harriman gave out the MVP award at the dinner. He recalled this because there was a controversy about two out of the three awards—MVP, coach's and most improved player, going to Bogota wrestlers. On cross-examination Lieutenant Foligno was asked if the awards given out to the high school students at the Recreation Dinner could have been Recreation awards. He said that that was not possible since the Recreation wrestling team consisted of younger children, not high school athletes. Lieutenant Foligno said that in past years, when he was in high school, the high school wrestlers and the Recreation wrestlers used to have a dinner together. However they stopped doing that. The high school wrestling team was invited to the 2006 Recreation awards dinner as an inspiration to the younger children. Lieutenant Foligno was questioned about whether there could have been joint awards at the 2006 dinner. He said that there were no joint awards. The same awards were given at both dinners and they were not Recreation awards.

Kevin Harriman

Mr. Harriman testified that he has been employed in the Elmwood Park School District for the past ten years. His last assignment was at the three elementary schools, phones in the school buildings so that calls could be made to parents either before or after school from the school building.

among which he split his time.²⁸ Mr. Harriman has a bachelor's degree in physical education, health and drivers' education and is near completion for a master's degree from the University of Phoenix. Besides having been a wrestling and football coach at Elmwood Park, he is a coach at Pascack Hills and had coached at a number of other facilities prior to his teaching career.

Mr. Harriman discussed P-1, the memo from Principal Nazzaro to Mr. Harriman, in which Mr. Nazzaro stated that he never recommended that Harriman submit the memo regarding Mr. Galler to Mr. LaGrotta. The respondent said that when he started as the wrestling coach in 2002, he inherited an assistant coach, George Galler. Throughout the season Mr. Galler had difficulty with students and some of the parents. Harriman tolerated the situation and had discussions with Mr. Galler and Mr. LaGrotta, the athletic director. In Galler's end-of-year evaluation, Mr. Harriman gave him a number of "NI" grades, but he did not recommend that Galler be terminated. He said that a few days later Mr. LaGrotta came to him and said that Galler was not happy with the evaluation and wanted to know what could be done about it. Harriman said that it was a proper evaluation. When Harriman came to LaGrotta with his concerns about Galler and suggested a meeting with LaGrotta, Nazzaro and himself, Mr. LaGrotta said that Nazzaro did not have the time to handle it²⁹ and LaGrotta suggested that Harriman put an addendum to his prior evaluation of Galler. Harriman said that there was no need to fire Galler, he just wanted to be able to choose a new assistant coach that he could work with. When questioned about P-2, which was a memo from Mr. Nazzaro dated May 22, 2003, about his failure to call him when he was going to be absent, Mr. Harriman said that he was following the procedure in effect at the time for calling in absences, namely calling the substitute service and telling them his name, the name of his school and where his lesson plan could be located. Mr. Harriman pointed out that between the years 2003 and 2006 he had no problems with the administration and received no write-ups.

Mr. Harriman explained that for the 2005–06 wrestling season the Elmwood Park team had twenty-two wins and only two losses. It was the best record that they had ever had. He explained how the seeding was calculated by adding up "power points" at the end of the season. The NJSIAA calculated a seeding that placed the Elmwood Park team in a certain position. The Star Ledger then published the seedings based on the Association's statistics. Mr. Harriman stated that at the end of the season the seedings calculated by his assistant coach and statistician were different from what was published in the Star Ledger. Mr. Harriman said that he was upset when he saw the seedings and went to Mr. Saper to ask him to call the Association to find out why there was a discrepancy. Mr. Saper said that he did not know anything about wrestling and told Harriman to call the Association directly. Harriman said he first spoke to a Mr. McMillian from the Star Ledger, who was at the Association meeting when they calculated the points and who published the results in the Ledger. Harriman told him that he thought that the Association had changed the seedings, because the seedings published in the Star Ledger were different from those that had been sent to him as final. Mr. McMillian said that he had some input into the calculations, but the final seedings were done by the Association. McMillian suggested that Harriman call Mr. Baly at the Association, and gave him the telephone number. Mr. Harriman said that he called Mr. Baly and told him that he had spoken with Mr. McMillian and that the power points in the newspaper were different from the Association's numbers.³⁰ The respondent said that he did not use any profanity in speaking with Mr. Baly. (Harriman did say that when speaking to McMillian, Harriman said "this is BS," but McMillian did not take exception to his language.) He did continue to ask Baly if there were any way they could work the problem out, because his numbers and those of the Association did not match up. Baly continued to assert that that was how it was and there would be no change. He wished Harriman good luck in the tournament and did not seem upset. Harriman stated that Mr. Baly did not say anything to him about attending a compliance meeting. It was the respondent's understanding that attendance at a compliance meeting was ordered when a coach gets ejected from a game. When he did go to the compliance meeting, he approached Baly and apologized for any misunderstanding. Then he asked him why he was at the compliance meeting. Baly responded that Tomko wanted him to attend.

²⁸ The three schools were Gantner, Gilbert Avenue and Sixteenth Avenue.

²⁹ Mr. Nazzaro was about to retire as principal of the high school and was busy with that and graduation.

³⁰ Mr. Harriman claimed that Mr. Baly and McMillan were the only people that he spoke to. This testimony differed from that of Dr. Tomko, who said that Mr. Baly told him that Mr. Harriman had spoken to his secretary and had upset her.

When questioned about P-4, which dealt with the giving out of awards, Mr. Harriman said that he never saw the document until he received the tenure charges. Harriman said that the MVP was chosen because he had scored the most points for the team score. He said that the assistant coach and two volunteer coaches were from Bogota. He was never told that there was a problem with the student from Bogota who received the MVP award. On the day of the championship match, when the student did not show up, Harriman was told that the student had trouble at school and was not going to be at the match. He denied ever being told between the date of the match in March and the award presentation in May that there was a problem with the MVP receiving the award. He said that if he had known the circumstances, he would not have given the student the award. He said that Mr. Saper had talked to him before the award was presented, saying that it should be given to an Elmwood Park student, but he never mentioned the problem with the student from Bogota.

Mr. Harriman asserted that he did not present the MVP and coach's award at the Recreation dinner. He stated that the two awards that were presented were from Bogota; the only Elmwood Park Award that he presented at the Recreation dinner was for most improved player. The respondent acknowledged that recreation wrestling teams were second through eighth graders and, therefore, they were a different group of students than those who were on the high school team.

Mr. Harriman testified that before the Field Day activities that were the subject of P-7, he had coordinated five Field Days and participated in fourteen Field Days in total. He designed the activities, got the equipment, arranged the teams and laid out the program in a four- to five-page packet. Ms. Jackter was given the plan two weeks prior to the Field Day and she approved it. On the day in question he and Mr. Schwartz arrived at Ms. Jackter's school at 7:00 a.m. to set everything up.³¹ Mr. Harriman said that it was a misty morning; he said good morning to Ms. Jackter and her immediate response was, "we are having it!" Mr. Harriman proceeded to set up the equipment for the activities both inside the gym and outside. He had scheduled the children to begin coming down at 9:15 two classes at a time, but they did not come down until 9:30. Ms. Jackter requested to speak to the students first and he gave her the megaphone to use to address them. After that he gave the students general instructions that involved safety issues. At 9:45 the program began. About ten to fifteen minutes after they got outside, Ms. Jackter came up to him and said that she did not understand something in the packet. Harriman said that he explained it. He then went on to handle activities. When he went outside to the blacktop, where the outside activities were to take place, he saw that it started to drizzle. There were no students there; he only saw Ms. Jackter picking up hula hoops from the ground. He asked Jackter where the kids were. She said that it was raining. Harriman stated that he told her that she should have talked to him before calling the students inside so that he could bring the students in one class at a time. Instead it was chaos; he was told that the children were wet and some were crying. Jackter then ordered him to organize relay races. He questioned her about the fact that the students' sneakers would be wet and there were obstacles in the hallways where the events would take place. She told him to modify the relay race. Mr. Harriman took issue with Ms. Jackter's stating that his attitude during Field Day was inappropriate. He said that during Field Day, every half hour she came to him and criticized something that he was doing. She seemed relentless in pointing out problems with the organization; either she did not understand or a teacher did not understand something in the packet. He said that no teacher complained to him. The teachers had done the same program for the past three years with no problems. Two or three times during the day Ms. Jackter said, "See me when this is over." Harriman said that when he went into Ms. Jackter's room he was sweaty, dirty and wet from the rain. He sat down across the desk from Ms. Jackter. She told him that she was disappointed with his attitude and accused him of yelling at her. He denied the charge. At some point during the discussion he tugged on his thighs because his pants were sticking to him. The rest of the time his arms were across his chest. He stated that his hands were never on his genital area.

Mr. Harriman was asked about P-8, which concerned five students. Mr. Harriman said that one of the students did cheat on the fitness test and he told her that she was going to lose points for part of the test. Another student was unprepared for class and therefore could not do the fitness run. A third student was acting difficult and crumpled his fitness paper. As for the student who said that Harriman screamed at her and called or threatened to call her mother, Mr. Harriman said that he had had problems with the student being hostile before, and when he spoke to her mother before, she told him that if there were any problems with her daughter he should call her on the spot. Harriman said that he told the student that he was going to call her mother because she had asked him to do so if there were problems with the child. The student's response was that she would do what Harriman asked her to do. As for the allegation that he asked a student to get him his water that he had left in the faculty room, Harriman said that he was never advised that a student could not go into the faculty room, and he had seen other students go in there to get things for other teachers. Mr. Harriman said that the student he had sent to the faculty room was seven years old. Mr. Harriman denied ever directing the lunch aides. He said that the principal, not he, was in charge of the aides. Mr. Harriman also disputed the remark that Mr. Saper put in the memo about his walking in the office in a huff and saying "what now?" Instead Mr. Harriman insisted that he said "what's up?" As for the issue about the student getting his water bottle, Mr. Harriman said that Mr. Saper called him into the office at 9:40, just before the start of Field Day, to ask about the incident. He felt that this was a form of harassment. When questioned about P-6, his evaluation by Mr. Saper, Mr. Harriman disputed the statement that there had been a number of problems involving student safety and bullying. Harriman said that only two students were injured in his class during the year and there were no incidents of bullying. He would never have tolerated bullying and Mr. Saper never discussed any bullying incidents with him.

Mr. Harriman was asked to explain what had occurred with the children who were mentioned in P-8, the memo from Mr. Saper to Mr. Harriman. The respondent said that he had no difficulty managing the fifth-grade class, which he had been teaching for five years. The children listed in the memo were students who did not want to do the fitness class because it was a hot day. Before he had started the class, Ms. Valentine, their regular classroom teacher, had told him that the class was out of control and wished him good luck with them. In his rebuttal memo of June 2, 2011, Mr. Harriman explained how he handled the situation with each of the students. Harriman felt that all of a sudden he was being harassed. Mr. Harriman said that his speech, tone and mannerism, when he met with Mr. Saper on May 25, 2011, were not disrespectful or argumentative. He said that it was Mr. Saper who turned things around and started with an aggressive tone when Harriman was just sitting there. The memo stated that the respondent was going to file a grievance against Mr. Saper. When questioned, Mr. Harriman said that he did not file a grievance.

In the memo, Mr. Saper directed him not to assist with the lunch program and to work Mr. Schwartz's physical education schedule on Wednesday, June 8, 2011.³² Saper made it clear that Mr. Harriman was not going to be running the Field Day program with Mr. Schwartz. Mr. Harriman said that since he had been directed to cover Mr. Schwartz's class at Gantner, he went there on June 8, 2011. When he went to get the class at Gantner, the teacher said that Mr. Schwartz told her that he would make up the class at another time, but if Harriman wanted to take the class, that was fine. Ms. Jackter also became involved, and she told Mr. Harriman that it was okay for him to cover Mr. Schwartz's classes that day. Mr. Harriman said that Mr. Schwartz did not tell him not to take his classes at Gantner; he was not speaking to Schwartz at the time. Mr. Harriman said that, under any circumstances, he would have followed the administrative directive to cover Schwartz's classes at Gantner. In P-9, Mr. Harriman also explained that the reason that he asked a student to get his water bottle from the faculty lounge was that he had to take a pill and the water fountains were polluted and had been "bagged up" for some time.³³ Mr. Harriman also claimed that he spoke to the lunch aide about Mr. Saper's statement that the aides did not want him helping in the cafeteria. Mr. Harriman said that the aide told him that they complained to Mr. Saper about a Mr. Harrison, not Mr. Harriman. She promised that she would talk to Mr. Saper about the error. Mr. Harriman protested Mr. Saper's repetitive misstatements that he yelled, screamed and was in his face. He also claimed that he had exaggerated and been dishonest in his past evaluations of Mr. Harriman.³⁴ When asked about the tone of his rebuttal, Mr. Harriman acknowledged that it was on the harsh side and he might have gotten carried away with the details, but he felt that he had to defend his position. He felt that he had to write to the Board because he was being harassed by ³² Mr. Harriman testified that he spoke to the head lunch aide, who claimed that she never told Saper that Harriman was interfering with her job and she claimed that she told Saper this.

³⁴ Harriman claimed that in 2007 Mr. Saper gave him an evaluation that was not proper. He refused to sign the unsatisfactory evaluation and asked Saper to change the evaluation, which he did five days later.

administrators, and the only ones who would be neutral were the Board members. Mr. Harriman said that during the summer the Board replied to him that State law did not permit them to run the daily operations of the school, but they would refer the situation to the administrators. If things did not work out with the administration, then the Board would get involved.

Mr. Harriman was asked about the memo from Ms. Jackter to him on June 6, 2011, regarding the allegation that he left his students unsupervised. Mr. Harriman said that the children were doing their physical fitness routines and it was getting hot in the gym. He went to open the door to get some air and tried to finagle the door to keep it opened. He said that the whole procedure took fifteen to twenty seconds and he could see the students in the gym at all times. When he stepped back inside, Ms. Jackter was standing there with her assignment pad. Ms. Jackter accused him of being outside setting up cones. Mr. Harriman said that he had set the cones up earlier in the day before the students were in class.

Mr. Harriman said that he did not attend a meeting referenced in P-11, because he preferred at that time to have an NJEA representative or an attorney present at all meetings with administration. It was his understanding that he did not have to attend the meeting. P-12 was Mr. Harriman's rebuttal. Mr. Harriman said that he felt that Jackter and Saper were scheming to harass him. When questioned about the reference to the megaphone, Mr. Harriman said that Ms. Jackter was nervous while using the megaphone, and a principal should not be nervous when talking to students. He felt that this evidenced that something was going on between Jackter and Saper. When asked if he would characterize his memo as harsh, he said "no," but it was detailed. He thought that the harassing was starting up again and he was reacting out of self-defense. At the time he was being treated for depression and was taking meds for anxiety.

Mr. Harriman was questioned about P-15, in which Mr. Saper stated that Mr. Harriman had said to him, "what goes around comes around Mr. Saper." Mr. Saper took this as a threat. Mr. Harriman said that it was not a threat, just an expression. When asked about the logs that Mr. Harriman referred to in a number of his memos, he said that they were reflections of his teaching on a week-to-week basis. It was pointed out that in answers to interrogatories he would not produce the logs because he considered them personal. Mr. Harriman stated that P-17 was his response to his fourth write-up in eleven or twelve days. In the memo he again dealt with the issue of his covering Mr. Schwartz's classes. Mr. Harriman said that he would have had no reason to go to Gantner School if he had known that he was not needed. Instead, administration could have reassigned him to other duty. It did not do so.

Mr. Harriman took issue with P-18, the letter that Dr. Tomko wrote to him on July 5, 2011. First, he could not understand why a letter would be sent to him when school was not in session. Mr. Harriman was taken aback by Dr. Tomko's taking issue with the tone and tenor of the respondent's rebuttals. Harriman could not understand how Dr. Tomko could devise an action plan in which the people he allegedly was insubordinate to and with whom he took issue would be monitoring his actions. Mr. Harriman claimed that Dr. Tomko never discussed Ms. Jackter's allegations about his touching his genitals, and no action was ever taken except getting a letter from the affirmative action officer.

Mr. Harriman was asked why he again wrote to the Board of Education on September 6, 2011. He said that he had written to the Board previously about the past five write-ups and did not receive a response. He said that he was never told not to write to the Board. Mr. Harriman testified that he wrote P-25 in response to Dr. Tomko's letter and the prior write-ups. At the time he was being treated for depression and was taking medication for anxiety. He also had issues at home. He said that he had to stop working on his master's degree and focus on defending himself against three people: Ms. Jackter, Mr. Saper and Dr. Tomko. Mr. Harriman was asked whether he met with Dr. Tomko on September 16, 2011, as mentioned in P-27. He said that he did not, but subsequently Mr. Feintuch met with Dr. Tomko. Mr. Harriman explained what he perceived had occurred on November 9, 2011, which was the subject of a memo from Ms. Jackter to Dr. Tomko (P-29). Mr. Harriman said that two special education students began fighting over a soccer ball. He dealt with the situation and reported to the regular teacher that the boys were not getting along. Ms. Jackter approached him and asked him to explain what happened. He showed her how he separated the boys by extending his arms between another teacher and Ms. Jackter. As soon as he did this, Ms. Jackter said "don't touch me." Mr. Harriman said that that was all that happened, and then he walked away. He did not push her and she did not lose her balance; at most his arm may have touched her sleeve.

Mr. Harriman gave his version of what Mr. Saper outlined in P-30. He said that on December 2, 2011, he had finished preparing the afternoon equipment in the gym. He was sitting in the cafeteria and was working on his attendance book. He had his glucose monitor in a black bag. He was feeling dizzy and was sweating. He said that he knew his blood sugar was low. He went to a table fifty feet away from where the students were lined up against the stage waiting to go out.³⁵ None of the students were facing him. Mr. Harriman said that he lifted up the top of his laptop and gave himself an injection. He said that he was having a hyperglycemic episode. When Mr. Saper came over to him and asked if he had injected himself, Mr. Harriman said that he had. Mr. Saper's response was that that was not smart to do.

Mr. Harriman testified that on the first full day of school at Gilbert Avenue he was assigned to gate duty. Mr. Saper did not tell him anything about what procedures to follow. Harriman said that he thought he was to help children get out of their cars and into school. Beginning in September he started opening car doors to assist the students in the morning as a courtesy and for safety reasons. He either helped the students out of the cars or assisted them with their book bags and then closed the car doors. He felt that this expedited the drop-off process, and since the children exited onto the sidewalk on the school side of the street, it was safe. He said that he would make eye contact with the parent and then open the car door. The parents were thankful for the courtesy. Harriman said that before the December 9, 2011, memo (P-31) he had never been told not to do this, and Mr. Werner opened the car doors as often as he did. Mr. Harriman said that he asked Mr. Saper where the policy was written that he could not open a car door, but he never received anything from Mr. Saper. As for the comment that he had shared confidential information with a parent, Mr. Harriman said that a parent, Mrs. Tester, drove up each morning and he opened the door for her twin girls, who were small and who had trouble closing the door. On a day after he received the memo, Mrs. Tester asked him to open the car door. He told her that he was sorry, but he could not open the door anymore. Harriman asserted that he did not consider that to be sharing confidential information. Mr. Harriman denied having a conversation with Mr. Werner after he received P-31. He said that he called Mr. Werner on a Saturday and asked him if he received a memo about opening car doors. Mr. Werner said that he was working with his father and could not talk then. Mr. Harriman said that the conversation lasted less than a minute. When asked whether Mr. Werner's memo to Mr. Saper was correct, he said that some of it was correct, in that he did call Werner back, and he did discuss whether Werner had gotten a call about opening the car doors. However, he denied saying anything to Werner about Saper, Jackter or Tomko.

In discussing P-36, Mr. Harriman asserted that Mr. Saper yelled at him that he was married and had kids and that Mr. Harriman should get a life. Mr. Harriman was asked about his comments that Mr. Saper had planted moles in the school. He said that different people would go to Mr. Saper and say things that they had fabricated. Mr. Harriman said that Harrison Werner's referring to Mr. Saper as "Dave" during his testimony reinforced what he already knew, which was that Werner was a mole. Mr. Harriman asserted that he never discussed with Superintendent Tomko the incident regarding his injecting himself. The respondent said that Tomko came to a conclusion without consulting him. He did the same thing when jumping to his conclusion about Werner and confidentiality. Mr. Harriman also testified that Mr. Wartel delivered an envelope to him. As he was doing so Wartel said, "more BS from you know who." Harriman said that he responded, "they don't let up," and he might have said that he was going to take them to court. Mr. Harriman also re-asserted that the children were not eating their lunch when he injected himself. He disputed Ms. Romero's rendition that two students were sitting near her in the lunchroom near where Mr. Harriman injected himself. He said that they were thirty feet away. When asked about P-40, Ms. Jackter's memo about his ignoring her when she called to him at the entrance to the parking lot, Mr. Harriman said that at the time he was walking out of the school toward the parking lot. He did not hear her call to him. He denied ever walking between Ms. Jackter and Mr. Wartel and stated that he was in a hurry at the time. When he came back to school someone was in his parking spot. He asked Ms. Jackter what he should do. She told him to just put the car in a visitor's space and he did so. Mr. Harriman claimed that he never received P-45, the Cellular Telephone Policy. He said that at times pieces of paper are put in his mailbox, but he never receives them.

Mr. Harriman testified that when the memos from Jackter, Saper and Tomko started, about June 2010, he started being treated for depression and was receiving new medication in May and June 2011, around the time of the first five write-ups. He said that he was stressed out about all of his responsibilities. However, he did not consider taking a leave of absence.

Cross-Examination

On cross-examination, Mr. Harriman said that he started receiving treatment and medication for his depression in 2010. He is no longer taking medication for this condition.

Mr. Harriman was questioned about the incident in which it was alleged that he called a student's mother on his cell phone during class because the child was misbehaving. Mr. Harriman had several renditions of what occurred. At one point he said that he did not actually call the mother, but just took the phone out and threatened to call. At another point he said that he called the parent's number, but she did not answer. Then he said that he did not remember whether he actually called or not. Mr. Harriman was referred to his answer to interrogatory #26 in which he stated that a call was made to the parent during the warm-up time at the gym class. Mr. Harriman responded that it happened so quickly, but he now remembered that he took the phone out and threatened to call, but did not actually call. Mr. Harriman was then asked whether it was incorrect when he said, in his rebuttal to Mr. Saper's memo, that he did call and left a message. Mr. Harriman then responded that he did call and left a message.

In response to questioning about P-1, page 2, the memo from Mr. Harriman to Mr. LaGrotta, Mr. Harriman said that he did not meet with Mr. Nazzaro regarding Mr. Galler. He said that Mr. LaGrotta told him that Mr. Nazzaro was too busy to meet with him and the respondent should deal with LaGrotta directly.³⁶ Mr. Harriman denied Mr. Nazzaro's testimony that he never recommended to Mr. Harriman that he write an addendum to his initial evaluation of Mr. Galler and told him that if he had wanted Mr. Galler fired he should have stated so in his initial evaluation. The respondent stated that he thought that Mr. Nazzaro's testimony was colored by the fact that he was a good friend of Mr. Galler. Mr. Harriman stated that Mr. Galler was negative, untrustworthy, and degrading toward the students. These characteristics justified his recommendation not to renew his contract. Based on this information, Harriman was asked if he gave Mr. Galler a negative initial evaluation. At first Mr. Harriman said that he did not recall if, in the evaluation, he recommended that Galler not be rehired. Upon further questioning Mr. Harriman said that he now recalled giving Mr. Galler an unsatisfactory evaluation. Mr. Harriman said that from the date he received Mr. Nazzaro's memo on May 6, 2003, until the end of the school year he did not follow up as to whether Mr. Galler had been rehired. Despite the fact that he had written rebuttals to other memos that he received, Mr. Harriman did not write a rebuttal to P-1, page 1, the memo from Mr. Nazzaro in which he denied ever recommending that Harriman attach an addendum to his evaluation of Mr. Galler and recommending that Mr. Harriman take a look at his own attitude. Harriman said that he did not have any further responsibilities with regard to wrestling until the season began in November. Harriman said that he was not aware that wrestlers worked out over the summer using the school facilities.

Mr. Harriman was asked to explain the process by which wrestling teams are seeded. He said that first groups are determined based on the enrollment of the school. At the time in question, Elmwood Park was in Group #2. Within the group there were seedings, which are based on power points. Power points are determined by the strength of a team's opponents and the number of wins and losses. The Star Ledger reported the power points as well as the seeding. Mr. Harriman said that if the seeding had been done the way he thought it should have been done, his team would have been in a higher group. He believed that the seedings were off by a number of percentage points.³⁷ Harriman said that one of the assistant coaches and the score keeper, a student, kept a record of the points. He glanced at the calculations throughout the season and did the computations at the end of the season. Mr. Harriman asserted that he spoke to Mr. Saper about the seeding and that he gave him permission to call the Association.³⁸ Mr. Harriman characterized his discussion with Mr. Baly at the Association as a gentlemen's agreement to disagree.³⁹ Mr. Harriman stated that when he attended the compliance meeting in August 2006, he was not upset about being there, even though the meeting was generally for coaches who had been ejected from competitions. Harriman said that he apologized to Mr. Baly. When asked why he did that if his prior conversation with Baly had been cordial, the respondent said that he did not think that it would hurt. He said that his apology was just for sticking up for the team. Baly said that it was not his idea that he attend the compliance meeting; rather, Tomko wanted him to attend. Mr. Harriman said that he took exception to that. He felt that Dr. Tomko did not have the authority to send him to the compliance meeting. Mr. Harriman was questioned about his statement that between 2003 and 2007 he had no problems with the administration. He did acknowledge that in the spring of 2006 he was stripped of his coaching responsibilities. Harriman also did not recall discussing with Mr. Saper his remarks in the May 10, 2011, evaluation that Mr. Harriman needed to become more open to administrative feedback.

Mr. Harriman said that he did not recall being directed to hand out the MVP award only at the unified Booster Club dinner. Harriman said that he handed out the Recreation award, and he denied handing out the MVP award at the Recreation dinner. When questioned about the student to whom he awarded the MVP award, Mr. Harriman said that he did not know the nature of the student's infraction. He said that at the time that the student did not appear, it was a league match, it could have been a championship match, but he would not know that until the other teams had played their matches.⁴⁰ Harriman said that the student was from Bogota High School and the Bogota coach told him only that the student had gotten into trouble at the school. Harriman said that he requested information about the situation from the athletic directors at Bogota and Elmwood, but neither responded to him. He thought that he asked them the next day. He figured that if he did not receive a response, he was not supposed to know. Mr. Harriman said that from the time of the match in January until June, when he received the memo from Dr. Tomko about handing out the MVP award, he never heard from anyone about the problem with the student and he never inquired further. Mr. Harriman said that when Dr. Tomko told him what the student said, he thought that the District did him an injustice; it was a shame, but it was not his fault.

³⁸ At the time Mr. Saper was the athletic director and assistant principal.

³⁹ This differed from his direct testimony, in which he said that Baly said on the telephone that it was a done deal and he refused to send Harriman a written explanation of the seeding.

When questioned about P-6, Mr. Saper's evaluation, Mr. Harriman said that it was not the first time that he had expressed concerns to Saper about an evaluation. He admitted that in the past Mr. Saper had listened to his reasons for changing his evaluation and had made modifications. Mr. Harriman was asked why he made the statement in his rebuttal to the Field Day write-up (P-12) that Ms. Jackter was pacing nervously and was envious of his megaphone, since he testified at the hearing that Ms. Jackter wanted to speak first at the Field Day activities and handed the megaphone back to him after she finished making the announcements. Mr. Harriman said that when he testified, he just answered the questions posed to him and that is why his response deviated from what he said in the rebuttal. When discussing Field Day, Mr. Harriman said that he was concerned when Ms. Jackter ordered the children inside. He felt that if he had done it, it would have been more organized. He was also concerned about their doing relay races because the children's shoes were wet. He also disagreed with Ms. Jackter's taking it upon herself to send the children back out again when it stopped raining, because he felt that it was too wet. He said that he was unable to speak with Ms. Jackter because she walked away from him.

Mr. Harriman admitted that he got a little carried away in the memo, but he thought that Ms. Jackter's actions were unwarranted, meddling and micro-managing. When asked whether he thought that it was appropriate to address a principal the way he did in the rebuttal, he said that at the time he wrote the rebuttal he had just received a write-up from Jackter and had been humiliated in front of students and staff all day. In his view, Ms. Jackter knew nothing about how Field Day should be run and he had conducted many Field Days. Mr. Harriman was asked in what way he believed that Ms. Jackter had been uncooperative, untrustworthy and dishonest. Mr. Harriman said he considered that Ms. Jackter was dishonest because she wrote him up for yelling at her throughout the day, and he did not yell at her. When asked why he wrote in the rebuttal accusing Ms. Jackter of scheming with Mr. Saper to harass him, he said this was based on the fact that he felt that both of them were harassing him at the same time. Mr. Harriman acknowledged that he was aware of the fact that there was an affirmative action officer in the District that he could have filed a complaint with, but he chose not to do so. The respondent was also asked about his comment that he was sorry that Ms. Jackter was not able to comprehend the Field Day packet that he had submitted. He said that he made the comment because in all the years he had been preparing the packet, no one had ever questioned the information he put in the packet. He also believed that he was correct when he said in the rebuttal that Ms. Jackter needed to learn the meaning of the word insubordinate, because he had not been insubordinate and it was unheard of that he would be written up over Field Day. Mr. Harriman also reaffirmed his remarks that Ms. Jackter tried to sabotage his Field Day by prohibiting him from doing what he needed to do and by temporarily removing material that he needed for the field activities. He concluded that Ms. Jackter was less concerned about having the day succeed and more concerned about sabotaging it at his expense. In addition, he believed that if there were problems with Field Day, then Mr. Schwartz should have been called in by Ms. Jackter as well, since he was working on that day also. He did not understand why Ms. Jackter was more concerned with her interaction with him than with the mechanics of the day.

Mr. Harriman said that he consulted with the union representative and showed her Ms. Jackter's memo. The rep said that he could write a rebuttal, but that it had to be truthful. Mr. Harriman said that he was not aware that he could have filed a grievance. When asked why he did not go to a meeting that was requested by Principal Jackter, he said that after what happened with the allegations about his touching his genitals, he did not want to meet with someone from the administration without proper representation. When asked why he therefore did not ask a union representative to attend the meeting with him and Ms. Jackter, he responded that he did not have enough time to do that.

Mr. Harriman asserted that Ms. Jackter's accusation that he was touching his genitals was a complete fabrication. He said that his hands were never near his genitalia. He said that his hands were on the top of his thighs. While in that position, he pulled down his shorts, which were sticking to him. The rest of the time during the meeting with Jackter, his hands were on his chest. Mr. Harriman said that there was no way that Ms. Jackter could have confused what she said with what had actually occurred. What she said was a total lie. In response to a question, Mr. Harriman said that Ms. Jackter's accusation was all part of a larger conspiracy with Mr. Saper. Mr. Harriman said that the conspiracy began in May 2011, when he asked Saper to change his evaluation. That was when the harassment intensified. He did not know what triggered the conspiracy, because just a few days before Ms. Jackter had praised him about his supervision of a volleyball game. However, once the harassment started, he felt that any time he got positive attention from the faculty or students, Ms. Jackter would retaliate against him and follow him around with her assignment pad. When asked whether his remark on Page 4 of P-12 that if Ms. Jackter continued to yell at him, in the future he would only communicate with a dry board, was reasonable, he responded that he had gotten carried away.

Mr. Harriman insisted that Mr. Schwartz had never informed him that he was not needed to cover his classes at Ms. Jackter's school. He denied that Schwartz had texted him to that effect. He also said that, when he came to the school, Ms. Jackter told him to cover Schwartz's classes. Mr. Harriman said that Mr. Schwartz made up the testimony about covering the classes. Mr. Harriman said that at some point he and Schwartz stopped talking to each other. During Field Day Mr. Harriman observed Ms. Jackter and Mr. Schwartz speaking a lot. After that Schwartz would not return his calls. When asked whether Mr. Schwartz was part of the Saper-Jackter-Tomko conspiracy, Mr. Harriman said that he found it disturbing, but he thought that Schwartz was part of it. As for Harrison Werner, he thought that he had been persuaded to say things that were an exaggeration. On cross-examination, Mr. Harriman acknowledged that he did call Mr. Werner, but the security guard's testimony was an exaggeration. The respondent said that he had had a good relationship with Werner and knew him since he was a student at the high school, but he believed that he succumbed to outside pressure to lie about him.

Mr. Harriman discussed the meeting of May 25, 2011, which was the subject of P-8. He said that Mr. Saper's testimony that he called Harriman into the office and wanted to have a discussion with him about the five complaints he had received was an incorrect characterization of what occurred. He said that Saper did not want to have a discussion. Instead, he accused Harriman of wrongdoing. When the questioner pointed out that nowhere in the document did it say that Mr. Saper concluded that he had done anything wrong, but rather stated that Harriman's inability to communicate like an adult precluded the principal from investigating the allegations, Mr. Harriman said that Saper did not really want to have a discussion. Mr. Harriman stated that contrary to what Mr. Saper said, that Harriman approached him and said "what now," in reality he said "what's up?" Mr. Harriman said that what Mr. Saper said in the memo never happened; it was all part of the conspiracy. Harriman told Mr. Saper to back off. The respondent speculated that something must have happened when Mr. Saper had a prior meeting with the superintendent and now he was the brunt of his frustration. Mr. Harriman insisted that he remained calm when he talked to Mr. Saper, and asked him to please stop harassing him. Mr. Harriman was referred to P-9, in which he stated that he deemed Mr. Saper's attitude and actions toward him to be highly unbecoming an elementary school principal. While he acknowledged that in the past Mr. Saper had listened to his concerns about his prior evaluations and made adjustments, Mr. Harriman felt that at this point Mr. Saper had turned against him. Mr. Harriman testified that he felt that Saper was interfering with his job and that the way that he treated him was unjustified. He believed that Mr. Saper was unable to manage the school.

Mr. Harriman asserted that he was the most effective physical education teacher in the District, but he was frustrated and was under a lot of stress because he was being bombarded over issues that he felt were very petty. When questioned about whether it was petty when five students came to the principal with complaints, Mr. Harriman said that it was possible that Mr. Saper had made the complaints up. When asked about why he did not submit the log that he claimed in P-45 that he had, Mr. Harriman said that he wanted to work things out and therefore he decided not to submit it. However, it was pointed out that based on the tone of the memos from Mr. Saper, it seemed clear that things were not working out.

When questioned about Ms. Jackter's write-up (P-10) regarding his being outside setting up cones, Mr. Harriman said that the allegation was a fabrication. Mr. Harriman also stated that he did not meet with Mr. Saper as he requested on June 3, 2011. He said that he met with the union representative, who said that she would handle the situation and he did not have to attend a meeting. Mr. Harriman was asked whether he needed to make the remark in his memo to Ms. Jackter responding to her write-up about his leaving the class unattended, "Negligent behavior you mention? Coming from the person who allowed a non-registered child to participate in Field Day?"⁴¹ He responded that he did not need to make the remark, but he was upset. Mr. Harriman also testified that he believed that Dr. Tomko's Action Plan was invalid and he doubted his authority to impose the plan. He said that he had consulted with the union and they were concerned about the things that the superintendent was asking him to do and the start date of the plan.⁴² However, the union representative did tell him that after consulting with Dr. Tomko, the superintendent said that the plan was still in force. Mr. Harriman questioned the plan's goal that he not "make any insubordinate comments," since he believed that he had not been insubordinate. Mr. Harriman believed that he had complied with the plan, except that he did not take the anger-management course, although he said that he was looking into it. Mr. Harriman acknowledged that even though he thought that the plan was invalid, he had not received anything in writing from Dr. Tomko or the union saying that he did not have to comply with the plan. Mr. Harriman stated that he did not consider it insubordinate to send a letter to the Board members telling them that the 90-Day Action Plan was invalid, even though he went outside the chain of command. He believed that he had a right to go to the Board at any time. Mr. Harriman said that he was not given the Policy outlined in P-44, which dealt with the chain of command. However, he was familiar with the chain of command, but felt that it did not apply to a teacher's questioning a reprimand. Mr. Harriman said that he filed a grievance against Dr. Tomko for making threatening comments.⁴³ However, even though he alleged in the letter to the Board that Dr. Tomko had slandered him, Mr. Harriman did not file a grievance regarding slander. Mr. Harriman also did not consider his actions as outlined by Dr. Tomko in P-28 to be signs of insubordination.

⁴¹ Ms. Jackter had explained that this was the child of a parent who was helping with the Field Day activities.

⁴² There was a question of when the plan began since Mr. Harriman was not in school during the summer and the 90 days in the plan ran from July 6 through November 14, 2011, which was more than 90 days.

⁴³ Mr. Harriman considered Dr. Tomko's statements "I strongly cautioned you" and "address me as 'sir'" to be threats.

Mr. Harriman was asked about the self-injection incident on December 5, 2011. He reiterated that the students were not anywhere near him and that he placed the cover of his computer up so that no one could see him injecting. He stated that he could not go to the nurse's office because he was having a hypoglycemic incident; his heart was racing and he was sweating. He injected himself with glucose. He felt that if he walked to the restroom he could pass out. When Mr. Saper observed that Mr. Harriman seemed to be okay, the respondent said that he did not think it was necessary to tell the principal that he was having an emergency; he just needed to sit down and allow the glucose to take effect. Mr. Harriman was also questioned about his remark in P-32 that Mr. Harriman could not ban him from the lunch room. Mr. Harriman acknowledged that he had taken a course as part of his master's degree program on the role of the principal. On re-cross examination, Mr. Harriman said that he did not believe that the number of write-ups were the result of his conduct, but rather the conduct of the administrators. Mr. Harriman also did not believe that Mr. Saper was really seeking to find out whether the complaints by the students were valid. Instead he believed that it was just another vehicle for Mr. Saper to continue his harassment of him. Mr. Harriman acknowledged that he had read the letter from Maria Romero, an aide at Mr. Saper's school, in which she stated that she was assisting students at lunch and was sitting next to Mr. Harriman, who had a small black rectangular zip-up case in his hands, while they were eating. She did not know what he did with the case. However, he continued to assert that there were no students near him and eating lunch when he injected himself.

Redirect

On redirect examination, Mr. Harriman stated that he and his assistant coach had followed the seedings in the Star Ledger and tallied them up. There seemed to be a conflict between his scores and that of the Ledger. Over the weekend the Ledger changed its seedings, and that was what caused him concern. Mr. Harriman disputed Lt. Michael Foligno's recollection of the number of awards that were given out at the Recreation awards dinner. He claimed that the MVP and most improved player awards were not mentioned at the Recreation dinner. He said that the plaque for the most improved player, which was given out at the Recreation dinner, was paid for by the Recreation Department. Mr. Harriman testified that traditionally the principal had a minor role to play at Field Day, just going over the packet of information prior to the day and making one or two appearances during the day. He was surprised at how involved Ms. Jackter was in the day and how she kept interfering with how he was running the activities and causing the children to be misplaced and off task. He felt that his program was running smoothly without her overseeing it.

Mr. Harriman said that he felt there was a conspiracy because two days after the Booster dinner, Dr. Tomko took his coaching positions for the wrestling and football team away from him. Harriman was also going to be signed up to coach football in Ridgewood, but because Dr. Tomko did not get back to him in time to give him permission, he forfeited that job as well. That left him without three sources of additional income. That occurred in 2007. In 2011, Mr. Harriman felt that there was a conspiracy because he had been written up five times in five weeks and had not had problems for years before that. The first incident involved Ms. Jackter's criticism of his inappropriate behavior at the meeting after Field Day, which he disputed. The second involved the fitness testing when Mr. Saper took issue with the manner in which he allegedly spoke to him (P-8). Mr. Harriman characterized Mr. Saper's behavior as "going off on a tear." Mr. Harriman said that Mr. Saper never said that his actions toward the children mentioned in the memo were inappropriate. The third write-up occurred when Ms. Jackter stated in P-10 that in her sixteen years in education she had never seen a classroom left unattended.⁴⁴ The fourth incident involved his covering Mr. Schwartz's classes at Ms. Jackter's school. Mr. Harriman said that there would have been no reason for him to go to Gantner if he did not think that he had to cover the classes (P-13). The fifth incident involved his not hearing Ms. Jackter calling to him while she was standing next to Mr. Wartel. He questioned how the people who wrote him up could be impartial about monitoring him. He also did not think the plan was valid because of the July 6 start date, which would make it longer than a 90-day plan. Mr. Harriman pointed out that he ultimately attended the 504 Plan meeting. Mr. Harriman also disputed that he had touched Ms. Jackter as she alleged in P-29 or that he rolled his eyes as he left the meeting. Finally, Mr. Harriman stated that if he had to do it over again, he would not have written the rebuttals in the tone that he used. He was letting it get too personal. Mr. Harriman testified that it never occurred to him that the number of write-ups that he received over a relatively short period of time were a function of his own conduct.

Based on the testimony and exhibits, I make the following FINDINGS OF FACT:

1. Kevin Harriman was assigned to teach physical education at three of the District's elementary schools.
2. Michael Nazzaro worked in the school district from 1968–2003. In his last position he served as principal of Elmwood Park High School in the 2002–03 school year, where Mr. Harriman was employed as a wrestling coach.
3. On May 6, 2003, Mr. Harriman sent a memorandum to Richard LaGrotta, who was the athletic director, regarding Michael Galler, the assistant wrestling coach. In the memorandum Mr. Harriman stated that Mr. Nazzaro recommended that he attach a memo to Mr. Galler's evaluation.

4. Mr. Nazzaro did not make that recommendation, and on or about May 6, 2003, Mr. Nazzaro sent a memo to Mr. Harriman saying that he never recommended that the respondent send such a memo to Mr. LaGrotta. Further, Mr. Nazzaro stated that he had previously told Mr. Harriman that, if he had wanted Mr. Galler to be fired, he should have indicated so in the assistant coach's end-of-season evaluation.

5. Prior to the 2002–03 school year, there had been a policy in place in which teachers who were going to be out were to contact a substitute service, which would arrange for coverage of their classes. According to this policy, teachers were not supposed to call their principal to report their absence.

6. However, during the 2002–03 school year, due to the abuse of the substitute service, the principal of the high school, Michael Nazzaro, and the superintendent, Joseph Casapulla, directed employees to call the principal as well as the substitute service if they were going to be absent. The teaching staff had been made aware of the change in policy during a joint faculty meeting with the middle and high school staff. However, no new written policy was issued modifying the prior written policy on substitute call-in and there was no proof that Mr. Harriman had been informed of the change in procedure.

7. The New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) oversees all high school athletic programs in the state of New Jersey. In February 2006, Dr. Tomko received a telephone call from Robert Baly, executive director of the NJSIAA, complaining about Mr. Harriman's behavior toward him and his staff. According to Mr. Baly, Mr. Harriman was belligerent toward him and his secretary regarding the seeding decision and stated to the statistician, Mr. McMillian, "this is bullshit." Confronting the Association in this way was inappropriate and unprofessional and could have placed the wrestling program in jeopardy.

8. Mr. Harriman acted without permission from the athletic director or any other supervisory personnel in the District and contrary to the policy of the District when he unilaterally decided to call the NJSIAA to dispute the team's seeding. Prior to making the call to the Association, Mr. Harriman did not receive outside confirmation that his calculations on the team's seeding were correct.⁴⁵

9. It was decided by Dr. Tomko and Mr. Saper, the athletic director at the time, that Mr. Harriman should attend a compliance meeting at the Association to learn proper sportsmanship. Mr. Harriman disputed the necessity of his attending the meeting, but finally did attend.

10. In June 2004, Dr. Tomko decided that a new format should be established to provide awards for student athletes. Rather than having separate award dinners for each of the sports, it was decided that a Booster Club should be formed and awards should be given to all athletes at the dinner. The coaches were directed by Dr. Tomko to speak only about the senior athletes, in order to give them a special acknowledgment and to give the underclassmen something to look forward to. All of the other coaches followed the directive. However, Mr. Harriman, contrary to the instructions given to him, spoke about every member of the team.

11. During the 2005–06 school year, the Elmwood Park wrestling program and the Bogota program were combined.

12. Mr. Saper, the athletic director at the time, instructed the coaches to present only two awards—most valuable player (MVP) and the coach's award—at the Booster Club dinner at the end of the school year. No other awards were to be given out, and they were to be presented at the Booster dinner only. Contrary to these instructions, Mr. Harriman presented three awards—MVP, coach's and most improved player—at a Recreation dinner, to which the wrestling team had been invited. These awards were not Recreation awards, but rather District awards that should have been presented at the Booster dinner.

⁴⁵ Mr. Harriman relied on the calculations of his assistant coach and a student who was calculating the stats.

13. Mr. Harriman gave the MVP award to a student from Bogota. This student had been disqualified from the championship match because he had told a teacher to "go f--- herself." While Mr. Harriman protested that he did not know that the student had said this, he was aware that the student had gotten into trouble in school; he had a relationship with the Bogota coach; and he knew or should have known that the student was disciplined for a serious infraction. Despite Mr. Saper and Dr. Tomko's concerns regarding Mr. Harriman's awarding the trophy to the Bogota student, Mr. Harriman refused to change his decision.

14. Mr. Harriman disregarded administrative directives by handing out District awards at the Recreation dinner prior to the Booster Club dinner.

15. Mr. Saper, the principal of Gilbert School, was Mr. Harriman's direct supervisor. On March 17, 2011, Mr. Saper evaluated the respondent. In the evaluation Mr. Saper indicated that Mr. Harriman needed improvement in the areas of Learning Environment and Communication, Collaboration and Partnership and Professional Development and Responsibilities.

16. Erick Schwartz is employed as a health and physical education teacher in the elementary schools in Elmwood Park. While he and Mr. Harriman had worked together before on Field Day activities, due to a dispute that will be outlined below, Mr. Harriman was directed by Mr. Saper, principal of Gilbert School, not to participate in Field Day at the school and instead to cover Mr. Schwartz's classes at Gantner School. Mr. Schwartz told Mr. Harriman that it would not be necessary for Harriman to teach his classes at Gantner, because he had made prior arrangements to cover them. Despite this communication, Mr. Harriman came to Gantner and told Allison Jackter, principal of the school, that he was there to cover Mr. Schwartz's classes. Ms. Jackter thought that there was a scheduling misunderstanding and tried to question Mr. Harriman about the situation. Mr. Harriman responded by yelling out "poor communication." There were teachers, students and parents in the area, when Mr. Harriman shouted out. Ms. Jackter wrote a memorandum memorializing what had occurred. Mr. Harriman wrote a response, which was copied to all the Board members, labeled

"The real truth to your write-up letter dated June 8, 2011." In it he accused Ms. Jackter of forming a "wedge" between him and Mr. Schwartz. He also accused her of nagging.

17. Mr. Harriman sent several text messages to Mr. Schwartz asking him to write a letter supporting Mr. Harriman on this issue. When Mr. Schwartz refused to do so, Harriman became verbally abusive toward him.

118. On May 23, 2011, upon Mr. Saper's return to Gilbert School after doing District business, he received a number of student complaints regarding Mr. Harriman's behavior during gym class that day. Among the complaints was one from a student who said that Mr. Harriman yelled at her and called her mother on his cell phone during class to report her bad behavior.

19. Prior to this incident Mr. Saper and Ms. Jackter had both conducted staff meetings in which they discussed the use of cell phones during the school day. Staff members were only permitted to use cell phones in emergencies and were to give the administration advance notice that they were going to need to use the cell phone.

20. It was inappropriate for Mr. Harriman to call a parent during instructional time because it took his time and attention away from instructing the students.

21. Mr. Saper called Mr. Harriman into his office to find out Mr. Harriman's side of the story regarding the complaints from the students. Mr. Harriman came into the office and in an abrupt tone said "what now?" Instead of discussing the matter, Mr. Harriman told Mr. Saper "better back off" and "better stop harassing him." Mr. Saper sent a memo to Mr. Harriman on May 26, 2011, regarding the meeting. In response, Mr. Harriman sent Mr. Saper a memorandum in which he stated that Mr. Saper's behavior was "highly unbecoming of an elementary Principal and building supervisor." He stated that Mr. Saper had been unfair and dishonest in his evaluations of him and was interfering with Harriman's job. He also stated that "a supervisor is supposed to have at least some answers once in a while.” He accused Mr. Saper and Ms. Jackter of scheming against him and of Ms. Jackter “meddling” in Field Day activities and disrupting his established program. He said that Mr. Saper could not manage the school and said that he (Harriman) was keeping daily logs about Mr. Saper’s activities at the school and would submit the logs to the “proper authorities” at the end of the year.

22. On May 25, 2011, Mr. Harriman asked a six-year-old student to go by himself to the teachers’ faculty room to get a bottle of water for him. Young students were not permitted in the teachers’ lounge and were not supposed to leave the classroom alone.

23. Field Day was held at the Gantner Avenue Elementary School on May 23, 2011. Mr. Harriman made up the packet of information necessary for the day’s activities and gave it to Ms. Jackter for review. She gave her approval to the plan. However, a number of teachers came to Ms. Jackter with questions about the fact that there was no map for the locations of the afternoon events.⁴⁶ When Ms. Jackter questioned Mr. Harriman about the problem, he yelled at her in front of staff, students and parents.

24. Mr. Harriman did provide a copy of the map for the afternoon activities.

25. The weather on Field Day was misty. Initially Ms. Jackter decided that the activities should proceed outside. She made the decision without consultation with Mr. Harriman. When it began to rain, she called the students inside without Mr. Harriman’s input. Mr. Harriman protested the decision and stated that it would be dangerous to run relay races in the school halls. Ms. Jackter then told Mr. Harriman to adjust the activities so that they could be performed inside. After lunch it stopped raining and the activities were moved outside again.

26. Ms. Jackter asked Mr. Harriman to meet with her at the end of the day to discuss issues that had arisen during the day, including his attitude toward her and the missing information from the packet. Mr. Harriman became very angry and yelled at Ms. Jackter, saying that she was wrong. His voice became so loud that her secretary had to close the doors to the principal's office so that people in the main office would not hear him.

27. During the course of the meeting Mr. Harriman made a gesture that made Ms. Jackter feel uncomfortable. It appeared to her that Mr. Harriman placed his hand on his genitals, on top of his pants and moved his hand around. Ms. Jackter spoke to Dr. Tomko about what Mr. Harriman had done. As a result Dr. Tomko filed an affirmative action complaint with the affirmative action officer. Due to the fact that the affirmative action officer went out on maternity leave and the pendency of this action, an investigation was never performed.

28. In a memo to Dr. Tomko, Mr. Harriman described Ms. Jackter's allegations as being "fantasy," which "makes it more comical."

29. On May 26, 2011, after a meeting with Mr. Harriman, Ms. Jackter sent a memo to him telling him to plan to meet with her the following week with a union representative. Despite her memo, Mr. Harriman did not make said arrangements, and even after another memo, did not comply with her request.

30. In response to Ms. Jackter's memo about Field Day, on June 8, 2011, Mr. Harriman sent an extensive memo to Ms. Jackter, with copies to the superintendent and all members of the Board of Education, in which he stated, "our Field Day was nearly a disaster and your unwarranted meddling and micro-management that day . . . I have never had such an uncooperative, untrustworthy and dishonest administrator." He stated that she was "envious of [his] megaphone." He also accused her of scheming with Mr. Saper to harass him and of sabotaging Field Day. He then went on to say that since he could not trust her he would only communicate with her by using a dry board to answer her questions.

31. On June 6, 2011, Ms. Jackter, who was Mr. Harriman's direct supervisor at Gantner, went to the gym where Mr. Harriman was supposed to be teaching a group of fifth-grade students. Upon her arrival she saw an aide and a security guard in the gym, but she did not see Mr. Harriman. She questioned the staff members but they were not sure of Mr. Harriman's whereabouts. Students were in the gym playing basketball. Ms. Jackter observed the door to the gym opened and went to investigate. She saw Mr. Harriman and a fifth-grade student, about twenty to thirty feet from the door, placing cones on the field. Ms. Jackter remained in the gym for four to five minutes. When Mr. Harriman returned to the gym, Ms. Jackter confronted him. The respondent misrepresented that he had not left the gym, but instead was simply propping open the door, in order to get fresh air into the gym.

32. On June 17, 2011, Mr. Harriman sent a memo to Ms. Jackter, with copies to all the Board of Education members, disputing the principal's rendition of the facts and accusing her of being negligent by allowing a non-student to participate in Field Day.

33. Dr. Tomko arranged for a meeting with Mr. Harriman and Connie Sudol, the president of the Elmwood Park Education Association, to discuss Mr. Harriman's conduct vis-à-vis principals Jackter and Saper. Following the meeting Dr. Tomko sent a letter to Mr. Harriman which included a "90-Day Action Plan." The plan was to run from July 5, 2011, to November 4, 2011. Even though school was not in session, Dr. Tomko included the summer months because he had directed Mr. Harriman to take an anger-management course, which was given during the summer. Mr. Harriman was also directed not to make insubordinate comments to his supervisors.

34. Mr. Harriman never enrolled in an anger-management class. In addition, he sent multiple rebuttals to his supervisors, with copies to the Board, claiming that the 90-Day Action Plan was invalid. He failed to comply with the action plan in any way.

35. On September 5, 2011, Mr. Harriman was asked by Ms. Jackter to attend a meeting to discuss a 504 Plan for a student in one of his gym classes. Initially Mr. Harriman refused to attend without union representation, even though the meeting was not addressed to any behavior on his part. Only after Dr. Tomko sent him an email directing him to attend the meeting, did he do so. Mr. Harriman responded to Dr. Tomko's email by saying that he would never meet with Saper, Jackter or Tomko one-to-one.

36. On September 6, 2011, Mr. Harriman sent a letter to the Board of Education in which he said that Dr. Tomko's 90-Day Action Plan was invalid and the write-ups against him were fabricated. He also asserted that he would be filing a defamation suit against Dr. Tomko based on the actions he had taken against the respondent during the summer. He did not copy Dr. Tomko on the letter.

37. Mr. Harriman's sending the letter to the Board directly contravened the organizational chart of the District and undermined the superintendent's relationship with the Board.

38. On September 6, 2011, Mr. Harriman sent a memo to Dr. Tomko. In the memo he told Tomko to "stop cautioning me to refrain from doing this and that. One sub-definition of the word 'caution' is 'warning of harm or evil.' This is considered a written 'threat' Mr. Tomko, and I do not respond passively to threats." Mr. Harriman also declared that the 90-Day Action Plan was invalid and that Tomko was instigating trouble through your "novice Principals."

39. As part of the 90-Day Action Plan, Mr. Harriman was to attend an anger-management course. In a memo to Dr. Tomko on September 6, 2012, Mr. Harriman stated that the superintendent was unjustified when he threatened to enroll him in an anger-management course. Mr. Harriman went on to state that he had no anger-management problems and would not attend the course. While at the hearing Mr. Harriman stated that he was looking into finding an anger-management course but, as of June 2012, he had not signed up for a course.

40. In a memorandum dated September 9, 2011, Mr. Harriman again stated to Dr. Tomko that his action plan was "invalid" and "without grounds or merit." Further, it stated, "the two novice Principals and yourself need to be more professional, kind and considerate."

41. On December 2, 2011, while seated in the cafeteria Mr. Harriman injected himself in his abdomen with insulin.⁴⁷ While he put the top of his laptop computer up to shield people from seeing the procedure, there were students eating in the cafeteria and Mr. Saper saw him injecting himself. (On a prior occasion, Mr. Saper thought he had seen Mr. Harriman injecting himself and asked the school nurse to speak to him about going to a private area to give himself an injection. At that time Mr. Harriman denied that he had injected himself.) After the students left the cafeteria, Mr. Saper approached Mr. Harriman and asked him if he had injected himself. Mr. Harriman responded that "no one could see it." Mr. Saper told him that in the future he was to eat and complete his work in the faculty room, not the cafeteria.

42. Mr. Saper followed up with a memorandum dated December 5, 2011. In the memo Mr. Saper told Mr. Harriman to "never check his blood sugar or inject in the cafeteria or anywhere else when students are present unless it was a medical emergency." If Mr. Harriman needed medical space he could use the nurse's office or he would be provided with another private space.

43. At the time that Mr. Saper approached Mr. Harriman in the cafeteria, the respondent did not say that he was giving himself an injection because of a medical emergency. It was only later during another meeting that Mr. Harriman claimed that he had given himself an injection at the time because he was experiencing faintness because of low blood sugar.⁴⁸

⁴⁷ Mr. Harriman is a diabetic who injects himself four times a day.

44. At that meeting Mr. Saper asked the school nurse, Mrs. Corrigan, to come in to verify that she had told Mr. Harriman not to inject himself while students were around. Mr. Harriman began to yell at Mrs. Corrigan, who then left the meeting upset.

45. On December 5, 2011, Mr. Saper wrote a memo outlining what had occurred in the cafeteria and at the meeting that followed regarding the injection. On December 9, 2011, Mr. Harriman wrote a memo titled "My Rebuttal." He titled the memo "From Kevin Harriman, Highly Qualified Elementary Physical Education/Health Teacher." In the memo he denied that students were present when he injected himself. (However, an aide wrote a memo to Mr. Saper stating that she was sitting with students, who were eating their lunch, near Mr. Harriman and the respondent had a small, black, rectangular zip-up case in his hands.) Mr. Harriman also claimed that Mr. Saper had no regard for the health and well-being of his teachers. Mr. Harriman stated that he would not eat in the faculty room because 99 percent of the teachers were women and he would not sit there where they discussed baby showers, weddings, engagements and the like.

46. Beginning in September 2011, Mr. Harriman was assigned to gate duty from 8:30 to 8:45 a.m. at Gilbert Avenue School, when he was scheduled to teach at the school. Mr. Harrison Werner, a security officer at the school, was also assigned to gate duty. As part of their duty, they were supposed to supervise the drop off of students for school and to ensure their safety. Mr. Werner had been told by Mr. Saper that he was not to open the doors of the cars lined up to drop off their children, but not at the gate, because it would be unsafe and would cause congestion.

47. Mr. Werner observed Mr. Harriman walking up and down the block on which the cars were lined up opening the car doors and letting students out onto the main street that was adjacent to the school, rather than at the school gate. Mr. Werner was warned by Mr. Saper not to open the car doors.⁴⁹

48. On December 9, 2011, Mr. Werner went to Mr. Saper and reported to him that Mr. Harriman was opening car doors all along the street.

49. Mr. Saper met with Mr. Harriman to discuss why it was unsafe to continue this practice and instructed Mr. Harriman not to open car doors in the future. Mr. Harriman responded by questioning where it was written that he could not open a car door for a student. He also threatened Mr. Saper by saying that he had a seven-year log on him and Saper would be hearing from Harriman's lawyer.

50. On Saturday, December 10, 2011, after the meeting regarding opening car doors, Mr. Harriman called Mr. Werner on his cell phone and questioned him about the car-door incident and Mr. Saper. Mr. Harriman became loud and abusive toward Mr. Werner. He also stated that Mr. Saper could not be trusted and talked about Saper's private life in a disparaging manner.

51. Following the telephone call, Mr. Werner sent Mr. Saper an email stating what Mr. Harriman had said to him. Mr. Saper then sent Mr. Harriman a memo saying that his actions toward Mr. Werner were destructive and had a negative impact on the school environment. After Mr. Harriman received the memo he went up to Mr. Werner "nose to nose" and called him a snitch and a mole. He also screamed at him in the presence of parents and students.

52. Mr. Harriman told a parent, Mrs. Tester, who was waiting in line to drop off her child, that he could not open her car door to take out her daughter because of Mr. Saper's directive. At a meeting between Mr. Saper, Mr. Thornton, a union representative and Ms. Murphy on December 12, 2011, regarding the car-door situation, Mr. Harriman said that he could say what he wanted to say to whomever he wanted to and write to the School Board if he chose to do so.

⁴⁹ Mr. Werner admitted that prior to this warning, he had on occasion opened up car doors.

53. In a rebuttal dated December 12, 2011, Mr. Harriman stated that Saper “could care less about [students] falling out of the backseat of their parents’ car and breaking an ankle.” Mr. Harriman accused Mr. Saper of “cowardly planting MOLES such as . . . Harrison Werner.”

54. On December 19, 2011, Dr. Tomko had a District courier, Michael Wartel, deliver a memorandum to Mr. Harriman at the Gilbert Avenue School. Mr. Wartel did not know what was inside the envelope. However, when he delivered the envelope, Mr. Harriman said, “more paperwork from Tomko, Jackter and Saper; they are harassing me and I am taking them to court on this.”

55. On December 21, 2011, Mr. Wartel and Ms. Jackter were standing in the hallway of the school near the entrance. Ms. Jackter called out to Mr. Harriman. Although Mr. Harriman was just a few feet from Jackter and Wartel, he did not respond to her and exited the building without acknowledging her. Mr. Wartel commented that he could not believe that Harriman did not answer Jackter. Later on Mr. Harriman came into the main office and reported that someone had parked in his assigned parking space. When Ms. Jackter tried to respond to him and tell him to park in a visitor’s space, Mr. Harriman walked away as she was speaking. Ms. Jackter followed Mr. Harriman and told him that it was not acceptable for him to walk away from her.

ARGUMENTS OF THE PARTIES AND ANALYSIS OF THE LAW

Tenure Charges

The tenure of education personnel is authorized by the Education Tenure Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-1 to -18. According to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10, no person under tenure of office, position, or employment shall be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct, or other just cause. Tenure is a status in a particular position created by statute, not the agreement of the parties, therefore, it is a “statutory right imposed upon a teacher’s contractual employment’ [that] may not be forfeited or waived.” Spiewak v. Rutherford Bd. of Educ., 90 N.J. 63, 77 (1982) (quoting Zimmerman v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 38 N.J. 65, 72 (1962); citing Red Bank Educ. Ass’n v. Red Bank Bd. of Educ., 78 N.J. 122, 141 (1978)). Tenure was designed to protect employees “from dismissal ‘for unfounded, flimsy or political reasons.’” Wright v. Bd. of Educ. of E. Orange, 99 N.J. 112, 118 (quoting Zimmerman, supra, 38 N.J. at 71). Lack of fitness is usually demonstrated by a series of incidents, but it also may be found when there is a single incident that is sufficiently flagrant. Redcay v. State Bd. of Educ., 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct. 1943), aff’d, 131 N.J.L. 326, 327 (E. and A. 1944). In re Tenure Hearing of DePasquale, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 537, 540, held that a single dishonest act by a public employee can be sufficient to remove an employee from his position. In addition, the Commissioner found that a board of education is entitled to truthfulness from its employees in all matters. See In re Tenure of Lefakis, 1976 S.L.D. 816.

While tenure was designed to protect employees, teachers are responsible to act in a professional manner and to serve the welfare of the students in their care. In the final agency decision in In re Tenure Hearing of Sammons, School District of Black Horse Pike Regional, Camden County, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321, the Commissioner stated:

[T]he teachers of this State . . . are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of tens of thousands of school children with the hope that this trust will result in the maximum educational growth and development of each individual child. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment. As one of the most dominant and influential forces in the lives of the children, who are compelled to attend the public schools, the teacher is an enormous force for improving the public weal.

Among the charges lodged against Mr. Harriman was “conduct unbecoming.” This conduct was defined by the administrative law judge in In re Tenure Hearing of Motley, State-Operated School District of Newark, EDU 7421-97, Initial Decision (May 5, 1999), modified, Comm’r (August 4, 1999), aff’d, State Bd. (December 1, 1999), <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>:

"Unbecoming conduct" is an elastic term broadly defined to include any conduct "which has a tendency to destroy public respect for [government] employees and [confidence] in the operation of [public] services." Karins v. City of Atlantic City, 152 N.J. 532, 554 (1998). Behavior rising to the level of unbecoming conduct "need not be predicated upon a violation of any particular rule or regulation, but may be based merely upon a violation of the implicit standard of good behavior which devolves upon one who stands in the public eye as an upholder of that which is morally and legally correct. Despite the apparent vagueness of this standard, "it fairly and adequately conveys its meaning to all concerned." Laba v. Newark Bd. of Educ., 23 N.J. 364, 384 (1957). In the context of a school tenure case, "the touchstone is fitness to discharge the duties and functions of one's office or position." In re Tenure Hearing of Grossman, 127 N.J. Super. 13, 29 (App. Div. 1974), certif. den., 65 N.J. 292 (1974).

It is the obligation of the District to prove the tenure charges by a preponderance of the credible evidence. The Commissioner, in In re Tenure Hearing of Grundfest, School District of Madison, EDU 5326-98, Comm'r (June 20, 2000), rev'g Initial Decision (March 29, 2000), aff'd, State Bd. (November 1, 2000) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>, outlined what a board of education had to prove in order to meet its burden in a tenure charge:

Sustaining tenure charges for unbecoming conduct, however, is a very serious matter. The ramifications for respondent would be not only the loss of his tenured employment, but also the automatic referral of the matter to the State Board of Examiners for possible revocation of his teaching certificate, and the possible loss of his pension benefits. Since the penalty for respondent would be severe, it is the Board's responsibility and its burden to prove by a preponderance of credible evidence [the tenure charges against respondent].

Arguments of the Respondent

Mr. Harriman put forth a number of arguments in defense of his position that he should not forfeit his tenure. He asserted that he had been treated for depression since June 2010 and was taking medication for anxiety. While this did not entirely excuse his actions, it was a partial explanation of his problems at work and "his harsh way of speaking with his superiors." He also asserted that at the same time that he was working at the two elementary schools in question, he was working for principal Dominick Silla at Sixteenth Avenue School, and there was never an issue with this principal. The respondent asserted that this pointed to the fact that the events in question had more to do with his troubled relationship with these administrators than with his inability to perform his job. Mr. Harriman also claimed that many of the incidents cited in the charges were just blown out of proportion and he was simply defending himself against unwarranted attacks. Further, Mr. Harriman's long record of being an excellent educator and positive role model should also be taken into account in determining whether he should be dismissed. Finally, even though Jackter, Saper and Tomko were his supervisors, they should not "be so thin-skinned as . . . to allow these differences of opinion between themselves and their staff" to be a reason for Mr. Harriman's dismissal.

Charge 1

Mr. Harriman is accused in Charge 1 of being engaged in deceptive and untruthful conduct. Among the counts is that Mr. Harriman made a false representation in a memo to Mr. LaGrotta that he had been advised by Principal Nazzaro to add an addendum to the evaluation of Mr. Galler. The testimony of Mr. Nazzaro was clear and straightforward that he did not advise Mr. Harriman to write the memo. In fact, he told Mr. Harriman that if he wanted to fire Mr. Galler he should have mentioned it in his evaluation. Mr. Harriman's response that he did not copy Mr. Nazzaro on his memo to Mr. LaGrotta because Mr. Nazzaro was busy with graduation and retirement does not ring true. What is more credible is that Mr. Harriman did not want Mr. Nazzaro to see the memo to Mr. LaGrotta because the memo contradicted what Mr. Nazzaro had told him. In addition, since there were no additional wrestling responsibilities after the March evaluation, there would be no reason to change his evaluation based on performance issues.

Determinations often turn on credibility. Credibility is the value that a finder of the facts gives to the testimony of a witness. The process of evaluating the credibility of witnesses entails: (a) observing demeanor; (b) evaluating the ability to recall specific details; (c) considering the consistency of the testimony under direct and cross-examination; (d) determining the significance of any inconsistent statements or evidence; and (e) otherwise developing a sense of the witness's candor. This requires an overall assessment of the witness's story in light of its rationality, internal consistency and the manner in which it "hangs together" with the other evidence. See Carbo v. U.S., 314 F.2d 718 (9th Cir. 1963), cert. denied sub. nom. Palermo v. U.S., 377 U.S. 953, 84 S. Ct. 1625; 12 L. Ed. 2d 498 (1964).

In evaluating the weight, trustworthiness and reliability of the evidence, factors such as motive, bias, confirming witnesses or statements, corroborative evidence, and common sense must be considered. Frequently, the trier of fact relies on the innate sense of whether the testimony has the ring of truth. Based on the evidence, including his own evasive answers, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Harriman's testimony with regard to this evaluation memo does not ring true.

Count Two of Charge 1 deals with the incident in June 2011 when Mr. Harriman allegedly deceived Principal Jackter about covering the classes for another teacher, Eric Schwartz. The evidence regarding this count is not as clear as that regarding the previous count. Mr. Schwartz testified credibly that he notified Mr. Harriman that he did not have to cover his classes at Ms. Jackter's school. However, Mr. Saper did send a memo to Mr. Harriman telling him to cover Mr. Schwartz's classes and Mr. Saper was his supervisor. On the other hand, Mr. Saper was not Mr. Harriman's supervisor at Ms. Jackter's school, where Mr. Harriman was supposed to go to cover the classes. Based on the conflicting testimony and exhibits, I cannot conclude that the District has proved by a preponderance of the credible evidence that Mr. Harriman was deceptive regarding this incident.

In Count Three, Mr. Harriman is charged with leaving a physical education class unattended, and lying about it when he was questioned by Ms. Jackter. While Mr. Harriman argued that he was just propping open the door of the gym, Ms. Jackter testified that she saw Mr. Harriman outside with a student placing cones on the field. She remained in the gym for four to five minutes waiting for Mr. Harriman to return to his class. Certainly, it would not take four to five minutes to prop open a door. Mr. Harriman's position was worsened by his statement in his rebuttal to Ms. Jackter's memo of June 17, 2011, when he accused her of negligently allowing a non-student to take part in a school activity. From the circumstances, I CONCLUDE that Mr. Harriman was caught in a difficult circumstance. Rather than admitting that he was outside for a few minutes, he tried to deny and bluster his way through the situation.

Count Four alleged that Mr. Harriman lied when he stated that he was directed by Mr. Saper to combine Mrs. Valentine's classes. The District did not deal with this issue, and I CONCLUDE that the District abandoned this count. There were other charges regarding complaints from students in Mrs. Valentine's class, but this will be dealt with below.

Charge 2

The District charged that Mr. Harriman acted in an inappropriate, defiant and insubordinate manner, repeatedly demonstrating a blatant disregard of and open defiance of administrative directives. Insubordination has been found when a teacher has willfully refused to comply with a supervisor's directive. See In re Tenure Hearing of Ingram, EDU 9068-01, Initial Decision (May 17, 2002), adopted, Acting Comm'r (June 27, 2002), <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>, aff'd, State Board (November 6, 2002), <<http://www.nj.gov/education/legal/>>. Insubordination can also be shown if a teacher fails to perform duties or to comply with district policies. See In re Certificates of Resto, EDE 3869-04 (October 31, 2005), <http://www.nj.gov/education/legal/>. In In re Tenure Hearing of Toorzani, EDU 9713-11, Initial Decision (December 28, 2011), <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>, adopted, Acting Comm'r (February 12, 2012), <<http://www.nj.gov/education/legal/>>, the administrative law judge (ALJ) found that a teacher had been insubordinate where she had "criticized the administration and colleagues repeatedly by challenging their honesty and integrity, depriving them of the dignity to which they are entitled, creating an uncomfortable work environment and impairing the ability of the individual targets of her behavior to effectively discharge their duties.” The ALJ noted:

Insubordination can occur even where no specific order or direction has been given to the allegedly insubordinate person. Refusal to obey orders and disrespect cannot be tolerated. Such conduct adversely affects the morale and efficiency of an educational facility. Insubordination is always a serious matter, especially in an educational setting where the complexity of providing a comprehensive curriculum and education to students requires interaction with the various components of the process such as staff, supervisors, administrators, students and parents/guardians.

In Count One, Mr. Harriman was charged with failing to follow established procedures for notification of his absences. This involved one incident on May 21, 2003, when he called into the substitute service, but failed to notify his principal. While Dr. Tomko testified that, despite the written directive that absences should be reported to the substitute service and not the principal, the policy had been orally changed by the prior superintendent of schools because of issues with the call-in. He further testified that there had been faculty meetings in which this new “policy” had been disseminated. However, there was no proof presented that Mr. Harriman had attended the meetings or that the written policy had ever been changed. The District pointed to the case of In re Tenure Hearing of Mapp, EDU 8333-02, Initial Decision (June 20, 2003, aff’d, Comm’r (Aug. 11, 2003), <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>, for the proposition that failure to follow proper call-out procedures constituted unbecoming conduct. However, in that case Ms. Mapp was charged with multiple absences and tardiness. Here we have one incident of the respondent relying on a written policy that may or may not have been countermanded by an oral directive. I CONCLUDE that the evidence is not strong enough to sustain a charge of insubordination based on this incident.

Mr. Harriman is charged in Count Two with acting unprofessionally and inappropriately in response to a decision by the NJSIAA regarding the seeding of Elmwood Park’s wrestling team that Mr. Harriman coached. There was testimony that Mr. Harriman was so disrespectful to the director of the Association and the statistician that Mr. Baly complained to Dr. Tomko that Mr. Harriman had upset his secretary, and had told the statistician that this was "bullshit" and was confrontational toward him, refusing to back down from his position that the seeding by the Association was incorrect. As a result of his behavior, it was recommended that Mr. Harriman attend a compliance meeting. Even though Mr. Harriman denied being disrespectful and claimed that the encounter ended with Baly and Harriman agreeing to disagree, Mr. Harriman testified that he did apologize to Mr. Baly at the compliance meeting. The weight of the evidence clearly demonstrated that Mr. Harriman pressed his position to the point of being combative and argumentative toward professionals who could, though they did not, have imposed sanctions on the District.

Count Three charged that notwithstanding a specific administrative directive that every coach speak individually about only senior students at the first athletic Booster Club dinner, Mr. Harriman did otherwise. When confronted, Mr. Harriman said that "he didn't see the big deal." However, as explained by Dr. Tomko and Mr. Saper, there was a reason that they had decided to limit the remarks to seniors. The reason was to give the seniors a special highlight at the event and to leave the underclassmen something to look forward to. Also, since the other coaches followed the instructions, some of their athletes were not recognized, while others were. Mr. Harriman's explanation that it was a miscommunication was belied when he did the same thing the following year.

Count Four dealt with the awarding of the Most Valuable Player (MVP) award to a student who had been banned from the championship match with Lodi due to his cursing at a teacher. There was testimony of both Dr. Tomko and Mr. Saper that they had urged Mr. Harriman to change his choice. Although Mr. Harriman asserted that the reason given by the administrators to change the choice was that they wanted to honor an Elmwood Park student rather than a student from the other school, it was clear that Mr. Harriman was unwilling to consider the arguments made by his supervisors. In addition, Mr. Harriman basically manipulated the situation by presenting the student awards at a Recreation wrestling dinner, rather than at the Booster dinner. (Count Five) Mr. Harriman and the rest of the coaches had been directed to present the awards only at the Booster dinner. Yet despite that directive, to which the other coaches adhered, Mr. Harriman presented the District awards at the Recreation dinner, prior to the authorized dinner. Thus the award became a fait accompli. Mr. Harriman's assertion that he only presented a most improved player award, which was a Recreation award, was directly contradicted by Lieutenant Foligno, who attended the Recreation awards dinner and who was a disinterested party to these proceedings.

Count Six dealt with Mr. Harriman's failure to comply with an administrative directive by Ms. Jackter to meet her. Mr. Harriman testified that he had spoken to his union representative and left it in her hands to deal with the issue. Mr. Harriman's explanation appears rather thin. Considering the fact that Ms. Jackter requested on at least two occasions that they meet, it was strange that he did not at least follow up with Ms. Jackter to see if a meeting was necessary and to find out if the union representative had met with her on the issue.

In Count Seven the District alleged that Mr. Harriman inappropriately stored a student's information in his cell phone and called the mother during instructional time and threatened to repeat the action if the student failed to behave in class. Mr. Harriman changed his story several times, but the final version was that he had made the telephone call and left a message. While there were conflicting arguments as to whether Mr. Harriman disregarded a policy about making personal cellular telephone calls during school hours, the bigger issue was that he took time away from his classroom instruction and took his attention away from his students to make a telephone call to a student's parent. As a teacher, Mr. Harriman was under an obligation to supervise his class, and making a cell phone call to a parent in the midst of class definitely diverted the respondent from the task at hand, namely, teaching and supervising his students.

Count Eight stated that Mr. Harriman directed a student to go to the faculty room to retrieve a bottle of water. According to Mr. Saper, young students were supposed to travel only in twos and were not permitted in the faculty lounge. Mr. Harriman testified that he needed the water to take a pill and that other students had performed similar tasks for teachers. The violation appears to be de minimis, and the procedure outlined by Mr. Saper to obtain the water appeared to be cumbersome at best. Therefore, I CONCLUDE that as to Count Eight, the respondent's behavior was not insubordinate.

Counts Nine through Fourteen dealt with the 90-Day Action Plan and the repercussions that followed. It is clear from the testimony and exhibits that Mr. Harriman declared the plan invalid and notified the Board of Education of such. In addition, he refused to attend the anger-management class directed in the plan.⁵⁰ Mr. Harriman was openly defiant toward Dr. Tomko, telling him that he would never meet with him and certain other members of the administration. Mr. Harriman also disputed the superintendent's definition of insubordination, accused him of colluding with other administrators to trump up charges against him, admonished Dr. Tomko not to make threats against him, and claimed that the superintendent was "instigating trouble with me again through your novice Principals." Mr. Harriman refused to take any responsibility for his actions, and instead warned, "The two novice Principals and yourself need to be more professional, kind and considerate." While Mr. Harriman admitted that on reflection, his rebuttals might have been a bit strong, he declared that he was detailed oriented and he was just presenting the details in his statements. Mr. Harriman rationalized that he had a right to respond in the manner he did because he was being wronged. He appeared to have no conception that his manner was completely insubordinate, confrontational and disrespectful of all authority.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that as to Counts Two, Three, Four, Five, Six, Seven, Nine, Ten, Eleven, Twelve, Thirteen and Fourteen of Charge Two, Mr. Harriman's behavior was inappropriate, defiant and insubordinate.

Charge 3

Mr. Harriman was charged with treating his supervisors in a contumacious, discourteous and overtly disrespectful, and personally demeaning manner from 2010 to the present. This charge dealt with his behavior toward Ms. Jackter and Mr. Harriman. It has been held that disdainful behaviors and speech towards administrators is considered conduct unbecoming. In In re Tenure Hearing of King, EDU 4241-00, ⁵⁰ At the hearing, Mr. Harriman claimed that he was looking into anger-management programs. Considering that he had been directed almost one year prior to attend a program, his excuse does not appear to be reasonable.

Comm'r (February 25, 2002), <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>, the Commissioner affirmed the ALJ's determination that Ms. King's inappropriate remarks, use of profanity and unacceptable behavior constituted unbecoming conduct and were grounds for dismissal. Teachers act as role models for their students. Therefore, they are held to a high standard of personal conduct and are supposed to act appropriately toward their superiors. See In re Tenure Hearing of Deal, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 703. In order for a school to operate in a proper fashion, not only must the teachers be able to teach well, but they must also be able to interact with their fellow teachers, employees and administrators. As was pointed out in In re Bradley v. Board of Education of Newark, 1990 S.L.D. 790, aff'd, St. Bd., 1991 S.L.D. 2521:

An employee is not entitled to the protection of tenure . . . when by his own acts or failures, he creates conditions under which the proper operation of the schools is adversely affected. When the responsibility for the conditions unfavorable to the effective operation of the schools rests with the employee, then, the Commissioner holds, the protection of tenure is forfeit.

[Citing In re Maratea, 1966 S.L.D. 77, 106.]

Mr. Harriman's attitude was demonstrated in his behavior during Field Day on May 23, 2011. He obviously felt that Field Day should be left in his hands, and any attempt on Ms. Jackter's part to alter the program was met with a negative response. As a result, Mr. Harriman reacted by telling her that she was wrong and yelling at her in front of staff and parents (Counts One and Two). In addition, his pronouncement that he would only communicate with Ms. Jackter through the use of a white board showed how completely untenable his position had become and how impossible it was to have any meaningful dialogue between teacher and administrator.

As to Count Three, which alleges that Mr. Harriman placed his hands on his genitals for a prolonged period of time, I am not comfortable with either rendition of the event. I do not believe that Mr. Harriman's rendition, that his hands were crossed across his chest the entire time he was meeting with Ms. Jackter, except when he was adjusting his shorts from the outside of his thigh, is entirely accurate. On the other hand, I am not sure that Mr. Harriman's actions were as provocative as Ms. Jackter assumed. What bothers me most is that once Ms. Jackter expressed her concern, the proper response would have been that his actions may have been misinterpreted, but he did not wish to make her feel uncomfortable. Instead, Mr. Harriman again went on the offensive and described Ms. Jackter's response as comical and a fantasy. In dealing with Mr. Saper, Mr. Harriman again went on the offensive.

When Mr. Saper called Mr. Harriman into the office to discuss the complaints that students had brought to the principal, instead of discussing them in a civil manner, he immediately "went off," raised his voice, and told Mr. Saper to back off and stop harassing him. This is certainly not the proper way to deal with one's supervisor. Mr. Harriman's rebuttal to Mr. Saper's memo regarding the incident was confrontational and accusatory. He described the principal's actions as "highly unbecoming of an elementary school Principal and building supervisor." He demeaned Mr. Saper by saying, "A superior is supposed to have at least some answers once in a while," and chastised him for his inability to manage the school and accused him of being dishonest. Mr. Harriman's remarks that he was keeping a daily log, which he was going to submit to the proper authorities, could only be considered a threatening action. The tone of Mr. Harriman's rebuttal was unprofessional and insulting. (Counts Four and Five.)

Mr. Harriman's memo to Ms. Jackter dated June 8, 2011, was equally insulting and disrespectful. (Count Six.) His statements that Field Day was almost a disaster because of her micro-management and that he had never had such an uncooperative, untrustworthy and dishonest administrator could only be considered provocative. His remarks about her being envious of his megaphone border on the bizarre; his statements that the principal was dishonest, was trying to sabotage Field Day and was scheming against him were accusatory and insubordinate.

While I previously found that Mr. Harriman's covering of Mr. Schwartz's classes may have resulted from a misunderstanding and miscommunication, the respondent's response to the situation was inappropriate. Mr. Harriman should not have yelled at his principal, and definitely not in front of staff and parents. Further, his rebuttal memo of June 20, 2011, in which he accused Ms. Jackter of instigating trouble between him and Mr. Schwartz was uncalled for. (Count Seven.)

Count Eight dealt with the encounter on November 9, 2011, when Ms. Jackter questioned Mr. Harriman about a physical altercation that occurred between two of his students. Mr. Harriman became physical in describing what had occurred by showing how he separated the boys. It appears that Ms. Jackter might have been hypersensitive to his actions, either due to her own predisposition regarding physical contact or based on her prior dealings with Mr. Harriman. In either case, I CONCLUDE that the charge of physical contact on this occasion between Mr. Harriman and Ms. Jackter was not proven.

As to the charge in Count Nine that Mr. Harriman injected himself in the stomach with insulin in the cafeteria in the presence of students and staff, Mr. Harriman has not denied that he gave himself an injection. His explanation was that he was having a medical emergency and needed glucose. There was testimony that Mr. Harriman had previously been told by Ms. Corrigan not to inject himself in the cafeteria. Ms. Corrigan also testified that a diabetic would not inject himself with glucose, but rather would have taken orange juice or a glucose tab to raise his level. If the diabetic needed a shot of glucose, then he would have been in such a condition that he would have been unable to administer the shot himself. Further, when Mr. Harriman was confronted by the principal, he did not tell Mr. Saper that he was having a medical emergency. Rather, he just responded that no one had seen him administer the shot. Mr. Harriman's account—that the students were not in the area; that they could not see him because his computer cover was raised; and that they were not eating lunch at the time he gave himself the shot—was likewise contradicted by the written statement of an aide, who said that Mr. Harriman had his insulin kit open at the table while she was sitting with students at lunch. Mr. Harriman may have had his reasons for not wanting to go to another location to administer his shot, but this directly countermanded the directive of his supervisor.⁵¹

⁵¹ Mr. Harriman testified that he did not like to go into the faculty lounge because the teachers were all females and he did not want to listen to discussions about showers, weddings, etc.

Counts Ten, Eleven and Twelve dealt with the "gate duty" incident. Mr. Harriman questioned Mr. Saper's directive that he not open the car doors of parents who were dropping off their children for school. Mr. Saper's reasoning that he was concerned about the students possibly falling out of the cars may or may not be valid. That is really beside the point. Once Mr. Harriman was aware that Mr. Saper did not want the car doors opened, that should have been the end of it.⁵² Instead, Mr. Harriman became confrontational and wanted to know where it was written that he could not open a car door. He then threatened Mr. Saper again about releasing his seven-year log and told the principal that he would hear from his lawyer. In his rebuttal, Mr. Harriman accused Mr. Saper of not caring about his students' safety and of being insecure and jealous. He also accused him of planting moles (Harrison Werner) in the school. Mr. Harriman had again blown the situation way out of proportion and had lost all professional prospective. Mr. Harriman's calling Mr. Werner, the security guard, on Saturday and lighting into him and calling him a snitch was just another example of how the respondent had lost all sense of decorum and professionalism.

The charge of breaking confidentiality by Mr. Harriman's telling a parent, Mrs. Tester, that he could no longer open her car door to discharge her daughters appears to be a little far-fetched. Obviously, the whole "gate duty" situation had gotten out of hand, by Mr. Harriman again conjuring up harassment charges. However, I do not see that the respondent had broken confidentiality by telling a parent that he could no longer open her car door. Therefore, as to Count Twelve, I CONCLUDE that respondent is not guilty of acting in a contumacious and disrespectful manner.

Count Thirteen deals with Mr. Harriman's interaction with Michael Wartel, a District courier and former law enforcement officer. Mr. Wartel testified that when he delivered a package to Mr. Harriman from Dr. Tomko, the respondent declared, "More paperwork from Tomko, Jackter and Saper; they are harassing me and I am taking them to court on this." Mr. Wartel testified that he knew nothing about the contents of the package that he was delivering. Mr. Harriman claimed that it was Mr. Wartel who said that the respondent was being harassed. However, Mr. Harriman presented no evidence to explain why Mr. Wartel would have made up this story. Based on past history and the lack of any proof of prejudice on Mr. Wartel's part, the messenger's version of the event is more credible. The same could be said of the events outlined in Count Fourteen. Mr. Wartel and Ms. Jackter both testified that Mr. Harriman walked past the principal as he was exiting the building, even though the principal called to him. Mr. Harriman claimed that he was not near the principal and had on earphones and therefore did not hear her call him. Both Mr. Wartel and Ms. Jackter denied that Mr. Harriman was wearing earphones, and described the respondent walking close by them.⁵³ Ms. Jackter later described Mr. Harriman's ignoring her when he came into the main office later in the day. At best, Mr. Harriman's actions could be described as childish; at worst, they were disrespectful and discourteous toward a supervisor.

⁵² Mr. Saper said that he had instituted the policy in September, but it is not clear that Mr. Harriman was aware of the policy until December, and Mr. Werner admitted to opening car doors during the period from September to December.

It is clear from the testimony and the written statements from Mr. Harriman that he did not think that he should have to answer to administrators who were younger than he. Rather than attempting to be helpful to these novices, he believed that he had no obligation to either adhere to their directives or to give any deference to their position in the District. It is also apparent from the testimony and exhibits that he considered them incompetent, meddling micro-managers and unworthy of his respect and he had no problem putting his beliefs into print. He showed similar disrespect for Dr. Tomko, the superintendent of schools. I therefore CONCLUDE that as to Charge Three, Counts One, Two, Four, Five, Six, Seven, Nine, Ten, Eleven, Thirteen and Fourteen, the District has proved that Mr. Harriman treated his supervisors in a contumacious, discourteous, and overtly disrespectful, and personally demeaning manner.

Penalty

The penalty in a tenure case is often a judgment call. There are cases that have called for the termination of tenure, and cases that have permitted a lesser penalty. The respondent has argued that his depression and medication for anxiety should be considered as a partial explanation of his "harsh way of speaking with his superiors."

⁵³ In fact, Mr. Wartel testified that Mr. Harriman walked between Ms. Jackter and him in the narrow hallway.

Further, he points to his years of “unblemished service” and his dedication to his students and to the teaching profession. The District has basically acknowledged that it is not questioning his teaching ability. While this is a very important factor in judging whether a person should retain tenure, there are other factors that have to be considered. A school system cannot operate if the staff and administrators are constantly at odds with one another. In this case, the disagreements reached mammoth proportions, with administrators spending inordinate amounts of time responding to voluminous “rebuttals” authored by the respondent. At some point the system ceases to function, when there is outright warfare amongst the teacher and administrators. If one or possibly two administrators had problems with Mr. Harriman, then it could be attributed to a personality clash. However, in this case there was intense friction between Mr. Harriman and Ms. Jackter, Mr. Saper, Dr. Tomko, Mr. Schwartz and Mr. Werner.⁵⁴ What was telling also was that even at the hearing Mr. Harriman did not seem to have a good understanding of how his actions had led to the tenure charges. He seemed to think that the charges arose totally out of a conspiracy against him and not out of any behavior on his part. The fact that he got multiple write-ups during a short period of time did not reflect on him at all, but rather was the result of a campaign by administrators to ruin him. When he talked about the tone of his rebuttals, he explained that he was detail oriented, which led him to write the three-page diatribes. Mr. Harriman testified that he was no longer taking medication for his depression, and yet his behavior exhibited a continuing disconnect regarding the actions that had led him to his present situation. While it is unfortunate that a qualified teacher should lose his tenure, a teacher cannot continue to function in a District when he is adversarial with almost all of the people with whom he interacts. Unfortunately, that is the situation in this case.

CONCLUSIONS

Based on the reasoning above, I CONCLUDE that the District has sustained its burden of proving the tenure charges against Mr. Harriman.

⁵⁴ It might be of note that the administrator that Mr. Harriman did not have problems with was Principal Silla, who had been in the system for many years more than Mr. Harriman. However, when it came to the newer administrators and teachers, Mr. Harriman had trouble accepting their authority.

Further, I CONCLUDE that the appropriate penalty is termination of tenure.

ORDER

It is hereby ORDERED that the tenure charges against Mr. Harriman are sustained and that the respondent's tenure be terminated.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." OAL DKT. NO. EDU 09831-11

AGENCY DOCKET NO. 220-8/11

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF MARIANNE MARMORA, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY.

Lester Taylor, Esq. for petitioner (Floria Perrucci Steinhardt & Fader.)

Philip Feintuch, Esq., for respondent (Feintuch, Porwich & Feintuch)

Record Closed: September 20, 2012

Decided: September 20, 2012

BEFORE JOANN LaSALA CANDIDO, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on August 18, 2011, for resolution as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F1 to -13. A telephone prehearing was scheduled and conducted on September 7, 2011 during which time the parties agreed to hearing dates. On March 28, 2012 petitioner's counsel submitted a letter of withdrawal. The file was returned to the agency as a withdrawal. However on April 9, 2012 this matter was returned to the OAL in order to satisfy the Cardonick criteria set forth at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6.

A telephone status conference was scheduled and conducted on May 16, 2012 wherein the parties agreed to submit a Stipulation of Withdrawal and Board Resolution. On September 11, 2011 the Stipulation of Withdrawal and the Board's resolution approving the settlement was received. On September 20, 2012 the OAL received the certified extract of the Board's meeting minutes indicating the resolution and record of the Board's vote regarding same, which is attached hereto for reference.

Based upon a review of the record as well as the proposed settlement agreement, and the representation of the parties on the record of this matter, I make the following FINDINGS:

1. The Settlement is in the public interest as it conserves the Board's resources and delivers a final result, whereby petitioner has agreed to withdraw the tenure charges filed against respondent.
2. Litigation costs associated with a scheduled multiple day hearing has been considered against the monetary terms of the Settlement.
3. If a hearing becomes necessary, the District has identified school personnel who are potential witnesses.
4. Under the proposed settlement, petitioner will withhold respondent's 2012-2013 salary increment.
5. Under the best of circumstances, the hearing needs to be conducted and then the administrative law judge would have forty-five days to prepare an initial decision and the Commissioner would have an additional forty-five days for review and issuance of a final decision.
6. If the tenure matter proceeds to hearing, both parties would incur costs of paying their attorneys for a likely lengthy hearing.
7. Marianne Marmora has had the opportunity of counsel in this matter and has represented that she fully understands her rights and implications of this.
8. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the terms of stipulation are in the public interest.

It is ORDERED that the parties comply with the terms of stipulation and that these proceedings are hereby concluded.

Having reviewed the contents of the attached Stipulation of Withdrawal and Release, I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the stipulation as evidenced by their signatures and/or the signatures of their representatives.
2. The stipulation fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

STIPULATION OF WITHDRAWAL

This Stipulation of Withdrawal (hereinafter "Agreement") is made and entered into this 29 th day of May 2012, by and between the Jersey City Public School District, (hereinafter referred to as "Petitioner") and Marianne Marmora (hereinafter "Respondent"). Petitioner and Respondent may be collectively referred to herein as the "Parties."

The Parties to this Agreement mutually understand and agree to the following:

WHEREAS, on or about August 3, 2011, Petitioner filed tenure charges against Respondent with the Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Education ("Commissioner") alleging charges of unbecoming conduct and other just cause, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

WHEREAS, on or about August 17, 2011, Respondent, by and through her attorney Philip Feintuch, Esq., filed a response to the above-referenced charges with the Commissioner.

WHEREAS, the Parties to this Agreement have engaged in pre-trial discovery and desire to resolve this matter in lieu of potentially protracted and costly litigation.

WHEREAS, the Parties to this Agreement have engaged in good faith negotiations and hereby agree to resolve the instant matter in dispute according to the following terms:

1. Petitioner shall withhold Respondent's 2012-2013 salary increment.
2. Petitioner, Jersey City Public School District, shall withdraw the tenure charges filed in the instant matter subject to the provisions of Paragraph 1.
3. In accordance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 and In re Cardonick, State Board decision of April 6, 1983 (1990 School Law Decisions (S.L.D.) 842, 846):
 - a. See attached tenure charges filed with the Commissioner on or about August 3, 2011;
 - b. After voluntary settlement negotiations and given the nature of the charges, i.e., alleged unbecoming conduct, and due consideration of Respondent's long and heretofore successful career as a teacher and in light of the fact that at no time in Respondent's extensive experience in the District has she suffered any sort of disciplinary action nor loss of increment, the parties believe it is fair and reasonable to resolve the instant dispute in the manner described in Paragraphs 1 and 2.
 - c. Both Parties have had sufficient time to review the instant Agreement and accordingly, both Parties enter the instant

Agreement freely and voluntarily and fully understand and consent to the terms and conditions referenced herein;

- d. The charged party, i.e., Respondent, Marianne Marmora, has had sufficient time to consult with her attorney, Philip Feintuch, Esq., fully understands her rights in the instant matter, and freely and voluntarily waives her right to a hearing and/or to otherwise set forth a defense to the instant charges;
 - e. The instant Agreement is in the public interest as it will avoid the time and expense of potentially protracted and costly litigation; and
 - f. As a teaching staff member, Respondent has been advised that the Commissioner of Education has a duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate.
4. Respondent, in consideration of the instant Agreement, hereby waives and releases Petitioner, and its officers, employees, agents, assigns, etc. from any and all causes of action, known or unknown, from the beginning of time up to and including the effective date of this Agreement.
5. The Parties to this Agreement specifically understand and agree that the instant Agreement is subject to ratification and approval by the Jersey City Public Schools Board of Education, the Honorable JoAnn LaSala Candido, A.L.J., and the Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Education.

6. To the extent allowed by law, the Parties to this Agreement shall keep the terms of the instant Agreement confidential.
7. By entering the instant Agreement, Petitioner and Respondent acknowledge that this Agreement is not an admission on either party's part of any wrongdoing or liability and hereby wish to avoid the time, expense, and uncertainty of protracted litigation. Accordingly, this Agreement may not be admissible in any forum as an admission, but only in an action to enforce this Agreement.

In consideration of the terms stated herein, both Parties hereby enter the instant Agreement freely and voluntarily.

THE CITY OF PERTH AMBOY,	:

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – who is employed under a three year contract as the respondent Board’s superintendent of schools – challenged the May 7, 2012 action of the Board to place her on a paid administrative leave of absence, contending that the Board improperly invoked the Doctrine of Necessity and failed to comply with the procedural requirements of the Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA), N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 et seq. The Board contends that the Commissioner of Education is without jurisdiction in this matter or that, in the alternative, its actions were in all respects legal and proper; the Board filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no genuine issues of material fact, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; the Commissioner has incidental jurisdiction to determine matters arising under the OPMA as they relate to school law controversies; the Board properly invoked the Doctrine of Necessity because it was unable to act on petitioner’s suspension given the conflicts of interest on the part of several Board members; the question of whether petitioner should remain actively in service was a vital public issue; and the Board properly noticed and advertised the May 7, 2012 meeting. Accordingly, the ALJ granted summary decision to the Board; ordered that the Board’s May 7, 2012 resolution to place petitioner on a paid administrative leave was lawful; and dismissed the petition.

Upon careful and independent review, the Assistant Commissioner – to whom this matter was delegated pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34 – rejected the Initial Decision of the OAL, finding that it did not fully address all of the issues in this case as it only examined the procedural mechanism utilized to hold a vote of the full membership of the Board on the issue of petitioner’s employment status. The Assistant Commissioner also specifically noted that the precedential value of prior case law in this area has been significantly impacted by subsequent statutory and regulatory enactments. Accordingly, the Assistant Commissioner remanded the matter to the OAL for a determination regarding whether the Board’s decision to place the petitioner on paid administrative leave was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by the petitioner Janine Walker Caffrey and the Board of Education. The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that the Board properly invoked the Doctrine of Necessity when it voted on May 7, 2012 to put the petitioner on paid administrative leave. As a result, the ALJ granted summary decision in favor of the Board and dismissed the petition of appeal.¹

The Board did not take exception to the ALJ's Initial Decision, but instead urged the Commissioner to issue a final decision adopting the Initial Decision and incorporating the arguments made in its brief below. The Board also asked the Commissioner to take judicial notice of the Board's September 22, 2012 resolution putting the petitioner on paid administrative leave for the remainder of her contract term.

The petitioner filed exceptions asserting that the Initial Decision should not be adopted because the ALJ erroneously determined that the Board properly invoked the Doctrine of Necessity. The petitioner specifically argued that the relevant case law requires a determination that there is a pressing public need before the doctrine can be invoked by a board of education. The petitioner further maintains that there is no evidence of a pressing need to place the petitioner on administrative leave, nor is there any evidence that allowing the petitioner to continue her duties as superintendent was contrary to the wishes of most people in the district. As a result, the petitioner argues that the Board was not authorized to invoke the Doctrine of Necessity to enable the conflicted board members to vote on petitioner's employment status. Therefore, the petitioner asserts that the Initial Decision should be rejected and the matter should be remanded to the OAL for a hearing on the issue of whether there was a pressing public need enabling the Board to invoke the Doctrine of Necessity.

Upon a comprehensive review of the record in this matter, the Assistant Commissioner – to whom this matter has been delegated to pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34 – finds that the Initial Decision did not fully address all of the issues in this case. The Initial Decision examined the procedural mechanism utilized by the Board – i.e. the Doctrine of Necessity – to hold a vote of the full membership of the Board concerning the petitioner's employment status. The Initial Decision, however, did not address whether the Board's decision to place the petitioner on an indefinite period of paid administrative leave was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

In 2008, the Commissioner promulgated regulations designed to ensure fiscal accountability and efficiency for all boards of education. See N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2b; N.J.A.C. 23A:1.1. In connection with the need for fiscal efficiency, specific regulations were adopted to establish parameters that govern the early termination of a superintendent's employment contract. N.J.S.A. 18A:17-20.2b; N.J.A.C. 23A:3.2. Early termination agreements for the involuntary separation of the superintendent are not only subject to Commissioner review, but the board of education must also show that the separation is “in the best interest of the district’s students and/or district operation.” N.J.A.C. 23A:3.2(a) and (b). Further, the regulations expressly limit the compensation that can be paid to a superintendent under a separation agreement. N.J.A.C. 23A:3.2(g).

In the case at bar, the Board has voted through the Doctrine of Necessity to place the petitioner on paid administrative leave for an indefinite amount of time while designating another individual to complete the duties of the superintendent.² The circumstances surrounding the Board’s decision regarding the petitioner’s employment are analogous to a scenario where a board of education enters into an early termination agreement for the involuntary separation of a superintendent. The Board’s decision to put the petitioner on paid administrative leave under these circumstances cannot escape scrutiny simply because a formal separation agreement has not been negotiated. The need for fiscal accountability and the assurance that the Board is acting in the best interest of the districts’ students remains paramount. Therefore, an analysis is required to determine if the Board’s decision to place the petitioner on paid administrative leave was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. It should also be noted that the case law addressing situations where a board of education has put a superintendent on paid administrative leave has been significantly impacted by the promulgation of the regulations that demand financial accountability for all boards of education. See, e.g. Gerald W. Kohn v. Board of Education of the City of Vineland, Cumberland County, Commissioner Decision

² On May 7, 2012 the Board voted to put the petitioner on paid administrative leave for an unknown amount of time. As the Board notes in its submission, on September 22, 2012, the Board voted to put the petitioner on paid administrative leave for the duration of her employment contract. Petitioner has also challenged the September 22, 2012 vote in the matter of Janine Walker Caffrey v. Board of Education of the City of Perth Amboy, Middlesex County, Agency Dkt. No.296-9/12.

No. 303-01, decided September 14, 2001; Harrington v. Board of Education of the Township of Clinton, 95 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 535.

Accordingly the Initial Decision is rejected; and this matter is remanded to the OAL for a determination regarding whether the Board's decision to place the petitioner on paid administrative leave is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.³

IT IS SO ORDERED.⁴

ASSISTANT COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

Date of Mailing: 10/26/12

³ The Commissioner's ultimate final decision in this matter will address the procedural use of the Doctrine of Necessity, as well as whether the Board's decision to place the petitioner on paid administrative leave is arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

JANINE WALKER CAFFREY,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF PERTH AMBOY, MIDDLESEX COUNTY,

Respondent.

Andrew Babiak, Esq., for petitioner

David B. Rubin, Esq., for respondent

Record Closed: July 26, 2012

Decided: September 11, 2012

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Janine Walker Caffrey (Caffrey), is the superintendent of schools for the Perth Amboy School District. She challenges the action of the Perth Amboy Board of Education (the Board), taken on May 7, 2012, to place her on an administrative leave of absence, contending that the Board improperly invoked the Doctrine of Necessity and failed to comply with the procedural requirements of the Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA). N.J.S.A. 10:4-6 et seq. She furthermore asserts that the Board improperly interfered with her authority relative to the appointment of a district transportation director. The Board replies that the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) is without jurisdiction to entertain Caffrey's claims or that, in the alternative, its actions were in all respects legal and proper.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Caffrey filed a two-count petition of appeal and application for emergent relief before the Commissioner on May 2, 2012, challenging Board action, taken on April 25, 2012, to place her on administrative leave with pay. On May 8, 2012, the Commissioner granted the application for emergent relief, and reinstated Caffrey as superintendent of schools. In the interim, on May 7, 2012, the Board had again met and placed Caffrey on a leave of absence. In light of its having taken action that it felt corrected any prior procedural irregularities, the Board filed a motion for reconsideration with the Commissioner on May 9, 2012.

On May 14, 2012, Caffrey filed an amended petition of appeal adding three more counts, including two counts that challenged the action of the Board taken on May 7, 2012. Upon review of the amended petition, the Commissioner denied the Board's motion for reconsideration, and transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on May 18, 2012.

The Board filed a motion for summary decision on June 26, 2012, and Caffrey filed a brief in opposition on July 23, 2012. The Board responded to her opposition via letter dated July 25, 2012, at which time the record closed.¹

¹ The parties agree that the decision on the emergent application disposed of all claims raised in the second count of the petition. They further agree that the action taken by the Board on May 7, 2012, renders the claims of the first count moot. Moreover, the first count avers that a personnel committee comprised of four board members constituted an effective quorum of the Board. But the Commissioner's decision makes it plain that only a majority of the full membership of the Board, or five members, could take the personnel actions at issue here, thus disposing of Caffrey's claim that the four-member committee meeting should have been advertised under the OPMA. Accordingly, the pending motion seeks dismissal of counts three, four, and five of the petition.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The salient facts are uncontroverted, and I FIND:

Caffrey was appointed by the Board to serve as its superintendent of schools via a three-year contract, commencing on July 1, 2011, and ending June 30, 2014. The Board is comprised of nine elected members. All agree that four of the sitting members of the Board may not participate in any action related to Caffrey's employment due to conflicts of interest. On or about April 19, 2012, Caffrey filed a complaint with the School Ethics Commission in which she alleged that the president of the Board, Samuel Lebreault, had violated the Board Member Code of Ethics.² Thus, Lebreault likewise may not vote on any matter related to Caffrey's employment. This leaves the Board unable to act on any issue pertaining to the employment of its chief executive officer, its superintendent of schools.

Caffrey and her Board are clearly at odds. Indeed, the decision of the Commissioner on the emergent application recognizes "the present discord between the parties," and offers the services of "a neutral mediator to help facilitate an amicable resolution in this matter." The particulars of the parties' conflict are irrelevant for purposes of the pending motion for summary decision, except to note that their relationship had become increasingly contentious. Feeling that a "cooling off period" during which to contemplate the direction of the parties' employment relationship would be useful, the Board acted on April 25, 2012, to place Caffrey on a paid leave of absence. The Board deemed its resolution to have carried with four affirmative votes, and one abstention.³

³ On the evening of April 25, 2102, Lebreault was as yet unaware that ethics charges had been lodged against him by Caffrey and thus was likewise unaware of any conflict of interest that would preclude his participation. Accordingly, he voted that evening.

Caffrey responded with her emergent application, asserting that a resolution suspending her could carry only upon the affirmative vote of a majority of the full membership of the Board. She further asserted that Lebreault should have recused himself, and that for this additional reason, the action of the Board placing her on a leave of absence was ultra vires. The Commissioner agreed with Caffrey that the school laws mandated that five members of the Board vote in favor of the controverted resolution.

By the time the Board met on May 7, 2012, it was clear that a majority of its members could not vote on the issue of Caffrey's employment status. Accordingly, the Board passed a resolution invoking the Doctrine of Necessity. The resolution stated "that the five board members, as noted above, are prohibited from evaluating, taking action or otherwise discussing the performance of the Superintendent, and the Board therefore invokes the Doctrine of Necessity in order to evaluate and take personnel action regarding the Superintendent Dr. Janine Caffrey." (Caffrey affidavit Exhibit A.) The resolution cited the School Ethics Commission's Public Advisory Opinion A03-98 (April 1, 1998) and confirmed that per that decision, it was publicly specifying the nature of each individual member's conflict of interest. Upon invoking the Doctrine, a resolution again suspending Caffrey with pay passed with six affirmative votes. Caffrey contends that the Doctrine of Necessity was improperly invoked by the Board because there was no public hue and cry calling for her suspension. Moreover, she points out that the resolution stated that it would be posted publicly for thirty days "preceding" its passage. The Board did not post it; hence Caffrey urges its action was procedurally flawed.

Notice of the May 7, 2012, meeting was forwarded to two newspapers via email by Business Office Representative Evelyn Hernandez on May 4, 2012. Hernandez typically utilizes email to forward notices for publication. The newspapers, The Home News Tribune and The Perth Amboy Guardian, were designated at the Board's reorganization meeting of May 9, 2011, as the publications to be utilized for public notices. The Home News Tribune published the notice on May 6, 2012. The notice stated that the Board would be meeting "to discuss personnel matters, matters protected by attorney-client privilege and other Board business. There may be formal Board action at this meeting.” (Exhibit H to amended petition.) The notice did not use the word “agenda” in describing the intended focus of the meeting. Caffrey asserts that the Board violated the requirements of the OPMA by not timely publishing the notice, or properly publishing a formal agenda for the May 7, 2012, meeting. She urges that these alleged procedural errors invalidate the Board’s action that evening.

Among the events cited by Caffrey in her ethics complaint against Lebreault were the following:

. . . Mr. Lebreault directed the acting superintendent (Vivian Rodriguez) and the human resources manager (Bernice Marshall) to repost the position of transportation manager. The posting had been previously closed, and the first round of interviews were held just prior to the April 25, 2012, special Board meeting when the superintendent was placed on a leave of absence. Ms. Marshall and others who were present for the first round of interviews, including ten candidates, identified four highly qualified candidates and were ready to move forward with a second round of interviews. Despite that fact, Mr. Lebreault directed the reposting of the position and further directed Ms. Marshall to contact three named individuals, to inform them that the position was about to be posted

[(Attachment to Rubin Brief.)]

The ethics complaint alleged that Lebreault’s action violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(b), (d), and (e). She supports this contention with three documents, a May 7, 2012, memorandum from Marshall to Business Administrator Derek Jess; a May 2, 2012, memorandum to all principals regarding job postings; and a May 7, 2012, memorandum from Marshall to Richard Grobelny, expressing concerns about the interview process for the transportation coordinator position.

I FIND that Count Three of the petition makes identical allegations; again raising claims of impropriety relative to the hiring of a transportation coordinator, and stating in paragraph seven:

The process of selecting finalists for the transportation director position and recommending them to the Board had neared completion. However, on or about May 4, 2012, the Board directed the District's human resources manager to halt the process and re-start it so that three specific candidates who had not originally applied for the position could be considered.

The amended petition attaches and relies upon the same three memoranda that accompanied the ethics complaint, and asserts that the Board's actions impeded Caffrey's ability to fulfill "her statutory responsibilities to manage fiscal operations and ensure the efficient expenditure of funds," and that she was "thwarted by the Board in selecting a qualified candidate for the transportation director position." Lebreault's name is not mentioned in the petition; nonetheless, plainly, the events alleged in the ethics complaint are again at issue. Indeed, the documents that accompany both this petition and the ethics complaint concern the hiring process, and refer to Lebreault by name.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

In accordance with N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5, summary decision should be rendered "if the papers and discovery which have been filed, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law." The regulation mirrors R. 4:46-2(c), which provides that "the judgment or order sought shall be rendered if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment or order as a matter of law."

A determination whether a genuine issue of material fact exists that precludes summary decision requires the judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the allegedly disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. Our courts have long held that "if the opposing party offers . . . only facts which are immaterial or of an insubstantial nature, a mere scintilla, 'fanciful frivolous, gauzy or merely suspicious,' he will not be heard to complain if the court grants summary judgment." Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520 (1995) (citing Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co., 17 N.J. 67, 75 (1954)).

The "judge's function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial." Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 540 (citing Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. 242, 249, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 2511, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202, 212 (1986)). When the evidence "is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law," the trial court should not hesitate to grant summary judgment. Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 252, 106 S. Ct. at 2512, 91 L. Ed. 2d at 214.

I CONCLUDE that this matter is ripe for summary decision. There are no material disputed facts which require a plenary hearing, and the Board is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Relative to the allegations in Counts Four and Five of the petition, I reject the Board's jurisdictional arguments, but further CONCLUDE that the actions of the Board were in all respects compliant with the requirements of the OPMA, N.J.S.A. 10:4-1 et seq., and that the Board properly invoked the Doctrine of Necessity. Relative to the allegations in Count Three of the amended complaint, I CONCLUDE that this count raises claims more properly adjudicated via the pending proceeding before the School Ethics Commission and should be dismissed.

The Commissioner's Jurisdiction to Hear Petitioner's
OPMA and Doctrine of Necessity Claims

The Commissioner's jurisdiction is defined by statute, and is limited to "controversies and disputes arising under the school laws." N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9; Bd. of Educ. of East Brunswick Twp. v. Twp. Council of East Brunswick, 48 N.J. 94, 102 (1966). It has been recognized that, "[t]he sweep of the Department's interest and the Commissioner's jurisdiction does not extend to all matters involving boards of education." Archway Programs v. Pemberton Twp. Bd. of Educ., 352 N.J. Super. 420, 424 (App. Div. 2002). Claims against local school boards that "do not arise under the school laws but rather from statutory or common law [are] typically and appropriately adjudicated in the courts.” Archway, supra, 352 N.J. Super. at 425.

But it is well-established that the Commissioner has additional incidental jurisdiction to determine claims arising under the OPMA as they relate to school law controversies. Sukin v. Northfield Bd. of Educ., 171 N.J. Super. 184, 187 (App. Div. 1979). Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 10:4-15, any action by a public body that does not conform to the requirements of the OPMA is reviewable in the Superior Court via an action in lieu of prerogative writs. That section was not intended to confer exclusive jurisdiction in the Superior Court, however. Where an administrative agency has primary jurisdiction to determine the underlying controversy between the parties, our courts have recognized that the Superior Court should not undertake to decide the issues presented under the OPMA, but should refer those issues to the appropriate administrative agency. Sukin, supra, 171 N.J. Super. at 187 (citing Asbury Park Bd. of Educ. v. Asbury Park Ed. Ass’n, 155 N.J. Super. 76, 78 (App. Div. 1977)). I CONCLUDE that this incidental jurisdiction is sufficiently broad as to encompass the claims here.

Caffrey asserts that the Board acted outside the requirements of the school laws and the OPMA when it placed her on a paid leave of absence. When filed, her petition fell squarely within the Commissioner’s jurisdiction. The second count averred that any action taken by the Board to place her on a leave required a roll-call majority vote of the full membership of the Board; a claim conceptually grounded in the school laws.⁴ The first count alleged that the committee process that preceded Board action violated the OPMA; but under Sukin, these claims were properly before the Commissioner for consideration as ancillary to and arising from the same facts as Caffrey’s school law claims. The remaining counts of the petition were then added via amendment.⁵

⁵ Department of Education rules allowed Caffrey to freely amend her pleading prior to its transmittal to the OAL. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.7.

Caffrey successfully enjoined Board action suspending her; the Commissioner agreed that there had been an insufficient number of affirmative votes to carry the suspension motion. The Board now asks to dismiss the OPMA and Doctrine of Necessity claims, in essence arguing that Caffrey's victory knocked the jurisdictional underpinnings out from under her petition. But Caffrey correctly invoked the Commissioner's jurisdiction; to now dismiss the claims that survive after she prevailed would be an absurd result, particularly since Caffrey would be well out of time to reassert her OPMA claims in a judicial forum.⁶ The fact that counts were added to the petition after the Commissioner's May 8, 2012, ruling does not alter this conclusion. The claims of the petition are all interrelated and indeed, importantly, pre- and post-amendment to the petition, the fundamental issue presented by this controversy remains the same; that is, was Board action placing Caffrey on a leave of absence procedurally proper?

The allegations that the Board misapplied the Doctrine of Necessity are likewise properly before the Commissioner as incidental to Caffrey's school law claims. Moreover, the Department of Education has confirmed its independent interest in ensuring that the Doctrine is properly relied upon by local boards. Indeed, citing the School Ethics Act, N.J.S.A. 18A:12-21, the School Ethics Commission passed a February 23, 2003, resolution describing with particularity the procedures through which the Doctrine should be invoked. <<http://www.state.nj.us/education/ethics/don/>>; see also Advisory Opinion, A03-98 (April 1, 1998).

Finally, our courts have recognized that adjudication of a controversy best occurs in one litigation and in only one court—a concept embodied in the entire controversy doctrine. Cogdell v. Hosp. Ctr., 116 N.J. 7, 15 (1989). Having this matter remain with the Commissioner for adjudication avoids piecemeal decision making, waste and delay, and is efficient. DiTrollo v. Antiles, 142 N.J. 253, 267 (1995). “It is well-established that court fashioned doctrines for handling litigation have utility and relevance in administrative proceedings.” Ostergren v. Bd. of Tr. of the TPAF, 96 N.J.A.R.2d (TYP) 249 (citing E.I. du Pont de Nemours v. State, 283 N.J. Super. 331, 351(App. Div.

⁶ See N.J.S.A. 10:4-14(a), which requires that challenges under the OPMA be filed within forty-five days.

1995)). For this additional reason, this matter properly remains in the administrative forum.

In sum, I CONCLUDE that Caffrey has properly invoked the Commissioner's jurisdiction relative to her OPMA and Doctrine of Necessity claims.

The Doctrine of Necessity

Caffrey asserts that a Board may not invoke the Doctrine absent a "pressing public need for action." She thus contends that absent a demonstrated "public insistence" that she be placed on suspension, the Board could not act to invoke the Doctrine. But Caffrey misapprehends the scope and purpose of the Doctrine of Necessity, and her argument is without merit. I CONCLUDE that the Board properly invoked the Doctrine at its May 7, 2012, meeting.

Public bodies, boards of education included, must promptly and effectively serve their constituents. In discharging their responsibilities, individual board members must act exclusively on the public's behalf, unencumbered by other interests that might cloud their judgment, or create an appearance of conflict. If a pending issue presents such a conflict, an individual board member thus must recuse himself; but on those rare occasions where a majority of the members share the conflict, the public body becomes paralyzed. The Doctrine of Necessity thus provides a vehicle through which to permit the public body to do that which is necessary to fulfill its statutory obligations.

Both parties cite the decision in Allen v. Toms River Regional Board of Education, 233 N.J. Super. 642 (Law Div. 1989), which comprehensively reviews the existing law on the scope of the Doctrine. Noting that it is seldom used, the court explained that the doctrine "[allows] an official to participate in public business notwithstanding an otherwise disqualifying conflict." Id. at 644. It is a doctrine that is "narrowly circumscribed" but that "still has vitality in a limited group of cases." The court defined the scope of the Doctrine as follows:

It will be invoked in those circumstances in which there is a pressing public need for action (that is, the matter cannot be laid aside until another date), there is no alternative forum which can grant the same relief and the body is unable to act without the members in conflict taking part.

[Id. at 651.]

The Doctrine should be used with caution. In upholding its use under the facts before it, the Allen court noted that there was a “public clamor” with respect to the matter at issue, the school budget, creating a pressing need for the public body to act. Ibid.

Here, it is uncontroverted that the Perth Amboy Board was unable to act on Caffrey's suspension unless conflicted members participated, and that there was no alternative forum that could act in the Board's stead. Accordingly, all that remains in contention is whether this Board has satisfied the requirement that there be a “pressing public need for action.” Caffrey has focused somewhat myopically on the “public clamor” language in Allen. I disagree that a factual record documenting public outrage is a prerequisite to finding that the Doctrine was properly invoked. Indeed, under Caffrey's view, the Board would be powerless to act unless a public outcry legitimized its concerns about her continued service as superintendent. But this case is not about the legitimacy of the Board's dissatisfaction with Caffrey; rather, the narrow issue presented is whether, in light of the Board's dissatisfaction, the Doctrine of Necessity permitted it to act.⁷ I CONCLUDE that it did. The Board/superintendent relationship is a clear matter of pressing public interest; the quality of that relationship will impact the delivery of public education services to the children of Perth Amboy. Moreover, education is not a public service that can wait; youth is fleeting, and every second children spend in school must maximize their growth and potential.

The public has entrusted the decision to hire, fire or suspend the superintendent to its elected Board of Education. As the Board correctly argues, the Board cannot base its decision whether to retain its superintendent on which camp better packs the boardroom the night that her performance is to be discussed; nor would an empty boardroom invalidate the Board's concerns about its relationship with Caffrey. Once the Board acts, if the public is dissatisfied, it has a remedy each Election Day. Accordingly, Caffrey's argument that the public must vocally press for her suspension before the Doctrine can be invoked is unavailing.

I thus CONCLUDE that the question of whether Caffrey should remain actively in service was a vital public issue, and that I can readily so determine based on the record before me. Absent invocation of the Doctrine this Board would have been powerless to act on her employment status unless and until a new election changed the composition of its membership.⁸ I CONCLUDE that this is precisely the sort of stalemate that the Doctrine was intended to prevent.

Finally, Caffrey urges unsuccessfully that the Board improperly invoked the Doctrine of Necessity because it did not post its resolution for thirty days prior to its passage, per the resolution language. I deem persuasive the Board's contention that this was a typographical error. The March 5, 2003, memorandum from the then Executive Director of the School Ethics Commission, enclosing the February 23, 2003, resolution states that "boards that must invoke the Doctrine of Necessity [must] adopt a resolution at a public meeting stating the nature of the conflicts of interest, post the resolution for 30 days and provide the Commission with a copy." <http://www.state.nj.us/education/ethics/don/>. Plainly, the Board sought to comply with the requirement that the posting take place subsequent to the passage of the resolution, and it merely misspoke.

I CONCLUDE that the claims contained in count four of the amended petition are without merit and should be dismissed.

⁸ The Board aptly urges that simply by continuing to file ethics complaints against sitting Board members, Caffrey could stymie the Board from acting on her employment status indefinitely.

The Alleged Violations of the OPMA

Caffrey asserts that the Board failed to give “adequate notice” of the May 7, 2012, meeting, as that term is defined by law. The Board’s obligations were governed by N.J.S.A. 10:4-8 (d), which defines “adequate notice” as follows:

“Adequate notice” means written advance notice of at least 48 hours, giving the time, date, location and, to the extent known, the agenda of any regular, special or rescheduled meeting, which notice shall accurately state whether formal action may or may not be taken and which shall be (1) prominently posted in at least one public place reserved for such or similar announcements, (2) mailed, telephoned, telegraphed, or hand delivered to at least two newspapers which newspapers shall be designated by the public body to receive such notices because they have the greatest likelihood of informing the public within the area of jurisdiction of the public body of such meetings, one of which shall be the official newspaper, where any such has been designated by the public body or if the public body has failed to so designate, where any has been designated by the governing body of the political subdivision whose geographic boundaries are coextensive with that of the public body and (3) filed with the clerk of the municipality when the public body’s geographic boundaries are coextensive with that of a single municipality, with the clerk of the county when the public body’s geographic boundaries are coextensive with that of a single county, and with the Secretary of State if the public body has Statewide jurisdiction

I CONCLUDE that the Board properly noticed and advertised its meeting of May 7, 2012. The petition avers that notice of the May 7, 2012, meeting was not delivered to at least two newspapers; the Hernandez certification readily disposes of this argument. Caffrey urges that the Board did not designate two newspapers for publication purposes; counsel’s letter enclosing a board resolution so designating The Home News Tribune and The Perth Amboy Guardian, makes it plain that this is not the case. The petition alleges that only one newspaper actually published the notice. But the Board correctly replies that the OPMA only requires that the notice be timely transmitted to the newspapers; actual publication is not required by the statute. Bernard Twp. v. Dep’t of Comty. Affairs, 233 N.J. Super. 1, 26 (App. Div. 1989); see also Worts v. Upper Twp., 176 N.J. Super. 78, 81 (Ch. Div. 1980). Caffrey suggests that electronic transmission of notices to designated newspapers via email is of questionable validity; but the OPMA has entered the internet age. N.J.S.A. 10:4-9.1. I CONCLUDE that an email transmission to a designated newspaper complies with the letter, intent and spirit of the OPMA.⁹

In addition, Caffrey challenges the content of the notice, urging that that it “does not indicate what the agenda will be nor does it indicate that action could be taken relative to [Caffrey’s] employment.” The Board did not have to specifically use the word “agenda,” as Caffrey appears to contend. I CONCLUDE that the notice’s statement that the Board was meeting “to discuss personnel matters, matters protected by attorney-client privilege and other Board business” and the statement that “[t]here may be formal Board action at this meeting,” gave the public adequate notice under the requirements of law. Moreover, our courts have recognized that when the anticipated topic for a special meeting is a personnel matter the privacy rights of an employee may be implicated, and a general reference to personnel matters in a special meeting notice will suffice as “adequate notice” within the intent of N.J.S.A. 10:4-8(d). La Fronz v. Weehawkin Bd. of Educ., 164 N.J. Super. 5, 6 (App. Div. 1978), certif. denied, 79 N.J. 491 (1979); see also McGovern v. Rutgers, 418 N.J. Super. 458, 47-71 (App. Div. 2011), rev’d on other grounds, 2012 N.J. Lexis 779 (2012), where the court distinguished La Fronz precisely because a confidential personnel matter was not at issue.

I CONCLUDE that the claims contained in Count Five of the amended petition are without merit and should be dismissed.

Count Three of the Petition

The Board argues that Count Three of the petition should be dismissed because identical claims are simultaneously pending in petitioner’s ethics complaint against ⁹ N.J.S.A. 10:4-9.2 makes it plain that electronic notice cannot substitute for the “adequate notice” required by the OPMA, but this Board did not substitute an internet notice for notice in its designated newspapers, it merely sent the information needed for publication to the newspapers electronically. There is no contention that the email was not received by the publications in question.

Board President Lebreault. I agree that these claims are one and the same and more properly brought before the School Ethics Commission.

Indeed, the petition pending before me asserts that the Board interfered with Caffrey's ability to select a qualified transportation director, averring that "[i]n fulfilling her statutory responsibilities to manage fiscal operations and ensure the efficient expenditure of funds, [she] was thwarted by the Board in selecting a qualified candidate for the transportation director position." Caffrey further asserts that "the Board directed the District's human resources manager to halt the process and re-start it so that three specific candidates who had not originally applied for the position could be considered."

But Lebreault is plainly the object of her concern, as Caffrey's ethics complaint asserts that he violated N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24 by "directing the acting superintendent (Vivian Rodriguez) and the human resources manager (Bernice Marshall) to repost the position of transportation manager . . . and further directed Ms. Marshall to contact three named individuals, to inform them that the position was about to be posted." The events at issue are transparently identical in both the petition and the ethics complaint; the accompanying documents all refer to Lebreault, and not the Board as a whole. The May 7, 2012, memorandum, (G-1) states "[o]ne can only assume that the reason this position has been reposted is because Board members, specifically the Board president, have a desire to influence the hiring process." The May 10, 2012, memorandum (G-3) states "Lebreault then provided the [sic] Marshall with three names of these candidates and directed her to alert them of the new posting." Accordingly, it is clear that this petition raises claims that are redundant with those before the Ethics Commission.

The Commissioner has recognized the School Ethics Commission's exclusive jurisdiction over conduct proscribed by the School Ethics Act. Castriotta v Bd. of Educ. of the Twp. of Roxbury, EDU 09217-10, Initial Decision (April 4, 2011), modified, Comm'r (May 18, 2011), <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/oal/search.html>>. Even though Count Three of the amended petition does not mention the Act, the determining factor is whether the alleged conduct, if proven, would violate the Act. Ibid. By filing her ethics complaint, Caffrey has conceded that she is alleging an Ethics Act violation in the instant petition. Her citations to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1 and N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24 are on directly on point; indeed, the Board member Code of Ethics proscribes interference with administration, and local school board members are obliged not to administer the schools but rather, "to see that they are well run." N.J.S.A. 18A:12-24.1(d).

Even assuming, for argument's sake, that the Commissioner has concurrent jurisdiction over the claims raised in Count Three, these claims are better heard before the School Ethics Commission. Our courts have recognized that "comity and deference to cognate tribunals are designed to assure that a controversy, or its most critical facets, will be resolved by the forum or body which, on a comparative scale, is in the best position by virtue of its statutory status, administrative competence and regulatory expertise to adjudicate the matter." Boss v. Rockland Elec. Co., 95 N.J. 33, 40(1983) (citing Hinfey v. Matawan Reg'l Bd. of Educ., 77 N.J. 514, 531-32 (1978)). I agree with the Board that the School Ethics Commission is "in the best position" to adjudicate the claims in Count Three of this petition, that simultaneous litigation of the same facts would risk inconsistent determinations, and is inappropriate. Boss, supra, 95 N.J. at 40.

I CONCLUDE that the allegations in Count Three should be dismissed.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, I ORDER that the petition be DISMISSED as follows:

The claims raised by Counts Four and Five of the petition of appeal are DISMISSED; and I FURTHER ORDER that the Board may place Caffrey on a paid administrative leave per its May 7, 2012, resolution. The claims contained in Count Three of the petition are DISMISSED as more properly adjudicated before the School Ethics Commission. The claims in Count One and Count Two of the petition were fully addressed by the Commissioner's May 8, 2012, interim decision and/or rendered MOOT by the action of the Board taken on May 7, 2012.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – an early childhood education teacher employed in respondent’s school district since 1990 – appealed the determination of the respondent Board to withhold her 2011-2012 salary increment, alleging that the Board’s actions were arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. The Board contended that the increment withholding was justified based upon deficiencies in petitioner’s teaching performance as documented in all of her evaluations throughout the previous school year.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: petitioner was observed and evaluated twice during the 2010-2011 school year, by two different evaluators; petitioner was given prior notice of the standards and expectations by which she would be evaluated; both evaluations concluded that petitioner’s performance needed improvement in numerous areas; and although petitioner received notice in November 2010 of the need to improve in numerous areas, her May 2011 evaluation did not demonstrate improvement in those areas. The ALJ concluded that the petitioner failed to prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the Board’s decision to withhold her increment was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Accordingly, the ALJ dismissed the petition.

Upon independent review and consideration, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the petitioner failed to sustain her burden of establishing that the Board’s action was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable, or an abuse of its discretion. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this matter.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner’s decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon careful consideration, the Commissioner determines to adopt the ALJs recommended decision as he finds that the Board's action in withholding the petitioner's 2011-2012 increment was a valid exercise of its discretionary authority. In so determining, the Commissioner is mindful that it is well-established that the scope of the Commissioner's review in increment withholding matters is not to substitute his judgment for that of those who made the evaluation, but to determine whether they had a reasonable basis for their conclusions. (Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Ed., 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960). As such, there are only two determinations to be made when reviewing the Board's decision to withhold the increment of a teaching staff member, i.e., 1) whether the underlying facts were as those who made the evaluation claimed, and 2) whether it was unreasonable for them to conclude as they did based on those facts. Moreover, it is likewise well-established that the burden of proving unreasonableness lies with the petitioner. (Kopera at 296-297)

With this applicable legal standard in mind, the Commissioner's review persuades him that the record here amply establishes that the Board's action in withholding petitioner's increment was based on validly perceived deficiencies in her performance during the 2010-2011 school year. Consequently, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that petitioner has failed to sustain her burden of establishing—by a preponderance of the credible evidence—that the Board's action was arbitrary, capricious, unreasonable, or an abuse of its discretion.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

Record Closed: March 21, 2012

Decided: September 7, 2012

BEFORE EVELYN J. MAROSE, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Anitra Martin (Martin), asserts that the Board of Education (BOE) of the City of Jersey City, Hudson County, was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable when it withheld her salary increment for the 2011-12 School Year. The BOE asserts that petitioner's increment was withheld for good cause pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:29-4.

The New Jersey State Department of Education transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law, where it was filed on October 14, 2011. A hearing was held on March 21, 2012, at which time the record closed. Due to a voluminous caseload, a request to extend the time for the issuance of this Initial Decision until September 17, 2012, was made.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

The parties jointly submitted four documents, marked J-2 through J-5, and stipulated to the following facts, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-15.11:

1. The Jersey City Public School District (District) is a duly constituted corporate body, organized pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:10-1, which operates a kindergarten through twelfth grade District, for the residents of the City of Jersey City.
2. Martin is a ten-month, tenured pre-kindergarten teacher, at P.S. #22 of the District.
3. Martin was hired by the District as an elementary teacher, effective September 1, 1990.
4. On or about November 22, 2010, Martin received a Formative Observation report dated November 18, 2010, wherein the evaluator, Ismael E. Aponte, Principal P.S. #22 (Principal Aponte), gave Martin an overall rating of Needs Improvement (NI) in Planning and Preparation, Students and Learning, and Instruction. There were also aspects of the Classroom Evaluation for which Principal Aponte gave Martin a NI rating. (J-2.)
5. On or about June 6, 2011, Martin received a Formative Observation report dated May 11, 2011, wherein the evaluator, Thomas Macagnano (Assistant Principal Macagnano), gave Martin an overall rating of NI in Instruction and the Classroom Environment. There were also aspects of Planning and

Preparation and Students and Learning, where Assistant Principal Macagnano gave Martin a NI rating. (J-3.)

6. On or about June 7, 2011, Martin received a Summative Evaluation and Professional Development Plan dated June 7, 2011, wherein the evaluator, Principal Aponte gave Martin an overall rating of NI in Planning and Preparation, Students and Learning and Instruction. (J-4.)
7. In the June 7, 2011, Professional Development Plan, Principal Aponte recommended the withholding of Martin's increment. (J-4.)
8. By letter dated August 24, 2011, Martin received notification from the District that her increment was being withheld for the 2011-12 school year, based upon performance. (J-5.)
9. Martin's current salary for the 2011-12 School Year is $95,760.00. (J-5.)

Petitioner testified on her own behalf. Principal Aponte and Assistant Principal Macagnano testified for the District.

DISTRICT'S EVIDENCE

Principal Aponte

Principal Aponte has worked for the District for thirty-three years and has been a principal for thirteen years. Evaluating teachers and non-instructional staff is part of his job responsibilities. Prior to his assignment to an administrative position, Principal Aponte taught third and fifth grade.

Martin was initially assigned to P.S. #22, where Aponte was the principal, in the 2010-11 School Year. She was assigned to teach four-year-old children in pre-kindergarten, using High Scope Curriculum (High Scope). High Scope has been used District wide for many years. The District has offered various training programs, including summer workshops, in High Scope, which Martin has attended.

Principal Aponte had a “get to know you meeting” with Martin, on the first day of the 2010-11 School Year, as was his policy for new teachers to his school. He also interacted with Martin at faculty meetings during the school year. There were monthly general staff meetings, where topics such as school expectations for the classroom environment were reviewed and bi-weekly grade-level meetings where the focus was teaching certain grade levels.

In accordance with District policy, during the 2010-11 School Year, Martin was evaluated twice, after observation, and received an annual written summative evaluation. Prior to observing her, Principal Aponte held a pre-conference with Martin. During that meeting, he provided her with a copy of the form that would be used in the evaluation, so that she would know what the areas of focus would be when she was observed. There were four domains - Planning and Preparation, Students and Learning, Instruction and The Classroom Environment—and a rating scale of Satisfactory (S), Needs Improvement (NI), Unsatisfactory (U) or Not Applicable (N/A). (J-1, J-2.)

As of result of her November 18, 2010, observation, Principal Aponte evaluated Martin as needing improvement in the domains of “Planning and Preparation,” “Students and Learning,” and “Instruction.” He evaluated Martin as satisfactory in domain of “The Classroom Environment.” Each of the four domains was broken down into sub-categories, for which Martin received a rating.

In the “Planning and Preparation” subcategories, Principal Aponte rated Martin in need of improvement in the areas of “Demonstrates Knowledge of Content and Pedagogy,” “Selects Instructional Objectives,” and “Plans Effective Instructional Activities.” She was rated as satisfactory in “Demonstrates Knowledge of Instructional Materials and Resources” and “Designs Coherent and Continuous Instruction.” In all of the “Students and Learning” subcategories—“Demonstrates Knowledge of Students,” “Assesses Student Learning using a Variety of Evaluation Techniques,” “Links Appropriate Assessment to Instructional Objectives,” “Uses Assessment Results for Instructional Planning,” and “Maintains Accurate Records on Student Progress and Performance,” Martin was rated in need of improvement. In one sub-category of "Instruction," "Demonstrates Flexibility and Responsiveness," Martin was rated as satisfactory. In the four sub-categories of "Instruction" - "Communicates the Lesson Clearly and Accurately," "Employs Effective Questioning and Discussion Techniques," "Engages Students In Learning," and "Provides Feedback to Students," Martin was rated as in need of improvement. In three sub-categories of "The Classroom Environment" — "Creates an Environment of Respect and Rapport with Pupils and Staff," "Monitors Student Behavior," and "Utilizes Designed Space Effectively," Martin was rated satisfactory. In two sub-categories of "The Classroom Environment" — "Establishes a Culture for Learning" and "Implements and Maintains Classroom Procedures," Martin was rated in need of improvement. (J-2.)

The following comments were either noted in Martin's November 18, 2010, Formative Observation Form or testified to by Principal Aponte in connection with her November evaluation:

- 1.) Martin was aware of the areas in which she would be evaluated. She was a tenured teacher with many years of experience, including numerous years teaching pre-kindergarten.
- 2.) During her pre-evaluation conference, Martin expressed no concerns regarding how and in what manner she would be evaluated.
- 3.) Martin's lesson planner was too generic and was not fully congruent to the lesson observed when she was evaluated.
- 4.) Martin's lesson planner indicated the same objective for numerous days. Even if Martin intended to teach the same skill for several days, she should have planned different activities to teach that skill in order to provide the variety needed to keep the student's attention and so indicated in her lesson planner.
- 5.) Martin's dialogue with the children during her observation was not satisfactory. Numerous times, she asked questions and then answered the questions herself. In addition, many of the questions that she directed to her students required only yes or no answers. Thus, the responses that she did generate by her questioning did not provide enough information as to the children's own interests, thoughts, and knowledge. She was not obtaining feedback essential to determine if the students were capturing the content of her lesson or activity.

- 6.) When working with a non-English speaking student, Martin, who was a seasoned teacher, failed to use any non-verbal strategies to interact with that child. Instead, she simply directed the child to speak to her in English.
- 7.) Martin did not exert any effort to engage the children to expand their learning. She was satisfied to allow students to do the same thing, the same way.
- 8.) Martin did not sufficiently display her student's work throughout their classroom. She displayed one sample of each student's work, which was not enough.
- 9.) Martin failed to provide Principal Aponte with written anecdotes that she was required to make about her students, as part of their "COR" assessments. Principal Aponte specifically requested that Martin provide him with the "COR" assessment forms at the time of her evaluation, when he spoke with her on November 8, 2010, at her pre-evaluation conference. More than a week later, on November 18, 2010, there were still no COR entries for November. (J-2.)

Principal Aponte went out on medical leave in January 2011. Martin received a May Formative Observation by Assistant Principal Macagnano, who functioned as principal when Principal Aponte was on medical leave. Principal Aponte did complete Martin's annual Summative Evaluation, dated June 7, 2011, which he testified reflected both his November Formative Observation and Assistant Principal Macagnano's May Formative Observation.

In her annual Summative Evaluation, Principal Aponte rated Martin as in need of improvement in three categories — "Planning and Preparation," "Students and Learning," and "Instruction." He rated her as satisfactory in two categories — "The Classroom Environment" and "Professional Attitude and Manner." By way of comments, Martin was noted to possess two strengths. She established a natural rapport with the children and utilized classroom materials that were developmentally appropriate for young children. However, again, she was noted to need improvement in numerous areas, including planning and preparing lessons appropriately, providing meaningful instruction utilizing the district curriculum, and developing meaningful skill-based activities during small group, large group, and outdoor play incorporating subject area disciplines at all times. Sixteen specific suggestions for improvement were identified.

In June 2011, Principal Aponte recommended Martin for re-employment for the 2011-12 School Year, but did not recommend that she receive her increment.

Assistant Principal Macagnano

Assistant Principal Macagnano worked for the District for sixteen years. Initially he taught sixth grade; however, for the past seven years he was an assistant principal. In January 2011, when Principal Aponte was on medical leave, Assistant Principal Macagnano was assigned to P.S. #22 as Building Administrator. Upon Principal Aponte's return and until May 2011, Assistant Principal Macagnano remained at P.S. #22 developing a program and services for anti-bullying. In May 2011, he was also assigned a list of staff to evaluate, including Martin.

Assistant Principal Macagnano initially met Martin during one of his first years at the District. They worked together briefly when both were teaching at P.S. #9. Since he has been an Administrator, he has seen Martin at various meetings and during daily rounds.

Prior to evaluating Martin in May 2011, Assistant Principal Macagnano met with Martin for a pre-evaluation conference. He reviewed the domains that would be evaluated, the performance expectations and requested that she have her lesson plans and "COR" evaluations up to date. The goal of the meeting was to prevent surprises at the time of the observation and evaluation. Assistant Principal Macagnano did not review any prior evaluations of Martin prior to conducting the May evaluation.

After observing Martin on May 11, 2011, Assistant Principal Macagnano completed the same Formative Observation Form used by Principal Aponte. Assistant Principal Macagnano evaluated Martin as needing improvement in the domains of "Instruction" and "The Classroom Environment." He evaluated Martin as satisfactory in the domains of "Planning and Preparation" and "Students and Learning."

In the "Planning and Preparation" subcategories, Assistant Principal Macagnano rated Martin in need of improvement in the areas of "Demonstrates Knowledge of Content and Pedagogy" and "Selects Instructional Objectives." She was rated as satisfactory in "Plans Effective Instructional Activities," "Demonstrates Knowledge of Instructional Materials and Resources," and "Designs Coherent and Continuous Instruction." In the "Students and Learning" subcategories — "Demonstrates Knowledge of Students," "Assesses Student Learning using a Variety of Evaluation Techniques," and "Maintains Accurate Records on Student Progress and Performance" Martin was rated as satisfactory. In the sub-categories of "Links Appropriate Assessment to Instructional Objectives" and "Uses Assessment Results for Instructional Planning" Martin was rated in need of improvement. In the three sub-categories of "Instruction"—"Employs Effective Questioning and Discussion Techniques," "Provides Feedback to Students," and "Demonstrates Flexibility and Responsiveness," Martin was rated as in need of improvement. In two sub-categories — "Communicates the Lesson Clearly and Accurately" and "Engages Students In Learning," Martin was rated as satisfactory. In two sub-categories of "The Classroom Environment" — "Creates an Environment of Respect and Rapport with Pupils and Staff" and "Utilizes Designed Space Effectively," Martin was rated satisfactory. In three sub-categories of "The Classroom Environment" — "Establishes a Culture for Learning," "Monitors Student Behavior," and "Implements and Maintains Classroom Procedures", Martin was rated in need of improvement. (J-3.)

The following comments were either noted in Martin's May 11, 2011, Formative Observation Form or testified to by Assistant Principal Macagnano in connection with her May evaluation:

- 1.) After Martin had finished a small-group lesson, she moved to the block area where, in the house area, several students were repeating inappropriate “adult conversations” about having a party where beer would be served and about who was bringing the beer. It was inappropriate for Martin to observe the mimicking behaviors the children had seen at home or on television or in the movies, as she did, without re-directing the dialogue to an appropriate party for children to plan. For example, Martin should have re-directed the children toward planning an appropriate beverage and snack for children to bring to a party.

- 2.) The students were not mindful of classroom procedures during the evaluation period. Martin’s class decorum should have been more developed than observed during the May observation. Students were seen going back and forth from various play areas without continuity of routine. Several students were not involved in an activity, but rather were walking around with blocks on their head.
- 3.) While the play centers were labeled, the materials at the play centers were sparse. In response to cross-examination relating to this comment, Assistant Principal Macagnano stated that play center materials are supplied by the District and, to his knowledge no materials were requested and not received by Martin. (J-3.)

Assistant Principal Macagnano was not involved in the preparation of Martin’s Summative Evaluation, dated June 7, 2011, nor was he involved in the decision to withhold Martin’s increment for the 2011-12 School Year. (J-4.)

MARTIN’S EVIDENCE

Martin

Martin worked as a teacher in the District for twenty-two years. The 2010-11 School Year was the first time that she was assigned to P.S. #22. She was trained and used the High Scope Curriculum for many years.

Martin acknowledged that she did not have the COR assessments she made of her students in the computer by November 18, 2010, but asserts that she had them in by the end of November. Memorializing student anecdotes was not a new procedure, but the COR assessment program was relatively new. Martin was never told by the District Director of the Early Childhood Department or given a written directive by the Early Childhood Department that COR assessments had to be in the computer daily, weekly, or by a particular period of time, such as the end of the month. She states that, at the time of her November evaluation, a teacher could put her COR evaluations in the computer at her leisure.

Martin states that, in accordance with the High Scope Curriculum, she teaches to the interest of the children, which sometimes results in repetitive activities for numerous days, and might appear as a repetitive entry in her plan book. During the November and May observations, Martin believes that all of her students were actively participating in class activities. During the May observation, Martin did not hear the children's discussion regarding "who was bringing the beer." If she did, she would have addressed the dialogue. Martin denied having only one piece of artwork from her children displayed in her classroom.

Martin has no knowledge of what is considered in determining whether a District teacher gets an increment.

Based upon a review of the testimony and the documentary evidence presented, and having had the opportunity to observe the demeanor and assess the credibility of the witnesses, in addition to the stipulated facts, I FIND the following pertinent FACTS:

Based upon Martin's ratings detailed in her November 2010 and May 2011 Formative Observations and noted in her June 2011 Summative Evaluation, Principal Aponte did not recommend that Martin receive an increment in the 2011-12 School Year. Principal Aponte did recommend that Martin be rehired. The District Board of Education approved her re-hire and did not provide her with a salary increment. Prior to both of her Formative Observations, Martin was provided with the form that would be used by the administrators in observing and evaluating her and took part in a pre-observation/evaluation, in-person conference with the evaluator so that the expectations that would be addressed in the evaluation would be “no surprise.” One observation was conducted in the fall of 2010 and one observation was conducted in the late spring of 2011. As detailed below, though both observations are not identical, they are similar in that both indicate numerous observable areas where Martin needs to show improvement. Martin produced no evidence of any bias or wrongful motive by the two administrators who independently evaluated her, after two separate classroom observations. Accordingly, I FIND that Martin was given notice of the standards and expectations by which she would be evaluated in the 2010-11 School Year.

Prior to her first evaluation in November 2010, Principal Aponte told Martin that he wanted her COR assessments to be in the computer by the day of her November 18, 2011 observation. Martin admitted that she did not have any COR assessments in the computer by November 18, 2010. Accordingly, I FIND that Martin failed to comply with Principal Aponte’s request.

Martin stated that her teaching is driven by the interests of her children and that duplication and repetition are permissible when teaching in accordance with High Scope. Principal Aponte found that Martin’s lesson planner contained numerous repetitive entries of the same objective for various days. Accordingly, I FIND that Martin’s lesson planner did not indicate that she planned various ways to teach the children the same activities or different activities.

The District observed Martin in November 2010 and May 2011 and provided her with written evaluations detailing her need to improve her performance in numerous areas. (J-2, J-3.) In the domain of “Planning and Preparation,” both evaluations were consistent in detailing her need to improve in “Demonstrates Knowledge of Content and Pedagogy” and “Selects Instructional Objectives.” In the domain of “Students and Learning,” both evaluations were consistent in detailing her need to improve in “Links Appropriate Assessment to Instructional Assessment” and “Uses Assessment Results for Instructional Planning. In the domain of “Instruction,” both evaluations were consistent in detailing her need to improve in “Employs Effective Questioning and Discussion Techniques,” “Provides Feedback to Students,” and “Demonstrates Flexibility and Responsiveness.” In the domain of “The Classroom Environment,” both evaluations were consistent in detailing her need to improve in “Establishes a Culture for Learning” and “Maintains Classroom Procedures.” Accordingly, I FIND that while Martin received notice in November 2010, of the need to improve in the foregoing areas, her performance in these areas was not observed to be satisfactory by May 2011.

On June 7, 2011, the District provided Martin with a Summative Evaluation and Professional Development Plan, wherein she was rated as in need of improvement in the domains of “Planning and Preparation,” “Students and Learning,” and “Instruction.” Seven areas needing improvement and sixteen suggestions for improvement were also specifically detailed in the June Summative Evaluation. Accordingly, I FIND that Martin received notice of numerous areas in which her performance was not satisfactory during the 2010-11 School Year. (J-4.)

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

A salary increment is a reward for meritorious service, not an entitlement. N. Plainfield Educ. Ass’n v. Bd. of Educ., 96 N.J. 587, 593 (1984). Any board of education may with withhold, for inefficiency or other good cause, the employment increment, or the adjustment increment, or both, of any member in any year. N.J.S.A. 18A:29-14. A local school board’s decision to withhold a salary increment is a matter of management prerogative and is entitled to a presumption of correctionness. Fogerty v. State-Operated Sch. Dist. of the City of Jersey City, 97 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 439; Kaska v. Bd. of Educ. of the City of Trenton, 95 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 55. Nevertheless, a school board cannot withhold a salary increase from tenured employee with according that employee the minimum procedural due process. See Basile v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Elm Park, 1 N.J.A.R. 199 (Dept of Educ. 1980).

Martin argues that the decision to withhold her increment was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. She states that she had no knowledge of what is considered in determining whether a District teacher gets her increment. She asserts that none of her ratings for the 2010-11 School Year were unsatisfactory and that the repetitive activities indicated in her planner and observations indicate her implementation of the High Scope Curriculum. She asserts that her evaluations by Principal Aponte and Assistant Principal Macagnano were inconsistent and thus cannot form a reasonable basis to withhold her increment.

I CONCLUDE that Martin failed to prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the District's decision to withhold her increment was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. By statute, among other things, a board of education can withhold an increment for inefficiency or other good cause. The standard is not a showing of unsatisfactory ratings. Martin was provided with a pre-conference prior to her two observations and evaluations and with a blank copy of the form that would be used to evaluate her performance in the classroom. She was evaluated by two different evaluators, at two different times. No evidence was presented that any evaluator was biased against Martin or motivated in any manner to provide an untruthful evaluation. As argued by Martin, the two evaluations are not identical. In fact, were the two evaluations identical, I might view them with suspicion. However, as note above, the evaluations are consistent in numerous areas. Martin had the opportunity to improve in all areas that were specifically noted as needing improvement in her November 18, 2010, observation. However, the second administrator noted, six months later, on a different day, that he observed the need for improvement in many of the same areas that Martin was made aware of in November. The fact that the May observation did not note a failure to have the COR assessments in the computer or a desire for a more detailed lesson planner does not outweigh Martin's failure to improve in many areas in which this teacher with twenty-two years of experience was on notice of the need to improve.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that petitioner's challenge of the withholding of her increment for the 2011-12 School Year is hereby DENIED.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner, a tenured principal in respondent's district, contended that her compensation was reduced in violation of her tenure rights when her position as principal of adult education at the district's Camden campus was eliminated – along with the entire adult education program – for reasons of economy and efficiency, in July 2011. Petitioner's full-time position was principal of the district's Gloucester campus; she had simultaneously held the part-time position of principal of adult education in Camden, which was an evening school. The Board asserted that petitioner had served in two separate positions in the school district, and that once her position as principal in Camden was eliminated for reasons of economy, the district properly reduced her salary by the amount she would have been paid for her service in that position.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: the record shows that petitioner held two separate positions in the district, each of which were listed separately in the initial approval of the positions; the two positions had separate job descriptions and involved separate schools within the district; the fact that the district's payroll system generated one paycheck for petitioner does not negate the underlying nature of the positions she occupied, and the fact that she received a set amount of salary for each position; the district's action in this matter eliminated an entire school and, as a consequence, petitioner's second job – for which she had been paid $10,000 on an annual basis; when that position was eliminated, petitioner no longer had a right to that part of her compensation. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that the district did not reduce petitioner's salary in violation of her tenure rights and dismissed the petition.

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions, and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case. The petition was dismissed.

The petitioner in this controversy contends that her compensation was reduced in violation of her tenure rights. After review of the record, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law and the parties' exceptions, the Commissioner is constrained to disagree with petitioner.

As the Administrative Law Judge pointed out in the Initial Decision, petitioner served in two separate positions in respondent's district – each of which had separate job descriptions and separate salaries. The record shows that, as of 2009, one of the positions was principal of adult education at respondent's evening school, with an annual salary of $10,000. (See, Exhibit I to the Statement of Facts in respondent's motion for summary disposition) The other position was principal of the regular day school on the Gloucester Township campus of respondent's district, at an annual salary of $121,500. (Ibid.) The two separate job descriptions reflected, inter alia, the differences in the size and nature of the programs and student bodies associated with the respective divisions of the Camden County Technical School District in which petitioner served. (See, Exhibits K and L to the Statement of Facts in respondent's motion for summary disposition)

In 2011, respondent eliminated the adult education program and the positions of the staff that served same. (See, Exhibit N to the Statement of Facts in respondent's motion for summary disposition) On September 9, 2011, respondent's Business Administrator sent a notice to petitioner that respondent would cease paying her the $10,000 that had been her compensation for administering the eliminated program. (See, Exhibits M and O to the Statement of Facts in respondent's motion for summary disposition) It is this action that petitioner challenges.

The Commissioner has already determined, in Ciamillo v. Board of Education of the Borough of Ridgefield, Commissioner Decision No. 312-05, decided August 31, 2005, affirmed, State Board of Education, January 4, 2006, that the elimination – for economic reasons – of one of two positions held by an employee may properly result in the elimination of the compensation that was designated therefor. However, petitioner posits that the instant case is distinguishable from Ciamillo because the petitioner in Ciamillo had two jobs requiring separate certifications/endorsements, whereas petitioner Stallone's two jobs were both positions requiring a principal endorsement.

More specifically, petitioner seeks to persuade the Commissioner that her two jobs in respondent's district are really one position. Pointing to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, which allows an employee to credit towards tenure as a principal any and all service as a principal that an employee has completed within a district over a three plus year period, she argues that her service in the two principal jobs in respondent's district should also be regarded collectively for compensation purposes. Acceptance of her assertion that her two jobs were actually one position then, according to petitioner, implicates the prohibition in N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 against reducing a tenured employee's salary without a showing of inefficiency, incapacity, unbecoming conduct or other just cause.

Petitioner's arguments are unavailing. The rules for attaining tenure are separate and distinct from the rules which govern reductions in force (RIF). Petitioner's job as administrator of the adult school – which job preceded her position as principal of the regular day school on the Gloucester campus of respondent's district and encompassed a set of responsibilities significantly different from those in petitioner's Gloucester principalship – was eliminated in 2011. The salary for the eliminated position – which salary had been set forth in the minutes of respondent's May 2009 Board meeting – was accordingly discontinued. The elimination of the adult school job did not implicate the Gloucester job in any way. And allowing petitioner's total compensation to remain the same would have reaped the anomalous result of cutting a position for cost saving while still paying for it.

In summary, the discontinuance of the salary that petitioner had been paid for her position administering respondent's adult school was a proper action in the wake of the elimination of the adult school program. The Initial Decision is accordingly adopted as the final decision in this case and the petition is dismissed.

BEFORE PATRICIA M. KERINS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

This matter arises from petitioner Teresa Stallone's contention that her compensation was reduced in violation of her tenure rights. Her salary loss resulted from the elimination of her position as the principal of adult education at the Camden County Technical Institute (Camden), a position she held simultaneously with her position as principal of the Gloucester Township Campus (Gloucester) of respondent Camden County Technical School District (District).

Stallone filed a Petition of Appeal with the Department of Education on October 20, 2011 and the matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for a hearing as a contested case on November 14, 2011. A telephone prehearing conference was held on January 4, 2012, by Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Williams and a Prehearing Order issued on January 5, 2012. The matter was reassigned on April 26, 2012, and the parties each filed Motions for Summary Decision.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

Most of the facts in this matter are not in dispute. Since 1982, petitioner has held various positions with the district. On May 21, 2008, the district appointed petitioner as a director/principal of adult education at Camden¹. On May 20, 2009, petitioner was appointed as principal of Gloucester, effective July 1, 2009. At that same meeting, the district resolved to maintain petitioner in her position as principal of Camden. Thus, as of July 1, 2009, petitioner simultaneously held two separate positions in two different schools within the district. District agenda material list her move from her previous assignment as principal of Camden, with a salary of $121,500, to her new assignment as principal of Gloucester, with a salary of $121,500, and as principal of adult education at Camden, with a salary of $10,000, for the 2009-2010 school year. Each position was listed separately, with its own term and salary specified. Additionally, each position had its own job description and responsibilities. On April 21, 2010, Camden County renewed petitioner's dual employment at a salary of $145,764 for the 2010-2011 school year.

¹ Petitioner may have had a dual title of principal/director at the Technical Institute, but for ease of reference that position is referred to as "principal." Also, the Camden County Technical School District consistently used that in its resolutions.

On March 16, 2011, respondent approved a resolution, effective July 1, 2011, eliminating Camden, and several of its positions, including petitioner's job as principal, "for reasons of both economy of cost savings and efficiency." At the same meeting, the district authorized a review of petitioner's salary "to determine if a reduction is warranted" as a result of the elimination of her position.

On September 9, 2011, the district notified petitioner that it planned to discuss at its next meeting whether "[t]o reduce your present salary by $10,000.00 since your position with the TI Program no longer exists. The $10,000 represents the additional compensation paid to you for serving in the position of Principal for the TI Program." On September 21, 2011, Camden County resolved to reduce petitioner's salary for the 2011-2012 school year by $10,000 to $135,764, effective July 1, 2011.

LEGAL DISCUSSION

Summary decision is appropriate in matters before the OAL when there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b). In this matter, each party has requested summary decision by way of motion and the underlying facts related to petitioner's employment are not in dispute.

The purpose of tenure is "to aid in the establishment of a competent and efficient school system by affording teaching staff members 'a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service.'" Carpenito v. Rumson Bd. of Educ., 322 N.J. Super. 522, 528-29 (App. Div. 1999) (quoting Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App.Div.1949)). Generally, tenured teaching staff members "shall not be dismissed or reduced in compensation except for inefficiency, incapacity, or conduct unbecoming such a teaching staff member or other just cause." N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. However, notwithstanding the tenure laws, a school board may reduce the number of teaching staff members for reasons of economy. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9; Maywood Bd. of Educ. v. Maywood Educ. Assoc., 168 N.J. Super. 45, 55 (App. Div. 1979). If any staff member is dismissed as a result of such a reduction, commonly known as a reduction-in-force, or RIF, that person remains upon a preferred eligible list in the order of seniority for reemployment whenever a vacancy occurs in a position for which he or she is eligible. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12.

In this matter, petitioner argues that respondent violated her tenure rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 by reducing her salary by $10,000 upon the elimination of her position at Camden. According to petitioner, she is entitled to her former salary of $145,764 despite the closing of Camden because she remains a tenured principal, and "if a tenured staff member is not reassigned outside of her tenurable position, then her compensation cannot be reduced." Essentially, she argues that her position was one job, not two. Stallone submits that "she received one check for each pay period for compensation for her service as principal – assigned to two schools and that "the compensation was reported to TPAF [Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund] as one salary." In addition to the fact that the district issued one paycheck, she also cites the language of her initial appointment for the 2009 school year as a "reassignment". She argues those facts lead to the conclusion that she held one position as principal, and the district merely removed a duty from her list of job responsibilities.

The district maintains that it properly eliminated petitioner's position as principal at Camden and reduced her salary. According to the district, petitioner served in two positions, and once her position as principal at Camden was eliminated for reasons of economy and efficiency, "[i]t logically follows that she should no longer receive the $10,000.00 she was formerly compensated specifically for the TI position."

While petitioner's employment history appears unique, a review of the record supports the conclusion that she held two separate positions at the district. Those positions were listed separately by the district in the initial approval of the positions. Further, each position had its own job description and involved two separate schools within the district. The fact that the district's payroll system generated one paycheck for Stallone does not negate the underlying nature of the positions she occupied. The district's action did not just remove a duty from Stallone's roster of responsibilities, it eliminated an entire school and Stallone's second job with it. Further, petitioner's assertion that the language of the district agenda item listing Stallone's employment move as a "reassignment" changes the character of her positions is unavailing. While she was reassigned to another tenured principal position within the district for the 2009-10 school year, she also was named to a second position with a separate salary stipend.

A review of judicial and administrative case law supports the conclusion that respondent did not violate petitioner's tenure rights by reducing her salary after the elimination of the Camden position. In Ciamillo v. Bd. of Educ. of the Bor. of Ridgefield, EDU 1805-04, Initial Decision (July 15, 2005), adopted, Comm'r (August 31, 2005), affirmed, State Bd. (January 4, 2006) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>, the Commissioner addressed the propriety of a reduction in the salary of a tenured teaching staff member who simultaneously held two positions, one of which was eliminated upon a RIF. In that case, Ciamillo served for several years as a "Guidance Consociate Teacher" in addition to his position as a guidance counselor. As the Commissioner explained, "petitioner's annual salary notices from the 1996-1997 school year through the 2003-2004 school year showed petitioner's base salary as per petitioner's placement and step on the salary guide, and separately set forth the amount of remuneration petitioner was to receive for summer and for extra work as a Consociate Teacher."

Due to economic reasons, the duties of Guidance Consociate Teacher were incorporated into a vice principal position. As a result, the school board reduced petitioner's pay, and "[t]he reduction in pay from 2002-2003 to 2003-2004 represented primarily the absence of any stipend for consociate work." The school board did not subsequently appoint anyone else as Guidance Consociate Teacher and acknowledged that Ciamillo had tenure rights in that position.

In adopting the ALJ's decision, the Commissioner stated:

[t]his controversy arose in the context of a reduction in force (RIF). It is undisputed that the Guidance Consociate Teacher position was eliminated for economic reasons, and no one else was subsequently given the position. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-9 allows such a RIF. While N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12 entitles petitioner to be on a preferred eligibility list for reemployment if the position is restored, petitioner has no statutory right to retain the salary he had before the RIF.

Thus, the Commissioner clarified that a teaching staff member who simultaneously holds two separate tenured positions may be reduced in salary when one of those positions is eliminated as part of a RIF. Here, as in Ciamillo, petitioner was not reemployed in her position with at Camden after the RIF. Thus, petitioner "has no statutory right to retain the salary [she] had before the RIF." Petitioner may have been paid one salary, but it was clear from the resolution appointing petitioner to both positions that she received a set amount of salary for each position. In particular, the salary for her service as principal of the Camden was clearly set at $10,000 in the resolution authorizing her two positions. When that position was eliminated, she no longer had a right to that part of her total compensation. Since her salary as principal of Gloucester was not reduced, respondent did not violate petitioner's tenure rights.

The district did not reduce petitioner's salary in violation of her tenure rights as it did not have to pay that portion of petitioner's salary associated with the principal position at Camden once that position was eliminated.

ORDER

Petitioner's appeal of the action of respondent reducing her salary is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter.  PETITIONER, :
 V. : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
 BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE : DECISION
 TOWN OF KEARNY, HUDSON COUNTY, :
 RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – a district employee since 1979 – challenged the respondent’s decision not to appoint her to the position of Director of Student Personnel Services during a Board meeting in June 2008. Petitioner was employed by the district as a teacher of home economics at the high school level for nearly 20 years, and as a guidance counselor for more than 8 years. She was appointed to the position of Department Chairperson of Basic Skills in September 2007. Beginning in February 2008, petitioner applied on four occasions for the position of Director of Student Personnel Services; she was interviewed twice, but was not offered the job. Petitioner asserted that the Board’s action in denying her the position was arbitrary, capricious and in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1. Respondent Board moved to dismiss the appeal, contending that the Commissioner does not have the authority to appoint an individual whom the local board has already considered and decided not to appoint. The ALJ denied respondent’s motion to dismiss, and the matter proceeded to hearing.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: as in non-tenured employment renewal matters, the petitioner in this case bears the burden of proving that the Board’s action in failing to select her for the Student Personnel Services position was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable; the Board members who voted against petitioner’s appointment explained that their decision was largely based on the fact that petitioner had served in the position of Department Chairperson of Basic Skills for less than a year, and the break in continuity would not be in the best interest of the District; Board members also expressed concern about how much of petitioner’s experience was relevant to the Student Personnel position, as well as petitioner’s level of professionalism and self-control; and, in sum, the credible evidence supported the conclusion that each Board member made a rational and reasonable decision regarding the hiring of petitioner for the position in question. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that petitioner failed to meet her burden of showing that the Board’s hiring decision was arbitrary or capricious.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter for the reasons stated therein.

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE

TOWN OF KEARNY, HUDSON COUNTY,

Respondent.

Philip Feintuch, Esq., for petitioner (Feintuch, Porwich and Feintuch, attorneys)

Kenneth J. Lindenfelser, Esq., for respondent Board of Education of the Town of Kearny, Hudson County and co-counsel David Rubin, Esq., for respondent¹

Record Closed: July 10, 2012

Decided: September 10, 2012

BEFORE MUMTAZ BARI-BROWN, ALJ:

¹ On January 25, 2012, David Rubin, Esq. entered an appearance and notified OAL he has been appointed General Counsel to Kearny Board of Education, formerly held by Kenneth J. Lindenfelser, Esq.

Petitioner Barbara Correnti contends the action of Respondent, Board of Education of the Town of Kearny (Board), the position of Director of Student Personnel Services was arbitrary and capricious and violated N.J.S.A 18A:27-4.1.

On August 8, 2009, the Department of Education transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for determination as a contested case. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15; N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. Thereafter, the Board moved to dismiss the petition and contended the Commissioner did not have authority to appoint an individual, whom the local board had already considered and voted not to appoint. After review of the moving papers, I denied the Board's motion for summary decision and scheduled hearings. At the request of the parties the matter was adjourned several times for good cause. Hearings were held on January 10, 2011, February 8, 2012 and February 9, 2012. The parties submitted post hearing briefs and the record closed on July 10, 2012. Based on the administrative law judge's voluminous case load, an extension of time to complete the initial decision was granted. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10(c); N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.8.

FACTS

Based on the relevant evidence and stipulation of the parties, I FIND as FACT:

1. Petitioner, Barbara Correnti was employed in the Kearny School District in 1979.
2. From 1979 to 1997, Correnti was employed as a teacher of home economics.
3. From January to June 1998, Correnti was employed as a guidance counselor.
4. September 1998 to June 1999 Correnti resumed her duties as a teacher.
5. From September 1999 to August 2007, Correnti returned to the position of guidance counselor.
6. In September 2007, Correnti was appointed Department Chairperson of Basic Skills (Reading) and supervised State testing for HSPA, end of course biology test, assigned for two periods per day to in-school suspension to counsel students.

7. Testing at the high school level coincided with counseling duties and assessing the counseling progress including graduation requirements.
8. In June 2008, the position of Director of Student Personnel Services (DSPS) became vacant.
9. Correnti applied for the position of DSPS on four occasions; February, March, June and July 2008.
10. Correnti was interviewed by the interview committee on two dates.
11. The committees and the Superintendent recommended Correnti for the position of DSPS.
12. Correnti was the only person the Superintendent recommended for the position of DSPS.
13. Henry Russo, a board member for more than 16 years recommended Correnti for the position.
14. On June 16, 2008, the Board convened for a regular board meeting. The agenda listed four candidates, including Correnti to the position of DSPS.
15. Prior to the vote, the Board convened for a closed session.
16. The Board returned to open session and voted not to appoint Correnti for the position of Director, by a count of six "no" and three "yes".
17. On or about July 2, 2008, Correnti filed a verified petition with the Commissioner of Education and claimed the Board failed to disclose the reasons it did not act on the Superintendent's recommendation to appoint her to the position; therefore, the Board's action was arbitrary and capricious.
18. Petitioner requests the Commissioner order respondent to appoint her to the position of Director of Student Personnel Services.²

² The parties also stipulated to the following: The person who filled the position was interviewed in August and not recommended; thereafter the person was recommended in September. The position of Director was not posted for the interim position in September. D.C. was placed in the position as interim Director in September 2008. D.C. was appointed in January 2009. These facts were also considered during Respondent's motion to dismiss the petition because the Commission had no authority to veto the board's action to not appoint Correnti to the position of Director, currently held by D.C.

ISSUE

The issue is whether a school board's action to not appoint Correnti to the position of Director of Student Personnel Services constituted arbitrary and capricious conduct in violation of N.J.S.A 18A:27-4.1.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE

Background

The Board has employed Correnti for thirty years in positions of a home economics teacher at Kearny High School, a guidance counselor, and as the Department Chairperson of Basic Skills (Reading). She received satisfactory or better evaluations throughout her tenure. In 2008, Correnti applied for the position of Director of Student Personnel Services and interviewed for the position in June and August. (P-16, P-17.) The duties of the Director of Student Personnel Services included supervising the guidance counselors, students' academic records, curriculum planning, program studies, college information, IR&S team, and scheduling. The applicants for the position included petitioner and seven candidates from outside the District. The parties do not dispute that Correnti was fully qualified and met all the posted requirements for the position.

The interview committee consisted of the Superintendent, Assistant Superintendent, High School Principal, Director of Guidance, three Board members, and a teacher. At the Board meeting on June 16, 2008, Superintendent Mooney recommended petitioner's appointment as Director of Student Personnel Services. The appointment was defeated by a vote of 6-3.

In July 2008, the position of Director of Student Personnel Services was reposted. Correnti reapplied and was interviewed. The applicants for the position included petitioner, another internal candidate, and three or four candidates from outside the District. The position remained unfilled through September 2008, when the District placed an Interim Director of Student Personnel Services in the position. That individual was appointed as Director of Student Personnel Services in January 2009.

On July 8, 2008, Correnti filed a Verified Petition with the Commissioner of Education and requested the Board be compelled to appoint her to the position of Director of Student Personnel Services. Correnti claimed the Board's decision to not appoint her during the Board's meeting on June 16, 2008, was arbitrary and capricious in violation of N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1.

Testimony

Robert Mooney, the Superintendent of Schools at the time the position became available, recommended Correnti for the position. However, on June 16, 2008, the Board voted to not appoint Correnti. Mooney recalled some discussion by the Board on whether Correnti was "a good fit" for the position. Other Board members expressed concerns that she had only recently been appointed Department Chairperson of Basic Skills (Reading), but they did not consider that an obstacle. Mooney acknowledged others could reasonably disagree with his recommendation to appoint Correnti to the position. He also conceded there would be a lapse in continuity anytime positions change within a school. Further, he believed there was no "right" size for a candidate pool. "If you had one great candidate, that was enough, but if you had none, you kept looking." He also believed that two years would be a reasonable evaluation period to provide an accurate view of an individual's performance in a particular position.

Henry Russo, the former Director of Guidance, supervised petitioner in the counseling department. He also served on the interview committee that recommended petitioner for the position of Director of Student Personnel Services. Russo testified he was surprised Correnti was not appointed. The duties of the Department Chairperson of Basic Skills (Reading) required supervising all testing to ensure its organization and coordination, and assigning staff to oversee the testing. He agreed with Correnti's characterization of the Basic Skills position as “basically doing ministerial tasks regarding testing.”

John Campbell served as a member of the Board for twelve years. He was present at the Board meeting and voted in favor of Correnti's appointment. He could not recall a time the Superintendent recommended an individual for a position and the Board voted “no.” Also, during the first open meeting, he could not recall any discussion by Board members regarding Correnti. However, he agreed the Basic Skills Department could “suffer” if it lost a qualified individual.

Petitioner Barbara Correnti testified her “sole” job duty as Department Chairperson of Basic Skills (Reading) was “counting test booklets” for the New Jersey High School Proficiency Assessment. Due to her counseling background, however, she was also “assigned to the in-school suspension room two periods a day to counsel students.” When she applied for the position of Director of Student Personnel Services, she was in her first year as the Department Chairperson of Basic Skills (Reading). Her performance was evaluated and observed during a department meeting.

Under cross-examination, Correnti testified her duties also included: (1) evaluating six teachers in her department in accordance with the principal's guidelines and school policy, (2) consulting with the principal on testing materials, (3) securing, packaging and to distributing testing materials to the staff, (4) participating in interdisciplinary meetings, (5) over-seeing in-school suspensions, (6) collecting personal improvement plans from the staff in her department, (7) reading the improvement plans, (8) preparing newspaper releases of important activities taking place within the department, (9) evaluating lesson plans to ensure they followed curriculum guidelines, (10) assisting in the administration of the testing program, (11) assisting the coverage of absent teachers, and (12) coordinating the storage of department exams.

Respondent presented five of the Board members who voted against petitioner's appointment. On June 16, 2008, David Stevenson served on the Board and the interview committee. Stevenson voted against her appointment because he was concerned about Correnti getting the new position within one year from her appointment as Department Chairperson of Basic Skills (Reading). He believed her move to Director of Student Personnel Services would not be in the best interest of the District and would be detrimental to the District. (P-29.) Also, he was concerned that her interview focused on her significant experience at the high school without distinguishing between the time she spent performing duties relevant to the Student Personnel Services position.

Stevenson further testified he went into the interviews completely open-minded. Moreover, Superintendent Mooney's recommendation played a role in his thought process. However, he believed he had not always voted in favor of the Superintendent's recommendations. He clarified statements made in his certification regarding his concern about petitioner's "mental stability." "I don't like the way I wrote that...I put, 'Mental stability'; I think that's a little heavy." At the hearing he referred to her "emotional abilities." Correnti appeared to be "angry" and "unprofessional" when things did not go her way. Stevenson knew Correnti very well professionally, socially, and personally. However, he felt she had an attitude during the interview and behaved "emotionally aggressive." For example, Correnti did not act the way he would want an administrator to present herself and he was concerned about her ability to "control her emotions." Although he heard from her colleagues about her "flying off the handle" and explosive reactions, his concerns came from his own observations of her conduct at school.

Lisa Schalago was elected to the Board in 2006 and reelected in 2009. Schalago was a student at Kearny High School when Correnti was a teacher, but had no reference to any evaluations of petitioner in a supervisor role. She voted for petitioner's appointment to the Basic Skills position but against her appointment to the position of Director Student Personnel Services. Schalago further testified she considered the best interest of the District and voted no on the appointment because Correnti had just been appointed to the Basic Skills position the same school year.

Another factor she considered was the lack of Correnti's performance evaluation. At the Board's meeting on June 16, 2008, she asked Superintendent Mooney for evaluations of petitioner's performance as the Department Chairperson of Basic Skills (Reading). Mooney responded that no evaluation of petitioner was available. A few days later, Schalago again asked Mooney for petitioner's evaluation; he again indicated that he did not have any in the file. Due to ethics rules, Schalago could not contact or directly obtain the evaluations from the school principal. Schalago testified, however, that if she had positive evaluations on that date she would have changed her vote.

Bernadette McDonald served on the Board for twelve years. She voted for Correnti's appointment to the Basic Skills position, but against her appointment to the position of Student Personnel Services. McDonald further testified she voted against petitioner because she felt that there was not a viable pool of candidates. McDonald wanted to re-post the job and she hoped that Correnti would re-apply for the position. Also, McDonald was concerned that the interview committee did not unanimously support petitioner's appointment.

Virginia Santos served on the Board between 2004 and 2010. She voted for petitioner's appointment to the Basic Skills position, but against her appointment as Director of Student Personnel Services. Santos felt that the District needed stability in the Basic Skills position. Indeed, the Board had just appointed petitioner to Basic Skills eight months earlier. Santos hoped that petitioner would implement new strategies to improve test scores. Also, Santos was concerned that petitioner might be using the position temporarily until she found something closer to her expertise and interest. She further testified that the administration had assured the Board that Correnti would stay in the Basic Skills position long-term.

Rosemary Marks, a former teacher and assistant superintendent in another school district, served one term on the Board in 2006. She voted in favor of petitioner's appointment to the Basic Skills position. However, Marks voted against her appointment as Director of Student Personnel Services because petitioner had just started in the Basic Skills position and believed that position was of critical importance. Indeed, the Basic Skills position was important because the Chairperson supervised the people teaching students who were not meeting achievement objectives and students who needed to improve their skills. The result of moving Correnti from the Basic Skills position would be harmful to the students in the program and not in the District's best interest. Marks believed continuity is important. Although Marks believed petitioner was qualified for the Director position, she also believed petitioner was not in the Basic Skills position long enough to be "judged". Overall, Marks' main concern was consistency and continuity in the Basic Skills position. If the scores did not show improvement the State would impose "severe measures" and the District faced a possible reorganization of the entire school.

DISCUSSION

"A board of education shall appoint, transfer or remove a certificated or non-certificated officer or employee only upon the recommendation of the chief school administrator and by a recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership of the board. The board shall not withhold its approval for arbitrary and capricious reasons." N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(a). In Dore v. Board of Education of the Township of Bedminster, 185 N.J. Super. 447, 456 (App. Div. 1982), the Court stated, "Absent constitutional constraints or legislation affecting the tenure rights of teachers, local boards of education have an almost complete right to terminate the services of a [teaching staff member] who has no tenure and is regarded as undesirable by the local board." A board maintains the "right to reach its conclusion about a nontenured teacher on a broad base of input received from a variety of people, including members of the public, parents of students and a board member's own knowledge of a teacher even if that knowledge is acquired through having a child in the teacher's class." Id. at 454.

A non-tenured employee challenging his or her non-renewal has to "demonstrate that the Board's decision not to renew her contract was so far afield, so outside of the realm of rational, evidentially based decision-making as to fail to even stand as a reasonable determination." Kondratick v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Hamburg, EDU

11195-07, Initial Decision, (June 29, 2009), adopted, Cmm'r, (September 29, 2009) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>>.³

The burden of proof rests upon petitioner to show by competent and credible evidence that the Board's decision not to renew her contract was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable [and] [t]he burden of proof for "[s]uch an allegation requires substantial proof that the Board acted improperly and to the exclusion of all other bona fide reasons."

[Ibid. (quoting Bigart v. Paramus Bd. of Educ., 1979 S.L.D. 123, 133) (emphasis in original).]

Here, Correnti bears the burden of proof by a preponderance of the credible evidence. Atkinson v. Parsekian, 37 N.J. 143, 149 (1962); DYFS v. M.R., 314 N.J. Super. 390, 414 (App. Div. 1998); In re Allegations of Sexual Abuse at E. Park High Sch., 314 N.J. Super. 149, 168 (App. Div. 1998). This tribunal has the duty to decide in favor of the party on whose side the weight of the evidence preponderates, and according to a reasonable probability of truth. Jackson v. Del., Lackawanna and W. R.R., 111 N.J.L. 487, 490 (E. & A. 1933). Evidence is said to preponderate "if it establishes 'the reasonable probability of the fact.'" Jaeger v. Elizabethtown Consol. Gas Co., 124 N.J.L. 420, 423 (Sup. Ct. 1940) (citation omitted). The evidence must "be such as to lead a reasonably cautious mind to a given conclusion." Bornstein v. Metro. Bottling Co., 26 N.J. 263, 275 (1958). Thus, I have considered carefully the arguments of the parties and the relevant evidence.

Guidance is provided in Watson v. Bd. of Educ. of City of Asbury Park, Monmouth County, where a non-tenured teaching staff member challenged a local school board's decision not to renew her employment contract, and thus deny her tenure, as arbitrary and unreasonable. Watson v. Bd. of Educ. of City of Asbury Park,

Monmouth County, EDU 04990-03, Initial Decision (September 13, 2004), adopted, Comm'r (October 15, 2004), aff'd, State Bd. of Educ. (March 2, 2005) <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>. The ALJ acknowledged the burden of proof rested on the teaching staff member, but required the local school board to present evidence to explain the basis for its decision. Id. The ALJ concluded, "Given the vast discretion in the school board under the statute, this record of documented performance at less than satisfactory levels over a period of time would, without question, be more than sufficient to insulate the board against any claim that its decision not to renew [the teaching staff member's] contract was arbitrary and unreasonable." Id. at 15.

Similarly, in Martin v. Board of Education of the City of Asbury Park, to prove a local school board decision was arbitrary and unreasonable, the teaching staff member must "demonstrate that the board's decision not to renew her contract was so far afield, so outside the realm of rational, evidentially based decision-making as to fail to even stand as a reasonable determination." Martin v. Bd. of Educ. of City of Asbury Park, Monmouth County, EDU 6349-04, Initial Decision, (September 13, 2004), adopted, Comm'r (October 15, 2004), aff'd, State Bd. of Educ. (March 2, 2005) <<http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/new-jersey-administrative-decisions-0>> (citing Kopera v. West Orange Bd. of Educ., 60 N.J. Super. 288, 294 (App. Div. 1960)). The ALJ concluded the petitioner failed to satisfy the burden because the evidence revealed she "demonstrated difficulties in meeting the standards expected of a teacher" and in her interpersonal relationships with staff members. Ibid.

Here, although Petitioner challenges the Board's decision to not appoint her to a particular position, rather than a renewal decision, the above principles are applicable. Indeed, N.J.S.A. 18A:27-4.1(a) provides that a board of education shall not withhold its approval of appointments, transfers, or removals for arbitrary and capricious reasons. Petitioner argues that Stevenson, Santos, and Marks' decisions were arbitrary and capricious because continuity in the Department Chairperson of Basic Skills position was "not really an issue" since the position was "purely ministerial" and required minimal training. (Petitioner's Brief at 8-9, 12.) Petitioner further contends Stevenson's reasoning was arbitrary and capricious because Correnti worked in the Guidance Department for ten years. She taught high school home economics, not preschool, which involved high school students instructing preschool children. Moreover, Petitioner maintains she had never been questioned about her mental stability or undergone psychiatric or psychological treatment. (Id. at 8.) Petitioner further argues that Schalago's decision was arbitrary and capricious because Correnti had received at least four evaluations during her time in the Basic Skills position and "the Board chose not to rely on them and instead simply declare[d] that the [p]etitioner had not been in the position long enough to get a sense of her performance." (Id. at 11.) Petitioner characterizes McDonald's decision as arbitrary and capricious because the pool of applicants in June 2008 was larger than the pool of candidates subsequently considered in August 2008. Further, the interview committee was not unanimous because it contained Board Members voting arbitrarily and capriciously. (Id. at 10.) Finally, Petitioner argues that Santos' reasoning was arbitrary and capricious because Correnti never committed to the Basic Skills position and only signed a one year contract. (Id. at 9.)

I have also considered carefully the testimony of the witnesses and their demeanors. Board members David Stevenson, Virginia Santos, and Rosemary Marks each explained that their decision to vote against Petitioner's appointment to Director of Student Personnel Services was at least in part because Petitioner served in the Basic Skills position for less than a year and the break in continuity would not be in the best interest of the District. I also have weighed the evidence with Petitioner's assertion that the position was a "purely ministerial" position that required "very minimal training" and she only signed a one year contract. Although Russo, former Director of Guidance agreed with Petitioner's characterization of the Basic Skills position as ministerial, Petitioner's description of her duties appears disingenuous. Indeed, under cross-examination, Petitioner conceded that her duties were more encompassing than merely "counting test booklets." They included numerous duties such as evaluating six teachers in her department, in accordance with the principal's guidelines and school policy, and reviewing lesson plans to ensure they followed the curriculum guidelines.

Although Correnti signed a one year contract for the Basic Skills position, the Board's desire to have continuity in the position was logical, especially in light of the explanation provided by Marks. Marks explained her concern that petitioner had just started in the Basic Skills position and she believed that the position was of critical importance. Indeed, the department's teachers taught students who failed to meet achievement objectives, and the District needed immediate improvement to avoid state imposed penalties. Marks also believed that the change would be harmful to the Basic Skills program. She relied in part on educational research. Finally, Marks did not believe that Correnti was in the Basic Skills position long enough to be judged as a supervisor. Marks also explained that the District needed improvement by petitioner's second year in that position. If improvement did not occur by year three, the State might impose "severe measures" and if the school did not improve by year five, the District faced a possible reorganization of the entire school. Although Correnti only underwent one day of formal training for the Basic Skills position, she conceded that she learned something new in the position each day. Therefore, the desire for continuity in the Basic Skills position beyond one year was logical and reasonable.

Stevenson was also concerned that petitioner's interview focused on her significant experience at the high school without acknowledging that only a fraction of that time was spent in the guidance department. Stevenson candidly expressed his opinion and concern about Petitioner's emotional abilities and professionalism. His right to reach his conclusion about petitioner based on his own knowledge of her and input from a variety of people was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

Petitioner argues that Schalago's rationale was arbitrary and capricious because petitioner had received at least four evaluations during her time in the Basic Skills position and "the Board chose not to rely on them and instead simply declare[d] that the [p]etitioner had not been in the position long enough to get a sense of her performance."

Board member Lisa Schalago explained that she voted against petitioner's appointment as the Director of Student Personnel Services because petitioner had just been appointed to a supervisory position that same school year and the Board lacked any evaluations of petitioner in a supervisor role. Schalago also explained that although she knew petitioner as a teacher, she did not know of her as a supervisor.

Notably, the record reveals one evaluation from April 2008, dated six days prior to the Board's meeting on June 16, 2008.⁴ Schalago testified that she asked Superintendent Mooney for evaluations of Petitioner's performance as a supervisor during the meeting. Mooney indicated that he had no evaluation. Schalago then followed up with Mooney on another occasion asking for an evaluation of Petitioner as a supervisor. Mooney was again unable to provide any evaluations. Although dated June 10, 2008, nothing in the record indicates Superintendent Mooney or the Board possessed the evaluation during the Board's meeting on June 16, 2008. Furthermore, Superintendent Mooney, who recommended Petitioner for the Student Personnel Services position, agreed that two years would be a reasonable evaluation period to provide an accurate view of the performance of an individual in a particular position. At that point, Petitioner had served in the Basic Skills position as a supervisor for less than a full year. Finally, Schalago simply did not feel that Mooney had a good feeling for the quality of staff. Schalago's concern about the lack of an evaluation of petitioner's performance in a supervisor role was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

Board Member Bernadette McDonald voted against Petitioner's appointment to the Director position because there was not a viable pool of candidates. She would have preferred the position be re-posted and that Correnti re-apply. Further, McDonald believed it important that the interview committee did not unanimously support petitioner. I reject Petitioner's argument that McDonald's reasoning was irrational. Indeed, the candidate pool was larger during the initial posting than subsequent postings. Furthermore, Superintendent Mooney explained that if you had one great candidate, that was enough, but if you had none, you kept looking. On June 16, 2008,

⁴ The record reveals three copies of a an evaluation from April 2008, and an observation of one of petitioner's department meetings. (P-27, P-28.)

McDonald had no way to know that the number of applicants applying for the reposted position would be less than those during the initial posting. Simply put, she was not satisfied with any of the candidates in the initial pool and voted accordingly. McDonald's decision was not arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable.

The credible evidence supports the conclusion that the Board did not rubber stamp the recommendation of the Superintendent. Rather, each board member made a rationale and reasonable decision to not appoint petitioner to the position of Director of Student Personnel Services. Essentially, since petitioner had recently been appointed Chairperson of Basic Skills for less than one year, they believed to replace her would be harmful to the students in the program and not in the best interest of the Board of Education of Kearny.

CONCLUSIONS

Based on the whole of the credible evidence, I CONCLUDE the board members who voted against Barbara Correnti's appointment to the position of Director of Student Personal Services provided reasoned explanations for their decision.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE Petitioner has failed to meet her burden of showing that the Board's decision to not appoint her to the position of Director of Student Personal Services was arbitrary or capricious.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

SYNOPSIS

In 2003, the petitioner filed an appeal which asserted that the Board failed to pay full salary without loss of sick time for an injury sustained in the course of his employment. The matter was placed on the inactive list pending resolution of a related Worker's Compensation case. On April 24, 2012, petitioner was advised that the sick leave matter had been reactivated. A telephone conference was scheduled for July 23, 2012 for the purpose of discussing a settlement between the parties. Petitioner failed to make himself available for this conference, failed to reply to respondent's subsequent communication laying out settlement terms, and failed to respond to the ALJ's August 13, 2012 letter which directed him to advise whether he was accepting or rejecting the Board's settlement offer. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that petitioner had abandoned the case, and returned the matter to the Department of Education.

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings, and determined that the case must be dismissed for failure to prosecute. Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL was adopted and the matter was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that – because petitioner failed to make himself available for the ALJ’s scheduled July 23, 2012 telephone conference with the parties and additionally failed to respond, either in writing or orally, to the ALJ’s August 13, 2012 letter directing him to advise whether he was accepting or rejecting the Board’s settlement offer in this matter – this case is appropriately dismissed for failure to prosecute.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

Record Closed: September 10, 2012

Decided: September 12, 2012

BEFORE JESSE H. STRAUSS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner Stuart B. Weiss asserts that the Essex County Vocational School District Board of Education (District) has failed to pay full salary without loss of sick time for an injury sustained in the course of his employment (SLI claim).

After respondent filed a request for a hearing before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the Department of Education Bureau of Controversies and Disputes transmitted the matter to the OAL pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, where, on October 17, 2003, it was filed for hearing and determination as a contested case. The matter was placed and remained on the Inactive List for successive periods of time pending the resolution of a related Workers Compensation case. Upon notice from Weiss's Workers Compensation counsel that it had been resolved and that he did not represent Weiss on the SLI claim, I removed the SLI matter from the Inactive List.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND the following facts:

1. On April 24, 2012, I advised Weiss that the SLI matter had been reactivated and that the parties needed to move forward.
2. On May 17, 2012, Weiss advised that he intended to proceed with his claim and would represent himself.
3. I conducted a telephone conference on June 29, 2012, with Weiss and the District's counsel M. Murphy Durkin at which time Durkin represented that he would discuss with the Board of Education representatives a resolution of the SLI claim. I scheduled another telephone conference for July 23, 2012.
4. Although Durkin made himself available for the conference, Weiss did not.
5. Notwithstanding Weiss's non participation, Durkin communicated with him on August 10, 2012, advising him that the Board had agreed to settle the matter and invited Weiss to contact him.
6. On August 13, 2012, I communicated with Weiss acknowledging receipt of the settlement offer. I directed Weiss to notify me in writing within ten days if he were rejecting the settlement offer. I added, "if I do not hear from you, I will consider the matter to have been withdrawn for a failure to proceed." I also advised Weiss that if he rejected the settlement offer and so notified me, the matter would be set down for hearing.

7. Despite the passage of almost thirty rather than ten days, there has been no written or oral communication from Weiss.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Weiss has abandoned this matter and that it should be returned to the transmitting agency.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a) provides that, if, after appropriate notice, a party does not appear in any proceeding scheduled by a judge, the judge shall hold the matter for one day before taking any action. If the judge does not receive an explanation for the nonappearance within one day, the judge may direct the Clerk to return the matter to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition. As Weiss has taken no action to fulfill his obligations related to the completion of his appeal including an ordered response to my August 13, 2012, letter, I CONCLUDE that Weiss has abandoned this matter. Accordingly, the Clerk should return this matter to the Department of Education.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the Clerk return this matter to the Department of Education for appropriate disposition.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." SYNOPSIS

Petitioning parents challenged the Board's decision to move their children to a different school at the start of the 2012-2013 school year as a part of the Board's decision to redistrict students. Petitioners initially filed a motion for emergent relief, which was denied on July 31, 2012. A telephone status conference was conducted on August 13, 2012, at which time the petitioners advised that they did not want to proceed with this matter and would follow up with a letter of withdrawal.

The ALJ reported that – as of September 11, 2012 – no withdrawal letter had been received from the petitioners. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that the matter is no longer a contested case before the Office of Administrative Law and therefore ordered the matter dismissed.

Upon a full and independent review, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusion of the ALJ. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision in this case.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner challenges the City of Rahway Board of Education's (Board) decision to move their children from Roosevelt Elementary School to Cleveland Elementary School at the start of the 2012-2013 school year as part of the Board's decision to redistrict students. On June 25, 2012, petitioner filed a Motion for Emergent Relief allowing their children to remain at Roosevelt School. An Order was rendered by the undersigned on July 11, 2012, which is attached hereto for reference.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

I FIND the following to be the FACTS of this matter.

Starting on or about 1976 and continuing through 2005 the Board voluntarily bussed students from their neighborhoods to more distant schools to achieve racial diversity. In 2005 regulations no longer required the Board to maintain a certain balance of racial groups within a school. On July 26, 2005, the Board adopted a redistricting plan which sought to reach three objectives (1) determine school assignments based on address, rather than race, (2) to create attendance areas that are closer to each elementary school and to reduce bussing of elementary students.

The bussing of a number of students living in the Cleveland School neighborhood to Roosevelt School continued after July 26, 2005, because Cleveland School did not have space to accommodate the additional students. Petitioner's children were among the children in the Cleveland School neighborhood that were bussed to Roosevelt School.

On June 29, 2009, the Board approved a proposed thirty-four million capital project proposal. On September 29, 2009, a referendum was approved by the citizens of Rahway regarding the thirty-four million dollar capital project proposal. Cleveland School has been renovated to accommodate a greater number of students due to the capital project proposal. R.S. and R.L. attended Roosevelt School through the 2011-

2012 school year. R.L. and R.S. would be enrolled in Cleveland School for the 2012-2013 school year. The elimination of bussing would save the Board between $130,000 and $180,000.

The Board implemented a district wide program of sixth grade realignment. It determined that sixth grade students experience a decline in standardized test scores and an increase in disciplinary infractions when students are moved to a middle school where they are exposed to older peers, intensified expectations and greater responsibility. The sixth grade students in Rahway will attend their respective elementary school instead of going to middle school. Twenty-four fifth graders who were bussed to Roosevelt School but were transferred to Cleveland School will complete the sixth grade at Cleveland School.

The Rahway school district has 3890 students. Of those students forty-two percent are Black, thirty-four percent are Hispanic, nineteen percent are White and five percent are other including Asian, Native American and Multicultural. The Districts overall demographics show that the racial and ethnic makeup of each school is reasonably reflective of the diverse population living within the area.

During the 2011-2012 school year, Roosevelt School's racial composition was nineteen percent White, forty-seven percent Black, twenty-nine percent Hispanic and five percent other. It is anticipated that Roosevelt School's racial composition for the 2012-2013 school year will be approximately twenty-two percent White, thirty-eight percent Black, thirty-two percent Hispanic and 6.4 percent other. During the 2011-2012 school year, the Cleveland School student body was seven percent White, forty-eight percent Black, forty-one percent Hispanic and four percent other. It is anticipated that Cleveland School's racial composition for the 2012-2013 school year will be approximately seven percent White, fifty-five percent Black, thirty six percent Hispanic and four percent other. Madison Elementary School has the highest percent of White students, thirty-three percent. The majority of the students at Madison School are minority students. There is no elementary school in Rahway that has a racial composition that is more than thirty-three percent white.

Petitioner alleges that the redistricting plan violates N.J.A.C. 6A:7-1.7, provisions for equality in school and classroom practices. Petitioner has not provided documentation that the purpose of the redistricting plan was to segregate students based on race. Petitioner has provided no documentation that minority students are underrepresented in all classes or programs including gifted and talented, accelerated and advanced classes. Petitioner has provided no documentation to substantiate her claim that Rahway does not include a multicultural curriculum in its instructions and methods and that the students understand the basic tenant of multiculturalism. Petitioner has not provided documentation that African American history as well as the history of other cultures is not infused in the curriculum and taught as part of the history of the United States.

Petitioner submitted a letter from Roy Hirschfeld of Central Jersey Behavioral Health, LLC stating that the children were anxious about losing their peer relationships and changing to a new school. It was his impression that it would be detrimental to change their aschool environment.

LEGAL DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Petitioner did not meet the criteria of Crowe v. DeGioia for emergent relief. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) sets forth the standards governing motions for emergent relief. The regulation instructs in salient part:

A motion for a stay or emergent relief shall be accompanied by a letter memorandum or brief which shall address the following standards be met for granting such relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982):

1. The petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the requested relief is not granted;
2. The legal right underlying petitioner's claim is settled;
3. The petitioner has the likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and

4. When the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

Petitioner has the burden of establishing each of the above requirements in order to warrant relief in his favor.

It is well settled that relief should not be granted except "when necessary to prevent irreparable harm." Crowe, supra 90 N.J. at 132. In this regard, harm is generally considered irreparable if it cannot be adequately redressed by monetary damages. Id. at 132-33. In other words, it has been described as "'substantial injury to a material degree coupled with the inadequacy of money damages.'" Judice's Sunshine Pontiac, Inc. v. General Motors Corp., 418 F. Supp. 1212, 1218 (D.N.J. 1976) (citation omitted). See New Jersey Dep't of Environmental Protection v. Circle Carting, Inc., 2004 N.J. AGEN LEXIS 968 (April 2, 2004) (finding no irreparable harm in connection with the revocation of respondent's solid waste license in that financial loss is generally insufficient to demonstrate this requirement). The moving party bears the burden of proving irreparable harm. More than a risk of irreparable harm must be demonstrated. Continental Group, Inc. v. Amoco Chemicals Corp., 614 F. 2d 351, 359 (D.N.J. 1980). The requisite for injunctive relief requires a "clear showing of immediate irreparable injury," or a "presently existing actual threat; (an injunction) may not be used simply to eliminate a possibility of a remote future injury, or a future invasion of rights, be those rights protected by statute or by common law." Ibid. (citation omitted.)

Petitioner claims that her children will suffer irreparable harm because they will be going to a different school, Cleveland School, and that Cleveland School had a majority of minority students thereby subjecting her children to racial segregation. Petitioner has not shown that her children will suffer irreparable harm. Petitioner is requesting her children remain at Roosevelt School. Roosevelt School and Cleveland School both have a racial composition that has vastly more minority students than white students. In fact, all of the elementary schools in Rahway have more minority students than white students.

The letter petitioner submitted from Central Jersey Behavioral Health by Roy Hirschfeld stated that the children had anxiety about going to a new school and it was his IMPRESSION that it would be detrimental for them to change schools. He did not state that this was his opinion based on any degree of reasonable certainty. There is no clear showing of immediate irreparable harm.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to shoulder its burden of proving that her children will suffer irreparable harm.

Petitioner has not proved that there is a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim. The petitioner has not provided any documentation to support her claims. Actions of the Board or any administrative agency must be upheld unless it is deemed to be arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. See Shuster v. Bd. of Ed. of Montgomery Twp., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 670, 676, adopted Comm'r. 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 677. Petitioner has not provided any evidence that the decision to send students who live in the Cleveland School neighborhood to Cleveland School was arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. Petitioner's children were originally sent to Roosevelt School because there was not sufficient space at Cleveland School. Cleveland School can now accommodate the students in the Cleveland School neighborhood. In both Roosevelt and Cleveland schools the majority of the students are minority students. Petitioner cited Madison School in her petition. The majority of the students at Madison School are also minority students. In the Rahway school district, the vast majority of the students are Black and Hispanic.

The Board began district wide program of sixth grade realignment. The reason for the realignment was to combat the decline in standardized test scores and the increase in disciplinary infractions when sixth grade students enter the middle school. The realignment meant that the sixth grade would remain in the elementary schools. The realignment was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable.

I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to shoulder its burden of proving that it has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of his claims.

Based on the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has failed to meet the requirements set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) warranting a stay or emergent relief. Accordingly, I ORDER that petitioner's application for such relief be and hereby is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the Commissioner of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

DECISION ON

APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF

The record of this emergent matter – which included a digital recording of the hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on July 11, 2012 – along with the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that petitioners have failed to satisfy the requirements necessary for the granting of emergent relief as set forth in Crowe v DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982); most notably, petitioners have failed to demonstrate irreparable harm or the likelihood of prevailing on the merits of their claim.

Accordingly, the recommended order of the OAL denying petitioners' application is hereby adopted. This case shall proceed at the OAL for such further proceedings as may be required to bring it to conclusion.

IT IS SO ORDERED.*

SYNOPSIS

In August 2010, petitioner – a tenured teacher in respondent’s school district – appealed the decision of the respondent Board to terminate her employment through a reduction in force (RIF) in June 2010. Petitioner asserted that the Board terminated her employment in contravention of her tenure and seniority rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 et seq., and sought reinstatement and back pay retroactive to the date of her termination.

The ALJ found that: petitioner failed to appear for a hearing in this matter on July 30, 2012, despite having received appropriate notice; attorney for the petitioner appeared at the hearing and confirmed on record her ongoing inability to reach her client, but asked for additional time to contact her client. The ALJ extended the time for petitioner to respond until August 2012, but heard nothing further until a letter from counsel on September 13, 2012 advising that petitioner was still unresponsive to all attempts at communication. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that petitioner had abandoned this matter and ordered the case returned to the Department for appropriate disposition.

Upon careful and independent review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ’s findings and conclusions and, accordingly, adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. The petition was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner’s decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

Petitioner was a tenured teacher in respondent's district and one of hundreds of employees terminated by respondent in June 2010. She was also one of approximately eighty employees who appealed respondent's action as violative of the tenure laws in place at the time.

As explained in the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), due to the commonality of the issues in most of the above-referenced eighty petitions, they were managed together. Ultimately, a hearing was set for July 30, 2012 and each petitioner was so advised by a notice from the OAL – which notice warned that the petitioner's "APPEARANCE [WAS] MANDATORY. FAILURE TO APPEAR [WOULD] RESULT IN DISMISSAL OF [HER] PETITION." A copy of the notice sent directly to the instant petitioner is in the file for this case.

Notwithstanding the notice, petitioner did not appear at the July 30 hearing. Her counsel, who did appear, represented that she had attempted to contact petitioner to discuss the need for petitioner's appearance, but was unable to reach her.

As no explanation for her non-appearance was received from petitioner subsequent to the hearing, the Administrative Law Judge concluded that petitioner had abandoned her appeal and directed that the file be returned to the Department of Education pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a). The Commissioner similarly concludes that the appeal has been abandoned, and dismisses the petition for petitioner's failure to prosecute.

Record Closed: September 14, 2012

Decided: September 14, 2012

BEFORE ELLEN S. BASS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Anabel Gutierrez, a teacher formerly employed by the Board of Education of the City of Elizabeth (the Board), asserts that the Board terminated her employment in contravention of her tenure and seniority rights under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 et seq. She seeks reinstatement and back pay retroactive to the date of her termination.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND STATEMENT OF FACTS

Gutierrez filed her appeal with the Commissioner of Education (the Commissioner) on August 9, 2010. An answer was filed on behalf of the Board, and the contested case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), on September 23, 2010.

In or about June 2010, the Board terminated several-hundred employees pursuant to a reduction in force (RIF); more than eighty of these employees have pending petitions challenging their terminations as violative of the tenure laws. Discovery and settlement discussions relative to these cases have been the subject of bi-monthly status conferences between counsel and me. In the aftermath of the RIF, many of the petitioners were reinstated by the Board, or secured alternative employment. Counsel and I agreed that many claims might be ripe for withdrawal or settlement, and that by disposing of these claims we would be better able to efficiently focus upon the claims that presented factual or legal complexities. Counsel were directed to communicate with their clients and share with the Board a settlement proposal that fully outlined the back and pay benefits sought by each petitioner, or in the alternative, to promptly withdraw any claim that was no longer viable.

At several case management conferences counsel advised me of ongoing difficulties in securing the cooperation of some of the petitioners and of counsel's inability to obtain the information needed to make a settlement proposal to the Board, or to counsel a client that it was appropriate to withdraw his or her claim. Accordingly, in my order dated May 15, 2012, I directed counsel to supply me with a list of petitioners with whom they have been unable to communicate regarding the nature and extent of their claims. Gutierrez was among these petitioners, per correspondence from her attorney.

A notice of hearing was issued on June 5, 2012, requiring Gutierrez's appearance on July 30, 2012. Gutierrez was notified by the Clerk of the Office of Administrative Law, that her appearance was mandatory, and that a failure to appear would result in dismissal of her petition. The notice was sent both to her attorney and directly to Gutierrez at the address on record via regular mail. The OAL received no return of the notice as undeliverable. Gutierrez did not appear on July 30, 2012.

Gutierrez's attorney appeared at the hearing and confirmed on the record her ongoing inability to reach her client. But counsel asked that I afford her and her client a bit more time to connect, as despite the fact that a notice had been sent directly to Gutierrez, due to an oversight counsel had neglected herself to write to Gutierrez and stress the importance of her active participation in pursuing her claim. I afforded counsel until August 15, 2012, to update me further, but stated clearly, on the record, that if Gutierrez remained non-communicative I would dismiss her case.

Having heard nothing further I wrote to counsel on August 21, 2012, and September 11, 2012, seeking an update. Via letter dated September 13, 2012, counsel advised that "I have attempted on numerous occasions to contact Anabel Gutierrez, but I have received no response from her."

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that Gutierrez has abandoned this matter and that it should be returned to the transmitting agency.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a) provides that, if, after appropriate notice, a party does not appear in any proceeding scheduled by a judge, the judge shall hold the matter for one day before taking any action. If the judge does not receive an explanation for the nonappearance within one day, the judge may direct the Clerk to return the matter to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition. Gutierrez failed to appear at the scheduled proceeding, and she failed to provide an explanation one day following her nonappearance. Accordingly, the Clerk should return this matter to the Department of Education.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the Clerk return this matter to the Department of Education for appropriate disposition.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE :
 HEARING OF TAHGRYAH LOYAL, : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
 SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP : DECISION OF IRVINGTON, ESSEX COUNTY. :
 _____ :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning Board filed tenure charges of unbecoming conduct and other just cause against respondent, a tenured secretary, and sought to terminate her employment with the district. Neither respondent nor any attorney acting on her behalf filed an answer to the petition following notice pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4.

The Commissioner concluded that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.4(h), the allegations – which respondent has chosen not to deny – may be deemed admitted and are sufficient to warrant termination of the respondent from her tenured position. Accordingly, the Commissioner granted summary decision to the petitioner and dismissed the respondent from her tenured secretarial position in petitioner's school district.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
HEARING OF TAHGRYAH LOYAL,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP	:	DECISION
OF IRVINGTON, ESSEX COUNTY.	:
_____	:

For the School District of Irvington, Ronald C. Hunt, Esq.

No appearance by or on behalf of Tahgryah Loyal

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on September 25, 2012 through the certification of tenure charges of conduct unbecoming a public employee and other just cause by the School District of Irvington, Essex County, against Tahgryah Loyal – a tenured secretary. The District seeks Ms. Loyal’s dismissal from her position.

By notice dated September 25, 2012, the Commissioner directed respondent, via both certified and regular mail – the certified copy being returned to the Department as unclaimed but the regular mail copy being presumed delivered – to file an Answer to the tenure charges against her. This communication clearly provided notice to respondent that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4, an individual against whom tenure charges are certified “shall have 15 days from the day such charges are filed with the Commissioner to file a written response to the charges with the Commissioner,” and that failure to answer within the prescribed period would, absent granting of an extension for good cause shown, result in the charges being deemed admitted by the charged employee. Because no reply has been received from respondent – or any attorney on her behalf – in response to the District’s charges, such charges against respondent are deemed to be admitted.

The Commissioner has reviewed the tenure charges certified against respondent by the District and the statement of evidence in support of those charges, which specify that:

1. On June 22, 2011, Respondent received a written reprimand due to her deletion of critical school records related to the payroll records of other employees, which Respondent was responsible for maintaining.
2. On May 18, 2012, a written reprimand was issued to Respondent[‘s] personnel file for her failure to adhere to Board policy/procedure with respect to her job duties.
3. Respondent was absent from May 2, 2012 through June 22, 2012.
4. During this period of time, Respondent claimed an illness as the basis for her absences, but respondent never provided medical documentation substantiating her illness.
5. Respondent utilized sick days; however, Respondent never provided medical documentation and the last thirteen (13) days of the school year, Respondent was AWOL and deemed to have abandoned her position.
6. During this period of time, Respondent advised her supervisor that she wanted to be terminated from her position with Petitioner.
7. On June 17, 2012, Respondent filed a claim for unemployment benefits with the NJ Department of Labor and Workforce Unemployment Insurance Office in Newark, NJ.
8. In her filing, Respondent stated the purported reason for filing for these benefits was that Petitioner had discharged her from employment.
9. Respondent’s conduct reflects her intent to abandon her position with Petitioner.

10. Petitioner never determined to discharge Respondent from her employment prior to Respondent requesting her termination and abandoning her position under the guise of an illness.

11. Due to Respondent's repeated instances of conduct unbecoming and her unequivocal abandonment of her position, Respondent's conduct represents just cause to terminate Respondent by way of tenure charges.

Noting that respondent has failed to respond to the allegations against her, the Commissioner finds that the District has demonstrated that respondent is guilty of conduct unbecoming and other just cause warranting the District's requested penalty of respondent's termination from her position.

Accordingly, summary decision is hereby granted to the District, and respondent Tahgryah Loyal is hereby terminated from her position with the School District of Irvington, Essex County effective with the filing date of this decision.¹

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE	:
OF ADELE STAPLETON,	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF	:
JERSEY CITY, HUDSON COUNTY.	:	DECISION
_____	:

For Petitioner, R. Scott Eveland, Esq.

No appearance by or on behalf of Respondent, Adele Stapleton.

This matter was opened before the Commissioner of Education on September 21, 2012 by way of certified tenure charges against respondent, a teacher in petitioner's district. Petitioner seeks respondent's removal for excessive absenteeism and incapacity.

By notice dated September 21, 2012, the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes (the Bureau) directed respondent to file an answer to the petition. The notice was sent to 31 Park Street, Jersey City, NJ – purportedly the last known address for respondent – via certified and regular mail. The certified mail receipt was signed and returned to the Bureau and the notice which was sent by regular mail was not. A copy of the notice was also sent to Philip Feintuch, Esq., who had represented respondent before the petitioning Board of Education.

The communication from the Bureau clearly provided respondent and her counsel with notice that, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.3 and 6A:3-5.4, an individual against whom tenure charges are filed shall have 15 days from receipt of the petition to file an answer. The Bureau has received neither an answer to the certified charges from the respondent nor from any attorney purporting to represent respondent.

The Commissioner concludes that the allegations – which respondent has chosen not to deny – may be deemed admitted, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.4(h), and are sufficient to warrant removal of respondent from her tenured position as a teacher.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that summary decision shall be granted to the petitioner, and that respondent is dismissed from her tenured position in the district's employ as of the filing date of the within decision.¹ Further, this decision will be transmitted to the State Board of Examiners for its review and for any action that it may deem appropriate.

Record Closed: September 13, 2012

Decided: September 13, 2012

BEFORE LISA JAMES-BEAVERS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Carin Haabak alleged that the non-renewal of her employment was a violation of her tenure and seniority rights. The parties agreed to a settlement of all issues in dispute and prepared a Stipulation of Settlement and Order of Dismissal, which I have attached and fully incorporated herein.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On October 25, 2010, petitioner filed a verified petition against the respondent West Deptford Township Board of Education with the Department of Education Bureau of Controversies and Disputes alleging violation under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Respondent filed an answer on November 29, 2010 denying any violation of the school laws and requesting dismissal of the complaint. The Bureau transmitted the case to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where it was filed on December 7, 2010 for determination as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

A hearing was scheduled for and held on July 8, 2011. On that date, the parties were able to come to an agreement, which they placed on the record. On July 16, 2012, I received a Stipulation of Settlement signed only by Alan Schmoll, Esq. Counsel was informed that both parties had to sign the Stipulation of Settlement. The record closed upon my receipt of a Stipulation of Settlement and Order of Dismissal signed by counsel to both parties on September 13, 2012.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I have reviewed the record and the terms of settlement and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.
2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and therefore

ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND RELEASE

This Settlement Agreement ("Agreement") is entered into by and between the Moorestown Township Board of Education ("Respondent" or "Board"), represented by the Comegno Law Group, P.C., Kimberly A. Sukinik, Esquire appearing, and DaWayne Montgomery, on behalf of his son, D.M., ("Petitioner"), represented by Gerstein, Grayson & Cohen, LLP, Peter M. Halden, Esquire appearing. Respondent and the Petitioner are collectively referred to as the "Parties."

WHEREAS, D.M. has been attending school in the Moorestown Township School District ("District") since September, 2010;

WHEREAS, in the Spring, 2011, a dispute arose as to D.M.'s eligibility to attend school in the District pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1 et seq. and N.J.A.C. 6A:22 et seq., which is the basis of the above-captioned matter;

WHEREAS, following good faith negotiations, the Parties wish to amicably resolve their dispute and to settle claims relating to or regarding D.M.'s eligibility to attend school in the District during the 2010-2011 school year;

WHEREAS, the Parties enter into this Settlement Agreement to outline the Parties' agreement and to release claims and counterclaims filed in the above-captioned matter regarding D.M.'s eligibility to attend school in the District during the 2010-2011 school year, without alleging or admitting deficiencies in their positions.

THE PARTIES HEREBY AGREE THAT:

1. Petitioner agrees, in resolution of the Board's Counterclaim, to pay to the Board the amount of $6,000.00, which represents reimbursement for a portion of the tuition and fees for D.M.'s attendance and enrollment at Moorestown High School during the 2010-2011 school year. Petitioner shall make monthly payments of $500, payable on the 1st of each month beginning ~~April~~ ^{July}, 2012. The total amount of such monthly payments shall be $6,000.00. All equal monthly payments made under this Agreement to satisfy the agreed upon payment amount of $6,000.00 shall be made by ~~March~~ ^{June} 1, 2013. DM

2. All payments pursuant to paragraph one (1) above shall be made payable to "Moorestown Township Board of Education" and sent to following address:

DM ^{ms.}
~~Mr.~~ Lynn Shugars, Business Administrator
803 N. Stanwick Avenue
Moorestown, New Jersey 08057

3. In the event Petitioner fails to make any one of the monthly payments within thirty (30) days of the first of the month such a payment is due, the Board may reduce $ 10,449 (which represents the full tuition amount owed for the 2010-2011 school year from September to April 14, 2011) less any payments made by Petition at the time of default, to a judgment against Petitioner with a Court of appropriate jurisdiction. The Board shall be entitled to reasonable counsel fees in connection with a successful application to reduce this amount to a judgment following a failure to make the monthly payment within thirty (30) days of the first of the month such a payment is due.

4. For the remainder of the 2011-2012 school year, D.M. shall continue to primarily reside at 475 North Church Street, Moorestown, New Jersey and shall continue attending Moorestown High School. The Board agrees that it will not seek to remove D.M. from the Board schools pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. et. seq. or otherwise declare D.M. a non-resident as long as he resides at 475 North Church Street, Moorestown, New Jersey.

5. Petitioner hereby dismisses, with prejudice, the claims in the above-captioned matter. The Board hereby dismisses its Counterclaim, with prejudice.

6. Petitioner, upon the execution of this Agreement, fully and completely release the Board from any and all claims they have or may have, of any kind whether contractual, common law or statutory, including but not limited to all claims for injunctive relief, for alleged discrimination in violation of Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, 29 U.S.C. § 794(a), §705(8), as well as recovery for damages, costs and attorneys fees under the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act, 20 U.S.C. §1232g, et seq., 29 U.S.C. §794(a), 42 U.S.C. §1983, 42 U.S.C. §1988, 29 U.S.C. §705(20), the Individuals with Disabilities In Education Act ("IDEA"), 20 U.S.C. §1400, et seq., the Americans with Disabilities Act, 42 U.S.C. §12132, et seq., the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, 20 U.S.C. §7801, Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act, 42 U.S.C. §12132, et seq., N.J.A.C. 6A:14-1.1, et seq., N.J.A.C. 6A:14-3.7, Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C. §2000, et seq., the Americans with Disabilities Act, 42 U.S.C. §621, et seq., all as amended, any statutes of New Jersey including but not limited to the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, N.J.S.A. 10:5-1, et seq., or any other claims which have been or could have been asserted by D.M., his Parents, or on the behalf of D.M. in any forum arising out of or connected with D.M.'s education by the Board, and from all liability whatsoever, whether known or unknown, or to the extent permitted by applicable law through the date this Agreement is executed. Nothing in this Agreement shall preclude Petitioner and D.M. from asserting any claims against the Board that may arise in the future, after the date of this Agreement.

7. This Agreement is dispositive of all issues in dispute between the Parties hereto, and is intended to constitute a final resolution of the dispute between the Parties. Each party shall be responsible for their own fees and costs, including physicians' and attorneys' fees and costs, incurred in connection with this dispute, to the extent applicable. The Parties acknowledge that they are satisfied with the representation provided. The Parties fully understand and voluntarily accept the terms of this Agreement and Release. The Parties enter into this Agreement knowingly, without coercion or other improper influence, pressure, or duress.

10. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement of the Parties with respect to the subject matter hereof, and supersedes all prior written or oral, as well as all contemporaneous oral agreements, understandings, and negotiations;

11. This Agreement shall be interpreted, enforced, and governed under the laws of the State of New Jersey. The language of all parts of this Agreement shall in all cases be construed as a whole, according to its fair meaning, and not strictly for or against any of the Parties.

12. This Agreement is subject to the approval of the Board.

13. This Agreement may only be amended by way of a writing signed by all Parties and counsel.

14. The Parties acknowledge that they have had the opportunity to review the terms of this Agreement with counsel and are satisfied with the representation provided. The Parties enter into this Agreement knowingly, without coercion or other improper influence.

15. The terms of this Agreement shall remain confidential and the terms of same shall not be disclosed to anyone other than Petitioner's attorney, or tax accountant, or by the Board unless disclosure is required or permitted by law.

Record Closed: September 17, 2012

Decided: September 18, 2012

BEFORE GAIL M. COOKSON, ALJ:

These matters arose as appeals by West Essex Regional School District Board of Education and the Boro of Roseland Board of Education from a determination of the Essex County Superintendent of Schools entered on or about October 18, 2011, that the M. family was homeless pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3. As a result of that determination, the three minor children in the M. family, notwithstanding that they were then attending schools in West Orange, were the financial responsibility of West Essex and Roseland, the last districts in which they had established residency.

The matters were transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on or about January 5, 2012, for consolidation and hearing. I scheduled several telephonic conference calls with the parties in order to discuss and manage several complex discovery, witness and proof issues. On May 21, 2012, the consolidated matters proceeded with plenary hearings. At the conclusion of the hearing, counsel requested time to conduct some further settlement discussions. Accordingly, I agreed to adjourn temporarily any remaining hearing dates on my calendar.

On September 17, 2012, counsel for the West Essex Regional School District Board of Education forwarded a fully executed Settlement Agreement and Release between the parties and requested that if approved, I incorporate same into an order. The settlement represents the agreement of the three school districts as to the allocation of financial responsibility for the M. family for the one year of alleged homelessness, May 3, 2011, through May 3, 2012. No other interested party is impacted by the agreement and no child will be transferred from their present school as a result of this agreement.

I have reviewed the record and the terms of Settlement Agreement and Release and I FIND:

1. The parties have voluntarily agreed to the settlement as evidenced by their signatures or their representatives' signatures.
2. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy and is consistent with the law.

I CONCLUDE that this agreement meets the requirements of N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1 and that the settlement should be approved. I approve the settlement and, therefore, ORDER that the parties comply with the settlement terms and that these proceedings be concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

WHEREAS, on October 24, 2011, the Executive County Superintendent, Essex County (hereinafter referred to as the "ECS"), issued a decision finding that the M family was homeless under N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.3; and

WHEREAS, the ECS further concluded that, since Roseland was the last district in which the M children had permanent residence, the West Essex Board was responsible for the educational costs for K.M., a seventh (7th) grader, and the Roseland Board was responsible for the educational costs for M.M. and T.M.; and

WHEREAS, the West Essex Board challenged the ECS's decision by filing a Verified Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner of Education of the State of New Jersey (hereinafter referred to as the "Commissioner") on or about November 14, 2011; and

WHEREAS, the Roseland Board challenged the ECS's decision by filing a Petition of Appeal with the Commissioner on or about November 17, 2011; and

WHEREAS, on May 21, 2012, a hearing was held before Administrative Law Judge Gail Cookson, who consolidated these matters at the outset of the hearing under West Essex Regional School District Board of Education v. Township of West Orange Board of Education and Essex County Superintendent of Schools, bearing Docket No. EDU 00186-2012N; and

WHEREAS, the Parties reached an agreement on the first day of hearing and are desirous of resolving this matter without resorting to further litigation and bearing additional costs associated therewith; and

WHEREAS, the M family has resided continuously at the McKinley Avenue address since on or about May 3, 2011, and has not resided at any other address during that time period.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual promises and covenants set forth herein, the Parties agree as follows:

1. The West Orange Board agrees to be responsible for educational costs in the amount of Eighty-Nine Thousand Two Hundred Twenty-Four Dollars and Thirty Cents ($89,224.30), which represents fifty-five percent (55%) of the annual tuition costs to educate the three (3) M children from May 3, 2011 through May 3, 2012. The West Essex Board agrees to reimburse the West Orange Board for payment of educational costs in the amount of Twenty-Four Thousand Three Hundred Thirty-Three Dollars and Ninety Cents ($24,333.90), which represents forty-five percent (45%) of the annual tuition costs to educate K.M. from May 3, 2011 through May 3, 2012. The Roseland Board agrees to reimburse the West Orange Board for payment of educational costs in the amount of Forty-Eight Thousand Six Hundred Sixty-Seven Dollars and Eighty Cents ($48,667.80), which represents forty-five percent (45%) of the annual tuition costs to educate M.M. and T.M. from May 3, 2011 through May 3, 2012.

2. For each of the M children, the annual tuition costs for the period from May 3, 2011 through May 3, 2012 outlined in Paragraph 1 of this Agreement include, and are limited to, the per pupil cost, the cost of a one-to-one instructional aide, related services and the cost of Camp Hope tuition for June and July of 2011. It is expressly agreed that the payments by the West Essex Board and the Roseland Board as set forth in this Agreement represent their entire obligation, financial or otherwise, for the M children's educational program in the West Orange School District.

3. The West Essex Board and the Roseland Board shall forego application for any extraordinary aid so that the West Orange Board may file for any such aid to which it may be entitled.

4. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(d), the M family shall be deemed to be domiciled within the West Orange School District as of May 4, 2012, and the West Orange Board shall bear full responsibility for all educational costs for the M children from that date onward for as long as they continue to be domiciled within the West Orange School District.

5. The West Essex Board and the Roseland Board shall withdraw their respective petitions in this matter with prejudice.

6. Each of the Parties named herein hereby release each other, individually and collectively, the agents, servants and employees of each party, from any and all claims, causes of action, suits, actions at law and in equity, administrative proceedings and judicial and quasi-judicial proceedings of any kind whatsoever, which have been brought or could be brought, arising under or relating to the education of the M children through the date of this Agreement.

7. All Parties shall bear their own attorneys' fees and costs for the entirety of any matter or matters related to the subject matter of this Agreement.

8. The Parties recognize that they sign this Agreement as their own voluntary act and deed, and they fully understand the duties and obligations enumerated herein.

9. This Agreement may be signed in counterparts, which, taken together, shall constitute but a single document when executed by all parties. This Agreement shall not be effective until such time as it has been duly authorized and executed by all Parties.

10. This Agreement is subject to ratification by the West Essex Board, the Roseland Board and the West Orange Board and is without prejudice to any party if the terms are not agreed upon.

11. The Parties agree to submit this Agreement to an Administrative Law Judge for approval in full settlement of all issues pertaining to the educational costs for the M children. Nothing contained herein shall be interpreted as preventing the Parties from filing a lawsuit to enforce the terms of this Agreement. If approved, the Agreement shall be incorporated into a final Order by an Administrative Law Judge.

12. The terms of this Agreement represent the compromise of disputed claims between the Parties. This Agreement shall not constitute, be interpreted, construed, or used as evidence of any admission of fact, law, responsibility, or liability on the part of any party.

13. This Agreement shall be construed and enforced in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey.

14. The undersigned represent that they have the requisite authority to sign this Agreement on behalf of the respective party.

15. Should any part, term or provision of this Agreement be declared or determined by a Court of competent jurisdiction, applying New Jersey law, to be illegal, invalid or unenforceable, the legality, validity or enforceability of the remaining parts, terms or provisions shall not be affected thereby.

16. This Agreement constitutes the entire understanding of the Parties hereto and shall supersede any prior agreements between the Parties with respect to its subject matter. Further, there are no representations, warranties, covenants or undertakings other than those expressly set forth herein. The Parties acknowledge and agree that they are not relying upon any oral statements, representations, promises, or expectations which are not expressly and explicitly set forth in this Agreement, which alone fully and completely expresses all agreements between the Parties.

17. A modification or waiver of any of the provisions of this Agreement shall be effective and enforceable, only if made in writing and executed by all Parties with the same formality as this Agreement.

18. The terms and conditions set forth herein shall be deemed severable. If any clause or provision contained herein shall be held unenforceable by a court of competent jurisdiction, it shall not affect the validity of any other clause or provision, all of which shall continue in full force and effect.

19. The Parties recognize that each has been represented by legal counsel and that they sign this within Agreement as their own voluntary act and deed, and that they understand the duties and obligations enumerated herein. The Parties further state that they are fully satisfied with the legal representation provided by their respective counsel.

SYNOPSIS

In 2005, the petitioner filed an appeal which asserted that the Board failed to pay full salary without loss of sick time for an injury sustained in the course of her employment. The matter was placed on the inactive list pending resolution of a related Worker's Compensation case. On August 27, 2012, the ALJ communicated with petitioner's counsel and requested a status update.

On September 20, 2012, the ALJ's assistant was informed by an assistant in counsel's office that there would be no response to the August 27, 2012 letter. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that petitioner has abandoned this matter, and ordered that the matter be returned to the Department of Education.

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's finding, and determined that the case must be dismissed for failure to prosecute. Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL was adopted and the matter was dismissed.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that – as a consequence of petitioner’s failure to respond to numerous requests of the ALJ for an update on the status of this matter – it is appropriately dismissed for failure to prosecute.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

INITIAL DECISION

FAILURE TO APPEAR

OAL DKT. NO. EDU 12192-05

Agency No. 213-8/05

VIRGINIA WALLACE,

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF MOUNT OLIVE, MORRIS COUNTY,

Respondent.

Nancy I. Oxfeld, Esq., for Petitioner (Oxfeld Cohen, attorneys)

Mark H. Zitomer, Esq., for Respondent (Schenck Price Smith & King, attorneys)

Record Closed: September 24, 2012

Decided: September 24, 2012

BEFORE JESSE H. STRAUSS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner Virginia Wallace asserts that the Board of Education of the Township of Mount Olive (District) has failed to pay full salary without loss of sick time for an injury sustained in the course of her employment (SLI claim).

After petitioner filed a request for a hearing before the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the Department of Education Bureau of Controversies and Disputes transmitted the matter to the OAL pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, where, on November 7, 2005, it was filed for hearing and determination as a contested case. The matter was placed and remained on the Inactive List of the OAL for successive periods of time pending the resolution of a related Workers Compensation case. At the end of each period on the Inactive List, counsel for petitioner would respond to a request for an update on the status of the Workers Compensation matter advising that the Workers Compensation matter had not yet been resolved.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND the following facts:

1. On August 27, 2012, I communicated with petitioner's counsel and reminded her that this petition related all the way back to August 23, 2005. I requested an update on the status of the matter. I further advised, that, "if I receive no communication within ten days, I will consider this matter withdrawn for a failure to proceed."
2. I received no response within the ten days.
3. In addition to the August 27, 2012, letter, my assistant telephoned counsel's office and left voice mail messages on four occasions in September 2012, asking for a status on this matter. None were answered.
4. On September 20, 2012, an assistant in counsel's office advised my assistant that counsel did not intend to respond to the August 27 letter.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Based on the foregoing facts and the applicable law, I CONCLUDE that petitioner has abandoned this matter and that it should be returned to the transmitting agency.

N.J.A.C. 1:1-14.4(a) provides that, if, after appropriate notice, a party does not appear in any proceeding scheduled by a judge, the judge shall hold the matter for one day before taking any action. If the judge does not receive an explanation for the nonappearance within one day, the judge may direct the Clerk to return the matter to the transmitting agency for appropriate disposition. As Petitioner has taken no action to fulfill her obligations related to the completion of her appeal including an ordered response to my August 27, 2012, letter, I CONCLUDE that Petitioner has abandoned this matter. Accordingly, the Clerk should return this matter to the Department of Education.

ORDER

It is ORDERED that the Clerk return this matter to the Department of Education for appropriate disposition.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

Re: In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Jason Newby, School District of the Township of Hillside, Union County. Agency Dkt. No. 256-9/12.

Dear Counsel,

I have reviewed the materials filed in connection with respondent Jason Newby's Motion to Dismiss the tenure charges filed by the Board of Education. In his papers, the respondent argues that the Commissioner does not have jurisdiction over this matter because the respondent is a security guard and there are no educational statutes that provide tenure to security guards. On the other hand, the Board contends that the respondent acquired tenure with the Board contractually, and as such it must file tenure charges with the Commissioner before it can terminate the respondent.

Upon review and consideration of the submissions, I find that there is no statutory entitlement for security guards under the tenure laws, and as such, this dispute is not properly before the Commissioner of Education. It is well settled that the Commissioner's jurisdiction is limited to controversies and disputes that arise under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The dispute in this case involving the potential termination of the respondent's employment requires contract interpretation and an evaluation of the collective bargaining agreement, which does not fall under the Commissioner's jurisdiction. See, South Orange-Maplewood Ed. Ass'n. v. Board of Ed. of the School Dist. of South Orange and Maplewood, 146 N.J. Super 457 (App. Div. 1977); Newark Teachers Union v. Board. of Ed. of the City of Newark, New Jersey, 149 N.J. Super 367 (Ch. Div. 1977). Moreover, in the absence of a statute authorizing tenure for a group of employees, jurisdiction cannot be conferred upon the Commissioner through a claim of contractual tenure.¹

Accordingly, the Motion to Dismiss is hereby GRANTED, and the tenure charges are dismissed for lack of jurisdiction.²

² This decision may be appealed to the Appellate Division of the Superior Court pursuant to P.L. 2008, c. 36. (N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9.1).

Re: Kelly Altenburg v. Board of Education of the Township of Cherry Hill, Camden County.
Agency Dkt. No. 316-10/12.

Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the Petition of Appeal and Motion for Emergent Relief filed by petitioner, Kelly Altenburg. The petitioner is seeking an Order staying the tenure proceedings before the Board of Education (Board) pending a determination by the Commissioner of Education as to whether the Board is prohibited from considering a recording under the New Jersey Wiretapping and Electronic Surveillance Control Act, N.J.S.A. 2A:156A-3 at the October 29, 2012 board meeting.

Upon review and consideration of the submission, I find that this dispute is not properly before the Commissioner of Education. It is well settled that the Commissioner's jurisdiction is limited to controversies and disputes that arise under the school laws. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. The claim in this petition is limited to the Board's ability to consider a recording in the course of the tenure proceedings at the local level, as formal tenure charges have not yet been filed with the Commissioner.¹ Moreover, the claims advanced by the petitioner require an evaluation of the New Jersey Wiretapping and Electronic Surveillance Control Act, N.J.S.A. 2A:156A-3, which is beyond the scope of the Commissioner's jurisdiction and expertise. Jurisdiction cannot be conferred upon the Commissioner under these circumstances simply because the ultimate dispute between the parties involves a tenured teaching staff member.

¹ It should be noted that if the tenure charges are ultimately filed with the Commissioner of Education and it is determined that the charges are sufficient to warrant dismissal or the reduction of salary, the matter will be assigned – pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:6-16 – to an arbitrator who will evaluate the nature and extent of all of the evidence presented by the Board.

Accordingly, this matter is dismissed for lack of jurisdiction.²

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the respondent Board's failure to renew her teaching contract, alleging that she had acquired tenure as a special education teacher in respondent's school district. Petitioner was originally hired as a Teacher of Special Education by the Board in January 2008, and was rehired under the same title for the 2008-2009 and 2009-2010 school years; she was then re-employed under contract for the 2010-2011 school year as a long-term substitute teacher of special education, replacing an employee who was on a leave of absence. The Board contended that the petitioner's one-year service as a long-term substitute negated her ability to accrue tenure during the 2010-2011 school year. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there were no material facts in dispute, and the matter was ripe for summary decision; the question in this matter is whether, during the 2010-2011 school year, the petitioner filled a permanently vacant position or one that was temporarily vacated by a teacher who intended to return; it is well-settled in New Jersey that a clear legal distinction exists between an absence and a vacancy; the teacher that petitioner replaced during 2010-2011 was not fired, terminated, and did not resign, but filled a teaching position for a year in the district that was paid with a federal grant; petitioner was employed for that same year under a contract that advised that no tenure credit would accrue to her during the year; the facts in this case fit squarely within the principles of tenure law that create a distinction between a leave of absence and a vacancy; and petitioner failed to provide persuasive credible evidence to establish that a vacancy had occurred in the position she filled for the 2010-2011 school year. The ALJ concluded that petitioner was not entitled to tenure because she filled a leave of absence rather than a permanent vacancy; further, the respondent Board did not violate the petitioner's tenure rights when it failed to renew her teaching contract. Accordingly, the ALJ granted respondent's cross motion for summary decision, and dismissed the petition.

Upon a thorough and independent review of the record, the Commissioner concurred that summary decision is appropriately granted to the Board. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL was adopted as the final decision and the petition was dismissed.

_____	:

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by the petitioner, Stephanie Platia and the Board of Education's (Board) reply thereto.

The petitioner's exceptions substantially reiterate the substance of her submissions at the OAL, recasting the arguments therein to support the contention that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) erroneously found that the petition should be dismissed. The petitioner maintains that the ALJ wrongfully determined that she did not acquire tenure despite the fact that she was continuously employed by the Board as a special education teacher from January 2008 until June 30, 2011.

In her exceptions, the petitioner contends that the ALJ improperly found that the petitioner was a substitute for Michele Snyder during the 2010-2011 school year, arguing that the factual finding is not supported by the record. Further, the petitioner asserts that she was not filling a position, as a long-term substitute, to which the absent teacher intended to return because there was no evidence to suggest that the Board contemplated Ms. Snyder's return as a special education teacher for the 2011-2012 school year. Finally, the petitioner stresses that the language in her substitute contract for the 2010-2011 school year stating that “no tenure credit would issue to Platia during that year” is immaterial because tenure is statutory and not contractual.

In reply, the Board urges the adoption of the Initial Decision asserting that the ALJ properly determined that the petition should be dismissed. The Board maintains that the petitioner did not acquire tenure because during the 2010-2011 school year she was employed as a long-term substitute for Ms. Snyder who was on a leave of absence; and as a result the petitioner did not obtain tenure credit for the 2010-2011 school year. The Board stresses the fact that Ms. Snyder’s temporary assignment as an intervention teacher paid through federal grant sources resulted in a leave of absence, and she fully intended to return to her tenured position. Finally, the Board argues that the petitioner’s substitute contract is material because it clearly indicates that the petitioner was filling a position that was temporarily unfilled due to another staff member being on leave, and that she would not accrue tenure rights during the 2010-2011 school year.

Upon a comprehensive review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner is in accord with the ALJ’s determination – for the reasons stated in the Initial Decision – that the petitioner has not acquired tenure with the Board. The crux of the dispute in this matter is whether the petitioner was entitled to tenure credit during the 2010-2011 school year.¹ The Commissioner finds petitioner’s exceptions unpersuasive, largely reflecting arguments and objections previously raised before the ALJ and clearly taken into account by her in concluding that the petitioner did not accrue tenure credit during the 2010-2011 school year because she filled a position resulting from a leave of absence, not a permanent vacancy. Moreover, under

N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1, a board of education is fully authorized to designate a person to act in the place of an employee during a leave of absence, but “no person so acting shall acquire tenure in the office or employment in which he acts ...”. Therefore, because the petitioner did not obtain tenure credit during the 2010-2011 school year, she did not complete the requisite years of credit to acquire tenure with the Board pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5. Accordingly, the Initial Decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter and the petition is hereby dismissed.

IT IS SO ORDERED.²

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner appeals the Hamilton Township Board of Education's failure to renew her teaching contract, which she alleges is a violation of her tenure. Respondent alleges that the petitioner's one-year service as a long-term substitute teacher negated her ability to accrue tenure, which required three years of tenure-eligible service.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) where it was filed as a contested case on August 19, 2011. N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to 13. Petitioner filed a motion for summary decision on January 20, 2012, and a response was filed on February 10, 2012. Oral argument was conducted on March 7, 2012, and the record closed on April 27, 2012, after the submission of supplemental post-argument briefs.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The underlying relevant facts are undisputed and are FOUND as FACT:

1. Petitioner was hired by the Hamilton Township Board of Education (the Board) as a special education Teacher on January 28, 2008, for the school years 2008-2009 and 2009-2010.
2. Petitioner was employed by the Board through a contract as a long-term substitute teacher for special education for the 2010-2011 school year.
3. Petitioner's 2010-2011 contract stated, "You are replacing an employee who is on a leave of absence and who may be returning to his/her position at the expiration of this contract. This position is non-tenurial and carries no seniority eligibility. You will be assigned to the Substitute Teacher List if no position is available at the expiration of this contract."
4. During the 2010-2011, petitioner was a substitute for Michele Snyder, who was assigned to a Special Education Grant Funded position working out of the Kuser and Lalor Schools.
5. When the grant expired, Snyder claimed her tenure and seniority rights to her former position for the 2011-2012 school year, resulting in the termination of the petitioner's long-term substitute position.
6. On April 28, 2011, petitioner was notified by the Board that she would not be rehired for the following year.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

The material facts involving this motion are not in dispute. Therefore, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:12.5(b) and Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1995), I FIND that there are no genuine issues of material fact and that this matter is ripe for decision.

New Jersey's tenure laws establish a "competent and efficient school system by affording teaching staff members 'a measure of security in the ranks they hold after years of service.'" Carpenito v. Rumson Bd. of Educ., 322 N.J. Super. 522, 528-29 (App. Div. 1999) (quoting Viemeister v. Prospect Park Bd. of Educ., 5 N.J. Super. 215, 218 (App.Div.1949)). Under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, a "teaching staff member" acquires tenure by completing:

- (a) Three consecutive calendar years, or any shorter period which may be fixed by the employing board for such purpose; or
- (b) Three consecutive academic years, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or
- (c) The equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years.

A "teaching staff member" is defined as:

professional staff of any district or regional board of education, or any board of education of a county vocational school, holding office, position or employment of such character that the qualifications, for such office, position or employment, require him to hold a valid and effective standard, provisional or emergency certificate, appropriate to his office, position or employment, issued by the state board of examiners and includes a school nurse.

[Spiewak v. Bd. of Educ. of Rutherford, 90 N.J. 63, 73-74 (1982) (quoting N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1).]

All teaching staff members with the requisite number of years, "are eligible for tenure unless they come within the explicit exceptions in N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5 or related statutes such as N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1." Spiewak, supra, 90 N.J. at 81. Pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1, the District may designate persons to act in place of an employee during an absence, but "no person so acting shall acquire tenure in the office or employment in which he acts"

The resolution of this motion involves the determination as to whether, during the 2010-2011 school year, the petitioner filled a permanently vacant position or one that was temporarily vacated by a teacher who intended to return. The petitioner contends that tenure rights accrued during the 2010-2011 school year because she served as a long-term substitute for a teacher who was still employed by the district and therefore could not have been on a leave of absence. The respondent contends that while the absent teacher was still employed in a position within the District, she was temporarily filling a different position which was paid through federal grant sources and intended to return to her original position.

New Jersey authority is well-settled that a clear legal distinction exists between an absence and a vacancy. In Lammers v. Board of Education of the Borough of Point Pleasant, 134 N.J. 264 (1993), the New Jersey Supreme Court articulated that "an absence exists when a missing teacher is scheduled ultimately to return to the position," while a "vacancy exists when the teacher leaves the position permanently." Id. at 268. In Lammers, the Court specifically affirmed the Appellate Division's rationale articulated in the case of Sayreville Education Association v. Board of Education of the Borough of Sayreville, 193 N.J. Super. 424 (1984), where the Appellate Division drew a distinction between a vacancy and an absence, holding that the Borough's board of education could not use a long-term substitute to fill a vacancy. In interpreting N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1, the Appellate Division stated in relevant part:

We construe the authorization of this provision as applying when the services of a substitute teacher are required because of the temporary absence, even if protracted, of a regular teacher whose return to duty is contemplated. We do not construe it as authorizing the use of a substitute to fill a vacant position on a long-term basis.

[Sayreville Educ. Assoc., supra, 193 N.J. Super. at 428.]

Further, the Appellate Division opined that “when a substitute appointment is made because of a temporary absence, a board of education would have to incur the expense of providing duplicate benefits.” Id. at 430.

Moreover, courts have not precluded teachers from serving in other roles within the District during a leave of absence and such service does not necessarily deem the teacher’s original position as vacated. See Dugan v. Stockton State College, 245 N.J. Super. 567, 573 (App. Div. 1991) (holding that a non-academic title during a portion of the petitioner’s teaching career did not preclude tenure during that same period of time); Giacomazzi v. Bd. of Educ. of the S. Orange-Maplewood Sch. Dist., EDU 9699-06, Final Decision (June 16, 2008) at *6, <http://lawlibrary.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/search.html> (holding that petitioner did not meet her burden to show a vacancy had occurred and that the teacher taught a different set of classes upon returning from a military leave was a red herring).

Based on the undisputed material facts, I CONCLUDE that petitioner was not entitled to tenure because she filled a leave of absence, not a permanent vacancy. The teacher that Platia replaced, Snyder, was not fired and did not resign. The fact that Snyder filled a teaching position for a year within the District that was paid with a federal grant is of no consequence other than to establish that she had not permanently vacated her teaching position with the District. It is undisputed that Snyder was given tenure credit for her teaching role during that year and that Platia’s contract advised that no tenure credit would issue to Platia during that year. The instant facts fit squarely within well-settled principles of tenure law that create a clear distinction between a leave of absence and a vacancy. Ms. Platia failed to provide persuasive credible evidence to establish that a vacancy had occurred in the position.

DECISION AND ORDER

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner did not accrue tenure during the year that she served as a long-term substitute because she filled a leave of absence. I further CONCLUDE that the respondent did not violate the petitioner's tenure rights in failing to renew her teaching contract upon Snyder's return.

The respondent's cross-motion for Summary Judgment is GRANTED. Therefore, I ORDER that the petitioner's appeal is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. SYNOPSIS

Petitioners, Garden State School Bus Contractors Association and Margaret Pribyl, a resident and taxpayer of Millstone Township, sought to compel the respondent Board to immediately call for the forfeiture of a bid bond posted by respondent IC School Bus, Inc., in the course of submitting a bid to the Board for bus transportation services for the 2011-2012 school year. Additionally, petitioners sought to compel The Hanover Insurance Company (Hanover) to immediately pay over to the Board the bid bond posted by IC School Bus. Petitioners contended that the actions of respondents in connection with the award of a transportation services contract were violative of the bid specifications and applicable statutes and regulations. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no genuine issues of material fact in this case, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-22, legally acceptable bids cannot materially deviate from the specifications set forth by the contracting agency; IC School Bus's bid was non-responsive to the bid specifications because it failed to provide evidence of its ability to obtain the required insurance, which was a material condition of the bid; IC School Bus failed to comply in that the insurance certificate referenced in its bid named another entity – IC Coachways, Inc. DBA Island Charter, and IC Bus, Inc., located at 380 Chelsea Road, Staten Island, NY – rather than IC School Bus of Tennent, NJ; testimony from the company's principal indicated that IC School Bus is a separate company from those identified on the insurance certificate submitted with the bid; a bidder with less or no insurance costs could afford to submit a lower bid than its competitors, giving it an unfair advantage; evidence of insurability was an essential element of the bid, unlike catch-all items included in the "Additional Requirements" section; pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:39-4 and N.J.A.C. 6A:27-9.4(e)(2), bid bonds such as the one submitted by IC School Bus through Hanover Insurance are subject to forfeiture upon refusal of the successful bidder to execute a contract; IC School Bus's bid was never accepted because it was materially deficient; IC School Bus was not the lowest responsible bidder, and the Board rejected the bid. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that there was no basis to warrant the forfeiture of the bid bond, which was posted to guarantee that a contract would be executed if the bid was accepted, and granted respondent's cross motion for summary judgment as a matter of law.

Upon full review and consideration, the Commissioner concurred with the findings and conclusions of the ALJ and adopted the Initial Decision as the final decision in this matter.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. Petitioners' exceptions and replies thereto from the Board and the Hanover Insurance Company – submitted in accordance with the provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 – were fully considered by the Commissioner in making his determination herein.

Petitioners here – Garden State Bus Contractors Association and Margaret Pribyl, a resident and taxpayer of Millstone Township – seek to require the Board to compel forfeiture of the bid bond submitted on behalf of IC Bus by the Hanover Insurance Company in connection with IC Bus's bid for transportation services, claiming that the actions of the Board and IC Bus with respect to the awarding of the transportation services contract were violative of the bid specifications, statutes and regulations.

Petitioners' exceptions essentially replicate the arguments set forth in their Brief in Support of their Motion for Summary Decision advanced before the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) below. In that it is determined that the ALJ fully considered and addressed each of these proffered arguments in his Initial Decision, they will not be revisited here.

Upon an extensive review and due consideration, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons comprehensively presented on pages 12-17 of his decision – that because the submitted bid of IC School Bus failed to comply with a material condition of the bid specifications by not providing evidence of its ability to obtain the required insurance coverage, it was rightly determined to be a non-responsive bid by the Board and, therefore, ineligible to be awarded any of the bus routes at issue therein. As such, there is no basis to warrant the forfeiture of the bid bond posted by the Hanover Insurance Company. Therefore, the Commissioner agrees with the ALJ that petitioners’ motion for summary decision must be denied and respondents’ cross-motions for summary decision are appropriately granted.

In so determining, the Commissioner initially notes that the Bid Specifications for Student Transportation Services – Combination Bid for Millstone Township and Upper Freehold Regional School District, Bid Number 12005, (Exhibit P-4) at P. 10 specifically state:

THE FOLLOWING DOCUMENTS MUST [BE] SUBMITTED IN ORDER FOR YOUR BID TO BE CONSIDERED:

Bidder’s Guarantee

Business Registration Certificate

Evidence of the Bidder’s Ability to Obtain the Required Insurance Coverage

(emphasis supplied)

Omnibus Transportation Employee Testing Act Compliance Assurance

Prescribed Questionnaire

Consent of Surety

Stockholder’s Disclosure Statement

Affirmative Action Documentation or Questionnaire

Non-Collusion Affidavit

Bid Sheet

(Emphasis added)

As correctly found by the ALJ:

[t]here is no doubt that [evidence of a bidder's ability to obtain insurance coverage] was a material condition of the bid. N.J.A.C. 6A:27-9.3(e)(8) specifically provides that the Board shall direct "bidders to submit... proof of the ability to obtain automobile liability insurance coverage required by the specifications." The materiality of the insurance information is further evident by the inclusion of its details in a separate and distinct section of the Bid Specification. Additionally, the Bid Specification includes "Evidence of the Bidder's Ability to Obtain the Required Insurance Coverage" among a list of items under a separate heading that emphasized in bold and capital letters that such a document "must be submitted in order for your bid to be considered." This emphasis is contrasted by the catch-all "Additional Requirements" section, which has no such mandatory language and which included: "comprehensive safety plan; total accidents over $1.00 for 2010; total employee injuries in 2010; any traffic violations received in 2010; and copies of inspection reports on all out of service vehicles from your last inspection with NJ Motor Vehicle Commission." The items on the catch-all list were non-material and would not cause a bidder to be disqualified for failure to submit them with the bid. (Initial Decision at 14)

The Commissioner similarly concurs with the ALJ that IC School Bus's bid failed to comply with this material bid condition "...in that the insurance certificate referenced in its bid named another entity, namely, IC Coachways, Inc. DBA Island Charter and IC Bus, Inc. located at 380 Chelsea Road, Staten Island, NY rather than IC School Bus[,] Inc. of Tennent[,] N.J. [The principal owner and CEO of IC School Bus, Fred] DiGiovanni testified that IC School Bus[,] Inc. is a separate company from those identified on the insurance certificate he submitted." (Initial Decision at 13-14) As IC Bus's bid in this regard was in direct contravention of a material requirement of the bid specifications, the Board was obligated to reject IC Bus's bid as non-responsive.

As to any responsibility of The Hanover Insurance Company with respect to its Bid Bond here, the Bid Specifications specifically provide that the Bid Bond would be forfeited upon refusal of a bidder to execute a contract. (See Bid Specifications at 6, "Bid Guarantee")¹ IC Bus did not refuse to execute a contract. As the Board properly rejected IC Bus' bid and, therefore, could not have offered it a contract, the Hanover Insurance Company had no obligation whatsoever under its Bid Bond in this matter.

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted as the final decision in this matter for the reasons clearly presented therein and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioners Garden State School Bus Contractors Association (Garden State) and Margaret Pribyl, a resident and taxpayer of Millstone Township (petitioners) seek to compel respondent Millstone Board of Education (Board) to immediately call for the forfeiture of a bid bond posted by respondent IC School Bus Inc. (IC School Bus) in the course of submitting a bid to the Board for bus transportation services for the 2011-2012 school year. They also seek to compel The Hanover Insurance Company (Hanover) to immediately pay over to the Board the bid bond posted by IC School Bus. Petitioners contend that the actions of respondents in connection with the award of a transportation services contract were violative of the bid specifications, statutes, and regulations.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On September 6, 2011, petitioners filed a verified petition. After respondents filed timely Answers, the Department of Education's Office of Controversies and Disputes transmitted the matter, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13, to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), which filed it for hearing and determination as a contested case on October 18, 2011. The parties engaged in extensive discovery including the taking of certain depositions, a process which delayed moving this matter forward. At the conclusion of discovery, all parties requested the opportunity to file Motions and Cross-Motions for Summary Decision. I received Cross-Motions and Oppositions by August 16, 2012.

BACKGROUND

In June 2011, the Board issued a public bid for school bus transportation services for the 2011-2012 school year for forty-six separate school bus routes. Under the heading "Additional Requirements," the Bid Specification directed that a bidder must provide the District with the following: a comprehensive safety plan; total accidents over $1.00 for 2010; total employee injuries in 2010; any traffic violations received in 2010; and inspection reports on all out-of-service vehicles from the Motor Vehicle Commission.

Under a separate heading entitled "Insurance Coverage," the Bid Specification required the contractor to provide automotive liability insurance in the minimum amount required by Motor Vehicle Commission and Department of Education regulations. "Bidders will be required to provide with the bid, evidence of their ability to obtain the required insurance coverage. A certificate of insurance for the duration of the contract is to be presented by the successful bidder."

Under the "Bid Guarantee" heading, bidders were required to accompany each bid, " . . . by a bid bond, cashier's or certified check for twenty percent (20%) of the amount of the annual contract cost, but in no case may the certified check, cashier's check or bid bond exceed $50,000." This section of the Bid Specification also provided as follows:

Such deposit shall be forfeited upon refusal of a bidder to execute a contract; otherwise, checks shall be returned when the contract is executed and a surety (performance) bond is filed with the Board of Education. The bid guarantee for all unsuccessful bidders, except for the three lowest bidders, will be returned within 10 days after the bid opening

. . . .

Additionally the Bid Specification stated in bold and capitalized letters, "THE FOLLOWING DOCUMENTS MUST BE SUBMITTED IN ORDER FOR YOUR BID TO BE CONSIDERED." Included in the list of items that had to be submitted was "Evidence of the Bidder's Ability to Obtain the Required Insurance Coverage" and a "Bidder's Guarantee."

The "Payment Terms" section of the Bid Specification provided that, "the contractor shall execute the contract and submit it to the district board of education with all required related documents for the district board of education to comply with the timeline for submission of contracts to the county superintendent."

Finally, the Bid Form signed by all the bidders had the following provision:

FAMILIARITY WITH CONDITIONS OF CONTRACT

Have you read carefully the applicable New Jersey Statutes, regulations, procedures, the rules of the local board of education pertaining to student transportation, the specifications upon the basis of which the accompanying bid is submitted, and the contract which the successful bidder will be required to execute.

IC School Bus submitted bids on every one of the forty-six routes put out to bid by the Board. In connection with its bid, IC School Bus submitted a bid bond, Bond ICS-0607 (bid bond), which was issued by Hanover. The bid bond provided, in relevant part that Hanover is held and firmly bound unto MILLSTONE TOWNSHIP SCHOOL DISTRICT as Obligee, in the penal sum of TWENTY PERCENT (20%) OF THE AMOUNT BID ($1,670,256.00) DOLLARS for the payment of which, well and truly to be made, we hereby jointly and severally bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns.

The condition of the above obligation is such that whereas the Principal has submitted to the MILLSTONE TOWNSHIP SCHOOL DISTRICT a certain Bid, attached hereto and hereby made a part of hereof, to enter into a contract in writing to provide BID FOR STUDENT TRANSPORTATION SERVICES COMBINATION BID FOR MILLSTONE TOWNSHIP SCHOOL DISTRICT AND UPPER FREEHOLD REGIONAL SCHOOL DISTRICT BID #12005

NOW THEREFORE,

- (a) If said Bid shall be rejected, or in the alternate
- (b) If said Bid shall be accepted and the Principal shall execute and deliver a contract in the Form of Contract attached hereto (properly completed in accordance with said Bid) and shall furnish a bond for his faithful performance of said contract, and for the payment of all persons performing labor or furnishing materials in connection therewith, and shall in all other respects perform the agreement created by the acceptance of said Bid.

Then this obligation shall be void, otherwise the same shall remain in force and effect; it being expressly understood and agreed that the liability of the Surety for any and all claims hereunder shall, in no event, exceed the penal amount of this obligation as herein situated."

[(Emphasis added.)]

The School District opened the bids on June 7, 2011. IC School Bus was the lowest numerical bidder on forty of the forty-six bus routes. Fred DiGiovanni, the principal of IC School Bus, attended the bid opening. After the bid opening Bernard Biesiada, the business administrator for the Board, requested to meet DiGiovanni. Biesiada requested the meeting because he was concerned regarding aspects of IC School Bus's bid including the fact that "(t)he address listed was a PO box in Tennent, New Jersey and the telephone number was a 917 (or New York) number." The rationale for his concerns was that the "bus company that potentially could be awarded 46 runs and transporting potentially 4,000 children for both Millstone and Upper Freehold, that they would be operating out of a post office box and attempting to drive buses from New York to pick up our children." He could not recall if he had other concerns.

On or about, June 9, 2011, DiGiovanni met with Biesiada as well as Diana Schiraldi, the business administrator of Upper Freehold School District. In depositions DiGiovanni and Biesiada differed on what occurred at the meeting. According to Biesiada, he reviewed the bids after opening them to see if documents were in order and deem if they were responsible bidders. Although he had concerns, at that time he had no reason to believe that IC School Bus was an irresponsible bidder. Biesiada telephoned DiGiovanni and asked him to the June 9 meeting. Biesiada testified that he introduced himself to DiGiovanni, whereupon DiGiovanni said, "before you begin, I would like to request to withdraw my bids." He did not say why. Biesiada was shocked and told him he needed something in writing, and the meeting ended after five minutes. Di Giovanni submitted a letter the next day to Biesiada which stated, "with your permission, IC School Bus Inc. would like to with draw [sic] our bid for the school bus transportation bid # 12005, which was opened on June 6, 2011 @ 10. AM."

In his deposition DiGiovanni testified that when he left the bid opening on June 7, he believed that he would be presented contracts for the routes he had won. When Biesiada telephoned him for a meeting, he asked if DiGiovanni was even in the area and said he wanted him to explain IC School Bus as he had never heard of the Company. DiGiovanni was concerned because he wanted to establish himself in New Jersey. At the June 9 meeting, Biesiada expressed concern about DiGiovanni's affiliation with Peter George and Milu Bus Company, because they had heard negative things about the company. They did not think DiGiovanni would be able to handle the routes being a brand new company in New Jersey, but DiGiovanni disagreed.¹ Conformity to Bid Specifications was not discussed at the meeting. According to DiGiovanni, he remembered insurance being mentioned but did not remember anything about a certificate of insurance. Di Giovanni did not want to fight the Board on a claim that he was not a responsible bidder by not being already established in New Jersey, being the new company on the block. He asked what could be done and was instructed to write a letter, which he did. He left the meeting annoyed.

The Board prepared and published an Agenda for its June 27, 2011, meeting that included the following draft resolution:

WHEREAS, in response to its bid solicitation for student transportation services, specifically, combination bid for Millstone Township and Upper Freehold Regional School Districts, the Millstone Township Board of Education received bid responses on June 7, 2011; and

WHEREAS, IC School Bus, Inc., of Tennent, New Jersey responded to the Board of Education's bid solicitation; and

WHEREAS, IC School Bus, Inc. was the prospective low bidder for the contract; and

WHEREAS, by letter of June 10, 2011, the District received a certified writing from Fred A. DiGiovanni, President of IC School Bus, Inc., wherein relevant part Mr. DiGiovanni advised that they seek to withdraw their bid for school bus transportation services; and ¹ DiGiovanni testified that IC School Bus had an adequate number of used and new buses on order and had financing in order to purchase buses if it was required to fulfill the bid and would have been able to hire the requisite number of drivers.

WHEREAS, further investigation by the District administrative staff reveals that the basis for the request for withdrawal was that I.C. School Bus, Inc. did not have the necessary staff, equipment and facilities to fulfill the bid requirements; and

WHEREAS, the Board finds therefore, that the mistake made by the bidder in this instance relates to a material feature of the bid and occurred notwithstanding the bidder's exercise of reasonable care in the preparation of the bid; and

WHEREAS, the Board finds that the withdrawal of the bid is hereby without harm to the District to the extent that other responsive bidders made available to the Board of Education for selection and the notice of mistake by the prospective low bidder was timely in this instance;

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that IC School Bus, Inc. be and is permitted to withdraw their bid without penalty and/or sanction[.]

This resolution was never presented to the Board or voted upon. It was drawn by the Board's counsel but then withdrawn on advice of counsel. Therefore, the Board never permitted IC School Bus to withdraw its bid.

On June 24, 2011, counsel for Garden State wrote to Biesiada indicating that it had learned that IC School Bus, although a lowest bidder, will not be performing on any of the routes. He reminded "the Board of its obligations under the law, including its obligation to call for the forfeiture of IC's bid bond in the event IC has refused to perform on any of the routes." This letter further stated:

IC was the lowest bidder on all 46 routes and the Board must, therefore, present contracts to IC for all 46 routes.[] If IC Bus refuses to perform, the Board must call for the forfeiture of IC's bid bond. Nothing else will preserve the sanctity of public bidding, and nothing else will save the taxpayers of Millstone from the losses they will suffer if the Board is forced to execute contracts with the second lowest bidders. See Hillside, supra, 25 N.J. at 322 (the public bidding statutes are for the benefit of the taxpayers and not the bidders; they should be construed with sole reference to the public good and they should be rigidly adhered to by the Courts).

[(Emphasis added.)]

Subsequently, the Board passed a resolution on July 11, 2011, substantially different from that proposed for the June 27, 2011, meeting, that disqualified IC School Bus. This resolution indicated in relevant part that:

WHEREAS, in response to its bid solicitation for student transportation services, specifically, combination bid for Millstone Township and Upper Freehold Regional School Districts, the Millstone Township Board of Education received bid responses on June 7, 2011; and

WHEREAS, IC School Bus, Inc., of Tennent, New Jersey responded to the Board of Education's bid solicitation; and

WHEREAS, IC School Bus, Inc. was the prospective low bidder for the contract; and

WHEREAS, the Board finds that the bid solicitation required responsive and responsible bidders to provide adequate evidence of the bidder's ability to obtain required insurance coverage; and DiGiovanni testified that IC School Bus Inc. is a separate company from those identified on the insurance certificate he submitted with his bid. The companies on the Certificate of Liability Insurance that accompanied the IC School Bus bid were IC Coachways, Inc. DBA Island Charter & IC Bus, Inc. at 380 Chelsea Road, Staten Island, NY 10314.

The Board subsequently awarded the bus routes to other higher bidders; some of whom also had missing from their Bid Specifications some of the information identified as "Additional Requirements" in the Bid Specification. None of those other bidders, however, suffered the deficiency of IC School Bus's Bid Specification with regard to a lack of evidence of the bidder's ability to obtain the required insurance coverage. IC School Bus did not identify its corporate entity of Tennent, NJ as being an insured. As a result of awarding the routes to bidders whose bids were higher than those of IC School Bus, the Board incurred greater costs for bus transportation had IC School Bus been awarded contracts for those routes and had performed.

ANALYSIS AND LEGAL CONCLUSIONS

Petitioners argue that respondents engaged in illegal conduct, backroom dealing, conspiracy, fraud, and a cover-up to permit a repudiating contractor to walk away without penalty from the forty routes it won but refused to perform. They contend that, once the Board opened the bids and determined the lowest bidders, those bidders were legally obligated to execute contracts for those routes. Since IC School Bus was created in 2007, there was no business activity, and it did not own any buses or retain employees. With regard to the June 9 meeting, which petitioners characterize as illegal, petitioners acknowledge a factual dispute between Biesiada and DiGiovanni's testimony as to the nature of the discussion. Although contending that Biesiada's version is the more credible one, they suggest that, irrespective of which version was true, respondents violated the public bidding laws as a matter of law. Petitioners characterize the first proposed Board resolution that would have relieved IC School Bus of any obligations without penalty as false and fraudulent and part of a conspiracy and scheme between the Board and IC School Bus. They criticize as false claims in the proposed resolution that the Board engaged in a further investigation to determine that IC School Bus did not have the necessary staff, equipment and facilities to perform; that IC School Bus made a mistake notwithstanding its exercise of reasonable care; and that the withdrawal of the bid would not harm the District. Despite receiving the letter from Garden State counsel advising of the legal obligation of bond forfeiture before the June 27 Board meeting (where no action was taken on the proposed resolution), petitioners contend that the Board further entrenched itself in its unlawful scheme. It did so by publishing its second false and fraudulent resolution which abandoned the rationale of the June 27 resolution and created another fiction that IC School Bus was a non-responsive bidder because of its failure to provide adequate evidence of the bidder's ability to obtain required insurance coverage and failure to provide the information responsive to the "Additional Requirements." Petitioners argue that the July 27 resolution was a ruse because nearly every other bidder also failed to provide various information requested in the additional requirements section.

The arguments of the three respondents are essentially similar. They contend that the Board deemed IC School Bus's bid non-responsive—not because it failed to conform exactly with the Bid Specifications—but because it failed to comply with a material condition of the bid by not providing evidence of IC School Bus's ability to obtain the required insurance coverage.

N.J.S.A. 52:14B-9 provides a party in a contested administrative case the opportunity for a hearing at which it may present evidence and argument on all issues involved. Such matters, however, may be subject to summary decision if the papers show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law. N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b).

The standard for granting summary judgment (decision) is found in Brill v. Guardian Life Insurance Company of America, 142 N.J. 520 (1995). In Brill, the Court looked at the precedents established in Matsushita Electric Industrial Company v. Zenith Radio Corporation, 475 U.S. 574, 106 S. Ct. 1348, 89 L. Ed. 2d 538 (1986); Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. 242, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202 (1986); and Celotex Corporation v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 106 S. Ct. 2548, 91 L. Ed. 2d 265 (1986), wherein the Supreme Court adopted a standard that “requires the motion judge to engage in an analytical process essentially the same as that necessary to rule on a motion for a directed verdict, i.e. ‘whether the evidence presents a sufficient disagreement to require submission to a jury or whether it is so one-sided that one party must prevail as a matter of law.’” Brill, supra, 142 N.J. at 533 (quoting Liberty Lobby, supra, 477 U.S. at 251-252, 106 S. Ct. at 2512, 91 L. Ed. 2d at 214). The Court stated that under the new standard:

A determination whether there exists a “genuine issue” of material fact that precludes summary judgment requires the motion judge to consider whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, are sufficient to permit a rational fact-finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. The “judge’s function is not himself [or herself] to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial.”

The Brill standard contemplates that the analysis performed by the trial judge in determining whether to grant summary judgment should comprehend the evidentiary standard to be applied to the case or issue if it went to trial. “To send a case to trial, knowing that a rational jury can reach but one conclusion, is indeed worthless and will serve no useful purpose.” Id. at 541.

In addressing whether the Brill standard has been met in this case, further guidance is found in R. 4:46-2:

An issue of fact is genuine only if, considering the burden of persuasion at trial, the evidence submitted by the parties on the motion, together with all legitimate inferences therefrom favoring the non-moving party, would require submission of the issues to the trier of fact.

I CONCLUDE that this matter is ripe for summary decision under the applicable standard.

Under the public school contracts law, N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-1 to -59 (Act), contracts for the performance of work to be paid out of school funds generally are required to be made only after public advertisement for bids and after the bidding has taken place. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-4. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-22 requires that "No bid shall be accepted which does not conform to the specifications furnished therefor." The contract must be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-37. The "lowest responsible bidder" is the one whose response to a request for bids offers the lowest price, is responsive, and who is responsible. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2(t). "Responsible" means able to complete the contract in accordance with its requirements, including but not limited to requirements pertaining to experience, moral integrity, operating capacity, financial capacity, credit, and workforce, equipments, and facilities available. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-2(x). "Responsive" means conforming in all material respects to the terms and conditions, specifications, legal requirements and other provisions of the request. N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-(y).

Legal principals established under other public bidding statutes are applicable to the public school contracts law because the purpose of all bidding statutes is "to secure competition and "guard against favoritism, improvidence, extravagance and corruption," in order to benefit the taxpayers and not the bidders." In re Honeywell Info. Sys., 145 N.J. Super. 187, 200-01 (App. Div. 1976), certif. denied, 73 N.J. 53 (1977) (quoting Twp. of Hillside v. Sternin, 25 N.J. 317, 322 (1957)). Therefore, public bidding statutes must be construed with sole reference to the public good and rigidly adhered to by the courts. Statewide Hi-Way Safety v. New Jersey Dep't of Transp., 283 N.J. 223, 230 (App. Div. 1995).

Legally acceptable bids cannot materially deviate from the specifications set forth by the contracting agency. Meadowbrook Carting Co. v. Borough of Island Heights, 138 N.J. 307, 314 (1994). While minor or inconsequential discrepancies and technical omissions can be waived, material conditions contained in bidding specifications cannot be waived. Terminal Const. Corp. v. Atl. County Sewerage Auth., 67 N.J. 403, 411 (1975). New Jersey Courts have developed a two-prong test for determining if a deviation is material: (1) does waiver of such defect deprive the purchaser of its assurance that the contract will be entered into, performed, and guaranteed according to the specified requirements, and (2) does it adversely affect the competitive bidding process by placing a bidder in a position of advantage over other bidders, or by otherwise undermining the necessary common standard of competition. Meadowbrook Carting, supra, 138 N.J. at 315. The Meadowbrook Court aptly cited from Terminal Const. Corp., supra, regarding the limitation on the doctrine of strict compliance for bids:

Essentially this distinction between conditions that may or may not be waived stems from a recognition that there are certain requirements often incorporated in bidding specifications [that] by their nature may be relinquished without there being any possible frustration of the policies underlying competitive bidding. In sharp contrast, advertised conditions whose waiver is capable of becoming a vehicle for corruption or favoritism, or capable of encouraging improvidence or extravagance, or likely to affect the amount of any bid or to influence any potential bidder to refrain from bidding, or which are capable of affecting the ability of the contracting unit to make bid comparisons, are the kind of conditions [that] may not under any circumstances be waived.

[Terminal Const. Corp., supra, 67 N.J. at 412.]

I CONCLUDE that IC School Bus's bid was non-responsive, because it failed to provide evidence of its ability to obtain the required insurance, which was a material condition of the bid. IC School Bus failed to comply in that the insurance certificate referenced in its bid named another entity, namely, IC Coachways, Inc. DBA Island

Charter and IC Bus, Inc. located at 380 Chelsea Road, Staten Island, NY rather than IC School Bus Inc. of Tennent NJ. DiGiovanni testified that IC School Bus Inc. is a separate company from those identified on the insurance certificate he submitted.

There is no doubt that this item was a material condition of the bid. N.J.A.C. 6A:27-9.3(e)(8) specifically provides that the Board shall direct “bidders to submit . . . proof of the ability to obtain automobile liability insurance coverage required by the specifications.” The materiality of the insurance information is further evident by the inclusion of its details in a separate and distinct section of the Bid Specification. Additionally the Bid Specification includes “Evidence of the Bidder’s Ability to Obtain the Required Insurance Coverage” among a list of items under a separate heading that emphasized in bold and capital letters that such a document “must be submitted in order for your bid to be considered.” This emphasis is contrasted by the catch-all “Additional Requirements” section, which has no such mandatory language and which included: “comprehensive safety plan; total accidents over $1.00 for 2010; total employee injuries in 2010; any traffic violations received in 2010; and copies of inspection reports on all out of service vehicles from your last inspection with NJ Motor Vehicle Commission.” The items on the catch-all list were non-material and would not cause a bidder to be disqualified for failure to submit them with the bid. Accordingly, it is a red herring for petitioners to argue that the absence of some of the catch-all items from the bids of other bidders who won routes subsequent to the rejection of the IC Bus bid makes them indistinguishable from the ultimate basis upon which the Board relied to reject the IC School Bus bids. None of the other winning bids lacked the insurance information. The other bidders submitted insurance information that reflected the names on the bid. IC School Bus did not. Accordingly, petitioners are incorrect to suggest that the basis for the July 11 rejection resolution was a ruse because every other bidder failed to provide the exact same information with their bids. Unlike the insurance information, the catch-all items do not lie at the heart of the transportation undertaking but are rather informational documents. See Terminal Const. Corp., supra, 67 N.J. at 411. A bidder with less or no insurance costs could afford to bid more cheaply than its competitors giving it an unfair advantage. Biesiada was clear in his testimony that evidence of insurability was an essential element of the bid, unlike the catch-all items.

N.J.A.C. 6A:27-9.4(e) provides that each bidder for a school transportation route shall submit a guarantee "to ensure that, if a contract, is awarded, the successful bidder shall enter into that contract" IC School Bus submitted a bid bond through Hanover as a guarantee that it would meet the requirements of its bid. The bid bond is subject to forfeiture upon refusal of the successful bidder to execute a contract. N.J.S.A. 18A:39-4; N.J.A.C. 6A:27-9.4(e)(2). "The purposes of a bid bond are to establish and measure the obligations of bidders; guarantee that a contract will be executed if the bid is accepted; aid the school board in reaching its decision; and reimburse the municipality for losses resulting from 'the wrongful act of a bidder in declining to enter into a contract for the performance of the work after the contract was lawfully awarded to him.'" Garden State School Bus Contractors Assoc. v. Passaic County Educ. Serv. Comm., A-1383-10T4 (App. Div. June 27, 2011) (slip op. at 10) (citing Fair Lawn Bd. of Educ. v. Fair Lawn Plaza Taxi, 55 N.J. Super. 357, 368 (App. Div. 1959), aff'd, 32 N.J. 129 (1960)).

Despite all of petitioners' hyperbole about alleged corruption and fraud between the Board and IC School Bus, the bottom line is that the Board did not and could not have tendered contracts to IC School Bus, because IC School Bus's bid was non-responsive due to its failure to comply with a material condition. The bid was never accepted. Since no contracts were presented in the absence of an accepted bid, IC School Bus was not in a position to execute such contracts. Hanover and IC School Bus would have had liability under the bid bond if IC School Bus had been the lowest responsible bidder. IC School Bus was not the lowest responsible bidder. The Hanover Insurance Company bond provided that, if a bid shall be rejected, the obligation on the bond shall be void. The bid was rejected. "A surety is chargeable only according to the strict terms of its undertaking and its obligations cannot and should not be extended either by implication or construction beyond the confines of its contract." Eagle Fire Protection Corp. v. First Indemnity of Am. Ins. Co., 145 N.J. 345, 356 (1996); Monmouth Lumber Co. v. Indemnity Ins. Co. of N. Am., 21 N.J. 439, 452 (1956). Under these circumstances, I CONCLUDE that there is no basis to warrant the forfeiture of the bid bond that was posted to guarantee that a contract will be executed if the bid is accepted.

The Passaic County case relied on by petitioners is very different from this matter. In that case, K & M Transportation, Inc. (K & M) submitted a bid for twenty-nine bus routes. The Passaic County Education Services Commission (PCESC) determined that K & M was the lowest bidder on eight of the twenty-nine routes. When PCESC notified K & M that it had been awarded eight routes, the company informed PCESC that it only had two buses, two drivers, and two aides available, and could therefore only service two of the eight routes. Although K & M did not have the ability to perform on all routes for which it submitted a bid, it was concerned about exclusion from being awarded any routes if it bid on just two. Upon learning that K & M only had two school buses available, PCESC chose not to tender a contract to K & M for all eight routes but rather for only two. The Passaic County facts are significantly different from those here in that there was no evidence that K & M's bid was not accepted because it was deficient in any manner, much less materially non-conforming as was in IC School Bus's bid. While K & M advised that it did not have the ability to perform on all routes on which it bid; in the instant matter, notwithstanding his request to withdraw his bid, DiGiovanni testified that he would have performed, that he had adequate buses on order, and that he would have been able to employ the necessary drivers. The Passaic County Court rejected a conclusion that, because PCESC never tendered a contract to K & M, the surety was not required to forfeit its bid bond. The difference in the instant matter is that the Board could not have tendered a contract because IC School Bus was only the lowest numerical bidder, not the lowest responsible, responsive, qualified, or successful bidder as in the case of K & M. The Passaic County Court held that K & M repudiated its contractual obligations when it informed PCESC that it would only be able to service two routes. IC School Bus never incurred a contractual obligation to repudiate.

Petitioners fail to make a case that IC School Bus and the Board engaged in fraud and corruption and a conspiracy. There is no showing that either side gained or stood to gain by what occurred. There is no explanation as to how IC School Bus would have profited by having submitted a fatally flawed bid in the first instance or by submitting a bid without a belief that it could procure the necessary equipment and personnel. There is no suggestion that the motive of IC School Bus was the same as that of K & M, namely that it hoped, by bidding and winning on all the routes, it would be permitted to perform on but a few. It makes no sense that representatives of the Board would have conspired with IC School Bus to reject IC Bus's bid and award the contracts at a higher price to the second lowest bids. Although the June 27 proposed resolution and the July 11 passed resolution, indeed, differ in the basis for rejecting the IC School Bus bid and raise questions as to the level of analysis by the drafters, it is irrefutable that the basis for the rejection set forth in the July 11 resolution was a sound one, which existed, not as part of a post-bid conspiracy, but as part of a pre-bid-opening material and fatal flaw. Neither DiGiovanni's unsuccessful attempt to withdraw his bid nor the questionable foundation of the never-approved June 27 proposed Board resolution are dispositive in petitioners' favor to support a forfeiture of the bid bond. Those issues are moot in light of the bid rejection due to the insurance matter. It is of no moment that Biesiada had expressed concerns over IC School Bus's ability to service the routes without equipment and staff on hand and its failure to present a physical address as opposed to a post office box in New Jersey. Again, another uncontroverted reason existed for determining that IC School Bus was not the lowest responsible bidder.

I CONCLUDE that the Motion for Summary Decision by petitioners should be denied and that the Cross-Motions for Summary Decision by respondents should be granted as a matter of law.

It is ORDERED that petitioners' Motion for Summary Decision be DENIED.

It is further ORDERED that the Cross-Motions for Summary Decision by respondents be GRANTED and that the petition be DISMISSED.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE
HEARING OF MARK HENDERSON, NEW JERSEY JUVENILE JUSTICE COMMISSION.

Rosemarie Cipparulo, Esq., for respondent Mark Henderson (Weissman & Mintz, attorneys)

Record closed: September 20, 2012

Decided: September 26, 2012

BEFORE SUSAN M. SCAROLA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner, Office of Education of the Juvenile Justice Commission (JJC), charges respondent, Mark Henderson, a certificated and tenured employee holding the position of Teacher 2 with the JJC, with conduct unbecoming or other just cause. Petitioner alleges that respondent was indicted by a Monmouth County grand jury, and charged with endangering the welfare of a child under N.J.S.A. 2C:24-4(a), and sexual assault, N.J.S.A. 2C:14-2(b), both crimes of the second degree, and seeks respondent's termination based upon that indictment. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On November 15, 2011, the petitioner filed a Certificate of Determination for Filing of Tenure Charges, Proofs of Service, the Commission's Sworn Statement of Tenure Charges, and a Sworn Statement of Evidence in support of tenure charges with the Department of Education (Department), in compliance with N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11, and N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.4. The tenure charges were based solely on the pending Monmouth County indictment. On December 14, 2011, the respondent filed an answer with the Department.

The Department transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law on December 14, 2011, for hearing as a contested case on an expedited basis. N.J.S.A. 18A:6-11; N.J.S.A. 52:14B-2(b). Respondent's request for a stay based on the pending indictment was granted on January 13, 2012.

The stay was vacated after counsel for the JJC advised that the indictment had been dismissed by the prosecutor, and by Order entered on June 29, 2012, the matter was returned to the active list. The hearing was scheduled for September 24, 2012.

On September 20, 2012, the JJC filed a Motion to Withdraw Tenure Charges. Respondent indicated that he had no objection to the motion and would not be opposing it.¹

FACTUAL DISCUSSION

The facts pertinent to the resolution of the motion and to this decision are as described in the procedural history set forth above.

¹ Respondent had been suspended without pay effective September 26, 2011, and was returned to pay status on August 28, 2012.

The petitioner indicates in its brief that it has reviewed the tenure charges filed against the respondent, as well as the evidence relied upon in support of those charges, and has concluded that, without more evidence, it is unable to proceed to hearing, and has requested that the tenure charges be withdrawn.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

The issue in this matter is whether petitioner should be permitted to withdraw the tenure charges it filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.4 against respondent. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 provides that any proposed withdrawal shall: be accompanied by documentation as to the nature of the charges; include an explanation of the circumstances justifying withdrawal; be consented to by both parties; indicate that the charged party agrees to the withdrawal with a full understanding of his or her rights; include a showing that withdrawal is in the public interest; and, where the charged party is a teaching staff member, include a showing that the teaching staff member has been advised of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate. See also In re Cardonick, 1990 S.L.D. 842, 846.

In this matter, the tenure charges were based upon the indictment returned against the respondent. Upon further investigation by the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office, the Prosecutor's Office concluded that it could not prosecute the matter, and moved in Superior Court for the indictment to be dismissed. Once the indictment was dismissed in July 2012, the underlying basis for the tenure charges was no longer present. Furthermore, the petitioner had no other evidence available to sustain the charges against respondent. Without this evidence, the petitioner could not pursue the matter further.

The respondent has consented to the withdrawal of the charges with full understanding of his rights. He is aware that the Commissioner has a duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate.

The withdrawal of these charges is in the public interest because the criminal charges were dismissed and there is no other available evidence to sustain the tenure charges. Without this evidence, a trial in this matter would be an exercise in futility resulting in needless expense.

When all these circumstances are taken into consideration, I CONCLUDE that the petitioner should be permitted to withdraw the charges. The motion is granted, and the tenure charges will be withdrawn.

ORDER

I hereby ORDER that the motion to withdraw tenure charges filed against respondent Mark Henderson by the Juvenile Justice Commission is hereby GRANTED, and the tenure charges are hereby WITHDRAWN.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 10, 2012, petitioner, A.R., filed a residency appeal on behalf of her child, A.V. a student in Woodland Park. On July 16, 2012, the Borough of Woodland Park Board of Education (BOE or respondent) filed a response with the State Department of Education (DOE) seeking reimbursement from petitioner for the costs of tuition incurred by the attendance of her minor child in the BOE's school district. The BOE transmitted this matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on July 18, 2012, for determination as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13. A pre-hearing conference was held on August 8, 2012. A status conference was held on August 23, 2012. I received a letter from respondent on September 4, 2012, stating that petitioner provided verification of her residence in Woodland Park. Accordingly, respondent withdrew its Answer and Counterclaim and agreed to enroll petitioner's child in the Woodland Park public schools for the upcoming school year. Said letter is attached hereto for reference. Petitioner stated that she would send a letter withdrawing her petition. To date, petitioner has not sent a withdrawal letter. I scheduled an in-person status conference for October 10, 2012. Both parties failed to appear. I closed the record at that time.

FACTUAL DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

I FIND the following FACTS:

Petitioner provided respondent with proof of her residency in Woodland Park which respondent accepted. Once respondent accepted petitioner's residency verification it enrolled petitioner's child in Woodland Park public school system. Respondent also withdrew its Answer and Counterclaim.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSIONS

Based on the facts adduced, I CONCLUDE that this matter is no longer a contested case before the OAL.

ORDER

Based on the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that the petition is DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. TOWNSHIP OF NORTH BERGEN, :

SYNOPSIS

In June 2012, the petitioner – an adult student – filed a request for emergency relief to permit her to graduate from North Bergen High School and to attend commencement. The parties reached a tentative settlement of the issues, and petitioner confirmed on the record that she consented to the adjournment of the emergency hearing. On July 19, 2012, petitioner advised the ALJ that she would submit a letter withdrawing her emergent application. In October 2012, petitioner advised the ALJ's office that she had received her high school diploma, and again stated that she would send a letter withdrawing her original application for emergent relief. No letter was ever received.

The ALJ found that petitioner has knowingly and voluntarily withdrawn her emergent relief application, concluded that the matter is now moot, and ordered that the matter be dismissed with prejudice.

The Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings, and determined that the case is appropriately dismissed as moot.

Record Closed: October 22, 2012

BEFORE GAIL M. COOKSON, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On June 15, 2012, petitioner Celina Cheng, an adult student, filed a request for emergency relief requesting an order permitting her to graduate from North Bergen High School on June 20, 2012, and accordingly, to attend the commencement. North Bergen High School and North Bergen Board of Education (jointly "Board") had advised petitioner that she did not have sufficient credits to graduate because of excessive absences in two of her classes, notwithstanding passing grades in those courses. Petitioner appealed to the Attendance Review Board which upheld the decision of the Board. Department of Education Bureau of Controversies and Disputes transmitted the application for emergency relief to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on June 15, 2012.

On June 19, 2010, the application for emergent relief was scheduled to be heard. On that date, the parties were able to reach a tentative settlement of the issues in controversy on the emergent application. Petitioner confirmed on the record that she consented to the adjournment of the emergency hearing on consideration of the Board's agreement that she could attend the graduation ceremony as a spectator and that she would be exploring whether she could use community college summer courses in satisfaction of her high school requirements. In lieu of those courses, other summer coursework options will be available to her at summer school and/or online. On consent of petitioner, thus, the emergency hearing was adjourned without a new date in order to allow them time to work out the details of registering for summer school credits that would allow her to graduate in August.

I convened status conferences with the parties telephonically on both June 25 and July 19, 2012, in order to remain abreast of the efforts to locate an alternative path to graduation for petitioner. On July 19, 2012, petitioner advised that she was registered for and taking one online and one in-person summer course and was fine with this alternative graduation track. Petitioner advised the undersigned that she would submit a letter withdrawing the OAL dispute. When a substantial amount of time passed without the written withdrawal request, I directed my secretary to contact the parties.

On October 5, 2012, my secretary spoke with petitioner who advised that she has now received her high school diploma and that she would send by facsimile a letter to that effect withdrawing her original application for emergent relief. No letter has ever been received. Therefore, I FIND that petitioner has withdrawn knowingly and voluntarily her emergent application for relief in order to attend graduation with her class on June 20, 2012. I also CONCLUDE that the matter is now moot and ORDER that the matter be DISMISSED with prejudice.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. Dear Counsel:

I have reviewed the papers filed in connection with petitioners' motion seeking that – pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.16 – I relax OAL Rule N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 and permit the filing of exceptions to Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Edward Delanoy's Order on Emergent Relief in the matter captioned S.V., M.R. and G.R., on behalf of minor children, K.V., E.R. and F.H. v. Board of Education of the City of Camden, Camden County, Agency Dkt. No. 307-10/12, OAL Dkt. No. 13908-12. Upon such review, I am compelled to deny petitioners' motion.

As petitioners were previously advised, N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 makes no provision for the filing of exceptions to an Order of an Administrative Law Judge. Exceptions are only authorized for Initial Decisions. Although on rare occasion in the past the Commissioner has allowed the filing of exceptions to an Emergent Relief Order, this has only been permitted in the limited circumstance where the ALJ's Order effectively ended the contested case, which is unquestionably not the situation here.

Accordingly, petitioners' motion seeking relaxation of the prohibition to filing exceptions to the ALJ's Order on Emergent Relief is hereby denied.

Sincerely,

Christopher D. Cerf

Before the Commissioner is a proposed settlement of the two above-referenced consolidated tenure cases. The record, the proposed "Settlement, Resignation and Release," (Settlement), and the Initial Decision issued by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed and found in compliance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6 – which reiterates the standards for settlement of tenure cases set forth in In re Cardonick, 1990 S.L.D. 842 (1990).

Accordingly, the Commissioner approves the Settlement terms and adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case, with the proviso that the Commissioner has no jurisdiction over the parties' actions relative to the civil suit referenced in Paragraphs 3, 6 and 9E of the Settlement. OAL DKT. NO. EDU 10423-11N

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE HEARING OF GREGORY CURRIE, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JEFFERSON, MORRIS COUNTY,

Nicholas Celso, III, Esq. on behalf of Jefferson Township Board of Education
(Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein & Celso, LLC)

Frederick E. Gerson, Esq., on behalf of Gregory Currie

Record Closed: September 27, 2012

Decided: October 2, 2012

BEFORE JOANN LaSALA CANDIDO, ALJ:

This matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on September 1, 2011, for resolution as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to -15 and N.J.S.A. 52:14F1 to -13. Several hearings and conferences were scheduled. The last one being September 27, 2012, wherein the parties advised that the matter is settled. The Settlement and Resignation was put on the record. Gregory Currie (Currie) was voir dired as to his acceptance of the Settlement. Currie also agreed to the terms of this settlement upon advice of counsel.

The Settlement Agreement and Resignation was adopted by a majority of the full membership of the Jefferson Township Board of Education at a public meeting held on August 27, 2012. The fully executed Settlement, Resignation and Release are attached hereto for reference.

Based upon a review of the record as well as the proposed settlement agreement, and the representation of the parties on the record of this matter, I make the following FINDINGS:

1. Gregory Currie is employed as a teaching staff member in the School district of the Township of Jefferson in Morris County.
2. It is anticipated that the hearing in this matter would be protracted and costly.
3. If a hearing becomes necessary, the District has identified school personnel who are potential witnesses.
4. Litigation of the charges would lead to the disruption of the District's educational program due to the great amount of time lost by administrators and other personnel who would be required to testify to the incidence which led to the filing of the tenure charges against an employee who has signed the attached agreement, tenders his resignation from all employment with the Board.
5. Under the proposed settlement, Currie has submitted his resignation. However, beginning August 28, 2012 and continuing until the date of the Commissioner's approval of this Agreement, all monies paid shall count as an offset toward a total lump sum payment to be made by the Board under this Agreement in the amount of $180,000.
6. If the tenure matter proceeds further, both parties would incur costs of paying their attorneys for a likely lengthy hearing.
7. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the terms of settlement are in the public interest.

It is ORDERED that the parties comply with the terms of settlement and that these proceedings are hereby concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

WHEREAS, Gregory Currie ("Mr. Currie") is employed by the Board as a tenured high school vice principal; and

WHEREAS, on July 18, 2011, Dr. Kathaleen Fuchs, Superintendent of Schools, filed sworn tenure charges against Mr. Currie, together with a sworn statement of evidence in support thereof, and said charges were certified by the Board to the Commissioner of Education on August 15, 2011; and

WHEREAS, on January 20, 2012, Mr. Currie filed suit in Morris County Superior Court seeking damages for alleged spoliation of evidence in connection with the tenure charges, such suit having been assigned Docket Number MRS-L-136-12; and

WHEREAS, on February 9, 2012, Dr. Kathaleen Fuchs filed a second set of sworn tenure charges against Mr. Currie, together with a sworn statement of evidence in support thereof, and said charges were certified by the Board to the Commissioner of Education on March 26, 2012; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Currie filed an Answer denying all charges; and

WHEREAS, on April 17, 2012, the Honorable JoAnn LaSala Candido, ALJ ordered that the above referenced, separately filed tenure charges be consolidated; and

WHEREAS, hearings in the consolidated matters were held at the Office of Administrative Law on: April 26, 2012, May 3, 2012, June 19, 2012, June 21, 2012 and June 22, 2012; and

WHEREAS, the parties, now wishing to resolve the within matter amicably without the need for further litigation, while achieving the goals of both parties, hereby stipulate to settle same, subject to the terms and conditions set forth herein, and approval by the Court and the Commissioner;

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and promises contained herein, the legal sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged by the parties, they agree as follows:

1. Tenure Charges to be Moot

The Board agrees that upon execution of the within Settlement, Resignation and Release ("the Agreement") by the parties and approval by the Court and the Commissioner, the subject tenure charges shall be moot and shall be deemed to be withdrawn and abandoned by the Board.

2. Resignation

Mr. Currie, by signing this Agreement, tenders his resignation from all employment with the Board, effective as of the date of the Commissioner's approval of this Agreement, subject to the Board's fulfillment of its obligations as set forth herein.

3. Dismissal with Prejudice of Civil Suit

Mr. Currie agrees to dismiss with prejudice, and without costs to either party, the civil suit captioned Gregory Currie v. Jefferson Township Public Schools, et als., Dkt. No. MRS-L-136-12, by the signing and filing of a Stipulation of Dismissal with prejudice.

4. No Admissions

The parties agree that neither the resignation of Mr. Currie nor the Board's approval of this Agreement, constitute an admission of liability or wrongdoing by either party.

5. Payment

A. Pending a final determination by the Commissioner, Mr. Currie shall continue to receive normal salary and benefits, subject to all normal deductions. However, beginning on August 28, 2012 and continuing until the date of the Commissioner's approval of this Agreement, all monies so paid shall count as an offset toward a total lump sum payment to be made by the Board under this Agreement in the amount of $180,000 (One Hundred Eighty Thousand Dollars). Mr. Currie shall receive a hard copy record itemizing all salary payments and deduction until effective date of separation from employment.

B. In consideration of Mr. Currie's satisfaction of the terms and conditions of this Settlement Agreement, the Board will pay to Mr. Currie a total amount of $180,000 calculated as follows: A lump sum payment of the $180,000, less the cost of all compensation paid to Mr. Currie, inclusive of all normal salary and fringe benefits, from August 28, 2012 through the date of the Commissioner's approval of this Agreement, which shall be the effective date of termination of all employment.

C. The balance of monies due upon the date of the Commissioner's approval shall be paid as a lump sum, without payroll deductions, for which the Board shall issue an IRS Form 1099. Mr. Currie shall be solely responsible for all taxes due on the lump sum payment and hereby indemnifies and agrees to hold harmless the Board against any and all claims emanating from his failure to fulfill his tax obligations.

D. Mr. Currie waives any and all rights he may have to all other compensation from the Board of any kind, including but not necessarily limited to payment for unused sick, vacation and personal days under any collective bargaining agreement, individual contract, Board Policy or otherwise, except that he shall receive the appropriate COBRA notice upon termination from employment.

6. Release

In exchange for the above consideration, Gregory Currie, his heirs and assigns hereby irrevocably and unconditionally waive, release and forever discharge any and all claims or rights, whether known or unknown, which they have or may have against the Board, personally and officially, individually and collectively, its past and present Board members, all officers, agents, attorneys, administrators, and employees, personally and officially, as well as their successors and assigns, including, but not limited to any and all claims for attorneys fees, back pay or front pay, any claims for emotional distress or pain and suffering, any and all claims involving tax liability stemming from this settlement; any and all claims arising under any federal, state or local ordinance, regulation or law including, but not limited to, the New Jersey and Federal Constitutions, Title VII of the Civil Rights Acts of 1871 and 1991, the Americans with Disabilities Act (including, but not limited to, all claims which have been asserted or could have been asserted in the civil suit captioned Gregory Currie v. Jefferson Township Public Schools, et als., Dkt. No. MRS-L-136-12), the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, the Employee Retirement Income Security Act, the Federal Family and Medical Leave Act, the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Equal Pay Act, the Workers' Adjustment and Retaining Notification Act, the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination, the New Jersey Family Leave Act, the New Jersey Conscientious Employee Protection Act, the New Jersey Workers' Compensation Law, the New Jersey Wage and Hour Law, the Employer-Employee Relations Act, any collective negotiations agreement, any common law claim and any and all other claims for harassment, discrimination or retaliation of any kind, breach of promise, misrepresentation, negligence, fraud, estoppel, defamation, violation of public policy, wrongful or constructive discharge, or any other tort, contractual or quasi-contractual claim. Additionally, and without limitation, specifically included in this Release is the Superior Court Action: Gregory Currie v. Jefferson Township Public Schools, et als., currently pending in Morris County Superior Court, Law Division, Dkt. No. MRS-L-136-12, which Mr. Currie agrees to withdraw with prejudice upon final approval of this Agreement. Specifically exempted from this release are any claims for health insurance continuation coverage pursuant to Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act (referred to hereinabove as "COBRA").

7. Post-Employment Inquiries

The Board agrees, through its Administration, to respond to post-employment inquiries regarding Mr. Currie by providing basic work history type information, such as length of employment, date of resignation, and assignments. However, the Board shall also provide fully and truthfully all such information as it may be legally required to provide to various governmental agencies or otherwise.

8. Non-disparagement

Mr. Currie and his agents and the Board and its agents shall be precluded from any and all public and private negative comment regarding each other, and each others employees and agents.

9. Requirements Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6

A. True copies of the Tenure Charges are annexed hereto.

B. Under the circumstances that gave rise to the specific incidents underlying the tenure charges, some or all of which may have been due to a disability from which Mr. Currie suffers, the proposed settlement is justified and in the best interest of both parties. Mr. Currie recognizes the Board of Education's position with respect to re-employment and states that he shall never seek re-employment with the Jefferson Township Board of Education. This Agreement assures that Mr. Currie will never again be employed by the Jefferson Township Board of Education. On the other hand, Mr. Currie's separation from all employment with the Board, may afford him the opportunity to seek employment elsewhere.

C. Both parties have freely consented to the within Agreement, as evidenced by their respective signatures below

D. Both parties have had the benefit of independent legal counsel and have been fully apprised of their rights and obligations, and have indicated their full understanding and acceptance of same, by their respective signatures below.

E. The proposed settlement will serve the public interest. As a result of Mr. Currie's letter of resignation from employment with the Board, the Board will not have to incur further litigation currently pending in the Superior Court (Gregory Currie v. Jefferson Township Public Schools, et als., Dkt. No. MRS-L-136-12) which also names the Board's administrators as co-defendants. This Settlement also resolves the threat of further litigation threatened by a Notice of Claim, filed with the Board on behalf of Mr. Currie on or about June 18, 2012. As the proposed Settlement is global in nature, it is cost effective and will avoid the expenditure of substantial future administrative time and effort, as well.

F. Mr. Currie has been advised by his attorney that the Commissioner of Education may refer the within matter to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of his certification.

G. The parties agree that nothing in the proposed Settlement shall restrict access to information or records deemed public by law or result in misrepresentation of the reason for Mr. Currie's separation from service. However, to extent consistent with law, Mr. Currie shall refrain from public comment on the terms and conditions of this Settlement and shall discuss same only with his attorney, accountant, members of his immediate family and , in confidence, with any potential employer who seeks this information. The Board agrees, to the extent consistent with law, that it and its agents shall refrain from public comment on the terms and conditions of the settlement agreement and shall disclose same only pursuant to a valid OPRA request and to the extent that it is legally required by law, or as directed by an agency or court of competent jurisdiction.

H. The Board has formally approved this Settlement Agreement, subject only to approval by the Court and the Commissioner. A certified resolution is annexed hereto as "Attachment A."

10. Surrender of Board Property

A. Mr. Currie shall forthwith surrender all school keys and property in his possession to the Superintendent of Schools.

B. The Superintendent of Schools shall forthwith arrange an appointment for Mr. Currie to retrieve his personal property.

11. Assent to Terms

The parties hereby acknowledges that they have entered into this Agreement with a full understanding of their rights and obligations and that they were fully informed of the implications of this Agreement by their respective attorneys, and he do so without duress, of their own free will and volition.

Mr. Currie further acknowledges that he was given the opportunity to fully consider this Agreement for a period of up to twenty-one (21) days and was given seven (7) days from the execution of this document to revoke this Agreement, by delivering written notification to the Hon. JoAnn LaSala Candido, ALJ, Office of Administrative Law, 33 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey 07102 and Nicholas Celso, III, Esq., 100 South Jefferson Rd., Suite 200, Whippany, New Jersey 07981. In the event of such revocation, this Agreement shall be null and void and the subject tenure proceedings shall be reinstated.

12. Entire Agreement

This Agreement represents the entire understanding of the parties.

13. Severability

In the event that a court or agency of competent jurisdiction shall deem any part of this Agreement to be contrary to law, then the remaining portions of the Agreement shall remain in full force and effect to the extent that they do not materially impair the consideration upon which the parties have mutually relied.

14. Governing Law

This Agreement and all provisions hereof shall be governed by and construed under the laws of the State of New Jersey.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CITY OF LINDEN, UNION COUNTY,

RESPONDENT.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION

ORDER

On July 16, 2012, a final agency decision was rendered in this matter, wherein the Acting Commissioner found that petitioner had failed to sustain her burden of establishing that her children were eligible for a free public education in Linden schools. As such, the Acting Commissioner ordered the petitioner to reimburse the Board tuition in the amount of $76,223.40 for her children's ineligible attendance in the district's public schools during the 2010-11 and 2011-12 school, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1. The Board subsequently notified the Commissioner that the petitioner had failed to comply with that decision and it requested that the Commissioner seek entry of the assessment on the judgment docket of the Superior Court pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:58-10. Petitioner offered no reason why the judgment against her should not be so docketed, although given an opportunity by this agency to do so.

Accordingly, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2A:58-10, L. B. is now subject to entry of a judgment by the court in the amount of $76,223.40, which represents the payment ordered at the conclusion of the contested case before the Acting Commissioner, with interest to accrue as provided by law.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

 V. : DECISION
 BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE :

 DISTRICT, SOMERSET COUNTY, :
 RESPONDENT. :

SYNOPSIS

Petitioning teachers, through the Bridgewater-Raritan Education Association, asserted that the Board's failure to renew their employment was a violation of their tenure and seniority rights. The three petitioning teachers each worked as replacement teachers during some portion of their service in the school district, and contended that a District policy required that time served as a replacement teacher be counted towards the acquisition of tenure. The respondent Board maintained that no such policy was ever formally adopted by the District; accordingly – under applicable New Jersey statutes – the teachers did not attain tenure because time served as a replacement teacher cannot legally be counted towards tenure accrual. The Board filed a motion for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no issues of material fact in this case, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; the Commissioner of Education has previously held that, absent the formal adoption of a policy, a school board cannot be bound by oral promises; the issue of whether there was an implied contract is therefore irrelevant; all three petitioning teachers served as replacements for specific teachers who were on maternity leave, and ultimately returned to work; they therefore did not fill vacant positions; under N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, the time the three teachers spent as substitutes for non-vacant positions cannot count towards acquiring tenure; accordingly, none of petitioners served as regular employees for a sufficient period of time to accrue tenure in the District; and the petitioners' argument for equitable estoppel fails because there is no evidence that the Board ever made a material representation to the teachers that their replacement time would count towards the attainment of tenure. Accordingly, the ALJ granted the Board's motion to dismiss the petition.

Upon full consideration, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ for the reasons comprehensively presented in his recommended decision, and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The Commissioner has reviewed the record of this tenure dispute, the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law, the petitioner's exceptions on behalf of its members, and the respondent's reply to those exceptions. Upon consideration of the foregoing, the Commissioner completely concurs with the Administrative Law Judge's determination that petitioner's members did not earn tenure in respondent's district.

ON BEHALF OF TAMARA

Petitioner,

v.

BOARD OF EDUCATION OF
THE BRIDGEWATER-RARITAN SCHOOL DISTRICT, SOMERSET

Respondent.

Sanford R. Oxfeld, Esq., for petitioner (Oxfeld Cohen, P.C., attorneys)

Nicholas Celso, III, Esq., for respondent (Schwartz, Simon, Edelstein & Celso, LLC, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 5, 2012

Decided: October 5, 2012

BEFORE JOHN R. FUTEY, ALJ:

This is an initial decision issued relative to a summary decision motion filed by respondent, the Board of Education of the Bridgewater-Raritan School District, Somerset County (hereinafter the District or the Board) seeking a dismissal of the challenges by all three petitioning teachers. A response was submitted by petitioner, the Bridgewater-Raritan Education Association (hereinafter the Petitioner or the Association), on behalf of Tamara Manzur, Carol O'Neil, and Maggie Cassidy, the named petitioner herein. A reply to that response was made by the District, as a result of which the parties requested oral argument which was heard at the Office of Administrative Law. At that time, certain concerns were further identified and argued by the parties. After considering all of the arguments advanced, both in writing and orally, the hearing record has now closed for purposes of the instant motion for summary decision.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

In the underlying matter, the petitioning teachers, through the Association, allege that the non-renewal of their respective employments was a violation of their tenure and seniority rights. The issue involves whether or not an implied contract exists relative to the petitioner's service in temporary or substitute teaching positions that would qualify when determining tenure and, subsequently, seniority rights. As a result, should summary decision be granted for respondent, as to each or as to any of them?

DISCUSSION

Petitioner, the Bridgewater-Raritan Education Association brings this matter on behalf of three teaching staff members who worked as replacement teachers during at least some portion of their employment for the respondent District, the Board of Education of Bridgewater-Raritan, Somerset County. The teachers include Tamara Manzur, who began in September 2006, Carol O'Neil, who began in March 2007, and Maggie Cassidy who began in September 2007. The teachers were notified by respondent that they were not being renewed for the 2011-2012 school year. Petitioner appeals the non-renewals on the basis that the three teachers acquired tenure under a District policy that required time served as a replacement teacher to be counted towards the acquisition of tenure. In reply, respondent contends that since no such policy was ever formally adopted by the District, under applicable New Jersey statutes, the teachers do not have tenure because time served as a replacement teacher cannot legally be counted towards tenure accrual.

Because this appeal and the instant motion involves three separate teachers with their own individual circumstances, the facts will be discussed and analyzed relative to each teacher individually.

Tamara Manzur (herein after Manzur) was hired in September 2006 to serve as a replacement for another teacher, Concetta Fischer, who was on maternity leave. (Pet. Appeal ¶ 4; Resp. Ans. ¶ 4; Manzur Aff. Ex-E.) Ms. Manzur worked as a sixth grade teacher and continued in this capacity through the following 2007-2008 school year. (Manzur Aff. ¶ 7.) Manzur states that she was not informed that she was considered a replacement teacher for the 2007-2008 school year. (Ibid.) Beginning with the 2008-2009 school year, it is undisputed that Manzur became a regular teacher of the fifth grade. (Id. at ¶¶ 8,9,14.) Petitioner alleges that the District had a policy to consider time served as a replacement teacher to be counted towards the acquisition of tenure. (Pet. Appeal ¶ 6.) This policy was communicated to Manzur by her Building Principal and the Superintendent of Schools. (Manzur Aff. ¶¶ 4-5.) In reliance upon this promise that her time served as a replacement would count towards acquiring tenure, Manzur did not seek a regular position in another district while serving as a replacement teacher for respondent. (Id. at ¶ 11.)

The second teacher, Carol O'Neil (hereinafter O'Neil), was hired in March 2007 to serve as a replacement fourth grade teacher for Karen Bauer who was on maternity leave. (Pet. Appeal ¶ 9; O'Neil Aff. ¶ 3.) Ms. O'Neil continued working as a replacement fourth grade teacher for Ms. Bauer during the 2007-2008 and 2008-2009 school years. (O'Neil Aff. Ex-B at 2 and Ex-C at 2.) Beginning with the 2009-2010 school year, it is undisputed that O'Neil became a regular teacher of the fourth grade. (O'Neil Aff. Ex-D at 1.) O'Neil alleges that she was told by her Building Principal that her time toward acquiring tenure began in September 2007. (O'Neil Aff. ¶ 4.) In reliance upon this promise, O'Neil did not seek a regular position in another district between September 2007 and June 2009. (Id. at ¶ 7.)

The third teacher, Maggie Cassidy (hereinafter Cassidy), was hired in September 2007 to serve as a replacement teacher for Meghan Friedman who was on maternity leave. (Pet. Appeal ¶ 13; Cassidy Aff. ¶ 3.) Ms. Cassidy states that she was induced to leave the Clinton School District and begin employment for respondent because her time working as a replacement teacher would count towards acquisition of tenure. (Pet. Appeal ¶ 13.) The teacher for whom Cassidy was replacing returned to work on September 1, 2008, and was transferred to another position. (Resp. Ans. ¶ 15.) Beginning with the 2008-2009 school year, it is undisputed that Cassidy became a regular teacher of pre-school. (Resp. Ans. ¶¶ 14-15.) Cassidy alleges that the District had a policy to consider time served as a replacement teacher to be counted towards the acquisition of tenure. (Cassidy Aff. ¶ 4.) This policy was communicated to Cassidy by her supervisor and the Superintendent of Schools. (Ibid.) In reliance upon this promise that her time served as a replacement would count towards acquiring tenure, Cassidy resigned her previous employment and accepted the position as a replacement teacher for respondent. (Ibid.)

The employment history of the three teachers is graphically summarized by the following table:

Legal Analysis

N.J.A.C. 1:12-5, governing motions for summary decision, permits early disposition of a case before the case is heard if, based on the papers and discovery which have been filed, it can be decided “that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact challenged and that the moving party is entitled to prevail as a matter of law.” N.J.A.C. 1:12-5(b). The provisions of N.J.A.C. 1:12-5 mirror the language of R. 4:46-2 of the New Jersey Court Rules governing motions for summary judgment. To survive summary decision, the opposing party must show that “there is a genuine issue which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding.” Ibid. Failure to do so entitles the moving party to summary decision. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 142 N.J. 520 (1995).

Moreover, even if the non-moving party comes forward with some evidence, this forum must grant summary decision if the evidence is “so one-sided that [the moving party] must prevail as a matter of law.” Id. at 536. This tribunal is required to do “the same type of evaluation, analysis or sifting of evidential materials as required by Rule 4:37-2(b) in light of the burden of persuasion that applies if the matter goes to trial.” Id. at 539-540. Like the New Jersey Supreme Court’s standard for summary judgment, summary decision is designed to “liberalize the standards so as to permit summary [decision] in a larger number of cases” due to the perception that we live in “a time of great increase in litigation and one in which many meritless cases are filed.” Id. at 539 (citation omitted).

In this case, the Commissioner of Education has previously held that, absent formal adoption of a policy, a school board cannot be bound by oral promises of administrators. Therefore, as set forth more fully below, the issue of whether an implied contract exists is irrelevant because there is no allegation that the respondent school board, or an authorized agent, ever entered into an express or implied contract. Even if an implied contract exists in this case, it would be between the teachers and administrators who lack the authority to enter into such contracts. In summary, the petitioner has not identified any formal policy adopted by the respondent that modified the statutorily defined requirements to acquire tenure. Based upon the foregoing, I FIND that summary decision is thus appropriate regarding all three teachers because there is no material issue warranting a plenary hearing and, as a matter of law, the three teachers have not satisfied the requirements of the tenure statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, despite incorrect statements by supervisors, school principals and the district superintendent to the contrary.

The requirements and exceptions for tenure in New Jersey are statutorily defined. Acquisition and effect of tenure are statutorily defined by N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, which states that “teaching staff members”ⁱ acquire tenure by completing:

- (a) Three consecutive calendar years, or any shorter period which may be fixed by the employing board for such purpose; or
- (b) Three consecutive academic yearsⁱⁱ, together with employment at the beginning of the next succeeding academic year; or
- (c) The equivalent of more than three academic years within a period of any four consecutive academic years.

For further explanation and clarification, the New Jersey Supreme Court held that “all teaching staff members who work in positions for which a certificate is required, who hold valid certificates, and who have worked the requisite number of years, are eligible for tenure unless they come within the explicit exceptions in N.J.S.A.”

ⁱ “‘Teaching staff member’ means a member of the professional staff of any district or regional board of education, or any board of education of a county vocational school, holding office, position or employment of such character that the qualifications, for such office, position or employment, require him to hold a valid and effective standard, provisional or emergency certificate, appropriate to his office, position or employment, issued by the state board of examiners and includes a school nurse.” Spiewak v. Bd. of Educ. of Rutherford, 90 N.J. 63, 73-74 (1982) (quoting N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1).

ⁱⁱ “Academic year” is defined as “the period between the time school opens in any school district or under any board of education after the general summer vacation until the next summer vacation.” N.J.S.A. 18A:1-1.

18A:28-5 or related statutes such as N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1. Spiewak v. Bd. of Educ. of Rutherford, 90 N.J. 63, 81 (1982) (emphasis added).

In the present matter, the parties are not contesting that the three teachers at issue worked in positions requiring a certificate, or that they possessed the necessary certificates while holding the positions. Additionally, it is not contested that the three teachers were employed for the requisite number of academic years. The dispute arises because the respondent contends that a portion of each teachers' employment falls within one of the explicit statutory exceptions for teachers serving in a replacement capacity, but the petitioner contends that a policy existed that waived this applicable statutory exception.

N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1, provides the following exception to the tenure statute:

In each district the board of education may designate some person to act in place of any officer or employee during the absence, disability or disqualification of any such officer or employee subject to the provisions of section 18A:17-13.

The act of any person so designated shall in all cases be legal and binding as if done and performed by the officer or employee for whom such designated person is acting but no person acting shall acquire tenure in the office or employment in which he acts pursuant to this section when so acting.

[(emphasis added).]

This exception applies "when the services of a substitute teacher are required because of the temporary absence, even if protracted, of a regular teacher whose return to duty is contemplated." Sayreville Educ. Ass'n. v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Sayreville, 193 N.J. Super. 424, 428 (App. Div. 1984) (emphasis added). This exception exists because of "the fact that when a substitute appointment is made because of a temporary absence, a board of education would have to incur the expense of providing duplicative benefits if both the substitute and the absent teacher were to be regarded as simultaneously entitled to all of the statutory and contractually mandated benefits of regular staff membership." Id. at 430. The court noted that where the absentee teacher's employment has been terminated, no concern for duplicated benefits exists. Ibid. The court concluded, "[t]hus in terms of a board's legitimate economic concerns, the withholding of regular staff membership from a substitute teacher who fills a position whose incumbent is only temporarily absent is a sensible approach and perhaps even a financial necessity." Ibid.

This holding applies only where the position to be filled is not a vacant one. "The word 'vacancy' is commonly understood to mean an unoccupied position for which an incumbent does not intend to return, as contrasted with a leave of absence that 'connotes continuity of the employment status.'" Lammers v. Bd. of Educ., 134 N.J. 264, 272 (1993) (citations omitted). If the position is vacant, then a long-term substitute teacher filling the vacant position is entitled to have this period credited toward tenure. Sayreville Educ. Ass'n., supra, at 193 N.J. Super. at 428-9. In the present matter, petitioner raises hypothetical difficulties with determining who a replacement teacher is actually replacing, but acknowledges such challenges are not present in this case. (Pet. Brief in Opp. at 22.)

More importantly and most significantly, the petitioner has not alleged that the three teachers were filling vacant positions. In fact, it is now undisputed that the three teachers were filling in for specific, known teachers on maternity leave who ultimately returned to work. For example, Manzur served as replacement teacher for Ms. Fischer for the school years 2006-2008. She admits that she was informed that she would be a replacement teacher for the 2006-2007 school year. (Manzur Aff. ¶ 3.) While she may not have been informed of her replacement status for the 2007-2008 school year, such notice is not required under New Jersey school laws. The fact remains that she stayed in the same assignment from the previous school year and the position was not vacant because Ms. Fischer returned to teaching. The second teacher, O'Neil, also served as a replacement teacher during the 2007-2009 school years for Ms. Bauer. This fact is clearly evidenced by the evaluations provided to O'Neil where they began by stating her replacement status. (O'Neil Aff. Ex-B at 2 and Ex-C at 2.) It is also undisputed that the position was not vacant because Ms. Bauer returned to teaching. The third teacher, Cassidy, admits to serving as a replacement teacher for Ms. Friedman during the 2007-

2008 school year. (Cassidy Aff. ¶ 3.) It is also undisputed that the position was not vacant because Ms. Friedman returned to teaching.

Instead, the petitioner argues that the teachers were told that the District would consider their long-term substitute time when determining tenure, despite the applicable statutory exception to the contrary. This argument is moot, as discussed further below, under binding precedent from the Commissioner that oral representations from administrators cannot bind a school board. Thus under N.J.S.A. 18A:16-1.1, the time the three teachers spent as substitutes for non-vacant positions cannot count towards acquiring tenure. And I so FIND.

The controlling determination is that oral representations from administrators cannot bind a school board. The governing statute, N.J.S.A. 18A:28-5, provides boards of education with the authority to shorten the time period for the acquisition of tenure if it applies to an entire category of its employees, regardless of the number of employees in that category, and permits boards to subsequently act to fix a different tenure qualifying period or restore the statutory qualification period. Rall v. Board of Ed. of the City of Bayonne, 54 N.J. 373, 377 (1969). Additionally, the law is clear that a school board may enter into contractual agreements to enact a policy modifying the terms of tenure acquisition. See, eg., Remedial Educ. & Diag. Serv. v. Essex County Educ. Serv., 191 N.J. Super. 524, 527 (App. Div. 1983) (public body may enter into contracts within its express or implied authority). However, such contract must be formally adopted (emphasis added) and absent approval of the Board or an individual designated by the Board for such purpose, any promise made to the teachers in this case cannot bind respondent. Gross v. Bd. of Ed. of the Twp. of Mt. Holly, EDU 8567-04, Initial Decision (July 26, 2006), adopted, Comm'r. (Sept. 1, 2006), <<http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>> ("It is long-settled in education law that the representations of individual board members or administrators are insufficient to bind a board to a particular course of action." (citations omitted)). See also, Swaim and Middletown Twp. Ed. Assoc. v. Bd. of Ed. of the Twp. of Middletown, Monmouth County, EDU 6705-98, Initial Decision (Oct. 27, 2000), aff'd., Comm'r. (Jan. 26, 2001) (District's policy to establish a two-year period for the grant of tenure for its principals was proven by a resolution adopted by the Board, and its subsequent action a month later to change the tenure qualifying period back to the three-year statutory period was also proven by a resolution of the Board.).

In Gross, the Commissioner held that Mt. Holly School Board was not bound by promises made by Board employees regarding the terms and availability of future long term substitute positions that enticed the petitioner to take early retirement. Gross, supra. Therefore, in the present case, the petitioner's argument that the teachers were told by their supervisors, principals, and the superintendent that the District followed a policy to count time served as a replacement teacher towards tenure is irrelevant absent a showing that the school board formally adopted such a policy. Further, the petitioner has not alleged nor identified any evidence that such a policy was expressly or implicitly adopted by the Board. As in Gross, the promise by administrators that replacement time would count towards earning tenure does not suffice to prove the respondent actually adopted such a policy. As evidence, respondent's superintendent affirmed that the Board never adopted any such resolution or formal policy modification to credit time served as a replacement teacher towards accruing tenure. (Schilder Aff. ¶¶ 4-5.)

Lastly, petitioner has not established any intentional misrepresentation by respondent nor presented compelling circumstances necessary to invoke equitable estoppel against a government entity. Petitioner argues that the doctrine of equitable estoppel should apply to require the respondent to grant the three teachers early tenure because they relied upon the administrators' representations by not seeking regular teacher positions in other school districts during their time working as substitutes. The essential elements of equitable estoppel are "a knowing and intentional misrepresentation by the party sought to be estopped under circumstances in which the misrepresentation would probably induce reliance, and reliance by the party seeking estoppel to his or her detriment." O'Malley v. Dep't of Energy, 109 N.J. 309, 317 (1987). It is a general principle that it should only be utilized in "compelling circumstances" and "is rarely invoked against a government entity...." State v. King, 340 N.J. Super. 390, 399 (App. Div. 2001). To prevail on a claim of equitable estoppel, a party must demonstrate that the representation was intentionally made or that it was clear it would induce reliance. Miller v. Miller, 97 N.J. 154, 163 (1984).

In the present matter, petitioner has not proven knowing and intentional misrepresentation to any of the petitioning teachers by the respondent. The only misrepresentations alleged were made by administrators, not the respondent. Also, petitioner has not cited to any action by the District whatsoever supporting the claim that the District had a policy to count time served as a long-term substitute towards acquiring tenure. As discussed in Gross and Swaim, even assuming that the administrators made the promises to any of the three teachers, the actions of the administrators does not constitute knowing and intentional misrepresentation by the respondent. Since the three teachers did not rely on any misrepresentation from the Board, there is nothing in the record to indicate that the District engaged in any conduct which was calculated to mislead the teachers. See, Maraviglia v. State Operated School District Of The City of Newark, EDU 1594-02, Initial Decision, (Aug. 15, 2006), adopted, Comm'r. (Sept. 28, 2006) <<http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>> (no equitable estoppel where petitioner was demoted from position where supervisor informed him that he was the holder, but where the record showed no evidence that he was ever appointed to this position by official action of the Board); Alt v. Bd. of Educ. of the Borough of Bergenfield, EDU 9624-02, Initial Decision, (Aug. 15, 2003), adopted, Comm'r. (Sept. 29, 2003) <<http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>> (no equitable estoppel where petitioner was terminated in a RIF but alleged that he held tenure after the district assistant superintendent lured him away from his former teaching position with promises that he would be given tenure status and seniority. The ALJ found that absent formal action or ratification by the Board, petitioner could not reasonably rely upon representations by Board employees. (citing Busler v. East Orange BOE, EDU 3916-00, Initial Decision, (July 11, 2001), aff'd., Comm'r, (Aug. 30, 2001)).

Also, case precedent only provides that equitable estoppel may be applied to disputes where a teacher would obtain tenure but through no fault of his/her own he/she did not possess appropriate certification for the instruction provided yet was eligible for such certification. Ramaswami v. Bd. of Ed. of the City of Plainfield, Union County, EDU 11776-07, Initial Decision, (Feb. 11, 2009), adopted, Comm'r. (May 1, 2009) ("doctrine of equitable estoppel may be applied [where tenure denied for lack of certification but teacher was eligible for such certification]" (citing McAneny v. Bd. of Ed. of School District of the Chathams, 92 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 208, 213)). In Ramaswami, a teacher was denied tenure and terminated after being hired into a position that required a certification for which she did not possess. Ibid. The ALJ and Commissioner considered the teacher's claim of equitable estoppel because she was not told that she needed a certificate and that she was hired despite disclosing that she did not have a teaching certificate. Ibid. In the present matter, petitioner's reliance on Ramaswami to illustrate that equitable estoppel can generally be invoked against a school board is misplaced. The facts of the case and precedent referenced demonstrate that the doctrine can only be invoked in the specific type of dispute where a teacher is denied tenure for lack of certification. This scenario is not present in the instant case, thus the circumstances are not met to invoke the doctrine of equitable estoppel.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

As the moving party, respondent carries the burden of proof that the three teachers were actually substituting for the absences of other teachers and were not filling vacant positions. After considering all of the proofs and arguments relative to the motion, I CONCLUDE that respondent has met that burden by identifying the teachers who were on maternity leave and then returned to work, which demonstrated that the positions were never vacant. Despite evidence that school administrators had apparently made incorrect statements that time spent in replacement capacity would count toward tenure, there is no evidence that the Board ever adopted such a policy and that Board cannot be bound by the administrator's misrepresentations. Thus, in calculating the time the teachers served as regular employees, none have satisfied the requirements of the tenure statute and the Board's decision not to renew them for the 2011-2012 school year was permissible. Lastly, the argument for equitable estoppel must fail because there is no evidence the Board ever made a material misrepresentation to the teachers.

Based on all of the foregoing and after having given deference to the arguments advanced by both sides, I CONCLUDE that the respondent's motion for Summary Decision as to all three petitioning teachers is appropriate and the motion should be GRANTED.

It is therefore, ORDERED that the motion for summary decision by the Board is GRANTED for all the reasons stated hereinabove.

It is so ORDERED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner filed a pro se residency appeal on behalf of her child, S.N., in May 2012. The respondent Board filed an answer and a counterclaim for tuition. A hearing at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) was scheduled for October 22, 2012. On October 15, 2012, the Board sent a letter requesting that the petition be dismissed because S.N. had transferred out of the district; the counterclaim for tuition was also withdrawn. Neither party appeared at the scheduled hearing.

The ALJ determined that this matter is no longer a contested case before the OAL; accordingly, the case was dismissed.

Upon full review and consideration, the Commissioner found that the matter is appropriately dismissed as moot.

Derlys M. Gutierrez, Esq., for respondent (Adams, Stern, Gutierrez & Lattiboudere, attorneys)

Record Closed: October 22, 2012

Decided: October 25, 2012

BEFORE KIMBERLY A. MOSS, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner J.P. appealed the determination of the respondent, City of Clifton Board of Education (Board), that minor child S.N. is not domiciled in its district. The appeal was filed with the Department of Education on May 23, 2012. The Board filed an Answer and a Counterclaim for tuition reimbursement on July 24, 2012. The contested case was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), where it was filed on July 27, 2012. A notice was sent to petitioner at 4 Atkins Court, Clifton, New Jersey 07013, the address listed in her pro se appeal, notifying her that the case was at the OAL on July 30, 2012. Notice of an August 20, 2012, pre-hearing conference was sent to petitioner at the same address on August 9, 2012. The notice was returned stating "Return to Sender Not Deliverable as Addressed."

My secretary attempted to call petitioner but her phone number was disconnected. Attempts to determine petitioner's address were unsuccessful. I scheduled a hearing for September 17, 2012, and a Notice of Plenary Hearing dated August 21, 2012, was sent to the parties advising them of the hearing date. The Notice of Plenary Hearing was sent to petitioner at the address listed in her pro se appeal. On the date of the hearing counsel for the Board advised that petitioner has moved out of the district and that S.N. had been transferred. Counsel for the Board also submitted a new address for petitioner. A hearing was scheduled for October 22, 2012. Notice of the hearing was sent to petitioner's new address of 215 Route 206 South, Sandyston, New Jersey on September 28, 2012. On October 15, 2012, respondent sent a letter stating that since S.N. has transferred out of the district and into another district, it requests that the petition be dismissed. Respondent also withdrew its counterclaim for tuition. On October 22, 2012, both parties failed to appear. Petitioner has provided me with no explanation for her failure to appear.

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based on the documentary evidence presented to me, I find the following FACTS:

S.N. attended the Clifton Public Schools from September 2001 through June 2012. The Board denied the enrollment of S.N. after J.P. was unable to produce any documentation demonstrating that S.N. is domiciled in Clifton, New Jersey or in any way permitted to attend school in Clifton pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1.

Initially, the Board sought reimbursement for tuition from the first day of S.N.'s attendance in or about September 2001, in accordance with the statutory formula for the period of days of ineligible attendance. The Board withdraws that request and is now requesting the petition be dismissed.

Counsel for the Board requested that this matter be dismissed due to S.N. being transferred out of Clifton's District. The Board submitted a letter withdrawing its counterclaim for tuition, which is attached hereto for reference.

Petitioner has not contacted me at any time since I received this matter. Further, petitioner has not responded to any notices in this matter.

CONCLUSION AND ORDER

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that this matter is no longer a contested case before OAL. It is hereby ORDERED that this matter be DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

The record of this emergent matter – which included a digital recording of the hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on October 22, 2012 – along with the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Although petitioners may ultimately prevail after a hearing on the merits, the record as it stands does not support the requested emergent relief under the applicable standard for granting such relief. Crowe v DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982).

Accordingly, the instant application for emergent relief is hereby denied. This matter shall proceed at the OAL for a hearing – as expeditiously as possible – on its merits, as contemplated by the ALJ and the parties.

BEFORE EDWARD J. DELANOY, JR., ALJ:

This matter having been opened on the filing of a petition for emergent relief, submitted by petitioners, Patricia Bombelyn, Esq. and Julio C. Gomez, Esq. appearing, and respondent, Board of Education of the Township of the City of Camden, Camden County ("Board or District"), Lester E. Taylor, Esq. appearing, and the undersigned having considered the moving papers in support of emergent relief, Verified Petition and exhibits submitted by the petitioners, and opposition papers and exhibits submitted by respondent, and having heard the arguments of counsel, and for good cause shown, has determined from the proofs that petitioners have failed to meet the standards to grant emergent relief as set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6, pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1986), as more particularly set forth herein.

Petitioners K.V., E.R. and F.H. are minor schoolchildren attending the public schools in the Camden District. These three schoolchildren, through their guardians ad litem, seek emergent relief during the pendency of this action, in the form of an order transferring or reassigning them immediately to another school or school district outside of the District's jurisdiction. However, neither the State of New Jersey, nor any such other school district that may be required by order of this tribunal to accept transfer or reassignment of these schoolchildren, has been identified or named as a party to this action by petitioners.

Petitioner K.V. attends seventh grade at the District's Pyne Point Family School ("Pyne Point") in Camden, New Jersey. (See Certification of S.V. attached to Request for Emergent Relief.) According to the most recent Department of Education (DOE) data, Pyne Point is not making adequate yearly progress, it has been classified as "in need of improvement" for ten years, and a large percentage of students at Pyne Point are failing the State's standardized assessment tests. K.V. is twelve years old and he started the seventh grade at Pyne Point this fall. He failed the State Language Arts test in the fourth and fifth grades, but he passed the State math test in those grades. However, his math score decreased, and his grades in these classes worsened throughout his attendance at the District's Dudley Elementary School ("Dudley"). (See Certification of S.V. attached to Request for Emergent Relief.)

Petitioner E.R. attends fourth grade at Dudley. (See Certification of M.R. attached to Request for Emergent Relief.) According to the most recent DOE data, Dudley is not making adequate yearly progress, it has been classified as "in need of improvement,” and a large percentage of students at Dudley are failing the State’s standardized assessment tests. E.R. is nine years old and he started the fourth grade at Dudley this fall. His state test scores are not yet available; however, his grades in language arts and math have worsened throughout his attendance at Dudley. (See Certification of M.R. attached to Request for Emergent Relief.)

Petitioner F.H. attends first grade at the District’s Davis Elementary School (“Davis”). (See Certification of G.R. attached to Request for Emergent Relief.) According to the most recent DOE data, Davis is not making adequate yearly progress, it has been classified as a school “in need of improvement” for the past seven years, and a large percentage of students at Davis are failing the State’s standardized assessment tests. F.H. is five years old and he started the first grade at Davis this fall. However, due to his young age, he has not taken any state tests yet. (See Certification for G.R. attached to Request for Emergent Relief.)

Through their parents and/or guardians, these three children petition and demand their fundamental right to a thorough and efficient education, and they demand realization of the promise that their educational opportunity will enable them to achieve their full potential. They petition to end an alleged daily and on-going deprivation they each have endured and will continue to endure as students of Pyne Point, Dudley and Davis public schools in Camden.

On February 6, 2012, the then-Acting Commissioner of Education (“Commissioner”), Christopher D. Cerf, sent a letter to the District with the results of a District Performance Review (DPR) conducted under New Jersey’s Quality Single Accountability Continuum (QSAC). QSAC is the DOE’s system for “evaluating the thoroughness and efficiency of all the public schools of the State.” N.J.S.A. 18A:7A-10. QSAC is intended to “ensure that all districts are operating at a high level of performance.” Id. The law requires an assessment of a school district in five key areas: (1) Instruction and Program; (2) Operations; (3) Fiscal Management; (4) Personnel; and (5) Governance. Id. To conduct this assessment, the DOE established the DPR— a long-form questionnaire to be used by a school district to conduct a self-audit of its practices. The questions on the DPR measure a school district's performance in the aforementioned five key areas. N.J.A.C. 6A:30-1.2. A school district is required to complete the DPR to ascertain whether it is fulfilling multiple tasks and responsibilities in each of these key areas. The DPR responses are supposed to be approved by a school district's board of education and submitted to the county superintendent upon completion for his review and evaluation of the responses. N.J.A.C. 6A:30-3.2(g). The DPR is then used by the Commissioner to score the school district, to report the percentage of performance indicators satisfied by the school district, and to place the district on a performance continuum. N.J.A.C. 6A:30-4.1. The Commissioner is required to notify the school district of these determinations. Id.

According to this review of District's public schools, the Commissioner determined that the District satisfied seven percent of its responsibilities in the area of Instruction and Program; nine percent in the area of Personnel; thirty-three percent in the area of Governance; forty-seven percent in the area of Operations; and seventy-nine percent in the area of Fiscal Management.¹ (Certification of Counsel, Julio C. Gomez ("Counsel Cert.") filed herewith, Ex. A). The Commissioner made the following additional findings of the District's performance in the area of Instruction and Program:

None of the nine mandated curricular areas are board approved and some are not aligned with the Core Content Standards. The curriculum is not articulated across grade levels and there is no evidence to support that students across all grades are being prepared to meet high school graduation requirements. Instruction does not address the performance of student subgroup populations. There is no evidence of programs for gifted and talented students across the district. District graduation requirements have not been revised since 2002 and therefore do not reflect the State requirements.

Additionally, the Commissioner determined that the District "did not comply with the requirements of violence and vandalism reporting, provide a counseling program and intervention and referral services throughout the District, or conduct training in a variety of areas including closing the achievement gap and safety and security.” (Counsel Cert., Ex. A). He determined that “personnel procedures and operations continue to inhibit student learning and effective management of the District.” (Counsel Cert., Ex. A). The Commissioner further noted, “not all staff are appropriately certified for their job assignments.” (Counsel Cert., Ex. A). Moreover, he found that Principals of at least two schools are not being monitored. Staff professional development plans contain language that isn’t personalized to meet the improvement needs of employees from one year to the next. There is no evidence that professional development addresses student subgroup performance or that it focuses on improving student performance. Professional development for novice teachers to enhance their performance in the classroom is not being sustained. Id.

The District’s graduation rate is fifty-six percent – “far below the eighty percent graduation rate threshold set by the QSAC process.” (Counsel Cert., Ex. A). The Commissioner deemed the District’s “self-reported” graduation rate to be “overstated.” (Counsel Cert., Ex. A).

In addition, the Commissioner stated: “much work needs to be done for Camden City Public Schools to ensure that every student receives a high quality education. Camden’s public schools are not serving children at the consistently high levels they deserve.” (Counsel Cert., Ex. A).

In April 2012, the DOE further announced that twenty-three (out of twenty-six) District schools were among the lowest performing public schools in the State. (Counsel Cert., Ex. D). These are schools that have shown the lowest academic performance and lack of improvement over the past three years. (Counsel Cert., Ex. E). In these schools, less than one-third of the children are performing adequately. (Counsel Cert., Ex. E). The schools attended by the petitioner children – Pyne Point, Dudley and Davis Elementary – all appear on this list. (Counsel Cert., Ex. D).

On August 9, 2012, the Commissioner issued the final report of DOE's in-depth QSAC evaluation of the District which describes "a district in crisis – a district that has during the last decade failed to serve its mission of educating students." (Counsel Cert., Ex. F at p. 24). On page two of his transmittal letter to the District, the Commissioner concludes that the District "needs fundamental and transformational reform if it is to provide the children of Camden with a high-quality education and the opportunity to graduate from high school ready for college and career." (Counsel Cert., Ex. F).

On August 21, 2012, UPD Consulting and Cross & Jofus, private consultants hired and paid by the District, released a "Needs Analysis" of the Camden City public schools. The analysis revealed many deficiencies.

The Board argues that K.V. and E.R.'s mothers have publicly represented that their children are currently doing well academically, and that their sons receive A grades in school. The Board points out that while the petitioners claim that their children have demonstrated reduced proficiencies, they do not provide any specific information regarding the children's individual performances. The Board submits that petitioners have not carried their burden nor satisfied all of the legal prerequisites under applicable law to sustain this application for emergent relief.

Under Crowe v. DiGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6, emergency relief may be granted if the judge determines that:

1. the petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the relief is not granted;
2. the legal right underlying the petitioner's claim is settled;
3. the petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
4. when the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

Emergent relief is not appropriate unless all four of the above requisites are satisfied.

As for the first requirement for the granting of emergent relief, petitioners aver they will suffer irreparable harm if the relief is not granted. In support of their application, petitioners argue that as a result of the current state of the District's schools, and the rights of schoolchildren to receive a thorough and efficient education, they are suffering irreparable harm each day, and that there is no way they will ever be compensated for their loss of time and progress in their educational development. They urge that the petitioner schoolchildren should not have to endure another day of being denied their constitutional right to an appropriate education. The District argues that any alleged harms suffered by petitioners are capable of being remedied on an individual basis, that alleged statutory violations do not create a per se deprivation of an appropriate education constituting irreparable harm, and that petitioners have not demonstrated more than the possibility of future harm.

"Irreparable harm" is defined as the type of harm "that cannot be redressed adequately by monetary damages." Crowe, supra, 90 N.J. at 132-33. In addition, the irreparable harm standard contemplates that the harm be both substantial and immediate. Subcarrier Communications, Inc. v. Day, 229 N.J. Super. 634, 638 (App. Div. 1977). However, pecuniary damages may sometimes be inadequate because of the nature of the injury or the right affected. Crowe, supra, 90 N.J. at 133. For example, in Crowe the Court determined neither an unwarranted eviction nor reduction to poverty could be compensated adequately by monetary damages awarded after a distant hearing. Id.

In making their arguments, petitioners offer nothing beyond general statements in their certifications regarding the scholastic abilities of each of the respective children. E.R. has not yet received his state scores, and there is an unsupported allegation that his grades have worsened while at Dudley. F.H. has not yet taken any state tests, but because he attends Dudley, petitioner has assumed, without supporting proofs, that he will fall into the category of the two-thirds of children who fail to meet state standards. K.V. is now in the seventh grade, but he failed the Language Arts test in the fourth and fifth grades, and there is an unsupported allegation that his grades in language arts and math had worsened during his time at Dudley. And while his scores decreased, K.V. did pass the most recent State math test.

Petitioners presented no credible evidence, in the form of a certification or affidavit from a qualified, certified educational professional, that would support a finding that each petitioner schoolchild will not receive an appropriate education if they remain in their current placements, and that the placement of each petitioner in another school outside the District is necessary in order to prevent irreparable harm. Petitioners ask this tribunal to find that because the District's schools which petitioners attend are not performing as required by State mandates, this is the sole and proximate cause of petitioners' worsening performances, without consideration of any other factors which may be causing the performance of each child to decline.

There have been no proofs submitted by petitioners, other than the broad allegations raised in their certifications, and their reliance on the general findings and reports of the DOE, to establish that E.R., F.H., and K.V. are hopelessly in danger of not receiving a thorough and efficient education during the pendency of this matter. Mere allegations that tests have been failed and that performance is decreasing does not necessarily distinguish these students from any other student in this State who may also have failed a test and/or have worsening grades. It would be unfair to place the blame for the alleged shortcomings of the petitioner schoolchildren solely at the feet of the District, without regard for some consideration of sufficient proofs to indicate that the District is to blame. Without those proofs, it cannot be determined whether or not these petitioner schoolchildren are currently receiving a thorough and efficient education.

The DOE reports submitted by petitioners do not indicate that one hundred percent of the children at the District's schools attended by the petitioner schoolchildren are failing. What is indicated in the reports is that the District has not met performance indicators as required by the State in five DPR areas. No proofs have been submitted to show that the failure of the District to meet the performance indicators as required by the State in the five DPR areas has deprived these three petitioner schoolchildren of a thorough and efficient education. Since a deprivation of education has not been proven, no irreparable harm can be found. In short, given the lack of those necessary proofs, petitioners cannot meet their burden of proving that E.R., F.H., and K.V. will suffer irreparable harm if the request for emergent relief is denied. In addition, even if the petitioners did prove that the District failed to provide the petitioner children with a thorough and efficient education, no showing has been made that such a failure cannot be remedied through means other than a complete transfer out-of-district.

In addition, petitioners argue that, under New Jersey law, violations of statutes that provide for equitable remedies constitute irreparable harm per se. Petitioners' Brief, p. 17 (citing Matawan Reg'l Teachers Ass'n v. Matawan-Aberdeen Reg'l Bd. of Educ., 212 N.J. Super. 328 (Ch. Div. 1986)). Petitioners argue that the three schoolchildren are being deprived of the appropriate education they are entitled to receive, and that this deprivation is not only a violation of constitutional right, but also a violation of numerous school laws and regulations, including the School Funding Reform Act of 2008 (SFRA), N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-43 et seq. However, the allegation that the District has violated the SFRA is insufficient to find irreparable harm per se. Even if petitioners could show that the District has violated the SFRA by failing to provide its students with a constitutionally-mandated thorough and efficient education, petitioners have not shown that such violation would constitute per se irreparable harm that obviates the need to show that petitioners' children, individually, will suffer irreparable harm if their motion for emergent relief is not granted.

As petitioners acknowledge, "under New Jersey law, violations of statutes that provide for equitable remedies constitute irreparable injuries per se." Matawan, supra, 212 N.J. Super. at 335 (citation omitted). Thus, "[w]here injunctions are creatures of statute, all that needs be proven is a statutory violation." Matawan, supra, 212 N.J. Super. at 335 (citation omitted). Here, the SFRA does not provide for injunctive relief in response to a statutory violation. See N.J.S.A. 18A:7F-43 to -63. Thus, petitioners have not shown that they are entitled to a finding of irreparable harm per se.²

² Petitioners have also failed to show that in New Jersey, an alleged deprivation of a constitutional right, such as the one guaranteed by the thorough and efficient clause, triggers a finding of irreparable harm.

I therefore FIND that petitioners have failed to meet their burden of establishing that E.R., F.H., and K.V. will suffer irreparable harm if the relief sought is not granted.

Since I have determined that no irreparable harm exists at this time, it is not necessary for me to address the remaining criteria under Crowe, supra. Nevertheless, I will address the three remaining criteria.

As for the second and third requirements for the granting of emergent relief, petitioners argue that there is a clear legal right underlying their claim, and that there is a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim. The District counters that petitioners' claims are rooted in the unsettled legal theory that attendance at an underperforming school constitutes deprivation of a constitutionally adequate education, that petitioners have not established a legal right to attend a school outside of their district of residence, that petitioners cannot prevail due to their failure to join necessary parties, and that petitioners' claims are premature.

I FIND the legal right underlying petitioners' claims is not settled; and I further FIND petitioners do not, at this time, have a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim. Although the petitioners are correct when they argue that every child has a constitutional right to a thorough and efficient education, there remain issues as to whether these particular petitioner schoolchildren in their particular circumstances are receiving a thorough and efficient education. Petitioners have not established, through the proofs submitted herein, that they are not receiving a thorough and efficient education. Mere reliance on an overwhelmingly unfavorable general review of the District's schools, without more, is not enough to establish that petitioners are not receiving a thorough and efficient education in each of their particular circumstances. What role, if any, the failure of the District's schools to perform as required by state mandates played in the petitioners' progress or lack thereof, has yet to be determined. Further information that may be developed may show that there has not been a failure to educate each petitioner herein. However, that information has not yet been produced, and it is impossible to determine at this time that petitioners are likely to succeed on the merits of the underlying claim. In addition, petitioners are not likely to prevail on their claims because of their failure to name all indispensable parties, including the State of New Jersey and other school districts that might be ordered to accept these students as a remedy to petitioners' concerns.

As for the fourth requirement for granting emergent relief, petitioners aver that the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioners will suffer greater harm than the District if emergent relief is not granted. They argue the greater loss and potential for loss will be suffered by the children without a corresponding risk of loss by the District. The District argues that petitioners will not suffer greater harm than the District. The petitioner schoolchildren are in school and receiving an education. Petitioners agree that the District, by the aforementioned letter from the DOE dated August 9, 2012, has been given six to eight months before the State may decide to exercise the full range of its authority. The District is still in the process of attempting to comply with the directives issued by the State. The District has an interest in, and is entitled to attempt to comply with the State mandates. The District also has an interest in complying with the State mandates because it faces a State-led intervention. Therefore, I FIND that the equities do not favor on balance the granting of emergent relief.

IT IS therefore on this 23rd day of October 2012, ORDERED that petitioners' application for emergency relief is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief shall remain in effect until the issuance of the decision on the merits in this matter.

A status conference shall be arranged with the parties to determine the scheduling of dates for a decision on the merits of this matter.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the respondent Board of Education of the City of Burlington's October 2010 determination that petitioner and her children did not reside in Burlington and were not eligible for a free public education in the Burlington City School District for the 2009-2012 and 2010-2011 school years. Petitioner asserted in her appeal that she and her family were homeless. In December 2011, petitioner presented acceptable proof of residency in the City of Burlington, and the Board dropped its challenge of petitioner's residency status. The Board of Education of the City of Burlington (Burlington) filed a letter requesting that the matter be dismissed as moot.

The ALJ found that Burlington's motion to dismiss was essentially a motion for summary judgment; there are no issues of material fact remaining between the parties, and the matter is ripe for summary decision. The ALJ concluded that no contested case exists between the parties, and the matter is moot. Accordingly, he dismissed the petition.

Upon full and careful consideration, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ that the matter is appropriately dismissed as moot. In so concluding, the Commissioner referenced the July 12, 2012 letter from counsel for the Board of Education of the City of Burlington requesting that the matter be dismissed, as well another letter in the file – dated January 23, 2012 – which indicated that the matter of tuition payments for the period from September 2011 to November 2011 had been settled between the Beverly City and Burlington City Boards of Education, and as such there is no existing dispute between the two Boards of Education. Accordingly, the petition was dismissed as moot.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed. The parties did not file exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon full consideration, the Commissioner concurs with the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) that this matter is appropriately dismissed as moot. In so concluding, the Commissioner notes that the record contains a letter, dated July 12, 2012, from counsel for the Board of Education of Burlington City to the ALJ which reports:

On December 6, 2011, the Petitioner presented a one-year rental lease for property located at 570 York Street, Burlington, New Jersey for the period beginning November 16, 2011 and ending November 16, 2012. The Burlington City Board of Education conducted due diligence and determined that Petitioner does reside at 570 York Street, Burlington, New Jersey. The Burlington City Board of Education no longer challenges the residency status of the Petitioner and, as such, this matter is resolved. In light of the above, we request that this matter be dismissed as moot.¹

¹ It is also noted that a prior letter, dated January 23, 2012, from Burlington City Board of Education counsel to the ALJ stated "[i]t is our understanding the Beverly City Board of Education has reimbursed the Burlington City Board of Education for tuition payments for the period from September 2011 to November 2011. As such, there is no existing dispute between the Beverly City and Burlington City Boards of Education."

Accordingly, the recommended decision of the OAL is adopted and the instant petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

BEFORE ELIA A. PELIOS., ALJ:

This matter comes before this tribunal on the motion of the respondent to dismiss the matter as moot. This matter involves a residency appeal to the October 2010 determination that the petitioner and her minor children did not reside in the City of Burlington and were not eligible for a free public education in the Burlington City School District for the 2009-2010 and 2010-2011 school years.

On October 13, 2011, the parties appeared before the undersigned on petitioner's Motion for Emergent Relief. At that time, the undersigned denied the petitioner's Request for Emergent Relief. On October 21, 2011, the Acting Commissioner of Education issued an Order concurring that the petitioner failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief and ordered the immediate enrollment of the petitioner's children in the Burlington City Public Schools pending the resolution of a dispute concerning homelessness.

On December 6, 2011, the petitioner presented a one-year rental lease for property located at 570 York Street, Burlington, New Jersey for the period beginning November 16, 2011 and ending November 16, 2012. The Burlington City Board of Education conducted due diligence and determined that petitioner does reside at 570 York Street, Burlington, New Jersey. The Burlington City Board of Education dropped its challenge of the residency status of the petitioner. The parties agreed pursuant to a telephone conference that the matter was resolved. Petitioner indicated that she would send a notice withdrawing her request for an appeal.

No such letter was ever provided, and several attempts to contact petitioner to determine the status of the letter were unsuccessful. Telephone conferences with due notice were scheduled in this matter on May 9, 2012 and July 10, 2012. The petitioner did not participate in these conferences, did not seek an adjournment of these conferences, and did not provide any explanation for her failure to participate in these conferences. Furthermore she did not in any way oppose or otherwise respond to this motion. When no opposition to the motion was forthcoming the record closed on September 10, 2012.

Respondent's motion to dismiss the herein matter as moot is essentially a motion for summary decision. Motions for summary decision are governed by N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(a), (b). This regulation, similar to the Judiciary's R. 4:46-1 motion for summary judgment, is "the determination [of] whether there exists a genuine issue with respect to a material fact challenged

. . . that requires a consideration of whether the competent evidential materials presented, when viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party, in consideration of the applicable evidentiary standard, are sufficient to permit a rational fact finder to resolve the alleged disputed issue in favor of the non-moving party. Brill v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. 142 N.J. 520, 523 (1953).

In the present case, there are no issues of material fact remaining between the parties as to the issues raised in furtherance to respondent's motion. Accordingly, I FIND that summary decision is appropriate in this matter. Furthermore, given the respondent's dropping its challenge to petitioner's residency, coupled with petitioner's expressed willingness to withdraw the matter on the January 13, 2011, conference call and her failure to pursue this matter any further despite be given several opportunities to do so, I FIND and CONCLUDE that no contested case exists between these parties, and that the matter is moot.

Therefore, it is ORDERED that respondent's motion to dismiss this matter as moot be and is hereby GRANTED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner appealed the determination of the respondent Board that her sister, S.H., is ineligible to receive a free public education in the Hawthorne school district. D.H., the mother of S.H., requested to be joined in the litigation. C.B. contended that her sister came to live with her after her mother's house was damaged by hurricane Irene, thus enabling S.H. to complete her senior year at the Passaic County Technical Institute. The Board filed a counterclaim against both C.B. and D.H., seeking tuition for the period of S.H.'s ineligible attendance.

The ALJ found that: no evidence was presented – aside from broad statements by C.B. and a temporary guardianship agreement, which was not provided by a court of law – in support of S.H.'s domicile during the time in question, April through June 2011 and for the entire 2011-2012 school year; and the overwhelming evidence suggests that S.H. was residing at her mother's residence in Garfield during the period at issue; The ALJ concluded that S.H. was not domiciled in Hawthorne and accordingly D.H. and C.B. are liable for the costs of educating S.H. for the period in question. The ALJ stated that the Board provided certification that the per-student tuition rate for the 2011-2012 school year was $11,864 and the daily cost was $69.91.

Upon a full review, the Commissioner found that Initial Decision does not provide the information necessary to determine the tuition rate for the 2010-2011 school year, without which it is not possible to compute the exact amount of tuition owed. Accordingly, the Initial Decision was rejected and the matter was remanded to the OAL for a determination of the total amount of tuition due and owing.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed. This consolidated matter involves a residency dispute between the Hawthorne Board of Education (Board) and D.H., the mother of S.H., and C.B., the sister of S.H. The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that S.H. was ineligible to attend school in the district from April 1, 2011 through June 2011, and for the entire 2011-2012 school year. The ALJ also awarded tuition costs to the Board. The parties did not file exceptions to the Initial Decision.

Upon such review, the Commissioner finds that the Initial Decision does not adequately and completely address the tuition costs that D.H. and C.B. are required to reimburse the Board for S.H.'s ineligible attendance in the district. The ALJ ordered that "D.H. reimburse the respondent the full tuition costs associated with the attendance of S.H. in the Hawthorne School District between April through June 2011 and for the entire 2011-2012 school year." (Initial Decision, page 8). The testimony revealed that the per-student tuition rate for the 2011-2012 school year is $11,864 with a per diem rate of $69.91. There is no indication in the Initial Decision, however, as to what the tuition rate was for the 2010-2011 school year. As a result, the Commissioner cannot determine the amount of tuition costs that are owed to the Board for S.H.'s attendance in the district from April through June 2011 despite the fact that D.H. was found liable for those costs as well.

Additionally, the Initial Decision found that C.B. was only responsible for tuition costs associated with S.H. for a portion of the 2011-2012 school year beginning September 30, 2011. The specific amount of tuition costs that C.B. is liable for is also not stated in the Initial Decision. Accordingly the Initial Decision is rejected, and this matter is remanded to the OAL for a determination as to the exact amount of tuition costs that both D.H. and C.B. are liable for in connection with S.H.'s ineligible attendance in the district.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY AND STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner appeals the determination by the Board of Education of Hawthorne (Board) that her sister, S.H., does not reside within the district. The Board filed a Counterclaim for costs of tuition from April 1, 2011, to June 2012 at a cost of $69.91 per day with an annual rate of $11,864.

The appeal was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on December 13, 2011, as a contested case, pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14F-1 to -13.

On February 3, 2012, the undersigned was advised that the matter had been settled pending Board approval. A status conference was held on March 7, 2012, but the matter was not resolved. D.H., the mother of S.H., wanted a hearing and requested to be joined in the litigation.

On March 16, 2012, the Board filed a verified counterclaim not only against petitioner C.B. but also against D.H., the mother of S.H. On April 19, 2012, D.H. filed an Answer to the counterclaim. On June 28, 2012, both actions were consolidated. The matter was originally scheduled to be heard on July 13, 2012, but the Board requested an adjournment because one of its witnesses was unavailable. The matter was then rescheduled for August 28, 2012. Petitioner then requested an adjournment due to an injury she sustained. The matter was rescheduled for September 10, 2012.

On Sunday evening, September 9, 2012, D.H. left a message at the OAL stating that she worked twenty of the last twenty-four hours and was too tired to appear. D.H. was advised by the undersigned the following morning that the matter would be heard as scheduled and allotted her more time to arrive to the OAL for the hearing. D.H. failed to appear, but C.B. did. Since D.H. failed to appear at the hearing, her claim is DISMISSED. However, testimony was taken on the counterclaim to recoup the cost of education provided by the Board.

TESTIMONY

C.B. testified on her own behalf. She stated that when her mother's home in Garfield was damaged by hurricane Irene, her sister, S.H., came to live with her, so that she could complete her senior year at the Passaic County Technical Institute (PCTI). On September 15, 2011, C.B. and D.H. signed an agreement for the temporary guardianship of S.H. commencing on September 1, 2011, and ending on July 14, 2011, when S.H. would become eighteen years of age. (R-5.) Although this document was prepared by an attorney, it was not filed with a court of law. It was not acceptable by the Board and she was provided with its own forms to complete.

C.B. did not receive any support from her mother, D.H., to care for S.H. S.H. had a car which she would sometimes use to stay with D.H. in Garfield. No proof was offered as to the owner of that car.

One of the documents given to C.B. was a residency affidavit for a non-parent resident, which she signed on September 30, 2011. (R-7.) She was also given a residency affidavit which required her landlord to acknowledge that another person would be residing with her. (R-8.)

Janice Maher, a senior secretary in the guidance department, testified for the Board. She stated that she sent registration notices to D.H. on April 21, May 24, and June 15, 2011, requiring that she provide proof of residency to the Board. (R-1.)

D.H. provided a utility bill for the prior Hawthorne address, 60 Sixth Avenue, that was for service at her current Garfield address of 7 Lizette Avenue. (R-3.) On August 4, 2011, a notice was sent to 60 Sixth Avenue, Hawthorne address provided by D.H. advising that proof of residency had not been provided and that S.H. would no longer be permitted attend school. (R-2.) Maher further testified that she received a call from the tenant who had advised that she moved into D.H.'s Hawthorne apartment on April 1, 2011, and to please stop sending petitioner's mail to that address. (R-9.)

Maher requested that the three previously mentioned documents be filled out and returned to the Board. A residency affidavit, dated September 30, 2011, was provided to the Board signed by D.H., appointing C.B. as temporary guardian of S.H. since Hurricane Irene destroyed her residence. (R-6.) A different form of residency affidavit also provided by the Board was signed by C.B. on September 30, 2011, and provided to the Board. (R-7.) The third form requested by the Board was an affidavit to be completed by C.B.'s landlord, which was done on October 2, 2011, and returned to the Board. Maher then forwarded all affidavits to Superintendent Robert Mooney.

Peter Van Der Velde testified on behalf of the Board. He had conducted an investigation requested by Superintendent Robert Mooney as to the residency of S.H. at 147 Arlington Avenue, which was the Hawthorne address provided by petitioner. (R-12.) Van Der Velde stated that he went to that address on December 16, 2011, from 6:30 to 7:30 a.m. and observed no one leave the house.

On December 19, 2011, he returned to the same address and saw a lone female leave in a red jeep at 7:06 a.m. No one else left the house. He then proceeded to the bus stop where he observed S.H.

On December 20, 2011, at the end of the school day, Van Der Velde returned to the same school bus stop and observed no one return to 147 Arlington Avenue.

On December 21, 2011, he observed a red jeep parked in the driveway at 147 Arlington Avenue between the hours of 6:30 and 7:30 a.m. and then proceed to the school bus stop where he observed S.H. being dropped off by a white Chrysler Sebring convertible. He then returned to 147 Arlington Avenue and observed a lone female leave in a red jeep.

On December 23, 2011, he observed two females leave 7 Lizette Avenue in Garfield, NJ in a white Chrysler Sebring convertible and drop a student off at 7:14 a.m. at the same school bus stop that he had previously visited.

On January 3, 2012, Van Der Velde observed S.H. arrive at the same school bus stop after school and walk to 147 Arlington Avenue.

On January 4, 2012, Van Der Velde observed no one leaving 147 Arlington Avenue and observed S.H. being dropped off at the bus stop by the same Chrysler Sebring at 7:16 a.m. He returned to the bus stop after school and did not see any student get off the bus.

On January 5, 2012, Van Der Velde observed two females left 7 Lizette Avenue in the morning and proceeded directly to school bus stop in Hawthorne where he observed the student exit the car.

On January 10, 2012, Van Der Velde returned to the school bus stop after school but no student got off the bus.

On January 11, 2012, he saw the same white Chrysler Sebring convertible leave the Garfield residence and drop S.H. off at school bus stop in Hawthorne. After school, she did not return to the bus stop.

During the evening of January 13, 2012, Van Der Velde went to 7 Lizette Avenue in Garfield which belonged to D.H., and which appeared to be fully habitable. There were no storage containers in the driveway. Subsequently, he checked with the Office of Emergency Management in Garfield and learned that no damage had been reported, or evacuations made, at that address. Van Der Velde concluded that D.H. and S.H. lived at the Garfield address. He submitted a report of his findings to the superintendent.

Superintendent Robert Mooney testified on behalf of the Board in support of its counterclaim for tuition. Upon receipt of the investigation report prepared by Van Der Velde and the documents submitted by petitioner, he determined that S.H. had not been residing in Hawthorne since April 1, 2011. (R-12.) On December 20, 2011, Mooney sent a letter to D.H. advising of his determination and that she would be responsible for tuition, the rate being $11,864 for the school year 2011-2012, since S.H. was no longer residing in Hawthorne. (R-14.) He did not withdraw S.H. from the Hawthorne school system and she was able to complete her senior year. Mooney determined that:

1. From April 1, 2011 until the end of the pertinent school year and for the 2011-2012 school year, S.H., the sister of C.B. and daughter of D.H., attended the Passaic County Technical Institute (High School).

2. The guardianship paper submitted by D.H. was of no significance to suggest that S.H. should be living in Hawthorne. Respondent C.B. never had custody or legal guardianship of S.H. while the latter attended the High School. S.H. resided in Garfield during her senior year.

3. Van Der Velde investigation showed that S.H. lived in Garfield with D.H. and not in Hawthorne with C.B.

[(R-15.)]

FINDINGS OF FACT

Based upon a review of the entire record, I FIND the following to be fact:

1. D.H. is S.H.'s mother. C.B. is S.H.'s sister.
2. The respondent sent registration notices to D.H. on April 21, May 24, and June 15, 2011, to 60 Sixth Avenue, the Hawthorne address on file for D.H., advising that she provide proof of residency to the Board.
3. A new tenant moved into the 60 Sixth Avenue, Hawthorne address on April 1, 2011.
4. On August 4, 2011, a notice was sent to 60 Sixth Avenue, Hawthorne, since it was the address on file, advising that proof of residency had not been provided and that S.H. would not be permitted attend school.
5. A residency affidavit dated September 30, 2011 was provided to the Board and signed by D.H. appointing C.B. as temporary guardian of S.H. The reason listed was that Hurricane Irene had destroyed her residence. (R-6.) Another residency affidavit provided by the Board was signed by C.B. on September 30, 2011, requesting to register S.H. and was returned to the Board. (R-7.) A third form requested by the Board, was completed by C.B.'s landlord on October 2, 2011, and returned to the Board.
6. Investigator Peter Van Der Velde found that S.H. resided with her mother, D.H., in Garfield while attending high school in Hawthorne.

7. On December 20, 2011, Mooney sent a letter to D.H. advising of his determination and that she would be responsible for tuition of $11,864 for the school year 2011-2012, because S.H. was no longer residing in Hawthorne.
8. The Board provided certification that the per-student tuition rate for school year 2011-2012 is $11,864 and the daily cost for the student at the rate of $69.91.

LEGAL ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

The issue in this appeal is whether S.H. was a domiciled student from April 1, 2011, to the end of the school year and through the 2011-2012 school year.

Public schools are required to provide a free education to individuals between the ages of five and twenty years in certain circumstances, including individuals who are domiciled within the school district. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). A person who meets age requirements and is domiciled within a school district may attend its public schools free of charge. N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(a). A person may have many residences but only one domicile. Somerville Bd. of Educ. v. Manville Bd. of Educ., 332 N.J. Super. 6, 12 (App. Div. 2000), aff'd, 167 N.J. 55 (2001). A child's domicile is normally that of his or her parents. Ibid. The domicile of a person is the place where he has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving. In re Unanue, 255 N.J. Super. 362, 374 (Law Div. 1991), aff'd, 311 N.J. Super. 589 (App. Div. 1998), certif. denied, 157 N.J. 541 (1998), cert. denied, 526 U.S. 1051, 119 S. Ct. 1357, 143 L. Ed. 2d 518 (1999).

No evidence, other than broad statements by C.B. and a temporary guardianship agreement, which was not provided by a court of law, were presented in support of S.H.'s domicile during the time in question. Rather, the overwhelming evidence was that S.H. was residing at her mother's residence in Garfield. A thorough inspection conducted on behalf of the Board confirmed that S.H. was seen leaving that address in a convertible and dropped off at a school bus stop in Hawthorne. After school, the investigator waited at that bus stop and never observed S.H. exit a school bus.

In accordance with N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(b)(2), a school board is entitled to recover tuition from a parent or guardian of a child found ineligible to attend a school in its district. Further stated is that "[t]uition shall be computed on the basis of 1/180 of the total annual per pupil cost to the local district multiplied by the number of days of ineligible attendance" Ibid. Mooney testified that the total annual per-pupil cost for the 2011-2012 school year was $11,864.00 with a per diem rate for that school-year at $69.91. S.H. was ineligible to attend Hawthorne from April 1, 2011, to June 2011 and for the whole 2011-2012 school year.

Therefore, I CONCLUDE that D.H. and C.B.¹ are liable to the Board for the costs of tuition for S.H. calculated at the rates previously referenced, from April through June, 2011 and for the entire 2011-2012 school year. The full tuition should be paid to the Board within ninety (90) days of the final decision of the Commissioner of Education, unless an alternative payment schedule has been agreed to by the parties.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, it is hereby ORDERED that any claim by petitioner, D.H., be and is hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

It is further ORDERED that D.H. reimburse respondent the full tuition costs associated with the attendance of S.H. in the Hawthorne School District between April through June 2011 and for the entire 2011-2012 school year. C.B.'s liability for tuition is from September 30, 2011, to the end of the 2011-2012 school year. The Board provided certification that the per-student tuition rate for school year 2011-2012 is $11,864 and the daily cost for the student at the rate of $69.91.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

¹ The BOE is seeking reimbursement from C.B. retroactive to September 30, 2011.

I hereby FILE this Initial Decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, P.O. HEARING OF CYNTHIA RANSON,
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE CITY OF BRIDGETON, CUMBERLAND COUNTY

BEFORE THE COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY

OAL Docket No. EDU 8935-12
Agency Ref. No. 163-6/12

SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

THIS SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT (hereinafter referred to as the "Settlement Agreement") is made effective as of the 9th day of October, 2012 by and between the Petitioner, Bridgeton Board of Education, Cumberland County, New Jersey (hereinafter referred to as the "Board") and the respondent, Cynthia Ranson, (hereinafter referred to as the "Respondent") (collectively the "parties").

WHEREAS, the Board is a body corporate and politic of the State of New Jersey, charged with the statutory responsibilities for the management and administration of the Bridgeton Board of Education in Cumberland County, New Jersey; and

WHEREAS, the Respondent is presently employed by the Board as a tenured teacher; and

WHEREAS, the Board filed certain tenure charges against Respondent alleging unprofessional conduct, more specifically described in the tenure charges filed by the Board on June 15, 2012 (the "Tenure Charges") attached hereto as Exhibit A; and

WHEREAS, the Respondent, by formal response contested the Tenure Charge and offered explanations for her actions and behavior, attached hereto as Exhibit B; and

WHEREAS, the Commissioner of Education for the State of New Jersey (the "Commissioner") referred said charges to the Office of Administrative Law for a plenary hearing before the Honorable William T. Miller; and

WHEREAS, a telephonic pre-hearing conference was held on July 27, 2012; and

WHEREAS, a pre-hearing Order was prepared and filed on July 30, 2012; and

WHEREAS, prior to the first hearing date scheduled for October 3, 2012, the parties discussed terms and conditions of a Settlement Agreement which they believe will resolve the dispute; and

WHEREAS, the parties wish to settle all controversies among and between them, including the charges contained in the Tenure Charges, the defenses and counterclaims, if any, contained in the Response and any and all related or unrelated claims, known or unknown, which could have been asserted by the Board of Education and Respondent; and

WHEREAS, this agreement conforms to the discussions between the parties and their attorneys; and

WHEREAS, the parties acknowledge that the merits of the controversy are in dispute and that neither the Board nor Respondent admits any liability to either, but have reasons to desire that the matter be resolved; and

WHEREAS, the Board and Respondent specifically recognize and acknowledge that any settlement is contingent upon approval by the Commissioner as required by and consistent with the New Jersey Administrative Code Section 6A:3-5.6 and In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Frank Cardonick, State Board of Education decision of April 6, 1983 (1990 School Law Decisions, S.L.C. 842, 846); and

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the agreements, promises, covenants and conditions contained herein, the adequacy and sufficiency of which are expressly acknowledged by the parties hereto, the parties agree as follows:

1. DISMISSAL OF ACTION.

Upon the following grounds:

(a) The respondent will irrevocably resign effective December 31, 2012, but shall not teach in the Bridgeton School System from this time forward.

(b) Ten (10) days after the Settlement Agreement is approved by the Bridgeton Board of Education, the Board will pay Respondent the sum of TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND ($25,000.00) DOLLARS in one lump sum and her release shall then become effective.

(c) The Board has and will continue to pay Respondent's health benefits through December 31, 2012.

(d) Said lump sum payment and health benefit received as provided in paragraphs 1(b) and (c) shall constitute full and absolute payment by the Board to Respondent for all monetary benefits, emoluments or other claims, including but not limited to salary for any period, accumulated sick leave, vacation or other paid leave, benefits, fringe benefits, pension contributions, in-kind or other contributions, opt-out or other payments. The Board, within ten (10) days of the Board of Education's approval of this Settlement Agreement, shall issue a check payable to the order of Respondent or her assignee in the manner directed by the Respondent.

2. GENERAL RELEASE.

Respondent, personally and for her assignee, estate and/or heirs, waives, releases and gives up any and all other claims, demands, obligations, damages, liabilities, causes of action and rights, in law or in equity, known and unknown, that she may have against the Board and any and all of its officers, directors, agents, representatives and employees (present and forever) and their respective successors and assigns, heirs, executors and legal or personal representatives, based upon any act, event or omission occurring before the execution of this Settlement Agreement including, but not limited to, any events related to, arising from or in connection with Respondent's employment with the Board or the Tenure Charges. Respondent specifically waives, releases and gives up any all claims arising from or relating to her employment and/or association with the Board based upon any act, event or omission occurring before the execution of this Settlement Agreement including, but not limited to, any claim that was asserted or could have been asserted under any Federal or State statutes, regulations or common law or board Policies or regulations.

3. NO CLAIMS PERMITTED/COVENANT NOT TO SUE.

Respondent waives her right to file any charge or complaint on her own behalf, to participate as a complainant, a plaintiff or a charging party in any charge or complaint, or to collect damages as a result of any charge or complaint which may be made by any other person or organization on her behalf, with respect to anything which has happened up to the execution of this Settlement Agreement, before any Federal, State or local court of administrative agency against the Board except as such waiver is prohibited by law.

4. ATTORNEY'S FEES.

Each party agrees that each party will bear its own costs and attorney's fees which have been incurred in connection with the within matter and in conjunction with the negotiation and preparation of this Settlement Agreement.

5. NO ADMISSION OF LIABILITY.

It is expressly understood that neither the execution of this Settlement Agreement, nor any other action taken by the Respondent in conjunction with the Board's claims or this settlement, constitute admission by the Respondent or any violation of any law, duty or obligation. It is also understood that the acceptance of this settlement does not constitute any representation by the Board as to the merits of its claims or the lack thereof.

6. ENTIRE AGREEMENT.

This Settlement Agreement contains the sole and entire agreement between the parties hereto. Each party represents and acknowledges that prior to executing this Settlement Agreement, they consulted with or had an opportunity to consult with counsel, have had ample time to do so and that no party relied upon any representation or statement not set forth in this Settlement Agreement made by any other party hereto, or their counsel or representatives, with regard to the subject matter of this Settlement Agreement. No other promises or agreements shall be binding unless in writing, signed by the parties hereto, and expressly stated to represent an amendment to this settlement Agreement.

7. BOARD RESOLUTION.

Attached hereto as Exhibit C is a true copy of a Resolution of the Board, adopted in compliance with the laws of the State of New Jersey, including the Open Public Meetings Act, duly satisfying this Settlement Agreement and authorizing the Board's signatory to sign this Settlement Agreement on its behalf.

8. COMMISSIONER'S APPROVAL.

It is expressly understood that this Settlement Agreement, and the settlement pursuant to the terms listed in this Settlement Agreement, must first be approved by the Commissioner of Education and must meet the following standards as enumerated in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6(a):

(a) Accompaniment by documentation as to the nature of the charges: Petition of Charges are attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibit A with the Response attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibit B.

(b) Explanation of the circumstances justifying the settlement or withdrawal: The Board agrees to request that the Commissioner of Education approve the Board's voluntary dismissal of tenure charges, OAL Docket No. EDU 11928-2011S, Agency Reference No. 282-9/11 with prejudice in light of Ms. Ranson's resignation which is attached hereto as Exhibit D and the lump sum consideration paid by the Board in exchange for a general release. In executing this agreement, Ms. Ranson understands the ultimate decision with regard to the resolution of the Tenure Charges lies with the Commissioner of Education and in the event that the New Jersey Commissioner of Education rejects the settlement between the Board and Ms. Ranson, then this agreement is completely null and void and the Tenure Charges currently pending will continue to be processed. Ms. Ranson understands and has been advised by her counsel of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate. Attached as Exhibit E is Ms. Ranson's Affidavit showing that she has been counseled in every respect and knows that the Board of Examiners can act independently.

(c) Consent of both the charged and charging parties is evidenced by this Settlement Agreement.

(d) Indication the charged party entered into the agreement with a full understanding of her rights is evidenced by this Settlement Agreement.

(e) A showing that the agreement is in the public interest as evidenced by this Settlement Agreement. This Settlement Agreement is also shown to be in the public interest as a result of the parties' separation and satisfaction of any and all claims related to the Tenure Charges. In addition, the public interest is supported by the saving of valuable witness education time in the form of avoidance of students missing class time to testify in court and of teachers and administrators missing time in school during which time their services are required in order to continue providing a thorough and efficient education to the Board's students. The avoidance of subjecting student witnesses to the stress of testifying in court is also evidence that this Settlement Agreement is in the public interest. Furthermore, the cost savings to the Board and the public as a result of settling this matter, which is significantly less than the cost associated with litigating the Tenure Charges, including appeals, evidence that this Settlement Agreement is in the public interest.

(f) Where the charged party is a teaching staff member, a showing that the teaching staff member has been advised by counsel and, by recitation of this provision, Respondent is advised of the Commissioner's duty to refer tenure determinations resulting in loss of position to the State Board of Examiners for possible suspension or revocation of certificate.

9. NON-DISCLOSURE.

Except as may be otherwise required of the Board pursuant to the Open Public Records Act and/or Open Public Meetings Act, such obligations may be modified by Federal or State statutory or administrative provisions as to the privacy of personnel records, no party will broadcast or publicize financial or other elements of this settlement to any third party. The parties are free to respond to inquiries made of them by indicating that the matter has been amicably resolved or satisfactorily settled, and recognize that the Board may disclose the substantive details of this settlement pursuant to a lawful request by providing a lawful request with a copy of this Settlement Agreement.

10. RESPONSE BY HUMAN RESOURCES TO NEW EMPLOYER INQUIRIES.

In the event the Bridgeton School System is contacted by a prospective employer inquiring as to Cynthia Ranson's employment with the Bridgeton School System, they shall be immediately referred to the Human Resources Department (H.R.) and their response to the inquiry shall be to provide the date of hire and date of resignation only.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties have set their hands and seals the day and year first written.

RESPONDENT.	:

The record of this emergent matter, the sound recording of proceedings at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), and the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed. Upon such review, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons set forth in the recommended Order – that petitioner has failed to demonstrate entitlement to emergent relief pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), codified at N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6.

Accordingly, the recommended Order of the OAL denying petitioner’s application for emergent relief is adopted for the reasons expressed therein. This matter shall continue at the OAL with such proceedings as the parties and ALJ deem necessary to bring it to closure.

BEFORE EDWARD J. DELANOY, JR., ALJ:

This matter having been opened on the filing of a petition for emergent relief, submitted by petitioner Elsie Dubac, Ronald S. Gasiorowski, Esq. on the brief, and Bernard M. Reilly, Esq., appearing; and respondent, Board of Education of the Borough of Spring Lake, Monmouth County (hereinafter Board or District), Anthony P. Sciarrillo, Esq. on the brief, and Paul E. Griggs, Esq., appearing, and the undersigned having considered the moving papers in support of emergent relief and exhibits submitted by the petitioner, and opposition papers and exhibits submitted by respondent, and having heard the arguments of counsel, and for good cause shown, has determined from the proofs that petitioner has not met the standards to grant emergent relief as set forth in N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6, pursuant to Crowe v. DeGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1986), as more particularly set forth herein.

Petitioner Dubac is the owner and resident of the single family home located at 415 St. Clair Avenue in Spring Lake, New Jersey. Her residence is immediately across the street from the recreation facilities area of the H.W. Mountz Elementary School that is proposed to be reconstructed and expanded by the Board with a new full sized basketball court being located immediately across from Dubac's home, and adjacent to several of her neighbors.

The H.W. Mountz Elementary School is an elementary school of approximately 300 students. Adjacent to the school for a number of years has been an accessory recreation area – consisting of a small basketball court, a playground, a baseball field, a softball field, and a soccer field. The school and accessory recreation area are located in a residential neighborhood, between St. Clair Avenue and Tuttle Avenue in Spring Lake.

Dubac came to believe that the reconstruction/renovation was being actively promoted by the Spring Lake Education Foundation (hereinafter SLED), the H.W. Mountz Booster Club (hereinafter Booster Club), and the Parent-Teacher Association (hereinafter PTA). These private groups apparently offered to fund the cost of the reconstruction/renovation project, provided the new improvements met certain demands or requirements proffered by these groups.

Dubac learned that the Board had established an Ad Hoc Committee to study the matter and make recommendations to the Board as to a reconstruction project for the playground/basketball court area. From published reports, the Ad Hoc Committee consisted of members of SLED, the Booster Club, PTA, two Board Members (Petrosini and Panzini), and others.

Eventually, the proposed project as recommended by the Ad Hoc Committee came before the Board in May and June 2012. The recommended proposal expanded the physical size of the basketball court itself to be ninety-four feet by sixty feet, including a five foot border, with six backboards/rims. The current court is forty feet by sixty-eight feet with two backboards/rims. The new court will be relocated and constructed on the south side of the recreation area near St. Clair Avenue and immediately across from Dubac's house. The previous location was on the north side of the site approximately one hundred feet from the nearest neighbor.

The matter came before the Board at a Board public meeting on June 4, 2012, and Dubac and many of her neighbors along St. Clair Avenue submitted written statements or made statements expressing their opposition. Nevertheless, the Board voted to authorize/approve the reconstruction/renovation project going forward by a vote of three to two, based on the concept of the Ad Hoc Committee's recommended plan. Thereafter, on June 25, 2012, the Board approved the final plans by a vote of four to one.

Dubac alleges that Board member Petrosini, who was an Ad Hoc Committee member, is affiliated with and active in SLED. Dubac also alleges that Board member Panzini has long been active in the Mid-Monmouth Basketball League, which is a basketball league for pre-high school boys and girls, and has coached teams in that league. His wife Colleen Panzini was a Trustee of that league through approximately June 2011, and his sons apparently participated in that league. By consent of the Board, that league utilizes that school gymnasium in the Mountz School for practices and games. Dubac believes that the league would also propose and intend to utilize the new high school sized basketball court in this proposed renovated Mountz field. It is suggested by Dubac that reasonable discovery will establish personal and perhaps funding connections between the Mid-Monmouth Basketball League and those organizations, and members of the Board, and that pursuit by the Board of placing a full sized basketball court (that should not be necessary for elementary students) near residential homes was in response to positions of those organizations.

Dubac is opposed to the proposed reconstruction/renovation. She urges that it will have a severe and detrimental effect upon the neighborhood, her property, and quality of life. The new, oversized court, with six backboards, is now going to be immediately across the street from Dubac's house. Dubac believes that the court is well beyond anything necessary or appropriate to serve the elementary school or its students and that it will likely be used for various league or adult play outside of school use. This will introduce adults to a grammar school environment. It will completely disrupt the neighborhood and cause irreparable damages and loss of quality of life.

Dubac requests that she be allowed to explore, with reasonable discovery and expert proofs, (1) the connection and conflicts of interest involved in the Board decision, and (2) that the proposed recreational field renovations are not required or appropriate given the needs of the students and the impact on the neighborhood. Dubac requests that emergency relief be granted to disallow construction of the basketball court during the pendency of the case. She argues that if the Board goes forward at this time with the actual reconstruction work, there will be no real opportunity for a proper hearing and a proper decision, and her rights and the rights of other neighbors will be violated or precluded without a hearing or opportunity to have the matter heard.

This litigation was initially commenced by a Complaint and Order to Show Cause filed in Superior Court, Law Division, Monmouth County on July 22, 2012, shortly after the Board adopted a Resolution approving final plans for this project and publicly indicating an intention to commence construction, or allow the commencement of construction by a private group, within a few days. The initial Superior Court Complaint raised procedural objections as to the failure of the Board to present the proposal to the Planning Board as required by N.J.S.A. 40:55D-31 and to present the proposal to the State Commissioner of Education for review and approval. The Complaint also raised substantive objections as to conflict of interest of certain Board members as being affiliated with private groups advocating the expansion and that the expansion was arbitrary and damaging the plaintiffs' property.

The Superior Court Order to Show Cause seeking temporary restraints was primarily based on the procedural issues. That Order to Show Cause was deferred when the Board agreed or advised that it was submitting the proposal to the Planning Board for its review, and would further submit the proposal to the State Board of Education, Bureau of Facility Planning Services, for its review as per N.J.S.A. 18A:18A-16, and the Board would not be commencing construction pending those submissions and approvals.

The Board did present its proposal to the Planning Board at the Planning Board meeting of August 8, 2012. The Planning Board attorney subsequently sent a letter to the State Board of Education advising of the Board's review comments.

The Board thereafter received a letter from the State Board of Education indicating that the proposed expansion/renovation had been reviewed and approved by the State Board. The instant Petition of Appeal as to the Board's determination regarding the field expansion/renovation, raising issues as to conflict of interest and the suitability of the proposed renovation for educational purposes, was then filed by the Dubac, and it has been referred by the State Board to the Office of Administrative Law (hereinafter OAL).

In the Superior Court lawsuit, the Board in August 2012 filed a Motion to Dismiss the Complaint on the basis that jurisdiction rested in the State Commissioner of Education (and the OAL). That Motion was eventually granted by Judge Lawrence Lawson by written Decision in late October 2012. An Order was also entered on November 12, 2012.

While that case was still pending in Superior Court, the project commenced. Dubac believes the Board is intending to allow the Booster Club to actually perform the renovation before the instant case is heard and decided by this tribunal and/or the Commissioner of Education.

When the Order to Show Cause for Injunctive Relief was filed in Superior Court, Judge Lawson was on vacation and Judge Baumann entered a short term Injunctive Order pending Judge Lawson's return. Judge Lawson, in his written decision in October 2012, extended that Injunctive Relief through November 25, 2012, and also decided that further action on the merits and/or Injunctive Relief should be decided by the Administrative Law Judge and/or the Commissioner of Education pursuant to the pending Petition.

Dubac argues that the Board's re-initiating commencement and performance of the renovation will cause an irreparable harm to the petitioner and an irreparable change in the situation, and will preclude a proper assessment and determination on the petition and issues raised by petitioner. If the work is actually substantially commenced or performed, there will be no way to reverse the improvements and reconstruct the recreational fields/equipment the way they were, if the Board's action is invalidated. The Board has proceeded with this major proposed change and construction while this case is pending, and given that public money and/or public property is involved and there is a challenge pending by citizens and taxpayers, such construction should be stopped. Such action is without basis and will cause an irreparable change in position before the matter is adjudicated.

Petitioner also argues that there are meritorious issues to present regarding the conflict of interest arising from certain Board members being affiliated with or members of private groups advocating the particular contested design and layout of the renovation/expansion, and also as to the education validity of this proposed substantial expansion of the basketball court. The petitioner is not totally opposed to improving the recreation fields/equipment, the petitioner's position is opposing and challenging the relocation and enlargement of the present basketball court with multiple baskets located with a few feet of petitioner's (and other) residences. Consequently, the petitioner seeks emergency relief precluding the construction work from irreparably changing the situation prior to this petition and these issues being decided by this Administrative Court and/or the Commissioner of Education.

The Board submits that petitioner has not carried their burden nor satisfied all of the legal prerequisites under applicable law to sustain this application for emergent relief. It argues that the conflict of interest issue has already been decided in favor of the two school board members in a case previously decided by the school ethics Commission in the matter of Close v. Panzini and Petrosini, Spring Lake Board of Education, Monmouth County, Dkt. 22-12. As a result, the conflict of interest allegation has been rendered moot. It also urges that a board of education's actions are entitled to a presumption of lawfulness and good faith, and that the actions of the Board were not arbitrary and/or capricious.

Under Crowe v. DiGioia, 90 N.J. 126 (1982), N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6(b) and N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.6, emergency relief may be granted if the judge determines that:

1. the petitioner will suffer irreparable harm if the relief is not granted;
2. the legal right underlying the petitioner's claim is settled;
3. the petitioner has a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim; and
4. when the equities and interests of the parties are balanced, the petitioner will suffer greater harm than the respondent will suffer if the requested relief is not granted.

Emergent relief is not appropriate unless all four of the above requisites are satisfied.

As for the first requirement for the granting of emergent relief, petitioner argues that in allowing the commencement of work to relocate the substantially expanded basketball court to within a few feet of her home prior to this dispute being heard and decided will cause harm. The work itself will substantially and detrimentally affect her home and quality of life. Allowing the work to go forward will eliminate the possibility of maintaining the status quo, should petitioner be successful. The impact upon her home and quality of life from the initiation of construction of these facilities, including the substantial basketball court with six backboards/rims being located within approximately twenty feet of her home will be immediate, sever, and adverse.

The Board argues that the petitioner does not set forth any facts as to how the basketball court will impact her adversely. Without more specific facts, the record will not support the issuance of an emergent order. Mr. Gasiorowski's and petitioner's Certification are void of any facts that support the argument that petitioner will incur "substantial injury to a material degree" if construction of the basketball court goes forward. While she may not approve of the construction of a basketball court, without more her application must be denied. Where the concerns are speculative, relief should not be granted merely to allay the fears and apprehensions or to soothe the anxiety of the parties. Adams v. Freedom Forge Corp., 204 F.3d 475, 490 (3d Cir. 2000); Continental Group, Inc. v. Amoco Chemicals, Corp., 614 F.2d 351, 359 (3d Cir. 1992); N.J. State AFL-CIO v. State Fed. of Dist. Bds. of Educ. Of N.J., 93 N.J. Super. 31, 41 (Ch. Div. 1966). Petitioner's stated reasons for relief are not enough to meet the standard necessary for immediate and irreparable harm.

In this case, the facts do not demonstrate that petitioner, and the public, will be irreparably damaged if the respondent Board and its agents go forward with this work and it is ultimately determined as invalidly authorized. "Irreparable harm" is defined as the type of harm "that cannot be redressed adequately by monetary damages." Crowe, supra, 90 N.J. at 132-33. In addition, the irreparable harm standard contemplates that the harm be both substantial and immediate. Subcarrier Communications, Inc. v. Day, 229 N.J. Super. 634, 638 (App. Div. 1977). However, pecuniary damages may sometimes be inadequate because of the nature of the injury or the right affected. Crowe, supra, 90 N.J. at 133. For example, in Crowe the Court determined neither an unwarranted eviction nor reduction to poverty could be compensated adequately by monetary damages awarded after a distant hearing. Id.

In making her arguments, petitioner has offered no credible evidence, other than the general and broad certifications of Dubac and counsel for Dubac, which could support a finding that the Board should be enjoined from commencing work on this project in order to prevent irreparable harm. The certifications contain nothing more than unsupported allegations that petitioner will suffer harm. Petitioner presented no credible evidence, in the form of a certification or affidavit from a qualified, certified expert that would support a finding that the basketball court is unwarranted or that its impact on the neighborhood will be arbitrary, and that petitioner would suffer some specific harm as a result. There is no evidence in the record, other than mere allegations, to support that the work must be suspended in order to prevent irreparable harm. Petitioner asks this tribunal to find that hypothetical harm will come to petitioner as a result of construction of the basketball court. Hypothetical harm is insufficient to show irreparable harm. Without the necessary proofs, it cannot be determined whether or not this petitioner will be harmed by the continuance of the construction. If the Board moves forward with construction, the Board risks the possibility of having to undo the work if petitioner is successful in her challenge to the Board's action. That is a calculated decision that the Board has the right to make.

Since a deprivation of property rights has not been proven, and any potential harm to petitioner is merely speculative, no irreparable harm can be found. Given the necessary proofs as outlined in the moving papers, petitioner has not met her burden of proving that she will suffer irreparable harm if the request for emergent relief is denied, the project moves forward, and she is successful in her challenge. In short, given the lack of those necessary proofs, petitioner cannot meet her burden of proving that she will suffer irreparable harm if the request for emergent relief is denied.

I therefore FIND that petitioner has failed to meet her burden of establishing that she will suffer irreparable harm if the relief sought is not granted. Since I have determined that no irreparable harm exists at this time, it is not necessary for me to address the remaining criteria under Crowe, supra. Nevertheless, I will address the three remaining criteria.

As for the second and third requirements for the granting of emergent relief, petitioner argues that there is a clear legal right underlying her claim, and that there is a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim. The Board counters that as set forth hereinbefore, the conflict of interest allegation was decided in James Close v. James Panzini and Anthony Petrosini, M.D., Spring Lake Board of Education, Monmouth County, School Ethics Commission Docket #22-12. Therefore, the conflict of interest claim is moot. With regard to the action of the Board in approving the project, petitioner has submitted no facts to support the claim that the Board's actions were arbitrary and/or capricious. In fact, petitioner has failed to set forth any legal basis that supports their claim regarding the actions of the Board. Respondent's approval of the project and plans, like that of any administrative agency, must be upheld unless it is deemed "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable." Non-Profit Affordable Housing v. COAH, 265 N.J. Super. 475, 479 (App. Div. 1993); Shuster v. Bd. of Ed. of Montgomery Twp., 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 670, 676, adopted Comm'r. 96 N.J.A.R.2d (EDU) 677. A board of education's actions "are entitled to a presumption of lawfulness and good faith." Accordingly, where board actions are challenged, the challenger bears the burden of proving that such actions were unlawful, or arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Shuster, 96 N.J.A.R.2d at 676 (citing Schinck v. Westwood Bd. of Ed., 60 N.J. Super. 448 (App. Div. 1960), and Quinlan v. North Bergen Bd. of Ed., 73 N.J. Super. 40, 46 (App. Div. 1962)).

The "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable" standard of review is narrow in its scope, and consequently imposes a heavy burden on the challengers of board actions. The New Jersey courts have defined this standard as follows:

In the law, 'arbitrary' and 'capricious' means having no rational basis . . . Arbitrary and capricious action of administrative bodies means willful and unreasoning action, without consideration and in disregard of circumstances. Where there is room for two opinions, action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration, even though it may be believed that an erroneous conclusion has been reached . . . Moreover, the court should not substitute its judgment for that of an administrative or legislative body if there is substantial evidence to support the ruling.

[Bayshore Sewage Co. v. Dept. of Env'tl. Protection, 122 N.J. Super. 184, 199-200 (Ch. Div. 1973), aff'd. 131 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1974) (internal citations omitted)(emphasis added).] As such, "absent a clear showing of abuse of discretion," the Commissioner will not "substitute his judgment for that of the Board of Education." Massaro v. Bd. of Ed. of the Borough of Bergenfield, 1965 S.L.D. 84, 85. In Kopera v. Bd. of Ed. of West Orange, 60 N.J. Super. 288 (App. Div. 1960), the Appellate Division discussed the "well established rule that action of the local board [of education] which lies within the area of its discretionary powers may not be upset unless patently arbitrary without rational basis or induced by improper motives." Id. at 94 (emphasis added).

The actions of the Board as set forth in the record, including its actions in approving the project after numerous public meetings, demonstrate the Board's actions were not arbitrary or capricious. There does not appear to be a well-settled legal right supporting the petitioner and not the Board. I FIND the legal right underlying petitioner's claim is not settled; and I further FIND that petitioner does not, at this time, have a likelihood of prevailing on the merits of the underlying claim. Petitioner has not established, through the proofs submitted herein, that she is likely to prevail on the merits. As that information has not yet been produced, it is impossible to determine at this time that petitioner is likely to succeed on the merits of the underlying claim.

As for the fourth requirement for granting emergent relief, petitioner argues that she will suffer greater harm than the Board if emergent relief is not granted. She urges the greater loss and potential for loss will be suffered by petitioner without a corresponding risk of loss by the Board. The Board argues that petitioner will not suffer greater harm than the Board, and that petitioner has failed to identify any hardship. Fears and apprehension are not enough to suggest a hardship. In fact, the Board urges that the Board and the H.W. Mountz School students will suffer a greater hardship. Specifically, the playground portion of the project has been completed, however, the basketball court portion now exists in a condition where the dirt has been excavated and the area cannot be used by the students. Therefore, granting the requested relief will cause far greater harm to the Board than to the petitioner. I FIND that the equities do not favor on balance the granting of emergent relief. Petitioner has not alleged any facts, other than speculation, to support the finding of a hardship.

IT IS therefore on this 3rd day of December, 2012, ORDERED that petitioner's application for emergency relief is DENIED.

This order on application for emergency relief shall remain in effect until the issuance of the decision on the merits in this matter.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

IN THE MATTER OF THE TENURE
HEARING OF JENYA KNOX, SCHOOL DISTRICT OF THE TOWNSHIP OF UNION, UNION COUNTY

Sanford R. Oxfeld, Esq., for petitioner (Oxfeld Cohen, P.C.)

James L. Plosia, Jr., Esq., for respondent (Apruzzese, McDermott, Mastro & Murphy, attorneys)

Record Closed: November 19, 2012

Decided: November 21, 2012

BEFORE JOANN LASALA CANDIDO, ALJ:

This matter involves tenure charges of insubordination and conduct unbecoming certified by the School District of the Township of Union (District) against Jenya Knox (Knox) , is a tenured teacher employed by the District since January 1, 2000, under the Tenure Employees' Hearing Law, N.J.S.A. 18A:6-10 to -18.1.

Subsequently, the matter was referred by the Commissioner of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on January 10, 2012 for a hearing as a contested case.

After numerous status conferences and adjournment requests, both parties have agreed to a proposed settlement, subject to approval by the Commissioner. In accordance with the decision of the State Board of Education in In re Cardonick, State Board decision of April 6, 1983 [1990 School Law Decisions (S.L.D.) 842, 846] and as codified by N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6, the record of any proposed settlement must include:

. . . the nature of the charges, the length of the teacher's employment, circumstances justifying the settlement, consent or authorization by the Board of Education and the teacher to the proposed agreement, the administrative law judge's finding that the teacher entered into the agreement with a full understanding of his or her rights and [a finding] that the agreement is consistent with the public interests.

Based upon my review of the record, I FIND that the proposed settlement is consistent with the public interests for the following reasons:

1. Knox has been employed as a special education teacher with the District since January 1, 2000.
2. She achieved tenure as a special education teacher in the Union Township School District in January 2, 2003.
3. It is anticipated that the hearing in this matter would be protracted and costly.
4. If a hearing becomes necessary, the District has identified school personnel who are potential witnesses.
5. Litigation of the charges would lead to the disruption of the District's educational program due to the great amount of time lost by administrators and other personnel who would be required to testify to the incidence which led to the filing of the tenure charges against an employee who has resigned her tenured teaching position with the District effective July 1, 2012.
6. Knox agrees to pay the District the sum of $5,854.29 which represents a repayment to the District of monies that the District maintains it overpaid her in salary.
7. The monies will be paid to the District no later than March 31, 2013.
8. As required by State law, the District will provide written notification to the New Jersey State Board of Examiners that Knox resigned her tenured teaching staff position in the District, while tenure charges for unbecoming conduct were pending against her.

9. Under the best of circumstances, the hearing needs to be conducted and then the administrative law judge would have forty-five days to prepare an initial decision and the
10. Commissioner would have an additional forty-five days for review and issuance of a final decision.
11. If the tenure matter proceeds to hearing, both parties would incur costs of paying their attorneys for a likely lengthy hearing.
12. The settlement fully disposes of all issues in controversy.

Based upon the foregoing, I CONCLUDE that the terms of settlement are in the public interest.

It is ORDERED that the parties comply with the terms of settlement and that these proceedings are hereby concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

STIPULATION OF SETTLEMENT

Petitioner Union Township Board of Education ("District") and Respondent Jenye Knox ("Ms. Knox") in the above-captioned matter hereby agree to resolve all outstanding issues with respect to the Tenure Charges the Board has filed against Ms. Knox pursuant to the following terms:

1. The Tenure Charges are hereby dismissed with prejudice.
2. Ms. Knox resigned her tenured teaching position with the Union Township School District effective July 1, 2012.

the District claims it overpaid Ms. Knox in salary. Ms. Knox denies the claim that the District overpaid her and further claims that she was entitled to retain those monies, and, without any admission of liability, is willing to make payment to the District to end these proceedings. Those monies will be paid to the District no later than March 31, 2013. Payment of these monies will be guaranteed by a Promissory Note given by Ms. Knox, which Promissory Note provide for imposition of interest, penalties, and attorney fees against Ms. Knox if the aforementioned monies are not paid in full by Ms. Knox to the Union Township School District on or before March 31, 2013. A copy of the executed Promissory Note is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

4. As required by State law, the District will provide written notification to the New Jersey State Board of Examiners that Ms. Knox resigned her tenured teaching staff position in the Union Township School District, while Tenure Charges for unbecoming conduct were pending against her. Once Administrative Law Judge Candido issues her Initial Decision in this matter accepting this Stipulation of Dismissal, the District will complete paperwork related to Ms. Knox's disability pension application to the New Jersey Division of Pensions. In that paperwork, the District will inform the Division of Pensions of the precise status of this case (i.e., a Stipulation of Dismissal approved by ALJ Candido which has not yet been approved by the New Jersey Department of Education). The District further agrees that, if and when the Commissioner of Education accepts this Stipulation and issues it as a Final Decision, the District will notify the Division of Pensions of that fact.

5. The parties hereby agree that they have entered into this Settlement voluntarily and willingly, and without being under any duress. They further aver that they had the opportunity to consult with respective counsel concerning the terms of this Settlement, and they acknowledge by their signatures below that they are satisfied with the representation provided to them by their respective attorneys.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner sought reversal of the final decision of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) stripping North Bergen High School (North Bergen) of the 2011 North Jersey, Section 1, Group IV, State Football Championship, for recruiting violations. The petitioner did not challenge the underlying recruiting violations as determined by the NJSIAA Controversies Committee, but contends that the matter should never have come before the Executive Committee and was not afforded the requisite due process before that committee. The matter had come before the Executive Committee when Montclair High School – the school that lost the state championship game to North Bergen – appealed the penalty decision of the Controversies Committee, which placed North Bergen on probation for two years and required the school to comply with a corrective action plan regarding its process for determining student eligibility. The Controversies Committee’s penalty determination had not required North Bergen to forfeit its state championship.

The petitioner argued, inter alia, that the Executive Committee wrongly considered Montclair’s appeal of the Controversies Committee’s decision, and emphasized that Montclair was not a party to the original hearing and thus should have been precluded by NJSIAA bylaws from filing an appeal. The NJSIAA contended that the Executive Committee enacts the bylaws and has the authority to interpret and administer its own rules – including Article XIII, Section 5, which states that “in the event any party is aggrieved by a decision of the Controversies Committee, it may appeal to the Executive Committee.” The NJSIAA interpreted any aggrieved party to include Montclair because it was the member school that had lost the state title to North Bergen, and that Montclair’s interest did not become real until after the Controversies Committee determined that North Bergen had cheated. Accordingly, the NJSIAA contended that the Executive Committee’s decision to allow Montclair to appeal the penalty aspect of the case was not arbitrary or capricious; the NJSIAA also asserted that their bylaws are clear that the Executive Committee has the final word on penalty decisions.

The Assistant Commissioner – to whom this matter has been delegated to pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34 – upheld the NJSIAA’s decision and dismissed the petition, finding that the petitioner did not meet its burden so as to entitle it to prevail on appeal. In so deciding, the Assistant Commissioner – whose judgment may not be substituted for that of the NJSIAA on appeal – noted that the NJSIAA’s decision to modify the penalty against North Bergen was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable as it was based upon the Controversies Committee’s findings of significant recruiting violations.

PETITIONER,	:
V.	:	COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION
NEW JERSEY STATE	:	DECISION
INTERSCHOLASTIC	:

RESPONDENT.	:

For Petitioner, North Bergen Board of Education, Patrick J. Jennings, Esq.

For Respondent, New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association, Steven. P. Goodell, Esq.

For Montclair Board of Education, Derlys Maria Gutierrez, Esq.

This case involves an appeal of a decision of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) Executive Committee stripping North Bergen High School (North Bergen) of the 2011 North Jersey, Section 1, Group IV, State Football Championship, for recruiting violations.¹ On appeal, North Bergen is not challenging the underlying recruiting violations, but rather contends that this matter should not have come before the Executive Committee, and that it was not afforded the requisite due process before the Executive Committee.

Athletic competition in New Jersey's public schools is overseen by the NJSIAA, a voluntary, non-profit organization which promulgates the rules and regulations governing high school athletics. See, B.C. v. Cumberland Reg. Sch. Dist., 220 N.J. Super. 214, 234 (App. Div. 1987). The

NJSIAA member schools have adopted a number of eligibility rules for student athletes that have been approved by the Commissioner of Education pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3 and are published in the NJSIAA Handbook. One of the eligibility rules is the Athletic Recruitment Rule, which prohibits schools – or anyone associated with the school – from pressuring, urging or enticing a student to enroll in or transfer to the school for athletic purposes. NJSIAA Bylaws, Article V, Section 4.D. Schools accused of recruiting are subjected to a hearing before the Controversies Committee, and face potential penalties including probation, forfeiture of games and/or championship rights and the suspension of players and/or coaches. NJSIAA Bylaws, Article X, Penalties.

On December 3, 2011 the North Bergen High School football team won the 2011 North Jersey, Section 1, Group IV, State Football Championship. Thereafter, on January 22, 2012, the Star Ledger published an article alleging that two of North Bergen's star players, D.L. and E.M., had been recruited to play football and were living in apartments rented out by the football coach, Vincent Ascolese. As a result of the Star Ledger article, the NJSIAA asked North Bergen to conduct an investigation and report its findings. On February 9, 2012, North Bergen issued a report prepared by special counsel Michael Gannaio.

NJSIAA Executive Director Steven Timko reviewed North Bergen's report and determined that a hearing should be held before the NJSIAA Controversies Committee to determine whether North Bergen or Coach Ascolese had broken NJSIAA rules prohibiting recruiting. Following a hearing where testimony was taken,² the Controversies Committee found that North Bergen and Coach Ascolese violated NJSIAA's recruitment rule. Specifically, the Controversies Committee found that two students, D.L. and E.M., were recruited by North Bergen; both students received special treatment at the time of registration; and Coach Ascolese himself provided subsidized housing to the students in the district without a written lease. Additionally, the Controversies Committee concluded that D.L. was provided monetary assistance by Coach Ascolese's family during a trip to the top-prospect combine (an event which provides players an opportunity to demonstrate their abilities) in Oklahoma. Finally, the Controversies Committee determined that either North Bergen knew or should have known that D.L. was living alone and that he was not a bona fide permanent resident of North Bergen. Based on the recruitment violations, the Controversies Committee placed North Bergen on probation for two years and required North Bergen to comply with a corrective action plan describing the school's process for determining student eligibility. The Controversies Committee did not require North Bergen to forfeit its state football championship.

On May 25, 2012, Montclair High School – the school that lost to North Bergen in the state championship game – appealed the decision of the Controversies Committee to NJSIAA's Executive Committee. Montclair's appeal challenged the penalty imposed by the Controversies Committee, not the findings or conclusions. Following a hearing on June 6, 2012, the Executive Committee: denied the request of North Bergen for an adjournment of the hearing on behalf of Coach Ascolese due to the coach's health condition; found that Montclair had standing to challenge the Controversies Committee's decision; and modified the penalty imposed on North Bergen. The Executive Committee held that the recruitment violations found by the Controversies Committee warranted the forfeiture of the 2011 Section I, Group IV State Football Championship, and as a result no championship was awarded in that Section.

On September 4, 2012, North Bergen filed a petition with the Commissioner of Education challenging the decision of the NJSIAA. On appeal, North Bergen argues that the Executive Committee's decision should be reversed because the committee wrongfully entertained Montclair's appeal of the Controversies Committee's decision. North Bergen emphasizes that Montclair was not a party to the Controversies Committee's hearing and thus is precluded under the NJSIAA bylaws from filing an appeal. North Bergen claims that if Montclair was truly a party, it would have received notice of the hearing before the Controversies Committee and it would have participated in that hearing. Additionally, North Bergen contends that the Executive Committee improperly denied its request to adjourn the June 6, 2012 hearing. Finally, North Bergen asserts that the Executive Committee abandoned its role as an objective appellate body and instead improperly substituted its judgment for the judgment of the Controversies Committee. As a result, North Bergen argues that the NJSIAA's decision should be reversed and Montclair's appeal should be dismissed.

In reply, the NJSIAA maintains that the Executive Committee's decision to hear Montclair's appeal was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable and is entitled to wide deference. The NJSIAA stresses that the Executive Committee enacts the bylaws and has the authority to interpret and administer its own rules. Article XIII, Section 5, states that "in the event any party is aggrieved by a decision of the Controversies Committee, it may appeal to the Executive Committee." The Executive Committee interpreted any aggrieved party to include Montclair because it was the member school that had lost the state title to North Bergen in the championship game and as a result Montclair could appeal the Controversies Committee's determination that North Bergen should not be stripped of the football championship even though it was guilty of recruiting violations. The NJSIAA argues that the Executive Committee's interpretation of the rule was reasonable because it was not until after the Controversies Committee found that North Bergen had cheated that Montclair's interest became real. Montclair had nothing to do with the recruiting violations, but rather had an interest in seeing that the state title it had lost was awarded to a school that had followed the rules of the Association. Further, the NJSIAA notes that Montclair did not appeal the Controversy Committee's findings and conclusions, only the penalty.

As a result, NJSIAA contends that the Executive Committee's decision to allow Montclair to appeal this limited aspect of the case was based on a solid foundation of reason and was not arbitrary or capricious.

The NJSIAA also argues that the Executive Committee had the power to affirm, reverse or modify the decision of the Controversies Committee because the bylaws make clear that the Executive Committee has the final word on any penalty. Moreover, the NJSIAA claims that the penalty imposed by the Executive Committee was reasonable in this case in light of the willful nature of the recruiting violations found by the Controversies Committee. The NJSIAA further stresses that forfeiture of games and forfeiture of championship rights are both penalties allowed under the bylaws.

The NJSIAA maintains that North Bergen was provided with the proper due process. Although North Bergen states that its request for the adjournment of the June 6, 2012 hearing was wrongfully denied, the NJSIAA contends that North Bergen never argued it was prejudiced by the timing of the hearing, but rather merely requested a delay so that Coach Ascolese could be present for the hearing. The NJSIAA points out that only oral argument was permitted at the Executive Committee hearing; Coach Ascolese's attorney was present to argue his case; and Montclair did not appeal any penalty regarding the coach. Therefore, the NJSIAA requests that the Commissioner affirm the decision of the Executive Committee.

It is well-established that the Commissioner's scope of review in matters involving NJSIAA decisions is appellate in nature. N.J.S.A. 18A:11-3; Board of Education of the City of Camden v. NJSIAA, 92 N.J.A.R. 2d (EDU) 182, 188. The Commissioner may not overturn an action by the NJSIAA in applying its rules, absent a demonstration by the petitioner that it applied such rules in a patently arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable manner. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-7.5(a)(2); B.C. v. Cumberland Regional School District, 220 N.J. Super. 214, 231-232 (App. Div. 1987); Kopera v. West Orange Board of Education, 60 N.J. Super. 288, 297 (App. Div. 1960). Nor may the Commissioner substitute his own judgment for that of the NJSIAA, where due process has been provided and where there is sufficient credible evidence in the record to serve as a basis for the decision reached by the NJSIAA. N.J.A.C. 6A:3-7.5(a)(1); Dam Jin Koh and Hong Jun Kim v. NJSIAA, 1987 S.L.D. 259. Additionally, New Jersey courts have spoken as to the narrow scope of arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable, noting that “where there is room for two opinions, action is not arbitrary or capricious when exercised honestly and upon due consideration, even though it may be believed that an erroneous conclusion has been reached.” Bayshore Sew. Co. v. Dep’t of Env’t. Protection, 122 N.J. Super. 184, 199-200 (Ch. Div. 1973), aff’d 131 N.J. Super. 37 (App. Div. 1974) (citations omitted) .

Upon consideration of the record and in light of the prescribed standard of review, the Assistant Commissioner – to whom this matter has been delegated to pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:4-34 – finds that North Bergen has not met its burden on appeal. More specifically, the Assistant Commissioner cannot find that the NJSIAA applied its rules in a patently arbitrary or unreasonable manner when the Executive Committee interpreted its bylaws to find that Montclair had standing to appeal the penalty imposed on North Bergen by the Controversies Committee. The Executive Committee – which is charged with interpreting its own rules and bylaws – determined that under the circumstances present in this case Montclair, who lost the championship game to North Bergen, was a “party... aggrieved by” the Controversies Committee’s decision in accordance with Article XIII, Section 5. Although North Bergen played the championship game with the benefit of two star players who were illegally recruited, the Controversies Committee did not strip North Bergen of the title. It is without question that the Executive Committee applied a broad interpretation of the phrase “any party... aggrieved”; however, the Assistant Commissioner cannot find that the interpretation was unreasonable under the circumstances in this matter. Moreover, in the absence of any precedent narrowly defining what constitutes “any party... aggrieved,” there is nothing to demonstrate that the NJSIAA applied the phrase arbitrarily in this case. Further, the NJSIAA's determination that Montclair's interest did not culminate until the Controversies Committee found that North Bergen had cheated is likewise not unreasonable.

Additionally, based on the Controversies Committee's findings with respect to the significant recruiting violations, the Executive Committee's decision to strip North Bergen of the State Football Championship was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable. As the NJSIAA points out, the Executive Committee did not consider new information during its hearing but rather it took the Controversy Committee's findings and modified the penalty based upon those findings and conclusions. The Executive Committee believed that the recruiting violations were egregious, warranting the forfeiture of the championship, and there is no doubt that the Executive Committee is fully authorized to modify a penalty imposed by the Controversies Committee. See Article X, Penalties.

Accordingly, the NJSIAA's decision is upheld and the petition of appeal is hereby dismissed.

APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF

The record of this emergent matter – which included a digital recording of the hearing conducted at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on December 5, 2012 – along with the recommended Order of the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) have been reviewed.

Upon full consideration of the entire record, the Commissioner adopts the recommended Order granting emergent relief as he concurs with the ALJ – for the reasons expressed in her oral decision rendered on the digital recording and her written Order here – that petitioner has satisfied the requisite standards for the granting of such relief pursuant to *Crowe v. Petitioner,

v.

DEBORAH LOWRY,

Respondent

David B. Rubin, Esq., for petitioner (Law office of David R. Rubin, attorney)

Frank Pomaco, Esq., for respondent (Gaccione Pomaco & Malanga, attorneys)

This matter having been transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for disposition of an application for emergent relief pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.6, and the parties having appeared for oral argument on December 5, 2012, and it appearing that respondent has a disqualifying interest in a contract with petitioner prohibited by N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2, for the forgoing reasons and for the additional reasons expressed in an oral decision rendered on the record, having found that the petitioner demonstrated irreparable harm would ensue to the consistency and integrity of the Board voting process; that the legal right to the petitioner's claim is well settled that no board member shall be interested directly or indirectly in any contract with the board; that the petitioner accordingly demonstrated a likelihood of success on the merits given the respondent's annual sick leave pay out until 2015, which is a viable legal obligation from the Board; and that the equities and interests of the parties weigh in favor of the petitioner, who would suffer greater harm;

ORDER

IT IS ORDERED, that petitioner's application for emergent relief is hereby GRANTED; it is further ORDERED, that respondent, Deborah Lowry, is hereby declared ineligible to serve as a member of the Kearny Board of Education, and restrained and enjoined from being sworn in and seated at the January 3, 2013 reorganization meeting of the Kearny Board of Education, unless her ongoing contractual entitlement to payment for accumulated sick leave is satisfied or extinguished by voluntary action of the parties prior to said reorganization meeting pending any further proceeding in a plenary due process hearing.

This order on application for emergency relief may be adopted, modified or rejected by COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who/which by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. The final decision shall be issued without undue delay, but no later than forty-five days following the entry of this order. If (title of agency head) does not adopt, modify or reject this order within forty-five days, this recommended order shall become a final decision on the issue of emergent relief in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

SYNOPSIS

On June 18, 2012, the petitioners, on behalf of their minor children, filed an appeal asserting that "bullying" charges against each of the minors – which stemmed from a single incident that occurred in March 2012 – should be downgraded to "inappropriate behavior," and that all references to bullying should be removed from each student's file. The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) in July 2012. Petitioners R.V. and T.V., on behalf of minor child A.V., and M.T. and O.T., on behalf of minor child K.T., failed to appear at a prehearing conference on September 17, 2012 despite having received appropriate notice. No explanation for their failure to appear was provided to the OAL.

The ALJ found that the aforementioned petitioners failed to appear at the preconference hearing and offered no explanation for their absence. Accordingly, the ALJ concluded that this matter is no longer a contested case in regard to these petitioners, and dismissed their appeal.

Upon review of the file, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's partial Initial Decision that this matter is appropriately dismissed – with respect to the above named parties – for failure to prosecute. Accordingly, the Commissioner adopted the partial Initial Decision as the final decision in connection with petitioners R.V., T.V., M.T. and O.T., and dismissed the within appeal.

This synopsis is not part of the Commissioner's decision. It has been prepared for the convenience of the reader. It has been neither reviewed nor approved by the Commissioner.

The record of this matter and the partial Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law have been reviewed.¹ This matter involves a petition of appeal that was filed by several parents on behalf of their minor children. The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) found that four of the petitioners, R.V., T.V., M.T. and O.T., failed to appear at the settlement conference and they did not provide any explanation for their failure to appear. As a result, the ALJ dismissed those parties from the case for the failure to prosecute. The parties did not file exceptions to the partial Initial Decision.

Upon such review, the Commissioner adopts the partial Initial Decision as the final decision in connection with petitioners, R.V., T.V., M.T. and O.T., for the reasons set forth therein. Accordingly, the petition is hereby dismissed with respect to those parties.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Respondent charged the Petitioners with "bullying" as a result of an incident that occurred on or about March 24, 2012. On June 18 2012, the Petitioners filed a Petition with the Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Education against the Respondent. They asserted that the "bullying" charges should be infractions that are downgraded to "inappropriate behavior," and that all references to bullying should be removed from their files.

The matter was transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) on July 2, 2012, as a contested case. On July 10, 2012, an in-person prehearing conference was scheduled for September 17, 2012. On September 17, 2012, two of the parties R.V. and T.V. O/B/O minor child, A.V., and M.T. and O.T., O/B/O minor child, K.T., failed to appear.

FINDINGS OF FACT

I FIND that Petitioners R.V. and T.V. on behalf of minor child, A.V., and M.T. and O.T., on behalf of minor child, K.T., failed to appear at the settlement conference. They have not corresponded with this office to explain their failure to appear and therefore, I FIND that they have failed to cooperate with the prosecution of this matter.

CONCLUSIONS AND ORDER

For the foregoing reasons, as to these Petitioners, I CONCLUDE that this matter is not a contested case and I therefore ORDER that this matter shall be and is hereby DISMISSED.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. SUPPLEMENTAL DECISION ON

APPLICATION FOR EMERGENT RELIEF

ALJ'S DECISION CLARIFICATION LETTER

Subsequent to the Commissioner's adoption of the Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) grant of emergent relief to the Board in this matter (Commissioner Decision No. 478-12E, December 19, 2012), upon the request of counsel for the Board the ALJ – on December 20, 2012 – issued a letter to the parties clarifying her decision. Therein she determined that respondent's proposed alternative method of curing her current conflict – pursuant to N.J.S.A. 18A:12-2 – precluding her from serving as a Board member on the Kearny Board, i.e., assignment of her future compensation payments from the Board to a third party, would not constitute a proper method of curing respondent's conflict. The ALJ emphasized that the only curing options supported by case law at this time are respondent's forfeiting her right to receive additional compensation or by the Board's decision to issue a payout of the compensation prior to the respondent taking office.

Upon review of the ALJ's clarification letter, the Commissioner – based on the record currently before him – adopts the clarification of the ALJ. This matter shall proceed at the OAL with such further proceedings as may be necessary to bring it to conclusion.

Re: Town of Kearny BOE v. Deborah Lowry
OAL Dkt. No. EDU 15867-12

Counsel:

Please be advised that I am in receipt of correspondence from M. Kathleen Duncan, Director of the Bureau of Controversies and Disputes, dated December 19, 2012, requesting my review and decision on an enclosed letter from Mr. Rubin. In reviewing the enclosed letter from Mr. Rubin, which was directed initially to Ms. Duncan, the letter seeks the Commissioner's binding determination on whether the respondent's proposed assignment of her future compensation payments to a third party suffices to cure her conflict. This matter was referred back to me from the Commissioner, which I interpret as a request to clarify my initial emergent relief ruling with respect to the circumstances that have been described in the enclosed letter.

As you are aware, on December 5, 2012, the Board appeared before me on an emergent application to bar the respondent from being seated as a Board of Education member due to her conflict of interest created by the Board's outstanding obligation to pay future compensation over the course of the next few years. The emergent application was granted, subject to the respondent's opportunity to cure her conflict by either forfeiting her right to receive additional compensation or by the Board's decision to issue a payout of the compensation prior to the respondent taking office.

On December 19, 2012, the Commissioner of the Department of Education adopted my decision to grant the emergent relief requested.

Based on my review of the correspondence that has been forwarded by the Commissioner, it does not appear that the respondent has chosen either of these options, but rather has proposed an alternative option of assigning her interests in the payments to a third party. To further clarify my ruling in the emergent application that has been adopted by the Commissioner, the alternative proposed currently by the respondent would not constitute a proper method of curing the conflict. Moreover, the options that are supported by the case authority cited in my oral decision include forfeiture or issuance of a lump sum prior to the respondent taking office.

Notwithstanding my clarification of my emergent relief decision, please be advised that any further consideration of the merits of this matter would need to be raised in the context of a full plenary hearing or a separate emergent application for relief by one of the parties.

Thank you for your courtesy.

Very truly yours,

Tiffany M. Williams

STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS DKT. NO. 0607-271
 AGENCY DKT NO. 5-6/12A

IN THE MATTER OF THE :
 SUSPENSION OF THE CERTIFICATE : COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION OF SHERYL GLEIM BY THE : DECISION
 STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS. :

Order of Suspension by the State Board of Examiners, May 17, 2012

For the Respondent-Appellant, Alan L. Zegas, Esq.

For the Petitioner-Respondent State Board of Examiners, Caroline Jones, Deputy Attorney General (Paula T. Dow, Attorney General of New Jersey)

This case involves an appeal of the State Board of Examiners' (Board) Order of May 17, 2012, suspending appellant Sheryl Gleim's teacher of Elementary School Certificate for one year.¹ On appeal, the appellant maintains that the Board's decision to suspend her for one year was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable because it is an unduly harsh penalty.

This matter was referred to the Board in the aftermath of tenure charges that were filed against the appellee by her previous employer, the Green Brook Board of Education. The appellant resigned after the tenure charges were filed and she is currently employed by the Plainfield School District. Following a hearing at the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), the Administrative Law Judge found that the appellant engaged in unbecoming conduct and insubordination for the following behavior that occurred between 2000 and 2006: failure to comply with administrators' directives when she was told on more than one occasion not to direct children to phone home to report missing homework; violating school policy for not getting parental permission before showing a PG rated film, Labyrinth, to her students; isolated loss of her temper when she was confronted by her principal regarding the showing of Labyrinth; one instance of lateness upon returning to school from lunch; two adequately explained instances of improper cell phone use; allowing a sixth grader to leave the building unescorted to retrieve something from the appellant's car; and viewing a dating website that did not contain any graphic material on the school's computer when children were not present. Although the ALJ found that the appellant was guilty of insubordination and unbecoming conduct, she recommended that the appellant retain her teaching certificate because the evidence as a whole falls far short of demonstrating that the appellant lacks the ability or temperament to be an effective teacher. Thereafter, the Board adopted the Initial Decision of the ALJ, but modified the penalty to include a one-year suspension of the appellant's teaching certificate.

In her brief, the appellant maintains that the Board's decision to suspend her for one year was arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable. Specifically, the appellant argues that the Board acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner when it failed to give the requisite deference to the ALJ's credibility determinations, and in fact the Board did not even allude to the ALJ's credibility findings in the Order of Suspension. The appellant notes that in the Initial Decision, the ALJ repeatedly pointed out how she favored the credibility of the appellant over the three administrators who testified against her at the hearing. For example, the appellant cited the following finding by the ALJ:

The Examiners offered the testimony of three school administrators from Green Brook, each of whom spoke to the various allegations against Gleim, but with testimony that either relied on hearsay or revealed a less than vivid recollection of the events. Conversely, Gleim shared details that put the charges in context; and her testimony made sense and was convincing. Gleim gave much of her testimony through tears, and the pain that this proceeding was causing her was palpable. It was apparent that when her performance was less than stellar this hurt and frustrated her; in hindsight she appeared to know where she could have done better. Gleim was candid about occasional violations of school rules. She pointed out that some of the policies she violated were widely breached, but never contended that this should excuse her conduct. [Initial Decision, page 3]

As a result, the appellant alleges that the Board erred in ignoring the ALJ's credibility determinations concerning the appellant and the administrators who testified against her at the hearing when the Board rendered the one-year suspension.

The appellant also contends that the Board erred in imposing the drastic sanction of a one-year suspension which will likely result in her current employer – the Plainfield School District – terminating her employment. The appellant argues that the penalty imposed by the Board far outweighs any misconduct that she may have committed. Again the appellant cites to the Initial Decision to support her contention that the Board's penalty is excessive:

The Board of Examiners urges that Gleim's teaching certificate must be revoked. I vehemently disagree. The Examiners' case is built upon a series of unrelated instances of misconduct, many of which were unproven, and many of which the Examiners did not even attempt to prove. None of the proven charges, standing alone, are of sufficient gravity to warrant the relief the Examiners seek. I am well aware that our case law has recognized that unfitness to teach is best evidenced by a "series of incidents." Redcay v. State Bd. of Educ., 130 N.J.L. 369, 371 (Sup. Ct. 1943), aff'd 131 N.J.L. 326 (E & A 1944). But Redcay envisioned a "series of incidents" that built to an inescapable conclusion of unfitness. Here, the Examiners have created a "series of incidents" by providing a few lapses in judgment over a long successful career, and then embedding them in a litany of unproven or trivial complaints. This is not the "series of incidents" to which our Commissioner of Education and courts refer when they rely upon Redcay. [Initial Decision, page 23]

The appellant argues that the determination by the ALJ with respect to the nature of the charges emphasizes that the conduct proven does not deserve a one-year suspension.

The appellant also contends that even if it was determined that she occasionally used poor judgment, in applying the guidelines of In re Fulcomer, 93 N.J. Super. 404 (App. Div. 1967) the conduct in this case does not warrant a one-year suspension. The appellant points out that she received a series of performance reviews that recommended a salary increment, she has had an otherwise unblemished career and the ALJ found her to be a sincere and credible witness. Additionally, the appellant argues that the ALJ determined that there was plenty of evidence in the record to support the conclusion that the charges brought against her were at least partially the result of an animus toward her by the school administrators. Finally, the appellant cites to prior case law that she contends is analogous to her case where the Board did not impose any punishment on the teaching staff member. Therefore, the appellant requests that the Commissioner reverse the Board's decision to suspend her teaching license for one year and instead adopt the recommendation of the ALJ that appellant's conduct does not merit the imposition of any suspension.

In reply, the Board maintains that the decision to suspend the appellant for one year was not arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable, and as such it should be affirmed by the Commissioner. The Board stresses that it did not reject or modify any findings of fact, nor any of the ALJ's conclusions with respect to the findings of unbecoming conduct and insubordination, and the only modification of the decision was the penalty imposed. Pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6, the Board is free to "reject or modify conclusions of law, interpretations of agency policy, or findings of fact not relating to the issues of credibility of lay witness testimony..." As a result, the Board asserts that it was fully authorized to use its discretion and expertise to impose a greater penalty than was recommended by the ALJ for the unbecoming conduct and insubordination. The Board also argues that the appellant's claim that the Board failed to give the ALJ's credibility determinations due deference is incorrect. The Board contends that it adopted the factual determinations and legal conclusions of the ALJ which necessarily embody her own findings of fact and credibility. Further, the Board maintains that the issue of the appropriate penalty does not rely on credibility determinations.

The Board also emphasizes that its modification of the penalty imposed on the appellant was not arbitrary, capricious or contrary to law because the reasons for the modification of the ALJ's recommended penalty were clearly stated in the Order of Suspension. The Board points out that it properly found that the ALJ erred because, despite finding that appellant's behavior was insubordinate and constituted unbecoming conduct, she wrongfully determined that the appellant did not deserve a penalty since no students were adversely affected. The Board contends that a lack of impact does not negate the fact that the appellant engaged in inappropriate behavior and her insistence on violating administrative directives and policies merits a penalty regardless of its direct impact on students. Moreover, the Board contends that it was correct in choosing not to simply ignore the appellant's proven conduct because the appellant's actions clearly demonstrate a lack of restraint and self-control. Further, the Board asserts that the penalty imposed was reasonable because the appellant's failure or recalcitrance to bring her conduct into the norms expected of her by her employer, and to persistently disregard their directives, evidences a lack of maturity and control required by a certified teacher. Finally, the Board also maintains that the cases cited by the appellant are not analogous to the instant appeal because here it was proven that the appellant engaged in conduct unbecoming and insubordination.

In reviewing appeals from decisions of the State Board of Examiners, the Commissioner may not substitute his judgment for that of the Examiners so long as the appellant received due process and the Board's decision is supported by sufficient credible evidence in the record. Further, the Board's decision should not be disturbed unless the appellant demonstrates that it is arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable. N.J.A.C. 6A:4-4.1(a).

After full consideration of the record and all of the submissions, the Commissioner concurs with the Board that the appellant is guilty of unbecoming conduct and insubordination. The Board's determination in connection with the characterization of appellant's behavior as unbecoming conduct and insubordination is fully supported by the record and consistent with applicable law. The crux of this issue on appeal, however, involves the extent of the penalty assessed by the Board. While in no way minimizing the appellant's infractions, the Commissioner finds that the Board's penalty determination in this case was unreasonable as the one-year suspension of the appellant's teaching certificate is not supported by the evidence in the record and as such it is an unduly harsh penalty.

The Board is fully authorized to modify a penalty recommended by the ALJ in her Initial Decision pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.6; however, the appropriate penalty must be assessed based upon the evidence in the record. Although the Board maintains that the appellant's conduct cannot be lightly dismissed, it does not provide a reasonable justification for the imposition of a one-year suspension in light of the extent of the conduct proven at the OAL. Notably, the ALJ determined that the proven conduct generally amounted to either minor or trivial infractions and the Board adopted the factual determinations and legal conclusions of the ALJ. Despite the list of charges, the Board effectively proved that the appellant's behavior was at times inappropriate but the conduct did not rise to the level of establishing that she is unfit to discharge the duties and functions of her position as a teacher. Additionally, the appellant's prior record contained several positive evaluations which the Board specifically recognized as an otherwise untarnished career. As a result, there is simply too significant a disparity between the nature of the conduct proven at the OAL and the severe one-year suspension imposed by the Board.

Although a one year suspension in this case is not warranted, the Commissioner agrees with the Board that the proven conduct necessitates some form of penalty. It is without question "that teachers carry a heavy responsibility by their actions and comments in setting examples for the pupils with whom they have contact." In the Matter of the Tenure Hearing of Blasko, School District of the Township of Cherry Hill, 1980 S.L.D. 987, 1003. Appellant's conduct does indicate that she has displayed questionable judgment in the past that does not meet the implicit standard of good behavior required by teaching staff members. Further, despite the fact that the infractions were generally minor, the appellant engaged in more than one incident where she violated administrative directive and school policy. Therefore, the Commissioner finds and concludes that the loss of the appellant's teacher of Elementary School Certificate for two months to be served in July and August of 2013 is a sufficient penalty to impress upon the appellant the significance of her errors in judgment displayed in this matter.

Accordingly the decision of the State Board of Examiners is modified with respect to the penalty.²

IN THE MATTER OF	:	NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
THE CERTIFICATE OF	:	STATE BOARD OF EXAMINERS
SHERYL GLEIM	:	ORDER OF SUSPENSION
_____	:	DOCKET NO: 0607-271

At its meeting of July 19, 2007, the State Board of Examiners (Board) reviewed information it had received from the Green Brook Township School District (Green Brook) regarding Sheryl Gleim. Green Brook reported that Gleim had resigned from her teaching position after the district filed tenure charges alleging unbecoming conduct, insubordination and other just cause for dismissal. The district alleged that Gleim humiliated students by sending them out of the classroom to the office to phone their parents when they were missing assignments and refused to discontinue the practice even after being reprimanded by her principal; failed to properly supervise students; using her cell phone and accessing personal dating websites in class; ignored administrative directives to keep 9/11 remembrances low key and instead allowed her students to view a CD that was upsetting; assigned extra-credit projects involving the viewing of R rated movies by sixth grade students; engaged in several incidents where she publicly humiliated students; discussed matters of a personal nature regarding students with other individuals and had angry outbursts in the hallway or in the principal's office in front of other individuals, including students. Gleim holds a Teacher of Elementary School certificate, issued in June 1993. Upon review of the above information, at its October 17, 2007 meeting, the Board voted to issue an Order to Show Cause to Gleim as to why her certificates should not be revoked.

The Board sent Gleim the Order to Show Cause by regular and certified mail on November 15, 2007. The Order provided that Gleim must file an Answer within 30 days. Gleim responded on December 13, 2007. In her Answer, Gleim noted that the Board had listed the incorrect certificate for her in its Order. (Answer, ¶ 1). Gleim admitted that she resigned from the district and stated that the allegations were either false "or do not constitute actionable wrongdoing." (Answer, ¶ 3). She admitted to certain allegations in the Order to Show Cause, including allowing a student to retrieve a camera from Gleim's car, arriving late to her classroom after lunch on one occasion, and having to use a cell phone in class for emergency reasons approximately five times. Gleim either denied or cited as “vague” all of the other allegations in the Order to Show Cause. (Answer, ¶¶ 4, 5). She also vehemently denied any wrongdoing. (Answer, ¶ 6). Gleim stated that she never admitted any guilt or wrongdoing, but resigned “in the hope that she could have a new beginning in a different school district.” (Answer, ¶ 6). She urged the Board to consider her “lengthy and honorable commitment to the teaching profession.” (Answer, ¶ 6). In the remainder of her Answer, Gleim recounted her many successes throughout her teaching career. (Answer, pp. 5-8).

The Board amended the Order to Show Cause on February 23, 2009 to reflect Gleim’s correct certificate. In all other respects the Order was identical to the previous one. By letter dated March 19, 2009, Gleim notified the Board that she would rely on the Answer she submitted to the Board’s original Order to Show Cause.

Since there were material facts in dispute, on April 23, 2009, the Board transmitted the matter to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) for hearing as a contested case. After protracted litigation over procedural issues, Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) Ellen Bass heard the matter on several days in December 2011. The record closed on March 16, 2012 and the ALJ issued an Initial Decision on April 13, 2012. In the Matter of the Teaching Certificate of Sheryl Gleim, Dkt. No. EDE 05065-09 (Initial Decision, April 13, 2012).

In that decision, ALJ Bass found that Gleim was employed by Green Brook for almost ten years. (Initial Decision, slip op. at 2). ALJ Bass noted that after the Board presented its case, only certain charges remained at issue.¹ Id. at 4. ALJ Bass found that Gleim would occasionally direct students who failed to complete their homework three times in a row to go to the school office and phone home. Ibid. The ALJ also found that Gleim continued this practice even though her principal, Linda Pollard, had previously directed her to stop. Id. at 4-6. ALJ Bass also found that Gleim had, on one occasion, sent a child out to the parking lot to retrieve something from her car. Id. at 6 8. The ALJ noted that Gleim expressed remorse at her mishandling of the situation and no evidence was presented that she did it again. Id. at 8. The ALJ also found that on one occasion during in-class recess, a student momentarily jumped onto a window ledge to catch a ball. Id. at 8-9. However, ALJ Bass also found that the incident “was not indicative of a lack of control by Gleim.” Id. at 9. ALJ Bass also determined that, in an aberration, Gleim returned seven minutes late from lunch one time. Ibid. The ALJ found, and Gleim admitted, that she visited dating websites on the school computer. Id. at 10. However, the ALJ also found that Gleim did not do so when children were present. Id. at 11-13. ALJ Bass also found that Gleim violated school policy by showing her students a PG-13 rated film without securing prior parental approval. Id. at 16. She did, however, secure permission to show the remainder of the movie after Pollard stopped the initial showing midway through. Ibid. The ALJ also found that Gleim angrily approached Pollard in the hallway after the movie incident and confronted her within the earshot of children. Id. at 19. Gleim later continued the altercation in the Superintendent’s office, where it took her some time to compose herself. Ibid.

After assessing the evidence, ALJ Bass concluded that the Board had not proven four of the charges against Gleim. Id. at 21. The ALJ further determined that the Board “technically have met their burden” with regard to the allegations that Gleim showed a PG rated movie without parental permission and continued to direct children to phone home when they were missing homework despite an administrative directive to cease the practice. Ibid. However, ALJ Bass ruled that even as to those two charges, Gleim’s insubordination was not willful and that the Board had failed to prove that she was guilty of conduct unbecoming a teacher. Id. at 21-22. As to Gleim’s “cell-phone use, lateness and intemperate altercation with Pollard” the ALJ was “compelled to CONCLUDE that the Examiners have met their burden of proving unbecoming conduct” since Gleim “technically violated the standard of good behavior expected of school employees.” Id. at 22. ALJ Bass also determined that the Board proved unbecoming conduct with regard to Gleim’s personal use of the school’s computer and allowing a student to leave the building unescorted. Ibid.

In assessing the appropriate penalty, ALJ Bass “vehemently disagreed” that Gleim’s certificate should be revoked, noting that “none of the proven charges, standing alone, are of sufficient gravity to warrant [revocation].” Id. at 23. Moreover, the ALJ observed that Gleim should not “have lost her tenure, much less her certificate.” Id. at 24. ALJ Bass found that, at most, Gleim should have suffered a loss of her increment, not the loss of her tenure and that there was “little likelihood that the complained-of conduct will recur.” Ibid. Accordingly, ALJ Bass held that under the totality of the circumstances, the Order to Show Cause should be dismissed with prejudice. Id. at 25. The parties submitted Exceptions and Reply Exceptions in the case.

In her Exceptions, the Deputy Attorney General (DAG) representing the Board agreed with the ALJ’s finding that Gleim engaged in unbecoming conduct but disagreed with the ALJ’s assessment that no penalty was warranted. (DAG Exceptions, pp. 1-2). The DAG argued that although the nature of Gleim’s violations differed, “the common trend is that Respondent repeatedly demonstrated a failure or recalcitrance to bring her conduct within the norms and expectations of her place of employment, and a systemic lack of judgment as to what is appropriate for a certificated teacher conducting herself in a school setting.” (DAG Exceptions, p. 2). The DAG cited Gleim’s use of her school computer to access dating websites, her altercation with her superior after being admonished for showing an unapproved movie and her sending a child alone to the school parking lot as instances which demonstrated a lack of judgment of appropriate behavior in a school setting. (DAG Exceptions, pp. 2-4). The DAG also took issue with the ALJ’s assumption that Green Brook’s delay in bringing tenure charges militated against a penalty in the certification case, arguing that “the reactions of a school district are not controlling in the instant matter.” (DAG Exceptions, pp. 4-5). The DAG further argued that ALJ Bass erred when she determined that the Board took no action against Gleim’s certificate for close to five years after it served the Order to Show Cause, thereby proving that the charges were not serious. (DAG Exceptions, pp. 5-6). The DAG noted that since the Board has no mechanism to take action against a certificate holder absent a hearing, the ALJ’s analysis on that issue should be disregarded. (DAG Exceptions, p. 6). In her Exceptions, the DAG also challenged ALJ Bass’ findings that certain instances of conduct, i.e., showing a PG rated movie without permission, while insubordinate, were not conduct unbecoming. (DAG Exceptions, pp. 6-8). Finally, the DAG challenged ALJ Bass' determination that Gleim's personal use of her school computer, while conduct unbecoming and insubordinate, did not warrant any action against her certificate. (DAG Exceptions, pp. 8-11). The DAG therefore argued that since the Initial Decision contained some "erroneous analysis and conclusions of law" it should not be adopted as the Final Decision in the case. (DAG Exceptions, p. 11).

In her Reply Exceptions, Gleim reiterated the ALJ's finding that none of the tenure charges, standing alone, would warrant revocation of tenure "much less suspension or revocation of a teaching certificate." (ReplyExceptions, p. 2). Gleim claimed that the Board did not challenge any of ALJ Bass' fact findings but merely took exception to her legal conclusion that no action should be taken against Gleim's certificate. (Reply Exceptions, p. 2). Moreover, Gleim noted that all credibility determinations were rendered in her favor. (Reply Exceptions, p. 3). She also urged that the ALJ was correct in dismissing the Order to Show Cause because all of her supposed infractions were minor and Green Brook itself waited years to proffer tenure charges regarding some of the incidents, underscoring their lack of seriousness. (Reply Exceptions, pp. 5-7). Gleim argued that the ALJ was correct in noting her overall teaching record in Green Brook as well as her current record at Plainfield, since "the teacher's prior record and present attitude" were relevant factors in determining a penalty in a tenure context and were equally relevant here. (Reply Exceptions, pp. 6-8). Finally, Gleim argued that the Board should reverse the ALJ's findings that she had engaged in unbecoming conduct or acted insubordinately in any instance, since the ALJ had found the insubordination as "technical" and the unbecoming conduct as "minor." (Reply Exceptions, p. 9). Those determinations, coupled with the district's delay in bringing the tenure charges, "undercuts the rationale for labeling them as insubordinate or unbecoming." (Reply Exceptions, p. 10). Gleim therefore asked that the Initial Decision be affirmed as to its conclusion to dismiss the Order to Show Cause with prejudice and reversed as to the findings of insubordination and unbecoming conduct. (Reply Exceptions, p. 11).

The Board must now determine whether to adopt, modify or reject the Initial Decision in this matter. At its meeting of May 17, 2012, the Board reviewed the Initial Decision, Exceptions and Reply Exceptions. After full and fair consideration of the Decision and submissions, the Board voted to adopt the Initial Decision, with modification as to penalty.

As noted above, ALJ Bass concluded that Gleim's behavior, at times, was insubordinate and constituted conduct unbecoming a teaching staff member. (Initial Decision, slip op. at 21-22). The Board agrees. The Board disagrees with the ALJ, however, as to the consequences that Gleim's behavior merits. "Teachers ... are professional employees to whom the people have entrusted the care and custody of ... school children. This heavy duty requires a degree of self-restraint and controlled behavior rarely requisite to other types of employment." Tenure of Sammons, 1972 S.L.D. 302, 321. ALJ Bass specifically found that "Gleim's superiors did have to tell her more than once not to direct children to phone home to report missing homework." (Initial Decision, slip op. at 21). Nevertheless, the ALJ would have the Board ignore Gleim's conduct simply because, according to the ALJ, no students were adversely affected. Yet Gleim's insistence on violating administrative directives or policies on more than one occasion, whether by showing unauthorized movies, having students phone home because of missing assignments or using school computers to visit personal dating sites, merits a response regardless of its impact on students. The Board finds that the ALJ has erred by focusing on the seeming lack of an impact on students of Gleim's conduct. It further finds that this seeming "lack of impact" does not negate Gleim's responsibility in engaging in the aforementioned behaviors and therefore Gleim's conduct should be penalized.

The Board is also well aware of Gleim's otherwise untarnished career. And while the Board agrees that no one incident, standing alone, or even all of them, taken as a whole, merits revocation, Gleim's actions, both insubordinate and conduct unbecoming, cannot and should not be lightly dismissed. Thus, when weighing these counterbalancing considerations, the Board believes that a one year suspension of Gleim's certificate is the appropriate penalty.

Finally, the Board would be remiss if it did not address an error in the ALJ's analysis of the appropriate penalty. To assume that the Board took "no action in the close to five years since it served its Order to Show Cause to prevent Gleim from continuing to teach the children of our state" misstates the facts of this case. (Initial Decision, slip op. at 24). From the moment the Board issued the original Order to Show Cause in October 2007 and received Gleim's Answer in December 2007, it has followed all procedures authorized by statute and regulation.² Moreover, once the matter was transmitted to OAL in early 2009, the protracted length of the litigation stemmed, in part, from the legal wrangling over various procedural issues, a legal right to which Gleim is entitled and availed herself. It is mistaken for the ALJ to suggest otherwise, as she herself had provenance of the litigation for most of the time the case was at OAL.

Accordingly, on May 17, 2012, the Board voted to adopt, with modification, the Initial Decision and ordered to suspend Gleim's teaching certificate for a period of one year. On this 21st day of June 2012, the Board formally adopted its written decision to adopt, with modification, the Initial Decision in this matter, and it is therefore ORDERED that Sheryl Gleim's Teacher of Elementary School certificate be hereby suspended for one year effective July 31, 2012. It is further ORDERED that Gleim return her certificate to the Secretary of the State Board of Examiners, Office of Licensure, P.O. Box 500, Trenton, NJ 08625-0500 within 30 days of the mailing date of this decision.

SYNOPSIS

Petitioner filed a pro-se residency appeal contesting the April 2011 determination of the respondent Board that petitioner and her children, M.H., S.A. and I.H., no longer resided in the City of Gloucester and were not eligible for a free public education in the Gloucester school district for the 2010-2011 school year. Petitioner contended that she is homeless, and that this matter stems from a lease that she had signed on an apartment in Audubon which she never actually occupied because the landlord terminated the lease before she could move in. The respondent Board contended that G.H. and her children resided in Audubon and filed a counterclaim for tuition.

The ALJ found: that this matter should not have been filed as a residency appeal under N.J.A.C. 6A:22; rather, Gloucester should have notified the county superintendent of its determination that Audubon became the district of residence once the homeless parent signed a lease to live within that school district; N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.6(h) provides that homeless children are allowed to stay in the district of residence – in this case, Gloucester City – for the remainder of the academic year even if the children become permanently housed elsewhere during the academic year; and this case should have been presented to the appropriate county superintendent so that he or she could determine where the children should have been enrolled for the 2010-2011 school year. The ALJ concluded that the OAL does not have jurisdiction to grant relief to any of the parties, and accordingly dismissed the petition for lack of jurisdiction.

Upon a full and independent review of the record, the Commissioner, inter alia, concurred with the ALJ that the issue in this case is not a residency dispute under N.J.A.C. 6A:22; rather, a homelessness determination must be made pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.6(h). The Commissioner noted that the ALJ was not barred from deciding this matter, however, as the Commissioner does have jurisdiction to hear the matter under N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. Petitioner, however, did not appear at the July 29, 2011 hearing and there appear to be facts in dispute in this matter. Accordingly, the Commissioner dismissed the petition and the Board's counterclaim without prejudice.

DECISION

RESPONDENT. :

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed.¹ This matter was initiated by the petitioner, G.H., as a pro se residency appeal, and the Board of Education filed a counterclaim for tuition. The Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) dismissed the petition of appeal and the Board's counterclaim for lack of jurisdiction.

Upon review of the record, the Commissioner is in accord with the ALJ's determination that the issue in this case is not a residency dispute under N.J.A.C. 6A:22; rather, a homelessness determination must be made pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.8. Although the ALJ properly determined this matter was not a residency appeal, the Commissioner notes that the ALJ was not barred from deciding this matter because the Commissioner has jurisdiction "to hear and determine ... all controversies and disputes arising under school law." See N.J.S.A. 18A:6-9. However, in light of the fact that the petitioner did not appear at the July 29, 2011 hearing and there appear to be facts in dispute regarding an alleged lease agreement, the ALJ would not have been able to reach a conclusion on the homelessness issue based upon the current record.

Under these circumstances, the petition of appeal and the Board's counterclaim are hereby dismissed without prejudice.

Record Closed: October 21, 2012

BEFORE RONALD W. REBA, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

Petitioner, G.H., is the mother of minors, M.H., S.A. and I.H., who prior to 2011 were homeless and registered as students in the City of Gloucester in Camden County. During the 2011 school year the petitioner entered into a lease for an apartment in Audubon, New Jersey located at 223 South Whitehorse Pike. However, the petitioner claimed that the lease was subsequently terminated by the landlord before she could establish residency and that she then registered her children back into Gloucester City's school system. Respondent, Gloucester City takes the position that once the petitioner entered into a lease for an apartment in Audubon, New Jersey, that Audubon now became the venue of residency and that her children were registered in the Gloucester City school system illegally. Petitioner filed a residency appeal to keep her children in the Gloucester school system and respondent answered and filed a cross claim for tuition for the remainder of the school year and is seeking substantial monies from her. The question presented was whether to honor Gloucester City's motion to dismiss G.H.'s petition because the children were no longer eligible to attend its school district when G.H. signed a lease to live in Audubon. If correct, should now the counter claim for tuition be ordered because of the actions of the petitioner.

On April 21, 2011, Gloucester City Public Schools sent a letter to G.H., denying eligibility for Petitioner's children to attend the Gloucester City School District. because G.H. no longer resided in Gloucester City but rather at 223 South Whitehorse Pike, Audubon, New Jersey. G.H. opposed the action and filed on May 3, 2011 a petition for a pro se residency appeal with the Gloucester City Public School District. The matter was referred to the Office of Administrative Law on June 3, 2011. A hearing was scheduled for July 29, 2011. At that time the respondent, Gloucester City Board of Education appeared and provided testimony on the defense of the petition and also on its counterclaim. The petitioner did not appear at the hearing. I left the matter open in order for the petitioner to contact the proper authorities regarding whether testimony would be allowed. Thereafter, I did not hear from respondent's counsel after several attempts to inquire about the status of the matter with petitioner, other than at some point its counsel asking for a decision on its counterclaim for tuition.

DISCUSSION

I have reviewed the submissions from counsel, as well the testimony of respondent's witnesses and the pertinent law which I find controls this situation.

Question Presented:

Whether to grant Gloucester City's motion to dismiss G.H.'s petition because G.H.'s children were no longer eligible to attend the district's schools when G.H. signed a lease to live in Audubon and to approve respondent's counterclaim for tuition.

Brief Answer:

No. I must dismiss this matter for lack of jurisdiction because it should not have been filed here as a residency appeal under N.J.A.C. 6A:22. Instead, Gloucester City should have immediately referred this matter to the County Superintendent of Schools when Gloucester City first determined that the children should have been enrolled in the Audubon school district. Gloucester City must submit this matter to the County Superintendent for a determination of the children's proper placement at the time that the lease issue arose.

LEGAL ANALYSIS

Any child between the ages of five and twenty years old is entitled to a free public education if the child's parent "moves from one school district to another school district as a result of being homeless and whose district of residence is determined pursuant to [N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12]."¹ N.J.S.A. 18A:38-1(f). According to N.J.S.A. 18A:7B-12(c), "[t]he district of residence for children whose parent . . . temporarily moves from one school district to another as the result of being homeless shall be the district in which the parent . . . last resided prior to becoming homeless."² The district of residence shall be responsible for the education of a homeless child for as long as the parent remains homeless. N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.4(a) and (c). In addition, "[e]nrollment in the school district of [residence] . . . shall continue for the duration of homelessness, including . . . for the remainder of the academic year if the homeless child becomes permanently housed during the academic year." N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.6(h). If "a dispute occurs regarding the determination of the school district of enrollment made by the school district of [residence], the chief school administrator of the school district of [residence] . . . shall immediately notify the county superintendent of schools.” N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.8(c). Then, “[t]he county superintendent shall immediately determine where the child shall be enrolled based on the child’s best interest.” Ibid. (citing N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.6(b) (best interest factors)).

The Commissioner recently recognized the proper appeal procedure for disputes arising from homelessness determinations. In L.E.H v. Bd of Education of the Twp. of West Orange, EDU 3787-09, Initial Decision (May 19, 2009), rejected, Comm’r (July 2, 2009), <<http://njlaw.rutgers.edu/collections/oal/>>, the Commissioner held that even though a parent failed to appear at an OAL hearing regarding a residency dispute, the parent’s assertions that she did not receive notice of the hearing and that she was homeless required further proceedings to determine the child’s eligibility for continued attendance in the district. More importantly, however, the Commissioner noted that “[a]ny dispute concerning the determination of homelessness must first be brought to the Executive County Superintendent of Schools pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.8.” (Emphasis added).

Here, this matter should not be here as a residency appeal under N.J.A.C. 6A:22. Instead, under N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.8, Gloucester City should have immediately notified the county superintendent of its determination that Audubon became the children’s school district of enrollment for the 2011-2012 school year once the homeless parent signed a lease to live in Audubon. Indeed, the parent disputes that she ceased to be homeless after she signed a lease to live in Audubon because the landlord terminated the lease shortly after she signed it due to what she alleged was a DYFS investigation initiated by respondent which caused her landlord to take such action. Given the dispute regarding Gloucester City’s determination of the district of enrollment, and in light of N.J.A.C. 6A:17-2.6(h), which provides that homeless children are allowed to stay in the district of residence, which in this case was Gloucester City, for the remainder of the academic year even if the children become permanently housed during the academic year, this matter should be presented to the relevant county superintendent so that he or she can determine where the children should have been enrolled for the 2010-2011 school year.

CONCLUSION

Accordingly, I CONCLUDE that this office does not have the jurisdiction to grant the relief to any of the parties which I FIND should have been brought to the appropriate County Superintendent of Schools for a determination of the children's proper place of enrollment.

ORDER

Petitioner's petition for residency and the Counterclaim made by the Board of Education of the City of Gloucester for tuition as well as its motion for Summary Judgment are DISMISSED for lack of jurisdiction.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. SYNOPSIS

Petitioner – formerly employed by the respondent Board under tenure in the position of Director of Curriculum and Instruction/Principal – asserted that her tenure and seniority rights were violated when the school district failed to employ her in other director-level positions after her job was eliminated in a reduction in force (RIF) on April 30, 2010. Petitioner also alleged that a staff member (the intervenor) who holds the title of Director of Special Education/Child Study Team is unqualified to hold this position; petitioner claimed that she is entitled to this job, and also claimed re-employment rights to the position of principal. The respondent Board contends that petitioner was RIF'd in good faith, that she had no re-employment rights, and that the intervenor was properly qualified to hold the position of Director of Special Education/Child Study Team. The parties filed cross motions for summary decision.

The ALJ found, inter alia, that: there are no genuine issues of material fact in this case, and the matter is ripe for summary decision; petitioner earned tenure under her administrative certificate in the position of Director of Curriculum and Instruction/Principal in December 2005; petitioner's job description indicates that she was a backup to the building principal when that staff member was absent, but that her primary duties were related to curriculum and instruction; whether petitioner actually performed the duties of principal sufficient to become tenured in that position is not developed in the instant record; the intervenor is qualified to hold the title of Director of Special Education/Child Study Team under her administrative certificate with a principal endorsement and instructional certificate with a Teacher of the Handicapped endorsement; there exists no principal vacancy to which petitioner could claim entitlement at the time the petition was filed, nor can it be determined from the instant record whether petitioner is tenured as a principal; any remaining claims for reemployment rights raised by petitioner are contained in a separate action filed with the Commissioner on July 2, 2012, and are not part of this proceeding. The ALJ concluded that summary decision in favor of respondent is appropriate; he denied petitioner's cross motion for summary decision, and ordered the instant appeal dismissed.

Upon independent review, the Commissioner concurred with the ALJ's findings and conclusions, and adopted the Initial Decision of the OAL as the final decision in this matter. The petition was dismissed.

The record of this matter and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) have been reviewed, as have the exceptions filed pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-18.4 by the petitioner, Noelle Jacquelin, and the Board of Education's (Board) reply thereto.

The petitioner's exceptions substantially reiterate the substance of her submissions at the OAL, recasting the arguments therein to support the contention that the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) erroneously granted summary decision in favor of the Board. First, the petitioner maintains that the ALJ wrongfully determined that the intervenor, Joann Shilinsky, was qualified to hold the position of Director of Special Education/Child Study Team. The petitioner argues that the position of Director of Special Education/Child Study Team involves services at a district level and as a result the position requires an Administrator Endorsement pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(a). The petitioner emphasizes that since the intervenor does not hold an Administrator Endorsement, she is not qualified for the position. The petitioner maintains that when her position of Director of Curriculum and Instruction/Principal was eliminated as a result of a reduction in force, she was entitled to the position of Director of Special Education/Child Study Team because she is a tenured director in the district and she holds the required Administrative Certificate with a School Administrator Endorsement.

In addition, the petitioner contends that the ALJ erred in not requiring the intervenor to submit to a deposition or having a hearing to determine the intervenor's level of responsibilities as the Director of Special Education/Child Study Team. The petitioner argues that there are genuine issues of material fact related to the intervenor's job duties, and the ALJ improperly decided the case on a motion for summary decision. Further, the petitioner asserts that the ALJ simply relied upon the May 3, 2000 job description of the position of Supervisor of Special Education/Child Study Team. The petitioner contends that the ALJ should have evaluated each of the job duties in the intervenor's job description to determine whether those duties were performed on a district-wide basis or on behalf of one school. Finally, the petitioner argues that the ALJ erroneously determined that Robert Schwartz was not disqualified from representing the intervenor.

In reply, the Board asserts that the petitioner's exceptions are a reiteration of the multiple filings submitted by the petitioner at the OAL. The Board relies on its submissions below, as well as the April 4, 2012 Order and the Initial Decision of the ALJ in support of its request that the Commissioner adopt the Initial Decision of the ALJ.

Upon a comprehensive review of the record in this matter, the Commissioner concurs with the ALJ that the position of Director of Special Education/Child Study Team held by the intervenor did not require a School Administrator Endorsement because the position was not a district-wide administrative position. The Commissioner is also in accord with the

ALJ's conclusion that no principal vacancy existed at the time of the filing of the petition on July 20, 2010, and as a result it is not necessary at this juncture to speculate as to whether the petitioner has obtained tenure as a principal.¹

With respect to the position of Director of Special Education/Child Study Team, it is undisputed that an Administrative Certificate is required for the position. The issue in this matter is whether a School Administrator Endorsement is required or whether a Principal's Endorsement is appropriate. The Commissioner finds the objections advanced in the petitioner's exceptions unpersuasive, largely reflecting arguments previously raised before the ALJ and clearly taken into account by him in rendering the April 4, 2012 Order and the Initial Decision.

Under N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(a), if the position is a district-level administrative position, a School Administrator Endorsement is required. If the position, however, involves services that are generally provided to a school or other comparable unit within the district, under N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(b), only a Principal Endorsement is required. Here, the job description of the Director of Special Education/Child Study Team indicates that the position is primarily a department head position, and there is nothing in the description that suggests it is the type of high level district-wide position that incorporates supervisory authority over high level managers.² Therefore, pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(b), the Director of Special Education/Child Study Team position requires only a Principal Endorsement. The intervenor has a Principal Endorsement and as such she attained tenure in that position in 2009. As a result, the petitioner was not entitled to the position of Director of Special Education/Child Study Team when her position was eliminated as a result of a reduction in force.

¹ Petitioner filed another petition on July 24, 2012 that is currently pending at OAL in the case of Noelle Jacquelin v. Board of Education of the Township of Dennis, Cape May County, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9939-12. That matter involves a dispute related to the petitioner's assertion that she has tenure as a principal and as a result she had re-employment rights when the Board elevated the intervenor to acting principal in April 2012. The cases were not consolidated at the OAL; therefore, this final decision only addresses the scope of the issues raised in the instant matter.

² It should be noted that the Director of Special Education/Child Study Team is an unrecognized title and is subject to the requirements of N.J.A.C. 6A:9-5.5. This regulation requires school districts to submit a request for permission to use the proposed title to the county superintendent, along with a detailed job description. If the county superintendent approves of the title, the appropriate certification must be specified as well as the title under which the teaching staff member will accrue tenure and seniority rights.

Accordingly, for the reasons expressed therein, the Initial Decision is adopted as the final decision in this matter.³

BEFORE W. TODD MILLER, ALJ:

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

The petitioner requested a fair hearing and the matter was filed at the OAL on September 3, 2010, to be heard as a contested case pursuant to N.J.S.A. 52:14B-1 to 15 and 14F-1 to 13. Petitioner was the subject of a reduction in force (RIF) on April 30, 2010. Her position as Director of Curriculum and Instruction/Principal was eliminated.

Petitioner asserts respondent Dennis Township Board of Education (District or Township) violated her tenure and seniority rights, together with her right to other director positions. Petitioner alleges that Joann Shilinsky (Shilinsky or intervenor), a staff member who currently holds the title of Director of Special Education/CTS, is unqualified to hold same, and petitioner is entitled to the Shilinsky's position. Petitioner also claims re-employment rights to the position of principal.

The parties previously filed cross-motions for summary decision. Therein Dennis Township asserted that petitioner was RIF'd in good faith, petitioner had no re-employment rights and that the intervenor was properly qualified to hold the position of Director of Special Education/CST. Conversely petitioner claimed she had rights to the position of Director held by intervenor Shilinsky.

On April 4, 2012, an Order was entered by undersigned concluding that Dennis Township Board of Education (1) implemented a RIF for reasons of economy and efficiency; (2) intervenor Shilinsky was qualified to hold the position of and is tenured as Director of Special Education/CST; (3) intervenor Shilinsky has seniority rights as Director of Special Education/CST over petitioner Jacquelin; (4) Robert Schwartz, Esquire was not disqualified as counsel for intervenor; and (5) petitioner's claim to reinstatement as principal is not dismissed as untimely; however, the record is insufficient to determine this issue summarily. Accordingly, partial summary decision was granted in favor of respondents. And it was further ordered that petitioner's cross-motion for summary decision was denied. A plenary hearing was going to be scheduled.

On July 13, 2012, Dennis Township filed another motion for summary decision. The motion for summary decision assumes, only for purposes of the motion, that petitioner, Noelle Jacquelin, has some tenure rights as a principal. Nevertheless, a plenary hearing on that factual issue is not necessary because no vacancy ever existed for the position of principal and; therefore, she has no standing to make a claim for special re-employment rights to this title. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12.

Petitioner filed opposition to Dennis Township's motion for summary decision asserting, primarily, that Superintendent Papp was made Superintendent/Principal in violation of the Open Public Meetings Act (OPMA) (N.J.S.A. 10:4-7 et seq.). Petitioner also filed a cross-motion for summary decision. The cross-motion was in effect a motion for reconsideration asserting that intervenor Shilinsky does not hold an administrator's endorsement under her administrative certificate and, therefore, is ineligible to be Director of Special Education/CST. Petitioner renewed her contention that the Director of Special Education/CST is a district-wide position necessitating an administrator's endorsement.

Oral argument on the aforesaid motions was heard on October 3, 2012. For the reasons discussed below, summary decision is GRANTED in favor of Dennis Township. Petitioner's cross-motion for summary decision is DENIED. This matter is CONCLUDED.

BACKGROUND

Noelle Jacquelin

Petitioner, Noelle Jacquelin, was hired as the Director of Curriculum and Instruction/Principal for the Dennis Township School District (District) beginning on or about October 15, 2002. Jacquelin holds an Administrative Certificate with endorsements as a School Administrator (2002), Principal (2008), and Supervisor (1998). She also holds an Instructional Certificate with endorsements as an Elementary School Teacher (1998) and Teacher of English (1996). She received tenure under her Administrative Certificate in the position of Director of Curriculum and Instruction/Principal on or about December 15, 2005. Petitioner served as the Director of Curriculum and Instruction/Principal through the 2009-2010 school year.

It is clear from petitioner's job description that she was a backup to the building principal when the building principal was absent. But her primary duties were related to curriculum and instruction. Merely because petitioner's job description contains the word "principal" does not mean she meets the statutory requirements to acquire tenure as a principal. Whether she actually performed the duties of principal sufficient to become tenured is not in this record.

On April 29, 2010, the Board voted to eliminate the position of Director of Curriculum and Instruction/Principal through a Reduction in Force (RIF). By the end of the day on April 30, 2010, petitioner vacated her office. The Board Secretary certified a written resolution documenting the RIF on May 11, 2010.

Joann Shilinsky

Intervenor Joann Shilinsky (Shilinsky) was approved by the district to be Director¹ of Special Education/CTS on March 2, 2005. Shilinsky received her provisional Administrative Certificate as a Principal/Supervisor in 2003, which became permanent in 2006. She received an Instructional Certificate as a Teacher of the Handicapped (1995) and Teacher of Production, Personal or Service Occupations: Cosmetologist/Hair stylist (issued and expired in 1988). She obtained tenure² in the District as the Director of Special Education /CST because she worked more that three years in this title. Shilinsky continued in the position of Director of Special Education/CST after the 2010 RIF, and continues to hold that title.

¹ Shilinsky's title of director is periodically interchanged with supervisor which created one of the contested issues this case. The job description uses supervisor while the Resolution and contracts state director.

² Petitioner asserts that if Shilinsky was not qualified to serve in the position of Director she is not tenured. As discussed below, I concluded that Shilinsky was qualified to work as in the title of Director pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-13.3(b) and therefore having worked for the requisite period of three years, she is tenured. No further fact finding was necessary on this issue based upon this conclusion.

Shilinsy's Job description dated May 3, 2000, entitled "Supervisor³ of Special Education/Child Study Team" entails the following:

REPORTS TO: Superintendent

- A. The individual will function as a working member of the child study team, as an integral part of the job.

DISCUSSION

PETITIONER'S CROSS-MOTION FOR SUMMARY DECISION/RECONSIDERATION

Petitioner asserts that this tribunal's April 4, 2012, Order must be revisited as it incorrectly concluded that the Director of Special Education is a supervisory/director's position. Petitioner urges that the special education director's position involves district-wide responsibility. And this would necessitate an administrator's endorsement pursuant to N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(a). This regulation provides, in part:

(a) The school administrator endorsement is required for any position that involves services as a district-level administrative officer. Such positions shall include superintendent, assistant superintendent, and director. Holders of this endorsement are authorized to provide educational leadership by directing the formulation of district-wide goals, plans, policies and budgets, by recommending their approval by the district board of education and by directing their district-wide implementation. Holders of this endorsement are authorized to recommend all staff appointments and other personnel actions, such as terminations, suspensions and compensation, including the appointment of school business administrators, for approval by the district board of education. Holders of this endorsement are authorized to direct district operations and programs, and to supervise and evaluate building administrators and central office staff, including school business administrators. They are also authorized to oversee the administration and supervision of school-level operations, staff and programs.

(b) The principal endorsement is required for any position that involves service as an administrative officer of a school or other comparable unit within a school or district. Such positions shall include assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction, principal, assistant principal, vice-principal and director. The holder of a standard principal endorsement is also authorized to serve in the position of supervisor. Holders of this endorsement are authorized to provide educational leadership by directing the formulation of goals, plans, policies, budgets and personnel actions of the school or other comparable unit, and recommending them to the chief district administrator, and by directing their implementation in the school or other comparable unit. Holders of this endorsement also are authorized to direct and supervise all school operations and programs, to evaluate school staff, including teaching staff members and to direct the activities of school-level supervisors.

[Emphasis added]

This tribunal's prior Order reviewed both provisions under the aforesaid regulation. Section (a) of the aforesaid regulation describes district-wide functions that would require a school administrator's endorsement. These include formulation of district-wide goals, plans, policies and budgets. Holders of the administrator's endorsement are eligible to supervise and evaluate building administrators and central office staff, including school business administrators. They are also permitted to oversee the administration and supervision of school-level operations, staff and programs. These are all high level management jobs and tasks.

Conversely, section (b) of the aforesaid regulation describes the level of authority for a director with an administrative/principal's endorsement. This is the credential held by Shilinsky. Holders of a principal's endorsement are authorized to be supervisors and directors. Holders of a principal's endorsement can formulate goals, plans and policies, budgets and personnel actions of the school or other comparable units. They report to the chief district administrator, which is where the director of special education reports in the present matter. The holder of a principal's endorsement acting as a director is authorized to direct and supervise all school operations and programs, to evaluate staff, including teaching staff members and to direct the activities of school level supervisors. The director's duties described under section (b) are largely consistent with the May 2000 job description for "Supervisor" of Special Education. (Certification of Faia February 11, 2012, Ex.Q.)

Petitioner claims that if Shilinsky works with the school board administrator on grants, prepares waivers, or submits annual reports it necessitates her to possess an administrator's endorsement. The focus under section (a) is the managerial level of staff programs managed by the district-wide director. Examples include school business administrator, all school operations and programs, compensation, terminations, and suspensions). School administrators are primarily concerned with broad management and district-wide business affairs. These are much higher than those of a department head.

In the previous Order, the undersigned concluded that N.J.A.C. 6A:9-12.3(b) clearly provides the holder of an administrative certificate with a principal/supervisor endorsement can serve as a director of school or other comparable unit within the school or district. The director of the special education department/CST serves primarily as a department head and reports to the chief school administrator, i.e. the superintendent. They do not report to the Board of Education, and are not authorized to supervise and evaluate building administrators and central office staff, including school business administrators as more particularly articulated under section (a) of the aforementioned regulation. Nothing in the Supervisor of Special Education job description indicate high level supervision of staff categories such as building administrators, central office staff, and school business administrators.

While special education director's responsibilities might overlap, or appear drift into district wide areas, this is unavoidable in small districts. But the director of special education does not have district-wide supervisory authority over other high level managers. The obvious distinction between section (a) and section (b) is that holders of an administrator's endorsement under section (a) serve at a much higher level in the managerial hierarchy. And the director of special education is not included in that hierarchy, at least as reflected in Dennis Township's special education job description.

Petitioner's renewed cross-motion for summary decision/reconsideration offers no new factual evidence establishing that Dennis Township's Director of Special Education serves at such a high managerial level requiring an administrator's endorsement. In the absence of any factual information suggesting that the position in question does, in fact, involve day-to-day district-wide supervisory responsibilities, petitioner's cross-motion/motion for reconsideration must be DENIED.

Finally, intervenor Shilinsky was appointed as the Director of Special Education in March 2005. Petitioner is challenging Shilinsky's appointment to this title in a petition filed on July 20, 2010. Petitioner and Shilinsky worked for the same school district for the entire period in dispute. Petitioner voiced no concern regarding petitioner's title of Director of Special Education from March 2005 to July 2010. It wasn't until petitioner was RIF'd in 2010 that she decided to challenge Shilinsky's credentials as a director. I am mindful that all staff members must possess the appropriate certificate for their title. N.J.S.A. 18A:26-2. Likewise, an aggrieved party must assert a claim under the school law, "no later than the 90th day from the date of receipt of the notice of a final order, ruling or other action by the district board of education, individual party, or agency, which is the subject of the requested contested case hearing.” N.J.A.C. 6A:3-1.3(i). Petitioner’s claim was timely filed if measured against the date she was RIF’d (April 29, 2010 to July 20, 2010). But petitioner’s long delay in challenging Shilinsky’s promotion to Director of Special Education in 2005, when buttressed against the Shilinsky Administrative Certificate as a Principal/Supervisor (2006) and her Instructional Certificate and Endorsement as a Teacher of the Handicapped (1995); both of which uniquely and lawfully qualify her to be a “director” or “supervisor” of special education in some capacity, stretch the limits of legal logic and creativity.

Petitioner’s long delay in seeking to unseat Shilinsky could face a laches argument. While the expressed scope of authority granted to “directors” under the administrator’s endorsement verses a principal’s endorsement is not perfect, clearly the legislature authorized the holder of a principal’s endorsement to be a “director” with significant authority. And I CONCLUDED that Shilinsky has the proper credentials to be a Director of Special Education. To upset the district’s management alignment on a questionable interpretation of term “director” as it appears in both section (a) and (b) of the statute in question, after Shilinsky has been in that title for seven years, would be a disservice to the district, the staff and students. The delay, costs and expense to a district that is already experiencing financial difficulties would only compound matters.

PETITIONER’S CLAIM OF A PRINCIPAL VACANCY

Starting in 2007-2008, the district considered a restructuring plan. In 2009-2010 the loss of state aide triggered a budget crisis. In response, the district reduced its principal titles down to one by 2010. (Respondent’s July 13, 2013, brief, exhibits B, C, F, & G). The district also reduced a secretarial position from a twelve month position to a ten month position. (Respondent’s July 13, 2013, brief, Ex. K).

Dennis Township has two building locations and three schools. Consequently, the district is required to have two building principals to cover the respective locations. In this instance, the two principals were James DeCarlo and Dr. Joseph LaRosa. Dr.

LaRosa was RIF'd effective March 17, 2010. And one principal title was eliminated and abolished for reasons of economy and efficiency. DeCarlo retired effective August 1, 2010. LaRosa had special re-employment rights as a tenured staff member. Dennis Township offered to bring Dr. LaRosa back in his capacity as principal on or about the same date DeCarlo retired. (See Respondent's brief dated July 13, 2012 pages 1-5 and attached Certifications of Sara M. Teefy, President of the Dennis Township Board of Education and Patricia Ziolkowski, Vice President of the Dennis Township Board of Education, attached to the brief - hereinafter Board Member Certifications).

The district's plan was to have Superintendent Papp fill the role as both superintendent and principal in order to cover the second building. Papp's December 2009 contract provides that he is "to assume responsibilities of principal when that person is not in the district. In that event, the responsibilities therein will be performed and discharged by him or by staff under his direction." (Respondent's July 13, 2013, brief, Ex. D, p. 3.) Dennis Township contends that Papp contractually fulfilled his contractual obligation to fill in as building principal for one of the district's two buildings from 2009 to April 18, 2012. The district had already eliminated one principal's position for reasons of economy. It is therefore believable that the Board would not create a new principal's position, undermining its intended costs saving achieved through a RIF and abolishment of titles.

Papp corresponded with the county superintendent asking for advice and other information in connection with his intention of serving as both superintendent and principal. The county superintendent indicated that no action was required on its part. (Respondent's July 13, 2013, brief, Ex. C & D). Papp assumed the role of superintendent/principal at no further cost to the taxpayers.

There were no formal resolutions issued by the Board approving or codifying Papp's new role. Petitioner asserts that if the Board authorized Papp to become the new superintendent/principal, it did so in violation of the OPMA. However, Dennis Township correctly points out that the OPMA, found at N.J.S.A. 10:4-15, provides that challenges and remedies for violations of the Act must be filed in Superior Court. And the claim must be brought within forty-five days of the action sought to be voided. Id.

This presents two threshold problems for petitioner. First, the conduct challenged by petitioner dates back to August 2010. Clearly, petitioner is out of time to assert a claim based under the OPMA. Moreover, the OPMA provides that the Superior Court of New Jersey has exclusive jurisdiction over violations. Consequently, this tribunal is without jurisdiction to decide that claim, assuming it is even timely.

Staying within this tribunal's jurisdiction, the question remains as to whether there was a principal's vacancy to which petitioner could make a claim under her re-employment rights. N.J.S.A. 18A:28-12. At the time of the filing of the first petition (July 20, 2010) there was no vacancy in the principal's position. DeCarlo retired in August 2010. Both DeCarlo and LaRosa were tenured and senior to petitioner. One principal's position was eliminated in March 2010 leaving only one principal's position open. LaRosa exercised his re-employment right and was rehired, filling the one principal's title. Superintendent Papp took over the as the acting principal for one building location while LaRosa remained as principal for the other building location. Therefore, the district's two building locations were covered with principals, as required. Under these arrangements there is no principal vacancy.

For petitioner to succeed on the principal vacancy claim, she must establish (1) a violation of the OPMA knocking Papp out as superintendent/principal and (2) that she was tenured as a principal so as to be eligible for re-employment rights in that title. OPMA challenges lie with the Superior Court. Challenges must be filed within forty-five days of the action to be voided. In this instance, no challenge was ever filed. I CONCLDUE, therefore, that no principal vacancy exists.

Finally, petitioner raises and argues facts in this docketed matter that more properly relate to another petition filed by petitioner on July 24, 2012. (Jacquelin v. Dennis Twp. BOE, OAL Dkt. No. EDU 9939-12). In the newly filed action, petitioner asserts that Shilinisky was elevated to acting principal effective April 19, 2012.

Petitioner holds a principal's endorsement under her administrative certificate. If petitioner were tenured as a principal at the time she was RIF'd, she would have special re-employment rights as a principal. But petitioner has not established that she is tenured as principal. Principal tenure requires proof that petitioner served in the position of principal for the requisite period of time (two years for promotional tenure). And petitioner would have to establish that she has seniority to Shilinsky. All of these facts and claims relate to a second petition that is pending before the OAL under a separate docket. Consequently, I CONCLUDE that these claims do not belong in and should not be adjudicated in this case. It was filed two years after the present action was filed with the Commissioner of Education.

Summary Judgment

The OAL rules governing motions for summary decision are found at N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5. These provisions mirror the language of R. 4:46-2 and the Supreme Court's decision in Judson v. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. of Westfield, 17 N.J. 67 (1954). Under N.J.A.C. 1:1-12.5(b), the determination to grant summary decision should be based on the papers presented as well as any affidavits, which may have been filed with the application. In order for the adverse, i.e., the non-moving party to prevail in such an application, responding affidavits must be submitted showing that there is indeed a genuine issue of fact, which can only be determined in an evidentiary proceeding. I CONCLUDE that summary decision is appropriate based upon the myriad of exhibits and certifications submitted with this round of motions and those previously submitted in connection cross-motions for summary decision. The material facts necessary to make a determination were sufficiently developed in the papers submitted.

CONCLUSIONS

Based upon the reasons set forth above, I CONCLUDE as follows:

1. Intervenor Shilinsky is qualified to hold the title Director of Special Education/CST under her Administrative Certificate with a Principal Endorsement and Instructional Certificate with a Teacher of the Handicapped Endorsement.

2. No vacancy existed in the position of Principal in the Dennis Township school district from the date petitioner was RIF'd (April 30, 2010) to the date Superintendent Papp was retired/terminated from the district (April 18, 2012). Any remaining claims for reemployment rights raised by petitioner are contained in a separate action filed on July 2, 2012, with the Commissioner of Education, and are not part of this proceeding. There is no finding or conclusion that petitioner is tenured as a principal and has any reemployment right to such title. Those facts were not developed in this record.

ORDER

It is ORDRED that summary decision is granted in favor of respondent as indicated above (conclusions). It is further ORDERED that petitioner's cross-motion for summary decision is DENIED. The action field by petitioner is DISMISSED. This case is concluded.

I hereby FILE this initial decision with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION for consideration.

This recommended decision may be adopted, modified or rejected by the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, who by law is authorized to make a final decision in this matter. If the Commissioner of the Department of Education does not adopt, modify or reject this decision within forty-five days and unless such time limit is otherwise extended, this recommended decision shall become a final decision in accordance with N.J.S.A. 52:14B-10.

Within thirteen days from the date on which this recommended decision was mailed to the parties, any party may file written exceptions with the COMMISSIONER OF THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, ATTN: BUREAU OF CONTROVERSIES AND DISPUTES, 100 Riverview Plaza, 4th Floor, PO Box 500, Trenton, New Jersey 08625-0500, marked "Attention: Exceptions." A copy of any exceptions must be sent to the judge and to the other parties.

BERGEN COUNTY.	:

The record of this matter, the proposed "Employment Separation Agreement" (Agreement) and the Initial Decision of the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to N.J.A.C. 1:1-19.1, have been reviewed and found to be in compliance with N.J.A.C. 6A:3-5.6.

The Commissioner approves the Agreement terms and adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case, with the following observations. Section 8 of the Agreement references an action which appears to have already taken place, and has therefore preceded consideration of the settlement by the Commissioner of Education. The parties are reminded that a settlement of litigation before the Commissioner is not binding until the Commissioner approves same. In addition, the resignation letter referenced in Section 4 is not annexed to the settlement agreement, as that section suggests.

Accordingly, the Commissioner adopts the Initial Decision as the final decision in this case, providing that the parties have either successfully implemented the settlement terms, or have agreed upon mutually satisfactory alternate dates for the effectuation of same.
